Two Major Fires Struck Greenville Area Sunday

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

There were two major fires in the Eastern Pines Fire District Sunday. The chicken house and contents at the Joe Wilson Egg Farm was totally destroyed and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawton Nisbet in the Brook Valley Subdivision east of Greenville was extensively damaged.

The chicken house began burning about 1:30 p. m., Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said. He said volunteer firemen from Belvoir, Staton House, Grimesland, Black Jack, Winterville and Ayden went to assist Eastern Pines in fighting the blaze which destroyed the building valued at $400,000 and the contents valued at $80,000.

There had been two fires in the same building the week before. Joyner said it is believed that the first one was an electrical fire which started near a fan and that the second one may have spontaneously burst into flame because of heat built up in the chicken manure which was wet by the water used to put out the first fire. He would not speculate on the origin of the latest and most devastating of the fires.

This egg farm fire was all but extinguished when the call to the Nisbet home went in. One Winterville Fire Department truck was left at the egg farm and all seven departments went to the house fire, where they were joined by units from Greenville, Farmville, Simpson and Clark's Neck.

The house was aflame when firemen arrived, with neighbors and others using garden hoses on the blaze and carrying out furniture and other household items.

Memorial Hospital for injuries received during the egg farm fire. Hospital Director Jack Richardson identified those treated and released as Sammy White of the Pactolus Fire Department, who suffered smoke inhalation; Woody Wilson of the Eastern Pines Fire Department, who was overcome by heat; and Dennis Earl Elks and Charles Phillips of the Eastern Pines Department, with smoke inhalation, also.

Nisbet, contacted this morning, expressed his family's gratitude to all the volunteers — firemen, neighbors and others who saved so many of their belongings from destruction during the fire. "The firemen did a magnificent job of containing the blaze," he said, "and they went 'way, way beyond the call of duty in removing things from the house and seeing that they were not further damaged. We can never express enough appreciation to our neighbors and other friends who started and kept on saving our things," he said. "Without them, we'd have nothing left. I understand that at one time there were between 80 and 100 people out there carrying out things for us."

ADOPT-A-PET

I spent a week in Lancaster, Pa. recently and brought home the enclosed photo of a dog from Page 2 of the Sunday News, Lancaster's Sunday newspaper.

Am sending this page to your reporter, Jerry Raynor, because if we could arrange to do a similar good deed here, the project would involve photography. Such an adopt a pet column would be an asset to your paper and a service to the community. E. F.

Your suggestion is a good one. Our editors have decided to give the Adopt A Pet column a try and print it weekly or with whatever regularity the Pitt County Humane Society brings in adoptable animals for us to photograph and present to our readers. Humane Society President Jeanette Fiore has enthusiastically accepted the responsibility for selecting and bringing in the animals and having her phone number printed as the one to call if one does wish to adopt the animal or animals pictured or any other.

The first Adopt-A-Pet column appeared in yesterday's Daily Reflector.

UNC Bd. Told No Guidelines Given By HEW

CHAPEL HILL — University of North Carolina President William Friday told members of the UNC Board of Governors Friday that the university system still has no guidelines from the courts or from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, so the board must decide for itself what constitutes a desegregated system.

Friday's comments were made in connection with HEW-issued guidelines requiring the university system to make greater efforts toward desegregating its 16-campus. The guidelines require the UNC system to more than double the number of black students enrolled at the 11 predominantly white universities, increase black faculty, and upgrade programs at the five predominantly black schools.

The HEW guidelines were issued after Federal Judge John H. Pratt ruled that HEW was not complying with the 1964 Civil Rights Act by giving more than $100 million in education funds annually to the UNC system.

According to Friday, the state plan which was declared not adequate by the court, "is one that was approved by HEW," in 1974.

That plan had three objectives, according to Friday: To increase the percentage of black citizens availing themselves of post-secondary educational opportunities; to insure the quality of educational opportunities to which black and white citizens have access; and to encourage further racial integration of the student populations of our public post-secondary educational institutions.

"These were sound objectives in 1974," Friday emphasized, "and they still are sound in 1977. We can point to significant progress in attaining each of them, and to possibilities of further progress as a result of the appropriations made to us by the 1977 session of the General Assembly."

Friday said, "we acknowledged, and acknowledge today, that such duality exists. We have five institutions whose enrollments are preponderantly made up of black students, and eleven institutions whose enrollments are preponderantly made up of white students." But, according to the university official, the plan will lead to further elimination of racial duality.

"Our university today, while characterized in part by the presence of both traditionally black and traditionally white institutions, is not a segregated system. Students of all races have access to all institutions," according to Friday, who noted that the "rates of change" in the racial characteristics of the enrollment at the various schools, "make it clear...that we are not a segregated system."

Friday told the board, "we continue...committed to the belief that we will take those actions and carry out those policies that we determine to

Syria Says Israeli Premier 'Stalling'

By GEORGE KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrians say Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin is not bringing a new peace plan to Washington but is merely stalling for time and "does not want peace."

Begin, meeting with President Carter Tuesday in the first of three scheduled sessions, says he is carrying with him a "complete Mideast peace plan" approved unanimously by his cabinet and designed to serve as a basis for negotiations with the Arab states.

But the state-controlled Syrian media and officials in President Hafez Assad's government Sunday expressed skepticism about Begin's motives and concern that the Carter administration may be losing its stated desire for a just Middle East settlement.

"Israel does not want peace," said the government journal Tishrin. "What we are waiting for are American specifics after this long series of meetings (with Middle East leaders). With such specifics, we will formulate our attitude as to cooperating with the United States for a settlement in the Middle East and our relations with America."

Begin's visit is the last in a series of fact-finding meetings Carter has had with Arab and Israeli leaders, including a meeting with Assad in Geneva in May.

The Tishrin commentary reflects a growing Syrian impatience with U.S. Middle East policy.

Information Minister Ahmed Iskander said in an interview that the Carter administration has shown "ambiguity and hesitancy" in recent statements about a homeland for the Palestinians.

Syria has made it clear it will not accept any plan that avoids concessions to the Palestinians.

Iskander said through an interpreter, "The terrorist Begin is just trying to win time and to improve his ugly image. This in itself is a hostile action against peace."

Begin was a guerrilla commander in the fight against British-mandate rule in Palestine before Israel's independence in 1948.

There was speculation in Washington that Begin's plan entails establishment of a semi-autonomous Arab civil administration on the West Bank and Gaza linked with a continued Israeli military presence there.

But Syrian officials are not commenting on the unofficial reports of the proposal.

Hope Begin Plan Shows A Softening

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, arriving here for talks with President Carter, is carrying a secret "complete Mideast peace plan" designed to serve as a basis for negotiations with the Arab states.

Carter, convinced by the State Department and key advisers that a settlement depends on setting up a Palestinian homeland, is said to have hopes that the document reflects a softening of Begin's determination to retain control of the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza.

Begin was to arrive here today to open talks with the President.

Approved unanimously by the Israeli cabinet in advance of the 63-year-old onetime guerrilla leader's trip, the contents so far have been leak-proof — a remarkable development in a close-knit country that thrives on rumor and "inside information."

There is speculation that the plan reflects the views of Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, a key strategist in the new government, who would establish a semi-autonomous Arab civil administration on the West Bank and in Gaza under a continued Israeli security presence.

Carter, who holds the first of three scheduled sessions with Begin on Tuesday, has given evidence of some conciliation of his own. Having shaken the Israelis by endorsing a Palestinian homeland, he now says unequivocally it should not be an independent state — which Begin says would place Israel in "mortal danger" — but some sort of "entity" tied to Jordan.

Carter offered the reassurance at a news conference last week, along with a disavowal of any intention of imposing terms on Israel. The new government in Jerusalem, like its predecessors, is sensitive to U.S. pressures, believing meanwhile that the only settlement the Arabs might keep is one they negotiated directly with Israel.

Begin, a hard-liner both militarily and philosophically, has described the West Bank and Gaza as "the inalienable legacy of our forefathers." There is considerable doubt he is prepared to relinquish what is described in Ezekiel as "the Land of Israel" and he and other militants still refer to the areas by the ancient names of Judea and Samaria.

Carter, himself a student of the Bible, is likely to find Begin more prepared to meet U.S. desires for retreat on the Golan Heights and in Sinai, which were not part of the promised land. Dayan has foreseen an Israeli pullback from a substantial part of these territories, providing there is demilitarization as well as a joint Arab-Israeli presence in some strategic areas.

Along with the sweet talk, the administration also has admonished Israel that she is expected to withdraw on all fronts.

On the eve of the Begin visit, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for the first time raised the possibility of establishing diplomatic and trade relations with Israel within five years of the signing of a general peace agreement.

Record Time In Bathtub Race

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) & Australian Phil Holt had a double victory in the 11th annual Nanaimo-to-Vancouver bathtub race. He won the race and set a record time for the second year in a row.

Holt beached his tub and scrambled up Vancouver's Kitsilano Beach to ring the finishers' bell, clocking one hour, 33 minutes, 16 seconds for the 36-mile jaunt across a relatively calm Georgia Strait.

The time was one minute, 46 seconds faster than the record time he set last year.

Holt said his tub was going so fast he had to slow down so his escort boat could keep up. It's a new model, he said, that sits on the water and "lets the motor go for its life."

Gift To Woman Shocks Friends

DEAR ABBY: We know a woman in her 60s who's been going with a man about her age for about 15 years. He has given her many very expensive gifts such as jewelry, a fur coat, a car, etc.

Last Christmas she decided that she didn't need anything in that line, so she asked him to pay for redoing her living room!

This involved knocking out a wall, refinishing the floor, custom-made draperies and of course all the new furniture. He paid for it without even batting an eye, but when she told all her friends what her gentleman friend gave her for Christmas, we were shocked. I think this is a far cry from what I have always held Christmas to mean as far as gift giving goes.

I would like your opinion.

SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED: A gift is anything a person wants to give another person. Granted, the gentleman's gift was unique (and extremely generous), but if he held still for it, he probably asked her what she wanted. So if it was okay by him, it's okay by me.

DEAR ABBY: I need an answer but I can't sign my name because if anybody ever found out about this it could cost my husband his job.

If a married man is bisexual and has sex with another man, is he guilty of adultery?

HURTING WIFE

DEAR HURTING: Yes, and he's also guilty of sodomy.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box, No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily... and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises." With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

Liddy Could Assist History

Perhaps the most mysterious character in the whole Watergate affair was G. Gordon Liddy, once the attorney for the Nixon re-election committee. Liddy went to jail without ever talking about his role in the Democratic headquarters break-in, apparently adhering to a code of silence to which he felt honor bound.

He served 52 months in prison — the longest of anyone connected with Watergate — and was finally granted a parole by the U. S. Parole Commission recently, with his release set for Sept. 7.

Liddy could have stayed in jail longer except for the intervention of President Carter. The president commuted Liddy's 20-year sentence to eight years, which made him eligible for parole this month.

Otherwise it would have been May, 1981 before parole eligibility was possible.

It may well be that Liddy would have served at least until 1981 rather than speak out on the Watergate affair. Unless he changes his stance, it doesn't appear likely that he will write a book or take to the public speaking circuit to raise funds following his release. His code of silence would prohibit this. It is to be hoped that Gordon Liddy has a sense of history and will leave some record of what he knows about the Watergate break-in of the Democratic headquarters to be read by future generations. The incident did, after all, bring about the first resignation of a president of the United States.

Scored A Small Victory In FPC Delay

Wholesale electric customers of Virginia Electric and Power Co. and Carolina Power and Light Co. scored a small victory last week when the Federal Power Commission delayed proposed rate increases.

CP&L's increase was delayed three months while VEPCo's was delayed by four months. The wholesale customers are municipally-owned electric systems and rural co-ops.

The delay will mean savings of $4.5 million for the wholesale customers, it was reported.

The FPC has taken a step in the right direction, but the agency also needs to see that the requested increases are trimmed.

State Workers Win 'Big'

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — North Carolina teachers and other state employees, already substantially better off than their counterparts in private industry in terms of salary and fringe benefits, were big winners in the 1977 General Assembly.

While much public attention was riveted on the proposed 6.5 per cent pay raise finally approved by the Legislature, other less-noticed benefit approvals netted state workers at least 10 per cent all told.

Emmett Burden, executive director of the North Carolina State Employees Association, puts it this way: "In addition to the 6.5 per cent salary increase, the excellent additional fringe benefit when related to dollar costs, will show a gain of something over 10 cent in total compensation and benefits."

The association represents about 70,000 employees; less than half of the total. Teachers make up the other big block, reaching to a total of about 165,000.

Big Total
 In the State Employees Association alone, the total benefit package will cost $75 million in fiscal year 1977-78 beginning this month. While an overall total is almost impossible to run up due to the scattered benefits included, it will approach $150 million.

In addition to the across-the-board 6.5 per cent salary increase, state employees also won a seventh merit pay step; teachers won another year of longevity pay increase atop the present 13 years.

Longevity pay for state employees was improved, with eligibility lowered to 10 years of service and extended to community college personnel. Longevity is figured at the rate 1.5 per cent of the employee's annual salary.

Retirement benefits were increased, and the state absorbed the increased cost of health and hospitalization insurance at the rate of $2.30 per employee.

The package, Burden commented, was "one of the highest figures on record," and an excellent record. "This is one of the best packages the General Assembly has ever provided for the employees of this state."

The budget approved by the General Assembly refers only to the present fiscal year, with no provisions built in for raises in the next. Burden served notice to the Legislature that, "we'll be back in early 1978" as the assembly meets for a session to revise the state budget for the second fiscal year.

The successful bid for improved working conditions by state employees assures continuation of benefits which will continue to keep them above average in terms of pay, fringe benefits, etc.

BILL NOBLITT

Pay Good
 Regular state employees will average more than $10,600 per year; teachers will average better than $12,700 per year. Of course the average represents a figure with some below and some above those totals.

Early in the legislative session there was some discussion among lawmakers of studies which showed state employees making up to $2,000 per year more than salaries prevailing in the private sector. Figures show the state jobs have become attractive enough to attract numerous applicants, with the personnel section reporting some seven applicants for each vacancy.

Talk of holding down employee benefits, however, proved unpopular as the assembly progressed from January to July. Most credit the power of the employee organizations in terms of voting strength as a considerable factor.

And despite some attention recently to plans of Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. to reduce the work force and remove some of those hired during the former Republican administration, figures show state employees enjoy considerable security: layoff and termination rates... are much lower than for private industry (and) a large number of state workers in a county tends to stabilize the economy... a recent study suggested.

The Affair Is A Secret

(Art Buchwald has taken off a few weeks to study the effects of solar energy on bikini bathing suits. He left behind some of his classic columns which the Supreme Court has just ruled can now be released to the American people.)

One of the problems of being married and having children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem. Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he calls her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office."

"I've got to see you this afternoon," the husband says.

"Can't. I've got to be home when the children come from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?"

"Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened."

"I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street at 3 o'clock."

The wife arranges for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around quickly and then hops in.

"I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously.

"Relax," the husband says comfortingly.

"Where are we going?" she asks.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car, and then we'll drive to the room."

After they get into the room she laughs, "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her.

"So did I," she replies. "I waited for this moment. I thought it would never come."

"I wanted to call you, but I was afraid he would answer the phone."

"He wouldn't stop watching television to answer the phone. Does your wife know about us?"

"She's too busy taking care of the kids to know about anything. I told my secretary if she called to tell her I was out at a conference."

"How long can we go on like this?"

"Let's just be grateful for what we've got."

"If we'd only met each other before."

"I feel that way, too."

"At 6 o'clock they check out of the motel, and my friend drops his wife off at F and 14th. "Until next week, my darling," he says as he kisses her.

"It will seem like a year," she says tearfully.

She hops out of the car without turning back.

An hour later her husband arrives home. "Anything happen today?" he asks casually, as he pecks her on the cheek.

"The same dull routine. Anything happen with you?"

"No, just another crummy day." He yawns. They both smile inwardly and sit down to dinner.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Second Thoughts On B-1

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — Second thoughts following the rhapsodic first reaction to President Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber are producing a different response, confronting the administration with serious problems for which solutions are not presently in sight.

A new great debate over U.S. strategic policy seems assured, now that the B-1 supersonic bomber — whatever its immense costs to the taxpayer — has been scrapped. Plans for such a debate are now being laid by defense-oriented members of Congress who want to know among other things whether Mr. Carter has hidden plans for some new and cheaper manned bomber to penetrate Soviet air defenses after the B-52 dies of old age in the next 10 to 12 years.

The deepening concern inside the defense bloc is that the virtual abandonment of the strategic (long-range) B-1 bomber — with no other replacement for the B-52 yet visible — was primarily a sudden money-saving move with inadequate study of its profound implications.

Some of these implications seem, at least on the surface, to pose horrendous new problems. For example, under the long-held American nuclear-balance thesis of mutual deterrence, or mutual assured destruction, the U.S. has allowed its air defenses to atrophy. The Soviet Union, to the contrary, has done just the opposite: constructed the world's most remarkable air-defense system.

No air defense has been developed against the low-flying cruise missile. Yet, even though U.S. experts hint broadly that the American missile may be equipped with counter-electronic measures that blind Soviet radars, the threat of an eventual effective Soviet defense against the cruise is real.

Moreover, it is axiomatic that what the U.S. does, the Soviets eventually can also do. Jimmy Carter's abrupt decision to cancel the B-1, leading to all-out U.S. development and production of the cruise missile — not as a bargaining counter for strategic arms talks but as the replacement for the long-range bomber — will predictably lead to a crash cruise-missile program in the Soviet Union. If successful, leading congressional defense experts warn, this Soviet capability will either force the U.S. into an immensely expensive air-defense program or hand the Soviets an unacceptable advantage.

"We've got the marbles right now with the cruise missile," a top military expert told us, "but 10 years down the road the cruise is going to turn into our problem, not theirs."

There is, moreover, growing suspicion on another score on Capitol Hill, even among hawkish members of Congress who always have felt that the air-launched cruise missile was the American ace-in-the-hole. The suspicion: that without the B-1 to take a major role in the air-launched nuclear bomb force — one leg of the strategic triad — the 2,500 kilometer ceiling on the range of the air-launched cruise missile is clearly inadequate. That ceiling was offered the Russians by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance last March, but never negotiated into an agreement.

With the B-1 as its partner, it was felt that the cruise missile could be restricted to that maximum range (about 1,500 miles) from the point of launch. Without the B-1's versatility, that range will give sanctuary safety to vast Soviet areas, say congressional critics who will make the ceiling a key target in the upcoming defense debate.

The effect of the B-1 decision on the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) barely begins with the question of lifting that 2,500 kilometer range ceiling for the cruise

Other Editors Say Out To The Wolves?

(Henderson Dispatch)

What the attitude of the United States shall be toward Taiwan is being considered in Washington. The small island nation off the coast of Red China is one of the best friends this country has. Despite past mistreatment, Taiwan is, like the whipped dog, still friendly. It has always been. And the United States befriended it, until a few years ago.

After President Nixon went to Peking and hobnobbed with the communists, he concluded the island people were expendable in currying favor of the mainland regime. Nixon encouraged the United Nations to expel Taiwan, until then recognized as the real China. The U.N. obliged and admitted Red China in its stead.

Chiang Kai-shek, who was still living and president of Taiwan, kept his silence and absorbed the blow. His successors are still fast friends of this country.

Should the United States cut loose and withdraw token forces from Taiwan, the tiny republic would be on its own. Not only that but also at the mercy of the Peking hierarchy, which is eager to take over, and probably would if Washington broke relations and pulled out.

The action in ousting Taiwan from the U. N. was one of the blackest pages in American diplomatic policy. It was a betrayal of a loyal friend, however small.

It can be hoped that the Carter administration will not throw the tiny, democratic, and highly prosperous little nation to the wolves. It would be adding insult to injury, as if there has not already been enough of that and too much. Regardless of their size, the United States needs the small nations. Nowhere is there a more loyal government than that in Taipei. It is deserving of justice at the hands of this superpower.

Mower Noise Target

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Consider the lawnmower. The government is.

While the Consumer Product Safety Commission ponders the protection of the mowing public against whirling blades and mower-launched projectiles, the Environmental Protection Agency is trying to cut the noise.

It is in hearings and in court. No less a personage than U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica is presiding in the case of power mower manufacturers versus government efforts to brand their product a source of noise.

This seems appropriate, for the matter of the American lawnmower is no trivial issue. If the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, generations of American youths learned lessons of discipline and commerce on the mowing lawns of the suburbs.

The government isn't fussing about people-powered mowers. It's the ones with the engines.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission says more than 50,000 people are injured in power mower accidents every year. Rotating blades can cut or mangle hands or feet when somebody slips or defies both the instructions and common sense by reaching under the mower. The blades can shoot out rocks, twigs or debris and wound a bystander.

Hence the effort to set safety standards. The commission has a 99-page set of proposed rules, including one that would require mowers to be equipped with a gadget that would stop the blades if you let go of the controls. Another would require safety shields to keep the mower from shooting out debris.

Then there's the noise issue. The consumer product agency had considered rules on that, but dropped them after the Environmental Protection Agency declared power mowers to be a major source of noise.

That declaration means the EPA must impose mandatory noise control standards within two years. The mower manufacturers have gone to court trying to prevent that from happening.

Between sound and safety, the manufacturers contend they're facing over-regulation and rules that would cost consumers millions of dollars a year in higher lawnmower prices.

That makes quite an issue of the lawnmower. Of course there are alternatives to government regulation.

The noise wouldn't be much of a problem if the neighborhood — almost every neighborhood — didn't have somebody who is moved to mow at the crack of dawn on Sundays.

Caution and sense could take care of most safety problems, and no matter how many devices are built in to keep people from tangling with the blades, some will figure a way around them.

Then, too, there's always the old fashioned way, the mower you push. That one is guaranteed to stop when you let go of the handle.

Strength For Today

ASSUMING BURDENS FOR OTHERS

A prominent businessman was once threatened with blackmail. Early in life, in an attempt to help a friend, he had become involved in a very questionable financial operation. To admit his part in the matter would bring humiliation, at the very least. Nevertheless, he decided to take the matter to court and fight it out despite the outcome.

After the court decision, he requested an opportunity to speak. "Most of the trouble I have had in life," he said, "has come about through trying to help people. I would say to all the young people present, if you want to avoid trouble, never go out of your way to help anybody."

Then he smiled and said, "But if you do, you will have no friends. And worst of all, you won't get much fun out of living."

The way to avoid trouble is to avoid responsibility, but the life of no responsibility is sterile, vapid lacking in every factor which brings true happiness.

New Stock Market Awareness

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — A new phase may be beginning in the stock market, say those who study long-term trends.

Nothing unexpected. Just a shift of awareness by investors who try to stay ahead of the game. The new phase, they say, is growth.

If that sounds familiar, it is. In 1971 growth stocks were "in," as investors piled on a relatively small number of companies with high profitability and low dividend yields.

As happens so often, they overdid it. They pushed up the prices of a favorite 50 to 100 growth stocks far beyond what are now felt to have been realistic prices.

Just as these stocks reached their peaks, business began to get tougher, and growth stocks proved they were just as unglamorous as any other stocks. When the economy slowed, they slowed with it.

A new phase began: investors sought current income, or high dividend return. They played safe; they took their money rather than waiting for future capital gains, which were becoming less and less certain.

Utilities, which paid relatively high dividends, became attractive to the new, conservative investor. And growth stocks, which paid very low dividends, were dumped.

Now, just as they were overvalued in 1973, growth stocks are felt by some investors to be badly undervalued, a consequence of the market's tendency to exaggerate the economic conditions it supposedly reflects.

Once again investors are wondering if they might not be shortchanging themselves by seeking current income rather than future growth. Not only might growth companies come back into favor as vehicles for capital gains, but there's the prospect they also might pay better dividends.

John Wright, chairman of Wright Investors' Service, which advises individual and institutional accounts worth several hundred million dollars, reasons it this way: "We believe that this shift reflects not only a broad, if somewhat belated, recognition of the excessively depressed price level of growth issues, but also a realization that postrecovery, future dividend growth... will be much faster and, in the end, more rewarding than the current high income of less profitable cyclical and utility stocks."

That's a large sentence to digest, but in effect it means that growth is once more becoming attractive, at least to some knowledgeable investors.

The test of the new phase, if indeed it is one, will probably come over the next few weeks, when economic indicators will be turning mixed and scaring a good many of the more timid investors.

She 'Hijacked' Captain Bligh May Lose His A Hospital Bed Resting Place To Parking Lot

NORTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Housewife Rita Ward, who took over a hospital bed to demand immediate removal of her painful gallstones, today snuggled down between the sheets and announced: "I've won — they're going to operate."

Mrs. Ward startled nurses and patients Saturday by walking into a ward at Northampton General Hospital, climbing into an empty bed, and refusing to move.

She has suffered from the stones for 18 months and had been told she would have to wait at least a year for an operation under Britain's free national health service.

She decided she could not wait. "Now they've told me I can have the operation later this week," Mrs. Ward said. "I know I jumped the queue and other people need operations too, but I was in too much pain to wait. If other people are in as much pain as I was and they can find a spare bed, then I say good luck to them."

A hospital spokesman refused to confirm that Mrs. Ward is to be operated on this week. "Doctors are examining her, and a decision will be made later whether to operate," he said.

A spokesman for the Patients' Association, a pressure group for improved health care, said: "We applaud her individual action. No one should have to wait as long as she did. It's absolutely monstrous — but if everyone did the same thing it would be chaotic."

Mrs. Ward said she was told she could have the operation privately right away, but it would cost her the equivalent of $850.

"And I couldn't afford that," she said.

Jumped To His Wedding

TOPPENISH, Wash. (AP) — When Les Winn's parachute failed to open, he thought he might not make it alive to join his bride-to-be standing with the wedding party below.

Winn, 26, had agreed to his bride's request that he parachute into the wedding.

This is what Winn, who now has 125 jumps to his record, experienced before the "I do's" were exchanged:

—After jumping from an airplane at 6,500 feet he found that his main parachute would not open.

—He cut open his reserve chute, which functioned properly.

—He drifted off course to become snarled in a tall tree.

—He knocked a friend unconscious when he and the branch holding him crashed to the ground.

The guest soon revived, and Winn, with a slightly bruised knee, took his last "plunge," the marriage ceremony, without incident, appropriately attired in a tuxedo which he wore under his jump suit.

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE Associated Press Writer LONDON (AP) — Capt. William Bligh, who lost his ship in one of history's most notorious mutinies, may now lose his final resting place to a parking lot.

The commissioners who oversee the finances of the Church of England have decided that London's Church of St. Mary's, whose churchyard holds the grave of the hapless commander of the HMS Bounty, should be torn down and the site used for another purpose.

A campaign has been mounted to save the church. The preservationists claim the commissioners plan to convert the site into a parking lot for tourist buses, but a spokesman for the church commissioners said nothing has been decided yet.

St. Mary's, closed for the past five years, sits on the right bank of the Thames River just across the road from the embankment where thousands of summer tourists gaze at the Houses of Parliament across the river. Lambeth Palace, official London residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury, adjoins the church.

If the site is cleared, Bligh's bones probably would be reburied in consecrated ground elsewhere, the commissioners say.

"How they can think of pulling down such a historic church is amazing," said Rosemary Nicholson, a London housewife who launched the fight to save St. Mary's.

"I was horrified when I first saw the church. Half the roof had fallen in and the churchyard was overgrown and full of trash. Tramps and alcoholics were sleeping there and empty milk bottles littered the porch — all next door to the archbishop's palace," she said.

She persuaded the church commissioners to delay demolition and founded a trust seeking to convert the church into an international garden center. The plan would leave the tombs undisturbed.

A Church of England spokesman said that "in an age of declining church-going" it cannot possibly keep all 17,500 of its buildings.

"Our policy is to let redundant churches for a nominal rent, if we are satisfied the applicants can maintain them for a suitable purpose," he said.

The trust's preservation plans, requiring almost $500,000, will be sent to the church commissioners this week.

Helped by local government officials, nurserymen, garden societies and historical groups, the trust has replanted the churchyard for a visit today by the Queen Mother, an avid gardener.

Bligh died in 1817 at the age of 63 holding the rank of vice admiral and honored for his services as a naval commander in the French wars and as governor of New South Wales, Australia.

He is remembered now, however, for the mutiny early in his career, when he and 18 loyal crewmen were put to sea in the South Pacific by rebellious sailors led by Fletcher Christian. The castaways reached land at East Timor after crossing 3,500 miles of ocean in a 45-day ordeal.

Radio Ham Saved Crew At Institute In Wilmington

ATLANTA (AP) — A German student using a ham radio at Georgia Tech is credited with helping save the 11-man crew of a Panamanian ship that was lost at sea.

Christoph Janker, 17, was operating the radio Sunday morning when he heard a distress call from the Panamanian vessel Rhinoceros, which was sinking about 220 miles south of Jamaica in the Caribbean.

"The captain said they had a water leak," the high school student from Ravensburg, West Germany, said.

He called the Federal Communications commission which notified the Miami Coast Guard.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard said an Air Force C130 dropped rubber rafts to the Rhinoceros' crew as the vessel went under.

"When I heard the last transmission," Janker said, the captain "said they did not have any rafts because they had lost theirs."

The Coast Guard said the 11 were picked up by the American freighter Aquarius Sunday afternoon.

Anne Bass of Elmhurst Elementary School is attending a two-week TEACCH (Treatment and Education of Autistic and related Communications Handicapped Children) training institute in Wilmington.

The teachers will receive instruction and practical experience in planning and teaching classes for children with severe learning, communications and behavior problems.

missile. More important in the long run is the question of verifying the range, numbers and payloads of the Soviet cruise missile.

Verification lies at the heart of congressional worry about any new SALT agreement with the Russians. Yet no way exists to "verify" the existence of whatever numbers of cruise missiles the Soviets say they possess — once they master development and move into production.

This presents the administration with a profound problem. John L. McLucas, who as Undersecretary of the Air Force in the early Nixon days was head of National Reconnaissance — the top verification job — recently defined that problem.

In a letter to the Washington Post July 9, McLucas warned that "the President is moving away from a world of known weapon systems...to a world where there is no way to count how many each side has. He will have traded a temporary advantage in technology for a loosened control over weapons in general."

Underlying these rising concerns is the fact that Mr. Carter cancelled the B-1 with no apparent offset of any kind from Moscow, a paradox deeply troubling to his critics.

The President's new budget amendment, asking Congress to kill $1.5 billion in B-1 funds and transfer $500 million of it to the cruise missile, was due on Capitol Hill this week. Mr. Carter is certain to get what he wants, but he may also get what he does not want — the start of a great debate on the strategic position of the U.S. as it looks ahead to a new period without the manned bomber.

Small N.C. Colleges Wooing Students

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer

To the blare of boogie and the banter of the deejay, Belmont Abbey College is soliciting students in a radio advertising campaign that has cost several thousand dollars so far.

Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory is stalking prospective students at the "college fairs" which abound at high schools across North Carolina.

Individual high school graduates get personal calls and visits from college staffers. Even students are pressed into service, encouraged by recruiters to corner their younger friends and pitch their school's merits.

North Carolina's small liberal arts and community colleges in North Carolina, left high and dry now that the great rush of college-bound high school graduates of a decade ago has slowed, are struggling for students and survival.

"We're just beating the bushes for them," said Ed

Sell, assistant director of admissions at Lenoir Rhyne. The state's 57 community colleges have as many different pitches as Heinz' has varieties. Ray Jefferies, director of student personnel services for community colleges, said many try to use radio spots.

"We probably wouldn't go to a station that plays Lawrence Welk music," Jeffries said. But rock-and-roll and black stations feature the ads among other items of interest to their young listeners.

Unlike Belmont Abbey, most colleges try to avoid paying for the ads by running them as public service spots.

"The situation has changed from 10 years ago, when you had 10 applications for every one place," said Fritz Smith, director of admissions at North Carolina Wesleyan in Rocky Mount. "Colleges are finding that they can't wait for students to come to them. They have to be much more aggressive."

North Carolina Wesleyan

has "a complete marketing program," Smith said, which includes interviews with prospective students, radio and television spots, home mailings and offers of financial aid.

Smith said colleges are using "much more sophisticated techniques" to reach the students they want. He said the shrinking pool of students, combined with overbuilding by institutions in the boom days, has forced colleges to make an active recruiting effort in the last few years.

Not every school is having problems. Forsyth Technical Institute in Winston-Salem has "more applications than we can handle," said Charles King, director of student services.

The two-year school offers vocational training in areas like welding, plumbing and electrical installation. It also offers business courses and has been expanding at a rate of roughly 10 or 12 per cent annually.

Forsyth Tech's boom began about three years ago. "I think it's the job market," King said. He said the school has about 450 students who already have college degrees but are seeking a skill that will get them a job.

Representatives from the school do visit high schools, speak to groups they think might be interested and advertise in the newspaper, King said. But at Forsyth Tech, they don't have to beat the bushes.

At Guilford Technical Institute in Greensboro, a student recruitment program with newspaper and television advertising is "more or less routine," said Al Lochra, dean of student services.

He said there were fewer students last year as veterans benefits expired and veterans stopped enrolling. But there was a pickup in the non-veteran population, Lochra said.

"We do very little recruitment as such," Lochra said.

FBI Charges 3 N.C. Bankers With Electronic Eavesdropping

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) —

The FBI says it was the victim of electronic eavesdropping, with a device so sensitive it could pick up a whisper, and three officials of a North Carolina bank stand charged with bugging federal agents investigating the bank.

Edwin Duncan Jr., chairman of the board of Northwestern Bank, remained in jail Sunday on $800,000 cash bond after being charged with bugging a room in the bank's headquarters.

Agents said they found a sophisticated and "pretty expensive" listening device in the room during an unusual night raid last week. The room had been set aside for agents probing allegations of financial irregularities.

"It sure took a lot of guts. I mean, bugging the FBI, that just takes something," one agent said.

Duncan, Gwyn E. Bowers, senior vice president; and Jerry Starr, a security officer, were arrested Saturday when carloads of agents converged on this village in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Duncan, 50-year-old son of the bank's founder, was also charged with bugging a room used by Internal Revenue Service agents during a tax fraud investigation in 1972 and 1973, and with five counts involving misuse of about $240,000 of bank money. FBI agents testified at a hearing that a computer was sometimes programmed to cover Duncan's personal checks with bank money.

In a hastily arranged hearing, the three men were hauled before U.S. Magistrate Russell A. Eliason in Winston-Salem on Saturday night for bond proceedings.

Bowers and Starr were released without bond, but Eliason ordered Duncan placed in jail. FBI agents testified that when they arrested Duncan at a rundown apartment in Wilkesboro, they found his packed bags by the door.

Agents also said that Duncan has financial interests in Costa Rica and had moved his family there. Duncan's attorneys contended his family was on vacation, and that Duncan had returned from Costa Rica last Thursday.

"It's a fact that I have to take into account," Eliason said as Duncan sat quietly. "Costa Rica does not have an extradition treaty with this country. I believe Mr. Robert Vesco (fugitive American financier) is in that country and the government has certainly not been able to get him."

A preliminary hearing for the men was set for Wednesday.

Earlier, officials of the bank and its parent company, Northwestern Financial Corp., had placed Duncan on indefinite leave of absence with full pay. FBI agents said their investigations would continue. Officials of the bank, one of the largest in the state, said the FBI told them that neither the bank nor the financial corporation was a target of the probe, and the officials said the bank would not suffer from the investigation.

The arrests sent ripples through the town that had not settled Sunday.

"I've known Mr. Duncan all my life," said Mayor Fidell Frazier. "I knew his daddy and his grandpa, too. I was just shocked to hear."

A hot, muggy afternoon Sunday gave townspeople plenty of time to read about the arrests in the papers and talk.

"Yeah, they been talking," said Dallas Vannoy, as he kept cold beer flowing at a combination tavern and store. "But not many people that come in here know those men, so there's not too much they can talk about."

After the hearing this week, the cases will go before a federal grand jury which must return indictments before a trial can be held.

Duncan, if convicted, would face up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine for each of the five counts of bank fraud against him. The two counts of illegal wiretapping against Duncan, who lives nearby in Sparta, could each bring a sentence of five years and a fine of

Pleasant Valley Win Drains Raymond Floyd

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Ray Floyd, saying he was "mentally and physically drained," heaved a weary sigh.

"I hope it doesn't take as long to make the second million dollars as it did the first. Fifteen long years," he said.

Julius Boros wasn't even thinking about it. "It's been a good career," said the 57-year-old idol of golf's senior citizens. "I might just retire and go fishing."

Floyd and Boros had become the 14th and 15th golfers to reach the $1 million mark in career earnings on the pro golf tour. Floyd with a frontrunning victory Sunday in the Pleasant Valley Classic, Boros with a placing of 59th.

Floyd, who held off Jack Nicklaus' last-gasp challenge, collected $50,000 from the total purse of $250,000. Boros won $488. Floyd pushed his earnings to $1,011,605. Boros, winner of two U.S. Opens and the 1968 PGA championship, has had his goal in sight for two years. He now has $1,000,147 and may have completed a career that started in 1950.

Nicklaus, the game's all-time money winning leader with more than $3 million, was a disappointed loser. He just missed on a pitch for an eagle on the 18th hole that would have tied him with Floyd.

Nicklaus, who lost to Tom Watson by one stroke in the British Open last week, lost by the same margin to Floyd. In each case, his total score was far better than the previous tournament record.

Floyd scored his 10th career victory and second of the season with a closing 69 and a 271 total, 13-under-par and five strokes better than the old record on the 7,191-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Nicklaus had a closing 67, including birdies on three of the last four holes—he made up five shots in that stretch—and a 272 total.

Miller Barber, never in the title hunt, did a happy little dance after a long birdie putt on the final hole gave him a six-under-par 65 and third place at 274. Rik Massengale, with a closing 69, was next at 275. South African Gary Player, 70, and Bruce Lietzke, 69, were tied at 276.

Watson, winner of the Masters and British Opens, had his three-tournament winning string snapped. He finished with a 70-78.

As a designated tournament, all leading players were required to compete in this event.

AL Seeks End To Failure

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's best performers assembled in New York today on the eve of the 48th annual All-Star Game as the American League again sought a solution to its annual failure in the mid-season test between the two leagues.

The Nationals hold a 28-18 lead with one tie in the series that began in 1933. In addition, the NL has won five straight games and 13 of the last 14 meetings.

Breaking the hex won't be easy for AL Manager Billy Martin, who won't have four of his league's best pitchers—Mark Fidrych of Detroit, Frank Tanana and Nolan Ryan of California, and Vida Blue of Oakland—available to face the NL's powerful hitters.

Fidrych and Tanana pulled out of the game because of ailing shoulders and Blue withdrew because of a stiff pitching arm. Ryan was named as a replacement, but he turned down the bid, saying if he wasn't good enough to be named to the original staff, he wouldn't participate at all. Even a personal appeal by AL President Lee MacPhail couldn't sway Ryan, and so Cleveland pitcher Dennis Eckersley was added instead.

Martin filled the other vacancies on his pitching staff by naming Milwaukee's Jim Slaton as a replacement for reserve second baseman Don Money, who has a bad back.

The seven-man AL pitching staff has three starters—Eckersley, Slaton and Baltimore's Jim Palmer. Eckersley pitched Saturday, which means either Palmer or Slaton, both of whom have not worked since last Wednesday, probably will start. The other AL pitchers are bullpen specialists—Sparky Lyle of New York, Dave Laroche of California, Jim Kern of Cleveland and Bill Campbell of Boston.

Martin's injury problems also may affect the starting lineup. First baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, who set an all-time record with 4,292,740 votes in the fan balloting, has been nursing a bad back. Outfielders Richie Zisk of the Chicago White Sox and Carl Yastrzemski also are aching. Zisk has an ailing ankle and missed a couple of recent games. Yastrzemski missed Sunday's game because of a bruised instep.

Besides Carew, Martin's starting infield has Willie Randolph of the Yankees at second base, Rick Burleson of Boston at shortstop and Kansas City's George Brett at third base. Zisk, Yastrzemski and Reggie Jackson of the Yankees were listed as the starting outfielders with Boston's Carlton Fisk catching.

AL home run leader George Scott of Boston, and runs batted in leader Larry Hise of Minnesota, will be on the bench. They were added to the roster as reserves by Martin.

The other AL reserves include Detroit first baseman Jason Thompson; third basemen Graig Nettles of the Yankees and Wayne Gross of the A's; shortstop Bert Campaneris of Texas; catcher Thurman Munson of New York and Butch Wynegar of Minnesota, and outfielders Jim Rice and Fred Lynn of Boston, Ken Singleton of Baltimore; Ruppert Jones of Seattle and Ron Fairly of Toronto.

The American League stars will be facing a National League team weighted heavily with Cincinnati Reds. There are seven Cincinnati players on the NL squad including Manager Sparky Anderson's likely starting pitcher, Tom Seaver.

Seaver will be making his first New York appearance since his controversial trade by the New York Mets a month ago. If he starts, he will have plenty of Cincinnati company. The fans elected four Cincinnati starters—Joe Morgan at second base, Dave Concepcion at shortstop, George Foster in left field and Johnny Bench catching. And Anderson added third baseman Pete Rose and outfielder Ken Griffey as reserves.

The non-Cincinnati starters are Los Angeles' Steve Garvey at first base and Ron Cey at third, with Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Parker of Pittsburgh in the outfield. Garvey led all National League players in the balloting with more than four million votes.

Anderson has an impressive pitching staff surrounding Seaver. The other starters are Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Don Sutton of Los Angeles, Joaquin Andujar of Houston and John Candelaria of Pittsburgh. The NL relievers are Pittsburgh's Rich Gossage, who replaces injured Cubs' relief ace Bruce Sutter, and Gary Lavelle of San Francisco.

Both Andujar and Candelaria were nursing injuries and their availability is uncertain.

The combined record of the NL staff is 73-29 compared to 50-49 for the American League pitchers.

Boys Home Squads Start Practice Today

Two-day workouts for players in the 15th annual Boys Home All-Star game began today in preparation for Saturday night's contest in Ficklen Stadium.

The week's schedule calls for a morning and afternoon practice session each day. Players are being housed in Jones Dormitory on the ECU campus and will eat lunch at Jones Cafeteria.

A variety of evening activities are planned for the players, such as going to movies and playing Putt-Putt. Wednesday night, the Washington Jaycees will host the group at Whichard's Beach for a cookout.

The Boy's Home game has been sponsored for the past 14 years by the Greenville Jaycees and has been played each year in Ficklen Stadium. Other Jaycee groups across the state have expressed interest in hosting the game, however, and plans are to move it around for the next few years on an experimental basis.

Proceeds from the game benefit the Lake Waccamaw Boys' Home. The group of players is divided into two teams, a North and South squad. Each team is made up of 31 players, all graduated seniors from high schools across the state.

Pete Stout of Burlington Williams High School will serve as head coach of the North team and Don Saine of Gastonia Hunter-Huss is the head coach of the South team.

Assistant coaches are Doug Henderson of Western Guilford and Bill Hodgson of Oxford-Webb for the North and Gene Brewer of Farmville Central and Sonny Wilburn of Siler City for the South. The coaches are being housed at the Ramada Inn.

The annual players banquet is scheduled for this Friday night at the American Legion hut. The guest speaker for the banquet will be former Wake Forest basketball coach Bones McKinney.

The game itself is slated to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday night. The South will be looking to gain on the North's superior record in the contest. The North holds an 8-3 advantage in the series with three tie games.

Allen Quits A's

OAKLAND (AP) — The stormy career of slugger Dick Allen — a paradox of brilliant play and personal controversy — once again has taken an odd twist. He has quit the Oakland A's and has indicated he may want to play in Japan.

A's owner Charles O. Finley said Sunday he received "a very cordial" letter from the infielder Saturday which said he is "retiring from baseball for the rest of 1977."

Finley said Allen, 35, asked about taking his talents to Japan.

"He asked me what the arrangement was for that," Finley said.

Allen joined the A's this year, signing a contract for roughly $100,000. He was suspended by Finley June 21 when the owner caught him taking a shower before a game was over.

Finley said he was disappointed with Allen's decision, but said he is not planning to contact him.

In the 54 games he played for Oakland, Allen hit at a .240 pace with five home runs and 31 runs batted in.

Allen's career has been marred with scraps with management — troubles which are contrasted by his consistently potent bat.

He broke in with the Phillies in 1964, winning National League Rookie of the Year honors with a .318 batting average, 29 home runs and 91 RBI.

He continued to have excellent seasons with Philadelphia, hitting 40 homers and knocking in 110 runs in 1966. The hot batting, however, wasn't enough to offset the controversies.

Allen often showed up late for games, missed practices and once was in the middle of a pre-game scuffle with Frank Thomas which eventually got the other player traded.

The Phillies finally tired of Allen's antics and traded him to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1970 where he lasted one season. His eccentric behavior con-

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

Hurricanes Romp Past East Carolina By 13-4

LOUISBURG — The lights went out three times on Louisburg and East Carolina during the first five innings, and when they finally came on for good, the Hurricanes pulled the switch on the Pirates.

By the time it was over, the Hurricanes had shocked the Bucs with a 13-4 victory, and sent Mickey Britt reeling to his fourth straight defeat.

The power losses apparently bothered Britt, coming when he was on the mound, or ready to take it. The lights were out over an hour in total, and it seemed to sap Britt's desire.

By the time he took the mound in the fifth inning, after a 30-minute delay by the third outage, he was drained and lasted just a few batters more, as he was racked for five more runs before finally being lifted.

Overall, Britt was tagged for 15 hits, and 11 runs, all of them earned. He walked four and struck out just three in one of his poorest showings of the year.

Bill Lucas, who is East Carolina-bound, took the win, going 7 2/3 innings. He allowed all seven hits and four runs, but only one of the Pirate runs was earned.

Max Raynor, another Pirate of the future, led the Louisburg hitting with four, while John Gourley had three. Rick Furr, Brian Little and Chuck Barclift each had two hits.

Tommy Warrick was the only Pirate with two hits.

East Carolina scored first, taking a 3-0 lead in the top of the first. Pete Paradossi reached on an error and Eddie Gates walked. Both scored on a three-run clout by Macon Moye.

Louisburg came back for three in the third. Tim Wilcox walked, and the lights went out for the first time, staying off 20 minutes. Then, when they came back on, Gourley singled and Furr cracked a home run, making it 3-3. Just after that, the lights again went off, this time for another 20 minutes.

In the fourth, the Hurricanes added three more for a 6-3 lead. Linwood Thorbs singled and Wilcox walked. Furr reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Thorbs. Furr stole up and he and Wilcox scored on Raynor's single.

Just after the third blackout, Louisburg added five more runs in the fifth. Nick Dunn singled and both Thorbs and Wilcox walked. Gourley singled in one run and Furr got a hit to plate another. Little's singled brought in two, and Raynor knocked in the other.

The Pirates got their other run in the sixth. Warrick singled, scoring on Tommy Cobb's double.

The final three Louisburg runs came in the eighth. Thorbs walked and Mike Tyndall was hit by a pitch. Gourley reached on an error, scoring Thorbs. Charles Biddle doubled in Tyndall.

The loss dropped the Pirates to a 12-10 record.

They travel to North Carolina tonight and entertain Campbell on Wednesday.

The NCAA 1977 Collegiate Football Press Guide is out and East Carolina University's football teams show up with increasing regularity.

Only one individual player, however, appears. Gerald Hall is listed as one of the returning leaders in punt returns. Hall ranked 13th in the nation last year, returning 26 punts an average of 11.6 yards per return.

Coach Pat Dye, who will start his fourth year as a head coach, hasn't reached the required five-year span to rank among the active major-college in percentage.

Dye's three year record of 24 wins and nine losses gives him a .727 percentage, however. If he were ranked, that would stack up as the seventh best in the nation right now, right between Dan Devine of Notre Dame (136-47-8, .733) and Carmen Cozza of Yale (77-30-1, .718). Penn State's Joe Paterno leads the nation with a 101-23-1, .812 record. Bo Schembechler of Michigan, Arizona State's Frank Kush, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, and Dye's mentor Bear Bryant of Alabama, round out the top five.

After that, the NCAA lists a bunch of five-year statistics, and East Carolina appears in almost every one of those.

Over the past five seasons, East Carolina is tied for 11th among the winningest teams with a 42-13 record. UCLA also has the same percentage at 40-11-4.

The Pirates, scoring 26.27 points a game, rank 16th over the past five year in scoring. At the same time, they've allowed 13.9 points a contest, good enough for 14th place.

In rushing offense, the Pirates have roamed for 274.0 yards a game, ninth in the nation. They've allowed 142.1 yards a game, to sit in 13th place.

As a wishbone team, the Pirates had not passed much, and do not rank among the leaders either in offense or defense.

But in total offense, with 360.7 per game, the Bucs are 22nd in the country. In total defense, the Bucs have allowed 263.8 yards a contest, to stand 12th.

Maybe Carolina ain't so dumb after all!

Pirate Foes Tough

Of the Pirate foes this fall, a number appear among the returning national leaders.

William & Mary's Jim Kruijs was 15th and Ted Brown of N.C. State, 21st, among rushing leaders last season. Mike Dunn of Duke was tied for 18th and Brown tied for 22nd among scoring leaders. Brown was 24th among all-purpose runners.

Dunn was 20th in total offense, while The Citadel's Marty Crosby was 23rd in passing. Duke's Tom Hall was tied for 24th among pass receivers.

Ricky Adams of N.C. State was 17th in kickoff returns, with Jeff Nixon of Richmond tied for third in pass interceptions.

VMI's Craig Jones was second in field goals, while South Carolina's Britt Parrish was tied for 12th. Johnny Evans of State was second in punting, while Richmond's Bruce Allen was 16th.

What's In A Name?

The NCAA also has attempted to come up with a list of the various nicknames of the football teams across the country. Of the 473 teams playing the sport in the NCAA ranks, there are 218 different names, with some spelling variations, and a few other adjectives of description as "Fighting," "Blue," etc.

The most popular nickname would appear to be "Tigers." "Tigers." There are 28 of them. Bears might be next with 17 varieties.

A sampling of others includes Battling Bishops, Britons, Carls, Continentals, Pehmen, Foresters, Gaels, Gothics, Governors, Great Danes, Griffins, Gusties, Hoyas, Jimmies, Johnnies, Jumbos, Kangaroos, Loggers, Matadors, Mules, Oles, Poets, Presidents, Profs, Sam, Squires, Student Princes, Tomcats, Vandals, Wasps, Yeomen and Zips.

Others include various state nicknames, a number of Indian tribes or references, along with dozens of types of other animals not listed above.

Pirates? There are three of them. Besides East Carolina, there are the Hampton and Seton Hall Pirates.

Stanky's relatives said Sunday that the one-time New York Giant second baseman was in improved condition and resting comfortably.

His son, Mike Stanky, said doctors had ruled out any kind of heart problems as the cause of his father's collapse.

Bonus Money Doesn't Buy Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
George Steinbrenner's money hasn't bought happiness yet for Billy Martin—and it certainly couldn't buy any victories for him over the weekend.

The New York Yankees' owner, a big spender during the off-season with free agent stars, flew into Kansas City to help boost the morale of his team with some bonus money, but his players came away empty-handed.

After giving each of his players $300 to spend over the three-day All-Star break, starting today, the Yankees' boss watched his disjuncted squad lose its third straight game to the Royals, this time 8-4.

Martin, the Yankees' manager, was in a furious mood after the loss, the team's seventh on a 10-game road trip.

Yankees reliever Dick Tidrow, victimized by Amos Otis' two-run double and a freak hit by Fred Patek, symbolized the team's current futility with a painfully helpless reaction.

AL Roundup

"That ball that Otis hit was a good pitch," said Tidrow. "He got it off the end of the bat. But that's the way it's been going for me. When I pitch bad, I get beat, and when I pitch good ... it doesn't matter how good I pitch."

In other American League action, the Chicago White Sox edged the Boston Red Sox 3-2, the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the Minnesota Twins took a doubleheader from the Oakland A's 4-1 and 9-5, the Seattle Mariners beat the California Angels 8-7, the Toronto Blue Jays downed the Detroit Tigers 3-2 in the opener of a doubleheader before losing the second game 7-6 in 11 innings, and the Cleveland Indians stopped the Texas Rangers 6-1.

Otis drove in three runs and Darrell Porter belted a two-run homer as the Royals won their sixth straight game and 23rd in their last 30.

Porter's 415-foot shot off loser Ken Clay scored Otis ahead of him and staked Andy Hassler to a 2-0 lead in the second. After Al Cowens doubled home a run in the fourth, Otis followed with a sacrifice fly, making it 4-1.

Reggie Jackson gave the Yankees their first run with a solo homer in the fourth and Willie Randolph made it 4-2 in the fifth with a run-scoring double. In the sixth, the Royals pulled away when Pete LaCock and Joe Lahoud drew walks from reliever Dick Tidrow and Otis lashed a two-run double.

White Sox 3, Red Sox 2
Jim Spencer's tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning backed the combined four-hit pitching of Steve Stone and Lerrin LaGrow, leading Chicago over Boston.

Spencer also smashed a double keying a two-run second inning, helping Stone improve his record to 10-7. Stone had nine strikeouts, nailing George Scott and Butch Hobson three times each. He needed last-inning relief help from LaGrow after wilting in 89-degree heat.

Brewers 3, Orioles 2

Rookie Moose Haas checked Baltimore on three hits before needing last-inning relief help, and Ed Romero, another rookie, knocked in the decisive run with an eighth-inning single, leading Milwaukee over the Orioles.

Bobby Sheldon doubled off loser Dennis Martinez leading off the Brewers' first and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Cecil Cooper. The Brewers staged their game-breaking rally in the eighth on RBI singles by Jamie Quirk and Romero, who was just called up to the majors Saturday and had three hits in his second American League game.

Twins 4-4, A's 1-5

Rookie Paul Thordomsgard pitched a six-hitter, leading Minnesota's first-game victory over Oakland. Minnesota broke up the opener with three runs off Oakland starter Rick Langford in the fifth inning.

Larry Hise drove in two runs and scored three times as the Twins won the second game. Hise had a home run, double and single, highlighting an 11-hit Minnesota attack against four Oakland pitchers in the second game. The homer was his 21st of the season, a personal high.

Mariners 8, Angels 7

Dave Collins' two-run homer in the eighth inning carried Seattle past California. Collins' third homer of the season came off loser Dave LaRoche, after a single by Julio Cruz.

The Angels had rallied for three runs in the seventh inning for a 7-6 lead.

Blue Jays 3-4, Tigers 2-7
Jesse Jefferson checked Detroit on five hits and struck out five, leading Toronto's opening-game victory over the Tigers.

Pinch hitter Milt May's homer, his ninth of the season, off Dave Lemanczyk in the 11th inning gave the Tigers the second game.

Indians 6, Rangers 1

Wayne Garland fired a five-hitter and Fred Kendall had three hits and two RBI as Cleveland broke a five-game losing streak by beating Texas. Garland nursed a 2-1 lead from the third inning to the ninth, when Cleveland broke open the game with four runs.

Phillies' Carlton Wins 13th

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Philadelphia's Steve Carlton and Pittsburgh's John Candelaria are suffering from sore backs but you'd never know it from the way they're pitching.

"It's bothering me now, but it's tolerable," Carlton said Sunday after allowing two runs and four hits in eight innings and becoming the National League's first 13-game winner as the Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2. "You gotta do it; you gotta take your turn."

Candelaria felt the same way after hurling five scoreless innings in the Pirates' 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets in the opener of a doubleheader.

"My back got hurt in Montreal," Candelaria said after winning his 10th game. "I told (Manager Chuck) Tanner I would give it a try because we were so short of pitchers."

The Mets came back to take the nightcap 9-3 with a tie-breaking six-run explosion in the seventh inning capped by rookie Steve Henderson's first major league grand slam. Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Diego Padres 4-3, the Houston Astros upset the Cincinnati Reds 3-1, the Montreal Expos overtook the St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 and the Atlanta Braves outlasted the San Francisco Giants 11-10.

Jay Johnstone provided most of the offense with a pair of solo homers off Chicago's Ray Burris as the Phillies climbed back within two games of the front-running Cubs in the NL East.

Carlton said his back began bothering him in Pittsburgh last weekend, but catcher Tim McCarver saw the pain as a blessing in disguise. He said it is keeping Carlton from throwing as hard as he can, but is making him more deliberate in the process.

Pirates 3-3, Mets 1-9
The Pirates had just tied the score against Jerry Koonsman in the top of the seventh of the nightcap on Jerry Hairston's solo homer when Jerry Grote touched off the Mets' six-run inning with a leadoff double.

NL Roundup

After an infield out and a pair of walks, Kent Tekulve, who almost blew the opener, was tagged for run-scoring singles by Lenny Randle and Felix Milian before Henderson drove his grand slam over the center field fence.

In the opener, Pittsburgh scored twice in the third inning against Jon Matlack on a walk, Mario Mendoza's single, a sacrifice, Phil Garner's grounder and a single by Rennie Stennett. Bill Robinson homered for the final run. Tekulve surrendered Lee Mazzilli's home run and a pair of singles in the eighth before Rich Gossage came on to record his 16th save.

Dodgers 4, Padres 3
Home runs by Dusty Baker and Ron Cey and enabled Doug Rau to win for the 11th time in 12 decisions. Rau allowed nine hits and two runs over the first five innings before turning over a 4-2 lead to Burt Hooton, making only his second relief appearance as a Dodger.

Cey's homer in the fifth inning ended an 0-for-18 slump for the Dodgers' clean-up hitter.

Astros 3, Reds 1
The Dodgers built their West Division lead back to 9½ games over the Reds when Houston's Bob Watson and Enos Cabell drilled solo homers and Mark Lemongello snapped a personal

Soloman, Cox Meet

CINCINNATI (AP) — Harold Soloman, ranked 12th in the world, will meet Great Britain's Mark Cox tonight in the finals of the $100,000 Western Tennis Championships. In doubles action, top-seeded Roscoe Tanner and Bob Hewitt will meet second-seeded Phil Dent and John Alexander. Third-seeded Soloman beat sixth-seeded John Alexander 7-5, 7-5 Sunday in a semifinals match. Cox, 34, won by default when Rick Fagel, 23, of New York, severely twisted his ankle in the first set and was unable to continue. Soloman, 24, of Silver Spring, Md., trailed the 25-year-old Australian 4-1 in the first set, but came back to win 7-5. In the second set, Soloman broke Alexander's service, went ahead 6-5, then won the next game to win the match.

Whistlestop Station Is Home

By JAMES ROBINS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russell Daly can stroll onto his front porch, flag down a train and ride to school. The commuter line rolls right by the whistlestop station he calls home.

Daly and his partner, Brian Stevens, both 24, are among the dozen or so people in the Philadelphia area who have found Conrail an amiable landlord, anxious to have its abandoned property occupied.

Stevens and Daly went to the railroad real estate office in August 1973 to inquire about leasing the one-story stone structure in Wawa, Pa. The small station, and many others like it, had not had a resident agent since the late 1940s.

"They were interested in having the building occupied because it had become a stopover point for reform school escapees," said Daly, a college student and part-time warehouse worker.

"It was totally gutted. Everything of the remotest value had been removed by vandals. All the windows were broken," he said.

"We started working right away that August," said Stevens. "We'd come in and spend a couple of nights, then go back to our respective houses. We moved in for keeps in January of 1974."

The station's waiting room now is the living room. What was Wawa's post office and ticket counter now is the kitchen, the men's room and ladies' room were combined into one large bathroom and the ceiling was dropped to make room for two bedrooms.

Daly and Stevens did all the renovation, with the exception of $300 in plumbing that local law required a certified plumber to do.

"The renovation has been a continuing process. I'd say we've put $3,000 or $4,000 into it. The financial assistance the railroad provided was the fact that we only pay $25 a month rent," said Daly.

Wawa is what railroaders call a flag station. If you want to catch a train, you step forward on the platform and flag one down. About 15 commuter trains a day pass Wawa, but none after 9:45 p.m.

A Conrail freight usually goes through on Sunday night. "After a while, you don't notice them," Daly said.

Terry Van Wyk Stevens, 21, Brian's new bride and the home's third occupant, talks like someone digging in for the duration.

"They put in oil heat this winter, but the living room still is heated by a coal stove. I guess we'll be living here for a while, though. The rent is cheap," she said.

Both Daly and Stevens say they expect to remain at the station at least two more years, though Conrail won't have any problem finding new tenants when they leave.

"I've seen it in some years when the waiting list was double the number of properties available," said a Conrail spokesman. "It's been going on ever since the late 1940s and early 1950s when the stations became available."

Groucho May Be Going Home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Groucho Marx, who has been hospitalized for nearly a month with a mild form of pneumonia, may be able to go home this week, a spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center says.

Marx, 96, has been hospitalized since June 22 with pneumonia.

A hospital spokesman said Sunday that Marx was "up and around" and "making eyes at the nurses."

Leaf Quality Said Lower

VALDOSTA, G. (AP) — The Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets opened last week, and the Federal-State Market News reported that the quality offerings were much lower than those sold in the first week of the 1976 season.

Grade prices during the first week of trading showed significant gains, but the volume of sales declined and a smaller share of sales was delivered to the Stabilization Corp.

Gross sales for the first three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, totaled 11,202,626 pounds, including 232,761 pounds of resales. The average sale was $79.34 per hundred pounds, a drop of $13.92 for the same period last year when sales grossed 20,655,000 pounds.

Selected offerings sold for $122 to $125, while the poorer grade N2, making up about 25 per cent of all sales, averaged $54 a pound. Most grades averaged between $1 and $8 above their support levels.

Nondescript and primings dominated last week's offerings. About a quarter of the offerings was graded according to a special formula because sand content was high.

Approximate percentages by groups were: cutters, 2 per cent; lugs, 6 per cent; primings, 32 per cent; and nondescript, 60 per cent.

Stabilization Corp. receipts amounted to 3.8 per cent of sales last week, down from the 33.2 per cent of last season's first three days.

One Person Injured In 3 Weekend Collisions

One person was reported injured and an estimated $1,550 property damage caused in three collisions over the weekend, according to Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 9:45 p.m. mishap Sunday at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard involving cars driven by Gloris Jean Brown of Route 1, Grimesland and Doris Simpson Grubbs of 27 Scott St.

Police, who charged Miss Brown with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $400 to the Brown car and $300 to the Grubbs auto.

Tyrus William Rook of Route 5, Greenville was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Lester Marion Cobb of Route 1, Fountain about 5:05 p.m. at the intersection of N.C. 33 and Memorial Drive.

Officers, who charged Cobb with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $300 to the Cobb car and $200 to the Rook motorcycle.

Joseph George Therriault of Lyndonville, Vt., was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:40 a.m. collision Saturday at the intersection of Tenth and Forbes Streets.

Investigators said the Therriault car collided with an auto operated by Hugh Allen Stox of Route 5, Greenville, resulting in $50 damage to the Therriault car and $300 damage to the Stox auto.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Very warm weather and sunny skies are forecast today for most of the nation. Cooler weather is expected in the Northwest and northern Plains. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
North Carolina was in its 15th straight day today of 90-degree-plus weather and no immediate break is in sight yet.

Sunday, marking the 14th consecutive day of 90-plus readings at the Raleigh-Durham Airport, tied the record set in 1952.

Isolated thundershowers occurred Sunday over the mountains, Piedmont and the south-east coast, providing some relief from the heat and dry conditions. Hendersonville had a heavy thundershower which dropped a little more than an inch of rain, and there was a chance of thundershowers over western and southern portions of the state this afternoon and evening.

High temperatures today were expected to range from the upper 80s in the mountains to the mid 90s elsewhere and the same is expected Tuesday.

Around the state Sunday, Charlotte was the warmest reporting point with 97, followed by Greensboro 96, Raleigh and Hickory 95, Rocky Mount 94, Fayetteville 93 and Asheville 90.

Divers To Study Sunken Monitor

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Divers are scheduled to set foot on the Monitor, the sunken Civil War ironclad gunship, for the first time in more than a century during a three-week research project now underway.

John G. Newton, director of the Monitor Research and Recovery Foundation in Beaufort, N.C., said Sunday that the project could provide important clues as to whether the vessel can eventually be raised and restored.

The Monitor revolutionized naval warfare with its revolving gun turret. It was lost in a storm Dec. 31, 1862, and lies 220 feet beneath the surface at a point 16 miles east of Cape Hatteras.

Newton, who was part of the expedition that discovered the Monitor's resting place in 1973, said that chances are reasonably good that the Monitor is in a salvagable condition.

"When we first looked at the ship (in 1973), we thought it was probably in very poor condition," Newton said. "We anticipated that the wooden parts would have been eaten by shipworms. But the structure seemed to be intact."

Newton said photographs taken during the 1973 expedition showed the Monitor was resting upside down on the ocean floor. That meant that the 30-inch-thick layer of white oak that lines its sides were supporting the ship's entire weight — indicating that the ship was indeed structurally sound.

The first step in the current research project comes today, when navigational equipment and buoys will be put in place, Newton said. Later this week, an unmanned submarine carrying cameras and sonar equipment will be launched to find out more about the geology and currents in the area where the Monitor rests.

Opposes Reward For Nonservice

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A former director of the Veterans Administration says Vietnam draft resisters should not be rewarded for their failure to serve the nation.

Donald Johnson told 400 persons at the American Legion's annual state convention, "The bleeding hearts, the media, and all too much of the nation's leadership is consumed by a desire to reward those persons who didn't serve and those whose service was less than exemplary."

He also said attempts are being made to integrate the VA into another agency and asked for support to keep the VA independent.

"We maintain that no matter what happens, there should be a separate veterans system," he said.

Compromise On Dare Dispute

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Dare County officials have accepted a compromise in their dispute with state officials over employment of the county health administrator.

Dare officials have accepted 90 days of state funding for their health programs, during which time a study will be made of the controversy. The 90-day funding will allow the rehiring of six full-time and two part-time employees.

Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, secretary of human resources, had made the county's $100,000 health-care allocation for the current fiscal year contingent on the firing of Joseph J. Stokes because he is not a college graduate.

County officials refused to fire Stokes, even though the loss of state revenues forced them to dismiss the eight workers. However, Gov. Jim Hunt later asked Dr. Morrow to reconsider her decision.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1977 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠105 ♥A763 ♦952 ♣8742

The bidding has proceeded: North East South

1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?

A.—After an opposing takeout double, we are inclined to raise partner's suit on the smell of an oil rag. However, there are limits to our daring. This balanced hand is unlikely to contribute much to our side's defensive potential, so we feel a raise to two hearts would only serve the opponents by alerting them to definite shortage in one hand or the other. Therefore, we would pass.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AKJ64 ♥K1083 ♦9 ♣A95

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North

1 ♠ Dble. Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. Your hand is worth one move, and your best bet is to raise partner's suit. Introducing your spades can serve no useful purpose. You can play in only one major suit, and you have already found a fit. A new suit by you would not be forcing, and should partner pass one spade you would probably be in an inferior contract.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A1083 ♥A954 ♣AKQ107

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North

1 ♠ Dble. Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a very powerful supporting hand and we would not fault you greatly if you jumped to four hearts. However, since you have forced partner to bid, he might have a very bad hand with only three hearts, so give him some leeway. We recommend a cue-bid of two diamonds, followed by a raise to three hearts. That will adequately express our strength, and if partner happens to have a good one heart response, you might even unearth a slam.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q87 ♥63 ♦AK93 ♣AK82

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have an awkward hand. Your heart weakness and the fact that most of your strength was concentrated in two suits prevented you from opening one no trump. Now a rebid of one no trump would be an underbid while a jump to two no trump would be a gross overstatement of your values. The only alternative is to temporize by bidding two clubs, to see what action partner will take.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ10962 ♥Q ♦K1083 ♣84

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have to do something to tell partner you have a reasonable hand. While a bid of two spades would show a fair six-card suit, partner will still consider it merely a competitive effort. A jump to three spades better describes your holding.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AK85 ♥93 ♦AQ76 ♣KQ6

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Another difficult hand. You have the values to jump to two no trump, but that risks losing the spade suit. Yet you are neither strong enough, nor unbalanced enough to jump to two spades. We suggest a temporizing bid of one spade. If partner passes, it is doubtful whether you could make a game. Any other action by partner should leave you better placed to judge the final contract.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

'Cpl. Klinger' Really Is From Toledo

ACTOR JAMIE FARR is shown in scene from the popular television series M.A.S.H. in which he portrays Cpl. Klinger. Fans may be surprised to learn that he really grew up in Toledo. (AP Wirephoto)

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Fans of the TV hit "M.A.S.H." may be surprised to learn that Cpl. Klinger really grew up in Toledo.

What's more, he did a hitch in the Army and once wrote a friend, "I've had my rifle four days so far and haven't shot anyone."

And in high school 25 years ago, Klinger hung out at Tony Packo's, an eastside restaurant that really makes Hungarian hotdogs, the ones Klinger years for on the television series.

"A lot of things are based on truth in the show," said Klinger, remembered here as Jamie Farr, the name he trimmed to Jamie Farr for acting. "But as far as I know, I'm the only one that really is from the home towns we claim on the show," he said in a telephone interview.

Farr was home in June, honored by the city he keeps before the TV audience. He brought his wife and two children for their first visit to his northend ethnic neighborhood where he grew up.

City officials presented him a ceremonial glass — Toledo's version of the key to the city — and Scott High School dedicated a new performing arts wing to him.

There also was a 25th anniversary reunion for the Woodward High School Class of 1952, Farr's class, which he mentions on the show.

Farr said his given name was from his mother, Jamelia. "She sang a little and acted some when she was young. My father ran a corner grocery at Locust and Ontario."

"I try to defend Toledo as much as I can on the show, especially when the other actors take digs at it," Farr said. "Like the line about even grass dying in Toledo, or the one about there being nothing to do in Toledo but go to the movies."

"When I was a kid growing up I never knew Toledo was as pretty as it is. I only knew what my eyes saw and for as far as a penny would take me on a bus."

Though Farr left Toledo for Hollywood in 1952 he did not establish himself as an actor until he spent a couple seasons as an occasional player on "M.A.S.H."

"I studied at the Pasadena Playhouse for a year and MGM asked me to audition for "Blackboard Jungle." I got the role but after that I was out of work," he said.

He spent two years in the service, and had "almost 10 lean years, until about 1969 before things started to happen for me."

"I worked for an airline. I was a yardage goods salesman. Then I was on the original Dick Van Dyke Show and became a regular for a while on the Danny Kaye Show with Harvey Korman."

"Then I was on an ill-fated TV series at CBS, something called "Chicago Teddybears."

"That was when I was first married and my wife was working. Then I started getting more regular work."

His first two seasons with "M.A.S.H." was as a "day player," or occasional actor. "It was the third season before I was made a regular under contract," he said. "Now we are starting our sixth season. It's fantastic."

Early Flack For Upcoming Show

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Campbell, blue collar worker, barges in his wife's boudoir, gets horrified at a blonde in a pink dress, asks his wife if the blonde "is going out dressed like that?"

"No, it's chilly," the blonde says. "I'll take a wrap."

Why Burt's horror? Why, it's his stepson, a homosexual who usually dresses as a man but tried on the dress because — he told his mother — he's considering a sex-change operation.

"It's not like getting a haircut, Jody," reminded she.

Such is "Soap," the new, set-for-September ABC comedy series that even before its premiere is catching flak because so much of it deals with events below the navel.

It's caused mutterings about potential public backlash against the "new permissiveness." Newsweek says the show mainly is pushing sex, "and with a harder core than any sitcom has ever dared."

"Soap," though, strikes me as "Mary Hartman" with more air bubbles, a bedroom farce of the kind that gets a few snickers and some polite applause Friday nights at the local Little Theater.

It's about two suburban families, the Tates and the Campbells. And, says ABC programs whiz Fred Silverman, it has plots that aren't settled in only 30 minutes, they weave through successive episodes.

The plot-weaving mills around two middle-aged sisters, Jessica Tate and Mary Campbell. Jessica is wealthy, wed to a phandering executive; Mary is wed to Burt Campbell, who is, gosh, impotent.

Burt is her second husband. He slew her first one without her knowledge. She thinks the departed committed suicide.

Burt's homosexual episode — played in opening episodes as on the verge of flounce — has a brother, an apprentice Mafiosi who doesn't think the kid's "a fruit," just a practical joker.

The Campbells have two grown daughters, one frigid, the other promiscuous; a 14-year-old boy who likes pictures of nakkid women; a black servant of acid temperament, and a senile grandfather who wears his Army major's uniform and thinks World War II is under way.

Oh, yes, there's a handsome 28-year-old tennis bum who is having separate affairs with Jessica and her promiscuous daughter—neither of whom initially know they're cuddling with the same cad.

ABC, worried about affiliate fears of public uproar, told its stations last week it'll remake parts of the two first episodes, including a tennis scene of mixed triples. It didn't say how.

Psychologist Says Dad's Age A Factor

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — If men want their children to strive hard for achievement, they had better have them before they approach middle age.

That's the conclusion of Charles Richman, a Wake Forest psychologist, whose research indicates that children born to fathers between 25 to 35-year-old will strive harder to achieve than those born to older fathers.

However, the tests showed no relation between a mother's age and a child's motivation to succeed. Richman said the lack of maternal influence could be traced to the fact that many women in 1950s did not work outside the home.

"They (mothers) mostly stayed at home and cared for children, while fathers were the dominant role model," he said. Future test results could be different as more mothers enter the job market, and couples delay starting a family until later in life.

Richman said he realizes his findings are in partial conflict with the theory that first-born children are higher achievers than younger siblings, but he feels the two theories are not irreconcilable.

The researcher gave 685 Wake Forest students tests to determine their drive to succeed, and recorded their order of birth and parents' age. A partner used 407 undergraduates at the University of Texas, and made similar findings.

A younger father is still trying to achieve career goals, and his ambition is easily noted by children, Richman said, while fathers who were in their 40s or 50s during a child's formative years usually have achieved goals, and live at a slower pace.

When do most people decide to get at that home painting project? Over the week end... Naturally, that's when I've got two whole days to finish the job...

AND WHEN DO MOST PEOPLE DISCOVER THAT THEY DIDN'T BUY ENOUGH PAINT? HON... RUN DOWN TO THE STORE FOR ANOTHER QUART OF PARSIPPANATE PERSIMMON... ON SUNDAY?

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market extended Friday's advance with a moderate gain today.

New York Stock Exchange issues rising in price out-numbered declines by about a 5-3 margin at mid-morning.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .32 at 906.27. But the average would have shown a small gain had it not been for dividend-payment adjustments on two of its component stocks.

Analysts said the market was aided by a generally favorable trend in second quarter earnings reports.

They also cited the government report late Friday that industrial production posted a healthy 0.7 per cent increase in June.

International Business Machines rose 1/8 to 271 after a 9-point jump on Friday.

Last week the company posted better-than-expected quarterly earnings and directors authorized it to buy back up to $700 million worth of its common stock.

Consolidated Edison of New York, the most active NYSE issue, dropped 3/4 to 23. The stock gave up 1 1/2 Friday in the aftermath of the power blackout that hit New York City Wednesday night.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .14 at 55.13.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index added .14 to 123.32.

be right and to be educationally sound, without reference to whether they are actions and policies required of us by law.

"The University of North Carolina," Friday said again, "has made substantial progress in recent years in further eliminating racial duality from our public system of higher education. Our ability, and our authority, to continue to reach for this goal is constrained by many factors and forces that we do not control," he noted.

"For example," Friday continued, "we do not have pupil assignment authority. The choice of college attendance, and the selection of a particular institution by individuals, is not subject to our control and should not be. These are facts that must be contended with, and they explain why — throughout this process — we have sought to develop plans and objectives that would not require, for their attainment, the merger of institutions."

Friday said, too, "we do not assign faculty. We cannot under law, under our contracting procedures, or under the accepted norms of the academic community that prevail across our nation tell a faculty member to pick up and move himself and his family and go to another institution, simply because we want to change the racial profiles of institutional faculties."

The UNC president added, "similarly, academic programs, while not immutable or endowed with immortality, are not simply packages or pieces of furniture that can be put in a moving van and transported to another campus with ease and composure. They consist of human and other resources that are related to the on-going life of

Martin CC Offers New Office Course

Martin Community College in Williamston has added a medical office assistant program to its curriculum offerings. The one-year program will begin this fall and was approved by the State Board of Education at its July meeting.

The program will be the only one of its kind offered in northeastern North Carolina.

The medical office assistant is trained to handle clerical duties, and will study medical terminology and vocabulary, basic health science, medical law and ethics, examination room procedures, laboratory procedures and applied psychology.

Those interested in the program should contact the Dean of Student Affairs at Martin Community College before August 17 in order to take the required admission tests for the program. A high school diploma or high school equivalency certificate is also required.

Southeast Sees Employment Up

ATLANTA (AP) — Employment in the Southeast is expected to increase by nearly 3.7 million jobs, or 26.6 per cent, from 1974 through 1985, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said today.

Employment nationally is expected to increase 20.3 per cent. Preliminary projections of worker requirements indicate there will be 17.5 million jobs in the eight-state southern region by 1985 — up from 13.9 million from 1974, said Donald M. Cruise, regional commissioner for the bureau.

Each of the eight states is expected to need more workers. About three-fourths of the projected growth is expected in service industries.

This will result in a decrease in the relative importance of goods-producing industries from 37.5 per cent of the total employment in 1974 to 34.9 per cent in 1985.

Within the services industries, business and personal services will provide the most jobs, 27.7 per cent of total employment.

Transportation and public utilities are expected to increase their employment 26.5 per cent and government should require 37.4 per cent more workers.

Here are the state-by-state projections, with the state, employment in 1974 and projected for 1985, and the increase in rounded numbers and percentage.

Beauty Contest For Scarecrows

LEWISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The 46 contestants in a weekend beauty pageant here did not wear bathing suits or waltz across a stage. Rather, they came wrapped in aluminum and were propped up in a cornfield.

The beauties that shone so brilliantly in the sunny, 95-degree weather Saturday were scarecrows fashioned by members of 4-H clubs for a publicity stunt, sponsored by RJR Archer, Inc., a subsidiary of R.J. Reynolds.

HOW MUCH HOT WATER?

One of the items frequently overlooked when remodeling or buying a new home, is the capacity of the hot water heater. First notice of this oversight normally is discovered while under a hot shower when it turns ice-cold prematurely. But, then it is too late. So, here's a short course on the subject.

The capacity of storage water heaters is rated in two ways and is usually imprinted on the nameplate of the tank. One number tells you the capacity of the tank, and the other number shows the recovery rate per hour. The sum of the two numbers gives you the number of gallons of hot water a tank can supply in one hour.

A tank of 50 gallons capacity with a recovery rate of 40 gallons will supply 90 gallons an hour which should be plenty for a family of five in a home with two baths and an automatic dishwasher and clotheswasher. A family of four without the dishwasher should be able to get by on a 30 or 40 gallon tank with 30 gallon recovery.
