South Africa Peace Role Talk Extended

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young and British Foreign Secretary David Owen met for four hours this morning with Prime Minister John Vorster in their search for a peaceful settlement in Rhodesia, then scheduled another session for later today.

A British spokesman also said the two envoys' scheduled departure for Kenya Tuesday might be delayed.

Observers here took the announcement of a second round of talks and possible delayed departure as an indication the talks were not going smoothly.

Owen and Young, the American U.N. ambassador, were trying to enlist Vorster's help in getting Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to accept the new British-American plan to bring black rule to the breakaway British colony.

A negative editorial in the government-owned Zambia Daily Mail newspaper of Lusaka further underlined the difficulties faced by the two on their current mediation mission.

The newspaper said that because of the opposition of black African leaders "it cannot be said the present settlement proposals do have much chance of success."

Zambia is an important supporter of the black guerrilla movement in Rhodesia.

Shortly before the morning meeting began, police hastily removed a sprinkling of "Young is our enemy" placards in downtown Pretoria.

Vorster could probably force Smith to accept the plan since South Africa is the principal trade partner and military supplier of Rhodesia's white regime. But the South African leader has said repeatedly he would not put pressure on the Rhodesian whites although he would be willing to point out "alternatives" to their policies.

Latin Favor Treaty

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., recently returned from a two-week tour of South America with an assessment of reaction to the proposed Panama Canal treaty which conflicts with statement from Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Helms says Brazil, Chile and the region's major countries oppose the treaty. But Neal, who visited Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Brazil and Bolivia, says leaders of those countries favor the treaty, which would give Panama greater control over the canal.

"The general feeling among South Americans is that our continued presence in the Canal Zone represents the last vestige of colonialism in South America," Neal said. "It is very much resented there."

The White House has not released a list of countries officially in support of the treaty. But the Organization of American States announced Saturday that Panama, Chile, Argentina and the Dominican Republic have agreed to sign it Sept. 7.

Neal's discussion of his tour came in an interview with the Washington bureau of the Winston-Salem Journal.

"The Panama Canal issue came up everywhere we went, including times when we weren't meeting with government people, even when we were talking to people on the street," Neal said.

The North Carolina congressman traveled with a congressional delegation that met with heads of state from all six countries except Brazil and Bolivia. He said ranking officials from those two countries appeared to be speaking for their governments and favored the treaties.

The delegation's main purpose was to investigate the South American cocaine operations, which account for almost all the illegal cocaine in the United States.

Neal said agreements between the United States and South American countries are almost impossible to enforce, adding that the countries have little incentive to cut down on cocaine trafficking.

IT WAS BACK TO SCHOOL ... for Greenville school children this morning as the 1977-1978 academic year began. But at Third Street School where these children were hurrying to classes, it was back to school in two ways. In addition to the students begining a new year after summer vacations, the school itself was beginning a new year after being closed for repairs and renovations during the 1976-1977 school term.

Bert Lance Meets Carter Today For Budgetary Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance, accused of lacking the qualifications to be budget director, is meeting with the President to discuss a budget matter: how much the government can afford to pay its employees.

Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, was scheduled to meet with President Carter today in the Oval Office at the White House. An aide said Carter summoned Lance and two other advisers to talk about budgeting pay for civil servants.

The other advisers are Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Chairman Alan Campbell of the Civil Service Commission.

The meeting came one day after Sen. William Proxmire, who cast the lone vote against confirming Lance as budget director, said he would like to see Lance replaced — but that Lance should not resign at this time.

Proxmire spoke Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

On the other hand, Rep. Henry Reuss, chairman of the House Currency and Banking Committee, said Lance should continue in his job.

Reuss, a Wisconsin Democrat, said during a visit to Salt Lake City that Lance broke no laws — although there should be laws against some of the things he did.

"I wouldn't say he should resign, but of course if I had my way he wouldn't be head of the Office of Management and Budget," said Proxmire, also a Wisconsin Democrat and head of the Senate banking committee.

Noting the current controversy over Lance's financial dealings as a Georgia banker, Proxmire said: "If Mr. Lance should leave now, there might be a feeling he was drummed out for a lack of integrity, and he's a man of high integrity. But I do hope there might be a time when Mr. Lance can step aside."

In an investigation of Lance's dealings in recent years, the U.S. comptroller of the currency reported Aug. 18 that he had found what he called unsound banking practices, but cleared Lance of any criminal wrongdoing.

An Associated Press report last week disclosed that Lance pledged the same collateral for separate loans from two different banks. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell called it an innocent mistake.

The New York Times reported in its Sunday editions that Lance apparently failed to disclose all of his financial holdings and debts in a net-worth statement submitted to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee before it began his confirmation hearings in January.

Orderly Opening Of City Schools Reported Today

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The summer vacation period officially ended today for local youth and teachers as Greenville Schools reopened for the 1977-78 school year.

Schools Supt. Glenn Cox observed that "everything seems to be off and running this morning. We are real pleased."

Cox said that no problems had been brought to his attention regarding the opening activities today and he added, "as far as we can tell, things seem to be going real well."

According to the official, a check with the various schools in the system was scheduled for later in the morning to get an idea of attendance figures. He predicted that the opening day enrollment would "probably be as high...as we've ever had" due to the fact that East Carolina University classes have already begun and professors and their families are back in town.

Cox said that things were going well at Third Street School, which reopened for classes after a year of repairs and upgrading. He indicated that the situation at Third Street was "almost like opening a new school" with some things to work out before settling down to a routine.

Mrs. Esther Warren, the new principal at Third Street School, reported that "everything is going great this morning." She said that the student body participated in flag raising ceremonies as the newly renovated facility officially opened again for classes.

An open house was held at Third Street School on Sunday, Mrs. Warren said, and attendance was excellent for the whole session.

She cited no apparent attendance problems today and said that "everything is looking great."

Frank Davenport, who is beginning his first year as principal at Rose High School, also reported a smooth opening day and commented, "We met with each individual class this morning and found the students to be very responsive and, for the most part, very positive in their attitudes."

Davenport complimented the teachers and other staff members at Rose for "doing an excellent job on opening day."

The new principal added, "Based on what I have observed thus far, we are looking forward to a fine school year as we continue our efforts towards Southern Association reaccreditation." The principal reported that he did not detect any particular opening day problems this morning other than normal matters that are expected on the first day of school.

Today's opening involved an orientation session, according to Cox, with elementary students going home at 10:30 a.m., junior high getting out at 11:30 a.m., and Rose High School activities ending at noon.

Tuesday will be first full day of school with all normal activities, including lunches, getting underway, he reported.

Teachers reported back for pre-opening work on Aug. 22, Cox related, although "some had been working at least a week or two before that on their own."

Police Say Four Plotted Steal Presley's Body

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Four men who police say were plotting to steal Elvis Presley's body and hold it for ransom were arrested early today outside the cemetery where the rock 'n' roll singer is entombed.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal reported that the men were carrying explosives with which they planned to blast open the mausoleum containing the body. Police would not comment on that report.

L. S. T. McCochren of the homicide squad said in a statement that police had received confidential information several days ago that a group of persons planned to break into Presley's mausoleum at Forest Hills Cemetery, take the body and hold it for ransom.

Officers from the department's tactical unit staked out the suburban Memphis graveyard. On Saturday, McCochren said, suspects were seen in the area of the cemetery, located on Elvis Presley Boulevard. He said the men were apparently making a trial run.

At 12:21 a.m. today, he said, officers arrested three men in a car near the Forest Hills gates and took a fourth man into custody outside the cemetery. McCochren declined to say whether any of the four entered the cemetery or when they would be arraigned. He said they might be charged later today.

The homicide department is handling the case because the investigation has to do with removal of a body, he said.

Deputy Chief John Molnar said the men were arrested for investigation of attempted burglary.

The Commercial Appeal, reporting that explosives were confiscated during the arrests, said a cemetery employee had told the newspaper that the suspects planned to blast open the mausoleum. The newspaper said police reported the quantity of explosives found did not appear sufficient to gain access to the tomb's interior.

A Forest Hills security guard said three policemen arrived at the cemetery at about 8 p.m. Sunday and told him to watch the front gate while they guarded the mausoleum.

Molnar said that as far as he knew no extortion threat was made.

Presley, who was 42, was entombed Aug. 18, two days after his death from a heart attack at his home, Graceland Mansion.

Fishing Spear Pierced Midsection; Boy Lives

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — His mother says it's "a miracle by God" that 13-year-old Andrew Odom survived being pierced by a four-foot, barbed fishing spear.

Odom was in fair and stable condition late Sunday at Bethesda Memorial Hospital after surgeons removed the spear from his midsection in a four-hour operation.

"God guided that spear through him," said Malveretta Odom, Andrew's mother, who is a registered nurse. "It could have hit five major organs."

Andrew and his family had gone for an outing Saturday evening on Beer Can Island, just south of Boynton Inlet on the Intracoastal Waterway in southeastern Florida.

Andrew had gone into the water about 10 feet from shore, police say, when he spotted a fish and asked a younger sister on shore to toss over his spear gun. She picked up the weapon and stood atop a tree trunk extending into the water. But as she walked toward Andrew, the girl slipped and tossed the gun at the same time, police said.

The heavy elastic trigger mechanism went off and the spear flew into Andrew's midsection, with the point running clear through his body, resting in an area just below the rib cage.

Mrs. Odom, hearing cries of the terrified sister, found Andrew still in the water leaning against the log.

He cried: "Mother, the spear has gone clear through me," the mother relates.

"He kept saying, 'Mommy, am I going to die?'" said the mother.

"He wanted me to pull the spear out," she said, "but as a registered nurse I know it was the worst thing I could possibly have done."

The youngster was rushed to Bethesda with the spear still in him. A surgical team carefully opened his entire midsection to remove the spear.

A hospital spokesman said the spear, had "missed the major arteries and stomach by a hair's breadth."

Begin Hearings On Coastal Act

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — Hearings begin today in Carteret County Superior Court on a suit challenging the North Carolina Coastal Area Management Act of 1974.

Property owners in Carteret and Onslow counties on the coast have filed suit against the state department of Natural Resources and Community Development and the North Carolina Coastal Resources Commission.

The landowners say state guidelines for land use planning are too rigid. They also say state agencies have superseded their constitutional authority in the matter.

LOOKING AHEAD
NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford has granted an interview to the New York Times for publication upon his death, Newsweek magazine says.

'More Relaxed'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is telling President Carter that Chinese leaders are confident, secure in their power and more relaxed than past visitors have found them, says a knowledgeable administration official.

"What comes back from China reinforces the feeling we had at the outset — that this is a very propitious time for renewed contact at the highest level," said the official. But he said there are no plans for Carter to follow Vance to Peking in the near future.

The informant, who declined to be identified, gave an assessment of Vance's report to Carter late Sunday on his four-day visit to Peking last week.

Full diplomatic recognition of Peking's communist government remains at the end of "a long road," the source said. "It's an ultimate goal," the official said, "but results may not be immediately apparent."

In a statement issued by the White House, Vance and the President said they anticipated "additional constructive meetings ... (with the Chinese) in the weeks and months ahead."

One Killed, Five Persons Injured In 3-Car Wreck

WEEKEND WRECK . . . Rescue personnel and firemen work to free the body of Charles Merle White, of New Bern, who was killed early Sunday morning. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

By Tommy Forrest

A three car collision early Sunday morning left a New Bern man dead and five persons injured, one seriously.

According to Trooper A. G. Wright, Charles Merle White, of New Bern, was dead at the scene.

The trooper said the White vehicle rounded a curve on highway 43 about six miles south of Greenville, then it ran off the left side of the highway and pulled back onto the roadway, striking a car driven by Nathan Wayne Coward of Rt. 1, Vanceboro, which was headed north.

Passengers in the Coward vehicle were not reported injured.

Seconds after the first collision, a car driven by Donald Ray Purser of Vanceboro, headed south, struck the White vehicle in the right side. The force of impact nearly cut the White vehicle in half.

White, according to the trooper, was killed instantly from the second collision, while a passenger listed as Kevin Torrance, also of New Bern, was seriously injured. Purser, his wife Brenda, and two other passengers in the car received cuts and bruises, according to the officer.

Wright said that the White vehicle passed the Purser car shortly before the collision at a high rate of speed.

Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad, Winterville Rescue Squad, and the Black Jack Fire Department worked for about an hour to free White from the twisted wreckage.

Investigation into the 3 a.m. accident is continuing.

Determining the Start of Puberty

Our twin daughters are thirteen. I believe that their puberty is delayed, as was mine. Could you give me a clearer picture of what doctors consider to be the age of puberty? — Mrs. J.E.B., Neb. Dear Mrs. B.:

Puberty is really a sequence of growing events by which children, both boys and girls, pass into young adulthood. During puberty, the reproductive glands complete their development and start young people on the road to sexual reproduction. Sex hormones are released and the secondary sex characteristics occur.

In boys, the testis and penis increase in size. The pubic and facial hairs begin to appear and the voice becomes deeper. In girls, the breasts begin to increase in size. And the "menarche," or onset of the menses, occurs.

There are wide variations of time for the onset of puberty. It may start anywhere from 9 to 14. Menstruation usually begins near the end, not the beginning, of puberty.

The release of hormones is a highly complicated system. Any variation of the production of hormones may be responsible for the delay in the onset or progression of puberty.

If your doctor feels that there is any unusual delay in puberty, he may suggest a complete survey of the hormone balance in the blood. Should an imbalance be found, special hormones are sometimes given to accelerate the progress of puberty and to promote growth.

Sometimes young girls become socially "embarrassed" because they have not yet attained what they think is the critical criterion of womanhood. Discussion and reassurance are in order.

I'm 14 and I have freckles all over my face and shoulders and arms. Is there any way I can get rid of them? — P.A. Dear P.:

Remedial Order Expected On Prevention Of Salmonellosis

By MARK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal authorities are expected to order companies selling precooked roast beef to raise the temperatures of their ovens to kill the bacteria blamed for the salmonellosis which has hit four Northeastern states this summer.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture this week will order manufacturers to cook roast beef at 145 degrees Fahrenheit, a temperature high enough to kill the salmonellosis, officials said.

They said the U.S.D.A. decided to set the minimum temperature at 145 degrees after roast beef cooked at 130 degrees was found to be carrying salmonellosis which has struck residents of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut this summer.

A spokesman for the national Center for Disease Control said a temperature of 130 degrees was hot enough to cook the beef, but not hot enough to kill the bacteria.

One reason the beef was cooked at 130 degrees was that "many people like their roast beef rare," said Dr. Roger Feldman, head of the CDC's Enteric Diseases Branch.

CDC spokesman Don Berreth said some of the poisoning cases have been linked directly to beef imported from Australia and packaged by at least two of the American firms. It has not been determined whether all the companies had imported Australian beef, he said.

It was the third consecutive year that improperly prepared precooked roast beef sold in supermarkets and delicatessens was blamed for outbreaks of the bacteria, which causes diarrhea, cramps, chills and fever. This summer's first cases were reported in upstate New York in late June.

A study found 140 cases in the four states, none of them fatal, the CDC said. Investigators interviewed 63 victims and found 32 who ate precooked roast beef produced by at least six different companies.

Feldman said as many as 50 cases may go unreported for every person found to have the illness, which generally lasts no more than a few days. He said a large percentage of the victims were young children.

CDC officials said the companies were recalling the beef from the market. They said two of the firms were Holiday Provisions Co. of Philadelphia and Thumann Provisions Co. of Jersey City, N. J. The names of the other firms were not available.

Feldman said the salmonella usually is in the meat before the producers get it.

"It's in the feed the animals eat even before they go to the producers," he said.

Student Group In Costa Rica

ECU News Bureau

The Hon. Marvin Weissman, U. S. Ambassador to Costa Rica and Rev. Dr. Benjamin Nunez, rector of Costa Rica's Universidad Nacional recently met with 18 East Carolina University students as they began a semester of study at the Central American campus.

According to Dr. Robert Cramer of the ECU Department of Geography, who is accompanying the student group, the students "are experiencing an interesting and exciting semester."

This is the fifth student group ECU has sent for study at the Costa Rican campus, located near Heredia, Costa Rica, since the cooperative ECU-Universidad Nacional program was established in 1973.

Appointed To Post Of Student Opportunities

ECU News Bureau

Charles M. Dickens, Greenville area educator, has been appointed associate director of the Center for Student Opportunities at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

His appointment was announced by Dr. Zubie W. Metcalf Jr., director of the center.

Before joining the medical school staff, Dickens was principal of the Agnes Fullilove Middle School in Greenville for three years. He was educated at N. C. Central University, where he received the BS degree in biology and the MA in educational administration.

He will work specifically with students in the allied health sciences as well as medical students.

CHARLES M. DICKENS

Also, Dickens will collaborate with counselors in high schools, junior colleges and community colleges to recruit students for allied health studies.

The 37-year-old educator was director of federal programs for the Greenville City Schools before assuming the principalship. He spent five years as a classroom teacher in the Pitt County public school system before moving to Greenville.

Dickens was elected president of the local National Education Association (NEA) for 1977-78, but relinquished the post after accepting his present position. In 1972, he served as president of the North Carolina Association for Educators (NCAE).

He and his wife, Gloria, a Greenville public school teacher, are the parents of three children.

Pitt Alumni To Meet Tuesday

Baker-Edmundson Vows Solemnized On Sunday

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Pentecostal Holiness Church was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Elizabeth Ann Edmundson and Steve Martin Baker.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Edmundson of Farmville, and Mr. and Mrs. Cleave Silas Baker of Macesfield.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 3:00 p.m. A program of organ music was presented by Michael Taylor. Vocalists were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Tarboro and their selections included "I Can't Help Falling In Love With You," "The Hawaiian Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and re-embroidered chantilly lace. The fitted empire bodice featured a jewel neckline outlined in scalloped chantilly lace etched with seed pearls and full lantern sleeves. Chantilly lace adorned the bodice, trimmed the sleeves and encircled the cuffs. Chantilly lace bordered the organza ruffle of the gown.

The bride wore a re-embroidered chantilly mantilla with an illusion blusher attached to a lace caplet.

The maid of honor, Deborah Edmundson, sister of the bride, wore a full length light blue dress of polyester crepe with sheer floral sleeves. The gown featured an empire waistline and ruffled bodice.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roy G. Nash of Farmville, Mrs. Eugene Mills and Miss Joyce Wainwright. They were dressed in gowns of pink polyester crepe fashioned like that of the honor attendant.

The best man was Edgar Baker of Macesfield and ushers included Larry Pittman of Macesfield, Jackie Carroll of Raleigh, and Tony Edmundson of Farmville.

MRS. STEVE MARTIN BAKER

The mother of the bride wore a mint green full length dress of polyester crepe with an applique bodice. The mother of the bridegroom selected a beige full length dress of polyester crepe trimmed in lace.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jack E. Scott.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is employed at Earl's Auto Sales. The bridegroom, a graduate of South Edgecombe High School, is employed by Dan Allen Dragline Service.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the church parsonage.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of blue, pink and white daisies and candelabra.

Should Mother Alert Mother?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter goes around with a girl who brags about all the stuff she has shoplifted from stores. (She's taken jewelry, cosmetics, records and clothes.)

This girl is pretty and comes from a very nice family, and her parents can buy her anything she wants. She is a junior in high school, Abby.

Should I tell her mother? I'm afraid she will get caught and hurt her parents or herself if this continues. No name or town, please.

MRS. X

DEAR MRS. X: Of course you should tell her mother. If she were your daughter, wouldn't YOU want to know?

DEAR ABBY: You once printed a letter of advice to any woman who was in love with a married man. In it you stated what she should and should not expect from her married lover.

As I sit alone on my patio recalling the wonderful stolen hours I shared with my married lover, I ache with loneliness, and I think I could derive some comfort from that letter. It certainly rang a bell with me.

I know he loves me, but I can't compete with a wife and four children, a lovely home and a respectable name in the community. I know I'll never have him. I never meant for this to get so serious, but it's too late now. Maybe I deserve the pain. I knew better. Please try to find that letter and run it again. He calls me...

STARSHINE

DEAR STARSHINE: Here's the letter. I hope it helps:

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is in love with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sunday or holidays. Never call him at home. Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents, you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you that his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and she hasn't slept with him in 10 years.

Don't expect his wife to divorce him if she catches him. She knows that you aren't his first affair and won't be his last. Also, she's not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you.

However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate and find another man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and hasn't slept with him for 10 years.

Sign me...

HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: I'm a fellow who has let my hair grow down to my shoulders. Some people call me "miss." How can I let them know I am a man?

MANNY

DEAR MANNY: Grow a beard.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old son recently married his high school teacher, who is 39. These two had been secretly seeing each other for three years. She was married and had two children, but because she fell in love with our son, she got a divorce.

All this was done behind our backs. We didn't know a thing about it until they had been married for nearly a month!

Now that they are married, they want us to forget the past and accept them.

We love our son but find it difficult to forget the deceit and coverup that went on during the courtship.

How should we act now that they are married?

HURT PARENTS

DEAR HURT: Accept his wife and say nothing about the past. What was, was.

The Great Blue Jeans War

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Not every American man has a tuxedo, but almost every American woman and many American men own at least one pair of jeans.

"I think there's nothing young Americans know more about than their jeans," says Robert Lukey, vice president of Sedgfield, one of the nation's largest makers of denim jeans.

Now Sedgfield, and its major competitors — Levi Strauss, Lee, Wrangler and Sears — are engaged in what amounts to a war of survival. Despite the universal popularity of the indigo-colored duds that a gold miner first popularized more than a century ago, consumers are getting picky about what they buy.

Jeans, like everything else in the American marketplace, have gotten a lot more expensive than they used to be.

They've also gotten better, says Lukey, who spent months touring American cities and asking young people what they liked — and didn't like — about their blue jeans.

"You can't call jeans 'fashion' in the sense that they're new, but they're a standard of every wardrobe in America," Lukey said.

"Still they have drawbacks. The kids I talked to mentioned specific things like wrinkling, puckering at the seams, or twisting in the legs, the things that happen to all-cotton jeans."

Some other jean makers have tried to combat these weaknesses of 100 per cent cotton by manufacturing a blended cotton-and-polyester jean. The synthetic material reduces twisting, puckering and, of course, shrinks considerably less than all-cotton. But Lukey, and Sedgfield in the corporate sense, think the future of jeans lies in all-cotton and that the polyester-blend jean is on the way out.

"People who said a few years back the future of blue jeans is in a cotton-polyester blend infuriated me," Lukey says. "They said people didn't mind if their jeans were blends. I spoke with a variety of young people and the vast majority of them said they'd prefer jeans to be made of all cotton."

Aside from the 'back-to-nature' kick that seems to be sweeping the fashion and clothing world, all-cotton jeans have practical advantages too, Lukey says.

"Cotton jeans wash clean, polyesters don't. The resins in polyester retain soil and dirt so that they can never really be perfectly clean once they get dirty. Cotton does wash clean. "It also breathes, that is, allows air to come through and thus feels cooler to wear in hot weather," he said.

"Air can't get through polyester nearly as well."

"Finally, I think the over-riding factor in favor of the 100 per cent natural jeans is that they last nearly forever. That's because of their basic construction. A cotton fiber is something like a piece of spaghetti, long and round. When the fibers come in contact with each other, they roll off and don't wear down for a long time. "Polyester fibers have much rougher edges, they actually bite one another when they come in contact. Naturally, they deteriorate faster." Lukey and Sedgfield have taken a stand on the all-cotton side of the natural fiber-manmade material battle.

OLDTIME RELISH—Made with green tomato, cabbage, green pepper and onion, it is sometimes called chowchow, sometimes piccalilli.

Reader Request: Chowchow

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My grandmother made a relish she called chowchow. I know she put green tomato, cabbage, green pepper and onion in it because I remember helping her prepare those vegetables for it. I would love to duplicate her chowchow but her recipe was "in her head" and those I've found under the name of chowchow use a different combination of vegetables. Do you have a recipe for my Grandma's kind? — YOUNG COOK.

DEAR YOUNG COOK: Indeed I do. Your Grandma's chowchow happens to be the sort I grew up on and I have some in my preserve closet right now. Webster defines chowchow as "a spicy relish of chopped, mixed pickles in mustard sauce." Apparently cooks have been using various ingredients in this relish from the time chowchow began. By the way, the word "chowchow" is pidgin English and is derived from the Chinese. Sometimes chowchow is called piccalilli and you may find recipes of the sort you like under that head. One of my helpers praises my rule — it follows — because it does not have a superabundance of liquid. — C. B. CHOWCHOW OR PICCALILLI
1 1/4 pounds green tomatoes, thinly sliced (3 cups)
5/2 cups loosely packed

- chopped (medium-fine) green cabbage (1 medium-small head)
- 1 quart chopped (medium-fine) green peppers (6 to 8 medium)
- 1 1/2 cups chopped (medium-fine) onions (3 medium)
- 2 tablespoons coarse salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon yellow mustard seed
- 1 tablespoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon ground turmeric

In a large bowl stir together the tomato, cabbage, pepper, onion and salt; cover and refrigerate overnight. Turn into a strainer (by batches if necessary) and allow to drain well.

In a 4 or 5-quart saucepot stir together the remaining ingredients; bring to a boil, stirring until the sugar dissolves; simmer for 20 minutes. Add the vegetables; bring to a boil; simmer for 20 minutes. Ladle into clean hot 1/2-pint wide-mouth canning jars making sure the liquid covers the vegetables and leaving 1/4-inch headspace; wipe jar edges with a damp cloth. Seal, following jar manufacturer's directions. Place jars in a water bath canner or on a rack in a large saucepot. Add hot water to cover jars by at least 1 inch. Bring water to a boil, then keep at a gentle steady boil to process for 10 minutes. Remove jars to a wire rack to cool. Store in a cool dark place. Makes even 1/2-pint jars.

Business Meet Held By WOTM

The Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308 held its business meeting Thursday night. Senior Regent Hazel Barnes conducted the meeting.

Mary Beddard was installed as chairman of the Library Developmental Committee. Betty Diehl was installing officer and Peggy Jamieson was installing guide.

Dot Anderson and Mrs. Jamieson were presented charms for their pins denoting their new College of Regents Degree.

Mary Knapp, junior graduate regent, gave a report on the WOTM conference held in Greensboro. Various committee and project reports were given by the chairmen.

It was announced that the next chapter night program will be held Sept. 8.

The theme for the N. C. Women of the Moose for this year is "Time: Time to Become a Sponsor."

Strangers Appreciate Role

A New York economist wrote the Greenville Rescue Squad to praise its work when his wife was injured in a fall here.

"The rescue squad was there almost before she hit the floor," Dr. Robert Clark wrote. "They got her out of the motel and into the hospital with great care, courtesy, consideration and efficiency."

"Perhaps such efficiency and courtesy are usual things in Greenville, but to us from this part of the country, where people are rude, inefficient, and cannot do anything right, it was a real treat to see things done in the way which used to be characteristic in America."

Well, we don't always appreciate what we have in the services of the Greenville and the other Pitt County Rescue Squads, but strangers who come to our city and need help sure do.

We hope that the courtesy and consideration which these visitors to our city found here will always prevail. It is a part of our southern tradition that we should never lose.

Tar Heels Making History

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Twenty-eight Tar Heels who hope to become physicians have quietly taken part in making history for North Carolina.

Their enrollment in the East Carolina University School of Medicine marks the beginning of a new emphasis on family care medicine for small towns across the state; and the end of one of the most bitter academic fights in memory.

Nearly 12 years of power politics and institutional jealousies marked the struggle for approval and funding of the new medical school; urban leaders in the Piedmont both resisted and resented the entry into the elite field of medicine by the school once known as "Eecccccccc" (East Carolina Teachers College).

The Fight

Critics threw out such figures as $200 million (actual startup cost, $38 million). Chapel Hill affiliates argued against having a medical school anywhere else. Legislators who didn't like the idea fought committing state dollars to a new medical school—especially during the recession.

But as the medical school doors opened, all of that background of complaining was history. State Rep. Jay Huskins, D-Iredell, member of the Board of Higher Education during the debate, and chairman of the medical manpower study commission which pushed for medical training at East Carolina puts it this way: "We suspect that the verdict of history will support the action of those who had to overcome great opposition in attempting to provide medical education opportunities for more young North Carolinians."

The 28 enrollees are all North Carolinians: the Class of 1981 picked from 350 applicants; 280 of those Tar Heels.

True to the intent of the General Assembly which did finally get the school underway, Dean H. Hayek, director of admissions, makes a point of noting the steps taken to insure both family care physicians who will remain in North Carolina.

"We are trying to enroll students who desire or are motivated for primary care (family, internal, pediatrics, or obstetrics," Hayek says.

Part of the selection process included an essay on why he or she wants to study medicine. A committee looked at the intent to go into primary care medicine, and during the interview portion of the screening, dug into North Carolina attachments (relatives, hometowns, etc.) as signs the future doctor would practice in North Carolina.

All 28 showed strong interest in these two stipulations. Five of the freshmen are minority students.

developed into one of respect, and the role of the university in community and development areas grown into one of importance.

East Carolina becomes the fourth of the 16 campuses in the university system to award doctoral degrees. The school, in conjunction with opening of the medical school, will also offer doctorates in other fields.

William E. Laupus, dean of the medical school, says the presence of the facility is already working beneficial change in the eastern part of the state. Physicians find the area more attractive due to the proximity of the school; residents will benefit from the teaching hospital at Greenville; and other hospitals and rural health clinics will benefit from the training programs operated from the East Carolina campus.

The impact of the medical school will reach deeply into eastern North Carolina, along with the other changes which have taken place at East Carolina, to help communities all across the Coastal Plains and the coast grow and develop.

To Retire

Opening of the medical school climaxes the career of Leo Jenkins as chancellor of the school which he brought into a position of leadership in the university system.

Reagan Draws The Line

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be a cold day in Panama when Ronald Reagan changes his mind about the canal.

And the issue Reagan dramatized has not lost its political punch, which is why President Carter faces a tough campaign to sell the Senate on a treaty that would yield U.S. control of the Panama Canal and Zone at the end of this century.

In his drive for ratification, which will take 67 Senate votes, Carter is going to have to convince a group of politicians that they should take the risk of supporting the treaty despite widespread opposition among their constituents. He is going to have to do it at the beginning of a congressional election year.

There is no better evidence of the problem Carter faces now than the way he handled the issue when he was a candidate himself — and said he did not favor relinquishing control of the canal. Politicians, at least successful ones, do not customarily take positions that contradict the views of the voters.

So, in presidential campaign debate, Carter said he would keep negotiating with Panama on such issues as U.S. payments and the reduction of American forces, but vowed:

"I would never give up complete control or practical control of the Panama Canal Zone..."

The President acknowledges that he changed his mind, and said he believes others will, too, as the American people come to understand the terms of the treaty.

Actually, there are two agreements, one to yield control in the year 2000, and the other to guarantee the permanent neutrality of the waterway along with the right of the United States to keep it open and secure.

"I am convinced that it is advantageous," Carter said. "I was not convinced of this fact, say, a year ago."

Now his task is to convince voters and, through them, two-thirds of the Senate. It is the more difficult because, as negotiator Ellsworth Bunker said, the Canal has a constituency and the treaty does not.

Other Editors Say: Cost Almost Nothing

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The state is seeking a million dollars to promote crime watch programs in selected communities across North Carolina.

From the remarkable experience enjoyed by Neighborhood Crime Watch program in Goldsboro, the state-wide project is commendable.

But why the million bucks?

Goldsboro, with a volunteer committee composed of private citizens and law enforcement officers, came up with a Crime Watch program that has become a show case.

Except for some printing costs to produce leaflets and a limited amount of money to provide prizes for school children in a crime watch poster contest, the committee operated at no expense.

While a staff person was hired under a federal grant a few months ago to, among other things, work on the Crime Watch program, it is a fact that virtually all the work had been accomplished before the position was funded.

The key to any crime watch is volunteer involvement of citizens in the individual communities.

People do a far better job when they are motivated by a recognized need for action and dedication to do their part.

Members of the Goldsboro Crime Prevention Committee were genuinely concerned over the crime rate and determined to do something about it.

Residents of each community gave the program their enthusiastic support because they recognized that they had a very real stake in the program.

To put on a crime watch program costs virtually nothing.

If we have to pay people to push it, will we get the same enthusiasm?

North Carolina shouldn't wait for a million dollar grant to promote crime watches statewide.

We seriously question whether funding is in the best interest of such a program.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Fear Economic Slowdown

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A key Carter economic policymaker has privately acknowledged a menace facing President Carter that politically could be worse than the Panama Canal, Soviet relations and the Middle East put together: the economy slowing down.

"I would say," this senior official told us, "that the economy for the rest of the year is tenuous at best." What it may be at worst, he hinted, is a declining economy — in harsh words, a recession. The reason this forecast is so chilling is that it comes from a policymaker who publicly sounds only cheery optimism for the future.

His private pessimism comes on the heels of increasingly gloomy forecasts that would pose President Carter's most difficult decision so far. If and when the slumping economy becomes obvious, demands for massive federal spending will flood in from Congress, the labor movement and most of the Democratic party. If he yields to that demand, the President will not only make absurd his balanced budget promises but start down the dreary trail that has led Britain to prolonged misery.

Following ambiguous but generally disappointing economic indicators all summer, the most bearish news yet came Aug. 18 with announcement by Bethlehem Steel Corp. of drastic reductions in capacity and capital spending. While some economists (especially inside the government) claim Bethlehem is a special case, its problems are widely viewed as symbolic of soggy demand which undercut posted prices for steel, aluminum, copper and other products.

This underlying softness and the prospect for trouble ahead was proclaimed months ago by New York economic consultant Eliot Janeway, an early Carter-for-President supporter with continuing close links to the administration. Janeway's reputation for bearishness is notorious (he is known in Wall Street as "Calamity Janeway"), and his forecasts were laughed off in and out of government.

But the voice of the bear has grown stronger over this uncertain summer. The econometricians who use statistical methods insist the recovery will continue apace. But more politically attuned economists now talk about the economy leveling off for the rest of the year and, as Janeway predicts, perhaps even a downturn.

This gloomy outlook stems in considerable degree from worldwide factors beyond Mr. Carter's control, including high OPEC oil prices, resulting in a massive loss of confidence. But there are also grounds for complaints about the President lacking an overall conceptual plan and failing to integrate his legislative programs with economic policy — specifically, three principal complaints:

Complaint No. 1: The substantial new levels of taxation contained in the energy program undermined budding business confidence in the new President. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, supposedly in charge of tax policy, had no real part in drafting the energy program.

Complaint No. 2: The White House never has seen the energy program as a golden opportunity to stoke up the economy by using it for government-inspired development of new energy sources. Nor has the defense budget been considered in this light.

Complaint No. 3: The frailty of the economy seems to be a secondary consideration as the Treasury and White House draft (for submission to Congress late in September) the most comprehensive tax reform bill in history. Prospects that reduced rates may fall far short of making up for radical reduction of tax preferences — in the psychological balance of both business and investors — has further undermined business confidence even before — the bill has been unveiled.

Noting the smell of approaching disaster, friends of the administration have been urging that economic consequences of programs be more carefully studied. Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a principal liberal voice on tax policy, has privately urged that the Treasury consider closely how a proposal to treat capital gains as ordinary income (likely to be in the tax reform) would further depress capital investment.

Janeway, in regular contact with budget director Bert Lance, has been pleading all year that the energy program be brought in line with

Everybody Sniffing For Smoke

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Wall Streeters yelled fire last week and now everyone is sniffing for smoke.

The word used wasn't really fire—it was recession—but the effect of using that word anywhere in the securities trading network is the equivalent of shouting fire in a crowded theater.

That is, the setting is similar — everyone lost in concentration on the big screen before them; and the reaction is predictable — some will bolt, others will file out orderly, and the rest will hang in until they see the flames.

There is no recession, and so there's a chance that some of those investors who bolted will come back. But for the next few months they and everyone else in the market are going to be sniffing for telltale scents.

Tucker, Anthony and R. L. Day Inc. wasn't the first brokerage house to use the feared word, but they probably shouted it with the greatest clarity and force, saying the economy "will be in a mini-recession within six to nine months."

Predictably, the Dow Jones industrial average fell to its lowest in nearly 20 months as the word traveled through the securities grapevine, perhaps the speediest transmitter of bad news, rumors and sometimes of facts.

Others brokers too had been wondering about the chances of a recession; they always are, because even schoolboys know the economy goes up and it comes down, no matter what economists say or the government tries to do.

Most brokers, however, had reserved their judgments, at most intimating that serious investors would not overlook the possibility that such an occurrence might be out there in the future. They didn't yell fire. Some even continue to forecast a bull market.

The truth is that the economy does seem to have reached a peak in its rate of growth, but it is not headed downward. It still has momentum; it is still expanding, but at a slower pace than earlier this year.

Investors, of course, aren't concerned so much with the present as with the future. If they smell smoke they don't always hang around to see if flames verify the accuracy of their first sensual impressions.

It is for this reason that many forecasters are cautioning against extremes of thinking. They concede the signs but they argue that one sign should not be interpreted as a theological message. It may take many signs.

Are there many signs? A matter of semantics; there certainly are some.

Employment in July fell for the first time in nine months. The rate of industrial production was at its slowest of the year. Retail sales have been rather flat. Personal income gains aren't making people rich.

True, but looking back over the same measures you

Hunt's Plans Untold

By DAVID R. NELSEN Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — If succession passes, Gov. Jim Hunt will: a. Run for reelection? b. Go home to the farm?

Hunt will not say for sure and it may be premature to just assume that he will seek reelection if voters approve the idea of succession in the fall elections.

On numerous occasions — during interviews, casual conversations and news conferences — Hunt has maintained that his plans are uncertain. He has argued that he, like every governor for decades, believes in the concept of succession and wants it approved even if he chokes against running again.

Several factors are involved in deciding whether to run for an office, Hunt points out. Campaigning is arduous and usually a financial strain, particularly if a candidate is like Hunt and relies on a salary for his livelihood.

Then there's the pressure and strain after taking office. A governor lives in a luxurious mansion complete with servants and maids. But, often Hunt has no time to enjoy that because of long work days and extensive travel.

His staff reports that Hunt has sometimes not had a meal with his family for days at a time. In addition, some of the meals at home in the mansion are more like diplomatic affairs with important guests for dinner.

The physical and financial strains are secondary to the strain it puts on a candidate's wife and children, Hunt says.

"I have no plans to run for governor at this time. That's simply all out in the future," Hunt said in a recent interview.

"If you were in this position and knew how difficult it is, the strains that you have on you and your family, you would understand that a man could sit here and say as I am saying to you, that he honestly has no idea what he would do. And I don't," he said.

When someone is persistent, Hunt will usually respond: "You ask my wife. She'll tell you what I'm going to do."

Gary Pearce, Hunt's news secretary and one of the governor's closest associates, says Carolyn Hunt will be the most important factor when the governor considers a second term, if succession is approved by the voters this fall.

If the First Lady is opposed to another four years of public life, Hunt won't go against her wishes. "He couldn't get along without her (support). He'd be lost," Pearce said recently.

In addition, Hunt often laments not having more time with his wife and four children. Returning to the Rock Ridge farm would reunite the Hunt family.

Mrs. Hunt's feelings can be summed up by a comment she made over a piece of cheesecake between campaign appearances last fall. When asked if she is getting excited about the possibility of moving into the mansion, she looked the reporter in the eye and calmly said, "I'd rather stay in Rock Ridge."

THE CONQUERING GALILEAN

The Roman Emperor Julian, known as "the apostate," lived a brief life of thirty-one years and was said to have died muttering, "Galilean, thou hast conquered."

Julian lived in a day when religion and corrupt politics were so mixed that it is little wonder that he abandoned the Christian faith into which he had been born. By the time he was twenty he had decided against Christianity and in favor of the paganism of an earlier era.

Far-Out Fans In Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At one table, "UFO Magazine" and "Flying Saucer Digest" were selling next to "The Zeta Reticulin Incident." Sales of "UFOs — Myth and Mystery" were, well, astronomical.

A few feet away, a man named Alpha hawked "UFO kits" stuffed with star maps between snatches of conversation with a man wearing a moon pendant and a lightning-bolt T-shirt.

The gathering of zany and serious students of the extraterrestrial was the 14th annual National UFO — Unidentified Flying Object — Conference. It came complete with brainy-looking kids behind inch-thick glasses, young mothers bouncing babies on their knees and tweedy scientific types.

About 500 fans of the far-out packed the hotel ballroom to hear speeches, trade UFO stories and speculate about why more and more little green men seem to be touching down on Planet Earth.

The conference was keynoted by Stanton Friedman, a self-described "Ralph Nader of the UFO world" and nuclear physicist who has made a career of contradicting government reports debunking UFOs.

"The government's investigation of UFOs has been completely inadequate," he said. "Sightings by military people, like pilots, are reported to the Air Force's Air Defense Command, where they slap an immediate security clamp on the information."

After years of working for government space contractors and seeing what secrets the government keeps, Friedman came to believe flying saucers are real and the government knows it — but is keeping its mouth shut.

"They're out there all right, and the government is aware of it. But even if you've seen the saucers, wait'll you see the drivers," he said.

In the 1950s, when he worked on nuclear powered aircraft engines, Friedman said he thought the whole idea of gleaming saucers running cars off country roads and aliens in the neighborhood was crazy.

Then, in 1955, he read Project Bluebook's Report 14.

Project Bluebook was a 20-year-long investigation by the Air Force of reported UFO sightings by military personnel, especially fighter pilots.

In its heyday, Friedman said, Project Bluebook consisted of a major, a desk sergeant and a couple of filing cabinets. He said much evidence documenting the existence of saucers was intentionally covered up and will never surface.

"I've talked to about 75 former military people, some of whom reported their sightings to Bluebook. What happened to all those reports?" he asked.

Canal Zone, and only 27 per cent favored it. The rest weren't sure.

The White House is waiting for a poll of its own, while lining up the campaign for Senate ratification. Political and business leaders from states with wavering senators are being summoned to briefings as Carter and his aides try to gain Senate votes by swaying public sentiment.

Carter's speechwriters have an address ready for delivery whenever the President and his tacticians decide it is time to go directly to the public.

Bunker and Sol M. Linowitz, his fellow canal negotiator, have taken the case to Congress, enlisted Ford's support, and spent an hour briefing Reagan in New York last Thursday. They could have saved their time. Reagan already had called the treaty a giveaway, and hours after the briefing he denounced it again as a risk to U.S. and Western Hemisphere security.

The lines are drawn, and on both sides of the issue, the campaign is just beginning.

economic reality. He argues that for the sake of the economy, the program's ideological thrust be switched to a bullish call for new energy sources away from bearish demand for less energy use.

The recommendations of Mikva and Janeway had little effect against the rigid environmentalists and tax reformers. But if the voice of the bear is correct, the economy's decline will provoke far louder demands for greater government spending.

Writing recently in the Economist of London, economic consultant Alan Greenspan asserted: "The danger is that, in a sense of despair and frustration, policymakers will soon look for the short-term quick fix...In order to avoid inflation, a number of hard political choices will have to be made." Among Carter economic policymakers if not in the Oval Office itself, realization of those hard choices ahead is sinking in.

Hannan At State Meet

Manager James Hannan of the Job Service office here has returned from a Raleigh conference on Equal Employment Opportunity.

Conducted by the N. C. Employment Security Commission, the conference was held to acquaint participants with various federal and state laws and policies applicable to employment of women, blacks and other minorities and to establish the Commission's own guidelines for Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

"Equal employment opportunity is the right of all persons to work and advance on the basis of merit, ability and potential without discrimination," Hannan said. "This applies to all aspects of personnel—recruitment, interviewing, hiring, promotion, transfers, training and other matters of personnel administration."

Federal Govm't Siding With The Indians Today In Fight For Land

By JAMES H. PHILLIPS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — From Maine to Louisiana, Indians are fighting to recover their ancestral lands, reviving battles that began with the white man's settling of the continent.

But today's battles aren't like those of the past. In most, the federal government is siding with the Indians and not the white settlers.

Involved in the disputes are wilderness and cityscape, large tracts and small plots.

In the most celebrated case, the Passamaquoddy and Penobscot tribes have been trying to win control of 12 million acres in Maine. But it is by no means the Indians' only fight.

The Interior Department says at least 11 claims for land and trespass damages have been filed, all along the Eastern Seaboard.

The claims are based on a once-obscure law passed by Congress soon after the Revolutionary War to protect the Indians' rights to their land. Known as the Non-Intercourse Act of 1790, it prohibits individuals and local governments from buying or taking tribal land without congressional approval.

Virtually all the claims are in the East, and are based on past actions by state or municipal governments to wrest control of tribal lands.

"You're not going to see in the West what you're seeing in the East now," said Tim Volman, an Interior Department legal official. "The reason is that the U.S. government generally negotiated with the tribes" in the West.

The tribes and major claims being brought under the Non-Intercourse Act include:

—The Passamaquoddy and Penobscot tribes, who seek 12 million acres of Maine forest and coastal land. A presidential adviser has recommended an out-of-court settlement that calls for the tribes to receive 100,000 acres from the state and $25 million from Congress plus additional federal aid to enable the tribes to purchase an additional 400,000 acres.

—The Oneida Nation, 200,000 acres, primarily in central New York State.

—The St. Regis Mohawk tribe, 12,500 acres, including land in the towns of Massena and Fort Covington, N.Y.

—The Cayuga tribe, 62,000 acres along a three-mile strip surrounding the northern half of Cayuga Lake, N.Y.

—The Wampanoag Indians, 16,000 acres in Massachusetts in the town of Mashpee on Cape Cod and 243 acres in Gay Head on Martha's Vineyard.

—The Catawba Indians, 140,000 acres in South Carolina.

Others include the Schaghticoke Indians, 1,300 acres in Connecticut; the Western Pequot, 1,000 acres, also in Connecticut; the Naragansett, 3,200 acres in Rhode Island; and the Chitimacha, 4,000 acres in Louisiana.

No major new claims are expected. "The big ones are court battles. "The tribes just want economic viability and a means of cultural survival," said Mrs. Harjo.

Extensive Downtown Area Street Work Underway

WORK PROGRESSES...City workmen progress on the installation of curb and gutters on Halifax Street, one of several in the West Greenville area

Extensive street work, including the paving of dirt streets in West Greenville and widening of street segments in the Central Business District, is underway here, according to City Manager Jim Caldwell.

The city manager said that Community Development funding in the amount of roughly $160,000 will provide for grading, installation of curb and gutter, and paving of portions of unpaved streets in the West Greenville area.

Work in the CD project includes portions of Paris Avenue, Spruce Street, Halifax Street, Manhattan Avenue, Davenport Street, and Ames Street, he added.

Approximately two miles of unpaved streets will receive curb and gutters and paving in the area, he said, with city crews handling the curb and gutter phase and the paving work contracted. Contracts have been received for the CD paving and will be considered by the City Council at the Sept. 8 meeting.

The street work under the CD program involves an area bounded by Dickinson Avenue, 14th Street, Farmville Boulevard, and Line Avenue, it was noted.

In the downtown area of Greenville, according to Caldwell, the city is in the process of tearing out the existing curb and gutters on Cotanche and widening the heavily traveled corridor from Seventh Street up to the Tenth Street intersection. The finished street will provide a 40-foot corridor with two travel lanes and a center turning lane. Curb and gutter work on the west side of Cotanche should be finished by the end of next week, the city manager said. The actual widening of the street is being done on the east side.

Eighth Street is also getting new curb and gutters and is being widened on the north side from Cotanche Street to Dickinson Avenue under the CBD project.

In addition, CBD street work includes Fifth Street from Green to Cotanche and Washington Street from Dickinson Avenue to Fourth Street, it was mentioned. The work involves removal of the old asphalt (and concrete on Fifth) and installation of a new asphalt black base course. The finish or surface course will be done soon, Caldwell reported.

All paving is contracted by the city while curb and gutter installation is handled by city crews. Two city curb and gutter crews are working now, according to Caldwell.

Work on the Sixth Street parking lot, including placement of the stone base, paving and installation of meter posts has been completed, he said.

In addition, the city has finished with the installation of storm drainage on Howell Street.

Caldwell explained that the tentative work schedule calls for the curb and gutter crews to move on to the two-block unpaved portion of E. Fourth Street following completion of work on the Cotanche Street segment.

The Fourth Street section will be paved utilizing the assessment without petition procedure, he added.

Commissioner Avoided Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chairman of the North Carolina Utilities Commission says a possible conflict of interest may keep him from taking part in a Carolina Power and Light Co. rate increase case.

Bob Koger, who was appointed commission chairman last week by Gov. Jim Hunt, has asked for an attorney general's opinion in the matter.

Koger headed the commission's engineering staff before he was named a commission member. He directed the staff's investigation of the CP&L rate increase request. The commission rejected staff recommendations and approved a $69 million rate hike.

Fugitive Elephant Ran Through Nursing Home

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
SAUK CITY, Wis. (AP) — Seventy-one-year-old Tillie Nodden was having lunch in bed when she saw Barbara breeze by.

"I thought I was surely going mad," she said. "Did I really see an elephant?"

She did. And so did many of the 90 other residents of the Maplewood Nursing Home, most of them 75 or older.

"Nothing much ever happens around here, but this was real excitement," said nurse Marjorie Krause.

It all began when six-ton Barbara, who created a sensation in Fond du Lac on Aug. 8 when she ran loose for several hours, bolted as she and other elephants helped raise the main tent at the Carson & Barnes Circus for a one-night stand Sunday at this central Wisconsin community.

Despite chain shackles on her forelegs, Barbara, 38, which is late middle-age for an elephant, outdistanced dozens of pursuing spectators who had been watching the tent raising.

"Everyone was chasing her. It made it worse," circus manager D.R. Miller said.

Barbara roamed four miles to Maplewood. There, she crashed through a four-foot-high plate glass window and the surrounding wall into an elderly woman's room.

Luckily, the woman wasn't in the room.

"She's usually right in front of that window, but it was lunchtime so the rooms and the halls were empty," said Mrs. Krause.

The 10-foot-tall Barbara wasn't content to stay put in the room. She smashed out of it, through a door and into the hall. Tiles and light fixtures from the nine-foot ceiling went with her.

Then she raced down a hall past nurses who were so astonished they "couldn't say anything," Mrs. Krause said.

Barbara left the same way she came in — smashing.

She went through a hall door and paused in a nearby field.

SHP Officer Resigns After Saturday Wreck

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A ranking officer of the North Carolina Highway Patrol was forced to resign Sunday after an accident which involved his patrol car Saturday night, the Fayetteville Times reported today.

J. Phil Carlton, state Secretary for Crime Control and Public Safety, said Sunday night he had been informed of the accident and the resignation of Lt. Cecil R. Simons, second in command of Troop B in Fayetteville.

"I was called about midnight by Col. John Jenkins (highway patrol commander), Carlton said. "He told me the lieutenant has been involved in an accident. He told me the lieutenant was in uniform, in his patrol car and had been drinking."

"To the extent he had been drinking I do not know," Carlton said.

Simons, contacted at home Sunday night, confirmed to the newspaper that he had been in-involved in a wreck on Dartmouth Drive Saturday night. But he said his resignation was not directly related to the accident.

Simons, who joined the patrol in 1950, said, "I've been thinking about resigning for six or seven months. I just decided to go ahead and resign."

Carlton said he talked with Col. Jenkins again Sunday morning and the two decided to ask Capt. David Matthews, the commanding officer of Troop B, to ask for Simons' resignation.

Otherwise, Carlton said, he would have had to suspend Simons pending further investigation.

In his 27 years with the patrol, Simons had risen to second in command of Troop B, which covers 10 counties in southeastern North Carolina.

Carlton said Simons' long service made the case particularly sad.

"It's really too bad," Carlton said. "You hate to see a man come this far to this.

"It's very embarrassing to us," Carlton said. "I only hope the general public understands when you have 1,200 people working in an organization this kind of thing happens."

"I know this will reflect on the entire patrol," Carlton said, "but one man's actions should not discredit the entire organization."

The newspaper said Carlton released his statement after he was told the Fayetteville Police Department had put an administrative hold on the accident report. Accident reports under law are public record.

"My office doesn't believe in that sort of thing," Carlton said. "I have always felt when something like this happens you should lay it on the table."

Police officials told the Fayetteville Times Sunday night that Fayetteville Police Chief Danny Dixon would probably release the accident report today.

"In addition to full hospital coverage, we took such important options as a very complete surgical/medical plan, maternity benefits and now the new $250,000 Major Medical provision.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today, bouncing back from the slide of the past five weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 68 points from mid-July through the end of last week, rebounded 5.11 to 860.53 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers outpaced losers by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly quiet, however. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 3.98 million shares.

Analysts said traders seemed to be buying on the theory that recent economic pessimism had been excessive and that the market was due for an upswing after its protracted losing strength this summer.

At the same time, Wall Streeters were looking ahead cautiously to Tuesday's report on the government index of leading economic indicators for July.

F.W. Woolworth rose 1/2 to 20. On Friday the company projected an improved earnings trend in the second half of the year.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .19 at 52.79. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .37 to 117.88.

He Danced At His Wake

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. (AP) — There was hardly a second glance from the "mourners" when the "deceased" took a spin around the dance floor.

It was part of Jack Chadwick's Fourth Annual Wake at the Nebraska City American Legion Club Sunday night.

"We might as well have fun while we're here," said the 66-year-old Chadwick as he greeted some of the 250 who came to hoist a glass on his behalf.

It all started after Chadwick attended a wake in Oklahoma, returned home, and gave a check to the legion for "a couple of quarts of booze for my pallbearers" and to hire a post-funeral band.

Max Endelman, one of the musicians, suggested Chadwick celebrate while he still was around to enjoy it. A group of

Obituary Column

Keeter
Mrs. Queenie Porter Keeter, 73, died at her home in the Portertown community Sunday.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Richard Arno. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Keeter, a Pitt County native, lived in the Portertown community until 1957 when she moved to Richmond, Va. In 1964 she retired to Portertown and was a member of Salem United Methodist Church. She worked as a seamstress at College View Cleaners for a number of years. Her husband, Herman Keeter, died in 1962.

Surviving her are three sons, James E., Harold T. and David Lee Keeter, all of Richmond, Va.; four daughters, Mrs. John T. Williams and Mrs. Donald F. Paramore, both of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Jean Mills and Mrs. Ledrew Coward, both of Portertown; a brother, James Herman Porter of Portertown; three sisters, Mrs. Julia Branch of Winterville, Mrs. Obelia Keeter and Mrs. Lonie Averette, both of Portertown; 10 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The family will receive friends at the Wilkerson Funeral Home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock. They will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ledrew Coward of Portertown.

Marston
Mr. Charles T. Marston, 59, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. at St. James United Methodist Church by his pastor, the Rev. M. Dewey Tyson. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park. The body will be taken from Wilkerson Funeral Home to the church at the funeral hour. Members of the Greenville Host Lions Club will be honorary pall bearers.

A native of Lawrence County, Tenn., Mr. Marston was graduated from Lawrenceburg High School in Lawrenceburg, Tenn. and had been a resident of Greenville for the past 34 years. He was a retired sales representative of Belknap Hardware and Manufacturing Company and a member of the Greenville Host Lions Club. He had served his church, St. James United Methodist Church, as a former superintendent of Sunday School and as an honorary member of the Church Board.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Louise Wooten Marston; a son, Charles T. Marston Jr. of Chapel Hill; two sisters, Mrs. Joe Bryant of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. and Mrs. Ted Bryant of Madison, Tenn.; and a brother, Clyde Marston of Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Ross
Mr. Charles Herbert Ross, 67, of 124 Broughton Street, Garner, died Saturday in Rex Hospital.

Funeral services were held today at 2 o'clock at Bryan-Lee Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Charles L. Tanner and the Rev. W. C. Adkinson. Burial was in Montlawn Memorial Park.

A retired salesman for Rogers Oil Company, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia Upchurch Ross; a son, Monte B. Ross of Garner; a daughter, Mrs. John E. Olund of Fayetteville; a sister, Mrs. Kermit Leggett of Greenville; three half sisters, Mrs. Willard Massey of Raleigh, Mrs. Walter E. Carter of Oxford and Mrs. Ralph L. Whaley of Garner; a brother, Col. (Ret.) W. E. Ross of Tempe, Ariz.; and five grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Nobles
Mrs. Sadie G. Nobles, 89, died in Craven County Hospital Sunday. She lived at 814 Old Cherry Point Road in New Bern.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at Palmetto Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Alfred Wetherington of Vanceboro. Burial will be in the church cemetery. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home in Greenville to the church one hour before the funeral.

Mrs. Nobles lived in the Vanceboro community until 1950 and since that time had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Maggie Gaskins. She was a member of Palmetto F.W.B. Church. Her husband, Kinsey C. Nobles, died in 1939.

Surviving her are three daughters, Mrs. Maggie Gaskins of New Bern, Mrs. Johnnie Hodges of Virginia Beach, Va. and Mrs. Walter Stapleton of Fairborn, Ohio; three sons, Vernon, Ervin and Ersell Nobles, all of Vanceboro; one brother, Clarence Gatlin of New Bern; two sisters, Mrs. Dessar Deaton of New Bern and Mrs. Elvira Johnson of Vanceboro; 14 grandchildren; 31 great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren.

Pittman
TARBORO — Funeral services for Mr. Matthew Pittman will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at New Hope Baptist Church near Leggett. Burial will be in the New Hope Cemetery.

A native of Edgecombe County and a member of New Hope Baptist Church, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Ellen Pittman of the home.

The body will be at Hemby-Wiloughby Mortuary here after 6 o'clock today and until one hour before the funeral. Family visitation will be held tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock at the funeral chapel.

Congressman To Speak Thursday

First District Rep. Walter B. Jones will be here on Thursday morning for a "Congressional Breakfast" with members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting is being held to allow Chamber members to share opinions with the congressman on forthcoming legislation in the US Congress. Jones is expected to address such issues as the Panama Canal, Social Security, health care as well as other issues concerning labor law matters.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Stewart
Dr. Donald D. Stewart, Professor of Sociology at East Carolina University, died Sunday in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in the National Cemetery in New Bern.

Dr. Stewart, a native of Bismarck, N. D., received the Bachelor's and Master's degrees from the University of Washington in Seattle, Wash. He received the doctorate at Columbia University in New York City. He was a veteran of World War II and had worked with the Department of Correction and the Department of Health in Washington, D. C. and has taught, prior to coming to East Carolina University in 1970, at the University of Oklahoma, San Diego State College, Memphis State University and the University of Maryland.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Grundy Stewart; two sons, Robert Stewart of Los Angeles, Calif. and Dean Stewart of Santa Barbara, Calif.; and three sisters, Mrs. Daniel Maloney of Lynbrook, N. Y., Miss Mary Ann Stewart of Seattle, Wash. and Mrs. Robert Trebbie of Van Nuys, Calif.

Tyson
Mrs. Gertrude Haddock Tyson, 79, died Monday in Beaufort County Hospital.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at Wilkerson Funeral Chapel. Officiating will be her pastor Rev. Nathan F. Hanchey and Rev. Maurine Johnson. Burial will follow in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Tyson spent all of her life in the Black Jack Community and was a member of Black Jack Pentecostal F.W.B. Church.

Survivors include her husband, Louis Tyson; two sons, James Earl Tyson of near Black Jack and Rev. William H. Tyson of Greenville; three daughters, Mrs. Bill Edwards and Mrs. Hazel Boyd, both of near Black Jack, and Mrs. R. L. Woolard of near Washington; 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home. The family will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Edwards of Dixon Crossroads.

PRICING YOUR HOUSE RIGHT
The value of your house is not what you think it is — or what the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood, and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody — but nobody — is more acutely aware of the current housing market than your local Realtor. A capable Realtor can bring in his own appraisal expert or even a team of salesmen who will individually price your home and then reach a fair consensus. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

If possible, your price should include curtains, draperies, refrigerator, air-conditioners, dishwasher, built-ins. It's a better package deal and may hasten the sale.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO., 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville, Phone: 750-3000. We're here to help!

Pitt Tech's graduates were told Friday night that "community college status enables a technical institute to make even greater contributions to the community it serves."

John Tart, a recently appointed member of the N. C. State Board of Education added "community college status definitely enhances vocational and technical curricular offerings."

In Tart's remarks to the 109 Pitt Tech graduates, he explained that many students in community colleges enroll in the college transfer program, but after one or two quarters, decide that they would prefer a vocational or technical curriculum.

According to Tart, "These students then need only to switch to a vocational or technical program offered at the same institute without losing credits. Community college status would not cost a county anymore than what it would cost for the same increase of the number of students for the vocational or technical programs."

"Contrary to what some people may believe," Tart stated, "community college status does not reduce the institute's emphasis on vocational or technical offerings—it strengthens them."

Generally, vocational and technical enrollments will increase," he emphasized.

Tart urged the graduates and their families and friends to encourage the state to provide adequate funds for the community college system. He pointed out that the needs of society are constantly and continually changing and that business and industrial job needs are also changing.

Tart said "The community college system is required to provide the training and retraining of people to meet these changing needs."

Dr. Tart reported that less than $1000 of state funds per student was required at community colleges and technical institutes to provide educational opportunities—whereas, over $2000 of state money per student was required at senior institutions. He said he believed that this was good economics for the State of North Carolina.

In congratulating the vocational and technical graduates, Tart urged them to take full advantage of their skills and knowledge and be of even greater service to the community in which they reside.

Tampa Has Problem Keeping Quarterbacks

By DAVE KAYE
AP Sports Writer

After last year's 0-14 season, Tampa Bay Buccaneers Coach John McKay probably figured that things couldn't get much worse.

He may have been wrong. The second-year National Football League Bucs started the preseason with six quarterbacks. Following Saturday's game, they are down to two. Steve Spurrier quarterbacked the Bucs through their inaugural season last year but left the team in a dispute with

NFL Roundup

McKay over the right to call plays.

That left Mike Boryla in charge, but he was injured in last week's 10-7 victory over Green Bay and will be out for the entire season.

McKay had counted on Gary Huff to help improve Tampa Bay's record, but that hope ended Sunday in the Buccaneers' 30-21 "fall-from-ahead" loss to the Atlanta Falcons.

Huff completed 15 of 23 passes for a club-record 237 yards and three touchdowns and had the Bucs leading 21-20 early in the fourth quarter. But he was tackled after releasing a pass and severely injured his left knee.

Doctors expect him to be out of action for four to six weeks. Substitute quarterback Parnell Dickinson failed to complete a pass in five attempts and had two intercepted as the Bucs folded in the final quarter.

"This is the most serious blow we've suffered since I've been here," McKay said. "I would say there's a 50-50 chance of the Bucs bringing a new quarterback into camp."

In addition to Dickinson, the only other quarterback in camp is rookie Randy Hedberg, from Minot, S.D. State.

Elsewhere in the NFL, any team that wants to beat the Baltimore Colts ought to consult with Efen Herrera about strategy.

The Dallas Cowboys' field goal specialist booted a 33-yard field goal as the gun went off to beat the Colts 23-21 Saturday night.

Herrera did the same thing during last year's regular season to defeat Baltimore, 30-27.

Dallas' Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett scampered for 99 yards and helped move the ball into position for Herrera's field goal.

In Sunday's games, rookie Wilbert Montgomery's 90-yard kickoff return and two scoring strikes by quarterback Ron Jaworski rallied the Philadelphia Eagles to a 28-24 victory over the Denver Broncos and John Smith kicked a 32-yard field goal in overtime to give the New England Patriots a 13-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 100-degree-plus heat at Schaefer Stadium.

On Saturday, the Cincinnati Bengals routed the St. Louis Cardinals 33-9; the New York Jets defeated the New Orleans Saints 20-14; the Oakland Raiders romped over the San Diego Chargers 35-7 and the Detroit Lions edged the Seattle Mariners 16-14.

Washington's Redskins edged the Green Bay Packers 13-9 and the Kansas City Chiefs surprised the Los Angeles Rams 27-19.

In tonight's NFL action, O.J. Simpson and his Buffalo Bills invade Giants Stadium while the San Francisco 49ers play the Oilers at the Houston Astro-dome.

Red-Hot Irwin Wins

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Leonard Thompson was bewildered.

He'd just played the back nine in a course-record 29. He had a round of 66 and, on the feared No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club — one of the nation's most demanding layouts — had finished 72 holes a dizzying 15 strokes under par.

"What do you have to do to win around here?" Thompson inquired after finishing a distant second to Hale Irwin, who was 20 under.

Irwin, who had to win to prove a personal point —

"there was no alternative," he said — compiled rounds of 65, 62, 69 and 68 into a 264 total, the best score of the year on the pro tour, and won by five strokes over Thompson in the Hall of Fame Golf Classic Sunday.

"The score, on this golf course, is amazing," Irwin said. "It is not amazing that I won. I had to win. Any win is nice. This is particularly so."

It may have been the sweetest of his nine career triumphs, most of which have come over the most difficult courses America can offer. The authoritative manner in which he subdued famed old No. 2 made it one of his most artistic.

More importantly, to Irwin, at least, it proved a point.

Series (under the new, expanded format) and I've had to qualify three times."

And he didn't like it at all. The whole matter, he said, "was not handled properly.... It was not fair."

When Irwin won the Atlanta Classic May 29 he was told he'd qualified for the World Series off a point list. He made his plans accordingly, taking some time off, turning down some financial offers to play in the World Series.

Six weeks later, he was told there had been an error in compiling the points. He wasn't in. He was out.

Only his victory here, which qualified him as a double winner for the year, got him in. He could make it in no other fashion. It was, he said prior to the tournament, "a must-win situation."

No one really got close. Rookie Jeff Mitchell finished third with a 67-272, eight shots back. J. C. Snead, with a closing 68, and Lou Graham, with a 70, were next at 274, 10 behind.

Masters and British Open champ Tom Watson was ninth with 69-276 and just missed reaching the $300,000 plateau. He now has $298,428 and, in the World Series, will join Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus as the only men to reach $300,000 in a single season.

Irwin won $50,000 from the total purse of $250,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $156,456.

Garvey: 5 5 5 5

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Steve Garvey's line in the Los Angeles Dodgers' boxscore Sunday would have done him proud in a poker game.

Garvey had four fives — five hits, five runs batted in and five runs scored in five at-bats — as the Dodgers walloped the St. Louis Cardinals 11-0. But, team man that he is, Garvey preferred to talk about the Dodgers' revival.

"It looks like we're going to start rolling now that we've played so well in the last three days," said the All-Star first baseman, who blasted two home runs, one a grand slam, and three doubles in Los Angeles' third straight victory over the Cardinals. "The key is we're still 8½ games ahead of the (Cincinnati) Reds."

Don Sutton also was a hero for Los Angeles, registering his 47th career shutout, tops for active major league pitchers. Sutton, who has 188 lifetime victories, is 21 shy of Don Drysdale, the team's all-time leader. Sutton also is two shutouts behind Drysdale.

St. Louis' Lou Brock, who is just one stolen base short of Ty Cobb's lifetime record of 892, failed to reach base and was ejected from the game in the eighth inning for arguing on a called strike.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds blasted the Philadelphia Phillies 9-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates trounced the San Diego

Padres 10-1, the San Francisco Giants beat the Chicago Cubs 4-1, the Atlanta Braves downed the New York Mets 6-4 and the Houston Astros topped the Montreal Expos 7-2.

Reds 9, Phillies 0
The Reds, beginning to play like world champions at last, won their fifth straight game and 12th in the last 15, pummeling Philadelphia. The loss was the Phillies' fifth in a row and the 10th straight setback in Cincinnati for the Eastern Division leaders. The Phils now lead second-place Pittsburgh by only 3½ games.

Dave Concepcion, who has driven in 10 runs in his last five games, knocked in four runs with two doubles for Cincinnati. George Foster smacked his 43rd homer — tops in the major leagues — a three-run shot in the second, giving him 123 RBI for the season, a career high.

NL Roundup

Pirates 10, Padres 1
The Pirates completed a three-game sweep of San Diego as Jim Rooker hurled his seventh complete game of the season, a seven-hitter. Rooker, 11-8, got home run support from Fernando Gonzalez, who belted a three-run shot in the third off loser Bob Shirley, 8-16.

Dave Parker, who leads the NL in batting with a .347 average, had three hits, as did Al Oliver.

Giants 4, Cubs 1
Willie McCovey's two-run double in the third inning helped Ed Halicki to his 12th victory against 10 losses. McCovey's two RBI gave him 1,400 for his career.

Cubs starter Dave Roberts, 0-1, intentionally walked Bill Madlock to pitch to McCovey, who ruined the strategy by lining his double to left center.

Taiwan Slugger Amazes

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Chang Chen-jung is a stand-out on a team that stresses teamwork.

People marveled when the 12-year-old slugger took the field here for the first time with his teammates from the Li-Teh Little League of Taiwan.

They still were stunned when Chen-jung left the field a champion Saturday after pitching and batting Li-Teh to a 7-2 victory over Western Little League of El Cajon, Calif., in the 31st annual Little League World Series.

The 5-foot-5, 143-pounder finished the tournament with a record .833 batting average, pounding out 10 hits in 12 times at bat with 10 runs batted in. He had three hits and two RBI while pitching a four-hitter to help Li-Teh win the title, the ninth in the last 11 years by a Far East representative.

"Fundamentally, he does everything you're supposed to do to hit the ball. He's amazing," said Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Don Sutton, who did color commentary for ABC-TV.

Ex-Chicago Cub and Baseball Hall of Famer Ernie Banks, also on hand for the tournament, called Chen-jung "the best hitter I've seen outside of professional baseball."

Led by Chen-jung, the Taiwanese outscored three opponents 35-4 and outhit them, 35-9.

car race yesterday. On Cale's bumper is Darrell Waltrip (88), who trailed Yarborough by a couple of car lengths in lap 367 when rain brought out the caution flag. (AP Laserphoto)

Cale Takes Volunteer

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Neither Cale Yarborough, the winner, nor runner-up Darrell Waltrip, who finished a car length behind, was happy the last 33 laps of the 17th annual Volunteer 400 Grand National stock car race were run under a rain-induced caution flag.

"The car was running so good we really wanted to see what it could do the last 50 laps," said Yarborough, the veteran Chevrolet driver from Timmonsville, S. C., whose victory Sunday was his fourth in a row at Bristol International Speedway.

Waltrip, the Franklin, Tenn., driver who had won a 400-lapper just last Monday at Cambridge Junction, Mich., was unhappy because race officials didn't halt the event, let the track dry off and allow the drivers to finish at full speed.

While Waltrip, who also drives a Chevrolet, said nothing for publication, he tried to hand-signal race officials to stop the race and his pit crew did the same.

But Yarborough, who now has won six of the last eight races at Bristol and seven of the last 10, said he could have held off Waltrip even under the green flag.

Because of six caution flags for 92 laps, Yarborough's speed for the fastest half-mile track on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing circuit was only 79.726 miles per hour.

Yarborough, who started on the pole and led seven times for 299 laps, went ahead for good when he got around Waltrip on the 335th lap. Waltrip was ahead three times for 19 laps. There were 14 lead changes among six drivers during the day.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C., the only other driver to win here since Benny Parsons took the Volunteer 500 in 1973, started on the outside pole but was knocked out in a collision with Dean Dalton on the 118th lap.

Third place went to Parsons, who had relief help in his Chevrolet from Dave Marcis.

Dick Brooks was fourth in a Ford and Tighe Scott fifth in a Chevrolet.

Janet Guthrie earned one of her highest finishes ever, winding up sixth. She wasn't in her Chevrolet at the end, however, J. D. Utsman taking over as a relief driver because of the heat.

It was the eighth victory on the NASCAR circuit this season for Yarborough, who's now three ahead of Petty for the year.

"Everything went good for us. I hated to see the rains come," said Yarborough.

He just grinned when told most writers now are calling each race at Bristol a "Cale Yarborough Benefit."

Inexperience Plagues Williamston

Williamston Tigers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Inexperience is going to be a problem for coach Dink Mills' Williamston Tigers as they attempt to defend their Northeastern Conference football crown this season.

A total of only six starters, including one who goes both ways, returns from last year's Tiger squad which went 9-2 for the year, being beaten by Farmville Central in the first round of the state 3-A playoffs. The team won the Northeastern Conference with a 5-1 mark, but Mills sees little hope of a repeat this season.

"Overall, we've got to be considered way down the line as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We have six positions filled by returnees. That leaves 16 positions that I've got to fill and a lot of them are going to have to be filled by sophomores and inexperienced juniors and seniors."

Mills said the most sophomores he has ever had in one year is three, but this year there are 14 on the roster and at least six of them will probably start. None of those sophomores played varsity football last year, he said.

Three starters return on offense, but none at the skill positions. All are interior linemen. They are senior tackles Warren Lamb (5-10, 188) and Grady Winstead (6-1, 220) and junior guard Rusty Lilley (5-11, 170).

Lamb is a starter on both offense and defense and is "probably our best football player," Mills said.

At the other guard position will be senior Kent Williams (5-9, 191). "He's got a lot of possibility as an outstanding blocker," Mills said, "but he has been injured and missed about half of our practice sessions. I'm expecting big things out of him if he gets back on his feet."

Center Mark Leggett (5-11, 150) fills out the interior line, while the ends will be Horace Wynne (6-2, 165) and Anthony Griffin. Wynne is a first-year senior, but has come along real well, according to Mills. The Tigers will run two tight ends.

Of his offensive line, Mills said, "I've got some kids who like to play, but it's yet to be seen what they can do."

A total of four players are shooting for the starting quarterback spot and Mills said the race is wide open right now. Senior Hank Edwards (5-6, 145) has the most experience of the four as he was the backup quarterback last year.

He is being pushed, however, by sophomore Keith Clark (5-10, 145), junior Rudolph Coffield (5-10, 155) and senior Ted Stevenson (6-3, 165).

Stevenson is a transfer student who just arrived 10 days ago, Mills said, but has already established himself as the top passer in the group. The other two prospects, Clark and Coffield, both execute the offense real well, however. Clark has been especially impressive in his execution, Mills said.

Fullback Tyrone Bennett (5-7, 170) is the most impressive of the runners in the Tiger backfield, according to Mills. "He didn't play last year, but he's going to be a good one, it looks like." Two players back him up, sophomores Ernest Scott (6-0, 170) and Larry Williams (5-11, 185).

The halfbacks in the team's wishbone formation will be sophomore Chris Peele (5-10, 160) and Kevin Mason. Peele is backed up by Edwards, while Mason backs up Freeman.

In practice, the running backs have looked pretty good, Mills said, but they have been working against young players. "Bennett has been superior to anyone else in practice. If our offense is going to go, he's going to have to be the man to make it go as a runner."

The Tigers will line up in a wishbone formation, but the offense is executed more like a Belly-T, Mills said. Deception is the key as "we do a lot of faking and riding." Mills termed the hybrid offense "an old philosophy based with a new formation."

Defensively, the Tigers will run a 4-4 and here, again, they are racked by inexperience.

At the ends will be Griffin and senior Paul Manning (5-9, 160). They will be backed up by Vince Williams (5-5, 140), a senior, and Lilley. Lamb will start at one of the tackles, backed up by sophomore Tony McGhee (5-10, 249), while Scott will be the other tackle with Butch Griffin (5-11, 175), a sophomore, as his replacement.

The outside linebackers will be Leggett and Larry Williams, backed up by Peele and Clark. At inside linebacker will be Kent Williams and Bennett, backed up by sophomores Allen Peaks (5-7, 162) and Butch Griffin (5-11, 175).

Mason and Freeman are expected to alternate at one of the defensive halfback spots, while Edwards, backed by junior Danny Mobley (5-5, 140), will start at the other.

The safety will be Wynne and he is being backed by Steve Griffin, a 6-0, 160-pound sophomore.

Defense has always been a Williamston strong point and this year, "if we are able to be successful, it will be because of our defense," Mills said.

Ahoskie and Tarboro are the teams to beat in the Northeastern Conference this year. Ahoskie is always strong, while Tarboro's junior varsity team won the league title last year.

On paper, Williamston should finish no better than fourth, Mills said. There is a remote possibility the team could be a threat, but it is doubtful. "We've just got too many things to overcome."

Season Over For Fidrych

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — "It's just one of those years in life," said Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, as he packed his gear for the trip home to Northboro, Mass.

The Detroit Tigers' pitcher was philosophical, but obviously disappointed that his baseball season was finished.

Jay Hatfield, grandson of Tigers coach Fred Hatfield, watched the 1976 American League Rookie of the Year cram two big boxes with kewpie dolls, stuffed "Big Bird" toys and various other gifts sent to Fidrych by adoring fans.

"Are you a star?" the little boy asked.

"Naw, I ain't no star," Fidrych said with a shrug.

He pointed to the sky and said, "The stars are up there."

Fidrych was told Sunday by Tigers General Manager Jim Campbell that he would not come off the disabled list before the season ended.

The Bird had not pitched since July 12 due to tendonitis in his right shoulder. Campbell, after conferring with Fidrych, Manager Ralph Houk and team physician Dr. Clarence Livingston, decided it would be better to give Fidrych complete rest than risk further injury by rushing his return.

"I'll go and get my boat," Fidrych said. "I'll go and do something, man, just do something different."

What has it been like this year without the colorful, bubbly Fidrych pitching most of the time?

"You just miss one night a week of things going wild, that's all," said Detroit center fielder Mickey Stanley. "There was a celebration once a week. It was fun when he pitched. It was something we had that we just don't have any more."

Third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez concurred.

"When the Bird is not there you really feel it," he said.

"When he's out there you start to scream at everybody. When he's not there you don't say anything in the dugout. We're gonna miss him."

Rookie Dave Rozema has picked up much of the slack with a 14-5 record and 2.86 earned run average. Fellow rookies Jack Morris and Bob Sykes, plus second-year man Fernando Arroyo and veteran Milt Wilcox, have helped give Detroit a stable starting rotation.

Fidrych began the season May 27, after recovering from knee surgery. He came back strong and won six consecutive games at one point, drawing near capacity crowds, as usual.

The Bird wound up with a 6-4 record and 2.89 ERA, completing seven of 11 games.

Fidrych will join Detroit's St. Petersburg entry in the Florida Instructional League in October and begin working back into form.

Green Speed Pursues Crown

By EDSCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — "Who thinks a New York-bred is good enough to win a Triple Crown?" Billy Haughton asked. He should know. He trains and drives a New York-bred good enough to win the Trotting Triple, but can't because of Haughton's misjudgment.

Green Speed opened the Trotting Triple Crown Saturday night by winning the Yonkers Trot and now heads for DuQuoin, Ill., and the Hambletonian next Saturday. However, that will be end of the Triple Crown road for 3-year-old, owned by Beverly Lloyds.

Haughton nominated him for the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington Oct. 7 but "I just didn't keep him eligible."

That means that if Billy and his son Peter are to sweep the Triple Crown for the second straight year, Peter will have to win the Kentucky Futurity with Cold Comfort. Billy won the Yonkers Trot and Hambletonian last year with Steve Lobell and then finished second in the Futurity to Peter and Quick Pay.

Green Speed keeps reminding Haughton of his mistake. "This horse acts like a much better horse than the one (Steve Lobell) last year," said Haughton after Green Speed sped twice around Yonkers Raceway's half-mile track in 1:59 for five-length victory over Sugarbowl Hanover in the Yonkers Trot.

However, Green Speed sometimes is bad-mannered, breaking stride seemingly because he wants to. But he has been wellbehaved enough to win 11 of 15 starts this year and his half of the Yonkers Trot purse of $239,000 boosted his career earnings to $441,240 on a record of 19 victories, two seconds and two third in 30 starts.

Saturday night, Green Speed was never worse than second before breaking the race wideopen when he went around ABC Freight with a little more than a quarter of a mile left. At that point, his backers could start for the cashier's window to get the $3.40 return on $2 win ticket.

The filly Elmsford finished third and was followed by ABC Freight, Cold Comfort, Gettysburg and Kenwood Hampton.

two-run homer in the fifth, putting Atlanta ahead of the Mets to stay. The victory was the Braves' fifth in a row, their longest winning streak of the season.

Eddie Solomon, 4-3, pitched 8 2-3 innings before giving way to Dave Campbell, who picked up his fifth save.

Astros 7, Expos 2
Houston erupted for five runs in the eighth inning in completing a three-game sweep of Montreal and extending its winning string to five.

Joe Ferguson's two-run homer capped the rally and gave Floyd Bannister, 5-7, the victory. Montreal ace Steve Rogers, 14-13, took the loss.

CAROLINA FEVER.

You've probably seen those words in jagged letters on signs and in advertisements recently, plugging the University of North Carolina's football season tickets.

They are the result of a sales campaign put on by the University, and the Tar Heels have hired Bob Savod to handle the job of filling up Kenan Stadium.

But wait a minute, wasn't it just a few months ago, when we learned that UNC would no longer schedule East Carolina after the current contracts expire in 1981. Wasn't North Carolina saying then that scheduling East Carolina wasn't a matter of money; that the Tar Heels would sell out no matter who they played.

It sounds to me like someone is talking out of both sides of his mouth and neither side knows what the other is saying.

One side says Carolina needs to sell out Kenan, because reports say that two seasons ago the Tar Heels went in the hole some $200,000 in their athletic program. The Tar Heels did reverse this last year and make money, but one of the key reasons for it was a full house against East Carolina.

We have been told that for the Richmond game this year, there have been give-aways of "discount" coupons which allow the holder to save $2 off the price of a single game ticket. No such "deal" would be needed with an East Carolina ticket to a Carolina game.

Carolina's officials say they don't need the Pirates on their schedule. Well, maybe not, but they sure have a funny way of proving it.

Key Changes In Rules

There are two main rules changes in high school football, one of which the fan may notice, and one of which they are not likely to.

The more obscure one redefines the legal blocking technique of linemen. They may block with their hands together, but away from their body, so long as the hands are not locked, or facing outward. The elbows must be out, also.

The old rule said that the hands had to be kept in close to the body, but most players didn't abide by it too well, and most officials let it go enough to have it changed.

The other rule has to do with penalties at the end of games. Normally, a game cannot end on a penalty situation, unless the offended team takes the play. If they elect to take the penalty, then an untimed play is run.

This year, when a tie-breaker is used, the penalty will be marked off at the start of the overtime, rather than giving the offended team one more play in regulation time.

Santa Monica Defends Title

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Santa Monica, Calif., has earned the right to defend its national American Legion baseball championship.

Santa Monica defeated Las Vegas, 8-1 Sunday to win the American Legion Western Regional Baseball Tournament and earn a berth in the World Series at Manchester, N.H., Sept. 1-5.

David Montanari collected a double and two singles for Santa Monica, which got off to a fast start with three runs in the first inning, another in the second and two more in the third.

Guidry Gives Self Present

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

It was Ron Guidry's 27th birthday and he could only think of three better presents to give himself.

"The only things I can think of besides this are a one-hitter, a no-hitter and a perfect game," Guidry said after tossing a two-hitter Sunday, leading the New York Yankees to a 1-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The left-hander gave up a two-out triple to Jim Sundberg in the first inning and a leadoff ter fielder Juan Beniquez cut in front of Griev and the ball caromed off Beniquez' glove as he tried for a leaping catch.

AL Roundup

One out later, Ellis, 7-11, fell behind 3-0 on Reggie Jackson. Jackson swung at the next pitch and dumped a bloop single into center field, scoring Nettles.

In other AL games Sunday, the Detroit outgued the California Angels 12-9, the Oakland A's defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2, the Cleveland Indians downed the Seattle Mariners 10-6, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Baltimore Orioles 5-0, the Boston Red Sox edged the Minnesota Twins 6-5 and the Milwaukee Brewers clobbered the Chicago White Sox 10-1.

By posting their 18th victory in their last 21 games, the Yankees remained two games ahead of second-place Boston in the AL East race and opened a four-game lead over Baltimore.

Tigers 12, Angels 9

A throwing error in the sixth inning by Bobby Bonds negated his two-homer performance and helped Detroit down California.

Bonds' error allowed the winning run to score, snapping a 9-9 tie.

Jason Thompson slammed his 26th homer of the season in the eighth for the Tigers and Detroit scored five runs in the fifth inning as California pitcher Mike Barlow walked four batters.

Royals 5, Orioles 0

A two-run homer by John Wathan was the big blow as Kansas City blanked Baltimore. Wathan also doubled in the sixth inning when the Royals scored two runs.

Andy Hassler, 7-5, and Doug Bird combined for a five-hitter as the Royals posted their 11th victory in 12 games. The Orioles have lost six of their last eight.

Red Sox 6, Twins 5

Carl Yastrzemski singled in the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning and relievers Mike Paxton and Bill Campbell held Minnesota at bay as Boston nipped the Twins.

Paxton allowed just one hit from the fifth inning until the ninth when Minnesota threatened with two hits. Campbell then took over and retired Rod Carew and Lyman Bostock, ending the game.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Unseasonably warm weather is forecast today for most of the nation. Cooler weather is expected in the Northwest and northern Plains. Showers are due from east Texas to the upper Mississippi Valley. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A few thundershowers lingered along North Carolina's lower coast this morning and the prospect of thundershowers was held out for this afternoon and Tuesday afternoon in the mountains.

Otherwise the forecast called for mostly sunny skies over the state both days.

Also for the next several days, a high pressure system that is nearly stationary will maintain warm and generally dry weather throughout the state with the exception of the mountains.

High temperatures over the state Sunday were in the mid 80s to low 90s and that range is expected to continue through Tuesday. Charlotte had one of Sunday's warmest readings with 91 degrees.

Eye Study Of Laetrile Claims

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are mapping plans this week for conducting case studies of several hundred cancer patients who claim the controversial substance Laetrile helped them.

The officials believe the patients' experiences will confirm their diagnosis that the purported cancer cure is worthless. They said, however, that if the review does not conclusively support their stand, the government would consider testing Laetrile for the first time on volunteer cancer patients.

The director of the National Cancer Institute, Dr. Arthur C. Upton, said Sunday the government will decide how to pick the cases it will review in a meeting among representatives of his agency, the Food and Drug Administration and the Center for Disease Control. He did not say when the meeting will be held.

Warning that the government still sees no evidence of Laetrile's usefulness, Upton said, "the only basis on which one would decide to do a trial comes from anecdotal information about patients who have received the drug" — in other words, the patients' own stories.

Upton was questioned on NBC's "Meet the Press." Laetrile is banned from shipment across state lines by federal law. A dozen states have legalized its sale, however. Upton's deputy, Dr. Guy R. Newell, said public pressure played a part in the decision to study human cases.

In a telephone interview Sunday night, Newell said the planned review hopes to "collect cases of people who have been treated (with Laetrile) to collect objective information, so we can determine whether there are some bona fide remissions."

The government has said its reviews of Laetrile supporters' claims show the proponents "do not provide the kinds of adequate and self-controlled studies needed to show the effectiveness of a drug...."

Newell said the government may study X-rays, slides and charts of several hundred patients who used Laetrile.

Investigators would try to confirm that the patients actually had cancer, if their tumors were reduced and whether they had conventional cancer therapy that could have been responsible for the change.

If improved patients had conventional treatment, it would be "difficult to prove the effects were from Laetrile," he said.

Maryland Combats Bootleg Cigarettes

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland is joining neighboring states in an effort to halt the flow of contraband cigarettes from the tobacco-growing South to the high cigarette tax states of the Northeast.

The state recently raised its tobacco tax from six cents a package to 10 cents, making Maryland "a little more vulnerable" to bootlegging, officials admitted. Neighboring Virginia has a tax of only 2.5 cents a pack.

Maryland authorities say few of the contraband cigarettes are being sold in the state since the profits are higher further north. But they fear that Maryland could be next on the list as an outlet for the cigarettes.

The problem has come about because of the disparity between cigarette taxes in the South and in the Northeast, where states have raised the taxes in an effort to raise badly needed revenue.

For example, a carton of cigarettes in North Carolina carries a cigarette tax of 20 cents and a 10-cent sales tax. New York City smokers pay $2.30 in cigarette taxes and 30 cents in sales taxes for the same carton.

A single truckload of some brands bought in North Carolina and sold in New York yields a profit of more than $60,000, Maryland officials estimate.

Authorities said the high profits have encouraged organized crime to turn Maryland highways into a major corridor from south to north for bootlegged cigarettes.

"It's like it was with whiskey bootlegging in the 1920s," said one Ohio lawman. "But cigarettes are easier to handle. They are lightweight with no breakage or spoilage."

Amtrak Reduces Pass Prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — Amtrak has announced drastic reductions in prices, effective Sept. 1, for its U.S.A. Rail Pass sold within the United States, good for unlimited travel on the 27,000 miles of Amtrak and Southern Railway systems.

The new price will be $185 for 14 days, $250 for 21 days and $295 for 30 days. Current prices through the peak summer season are $290, $365 and $450.

The FARM SCENE

County Extension Chairman

Corn farmers are facing a harvest time dilemma. Yields are the lowest in years because of drought. Price on the other hand, are low because of high carryover stocks and another record U.S. harvest. So, the question is should I sell now or store?

The U.S. will carry over almost one billion bushels of corn from 1976. The 1977 harvest is projected to be 6.0 billion bushels, with year end stocks (Oct. 1, 1978) of 1.2 billion bushel. Consider too, that there is a large supply of wheat, both here and abroad. These large supplies of corn and wheat are expected to dominate the market to keep prices around the price support level.

According to Dr. T. E. Nichols, Grain Marketing Specialist with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, short term storage will be profitable this year. Based on current market prices (August 18) of $1.66 to $1.71 and May futures of $2.10 one could expect to receive a gross return to storage of 39-44 cents per bushel by forward pricing grain in storage.

Another alternative, he suggests, would be to place it under ASCS loan or store it unpriced with expectations that prices would rise to a season high of $2.20 - $2.30 per bushel.

Harvesting And Marketing Moldy Corn
Drought conditions appear to have stimulated the spread of aflatoxin in corn this year. The following precautions should be taken to prevent contamination and losses:

- 1) Examine fields carefully for moldy corn before harvesting. The incidence appears greatest in areas with sandy droughty soils. Isolate these areas during harvest.
- 2) Don't let high moisture corn lay overnight in a wagon. High temperature and high moisture promote mold growth. Keep aeration going continuously day and night until corn is properly dried.
- 3) Don't mix moldy corn with good quality grain. Corn containing 20 ppb (parts per billion) aflatoxin is considered contaminated by FDA and can not be used for human or animal consumption.
- 4) Grain elevators are using a black light as a screening device to detect aflatoxin in corn. This is not a scientific test but the buyer will reject any grain containing fluorescence, since it is possible that the grain is contaminated with aflatoxin. They cannot assume the risk of contaminating and have the Food and Drug Administration close them down.

5) Grain which appears moldy to the naked eye should not be taken to market. It should be kept on the farm and disposed of in some manner which prevents animals reaching it. If you wish to feed it do so, but only after an assay has been made to determine the type of mold, level of contamination and whether or not it is safe to feed.

6) If you suspect aflatoxin, have an assay run on a representative sample. This consists of a well probed, not a grab, sample from the entire grain mass and should be about 2 pounds of grain. The assay service is available through at least commercial laboratories in the state:

- a) PERT Laboratory
Edenton, N.C.
482-4456
- b) Southern Testing
Wilson, N.C.

Rent-A-Bike To Tour Germany

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — The Rotalis company is offering bicycle tours from Wuerzburg to Munich and from Munich to Alsace on rented bicycles, the Central German Tourist Board reports.

The board said tours go through picturesque countryside and historical towns and give the cyclists a chance to view churches and convents. The company provides buses to transport baggage and the cyclists during bad weather, the board said.

Roy Rogers, 65, Staying Busy

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The years have been kind to the sun-crinkled face, but not because Roy Rogers has been taking it easy. He's galloped down a number of happy trails — many of them profitable. Rogers, at 65, is "keeping busy doing the things I like to do." He still appears periodically on television, at rodeos and state fairs.

Two years ago he made his 88th movie, "Mackintosh and T.J.," the story of a roaming bronco buster who meets up with a homeless boy. Rogers describes himself as "an older Roy Rogers" in the picture, his first in 20 years.

"I liked it because it's a family-type picture and we're running real short of those these days," Rogers said Friday at a news conference called to trumpet the movie's release this fall in the Northeast.

Rogers is well-preserved for a man who has a museum named after him.

The Roy Rogers Museum in Victorville, Calif., holds a good deal of "happy trails" memorabilia, including Roy's golden palomino, Trigger. The horse died in 1965 and has been mounted.

"I don't like the word 'stuffed.' It doesn't sound good," Rogers says.

The 5-foot-9 entrepreneur still dresses the cowboy role: a string tie, shiny brown boots with one-inch heels, a white cowboy hat and a gold saddle-shaped ring sprinkled with tiny diamonds sparkles on his left hand.

The clean-toothed smile that pulls the eyes into a creased squint is familiar, and so is the gravelly drawl.

Rogers likes to hunt when he isn't working. Between hunts, he officiates at openings of Roy Rogers Family Restaurants. There are more than 200 of the restaurants now, counting those in West Caldwell, N.J.; Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington that Rogers will open this weekend.

Dale Evans, meanwhile, has been cranking out books. Rogers said she is on tour now to promote her 17th, about child abuse.

Rogers' promotional staff says that consumers have spent more than $1 million on Roy Rogers products since he first starred in "Under Western Stars" in 1938, but Rogers declines to say how much he is worth.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUG. 30, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is not a good time to exercise your judgment on an important matter, so postpone until later in the day when you have more facts. You are able to charm others in the evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle private worries early in the day and later you can work on a project that is important to you. Try to please family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make definite plans to gain your aims and then carry out those plans. A new outlet can provide you with more income.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle a civic matter of importance early in the day and then you can engage in personal activities that you like.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) New interests that appeal to you are not good to get into now since you have other important matters to handle.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle routine duties efficiently early and later you'll have time to study a new project you have in mind. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of a depressive associate who wants to waste your time. The evening should be reserved for the social side of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make long-range plans for the future with associates. Be sure not to irk a co-worker who is overly sensitive. Relax at home tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make arrangements for recreation early in the day. Take the health treatments you need so you will feel better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Consult a financial expert and obtain the information you need regarding a business transaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't be critical of associates now or unwanted trouble could follow. Exercise extreme care in motion later in the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good time to check your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans to have greater abundance in the days ahead. Await a better time for looking into new interests.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to know how others operate and will be a veritable question box which is good here. The pioneer is definitely in this chart. Give as fine an education as you can. Don't neglect sports and ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K82 ♥K97 ♦AJ94 ♣AJ7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1NT 2♥ 2♣ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner's bid is competitive, not forcing. You have a minimum no trump opening and an absolutely flat hand, so you have nothing further to offer. Had partner been interested in game, he could have jumped to three spades or cue-bid the enemy suit.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K9862 ♥85 ♦53 ♣A1094
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♣ Pass
1NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid two clubs. With your good doubletons in the red suits, there is good reason to suppose that the hand will play better in a suit contract than in no trump. Just bid your hand naturally. Once opener has rebid one no trump you do not create a forcing situation by bidding a new suit at the cheapest level.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A10 ♥AQJ963 ♦83 ♣972
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
2♥ Pass 2♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. You have opened a minimum no trump with a good suit. Up to now, nothing in the auction has improved your hand. You have one story to tell, so tell it.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ106 ♥73 ♦AQJ84 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Since you are in a forcing-no game situation, there is no reason why you should not describe your hand naturally. You have a fine four-card spade suit, and it would be a crime not to show it below game-level. Bid three spades. After all, partner might have four spades and have elected to jump in no trump because it was the most descriptive bid.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♥AKJ98 ♦AKJ8752 ♣8

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1♣ 2♥ Pass 2♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have already shown a strong hand, so there is no reason for any drastic action now. Simply bid three diamonds, your longer suit. If partner rebids his spades, you can show your hearts at your next turn.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK7 ♥KQ106 ♦K102 ♣Q74
Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—You have both the point-count and the distribution for a jump to three no trump. Nevertheless, that is not the response we would recommend. It is seldom wise to take up so much bidding space when you have a good four-card major suit—you could easily miss a slam in hearts by such precipitate action. We suggest a quiet bid of one heart to see how partner reacts.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K854 ♥A72 ♦84 ♣KQ92
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1♦ Dble. Pass 1♣ 2♦ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. You have a minimum takeout double, and the only way to advise partner of that fact is to pass now. Don't let your four-card support lead you astray—your initial action already suggested good support for his suit.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ763 ♥952 ♦72 ♣K85
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Those five spades are tempting, but the fact is that you have a weak, balanced hand. You are worth a raise to two spades and nothing more.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. ## Low-Tar Camel Will Be Tested

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. plans to produce a low-tar version of Camel cigarettes, the brand on which the firm rode to fame and fortune 65 years ago.

Camel Lights, containing nine milligrams tar and 0.8 milligrams nicotine, will enter test markets in Dallas, Fort Worth and Amarillo, Tex.; Springfield and Kansas City, Mo.; and Des Moines, Iowa, on Sept. 26.

Reynolds hopes the new brand will increase its leadership in the low-tar category, which grew 44 percent last year and is expected to account for 25 percent of the total American cigarette market by the end of 1977.

CAPACITY ENROLLMENT
BREVARD, N.C. — Brevard College will open its fall semester for the 1977-78 year with a capacity enrollment this week, according to a statement by college President Dr. Jacob C. Martinson. "This will be one of the largest enrollments in the history of the college," he says.

'Second City' Is Taping 26 Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — For years, Chicago's famed Second City comedy club has been largely known as the joint such folks as Valerie Harper, Avery Schrieber and many of NBC's "Saturday Night" gang came from.

But it could escape its graduate-school-for-laughter tag soon — with its own weekly TV comedy series. The name of the half-hour effort is "Second City T.V." The inmates are taping 26 shows for starters.

The series, sold to stations on a syndicated basis in 43 markets so far, will commence next month in most of those markets, save New York, where the goods don't go on display until October.

According to Bernard Sahlin, producer of the show and operator of the 17½-year-old Chicago chuckle works, the aim of the TV show is to make sport of, ah, television.

The spoofing occurs at Second City's Channel 109, a mythical station which employs seven performer-writers from the troupe's home club and one it opened in Toronto, Canada, about five years ago.

"What we're doing is parodying every conceivable television form, from sitcoms to 'Sunrise Semester,' everything we can lay our hands on," he said. "I tell you, it's an unlimited field."

No Emphasis On Penny-Ante

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten seems to get support for his claim that small-time gambling enforcement has been a low priority since he took office in late 1974 from a state Justice Department memo issued in 1975.

The memo, from Associate Atty. Gen. Lawrence Pollard to former SBI Director Charles Dunn, said, "our practice recently has been not to prosecute anyone for a private bet."

The memo is dated March 10, 1975, and enlisted Dunn's comments on a proposed law to curtail emphasis on social gambling.

A former State Bureau of Investigation agent claimed in recent published reports that the SBI was told to ignore "penny-ante" gambling the day after agents raided a private residence and found a senior deputy attorney general playing poker.

Yacht Heads Auction List

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A $200,000 yacht allegedly used to transport more than 1,700 pounds of hashish across the ocean before it was seized at the Charleston City Marina heads a list of valuable items that may be auctioned soon by the U.S. Customs Service.

The yacht, the 57-foot ketch Mad Moment, could become the property of the U.S. government next month unless the owners can show sufficient reasons why it should not be confiscated.

Should the government acquire the boat, all federal agencies would then have the opportunity to take possession of it if they can show a legitimate need. If they can not show a need, it will be auctioned to anyone with enough cash to buy it.

Other items likely to be auctioned include two sail boats valued nearly as highly as Mad Moment, two cargo airplanes and a variety of motorboats, trucks and automobiles.

All of the items were seized in several raids on alleged illegal drug operations in South Carolina this year.

Radio Class At Pitt Tech

Another class designed to help the beginner in shortwave communications will begin at Pitt Technical Institute Tuesday, September 13 at 7:00 p.m. It will be a 12-week course and will enable class members to pass the Federal Communications Commission examination to obtain a novice license.

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club is sponsoring this class as well as an advanced amateur radio operating class which will start September 22, 1977 at 7:30

The American Radio Relay League will furnish any films or slides necessary in teaching these courses. At present there are approximately 60 new radio operators in the surrounding area who took previous courses that have been provided. Members of the radio club will serve as instructors, supplying club or private equipment needed in the instructions.

IT'S ESSENTIAL AS IMPORTANT AS VOTING.

In this country, people usually get a voice in Government only every two or four years, when they vote.

Then, you're voting for people, based on what they say and what they propose to do. All too often, that's forgotten until the next election.

But, right now, in North Carolina, you've got a chance to have your say-so in State Government. You can tell us what's on your mind, what you think your State Government should do and should not do. It's important that as a citizen you send us your opinion on a regular basis. The more we know about what's on your mind, the better job we in State Government can do.

Which, after all, is really what Government is all about.

So, take a few minutes to tell us what you think. When it comes to playing a part in North Carolina's future, it could be just as important as any vote you've ever cast.

S. P. Hunt

1. What would you say is the biggest problem facing North Carolina today that you would like State Government to do something about? (Write your answer clearly below.)
