Carter Keeps His Cool In Helicopter's Shoot-Down

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has no plans to reevaluate the planned withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea despite the downing of a U.S. Army helicopter by North Koreans in the first potential military crisis of his administration.

The North Koreans have been relatively restrained in their references to the incident, a mood which has not escaped the White House.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, noted Thursday evening that "both they and we have remained reasonably calm in our statements compared with past situations."

He said that by Thursday afternoon, the situation room at the White House, "which the night before was bustling with activity with the secretary of defense, the secretary of state, the vice president and the national security adviser and all the sophisticated communications equipment, was calm and quiet with its normal complement of men."

The North Koreans, rejecting a request from the United Nations Command to meet for a discussion of the incident Thursday or early today, said they would attend a session at 11 a.m. Saturday (10 p.m. EDT today).

The U.S.-led U.N. Command announced in Seoul it was accepting the offer and asked the communists to return the surviving crewmen and the three bodies at that time.

There was no indication whether the request would be met.

The North Koreans said today the helicopter crew ignored "repeated warnings" before the craft was brought down.

Powell said earlier at his daily news briefing that Carter's plan to withdraw over the next four to five years the 33,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea was based on the ability of the South Koreans to defend themselves.

He said he knew of nothing related to the helicopter incident that would change the administration's plans.

The North Koreans opened fire on the helicopter, a CH47 Chinook, Thursday after it strayed north over the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea. Three crew members were killed. A fourth was wounded and captured.

The Defense Department identified the four as Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 29, Anniston, Ala.; Sgt. Ron Wells, 22, El Paso, Tex.; CWO Glenn M. Schwanke, 28, Spring Green, Wis. and CWO Joseph A. Miles, 26, Washington, Ind.

Pentagon officials said they did not know which of the men had been killed.

The last time a U.S. helicopter was shot down over North Korea, the North Koreans said it was "a provocation by U.S. imperialists." The first meeting on the incident did not take place until Aug. 29, 1969, 12 days after it occurred, and the three crew members were not released until Dec. 3, 1969, when the United States signed a document stating that it was responsible for "a criminal act."

Carter Energy Program Ready For A Verdict

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy program is ready for consideration in a special House committee largely as he wanted it with the defeat of a proposal to deregulate natural gas.

After days of fierce lobbying on both sides of the natural gas issue, the House Commerce Committee voted 23-20 on Thursday against a compromise deregulation proposal.

The compromise included a windfall profits tax on natural gas producers, a move to blunt White House charges that deregulation amounted to a $70 billion ripoff of consumers.

Committee members had a choice between two arguments:

The natural gas industry and its allies contend there would be an ample supply of gas if producers were free of federal controls and could strike the best deal possible for natural gas. Potential profits would encourage exploration for new gas fields, they said.

But the Carter administration said controls should be continued, allowing a slight rise in price. The increase should be sufficient incentive for producers to look for and pump more gas, administration forces said.

Proponents of deregulation warned of further shortages and job layoffs unless controls were removed. But Rep. Charles Carney, D-Ohio, cautioned, "You'll have all the gas you want, but you can't afford to use it."

The committee earlier had given Carter much of what he wanted on most of the non-tax aspects of his national energy plan. The panel approved:

—Voluntary standards for home insulation to conserve energy.

—A grant program for improving school and hospital energy conservation.

Standards for more efficient major home appliances.

Revisions in electricity rate pricing.

Broad administration authority to prod utilities and industry to switch from oil and natural gas fuels to coal.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which completed work earlier on other portions of Carter's energy package, approved several provisions the President sought.

The panel passed a gas-guzzler tax, a new crude oil tax with rebates to homeowners who heat their residences with oil, tax credits for persons who install insulation and a carrot-and-stick mechanism to encourage a dramatic insulation shift from oil and gas to coal.

But the committee rejected the President's proposal for a standby gasoline tax and a rebate for small car buyers.

The new energy committee, a special panel established by the House leadership to examine the energy plan in its entirety, plans to merge the work of the other panels into final legislative form.

Eight Died In Traffic Wreck

STRINGTOWN, Okla. — Six members of one family and two from another were killed four miles north of here when a motor home collided with a car on a rural road.

The car apparently skidded into the oncoming lane during a rainstorm and was hit broadside by the larger vehicle. Six other persons in the motor home were injured, police said. One occupant of the camper reportedly was thrown 50 feet into a field.

Redevelopment Bd. Is Reviewing Study

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission continued to review today a study submitted by a visiting consulting firm that recommended the abolishment by the City Council of the local board.

Joe Laney, the commission's executive director, said this morning that he feels there should be careful study given to the recommendation before any further action is taken by the Council.

Laney said that further analysis of the proposal should be made "to see what is involved in the legal steps of such action" to insure that "we are proceeding properly."

The official explained that there are "millions of dollars in contracts, notes and obligations" involved through the commission that have to be carefully considered. In addition, the input and approval of the Department of Housing and Urban Development is necessary, he contended.

"I would urge the city manager (Jim Caldwell) to carefully review all of the aspects before any further action is taken," Laney noted.

He said that a copy of the report was furnished to him and commission chairman Billy Laughinghouse Thursday morning following a meeting on another matter at Mayor Percy Cox's office.

Laney said yesterday afternoon that the commission had not been informed of the recommendation in the study prior to receiving the report. According to the executive director, the city manager and mayor assured the Redevelopment officials that although the proposal involved abolishing the Redevelopment board now and the Housing Authority at a later date, the staffs of both agencies would be assimilated into the new organizational structure under the city.

Laughinghouse, who indicated that the study was still being reviewed, said that the commission would have a formal comment after further study is made of the report.

According to Caldwell, the Redevelopment Commission and eventually the Housing Authority, following the phasing out of the two agencies, would come under a new Housing Resources Department of the city.

He explained that the city department would be concerned with public housing, housing assistance programs, redevelopment operations, community development coordination, and codes enforcement. Current redevelopment and housing staffs would be employed by the city in the department.

Laney would join the city

HUD Go-Ahead

The Housing Authority received authorization this morning from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to award the construction contracts on the proposed Southside housing project.

Joe Laney, the Authority's executive director, said that the federal agency authorized the awarding of contracts to W. H. Weaver Construction Co. of Greensboro for $1,808,000 for general construction; to Southern Electric Co. of Jacksonville for $167,798 for the electrical contract; to Humphrey Heating and Roofing of Jacksonville for $106,600 for the heating and ventilation contract; and to B. A. Willford Inc. of New Bern for $406,700 for the plumbing work.

The total authorization by HUD was $2,489,098, Laney added. The Southside Project will involve 111 units of public housing on a site off Evans Street south of 16th Street.

Blackout Ends, New York City Is Counting Losses

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulsing again with a heavy flow of auto traffic and nearly normal runs of subways and commuter trains, New York City went back to work today as federal officials opened their investigation into why the lights went out — and why they stayed out for so long.

Today's Federal Power Commission hearing in Manhattan, requested on Thursday by President Carter, was the first of three by governmental agencies trying to fix blame for the blackout that shut down the nation's biggest city for an entire day. Carter ordered an FPC report in two weeks.

At 8 a.m. today, Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who established a panel to conduct one of the investigations, officially lifted the state of emergency he had imposed on the city.

Beame said that following a quiet night and with electrical power restored to virtually all of the 10 million persons affected by the blackout, the city was ready to resume its regular daily routine.

During the 25 hours the power outage lasted, it spread economic damage reaching at least into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

In poorer neighborhoods around the city, merchants — mostly owners of small businesses — set about the difficult task of rebuilding from damage caused by looters, more than 3,400 of whom were arrested Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Beame said he was "deeply concerned by the economic chaos that resulted from the senseless looting that took place. The business people who were victimized must be helped as soon as possible and those who committed the crimes must be dealt with in a severe manner."

Beame planned to tour those areas hardest hit by the looters later in the day. The mayor and Gov. Hugh L. Carey joined the state's two senators, Republican Jacob K. Javits and Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan, in urging President Carter to approve federal aid to the small-business men hit by the looters.

In today's early rush-hour period, auto traffic was heavier than normal from northern suburbs, from Long Island and from New Jersey, all converging into the business districts of Manhattan. Many of the millions of commuters seemed intent on getting to work early, or at least on time.

But delays began building as traffic backed up at the bridges and tunnels which feed into the 14-mile-long island of Manhattan.

Commuter trains and the city's public transportation system of subways and buses were functioning at a near normal pace.

The Transit Authority reported that most subway trains were running on schedule. The Long Island Rail Road said it was running a full schedule with only scattered delays.

But ConRail service from suburbs in Westchester County and southern Connecticut was running into delays of 30 minutes to an hour because underground tracks at Grand Central Terminal in midtown Manhattan were flooded after the blackout stopped the pumps.

As a result, commuters on those trains were having to switch to buses and subways, provided at no extra cost, at 125th Street in Harlem.

Brannon Is Appointed Ass't Chief Of Rescue

Greenville Fire and Rescue Division Chief Ray Smith yesterday announced the promotion of Capt. George H. "Tony" Brannon to the rank of Assistant Chief for Rescue.

The new position was created by the City Council in June. "We've been working on it for a year," Smith said.

According to Smith, Brannon — the senior officer in the Rescue Division — "will be in charge" of rescue squad operations, answerable directly to the chief of the department.

The responsibility of the Fire Department is to save lives and property. Smith said, and the rescue squad, "is the best tool the department has to fulfill the goal of saving lives."

Smith said the creation of the post is designed to provide a more efficient operation of the rescue division and will make the rescue service more responsive to the needs of the community.

Brannon's duties, the chief said, will be to "assist in the planning, organizing, directing, and overall administration of rescue operations, training and communications," as well as, "assigning, supervising and evaluating the work of the men assigned to the rescue division."

In the past, according to Smith, the rescue division has worked directly under the department's two assistant fire chiefs.

Brannon, a Pitt County native, attended schools in Pactolus and Greenville; served in the U.S. Navy from 1948 to 1951 and was a veteran of the Korean conflict. He was employed by Carolina Dairies before joining the Fire Department in 1958 as a firefighter. After serving four years as a volunteer and being assigned part-time duty with the rescue squad, Brannon was promoted to the rank of rescue lieutenant in 1966. He has been a rescue squad captain since 1969.

The 46-year-old officer is a graduate of the North Carolina Rescue College and currently serves as an NCRS instructor; is an Emergency Medical Technician, an EMT examiner, and serves as an instructor for EMT courses; and is an American Heart Association cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) instructor-trainer.

He has also attended numerous other training sessions including the North Carolina Rescue Institute at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; the Southeastern Emergency Medical Care seminar at Western Carolina University; the Baltimore City Ambulance School at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.; and other specialized courses such as airplane crash-rescue, casualty handling, emergency vehicle operations and the North Carolina Fire College.

Brannon has been captain of several heavy-duty rescue and first aid teams that have taken top spots in state and international competitions.

The new assistant chief is married to the former Shelby Hinton and has three children.

The rescue division includes nine full-time paid men in addition to Brannon, and 34 volunteers.

Helped Guide

Tour Of Palace

PARIS (AP) — President and Mrs. Valery Giscard d'Estaing helped guide 10,000 French citizens through the Elysee Palace as it was opened to the public for the first time to mark Bastille Day, the French national holiday.

A line of people half a mile long stretched between the presidential palace and the Place de la Concorde Thursday, waiting to visit the elegant mansion and its grounds. In the first hour Giscard d'Estaing and his wife shook 2,000 hands as two bands in the courtyard alternated playing patriotic tunes.

During the tour, d'Estaing quipped, "This isn't a very big house," then added as he walked along, "This is where I received (Soviet leader Leonid) Brezhnev."

At one point, he stopped in the middle of a group and asked questions such as, "What time did you get here?" "What do you have in this bag?" "Did you bring your food?" He also told visitors to stop for a while on the sprawling back lawn before leaving.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

"OVERSEAS EMPLOYMENT"

I saw an advertisement in your paper which read: "WORK OVERSEAS, Australia, Africa, South America, Europe, etc. Construction, Sales, Engineers, Clerical, Etc. $8000 to $50,000-plus. Expenses paid. For employment information write: Overseas Employment, Box 1011, Boston, MA. 02103."

I wrote and promptly got back a brochure and a request for $10 for additional information. I sent the money and my check has clear, but I haven't got the information. I tried calling and learned there was not a listing. I called another overseas employment operation in Boston called Transworld, but they said they know nothing of this company. The Boston Postmaster's office wasn't helpful either.

Hotline learned from the Boston Better Business Bureau that the company was formed by a Joseph Adamo in September, 1974. The BBB began getting complaints in December, 1974. Adamo was formerly in a sales capacity with a carpet company, the BBB person said her records show.

She said the BBB's few complaints about non-delivery have been quickly answered and the orders filled.

For his $10, the orderer gets a "Directory of Foreign Companies," an "Overseas Employment Syllabus," and a one year's subscription to "Overseas Journal," which lists companies with foreign locations.

In effect, she said, the company offers information about companies which may have employment opportunities overseas, but there is no assistance and no real research beyond the listings.

You have the choice of writing to inquire as to why you have not received the information promised (If you do this, we suggest you send a copy to the Better Business Bureau of Boston, indicating same on the letter.) or of writing and asking for your money back.

Our Advertising Department feels that this ad was misleading and plans to refuse to accept any future ads from the Overseas Employment Research Bureau.

As an afterthought, Hotline called Meredith Foltz at Sheppard Library and learned that the library has in its Reference Room a copy of Dun and Bradstreet's Principal International Businesses, which has listings grouped alphabetically, by country, and by products. This may be as helpful to you as O. E. R. B.'s listings and the use of it is $10 cheaper.

Four Collisions In Greenville Thursday

An estimated $4,760 property damage resulted from four collisions investigated by Greenville Police here yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a three-vehicle mishap at 4:15 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 40 feet East of the Charles Street intersection.

Drivers involved in the crash were identified as Mary Holtzclaw Fowler of 2007 East Greenville Blvd., George Kenneth Minch of 2610 Crockett Dr., and Rosa Dixon Turnage of 1303 West Third St.

Damage was estimated at $1,200 each to the Turnage and Fowler cars and $600 to the Minch auto.

Mrs. Turnage was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

A 1:20 p.m. mishap on Trade Street involved cars driven by Betty Faulkner Fussell of Route 4, Greenville and Dennis Michael Langston of 106 Chadwick, La.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the Fussell auto and $600 to the Langston car.

Cars driven by Timothy Ray Peaden of 400 Pine St. and Alfred William Dixon of Farmville collided about 5 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and Sylvan Drives, police reported, adding that damage was estimated at $200 to the Peaden car and $250 to the Dixon vehicle.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to a car driven by Reginald Leon Peterson of Route 6, Kinston when the car struck a mail box at 2615 South Memorial Dr. about 5:37 p.m.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage to the box at $10.

Caribbean Role Eyed

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Diplomats and officials in the Caribbean are watching with fascination — and some skepticism — the new-found interest of Washington policymakers in the island nations to the south.

In the past six months President Carter and his team have shown more interest in the area than their predecessors did in the previous decade.

First Lady Rosalynn Carter stopped in Jamaica on the initial leg of a Latin American tour last month. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance attended the recent Organization of American States (OAS) meeting in Grenada and then visited in Trinidad and Tobago. Undersecretary of State Philip Habib went on to Guyana and Barbados.

United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young is planning a Caribbean trip in August. Island leaders have been invited to Washington. And on it goes.

In the string of islands stretching 2,000 miles from the Bahamas to Trinidad and Tobago, diplomatic and government officials are asking themselves whether this show of U.S. concern is genuine or one of those plays with all talk and no action.

A Review

A Rich, Delightful Show At Nightclub

Jazz aficionados were treated to a delightful performance last night at the Bottomline nightclub in Greenville, as Adele Foster and Up Front presented an exciting alternative to the usual downtown fare.

Ms. Foster's rich, powerful voice and spirited delivery resulted in a show one would expect to catch only in New York. Her audience rapport and relaxed manner combined to please the near-capacity crowd to an extent seldom seen outside of concert halls.

Perhaps the highlight of the evening was Ms. Foster's incredible rendition of "Old MacDonald," which was done in fine Ella Fitzgerald style and set the audience to rousing applause. Up Front performed wonderfully on the number, setting a driving pace but giving the vocalist plenty of room for interpretation.

The selections ranged from pop standards like Stevie Wonder's "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" to old Bessie Smith tunes. A shimmering performance of Chuck Mangione's "Land of Make Believe" was suitably filled with wonder, and Up Front shone on the instrumentals.

Foster has a special flair for the delicate stylings and wit of Joni Mitchell's songs, and she took advantage of her talent with three of Mitchell's numbers, really glowing on "Jericho." An original number, "The Sound of Love," was sung with an ease rarely finds in performers.

Foster was equally adept at the poignancy of Linda Ronstadt's "Someone to Lay Down Beside Me" and Phoebe Snow's funky "Standing on Shaky Ground." She accurately captured the flavor of Stevie Wonder's "Another Star," giving an energetic rendition that caught the audience up in its spirit.

The night concluded with an encore number (in itself a testimony to the excellence of the band), a Linda Ronstadt tune called "Down So Low" that was delivered with a deep, torchy power that left the crowd anxious for more.

Up Front performed several instrumentals in fine style, with tight phrasings and excellent transitions. Their performance of Weather Report's "Palladium" was their best number, with an excellent saxophone treatment that captured the heart of the number.

Their presentation of Chick Corea's "Spain" was a noble attempt, although it was sloppy and lacked much of the spirit of the original.

Adele Foster and Up Front gave an exciting and varied performance, one that is unique to jaded Greenville audiences, and they should not be missed in their final appearance tonight.

Their sheer talent gives one the impression they will not be playing the North Carolina nightclub circuit for much longer — and they definitely deserve whatever fame they may achieve.

Chavis Bitter Over Lack Of Wilmington Support

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Protesters trying to arouse sympathy for the Wilmington 10 rallied in the town where their cause was born in race riots six years ago before continuing their 125-mile march to Raleigh where they hope to get an audience with the governor.

Led by Golden Frinks, 50, an organizer for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the band of 35 marchers left Burgaw Thursday morning. They were to gather at the Gregory Congregational Church here to begin the next leg of the journey shortly after 9 a.m. That was the headquarters of the Rev. Ben Chavis, leader of the Wilmington 10.

Frinks said Thursday night he was bitter about a lack of black support for his march.

"We were quite disappointed this morning that the black leaders were very visibly absent on the starting. There was a lot of talk but no action," he said.

"Wilmington is closed to us. The ministers are shiftless. They lack leaders," he said.

Chavis and his followers were convicted of conspiracy in the burning of a white-owned grocery during this city's 1971 race riots. Chavis and eight other black men are in prison serving long terms. The other member of the group, a white woman, has been paroled. Chavis was a civil rights worker in the area for the United Church of Christ.

The group was tried in 1972 in Burgaw. This spring, an attempt to win a new trial for the 10 failed.

Chavis' mother joined the march but mothers of the other members of the group refused Frinks' invitations. He said he was disappointed but attributed their inaction to their waiting for "the bigshots (black doctors and lawyers) to come to their rescue."

Frinks said he plans to have the group in Raleigh on Wednesday. By then, he said, the ranks will likely be swelled to more than 100. "The calls (of support) have been coming in quite frequently tonight," Frinks said.

The marchers are gathering petitions urging Gov. Jim Hunt to grant the Wilmington 10 a pardon. So far, Hunt has refused to take a stand, saying the issue should be decided in the courts.

The petitions are being circulated along the path of the marchers who will collect them, Frinks said. About 550 signatures were collected the first day, Frinks said, adding that he hopes to have several thousand by the end of the trek.

There has been no promise that the governor will meet them.

"We hope we will have a chance to present them to him personally," Frinks said. "If we can't, we will camp there and try to use some sort of approach to bring the necessity of receiving these things to his awareness. I think there is a serious point here," he said.

"We've created quite a stir with this march," Frinks said, boasting of television and newspaper coverage. "This march is really electrifying. Questions are being asked by both blacks and whites at this point."

The cause is gathering support, he said.

"When I ask for support for the Wilmington 10 in the Wilmington area there seems to be an acquiescence of guilt," he said. "The Wilmington 10 situation is a blight on the Wilmington area and on the nation. This is a good time for the governor to help both the state and the nation in the area of human rights."

The march, he said, "is a revival type thing and its going pretty good in that direction."

Approved Aide's Visit To Korea

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C., says he approved of an aide's trip to South Korea two years ago because the trip was not paid for by the Korean government, but he's not sure he would let an aide make a similar journey now.

"If you changed that from Korea to, say, Greece, I'd be inclined to say that was OK," Martin said. "The reason I hesitate is anyone who mentions Korea is suspect, unfairly so. I'd say I'd decline it because I'm not looking for trouble, unfair trouble."

The House Ethics Committee is investigating allegations of lobbying in Washington by the South Korean government, and has sent questionnaires to 700 current or former congressmen.

The Charlotte Observer said on Tuesday that at least six Carolinas congressmen have reported contacts with the South Korean government, including a five-day trip to the country in 1975 by Larry Bowles, Martin's legislative aide.

Bowles' trip was paid for by the Korea-U.S. Economic Council, Martin said Wednesday. He had been unavailable for comment earlier because he was in Europe attending economic meetings.

He described the organization as a sort of Korean chamber of commerce which gets its money from member businesses and not from the government.

Martin said he checked with the House Ethics Committee to make sure the organization was a private, nongovernment group before Bowles made the trip. The purpose of the journey was to gather firsthand information about the military situation in Korea and the state of its industry, Martin said.

After the trip was described in news accounts, Martin's staff declined to discuss the matter.

Martin said he had told staffers not to discuss the trip because the reports filed with the Ethics Committee were supposed to be confidential. The silence, Martin said, gave the inaccurate impression that he had something to hide.

The 9th District representative said he and staff members had taken trips to other countries and "none of those trips would be worth a headline. The only reason this trip deserves a headline is that the Korean government has given some campaign contributions and substantial gifts to some congressmen, not me."

Youth Confirms Abby's Statement

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if a 13-year-old boy could get a girl pregnant, and I'm glad you said yes because I am living proof of it.

Five months ago I got a 15-year-old girl pregnant. Her parents and mine raised a terrible fuss and sent threats back and forth. The girl finally got an abortion, and we aren't allowed to see each other again.

Might I add that my puberty started when I was 11. THIRTEEN AND OLD ENOUGH

DEAR THIRTEEN: And might I add that you aren't the only 13-year-old boy who wrote to confirm that fact? I also heard from several girls stating that they had become pregnant at the age of 12. (Readers: If you find that shocking, consider this: In 1975, 12,642 babies were born in the U.S. to girls between the ages of 10 and 14.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a fourth grade teacher employed in a suburb of Minneapolis, Minn. During the past few years I have found that most of my students seem to appreciate physical contact.

In early December my building principal called me into his office and told me that a parent had called the superintendent and expressed concern that my actions were, if not morally improper, certainly "weird" and abnormal.

After my initial shock I asked who complained, and what specifically was the nature of their complaint. I never was told who, but I was told that each of the following actions was cause for alarm.

1. I had allowed some of my students to occasionally sit on my lap.
 2. I had occasionally given a student a back rub.
 3. I had occasionally given a student a hug.
- For many months thereafter I have been continually impressed how a paranoid, bigoted, uniformed minority could make a life miserable and influence school politics. I deeply regret that an all too influential element of my community finds it impossible to accept a MALE teacher who is physically affectionate to his students but has no intention of sexual exploitation.

How can I possibly continue to meet the human needs of my students when I am expected to respond like a cold-blooded computer?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: I fail to see what being male has to do with the criticism. I'm sure a female teacher would be criticized for giving her students back rubs, allowing them to sit on her lap and hugging them.

While your motives may have been beyond reproach, the kind of physical contact you engaged in might easily be mistaken for intimacy beyond acceptable limits. Kindergarten and possibly first graders, yes—but fourth graders, no.

Treat Grilled Chicken A New Way

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

We were once invited to a sumptuous dinner prepared by the expert chefs at a rest home for Indonesian seamen in this country. That was long ago, but we've never forgotten our surprise at an ingredient used in some of the interesting and delicious Indonesian dishes. Peanut butter! One of the offerings was a beautiful platter of half-a-dozen kinds of cooked fresh vegetables annointed with a peanut-butter sauce and surrounded with lettuce and slices of hard-cooked egg.

Since then we've tasted other main-course dishes, from other countries, served with peanut-butter sauces. As a result we decided that at this time of year, when it's easy to cook chicken on an outdoor grill, the bird would benefit from being accompanied by such a sauce plus pineapple rings and bananas. If no outdoor cooking is taking place you can grill the chicken in the kitchen broiler or roast it unstuffed in the oven. The fruit may be served cold or heated on the outdoor grill or in a big skillet in a little butter. The combination of chicken, sauce and fruit is delicious.

PEANUT-BUTTER SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon peanut oil
- 1 small onion, finely chopped (about 1/4 cup)
- 1 tiny clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons flour
- 1/8 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 cup creamy peanut butter
- 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup tomato juice
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire

sauce
Salt to taste
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon crushed dried red pepper

In a 1-quart saucepan heat the oil; add the onion, garlic and sugar; cook gently, stirring often, until onion is lightly browned — about 3 minutes. Stir in the flour, coriander and ginger. Remove from heat. Stir in the peanut butter until blended. Gradually stir in the bouillon, tomato juice, soy sauce and Worcestershire, keeping smooth. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until boiling; continue cooking and stirring about 5 minutes. Stir in the salt and red pepper. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

The sauce may be made ahead of serving time. Reheat gently, stirring; if it is thicker than you like, stir in a little water, a teaspoon at a time.

Note: This sauce was designed to serve with chicken plus pineapple rings and bananas. The chicken may be grilled or broiled in quarters or cut up; or it may be roasted, whole and unstuffed, and then cut up. Use pineapple rings that are canned in their own juices and heat them along with the bananas in a little butter in a large skillet; or serve the fruit cold.

Action Is Hard To Understand

We have to wonder what in the world the City Council is thinking about in rushing through an endorsement of a Suffolk, Va. firm's recommendation that the Redevelopment Commission and the Housing Authority be abolished.

The Community Development Organizational and Management Study was done by Lydens Associates and recommended the abolishment. It was presented to the council in a special meeting Wednesday and quickly endorsed.

We don't understand all that.

It is far more important to us that things have run efficiently for redevelopment and housing programs, than what some outside experts have to say — and it ought to mean more to the City Council.

Greenville has been carrying out an urban renewal program for years under the present Redevelopment Commission. It is the envy of cities in the southeast. The low rent housing program, too, has been well operated under the Housing Authority.

Why change?

The only answer we seem to find is that the action would bring more power directly to City Hall.

Unfortunately, it would also bring more opportunity for political maneuvering within the redevelopment and low rent housing programs.

There is still important work to be done by the Redevelopment Commission in completing the Central Business District project and continuing the Meadowbrook project, which the commission administers for the city.

For some reason the City Council has gone off and paid good money to retain a firm to tell it that it should abolish commissions which have done a good job. As far as we can tell very few people even knew such a study was underway and being paid for by the city, outside a little band at City Hall.

If that's an example of how things are going to be run once the city "reorganizes" the Redevelopment Commission and the Housing Authority, we are in for some pretty precarious times.

Not While Jim Hunt Is The Governor

Thankfully Gov. Hunt has said that the Coastal Area Management act will not be repealed while he is governor. "A lot of people were shooting at it," Hunt said at a recent news conference. "But they are not going to get it. As long as I am governor of this state they are not going to repeal the Coastal Area Management Act."

The act controls development of the coastal area. It should never be repealed.

THIS AFTERNOON

Lee To Push Coastal Laws

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There have been some high-handed tactics involved in early implementation of the Coastal Area Management Act, Secretary Howard Lee admits, but that is no reason to consider major change in the law itself.

Vowing to continue pressing the law in the 20 Coastal counties, Lee said his state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development "will not pull back on enforcing this law."

"Those who argue that it ought not be enforced in the Coastal counties unless it is enforced statewide are wrong."

"The Eastern part of the state has problems and conditions that are indeed different from those elsewhere—in the Piedmont, or the Mountains. If people on the coast don't like that, it is just too bad," Lee says bluntly.

Must Protect

"We can't just roll back the ocean. We have got to protect those marshlands and those beaches."

But Lee does anticipate some changes in the methods being used in drawing up local plans, enforcing protection provisions of the law, and establishing stronger local participation and control.

The biggest problem arises from enforcement of the law—and from enforcement of other environmental laws which has been intensified in light of the Coastal Area Management Act—in a heavy-handed manner by state bureaucrats. Sources along the coast complain of this foremost.

"Yes, that is a problem. Our people have got to become more sensitive to the attitudes of the people. They have behaved sometimes in entirely too much a Czarist fashion," Lee said.

His agency has been "too defensive... either being not available to people wishing to discuss the situation or to raise questions; or trying to make it appear that we are always right."

A movement in the recently adjourned session of the General Assembly sought repeal of the Coastal Act which was established in 1974. So far, no statewide counterpart has been enacted, and it will now be 1979 before that action is expected. Lee says those seeking repeal quickly found that there was enough strength in the Legislature to keep the law in effect—even though there was considerable strategy at work to match traditionally anti-liquor Eastern votes with Piedmont support of repeal.

BILL NOBLITT

No Repeal

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. referred obliquely to those efforts when he came down strongly in favor of the Coastal Act: "As long as I am governor of this State, they are not going to repeal the Coastal Area Management Act," the governor now says flatly.

"There were, in the last days of the Legislature, some unholy deals in the works... but they failed," Hunt adds.

The Senate passed option

mixed drink measure which was side-tracked in the House of Representatives to further committee study to keep it alive and allow consideration again at the 1978 rump session which will be largely restricted to budgetary matters, but may also consider items passed by one chamber but not the other.

As the liquor measure neared floor action, those seeking repeal of the Coastal Management law attempted support for that action in exchange for mixed drink support.

Meanwhile, in absence of a statewide land use law, Lee is pressing Piedmont and Mountain counties to move ahead and in local planning in anticipation of a later statewide law similar to the Coastal Act. He is urging that land classification maps be drawn plans prepared, and steps taken to secure state and federal grants for land management programs now both to protect present conditions and control growth, and to put local communities ahead of the game when the statewide measure is adopted, which he feels will happen.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The CDM 'Resurrection'

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Without fanfare, the moribund Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM) is being resurrected with two big-name honorary chairmen and ambitious plans for prodding President Carter toward tough-minded defense, foreign and domestic policies.

The soon-to-be-named chairmen are Sens. Henry M. Jackson and Daniel Patrick Moynihan. Despite much praise from them and others for Jimmy Carter's human rights campaign — a sequel of the Senators' own espousal of human rights abroad — some other Carter administration actions fail the test of virtue as perceived by many centrist Democrats.

The stated objective, however, is not a high-pressure lobbying operations against Mr. Carter. Rather, Jackson, Moynihan, author-politician Ben Wattenberg, Yale law Prof. Eugene Rostow and other leading lights of CDM will actively support or oppose the President, depending on the issue and the policy. Mr. Carter, they feel, has shown himself to be "highly responsive" to "reasoned" public pressure and they plan to exert it, particularly in the fields of nuclear arms, human rights and economic growth.

Fully expecting to "self-destruct" after the election of Democrat Carter last November, CDM changed its mind and quietly launched a new fund-raising campaign several weeks ago (with about $25,000 raised so far). Significantly, its top fundraiser is now S. Harrison (Sonny) Dogole, a rich Philadelphia (Globe Securities System) and long-time political ally and fundraiser for Sen. Hubert Humphrey's multiple presidential campaigns.

Dogole's existing position as a chief fund-raiser for the Democratic National Committee and chairman of the President's exclusive "1600 Club" of large contributors has raised some eyebrows. But Wattenberg (principal founder of CDM whose purpose was to drive the Democratic party back to the center following the McGovern debacle of 1972) sees "no problem."

Dogole's decision to raise money for a political group whose avowed purpose is to influence Jimmy Carter strongly reflects centrist party unhappiness with Carter policies on a diplomatic exchange with Cuba, the widely-predicted diplomatic break with the Republic of China and U.S. policies in southern Africa.

One other area certain to come within the new CDM's sights is the Middle East and the President's heavy pressure on Israel (at least until his long session this week with top Jewish leaders).

What determined the resurrection of the CDM was clearly foreshadowed within 10 days of Jimmy Carter's inauguration: concern that the Jackson-Moynihan centrists were being ignored in staffing policymaking jobs in the State Department and the National Security Council. "My problem is not the appointees, but the...missing point of view," Wattenberg told a closed-door meeting here of centrist Democrats on Jan. 31.

Mr. Carter's later decision to name Paul Warnke, highly suspect among defense-oriented party leaders, as chief arms control negotiator

Strength For Today

A PROFOUND THEOLOGIAN

Religious thinkers the world over are today profoundly influenced by the writings of Soren Kierkegaard. This Danish theologian was at the height of his powers about 140 years ago.

Kierkegaard lived an uneventful life, and although he was a controversial figure in his own country, he was not discovered by the world until several generations after his death.

Kierkegaard challenged the philosopher Hegel who maintained that religion should be a matter of reason

OH WELL, A DREAM'S JUST A DREAM ANYWAY!

By ART BUCHWALD Pop Sculptor's Touch

(Art Buchwald has taken off a few weeks to study the effects of solar energy on bikini bathing suits. He left behind some of his classic columns which the Supreme Court has just ruled can now be released to the American people.)

WASHINGTON—One day the Canadian authorities refused to allow 80 wooden crates, which looked like cartons of Brillo soap pads, Kellogg's corn flakes, and Mott's apple juice, to go through Customs as works of art. The cartons, painted by American pop artist Andy Warhol, were not, said the Canadians, works of art but merchandise, and subject to $4,000 duty.

I think the Canadians are all wet. A few days after the incident in Canada, I went down to the supermarket to buy some groceries for my wife. On the way home I stopped in at an art gallery where they were holding an art exhibit. Unfortunately, the carton of groceries got heavy and I left it on the floor.

Then, being so moved by what I saw, I left the gallery and went home.

"Where are the groceries?" my wife demanded.

"Oh, my gosh," I cried. "I left them at the art gallery."

"Well, you'd better get them if you want any supper tonight."

I rushed back to the gallery, but I was too late. The groceries had been awarded first prize in the show.

"We've been looking all over for you," the gallery owner said. "Why didn't you sign your work of art?"

"It's not a work of art. It's my dinner for tonight."

The gallery roared with appreciative laughter. "He's not only a great sculptor, but he has humor as well," a judge said.

Other Editors Say Tax Crossroads

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

According to some observers of the scene, this country in 1977 is standing at a crossroads in its tax policy.

One road, the one we have been following for over 40 years, points toward ever-higher taxes, ever-bigger government and the ultimate stagnation or strangulation of the American economy.

The other and more hopeful direction is toward an easing of the tax burden on both individuals and corporations, including the elimination of double taxation on dividends.

If government refrains from taxing away the capital that produces new businesses, new factories, new jobs—if government fosters a climate in which capital can be formed and put to work, then this country will be in a much better position to achieve not only its economic goals but its social goals as well.

The Carter administration has promised a complete tax revision proposal, now expected in August. The philosophy of big government, high taxation and deficit spending is tired and bankrupt. It's getting us deeper into a hole, not getting us out as deficit-spending advocates had claimed would be the case ever since the days of the high-rolling New Dealers under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That is a road we can ill afford to take. It is a road into the past, not into the future. Yet, the new approach, the easing of the tax burden, cannot be taken unless big government is willing to ease up on spending. Up to now Congress has indicated a total unwillingness to do this.

What we need now is a new pragmatism, because pragmatism tests the meaning, truth and validity of a concept against the achievement of practical results.

Tax reductions could stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment. Creative tax reduction is the key to economic progress, to capital formation and the creation of permanent, productive jobs as opposed to phony, government-created, make-work jobs that contribute nothing to the economy.

And it should be noted that economic progress cannot be produced by the public sector—that is, the government itself—because government is a consumer, not a producer, of the capital necessary for real development.

Once this is realized by the American people—that the government has no magic cure-alls for economic ailments—then we can get to work doing what has to be done through easing of tax burdens and a decrease in government spending.

Carter Help Crucial

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief sponsor of national no-fault automobile insurance legislation says President Carter's support may be enough to win passage in Congress after years of narrow defeats.

"With that help I think we can win," Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said Thursday after a White House meeting with Carter.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Carter told him Transportation Secretary Brock Adams would announce the administration's support for no-fault when he testifies today before the panel.

Under no-fault, persons are compensated for injuries in car accidents regardless of who is to blame. Under the traditional liability system, insurance companies must determine, often through lawsuits, which driver is at fault and which insurance company must compensate victims.

With opposition coming mainly from lawyers who handle auto accident cases, no-fault lost in the Senate in 1972, 49-46.

In 1974 the Senate passed no-fault legislation, 53-42, but the House failed to act before Congress adjourned.

On a third attempt to pass a no-fault bill, the Senate killed the measure, 49-45 in March of last year.

Magnuson held his first hearings on no-fault in 1967 and the result was a law ordering a Transportation Department study, which eventually concluded that the new insurance system should be adopted.

Recently, the Transportation Department said the concept was working well in the 16 states that had it.

Backers of the concept, including consumer and labor groups, say that eliminating lawsuits over automobile acci-

Twenty men were killed today by an explosion and fire in the Glendora Coal Company's Baker mine, northeast of Sullivan, Ind., Ack Ogilvie, safety engineer of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association said this afternoon.

Earlier in the day, four men were reported dead and 25 trapped in the Baker mine five miles northeast of here.

Officials of the deep shaft coal mine said the fate of the trapped men was uncertain. They said the explosion occurred two miles from the mine's entry.

Faces smeared with grease as protection against the blazing tropic sun, aviators of the navy aircraft carrier Lexington took off again today in their search for Amelia Earhart and Fred Noonan.

Hope was all but abandoned for the two who vanished July 2 on a 2,750 mile hop from New Guinea to Howland Island, one of the final stages of their proposed world circling flight.

Nevertheless, the air fleet, and surface craft continued scouring a 265,000 mile area.

Summary Of Blackout's Impact

NEW YORK (AP) — Here is a summary of what a staggering power blackout did to the nation's largest city:

AFFECTED: Thousands of people in Spanish Harlem, the west Bronx and Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side were without power for 25 hours. Outages of at least four hours affected a total of 10 million people in New York's five boroughs and Westchester County to the north, with brief outages in nearby parts of Long Island.

BUSINESS: Virtually all offices and businesses were to resume regular hours today for the first time since Wednesday night. Only food stores and a few other businesses were open Thursday. The total cost of the blackout will run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

TRANSPORTATION: ConRail was to provide limited commuter service between the city and suburban New York and Connecticut during this morning's rush hour, but trains would stop in upper Manhattan, almost four miles shy of their regular termination at Grand Central Station, which will be closed for days because of flooded tracks.

The Long Island Rail Road predicted "something close to a normal rush hour schedule" this morning.

Amtrak's northeast corridor from Boston to Washington, D.C., was back on a full schedule early this morning, with resumed service at New York's Penn Station. A spokesman expected delays of no more than half an hour.

A Transit Authority spokesman said virtually all subways were back in working order at 1:25 a.m. today, although many were experiencing minor delays.

Port Authority officials said La Guardia and Kennedy airports had to divert only a few flights immediately after the outage and would continue normal operations.

PUBLIC SAFETY: Nearly 3,500 people were arrested for looting over the 25-hour period — at least seven times the number of normal arrests in all categories in a day. Twenty-seven policemen were seriously injured, and 531 received minor injuries. No homicides were reported overnight Wednesday—an unusual occurrence here—but by Thursday night police were investigating three new murders in the city. The fire department responded to several thousand alarms, almost two-thirds of them unfounded, and patrolled still-darkened areas Thursday night to extinguish fires lit in trash cans to provide light.

CAUSE: Lightning struck twice, first at a transmission line that might have brought power into the area from other utilities, and then at a large power transformer near a nuclear plant in upper Westchester county. The nuclear plant had to be shut down, other plants were forced to produce higher power, and a plant in Queens failed. Widespread overloads brought down the giant Consolidated Edison Co. electric system.

REACTION: Gov. Hugh Carey, Mayor Abraham Beame and City Council President Paul O'Dwyer have called for an immediate investigation into the cause of the blackout. Con Ed Chairman Charles Luce said no guarantees could be made about preventing future power failures, calling this one "an act of God." Federal Power Commission hearings were to begin today on President Carter's orders, and the state's Public Service Commission will also take up the matter.

dents will hold down the cost of insurance premiums. The Committee for Consumers No-fault, a coalition of proponents of the legislation, says the nation's trial lawyers receive $1.5 billion per year in legal fees from car accident cases.

The opponents, including the American Bar Association and the American Trial Lawyers Association, say no-fault has failed to reduce premiums in many areas and that the federal government should not interfere with state insurance systems.

Magnuson's bill would set minimum federal standards for no-fault systems in personal injury cases and give states three years to establish programs meeting the guidelines. If the states failed to act, the federal government could move in and establish a program.

The measure would allow one injured party in a two-car crash to sue the other for personal damages, but only when losses exceed the amounts paid under no-fault, and only where there is a severe personal injury, disfigurement or long-term disability.

I blushed modestly and accepted his check. That night I took my wife out to dinner, and the next day I went back to the supermarket and bought another bag of groceries, much more expensive than the previous ones, which I immediately took to the gallery.

But the reviews were lousy. "Success has gone to his head," said Washington's leading art critics. "Where once he was able to produce simple jars of cat food and peanut butter in a wild, reckless, I-don't-give-a-damn manner, he is now serving up elegant cans of mushrooms and mock turtle soup. The famous touch is gone and all that is left is a hodgepodge of tasteless groceries."

RON AND SOL
A bizarre luncheon meeting failed to resolve conservative Ronald Reagan's long-standing opposition to a new Panama Canal treaty, despite the best effort of liberal Ambassador Sol Linowitz, the one-time super-salesman for Xerox.

Linowitz and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker are negotiating the new treaty, under which the U.S. will ultimately yield control over the canal. When he read a scathing attack in one of Reagan's newspaper columns on any thought of giving up the canal, Linowitz wrote a polite letter suggesting that Reagan might want more facts. That led to a Reagan invitation to lunch on the weekend of May 1 at Reagan's Madison Hotel suite.

Describing that luncheon to a group of Senators two weeks ago in a Panama treaty briefing called by Sen. Robert Byrd, the Senate majority leader, and Senate majority whip Alan Cranston, Linowitz said that Reagan was "decent, fair and open-minded" when Linowitz exposed the rationale of the new treaty — but apparently immovable.

A footnote: At an earlier Byrd-arranged Senate briefing by Bunker and Linowitz, Sen. Barry Goldwater said he had swung "almost 180 degrees" in favor of a new treaty — but refused to commit himself to the document now being drafted.

Physicist von Braun Deeply Religious

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Werner von Braun, the "father of the American space age" who died last month, was not only a front-line scientist but also the finder — and bearer — of a keen religious faith.

"Prayer," he once said, "is the most important work of man."

The German-trained physicist, who developed the rockets that carried the first Americans into space and to the moon, saw science as basically similar to religion.

Just as religion requires faith, he maintained that scientific inquiry, also requires faith in orderly processes in the universe, an intelligibility that is the basis of everything science learns from it.

"The grandeur of the cosmos serves only to confirm my belief in the certainty of the Creator," he told a symposium in Philadelphia last fall on the esentials of a humane society.

"It is one thing to accept the natural order as a way of life, but the minute one asks why then again enters God and all His glory."

That "glory," he contended, stands behind the still largely unknown realities of existence and makes up the mostly still hidden full truth on which science is totally dependent for the gradual bits it learns.

"Science and religion are not antagonists," he said. "On the contrary, they are sisters. While science tries to learn more about the creation, religion tries to better understand the Creator."

To him, it was incongruous for a scientist, whose very work is dependent on intelligent design in nature, not to recognize the creative intelligence behind it.

He commented: "What strange rationale makes some physicists accept the inconceivable electron as real while refusing to accept the reality of God on the ground that they cannot conceive of Him?"

Von Braun gave little attention to religion in his native Germany, where he frequently was at odds with the Hitler regime and once went to jail temporarily although he developed the ominous V2 rockets used in the final stages of the war on Britain.

But his nominal Christianity became intense commitment after that experience and his coming to the United States where he became a citizen. He joined the Episcopal Church, as did his family.

"It was the first time I really understood that religion was not just a cathedral inherited from the past or a quick prayer at the last minute," he said.

"Religion has to be backed up by discipline and effort."

Those qualities are essential to prayer, he said, noting that his own prayer life had advanced into a "new dimension."

Von Braun maintained that "religion, like science, is evolutionary, growing and changing in the light of further revelations from God." He saw religion as an indispensable partner of science.

"Neither science nor technology has a moral dimension," he said, adding that religion must "give us the moral and ethical guidance we so desperately need to protect us from that genie that science has allowed to escape from the bottle."

Pharmacist Avers Laetrile Effective

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pharmacist whose supply of Laetrile was confiscated by federal agents in one of five new raids says government action will not stop the use of the controversial anticancer substance.

"They can't stop this because it works," Steven Michaelis, a pharmacist at Buckeye Lake, Ohio, said Wednesday after federal marshals and FBI and drug enforcement agents raided his home and office.

Michaelis, who admits filling prescriptions for Laetrile, said the government was attempting to stop him from "practicing my profession."

FDA spokesman Jack Walden said that three sites in West Palm Beach, Fla., and two near Columbus, Ohio, including Michaelis' home and office, were raided.

Although Walden had no immediate estimate on how much Laetrile was taken in the simultaneous raids, he said the quantity was large enough at some of the sites that trucks were needed to haul it away.

Teacher Has A Job Back

DANBURY, N.C. (AP) — A high school teacher fired last year after having a child out of wedlock has won her job back, plus $6,000 in back wages.

Mary Morehead, who taught at South Stokes High School here, was fired in April, 1976, after she had her baby.

She was granted a hearing before the local school board, but before it took place the board passed a resolution requiring dismissal of any unmarried teacher who had a baby.

Big Carolina Blackout Unlikely

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — The hot weather has set summer records for power consumption, but there is little likelihood of a blackout in the Carolinas similar to the one in New York, spokesmen for two major power companies say.

The major reason for their confidence, they said Wednesday, is a system which connects power companies in the Southeast and provides for sharing of electricity in an emergency.

"The type of thing that would cause a system-wide blackout for Duke Power, quite frankly, is hard for me to visualize because of the built-in protections," said Walt Campbell, power supply manager for Duke Power Co. in Charlotte. But he said he would "hesitate to say it was an impossibility."

Sherwood H. Smith Jr., president of Carolina Power & Light Co. in Raleigh took an even stronger stand.

"We don't see any possibility that could happen," he said. Smith said he did not know the specific cause of the New York blackout, but "we know of nothing that occurred in New York that indicates it could happen here."

Campbell said only an unlikely chain of events could trigger a blackout and even that could probably be contained by shutting off certain areas so the demand from those areas would not create more overloads.

He said Duke Power was hit with a blackout in July, 1968, which stemmed from technical problems, and the blackout was contained in the company's northern service area which includes Greensboro and Durham.

Only a series of problems, such as high demand and overloads, along with unexpected factors such as the lightning that supposedly triggered the New York blackout, would cause blackouts for local companies, Campbell said.

But if all the factors occurred, overloads could shut down lines, then shift and draining other lines, he said.

"If you get in a cascading thing like that, it's the domino theory," he said.

Meanwhile, the hot weather set new summer records for both companies, but spokesmen said the systems were able to handle the demands with no problems.

Duke's demand hit 9,025 megawatts by mid-afternoon Thursday, and while that set a record for the summer, it did not beat last winter's peak demand of 9,487 megawatts on Jan. 17.

CP&L demand hit a summer peak of 5,211 megawatts Wednesday afternoon, a spokesman said. But like Duke, the company's record was set on Jan. 17, at 5,509 megawatts.

"We're carrying our load comfortably today," Smith said.

Duke Power serves 1.2 million customers in Piedmont North Carolina and South Carolina, while CP&L has 600,770 customers in the two states.

Claims Unaware Of Fire Hazard

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — The superintendent of a prison where nine inmates died in a fire last year testified in a hearing that he did not know that the polyurethane mattresses burned by the inmates were a fire hazard.

Fulmer Rudisill, superintendent of the McDowell County prison unit where the fire occurred in June 1976, had been in charge of the facility about three months when the fire occurred. He was unaware the mattresses were of polyurethane and he had never investigated the fire himself and no fire inspector had been in the unit since he had been running it, he said.

The hearing is before the state Industrial Commission over claims by inmates injured in the fire and families of inmates who died.

Also testifying Thursday was deputy state prisons director W. L. Kautzky who said he recommended eliminating polyurethane mattresses in prison units two years before the fire.

"We knew those mattresses were not as fire-retardant as we need in the system," he said. He also said he told reporters the night of the fire, "We are paying the price for years of dereliction."

He did not know if his recommendations were ever presented to the legislature, he said. Such mattresses are now being replaced on order of Correction Secretary Amos Reed.

Four inmates testified earlier at the hearings that they saw two other inmates deliberately set mattresses afire, apparently protesting a decision by guards to remove radios from the dormitory.

Kautzky said he conducted experiments on polyurethane mattresses in October, 1975, and found that within three minutes, a mattress was "completely consumed in flames" and emitted "dark black smoke."

Kautzky also said the five people on duty at the McDowell prison at the time of the fire did not constitute adequate staffing under department guidelines.

Russian 'Advisors' In Somalia Being Cut Back

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The number of Soviet advisers in neighboring Somalia is gradually being cut back, diplomats here say. The move could signify either a Soviet "tilt" toward Somalia's archenemy, Ethiopia, or a Somali decision to lean more on the Arab world for support.

The diplomats said the extent of the reduction in the Soviet presence is not known. Most of the 5,000 to 6,000 Soviet advisers working in Somalia are military specialists.

But the diplomats said Russians leaving the country either on leave or at the end of their tour of duty are not being replaced.

The diplomatic sources said it was not clear whether the cutback was initiated by the Soviets or demanded by the leftist regime of Somali President Siad Barre.

Diplomats speculate that Barre has already denied to radically reduce his ties with the Soviets in return for pledges of support from conservative Arab states concerned over Soviet influence in Somalia and the rest of the strategic Horn of Africa, between the Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden at the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Barre returned Thursday from a visit to Saudi Arabia, where a Somali spokesman said he consulted with other members of the Arab League as well as with the Saudis. The president would not discuss his mission with Western reporters.

In return for its aid in the past the Soviet Union has been given facilities for its ships and planes in Somalia.

They have such facilities at the port of Berbera port near the mouth of the Red Sea and at Kismayu in southern Somalia on the Indian Ocean.

Diplomats in the Somali capital of Mogadishu could not confirm that Somalia has told some 1,500 Russians reportedly stationed at Berbera to leave the country. But there have been unconfirmed reports of a reduction in the number of Russians in northern Somalia.

Particularly troubling to the Somalis, the sources said, is the fact that some withdrawn advisers, including a few Cubans, have been transferred to neighboring Ethiopia.

Declares Judge Was 'Crucified'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A judge recommended for censure has been a victim of political action and has been crucified by the newspapers, a supporter told the state Supreme Court Thursday.

The high court heard arguments on the Judicial Standard Commission's recommendation that District Court Judges W. Milton Nowell of Wayne County and Herbert W. Hardy of Greene County be censured for settling cases out of court. Nowell was chief judge in the 8th district until Chief Justice Susie Sharp removed him because of the charges.

Under state law, the Supreme Court decides what action to take against a judge when the Judicial Standards Commission determines that the charges against him deserve some action. Punishment can range from a private reprimand to being removed from the bench. The court will make its decision later.

Nowell was cited for settling two traffic cases outside the courtroom by granting mild sentences without the prosecutor's knowledge.

Hardy had settled five cases out of court, the commission said. In one case he changed a guilty finding to innocent three months and nine days after the original judgment, the board found.

Supporting Nowell was former state Sen. Tom White of Lenoir County who said the judge had been a victim of a political effort by former Assistant Dist. Atty. Ken Ellis.

Ellis unseated another district judge — Lester Pate — in last year's elections. Pate had also been publicly accused of settling cases out of court.

Ellis, White said, was "a beast lying in wait, ready to spring, trying to do this man (Nowell) harm." That was helped by "the newspapers who crucified the judge on this matter," White said.

When Nowell's attorney, Herbert B. Hulse, said Nowell was guilty of no more than an indiscretion, Justice Sharp commented, "word gets around fast that you can avoid a $10 fine by seeing the judge before court."

Hardy is not a lawyer, his attorney, John Duke, reminded the court. "He has no legal training."

When Justice Frank Huskins asked if Duke shouldn't be removed from office rather than simply censured, Duke said he didn't think the court could exceed the Judicial Standards Commission's recommended punishment.

See Need For Fewer Houses

NEW YORK (AP) — Different values and financial capacities of postwar, divorce rate and a move back to the city are responsible today for America's needing fewer and smaller houses, says House & Home magazine.

The magazine notes that postwar babies have "values and capabilities far different from their parents' ways and means" and that steadily shrinking real incomes, along with rocketing costs, have led these men and women to buy "smaller houses than those in which they grew up."

Patients Not Involved In Porn Movie Charges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Patients were not involved in seven pornographic home movies that led to an FBI investigation and the firing of the director of child services of a state mental hospital, a state official said Thursday.

Federal officials were to seek an indictment today of Dr. Wilson C. Rippey Jr., 50, on charges of transporting obscene materials across state lines. U.S. Atty. George Anderson said he hoped for quick action in the case today.

Rippey, a psychiatrist, was fired from Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro last Friday because of "improper personal conduct." Later, the FBI confirmed that Rippey was being investigated for an alleged involvement with child pornography.

Two officials at Cherry Hospital examined the seven eight-millimeter home movies to determine if any patients were involved. "On the basis of their findings, we are fairly certain that none of the activities that led to the firing of (Rippey) occurred at Cherry Hospital," said Dr. Richard Rideout, special assistant to Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of human resources.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported Thursday that an FBI agent's affidavit said, "all seven films depicted sexual acts between an adult white male and a pre-pubescent male."

Rippey was voluntarily admitted to the psychiatric unit at each film, he said.

"I found it a little tough to take since I have four children," Sugrue said.

"We feel it is a legal and moral responsibility to notify the proper authorities when we find anything of the nature of child pornography," Sugrue said. "Our feeling is we want it known that this type of material is not acceptable and if it comes into our possession we will handle it with the authorities," he said.

Rippey graduated from Emory University medical school in 1952 and taught at the University of North Carolina from 1958 until 1963 when he went to Tampa, Fla. He was a controversial figure in Florida and was expelled from the Hillsborough County Medical Association two weeks before coming to Cherry Hospital last Nov. 15, an association spokesman said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain today in a rush of activity following the power blackout that shut down New York markets Thursday.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.03 at 905.02.

Gainers led losers by about a 7-4 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. First-hour volume on the Big Board reached 9.22 million shares.

The heavy trading pace had been expected because of an accumulation of orders that could not be executed Thursday, when the city-wide power blackout that hit Wednesday night forced the closing of the New York markets.

Shares of Consolidated Edison of New York, the utility which suffered the power outage, were delayed in opening today because of an imbalance of orders.

Otherwise, analysts said buying was encouraged by a stronger-than-expected second quarter earnings showing posted Thursday by International Business Machines, the No. 1 holding of investing institutions. IBM posted an 11 per cent profit increase for the quarter, compared with only a 5.3 per cent gain in the first three months of the year.

IBM shares traded at 263½, up 2 from Wednesday's close. Burroughs gained 1 to 63½, also on higher second quarter earnings.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .19 at 54.89, and the American Stock Exchange market value index added .48 to 123.13.

Grand Jury Fails Indict

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — David Douglas Hill, one of two men originally charged with the "trash bag murders," was set free after a grand jury failed to indict him.

Officials said they didn't know where Hill had gone after his release, which came Thursday after the Riverside County Grand Jury ruled that evidence was too skimpy to indict him.

However, the grand jury did indict Hill's former roommate, Patrick Wayne Kearney, on three counts of murder. After his indictment, Kearney appeared before Riverside Superior Court Judge E. Scott Dales, who set a July 28 arraignment date.

Sheriff's Capt. Roger Denman said Hill, 34, was met by his nephew, who left in a car with Hill and a member of the public defender's office.

Dist. Atty. Byron Morton dropped the charges against Hill after the grand jury refused to indict him Wednesday.

Riverside sheriff's deputies say they are investigating 28 murders of young men and boys based on information from Kearney.

Victims of the "trash bag" killings have been found dismembered and nude in plastic bags along Southern California highways.

The 37-year-old Kearney was charged with the slayings of Albert Rivera, 21, of Los Angeles; Arturo Marquez, 24, of Oxnard; and John Otis LaMay, 17, of El Segundo.

According to Caldwell, one of the reasons for the delay in making the study findings public was that the Council had not completed its review of the report. In addition, budget considerations had to be given in regard to the new fiscal year which began on July 1, he said. The study was dated in February.

The city manager said that the process of phasing out the Redevelopment Commission will begin now and he expects that the recommendations of the study, made by Lydens Associates of Suffolk, Va., should be implemented within 60 days. The recommendations offered by the firm involve the first year of a phased program of CD organization.

The Housing Authority will be excepted from the recommendations at the present time, he added.

Caldwell said that one of the things pointed out in last year's evaluation of the CD program by HUD was that the overall coordination of the federal CD program should be improved. He observed that with separate agencies responsible for the program, "it does not work as smoothly as it would under centralized authority and responsibility."

Peter Lydens, head of the consulting firm, is a former city manager of Suffolk, Gastonia and Thomasville, Caldwell said, and holds a master's degree in public administration. He

Greenville In Ruth Finals

Greenville moved into the finals of the Area G Babe Ruth League baseball tournament by downing Pitt County 3-2 last night, while, in the loser's bracket, Bertie knocked Albemarle out of the tourney with a 17-5 win.

Greenville's pair of runs in the sixth allowed the team to squeak by Pitt County and remain undefeated in the double elimination tournament.

Pitt scored first in the game as Tony Eason singled in the second, went to third on a pair of errors and scored on Curtis Spencer's fielder's choice.

Greenville matched that in the third as Will Barrett got a base hit, was sacrificed to second by Glenn Moore, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Peter Pace's single.

Sammy Tucker scored in the fifth to put Pitt County back in front. He singled, stole second, went to third a wild pitch and scored when Mike Edens hit a fielder's choice.

Pace led off the sixth with a walk for Greenville and was sacrificed to second by Micah Dixon. Skip Topping singled him home to tie the game and Topping moved to third on errors. A sacrifice by Lindsay Winstead scored the winning run.

Moore pitched a three-hitter for Greenville in the contest.

Yesterday afternoon saw Albemarle score 17 runs on nine hits to defeat Bertie 17-5.

Albemarle scored four runs in the first inning. Reggie Boyce led off the frame with a walk and Tommy Gaste got a base on balls. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch.

Elton Layden walked to load the bases and Gary Hunter hit a fielder's choice to score Boyce. A pair of errors brought in Haste and Layden, while Hunter was hit by Woody White's base hit.

Marty Evans homered for Bertie in the bottom of the first and Ray Mizelle scored in the second to cut it to 4-2.

Albemarle added three more runs in the third, however. David Jordan walked with one away and White followed with a base on balls. A wild pitch advanced both runners and they came around when Mike Spear made it to third on an error. Spear was able to score on another Bertie misplay.

Bertie scored another run in the bottom of the third, while Albemarle added two in the fourth, five in the fifth and three in the sixth. Bertie got its final two runs in the seventh.

Pitt County met Albemarle at 3:30 this afternoon for the right to face Greenville in the finals. That final contest is set for 8:30 tonight.

Bertie Tops Senior Stars

LITTLEFIELD — Bertie's 17-18-year-olds rolled to a 12-3 victory over Greenville last night in the second round of the Senior Babe Ruth Tournament at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Tonight at 6 p.m., Bertie and Greenville meet in the second of a best-of-three series for the 16-year-old title. Greenville holds a 1-0 edge in the series and can wrap it up.

Immediately following, Greenville's 17-18-year-olds will meet Albemarle in a losers' bracket game in the double elimination event. The winner faces Bertie in one of two games Saturday night for the title.

Bertie's Warren Newton allowed Greenville only three hits during the evening. He walked two and struck out 17 in the seven innings of play.

Bertie pushed into the lead with three first inning runs. Johnny Harrell singled and moved to third on two wild pitches. Bill Eubanks doubled him in.

Stuart White reached on an error, scoring Eubanks. White moved up on the play, took third on an out and scored on a wild pitch.

Greenville came back with two runs in the third, reached on an error and Newton singled. Both moved up on an error on a pickoff play attempt. Harrell reached on an error, scoring White. Newton was cut down on an attempted double steal, however. Mike Dawson walked and Stuart White reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Jack Curtis then walked, scoring Harrell.

Bertie added three more in the sixth and four in the seventh. Greenville's other run came in the sixth.

Harrell led the Bertie hitting with three, while Stuart White, Jack Curllings, Marshall Bennett and Newton each had two hits.

Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds leans forward as he lets loose with a pitch in a game with the Atlanta Braves in Cincinnati Thursday night.

Seaver Hurls Two-Hit Win Over The Braves

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver is certainly the perfectionist. He isn't merely satisfied with a no-hitter—it has to be "arty."

"A no-hitter isn't necessarily anything," says the Cincinnati pitcher. "You can pitch a no-hitter and give up 10 line drives. If I pitched an 'artful' no-hitter, that would be something."

It would be just like Seaver, then, to relish his performance Thursday night, even if it was "just" a two-hit, 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"We needed a win today, and that was the important thing," said Seaver.

Along with Seaver's marvelous pitching performance, the Reds got some marvelous hitting from George Foster, who is on the hottest long-ball streak of his big league career.

Foster drove in five runs with three homers, taking over the National League home run leadership with 28 and padding his league-leading RBI total to 88.

"I thrive on pressure," said Foster, succinctly.

On his unusually high offensive totals, Foster remarked: "I can't help but think about records. (But) I don't set specific goals for myself. Goals are good as far as setting guidelines for yourself, but if you think about them too much, you feel letdown if you don't accomplish them."

In limited National League action, the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 11 innings. The Chicago Cubs and New York Mets were postponed due to the after-effects of the massive power shortage that struck New York City Wednesday night.

Seaver, who also slugged a home run, walked the first two batters in the game and then retired 18 batters in a row. Willie Montanez hit a one-out double in the seventh inning to end Seaver's bid for his first career no-hitter. Foster became the 14th Reds' player ever to hit three home runs in a game.

Howe Moves Up In Tournament

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

FLOSSMOOR, Ill. (AP) — Lauren Howe, a trim 18-year-old blonde from Colorado Springs, Colo., says she was doing sit-ups last November when something popped in her back.

"It put me in a slump and only now is my game coming around," said the daughter of the golf pro at the Country Club of Colorado. "My emotional stability is also better."

Miss Howe, 1976 Western junior champion, said her two victories in Thursday's double round of the Women's Western Amateur "were the most satisfying golf I've ever played."

Miss Howe, who said she has yielded her golf scholarship and dropped out of the University of Tulsa because she plans to turn professional, defeated arch-rival Cindy Hill of Colorado Springs in the third round 1-up in a match that was squared five times. She then ousted medalist Beth Daniel of Charleston, S.C., 5 and 4 in the afternoon quarter-finals.

In today's semifinals at Flossmoor Country Club, Miss Howe will face another 18-year-old daughter of a pro, Lori Garbacz of South Bend, Ind.

Miss Garbacz advanced with a 19-hole triumph over Lancy Smith of Williamsville, N.Y., the 1974 Western Amateur winner.

Miss Garbacz pitched six inches from the cup for a winning birdie on the extra hole after Miss Smith had evened the match with birdies on the 17th and 18th holes.

Greenville will now face the winner of the Cary-Garner series for the divisional championship, the last hurdle before a state playoff. Cary and Garner are tied in their best-of-five series, 2-2.

Billy Mitchell picked up the victory for Greenville, scattering six hits. He struck out five and walked four as he ran his record to 5-0 on the year.

Chapman stole third and a passed ball let Shank advance. Craft walked, loading them up, and Hooks doubled, driving in both Chapman and Shank. Kevin Adams reached on an error, and Greg Lee was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Craft. Hooks scored on an err.

Rocky Mount got its first run in the sixth. Greg Clark reached on an error and Worthington singled. Mike Leonard followed with another hit, scoring Clark.

Greenville got three more in the seventh. Shank reached on a strikeout error and Craft singled. Hooks got a hit, scoring Shank and two wild pitches plated Craft Lee singled to score Hooks.

The other Rocky Mount run came in the ninth. Linwood Silver singled and scored on Whitley's triple.

The best-of-seven series with the Garner-Cary winner is slated to open Monday, with Greenville probably being the home team for the series.

In yesterday's other contest, Bertie eliminated Albemarle with a 12-0 victory in the losers' bracket.

Pitt County and Greenville both scored runs in the first inning of their contest. In the top of the frame, Pitt's Doug McRoy walked, went to second when Emery Vines reached on an error and scored when Kevin Battle walked after Lewis Yelverton was hit by a pitch.

In the bottom of the inning, Scott Galloway walked for Greenville, went to second on Mitchell Brann's single, went to third when Roger Williams singled and scored on Mike Pollard's fielder's choice.

Pitt County added two runs in the second for a 3-1 lead and then came up with five in the top of the third. Dixon Page led off the third with a single for Pitt and stole second. Greg Hardison walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Jeff Cox reached on a fielder's choice to score Page, while he and Hardison advanced on Roy Lassiter's walk.

Hardison and Cox both scored when Billy Bunting singled and Bunting and Lassiter were plated by Lewis Yelverton's base hit.

Greenville scored three in the bottom of the third to cut the Pitt County lead to 8-4, but Pitt scored four in the fifth. Greenville added its final two runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Last night's first game pitted Bertie and Albemarle in the losers' bracket. Bertie scored six runs in the fourth to come from behind and take a 12-7 lead. Albemarle scored three more runs, but could only come within two, 12-10.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gene Locklear of the Syracuse Chiefs slammed four homers to tie an International League baseball one-game record Thursday night as the Chiefs downed the Columbus Clippers 11-1.

The switch-hitting Locklear showed what a designated hitter can do. His four homer performance ties him with five other players for the single game mark.

Locklear swatted a two-run blast in the second inning to begin his night, added another two-run shot in the next inning, and solo four baggers in the seventh and ninth innings.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The longest road trip of the season turned out to be an expensive one for Cincinnati Reds slugging star George Foster.

Thieves stole $500 worth of personal belongings from his downtown apartment, Foster said. He said the items included two radios, clothing and traveling gear.

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Bears have sent pitcher Dennis Blair to Rochester of the International League to complete a trade involving the two teams' parent clubs, the American Association team announced.

In the trade, Rochester's parent club, the Baltimore Orioles, sent pitcher Fred Holdsworth to the Montreal Expos, Denver's parent team, a Bears spokesman said Thursday.

The Bears activated infielder Rick Renick, who has been on the disabled list since June 6, to replace Blair.

Blair, 23, was in his second year with the Bears.

Sober View For Leader

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Fred Marti took a sober, realistic view of his surprise first-round lead, forged on a record 64, in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"Rarely does the first round leader go on to win the tournament," said the veteran Marti, who has yet to win in 14 years of tour activity. "Very few manage to go from wire to wire, so it's hard to say how important the lead is."

But his seven-under-par effort, a tournament record that included a string of five consecutive birdies, some fantastic approach shots and a 29 — an other tournament mark — on the back nine, kept alive what he has called "the great American dream."

"You never know. In the next three years I could win a half million dollars. So could a lot of other guys. The opportunity is there."

Jack Nicklaus agreed. "Fred's a good player. He should have won two or three tournaments," Nicklaus said. "You can't tell. He might win one and have a breakthrough, win a bunch of them."

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, though well back of Marti, resumed their duel that saw Watson win the British Open last week in one of golf's great confrontations. They matched 68s in the bright, hot sunshine, but both admitted to an emotional drain from the epic encounter in Turnberry, Scotland.

"I was playing on instinct," Watson said.

"It's always hard for me, the week after a major championship, for me to really get interested," Nicklaus said. "If I can just keep myself in position through the first couple of rounds, then the interest starts to build."

Sharing second, three shots back of Marti, were Ray Floyd and South African Dale Hayes, who had 67s on the 7,191-yard, par 71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

With Nicklaus and Watson in the big group at 68 were Mark Hayes, Tom Weiskopf, George Burns, Don Bies, Frank Beard, Bob Gilder, Mexican Victor Regalado and Australian David Graham.

PGA champ Dave Stockton had a 71. The group at 72 included U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin and Al Geiberger.

All-Stars Fall By The Wayside

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's beginning to appear as though the American League may not field an all-star team for the All-Star Game.

First it was pitchers Frank Tanana of the California Angels and Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers who suffered injuries this week that forced their withdrawal from next Tuesday's All-Star Game at Yankee Stadium. Ironically, AL Manager Billy Martin of the New York Yankees was figuring on one of them as his starter.

On Thursday, just as the AL reserves were announced, one of the selections, second baseman Don Money of the Milwaukee Brewers, had to leave a game with a strain of the lower back. It was not known whether the ailment would affect his All-Star participation.

And later in the day, fireballer Nolan Ryan of the Angels, who was named by Martin to replace Tanana, said he would not go as a second-hand choice.

"I'm not going," Ryan said. "I heard there was a possibility I might start. Well, that might be very difficult since I'm going to be lying on the beach at Laguna. If I can't go on my own merits, I'm not going."

To replace Fidrych, Martin ignored the other Detroit pitchers and picked slugging first baseman Jason Thompson.

The rest of the AL pitching staff, announced earlier, consists of starters Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Vida Blue of Oakland plus relievers Bill

Campbell of Boston, Jim Kern of Cleveland, Dave LaRoche of the Angels and Sparky Lyle of the Yankees.

For his other bench strength, Martin named catchers Thurman Munson of New York and Butch Wynegar of Minnesota, first basemen George Scott of Boston and Ron Fairly of Toronto, second basemen Money, shortstop Bert Campaneris of Texas, third basemen Graig Nettles of New York and outfielders Fred Lynn and Jim Rice of Boston, Ken Singleton of Baltimore, Larry Hise of Minnesota and Ruppert Jones of Seattle.

The AL starters are catcher Carlton Fisk, shortstop Rick Burleson and outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston; first baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota; second baseman Willie Randolph and outfielder Reggie Jackson of New York; third baseman George Brett of Kansas City and outfielder Richie Zisk of Chicago.

One of the National League pitchers, Houston's Joaquin Andujar, reinjured a hamstring muscle Thursday night. The Astros' team doctor said the injury might keep Andujar out of the All-Star Game, but the pitcher said otherwise.

"I tried to throw a fast ball and it felt like somebody shot me in the leg with a gun," Andujar said. "But it's not going to keep me out of the All-Star Game because it's such an honor to play."

The NL reserves were to be announced today.

The NL has won the last five All-Star Games, 13 of 14 and holds an over-all 28-18-1 lead in the series.

Amazin' Cubs Open Key Series

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the six seasons Bill Buckner spent with the Los Angeles Dodgers, playing against the Chicago Cubs was something special.

"It was," says Buckner with a wicked grin, "a chance to build up our average."

Buckner is on the Cubs' side of the fence now ... make that the Amazin' Cubs, the first-place Cubs, who haven't finished in the National League East's first division since 1972 but lead by four games as they begin an important four-game weekend series with the runner-up Phillies in Philadelphia tonight.

Picked in most quarters to finish fifth or sixth, the Cubs are amazin' everyone except themselves.

"This is a different team," says right fielder Bobby Murcer, a first-year Cub who is one of the major reasons for the improvement. "It has better defense and more punch than last year's team. We're just playing good, steady baseball offensively and defensively and we're getting good pitching."

Murcer, who spent the last two seasons with the San Francisco Giants after a six-year hitch with the New York Yankees, sees a similarity with the one-time Yankee dynasty.

"DeJesus, Ontiveros, it's the same as the old Yankee teams which had guys sitting on the bench who could play elsewhere but never got the chance," he says.

Shortstop Ivan DeJesus was up briefly with Los Angeles the last three seasons, but the Dodgers were committed to Bill Russell. So last Jan. 11 they shipped DeJesus, Buckner and Jeff Albert to the Cubs for Rick Monday and Mike Garman.

A steal for the Dodgers, the experts said.

Third baseman Steve Ontiveros came to the major leagues with the Giants during the 1973 season but shifted between third base, first base and the outfield and never played an entire campaign as a regular. On Feb. 11, the Cubs acquired Murcer, Ontiveros and

Yaz Makes Light Of Passing Williams' Hit Production Mark

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski, who replaced Ted Williams as the Boston Red Sox left fielder 16 years ago, has now replaced the "Splendid Splinter" as Boston's all-time leader in hits.

"I think Ted Williams was the greatest hitter of all time in baseball, and if he hadn't missed those five years in the service, I'd probably still be chasing him for 10 years," Yastrzemski said after getting a single and a home run Thursday night to increase his career hit total to 2,654.

Williams, a member of the Hall of Fame, was a Marine pilot in World War II and the Korean conflict.

"Anytime you pass a guy like that, it's a thrill," Yastrzemski said.

With Yastrzemski's two hits and Butch Hobson's third home run in as many games, the Red Sox battered the Cleveland Indians 7-4 to remain atop the American League East Division race.

In other AL games Thursday, the Chicago White Sox edged Toronto 2-1, the New York Yankees defeated Milwaukee 6-3, Baltimore stopped Texas 6-1, Kansas City downed Detroit 4-1 and Seattle knocked off California 4-1.

White Sox 2, Blue Jays 1
Richie Zisk raced home from second on an error eighth-inning error to back Ken Kravec's three-hitter and give Chicago its victory. Kravec outduelled loser Jerry Garvin, who yielded just four hits.

Zisk and Lamar Johnson walked after two were out in the eighth. When Eric Soderholm's sharp ground ball ricocheted off Toronto third baseman Dave McKay into left field, Zisk scored the winning run.

Yankees 6, Brewers 3
Two home runs by Reggie Jackson—his 14th and 15th of the year—and a two-run homer by George Zeber powered New York to its victory over Milwaukee.

Jackson smacked a two-run roundtripper in the seventh, snapping a 1-1 tie, and after Graig Nettles followed with a single, Zeber slammed his third homer of the season.

Orioles 6, Rangers 1
Ross Grimsley threw slow and slower, giving up just seven hits, as Baltimore downed the Rangers.

Grimsley shut out the Rangers after the first inning after pitching his first shutout in two years in his last start.

The Orioles scored twice in the first with the help of a throwing error by Bump Wills and Ken Singleton's RBI double.

Royals 4, Tigers 3
Frank White continued his hitting streak with a single and double, driving in three runs to pace Kansas City to victory. White's RBI triple to right in the sixth inning marked the fifth consecutive game in which he has driven in a run.

Jason Thompson and Ron LeFlore homered for the Tigers.

Mariners 4, Angels 1
California pulled off a triple play, but Dick Pole and Enrique Romo combined to hold the Angels to just three hits as Seattle snapped a three-game losing streak. Angels relief pitcher Dyer Miller needed only one pitch to record the three outs.

Miller entered the game in the fifth inning with runners at first and second. Lee Stanton hit Miller's first pitch on the ground to third baseman Ron Jackson, who stepped on the bag for one out, threw to second for a force, and the relay to first retired Stanton by a step.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Complete important family matters before you seek amusement. Make use of those ideas that bring you more happiness and contentment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever shopping is necessary then make plans to entertain at home. Invite only the most trustworthy, though.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A touch of rivalry develops if you join in group activities. Face competition with courage and avoid saying something you'll be sorry for later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle money and other practical matters early and get your life on a more even keel. Contact those persons who can be of assistance to you in the future.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) A personal aim can be reached that has been difficult before this. Avoid a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Come to a better understanding with friends today and then be happy at amusements together. Think along more practical lines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to handle difficult duties; then be with congenials for amusement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal morning to study a new project and then plan how to get your ideas to the attention of bigwigs. Spend enough time planning an upcoming trip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be on the alert for news interests of worth. Drive with utmost care and be careful of strangers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Maintain good standing among friends by keeping any promises you have made. Show cooperation with others if you really want to progress now. Be active and happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Organize work carefully and then carry through. Situations arise that give you a better idea how to advance more quickly in your career.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan just how to get a good deal of work done with those who are congenial, and then talk over with a partner a new project that interests you. Take treatments early to improve health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will, early in life, comprehend the basics of living and should be given a chance to solve problems, to earn some money and to handle practical affairs wisely.

Britain's Martin Hoffman continues to shine in the Philip Morris European Cup series of tournaments. Here's an example of his technique from the event played in The Hague.

Hoffman's one heart opening bid left West with no reasonable action to take on the first round. The momentum of the auction carried North-South to a club slam, and West's double was based as much on the hope of defeating the contract as on deterring his partner from sacrificing at six diamonds. He was proved wrong on both counts. Not only was he unable to beat the slam, but the save in six diamonds would have been very inexpensive indeed.

The opening diamond lead was won in dummy and a trump was led to the king. Hoffman now chose to abandon trumps, leaving West with the queen. A heart was discarded on the ace of diamonds and a heart to the ace brought a diamond discard from East. Declarer now had a reasonably clear picture of the distribution.

He ruffed a spade and then led his remaining diamond. If West ruffed with the queen, declarer would make the rest of the tricks on a crossruff, so he discarded a spade. Declarer ruffed in dummy and continued to ruff spades low in his hand and hearts in dummy. West was helpless.

Defends His Drug Record

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A hospital pharmacist on trial for failing to keep adequate records of how the drug valium was dispensed has argued that the record-keeping complied with federal guidelines.

"It was unnecessary to change the (record-keeping) system we had because it was satisfactory," Paul H. White, 39, chief pharmacist at Catawba County Hospital, told a Superior Court jury Thursday.

White's lawyers rested his case Thursday after his testimony.

A U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration audit on March 31, 1976, showed that White's records failed to account for 38,112 valium tablets.

White was indicted on a felony charge of failing to keep proper records for valium because of the unaccounted for pills.

Earlier in the trial, a DEA agent said some of the records of valium use in the hospital did not qualify as proper records under the law because they did not have proper markings to designate valium.

While on the stand, White contradicted some of his earlier testimony. In answer to a prosecutor's question he said he had received guidelines on drug record keeping from DEA, though he had denied it earlier.

He also admitted once having been verbally reprimanded by DEA officials after previously denying it had happened. The reprimand did not involve drug

"A BRIDGE TOO FAR"

Complex Blend By Pop Stars

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At 2 a.m. one December day in 1970, John Denver, then a moderately successful singer, fell by the Washington, D.C., home of his friends, Bill and Taffy Denoff, to talk music.

All had been working at a Georgetown club, Denver as the star, the Denoffs as the opening act. Late hours aren't odd for performers and, Taffy says, Denver was hurting.

"He'd broken his thumb in a car accident and couldn't go to sleep, anyway," she said. The Denoffs showed him a half-finished song they'd been working on for quite a while.

She says they toiled on the tune until dawn, kicking around ideas and chord changes. The result: "Take Me Home, Country Road."

About five years pass. The Denoffs, still busy in writing and performing, have formed a new group, the Starland Vocal Band. And they have themselves another smash hit: "Afternoon Delight."

On Sunday, they and bandfolk Margot Chapman, from San Francisco, and Jon Carroll, of Fredericksburg, Va., also will have themselves a six-week summer series on CBS.

It's the "Starland Vocal Band Show," features their complex but mellow blend of melody and counterpoint, and was taped both here and in the Washington area, whence they began.

The Denoffs — he's from Springfield, Mass., she's from Washington — met 10 years ago when he was auditioning troops for a band called Fat City in the nation's Capitol.

Bill, 30, may be the only pop star at large with a degree from Georgetown University in Chinese, although some would consider that adequate preparation for the music business.

"I've always done music and one other thing — which is mainly going to school," laughed Denoff, who regards song-writing as a craft, not a pastime. He began studying it even before college.

He also played guitar as a kid — still does — and had his first band at 13. But he might have wound up in striped pants, being an American diplomat somewhere, had it not been for music.

After college, he said, "I thought, 'Gee, I'd hate to be 50 years old and say if I'd only done this (music) when I was 20.'" Goodbye State Department, hello country roads.

But neither he nor Taffy say they began performing with the idea of someday headlining a TV series.

Reservoir's Poison Is Tentatively Identified

KERNERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — While scientists admit they still don't know what killed all the fish in this town's reservoir, they say they have tentatively identified a mysterious substance in the water.

Jack Stonebraker of the Environmental Protection Agency in Atlanta said Wednesday the agency had discovered what appears to be a compound formed by the joining of two ether compounds.

Either was known to be in waste water that flowed into the reservoir when vandals opened valves on six tanks of the Destructo Chemway Corp. on June 3. The Chemway plant is about a mile from the reservoir. Shortly after the spill, nearly all the fish in the lake died.

It is not known whether the newly-found substance with a long name will kill animals or whether it killed the fish, he said.

Samples taken July 1 showed more of the substance, apparently because residue of the ether compound flowed into the lake from the spill area.

Bob Carter of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development said that water flowing over the sandbagged spillway is not great enough to cause concern and any contaminant in the water would be diluted by the time it reached Belews Creek Lake, a Duke Power steam plant reservoir downstream.

Carter said tests indicate water from the reservoir has not harmed fish in the stream or in Belews Creek Lake.

The state is seeking a activated charcoal to pack around the sandbags to filter the water as it passes over the spillway, Carter said.

Stonebraker said he is waiting to hear from other EPA officials who will decide whether to treat the lake water with carbon filters. That could cost as much as $250,000 and would be paid for with state and EPA funds.

WEATHER FORECAST — Very warm weather is due today for the East and warm weather is expected in the West. It will be somewhat cooler over the central Plains. Showers are expected in northern New England. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A weak cool front passed through North Carolina Thursday leaving in its wake comparatively comfortable temperatures in some sections early this morning.

In the mountains, Asheville, after a high of 95 Thursday, had a low this morning of 67. Greensboro reached 94 Thursday and also was 67 this morning. Raleigh's range was 96 and 68.

Elsewhere around the state the range generally was from highs in the mid 90s lows in the low 70s.

The cool front will dissipate today and temperatures again will be generally in the upper 80s to mid 90s. Lows tonight will be in the mid 60s to low 70s.

Widely scattered thunderstorms developed across southern and western sections of the state Thursday but dissipated soon after sunset.

Looking ahead, the hot weather will persist across North Carolina into the first of next week. Daytime highs will be mostly in the low to mid 90s. Lows will be mostly in the upper 60s and 70s. The next best chance of showers for the entire state will come Tuesday.

Her Husband Died 19 Days Too Early

SHALLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Officials of a state pension fund have told the widow of a state employee that her husband died 19 days too early for her to be eligible for $244 in month survivor's benefits.

Nelson Maness died of cancer on June 4, just 11 days after filing for benefits. The Law Enforcement Officers Benefit and Retirement Fund requires that a member live for 30 days after filing.

"We didn't know anything about those 30 days," said Margaret Maness, 34, of Shallotte, after being told that she and her three daughters could not collect the money.

"Nelson didn't know it; neither did I. Neither did his supervisor or any of the guys in his retirement system," she added. She said she would take the matter to the fund's appeals board and to court if necessary.

"I intend to fight for what Nelson worked so long for," she said. "I don't think it's right for them not to give the girls and I what he worked for."

Maness had worked for 12 years as an inspector for the Division of Marine Fisheries. He knew he was dying of cancer, but his widow says he had no idea there was any hurry about applying for benefits for his family.

Fund officials said Mrs. Maness would get only the $5,051.46 her husband had actually invested in the fund, plus interest.

W.L. Wallace of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development said the department was asking on behalf of Mrs. Maness for an attorney general's interpretation of the 30-day requirement.

RESIGNS — Governor General Sir John Kerr appears at Government House in Canberra Australia, Thursday. Kerr, whose unprecedented dismissal of Australia's Labor Government in 1975 touched off a constitutional crisis, resigned Thursday as Queen Elizabeth's representative. (AP Wirephoto)

Fayetteville Support Grows To Clean Up Hay St.

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The good people of this steamy Army town, according to its chief of police, are growing tired of hearing their community called the sin city of the East Coast.

"They want to know why their town is an attraction for filth and crime," says Danny

Dixon, who has been in charge of the city's police force for nearly a year. "They want to see it cleaned up."

The principal source of Fayetteville's reputation, which Dixon frankly concedes is well-deserved, is the famous 500 block of Hay Street, a neon-spangled cluster of grimy honky-tonks, where GIs from nearby Ft. Bragg sip beer and stare at bare-breasted go-go dancers. By themselves, the bars seem harmless enough. But the placid girl-watching is only the most obvious feature of a sprawling sub-culture that includes organized prostitution, drugs, motorcycle gangs and violence.

The apparent reason for this criminal concentration is Ft. Bragg's semi-monthly payroll, swelled by paratrooper bonuses to something approaching $5 million, Dixon says.

When the GIs bring their paychecks to town, the ranks of young local women are reinforced by college coeds, runaways, farmers' daughters and itinerant prostitutes, and the pace on Hay Street quickens.

All this has been going on for years, while respectable Fayetteville looked the other way. Across town at the Barbecue Lodge, where the Christian Businessmen's Luncheon Group gathers every Thursday, solid Protestant citizens witness their faith to one another just as they might in any other town. There is no evidence of a missionary spirit with respect to the city's night life.

"Hay Street?" reflected one member when asked how Christians felt about it. "Well, I guess our attitude is that it's gonna be there, so leave it alone."

Dr. Thompson's research on the ocean quahog clam is designed to establish a relationship between the growth rings on the clam's hinge plate and its age.

"They don't bother the community and the community doesn't bother them," said another.

But Dixon says the city is starting to open its eyes to its seamy side, spurred on by tougher enforcement of vice laws and a police campaign to get citizens interested in cleaning things up.

"They used to be afraid to go into these areas, so they looked the other way," Dixon says. "Now they tell us they want to ride along with us and see what it's like."

Dixon obliges these requests. He speaks to church and civic groups and the department has filmed Hay Street to give something approaching a firsthand look to those who are too timid to see it for themselves.

The idea, the chief says, is to generate public support for the police and for new laws like the recently-enacted bill that makes it possible to close adults-only businesses as public nuisances.

With citizen support, Dixon says he can eventually reduce the criminal activity to a level that will permit the town to draw attention to itself in ways that will make the silent majority of its residents proud.

Both Dixon and local civic leaders are interested in bringing pressure to bear on the owners of Hay Street property.

"I want to see the names of the owners of these buildings published," said the Rev. James C. Cammack, pastor of Snyder Memorial Baptist Church. "And it would really get my dander up to find that some Baptist deacon owned some of that property."

Snyder Memorial and First Baptist are among churches who have conducted well-attended question and answer sessions on pornography, and Cammack is one of those who have toured the area with police.

Mayor Beth Finch agreed that "constant needling" by aroused citizens "might have an effect on owners of the property, and as businesses become vacant, maybe they can be replaced with something else."

The city council has in the past considered zoning pornography and topless dancing to a less visible area or dispersing it around the city, but decided in the end that moving the problem would not solve it.

A Downtown Revitalization Commission is also examining possible solutions to the Hay Street problem, Mayor Finch said, including construction of a family recreation building or a pedestrian mall and civic center.

"Things like this move slowly, and there's still a lot of apathy," the mayor said. "But people have decided things won't change unless the people here do something about it. It's going to take constant vigilance, looking at the wound in the city and trying to heal it."

All Your Questions Answered

Since we moved to this town several years ago I started clipping and saving your columns. Now I wish I could get hold of some of your old columns that I missed. How would I go about this? — Mrs. B. de W., Ind.

Thank you for your interest in my columns. This pleases me very much. Because I have had similar inquiries from many readers, I have been prompted to compile many of my medical columns in a book which has just been published.

It's "All Your Medical Questions Answered" (Hearst Books, N.Y., $9.95). The book represents a collection of what I felt were the most significant and most often asked questions by my readers.

These answers are aimed at specific medical problems. And, as you know from reading my columns, I constantly try to replace fear and anxiety with a feeling of encouragement and hope, based on the newest advances in medical science.

I have had a hernia in my groin for 20 years. Even though

I wear a truss the hernia seems to be getting bigger lately. I'm 67. Am I too old for an operation of this sort? — Mr. W.N., Pa.

Dear Mr. N.: The truss that you've been wearing for 20 years was not meant to be a cure for a hernia. Rather, it was meant to protect you from one of the complications of hernias, which is to keep a loop of intestine from getting trapped in the hernial opening. When this does happen, and it cannot be pushed back, a surgical emergency may arise.

When a hernial opening becomes so large that the truss is no longer effective there is always the possibility of this or other complications.

You undoubtedly by now have exhausted the value of a truss. Should your doctor decide on surgery, you may be certain that there is no unusual risk because you are 67.

Refined surgical techniques, the speed of surgery and the safety of modern anesthesia make it possible for surgeons to operate successfully on patients who are much older than you.

She Makes Own Shoes

By ELAINE APOSTOLA
SEDGWICK, Maine (UPI) — You can make yourself a pair of shoes for less than $25, and they'll probably outlast any shoes you buy, says cobbler Chris Lewis Clark.

Ms. Clark, 36, makes her own shoes. For about seven years, she has earned her living by making shoes for other people. Now she has written "The Make-it-yourself Shoe Book" (Knopf, $10 hardcover, $4.95 paper).

She went into shoemaking as a hobby about a year after she quit teaching English in California.

"The leather costs come up to about $7 a pair, and you can make shoes right in your own living room."

She is self-taught "... because there is practically no information available to anyone who wants to make shoes by hand. 'I felt other people shouldn't have to waste six years of their life to learn the process.'"

The book explains the shoemaking process step-by-step, with many illustrations and sources for materials and supplies.

Ms. Clark also teaches a series of seven-week courses at her shop here. It occupies one room of the house that has been her family's home for 200 years.

Her classes usually number around seven and can include anyone from a retired couple to teen-agers.

"Each student makes at least one pair of shoes and moccasins," she said.

The tuition of $25 includes tools. Students must buy their own leather.

"The price of leather has tripled in the past three years, so don't quibble over the price," she said.

Ms. Clark's custom-made shoes go for $30 to $95 per pair. "Once you've done something 400 times, it's more fun to teach someone else," she said.

Perspective On American Art

NEW YORK (AP) — "Thirty Years of American Art, 1945-1975," featuring selections from its permanent collection, is on display at the Whitney Museum through October 23. The exhibit focuses on five main artistic modes: abstract expressionism, American surrealism, the precisionist aesthetic and minimalist, pop art and realism. It is the first of a series of exhibitions focusing on twentieth-century American art in the Whitney's permanent collection.
