Two Young Russian Skyjackers Give Up

By RISTO MAENPAA
Associated Press Writer
HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Two young Soviet skyjackers surrendered to Finnish authorities today, ending the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia in six and a half weeks.

Finnish officials said the two young men would be returned to the Soviet Union in accordance with a 1974 anti-hijacking treaty between the two governments. They face prison terms of 3 to 15 years and could have been executed if the hijacking had caused a death.

The last three hostages escaped from the twin-jet Tupolev 134 early today when sleep overcame their captors. One of the hijackers gave himself up about 5 a.m. The second man surrendered an hour later.

Officials this morning still had not announced the identity of the hijackers.

They were reported armed with grenades and explosives, but an airport official said they left their weapons aboard the plane when they came out.

The two men surrendered about 36 hours after they commandeered the plane Sunday night during a domestic flight over northern Russia. First reports said there were 79 persons aboard, but later information indicated there were 76.

The hijackers ordered the pilot to fly to Stockholm, where the Swedish government gave refuge to another Soviet hijacker on May 26. But a Finnish official said the pilot apparently bluffed them and landed instead at the Finnish capital.

The hijackers threatened to blow up the plane if it were not refueled and flown on to Stockholm. But they let four deadlines pass without carrying out the threat.

Sweden announced it would not give the plane landing permission. A Swedish official said his government feared "all dams would burst" if it accepted two more hijackers. A Swedish air force spokesman added: "If it comes our way we just can't shoot it down."

The plane was towed to a remote corner of the Helsinki airport and surrounded by heavily armed troops. Shortly afterward, the seven crew members bolted the cockpit door and escaped through an emergency exit.

The hijackers carried on their negotiations with Finnish officials through an open window. The Finns refused to discuss any concessions until all women and children were freed. Early Monday, 20 women and children were let go, and a few hours later the remaining 20 women were let go, officials said.

The Finnish government then offered the two young men a small twin-engine Cessna to fly to another country, but they refused it.

Six of the male passengers jumped out of the rear door of the plane Monday afternoon. Late in the evening the hijackers let 20 more men go, leaving them with only three hostages, then closed the window through which they had been negotiating. Exhaustion overcame them, and after midnight the last three hostages got away.

Arab States Indifferent To Shortage

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer
NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) —

When an Arab sheik pulls into a gasoline station in the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, he is likely to be driving a big gas guzzler and be proud of it.

But he also may have to wait in line for an hour or more because of a shortage of gasoline or station attendants. He may also have to pump his own gas by hand because of frequent blackouts, pay U.S. prices to fill up his tank and buy imported motor oil.

Residents of the Persian Gulf states, which produce nearly one-third of the world's petroleum, are largely indifferent to energy conservation. But some Persian Gulf consumers have more trouble getting their fuel than many consumers in the Western countries that don't have plentiful oil.

The reason for this anomaly is that the Gulf states export more than 95 per cent of their petroleum, only recently finding out how much they need of it themselves.

With thousands of big foreign cars being imported every year and booming economic development putting a strain on power sources, fuel shortages and blackouts are common in the Gulf.

But few seem seriously bothered. "Nobody worries about energy in the Gulf," says a resident of Dubai. "Most local Arabs have two large American cars that use a gallon every 12 miles."

Despite daily power blackouts from overloaded electric stations, many foreign workers get their electricity bills paid by their companies and think nothing of leaving on a month-long vacation without switching off their air conditioners.

In most Arab oil-producing countries, the price of domestic gasoline and oil is subsidized and therefore cheap. A gallon of gasoline in Saudi Arabia costs 13 cents, in Kuwait 15 cents and the emirate of Qatar 31 cents, while Americans pay an average price of 65 cents a gallon and Britons $1.46.

But in poorer oil-producing states, such as the northern emirates on the Persian Gulf, gas prices are not subsidized, and it costs an average of 68 cents a gallon.

Dubai, which produces more than 100 million barrels of crude oil each year, has to import nearly two million barrels of refined oil to meet its local needs.

Qatar imports its refined oil and gasoline from European and other foreign refineries. Because of the increasing cost of supporting oil prices, Qatar is having second thoughts about its subsidy program.

But most Middle East oil-producing countries consider subsidy their duty, and also do not tax motor fuel.

"Oil is a social service in the Gulf countries," said one foreign oil company executive. "Economics don't come into it. Their philosophy is: How can we charge for it when it's coming out of the ground?"

Periodic shortages of gasoline and motor oil in the Gulf come from distribution problems and are neither permanent nor serious. The big energy crisis in the Arab countries comes from a lack of power facilities.

Blackouts are particularly common in the Gulf during the summer when air conditioners are going constantly, more than doubling the power load in homes and offices.

The small emirate of Sharjah, where the temperature tops 100 in the shade and the humidity is more than 90 per cent, is now experiencing eight-hour-long power cuts. This means one district of Sharjah doesn't have any electricity one day, and another area suffers the next day.

Even Iran, blessed with water to run hydroelectric power

Oil Cartel Is Happy In New Aura Of Solidarity

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The head of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) opened a two-day meeting of the oil cartel today with praise for its "unquestionable solidarity" after its six month rift over prices.

Abdul Aziz bin Khalifa al-Thani, oil minister of Qatar, told representatives of the 12 other member nations he was "quite confident of cooperation" within OPEC.

The question of another rise in oil prices is not on the agenda for the semiannual meeting. The issue has been put off until the end of the year as a result of the recent agreement that ended the price split in the organization and evened out the 1977 price increase at 10 per cent.

"I would like to express my thanks to all those whose sincere cooperation has resulted in our returning to the single price system," al-Thani said. "I believe that such a result marks the unquestionable solidarity of our organization and has proved anew that OPEC is capable of shouldering its responsibility towards its members and the whole world in the most rational and sensible manner."

Observers were struck by the reference to OPEC's responsibility to the rest of the world. Another oil minister also sounded a conciliatory note toward customers in the industrialized West.

"We don't want to upset the world economy by raising the price too high," said Jamshid Amouzegar, Iran's interior minister and one of OPEC's price hawks in the past. The ironies that Saudi Arabian price-cutting made into Iran's sales during the price split apparently had an effect.

Reports On Loans, Grants To Aid Southside Rehabilitation

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Fifteen loans and grants totaling nearly $125,000 were secured for rehabilitation projects in the Community Development and Southside areas in the first six months of the year, it was reported at Monday night's Redevelopment Commission meeting.

Ed Cobb, staff rehabilitation officer, informed the commissioners that 12 of the loan and grant rehabilitation projects took place in the CD area, generally bounded by the Tar River, Memorial Drive and Dickinson Avenue.

The remaining three rehabilitation efforts were completed in the Southside urban renewal area, Cobb said.

In addition to the 15 loans and grants, which amounted to $124,950, three more applications are expected to be approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in the CD area. The three loans amount to $27,000.

For the 1976 calendar year, 14 rehabilitation loans and grants were secured. The additional 15 bring the current total to 29 handled by the rehabilitation staff in the program areas.

Commissioners approved the execution of an agreement between the Redevelopment Commission and the Housing Authority regarding the transfer of property involved in the Southside project to the Authority for the construction of public housing.

The agreement involves Disposal Parcel M-1, containing some 48,000 square feet and bordering on 16th Street, and the Elks Street right-of-way, containing 25,000 square feet.

Executive Director Joe Laney explained that Parcel M-1 has not been conveyed by the Commission to the Housing Authority because of a title problem involving roughly 8,000 square feet of the tract. Since HUD insists on a recorded, executed declaration of trust, the agreement will have to except the portion that the Commission does not hold clear title on, he added.

The agreement, which was also approved early this month by the Authority, binds the Authority to develop the area in accordance with the urban renewal program and under a certain time plan. The Authority will pay the fair market price for the property under the agreement.

In other business, commissioners authorized an amendment in the reuse appraisal contract of Francis Scott Key for an additional $2,000 to update 21 disposal parcels in the Central Business District. HUD requires that appraisals that are over 18 months old be updated, according to Kirby Boyd, real estate officer.

Boyd reported that one acquisition took place in the CBD area since the June meeting and no demolition activity. In Southside, one parcel was acquired and four structures were demolished. One acquisition and no demolition was reported in the West Meadowbrook area, he added.

Boyd told commissioners that no relocations were handled in the downtown area since the last meeting.

The project manager for the Southside program, Mrs. Faye Brewington, reported that no relocations took place in the Southside and West Meadowbrook project areas.

Laney gave the commissioners a report on the status of various developments involving parcels in the downtown and Shore Drive areas. He noted that all developers indicate that they are proceeding as planned.

Life Goes On; Even In Dark

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.

(AP) — Life goes on even in the dark, and a baby was born after lightning set off an explosion and fire in the power room that knocked out all the lights in the Nash General Hospital Monday night.

"Not even a power failure can stop mother nature," observed a tired doctor as he moved out of the way of rescue personnel who were rigging power units in the hospital emergency room.

Wall clocks at the hospital read 7:02 p.m. Monday, marking the exact time all power at the hospital was cut off by lightning from a thunderstorm which moved through the area.

Partial power was restored to the hospital about 2:30 a.m. after emergency crews had rigged bypass electrical circuits.

A spokesman said that lightning apparently struck the main transformer and set off an explosion and fire that knocked out the hospital's auxiliary circuit. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze and there were no injuries.

Hundreds of rescue crew members and other volunteers rushed to the scene, using flashlights and lamps until auxiliary power units could be set up.

Emergency room patients, one patient on a respirator and a baby were quickly

'Blue Law' Hearing Is Planned For Farmville

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners plan at their August 2 meeting to hold a public hearing to find out how Farmville citizens feel about whether business places should be allowed to be open on Sundays if they wish.

Farmville law at present says that ice houses and restaurants and cafes may be open at any hour on a Sunday and service stations and drug stores and apothecaries may be except from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Commissioners

acknowledge that many other types of businesses are opening either occasionally or regularly on Sundays, some of these by special permission of this and previous Boards, some on their own.

They say a situation has developed in which the town has a law which is not being enforced. At their last meeting, they heard opinions from a few townspeople and agreed that they would let the situation remain as it is until the public hearing can be held in August and the ordinance either repealed or strengthened in September.

They expressed concern that the "limbo" situation not remain any longer than seems necessary. They said they want to be fair to the in-town merchants who are being faced with the possibility of strong Sunday competition from merchants on the outskirts of Farmville and in nearby neighboring towns.

Mrs. Charles Baucum spoke on behalf of the townspeople who are against Sunday opening for religious and moral reasons and because they believe it should be a day of rest for merchants and their employees.

Water Grants

Grants totaling $337,423 in State Clean Water Bond funds have been awarded four Pitt County municipalities, while $99,172 has been awarded to Greene County, according to an announcement by the Department of Human Resources.

The Pitt and Greene County funds are part of $8 million in grants to 55 local governments across the state for improvements to water supply systems, and were the tenth group of awards from the Clean Water Bond Act of 1971.

Included in the awards to Pitt municipalities was: $243,007 for Farmville; $37,061 for Greenville; $36,952 for Ayden and $20,383 for Winterville.

Gov. Jim Hunt has announced that a bond referendum for new State grant funds for water and wastewater projects, along with other proposals, will be put to the voters November 8, 1977.

Plants Less Able Tolerate Drought

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer
 An interplay between excess moisture, resulting from May rains which caused many plants in the area to lose parts of their root systems, and current dry weather conditions have made plants less able to tolerate the drought.

"All the way around extreme temperatures and dry conditions have caused significant damages in Pitt County," says Ed Yancey, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agency.

This week's lower temperatures will help, Yancey said, but conditions continue to get drier.

"Our ground water is way low and the root systems are not adequate to get at the remaining water," he said. "It's severe right now, but with a good rain the tobacco crop could look pretty good."

Yancey said early corn looks pretty good but old corn and tobacco are hurting from a lack of water. "Because of the damage from excess water back in May plants are sitting there with very shallow root systems," he added.

"Tobacco harvesting is just getting under way," he said. "And the heat has caused some of the bottom stalk tobacco to burn rather than mature and, consequently, some people may be taking it out of the field faster than they had intended."

The agricultural agent said peanuts are not fairing too bad because they can stand dry weather this time of year.

"Livestock have been significantly affected by the heat," he said. "Hens are absolutely dying and I would say there has been a 35 to 40 per cent reduction in egg production for this period of high temperatures."

The agent said all livestock conceive and produce less during periods of extreme heat.

"The death range for hens is about 2 to 4 per cent," he added. "I would say there are approximately one million birds in the county; so we have possibly lost 15,000 to 20,000 birds."

For hogs, in seasons of stress, feed usage goes up and feed conversion goes down, he said. Also there is a lower conception rate. Sows have more breeding problems during hot weather.

As far as dairy cattle are concerned, Yancey said "I would guess milk production would have dropped. Most animals have lower production during periods of stress."

Gift Of Recyclers

"Pennies from Heaven" for Jerry Lewis and the Muscular Dystrophy Association — that's the theme of a new program announced today by Reynolds Metals Company.

Reynolds, which picks up aluminum items people wish to sell here each Friday from noon to 1 p. m., will donate one penny to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for every pound of aluminum recycled by the company's nationwide recycling program during August. These collections are expected to exceed 10 million pounds.

The penny-a-pound donation will be in addition to the 17 cent per pound normally paid to the public. The recycler may keep that money or donate it to MDA.

The program will end Sept. 5 when Reynolds mobile recycling units will be located at many of the television stations taking part in the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy. All 800 Reynolds collection points in 45 states will participate in the August promotion. The same collection points will accept donated cans for MDA all summer.

Williamston Bd. Reviews Plant Sewer Line Negotiation Status

WILLIAMSTON — Status of negotiations with the new owners of the former Jefferson Mills plant outside Williamston in reference to sewer lines was the lead topic at the July meeting of the Williamston Town Board held Monday.

Review of action to date discloses that Milliken and Company of Spartanburg, S.C., owners of the plant, have opted for an agreement that would permit them to tap-on to the proposed system with no tap-on fee and that there would be no monthly sewage charge.

The proposed sewage line, to run from Williamston to the plant, a distance of about two miles, is incorporated into a fund request with the Environmental Protection Agency submitted by the town of Williamston a couple of years ago. At the meeting, it was brought out that work is well along the way on the request, and that funds for the sewage line part of the total project request may have to be pulled out. The amount involved is $250,000, of which the agency would fund 87 and one-half per cent.

Town commissioners reached a consensus to continue negotiations with Milliken and Company in an effort to have the company agree to change the terms of their offer.

A request to have the zoning ordinance amended to have a night club as a permitted use in a highway commercial zone was denied. Also in rezoning, a public hearing has been set for August 1 to consider requests to rezone land on U.S. 17 south near the city limits, and land adjacent to the hospital.

A contract, presented by F. Guy Wilson and Associates of Washington, for the purpose of drawing up plans for a new fire station, were studied. The contract plan has been turned over to the town attorney for examination before any action is to be taken.

Peele Insurance Agency of Williamston was awarded an insurance contract to cover the Williamston Police force for liability purposes. The company previously covering the force has cancelled its contract, making it necessary to seek a new insurance contract. Coverages include $100,000; $300,000 and $500,000 limits.

At a second public hearing on the subject of rate increase for the Williamston Cablevision Company, approval was given to a monthly increase from $5.50 to $6.75.

Town Administrator John Boykin informed the board that $806,600 in funds have been received from the Environmental Protection Agency for construction of the proposed sewage treatment plant. These funds represent 75 per cent of the total estimated cost. Members approved acceptance of the funds.

Three members were appointed to the Advisory Committee of the Recreation Commission — Larry Fitzgerald, Tommy Price and Harold Robinson.

Martin Board Approves Land Fill Material Bid

WILLIAMSTON — A low bid of 29 cents per cubic yard of land fill material was approved at the July meeting of Martin County Commissioners on Monday. The low bid went to Smith-Biggs Co. of Williamston. The other bid was from Rogers and Gurganus for 29 and one-half cents per cubic yard.

Dr. Frank Shelton, a physician, appeared before the board expressing concern about a funding request previously made for a survey on emergency medical service in Martin County. Commissioners assured Dr. Shelton that in the event the grant did not receive approval, the county would seek some other means of funding the survey.

A resolution was approved to add the two-tenths of a mile road from RR 1510 to Hickory Hollow swimming pool to the secondary road system. Also approved was an agreement between the county and the Soil Conservation Service to provide funds for the employment of a soil specialist.

A county wide fire alert system to be tied into a fire box to be located in the tax office was approved. This will be the first time the county will have had such a system. A non-bid item, contract for the installation was awarded to East Coast Security System.

In other action, H. B. Glover was reappointed to the East Carolina Health Systems board; and James Wynn was appointed to the Martin County Recreation Commission to succeed Jan Rogers, who resigned.

In an action of recognition, commissioners approved a resolution honoring S. H. Grimes for over 40 years of active service on the Martin County Board of Elections.

Author Tests Food On Canoe Trip To Canada

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

A 30-day canoe trip on the Peace River in Alberta, Canada, was the testing ground last summer for a new cookbook for backpackers and campers.

The year before, author Marietta Barker and her husband, Hal, covered about 400 miles by canoe on the Yukon River in the Yukon Territory. In a telephone interview, Mrs. Barker said their diet for last year's trip was food she had prepared at home from recipes she developed for "Supermarket Backpacker," recently published by Great Lakes Living Press ($5.95 paper).

The Barkers live in the Los Angeles suburb of Northridge.

Her husband is an associate director at CBS-TV in Los Angeles.

They've been outdoors people "for a long time," she said. Their specialty is canoeing on wilderness rivers.

Mrs. Barker, who has a home economics degree from Washington State University in Pullman, got her first taste of outdoors life as a child in Bellingham, Wash., where her father "was a great outdoors person. He learned all about wild foods."

She began making her own camp foods because "we don't want to be bored with same old stuff" sold for hikers and campers at camping supply stores.

It is mostly bland, freeze-dried products, and after a few days, "it begins to taste like cardboard," she said.

She uses supermarket ingredients for most of her camping mixes. She also dries fruits and vegetables at home, using fresh products when she can get them, and commercially frozen and canned products when she cannot.

For example, she prefers to dry a brand of frozen vegetables that cooks in five minutes from the frozen state because they will also cook quicker in camp. She makes "leathers" not just from traditional fruits, but also from canned tomato paste and vegetable and spice blends pureed in an electric blender. "Leathers" are fruit or vegetable purees dried to the thickness of shoe leather.

"I haven't bought freeze-dried vegetables for a couple of years because the prices are astronomical for what you get," Mrs. Barker said.

You don't have to be a camper or hiker to benefit from Mrs. Barker's ideas.

One chapter of her book covers home drying. Another contains recipes for fancy coffee and tea mixes at a fraction of the price of the commercial kind.

Her spiced coffee mix is made with instant coffee, brown sugar, cinnamon sticks, grated orange peel and whole allspice.

Her continental coffee mix blends instant coffee with hot chocolate mix, coffee lightener, sugar and cinnamon.

For European coffee mixes, she starts with instant coffee and hot chocolate mixes. She adds either a ground spice such as cinnamon or nutmeg or a drop of vanilla or mint extract or even pastel party mints or half a teaspoon of brown, white or powdered sugar.

If hot tea is your bag, she suggests flavoring with one of the following: whole or ground cloves, dry orange peel, orange marmalade, a clear fruit jelly, flavored gelatin mix, crushed peppermint stick candy, pastel party mints, honey, citrus breakfast drink mix or packaged lemonade mix.

When she buys commercial skillet mixes, she usually peeps them up with herbs, spices and other ingredients.

One chapter in "Supermarket Backpacker" contains her suggestions for brands that make good bases for her homemade recipes and that travel well. They include health foods, Jewish, Mexican-style

Here Comes A Party For A Bride

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

DEAR CECILY: A few of us are joining together to give a supper party for a friend who is getting married. We're planning to serve Meat Loaf Wellington for the main course with a tossed salad. The dessert will probably be fruit sherbet with meringue cookies. But we're stumped when it comes to the first course, which we want to serve with white wine, because we don't want to trot out an "old chestnut." Have you anything new and interesting to suggest? — PARTYGIVER.

DEAR PARTYGIVER: I've just tested a new recipe for crab and artichoke spread that would fit your menu beautifully. It's easy to assemble and it benefits from being made ahead. Its consistency is excellent and its flavor is delicious. My tasters enjoyed piling it on those good "stoned" wheat crackers that come from Canada, but you may prefer some other accompaniment.

This spread may be served cold or hot. The women who tasted it at my house liked it cold; the men were enthusiastic about it when it was offered hot. Make of that what you will! I side with the women because I feel the full flavor of the crab comes through best when the spread is cold. — C.B.

Do you know what the ultimate is in importance?

It's being paged.
All my life I've wanted to be seated at the fanciest restaurant in town and have a waiter wander through carrying a plug-in phone and calling my name.

Some people pay no attention to who's being called, but not me. It's just like the flag went by. I not only stop and observe the pager — I follow him with my eyes until he makes contact with the pager.

In Las Vegas a few months ago, I had two nickel slot machines smoking when a bellhop called out loudly, "Mark Twain, pick up the nearest phone please. Mark Twain, answer the nearest phone please!"

I was standing frozen with my hand unable to release the lever when my husband leaned over and whispered, "For crying out loud, what do you expect to see? A 142-year-old man in a white suit answer the phone?"

I once left a coffee shop in Dayton to see if Jerry Ford answered his page before it occurred to me the President would probably have a ride into town.

A friend of mine in L.A. shares my fascination. She has set aside a handsome sun in her will for a "perpetual page" in the Polo Lounge in the Beverly Hills Hotel where being paged is rated just under witnessing God.

When you think of it, it is the only way of remaining eternal.

The only threat I see to the paging system are the little beep beep boxes worn by the medical profession. I asked a starlet whose career was "settling" at an astounding rate if she thought it would ever come to that. She said, "Are you kidding? A beep beep in our profession is a dirty word."

I agree. I liked it better when the theatre lights would go on, an announcer would walk to center stage and announce dramatically, "If Dr. Leechbed is in the audience, would you please call your service immediately."

Boy, the drama that announcement used to conjure of a woman in the final seconds of labor, an army of nurses waiting with gloves extended and the fingers blown out and the doctor saying, "Pray God I'm not too late."

I was sitting next to a doctor at dinner a couple of weeks ago when a beep beep came from his chest. He excused himself and called his service.

"An emergency?" I asked upon his return.

"No, the babysitter called and wanted to know if the kids could split a cola before they went to bed. Her instructions had been to cut off their liquids at 7:00."

Boy, I'll bet his calls weren't that boring when he was paged!

Hundreds Offer Aid To Pamela

KNIGHTDALE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolinians responded by hundreds to offer aid to a four-year-old girl reportedly suffering from a disease aggravated by heat and humidity.

Phone calls streamed into local social agencies after a Raleigh newspaper reported Monday that Pamela King endured sleepless nights of headaches and hemorrhages because her family could not afford an air conditioner for their mobile home. Callers offered air conditioners and money to Jeffrey electric bills.

But Raleigh Mayor Jyles J. Coggins was quickest on the draw. Asking to remain anonymous, Coggins purchased a 6,000 BTU air conditioner, large enough to cool a room.

The Wake County Department of Social Services, the Raleigh Rescue Mission and Salvation Army helped arrange to have the air conditioner installed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene King, whose family expenses are paid out of a $300 monthly Social Security disability check.

"A lot of times people say you can't depend on anyone, that people care only for themselves," King said in an interview. "That's not true. There are a lot of concerned people."

Main Campus Not Faring Well

The main ECU campus is not faring well in the competition for capital improvement funds.

It is true that ECU has received adequate funding for construction of the new medical school. This is a necessity if the school is to maintain accreditation.

But while the med school projects are being funded — and we certainly favor that — the UNC administration is not making funds available to meet capital improvement needs on the main campus.

East Carolina did not share at all in the higher education bond issue of two years ago since it had received a direct appropriation for the medical school development.

This session of the Legislature restored funds for a bed tower at Pitt Memorial which were temporarily deleted during the state's money squeeze.

The Legislature concluded this year's work without taking final action on a $90 million "wind-fall" tax collection measure which would make additional money available for higher education capital improvements.

The bill still needs Senate action and there is a chance that will come at a short session of the Legislature next year.

But even that money will only net $2.7 million for ECU to renovate the speech and drama building (old Wahl-Coates School). Other state campuses fare much better.

If an undergraduate program worthy of the institution is to be maintained, more capital improvements funds are going to have to be found somewhere. The main campus is falling years behind in capital construction.

Bus-Usage Should Be Greater This Fall

GREAT, the city's bus system, seems to be proving successful.

City Manager Jim Caldwell reported to the City Council last week that the transit system had its best day on July 5 with a total ridership of 777 passengers. The daily average for June was 511 passengers.

Use of the system should become heavier in the fall and the system will be of real service to a large segment of our population.

Future Holds The Verdict

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Reflecting on legislative activities—or lack of them—in the 1977 General Assembly produces a list of items in which action was not taken; or in which the assembly rejected proposals.

Some lable such "failures" of the General Assembly. But close observers caution that inaction does not always mean failure. A Legislature may be judged as much by what it rejected as by what it enacted.

Whatever else may be said of a representative body elected by the people—it fairly reflects the general mood of the people. That, say legislators, helps explain the outcome of many controversial issues:

Some Issues

—The Equal Rights Amendment giving women full protection of law failed;

—Mixed drinks legislation was delayed as an item for consideration till next year;

—A statewide Land Policy Act to set up governmental control over land use and development remained on the back burner, while the Coastal Area Management Act remained in full force;

—The "bottle bill" to ban cans and bottles littering the roadside failed, as did a measure to make the auto driver personally responsible for litter thrown from a vehicle;

—Proposals to remove criminal punishment for "victimless" like support, drug use, bad checks, gambling, prostitution never got serious consideration; presumptive sentencing measures to remove wide discretion given judges failed, as did merit selection of judges;

—A tougher law on open meetings of governmental units was put down by resistance from local governing boards (city, county, and school boards, a and the university system);

—No action was taken on restructuring the Department of Education to relieve what many consider the biggest handicap there—an elected superintendent answering to an appointed policy board;

—More power for the governor by allowing a veto was not adopted.

BILL NOBLITT

Power Plays

There was according to some members of the General Assembly, a genuine failing in this session; and that was the failure to always act in the best interests of the people of the state.

There is grumbling that a road bond issue was set up for public vote, rather than the politically tougher step of increasing gasoline taxes two cents per gallon. The $300 million in bonds will cost double that because of interest; then expire. A higher tax would yield immediate and long-range dividends with no payback.

Windfall revenues continued to occupy legislative attention with no serious thought of future years when new taxes will be demanded to meet today's bills; tobacco again escaped unscathed.

It is felt by some that lawmakers often consider the next election more than the next generation; that political considerations determine the outcome rather than thoughtful decision-making.

"The biggest shortcoming of this General Assembly was the way that political animosity took over and in the end dictated many major decisions," one veteran legislator complained.

"It started with the division on Equal Rights Amendment; was fueled by the politics surrounding Guernatorial Succession; and liquor-by-the-drink brought it to a full boil," he commented.

Many votes were cast not because a legislator truly believed in voting that way, but because of animosities or power politics, many confess.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter Effort For NATO

By ROWLANDEVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Carter's secret war to convert NATO from a dangerous illusion to a coalition capable of fighting the Warsaw Pact has barely started, but more than other Carter foreign policy it signals the West's loss of strategic nuclear supremacy and the decline of detente.

Indeed, Mr. Carter's unannounced decision to restore former Ambassador Robert Komer to a major role in rehabilitating the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's battlefield capabilities tells much about his inner concern. Komer, in charge of the pacification program at the peak of the Vietnam war and then briefly the American ambassador to Turkey, carries some cold war baggage that might not fairly have been used against him. Instead, Komer is now full-time NATO "consultant" in the Pentagon, working closely as Secretary of Defense Harold Brown's agent with Gen. Alexander Haig, the NATO commander, and with another principal in reviving NATO—Henry Owen, now the President's part-time consultant and a former State Department policy planning chief.

The President was explicitly warned before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) summit meeting in London last May that the immense Warsaw Pact buildup (immense since the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia) had created a NATO weakness even more dangerous to the West than the Soviet strategic buildup.

The fact that this warning came directly from Harold Brown gave it clear urgency. Brown's advice to the President: NATO must quickly — and for the first time ever — be prepared to wage defensive warfare against a possible invasion of Western Europe by Soviet-led Communist forces within a warning time of 48 to 72 hours.

Even before Brown's warning to Mr. Carter, he was trying to convince U.S. partners in NATO of their lethal vulnerability to surprise Soviet conventional attack in Central Europe. Hiring Komer was one of these steps. Persuading Mr. Carter to retain Haig as NATO commander was another.

But the real test of the Carter-Brown policy is whether it can surmount Western European inertia. That means persuading members to bring their NATO forces up to strength — particularly the Dutch — and persuading all NATO members, including the U.S., to use weapons and ammunition that are exchangeable with the forces of other NATO nations.

The compulsion that for the first time is beginning to drive NATO toward these overdue goals is fear: fear growing out of the loss of U.S. strategic superiority (which has ruled out automatic nuclear retaliation in the event of a Soviet attack) and fear that Moscow is approaching a crisis over which will succeed Leonid Brezhnev, further endangering detente.

The fear seems to be working. One European member has finally agreed to double its forces in the central German front area, meeting the assigned level for the first time. Strengthening the front against surprise attack was the major recommendation early this year in a widely-studied report by Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, a respected Democratic defense expert.

Another small NATO member has finally agreed to a major increase in its anti-tank guns at considerable expense. Neither of these decisions has yet been announced.

Helping to make these changes possible is a radical political decision taken by the Carter administration at the strong urging of Haig, Owen and Komer: lobby for essential changes in force structure and weapons compatibility at the level of field commanders, not the political level. It is a Haig credo that vital changes must first be agreed to by field commanders, then be sold to the politicians.

Perhaps more important are tentative decisions looking toward "interoperability" (interchangeability) of weapons and ammunition. For example, the three major NATO air forces — U.S., British and West German — will soon be capable of carrying three separate missile systems, each of which is now limited to its parent air force. Agreement has been reached for common use of the next generation of anti-tank

Strength For Today

A TRUTH TO PONDER

We may not like some of the repressive measures or the orthodox theology of the Puritans who founded Massachusetts, but these men had vigorous minds and consecrated spirits.

One of the statements which runs through the writings of the Puritans is that "truth is in order to goodness"; in other words, that we should seek after truth because truth will improve our lives.

There is no delusion so despicable as that which separates religious pretension from religious practice. We may be sound on the thought side of our lives and thoroughly unsound on the behavior side. If we really believe what we say we believe, we will live up to the moral principles we profess. But many people live mere intellectual assent to moral principles and let it go at that.

But if we follow the Puritan principle that truth is in order to goodness, we will demonstrate that religious truth exists primarily to transform our lives.

Scholarship And Love

SCRABBLE, VA.—In its last issue before it folded a week ago, the National Observer carried a typically interesting piece about the long-pending "Linguistic Atlas of the United States." The Observer was a fine newspaper, even though its bridge column was often impenetrable, and I mark its passing with regret.

Those who love the American language, and delight in its rich richness and variety, will find another cause for regret in the story of the Linguistic Atlas. This is a monumental labor of both love and scholarship, launched nearly 50 years ago by Dr. Hans Kurath of the University of Michigan. The idea is to plot geographically the nuances of speech and colloquialism that once identified Americans by the regions and communities they grew up in.

By way of example: The person who recalls "belly bunting" on a sled probably coasted downhill in the snows of Worcester County, Mass., and the upper Connecticut River Valley. Someone who carries potatoes in a burlap is likely from New England. If he takes things home in a "tote," he betrays a Southwestern upbringing. Cooks in one region boil potatoes in a "pot." In another, they use a "pan." Bostonians tend to add a postvocalic "r," so that Cuba comes out Cubar. Atlantics, by contrast, tend to eliminate the "r" whenever they have a chance.

What occasions regret is that so many of these linguistic distinctions seem to be fading. By the time the Atlas is completed, somewhere around the turn of the century, the massive study may be of interest largely to antiquarians. The insidious egalitarianism of television doubtless provides one explanation for the vanishing idiom. The increasing mobility of our people also plays a part. Political forces slowly impel us away from diversity and toward uniformity.

It's a pity. My own amateur observations are limited to Southern speech, and more particularly to Virginia speech, but my guess is that editors throughout the nation have chronicled the same course of events in their own communities.

When I came to Richmond in 1941, fresh caught from the Midwest, the extended "ou" diphthong fell upon one's ear as sweetly as the sound of cowbells far away. Then a maouse ran about the haouse. A sulky child would paout. A drunk was a saouse. Such phonetic spellings can't convey the multi-syllabled inflection. At that time, in common with most Southerners, Virginians seldom employed one syllable when they could use four or five instead.

Another regionalism was then in common use. This was the soft "c" in place of the hard "c." Once, as a cub reporter, I had to mail a photograph and sought help from Miss Mary Traylor, the newspaper librarian. She was a Southern Lady of a certain age. "What you need," she said, "is a piece of cyrrugated cyardbo'."

Virginians, penurious in so many ways, held an extravagant view of redundancies. A pen was an ink pen. A pot was a "cook pot." Well-to-do families lived off Cary Street Road. To the east were James City County and Charles City County. Accounts were kept in a "ledger book." You wrote letters on "writing paper." Children played with "puppy dawgs." A murder victim was "killed deh-yud."

The reporter who traveled about the South 35 years ago could hear lovely echoes of Elizabethan speech in isolated parts of Virginia, North Carolina and Appalachia. You heard the gullah dialect in Sumnerfield, S.C. Once, a venerable Texan expounded to me the distinctions among cowboy, cowpoke and cowhand. Along the Mississippi, residents of a delightful old river city gave themselves away as surely as Peter outside the palace:

40 Years Ago Today

July 12, 1937

The vast mid-Pacific hunt for Amelia Earhart, missing flier, believed dead by some naval authorities, was called off today in the isolated Phoenix Islands sector and searchers awaited arrival of the aircraft carrier to open last-resort efforts.

The carrier, Lexington, steaming southward from here was expected to reach the area and launch her 63 planes by Tuesday morning.

Rear Admiral Orin Murfin, 14th naval district commandant, announced the navy had completed its fruitless search of the Phoenix Islands more than 200 miles below the equator and far south of the course Miss Earhart and her navigator had plotted in seeking Howland Island.

Peace between Japan and China hung in a precarious balance today as both powers reported rushing troop reinforcements to the North China area where fighting has been in progress since Wednesday.

Adequate armed forces had been ordered to China, not only from Manchoukuo, but also from Korea and Japan proper, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, Japan's premier, declared after an emergency cabinet meeting.

Reports that the Chinese government had refused to recognize any agreement made by local Chinese authorities in North China and had ordered 50,000 reinforcements to the zone caused observers there to declare they saw little prospect of avoiding war.

Congressional Bill Will 'Hurt'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A Congressional bill aimed at reducing sex discrimination in employee benefit plans could present employers and workers with an unexpected billion-dollar bill annually, insurance sources claim.

They believe that much of the business community is unaware of the bill's provisions, which they say could impose costs that might damage the competitiveness of companies with benefit plans. Companies without plans are not affected by the bill.

While the conflict is over a particular bill, the issues involved were inevitably coming to a head because more women than ever are now in the work force, many of them as primary breadwinners.

The bill, introduced in March by a bipartisan group headed by Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., fails to distinguish between disability income benefits and medical expense benefits.

As a consequence, say representative of the American Council of Life Insurance and the Health Insurance Association of America, it would require insurance plans to pay not only disability income but also medical expenses for childbirth.

The bill for the medical expenses alone, the insurance industry maintains, would add $1 billion a year to premiums on policies it sells, a figure that some say would be matched by additional Blue Cross-Blue Shield expenses.

The bill originated in an effort to rectify what was felt to be a weakness in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, brought to light by a 1976 Supreme Court ruling in the case of Gilbert versus General Electric.

The court declared it wasn't sex discrimination for an employer to decline disability income for pregnant workers on the same terms and conditions as sickness and accident benefits provided to all workers.

Under many company plans a set amount, generally ranging from $600 to $800, or roughly one-half the cost of a typical pregnancy, is provided as a medical benefit. No disability income is included in the typical plan.

Supporters of the bill set out to reverse the effect the Supreme Court ruling and enable women to receive disability income for pregnancy and childbirth, a payment that usually comes to about 60 per cent of regular income.

The Senate and House versions of the bill make no attempt to mandate payments where disability or medical plans do not exist. But they do say that in existing plans the limitations in regard to childbirth are discriminatory.

Finding 356-Carat Ruby Has Stirred Up The 'Rockhounds'

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Kim Jones was not the only one to profit from her find here a few weeks ago — a 456-carat ruby, estimated to value between $20,000 and $100,000. The discovery has been a boon for tourist businesses in Cowee Valley communities.

As one motel owner put it, the "rockhounds" showed up in droves the very next day. Tourists are coming by the vanful to pan for rubies, sapphires and other precious stones in any one of the many public mines that dot the valley.

A visitor at W.R. Gregory's mine, where Kim found her treasure, said he was in South Carolina when he read about the ruby and immediately headed his van for Cowee Valley.

Veteran gem hunter J.C. Warren of Freeport, Tex., who has culled for stones throughout the south and southwest, says, "When I saw this valley, I thought the pearly gates should be out there."

In seven days of screening, Warren has collected about 300 rubies and sapphires, with the quality of the stones varying considerably.

At Gregory's mine, a visitor pays an initial $3 admission fee, for which he gets a large wood frame box with a screen in the bottom. The tourist can buy buckets of gravel and clay for an additional 25 cents a bucket, or dig up the dirt himself.

Sitting along a trough filled with constantly moving stream water, gem hunters wash the contents of the buckets, hoping to clean off a dirty pebble and find a valuable gemstone.

But tourist who have never panned before seem to expect a ruby suitable for Liz Taylor to flash at them — cut, polished and mounted, says Gregory's daughter-in-law, Dorothy Gregory. Nature, however, doesn't operate that way.

Sapphires have a cloudy grey appearance in their natural form, rubies are a cherry dusk and garnets are a pinker dusky shade, she said. But when you move them, they have a sheen that lasts even when they are dried off.

Dorothy Gregory and other family members do a lot of basic instructing to visitors in how to recognize valuable stones.

Sapphires are most often found at Gregory's mine, with rubies the usual crop at the Holbrook mine, down the road a little bit. Other mines are known for having a large supply of garnet. As one might expect, rock shops abound in the valley.

EVENING ACCIDENT — One person was injured last night when two cars collided on rural road 1711 about two miles east of Winterville. According to Trooper K. M. Sutton, a car driven by Jessie Ray Dawson, of Greenville, was traveling west when he was passed by another vehicle driven by Leo Corbin, of Winterville. The trooper said as soon as Corbin passed the Dawson vehicle, Corbin slowed sharply in preparation for a right turn into a private drive. The Dawson car, being unable to stop struck the Corbin car in the rear. Corbin, according to the trooper, was injured and admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Corbin, according to Sutton, was charged with making an unsafe movement. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Opens New Law Office

Charles L. McLawhorn Jr., a Pitt County native, has opened a law office at the Cherry Building at 301 Evans St. for the general practice of civil law.

McLawnhorn, a graduate of Ayden High School, received his under-graduate degree from East Carolina University in 1971 in Political Science.

McLawnhorn served as a public relations representative for the Weyerhaeuser Company before entering the Oklahoma City University law school where he graduated in 1976 with a J.D. degree.

While at Oklahoma City University, McLawnhorn was editor in chief of the Law Review and received the Phi Delta Phi award for his service and academic excellence.

McLawnhorn received his LL.M. degree (Master of Laws) in taxation from New York University in 1977. He was graduate editor of the Tax Law Review and a Kenneson Fellow at NYU.

McLawnhorn was employed with the news department of The Daily Reflector on a part-time basis from 1966 to 1968.

He is married to the former Barbara Burleson of Alexandria, Va., and the couple has two children.

Law Enforcers Elected Association Officers

Randy M. Nichols, a detective sergeant with the Greenville Police Department has been elected president of the Pitt County Law Enforcement Officers Association for 1977-1978.

Nichols replaces North Carolina State Highway Patrol Trooper Alan Basnight in the post.

Other officers elected include: vice-president William Waters of the Farmville Police Department who replaces Francis Eddings of the East Carolina University Police Department; secretary James Wilson of the State Bureau of Investigation who replaces SBI agent K. C. McDaniels in the post; and treasurer Garland Beddard, an inspector with the Department of Motor Vehicles' License and Theft Division who was re-elected.

Elected to the association's Board of Directors were: Alan Basnight, SHP; Bill Allen, DMV License and Theft; Jackie Alexander, GPD; Walter Gray, Bethel PD; Earl Wiggins, ECUPD; Tony Spainhour, SHP;

Wilbur Barber, Farmville PD; Curtis McLawnhorn, Ayden PD;

R.M. NICHOLS

Patricia Kilpatrick, Grifton PD; John Farr, Grimesland PD; Pat Bundy, GPD; Bill Thompson, SBI; Wayne Nobles, Pitt County Sheriff's Department; Eddie Wallace, PCSD; and Gordon Edwards, PCSD.

The 85 member association of lawmen is in the process of constructing a club house near the old Port Terminal East of Greenville.

Nichols said about $10,000 — most of it in donated funds — has been spent on the facility since construction began last July.

The new president noted that the building is being bricked by trade classes at Pitt Technical Institute.

Investigate Break-Ins

Two Friday break-in and larceny incidents at rural homes are under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, according to Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley.

Oakley said that Mrs. H. L. Keyes of Rt. 5, Box 441, Greenville reported that her home was entered between 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday while she was away.

Mrs. Keyes reported that a sewing machine, stereo tape player, and two fans were missing from the home. Estimated value of the missing items was set at $500, Oakley noted.

Entrance to the house was apparently gained after the front door lock was forced off, he said. Damage to the house was minor.

Charles James Jones of Rt. 2, Box 98, Farmville, reported that someone broke into his home Friday and stole a stereo and speaker valued at $292.22 and television set valued at $100.

Entrance to the house was gained after cutting a screen on a side window, Oakley said.

Accepts Position In New Coalition

Ken Lewis, an East Carolina University faculty member, has been appointed Educational Consultant to MEN, International, Inc., a newly-formed coalition of U.S. and Canadian organizations working for justice in domestic relations matters.

Dr. Lewis, an associate professor of social work at ECU, is recognized nationally as an authority on single fatherhood, and has been invited to speak on single fathers at a Washington, D.C. gathering of the American Association for Psychiatric Services to Children this fall.

MEN, International, Inc., had its second incorporation convention in Minneapolis June 4-5. Its members include representatives of such organizations as Single Fathers of Canada, Texas Fathers for Equal Rights, United Fathers Organization and the Family Law Action Council. There are approximately 150 such groups in North America.

"The Tender Years Doctrine," an article by Dr. Lewis on the widespread belief that young children should be automatically placed with the mother after a divorce, appears in the current issue of the coalition's newsletter.

The article traces the roots of the "tender years" doctrine in an 1872 U.S. Supreme Court decision which based the right of the mother to full child custody upon prevailing religious beliefs concerning the role of women.

Lewis also attributes the strength of the doctrine to the 20th century trend toward industrialization in urban communities which "took the father out of the home for daytime employment."

Even though a few states have since revised their statutes to insure equality for both parents in child custody contests, the article notes that most mothers continue to receive custody unless they are proved incapable of the responsibility.

Arrest Two In Marijuana Hunt

Greenville Police arrested two men here early today on marijuana possession charges after finding a small amount of the illegal drug in a car occupied by the two.

Police Capt. Paul Jewett identified them as William Howard Bartlett, 24 of Route 3, Dudley and Russell Phillip Brice, 25 of Route 4, Greenville.

The officer said the pair was taken into custody about 2 a.m. in a parking lot near the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Little of this remains. I happened to be in Memphis a couple of months ago, and inquired about the short "i." My hosts had not heard it for years. Here in the South, you still detect the slow cadence and the musical inflections of the past; terminal "g's" and "r's" still tend to be casually discarded. Down at Burke's Store the other day, I was delighted to hear a countryman's boy tell his father where he was. "Ah'm raht cheer," ehs said.

For even these vestigial remnants, let us be grateful. And let us remember, as dearly as we remember old love affairs, Leo Durocher predicting the disaster his Brooklyn Dodgers were about to impose upon their mortal enemies. An approaching series, said the Great One, would be "Poil Hahbuh fuh de GI'nts." Perhaps under the beneficent influence of the Cyartuh fambly, a little pure speech may yet return.

But the U.S. Army has now agreed — for the first time — to study possible adoption of a new 155-mm. howitzer developed by West Germany, Britain and Italy — pointing to a significant breakthrough in Jimmy Carter's secret war to make NATO take itself seriously for the first time.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed a slight loss today, extending Monday's slow decline.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.10 at 904.43 after a 2.46-point drop on Monday.

Losers outpaced gainers by a 5-4 spread among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume was a moderate 5.34 million shares in the first hour.

Brokers said the market continued to be plagued by concern that the growth of business activity would slow in the months ahead.

They also noted disappointment at investors' unenthusiastic response last week to the news of the sharpest drop in the wholesale price index in nearly four years.

Stocks with links to Alaskan oil gave ground for the second straight day after a pumping station explosion last Friday killed one worker and closed the Alaska pipeline for an unspecified number of days.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index slipped .03 to 54.62.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .10 to 121.89.

Sailboat Wreck Sighted

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard airplane searched for survivors Tuesday around a wrecked sailboat spotted off the coast of Bermuda.

A spokesman at the Coast Guard Air Station here said the unidentified boat was sighted Monday night by the crew of a private vessel, the Arc De Columbia, about 25 miles southwest of Bermuda.

A Navy aircraft later confirmed the sighting, said Lt. J.G. John Odom of the Elizabeth City station's operations and rescue unit.

He said the wreckage consisted of a 30 to 35 foot black hull section, a 15 to 20 foot white and green cockpit section, a 20 foot mast section with a sail nearby. Also seen floating was one orange flotation device, possibly a life jacket.

"It's very possible that this was wrecked and the people were taken off and the Coast Guard has not been notified yet," Odom said.

He said the plane, an HC-130 four-engine turbo-prop, left Elizabeth City just after 7 a.m.

Dealer Is Buying Old Jail Cells

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — An antique dealer is buying eight jail cells from this city's old police station and hopes to peddle them for a profit.

William Jordan of Willimantic bid $210 for the units Monday. They were auctioned to make room for offices when the police station is moved to another location.

Six units are enclosed cells with metal ceilings and backs and two just have cell bars.

stations, has launched a blanket public campaign to save energy.

Iranian state television and radio regularly urges citizens not to run their appliances during the peak load hours. Factories have eliminated one of three shifts, shops close early and the clocks have been turned back an hour to reduce daytime.

The wealthy oil producing states also subsidize the price of electricity, but because of the heavy load on power facilities and the failure of public appeals to cut waste, some governments are raising electricity prices.

Dubai has announced it is dropping its subsidy for electricity, which cost the state $25 million last year and would go up to $35 million this year. The new measure means that the average family's electricity bill jumps from $50 a month to $200.

Almost all electric power in the Gulf is fueled by gasoline. The lack of concern about saving energy in the Gulf states is not just mindless extravagance by wealthy sheiks with money to throw around. Residents in the emirates don't like to shut off their air conditioners because the humidity is so thick it can produce a heavy growth of mildew within days without air conditioning.

And the taste of big gas-thirsty cars is not just a matter of prestige but comfort. The big cars have the best air conditioners, and Arabs like to take their entire family along when they go on outings.

transferred to hospitals at Wilson and Tarboro.

Two or three persons were trapped in elevators when the power cut off, but they were quickly removed. There were no patients in the operating room.

The baby, as yet unnamed, was born to Rosalyn Boyd of Littleton about 7:30 p.m. Nurse Manager Dot Snead said the delivery was begun in the light of flashlights and completed with light from an auxiliary gasoline generator. This morning the mother had not seen her baby which was transferred to a Raleigh hospital as a precaution.

"I don't feel too bad about it just so it's all right," she said.

"We have had blackouts before; so our people knew what to do," observed Bryant Aldridge, hospital administrator. He said the hospital had 225 to 230 patients and they were all cooperating with the situation.

Rocky Mount Fire Chief John Sykes said clouds of smoke and steam but little flame were coming from the power room when firemen arrived.

Rescue officials requested auxiliary generators from Carolina Power & Light Co. and the Army at Ft. Bragg. Others were obtained from the state Wildlife Resource Commission and the U.S. Forestry Service. By midnight, power crews had strung strings of light bulbs through hospital corridors.

Hospital spokesmen said the hospital is now receiving about 60 per cent of normal power and that it would be two or three days before full power is restored.</

Godette, Wallace New Grid Coaches

East Carolina University head football coach Pat Dye announced today the hiring of two new assistant football coaches to fill the vacancies on the Pirate staff. The new coaches are Cary Godette, the All-America defensive end at East Carolina as a senior last season, and Robert (Bobby) Hue Wallace Jr., a graduate assistant last year at Mississippi State University. Godette will coach defensive ends, while Wallace will coach the secondary.

Wallace replaces Lanny Norris, who recently resigned as the Pirate secondary coach to enter private business in Alabama. Godette replaces Rick Bankston, who was tragically killed two weeks ago in an explosion at his home.

One other change will occur on the ECU staff. Greg Troupe, named to the staff in the spring as defensive end coach, will now become the defensive line coach, the position held by Bankston.

"I am delighted to have both these young men join our staff," said Dye. "Cary had a great career here and has already made many contributions to our program. I expect that he will make more in this position. I've known for a couple of years that if it could be worked out that I wanted to keep Cary here on the staff."

"Bobby Wallace comes to us highly recommended by coach Bob Tyler at Mississippi State. Bobby is familiar with our secondary system, as his coach at Mississippi State ran the same kind of system we run here. So, I expect to have continuity with Bobby coming here. He's young and has worked hard as a graduate assistant and that was something I was looking for."

Godette lettered for four years as one of the most outstanding players ever at East Carolina. The Havelock native played on three Southern Conference championship teams, was named all-conference three years, all-state two years, Outstanding Freshman in 1972, Most Valuable Player in 1975, Best Defensive Player in 1975, quad-captain in 1975, co-captain in 1976, selected to play in the American Bowl in 1976, honorable mention All-America by the Associated Press in 1975 and third team All-America by the Associated Press in 1976.

The 23-year-old Godette is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Godette. He is single with a BS degree in physical education and is currently working on a masters degree in psychology.

Wallace is a 1976 graduate of Mississippi State University with a BS degree in physical education. He started for three years as a safety for the Bulldogs, playing in the Sun Bowl against the University of North Carolina in 1974.

During the 1976 season, Wallace served as a graduate assistant at Mississippi State, working with the secondary.

The 23-year-old native of Brandon, Miss. is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wallace and attended Callaway High School in Jackson, Miss. He is single.

Greenville Nips Rocky Mount, 8-7

Greenville's Post 39 American Legion baseball team pushed over a sixth inning run to snap a 7-7 tie, and recorded an 8-7 win in the first game of the best-of-five area title series with Rocky Mount last night.

The second game of the series is to be played tonight at Rocky Mount, starting at 8 p.m.

Rocky Mount came up with four second inning runs, but Greenville scored six times to take the lead in the bottom of the inning.

Rocky Mount then came up with three in the fourth after Greenville had added a seventh run in the third, knotting it at 7-7.

Mike Williams went all the way to record the victory, upping his record to 6-1 on the year. He gave up only seven hits, but walked ten Rocky Mount batters, while striking out eight.

With one out in the second, Rocky Mount put it all together to come up with four runs. Billy Luther walked and moved up on an infield out. Dee Whitley singled, and a hit by Bill Merrifield brought in Luther. Philip Bunn got another hit, scoring Whitley. Greg Clark then singled, to score both Merrifield and Bunn.

Greenville came right back to push over six runs and take a 6-4 lead. Ned Craft opened the inning with a single and Wright Hooks reached on an error.

Another error, when Kevin Adams reached, let Craft score. Greg Lee singled to load the bases, but Al Butts hit into a double play, as Hooks scored. Mike Williams singled to score Adams, and Nuggie Worthington got a hit. Ronnie Chapman followed with a shot over the right field fence for his first homer of the year, driving in three runs.

In the third, Greenville got another run. Craft opened up with a double and Hooks was hit by a pitch. Adams walked, loading them up, and Butts hit a sacrifice fly to score Craft.

Rocky Mount rallied for three in the fourth. Linwood Silver walked and Whitley also drew a free trip. Both were sacrificed up, and scored when Bunn doubled. A pair of errors allowed him to score to tie it at 7-7.

It stayed that way until the sixth when Greenville got what proved to be the winning run. Worthington singled and was sacrificed up. Mike Shank reached on a fielder's choice which was errored at third, and

Seven Returned To National All-Star Team; Garvey Tops

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball fans may be fickle, but when it comes to choosing the National League All-Star starting team, they're very predictable.

The final tabulations in the eighth annual All-Star fan balloting released by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Monday listed seven previously elected starters as returning to the 1977 NL All-Star team.

Steve Garvey, the slugging first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, headed the list of returnees as he became the first player to receive more than four million votes. Garvey, winner of the Most Valuable Player Award in the 1974 All-Star Game when he made the NL team as a write-in candidate, was selected as a starter for the fourth straight year. He received 4,277,735 votes in the balloting, breaking the record of 3,497,358 set by outfielder Reggie Jackson, then with Oakland, in 1974.

Selected along with Garvey were second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Con-cepcion, outfielder George Foster and catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Ron Cey of Los Angeles, and outfielders Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Over-all, a record 12,562,476 ballots were tabulated this season, more than four million above the previous mark of 8,370,145 set last year.

The American League starters will be announced today, and the reserves and pitchers for both clubs will be named later in the week by the managers—Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati and Billy Martin of the New York Yankees.

The 48th All-Star Game will be played July 19 at New York's Yankee Stadium.

Four other players besides Garvey, received more than three million votes.

Morgan, a seven-time All-Star and a starter for the sixth year in a row, was runner-up with 3,309,754 votes. Bench, the only player to be chosen as a starter in each of the eight years of fan balloting, was named to the All-Star team for the ninth time, with 3,262,680 votes.

American Leaders Both Post Wins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Hot and humid weather turned the first-place Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox into sweat Sox Monday night but neither winning pitcher was heard to complain.

"It was so hot and humid out there I'm exhausted, but I feel great," Bob Stanley said after hurling Boston to a five-hit 2-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

"Hot weather, I love it; you can sweat and relax," said Chicago's Francisco Barrios, a six-hit, 10-strikeout 4-2 victor over the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels made Dave Garcia's managerial debut a success with a late rally that produced a 6-5 10-inning triumph over the Minnesota Twins, the Baltimore Orioles edged the New York Yankees 4-3, the Detroit Tigers outslugged the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7 and the Oakland A's whipped the Seattle Mariners 8-1. Milwaukee and Texas were not scheduled.

The only run Cleveland managed off Stanley was Andre Thornton's fifth-inning homer. But by then, the Red Sox had given the rookie all the support he needed with a run in the second inning on Butch Hobson's double and Denny Doyle's single and another in the fourth on singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk and George Scott.

The triumph kept the Red Sox one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the AL East, with the Yankees dropping 1½ back. In the West Division, the surprising White Sox lead Minnesota by 4½ games and Kansas City by five.

Barrios, a 24-year-old Mexican, was in command after the Sox staked him to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Ralph Garr and Alan Bannister, Jorge Orta's two-run double, an infield out and Chet Lemon's sacrifice fly.

"I pitched last Monday and had six days' rest, so I really felt strong," he said after boosting his record to 9-3 with his sixth consecutive victory. "I set them up with my slider and struck them out with the fast ball. All my strikeouts were on the fast ball."

"He has all the tools. There's no telling what he can do; there's no limit," said Chicago skipper Bob Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher. "If he concentrates, watch out. He got a three-run lead and was toying around. Then, when Kansas City scored a run, he really got serious."

Angels 6, Twins 5

Dave Chalk scored the winning run on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Minnesota reliever Dave Johnson in the bottom of the 10th inning. Chalk was hit by a pitch to start the 10th and was sacrificed to second. Ron Jackson and Willie Aikens both walked—Jackson intentionally—before Johnson uncorked the wild pitch when he stumbled and literally fell off the mound while delivering the pitch.

Helped by Craig Kusick's homer, the Twins jumped to a 4-0 lead against Frank Tanana. But the Angels scored two runs in the seventh, two more in the eighth and tied it again in the ninth on Bobby Bonds' RBI single after Lyman Bostock's run-scoring single gave the Twins a 5-4 lead in the top of the inning.

Orioles 4, Yankees 3

Rookie Eddie Murray, a hero against New York all season with four game-winning hits, singled home the tying run in the seventh inning and the winning run in the ninth to give the streaking Orioles their third straight victory over the Yankees. Murray's one-out single over a drawn-in outfield came after the Yankees loaded the bases on two intentional walks following Al Bumbry's leadoff triple. Mike Flanagan settled down after a ragged start and pitched his fourth straight complete-game victory. He scattered 11 hits, including a pair of solo homers by Graig Nettles.

Tigers 9, Blue Jays 7
Slump-ridden Rusty Staub drove in four runs with a homer and double and scored what proved to be the winning run as Detroit roared from behind after spotting Toronto a 5-0 lead in the first inning. Doug Rader drove in four runs for the Blue Jays—two with a single in the first inning and two with a homer in the fifth.

A's 8, Mariners 1
Marty Perez drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rich McKinney homered, helping Joe Coleman win his first game of the season with help from Bob Lacey in the seventh inning. Lee Stanton homered for Seattle. The A's exploded for six runs off loser Tom House in the fourth inning.

Atkinson Jury Told Noll Statement Bad

By BILL MARTIN

Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers was wrong to accuse Oakland Raider defensive back George Atkinson of trying to maim Steeler receive Lynn Swann, a federal court civil jury has been told.

The trial of Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll and the Steelers opened Monday before U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti. It is expected to last two to three weeks.

"George Atkinson will indicate to you that he is no angel and no saint, but also that he is not a criminal element out to maim. He is hurt and embarrassed by Mr. Noll's statement almost on a daily basis," attorney Willie Brown said in an opening argument. "He put a label on Mr. Atkinson that will follow him the rest of his life."

The suit was filed after Noll linked Atkinson with what he called "a criminal element" in the NFL and said Atkinson's hit on Swann "was with intent to maim and not with football in mind."

The comments followed a Pittsburgh-Oakland game last September.

"The clarity of what occurred is equalled only by its ferocity," Steeler attorney James Martin MacInnis said the incident. "It was intentional."

MacInnis said Noll spoke the truth and does not apologize for the remarks. He called them "temperate—not at all defamatory of Mr. Atkinson."

Also at issue in the trial is a $1 million counterclaim filed by the Steelers for Swann's injuries inflicted by Atkinson, a nine-year veteran defensive back.

A long list of prominent football players and officials are scheduled to testify at the trial, including NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and a number of Oakland and Pittsburgh coaches and players.

Roles Become Reversed

Angels Elevate New Manager; Hire Robbie

ANAHEIM (AP) — Dave Garcia told the California Angels before his first game as manager that he has no magic wands to transform a muddling baseball team into a contender. Garcia was coaching third base until Monday, when the Angels fired Norm Sherry, who himself was brought in as manager one year ago in another midseason shake-up by the American League team.

"I laid down some rules," Garcia said Monday night before the Angels took on Minnesota. "I didn't say much. I told them I didn't have a magic wand and we won't win 20 games in a row."

The Angel management, obviously dissatisfied with the team's midpoint 39-42 record after owner Gene Autry spent nearly $7 million for new talent, also hired former Cleveland manager Frank Robinson as the first batting coach and fired pitching coach Billy Muffett. Muffett will be replaced temporarily by former catcher Andy Etchebarren.

Garcia, 56, a native of East St. Louis, Ill., came to the Angels this season after two years coaching third base, ironically, under Robinson. A former infielder, he spent 15 years as a player (but never in the majors), 14 years as a minor league manager and six years as a scout and coach for San Diego and Cleveland.

Robinson, 41, a Bel Air, Calif., resident, has been jobless since the Indians fired him last month. He was player-manager for two previous seasons in Cleveland, where he went after playing 1973 and part of 1974 for the Angels.

His credentials as a batting coach include 586 lifetime home runs, a lifetime .294 batting average and selection for 11 all-star teams. During his 21-year majors career with the Cincinnati Reds, Baltimore Orioles, Los Angeles Dodgers, Angels and Indians, he was the only major league player to win the most valuable player award in both leagues.

Muffett, 46, has been the Angels' pitching coach since 1974, having spent three years coaching minor leaguers.

When Sherry, 45, was brought in July 23, 1976, to replace fired Dick Williams, he lifted the Angels from the cellar to fourth-place tie while compiling a 37-29 record. He had managed Angels' farm teams for five years and spent 1959-1962 playing with the Dodgers and 1963 with the New York Mets.

Injuries have stymied what management hoped would be a contending team this year. Multi-million-dollar free agents Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor have all been hurt, with Grich out for the season.

"I didn't believe it," said Sherry from his Mission Viejo home. "I didn't expect it even though I knew we had lost five in a row. I don't think I did a bad job. You know these things are going to happen, especially if you feel you are not doing a good job."

"I felt I did a good job and don't think they can blame me for where we are. I don't think I could have done anything different...I don't know if changing managers at this point will help the club. Maybe it will, maybe it won't. I don't feel I did that badly I should be fired."

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press
DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos have signed center Bill Bryan, their fourth-round selection in the 1977 college draft, to a series of three one-year contracts, the National Football League club announced Monday.

Further terms of the contract with the 6-foot-2, 245-pound center from Duke were not announced.

Two draft choices still have not signed contracts with the Broncos. They are punter Larry Swider, the seventh-round pick from Pittsburgh, and linebacker Phil Heck, the 11th-round choice from California.

GRANTVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Horsemen racing at Penn National Race Course agreed to end their boycott of the track Monday night, following a meeting with Lt. Gov. Ernest P. Kline.

Kline presented a list of five proposals to the general meeting, after which the horsemen voted 151-25 to resume racing at the oval here on Wednesday night.

The track, east of Harrisburg, had been closed since July 4, when the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association demanded the firing of track security chief William Ramsey.

Kline said a fact-finder would be named to look into the dispute, and Ramsey would remain as the track security director while the panel considers the situation.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — City officials say they are going to try to get back at least some of the $15,000 paid for a commercial that was to run on nationwide television.

The city gave that amount to an advertising agency and the Convention and Visitors Bureau to help prepare a three-minute spot about San Diego that was to have run during Saturday night's World Team Tennis All-Star Match.

The match was carried on the National Broadcasting Co., but the spot wasn't.

Jordan Lansky, a spokesman for the advertising agency, said the agreement with NBC for the spot to be carried was reached with Carl Lindemann, then head of NBC Sports. But the network apparently changed its position after Lindemann left his job.

City League Sets Star Game

The City Softball League will hold its annual All-Star game on Thursday at 9 p.m. at Evans Park, Field One.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cooler weather is forecast today from the Northwest into New England, but warm weather is expected for most of the country. Rain is due in New England. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A weak cool front that moved south across North Carolina Sunday is back north of the state and temperatures are only slightly improved from last week's 100-degree readings. Around the state Monday, temperatures climbed to 92 at Asheville, 93 at Charlotte and Raleigh, 94 at Wilmington and 7 at Greensboro. Fog was widespread over the state this morning and pre-dawn temperatures generally were in the 60s.

Readings were expected to climb back into the 90s by this afternoon except in the mountains where they were expected to be in the 80s. Scattered thundershowers developed Monday afternoon and evening across much of the state with most of the activity confined to the Coastal Plain and the mountains.

One thundershower passed to the north of Raleigh and two understorms hit the Albemarle Sound area, one sweeping Elizabeth City in early afternoon with winds to 48 miles per hour.

Around midnight heavy thundershowers developed in the northwest mountains and moved east along the North Carolina-Virginia border.

Rainfall amounts generally were light but Elizabeth City around up with a little more than two inches. The Rocky Mount-Wilson airport received quarter of an inch. No severe thundershowers were expected around the state today or tonight.

Dear Charlie:
I had a most pleasant stay in New York. The unexpected, for me, was an unusual bridge game. I played in a commuter game on the 5:24 Grand Central to Stamford train, and I thought you might enjoy some of my experiences.

I gather that this sort of bidding is not unusual on train bridge. For my part, I would have bid four spades with the West cards immediately, rather than give my opponents time to describe their hands at a low level. As it was, I became declarer at a tenuous five no trump contract.

West lead the king of spades, and after dummy appeared, I realized that I would need the entire club suit for my contract. When East discarded a heart at trick one, the danger of a bad club distribution became obvious. I decided to see what I could learn about the hands.

I won the ace of spades and cashed the ace-king of diamonds. Next came the king of hearts and then the queen of hearts overtaken by the ace. When both opponents followed to all these tricks, I knew twelve of West's cards—he had started with eight spades and at least two cards in each red suit.

If West's thirteenth card was a club, I could insure the contract by cashing the king and, if the jack did not fall, then take the marked finesse of the club ten. I could get back to dummy with the jack of hearts to run the clubs for my contract.

But what if West was void in clubs? In that case cashing a high club would cost me the contract, since I would not be able to pick up East's jack.

I decided to take the slightly risky play of immediately running the nine of clubs. If West did have a club, it was 4 to 1 against it being the jack. (Of course, if it turned out to be the knave, West would still be gleefully raking in tricks.) But virtue was rewarded when West showed out on the club. I was in dummy and could repeat the finesse to bring in the suit and my contract.

Yours,

Omar

Weather-Caused Losses Mount

By The Associated Press
Alternating storms, drought and blistering heat in North Carolina are taking a toll in the lives of crops and animals and indirectly led to the deaths of two people.

Three-fourths of the counties in North Carolina were reporting less than adequate rainfall Monday, and agriculture specialists in some counties were predicting a 30-50 per cent loss in the corn crop alone.

"Major crop losses have occurred in some counties due to heat and lack of rain," N.C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Monday. "We are in trouble. Therefore, I am requesting those counties take the necessary steps to get low-interest (federal) emergency loans for affected farmers or for any other programs available."

Not only crops have been affected. Two persons taking refuge from the intense heat in an air-conditioned car died this weekend from what was believed to be carbon monoxide poisoning.

The victims, whose bodies were found in a car parked in Robeson County, were identified as Larry Bullard, 30, and Mrs. Donna Jean Oxendine, 36, both of Rt. 1, Pembroke.

In Wayne County, an estimated 35,000 chickens have been lost to the sweltering heat, and turkey producers estimated they have lost $250,000 worth of birds. Weather-related losses in that county alone are expected to amount to $20 million.

Meanwhile, the city manager of Wilson estimated Monday, that two violent weekend thundershowers would cost the city $100,000 in equipment and labor to clean up damages. In that county, farm experts said 10 to 15 per cent of the crops had been damaged by intense heat and a vicious weekend storm which dumped more than five inches of rain on the area in two days.

Tobacco and corn crops were flattened in some areas by hail, but many of those crops already were seriously damaged by the heat.

"We had drowned tobacco in May," said William Russ, field crops agent with the extension service in Wilson County. "And now we've got more damage."

Several state communities were still plagued with water shortages and faced emergency actions to conserve water. They include Chapel Hill, Carrboro, Southern Pines and areas in Davidson, Randolph and Forsyth counties.

"Recording-breaking high temperatures and widely scattered thundershowers took place throughout the Tar Heel State this past week," according to The N.C. Crop and Livestock Reporting Service's weekly report Monday. "The blistering weather placed extreme stress on most crops." The state's $1-billion tobacco crop seemed to be holding its own despite the heat and drought in many counties, but the corn crop was suffering. Reports on corn ranged from good in the Mountains to fair in the Coastal Plain and poor to fair in the Piedmont, according to the reporting service.

Corn, pastures and hay were reported in poor to fair condition while cotton, tobacco, soy beans and sweet potatoes were mostly in fair condition.

Carl Venters Dead At 71

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Former Onslow County legislator Carl V. Venters, a longtime member of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees, is dead at the age of 71.

Venters became ill with pneumonia at his home in Jacksonville last week. He was transferred to Duke Hospital where his death Monday was attributed to congestive heart failure.

Venters served in the state House of Representatives from 1949 through 1963 and in the state Senate during the 1965 session. He served as a member of the Advisory Budget Commission from 1955 to 1958, serving as chairman in 1957 and 1958.

He was a member of the General Statutes Commission from 1959 until 1963.

He is survived by two sons, Carl V. Venters Jr. of Raleigh, president of Durham Life Broadcasting Service, and Dr. Wayne B. Venters of Jacksonville, and one daughter, Mrs. Gail Gilbert of Charlotte, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Jacksonville.

New Journal Is Published

The first issue of "The Maritime Anthropologist," a journal devoted to studies of human life in maritime contexts, has just been released by its co-sponsors, the East Carolina University Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources and the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

The journal is edited by Milton Altschuler, professor anthropology at ECU.

"The Maritime Anthropologist" will be a biannual publication and will serve as "a primary vehicle" for international communication between social scientists who are concerned with maritime and coastal issues, Dr. Altschuler said.

The first issue includes articles by scientists from Ontario and the University of Minnesota as well as ECU.

Recently Prof. Altschuler received a research grant of $2,000 from the UNC Marine Science Council to initiate a summer study in the fishing community of Wanchese, N.C. Future issues of "The Maritime Anthropologist" will report on his work there.

AYDEN — The Town of Ayden Board of Commissioners last night voted to grant a HUD 701 planning contract to the Mideast Commission.

The town will receive $3,306 in HUD funds for updating the land use plan and housing assistance plan and for preparing the thoroughfare plan. The town's share will be $2,320.

The HUD grant was made with the stipulation the contract be executed prior to July 30. The Board granted the contract to the Mideast Commission provided it was comparable to the NER contract.

In other action, the Board accepted grant offers for water and sewer improvements under the Clean Water Bond Act in the amount of $84,913.

The water grant was for $36,952 and the sewer grant totaled $47,961.

The Board voted to pave W. Hart Street between Lee and Pitt Streets under a special necessity provision because the required number of signatures to pave the street under the ordinary ordinance could not be obtained.

Under a new provision made by the General Assembly, the Town of Ayden will receive $7,172 to bring five police officers' salaries up to the new minimum standard of $7,600.

A resolution to accept the funds was passed.

The general fund of the budget was amended to allow for a check for $2,756 received for unemployment funds.

The Board voted 4-2 to pay Theibert G. Worthington $10 per month rental for the parking area behind the Ayden community building. The space will be used by persons attending the nutrition program.

The Board also endorsed an industrial site development study to be undertaken by the Pitt County Development Commission.

Potential Pension Debt Is Above Ability To Pay

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — America's 100 largest industrial corporations owe their employees at least $38 billion more in pensions than the companies have put aside to pay retirement checks.

This massive potential debt is more than the companies' combined profits of $32 billion in 1976, one indication that it could pose a major problem for some companies and for their employees.

The bill collector won't come around next week or even next year to collect this debt. Piece by piece, like a home mortgage, the companies have to pay off the debt.

And if the companies fail or can't pay their pension debts, the government will step in.

Paying off these long-term debt obligations plus funding the pension checks due now is quite a burden already for some companies, since it is a business expense that must be paid out of income and thus lowers profits.

For example, Uniroyal's pension costs of $79.4 million were almost four times its $20.1-million profit. McDonnell-Douglas, the aircraft company, made a $108.8 million profit in 1976, but that is overshadowed by the $115.6 million it paid for employee pension costs.

Others among the top 100 whose profits were lower than pension costs include Lockheed, Republic Steel, LTV and Litton. Together, the top 100 firms paid $9 billion for pensions last year — both in current costs and paying off the $38 billion liability.

That's up $1.4 billion from 1975 costs, a 20 per cent rise in one year.

These totals come from an Associated Press study of annual reports and other official reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission by the largest 100 industrial corporations, as ranked by sales.

Despite the huge dollar figures, individual workers' pensions generally are not threatened. A semi-government agency, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., now insures pensions for millions of workers, assuring them of retirement benefits up to a certain dollar limit, even if the company is unable to pay the benefits.

The $38 billion figure is the total of the so-called "unfunded liabilities" of the pension plans of the top 100 companies. These liabilities are estimates of how much the firm must pay in pensions for all its workers, minus what it already put in the bank and what it plans to put in the bank in the future to pay retirement benefits.

These are estimates based on extremely complicated assumptions, such as future salary increases, inflation in future years and how the stock market will perform.

In terms of total unfunded liabilities, General Motors is No. 1 with an estimated liability of $7.3 billion dollars. Next is Ford with a $3.3 billion burden and Chrysler with $2.04 billion.

In order, the rest of the top 10 in pension burden are U.S. Steel, $1.2 billion; Bethlehem Steel, $1.13 billion; DuPont, $959 million; International Harvester, $920 million; Republic Steel, $837 million; Union Carbide, $830 million; and Westinghouse, $817 million.

Park Bears Endangered By Poachers, Kidnappers

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — Guy Taylor gets angry at the killing of any bear in the sanctuary of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. But he becomes incensed when people kill mother bears or kidnap cubs for display in gift shops.

Taylor, the park's South District Ranger, estimates 100 bears are being taken out of the North Carolina side of the park each year, and another 100 are being removed from the Tennessee side.

At that rate, he believes the black bears will disappear from the Smokies in a few years.

A 1975 state law was designed to stop display of bears in front of shops, but enforcement has been delayed by a series of restraining orders. The law has been upheld by the state Supreme Court, but an appeal is pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, poaching remains a profitable business. A slaughtered grown bear will bring $400 to $500 and live cubs go for about $300, mainly ending up in gift shop owners here or on Florida's Tamiami Trail.

Bear meat goes for about $3 a pound, mostly to tourists who just want to try it, rangers say. Hide can bring up to $150 and teeth and claws sell for $2 each.

Poachers employ a variety of methods, Taylor said. One technique is for two men to drive through the park until they find a spot where tourists have stopped to feed some bears. One man joins the crowd, then slips into the brush — dropping sardines as he walks, laying a trail for the mother bear to follow.

When he's far enough from the road to fire a shot without being detected, he hides and waits. He kills the female bear when she appears, runs down the cubs and jams them into burlap bags. The pair of men return to pick up the carcass and the cubs after sundown.

Local bear poachers, Taylor said, will also hire out for $50 a day as guides to outsiders who have always wanted to shoot a bear. Another common practice is to use baited and spiked traps, which grab a bear by his leg.

Husband Has 'Pregnancy' Complaints

My daughter is in her first six weeks of pregnancy. She and her husband live with us. I notice that he is almost as sick as she is, with the same complaints. How do you explain this? — Mrs. E.C., S.C.

Dear Mrs. C.: You have made a very interesting observation. Such a situation occurs more often than we're apt to believe. Dr. Lawrence G. Wilson, of the University of Washington in Seattle, has reported many cases in which both the husband and the wife have similar symptoms during pregnancy.

It is well known that some husbands are markedly affected by their wife's pregnancy and develop both physical and emotional symptoms that could last throughout the pregnancy and confinement.

Some highly sensitive people are not always completely prepared for the beginning of a family.

Proper psychological guidance can serve to benefit your son-in-law if these personality changes persist. Or, talking out the problem with his own doctor may very well be sufficient to relieve his symptoms and create the background for a more relaxed anticipation of fatherhood.

I have Paget's disease of the hipbone. What is really the cause? Is there a permanent cure for it? — Mr. J.S.B., N.Y.

Dear Mr. B.:

This bone disease is a strange and relatively rare one. Its cause is unknown. The imbalance of calcium affects bones all over the body. Recent studies with the use of male and female sex hormones has, in a measure, controlled its progress. Constant supervision by your doctor is essential.
