

Carter Expected To Sign Two Bills Into Law Today

By RICHARDE MEYER

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter is giving final consideration to clean-air legislation and a $10 billion public works bill that includes nine of 18 water projects he originally wanted to kill.

Carter and his family ducked taking sides in a bitter dispute over racial and other issues that have divided their Plains Baptist Church. They attended Sunday school there, but went to services at the new Maranatha Baptist Church, formed by a splinter group.

April, he announced that 18 failed to pass the test. Of those 18, these projects and these amounts to fund them were included in the compromise: Applegate Lake, Ore., $7.4 million; Atchafalaya River, La., $5.1 million; Cache Basin, Ark., $93 million; Columbia Dam, Tenn., $20 million; Hillsdale Lake, Kan., $14 million; the Richard B. Russell Dam in Georgia and South Carolina, $21 million; Tallahala Creek, Miss., $5 million; Auburn, Calif., $39.7 million, and Bayou Bodcau, La., $2.4 million.

buildings or enemy armaments. Auto makers said the clean air bill is necessary to start building 1978-model cars. The measure gives Detroit a new delay in meeting tough new auto exhaust standards. It is the fourth such postponement the automobile industry has received.

PLO Could Accept Plan

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — U.S. officials confirmed today they are in indirect contact with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) on possible ways of removing roadblocks to a Middle East peace conference.

But the developments also indicate that President Carter is permitting the United States to edge closer toward negotiations with the PLO, and that the PLO might be willing to accept the resolution's other provisions, including its call for a peaceful settlement of the Mideast conflict and for recognition of the right to exist of all states in the region, including Israel.

These officials, traveling with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on his tour of the region, said the PLO has advised the United States through intermediaries that it is considering "some modifications" in U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, which serves as a basis for American efforts to reconvene the Geneva Mideast peace conference.

So far the United States has backed Israel in its refusal to negotiate with the PLO as long as it advocates destruction of the Jewish state. The Palestinian issue — Palestinian participation in peace talks and the creation of a Palestinian homeland — is at the heart of the current stalemate.

RAT BITE IN JAIL?

I understand that a prisoner in the Pitt County Jail was bitten by a rat recently and had to go to the Hospital Emergency Room for treatment. Is there any kind of exterminating program for the jail? There are finger-sized roaches there, too, I hear. C. T.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson confirmed that a prisoner was, indeed, taken for medical treatment of what seemed to be a rat bite. Two rats were killed and sent off for rabies testing, he said.

As a result of this incident, he said, the Health Department Environmental Health Division was called in and the State Jails Inspector visited. The exterminating service which is retained to treat the jail on a monthly basis was called in for an emergency visit, too. Tyson said the health department inspectors said they think the rats may have entered around sewer lines and that these have been capped off. Extra traps and bait have been put out, too, he said.

He said he hopes that the measures taken will eliminate the problem and that as close tabs as possible will be kept. Insect problems are continuing ones, he said, which are dealt with on a continuing basis. Food stored in the kitchen is probably an attraction, he said, and some insects and their eggs are probably brought in in cartons in which the food is bought. The dampness of the basement level facility is probably a factor, too, he said.

The informants said, however, there is "nothing firm" yet indicating the PLO is about to recognize the existence of Israel, a key point of dispute. "We are seeking clarification," one official said.

In Beirut, Lebanon, a PLO spokesman said the organization has not informed the Carter administration of any change in its opposition to Resolution 242.

Second passage of a reworded resolution would firmly commit the United Nations and the United States to a Palestinian homeland.

U.S. officials acknowledge privately that any chance for a conference in October — called "very likely" by Carter last month — have all but evaporated.

ElectriCities Will Get Refund

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — The Federal Power Commission has denied reconsideration of a $3.4 million special fuel deferral surcharge from 24 municipal electric systems in North Carolina and Virginia, ElectriCities of North Carolina reported today.

Veeco won an initial decision in the case from an administrative law judge. The FPC rejected the surcharge on June 20 and denied reconsideration in an order handed down Friday.

Veeco had been collecting the special surcharge subject to refund since May 1976. The utility had claimed that when it reformed its fuel adjustment clause to include price changes in low-cost nuclear fuel as well as coal, oil and gas, it amended its accounting methods and lost the $3.4 million on its books.

ElectriCities said it was not known when Veeco will refund the money it has collected or whether the money will be in the form of cash or credits. However, any refunds will include 9 per cent interest, the association said.

North Carolina municipal systems affected by the FPC decision are Ayden, Belhaven, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Enfield, Greenville, Hamilton, Hertford, Hobgood, Oak City, Robersonville, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Washington, Windsor and Winterville.

Virginia cities are Blackstone, Culpeper, Elkton, Franklin, Harrisonburg, Iron Gate, Manassas and Wakefield.

Admits Role In Lebanon

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin admitted today that Israeli artillery has fired on Palestinian units in southern Lebanon to defend Christian villages under attack.

It was the first public confirmation from Israel of persistent foreign reports and Palestinian statements that the Israeli military has directly intervened in the Moslem-Christian war for control of southern Lebanese areas adjacent to the Israeli border.

"We help them militarily," Begin said, referring to the Lebanese Christians. "It shouldn't be a secret."

"Without our help the Christian minority in Lebanon would have been long ago wiped out totally," Begin told U.S. fund-raisers of the Israel Bonds organization.

He said that when the Palestinians open a nightly artillery barrage on Christian villages, "we train our armored fire upon the origins of the hostile fire, and then it quiets down — because our men can aim well."

A Syrian-dominated Arab League peacekeeping force last November imposed a cease-fire in the 19-month-long Lebanese civil war in all sections of Lebanon except the south.

There Palestinian guerrillas, after almost two years of heavy fighting in northern Lebanon, have been trying to re-establish themselves in their pre-civil war bases, used as launching pads for cross-border raids against Israel.

The Israelis warned they would not tolerate Syrian troops or Palestinian guerrillas in southernmost Lebanon. They have been providing material aid — and, as confirmed today, direct combat support — to Christian militias in the region in an effort to establish a buffer zone against Palestinian encroachment along the border.

Roads Hearing

The North Carolina Board of Transportation will hold its next meeting on Friday, Aug. 13 in Greenville.

The transportation policy group will meet at 10 a.m. in the Willis Building auditorium located at the corner of First Street and Reade Circle.

The board, among other matters, will consider approval of funds for a number of specific statewide primary and urban projects, and will consider for approval highway construction bids opened during a bid letting held July 25.

Setting Backfires

FIRE AGAINST FIRE — A firefighter shoots a flare into the brush in the Ventura area of the Big Sur wilderness area to start backfires against burns that have carried over 70,000 acres in Big

Sur alone. Nearly 10,000 men are on firelines fighting numerous wildfires throughout the drought-stricken state. (AP Laserphoto)

Strained To Limit In Fighting Fires

By The Associated Press

Cooler weather and rain helped firefighters working on 44 blazes across 1.5 million acres of range and tundra in Alaska. But in Western and Northwestern states, crews were being strained to their limits today in battling an estimated 300 square miles of timber and brush fires.

The 74,500 acre "Marble-South Cone" fire in California's Los Padres National Forest near Big Sur may double in size before it is contained, said Joe Nadolski of the federal Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho.

About 3,000 firefighters were trying to maneuver around the blaze to protect the Carmel River watershed, which purifies and collects water and acts to prevent mudslides for Carmel Valley towns, including Monterey. The six-day-old fire has already claimed watershed that officials say will take $143 million to replace.

"We have a limited number of firefighters and we have to make a decision about what resources are most important to protect," Nadolski added.

In Alaska, the fires are still "covering an area larger than 10e state of Delaware," Kerry Cartier, a spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management said late Sunday. But the Big Salt River fire, which at one time appeared to threaten the trans-Alaska oil pipeline north of the Yukon River is "no longer a threat at all," he said.

That 15,000-acre fire has been "60 per cent contained and the other 40 per cent borders on the Yukon, so it's not going anywhere," he added.

Most of the Alaskan fires were burning within a 175-mile radius of the Kotzebue area in the northwestern part of the state, with more than 1,200 firefighters on the line at 28 of the blazes. Sixteen fires were unmanned, Cartier said.

The largest of the fires, covering 335,000 acres about 100 miles north of Nome, has been burning since July 9. Nearly 90 men were concentrating on that blaze in an attempt to keep flames from spreading north to the village of Deering, he said.

On Sunday, 24 fresh crews, 20 men to a crew, from throughout the country were flown to fires raging in Arizona, California, Colorado, Oregon, Nevada, Utah and Washington.

The crews are professional firefighters on loan from states and various federal agencies, Nadolski said. "We are not going to pick up any untrained crews," he added.

Await Chance

NEW YORK (AP) — Between 200,000 and 250,000 destitute Mexican migrants are waiting near the U.S. border for a chance to slip into this country before Congress acts on an amnesty plan for illegal aliens, the New York Times said today.

Each night at least 3,500 of the migrants attempt to elude border patrols and enter the U.S., with about being 1,000 caught and returned to Mexico, the newspaper reported.

In the border town of Tijuana, Mexico, migrants are reportedly paying professional smugglers $250 each to guide them past border patrols and take them to Los Angeles, home of a large Mexican community.

In addition, for an extra $300 to $400, the smugglers offer phony backdated documents, including rent receipts, utility bills, work permits and Social Security cards. The smugglers promise that the documents would insure that the migrants would qualify under President Carter's amnesty proposal, the Times said.

Thousands See Funeral Cortège For Makarios

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Thousands of Greek Cypriots, many weeping openly, paid final homage to Archbishop Makarios today as his body was borne through the streets of Nicosia in an elaborate funeral procession of politicians, prelates and military leaders.

Makarios, president of Cyprus almost without interruption since the eastern Mediterranean island won independence from Britain in 1960, died of a heart attack last Wednesday at the age of 63.

The death of the political and spiritual leader of this island's Greek-majority community left a void at a time when Cyprus is torn by a bitter political rivalry between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Mourners crowded streets and the windows of buildings along the mile-long route from St. John's Cathedral, where the archbishop's body had lain in state during five days of official mourning, to the Church of the Evangelists for the formal funeral service.

Pictures of the dead leader filled shop windows along the route. Many bore the legend "Makarios Zeli" — "Makarios Lives."

A military band played dirges, setting the tempo for the procession, as church bells tolled and cannon boomed in salute.

The service was open only to Cypriot political, military and religious leaders and the almost 200 dignitaries from more than 50 countries who arrived for the funeral. Loudspeakers carried the service to crowds outside the church and it was broadcast live by television to the rest of the island.

"We will fight until we bring justice to Cyprus, until his (Makarios') dreams come true," said National Assembly Chairman and acting president Spiros Kyprianou.

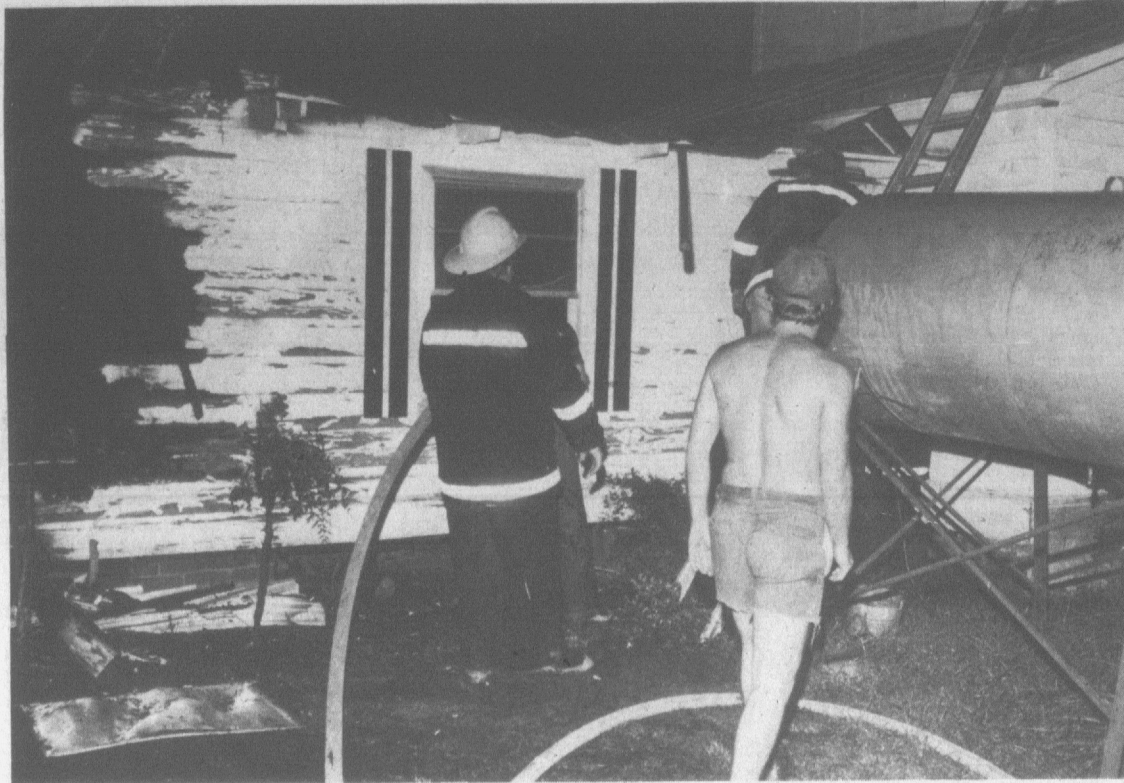

Other speakers included Greek President Constantine Tsatsos and acting Cypriot Archbishop Chrysostomos, the Bishop of Paphos.

The U.S. delegation was headed by Chief Justice Warren Burger and included President Carter's sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, and former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, special U.S. mediator in the Greek-Turkish dispute over control of the island.

The funeral cortège passed within a few hundred yards of the "green line," a fortified barrier dividing the Greek and Turkish sectors of the capital. On the Turkish side, occupied by 25,000 troops from the Turkish mainland, flags flew at full staff, a sign that most members of the Turkish minority were not mourning the passing of their longtime adversary.

After the service the archbishop's body was taken by motorcade along a winding 80-mile route into the Troodos mountains in the center of Cyprus to the Kykkos monastery, where he was to be buried. Makarios entered that monastery 50 years ago as novice priest.

Poor Supervision Blamed In Vast Pipeline Waste

Home Near Gardnerville Lost In Weekend Fire

Fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elworth Roache on Road 1725 near Gardnerville early Sunday morning.

County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said the alarm went in at 12:55 a. m.

Gardnerville firefighter, Mrs. Lennie Halstead, said the blaze, which was seen by a neighbor, was well underway when firemen arrive. "We got out a few clothes and their piano," she said, "but those were so badly smoked and messed up that I doubt if they can be used."

Mrs. Halstead said the fire started in the back of the house, but the cause has not been determined. The Roaches and their grandchild, who lives with them, all were spending the night away from home at the time.

Other fires in the county over the weekend included two tobacco barns and a car.

Gritton went to a tobacco barn fire in Lenoir County on the Lewis Eason farm Saturday at 3:48 a. m. and Bethel went to one on the M. G. Lawrence farm on Porter Road this morning at 1:15. Estimated loss in the Lawrence barn was $2,200. The Eason loss was not reported.

Escape Feat Set Records

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Escape artist Bill Shirk squirmed his way out of a straightjacket while dangling upside down from a helicopter 1,600 feet in the air to rewrite two entries in the Guinness World Book of Records.

Shirk set records Sunday for time and altitude for such an escape.

Helicopter pilot Wayne McDermott said the altimeter on the helicopter registered at 1,610 feet during the escape, which was officially timed in 22.53 seconds.

The previous records, held separately, were 1,200 feet for altitude and a time of 24 seconds.

Shirk, an Indianapolis radio station owner, was suspended under the helicopter by a 16-foot cable strapped to the blade of a hockey skate on his right foot.

"It was the weirdest feeling. I just felt like I was going to slip out of that skate, even though I knew it was laced and strapped on tightly," Shirk said after the feat.

The escape was part of a day long festival to raise funds for retarded citizens. It was his 13th such stunt for charity.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans-Alaska pipeline builders wasted $1.5 billion as workers sunbathed on the job, equipment that was stored outside was ruined and contractors ordered parts already in their own warehouses, a new report says.

The report on the $8 billion pipeline was prepared for the Alyeska Pipeline Commission by Washington attorney Terry F. Lenzner, a former Watergate prosecutor.

"One of the most serious ... of Alyeska's labor problems was that of workers frequently idle at the job site (including sleeping on buses and sunbathing along the right-of-way)," the report said.

"Alyeska's own documents show that the principal responsibility for idleness rested with management's poor supervision and utilization of the work force."

The pipeline, operated by the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., delivered its first oil from the North Slope to the Alaskan port of Valdez last week. The pipeline has been the subject of a number of investigations following charges of irregularities and excessive costs.

The report described a chaotic process of storing equipment and ordering spare parts.

"Execution contractors desperately sought to requisition spare parts which (unknownst to them) were already located in their own warehouses," Lenzner's report said.

"Because of inadequate warehouse space, equipment and material were often stored outside and effectively lost after the first snowfall. By the time the spring thaw came, much material had either been ruined by the weather or stolen."

The findings could be helpful in Alaska's drive to keep to a minimum the costs for transporting oil through the pipeline. A special formula gives Alaska more oil income as transportation costs decline.

The state could argue that unreasonably high construction costs should not be counted in determining the transportation charges, Lenzner said. He called such an exclusion "established regulatory doctrine."

Alaska is one of several protesters trying to convince the Interstate Commerce Commission that the eight oil companies who built the line want to charge too much in oil transportation costs. The commission has approved temporary charges but is investigating permanent tariffs that the companies can charge.

The new report could become part of Alaska's case if the state agrees with the findings. But first there must be public hearings at which the oil companies have a chance to respond, said a member of Lenzner's staff.

The chairman of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., Edward L. Patton, declined to comment on the report because of pending litigation before the ICC.

Peter DeMay, an Alyeska vice president, said in Anchorage, "I don't think there was anything wasted."

She Died As Chutes Fail

RAEFORD, N. C. (AP) — A woman parachutist regarded as an "expert" fell 10,500 feet to her death Sunday when her main and reserve parachutes failed to function, according to officials.

Tammy Lee O'Donnell, 19, was making her 675th freefall parachute jump at the Raeford airport around noon when the accident occurred, a spokesman said.

"It was a normal jump," said Don Fahrling, a commercial pilot who accompanied Miss O'Donnell in the private plane from which she jumped. "She failed to activate either parachute. It could have been equipment failure. We really don't know."

Authorities still were investigating the accident late Sunday and Federal Aviation Administration officials also were expected to investigate, Fahrling said.

Miss O'Donnell had been living at the airport since her graduation from high school last year. She began jumping at the age of 16 after growing up watching her father, Thomas B. O'Donnell of Fayetteville, jump with the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg.

Miss O'Donnell had said in an interview that her goal was to qualify for the U. S. Parachute Team in time for the 1978 world parachute meet.

In the same interview, nearly a year ago, she said she was aware of the dangers of parachute jumping, particularly after a near brush with tragedy early in her jumping career.

"My chute didn't open on my 100th jump. I looked up and it wasn't there and I thought, 'Gee, it didn't open.' But I didn't panic. My actions were automatic," she said.

Miss O'Donnell said she cut away the main chute and activated the reserve, and landed safely.

Boating Safety Course Slated

The Kinston Power Squadron, a unit of the U. S. Power Squadron, will again offer a free course in boating safety this fall.

Classes will be held at both Wayne Community College in Goldsboro, starting Sept. 7, one night a week for about 15 weeks, and at Lenoir Community College in Kinston, starting Sept. 12, two nights a week for about eight weeks. The same subjects will be covered at both locations and they are free to men, women and children, whether they are boat owners or not. Topics to be covered include safe boating, rules of the "road", chart reading, fire prevention, aids to navigation, and first aid.

The U. S. Power Squadron is a non-profit organization devoted to safe boating through education. Total membership is more than 8,000.

Dear Abby

Wants Hurricane Named After Her

By Abigail Van Buren
1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who objected because hurricanes were named after women but God was always spoken of as "He," "Him," and "Our Father":

Tell those women libbers to knock it off. Each season I keep hoping the National Weather Bureau will name a hurricane after me, and now there is a move afoot in Washington to force the Bureau to change the system and name hurricanes after men, mythological characters or, worse yet, numbers.

It would be interesting to hear how other women feel about this latest asinine attempt to turn a few "tempest storms" into nothing more than hot air.

I say, let 'em blow it out their ear!

HURRICANE CHARLINE

DEAR CHARLINE: Meet another reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks just the same, but they can name their next hurricane after me.

They can have their male God. I'm relieved to realize that a female god isn't responsible for this mess!

My name is Dorothy—from the Greek Theodora, which means "gift from God"—so bring on your hurricane!

DOROTHY D.

DEAR ABBY: This is in answer to all the gripes from ungrateful mothers who complained about what they received (or didn't receive) for Mother's Day:

My husband and I recently celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary, and for 47 of those years we received the same kind of "thank you" notes from his mother.

Example: "Nice of you to send me flowers for Easter, but why did you send me lilies? I'm not dead yet. Or maybe that's what you want?"

The next Easter I sent a fresh fruit pack. Her thank-you: "I can get better fruit from a supermarket. And cheaper, too."

Then I tried bath salts. Her response: "Are you telling me I need a bath?"

Whenever my mother-in-law received a card from us, she'd say to her son, "I know SHE (meaning me) bought it. Couldn't you take time out yourself?" When talking to her son, she always referred to me as "she," "her" or "your wife."

Now the lady is gone, and she never knew how much I really loved her. All she had to do was reach out. I was there all the time.

"SHE"

DEAR "SHE": Don't be too critical of your late mother-in-law. The poor dear never learned to give or accept affection with grace because she herself probably had so little as a child.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Miss Wheeler, Mr. Lewis Couple Unites In Candlelight Service Are Wed On Sunday

Miss Janet Louise Wheeler became the bride of Gary Dale Lewis Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in St. James United Methodist Church. Performing the double ring ceremony was the Rev. James Lee.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Robert Alan Wheeler of Whitehall, Pa., and Mrs. Linda Boyd Davis of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. Melbourne Dail Lewis of Greenville and Mrs. Angeline Cannon of Maury.

Steve Vaughn, organist, accompanied Hardee Whitehurst, trumpeter, in presenting a program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal length gown of white peau de soie designed with a high neckline, encircled with cluny lace. Accented by pearls and outlined in beaded cluny lace and ruffled matching lace, the empire fitted bodice featured a sheer yoke of English net with embroidered medallions. The full bishop sleeves were styled with deep bands of lace at the cuffs and ruffled edging. Continuing into a chapel length train, the full skirt was enhanced by a deep flounce trimmed in matching cluny lace. Her chapel length veil was of silk illusion edged in cluny lace and was attached to a Camelot cap overlaid with matching lace.

Janet Respass of Greenville was the honor attendant for the ceremony. Bridesmaids included Miss Barbara Wheeler, Miss Karen Wheeler and Miss Kathy Davis, sisters of the bride from Greenville, and Miss Cindy Jamieson of Greenville. The matron of honor's gown of blue organza over taffeta trimmed with flower printed ribbon was fashioned with a square neckline and short puffed sleeves. The princess styled dress featured a full ruffle at the hemline. She carried a single pink rose. The bridesmaids' gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant except in pink. They carried a single pink rose.

MRS. GARY DALE LEWIS

Flower girl was Miss Patti Wheeler of Whitehall, Pa., sister of the bride. Her dress was identical to that of the matron of honor.

Mr. Lewis served as his son's best man. Ushers were Mike Lewis of Ayden, Danny Lewis of Greenville and Kenneth Lewis of Maury, brothers of the bridegroom, and Lanny Lassiter of Winterville. Bobby Wheeler of Greenville, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Cake was served by Mrs. Doris Marlowe and Mrs. Judy Roberts.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Winterville. Presently employed by Spencer Shoe Co., the bride is a graduate of Rose High School. The bridegroom is employed by the City of Greenville.

Candlelight Service

PITTMAN, N.J. — Miss Deborah Ellen Ballinger and Kenneth Bill Williams were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 5:00 in the Pittman Methodist Church, Pittman, N. J. Dr. F. W. Yetter officiated at the candlelight double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Aaron Ballinger of Pittman, N. J. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. Hardy Williams of Jacksonville, formerly of Meridan, Conn.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Susan Kay Lanning, church organist and musical director, and Diane Kinsing Fisher, vocalist, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Whither Thou Goest," "One Hand, One Heart," and "Beautiful Savior." "In the Garden" was performed in honor of the bride's mother.

Bouquets of white daisies, white pom-poms, pale blue daisies and baby's breath accented the altar. The chancel, where the couple knelt for communion, was decorated with four candelabra interspersed with palms. Family pews were marked by white satin ribbons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of white organza over white satin designed with a Victorian illusion neckline trimmed in sculptured Venise lace.

Adorned by appliques of sculptured lace, the long fitted illusion sleeves were edged in miniature Venise lace and accented with tiny satin covered buttons. Flowing into an attached chapel length train, the modified A-line skirt, edged at the hem with scalloped lace trim, repeated the appliques of sculptured lace. The back of the gown was enhanced by satin covered buttons. Falling from a Camelot cap of Venise lace embellished with seed pearls and crystals, the bride's three-tiered fingertip veil of silk illusion was edged in Venise lace.

She carried a nosegay of white daisies, miniature white carnations, white stephanotis and baby's breath, highlighted by a white satin ribbon.

The bride's maid of honor was Miss Donna Huk of Phoenix, Ariz., while Mrs. Robert M. Lauck of Indian Head, Md., was matron of honor. They wore formal length sleeveless gowns of organza in a floral design of muted blue. Edged in a self-ruffle, circular capelets accented the bodices. The full gathered skirts flowed into deep ruffled flounces at the hemlines. Their nosegays of white and blue daisies with baby's breath were tied by long blue streamers. Highlighting their hair were wreaths of baby's breath and miniature daisies.

Sense In Upgrading Of U.S. 13

The County Commissioners endorsed a badly needed project in approving a resolution calling for upgrading U. S. 13.

The commissioners last week approved a resolution which asks the N. C. Department of Transportation to construct a dual lane U. S. 13 from Fayetteville to the N.C.-Virginia line at Suffolk.

The resolution said the four-lane facility would "provide the most economical and direct connection with Tidewater Virginia metropolitan area and thereby establish an acceptable North-South route serving rural and urban areas along its path."

It also pointed out that this would be the most direct link between major military installations in the Norfolk area and Seymour Johnson AFB and Ft. Bragg.

It was noted that the original purpose for locating U. S. 13 was to relieve traffic volume on U. S. 301 (now I-95).

"The present capability of U. S. 13 is inadequate to meet this need much less meet the additional requirements of regional traffic."

The plan makes plenty of sense to us. Improving U. S. 13 would open a major new route up and down the east coast via the Chesapeake Bay bridge-tunnel. The link would be relatively short since I-95 would be utilized from Fayetteville southward.

Of course the U. S. 13 North Carolina link should be an interstate route and probably would have been if state planners had not written off Eastern North Carolina when the interstate system was planned.

Perhaps it is not too late for this. The interstate system was opened up once for new mileage and possibly it will be again. If it is, we shouldn't allow the Raleigh planners to deal us out a third time.

Past Experience Leads To Forebodings

President Carter signed a bill last week which created a new cabinet agency, the Department of Energy.

In this time of dwindling energy supplies creation of the cabinet level department would seem like a good idea.

Unfortunately experience with the federal government in the past has been that new agencies simply created new positions filled with people who never seem to get to the heart of the problem.

Perhaps this department will be different— but only positive results will convince us.

BELOW OLYMPUS By Interlandi Helms Versus 'Field'

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — From all indications, next year's contest for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms will be hard-fought.

Arch-conservative Jesse Helms should have no serious opposition in the GOP primary because his followers control the party.

His Democratic opponent, however, will likely come to the race battle weary from what could be a bitter primary.

As many as 10 Democrats are considering the race. Some of them no doubt will decide to save their strength and money and drop out.

Some of those who remain until the bitter end may wish they had quit. Name calling, rumors and attempts at character assassination may be prevalent.

The two latest to be mentioned as possible candidates are Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram.

Of the other eight possible candidates, only Atty. Gen. Rufus L. Edmisten has statewide credentials. The others are novices, unknowns or regional figures struggling to establish statewide recognition.

Chances are considered good that Ingram will run. The speculation began after the 1977 General Assembly enacted a law that Ingram claims stripped him of his power.

Speculation held that Ingram would run on a platform of insurance reform. A few weeks ago, when Ingram admitted interest in the race, he commented that insurance companies are exempt from federal anti-trust laws and Washington may be the arena where change must occur.

Ingram is a tough campaigner. Last year he swamped his opponent, Joe Johnson of Greensboro, by making Johnson appear to be an industry puppet. Johnson was unable to shake the image.

He uses such techniques against others who oppose or criticize him. When a lawyer-legislator opposed one of Ingram's legislative proposals, the commissioner labeled the critic an insurance industry lawyer. The facts did not support that charge.

Green is known as a master politician who learned the ropes in a lifetime of party activity and nearly two decades in the legislature. He is a conservative and refuses to make campaign promises other than to do his best. If there are skeletons in his closet, he's managed to keep the door locked.

Green's style is to work through a small group of trusted lieutenants rather than publicly maneuver to get his way. He prefers one-on-one meetings when he is pressing his views, a trait which has led to him being called a "back room politician." He despises that label.

If Green and Ingram decide to run, the Democratic primary could be a free-for-all. Democratic leaders are hoping that any wounds suffered in May will be healed in time for a united effort against Helms. Chances of victory weaken without that unity.

The Indians Are Coming

By ART BUCHWALD

MARTHA'S VINEYARD — As if Martha's Vineyard didn't have enough trouble trying to figure out whether or not to secede from the United States, it is now faced with another problem: INDIANS.

Yes, the Indians who were here way before the white man want their land back, and obviously everyone who owns a house on the Island is somewhat nervous about it. Rather than struggle with weapons the Indians have chosen the white man's most powerful medicine — the law.

The legal basis for the suit is the Indian Nonintercourse Act of 1790, a treaty with the United States that said no land could be sold or taken from the Indians without the specific approval of Congress.

(Unfortunately, most home owners on the Island thought the Act had to do with not having sexual relations with Indians.) The Act was ignored through the years until recently, when tribes in Maine and Massachusetts claimed their land had been illegally taken from them and they wanted it back.

In the case of Martha's Vineyard the Indians want Gay Head, Cranberry Acres and Herring Creek. People on other parts of the Island are willing to give up this land, since they don't own it. But they fear once the Indians get their appetites whetted they may go for the whole Island.

It was not long ago that everyone was glad to see a Wampanoag Indian. But lately if one shows up, particularly with a lawyer, the cry goes out, "INDIANS!" and everyone draws their station wagons in a circle.

I didn't believe it myself until I was sitting on Bill Styron's porch in Vineyard Haven drinking a gin and tonic.

An Indian came riding up on his Moped and Styron gathered the entire family and his guests into the house. We each took a window. The Indian carrying the flag of the Vineyard Haven Yacht Club marched up to the porch.

"I come in peace," he said. He gave Styron a pipe of grass and the two men smoked.

"This is nice land you've got," the Indian said.

"It's really not a good place," Styron said nervously. "There are mosquitoes and hornets and the wind blows the roof off the house every winter. The taxes are very high and our cesspool overflows twice a week."

"My ancestors used to fish from this very beach."

"There must be some mistake," Styron said. "The fishing is lousy. We haven't caught a minnow in 15 years. Now if you really want nice land you ought to see Kingman Brewster's property. If I were an Indian that's the place I'd sue for."

"It's nice?"

"This land can't hold a candle to it."

"Where is it?"

"I'll drive you over," Styron said hurriedly.

Kingman Brewster, who is now on home leave from being Ambassador to the Court of St. James, told the Indian that the water in front of his house was filled with man-eating sharks. "If you're really looking for a good house you ought to go over to Edgartown. Walter Cronkite has the perfect place for an Indian reservation. He even has room for a tennis court. I'll drive you over."

Kingman and the Indian drove over to Cronkite's house in Edgartown. But someone had tipped off Walter and Cronkite was standing at the entrance of his dirt road. "You can't go any further," Cronkite said. "There's quicksand all the way to my dock. Besides, the whole family has malaria."

"I didn't know there was malaria on the Island," the Indian said.

"It's just around my property. I must have brought the mosquitoes with me when I sailed back from Panama (Continued on page 5)

Merit Selection On Trial

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Not only will some system of merit selection of judges as set up by Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., bring more quality to the bench, it will also demonstrate the workability of merit selection, the governor thinks.

The limited merit system which Hunt has installed by executive decree is, in his mind, a trial run to demonstrate to the General Assembly, and to the people of the state, that merit selection can work better than the present election system.

Through this process, the governor hopes to end the legislative stalemate which has blocked several efforts at reform, and put the voting public in the proper frame of mind to eventually approve an amendment to the State Constitution setting up a full merit system.

Limited

Hunt's approach is limited at this point to Superior Court judges, and has a sunset provision written in so that it will expire at the end of one year.

"Very frankly, this means I'm giving up some of the Governor's traditional patronage. But I'm doing it because I believe that ability, not politics, should be the criteria for choosing judges," Hunt said.

In law, judges are elected by the people. In practice, the majority have been appointed by governors filling vacancies occurring between elections. Hunt has not only the normal turnover, but new judgeships created by the General Assembly in his "speedy trials" program to work with, and will be naming more than 20 judges.

The trial run, Hunt says, will "help this approach become law, if it proves good . . . and I believe it will. We must demonstrate to the people that it can work well."

The governor did not come on strongly for the most recent legislative proposal for merit selection because it limited active participation in nominating to those in the legal brotherhood. He feels the group picking candidates should be broadly representative.

His executive order sets up a 32-member board with 13 named by the governor, 13 lawyers named by the Chief Justice, two laymen and a lawyer named by both the President Pro Tem of the Senate, and by the Speaker of the House. The chairman and chairman pro tem will be named by and from the Supreme Court.

Carter's Mideast Split

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Menahem Begin's brazen decision to "legalize" three illegal Jewish settlements on the Arab West Bank, at potentially exorbitant political cost to President Carter's Mideast peace hopes, has widened a crack in the administration's once-solid Mideast front.

That crack, still concealed under a blanket of uniformity imposed by the White House, opened as a result of Mr. Carter's deference during Begin's state visit. Whatever the President's long-range diplomatic objective in letting Begin seize and hold a remarkable initiative over him during the Israeli leader's visit here, it triggered a backfire throughout the administration — everywhere except the President's own Oval Office.

Begin's rapid decision to exploit Mr. Carter's good will by "legalizing" those three settlements ("an absolutely unacceptable move," one top-level Carter adviser told us) led to an official State Department rebuke — but only a mild presidential demurrer in which Mr. Carter unaccountably blamed himself.

Pressed at his press conference to explain why Begin had so quickly seen fit to set back the President's peace efforts, Mr. Carter threw a protective arm around Begin and said, "I did not think about talking to him" on the specific question of "legalizing" the three settlements.

Yet, high officials who participated in the talks between the President and Prime Minister told us Mr. Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance "absolutely" covered all contingencies involving the incendiary settlements question even if the word "legalization" had not been used. "There was no chance of misunderstanding on Mr. Begin's part," one official told us. The U.S. wanted no "legalizing" of existing settlements.

The response of the President, so much softer than the cold anger privately expressed elsewhere in his government, may now lead to the establishment of new settlements (not just legalization of old ones) in a continuation of what may be called a "policy of pre-emption" by the new Israeli government.

Adding weight to this warning is the fact that Begin long ago placed Gen. Erik Sharon, hero of the Yom Kippur war but a political primitive regarded by some Israeli leaders as unstable,

To the editor:

The sole intent of my letter is to compliment the administration of Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. Gov. Hunt has clearly demonstrated to the people of North Carolina that he is an efficient administrator, strong chief executive and a man of his word.

Gov. Hunt has implemented many of the programs and policies he advocated during his quest for the governor's office in 1976. He has worked diligently to accentuate the importance of fighting crime. He has expressed his concern for upgrading education at all levels and improving the reading skills of students, with the emphasis at the primary level. His concern for governmental efficiency is reflected in his efforts to reorganize state government. He has clearly carried out the mandate the people of North Carolina presented him in November of 1976.

North Carolina has always had a proud tradition of good government. Gov. Hunt is working to continue that same tradition. As North Carolinians, we should be proud of the Democratic governor, Jim Hunt.

Strength For Today

UNDER COVER

For anyone who loves trees and shrubs it is a sad sight to see them being killed by pests. Take the tent caterpillar, for instance. He builds his castle of destruction, enclosing it in a huge web. Left alone to his depredations, he can bring trees to the ground as surely as men with chain saws.

But even so, the tent pillar is not as ruinous as the pine beetle, because this tiny insect does his worst work out of sight. The caterpillar, out in the open, invites the exterminating torch. But the pine beetle accomplishes his ruinous design before anyone realizes what is taking place.

Likewise the person who is out in the open with his sin and devilry is easier to deal with than the sneak and the hypocrite. And the sins in ourselves and others which we see plainly and deal with summarily are not nearly so ruinous — no matter how bad they are — as the sins which lurk deep and do their evil under cover.

Billion-Dollar Sales Targeted

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Curtis Carlson, whose original goal was to sell enough soap to make $100 a week, is now on schedule toward his current goal of $1 billion a year in sales.

When that goal is met he'll aim higher.

Goals accomplished beget goals to seek for Carlson, the Minneapolis entrepreneur who at age 63 personally owns hotels, restaurants, incentive companies, a construction concern, an advertising agency — and much, much more.

"One of my weaknesses is I can never see stopping," he said the other day in a telephone call from York, Maine, where he had anchored his 83-foot yacht after a cruise down the coast from Camden and Boothbay Harbor.

A setting such as this, although but for a few days, is not rare for Carlson but neither does it suggest his style. His work and pleasure mingle; his mind never stops dreaming of growth. It's his creative expression.

"I have always maintained that you will stay even with your competitor by working five days a week but you can get ahead of your competition by working six days," he has written about his business philosophy.

This, and goal setting, along with a masterful understanding of management, have helped the Carlson Companies, personally owned by him, to obtain a sales rate this year of $721 million. The $1 billion goal is for 1981.

Gold Bond (trading) Stamps, Raddison Hotels, Ardan Jewelers, TGI Friday's restaurants, Star Market, May Company, Country Kitchen, Indian Wells Oil Co. and Superior Fiber Products are among his companies.

There are many, many more, and many more are bound to be added too; it's the way things are at Carlson Companies, which now employs more than 10,000 workers.

While students of business will spend the next century analyzing what it is that sets Carlson apart, that makes him a phenomenon of enterprise a kin to Ford and Carnegie and Edison and other giants of yesterday, some things already are clear.

Growth, for example, is not the exercise of predatory instincts; it is part of a management philosophy that equates growth with strength. Companies that fail to grow fail to attract and stimulate the best minds, says Carlson.

When a company reaches the point where slow growth causes its best managers to look for other opportunities, it is inevitable that profits begin to lag. And that, in Carlson's view, is a capitalistic sin.

How in the world did Carlson do it? Only snatches of the story are possible to understand and relate, such as what he said in an interview, that "I didn't build the company; I built an organization and the organization built the company."

Carter Welfare Plan In Eye Of Political Storm

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's $34 billion welfare reform plan is in the eye of a political hurricane. A new gale of conflict is coming soon. And the most significant turmoil is likely to ensue over a mystery number — a number that cannot be found anywhere in the 156 pages of briefing papers distributed by the White House to explain the plan to move able-bodied welfare recipients into jobs. For six stormy months, the administration was buffeted by conflict among Cabinet agencies and interest groups over the shape of the plan Carter announced Saturday at a Plains, Ga., news conference. Now, Carter's men are basing in the relative calm produced by the cautious optimism which characterized most reactions to their proposal. But in a program as broad as Carter's, each of the dozens of affected interest groups will be able to find at least one provision to protest in the big blow ahead. The missing number, however, affects all of them. In essence, this number is the answer to the question of whether Carter's program will work, whether it will achieve the one ultimate goal of welfare reform that everyone can agree on: a reduction in the amount of money the American people pay for welfare. The figure that isn't there is the projected number of persons who will move from welfare into private, unsubsidized jobs. Carter proposes to create 1.4 million public jobs for welfare recipients. It was little noticed that to pay for them he would eliminate two current job programs for nearly 1 million persons, roughly half of whom were on welfare at some point. But the new public jobs will cost the American people $8.8

billion. The public will get work in return, though some experts question how productive that work will be, given a wage ceiling at or just above the $2.30-an-hour minimum wage. The ultimate goal of any welfare plan, however, is to reduce the number of people who depend on the government for a living and thus to reduce the cost to the public. To do this, welfare recipients need to get into private jobs. How many recipients will do so is not easy to predict; perhaps it is impossible to predict. This uncertainty was a major reason behind Carter's acknowledgement under questioning that neither he nor his Cabinet experts could predict the year in which welfare spending might actually decline. The number of recipients who do eventually move into private jobs depends on two factors. One is the overall economic well-being of the country. The other is Carter's success in getting a specific welfare recipient into a specific job. Overall, Carter's men are predicting continued gradual improvement in the economy despite some minor setbacks, and they haven't been proved wrong yet. The other crucial factor is more complicated. It stems from the fact that the mere existence of a vacant job and a jobless welfare recipient does not mean that they will get together.

Shutdown Of Canada Airports Goes On; Parliament Called

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Virtually all commercial flights into and out of Canadian airports were grounded today by an air traffic controllers strike called to press demands for a 12.6 per cent pay increase in defiance of government anti-inflation wage guidelines. The government dispatched military aircraft today to bring members of parliament back to Ottawa from summer recess. They are scheduled to meet Tuesday to debate legislation that would order the government-employed controllers back to work.

Canadian airlines, as well as American and other foreign carriers, were rerouting some flights through airports in the northern United States. Officials said planes carrying only baggage were being flown under Visual Flight Rules (VFR), without controller guidance, between Canadian and American airports while passengers were traveling by bus to make their connections.

"We have been able to cope and handle the situation," said Niagara Falls airport manager Lawrence Hedrick. But he said a prolonged strike might overtax the facility and cause serious problems.

agreed to handle mercy flights and routes in the remote Canadian north.

A spokesman for the Air Transport Association of Canada estimated that the strike, which began early Sunday in the midst of Canada's peak tourist season, was costing Canadian airlines between $5 million and $7 million a day in lost revenues.

Lions To Hear

Dist. Governor

John N. Peterson, governor of District 31-H, Lions International, will speak to the Greenville Host Lions Club on Monday at 7 p.m.

Peterson, the chief administrative officer of the district's 50 clubs and 1,500 Lion members, will speak on the "Doings of our 1,200,000 Lions Around the World."

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Denney. Assisting Mrs. Denney, aunt of the bride, in hosting the affair was Mrs. Charles Lentz, cousin of the bride.

About 25 persons, including about 10 from Tanzania, went with Nyerere to agricultural installations in a 12-mile radius of Davis.

The district governor, who has been a Lion for over 23 years, is a New Bern architect. Local president Jim Graham will preside during the meeting.

"I know the perfect spot," Walter said. "Barbara Walters rented it two summers ago. It not only has fresh water and grazing land but the last time I was there it had herds of buffalo as far as the eye could see."

Begin, the wartime terrorist shrewd and brave enough to calculate correct odds on blowing up Jerusalem's King David Hotel may now calculate that Mr. Carter can be pushed a good deal further on the settlements question. As the President said last week, new settlements "provide obstacles for peace," but they are "obstacles which I think we can overcome" — scarcely a warning of retribution for establishment of new settlements.

Other aspects of Mr. Carter's evolving Middle East policies have caused confusion here. For example, he confided to Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti last week that he fully agreed with the June 29 Common Market statement calling for a Palestinian homeland.

That surprised experts who knew Mr. Carter had worked overtime to head off that Common Market resolution and, failing that, to tone it far down.

The split inside the administration over proper handling of Israel's flouting of the U.S. on the settlements question may only be beginning. Indeed, as Vance tours the Middle East, some politicians here wonder whether he can count any longer on the White House as a home base to back him up.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined steadily today amid fears of a further rise in short term interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 5.37 at 883.32. Losers outpaced gainers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

First-hour volume on the Big Board was a modest 4.07 million shares.

The market began the week amid widespread forecasts that the Federal Reserve would soon tighten credit further by encouraging short term interest rates to rise.

Analysts noted concern that the rising cost of short term credit might contribute to a slowing of the rate of business expansion.

They also cited fears that higher rates would encourage investors to channel their money in such investments as Treasury bills rather than putting it into stocks.

In addition, brokers said there was little in last week's sluggish performance by the market to inspire buying by traders. The Dow hit new 19-month lows last Tuesday and Wednesday and managed only a token upswing later in the week.

Several People Injured In Series Of Accidents

Several persons were injured and damages totaling nearly $5,000 resulted from a series of traffic accidents investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage occurred in a wreck last Thursday on Memorial Drive near Pine Street, officers reported, involving vehicles driven by Shepherd M. Fountain of 1106 S. David Street, Tarboro, and Barbara AYDEN — Acting on a tip from a passing motorist, Ayden Police arrived at M & W Chevrolet Company just outside Ayden just in time to see what seemed to be a stolen truck leaving the lot.

A high-speed chase into the Winterville area ensued, Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney said. The person driving the truck jumped and ran when he had to come to a stop because of running out of gas.

N. C. Highway Patrolmen, the Winterville Police Department, the Pitt County Sheriff Department, and bloodhounds from the Department of Corrections then participated in the search which

Earn Less For Comparable Job

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than half of the state's working women — 53 per cent — earn less than $7,000 a year, compared with 18 per cent of male workers. The average wage of women with some college education is the same as men with an eighth-grade education.

These often cited statistics by N.C. Labor Commissioner John Brooks have sparked a battle by the N.C. Council on the Status of Women on behalf of unemployed and underemployed women in the state. The council, which has been in full gear for about four years, is waging attacks on several fronts.

The organization is conducting a survey of law officers, male and female, to find out what law enforcement jobs women now perform, how men and women work together as officers and what barriers exist to women seeking a law-enforcement career, according to Miriam Dorsey, 33, the council's new executive director.

With a one-year grant from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, the council is helping low-income women obtain jobs that are traditionally held by men, such as those in engineering and business.

In addition, the council is encouraging private firms to provide child care for working mothers and has urged state Personnel Office to become "a model of affirmative action" by changing its personnel application to take into account the differences in past work experience between women and men.

"I see our role as that of agitators," Mrs. Dorsey said. The council is also monitoring government agencies, which she said have often been more reluctant to accommodate women's goals than has the private sector.

"State government agencies 'think very little women,'" Mrs. Dorsey said. "It's not a matter of just hearing women, but just thinking about women."

North Carolina has the highest proportion of working women of any state in the nation, but the economic picture for women is still gloomy, she said.

Officers said that the 6:31 a.m. wreck involved vehicles driven by Stowe and Frank Streeter Jr. of 1211 Battle Street, Greenville. Stowe was reported injured in the mishap.

Benjamin Dailey Stowe II of 500-B, Alcan Drive, Richmond, Va., was charged with following too close following investigation of an accident Saturday on W. Fifth Street near Moyewood Drive.

Officers said that the 6:43 p.m. wreck involved vehicles driven by Truman Douglas Haddock of Rt. 2, Box 425, Ayden, and James Herman King II of 1312 Red Banks Road, Greenville.

Investigating officers, who reported no injuries, estimated damages at $500 to the King car and $350 to the vehicle operated by Haddock.

Norman Glen Warren of C-8, Oakmont Drive, Greenville, was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by John Earl Bridges of 403 W. 12th Street.

No charges were preferred in the 10:45 a.m. wreck Sunday. Damage was estimated at $150 to the motorcycle and $100 to the Bridges vehicle.

Okayed Breakin By FBI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell approved a request by then-FBI director J. Edgar Hoover for a break-in and bugging of Black Panther Huey Newton's apartment in 1970, according to a document quoted by the Los Angeles Times today.

The document was a declaration made under penalty of perjury by attorney Leonard Weinglass. It was to be filed in pretrial proceedings today in Oakland Municipal Court, where Newton is charged with murder and assault.

Weinglass said he was researching a suit on behalf of actress Jane Fonda at FBI headquarters in 1975 when he saw the memo from Hoover to Mitchell. He said the memo was dated Nov. 20, 1970, and sought permission to tap Newton's telephone and to bug his apartment with a hidden microphone.

Weinglass quoted the memo as stating: "Trespass will be involved with respect to the microphone surveillance."

He said the word "approved," was typed at the bottom of the memo, and it was signed "John Mitchell," with the date Nov. 21, 1970.

Newton returned to the United States July 3 to face the charges against him. He spent three years in exile in Cuba after skipping bail. He has pleaded innocent to killing a 17-year-old girl in 1974 and assaulting his tailor. He was set free on $80,000 bail July 23.

Big Boa Under Hood Of Car
DUNDALK, Md. (AP) — Brian Berkeridge was not worried about that hissing he heard coming from the front of his car. He thought it was just a leaky tire.

But as Berkeridge pulled into a car wash here, a state police trooper spotted a five-foot boa constrictor gliding out of the grill of the car.

Trooper James Emerick and Cpl. Francis France used a stick to prod the snake into a garbage can. The hissing snake was taken to the local state police barracks to await word from its owner.

That word came quickly as John Hauserman of Towson, Md., reported that he and his pet boa constrictor had become separated while they were out for some exercise.

TAX-FREE HOUSE SALE IF OVER 65

A homeowner who is over 65 or older may be able to avoid all income taxes on the profit from the sale of his home if he meets certain requirements. The two main ones are:

The house must have been used as the taxpayer's principal residence for five of the eight years preceding the sale.

The adjusted sales price of the house must be $35,000 or less. If you sold for more than $35,000, you can still avoid tax on the gain attributable to the first $35,000 of the sales proceeds.

If husband and wife own the house jointly, only one has to be 65 or older for the rule to apply. Unfortunately, this tax exclusion can be used only once.

You make the election to exclude the profit by attaching a signed statement to this effect with your tax return. Check with an accountant or Internal Revenue Service for details and form numbers.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville, Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

Kratzert Wins By Three

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Bill Kratzert once became so disgusted with his game, so upset at his ragged, ineffectual play, he quit golf entirely, went home to Fort Wayne, Ind., and got a job as a fork-lift operator.

"It didn't take long, though, before I knew I'd never be happy in my life if I didn't get back into golf," the 25-year-old Kratzert recalled.

"I knew this was what I had to do. I knew I had to keep trying."

The solidly-built, 190-pounder had failed twice at attempts to gain his playing rights on the PGA Tour. But he pulled his clubs out of the closet and started working again.

It all culminated in a three-stroke victory Sunday in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open. Kratzert, tabbed for potential greatness by his fellow pros, had a final-round, two-under-par 69 and posted the lowest 72-hole total of the year on the tour, 265, a distant 19 strokes below par on the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I've worked awful hard," the soft-spoken, poker-faced tour sophomore said. "I guess this is one of the dividends."

The dividend from his first individual title also included $42,000 from the total purse of $210,000 and boosted Kratzert to eighth on the season's moneywinning list with $113,419.

"This guy," U. S. Open champion Hubert Green said before the final round started under gray, threatening skies, "is a good one. There's no telling how good he can be. His game is good, his temperament is good. He's smart and he's strong."

"He could be one of the great ones."

Kratzert, who combined with Woody Blackburn to win the 1976 National Team Championship in his rookie season, didn't win it easily.

Kratzert, one of the few touring pros who wears dark glasses, blew a two-stroke lead and, after 11 holes of the final round, was two shots back of 22-year-old rookie Curtis Strange.

On the 12th, Strange had a potential birdie putt and Kratzert missed the green. Bill calmly chipped in for birdie from about 25 feet, Strange missed his bird "and the momentum kind of flip-flopped," Kratzert said. "It all turned around. That was the key. If I hadn't chipped in on that hole, I don't think I would have won."

From two shots behind, he moved two in front in a stretch of five holes, nailing it down with a 15-18 foot birdie putt on the 16th.

Larry Nelson and Grier Jones, neither of whom really got in the title hunt, each shot a 65 and came on to tie for second at 268. Strange, a former national collegiate champion from Wake Forest who has been on the tour only five weeks, hit his tee shot out of bounds and made double bogey six on the 18th hole, dropping back to a tie for fourth with Mexican Victor Regalado at 269. Regalado had a 67, Strange 70.

The group at 270 included Calvin Peete, with a closing 67, Lee Elder, 72, and Rod Curl, 69. Green shot 70-272 and Trevino 67-274.

Putting It Away

Carlton Successful In Philadelphia

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Steve Carlton is six-foot-4, but looks 10 feet tall at Veterans Stadium.

The good left arm of the Philadelphia Phillies has been almost impossible to beat at home and Sunday he continued that unique success with a 3-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I feel more comfortable throwing on this mound," said Carlton after his 13th straight home-field victory and the 20th in his last 21 decisions. "You know, there is a lack of uniformity of pitching mounds in the National League. There aren't any two alike."

Along with the good feel of the mound, Carlton says he has another advantage.

"We hit better here," he said. "The stadium is more conducive to our style of hitting."

NL Roundup

Also, our defense is better here because of the artificial turf."

Then of course there is Carlton's natural talents, which are tough to beat in any park. Sunday's victory was his 16th, tops in the majors.

"The thing about Carlton is that he's unpredictable, which is why he's such a great pitcher," said Philadelphia catcher Tim McCarver. "He has an erratic style. He's great with the breaking balls one game and the fastball the next. Batters can't establish any pattern."

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Diego Padres beat the Chicago Cubs 8-6 in the opener of a doubleheader before losing the second game 9-4; the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Houston Astros

5-2; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Montreal Expos 6-2 and the San Francisco Giants stopped the New York Mets 7-4.

Carlton not only checked the Dodgers with seven hits, striking out eight and walking one, but he socked two hits and a run-scoring sacrifice fly that produced the go-ahead run.

Carlton also aided his cause by twice picking Dave Lopes off first after the speedy Dodger second baseman had singled.

The Dodgers lost their fourth straight game—only the second time this year that they have done that—and ace pitcher Don Sutton's record dipped to 10-6 as he lost his third game without a victory since the All-Star break.

Padres 8-4, Cubs 6-9

Gene Tenace and Dave Kingman slugged two-run homers and Bill Almon and Mike Champion each had three hits to lead San Diego's first-game victory over Chicago.

Jose Cardenal drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single and Steve Swisher also homered to lead the Cubs' victory in the second game.

The nightcap was marred by a free-for-all with both teams emptying onto the field in the second inning after Kingman slammed into Mick Kelleher trying to break up a double play at second base. The two got up and started fighting. Both were ejected from the game.

Reds 6, Pirates 0

A two-run throwing error by pitcher Jim Rooker broke up a scoreless tie and allowed Cincinnati to score five unearned runs in the seventh inning and beat Pittsburgh.

Rookie Mario Soto benefited from three Pirate errors in the inning and boosted his record to 2-1 with a seven-hitter for his first major league shutout. Soto delivered a sacrifice fly in the Reds' game-breaking rally.

Rooker, 9-6, was working on a three-hitter before Cincinnati's seventh-inning explosion.

Cardinals 5, Astros 2

Ken Reitz went 4-for-4 and drove in two runs with a second-inning home run as St. Louis defeated Houston.

St. Louis starter John Urrea scattered six hits over the first seven innings to improve his record to 4-3.

Reitz' second-inning blast, his 12th of the season, scored Jerry Humphrey ahead of him.

Braves 6, Expos 2

Dick Ruthven pitched a five-hitter and Rod Gilbreath smashed a two-run homer as Atlanta beat Montreal. Ruthven, 4-8, won his first game since April 19 and snapped a personal eight-game losing streak.

The Braves scored their winning run in the fifth. Rowland Office beat out a drag bunt and later scored when Pete Mackanin's throw to first was wild for an error on Willie Montanez' grounder.

Gary Matthews followed with a single and Biff Pocoroba drilled a run-scoring single to right for a 4-0 Atlanta lead.

Giants 7, Mets 4

Gary Alexander drove in four runs with a double, triple and bases-loaded walk to pace San Francisco over New York.

John Montefusco, 5-9, picked up the victory with relief from Gary Lavelle, who recorded his 15th save of the season. The victory was Montefusco's first at Shea Stadium in three years.

"I see the ball very good in this park," said Alexander, "and it's a lot easier for me to hit here than most stadiums."

Cabbage Overshadows Rod Carew

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

It isn't easy for a hitter to do more damage than Rod Carew. Especially when the Twins' star goes 4-for-5.

But Minnesota third baseman Mike Cabbage did just that Sunday as the Twins overwhelmed Cleveland 11-1. Cabbage had a home run, a triple and a double, drove in five runs and scored two as the Twins moved to within a half-game of first place Chicago in the American League West. Carew merely had three doubles and a single, scoring four times and knocking in a run.

"This is a funny game," Cabbage said after his slugging performance. "I woke up this morning feeling lousy and I couldn't get any wood on the ball at all in batting practice. Then I go out and have a day like this."

Cabbage's fine performance rivaled his five-RBI game Friday night against the Indians, who lost three straight games to the rampaging Twins. Minnesota has won 17 of its last 22 games.

AL Roundup

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston beat Oakland 5-2, Texas took Detroit 4-1, Kansas City downed the White Sox 3-2, California stopped Baltimore 6-3, New York beat Seattle 7-1 and Milwaukee swept a pair from Toronto 6-2 and 7-5.

Red Sox 5, A's 2

Bernie Carbo led off the ninth inning with his 12th home run and Fred Lynn added a three-run shot as the Red Sox won their 10th straight game and the A's dropped their ninth in a row.

Boston opened up a 3½-game lead in the AL East over Baltimore behind Rick Wise, 8-4, and Bill Campbell, who notched his 19th save of the season.

Rangers 4, Tigers 1

Dock Ellis hurled an eight-hitter for his first victory in a month as the Rangers continued their hot pace. Ellis, 6-9, pitched out of several jams despite being off-form.

Texas has now won 22 of its last 28 games.

Royals 3, White Sox 2

Kansas City completed a three-game sweep of the division-leading White Sox when John Wathan pinch-hit an RBI single in the ninth inning.

Wathan's winning hit came off rookie Randy Wiles, making his major league debut.

Wiles was heartbroken but still happy to be in the major leagues.

"I had never seen this many people before," Wiles said of the 40,000-plus crowd.

Oscar Gamble's 20th home run of the year had tied the game in the ninth for Chicago.

Angels 6, Orioles 3

Bobby Bonds homered for the fifth consecutive game as the Angels completed a three-game sweep of Baltimore. The Angels beat Oriole ace Jim Palmer, 12-10, as Rance Mulliniks singled in two runs in a four-run sixth.

"This is as close I have come to a home run streak since I was with the Yankees and hit 11 in nine days," said Bonds. "I was physically and mentally beat recently but being the designated hitter a couple of times this week helped."

Yankees 7, Mariners 1

Mike Torrez' six-hitter and Paul Blair's home run and three RBI propelled the Yankees past Seattle. Torrez, 11-10, did not allow a hit in the first 41-3 innings and was in control throughout.

"That's as good as he's ever been," Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson said of Torrez. "He was never getting behind hitters or walking anyone."

Brewers 6-7, Blue Jays 2-5

Steve Brye was a double hero for Milwaukee. Brye hit a two-run homer to spark the Brewers' opening game victory, then slammed a double to score the go-ahead run in the nightcap as Milwaukee swept past Toronto.

Von Joshua's double in the eighth delivered the decisive run in the second game, making Moose Haas, 8-7, the victor. Larry Sorensen, 3-5, was the winner in the opener.

Waltrip Wins, In Relief

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — "Maybe we should get some sort of good guy award or something," Darrell Waltrip said casually, "I got to play winner anyway when I got into Donnie's car."

"All in all, I'd say we had a pretty unusual day." And that it was.

Allison, who hasn't called for a relief driver in his recollection since the World 600 in 1969, was on the edge of consciousness, suffering from the 96-degree heat and high humidity when his crew substituted Waltrip.

"I'd asked for David Pearson or Benny Parsons, because I knew they were out of the race. I hadn't even thought about Darrell," Allison said. "I'm awful glad he showed up, though. He did everything that could have been expected of him."

And, besides Rudd's dandy fourth-place finish, Skip Manning enjoyed the finest race of his career, battling for the lead until his Chevrolet started spewing smoke just six laps from the finish. He finished third, behind Cale Yarborough, whose Chevrolet was running in high gear only.

"Because of the transmission, the fast cars got away from me," said Yarborough, who managed to take over the lead from Richard Petty in the season point standings. "But it wouldn't have made any difference. I couldn't have beaten them anyway. I had the weakest Chevrolet in the field, excusing none."

The strong Chevrolet belonged to Parsons, who led the field around the first part of the race at speeds faster than his 192,684 miles per hour pole position winning speed. But his engine wasn't up to the high temperatures and continual high speeds—only five caution periods slowed the race and the average speed for the winner was a searing 162.525.

Manning and Rudd, however, were the surprises of the race. Manning, last year's rookie of the year, has been showing marked improvement the past three races, and Rudd, top rookie challenger this year, has now put together two solid finishes in a row.

"I knew I could outrace every car but that one," Manning said of the Waltrip-Allison car. "But my car seemed to work better than anybody's when it was running alone. My plan the last two laps was to get free of Allison and try to stay out in front of him. Unfortunately, I didn't get the chance to test my strategy."

Backup QB Rallies Seattle

By BILL MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quarterback Jim Zorn, who carried the Seattle Seahawk offense almost singlehandedly a year ago, wants backup signal caller Steve Myer to do well.

"We need some depth at quarterback and Myer is a fine one," Zorn said after Myer rallied the Seahawks to a 34-24 victory over the San Francisco 49ers. "It was good to see him come in and move the ball club well."

Zorn, who accounted for more than two-thirds of the Seattle offense last year with 2,571 yards passing and 246 rushing, played the first three quarters Sunday before Coach Jack Patera replaced him with the 49ers ahead 24-20.

With Myer at the helm, the second-year Seahawks dominated the fourth period, capping a pair of touchdown drives with one-yard plunges by Sammie Smith and Don Testerman. Myer, who was on the Seattle roster for seven games last year but saw no action, hit two of five passes for 43 yards and, forced to run twice when he couldn't find a receiver, scrambled for carries of 26 and 12 yards.

"This is the first game coming back from a season which was not too good," Patera said. "The win was very good for us. It was nice to see some people come in, particularly Myer and Testerman, and do a good job for us."

The 49ers, making their debut under new owner Ed DeBartolo, new General Manager Joe Thomas and new Coach Ken Meyer, said they did everything they wanted to do except win.

"I saw some very good things out there today," Meyer said. "We accomplished everything we wanted to do, except one thing—winning the ball game. I thought our first team offense moved very well."

Both starting quarterbacks looked sharp, with Zorn completing 11 of 13 for 115 yards and one touchdown and San Francisco's Jim Plunkett hitting on nine of 11 for 91 yards.

"We moved well in the first half," said Plunkett, a disappointment in 1976. "Everything we tried seemed to fall into place. Our passing philosophy is simpler this year and we still try to run that ball."

Plunkett and running back Delvin Williams, who scored twice, led the 49ers to a 14-3 lead early in the second quarter, but a 22-yard touchdown pass from Zorn to Duke Ferguson and a 55-yard field goal by John Leyboldt helped Seattle move to within 17-13 at the half. After Testerman put the Seahawks ahead on a one-yard run in third period, reserve quarterback Scott Bull and reserve running back Bob Ferrell led the 49ers on an 80-yard, 14-play scoring drive. Bull scored from one yard out to put San Francisco ahead 24-20 before Myer went to work.

35, 32, 32 and 39 yards, leading New England past the New York Giants.

Chester Marcol kicked a pair of 45-yarders in the final two minutes as Green Bay rallied to overtake Cincinnati. Marcol also had a 49-yarder earlier in the game.

Richie Szaro had field goals of 41 and 23 yards, providing New Orleans' winning margin over Chicago.

Rookie Mike Michel connected on field goals of 43 and 45 yards, giving Miami enough points to knock off Tampa Bay.

Charlie Waters blocked two San Diego punts and Dallas turned both of them into touchdowns as the Cowboys kayoed the Chargers. Rookie running back Tony Dorsett, making his NFL debut, gained 26 yards on seven carries and caught a 15-yard pass but was forced to leave the game with a twisted left knee.

Nate Allen knocked down a Los Angeles punt, then recovered the ball and dashed 23 yards for the winning touchdown in the final 87 seconds, giving Minnesota its victory over the Rams. Quarterback Joe Namath made his debut for LA, playing one period and completing three of four passes for 34 yards.

Detroit's defense was the difference against Kansas City. The Lions halted the Chiefs seven times inside the five yard line to preserve the shutout.

Terry Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes, moving Pittsburgh past Buffalo. In the hours after the game, rookie linebacker Randy Frisch of the Steelers was killed and free agent wide receiver Dave Grinker was seriously injured in an automobile accident as they drove back to the team's training camp at Latrobe, Pa.

NFL Roundup

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK95 ♦8763 ♣Q8 ♣5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Even though partner made a mere overall, your holding strongly suggests game possibilities. Since a bid of one spade would not be forcing, and you cannot run the risk of partner passing, we suggest either a jump to two spades or a cue-bid of two clubs. In the long run, the cue-bid could prove the more economical since it allows you to get both of your suits into the auction without oversteering their length.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q107 ♦Q1093 ♣AJ873
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♦
What do you bid now?

A.—Considering your initial pass, you could hardly have a better hand for partner. As in the previous example, the most economical way to tell him of your strength is with a cue-bid of the enemy suit—i.e., two hearts.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10 ♣954 ♦AK832 ♣KQ106
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♥ 4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—At this vulnerability, partner must have a good hand and a near solid suit for his leap to game. So don't let your singleton spade deter you from bidding on. Since the opponents' preempt has made scientific investigation impossible, we would make a try for slam by raising to five spades—giving partner the option of passing if he happens to have two losing hearts or a hole in his spade suit. However, we would not quarrel with a full-bodied jump to slam.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, East-West have 60 on score, as South you hold:
♠AJ63 ♥KJ7 ♦J1052 ♣J6
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—Pass. The opponents are poised to convert their partial, but there is no reason to panic yet. See how the auction develops. There is plenty of time to get into the bidding later with a balancing action of some kind.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠952 ♥J109862 ♦7 ♣AK105
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Dble.
What action do you take?

A.—Despite the fact that your partner opened the bidding, you can't be sure whose hand it is. Partner might have opened light in third seat, and your length in his suit weakens his defensive potential. Our vote goes for a jump to four hearts—make it as difficult as possible for the opponents to get into the auction.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ873 ♥Q3 ♦K82 ♣AKQ
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
5 ♣ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. After your jump shift then jump raise of partner's first suit, he obviously is not worried about the quality of your trump support. All that could be bothering him is the unbid suit—hearts. He must have two losers there, and is asking whether or not you have a control. You don't.

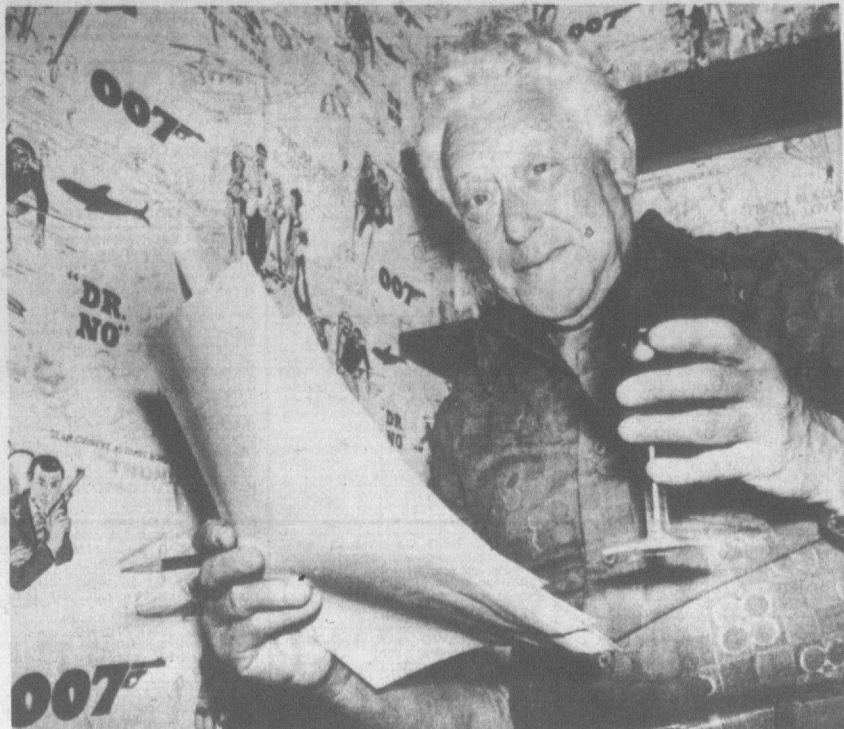

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10982 ♥73 ♦A863 ♣KJ7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—You have good fitting cards for partner and are at the top of your raise, so we would accept a jump to four spades. However, partner's action might be the beginning of a move toward slam, so we give top marks to a rebid of three diamonds. If partner continues with a bid at the three-level, we would next show the king of clubs by bidding four clubs.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J62 ♥K84 ♦Q76 ♣K853
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT Dble. ?
What action do you take?

A.—Redouble. You have East where you want him—don't let him escape. Your side has at least 25 points; obviously, West is going to have nothing to help his partner. You can expect to make one no trump redoubled with overtricks, or if the opponents run, you can double any escape and expect to collect a telephone number.

Can't Repeat Yourself In The Movies On 007

DON'T REPEAT YOURSELF — James Bond movies is that you can't repeat yourself." (AP Laserphoto)

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The thing about the James Bond movies is that you can't repeat yourself, and yet the audience demands similar ingredients.

Writing them becomes a brain-breaking thing."

Richard Maibaum knows. He has coauthored eight of the 10 Bond movies (not including the maverick "Casino Royale"). The latest is on view throughout the nation this summer: "The Spy Who Loved Me," starring Roger Moore, Barbara Bach, Curt Jergens and 7-foot-2 Richard Kiel as Jaws, whose steel teeth are as lethal as a Sten gun.

Maibaum was a curious choice to become 007 laureate. He is about as British as a Coney Island red hot. Born in New York City, he attended New York University, graduated from the University of Iowa and came to Hollywood in 1936 after making a name for himself as playwright.

He worked on such scripts as "They Gave Him a Gun," "Stablemates," "I Wanted Wings," produced combat films for the Army during the war, returned to write and produce "The Great Gatsby" (Alan Ladd version), "The Big Clock," "No Man of Her Own," and so on.

Because he had made several films with Ladd, Maibaum was lured abroad. Ladd became partners with producer Irving Allen and Albert "Cubby" Broccoli in a series of films made abroad for tax reasons. "Cubby" gave me the Ian Fleming books to read in 1957 or 1958," Maibaum recalled.

Emmy Awards Show Is Returning On Sept. 11

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — We hate to sadden award-show haters, but it seems there really will be a 29th annual Emmy awards show for evening programs after all — on NBC's "Big Event" next Sept. 11.

You'll recall this tuxedo rally once was set for May 15, but fell apart amid feuding by the New York and Los Angeles chapters of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The feud got so bad that TV stars here defected from the show by the gross. This raised the grave prospect that almost no one in nighttime TV would get an Emmy award this year. Unthinkable.

So in July they agreed on two separate Emmy tribes. The new Academy of Television Arts and Sciences here got custody of all evening Emmyizing. The Gotham gang got daytime and sports to salute.

ATAS, as the evening shift is called, issued its roster of nominations last week. The roster was impressive. It was more than a quarter-inch thick and weighed 11 ounces.

It contained 66 categories of nominations, compared to a parsimonious 18 for last April's rousing "Television Critics' Circle Awards" festival on CBS. ATAS does not mess around.

Fortunately, only the major categories — acting, writing, directing and showing up for last year's Emmys — will be announced on the air.

The roster also showed 594 names eligible for Emmys. This doesn't mean 594 folks were nominated, though. Many contenders were nominated for more than one show or in more than one category.

For example, public TV's Jac Venza is a five-count contender as executive producer of four efforts from "The Adams Chronicles" to "Arthur Rubenstein at 90," and for designing the scenery of the "Billy the Kid" episode of "American Ballet Theater."

Should he go home without an Emmy, you may expect the sun to rise in the West. And it is a safe bet anyone even remotely connected to ABC's "Roots" will get a statuette to take home.

That eight-part proceedings, a ratings hit last January, swept last week's nominations, getting 37 for individual and collective effort.

Ginger Rogers Dislikes Trend

MIAMI (AP) — Ginger Rogers longs for the old-time movies when she says entertainment was spelled with a capital "E."

Miss Rogers, who for years entertained moviegoers with her famous partner Fred Astaire, says modern movies "seem to have the attitude of just throwing everything and the kitchen stove in there."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST— Warm to hot weather is forecast today for most of the nation. Mild weather is forecast from the northern Plains into the Great Lakes and rain is expected for northern New York and New England. (AP Laser-photo Map)

By The Associated Press
Hot and humid weather has returned to North Carolina and except for some occasional relief in afternoon thundershowers, it may continue for the rest of the week.

High pressure is centered off the Carolinas coast and this is expected to remain stationary for the next few days.

The mountains were expected to get some relief this afternoon and western sections of the state may get some relief Tuesday in the form of afternoon thundershowers.

Temperatures climbed into the 90s east of the mountains Sunday and widely scattered thundershowers occurred. Raleigh led rainfall reports with about one-third of an inch. Greensboro reported an afternoon high of 99 degrees, while Raleigh had 97 and Charlotte and Wilmington 96. Asheville had a high of 87.

The FARM SCENE

By MICHAEL REGANS
Asst. Agricultural Extension Agent

Feed costs for maintaining beef cow herds have increased steadily in recent years. As a result, beef producers have sought readily available and more economical sources of nutrients for feeding beef cows.

Crop residues such as corn, soybean, and milo stovers represent a large source of nutrients for beef cattle.

and pods depending upon the crop. Stover silage is crop residue harvested and stored as high moisture silage. Husklage refers to combine tailings which includes cobs, husks, and a small amount of grain.

The least costly method of utilizing corn residue is to graze the material, but only 15 to 30% of the available residue is harvested by this method. An acre of corn stover (100 bu/acre grain yield) will provide 40 to 50 days of grazing per dry cow.

Since cows will consume the more palatable portions of the plant first, reducing field size with temporary fences may prevent selective grazing for dry cows and increase the amount of residue used. For lactating cows talks can be grazed selectively for 30 days with only protein supplementation. An additional 60 days grazing may be obtained by providing supplemental energy and protein. Two to three acres of talks per lactating cow should be provided. Generally, grazing of talk fields should be limited to January 15 or earlier since nutritive value of the residue is reduced by this time.

Economical methods of nutrient supplementation and residue treatment may be developed to allow increased use of residues for lactating cows or growing cattle. Further work is being conducted to develop practical methods of chemically treating crop residues to improve their nutrients availability.

Much of the grain produced in North Carolina is a cash crop, and little value has been given to plant residues. It is known that energy yield per acre of a corn crop is maximized when the crop is harvested as 30 to 40% dry matter silage. In cash crop enterprises, energy yield per acre may be increased up to 35% above the grain energy yield, provided the residue is harvested and utilized as feed for beef cattle. In 1975 farmers in North Carolina harvested 1.5 million acres of corn, 1.4 million acres of soybeans, and 80,000 acres of sorghum for grains. Residues from these three grain crops alone would have provided sufficient TDN (total digestible nutrients) to feed a half million non-lactating beef cows for 100 days for over 8 years.

Crop residues alone do not contain sufficient nutrients to maintain a cow herd for the entire year. However, most residues with some supplementation of energy and/or protein can supply the nutrients needed during early to mid-gestation when nutrient requirements are at a minimum. Lactating cows have higher energy, protein, and mineral requirements than dry cows. Since supplementation requirements and costs would be higher for lactating cows than dry cows, residues should be used in lactation feeding programs only when more nutritious and economical forages are not available.

Three basic methods of harvesting crop residues are: (1) grazing; (2) harvesting as a dry material; and (3) harvesting as a high moisture silage. Stover refers to dry material harvested after grain is combined and includes mostly stalks and leaves, with some grain, husks,

Patient Is Gun Victim

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Fayetteville police were searching today for an Hispanic man in connection with a shooting at Cumberland Psychiatric Institute, which killed the man's wife and injured two others.

Killed was Mrs. Mary Francis Lantigua, 25, of Fayetteville, a patient at the institute. Police Chief Danny Dixon said authorities were seeking Mrs. Lantigua's husband, Angel F. Lantigua, in connection with the shooting. Dixon said no charges had been filed.

Wounded were Bobby Coefield, an orderly who suffered a bullet wound to the right shoulder, and Laurie Curtis, another patient, Dixon said. Coefield underwent surgery Sunday evening at nearby Cape Fear Valley Hospital, he said.

Mrs. Curtis was treated and released at the same hospital, the chief said.

Dixon said Lantigua went to visit his wife at about 5 p.m. and "She just started hollering out, 'He's got a gun.'" Then the staff heard shots, he said.

Mrs. Lantigua was shot at least three times in the body and once in the head, Dixon said, and Lantigua allegedly ran from the institution and fled in a car.

Dixon said no motive for the shooting had been established.

A military police spokesman for the U.S. Army at Ft. Bragg said Lantigua reportedly was a military man, who had been stationed overseas, but was in the process of changing duties.

Speaking of Your Health...

Don't Worry About Heart Murmur

My 7-year-old son went to day camp recently. The doctor who examined him said that he had a heart murmur and thought that we should see a specialist about it. When we took him to our own doctor, he said that he knew about the murmur, but since it was unimportant he hadn't wanted to worry us. Shouldn't we have been told about this a long time ago? — Mrs. T.G., N.Y.

Dear Mrs. G.:
The decision as to whether or not to tell the parents about an unimportant heart murmur is one that doctors face often.

Sometimes if he tells the parents about it, even though he explains that this kind of "functional" murmur is of no concern, many people become terrified and almost instinctively limit their child's activities.

Many children have actually been made physical and psychological invalids by the exaggeration of the importance of a slight heart murmur.

If, on the other hand, the doctor tried to spare the parents' anxiety by not telling them about the murmur, there is always another kind of risk involved. And this happened to you when another doctor at camp made mention of the murmur. Sometimes this can destroy the vital relationship between the family and the doctor.

In the daily practice of medicine, decisions of this sort are made by measuring the disadvantages against the disadvantages of revealing too much to patients. The emotional capacity of parents and their ability to cope with problems are taken into consideration. In most instances, at least one member of the family is taken into the doctor's confidence so that he does not shoulder the entire burden himself.

Now that you know that your child has a murmur, it is imperative that he be protected from that knowledge, and not overprotected, or restricted from all normal, healthy activities and sports.

Many functional murmurs disappear during adolescence. When children have imposed on them constant limitation of activities, emotional scars persist, even after the murmur has disappeared.

So once and for all, you, your doctor and the heart specialist must establish the fact that this type of heart murmur is not a serious one. For there are other heart murmurs, of course, which are associated with all kinds of heart defects. Once these are ruled out, don't make your son a "heart invalid." I hope he is at camp and having a great time!

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH. For some unexplained reason, many patients fail to give their dentists a detailed account of their present or past illnesses. This is just as important to the dentist as it is to any other doctor.
