Evacuate Town To Flee Toxic Fumes

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
ROCKWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — This valley steel town remained imperiled today by noxious brown fumes still drifting away from the site of a tanker wreck that splashed toxic bromine over a highway.

National Guardsmen finished evacuating the last of Rockwood's 5,259 persons early this morning, including 55 patients in a local hospital. Some 1,500 residents had refused to move and had to be forcibly evacuated.

"I can't overemphasize the danger involved in breathing this chemical," said Col. Russell Newmann of the National Guard. Forty persons were treated and released at area hospitals following the spill.

"It can be lethal. The people who are in Rockwood are in imminent danger in the possibility of a wind shift and an additional spill of the chemical."

Steve Webster, a Civil Defense officer from Knoxville who helped coordinate the evacuation, said the "bromine can be fatal when it vaporizes and it vaporizes under normal atmospheric conditions. The liquid will burn and the vapor can kill you."

A Dow Chemical Co. emergency team today planned to move the tanker, which still contains about half its 1,800-gallon load of liquid bromine.

Newmann said officials plan to roll the cylinder to an upright position and place it on a trailer to be removed to a remote area near the Rockwood Airport. There the remaining chemical will be pumped out of the tank, he said.

Civil defense officials said the gas was rising to the upper atmosphere and dispersing more rapidly. The cloud that had covered the entire town Tuesday night had diminished into several small pockets in various neighborhoods.

The truck crashed Tuesday afternoon during a thunderstorm on Interstate 40 overlooking the town. Its driver, Sue Simms Thompson, 43, was killed. Her husband, Robert, 42, was in the intensive care unit at a Knoxville hospital suffering from acute respiratory problems as a result of inhaling the fumes.

N-Bomb Faces Senate Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is preparing to decide whether more defense dollars should be spent to develop controversial neutron weapons, designed to kill people while inflicting minimal destruction in a blast area.

Opponents of the neutron weapons planned to carry their fight to the floor of the Senate today, despite President Carter's declaration that the warheads are needed for the defense of western Europe.

Led by Sen. Mark Hatfield,

R-Ore., opponents of the weapons planned to urge the Senate to delete funds for the nuclear devices from a public works appropriations bill.

A vote on the issue was expected today.

At a news conference Tuesday, Carter urged the Senate to approve funding for further development of the weapons, which critics say would mark a dangerous leap in the arms race.

Neutron weapons, implanted in artillery shells and Lance missiles, are designed to kill enemy troops with concentrated radiation rather than explosives or heat used in more conventional nuclear armament.

While Carter urged continued development of the weapons, he left open the question of actually deploying them. "I have not yet decided whether to approve a neutron bomb, but I think it should be one of our options," the President said.

Georgia Flue-Cured Leaf Auctions Starting Today

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Auction of Georgia's 1977 flue-cured tobacco crop gets under way today and it is likely growers will pick up more than the record $162.8 million they took home after last year's sales.

Tobacco growers are having only minor problems with the drought that has caused millions of dollars in losses to other farmers this year. They learned their lesson years ago and established irrigation systems to overcome such conditions.

But the bitter cold winter and scorching spring delayed harvest schedules for most tobacco farmers.

County agents in the Valdosta area estimated Tuesday only 15 per cent of the south Georgia harvest is in, although the Georgia Crop Reporting Service estimated the harvest at 25 per cent.

Once the crop is in, however, high prices are predicted.

Industry sources say the increase in government support prices this year, up from an average of $106 a hundred pounds to $113 a hundred pounds, practically assures record prices.

The average hundredweight price in Georgia last year was $110.36.

State Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin, who planned to tour four markets today and four Thursday, said the crop this year appears to be in much better shape than it was last year.

"To begin with we had a glutted market last year," he said in a telephone interview before his departure from Atlanta. "We think this year we are going to be in pretty good shape."

Irvin said he planned to visit warehouses in Moultrie, Nashville, Valdosta and Adel today and in Tifton, Douglas, Hazlehurst and Baxley on Thursday.

"Everything depends on quality," Irvin said. "I'm getting reports that the quality is good—that there is good texture and good weight. But we really won't get a good picture of the quality for about two weeks.

"The first to be sold, of course, will be primings and lugs. These are the first picked, but when we get up the stalk a bit, that is when we will get a better idea of the crop," he said.

Irvin said a reduction in acreage this year would help the demand for Georgia's Type 14 tobacco, which is used primarily in the manufacture of cigarettes.

Much of it is shipped abroad because of its qualities of aroma and texture.

Black Muslims And Nazi Inmates Fight; 3 Killed

By JACK CHEEVERS
Associated Press Writer
SAN QUENTIN, Calif.

(AP) — Black Muslim and Nazi inmates battled with clubs and knives in racial clashes that killed three convicts and injured five in an honor block at San Quentin prison, authorities said.

"The lid's flying off," Mike Luxford, acting prison information officer, said after the conflict Tuesday.

"The hospital looks like a battleground. There was blood and people everywhere. It's an incredible mess."

Prisoners are being kept in their cells in a lockdown that officials say will probably last a week.

Luxford said there have been three major racial fights in the last 10 years at the prison.

"But when three people are killed, it's a pretty large-scale incident ... Anytime somebody loses their life over the color of their skin, nobody wins," he said. "The climate here is all tension and fear."

Inmates attacked each other along corridors in the prison's north and west wings with makeshift knives and clubs before guards firing rifle shots quelled the disturbances.

The deaths and injuries came in two separate attacks by members of the American National Socialists on members of a Black Muslim prison sect, officials said. The fights took place in the prison's west wing "honor block," which houses 364 men, as prisoners lounged outside their cells after meals, officials said.

The first fight, two white inmates attacking a black prisoner, was broken up in the morning when guards spotted them and fired a warning shot. Prisoners were ordered into cells, but Charles Jack Captain, 31, a black inmate from San Francisco, was stabbed in a stairwell.

Captain, serving a two-year-to-life sentence for assault with a deadly weapon, died a few hours later of wounds in the back and side.

Some nine hours later, at about 5:30 p.m., members of the Nazi group "made a move against the Black Muslims, who were superior in arms and numbers. Violence resulted," Luxford said.

A white inmate was hurled to his death from a third-story prison tier and a second was stabbed to death. Neither was immediately identified.

Two whites and three blacks were injured, three of them seriously. One injured black, identified as Jimmy Louis Hunt, 24, of San Francisco, suffered superficial stab wounds, Luxford said.

The prison by San Francisco Bay holds 2,308 inmates, about 33 percent black and 41 percent white, Luxford said.

Prison officials said there were two other fatal stabbings at San Quentin this year.

Nurses Found Guilty

DETROIT (AP) — Two Filipino nurses were found guilty by a federal court jury today of poisoning patients at a Veterans Administration hospital in 1975. One nurse who had been charged with murder was found innocent on that count.

Both women were found guilty of conspiring to poison the patients with the powerful muscle-relaxing drug Pavulon.

The nine women and three men had deliberated more than 93 hours over 15 days since getting the case on June 29 after a 13-week trial.

Filipina Narciso, 31, of Ypsilanti, and Leonora Perez, 33, of Ann Arbor, were each convicted on three counts of poisoning. Miss Narciso was found innocent of one murder charge and one poisoning charge.

Both nurses could face life imprisonment on the poisoning convictions.

U.S. District Court Judge Philip Pratt continued bond for the women pending sentencing, which he said would take place after he received a presentencing report.

The defendants sat impassively in the courtroom as the verdict was read by the judge's clerk.

Minimum Wage Hike Is Assured

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A

key member of Congress is predicting quick action on a proposal to raise the minimum wage by 35 cents following a compromise on the issue between President Carter and organized labor.

The House Education and Labor Committee will consider the proposal early next week, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., said Tuesday after meeting with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

Perkins, committee chairman, said he expects final congressional action before the August recess.

Officials say an estimated 3.1 million American workers are paid the minimum wage, $2.30. Under the proposal, reached after months of negotiations, their pay would rise to $2.65 an hour on Jan. 1.

Future increases would be tied to the nation's average hourly manufacturing wage. Under the formula, the hourly minimum would go to an estimated $2.89 in January of 1979 and about $3.15 in January of 1980. It would remain at 53 per cent of the manufacturing wage thereafter.

Some issues remain to be worked out, including changes in the current system of permitting restaurants to pay only half the minimum wage since their employees receive considerable extra income from tips.

The compromise on the minimum wage, announced Tuesday by congressional leaders and confirmed by President Carter at his news conference, breaks a months-long impasse and averts what appeared last spring to be a serious showdown in Congress between the new administration and organized labor.

Labor leaders had wanted a $3 hourly minimum to take effect next year with future increases tied to between 55 per cent and 60 per cent of the average blue collar worker's wages. But Carter said he would accept no more than a $2.50 minimum and an indexing set at 50 per cent.

Birth Control 'Implant' Said Near At Hand

BREAKTHROUGH — Dr. Anton Schindler examines an experimental polymer which may be used to develop a birth control method that involves injecting a time-release capsule under the skin of a woman. (AP Wirephoto)

By LORI COOKE

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK (AP) — Scientists say successful tests with rats and rabbits have moved them close to a breakthrough in research into an under-the-skin contraceptive which can be administered as infrequently as once a year.

The research holds promise that a convenient birth control system with few of the ill side effects associated with pills and other devices can be developed, according to scientists at the Research Triangle Institute.

Key to the research, they say, is the search for a substance that can be shaped into a tube-like capsule and safely implanted in a woman's body to time-release a contraceptive for up to a year.

The capsule would be implanted under the skin and would slowly release the contraceptive into the bloodstream at regular intervals. Researchers believe it would eliminate many side effects currently associated with birth control pills because the dosage would be regulated.

"What we're really working on is a drug delivery system," said Dr. Colin Pitt, director of physical sciences at the institute. "Right now, we're not administering the drug in a very effective way."

He said when an oral contraceptive, like any other oral medication, is swallowed, it causes a very rapid rise in the blood level of the drug, followed by a drop in the blood level as the drug is metabolized.

Most of the time a drug is in the bloodstream, Pitt said, the level is either too high or too low to be effective. He said studies have shown the level of hormone in a birth control pill does not drop too low. But it can rise too high, and the side effects result from the higher levels.

With the capsule implant, the medication would be released at a constant level which is just high enough to be effective.

Pitt said there aren't too many demonstrated side effects to the birth control pills now on the market. But Dr. Anton

Radical OPEC States Oppose Oil Price Freeze

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Radical states within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC — said today they would resist any attempts led by Saudi Arabia and Iran to freeze the price of oil in 1978 at current levels.

Libya's oil minister, Ezzedin Mabrouk, said, "There will probably be a new split in the organization if the Saudis maintain this position."

An Algerian spokesman said he felt there must be "some corrections" on the current $12.70 per barrel price before the end of the year. Algerians reported Venezuela was also against a hold on prices, although Venezuela officially declined to comment.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the powerful Saudi oil minister and the main proponent of a price freeze, indicated success of his efforts would depend partly on the world economy and progress toward a Middle East peace. The Saudis have often linked moderation of oil prices with progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

At a news conference, he praised President Carter for his efforts toward a Mideast peace and his energy conservation program. "Unfortunately the program has not been accepted by Congress. We think it is a step in the right direction," Yamani remarked.

Yamani said he had not discussed the freeze with the OPEC membership. But he told a news conference: "We'll do our best to convince everybody within OPEC" to support it.

The discussion of oil prices, however, was not on the agenda of the two-day meeting, which ended shortly before noon today. OPEC Secretary General Ali Jaidah read a brief final communiqué which said that an interim committee had been set up to continue discussions on the crude oil price differential issue.

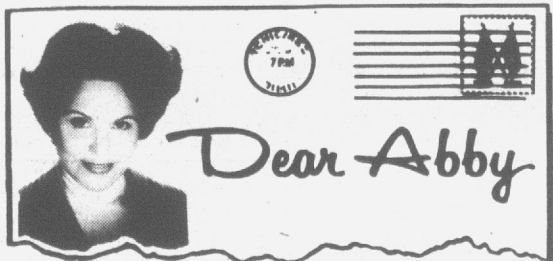

The differential issue is basically an internal matter within the organization and has no effect on petroleum product prices at the consumer level.

Yamani and Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar of Iran first raised the possibility of a price freeze during a television interview Tuesday after the opening of a semiannual OPEC meeting here. But he hedged by saying a freeze would depend on economic conditions at the end of the year and on acceptance of it by all members of the organization.

Being In Europe Is Exciting Revelation For Cindy Browning

Dear Abby

Older Man Wants To Start Dating

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 61-year-old bachelor who never married because I took care of my widowed mother who just died at the age of 93.

I am somewhat withdrawn and never had any girlfriends, although I'm told I'm above average in looks. I am acquainted with a gal who looks about 30 and used to work in my bank. We were both invited to the same party last Christmas, and I haven't seen her since because she's not at the bank anymore.

I sent her some flowers for St. Valentine's Day, and she wrote me a very nice letter thanking me. (I'm enclosing a copy of it.)

Should I call or write to her to thank her for the note, and ask her to dinner?

I have about $140,000 in the bank so I could probably afford a wife if I could get one. Or do you think I'm too old to be considered eligible?

BASHFUL IN ARIZONA

DEAR BASHFUL: I think you're too ELIGIBLE to be considered OLD. From her note I would say she is pining to date you. Don't waste any more precious time. Call and ask her to dinner!

DEAR ABBY: I've been hearing so much lately about life after death, and since I've donated my eyes and kidneys to the organ banks I'm kind of worried for fear there might be something to this.

After all, if I do come back, gee willikers, I don't want to be walking around with some of my parts missing, do I? Can you advise me?

JACK IN ST. PETE'S

DEAR JACK: Don't worry. If there IS life after death, when you return you'll have all the parts you need.

DEAR ABBY: A young mother whose baby had died said she felt no consolation when friends said, "Don't worry, you'll have another baby." She went on to say, "if my husband were to die, I doubt that anyone would say, 'you'll have another one.'"

Well, don't you believe it. Within a month after my husband died, people were saying, "You're still young and attractive enough to find another man." I wasn't even thinking about finding another man. I just wanted to get over my grief.

Another thing that bothered me after becoming a widow was the number of people who said, "If there is anything I can do for you, just let me know."

All you people out there who really want to help a widow: Don't wait for her to call you, call HER, and invite her to dinner or to a movie or on a family outing, the way you did when her husband was still living.

I'm not out after anybody's husband, but I do need to be around adults, and to feel that people still care about me. I'm 35 and the mother of three.

YOUNG WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Try Parents Without Partners. They're a great group. And a timely reminder to those who are still lucky enough to be going two-by-two: Invite a widow, divorcee, or any single male or female to your next party or family outing.

Greenville's young community ambassador, Cindy Browning, is on the run — from the viewpoint of being rushed that is — and from letters received to date, she's finding being in Europe an exciting revelation.

Recounting some of the experiences she had in the three days she spent in Belgium at the beginning of her multi-place European tour, Browning writes: "We have been staying in a convent in Bruges. The nuns are very friendly, charitable people. Besides running a hotel, the nuns also manage an orphanage and a restaurant. We don't have all the comforts of home (like a shower, bathtub or hot water), but we are having a great time."

Browning is traveling in a group that includes 10 other community ambassadors, all high school students except one college student who is the group leader.

Many Belgians, she notes, besides their native Flemish language, also speak French, German and English, though not in all instances. When she can't be understood in ordering meals at restaurants, Browning notes "I have my own system of ordering food: I just close my eyes and point at something on the menu."

Another experience the ambassadors have learned to take in stride is the difference in Belgian and American public bathrooms. "Yesterday," she writes, "my roommate came running out of a bathroom. The bathrooms here are unisex, but my roommate thought she had entered the wrong one."

Social and cultural differences were something Browning expected and said she was prepared to accept and learn about. The weather, however, has been something of a shock to her. "It is very cold and rainy here," she writes, "much to my surprise. I was expecting summer weather, so accordingly I brought summer clothes."

Despite the weather and all purpose bathrooms, Greenville's high school community ambassador stresses the fact she's having a delightful time, and adds: "I would like to thank all those who support this program."

Babies Delivered In Birthing Rooms

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The best of both worlds is available to the expectant mother at Lutheran Medical Center: the family intimacy of a birth at home and the latest medical equipment close at hand.

Three cheerful birthing rooms, complete with bright wallpaper, drapes and a comfortable reclining chair, have been established as part of the hospital's family-centered maternity program.

Patricia Cook, director of nursing service, said the rooms give a woman and her family a new option from the traditional delivery room with glaring lights, gleaming chrome equipment and an ominous air of medical mystery.

The key feature in the rooms is a special bed used for labor, delivery and recovery. It helps save the mothers' strength and concentration for the main event.

Mrs. Cook emphasized that the rooms offer an alternative to traditional delivery, not a replacement.

"It's like a little bedroom, but if something goes wrong, you just have to open the door."

Only eight of the more than 200 babies born at the center during the first few months this year were delivered in the birthing rooms. Mrs. Cook said changing the medical habits of doctors and patients is a slow process.

"You can't just take out an ad in the paper and say, 'Hey, world, here we are!' One of the biggest things that is happening is people telling their friends. The personal communication is amazing."

Sometimes a doctor broaches the subject, but increasingly in this age of consumer awareness, the patient makes the first move.

"Women who know about it want to examine all their options," Mrs. Cook said. "They interview the doctors and ask for the names of doctors using the birthing rooms. This is quite a departure from standard techniques."

New Cookbook Suggests How To Trim Budget

By TOM HOGUE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A pretty sure way to attract interest in a cookbook these days is to tell the reader how to eat cheaply. That's what Ceil Dyer has done in her new book titled "Eating Well for Next To Nothing."

The author starts off with some sound advice: to save money in the kitchen, you must revise your thinking from those bygone days of abundant food available at low cost and face up to today's soaring prices.

You can still hold down the cost, if you are careful. For one thing, always buy in season when picking fruit and vegetables, shunning such delicacies as tomatoes in January and avoiding the frozen food counter when shopping for greens.

As the author points out, there is always something fresh available at a reasonable price — like carrots in the fall and winter or string beans in spring.

Another valuable caution: don't go food shopping when you are ravenous or you might wind up buying a box of those out-of-season strawberries or that jar of fancy hors d'oeuvre.

Another worthy tip is to avoid throwing away anything edible. Leftovers fixed with a little imagination can often be turned into gourmet delights.

Some of the hints in this book would be of little use to anyone who works in an office all day. But they are helpful to the full-time housewife who has the space and enough energy.

For example, you are urged to do all your own pickling and preserving, and to set aside a couple of days a month to bake your own sweet rolls, coffee cakes and cookies, and store them in the deep freeze.

In the recipe section, the reader is advised to use less meat and more vegetables in stew and make up for lost protein by using plenty of homemade stock. And meat loaf is cheaper if you throw in more breadcrumbs and go light on the meat, making up for that deficiency by adding an extra egg to the mix.

Here's an intriguing recipe for roast beef hash made from leftover pot roast.

- 4 medium potatoes
- 1 cup leftover lean pot roast of beef, chopped fine
- 2 tablespoons vegetable shortening
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion tops
- 4 tablespoons sour cream

Preheat broiler, setting rack 6 inches from fire. Peel and shred potatoes, add to chopped beef and blend. Heat shortening in large skillet over medium heat (using skillet with heat-proof handle if possible). Sprinkle potato mix evenly over bottom of skillet, but don't pack down. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook without stirring till underside is lightly browned (lift edge with spatula). Melt margarine and pour over surface. Place skillet in broiler and heat till surface is brown. Turn over onto warm plate. Mix worcestershire sauce with sour cream and spoon over surface. Sprinkle with minced onion. Serves 4. Good with reasonably-priced California red burgundy.

HOW TO PACKAGE FOR FREEZING

There are two desirable ways to package vegetables for freezing. These are the dry pack method and the tray pack method. With both, vegetables are best packaged without seasoning and as soon after blanching, cooling and draining as possible.

The dry pack method involves putting the vegetables into the container as soon as they have drained thoroughly. If a rigid container such as plastic or glass is used—allow one-inch head space for foods such as greens, applesauce, cooked pumpkin and winter squash—that is any foods that pack solidly into containers. For loosely packed vegetables such as peas and beans, fill containers to the top. During freezing, water expands approximately 10 percent. Therefore, solidly packed vegetables must allow for this expansion.

After putting the vegetables into the containers, seal as tightly as possible to remove air. Press the air from polyethylene freezer bags by starting near the top of the bag and twisting to the end of the bag. Close rigid containers securely with tight fitting lids. Seal edges with freezer tape if needed.

Now, I'll give you instructions for the tray pack method. Spread drained vegetables in a single layer—on a shallow tray or pan. Then cover the tray lightly with aluminum foil to prevent loss of moisture from the vegetables and to keep excess moisture from collecting on the freezer.

Place the tray in the freezer. Leave it there just long enough for the vegetable to freeze firmly. Leaving vegetables in the freezer too long will result in moisture loss. Check the tray every hour until your vegetable is frozen firm.

Remove the tray from the freezer and promptly put the frozen vegetables into a moisture-proof container. Close and tightly seal the container and place the package in the freezer.

Vegetables frozen by the tray pack method will remain loose. Later when you are ready to use these foods, this may be a distinct advantage if you wish to pour out only a few butter beans, peas or slices of squash.

Workshop Set For Saturday

District 15 of the N. C. Federation of Woman's Clubs will hold its annual summer workshop in Windsor Saturday, July 16.

The Windsor Junior Woman's Club will serve as the official hosts for the meeting at the Cashie Golf and Country Club.

Miss Emma Gaye Stephenson and Mrs. Frank Moffett, first and second vice presidents of the NCFWC, will be conducting the workshop.

The main topic will cover current up-dating of state projects followed by a question and answer period. Members of the Greenville Woman's Club and the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville will be attending.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is forecast today for most of the country. Mild weather is expected in the Northwest and in the northern Plains. Showers are forecast in the Southwest, northern Plains, northern Rockies and Southern Florida. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's weather is under the control of a high pressure system which means continued hot and humid conditions through Thursday, although there was a chance of thundershowers this afternoon and evening.

Temperatures were expected to warm into the low to mid 90s this afternoon and again Thursday. Exceptions will be in the mountains and on the Outer Banks where there will be some readings in the 80s.

Temperatures were in the 90s Tuesday, with Charlotte and Fayetteville reporting highs of 97 degrees. Wilmington and Goldsboro had 95, Hickory 94, Raleigh and Rocky Mount 93, Greensboro 92 and Asheville 91. Scattered thundershowers developed Tuesday afternoon and continued into the wee hours this morning. Strong winds and hail were reported in Durham, and some wind damage was reported in Union County.

The extended outlook for Friday through Sunday calls for little change in the weather.

Kent State Protestors Have Left The Scene

By SERGIO LALLI
Associated Press Writer
KENT, Ohio (AP) — The tents are gone. The demonstrators have been fingerprinted, photographed and jailed. The two-month-old protest on Blanket Hill by the May Fourth Coalition is over.

The scene Tuesday when 193 demonstrators were untangled and dragged off to police vans and arrested was drastically different from that of May 4, 1970, when panicky National Guardsmen whirled on an anti-war demonstration and shot and killed four students.

There was little resistance from the protesters, and officers were careful to be gentle.

A deputy who helped make arrests said, "Thank God there was no violence. We kind of had to pry them apart. It was sort of a game, but we have a sense of humor, too."

The dispersion of the Tent City did not end resistance to alteration of the tree-topped hill by a planned $6 million gymnasium annex. The May Fourth Coalition voted Tuesday night to hold more rallies, and some discussed reoccupying the hill.

John Coble, 20, a student at Miami Univ. in Miami, Ohio, said he was in junior high school when he saw the television reports of the Kent State shootings.

"It touched me deeply, even at that age," the Toledo native said after he was released from the Portage County Jail.

"To me it was a misuse of government authority and the guilt still hasn't been placed in an official way on anyone. So the only truth of the matter left is the memories and the sight itself."

"The site is not a petty or insignificant issue. It's like a great shrine. Like the ones Americans place on famous battlefields. It's like our Gettysburg," he said.

"But here's one of the really instructive things about this whole day. We had just conducted a nonviolent protest and yet outside the courthouse I heard two (local) women say, 'There should be a bullet for every one of them.'"

Among the first arrested Tuesday were the parents of Sandy Lee Scheuer, one of the four students killed. Sarah Scheuer said she decided that morning to be arrested. "I don't want the gym built there," she said after being taken into custody with her husband, Martin.

Dean Kahler, wounded and paralyzed from the waist down in the 1970 shootings, said he also learned how deeply the emotional scars of the past still affect him.

"It was a victory," he said at a coalition meeting after the arrests. "You showed the world you are not afraid to struggle ... (but) I didn't sleep all last night. As you know, I didn't participate in the arrests. I didn't think I could have held up psychologically."

Three Collisions In Greenville Tuesday

An estimated $2,850 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated by Greenville Police here yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 10:50 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Granville Drive involving cars driven by Eleanor Kirkend Kinnaman of 110 Martinsborough Rd. and Judy Christians Warren of 306 Scott St.

Investigators, who charged Mrs. Kinnaman with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,300 to the Kinnaman car and $700 to the Warren auto. Flora Costello Gawrysiak of 212 Leon Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:40 a.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, four-tenths of a mile West of the Evans Street intersection.

Police reported the Gawrysiak car collided with an auto driven by Ester Mae Ellis of Winterville, causing an estimated $250 damage to the Gawrysiak vehicle and $350 damage to the Ellis auto.

Investigation of a 3:35 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 300 feet West of the Tenth Street intersection resulted in Danny Chappell of Olde London Inn being charged with no operators license and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Police reported the Chappell truck collided with a car driven by Alice Dollar Gordon of Route 1, Vanceboro, causing an estimated $250 damage to the Gordon vehicle. No damage resulted to the truck, according to officers.

School Milk Prices Hiked

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Milk prices at North Carolina schools will be higher next school year under an order issued Tuesday by the state Milk Commission, dairy spokesmen said.

The commission voted to bar processors from selling milk to schools at below-cost prices. State law forbids milk processors from selling the product at less than cost and the commission decided to require that the law apply to school milk as well as that sold to the public.

"If any increase comes we'll have to increase the cost to the child," said Ralph Eaton, head of food services for North Carolina schools.

School milk now sells for a nickel a carton or so throughout the state.

The law banning below cost sales is aimed at preventing cut-throat competition which supporters say would drive small processors and farmers out of business. Small processors had asked the Milk Commission to set a floor price on milk sold to schools but opponents had argued that action would interfere with free market competition.

Injured Trying Stop Escapee

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A prison officer was injured Tuesday while attempting to arrest an escaped inmate.

The officer, Sgt. Larry Tippet, suffered an arm wound when he and another officer closed in on the escapee. Authorities did not say immediately how the shooting occurred.

About two hours later, Ronald L. Guiton, 22, was captured. He had escaped from the Johnston County unit Sunday.

Investments In Beautification

At long last an ordinance has been approved by the City Council which will make beautification of large parking lot mandatory.

The amendment to the city code, passed last Thursday night, requires vegetation and traffic control in parking areas.

The ordinance will apply to off-street parking areas of 15,000 or more square feet with more than two rows of parking spaces.

Required will be curbs or elevated wheel stops at every second parking bay or every fourth row of parking stalls. At least five percent of the parking island areas will have to be devoted to vegetation.

Plans for the parking areas will have to be submitted to the city arborist for approval.

This is a great step forward in development for our city. Future parking areas will be far safer because the traffic will be channeled. In addition they will be more attractive because trees and shrubs will be placed within them.

There are many examples of attractive parking areas in Greenville, developed by private interests voluntarily.

Most recently Jarvis Methodist Church has begun beautification of its parking area on Reade Circle and the results are already impressive.

With the passage of the new ordinance last week all developers will be required to beautify their parking areas. Developers will have more valuable property because of it, and all of us will have a more beautiful and safe city.

Pocketbooks May Feel Weather, Too

Hot weather affects humans adversely right now, but it also might affect our pocketbooks later.

The County agricultural extension agents report the hot weather affects the weight and breeding of hogs; it is killing chickens and can affect the amount of milk that dairy cattle give.

Sooner or later this could translate into higher prices for these farm products.

THIS AFTERNOON

Not Always A 'Failure'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Any thoughtful assessment of North Carolina's 1977 General Assembly can't be made in coming weeks or months after adjournment.

It will be years—in some cases, many of before it is known whether some of the most important measures work good or bad for the people.

The reason: most legislative actions to be listed in the "success column" were parts of Gov. James B. Hunt's program; he promised the steps in the election campaign, and pushed them in the General Assembly as his "mandate from the people."

The governor got, by most measures, 90 per cent of what he asked.

The section of legislators list education as the area in which most progress was made.

Future Test

But legislators concede that the test of what was done must come from measuring results on future school children.

Lt. Gov. James C. Green put it this way: "It remains to be seen the amount of good that will be forthcoming in many areas of legislation.

"I really wish I could look into the future, and assure you that everything that was done will be in the best interest of the state. But at the same time I know from experience... that legislation approved today may not always have the effect that it was intended to have," Green summed up the session.

Sweeping changes in organization of state government are listed by most as one of the "accomplishments."

—Crime fighting was placed within a new state department with a Crime Commission overseeing; the Highway Patrol and other state agencies except the State Bureau of Investigation were pulled together, and a direct link formed with the Community Crime Watch effort pushed by Gov. Hunt. A variety of court reforms were also enacted, but short of the mark set by the governor who has already urged a Bar Association study commission to come back in two years to push presumptive sentencing.

—Economic development (including tourism) was stripped from Natural and Economic Resources and vested in the Commerce Department with a commission to run things.

—The governor was given stronger powers to clean house in personnel ranks and, in his own words, "gain control of the bureaucracy." Still to come, a major wrestling match with the sprawling Department of Human Resources in efforts to bring under control the conflicting and competing programs (welfare, health, mental health, etc.).

BILL NOBLITT

Politics

Of these efforts, Lt. Gov. Green says: "I am concerned that the public will interpret the reshuffling of state agencies and personnel as acts that are politically motivated." He believes they were, but thinks the next General Assembly can "take a look and see if it is all right, and if not, make it work."

In education, four major goals were accomplished: a crash reading program for lower grades, putting an aide in every classroom; competency testing before a high school diploma will be passed out; testing regularly with results to be made public; and the Community Schools Act of make schools more a part of the community and vice versa.

Will any of the school actions or reorganization steps work? Only time will tell.

Among other plusses in the legislative ledger—in a session which members admit was most frustrating, but on balance did a lot of good work—prisons got all the money they felt could be properly used to solve problems of overcrowding; first steps in "sunset legislation" to weed out unneeded state agencies were taken; the death penalty was re-instituted for murder; pornography was given two solid whacks in a legislative reflection of public sentiment against spreading display of sex material; the Utilities Commission was revamped in efforts to protect consumers; and public voting was set on road and water bonds, gubernatorial succession, and several other constitutional amendments.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Face Of Black Africa

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

LIBREVILLE, Gabon —

The recently concluded African summit here posed this seeming paradox: while lionizing Idi Amin and choosing Communist-backed guerrillas to rule Rhodesia, the conference was actually dominated by conservatives worried about deepening Soviet penetration in Africa.

The Organization of African Unity's (OAU) annual meeting, therefore, revealed this face for black Africa: no real regard for human rights; irrepressible enjoyment in kicking the white man around; a right-of-center orientation that views the Kremlin's African offensive with far more gravity than does Andy Young.

This disagreement about the Soviet threat is not the only difference between the reality at Libreville and the Carter administration's idealization. Apart from coincidental agreement on Rhodesia, the black Africans here have no more interest in President Carter's crusade for world human rights than does Moscow or Pretoria.

While Amin and Rhodesia dominated the headlines, the Libreville summit moved rightward from OAU meetings of recent years. The conference went on record, though euphemistically, against spreading Soviet interference in African affairs. An Algerian effort to muddy the language picked up only 18 votes (including the five "front-line" states) out of 49.

U.S. diplomats, discreetly watching from the corridors here, attributed this rejection of the radical bloc to new U.S. initiatives against white minority rule in southern Africa. Hardly anybody else agreed. Rather, the Russian hand in last spring's rebel invasion of Zaire has set most of the continent — especially French-speaking Africa — eyeing the Russian bear with suspicion.

But the triumph here by Uganda's President Amin shows anti-Soviet attitudes do not mean African leaders are with the West in heart or mind. Not only was Marshal Amin cheered whenever he set foot into the conference center, but his comic opera allegation of a Western plot to kill him and other African leaders drew sustained applause. Amin's colleagues said nothing about mass murder in Uganda. Nor would they say a word against him privately to reporters.

The giveaway was the delighted laughter and applause with which Amin's self-description as "conqueror of British imperialism" was greeted. "Any policy that belittles the white man will always find favor with the black African," an Arab African delegate confided to us.

Delight with Amin's twisting of the poor old British lion's tail is not mitigated by concern that the splendidly uniformed marshal kills people. Nor were the statesmen here interested in lesser crimes against humanity: an accelerating level of killings by Ethiopia's militant leftist regime; slave labor in Equatorial Guinea; political repression in Burundi, Guinea, and in varying degrees in other countries throughout Africa.

Save for Somalia's complaint about Ethiopian genocide, none of this was considered by the four-day summit. Therefore, a controlling principle in Africa: human rights are violated only if a white man abuses a black man; a black man repressing, imprisoning another black man is worthy of no attention.

While everybody expressed outrage against Rhodesia's white minority government, there was early opposition when the "front-line" states wanted to anoint Communist-backed "patriotic front" guerrillas as rulers of the future Zimbabwe. Senegal and other french-speaking countries worried about additional Marxist influence in southern Africa that would deepen Soviet penetration.

Strength For Today

NOTHING BUT THE GRACE OF GOD

In his old age the great British man of letters, Dr. Samuel Johnson, said: "I have been resolving all these 55 years. Now I take hold on God."

From beginning to end the Bible teaches that there is nothing upon which we can rely for our permanent welfare but the grace of God. When we enjoy good fortune, it is the gift of God; as we pass through trouble, the gift of God's grace is the only firm support.

Dr. Johnson tried for 55 years to improve his life by good resolutions. At the end of that time, he concluded that such procedure was futile. He would cast himself upon God; he would take hold of him, as Jacob seized the celestial figure of Jacob and declared that he would not let him go until Jacob received a blessing.

When we conclude that we are nothing and that God is all, and when we submit our hearts in the light of this conclusion, then God's grace is ready to operate for our everlasting benefit.

MUST BE EVEN BETTER THAN WE THOUGHT!

Driven By His Ideas

By KEN ALLEN

Associated Press Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

David Gutman finally perfected his pedestrian-catching bumper. He doesn't own a car, so Gutman bolted the bumper to a kitchen table and ran headlong into the object.

"It works. It works good. It pushes in, then pushes right back out," Gutman said.

Gutman, 66, is one of thousands of backyard inventors, people with ideas for doing something and the mechanical ability to carry them out. Many of these latter-day Thomas Edisons troop to the U.S. Patent Office to register their creations as officially their own.

Gutman is a Russian who moved here 25 years ago from New York, where he had worked in a machine shop. His inventions include a fire escape that lowers a person to the ground, a nail guide that prevents battered thumbs and two car bumpers designed to protect pedestrians.

"I don't drive," Gutman said, explaining why he spends so much time on bumpers to protect pedestrians. "I used to, but I'd get lost or I'd lose the car or something. So now I walk."

Gutman's inventions, like many designed in backyard workshops, are unusual in appearance. Take the car bumper.

The first one, patented in 1960, was a complicated system of springs and rods that ran out and embraced the pedestrian struck by a car. Although Gutman approached several companies, no one bought the idea.

The latest bumper is simpler, consisting of two tempered steel rods that

Now A Full Confession

WASHINGTON—I believe I got myself into a lot of trouble the other day. I wrote a column about Anita Bryant, homosexuals and orange juice. I pointed out that, as noble as Miss Bryant's crusade seemed to her, it wasn't doing anything for Florida orange juice, which she is paid to push.

I suggested that the Florida orange juice people, who were concerned about their product, have two sets of TV commercials—one featuring Miss Bryant and the other starring a homosexual spokesperson who would keep the gay side drinking orange juice.

The last line of the column was, "I would do it myself, but unfortunately I can't carry a tune."

The day the article appeared, I was besieged with telephone calls wanting to know in essence "whether I was coming out of the closet."

The first call came at 9 in the morning and was from a television station in New York. I heard my secretary Jeannie Aylor's end of the conversation. Jeannie is British, which may have had something to do with her responses.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Buchwald is very gay. He laughs all the time... You weren't talking about that kind of gay? What kind of gay were you talking about? Oh, that kind of gay... Well, I really can't say... He never acts too gay... He's more of a male chauvinist-type person, if you know what I mean..."

"I really don't know what he meant in the last sentence of his article. I'm sure he didn't mean it in the way you're taking it... No, I don't know what he does after work..."

He's married and has three children—is that of any help?... It doesn't mean anything?... It could mean he's a closet homosexual, you say?... Well, we don't have a closet in the office, so I'm sure you must be wrong... I would suspect he was just pulling your leg... No, you can't speak to him... Why? Because he isn't gay now—he's in a very foul mood. Thank you."

A few minutes later the phone rang again. Jeannie answered, "No, I'm terribly sorry, Mr. Buchwald will be unable to address your Gay Liberation Rally... He'll be away all summer."

The rest of the calls were more or less in the same vein, asking whether I was declaring myself publicly for the first time and, if not, why I offered to be the spokesperson for the gays if I wasn't one? So, to set the record straight and to stop the telephone calls, I shall have to explain what I have always considered a very private matter.

I am in fact a closet heterosexual—that is to say, I sit in a closet a lot and think about the joy of heterosexual activity. I more or less follow the philosophy of President Carter as explained in his interview in Playboy magazine. For reasons which I can only blame on an unhappy childhood, I lust in my heart after the opposite sex. I've always been this way, and I can't help it.

It's not much fun being a closet heterosexual because you always live in deathly

40 Years Ago Today

July 13, 1937

The greatest war air force ever assembled for a peacetime mission — 63 planes — was poised today ready to skim along the mid Pacific equator in the navy's last search for Amelia Earhart, missing 11 days.

If weather conditions are favorable the planes will zoom from the aircraft carrier Lexington to survey an area of 36,000 square miles, centering about Howland Island.

It was here, a dot of land rising only two feet above the water, the aviatrix and her navigator, Frederick Noonan, aimed for when they took off from Lae, New Guinea, a flight of 2,570 miles.

Five Japanese bombers, Chinese sources reported today, bombed the Nanyang barracks and airdrome eight miles south of Peiping.

The aerial attacks, according to the Chinese informants, occurred between 3 and 4 p.m. (2 and 3 a.m. EST).

General Sung Cheh-Yuan's 29th Chinese route army forced a heavily supported detachment of Japanese troops to retreat toward their base after they had been driven back on Peiping's southern wall in two hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

Business Cares Take A Siesta

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the two months following Independence Day, when the days are humid and customers are vacationing, the cares of business sometimes take a siesta.

This little midsummer nap of buyer and seller often appears clearly in the mix of retail sales, in the number of corporate announcements, in business decisions postponed, in the pace of stock market activity.

One day this week an oldtime broker on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange was sitting at his post, knees crossed, the daily newspaper crossword puzzle occupying his attention.

A slip of paper was presented to him, perhaps an order, which he accepted without looking up from his puzzle and, without turning, handed back over his shoulder to a clerk. The empty blocks on the puzzle were more important.

But the sometimes dull days of summer do not mean businessmen cease worrying. Not everything is put off until Labor Day. No, they ponder, for example, what is to become of OSHA. And they busy themselves with its paperwork.

OSHA is the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, and according to some of its many critics, it has brought more harassment to business than safety and health to workers.

The Bureau of National Affairs, a private, Washington-based group that publishes legal, economic and other information for business, recently conducted a survey of 124 personnel executives to determine the impact of the act.

It concluded from the answers:

"To date, OSHA's impact has been in the costs of protective equipment ('thousands of dollars on guard rails') and in the additional reports and record keeping to conform to government requirements."

"As far as any noticeable effect on safety performance is concerned, however, less than one quarter of the companies represented... indicate OSHA has had any impact on their safety record."

While laboring over OSHA's paperwork, retailers all across the country are concerned about another puzzle: Just what is the significance to them of all those houses that are being sold?

If you combine the sale of existing homes (call them resales if you prefer) with those for new homes, you come up with figures that have never been matched. During the cold first quarter, the annual rate was 4.3 million.

In the past, manufacturers and retailers of carpeting, draperies, appliances, furniture — even grass seed — could expect strong sales to follow a surge in housing, because those homes must be made liveable.

However, they are now being told by some economists that the consumer has already extended himself too far and probably won't want to — or maybe cannot — take on additional debt. He'll need to build savings instead.

"I DIDN'T GET NO JUSTICE" — Mrs. Victoria Price Street stands in front of the Federal Building in Winchester, Tenn. after U.S. District Court Judge Charles Neese ruled that NBC did not libel Mrs. Street in the television movie, "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys". Mrs. Street told reporters "I didn't get no justice", while her attorney Raymond Fraley (right) stands by her side. (AP Wirephoto)

NBC Cleared In $6 Million Libel Suit

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer
WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. has been cleared of any liability in a $6 million libel suit brought against it over a movie, but the plaintiff says she will fight the decision.

After four days of federal court testimony, Judge Charles G. Neese of U.S. District Court dismissed the case for what he said was a lack of evidence showing NBC to have libeled Victoria Price Street, the plaintiff.

The suit was filed over NBC's television movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys."

"There is no evidence of any fault against NBC," Judge Neese said. "The only way anyone could find a verdict against NBC would be through speculation, guessing."

Mrs. Street, the main witness and one of the alleged victims in the famed north Alabama "Scottsboro Boys" rape case of the 1930s, filed her suit in federal court as a diversity of citizenship action.

She contended that the network libeled her in its movie by suggesting she lied during the rape trials which sent nine black men to prison for a total of 130 years.

"I didn't tell any lies in Scottsboro and I didn't tell any lies here," said Mrs. Street, now the 70-year-old wife of a Tennessee tobacco tenant farmer, after the suit was dismissed.

"I'm going to fight it," Raymond W. Fraley, one of Mrs. Street's attorneys, said the case would be appealed to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati and another suit might be filed against Tomorrow Entertainment Inc. of Hollywood, Calif.

That firm, an independent California film company, bought the movie rights to the book "Scottsboro—A Tragedy of the American South," produced the film, and sold it to NBC. But only NBC was named in the suit.

A scriptwriter, John McGreevy of North Hollywood, Calif., testified he invented dialogue in which Mrs. Street was called a whore, a bum, and a perjurer.

"The plaintiff seems to be laboring under the misapprehension that if she had shown she has been defamed, she is entitled to an award of damages without any showing by her of fault on the part of the defendant," the judge said.

Under Tennessee law, the plaintiff must prove that libel has been done. Mrs. Street, who was not considered a public figure, had only to "prove negligence."

But Don Wyatt, another of Mrs. Street's attorneys, argued the network was clearly at fault for showing the movie a second time last January after Mrs. Street filed suit objecting to an airing in April 1976.

"That's not simple negligence," he said. "That's willful, reckless, and wanton disregard of this plaintiff's rights."

At 11 trials from 1931 to 1937, Mrs. Street, then Miss Victoria Price, testified that she and a companion, Ruby Bates, had been raped by the nine black men on March 25, 1931. She claimed the rape took place as they hitched a ride on a freight train from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Huntsville, Ala.

The movie dealt with one trial in 1933 in Decatur, Ala., in which Judge James E. Horton of Circuit Court sacrificed his career by granting one of the men a new trial with a scathing speech in which he called Victoria Price's testimony uncorroborated and implausible.

The movie declared that both victims died in 1961, but that section was deleted in the second showing of the "docu-drama," a production in which real characters are depicted but entire scenes are dramatized and dialogue is invented.

Robert Campbell, chief attorney representing NBC, said he was relieved by the directed verdict.

"I was afraid that a jury might feel you could not broadcast a program about real people," he explained.

Woman Reports Her Abduction

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A young woman has told authorities she was tied to a tree and forced to watch two men who had abducted her perform homosexual acts.

Sherry D. Davis, 20, of Durham was abducted July 3 when her car was stopped by another vehicle with a flashing blue light. The two men got into her car and forced her to drive to a rural part of Cabarrus County.

Durham County Sheriff Marvin Davis, her uncle, said she was unwilling to tell of what she witnessed because she was ashamed. She was found bound and gagged July 4 in the trunk of her car on a rural dead end road. She had not been robbed or molested.

On Monday, she took investigators to spot near a river where she had been forced to view the sex acts performed by the men.

fear that someone is going to find out about you. The only trouble with coming out of the closet and admitting your true sexual preference these days is that women will start calling you terrible names.

While I have nothing against gays, it's... impossible for me to be one. I hate men. They have hair on their faces, knobby knees, and they're full of themselves. Unlike Will Rogers, I've never met a man I really liked.

Some people may accuse me of protesting too much. This is not the case. I just hate to confuse readers and have them spend all their time wondering what I do in my closet.

I have to admit, by offering to be the gay spokesperson for Florida orange juice, I'm responsible for some of the confusion. The reason I did it was that I was so worried about the Florida orange juice industry, and the effect Miss Bryant's recent campaign was having on it, that I volunteered my services without thinking through what it meant.

I didn't realize that so many people would start wondering about what I did with my evenings. I'm sorry to disappoint the gay people, and I'm ashamed I kept my heterosexual past to myself all these years.

Now that it's out in the open, I feel much better about it. My secretary Jeannie does, too.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, the only "front-line" chief here, turned the tide. Working behind the scenes, Kaunda convinced his colleagues that their endorsement would prevent Angolan-style civil war in Zimbabwe after Ian Smith's regime falls.

But if the summit endorsed the "patriotic front" with lingering misgivings about its Communist support, the notion of proclaiming one-party control for Zimbabwe without benefit of elections certainly did not bother the conservatives — typically the host president, Omar Bongo of Gabon.

Intimately allied with France and on good terms with the U.S., Bongo welcomes private enterprise, deplors the presence of the Russian-backed Cubans in Africa and opposed the invasion of Zaire. He also conducts authoritarian one-man government, spending $1 billion (nearly half the gross national product) in prepping up Libreville for the summit.

A minor incident on the summit's closing night reflects the troubling mood here. A white hotel clerk told a black man not to be so rude in complaining about elevator service. The black man was a Gabonese cabinet minister, who promptly had the hotel employee physically seized by a security officer and thrown in jail for the night. That brought into everyday life the overtones of authoritarianism and racism evoked by the conference. Jimmy Carter would not have felt at home in Libreville.

Gloomy Forecast For N.C. Tobacco, Corn

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lower yields than last year are predicted for Tar Heel tobacco and corn crops this season and it may be even worse than is forecast.

The gloomy news was released Tuesday by the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service which said tobacco would be down 14 per cent and corn down 6 per cent.

But, the service said, the prediction was based on a survey of North Carolina farms on July 1 and weather between then and harvest will have an effect. So far, that weather has been hot and dry, damaging crops still further.

In actual yield, the reporting service said tobacco — North Carolina's leading cash crop — would be 124 million pounds below last year's yield. Corn crops this year will hit 142 million bushels, down 6 per cent from 1976, the survey showed.

In other crops, the reporting service predicted wheat production would be down 13 per cent from last year, hitting six million bushels. The oat yield was seen to be 3.4 million bushels, down 6 per cent; barley at 2.4 million bushels, up 2 per cent; rye at 418,000 bushels, up 10 per cent; apples at 290 million pounds, up 9 per cent; peaches at 35 million pounds, up 40 per cent from the freeze damaged crop last year.

Some 382,000 acres of flue-cured tobacco will be harvested this season, the reporting service said. That is 13 per cent less than 1976. In addition, the per acre yield is expected to drop 26 pounds from last year's 1,986 pounds.

By types, the predictions are: type 11 (Old and Middle belts) 288 million pounds, down from 339 million last year; type 12 (Eastern belt) 372 million pounds, down from 434 million last year; and type 13 (Border belt) 99 million pounds, down from 110 million last year.

Concern Over Rising Tension

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, uneasy about accelerating tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union, is beginning two days of talks on the subject with President Carter and other administration officials.

Schmidt was flying to Washington today, with a welcoming ceremony arranged on the White House south lawn. Carter will offer a black tie dinner tonight in honor of the West German leader.

Schmidt, who favors a cautious approach with the Soviet Union on the subject of human rights, is known to believe that Carter has been unnecessarily provocative on the issue.

Of particular concern to Schmidt is the possibility that a further deterioration in East-West relations could jeopardize the continued flow of ethnic Germans in Eastern Europe back to West Germany.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, July 13, 1977—7

Since the Helsinki agreement was signed two years ago, some 60,000 ethnic Germans have emigrated back home, the result of quiet negotiations with eastern bloc countries.

Officials said the disagreement between Schmidt and Carter is tactical, not philosophical. The two men first met two months ago at the time of the London economic summit.

Schmidt, who flew here after a visit to Canada, ends his official activities Thursday with a speech at the National Press Club after a second White House meeting with Carter and a breakfast session with members of Congress.

Housewife Records Automated Response On Phone

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — When Ohio Bell Telephone Co. workers walked off the job for a few days last year, one woman's voice worked on, handling thousands of calls 24 hours a day, answering each with the same impeccable voice:

"The number you have called ... has been changed. The new number is... Please make note of it." Or one of a score of other messages, coupled with precise, instantaneous information on the number you dialed. If you are a normal telephone user in a Bell Telephone system almost anywhere, the same voice speaks to you regularly, when you dial nonworking numbers. Audichron Co., Atlanta, Ga., makes the recordings for telephone and other systems. The firm says the same voice talks to more people in one day than any other human in the world. She is Jane Barbe, an Atlanta housewife, and when you talk to her on the telephone she has the same charming manner that comes through on Ohio Bell's Automated Intercept System — AIS — or the "time at the tone" message used by hundreds of telephone exchanges around the country. In addition to making AIS recordings "in bits and pieces that the computer puts together," she said, she does time and temperature recordings, commercials and service information recordings for other agencies, including one for television.

For the AIS system put together by Western Electric, the Bell system's technical arm, Mrs. Barbe records individual numerals, one to zero, plus a series of message fragments such as "in the 614 area," "in the Canton area," and so forth. These are recorded on electronic chips mounted in two 20-inch computer drums. Martin Svensen, who watches over the AIS in the Ohio Bell equipment center in Cleveland, plugged a phone in one of the chips.

"One, one, one, one, one..."

Jane's voice says over and over. He switches in another chip which says "one, one, one," but with a dropping inflection — used when the numeral is at the end of a phrase. The heart of AIS is housed in a cabinet the size of a household refrigerator. Svensen says the memory in the system has about 600,000 telephone numbers in the northeast Ohio area which require information from the intercept system.

Before the system was installed six years ago — the third to go in around the country — the job was handled by operators. Now, when you call a discontinued or changed number, your call is switched automatically into AIS. It finds the number and keys in the magnetic chips in the proper sequence faster than you can say, "look in the book."

And it does it so smoothly, it almost sounds as though Mrs. Barbe is on the phone talking to you. The only thing missing is the Southern accent, which she doesn't let creep into recordings.

Ohio Bell public relations executive Charles Day said Mrs. Barbe's voice provides all the information a live operator could. "If you stay on the line, a live operator will come in," he said, "but all she can do is look in the records and give you the same information that's in the AIS memory." "You know," Day observed, "they say if the telephone companies hadn't changed from cord boards to dial phones there wouldn't be enough women in the country to handle all the boards." The spread of AIS — eliminating hundreds of intercept operators — can be measured by the amount of work Mrs. Barbe does at Audichron. "I'm recording messages for new installations constantly," she said. Svensen said recordings in the AIS drum here have been revised only once since they were installed in 1971.

Mrs. Barbe and her husband have two children, David, 13, and Susan, 15. What do they think about hearing her voice so many places? "They kid me about it," she said. "Somebody'll come in and say, 'What time is it?' And they say, 'Don't anybody ask Mom, or she'll do a number for us.'" curve down and out from the bumper. The rods are connected by a crosspiece that theoretically acts as a "cow-catcher," scooping the pedestrian up and onto the hood.

His fire escape, which can also be used as a window washer, drops down one side at a time, with a cam arrangement preventing it from coming down out of control. Gutman tested the crude-looking prototype by descending on it from the roof of his house.

The only invention to make him any money is the nail holder. It is designed primarily for small nails and tacks that can't be held and hammered without damage to the fingers, and Gutman put those into production himself. He said he made about $1,000 — just enough to pay the cost of getting the patent.

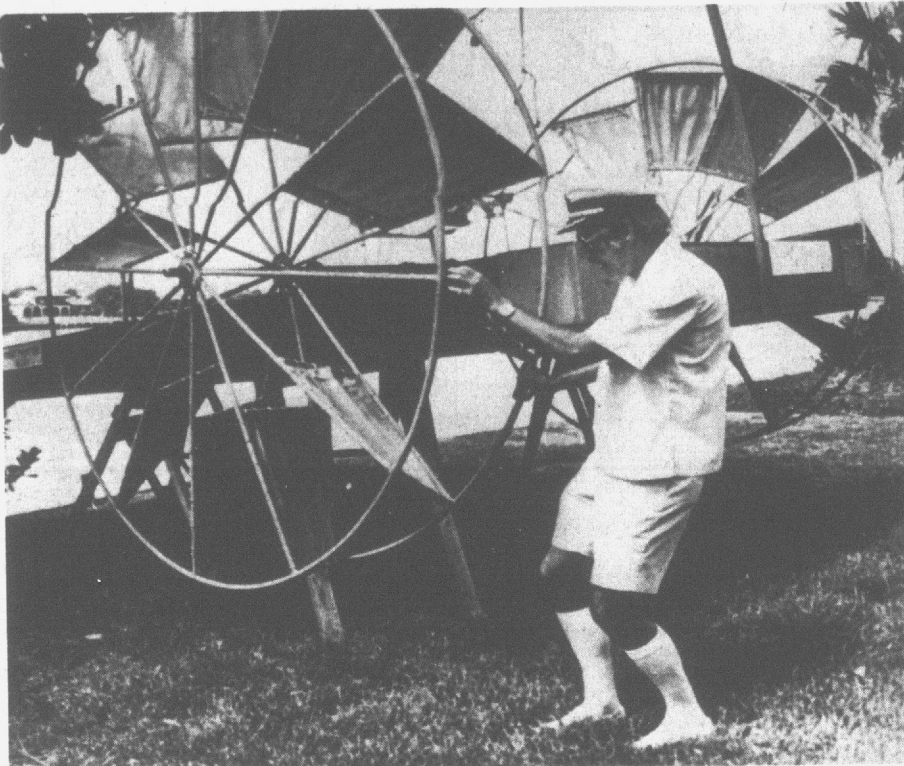

An official of the U.S. Patent office said that about a quarter of the patents issued go to people like Gutman. "The independent inventor is still a force to be reckoned with," said Isaac Fleischmann, director of Information of Services for the U.S. Office of Patents and Trademarks.

"There are some who do make money," he said. "They wouldn't do it if there weren't the promise of some remuneration. There is still a need for inventions."

Fleischmann said the patent office employs 1,000 engineers to investigate the 102,000 applications made each year. It takes about 18 months to get a patent, although they can be granted in as few as nine months for environmental and energy-saving products.

"All an invention has to do to be patented is to meet our three criteria: It must be new. It must be an invention, that is, the inventor must know what he is doing. And the invention must have some practical use," Fleischmann said.

PADDLE POWER — Inventor Paul Vaughn, in Miami, Fla., checks out a contraption that he hopes will lead to cheap electricity from the Gulf Stream. Using paddlewheels, a small generator, bicycle chain and wheels, the gadget gets its power from the flow of the Gulf Stream, and generates electricity. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 30 and July 1, the days preceding the current July 4th recess.

HOUSE

DOUBLE DIPPING Adopted, 219 for and 174 against, an amendment permitting retired military personnel to draw their military pensions at the same time they held civilian jobs with the federal government. The legality of drawing both a military pension and a civilian pay check (called "double dipping") was reaffirmed by this amendment. The amendment was attached to the defense appropriations bill (HR 7933), later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Bob Wilson (R-Calif.), sponsor of the amendment, said that the proposed abolition of double-dipping would "have a devastating effect on the quality and quantity of people willing to dedicate their lives to a military career." He added, "People are still the most important element of defense, and any denigration in this area will directly affect our national security."

Rep. Robert Glaimo (D-Conn.) an opponent, said: "We are paying $9 billion a year... in military pensions" and that the proposal to outlaw double dipping "says that if you are getting a military pension from the government, and if you go to work for that same government, you do not draw both your pay and your pension."

Members voting "yea" favored the continuance of double-dipping.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted

"nay."

DEFENSE BUDGET — Adopted, 288 for and 119 against, an amendment to permit military guard and reserve units to continue to utilize "dual-service technicians." The admendment eliminated from the defense appropriations bill a proposed phasing out of the practice. It was attached to HR 7933, the fiscal 1978 defense appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

So-called dual-service technicians are federal civil service employees (such as mechanics or bookkeepers) who also belong to a national guard or reserve unit, and who perform their civilian job also for their military unit.

They are paid separately for their civilian and military duties. There are an estimated 65,000 dual-service technicians. Authors of the defense appropriations bill opposed this hiring of civilian technicians by reserve and guard units, saying only active-duty military personnel should be employed in these jobs. This would save $350 million annually and eliminate strike-prone unionized civilian workers from involvement in a war effort.

Members voting "nay" opposed the hiring of dual-service technicians.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and

Gudger voted "yea."

SENATE

Neutron BOMB—Vote 43 for and 42 against, to appropriate money for beginning production of neutron warheads for U.S. missiles. The approval is subject to President Carter signalling a ahead for production and complying with congressional reporting requirements.

The amendment was attached to HRE 7553, an appropriations bill still pending when the Senate began its July 4th recess. It blunted an effort to eliminate neutron warhead money from the bill.

The neutron bomb is an "enhanced-radiation" weapon which kills primarily by radiation. Because it has less heat and blast than present nuclear warheads it is said to do less damage to natural and man-made environments.

Virtually all support for the amendment, and thus for the bomb, was expressed as classified information during a rare closed session of the Senate.

One opponent, Sen. Dick Clark (D-Iowa), said: "Let us make no mistake. This is a nuclear warhead. The fact that it manages to reduce blast and thermal impact while maintaining the same level of lethal neutron radiation hardly qualifies it as a 'clean' weapon, except, I guess, to those among us nowadays for whom the words 'kilotons' and 'megatons' seem to have lost their terrible meaning."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

PUBLIC WORKS—Rejected, 34 for and 52 against, an amendment to eliminate funding of various water resources projects that President Carter wants killed. Had this amendment been adopted, the Senate would have terminated all water projects on Carter's "hit list." Its defeat kept alive nine of the 18 projects that Carter opposes. It was proposed to HR 7553, an appropriations bill awaiting final Senate action.

Sen. Thomas McIntyre (D-N.H.), sponsor of the amendment, said: "We have to be realistic and recognize the hard fact that the federal government is facing a deficit of $60 to $70 billion. Proponents of some of these projects say we cannot take our supply of water for granted. But we cannot take our supply of money for granted, either."

Sen. Milton Young (R-N.D.), an opponent, said the McIntyre amendment "would delete seven excellent water projects which have been very carefully reviewed by the Senate Committee on Public Works Appropriations. Many of these projects were multi-purpose. They provide flood control, hydro-electric power generation municipal water supply and irrigation and recreation."

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

EXPERIMENTAL BOTTLE — Using a process developed by Dow Chemical Co., the Adolph Coors Co. of Golden, Colo. is making this plastic beer bottle which eventually could replace today's cans and glass bottles. The bottles, which have yet to be approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, will be returnable. (AP Wirephoto)

Stomach Operation Won't Disturb Digestion

My mother had part of her stomach removed. She is almost completely recovered. Can you explain to us how good digestion can continue without the stomach intact? — John H., N.J.

Dear John:

The most important reason for the removal of a part of the stomach is the presence of an ulcer that has become complicated.

Less common are tumors, cancerous and noncancerous, that necessitate some form of stomach surgery.

"Partial gastrectomy" is the technical term for the operation. It is remarkable how the portion of the stomach that is left can still continue to play an active part in the digestion of food. Actually, the salivary juices in the mouth begin that process.

The stomach itself churns food and breaks it into smaller particles. The stomach juices and acid continue the early process of the digestion of food. It is not commonly realized that the major part of digestion actually takes place in the small intestine. Here, and in the large intestine, nutrients from the food are absorbed for body function.

When a portion of the stomach is removed, brilliantly designed surgical operations connect the remaining portion of the stomach with a loop of intestine. By this means almost normal digestion continues uninterrupted.

With carefully regulated diet and the special avoidance of overloading the remaining portion of the stomach, your mother need not anticipate disturbing problems.

My sister has a collection of dream books that she orders from magazines. She's always asking people about their dreams and then tells them what the dreams mean. Many times she frightens people. I've never believed in this stuff, but I can't convince her. — Miss L.H., Tex.

Dear Miss H.:

Your sister is playing a game that can induce unnecessary fears. The interpretation of dreams is a very complicated process. It should not be played as a parlor game by amateurs. Actually, the understanding of dreams has occupied the attention of scientists for many years. Experts in the field of psychiatry and psychology are the only ones who are trained and qualified in the interpretation of dreams.

They evaluate a dream in terms of the conflicts, emotional background and general personality of each individual patient.

Your sister's friends are aiding and abetting her by falling into her trap and recalling their dreams to her. When they stop, she will, too.

ALL GONE — Mrs. Ouida Parsons, Tecumseh, Okla., stands in what remains of her once beautiful flower garden. Last month, local authorities discovered that the beautiful poppies Mrs. Parsons had been growing for the past 40 years were, unknown to her, opium poppies. The field had to be destroyed. (AP Wirephoto)

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Rulers, corkscrews, manual adding machines, diaper pins, checkbooks, school notebooks, scissors, garden hand tools, can openers and most auto ash trays.

All those items have one thing in common: most are designed to be used by right-handed persons.

Shop owner Lynn Sherkow would like to see that changed. Her store, Left Hand Ltd., sells hundreds of items for southpaws.

"I'm a hard-core lefty," Miss Sherkow said in an interview. "I never use my right hand for anything."

"I can't drive a stick shift car. I roll the window down instead of up. I screw out the light bulb instead of screwing it in. I'm always uncapping the jar instead of capping it."

"I won't even take a pot out of the oven with my right hand because I don't have the strength."

Miss Sherkow said she opened the shop last year to promote items designed for lefties because of the frustration of living in a world designed for right-handers and because of misconceptions about them. She said estimates place the total of left-handed Americans at 18 million, but the number is probably a lot higher because no one keeps statistics.

"I am 30 years old and nobody has ever asked me if I'm left-handed."

She puts lefties in three classes: "hard-core," those who have to do everything left-handed; "cynical lefties," who have learned to adapt, and "closet lefties" who were forced to use their right hands as children.

"Some even had their left hand tied down to make them use the right."

Many persons also feel being left-handed is somehow connected to evil, she said.

"There are 36 references in the Bible that God is right-handed. That means the devil is left-handed. You 'sit at the right hand of God,' and you say things like 'right on,' because you don't want to be 'left out.' And 'right makes might!'"

Many people have serious problems, she said, because

Valium Sale Is Debated

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A hospital pharmacist continues his fight today to clear himself of charges he lost track of thousands of valium tablets.

Paul H. White, chief pharmacist at Catawba Memorial Hospital, is standing trial here for allegedly failing to keep proper records on 47,000 tablets of the tranquilizer, a controlled substance under federal law.

A federal drug enforcement agent, Thomas R. Foresio, testified Tuesday that he audited hospital records last year and could not account for 38,000 of the missing tablets.

Foresio said White told him no records were kept at the hospital while a computerized accounting system was being installed.

But Allen A. Bailey, White's attorney, said the valium could be accounted for with hospital financial records, which he said would show all sales of the drug to patients.

Foresio said he did not look for records of the missing drug among financial accounts, which he said did not qualify under the law as a "readily retrievable record."

White is free under $1,000 bond and has remained in his job since his indictment last August.

Birth Control...

Schindler, who is producing the materials for the test implants, said even relatively minor side effects, like nausea, "show something is happening in the body which should not be."

"Ultimately, we'd like to do what the body does — deliver its own drug on command, then cut it off," said Pitt. The capsule implant is one step in that direction.

The researchers are working on a procedure where the contraceptives will be implanted in a plastic-like, flexible polymer tube that can be inserted through an incision or by a large hypodermic needle in the buttock.

Pitt said the dose released by a capsule made of the polymer can be controlled by varying the length of the capsule and the thickness of its wall.

But scientists still have to deal with the problem of what happens to the capsule after it's released all the medication inside. Leaving the capsule in the body could lead to hazards too, Pitt said, and removing it surgically is more difficult than putting it in.

The researchers are probing for a substance that will biodegrade, or break down naturally, in the system when the drug is exhausted.

They have found two polymers which seem promising. They release the drug at a controlled rate, biodegrade at the right rate, and show no signs of causing toxicity or irritation in the body. And they have been tested successfully in rats and rabbits, Pitt said.

Researchers still face the problem of side effects. The new delivery system has been under study for four years. Their next step is to begin toxicological trials on any side effects or reactions. In about two years, Pitt hopes to begin clinical trials on human volunteers.

Drugs used in testing the delivery system will be those already approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

"It's a slow but hopefully sure process," he said.

Dr. Thomas Marks, head of animal studies for the project, said there would not be any mass experiments on the American people, and said researchers were prepared to learn that some women cannot use the system.

"No matter what agent you develop, there will be problems," he said.

The doctors said they were not sure which hormone would eventually be used inside the capsules. They are now working with progesterone, but Pitt said they may end up using a combination of progesterone and estrogen.

Both are the hormones which control reproduction. Pitt said the actual choice of hormone is in the hands of scientists working on another phase of the project.

"What we're developing here is a drug delivery system," Pitt said. "It's applicable to the pharmacy area in general."

Abuse Trial Is Starting

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Two teachers are to go on trial in district court here Monday on child abuse charges stemming from the alleged paddling of a 10-year-old pupil that raised "severe bruises."

The charges against Mrs. Patricia C. Meshaw of Clarkston and Mrs. Carolyn D. Scoggins of White Lake were filed by investigators for the Bladen County department of social services.

The pupil, Sandra Marie Adcox, was a fifth-grade student in a combined fifth and sixth grade class the two women were teaching as a team.

According to a summons filed against the pair, each of the women struck the girl 10 times, resulting in "severe bruising of the buttocks."

The girl's parents took her to a doctor, who reported the bruises to social services officials. The investigation and misdemeanor charges followed. "I'm not opposed to spanking in the schools," said Walter Adcox, the girl's father. "I've always supported the school system and the school teachers."

But Adcox said that in light of the severity of his daughter's bruises, he was in favor of pressing the charges against the teachers.

School Supt. W.J. Hair said the school system had no special policy on corporal punishment, but tried to familiarize teachers and principals with court decisions related to spanking and paddling.

He said no official action had been taken against the teachers in advance of their trial.

WINGATE, N.C. (AP) — By a 14-2 vote, the executive committee of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention general assembly recommended a panel to work on improving relations between the religion and Wake Forest University, supported by the denomination.

Problems stem from last February when Larry Flynt, publisher of the sex-oriented magazine "Hustler," spoke at the university and was given a man of the year award from students.

Billy Will Help George Wallace

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Billy Carter, the President's brother, says he plans to campaign for Alabama Gov. George Wallace in Wallace's race for a seat in the U.S. Senate.

"I'm a George Wallace Democrat," Carter said at a news conference in this Detroit suburb before serving as a judge at a country music contest Tuesday night.

"He asked me to work on his campaign for the Senate because he's a good friend of mine."

What does President Carter, who opposed Wallace in some Democratic primaries last year, think of that?

"I told Jim I was, but he had no comment," said brother Billy.

Billy Carter voted for his brother, he said, "because he's my brother."

Wallace, opposed by many Democrats for his alleged appeal to racial and social divisions, was described by Billy Carter as "the best man in Alabama for the job."

Carter drank beer from paper cups all through the session with reporters and twice kissed Detroit News reporter Ilona Weissman, she wrote. He said, "I like you because you're short." Carter is 5 feet, 8 inches tall. The reporter did not give her height.

Carter appeared at the Great Fair in the Silverdome, an exhibition plagued by low attendance and probably killed ahead of schedule by the withdrawal Tuesday of promoter Gabe Glantz.

Annexation Bid Is Invalidated

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — An inaccurate boundary line along Bogue Sound has resulted in this town's annexation effort being invalidated.

Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse Jr. ruled that the town failed to meet a requirement of state law that boundary lines be accurate. Town officials admitted in a hearing last week that they drew a straight line along the shore because of the difficulty and expense involved in surveying the marshland.

Some property owners in the area to be annexed filed suit in April to block the action claiming that the town's plan exceeded the limit that can be annexed under the law.

EMPLOYMENT IS UP

ATLANTA (AP) — Employment in textile plants in the Southeast increased in May for the third consecutive month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

Campbell Outlasts East Carolina, 9-8

BUIES CREEK — More mental mistakes took East Carolina out of a double play situation in the first inning and allowed Campbell to score five runs and go on to take a 9-8 victory in the Summer Collegiate League last night.

The Pirates, who were bothered by the same type mistakes in their 4-1 loss to North Carolina on Saturday, saw the problems follow them to Campbell last night.

Earlier in the first inning, a double had been erased by a missed base, and then, in the seventh, the Bucs lost the chance to take the lead when a hesitation in base-running cost them a run.

The result pinned Mickey Britt with his third straight loss, despite a 12-strikeout, one walk, seven hit performance. Only six of the runs were earned against him.

East Carolina lost its chance to get something going in the first inning when Eddie Gates, leading off in a shaken-up batting order, opened up with a double. But Gates was called out on appeal for missing first base.

Then, in the bottom of the inning, Campbell got five runs to take the lead. Mo Toner singled and Johnny McLamb grounded to short. A mixup in covering second, however, left the bag open, and what could have been a double play, left both runners safe.

Max Mann followed with a run-scoring single and Gary Buck was hit by a pitch. Dwayne Greene added a double, clearing the bases. Dave Warrick followed with another hit, driving in Greene for the 5-0 lead.

East Carolina quickly rebounded, picking up four runs in the second. Bobby Supel doubled and scored on Macon Moye's single. Tommy Warrick walked and Tommy Cobb doubled in Moye. Gates followed with another double, bringing in both Warrick and Cobb.

In the fourth, the Pirates got another run, tying it at 5-5. Gates again doubled, and Brinkley beat out a bunt single, moving Gates to third. Brinkley stole second, and when the ball was thrown away on the play, Gates trotted home to tie it up. East Carolina scored twice in the fifth to take a 7-5 lead. Moye singled and Pete Paradossi walked. Cobb reached on a bunt single, and an error on the play let Moye score. Kevin Cameron reached on another error, scoring Paradossi.

Campbell came right back with three, taking an 8-7 edge. Toner reached on an error and McLamb walked. Dave Terrill singled in Toner, and Buck reached on an error while attempting to sacrifice, scoring McLamb. Gene Sessions then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Terrill.

East Carolina pushed over the tying run again in the seventh. Paradossi reached on a fielder's choice and Cameron doubled him in. Gates followed with a single, moving Cameron to third. Gates stole second, and at the same time, the Camel pitcher unleashed a wild pitch.

Cameron started in, then hesitated before finally deciding to try to make it home. But by then, it was too late, and he was cut down at the plate.

Terrill then cracked a solo home run in the bottom of the inning, giving Campbell a 9-8 lead which held the rest of the way.

East Carolina is now 10-8 on the year, while Campbell is 6-13. The Pirates return home tonight to play host to Atlantic Christian.

East Carolina Faces Toughest Opposition On Basketball Slate

East Carolina University will embark upon its first independent basketball schedule in 13 years in 1977-78, with 27 games on the slate. And the competition will include some of the nation's finest independent and conference affiliated powers for first-year head coach Larry Gillman.

The Pirates open at the University of Indiana on November 26. Indiana was the national champion for the NCAA in 1976.

Top flight independents on the schedule include the University of South Carolina, Virginia Tech, Old Dominion, LaSalle and Iona.

Among the top conference affiliated schools on the Pirate schedule are the University of Maryland, Duke, N.C. State, North Carolina at Charlotte (one of the nation's final four last year); and the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, the defending NCAA Division II champion.

Tournament competition will come December 9-10 in the inaugural First Union Invitational Tournament in Charlotte, sponsored by First Union National Bank and the Charlotte Jaycees. Teams will include the hosting 49ers of UNC Charlotte, along with LaSalle and Boston College. East Carolina will face LaSalle in the opening round.

The slate includes a total of 15 road games for the Pirates and 12 home contests. Home opponents include Old Dominion, William & Mary, Richmond, Georgia Southern, UT-Chattanooga, Iona, the Athletics in Action, St. Peter's College, UNC-Wilmington, UNC-

Asheville, Alderson-Broadus, and USC-Aiken.

The complete schedule: Nov. 26, at Indiana (4:05 p.m.);

Dec. 1, UNC-Wilmington (7:30); Dec. 5, Alderson-Broadus (7:30); Dec. 7, at Maryland (8:00); Dec. 9-10, at First Union Invitational in Charlotte (UNC Charlotte, LaSalle, Boston College); Dec. 17, at N.C. State (8:00);

Jan. 4, at South Carolina (8:00); Jan. 7, at William & Mary (8:00); Jan. 10, St. Peter's (7:30); Jan. 12, Athletics in Action (7:30); Jan. 17, William & Mary (7:30); Jan. 19, Iona (7:30); Jan. 21, UNC-Asheville (7:30); Jan. 23, at UT-Chattanooga (8:00); Jan. 25, at Georgia Southern (8:00); Jan. 28, at Duke (8:00); Jan. 31, Old Dominion (7:30);

Feb. 4, Richmond (7:30); Feb. 6, UT-Chattanooga (7:30); Feb. 9, at UNC-Wilmington (8:00); Feb. 11, USC-Aiken (7:30); Feb. 14, at Old Dominion (8:00); Feb. 20, Georgia Southern (7:30); Feb. 22, at Richmond (8:00); Feb. 25, at Mercer (8:00);

March 1, at Virginia Tech (8:00).

Senior BR Tournery Set

LITTLEFIELD — The District G Senior Babe Ruth League Tournament opens tonight at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Two divisions of play will be held, for 16-year-olds and for 17-18 year olds.

Only two 16-year-old teams are involved in the double elimination field. Tonight at 6 p.m., Bertie will play the Greenville area team with the two meeting again on Friday, also at 6 p.m.

Should a third game be needed to decide the best-of-three winner, that will be played on Saturday, at a time to be announced.

In the 17-18 age group, Greenville will face Albemarle tonight at about 8 p.m. The winner of that game faces Bertie on Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The two losing teams meet Friday at 8 p.m., with the finals, whether one or two games, being played on Saturday.

The two winning teams will advance to the next level of competition.

Greenville Gains 2nd Win Over Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — Quinn Morris tossed a two-hitter as Greenville pulled off a 3-2 victory over Rocky Mount last night in the Area American Legion finals.

Greenville Post 39 now holds a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series. The two teams skip tonight, and return to action on Thursday at Harrington Field at 8 p.m. A victory by Greenville in that game would wrap up the title and send the team into the divisional finals against the winner of the Cary-Garner series.

Morris, in going all the way, gave up only two hits, a third inning single by J. Worthington and a fifth inning one-bagger by Merrifield. He walked four and struck out four, and hit one batter.

Greenville pounded out nine hits, including two each by Wright Hooks, Kevin Adams and Greg Lee.

And, as they did in the first night's game against Rocky Mount, the Greenville team had to come from behind to win.

Both of the Rocky Mount runs came over in the second inning, while Greenville scored once in the sixth and twice in the eighth. After being retired in order in the first two innings Rocky Mount came up with two runs in the third. Dee Whitley walked and stole second. T. Tucker reached on an error, scoring Whitley, followed with a walk, and a hit by Worthington brought in Tucker for the 2-0 lead.

Rocky Mount moved a man as far as third in the fifth and got a runner to second in the seventh, but could not score again.

Greenville, after leaving the bases loaded in the second, stranded a man on third in the third and left two on in the fourth.

But it was the sixth before Greenville finally scored a run. With one away, Hooks cracked a double and Adams followed with another two-sacker, scoring Hooks to cut the lead to 2-1.

After another threat in the seventh, Greenville finally got the tying and winning runs in the eighth. Again, with one away, they got started. Ned Craft singled and Hooks reached on an error. Lee followed with a double, driving in both runners to give Greenville the lead and the victory.

Should the series continue past Thursday, Friday's game would be played in Rocky Mount, with Saturday's, if needed, back in Greenville.

Officials To Meet

A clinic for football officials will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Elm Street Gymnasium.

The clinic is open to football officials and other people interested in officiating. George Fuller, James Heath and Tom Jamieson will discuss the upcoming season, new rules for junior high, junior varsity and varsity high school games, and other items of concern about the game of football.

The clinics will continue each Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Elm Street Gym for six weeks.

Styons Increases Average, Holds Summer League Batting Lead

Raymie Styons of East Carolina increased his batting average over the week to a fat .453 in leading the Summer Collegiate League for the second straight week.

The race for the batting title, with just three weeks left in the season, would seem to boil down to Styons and North Carolina's Jim Atkinson, batting second with a hefty .430.

Eddie Gates of East Carolina, who led the league two weeks ago and was second last week, dropped to third this time out with a .397 mark. Max Raynor of Louisville, at .380, and Campbell's Dave Terrell, hitting .369, round out the top five.

The Tar Heels continue to roll through the league, running their record to 17-2 overall. Louisville is still second at 14-5, while East Carolina is now 10-7.

Raynor has taken over the lead in two other categories, runs batted in with 22 and home runs with five. Louisville's Nick Dunn continues to lead in doubles with 10, while Bobby Supel of East Carolina held onto the lead in triples with four. Gates still leads in stolen bases with 15.

Louisburg's Lynn Bradley is the leading pitcher with a 1.85 ERA. He's followed by Greg Norris of North Carolina at 2.08 and Bill Lucas of Louisville at 2.13.

Mickey Britt of East Carolina continues as the strikeout king with 54, while Blaine Smith of North Carolina has taken over the lead in victories with a perfect 6-0 record.

East Carolina still leads in team batting with a .302 average, while North Carolina leads in pitching with a 2.79 ERA.

Cage Owners Discuss Case

CHICAGO (AP) — The spectre of an antitrust suit challenging one of the basic principles of operation of the National Basketball Association hung over today's special meeting of the NBA Board of Governors at an O'Hare Airport hotel.

"The operation of the NBA, like the operation of all professional sports leagues, is grounded upon the principle that teams must be accorded exclusive territorial rights within some defined area," said NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien.

The possibility of a challenge to that principle is what led O'Brien to call today's meeting. He wanted to bring the governors up to date on the dispute between the two New York franchises, the Nets and Knicks, a dispute which threatens to blow up into a court case in which the Nets would contest the principle of territorial exclusivity.

"I don't call frivolous special meetings," said O'Brien. "Anything that has the potential impact on professional sports that this does, people must have a chance to ask questions of the Nets, Knicks, me, whoever."

The Nets want to move from Uniondale, N.Y. to New Jersey. The Knicks say a clause in the indemnification agreement signed by the Nets when they entered the NBA last year prohibits them from playing in specific areas, including New Jersey. The Nets signed this agreement, and paid a $4 million indemnity, in order to get the Knicks to waive their 75-mile territorial exclusivity and let the Nets into the league.

The Nets are ready to go to court to challenge this interpretation of the agreement. If they do not get a favorable ruling, then they are prepared to challenge the territorial exclusivity concept, claiming it gives the Knicks a monopoly on pro basketball in the metropolitan New York area and violates federal antitrust statutes.

The league does not like the idea of the territorial concept going before a judge.

"This is the basis upon which 'home team' identification and fan loyalty rest," said O'Brien, "and upon which the investment of millions of dollars necessary to establish, build and maintain a successful sports franchise is predicated. Without this concept, a sports league cannot survive."

The NBA is not a party to the indemnification agreement between the Nets and Knicks, and O'Brien says the league will not get involved if the dispute is over the interpretation of that agreement. But if the Nets go on to challenge the idea of territorial exclusivity, O'Brien said the league would fight such action.

The Nets' move does not require league approval, but their plan to play temporarily at the new 8,500-seat Rutgers University gym does. The Nets have a precedent to point to—the Atlanta Hawks were permitted to play at Georgia Tech while the Omni was being built.

It was expected that the governors would discuss the Rutgers aspect of the Nets' move, with a formal vote considered a possibility.

Swann Hit Was No Surprise

By BILL MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Lynn Swann shouldn't have been surprised when he was clobbered from behind by George Atkinson, former All-Pro receiver Lance Alworth has testified.

"When you do the things Mr. Swann has done, you almost become a marked man," Alworth said during the second day of Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against the Pittsburgh Steelers and Coach Chuck Noll.

"Mr. Swann for the rest of his career is going to be a marked man and will receive a lot more blows," Alworth added. "Football is a violent game and a lot of blows are passed that are almost superhuman."

Alworth, who played 10 years for the San Diego Chargers and Dallas Cowboys, was called to the stand before a U.S. District Court jury to explain what receivers come to expect from the men who defend against them.

"They try to intimidate you in a couple of ways — verbally, in hopes that you will respond and lose your concentration, and physically, by hitting you as much as they think they can get away with," said Alworth, who retired five years ago.

"The better I got the dirtier the players tried to get with me. I thought it was a compliment."

Atkinson filed suit after Noll charged he tried to maim Swann and linked him to a "criminal element" in football. Noll's remarks followed a Sept. 12 Pittsburgh-Oakland National Football League game in which Swann was injured when hit from behind by Atkinson. The Steelers have filed a million-dollar counterclaim for injuries Swann suffered.

Alworth and Atkinson's teammates, Phil Villapiano and Gene Upshaw, all testified Tuesday that there was nothing unusual about the forearm blow Atkinson used to deck Swann.

"I've observed that kind of hit many times," said Alworth. "I don't feel it was any different from many others. That was almost a commonplace hit."

"This is a game where we hit each other," said Upshaw, a 10-year veteran offensive guard. "That's what we're in the game to do. It's not a kissing contest."

"The hit by Atkinson was not unusual," added Villapiano, a linebacker for six years. "I've than 12½ million fans cast votes in All-Star balloting and that enabled five American League players to top the three million mark in votes. The biggest beneficiary of the voting increase was Carew.

The Minnesota first baseman, having his greatest season in an already-illustrious career, gathered 4,292,740 votes, more than any player in the eight-year history of the fan balloting, according to the final tabulations released Tuesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Carew easily outdistanced first base runnerup Chris Chambliss of New York, nearly doubling Chambliss' 2,373,906 votes. Carew received 15,005 votes more than National League-leader Steve Garvey, the Dodgers' first baseman.

Before this season, just three players had reached the three million mark in selections. The two next highest vote-earners in the AL were catchers Carlton Fisk of Boston with 3,476,028 and Thurman Munson of the Yankees with 3,362,177. Outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston and third baseman George Brett of Kansas City also topped the three million plateau.

Joining Yastrzemski in the starting outfield for the game, which will be played July 19 at Yankee Stadium, are Reggie Jackson of the host team and Richie Zisk of the White Sox, who was elected to the AL squad in his first season in the league.

The Yankees' will have another starter in the AL lineup in second baseman Willie Randolph, an easy winner with 2,846,479 selections to 2,053,642 for Don Money of Milwaukee. In the closest race in five years, defending league champion New York just missed having another starter at shortstop when Rick Burleson of Boston edged out Bucky Dent of the Yankees by 3,426 votes. It will be the first start in the game for Burleson.

George Scott, who leads the AL in home runs, finished third in the balloting at first base and RBI leader Larry Hise of Minnesota was a somewhat-overlooked sixth in the outfield voting.

The pitchers and the reserves for the American League team will be announced later this week.

The starting squad for the National League was announced Monday. In addition to Garvey, the Dodgers placed Ron Cey at third base. The defending World Champion Cincinnati Reds had four starters: Johnny Bench behind the plate, Joe Morgan at second, Dave Concepcion at shortstop and George Foster in the outfield.

Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Parker of Pittsburgh join Foster in the outfield.

NCNB, Pepsi In Opening Wins

NCNB and Pepsi-Cola romped to easy victories in the opening games of the Babe Ruth League second season last night. NCNB grabbed a 16-5 win over Carolina Dairy and Pepsi bombed Home Builders, 20-5.

In the first game, NCNB scored two or more runs in every inning but the third and sixth in notching its victory. The team was ahead 5-1 going into the third, but Carolina Dairy cut it to 5-3 in that inning. NCNB added two more runs in the fourth and five in the fifth. CD scored its final two runs in the bottom of the fifth and NCNB rounded out its scoring with four runs in the seventh.

NCNB's winning runs came in the fourth when it extended its lead to 7-3 with a pair of tallies. Steve Hall led off the frame by reaching on an error; he stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Mike Mills walked and stole second and he and Hall were played by Jeff Wilson, who got on by an error.

In the second game, Pepsi-Cola romped to a 12-0 lead in the first inning and had little trouble holding off Home Builders for a 20-5 win in 5½ innings. Junior Neal led off the big first inning by reaching on an error and stealing second and third. Mark Douglas walked and stole second and Billy Dough walked. Al Shackleford singled home Neal and Douglas, while he and Shackleford scored on Mike Thurber's base hit.

Thurber stole second and went to third on a misplay before Jeff Heath walked. Ricky Ullman got a base on balls to load the sacks and Mike Holliman forced Thurber in when he was hit by a pitch.

Neal came up again and knocked Heath in with a base hit and Ullman scored when Mark Douglas singled. Dough reached on a fielder's choice and an error scored Norris and Neal.

Shackleford's fielder's choice scored Douglass, while Dough scored on an error. Shackleford stole third and came in on a wild pitch.

HR Derby Scheduled

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is sponsoring a Home Run Derby at 9 p.m. Monday, July 18.

The derby will be held at Evans Park on field number one. Participants will be divided into three age groups and must be 18 years or older to enter.

Each hitter will get 15 swings from the pitcher of his choice and the person hitting the most balls out of the park will be the winner.

Each participant is expected to bring a new Dudley 12LND softball, which will be returned. All bats must be legal softball bats, no more than 2¼ inches in diameter and 34 inches long.

Deadline for registration for the derby is 5 p.m. on July 15. For more information, contact Jerry Clark of the Recreation and Parks Department at 752-4137, ext. 220.

Fregosi Leading Bucs Back Up

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

Jim Fregosi pulled the third-place Pirates within six games of first-place Chicago in the National League East Tuesday with a 12th-inning homer that lifted Pittsburgh to a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Fregosi, obtained by Pittsburgh from the California Angels June 15, has been in 19 of the Pirates' 27 games since then with a .341 batting average and 11 runs batted in.

While the Pirates were winning, the frontrunning Cubs were losing to the New York Mets 4-2 and the second-place Philadelphia Phillies were moving within four games of first place with a 5-4 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the NL West, the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers increased their lead to 9½ games over runner-up Cincinnati with an 8-0 romp over the Houston Astros while the Reds were bowing to the Atlanta Braves 4-3. In the other game, the San Diego Padres ended San Francisco's six-game winning streak, whipping the Giants 7-3. While Fregosi has expressed delight at being with the Pirates, outfielder Dave Parker has not. Parker, one of the league's leading batters, said Tuesday he was having a problem with the club's management, and if it could not be solved, he wanted to be traded after the season. He did not elaborate.

In addition to Fregosi, Phil Garner homered for Pittsburgh, connecting with one on.

Mets 4, Cubs 2

"It's good to be back on the list of the living," said New York's Jon Matlack after ending a seven-game losing streak with his first victory in two months, against Chicago's Rick Reuschel, the NL's only 12-game winner.

Rookie Steve Henderson's two-run homer—only the fourth off Cubs' relief ace Bruce Sutter in 78 innings—provided the winning margin. Henderson's drive followed a single by Lenny Randle off Reuschel in the eighth.

Phillies 5, Cards 4

Philadelphia rookie Randy

Lerch also gained his first victory in two months, allowing nine hits against St. Louis. Afterward, he said, "How I needed this one. Every game means a lot, but they were getting bigger and bigger each time, trying to break what I call a curse."

The curse seemed to be haunting Lerch again when he surrendered a two-run homer to Mike Tyson in the ninth inning, tying the score 4-4. But in the bottom of the ninth, the Phils scored the winning run when St. Louis right fielder Roger Freed dropped a fly ball.

The Phils' Mike Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, slammed his 26th homer of the season. But Schmidt, who had missed the three previous games with a hairline fracture of the right ring finger, said he did not think he would play the next couple of games because the finger was bothering him again.

Dodgers 8, Astros 0

Los Angeles' Doug Rau spaced four hits for his fifth straight victory and 10th in 11 decisions—the best record in the major leagues—in blanking Houston for his second shutout of the season.

"That's the best game he's pitched all season," said Dodgers' Manager Tom Lasorda. Ted Martinez collected three hits and scored three runs for the Dodgers, who ended a three-game losing streak.

Braves 4, Reds 3

Tom Paciorek's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning produced the winning run and Phil Niekro and Rick Camp collaborated on a five-hitter as Atlanta handed Cincinnati its third straight setback. The victory was the ninth for Niekro since May 17, when he was 0-7.

Padres 7, Giants 3

Jerry Turner drove in three runs, Gene Richards knocked in two and Mike Champion and Dave Winfield each collected three hits, leading San Diego past San Francisco. Dan Spiller saved the victory for rookie Bob Ojwinko with four innings of scoreless relief.

Crawford Gets Bird-Like Salute

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Jim Crawford felt like Mark Fidrych, the way the crowd saluted him. He also looked like Mark Fidrych, the way he pitched.

"It was a nice feeling," the lefthander said in reference to a Fidrych-type ovation he received after Detroit's 2-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Tuesday night.

The crowd of 25,000 at Tiger Stadium had originally come to cheer "The Bird", but the Detroit pitching hero suffered a sore shoulder and was gone from the game with merely two outs in the first inning.

AL Roundup

Crawford came in at this juncture and established his commanding presence right away, silencing the Toronto batters on four singles and no runs the rest of the way.

The Tiger Stadium audience then turned their affection toward Crawford.

They cheered for Crawford to show himself after the game, yelling: "We want Crawford! We want Crawford!" The pitcher eventually came on the field to acknowledge the applause.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Cleveland Indians routed the Boston Red Sox 7-1; the Kansas City Royals turned back the Chicago White Sox 8-3; the New York Yankees beat the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2; the Texas Rangers edged the Baltimore Orioles 4-3; the Oakland A's trimmed the Seattle Mariners 3-2 in 10 innings and the California Angels blanked the Minnesota Twins 3-0.

Indians 7, Red Sox 1

Andre Thornton's two-run

triple and a booming two-run

homer by Charlie Spikes

highlighted a four-run fourth inning that carried Cleveland over Boston.

The Indians raked Boston starter Reggie Cleveland, 7-5, for 10 hits and six runs in 51-3 innings, while Dennis Eckersley picked up his ninth victory against seven losses with relief help from Rick Waits.

Royals 8, White Sox 3

Amos Otis drove in five runs with a two-run homer and bases-loaded triple and John Mayberry hit a towering homer to lead Kansas City over Chicago. Dennis Leonard, 8-9, coasted to his ninth complete game behind the luster attack while Steve Stone, 9-7, took the loss.

Yankees 5, Brewers 2

Willie Randolph scored the decisive run in the third inning, and blasted a two-run homer in the eighth, leading New York over Milwaukee.

Don Gullett, 8-3, and Dick Tidrow, who relieved in the seventh, held the Brewers to four hits as the Yankees broke a three-game losing streak. Milwaukee has lost seven of its last eight games.

Rangers 4, Orioles 3

Toby Harrah lined an RBI single in the bottom of the 10th inning to lead Texas over Baltimore. Harrah's single off Baltimore reliever Dick Drago, 2-2, came after Bert Campaneris walked and moved to third on a perfectly executed hit-and-run play by Juan Beniquez.

The Orioles, who had won 10 of 11 games going into the game, lost a chance to gain first place in the American League East. The victory was the sixth straight for the streaking Rangers.

A's 3, Mariners 2

Jim Tyrone's infield single scored Marty Perez with the winning run in the 10th inning as Oakland defeated Seattle. Enrique Romo, who took over for starter Gary Wheelock, hit Perez with his first pitch. Mitchell Page sacrificed the runner to second and Wayne Gross was walked intentionally.

Winning pitcher Vida Blue, 7-11, fired a seven-hitter.

Angels 3, Twins 0

Nolan Ryan joined teammate Frank Tanana as the American League's only 12-game winners, recording his fourth shutout in pitching California over Minnesota with a four-hitter. Ryan, 12-8, passed Juan Marichal on the all-time strikeout list by fanning eight to boost his career total to 2,307, good for the No. 19 position.

Jack And Tom May Clash Again

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus, who hooked up in one of golf's great duels last week in the British Open, could be headed for a replay in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"My next goal," Watson said last weekend in reply to a question in Turnberry, Scotland, "is Pleasant Valley. I want to win there, too."

"I'm a great believer in keeping a good thing going."

And Watson, now mounting the greatest challenge ever to Nicklaus' longtime role as the game's outstanding player, definitely has a good thing going.

In addition to the Masters and British Opens, won in the face of Nicklaus' challenges, Watson has collected three other American titles and one Spanish crown. He has finished fifth or better 14 times and, with a leading $269,000, is within reach of the record $353,000 Johnny Miller won in 1974.

"I'd have to win two more to do it," Watson said. "Right now I'm scheduled to play 10 more tournaments. If I get close, I may add some events at the end of the year."

Both Nicklaus and Watson were late arrivals for this event that begins Thursday on the hilly, 7,191-yard, par-71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Nicklaus took a brief rest at his home in Florida. Watson played an exhibition in Chicago.

U.S. Open champion Hubert Green, who finished third to Watson and Nicklaus in the British Open, also was delayed. He was honored with "Hubert Green Day" in Birmingham, Ala., earlier this week.

As a designated tournament, all the game's leading players are required to play in this event that offers a $50,000 first prize.

That includes most of the players who dominated the British Open—Americans took the first eight spots and 11 of the top 12. Arnold Palmer, however, was not among the list of those required to play and chose to skip it. Johnny Miller withdrew. He telephoned officials that he had a sore arm. Gene Littler, suffering from a bad back, also withdrew.

The field, however, remains among the strongest of the year. Should Watson and-or Nicklaus suffer a letdown from their encounter last week, Green or Ben Crenshaw are leading candidates to step in.

Green obviously is playing well. Crenshaw made a strong showing last week and was runner-up in this tournament a year ago.

1,500 Yard Goal

Tony Dorsett, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, works out Tuesday at the Dallas Cowboys rookie camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Dorsett said his goal as a pro-football rookie is to gain 1,500 yards this season, adding that "O. J. Simpson and Walter Payton are going to have a little competition." (AP Wirephoto)

Peru's Land Reform Effort Stumbles

By STEPHEN MORROW
LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Eight years after the Peruvian military government began a massive land reform, agriculture is in a troubled state in this South American country.

The dizzying plunge of world sugar prices, from 65 cents a pound to about 10 cents a pound in less than two years, has forced the government to intervene in the management of the worker-owned sugar co-operatives, once hailed as the outstanding success of the program.

It's become increasingly obvious that the reform has so far failed to achieve two of its major goals: to increase production and to help the poorest of the six million peasants.

In the last year, rumors have swept the countryside that the government intends to give back some of the expropriated lands to their former owners.

The government, however, vigorously denies any such intention. And no serious foreign observers doubt that the land reform program is one of the permanent legacies to Peru of the former president, Gen. Juan Velasco.

Velasco's June, 1969, land reform decree established his seriousness of purpose as a self-proclaimed revolutionary.

In one stroke, the decree expropriated the vast sugar plantations on Peru's north coast, which had built the fortunes of many of the so-called "oligarchs," the "40 families" who had dominated economic and political life in Peru for seven decades.

In the succeeding six years of Velasco's presidency, the government expropriated almost all of the large estates and ranches. It distributed to 300,000 peasant families (more than 1.5 million people) land one and one-half times the area of the Republic of Ireland.

The program inspired the praise of social scientists from Peking to Peoria. Former U.S. Ambassador Taylor G. Belcher, on leaving Peru in 1974, said: "For many years we tried unsuccessfully to persuade other governments in Latin America that it was in their own best interests to carry out a reasonable land reform program."

Since Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez replaced Velasco in a bloodless coup in August, 1975, expropriation and distribution of land has ground to a halt. Many other Velasco reforms have been changed or revoked.

Insiders in the ministry of agriculture contend that budgetary considerations in a time of financial crisis have caused the land reform slowdown.

Morales Bermudez is reported to be personally committed to finishing off the distribution by the end of next year. If he achieves this goal, nearly 11 million hectares of land (about 40,000 square miles) will have been distributed to two million peasants by 1979.

The political parties of Peru, coming to life with the promise by the government of free elections in 1980, agree that the country can never return to the old system of a massive concentration of agricultural land in few hands.

Some politicians even contend that the current troubles of the sugar co-operatives are the fault of the government, in not giving the worker owners a free enough hand to run their own affairs.

The government earlier this year took over the management of five of the sugar "agro-industries" which grow, refine and package sugar. It appointed supervisors for the remaining 13.

Critics of the land reform program say that poor management has contributed to the co-operatives' problems. Some of their worker-owners lived on their dividends and hired migrant workers to do their jobs.

A more serious criticism is that the program has helped the wrong people. The two million peasants who have or will have received land — one eighth of the total population and one third of the people living on the land — were in many cases relatively well off.

The beneficiaries of the program were mostly tenant farmers or salaried full time agricultural workers on great estates. The sugar and cotton workers had good unions and high pay by Peruvian standards.

Some of the tenant farmers in the cattle and sheep ranches in the mountain valleys had virtually taken over their landlords' properties before the reform and resented the obligations to pay off mortgages to the government after the expropriations.

By contrast the reform has done nothing for the two million peasants at the bottom of the scale: migrant workers and "mini fundistas" — those who own their own land, but not enough of it.

These peasants and their families are constantly moving into the overcrowded shanty towns around all the big cities.

Little can be done for them, because less than a quarter of Peru's 500,000 square miles is arable in any way. Nine tenths of the "arable" land is suitable only for grazing. The rest is arid desert, steep mountain or thick jungle.

Another problem whose solution lies in the future is the low productivity of Peruvian farmland. The eight years of land reform have seen the decapitalization of the countryside. Former owners awaiting expropriation sold off their livestock and farm machinery. In the last year, peasants frightened by the rumors of possible "handbacks" of land also sold capital goods, in order to pay off the government for their mortgages. They thus deprived themselves of the benefits of the long easy terms. Inflation would have reduced their final payments almost to nothing.

In face of these problems, observers count it a hopeful sign that production has not actually declined. With renewed capital investment, it could indeed improve.

For all its current travails, the program has achieved, in the opinion of most observers, its major goal, a goal which may have inspired the original military coup and Velasco's entire reform program.

That is, it has reduced the discontent on the land, which threatened in the 1960s to engulf Peru in decades of guerrilla warfare, to manageable and controllable proportions.

Ice Formed In Summer Of 1816

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — If you think this year's winter was cold, you should have been around Illinois the summer of 1816.
The latest issue of "Aviation," a magazine published by the Illinois Department of Transportation, contains a letter from Robert Nicholas who read old clippings from the "Blue Mound Leader," published in the 1800s.
The publication said it was so cold in the summer of 1816 that ice formed every day in June, and a 10-inch snow fell on June 17.
July and August were even colder, the clippings said. Every month of the year experienced frost and freezing weather. The average temperature that summer reached only 45 degrees.

She Teaches Would-Be Film Actors

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — If you want to get into movies, beware of rip-off acting schools and make sure you've got other sources of income for several years.

That's the advice of Estelle Harman, dynamic administrator and director of the Estelle Harman Actors Workshop in Los Angeles, which this year is celebrating its 20th anniversary.

Mrs. Harman, who started acting at the age of 3 when a blacksheep uncle in a minstrel show took her onstage, talked about her school and career during a busy trip East with her consultant-psychologist husband, Sam, who also teaches at the workshop.

She was particularly proud of the accreditation the school obtained last October from the National Association of Technical and Trade Schools, a government-recognized accrediting agency. Only one other acting school has been accredited.

"There are too many people who open schools," she said. "I wanted a way to establish ethical standards for schools. And it makes it easier to get grants. Now we can get good student federal and state grants; if we weren't accredited, we wouldn't be eligible for the grants."

Mrs. Harman emphasized that most acting schools are perfectly honest.

"But even a year ago in California you could see the ads: 'Do you want to be a movie star? Ethnic types needed.' They were preying on the impoverished minorities. They'd end up embittered, used, and go home bad-talking Hollywood. More than one turned up in pornies."

"And there are phony agents who illegally charge fees (they should only charge commissions) or send them out on set-ups with equally corrupt producers, or act as fronts for photographers who overcharge."

What does she advise?

"I would encourage anyone to get a general background in college. But for acting and technique they need more training after college. There are maybe 100 places with acting classes, but only maybe a dozen of them have any sort of organization. Most of the people at the universities' theater departments will be happy to help."

"The Screen Actors' Guild will give you a list of franchised agents, and they'll tell you the next steps. The actor must be able to support himself for several years. He needs a viable job so he can study and work."

Estelle Harman got the show business bug from her black-sheep uncle. She did a lot of radio work in her pre-teens, but "in my teens I got bored and was no longer excited by my audiences. Then I had a chance to direct and got excited all over again."

At 19 she was the youngest member of the theater arts faculty at UCLA.

"From there I went to Universal as head of talent. I left there and tried to be Mrs. Harman for a while."

She and Sam have three daughters: Deborah, 18, Alexis, 15, and Eden, 13, "none of whom have shown any interest in the theater as a profession."

Her life as a housewife didn't last long.

"I was asked to coach Norman Walker — now he's Clint Walker. So I started a small class at home, until it wasn't a home any more. We just had a two-bedroom apartment and at one point one of the actresses burst into the kitchen where Sam was having a cup of coffee, and her line was, 'There he is, the fat son of a bitch.' Sam's not fat, but that decided me that enough was enough. We found another place for a workshop, where we still are."

Along the way she's taught or coached Lee Majors, Farrah Fawcett-Majors, Carol Burnett, Liberace, Diane Baker, Jeff Hunter, Dave Garraway, Rock Hudson, Tony Curtis, Stuart Whitman, Anita Eckburg, Dennis Weaver, Mammie Van Doren and David Janssen.

"Now I have about 10 teachers and between 100 and 150 students. Some are studying full-time for a three-year diploma and we're in the process of giving an A.A. degree. But people on the professional level may go and come while working. Some will take just two or three classes:

film technique, speech, dialect, etc. We even have classes in audition techniques."

"We're primarily aimed at what I'd call the intimate theater: film, TV, small theaters. We offer only professional vocational training. I still do all the auditions myself. I look for relaxation and energy, responsiveness and sensitivity ... oh, and sanity. I don't believe in this business as mental therapy."

U.S. Food-Cost Is Still Lowest

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A Nobel Prize winning plant pathologist says food costs less in the United States than anywhere else in the world, compared to the money available to pay for it. "Groceries are very cheap compared to people's incomes," said Norman Borlaug, who won the Nobel in 1970. Borlaug was at the University of Minnesota to attend the 40th reunion of his class of 1937.

AIN'T LOVE GRAND? — A loaf of bread, a jug of wine, and she riding behind. What a better way to spend an unencumbered summer honeymoon? This young couple is travelling along I-75 about 60 miles north of the Georgia-Florida state line, near Tifton. At this point they had come a long way from Iowa. (AP Wirephoto)

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you are in the midst of some confusion and emotionalism now, you find you have the ability to do something of an unusual or progressive nature that can impress those who may appear to be critical. Be wary of one with a greedy streak.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Fundamental affairs should be first on the agenda now. A new project appeals to you, but don't go into it as yet. Objectivity is important now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Have a more up-to-date approach at home affairs and better the condition there. Help to make any changes that are important and right.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Maintain present security and do whatever will add to it. Don't commit yourself to anything that could prove disastrous.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel dissatisfied so do something constructive instead of complaining. Take time to enjoy good friends but don't irk them in any way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Carry through with some responsibility you have or you could easily get into trouble. Try to placate a loved one who is not in a good mood.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If there is an important change you want to make, study it well and wait for a better time to do so. A good friend can show how to gain some personal aim easily. Be careful of outsiders now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show that you are an excellent citizen and a bigwig will be helpful to you now. Handle a credit affair wisely instead of postponing it again. Spend more time at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Any new goals you may have should be studied carefully. Make sure they are the right ones for you. Your intuition is not working well now but can be relied upon later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep any promises you have made and try not to renege on them or you get into trouble. Avoid that tendency to downgrade a loved one and maintain harmony instead. Be more generous.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't argue with partners because you are not familiar with all the facts and figures involved, but get these clear in your mind first. Take no chances where reputation is concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) It is important you carry through with work at hand despite the many interruptions that may come up. Control your emotions and have better health. Take any needed treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Before you give up tried and true pleasures be sure you have something better to replace it. If you use sarcasm with a loved one, you will regret it later. Be wise in money matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be full of divine discontent and will be pugnacious. Exercise patience, but be firm and teach to use more reason. Slant education along trouble-shooting lines for best results. Sports are a must here to teach to relate to others better.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Dear Charlie:
Those commuter games are tough! Here's another hand from my adventure aboard the 5:24 Grand Central to Stamford.
The auction was standard and the final contract was a good one. Not surprisingly, my partner led the top of his diamond sequence.
Declarer ducked the first diamond and won the continuation. Then he ran the jack of hearts, and I allowed him to win the trick. He continued with the ten of hearts, overtaking with dummy's queen to make it look as if he might be holding a doubleton heart. However, my partner had followed up the line in hearts, so I decided to trust him and play declarer for a third heart. Therefore, I ducked again—in tempo, of course.

Declarer led a spade to his nine and my partner's king. The eight of diamonds forced out declarer's last stopper in the suit. Back came a heart, and I fully expected declarer to take the "marked" finesse, allowing me to score my king and at the same time leaving declarer with no entry to dummy to cash the ace of hearts or to repeat the spade finesse. To my surprise, declarer rose with the ace of hearts, dropping my king!

Now declarer could afford to discard a club on the nine of hearts and take a second spade finesse. When this won, he came to ten tricks. I asked him why he had refused the third heart finesse. He paid me the compliment of acknowledging that he thought I was good enough to hold up the king of hearts twice. But he also pointed out that, even if the king of hearts did not drop, he was not yet dead. He would still be in dummy and he could then fall back on the spade finesse for his contract.

Next time, I'll travel up to Connecticut by limousine!

As ever,

Omar
