

Resurrecting The Past

AFTER 112 YEARS...At 10:45 a.m. Monday August 8, a Civil War cannon with parts of the carriage still attached was raised from the Roanoke River at Fort Branch near Hamilton. The cannon had rested on the river bottom since the spring of 1865. A 20 ton capacity crane on the deck of an Army Reserve operated LCU boat retrieved the cannon, estimated to weigh six tons in its wet state. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Civil War Cannon Lifted From The Roanoke River

HAMILTON — A spontaneous cheer from several hundred eager spectators greeted the surfacing of a Civil War cannon from the Roanoke River at Fort Branch yesterday.

At 10:45 a.m. Monday, a self-propelled rough terrain 20 ton capacity crane on the deck of an Army LCU lifted a 24 pounder cannon from its 112 year resting place on the bottom of the Roanoke at the foot of Rainbow Banks. When news of Lee's surrender in the spring of 1865 reached Fort Branch, Confederate soldiers on duty there pushed the fort's guns over the bluffs into the river below.

Asked what his feelings were in seeing the cannon emerge from the water, project director Gordon Watts, Jr. responded with a big smile and a single word, "relief."

About an hour later, the crane raised a second cannon, a six pounder iron field gun with one of the wheels still attached to the carriage.

The two cannons raised Monday are the first contingent of four pieces scheduled to be salvaged. The other two are being raised today, with Mrs. Sara Hodgkins, Secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources and other state officials slated to be present.

Residents of Hamilton, a historic town founded in 1805 and noted for a dozen well maintained pre-Civil War structures, made Monday a festive day, displaying red, white and blue bunting along the town's main street.

For them, and for farmers in the adjacent Poplar Point Township, it was a day to forego work in the blazing hot sun and instead to gather at Fort Branch to see the cannon raised.

Yesterday's successful salvage of two remarkably well preserved cannon with a surprisingly large portion of the wooden carriage structures still attached, was the culmination of a carefully planned expedition under Watts direction. The operation began on July 5.

The first and larger of the two pieces retrieved Monday, Watts said, "is an iron 24 pounder. I think it is a Model 1819, but it may be a Model 1839."

The wet weight of the larger cannon he estimated to be "about 12,000 pounds," and that of the smaller at "about 1,000 pounds."

For the past five weeks, a team of more than two dozen people, composed of professional archeologists specializing in underwater salvage and students from UNC-Wilmington have been surveying and mapping the site, both the earthwork Civil War fort and the river area below it.

Israeli Skeptical On PLO's Concessions

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, carrying word of possible Palestinian concessions, arrived in Israel today for what could be the climax of his current Middle East peace mission.

Vance faced close questioning by Prime Minister Menahem Begin and other Israeli leaders on whether the United States remains committed not to negotiate with Yasir Arafat's Palestinian Liberation Organization — PLO.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan welcomed Vance at planeside upon his arrival from Saudi Arabia and said, "Whenever you accept our views, we will be in full agreement with you."

Dayan was speaking in a light vein, but his comment foreshadowed difficulties in Vance's talks here.

At a news conference in Taif, Saudi Arabia, before flying here, Vance confirmed that he has had indirect contacts with the PLO through various Arab intermediaries.

"We have had no direct contact with the PLO," he said, adding, "We are informed by the various Arab parties as to the positions of the PLO and have been so informed as we proceeded through my visit." Vance has been in the Middle East for nine days.

The PLO has so far refused to accept United Nations resolutions laying the groundwork for a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, in part because these recognize Israel's right to exist and speak of the Palestinian quest for a homeland only as a "refugee problem." The PLO charter also calls for replacement of the Jewish state by a secular Palestine.

In a "memorandum of agreement" between the United States and Israel in 1975, former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger pledged that Washington "will not recognize or negotiate with the PLO as long as the PLO does not recognize Israel's right to exist and does not accept Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338."

Resolution 242 calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories, resolution of the "refugee problem" and recognition of the right of every Mideast state to live in secure borders, and Resolution 338 set up the Geneva peace conference.

Vance told reporters he had heard rumors that the PLO may be considering a change of position in regard to Resolution 242.

"But," he said, "I have seen nothing concrete yet."

If the PLO accepted the resolution, adopted after the 1967 war, the United States would not insist that the PLO charter also be revised, Vance said.

"If the PLO were to accept 242 they would be accepting the principle that they recognized the right of Israel to exist in a state of peace within secure and recognized boundaries," he said. "That, in my judgment, would revoke the covenant."

But in Israel, a high-ranking Israeli politician said a Palestinian willingness to recognize Israel's right to exist would not change the Jewish state's stand against negotiating with the PLO.

HUD Approval Permits Closing Out Of Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Final approval has been received by the Redevelopment Commission from the Department of Housing and Urban Development of non-cash grants in aid work accomplished by the city and Greenville Utilities in the Shore Drive project.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Commission, reported Monday night that the long-awaited HUD approval, which had been delayed for several months, will allow the Redevelopment Commission to close out the project.

Laney said that the HUD approval of the non-cash grants in aid involved $235,627 in work done by the city and GUCO in streets, sidewalks, storm drainage improvement in the Town Common and improvements in the utility distribution system.

The work credit, he pointed out, will result in excess credit of approximately $37,000 which, when added to the $420,000 in 112-B university credit already approved, will amount to over $450,000 in credit that may be used by the city towards its share of the downtown project or other eligible program.

The director added that, based on the actual date selected to terminate the Shore Drive project, the Redevelopment Commission will have cash in the area of $60,000 to $70,000 to be turned over to the city for the Community Development Program. The Commission turned over some $160,000 in cash to the city following the Newtown Project close-out.

Laney reported that some 135,000 square feet of street right-of-way that is already improved has been dedicated to the city from the Shore Drive program. The property was acquired by the Commission in Shore Drive for street widening and those improvements have been accomplished.

The city will have the deed to the dedicated property, estimated in round figures to be worth $100,000, Laney noted.

In other business Monday night, commissioners reviewed proposals submitted for land acquisition appraisal services, review appraisal services, and legal and title service in connection with the planned acquisition of property in the South Evans Redevelopment Area scheduled in the third year of the CD program.

Based upon an analysis of the proposals, the board members approved the awarding of contracts to Moore and Sauter of Greenville for first appraisal services; to Calvin Reynolds of Winston-Salem for second acquisition appraisals; to Francis Key of Atlanta, Ga., for review appraisals; and to Pegram and Hahn of Greenville for legal and title services in the project.

Laney reported that the city is planning amendments to the CD program that will provide $100,000 to add to the $160,000 given by the Redevelopment Commission to the city for the parking deck on the corner of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

The amendments were necessary because cost estimates on the proposed deck came in above the projected figures. The additional money added to the budget should result in a much better design for the deck and provide one which will blend in better with the area, Laney said.

He discussed the recent City Council approval of zoning changes requested by the Commission along the railroad in Southside. He said that the new zoning will protect development in the area and prohibit offensive industry from operating in the program area.

KEEP MILK COLD

How valid are the date markings on milk cartons and, if they are valid, is there any law concerning the sale of these cartons after the specified dates? T. P.

Hotline posed your question to Tommy Edwards, President of Carolina Dairy Products Inc. here.

He said these expiration dates indicate the day on which the company expects to take out of the dairy cases of various stores the products supplied by them. This date is usually 10 days from the date of packaging of the dairy product, he said, and if ideal conditions are maintained, milk can be fine from 18 to 20 days.

"Milk is a very temperamental commodity, though," he said. "It is affected drastically by temperature."

The ideal temperature range for milk is from 33 to 36 degrees Fahrenheit; in other words, not freezing, but just above, he said. If its temperature is raised to 45 degrees at any time, whether it's in a grocery bag on the way home or on the table waiting for daddy to get home for supper, its shelf life is cut to five days. If its temperature reaches 50 degrees, this life is cut to two days; 70 degrees and it's cut to a half-day. This information he said he was quoting from a control chart supplied by the N. C. Department of Agriculture.

There is no law concerning the sale of milk after the expiration date, he said, but there is a law that says that anyone selling milk must keep it below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Almost any dairy, he said, has the policy of reimbursing stores for any milk or milk product returned by a customer before the expiration date. "Of course, we would hope that the customer would return the product only if he or she knew it had been kept cold consistently since being in the home. If one often has a problem with dairy products "going bad" prior to the expiration dates, he or she probably should check the home refrigerator to be sure that everything in it is being kept below 45 degrees at most, preferably colder," he said.

Coordinating Fire-Fighting In 'War Room'

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The room has a panoramic view of the southern Idaho desert, but no one has time to enjoy it. Technicians scurry from radio consoles to maps of the western United States marked with big red X's.

Each X represents a forest fire. This is the "war room" of the Boise Interagency Fire Center, which is coordinating a battle against flames that have consumed nearly 2 million acres in seven states.

Near the maps, each fire and its size is posted. On a large board nearby, the location of fire fighting aircraft is plotted. Voices are heard checking the location of men and equipment.

Spread over desks are situation reports, cold cups of coffee and half-smoked cigarettes.

Tension fills the room. The fire situation remains critical, and the long hours and hard work are beginning to show on the faces of crews who staff the centers 24 hours a day. Some have been on duty almost constantly since last Thursday, when a special fire emergency plan was put into effect.

The fire center is a cooperative effort of five federal agencies — the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the National Park Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Through it, men and equipment are routed to fight fires in California, Oregon, Washington, Alaska, Colorado, Utah and Arizona.

"This is the most central location for large forest fire logistical supply, manpower and equipment to the western United States. This is where the largest forest fires occur and where the need is the greatest," said the center's director, R.L. Bjornsen.

On Monday, more than 1,000 experienced firefighters were either waiting at Boise or en route to the center for dispatching to other western points, said Arnold Hartigan, a fire information officer. Since Thursday, he said, nearly 2,000 men had been dispatched through the center.

After the crews arrive at the center, they usually rest for 24 hours, receive training in the use of protective fire suits, then are airlifted to areas where more crews are needed.

Crews from the East and Southeast have been summoned to augment the weary local firefighters, stretched thin as the blazes continue to spread.

Several crews arrived early Monday morning from Knoxville, Tenn., and spent most of the day relaxing around the center, waiting for orders to head for a fire.

Arthur Bradley of Laurel, Miss., said this was the seventh time he had flown west to fight fires. "I've fought fires in Montana, then in New Mexico ... and last year we were in Virginia, Kentucky, then on that big one up in Michigan," he said.

The mess hall was full Monday as crews flown in the night before ate lunch and waited for the call to move out. They had come not only from Mississippi, but from national forest and Job Corps crews in North Carolina and Virginia.

Jenkins Out Of Hospital

ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins was released from Pitt County Memorial Hospital at 8 a.m. today, according to Col. Charles Blake, Administrative Assistant to the chancellor.

Blake said that Dr. Jenkins' physician, Dr. Donald Tucker, gave a favorable report on Jenkins' condition. The chancellor will be at home for a period of rest and will undergo a follow-up check in about three weeks.

"He has been improving tremendously for the past week or ten days," Blake commented, "and is very pleased to be back home."

Blake said Jenkins would soon be meeting with key members of his staff at his home.

Dr. Jenkins was hospitalized on Friday, July 15 following complaints of chest pains and discomforts. Doctors subsequently confirmed that Jenkins had suffered a mild heart attack.

Panama Canal Treaty Negotiators Nearing Final Round Of Talks

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — U.S. and Panamanian negotiators closed ground on remaining unresolved issues in their first day of resumed talks on a new Panama Canal treaty, sources close to the negotiations said.

The negotiators were scheduled to meet again today in what both sides expect will be the final round of talks on a new treaty eventually turning control of the waterway over to Panama.

Both sides have said a "statement of conceptual agreements" may be initiated as early as Wednesday. It would set out the main principles of an agreement after 13 years of intermittent negotiations.

The Panamanians presented their version of a draft treaty to chief U.S. negotiators Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker when the talks were reconvened Monday. The proposal was made in response to a U.S. draft offered July 10.

"I think the U.S. reaction is positive so far," Panamanian negotiator Nicolas Barletta, minister for economic planning, said after the first day's talks.

The sources said the remaining major issues were technical problems included in the treaty "annex," a document of an estimated 240 pages that will be appended to the treaty, expected to be 60 pages long.

These issues include details of the transfer of lands and waters in the Canal Zone to Panama, and the methods for delivering a reportedly agreed-upon U.S. economic aid package to Panama, they said. The treaty will also be accompanied by a separate "neutrality accord" in which Panama will declare the 63-year-old waterway open to ships of all nations.

"Let's say we are working toward cleaning the draft of the treaties presented by both sides," said Panamanian negotiator Aristides Ryo.

An official close to the Panamanian delegation said an economic agreement reached last weekend, reportedly breaking a negotiating stalemate, calls for the United States to increase the amount it pays for use of the canal and the zone to $50 million a year from $2.3 million. He said the package would also include hundreds of millions of dollars in lump-sum U.S. aid.

The existing treaty, signed in 1903, gives the United States perpetual control of the canal. Panamanian negotiators say the new pact provides for the gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops by the year 2000. Thereafter, the United States would reserve the right to intervene militarily if the canal is threatened by a third nation.

See Benefits In Welfare Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials predict President Carter's welfare reform proposal will bring new jobs and more welfare benefits to North Carolina, while encompassing more of the state's poor.

Despite increased total costs, they said, the state and counties can expect some savings in their welfare budgets.

But the plan also has some holes and problems, officials conceded. For example, the state's large population of seasonal workers might find themselves left outside the program, and adding new recipients might eventually boost already soaring Medicaid costs.

President Carter Saturday proposed that several current welfare programs be scrapped and replaced with a new one with an emphasis on putting welfare recipients to work. All able-bodied recipients, including mothers of school-aged children, would be required to take jobs if jobs are available.

The plan would provide publicly funded jobs for welfare recipients not able to find jobs in the private sector. It also would supplement incomes of employed recipients whose salaries are not above the poverty level — about $8,400 a year.

For those unable to work — the aged, blind, disabled and mothers of young children — benefits would be increased above current levels.

North Carolina officials had not calculated the costs of the program to the state Monday and were not entirely sure the net change would be an economic gain. But they pointed to a number of economic benefits.

The first would be a direct "relief" payment that the federal government would make to the state and counties to help reduce the non-federal share of welfare.

Federal officials figured that, under the current welfare program of $57 million, North Carolina this year would have gotten about $6 million in relief if President Carter's plan were in use.

Other relief might be coming to the counties from a $600-million emergency assistance program that would be set up under Carter's plan.

Another big benefit would be the public service jobs that would be created to employ welfare recipients. Harvey Lincoln, deputy director of employment and training for the state, predicted a three-fold increase in jobs funded by the federal government from the current level of 10,000.

Wages in those jobs, however, would be held at or just above minimum wage to encourage people to seek private employment.

The biggest effect on the state's current program, officials said, would be the inclusion of several new categories of people that President

Carter has proposed to bring under welfare.

"It would mean that all of a sudden we'd be dealing with groups we haven't had contact with before — the single individual and the couples who do not have children or are not blind, elderly or disabled," said James Wight, Wake County social service director.

Previously, welfare in North Carolina has been limited primarily to mothers or guardians of dependent children and to the blind, elderly or disabled.

Publishes Book On Dream House

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville native Wolly Smith has written and published a book about his dream house for each individual — a house tailored to meet the needs of that individual and his family. He called this house "The Environmental Home and Living Complex" and this is the title of his book that has come out this year.

WOLLY SMITH

Smith, who majored in architecture at the University of Georgia, said he was continuously amazed at how little any of his teachers and peers thought about the individual's wants and needs in the designing of homes that these people were going to invest in and live in perhaps for the rest of their lives.

Once out of school, he said, he began to learn about real estate selling and the more he learned the more disillusioned he became. He found that most of the real estate people he talked to knew little about even the basics of house structure. How, he asked, could they know whether what they were selling was worth what they were asking. He finally decided he'd find out for sure — he enrolled in a real estate course. The whole time, he said, was spent learning what the laws of Georgia that would protect the seller were — little else. "I finally decided I could not design a house for someone that would violate my conscience and I certainly could not sell one that was not worth anywhere near the price set for it."

He freely admits that part of his reason for writing this book is to drum up business for himself as a designer. "In this book, he said, "are set forth the basics of my beliefs and values about house design. Anyone who thinks that what I have to offer would benefit him and his family can get in touch with me. Then I'll give him the value he's seeking, and in the process, I'll save him thousands of dollars because the costly frills and other wasteful elements won't be there. The functionals will."

He calls 95 per cent of the houses built today obsolete, very basic sheltering structures." He said he objects to "houses which do not take advantage of the environmental forces and elements of the site such as the sun, prevailing winds, trees, etc. to light, heat and cool"; to "expensive building materials that can easily be replaced by more efficient and less costly ones;" and to "many houses, especially multi-level ones, which have their rooms positioned in relation to each other in a traditional way that is based on custom rather than sound architectural reason or needs."

He said most houses are designed and built according to the needs of the masses, rather than the individual. They are rigid and finite with no expansion and flexibility possibilities.

He also objects that in the financing of many of today's homes. Owners become slaves to the lending institutions for many years and end up paying as much as three times what their houses are worth."

He explains his "stage method" of financing, sets forth what one should expect and get from his house designer, puts down traditional and historically styled houses, explains his concept of desired spaces in the home and how they can be arrived at, talks about cooling, heating and lighting "naturally," and about energy self-sufficiency."

There's a lot of architectural fact put in laymen's terms and well explained. There's a lot of the author's personal bias, too, but this he admits.

Smith grew up in Farmville, the son of a local veterinarian, and he married a Farmville girl, the former Barbara Lang. The couple lives in Atlanta, where Wolly is in the home design and publishing businesses and where Mrs. Smith teaches piano and organ.

Anyone wishing to order The Environmental Home and Living Complex may write to Wollaston Inc., Box 52943, Atlanta, Ga. 30355. The price is $7.95 plus 45 cents postage and handling for a regular edition and $12.50 plus 45 cents postage and handling for a hardback library edition. Smith says the book is "guaranteed for 31 days".

Invitation Is Declined

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson, an outspoken foe of United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young, has "respectfully" declined an invitation signed by Young to serve as vice chairman of a dinner in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The Oct. 12 dinner in New York City is to raise funds for the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change in Atlanta.

In a prepared statement Monday, Thomson said he turned down the invitation because: "First, as long as you pursue an advocacy of aid and comfort to communist interests that is wholly foreign and un-American to the great majority of our citizens, I could never be associated with you in any capacity."

"Second, I heartily agree with the appraisal of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. by the late J. Edgar Hoover and believe that Dr. King did great harm to the American way of life through his association with communist inspired organizations," Thomson added.

Public Schools Await Over 1.1 Million Pupils

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's public schools are gearing up to greet the more than 1.1 million pupils that will swarm through their doors later this month.

Preparations include gathering and storing some 25 million gallons of fuel oil, 10 million textbooks and nearly 14,000 school buses and service vehicles that the state's almost 2,000 schools will use over the course of the year.

Operating those schools this year will cost $1.41 billion in state, local and federal funds.

Alan T. Hill, management information system director for the state Board of Education, said the state will spend more than $915 million this year paying its share of school operations. In addition, nearly $227 million in federal money and nearly $275 million in local funds will be spent.

C.K. Denning, director of school plant operations for the state Board of Education, said about 25 million gallons of fuel oil is in storage to heat the schools this winter.

He explained that fuel oil heats about 70 per cent of the classrooms and that those which depend on natural gas have been purchasing combination oil and gas burners and laying in a supply of oil just in case there is a shortage of natural gas during the coming winter. Denning said 39 of the 145 local school systems have as much oil in storage as they used last winter which was unusually cold.

Louis W. Alexander, director of school transportation, said the schools operate around 12,000 school buses regularly to transport nearly 750,000 children. With spare buses and service vehicles the total comes to about 14,000 vehicles.

Alexander explained that this year the legislature has put up the money to end standing on school buses by revising bus routes, reassigning children, shifting larger and smaller buses between routes and in some cases buying more buses.

C.C. Warren, state textbook director, estimated that the schools have more than 10 million textbooks on hand for the free textbook program. Warren said the local school systems have been ordering language and composition, foreign language and science textbooks this summer to catch up on their supply.

Warren noted that his division spends from $7.5 million to $9 million a year to buy books, but will have $13.3 million this year.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Saturday Ceremony

Globe-Trotting Grandmother Lectures To Benefit CARE

Windsor Native Is New TV Show Panel Member

ROBERSONVILLE — Vickie Ruth Tripp became the bride of Byron Phillips Boyle Saturday at 2 p.m. at Faith Baptist Church here. The Rev. Dallas James performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Tripp of Robersonville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hazel Boyle of Sumter, S. C.

Mrs. Carlene James of Robersonville presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Peggy Griffin, soloist, sang "God, A Woman and a Man," "If I Could Sing a Thousand Melodies" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with a high neckline and scooped sheer yoke encircled with white floral Venise lace accented with pearls. The long full sheer bishop sleeves were featured with Venise lace appliques with lace cuffs. A border of matching lace centered the bodice front with white pearls and extended over the A-line skirt. The skirt was enhanced with deep lace flounce hem and appliques.

She wore a three tier chapel length mantilla of silk illusion bordered in lace and attached to a capulet of matching lace. The bride carried a nosegay of assorted rainbow colors enhanced with pom poms, daisies and baby's breath tied with white streamers.

Mrs. Teresa Bullock, matron of honor, and Miss Wendy Tripp, maid of honor, of Robersonville, sisters of the bride, wore formal gowns of pink floral dotted swiss with Venise lace and long sleeves with gathering cap at wrist. They wore matching hats of pink with a pink satin bow with waist length streamers. They carried a white mum with matching streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Judy Leggett of Everetts, Miss Wanda Jones of Ramsey, and Mrs. Josephine Braddy of Greenville, S.C. Their gowns and hats were like those of the honor attendants in green, blue and yellow dotted swiss. They carried a long-stemmed mum tied with rainbow colors.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Joey Boyle of Sumter, S. C., brother of the bridegroom, Carl Bullock of Robersonville, brother-in-law of the bride, David Tripp of Bethel, uncle of the bride, and Phil Braddy of Greenville, S. C.

Mrs. Tripp chose a formal length polyester gown of pastel pink with a V-neckline enhanced with ruffled lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected a full length gown of crystal blue giana with a shirred bodice and long sleeves. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Grandmothers of the bride were given corsages of white carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Barbara James of Greenville, and Mrs. Berchie Bullock of New Bern, aunts of the bride. Miss Tonya James of Greenville, cousin of the bride, presided at the register.

For a wedding trip, the bride chose a street-length burgundy jumper and matching blouse. She wore her mother's corsage.

The couple will reside in Greenville, S. C., where they are sophomores at Tabernacle Bible College.

The bride is a graduate of Roanoke High School, Robersonville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Edmons High School, Sumter, S. C., and is employed at Sky City, Greenville, S. C.

A cake cutting was given by the parents of the bridegroom for the wedding party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. James, Greenville, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Miss Lisa James of Greenville, cousin of the bride, greeted guests. The refreshment table was decorated with summer flowers and lighted candles.

After the traditional cutting of the cake and toast by the bridal couple, the cake was served by Mrs. Boyle, mother of the bridegroom, and Miss Violet Phillips, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

The church was decorated with traditional rainbow colors. In the background was a 17-branch brass crescent heart-shaped candelabra holding white chase candles with an emerald greenery background enhanced with daisies, baby's breath, mums of green, lavender, pink and blue and pom poms. On each side was an identical seven branch tree candelabra. Palms of emerald greenery were interspersed throughout the wedding scene. Family pews were marked by white satin bows. Herbie Tripp of Robersonville, brother of the bride, pulled the aisle carpet.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Francis John Whelihan request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Beverly Jean, to Johnny Lawrence Brown, on Saturday, Aug. 13, at 3:00 p.m. in the Immanuel Free Will Baptist Church, Winterville.

Creamed cabbage or celery looks attractive when, just before serving, you give it a dusting of sweet paprika.

NEW YORK (AP) — "A gift of gab and a free trip around the world in 80 days" started Louise H. Morse, 72-year-old grandmother, on her annual treks to remote areas of the world.

For the past 20 years the Newbury, Mass., woman has traveled by air, jeep, dugout canoe, donkey, horse and foot, visiting poverty-stricken people.

And after her return each year she has given over a hundred one-woman lecture-and-slide shows to help those people, not only to survive but to work toward self-support.

In her visits to some 85 countries to date, Mrs. Morse has stood on the rim of a volcano in Costa Rica, bounced through barricades in Cyprus in a jeep and ridden a donkey across a frail rope bridge high in the Andes.

She has stepped into a communal Japanese bath, chatted in the afternoon with Lesotho women building roads and with the king and queen of that small African country the same evening.

"It all began after I married, when I gave up teaching and moved to Newbury," Mrs. Morse said in an interview here. "I got involved in all kinds of community activities and became president of various organizations. I was an incorrigible story teller, with the accent on humor."

"One day the lecturer booked by a local club canceled and I was asked to fill in. I talked about my family, about the zigs and zags in raising three boys. The audience seemed to like what I dishes out. Soon I was giving shows at clubs, church groups, PTA or whatever."

One Sunday, she recalls, her minister outlined various charitable causes he felt were worthwhile and CARE, the international aid and development agency, was one of them.

"I went home and the phone was ringing," Mrs. Morse relates. "I said I'd come if the club would send a contribution to CARE." After she had done several such benefit shows, someone from the Boston

CARE office called her and said "We were wondering who you were. We keep getting letters about you with donations." That encouraged her to continue her shows, she says, but soon she found she was running out of material.

"Just about then some dear friends offered me, as my legacy in advance, a free trip around the world if I continued my programs for CARE," she says. "This would give me new material, so I asked another friend to try to line up some bookings. When I returned, she had 125 dates all set. That's when I started billing myself, 'Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere.'"

Years before the "layered look" became fashionable, the handsome, statuesque Mrs. Morse was literally wearing layers of clothing on her plane trips. This enabled her to use 30 of the 44 permitted pounds of luggage to carry baby clothes, which she hand delivers to needy mothers.

"More than 2,000 audiences have heard this remarkable woman recount tales of her travels in a witty, homespun vernacular and report on aid projects she has visited," says Frank L. Goffio, executive director of CARE, for which she has raised over $100,000. But, counting repeat contributions from groups and individuals she has reached, the donations she has inspired are estimated at more than a million dollars, he added.

Recently, CARE presented Mrs. Morse, whose travel expenses are covered by a portion of her lecture fees, with a special citation as "Volunteer Extraordinary."

"The money she has raised has fed thousands of malnourished children and built schools, clinics, roads, water and irrigation systems in some of the poorest countries around the world," says Goffio.

"My husband is a stay-at-home," says Mrs. Morse, married for more than 50 years to Charles Morse, retired president of a Newbury bank. "But he helps by reading up on where I'm going and briefing me."

Their three sons are all married and the couple have eight grandchildren.

"I'm so busy the children never know when I'll be home, so they don't feel they 'have to go see mother.' That's probably why they seem to like to," says Mrs. Morse, who plans a return trip to Guatemala soon to see the rebuilding since the earthquake in Feb. 1976.

"Many older people are ill because they are bored, but keeping busy keeps me healthy. Besides, after seeing such desperately poor people, how could anyone come back to an affluent society and sit in a rocking chair not doing your little bit to help?"

DiAnne Bowen, a native of Windsor, is the newest member "Carolina Today," a public affairs talk show produced by WNCT-TV, Greenville.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bowen, she is a graduate of both Chowan College and East Carolina University, where she majored in home economics education and was a member of the Student Legislature.

Miss Bowen has been Miss North Carolina-USA 1976, Miss Bertie, Miss Windsor, Miss Wool and Miss Ahsokie.

The show features guests from around the state including governors, congressmen, senators and other state officials as well as some national figures.

The only difficulty Miss Bowen has had in adjusting to the show is her new schedule. "Before I started 'Carolina Today,' I thought six o'clock was early.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

An ad in a midwest newspaper read, WANTED: Woman to do ironing for housewife 10 years behind in everything. Must have strong courage and sense of humor. Phone —

Now there's a woman I could live next door to in perfect harmony. I iron "By appointment only." I learned long ago that if I ironed and hung three dresses in my daughter's closet, she would change three times during dinner.

The other day my son wanted me to iron his jeans for a class play. "Which leg faces the audience?" I asked with my iron poised in mid-air.

"Boy," he said, "you're sure not like Mrs. Breck."

I hadn't thought about Mrs. Breck in years. She was an antiseptic old broad who used to live two houses down from me. She had an annoying habit of putting her ironing board up on Tuesdays and putting it away again at the end of the day. (What can you expect from a woman who ironed belt buckles?)

One afternoon I dropped in on her as she was pressing the tongues in her son's tennis shoes. "You know what you are, Mrs. Breck?" I said. "A drudge."

"Oh, I enjoy ironing," she said.

"You keep talking like that and someone is going to put you in a home."

"What's so bad about ironing?" she grinned.

"No one does it," I snapped. "Did you ever see the women on soap operas iron? They're just normal, American housewives. But do you ever see them in front of an ironing board? No! They're out having abortions, committing murder, blackmailing their boss, undergoing surgery, having fun! If you weren't chained to this ironing board you, too, could be out doing all sorts of exciting things."

"Like what?" she chuckled, pressing the wrinkle out of a pair of sweat socks and folding them neatly.

"You could give Tupperware parties, learn to scuba dive, learn hotel management while sitting under a hair dryer, have an affair with the Avon lady's unemployed brother-in-law, sing along with Jack LaLanne, collect antique barbed wire, take a course in Hebrew Flower Arranging, start chain letters . . . I don't know, woman, use your imagination!"

I read the newspaper ad again. It intrigued me so that I dialed the number and waited.

"Hello, Mrs. Breck speaking . . ."

Son of a gun. It sure makes you feel good when you had a part in someone's success, doesn't it?

Dear Abby

Their Farm Not A Vacation Spot

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Since we moved to a farm, relatives and friends have come uninvited and unannounced. Some even come for the weekend, asking if they can leave their children with us for "a few weeks." (They say, "It will be a good learning experience for them.")

Abby, don't people realize that a farm is not a vacation resort? There's work to be done daily, even if we don't punch a clock or report to a foreman.

We like company, but we don't want them dropping in whenever they feel like it. Please print this, but don't tell where it came from.

NO GUTS

DEAR NO: People with no guts need to be protected from people with guts galore. I hope this letter helps, but don't count on it.

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old daughter recently brought home a swim suit she purchased. She tried it on for me and it looks very skimpy. Most of her rear is exposed to public view.

She showed me how the top can be removed to go topless, and says she may wear it that way sometimes.

I told her that she might get arrested if she goes topless in public, but she says it is now legal for girls to go topless in Texas.

Is that true?

MRS. C.

DEAR MRS. C.: My Texas legal experts inform me that females who go topless in public can be charged with indecent exposure and/or disorderly conduct.

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on the letter complaining because some perfectly able-bodied people use the parking area marked, "Reserved for the Handicapped."

I have high blood pressure, diabetes, chronic bronchitis and a bad heart, and I am not supposed to walk great distances, so I used to use the convenient parking areas set aside for the handicapped. I no longer do so, however, because of the dirty looks I got from people who saw me parking there.

Please tell your readers that not all handicapped people are on crutches and in wheelchairs. I may look healthy, but I am . . .

HANDICAPPED, TOO

DEAR HANDICAPPED: Go ahead and use those convenient spaces and ignore the dirty looks. God knows, and YOU know, you qualify, and those who don't know don't matter.

DEAR ABBY: Some Duluth, Minn., waitresses complain bitterly that Canadian tourists refuse to tip them! What say your Canadian readers deny or justify non-tipping U.S. waitresses?

FATHER L. IN CLEVELAND

DEAR FATHER: I'm for letting my Canadian readers speak for themselves. Canadians!

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 152 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Industrial Development Helps

North Carolina's economy — like the nation's — has faced many difficulties in recent years. Particularly is this true in our state where the economy is so heavily based on tobacco growing and manufacturing.

Still we have progressed in North Carolina and one thing that illustrates it so well is industrial development.

Gov. Jim Hunt had a bright report in this area recently. Commerce Department figures showed new and expanded industries had a value of $551 million during the first half of 1977, he reported.

This represented 211 new or expanded plants, 9,500 new jobs and $74 million in new payroll. This was up 32 percent over the same period last year.

Even more encouraging was the fact that average wages paid for the new jobs is up $900, or 13 percent, over last year.

The governor reported a good mix in the new industries. It included metal fabricating, chemical products, electronics, rubber and plastic and electrical machinery.

The governor acknowledged that much of the groundwork for the industrial growth was laid before he took office.

But, he continued, "let me say that my commitment to economic development has not gone unnoticed in the industrial community. We have initiated a program with a clear policy, a vigorous new organization and strong leadership, and our emphasis on higher pay and more jobs has accelerated the current trend."

We need a vigorous industrial recruitment program and we are happy to see the governor placing emphasis on this area.

Imitation Tobacco Bears Watching

The British don't feel that synthetic tobacco will have much effect on American-grown tobacco, but here growers are concerned.

The cigarette supplement will replace a third of the tobacco in some British brands of cigarettes.

Great Britain has historically been a big market for U.S.-grown tobacco, and the British substitute is cause for concern. The development will bear watching.

THIS AFTERNOON

Two Crime-Fight Themes

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There are two key ingredients in Gov. James B. Hunt's recipe for fighting crime in North Carolina: creation of a system where the approach has been fragmented before; and the promise of swift and sure punishment to the person who would commit a crime.

In many of his programs, Gov. Hunt points to population growth data which show that by 1980 this state will be the 10th largest in the nation. While that sounds good for many areas, it sounds bad for crime. "We must face the fact that we will be the 10th largest state in the nation... and we will be a more urbanized state."

come from the Governor." Since then, Hunt has said more and more forcefully that he believes the Courts hold the answer to bringing crime under control.

BILL NOBLITT

No Easy Way

Solutions that sound simple — like longer sentences or more law officers — aren't enough, he says. And while he hears those who maintain that social and economic conditions are breeding crime, the governor responds that while some causes of crime are traceable to socio-economic conditions and that more and better paying jobs, better housing, better education and health care will have an impact on the crime rate, other steps are also essential.

Hunt thinks North Carolina has made a substantial beginning on the court reform and creation of a system needed to fight crime.

"We have concentrated on developing an overall system that insures that all the essential parts (courts, police, prisons, prosecutors, state agencies, individuals) work together to prevent crime," he now states.

"We have put state government's house in order, and paved the way for a coordinated, comprehensive approach to crime at that level. We have made changes that insure that our courts will work more swiftly. We have given our judges the tools... to help prevent crime. We are beginning to turn our prisons around from the warehouses that they have become. We are experimenting with programs that concentrate on the habitual criminal," the governor believes.

Among the changes now at work: a central state agency on Crime Control and Public Safety; a Crime Commission to oversee programs and funnel state and federal dollars; a Speedy Trials law and 11 new judges and 24 prosecutors to assure trials within 90 days by 1980; mandatory seven-year terms for armed robbery and burglary; higher pay for law officers; a revamped paroles commission; and a major prison construction program.

THORRIS

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Those Friendly Enemies

An oxymoron, as any student of rhetoric might advise you, is an epigrammatic device that relies upon contradictory words. The dictionary's first example is "cruel kindness." For a still better example, consider the pending proposal for an increase in the federal minimum wage.

The intention of the sponsors is altogether benevolent. The government wants to be kind. An estimated 3.7 million workers now earn only the fixed minimum wage of $2.30. That hourly rate has prevailed for the past 18 months; meanwhile the cost of living has continued to climb. Fairness, justice and decency cry out for an increase. Let us lift up the downtrodden! Assure them a living wage!

These are moving appeals. The AFL-CIO, which is the most deeply moved, would hike the minimum at once to $3. Congressman John H. Dent of Pennsylvania, not quite so moved, would go to $2.85. President Carter, moved a bit less, would try $2.50. Various efforts are proposed to tie the minimum wage hereafter to the average of all manufacturing earnings; a 60 percent index would require a minimum 18 months hence of about $3.30.

For the man or woman now earning $2.30, surely this offers a happy prospect — an increase of 43 percent in a year and a half. Bless the AFL-CIO, and bless Mr. Dent, and bless our dear President! But while the blessings are being invoked, remember the oxymoron. What is proposed is a cruel kindness, a gentle harshness, a lovable little kick in the pants.

The 3.7 million workers now earning $2.30 an hour — the human beings who are the direct and immediate objects of this solicitude — work at the outer rim of the industrial carousel. They are the first ones to be spun off. These are predominantly the old, the very young, the least skilled, the least productive. We are talking of women employed as maids, of students in odd jobs, of teenaged blacks trying desperately to help in family support.

What will all this kindness mean to them? An increase in the minimum wage of not more than 8 to 10 percent probably would result in immediate and nearly universal benefits for them. Most covered employers, we may assume, could adjust to $2.50 instead of $2.30. But for the most marginal workers — for those whose jobs already hang by a doubtful thread — even a 20-cent boost could prove a fatal salvation. At still higher levels, as many economic studies have shown in the past, we could expect even more bitter a sweetness.

Among teenaged blacks, unemployment already stands at 39.4 percent. What would a substantial increase in the minimum wage mean for them? Dr. Walter E. Williams, associate professor of economics at Temple University, laid a harsh answer on the line in testimony before the Senate Labor Committee last week. Over the past 30 years, the relative position of blacks in the labor force (and especially of young blacks) has steadily declined. It is still falling. Why is this? The answer, said Williams, "is the minimum wage law."

A letter is at hand from William F. Kartoian of Walnut Creek, California. He and his partners operate 29 movie theaters in Northern California. They have 209 employees, of whom roughly 150 are young persons 16 to 21. Most of them are students who work to help pay for their education. They are now paid a little more than the minimum wage.

Kartoian understands clearly what the callous solicitude of Congress will mean to his young people. At

Extra Road Helps

By JULES LOH

AP Special Correspondent MOHLER, Ore. (AP) — Everybody should have an alternative road, Pat McCoy said, sipping contentedly, almost smugly. Everybody should have a turnoff route in case life's superhighway develops a rut.

Pat McCoy, a jolly good fellow with a face like a toby mug and the proper girth to match, discovered his alternative road while reading a book on his favorite subject. Its title: "Cheeses and Wines of France and England with Notes on Irish Whiskey."

What more could a man ask of life, he mused, than to be a winemaker — a winemaker in a cheese factory?

That was it. He put aside his order pad and his artificial smile, he let his shoes go unshined, and he set upon a search. He traveled the Oregon coast, where he knew that cheese factories once proliferated. At Nehalem Bay, tucked in a hillside, he found one, abandoned. Perfect.

Today that former cheese factory is the Nehalem Bay Winery.

"I couldn't be happier. The wine is good. The profits are not bad. The scenery is excellent."

Pat McCoy will get no argument about the scenery. Nehalem Bay is an azure inlet among the timbered hills and crags of one of the most spectacular coastlines on the continent.

Whether those hills will produce grapes is yet to be seen, but their production of violet foxglove and crimson elderberry and a riot of other wild and beautiful growing things is astounding.

Meanwhile, Pat McCoy buys his grapes from Oregon's Hood River country, an equally scenic piece of northwestern geography sprinkled with roadside General Francisco Franco's northern forces launched today what insurgent officers called their final offensives against the provinces of Asturias and Santander, last government stronghold in northern Spain.

Insurgent planes and artillery bombed government defense lines in the Biscayan sector, trying to wipe out the last government resistance on the Basque-Asturian front.

Insurgents reported the bombardment was as intense as the fire poured upon the iron ring of fortifications of Bilbao before that Basque capital fell last June.

The Chinese peace preservation corps barricaded roads leading to Chinese areas around excited Shanghai tonight after a clash in which one Chinese soldier and one Japanese were killed.

The clash came as Japanese refugees evacuating the Yangtze valley and other Central Chinese areas poured into Shanghai.

The Kiangnan area on the northern fringe of Shanghai, scene of major Chinese-Japanese fighting, was rapidly closed off.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Crime Does Pay In N.Y.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEW YORK — During the three weeks since the great blackout of 1977, mayoral candidate Mario Cuomo has been asking a question that probes to the core of this city's sickness: was the police force restrained by a no-shoot order July 14 when the lights went out?

primary. Yet the answer is important: yes, police were under orders not to use force against looters.

While not advocating bloodshed, Cuomo criticizes the city for the lack of any plan to protect private property. Inexcusable absenteeism by police officers aggravated failure to provide a back-up force of state police or National Guardsmen. But Mayor Abraham Beame, seeking reelection, points with pride to the handling of the blackout amid his journeys to Washington in quest of more federal money.

The blackout disaster typifies what ails the nation's premier city: mismanagement at city hall; indiscipline and demoralization among city employees; the reflexive call for help from Washington. The events here July 14 tend to justify the Ford and Carter administrations' telling New York to heal its self-inflicted wounds.

Furthermore, the blackout looting has made crime prevention not only the top issue in the mayoralty campaign but the only real issue. Considering the fear induced by psychopathic killer "Son of Sam," politicians agree that the voters of the city are interested only in officeholders who can protect lives and property.

That may be why the early big lead enjoyed by ex-Rep. Bella Abzug, the candidate of the left, is disappearing. Although Mayor Beame's feisty attacks on Consolidated Edison's performance in the blackout gained desperately needed support, he has leveled off again. The beneficiaries would seem to be Secretary of State Cuomo and Rep. Edward Koch.

Koch, once considered a stereotyped Manhattan liberal, now calls for capital punishment and attacks "the nuts on the left who dump on middle-class values." His television commercials have stressed law and order, a line echoed by Cuomo in his newest TV spots. But the 32 per cent undecided vote shown by one private pollster a month before election day suggests Koch and Cuomo are not convincing the electorate either.

The way the blackout was handled indicates why. Ob-

To the editor:

A barrel of oil saved is NOT "just as good as a barrel of oil produced." It's much better!

An architect writing in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists a year or two ago showed that a barrel saved was worth roughly THREE barrels in the ground.

When you think of the cost of finding, pumping, refining, storing, trucking, etc., etc., that estimate doesn't seem far out at all, averaged over easy- and hard-to-get oil and over near- and far customers.

It would be pleasant to believe that there is really no energy shortage. There is, in fact, evidence that the natural gas shortage last winter was overstated. But if there isn't a shortage of oil in the not-very-long range, why are the oil companies throwing their stockholders' money away pumping oil out of Alaska and the North Sea, where it costs many times as much as in Saudi Arabia? And what happens when even this expensive oil is gone? Even if there were rivers and oceans of oil in the earth, they wouldn't do us any good if we didn't realize more than a barrel for every barrel used to get it out.

The League of Women Voters heartily supports conservation. The local League applauds the creation of an office of Energy Conservation and Management by the Greenville Utilities Commission as a concrete step forward, and we hope to work with its director, Mr. Reese Helms, to make the energy used in Pitt County do more for us.

Capital Gains Debate Warming

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Among the items expected to be included in President Carter's tax package is one that in some instances would double the tax on long-term capital gains, a measure that some say will set off an explosion of controversy.

Don't bet on it. The President's feelings on the matter have been known for a long time, but so far the feelings of those likely to be affected haven't been ignited. If there's a fuse on this one it must be wet.

Nevertheless, the very notion of making capital gains less attractive is bound to have an impact on homeowners, investors, industry, the economy. Potentially, it is as controversial as any tax matter in several years.

In an attempt to make the tax code fairer and simpler, those behind the idea say that long-term capital gains, such as you would make from the sale of a house or stocks, should be taxed as ordinary income instead of at one-half that rate.

That undoubtedly would simplify the tax forms, which are made complex and longer by the need to account separately for capital gains. But whether they would then be fairer is another matter.

First off, some say the tax already is a tax on an illusion. That is, with inflation running 6 or 7 per cent on average for several years now, many so-called capital gains aren't real.

An individual who wishes to sell one $35,000 vacation house and buy another of the same price, for example, might find he couldn't afford to do so.

Assuming the house now owned was bought five years ago for $25,000, and inflation has added $10,000, the homeowner would find himself after taxes with far less than $35,000, unless he availed himself of a little known section of the tax code.

From one point of view, therefore, it would seem that the capital gains tax should be adjusted for inflation in order to end the practice of assessing taxes on unreal, paper profits. Instead, the assessment would be raised.

But, it might be countered, the capital gainer stands to make an occasional killing and, if not that, then a fairly substantial reward. It's the old risk-reward ratio; as risk rises, so does the size of the potential reward.

Another argument for continuing the capital gains tax is that the country needs it. That is, new investments must be encouraged if the economy is to expand and make jobs available for a growing population.

The question probably isn't so much whether capital gains are desirable or undesirable, but why some of the most powerful financial entities in the land haven't spoken out yet, for or against.

That in itself has the ingredients of still another debate.

How's The Weather?

Nixon Anniversary Unobserved

WEATHER FORECAST— Showers are forecast today from the eastern Plains to the Northeast, southern Florida and the Gulf coast. The Southwest and northern Plains will also see some rain. Mild weather is expected from the northern Plains to the upper Great Lakes but continuing hot weather is due for most areas. (AP Map)

By The Associated Press
Hot and humid weather will continue virtually without change on into the weekend in North Carolina, says the National Weather Service. So just relax and stay close to your air conditioner.

High pressure, called the Bermuda High, is firmly entrenched off the southeastern coast. It's in control of the weather in this area and little change is expected through Saturday.

The only relief from the heat will be the occasional afternoon or evening thundershowers, which will be triggered by weak upper level disturbances moving toward the east coast from the central part of the nation.

Thundershowers developed Monday over the mountains and also were scattered over central and some eastern sections. However, only Asheville and Greensboro had measurable rain and it was slight.

Temperatures climbed well into the 90s east of the mountains and are expected to be similarly as high today. Monday day highs included 98 at New Bern, 96 at Wilmington, Greensboro, Elizabeth City and Fayetteville, 95 at Charlotte and Goldsboro, 93 at Raleigh and Hickory, and 88 at Asheville.

jective outside sources with close police connections say 8,000 officers failed to show for emergency duty that night. The principal stated reason: low morale and even lower sense of duty which infects the city's workers despite high pay and lavish pensions.

Perhaps another reason for the no-shows was the standing order against the use of force. While a bloody shoot-out was avoided, there were no provisions for water guns, rubber bullets or other non-lethal crowd-control devices. Nor was there a mobilization plan for the National Guard or state police to quickly provide a depth of uniformed officers that might have deterred looting.

The result was a burlesque of law enforcement that led to this often repeated farce: badly outnumbered police would chase looters from a store; once the police moved on, the looters would return to strip the store. So Cuomo strikes a responsive note when he calls the city's corrosive problem "a growing expectation of impunity by law-breakers operating on the principle that crime does pay."

A New York Times editorial following the blackout talked about "rage" stemming from "the problems of race and poverty." In fact, the real rage here three weeks later exists among ordinary people — black and white — who perceive their government as unable to make sure that crime does not pay. They see no civil rights issue in rampaging blacks with criminal records ignoring "soul brother" signs in the windows of black-owned businesses.

The "rage" of the ordinary people has trouble relating to a typically unenlightened campaign for mayor of New York. Beame tells unconvinced listeners that the city is on the way up again. Even less credibly, Mrs. Abzug promises she has the key to the federal Treasury. Commercials show Koch flailing away at all opponents and Cuomo talking about his Italian immigrant father's grocery store.

The people, Cuomo told us, are "past cynicism." But besides cynicism, there is naked fear here that the looters may reassert their impunity some ordinary evening at sunset without waiting for a power blackout. If any candidate actually convinces the city that such crime will not pay, he will be elected mayor with the elements of a public mandate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — No crowds at the White House, no celebrations, no memorial services, not even a footnote on most calendars.

It is, perhaps, a date destined to live in limbo, neither cherished nor mourned. Three years ago today, President Richard M. Nixon resigned.

He quit the White House with a teary speech and an unemotional letter. He left during a tumult that had come to encompass all Americans, but Gerald R. Ford, Hugh Scott and Peter Rodino more than most.

Today, those three and the nation make no public observance of the date.

So, too, for the former president, who quit with this letter now displayed in the National Archives, in a room next to the Constitution: "I hereby resign the Office of President of the United States."

He flew to California, where he remains, saying little except in paid-for television interviews.

Scott, now retired, but then the Senate Republican leader, watched Gerald Ford sworn in on that day three years ago, then hurried out of the East Room, through the crowds that had stood vigil in all those final hours, and up to the Capitol.

At his own office, he pulled out his finest gold-sealed stationery and he, too, wrote a letter that day, one of even greater brevity. Unlike Nixon's letter to the secretary of state, Scott's addressee did not require a zip code:

The Honorable James Madison

"Sir:
"It worked.
"Sincerely,
"Hugh Scott
"United States Senator."

It was a therapeutic exercise, a sigh of relief shared by many, that the Constitution fathered by Madison and the system it ordained had functioned under the severest strain.

So Air Force One, the Boeing 707 bearing the tail number 2-7000, sits in her chocks at Warner-Robbins AFB, Ga., today, waiting to bring a president back to the White House rather than take one away forever as she did on this date in 1974.

On Aug. 8, 1977, the anniversary of the day Nixon announced his intention to resign, Jimmy Carter sat on the edge of a peanut field, pulled a pen-knife from his bluejeans and slit open several watermelons to share with bodyguards and reporters.

He talked not of history or constitutional crises but of the deer in that field, and the army worms, and his wife's great-great-grandfather.

The White House itself was quiet. There were normal public tours. The normal spiels by the guides. Nothing about "On this day ..."

Gerald R. Ford, who learned at midday on Aug. 8, 1974 that he would become the nation's first non-elected president, is at his retreat in Vail, Colo.

He worked on his book. He played a round of golf. And no, he wouldn't return a call about his thoughts concerning the anniversary or its meaning, according to his secretary.

Today, he was to leave Vail to go look at his new home — California, the state where Nixon lives.

Peter Wallace Rodino, Democrat of New Jersey, never felt quite comfortable riding the crest of a tidal wave. If Nixon had not resigned, he would have delivered the opening speech on Aug. 10, 1974 for a virtually certain impeachment of the President.

Then he would have been the prosecutor in the Senate.

Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, "is at home today, in the district, relaxing," said an aide, almost laughingly.

Rodino turned down consideration as Jimmy Carter's running mate. And on Aug. 10, 1974, he celebrated by getting to the office as late as 9:45 a.m.

The same was true today for the rest of the Congress, at home, relaxing.

In Washington and across the land, people gathered around their television sets three years ago, first on the night of Aug. 8 to hear Nixon announce his resignation, not for crimes but for the loss of "a strong enough political base," then on Aug. 9, for his farewell to the Cabinet and Ford's swearing-in.

The tension, particularly in the capital city, was so tight for all those hours that it could have been twinged like a bow string.

Finally, Ford said, "Our long national nightmare is over."

So Monday night, the crowds at the television sets yawned through an exhibition football game between the Washington Redskins and the Cleveland Browns and today, if you tuned in at three minutes past noon, the moment Gerald Ford completed his oath three years ago, you might have caught the opening of "Shoot for the Stars" or "Let's Grow a Garden."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today in a technical rally after the sharp losses of the past several weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 9.27 to a new 19-month low on Monday, rebounded 2.60 to 882.02 by noon-time today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts found nothing special in the economic news to account for the upswing.

Twenty-first Century Fox led the active list, up 1 1/4 at 25 1/2. The stock has risen sharply since late May, primarily on the box-office success of Fox's film "Star Wars."

Women Fly For USAF

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the Air Force is allowing women to fly its aircraft, saying the performance of 10 women in training school was comparable to that of successful men students.

Although the law bars women from combat aircraft, the 10 graduates of flying school at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., are being assigned to navigate other aircraft beginning this fall.

Military officials said Monday that the women pilots, who will graduate Sept. 2, underwent the same training as men and that "there have been no problems."

The women will be allowed to fly cargo transports, aerial refueling tankers, weather reconnaissance, medical evacuation and training planes.

Out of the class of 20 women pilots, six others are continuing study as navigators, one withdrew on her own and three were eliminated for flying deficiencies, authorities said.

Ayden Board Votes Forego An Increase On Electricity Bills

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board voted Monday night to forego an electric bill rate hike in favor of a wait-and-see policy.

The board felt that since a rate increase applied for by VEPCO was delayed until November 28 it would be best not to raise rates but wait and see what develops this month.

While the city of Greenville adopted a new rate increase for August, Ayden officials believe a compromise can be reached with VEPCO to establish lower rates.

Also, the board is considering a change in the cost of electric deposits which is currently set at $25. The board will decide in November whether or not to raise deposit charges and determine how much of an increase, if any, is needed.

In other action, the board accepted bids for materials and equipment for use by the town:

- Electrical supplies — Eastern Electric of Rocky Mount, $17,990.
- Medium bucket truck (utilities) — Map Enterprises of Burlington, $24,456.
- Backhoe — Eastern Tractor and Equipment of Greenville, $15,700.
- Contract to audit town funds — Worsley, Farley and Prescott of Greenville, $3,925.

The board also approved an ordinance amending to the town budget the amounts of $8,347 for air conditioner repairs at the town office and $4,062 for the purchase of alert radios for use by the fire and rescue squads.

In other activities, the board approved the go-ahead on a well site on Worthington farm properties, west of Ayden. Ayden currently has two wells but town officials feel one is needed in an area where industrial growth is most likely to occur.

The town attorney presented an ordinance in conjunction with city police to prohibit all parking in public alleys.

A two-month study showed that most public alleys would be blocked if a fire broke out, making it difficult for firefighting equipment to get in position.

A public hearing will be held on September 12 to consider a recommendation by the planning board regarding construction on two or more building sites in the B-2 district, under Highway Commercial Supplementary Development regulations.

The purpose of the hearing is to give the town control over the sites and make sure there are adequate services, such as water and sewerage, to meet its needs.

In other action, the board approved: — The continuation of filing fees at $10, the same as the last election. — A resolution to pave W. Hart St. between Lee St. and Pitt St., approximately 312 feet. — An additional $75 for the Ayden-Grifton football program. The board usually purchases a full page ad in the program each year. — The appointment of Linda Weathersby to fill the unexpired term of Darryl Hignite on the planning board. The term expires in August of 1979. — A change in the town board workshop schedule. Since the next workshop session falls on Labor Day, the board will meet Tuesday, September 6.

Strong Day On Farmville Mart
FARMVILLE — Grade for grade, prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market were much stronger yesterday than on any day this year, according to Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade Sales Supervisor Louis Williams.

Top prices were paid for lugs and cutters, he said. They sold for $1.37 a pound. Stabilization receipts were 5.73 per cent of gross sales, compared with 18.56 per cent a year ago. The market sold 432,677 pounds for $501,161, averaging $115.83 per hundred pounds, approximately 12 cents more than last year after the same number of sales days.

To date the market has sold 4,127,811 pounds for $3,942,047, for a season's average of $95.49 per hundred.

The public is invited.

Polanski Faces Tough Penalties

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Movie director Roman Polanski, who pleaded guilty to unlawful sexual intercourse with a 13-year-old girl, could face up to 50 years in prison or commitment to a state mental hospital and possible deportation from the United States.

Superior Court Judge Lawrence J. Rittenband, who accepted Polanski's plea Monday, appointed two psychiatrists to examine the director and report Sept. 19 on whether he is a mentally disordered sex offender.

The diminutive Polanski, 43, clad in a gray pinstripe suit, stood before the judge and declared, "I had sexual intercourse with a female person not my wife under the age of 18."

Polanski, who won fame with such movies as "Rosemary's Baby" and "Chinatown," told the judge he understood he could receive a sentence of 1 to 50 years in state prison as a result of his plea. The judge, who has discretion in passing sentence, could suspend sentence and place Polanski on probation.

Prosecutors said if Polanski is found to be mentally disordered, he could be committed. Polanski also must talk to probation officers who will file a report before his sentencing.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service said it would wait until sentence is imposed to decide whether to begin deportation proceedings against Polanski, a French citizen of Polish descent who has applied for permanent U.S. residency. Unlawful sexual intercourse was the least serious of six counts charging Polanski with rape, drugging the girl and sexual perversion that carry prison sentences of 10 years to life.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Roger Gunson recommended dropping five charges. He said Polanski's plea bargain was arranged for the benefit of the girl who would have been traumatized by a highly publicized trial.

Ernie Banks Leads Field Of Six In Hall Inductions

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — "Words almost fail here," Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said as he introduced Ernie Banks to an overflowing throng that witnessed induction ceremonies for the six newest members of baseball's Hall of Fame.

"They called him 'Mr. Cub,'" Kuhn said.

No other introduction was necessary on Monday for the former Chicago Cubs infielder who blasted 512 home runs in his 19-year major league career.

"We got the setting—sunshine, fresh air, the team behind us. So let's play two," Banks said, eliciting a roar of approval from the crowd which included some 600 Cubs' fans who had come to this village in central New York.

They remembered a Babe Ruth home run in Yankee Stadium, a Jackie Robinson steal of home, a Sandy Koufax nohitter. Now it was Ernie Banks entering the Hall of Fame.

"He had the movements of a great watch," Judy Johnson, a Hall of Famer himself, said about Banks. "You set it today and it keeps perfect time. 'Banks was one of the best baseball competitors we've ever had. I have never heard any bad remarks about him. He was and is a gentleman."

The crowd in the tree-shaded park agreed. One fan held up a sign proclaiming "America Loves Ernie Banks."

Also receiving plaques at the dedication ceremonies were Al Lopez, Joe Sewell, Amos Rusie, Martin Dihigo and John Henry "Pop" Lloyd, swelling the Hall's membership to 163. Rusie, Dihigo and Lloyd were honored posthumously.

Lopez, who caught more major league games than anyone, was honored for his managerial skills. In the 16 years he managed the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, his teams won two American League pennants and finished second 10 times.

Dihigo is the first Cuban to be enshrined in the Hall. Accepting his plaque was his cousin, Jose Valdivieso, a former pitcher with the Washington Senators. Two men unfurled a Cuban flag when Valdivieso approached the podium.

John Amos Rusie accepted for his uncle and James Ursury of Atlantic City, N.J., where a baseball field is named for Lloyd, accepted for the former Negro League infielder.

In the 35th annual Hall of Fame exhibition game played at Doubleday Field, built on the site where the first baseball game was reportedly played, the Minnesota Twins used home runs by Terry Bulling, Lyman Bostock and Bob Gorinski and three innings of no-hit pitching by Gary Serun to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-5.

Before the game, broadcaster Mel Allen introduced members of the Hall of Fame who had returned to Cooperstown: Charley Gehringer, Bill Terry, Joe Cronin, Bob Feller, Luke Appling, Burleigh Grimes, Red Ruffing, Lloyd Waner, Roy Campanella, Stan Coveleski, Stan Musial, Rube Marquard, Buck Leonard, Monte Irvin, George Kelly, Cool Papa Bell, Jocko Conlan, Whitey Ford, Earle Averill, Billy Herman, Judy Johnson, Cal Hubbard, Fred Lindstrom and Robin Roberts.

Green Sets Sights On PGA Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — There's been a notable lack of reaction for Hubert Green's courageous victory in the U.S. Open.

Green likes it that way.

"It's kind of flattering," Hubert said. "The other players have congratulated me. But they just come up and shake my hand and say 'Nice going.' It's like they'd expected it to happen. And that's a lot more flattering than if everybody was jumping up and down and yelling 'Gee, whiz.'"

Green wasn't sure it would happen, however.

"Deep down inside," Green said, "I've got an inferiority complex. I'm not that sure of myself. I'd played well in some of the majors before, but you don't know you can win in the majors until you do it."

"I'd paid my dues. I'd won 10 or 11 tournaments before that, so it shouldn't have been a surprise. But you never know. There's been lots of good players who never won a major championship."

Now Green's done it, and, coming into this week's PGA national championship, he's eager to add another major title to the American national open crown he won under a death threat at Tulsa, Okla., two months ago.

"I've always placed a great emphasis on the major championships," he said. "That's where it all comes together. You have all the great players playing on great golf courses. And they're trying their very best. They're not just going through the motions."

"Winning in that kind of situation is a lot of fun."

It entails some responsibility, too.

"All of a sudden, I'm an expert on everything," Green said. "You win one of the majors and people interviewing you want your opinion on everything, golf, foreign policy and the price of peanuts."

The victory, however, hasn't opened the golden door to instant riches.

"You know, they say if you win one of the majors, it's worth a million dollars," Green said. "Well, maybe if you're Trevino or Palmer or Player and you've won a lot before, but it doesn't happen to everybody."

"I'm not really looking at it from that viewpoint, anyway," he said. "I'm not looking at what it will make me right now. I'm looking down the road. I have some very good tie-ups with national companies and winning the Open may help down the line."

"And it could help me in a couple of other business affairs. I'm not going to play golf forever. There'll come a time when I want to go into business. There's a possibility I'm going to get a seat on the board of directors (of a local business in Birmingham, Ala.) and that's a pretty good start."

Perhaps the most impressive thing about his victory, he said, is the respect he's gained.

"I'd always thought that the Masters was the most important tournament. I don't think so, now. This is the national championship. People look at you and treat you with respect. It's pretty impressive."

Rangers Pull Triple Play

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

"It was just a perfect triple play ball," said Toby Harrah.

So the Rangers' third baseman grabbed Manny Sanguillen's grounder, stepped on third and fired to Bump Wills at second. Wills then flipped the ball to Mike Hargrove at first for the first triple play in Texas' six-year history as the Rangers swept two games from Oakland 5-2 and 3-0 Monday night.

The triple play came in the nightcap and helped Roger Moret post his second victory without a loss this season. Moret hurled hitless ball for 6-2 1/2 innings before Jim Tyrone singled to center.

Harrah had an otherwise harrowing night. He was involved in a fistfight with Oakland pitcher Jim Umberger, a former Ranger, in the first game and was ejected.

Byleven threw a five-hitter in the first contest. Dave May and Claudell Washington each homered for the Rangers' offense in the second game.

AL Roundup

The sweep gave Texas 25 triumphs in its last 31 games and moved the Rangers to within 2 1/2 games of first-place Chicago in the AL West.

Elsewhere in the American League, California took a pair from Kansas City, winning the opener 6-4 and taking the nightcap 7-2. Chicago nipped Seattle 5-4, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 6-3 and Detroit topped Milwaukee 6-1.

Angels 6-7, Royals 4-2
The Angels' doubleheader sweep broke a five-game Kansas City victory streak and gave the Angels a six-game winning skein, their longest of the season. California also reached the .500 mark.

Bobby Bonds hit his 27th homer and sixth in seven games in the nightcap. Nolan Ryan won his 16th game, tops in the majors, in the opener and Gil Flores collected three doubles to help the Angels sweep.

White Sox 5, Mariners 4

Chicago moved one game ahead of idle Minnesota when Lamar Johnson smacked a one-out home run in the ninth inning to beat Seattle. It was Johnson's second homer of the game and gave rookie Randy Wiles his first major league triumph.

Seattle had rallied to tie the game in the top of the inning when Carlos Lopez tripled and Bob Stinson singled him home. Oscar Gamble's 21st home run of the season, a career-high, had put the White Sox in front 4-3 in the seventh.

Orioles 6, Cleveland 3
Clutch relief pitching by Dennis Martinez helped the Orioles break a three-game losing streak while extending Cleveland's losing string to five.

Martinez, 10-6, twice left the bases loaded in pitching 41-3 innings of relief.

Larvell Blanks had five hits, including three doubles, in the contest, which saw Baltimore move within three games of idle Boston in the AL East.

Tigers 6, Brewers 1
Jason Thompson's 19th home run, a long blast off the facing of the third deck in Tigers' Stadium, led the Detroit victory. The Tigers scored five times in the second inning, with a two-run single by Rusty Staub the key hit.

Jim Crawford, 4-4, started his first game of the season and scattered 10 hits before being relieved in the eighth by Steve Foucault.

Jack Nicklaus' Son Is Top Golf Prospect

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pretty Barbara Nicklaus fastened herself into the seat of the trans-continental jet flying her from her Florida home to the Pacific Coast and talked enthusiastically about her two golfing men.

"We're all excited about young Jackie," she said, referring to the eldest of the Nicklaus brood—15 year-old Jack II.

"You know, he will be trying to qualify for the National Amateur at San Jose next Monday."

It's a big week ahead for the Nicklaus and Barbara now finds herself with a double rooting interest.

Jack, the world's best golfer, will be going for his fifth PGA championship and another major golfing crown at Pebble Beach, starting Thursday.

Then—win, lose or draw—he and Barbara will sweat out Jackie's qualifying efforts at San Jose.

"I was sitting in the clubhouse watching Jack and Jackie come up to the 18th fairway at Muirfield," Barbara said, referring to Jack's hand-fashioned course in Columbus, Ohio, "And I had to smile. Jackie pointed to Jack's ball and said, 'Pop your away.'"

A stringy six-footer, taller than his dad, Jackie is considered an outstanding prospect. It appears we may be reading Jack Nicklaus headlines for the next 20 years.

When he was playing in the British Open at Turnberry, Scotland, a month ago, the elder Nicklaus became so interested in talking about his son's golfing proclivities that he subordinated his own.

That didn't keep him from shooting final rounds of 65-66 in the fierce stretch duel with the ultimate tournament winner, Tom Watson.

Young Jackie, like his father, is a golfing protege. A fine, smooth striker of the ball, he already is battling championship courses with rounds in the low 70s.

If his present enthusiasm and determination continue, he will, the experts insist, be another champion.

"We never tried to push Jackie, or any of the other children, into golf," Barbara said. "In fact, if anything, both Jack and I bent over backwards for fear that any of them might feel we were putting undue pressure on them."

Besides Jackie, the Nicklaus offspring include Steve, 14; Nancy Jean, 12; Gary (named for Gary Player) 8; and Michael, 4. All show aptitude in sports—baseball, basketball and tennis. Nancy Jean is a budding gymnast.

Jack II has been a standout in both basketball and tennis but he currently is wrapped up completely in golf.

Jack, the papa bear, was beating the best men players in Ohio when he was 16. He won the first of his two national amateur crowns at age 19 and was 22, a tour rookie, when he beat Arnold Palmer in a play-off at Oakmont, Pa., for the U.S. Open crown in 1962.

It was this head-to-head victory that faded out the Palmer era and ushered in the Nicklaus era of golf.

The elder Jack has gone on to win more than $3 million in official prize money, collect 63 tour victories and 16 major championships—more than any man who ever lived.

He continues to rewrite the record book and there is no indication that at age 37 he is ready to yield his mantle to anyone else—even to the 27-year-old Tom Watson, who has beaten him this year in both the Masters and British Open.

A victory at Pebble Beach this week would put him even with the great Walter Hagen in PGA titles: five. Then he could go after a record five U.S. Opens.

CALUMET CITY, Ill. (AP) — Scott Crull can't shout and holler over the little he has to be joyous about. But what Bobby Murcer did for him Monday night over national television was "the best thing of my life."

What Murcer did was fulfill a wish from the seriously ill boy earlier Monday—and then some. The Chicago Cubs right fielder had told him he would try to hit a home run and a double; he delivered two homers. The bombs came during a game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Murcer's— and Scott's—Cubs.

"It was obvious from his smile, Scott was pleased about it," said Mrs. Dwight Crull, mother of the 12-year-old, after the second of Murcer's solo blasts. "He can't holler and yell like the other kids because his lungs are affected."

"Bobby Murcer is sure putting on a show for him."

After the game, she added, "He's just said, 'I guess that one's for me.' He was a little thrilled about that. It just meant everything to him. He's a little short of breath and he can't yell and holler."

In his first two times at bat against the Pirates, Murcer drove a pair of solo home runs over the right-field wall off Pirate pitcher Bruce Kison.

In the locker room before the game, Murcer had talked by telephone with the bedridden youth. The call came about after a friend of the youth's family contacted Buck Peden, the Cubs' publicity director. Murcer had never met the youth.

Scott's mother said her son, the youngest of four boys and a girl, has been ill for three years and has "been doctored" for the last month. He's "always been a Cub fan—I am too," Mrs. Crull said.

"He's liked Murcer a lot, and has liked other players over the years," including former Cub greats Ernie Banks and Ron Santo, she said.

"It's wonderful that he got to talk to one of the players, and by Murcer hitting the home runs...he was thrilled."

Murcer, however, denied he made an outright promise to Crull, as ABC had reported during the game.

"I didn't promise him anything," Murcer said somberly after the game, which the Cubs lost 7-6 on a ninth-inning rally by Pittsburgh.

"He said something about a home run, and I said I'd try."

Rule Prevents 'Skins Telecast

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Enforcement of a previously ignored National Football League rule will prevent most North Carolinians from viewing the Washington Redskins' pre-season exhibition game on television this season.

Several stations in the state were scheduled to telecast Monday night's Redskins-Cleveland Browns contest, but the NFL decided last week to begin enforcing the rule that prohibits non-network pre-season games from being shown outside the "home area" of the host team.

Local stations were notified of the decision last week, spokesmen said, but many area newspapers, who publish daily TV schedules, were unaware of the change.

"It's a rule that the league has not pushed in the past," explained Erwin Starr, program director of Washington station WJLA, originating station for Redskins' exhibition games.

"The rule says you cannot network the pre-season games beyond the home area," said Starr. "Needless to say, we were very disappointed to lose the North Carolina market."

Hall Will Induct 4

ASHEBORO — N.C. (AP) — Four men will be inducted into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame at a banquet in the Asheboro High School gymnasium Oct. 13.

The 1977 inductees will be Tony Waldrop, University of North Carolina miler; Dick Herbert, long sports editor of the News and Observer at Raleigh; the late Johnny Allen of major league pitching fame, and Lee J. Stone, who concluded a lengthy high school football coaching career at Asheboro High 11 years ago.

Fregosi Keys Buc Rally

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates certainly have given Jim Fregosi his money's worth, both as a player and a "fan."
"This team gives you a little heart flutter now and then," says Fregosi, "but it's exciting to watch them hit."
Fregosi's pleasure is doubled when he is directly involved in the Pirate electricity, like Monday night when he keyed a ninth-inning rally that provided Pittsburgh with a dramatic 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

NL Roundup

In other National League action, the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Cincinnati Reds 4-0; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the New York Mets 4-2 and the Montreal Expos nipped the San Diego Padres 6-5.
Dodgers 4, Reds 0
Tommy John hurled a two-hitter and slugged his first National League home run as Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati. Reggie Smith also hit his 20th homer as the Dodgers widened their lead to 12½ games over the Reds in the NL West.

John, 13-4, won his seventh straight decision, allowing only an infield single in the second inning by George Foster and a two-base hit in the third by Ken Griffey. The Los Angeles left-hander retired the final 16 batters.
John homered off loser Paul Moskau, 2-3, in the third inning with nobody on base.
Cardinals 4, Mets 2
Ken Reitz' home run with two on in the ninth inning led St.

Louis over New York. Jerry Kosman, 8-12, had limited St. Louis to five hits in eight innings before the Cards broke through in the ninth.
Gary Templeton singled to left to start the inning and was sacrificed to second by Hector Cruz. Kosman intentionally walked Ted Simmons and the runners moved up to second and third on a ground ball by Keith Hernandez. Reitz then hit one of Kosman's pitches over the left field fence.
Expos 6, Padres 5
Warren Cromartie's RBI

single in the eighth inning led Montreal over San Diego. Chris Speier had drawn a one-out walk from Padre reliever Bob Shirley, 6-15, and was awarded second base on a balk before pinch-hitter Jose Morales flied out. Dave Cash was then walked intentionally to get to Cromartie, but the rookie foiled the Padres' plans with his single.
Don Stanhouse, 8-8, picked up the victory with two innings of relief. Joe Kerrigan earned the ninth inning and pitched his ninth save for Montreal.

Cale Is Leader Again

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In the see-saw race for the 1977 Grand National stock car point title, Cale Yarborough is back in front of Richard Petty with a 32-point margin.
Yarborough, the defending champion who has led most of the year but was overtaken at Pocono, Pa., bounced right back with his second place finish at Talladega, Ala., Sunday. Petty was 11th.

With 11 races remaining on the Grand National schedule this year, Yarborough has 3,125 points, and Petty has 3,093.
Benny Parsons is third with 2,819 and Darrell Waltrip fourth with 2,772. Although Waltrip drove the winning car at Talladega in relief of heat-fatigued Donnie Allison, all the points and the victory credit go to Allison as the starting driver.

Behind the four leaders in the point chase are Buddy Baker 2,583; Richard Brooks 2,348; Cecil Gordon 2,251; Bobby Allison 2,181; Richard Childress 2,153, and James Hulton 2,104.
Ricky Rudd, who finished fourth at Talladega, boosted his lead in the rookie of the year competition to 10 over Sam Sommers. Rudd's finish was the best by a rookie on the circuit since 1974, when Earl Ross won the Old Dominion 500 at Martinsville, Va.

David Pearson, who drives only selected races, became the sixth NASCAR driver to earn more than $100,000 this season.
Yarborough continues to lead in money won with $268,941, followed by Petty $233,175; Parsons $168,925; Waltrip $156,898; Baker $125,161; Pearson $101,825; Brooks $84,065; Donnie Allison $70,890; Dave Marcis $64,920, and Neil Bonnett $59,705.
The next race is a 400-miler at Michigan International Speedway Aug. 21.

MORGAN'S BIG DAY

EASLEY, S.C. (AP) — Stanley Morgan, a wide receiver from the University of Tennessee, was the first man at that position chosen in the 1977 NFL draft. On May 9, his hometown, Easley, S.C., honored him with a day. A family-style dinner, attended by more than 600 people, was held and one speaker praising Morgan was his new coach, Chuck Fairbanks of the New England Patriots.

SHE WAS NO LADY

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — The starter and assistants at Hialeah race track all cheered when Trainer Jimmy Croll announced he was sending his bad-tempered filly, Noble Madame, to the far to be bred. "I've been around a lot of tough horses," starter Charlie Camac said. "But she was the worst. Noble Madame did not live up to her name. She was a hellcat. I think her fractious behavior kept her from showing her real worth. She might have been an outstanding race horse with a better disposition."

Houk Boored

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger Manager Ralph Houk boored because it means "at least they know I'm here."
Many in the crowd of nearly 12,000 boored Houk when he went to the pitcher's mound Monday night to replace starter Jim Crawford with Steve Foucault in the eighth inning of Detroit's 6-1 triumph over Milwaukee.

"If they don't boo you or cheer you, then you know you're in trouble," Houk said. "If you think they boo me, look how they're booing Sparky — and he's had a pretty good team the last few years," he said, referring to Manager Sparky Anderson of the defending World Series champion Cincinnati Reds.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini didn't like it, but he was impressed with the way the world champion Oakland Raiders manhandled the Oilers. "Whenever you are the Super Bowl champions you have to go out and play with some kind of arrogance or confidence, whatever you want to call it," Pastorini said, "they have it."
"We wanted to do that," responded Oakland Coach John Madden. "That's one of the things we feel is important — no matter what you do, you have to play like champions."
Pastorini spent most of his time watching from the sidelines Monday night as the Raiders humbled the Oilers 40-0 in the exhibition season opener for both teams in Oakland.
In the other Monday night game, the Washington Redskins downed the Cleveland Browns 16-14. "One thing I was afraid of last week in practice came true — we peaked too early," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "We should have played this game last Thursday. It would have been quite different. We lost our fire somewhere in the air between Houston and Oakland."
The Raiders dominated the entire game, picking up 393 yards in total offense and 26 first downs to 142 yards and eight first downs for the Oilers. The only time Houston looked at all impressive was when third-string quarterback Karl Douglas entered the game in the fourth period.
While the top two Raider quarterbacks, Ken Stabler and Mike Rae, were completing 13 of 22 passes for 187 yards and two touchdowns, their counterparts on the Oilers, Pastorini and John Hadl, connected on only two of 14 tries for eight

The game.
The Browns, the No. 2 quarterback behind Billy Kilmer, directed the Redskins on the winning drive after Browns' rookie punter Greg Coleman put Washington on its six-yard line.
Theismann, starting his fourth season with Washington, connected on 16 of 24 pass attempts for 185 yards, including a seven-yard touchdown toss to Jean Fugett, after relieving Kilmer in the second period.
The Browns grabbed a 7-0 lead in the first period as starting quarterback Brian Sipe capped a 52-yard drive with a five-yard scoring toss to Paul Warfield. But Washington came back with a pair of second-period touchdowns, a two-yard burst by Calvin Hill and Theismann's toss to Fugett.

Civil War Journal Is Being Reprinted

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — A four-volume journal giving a vivid personal account of Civil War life in North Carolina is being reprinted and set into type with a $5,000 state grant, approved by the General Assembly this year. Catharine Devereux Edmondston's diary weaves a narrative of battle plans, politics and even war rumors, by drawing on the woman's reading of newspapers, the Bible and other articles.

At one point, Mrs. Edmondston points out that 11 young men of her acquaintance had been killed and cried to her diary, "How long, O Lord, how long? Scarce do we recover from one raid before we are threatened with another. Life is scarcely worth purchasing at the price of such anxiety as we live in."

The journal details General Joe Johnston's surrender to General William T. Sherman at Durham's station in April 1865.

"We are crushed, subjugated," she grieved.

Mrs. Edmondston was born in Raleigh in 1823 and was later the mistress of "Looking Glass," her father's plantation in Halifax County.

When she died in 1876, the diary passed to a niece in Maryland. The niece left it to the state archives, a voluminous chronicle of how the state suffered during the war years.

Beth Crabtree became interested in the document in the 1940s and began typing the manuscript.

"I became fascinated with the diary and the family," she said, adding that she was later asked to edit the documents.

Eventually the journal will be published by the historical publications section of the Department of Cultural Resources.

"Show and Tell" is a very popular exercise in grade school. It can be equally rewarding at the bridge table. A competitive auction found East having to make a decision at the five-level when his second turn came around. He correctly decided to compete, but chose his second-best bid. North saw little hope for defense, but his hand was most promising offensively. He went on to five spades and East doubled. This was eminently correct, for his side had two club losers and no place to put them.

West led the ace of hearts, and the play was soon over. Declarer ruffed in dummy, drove out the ace of trumps and East had no way to get to West's hand for a diamond through the king. East was forced to cash his ace of diamonds, for had he failed to do so, declarer would have established dummy's clubs and come home with an over-trick.

We attach no blame to West for failing to lead a diamond. Had he elected not to attack with the ace of hearts, his second choice would surely have been the queen of clubs, and that would have led to the same result. East had the opportunity to direct the defense but failed to grasp it.

Once East decided that he was going to compete up to the level of five hearts, he exhibited a lack of imagination about how to get there. He had a free opportunity to show where his side-suit strength was located. His correct bid was five diamonds!

There was no way this bid could be misinterpreted. After having found a huge heart fit, East could not possibly want to play in five diamonds, so if South passed, West was sure to correct to five hearts—a contract which would have been easily made as the cards lie. But now, when North competes to five spades, West has been told what to lead. A diamond opening will permit the defenders to collect two diamond tricks and the ace of spades, thus emerging from the ordeal with a small profit instead of a large loss.

A 'Goosebump' Song Can Help

By JOE EDWARDS Associated Press Writer NASHVILLE (AP) — David Houston is looking for another "goosebump" song.

He recorded such a song in 1966, "Almost Persuaded," which won four Grammy Awards, sold more than one million copies and became a country music classic.

"Sometimes when you record you have goosebumps," the muscular Houston, 35, said in an interview. "You can tell it by the people in the studio. It's like a ballplayer feels when he hits a home run or when you get up and join the church. It's deeper than just singing a song."

There have been a lot of goosebumps in his recording sessions. He's lost count of his No. 1 records, but it's approximately 15. His current release is "Ain't That Lovin' You Baby," a blues-sounding song that departs from the normal Houston style.

He hasn't had a No. 1 hit for a couple of years, but says the highs and lows make recording interesting.

"Music is unpredictable," said Houston, who lives in Bossier, La. "If it wasn't, it would take the edge off it."

It's unlikely he'll lose his own edge at singing and performing. He sings the title song to the current movie "Bootleggers' Angels," is a member of the Grand Ole Opry and was on the road 280 days last year constantly fulfilling requests for "Almost Persuaded."

"There's no telling how many times I've sung it," he said.

New Consultant On Police Story

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Wambaugh, the ex-police sergeant who created NBC's "Police Story," has quit as its consultant. His successor this season: Tom Reddin, ex-chief of Los Angeles' finest.

But it's not a new TV experience for Reddin, 65, who began as a cop pounding a skid row beat here in 1941, rose through the ranks and headed the LAPD for two years before retiring in 1969.

He says he worked as an adviser on Jack Webb's old "Dragnet" series while still serving in the stern, old-school administration of the police department's late Chief William Parker.

Reddin praises Webb's painstaking efforts back then to accurately depict police work. But of the two shows, he says he likes "Police Story" best.

This, he said, is "because 'Dragnet' would never put on anything that indicated a policeman had any kind of weakness or was truly human."

In contrast, he added, the newer series, which starts its fifth season on Sept. 27, is both "an accurate depiction of the job and shows that the people on the job have the same frailties as the rest of the population, that the policeman isn't any 'miracle person...'"

What doesn't he like about the show? "I really find it hard to be critical because it's the only one I regularly watch," he said. "I'm not offended that it shows policemen drink, have girl friends, that they sometimes get out of line on minor things... I know it happens."

"Having reviewed disciplinary reports for about 40 per cent of my total time as chief, I determined a long time ago there's nothing any policeman would do that would surprise me."

Reddin, after retiring, worked three years as a news

Pre-Campaign Polls Started

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Statewide political polls, commissioned to tap voters' feelings for candidates as well as stands on issues, are being used by at least four contenders in preparation for the U.S. Senate race next year.

Opinion polls have already been taken on behalf of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who now occupies the seat, and two of his Democratic challengers, former Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr. and state Sen. McNeill Smith.

Later this month, about 600 registered North Carolina voters will be asked what they think about Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, another possible Democratic opponent of Helms. Edmisten and his advisers plan to use the results of the poll to decide whether to seek the Democratic nomination.

Each of the candidates have used nationally known public opinion sampling companies.

Country Music For Tanzanian

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tanzanian President Julius K. Nyerere, a country music fan, visited the Grand Ole Opry House and was entertained by country music stars Ronnie Milsap and Charlie Pride.

Milsap and Pride performed for about two hours Monday for Nyerere and his party.

Nyerere asked that Pride perform at the show because he is a fan of the country music artist, according to members of the president's party.

Seven N.C. Towns Take U.S. Agency To Court

HOPE MILLS, N.C. (AP) — Seven eastern North Carolina towns, disgruntled at not receiving what they consider their share of federal funds, are taking the Economic Development Administration (EDA) to court over the way it parceled out money under a 1976 program.

The towns, represented by Hope Mills town attorney Robert W. Pope, contend the EDA did not gather enough information to justify a decision before turning down their applications for "Round Two" funds and accepting those of others.

Round Two refers to $4 billion appropriated by Congress in October to be given by the EDA to stimulate the econ-mies of small towns with high unemployment.

The seven communities successfully sought a temporary restraining order, issued July 27, blocking the distribution of Round Two money to six other North Carolina towns.

Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. will hold a hearing Friday in U.S. District Court in Fayetteville to determine whether the restraining order should be changed to a preliminary injunction, Pope said. If an injunction is obtained, a hearing on the merits of the case would follow.

Pope said Congress instructed the EDA to go to state Employment Security Commissions if necessary to gather information for computing a small community's proposal. But EDA officials said they didn't have time to check the facts and figures for all the towns that wanted money, Pope said.

Because the EDA did not gather statistics on the size of the work force and the number of unemployed in his client towns, Hope Mills and the other six communities were listed by the EDA as "having a zero work force and zero unemployment," Pope said.

"It's absurd to say a community of 4,000 has a work force of zero and unemployment of zero," he said, referring to Hope Mills. "That is what the EDA did because they were too lazy to go to the Employment Security Commission and get the facts."

Subsequently, he said, Hope Mills, St. Pauls, Maxton, Pembroke, Chadbourne, Tabor City and Carolina Beach were refused Round Two money, while Spring Lake, Lumberton, Red Springs, Whiteville, Wilmington and Fairmont received more than their shares.

A spokesman for the EDA in Washington said, "All we can say is we regret that the agency lacks sufficient funds to fund all projects. However, we feel that when we review the situation, the court will agree that we have proceeded in an equitable manner in arriving at the planning targets for the Round Two program."

Pope said lawsuits had also been filed by groups of towns in Vermont, Michigan and Massachusetts, and were being contemplated by communities in Arkansas and New York.

Vows Wait In Front Of Church

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The Rev. Clennon King, a black man trying to become a member of the Plains Baptist Church, has told President Carter he would await him in front of the church "until you send for me, leave Plains, or have me arrested."

The Rev. Mr. King on Monday sent an open letter to Carter, who is vacationing here. He asked for an appointment to talk to Carter about the split that King's application has helped cause in the Plains Baptist Church.

He argued in the letter, which he distributed to reporters, that Carter's membership in Washington's First Baptist Church is only temporary, that Carter is still a member of the Plains church.

Recover Cannon...

by the 824th Transportation Company, U.S. Army Reserve, stationed at Morehead City. The unit, attached to the 120th Army Reserve Command, Ft. Jackson, S.C., is a heavy boat unit, the only one of its kind in the entire Army Reserve system.

Chief Warrant Officer (CWO-3) Richard Garner of Newport, captain of LCU-1467, the 115 feet long modern Army boat assigned to the task, said the retrieval work "is part of our two weeks active duty training. I have 12 men with me. This is their first experience in a historic salvage project."

"Other members of the 824th, he added, "have been assisting in salvage work on the Monitor off the coast of North Carolina."

LCU-1467 left Morehead City Friday afternoon for the coastal trip that took the boat into the Albemarle Sound, then into the mouth of the Roanoke River just north of Plymouth. It anchored at Fort Branch at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

"We bumped bottom a couple of times," Garner said, "and at some of the curves I thought we'd have to hinge the boat to get around them, but all in all we had no real problems."

Preservation Begins
Within moments after the first cannon was cushioned on a bed of old tires on the deck of the LCU, preservationist Leslie Bright began supervising measures to keep the newly retrieved cannon watered down. A sprinkler system had been pre-installed on the boat.

Because of the steepness of the river bank at Fort Branch, it was considered too risky to attempt to haul the pieces to the high ground above by rig. It was therefore necessary for the LCU to make a two mile plus run upriver to the boat ramp at the Wildlife Access Point at Hamilton.

There, another crowd of spectators gathered to watch the cannon being unloaded from the boat onto a truck provided by the N.C. Department of Transportation.

Once loaded and secured on the truck, the two Civil War cannon made the four mile road trip back to Fort Branch to be unloaded. Even before a crane moved in to lift the pieces off the truck, team members began the watering down process again.

Critical Phase
"This is a critical phase," Watts remarked as Bright directed the unloading. "The cannon will be put in tanks here at the fort and subjected to an electrolytic reduction process."

The process, Watts explained, consists of a chemical bath combined with an electric current.

Other Artifacts
In addition to the cannon salvaged Monday, and the two being raised today, more than 700 small artifacts have been taken by the team from the river bottom.

"The majority of the items have been carriage and wheel fragments and carriage fittings," Watts commented. "Jim (James Pleasants, diver and research historian) also found three heads from various size kegs as well as the butt of a carriage."

Other artifacts retrieved, Watts related, "include some Preston or Blakely shells and three or four 12 pound rounds."

While a final check on webbing around the cannon was being made Monday morning, divers discovered two more large spherical shot. Numerous pieces of smaller ammunition, mostly grape shot, have also been taken from the river.

"Of the ammunition brought up," Watts said, "we've determined that at least three of them are ready to roll," a term which he explained meant they were still actively charged and could explode.

Event Documented
In addition to local television and newspaper coverage, the historic event was filmed by a representative from UNC-Television. A three-man film crew from the U.S. Army Public Affairs Center at Ft. Gillem, Atlanta, Ga., has been filming and sound recording the operation for putting together a documentary film.

Future Work
In a few days, the Fort Branch Survey and Recovery Project will begin to phase down, with future emphasis being placed on preservation and on completing detailed reports of the project.

Watts and other staff members of the Underwater Archaeology Department of the N.C. Division of Archives and History will move on to new underwater survey and recovery projects in North Carolina.

"On the first of September, I'll begin a survey project with the Corps of Engineers off Masonboro Inlet," Watts said. "Later, I'll be involved in a project in the Cape Fear River."

A 1968 graduate of East Carolina University, Watts completed work on his master's degree at ECU in 1974.

Ft. Branch Project
Plans for restoration of Fort Branch and for establishing a museum at the site, long in the making, will be considerably strengthened by the survey work and the recovery of these examples of Civil War armament.

Three cannon were recovered from the same spot in 1972 by a private salvage company. Following the retrieval of those pieces, the State of Carolina North Carolina won a court suit for the ownership of the three cannon. The three, now restored, are displayed in downtown Hamilton in an open plot and will be added to the four newly retrieved pieces as the nucleus of a planned Civil War museum at Fort Branch.

Jimmy Carter Without Paddle

HOOKSET, N.H. (AP) — Jimmy Carter was left stranded without a paddle in the middle of the Merrimack River here.

Albert Falloni, a New Yorker vacationing in New Hampshire, said he was cruising on the river at dusk Sunday when he spotted the small runabout containing a couple and two children floating idle in the water. The boat had run out of gas about two hours before it was discovered.

Falloni said he towed the family about five miles back to a dock in Manchester, but never found out where they were from.

Train Ride Set For August 14

Additional information on the availability of tickets and prices for the East Carolina Limited steam train passenger run to be held Sunday, August 14 has been provided.

The train, drawn by engine No. 4501, will arrive in Farmville at 11:30 a.m. and leave there for Greenville at 12:55 p.m.

Departure time from Greenville is 1:35 p.m.

Time of arrival at Chocowinity, the final destination of the excursion train, is 2:10 p.m.

The return trip from Chocowinity is set for 2:30 p.m., with arrival back in Greenville shortly after 3 p.m. The train will leave Greenville for Farmville at 3:10 p.m., arriving there at 3:45 p.m., then leaving for the Wilson-Zebulon-Raleigh run.

Prices for the local segments of the ride are: From Farmville to Chocowinity and return, round trip, adult $12.50, child $10 — one way only (from either end) adults, $6.50, child, $5.00.

From Greenville to Chocowinity and return the round trip fare is $8.00 for adults and $6 for children — a one-way ticket is for $4.00 for adults and $3.00 for children.

In addition to the earlier listing of Newton's Red and White Store in Farmville as a place to purchase advance tickets, tickets are also available in Greenville from Hungate's Hobbies and Crafts.

Bob Newton, one of the coordinators of The East Carolina Limited excursion, noted it is his understanding that the Saturday, August 13 round trip from Raleigh to Fayetteville and return has just about been fully subscribed.

See Union Distortion

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — J. P. Stevens and Co. Inc. has accused the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union of using "distortions and outright fraud" in attempts to organize the firm's workers.

The huge textile manufacturer said in a statement issued Monday that the union's campaign against Stevens is intended "to open the way to the unionization of all areas and sectors of the country not now unionized."

The union claims the company abuses its employees and denies them free choice on the subject of union representation, Stevens said.

"Fifteen times since the unions began their drive on Stevens, they have asked for Labor Board elections," Stevens said. "Three times the union decided not to go through with the elections. On all other occasions, the employees voted against the union...except in one instance in Roanoke Rapids, N.C., where the union won by a small margin."

After 14 years of efforts to unionize Stevens, the union represents less than 7 per cent of the company's employees, Stevens said.

Highest Average Of '77 On Leaf Mart

The Greenville Tobacco Market recorded its highest average of the season on Monday as sales moved into the third week of the new marketing period.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade, said that the market averaged $106.81 per hundred pounds yesterday in topping the $100 mark for the first time this season.

Bryan said that local warehouses sold 769,835 pounds of tobacco on the first sales day of the week for $822,234.

Top practical price paid for good, clean tobacco, he said, was $1.37 per pound.

Stabilization receipts amounted to 6.7 per cent of total sales.

For the season, the market has sold 6,852,255 pounds for $6,354,089, an average of $92.73 per hundred pounds.

SCLC Meeting Called Tonight

The SCLC will have a called meeting tonight at 8:30 for all board members.

The meeting will be held at 619 Albemarle Ave.

Grants For Area Towns

Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development Howard Lee has announced planning and management grants to about 170 local government of North Carolina, including six Pitt, Martin and Greene County towns.

Ayden will receive $3,480; Bethel, $5,369; Farmville, $7,020; Fountain, $3,900; Roberstonville, $3,480; and Snow Hill, $3,240.

The grants will be used for a variety of purposes including the development of land use plans, zoning ordinances, subdivision regulations, housing assistance plans, housing code enforcement programs, the development of capital improvement budgets, feasibility studies, community needs assessments and local ordinance codifications. "These funds will be used to help local governments develop the basic services and administrative techniques needed to have quality community development," Lee said.

Harris is married to the former Helen Finch Morgan of Albemarle and they have three daughters.

Walker said that the coffee hour, featuring a menu of coffee and doughnuts, is sponsored by Bank of North Carolina N.A. with city executive Charles Burnette.

Holding Benefit Church Dinner

PANTEGO — A benefit church dinner with proceeds to go to the Parsonage Fund of the Pantego Christian Church will be held from 11:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Sunday, August 21 at Mrs. Lee's Restaurant in Pantego.

A menu of three meats, vegetables and pies will be served at $2.50 per plate for adults, $1.25 for children.

Advances in Conquering Parkinson's

Two people in our family have Parkinson's disease. They're both being treated with the new drugs and are holding their own. Is there anything new in discovering the cause of Parkinson's? — Mrs. L.H., Wisc.

Dear Mrs. H.:
Parkinson's disease, or "shaking palsy," is a complex disorder of the central nervous system. Some of the characteristics of this condition are rigidity of the muscles, weakness of the muscles and a tremor of the hands.

The fixed facial expression is emphasized by a wide-eyed, unblinking, staring appearance of the eyes.

I mention these characteristics because the lack of mobility of the facial muscles often gives observers the false impression that the victim of this disorder is not bright or intellectually alert. There is NO relationship between the mental faculties and this disorder.

The cause for Parkinson's disease is being studied by scientists everywhere. Each lead is pursued in the hope that eventually it can be prevented. It is thought that there may be a genetic factor involved. Enzyme defects and infections by viruses are also being considered.

After a severe infection of the brain (encephalitis), Parkinsonism is known to occur.

Advances in the treatment of Parkinson's disease have been very dramatic. The drug, levodopa (L-dopa), and its variations have improved the quality of life for patients suffering with the disease.

I had an attack of rheumatic fever at the age of 12. Does this mean that all my life I will be more susceptible to this type of infection? — Miss D.E.R., Ohio.
Dear Miss R.:

One attack of rheumatic fever does not make a person more susceptible to this infection.

If an infection was originally responsible for the condition it must, of course, be eliminated. The streptococcus germ, most responsible for rheumatic fever, may be harbored in chronically diseased tonsils, teeth, sinuses and other areas of the body.

Since this germ can be destroyed by penicillin and other antibiotics, intensive treatment can prevent possible recurrences of rheumatic fever. For this reason, many physicians insist that their patients remain on regular doses of antibiotics for long periods of time.
