Earthquake Fault Could Keep Nuclear Plant Idle

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — At the foot of a gentle bluff on the central California coast stands a nuclear power plant that splits no atoms and generates controversy, not electricity.

Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant looks like any of the nation's 66 operational power plants — a huge monolith of concrete and steel, wires, dials and rotors. But Diablo is different — an earthquake fault lies on the ocean floor just three miles from the plant.

And that is the ace in the hole for fervent antinuclear protesters who hope to garner publicity and make Diablo a testing ground for the whole issue of nuclear power.

The Hosgri fault, named after two oil company geologists who discovered it, was found after construction on the twin reactors in Diablo Canyon was well under way. Pacific Gas and Electric Co., the private, San Francisco-based utility that owns Diablo, says its plant can hold up under any quake the fault can produce.

Others, including the U.S. Geological Survey, disagree. The USGS said that although Diablo was built to withstand a quake registering 6.75 on the Richter scale, it is not strong enough to take what the Hosgri fault might produce, a 7.50 quake.

The Diablo plant stands idle while the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) considers whether to license it.

The NRC has never refused any power plant a license, but the Diablo case is a sticky one. Here is a billion-dollar atom-splitting tool, a plant that could generate as much electricity as all of PG&E's hydro-electric plants together, standing on a fault that could cause an earthquake that might shatter Diablo's foundations.

The local protesters are a hybrid group, steeped in the antiwar movement and using civil disobedience as their weapon.

They gained heart recently from a huge demonstration against a nuclear power plant in Seabrook, N.H. About 2,000 longhairs, nursing mothers, grandmotherly Quakers and revitalized antiwar radicals converged on the proposed site and sat there for 24 hours, prepared to go to jail.

Police arrested 1,414. The news media jumped on the story, and the Clamshell Alliance, which led the protest, had captured what demonstrators hungrily feed upon — national exposure.

Inspired by the Clamshell Alliance, California protesters formed the Abalone Alliance and picked Aug. 6-7, Hiroshima Day weekend, for their action. Clamshell also has a demonstration planned for that weekend.

"We will have about 50 hardcore occupiers (those willing to cross on to PG&E property and go to jail)," said Bob Wolf, of People Generating Energy, one of the groups comprising Abalone Alliance. With Daniel Ellsberg as a featured speaker, the protesters predict 1,000 supporters will show up.

"They are not going to be allowed in. If they do get in, we'll have to have them arrested. They'd be trespassing," said Dick Davin, a spokesman for PG&E.

Carter Energy Bills Going Before House

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan is going before the House of Representatives with most of its major provisions intact, despite three months of preliminary legislative skirmishing.

While major tests remain for the proposals in the Senate, chances appear good that the President's program will survive unscathed during four days of debate and voting in the House this week.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said 90 per cent of the President's plan, first revealed last April 20, has won approval from various House committees.

O'Neill has scheduled a full day of debate for today, with three days of votes on various aspects of the program to follow.

Last week, the House voted 238 to 149 to limit voting to 30 specific amendments to the energy plan, plus a comprehensive set of proposals offered by the Republican party. The GOP plan is to be considered in one piece.

The principal battle over the plan is expected to focus on whether to deregulate the price of natural gas or set a $1.75 ceiling, as urged by Carter, for each thousand cubic feet of gas.

House members from oil and gas producing states had hoped for wide latitude in urging variations on deregulation. Instead, they will be limited to proposing full deregulation of gas prices in a form previously defeated in the House Commerce Committee.

Also expected to be hotly debated is a four cent increase in federal gasoline excise taxes, which was approved by the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee. The proceeds from the added tax would go in part to mass transit projects.

Another version to be voted on would increase the present four cent tax by five cents with half the proceeds going to mass transit and the rest to the states for upgrading highways other than those in the Interstate system.

A third proposal that will be subjected to discussion during the floor debate would kill any increase in the gasoline tax that is aimed at reducing fuel consumption and encouraging Americans to drive less.

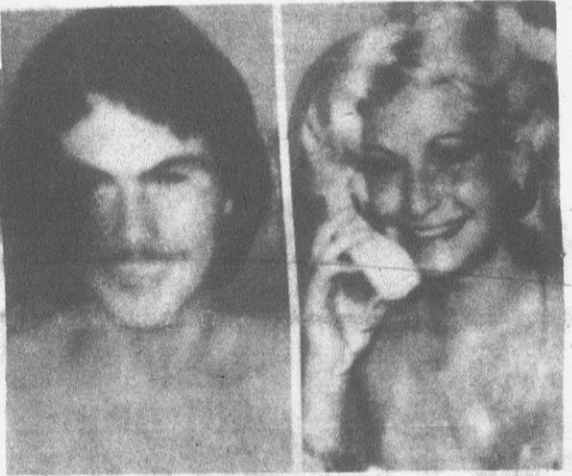

In the Senate, one portion of the President's energy plan — coal conversion — has been approved by a committee and could reach the floor this week. Meanwhile, natural gas deregulation will be voted on by the Senate Energy Committee, where the fight is expected to be as lively as it has been in the House.

On other issues, the Senate has been slowed by a Republican-led filibuster against a bill to subsidize Senate election campaigns. Democratic leaders planned another attempt today to limit debate on the issue.

A House-Senate clean air conference committee met for three days last week, but was unable to reach agreement on major revisions to federal clean air rules.

The auto industry, which says it cannot meet standards currently in the law, is threatening to shut down unless Congress takes some action so the conferees scheduled night sessions for tonight and Tuesday.

New Setback Rules Voted

Pitt County Commissioners, scheduled to open bids for a closed circuit television system for the jail and a crime laboratory this morning, postponed the opening of the proposals until legal questions could be resolved.

Only one bid was received on the mobile lab vehicle and the requests for bids will have to be re-advertised under law, while the question of a prisoner's right to privacy postponed the opening of bids for the closed circuit television and security alarm system.

The board this morning did approve the final plan for the Eastberry subdivision (formerly Birdneck) off N.C. 43 South of Greenville, and established minimum setback standards for buildings in the county on recommendation of the County Planning Board.

Commissioners approved a 40-foot setback from the right-of-way on any state-maintained highway now in existence, with a 30-foot setback for new buildings on other new streets.

Side and back setbacks were set at eight feet, thus giving a minimum of 16 feet between new structures in the county.

Pitt Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson told commissioners this morning that the medical facility's "cash position is less than ideal," because the average number of patients in the new facility has been too low to generate sufficient income to meet operating costs.

Richardson said arrangements have been made for a temporary loan of $450,000 using accounts receivable as security, "to help us over this hurdle."

Richardson noted that the local hospital leads "the state as far as turnover of patients' is concerned, aiding the patients, but making it more difficult as far as maintaining a high patient census is concerned.

Action Taken On Bids

Action was taken by the Redevelopment Commission this morning on two items involving disposal parcels in the Central Business District and Southside projects.

Commissioners, meeting in a special session, voted to accept the bid of Zack Reddick Jr. for Disposal Parcel D-4, located on Perkins Street between Harris and Griffin Streets. Reddick was also approved as a developer for the parcel, which includes a residential structure.

Kirby Boyd, real estate officer, said that Reddick submitted a bid of $3,225 for the disposal parcel, which contains some 15,000 square feet. Bid opening was held on July 18 with Reddick offering the only proposal on the property.

Acceptance of the bid will be recommended to the City Council.

The board members also voted to qualify Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. as a bidder on Disposal Parcel S7-A at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Reade Circle. Wachovia qualified as a bidder as trustee for the property under the will of S. T. White and others.

The parcel would give Western Auto Store on Dickinson Avenue access on Reade Circle. Boyd noted that the tract contains 6,300 square feet.

NEW YORK (AP) — The killer who calls himself "Son of Sam" marked his first year of terror by pumping slugs into his 12th and 13th victims as they sat in a parked car watching the full moon over New York harbor. One of his victims was near death today.

He struck in Brooklyn, turf untouched in previous forays into Queens and the Bronx and unguarded by the beefed-up police patrols in those boroughs.

Stacy Moskowitz and Robert Violante, both 20-year-old Brooklynites, spent their first date Saturday night seeing a movie, dancing at a popular neighborhood discotheque and walking hand-in-hand in the moonlight.

The date ended Sunday morning with the pair in critical condition at Kings County Hospital, both shot in the head.

Hospital officials said today they were "very pessimistic" that Miss Moskowitz would survive. She was grazed by one shot, but severely wounded by a second that slammed into the base of her skull, shattered bone and lodged in her neck.

She underwent eight hours of surgery Sunday morning and, late Sunday evening, was returned to the operating room for an additional 30 minutes to drain fluid from her nasal cavity.

Her brain continued to swell today, and Ira Clark, assistant hospital administrator, said, "Everything known to neurosurgeons has been done in an attempt to save her."

Violante's condition was improved today. Clark said he was "alert, lucid, stable and talking," and had spent some time with his parents this morning.

The bullet which struck Violante entered the left temple, "completely shattered" the left eye and exited above the right eyebrow. His left eye was removed and Clark said that while the right eye could distinguish lightness from dark, it would be some time before doctors knew how much — if any — sight he would retain.

Police reported they were swamped with calls today regarding the case. "Everybody knows the killer," a police spokesman said.

Police said several prime suspects had been under surveillance this weekend but that all were accounted for when the Brooklyn shooting occurred.

"It's like looking for a needle in a haystack," a police official said, "except when you look through a haystack, you know what the needle looks like."

Relief Programs

Several federal programs may be applicable to Pitt County farmers through the Federal Interagency Drought Coordinating Committee, according to county manager Reginald Gray and Charles Gaskins, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners.

Emergency loans to farmers to cover prospective losses will be available from the Farmers Home Administration and Department of Agriculture. For information, contact the FmHA county office or the Administrator of FmHA, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., (202) 447-7976.

Several community program loans for small communities with diminishing water supplies will also be available. The Small Business Administration will also offer Economic Injury Disaster Loans to small businesses.

Record Fires In Alaska Charring 1,300 Sq. Miles

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Racing across a landscape dried to a crackle by record high temperatures, Alaska's worst fires in eight years are forcing fire fighters to fall back to protect threatened native villages.

The federal Bureau of Land Management said Sunday that 68 separate fires had charred an estimated 830,000 acres — about 1,300 square miles. One blaze had burned 300,000 acres about 100 miles northeast of Nome, while an 80,000-acre fire threatened the village of Shungnak 300 miles west of Fairbanks.

Temperatures in interior Alaska — where highs normally are in the mid 60s — reached as high as 90 degrees. The same heat which fed the northern fires melted snow caps and glaciers south of here and pushed the Kenai River over its banks. Minor flooding was expected to last through Tuesday. Smoke from the fires was reported from as far away as eastern Siberia. It hung thickly over the landscape, and the National Weather Service said in some areas it was impossible to fly without instruments, even in the daytime.

BLM District Manager Richard LeDosquet said his fire crews were abandoning fires which threatened only tundra.

At Shungnak, flames had reached to within six miles of the village. The BLM said an evacuation plan was prepared for its 140 residents.

Nine other villages, a major mining area and a trans-Alaska pipeline construction camp also were reported threatened by fire — though the pipeline itself was in no danger.

The agency said it had more than 600 fire fighters in the field and hundreds of others in staging areas awaiting transport to the battle areas.

YIELD?

I saw the Greenville Rescue truck going down Fifth Street Friday, red lights blinking, sirens sounding. I had the red light on an intersecting street. Nevertheless the driver slowed as he approached that intersection. He had the green light, but I'm sure he had in mind the accident of a week or so ago. I followed him on out W. Fifth Street and what amazed me was that not one car in front of him pulled over to let him pass. Isn't it against the law not to yield in whatever way possible to an emergency vehicle obviously on an emergency mission? If not, I think human decency still demands it. F. S.

Sgt. T. M. Martin of the N. C. Highway Patrol Office here said you are right, that it does violate North Carolina law not to yield in whatever way is necessary to an emergency vehicle.

Sec. Vance Brings Middle East Suggestions

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is carrying undisclosed U.S. "suggestions" for setting up Middle East peace talks as well as for promoting a settlement as he begins a series of talks with Arab and Israeli leaders.

Guarded about prospects for success, he already is planning further talks with Arab and Israeli foreign ministers next month in New York.

Additionally, congressional sources say the Carter administration has not ruled out yet another Vance tour of the region.

Vance departed Washington late Sunday night, saying he hoped to "lay the necessary framework for a Geneva conference." He was to arrive in Egypt early today.

The principal hurdles to reconvening the Geneva peace conference are the question of Palestinian representation at such talks and the future of the Israeli-held West Bank of the Jordan River.

Vance reportedly will explore with the Arab leaders an Israeli proposal for temporary trusteeship until a plebiscite is held on the territory's future.

And he will take up Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's call for direct talks between Israel and its Arab neighbors on permanent borders and a peace treaty — but with still-secret U.S. revisions.

On Palestine, there appears to be little ground for a compromise.

However, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, with whom Vance will meet first as he begins his 11-day trip, has floated the idea of including Palestinians in a Jordanian delegation to Geneva.

Begin, while ruling out any negotiating role for the Palestine Liberation Organization, has said Israel does not intend to "check the credentials" of members of that delegation.

After seeing Sadat in the historic city of Alexandria, Vance will fly to Beirut on Wednesday to discuss with Lebanese leaders a U.S.

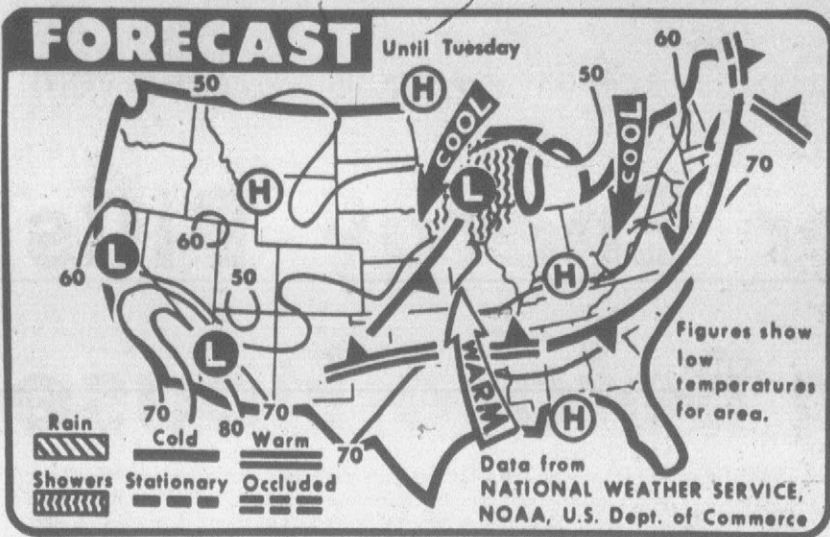

proposal for stationing U.N. observers near the Israeli border.

Crediting Begin with "a positive attitude" toward the idea, Vance said last week: "It is pretty important to find ways of increasing stability in southern Lebanon" and preserving order there.

Palestinian and Christian forces have clashed in the area, which Israel wants to remain close of guerrillas.

Vance will follow his stop in Lebanon with visits to Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Israel. He also will confer in London on the continuing — but so far unsuccessful — joint effort with Britain to bring about black control over Rhodesia.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cooler air is forecast today to bring seasonably mild temperatures from the northern Plains to the Ohio Valley but most of the country will be warm to hot. Showers are due for part of the Midwest and upper Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A cold front moving into the North Carolina mountains this morning held a chance of rain in the form of a squall line expected to be activated by this afternoon across the Piedmont.

Some much needed rain was expected to be produced by the squalls as they passed on to the coast, but there also was the possibility that some of the thunderstorms could be severe, with heavy downpours and gusty winds accompanied by some hail.

Isolated thunderstorms developed in the hot and humid air around the state Sunday and one storm dropped two and a half inches of rain at Pope Air Force Basenear Fayetteville.

Some locally heavy rain was noted in the Washington area of Beaufort County and at Jacksonville in Onslow County, while a few stray showers occurred in Piedmont and mountain areas.

A high of 95 degrees was recorded Sunday at Raleigh, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Charlotte while elsewhere, Greensboro had 92, Wilmington 90 and Asheville 88.

At the Raleigh-Durham Airport, Sunday was the 24th day of a reading of 90 degrees or hotter for any July on record, breaking a 23-day mark set in 1953, and Charlotte recorded its second hottest and driest July on record.

Temperatures were expected to be in the 80s to mid 90s again today. Highs Tuesday are expected to be mostly in the 80s with some 70s in the mountains.

Community Ambassador In Italy

PISTOIA, ITALY — Greenville's 1977 Community Ambassador, Rose High Student, Cynthia Browning, is at her "home stay" point near this Tuscan hill town a few miles northeast of Florence.

Browning, along with another American student, Pam, and her Italian guest family one with four children between the ages of 12 and 21. Despite the fact none of the Italians speak a word of English, everyone, according to Browning, is having a delightful time.

Pam and I live out in the country, 30 minutes by bus from Pistoia. Our community is called Santo Moro, and our house is inaccessible by car. From the road, we literally have to climb a mountain to get up here (from the bus stop on the road to Pistoia). Browning expresses fascination that the family members grow most of their own food "and they even make their own olive oil. Our family buys very little at the grocery store — wine, sugar, coffee and cookies, but that's about all."

The house, she notes, "is really pretty, and was built by our "father," who is a mason."

The Italian children are Franco, 21; Anna, 20; Rosella, 14; and Danella, 12. "They are constantly competing for our attention. Everyone works except Danella, because the family really needs the money."

"Much to my surprise," Browning writes, "none of the Americans are living with very religious families. I was expecting everyone to be devoutly Catholic here, but many of the "families," including my own, are communist. The Italian political situation is probably the most common topic for heated discussions here."

July 15th was Browning's birthday and the family gave her a surprise birthday party. "I couldn't believe it," she notes, "and the television and radio reporters from the local area were all there. I was really touched by their thoughtfulness."

On the matter of the language, Browning says "it's really been hard here at times because of the language barrier, but I am convinced by all the love and understanding my family has shown me that such a communication gap is not really important. If I left America with any fears, doubts or prejudices, they are all behind me now."

Investigator Says Texas Vote Fraud Case Finally Confirmed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A former Texas election judge's claim that he took part in fixing a 1948 U.S. Senate election that launched Lyndon B. Johnson on the path to the presidency "has finally confirmed what we knew all along," says an attorney who helped investigate the allegations 29 years ago.

Former Jim Wells County election judge Luis Salas told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview published in Sunday newspapers that he had knowingly certified 200 fraudulent votes for Johnson in the 1948 Texas Democratic primary runoff. Johnson won the election by 87 votes.

"Luis Salas has finally confirmed what we knew all along," said San Antonio attorney T. Kellis Dibrell. "But we had some clues at the time there was going to be election cheating by the Johnson forces. We would have given anything to have (had) this information 29 years ago."

Dibrell, a former FBI agent, was a campaign supporter of Coke Stevenson, the three-time Texas governor who faced Johnson in the Aug. 28, 1948 election.

Salas, 76, said his orders to certify the bogus ballots in Box 13 came from South Texas political kingpin George Parr during a meeting in Alice attended by Johnson. Parr committed suicide in 1975.

Dibrell, who said he always believed Johnson knew the votes were going to be changed, said Stevenson asked him to help in an investigation into the allegations.

"I had spent the last few months of a seven-year FBI career in Laredo and I had some idea of political problems in South Texas at that time," Dibrell said. "One of the Stevenson supporters called us from the Panhandle and said a person from the LBJ office had erroneously phoned him. He said the LBJ office thought he was a Johnson man and asked him if he would alter some election returns if necessary."

"That gave Coke a pretty good clue of what was about to happen," Dibrell said. "This call to alter the votes came about 24 hours after the election. Coke told me if there was going to be any heavy vote altering it would be in South Texas."

Dibrell said he went to Alice to question Salas but that the election judge had gone to Mexico.

The matter eventually went to court and at a hearing Salas testified the election was on the "level." He now admits he lied.

Later, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black voided a temporary injunction against putting Johnson's name on the November general election ballot, and the federal investigation was ended.

Neighbors Annoyed By Energy Inventor

By NANCY SHULINS Associated Press Writer WEST TOPSHAM, Vt. (AP) — When a 107-foot tower appeared in Charlie Hall's backyard here, neighbors politely pretended not to notice.

They couldn't help but notice six others that Hall put up to power a solar oven that bakes bread, and a solar heater that in one afternoon boosted the water temperature in his swimming pool 17 degrees. He also has a hydroelectric dam that lights his home.

Annoyed neighbors, who Hall circumvented by getting the zoning ordinance changed to permit his wind and solar towers, were among the obstacles the strapping, black-haired Vermont native overcame in his five-year metamorphosis from

Playday Week Begins Tuesday

Neighborhood Playday week, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, gets underway tomorrow, Tuesday, August 2.

Playdays will be held Tuesday at West Greenville Center; on Wednesday at Elm Street; and Thursday at South Greenville Center.

Activities will include apple bobbing, pie eating, arts and crafts, horse shoes, trampolines, ping pong and other games.

Programs begin at 6:30 p.m. and continue until dark.

Plans for next week include a dog show. For further information on this and other plans, call the office at 752-4137, extension 220.

Tax Notices Go Into The Mail

City tax notices for 1977 were mailed to Greenville residents today, it was announced by City Tax Collector Floyd Little.

Total tax levy for 1976 amounted to $283,814,162, he reported, compared to this year's levy of $307,353,942.

Tax rate for the city this year was set by the City Council at 64 cents per $100 valuation, Little pointed out.

He noted that city taxes are due Sept. 1, with prepayments made during the month of August receiving a two per cent discount.

Privilege licenses that have not been renewed will be levied to a five per cent penalty, Little said, effective today.

Driver Charged On 2 Counts

James Alvin Stancil, 18 of Route 4, Greenville, was charged with possession of marijuana and driving under the influence, following a 2:05 a.m. incident here Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police stopped a car driven by Stancil on Charles Street and charged the young man with driving under the influence. He said officers then found a small amount of marijuana in the car and charged Stancil with possession.

Recruiters Earn Awards

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At least 150 North Carolinians have been conned out of an estimated $1 million during the past three years by perpetrators of fraudulent business schemes, according to the North Carolina Attorney General's office.

But such deceptive get-rich schemes may have a difficult time thriving in North Carolina after Oct. 1, when a tough new "business opportunities" law passed by the 1977 General Assembly takes effect.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, whose office drafted the law, said it is believed to be the first in the country.

Under the law, firms that make claims of profits or refunds must put up a $50,000 bond and must disclose to prospective customers, before any contracts are signed, the names of the owners, as well as the number of purchasers of the product who received the profits claimed.

Edmisten predicted shady businesses won't even try to comply. "I think the practical effect of this law is to keep these people out of North Carolina," he said.

The business-opportunities law is aimed at schemes that prey on people seeking part-time or at-home enterprises. The ads appear in newspaper classified sections and imply big money with little effort.

Typically they read like this: "Vending routes. Locations secured. Investments of $1,000 to $10,000." Or "Own your own business. Earn $3,000 yearly raising chinchillas."

Alan Hirsch, an assistant attorney general who helped work up the law, said, "Typically, once money is paid, the buyer gets nothing in return for his money," he said.

Hirsch said evidence indicates such schemes are highly profitable. "They make loads of money," he said, explaining the only major expenses are salesmen's commissions or merchandise.

Present Film On ECKANKAR

A color film and introductory discussion on ECKANKAR will be presented in the civic room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Office on Greenville Boulevard Sunday at 8 p.m.

The film deals with the history of ECKANKAR and the earlier ECK masters. It features talks by Paul Twitchell and ECK master Sri Darwin Gross.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

ROBERSONVILLE — Miss Kimberly Johnson Perry and Ricky Keel Brown were united in marriage Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in the First Christian Church here. Performing the double ring ceremony was Dr. William Donald Weaver.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Elbert Perry of Robersonville, the bride is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute in mental health. Presently employed by Branch Banking and Trust Co., Wilson, the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, C. H., with a B. S. in business administration. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnson Brown of Robersonville.

Craig Everett, organist, accompanied Doug Lane, soloist. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of organza fashioned with a full length flared skirt that continued into a chapel length train. Outlined in scalloped Venise lace, the Queen Anne collar, Camelot sleeves and V-neckline enhanced the fitted Venise lace bodice. Scalloped Venise lace also bordered the hemline of the gown. Attached to a Venise lace profile headpiece, her fingertip mantilla blusher was of illusion trimmed with scalloped Venise lace.

Maid of honor for the ceremony was Miss Darlene Knox of Robersonville. Miss Nancy Johnson of Greenville, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Laura Levi of Boone were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Lynne Perry of Robersonville, sister of the bride.

The attendants' gowns were of maize dotted voile over maize taffeta designed with an open square neckline outlined by a ruffle of white cluny lace and striped maize voile. The empire waist featured a ruffled capelet sleeves and was encircled at the waistline with white grosgrain ribbon. The modified A-line skirt of dotted voile was accented by a ruffle of striped voile and cluny lace at the hem. They carried arm bouquets of white marquerite daisies.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride selected a mint green chiffon gown and white cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Brown wore a sky blue chiffon gown and white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Arthur Johnson, was remembered with a corsage of yellow marquerite daisies. Mrs. Dallas Keel, grandmother of the bridegroom, was honored with a white marquerite daisy corsage.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers included Jim Perry, brother of the bride, Edward Grimes, cousin of the bridegroom, Tim Roberson and Summy Mobley, all of Robersonville, and Leon Wilson of Wilson.

A reception at the Robersonville Country Club was held immediately following the ceremony. For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride wore a white polyester dress trimmed in red. The dress was accented by a white cymbidium orchid which was her mother's corsage.

Following the wedding trip, the couple's new residence will be in Wilson.

All-Woman Team Prepares Cars

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Every day is Ladies Day down on the docks of this bustling Florida seaport, where 139 women jockey thousands of just-off-the-ship new cars and trucks back and forth around the half-mile-square area that stretches along the St. John River.

Their job at this port of entry is to carry out the installation work order taped to the windshield of every car in the 3,000-car shipments.

Radio, air conditioner and stripe for one, air conditioner and vinyl top for another, carpet saver for the four-door, and so on, for 2,997 more.

All are routinely washed, undercoated and glazed before they are parked in a designated row to be picked up and trucked to Toyota dealers.

The crew's supervisor, Pauline Swaim, says the women are a lot better at the tough, technical and physically demanding job than the college kids used in the work up until seven years ago.

"First thing the guys wanted to do was let 'em rip — see how fast they could go. The result: collisions — one after another," she says. "But the ladies are real nice with the cars. They pamper and coddle them and their work is always neat and precise. You should see the tape stripping job they do on the cars."

What is popularly known as

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Monday, August 1, 1977—3 and make many friends," she says.

She is up at 5 a.m. to fix lunch for her husband and two small children. Before work she drops the kids off at a nursery and collects them on the way home.

As soon as the conveyor belt moves her vehicle out of the wash cycle, Nancy darts in and beeps off to park it in the radio line. There the radio team takes over.

The head of the team, Liz Davis, is a statuesque, red-haired woman with carefully varnished nails and the current Vogue on the top of her tool tray. She left a job as an assistant fashion buyer to join the "ladies." At the age of 7 she was taking apart radios and air conditioners and putting them together again.

"I came by it naturally," she says. "My father's an electrical engineer and I guess I just reverted. Couldn't stand being caged indoors and never seeing daylight."

Because of the mechanical skills required in their work, Liz and the four assistants she trained are the elite — highest paid — of the women.

Shirley Jackson almost didn't make it. Her first day on the job she narrowly missed running over the supervisor.

Minutes later they fan out in teams — married, widowed and divorced women; deserted wives, new brides, grandmothers and teen-agers; former telephone operators, factory workers, waitresses, seamstresses, saleswomen and housewives; pigtailed, upswep, bandannaed, denimed, smocked, sneakered and moccasinated, they're ready to start.

First into the cars stretched in neat rows as far as the eye can see is the wash team. "Eight of them get 1,500 cars a day through the car wash," their supervisor boasts.

Philippine-born Nancy Berchelt, 4-foot-11, who weighs less than 100 pounds, has been on the wash team for five years, and also does undercoating and glazing. "I love it

Teen Urges Parents To End Prejudices

DEAR ABBY: I love my parents, but they have their faults, and the one that bothers me most is their prejudice against their people of other races and religions. They have tried their best to make me believe as they do, but I am happy to say they have not succeeded.

I know that children are supposed to honor their mothers and fathers, and I honor mine in most ways, but not in all. We've had some very heated arguments over this subject but I am only 14½ and I know they will never change, so now I just keep my cool.

I am writing to you, Dear Abby, because some of the stuff in your column has helped to open up my eyes.

Please keep stressing the importance of doing away with bigotry and prejudice.

I believe that we are all brothers in the family of man, and we could love each other if the children all over the world would refuse to accept the prejudices of their parents and society.

If this letter is good enough for your column, please sign me.

JIMMY

DEAR JIMMY: It is. And it's young people like you who give me hope for the future. Thank you for a beautiful letter.

I think you will appreciate the following philosophy which supports your view, and came to me unsigned. I hope that someone out there will identify its author:

"First they came for the Jews,
And I did not speak out
For I was not Jewish.

Then they came for the Catholics,
And I did not speak out
For I was not Catholic.

Then they came for the Gays,
And I did not speak out
For I was not Gay.

And then they came for me,
And there was nobody left
To speak out for anybody."

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed SPEAKING FOR TEENS was customary. As a native of Samoa may I set the record straight?

Premarital sex is NOT the custom in Samoa today. We are taught that the very best gift a Samoan girl can give to her husband is her virginity, and to lose it before marriage not only brings disgrace to her family, but automatically places the girl into the category of a prostitute. Thank you.

Single Processor Does Many Jobs

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Until the canister-type food processor was introduced in the United States, a home cook needed several appliances or a single motor base with several, and often bulky, attachments to perform varied tasks.

For instance, a blender for grinding nuts, coffee beans and chopping and pureeing, which in most cases need added liquid to work;

An ice crusher attachment for the blender base or a free-standing ice crusher;

A stand mixer with dough hook, or a separate utensil, to knead yeast doughs and other heavy mixtures;

A meat grinder attachment or free-standing grinder;

A shredding/slicing machine or attachment with assorted blades.

Multi-purpose kitchen systems from Oster, Kitchenaid, Starmix, Bosch, Braun and Ronson have been available for several years.

Braun and Moulinex Products, Inc., are introducing two new systems, including processor attachments, at the July Housewares Show in Chicago this week.

Moulinex's La Machine occupies less counter space than the smallest canister processor but more storage space for attachments. Adapted from a French product, La Machine requires considerable manual dexterity to assemble and take apart. The chopping bowl is easy to clean but has only 1 cup capacity. Liquids and semi-liquids seep through the blade hole if you remove the blade before the bowl. The blender attachment mixes batters but not pie crust or heavy dough.

The shredder-slicer can be used with the feed tube partly filled; most canister-types cannot. It grates and slices well but is less convenient to clean and food tends to scatter unless a deep bowl is used below the food chute. It has slicing/shredding discs for fine, medium and coarse textures and a disc for French fries and shaved ice. Suggested retail, about $100 for the basic system or about $120 with the one-speed blender container.

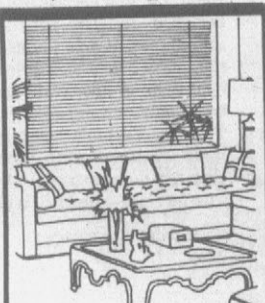

Braun's Multimix, suggested price about $100, consists of a three-speed blender and base. Optional attachments are a shredder-slicer, about $48, an all-purpose grinder for meat, vegetables and fruit, about $65, coffee-nut grinder, about $17, and citrus juicer, about $20. The juicer requires a shredder-slicer sub-base for $12. The optional attachments also fit the manufacturer's stand mixer-kitchen machine that will mix and knead yeast doughs.

HELP AT HAND

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warped straw placemats can be salvaged by scrubbing them thoroughly in hot water made sudsy with detergent or soap, says the Soap and Detergent Association. After rinsing, they should be blotted, between paper towels and weighted under heavy objects for a day, to dry as flat and manageable as new.

More Than An Inconvenience

Sooner or later the city and the State Department of Transportation are going to have to consider what to do about grade railroad crossings in our city.

If you have attempted to drive across town at midday you know there is danger of the way being blocked by long freight trains regardless of what direction you may be traveling in.

This is true because the Southern Railroad line runs directly through Greenville east-west and Seaboard Coastline traverses the city north-south.

For the motorists this means that virtually every intersection is blocked at times and traffic can back up for some distance.

This is more than an inconvenience. It could delay fire trucks in getting to a blaze, or it could mean that rescue trucks and ambulances might be blocked for critical periods.

Freight trains on both lines seem to be growing longer, which can't be helped.

What is needed, however, are overpasses on some of our main thoroughfares so that street routes will be opened.

Fortunately there are underpasses on Charles Boulevard and Dickinson Avenue which carry vehicular traffic under the Southern Railroad. On the other hand there are two crossings of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive by the Southern and one of Greenville Boulevard by the Seaboard Coastline. All three of these are grade crossings where traffic can be held up.

In addition it is not unusual for all streets leading to the west to be blocked by a train.

We should be studying ways to alleviate this situation now. Overpasses are probably the best approach and the city and the Department of Transportation should be studying ways to provide them.

Dubious Help In Drought Designation

Fifty-six North Carolina counties have been approved for drought relief funds. Pitt and Greene are among them.

The approval makes farmers in the affected areas eligible for low interest Farmers Home Administration loans and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service grants. Unfortunately the grant money is currently exhausted and Congress has been asked for an additional appropriation.

It is difficult to tell at this stage how helpful the drought designation will be to area farmers, but any assistance will be helpful.

THIS AFTERNOON 'Victims' Of Bureaucracy

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — People are being "bamboozled by an ever-growing bureaucracy" which draws on an arsenal of overkill with tricky words to extend control, a former state legislator and candidate for lieutenant governor believes.

We are victims, not beneficiaries, of the knowledge explosion, says Herbert Hyde, Swain County politician, attorney, and unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor in last year's Democratic primary. Speaking to members of the North Carolina Press Association at an Asheville convention, Hyde said newspaperers across the state—and consequently the public which the press seeks to inform—have "been bamboozled by an ever-growing bureaucracy. You have been inundated by the proliferation and the complexity of laws."

Paper Work
"You have been covered up by paper work. You have not kept pace. You have remained generalists in a world of experts." Experts, said Hyde, are needed to understand, interpret, and explain the exploding development of information in such complex areas as law, criminology, energy, environment.

"How many of you have even the basic tools to begin to understand the gobbledegook that is the life blood of autocratic, arbitrary and capricious bureaucratic government—the thing called 'officialese,' their official language," Hyde wondered.

People read of and understand when a public official embezzles a thousand dollars, Hyde said.

"But there can be little comparison in the magnitude of a public official who embezzles a thousand dollars and a governmental agency which, through weasel-worded, nonsense policies, robs millions of citizens of their fundamental rights... it happens all the time."

As examples, the mountain lawyer, Constitutional expert, gifted humorist and politician mentioned state laxity on dam inspections which killed four; tax dollars devoted to church schools and private colleges; tax money for political parties and candidates; public school courses required on private enterprise defined by law "as something which never was, and never will be."

BILL NOBLITT

No Control

"Have you ever really thought through what is wrong with Federal Revenue sharing? Have you considered it in this light; that the real genius in the American federation of States is that one state may try a bold, new scheme in government which may flail, but which, being isolated, won't contaminate or endanger the rest; that local initiative and local pride form the bedrock of representative democracy; that the privilege to spend should be coupled with the burden of earning... or, at least, of collecting... and that government should not be immune from such a rule."

In short, Hyde said, government spending is paid for by taxing and those who make the decisions should face the electorate. Yet Constitutional guarantees that voters can elect their leaders periodically are nullified when "the election of such officials finally becomes an empty gesture and when those elected become merely the agents of a purse-string government in Washington."

Noting that such comments are controversial and are in the political arena, Hyde urged newspapers to become more aggressive and active; overcoming timidity.

Noting recent national argument against the power and influence of the press, Hyde said he takes the opposite view.

"I want you to be more influential. I want you to be even more powerful... hire more experts... give them more time and latitude... show your courage... What good is freedom of the press if you don't use it? What good is freedom of speech if we don't speak when we know we should?" Hyde said.

Hospital Status A Symbol Law Is Ready To Use

WASHINGTON—Hospital rates are rising at such a phenomenal rate some experts predict it is conceivable that in 15 or 20 years a room at a good hospital will cost $700 a day.

If this is true, and it's hard to imagine that it isn't, going to a hospital will become a status symbol for the very rich only, just as owning a yacht and a stable of horses has been in the past.

Society editors will be assigned to cover hospitals, and this is how a society column might read in the future:

Mrs. William Vanderwhelp of Newport and Sag Point has checked into Doctors' Hospital before going to her winter home in Palm Beach wearing a Courreges hospital gown especially made for her. Mrs. Vanderwhelp said, "They may criticize me for going to the hospital but I think if you've got the money and the time, you might as well have the fun that goes with it."

At the same hospital was Reginald Winthrop Clover, heir to the Beanie Breakfast Cereal fortune, who had just had his appendix out. Asked what the operation cost, Reggie replied, "To paraphrase J. P. Morgan, if you have to ask what it costs to have an operation, you can't afford one."

Meanwhile, up at Rose Hill Hospital, Mary Lou Astorwood gave birth to a baby boy. Since it was their first child, the Astorwoods took a private room which cost them $10,000 for the week. The proud father, Clyde Astorwood, said, "The Astorwoods have always had their babies in hospitals, delivered by a doctor, and there is no reason for the press to make an issue over it. I think you should be able to spend your inheritance as you darn well please."

There is still a battle raging at the Maple Flower Hospital. It started when the board of directors decided to admit charity patients, who could only afford to pay $500 a day for a bed in the ward. Bart Clogswell, the oil trillionaire, said that by changing its admittance policies, Maple Flower was opening the floodgates to "riffraff," and the peace and harmony of the hospital would be endangered.

Ellen Maloney McMahan, another member of the board on the other side, said the ward patients would not be permitted to mingle with the other patients because the private and semiprivate rooms had been designated as the "clubhouse" and the wards had been designated as the "grandstands."

Liz White Whimple had a gallstone removed at the Lincoln Memorial Hospital Saturday. The operation was performed in the Palladium Room which had been decorated especially for the occasion. Peter Duchin and his orchestra played during postoperative recovery, while Meyer Davis, orchestra was hired to play for her after she got back to her room. Liz had special gowns designed for the surgeons and nurses. It was probably the most lavish gallstone operation of the year, and could only be compared with Truman Capote's tonsillectomy of last spring, when Truman rebuilt the operating room am-

RALEIGH (AP) — A tough anti-pornography law took effect today, and it probably won't be very long before it is used.

The law was introduced in this year's legislature by Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake. Critics called it blatantly unconstitutional and even after a major overhaul in a House judiciary committee there is some question about whether the law will pass constitutional muster.

Despite questions about whether the law would trample on the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press, there was a strong demand for its approval.

Some of those demanding approval of the Lake proposal could be excused for their ignorance. They were not schooled in the law and, it appeared, constitutional principles were beyond their understanding.

But, there were legislators, many of them lawyers, who were strong advocates of the proposal. Lake, for example, is an attorney.

Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, an attorney, headed the House Judiciary II Committee that labored long and hard to make the Lake bill constitutional. He has commented publicly that he doesn't believe pornography was ever intended to enjoy the benefits of free speech and free press.

Another advocate of the Lake bill was Durham Dist. Atty. Tony Brannon. The hefty red-haired DA appeared before Davenport's committee and begged for enactment of the proposal.

Brannon argued that his hands were tied, that he had been unable to deal with the spread of adult book stores and sex shops in Durham. But, Brannon admitted that he had not tried very hard to use existing law.

Bitter Sugar For Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Political schizophrenia has led two members of President Carter's cabinet to take one position in private and another in public on increasingly troublesome sugar policy, raising questions about the impact here of a single corporation: the Coca-Cola Co.

Atlanta-based Coca-Cola, which buys 10 per cent of all home-grown or imported sugar in the U.S., profits heavily from current low prices. It supports the administration's two-penny domestic grower subsidy, viewed as hopelessly inadequate by U.S. growers, so strongly that chairman Russell Long of the Senate Finance Committee calls it "a Coca-Cola program."

That claim carries special significance in Jimmy Carter's Washington. Coca-Cola gave the President his Attorney General (Griffin Bell, senior partner in Coca-Cola's Atlanta law firm) and his Deputy Secretary of Defense (Charles Duncan). Budget director Bert Lance as an Atlanta banker had strong business and social links with the Coca-Cola hierarchy.

Nobility is charging conflict-of-interest. But congressional opponents of the administration's sugar policy fear the Coca-Cola connection means Mr. Carter may not be getting the full story on sugar policy from his cabinet — a clear breakdown of "cabinet government." What gives their fears substance is a July 7 confidential memorandum to the President.

The memorandum was drafted by domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat and his deputy, Lynn Daft. While lamenting an unexpected further decline in sharply falling sugar prices, the memo nevertheless defended the administration's two-penny domestic subsidy. Growers view that as worthless against cheap sugar imports and want import restrictions instead. The Eizenstat-Daft memo warned the President against congressional efforts "to cripple the program or replace it with a more protectionist program."

"As a result of these congressional actions," the President was told, "we have met with (Agriculture Secretary) Bob Bergland, (trade negotiator) Bob Strauss and (Assistant Secretary of State) Julius Katz to reassess our options. This group has concluded that the policy you announced in early May (the two-penny grower subsidy followed by a still elusive international sugar agreement) remains the best option and that we should redouble our efforts to avoid any congressional action that would undermine its chances."

In his heart, however, Bergland's concept of a "best option" differed. Exactly six days later, testifying before a Senate Finance subcommittee, Bergland used language seemingly designed to tear the two-penny program to shreds. "Things are coming apart at the seams," he told the Senators. "We understand that...from our vantage point"

To the editor:

Re the letter from Insurance Commissioner John Ingram in your newspaper, I feel that political rhetoric is again being used to mislead the citizens of North Carolina.

The law passed by the General Assembly on private passenger automobile, homeowners and workers compensation insurance does not "allow rate hikes to go into effect before they are approved by your insurance commissioner..." It does, however, allow rate decreases or increases contested by the Commissioner to be implemented during judicial review, on appeal by the insurance companies or the Rating Bureau. This is a subtle, but distinct difference which the Commissioner chooses to ignore and which will not penalize insurance companies or consumers because of inaction or delays by the Dept. of Insurance.

The law still requires the filing of rate changes with the Commissioner for his review and approval. This has not changed. However, under the new law, he is required to act within 90 days...something he has not chosen to do in the past. His unwillingness to act was one of the reasons the General Assembly and the courts justified changes in the law.

The Commissioner charges that territorial rating will mean higher rates for citizens in some areas. That is true, but it also means that citizens in the rural and smaller metropolitan areas will no longer be subsidizing drivers in the areas with higher elements of risk...usually the larger metropolitan areas.

It is a fact that drivers in the Reinsurance Facility will pay separate rates under the new law. But it simply means that those not in the Facility—which is most N. C. drivers—will no longer be required to pay higher rates to subsidize those not paying their fair share.

It would be in the best interest of the people if the Commissioner would lay aside his rhetoric and join in making the new law work for the insurance consumers of N. C.

Says Employes Near-Rightless

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Once a U.S. citizen steps through the plant or office door at 9 a.m., he or she is nearly rightless until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday," writes David W. Ewing.

"The Constitution and Bill of Rights light up the sky over political campaigners, legislators, civic leaders, families, church people and artists," he says, and he might have included consumers too. "But not so over employes."

Ewing, a Harvardian — editor of the Harvard Business Review, faculty member of the Harvard Business School, graduate of Harvard Law School — has written one of the most interesting and provocative business books in years. "Freedom Inside the Organization," subtitled "Bringing Civil Liberties to the Workplace," is a seminal work that is likely to be looked back upon as the book that brought awareness of the "black hole" in American rights.

Whether it produces a movement similar to the civil rights or women's rights movements remains to be seen, but you may be sure that some people on reading the book will reflect on the inconsistency for the first time.

We seem to say, says Ewing, that "organizations have always been this way and always will have to be."

But that isn't so, as he points out. Court decisions in recent years have begun to delineate worker rights, and many forward looking, and very successful corporations have developed codes to protect workers.

From what? From having to resign if one gets into a dispute with an unfair boss, from being censured because one expresses his or her right to free speech, from being forced to condone unethical practices, from being — in government — more loyal to the public than to one's immediate boss.

But it isn't only what the employe is or must be protected from, Ewing continues. He must also be defended in what are his basic constitutional rights, no matter what the employer claims.

And so Ewing proposes a bill of rights for organization people, aimed at what he said in an interview is "the yawning gap in Americans' civil liberties." They include:

—Freedom to criticize a company's social and ethical policies.

—Freedom to object to an immoral or unethical directive.

—Freedom to engage in most types of after-hour activities.

—The right to privacy.

—The right to due process.

Ewing is no revolutionary. If he had to be categorized he would be included among the defenders of the system, albeit a system he sees as evolving from totalitarianism to democracy.

Although court decisions of late have tended to recognize the rights of employes, especially in government or government related work, some private and investor-owned companies had long before developed notable employe rights records.

Among those cited by Ewing for due process or privacy or free speech codes are International Business Machines, Polaroid, Xerox, Corning Glass, Donnelly Mirrors, American Airlines and Lincoln Electric.

Such companies, he observes, have remained (Continued on page 5)

HUMOR IN THE BIBLE?

Is there any humor in the Bible? Plenty of it. It is not apparent on the surface, but those who in their reading can reconstruct the scenes amid which many utterances were made, discern a subtle but very real humor in many Biblical passages.

Jesus probably often caused his listeners to laugh. There was no doubt a great deal of ill-concealed amusement in the crowds when he on a number of occasions silenced his opponents with his quick and overwhelming rejoinders. We can be sure that the teachers who was so beloved by children that they crowded about him when he entered a village was no long-faced person lacking in a sense of humor.

No artist has painted Jesus with a smiling countenance, but we can well believe that this popular dinner guest, this leader of young men, this favorite among children of his day, was a man of good cheer who knew how to laugh heartily.

Women Have a Place in Medicine

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our eldest daughter, now in college, definitely has a scientific bend. She is anxious to study medicine. We feel that she would do well, but we're not encouraging her too much because we wonder if medicine is still a man's world — Mr. and Mrs. E.C., Tenn.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. C.:

As a practicing physician, I must tell you that the joys inherent in being a doctor are enormous. I've often said to my family that if I had ten reincarnate lives I would want to do nothing more than be a physician.

Recently, I visited your state and was impressed by the number of women at both the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine and the Meharry Medical College. Dr. Lloyd C. Elam, president of Meharry, and Dr. Marc H. Hollender, Professor of Psychiatry at Vanderbilt, were most enthusiastic about the level of competence and the sense of responsibility of women students and physicians.

No, medicine is no longer a male-dominated discipline. The contributions made by women physicians from the turn of the century give sharp evidence that they have been, and are, a bulwark and support for the continued growth and maintenance of good health in America.

sonal gratification.

I'm 35 pounds overweight. Imagine my surprise when my doctor told me that I'm anemic! I eat like the proverbial horse. How could I be anemic? — Mrs. G.L.L., Calif.

Dear Mrs. L.:

It's a misconception to believe that anemia can't be present in people who are overweight. There's no necessary relationship between weight and the condition of the blood.

There are, of course, some types of anemia which are definitely related to inadequate nutrition. But there are also many different kinds of anemia which have no relationship to body nourishment.

I'm certain that your doctor will pursue, and find, the exact nature of your anemia and, if possible, remove the underlying cause.

The fact that you are confused should not keep you from tracking down the basis for your anemia and from adhering to the suggested treatment.

successful while encouraging their employees to express themselves, and protecting them when they did so. In fact, some of their success might even be attributed to doing so.

Forward looking companies became aware of the employe rights issues perhaps for no other reasons than they considered them correct and just and good management philosophy.

But in the late 1960s and early 1970s, said Ewing, he was increasingly asked questions that, distilled to their essence, might be expressed as "How do you react to an employer being unfair to an employee?"

Ewing thinks the questions began to arise in such numbers because the morality of companies might have become loose. And then there was Watergate, a moral issue involving the question of loyalty, and to whom, and at what price.

The Business Review conducted a company survey six years ago, resulting in a few angry and perhaps old-fashioned respondents calling Ewing a Socialist or Communist, and terming the survey the inspiration of labor unions.

Recognizing the need for a more definitive study, Ewing two years ago began intensive research, accumulating cases, anecdotes and views, resulting in the book, at least his 12th, to be published Aug. 15 by E. P. Dutton.

in the Department of Agriculture, we will never support a policy that will consciously or subconsciously allow the disintegration of the domestic sugar industry."

At that point, Sen. Long lashed out at the "Coca-Cola program" that was destroying Louisiana cane and Western beet growers.

Furthermore, Bergland's true sentiment about "the best option" makes twins of him and Bob Strauss. Testifying on July 20 to the House Banking Committee, Strauss declared:

"Secretary Bergland and I and the members of the Economic Policy Group (headed by Treasury Secretary Mike Blumenthal)...think it is proving to be wholly ineffective."

Strauss then made an even more dramatic departure from Eisenhower's memo. Asked whether he agreed with Comptroller General Elmer Staats' ruling that the two-penny subsidy is illegal, Strauss called the Comptroller General "dead right on that, and we have always been concerned that that was going to be where we end up...And it would not surprise me one bit if the Justice Department upheld it."

There would, however, be a problem there. Since Atty. Gen. Bell ran Coca-Cola's Atlanta law firm (King and Spalding, now headed by presidential intimate Charles Kirbo), an appeal by the administration to him from Staats' ruling would invite "conflict-of-interest problems. The appeal would go to Deputy Atty. Gen. Peter Flaherty.

Congress, however, may seize upon the administration's lamentable confusion and place sugar under a mandatory price support system with import restrictions. If so, the President may be spared immediate further agony over sugar that has resulted from disjointed "cabinet government": Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal fighting for free trade, Bergland angling for supports and quotas, Strauss battling for anything that works.

Consumers Sketch 1987 Life

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Smaller cars, faster planes and new types of television shows. Those are some of the things consumers expect for the United States 10 years from now, according to a new survey by a market research firm.

The company, R.H. Bruskin

Associates, interviewed 2,531 persons — 1,255 men and 1,276 women — in May and asked them what they thought life would be like in 1987 in terms of automobiles, television programs, clothing, air travel and sports.

Bruskin said the people interviewed represented a cross section of American households. Sidney Rowland, senior project director of the firm, said the people surveyed were not provided with suggested answers to check off. They could respond in any way they chose. He said the results would be distributed to company clients.

Rowland said many of the answers reflected current problems. People tended to reply in terms of today's issues rather than standing back and taking an abstract, visionary look at tomorrow.

Sex and violence, for example, figured frequently in answers to the question about television. "If you had asked the question five years ago, before all the stories about sex and violence, you probably would have gotten different replies," Rowland said.

Seventy per cent of those questioned said television would change over the next decade, but there was little agreement about what form the change would take.

Eleven per cent said shows would be better; an equal number said they would have less crime and violence. Nine per cent, however, predicted that TV programs would be worse and 7 per cent said they would be more violent than today's shows. Four per cent predicted more sex and pervasiveness; only 1 per cent foresaw less.

Here is a rundown of findings on other subjects:

AUTOMOBILES
Fifty-three per cent said cars would be smaller, but only 27 per cent expect the autos to be more economical to use.

"People are pretty skeptical," said Rowland. "They have come to expect inflation." Twenty-five per cent predicted that cars would use different fuels, with electricity the most-often mentioned alternative to gasoline, and 8 per cent said autos would be more expensive. Four per cent said 1987 cars would be fairly similar to 1977 models. Many people cited the energy crisis as the reason for smaller cars.

AIR TRAVEL
Just over two-thirds of those questioned predicted that air travel would change in the next 10 years. Thirty per cent said planes will go faster; 7 per cent predicted that supersonic carriers like the Concorde will be standard. Thirteen per cent of the respondents said more people will fly.

CLOTHING
Fifty-eight per cent predicted that clothing would change, but there was no consensus about what styles would emerge. Six per cent said clothing will be more expensive; 5 per cent predicted a greater use of synthetics. Three per cent of those questioned said people will wear little clothing and 2 per cent said people will wear nothing at all.

erate rally today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell more than 33 points last week, was up 5.81 at 895.88 at 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was quiet. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 4.01 million shares.

Analysts said the market's relatively steady showing on Thursday and Friday after the steep drop of the three previous sessions had encouraged some cautious buying today.

In particular, they noted some buying by traders nailing down profits on previous short sales.

General Motors helped lead the market higher, rising 1 to 6 1/2%. There was speculation about a possible dividend increase by the company following its report of better-than-expected second quarter earnings last week.

Reserve Oil & Gas led the active list, down 1/2% at 18 1/2% in a 497,400-share block trade.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .17 at 54.29.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .23 to 120.38.

Alerted To A 'Professional Patient'

GETS OUT OF JAIL FREE - Lee Bayrd, of Los Angeles, a television game show writer, makes a move en route to his victory Saturday night in the Los Angeles Regional Monopoly Championship. He is a former Monopol world champion and an expert working with the terms "Marvin Gardens", "Park Place", "Luxury Tax" and "Get Out of Jail Free". He'll now compete in the national championships this fall in New York City. (AP Wirephoto)

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - A man who the North Carolina Hospital Association calls "a professional patient" has succeeded in being admitted to at least seven hospitals in North Carolina and Virginia since May by feigning pains around his heart.

The man, whose name is being withheld pending possible action by three North Carolina hospitals, has left every hospital without paying for any of the drugs, attention or food he received.

To keep this professional patient and others out of hospitals, the state hospital association initiated an alert system among its 160 member institutions.

Donald Woodlin, public information director for the association, is coordinating the effort. He sent out a "possible patient alert" to all the hospitals in late June and another just before the Fourth of July on this "patient."

Meanwhile, the man moved from a hospital in the south-western part of the state, where he was first seen, through hospitals in the Piedmont and into the eastern part of the state.

By that time hospital officials were aware of his activities and he was having trouble getting admitted. He dropped from sight for a few days.

He spent those days in hospitals in Lynchburg, Va., and Danville, Va., but was soon back in North Carolina, seeking admission to four hospitals. He made it into Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem and Davie County Hospital in Mocksville.

Woodlin's third alert arrived at Baptist while the patient was in the hospital's coronary care unit. Administrative officials managed to get a picture of the man, but he sneaked out of the hospital before he could be presented with his bill.

But doctors are fairly confident that he's in a hospital somewhere, because his known admissions to hospitals have been almost back to back.

Woodlin said the professional patient's hospital hopping has been named the Munchausen Syndrome after the Baron Karl Freidrich Hieronymous Munchausen, an 18th century German who greatly exaggerated his exploits in a war with the Turks.

Munchausens usually come to hospital emergency rooms at night and on weekends and give long, drawn-out histories of illnesses that are considered life-threatening, according to Dr. Norman Mayer, a resident in emergency medicine at Baptist.

They'll complain of cardiac problems, abdominal problems, bleeding, and even stick a pin in their rectum or a stone in their urethra to cause bleeding, Mayer said.

Some Munchausens are known to be chronic drug addicts. Others desperately need to be the center of attention. Still others are believed to have a masochistic streak that makes them enjoy painful treatments for their imagined disease, said Mayer, who has done extensive research on the problem for an article.

Some may hold grudges against doctors and nurses, and still others are believed to be bunco artists seeking free room and board, he said.

Theorists and researchers contend that Munchausens are psychologically ill and in need of treatment. For that reason, Woodlin is more concerned about getting the man out of coronary care units and into an institution where he can get "longer term care, rehabilitation and psychiatric evaluations" than in trying to put him in jail.

Woodlin cited another man who has checked into 28 hospitals in Georgia, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Kentucky and West Virginia since 1974, submitting $34,000 worth of claims against one Blue Cross identification number.

Chapter Has New Office Strike Despite Contract Terms

The Coastal Plains Chapter of the National Foundation for the March of Dimes announced Friday the opening of a new chapter office at 215 Commerce Street, according to Hubert Oliphant, executive director.

As a newly formed merger, the chapter will serve Pitt, Lenoir, Beaufort, Hyde, Greene, Wilson, Tyrell, Wayne and Washington counties. The purpose of the new office is to coordinate and utilize voluntary and financial resources of the nine counties more effectively in preventing birth defects.

Oliphant said chapter officers extend an invitation to active volunteers, past volunteers or anyone interested in participating in the March of Dimes to visit the office whenever possible.

Also, he said, anyone may contact the Coastal Plains office for information about the programs and activities of the March of Dimes.

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) - Thousands of iron-ore workers defused a no-strike contract clause and walked off their jobs in northern Minnesota and Upper Michigan today, staging the first strike in the basic steel industry in 18 years.

The strike, if continued for very long, could seriously curtail steel production. Minnesota accounts for about two-thirds of the country's iron-ore production.

United Steelworkers spokesmen said members voted overwhelmingly to strike after last-minute negotiations between 21 union locals and 15 iron ore and steel firms failed late Sunday.

The steel industry said it would sue the locals for violation of the no-strike clause in the current contract. But that clause is operative only on national issues, and the strikers say they are disputing local matters, which is allowed.

U.S. Steel Corp. spokesman Andrew Starsky in Pittsburgh said the companies would ask damages totaling millions of dollars daily.

Linus Wampler of Lead, S.D., USW district director, met Sunday in Hurley, Wis., with other union officials. He said that the union received no new contract offer from the steel companies - "none whatsoever."

Wampler said there are about 1,250 unresolved issues between the workers and companies, involving topics from pay to safety standards.

Helms Flays Bureaucracy

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) - U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms R-N.C., has criticized the Washington bureaucracy for delays in getting federal relief to drought stricken farmers in North Carolina.

At a North Carolina Congressional Club dinner here Saturday night, Helms said immediate federal aid should be available to farmers affected by the lack of rain, which has destroyed much of this year's harvest in many areas.

Helms charged that "federal red tape" has delayed such assistance at a time when "we want to do everything possible to help farmers." He also condemned that attitudes of federal officials in general.

"It's a crowd that would legalize marijuana but ban saccharin," Helms said of the bureaucrats. "It's the kind of mentality that complains about the energy shortage, yet insists on continuing to waste millions of gallons of gasoline and millions of tax dollars for unwise and unworkable forced buying schemes."

Helms, who will run for a second term in 1978, told the crowd of 600 that he voted against a congressional pay raise because it was a "scheme" by members of Congress "to bail themselves out from the effects of inflation, leaving the taxpayers holding the bag."

Some Rainfall In Pitt On Sunday

Some much-needed rainfall and slightly cooler temperatures highlighted weekend weather in Greenville.

Rainfall Sunday was measured at 0.23 inches at the Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station. High temperature was 92 degrees and the low was 71. The Tar River measured 3.9 feet on the National Weather Service gauge.

No rain fell Saturday. The high was 93, the low 73 and the Tar River measured 4.0 feet.

Friday's high was 88 degrees. The low was 64 and the river stood at 3.4 feet. No rainfall was recorded.

Parsons Takes Close Look

NASCAR 500 Parsons Proves Team Is Serious

BY JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Benny Parsons wanted to prove something in winning Sunday's 500 Mile Grand National Stock Car race.

"I wanted to let everyone know that our team is to be taken seriously," Parsons said. "In the last race, at Nashville, we had a big lead. I came in for a pit stop, we got crossed up, and as a result I went out without the lug nuts on one wheel.

"Pretty soon the wheel fell off. It was pretty embarrassing.

"Since then, people have been laughing at us and giving us a hard time. We wanted to show them we're not the kind of team they saw at Nashville."

Parsons and his team showed everybody Sunday, having the best pit stops, leading the most laps, setting new speed records and holding off a desperate charge by Richard Petty for the victory.

Of his first superspeedway victory since the 1975 Daytona 500, Parsons said, "You're never quite sure you have Richard beat until you see that checkered flag. You never know if he has been saving something for the stretch run."

Petty had saved a little, he went from 2.2 seconds back with four laps to go to .45 seconds at the finish, but it wasn't quite enough.

Petty, who was spinning his tires dangerously through every corner in the final laps said, "It was like qualifying every lap."

"I knew I had to go hard, but not so hard that I would make a mistake," Parsons said.

Parsons avoided one mistake that somebody else made, a mistake that put Buddy Baker out of the race and knocked Bobby Allison and Cale Yarborough from contention.

They were all in the middle of a four-car pileup on the 122nd of 200 laps that broke up a lively battle for the lead.

Allison was able to hang on to fourth place, but Yarborough dropped to seventh and surrendered the season's Winston Cup point lead to Petty for the first time in 18 races this season.

Only four caution periods slowed the race, helping Parsons boast speed records at most of the 10-lap intervals. Parsons broke Petty's previous 500-mile record at the 2½-mile Pocono International Raceway by nearly 13 miles per hour: 128.379 m.p.h.

Parsons duelled with Petty and pole position starter Darrell Waltrip until each made his final pit stop just past the 400-mile mark.

Waltrip had a slow stop that forced him to settle for a distant third place, but Petty roared back more than a second ahead of Parsons. However Parsons, whose Chevrolet was clearly the faster car, chased him down and went into the lead to stay on the 169th lap.

Aase Goes Home Again; Hurls 3-Hit Angel Win

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Don't tell Don Aase you can't go home again.

The 22-year-old Boston rookie right-hander pitched his second complete game since being recalled from Pawtucket of the International League, blanking the California Angels 1-0 Sunday with a three-hitter.

It was a happy homecoming for the Anaheim native.

"I can't really explain the feeling I have today," said Aase, who grew up just a few miles from Anaheim Stadium. "I'd like to have been an Angel, but this feeling is just as good. It was my dream to pitch here."

Aase pitched the Red Sox back into first place in the American League East, striking out seven in outdueling Frank Tanana and Dave LaRoche. The victory, which came when Carlton Fisk singled home Jim Rice in the ninth inning, vaulted the Sox past Baltimore by one percentage point. The New York Yankees are just one game back in the tightest divisional race in the major leagues.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago and Kansas City split a doubleheader, the White Sox rallying twice for a 5-4, 10-inning victory in the first game and the Royals pounding out an 8-4 win in the nightcap, New York overwhelmed Oakland 9-2, Seattle defeated Baltimore 6-1, Toronto snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 4-1 decision over Milwaukee, Cleveland and Minnesota split a pair, the Indians taking the opener 9-2 and the Twins the nightcap 9-4, and Texas topped Detroit 3-2 in 10 innings.

White Sox 5-4, Royals 4-8
Chicago's Ralph Garr singled in the winning run in the 10th inning of the opener. Moments earlier, Chet Lemon's second home run of the game, a two-run shot, tied the contest.

Kansas City took the nightcap as Hal McRae drove in four runs. McRae, Amos Otis and George Brett each homered for the Royals and Dennis Leonard pitched a five-hitter. The victory salvaged the final game of the four-game series for Kansas City, which trails the surprising White Sox by ½ games in the AL West.

Yankees 9, A's 2
The Yankees kept pace in the East, with their three-game sweep of the A's in which they outscored Oakland 22-5. Cliff Johnson socked a three-run homer and Mickey Rivers also had three RBI to support Ed Figueroa's complete game. Figueroa, 10-7, beat Oakland ace Vida Blue, 10-12.

Mariners 6, Orioles 1
Seattle dropped Baltimore out of first place in the East behind Glenn Abbott's fifth straight victory. Abbott, 8-7, hurled a four-hitter, struck out six and retired the last 18 Orioles batters.

In winning Sunday's ballgame, the Mariners beat Baltimore ace Jim Palmer, 12-9. Leroy Stanton drove in three runs and belted a two-run homer for the Mariners.

Blue Jays 4, Brewers 1
Dave Lemanczyk, 9-9, retired the first 17 batters but needed relief help from Tom Murphy to tame Milwaukee. Lemanczyk surrendered just two hits and Murphy completed a four-hitter with 2-3 innings of solid relief.

Indians 9-4, Twins 2-9
Al Fitzmorris's first complete game of the season, a five-hitter, led the Indians to their first-game victory. Andre Thornton and Bruce Bochte had solo home runs and Duane Kuiper knocked in three runs with a two-run single and a sacrifice fly.

The nightcap was all Minnesota as Roy Smalley drove in three runs and Craig Kuskick added a pair of RBI. The Indians committed four errors in each contest, handing the Twins five unearned runs in the second game.

Rangers 3, Tigers 2
Mike Hargrove grounded a single to right field to score Tom Grieve with the winning run for Texas. The triumph was Texas' eighth in nine games and their 17th in their last 21 contests. The Rangers were 19-8 for July, their best record for the month since moving to Texas.

Ball Bounces Right For McGee

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On the drive to the golf course, Jerry McGee turned to his wife, Jill, and said:

"Honey, today the ball is gonna bounce right. It's bounced wrong so many times before, today it just gotta bounce right."

It did. McGee, under pressure from a late move by Australian Bob Shearer, dropped a couple of critical putts in the stretch and, with a two-under-par 69, scored a four-stroke victory Sunday in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

"This game of golf, it's a crazy thing," McGee said after claiming only his second title in 11 years of tour activity.

"I've played maybe 20 tournaments where I've been in contention, had a chance to win, and played better the last 18 holes than I did today, and I didn't win. I lost some and some were taken away from me.

"I've won only once. I really wonder how many nights I've laid awake wondering if I'd ever win again, if it was supposed to be that I'd never win another one.

"After a while it gets you in the guts, like somebody stabbing you."

He ended those doubts with a 272 total, 12 under par on the testing little 6,687 yard White-marsch Valley Country Club course and four in front of Shearer and New Zealand's John Lister. Shearer had a last-round 67, Lister 72.

The victory was worth $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 and boosted McGee's earnings to $104,000 for the year, the second consecutive season he's gone into six figures.

Bob Gilder, who had shared the third-round lead with McGee, had a wildly erratic 74 that included five birdies, six bogeys, a double bogey and only six pars. He finished fourth alone at 277.

The group at 278 and their final round scores were Grier Jones and Bob Murphy, 71s, Rod Curl 72 and Bill Rogers, 74.

U. S. Open champion Hubert Green had 73-280 and defending title-holder Tom Kite 72-281.

Victor's Swing

Jerry McGee of East Palestine, Ohio swings his fist over his head after sinking the final putt to win the Philadelphia Golf Classic at Whitmarsh, Pa. McGee finished four strokes ahead of the field with a 12-under-par score on the tourney's 72 holes for a winner's check of $40,000. (AP Wirephoto)

16-Year-Olds Are Eliminated

KINGS MOUNTAIN — Stanley County's Tucker and Smith teamed up for two runs yesterday to lead their team past Greenville 2-0 in the state 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth tournament and eliminate Greenville from further play.

The Greenville team lost two in a row following an opening win in the double elimination tournament. The team finished in fifth place.

Smith, besides driving in one of the game's two runs, was the leading hitter, the only batter with two hits, and was the winning pitcher. Mac Stokes was the loser for Greenville.

Stanley County scored its first run in the bottom of the first and then added the second in the fifth.

In the first inning, Tucker walked and was moved to third on a double by Smith. Thomas knocked him in with a single.

Tucker reached on an error in the fifth and then stole second. He scored on a base hit by Smith.

The Greenville team returned home today.

Luzinski Blasts Pace Phils' Victory

A Bull Blast

The scoreboard in the background tells the story as Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski heads home after blasting a home run Sunday during a National League game against San Francisco. Luzinski hit two blasts to give the Phillies a 4-3 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Greg Luzinski is one of those high-salaried players who demanded and got a multi-year contract. Now he's out to prove he's worth the reported $1.2 million he received from the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I know the fans felt that we (players) were greedy, getting paid too much money, that guys wouldn't go out and play their best," Luzinski said. "I'm determined to show people I'm worth every penny I'm getting."

The Philadelphia fans received another dividend from Luzinski's bat Sunday when he slammed his 25th and 26th home runs of the season—the latter a solo blast in the eighth inning to snap a tie and give the Phillies a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

"I got something to prove," said Luzinski, who has hit at a .409 clip with four doubles, nine home runs and 27 runs batted in in his last 18 games.

In other NL games Sunday, the New York Mets outlasted San Diego 10-9, Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh 8-3, Cincinnati stopped St. Louis 6-2, Los Angeles needed 10 innings to down Montreal 8-2 and Chicago clipped Houston 4-1.

Mets 10, Padres 9
Steve Henderson smashed a home run and drove in three runs while John Milner added two RBIs leading New York over an error-plagued San Diego.

The Padres committed six errors, including two by loser Dave Wehrmeister, 1-3. Craig Swan, 7-6, got the victory with reliever Skip Lockwood picking up his 17th save of the season.

Braves 8, Pirates 3
Home runs by Jeff Burroughs and Vic Correll in the fourth inning powered Atlanta over Pittsburgh. Burroughs' blast into the left field seats leading off the inning put the Braves ahead to stay. It was his third home run in as many games and his 25th of the season.

Rookie Eddie Solomon, 2-1, got the victory, while John Candelaria, 11-4, suffered the defeat.

Reds 6, Cardinals 2
Joe Morgan smashed four hits, including his 15th home run of the season, to lead Cincinnati past St. Louis. Ken Griffey also had four hits, all singles, while Dave Concepcion hit a homer.

Morgan's homer came off former Cincinnati reliever Rawly Eastwick, traded June 15 to St. Louis for Doug Capilla, who got the victory to even his record at 3-3 with six strong innings.

Dodgers 8, Expos 2
Dave Lopes' two-run single in the 10th inning snapped a 2-2 tie as Los Angeles erupted for six runs to complete a threegame sweep of Montreal.

Reggie Smith had given the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the first with a two-run homer. The Expos tied it up with single runs in the fourth and seventh.

Cubs 4, Astros 1
Jerry Morales and Steve Ontiveros delivered run-scoring doubles to trigger Chicago's three-run outburst in the sixth inning as the Cubs defeated Houston. Chicago's Ray Burris, 10-10, scattered eight hits as the Cubs snapped a two-game losing streak.

Beck Takes CGA Title

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Youth was the victor over experience Sunday, as 20-year-old Chip Beck, of Fayetteville, N.C., defeated veteran Bill Harvey, 46, of Jamestown, N.C., in the Carolinas Golf Association's amateur championship.

The CGA title was the second in a row for the young University of Georgia senior, but it was not an easy one.

Beck was down to Harvey by six holes with just 14 holes remaining in the double-round final at Greenville Country Club's Chanticleer Course. But then he caught fire, tied Harvey in regulation, and won in a sudden-death playoff.

Beep Ball

Electronics Help Blind Play Baseball

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The player couldn't see the ball, the bat or the field. But that didn't stop him from walloping the ball into right field at an exhibition game at Jaycee Park baseball field here.

By listening to the electronic signals of both the ball and the bases, the blind players could tell that their team had just scored a run. The players were members of the Greensboro Pioneers beep ball team playing in a game sponsored by the Visually Impaired Program of the Raleigh Parks and Recreation Department.

The team made the trip to generate support for a Raleigh beep ball team. Right now, the Pioneers, who range from 12 to 63 years old, are the only beep ball team in the state.

This is the fourth year that the 18 visually impaired players have been playing together on the team, which is sponsored by the Greensboro Telephone Pioneers, a civic club made up of employes of Western Electric and Bell Laboratories.

The beep ball game is based on baseball but is played with a specially designed electronic softball that uses the components of a Princess telephone.

Before each pitch, the sighted player calls "ball" then throws a ball that emits low, regular beeping tones. The blind players learn to swing the bat by judging the distance of the beeps.

The players out in the field wear protective masks and stand in seven numbered "alleys" of the field. When a ball is hit, a sighted coach calls out the number of the section and the player prepares to scramble for the ball.

The fielders have to catch the ball and hold it up, before the hitter has a chance to run to one of the two bases placed at equal distances from home base. The cone-shaped bases steady electronic signals are turned on after a hit. The base slides in the game tend to be head-first as the runner dives for the sound of the base.

Pioneers coach Robert Borton said with a little practice, players learn to hit the ball with amazing accuracy. Several players boast averages of .500 or better. And some of the stronger ones can literally knock the beep put of the $50 balls.

The batter has five strikes at the ball before he's out. Four outs retire the side and the game lasts one inning. Although the field is unusually quiet during a game because players must listen for the signals, the Pioneers play with gusto and enthusiasm, and plenty of chatter between innings.

George Faison, his 13-year-old son Sheldon and his wife Thelma are all members of the team. Faison lost his sight in an accident in a baseball game when he was a child.

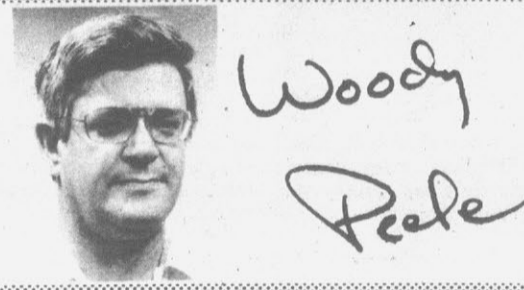

But he never lost his love of the game and when the Pioneers beep ball team was formed, Faison said he jumped at the chance.

"I just love baseball," Faison said with a smile. "I always listened to it (on the radio). And now I have a chance to play again. I just love it."

This month, the team's weekly practices have been especially intense, because players are preparing for their annual game with the Atlanta Braves.

This is the third year the team has played blindfolded members of the Braves team in Atlanta, coach Borton said, and both teams seem to enjoy the match.

"And every year we beat the Braves," added Sheldon Faison, with an undeniable look of satisfaction.

While his final game didn't raise eyebrows, Bobby Supel certainly must have closed out the season in a manner most impressive as the hottest player in the North Carolina Summer League.

Over a four-game span, the Pirate shortstop hit six home runs and drove in 19 runs. Friday night, that string came to an end, but he still managed to go two for six and keep his average above the .300 mark. In fact, only during the last week of the season was Supel's average raised that much, as he climbed over 70 points.

Drafted in the free-agent draft by Detroit, Supel decided not to sign after the spring season, where he was the Pirate third-baseman on the Southern Conference championship team. Supel wanted to complete his education, and the offer given him by the Tigers didn't have a guarantee of that.

So he went on into summer ball for the East Carolina unit, and quickly found himself moved from third base to shortstop. Billy Best, who was to have played the shortstop position, broke his wrist just a day before the season was to have opened. Jerry Caraway, who played short-stop during the regular season, was unavailable due to agricultural work he was committed to.

Move To A New Position
Supel started the season at third, however, with

Tommy Warrick at short. Before long, it was decided to switch Supel to shortstop because of his greater range.

For most of the season, Supel did a good job there, despite some errors, while his hitting stayed in the .200's.

But in the last week of the season, he came to life with the bat. More than likely, he will lead the summer league in several categories. His 47 runs batted in will probably be the best, along with his ten homers and six triples.

Gates Brown, a former Tiger player, now a scout, was in Greenville Thursday and Friday to take another look at Supel for the club. He left impressed with what he saw.

Scout Is Impressed
After Supel slammed a ball out of the park, over the trees in left field, Brown decided he'd seen enough on Thursday, and left shaking his head at Supel's easy power swing. Friday, while Supel didn't hit the ball quite as well, he did come up with one major league play, throwing out a runner from deep short with a fine throw. Brown nodded his approval at that one.

"I don't blame him (Supel) for wanting to get his education," Brown told us. "He's a good kid, and even if he doesn't sign now, he probably will be able to do so later."

What Supel does will probably depend on what the Tigers come up with during the next few weeks. "I'm going back and get some more money," Brown said.

Whether that money is enough to lure him off the East Carolina diamond will be another thing. Bobby Supel knows what he wants, and he knows that baseball is not a life-long career.

But what ever he decides, he'll do well. He's that type of person.

Rare Disease At Least 18 Killed In N.C. Traffic Weekend

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A 14-year-old Georgia girl died of a rare form of meningitis that has killed almost everyone who has contracted it less than a week after she was stricken with the disease.

Doctors at Baptist Hospital, where the girl died late Saturday, declined to identify her, but said she was from Hephzibah, Ga., near Augusta.

Her disease was diagnosed as amoeboid meningitis, which was first described in 1962. Of the 80 persons who are known to have contracted the disease since then, only four survived. The others died within a week.

The girl was visiting her sister here last Tuesday when she began vomiting and complained of headaches. She soon became delirious and then lapsed into a coma.

The girl may have been attacked by the disease while swimming in a pond near her Georgia home before coming here, doctors believe. Most previous victims of the disease had gone swimming in ponds or lakes just before they were stricken.

Paris Offering Budget Tickets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tourists in Paris for a stay can travel all over the city and suburbs with special budget tickets. Called the "billet de tourisme," the tourist ticket permits unlimited travel on first class metro cars and city buses for either four or seven consecutive days. The four-day ticket costs $6.20; the seven-day is $10.30. Either is available at all metro stations in Paris or the French National Railroads, 610 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Maggie O'Leary Williams, 53; all of Charlotte.

Angela Denise Rogers, 27, and Charles Demon Polbert, 18, both of Durham, were passengers in a car which went out of control on U.S. 70 near Durham Saturday night and flipped over on top of another car. The patrol said the woman was pronounced dead at the scene and Polbert died early Sunday.

William Staley, 16, of Rt. 1, Seagrove, died Sunday afternoon when his car ran off the road and struck a culvert. The patrol reported he was thrown from the car, which then landed on top of him.

A Columbus county accident Sunday claimed the life of Phillip Hammonds, 19, of Rt. 2, Chadbourn, when his car veered off the road and ramed into a parked tractor-trailer.

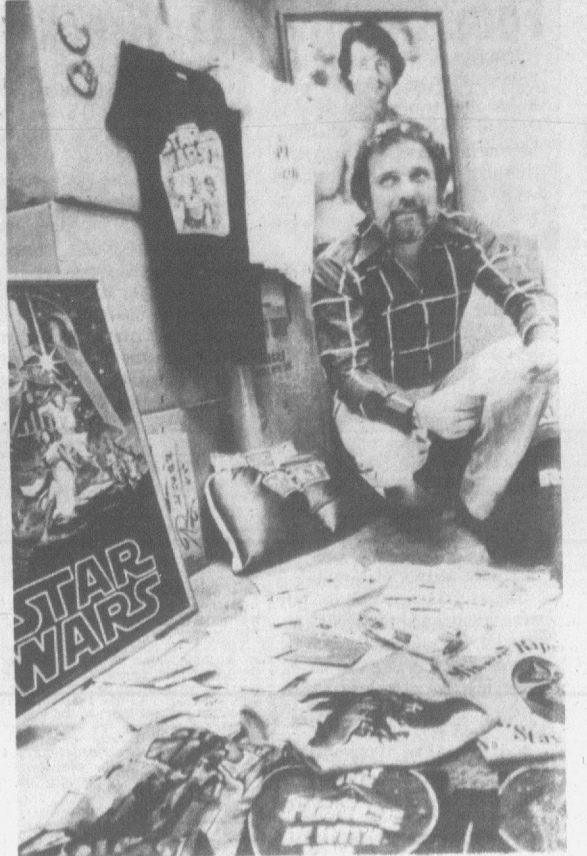

Two people were killed Saturday night a car traveling on the wrong side of the road struck an oncoming vehicle 3-mile west of East Arcadia. Dead were Howard Ray Downing, 36, of Fayetteville and Ronnie Edward Gibson, 22, of Ft. Bragg.

Four persons died and three others were injured when two cars collided head-on eight miles north of Sanford Saturday afternoon. Killed were 38-year-old Ella Louise Jacobs, 38-year-old Joe Larry Alexander, 11-year-old Veronica T. Jacobs, all of Baltimore, Md., and Nannie Kate Martin, 69, of Durham.

A Wake County man was killed early Saturday morning when his car was hit head-on by another vehicle four miles north of Wendell. The patrol identified the man as 63-year-old Robert Anderson of Rt. 2, Zebulon.

An accident on a rural paved road in East Bend claimed the life of Mark Steven Pindell of Rockville Friday night. The patrol reported that Pindell's car hit the right curve at a high rate of speed and overturned, hurling him from the car.

Ruby Owens, 52, of Pelzer, S.C. was killed Friday night when she lost control of her car on U.S. 19 three miles north of Weaverville. Her car crossed the center line and collided with an oncoming vehicle, patrolmen said.

STAR WARS IS HOT ITEM — Stan Blum, 37-year-old president of the Image Factory, the Hollywood company that produces T-shirts, posters and the like for promotional purposes, displays some of the items his company is circulating. Blum says, "the promotion items from the movie 'Star Wars' is going to outsell Farrah-Faucett". They stand to realize some $750,000 from this one contract. (AP Wirephoto)

Ned Beatty In Summer Series

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ned Beatty, superb as a corporate mogul in the movie, "Network," checks in on the CBS network tonight as the star of a fairly good summer comedy series called "Szyzzyk."

In said show, which will run six weeks, he plays a retired Marine sergeant, a two-war veteran who after 27 Corps years starts life anew as a supervisor of a community center in Washington, D.C.

Tonight's premiere, which starts with a quick, funny basketball sight gag, has a plot so thin it'd be marked AWOL if turned sideways. But the acting is so uniformly good you may not even notice.

The saga concerns the good sergeant's first day at work and his efforts to reclaim a steam room that a trio of teen-aged layabouts have long used as their private club house.

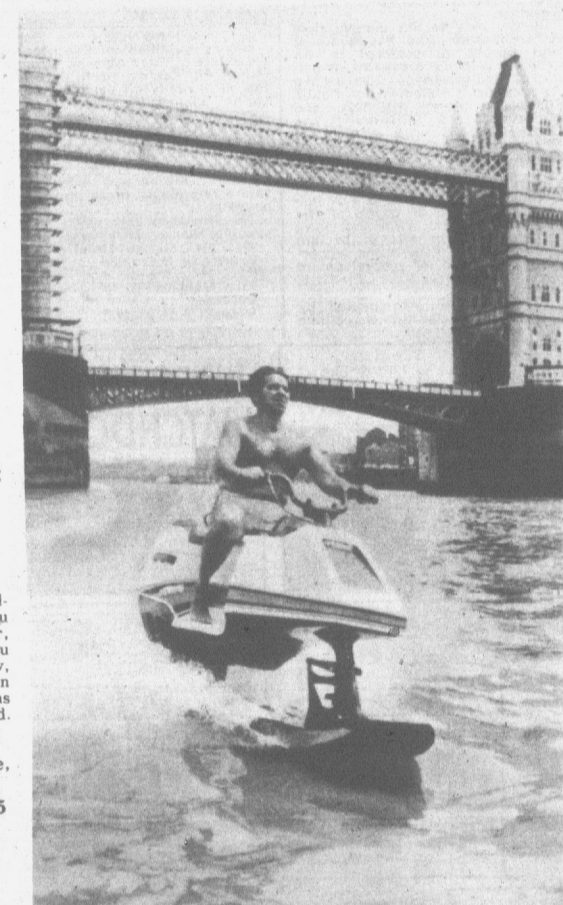

He meets a small black kid, Ralph (Jarrod Johnson) while taking inventory at the community center.

"What do you do, Ralph?" asks he.

"I'm a kid," Ralph explains.

He also wises up Szyzzyk as to who owns the steam room, which sets the stage for introduction of the trio, Tony (Scott Colomby), Ray Gun (Thomas Carter) and Fortwengler (Bradly Miller).

Also introduced in the course of events are the sergeant's black boss (Olivia Cole), the center's nursery schoolteacher (Sandi Chandler) and the center's ancient equipment manager (Leonard Barr).

THE HOTTEST BIKE ON SKIS — Edward McKie, of Thief River Falls, Minn., puts a "wetbike" through its paces near the Tower Bridge on the Thames River in London. The water scooter, featured in the current James Bond film "The Spy Who Loved Me," uses a 65-horsepower engine with water jet drive duplicating the sensation of riding a motorcycle and responding instantly to the twist of the hand throttle. GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
 © 1977 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A98 ♥KJ62 ♦85 ♣9653
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ 1 ♣ 2 ♥ 2 ♣
 3 ♥ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. You have no more than you promised with your free raise to two hearts. In addition, partner is just competing for a part-score, for if he was really interested in game, he would have done something other than merely rebid his suit.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠7 ♥10763 ♦KQ85 ♣A962
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
 3 ♥ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Suddenly, your hand has become very strong. You have four-card support for partner's second suit, a singleton in his first and controls in both unbid suits. A raise to four hearts doesn't even come close to expressing your values. You must cue-bid your ace of clubs first.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠8 ♥Q9764 ♦10532 ♣J62
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
 2 ♣ Dble. Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—A hand with no problem. Partner's double of two spades is for penalties—remember, he did not double one spade for takeout when he had the chance. Since partner says he can defeat two spades, it would be a grave vote of no confidence were you to run.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A ♣AJ1083 ♦Q954 ♣Q52
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 1 ♥ 2 ♦
 2 ♣ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—The auction has developed awkwardly for you. It cannot be right to rebid two no trump with such tenuous stoppers in the minors, and you should have better hearts to rebid that suit at the three-level. Since partner is a passed hand, you are likely to have a game in the hand. However, partner should have a reasonable suit to introduce it freely at the two-level, especially

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:
 ♠6 ♥KQ107 ♦95 ♣AKQ1092
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 1 ♦ 1 ♥ 1 ♣
 What do you bid now?
 A.—There is an awful lot of bidding going on at the table. You have a very good fit for partner, and despite all the action you could have a slam. Fortunately, because of the part score you can alert partner to your ambitions without getting overboard. Jump to three hearts.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠52 ♥QJ8743 ♦J83 ♣J5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ 3 NT
 Dble. ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. Partner didn't invite you into the auction, so don't rush to his rescue. Had he been interested in hearts, he could have doubled. Partner probably has a spade stopper and a running minor, and he won't appreciate your efforts to bail him out.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A94 ♥762 ♦KJ1062 ♣Q10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♣
 3 ♦ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have a very useful hand, and if partner has the right cards, slam is possible. Here's another case where a cue-bid of the enemy suit allows you to transmit this information cheaply. Bid three spades. If partner signs off in three no trump, be content.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KQJ108742 ♥K9 ♦7 ♣KQ
 Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you bid now?
 A.—Four no trump—the old Blackwood. You are interested only in how many aces partner has. If he has all four, bid a grand slam; if he has three, bid a small slam; if he has two, sign off at five spades. If partner has only one ace, you are in trouble—but that is most improbable in view of your holding.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUG. 2, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to effectively handle whatever chores and tasks awaiting your attention so that you have the free time you will need later to conduct important activities. Be thoughtful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure to keep any promises you have made to others and gain their goodwill. Not a good day to start a new project.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Coercing others is not wise today but clearing up any misunderstanding is possible. Take time to relax tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle any civic matters wisely today and avoid trouble later on. Show more thought for family members and increase happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) New outlets are good to look into today, but be sure you follow through in a practical way. Don't neglect to pay your bills.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle those obligations that face you in a most efficient fashion. Being gentle with loved one is wise and brings fine rapport.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be completely honest with associates and come to a better understanding with them. Forget outside matters for the moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't be upset by a co-worker who is highly sensitive now and you avoid an argument which could prove costly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget pleasure that is too expensive, otherwise you could regret spending the extra money later on. Show others you have wisdom.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Money and family matters should be handled in a most precise way today for best results. Take needed health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Using much care in motion today is wise. Be sure not to criticize others at this time. Express happiness at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't spend money too freely now and later you will have a reserve which you will need. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may be depressed about current conditions but problems are often the means through which to advance if handled properly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to make needed changes at times of intense depression or emergencies, so teach to work with the hands and then this can become a most successful life. There is much artistic talent in this chart.
