The chairman of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees announced here today the establishment of a 14-member selection committee to find a successor for Dr. Leo Jenkins, who retires as chancellor in 1978.

The board chairman told newsmen, "We will immediately begin soliciting for nominees. We expect this extensive outreach to occupy most of our time during the rest of this summer. By fall, we hope to have a good number of nominees to begin reviewing."

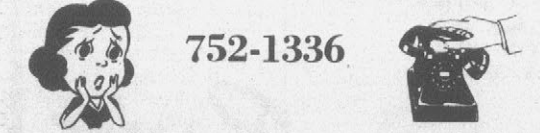

East Carolina University," Pate explained. "In this spirit, we have scheduled a meeting with interested citizens on July 23," he continued, at the Willis Building located at the corner of First and Reade Streets.

Pate expressed confidence "that the committee will identify strong candidates for consideration by the full Board of Trustees sometime next spring."

WITNESS'S FEE I served as a witness in a court case, and did not know and was not informed that I should apply that day for witness's fees. Later I went to see about them, because I am a state employee and needed to turn the check in in order to be paid for that day's work.

Hotline talked to Mrs. Louise Snowden, a clerk in the Superior Courtroom. She said one does have to apply for witness's fee before a case is completed, so the defendant, if he is assessed court costs can pay your fee right away.

Anyone serving as a witness in Pitt County who is a Pitt County resident receives $5 per court appearance. Those serving who live outside the county receive $5, plus 15 cents per mile.

The clerks who certify witness's fees in the Superior Court are Mrs. Snowden and Mrs. Frances Joyner. In District Court here, this job is done by Mrs. Loretta Smith and Mrs. Kay Dilda.

Flying Saucers' First Reporter At UFO Meet

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) - There were nine of them, shiny, pulsating objects flying over the Cascade Mountains as fast as 1,700 miles per hour. Kenneth Arnold was the first person to report seeing "flying saucers" - 30 years ago today.

The New Age Foundation, a UFO group in the Northwest, plans lectures, a salmon bake and a skywatch near the 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier.

Arnold, a Boise, Idaho, businessman, was flying his two-seater plane from Chehalis to Yakima on June 24, 1947, when he saw the objects over Mt. Rainier, moving in a strange weaving motion.

Recent Gallup polls show 51 per cent of Americans believe in UFOs. A 1973 Gallup survey found 15 million Americans who claimed to have seen them.

Arnold said a model he made of what he saw paralleled what Ezekiel described in the Bible. He said he saw 100-year-old drawings in the British Museum almost identical to what he saw.

His description has remained constant. The craft flew erratically, "like speedboats on rough water," cruising both flat and sideways. They were circular, pulsated like fireflies in the center and traveled at great speeds.

HAD A GREAT FALL - In an experiment concocted for youngsters attending a science camp at East Carolina University, Jerry Everhart, a graduate assistant in the Science Education Department tosses a box containing an egg from the roof of a building. The idea is that if the egg is packaged properly, it will survive the fall.

OPENINGS

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The Tobacco Advisory Committee of the flue-cured tobacco industry has announced warehouse opening dates for the 1977 tobacco market. The Georgia-Florida Belt, Area A, will open July 13. The South Carolina Border-North Carolina Belt, Area B will open July 19.

Closing In On A Killer

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. - An armed man believed to be the killer of three Girl Scouts was seen running from a cave and then spotted twice more before he eluded searchers amid the ridges on heavily forested Skunk Mountain.

A farmer first spotted the man who is believed to be Gene Leroy Hart, an escaped rapist, Thursday afternoon. He ran across an open field carrying two weapons, the farmer said.

Officers hunted the man with bloodhounds, attack dogs and a helicopter loaned by a Tulsa television station. The Skunk Mountain area is hilly terrain with thick woods and underbrush.

Around the time the man was first sighted, three charges of first-degree murder were being filed against Hart, 33, a convicted rapist and kidnaper who has been at large since he escaped from the county jail in 1973.

The jail, in nearby Pryor, is about 10 miles from Camp Scott, the scout facility where the three girls - aged 8, 9 and 10 - were sexually molested and murdered June 13. Officials said Hart, a Locust Grove man, knows the area well and conceivably could have hidden out for four years without being detected.

Officials were led to Hart by two tattered photographs found near the girls' bodies. One photo showed a single woman, the other two women.

High Court Okays Some Tax Aid To Parochial Schools

By RICHARD CARELLI WASHINGTON (AP) - States may spend tax dollars to provide parochial school pupils with books and certain educational services but cannot finance field trips or lend parochial schools equipment such as maps and audio-visual aids, the Supreme Court ruled today.

Ohio Legislature in 1975 "lends" up to $88 million worth of materials and services over the next two years to students in private schools, most of them run by religious organizations.

The loan of equipment to students, an action the court said "inescapably had the primary effect of providing a direct and substantial advancement of the sectarian enterprise."

In four separate opinions on a case from Ohio, the court said some forms of state aid to pupils in parochial schools do not violate the Constitution's requirement for separation of church and state.

Specifically, the court approved these forms of state aid to parochial students: -Diagnostic speech and hearing services conducted on parochial school grounds.

Ohio officials had hoped to get around a previous Supreme Court ruling that banned states from giving educational equipment to parochial schools or their students by "loaning" it.

The decision appeared to be a partial victory for a group of Ohio taxpayers who had challenged the Ohio law as an unconstitutional establishment of religion and a partial victory for state officials who insisted the law was valid.

Legislation passed by the court would not allow, however, these forms of aid: -Money or transportation aid for field trips, because the parochial schools and not their students would control the timing and frequency of such trips.

This would be, the court said, "an impermissible direct aid to sectarian education."

Hardliner

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Prime Minister Menahem Begin says his new Israeli government will not "under any circumstances" give up all of the West Bank or allow a Palestinian state to be formed there and in the Gaza Strip.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the House action, "if sustained will damage the ability of this country to pursue our national interests by peaceful means."

Powell did not threaten a presidential veto of the bill, but said passage of the aid ban by Congress "could lead to politicalization of traditionally nonpolitical institutions" and invite "other countries to take similar actions and attach political conditions to their contributions."

To do so would put "every city and home in Israel" in Arab artillery sights, Begin told the World Zionist Congress Thursday.

Begin's first major speech since he was sworn in Tuesday in effect rejected President Carter's statements that Israel should withdraw from the territory it captured in the 1967 war "with minor exceptions" and that the Palestinians should be given a "homeland," which Israel interprets as support for a Palestinian state made up of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

The bill, approved 208-174, was sent to the Senate.

"Israel will not be able, under any circumstances, to withdraw to the June 4, 1967, lines, and will not do it," Begin declared. "We will not agree under any circumstances that in Judea and Samaria (the Biblical names for the West Bank) and the Gaza Strip, a state called Palestinian will arise."

"In these two proposals floating around the world, there is a threat to the very existence of the Jewish state. To remove such proposals from the international agenda, we will in the full sense of the word be defending our lives. Throughout its history, when the people of Israel have been called upon to defend their lives, they have done so heroically, and they have overcome."

Miss Elizabeth Woods Is Bride Of David Haddock

Miss Elizabeth Rose Woods and David Wayland Haddock were united in marriage at three o'clock Sunday afternoon in Shiloh Methodist Church, Gaston. Officiating at the double ring ceremony the Rev. Fred Roberts.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry E. Woods of Franklin, Va., formerly of Gaston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John David Haddock of Winterville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Debbie Copeland, organist, who also sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "Lady," accompanied by Randy Archer, guitarist, and Miss Brenda Copeland. Miss Jean Evans sang "More."

The church was decorated with an arch and two side clusters of candles, two arrangements of gladioli and spider mums and palms. White rosebud vases were placed on the altar rail. The white roses were presented to each mother at the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white meracaine jersey fashioned with a high neckline, sheer yoke, raised waist and long fitted sleeves. Featuring an applique of Venise lace, the bodice was closed with bridal buttons. Venise lace appliques bordering the yoke enhanced the back of the gown which was closed with the traditional bridal buttons. The A-line skirt was bordered by scalloped Venise lace and extended into a chapel length train. To complete her attire, the bride selected a fingertip veil of silk illusion, bordered in swiss guipure lace and attached to a lace Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Sandy Harper of Fairfax, Va., was matron of honor. She wore a sundress of lime green fashioned in a front V-yoke which was trimmed with white eyelet lace. Her headpiece was a picture hat trimmed with green ribbon. She carried a bouquet of daisies and yellow sweetheart roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Woods and Miss Theresa Woods, sisters of the bride, both of Franklin, Va., Mrs. Brenda Parks, cousin of the bride, of Margarettsville, Miss Kathy Haddock and Mrs. Sue Worthington, both of sisters of the bridegroom, both of Winterville, and Miss Barbara Joe Hollowell of Franklin, Va. They were dressed identical to the matron of honor.

Miss Christy Wynne, niece of the bridegroom, of Greenville served as flower girl. She wore a light green floor length gown and carried a basket of petals.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Leigh Ann Boone of Jackson, Miss Jewel Collier of Lasker, Miss Beth Cherry of Windsor, Miss Susan Dickens of Weldon, and Miss Anne Beverly Dodson of Franklin, Va. They wore formal length summer gowns and each carried a long-stemmed yellow rose accented by white picote streamers.

John David Haddock served as his son's best man. Ushers were Ray Woods, brother of the bride, of Franklin, Va., Lindsey Worthington, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, of Winterville, Jimmy Wynne, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, of Greenville, John Woods, cousin of the bride, of Kinston and Mike Tyson and Pelham Smith, both of Ayden.

MRS. DAVID WAYLAND HADDOCK

Ringbearer was Vance Averette of Greenville. He carried a white satin pillow trimmed in lace made by the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of blue chiffon with long sheer sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom chose a floor length gown of apricot chiffon. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses.

The bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Hettie Bell Rose of Margarettsville, and Mrs. Eunice Woods of Milwaukee, Wis., and the bridegroom's grandmothers, Mrs. Penny Haddock and Mrs. Fronie Evans, both of Winterville, were remembered with corsages of white daisies.

Director of the wedding was Mrs. Brenda Cogdell of Greenville. Presiding at the register was Miss Teresa Baton of Franklin, Va.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall. Aunts of the bride, Mrs. Ida Faison, Mrs. Gladys Matthews, Mrs. Bertha Rose, Mrs. Eva Rose, and Mrs. Dorothy Flythe, served as hostesses. Assisting in the serving was Mrs. Maxine Moody and Mrs. Janice Hollowell.

Saturday night, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner in the London Inn of Roanoke Rapids.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held Saturday at the Cypress Cove Country Club in Franklin, Va. Hostesses were Mrs. Janice Hollowell, Mrs. Maxine Hollowell and Miss Barbara Joe Hollowell.

The bride is a senior at East Carolina University majoring in home economics. The bridegroom is engaged in farming.

After a trip to the North Carolina coast, the couple will reside in Winterville.

The Price Is Right, Service Is Poor

DEAR ABBY: My dentist does very good work for a reasonable price. Many people go to him because his price is so right.

What bothers me is his office, which always looks so dirty. Even his towels and his "white" jacket don't look clean. His instruments look rusty and dirty, and while he works he puts them down on an unclean surface.

Sometimes he leaves me in the chair for a few minutes to work on another patient, and when he comes back he goes right to work on me again without even washing his hands! Abby, how can I tell this doctor to wash his hands between patients and to clean up his office?

Sign me... MR. CLEAN

DEAR MR. CLEAN: You can tell him what you've just told me. He might clean up his act, but I wouldn't bet on it. If I were you, I'd find another dentist. What does it matter if the "price is right" if you risk infection?

DEAR ABBY: Our dear and saintly minister preaches a beautiful sermon every Sunday morning, and at the conclusion of each service he goes to the rear of the church to shake hands with all the members of the congregation as they go out the door.

The problem is that he grasps each hand and squeezes it as though he were cracking nuts!

My poor mother, with her hands gnarled by arthritis, waits in line as though she were going to her execution! I'm sure our minister reads your column, Abby, so if you print my letter, he may recognize himself and take the hint. Thank you.

W.

DEAR W.: Your mother—and all the rest of you out there for whom an enthusiastic handshake is painful—should not hesitate to say, when extending a hand in greeting, "Gently, please—arthritis!"

DEAR ABBY: You are my last hope. I am 29, considered intelligent, and "a lot of fun," and everyone admires my jolly, outgoing personality. I have had a few dates, but no man has ever taken me seriously. I am the "pal, buddy and big sister" the men come to for advice about the girls they "care about."

To get to the point, I weighed myself yesterday for the first time since September 1975, and the needle hit the highest number and just stayed there. It was one of those inexpensive bathroom scales, but it goes up to 300. Need I say more?

I have played Santa Claus at our office Christmas party for the last time, Abby. In plain language, can you give me a diet I can stay on? Don't tell me to see a doctor. The last one I went to weighed more than I did.

FAT AND MISERABLE

DEAR FAT: If you want my advice, DON'T tell me what NOT to tell you to do. You MUST see a doctor! Find a thin one if a fat one inspires no confidence. But follow his instructions to the letter—and no cheating.

Don't expect miracles. It will take all the willpower and self-control you can muster. But anything that's worth having is worth working for. Good luck.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Speaking of Your Health...
Lester L. Coleman, M.D.
Irrational Fear Requires Help

Whenever my daughter accepts a date to a movie or to a dance she goes into a panic. She actually shakes with fear before she forces herself to go. I tell her how silly it is and that I was the same way when I was a girl. But it doesn't help. — Mrs. L. A., Del.

Dear Mrs. A.
 It "doesn't help" because your approach to the problem is loving, but psychologically naive.

Such an irrational fear cannot be explained away by the fact that she is duplicating your past pattern of behavior. It's obvious that her reactions are totally disproportionate to the reality of the circumstance.

A better approach to such an anxiety state would be to enlist the efforts of a psychologist or psychiatrist who could trace the origin of such a "phobia." And it can be classed as a "phobia."

Psychological testing can very often pinpoint the cause of such crippling fears. Then even short-term treatment can help to re-establish your daughter's sense of security. This is a most important gift that you can give to her.

Tennis anyone? This is the universal cry of 15 or 20 million Americans who are actively involved in this exhilarating game.

Yet it is not completely free of some hazards. Doctors all over America are reporting eye injuries of major importance caused by tennis balls that travel at the speed of 60 or more miles an hour.

Fortunately, the wisdom of the body has built a protective bony shield over the eye that prevents even more of these serious injuries.

A simple protective device, frequently used by handball players, can keep tennis the great fun game that it is. It is a hard rubber frame (without lenses) that is worn over the eyes and protects them from such injury.

When I bounce out of bed in a hurry I get a flash of imbalance. It's not really a dizzy sensation, but it is very unpleasant. It doesn't happen often, but I wonder if it can lead to anything bad. — Mrs. L. H. K., Fla.

Dear Mrs. K.
 By the rest of your letter I know that you are 46 and that you are tall and thin. My immediate reaction is that the rapid change of position may be associated with relatively low blood pressure. This is one of the most common causes for momentary, temporary postural imbalance. Check it out with your doctor.

Liquor By The Drink Not Dead

Liquor-by-the-drink went down the drain, so to speak, on Wednesday.

Supporters of the local option approach were jubilant only last week when the bill received approval in the Senate, and later when House committees gave their approval.

Those opposed to the bill went to work during the weekend, however, and supporters became convinced early in the week that they did not have the necessary votes to get the bill through. Probably the biggest thing working against them was the defeat of liquor-by-the-drink in a state-wide referendum in 1973.

Proponents of the bill got it sent back to a committee in hopes that support can be mustered before the session of the Legislature next year.

Since next year's session will be a limited one it is possible the measure won't be considered again until 1979.

There are those who maintain that North Carolina has the most liberal liquor laws in the country, given the fact that a bottle of whiskey can be taken into a restaurant with a brown bagging license by anyone over 21, and even some mixed drinks opponents say that the public opposition in 1973 might have been more economics than moral.

At any rate, we can be sure that liquor-by-the-drink will be back, probably at every session of the Legislature. Given the closeness of this year's vote in the Legislature it is likely that at some time in the future a local option measure has a good chance for approval.

Glum Note In Mitchell's Involvement

It is a sad day when a former attorney general of the United States—once sworn to uphold the law—begins a prison term.

But John Mitchell went to jail this week.

The attorney general's participation may be one of the worst parts of the Watergate cover-up. It is not a proud time for our country.

THIS AFTERNOON

Dislike Medicaid Change

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—North Carolina physicians generally think current legislative efforts to hold the line on Medicaid costs are off track, and flatly predict the steps will not resolve the crisis.

Especially bothersome to the physicians is the freeze payments to doctors in private practice while governmental health care units are specifically exempted from the freeze.

Health care providers also fear that tackling such a big and complex subject as skyrocketing Medicaid costs in closing days of the General Assembly will lead to mistakes which will be hard to repair later.

Even though a Medical Care costs Commission will be set up by the Legislature to probe Medicaid in depth and recommend more solid steps for future consideration, state officials are urging immediate, stop-gap efforts to cut costs.

Bankruptcy
Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. has warned that Medicaid threatens to "bankrupt the state treasury," and Human Resources Secretary Sarah T. Morrow says, "the truth is we have to reduce the cost because our state government can't afford to continue as we are."

Cutting, she predicts, will not be easy as it affects both patients and providers: "It makes a lot of people unhappy."

Medicaid is available for welfare, blind, and qualified elderly, and for medically needy non-welfare cases. Costs have gone from $98.1 million in 1971 to a projected $316.8 million in 1979. The federal share is big, but the state burden is estimated at $26.5 million next fiscal year.

Reasons for the phenomenal growth of Medicaid into the state's single biggest human resources program are many, having to do with inflation, population growth, expanded programs, etc.

But researchers have pinpointed one particularly nettlesome situation: About 44 per cent of the Medicaid outlay goes to only 17 per cent of the caseload: non-welfare medically needy elderly. When nursing homes first came under Medicaid, costs doubled from $14 per day to $28 per day. That portion of Medicaid spending has outstripped hospital costs, physician payments and all other activities. Medicaid money paid long-term care facilities is the biggest bloc-($57.4 million) while inpatient hospital care costs $55.1 million.

BILL NOBLITT

Some Cuts

Among cutback recommendations in the General Assembly: freeze Medicaid rates; eliminate dental program; insist on generic drugs rather than trade names; crackdown on fraud and abuse; cut hospital days for moving a patient out; and other measures which would save nearly $12 million next year. Cost increases would still be big, nonetheless.

Secretary Morrow is putting considerable hope in the study commission to thoroughly probe matters, and it may, she suggests, "result in the creation of a Rate Review Commission which would be responsible for rate review and rate setting... similar to a utilities commission... (addressing) the total health care system in the state."

Meanwhile, she insists, the physicians do carry the biggest burden in cutting costs, despite disclaimers to the contrary. She is a pediatrician, herself, and has been in public and private practice.

"It is our physicians who determine whether and when a patient is admitted to a hospital or a nursing home... orders laboratory tests and writes prescriptions. In practicing defensive medicine... doctors are sometimes ordering unnecessary laboratory tests, x-rays, etc." Doctors need to police treatment and hospitalization, she adds.

Doctors counter that Medicaid payments are already too low and many of them are dropping out. Rural and inner city low-income areas where doctors are needed suffer most as they have a higher percentage of Medicaid cases.

E. Harvey Estes, Jr., president of the North Carolina Medical Society, has informed lawmakers that the cutting efforts could mean fewer physicians to treat the people who need it, and suggests that the assembly is not attacking a major factor in costs—allocation of services and eligibility. The rate freeze would not apply to hospital patients, Dr. Estes adds, and that "would undoubtedly result in increased hospitalization of patients."

The 258-Pound Burden

WASHINGTON—The latest word out of Uganda is that President Idi Amin plans to have the Britons who are left in his country carry him on a litter from his home in Entebbe to Kampala to deliver his budget address. President Amin weighs 258 pounds and the distance he wants to be carried is 25 miles.

Defenders of Idi Amin say he is not traveling by litter to humiliate the British for not inviting him to come to the Queen's Jubilee celebration.

"This is strictly a fuel conservation effort," a spokesman said. "The President believes that he must dramatize the serious energy crisis in his country, and what better way is there of doing it than being carried from his home to the capital by human beings?"

"But why Britons?" I asked the informant. "Surely there are other people in the country who are better litter carriers."

"That's not true," he said. "The British are the best litter carriers in the world. They carried the President 11 1/2 miles into the Kampala Stadium several months ago, and he was very pleased with their performance. The British have broad shoulders and don't rock or shake a sedan chair like our people do, and they are very careful about avoiding ruts in the road. President Amin had one of the best rides of his life, and he vowed if he ever rode in a litter again he would only be carried by his loyal British subjects."

"Then all the stories about him trying to humiliate the British are false?" I asked him.

"It's nothing but Zionist propaganda. The President is going from Entebbe to Kampala to deliver his budget message to the nation. He hopes to make the 25 miles in two and a half days. This will give him an opportunity to work on his budget in the peace and quiet of a sedan chair, and not be bothered by interruptions. This is strictly a working trip and has no international significance."

"How do you propose to find the British litter bearers to carry him?"

"We've had more volunteers than we can handle," the spokesman said. "Members of the British community are all vying for the honor of carrying the greatest leader in the world. Our problem is to choose amongst them those who are fit enough to make the journey. If anyone stumbles the President could fall out of the chair and then the consequences would be very grave."

"Have there been any contingency plans in case Idi Amin does fall down from the litter?"

"It won't happen. As soon as one of the litter bearers shows any signs of weakening he will be replaced by another British citizen, who will be carrying a backup sedan chair. We also will have four Britishers walking on each side of the President's litter to catch him before he hits the ground."

"I'm glad," I said. "Because it would be terrible to see one of the world's most beloved figures dumped from a sedan chair onto a muddy road."

Sale To Russia Barred

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union says it only wanted to forecast the weather with a $13 million computer system it was buying from an American company.

But the Carter administration says the Cyber 76 computer is so elaborate the Soviets could have used it for warfare.

After a two-year study, the Commerce Department rejected the proposed sale Thursday, saying the chance of its use in military activity "is of serious concern."

German and Italian war ships patrolled the coast of Spain on their own initiative today, their commanders acting in apparent concern.

Italian vessels were under orders to strike back immediately at any "attack" from the Spanish government. The German battle fleet, about to be reinforced by the pocket battleship Graf Spee was told to "protest German interests."

Uneasy fear still pervaded Britain that the joint Italian-German withdrawal from the non-intervention patrol, intended to isolate the Spanish war, was the forerunner of an attack against government Spain as "punishment" for an alleged attempt to torpedo the German cruiser Leipzig.

Amelia Earhart flew today from nearby Bandoeng to Sourabaya, Java en route to Kupang, Timor Island, on her flight around the world. She planned to remain at Sourabaya, about 250 miles from Bandoeng until tomorrow. The flight ended a three-day rest.

THE GALLUP POLL

Public Not Sold On Crisis

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Washington is making no progress in convincing the American people of the nation's critical energy problems.

The latest nationwide survey shows only four persons in 10 (40 per cent) expressing the belief that the energy situation in the U.S. is "very serious." The balance say the situation is only fairly serious (42 per cent), not at all serious (13 per cent) or have no opinion (5 per cent).

In an early April survey, 41 per cent said the situation was "very serious." This figure increased marginally in a survey taken not long after President Carter's energy speech on April 18, but subsequently declined slightly to the current figure.

KEY REASONS FOR LACK OF CONCERN

Four key reasons are offered by persons who feel the present energy situation is not very serious, as determined by a small-scale supplementary survey conducted by mail:

1. "It's a phony crisis, manufactured by the oil companies to raise the price of fuel."
2. "The big oil companies have a monopoly going," is the view of a 36-year-old fireman from Brockton, Mass. "They own most of the land where our rich coal supplies are. It's just a giant ripoff."
3. "We can readily convert to other forms of energy, such as coal, nuclear or solar power when the need arises."

"What's the big deal?" asks a 34-year-old female office worker from Rockford, Ill. "We can always switch to coal or some other form of power."

3. "We can overcome our problems by conservation."
"If all Americans would just cut down their driving, we would have the problem almost licked," was the view of one young executive from Trenton, N.J.

4. "I don't see any evidence of energy shortages."
"I just don't believe there is a crisis," said one homeowner. "At least I haven't felt the crunch myself. The gasoline filling stations are still pushing sales as hard as ever."

BUT MANY ARE CONCERNED

While approximately half of the public can be said to be relatively unconcerned about our energy problems, a solid minority as indicated, describe the situation as "very serious."

The key reason given by those who feel the energy situation has reached a crisis point is the devastating effect a Middle East conflict or another oil embargo could have on American industry or another winter as cold as the last.

"America is a nation of waste," said a 31-year-old farmer from Vale, S.D. "We waste more fuel than most countries use. The Arab embargo and this year's cold winter show why the energy situation is so serious"

A 32-year-old Hyattsville, Md., resident worried: "We are vulnerable to foreign pressures because of our growing dependency upon other countries for our oil."

DIFFERENCES IN VIEWS BY EDUCATION

Analysis of the results by background characteristics shows that 52 per cent of persons with a college background say the situation is "very serious" compared to 35 per cent among those who did not go beyond high school and 36 per cent among those whose formal education was limited to grade school.

Strength For Today

CHARACTER NEEDS RELIGION

Florence Nightingale was one of the greatest human benefactors of all time. Among the many arresting statements she made throughout her career is the following: "Live your life while you have it. Life is such a splendid gift. But you must make your thoughts your words, your acts, all work to the same end, and that end is not self, but God. The combination of thoughts, words, and acts is what we call character."

Today it is sometimes considered a sign of intellectual distinction to regard character as something that need not necessarily be connected with religious faith. We are told that people can become quite good enough without religion. Yet not only Florence Nightingale but thousands of other people who have been able to look facts in the face have come to see that the cultivation of character apart from religion is as difficult as the cultivation of religion apart from character.

Noise Labels May Be In Store

RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — From the roar of the lawn mower to the whine of the hair dryer, the government is battling to keep the din down.

And where that can't be done, there will be a label to warn you how loud your new appliance will be when you start it up.

The Environmental Protection agency announced Wednesday it is planning to require noise labels on a variety of products.

Final decisions haven't been made about which products will have to carry the labels, but leading candidates are reported to be vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, shop tools, dishwashers and powered lawn and garden equipment.

Also included will be labels for products which reduce noise, such as ear protectors and acoustic tile. Those labels will contain information on how helpful the products are in keeping down noise.

"The newly proposed labeling program will permit informed consumer decisions by making possible comparisons of products related to noise or noise reducing characteristics," said EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle.

Costle said the first product for which a labeling standard has been prepared is ear protectors.

Similar labeling standards for noise-producing products are still being developed, and no decision has been made whether to use a system of numbers, letters or symbols, officials said.

"For consumer products the labeling program should, with a minimum of federal involvement, provide accurate and understandable information to purchasers and permit them to decide for themselves if they want a quieter personal environment."

"If consumers make it plain they want quieter products, the marketplace will in all likelihood respond," Costle said. Officials said the labeling program is in response to congressional directions to reduce the level of background noise in the country. For products over which individuals have little or no control, such as bulldozers, trucks, motorcycles and buses, EPA is setting allowable noise levels for manufacturers to meet.

The EPA is seeking comments and suggestions from the public on its noise labeling program and officials said public hearings will be scheduled if there is sufficient interest.

Persons wishing to comment should write, by Sept. 20, to the Director, Standards and Regulations Division, Office of Noise Abatement and Control (AW471), Attn. Product Noise Labeling, Docket No. ONAC 778, U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C., 20460.

Sunset Law

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina General Assembly has enacted a "sunset" law requiring periodic review and possible elimination of nearly 100 state regulatory laws and licensing boards.

The regulations and boards that would be affected range from the licensing boards of private detectives and watchmakers to laws regulating the branding of farm animals and marketing of peanuts.

The law would not affect major state departments such as Human Resources, Transportation and Correction, or regulatory agencies such as the state Utilities Commission or the Banking Commission.

If the legislature appropriates the necessary money, a new Governmental Evaluation Commission will begin assessing such affected regulations and boards within the year.

The "sunset" law gets its name because a board or regulation would automatically cease to exist on a specific date unless action were taken to keep it alive.

Martin Board Adopts Budget

WILLIAMSTON — A 1977-78 tax rate of 78 cents per $100 valuation of property has been adopted by the Martin County Board of Commissioners.

The new fiscal year is the first time that Martin County will collect taxes on the 100 per cent basis of valuation. Last year, the tax rate was $1.05 per $100, but was collected on a 60 per cent basis of valuation. Total property valuation in Martin County is now slightly more than $4 billion.

weather research and forecasting. The computer has a wide variety of scientific uses in the United States, including military research.

There was no reaction to the denial from the Soviet Union, but a spokesman for the computer firm labeled the decision "political rather than being based on sound technical grounds."

The spokesman, Duane Andrews, declined to say why the firm believed political considerations were involved.

He said attorneys for the company have not yet decided whether to appeal rejection of the export license.

Opposition to the sale began from a group of congressmen who told Carter the computer is already "the brain center of the Pentagon, the Air Force and the National Security Council."

In a letter to Carter, they wrote, "Soviet assurances this will be used for peaceful purposes are unreliable and there is no potential method of monitoring the purposes to which it is put."

Carter's advisers also opposed the sale although other less elaborate computers have been sold to the Soviets.

Policeman Qualifies For Food Stamp-Use

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A rookie Monroe police officer who earns $7,384 annually reportedly has qualified for foodstamps.

The results of the application for a second officer, who also has requested foodstamps, were not immediately clear, according to The Charlotte News.

Neither Social Services Director Wayne Morris nor police department spokesman Det. Sgt. Chuck McManus would identify the officers involved.

Morris also refused to confirm or deny the report Thursday, saying, "The law does not allow us to reveal any information about foodstamp applicants."

Foodstamp users are able to buy groceries at below market costs, but must qualify according to a formula that includes minimum income standards.

The Monroe City Council has set a budget hearing on a proposed five per cent pay raise for police department personnel for July 5. Four policemen and their wives appeared at a city council budget hearing Tuesday to complain about the raise, but did not get to testify.

The four officers contend that increases in the cost of retirement plans, insurance, Social Security and other deductions from their paychecks exceed the proposed pay hike, and that the current proposal would result in new employees earning more than officers with 12 to 18 months experience.

Mayor Fred Long said Thursday he would hold a special meeting next week to reconsider proposed pay raises in the budget.

Under the proposal, the salary for a patrolman with less than six months experience would be increased from $7,384 annually to $8,719, a raise of $1,335. But a sergeant with 11 years experience making $10,462 would get a raise of only $523.

Police Chief Malcolm Nivens has said he was not surprised that foodstamp issue surfaced.

The last change in U.S. coinage came in 1857, when the half-penny was dropped.

Rather sharp differences, however, emerge in terms of occupational group. Those in the professions or business are much more concerned about the energy crisis than are those in clerical work and sales or in manual labor occupations.

Here is the question and trend:

"How serious would you say the energy situation is in the U.S. — very serious, fairly serious, or not at all serious?"

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

FILL YOUR GAS TANK WITH WATER, ADD THE POTENT PILL, RESULT—INSTANT GASOLINE.

Do you believe that? I did when I was eleven years old. The story went that there was a man in our neighborhood who had invented such a pill and was paid a million dollars (an incredible sum at that time) by a major oil company to keep it off the market. Some advertising is like that.

CAN PEOPLE BE CONNED?

Not really. We believe we're no smarter than anyone else. We also hope we're not stupid. We don't think anyone should underestimate our intelligence and we certainly would not underestimate theirs. Frankly, I would not buy a product from someone who overstates his case or makes outrageous claims about his product because I get the feeling I'm about to get taken.

Our philosophy when we began this series of "Open Letters To The Public" was to tell you frankly and openly about our product. We told you our cars weren't perfect, nothing is, but it's the best car you can get for the money. We told you that you probably wouldn't get 50 miles to the gallon and why. We told you that a car should last for 50,000 miles and how to make it last. We even asked you to compare our car to the competition and to make sure you actually test drive a car before you buy it. Most people don't.

So, without making outrageous claims or overstating our case, we ran this series of "Open Letters" to inform you about the way we do business, the quality of our automobiles and our desire to keep you as a customer.

Some people might call our approach old-fashioned, but we didn't want to insult your intelligence, we just wanted to tell it like it is. We did and we hope you appreciated it. Maybe in this world of Madison Avenue type advertising, a simple message can get through.

WE WERE HAPPY TO HEAR FROM YOU.

When you think about the fact that we have sold more than 400,000 Toyotas since 1968 and that over 5 million people have read this series of "Open Letters" in more than 150 newspapers, it is amazing that we only got 21 letters from people with complaints about their Toyotas. And we were happy to get the complaints because we could have lost these people forever as customers. They could also have cost us other customers with negative comments to their friends and neighbors.

While we received a great many complimentary letters and were delighted that people took the time to write us, the complaints we received were most important because we hadn't heard about them. And you can't do anything to solve a problem unless you know a problem exists.

WERE THEY RIGHT?

Yes, some of them were right. But, no matter what business you're in, it's impossible to please everyone. Some people are of such a mind that the more you give them, the more they want. Thankfully, most people only want what they are entitled to and we go out of our way to give them that.

We want and need your business, and frankly, the only way we deserve it is to do everything better. We do have a better product — a quality automobile that's going to give you your money's worth. We also have the best service and parts availability in the business.

WE KEEP IN TOUCH BETTER.

When we started this business we knew the importance of keeping in touch with our customers, so we built the most effective and intensive customer relations program in the business. We achieved the lowest customer complaint rate in the industry. Now to make it even better, we have upgraded our customer relations and customer follow-up programs.

Has this ever happened to you? Have you ever written a complaint to a large company and received a form letter from a computer in reply? This won't happen when you contact us. Each letter and each phone call will be handled on a personal basis. If you have a problem with your Toyota and bring it in to be fixed, it will be fixed. Besides that, our people will be in touch with you personally a few weeks later to make sure the problem was corrected and you are satisfied. We do this to keep you as a customer and to know that you'll be able to recommend Toyota to your friends. We think it's just good business.

PARDON US WHILE WE TRY TO SELL YOU A TOYOTA.

We just want to tell you that a Toyota is one of the best quality built automobiles in the world. The quality begins on the assembly line and works right on through the dealership where you take delivery. That's why Toyota has such a good reputation among its owners. Ask a friend who owns a Toyota. Owners are our best salesmen.

In past "Open Letters" we asked you to go over a Toyota with a microscope from the road to the roof... to take it for a test drive... and compare it with our competition. We want you to compare because we are confident that the quality of the car we are selling is the best in its price class.

We've also told you that you do not have to worry about parts and service when you buy a Toyota. We've talked about our factory trained mechanics in our 149 Toyota Dealerships in the Southeast. We've told you about our computerized parts inventory system that keeps our dealers stocked with the parts that you will need.

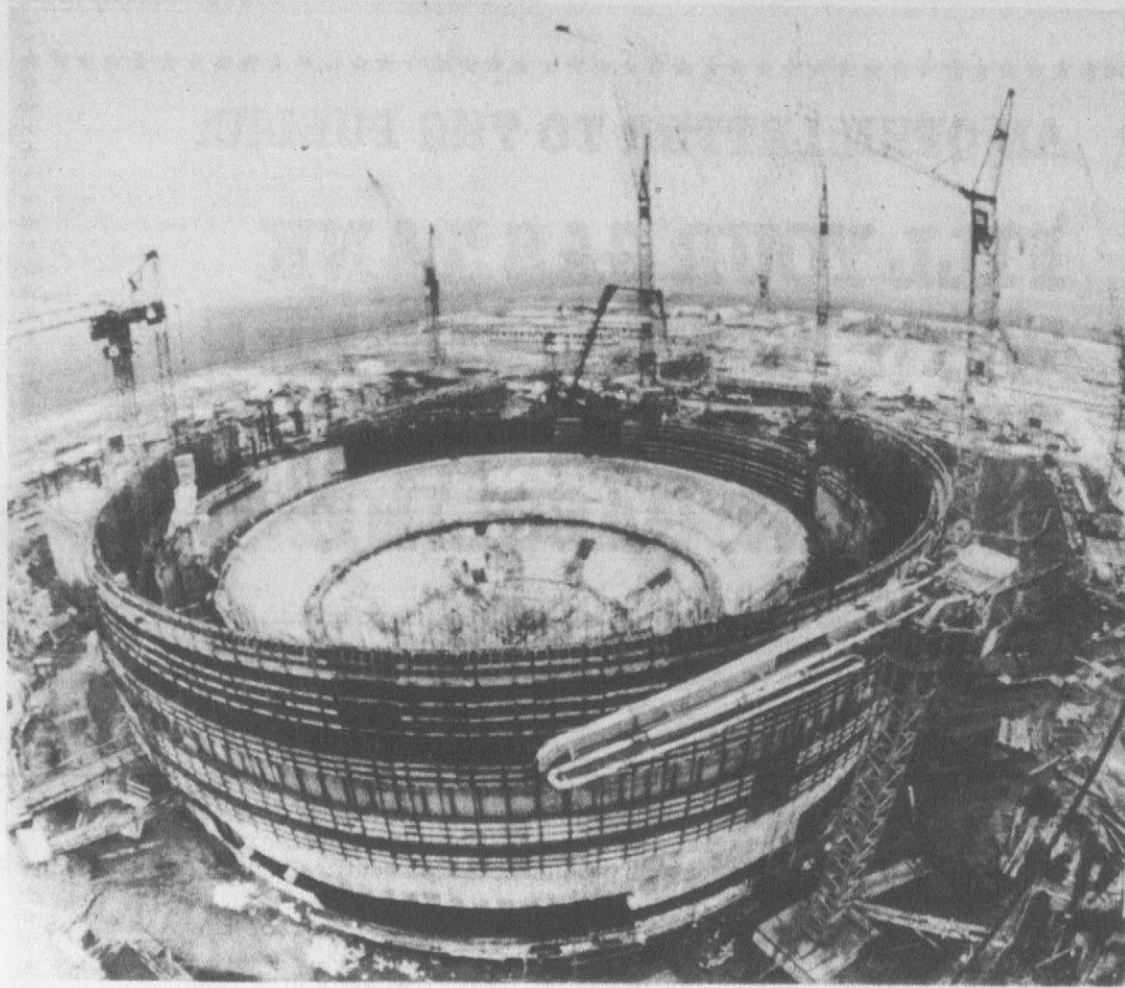

Finally, we have been telling you about our way of doing business where you, the customer, comes first. Keeping you happy and satisfied with your Toyota is our main concern. That's why we are continually improving our customer relations and follow-up programs. That's why we have the best parts and service systems in the industry.

When you buy a Toyota from any of the Toyota Dealers in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama or Florida, it's just like having a good friend at the factory.

Sincerely,

Jim Moran

National Cancer Institute To Test Controversial Laetrile

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute, bowing to public pressure, will test the controversial substance Laetrile on cancer patients who have exhausted all other hope.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, the acting director of the cancer institute, said Thursday the fact that the experiments will be conducted does not "change our opinion that Laetrile is not effective" in the treatment of cancer.

Proponents say Laetrile is a cancer remedy. Its opponents say it has no medicinal value.

"We have reconsidered our position because of a lot of factors, and one of them is societal pressures," Newell told a House government operations subcommittee conducting hearings into the government's war against cancer.

Newell also said the tests are being undertaken because of the number of states that have legalized Laetrile or are considering it, in spite of the federal attitude toward the substance.

Laetrile, a derivative of apricot pits, has been legalized in 11 states but the Food and Drug Administration bans it for interstate sales on the grounds that it is useless in cancer treatment.

Newell said the Laetrile will be administered in cases where patients had been given all the best known medical treatment to no avail.

Dr. Saul Shepartz, a cancer institute scientist, said the tests would be conducted on "a couple of hundred" terminally ill cancer patients and that the program should begin in about three months.

The institute said results of the tests would be known in about a year.

Newell said patients involved in the test will be given Laetrile in conjunction with other medication and that no patients will receive only Laetrile.

Newell said one group will receive Laetrile along with the standard treatment and the other group of patients will be given the standard treatment and dummy pills or injections that they would think was Laetrile. He said patients would not know whether they were in the Laetrile group or in the group receiving dummy medication.

Newell made it clear to the panel that he does not think the experiments will end the Laetrile dispute, noting that even doctors attached to the cancer institute "are not of uniform opinion."

"I don't really think in my heart and soul that one clinical trial will settle the question," he said. "But there are a lot of well-intentioned physicians and legislators out there who probably will accept the results of a well-conducted clinical trial."

And he said there is a group of people who won't accept any evidence that Laetrile doesn't work as a cancer treatment. "Those who don't want to believe it, won't," Newell said.

Ask Inquiry On Missing 2,500

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Eight Chileans began a hunger strike at the Geneva headquarters of the International Red Cross as similar vigils ended at United Nations offices in Santiago and Washington.

The Geneva demonstrators are demanding a U.N. investigation into the whereabouts of 2,500 persons they claim have disappeared since a military junta took over the Chilean government four years ago.

The 26 Chilean demonstrators in Santiago, the Chilean capital, demanded information about 501 relatives they said were missing. The five American demonstrators in the U.S. capital said they were expressing support for the group in Santiago.

The five men and three women who began a sit-in at the Red Cross building Thursday said they would fast there until a U.N. delegation was named to go to Santiago.

A Red Cross spokesman said they were in the wrong place since his organization has "nothing to do with human rights. We handle the Geneva Red Cross Convention." But he said the Red Cross would "not try to throw them out."

A spokesman at U.N. headquarters in Geneva said his organization knew nothing about the sit-in.

The Santiago demonstrators ended a 10-day hunger strike at

Presbyterians Ask Foreign Aid Review

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After refusing to brand homosexuals sinners, the Presbyterian Church in the United States called for a review of U.S. foreign aid it says helps perpetuate repressive regimes. The southern denomination's 117th General Assembly, which ends a week-long meeting today, said $6.8 billion in U.S. foreign aid helped keep repressive regimes in power in nine foreign nations.

In the action Thursday, it said, "Needed aid for economic development and security to such countries should be used to influence them toward protection and support for human rights and not as a reward for repression."

The assembly said the foreign aid, either direct or through treaty organizations, went to South Korea, the Philippines, Brazil, Indonesia, Argentina, Thailand, Chile, Iran, Uruguay and Haiti. In all cases, the report said, it was "channeled to repressive regimes, helping them to remain in power."

In response to appeals from Korean Presbyterian leaders two days earlier, the assembly toned down its description of South Korea's government as one of martial law to one of "a state of civil emergency." And it went along with the Koreans' request that President Carter be asked to reconsider plans to withdraw 30,000 ground troops from the country, on grounds it would invite invasion from the Communist North and end the chance. The 401 commissioners, representing 890,000 Presbyterians in 16 states, also: —Called on the President and

Congress to come up with new agricultural policies to help feed the hungry at home and abroad, including new price supports for large and small farmers and a revised food stamp and welfare plan.

—Reaffirmed previous stands against violence on television, by seeking help for local churches on how to protest violent programs and calling for protests to the three major networks.

—Refused to require two church agencies to sever ties with the national Coalition on Abortion Rights.

—Took important, but not decisive, steps toward reuniting with the 2.6 million-member United Presbyterian Church, now conducting the annual meeting of its 189th General Assembly in Philadelphia. One of the proposals, joint general assemblies of the two bodies every two years beginning in 1979, will be voted on by the United Presbyterian assembly Monday.

Woman's Day Planned Sunday

The pastor and members of Burney's Chapel F.W.B. Church in Black Jack will celebrate Women's Day Sunday at 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Virginia Monk of Bell Arthur. The public is invited to attend.

Joint or separate, the 1979 assembly of the southern denomination is slated to receive results of a two-year, local church study of homosexuality that was launched Thursday.

At the same time, the assembly went on record — during nearly two hours of discussion and debate — in favor of equal civil rights for homosexuals, but declined to ask Christians to advocate such rights.

There never was a question of whether homosexuals should be ordained — a question which United Presbyterians rejected a year ago when they called for their own study.

The assembly said homosexuality "falls short of God's plan for sexual relations" and urged the church to seek the best way to minister to homosexuals. But three different efforts to label homosexuality sinful failed.

Other merger proposals approved at the Nashville meeting included a study of union synods, or regional governing bodies, which would be affiliated with both denominations. But officials agreed that there is no indication the denominations, separated since 1861, will merge soon.

The questioning of U.S. foreign aid to what it called repressive regimes came in a far-ranging statement calling for Christian battles for human rights around the world, including America. Among other things, the assembly cited arrest or jailing of Christian leaders in Russia and South Africa for speaking out against government policies.

It also approved a separate message to the churches in southern Africa in which the denomination opposed the apartheid policy for segregation of blacks and whites in South Africa and committed itself "to support and encourage ecumenical efforts to witness to justice in southern Africa."

And, despite the assembly's weakened stand on the nature of the South Korean government and its appeal to Carter to reconsider withdrawing troops, the assembly went on record as saying, "There are more political prisoners in Asia than in other areas of the world."

Allens Are Church Family Of The Year

Mrs. Lillie Mae Allen was crowned "Ms. St. Paul 1977" Sunday night during the family night program. Mrs. Allen is the wife of the late Charlie Allen and the daughter of the late Peter and Blanche Roundtree.

The Allen family was named St. Paul's "Family of the Year." Her family includes a son, Bob by Allen; two daughters, Elmerlene Roberts and Janiel Farrow; and grandchildren Dexter Roberts, Devonna Farrow, Denise Allen, Vanessa Allen and Derek Allen. Other family members were present.

Mrs. Allen is a mother of the St. Paul Disciple Church of Christ, a member of the Christian Aide Club, the Jolly Doers Club, the Homemakers Club and the Senior Citizens Club. She also teaches the adult Sunday school class and sings in the St. Paul Adult Choir.

Gifts were given to Mrs. Allen and other participants in the program. Runners-up in the contest were Lillian Allen (second place), Virginia Wilson (third), and Mattie B. Walston (fourth). Other contestants were Beulah Ellis, Wilbert Jackson, Mable Williams, Lois Long, Elsie Matthews, Esther Mabry and Elizabeth Williams.

Ms. Cindy Wilkins was recognized as the oldest person present, and Mattie B. Walston received the captain's award for having the oldest and youngest family members present.) Virginia Wilson received a gift for having the most generations present.

Cyclists On Long Trip

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Fourteen bicyclists are expected to arrive here Saturday after pedaling more than 800 miles across North Carolina on newly created state routes.

The cyclists, who left Murphy over a week ago, are the first organized group to follow from beginning-to-end the "Mountains to Sea" and "Piedmont Spur" bicycle routes, recently planned, mapped and published by the Bicycle Program of the N.C. Department of Transportation.

"When I heard about the maps, I decided to do the trip," said Thorns Craven, director of the Legal Aid Society of Forsyth County. He told Ken Putnam, a Winston-Salem bicycle shop owner, about the maps, and Putnam decided to go along.

"Just the pair of us were going to do it and then we heard that the Raleigh group was going, so we have joined them," Craven said before leaving.

The bicyclists are camping along the way.

The group includes two university professors, an artist, two high school students, a machinist, a sales representative and a construction specialist. "It is not an impossible kind of thing. It isn't a race. It is a tour and a chance to take a different look at the state," Craven explained.

Copies of the "Mountain to Sea" bicycle route are available from Curtis Yates, Bicycle Coordinator, N.C. Department of Transportation, Box 25201, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Women Open National Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Women's Ordination Conference has opened a national office in an ecumenically owned building here, La Casa, to carry on its efforts for admission of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood.

At a liturgy marking the event, Barbara Nash, a suburban wife and mother among lay women and nuns present who seek the priesthood, led prayers for the day when they would have that opportunity.

Putting Bible In Pidgin English

NEW YORK (AP) — Through the American Bible Society, two translators — a Roman Catholic and an Anglican — have completed the first book, the Gospel of Mark, in a project to translate the Bible into Pidgin English for the British Solomon Islands. As they move into independence, Pidgin is expected to be the national language.

The Sun Shines Bright

But wherever it shines . . . there are shadows.
Wherever there are golden opportunities there are also sombre tragedies. Some fail to grasp their blessings.
Ours is a nation which guarantees to every child the opportunity for religious training. Yet ours is a nation which smarts under the scourge of a moral disease — juvenile delinquency.
In blessing you with a son or daughter, God has entrusted to you a precious soul. You are required by law to give your child a secular education. But, despite the scourge of delinquency, a free nation must leave to your conscience the question of your child's moral and religious education.
God has blessed America. With a nearby Church ready and eager to provide Christian training for your child, and religious foundation for your family's life—the Sun shines bright. But there are shadows. You must decide!

RIBBON CUTTING — Dan and Jacquie Parker look on as Mayor Percy Cox cuts the ribbon opening the Frame-It-Yourself Shoppe on Trade Street.

Mayor Percy Cox cut the ribbon Thursday formally opening the Frame-It Yourself Shoppe located at 106 Trade Street.

Grand opening activities will continue at the new business through Saturday, according to owners William O. Jordan and Joseph O. Clark

Clark said that the shop will specialize in do-it-yourself, as well as custom framing, and will have a large gallery featuring custom framed prints including limited editions, florals, sea scapes and others. Unframed prints will also be available.

The shop will have over 150 styles of molding in stock, it was pointed out, and other styles can be ordered. In addition, over 100 styles of matboard will be available as will all types of glass, Clark reported.

Dry mounting will be offered for prints and posters. Customers who prefer to do their own framing will be assigned work areas, he explained, and assistance will be available. Materials will be cut according to customer needs.

Frame-It Yourself Shoppe will be managed by Dan and Jacquie Parker.

Business hours will be from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. each day through Saturday with the exception of Wednesdays when hours extend to 9 p.m.

RALEIGH (AP) — Acting on a suggestion by a constitutional expert, Rep. Jim Morgan, D-Guilford, has proposed what apparently would be a novel method of regulating adult book stores and movie houses.

Morgan's proposal grew out of a discussion about a Senate-passed bill aimed at closing adult businesses by having them declared public nuisances. That bill has come under fire as being blatantly unconstitutional. The House Judiciary II Committee heavily amended the bill and will continue working on it Tuesday.

Under the Morgan proposal, adult businesses would be divided into four groups — book stores, movie theaters, peep shows and massage parlors. It would forbid more than one of the four being in the same building.

"They (adult book store operators) told me it would put them out of business," Morgan said. Adult book stores usually have 25-cent peep show machines and some have all four types of businesses. Police say peep shows provide high profits.

Arnold Loewy, a constitutional law professor at the University of North Carolina law school, suggested such a plan after telling the committee that nearly every part of the nuisance bill was unconstitutional. "It's either not going to do the job or if it does do the job it's going to be unconstitutional," he said.

Loewy suggested making it less attractive to peddle pornography by separating the various functions that usually are included in one location. "I think if you did do that, it would eliminate sex shops," he said, "I'm not sure that that wouldn't take care of the whole business."

In an interview, Loewy said he could not guarantee that the Morgan proposal would be constitutional, but said the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a California law that bans liquor sales and sexual explicitness, such as bottomless dancers, in the same place. He knew of no state with a law like the Morgan proposal.

"There is some evidence that when you put these things together (forms of adult businesses), you tend to have problems," Loewy said, adding that such evidence would enhance the proposal's probability of being constitutional.

Under the proposal, a violation could be punished with a three-month jail sentence and a $300 fine with subsequent violations possibly drawing six months in jail and $500 fine.

Members of the panel were given copies of the Morgan proposal to study. Morgan said he would offer it as a substitute for the nuisance bill or possibly as a new section to the bill if that fails.

The nuisance bill was sponsored by Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake. Initially, it would have allowed citizens, district attorneys and the attorney general to file suits to have the businesses declared nuisances. An amendment took out the citizen action in an attempt to protect legitimate businesses from harassment.

The committee met for nearly four hours Thursday morning then came back for nearly an hour after the House session. Some 14 amendments were made to the nuisance bill in an attempt to make it constitutional.

As filed by Lake, the bill would have closed a business for a year and had its contents sold if it was declared a nuisance. That was removed at the urging of Loewy who said the provisions make the bill appear overly harsh and vindictive.

Morgan complained that the bill apparently would be thrown out by the courts. "If we have one (a law) that is not constitutional, then we have nothing, absolutely nothing."

Lake said he believed his measure would pass a constitutional test but went along with changes the committee adopted.

"I am really saying that the heart of the bill has got to go," Loewy said. The courts have clearly ruled that future actions cannot be prevented, he said.

Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, chairman of the committee, said he believes the Supreme Court is moving toward allowing states more flexibility in dealing with pornography. Loewy, who was advising the panel on Davenport's invitation, agreed but said the court was still strongly protecting the freedom of speech provision that has led to many laws being struck down.

Disappointed In Ban On Unionizing Prisoners

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court's decision Thursday that prison inmates have no legal right to unionize pleased state prison officials, but disappointed a lawyer who represented the North Carolina Prisoners Labor Union in the case.

"I think the court failed to ever really understand the facts in the case," said Deborah Mailman, one of the two attorneys for the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union who represented the union.

She said the decision, however, "reflected the general trend of the Nixon-Burger Court to curtail civil rights and also to leave unchecked government abuses of people's civil liberties."

By contrast, North Carolina Corrections Secretary Amos Reed thought the court "made the proper decision" in reversing the rulings by two North Carolina lower courts.

In a prison situation, "if an order is given, it must be observed," said Reed. "It's not something that is negotiable."

He said prison inmates "do bring forward many positive suggestions. But it shouldn't happen in a grievance situation."

The Supreme Court did not ban unions in prisons by its decision Thursday. Rather, it upheld regulations which prohibit unions from using prison facilities for meetings, soliciting fellow inmates to join or receiving bulk mailings from union organizers outside the prisons.

In writing the majority decision, Justice William H. Rehnquist said prisoners retain only those rights that do not interfere with the running of the prisons.

Dissenting Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall called the ruling "a giant step backwards" to "a time not so very long ago when prisoners were regarded as slaves of the state."

The North Carolina Prisoners Labor Union was incorporated in 1974 with the goals of improving working conditions and resolving inmate grievances through collective bargaining.

After the union had attracted some 2,000 members in 40 North Carolina prisons and jails, state officials clamped down on all union activities.

The union sued the state, claiming the regulations denied them their free speech rights and the right to associate with others. The union also said it was being treated unfairly because other organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, Jaycees or Alcoholics Anonymous, were allowed to mail literature to many inmates and hold meetings on prison property.

N.C. Republicans Fear Wholesale Firings Due

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite cries of a "witchhunt," the House overwhelmingly approved and sent to the Senate Thursday a measure that Republicans argued would allow wholesale firing of GOP state employees.

The six Republicans in the state House were alone in opposing the measure, an amendment to the State Personnel Act.

Rep. Fred Dorsey, R-Henderson, said the result would wipe out all GOP workers remaining in state government.

"I ask you not to eliminate us completely," he said. "A Republican bleeds when he's cut, just like a Democrat. A Republican hurts when he's hungry, just like a Democrat."

The bill exempts workers from the act unless they have worked in state government at least five years. Workers with less than that much experience — such as employees hired during the last four years under a Republican governor — would have no right to administrative appeal if dismissed.

Before passing the measure, the House adopted an amendment offered by Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, which set the five-year period. Before then, the measure sponsored by Rep. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, would have gradually reduced the experience limit from five to three years.

The Ramsey amendment was the subject of a recent letter to Democratic legislators by state Democratic party chairman Betty McCain, in which she said it would allow the firing of Republicans to be replaced by loyal Democrats.

Gov. Jim Hunt, asked this week about the measure, said he did not plan to fire GOP workers if the bill is approved, unless they are not doing a good job.

Rep. Thomas Rhodes, R-New Hanover, branded the entire bill a "witchhunt of Republicans in state government."

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices rose on the stock market today as investor worries over interest rates eased somewhat in response to the latest report on the nation's money supply. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.82 to 929.19. More than twice as many issues rose in price as fell among stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the Big Board reached a fairly active 7.30 million shares over the first hour. Analysts attributed much of the activity to the Federal Reserve report, issued at the close of the market Thursday, which said the basic supply of money had dropped substantially. That was seen as good news by investors because it signaled a stable monetary policy. The Fed has been tightening credit since early spring in an anti-inflation move aimed at controlling a rapid rise in the nation's money supply. Hercules, down 1/2 to 19 1/2, was the volume leader on the NYSE. Weatherhead, up 1/2 to 13 1/2, and Simplicity Patterns, unchanged at 13 1/4, also were actively traded.

A 174,600-share block of Simplicity was traded at 13. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed stock gained 19 to 55.30 over the first hour. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .60 to 119.83.

Among other issues, General Motors was up 1/2 to 70 1/2 and Chrysler gained 1/2 to 17. Ford was unchanged at 57 1/2. Auto issues generally gained Thursday following favorable reports on sales in major June.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Supporters predicted little trouble today when the House considers Senate changes in a bill that would allow insurance rate increases without the state commissioner's prior approval.

"It may not be without a fuss, but I think we can concur on all of the amendments," said Rep. Marcus Short, D-Guilford, chairman of the House Insurance Committee.

The bill was returned to the House, where it was approved during three days of debate last week, after the Senate voted 27-16 in favor of the bill on its final reading Thursday.

Seven amendments were tacked on in the Senate, most of them put forward by sponsors of the bill to change provisions added earlier in the House.

"I believe we've picked up a few votes — people that staked themselves out against it the first time and will be free to vote to concur this time," Short said.

Two final amendments offered by opponents in the Senate Thursday were rejected, one of which would have provided that at least half the persons sitting on the insurance industry rating bureau be consumers with no ties to insurance companies.

Ingram blasted the vote as an "unarmed robbery" and called on the House not to concur.

"The people of North Carolina have been sold down the river to a super monopoly rating board controlled by out of state insurance executives," he said.

Under the measure, the industry-appointed bureau would set statewide rates for all private automobile, homeowners and workman's compensation insurance. Rates for all other types of property and casualty coverage would be set by the individual companies.

"Insurance is not a luxury. We in the General Assembly have mandated that people have it. We have created a monopoly here," Swain said. "You're setting up a rating bureau that's going to mandate how much the insurance company's charge for insurance, and there's not one consumer on it."

Sen. Carl Theroth, D-Forst, chairman of the Senate insurance panel, said the amendment would be "like telling a corporation they must have so many non-stockholders on their boards."

If approved, Ingram could rule rate increases were excessive, but could not halt their implementation until a final ruling by the state Supreme Court. If rejected then, excessive amounts would be returned to customers.

Cain Surprised By UNC Move

East Carolina University athletic director Bill Cain expressed surprise over the move by the University of North Carolina to drop the Pirates from its football schedule after 1981.

The move was revealed yesterday by The Daily Reflector. North Carolina has adopted an athletic policy of not playing anyone in the state, except for Big Four opponents, after existing contracts expire.

East Carolina and North Carolina are already contracted to meet in football from 1978 through 1981.

"My general reaction was one of shock and disbelief," Cain said after his return from Las Vegas, Nev., where he was attending the NCAA Athletic Director's meeting.

"I feel we have arrived at the point where we can provide entertainment for fans throughout the state," he added.

"We have had a good relationship with North Carolina, and I would like to think that in the future, things could be worked out and we could continue to have North Carolina on the schedule."

Cain said he learned of the proposed move by the Tar Heels during the meeting when North Carolina athletic director Bill Cobey informed him Wednesday.

Cobey was contacted by The Daily Reflector Wednesday afternoon (Greenville time) and said he could not comment on the situation. It was apparently after this that he contacted Cain and informed him of the new policy. Later in the day, he admitted to The Daily Reflector that the reported policy was official.

In other business during the athletic directors meeting, Cain said that it appears that the proposed realignment of Division I will come about at the next convention of the NCAA in January. "We would want to apply for the top division, naturally," Cain said. "We have made our plans in this direction."

He said the proposed plan now being pushed was similar to that sought by the College Football Association, a group which is threatening to bolt the NCAA.

Such a move would put restrictions on the size of a school's stadium, its average home attendance, grants, and academic standards above those currently in use.

Joyner Is A Winner

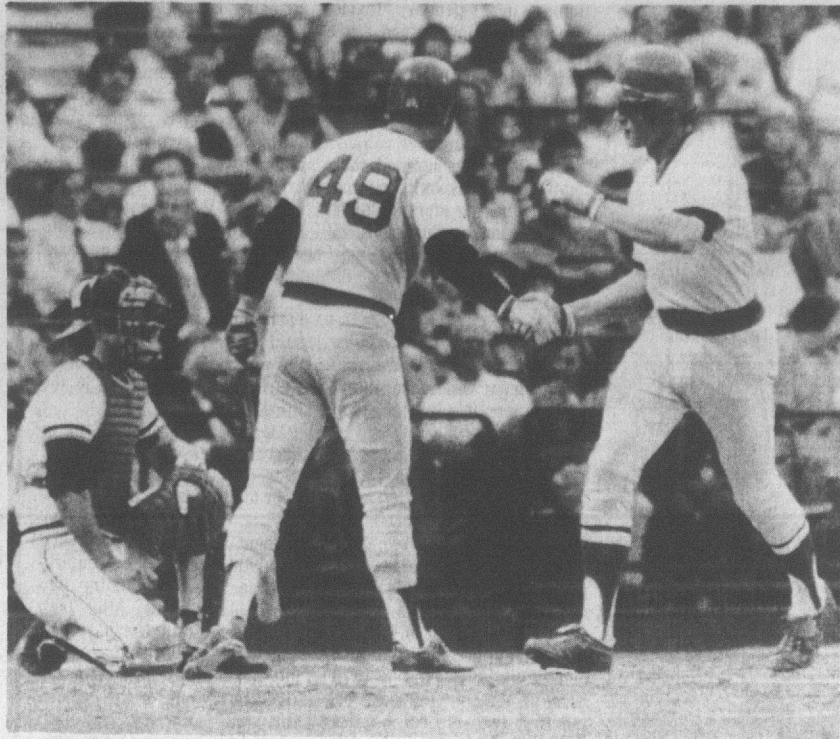

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Diane Dailey of Winston-Salem won the North Carolina Women's Amateur Golf Championship Thursday with a par 5 on the first and only hole of sudden death play.

At the end of three days of regulation play, she and Betsy Waynick of Greensboro were tied at a 227. The Greensboro golfer shot a bogey 6 on the sudden death hole.

Finishing in third place was the defending champion Carole Jones of Durham.

The tournament was played at the Walnut Creek Country Club.

Top flight finishers were first flight, Jean Williamson of Greensboro; second flight, (tie) Pat Joyner of Greenville, Helen Self of Greensboro and Pat Vaughn of Madison; third flight, Mary-Ruth Newton of Hickory; fourth flight, Betty Kendrick of Albemarle; fifth flight, Nancy Bugbee of Greensboro; and sixth flight, Martha Sessoms of Asheville.

Another Recordbreaker

The Boston Red Sox continued to assault the major league record books Thursday night. Boston's Butch Hobson is greeted at home plate by Tommy Helm after a solo homer in the second off the Baltimore Orioles' Mike Flanagan. It was the 30th Red Sox home run in nine straight games. Oriole catcher Rick Dempsey can only look on. (AP Wirephoto)

Cleveland Captures Eighth Straight Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"Love and happiness" is behind the Cleveland Indians' eight-game winning streak, according to Rico Carty. But the four-hit pitching of Wayne Garland and the timely hitting of Buddy Bell and Carty figures in it, too.

"I think the change of managers had a positive effect on me — not that I didn't get along with Frank Robinson," said Garland, who hurled the Indians to a 4-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday night. "But Jeff (Torborg) is a former catcher and understands me as a pitcher better."

The Indians won their last two games under Robinson and have won all six since Torborg took over last Sunday.

"I hope this monotony keeps us," Torborg said. "The team is real loose," said Carty, who clashed several times with Robinson. "Love and happiness is all it is."

In other American League games Thursday, Minnesota clobbered Texas 12-2, California defeated Chicago 10-6, Boston downed Baltimore 7-3 and Seattle took 10 innings to nip Kansas City, 8-6.

There were no National League games scheduled. Bell and Carty belted home runs to back Garland's pitching. The right-hander held Toronto hitless until the sixth, but said he didn't think about the possibility of throwing a no-hitter.

"I don't think I've got the outstanding stuff to pitch a no-hitter," Garland said. "I'm around the plate too much."

Twins 12, Rangers 2

Rod Carew banged out three hits to raise his major league-leading batting average to .395 as Minnesota hammered Texas. Larry Hisle drove in two runs for the Twins, while winner Dave Goltz, 7-5, celebrated his 28th birthday by scattering nine hits.

The loss spoiled the debut of Rangers interim Manager Connie Ryan, who took over when Eddie Stanky quit after managing only one game.

Angels 10, White Sox 6
California scored three runs in the sixth inning and five runs in the seventh to power past Chicago. Mario Guerrero drove in three runs with a pair and Bobby Bonds and Terryo Humphrey both had singles to lead the attack.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 3
Butch Hobson drove in two runs with his 11th home run and a double as Boston continued its record-breaking slugging. Hobson's homer extended Boston's record streak to 30 round-trippers in nine games. The Red Sox have won seven in a row and 16 of their last 18.

Ferguson Jenkins, 7-5, tossed a six-hitter for the victory. Mariners 8, Royals 6, 10 innings
Dan Meyer doubled in the 10th inning, then scored on Craig Reynolds' single to snap a tie and give Seattle its extra-inning victory over Kansas City. Darrell Porter hit a two-run homer for the Royals.

Lucchesi-Ryan-Stankey No Double Play Combo

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Lucchesi to Stanky to Ryan is not a famous double-play combination. It's just this week's combination of managers for the Texas Rangers.

Frank Lucchesi was fired as the Rangers' skipper Wednesday, and replaced — supposedly through 1978 — by Eddie Stanky.

But a homesick Stanky abruptly quit Thursday after one game and third base coach Connie Ryan, 57, was named interim manager by Texas executive vice president Eddie Robinson.

The Rangers were 31-31 under Lucchesi this season, then 1-0 under Stanky after rallying to a 10-8 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night. But under Ryan, they're 0-1 after a 12-2 loss Thursday to Minnesota.

Though there has been no official announcement, it is expected that Ryan will manage the team through the end of the season. Robinson said no decision would be made until he discusses the matter with owner Brad Corbett.

Ryan was hired by the Rangers as a coach prior to this season. Before that, he coached and scouted for the Atlanta Braves from 1971-76.

Ryan last managed in 1968 in the minor leagues. Earlier speculation had him replacing Lucchesi, but Robinson said flatly at that time that Ryan would never replace Lucchesi as the Rangers' manager.

"Now we have a completely different situation," said Robinson. "I see no reason why Connie couldn't run the ball club until such a time as we needed somebody else."

Ryan learned of Stanky's decision only three hours before Thursday's game.

Texas arrived here Thursday night for a four-game weekend series with the California Angels.

After arriving in Anaheim, Ryan said he was "just taking things as they come, I'd be guessing if I said anything now. I'll know better in four or five days."

"I think I want the job permanently," Ryan added. "It hasn't been offered to me yet. I'm going to wait a couple of days before I say much."

Stanky, 59, left for his Mobile, Ala., home from Minneapolis Thursday morning. He will return as baseball coach at the University of South Alabama, a position he held the past nine years.

Robinson said Stanky telephoned him Thursday morning to tell him he was at the airport and heading for home.

Robinson said Stanky told him he decided that he couldn't leave his family and 85-year-old father, who lives with the family in Mobile.

As far as accepting the Rangers' offer to manage the team, Stanky said upon his arrival in Mobile Thursday that "I should have known better."

Stanky said after Wednesday night's game he was "lonesome and homesick," and that he enjoyed his brief return to pro baseball and would have stayed "if I didn't have to go to my room alone each night."

No Changes For Sloan

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Despite the loss of five players who would have been on the 1977-78 North Carolina State basketball team, Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan says he'll continue his current manner of handling players and recruits.

"I'd be dishonest with you if I didn't tell you I had scrutinized and evaluated it very closely and over long hours, and I don't see it's necessary for me to change one thing," Sloan said in an interview with Greenville News sports editor Dan Foster.

Each of the five players has his individual reasons for leaving the Raleigh institution, Sloan said.

The departing players are rising senior Al Green, transferring to Louisiana State; brothers Brian and Steve Walker, headed for Purdue; Dick Ewing, going to Stetson; and star junior Kenny Carr, turned pro.

Sloan said collegians' discontentment often stemmed from "dreaming of being a very wealthy person instead of just a famous athlete. It complicates a junior high and senior high coach's life when they don't put a kid in as a starter."

ROUGH ON FANS

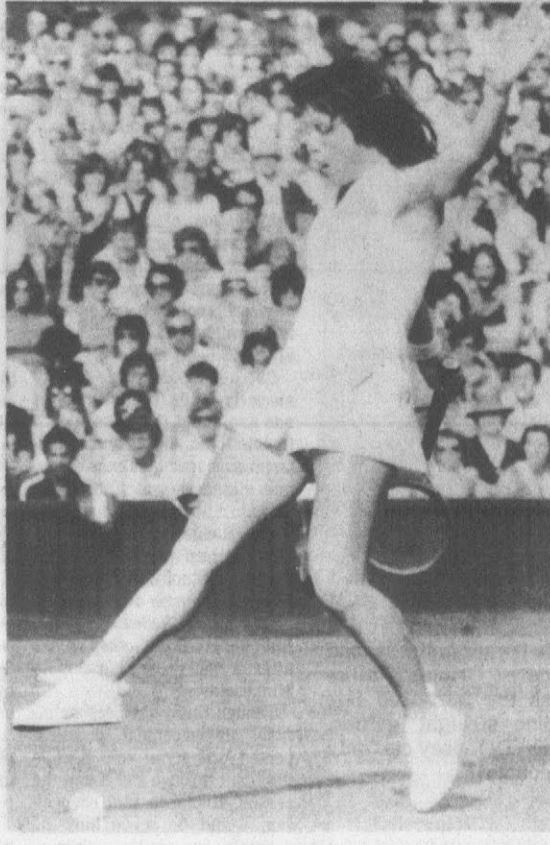

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — The outspoken golf pro, Dave Hill, says he can't understand why the fans put up with all the abuse they get in watching tournaments. "The fans walk a mile from their cars to the course," Dave said. "They walk around the course following the action. At most tourneys there is no grandstand. They have to stand in line to buy a hot dog which probably costs a dollar. For all this they pay $5 to $10 to get in. And then some player snaps at them for rattling the change in their pockets."

AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A pair of tennis twins from Onalaska, Wis., Tim and Tom Gullikson, have caught the imagination of the massive crowds at the centenary Wimbledon Tennis Championships this week.

A New Approach

Billie Jean King of the United States tries a new approach to the ball Thursday during her center court match against Maria Bueno of Brazil. Mrs. King, who came out of retirement for Wimbledon's centenary year, beat Maria Bueno, another veteran star, 6-2, 7-5. Between the two, the women hold nine Wimbledon singles titles. (AP Wirephoto)

Oldtimers were even mentioning the legendary tennis-playing twins, Wille and Ernie Renshaw, who dominated the fledgling Wimbledon tournaments of the 1880s when tennis was still played in long trousers and straw hats.

The Renshaws learned their tennis on an asphalt court at school, and the story is much the same for the Gulliksons, 25-year-olds who picked up most of their tennis savvy in public parks playing against each other.

Tim is a stocky right-hander, and Tom, older by five minutes, a lefty. Otherwise, it's almost impossible to tell them apart.

For four gruelling hours under a hot sun Thursday, Tim fought his heart out on a packed outside court, with many in the record 37,815 crowd straining their necks to get a glimpse of his battle against No. 7 men's singles seed, Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Matching the masterful Mexican at his own game with finesse at the net, Gullikson took the first two sets 6-3, 6-4, lost the third 3-6 and wasted four match points in the fourth which Ramirez won 9-8 on a tiebreaker.

Ramirez, with his Mexican bandit mustache, sprayed a strained stomach muscle with painkiller between games, while Gullikson suffered cramps in the closing stages of the tight deciding set as every point drew oohs and aahs from the crowd.

After breaking in the fifth game to go 3-2, Gullikson reached 5-4 and was serving for the match points before piledriving a serve with Ramirez could only hit into the net for the match.

The muscular American whooped in relief, the crowd burst into prolonged applause and Gullikson took a spare tennis ball and clouted it high over the grandstands.

Californian Billy Martin also turned in a big upset, dumping Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in straight sets. The top men's seeds, Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, posted victories as did the top women's seeds, Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova.

After his match Gullikson explained why he kept looking up to the players' restaurant where his wife Rosemary, and his brother Tom and his wife Julie were watching and rooting for him.

"We always try to watch each other play — it helps," said an exhausted Tim after the match. He now meets Brian Fairlie of New Zealand in the third round.

Meanwhile, brother Tom, a first-round casualty against No. 6 seed Ilie Nastase, joins his twin for the men's doubles Friday.

Their showing in Paris and Wimbledon is the more remarkable for their late entry into world class tennis. After both graduating from North Illinois University, they became teaching tennis pros until Tim decided to try out for the pro circuit two years ago and persuaded his brother to join him. They quickly climbed up the U.S. rankings and made the Grand Prix circuit.

Lietzke Finds Swing; McCord Finds Press

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, who faded after a dazzling start this year, says he's found his golf swing again. Gary McCord says he's finally located the press room.

"I thought the press room was where you got your clothes laundered," the stocky Californian joked after carding a five-under-par 67 Thursday to share the first-round lead with Lietzke at the Western Open.

Bill Mallon, who has been on the pro tour for 1 1/2 years, was third at 68. Five golfers, including defending champ Al Geiberger, were two strokes back at 69.

McCord was escorted by tour officials to the press interview area after his round. Though he hasn't won since joining the tour in 1973, he settled easily into the unfamiliar surroundings.

"I just went out and played like everybody else," said the 29-year old of the round in which he dropped 30-foot putts for birdies on his first and last holes.

Of previous tournaments this year, he said, "I'd get off to a good start then get a 74, 75 or 76. It's like riding a bike up a hill. You pedal hard, but you don't get anywhere."

McCord said his putting, which suffered because "my setup was all screwy," has improved with the help of fellow pro John Schroeder.

Lietzke also has had help in displaying again the magic that made him the talk of the early 1977 tour. He says his brother Duane watched him on the practice tee and confirmed that his swing was back.

"I must have gotten into a bad habit of picking the club up real quick" after he had won the Tucson and Hawaiian Opens and finished second at the Bob Hope Desert Classic by mid-February.

Then he took off three weeks because of his father's death and lost his touch.

Tied for fourth at 69 were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Frank Beard, Andy North, Bob Murphy and Geiberger. The pack at 70 was made up of Vic Ryzgaldo, Mac McLendon, Tom Watson, J.C. Snead and David Lundstrom.

Four strokes off the lead at 71 were Curtis Strange, Rik Massengale, Ed Dougherty, Phil Hancock, Bob Gilder, Dave Sheff and Jeff Mitchell.

Hargan Learns To Pack Bag

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Hargan has learned his lesson. He now keeps a bag packed—permanently.

It has been a hectic 1977 season. Atlanta's tall right-hander has pitched for three teams in three months and can testify first-hand to the vagabond existence ballplayers sometimes live.

Howell.

"It wasn't a total surprise," said Hargan. "I have some friends in Texas and they kept telling me there were rumors that I was coming back." Accommodations were no problem since the pitcher owns a home in Arlington.

Hargan hopes to stick around Atlanta for a while. "I think the moves have put me in a better direction. Maybe I'll have an opportunity to pitch here, to be a good pitcher like I know I can be."

number—26. He's wearing No. 50 with the Braves but he's shooting higher than that. "I've asked them for No. 100," he said. "That's double 50. Maybe it will make me twice as good."

No Change...

The player and the family are upset, because that man (the coach) has killed their dream."

But the coach said he didn't intend to promise any player a starting position — not even a David Thompson. Thompson was an all-American on Sloan's national championship team four years ago.

"I like to be friends, but in order to fulfill your responsibility, sometimes you have to make decisions you know won't be popular with the team at large, and I make those decisions when I know they're not popular," he said.

The players remaining on the Wolfpack squad "have been incensed at the treatment of the whole thing and feel it has been very unfair and one-sided," Sloan said. "My only problem with them is that I don't want them to dwell on this in any way.

He was setting in and his parents had driven down from their home in Fort Wayne, Ind., to see him pitch. When they called their son, they got a peculiar greeting.

"I asked them, 'How do you like Atlanta?'" recalled Hargan. "They asked me why and I said, 'That's where I'm going.'"

Just before the trading deadline, the Rangers had dealt the 34-year-old pitcher to the Braves. Don't worry about where he'll live. "I've got friends there, too," he said. "After playing for 16 years, you get to know people in a lot of places."

It has been easy for Hargan. His minor league itinerary included stops in places like Selma, Ala., Burlington, N.C., Duquesne, Iowa, Charleston, S.C., Portland, Ore., Wichita and Oklahoma City. "I have been in a lot of places," he admitted.

"The whole thing is to play. That's what you're happy and that's what this game is all about. When you're not pitching, you feel left out... I'm going to give myself to (pitching coach) Johnny Sain. I should be better than I have been."

The shuffle of teams has cost Hargan his favorite uniform

World Bank And IMF Rarely Talk Of Activities

New Shop Formally Opened

Ribbon cutting ceremonies marking the opening of The Wishing Well were held on Thursday with Mayor Percy Cox on hand for the activities. The new card and gift shop, owned by Ron Hester and Bobby Hall, is located at Greenville Square Shopping Center. Hall said that the shop will offer a variety of card and gift selections for most occasions, including weddings, birthdays and special events.

Well is open from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and specializes in greeting cards and gifts.

Operating hours for the new business will be from 10 a.m. until 8:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, he added.

Pat Massey will manage The Wishing Well.

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was elected recently to a third five-year term as World Bank, little public notice was taken.

Yet the World Bank and its sister institution, the International Monetary Fund, are highly important international institutions that dispense many millions of dollars in U.S. tax funds each year.

The re-election of McNamara by the bank board of directors, which includes a U.S. representative, was not discussed in any public forum, and was announced in a terse two-paragraph press release.

It was indicative of the almost airtight secrecy and confidentiality that surrounds both bank and IMF activities.

McNamara and his counterpart at the IMF, Managing Director J. Johannes Witteveen, a former Dutch finance minister, rarely allow interviews although McNamara did grant one interview last year in which questions had to be submitted in advance.

McNamara's refusal to allow a spontaneous interview has caused some reporters to speculate he does not wish to be asked questions regarding his participation in the expansion of the Vietnam war while he was U.S. defense secretary from 1961-1968.

But bank spokesmen say that if McNamara grants an interview to one reporter he would have to grant interviews to all reporters. And they say that since he represents all of the bank's 129 member nations, he must guard his statements carefully.

The same reasons are given for Witteveen's refusal of interviews.

But it's not just the top men who disdain public exposure of their tins. U.S. representatives on the boards of the two institutions, Hal S. Reynolds of the IMF and Sam Cross of the World Bank, decline to speak to reporters on the record. Only rarely will officials at any level permit themselves to be quoted.

And although millions of dollars are dispensed each year by the two organizations, often in circumstances of potential controversy, little is said publicly about them, other than sterile press releases announcing the loans and giving the purposes.

It is known from sources within the World Bank that there has been considerable controversy over bank loans to Chile, for example. Questions also have been raised about lending to Argentina because of alleged human rights abuses.

The bank now has before it proposals for major loans to Communist Vietnam, decisions that surely will be hotly debated. The IMF already has extended assistance to the Hanoi government.

Very little was said when Hanoi was allowed to become a member last year of both institutions, making it eligible for considerable aid.

But board meetings of both the bank and the IMF are closed, and minutes of discussions are never made public. It sometimes is possible to find out unofficially how the United States voted on an issue, but there is no public record of the votes.

Congressional control of the operations of the two institutions is limited, partly because they are international organizations. But Congress does vote on U.S. contributions, which are about one-quarter of the financial support of both the bank and the IMF. So the United States has about one-quarter of the total voting strength.

The role of the two institutions in the current international economic turmoil is considerable, if not vital, to keeping the existing economic system operating in the non-Communist world.

The International Monetary Fund loaned $699 million in May alone, which included funds for Great Britain, Italy, Egypt and Portugal. Net outstanding loans, or drawings, were about $19 billion.

The IMF lends money to help countries with balance of payments problems. International payments have been out of balance since oil-exporting nations summarily increased world oil prices in 1973.

World Bank lending is made for development projects in lesser developed countries. During the first three months of this year, regular World Bank loans totalled just under $1.2 billion.

In addition, a bank subsidiary, the International Development Association — IDA — made $456 million in nearly interest-free loans to the world's poorest nations in the same period.

The IMF's available lending resources are getting dangerously low. Demands on the World Bank also are growing, especially from poor nations whose already impoverished living standards have failed to improve since the world economy plunged into recession in 1974.

Money for all these purposes comes from the members of the institutions, especially the richest — Germany, Japan and the United States. And, of course, it is the taxpayers of these countries that either put up the money or underwrite the loans.

The United States, for example, will contribute $2.4 billion of the $7.6 billion in the IDA lending program for the three-year period beginning July 1, if Congress approves.

But the decisions on what countries get how much or for what purpose are made in almost complete secrecy. The U.S. taxpayer almost never gets a complete report.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Dble. 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
4 ♣ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♣.

South, declarer at four spades, drew the correct inferences from the bidding and the fall of a key card to land a difficult game.

North-South conducted an intelligent auction. North bid his hand naturally despite the fact that West intervened with a takeout double. South needed no more than confirmation of a 4-4 spade fit to contract for game—he felt his distributional assets would offer adequate play despite the storm warnings of a bad trump break implicit in West's double.

West led the king of clubs, won by the ace. Declarer realized that he would first need to set up his diamonds before touching trumps—the ace-king of trumps were going to be needed as entries to his hand. Therefore, he delayed drawing trumps in favor of leading a diamond to his queen.

In with the ace of diamonds, West continued another club. Declarer ruffed, cashed the king of diamonds and led a third round of the suit. West did not want to squander a high trump, so he sluffed a club. Dummy ruffed low and a trump to the king fetched East's ten. That convinced declarer that his reading of the hand was correct—West had indeed started with four trumps.

Declarer now led a high diamond. Since refusing to ruff would only postpone the inevitable endplay, West ruffed with a trump honor and exited with a third club. Declarer ruffed in dummy, discarding his heart loser, and crossed back to his hand with the ace of trumps.

Now he simply led his top diamonds. West could score his master trump whenever he wished, but that would be declarer's only other loser. In all South lost two trump tricks and the ace of diamonds to make four-odd.

TV Essayist Has Perspective

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I got to wondering recently what Andrew Rooney was up to. So inquiries were made of CBS News, where he works. CBS News said watch "Mr. Rooney Goes to Work" on July 5.

It's his third on-camera essay about life in America. In 1975 he explained bureaucracy in "Mr. Rooney Goes to Washington." In 1976 he did "Mr. Rooney Goes to Dinner," an eating-out study from which he graduated summa cum laudibus and 14 pounds heavier.

Alas, work may be his last one-hour "Goes To" show for a while. He says he'll be doing 100 short essays for "60 Minutes" next season.

If you've never seen his shows, suffice it to say the reporting style of Mr. Rooney, 57, is sort of a blend of Robert Benchley, Frank Sullivan and the basics of the police beat.

There's a certain perspective that may stem from the fact he's been a war correspondent, a screenwriter — briefly — and has written for such disparate types as Arthur Godfrey and Harry Reasoner, for magazines from Playboy to Saturday Review.

According to CBS, his July 5 show contains chats with folks ranging from a vice president of the United Auto Workers union to a trumpet-teacher at a musical instrument factory in Michigan.

"I originally wanted to call it 'Goofing Off in America,'" said the author when called at his office in the CBS works in midtown Manhattan. "I thought everybody's stealing from the boss, sleeping on the job."

"And I thought the notion of goofing off would be a good thing to document, to see the sophisticated and simple ways of doing it."

"Then I got to thinking that what they steal is time," added Rooney, who spent four months working on "Work" and five months waiting for CBS to find time for it on the prime-time schedule.

"So I went traveling, looking around and talking to people, and geez, I got the surprise of my life. I think I was wrong, people are really working hard in this country."

"I think any goofing off is superficial, and I was really surprised." Until he began his "Mr. Rooney" essays, the essayist worked behind the cameras as a producer or writer. He still considers himself "just a writer." This led to a question about a hazard of scrivining.

It's a fact that when writers start thinking about a story and even have a short or two to aid the cogitation, they're often unjustly accused of goofing off.

The writer who did an entire show on work was asked about this.

"It's tough," sighed Mr. Rooney. "I've got a couch in my office and I often wonder whether it's a good idea. You can lie down and start thinking about what you're going to do."

"But first thing you know, you're sound asleep ..."

We'll put you in your place.
If You Now Rent . . .
 Do you feel out of place in that rented house or apartment? Nice enough place to live but just doesn't feel like "home" - right?
 Well, you may be closer to home ownership than you think. Home Savings is out to put a lot of people in their place. We've got the mortgage money right here at Home to finance your new place in life. Why wait?
 Don't get unnecessarily caught up in the "delaying game". Right now may be the best time for you to buy.
Housing and land costs will continue to rise. So waiting until you can "afford" to buy can be false reasoning for putting off your goal of home ownership.
It never hurts to ask . . .
 If you're a little apprehensive - try this: Pick a home on today's market that is the house you want or one that is comparable in size and style. Come by Home Savings and ask any one of our loan counselors to do a preliminary "work-up" on the costs involved, estimate monthly payments and educate you as to the various requirements.
 We'll be happy to take the time and work with you. Knowledge of the process can eliminate any apprehension you may have. You'll probably find that you're ready to be in your place. Home Savings is certainly ready to put you there.
 Come to see us.

He'd Reclaim The Desert With Pine Forest Magic

By HERB SURRETT
SEDONA, Ariz. (UPI) — Most visitors to the vast arid wastelands circling the globe shrug them off as useless to man and beast.

Not Lloyd Tupper. He envisions millions of those barren acres reclaimed by pine forests, capable of producing a renewable resource, and possibly creating beneficial micro-climate changes in the process.

Tupper already has proved to his own satisfaction that it can be done with a fast-growing pine tree native to a small area between the Caspian and Aral seas of southern Russia. The drought-resistant conifer is a variety of the Brutia pine, in scientific nomenclature, Pinus brutia var. eldarica.

A strain of this hardy species has been given the commercial name of Mondell Pine, in honor of pioneer Arizona forester Mondell Bennett, who first imported some of the seeds from the Middle East for experimental plantings.

Tupper has established a tree farm here to grow millions of the Mondell Pine seedlings being exported to such places as Libya, Morocco, Tunisia, Oman, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Egypt, Spain, France, Greece, Mexico and Brazil.

Mideast oil sheiks are interested in the pine as a means of reclaiming some of their desert, as well as for beautification of their new oil-financed cities.

Ironically, the trees once were traded throughout the Mideast to grace the estates and palaces of royalty. But up to now, no one has ever grown them in commercially useful quantities.

One Arab customer became intrigued with the tree and ordered thousands of them flown to him by commercial airline, at a cost Tupper would only describe as "astounding."

A reforestation project in Pakistan has had remarkable success. Color photographs taken by Tupper's staff show healthy eight-foot pine trees growing in a rocky desert where little other vegetation is visible — hardly the environment one would expect to be kind to conifers.

Tupper soon will bid on experimental plantings up to 10 miles wide to control the shifting sands of the Sahara Desert in Algeria and Morocco. Egyptian forestry officials are considering similar projects and have visited the Tupper Tree Farm to see first-hand the process of growing the trees from seed.

Tupper said foreign countries have expressed much more interest in the possibilities of the Mondell Pine than has the U.S. government, evidenced by the fact that 75 per cent of his seedlings are being exported.

"We have a large test going on in Mexico right now," he said. "It's huge compared to what we've been able to establish through our own government bureaucracy."

He said the Mexico tests are showing great promise and if the trees continue to grow at their present rate, the forest-short country could realize a new source for pulp, timber and even fuel, within 50 years.

Tupper considers at least 150,000 trees on three or more plots to be the minimum test for anyone considering the Mondell Pine as a reforestation planting.

Interest in the pine has not been limited to foreign countries, however. The California Division of Forestry has conducted tests of the pine, as has the Los Angeles County forester, with excellent results.

The Mondell is especially suited for the arid Upper Sonoran Desert which covers much of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, and homeowners are buying them for low-water-use landscaping.

The tree is a close relative of the Aleppo Pine, which has been widely used throughout the Southwestern U.S. for many years. However, the Mondell has a near-perfect Christmas tree shape in its early years of growth, while the slower-growing Aleppo tends to develop an ungainly, sprawling top.

Under average conditions, the Mondell will grow several feet a year, with some spurting up at an even faster rate. It is particularly adaptable to hot, dry climates where the average rainfall may be less than eight inches a year.

Tests in more than a dozen countries show it will grow in a wide range of soil types, including those of high alkalinity typical of deserts. It also has been resistant to air pollution in tests in the Los Angeles Basin, and has shown no susceptibility to disease. It requires no special fertilization.

Because of their adaptability, fast growth rate, and because of their lush and symmetrical shape, Tupper sees the Mondell Pine as the commercial Christmas tree of the future. He also believes they will be useful for strip-mined wastes and mine dumps, and plans extensive plantings in such areas over the next few years.

Tupper, once a Northern California real estate developer, is philosophical about the turn his life has taken since he bought out Mondell Bennett's half-acre tree farm here and discovered the potential of the trees.

"This tree can turn some of those desert lands around the world into productive forests, and I think that's a challenge worth everything I can give it. I want to green those deserts."

FRIENDLY METAMORPHOSIS — Michael Williams of Griffin, Ga., once was afraid of butterflies but has overcome his fear of the delicate creatures. Having accepted the six-legged lepidoptera as a friend, Michael can now spend his time observing the fragile structure and subtle tones of the insect. (AP Wirephoto)
