

Stench Of Pollution Right At Doorstep Of EPA

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — On the last day before national standards take effect to curb water pollution, there came from the Potomac River a sewer-like stench that wafted over the nearby headquarters of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The District of Columbia, told by Congress five years ago to meet the target, was going to miss the deadline.

And the EPA says some 100 communities, about 600 major plants and maybe a few thousand smaller industries, would not be in compliance.

Agency officials refused, however, to name the expected violators, partly because they weren't sure who they would be, but mainly because uncertainty is one of the EPA's chief enforcement tactics.

Enforcement Director Brian Molloy said the agency planned to fine or sue some of the water pollution violators. But the EPA wanted to keep the rest guessing so the violators would attempt to meet the standards before the EPA catches up with them.

Molloy said some likely violators have been invited informally to start negotiating with EPA on fines and clean-up schedules.

Still more will be contacted after formal compliance reports are filed by EPA regional offices next month.

If municipalities and companies cannot work out their own schedules and penalties, Molloy said, the EPA will ask the Justice Department to sue for the maximum fines allowed by the 1972 Water Quality Amendments — $10,000 for each day the standards are missed after July 1, or whatever date is fixed by the EPA-approved schedules.

But the long list of expected violations is not really typical, the EPA said in a new report to Congress.

Citing reports from 45 states and five other jurisdictions, the EPA concluded there has been substantial improvement in water pollution control as a result of the water quality law, and improvement will continue as those who miss the July 1 deadline eventually comply.

Under the law, municipalities are required by July 1, to give sewage "secondary treatment" before discharging it into waterways. Such treatment purifies discharges, removing particles and bacteria.

Industries are required by that date to apply the "best practicable technology" for reducing pollution, a standard that depends on industry and plant characteristics and circumstances. The requirements for each plant have been spelled out in specific discharge permits issued by the EPA or authorized state agencies.

The law sets tougher standards for 1983, to meet a goal of making the nation's rivers, lakes and shores clean enough for fishing and swimming, but there is no similar measure of water quality as a benchmark for 1977.

In the latest EPA survey, 21 states offered various comparisons of their present waterway conditions with the 1983 goal, generally indicating some progress already but a long way still to go.

Georgia said 90 per cent of lengths of its stream already meet the 1983 goal, and North Carolina said 94 per cent of its stream miles meet the corresponding state standard.

But the EPA pointed out that "total stream miles" tend to give an exaggerated picture of a state's "clean water" because the pollution tends to be concentrated in major streams most likely used for swimming or fishing once they are cleaned up.

Connecticut said only 51 per cent of its "major stream miles" now meet the 1983 "fishable-swimmable" goal.

Wisconsin claimed a 91 per cent clean water rate on its major stream miles, but South Carolina reported 75 per cent; Rhode Island, 64 per cent; Maine and Vermont, 62 per cent; New Hampshire, 54 per cent, and Massachusetts 26 per cent.

Pennsylvania reported that 79 per cent of its major stream miles met the state, rather than federal, standard.

The other 10 states reported on the number of streams or segments, rather than the number of miles of streamflow, that met the 1983 goal:

Mississippi claimed that 92 per cent of its stream already meet that goal; California and Minnesota reported 78 per cent; Nebraska said 70 per cent; Texas, 67 per cent; Delaware, 48 per cent; Idaho, 40 to 45 per cent; and Virginia, 41 per cent.

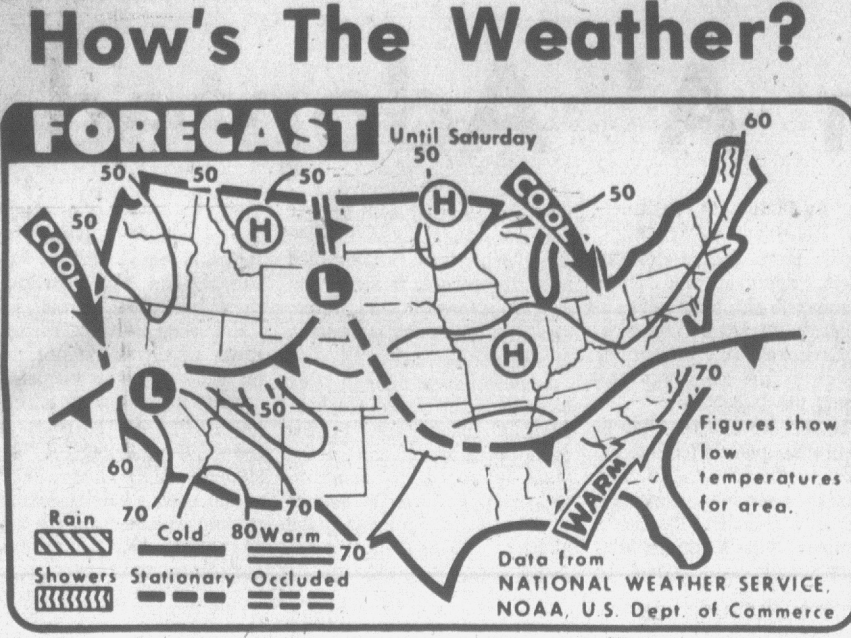

Kansas said 89 per cent of its streams and Tennessee said 47 per cent of its streams met state standards.

Other states and jurisdictions did not report their latest progress toward these goals in the EPA survey.

But the EPA report said that while there was progress in cleaning up the traditional types of pollution — particles, bacteria and oxygen-consuming chemicals — poisonous chemicals remained a major problem.

That warning, and the hundreds of industries and communities missing the July 1 deadline, were behind the agency's accelerating drive to shift gears from setting schedules in the past to enforcing them.

And just to make sure the agency does not let its attention wander from the remaining problems, the Potomac River will continue to flow its brown, unappetizing way through such typical warm summer days as Thursday's 89 degrees and "very unhealthy" air, right past EPA's door.

WEATHER FORECAST — Sunny skies and warm to hot weather are forecast today for most of the nation. Cooler weather is due for the Pacific coast and for the Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A brief respite from the hot weather is expected Saturday in the wake of a cold front that will be moving through North Carolina tonight and in the early morning.

Meanwhile, another hot day was in prospect today with temperatures again in the 90s east of the mountains.

Asheville reported a high of 84 degrees Thursday while elsewhere readings included Jacksonville 96, Goldsboro, Raleigh and Rocky Mount 95, Charlotte and Wilmington 94, and Cape Hatteras 90.

Thunderstorms developed Thursday afternoon over western sections of the state, producing heavy rains and gusty winds in some areas. Asheville recorded an inch and a half of rain.

Scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers also are expected around the state today and Saturday.

Tax Collector Ends Service

James T. Smith, a deputy tax collector for Pitt County for the past 10 years, retired yesterday.

Tax collector W. R. Smith said during Smith's service with the county, he has collected in excess of $660,000 in taxes, the biggest part of which were delinquent.

"He was a darn good tax collector," Smith said of his deputy, and the amount of money collected "proves the tremendous job he did for the county."

According to the tax collector, Smith will be replaced by Carlton Wiggins of Ayden. Wiggins served as superintendent of public works for the Town of Ayden for the past four years.

Prior to that he was employed for 12 years with the J. P. Taylor tobacco company.

The retiring Smith was honored at a dinner yesterday at the Tax Collector's office and presented a rod, reel, tackle box and other fishing equipment, and a plaque by his co-workers.

Charles Gaskins, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners presented Smith a plaque on behalf of the county in recognition of his service.

W. R. Smith said his retiring deputy collector, "plans to use the rod and reel we gave him to do a lot of fishing and other things he's wanted to do for a long time."

Officers identified the drivers involved as Graig Warren Walton of Route 1, Kinston and Douglas Wayne Laughinghouse of 1407 Rasdale Rd.

Police, who charged Laughinghouse with driving under the influence and failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $2,500 to the Walton car and $1,200 to the Laughinghouse vehicle.

Judge Refuses Halt Vet School

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Eugene Gordon has denied motions to stop plans for a veterinary school at North Carolina State University pending the outcome of a lawsuit over location of the proposed school.

Alumni and friends of predominantly black universities are challenging the decision to put the veterinary school at N.C. State instead of at A&T State University in Greensboro.

But Gordon said the plaintiffs "failed to show that new programs and schools discriminate against minority students, faculty or administrators."

Repaid By Embezzler

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A woman six months pregnant, who pleaded guilty to embezzling $71,000 from city funds, received a suspended sentence Thursday after her attorney argued that jailing her would mean imprisonment for "two people, her and her baby, yet to be born."

Linda Gail Hurley, 28, of Charlotte, was given a five-year suspended sentence and fined $500 after admitting she took the money while she was an employee at Douglas Municipal Airport. Mrs. Hurley was responsible for depositing revenue from 76 airport vending machines for four years.

Her attorney, Maurice Weinstein, told the court that Mrs. Hurley and her husband were "totally penniless and destitute," after selling their house, furniture and car, and borrowing money to repay the $71,000.

"Where mercy is appropriate, that's what society should seek," Weinstein said.

Mrs. Hurley, charged with two counts of embezzling, could have been sentenced to up to 20 years in jail.

Miss Jensina Steinbeck and Maurice Glen Sheppard were united in marriage Friday at 8:00 p. m. at St. James United Methodist Church.

Dr. William K. Quick and the Rev. M. Dewey Tyson officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Franklin Steinbeck Sr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Moses M. Sheppard, also of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Frances Cain, organist, and Mrs. Wendy H. Bissinger, who sang "The Wedding Prayer," accompanied by guitar.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore an A-line organza gown featuring a bertha collar of chantilly lace with tiny pearls. The chapel-length train, with appliques of lace, fell from the high-rise waist. Bordered with chantilly lace, her mantilla was of organza and she carried a lace-covered Bible with a cascade of orchids and baby's breath.

Miss Emily Sue Hagan and Miss Blanche Ruth Rayford, both of Greenville, were the maids of honor. Both wore cat-tans of blue and yellow summer flowered print.

Miss Arielle Sturz and Mrs. Katrina Steinbeck, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. They wore pastel blue sheer cotton dresses featuring tiny white flowers and lace. They carried miniature white baskets of mixed summer flowers.

Franklin Steinbeck Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride; Jeff Cadell of Charlotte; Paul McCain of Wilson, and Frank Heath of Oxford. Justin Sturz of Greenville, nephew of the bride, was a junior usher.

The bride's mother wore a formal length gown of coral knit. The mother of the bridegroom selected a Carolina blue dress. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Williams of Wilmington and

MRS. MAURICE SHEPPARD

Mrs. Alma Sheppard of Ocala, Fla., grandparents of the bridegroom, were remembered with carnations.

The church was decorated with white summer flowers. Spiral candelabra flanked the altar. Additional candelabra were used on either side of the altar steps.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained at a pre-rehearsal cookout at the church given by the parents of the bridegroom.

Choosing Cucumbers

The best pickles can be obtained only when fresh, prime cucumbers are used. Cucumbers should be picked daily. You should begin the pickling process within 24 hours after picking. Cucumbers lose moisture so quickly that even one day at room temperature may lead to hollow-centered or shriveled pickles.

Slightly immature cucumbers make the best pickles. Also, choose cucumbers that are uniform in size and shape.

Not all varieties of cucumbers are suitable for pickling. Those grown for table use are called "slicers." These varieties are frequently too large and tough-skinned for good pickles. The type of cucumbers which make the best pickles are thin-skinned and light green in color. Some recommended varieties are Dixie, Chipper and Galaxy.

You may wonder about the wax-coated cucumbers available in the grocery store. These cucumbers are not recommended. The wax interferes with the action of the brine or vinegar. After picking your cucumbers, wash thoroughly and quickly.

Soaking causes a loss of flavor and nutrients. Be sure, also, to remove all blossoms from the cucumbers. Blossoms left on cucumbers may be the cause of soft pickles.

Utensils For Pickling

Pickles are highly acid and are prepared with a heavy salt solution. This makes utensil selection very important.

For fermenting or brining of pickles, use one of the following: crock or stone jar; unchipped enamel pan; heavy plastic container suitable for food usage; large glass jar, bowl or casserole. Do not use aluminum containers, since the chemical reaction may damage the pan and cause the pickles to darken. The pickles are safe to eat, however. Intron utensils also cause pickles to turn dark.

During the fermenting or brining process, use a heavy plate or large glass lid that fits inside the container. Then top with a weight, such as a glass jar filled with water to keep the cucumbers below the surface of the brine. Brick or stone weights can impart an undesirable flavor.

For heating your pickles, use one of the following: unchipped enamel; aluminum, stainless steel; glass. Do not use copper, brass, iron or galvanized utensils. These metals can react with the acid and salt in the pickling liquid and cause undesirable color changes or form hazardous compounds.

Two other quick reminders about utensils: when stirring, use a long-handled wooden spoon, and to make a bag for spices, use cheesecloth and tie with a string.

Fire Safety Talk Heard

The Westhaven Home and Garden Club, which met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Kitty Benevise, heard a talk on fire safety.

Giving the talk were Jerry McLawhorn, city fire marshal, and Cynthia Cox, city fire inspector. The two discussed fire extinguishers, smoke detectors, and fire safety around the home. Special window decals were given to the club members to point out children's rooms and invalids' rooms.

Co-hostess for the meeting was Mrs. Susan Kallini.

A new member, Mrs. Dot Grimsley, was welcomed. Letters sent to the developer and the city were discussed. The next meeting will be at the home of Lou Everett, with Dot Grimsley as co-hostess.

Correction

The name of the soloist for the Page-Stancill wedding published Wednesday should have been given as Mrs. rather than Miss Jane Randlett. The name of a hostess for the after-rehearsal cake cutting should have been given as Mrs. Jean, rather than Mrs. Fran, Sutton.

Album Keeper Said Insecure, Cruel

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently wed to a wonderful man in all respects except one. He insists on keeping the pictures of all his previous girlfriends, and he has had quite a few. He has them all neatly mounted in a large picture album, which he insists on leaving on our coffee table, along with our wedding album.

When we have friends over, to be sure they don't miss it, he starts going through the albums, bragging about all the chicks he's had.

I voluntarily destroyed all the pictures I had of myself and previous acquaintances, and I think he should do the same. He knows how I feel because I've mentioned it several times. He says I am being childish—that there is nothing wrong with recalling a few memories.

His keeping and showing that album hurts me deeply. How can I get him to stop, Abby? Should I destroy them myself and put an end to it?

HURT

DEAR HURT: No, but tell him that his recalling those memories hurts you deeply and to please put them out of sight. A married man who needs to brag about the "chicks" he's had is an insecure little boy whose "manhood" needs constant reassuring. He also has a touch of cruelty.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor boy and I are pretty good friends, but he's never asked me for a date. He's 19 and I'm 18. He is quite handsome and by no means shy, but he hasn't dated much. I'm a little bit overweight, but have been told that I have a pretty face and good personality. The other night we were sitting on my front porch, and he asked me to get him a date with a good-looking girl. He said he could take a girl to the movies, hold her hand and talk sweet to her as well as any other boy.

Now, here's what I want to ask you. If I were to tell him that I could be taken to the movies, my hand could be held, and I would enjoy sweet talk more than some good-looking girl who hears it every Friday night, would he get the wrong idea?

CINDY

DEAR CINDY: No, he'd probably get the RIGHT idea.

DEAR ABBY: How does one forget someone he loves? I can't seem to get over her. It's not true that time heals. The pain seems to be getting worse as the days and weeks go by.

I have even thought about moving to another city, but no matter where I go I'll see the kind of car she drives, and every time I turn on the radio I'll hear the songs we both liked. I'll still think of her when I see her favorite color, or actor, or television program. She is on my mind constantly, even though there is no hope of reviving the relationship.

I know it would be best to forget her, but as long as there is still love (and there is, as much now as ever), is it possible to forget? Can you kill love? If so, tell me how.

PIECES

DEAR PIECES: You can't "kill" love, but you can let it die quietly from malnutrition. Don't permit yourself to dwell on thoughts of her. The moment they come into your mind, drive them out with another thought about something else. The less you allow "her" to live in your memory, the sooner you'll get over her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

CW-I Met Tuesday

Greenville Credit Women International, which met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Carol Hardee, president, heard a talk on "Choosing A Collector."

The talk was given by Mrs. JoAnne White, manager of Greenville Collection Services. She stressed selecting a collector who is ethical, financially stable and having competent management and staff. She discussed some of the laws regulating collection practices and conducted a question and answer session.

Mrs. Pam Kachmer, corresponding secretary, passed out information about the Dixie Council and State President's projects. Angelene Venters, State Second Vice President, reported on the State Conference held in Raleigh June 19 and 20. Martha Mills reported that the annual picnic for members, bosses and spouses would be held July 20 at First Federal.

Mrs. Linda Westbrook of Greenville Collection Services was voted as a new member. Mrs. Shirley Price of Planters Bank was welcomed as a guest and prospective member. Other guests were Mrs. Faye Mallard, State Recording Secretary, and Ms. Katherine Graves, both of Kinston CW-I.

College Future Up To Voters

If the voters of Pitt County approve Pitt Technical Institute will become Pitt Community College in the near future.

It took an act of the State Legislature to authorize the vote on issue but that approval came recently and it can now be put to the people.

The referendum will involve no new taxes and voters will only be deciding on the name change and broadening of services for Pitt Tech.

Community college status has been a long held dream for those who are responsible for Pitt Tech's advancement in areas of service.

The matter could have been decided without a referendum and, indeed, the attorney general's opinion was that such a referendum could not be legally held. For that reason the Pitt legislators were asked to obtain an enabling act so that the referendum could be held.

In the near future the vote will take place and community college status for Pitt Tech will be decided.

New Ferry Service A Boom To Tourists

A new state ferry, the Gov. Edward Hyde is now making daily trips from Swan Quarter to Ocracoke.

The ferry was built at a cost of $2.2 million and is the first designed entirely by the Department of Transportation's Ferry Division. It will make two crossings daily from each side.

The new ferry service will be a boon to tourists who want to reach Ocracoke and the Outer Banks. It will be particularly helpful to citizens of our area since highway travel from here to Swan Quarter is considerably less than to Cedar Island.

The Ocracoke-Swan Quarter ferry should prove most useful.

THIS AFTERNOON

Medicaid Gulping Funds

By BILL NOBLITT

Members of the North Carolina General Assembly this session walked up to the brink of the Medicaid crisis... then backed off.

What they saw was a deep, dark hole into which the state and federal government (and to some lesser degree, local counties) is pouring money.

From the viewpoint of the lawmaker, the danger is that more and more dollars are being poured into the system designed to aid welfare recipients as well as those with some income but facing dire, immediate medical needs.

Cutting through the complexities of the situation, the net result is program which has skyrocketed from $98.1 million in North Carolina just five years ago, to a projected $316.8 million expenditure in fiscal 1979.

That says Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., bluntly, threatens to "bankrupt" the state.

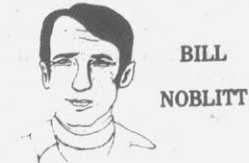

Change Ahead

And lawmakers have been told just as bluntly by their own fiscal research analysts that the time is rapidly approaching when priorities will shift from other programs to Medicaid.

Next fiscal year, for instance, the state share of the Medicaid load will be some

Another View

Meanwhile, in towns and counties across North Carolina, others see the problem from an entirely different perspective. They aren't that worried about tax-dollar priorities; but, rather, about paying for decent medical care for their children, themselves, or their elderly relatives.

BILL NOBLITT

A pediatrician in a populous Piedmont section writes of that:

"I am concerned and worried about the present status of child health care... he says. His office (four doctors) was hankling more than 1,500 children under Medicaid.

Problems were many—in January services to Medicaid patients totaled $6,278.50; there were $12,000 in claims pending from 1976; checks totaling $1,671.94 were received but most were no good because they were duplicate payments; actual collections from the state in January... a staggering $63.20.

Why, that physician wondered, was his office seeing so many Medicaid patients? "Our office was one of the very few... that would accept Medicaid patients... (and) we made every effort to treat these patients the same status as all other patients."

Why was the money owed the doctor not forthcoming, even though the program pays only $6.30 for a service the doctor figures costs $87? Confusion in how to file, lack of followup, claims lost in Raleigh, claims disallowed, lack of communications among others, that physician found.

Meanwhile, children on Medicaid unable to get care otherwise are going to hospital emergency rooms where the cost is least $2 or state facilities where cost is $27 per visit.

Some suggestions are offered to help resolve the problems: pay the going rate, and pay it promptly without making the doctor wade through a pile of forms and red tape; and until physicians can regain confidence in the program, special clinics may be required, the physician believes.

Tip And Teddy And Ed

WASHINGTON — If you're wondering why it's impossible to keep defense costs down in this country, perhaps I can help you.

The U.S. Navy wanted a new plane and, after budget considerations, opted for the F-14 made by Grumman Aerospace Corp., in Bethpage, Long Island.

The F-14 designed by McDonnell-Douglas was scrubbed because it was too expensive and too controversial. This might have been the end of it except that the engines for the F-18 would be made by General Electric in Lynn, Mass. Strong rumor has it that House Majority Leader Tip O'Neill of Massachusetts and Sens. Ted Kennedy and Ed Brooke leaned on the White House and the Pentagon to keep the F-18 alive, and after several telephone calls Defense Secretary Harold Brown decided the F-18 might not be a bad plane after all.

Four hundred and nineteen million dollars has been set aside for "Research and Development" for the F-18, but a spokesman for the secretary said the decision was made "on its own merits" and had nothing to do with Rep. O'Neill and Sens. Kennedy and Brooke's interest in the project.

I believe it.

The reason is that I talked to an expert who advises O'Neill and Kennedy and Brooke on military affairs, and he advised me the last thing any of the three legislators would want to do is waste money on an airplane the Navy said it didn't want.

"The Navy needs this plane," he told me. "In the worst way. They just don't know they need it. But once it's sitting on their flight decks they'll be grateful to Tip and Teddy and Ed for

Other Editors Say: A Tough Task

(Henderson Dispatch)

President Carter has launched efforts to carry out his campaign pledge to drastically reduce the number of Federal agencies and his lieutenants already are finding the assignment a tough one.

The two-pronged reorganization plan is designed both to help restore confidence of Americans and to improve governmental efficiency and competence. Earlier this month, a Gallup poll indicated some two-thirds of U. S. citizens rate Federal bureaucrats in low esteem.

During the election campaign last year, President Carter pledged that he would chop the number of Federal agencies from approximately 1,900 to about 200.

As the reorganization efforts swing into gear, aides are realizing the task is a mammoth one and are seeking a reduction to about 1,000 as a more realistic possibility.

The administration is turning first to its own area in the White House, seeking major curbs in the executive office agencies, and has programmed to be sent to Congress in the next several years half a dozen reorganization packages dealing with other agencies and departments.

To feel out the direction of public sentiment, the staff has been sending out questionnaires to citizens and scrutinizing contents of letters to the White House and Congress. Staff executives say the leading complaints include the Federal paper work burden, conflicts with civil rights regulations and the occupational safety and health rules.

It's too early to predict what degree of success President Carter may achieve. If he could chisel the number down to his goal of 200 agencies, that would have to be considered a top accomplishment of his administration. If he only reaches the 1,000 figure, it will still be well worth the effort. And it's an effort long past due.

persuading them to buy it."

"What makes the F-18 so great?" I asked.

"The General Electric engines which are produced in Lynn, Mass., by the finest technicians and engineers in the country."

"How do O'Neill, Kennedy and Brooke know that?"

"They all have GE appliances in their homes and they're aware of what a great product GE makes."

"Some people have said that if the engines for the plane were not made in Massachusetts, none of the three would have gone to bat for it."

"That's ridiculous. Tip has always wanted a multi-mission fighter that could outfly anything the Soviets have. Teddy has dreamed of this country someday having an aircraft with an increased wing area and a wider and longer fuselage to provide greater internal fuel capacity. And I've heard Ed Brooke say many times, 'What this country needs more than anything else is a fighter plane with a radar dish on its nose.'"

"When it comes to national security these three men would never let politics stand in the way of the Navy getting the best plane that money can buy."

"Even if the Navy doesn't want it?"

"What does the Navy know about fighter planes? Tip and Teddy and Ed have been making airplane models since they were six years old."

"But if the Navy has already ordered the F-14 from Grumman what are they going to do with the F-18?"

"They can sell their F-14s to the Shah of Iran. He'll buy anything that flies."

"I never thought of that," I admitted. "The whole thing makes sense when you explain it. The Navy gets a plane it doesn't want, GE's Massachusetts plant gets to build the engine, McDonnell-Douglas gets to build the plane, and the security of the country will be safe for years to come."

"Tip and Teddy and Ed couldn't have put it any better."

Claims Words 'Real'

By GARY S. RUDERMAN

BOSTON (AP) — Throw out the thesaurus, it's nugatory. Trash Webster's dictionary for its stuffiness.

Not since former Vice President Spiro Agnew reminded us of the word "nabob" has a storm of fresh words come along like Mrs. Byrne's Dictionary of Unusual, Obscure, and Preposterous Words.

Any poker player knows a gleeek (trio) of queens beats a pair of aces. But, according to Mrs. Byrne, gleeeks are also enticing glances — given, perhaps, with a gleeek of aces and a pair of kings.

Take your average word — blismer, a noun. It's a shame, a disgraceful person, a steelyard and a 15-spined stickleback fish.

Oh, would my grandmother still hold me dear as a mensch, "a thoroughly admirable and 100 per cent good person," if she knew I were forsaking my Funk and Wagnall's for Mrs. Byrne's collection of hippopotamus-sized words?

For scientists and others, Mrs. Byrne includes a 1,913-letter name for an enzyme with 267 amino acids. The enzyme begins with an M.

Mrs. Byrne is Josefa Heifetz Byrne, who collected the 6,000 words over a 10-year period "working alone and Gus Hill, Warren-Niles district CIO organizer, surrendered to police in Warren, Ohio today on a charge of unlawful possession of explosive devices in connection with disorders in the steel strike.

Hill, who was accompanied by Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, wived preliminary examination before municipal Judge Ralph Speak and was bound to the grand jury under $50,000 bond. Pressman, who said he could not say whether bond would be given Sidney Watkins, 29, arrested yesterday, was arraigned on the same charge today. Hill's arrest brought to five the number now in jail as a result of police investigation of steel strikes.

Japanese reports said tonight five more Soviet gunboats had appeared today at Sennufu Island in the Anur River, where an alleged "Soviet invasion" has led to an armed clash between the Russian river craft and Japanese-Manchoukuoan border artillery.

Earlier in the day Emperor Hirohito called upon high defense heads for the facts in the Russo-Japanese crisis after a Japanese cabinet decision that only the immediate withdrawal of Soviet fighters and gunboats from the disputed Anur borderlands could effect a peaceful settlement.

In an uneasy atmosphere of official silence, indicating a ban on dispatches from the trouble zone that lies between Soviet Siberia and Japanese-sponsored Manchoukuo, the armies of Japan and the so-called "puppet state" were announced to be prepared for any eventuality.

SOMEONE WAS LISTENING

Issues Raised By General

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — More often than not, commencement addresses are good occasions for a nap. Lt. Gen. Donn A. Starry would have been better off if the graduating class had slept through his.

Instead, part of the audience paid attention, and he became embroiled in a new installment of the old argument over the proper boundaries of political and foreign policy comment by military officers.

Starry's indiscretions were political and diplomatic — or undiplomatic. Officially, his error was that he failed to get Pentagon clearance for the speech he made to graduates of the American High School in Frankfurt, Germany.

It didn't cost him much, just a day's inconvenience to stop by the Pentagon for a half-hour lecture from the boss. He was admonished, then sent on his way to a new job and a promotion to four-star rank.

Both were arranged before he gave the speech that stirred the trouble. He is to take charge at the Army Training and Doctrine Command, which runs the service's schools. The promotion to four stars awaits Senate confirmation.

In the offending speech, Starry told his young audience that within their lifetimes "the Soviets will fight the Chinese, possibly simply continuing their 10-year-old border conflict, but more probably in a major war." He said it is likely the United States would become involved.

He also took out after "the liberals," saying they had tried to bury God, and that they dominate a press "which is not interested in the truth, only in the 5 per cent or so of the news that deviates from the norm..."

Starry thus made the 5 per cent.

His case hardly ranked with that of Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, ordered home from South Korea after saying President Carter's planned withdrawal of U.S. ground forces would lead to war there. Singlaub contradicted the policy of his civilian commander. There isn't any policy on the issue Starry raised, although it is reasonable to assume that the United States would prefer not to see, let alone become involved in a major war between Russia and China.

So the issues raised by Starry's scolding are more difficult. "If our generals are slowly silenced to the point that they cannot discuss with young people matters that do not come under announced policy of the commander in chief, then we are in for real trouble," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

But the Pentagon has told U.S. military commanders that even before policy is set, it may be contrary to the national interest for top military men to discuss it publicly.

That message went out with a reminder of the requirement that speeches and statements be submitted for advance clearance by the Defense Department's Directorate of Security Review and Freedom of Information.

If Starry had sent his in, a Pentagon official said, it probably would have gone back to him with a letter suggesting that he reconsider the implications of his statements on war between Russia and China, and that he also consider whether he should involve himself in domestic politics with his comments about liberals.

In other words, it doesn't take a censor to make the point to a general. Over the right signature, a suggestion

Strength For Today

AN INCONVENIENCE

The English man of letters, Gilbert Chesterton, once remarked that it is false to say that Christianity has failed. What has happened, he averred, is that Christianity has been found inconvenient and has not been tried.

We are always trying to excuse ourselves for our failings. In the Parable of the Soils, God puts the blame where it belongs — on us. Most of the reasons people give for not being Christians boil down to this: it would cost too much to be a Christian — too much patience, too much faith. Christianity is a monstrous inconvenience for willful people. For this reason it is usually avoided or rejected, and not because of intellectual difficulties, large as these may be.

Our failures in life stem much more often from our unwillingness to do what we know is right than from lack of knowledge of what is right. As Jesus said, "The way ye know."

Pleasant Change From 'Usual'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — This is the midyear, which we all know is when most people go on vacation, leaving economists and government officials to worry about the state of the nation.

Worry is the proper approach in such occupations, because so much can go bad so quickly. But here is an economic view, presented without comment, that departs pleasantly from what you're used to hearing.

It's a fresh, crisp as a salad — dated today — report from Albert H. Cox, Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics, an arm of the nation's largest securities firm and an important economic force in its own right.

"The economy's performance in the second half is likely to be, by and large, a pleasant contrast to what has transpired thus far this year."

"There won't be the impact of a harsh winter to exaggerate and to worry about. Consumer price inflation, which reached double-digit proportions from last December through April, should settle down to around 6.5 per cent or thereabouts, as food price inflation subsides."

"Interest rates should hold steady, or possibly even drift a bit lower in the next few months, now that the Fed has successfully concluded its spring offensive against a spurt in monetary growth."

"Consumer spending will probably be a lot stronger than many fear, though the mix is changing, with more emphasis on household durables and flattening of auto demand.

"And capital spending should continue to show added zip, despite the rather widespread skepticism that has greeted our own (strong) capital spending survey results and similar soundings by the Commerce Department."

We return now to cares and tribulations.

Julius Shiskin, the respected leader of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is worried that the monthly economic numbers are being leaked to Wall Street traders a few minutes early, giving them a trading advantage in the stock market.

The stock market often seeks excuses to move, and the monthly numbers almost always provide that excuse.

It's a game that investors and speculators play.

From now on, states Shiskin, the Labor Department's monthly reports on unemployment, wholesale prices and consumer prices are to be made available for public distribution at 9 a.m. instead of 10 a.m.

Thus, he feels, the news will be so widely known at 10 a.m., when the stock market opens, that no trader will be able to take unfair advantage, that is, make a profit because of having exclusive knowledge of the numbers.

Will that solve the problem? Not totally. You can be certain the speculators will continue to bet on the numbers, and they will not be without information.

Marijuana Law's Penalty Modified

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Starting today, North Carolinians found with an ounce or less of marijuana will not face prison sentences.

The Senate Thursday approved a law, already passed by the House, which reduces the maximum penalty for possession of small amounts of the drug to a $100 fine. Offenders had faced up to six months in jail and a $500 fine under the old law.

Subsequent convictions will now be punishable by six months in jail and a $500, reduced from two years and a $2,000 fine under present law.

In other action Wednesday, the legislature:

CREDIT CARDS

The House approved a Senate-passed bill to allow banks and department stores to use the "average daily balance" method of computing the 1½ per cent interest on credit card accounts. Bankers say the method would slightly raise profits above what is collected now under the "previous balance" method that is required. The Senate later enacted the bill by concurring in House amendments.

The bill also would allow banks to require security if cash is advanced but a customer would have to agree. Also it would remove the current $5,000 limit on cash advances. In addition, the bill would allow banks to increase to $6 the amount charged merchants for each $100 in merchandise charged on BankAmericard (Visa) and Master Charge. The fee is now limited to $4.

WILDLIFE

The Senate voted 26-13 to enact a bill designed to give Democrats control of the Wildlife Resources Commission. It was opposed by organized sportsmen. It would add four members to the nine-member commission which is now dominated by Republicans.

The governor would appoint two of the new members, the lieutenant governor would name one senator and the speaker would appoint one House member. These four plus three the governor will appoint next month to replace three members whose terms are expiring, would result in a Democratic majority on the commission which supervises the administration of the state's game laws.

PERSONNEL

A bill to allow the administration to fire workers with less than five years seniority in state government was enacted when the bill cleared the Senate. The bill would allow dismissal of workers hired by the former Republican administration because it would deny protection to workers hired after July 1, 1972.

Republicans complained that the bill, backed by Gov. Jim Hunt, was simply aimed at getting at GOP workers. The bill amends the 1975 personnel act.

RAPE

A bill restricting testimony that can be admitted by the defense in rape cases was enacted after winning House approval on an 82-0 vote. The bill limits the admission of testimony about the victim's prior sexual behavior.

Under the new law, testimony about the victim's sexual history would be ruled irrelevant and not admissible by the judge unless it involved the defendant or was otherwise directly related to the case.

The measure was the result of a special study commission's report, and had been amended by the Senate to take other revisions of the state's sexual assault statutes.

FELONY

A bill making the second offense of breaking into a paper currency vending machine a felony was enacted after winning House approval. The measure, which also requires that the machines carry a decal warning of the second offense penalty, was approved by the Senate earlier and passed the House on an 85-2 vote.

Before being weakened in the Senate, the bill would have made the first offense a felony. Sponsors said it was requested by operators of self-service gas station operators, who use such vending machines.

CHECK-OFF

The House voted 63-29 to kill a Senate-passed bill that would have allowed state workers to have contributions to the United Way charity deducted regularly from their pay check.

PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS

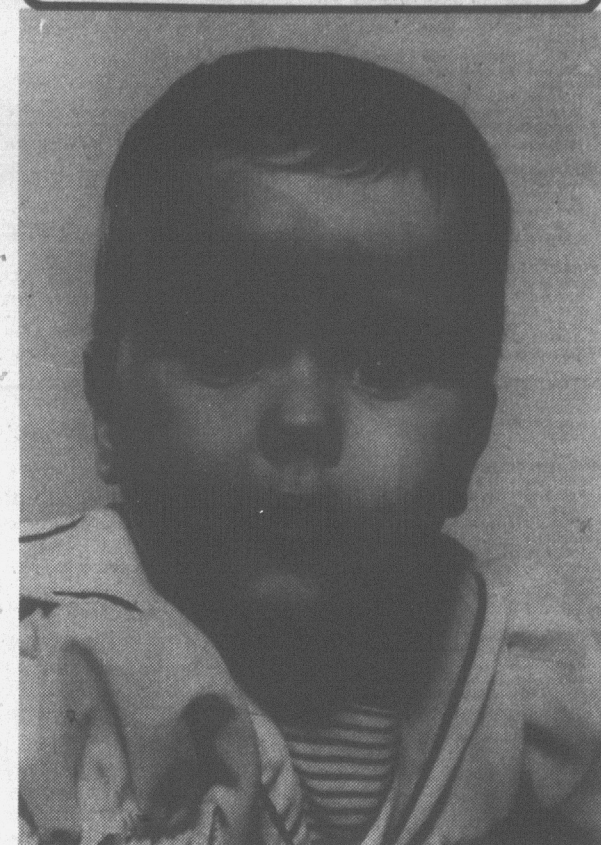

The Senate voted 28-11 to pass a bill that would require nurses to take orders from physician's assistants and nurse practitioners.

The bill, which was strongly opposed by nurses, was returned to the House for concurrence in Senate amendments. One of these would make the measure expire next year.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, told the Senate that the issue will be studied by a legislative commission which will report next year before the measure expires.

Rauch told the Senate that physician's assistants are playing an important role in state mental hospitals and other state hospitals and that the "purpose of the bill is to let us keep on doing what we have been doing."

New Brands Go On Sale

LONDON (AP) — The British tobacco industry started selling 11 new brands of cigarettes today containing a mixture of wood pulp and tobacco that the industry claims is less harmful to health than straight tobacco.

The antismoking organization ASH — Action on Smoking and Health — contends they are no safer than the old version.

Public acceptance of the new cigarettes will also reduce the industry's dependence on imported tobacco and its fluctuating prices.

Tax authorities released nearly a billion cigarettes from warehouses at 12:01 a.m., and the tobacco companies used helicopters, an air cargo plane and hundreds of trucks to rush them to stores. Of Britain's 55 million people, 22 million smoke cigarettes.

The synthetic content of the new models varies from 25 to 40 per cent. The industry spent $102 million on a 20-year research and development program and the recent advertising campaign to introduce them. But like all-tobacco cigarettes, they carry on each pack the required warning "Smoking can damage your health."

Health Minister Roland Moyle said Britain's objective should be a smokeless society. He said cigarettes with or without tobacco substitutes "can be debilitating and ultimately lethal."

Act 947, adopted during the 1975 legislative session, created the budget committee. Fortunately for the committee, not one, but two, such resolutions were adopted by both houses that year, so the committee can conduct budget hearings on schedule next month.

is enough. "There's nothing new about the system, and it has caused controversy before. Fifteen years ago, a Senate investigating committee said it was appropriate for the Pentagon to check and clear public statements in advance.

Despite the controversies over Singlaub and Starry, the Pentagon's civilian managers still are urging military men to speak to the public and to reporters. They want it done with care, and in keeping with policy, and with clearance for the speeches.

That's a tall order, but Secretary of Defense Harold Brown tells military commanders it is part of the job. It will be a difficult part, especially now that they have seen two of their colleagues called on the administration carpet for saying the wrong things. For a while, at least, a good many top military men may decide that silence is the better part of valor.

'Phantom' Almost Killed A Committee

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Who knows what evil lurks in the halls of the state Capitol? The Phantom of the Alabama legislature does — but apparently no one knows who he is.

One clue to his identity, however, is that he has no fondness for the legislature's Interim Committee on Finance and Taxation. Through a legislative sleight-of-hand, he almost ended the committee's existence.

The Phantom's dastardly deed was uncovered Thursday when it was noticed that a resolution honoring Auburn University track star Harvey Glange contained a provision abolishing the committee.

The resolution apparently got little notice when it passed the House and Senate during this year's regular session. That's because the clause abolishing the committee was carefully woven into the last paragraph of the document.

All numbers were written out in the resolution, thus further camouflaging the intent to abolish the committee.

"...in his honor," the clause said of Glance, "we hereby repeal Act number nine-forty-seven, adopted on October tenth, nineteen hundred-and-seventy-five, and congratulate him on winning the Governor's Trophy."

Act 947, adopted during the 1975 legislative session, created the budget committee. Fortunately for the committee, not one, but two, such resolutions were adopted by both houses that year, so the committee can conduct budget hearings on schedule next month.

Many Confused By The Eye Doctors

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A recent study indicates 45 per cent of all American adults are confused about the differences between ophthalmologists and optometrists.

About one fifth of the persons interviewed did not even know which type their eye doctor was.

The survey by a publishing firm was reported by the American Optometric Association here. It said the basic differences between the two types of doctors lie in education, licensing and services provided.

An optometrist must complete two to four years of college-level education in basic and advanced health sciences, a minimum of four years of professional education in the eye, all aspects of optics, vision and vision care.

An ophthalmologist holds a degree as either doctor of medicine or doctor of osteopathy. Both must be licensed by state boards to practice medicine or osteopathy.

Optometrists must pass state-administered proficiency tests in eye care to obtain their licenses. In 45 of the 50 states, they must also take a specified number of hours of continuing education courses to renew their licenses periodically.

Both types of eye doctors examine for vision problems, eye diseases and general health problems. When an optometrist detects symptoms of either of the latter, he refers the patient to an appropriate health care practitioner for additional tests and treatment, the association said.

Opines Young Generation Vulnerable

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the first religious leaders to spot the power of the cults over American youths, Rabbi Maurice Davis, says the problem is not just in methods the groups use, but in the "needs and vulnerability" of the present young generation.

"Our children are lonely," he says, adding that they've been made that way by the modern lack of shared religious faith within their own families, while the cults have moved in to exploit that void.

Noting that the "opposite of loneliness is sharing," he says that such cohesiveness and shared convictions must take place in the home, or the young will remain left with an emptiness that makes them ready victims of tightly enclosing cults.

It's "what makes our kids so vulnerable," he says. Rabbi Davis, head of the Jewish Community Center of White Plains, N.Y., was drawn early into the problem, 3½ years ago, when it hit two families in his own congregation. He since has become a widely versed authority on it.

He left in formation of a special transdenominational organization, "Citizens Engaged in Reuniting Families" for exchange of experiences, information and guidance for those seeking to regain contact with youths taken into cults.

Now also chairman of a committee on cults set up by the Central Conference of American Rabbis, he reported to its convention last week that the committee is preparing a handbook of facts about each major cult, their techniques and means for combatting them.

He criticized the American Civil Liberties Union for its "automatic defense of the cults" without examining or being aware of "the new dimension of brainwashing" the groups have introduced into America.

He maintains that both from firsthand experience and an overwhelming accumulation of evidence that the intensive, isolated indoctrination techniques used by many cults involves mental coercion that blocks free will.

He urged a special scientific-psychiatric research project to analyze the phenomenon and "to determine how best to protect young Americans from a very real danger without in any way impinging on the First Amendment" rights of free religious choice.

Meanwhile, "deprogrammers" have come under increased legal attacks across the country, often aided by civil liberties lawyers without direct experience with the cults. Courts have taken varying positions about the matter.

However, the "deprogramming," which involves initial forced removal from the cults, followed by a few days of association and conversation with others, usually has resulted in decisions to end months or years of cult living.

The cults themselves strongly dispute any "brainwashing" or coercive procedures, saying their intensive training programs are not unlike those of other highly devout, close-knit religious groups of history.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Medication Or Surgery for the Heart?

I have a heart condition. I've been advised by two doctors to have a "by-pass operation." Two other doctors feel that I can be treated with medication. Of course, I would prefer not to have surgery. You can imagine my confusion. Do you have any reliable sources that you can refer me to? I would like to read as much as I can before making up my mind. — Mr. W.M., Mich. Dear Mr. M.:

There is an enormous amount of scientific literature about this subject. Medical journals all over the world have been comparing the advantages of medical treatment versus surgical treatment, for anginal pain and some forms of coronary artery disease.

It would be almost impossible for you to come to such an important conclusion by reading this material. The science writers who abstract the scientific literature cannot clarify this problem for you.

No two cases of coronary artery disease are identical. Consequently, there is no single form of treatment that can be suggested for all patients. I would be adding to your confusion if I were to vaguely intimate the course of action in your particular case.

My suggestion is that you have your physicians consult with each other and try to come to a common conclusion as they evaluate every aspect of your problem.

If they are still divided in their opinion, let them choose still another specialist, a mutually respected, nationally known consultant. Then he can be the deciding voice as to the choice of treatment.

I dread the late July and August allergy season that has plagued me all my life. Is there any place in the United States where I can be free of the six weeks of sneezing and runny eyes that are my lot? — Mr. T.J., Del.

Dear Mr. J.:

People who are sensitive to goldenrod and ragweed are particularly uncomfortable during the latter part of the summer. There are many areas in the United States that are relatively free of substances.

There is no necessity for traveling far distances to avoid these pollens. Each state has literature about geographic areas in your own state or a nearby state that will give you greater comfort.

You can also write to the American Medical Association in Chicago, Ill., or to the Department of Health, Greenville, N.C.

for the construction of our new sanctuary

"You have another chance," whispers the spirit of America.

Our nation was founded by colonists who shook free from the oppression of the Old World and created a new future. Unparalleled growth and development came through the shattering of old traditions and through courageous change and creativity. Today's social and economic problems will yield to the same trust in new possibilities.

A gracious, open future is promised in God's Word. The basis of hope is the revelation of an all-powerful God who guides history and fulfills our individual destiny. The miracle of rebirth and forgiveness is rooted in His divine love.

How better might you celebrate Independence Day than to support the Church and nourish the spirit which whispers:

"You have another chance!"

Congress Expected To Go Along On B-1 Decision

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is expected to go along with President Carter's decision to halt production of the B1 bomber, but not without a fight from supporters of the costly plane.

Democratic leaders in the House and Senate quickly expressed support for Carter's surprise decision to scrap the B1, and the President predicted his verdict would be endorsed on Capitol Hill.

Carter said he had the support of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, who scheduled a news conference today to discuss the decision.

But congressional supporters of the B1 pledged to resist efforts to delete funding for the plane.

"The President has the right to make recommendations, but under the Constitution, Congress has the responsibility for the defense of the country," said Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. He vowed to fight for B1 money.

The congressional battle over the plane will focus on a $110.6 billion defense appropriations bill containing $1.5 billion for production of five B1s.

The measure was approved

Thursday on a 333 to 54 vote in the House just hours after Carter said the United States does not need the B1 and its production should be halted while testing and research continue.

Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., claimed there were enough House members willing to change their stand and reverse a vote Tuesday that kept the B1 money in the bill. But Addabbo, who sponsored the unsuccessful effort earlier in the week, said he decided to let Senate Democrats chop out the funds rather than ask House members to change their votes.

Carter said he thought many congressmen who voted for the B1 funds on Tuesday believed he was going to urge production of the bomber. Prior to his decision there had been widespread speculation that the President would authorize a limited production of the B1.

Instead, Carter recommended deployment of cruise missiles, which represent a weapons technology in which the United States is believed to lead the Soviet Union by about five years.

A defense spokesman said the Pentagon envisions arming about 250 of its existing B52 bombers with cruise missiles, which have a range of up to 1,500 miles.

The missiles will cost between $500,000 to $1 million each, the spokesman said, and the cost of refitting B52s to carry the cruise will be $700,000, exclusive of engine and wing modifications.

Even so, deployment of cruise missiles and continued use of the 20-to 25-year-old B52s are seen as a savings over the B1, which at a minimum cost of $101.7 million per copy would have been the most expensive combat plane ever. The defense spokesman said the B1 would have been the best option if it had been about 20 per cent cheaper.

The cruise missile has been one of the key stumbling blocks in strategic arms negotiations with the Soviet Union. The Russians have said the weapon should be included in any strategic arms limitation, but U.S. negotiators disagree.

Picket Lines Shape Up At Copper Mines

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Picket lines went up at copper mines throughout the country early today as a consortium of 26 unions representing 45,000 workers struck seven of eight major copper producers.

The first 10 picketers showed up at midnight outside the U.S. Metals Refining Co. in Carteret, N.J., the easternmost firm affected. Strikers soon followed suit in Maryland, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah, Montana and Arizona.

The strike was called by 400 union representatives at a meeting of the National Non-ferrous Industry Conference meeting here.

Frank McKee, international treasurer of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America, the largest of the labor groups representing the copper workers, said there was no discussion among the union men of extending the contracts.

The unions are holding out for a 94-cent hourly wage increase, similar to recent settlements in the steel and aluminum industries. McKee said a tandem relationship has existed since 1971 on wage increases for all metal workers.

"The companies have been trying to break up this tandem relationship and to weaken our coordinated bargaining," he said.

Negotiations among the unions and copper officials have been underway for the past three weeks. Bob Alkire of Kennecott Copper Corp., the nation's largest producer, said talks continued up to midnight Thursday, but he declined comment on progress.

Earlier Thursday, Manfred Edelman, chief negotiator for Kennecott, said of a possible settlement: "It's a million miles away."

Past contract negotiations have ended in strikes every three years since 1961. The longest walkout ran eight months in 1967-68.

All copper facilities were picketed except those of Magna Copper Co., which union spokesman Dick Miller said would be struck at midnight when its contracts expire.

The seven companies struck are Kennecott Copper Corp., Phelps Dodge Corp., Anaconda Inc., Asarco, Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co., Cities Service Inc. and U.S. Metals Refining Co.

McKee said money is the big issue and he insisted the unions would hold out for their full wage demand, which would bring pay for the average worker to about $8 an hour.

Also included in the demands are better pensions, unemployment compensation and medical insurance.

The Best-Kept Secret In Town

Quality, Prices 'Risk' German Tobacco Sales

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. tobacco analyst in West Germany has concluded in a yet-unpublished report that American tobacco growers risk losing their German market because of high prices and deteriorating quality.

"The extent to which the German market can be saved for American tobacco will depend on how fast and how efficiently American tobacco growers take corrective action," said the expert's report, which was obtained Thursday by The News and Observer.

The analysis, forwarded to the U.S. June 9 by Peter Berben, was prepared as part of the consulate's annual tobacco report for West Germany, America's second-most lucrative market.

Over the past decade, the report said, West Germany took 16.7 per cent of all U.S. tobacco exports, with German manufacturers using about 85 million pounds a year and spending about $120 million annually with U.S. growers.

However, it said, "In 1976 the German industry used nearly nine million pounds, 11 per cent, less American tobacco than a year earlier, and in 1977, it will probably use 11 million pounds less than in 1976, a drop of 15 per cent. Thus, in two years, American tobacco growers will have lost close to one-fourth of their market" in West Germany.

Berben concluded that the cause of the reduction in West German use of U.S. tobacco could be attributed to: —A "significant reduction in German cigarette sales following a substantial taxprice hike on Jan. 1, 1977."

—The "comparatively high cost of American tobacco for which German importers hold the U.S. Tobacco Program largely responsible."

The Germans complain, Berben wrote, that the tobacco program "is not flexible enough to adjust production to market needs."

As an example, he said, the Germans cite "the diminishing demand for low-on-the-stalk tobacco (and) its accumulation in the Stabilization pool." The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., or

"Stabilization pool," administers the federal price support program for flue-cured tobacco. —A "progressive deterioration in the quality of American tobacco."

"Unless current conditions and trends change drastically," Berben concluded, "American tobacco will be reduced to a specialty in the German market within the next 10 years."

Shelters To Be Surveyed

A team of architectural and engineering students trained in analyzing buildings and other structures for protection against wartime hazards will visit Pitt County July 5-20.

The work of the local team is part of the effort of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency (DPCA), the national civil defense agency headquartered in the Pentagon.

The group coming to Pitt County will be under the general supervision of the Army Corps of Engineers and its resident engineer at DPCA Region III headquarters in Thomasville, Ga.

The visit has been coordinated and approved by the N. C. Civil Preparedness Agency and local civil preparedness official Bobby Joyner.

The six survey specialists on the team are among more than 200 college students nationwide hired and trained by DPCA for summer work.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It was one of the best-kept secrets in town. The reason was that very few people knew what Jimmy Carter had decided about the B1 bomber before he told the world.

Those privy to the President's secret numbered no more than a half dozen, according to a member of that exclusive fraternity.

The presidential recommendation to make the B1 the B-zero followed four weeks of intensive discussion among Carter and his most trusted advisers.

The difficulty of the decision prompted Carter to:

—Leave the office early, about 2:30 p.m., on at least two occasions so he could take his option papers to his private living quarters to read and ponder.

—Confine his official reading during his Father's Day weekend at Camp David, Md., to more B1 documents, one an inch-thick "eyes only" Defense Department analysis of the bomber's merits and shortcomings.

—Draw up, on a yellow legal pad, a handwritten list of 49 points for and against the B1, which he then used as a point of reference in weighing complex options.

—Declare at one point: "I'm in a quandary about it."

The adviser Carter relied on most often, says White House Press Secretary Jody Powell, was Defense Secretary Harold Brown. Sometimes by phone, sometimes face to face, the President consulted Brown

"continually and intensively ... dozens of times," Powell related.

"They sort of arrived at the same conclusion," he said. "They were back and forth with each other all the way."

By Powell's account, Carter also received analyses from the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Air Force, the Office of Management and Budget and the National Security Council.

An NSC spokesman said his agency coordinated the written submissions.

When did the President make up his mind?

Carter was quoted as saying he couldn't pinpoint the time. However, he spoke of being in a quandary as recently as Tuesday morning and reportedly told at least one associate, Hamilton Jordan, on Tuesday night that he had made up his mind.

Powell learned the decision when he attended a meeting between Carter and Brown on Wednesday morning.

Arrested At 'Crop' Site

Two Greenville area teenagers were arrested Wednesday on charges of manufacturing marijuana after being found at a site where 62 plants were being grown, Wildlife Commission enforcement officer Kay Dunn reported today.

Dunn said Donald Wayne Wilson, 18 of Route 7, Greenville and Keith LeRoy Creson, 16 of Quail Hollow Trailer Pk., were taken into custody at the site, located near a sand pit of N.C. 30 near the Mumford Road intersection.

According to Dunn, 51 marijuana plants were in one patch, while a second patch contained 11 plants.

Both Wilson and Creson were placed under $500 bonds for their appearance in court.

NOTICE REGARDING COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLANS UNDER TITLE XX STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Notice is hereby given of actions involving Comprehensive Annual Services Plans for social services in North Carolina supported under Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act.

I. FINAL AMENDMENT TO THE FINAL COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLAN: PROGRAM YEAR JULY 1, 1976 TO SEPTEMBER 30, 1977

Changes in services to be provided by county departments of social services necessitate the amendment of the Plan (pp. 27b, 27c, 27d).

THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF THESE CHANGES IS JULY 1, 1977.

As a result of comments received during the public review period, May 16 through June 14, 1977, service delivery plans for counties underwent further changes.

II. PROPOSED COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLAN: PROGRAM YEAR OCTOBER 1, 1977 TO SEPTEMBER 30, 1978

The State Social Services Program: to provide social services which are directed at enabling the residents of North Carolina (individuals, families, and children) to restore, maintain, or enhance their capability for self-support, self-care, and independent living, and for strengthening family life.

All services are not provided statewide; however, the following services are required to be available in all 100 counties: adoption, day care for children, family planning, foster care for adults and children, health support, interstate/intercountry services to children, protective service for adults and children, and caseworker services to enable individuals to remain in or return to their own home. The remaining services included in the Plan are considered to be optional services in the sense that their availability depends on the existence of a local need and the availability of resources sufficient to provide the service. The same services will be available to clients with similar problems, needs, and circumstances within each of the State's counties. The Plan is an account of what these services are and how they can be provided. It is not, however, a master plan for all of North Carolina's social services programs since many services are financed by means other than Title XX.

INDIVIDUALS TO BE SERVED:

All persons residing in the State who are:

1. Current recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) payments, and those persons whose needs are taken into account in determining the needs of AFDC recipients;
2. Recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program benefits and of regular payments made by the State in supplementation of such benefits;
3. Other individuals whose family's yearly gross income is less than the adjusted median income for a family of four.

In addition, services may be provided under certain conditions without regard to financial assistance status or family income.

INCOME LIMITATION:

Maximum income levels are adjusted for family size. For a family of four, the maximum income eligibility level is $13,883 per year or $1,157 per month. Eligibility for different services is based on four income levels as described in the PROPOSED PLAN and the DETAILED SUMMARY.

PUBLIC COMMENTS WRITTEN ON THE PROPOSED PLAN may be made during the period JULY 1, 1977 through AUGUST 15, 1977 to the following office:

North Carolina Department of Human Resources
Division of Plans and Operations
325 North Salisbury Street
Raleigh, North Carolina 27611

All comments received will be available for review in the above-mentioned office.

PUBLIC REVIEW OF PROPOSED PLAN and application for services may be done at all county departments of social services, MONDAY-FRIDAY, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

THE FINAL AMENDMENT and DETAILED SUMMARY OF THE PROPOSED PLAN may be obtained free of charge by calling 1-800-662-7030 (TOLL-FREE) or by written request to the office listed below. Copies of the PROPOSED COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLAN are available for purchase by mailing $3.00 (check or money order) made payable to the N. C. Trooper Fired, Four Cleared In Death Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Highway Patrol Commander John T. Jenkins today fired one state trooper, disciplined another and exonerated four others in connection with a November 1976 road-

Jenkins, ruling after three and a half days of testimony before a nine-member trial board, fired trooper Robert P. Williams of Durham, charging him with violation of state highway patrol regulations on use of weapons and exercises of force.

The commander cleared trooper D.H. Matthews of Franklinton on two of three charges against him, but gave him a "first-level reprimand" for "jeopardizing the safety of a hostage by firing into the vehicle in an attempt to shoot a dangerous felon."

Williams and Matthews have 15 days to appeal Jenkins' ruling to Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety J. Phil Carlton.

Jenkins exonerated Maj. G.D. Russell and Lt. W.E. Pickard of Raleigh, Sgt. Stacey S. Bailey of Henderson and Sgt. Raymond E. Evans of Oxford of charges against them.

Those four had been demoted by former Transportation Department Secretary G. Perry Greene after a preliminary investigation of the incident. Greene had fired both Williams and Matthews. All six troopers won their jobs back by court order pending the administrative hearing.

Jenkins called the trial board hearing "the best the patrol had ever had. It was the most thorough, having heard three and one half days of testimony, and it was the fairest, allowing all the evidence to be heard."

In advocating Plan C for division of schools into two categories, three primary schools for grades one through three and three intermediate schools for grades four through six, member Frost said he based his recommendation on two basic points — "the quality education each child would receive, and the reality of economics" applicable to such a structure.

Frost and Mrs. Shank both mentioned the benefit that would accrue from concentration of library books for each group within three schools instead of six, and a gain in programming shared teachers in fields such as art, music, and health education.

Another agenda item approved was that of a policy resolution applicable to transfer of students between Greenville City Schools and neighboring school systems. The resolution, effective today, provides that students living within the boundaries of the Greenville City School District will attend Greenville City Schools.

Any hardship transfer to adjoining school units must be recommended by the superintendent and approved by the Greenville City Board of Education.

The resolution embodies a stipulation, however, that all students now residing within the Greenville City School District previously enrolled in any neighboring high school shall be exempt from this policy.

Mrs. Shank commented she felt it is "important that high school years not be interrupted by a change of schools, and I think it is imperative that we adopt this policy of exempting high school students already enrolled in adjoining schools."

The board approved several budget resolutions dealing with already concluded 1976-77 fiscal year matters. These were presented for officially establishing them within the minutes of meetings.

Funds Given To Tobacco Work

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The N.C. Tobacco Foundation Thursday gave $171,400 for tobacco research and extension programs at North Carolina State University.

The funds will be used to supplement state and federal government appropriations for programs on North Carolina's top cash crop.

Among projects that will be supported during the coming year under the foundation funds is solar energy for curing tobacco. Dr. William Johnson, a biological and agricultural engineer, recently was awarded a patent on a process that could result in substantial energy savings for North Carolina tobacco farmers.

Other projects will include such areas as improved bulk curing, pesticide residues in tobacco, genetics of tobacco and breeding for disease resistance.

"I've shot better than this, but I feel all right," said Morgano, veteran mbister, or marble player, of four years. The champ said he practices three hours a day.

Pirates Rally To Nip Wilmington, 7-5

First Federal Evens Series

First Federal evened the City Little League championship series at one game each with a 6-5 victory over the Lions yesterday.

The two teams meet this afternoon at 6 p.m. at Elm Street Park in the decisive game in the best-of-three series.

First Federal had to rally for four runs in the fifth inning to pull off the victory. The Tar Heel League champs trailed the Lions, 5-2 going into the frame.

The Lions, winners in the North State League, pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead. David Jester reached on an error and Patrick Rand was hit by a pitch. Marshall Rand singled, and an error let Jester score. Troy Hudson doubled in Patrick Rand, and Marshall Rand scored on Steve Staton's infield out.

First Federal came back with two in the top of the third. Tyron Barrett doubled and scored on a two-bagger by Randy Warren. Warren moved up on a passed ball and scored when Marty Radford reached on a fielder's choice.

The Lions extended their lead to 5-2 with two more in the bottom of the third. Patrick Rand singled and Marshall Rand followed with a two-run homer.

But in the fifth, First Federal rallied for the lead. William Waugh walked and Barrett got a single. Radford reached on an error, loading the bases. Mont Carter doubled, driving in Waugh and Barrett. Keith Stocks singled to drive in Radford and Carter with what proved to be the difference.

Barrett and Carter each had two hits for First Federal, while Marshall Rand and Hudson picked up a pair each for the Lions.

Hunter Fights Suspension

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Al Hunter, Notre Dame's top running back last season, and a graduate of Rose High School in Greenville, N.C., has been suspended from school for the fall semester.

Hunter said through an attorney that he is considering court action to regain admission, and thus be eligible to play for the Fighting Irish this fall. He will be a senior in eligibility.

His attorney said that Hunter would have a statement on what course he planned to follow around Wednesday or Thursday.

Hunter was accused of visiting a female student at Notre Dame "after hours" but was cleared in a university judicial hearing. However, that ruling was overturned by an appeals board convened by the school's Dean of Students.

Should the suspension be upheld, it would mark the end of Hunter's collegiate career. He lost the 1974 season when he was suspended because of dormitory violations.

Hunter, one of the top runners ever at Rose High School, became the first Notre Dame running back to rush for 1,000 yards last season, and was expected to be a vital cog in the Irish offense this fall.

Injuries Hurt Angel Chances

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer
ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels are, in the words of General Manager Harry Dalton, "dropping like flies." And things don't figure to get much better in the near future. The Angels, who were among the most active major league teams in the off-season free-agent bidding war, will be without the trio of celebrated stars they signed following the 1976 campaign when they open a five-game series against the Oakland A's tonight.

It was to be determined today if shortstop Bobby Grich, who signed a five-year, $1.5 million contract last fall, will require surgery on his ailing back.

Should that be the case, and it is expected that Grich will need an operation, he will probably be sidelined for the rest of the season.

Outfielder Joe Rudi, who signed a five-year, $2.1 million contract, is on the Angels' supplemental disabled list because of a broken bone in his hand suffered when he was hit by a Nelson Briles pitch last Sunday.

Don Baylor, the third of the talented trio signed by Angels' owner Gene Autry, has a pulled hamstring muscle. His availability is on a day-to-day basis.

And that's not all. Pitcher Gary Nolan, acquired from the Cincinnati Reds June 15, is expected to be out at least two more weeks with a pulled muscle in his neck.

Rookie shortstop Rance Mulliniks has a hamstring injury and is on a day-to-day basis.

Meanwhile, infielders Dave Chalk and Mario Guerrero, outfielder Gil Flores and pitcher Gary Nolan have minor assorted ailments and probably shouldn't be playing now, but are seeing action because of the team's near-desperate situation.

"You can't help injuries, these things happen," said California trainer Freddie Fredricko Thursday. "But this has been like lightning striking. Boom. Boom. Boom."

"It's the worst injury wave I've seen in the 17-year history of the Angels," added Fredricko, the American League's senior trainer.

Despite the Angels' ills, the team was only 4½ games behind Minnesota in the American League West entering play tonight.

Johnson Leads Yankee Parade Past Toronto

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

TORONTO (AP) — "Happiness," says Cliff Johnson, "is going to the plate four times a night."

So it would seem that going to the plate five times, as he did Thursday night, would make Johnson absolutely giddy. Not so.

"I'm not gonna get too high when I'm going good or too low when I'm going bad," Johnson said after slamming three home runs, including a record-tying two in an eight-run eighth-inning as the New York Yankees pounded the Toronto Blue Jays 11-5.

In the only other American League game Thursday night, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Baltimore Orioles 4-2 on Wayne Garland's five-hit pitching and Frank Duffy's two solo homers. The game was called after 6½ innings because of rain.

"Three home runs doesn't mean anything if you don't come back the next night and help the club," Johnson said. Johnson, acquired June 15 from Houston for two minor leaguers and a player to be named later, will get plenty of chances to help the Yankees this weekend when they return home to face three left-handers in four games against Detroit.

His three homers came as a designated hitter, but Johnson has played first base and the outfield and done some catching during his career. And, says Manager Billy Martin, Johnson will be the DH against certain right-handers.

Johnson was hit by a pitch from loser Jerry Garvin in the second inning, hit a solo homer in the fourth, walked in the sixth, homered starting the eighth and capped the eight-run inning with a two-run homer off Jerry Johnson after the Toronto reliever brushed him back with a high inside pitch.

Johnson thus became the 18th player in major league history to hit two home runs in one inning, and the first Yankee to do it since Joe Pepitone in 1962. The last American Leaguer was California's Rick Reichardt in 1966.

The Yanks' big inning also included a solo homer by Lou Piniella and a three-run shot by Thurman Munson, who drove in the game's first run with a sacrifice fly. Meanwhile, Catfish Hunter scattered seven hits and allowed only one run until the Yankees built a comfortable 10-1 lead in the eighth.

At Cleveland, Garland, 5-8, struck out four, walked one and retired the last 11 Baltimore batters. The loser was Ross Grimsley, 7-4.

Snow Hill In Romp

Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team closed out the regular season with a 17-2 victory over Dunn last night.

The Snow Hill team finished the year with an 8-6 record and will begin playoff action tonight with a three-game series against Dunn.

The key to the Snow Hill victory last night was a big third inning in which the team scored 11 runs. Russell Brann led off the frame with a single and stole second. Phillip Gordon walked and Ronnie Whitley was hit by a pitch to load the sacks.

Dal Blizzard got a base on balls to score Brann and Collyn Beamon walked to bring in Gordon. A walk to Mike Jenkins scored Whitley and Blizzard came in on yet another walk, this one to Jay Carraway.

David Winborn singled in Beamon and Brann came up again, hitting a double to score Jenkins and Carraway. Winborn and Brann scored on Jerry Speight's single and Gordon followed with a base hit. Speight was caught stealing, but Gordon scored on Whitley's home run.

Jenkins was 3-4, Brann 4-6, and Wilson 2-3 for Snow Hill and Mike Bullard was 2-4 to lead the Dunn hitting. The team hosts Dunn tonight and will play at Dunn tomorrow night. A third game, if necessary, will be played Sunday at Snow Hill.

Golfers Take Wins

RALEIGH — Two Greenville junior golfers won their flights during the North State Tournament held in Raleigh this week. Jack Mann and Greg House, both playing out of the Greenville Golf and Country Club won their respective flights.

Mann, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Mann, won the first flight in the 12-13 age group. He had rounds of 76, 84, 81, 80, for a 321 total. He won a sudden death playoff on the first hole to take the title.

House, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Michael House, won the second flight in the 14-15 age group. He had rounds of 87, 76, 77, 78 for a 318 total.

The two were the only Greenville golfers playing in the tournament.

Heavyweight Ken Norton earned 10 varsity letters in high school in Jacksonville, Ill. He competed in baseball, football, track and basketball. Boxing came later.

WILMINGTON — East Carolina University gave up five eighth inning runs to blow a 3-0 lead, then rallied for four in the top of the ninth to grab off a 7-5 victory over UNC-Wilmington last night in the N.C. Collegiate League.

Bobby Supel came up with a bases-loaded triple to spark the inning, as the Bucs roared back from behind to claim their eighth victory in 11 starts. Wilmington dropped off to a 3-13 record with the loss.

Billy Williamson started the contest, but left in the eighth when he ran out of steam. Through the first seven innings, he had allowed but three hits to the Seahawks.

But when he tired, the Seahawks jumped on him for all five of their runs. Lee Cherry then came on in relief to get the victory.

Eddie Gates, Macon Moye and Raymie Styns each collected two hits in leading the Pirates at the plate.

East Carolina grabbed the lead in the third inning when the Bucs pushed over a lone run. Pete Paradossi reached on a fielder's choice, and moved to second when the ball was errored on the attempt to get him. Gates walked and a long fly moved Paradossi to third. He scored on Moye's infield single.

The Pirates added two more runs in the fourth to up the lead to 3-0. Tommy Warrick reached on an infield single, and Jim Gibson also got a hit. Tommy Cobb walked, loading the bases. Paradossi brought in Warrick with a sacrifice fly, and Gates followed with a single, scoring Gibson.

It stayed that way until Williamson tired in the eighth and the Seahawks put together their five-run rally, taking a 5-3 lead.

Terry Greene led off the eighth with a double and Ed Finch walked. Chip McDonald reached on an error, scoring Greene. Jim Montague then singled in Finch. Richard Lancaster's triple brought in both McDonald and Montague. A passed ball let Lancaster score the final Wilmington run.

East Carolina then came back to grab off the win in the top of the ninth. Cobb singled and both Paradossi and Gates walked, loading the bases. Wilmington pulled starting pitcher Cecil Davis, and Supel greeted reliever Phil Rose with a ringing triple that brought in three runs and moved the Pirates back into a 6-5 lead. Styns singled to score Supel with the insurance run.

East Carolina returns home tonight to face Louisville College in a 6 p.m. doubleheader at Harrington Field.

N.C. Has Celebration Just For You

By The Associated Press
Whether you're into stone-skippping, shindigging, wheat-threshing or sitting back and relaxing, North Carolina has a celebration for you over the Fourth weekend.

The stone-skippping and ge-plunking contest is set to happen Monday at the Independence Day Picnic at West Point on the Eno in Durham, "a first" according to Glenn Hinson, coordinator of the picnic.

Sanctioned by Unicorn Ltd. Conglomerate, the national stone-skippping organization, a preliminary North Carolina match will be held at 1 p.m. in the Island area of the park, with the main competition starting at 5:30 p.m.

A skipper gets six consecutive tries, known as a set, and the best try, that is, the one with the most skips, is recorded, according to national rules.

"Ge-plunk" is in the title, according to Hinson, because the stone which has successfully skipped over the water finally sinks with a ge-plunk.

For those who prefer a less splashy entertainment, Asheville's Shindig on the Green on Saturday might fit the bill. Mountain fiddlers, dulcimer players, ballads and buck and clog dancers in open air performances are among the specialists scheduled.

At Denton, the seventh annual Fly-In and Threshers Reunion will be held for three days beginning Saturday. The gathering at the Denton Airport will feature airplane rides, wheat threshing, corn meal grinding, steam engines, antique farm machinery, entertainment, reconstructed log barn, cabin corn crib, gasoline engines, combining arts, crafts, an old time sawmill, straw baler and country vintles.

The sixth annual Smoky Mountain Arts and Crafts Show in Murphy will feature fine art and folk art by the residents of the Great Smoky Mountains from Friday until Monday.

Running for the same period is the Carrboro July Fourth celebration at Carrboro Town Hall. A fair, bazaars and live entertainment highlight the event.

Winston-Salem will once again present the traditional Fourth of July Observance in Old Salem Monday. The Home Moravian Church will hold outdoor services at 8:30 a.m., followed by the traditional Moravian lovefeast at 2 p.m. in the church.

The service will include the Psalm of Joy which was sung on July 4, 1783, the first year of peace after the American Revolution. At 9 p.m., the torchlight procession, originally held July 4, 1783, will be reenacted. Boat races, tractor pulls, fireworks, a beauty contest and band concerts are among the highlights of the Fourth of July celebration on Sunday and Monday at Beheven. The festivities will also include a water ski show, an art show, a fish fry, a beauty contest, a parade and a street dance.

The Tweetsie Railroad will hold a special Fourth of July celebration Monday at Blowing Rock. Special entertainment, fireworks and crafts will be featured.

A river raft race on French Broad River will spark Monday's festival at Hot Springs.

In Raleigh, the July Fourth celebration will be held at the state fairgrounds Monday.

Morganton's celebration on the Fourth will include a parade and water show, while West Jefferson will hold the Ashe Saddle Club Horse Show that day.

At Clemmons, there will be a fireworks show Monday at Tanglewood Park. The July Fourth celebration at Wake Forest will feature parades, games, a pig picking and fireworks. Rides, a parade, fireworks, food, dancing, music, a horse show and contests will be part of Faith's celebration on the Fourth.

Buxton will offer an old-fashioned picnic and fish fry at the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse Monday. And at Cary, an Ole Fashioned Fourth of July celebration will take place at Franklin Field with games, rides, booths, entertainment, fireworks and food the same day.

200 Struck By Food Poisoning

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Health officials confirmed late Thursday that food poisoning caused the illness that sent 200 elderly conventioners to hospitals, but they had not determined which food was the culprit.

The men and women, stricken with stomach pains, vomiting and diarrhea, were rushed from the Royal Villa, where they were staying, to three area hospitals in a massive medical evacuation involving city buses and several rescue squads Thursday afternoon.

Others were treated in a makeshift emergency room set up in a private lounge at the motel. Most did not appear to be seriously ill.

Dr. Jane Wooten, assistant director of the Wake County Health Department, said late Thursday officials had attributed the illness to food poisoning.

The group, part of a contingent of 500 attending the national Men's Garden Club of America convention here, had toured several gardens in the area Thursday morning and then had lunch at Meredith College. By 5 p.m. many fell ill.

"It hit them all at once," said Violet M. Esterman of Denver, Colo. "They just started vomiting and having diarrhea. A lot of people seem to feel it had something to do with lunch." She said the meal was served buffet style, and included chicken, ham, cole slaw and potato salad.

Health workers were at Meredith College late Thursday examining the food for possible contaminants. Not everyone who ate at Meredith was taken sick, but it was the only meal the group had eaten together, officials said.

About 75 patients were taken to Rex Hospital, another 45 went to Wake Medical Center and about 40 were treated at Durham General Hospital in Durham. Hospital spokesman said most of the patients were walking, but some were on stretchers.

Rex admitted two patients and Wake Medical admitted one.

Nominated For District Post

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte attorney Harold Edwards was nominated by President Carter Thursday to be U.S. attorney for the Western District of North Carolina. The Senate must confirm the appointment.

A spokesman for Sen. Robert Morgan said in a telephone interview the nomination was sent immediately to the Senate Judiciary Committee, where it must remain for at least seven days.

Edwards, 46, a native of Anson County, practiced law in Charlotte from 1960 until last year, when he joined Morgan's staff as legislative counsel.

Offer Summer Of Recreation

GRIFTON — The summer recreation program at Grifton is now underway at the town park, with a full schedule of crafts, games and sports offered to children from age four up.

Hours of the program are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily, with a one hour lunch break scheduled from noon to 1 p.m.

Activities include co-ed sandlot softball for all ages and crafts for anyone interested. Equipment is available for volleyball, Carrom, board games, badminton, tennis, ping pong, horse shoes, basketball, soccer, etc.

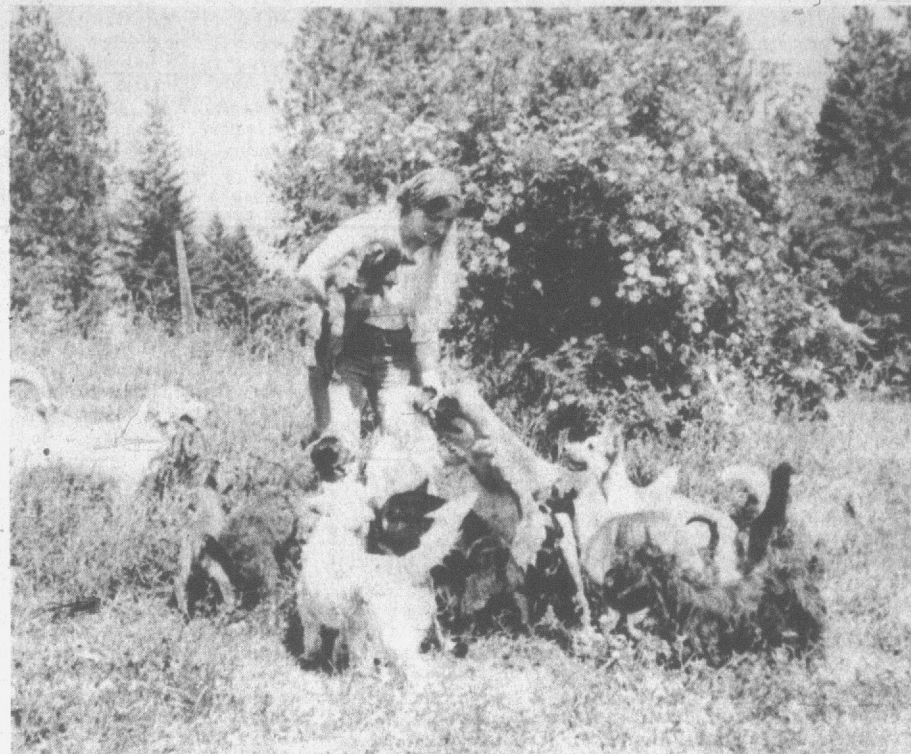

Creative activities available include dramatics and song and skits events.

A registration fee of $5 per child is charged for the eight week program. This money will go to purchase of craft and game equipment and for supplies needed, such as paper towels.

The summer recreation program is sponsored by the Town of Grifton through its recreation budget. Mrs. Paye Bollinger is director. The staff includes Ann Thorne, Hope Mullen, Karen Haseley, Lisa Patrick, and Debbie Koonce.

AMONG GRADUATES
UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. — Ms. Annie R. Edwards, daughter of Mrs. Ella Edwards, daughter of Lakeview Terrace, Greenville, N.C., was among the graduates at Montclair State College's 68th commencement exercises.

FACES DEADLINE — Roberta Kinley, who operates the Hayden Lake (Idaho) Animal Orphanage, has been given until July 11 to dispose of dozens of animals. She has given away many dogs, but still seeks homes for 70. Neighbors sued, claiming the orphanage was a nuisance. (AP Wirephoto)

Mary Hartman Is Gone, Fernwood Will Linger On

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — She came to TV on Jan. 5, 1976, granddaughter of the "Fernwood Flasher," worrying about "waxy yellow buildup" and then a nearby mass murder of five persons, two goats and eight chickens.

Tonight, no murder occurs in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the seriously satirical soap opera starring Louise Lasser as America's most famed, most spacey housewife in pig-tails and little-girl togs.
But she'll worry about "waxy yellow buildup" again. And a man — not grandpa — will again do indecent exposure. Both events are of great historical import and consequence.

Tonight marks the 325th and last MH-2 episode, ends the series whose tales of murder, lust, impotence and general weirdness made many who worry about TV dwell at length on what it all means.

The show was taped last June 17, shortly after producer Norman Lear said he was folding the series before its popularity fizzled.

If you've not been a nightly "Hartman" viewer but plan to watch the finale, a brief update is in order.

Lear's office says Mary vanished two weeks ago. Husband Tom (Gregg Murrell) can't find her. Her sometime lover, Police Sgt. Dennis Foley (Bruce Solomon) claims he doesn't know where she is.
So, when the show starts, she's not among the enraged citizens of Fernwood as they hold a town meeting to depose their lecherous mayor, Merle Jeeter (Dabney Coleman).

His Honor unexpectedly arrives to admit his guilt, admit he hired an ex-con as the police chief and confess to abusing the public trust.
He makes restitution, returns an expensive watch and his Cadillac, and says he's leaving "just the way I come into town. I'm leaving without a shred of dignity." He is wearing a yellow raincoat.

But the townfolk change their mind and keep him on. Which sets the stage for his debut — and presidential candidacy — on "Fernwood Tonight," a 13-week summer series starring Martin Mull.
That show, which starts — no kidding — on July 4 on about 30 stations, also comes from the Lear works. It's a bizarre kind of "Tonight" show that emulates from Fernwood.
In it, Mull plays Barth Gimble, a popular TV personality forced to exit Miami amid rumors of payola and misconduct with young girls.
He's in tonight's finale as an unhappy prospective donor of a kidney for Mary's ailing kid sister. It could well be a publicity stunt.
See, his mod manager arrives at the hospital with a reporter, says "that kidney is going to make him a star," and suggests this headline: "Gimble Has Heart, Donates Kidney."
There ensues a rousing scene with all the regulars except Miss Lasser. She only appears in the closing moment, waxing a kitchen floor. The door opens and ... aw, go see for yourself.
Thus does the actress, who wanted out of the show, leave it. But her colleagues, when "Fernwood Tonight" ends, will return next fall in another syndicated Lear effort, "Fernwood U.S.A."

In that series ... good heavens, my brain just caught fire.

The opening lead is often the most crucial play in the game. Once you get your side off to a bad start, especially against slam contracts, you may never recover. This hand from a team match graphically illustrates this point.

At the table where we watched, South drove to slam after his partner had opened the bidding. We would probably have taken the same action.

West considered carefully before making his opening lead. Obviously declarer had long, solid spades. Equally obviously, North was going to be short in both diamonds and spades since he had shown eleven cards in clubs and hearts during the auction. West reasoned that a trump lead could not cost and might gain.

The lead of the ten of spades proved to be a killer. (Note that only the ten would do.) Declarer had three losing diamonds to handle, and the ace of hearts would take care of only one. The only parking spot for a second diamond loser was for the club finesse to succeed. So declarer won the opening trump lead, drew another round of trumps and then tried the club finesse. East won and shifted to a diamond, and in the fullness of time declarer lost three diamond tricks for down three.

At the other table, South showed supreme disregard for his potential diamond losers. He tried Blackwood after his partner had described a 6-5 hand and bid a grand slam when he learned his partner held two aces.

It would be pleasant to report that this folly met with its just deserts. Unfortunately, West seemed to have paid no attention to the auction, and he elected to lead a diamond. Declarer won and ruffed a diamond. To prove that there is no justice, he now guessed right. He continued with the ace of hearts and the queen for a ruffing finesse. Even though East ducked smoothly, declarer decided to discard his last diamond. It was now a simple matter to ruff a heart, draw trumps and claim the grand slam.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This can be an upsetting time both where conservative and conventional matters are concerned. Avoid making hasty or rash decisions. Try to keep calm. Back up rather than degrade a pal.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care not to annoy your friends at this time since they could be important to your scheme of things now. Be wiser to the ways of others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid any arguments with those who are powerful and please them by asking for advice. Pay a questionable bill without arguing about it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Complete unfinished business before getting into any new activities, some of which may not be good for you. Don't overtax energies.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use diplomacy in handling a problem with mate, loved one. Avoid arguments and don't resort to name-calling.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Not a good time to question allies or you get into trouble with them. Avoid them as much as you can. A civic matter arises that is not pleasant, but keep quiet since there is little you can do about it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't argue with fellow workers about work you have to do and get good results. Don't overdo or you could easily damage health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Stick to proven and inexpensive pleasures or you could regret extravagance later. Friends may be a little trying, but take in your stride.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The situation at home could be tense, so do what you can to restore harmony. Not a good time to put that latent talent to work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be careful in dealing with others or you could easily get into much trouble. Avoid being too self-sacrificing at home. You get nowhere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may feel a financial pinch, but if you study your position better, you find you have ample funds to get a new outlet working for you. Use good judgment and you need not rely on others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get more balance to your thinking so that you are neither highly elated one moment and down in the dumps the next. Not a good time for social gatherings.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Personal worries are not as bad as you think, so do not get excited over them. Loved one may be testy right now, so make allowances.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to be very conventional at one time and most outgoing the next. Teach early when and where to use such moods to advantage in dealing with others. Slant education along lines of medicine, psychiatry, personnel work, since the desire here is to be of great help to others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Some Evidence Coffee Price Spiral Just May Be Relaxing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Coffee takes the blame for sharp price increases for supermarket shoppers, who found grocery bills rising at a much faster rate in the first six months of 1977 than in the same period a year earlier, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The one encouraging sign was an indication that spiraling coffee prices for the brew may be easing.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and since has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that prices for the marketbasket at the checklist stores increased an average of 9 per cent from Jan. 1 to July 1. When coffee was removed from the totals, however, the six-month increase was only 1.4 per cent.

In 1976, the AP survey showed the marketbasket totals at checklist stores went up 1 per cent during the first six months of the year. Not counting coffee, the marketbasket totals dropped 1 per cent.

The government has predicted that retail prices for food purchased at the grocery store and eaten away from home will rise about 6 per cent this year, compared to an increase of 3.1 per cent last year.

Officials said much of the increase will be due to higher prices for imported items and products not produced on U.S. farms, including coffee, cocoa and seafood.

Wholesale coffee prices, which had topped $4.50 a pound, have been declining recently, reflecting lower prices for unroasted beans. The drop has been credited partly to a cutback by consumers who have switched to other beverages.

Retail prices never caught up to wholesale levels and the cuts by the major roasters are not expected to have any major impact at the supermarket. The AP survey showed, however, that the price of coffee decreased slightly during June at two stores and increased in only four. There were no increases and no decreases during May.

The overall price picture improved during June. The marketbasket total at the checklist store was up in nine cities and down in four, for an overall average increase of about one-third of a per cent.

During May, the marketbasket total at the checklist stores increased in 12 cities and decreased in only one, for an overall average rise of just over 3 per cent.

The increases that did occur last month — mainly for pork chops, detergent and orange juice — were offset by lower prices for sugar and eggs. Consumers in several areas also found special sales on frankfurters, just in time for Fourth of July barbecues. The hot dogs declined in price at checklist stores in five cities.

On the gloomy side, pork chops went up at the checklist store in eight cities, reflecting higher prices paid to farmers for their hogs. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported that hog prices increased from May 15 to June 15, although overall farm prices dropped by 5 per cent for the first monthly decline in seven months.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M.; Atlanta; Boston; Chicago; Dallas; Detroit; Los Angeles; Miami; New York; Philadelphia; Providence, R.I.; Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Funds Dispersal Is Seen Irresponsible

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Responding to a comment by Biblical Recorder editor Marse Grant, a top aide to Billy Graham said Thursday it would be irresponsible for the evangelist's ministry to quickly disperse an unpublicized $22.9 million fund.

Leighton Ford of Charlotte, an evangelist and vice president of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, said most of the money was already committed, with much of it going to a planned graduate school in Bible studies and communications in Illinois. The school, he said, had not yet received any funds.

Grant, a long-time friend of Graham and editor of the largest Baptist publication in the state, said Wednesday he thought most of the money should be given away to restore public confidence in the evangelist.

He said the fund should go to world causes, with the organization only keeping dollars already committed to projects.

But Ford contended that Grant must not have understood the purpose of the money. "The fund is meant to do exactly what Marse Grant suggests," Ford said.

Ford said the $22.9 million is mostly surplus money left over from gifts to the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association after Graham's ministry projects had been paid for.

The money is to be used for churches and organizations outside of Graham's ministry, he said.

A newspaper story revealed the fund's existence Sunday and said few contributors to the Graham ministry were aware it existed. Graham has denied that the fund, which has given money to various Christian organizations, was intentionally kept secret.

Publication Allowed Die

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Observer, the weekly newspaper published by Dow Jones & Co. Inc. since 1962, will cease publication after the current issue, it was announced today.

The newspaper, whose circulation is about 450,000, presented a mixture of general news and features. Its parent company also publishes The Wall Street Journal and the weekly Barron's and owns the Ottaway newspapers and the Dow Jones News Service.

A Dow Jones spokesman said the issue which goes to press Saturday would be the National Observer's last. Eighty full-time and 20 part-time editorial employees will be affected by the move.

Warren H. Phillips, president of Dow Jones, said "the long effort to make the Observer self-supporting has not succeeded and its future prospects do not give sufficient encouragement to continue the battle."

KENTON IMPROVING READING, Pa. (AP) — Hospital officials say jazz musician Stan Kenton is improving, but still not well enough to tell police about the fall that led to brain surgery last month.

Job Protection Rights Of New N.C. Employees Dead

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly eliminated job protection rights for state employees with less than five years' experience Thursday, bringing charges from Republicans that a political purge was forthcoming.

The measure was enacted after passing the Senate on a 38-4 vote, and had the strong support of Gov. Jim Hunt. Already approved by the House, the bill cleared the Senate on the same day that a committee voted to kill it, then voted to revive it after a brief recess.

The new law amends the state personnel act to exempt any government worker with less than five years experience — effectively exempting any employee hired after Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser took office in 1973.

Without the act, state employees would not have career status or the right to administrative appeal of a firing, demotion or transfer.

Before enacting the measure, the Senate overwhelmingly defeated an amendment that would have required the state to show "just cause" before any dismissal.

State Republican party chairman Jack Lee held a news conference on the Legislative Building steps to denounce the measure as "Republican-stripping legislation," and predicted Hunt would fire all remaining GOP workers.

Earlier, Hunt had justified the bill, saying the five-year probationary period was needed to evaluate a worker's performance.

At a news conference last week, he said there would be no wholesale firing of Republicans and noted that before 1975, there was no state personnel act at all.

Despite the GOP opposition, none of the dissenting votes were cast by Republicans. Two of the three GOP legislators were absent, and the third, Sen. Bob Somers, R-Rowan, voted for the bill after delivering a tongue-in-cheek speech in which he said, "You all know I support the governor."

"We don't care about just cause," Somers said. Then, looking to Hunt legislative liaison Charles Winberry in the Senate gallery, Somers added, "Charlie's got his list. He's checking it twice. He's going to find out who's naughty and nice."

Earlier Thursday a Senate committee voted 5-5 on the bill, and committee chairman Sen. Kenneth Royal, D-Durham, ruled it dead for lack of a majority. But after an hour break, the committee reconvened and approved the bill with only one dissenting vote.

The bill was defended by Sen.

Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, who said it makes other changes in the personnel act, including granting dismissed workers attorneys fees for appeal, if they were not exempt from the act.

Neither opponents nor supporters said they knew how many Republicans were still in state jobs and could be affected by the five-year provision.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said the bill damaged the rights of all employees, however, by not providing for a judge to stay any dismissal until an administrative hearing could be held. An amendment allowing such an injunction was defeated in the House and never offered on the Senate floor.

"No state employee, whether he has five years or not, has any protection left because he can't get a judicial stay order," Adams said. "He's got to wait six months, without a job, to see whether he was right or not."

Allowed To Meet July 5

MCCAIN, N.C. (AP) — State prison officials have announced that reporters who already have requested interviews with Wilmington 10 leader Ben Chavis will be allowed to meet with him for one hour on July 5.

The group interview will partially lift a temporary ban on meetings with the famed civil rights leader, imposed recently because of what prison officials said was a flood of requests.

"The number of requests coming in from the news media was more than we could handle administratively under the existing policy," State Prisons Director Ralph D. Edwards said Thursday. "We are making Ben Chavis available for the people who have already requested an interview with him."

Chavis is serving a long prison sentence, along with eight other members of the group, for arson and conspiracy to assault emergency personnel during racial violence in Wilmington in 1971. The case has recently attracted worldwide publicity.

The Rev. Leon White of the North Carolina Commission of Racial Justice has called the ban "extremely repressive," but Edwards said Chavis was not being singled out.

"This is an unusual situation we are trying to deal with," Edwards said.

As many as 15 requests for interviews are pending, the director said. He said prison officials are trying to develop some way to provide for orderly, fair procedure for allowing the interviews.
