

Nation Celebrates Its 201st Birthday

By The Associated Press

A traditional fireworks display on the grounds of the Washington Monument, a nautical salute to America and a challenge to war by some feisty West Virginians marked the celebration of the nation's 201st birthday.

Tired of hearing about the annual Calaveras County Frog Jumping Contest in Angels Camp, Calif., resident of Fayetteville, W.Va., challenged California frogs to a jumping contest with West Virginia frogs. The challenge was issued as part of Fayetteville's traditional July Jamboree held over the holiday weekend.

In New York City, the Parade of Sail drew tens of thousands of spectators to Manhattan's waterfront

Sunday. Activities planned for the Fourth itself included parades and an all-day ethnic festival, concluding with a giant fireworks display along the Hudson River.

Philadelphia, the "Cradle of Democracy," planned a parade and fireworks today, with much of the activity centered around the Independence Hall area where Frank Sinatra will be presented with the city's Freedom Medal.

In Boston, big crowds were expected to hear a 21-gun salute from cannons aboard the USS Constitution, "Old Ironsides." A mammoth fireworks demonstration was planned, along with a waterfront appearance by Arthur Fiedler and his Boston

Pops orchestra, playing Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

A concert under the Gateway Arch by the St. Louis symphony orchestra was scheduled to be one of the highlights of that city's celebration, although a water ski pageant and fireworks were also planned.

Perhaps trying to keep the best of the old and the new, Memphis, Tenn., planned a $10,000 multidimensional stage extravaganza. Dubbed "Future Fourth," the production will combine traditional Fourth of July music with futuristic visual and sound effects.

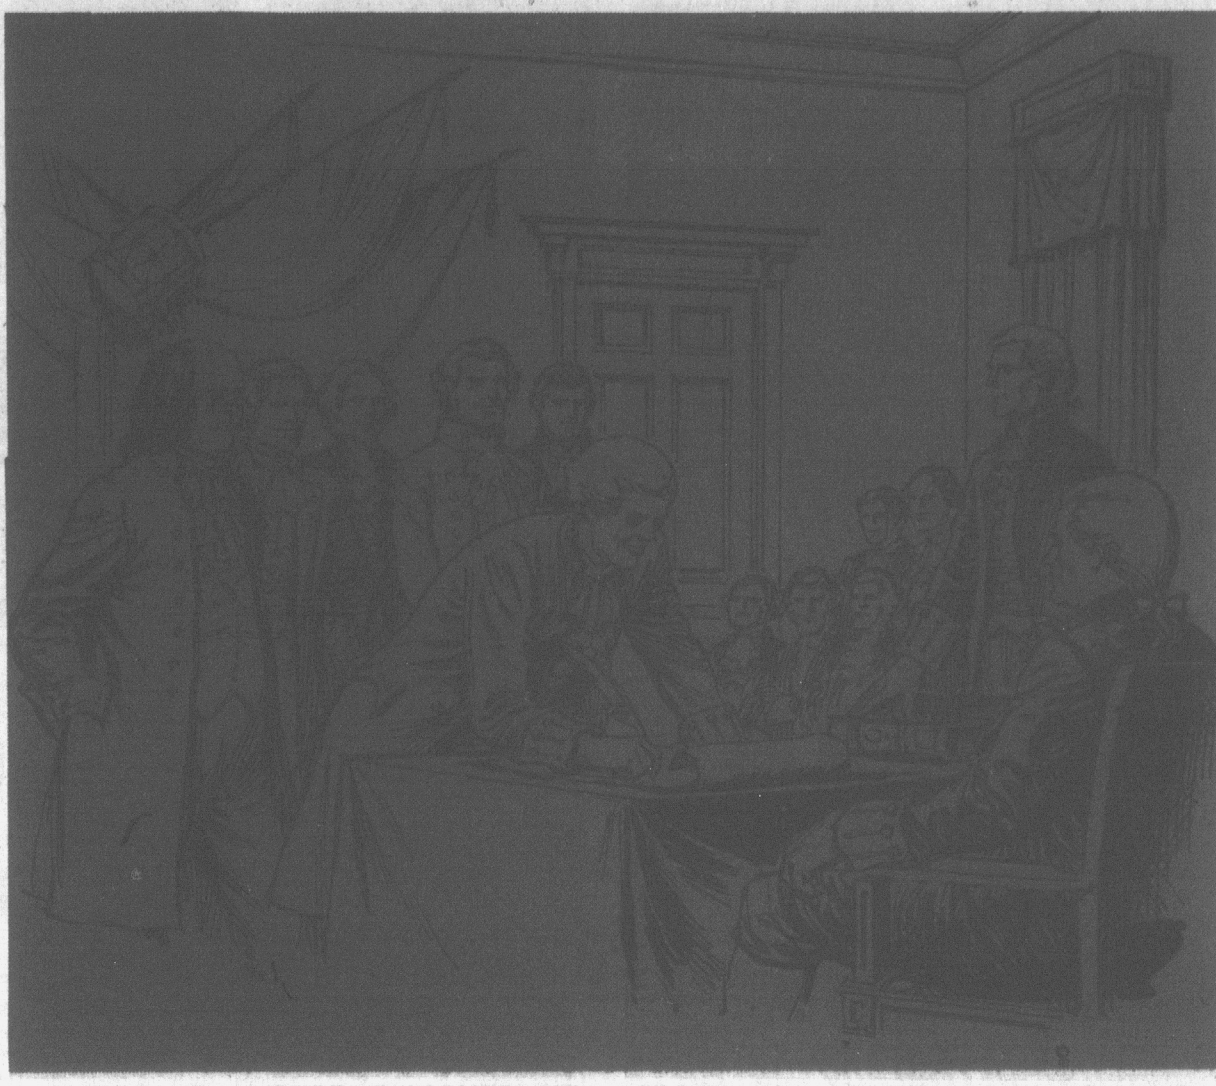

Although "old fashioned" was a term used without restraint in places like Pittsburgh and Salt Lake City to describe plans big and small, there was still a healthy crop of the unusual, such as:

—The 2nd annual "502 Derby" in Madera, Calif., a teamrope rodeo limited to those cited for drunken driving in the past year. The number 502 is an old highway patrol code for drunken driving.

—The 10,000 meter Peachtree Road Race through downtown Atlanta, featuring Olympic stars Lasse Viren of Finland and Frank Shorter of the United States.

—And what could be the nation's shortest Independence Day parade, a three-block march down the main street in Johnson, Wash.

Tricentennial Project: A Time Capsule About 1976

By DONALD SANDERS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, getting a head start on the nation's Tricentennial, is sealing a time capsule so 21st century Americans will know how the Bicentennial was celebrated.

The National Bicentennial-Tricentennial Time

Capsule is being sealed today in an Independence Day ceremony at the National Archives, the nation's repository of official records.

The agency planned a reading of the Declaration of Independence, re-enactments of 18th century military camp life and drills and a fife and drum corps rendition of music of the Revolutionary War era as part of the two-hour ceremony.

The capsule, embodying the latest in sophisticated technology to insure its preservation, is to be opened in 2075, a year in advance of whatever Tricentennial celebration is planned.

Each of the states has a similar capsule to let the Tricentennial's planners know about the 1976 celebration.

Among the items in the National Archives capsule:

—The 7th Fleet flag that greeted the American Bicentennial in 1976 on Guam, where the country's day begins. The flag later was flown in New York City during the tall ships spectacle.

—The first page of a visitors' register kept at the National Archives a year ago during a 76-hour vigil over the nation's basic documents.

The page was signed by former President Gerald Ford, former House Speaker Carl Albert, Chief Justice Warren Burger, former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

—The pens these signers used, along with 788 microfilm pages of other signatures.

—Fourth of July copies of The Washington Post and Washington Star.

—"The Written Word Endures," an Archives publication about basic U.S. documents, including the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

—Photographs of the July

2-4, 1976, festivities at the Archives.

—Letters from 33 governors detailing the location of the state capsules and their contents.

The capsules, gifts from the Reynolds Metals Co., are made of recyclable aluminum and hold about two cubic feet of material. Reynolds says the aluminum is almost indestructible, and the capsules have been designed for strength and stability.

The capsules have been pumped out to near vacuum, and argon gas has been forced in. The process was repeated three times in an effort to preserve the contents later placed inside.

In a further effort to make sure the containers and their contents last 98 years, each capsule also contains a small, perforated plastic packet containing 25 grams of a substance called hexamethylenetetramine (HMT).

Dog Attacked, Killed Infant

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — A Great Dane attacked and killed a sleeping 3-month-old baby over the weekend, Monroe County deputies said.

The body of Jeremy Tomkinson, his skull crushed, was found Saturday on the floor of a bedroom at his grandparents' home in Frenchtown Township, north of here, police said.

Saudis Raise Oil Prices

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates have announced they are raising their oil prices 5 per cent to end the split in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Saudi-UAE increase was reported unofficially last week when nine of the other 11 OPEC members announced they were abandoning plans for a price increase on July 1 as their contribution to unity. Iraq and Libya did not participate in the decision to give up the increase, but they are expected to go along with the majority.

Analysts in New York said then that the Saudi-UAE increase should raise prices in the United States by less than half a cent per gallon of gasoline or heating oil. The OPEC base price to which Saudi Arabia and the UAE will now conform is $12.70 per barrel of light crude. The United States imports about 8 per cent of the oil it consumes from Saudi Arabia and the UAE and about 32 per cent from other foreign sources.

The other members of OPEC are Algeria, Ecuador, Gabon, Indonesia, Iran, Kuwait, Nigeria, Qatar and Venezuela.

The oil cartel split last December. Eleven of the members agreed on a 10 per cent increase on Jan. 1 and an additional 5 per cent on July 1. But Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer, and the UAE defied the majority and raised their prices only 5 per cent. Saudi Arabia also increased production to put pressure on those with higher prices.

Medal Of Freedom

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he is awarding the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, to the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Dr. Jonas E. Salk.

The citation said King, the civil rights leader who was murdered in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968, "was the conscience of his generation."

"A southerner, a black man, he gazed upon the great wall of segregation and saw that the power of love could bring it down," the citation said.

The award to Salk, who developed the polio vaccine that bears his name, said:

"Because of Dr. Jonas E. Salk, our country is free from the cruel epidemics of poliomyelitis that once struck almost yearly. Because of his tireless work, untold hundreds of thousands who might have been crippled are sound in body today."

The Medal of Freedom is presented to persons who have made special contributions to U.S. security or national interests, to world peace or to cultural endeavors.

Claim Economic Pattern Obstacle To Carter Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter probably will not be able to reduce unemployment to 5 per cent by 1981 in view of current U.S. economic growth patterns, says a just-released study.

The study, written by economist George L. Perry, was among a series of economic papers published Sunday by the Brookings Institution, a Democratic-oriented think tank. Perry said achievement of the President's unemployment goal depends on a major expansion of the economy, which has not yet materialized.

He said lowering the unemployment rate from its current rate of 6.9 per cent to 5 per cent by 1981 would require overall average economic growth of 5.7 per cent a year for five years, and above 6 per cent for part of this time.

"There is no precedent in postwar U.S. economic performance for the sustained high rates of expansion projected here," wrote Perry, a senior fellow at Brookings. Carter is projecting economic growth of 5.1 per cent this year and 5.3 per cent in 1978, which apparently would be an insufficient pace to reduce unemployment to 5 percent in five years, if Perry's argument is correct.

Perry conceded at a news briefing that he could not rule out the possibility of Carter's reaching his unemployment goals. But he said the economic policy decisions that this would require "have yet to be made."

"I can't say on the basis of the policy decisions now made that it is a reasonable goal," he added.

Perry said vigorous economic growth also would require substantial new investment and expansion of the nation's industry, which so far have been lagging since the recent recession.

Wisconsin's State Employees Union Is Launching Walkout

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — About 1,600 National Guardsmen filled posts left vacant at state prisons and other institutions when members of the Wisconsin State Employees Union went on strike.

The walkout by members of the AFL-CIO affiliated union came during the pre-dawn hours Sunday just before contract talks broke off.

Gov. Patrick Lucey implemented a contingency plan that was prepared after union officials began talking in May about a possible strike. He ordered the guardsmen to duty under a state of emergency.

The transition to guardsmen in the watch towers at penitentiaries went smoothly, state officials reported.

Thomas King, executive director of the state employees union, said he expected about a third of his union's approximately 23,000 members would participate in the walkout initially.

A greater number would become involved Tuesday as state government resumed post-holiday office hours, he said.

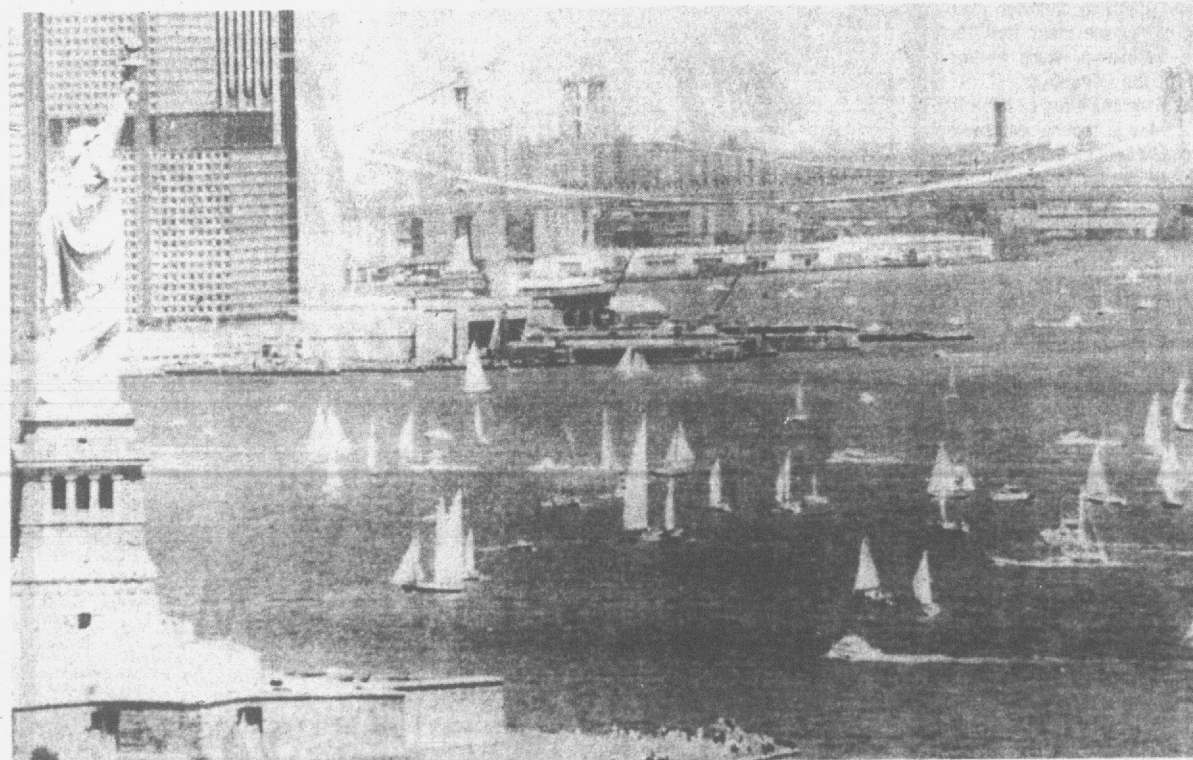

The union represents patrolmen, guards, maintenance workers, clerks and other personnel totaling about half the state's employees. However, state patrolmen did not join the walkout Sunday.

The strike began as the un-

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MORE INFORMATION

Hotline has received more information about the United Teenager Pageant since the item about it was published Friday.

From Rosemary Pittman in the N. C. Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, we learned that the Attorney General and the N. C. Governor's office have received numerous inquiries, but no complaints about the pageant and the way it is run. Ms. Pittman said the Attorney General cannot, of course, endorse any business or activity within the state, but that this business appears to be on the up and up.

She said that the Miss United Teenager Corporation was started by Charles Billings of Fayetteville last year and that 40 pageants were held throughout the nation that year. Since that time, he has hired a Ms. Monday to manage the operation and headquarters have been moved to Atlanta, where she lives. This year, pageants in each of the 50 states have been planned. There is also a Miss United Teenager Foundation, a charitable operation, she said.

Megavitamin Therapy Can Be Dangerous

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My daughter is being treated with megavitamin therapy by someone who is not a doctor. I don't know what it means. I do know that all day long she pours vitamins into herself without having a decent meal. What do you think of all this? — Mrs. N.B., Pa.

Dear Mrs. B: I think, as most doctors do, that the megavitamin program is just another fad that attracts many devoted followers.

With this, as with other fads, it is almost impossible to argue with the enthusiastic followers.

I don't know what condition your daughter is being treated for, but if indeed she is being treated by someone who is not a doctor, this should be pursued through your local board of health or through the medical society in your community.

Perhaps the most definitive information that has come to my attention was published by Dr. Victor Herbert, of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. He says, "Megavitamin therapy is largely nutritional nonsense. Now, I know that some people won't agree, so I'd like to state why I believe megavitamin therapy — with a few rare exceptions — is not only nonsense, but potentially dangerous quackery."

Dr. Herbert feels that the enormous doses of vitamins used in this fad can produce a variety of symptoms. Overdoses with ascorbic acid (vitamin C) no longer act as a vitamin, but rather act as a chemical. In such doses it can produce ulcers of the stomach, liver damage and a wide variety of symptoms. Similarly, massive doses of vitamin D can be responsible for changes in the kidney, calcification of the joints, weakness and weight loss. Similarly, massive doses of vitamin E can cause headache, nausea, fatigue and blurred vision.

Identify Plane Wreck Victim

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP) — A man killed Sunday in the crash of a single-engine private plane near here has been identified as Ray H. Rayborn, 40, of Lake Wells, Fla., officials said.

The plane went down in a wooded area of Swain County shortly after takeoff from an airfield, injuring three other passengers.

They were identified as the victim's daughter, Sheila Ray Rayborn, 15; his father, Stanley Rayborn, 63, of Lakeland, Fla.; and the plane's pilot, Robert Lee Newberry, 24, of Winter Haven, Fla.

All are reported in satisfactory condition at Swain County Hospital.

Turkish Premier Resigns Post

By ISMAIL KOVACI, Associated Press Writer

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey faces more political instability following the resignation of Premier Bulent Ecevit after his one-party, minority government lost its first vote of confidence in the National Assembly.

Ecevit's center-left Republican People's party is the largest in the National Assembly with 214 of the 450 seats. But two right-wing parties lined up solidly with former Premier Suleyman Demirel and his conservative Justice party Sunday and defeated the 10-day-old government 229-217.

Ecevit, who became a national hero when he ordered the successful invasion of Cyprus in 1974, submitted his resignation to President Fahri Koruturk.

He continues in office as caretaker premier until a new government is formed and warned that "any forthcoming effort aimed at forging a government must also include the views and aspirations of the Republican People's party."

Demirel said Ecevit's attempt at minority government was "illegal and unconstitutional." The three conservative parties announced several days ago they were ready to form a coalition government similar to the four-party conservative regime Demirel headed from 1975 until the general election June 5.

The three parties' 229 seats would give the coalition a majority of eight. But differences among the parties are expected to plague their union as they did Demirel's previous coalition. The outlook is for continuing inability to deal decisively with such major problems as Cyprus; relations with the United States, Greece and the European Economic Community; 25 per cent inflation, unemployment and campus and street violence.

Demirel's party has 189 seats. The other two members of his majority Sunday were the Moslem fundamentalist National Salvation party with 24 seats and the ultra-rightist National Action party with 16 seats.

Egyptian Held Hostage By Moslem Extremists

CAIRO (AP) — Moslem extremists threatened to kill a former religious affairs minister they kidnaped unless the government met their demands for $500,000 ransom and the release of 60 jailed comrades.

Today's noon — 6 a.m. EDT — deadline set by the kidnapers passed without word on the fate of Sheikh Mohamed Zahabi. An Interior Ministry said he was confident Zahabi would not be killed.

"We are confident he will not be killed. We have reason to believe this," spokesman said after the deadline passed.

The spokesman would not say if the government was negotiating with the kidnapers, but said "there is margin for talk."

An outlawed group calling itself the Atonement and Immigration Society claimed responsibility for Sunday's abduction. The group seeks to make Egypt a religious state.

President Anwar Sadat's government appealed Sunday night for the kidnapers to release the 64-year-old Zahabi to "create the proper atmosphere for considering" their demands.

A man who claimed to be a spokesman for the group called news agencies in Cairo and rejected the government's appeal. He reiterated Zahabi would be killed unless the government yielded.

Zahabi was kidnaped by a nine-member gang at 2 a.m. Sunday from his home in suburban Cairo and whisked away in a car at high speed. At least four suspects reportedly were arrested after the kidnaping — three when they attempted to deliver ransom demands at the offices of two Western news agencies and a Cairo newspaper.

The other person in police custody had been in a car that stalled as it was driving away from the scene of the kidnaping and was surrounded by Zahabi's neighbors, police sources said.

Reports said one kidnaper was disguised as a police major general and the others wore civilian clothes and were armed with pistols and submachine guns.

One of the arrested men warned that other prominent persons would be abducted unless the group's demands were met.

One anonymous caller said Zahabi was singled out because of his concerted campaign against the outlawed group while he was minister of religious endowment from April 1975 to November 1976.

Zahabi, whose title of sheik is the Islamic equivalent of professor, had labeled the society's members as "heretics." He said the group incited young Egyptians to leave home, form communes and plot to overthrow the government.

The society's name has been interpreted to mean "repentance and flight from sin." Appealing to religious, antiestablishment youth, the society has preached against banks that charge interest in violation of the Koran, night clubs that cater to rich Arabs from stricter Moslem countries and against liquor stores.

The society is led by Shoukry Ahmed Moustafa, a young engineer who has been sought by police for two years.

The size of the group is not known but it reputedly has cells throughout Egypt. Some members live in caves outside of Cairo, police sources said.

N.C. Highways Rough On Tires

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — For longer tire life, don't drive in North Carolina.

That's the verdict from Uniroyal Tire Co., which conducted a national study of tread life expectancy.

Humidity, high temperatures and granite-based roads all contributed to the average life of 37,000 miles for a set of tires compared to a 50,000-mile expectancy in states such as Michigan.

"Better tire wear occurs in those areas where limestone is used extensively in road building," Uniroyal researchers concluded. "Limestone is sturdy and durable, yet soft and polishes easily. However, granite, as a road-building ingredient, is abrasive, and hard to polish, tending to shorten tire life."

Uniroyal tests involved steel-belted radial tires in 25 cities. The average life for all brands of original equipment tires in 1976 was 38,000 miles.

An earlier tests in 1970 revealed more glaring regional differences.

The earlier tests conducted with belted bias tires showed tread expectancy for middle and western North Carolina at 21,000 miles. Illinois and southern Texas were measured at 30,000 miles for comparison. In the same study, tread wear in Charlotte was 19,900 miles for the life of a tire, compared to 39,100 in New York City.

H.C. Clegg Jr. of the North Carolina Highway Department said the state developed a road surface program in the 1940s, which has been retained for budget reasons among others.

"The texture of the completed surface is rougher. Over the years we've shown that it's an economical way to provide an all-weather surface," he said.

The roads' surface treatment consists of a layer of asphalt, topped with a layer of crushed, coarse granite.

The problem of how to get more miles out of a set of tires has even drawn the attention of the National Academy of Science, which has allotted funds for a region-by-region study of tire wear in the United States.

Forced To Hide

NICE, France (AP) — Rebel Roman Catholic Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, who ordained priests after Pope Paul VI barred him from performing his priestly functions, says his traditionalist followers are being hunted.

"We are a little like the church of the Catacombs," the archbishop said in a 30-minute homily delivered Sunday during a Mass celebrated by one of the 14 priests he ordained six days ago.

The Catacombs were the caves under Rome in which early Christians congregated to avoid Roman prosecution.

"We are hunted everywhere. So we are forced to do as the priests during the (French) Revolution, who had to hide to say the Mass," he said.

'Ripped Off' SBA Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — White businessmen have reaped millions of dollars in noncompetitive federal contracts that were intended to help struggling minority businesses become self sufficient, the Washington Post says.

In its Monday editions, the Post said the white entrepreneurs set up captive firms and installed blacks in phony executive positions to get the contracts.

The Post said it has documents that show some officials of the Nixon administration encouraged the links between white and minority firms, and allowed them to continue even after it became clear that the white businesses were getting more of the advantage.

The program allows $300 million a year in federal contracts for construction, services and goods to be taken out of the competitive bidding process. The contracts are then awarded to firms selected at the discretion of the Small Business Administration.

The SBA acts as a middleman in arranging for federal agencies to reserve part of their contracting work for small businesses.

Broke FDR Mark As Handshaker

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mayor Joseph Lazarow shook more than 11,000 hands Sunday to eclipse a 76-year-old record held by President Theodore Roosevelt.

"I feel good and my hand feels pretty good," Lazarow told a cheering crowd in front of Steel Pier after shaking hands with the editor of the Guinness Book of World Records to break the old record with 8,514 shakes.

Water Crisis Spurs Project

KERNERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The water pollution crisis in this Forsyth County town has spurred development of a new water line that was recommended three days before the community's water supply was contaminated by chemicals.

"I think if the new line is built, the disaster just might be, as they say, a godsend...but you know the line has been planned all along, and this just moves the schedule ahead a few years," said Mayor Roger P. Swisher.

Vandals* apparently loosed 30,000 gallons of chemical waste from a chemical factory, which drained into the community's main water reservoir in June. Before that, the 50-year-old water treatment plant could process 1.2 million gallons of water a day.

A new water line hookup to Winston-Salem would allow 8 million gallons of water to flow daily, and would boost chances of attracting industry, officials say. The town is using a backup system and is buying water from Winston-Salem until a permanent supply is connected.

"It would open up land that is already identified as an industrial-opportunity area in the city-county land-use plan," said Lindsay Cox, executive director of the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments.

"Had it not happened (the chemical spill), Kernersville itself would have probably gone right on without any significant change in industrial growth. The town could have served new industry, not a brewery, but it probably would have been able to take care of new industry," said James E. Yarborough Jr., a planner with the City-County Planning Department.

An end to the water problems is not yet in sight, as the town still lacks funds to complete the water line. Federal emergency funds were denied last week, and grant applications are pending with other state and federal agencies.

Water rates likely will rise when the new line in operational, but residents feel that will be a small price to pay for clean water.

Miss Susan Olivia Braxton and James Ronald Copeland were married in a 2 p. m. double ring ceremony at Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church here Saturday.

Mrs. Copeland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith Braxton of Greenville. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Earl Copeland of Bethel.

The Rev. Bronson Matney Jr. officiated and the bride's father gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white chantilly lace over peau de soie, designed with a sabrina neckline edged in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls and sequins. The long fitted sheer lace sleeves came to Calla points at the wrists. From the seminatural waistline, the skirt and attached cathedral train fell in cascading ruffles of scalloped chantilly lace. The headpiece was covered with chantilly lace with seeded pearls and sequins with a three-tier illusion veil. She carried a Bible covered with chantilly lace and topped with a lavender orchid.

Mrs. Betty Lou Carson of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a long formal polyester dress of pink. It had a sweetheart neckline with shirred empire bodice. The "lettuce-edged" jacket was sheer, with pink and blue flocking. She wore a white picture hat with pink lace trim and carried a bouquet of pink, blue and white daisies and pom poms with pink streamers.

The bridesmaids, Peggy Joyce Braxton and Debra Braxton Beachum, both cousins of the bride, were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Henderson Earl Rose Jr. of Old Sparta served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Timothy Dwight and Bruce Anthony Copeland, brothers of the bridegroom, both of Bethel.

Eloise Jackson was organist and Joan Knox was soloist.

The mother of the bride wore a green polyester dress, formal in length. She was remembered with a corsage of white carnations, as was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a floor-length blue quiana gown. Grandmothers of the couple were also remembered with corsages.

The church was decorated with white flowers on either side of the altar and two seven-branch candelabra and palms were also used.

Presiding at the register at both the wedding and the reception which followed was Mrs. Lena Rose. Mrs. Theresa Jolly Sawyer directed the wedding.

Don't Lend Sofa To Two-Timer

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a friend who is married with two small babies. This man brings his girlfriends over to our house. We are good friends with both him and his wife.

I feel that by allowing this man to bring his girlfriend here, we are condoning his actions.

Should we just tell him bluntly that he can do as he pleases, but not in our house? My husband says his wife knows what's going on, and as long as she doesn't care, why should we?

Should I find out if his wife really knows? And if she knows and doesn't care, should it matter?

I still don't like the idea of a married man breaking his marriage vows on our sofa. What do you think?

A FRIEND TO BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: If he's breaking his marriage vows on your sofa, whether his wife knows or not is beside the point. Since you disapprove of his conduct, don't make it any easier for him by providing him with a place to rendezvous.

DEAR ABBY: I am an independent grocer with a question for you. Why do some customers (including relatives) ask for groceries on credit, but when they have the cash they will drive an extra mile to shop at a supermarket and give their money to strangers?

The people they give cash to wouldn't give them groceries on credit if their whole family was dying of malnutrition.

FED UP WITH PEOPLE

DEAR FED UP: There are two kinds of people in this world: The givers and the takers. The credit customers (including your relatives) who spend their cash elsewhere are "takers." You may complain, but the next time someone is broke and needs groceries on credit, you won't turn him down, because you are a "giver." The takers may eat better, but the givers sleep better.

DEAR ABBY: Before the wedding "X" promised to give up cigarettes.

For the first three years after our marriage, he was still smoking, and when I would gently remind him of his promise, he would tell me that he was "trying" and I should be a little more patient.

We have been married for eight years now, and this turkey is still puffing away, only he tries to hide it from me.

His deceit irritates me more than the smoking itself. How much longer should I be patient? And do you think he ever sincerely tried to quit?

DISGUSTED IN CALIF.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Give him until the 4th of July, and if he's still smoking—fireworks! I have no way of knowing if he sincerely tried. Perhaps he did. I'm told it's harder to quit smoking than to quit drinking.

DEAR ABBY: This is not a question, but a piece of information that could save many lives.

NEVER go to sleep with the TV turned on. (And caution children who have TV's in their rooms to be sure the set is turned off before they go to sleep.)

The other evening my son was watching TV in his bedroom when the smoke began to pour from the set. He quickly turned it off and came to our room. By the time we got back to his room with the fire extinguisher, flames were shooting out of the bottom of the set and noxious fumes from burning insulation and plastic began to fill the room.

We put out the fire with the fire extinguisher, but it took a long time (even with the windows open) to clear the air of the fumes.

July 4 Should Be A Happy Day

July 4th has been a fun day for most of us. Eastern North Carolina communities planned activities in commemoration of the nation's birthday — and some of the activities are still going on tonight.

It's an enjoyable day in America, and well it should be.

We spend a lot of time in this country pointing out to ourselves what is wrong with our country. Why not spend one happy day recognizing all the things that are right with the United States?

No people in the world today are freer than we are. Some detractors try to characterize this as a repressive society, but even as they do they exercise the right to free speech constitutionally guaranteed.

Our free enterprise system provides more and better paying jobs than any other. For those who are unable to work our government has provided extensive assistance. It's not a perfect system, but then neither is anybody else's — and we're continuing to improve and perfect it.

July 4th is a happy day in America. Most of us truly love our country, and we don't see very many of the disgruntled ones leaving.

Their Vote Didn't Make Action Right

It isn't too surprising that members of the U. S. House of Representatives didn't vote to give back any of a $12,900 pay raise they got in February.

That doesn't make this whopping increase right, however.

Congressional salaries went from $44,600 to $57,500. It's too much of an increase in a nation wracked by inflation.

This is something the public should not take lightly.

THIS AFTERNOON

Many Items Are Put Off

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Rephrasing that old cliché — Never do today what you can put off till tomorrow — members of the North Carolina General Assembly have put off making a lot of decisions this session.

The handy catch-all of incomplete business is the "study commission" which is set up to do some more homework between now and the time another session of the Legislature convenes.

Whether because a proposal is too controversial, too complex for thorough consideration, or in danger of being killed, the study commission route has become a popular escape. The technique is being used even more now that the General Assembly, for all intents, is an annual event rather than every two years.

And while the 1978 session has been proclaimed a budget-only term, enough study commission reports are due back to guarantee opening the door widely enough to permit a host of other proposals back in.

Incompletes

This approach to lawmaking prompts one newspaper editor to suggest that the assembly has adopted the modern collegiate practice of allowing "incompletes."

Students sometimes those especially suspected of playing around too much, may take an incomplete on a course and finish it later. Thus, a failing grade is avoided, and a full repeat is prevented.

Legislators, with full social lives, may have fallen into a similar routine, and when they return May 31, 1978, will face "warmed-over propositions" the writer suggests.

Some Items

Here are some of the more important studies:

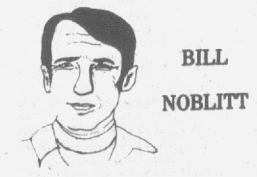

Mixed Drinks—a committee will keep that safe from failure and come back with the proposal which has already passed the Senate.

Open Meetings—stiff opposition from local governing boards (city, county, schools) put in jeopardy a proposal to impose criminal penalties, and remove excuses for closed-door sessions. A study group is established.

Medical Care Costs—spiraling Medicaid outlays proved too much to fathom as they threaten other state spending, a study will probe how to contain those costs and control rates.

Community Colleges—another study (three were done last year) will look into state-local relations, and whether a separate state board should run the system rather than the State Board of Education.

BILL NOBLITT

Lieutenant Governor—should he remain fulltime at $40,000-plus a year; or revert to part time work. If that decision is made, then what should he do?

Insurance—having adopted controversial change in rate-making, taking much power away from the commissioner, the assembly will now study problems caused by that, and try to come up with some other approach.

Horse Races—shall North Carolina allow tracks with betting on a local option basis?

Building Codes—another study to find a way to implement building codes statewide and provide inspection even in remote sections where unrestricted building now takes place.

Sea World—shall the state establish such a research and entertainment facility?

Endangered Species—revised law to protect them once identified; and another study of game laws.

Finance—studies are set on credit law impacting on consumers; circuit breaker property tax relief for elderly and poor; means of catching those who cheat on local property taxes on motor vehicles; and a review of inventory taxes. A measure to end taxes (local) on manufacturing inventory failed this session.

Criminal Justice—the Criminal Code Commission will continue to function in rewriting criminal law; anticipated activity will also seek to relate merit selection of judges (rather than election) and some method of presumptive sentencing to bring uniformity. It is unclear just which study group or groups will work in this area. Framework is there from the former Commission on Penal Reform.

A House Is Not A Home

WASHINGTON — Something weird is going on with real estate prices in this country. I didn't realize how wild the prices of homes had become until a month ago.

Tolkin, who lived in a house that he bought for $20,000 ten years ago, rushed in to see me one night and said, "I've been offered $90,000 for my house."

"That's great," I said. "What are you going to do?"

"Sell it, of course," he said breathlessly. "The poor dope who is buying it may change his mind."

"Where are you going to live?" I asked him.

Other Editors Say: Dollar Has Shrunk

(Wilson Times)

Americans have lived so long with inflation that it is now regarded as a way of life, therefore hardly an eyebrow was raised when consumer prices rose again in May at an annual rate of 7.4 per cent.

An article and chart in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report illustrates vividly that inflation has been a remarkably constant part of the American scene, but an examination of the term effect of inflation discloses some surprises.

Using 1967 figures as a base of 100, prices have jumped more than 80 per cent during the decade. In other words, a combination of goods and services that 10 years ago cost $100, would today take $186.60 from the consumer's pocketbook.

The current rate of inflation is bad, but this is not the first time the nation has been caught up in a price explosion, nor are we undergoing our worst inflationary period. In the five years between 1915 and 1920, prices nearly doubled.

Inflation has accompanied every sustained period of U.S. economic expansion during this century, and while most citizens this century, and while most citizens would like to see prices drop, they shudder at the thought of having to live through the kind of economic conditions that accompany a price decline—usually a depression or severe recession.

The U.S. News & World Report article, based on U.S. Department of Labor figures, notes that most periods when prices have risen rapidly in this century have been associated with wars. For instance, prices were relatively stable throughout most of the 1960s and strong inflationary pressures did not begin until the Vietnam military war gained momentum about 1966.

Inflationary problems grew in intensity in 1973 during the last Arab-Israeli conflict when Arab petroleum-exporting nations socked the world with an oil embargo followed by a 400 per cent increase in oil prices.

The Arab oil price hikes ignited the sharpest price surge since World War I and some economists believe a long time will lapse before it dies out.

Looking back past 1967, consumer prices have increased more than six times over in the last 80 years. Prices rose in 57 of those years, remained stable in 10, and declined in only 13—the last time in 1955. As a result, the dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1897 is worth exactly 14 cents today.

WASHINGTON TODAY

The Wrong Conclusions

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time, it seemed, President Carter was doing business Washington's way.

To the capital, the signs were familiar. By stages, as gracefully as possible, Carter had backed away from his opposition to the B1 bomber.

The conclusion was obvious — and wrong.

For Carter had not changed his mind about the B1. He doesn't think it is worth the money — up to $112 million for each airplane. He doesn't think it is needed, and he doesn't want it built.

He will almost certainly get his way. The White House is convinced that Congress will follow his guidance.

Democratic congressional leaders are with him, even though the House already voted to go ahead with production of the B1. The likely script now: a Senate vote to reverse that, with the House then agreeing.

For days, there had been hints and omens that Carter would swallow his past opposition and agree to at least limited production of the most expensive warplane ever built. All the speculation, in Congress and around the city, was that Carter would approve some sort of compromise.

He didn't disclose his judgment to anyone but a select handful of associates. The speculation became a matter of concern at the White House, and Press Secretary Jody Powell tried, with Carter's concurrence, to dampen it.

But there were too many of the standard indicators that the Washington establishment has learned to read. A senator emerged from the White House to say he expected a partial go-ahead for the B1. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said he favored production of the warplane, to strengthen the U.S. hand in arms negotiations with Moscow.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told the House he believed Carter would favor continuation of the B1, although he said he didn't know the specific terms.

Then the clinching piece of evidence on Tuesday in a House vote to go ahead with production. The vote was 243 to 178 in favor of building the bomber.

Surely a Democratic White House wouldn't let a Democratic House vote on that issue without some quiet guidance to the leadership on the President's thinking.

Wrong again.

Carter and O'Neill didn't discuss the matter in advance of the House vote and, even when he endorsed the B1, O'Neill said he would go along with the President's later decision, whatever it was.

The President apparently made his final decision on Tuesday, the day the House voted. "I wish it could have come before the vote," he said after his announcement. "I do think many of the people who did vote for the B1 did it with the thought that I would support it."

White House officials said the President had congressional advice against making his B1 announcement in the middle of the House debate on defense spending, because that would have raised questions that can't be answered immediately.

The administration has yet to come up with its specific recommendations on B1 research spending and on funds to pay for Carter's alternatives, including modernization of B52s and work on the cruise missile deployment. Those specifics are being worked out during the current congressional recess.

One official said the administration is better off with the B1 money in the appropriations bill because the President's plan involves use of a portion of those funds to pay for other strategic weapons now that the bomber is to be dropped. Had the

Hunt-Green Rift Not Unusual

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — In keeping with the old saw that there's nothing new under the sun, Secretary of State Thad Eure said there is plenty of precedent for controversy between the governor and lieutenant governor.

Eure, who at 77 has observed 25 legislative sessions, as a boy whose father was a legislator, as a member himself, as House principal clerk and as secretary of state since 1936, says he has seen worse disputes than those this session between Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

"I've seen the day when Gov. O. Max Gardner did not dare step across the state line. He didn't know what Dick Fountain would do,"

He noted that even at the height of their disputes Hunt and Green were outwardly cordial at social occasions and in meetings such as the Council of State. That was not true of Gardner and Fountain, he said.

"You see, Dick Fountain was running for governor while he was lieutenant governor and he was giving the Gardner administration hell all over the state," Eure recalled.

Reporters have observed that the 1977 legislature gave Hunt practically everything he asked for. Eure says that's not new either.

"Every governor during my day has gotten just about what he wanted during his first General Assembly. Even (Republican Gov. Jim) Holshouser got most of what he asked for during his first legislative session," he said.

Eure gave the 1977 legislature a good mark for its six months of deliberations.

"I think this present session has answered the vital requests and needs of the people as well as any," Eure said.

Although many changes have been made over the years, Eure says there have been no fundamental changes and "every General Assembly is practically alike" except for differences in leadership. He says in the old days there were "fewer leaders and they were stronger."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm and sunny weather is forecast today for most of the nation. Cooler weather is expected in the Northwest and in the northern border states. Showers are due in a narrow band from west Texas to the Canadian border and in northern Virginia. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Mostly sunny skies with moderate humidity and warm temperatures are in store for North Carolina today, promising fine weather for Fourth of July activities.

Winds will be light and variable today as high pressure will dominate the weather for most of the week.

Partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures occurred Sunday. No rain was reported. High readings ranged from 81 degrees at Asheville to 90 at Fayetteville. Most spots had highs in the middle and upper 80s.

Sunday night only high thin cirrus clouds covered the state. In general, temperatures fell into the 60s or around 70 degrees.

The recreational weather outlook for North Carolina shows chances of showers are slight for the next several days as high pressure remains over North Carolina. Fair and quite warm weather with rather light winds will prevail.

Under considerable sunshine, temperatures should climb well into the 80s or lower 90s today and Tuesday. Lows at night will be in the 60s or lower 70s.

Chess Win By Defector

EVIAN, Switzerland (AP) — Defector Victor Korchnoi has defeated Lev Polugaevsky in the opening game of the world chess candidates' semifinals while former world champion Boris Spassky and Lajos Portisch drew their first game after 21 moves.

Korchnoi and Polugaevsky adjourned their game Saturday, and Korchnoi wrapped it up with a strong knight move soon after play resumed Sunday. Polugaevsky studied the board for 30 minutes but failed to find a satisfactory reply, and Korchnoi's rooks broke through. His opponent resigned after 60 moves.

Korchnoi defected from the Soviet Union last year. He said he and Polugaevsky had been good friends for 20 years, but his former teammate was giving him the cold shoulder at the hotel where they are staying.

After several days of consultations with Moscow, Polugaevsky agreed to shake hands with Korchnoi at the start of their match. But after he lost Sunday, Polugaevsky refused to shake hands.

Spassky, who is also from the Soviet Union, and Portisch, a Hungarian, are playing in Geneva.

The semifinalists will play 16 matches each. The two winners will meet in another elimination to determine who challenges world champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union next year.

In Amsterdam, meanwhile, Lubosh Kavalek of Reston, Va., led the field in the 17th annual IBM chess tournament with 4 points and Samuel Reshevsky, the American veteran was 13th in the field of 16 with 1½ points.

United Efforts Are Credited By Mississippi Black Mayor

By SUSAN LINNÉE

Associated Press Writer

BOLTON, Miss. (AP) — Benjie Thompson, who is in his second term as mayor of this town of 800 persons, says black mayors in Mississippi have improved their cities and political influence by working together.

"We may not be very big or very many, but we've managed to bring in $14 or $15 million in federal funds to our towns in one year by putting our heads together," said Thompson, chairman of the Mississippi Conference of Black Mayors.

The group meets once a month to pool resources and ideas, he said.

Although only 1.5 per cent of Mississippi's blacks live in towns with black mayors, the membership of the mayors conference grew by six last week. There now are 15 black mayors in Mississippi, more than in any other state.

Thompson said blacks started electing their own mayors when they realized they can control their lives, at least on the local level. He also said that progress under black mayors has increased the will of blacks to vote for black politicians.

"There weren't even any blacks registered here in Bolton eight years ago," Thompson said of his black-majority town in Hinds County. "Now we've got an organized fire and police department, and we're building a new city hall."

"Our successes have a lot to do with organization and showing the people we can deliver," he said.

The first black to be elected mayor in a biracial town was Charles Evers, who became mayor of Fayette in 1969. In the recent city elections, nine black incumbents and six newcomers were elected mayors of towns ranging in population from 201 to 2,645 residents.

According to the National Conference of Black Mayors in Atlanta, the state with the second highest number of black mayors is Michigan, with 13.

Figures for other Southern states are Alabama 10, Florida 9, Georgia 4, Louisiana 9, and South Carolina 8.

Thompson said the increased number of blacks in local political office has made black citizens more at home with the governmental process.

"We've got ladies who had never set foot in city hall when Bolton had a white mayor who come down now to pay their bills and chat awhile," Thompson said. "Not many whites stop by, though, but I guess it's an evolutionary thing. It will take time."

Tolkin, if you have to pay $90,000 for another house that isn't as good?"

"I was afraid you'd ask me that," he said.

"Why don't you offer to buy your old house back for $90,000 and forget the whole thing?"

"Because the guy I sold it to wants $125,000 for it."

"That's a lot for that house," I said.

"It's still better than the ones we've looked at," Tolkin said. "It may not have much of a yard but the basement is completely paneled and it does have a wet bar."

"Then you're thinking of buying it back for $125,000?"

"I've offered him $120,000, and he said he'd think it over."

"That's a good deal," I agreed. "You lose $30,000 on it, but now instead of a $90,000 house, you'll have a $120,000 one, and that's nothing to spit at."

"I never thought of it that way," Tolkin said. "In a few years it will probably be worth $150,000 and then if I sell it I'll make a $100,000 profit."

"The big question is will the guy sell it?"

"Sure he will," Tolkin said. "as soon as he discovers the furnace doesn't work."

House voted to scrap B1 production, $1.5 billion would have been cut from the bill and the administration would have had to get some of it restored.

Still, as Carter acknowledged, some congressmen undoubtedly voted for the bomber, thinking that was the administration's position. Those votes may be more difficult to enlist the next time the administration needs support.

This time, both supporters and opponents of the B1 were surprised by Carter's rejection of the project, even though he once called it an exotic, wasteful weapon.

That statement dates from June 16, 1976. In the intervening year, Carter had seemed to back off from his opposition to the B1, and he said on Thursday that he tried not to let the campaign statement be a factor in his decision.

"I have made it, I think, with a completely open mind," he said.

And he handled it his own way, which may be the real lesson for Carter-watchers, in Congress and out. Judging the new Washington establishment by the ground rules of the old ones is a high risk business.

Atlantians, Britishers Join In Mass Exchange

By PEGGY WALSH
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The British are coming. The Georgians are going. It's all part of the Friendship Force, a grass roots effort to acquaint Americans and people from foreign lands.

More than 350 residents from the northeast Britain city of Newcastle upon Tyne, who carry the nickname "Geordies," are due to arrive in Atlanta today, meet their Georgia hosts and spend four days working with them and learning about everyday life in President Carter's home state.

A like number of Atlanta-area residents will arrive early Tuesday in Newcastle to get a taste of British life.

Both groups then will be free for five days to travel or to stay with a second host before returning home.

The Friendship Force was born when President Carter was governor of Georgia.

About 200 Atlantians lived for 10 days with families in Pernambuco, Brazil, while a comparable number of Brazilians toured Atlanta.

The force is financed by private donations and is not officially affiliated with any government.

Both the Georgians and the Geordies are planning entertainment for their guests. The North Umbrian sword dancers will perform for Atlanta hosts and the Callanwolde Singers, a group of young performers, will entertain the British.

Among events planned are a visit to Ebenezer Baptist Church and meet the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., who once coposted the church with his son, the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Atlantians will get a taste of British ceremony when they are honored by the Lord Mayor of Newcastle and his sword and mace bearers.

The Newcastle-Atlanta exchange is the first since Carter announced in March that he personally would support a nationwide Friendship Force with an eventual goal of groups from every state exchanging grass roots ambassadors.

Future destinations will remain a secret until ambassadors and hosts have accepted, according to a Friendship Force spokesman. Connecticut and Tennessee are the next states to participate, exchanging residents with unknown foreign countries in November, he said.

Expelled From Phone Directory

NEW YORK (AP) — The Republic of Montmartre has been expelled from Manhattan — at least the Manhattan telephone directory.

Theatrical promoter Barry Allan Richmond had done a little freelance promoting of himself, listing his home and office numbers under 16 entries, such as the "ambassadorial residence" and "chancery" of the Republic of Montmartre.

When the mythical midtown republic was discovered, the New York Telephone Co. was not amused. It took Richmond to court for deceit.

That didn't amuse U.S. District Court Judge Whitman Knapp.

Technically, he refused to intervene on Richmond's behalf because the case was not a federal matter. What he said was, "What a lot of nonsense."

He castigated the company for "wasting company assets" on the suit and "losing revenue besides" by giving up the listings.

Car's Shape Reduced Injuries

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — The shape of a sportscar driven into a crowd of 250 people at a Ku Klux Klan rally reduced the extent of injuries, says Sumter County Sheriff Randy Howard.

Thirty-two persons were injured when the car struck the speaker's platform at the rally on Saturday in President Carter's home town of Plains, 10 miles west of here.

Howard said the Jaguar XKE's low profile and rounded front "threw people up into the air and over the car, instead of running them over."

Buddy D. Cochran, a 30-year-old tractor mechanic, was arraigned Sunday on 19 counts of aggravated assault in connection with the incident — one count for each person hospitalized overnight. Justice of the Peace John Southwell ordered Cochran held on bonds totaling $190,000.

Southwell called it "the most uncalled for thing I have ever had brought into this office."

"It's just a miracle that 10 or 15 people didn't die," he said. Cochran, a white ex-Marine who served in Vietnam, stood slumped-shouldered and said only "Yes, sir" in response to Southwell at the arraignment.

Authorities said Cochran was legally drunk when his car plowed into the platform.

"He was not totally drunk or anything like that, just enough to be convicted of driving under the influence," Howard said.

Of the 18 persons who remained hospitalized Sunday, two were reported in guarded condition. A spokesman for the Americus-Sumter County Hospital said Dennis James Darling, 38, of Atlanta and Rusty Wiggins, 12, of Americus were in the intensive care unit, suffering from head injuries.

Howard said Cochran, who suffered minor injuries in the crash, apparently was aiming for Bill Wilkinson, the Imperial Wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan, which sponsored the rally.

"He said he was upset at Wilkinson and didn't like what he was saying," Howard told reporters. "He said he had a lot of black friends and he was going to get even with Wilkinson for what he was saying about the blacks."

Neither Wilkinson, who was on the speakers' platform, nor any other Klansmen were hurt. Klan spokesmen said the rally had been called to protest several Carter policies and to call for the firing of Andrew Young, the American ambassador to the United Nations.

At Camp David, Md., where Carter was spending the Fourth of July weekend, a spokesman said the President was aware of the incident but would not comment on it.

Anti-Nazis To 'Demonstrate'

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Calling it a "matter of Jewish survival," three anti-Nazi groups planned demonstrations today in the Chicago area despite cancellation of a march here by a national organization of Nazis.

"We know they will be coming some day soon, and we want to show them we'll be ready," said Rabbi Meir Kahane, founder of the militant Jewish Defense League. Kahane predicted that the courts would soon permit a Nazi march here. "But we won't — it's a matter of Jewish survival."

Kahane has promised Skokie Mayor Albert Smith that his organization will remain on private property, demonstrating peacefully, unless Nazis appear in Skokie. If Nazis appear, "there will be violence — I promise it," Kahane says.

Kahane contends that Skokie is a test case. "If we don't stop them here, Nazis will be marching in the streets of five other cities within a year."

An estimated 7,000 survivors of World War II Nazi death camps live in Skokie, a Chicago suburb of 69,000 persons.

In addition to the JDL demonstration, protest rallies have been planned by groups calling themselves "Run the Nazis Out Coalition" and "The Workers Defense Coalition."

Nazi leader Frank Collin said storm troopers have been assigned to guard his headquarters on a 24-hour basis. He said he ordered the guard after about 100 demonstrators picketed the two-story brick building Saturday, resulting in a brief scuffle between the demonstrators and Nazis. Five persons were treated for minor injuries.

Collin, at the opening of the National Socialist Congress in Chicago this weekend, canceled march plans because of a temporary injunction and three recently passed village ordinances barring the march.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled June 15 that the injunction must be speedily reviewed or vacated. The Illinois Appellate Court has scheduled a hearing on the case for Friday.

Preacher's Dream Is Causing Trouble

GRANDY, N.C. (AP) — Local residents say a preacher's plan to spread the Gospel through a $25 million religious complex here is bringing in a lot of mosquitoes and trouble.

The Rev. Ralph David Moulton announced last June that he would construct a center on a 90-acre cornfield to rival that of evangelist Oral Roberts in Oklahoma.

An angry group of farmers and businessmen sued Moulton last month, claiming that the preacher had stubbornly filled a ditch that drained water of hundreds of acres of farmland into nearby Dowdy's Bay.

The lack of drainage is contributing to an increase in mosquitoes and is creating puddles deep enough to be dangerous for young children.

"Everybody is mad at him," said Orville L. Woodhouse, 67, a long-time chairman of the state Wildlife Commission and local potato farmer.

Woodhouse said Moulton tried to persuade him to donate land for the new center, and when that was unsuccessful, the farmer said Moulton presented him with a deed to sign and a letter of thanks for the land donation. Woodhouse said he never offered the land to the preacher.

Moulton's money-conscious preaching has irritated some residents.

"I don't like it when a preacher gets in the pulpit and asks the congregation to go out individually and borrow money to make donations," said Oscar Sears, a truck driver who quit the new preacher's congregation several weeks ago, but not before his wife had given $200 to the building fund.

Moulton refuses to discuss where he will get money to raise the center for his followers, who have dwindled from near 60 to 20.

He termed the suit filed against him "a camouflage for opposition to the work of God. The attitude has been: 'We've got enough church; we've got enough teachers; we don't need you.'"

County Extension Chairman

A new resource has been added to aid the North Carolina Extension Service's Forestry education programs. An area agent forester is now working a five County area which includes Pitt County. Other counties in the program are Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford.

Jim Keyes, a forester and a native of the Rocky Mount area will work County Extension staffs in each county to develop forest improvement programs. Establishing county forestry associations and strengthening 4-H forestry efforts will be major goals.

In Pitt County 161,000 acres of land (41 percent of the total) are woods land and other farm lands. Much of it is cut-over, unproductive land. Even so it is estimated that pulpwood and lumber, harvested from privately owned tracts, grossed 2.6 million dollars in 1976.

The demands for products of the forest are steadily rising. Shortages of fossil fuels are making it practical to consider wood, again, as a fuel for homes and industry. This holds promise as a market for wood which here-to-fore was waste.

The North Carolina Forest Service will continue to be the source of excellent technical service, management are encouraged to call 758-1196 for more information.

A Message From Bob's TV & Appliance...

Now Celebrating 12 years of service to this area.

This country may be in danger. We could be losing something we can't afford to lose. Once, in this country when a man produced a product it was the best he could possibly make. He stood behind it—with pride. He lived a simple idea—do it right, or don't do it at all. Nobody told him that. No government agency dictated it. And it built a standard of living for the world to aim at... Now that idea is threatened by the slipshod, the second rate. To some it means quick riches—to some it means quick death of the standards we have built. Some are fighting this threat. Whirlpool Corporation believes in one simple idea: To continue to design, build and service home appliances the right way... with pride... so you can live with them comfortably for years—or they will not build them at all. If we can't keep this simple idea alive—then indeed we are the endangered species.

At Least Eleven Dead In N.C. 4th Weekend

By The Associated Press
Eleven persons have perished in traffic accidents during the Fourth of July weekend, the North Carolina Highway Patrol reported Sunday.

The deaths raise the state's traffic toll for the year to 668 compared with 706 for the comparable period last year.

A motorcyclist, James Curtis Beasley, 17, of Rt. 4, Benson, was killed at 11:25 p.m. Saturday when his vehicle ran off a rural road in Johnston County 4 1/2 miles east of Benson at high speed and overturned.

Bobby Gene Adams, 26, of Rt. 6, Lincolnton, died about 10:40 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on a curve and skidded into another vehicle. The accident occurred on a rural road in Lincoln County two miles west of Lincolnton.

A three-car collision about 6:55 p.m. Saturday in Jackson County claimed the life of Donna Dail Mertz, 22, of Rt. 66, Cullowhee. The woman's car crossed the center line on N.C. 107 one mile north of Cullowhee and sideswiped a second car before striking a third head-on.

Edward Carnell Welch, 28, of Madison was killed about 3:45 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car at high speed and it overturned. The accident occurred on a rural road in Rockingham County 5 1/2 miles south of Madison.

"Hezekiah Miles, 4, of West Brooklyn, N.Y., was fatally injured about 1:55 p.m. Saturday when he was struck by a car on Interstate 95 in Robeson County two miles north of McDonalds.

Four Washington, D.C. residents were killed early Saturday in an accident on U.S. 17 in Craven County about one-half mile north of Bridgeton.

Victoria Gallue, 42; Maria Elena Uribe, 10, and Claudia Numez were dead on arrival at Craven County Hospital. Felicia Sandigal, 40, was admitted in critical condition but died later.

They were traveling south en route to Morehead City about 3:30 a.m. when the car in which they were passengers was hit from behind, sending it off the road and into a tree, where it exploded in flames, witnesses said.

The driver of the other car, Leo Lewis, 20, of Rt. 2, Vanceboro, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident after he fled on foot and bicycle before being stopped about 1 1/2 miles from the accident site.

Clarence Locklear Jr., 23, of Rt. 1, Maxton, was killed Friday night in a wreck near his home. The patrol said a car in which he was a passenger left the road and struck a bridge abutment.

Michael Learande McGowan, 17, of Fayetteville, was killed in a two-car collision Friday night on a rural road near Fayetteville.

The State Motor Club has estimated that as many as 20 persons could be killed and 100 hurt during the July 4 holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and runs until midnight Monday. There were 19 deaths during the period last year and 22 the year before.

Guam Hoping To Fill Beaches

By GARY W. CLARK
Associated Press Writer
AGANA, Guam (AP) — Officials hope a big wave will flood Guam — with tourists.

WAVE, the acronym of Welcome All Visitors Enthusiastically, is being promoted by the Guam Visitors Bureau, which maintains "One big WAVE could save Guam."

Economy is floundering and tourism is seen as the cure.

"Hawaii is really our only competition, but we're shooting at different cultures" said Martin Pray, general manager of the Guam Visitors Bureau.

"Our tourists are mostly new-lywed Japanese; the high school graduate, blue collar type. They are not as sophisticated as those who travel to Hawaii."

Officials are concerned about the drop of tourists to the Pacific island during recent years. From a high of about 260,000 in 1974, Guam got only 223,000 tourists in 1976.

Hawaii, by comparison, had 3.2 million visitors last year.

"Tourism is down and Guam's economy is suffering severely," said Bert Unpingco, promotion and marketing manager for the Visitors Bureau.

He said the WAVE campaign has a twofold purpose. It is designed to stimulate a positive reaction by local residents toward tourists and also to motivate the locals to get involved in the tourism industry.

"Since statistics show that less than 2 per cent of our visitors return ... this type of public education program is vital to all of us who live here," said Unpingco.

The Visitors Bureau reported that tourism generates about $100 million a year for Guam and more than 3,000 jobs are directly supported by tourism. Close to 10,000 others are affected indirectly by those who come and go from the island.

"The base of our tourism is Japan," Pray said, adding that large distances prohibit visitors from the United States, and travel connections hamper visitors from Australia. The tourism director also said that potential visitors from areas such as South Korea, Taiwan or the Philippines "have trouble getting passports."

Pray admits Guam has little of the glitter or night life that attract people to Honolulu. But he noted that the modern hotels on Guam offer a variety of live entertainment and the beaches are expansive and the water warm.

Pray said the native Chamorro culture should be promoted the way the Polynesian culture is stressed in Hawaii.

"We have the sea, sun and sky within three hours of Japan," he said.

The causes for the drop in tourism are not positively known, but there are several theories.

"Crime hurts tourism," said Lt. Gov. Rudy Sablan. "It is a problem and word gets back to Japan."

Sablan said a tourist tends to be more trusting than a local resident and may leave valuables lying on the beach. And, hotel rooms are easy prey for experienced burglars, he said.

Pray acknowledged crime may be a problem, but he pointed to an increase in spendable income and the curiosity to see something farther from home than Guam.

The WAVE campaign is costing the Visitors Bureau $4,000 of its $625,000 budget. However, additional funds may become available for future promotions because the Guam legislature is considering another $250,000 for the Visitors Bureau.

"Perhaps we tend to ignore tourists when they visit Guam, but we can't help but notice when they don't visit," Pray said.

Arraigned In Sniping Case

FAYETTEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — An ex-Marine who was shot and captured in an apple orchard after two sniper killings has been arraigned on two counts of criminal homicide. Authorities are trying to figure out what motivated the slayings.

Gary Rock, 23, was charged on Sunday in connection with the shooting deaths of Wilbur Brookens and Fayetteville Fire Chief James Cutchall. The two were responding to a fire on Saturday that destroyed the secluded house where Rock lived alone. Two other firemen were injured.

Rock attempted to flee after the incident but was captured nine hours later.

Donald Brookens, Rock's closest neighbor, described him as "a pretty nice fellow."

"He seemed to be a normal young man," said Brookens, 49, a distant relative of Wilbur Brookens.

Police had used a helicopter, bloodhounds and about three dozen officers in the search for Rock. They finally felled him with a single shotgun blast after he threw down his high-powered 300 Savage rifle and started to run back into the woods.

Rock was not seriously hurt. He was arraigned in Chambersburg Hospital and transferred by ambulance to the state prison at Camp Hill, about 40 miles away.

Little is known about Rock's background, except that he was discharged by the Marines in June 1976, worked as a clerk at a nearby Army ammunition depot, and liked to jog and practice shooting with an assortment of rifles.

Unrelated, Much In Common

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Leland and Roger Johnson aren't related, but they have a lot in common. Too much, they now believe.

Both live in this northern California community, and both turned 18 last June 20. On Thursday they smashed into each other on a nearby rural highway.

A Wet-Bulb Thermometer Is Economizer

The use of a wet-bulb thermometer reduces the tendency to overventilate and waste fuel while bulk curing tobacco, according to Gaylon Ambrose, assistant agricultural extension agent.

A wet-bulb thermometer is a regular tobacco barn thermometer with a piece of string pushed over the bottom of the thermometer. The air moving through the bulb barn passes over the wet string and causes the water to evaporate.

The wet-bulb reading will be lower than that of a regular thermometer, said Ambrose, because the water in the wet string evaporates at the same rate as the water in the leaves being cured.

Therefore, he added, the temperature registered on the wet-bulb thermometer is the same as that of the curing leaf.

Ambrose suggested wet-bulb readings should be 90 degrees during the yellowing stage and 110 degrees during the stem-drying stage. He said temperatures should never go above 105 degrees until the leaf itself is dry.

He said tobacco leaves that have not dried will begin to scald at about 113 degrees.

To lower the wet-bulb temperature, open the fresh air damper, Ambrose said, and to raise the temperature, close the damper.

Junkpile Car On The Road Across U.S.

WATERTOWN, S.D. (AP) — Three Oregon farmers have passed the halfway point on their trip to the East Coast in a 1917 Model-T Ford that was picked up out of junk piles and put together piece by piece.

"We're going to get our feet wet in the Atlantic Ocean," said one of the drivers, Dennis Hopper of Woodburn, Ore.

Kirk Metteer of Madras, Ore., explains, "There's lots of daily maintenance. She leaks gas, water and oil. We add about a quart of oil a day but I'll bet we got the cleanest bearings anywhere."

Hopper, Metteer and David Campbell, also of Madras, all high school friends, started assembling their Model-T about two years ago although Campbell, a car buff, starting picking up parts earlier.

They began their trip from Madras on June 12 and have averaged 30 to 35 miles an hour. The four-cylinder Model-T engine has been getting between 15 and 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Car Left Road And Collided With Five Parked Vehicles

An Ayden man was charged at 3:25 a.m. Sunday with driving left of the center lane on Memorial Drive after the car he was driving collided with five parked vehicles causing damages totaled at an estimated $7,150.

David Allen Jones, 17, of Ayden told police officers he fell asleep at the wheel and his car left the right side of the road. Jones said the car rolled through the grass at the Camelot Inn, across the driveway, and hit an embankment.

At that point, the car was catapulted into the air and struck the top of a car parked at Curley's Exxon and finally landed on top of two other vehicles.

A total of five cars, all belonging to Atlantic Credit Corp., sustained damages estimated at $6,150. Damages to the Jones vehicle were estimated at $1,000.

Jones was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital with minor injuries.

Another accident occurred at 4:30 p.m. Sunday on E. 4th St. involving a car driven by James Lee McDermott, 22, of Ayden and a parked car owned by Veda Elaine Harbin of 1507 E. 4th St.

McDermott was charged with driving under the influence after his car, traveling East on 4th St., crossed the centerline and collided with the Harbin vehicle, knocking it into a neighbor's yard.

Damages were estimated at $2,000 to the McDermott car and $2,500 to the Harbin vehicle.

At 11:10 p.m. Sunday, Warren Stokes Hardee Jr., 19, of Greenville, Rt. 2, was charged with a traffic light violation after his car collided with a vehicle being operated by Anita Gae Driscoll, 22, of 205 N. Elm St.

The Hardee car, traveling east on 5th street, collided with the Driscoll car, traveling north on Elm St.

Damages to the Hardee car were estimated at $300 and $250 to the Driscoll vehicle.

Thomas Earl Clark, 23, of 1901-A of Norcotte Circle was charged at 4:25 p.m. with a safe movement violation when he backed his car from a parking space at Lakeview Terrace Apts. and struck another vehicle operated by James Dixon, 56, of 107-C Lakeview Terrace.

Damages were estimated at $800 to the Dixon car and $100 to the Clark vehicle.

ITEMIZE HOUSE TAX DEDUCTIONS

One of the great financial benefits of home ownership versus rental is that you are immediately eligible to deduct a good-sized amount of money from your income tax. As a homeowner, you will generally find it to your advantage to itemize deductions rather than taking the standard deduction.

This is especially true during the earlier years of home ownership. The mortgage interest and real property taxes on your personal residence, when added to other deductible items will usually be well in excess of any standard deduction you could claim.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 119 W. Third St., Greenville. Phone: 752-6163. We're here to help!

Car Assault Is Charged

DAVID EARL BULLOCK, 27, of 115 W. Jackson St. was charged at 8:30 p.m. Sunday with assault with a deadly weapon and reckless driving.

According to Greenville police officers, Bullock allegedly assaulted Carla M. Bullock of 400 Azalea St. with his car by driving in front of her, causing her vehicle to collide with a car operated by Nannette Wykowski of N. Greene St.

Bullock was placed under a total $2,000 bond.

In other police action, Merritt West Jr., 20, of 306 Old London Inn was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital at 1:30 a.m. Sunday with a cut throat.

Merritt told police officers he and some friends were approached in the old Wilkerson Funeral Home parking lot on Evans Street by six to eight men. West said the men started cursing and tried to pull him and his friends from their car.

At that point, one of the men allegedly leaned into the car and cut West across the throat. West described the man as a white male with long blonde hair, standing about six feet tall and weighing about 225 pounds, wearing a pull over shirt with red stripes around the arm.

The assault along with the rest of the men ran down Evans Street towards 10th Street, the report said.

Associated Press Writer
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Black Panther leader Huey Newton, who in the 1960s helped found the gun-toting radical group that now aspires to peaceful reform, has returned to fight for his legal freedom after 2½ years of self-imposed exile in Cuba.

Newton, 35, arrived at San Francisco International Airport Sunday night on a flight from Vancouver, Canada, to face murder and assault charges and to resume active leadership of the Black Panther party.

Newton quickly was taken into custody by Oakland police, but not before responding to a warm welcome from a boisterous crowd of about 500 persons.

"I'm glad to be back with you," Newton said while standing atop an airline counter with his wife, Gwen, and Black Panther chairperson Elaine Brown. "Stay with me and we'll become closer together."

He was locked in an Oakland jail cell less than two hours after his return. An attorney for Newton said an effort would be made today to free him on bail.

In his airport speech, Newton pledged to work for full employment and economic redistribution. "I have returned to continue my commitment to work for progressive change in our society," he said.

The Black Panther party has changed its tactics from when it was founded in anger in 1966. The Panther chant then was, "The revolution has come, pick up the gun." Today, members say they are more interested in getting out the vote, escorting senior citizens to the market and feeding children.

"An armed struggle is not the way at this time in history," Newton said last week in Canada, where he was detained by Canadian authorities before being allowed to return to the United States. "I go with the democratic will of the people, and the people are not ready for an armed revolution."

According to Alameda County Deputy Dist. Atty. Tom Orloff, Newton faces a charge of murder stemming from the Aug. 6, 1974, shooting of a 17-year-old girl. She died after he fled the United States.

Newton is charged with assault in the alleged pistol-whipping of his tailor in August 1974, Orloff said.

He said Newton also is charged with assault on a policeman and felony resisting arrest, stemming from an alleged altercation with police in an Oakland bar in July 1974. And he is charged with false imprisonment of two women in an Oakland bar in 1974, Orloff said.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A visiting New York man drowned Sunday afternoon while on an outing at Lake Wylie on the North Carolina-South Carolina border.

Officials identified the victim as Edward Keith White, 23, of Brooklyn. The accident happened around 3:30 p.m. after a life guard noticed White was having difficulty returning to shore after swimming out about 35 feet.

Rescue workers found White's body about an hour later in 14 feet of water.

Bosox Drop Back As Orioles Sweep

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

"Anything can happen here," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, repeating the most popular cliché about Fenway Park in Boston. This weekend, Weaver saw something very unusual.

The Orioles' 12-8 victory Sunday culminated a three-game sweep of the stumbling Red Sox, who have dropped nine straight games and have fallen from a five-game first-place lead to a one-game, second-place deficit in the American League East. The sweep wasn't unprecedented, but the Red Sox aren't often so helpless at home.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer must be wondering when a victory will happen for his team again.

"We need a solid pitching game to break out of this," noted Zimmer, who signed a new contract over the weekend, making him the Red Sox' manager through 1978.

Baltimore collected 16 hits and won the game behind the power hitting of Lee May, Eddie Murray and Ken Singleton. May drove in four runs with his 12th homer of the year and two singles. Murray had three RBI with his 10th homer and two singles, and Singleton had three singles, an RBI and scored a run.

Elsewhere in the American League, the White Sox swept a doubleheader from Minnesota 6-0 and 10-8, the New York Yankees beat Detroit 2-0 before losing 10-6 to the Tigers in the nightcap, Milwaukee slugged Seattle 10-3, Texas beat Toronto 6-3 in 10 innings in the first game, then dropped the doubleheader's second game to the Blue Jays 5-3, California defeated Oakland 6-4 and Cleveland topped Kansas City 6-3.

White Sox 6-10, Twins 0-8
Chicago took its biggest firstplace lead of the season, three games in the AL West, by completing a four-game sweep of Minnesota.

Wilbur Wood hurled a threehitter in the opener and cruised home behind five Chicago five runs in the second inning. Jorge Orta and Richie Zisk had run-scoring singles in the inning.

A pair of four-run innings paced Chicago in the second game. Jim Spencer's 12th home run, a two-run shot, capped the four-run first and Jim Essian and Alan Bannister hit back-to-back shots in the fourth.

AL Roundup

Yankees 2-6, Tigers 0-10

Ron Guidry's six-hitter and Roy White's eighth-inning double brought New York its opening-game victory. White collected three more hits in the nightcap.

A four-run rally in the ninth inning brought the Tigers victory in the second game. The Yankees had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to a 6-6 tie.

Brewers 10, Mariners 3

Left-hander Jerry Augustine, 9-9, tossed a four-hitter for his 10th complete game of the season and Don Money smacked a pinch-hit grand slam homer in the ninth inning to pace the Brewers.

Rangers 6-3, Blue Jays 3-5

Texas tied the opener on John Ellis' RBI double in the ninth inning, then won it in the 10th on Juan Beniquez' runcoring single. Bump Wills' fifth homer of the season added the last two Texas runs.

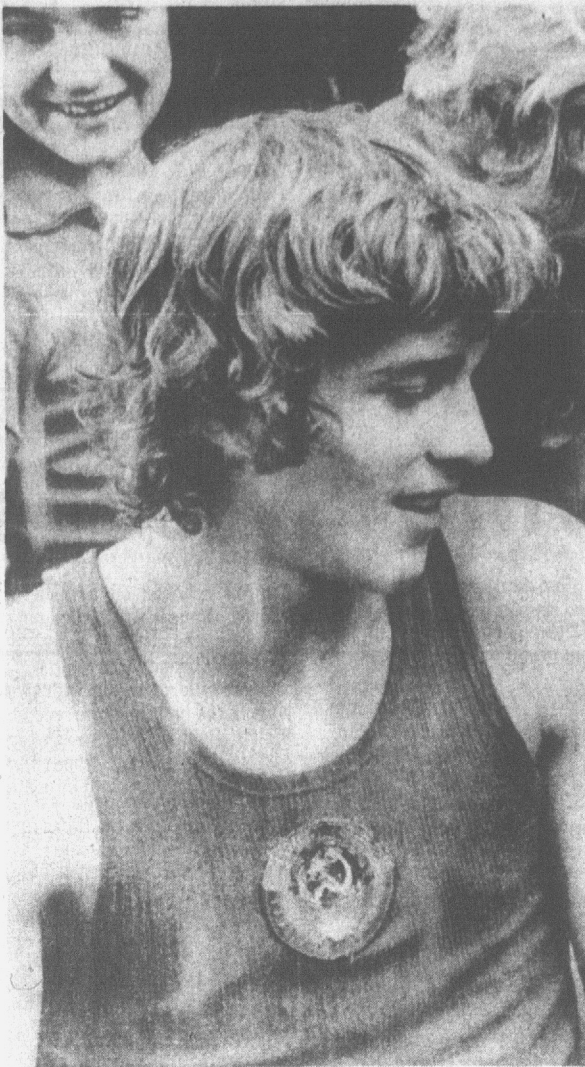

Angels 6, A's 4

Frank Tanana became the first 12-game winner in the major leagues on his 24th birthday. Tanana completed his 16th game in 19 starts with a five-hitter.

Gil Flores and Jerry Remy supported Tanana with two-run homers.

Indians 6, Royals 3

Rico Carty's fourth-inning home run snapped a 3-3 tie and carried the Indians past Kansas City. Carty also singled in a run in the seventh.

Record Breaker

Russian Breaks High Jump Mark

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Despite elation over his team's upset victory in the sixth annual USSR-USA junior track meet, American Coach John Randolph reserved the word "super" only for the world record 7 foot, 7 3/4-inch high jump by Soviet teen-ager Vladimir Yashchenko.

And there was no doubt the confident Yashchenko, who added one-half inch to the mark set last year by America's Dwight Stones, was the star at the University of Richmond despite the U.S. juniors' 214-163 victory in the two-day meet that ended Sunday.

"I was feeling I was ready for this," the 18-year-old Yashchenko said through an interpreter after he cleared his world record height — with room to spare — on his first attempt.

Yashchenko, who uses the old straddle style of jumping instead of the flop-style now employed by most high jumpers, then became the first man ever to try 7-8 1/2.

He just missed on his first two jumps, hitting the bar on the way down once with his knee and again with his body. He hit the bar on his way up on the third effort.

Yashchenko's performance took some of the sting out of the rout for the Russians, who had brought seven defending champions — five men and two women — from last year to compete against a relatively inexperienced U.S. team. Only two won again.

The U.S. men set five meet records to one — that by Yashchenko — for the Russians, who had brought seven defending champions — five men and two women — from last year to compete against a relatively inexperienced U.S. team. Only two won again.

Three records fell Sunday. Renaldo Nehemiah of Scotch Plains, N.J., ran the 110-meter high hurdles in 13.5 seconds;

Val Boyer of Albuquerque, N.M., ran the women's 100 meters in 11.3 seconds and Russia's Svetlana Guskova, sped the women's 1,500 meters in 4 minutes, 18.7 seconds.

But the day belonged to Yashchenko, a wiry, blond-haired Ukrainian who attends the Soviet Sports Institute near Kiev and, naturally, was the U.S. choice as the Russians' top male competitor.

Randolph, the U.S. Military Academy coach still savoring the victory by his U.S. team, perhaps summed it up best:

"It was just a great experience. You don't get to see a world record every day."

Slew Loses First

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Seattle Slew's owner Mickey Taylor made no excuses. "The other horse just ran a super race," he said. "We came up empty. Slew just didn't have it."

So in the $316,400 Swaps Stakes, the saga of undefeated Seattle Slew was interrupted Sunday. The Triple Crown winner lost by 16 lengths to J.O. Tobin, finishing fourth in a field of seven.

Trainer Billy Turner, who watched Slew win the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes, commented: "We sure let the crowd down, didn't we? Slew came out of the race well. He broke good, he just didn't run his race. Maybe the grind of the Triple Crown was too much."

"But don't underestimate J.O. Tobin," added Turner. "He's a good horse. He ran in bad luck in the Preakness."

J. (for Joseph) O. (for Oliver) Tobin "broke like a bullet," declared jockey Bill Shoemaker. "I didn't expect to be in the lead all the way, but he broke so well I just let him go."

Joseph Oliver Tobin, named for a friend of owner George Pope of Madera, Calif., simply legged his way to a Swaps Stakes record of 1:58.5, just two-fifths off the track record for the 1 1/4-mile distance.

In comparison, the Kentucky Derby over the same distance was won by Seattle Slew in 2:02.1. In the Preakness, Tobin broke poorly and was boxed midway in the race before finishing fifth.

J.O. Tobin collected $194,900 for his victory in a race expected to be a cinch for Seattle Slew. The fourth-place money was just $18,000.

In second place in the race for 3-year-olds, eight lengths behind the winner, was the 18-1 shot Affiliante. Text finished third.

J.O. Tobin paid $8.20, $3.60 and $4.20 with Affiliante returning $7.80 and $5.20 and Text paying $5.20 to show. Seattle Slew had gone off as a 1-5 favorite of the crowd of 68,115 which sent wagers totalling $659,742 down the drain.

J.O. Tobin led Seattle Slew by two lengths going into the back stretch and by three, with Text in between, at the turn.

"I knew we were beat into the first turn," commented losing jockey Jean Crugnet. "He just wasn't himself. He was fine warming up and the track was fine and he didn't have any trouble handling it. He just didn't fire. It was a little tight into the backstretch, but if I would have had enough horse, it wouldn't have made any difference."

Eichelberger Wins Milwaukee

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave Eichelberger thought he had finally shaken six years of self-doubt, but trouble sliced through the mist and gathering dusk to haunt him again.

Sunday, however, Eichelberger withstood the challenge.

"Three or four years ago, I was wondering if I would ever win another tournament," said Eichelberger, 33. "But the last two years I've been hitting the ball better. The last few weeks, I just tried to see how many times I could get my name on the leader board. I've been playing better, and it helped my confidence."

Rattled by bogeys on the 25th and 26th holes of the rain-delayed 36-hole marathon, Eichelberger struck back with three birdies in the final nine for a closing 70 and a two stroke victory in the Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

"The greatest thing in the world is to win a professional golf tournament — especially if you're a professional golfer," Eichelberger exulted moments after receiving his $26,000 check for winning the rain-plagued meet.

Eichelberger, whose only previous victory in 11 years on the tour had come here in 1971, finished with a 278 total, 10 under par over the wet, windy Tuckaway Country Club course.

At 280 were second-year pro Morris Hatafsky, who was tied with Eichelberger until he three-putted his last hole for a bogey. Gary McCord and Mike Morley also finished at 280.

Rookie Keith Fergus, first-round co-leader and ahead by three after Saturday's second round, wound up at 281 along with Barney Thompson and veterans Miller Barber and Frank Beard.

Snow Hill Ties Series With Shutout Victory

DUNN — Snow Hill evened its American Legion baseball playoff series with Dunn yesterday, taking a 6-0 victory to give each team one victory in the best-of-three series.

Despite being outthit 9-6, Snow Hill was able to come up with the big play when needed, according to coach Jim Fulghum, stranding all 11 Dunn baserunners for the shutout win.

Two Dunn men reached base in five different innings, but Snow Hill played outstanding defense with men on, Fulghum said.

Snow Hill took the lead in the contest with a pair of runs in the top of the first. Mike Jenkins led off the frame with a triple and, after Mike Chase walked, a successful double steal scored Jenkins. David Winborn singled in Chase.

In the third, Snow Hill added two more for a 4-0 lead. Winborn started things off with a single and Jerry Speight walked. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch and scored on an error.

Snow Hill rounded out its scoring with two more in the ninth. Jenkins doubled and went to second on Chase's sacrifice. Russell Brann's sacrifice fly was erred, allowing Jenkins to score and Brann to go to second. Winborn knocked him in with a base hit. Winborn was 3-5 and Jenkins 2-5 to pace the Snow Hill offense, while Tim Marbel was 2-4 and Albert Lockamy 2-5 for Dunn.

The final game of the Snow Hill-Dunn series will be played tonight in Snow Hill. The series winner will advance to meet Rocky Mount, which defeated Wilson in two games.

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

Supposedly the baseball club ahead at the July 4 break is the team that will likely win the championship in its respective division.

That doesn't always prove true, but in the National League, it sure looks like Chicago's Cubs and Los Angeles' Dodgers have comfortable leads. Both have been shrinking recently, however, and by no means is a berth in the post-season playoffs assured either team.

Chicago could find quite a bit of trouble from both Philadelphia and St. Louis. Pittsburgh is not quite in as good a shape, but still isn't out of it.

In the West, Cincinnati is about the only threat that the Dodgers have. The rest seem too far back now to be any problem.

In the American League, however, it is a different picture. Boston and New York are fighting hard for the lead in the Eastern division, and only the expansion Toronto Blue Jays would really seem out of the race at this point. The Tigers, in sixth place, were only 6½ games back through Saturday night's games.

Chicago and Minnesota are the top dogs in the West, but their lead is not all that great either. Again, only the expansion club, Seattle, would seem completely out of it, should one of the others catch fire.

So perhaps it is the Fourth of July today. Look for a lot more fireworks before the baseball races are settled.

Heavy Month of Activity

July will be a heavy month of sports activity on the local scene, despite the fact that most of the sport leagues will be winding up shortly, if not already.

At least two area baseball tournaments will be held in Greenville during July.

The Babe Ruth Area "G" Tournament will be held here on July 13-15, at Guy Smith Stadium. Four games will be played daily in the double-elimination event.

Four Babe Ruth All-Star teams, including Greenville's and Pitt County's will be involved, along with four Prep League All-Star teams.

Along with those, the Babe Ruth League starts a post-season tournament both for the regular league and the Prep League, something new for the leagues. Then, the second season for the league will start on July 12.

The Little League district tournament will also be held in Greenville, July 20, 21 and 22, and 29. The Area II contests have five teams involved, including the two Greenville based teams. Joining them are Tarboro, Roanoke Rapids and New Bern's Southern League. The winner of this tournament goes on to Winston-Salem for the state tournament August 1-6.

Add that to the Boys' Home All-Star football game come July 23, and you have a busy period of time.

And It Won't Be Long

By the time August 1 rolls around in just 27 more days, there will be something else in the air — football season.

Seems strange, but it is just about on us. Come August 1, and most of the area high schools will be on the practice field, getting ready for the season.

And not far behind them will be the college teams. East Carolina starts drills sometime around mid-August. The Pirates will be preparing for their new season, and opening games with N.C. State and Duke University.

Having just a little over a month to go puts Coach Pat Dye in somewhat of a handicap position. With the loss of Lannie Norris through his resignation, and the untimely death of Rick Bankston, the Pirate defensive coaching ranks have just about been wiped out. Dye must act swiftly to bring in two new assistants in order to prepare for the season, yet he must also take care to hire quality people.

Hopefully, it will not take Dye long to come up with the people he wants.

Acting AD Named

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Tom Butters will take over as interim athletic director at Duke University Aug. 1 with a healthy $13.5 million endowment for athletics.

But he says money isn't everything.

"Money is only part of athletic success. People make things happen," said Butters who succeeds Carl James who resigned and was named executive director of the Sugar Bowl football game in New Orleans.

He noted that the "acting" designation is standard procedure at Duke after an internal promotion. James served as acting athletic director before he was named to the position on a permanent basis.

Phillies' Schmidt Is Hard To Stop

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The way Mike Schmidt is going these days, no one is going to stop him — not even Billy DeMars.

The Philadelphia Phillies' slugger ran through a stop sign by the third base coach in an attempt to complete an inside-the-park home run Sunday.

He was thrown out, but that didn't stop him from trying again later in the game — and the second time he made it.

"I really feel like a good hitter now," said Schmidt, whose 23rd home run of the season led the Phillies to an 11-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I'm hitting the ball straight away. I feel nice and relaxed."

Schmidt, a three-time National League home run leader, is on one of the hottest power streaks of his career. He has hit 16 homers in his last 26 games and raised his batting average from .242 to .278 in that stretch, to say nothing of the Phillies' fortunes.

Behind their big gun, the Phillies have blown away some of the league's lead in the National League East and now trail by a reasonable figure of 5½ games.

The Cubs maintained their advantage with a 4-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, stopping a four-game losing streak.

NL Roundup

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the San Francisco Giants 10-7; the San Diego Padres nipped the Cincinnati Reds 8-7; the Montreal Expos turned back the New York Mets 4-2 and the Houston Astros trounced the Atlanta Braves 9-3.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 0
Bill Buckner broke a scoreless tie with a three-run homer in the eighth inning, lifting Chicago over St. Louis. Buckner's blow came on a 2-2 pitch off Al Hrabosky, who had relieved Eric Rasmussen following singles by winning pitcher Bruce Sutter and Greg Gross.

Dodgers 10, Giants 7
Ron Cey had five hits, including a pair of doubles which drove in four runs, leading Los Angeles over San Francisco. Cey doubled home two runs in the fifth inning and two more in the sixth. The Dodgers scored four runs in each inning off San Francisco starter Jim Barr.

tear up Giants' pitching with two hits and three RBI, giving him a total of eight RBI in the last three games.

Padres 8, Reds 7

Dave Kingman drove in five runs with a single and his 11th home run of the season to spark San Diego to a comeback victory over Cincinnati. Trailing 5-0 after two and one-half innings, Kingman's bases-loaded single in the third highlighted a three-run rally off Cincinnati right-hander Jack Billingham to pull the Padres within 5-3.

In the sixth, after Dave Winfield's sacrifice fly tied the game at 5-5, Kingman followed with a three-run homer to put San Diego ahead and knock Billingham from the box. Billingham, 8-4, took the loss, while right-hander Dan Spillner won his third game of the season without a loss in relief. Rollie Fingers pitched the last 1 2-3 innings to earn his 17th save.

Expos 9, Mets 2

Gary Carter hit a two-run homer and Tom Walker pitched five innings of one-hit relief to lead Montreal past New York. Carter's 13th home run of the season highlighted a three-run fifth inning as the Expos recorded their fourth consecutive victory, matching their longest winning streak of the year.

Astros 9, Braves 3

Cesar Cedeno drove in three runs with a pair of singles as Houston routed Atlanta. Houston starter Floyd Bannister, 4-6, hurled the first eight innings for the Astros to pick up his first career triumph in Houston. Reliever Frank LaCorte, 1-8, was tagged with the loss.

Greenville Sweeps Louisburg

Greenville's Post 39 American Legion baseball team swept its best-of-three series with Louisburg Saturday night, claiming a 15-7 victory.

The win gave Greenville two straight wins in the series and advanced them to the second round of the area playoffs. They will meet the winner of the Williamston-Smithfield series.

Louisburg struck first, getting two runs in the first inning. Randy Odom reached on an error and Dennis Tabron singled. Chip Capps walked to load the bases, and a single by Mike Loyd scored both Odom and Tabron.

Louisburg added another run in the second for a 3-0 lead. Wilson Pearce singled and moved up on an error as Milton Tabron reached on a fielder's choice. Odom also reached on a fielder's choice, and a hit by Dennis Tabron scored Pearce.

Greenville came up with two runs in the bottom of the second. Wright Hooks doubled and Greg Lee walked. Al Butts singled in Hooks and an error let Lee come around.

Greenville tied it up with one in the third. Mike Shank singled and moved up on an error. He scored on Kevin Adams' single.

Louisburg went back out in the fourth, as Pearce hit a solo home run for a 4-3 lead.

But Greenville quickly came back to tie it with a run in the bottom of the frame. Butts reached on a bunt single and took second on a passed ball. He scored on a single by Shank.

Greenville took the lead for the first time in the fifth inning, scoring twice more. Hooks singled and scored on Adams' triple. Adams scored when Lee grounded out.

In the sixth, Greenville upped its lead to 9-4 with three more runs. Ronnie Chapman singled and Shank got a hit. Ned Craft reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Chapman, and walks to Lee and Butts forced in a run. Quinn Morris was hit by a pitch, scoring Craft.

After scoring once in the seventh, Greenville capped it off with five more in the eighth. Adams opened the eighth with a walk, and Lee followed him with a free trip. Morris singled to load them up and a hit by Nuggie Worthington scored Adams. Chapman singled in Lee and Shank reached on an error, scoring Morris. Worthington scored on the same play, but Chapman was cut down at second. Hooks singled in Shank.

Louisburg's final three came in the ninth. Shank and Hooks each had three hits for Greenville, while Worthington, Chapman, Adams and Butts had two each.

Is Wimbledon Too Big?

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Is Wimbledon getting too big for its boots?

Just 100 years ago, a handful of spectators watched a mustachioed gentleman named Spencer Gore win the first-ever Wimbledon title from a field of less than 10 competitors.

This year, 336,207 fans streamed through the gates for the 12 days of the tournament to cheer on Bjorn Borg and Virginia Wade, who won the men's and women's titles in Wimbledon's Centenary year.

It wasn't a record. That came two years ago, when 338,591 flocked in. But it was enough to worry big h players and tournament officials.

The players complained that too many matches involving top stars were being allocated to some of Wimbledon's 11 outside courts, where spectators have to stand jammed in narrow passageways to watch. There should be better allocations, with the top stars getting matches on one of the four show courts with plenty of spectator accommodation, they said.

And Bob Briner, executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals, said, "Wimbledon should certainly go into the question of possibly closing its gates before the present daily top of 34,000 is reached."

With Britain hit by tennis fever following Virginia Wade's win in the women's singles — only the third British woman to win here since the war — and with Sweden's Bjorn Borg, idol of the teen-agers, taking his second men's title in a row, the Wimbledon authorities are bracing themselves for a population explosion around their courts in 1978.

They've already made plans to relieve the present discomfort and overcrowding with a $1.7 million facelift. This will mean lifting the roof of the famed center court to get six more rows of seats accommodating an extra 3,000 spectators daily, eliminating three of the 14 outside courts to widen the gangways, and building more stands.

Dunn Downs Snow Hill

SNOW HILL — Dunn pushed over three runs in the first inning and held on for a 4-2 victory over Snow Hill Saturday night in the first game of their best-of-three series in the first round of the area playoffs.

Dunn pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead for good. Bobby Hill walked and Mike Bullard got a hit. Timmy Marshall doubled in both runners, and he scored on a hit by Danny Houston.

In the third, Dunn added a fourth run. Albert Lockamy walked and was sacrificed around to third. Marbell then singled him in.

Snow Hill struggled to catch up, but couldn't score until the eighth, when both of its runs came in. Neil Gordon started it with a two-out double. He scored on Ronnie Whitley's single, and an error on the play moved Whitley around to third. Dal Blizzard singled to score Whitley. Two walks then loaded the bases, but Snow Hill could not score again.

Overall, Snow Hill left 14 men on base.

The second game of the series was to have been played on Sunday, with a third, if needed, on Monday night.

N.C. Assembly Kept Pledge-No New Taxes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "No new taxes" was a common campaign pledge last year, and members of the 1977 General Assembly lived up to it.

While enacting an $8 billion biennial state government budget, legislators either defeated or ignored proposals to change the tax structure in any way.

"The governor and lieutenant governor made a strong stand against there being any tax increase," said Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee. "With that in mind,

I don't think the committees ever even considered raising them."

A Republican proposal to raise the tax on cigarettes from two cents to a nickel a pack was ignored by legislators. "There's some sentiment in the legislature for increased tax on tobacco and other luxuries, that really was suppressed, knowing how the governor and lieutenant governor had taken such a strong stand against it," Holmes said.

Tax incentives for homeowners to install solar heating or improved insulation, proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt, were enacted. Abandoned, however, were Hunt proposals to lift the sales tax ceiling on luxury automobiles and place a $50 tax on gas-guzzling cars.

Hunt opposed giving a tax break to industry by phasing out the tax on manufacturers' inventories, and the legislature postponed the measure until next year.

A comprehensive tax reform package, put together by Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Gulfport, was debated by the Senate Finance Committee but languished there until the session ended. Smith's proposals would have adjusted state income taxes to lessen the burden on those with a $5,000 to $15,000 annual income — the group Smith says bears an unfair share of the state's tax burden — and increased taxes on those in higher brackets.

Other parts of Smith's plan would have removed the sales tax on food and repealed the $120 car tax ceiling.

"There was absolute stone-wall silence on tax reform," Smith said. "There was an attitude that the present tax structure is fine."

Lobbying pressures from special interests — often called "fat cats" around the Legislative Building — spelled the defeat for tax reform, Smith said. "It certainly wasn't a lean cat session. The lean cats were not represented very well and were not successful in getting anything major through," he said.

Even without tax changes, lawmakers adopted a budget that is the largest in North Carolina history.

"I couldn't be happier with it," Hunt's legislative liaison Charles Winberry said after the budget was adopted. "We got everything we wanted."

Included in the spending bill was money for Hunt's primary reading program, at $45 million; renovation of Central Prison and new prison construction, $29 million; a 6.5 per cent pay raise and other fringe benefits for teachers and state employees, more than $165 million; and improvements in state mental retardation hospitals, $15 million.

Friday 'Close Out Sale Day' In Popkin Office

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Friday was not only the last day of the 1977 General Assembly. It was close-out sale day in the legislative office of Sen. Jerry Popkin, D-Onslow.

For days, legislators had beaten a path to Popkin's door, taking advantage of the Jacksonville senator's discount prices. Citizen band radios, complete with aerials, went for $37. Watches were $8.

"There are salesmen and there are salesmen," Popkin explained. "Why do you think Barbara Walters makes $1 million a year?"

Popkin, operator of Boom Town Furniture store in Jacksonville, said his sales "just pyramided" when legislators, aides, secretaries and folks back home found out about his good deals.

The enterprise was just one more thing that has set the 54-year-old freshman legislator apart from his colleagues.

Other trademarks of the Popkin style: He owns a sleek limousine with back seat bar, but often hitchhikes from his Raleigh hotel to the Legislative Building. He usually wears dark glasses, gray three-piece suits, and speaks with a marked New Jersey accent.

He arrived for the first day of the session in his limo, with his son decked out in a chauffeur's uniform. Behind were seven busloads of supporters from Onslow County, sporting "We love Popkin" buttons.

"I wanted to show the people I had support," Popkin said.

Popkin is a native of Trenton, N.J., who moved when he was 18 to Onslow County with his uncle, helping build the Camp Lejeune Marine Base. He ran for office on the spur of the moment last year, and upset Rep. Billy Mills, D-Onslow, one of the most popular legislators.

In his first term, Popkin has shown cynicism about legislation. "I haven't seen one bill for the people. The lobbyists had the best year," he said.

He readily took the floor to speak against any bill dealing with savings and loan associations. "When I first came up here, they said they had the best lobbyists up here. They could kill any bill anytime," he said. "I just want to see if I can beat one of their bills."

On Friday, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green named Popkin chairman of the Senate Alcohol Beverage Control Committee, to replace resigning Sen. John Winters, D-Wake. He responded with a typical Popkin-style floor speech.

"Whoooo," Popkin said, following with a long pause. "You've got a good YMCA up here, I'd like to move up here just for the Y."

"I'm in the telephone book, if you need anything just look me up."

Sculptor May Not Finish Giant Work Lights In Sky During Tremor

By PHYLIS MENSING
Associated Press Writer
CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — He's still blasting, drilling, hammering at Thunderhead Mountain even though some say Kaczmarek's outstretched arm, and a 10-story building could fit in the opening under the arm. The

"I want to do this because I want to do this," says Ziolkowski, who worked on the presidential heads of Mt. Rushmore, only 20 miles away. "I made a promise to those old Indian chiefs. I want to keep that promise."

It has taken Ziolkowski, 68, nearly 30 years just to outline the arm of Crazy Horse in the granite of Thunderhead Mountain in the Black Hills.

"I envisioned something 100 feet high," he said. "I didn't have any conception it was going to be this enormous."

He estimates that 4,000 persons could stand on Crazy Horse's outstretched arm, and a 10-story building could fit in the opening under the arm. The work stands 563 feet high and will be 641 feet long when completed.

Ziolkowski, who worked with sculptor Gutzon Borglum at the Mt. Rushmore site, says he has detailed plans others can follow if he is unable to finish the carving of Crazy Horse.

"How many people ever have tried to do this?" Ziolkowski asks those who view the mountain. Tourists, reporters, dignitaries and friends have come to watch him work or to help set off dynamite blasts in the rock.

Ziolkowski appears rough, like the rock he is shaping. The years of work on the mountain have taken their toll in the form of a bad back, arthritis, a torn tendon and loss of hearing.

Dressed in a fringed jacket, jeans and boots, the sculptor talks with an accent that hints of Boston, where he was born.

Ziolkowski was already a well-known artist when he came to the Black Hills in 1939. His bust of Polish pianist Paderewski had won honors at the New York World's Fair.

It was through that work he became acquainted with Henry Standing Bear of Pine Ridge.

Standing Bear asked him to carve a memorial to an Indian leader. Other Indian leaders chose Crazy Horse.

"I kept saying, 'Let's go to Wyoming, let's go to the Teton.' Standing Bear said,

"No," Ziolkowski recalled. Less than a mile from Thunderhead Mountain is a visitors' observation point which also serves as home and studio for Ziolkowski.

Nearly 60 rooms house antiques, Indian artifacts, carvings and newspaper clippings about the Crazy Horse sculpture.

Ziolkowski's wife Ruth sometimes acts as guide and lecturer for the tourists, whose fees help pay for the work. Last year, the Ziolkowskis took in about $300,000 from contributions.

Joe Burnett, 52, who was arrested on charges of public drunkenness, was treated and released from a local hospital after being beaten two hours after being brought to the jail.

Five jail staffers were fired in a county government budget-cutting move that took effect Friday. Normally, five officers would have been on duty Saturday, but Waldrep said only four were working due to the cut-back.

"It was dark when he felt the first one, which was strong enough to make him want to go home to check on his family," Kerr wrote in an account published in a recent issue of the Earthquake Information Bulletin. "Just as he reached his car, the second one started. As he looked west toward a hill, he saw a number of small, sequential flashes from different places on the hillside."

Kerr said a geologist later inspected the hillside and found no wiring or other obvious source for the lights.

A seismologist from the National University of New Mexico recently visited China and was told of sightings of earthquake lights during the great earthquake of last July.

The lights were bright enough in the center of the earthquake area to turn night into day. Farther away, up to 200 miles from the epicenter, the lights were reported to be bright enough to wake people up, thinking their room lights had been turned on.

Several theories have been advanced for earthquake lights. One suggests they might be caused by the creation of an electric potential in quartz-bearing rocks as the result of stress changes.

One of the most unusual reports of earthquake lights came from Reese Dooley, a poultry rancher living south of Hollister, Calif. He saw lights in 1961 associated with two earthquakes 2½ minutes apart.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1977 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ873 ♠K6 ♠AQ7542
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. You have already told partner that you have ten or eleven cards in the black suits. For all your distributional values, in terms of high cards you are pretty near a minimum opening bid, and your void in partner's suit surely represents a duplication of values. To make a slam try risks getting overboard.

Q.2—As South, both vulnerable and you have 60 on score, you hold:
♠52 ♠6 ♠Q10743 ♠J854
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?
A.—Pass. We are as keen as anyone to score up a rubber, and in this situation we would strain to keep the bidding open. But there is a limit to all rashness. The danger of responding with one no trump is that the opponents might compete and partner, expecting to find some useful values in your hand, will bid too much in his eagerness to complete the rubber. The resulting penalty could be catastrophic.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♠KJ852 ♠K6 ♠954
Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Whenever you have a reasonable six-card suit and some outside values opposite a two no trump opening bid, you should consider the possibility of slam. You could bid an immediate five hearts. However, that suggests a better suit. We prefer an initial response of three hearts and if opener raises to four hearts, a rebid of five hearts. That makes it clear to partner that we have no first-round control in the side suits. If opener does not raise hearts, give up on slam. For there is a high likelihood that we have a trump loser in addition to one on the side.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1062 ♠85 ♠KQ73 ♠984
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
A.—Two spades. At spades, your hand is worth almost 10 points, which is the maximum for a simple raise. Unless partner can move over two spades, in which case you would be happy to jump to game, it is doubtful that you will miss anything.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ874 ♠AQJ752 ♠Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand has improved considerably. Slam looks likely and even a grand slam need not be ruled out. However, there is no need for any precipitate action. Just carry on describing your hand. A bid of three spades tells partner you have six diamonds and five spades, and leaves all the room you need for further exploration.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠85 ♠92 ♠AK763 ♠A954
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—The spade suit holds the key to the hand. With control of the minor suits and a doubleton heart, there could be a slam if you don't have two quick losers in the master suit. A bid of five hearts, over game, informs partner that you have two spade losers and leaves it up to him to bid slam if he has a spade control.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ982 ♠AK74 ♠AQJ ♠7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Partner doesn't have very much, but your hand is simply too good to sell out to two clubs. Just to rebid spades, or even introduce your hearts, may result in missing your best spot—diamonds. The correct action is to double. Since partner has not yet bid, this is still for takeout, though he can convert to penalties if he holds nothing but some length in the opponents' suit.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠852 ♠K94 ♠AJ1073 ♠A7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT
1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have an awkward hand. Some strength-showing bid is in order, but there are flaws to every action. You have the values to jump to two no trump, but that bid must be ruled out since you have no spade stopper. If the final contract is to be in no trump, partner should declare. The least of evils seems to be a jump to three diamonds—though that overstates the length and texture of your suit, it at least gives partner an idea of your overall strength.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Wanted Loafers To Qualify For Funds HONDO, Tex. (UPI) — The South Texas mayor who wrote President Carter last month requesting a list of 181 loafers he could import to increase the city's unemployment rate and qualify it for federal funds says he was not really joking.

Mayor Woody Glasscock said he was "very disappointed and a little resentful" that the federal bureaucrat who saw the letter passed his complaint off as a joke and never bothered to answer his letter.

Friday Glasscock sent Carter another letter, but this one contains none of the tongue-in-cheek humor the first one did.

Hondo's application for 60 per cent federal funding for a $1.1 million civic center was turned down by the federal Economic Development Administration on grounds the town's unemployment rate is only 3 per cent, well below the national level.

In the first letter, Glasscock suggested Carter send him a list of 181 hard core unemployed persons to increase the Hondo's unemployment to 6 per cent, because the mayor said he could not convince any of the local folks to quit their jobs.

This touched off dozens of responses from around the world from unemployed persons wanting to help ease Hondo's overemployment by moving to the city. Others telephoned and wrote Glasscock praising the mayor's assertion that cities such as Hondo should not be penalized just because most of their residents are employed.

EDA official Burney Jenkins of Washington told Hondo's weekly newspaper, the Avil Herald, this week by telephone that Jenkins felt the letter was nothing more than a joke and that he did not believe the mayor really expected a reply.

"If this is your administration's attitude toward what I consider constructive criticism of inequities in our federal programs, the American people are in more trouble than I thought," Glasscock wrote Carter Friday.

The letter called on Carter to "create the atmosphere conducive to work instead of our present direction of a complete welfare state."

Glasscock said 24 per cent of Hondo's approximately 8,000 residents earned salaries below the national power level.

"But as I said in my previous letter, we are a proud people here and work we will for personal pride and satisfaction, even if we are penalized for it," the mayor told the President.

Marketing Cards Ready After July 15

Tobacco marketing cards will be ready after July 15, according to the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office.

Before a marketing card can be issued the farm operator or his authorized agent must sign a certification concerning the insecticides used and variety of tobacco planted.

Tobacco is not eligible for price support if DDT, TDE, Toxaphene or Endrin was used after it was set in the field. Coker 139, Coker 140, Coker 316, Reams 64 or Dixie Bright 244 tobaccos, or a mixture or strain of such seed varieties or a breeding line having similar appearance and growth characteristics of such varieties are also ineligible for price supports.
