PRICE 15 CENTS

Wholesale Prices Continue Decline; No Impact So Far

By MICHAEL DOAN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices declined for the second month in row in July as farm and processed food prices kept dropping, the Labor Department said today.

The decline of one-tenth of a per cent in the wholesale price index was not so big as the seven-tenths decrease the month before. But it marked the first two-month drop since winter, 1975.

Wholesale price changes usually show up at the consumer level eventually, but so far grocery store food prices have continued going up. They rose eight-tenths of a per cent in the latest consumer report in June.

The price of raw farm products declined in July 1.8 per cent after a 6.8 per cent decline the month before. In the last three months, farm prices have dropped 10.6 per cent, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Contributing more to the July decline, however, were processed foods and feeds, such as vegetable oils, animal fats and sugar. They dropped 2.4 per cent after a 1.7 per cent decline the month before.

Prices of industrial commodities went up one-half of a per cent after seasonal adjustment, after a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in June.

The two-month decline in the over-all index followed nine consecutive months of price increases. The last back-to-back decline in prices was a half a per cent drop in February 1975, and a four-tenths of a per cent drop the following month.

The July report was good news for administration economists, who are counting on inflation to slow a bit in the second half of the year. However, farm prices are volatile, and most other categories showed slight increases.

The price indexes for lumber and wood products and for machinery and equipment rose more than in June. Prices also turned up for metals, hides, skins and textiles after declines the previous month. Wholesale prices declined for chemicals, furniture and household goods after increasing in June.

The biggest contributor to a 1 per cent rise in metals prices was steel and aluminum purchases. Many industries bought steel before July anticipating the price increases announced by the steel industry.

Among farm products, hay, hayseeds and oilseeds dropped the most in July, falling in price by 25.8 per cent. Other big drops were shown by grains, 3.6 per cent; live poultry, 5.5 per cent, and fibers, 2 per cent.

Leading the processed foods decline are crude vegetable oil, which plunged 31.2 per cent in price; animal fats and oils, 17.8 per cent, and animal feeds, 15 per cent.

Fuel prices rose two-tenths of a per cent while chemical products were down three-tenths of a per cent and rubber and plastic products were unchanged. Lumber and wood products rose 4.2 per cent, led by the 6 per cent increase in lumber and a 6.4 per cent jump in plywood.

Over-all, the wholesale price index stood at 194.8, meaning that goods bought at wholesale for $100 in 1967 now cost $194.80. That was 5.6 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Federal Drought Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today declared a drought emergency in North Carolina following a request from Gov. Jim Hunt. The declaration will make federal livestock feed assistance available to ranchers in 27 counties.

Thomas P. Dunne, administrator of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, has designated as being eligible for federal assistance these counties: Cabarrus, Chatham, Cleveland, Davidson, Davie, Durham, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Greenville, Guilford, Iredell, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, Orange, Person, Randolph, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Stanly, Surry, Vance, Warren, Wayne and Yadkin.

Eligible livestock producers in the designated counties may receive financial assistance in purchasing feed grains, or suitable substitutes including hay or other roughage.

Up to 10 pounds of grain per beef cow or other animal equivalent per day may be provided on the basis of 2 cents per pound of grain or grain equivalent.

The assistance will not exceed 50 per cent of the actual cost of purchasing the feed, the FDAA announcement said.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture will carry out the program under a mission assignment from the FDAA which is financing the program from the President's Disaster Relief Fund.

Livestock farmers and ranchers who need assistance were advised to contact their county ASCS office or Agricultural Service Center.

Parking Ticket Led N.Y. Police To Night Stalker

'SON OF SAM' SUSPECT IN CUSTODY - A man in a white shirt, who police say is 'Son of Sam', the .44 caliber killer, is taken into police headquarters in New York City. (AP Laser-photo)

By JACKIE STONE Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) - A $35 ticket for parking too near a fire hydrant led police to a reclusive postal worker they said was 'Son of Sam,' the night stalker who killed six young persons and wounded seven with his .44-caliber revolver.

The arrest came as David Berkowitz, 24, left his apartment house Wednesday night in suburban Yonkers and encountered police, who had staked out the building.

Police said that as Berkowitz stepped into his car, they asked him who he was, and Berkowitz replied: 'I'm Son of Sam. Okay, you've got me.' He offered no resistance, police said.

'We have him,' a police spokesman for 1st Deputy Police Commissioner James Taylor told reporters later.

Berkowitz was formally booked today at the 84th Precinct in Brooklyn on charges of second-degree murder, attempted murder, assault and possession of a deadly weapon in the murder of Stacy Moskowitz, 20, the killer's latest victim. Her date, Robert Violante, 20, was wounded and may never see again.

Wearing wornout blue jeans, a light blue and white striped shirt and light brown suede shoes, Berkowitz smiled at reporters as a cordon of police moved him out of the precinct house and took him to a nearby criminal court for arraignment later in the day.

There was no immediate explanation of why the charge was second-degree murder.

Police said the most serious charge was second-degree murder because New York State law permits first-degree murder charges only in cases where the death penalty is allowed, as in the slaying of a police officer.

Neighbors in Yonkers, a city of 150,000 on the northern border of New York City, described Berkowitz as 'a nice guy' who kept to himself.

Police said they seized two shotguns in his seventh-floor apartment and a .44-caliber Charter Arms Bulldog revolver Berkowitz carried with him as he entered his cream-colored Ford Galaxie sedan outside his apartment house. They said he also carried a brown bag with two dozen bullets and a poem.

Ballistics tests early today confirmed the revolver was the same one which was used in the killing of Miss Moskowitz, police said.

The poem described the death of a young woman - '...And huge drops of lead poured down upon her head until she was dead...'

Police said they found a submachine gun in a gunny sack in Berkowitz' car and also found several notes in his car and apartment, one of which warned that Son of Sam would kill again.

'I want to see the animal's face that took my baby's life,' Miss Moskowitz' mother, Neysa, said today. 'And I want him to see me.'

A newspaper, a television station and columnist Jimmy Breslin said today that police had told them that Berkowitz, a night superintendent at a post office in the Bronx, said he planned to strike next in Suffolk County, on the far end of Long Island. They said he allegedly planned to use the submachine gun in a discotheque or night club.

Police said previously that the same .44-caliber gun had been used in all eight attacks by the Son of Sam. Five women and one man died, three men and four women were wounded.

Report On Panama Accord To Carter

By RICHARDE MEYER Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) -

President Carter is getting a personal report from his negotiators on their historic agreement to relinquish control of the Panama Canal by the year 2,000. The pact crowns efforts for a new treaty that began with bloodshed 13 years ago.

U.S. Ambassadors Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker said they were returning from Panama today to meet with Carter.

The President, at the White House for his first full day of work after a five-day vacation in his hometown of Plains, Ga., will receive a copy of the treaty once the principles of the agreement are drafted into treaty language.

'He wants the treaty in his hands,' White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters before leaving Georgia. 'He wants to go over it word for word, line by line. And he wants the National Security Council and the Cabinet to go over it, too.'

Carter had hoped to reach an agreement on principles by Wednesday, when Linowitz's term as special ambassador expired. Now the White House hopes to have the treaty drafted by the time Congress returns from its summer recess in September.

The agreement reached late Wednesday is known to call for turning the canal and adjacent Canal Zone over to Panama by the end of this century. It also makes a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal.

The pact provides Panama with hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the treaty and guarantees unrestricted transit through the canal.

'From the point of view of the United States, we are confident that this treaty will not only protect but strengthen our national security interests,' said Linowitz and Bunker in a statement Wednesday night in Panama City.

'It will also be a strongly positive element in our overall relationship with our Latin American neighbors...,' they said.

U.S. officials in Panama City said, meanwhile, they expect Carter to make a public address soon to rally support for the terms of the treaty. They said he might go to Panama to sign it.

Panamanian officials said there were plans to invite Latin American chiefs of state to a treaty-signing celebration in Panama City.

To stem criticism in Congress, the President has sent every member a message urging all senators and representatives not to lock themselves into positions opposing the treaty at least until they see it, and he talks to them about it.

'We are going to have a pretty decent treaty,' Powell said.

The administration counts perhaps 50 senators as inclined to favor a new treaty, 22 as tending to oppose it and the rest undecided. Administration officials acknowledge it won't be easy to muster the 67 votes needed for ratification.

The House of Representatives must pass enabling legislation as part of the ratification process, but only a majority vote is needed. And Panamanian voters must pass judgment on the treaty in a plebiscite.

Queen Elizabeth Pleads To Forgive And Forget

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II today appealed to feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland to 'forgive and forget' their centuries-old hatreds and end eight years of sectarian bloodshed. The monarch said in a short speech at the New University of Ulster at Coleraine, in the north of the war-torn province, that there are hopeful signs of reconciliation. She declared:

'Those with different beliefs and aspirations understand that if this community is to survive and prosper they must live and work together in friendship and forgiveness.

'There is no place here for old fears and attitudes born of history, no place for blame for what is past.'

The queen delivered her speech a few hours after flying by helicopter to the campus on the second and final day of a controversial silver jubilee visit to Northern Ireland.

Irish Republican Army guerrillas warned earlier they had 'breached security' at the university and hinted they had planted a bomb there.

Will Follow A Trail Of 1780

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) - Like their ancestors did in 1780, marchers from five states are to cross the mountains from Tennessee to South Carolina next month.

The annual 177-mile Overmountain Victory March from Sycamore Shoals State Park to Kings Mountain, S.C. begins Sept. 25 in Elizabethton. Hikers are expected from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee.

A memorial ceremony to honor the Revolutionary War soldiers killed in the Battle of Kings Mountain is planned Oct. 7 at the end of the march.

The first annual Overmountain Victory March last year commemorated the Bicentennial.

NO LETTER RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Jack Cozort, counsel to Gov. Jim Hunt, finally admitted that there actually was no letter from the U.S. Justice Department urging Hunt to consider a pardon of the Wilmington 10, although there apparently was a phone call.

PROLINN?

I have talked to several people lately who are using a new diet preparation called Prolinn. You take a few ounces of this liquid you get from the drug store and it supposedly makes you so you're not hungry and you don't eat anything. Or some people substitute it for certain meals. It's supposed to keep you from losing muscle tissue and make it so you lose only fat. You take a multiple vitamin along with it, also, I understand. I'd like for you to find out from a professional how good for one's health this approach to weight loss is. I really need to do something about my weight. Mrs. M. C.

Local nutritionist, Mary Ann Barnes, said she is familiar with this product which is a pre-digested collagen protein, a pure protein derived from animal hides. The diet plan, which is a protein-sparing fast, was developed by Dr. Robert Linn, who used it himself to lose considerable weight which he says he has kept off. The idea is that, through total avoidance of all substances containing sugars, carbohydrates and fats, the body feeds off its own stored fat reserves which are mobilized by the body's own produced triglycerides.

Mrs. Barnes said that because Dr. Linn kept the weight off does not mean that everyone who tries this method of fasting will do the same. Weight can be kept off, she said, only when one's behavior patterns are changed permanently. Even the best, most well-balanced, sensible diets don't work unless the cause of the weight gain is determined and the behavior is changed, she said.

She said she has no documentation of damage caused by the Prolinn fasting plan, that it probably is safer than total starvation fasting which has been known to cause the body to feed from muscle and organ tissue. However, she cautioned that Dr. Linn's advice that the diet be followed only along with careful monitoring by a doctor during the entire program should be adhered to. And most people, she said, who want to try such a 'fad diet plan' want to do it on their own, without a doctor's or nutritionist's supervision.

She said, for those with interest in the subject, there is an article about Prolinn and Dr. Linn in the July 11 issue of Newsweek Magazine, Page 74. It deals to some extent with the potential misuse of the product.

Vance Affirms Israeli Failed Narrow 'Gap'

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, concluding his latest Middle East peace mission, arrived here from Jordan today on the second leg of a fast-paced, one-day swing through Arab capitals to brief officials on his talks with Israeli leaders.

Vance set out this morning from Israel and flew 60 miles east to Amman, Jordan, to confer with King Hussein. His U.S. Air Force jet then hopped 110 miles northeast to Damascus, where Vance briefed Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The secretary's final Middle Eastern stop is Alexandria, 400 miles southwest of Damascus, where he was to meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Vance is due in London tonight.

Vance dispatched Alfred Atherton, assistant secretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs, to Saudi Arabia to brief leaders there. Vance went to Saudi Arabia during the initial swing of his mission last week.

An official traveling with Vance denied an Israeli newspaper report that the U.S. ambassador to Egypt has met secretly with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

'There have been no meetings, at no place, at no time,' the official said.

Vance indicated Wednesday that Arab governments have moved closer to meeting Israel's demand for ultimate normalization of Arab-Israeli relations. But, he said at a news conference, 'in the discussions here in Israel, we did not narrow the gap any further.'

'We have found that in some cases what appeared to be irreconcilable differences have disappeared,' Vance said. 'But fundamental differences remain

... on key issues' involving both the substance of the Mideast dispute and methods for resuming peace talks.

Vance said he would act as go-between next month in talks in New York between the foreign ministers of Israel and the Arab states, who are scheduled to attend the U.N. General Assembly's fall session.

Vance will shuttle proposals between the Arab and Israeli delegations in an effort to reconcile differences and allow a reconvening of peace talks in Geneva by the end of the year.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin said his talks with Vance duplicated discussions in Washington last month with President Carter.

Hold Banquet For N.C. DOT

Visitors Here The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting a banquet tonight for the visiting delegation from the N.C. Department of Transportation, it was announced by Chamber president Lawton Nisbet.

Nisbet said that Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of D.O.T., will be the guest speaker for the banquet, scheduled at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The D.O.T. representatives, including board members and staff personnel, will be on hand for the banquet as well as several of the area's elected representatives, including Congressman Walter B. Jones.

Local governing officials will welcome the visiting contingent to Greenville.

The D.O.T. board will hold a meeting here Friday at the Willis Building.

Today's Brides Are Independent

By JO-ANNE BYRNE
MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The living together trend of the '70s apparently has resulted in a more mature type of bride. She knows her own mind and is not dependent on her parents for ideas or money.

Bridal consultant Helen Reiman says the 1977 bride, who may be in her mid-twenties or beyond, often will select a high style wedding gown of Qiana or crepe. Her flowers will complement the tailored look and may often be a classic bouquet of white roses.

Younger teen-aged brides like the dotted Swiss look, Mrs. Reiman said. She is with Bachman's Florists, one of the nation's largest.

The garden variety of daisies, zinnias, bachelor buttons and delphiniums are popular with teen-aged brides, she said.

But whatever their age, Mrs. Reiman said, women are noticeably reverting to old traditions and becoming more feminine.

The softer look includes dresses for the mother of the bride. Apricots, soft greens, mauve, and earth tone beiges are favored. Long dresses and trains are back, and so are hats.

After three or four years of the casual thrown-together look at weddings, girls are returning to the old tradition of more bridesmaids and larger receptions.

Mrs. Reiman said they are spending more money on everything, including flowers.

She even coordinates the brides' bouquets with the fabric of their gowns and asks for a swatch of fabric to blend with the flowers.

Younger brides, some just out of high school or in college, still want what Mrs. Reiman calls the fairyland look: it may often be very busy and lacy, incorporating tiny flowers such as sweetheart roses.

She finds mothers of young brides often encourage and sometimes push their daughters into flower purchases, indicating the wedding is more for the parents' satisfaction and to impress the parents' friends.

The older bride, who may have spent a couple of years living with the man she now plans to marry, is very definite about her likes and dislikes, Mrs. Reiman said. She generally pays for her own flowers. Mrs. Reiman estimates $400 to $500 as moderate for flowers for a wedding with four bridesmaids.

Ivory is a much more popular color for bridal gowns these days than pure white, Mrs. Reiman said, because it flatters everyone.

To complement an ivory gown, she suggests a combination of white and ivory blossoms such as white roses, gardenias, stephanotis, lily of the valley and miniature white carnations. She added that the majority of brides wearing ivory use color in the bouquet.

Both the bride and the bridesmaids sometimes select hair pieces or hats trimmed with fresh flowers. Fresh flowers also can be incorporated in the bridal veil.

Mrs. Reiman said silk flower weddings are increasing, particularly for people who live out of state. Silk is more expensive, but the flowers last. In many cases, the silk bouquets are the bridesmaids' gift from the bride.

Dried natural flowers or a combination of fresh and dried are used for fall weddings. Sheaves of wheat sometimes are included in a chrysanthemum bouquet. Some fall colors will be used for weddings in late August, Mrs. Reiman says, since that is an in-between period.

About 85 per cent of Mrs. Reiman's brides are married in a church or chapel, another indicator of a return to tradition.

But today's brides aren't necessarily married in the church they've attended for years. They tend to choose one near the reception area.

Mrs. Reiman said many summer weddings in Minnesota are outdoors.

Favorite sites include St. Paul's Como Park, in the Lake Harriet Rose Garden, on Lake Minnetonka and on the Mississippi River tourist vessel, the Jonathan Paddleford.

She doesn't see the return to tradition as a reflection of the country's economic attitudes.

"It's just a trend, you know. People's feelings about a lot of things, including education, have reverted to traditional lines."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In talking with a working mother the other day, she disclosed one of the little-discussed hazards of holding down a job with one hand and tending a family with the other. She called it the "Telephone Crisis."

At least once a day a working mother will be summoned to the business phone to hear the voice of her child say, "Mom, can I make a raft and mess around on the Ohio River with Huckleberry Hickey?"

Striving to keep her carpetland composure, the mother, remembering she is a professional, will clutch her throat and shout, "You leave the house and I'll break your head."

"If you want to find out how indispensable you really are," said one mother, "just get a job and wait for the phone to ring. My kids have had me called out of conferences involving thousands of dollars to electrify me with such breathless decisions:

1. Can I split a Pepsi with Kathy?
2. Guess what the dog dug up?

3. Did you wash my white shorts for gym tomorrow?
4. I got an 83 on my health test.
5. Rick just got his driver's license. Can I go with him to town and see how he does in traffic?

The plight of the working mother and Telephone Crisis reaches a feverish pitch in the summer months when the children are at home. There is perhaps nothing that strikes fear in a mother's heart as much as the following sequence.

"Hello, Mom. This is Debbie."

"GIVE ME THAT PHONE!"

Mom, this is Wesley and make her stop slapping."

"You're gonna get it. I'm telling. Mom, tell him it is his turn to set the table."

"I thought you told her she couldn't have 15 girls in here at once."

"I'm telling, Mom, did you know... quit it! You're hurting me."

"You're not even bleeding much. Mooooommmmmmmmmmm!"

Click.

Until Telephone Crisis is resolved, it is safe to assume there will not be a woman in the White House. Can you imagine getting a busy signal on the Hot Line?

Restaurants Like Assertive Patrons
NEW YORK (UPI) — A recent survey indicates restaurant owners and their employees would respect customers more if they complained on the spot about poor food and poor service.

Responding to questionnaires from a credit card and travel company, the restaurateurs said they prefer customer complaints to unhappy customers who leave the premises vowing never to return.

Forty per cent of the owners and managers volunteered that they respect patrons more who "beef" about poor service to staff members over customers who do not.

They added that passive customers appear to outnumber assertive ones.

Owners and managers said complaints give them a chance to correct errors and improve customer relations that can increase business.

The second major concern of employees, the study showed, was the need, from more respect from many customers.

Consoling Bit Of Philosophy

By Abigail Van Buren
1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GRIEVING STILL": The most consoling bit of philosophy I've ever come across was written by Benjamin Franklin to the daughter of his deceased brother, John, on the occasion of his death. I quote, in part:

"A man is not completely born until he is dead. Why then should we grieve that a new child is born among the immortals?"

We are spirits. That bodies should be lent us while they afford us pleasure, assist us in acquiring knowledge or in doing good to our fellow creatures is a kind of benevolent act of God.

When they become unfit for these purposes, and afford us pain instead of pleasure, instead of an aid become an encumbrance and answer none of these intentions for which they were given, it is equally kind and benevolent that a way is provided by which we get rid of them.

Death is that way."

DEAR READERS: How much do you know about homosexuality? Mark the following statements "True" or "False."

1. Homosexuals commit more crimes than straight people. (True or False?)
2. Everyone is born straight, but some become gay because they have been seduced by a gay person early in life. (True or False?)
3. You can always tell homosexuals and lesbians by the way they act, dress and talk. (True or False?)
4. If a person is gay, no amount of therapy or motivation can change him. (True or False?)
5. Boys raised by domineering mothers and weak (or absent) fathers usually turn into homosexuals. (True or False?)
6. Gay people can never become mothers or fathers. (True or False?)
7. Homosexuals are more inclined to molest children sexually than heterosexuals. (True or False?)
8. If a person has one or two sexual experiences with someone of the same sex he is gay. (True or False?)
9. The American Psychiatric Association stated that homosexuals are "sick." (True or False?)
10. Homosexuals can be legally married to each other under the law in the U.S.A. (True or False?)
11. Most homosexuals try to convert young people into becoming gay also. (True or False?)
12. Children raised by gay parents (or gay people) usually become homosexuals themselves. (True or False?)

How did you score?
If you marked all 12 statements "False," you are very well informed.
If you marked nine statements "False," you are fairly well informed.
If you marked four or more statements "True," you have a great deal to learn about homosexuality, because ALL of the above statements are FALSE!

Waterfowl Seasons Set

By JAMES H. PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing widespread drought across the northern prairies, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on Wednesday proposed increasing the restrictions on duck hunters in some states for the 1977-78 waterfowl hunting seasons.

The restrictions follow predictions that fewer ducks will fly south this autumn because the drought dried up thousands of potholes on which the birds traditionally next.

Most goose populations, however, are believed to be in fairly good shape, primarily because they nest further north and were less affected by the drought.

The service proposed a 55-day duck hunting season in the Central flyway and a 45-day season in the Mississippi flyway, each five days shorter than allowed last fall. But no reductions were proposed for the Atlantic and Pacific flyways.

Not all proposals would increase the restrictions on hunters. A special wood duck option will be allowed in some southern states to permit hunters to increase the kill of locally-abundant populations of wood ducks.

Some northern states will be permitted to divide their states into zones, with the gunning season set for each zone instead of being imposed statewide.

The season for greater snow geese also will be lengthened from 30 days to 60 days in the Atlantic Flyway.

Atlantic brant will continue to receive total protection, and shooting of canvasbacks and redheads will be prohibited in many areas where the birds congregate.

The special teal and scaup seasons again will be permitted in states at the Atlantic, Mississippi and Central flyways, with states rejecting special seasons being permitted bonus scaup and teal during the regular seasons.

Under the special wood duck option, the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama may select a special nine-day season in early October in which no special restrictions would be imposed on the bag and possession limits for wood ducks.

The move would permit hunters to kill four or five woodies daily.

In addition, the daily bag limit on Canada geese will be increased from three to four in Delaware, part of Pennsylvania and the Delmarva peninsula portions of Maryland and Virginia.

The harvest quota on Canada geese will be increased to 35,000 birds in Wisconsin and Illinois, an increase of 7,000 birds over the quota imposed last year.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service sets the framework under which states select their gunning seasons. The proposals are subject to change, with the final regulations expected to be issued next month.

ATLANTIC FLYWAY

The proposals:
DUCKS: A 40-day season between Oct. 1, 1977 and Jan. 20, 1978, with basic daily bag and possession limits of 4 and 8 ducks respectively, of which no more than 2 in the daily bag and 4 in possession may be black ducks. The daily bag and possession limit may be increased to 5 and 10 ducks respectively if no more than 1 black duck is permitted in the daily bag and 2 black ducks in possession.

An additional five days gunning will be permitted states which open their season at noon on a Wednesday.

No more than 1 canvasback or 1 redhead will be permitted in the bag or possession limit. No more than 2 wood ducks will be permitted in the daily bag and 4 in possession during the regular season.

The shooting of canvasbacks and redheads will be prohibited in parts of New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

In states selecting the point system, the daily bag limit is reached when the point value of the last duck killed, when added to the sum of ducks previously killed, reaches or exceeds 100.

Point values assigned to ducks are: canvasback (outside closed areas) and fulvous tree ducks (Florida only), 100 points each; female mallards, black ducks, mottled ducks, wood ducks, redheads (outside closed areas), hooded mergansers, 70 points; blue-winged teal, green-winged teal, pintail, gadwall, shoveler, scaup, sea ducks, American mergansers, red-breasted mergansers, 10 points; drake mallards, wood ducks during the special season and all other species of ducks, 25 points.

GEESE: A 70-day season on Canada geese will be permitted between Oct. 1, 1977 and Jan. 20, 1978. The basic limit will be three honkers per day and six in possession.

Exceptions include a 90-day season in parts of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and all of Delaware, which will be permitted a 90-day season and 4 and 8 bag and possession limit. In North Carolina, South Carolina and part of southern Virginia, the season shall run only for 50 days with a 1-bird daily bag limit and two-geese possession limit.

The season will be closed on Canada geese in Florida and Georgia.

The season on greater snow geese shall run for 60 days, with daily bag and possession limits of 2 and 4 geese respectively.

Hunting of Atlantic brant will be prohibited.

States in the Atlantic Flyway include Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Winter Festival Draws Students

OURO PRETO, Brazil (UPI) — The annual Winter Festival in the beautifully preserved colonial city of Ouro Preto offers a wide range of cultural activities. The festival runs through the entire month of July — winter in the southern Hemisphere — in the mountainous interior of the state of Minas Gerais.

The festival particularly draws students from around Brazil and from many other countries, attracted by performances of dancing, theater, folk and classical music, and exhibits of art and handicrafts.

Big Addition To Rich History

It has been 112 years since Confederate soldiers at Fort Branch on the Roanoke River pushed their cannons into the water following the capitulation of the Confederate Army.

This week, thanks to the efforts of many people, cannons were brought up from their watery resting place to be viewed in the light of the 20th Century.

State experts, students from UNC-Wilmington, and army reserve personnel cooperated to bring up the ancient cannons. Equipment included a heavy army crane which lifted the cannons from the Roanoke.

Cannons previously recovered from the river are now on display in Hamilton and those recovered this week will soon be placed with them once a process to preserve them has been completed.

Under consideration is the construction of a Fort Branch museum and the cannons will undoubtedly be a part of the display when this is done.

North Carolina has a rich history and particularly is this true for Eastern North Carolina. We haven't always been as alert as we should be in preserving our heritage, but projects such as this one at Fort Branch on the Roanoke indicate we are becoming more conscious of the need.

The cannons recovered from the Roanoke River are a priceless part of our past that needed to be preserved. At last we are doing something about recovering artifact which will have great meaning to future generations.

Possibly First Step To Concessions

There are hints that Sec. of State Cyrus Vance may have gotten some concessions from Palestinian leaders in the search for Middle East peace.

He visited Israel this week where leaders were described as skeptical.

No doubt it will be some time before a solution to the differences between Israel and the Palestinians are unraveled, but it will have to be done a step at the time.

Perhaps we are seeing the first step.

THIS AFTERNOON

Demo Surge Faces Helms

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Democrats have all but eliminated Republicans in elected posts in North Carolina government.

The recent session of the state's General Assembly started with only 10 Republicans; ended with one less as State Senator Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, switched allegiances.

This obviously leaves only one major stumbling block to total control by Democrats: U.S. Senator Jesse Helms who was elected to his six-year term in 1972; comes up for re-election in 1978.

Will the domination of state politics by Democrats lead to the unseating of Helms? Not, say many political experts, unless (1) a candidate is nominated who can "out-convince" the extreme conservative who has emerged as a national figure of sorts; and (2) and Helms badly stumps his toe, disappointing the thousands of loyal Democrats across North Carolina who cross over on the ballot to put him into office.

for individual liberty combine to well suit the fancy of Tar Heel voters despite their party registration being overwhelmingly Democrat.

The one man prominent in state politics right now, say some, who could defeat Helms is U.S. Senator Robert Morgan, former state attorney general and a man of high rank in Democratic Party circles. Politically and philosophically, however, Morgan rates somewhere near Helms in his philosophy and their voting records are often startlingly parallel.

But of course Morgan, secure in his six-year term won just two years ago, isn't about to consider such a risky proposition.

That leaves the field open for the Democrats now jockeying for position to win the party nomination in next May's primary. The organizing and announcing is happening at an accelerated pace since the General Assembly moved the primary back to the traditional spring date after an ill-fated flirtation with a fall primary in 1976.

Well Liked
The consensus is that Helms' brand of money conservatism and demand

Interestingly, many of the wouldbe candidates now in various stages of considering for getting into the race say they would offer an "attractive alternative" to Helms' style of conservatism. But that is precisely what will most likely lead to a Democratic defeat by the Republican senator—most close observers of North Carolina politics concede that despite the sweep of Democrats into office last fall and the failure of Republicans to retain the governor's mansion after a single term by former Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., Tar Heel voters aren't ready to move strongly in more liberal directions.

BILL NOBLITT

At least six candidates are in decision-making positions at this time. The first to actually file for election is now ready to be the first to quit.

Raleigh Lawyer Hugh Cannon who offered himself as a contrast to the conservative Helms will withdraw shortly. Two state senators—both of whom must be rated at least moderates if not somewhat liberal (they both object to labels) — are building campaigns: McNeill Smith of Greensboro and Lawrence Davis of Winston-Salem.

A former newspaper writer and son of well-known Editor Pete McKnight of Charlotte is on a walking trip across the state spreading his philosophy, but few give David McKnight much of a shot at the title.

Son of former U.S. Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., Superior Court Judge Sam Ervin, III, of Morganton studied the matter and dropped out, and State Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten, a former Ervin aide, is being encouraged to enter the race. Some have noticed Edmisten trying to make some moves toward a more conservative stance recently.

The most attention focuses on Luther Hodges, Jr., former Charlotte banker and son of the former governor of the state and U.S. Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. Already well organized with a campaign team and aggressively stumping the state, Hodges seems the front runner in the race for the nomination.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Hail The 18th Century

CHICAGO—An unhappy letter turned up in my mail last Saturday. The next day I flew out here to debate Birch Bayh on the issue of direct national election of our presidents. The two tie together.

The letter came from one of my editors in a Western state. If it wasn't an unhappy letter for him, it was for me. He was canceling my column. And why? He felt I was blackening the name of conservative thought by expounding "18 Century ideas." He added: "Mr. Kilpatrick is simply not living in the 20th Century."

Well, the thought occurs to me, philosophically, that in the 13 years I have been writing "A Conservative View," I never have been canceled for a better reason. The 18th Century had some splendid ideas. But Senator Bayh, alas, appreciates them no more than the disgruntled gentleman who just gave me the ax.

Our debate before a section of the American Bar Association went to a proposal that Bayh has been pushing for the past ten years. He wants to amend the Constitution so as to abolish the electoral college and to provide for popular elections. His proposal (SJR 1) is languishing in the Judiciary Committee, but it has 42 co-sponsors and some impressive support from such outfits as the ABA. The resolution could be reported whenever the leadership feels it has enough clout to vote to strangle Alabama's Jim Allen and 30 of his 10th Century colleagues.

All us 18th Century boys stick together on this one. Bayh's proposed amendment rests upon two arguments. One might be termed preventive, the other positive. Neither one is convincing.

The preventive argument is to this effect: that at least once in our history, in 1888, the electoral college system produced a president who lacked a majority of the popular vote; that the system has produced some other near misses; that the risk of political malfunction is too great to be tolerated any longer; and, therefore, the system should be scrapped and swapped for direct election instead.

The positive argument goes this way: that regardless of the risks, the present system is undemocratic; that in a presidential election, every voter's vote should count equally; that fairness demands that the presidency always go to the candidate with the greatest number of popular votes; and, therefore, et cetera.

Our response goes to certain fundamental principles. These are 18th Century principles, and I offer no apologies for them. They, have served us well. The principles have to do with political power—how it should be delegated, and how it should be restrained, within the basic structure of a federated union.

The electoral college system was one of the compromises of 1787, but it was a principled compromise. It reflected the intention of the framers—an intention that runs through the whole of the Constitution—to prevent an excessive concentration of power in any part of our government. The electoral system is a manifestation of the federalism that underlies the whole structure. Whenever we act politically, we act through the mechanism of our states.

Bayh's revolutionary proposal—and it is precisely that—would do terrible violence to the federal principle. Under the present system, the people vote democratically, and equally, within their states. The electors are mere conduits for transmitting the political will, state by state. As the late Professor Martin Diamond has emphasized, the present system was devised not merely to determine whom the people want but also to answer a corollary question: Whom does Colorado want? Whom does Virginia want? Presidential campaign ecphilly or implicitly, recognize the subdivisions of electoral power within the states.

Bayh said in the course of that he simply cannot understand how anyone can oppose the idea of simple majoritarianism in a (Continued on page 5)

Recalls A Long Career

By JAMES J. DOYLE
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Raymond Massey, approaching his 81st year, is wrapping up the last few chapters of the second volume of his autobiography.

"It's been a longer job than I expected," he said in an interview. "Fifty-five years in the theater is a lot to cover."

Massey, who was Abraham Lincoln to one generation and crusty Dr. Gillespie of television's "Dr. Kildare" series to another, recalls the years with zest and humor. His voice is clear, memory razor sharp and laughter infectious.

The first volume of his autobiography, "When I Was Young," has been published in his native Canada and in the United States. The second volume, with a subtitle of "My Working Years," is due out in the spring of 1978.

The grand old man of theater, who played everything from "Hamlet" on Broadway to villains and comic parts in television, says his acting days are probably over.

"I haven't any plans for more work, now," he said. "I think my stage work is over because of age and the arthritis. And really, the same thing in movies and TV. It's very difficult to find a part that is sedentary."

After playing Lincoln on Broadway in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," and repeating the role on film, he became publicly associated with the character. He says he even knew a man who had met Lincoln.

"It was a friend of my father," Massey said, "Dr. John Goucher, the founder of Goucher College in Maryland. He was a small boy then. He somehow had squirmed into an interview and found himself hiding behind a curtain."

"When Lincoln was alone, he popped out and apparently scared the President out of his wits," Massey roared with laughter.

He recalls his stage performances and loved them all. "I have no real favorites," he said. "Everything in the theater is unique. There have been many of them, but I can't single out one over the other."

"I also have fond memories of radio. It was the purest form of entertainment because it existed largely in the imagination of the audience."

Massey and his wife, Mary, seldom go out so most of their entertainment is television. "Motion pictures made for television are in many ways superior to those made for the screen," he said. "They're beautifully done."

He said he made 39 shows for the "Dr. Kildare" series over five years. "Actually you only had about two months off a year. It was a long pull. Now they make fewer shows for a series."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Test Of Wills On Tax Bill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois expressed misgivings about tougher tax treatment of capital gains, all lingering doubt was removed that President Carter and Congress are beginning a test of wills over tax reform.

Mikva, chairman of the liberal Democratic Study Group and a highly effective advocate of liberal causes within the House Ways and Means Committee, had been expected to carry the banners of Carter tax reform. But when top Treasury officials met privately with Ways and Means Democrats last Wednesday morning, the reaction from everybody — Ab Mikva included — was ice cold.

Their message to the Treasury officials: you're talking about much too grandiose a package. But that word had no impact whatever when it got back to the White House. "I'm not surprised at the reaction," a senior presidential aide told us. "I promise we're going to have a very comprehensive program." That sets the stage for the biggest test of wills yet between Capitol Hill and the Carter White House.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Assistant Secretary Laurence Woodworth, meeting with Ways and Means Democrats behind closed doors for 1 1/2 hours, revealed outlines of a massively ambitious tax reform to be unveiled at the end of September.

Both individual and corporate income tax rates would be reduced, and the Treasury officials said they are still trying for a plan to end double taxation of corporate income. But along with those sweets will come lots of bitters: treating capital gains as ordinary income, sharp restrictions on deductions, an end to "expense account living" and much, much more.

Conservative Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana opened by quoting Mikva's statement to Mr. Carter several weeks ago that the tax reform bill should not attempt too much. Waggoner argued the program should be split into smaller packages. Much the same point was made by chairman Al Ullman of Oregon and liberal Rep. Charles Vanik of Ohio.

Mikva then questioned the wisdom of inhibiting capital investment by increasing taxation of capital gains. Moderate Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida suggested that any such plan should be indexed to account for inflation.

The assault on "expense account living" evoked no more applause. Rep. William Cotter of Connecticut warned that Mr. Carter might shut down half the restaurants in Washington.

Not even Rep. Pete Stark of California, who takes the extreme left position on the committee, was happy. He complained the Treasury was offering too much for business and not enough for the working man.

"I frankly cannot see a coalition developing for the passage of the bill," one liberal member of the committee told us. "As of now, I can't even see myself voting for it."

Rhodes To Ruin?
Support for the Democratic majority on a key procedural question during debate on the energy bill has quietly transformed cloakroom grumbling against Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona into an incipient movement to unseat him as House Republican leader in the next Congress 18 months from now.

Strength For Today

DIVISION IN HUMANITY
Miguel Cervantes, the Spanish genius who wrote "Don Quixote," was a contemporary of William Shakespeare. Yet we can be almost certain that neither knew of the existence of the other.

Shakespeare as a young man in London probably trembled with the rest of his countrymen as the Spanish Armada approached the English coast. Part of the money to build that Armada was collected by Cervantes, acting in his capacity as a Spanish official. Shakespeare looked on Philip II of Spain as a monster. Cervantes regarded him as a saint and considered Queen Elizabeth and her subjects to be no more than wretched heretics worthy only of the sword and faggot.

All of which goes to show how the forces of time and place and environmental conditioning tend to divide under, even though their natural accomplishments tend to bring them together. Doubtless the divisions between the communist and free worlds are playing the same role for their peoples as did the wars of religion for Cervantes and Shakespeare.

Error-Finding Was Not Enough

By JOHN CUNIFF

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Bullock, an economic statistician whose outspoken criticism of Census Bureau data led to the belated correction last December of a $50 billion understatement in an economic study, has been fired.

Bullock, 30, said he was accused of "coercion to seek advancement" after he found more errors in another Census Bureau study and threatened "to go public" unless permitted to organize an effort to correct the figures.

The dismissal followed two letters of reprimand, one for what he said was alleged to be a "malicious, vicious insult" to a superior, and another for insulting his wife's superior.

Robert Hagan, bureau director, said he was not free to discuss the bureau's action but said the details were spelled out in a letter to the former employee.

Bullock termed the coercion charge a fabrication resulting from his insistence that he be permitted to correct the additional errors, a job that apparently would have required a rating higher than his GS-12.

He said he was asked by Shirley Kallek, his superior, to put his demands in writing, which he did, and that the dismissal followed.

At issue, he said, are figures making up the basic annual economic data base of the bureau, which are released separately for individual states, followed by publication of a national survey.

Included in such studies are figures for the number of businesses of all kinds, the number of jobs and the size of payrolls in all the nation's counties. Bullock claims the figures are biased by 25 to 30 per cent.

The latest accusations by Bullock follow a personal, four-year fight to correct problems in another survey, that for the level of unfilled orders at the nation's factories.

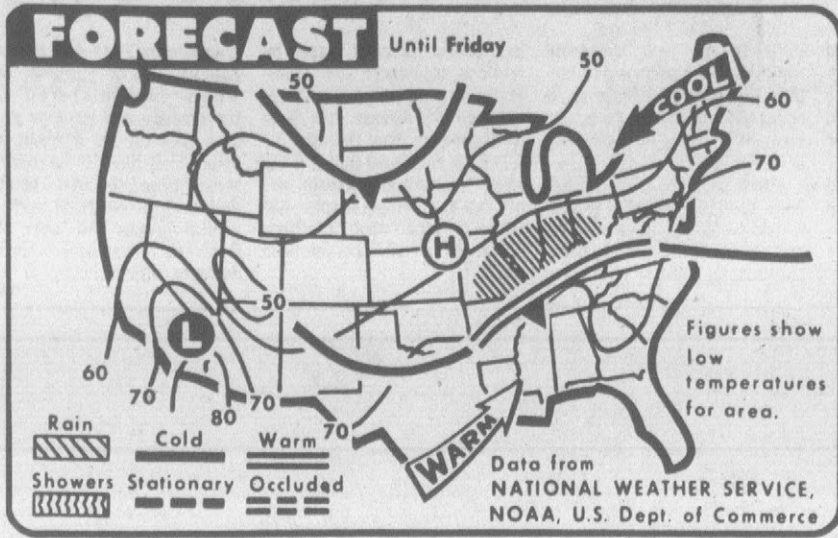

The bureau at first minimized the extent of the unfilled orders miscalculation. Bullock said that instead of adjusting the figures or issuing a caveat, he was threatened with insubordination by Miss Kallek, who devised the methodology.

Following a special study, rushed to completion last December, the bureau conceded the understatement in the level of orders to be, in some years, close to 40 per cent, and to total roughly $50 billion a year.

Asked then — in December 1976 — why a caveat hadn't been issued, in keeping with the published policy of the bureau in regard to questionable statistics, Milton Eisen, chief of the industry division, said "We were slow in accepting anything he (Bullock) said."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for parts of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, according to the National Weather Service. The rest of the nation should enjoy clear skies. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers were expected to continue over North Carolina today, and so was the hot and humid weather. In fact, little change is expected on into the weekend.

High pressure continues over the Southeast and this system is pumping hot and humid air from the Gulf of Mexico into this region. The air is rather unstable and afternoon heating under a broiling sun sets off the scattered thunderstorms.

Scattered storms accounted for more than an inch of rain in some mountain and western Piedmont areas Wednesday. Further east, half-inch hail was reported in the Sanford area during a thunderstorm.

Some of the thunderstorms churned up strong gusty winds and some wind damage was reported. Temperatures again climbed into the 90s in all but the mountains and along the Outer Banks with Rocky Mount registering a 98.

No relief from the heat is in sight yet, according to the National Weather Service.

blundered by quickly endorsing President Carter's easy voter registration scheme and then stubbornly sticking to it for months. The basic criticism is of his tactics, not his ideology. The old complaint that Rhodes does not spend enough time on the House floor has been joined by the new complaint that he shows no initiative in opposing the Carter administration.

Doubts whether Rhodes is a match for Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill peaked when the minority leader supported the Democratic-sponsored procedure governing debate of the energy bill. Only four other Republicans joined him.

After poor GOP election showings, House Republicans launched lightning coups that unseated Joe Martin in 1959 and Charley Halleck in 1965 as leader. If the 1978 mid-term election produces no Republican comeback, Rhodes could suffer the same fate in 1979.

His successor probably would be Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, second-in-command as minority whip. Michel, who spends a lot of time on the House floor, has not hesitated to fire punches at the new President while fellow Republican leaders hesitated.

Eyes Emphasis On Prevention

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Local health and social services departments will have to place more emphasis on preventive family planning services for low income citizens now that most federal funds for abortions have been cut off, said state Secretary of Human Resources Sarah Morrow.

"We must do an even better job of informing and educating our low-income people about birth-control procedures," she said.

High costs and the federal cutoff have led North Carolina to stop paying for elective abortions under its Medicaid and Title XX programs, Dr. Morrow said.

"For the state to continue to provide elective abortions as a part of its family planning services, it would require an estimated $1.8 million in additional state funds for the current year," she explained.

Dr. Morrow said the state is "looking to see if any funds are available, but it appears that we simply do not have that kind of money to spend." The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) notified the state last week that it would no longer provide matching funds for elective abortions.

Dr. Morrow said HEW would continue to provide matching funds for medical procedures necessary for medical termination of ectopic (tubal) pregnancy, or for the treatment of rape and incest victims.

For the first five months of this year, 1,691 abortions in the state were paid for by funds from the two federal programs, Title XX and Medicaid.

presidential election. It is so clear to him. What could be simpler? You pit a Gerald Ford against a Jimmy Carter, and whoever gets the most votes wins the office. Just like that.

But this simplistic view was disputed long ago by one of Bayh's closest friends, John F. Kennedy, a pretty fair 18th Century man himself once compared our constitutional arrangement to the solar system. You could no more displace the electoral college without affecting everything else, said Kennedy, than you could displace a planet. They all revolve together. And that is an observation valid not merely for the 18th Century but for the 20th and 21st as well.

Virus Drug Hailed As Big Medical Breakthrough

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of the first drug capable of treating virus-caused diseases is a "major advance," comparable to the discovery of penicillin nearly 50 years ago, health officials say.

Scientists with the National Institutes of Health announced Wednesday a new experimental drug, adenine arabinoside, has been used successfully to treat a rare virus-caused brain disease.

Manufactured by the Parke-Davis pharmaceutical company of Detroit, the unpatented drug, also known as ara-A, was administered to 28 hospital patients suffering from herpes encephalitis, a disease that deroys brain cells. Dr. Charles A. Alfred Jr. of the University of Alabama, who coordinated the NIH-sponsored tests at 15 medical centers, said they showed that ara-A reduced herpes encephalitis mortality from 70 per cent to 28 per cent.

The virus that causes the disease is a member of the same herpes family that causes chickenpox, shingles, fever blisters and the venereal disease, genital herpes.

The many infectious diseases that attack humans are caused mainly by two kinds of germs: bacteria and viruses. The discovery of penicillin in 1928 led to the development of antibiotics that have been used successfully to treat most bacteria-related diseases.

But viruses have remained resistant to these and other drugs. Until the development of ara-A doctors have been able to treat only the symptoms of viral diseases, not the diseases themselves, and had to hope the body would successfully resist the virus on its own.

If ara-A can be used successfully in the treatment of herpes encephalitis, there is reason to believe it can fight off numerous other virus-caused diseases, such as the common cold and influenza, scientists said.

Herpes encephalitis, which is difficult to diagnose, is believed to strike thousands of Americans each year, with only one in 10 victims making a full recovery. Most survivors suffer serious brain damage, and many remain incapacitated for life.

"This is exciting news," said Dr. Richard Krause of the NIH's National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases of the new test results.

"It is the first successful treatment of a serious and life-threatening virus disease. It opens up an avenue to a new form of therapy for this class of infections."

Alfred said the drug also has been used successfully in controlled tests to fight chickenpox and shingles in cancer patients and is being used by physicians in treating runaway herpes infections in cancer and transplant patients whose normal resistance to disease has been weakened by drug therapy.

But he cautioned that it is too early to predict successful use of ara-A against herpes diseases or other viral infections on which it has not yet been tested.

At present, ara-A is effective against serious diseases only when administered intravenously and must be given in a hospital. As a result, the drug is not likely to be used for some time to treat non-life threatening infections such as genital herpes and fever blisters in otherwise normal patients, officials say.

Hanoi Boasts Sympathy Mail

HONG KONG (UPI) — A British listener enclosed two beans in his letter to Radio Hanoi's program "Voice of Vietnam" asking for help.

An Italian youth, advising that he had "some knowledge of agriculture," offered to bring his own tent if he were permitted to go to Vietnam to work in the nation's reconstruction program.

An "ordinary American citizen" offered his moral support.

These letters from a Briton, "Mr. Michael"; an Italian, Elbino Bonomoyo, and an American, "Peter Finch of Miner Island" were among more than 20,000 the "Voice of Vietnam" has received from listeners in more than 100 countries during the first half of this year, according to a recent domestic broadcast by Radio Hanoi.

The theme of almost all of the letters, the radio said, has been the "obligation" of the United States to give economic assistance to Vietnam.

"In the USSR and in the United States, in Japan as well as in Europe and in Africa as in the Asian continent, ordinary working people expressed their profound understanding and concern toward Vietnam," the broadcast said.

"Through tens of thousands of letters, the friends of Vietnam displayed their unabating indignation over the extremely serious consequences left behind by U.S. imperialism in the country..."

"Despite the differences in the way of analyzing the problem, the consensus expressed in tens of thousands of letters demands that the United States discharge its irrefutable responsibility to the Vietnamese people."

The broadcast quoted excerpts from letters sent by listeners in several countries, including another American identified as "Henry F. Pinoche." All supported the Vietnamese contention that the United States has an "obligation" to aid in Vietnam's postwar reconstruction.

"Our friends have not only voiced their condemnation and expressed their attitude, but they have also wanted to contribute their efforts to help in the reconstruction of Vietnam."

The Briton, "Mr. Michael," said his two beans were only "a very small help" but he pointed out they were "of a rare type."

Torch Turns Cars Into Convertibles

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Dick Baker uses a cutting torch to prolong America's love affair with the convertible automobile.

He was well into the business of making convertibles out of hard top cars when the major auto manufacturers had to quit making soft topped luxury cars last year because of a new federal law.

It takes Baker only about 20 minutes of surgery with a cutting torch to rip the lid off a $13,000 1977 Cadillac.

"In a week it'll be a convertible ready to deliver," said Baker, 43, working in his shop surrounded by an auto wrecking firm.

Baker said "GM was thinking of me" when it made frame and chassis components of the 1977 Cadillac Eldorado the same as those of the 1976 convertibles.

He uses convertible mechanisms from wrecked late model cars in his work. He maintains contact with about 200 auto junk yards around the country for convertible parts.

Baker has modified 16 of the 1977 cars into convertibles so far. His prices range from $6,500 for the expensive Cadillacs to about $3,500 for some smaller models.

He expects to modify about 20 cars this year and feels his price is cheap because of the appreciation potential of 1977 convertibles.

"A new factory built 1976 Caddy convertible might bring $20,000 but one of mine has already been sold for over $30,000," he said.

Baker said he didn't know whether the 1977 Cadillac could be converted when it first came out and figured there was only one way to learn.

"I went out and bought me a $13,000 1977 Eldorado when they first came out last September and cut the top off," he said. "I'm not sure what I would have done with it if it wasn't possible to make a convert."

The big car convertibles were phased out because of federal safety requirements for turn-over protection. Baker is exempted because the law applies only to production runs of more than 500 cars.

"The reason people want convertibles is because you can't get them any more," Baker said of his work. "It's as simple as that. These cars will never even put the tops down."

Market Saw 'Best Day'

The best day so far for the 1977 auction season was recorded on Wednesday's sale, according to J. N. Bryan, local Tobacco Board of Trade sales supervisor.

Bryan said that the market averaged $110.95 per hundred pounds yesterday as 756,878 pounds of tobacco sold for $839,730.

Stabilization received 8.70 per cent of the total offerings on the warehouse floors, the official reported.

The volume of sales consisted of leaf, lugs, primings and non-descript, he said, with a slight increase noted in the latter category.

Top practical price paid on the sale was $1.38 per pound.

Wednesday's totals brought the season figures to 8,690,436 pounds sold for $8,442,316, an average of $97.14 per hundred pounds.

TRACTOR PRODUCTION BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Tractor production in this country reached an all-time high in 1976 of 23,923 units, according to the Association of Argentine Tractor Manufacturers.

Some 88 per cent of these tractors were sold domestically, 7.4 percent were exported, and the remainder were incorporated into stock.

Residents Advised Of Plant-Stealing

Greenville Police Department Capt. Paul Jewett today urged Greenville residents to be more cautious where and how they place potted plants and porch furniture outside their homes.

He said incidents involving the theft of plants and furniture outside homes have increased over the past six weeks.

The captain said since July 1, more than a dozen thefts have been reported. The flowers, pots, and furniture, Jewett said, were valued at $1,144.

The plant thefts have included such varieties as verbenas, umbrella plants, Swedish ivy, begonias and cactus, and have occurred at scattered locations such as Fourth Street, Harding Street, Broad Street, Beaumont and Kirkland Drives and Library Street.

The officer suggested that plants placed outside might be secured in some manner to make their theft more difficult. He said too, that porch lights might be left on to discourage such thefts, or plants and furniture placed at the rear of the house rather than at the front where it can be easily seen.

Talk Of A Record Corn Harvest Is Rekindled

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent rains in the corn belt have rekindled talk of a record harvest of that principal meat-making feed grain again this year.

July and August are the critical growing months for corn, the supplies of which are the leading early indicator of food prices in the year ahead.

Those who feed the animals that produce the consumer meat supply which accounts for about 30 per cent of the total American grocery bill make their decisions to expand or contract herds and flocks largely on the supply and price of corn.

A month ago, the Agriculture Department forecast a record 6.33-billion bushel crop this year, 2 per cent larger than last fall's harvest, the record to date.

That was based on July 1 surveys. A new estimate was due today after the market closed, based on Aug. 1 field conditions.

Good grain crops worldwide have not only depressed U.S. farmers' prices in the last year, but also eased the export demand. Because of that, USDA expects some 900 million bushels to be left over next month when the current corn year ends.

That means that even a large, weather-caused drop in production between now and final harvest — to, for example, 5.8 billion bushels — would still leave a substantially larger supply than three years ago when bad weather from spring through fall severely damaged the crop. A year ago, 398 million bushels were carried over.

The Crop Reporting Board's August estimates during the last 10 years have been too low half the time, too high the other half, with a range averaging 274 million bushels of corn.

Last year, when less-severe drought conditions in many areas were a problem, the board first put the crop at more than 6.55 billion bushels. It pulled it down to 6.2 billion in August, to less than 5.9 billion in September, and still further during the October harvest.

Tar Kettle Came Loose And Collided With Car

HEAVY DAMAGE ... resulted yesterday when this tar kettle came loose from a truck pulling it and collided with this car on Greenville Boulevard. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Ronnie Dean Lewis of Route 4, Greenville was charged with failing to secure his load following investigation of a 4:05 p. m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 400 feet West of the Evans Street intersection yesterday.

ing pulled by a truck driven by Lewis came loose, crossed the roadway and collided head-on with a car driven by Elliott Bryan Rollings of Route 8, Greenville, splattering the car with tar.

Investigators said Mrs. Rollings, a passenger in the auto, was burned when she got out of the car and fell into the hot tar. She was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad for treatment.

Damage was estimated by officers at $1,000 to the Rollings car, $300 to the tar kettle and $200 to curb and gutter along the roadway.

One Can't Keep Tax Returns Forever

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

How long should you keep your old income tax returns? When can you throw out canceled checks? Where should you store copies of your insurance policies? If you don't know the answers, you're not alone. Many Americans are confused about which personal records they need to hang on to and for how long. The federal Consumer Information Center reports that the booklet, "Keeping Records, What to Discard," is one of the agency's most popular. The booklet is available, at no charge, from the center, Dept. 625E, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Meanwhile, if you want to start clearing some of the clutter from household drawers, files and desks, here are a few tips:

—You do not need to keep all canceled checks. Copies of canceled checks are usually available at your bank. You should save checks you need for income tax purposes — to prove business expenditures, for example — and review the collection periodically to see which ones are outdated.

—Federal income tax returns should be kept for at least three years. That's the amount of time the Internal Revenue Service has to audit your return. There are some exceptions to the three-year limit, however. If you failed to report more than 25 per cent of your gross income, for example, the government has six years to collect the tax or start legal proceedings. There are no limits for prosecution if you filed a return that is proved fraudulent. Time limits for state income tax audits vary; check with local authorities.

—Keep receipts and sales slips for big-ticket items, particularly those covered by a warranty. You may need proof of purchase if you have a problem.

—Keep a household inventory in case of fire or burglary. List the item, the date purchased, the cost, the model number if possible, the brand name, the dealer's name and a general description. Snapshots of your rooms also can help identify possessions. Update the inventory with any major purchase.

Irreplaceable papers — marriage and birth certificates; divorce, adoption and citizenship papers, and other documents that are recorded with the courts or the government — should be kept in a safe deposit box. One copy of your household inventory also should go in the safe deposit box. (Keep another copy at home and give a third copy to your insurance company.) Tax returns, education and employment records, bank books and Social Security cards do not need the protection of a safe deposit box; they can be replaced relatively easily.

—The original copy of a will is usually kept in the safe of the attorney who prepared it. You will get two copies. Put one in the safe deposit box and leave the other in a readily accessible place at home. It is a good idea to leave funeral and burial instructions in the same spot. Let someone — such as your lawyer — know where these items are kept, since getting copies from your safe there can be a legal delay in deposit box after your death.

Grace your home with colonial charm!

Collectors Club Meets

The August meeting of the Greenville Collectors Club was held Tuesday at the home of Paul and Marjorie Little.

The club finalized plans for its sixth annual antique sale and flea market, which will be held Sunday, September 4 at Woodside Antiques, west of Greenville.

The Collectors Club, a non-profit organization, sponsors the annual event to raise money for its educational and cultural projects. These have included in the past year a donation to the endowment fund of the East Carolina Manuscript Collection at ECU.

Past flea markets have attracted up to 50 antique dealers to Greenville and an even larger number is expected in September, including some from out of state who have already reserved space.

Anyone with antiques or collectibles for sale can rent a space by contacting the club at 752-3456, Martha and Mickey Elmore. Dealer spaces can be reserved for five dollars, but the event is completely free, including admission and parking.

There are always thousands of old and curious items for sale and browsers are welcome. Snacks will be supplied by the Winterville Rescue Squad. The public is invited.

Hobby Asserts Laws Violated

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobby says labor law reforms are needed because textile firms are violating labor laws by firing workers suspected of union activities.

"There's a tremendous amount of that going on," he said. "They want to scare people to death. These people eventually get their jobs back and back pay, but the time it takes can't be counted in months, but years. Justice delayed is justice denied."

Hobby said President Carter's proposed reforms probably would not tilt union-company relations in the state. But he said if companies "can defeat this legislation, mild as it is, it will give them renewed courage."

While Carter's proposals are weak, Hobby said, they are needed in his union's struggle to organize textile workers.

North Carolina is the least unionized state in the nation with only 6.8 per cent of the 2.1 million person work force organized. Thirty-nine per cent of the state's work force are in textile or textile-related industries.

Other than 4,000 Fieldcrest Mills workers at Eden and scattered plants in Greensboro, High Point, Wilmington and Erwin, textile employees are not organized.

At the J.P. Stevens Co. plant in Roanoke Rapids, workers have voted to unionize, but their union has not been able to negotiate a contract with the firm. Under Carter's proposed bill, workers fired for engaging in union organizing would get double back wages if an employer is found guilty of unfair labor practices. Hobby said the bill is watered-down from an earlier version.

The original bill would have provided triple wages for illegally discharged workers. It would have mandated that unions be recognized as the legal representative for workers once 55 per cent of the authorization cards were signed, pending certification in an election.

Organizing JC

Unit In Fountain

The Winterville Jaycees are helping to organize a Jaycee Chapter in Fountain.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, bogging down after an early advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 2 points in early trading, was off 1.47 at 885.57 by 11:30 a.m.

Gainers held a 3-2 edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues after leading by as much as 5 to 2 earlier.

Trading was brisk. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 6.01 million shares.

Before the market opened the government reported that the wholesale price index declined 0.1 per cent in July after a 0.7 per cent drop the previous month.

For a while, that appeared to give added impetus to the upswing that began late Wednesday, when the Dow posted a 7.62-point gain.

But some investors worried about rising interest rates and a prospective slowing in the economic growth rate evidently sold into the rally, choking it off by mid-morning.

Norton Simon led the active list, down 1/4 at 19 3/4. A 206,000-share block traded at 20.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was up .05 at 54.14.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .43 to 121.02.

Area Scouts Share In Jamboree's Activities

MORAIN STATE PARK, PA. — The Scouting contingent from Pitt County participated in a variety of activities during the National Boy Scout Jamboree that concluded here Wednesday.

The area scouts, numbering 23 from two East Carolina Council troops, as well as three adult leaders from the area, participated in the 10-day event with more than 28,000 scouts and adult volunteers from all over the nation and a dozen foreign countries.

During the national event, the local scouts competed in various patrol and individual events, friendship campfires and two arena shows held on Aug. 3 and Aug. 9.

Olympic Gold Medalist Bruce Jenner and the current Miss Teenage America, Becky Reid, were among the celebrities visiting with the Jamboree participants.

The special entertainment scheduled during the Jamboree included the Navy's demonstration parachute team, "The Shooting Stars."

Daily activities included swimming, boating, canoeing, hiking and visits to various exhibits. Visits by the local scouts also included a stop at the Mountain Men Indian Camp where homemade teepees, animal skins, beads and woodwork were examined and demonstrations on cooking without utensils were given.

The Pitt County group participated in a patrol cooking plan that was used by all units in attendance at the Jamboree. The planned menu worked out by outdoor cooking experts were furnished to all campers and necessary ingredients were available at the commissaries each day during the session. Typical suppers included chicken, potatoes, peas and milk, with all boys participating in food preparation.

Displays viewed by the scouts included two solar collectors that heated water next to a windmill which produced electricity, cooking of venison and groundhog over an open fire and in a deerskin smokehouse, and a solar cooker capable of reaching a temperature of 400 degrees Fahrenheit by using energy from the sun.

Jamboree entertainment included a stage show presented by the National Jamboree Band, an 85-piece orchestra featuring top scout musicians from all over the country, and the Country Current, a bluegrass group from the Navy.

The Jamboree campsite covered over 2,639 acres of rolling Pennsylvania countryside.

Life Term In Rape Case

Roy Lee Barnes, 22 of Farmville was found guilty in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday on charges of rape, armed robbery, felonious entry, crime against nature, and assault with a deadly weapon, in connection with the rape of a 23-year-old Route 8, Greenville woman January 11.

Judge J. Herbert Small sentenced Barnes to life imprisonment for rape and armed robbery, two years in jail for assault with the sentence to run concurrently with the life term, and 10-years prison for the felonious entry and crime against nature charge with that sentence to begin at the expiration of the life term.

Barnes and four other men allegedly forced their way into the woman's home and beat and assaulted her.

Two of the others have been tried, found guilty and handed long prison terms for their participation in the assault. Another has pled guilty to charges against him, while the fifth man has yet to be tried.

GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION HOT/DRY WEATHER BULLETIN

During long, hot, dry weather periods electric and water facilities must operate at maximum capacity, especially during peak use hours. Electric usage is highest between 4 p.m. and 8:00 p.m., on weekdays. Peak water usage also occurs on weekdays and the critical period is from 5:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m., when lawns and plants are being watered. You can help to reduce peak usage as follows:

- Electric:
1. Set your air conditioning thermostat at 78 degrees or higher and leave it there until after 8:00 p.m.
 2. Cook out more often. It's fun and it saves energy.
 3. Make indoor meals cool meals, such as salads or cold cuts.
 4. Wait until late in the evening or early the next morning to turn on your dishwasher.
 5. Do your laundry in the morning.
 6. If you are not watching TV or using a lamp, turn it off.

- Water:
1. Limit lawn and plant watering during weekdays as much as possible.
 2. Do all heavy lawn sprinkling and plant watering during the weekends, from Friday night through Sunday night.

These Steps Will Help To Ease The Load On Our Electric and Water Facilities, and in the Long Run Help To Keep Costs Down.

Prepping For The PGA Championship

Watson, Others Lose Golf Clubs

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson was using a different set of clubs today in his quest for a third major tournament title this year—the 59th PGA Championship.

Watson has won five 1977 tournaments, including the Masters and British Open, with a set of clubs declared illegal Wednesday because the grooves in the irons exceeded legal limits in width and spacing. He had voluntarily asked that they be inspected.

Watson and Ray Floyd and Gary Player, who also had several clubs disqualified, were among a handful of players in the field of 141 who had requested a ruling on their clubs by Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the PGA tour, on the eve of the PGA Championship at the drought-stricken Pebble Beach Golf Links.

After the initial publicity, other players brought their bags to Mangum for an inspection and he found that at last five others were carrying clubs that did not meet the specifications. Those players included Tom Weiskopf and Kermit Zarley, with illegal pitching wedges, Hale Irwin with illegal eight and nine-irons and John Lister and Floyd Thomson, each with several illegal clubs.

Mangum said the interest of the players was generated as a result of George Burns being disqualified after the second round a week ago at Hartford, Conn., after he had requested an official inspection of new clubs he was using. They were found to exceed the legal limits.

Mangum said the rules permit grooves to be no wider than 35-1,000ths of an inch across the entire groove and to be no closer together than three times the width.

"It's the nature of the sport that the players police themselves," said Mangum, who also noted that Watson had a similar set of clubs ruled illegal a year ago in Houston after requesting an inspection.

Officials said Watson's previous victories would not be affected by the ruling. Watson is using the same clubs with which he won the 1975 British Open, ones which have lighter shafts than the irons declared illegal.

His main regret is that the sand wedge in the set he has been using for the last 14 months also was considered to have grooves too deep.

"I can always get a set of irons," he said. "But the sand wedge I'm using is not mine to keep. I borrowed one from Leonard Thompson."

Watson said he didn't think the lighter shafts would affect his play.

Bosox Extend Streak To 11

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer
Mix together two of baseball's best pitchers in Boston's Fenway Park and most the time Fenway Park will emerge as the winner.

"When the wind is blowing out like tonight, you see some crazy things happen here," Boston Manager Don Zimmer said Wednesday night.

The only thing which didn't seem out of the ordinary in the Red Sox' 11-10 victory over the California Angels was Boston's victory. It was the Red Sox' 11th straight win, the longest in the American League this season, and extended Boston's longest winning streak since 1950.

The game, which had been billed as a pitching duel between California southpaw Frank Tanana and Boston ace Luis Tiant, was anything but that.

Both pitchers had entered the game without surrendering a run in their last 16 innings of work, but both were hit hard. Tanana gave up five runs in as many innings, while Tiant was battered for six runs on 10 hits in five innings plus.

In other American League action, Cleveland defeated Chicago 6-1, Detroit beat Milwaukee 5-3, Kansas City nipped Texas 4-3, Baltimore edged Seattle 5-4, New York whipped Oakland 6-3.

Indians 6, White Sox 1
Wayne Garland fired a five-hitter for his fifth consecutive complete game as Cleveland defeated Chicago to snap a six-game losing streak.

Garland, who struck out two and walked three, continually forced the White Sox to hit the ball on the ground. First baseman Andre Thornton recorded 16 putouts, while the Indians' outfield handled only four fly balls.

Tigers 5, Brewers 3
Jack Morris recorded his first major league victory and Ron LeFlore and rookie Steve Kemp combined to drive in five runs as Detroit defeated Milwaukee for the third time in four days.

Don Joshua went 5-for-5 with two singles, a pair of doubles, and his sixth homer of the season, while scoring twice for the Brewers.

Royals 4, Rangers 3
Frank White's two-out two-run single off shortstop Bert Campaneris' glove in the fourth inning produced the go-ahead runs as Kansas City won for the sixth time in its last eight games.

Texas starter Gaylord Perry struck out 13 as the Rangers had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Orioles 5, Mariners 3
Ken Singleton smacked a three-run homer and Elliot Maddox blasted his first home run of the season with one man runner aboard as Baltimore won its third straight game to remain in second-place 2½ games behind Boston in the American League East.

Lee Stanton and Carlos Lopez homered for Seattle in a game which was delayed one hour and 40 minutes at the start and for another 19 minutes in the eighth inning.

Yankees 6, A's 3
Cliff Johnson's two-run double keyed a five-run first inning as the New York handed Oakland pitching ace Vida Blue the earliest knockout of his career and sent the A's to their 12th consecutive loss.

Graig Nettles walloped his 26th homer of the season in the second inning in support of Ron Guidry's ninth victory in 15 decisions.

Group Studying Plan To Limit NCAA Berths

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — An 11-member NCAA executive committee began a two-day meeting here today to ponder a plan that some athletic conferences fear will damage their basketball programs.

The proposal would reduce from 18 to 16 the number of conferences whose winner automatically gets a berth in the NCAA Division I basketball tournament, and would assign them to only the 16 conferences with the best tournament records over the past five years.

The plan was approved earlier by the athletic association's basketball committee, and the executive committee's approval is all that remains for the restrictions to take effect with the 1980 tournament.

"On the surface it appears it favors the independent schools," said Robert C. James, Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner and a member of the executive committee. "But our feeling is that it opens more opportunity for second place teams in the conferences."

Big winners in college basketball, such as the ACC which has a 15-7 record in the past five tournaments, would risk little with the change. And James thinks it would improve the quality of the tournament. "If you're really in earnest about getting the 32 best teams, this is the way to move," he said.

But for conferences whose schools have smaller budgets and lesser tournament records, or for universities trying to strengthen their basketball program, the new rule could effectively throw their teams in with the independents to compete for the remaining 16 berths.

"It's basing a whole conference on the outcome of one tournament game, a game that might have gone into triple overtime and been decided by one point," said Kenneth Germann, head of the Southern Conference.

The Southern, whose conference champions have brought home four wins in tournament appearances during the past five years, would still get an automatic bid under current standings. But seeing the conferences now on the endangered list for tournament berths scares Germann.

Four Adults Provide All Services In Small Town

By JAMES R. SCHIFFMAN
LOST SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — This prairie hamlet, recognized as the smallest incorporated town in America, is a place where government service by all four adult residents is essential.

It's not that the town's two regular monthly bills present such a problem. But as Lost Springs Mayor Robert Stringham said: "We all have to take part in the community or else there wouldn't be any."

Each of the four adults holds some kind of office. Vincent Price, who runs the converted bank that now is a bar, is the town councilman. His wife, Leda, is the treasurer, and Stringham's wife, Clara, is the postmistress.

Mrs. Stringham says she would happily serve in a town position but for federal rules which forbid such dual service.

In addition to the four adults, three Stringham children and two Price offspring roam the town's main street. But officially the population is 11 because two Stringhams have maintained their residence, even though they are stationed in Germany with the armed forces.

Keeping the town's bills paid is not that "taxing," Stringham said. The only regular monthly outlays go for electricity to power three street lamps and for fire insurance on the town hall.

Smaller incorporated towns actually exist but Lost Springs was selected as a symbol of American small towns and was called the smallest incorporated town in the U.S. by the Bicentennial Commission.

Stringham, 53, lived for 25 years in Casper, a city of about 40,000. In 1969, he decided he'd had enough of metropolitan ways.

"I'm showing partiality to the smaller towns," he said. "They feel more friendly. There isn't the hustle and bustle of the bigger towns."

Friendly, maybe; but harmonious, no. Vincent Price expressed a degree of animosity toward the mayor, saying he had the absentee Stringhams register to vote to break an electoral standoff between the two families.

Hard feelings also exist over the two liquor licenses allotted the town. They used to be divided between the two families but now Price owns both. The state forced Stringham to relinquish his claim on one because he had never applied for it, Price said.

This pocket of existence consists of four buildings: the Stringham's wood frame store with upstairs living quarters; the Price's bank-turned bar, also with an adjoining family area; an old Ford garage; and the town hall.

The mayor doesn't even work in the town. He commutes to Manville, a town of 100 persons about 16 miles east, and runs a grocery while his wife takes care of the combination grocery, gas station, and post office in Lost Springs.

Lost Springs is an old mining town 50 miles from the South Dakota border in east-central Wyoming. It rests in a hardly discernible valley wedged between slightly rolling prairie hills. It is cattle grazing country and in the early part of the century was the site of underground coal mines.

"There really isn't a whole lot of entertainment or anything like that," the mayor said. "Being out and away from everybody is relaxing."

For his 19-year-old son,

Arthur, it's more than just that. "You can have whatever you want — horses, pigs. You can ride a bike or take a walk. That way you can hear everything, the birds and the frogs and everything."

"You can learn more things in one day here than in Casper. You can do more than you can do in a big city."

Arthur said he might eventually move to Manville, but never to a real city.

"The people from the bigger towns, man, that's weird," he said in an expression of cultural shock. "In Denver, everybody's running around driving like mad. Out here, you drive slow and do what you want."

Clara Stringham says travelers who take the dirt turnoff to see America's smallest organized community invariably ask whether townspeople get lonely.

"No," she tells them. "I have a lot of work to do and in the meantime people stop by. There's always neighbors to visit near town."

"We have slow times but that's when I catch up on housework."

The population of Lost Springs peaked at about 400 sometime between 1916 and 1923, a time when the town was a cattle shipping and mining center, Stringham said.

The town then boasted a schoolhouse, a railroad spur and all the trappings of a community on the iron line. But time made coal mining uneconomical and the railroad eventually closed the depot.

The spur was ripped out last year, Stringham said.

The only remnant of the railroad is an emergency telephone standing alone near the tracks. It can be used to alert dispatchers of trouble, Stringham said.

The spur was ripped out last year, Stringham said.

Find A Use For Unused Spaces

SEATTLE (AP) — The "space doctors" have been consulted to diagnose a disease affecting two firms' public plazas.

The symptom: not enough loiterers.

The Project for Public Spaces has "cured" several people problems in New York City in the past; one PPS success, Atlas Court at Rockefeller Center, is jammed by pedestrians at all hours of the day.

PPS has been called in to examine Seattle First National Bank Building's plaza and another at the new Federal Building.

Sea-First is anxious to turn its formal plaza into a pleasant public space. And Don Miles of Seattle, a cofounder of PPS, says he's curious to discover why, despite "heroic design efforts," the Federal Building plaza isn't used more.

PPS consultants have been dubbed the "space doctors" because they try to find out what makes one public space more attractive to pedestrians than others.

PPS says trees and benches aren't necessarily the answer.

Through the use of time-pulse photography, PPS examines traffic patterns within the space in question. Time-lapse telescopes hours of action into a few minutes and peak periods and social habits become apparent.

The firm spent several weeks recently photographing the Sea-First plaza and is now analyzing the results.

Miles doesn't know yet what the firm will find, but said the results so far have been surprising.

The filming technique was used with considerable success when analyzing the nonloitering problems of Atlas Court, said Miles and another cofounder, Robert Cook.

PPS film showed the courtyard was being used, but mostly during the lunch hour.

People leaned against the walls and some low-placed signs. The planter ledge around the base of the Atlas statue was being used as a narrow and somewhat uncomfortable bench, Miles said. Planter foliage was being ruined.

Using this information, PPS recommended redesigning the planter to include a bench. Railings were installed to accommodate the leaners and signs were raised.

"The impact was incredible," Miles said. Usage more than doubled and there no longer is one peak period.

"There's nothing worse than space designed for pedestrians with no pedestrians present," Cook added.

"It's a little like an empty church."

See Marijuana As Non-Toxic

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
RESEARCH TRIANGLE
PARK, N.C. (AP) — There's a good reason you're not as likely to get cancer from smoking marijuana, cigarettes as you are from smoking the tobacco variety.

Wall is vice president for chemistry and life sciences of the Research Triangle Institute, where researchers have literally made a science of consuming and savoring the effects of marijuana.

"You can't chain-smoke marijuana," says Dr. Monroe E. Wall, who ought to know as well as anybody.

The verdict on the drug is not in yet, Wall says, but studies here and elsewhere so far have failed to produce evidence of the dire results marijuana critics have feared.

"You cannot put your finger on any definite deleterious effects," Wall says. "We've subjected very heavy smokers to a battery of tests. This is a non-toxic drug. You can't kill yourself with it."

But that is as close as Wall is willing to come to an endorsement of "pot," which he says can leave traces in the body of the user for days.

Heavy alcohol use is probably more damaging than heavy marijuana use, Wall says, but the body cleanses itself of alcohol fairly quickly. Moderate alcohol use may be less dangerous than moderate consumption of marijuana.

"The long-term effects may be more subtle," says Wall.

Guinea pigs, human and otherwise, for marijuana research here smoke "pot" grown in Mississippi and shipped under tight security to the institute, where it is stored in a vault looked after by several police and sheriff's departments.

"There's never been an iota of it lost," Wall says.

Cloth Mulch Is Biodegradable

GARFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — A home and garden products company is introducing a new type of mulch made from nonslip, biodegradable cloth.

The manufacturer says it controls weeds, speeds up the growth of produce, modifies soil temperature and conserves soil moisture and prevents root injury.

The product comes in 15- and 30-foot rolls, each 22 inches wide. The smaller roll covers 27.5 square feet, the larger one, twice as much.

(Staple Garden Ground

Garden Products, a division of tin capsules, intravenous solution, aerosols and of course in tightly-rolled cigarettes.

Volunteers are carefully screened in accordance with special Drug Enforcement Agency regulations. All must have smoked marijuana previously and any women selected must be incapable of pregnancy, since the Food and Drug Administration believes the drug may be harmful to unborn children.

The volunteers are supervised closely, and they generally stay in a hospital unit for 24 hours after the marijuana or derivative has been administered.

A few good things are known about the drug. It has been proven effective in treating glaucoma, for example. Some studies in Argentina have shown it may be helpful as an anti-convulsive agent.

But Wall says researchers need the research with human volunteers to learn the facts about marijuana, because "animals and humans don't always transform a drug the same way."

Cowgirl Job Is Weekend Affair

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Once a week, 18-year-old Susan Seger stuffs her dark brown hair under a baseball cap, puts on faded jeans and mounts her colt for a sharp departure from her weekday office job.

Her Saturdays this summer have been spent ramrodding cattle into pens for a local livestock company, her part-time work sometimes extending past midnight when cattle sales are heavy.

"I'd much rather be doing something outside," she said. "I get a lot of enjoyment out of it and, of course, I get paid for it. And it's a good place to break a young colt."

Miss Seger, a student at Coffeyville Community Junior College, said she finds satisfaction in the cattle pens, despite the raucous steers she sometimes encounters, the pungent manure in the pens and the salty language of some of the male cowpokes.

"Now, I'm just one of the guys," she said, grinning. "I wouldn't want to be treated like some crazy girl."

Cattle, she said, "are really just as scared of you as you are of them." But she still winces at the thought of an experience with a bull that almost pinned her against a fence when she was on foot. Her rescuer pulled her over the fence by the shirt collar.

Monday through Friday, Miss Seger is at a desk in the cost-accounting department of a manufacturing firm, totaling charges for bills on computer sheets.

She said she is interested in office work as a career, but hopes that part of her future includes the outdoors. One of her goals is to ride her barrel-racing horse in rodeos.

Once she has her horse broken in, Miss Seger said, she may give rodeo competition a try. She said she has placed in barrel-racing events in small contests, but has never tried the big-league circuit.

"It's a hard thing to do," she said. "I don't think I could do it. I'd probably go broke trying."

Waste Disposal Discussion Set

Pitt County Commissioners and members of the County Planning Board will meet Monday at 5:15 p.m. in the Law Library of the Pitt County Court House to discuss the question of solid waste disposal in the county.

Persons interested in solid waste disposal systems for the county are welcomed to attend the session.

Clown Alley To Begin Season

The new season of the Greenville Clown Alley will begin Tuesday, Aug. 16, with a meeting to be held upstairs at the Elm Street gym.

Persons attending the meeting will be instructed in makeup, costumes and tricks. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting. For further information call 756-3688.

Some Do Well In Black Africa

By JOHN BORRELL
LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Punctually at four each Saturday afternoon, tea and cucumber sandwiches appear in the clubhouse as cricketers troop off the field for the game's ritual afternoon break.

Later, when the day-long game ends with the sun sinking fast behind the nearby hills, the cricketers gather around the bar to drink beer and swap stories.

The scene comes not from a Constable painting of an English village green but from the heart of black Africa where, despite the political changes of the past decade, whites still maintain the traditions if not the spirit of the long since ended colonial era.

In Zambia, as elsewhere in independent black Africa, whites tend not to mix with the country's blacks, preferring to retain their identity through games like cricket and through clubs like the Ngewere Club near here which, although open to all, remain predominantly white.

At the exclusive Ndola Club in Zambia's copper belt, British newspapers and periodicals sit prominently in the magazine rack and the menu has not changed for a decade. Women have a separate entrance and members sign chits for their drinks in time-honored colonial fashion.

High membership fees and the clinical atmosphere of the club have dissuaded all but a handful of black Africans from joining.

"Life hasn't changed much for us," said one old timer at the bar who came to Zambia in 1950, 10 years before independence.

"We carry on pretty much as we used to and the government doesn't interfere."

Despite the lack of racial mixing there appears little friction between the country's 30,000 whites and five million blacks.

One reason for this is undoubtedly that President Kenneth Kaunda has long urged his countrymen to eschew the kind of racialism practiced in colonial days. He has on several occasions intervened in cases where whites have been discriminated against.

Another is that despite efforts to Africanize jobs, whites are still needed to run many branches of industry, commerce, and the government itself. "They still need us at the moment and that helps tremendously," said one farmer at the Ngewere Club. "When they find they don't need us their attitude may change."

The country's 300 white farmers produce a third of Zambia's corn, most of its beef and poultry products and a large proportion of the vegetables sold in city markets.

A further reason for the racial harmony is that most of the hardline whites who threatened armed insurrection when Britain was preparing Zambia for black rule, have long since left the country.

Their places have been taken by contract workers from Britain and other European countries who come to Zambia for two or three years to save money for a house or a plot of land at home.

Many do very well out of their stints in Zambia. All expatriates are allowed to repatriate one-third of their salaries and most get generous allowances of up to 25 per cent of their salaries at the end of their contracts.

Schooling allowances are equally generous. Expatriates are allowed up to $3,000 a year to educate their children abroad and many send their children to schools in England.

"I have three children in the best public (private) schools in England," said one senior banking official. "If I was working in England they would all be going to state (public) schools and getting an inferior education."

The life style of most whites is, in many ways, similar to that enjoyed by whites in neighboring Rhodesia and in South Africa.

They live in spacious bungalows in tree-lined streets, own two cars and have servants to do the housework.

"The only difference between here and South Africa," said one businessman, "is that you might have black neighbors. But that doesn't worry anyone." However, despite the good life enjoyed by most expatriates Zambia is finding it increasingly difficult to attract the skilled whites it needs.

The lack of skilled white labor is affecting production at the economically vital copper mines and in other industrial concerns. Worried government officials are now casting the recruiting net to previously untapped places like India and Sri Lanka.

Those who do come believe that their future lies not in Africa but in Europe or North America.

"It is a good life here but it is dangerous to lose sight of the fact that we are really only guests in someone else's country," said a mining engineer who has spent 20 years in Zambia.

"We are only here because they need us to do things they can't do at the moment. But they will be able to do them one day and then it will be time to pack up and go home," he said.

And when the whites do leave, tea and cucumbers at afternoon cricket breaks will be a thing of the past since black Africans have not taken to the game.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Preparing the Patient for Anesthesia

I was given a general anesthesia for surgery on my face. When I came back to my room I told my nurse that I vividly remembered that people in the operating room were talking, also that I was scared by something that someone said. She pooh-poohed this as did my boy friend. Could all of this have been my imagination? — Miss D.K., N.H.

Dear Miss K.: The fear of anesthesia is frequently greater than the anxiety about the surgery. Modern anesthesiologists and surgeons devote a lot of time to preparing patients for this experience.

Despite the preparation, many patients come into the operating room tense and afraid, even with the medication given to calm them. Every word they hear during the early stages of falling asleep can become part of their memory of the experience itself.

It has been shown by well-documented studies that some patients hear and remember speech even during the deeper levels of anesthesia. Newer procedures in the operating room now call for total quiet, especially during the beginning of anesthesia.

Our son has been diagnosed as having a "horseshoe" kidney. We'd like your added assurance that this will not affect his health as he grows older. — Mrs. H.B., S.C.

Dear Mrs. B.: You have my assurance that thousands of people with horseshoe kidney, a birth deformity, live in good health and without any impaired kidney function.

This birth abnormality occurs in about one out of every 500 people. Normally, there are two kidneys, one on each side. With the "horseshoe" kidney, both sides are joined by a band of tissue. There is no more likelihood of infection than with normal kidneys.

I don't play tennis, but I've got a tennis elbow. — Mr. W.A., R.I.

Dear Mr. A.: "Tennis elbow" is simply the lay term for a type of bursitis that is found in the elbow. Rotation of the wrist and the elbow during work or play can be responsible for the painful bursitis.

Working a drill press or the constant use of a screw driver can cause as much injury as can vigorous tennis playing.

It would be wise to inspect your daily activities to see if you can't find some reason for the condition.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Says Vehicles Are Scattering Litter

Pitt County Planner Larry Hurlocker said today that "during the past few weeks, the problem of solid wastes blowing from vehicles on their way to the Pitt County Sanitary Landfill has drastically increased."

Hurlocker said these wastes litter the highways and roads and "become eyesores, detracting from the communities' beauty." He added that the majority "of this litter is lost from vehicles which do not have their loads covered or secured to prevent loss."

The planner emphasized that under regulations governing the disposal of refuse in the county, "no vehicle shall be allowed to deposit waste at the landfill unless the waste is enclosed in the vehicle or otherwise covered by some effective means."

He said effective means "are by heavy plastic, canvas, or other materials which will not allow any wastes to leave the vehicle while transporting the load to the landfill."

Hurlocker noted that penalties for failing to comply with the ordinance can result in imprisonment for not more than 30 days or a $100 fine or both.

The official urged, "Before leaving for the landfill, make sure your load is secured and help everyone to solve this problem."

Collecting Dust To Save Water

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Post office trucks in the Sacramento Valley are collecting dust along with the daily mail in a move to save 32,000 gallons of water a month.

"It takes an estimated 50 gallons of water to wash a single vehicle," said Grant Noble, manager of retail sales and services of Sacramento's main post office. Noble reports that the U.S. Postal Service's Western regional office has ordered a ban on washing the more than 24,000 vehicles in 13 Western states, saving 1.2 million gallons of water a month.

As a safety measure, however, vehicle windows, lights and mirrors will be sponged regularly, Noble said.

Wilmington 10 Lawyer Still Pressing For Pardon

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wilmington 10 defense attorney James Ferguson emerged from a meeting with Gov. Jim Hunt Wednesday, saying he couldn't understand the governor's refusal to grant a pardon for his clients.

"I don't understand the governor's policy of waiting until all court appeals are finished," said Ferguson, a Charlotte civil rights lawyer who has represented the 10 since their 1972 trial for arson and conspiracy during racial violence in Wilmington, N.C.

"But be that as it may, exceptions have been made and we think this is an exceptional case," he said.

Ferguson and two other defense attorneys met for 45 minutes with Hunt in his Capitol Building office, after asking for the session. Afterwards, Hunt said he listened to their arguments, but had not changed his mind.

The governor has said he would not consider granting a pardon, or commuting their sentence, until all legal appeals are exhausted. The nine black men and a white woman were sentenced to a total of 282 years in prison for their part in the racial disturbances, and only the woman, who received the lightest sentence, has been paroled.

"I don't think the Constitution envisioned the governor just stepping in and taking over the matter while it's still in the courts," Hunt said.

Despite that position, Ferguson said he was "encouraged by the fact we had the meeting."

"We tried to impress upon the governor the urgency of the matter. He could not tell us what action he will take, but indicated a willingness to listen," Ferguson said.

Hunt said he did not believe the Carter Administration was pressuring him to act in behalf of the Rev. Ben Chavis and nine other defendants, despite a recent telephone call from an unidentified Justice Department official.

Hunt said the call was the only federal contact his office has received on the case, and that the caller wanted to remind Hunt that a pardon need not be granted to all the defendants, but could be granted to individuals.

The governor also said a group of black state legislators met with him to urge a pardon for the Wilmington 10 in the final days of the General Assembly in June.

"We've had a lot of reaction from people around the state who think they've received too much attention and got what they deserved," he added.

Hunt's legal counsel Jack Co-zort, who attended the meeting, said the defense lawyers told the governor that the sentences, which totaled 282 years for the 10 defendants, were unduly harsh.

"He listened," Cozort said of the governor. "He hasn't reached an opinion on that."

Also attending the meeting were James Fuller, a member of Ferguson's firm, and John Redmond, a New York lawyer for the United Church of Christ, which has paid legal fees for the 10.

Working On Doctorates

Raymond N. and Cheryl Tugwell Linville, former Greenville residents, are both entering the University of Iowa this fall.

Linville, who recently received a Master of Science degree in Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology from East Carolina University, will begin work on a doctorate degree in Neuro-linguistics at the University of Iowa at Iowa City. He will be a research assistant in the Department of Otolaryngology and Maxillofacial Surgery at the U. Iowa Medical School. A Winston Salem native, he received his B. A. degree in Psychology from ECU, also, and was president of the ECU chapter of National Student Speech and Hearing Association during graduate school.

Mrs. Linville, a Farmville native, taught at Falkland Elementary School and studied for her Master's Degree at ECU last year. She will be continuing work toward her Master's degree in education at U. Iowa.

SBA Approves Disaster Status

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced Wednesday that the Small Business Administration (SBA) had approved his request to declare 56 central North Carolina counties disaster areas because of drought damage to crops.

It was the fourth federal agency to respond to North Carolina requests for drought relief. Earlier, the Farmers Home Administration, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Economic Development Administration had approved such requests.

Applications for loans under the programs may be filed at the Sampson Agriculture Center in Clinton, the Wake County Courthouse in Raleigh, the Agriculture Center in Greensboro, and at additional locations in Charlotte and Greenville.

31 New Claims Of Brown Lung

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Industrial Commission reported that 31 new claims for compensation for brown lung were filed Wednesday.

Members of the Carolina Brown Lung Association brought a host of their members to Raleigh to file claims for workmen's compensation, which provides for payments to victims of industrial accidents or industrial diseases.

Lucy Taylor, president of the Roanoke Rapids chapter of the association, expressed "congratulations to the Industrial Commission and our sincere thanks" for making it easier for the members to file their claims through use of a simplified form and for arranging appointments so brown lung claimants can see a doctor.

Army Of Fire Fighters Assembled In California

By PETER H. KING
Associated Press Writer
BIG SUR, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of them have come from almost every one of the 48 mainland states. They are the firefighters.

They range from swaggering rookies lured by adventure to a hard-bitten veteran who grew up in the Los Padres National Forest, now ravaged by the two-week-old Marble-Cone fire. In their race against the 80-

000-acre inferno, the firefighters share only two traits: they want to protect the forest and they are tired, so tired.

R.A. Jones, 24, is an Arizona State University sociology maior in his first season as a firefighter. He struts about the fire line with a slug of chewing tobacco lodged in his lower lip, two canteens on his lousying belt and two bandanas sticking out of his silver helmet.

"I like going for it," Jones said. "That and the bucks. It's manly and it's fun. People say, 'Hey, wow, you're a firefighter.' That's cool." Short, blond and bandy-legged, Jones speaks with awe of flames shooting 200 feet into the air and emitting a roar which can be heard for eight miles. "At first it scared the hell out of me," he said between squirts of tobacco. "But now I'm getting used to it." — Wayne Mangum, a shy, 36-year-old foreman, tells of his 18-year career with the U.S. Forest Service while keeping an eye on his young crew manning a fresh fire line.

"When I first started, we either walked into them or rode a horse," said Mangum, who lives in Alpine, Ariz. Mangum's wife and child know summer means Dad could be gone for months at a time. This year he's already fought fires in five states. "Some years I am gone a lot and some years I'm not," he said with a slight twang. "When we leave we don't know when we'll be back. It's hard work, but I enjoy it. I've always liked the outdoors." —

Tommy Tomlinson of Chevelah, Wash., is a "hot shot," one of the firefighting elite who, unlike the khaki-trousered, yellow-shirted regulars, dress with scruffy flair. They are the troubleshooters who execute special maneuvers in the battles.

"We're all crazy," the 28-year-old Tomlinson said with a devilish grin. A firefighter for six years and a hotshot for two, he says he is happiest in the midst of a big blaze like the one near Big Sur.

"That's where it's at," he said. "It's an incredible rush. I couldn't work in an office."

Tomlinson modestly said his job "is not really that dangerous. I don't feel my life is in danger at all. And it's a good feeling knowing you're doing something good for the land."

Fritz Cahill is the man reporters turn to when questions crop up about the natural history of the Los Padres Forest.

A big man in his mid-50s with a weather-worn, friendly face, Cahill grew up in the Los Padres and can rattle off facts about wildlife and vegetation in the vast wilderness.

He knows, for example, that in the 1940-41 rainy season, 161 inches fell on the coast ridge just a few miles west of the Marble-Cone fire.

Cahill began as a temporary firefighter in 1948. He is now a Forest Service supervisor. "I fought the last big fire here 27 years ago," he said. "Spent 26 days on it."

Despite his experience with forests and fires, Cahill takes the Marble-Cone fire as a personal affront.

"It sort of makes me cry when I see it," he said, looking out over the smoke-shrouded ridges and canyons of the Los Padres forest. "That's because I was raised in it."

Claim Age Is Bias Factor

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Winston-Salem man says he was passed over by Western Electric for promotions while younger people, blacks and women with lower qualifications were promoted.

Thomas R. Nicholson, 43, who is white, filed suit in federal court in Greensboro, claiming he was rated outstanding among company planning engineers until last year, when his rating was lowered to marginal and he was demoted.

After he protested in letters to the U.S. Secretary of Labor and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, he was harassed by company officials, Nicholson said in the suit. He alleges he was assigned to a drafting job for which he was unqualified.

Nicholson seeks reinstatement to engineering duties, promotion to the highest level to which he would have been entitled, back wages and benefits and damages to be determined during the trial.

In another unrelated suit, Gerald E. Fink, 59, of Orlando, Fla., has also sued Western Electric. Fink claims he was fired because of his age after more than 16 years with the company in September, 1975.

In his suit, Fink says younger employees were offered transfers and job opportunities while he was not. He also says his dismissal deprived him of full retirement benefits, for which he would have been eligible if he had worked until December, 1978.

The suit asks that Fink be given back his job with back wages and benefits and seeks damages.

Holding Service Friday Night

The Rev. Jasper Tyson, choir, ushers and members of Allen Chapel Church will render services at Simpson Chapel Church Friday.

The service will start at 7:30 p.m. and is being sponsored by the Usher Board.

The public is invited to attend, according to the Rev. Matthew Best, pastor.

Being A Psychologist Said A Help In Casting

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is said actors are nuts. Does it help, then, for a casting director to be a qualified psychologist?

"Yes, it really does," says Dr. Jerold Franks, 33, who left full-time psychology for show biz four years ago and since July has been casting director for ABC's "Barney Miller" and "Fish" series.

"I think one of the things lacking in the industry is compassion understanding and empathy," the good doctor said. "We all go through a certain amount of rejection."

"But I think it helps to understand that actors have more rejection than anybody else because the competition is rougher. So this (a background in psychology) does help me a great deal."

Franks, of Bradley Beach, N.J., educated at Boston University and UCLA, says he got the show biz bug 14 years ago when, while still a student, he worked in Universal Studios tours division here.

He left that after getting his degrees and went to work as a psychologist at the Veterans Administration and in private practice here, he added. But in time, he returned to entertainment, first as an actors' agent, then as a casting director.

Why the shift?

"Well, when I was at the VA, I was dealing primarily with drug addicts and alcoholics, and I really got to the point of feeling very negative about people in general," Franks explained.

"It's difficult enough to deal with life without having all that depression thrown in your face."

"And so I decided to get back into it."

Franks estimates he interviews about 60 actors and actresses a week while "Barney Miller" and "Fish" are in production.

And, odd as it may sound, he says the job-seekers don't differ much from folks applying for work in other fields. Some arrive exuding confidence, other display Grade-A jitters.

But as a group, he conceded, thespians are "much more insecure" than civilians "only because the competition is so much rougher. And once one makes it, it's harder to stay on top."

Reminder: The space shuttle Enterprise, which has stayed atop a Boeing 747 jet for several months of airborne piggy-back tests, will be on television Friday morning on CBS, NBC and ABC.

The networks plan to cover the first in-flight separation of the Enterprise from the big jet, and the space shuttle's landing in a dry lake bed near Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Weather and equipment willing, live pictures of the separation — at about 24,000 feet — will be provided from a NASA chase plane.

ABC's coverage, lasting an hour, starts at 11 a.m. Eastern time, while CBS and NBC will start their half-hour shows at 11:30 a.m. EDT.

Annual Picnic Slated Friday

The annual picnic of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Sunday School will be held Friday at Atlantic Beach.

A bus will leave the church at 6:30 a. m. Non-members will be welcome to attend for a fee of $2.50.

tional power, North rightly decided to bid on in the hope of making a vulnerable game rather than settle for a minuscule penalty.

West led the ace of diamonds and shifted to his singleton club. Declarer won in dummy and now had to consider how to avoid losing two spades. One possibility was to finesse the jack, hoping that East had started with the K-Q, but that hardly seemed likely in view of East's preempt. If the spade honors were split, the only way to avoid losing two tricks was to engineer an endplay.

To make matters as difficult as possible for the defenders, declarer immediately led a low spade from dummy. The idea behind making the critical spade play early was to prevent East from unblocking the king or queen should he have started with a doubleton.

Declarer won the ace of spades, drew two rounds of trumps ending in his hand, and ruffed a diamond in dummy. The ace of clubs was followed by a club ruff, and the stage was set. A low spade was led from the table, and the defenders were helpless.

If East played low, West would win the queen of spades but would then be forced to lead a diamond, allowing declarer to ruff with dummy's last trump while discarding his remaining spade. But it would be no better for East to go up with the king of spades to take his partner off the endplay. That would set up declarer's jack and guarantee the contract.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. FINAL CHAPTER WALKING TALL

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to engage in all the little affairs of everyday living such as attending to home and family interests and activities. Get into errands and shopping needs that require your attention. Also, make sure you do the things that please a loved one and deepen the relationship.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study home well and know where to make improvements. Establish more harmony with those who dwell with you. Make sure you safeguard your reputation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get the information you need from proven sources and put it to good use. Try to communicate better with friends and relatives, partners in particular. Don't take chances with a hypocrite.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are able to handle financial matters and the budget very wisely now. Make needed repairs to property. Do something thoughtful for a loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study health and appearance well and try to improve both through wise treatments. Prepare yourself for busy days ahead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to go after personal aims that mean a good deal to you. Do only those business tasks that are important. Come to a real understanding with a loved one and increase happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get in touch with friends and show your devotion, deepen the relationships. Accept invitations extended to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal time to handle public affairs with efficiency and precision and gain the respect and approval of others. Take care of credit affairs now.

Death Now A Homicide

Wayne County sheriff's investigator N.R. Uzzell said before, the death of a 21-year-old retarded woman who died at O'Berry Center for retarded children "was being treated as a mysterious death."

"Now it's being handled as a homicide," he said.

An autopsy report by Medical Examiner Page Hudson estimated after chemical blood tests that Jo Ann King took 10 capsules of the pain killer Darvon within a few hours of her death.

Miss King, whose family lives in Durham, was scalded in a shower before she died, and it was assumed her death was related to the second and third degree burns she suffered.

Hudson's report says O'Berry physicians had prescribed four of the Darvon capsules daily.

Center director Dr. James Deverona said it would have been "next to impossible" for anyone to have administered a lethal dose of any drug from hospital supplies.

Deverona said the drugs are locked up and are dispensed a dose at a time by medical staff members.

Miss King's father, Tom King of Durham, said he was considering a lawsuit against the

Parapsychology Interest Began In Childhood

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Even though he was a small boy, Dr. J.B. Rhine remembers well an incident involving his mother. He sees it as his first glimpse of a science that he and his wife have made famous — parapsychology.

When he was 10, his mother traveled about 200 miles from their Pennsylvania home to visit relatives. Rhine remembers listening to his father read a letter from his mother. She said something was not right at home and she was coming home.

Indeed, Rhine's little brother had fallen from a tree and broken an arm. Somehow, his mother knew something was amiss.

"It was astonishing to us," Rhine recalls. "I was full of questions, but dad was a skeptic and tried to say it was just a coincidence. But I remember it quite well."

Drs. J.B. Rhine and Louisa Rhine have spent nearly a lifetime — 50 years of it, in Durham — studying the workings of the human mind and things the mind does that are not explainable physically. They have studied what kind of control the mind has over physical occurrences and how persons can be aware of something happening many miles away.

They continue their work today in spacious offices in Durham. No longer involved in teaching, the Rhines continue to research and document unusual psychic experiences, hoping to add to the knowledge they have already amassed.

J.B. and Louisa Rhine met each other, not through any association with parapsychology, but when J.B. moved onto the farm of Louisa's father.

"I didn't even know the word 'parapsychology,'" Rhine said. "After they were married in 1920, they both went to the University of Chicago where they both earned bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees in botany. They became interested in psychic phenomenon at the university. They went to lectures on the subject, including Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of fictional Sherlock Holmes, who lectured on spiritualism."

"We decided to look into claims of psychic power," he says. "With two of us, we thought we could keep our minds open."

They became interested in the work of Harvard psychologist Dr. William McDougall, who had reported psychic abilities, and followed him to Duke University.

"There was something in the stories of telepathy (sending messages in a manner other than physical)," he said. "We had looked into some of these stories. People thought what we were doing was strange. Radio was coming in about this time. People thought it was queer, too."

In the early 1930s, Rhine founded the Institute for Parapsychology at Duke. He says institute researchers could not get enough proof to support their beliefs that psychic phenomena were occurring among many people.

During many years of careful study, the Rhines have filed thousands of letters from people telling of psychic experiences. In 50 years at Durham, they have observed numerous incidents of physically unexplainable behavior, once considered by many to be witchcraft.

Rhine said a botany professor told of a woman in Ohio who borrowed a horse and buggy to go to the next town. "She had a dream that her brother was going to a hay mow in a barn and shoot himself. Her husband couldn't talk her out of it. They went to the barn and she was able to show them exactly where her brother would be. He had actually killed himself."

"This professor was teaching botany, but he always said he wondered how she knew. I thought to myself then, 'We must do something to find out about it.'"

"One-by-one, we will find out the reason for this," Rhine said. "All you have to do is live to 1,000 years and you'll find out. It's a very slow process."

McDougall, who had reported psychic abilities, and followed him to Duke University.

Fresh Interest In Chang, Eng

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — The latest development in the story of the original "Siamese twins" drew a new swarm of visitors to their gravesite this weekend.

The twins were in the news when a local historical society obtained the 1829 agreement that brought them to the United States for traveling shows.

A.B. Clark, a University of Maine professor and a descendant of the sea captain who discovered the twins, gave the agreement to the Surry County Historical Society this month for tax credits.

The twins — Chang and Eng Bunker — were born in Siam in 1811 and were named with the Siamese words for "left" and "right." Their mother was Siamese and their father, Chinese.

In 1829, a sea captain named Abel Coffin came across the boys and persuaded their mother that if they came to the United States and worked for tours, they could make a lot of money.

Coffin was right. The boys were a hit and toured Europe as well. They learned to speak English, adopted the name Bunker and became American citizens. On one of their tours they visited Wilkes County, where they settled in 1840.

Three years later they married sisters, Adelaide and Sarah Yates. For a while they lived in the Traphill Community, but later they moved to Surry County on farms about a mile apart southwest of Mount Airy, spending three days at a time on each farm.

After the Civil War, they toured again with P.T. Barnum's circus. But in 1870 Chang suffered a stroke and Eng had to support part of his brother's weight, so the shows stopped.

Chang died on Jan. 17, 1874.

Eng, joined to the body by a six-inch tube of cartilage about three inches in diameter, died a few hours later.

The Bunkers are buried in a graveyard a few miles south of Mount Airy off old U.S. 601. Their wives were later buried with them.

Election Bd. Meeting Set

The Pitt County Board of Elections will have a special meeting on Monday, Aug. 15 at 8:30 a.m. for the purpose of discussing the possible combination of the Chicod precincts into one precinct.

The merging of the precincts, the board suggested, would result in the elimination of two of the existing Chicod voting precincts and establish one polling place for the remaining precinct at Chicod School.

The chairman and vice chairman of the three Chicod precincts have been invited to attend the meeting and discuss the proposed change. Interested persons are also welcome to attend the session.

The meeting will be held at the Elections Office, 201 E. Second Street.

Homecoming At Church Sunday

The Rev. B. B. Felder will conduct the afternoon homecoming service at Oak Grove Baptist Church in Garysburg in Northampton County Sunday.

A bus for those congregation members who wish to accompany him will leave the church at 12:30 p.m.

Power Companies Warn Energy Program Costly

Reimbursement Is Said Less Than Jail Costs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Guilford County manager John Witherspoon says he may recommend that the Guilford County commissioners appeal the $8 per day which the state Department of Correction pro-burses them for housing prisoners sentenced from 30 to 180 days.

Witherspoon made the comment as he and two other county managers complained that the proposed state reimbursement is less than cost.

The comment came after David Blackwell, senior administrative assistant for the Correction Department, confirmed that the counties would be offered $8 per day to house the 30 to 180 day prisoners.

A law passed by the 1977 General Assembly to relieve prison overcrowding authorizes judges to sentence such prisoners to jails rather than state prison units. In the past, the state has taken all prisoners serving more than 30 days.

Blackwell said the state Department of Administration arrived at the $8 figure after studying figures showing that the cost to counties of housing prisoners ranges from $8 to $24 a day.

"Within the next four or five days, the local governments will receive contracts executed by Correction Secretary Amos Reed," Blackwell said. He said if any county rejects the figure, "we'll just have to go back and see what can be done."

Guilford County officials say that the $8 fee offered is more than $5 per day short of meeting the actual cost per day of keeping prisoners in the Greensboro and High Point jails.

"The way the law was finally passed, I'm not sure if we are going to have any real choice," Witherspoon said. "The impression certainly was given that they were going to negotiate with the individual counties and that the reimbursement was going to reflect the actual cost of operating the jail."

"I feel it would not cover expenses," said Garland Jones, the Wake County manager. He said that Wake County had notified the state that it had no room in its jail at present to house state prisoners. "We are just about filled to capacity," he said.

Mecklenburg County Manager Glenn Blaisdell said he would have to check to determine what his county's costs are, but "my recollection is they were higher than that."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Power company representatives are telling Congress that the Carter administration's energy proposals could cost consumers an extra $60 billion.

The Senate Finance Committee, continuing hearings on the President's plan despite a congressional recess, is hearing today from the utility officials.

The $60-billion estimate comes from the Edison Electric Institute, an organization representing private, investor-owned utilities. The institute based its estimate on what it says companies would have to spend on coal-burning equipment, the taxes they would have to pay for continuing to use oil and natural gas and the cost of installing new types of meters.

The House-passed version of the President's program, now before the tax-writing Senate committee, is intended to change how electricity is used while cutting the amount of oil and natural gas utilities consume.

Backers of the program say they don't know how much it would cost consumers. They say the proposed changes have never been tried all at once and add that local conditions would affect the program's price tag.

Under the plan, all utilities would be required to interconnect transmission lines to shift surplus power where it is needed.

Utilities would also be banned from offering discounts to large industrial users. Power to all customers would be priced the same, with rate cuts allowed only to low-income households.

Power used during periods of peak demand, such as late afternoon, would be more costly as an incentive to spread the use of power throughout the day and to make home insulation more practical. Meters would be installed to record when and how much electricity is used.

The administration and managers of the House-passed bill say an electricity network and the revised billing procedures would reduce individual power companies' needs to build more plants to handle peak demands that last only a few hours a day. The costs of new plants is frequently a big factor in utility company arguments for higher rates.

In testimony before the panel Wednesday, representatives of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler opposed taxes on gas guzzling cars, saying these models are the mainstay of low-and middle-income families that have only one car.

The automakers said other federal fuel economy standards scheduled to go into effect in 1981 were more realistic and would lead to greater fuel conservation.

Testifying before another congressional committee, Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary said Wednesday that a proposed California-Texas pipeline could transport Alaskan oil cheaply and efficiently to the Midwest. O'Leary told a House energy subcommittee that the government supports building at least one pipeline immediately.

Waste Disposal Talks Monday

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Monday, following a joint meeting with Pitt County Commissioners on a solid waste disposal program for the county.

The solid waste meeting is set for 5:15 p.m. in the Law Library at the Pitt County Court House. The Planning Board session will begin at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Monday night's meeting will replace the regular Wednesday meeting of the Planning Board.

Carowinds Free To Amy

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Two weeks ago, Amy Carter, her governess, a friend and several Secret Service agents were ushered in free to Carowinds amusement park which straddles the North Carolina-South Carolina line about 10 miles south of Charlotte.

Park officials waived the $7 per person entrance fee for the President's daughter and her party during a brief stop on the way from Washington to Plains, Ga.

News accounts of the Carowinds visit apparently raised the eyebrows of a Greensboro man who says he was rejected several months ago when he asked Carowinds officials to admit about 30 mentally retarded children free.

David P. Lipinski, director of adolescent and adult services for the Henry Wiseman Kendall Center in Greensboro, complained about the rejection this week in a letter to Tom Olds, public relations director at Carowinds.

"Our group is comprised of developmentally disabled individuals who are from low-to no-income families and our budget at the center includes no money for social outings," the letter said. "The Carter group would not have been burdened to pay the cost as our individuals would have..."

Olds explained Wednesday that the President's daughter and her group showed up with only an hour to go before the park closed on a rainy Friday night. Olds said it wasn't like "someone coming in and getting a free night on the park."

However, he admitted most people would not get in free on a rainy Friday night. "This was a decision made by management to make this available to a VIP (Very Important Person)," Olds said.

Lipinski said Wednesday his group did eventually get to the park, thanks to a donation to the center and a $2 discount off the regular ticket price of $7 from Carowinds.
