Trans-Alaska Pipeline Is Delivering Black Gold

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Sirens wailed, firecrackers snapped, horns honked, cheers erupted in bars. All celebrated the first gush of Alaska's black bounty of crude oil from the end of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

A journey of 38½ days — and a struggle of nine years — ended with arrival of oil from above the Arctic Circle at the line's southern terminus here. The North Slope crude officially ended its pipe journey at 11:02 p.m. Alaskan time (4:02 a.m. EDT).

Like the proud father of a newborn child, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. President William Darch, contacted at his Anchorage home, bragged about the 800-mile, $7.7 billion pipeline. And he applauded Alaskans who saw the controversial project through to its first delivery.

"It even took dynamite and shrugged it off!" enthused Darch, referring to a sabotage attempt detected earlier this week.

Oil flowed immediately into storage tanks at the $1 billion oil handling facility. An Atlantic Richfield supertanker, the 120,000-ton ARCO Juneau, will take oil to the west coast after several days.

The journey of 38 days, 12 hours and 56 minutes ended a trouble-plagued maiden run of oil through the line. Problems included an explosion that killed one man and destroyed a pump station, reducing the 48-inch line's capacity by one-third.

It also ended a turbulent period of energy history in which the forces of development clashed with conservationists in a struggle over the rich Prudhoe Bay oil fields — the nation's largest pool of oil, discovered in 1968.

Ponder Problems Raised By Farm Price Supports

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress' agriculture and foreign relations committees are trying to work out differences between House and Senate approaches to national farm and food aid programs.

The first question to be resolved is how high 1978 supports will be for wheat and corn, the major grain crops that have suffered declines in price this year because of huge worldwide harvests.

The House, with a final 294 to 114 vote Thursday, adopted the same new price support levels for the two crops that the Senate approved in May.

The supports will pump a record $1.2 billion into wheat growers' pockets this year and raise average corn prices about 20 cents a bushel, the Agriculture Department projects.

The second question for the conferees is whether President Carter will sign whatever compromise legislation they approve. Both chambers must take final action on the bill in September, just before the major USDA programs expire.

Top aides to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said it is "extremely doubtful" Carter will sign the bill if the final version contains a new sugar price support program the House came up with last week and reaffirmed Thursday on a 246 to 165 vote.

His aides also have stopped passing out warnings about the new food stamp program.

City Explains Position On Redevelopment Body

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The city this morning issued a statement on its position regarding the proposed abolishment of the Redevelopment Commission by the City Council.

In a prepared statement read to newsmen Mayor Percy Cox pointed out, "In 1974, the U.S. Congress abolished the Urban Renewal categorical grant program with the passage of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and replaced it with the Community Development Block Grant Program."

"This legislation specifically required that the governing body of a municipality shall be responsible for CD programs and funds rather than a separate agency."

The Mayor stated that in 1973, "The North Carolina Legislature adopted amendments to the Redevelopment Law authorizing cities to abolish their Redevelopment Commissions and Housing Authorities and instead to designate the City Council as the body to carry out redevelopment and housing functions."

Mayor Cox said many cities across the country have already dissolved their redevelopment commissions and established departments of community development as regular city departments.

The statement continued, "In mid-1976 the area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development visited Greenville and made an evaluation of our community development program administration."

"Generally, this performance evaluation was very favorable; however, the HUD officials recommended strongly that the community development program be better coordinated with more central direction."

"The organization and management study prepared by Lydens Associates in February of this year recommended a number of changes in the CD organization to make it more effective and efficient."

Cox said the Council adopted most of the Lydens recommendations including abolishing the Redevelopment Commission, but not the Housing Authority. That action was taken in a recent special call meeting.

City manager Jim Caldwell announced during the press conference a new Department of Community Development will be established under the reorganization and present city planner John Schofield will be the director.

Drought Area

Mayor Percy Cox received notification this morning from the N.C. Division of Civil Preparedness that Pitt County is one of 56 counties in the state that has been declared as a drought area.

Cox said that he received word of the drought designation from David L. Britt of the Civil Preparedness Division of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

According to the note from Britt, designation of Pitt as a drought area makes the county eligible to apply for funds in four areas, it was noted.

The areas involved in the funding applications include: emergency loans to farmers to cover prospective losses; loans and grants to communities with less than 10,000 population that have a diminishing water supply caused by drought conditions; agricultural conservation programs to help farmers carry out approved soil, water, woodland and wildlife conservation practices; and loan and grant programs for short term water supply assistance to communities of more than 10,000 population.

Psychologist At O'Berry Jailed

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 33-year-old psychologist at a state institution in Goldsboro was fired today by state officials after his arrest Thursday night on charges of a crime against nature involving two teen-aged boys.

Gary Eugene "Josh" Haskett of Goldsboro, a psychologist at the O'Berry Center, was being held today in Wayne County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond, deputies said.

A spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt said Haskett was fired this morning.

Wayne County Deputy Sheriff James Sasser said the arrest of Haskett was made after an investigation by the sheriff's department that began Thursday morning. Sasser said the SBI was called in to assist in the case.

Haskett was charged with two counts of crime against nature involving two teen-aged boys who were not patients at O'Berry, Sasser said. The deputy said several items, including pornographic materials, were seized in a search of Haskett's home.

Sasser said there was no known connection between the charges against Haskett and a case involving Wilson C. Rippey Jr., a former psychiatrist at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, who has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of mailing obscene films.

"As far as we're concerned, this is a brand new case," Sasser said.

Officials said Haskett had been on the staff of the O'Berry Center for 18 months and had previously lived in California.

O'Berry is a state-financed home for retarded children.

George Washington's Letter To N.C. Returned

Text Of Letter

Gentlemen,
I entreat you to be persuaded that nothing could have been more agreeable to me than the proofs contained in your affectionate address of the friendly sentiments entertained by you for my person, as well as for the government which I have been appointed by my countrymen to administer. And I reciprocate, with heartfelt satisfaction, your congratulations on the completion of the Union of all the States: an event, in my judgement, pregnant with more salutary consequences than can easily be expressed or conceived.

It will ever be my first wish and most strenuous endeavor, to justify, so far as may be in my power, the confidence which my fellow citizens have thought proper to repose in me, by exerting every power vested in the President of the United States by the Constitution, for the happiness and prosperity of our country; and by giving efficacy to such a system as will ensure the general welfare and conciliate the public mind.

I desire, Gentlemen, to make acceptable to you my acknowledgements for the kind concern you take in the restoration of my health and preservation of my life; and in the retribution I may receive after the conclusion of this mortal existence. May you and the state ... be also the peculiar care of Divine Providence.

G Washington

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A long-lost letter George Washington wrote to the governor of North Carolina was returned Thursday, ending a two-year legal battle over its custody.

Lawyers for the state and for the anonymous owner of the 1790 letter reached an out-of-court settlement in New York, in which the owner agreed to make the letter a gift to the state, The Associated Press learned.

In return, North Carolina agreed to drop legal action aimed at not only recovering the letter, but also finding out who owned and had offered the letter for sale at a New York auction house.

The letter is signed "G. Washington" and written in the first president's own hand, said state Archivist Thornton W. Mitchell, who confirmed its recovery Thursday.

Historians don't know how the state lost possession of the letter, or even when it was last known to have been in North Carolina.

"We have no idea who has been keeping it," he said. "We don't know how he got it or anything. All we can do is speculate how it got out of custody."

It is dated Aug. 26, 1790, and runs for a page and a half — the front and back of a single sheet. The letter is in response to a previous one to Washington informing him of the state's ratification of the U.S. Constitution. Although it does not specifically mention the ratification, historians have interpreted it as a congratulation to the state for doing so.

The historical document is valued at between $15,000 and $25,000, Mitchell said, and was addressed to the governor, then Alexander Martin, and his council of state.

Mitchell said there is proof the letter arrived in North Carolina in 1790, because it was gazetted, or its text published, in a Fayetteville newspaper that year.

But North Carolina authorities didn't learn of the document's existence until two years ago, when notice of its auction was found in advertisements from Sotheby Parke-Bernet, a New York auction house and gallery, Mitchell said.

Since then the North Carolina Attorney General's office has filed suit in federal and New York state courts, claiming it belonged to the people of North Carolina, asking its return and seeking to discover who owned the long-lost letter.

"I'm very proud that we got it back," said Deputy Atty. Gen. Howard Kramer, contacted in New York Thursday. "Attorney General Rufus Edmisten is very pleased with the outcome, and that the letter has been returned to its rightful owners, the people of North Carolina."

The letter has been authenticated by a historian commissioned by the state division of archives and history, Mitchell said, and that Washington wrote the entire letter himself makes it "rather unusual."

The letter is 226 words long, taking the front of one page and part of the back. It is pressed between two pieces of glass.

"The paper is in remarkably good shape for being close to 200 years old," Kramer said after seeing it for the first time.

When suits were filed to recover the document, state lawyers and historians hoped to establish a legal precedent to aid future efforts to regain old public papers that have

Would it be possible for a special area to be set aside at Pitt Memorial Hospital for a patient to have his or her hair done? I think it would be a great morale builder for a sick or injured person who is recovering to be able to have this service. Mrs. J. P.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson said that almost every room in the hospital is a private one and that there is a lavatory in each. He said he believes that any patient who wishes such service can easily have it in his or her room, having his own barber, beautician, relative or friend provide the service.

NOT ENOUGH

The Stocks Traveling Fund established by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church to enable Mrs. Robert L. Stocks to take her family to visit her elderly and ailing parents she has not seen in 14 years has not fared well.

Only about $50 has been contributed to the fund. If more is not given soon, it will be necessary to discontinue the effort and return the contributions already made, a spokesman for the fund said. She said she is still hopeful, however, that more contributions will be made so the family can make the trip before the five children need to start back to school in late August. About $400 is needed for the round-trip.

City Bus Service One Year Old; Tops Expectation

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

On July 29, 1976, Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) buses rolled for the first time, beginning a three-day trial period of free service to acquaint area residents with the system.

Today, 120,000 passengers and one year later, the GREAT system has exceeded even the optimistic expectations of those responsible for bringing the service to Greenville.

Mrs. Linda Hix, transit office marketer, estimated fare box receipts would total $26,000 by the end of this month.

"The system is doing a lot better than we expected," she said.

"We thought by now we'd be doing really well if we carried 300 passengers per day. We're averaging better than 500 a day, and have had one peak day of 780 passengers.

"We are extremely pleased. Citizen response has been good.

"On routes 2 and 3, we are approaching capacity for much of the day. Route 1 operates at about 40 per cent capacity right now.

"As of yet there are no plans for a fourth route until a year or so from now. We hope to have some federal funds by then."

City planner John Schofield said during the first year of operation GREAT has "done the job that needed to be done."

"We are quite pleased," said Schofield.

"We estimated during the first year we would carry 75-80,000 passengers. We carried 115,000 during the first 10 1/2 months.

"Our ridership is quite stable, with daily averages being broken frequently.

"And we are encouraged by the type of rider we are attracting — school-age children, older citizens and commuters.

"The number of people who are riding the bus to work several times a week is a hopeful sign."

According to Mayo Allen, Public Works director, the buses are experiencing a few more mechanical problems than anticipated.

"But I feel this is because the ridership is so high," he said.

"The buses were made to carry 18-20 riders, and we are carrying 24-26 at times.

"Overall, I think the buses are doing real well.

"The fuel cost is very reasonable, even less than expected."

Allen said he was very pleased with the bus drivers.

"Our drivers are great," he said.

"We couldn't have found any better employees anywhere. And the buses are so regular you can almost set your watch by them.

"The Transit Committee, too, has been very active. They've done a lot of legwork for us."

Greenville Mayor Percy Cox said the GREAT system is "one of the best things we have ever initiated."

"I sure am pleased," said Mayor Cox.

"I think everyone concerned has been well pleased with the reception of the GREAT system.

"Greenville is growing. And the city needs GREAT to meet this growth and cut down on street traffic and some of our pollution.

"I have nothing but the highest praise for the Transit Committee, the Public Works Department and the whole system."

found their way into unauthorized hands. The N.C. Supreme Court ruled in a similar case in June that 200-year-old legal indictments, signed by William Hooper who later signed the Declaration of Independence for North Carolina, had to be turned over to the state by its private owner.

"I know most collectors are not thieves. They're well intended," Kramer said. "But from a legal standpoint, these documents are the property of the people of North Carolina, and we will continue to pursue the state's claims when we feel it appropriate.

"North Carolina is now the most active state in regaining public documents which may have fallen into private hands," he said.

The attorney general's office retained a New York law firm to help recover the letter, and spent $5,000 to $6,000 in legal fees, Kramer said.

Mitchell brought the letter back from New York by airplane Thursday afternoon, accompanied by a State Bureau of Investigation agent. Mitchell said he didn't know when the letter would be put on display.

Mitchell said that when the governor first received the letter, it was probably stored with other state records in a Raleigh armory, and later above a Raleigh store, since there was no archives or even a permanent capitol.

It could have disappeared at any time, he said, by being stolen or even by being thrown out when the wife of a post-civil war governor went through old state documents. "We don't think it was given away," he said.

Washington's letter was prompted by North Carolina's delay in approving the U.S. Constitution, Mitchell said.

Delegates to a constitutional convention in Hillsborough in 1789 refused to ratify and it was not until 15 months later — after Congress began considering, but had not yet approved, the Bill of Rights — that a second North Carolina convention ratified the Constitution.

Greenville Mart Had $85.99 Day

Offerings on the Greenville Tobacco Market on Thursday were much the same as on previous sales days this week with the bulk consisting of lugs, primers, sand grades and non-descript tobacco.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor for the local Tobacco Board of Trade, said that the volume of non-descript tobacco was higher than on any sales day this week.

Greenville warehouses sold 691,730 pounds yesterday for $594,804, an average of $85.99 per hundred pounds.

Bryan said that Stabilization receipts increased to 12.59 per cent of total sales.

Top practical price paid Thursday was $1.30 per pound, he noted, with some of the better grades selling for above $1.30 per pound.

Season totals now stand at 2,974,259 pounds sold for $2,582,034, an overall average of $86.81 per hundred pounds.

MR. AND MRS. JOHNNIE GODLEY

Reception Given Couple Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie R. Godley of Simpson were honored by their children, Mrs. James E. Boyd of New Bern, and Reid Godley Jr. of Simpson, on their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at a reception in the Simpson Community Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Godley and their family greeted guests as they arrived. Gifts were opened and displayed by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edwards Jr. of Simpson. Punch was served by Mrs. George Haddock of Grimesland, sister of Mrs. Godley, and Mrs. Emily Edwards of Simpson. Miss Carolyn Edwards of Simpson and Miss Wendy Phillips assisted in the serving.

Presiding at the register was Mrs. Lucille Sumrell of Simpson. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Edwards of Simpson said good-byes.

The building was decorated throughout with magnolia, ivy and fern greenery.

Tables were decorated with white lace cloths and centerpieces of yellow and white mums, pink daisies and chrysanthemums. Gold candles were used throughout.

Approximately 200 guests honored the couple.

Shower Given Miss Simpson

Miss Lavonne Simpson, bride-elect of Garrie Moore, was honored Monday evening at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Willie Mae Gibbs. Hostesses were members of the Iota Kappa Omega Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

Corsages of pink carnation pom poms were presented to the bride-elect and mothers of the bride and bridegroom.

Miss Addie Gore led the members and invited guests in bridal games. Mrs. Jean Carter poured punch. Miss Annette Barnes and Mrs. Rosa Harris registered gifts.

Loves Bachelor, Not His Dogs

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a bachelor who lives alone in my building. I'm a divorcee also living alone. It all started with a "good morning" when we were both walking our dogs. (He has two.)

Pretty soon he asked me to walk his dogs while walking my own. Then he started coming in after work every evening for a drink. I invited him to dinner several times and we'd watch TV, play backgammon and neck a little. He seems to like me but he never invited me out. Meanwhile I fell for him—but hard!

Two months ago he said he was going away for the weekend, and I was sure he was going to ask me to go along, but instead he asked me to keep his dogs!

When he came back for the dogs he spent the night with me. After that I couldn't get him off my mind.

Now he goes away every weekend and leaves his dogs with me, and when he comes back, he stays all night. He's driving me crazy. I told him I was in love with him, but he's never committed himself. How can I get him interested in me? I feel like a 40-year-old teenager.

FORTY AND FOOLISH

DEAR FOOLISH: As I see it, your neighbor sleeps with you occasionally in exchange for your looking after his dogs. It's a good deal for him, but a dog's life for you. There's no way you can get him "interested" in you. Break it off now. The longer you wait the more painful it will be.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a person who can't pass a mirror without taking a good long look at herself? Wouldn't you say that she was very conceited? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Not necessarily. She could be exactly the opposite. Very insecure.

DEAR ABBY: A widowed friend of mine is 50, very wealthy, very attractive and a lovely woman. She recently confided that she longs to marry but can't seem to attract a man.

I ache to tell her that the strikingly snow-white hair she takes enormous pride in WAS an asset when she was in her 30s and was prematurely gray, but now it makes her look like an old woman.

She hasn't asked for my advice and is oblivious to my hints, yet she keeps suggesting that I introduce her to my eligible friends her age. I know that these men think she is too "old" for them because of her white hair.

She still thinks that like Samson her strength lies in her hair. Dare I destroy her self-image for "her own good"?

HER CONFIDANT

DEAR CONFIDANT: If she doesn't ask for your advice, don't offer any. There just may be some men who LIKE white hair on women.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Couple Weds In Recent Ceremony

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Free Evangelistic Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon, July 17, wedding of Miss Carol B. Whichard of Greenville, N. C., and Bill (Billy) C. Jones of Terrell, Tex. The wedding was conducted by the Rev. Francis Turner and Minister Edward Mack.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Whichard of Greenville, the bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School. She is employed at the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington, D. C. The bridegroom is employed at the Community Hospital, Washington, D. C. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Jones of Texas.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of embroidered lace and satin with a matching headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of red and white carnations accented by red and white satin ties.

Greeted by family and friends, the bride was given a wedding shower.

After a wedding trip to Texas, the couple will reside in Washington, D. C.

Arabic Dancing Program Given

The meeting of the Westhaven Home and Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Lou Everett co-hosted by Mrs. Becky Alexander Tuesday night.

A special guest was Donna Whitley, who gave a demonstration on Arabic dancing.

She told the club about her travels in Casablanca, of the different types of Arabic dancing and its customs.

Community projects for the club were discussed and will be decided at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Nancy Moldin Aug. 30.

All-Women Riot Squad Softens Police Image

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — How do you soften the image of helmeted, masked, shield-bearing, club-wielding riot police with a history of tear gas battles with demonstrators?

Add an all-woman riot squad, the Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department decided.

In trim blazers and skirts and with no battle gear or identification except for an armband and two small round badges on their lapels, the 201-member unit came into existence in April.

Its first job was to maintain order at the Imperial Palace on the emperor's birthday when thousands gathered to pay their respects.

"Up to now the riot police had an image of toughness," said Capt. Michiko Nakanishi, the soft-spoken, 53-year-old career woman who heads the new unit.

But nowadays they have to be more than that. There are demonstrations by the handicapped, elderly, women and other groups for which the riot police are a bit too much. There are more and more duties for which women are better suited than men," she said in an interview.

The women's "Special Mobile Force," more popularly known as the female riot squad, was selected from the ranks of the 1,523 policewomen in the Metropolitan Police Department.

With an average age of 21½ and two to three years' experience in the police force, the women meet as a unit twice a month for training in team work and crowd control tactics. The male unit trains full time.

For the most part, the policewomen continue their duties in the 94 police stations throughout Tokyo, usually in the traffic department, and attend the required twice monthly lessons in the martial art of aikido.

"Their training is mostly in announcing and communication. Over a microphone or megaphone, a woman's voice sounds softer and is more effective than a man's," said Captain Nakanishi.

"Rather than listen to what I was saying, they stared at me, which was embarrassing," said Keiko Domon, 20, of her work at orderly demonstrations on May Day.

Washington Stokes The Fires

Last week's news included another reminder of the continuing curse of inflation; and with it came the remembrance that the forces in Washington do little to provide a remedy, but do much to stoke the fires.

Congress does not feel the impact; Congress can vote itself lavish pay increases and fringes that keep the wolf at a distance from its doors. The tax-paying public does not have that recourse. Truth to tell, living in Washington as a member of the federal establishment seems to inspire a sense of living in another world: there is a great gulf between the world as we see it and the world adopted by those the voters sent to Washington to represent us.

In our eyes, Washington persists in spending money it does not have; income has only a modest relationship to outgo, and when taxation fails to pay the bills the simplest remedy is to print more money. Most discouraging of all, "more money" seems to be the cure-all for everything.

We rather fancy an incentive system (not new here) in which as the government reduces the federal debt and the burden of taxpayers, its workers share the blessing with a reasonable increase in income. And as government makes life harder for the ordinary citizen, its minions must surrender some of the good things to which they've become accustomed.

Congress would never buy it.

Eastern N.C. Needs Jenkins' Energies

At last report ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins was still in Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of what was described as a mild heart attack.

We hope he will be back on the job soon.

Dr. Jenkins has affected the course of Eastern North Carolina more than anybody for the past 15 years, and he has affected the course of the state as much as anybody during that time.

We need his energies for the remainder of the time that he will serve as chancellor, and for many years thereafter.

THIS AFTERNOON

Tar Heels Seem Satisfied

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — By and large, North Carolinians seem to think things are pretty good at home, and aren't pushing for any big change.

That is the distinct impression gained from looking closely at last fall's survey on "How Well Off Are North Carolinians?" conducted by the budget office of the state's Department of Administration.

Contrary to some of the programs pushed by state and federal bureaucrats and legislators, the interviews with 1,385 Tar Heels of various ages, income levels, and interests show little clamor for more governmental aid.

Good jobs with adequate income and fair chance for advancement fairly well sums up the number-one problem emerging from the survey.

All Right
But overshadowing any problems is a general attitude that everything is all right.

Only eight per cent of those surveyed said their standard of living was poor. Two per cent didn't know how it rated. A big majority of 63 per cent said their household lives pretty good or excellent. Education is the key to income, and income is the key to living standards, so naturally those with higher levels of income believe their standard of living is excellent.

More whites than blacks say living is good or excellent, but still only 17 per cent of the blacks say things are poor. . . . the rest rate things fair, good, or excellent, with 38 per cent saying "good."

Geographically across the state, Coastal Plains residents express the most dissatisfaction with 13 per cent saying living is poor. Only nine per cent say living is excellent and 43 per cent say it's good.

Good Living
In the Mountains, the Piedmont, and along the Coast itself, living standards are rated uniformly high, with the Coast getting the most excellent (22 per cent).

BILL NOBLITT

Would a Tar Heel want to move? Not likely, even for a good job. Only 19 per cent said they would rather live somewhere else if jobs were available — and of that group, better than half (59 per cent) said they would rather stay in North Carolina if they did relocate.

Most people like the areas where they live, and are most satisfied with peace and quiet and privacy (83 per cent), access to shopping (82 per cent), good schools (76 per cent), outdoor activities (72 per cent), space to play (68 per cent), adequate health care (63 per cent), cost of housing (63 per cent), and entertainment or cultural activities (57 per cent).

More than half were unhappy, however, with access to public transportation, job satisfaction, and job income.

At work, advancement and income were the sore spots, while fringe benefits, working surroundings, safety, hours, travel time, and general relations with others on the job got high marks.

A surprise was in store on the subject of health care. A big majority (63 per cent) said medical treatment is adequate in their area, and 98 per cent said they can get to a doctor within 15 miles; and 96 per cent can get to a dentist within 15 miles. Only a handful complained they had sought some medical service but couldn't get it within 15 miles of home.

Dinner Guest For Rent

A few years ago I wrote about the shortage of guests on the Riviera, and pointed out that while everyone had a villa or a yacht, the natural resources in house guests and boat guests were drying up fast, and unless a guest conservation program was instituted, the people along the Riviera would soon find themselves dining and sailing alone. Well, they scoffed at my warning, but this year the Riviera is facing its worst guest shortage since Elsa Maxwell tried to get a passenger list together for a cruise of the Greek islands.

The profiteering in guests this year is unimaginable. I know, because that's how I was paying for my vacation. It happened by accident, but if a fellow doesn't take advantage of a situation, he'll wind up spending his own money on the Riviera, and who wants to do that?

It seems that fellow columnist John Crosby showed up in Monte Carlo and innocently asked me if I could get him invited to the Red Cross dinner and gala at which Sammy Davis Jr. was going to entertain.

I pretended it would be difficult but said I'd do my best. What I knew but John didn't was that the ratio of women to men along the Riviera was six to one, and hostesses were willing to pay anything for a single man to sit at one of their tables.

An hour later I was down at the beach making discreet inquiries. I was tipped off that a Mrs. Max Kettner of New York had three extra women for the gala and was getting desperate.

How would you like to have Crosby at your table?" I asked her.

"Bing Crosby?" she asked.

"Listen," I said, "if I had Bing Crosby, I wouldn't be here — I would be negotiating at the Palace with Princess Grace."

"My boy's John Crosby, but he's been a helluva dinner guest in his time. He's eaten at Bill Paley's house, he's broken bread with Mrs. Pam Harriman, he's had coffee with the Trudeas twice. This guy is no bum—he's Yale '38, and that gives him a presold table audience right there."

Mrs. Kettner wet her lips. "How much are you asking for him?"

"It depends," I said. "Do you want him for cocktails before the dinner?"

"What's the difference?" Mrs. Kettner wanted to know.

"Well, I can book him for cocktails before the gala at the Hotel de Paris with another party, and that would cut down the price for you. He could join you for dinner around ten o'clock."

"I think I should have him for cocktails," Mrs. Kettner said.

Other Editors Say Should Not Rest

(Washington Daily News)

So often through the years we have pointed out the tragic predicament of mentally retarded people, particularly children, as they make their ways through this world.

Mentally retarded people have no lobbies to pressure legislatures and congresses. They have no organization of their own run by their own because of their inability to do so. They are helpless in so many ways, and it is up to those of us who have enjoyed the blessings of health and prosperity to help those less able.

We speak specifically now of the recent case in Morganton, N. C. in which a 12 year old retarded child was left at a state mental institution there with a note pinned to him which read "Gerald has not been abandoned, only left where he will get the best care."

The case went to court, and there it was revealed that the boy has a mind of a two year old, that he is not trained and cannot be trained, that he cannot dress himself, and that in general terms he is rather helpless. The mother works and she has five other children.

In studying this case, we must conclude that the mother did not abandon this child. Indeed an aunt took him to the mental institution and left him. The mother, we believe, loves that child. But in due fairness to that mother we have a big question to ask. Why cannot that mother get that boy entered into a state mental institution?

Let the state of North Carolina answer that question. Let this state answer it in clear simple terms and not give out with a political statement or make a charge that the legislature did not appropriate enough money.

We are not seeking the answer from the head of the institution in Morganton. We want to know what the people in charge in Raleigh have to say. If this young boy's mother has been trying for several years to have him entered into a mental institution and if she has been unable, then surely there must be some greater and more compelling reason than merely saying "there is no room in the inn."

We watch parents with retarded children, and we never cease to be impressed. Indeed we are tremendously pleased with their work and attitude. And it is always an occasion for us to be ever more thankful for our own blessings and ever more humble as we stand there and watch.

We in North Carolina should never rest until we have done the job we ought to do in caring for mentally retarded people in our state. This is one job we should not put off.

The challenge is big. The response too often is much too weak. Let us now band together and stand together in a common fight for those unable to defend themselves.

Pension Plans Face IRS Bite

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has tapped a Missouri city's pension plan for 140 firemen for $50,000 in taxes, but the IRS hasn't gotten a penny from the huge California state employees pension system, which is in the same legal position as the small Missouri plan.

Both of these pension plans are not exempt from taxes in the eyes of the IRS. But the Missouri IRS office has been pressing the issue, while the California office apparently has not.

For years the IRS paid little attention to state and municipal pension plans. But that may change if the IRS' interpretation of some old tax laws and the new federal pension law is upheld by the courts.

Confusion over just what the law means for the more than 6,000 governmental pension plans and their nine million participants appears certain to end up in the courts.

But if the IRS position in the case of the fire fighters' pension fund of St. Joseph, Mo., prevails, there could be hundreds of millions of dollars in federal taxes owed by pension funds and millions more owed by the plan's participants.

The St. Joseph case revolves around whether a city or state pension plan has to file formally with the IRS for tax-exempt status — as corporate pension plans must.

The IRS — at least the IRS regional office in St. Louis — says governmental plans must file. If they don't, the plans' investment income is taxable and the government's contributions to the pension plan are immediately taxable to the covered employees. "We are not covered by the law," said Jerry Mogg, a certified public accountant who advises the St. Joseph city government.

"There's no need to qualify nor any purpose for it," says Albert A. Weinberg, consulting actuary to the Illinois legislative committee on pensions.

No one, including the IRS, knows how many governmental plans have qualified and how many have not. A check of several city and state plans showed no pattern.

Major New York City and New York state plans have qualified. The 550,000-member California Public Employees Retirement System has not. Neither have the employee pension plans of Chicago, Atlanta, Illinois or Connecticut.

The only IRS office concentrating on governmental

Energy Debate Ahead

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is starting work on President Carter's energy program, which is arriving on the House floor essentially as he outlined it in his April 20 energy message to Congress.

The House Rules Committee cleared the bill for floor debate Thursday night under guidelines which could mean numerous floor fights on amendments challenging the administration package.

The House begins a week of scheduled debate on the legislation today.

The House leadership intends to continue debate throughout next week, with the aim of sending the bill to the Senate by next Friday.

Major provisions of the legislation include a tax on cars which use fuel inefficiently, a credit for weatherizing homes, a tax on crude oil to force conservation, continued federal price controls on natural gas, but at a higher level than is now the case, and a major overhaul of electric utility rates.

In addition, a special House energy committee, which reviewed the legislation but had no authority to change work done by other panels, recommended a doubling of the current four-cent federal gasoline tax.

Republicans, charging that Democrats ignored their views while the legislation was being drafted, are planning to seek (Continued on page 6)

40 Years Ago Today

July 29, 1937

The lives of Tientsin's many Americans were imperiled today by a literal death struggle between the Chinese and Japanese armies in North China.

The Japanese army in a drastic effort to rout a Chinese attack that threatened to drive it from Tientsin, its North China stronghold, loosed a devastating aerial bombardment on the city.

Japanese officers declared the acute situation compelled them to ignore earlier assurance not to expose the city's foreign residents to peril.

Wave on wave of bombing squadrons set many of Tientsin's main buildings afire, particularly the railroad center, and burned the international bridge connecting the foreign concessions and the Chinese city.

Telegraphic reports from Greenville tobaccoists on the Georgia markets and also Associated Press dispatches from various centers indicated an opening day average of approximately 24 cents per pound.

The 1937 bright leaf crop of Southern Georgia and Northern Florida went on the auction blocks today and the first sale reported at Valdosta brought a comment from growers that the price was "good."

Millions of pounds of the leaf were offered as the auctions began.

Strength For Today

HOW TO GROW OLD
What makes people old?

There can be no doubt that certain deteriorations take place within the human structure as the years pass. But there is undoubtedly a psychological aspect to the situation. We cannot stay young simply by deciding not to get old, but certainly we can make ourselves old by dwelling on our failing powers. Those who believe in the sovereignty of God do not doubt but that the moment of their departure from this earth is determined and arranged; but how we are going to live until that moment arrives is something which is largely up to us.

If we strive to live a useful life, to continue our activity to its reasonable limit, and never fail to take an interest in our fellows, we may expect to get the most out of the time which remains to us.

A man was telling recently about his father, who lived to be almost 100 years old. "Did he die of old age?" someone asked. "Oh no," was the reply. "He fell out of an apple tree."

INVENTORY DOWN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Inventories of peanuts as of June 30 dropped to 831 million pounds, down 14 per cent from the 1.1 billion a year earlier, the Agriculture Department says.

Évans-Novak...

go with the $3 billion worth of U.S. arms now in the pipeline (part of it a gift from U.S. taxpayers).

As for Geneva, Mr. Carter sends Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to the Mideast next week to reconcile Begin's veto with the Arabs' insistence on PLO representation — and to make Jimmy Carter's words of last week come true, that "the positions taken by Prime Minister Begin will lead to the convening of the Geneva conference."

If Vance can do that, Mr. Carter's handling of Begin will prove to have been far-sighted indeed, but few politicians here think he can.

Installing New Pastor Sunday

A service of installation for Rev. Mr. E.T. Vinson as the new minister of Memorial Baptist Church on Greenville Blvd. will be held at 3:31 p.m. Sunday.

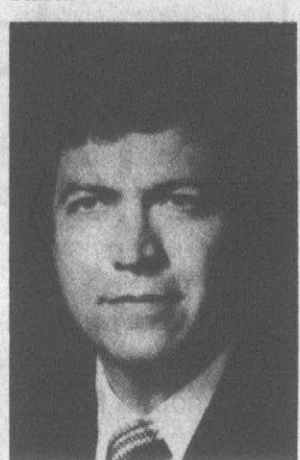

The "Charge to the Pastor" will be presented by Rev. Dr. W. Randall Lloyd, president of the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Vinson and his wife, the former Mary Katherine Quick of Oxford, and a 13-year old son, Anthony, who is currently on a tour through Georgia and Florida, participating in vacation Bible school, will reside at 1040 Rock Spring Road. A second son, Gregory, 17, is attending Hobgood Academy.

The Rev. Mr. Vinson, who has served as pastor of First Baptist Church in Scotland Neck since 1970, was born in Swansboro on August 8, 1932.

He attended Swansboro High School and earned his B.A. Degree from Wake Forest University in 1955. He received his B.D. Degree in 1960 from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary and gained additional training in pastoral counseling at Dorothea Dix Hospital and Duke Divinity School.

REV. E.T. VINSON

He is currently working towards a Doctor of Ministry Degree at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va.

Besides his pastorate in Scotland Neck, Vinson has served at Cheek Heights Baptist Church in Durham, Newport Baptist Church in Newport and Sunset Baptist Church in Wilmington.

Denominational experience includes service as moderator of the North Roanoke Baptist Association, vice-president of Rocky Mount Baptist Pastor's

True or False

Could this be your picture? Are you putting on a false face when you get up each morning? Are you pretending that you live surrounded by big, bright balloons? Or, on the other hand, that things are down, down, down? Or, that you were just born unlucky, and at this late date there isn't much you can do about it?

Most of us would have to admit that there is more than a little of the clown in the image we present to others — whether on the high side or the low side. More's the pity. Because we would come across a lot better if we could just be ourselves.

There is a place where you can be yourself, where you can find yourself! No questions asked! The Church. Won't you try it?

In One Week 25 Have Died In Mass Murders

By The Associated Press
In the past week, 25 people have died in mass murders: —Six men were slain in a suburban Miami ranch house early Thursday, shot by killers who posed as power company workers and bound their victims with neckties and handkerchiefs. Two others who had been left for dead survived. No one has been arrested in connection with the shootings.
—One week ago, firemen picking through the charred ruins of Fred Beaudoin's home in Prospect, Conn., found the bodies of Beaudoin's wife, Cheryl, their seven children and a youngster who had stayed the night. Some of the bodies were bound and gagged. Beaudoin's foster brother, Lorne Acquin, 27, has been charged with arson and murder.
—On the same day, a secretary arriving for work in a Park Ridge, Ill., office building found four men's bodies piled in an elevator. Police said the four were shot in execution-style. No one has been arrested in the shootings.
—Last Saturday, six persons were shot and killed by semi-automatic rifle fire as they left a bar in Klamath Falls, Ore. Dewitt C. Henry, a 26-year-old unemployed truck driver, has been charged in connection with the slayings.

Over the past few years, several bizarre mass slayings have shattered families and disrupted entire communities. Some of the murderers have been apprehended, others are still at large, leaving communities in fear.
One such community is quiet Birmingham, Mich., where citizens have been terrorized since early 1976 by a child killer. Police believe the killer has slain at least four of eight children and teen-agers murdered during that time.

For New York City residents, especially those in the boroughs of Queens and the Bronx, today is the anniversary of the first time the killer known as "Son of Sam" struck.

Since July 29, 1976, Sam has killed five persons and wounded six. His targets are mainly young women, but their male escorts have also been shot.

In southern California, detectives say the case known as the "trash bag murders" could widen to 43 killings in the past 10 years.

At least 12 slayings have been uncovered in the case, which was so named because some of the bodies, most of them nude young men, were stuffed into large plastic trash bags.

Patrick Wayne Kearney, 37, has been indicted on three counts of murder.

In North Platte, Neb., Erwin Charles Simants was convicted last year of murdering a family of six and then sexually assaulting the bodies of a 10-year-old and her grandmother.

On Valentine's Day this year, four brothers were shot execution-style in their Hollandsburg, Ind., mobile home. Their mother, Betty Spencer, survived by pretending she was dead after shots hit her wig.

Early last year, John Abt, his wife, three of their children and a friend were shot once each in the head as they entered their home in Trevose, Pa., outside Philadelphia. Police found the bodies piled in a heap in the basement.

George Geschwendt, a 24-year-old neighbor, was convicted and sentenced to death for the slayings.

A Texas homosexual torture ring headed by a 16-year-old youth was uncovered in 1973. Elmer Wayne Henley admitted the killings of 27 young men and told police a tale of horror which led them to the graves of the youths. Henley was sentenced to 99 years in prison. His accomplice, David Owen Brooks, 18, received a life term.

In 1971, the bodies of 25 itinerant farm workers, all hacked with a machete, were discovered in shallow graves along the Feather River in California.

Juan Corona, a farm labor contractor, was sentenced to serve 25 consecutive life terms with no chance of parole for the murders.

OVER THE FENCE — A group of demonstrators gathered around a fence after some of them, right, jumped over it to occupy the Blanket Hill on Kent State University campus early Friday. Defying a court order, demonstrators set up tents on the campus in attempt to block a planned construction of a gymnasium annex near the area where four students were slain by Ohio Nat'l Guardsmen during May 4, 1970 anti-war demonstrations. Soldier Pay Scale High FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The average annual paycheck for a P. Bragg soldier has reached $10,525, compared to the average civilian pay figure of $8,051 for Cumberland County residents.

Salaries are not the only growing items at the 130,000 acre military installation, which has a $584 million budget.

The latest military statistics, prepared by the post comptroller and post engineer, are staggering compared to most eastern North Carolina communities.

As of mid-April, the base population is 39,587, and another 5,000 airmen and their families are stationed at nearby Pope Air Force Base.

Another 77,078 soldiers and their families are living off-base.

A typical officer with a family, a captain or a major, takes home between $1,000 and $1,500 a month, depending on length of service. A typical middle-rank enlisted man takes home $800 a month.

More than 14,700 Army children attend civilian schools in either Cumberland County or the city of Fayetteville. Another 4,500 are enrolled in base school.

Construction costs total more than $307 million, equal to about one-sixth of all land and building values in urban areas of Fayetteville. New buildings include $100 million built in barracks since 1970.

More than 67,000 vehicles are registered with traffic officials, representing an increase of 6,000 since last year.

The budget includes more than $111 million in operating funds, $57.6 million for supply and service contracts and $53 million for supplies and equipment.

Sears Award To Empire Brushes

The employees and management of Empire Brushes Inc. of Greenville were honored this week by Sears Roebuck and Co. with the presentation of the Sears Symbol of Excellence Award for 1977.

Al Stewart, buyer of housewares for Sears, explained the award to all local employees of Empire Brushes at two presentation meetings at the plant and made a formal presentation during a luncheon at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Joe Gantz, general manager of the Greenville facility, accepted the award at the plant, and Jack Gantz, president, received the award during the formal presentation.

The award was one of 592 presented this year to suppliers judged the most outstanding out of Sears' 12,000 merchandising sources. Empire Brushes received the award previously in 1970, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975, and 1976.

Empire was represented at the luncheon by Gantz; Ted Uly, vice president of sales; and Tony Kemps, director of industrial engineering, all of Port Chester, N.Y.

Representing the local staff were Joe Gantz, general manager; James Hecker, plant manager; Leon Wright, personnel manager; John Baverstock, director of systems; Stanley Zicherman, manufacturing superintendent; Roland Riddett, distribution manager; Ed Anderle, traffic manager; Robert Osswald, data processing manager;

Cecil Gurganus, plastics manager; John Huber, industrial engineering manager; Jerry Singleton, production control manager; Bill Bryant, plastics supervisor; Elsie Garis, automatics administrative supervisor; David Powell, automatics technical supervisor; Tommy Harris, twist-in-wire supervisor; Helen Burroughs, mop-broom-cordless electric supervisor; Janet Lee, packing supervisor;

Sig O'Neal, receiving supervisor; Herman Bryant and Willie Richardson, distribution supervisors; Dwight Foster, maintenance supervisor; Cleve Elswick, Allan Cannon, and Victor Wade, production control schedulers; John McDonald, industrial engineer; James Corey, preventive maintenance technician; and Travis Wooten, machine designer.

Cattlemen Seek Feed Supplies

Severe drought conditions have cattlemen trying to determine how to increase their feed supplies, according to Michael E. Regans, assistant agricultural extension agent.

Much of the corn, sorghum and soybeans are not worth harvesting, Regans said, but leaves and stalks from these crops may be cut for green-chop, silage or hay.

Corn or sorghum crops that have received appreciable amounts of nitrogen (100-300 pounds per acre) and have undergone drought stress after seedling development may be potentially dangerous because of nitrate poisoning. Nitrate analysis may be obtained for $5 through the N. C. Forage and Grain Testing Program.

When nitrate levels are in the danger zone, dilute the suspected forage by adding hay or other feeds to the total ration. Begin feeding only to a few older or less valuable animals prior to offering it to the entire herd in order to assure toxicity of the forage.

According to Regans, crop residues and field gleanings can be used as cattle feed, including corn, sorghum, soybean and peanut residues.

For further information, contact Mike Regans at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196.

Gritton Bd. Agrees Consider Rezoning

GRITTON — The Gritton Board of Commissioners adopted a resolution of intent to consider rezoning the Forest Acres and Country Club Hills areas in a special meeting Tuesday night.

The Board's intention is to rezone the areas from RA-20 (20,000 sq. ft. lot size) to RA-14 (14,000 sq. ft.). The 20,000 sq. ft.

size had been considered desirable for septic tank fields, but several dwellings in the area are located on smaller lots and the areas are now supplied with sanitary sewer.

A public hearing will be held in the Town Hall August 15.

In other action, the Board appointed Barbara Houston, Elwyn Thompson and John Triplett to the Board of Elections.

The Board also authorized Mrs. Nannie W. Smith, town clerk, to pay the final $10,000 to the F & G Construction Co. for sewer system improvements.

COMPANY WARNED
LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The state Occupational Safety and Health Administration has cited the Mallory Batter Co. here for having high levels of poisonous mercury, and ordered the company to eliminate the problem within a year.

Bizzell Voted State's Outstanding Employee

ECU News Bureau
At a recent banquet in Kingston, John H. Bizzell was named Outstanding State Employee of the Year from the Area Five region of the North Carolina State Employees Association (NCSEA). Area Five is comprised of 23 counties in eastern North Carolina and has approximately 1,700 NCSEA members. The award is given on the basis of merit and service to the association.

Bizzell, special chairman of the East Carolina University NCSEA members for 15 years, has been employed by the university for more than 34 years — first as a janitor and more recently as Day Supervisor of Housekeeping.

Each of the 32 employees under Bizzell's supervision has specific responsibilities in the same buildings each day. Bizzell said, "There's no need for me to make out a schedule. My people know exactly what has to be done in each building and when to do it."

"I don't have too many problems with the folks that work for me. They take pride in their work."

Bizzell noted that of 975 NCSEA members present at the banquet, 103 were from the ECU group. ECU, having more than 400 NCSEA members is large enough to qualify as a separate chapter.

"I've served under every president this university has had except the very first one. I tell my people that they have the best job in Pitt County. This is more like a big family than a corporation could ever be," he said.

WOMAN TORTURED IN SMALL CAR

Keeping up with fast moving traffic is sheer torture for her in a small car. Yes, compacts and minis can suffer extra engine strain to accelerate speed. This can cause excessive engine heat, wear and noise. That's why small cars should have extra protection. Now they can get it thanks to WYNN'S OIL TREATMENT FOR SMALL CARS. It's formulated to help maintain performance, compression and viscosity at high temperatures while it fights power-stealing contaminants. So for that extra protection get WYNN'S OIL TREATMENT FOR SMALL CARS today.

PACKING FOR JAMBOREE...Part of the Pitt County scouting contingent pack their gear prior to leaving this

Two Boy Scout troops from the East Carolina Council, including 23 Scouts and three leaders from Pitt County, left this morning to attend the National Boy Scout Jamboree at Moraine State Park in western Pennsylvania.

The scouting contingent met a bus at Pitt Plaza at 8 a.m. today and left for the Aug. 1 through Aug. 10 activities, according to local scout executive, Richard Kelly.

The two troops from the Council, totaling 72 Scouts, are scheduled to spend tonight in Fredericksburg, Va., and then tour Washington, D.C. for a day before going to Moraine State Park via Wheeling, W. Va.

Accompanying the Council scouting representatives for the Jamboree trip were Sheldon Downes, local scoutmaster of Troop 625; Harold Flanagan of Farmville, first assistant scoutmaster; John Sutton III of Kinston, second assistant scoutmaster; and Jerry Flanagan of Farmville, third assistant scoutmaster.

The Council representatives included scouts from Greenville, Farmville, Winterville, Kinston, Pink Hill, Bath, Fairfield, Washington, and Roanoke Rapids.

Kelly reported that 601 troops of 36 scouts each are registered from across the nation for the Jamboree.

Little Change In Tobacco Prices

FARMVILLE — Volume of sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday was light, according to Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Sales continued to consist of mostly primings and nondescript grades. More sheets of cutters appeared on the floors yesterday than on any previous day. A few sheets of leaf grades were marketed for the first time this season. Prices have varied little since opening day, with those of top grades ranging from $1.15 to $1.30 a pound.

The market sold Thursday 590,408 pounds for $513,572, for an average of $86.99 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 1,969,940 pounds for $1,725,975 for a season average of $87.62. Stabilization receipts yesterday were 12.64 per cent of gross sales, compared with 56.15 a year ago.

Greenville Golf and Country Club

The Greenville Golf and Country Club held a Best Ball of Four tournament at its recent Ladies' Day event. The team of Dardie Longino, Keila McGlohon, Janet McGlohon and Sue Hardy took first place.

Skip Bright recently had a 79 at the course, while Joan Hooper picked up an eagle two on the second hole.

A Dates and Mates Tournament will be held on Thursday. A 5 p.m. shotgun start will be held for the nine-hole tournament, and a $7.50 entry fee, per couple, is being charged.

The pro-junior tournament will be held on August 11. This is for junior members, 9-15 years-old. A Mother-Daughter Tournament will be held on August 12. A Husband-Wife Tournament is slated for August 19. On Aug. 21, a Boys & Girls Putting Challenge Cup tournament will be held.

Brook Valley Golf and Country Club

The Brook Valley team championship tournament was held recently.

The team of Lee Alcorn, Jim Fitch, Clarence Kelsey and Andy Boles took first place, shooting 57-58-115. Second place went to Smokey Lancaster, Jim McFarlane, Bill Mitchum, and Tim Kermon. Third were Cletus Jackson, Marshall Henson, Tommy Lane and Earl Costner. Both the second and third place teams carded rounds of 59-58-117. The placing was decided by comparing cards.

The deadline for the Father-Son Tournament, to be played next weekend, will be mid-week.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

A number of eagles have been recorded at the Ayden Golf and Country Club during the past week.

Donnie Taylor picked up an eagle on the second hole while playing with Tom Allen, Larry Sawyer and Joe Brown. Ralph Wingate also eagled number two, while shooting a round with Dallas Jackson, Jake Garris and Al Piland. Clay Jordan got an eagle at two, and had a round of 69 while out with Pat Joyner, Bobby Congleton, and Slatz Wingate.

Allan Moye eagled number seven while playing with Ed Murphy, Fred Twiddy and Ralph Dudley. Jay Brooks got an eagle on the tenth hole, hitting his third shot into the hole with a nine-iron.

All of the eagles were on par-five holes. The Member-Member Tournament will be held at the club on August 7.

Barbara Walker of the Ayden club won low gross honors in a recent Ladies Bright Belt League event, shooting a 73.

Ayden Pro Clarence Alexander is currently in the hospital for tests. Greetings can be sent him in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Grifton Golf and Country Club

A junior clinic was held at the Grifton Golf and Country Club, with age group tournaments following.

In the girls' division, Donna Lister took first place in the eight-year-old division, with Rebecca Liles second. Cynthia Lilley won the 12-15 group, with Jennifer Mahoney second.

Sonny Grant won the 8-9 boys group, while David Liles was second. David Lister and Keith Griffin tied for first place in the 10-11 age group. Jay Mahoney won the 12-13 group, with David Bradshaw in second. Brady Quinn won at 14, with John McDougald second.

Nan Rogers and Leatrice Powers tied for first place in a Ladies String Tournament. Lib Lilley took the prize for having the most string left.

Freddie Powers had a hole-in-one on the fifth hole, a 125-yarder. He used a wedge for the shot while playing with Billy Langston, Frankie Harris and Buck Brown.

Ron Hardison eagled the ninth hole, as did Steve Rogers. Frankie Harris got an eagle on the first hole.

A Nightmare Tournament will be held on Sunday. The Junior Club Championship is scheduled for August 26. A Couples Member-Guest event will be played on August 20. The Member-Guest is slated for September 17-18, and a Ladies Tournament has been tentative slated for October 8.

Fraction Made Big Difference

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A tenth of a point in his high school grade-point average changed the life of Wilkes County running back Robbie Barnes.

The fraction made Barnes relinquish an athletic scholarship for this winter offered by the University of North Carolina on the condition that he met the school's 2.0 admissions requirement.

"At the end of the year, I had a 1.9," he said. "They (the North Carolina coaching staff) discussed having me go to junior college or prep school, but I didn't want to do that."

Barnes' athletic credentials were impeccable: he rushed for more than 4,000 yards during his career at Wilkes Central High in North Wilkesboro, including more than 1,500 yards his senior year.

In three years, the 5-foot-11, 195-pounder amassed 59 touchdowns and set Western Association records in the 100- and 220-yard dashes.

Cubs Outlast Reds, 16-15

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The game was a strange one, in many ways, for the Chicago Cubs.

Rick Reuschel, normally a starter, came on in relief and beat Cincinnati 16-15 Thursday. He pitched just two-thirds of an inning and scored the winning run in the bottom of the 13th inning. It was his second victory over the Reds in their four-game series and his 10th without a loss at Wrigley Field.

The game marked the return to duty after 12 days of reliever Bruce Sutter, who pitched three innings, didn't allow a hit and struck out six.

The Cubs collected 24 hits against six Cincinnati pitchers, and there were a total of 11 home runs, tying a major league record, in the game which lasted 4 hours, 50 minutes.

Chicago used 21 players, the Reds 16, and three Cubs changed positions four times. Outfielder Bobby Murcer even played shortstop and second for a while when the Cubs ran out of infielders in the late innings.

Dave Rosello, shifting between second and shortstop, depending on whether a lefty or righty was batting, drove in the winning run. That made up for an error that had given the Reds a 15-14 lead in the top of the 12th.

Reuschel, 15-3, who threw a five-hitter to beat the Reds 3-0 Tuesday, said: "I'm not tired. I got pumped up so quick, the adrenalin was really flowing. I'm just trying to get down now."

The Cubs hit six homers, two in the first inning, and the Reds smacked five, three in the first inning. The five homers in one inning by both teams also tied a major league record.

In other NL games, Los Angeles nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Montreal downed San Diego 5-4, Pittsburgh beat Houston 9-4 and St. Louis blanked Atlanta 3-0.

Dodgers 2, Phils 1

Reggie Smith worked reliever Gene Garber for a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth, and Tommy John, 11-4, scattered six hits to give Los Angeles three victories in their four-game series with the Phils.

Expos 5, Padres 4

Andre Dawson's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the Expos over San Diego and gave Montreal a split of the four-game series. Dawson's 12th homer of the season, off Bob Ojeda, 3-7, erased a 4-3 Padres lead.

Reliever Joe Kerrigan, 2-3, picked up the victory.

Pirates 9, Astros 4

Bill Robinson blasted a grand slam home run, the second of his career, and Jim Rooker scattered nine hits as the Pirates extended their winning streak to eight games and moved into second place in the NL East Division. Robinson's homer, his 13th of the season, was his second in two days.

Cards 3, Braves 0

Rookie John Urrea pitched a five-hitter, facing only 29 batters, and Garry Templeton hit a two-run triple to lead the Cards to a sweep of their three-game series with Atlanta. Urrea, making only his second major league start, held the Braves hitless and faced only 12 batters before Jeff Burroughs singled to start the Atlanta fifth. Buzz Capra, 2-8, was the loser.

Secret Notebook Aids Diehl Into Golf Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terry Diehl has the first-round lead in the $200,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic, a secret notebook that helped him get there and no intention of revealing his methods.

The notebook contains the wit and wisdom of Ken Venturi, a former U.S. Open champion and now a television commentator.

"He's a tremendous guy, and he's made a world of difference in my game," Diehl said after his six-under-par 65 gave him a one-stroke edge in Thursday's opening round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

"I'm a much better overall player" since working with Venturi, said Diehl, "but he made me vow not to tell anyone" precisely the nature of the help.

"I think he's been plagiarized a couple of times," Diehl said.

"If you want to know what it's all about, ask Venturi."

The instructions, however, are scribbled in the little notebook the 27-year-old Diehl studies from time to time.

"I worked with him several days down in Florida," said Diehl, whose only victory came in his rookie season of 1974. "The first day, I made notes of 55 items. The second day 27. The third, about a dozen. I kept adding to it."

Diehl, who lost a playoff for this title a year ago, said he sought help from Venturi early this season. "My career was in a valley," he explained. "I haven't missed a cut since Doran (in March) and that's pretty good for me. I've played very steadily, very solidly."

His play over the last 11 holes bordered on the spectacular. He played those holes six under par and used only 12 putts in the stretch, once holing from a bunker.

Those heroics lifted him one stroke in front of J.C. Snead, a former Philadelphia champion who birdied two of his last three holes for a share of second, and Tom Kite, the man who scored that playoff victory over Diehl a year ago.

Danny Edwards and Bill Rogers were at 67 and the group at 68 included Don Pooley, Rod Curl, Mike Hill, Bob Gilder and Ray Floyd, a two-time winner this season.

He withdrew after an 81, his third consecutive round in the 80s.

Rough Seas And Winds Deter 'Monitor' Dives

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — High winds and rough seas off Cape Hatteras Thursday again stymied researchers' plans to descend in miniature submarines to the sunken Civil War ironclad gunship Monitor.

Scientists aboard two research vessels were forced to postpone until today an attempt to set up equipment on the ocean floor for sophisticated photography of the wreck.

Stiff winds churned the ocean at the site 16 miles southeast of here, hampering the operating of miniature submarines and reducing visibility for divers.

Researchers hope to eventually salvage the old ship, the first iron warship to see action. But first they must learn more about its condition and surroundings.

If conditions are less severe today, divers will install a photographic baseline, described as a tape measure of sorts, alongside the 173-foot ironclad. Installation of the baseline will require at least a day, operations director Roger W. Cook said.

The baseline, which divers will drive with stakes into the ocean floor, will be marked every five feet. A crew in a submersible will then take a series of photographs from which a three-dimensional model will be made, showing the exact position of the ship.

Cook said the sophisticated photographic survey is a key part of the current project, in which researchers hope to learn more about the condition of the sunken vessel and its undersea environment.

The Monitor was lost in a storm on Dec. 31, 1862. Its exact location was unknown until a 1973 expedition discovered it 220 feet below the ocean surface off Cape Hatteras.

On Wednesday, a diver spent 40 minutes photographing the sunken vessel and a crew in a submersible also took pictures. At one point, the diver lifted a metal armor plate, becoming the first man to touch a portion of the Monitor since it sank.

Most of the filming was focused on the area surrounding the Monitor's revolving gun turret, which revolutionized naval warfare. Also photographed were a section of the ironclad's hull plate and a camera lost during the 1973 expeditions, both of which researchers hope to recover during the current mission.

Starland Vocal Band Branches Out Into A TV Summer Series

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Having gotten two Grammys and lotsa bucks last year with their hit, "Afternoon Delight," the Starland Vocal Band now commences a new venture — a CBS summer series — this Sunday night.

Glad to say the show isn't staged in a studio. The settings range from the streets of Georgetown in Washington, D.C., whence the band began, to a miniconcert at Pepperdine University in Malibu, Calif.

Sad to say, the premiere of this half-hour, six-week series fails to rise above routine, save for the mellow vocalizing of band members Bill and Taffy Danoff, Margot Chapman and Jon Carroll.

Five writers labored on the show, but its scattered comedy bits are limper than a seersucker suit on a muggy afternoon on Capitol Hill.

After the Starlanders reprise "Afternoon" before a lunchtime crowd near the historic canals of Georgetown, Dave Letterman, the show's announcer and cowriter, essays a "Mailbag" skit.

Which consists of answering such fan queries as how old is the band, how much does it weigh, and is it really John Denver, John being the chap with whom the Danoffs wrote "Take Me Home, Country Roads."

Then it's off to the annual Renaissance Pleasure Faire, an Olde English festival held in the hills west of Los Angeles, for a quick skit, another song and a pie-in-the-puss spoof of bureaucracy.

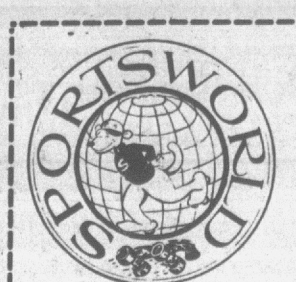

Later, but not much, another Letterman skit ensues, something called "collapsible news" at the, get this, "Hotel Gimlet."

Good Old Ways Not Cheapest

READING, Pa. (AP) — The ways of the "good old days" are not the cheapest nowadays.

An ice company here reports that it has one family left that insists on using an old-fashioned ice box. The ice company delivers a 50-pound cake of ice three times a week. Each cake costs $1.50. That amounts to more than $200 a year.

The cost of electricity for an electric refrigerator to replace the ice box would be about $75 a year and the electricity needed to freeze a tray of 16 ice cubes costs about 15 cents, according to the General Public Utilities Corp.

Bandits Stuck With Fortune In Coins

BY PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Somewhere today four bandits sit and consider their loot — 17 tons of shiny new coins, worth $3.54 million. They may know what they're going to do with the heavy haul, but to others it's a mystery.

"You can't buy a chateau, a car or even a pair of crocodile shoes with bags of change," the newspaper L'Aurore reminded them in an open letter. "And even if you go out to celebrate your coup, the owner of the smallest cafe will start to suspect before you drop the 10th coin on the bar."

"Please write to us and tell us how on earth you are going to get rid of it," the newspaper suggested.

The gangsters hijacked a semitrailer truck carrying the coins as it left the Gare de Lyon railroad station here Thursday, headed for the Paris headquarters of the Bank of France. The coins were in a container that had been shipped by rail overnight from a mint in southern France.

Identical to thousands of other containers on the French rail system, it was deliberately left unguarded so it would not attract attention. It was labeled "fabricated metal" and, the bank said, it was insured only for the value of the metal in the coins, not their monetary value, which is higher.

The loot was largely in 10-franc pieces, each worth about $2. They were recently put into circulation to replace notes and have proved unpopular with the public because they are smaller than coins of half the value and are confusing in a pocketful of change.

The driver, Jean Trottin, 51, said he simply rolled his truck into the Gare de Lyon freight yard, the container was loaded onto the rig in 15 minutes, and he drove out, unarmed and alone.

The hijackers, who officials said must have been following a carefully devised plan based on inside information, got an unexpected break when another truck stalled in front of Trottin's rig.

The gang grabbed the two drivers as they talked, drove off with them and the truck and released them 30 minutes later. Meanwhile, one of the bandits disappeared with the truck into the traffic of Paris.

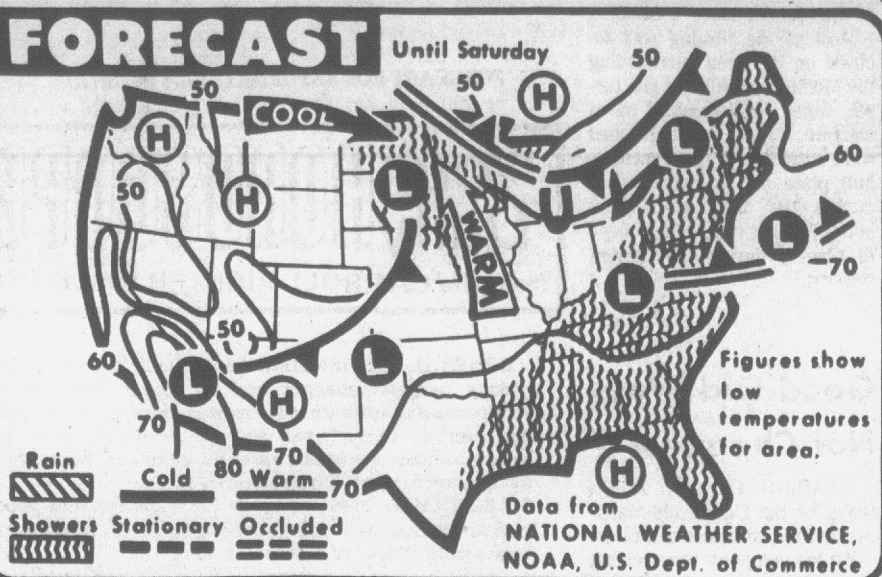

"They didn't hit me or molest me," said Trottin. "They were relaxed, whistling in the car as they drove out to the outskirts of town. They seemed to know exactly where they were going."

A special anti-gangster brigade today led police in a search of the greater Paris area, looking for a hideout big enough to hold the container while it was unloaded.

Police said the driver of the stalled truck was innocent of any complicity.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today from the Gulf coast to New England. Showers are also expected from the Dakotas to the upper Great Lakes. Cool weather is due in the northern states and warmer weather in the Midwest. Warm to hot weather is expected for most southern states. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Showers and thundershowers are expected to reach western North Carolina today, and rain is expected across the state during the weekend.

A stationary front from the south is likely to bring some wet relief to parched areas of western North Carolina today. That front is expected to meet up with a cold front from the north sometime Saturday, spreading the storm activity across the state, the National Weather Service said.

Temperatures will remain about the same, with weekend highs in the 80s and lows ranging from the upper 50s in the mountains to the mid 70s along the Outer Banks. On Monday, readings are again expected to climb into the 90s.

Despite the drought conditions across much of North Carolina, however, soil experts say the predicted rain may be a mixed blessing. They fear a heavy rain on the parched land may cause some flooding and soil run-off.

Frank H. Jeter, public information officer for the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said run-off can result when the ground is so hard-packed that water cannot be readily absorbed, so it cascades down hills and carries away soil.

Construction sites and other areas where ground is exposed with either dead vegetation or no vegetation at all are particularly vulnerable, he said.

The potential for flooding and soil run-off depends not on how much rain falls, but on how fast it falls, according to Albert Coffey, Charlotte soil conservationist.

"If we had a good slow rain-storm for 24 hours, the ground could take it," Coffey said.

The REALTOR'S Corner

Elegant And Luxurious Home

We are proud to have been selected as the Exclusive Agents for this most unusual offering.

No written word can adequately do justice to the elegance and spaciousness of this lovely home. It is certainly one of the largest and most luxurious homes we have ever seen in this part of the state.

Situated on a 3 acre wooded tract, with a lovely stream alongside, in a neighborhood restricted to a total of only five homes — each of similar size and quality and each on its own 3 acre tract — this is certainly a most prestigious home.

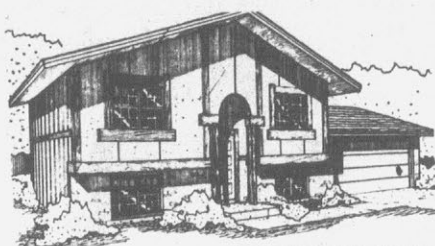

The home and grounds are ideally suited for a large family or those who have guests and wish to entertain in a beautiful and gracious setting.

We will be happy to discuss the details of both the site plans and dwelling plans, and to arrange for a private showing, with those who are interested, qualified, and can afford the very best.

NEED EXTRA ROOM? Then, you owe it to your family to see this spacious home. Charming exterior fits well into the wooded background with fenced in back yard. Wide concrete driveway leads to single garage that opens into family area. Entry foyer is very inviting with its new wallpaper and fresh paint! Living room with beautiful hardwood floors is away from the "hustle and bustle" area. Sunny dining room is on the back with double windows. 3 bedrooms on one end of house with 2 full baths and lots of closets. Large and private 4th room with 1/2 bath would make an ideal office, hobby room, play room for the kids, or 4th bedroom. Tremendous family room with custom fire screen. This home has all the features you would expect for gracious living including central air, storm windows, attractively decorated interior, etc. Call today for an appointment. It would be our pleasure to show you this home in Westhaven.

Message To Kremlin Is Risky In A Public Speech

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Bran Not Total Answer

I think I have a spastic colon. I have severe constipation, and gas. Can I benefit from eating a lot of bran and fiber? — Mrs. S. V., Ga.

Dear Mrs. V.: When you say you "think" you have a spastic colon, is that a diagnosis that has been made by a physician? Or is this a casual homemade diagnosis? A "spastic colon" is a very specific disorder of the intestinal tract. The diagnosis is made and confirmed by X-ray studies and by constant observation of the patient.

Now let's assume that you don't have it and will see your doctor to discuss any of the symptoms that you have. Cramps, lower abdominal pain, constipation, bloating, and gaseous distention are only a few of the complaints that might be caused by a spastic colon or a wide variety of other intestinal disorders.

You can readily understand that it takes a thorough study of the total patient before a diagnosis is made and specific forms of treatment are suggested.

And that takes us to the current enthusiasm for fiber and bran as the answer to all of man's intestinal ills. They are not the total answer.

High fiber diets, bran, and roughage increase the weight of the stool and cut down the time it takes to pass through the intestinal tract. There is value to this, yet this is still not the whole answer.

Before embarking on a diet overabundant in bran and fiber, patients should consult with their physicians so that the maximum benefits of such regimes will be individually assessed.

I want to add this thought. The cause of spastic colon is often unknown. Psychological reasons may be playing an important role. If this exists, bran, roughage, high fiber diet and drugs obviously cannot be the cure-all.

I've been told that I have a typical "mask of pregnancy." I wonder if this will disappear. — Mrs. J.W., Wy.

Dear Mrs. W.: Occasionally, a brownish discoloration appears on the cheeks of pregnant women. This odd blemish is known as "chloasma." It usually disappears a short time after the child is born. Many myths have arisen about the cause and meaning of this temporary condition.

It is suspected now that the hormone changes and imbalance that occur with pregnancy may be responsible for it.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Good health is a very special and prized possession. It must not be taken for granted.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When a president wants to send a message to the Kremlin via a public speech, there's always a danger that something will be lost in the translation into Russia's Cyrillic alphabet.

In the case of President Carter's public assessment last week of Soviet-American relations, the men of Moscow may be more puzzled than enlightened if they read translations of the official as-delivered text — the one that makes parenthetical references to "appliance."

If it was Carter's intention to be conciliatory, his applause lines came at awkward places for that purpose.

Debate over the President's precise aim began even before he faced the annual Southern Legislative Conference in Charleston, S.C., last Thursday.

In Thursday morning editions of the New York Times, "well-placed government sources" were quoted as saying Carter hoped the speech would create "a more positive atmosphere for dealing with Moscow." The report accurately forecast that his remarks would be "both flexible and firm."

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell soon thereafter acknowledge he had contacted the Times before publication of the account and volunteered the "flexible and firm" line lest the speech be previewed as more conciliatory than Carter intended.

Now that the speech has been delivered, anyone can study Carter's exact words and make an individual judgment on the degree of conciliation offered. The Kremlin surely is making just such an assessment.

In Powell's view, the President struck a neat balance between offers of flexibility and declarations of resolve. For every firm statement, in fact, Carter did offer one that presumably would meet with greater favor in Moscow.

Reviewing a text with the "applause" lines written in, however, would suggest that Carter's Charleston audience heard what it wanted to hear and sat on its hands the rest of the time. Moreover, it may not have responded to the message the President hoped would contribute to "a more positive atmosphere" in relations between the two nuclear superpowers.

True, Southern legislators and their families may not be typical of the American public as a whole. One must wonder, however, if the often-suspicious Kremlin won't be tempted to conclude that the applause underscored firmness and gave short shrift to flexibility. Here are some examples:

—Carter drew no audible response when he declared that "we are prepared to limit our own strategic programs" if the Soviets will agree to curbs on their large offensive missiles. However, there was prolonged applause, the first Carter elicited, when he said in the very next breath:

"But if an agreement cannot be reached, there should be no doubt that the United States can and will do what it must to protect its security and insure the adequacy of its strategic posture."

—Carter talked next about "some negative comments from the Soviet side" about arms limitation talks and American-Soviet relations in general. He drew no outward reaction when he added, "If these comments are based on a misconception about our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear." His next sentence, which brought the crowd off its hands, was:

"But if they are merely designed as propaganda to put pressure on us, let no one doubt that we will persevere."

—Reaction was nil as Carter assured the Soviets that his human rights campaign is not directed specifically at them nor designed to "bring back the cold war." But he was loudly applauded when he expressed confidence that "if we do not abandon the struggle, the cause of personal freedom and human dignity will be enhanced."

What message will the Kremlin choose to glean from all this? We know what Carter's audience found pleasing. Is it possible the President satisfied both Southern legislators and Leonid Brezhnev?
