

Gas-Guzzling Fine In Senate Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration reportedly will not oppose legislation to ban the sale of "gas-guzzling" cars in 1980, even though the provision was not part of the President's energy package.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the proposal Monday, voting to require at least 16-mile-per-gallon performance from every 1980-model car sold in the United States and backing up the requirement with a $10,000 fine for each car that falls short.

The Senate panel acted as the House began debate on a 580-page energy bill and the President called for higher gasoline taxes and continued price controls on natural gas in a statement urging approval of his energy plan.

House leadership is hoping the bill, based largely on Carter's proposals, can be approved and sent to the Senate by Friday.

The Senate energy panel acted on a proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to increase performance requirements for cars. Under the proposal, the 16-mpg requirement will be increased by one mile a gallon each year for five years beginning in 1980.

The requirement would be 21 miles per gallon for 1985-model cars.

The $10,000 fine would apply each year.

A spokesman for Metzenbaum said Monday night the Carter administration had not indicated direct approval for the proposal. But he said, "We have had a definite statement from the administration that they would not oppose this."

The spokesman said he was optimistic that the proposal would win approval from the whole Senate, noting that Carter last week expressed renewed concern that Americans are not cutting back on their energy consumption.

The spokesman for Metzenbaum said congressional experts estimated the proposal could mean a savings of 26,000 barrels of oil a day.

Carter's energy proposals, unveiled in a speech last April 20, called for a special tax on so-called gas-guzzling cars, but no ban on their production.

The Senate panel also voted to double the fine imposed on manufacturers of automobiles that fall short of efficiency standards going into effect this fall.

Under a law passed in 1975, a company's entire line of cars must average 18 miles per gallon beginning with the 1978-model year.

If the average falls short, a company can be fined $100 a mile per car under the new proposal, instead of the existing $50 per mile per car. Figures show new domestic cars now average 17.8 miles per gallon.

Carter's statement contained his first endorsement of a proposed nickel-a-gallon hike in the federal gasoline tax and said removal of federal price controls on natural gas would "undermine one of the basic tenets of my energy plan — fairness."

A nickel hike combined with other oil taxes in the program could add a dime to the current cost of each gallon. Each penny increase in the gasoline tax costs consumers an estimated $1 billion a year, experts say.

The current federal gasoline tax is four cents a gallon.

Space Debris Providing Annual Meteor Display

NEW YORK (AP) — The planet Earth, on its journey around the sun, is plowing through a swarm of gravel and other space junk left behind by a comet. The result is about to be seen by earthlings everywhere.

The phenomenon is called a meteor shower, but some will see UFOs.

Romantics will see "shooting stars" in one of the most beautiful light shows nature has to offer.

Astronomers and physicists will observe the ice, gravel and dust that burn before they can touch the planet.

"It's just like Old Faithful," says Dr. Kenneth Franklin, astronomer of the Hayden Planetarium here.

The rain of fiery debris — known as the Perseid Meteor Shower — becomes most visible the same time each year, from after midnight until just before dawn on August 11, 12 and 13.

It is called Perseid because the meteors, about 50 every hour, seem to be streaming from the constellation Perseus. The space debris rides along the orbit of the Temple-Swift Comet, which last passed the Earth in 1967.

The comet headed around the sun and then back into the far reaches of our solar system. If it returns at all, Temple-Swift won't be back until 2072.

"It's a fairly defunct comet," says Franklin. "It might never return."

But in previous trips around the sun, Temple-Swift left chunks of ice and gravel in its orbital path, which crosses the orbit of the Earth. Other comets have done the same thing, creating several meteor showers each year. Some are remembered for their irregular but spectacular shows of light. Others, like the Perseid, are known more for their regularity.

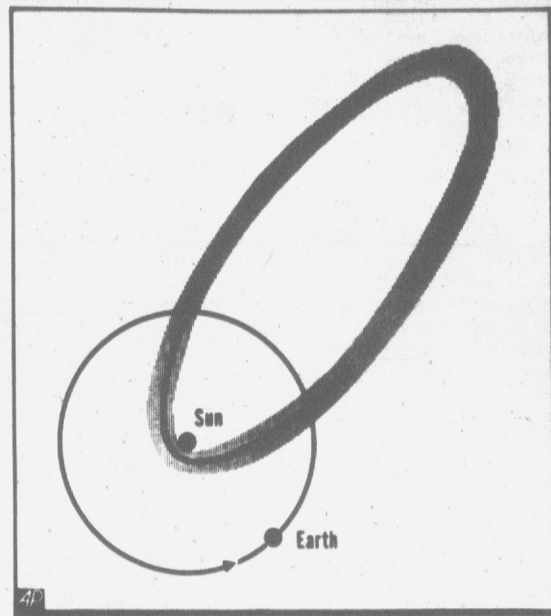

Franklin says observatories and planetariums frequently receive calls about UFOs directly after meteor showers.

"To the person who doesn't expect the meteor shower, it might seem scary," says Sten Odenwald, a graduate student worker at the Harvard College Observatory in Massachusetts. "... you'll see some lights flaring up and then dying, like stars exploding."

But Odenwald also observes, "It will be great for romantics, just lovely. I plan to watch the shower from Yosemite National Park." He says the best place to watch the shower is outside any city limits.

This year's Perseid promises to be a good show. There will be no moon, which means that light from the meteors will have little competition.

WHEN HEAVENLY BODIES CROSS PATHS — Diagram shows the path of a comet, ellipse, and the path of the Earth around the sun. A comet leaves a trail of ice and pebbles in its wake as it orbits the sun. Periodically the Earth's orbit around the sun crosses the comet's path, producing a steady stream of shooting stars until the Earth passes out of the comet's orbit. (AP Wirephoto)

Drought Loans

Applications are now being accepted at the local Farmers Home Administration office for emergency loans to cover drought production losses.

These loans will have an interest rate of five per cent. Deadline for filing applications will be September 30.

Applicants who qualify for drought production losses may also qualify for annual operating loans which will have a market rate of interest.

Rural communities which have suffered losses in water supply because of the drought may also qualify for emergency loans.

For information, contact the FmHA office at Evans and Third Streets or call 752-0738.

Confirm Taft As Chairman Of Ports Body

Greenville attorney Tom Taft was confirmed this morning by Gov. Jim Hunt as the new chairman of the State Ports Authority.

A spokesman in Hunt's office said that Taft's term on the Authority will expire on July 1, 1979.

Colin Stokes of Winston-Salem was named vice chairman of the Ports Authority, according to the governor's office, with a term also ending on July 1, 1979.

Other members of the board announced today included: Betty Williamson of Lumberton, term expiring July 1, 1981; Jeff Allen of Troy, July 1, 1983; Bob Caldwell, Gastonia, July 1, 1983; E. V. Wilkins, Roper, July 1, 1981; and Billy Williamson, Wilson, 1983.

According to the spokesman, the Secretary of Commerce or his designee serves as the secretary of the Authority and Rep. John Church of Henderson has been designated to serve in the secretary post.

Members of the Authority appoint a treasurer, it was pointed out.

PRICE-FIXING PROBE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The House Oversight and Investigations subcommittee plans hearings in Nashville Aug. 15 to look into the effect of alleged uranium price-fixing on TVA contracts, says Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn.

BENEFIT CLAIMS

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — W.G. Lane, chief of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. contract services branch, says he expects N.C. tobacco farmers to collect about four times the benefits the FCIC paid last year — between $20 million and $25 million.

HOTLINE gets things done for you. Call 752-1336, and tell your problem or sound-off, or mail it to HOTLINE, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

NO LUCK

In October of 1973 I ordered a ring from the Diamex Gem Company of Howard Beach, N. Y. Two weeks later I received a letter saying that they had received my order and my money (I sent cash) and that I would receive my order fully prepaid and insured shortly. I have written six times and received no answer. I called June 6, 1974 and talked to a girl, telling her to tell the company to get in touch with me — no answer. Enclosed is the order number, ring size, and phone number of the company. Mrs. O. K.

As one can see by the dates involved, this is an old item. In fact, it is one that Hotline has been working on periodically since soon after our service was established in May, 1974. We tried writing and calling, reaching only an answering service when we called. We wrote the Consumer Protection Board of the State of New York and received only a copy of a complaint letter sent the company by the Board with a notation that it was also being sent to the Postal Inspection Service, New York City.

You heard from the Postal Inspection Service that the activities of Diamex Gem Company "are continuing to be investigated to determine whether the mails are being used in violation of the postal laws." The letter went on to say that the Postal Inspection Service "has no authority to effect refunds or adjustments. The Mail Fraud Statutes require that evidence of a scheme to defraud be established. The development of such evidence is of times a tedious process since scattered incidents of a firm's failure to render merchandise ordered is not conclusive evidence of a scheme to defraud."

Hotline has decided that there is nothing more we can do to try to regain your money. We are sorry.

Rain Worth $$$$

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

Nearly an inch of rain fell yesterday in Pitt County, and according to Leroy James of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, the rain was enough to raise hopes of salvaging several crops.

"The rain was a real big help for tobacco," said James.

"We got almost an inch, and we think it will add a whole lot of dollars to Pitt County's tobacco and soybean crops."

"Some tobacco may be able to fill out now, and even some of the late corn may turn out all right because of the rain."

"We hope this will add a couple million dollars to the local farm economy."

Precipitation was officially measured at 0.90 inches at the Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station. Yesterday's high temperature was 94 degrees, the low was 69 degrees and the Tar River stood at 3.6 feet on the National Weather Service gauge.

Today's 8 a.m. temperature was 71 degrees, and more rainfall was predicted.

Five School Posts Are Filled By Greenville Bd.

Following an executive session of one and one-half hours, members of the Greenville City Board of Education Monday night approved by a narrow — four to three margin, election of five persons in principal and assistant principal positions for the city schools.

Assignments approved for the school year 1977-78 are:

— Esther Warren, formerly a teacher at Wahl Coates, as principal of Third Street School;

— John Carstarphen, recently elected principal of Third Street school, reassigned as principal at Agnes Fullilove to replace Charles Dickens, who has resigned;

— Joe Smith, re-election as principal at Elmhurst confirmed. Smith, previously principal at Third Street, was assigned to Elmhurst School when Third Street was closed near the end of the '75-76' school year;

— Gene Baker, elected full time assistant principal at Aycock Junior High. Previous-

Bids Opened For County Health Dept. Equipment

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon opened bids totaling $48,057 for movable equipment for the Health Department but agreed to study the proposals before awarding contracts for the office and medical equipment for the renovated and expanded facility.

The board also appropriated funds from the sale of timber from the County Home and Landfill property — some $79,463 — as a reserve for renovation of the old hospital building and for solid waste disposal expenses.

In other business, the board reappointed Rommie Mallison as a member of the Jury Commission for a two year term and named Dr. Moses A. Ray of Tarboro to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Huber A. Eaton as a member of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees as recommended by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

The commissioners were informed by letter from

Chairman Henry Dunn that the Greenville Board of Education would support an $8.25 million school bond issue to be divided on a one-third, two-thirds basis with the Pitt County Board of Education.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution calling for the N. C. Department of Transportation to implement the construction of U.S. 13 as a four-lane highway from Fayetteville to the North Carolina-Virginia state line at Suffolk.

The resolution said U.S. 13 "is located to serve major traffic movements in Eastern North Carolina connecting Fayetteville... and the Tidewater area of Virginia..."

Saying the Eastern North Carolina area "is in dire need of a major North-South highway," the resolution explained that "the original purpose for the location of U.S. 13 was to relieve traffic volume on U.S. 301 (now I-95) and the present capability of U.S. 13 is inadequate to meet this need, much less meet the additional requirements of regional traffic..."

All Housing Development Units Occupied During Month Of July

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Total occupancy for the month of July was reported Monday night for the five housing developments operated by the Greenville Housing Authority.

Mrs. Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, reported that all 531 housing units were filled during the month and average rent for the developments amounted to $63.17.

Rent averages included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) $57.20; N.C. 22-1 (Kearney Park) $62.37; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) $63.32; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) $61.75; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown) $71.23.

The housing staff completed paper work on applications for continued occupancy in all but the Newtown development, she said.

Executive Director Joe Laney informed the commissioners that representatives of an investment banking firm are coming to Greenville on Thursday to discuss a proposal for underwriting a bond sale to finance construction of the proposed mid-rise housing program for the elderly here.

Laney said that the new 111-unit project in the Southside area is now underway following the signing of contracts and other paperwork last week with the contractors.

He added that grading contractors are at the site, located off Evans Street, and a pre-construction meeting will be scheduled by the general contractor as soon as work progresses on the preparation of the site.

Commissioners authorized the attendance of two staff members at the Aug. 25-26 workshop of the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Codes Officials in Burlington. Laney said that the workshop, the first of the new fiscal year, will help to bring the staff up to date on the latest changes in occupancy and housing management.

A contract with John C. Proctor and Co. of Greenville was approved for the Authority's biennial audit.

Cover Girl Finalists Debate Marriage, Career

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Five finalists were bubbling with excitement at the 1977 High School Cover Girl contest, a competition open to girls in grades 7 through 12.

Soon only one girl — one — would be selected as winner in the 16th annual contest. It was all "too sad," they said, mutually expressing their concern that four of their number would go crownless.

The judging had been difficult and the decision had been slightly delayed. "So many pretty girls, the judges have been confused," said the chaperone, pretty Marina Maher, 31. The day before there had been ten semifinalists.

It was Marina's fourth year of cover girl watching. She accompanied the girls around New York as they saw the sights from roof tops and streets, restaurants and museums, and she was "impressed that they are so well read." They read the daily newspapers and they discuss politics, energy, the whole bit, she said.

At the contest's end, it would be blonde, 5 foot 7, Cheryl Cameron, 18, of Dunwoody, Ga., a typical Southern beauty, who would be singled out for the Cover Girl title.

But the day of the interview three pairs of green eyes and two pairs of brown eyes still danced with hope. Black-haired, brown-haired and honey-blond, the girls were coiffed and sparkling, with a minimum of makeup, which they'd learned how to apply since they had arrived.

What did they think of a recent Denver survey that showed that 37 per cent of males and 21 per cent of females 17 years old believed that "a woman's place is in the home"?

Willow dark-eyed Pamela Rigas, 16, of Canfield, Ohio, said, "A woman's place is wherever she feels it should be." Julie Floyd, 15, of Tempe, Ariz., and Elizabeth Teague, 15, of Hartselle, Ala., agreed. Elizabeth would have a career first, marriage later — maybe when she is 30. It was an idea that also appealed to the two older girls, Sue Booker, 18, of Brampton, Ontario, Canada, and Cheryl, but they'd marry earlier.

The girls have begun to think of modeling as a career — they all met model agents. Sue had always wanted to be a teacher, but she's been convinced "modeling could be a part-time thing."

Cheryl writes poetry and has considered journalism as a career, although she, too, might model part time. A winner now, she has been offered several modeling contracts, but in a few days she was to join an aunt and uncle in Anchorage on a two-month camping trip in Alaska, a graduation gift from her parents.

"I'll go fishing and clamming and do lots of outdoor things I've never done before," she said. After that she'll decide whether it is college first, modeling later, or what.

She paints and hooks rugs and wall coverings. Her steady beau goes to Georgia Tech and hopes to be an electrical engineer. He has given her a gold chain necklace "but he always says he is not going to get married." For her part, she will marry at 25 or whenever she finds "the right person," said Cheryl, who has "a beautiful wedding handkerchief that had belonged to my great, great grandmother."

Sue's beau has given her an emerald ring, but "it is just a steady dating ring," she explained. "He wants to get married, but I don't know." Pam would not marry until her mid-20s. Ditto Julie.

Julie had made the lovely white sundress she was wearing. Her mother is a home economics teacher. Elizabeth also sews. All the girls prefer dresses to pants, although they all wear jeans some of the time.

Elizabeth likes harem pants that tie around the ankles. They all prefer the straight skirts — "Big skirts make you look hippy" was the consensus — and they "never had the opportunity" to wear straight skirts before. But Julie would not wear a straight skirt to her school because they dress casually. At Pam's school, it is more formal and "even the boys wear dress shirts and dress pants."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I'm as crazy about dogs as the next person, but long ago I realized we had inherent differences.

(a) When I mistrust people, I do not bite them on the leg; (b) I cannot shed all over the sofa and still expect my hostess to be a good sport; and (c) Newspapers are meant to be absorbed...not absorbed.

If I have one major criticism of orthodox dog lovers, it would be their inability to view their pets as they really are...animals. I have noted dog enthusiasts, in particular, have a couple of catchy phrases that seem to be universal.

"He won't bite." This would be reassuring if it weren't for the fact that the dog is rigid, his teeth are bared, there is a guttural sound coming out of his throat and he has just penciled a bull's eye on the calf of your leg.

"I am going to leave the room so that you and Killer can get to be friends." That's a phrase that hasn't popped up since they gave Daniel a plastic bone and put him in the lion's den.

"Oops, you're sitting in King's chair." You already suspected that when you sat down and King covered you with his 90-pound body.

"Is that Fritz smelling up the room?" This is awkward as the only other person beside the host is you and Fritz doesn't look like he is going to admit to anything.

"He won't hurt you. He's just (check one) teething, playful, needs attention." Which is exactly what I told my doctor. "He didn't hurt me. I'm just bleeding, hysterical and need stitches."

"Get down, Brute. She's not used to dogs tearing her stockings." (Could you throw in licking my toes and eating my fountain pen?)

I had one friend who always admonished, "Don't make any sudden moves as Flossie is high strung." Sudden moves included chewing gum, swallowing and breathing in and out. In the eyes of the owner, Flossie had become human.

It became quite apparent one evening when a policeman knocked on the door at the request of my friend. He told him that the police were going to have to do something about all the male dogs who were arriving by bus and trains from as far as 80 miles away to court Flossie. "They are nothing but sex maniacs," said my friend, "And I want them off my property or I will have all of them arrested."

I breathed a sign of relief when Flossie refused to sign the complaint.

Papayas Star In Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

You've probably noticed that the papaya — that lovely fruit — is now a staple in supermarkets. And that's all to the good. Many of us, according to nutritionists, need to increase our consumption of fruit. Eating papaya is, in our opinion, a painless way to achieve this!

In the main, the papaya is best served "as is" or in a fruit compote. But once in a while we come on a really worthwhile way of putting it into a "made" dish. Last year we called no-cook Papaya Topping to your attention. It's made with papaya, banana, pineapple and lemon juice and enlivens a simple compote of bananas and oranges. We are happy to say that a number of readers wrote to thank us for introducing them to this delectable way of adding interest to an everyday dessert.

Right now we want to give you another superb no-sugar recipe calling for papaya. It's as easy to make as last year's Topping. The recipe comes from Mrs. James Kealoha, the wife of a former government official of Hawaii. Mrs. Kealoha uses her Papaya Pineapple as a jam and we found it lovely to spread on toasted buttered English muffins. But we also used it other ways. For example, it wasn't a bit too sweet to be savored as a compote. It's marvelous served over angel-food cake with a puff of whipped cream. It's also delightful as a filling for layer cakes. And it's a great accompaniment for eggs and bacon, ham or sausage for brunch.

Werner-Pendered Vows Solemnized

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — St. Paul's United Methodist Church here was the scene of the Saturday morning, July 23, wedding of Jean Mack Pendered and Keith Ellis Werner.

Mrs. Keith Ellis Werner

The double ring ceremony at 11 a.m. was conducted by the Rev. Bruce Fisher and the Rev. Eugene Moyer.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norman C.

Pendered of Greenville, N. C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Werner of Trappe, Pa.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Koya Ohmoto, organist, and John Werner, father of the bridegroom, vocalist.

The bride wore a gown of white sugarcane jersey featuring a sheer yoke bodice, empire waist and full pagoda sleeves, trimmed in Venise lace. The chapel length wateau train was highlighted by a detachable hood trimmed in Venise lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of roses, cornflowers, stephanotis and daisies.

The honor attendant was Elaine Pivarnik of Ford City, Pa. Bridesmaids were Judy Harkins of Drexel Hill, Pa., and Joan Peto of Bethlehem, Pa.

The bride's brother, Mark Werner of Trappe, Pa., was best man and ushers included Mark Erwin of Spring Mount, David Pendered of Greenville, N. C., brother of the bride, and Ronald Wilke of Skippack, Pa.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed into a black and white suit and carried a bouquet lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of Pennsylvania State University. She is a Spanish teacher and he is a social studies teacher.

The couple will reside in Trappe, Pa.

A buffet luncheon was held at the Nittany Lion Inn, State College, Pa. A receiving line led guests into the Colonial Room. The invocation was given by the Rev. Fisher. Dining music was provided by the Skip Leeper Quartette followed by dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Raup, aunt and uncle of the bride from Baltimore, Md., attended the gift table at the reception.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Lewis Van Gorder of Atlanta, Ga., aunt of the bride. Miss Bridget Kilgore of Lancaster, Pa., attended the guest register.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents on Friday evening at the Autoport Restaurant, State College, Pa.

Nagging May Help Overeating Husband

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my husband's health. He eats everything on his plate as fast as he can, then he starts eating off the children's plates.

He is 37 and admits to having put on "about 40" pounds in the last year, but I think it's more.

He is a physician, so he must be aware of the damage he's doing to his health. When I mention it to him he becomes irritable and accuses me of nagging him.

He's always looking for candy or something to snack between meals, and I'm sure he must be eating at the office, too.

How can I help him without nagging him?

CONCERNED WIFE

DEAR CONCERNED: His overeating could be a symptom of a deeper emotional problem. Persuade him to see a physician even though he is one. (It's said that a doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.) And if you have to nag him, nag him. An irritable husband is better than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: It's almost time for my mom to tell me about sex. How can I tell her I already know everything?

KNOW IT ALL

DEAR KNOW: Wait until after she tells you what she thinks you ought to know. You may not know EVERYTHING.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for setting the record straight with regard to the Equal Rights Amendment and the draft. I hope this letter can provide similar enlightenment regarding ERA and community property.

Wives are considered joint owners of property with their husbands in community-property states, namely, California, Texas, Washington, Arizona, Louisiana, Idaho, Nevada and New Mexico. (Women in all other states do not have such protection.)

Another justification for the ERA, even in some community-property states, concerns the control and management of the joint property. In some community-property states such as Louisiana, even though the wife may have joint legal ownership of the "community" property, the management of the property remains solely in the hands of the husband. This means that a husband could liquidate the joint property without his wife's consent or even her knowledge.

College Dormitory Room Getting Harder To Find

By LORICOOKIE
Associated Press Writer
Rooms in college dormitories across North Carolina will be ready for their fall occupants soon, and with few exceptions, they'll be filled with students who fought as hard for them as they would for a hotel room on the coast during the summer season.

Housing officials report that in most places every available dorm space is filled, with long waiting lists of students anxiously seeking an opening.

In the Charlotte area, all colleges except one say every available dorm space is filled for the fall semester, and waiting lists number from 30 to 700 students.

"We have over 200 students who have applied that we can't house," said Dr. Calvin Hood, director of student life programs at Johnson C. Smith University. "And we have many of our returning students looking for housing on their own because we don't have the room for them."

At the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Chuch Lynch, director of residence life, said UNCC is building two new dorms, but the first won't be ready until January.

"We have between 600 and 700 students on our waiting lists," Lynch said.

Davidson College director of student housing Scotty Nichols said his school has a waiting list of 30 to 40 students. "Hopefully, by September they will have rooms," Nichols said.

Queens College in Charlotte is an exception to the tight dorm situation. "We have plenty of dormitory room," said publications director Mrs. Betty Folts.

At North Carolina State University in Raleigh, Housing Officer James Fulghum said all the available dorms are "completely filled" and "there's a very long waiting list" for students trying to get in.

At Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem the situation is the same. Ed Cummings, director of housing, said "we're full."

"There's no extreme situation," Cummings said. He said the number of students who want dormitory space and the number of rooms is "pretty much balanced off," because "our admissions people work pretty closely with us in housing."

This year's housing shortage is not the first. At Davidson and Johnson C. Smith, housing officials ran into a problem last year, too. A shortage of housing has been the norm at fast-growing UNCC for the past four years. North Carolina State has also been feeling a gradually tightening pinch for several years.

At Johnson C. Smith, there is a housing shortage because, "it is cheaper to live on campus than in an apartment," Hood said. "More students are applying for campus housing where that was not the case in the past few years."

Lynch of UNCC said, "The increase in on-campus housing demand has been a nationwide trend for the past few years. Students see the dorms programming more activities and obviously, there are the economic factors."

At Davidson, Nichols said the shortage of dormitory space stems from a situation where "we've increased enrollment without adding more housing facilities."

At North Carolina State, the increase in enrollment is also a major factor in the tight housing situation. "Enrollment has gone up," Fulghum said. He said there will be 18,000 students enrolled at State.

The colleges differ on how they accommodate the student left out in the cold.

"It is the student's responsibility to secure housing, not ours," Hood said. "We assist in any way we can. When they're aware of the fact that we can't do it, they'll find housing. Working together can usually solve the problem, but I wish we could solve it before school starts."

Hood said his school is asking for help from families who have vacant rooms, and the housing office also plans to add an additional student in some dormitory rooms.

At UNCC, Lynch said there is an off-campus housing listing that provides a list of local landlords and motels where students can find rooms. At Davidson, where most students are required to live on campus, Nichols said the school finds temporary housing for students until something is available on campus.

Fulghum said North Carolina State is "trying to make a list of places which are available and provide it to students." But he added, "We don't have as many places as we need. It's getting really difficult to locate students in off-campus housing. Our listing book is getting pretty bare."

Spokesmen for several of the schools said there are always some students who leave shortly after the semester begins, and the housing situation usually eases in a few weeks.

Action On Various Grants Is Taken By Williamston Board

WILLIAMSTON — Action on various grants constituted the primary action by members of the Williamston Town Board at its monthly meeting on Monday.

Approval was given to an application for a $50,000 matching grant of the U.S. Board of Recreation, a part of the Department of Interior. If received, the funds will be matched and used to develop an 18 acre site earlier acquired by the Williamston Housing Authority. The application is a first step in turning the area into a complex of outdoor recreational facilities.

Request for another grant application, one for $63,800 from the Farmer's Home Administration, was tabled for further study. The grant would provide beginning funds for the town to extend a sewer line to McGaskey Road outside the city limits in connection with a planned expansion of the June Day Company, now located in the downtown area.

A planning contract for $7,500 with the Dept. of Natural and Economic Resources was approved. This is a continuing planning project source that has been used by the town for several years.

The board was notified that the application for a Crime Prevention Program grant from LEAA funds amounting to $23,210 has been approved. A joint state-federal funding program, it will involve only $1,160 in local funds and will provide for the addition of a new police officer, an automobile, and equipment to operate a crime prevention program.

In other actions, the Williamston Town Board:

— Approved three zoning and rezoning requests. These are (1) An amendment of the zoning ordinance to permit the establishment of a honey and molasses processing facility in a highway commercial zone; (2) an amendment of the ordinance to include a used car lot as a special use in neighborhood commercial zone; and (3) rezoning of property behind the Southern Motel on U.S. 17 from Shopping Center to a residential-office zone.

— Approved a recommendation by the State Department of Transportation to designate a left-turn lane on U.S. 64 from McGaskey Road on downtown to Sycamore Street in order to provide marked left-turn areas; and — Approved a low bid by the Corey Company for a new heating unit for the library at a cost of $4,470.

Approve ECU Bid For 2 Graduate Programs

ECU News Bureau
Two new graduate programs in the Division of Health Affairs at East Carolina University have been approved by the UNC Board of Governors and will begin this fall, according to Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs. Monroe said that the Master of Science in Nursing and the Master of Science in Environmental Health will be open for the enrollment of students at the beginning of the fall semester which starts Aug. 23.

"We are very pleased that East Carolina University and its School of Nursing and School of Allied Health and Social Professions can offer this opportunity to interested students across the state and particularly from the East," he said.

"Approval and implementation of these two new programs is further evidence of the continually expanding role of the university in the education and training of health professionals needed in the region and throughout North Carolina."

The main purpose of the master's program in environmental health is to upgrade the knowledge and skills of the professional sanitarian in North Carolina. Its graduate studies will build on the solid foundation of the accredited undergraduate program of the Department of Environmental Health. The program will focus on management and supervision of environmental health programs with courses also to be offered at times convenient for part-time students.

The MS in nursing program is designed to prepare teachers in areas of nursing such as medical-surgical, mental health and maternal-child health.

Further information about the new nursing degree program may be obtained from Dean Evelyn Perry of the School of Nursing and for the MS in Environmental Health degree program, from Dr. Trenton Davis, chairman of the Department of Environmental Health, or from the ECU Graduate School Office.

Wallaces Said To Be Eyeing Divorce

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace says "there's nothing" to documents which purport to be an as yet unfiled divorce petition drawn up on his behalf.

The Associated Press obtained the document Monday following a report from a Montgomery television station, WSFA-TV, that a divorce petition had been drawn up for the governor and his wife, Cornelia.

Mrs. Wallace could not be reached for comment on the documents.

The governor, through his deputy press secretary, Elvin Stanton, said only that "there's nothing to that."

Stanton said he personally had "no knowledge of any divorce proceedings."

The document, which is unsigned and dated only July 1977, says "the husband avers there exists such a complete incompatibility of temperament that the parties can no longer live together. "The husband further avers there has been an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage and further attempts at reconciliation are impractical or futile and not in the best interests of the parties."

Mrs. Wallace, the divorced niece of former Gov. James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, married Wallace on Jan. 4, 1971, about three years after Wallace's first wife, the late Gov. Lurleen Wallace, died of cancer.

Mrs. Wallace has two children by her first marriage and the governor has four.

Farmville-Mart Quality, Prices

Best Of Season

FARMVILLE — Prices and quality were much better on yesterday's Farmville Tobacco Market sales than on any day this season, according to Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade Sales Supervisor Louis Williams.

Volume of primings showed an increase, Williams said, while nonscript grades showed a decrease. Top price was $1.30 a pound for lug grades. Prices as a whole were a little stronger than on the previous sale day, Thursday.

Stabilization receipts accounted for only 2.97 per cent of gross sales, compared with 39.27 per cent last year.

To date the Farmville market has sold 382,230 pounds for $383,221, for an average of $100.26 per hundred pounds, compared with $92.21 at this point a year ago.

Visitor Will Speak Tonight

BETHEL — The Rev. Richard Worsley Jr. of Long Branch, N. J., will be the guest speaker at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church tonight through Thursday.

The services, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., will feature a different choir.

The public is invited to attend according to the Rev. Walter Cherry Jr., pastor.

The giant manta can grow to a weight of 3,000 pounds and a width of 25 feet.

Citizen Participation Undercut

Mayor Percy Cox and City Manager Jim Caldwell held a press conference last Friday and gave their side of the controversy over the abolishment of the Redevelopment Commission.

Cited were the ending of Urban Renewal categorical grant programs and their replacement with the Community Development Bloc Grant Program.

Mayor Cox also cited state law allowing municipalities to abolish Redevelopment Commissions and Housing Authorities with the City Council to carry out these functions.

Among other things, Mayor Cox again cited the Lydens Associates study, commissioned by the city government, which recommended some changes including the abolishment of the Redevelopment Commission.

The press conference wound up with the announcement by City Manager Caldwell that a new Department of Community Development is to be established with City Planner John Schofield to be the director.

The officials didn't dwell on the fact that projects being carried out under the Urban Renewal categorical grant program are still on going. These projects were delegated to a citizen's group in the form of the Redevelopment Commission for planning and execution.

The way we see it, the City Council gave a group of citizens a job to do. The job has been done well, but it is unfinished. Suddenly the City Council pulls the rug out from under those who are doing the job they were commissioned to do.

We wonder how the council expects to get any citizen participation with this kind of treatment.

Essential Energy Conservation Role

Greenville Utilities Office of Energy Conservation and Management has been established and Reese Helms has been appointed manager.

"We're committed to conservation on a permanent basis," Helms said.

His can be a most important position. It is going to be necessary to use what energy the nation has in the most efficient manner in the years ahead.

Since electricity is a large part of our energy source, and it uses big amounts of fossil and nuclear fuel, conservation in this area is going to be important.

THIS AFTERNOON

Change Rocks Agency

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Rumbblings of change continue to shake the sprawling North Carolina Department of Human Resources, with charges and counter charges becoming more and more vocal.

Still on the burner is another major shakeup which, if implemented, will intensify the feelings of bitterness already being expressed.

A proposal is under study to revamp the regional office setup within the department: develop a Central Coordinating Council to resolve turf-fighting between agencies; evaluate actual program activity in the field as to numbers of staff, people served, etc.; and return to central headquarters in Raleigh complete supervision of all state facilities in the field — psychiatric and specialty hospitals, mental retardation centers, training schools, and alcohol rehabilitation centers.

More Trouble

Such sweeping change, coming on the heels of a number of top-level changes in personnel throughout the department and particularly among clinical executives at the hospitals, can be expected to produce further controversy.

Another item in that "Regional Office Study" will serve to intensify personnel unhappiness: a proposed relocation of the Eastern Regional headquarters from Greenville to either Wilson or Goldsboro, and the formation of one central region with headquarters in Raleigh, eliminating the Winston-Salem office.

Such a move would require relocation of several hundred employees, a prospect seen by agency people as "traumatic" and producing even more resignations. The end result would be three regions (western, eastern, central) and would save some money in office rents. It would also, according to the study, give closer contact with top officials in Raleigh.

"Moving a set of regional program representatives closer to the central office should develop a more coordinated approach to that program by allowing and encouraging more contact between regional and central personnel," the report suggests.

BILL NOBLITT

No Authority

The study also pinpoints what was found in talks with numerous Human Resources field personnel: "Regional offices can seldom provide a total response to local agencies and facilities because the regional consultants often have responsibility, but little authority. Individuals at all levels are not sure of their comparative responsibility."

Thus the proposal to put authority over the various hospitals in Raleigh rather than regional offices fits into the revamping scheme, and is also seen by insiders as the trigger which launched many of the resignations now cropping up around the state.

In resigning, the various hospital and regional managers have complained of politicization of the agencies by Gov. James B. Hunt. They claim that his freeze on hiring, his requirement that new personnel be cleared through his office, and the related General Assembly action creating more exempt positions (which the governor can control), and requiring five years of state service before tenure is gained are all designed to provide political control.

The governor is, many insist, using jobs to build a machine which will put him into office for another term should voters approve a Constitutional revision allowing succession.

The governor, however, insists he is merely trying to gain control of a cumbersome, sprawling agency filled with turf-fighting and inefficiency. At one point he asked bluntly: "They say we are running as efficiently as we possibly can. How many people believe that? I don't."

Both the governor and Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow insist that they must gain control in order to bring needed program revisions into play.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter-Moynihan Feud

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's campaign against Soviet taps on telephone conversations of American citizens has unwittingly exposed hidden aspects of President Carter's personality and policies.

When Moynihan criticized the Carter administration on July 10 for following the Ford administration's pattern of ignoring Soviet eavesdropping on U.S. telephone calls via radio microwave, the President two days later fired a personal harpoon aimed, irrelevantly, at Moynihan's Nixon connection. At this writing, the White House has not transmitted one word privately — pro, con or in-between — to Moynihan about the Soviet espionage question.

This brings to light two unrelated facts about Mr. Carter. First, Pat Moynihan stands high on the list of people Jimmy Carter simply does not like (and is viewed as a potential rival). Second, for all the President's toughness on human rights, he is influenced by apprehensions over the fate of detente that prevail within important parts of the national security bureaucracy.

Actually, Moynihan has been less caustic in criticizing the Carter administration than the President's great ally, Speaker Tip O'Neill, or many other congressional Democrats.

Moreover, his attack on Soviet eavesdropping was not originally intended as criticism of the President.

Rather, Moynihan feared continuation within the Carter administration of the U.S. government's tendency to overlook unacceptable Soviet behavior for the sake of detente. Beyond that, the dangerous official tendency to explain away provocative activity worried him. Privately, Moynihan sums it up as "an appeasement psychology" among advisers of this and other Presidents.

But Moynihan was unprepared for the President's blunt riposte at his last press conference when he delivered this non sequitur: "Well, Sen. Moynihan, as you know, has been a member of the Nixon administration in the past, in a very high official position. And he's well able to judge the knowledge that was possessed by that administration." In fact, telephone eavesdropping by Soviet "diplomats" in this country completely surprised the Senator.

Moynihan attributed the Carter response to the jocular instinct of a rough-and-tumble politician. But White House insiders say it goes deeper. "The President just doesn't care very much for Pat," one presidential aide told us. "He's too Northern, too much New York, too much Harvard." Less emotionally, another Carter aide revealed the concern of the Carter inner circle over Moynihan as a potential rival for the presidential nomination in 1980 second only to California's Gov. Jerry Brown.

What makes this hostility remarkable is that the two men have had little personal contact aside from some joint campaigning in 1976. The President telephoned Moynihan to seek, unsuccessfully, his support for Paul Warnke's confirmation as disarmament negotiator. But Moynihan has spent no private time in the presidential presence, socially or politically.

Epilepsy Victims' Hope

Agencies of government ordinarily move with the dazzling speed of a hippopotamus taking a mud bath, but there are exceptions. One of those happy exceptions may bring relief to epilepsy victims in the United States before the end of this year.

This is a story with no particular villains and no particular heroes, but the story of sodium valproate has a moral at the end: Where there's a will, there's a way. The Food and Drug Administration, working cooperatively with Abbott Laboratories, is about to find a way to get this drug on the domestic market.

A word on epilepsy: It is among the most terrifying and most puzzling of diseases. Something goes awry in the brain and in the nervous system; a victim goes into convulsions that may last two to five minutes; the attack is followed by a period of stupor. The exact cause of epilepsy is not known, but the National Commission on Epilepsy estimates that American victims experience twelve million seizures every year.

A word on sodium valproate: The drug is a molecule that has been known for about 100 years. Its anti-epileptic properties were discovered more or less by accident when French investigators used it as a solvent for some other anti-epileptic drugs under study. Once isolated, sodium valproate rapidly became the drug of choice in Europe for certain kinds of epilepsy. It became available in France in 1967, in Great Britain in 1972.

despite its spectacular success abroad, remains legally unavailable in the United States to this day. American victims, needing the drug, have had to travel to Europe or to rely on smugglers bringing it in. The situation recently was dramatically publicized by Dr. Bernard S. Abrahams, a wealthy industrialist of Columbus, Ohio, whose six-year-old daughter Felice began having seizures in January. Dr. Abrams flew to England, obtained a supply of the drug for his daughter, and pledged his help to seeking to make sodium valproate available here. NBC picked up the story. Members of Congress began asking questions of the FDA: Why couldn't American doctors prescribe the drug for their epileptic patients?

Ordinarily the FDA is fair game for congressional hunters seeking bureaucratic trophies. For a number of reasons, some of which make good sense, the FDA acts with monumental slowness. It is not unusual for ten years to elapse between the first filing on a new drug and the FDA's final approval for medical use. But the FDA cannot initiate applications: It can act only when it has something before it.

Big business also provides a fat and easy target for criticism, but it is hard to fault Abbott Laboratories in the case of sodium valproate. The company did not get its license from the French firm of Labaz until December 1974. It promptly filed an application for approval of an investigational new drug. In compliance with FDA's rules and protocols, Abbott then set methodically about the business of compiling new clinical data to support a formal new drug application.

Meanwhile, evidence of the drug's safety and effectiveness was piling up abroad. More than 200 papers in professional journals have accumulated. Last April the National Commission for the Control of Epilepsy held an all-day meeting with representatives of Abbott, the FDA and several neurological experts. The consensus was plain: The drug works; it is safe; it ought to be expedited.

The FDA now has agreed to do just that. Following a precedent set seven years ago, in the matter of L-Dopa, a drug of choice in the treatment of Parkinson's disease, the FDA will submit some of the foreign documentation to its panel of experts in October. Abbott, for its part, has already expanded its schedule for preclinical trials. Additional physicians will be authorized to prescribe sodium valproate. If all goes well, next year a million seizures may be prevented, and an economic loss of $200 million may be avoided.

Two observations: If the FDA's red tape can be cut so dramatically for sodium valproate, it is reasonable to suppose red tape could be cut for other drugs supported by solid evidence of their worth. Second, if the promoters of Laetrile had anything approaching the 200 professional papers approving sodium valproate, they would have a whale of a better case.

Budget Flight Fares

By MERRILL HARTSON

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Four major airlines, facing a challenge by a private British air carrier, are asking for permission to offer cut-rate air fares on transatlantic flights that offer a minimum of frills.

The rapidly escalating competition for thousands of potential overseas airline passengers began with approval of a low-cost, no-frills New York-to-London flight schedule for Laker Airways, a privately owned British company.

The Laker Airways proposal was accepted by the Civil Aeronautics Board in June and four U.S.-based carriers, concerned over the competition, have requested authority to adopt similar budget airline passenger Japanese, now completely in control of China's ancient capital, closed the gates of Peiping today, virtually imprisoning Americans and other foreigners within the walls as squadrons of Japanese war planes blasted a path for a thrust deep into China.

Japanese authorities said their planes had been bombing Chinese army concentrations for the last 24 hours. Japanese scouting planes were ranging as far south as Tsiman in Shantung province from 170 miles below Tientsin.

Authoritative reports to Nanking from northern Shantung province corroborated a belief that the Chinese Central Government was massing men on the southern edge of the hostilities zone. They said troops were moving by railroad, evidently toward the Hoph border.

Insurgent artillery opened a bombardment of Madrid's outer defenses today after driving a spearhead in Spanish government lines west of the capital.

Strength For Today

PIOUS JOHN HAWKINS

This famous English slave trader of the sixteenth century had three ships in which he carried his pathetic cargo from Africa to the West Indies. The names of these ships were The Jesus, The Angel, and The Grace of God.

Hawkins was a very religious man who believe in taking his religion right into his business. The fact that back in Africa the slave traders hunted these slaves like wild beasts, tore members of families from each other, put them in ships reeking with filth, and then cast the carcasses of nearly a third overboard when they perished on the journey, never seemed to make an impression on Hawkins.

What Hawkins did with his conscience we are not told, but he must have hogtied it pretty effectively and put it in the hold of his ship. It is well that he did. Had he not, he might have heard a voice on the good ship Jesus saying, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

To the editor:

We read with interest the editorial in the July 27 issue of The Daily Reflector. We certainly agree that if the peat in Washington, Tyrrell and Hyde Counties is a usable raw energy source, Electricities should be actively interested. The Vepco-served cities of Eastern North Carolina, through North Carolina Municipal Power Agency No. 2, have authorized base load generation studies for our member cities. Our engineers are investigating the feasibility of using peat as a primary or alternate fuel source for a generating plant located in the northeastern section of our state.

As you know, there will be many environmental considerations in use of this material. But, if a way can be found to use it and it proves to be economically feasible, I would hope that our Vepco-served cities would be the first to initiate electric generation from this raw energy source.

We will keep the public advised as our studies develop. Thank you for your concern.

Good Guidelines Help Investor

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Back in December 1974, when the stock market was at its worst in recent years, an investor challenged four others to a contest in which they would seek the greatest appreciation over a five-year period.

All five, two professional and three amateur members of the National Association of Investment Clubs' advisory committee, picked brand-new portfolios of 10 stocks each.

On July 1 the midpoint in the five-year challenge was reached, and the challenger was not faring so well, relatively speaking. He was in fourth place, with a gain of only 78.7 per cent.

During this time the Dow Jones industrial average rose 48.1 per cent, but the leader in the race showed a gain of 193.2 per cent. The other increases were 139.8 per cent, 118 per cent and 70.2.

Of the 50 common stocks chosen by the five committee members, only five declined, four of them being in the drug industry. The three leading portfolios showed no losses at all. The biggest gain was 432 per cent, by Trinity Industries, a metals fabricator purchased at $4.625, and which sold on July 1 at $24.625.

"This proves to me," said Thomas O'Hara, chairman of the associations board of trustees, "that the average individual investor using good guidelines can do quite well in the market."

Three basic premises were used by the five contestants, O'Hara said. Here they are, in his words:

1. "Believing that when a company is carefully chosen for its characteristics of growth it will continue to grow for a long period of time, the selection of stocks was restricted to companies that had appeared in NAIC's magazine, 'Better Investing,' during the past 25 years."

Each month the investment committee chooses one stock for study by its 5,600 member clubs, so the contestants had about 300 stocks from which to choose.

2. "No fear was felt for interest rate changes during the five-year period since it was assumed the Federal Reserve was managing interest rates for the total benefit of the country and that they would work out to the market's advantage in the five-year period."

3. "It was felt that the individual investor would tend to select non-institutional types of stocks in this period and that consequently such stocks would do better than the D-J averages."

Thus, the embryonic Carter-Moynihan feud stems not from abrasive personal contact but from an institutionalized, arm's-length hostility — somewhat similar to the anti-establishment hostilities Carter carried into the presidential campaign. Reaching the summit of power has not changed Mr. Carter's political style all that much.

Of more lasting importance, however, is Mr. Carter's obvious irritation with any Senator poking around into the President's conduct in the face of hostile Soviet behavior. Mr. Carter was reflecting the view held within his administration that detente, as a fragile flower vulnerable to the icy blasts of truth, must be protected. Besides, some intelligence officials claim the U.S. gets as much help from such eavesdropping as the Russians.

But this last point is contradicted by knowledgeable experts inside the government. If all listening in on microwaves were stopped by both countries, the U.S. would be a clear winner. In particular, these experts fear Soviet eavesdropping on New York City calls gives them economic information useful in manipulating markets.

Like many centrist Democrats, Moynihan felt at first that inbred instincts of a South Georgia farm boy and an ex-career naval officer were strong enough to overcome zealous detentists who surround him. But the President's reaction to Soviet eavesdropping, along with other trends in national security policy, suggests to Moynihan that environment outweighs heredity in influencing a President.

When he called a press conference Wednesday to unveil a bill designed to protect American citizens from foreign espionage, Moynihan mentioned none of these misgivings. Moynihan follows the old rule of many Irish politicians: don't get mad, get even. The Senator will not soon forget the President's crack at his Nixon antecedents. President Carter is flying so high today that it makes no difference, but on some tomorrow he may find he took on the wrong Senator on the wrong issue.

Investment Club members, who frequently outperform the averages, the mutual funds and other professional investors, adhere to three underlying tenets in managing their portfolios:

1. Invest regularly each month without trying to guess the ups and downs.
2. Reinvest dividends.
3. Try to select companies growing at a rate better than the particular industry and which have a record of five, preferably 10 years, of doing so.

With advice being the only thing free in the marketplace, records such as these speak for themselves and perhaps explain why the size of investment clubs has been growing of late.

Membership in the NAIC is available to clubs and to individuals, the latter at a $12 annual fee, by writing the National Association of Investment Clubs, 1515 East Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, Mich. 48067.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today from the eastern Gulf to the mid-Atlantic region. Showers are also indicated in California, Texas-Oklahoma and the Midwest and Great Lakes. Cooler weather is forecast for the northern Plains but most of the nation will be warm. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Beneficial rains covered a wide area of North Carolina Monday, as thunderstorms rolled over sections from the Piedmont to the coast. Some of the storms were so heavy they brought a severe thunderstorm watch from the National Weather Service.

A tornado was reported west of Wilson and some wind damage was reported, with trees and power lines downed.

Some areas received one to two inches of rain while others were skipped by the squalls which led a frontal zone that stalled along the coast during the night.

Plans To Sue If Entry Blocked

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Transsexual Dr. Renee Richards says she'll sue if officials try to block her entry into the Aug. 31 to Sept. 11 U.S. Open Tennis Tournament at Forest Hills, N.Y.

"I've gone through an entire year trying to be a lady about it. Without question, this time I will sue," Dr. Richards said Sunday after winning her first-round match at the Mutual Benefit Life Open.

rates. Trans International Airlines, the world's largest charter carrier, and Trans World Airways are the latest to succumb to the Laker Airways pressure. Both asked the CAB on Monday to approve low-cost transatlantic fares similar to those sanctioned for Laker.

Beginning in September, Laker Airways will offer a daily, no-frills, nonreservation "sky train" service between New York and London at roundtrip prices of $236. That compares with a $631 roundtrip price for a regular 14- to 21-day summer excursion.

Trans International wants a no-frills "Skybus" service between 14 U.S. cities and Brussels, Belgium. Fares would be less than half the cost of economy tickets on existing scheduled flights. For instance, one-way fares would be $139 from New York and $229 from California.

Trans International, based in Oakland, Calif., thus joined TWA, Pan American and Nationwide Leisure, another charter carrier, in bidding for transatlantic economy-rate passenger business.

There was no immediate indication when the board would act on the rate schedules proposed by the four U.S. carriers.

TWA is trying to match two low-fare. New York-to-London services proposed last week by Pan American, which filed its rate request after Laker Airways won approval of its Skytrain service. TWA and Pan American propose roundtrip standby flights at $256, or $20 more than the no-frills service provided by Laker Airways. British Airways, the government-owned air carrier, is offering a $290 roundtrip flight.

Laker Airways' no-frills flights will offer no free meals and no free in-flight entertainment.

Although the TWA and Pan American low-cost fares would be slightly higher than those of Laker Airways, passengers would get free movies and in-flight entertainment, said officials of the two airlines.

TWA said it would let passengers bring aboard two pieces of luggage weighing up to 110 pounds each. The luggage allowance for Laker will be 33 pounds.

CONDITION CRITICAL

CHICAGO (AP) — Alfred Lunt, one of the great actors of the American stage, is in critical condition following surgery for bladder cancer, says a spokesman at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

Obstacle To Health Care

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — "The major block to health care is the poorly informed American society," said Dr. William DeMaria, who will direct a special effort here to remove that block.

DeMaria is to be project director of an experimental effort to begin teaching children how to take proper care of their bodies, starting in kindergarten.

The program will proceed concentrating on children in the primary school grades. As it continues, health officials will compare disease rates in the group with established rates for the county at large to determine whether information really does improve health.

There may be government funds to expand the program if it looks like its working.

The program is a cooperative effort, financed by a $35,000 grant from Cannon Mills Co., with staff provided by the Duke University Medical Center, where DeMaria is a clinical professor of pediatrics.

The school systems of Cabarrus County, Concord and Kannapolis will all begin providing health information to young children and their families. DeMaria said the emphasis will be on diet.

The doctor said American children are accustomed to large amounts of salt, sugar and fat, generally eaten too fast. Not enough rough foods are included, which may be one reason two thirds of all North Carolinians aged 60 or older have lost their teeth.

Brooklyn Woman Dies Of Wound

NEW YORK (AP) — Stacy Moskowitz — her brain irreparably damaged by a .44-caliber slug that shattered her skull — is dead, the sixth victim of the killer who calls himself "Son of Sam."

The 20-year-old Brooklyn woman was pronounced dead at 5:22 p.m. Monday, after surgeons at Kings County Hospital had labored 3½ hours to save her life.

Three hours before, Chief of Detectives John Keenan had announced that 300 officers had been assigned to track down the .44-caliber killer, who has killed six and wounded seven in eight attacks over the past 369 days.

Miss Moskowitz was shot twice in the head Sunday as she and her date, Robert Violante, 20, parked in a lovers' lane under a full moon along a Brooklyn waterfront.

The last thing Violante saw in the instant between the time the first two bullets hit his date and a third slug hit his head was the face of the gunman.

Doctors say Violante may never be able to identify the murderer — he has only a 10 per cent chance ever to see again. The bullet that passed through his head behind the bridge of his nose destroyed one eye and seriously damaged the other.

Dr. William Shuchart, director of the hospital's department of neurosurgery, said Miss Moskowitz' heart had stopped "at least a half dozen times" during the day.

"She would have been a vegetable had she survived,"

City Counts 2 Collisions

An estimated $2,000 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police here yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 9:10 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and May Street involving cars driven by Betty Ann Cooper of Route 7, Greenville, and Charlie Thomas Knott of Oxford.

No charges were reported by investigators who estimated damage at $250 to the Cooper car and $900 to the Knott vehicle.

An 11:30 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards involved cars driven by Charles Martin Knoblauch of Lake Worth, Fla., and Barbara Martin Woodruff of Micro, according to investigators.

Officers estimated damage at $700 to the Knoblauch car and $150 to the Woodruff vehicle.

Bernard King Pleads Guilty

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bernard King is now free to pursue a pro basketball career after pleading guilty in Knox County General Sessions Court to resisting arrest and possessing marijuana.

The first-round draft choice of the New Jersey Nets was fined $50 and given a 60-day suspended sentence on each charge Monday after two other charges, attempted larceny and prowling, were dismissed.

King, 20, was accused of trying to steal a $1,500 videotape television from the University of Tennessee's athletic department on July 10. He was arrested inside the school's athletic center and police found the television in the back of his car parked outside.

Six days later, the two-time Associated Press All-America choice was arrested in an apartment building on the three other charges.

King was selected by the Nets in June after he announced he was giving up his senior year at Tennessee to turn pro under the hardship draft. The arrests and subsequent legal proceedings have delayed negotiations on a contract.

King would not talk to newsmen Monday. Bill Banks, his attorney in the court cases, said Donald Dell, King's attorney in the contract talks, advised his client to say nothing.

"He's a fortunate young man," said Nets' General Manager Bill Melchionni. The important thing is to get him playing basketball and out of this cloud he has been under. We have to get him straightened out, get him to have a professional attitude on the court as well as off. He is fortunate because this could have seriously jeopardized his career.

"Before the week is out we plan to sit down with him and his representatives and we may have him signed by the end of the week."

A 6-7 forward from Brooklyn, N.Y., King was the leading scorer and rebounder in the Southeastern Conference the past season, averaging 25.6 points and 14.3 rebounds a game.

His younger brother, Albert, was considered the top high school prospect in the nation last season and will attend the University of Maryland this fall.

Judge Harold Wimberly of Knox County General Sessions Court approved an agreement between King and the prosecution after reading a letter from Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff to Dist. Atty. Gen. Ronald Webster.

"Coach Ray Mears has reported that there may be reasonable doubt about Bernard's intent to commit a criminal act," Woodruff's letter said.

Mears, Tennessee's basketball coach, said it is not unusual for athletes to borrow the videotape equipment, but they usually ask for permission first. King said he intended to only borrow the device to show films of his games to a girl friend.

"The state just can't prove that the defendant intended to permanently deprive the owner of the property," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. Rex McGee.

McGee said the prowling charge was dropped because there was no evidence the King was in the apartment complex illegally. "It was a misunderstanding; he was there to visit a friend," McGee said.

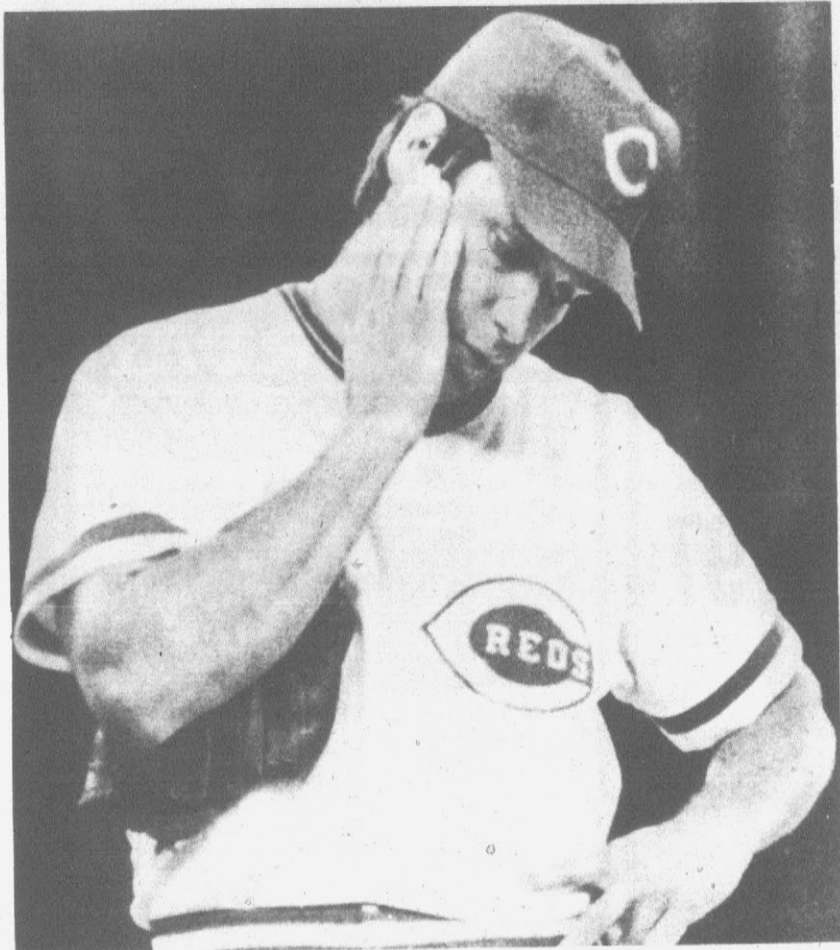

Judge Wimberly said suspension of the 60-day sentences to the Knox County Penal Farm could be revoked if King returned to Knoxville and got into more trouble. King moved to Washington, D.C. last month.

"He understands that," Banks said. "You are not going to have any more trouble from Bernard King."

Reuschel Avoids Foster; Driessen Smacks A Triple

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Paul Reuschel looked toward home plate and saw George Foster in the batter's box, waving a bat that looked like a king-size war club.

"I just didn't want to give him anything to hit," said the Chicago Cub relief pitcher.

He didn't. He walked the streaking Cincinnati hitter in the tense eighth-inning situation and decided to take his chances with Dan Driessen.

It was the right move for Reuschel, but the results turned out all wrong for the Cubs. Driessen smashed a tie-breaking triple that started the Reds to a 7-6 victory Monday night.

It was no consolation for Reuschel that the Reds thought he did the proper thing in avoiding Foster. The Cincinnati left fielder had driven in four earlier runs with a pair of two-run homers, boosting his major league-leading totals to 34 homers and 102 RBI.

"If I was a pitcher, I wouldn't be pitching to Foster," said Driessen. "I'd rather pitch to me."

In other National League action, the New York Mets tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 in 12 innings; the Houston Astros edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 11 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Atlanta Braves 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants routed the Montreal Expos 9-2.

Pedro Borbon hurled 2-2-3 innings in relief of Tom Seaver to earn the victory for Cincinnati. Foster's home runs both came after two-out walks to Joe Morgan, in the first and third innings.

Mets 8, Dodgers 7

Joel Youngblood's run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the 12th lifted New York over Los Angeles. The loss ended a five-game winning streak for the runaway leaders in the National League West.

Astros 4, Pirates 3

Jose Cruz slammed Rich Gosage's first pitch into the right field seats in the bottom of the 11th to lift Houston over Pittsburgh.

Cardinals 6, Braves 5

Jerryumphrey broke a tie in the sixth inning with his second run-scoring double of the game, boosting St. Louis over Atlanta.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Willie McCovey's grand slam homer keyed a five-run third inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

Pitt Babe Ruth Stars Defeated

DURHAM — Pitt County's 13-year-old Babe Ruth all-stars couldn't come up with the hits when they needed them and lost a state playoff game to Charlotte last night, 7-0.

The loss puts the local team in the loser's bracket against Asheville tonight. The winner of that game will meet Charlotte tomorrow for the championship of the double elimination event. Charlotte is undefeated and two games will be played tomorrow night if necessary.

Pitt County left 10 runners on base, according to coach Billy Wooten, several of them on third. Excellent fielding by Charlotte robbed the team of needed hits and prevented it from getting a run across.

Charlotte scored all seven of its runs in the second inning on four hits and four walks. Details of the frame were not available.

Pitt County pitcher Art Rouse, who came in to relieve loser Kevin Battle, gave up no hits after the second inning. Chris Stephenson was the winner for Charlotte.

Free Agents In NBA Draw Little Interest

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — National Basketball Association players are finding that free agency is not all it was cracked up to be.

Most of the 55 players who became free agents at the close of last season have discovered little interest in the marketplace for their talents. Only three have changed teams. Two signed with their old clubs. The rest sit and wait — anxiously, since training camp is barely more than a month away.

Larry Fleisher, executive director of the NBA Players Association, is not happy about this lack of movement and has raised the possibility of court action unless the situation improves.

"We're all concerned and unhappy," Fleisher said Monday. "I'm not certain where it's going to lead."

One place might be the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Robert L. Carter. He's the judge who approved the long-term agreement signed last year between the NBA and its Players Association.

Under that agreement, a player got the right to play out the final year of his contract and become a free agent, but through the 1980 season any team signing such a free agent must give his old team compensation. If the clubs can't agree on compensation, then Commissioner Larry O'Brien makes the decision.

The first free agent to change hands this winter was Len Robinson, the muscular young forward who went from Atlanta to New Orleans, signing a four-year contract for a reported $1.6 million. The clubs have been unable to agree on compensation, but O'Brien has not yet made a ruling.

Would a decision by the commissioner on the Robinson compensation issue open up the free agent logjam?

"That works on the assumption that there is legitimacy on the part of the clubs," said Fleisher, "and that one of the reasons they're not signing players is that they don't know what kind of compensation they're going to have to pay. I'm not convinced that's the only reason they're not signing players. I think that's one of two reasons. The other is that they simply don't want to sign any players."

That is why Fleisher is considering legal action. He feels the agreement between the NBA and the Players Association, which had been hailed as a landmark among sports-labor pacts, is being violated.

Southern Pitt All-Stars Win

LAURINBURG — Eddie Roberson homered in the first extra inning to give the Southern Pitt Little League all-stars a 9-8 victory over Pembroke in the first round of the state tournament yesterday.

Ken Whitehurst had stolen home for Southern Pitt to tie the game in the sixth and send it into extra frames. He and Bernard Ricciarelli were the leading hitters for Southern Pitt with two home runs each.

Ronnie Gay was the winning pitcher in relief.

Southern Pitt will meet Sanford Wednesday night in the tournament semi-finals.

North State 2nd

GOLDSBORO — Greenville's North State Little League all-stars finished second in the Goldsboro Boys' Club Baseball Tournament held here this past weekend.

The Greenville club lost its first game last Thursday, falling into the losers' bracket in the double elimination tournament.

Friday, Troy Hudson pitched a one-hitter to lead the team to a victory over Wayne County.

The team played a grueling four-game slate on Saturday, losing the championship game to Elizabeth City 8-2. Saturday saw John Catlett pitch a no-hitter against Mt. Olive and Terry Smith hurl a one-hitter against Southern Wayne.

Hudson, John Parnell, Jeff Wilson and Kenny Kirkland were the leading hitters during the tournament for Greenville. Kirkland, who hit five home runs, was named the most valuable player.

The team was coached by Ernest Kootz, Jim Jester and Ray Wilson.

Petty Now Leads

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With 12 stock car races left on the NASCAR Grand National circuit, Richard Petty has wrestled the lead from Cale Yarborough in the battle for the 1977 national championship.

Petty's second place finish at Pocono, Pa., Sunday gave him 2,958 points for the year. Yarborough, who finished sixth, has 2,950.

Benny Parsons, who won at Pocono, is third with 2,723, followed by Darrell Waltrip 2,670; Buddy Baker 2,428; Richard Brooks 2,302; Cecil Gordon 2,136; Richard Childress 2,045; Bobby Allison 2,035, and James Hylton 1,966.

Winterville Jaycees Win

JACKSONVILLE — The Winterville Jaycees won the Southeast Region Softball Tournament held here Sunday, winning four games in the double elimination event with no losses.

The Winterville team will now represent the Southeast Region in the N. C. Jaycee State Tournament in Reidsville August 12-13.

Bostock Leads Twins

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Lyman Bostock isn't looking for a walk when he gets up to the plate.

"I've always thought you swing at anything in the strike zone," says the Minnesota center fielder. "I don't give the pitchers much of a chance to walk me."

Kansas City pitchers might have been better off to issue Bostock a free pass Monday night. He went 3-for-4, banging out a home run, double and single and raising his batting average to .343 while knocking in four runs as the Twins clubbed the Kansas City Royals 9-5.

"Lyman is one of the finest hitters in the game," said Twins Manager Gene Mauch. "There is absolutely no restriction in his swing. He's a very intense player."

The victory was Minnesota's 12th in its last 16 games as the Twins moved ahead of Kansas City into second place in the American League West, 4½ games behind the Chicago White Sox.

In other AL games Monday, Toronto nipped Milwaukee 3-2, Texas defeated Chicago 11-6 and California downed New York 4-1.

Bostock's hitting was backed

by 3 2-3 scoreless innings of pitching by reliever Tom Johnson. Johnson picked up his 12th save of the season while preserving Geoff Zahn's 10th victory against eight losses.

Orioles 5, A's 1

Kiko Garcia and pinch-hitter Andre Mora blasted home runs to lead Baltimore over Oakland. The victory gave the Orioles a one-half game lead over Boston in the American League East race.

Rudy May, 12-9, tossed a nine-hitter for the Orioles, posting his 100th career victory, but needed last-out help from reliever Dick Drago.

Blue Jays 3, Brewers 2

Ron Fairly's 200th career homer — a three-run shot in the sixth inning — lifted Toronto past Milwaukee. Fairly lined the two-out pitch from loser Larry Sorensen, 2-5, over the right field fence for his 14th home run of the season.

The four-bagger gave rookie Jim Clancy, 1-1, his first major league victory.

Rangers 11, White Sox 6

Jim Sundberg drove in three runs with a home run, a single and a squeeze bunt, and scored four times as Texas tied a major league record with eight sacrifices in its victory over Chicago.

The eight sacrifices, five on bunts and three on flies, tied a record held by four other teams.

Winner Gaylord Perry, 10-8, ran his string of scoreless innings to 23 before the White Sox knocked him out of the game with three runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Angels 4, Yankees 1

Ken Brett's six-hitter gave California its victory over New York as he out-duelled the Yankees' Catfish Hunter, 6-6. It was the third straight victory for Brett, 9-8.

Young Jockey Jean-Luc Samyn Is Big Talker

Apprentice jockey Jean-Luc Samyn, the Flying Frenchman, is far behind Steve Cautchen in winners, but he's 10 lengths ahead and driving when it comes to talking.

Jean-Luc, New York's best apprentice since Silent Steve lost his five-pound weight allowance, has been speaking English for less than two years, so he has some catching up to do.

An AP Sports Analysis

"My English, it is not so bad, is it?" asked Samyn before he left for Monday's opening at Saratoga, New York's thoroughbred racing headquarters for the month of August. "I have been here for a year and a half and I already talk better than Cruguet."

Jean Cruguet, the French jockey who tasted Triple Crown success aboard Seattle Slew, cringes and says: "He's so crazy. All he does is talk, talk, talk."

Jean-Luc's retort: "He's my father. You know how parents are."

Samyn, a happy-go-lucky 20-year-old, has been more than just talk on the racetrack. He won 17 races, three of them $25,000 events, at Belmont, riding for such top trainers as Buddy Hirsch, Lucien Laurin, Pancho Martin and LeRoy Jolley.

Samyn came to America in November, 1975, after a 17-race career in France. "I came for a one-month vacation. I wanted to ride some horses here, just so I could say I've ridden American horses. Then Buddy Hirsch saw me, and said: 'You ride good, I want you to ride for me.'"

Samyn worked in South Carolina with Hirsch, who helped him with his riding and his English.

The early going was rough for the friendly Frenchman, who was not given an apprentice allowance in New York because he had a contract to ride in France. He then went to Monmouth and Garden State in New Jersey and Keystone in Pennsylvania.

He became the top apprentice (first-year jockeys get a five-pound weight reduction) at Monmouth and Garden State and No. 2 at Keystone. His successes prompted New York's racing officials to allow Samyn the five-pound bug at Belmont.

Samyn's earnings on his winning mounts are 10 per cent so the little Frenchman has taken an immediate liking to American capitalism.

"I'm going to stay here," says Samyn, a baker's son. "There's big, big liberty here. Everything I want is here. I can make lots of money."

With the money comes the luxuries, like an apartment near Belmont, a television set and a car. The apartment near Belmont is for convenience since he exercises horses in the wee hours of the morning. The TV is for his enjoyment and "to learn English," and the car, a Chrysler Cordoba, is for comfort.

Samyn says French jockeys riding in America are not that popular back home. "In France, we don't like American jockeys, and in America, they don't like French jockeys."

Briefly In Sports

By The Associated Press

TOKYO (AP) — Willie Davis, the 36-year-old former San Diego Padres slugger, has been named player of the month by Japan's Central League.

Davis, who is playing his first year of professional baseball with the Chunichi Dragons, cracked 25 hits and scored 21 RBI in the month of July, the league said Monday. He had two triples, three doubles and 10 home runs, including a two-run shot that capped his best game of the month against the Yakult Swallows Sunday night at Nagoya ball park.

His batting average for the month was .357. He is the third foreign player to win the league's most valuable player distinction.

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Pro basketball guards Henry Bibby of the Philadelphia 76ers, Al Skinner of the New York Nets and John Williamson of the Indiana Pacers will play in the 19th annual Maurice Stokes Memorial Game on Aug. 9.

The game is played annually at Monticello for charity.

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Sounders will be without center back Dave Gillett for the last two games of the season against Hawaii Thursday and Los Angeles Sunday.

A spokesman for the North American Soccer League club said Monday that Gillett is being suspended from the Los Angeles game as a result of his ejection from the game against Rochester last Saturday. He has accumulated 19 points in penalties, one over the limit, and was suspended as a result.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Michael Bilandic says Chicago is interested in hosting the 1984 Summer Olympics but not in picking up the full tab for the event.

Worse Water Shortages May Lie Ahead For East

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Water shortages far worse than any caused by the current drought may be in store for some communities in North Carolina if they don't start planning now to avert them, state officials say.

The recent lack of rain has meant emergency action is needed to supply water to Wendell and Zebulon in Wake County and to the Chapel Hill-Carboro area.

Sparta, Kernersville and Henderson have water supply problems for other reasons.

John Wray, chief of the state Water Resources Planning Branch, said studies show that areas from the western foothills to the Outer Banks could face similar or more severe shortages in the future.

Wells are fairly dependable sources of water, Peek said. In times of drought, the groundwater level may drop two feet and require a well's pumps to be lowered, but the wells themselves rarely run dry, he said.

that yielded only six to seven gallons of water per minute each, far less than the minimum 40 gallons a minute needed for wells to be useful, Irwin said.

A third attempt on Monday seemed to have failed as well. By the time the well was 300 feet deep, Irwin said, it was still only yielding 15 to 20 gallons a minute.

The town is trying to secure another site that it hopes will produce a productive well, Irwin said. In the meantime, the two car washes and two coin laundromats in Sparta have been shut down indefinitely and residents have been asked to cut back on water use.

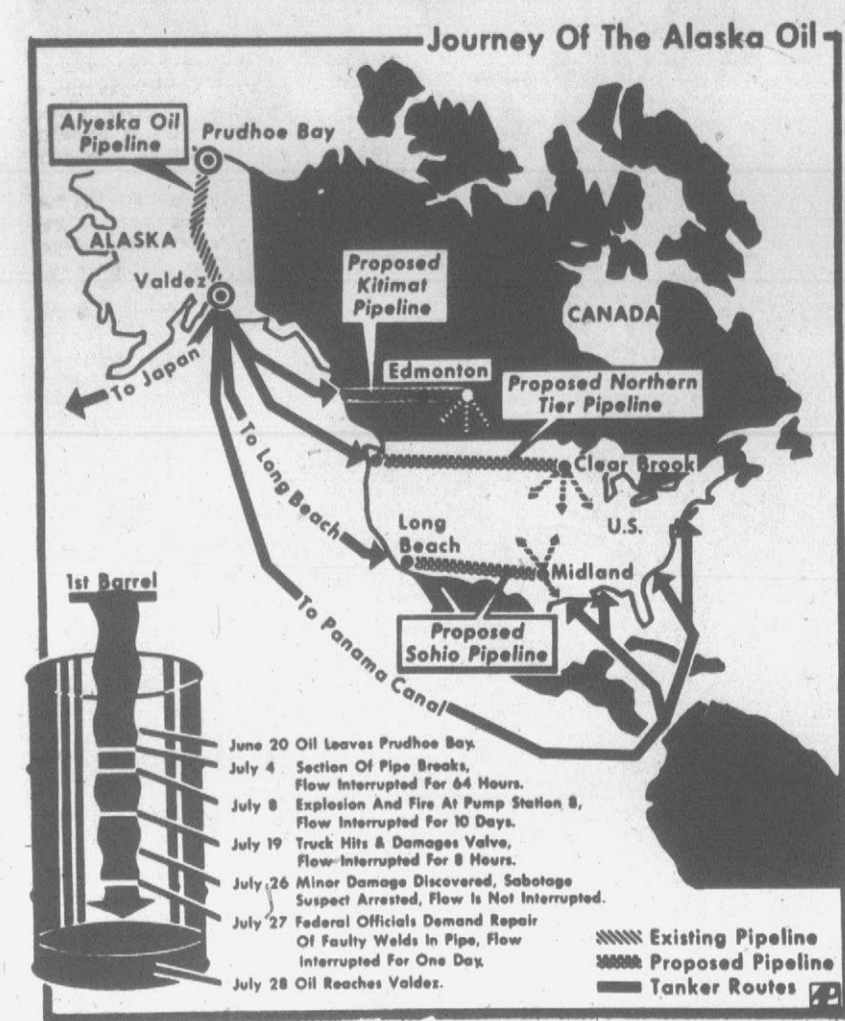

But creating new wells is not always easy, Peek said, particularly in the mountain and Piedmont areas, where their depth is limited by the hard rock foundations underground.

In addition, it is difficult to determine whether a location will be a good one for a well until the well is dug, as officials in the Allegheny County community of Sparta are learning.

Sparta Town Manager Barry Irwin said the town's water supply has been dwindling rapidly over the past several weeks. The drought was partly to blame, but the main problem was a leaking valve that was not found until Sunday, Irwin said.

Because of the leak, about 50,000 gallons of water a day, one-fourth of the daily yield of the town's eight wells, was running back into the well instead of being pumped out to the storage reservoir, he added.

To replenish the depleted reservoir, town officials decided to drill another well. But the first two attempts produced wells

JOURNEY OF THE ALASKA OIL — Chart depicts the flow of Alaskan oil which began its journey through the newly opened Alyeska oil pipeline from Prudhoe Bay June 20. After several delays, the first of the oil completed the 800-mile journey to Valdez July 28. Initial transport of the oil from the port of Valdez will be by tanker, with three pipelines proposed for delivery of Alaskan oil from Pacific oil terminals to existing pipelines. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Freedom After Life Sentence

WOODLAND, Calif. (AP) — Louis Buckner sits these days on the wide front porch of a Woodland rest home, enjoying his freedom after serving a 37-year prison term for a $12.74 shoplifting conviction.

Buckner, a native of the Mexican mountain town of Puebla, is one of the estimated 1,100 to 1,300 California prison inmates who will be freed this year under a new law reforming prison terms.

Speaking in halting, imperfect English, the 70-year-old Buckner clearly repeats important dates in his case.

Buckner's story was pieced together from court records, and interviews with the Woodland Democrat with old-timers in this Sacramento Valley agricultural community.

The newspaper reported that on Nov. 7, 1940, Buckner, then 33, quit his job at a sugar beet camp because he said he couldn't keep up with the pace of the work.

Buckner walked into town with two possessions, 25 cents in change and a blanket to ward off the chilly autumn weather. Minutes later, he was captured on his hands and knees in a local department store with four dresses stuffed in a paper bag.

His record showed two previous convictions, burglary of a home in Idaho in 1931 and the theft of a woman's $16 overcoat in Stockton in 1934.

On the basis of two previous convictions, Buckner was sentenced for his misdemeanor shoplifting conviction to life in prison.

That law was repealed five years later, but Buckner remained in prison, with periodic transfers in and out of state mental hospitals for treatment. Authorities said he spent a total of 29 years in the hospitals.

Confidentiality laws prohibit the hospitals from discussing Buckner's treatment, but he has receipts showing that he was assigned to various work crews.

He was finally released under a law setting specific terms for various crimes, and putting new restrictions on the incarceration of convicted persons in mental hospitals.

Arrest Man On Forgery Counts

Greenville Police yesterday arrested Carl Jeffery Teel, 24 of 1220B Ebrum Rd. on forgery charges in connection with two incidents here in June.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Teel allegedly forged two checks given to the Winn-Dixie store here, one on June 11 for $37 and the second on June 18 for $27.

Spotty Showers Said Enough To Help Farms

RALEIGH (AP) — Thunder-showers were spotty around eastern North Carolina Monday afternoon but farm experts said they were enough to save desperate growers several million dollars in revived crops.

The thundershowers were triggered by a cold front that moved from the mountains to the coast. They bypassed much of the western part of the state but, in the east, they revived sagging tobacco and soybean crops over a wide area.

Although most places received less than an inch of rain, agricultural experts said the rain was a lifesaver for farmers.

"It's a blessing any way you look at it," said Dan Tucker of the N. C. Crop Reporting Service. Tucker had been issuing progressively worsening reports on the state's money crops as the drought developed through June and July.

"For yield and production," said Tucker, "it's just invaluable. For tobacco and soybeans, especially, it was a miracle."

Some rainfall amounts included Williamston 1.70 inches, Goldsboro 1.26, Rocky Mount .60, Raleigh-Durham .59 and Elizabeth City .20.

Several eastern counties got no help from the rains. Extension agents in Wilson, Johnston, Lee, Harnett, Pitt, Robeson, Sampson and Wayne counties reported no appreciable rainfall.

In the Raleigh-Durham area, the showers were the first since July 26, when a quarter-inch fell. The last rain before that, also about a quarter-inch, was July 10.

For some eastern counties, Monday's rains were the first significant showers since late May.

Agricultural agents said the showers by no means ended the drought but at least staved off further crop damage for the time being. "It has to help — every little bit helps," said state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham. "Some of the damage can't be righted by this little bit but it'll be of some help."

The rain did not arrive in time to save ruined corn crops but it helped tobacco, the top cash crop, where it fell. Stunted tobacco will respond to the moisture by "filling out and gaining weight," according to Tucker.

Bids Are Approved On School Projects

WILLIAMSTON — Approval of bids for additional space and repair of roofs was the major item of action for members of the Martin County Board of Education at its August meeting on Monday.

The bid approved for the addition of two classrooms and office space at Edna Andrews School in Hamilton was for $88,000. The bid to repair roofs at buildings of the West Martin and Williamston Junior High plants was for $32,000.

In other actions, the board:

Approved election and contracts of nine new staff people to replace teachers who have resigned or retired; and authorized acceptance of seven students from the Beaufort County School District into Martin County schools.

School board member Macon Holiday was reappointed to the Board of Trustees of the Martin County Community College for an eight year term; Paul Harris was appointed to the Roanoke High School Advisory Board, and Mrs. Sharon Harris was appointed to the Robersonville Local Advisory Committee.

Offer Checking Blood Pressure

Blood pressure testing is a free service of Clow Drug Store here, being offered each Sunday and Wednesday afternoon.

Clow Pharmacist Gene Minton said either he or Pharmacist Mike Wright will perform the tests on anyone who wishes them. The hours are from 1 to 6 p. m. Sundays and from 1 to 7 p. m. Wednesdays.

He said this past Sunday was the first time the service was offered and that 38 persons took advantage of it. Of these, he said, two persons who said they did not know they had any problem with high blood pressure were referred to their physicians because high readings were noted. RN Sarah Wright did the testing Sunday.

Millionaire Cuts Asking Price

NEW YORK (AP) — It's smart to be thrifty, and Henry Heinz II — of the family that gave America 57 varieties — knows that even millionaires tend to be bargain hunters.

So he and his wife, eager to sell, have slashed $115,000 from the $500,000 asking price for their 21-room, triplex co-operative apartment overlooking the river at East 52nd Street.

Report Idi Amin Fathered Twins

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Uganda radio has announced that Idi Amin has fathered twin boys — increasing his brood to an estimated 33 children by at least five wives.

The state radio interrupted regular programming Monday evening to announce that Madina Amin, regarded as the Ugandan dictator's senior wife, gave birth to the twins in Mulago Hospital in Kampala. The broadcast was monitored here.

HOT WATCH 95. A WAY TO HELP KEEP ELECTRIC COSTS UNDER CONTROL.

The plan is really very simple. It begins when the temperature hits 95° or above. And it gives us all a great chance to do our part to help control energy use and electric costs.

The plan of action: Hot Watch 95.
When weekday temperatures go to 95° or higher, put Hot Watch 95 into action. This means, whenever possible, doing household chores that use a lot of electricity before 10 in the morning and after 10 at night. Be extra careful about using your water heater, range, washing machine, clothes dryer and dishwasher during the hottest parts of the day — since these are your largest power consumers.

Here's why.
Electricity, unlike oil or gas, can't be stored today. It's generated at the same moment it's used. So, as industries and businesses and consumers all use more electricity, the demand for electricity grows. And the need for more generating plants grows.

That's why, on really hot days, if everyone would spread out the times for using electricity — to cooler times of the day — it would help reduce some of this peak demand. By reducing the peak, the need for new construction could be postponed. This, in turn, would help us achieve the one thing we all want: keeping future electric costs under control.

Linda Lavin Intended To Be A Singer; Has Non-Singing Role

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's one of life's little ironies that Linda Lavin grew up intending to be a singer, now plays a widow lady who dreams of being a singer, but doesn't get to sing on-camera in her series.

Miss Lavin, star of CBS' "Alice," only sings off-camera.

That's her fine, husky, jazz-flavored vocalizing you hear doing the show's theme song.

The rest of the time she just goes about her business as Alice Hyatt, mother of a 12-year-old boy, waitressing in a rundown Phoenix cafe full of assorted joke-cracking characters.

"The original concept was that Alice would do some singing, play the local Ramada Inn, but concepts change," said Miss L., a veteran of Broadway musicals as well as stage and TV dramas.

What happened, she said, is that CBS "decided it probably wouldn't be a good idea to have Alice always talking about wanting to go to Hollywood to be a singer, that she shouldn't be complaining.

"It felt she should be resigned to finding stimulation from her life and job as a waitress in a diner because she has a boy to raise.

"They thought it (the singing dream) was too frustrating to work on, also that people don't want to sit and listen to somebody sing in a sitcom for five minutes.

"I think the idea is, when her son gets through high school, then she could pursue her dream — if we're on the air long enough."

Miss Lavin, whose series has been renewed by CBS for a second season, wasn't griping and indeed insisted she couldn't be happier with the show than she is now.

The diminutive, brown-haired actress, who sounds faintly Brooklyn but was raised in Portland, Maine, was asked if she's been doing any singing to keep her hand in.

Yep, beamed the lady who made her Broadway debut in 1965 in "It's a Bird...It's a Plane...It's Superman."

She said she's had several shots on Merv Griffin's talk-variety show — "He's been wonderful to me" — as well as musical appearances on the Mike Douglas and Dinah Shore programs.

And, she said, she did her first prime-time network program as an on-camera singer last spring on CBS' "Critics' Choice" awards show.

Miss Lavin, who plays piano, said she's thinking of working up a club act now, but is in no rush to do a record album simply to capitalize — as have some TV stars — on the fact she's in a series.

She also emphasized she's not frustrated that while she can sing, her "Alice" doesn't.

Second Try Is Most Successful

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Szyzzyk" is Ned Beatty's second attempt at a television pilot, and, so far, his most successful.

Three years back he was cast as the father in the first version of Alan Alda's "We'll Get By." But he didn't get by and was recast right out of the show.

"They fired the parents and kept the kids," said Beatty. Which may have been a blessing, since the show quickly went under.

"Szyzzyk" went through similar gyrations, with two pilots being made. But this time most of the other cast went and Beatty remained.

"Szyzzyk." Oh, yeah, it's Sizz-nick. Nick Szyzzyk. Polish.

In this summer tryout series, Beatty plays a retired Marine sergeant who becomes a supervisor at community center in Washington, D.C. He finds the kids who frequent the playground aren't as easy to control as recruits.

Beatty, widely known for his roles in "Deliverance," "Network," "White Lightning," "Nashville" and "Silver Streak," stars in the series with Olivia Cole, who was in "Roots."

He said he was fascinated that the shows were taped in front of an audience like "a one-act play."

Asked how he got involved, he said, "All I remember is being called into a meeting after reading the script. I was told they wanted me. I believe that was back in October. I talked to the other actors and we went into production.

"Then we had to reshoot the pilot. The first time I was just an outdoor playground. Now it's a community center with a gymnasium. The first time I was married and had a father-in-law. This time I'm a bachelor."

Beatty said the second time he was involved a little more in the creation.

"I wanted a wide open feeling about the show," he said. "I wanted everyone to have an input. Every actor on a show like this has to have the right to say if he is uncomfortable."

"I was working with a lot of young actors and it's easy for them to feel overwhelmed. I believe the more input the better, even if it gets to be crazy. One young actor came up with the secret of what the first show was all about."

In that first show — which was not available for review — Beatty's job at the community center is being discontinued.

He said, "That young actor said what happens when people come up against an outside force they can't fight is that they turn on each other. Once we got hold of that premise it worked out great. That's why I believe everyone working a show should have the right to make comments.

"My experience has led me to believe the auteur theory of filmmaking is nonsense. I've worked with some powerful directors, but they can't put something on film if the actors don't create. Robert Altman has a great signature on films, but his films have to be the most cooperative going."

INDICTED — Former Rep. Edw. A. Garnatz, D-Md., above, was indicted Monday in Washington on a federal charge of conspiring to accept about $20,000 in bribes from two shipping companies in exchange for allegedly pushing legislation benefiting the companies. (AP Wirephoto)

Speaking of Your Health...
Lester L. Coleman, M.D.
Occupations Play Role in Disease

I find in the practice of medicine that both my patients and I fall into a serious error. It is too rare that we talk about their occupations and inquire into the possibility that their work may be a factor in the production of the symptoms they complain about.

A wise physician, Dr. Leon J. Warshaw, recently quoted Sherlock Holmes who said, "On meeting a fellow mortal, learn at a glance to distinguish the history of the man and the trade or profession to which he belongs. . . . By a man's fingernails, by his coat sleeves, by his boots, by his trouser-knees, by the callouses of his forefinger and thumb, by his expression, by each of these things a man's calling is plainly revealed."

Physicians can get many subtle, but important clues that may help solve some of their more complicated cases by learning more about a man's occupation.

It's important for the doctor to obtain from the patient details about the kind of work he does, and the environment in which it is done.

A great many people work around chemicals, fumes, and other noxious agents which, after a long period of time, may cause signs and symptoms that can be confusing.

Occasionally, it may be necessary to advise against returning to a particular job because the total working environment may be hazardous to some people.

Fortunately, most large industries today have medical directors who carefully screen workers from obvious hazards. They set up protective devices which reduce injury and illness.

Dr. Warshaw, who is a member of the American Occupational Medicine Association, said, "Learning about your patient's work, the environment in which he does it, and his attitude towards it will help doctors treat the patient as a total human being."

The Census Bureau says the population of New York in 1703 totaled 20,665, of whom 51 per cent were under 16 years of age.

Ready Porn Law's Test

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's new anti-pornography law may get its first test in Wake County, and officials met Monday to prepare for it.

Wake Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell conferred with officials of the state Justice Department.

American Civil Liberties Union leaders have reaffirmed their intention to test the law on the first case, which appears likely to be in Wake because of local interest in it.

Another possibility is that the first case will be in Cumberland County, where Fayetteville residents are hoping the new law will be of help in cleaning up that city's notorious Hay Street.

The law allows an attorney general or a district attorney to file a civil suit against an adults-only establishment, asking that it be declared a public nuisance.

Being legless helps rather than hinders a snake's locomotion, particularly in brush or rough terrain, says the American Museum of Natural History.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market pulled back today amid evidence of a recent tightening of credit by the Federal Reserve.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.78 at 889.03.

Losers led gainers by a 7-4 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading remained quiet. Big Board volume amounted to 4.64 million shares in the first hour.

Analysts said there had been strong signs in recent days that the Fed was tightening credit by encouraging short term interest rates to rise.

Speculation began last week that the central bank would soon follow that up by raising the discount rate—the charge it makes on loans to its member commercial banks.

Brokers also noted that investors were unimpressed with the market's showing Monday, when the Dow built up an early 6-point gain only to pull back afterward, closing with a 1.74-point advance.

Bethlehem Steel led the active list, down 1 at 22 1/2 in trading that included a 200,000-share block at 22 1/2.

The stock fell more than 6 points last week on a dividend cut.

Boeing rose 3/4 to 59 1/2 after 2 1/2-point jump Monday, when the company posted sharply higher quarterly earnings and declared a 2-for-1 stock split and a dividend increase.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was off .17 at 54.10, and the American Stock Exchange market value index lost .13 to 120.27.

Plan Plant More Grief For At Pinetops Wake Sheriff

PINETOPS - Plans for the opening of a facility here to build low-voltage instrument transformers were announced this week by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Harley Gilleland Jr., department manager for instrument transformers headquartered in Raleigh, said that Westinghouse has purchased the facility, which formerly housed Puritan Sportswear just northwest of Pinetops, and 25 acres of land.

Gilleland reported that Westinghouse will begin immediately to prepare the building for manufacturing operations with production scheduled to begin in 1978.

Hiring for the new plant will begin in the second quarter of 1978, it was reported. Employment will eventually number around 120 to 130 people, the department manager added.

The instrument transformers are used in revenue metering by electric utilities and in relay protection schemes by all phases of industry.

David F. Wright has been named manager of operations at the new plant.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Wake County Sheriff Robert J. Pleasants, just acquitted on charges of neglecting his duties, will face another round of trouble over campaign contributions, the News and Observer of Raleigh reports in today's editions.

Wake Dist. Atty. Burley B. Mitchell Jr. said Monday that he would prosecute Pleasants sometime after Aug. 26 on a misdemeanor charge of filing a late campaign-spending report, according to the newspaper.

Burley said he plans this week to examine a state Board of Elections report issued last spring that alleged the sheriff failed to report promptly some $680 in contributions to the Democratic party.

Pleasants allegedly failed to report contributions since 1974 which came from a special fund to which deputies were required to donate funds.

Such violations are punishable by jail terms up to one year and fines up to $1,000.

The elections board report shows that the sheriff provided food for a party convention, and contributed cash to various campaigns, including $50 to U.S. Sen. Robert B. Morgan. The money came from the sheriff's flower fund.

The fund is replenished with $1 a month from each deputy and cash paid the department for security services which de-uties provide at the state fair. Pleasants was acquitted Friday on a charge that he wilfully failed to perform his duties in office by a jury in Wake County Superior Court. Three other former jailers, J. C. High, W. Steve Tucker and Rome D. Norris, pleaded guilty to charges of failing to perform their duties and are to be sentenced Aug. 26.

"Since it is a very petty misdemeanor, we're not in any rush to do anything until those other cases are through," Mitchell said of the prospective charge against Pleasants.

Mr. Payton was born and reared in Grimesland and Grifton. He was a veteran of World War II.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna Louise Grimes Payton of the home; two sons, John Locust of Grifton and James R. Freeman of the home; six daughters, Mrs. Carolyn Harris of Ayden, Miss Victoria Anderson of New Haven, Conn., Mrs. Robin Bunn of the home, Mrs. Beverly Daniels of Greenville, Miss Terry Freeman and Miss Jane Freeman, both of the home; four brothers, Chesterfield Payton, Preston Payton and Earl Payton, all of Grifton, and David Payton of Durham; four sisters, Ms. Rosa Lee Payton of Grifton, Ms. Ernestine Payton of Petersburg, Va., Ms. Arizona Payton of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Shirley P. Hardy of Greenville; and ten grandchildren.

The body will be at the Norcott and Co. Funeral Home in Greenville from 6 p.m. Wednesday until the hour of the funeral. Family visitation will be from 8-9 p.m.

A steak out at the home of a member will be held Saturday, Aug. 27, and information can be obtained by calling a club officer; a newsletter will be prepared at a member's home, Aug. 31, Wednesday.

FIRST TANKER LEAVES VALDEZ - The tanker, Arco Juneau, loaded with crude from the Alaska pipeline, pulls away from the loading dock Monday night as she leaves the terminal in Valdez. The Arco Juneau is the first tanker to carry oil from the Alaska pipeline. The ship is expected at the refinery in Cherry Point, Wash., Friday. (AP Wirephoto)

Leaf Mart Has Its 'Best Day'

The Greenville Tobacco Market recorded its highest average of the new marketing season on Monday as the $90 per hundred mark was topped for the first time this year.

The sales supervisor of the local Tobacco Board of Trade, J. N. Bryan, said that the market averaged $94.51 per hundred pounds yesterday as the second week of sales got underway.

Warehouses sold 811,108 pounds of tobacco for $766,597 in recording the best average so far for 1977, Bryan reported.

Stabilization receipts accounted for only 6.4 per cent of total sales. Offerings consisted of lugs, primings and non-descript leaf, it was reported, with the top practical price reaching $1.30 per pound. The sales supervisor said that a few piles of tobacco sold for up to $1.33 per pound. For the season, the market has sold 3,785,367 pounds for $3,348,631, an average of $88.46 per hundred pounds.

Bryan announced that sales on the local market now begin at 8:30 a.m.

The first shelled eggs were produced by reptiles, not birds.
