Found By Searchers

Greenville Police, early today, arrested a 25-year-old Fayetteville man on charges of possession of marijuana after finding about 10 pounds of the illegal weed in a car he was driving.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers stopped a car driven by James Bentley Breeden about 2:10 a.m. at the intersection of Evans Street and Lyndale Drive and charged him with driving under the influence.

Then officers found a small amount of marijuana in the passenger compartment of the vehicle and 10 pounds of marijuana in the trunk compartment.

Cannon noted that investigators also searched an apartment at 206 North Summit St. where Breeden has stayed and found a small amount of marijuana and $3,898 in cash.

Investigation of the case is continuing, the chief noted.

Key Economic Indicators Reflect Another Decline

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The index of the nation's future economic activity declined in July for the third consecutive month, the government reported today.

The decline of two-tenths of 1 per cent was identical to the decreases recorded in May and June but nowhere near the 2 and 3 per cent monthly decreases of the 1974-1975 recession.

However, economists considered the July decline in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators a weak signal, because six of the indicators decreased while four of them increased.

The July report followed predictions by many economists of slower economic growth for the second half of the year.

During the 1974-75 recession period, the index fell for 11 months in a row.

For July, declines were reported in the average work week; the layoff rate; sensitive prices; contracts and orders for plant and equipment; new orders, and building permits.

Increasing were vendor performance; change in liquid assets; stock prices, and money supply.

The biggest contributor to the decline was the change in sensitive prices, which meant that the price of raw materials was declining. Although that might be good for inflation, it meant that there was less demand from manufacturers and producers and it was not a good sign for economic growth.

The Carter administration has been predicting that the economy will grow at a still-healthy annual rate of about 5 per cent in the second half after a robust first half of about 7 per cent.

The biggest gainer in the July index was the money supply, which has been growing rapidly in the past month. Although this is considered a favorable sign for economic growth, the rapid growth has disturbed the Federal Reserve, which has tried to slow it down.

The Federal Reserve has tried to keep inflation in check by forcing interest rates up. On Monday, the agency raised its discount rate from 5 1/4 to 5 3/4 per cent, to reflect the continuing rise in interest rates.

The Federal Reserve described Monday's action as a technical move, and said it has "no monetary policy implications."

The Commerce Department said its index of leading indicators now stands at 129.7, meaning that economic activity is now 29.7 per cent ahead of what it was in the base period of 1967.

Originally, the department had said the June index had declined six-tenths of one per cent but it revised the figure to two-tenths, because of improvements in business formation.

The department says its leading indicators index is designed to predict "monthly movements in aggregate economic activity." The index is often used as a barometer of future economic trends.

The decline for three consecutive months comes after three consecutive increases: nine-tenths of 1 per cent in February, 1.9 per cent in March and five-tenths of 1 per cent in April.

Briton, American Push 'Pressure' To Stir Rhodesia

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young fly to Tanzania today to see President Julius Nyerere after six hours of talks with Prime Minister John Vorster, a key figure in their efforts to bring a peaceful end to white minority rule in neighboring Rhodesia.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha said Vorster was not asked to accept or reject the new British-American plan for Rhodesia and did neither.

"We fully discussed the Rhodesian issue, and I am not in a position to characterize the talks," he said.

Owen told reporters the plan still must be discussed with other interested parties. Young said nothing.

The two sought Vorster's backing because of the economic leverage South Africa has as landlocked Rhodesia's only trading partner. But Vorster has said repeatedly he would not pressure Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith. And like Smith he opposes the black nationalist Patriotic Front whose guerrillas have been fighting the white Rhodesian regime for five years.

It was the first meeting between Vorster and Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations who usually is an outspoken critic of South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation. But on this visit he has said nothing publicly about the racial situation in South Africa, and nobody would say how he and Vorster got along together.

Young also met for an hour with Interior Minister Connie P. Mulder, but the reason for the meeting was not explained.

Over the weekend, Owen and Young discussed the British-American proposals for a Rhodesian settlement with Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the leaders of the Patriotic Front, and with Nyerere and the other four presidents of the "front line" African nations that support the guerrillas.

The chief stumbling block to agreement appears to be what will happen to the Rhodesian and guerrilla armies during the transition to black majority rule.

Smith demands that he retain control of Rhodesia's armed forces and that the guerrillas be disarmed. The Patriotic Front demands that the guerrillas replace the regular army and air force.

Diplomatic sources said a compromise envisioned in the British-American plan would have both guerrillas and regulars confined to their bases while a British administrator supported by a U.N. peacekeeping force prepared for elections in which each adult among Rhodesia's 6.4 million blacks and 270,000 whites would have a vote.

Tropical Storm In Gulf Intensifying

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The first tropical storm of 1977 formed today in the Gulf of Mexico south of New Orleans, and the National Hurricane Center says it should gradually intensify.

The Hurricane Center in Miami said the center of the storm at 5 a.m., CDT, was about 200 miles due south of New Orleans, with highest sustained winds of 40 miles an hour.

The center of Tropical Storm Anita at 5 a.m. was near latitude 27.0 North, longitude 90.0 West, in the north-central Gulf.

Continued slow strengthening is likely today, forecasters said, with movement toward the west-northwest at 5 to 10 m.p.h.

Winds in the storm were approaching gale force a short distance off the Louisiana coast, where tides were climbing two to four feet above normal.

The storm grew out of a Tropical Depression that developed in the Gulf over the weekend.

Tropical storms have winds ranging from 39 to 73 m.p.h. Above 73 m.p.h., the storms become hurricanes.

The developing storm forced oil companies to evacuate about 1,000 workers in the Gulf as a precaution Monday afternoon and drove tides up as much as four feet in the New Orleans area.

Offshore oil rigs were ordered evacuated by Amoco Production Co., Chevron USA and Forest Oil Corp. of Lafayette, La.

Spokesmen for Gulf Oil, Exxon, Texaco and Shell said crews on their offshore rigs and platforms tied down equipment, but no other action was planned unless the storm took an unexpected turn.

Small boats were advised to remain in port from just north of Tampa to just west of Morgan City, La., about 70 miles southeast from New Orleans.

AFL-CIO Set To Back New Panama Pact

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO is set to become the first major group to support President Carter's plan to relinquish control of the Panama Canal.

The organization's executive council is expected to approve a resolution of support backing the President today.

Meanwhile, Carter arranged for a briefing for leaders from Georgia and Florida as part of his strategy of rallying support for the agreement.

A spokesman for the White House, which faces an uphill battle to build public support for the pact, said he hoped treaty negotiator Sol Linowitz could change some minds in the meeting.

Officials from Kentucky and Mississippi were briefed in a similar session last week. The spokesman said groups from other states will be invited if the briefings prove to be a success.

Traditionally the AFL-CIO is conservative in foreign policy and defense matters.

But on Monday, the council's president, George Meany, said he sees no reason "to lay claim to territorial rights that were established 70-odd years ago."

Meany, usually a hardliner on defense issues, told a news conference the history of American involvement in the canal is nothing to be proud of.

"I'm talking about the way the Panamanians were treated and the way we actually financed the revolution and sent in American troops," he said.

"My general attitude is that there is no particular reason for us holding onto territory 6,000 miles away just because we built the canal on somebody else's land back in 1904."

It would be the first endorsement by any major group since the battle lines were drawn over the treaty, under which the United States agrees to give control of the waterway to Panama by the year 2000.

Opposition to the treaty has come from Southern senators, conservative groups and veterans' organizations.

Carter has acknowledged that public support for the treaty is weak, but predicts he can win the necessary 67 Senate votes for ratification if he can sell it to the American people.

The treaty contains provisions protecting the employment and bargaining rights, wages and working conditions of Canal Zone workers. AFL-CIO officials said these clauses were a key factor in winning the labor federation's support.

Unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO represent about 13,000 American and Panamanian workers in the Canal Zone.

Carter telephoned Meany last Wednesday to enlist his support.

Meanwhile, Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards lost in an attempt to have the Southern Governors Conference formally oppose the treaty when a committee split, 3-3, on his motion.

Edwards said he still intends to "get all the governors' feelings" on the treaty and would push for a second vote on his resolution. Twelve governors are attending the conference in San Antonio, Tex.

Attendance

On the first full day of the new school year today, estimated attendance figures compiled for the Greenville City Schools reveals a student population of 5,100 plus.

Of this number, an estimated 2,456 are registered in kindergarten through grades six as follows — Eastern, 369; Elmhurst, 367; Third Street, 301; Sadie Sautler, 381; South Greenville, 501; and Wahl-Coates, 537.

The figure for seventh graders at Agnes Fullilove is estimated to be 381, and the Extended School Program figure is 64.

Aycock Junior High student body numbers about 914 at this point, and at Rose High the preliminary enrollment figure shows a student body of 1,218.

County Schools

According to a statement from Superintendent Arthur Alford, the Pitt County Schools all opened in an orderly fashion on Monday.

Attendance figures for today, the first full day of school and other data were unavailable at press time.

Incompetent

NEW YORK (AP) — A psychiatrist's report released today states that David Berkowitz is not mentally competent to stand trial on charges that he is the Son of Sam slayer who killed six persons and wounded seven others.

According to the report, Berkowitz "lacks the capacity to understand the proceedings against him or assist in his defense," said State Supreme Court Justice Gerald S. Held. Held read the cover letter of the report in court this morning.

The remainder of the report was ordered sealed, and all parties were forbidden to discuss its contents.

Vincent Seeks Seat On Council

Greenville attorney Charles M. Vincent filed today as a candidate for the City Council in the upcoming municipal elections.

Vincent, a lifelong resident of Greenville, commented in filing, "I anticipate tremendous change in Greenville resulting from economic and population growth in the immediate years ahead. My purpose in seeking this position is to assist in insuring this growth is orderly and for the best interest of our city and her citizens."

A graduate of the University of North Carolina where he received both undergraduate and law degrees, Vincent served as clerk to Chief U.S. District Judge John D. Larkins in 1973 and 1974. He was a visiting professor at the East Carolina University School of Business, teaching business law from 1974 through 1977. For the past two years, he has served as a member of the Greenville Board of Adjustments.

The attorney has been a partner in the law firm of Howard, Vincent and Duffus since 1975.

Vincent is on the board of directors of the Greenville Kiwanis Club and the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross. He is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church here.

He is a member of the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers and the American Trial Lawyers Association. Vincent was selected in 1977 as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Vincent of Greenville, the candidate is married to the former Sandra Dough of Aurora and they have two children.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

GOAL: HOME-LIKE ATMOSPHERE

Mabel Baker, charge nurse of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Psychiatric Unit, said every effort is being made to give the unit a home-like atmosphere.

With this in mind, she has asked Hotline to appeal for the following items for the Unit: A portable clothes washer, a portable clothes dryer, deacons' benches, pictures, radios, a stereo set, a floor lamp, magazine racks, book cases, an ice cream freezer, grilling utensils, saucepans, an electric frying pan, a Dutch oven, a guitar, a piano, a volleyball and net, a softball and bat, a badminton set, educational games and puzzles, magazine subscriptions, and local newspaper subscriptions.

Other items that might contribute to making the unit more cheery would also be welcome, Mrs. Baker said and cash contributions for purchasing some of the needed items would also be appreciated and would be tax-deductible. Inquiries may be called in to 757-4531 from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m.

Phased Deregulation On New Natural Gas Awaits Vote

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Southern Governors conference committee unanimously asked Congress today for a gradual removal of wellhead price controls on new natural gas.

The resolution, one of the main issues of the 43rd annual Southern Governors conference, goes before the entire body of 12 governors later today.

In an early morning session the resolutions committee, at the urging of Oklahoma Gov. David Boren, amended the resolution to read: "Domestic oil wellhead prices should be phased to the world market price and as excess profits tax, with plowback provisions, should be imposed instead of a wellhead tax to guard against excessive profits."

Boren's amendment also said that any emergency gasoline rationing plan should consider variations in per capita use of the fuel, the density of population and the availability of transportation other than the automobile.

"This phase deregulation approach I believe would have some impact now with Congress," said the Oklahoma governor. "It offers them a real alternative to what they are now considering and also it is consistent with President Carter's plan."

The resolution also was amended by Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards to urge the federal government to help Mexico build a gas pipeline to the Texas border and also to expedite the Alaskan gas pipeline.

Beseiged Ex-Convict Killed Wife, Son; Finally Himself

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — An ex-convict, driven by bitterness, killed his wife and son, then shot himself to death today after holding nearly 100 police at bay for 16 hours from a barricaded apartment, authorities said.

"God hates me, life is terrible, it stinks," said the gunman, Frank DeCorleto, 34, shortly before he took his own life.

"It's all over," a state police spokesman said as the siege came to an end.

Police Chief Clarence Drumm, one of the authorities who pleaded by telephone with DeCorleto to give himself up, said that at one point the gunman "alluded to the fact that society had treated him badly because he was an ex-con." He had served time for killing a woman in 1963 in Georgia.

At different points during the negotiations, DeCorleto blamed God, life and society, Drumm said.

Drumm had said during the night that DeCorleto would rather kill himself than return to prison. "He's intent on taking his own life. He feels he doesn't want to go back to jail," Drumm said.

Earlier, DeCorleto, telephoned the Hartford Courant and told a reporter he had shot his 22-year-old wife, Shioehon, then his 4-year-old son, Frank III, when the boy came running toward him.

"He said he had his son's blood on his hands and sobbed, 'All I had in the whole world was my son.'"

State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard said that on several occasions DeCorleto talked about his dead son and said he couldn't understand how he could have done such a thing.

The siege began shortly after 4 p.m. Monday, DeCorleto said he had a rifle with 500 rounds of ammunition, two shotguns with five or six boxes of shells and a pistol with 300 rounds of ammunition in the second-floor apartment.

He said he shot his wife because "she gave me a hard time," and the boy because "it's a rotten, stinking world."

"They're dead," he said. "I'm all boarded up. I've killed my four-year-old son. He's bleeding all over the place."

Drumm reported that police had planned an armed attack on the house shortly before dawn when telephone negotiations broke off.

"It was tough and go and we had to move before it got light," said Drumm. He said they wanted to move into the house before daylight when DeCorleto would have been able to shoot at residents going to work or in the streets.

He said discussions throughout the night with DeCorleto proved fruitless.

Shortly after 7 a.m., police heard a noise but weren't sure what it was. Police then fired a tear gas grenade into the white, wood-framed home. When it brought no response, three state policemen and a dog entered the house and found the bodies. The wife was found in the kitchen and the boy was found lying on the floor of the bedroom. DeCorleto's body was found on the floor of the bedroom.

Change Provisions For New Farm Bill

Wheat and feed grain farmers who have no acreage allotments or who have overplanted their allotments for these crops may become eligible for government disaster payments under the Farm Bill agreed to by congressional conferees, according to Stacy J. Evans, executive director of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under provisions of the conference bill, a farmer who has suffered reduced yields due to natural disaster may be eligible for a payment based on the number of acres actually planted for harvest, Evans said. In the past, payments were based on the farm's allotted acreage. In anticipation of possible adoption by Congress and enactment by the President and to speed resulting payments to farmers, Evans said ASCS will begin accepting disaster claims from all farms for wheat and feed grains (corn, sorghum and barley). However, no payments may be made under these provisions until enactment of the Farm Bill.

Farmers who wish to file or refile a disaster claim or wish more information concerning the disaster payment program should contact their county agricultural service center.

N.C. Soil Mapping Said On Schedule

Following an effort to increase soil mapping in the past year, the National Cooperative Soil Survey is on schedule and North Carolina is in the forefront of the effort, according to Jesse L. Hicks, director of the Soil Conservation Service in Raleigh.

Soil Conservation Service administrator R. M. Davis has disclosed that soil survey reports — detailing soil characteristics for farmers and other land users — will be completed on 150 counties in the nation this year. Fifty-four of these will be in the South, and four in North Carolina.

In addition, field surveys are in progress in 28 North Carolina counties. Two of these — Edgecombe and Mecklenburg — are complete and in line for early publication.

Free SCS publications showing purposes of surveys for farmers, home owners, builders, planners, recreation and other purposes can be obtained from SCS offices which serve every county in North Carolina.

Benefits of soil surveys are available to everyone without regard to race, creed, color, sex or national origin.

Some People are 'Milk Sensitive'

I don't drink milk often any more. When I want my children to drink milk I will occasionally join them with milk and cookies. I have a feeling that milk is not good for me and that the cramps that I get may be caused by it. — Mrs. G.C., N.J. Dear Mrs. C.:

Stomach cramps, nausea and diarrhea are common symptoms after drinking milk. Milk is such a universal food that few people ever connect the symptoms.

Many intestinal problems such as colitis may be confused with a condition known as "lactose intolerance," or the inability to digest milk. More and more doctors are recognizing that this condition must be suspected in patients who complain of abdominal discomfort after drinking milk.

The enzyme "lactase" normally acts on the sugar lactose that is contained in milk, ice cream, unprocessed cheese, sour cream and non-fermented dairy products. Some people cannot produce lactase. The result is that the sugar lactose is not digested, and consequently, builds up in large quantities in the system.

This increase of lactose is responsible for the nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and diarrhea that happens to people who are "milk sensitive."

Milk is considered to be the "perfect" food. Yet that perfect food can be imperfect for those who have this enzyme failure. Anyone who has been able, as you have, to make the relationship between milk and the symptoms I have mentioned should have the problem investigated. There are a number of tests that can positively determine if this disorder exists.

Sometimes doctors will instruct patients to stop drinking milk or eating milk products in any form for a period of two weeks. You might try this, and if all of your symptoms disappear you may well be on the right track. After two weeks, you might take a glass or two of milk on an empty stomach. If the symptoms recur, you almost have proof positive that this is your problem. Blood studies taken at repeated intervals can further establish the diagnosis of lactose intolerance.

People who are positively identified as being lactose intolerant need not worry, for there are other nutrient foods that will supply the calcium and other minerals that are found in high concentration in milk.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Mixed Bag In Remedial Roles

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Programs the state university system offers academically unprepared students deal only partially with the gaps in their educational background, according to a study by the Research Triangle Institute.

The 526-page study was commissioned by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors in an effort to evaluate programs the state system offers academically unprepared students.

University officials, under pressure to increase the minority enrollment at predominantly white schools, have said many of the students they will be recruiting over the next five years will turn out to be in need of special help if they are to succeed.

Among the report's conclusions: —Appalachian State, East Carolina, Pembroke State, North Carolina Central, Western Carolina and Winston-Salem State universities all had good remedial programs.

—North Carolina A&T and North Carolina State universities have less comprehensive programs.

—UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Charlotte, UNC-Greensboro and UNC-Wilmington have poor programs and the attitude toward remedial work at those schools is that it "is generally considered a legitimate function of other institutions."

UNC-Chapel Hill was especially bad, the report says. Officials at the school seemed to think that their institution was "clearly at the apex of the university system" and shouldn't have to worry about remedial work.

Elizabeth City State and Fayetteville State universities have no remedial courses at all, the report says.

But the report concludes that among the worst shortcomings of the entire system is that even where remedial programs are functioning, officials make no effort to evaluate them by keeping track of how students do after they complete the remedial courses.

Deregulation Too Costly, Says Hunt

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt of North Carolina says he will oppose a move by some Southern governors to endorse deregulation of natural gas prices, his office announced today.

In a statement released during the second day of the Southern Governors Conference in San Antonio, Tex., Hunt said "deregulation just isn't worth the price we would have to pay for it," in view of the enormous inflationary cost of deregulation and pessimistic estimates of its impact on natural gas supplies. The governors were to consider taking a stand on deregulation this afternoon. Governors from gas producing states in the South have expressed strong support for deregulation. Hunt said he supports the Carter administration's proposal to allow the ceiling on natural gas prices to increase from $1.43 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75.

It has been estimated that this would mean a 1.1 trillion cubic foot increase in natural gas supplies, at a cost to the nation of $16 billion by 1985.

Total deregulation, however, would drive the cost to at least $2.50 per thousand cubic feet, and that would bring in only 0.4 trillion more cubic feet, at a cost of $70 billion, Hunt said, citing figures from the White House, the Office of Technology Assessment, the congressional budget office, the Library of Congress and the House subcommittee on energy and power.

"We have to ask ourselves whether our economy can bear that inflationary burden," Hunt said. He said the $70 billion alone would boost the cost of living index in this country by 1.6 per cent. That, he added, "doesn't include the 'ripple' effect that the increase would have on the economy."

Three Traffic Accidents Here

An estimated $3,100 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:40 p.m. mishap on Evans Street, 50 feet North of the 16th Street intersection involving cars driven by Winfred Lynn Raynor of Route 2, Snow Hill and Susan Leigh Tucker of 109 Lord Ashley Dr.

Investigators, who charged Miss Tucker with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Raynor car and $1,200 to the Tucker auto.

Miss Tucker and a passenger in her car were reported injured in the collision.

Cars driven by Johnny Ray Wainwright and Judy Hardison Radford of Route 5, Greenville, collided about 5 p.m. on Truman Street, 30 feet South of the Dickinson Avenue intersection, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Wainwright car and $250 damage to the Hardison auto.

Police reported a truck driven by Rexford Eugene Piner Jr. of 320 East 10th St. collided with a car driven by Rachel Overton Moore of 420 Hooker Rd. about 7:50 a.m. on Tenth Street, 80 feet West of the Charles Street intersection.

Damage was estimated at $250 to the truck and $100 to the Moore auto.

Hotel Lobby Design Aimed At Single Women's Comfort

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press Writer

Single women who are traveling alone for business or pleasure will find a new kind of welcome mat at hotels. For example, "lobby lounges are making a comeback and that is good news for women," points out international interior designer, Ellen Lehman McCluskey of New York.

"Women don't want to go into bars, but they don't want to eat in their bedrooms and be closeted, even if they are shy. They feel strange alone in formal dining rooms. They want to see a little life when they travel and lobby lounges can provide it. They can see the world pass by and do it without looking out of order as they sip tea or something stronger."

A leading interior designer of hotels — she has been involved in more than 50 partial or complete decorating enterprises in hotels — Mrs. McCluskey is a big influence on design thinking.

"In Washington the Hilton lobby has a modernized gazebo with tables and a piano right in the middle of the lobby, an ideal location for putting women at ease," she explained.

At the Waldorf-Astoria her octagonal gazebo at Peacock Alley spills out into the lobby. In London she put trellises in the lobby lounge of the Churchill, and she has revitalized hotel lobbies in Hamburg and Monte Carlo.

Some lobby lounges, such as the turn-of-the-century Palm Court at the Plaza Hotel in New York, survived the ax when lounges disappeared decades ago. Now Mrs. McCluskey has begun a restoration of the area around it with a stunning runner and carpet of English roses that was recreated from a floral design in early photographs of the hotel.

New attitudes are apparent in the reception given to lone woman diners, Mrs. McCluskey points out.

"In some hotels it always has been a well kept secret where the dining room is located. Now they are being updated and one hotel has partitioned a big area into four smaller dining rooms, so lone women need not feel strange as they do walking into an enormous room. Headwaiters are instructed to take care of single women especially since everything has become less formal."

Mrs. McCluskey suggests candlelight for dining tables because "it is more flattering to women," and she often uses covered table cloths and real flowers. Hotels have become more competitive so they are genuinely interested in doing what is best, she says.

Bedrooms and bathrooms have better lighting too, she maintains, so that "you don't go downstairs and see yourself in another mirror and say 'oh, my gosh,'" as she has done.

Ever mindful of women's needs, Mrs. McCluskey does not ignore men. She is careful to suggest for women what will also please men, whether she decorates for residences, restaurants or hotels. Right now she is involved in the rebuilding of Atlantic City to suit its new image as a gambling center, and she isn't thinking along typical lines.

"I'm emphasizing a family point of view in decorating the Palace. I see it as a place, more like Monte Carlo, for a family to go on a vacation. Atlantic City will recapture more of the gingerbread, art-deco look of its heyday."

New Chapter For A Storybook Princess

By RAFAELA SEPPALA
PARIS (UPI) — Europe's storybook princess has found her Prince Charming, putting an end to years of royal speculation and romantic rumors.

Princess Caroline of Monaco is to be married next June to a dashing French playboy-businessman 17 years older than she is. The ceremony promises to be a remake of the fairy-tale wedding of her mother, the former Grace Kelly of Hollywood and Philadelphia, to Prince Rainier III, the sovereign of Monaco and holder of no fewer than 140 titles of nobility, on April 19, 1956.

The engagement of Her Serene Highness Princess Caroline Louise Marguerite, 20, of the princely house of Grimaldi, to Philippe Michel Junot, 37, was announced Thursday. It came as no surprise to their friends in Paris or to the 5,000 Monegasques at home.

Over the past few months, the couple could be seen in the darkness of such Paris night clubs as Regine's or L'Aventure or water-skiing off the sun-drenched beaches of Monaco.

According to the official palace statement in which Rainier, 54, and Grace, 47, announced the engagement, Caroline and Junot first met at the home of a mutual friend in December 1975.

An easy camaraderie quickly developed between them. Friends say Junot repeatedly insisted he just "liked" Caroline and pointed out that love was another matter. Caroline also appeared to consider him just a friend and continued to date many others.

Separated by one of Junot's long business trips as manager of an investment counseling firm that has offices both in Paris and in Montreal, the two friends met again at the splashy opening of the New York branch of Regine's in the spring of 1976 and suddenly they were more than just friends.

This occurred just after Caroline, according to palace sources, promised her mother not to marry for two years.

Caroline, a beautiful young woman with chestnut hair and flashing blue eyes, had become the darling of paparazzi street photographers.

European magazines were filled with her pictures and her name was linked to virtually every eligible nobleman or millionaire in sight, including Prince Charles, whom she had never met.

Inevitably, Princess Grace frowned on her daughter's new relationship with Junot. It was no secret that Grace, herself the daughter of a onetime bricklayer who became a rich contractor, would have preferred somebody younger and titled for her daughter.

Junot has taken the trouble to deny that he is a descendant of one of Napoleon's generals, and indeed is proud of his descent from a family of dyed-in-the-tricolor French republicans.

As her mother said, "Caroline wants to fly with her own wings, live on her own, this is natural and normal. She is more mature than I was at her age. But on the other hand she is more vulnerable."

Rainier welcomed Junot's appearance on the scene as giving Caroline "a certain stability." He was not opposed to the idea of Caroline's marrying a commoner out of love rather than royalty out of obligation and besides, it fitted Monaco's carefree image as a land where fairy tales come true.

"I don't want her to be a big girl," Rainier told friends recently, but even a monarch can't make time stand still.

No-Growth Policy Kills Hopes

There is considerable talk of a no-growth policy, but we would think that would not set very well with the millions of people still mired down in poverty.

No-growth to them means a hum-drum existence continued.

State Sen. Willis Whichard recognized this in a talk to the Rotary Club here Monday.

He asked what state government should do about the phenomenon of growth.

"I am not among the advocates of a no-growth philosophy," he said. "That philosophy in my view is hopeless as well as wrong."

"Moreover there is a need for growth in many areas, for many of our people still suffer in the backwaters of economic deprivation. But I think we can and must have some planning and policy regarding the nature of the growth and change that will inevitably occur."

He continued, "A growth policy should be positive in character rather than merely negative or repressive. It should attempt to determine what may and should happen as well as to deter what should not happen."

Much of our growth in this country has been at the expense of our land or natural resources or even certain groups of people.

That, however, is no reason to talk about the end of growth; rather we must have planned growth that benefits our people without hurting the environment.

We have too many unmet needs to talk about ending economic growth. As Sen. Whichard points out the no-growth concept is really hopeless.

Little Of Significance Accomplished

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's trip to China may have been positive but it didn't seem to produce much.

The secretary commented that the talks "enhanced our mutual understanding of a wide range of issues."

That we interpret as meaning little significant was accomplished.

The trip, then, was only a first step. It could lead to more serious negotiations for better relations between our two countries.

Fewer In Reform Schools

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Despite shortages of funds, a deadline which keeps moving farther into the future, and resistance to the idea by some judges and corrections officials, status offenders are gradually being kept out of North Carolina's juvenile training schools.

The deadline originally set for removal of status offenders from the reform schools, and provision by local governments of alternative treatment, was July 1 of this year.

But the state put up only $250,000 to get the program of alternative treatment underway. Only 31 counties were able to get planning started.

Change Date

The 1977 General Assembly decided the deadline had to be extended until July 1, 1978, and there are strong indications another extension will prove necessary when the assembly convenes next May. Time and money will both be short, and the report of a study commission established by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. will not be ready for legislative action until 1979.

Thus, the state is obviously set for another delay until full consideration can be given to the report of that commission which will call for major revision of the entire juvenile justice system, with emphasis on education and rehabilitation of juvenile offenders.

Meanwhile, says Dennis Grady, director of the community alternative treatment office in the Department of Human Resources, the state has approximately $1 million for distribution to counties ready to move ahead now in developing and expanding programs for status offenders.

The status offenders (non-criminal juveniles sent to training schools for school truancy, running away, being discipline problems at home) are to be provided help through such methods as special foster care, group homes, training centers, wilderness camps, counseling, psychiatric care, special school programs, etc.

Not Enough

Obviously the limited amount of money won't go very far in reaching the goal of removing all status offenders from the training schools, Grady said.

BILL NOBLITT

At the recent convention of county commissioners, that was the main question he was asked, Grady said. His response was that local officials and interested citizens must band together to promote the effort in the General Assembly.

How much would an effective program cost? Grady says a study now underway will answer how many status offenders, potential status offenders, and programs to help them would be needed. At one time, officials were seeking $3 million, but that figure will be revised upward.

The focus of attention on alternative treatment programs for status offenders is having an effect on the training school population even though a coordinated effort still is lacking.

Figures from the Youth Services Division of the Department of Human Resources show that the status offender population in the training schools is down. During 1976, a total of 466 status offenders were among the 1,544 admissions to the system. That represents about one-third of the population. In the past, status offenders made up more than half the population.

"The judges and local resources are interested, and are trying to keep these youngsters out of the training schools. They are exploring the various ways of treating them, and finding programs where possible," Grady says. Most of those committed on status offenses, he added, are not first offenders, but those who have been before the courts before.

The Juvenile Code Revision Commission is currently holding hearings and word sessions preparatory to writing its report.

Good Friends Forgotten

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Back in June of 1976, Jimmy Carter delivered himself of a formal statement on the matter of China. He then had the Democratic nomination locked up; he was under no pressure to make promises he might later regret.

Mr. Carter said that he favored restoration of full diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China, but he added a condition. He favored normalization, he said, "only on a basis in which there are assurances that the People's Republic will not interfere with Taiwan and will respect our trade and commitments to Taiwan."

A little more than a year earlier, speaking to the American Chamber of Commerce in Tokyo, Mr. Carter laid down a general principle applicable to the case at hand. A policy of detente with China should be pursued, he said, "but not at the expense of close cooperation and consultation with our friends and allies."

Mr. Carter emphasized that "we must again reorient our foreign policy attention toward our friends."

The United States has no firmer friend in the world than it has in Taiwan. Our commitments, wrapped up in the Mutual Defense Treaty of 1954, are too plain to be misunderstood. The treaty, by constitutional definition, is part of the "supreme law of the land."

For the Carter administration to abandon our friends on Formosa, and to abrogate a treaty of more than twenty years' standing, would be an act of palpable dishonor. And if honor no longer matters in the conduct of foreign policy, the abandonment of Taiwan may be described as simply stupid.

What is this talk of "normalization"? It is little more than the chatter of a few intellectuals who tend to put form ahead of substance. By "normalization" apparently is meant the exchange of ambassadors, rather than the exchange of lesser diplomats. The term involves embassies instead of liaison offices; it involves limousines instead of four-door sedans; it involves large and expensive staffs instead of small and frugal staffs; it involves — oh, dear! — who is to sit where at formal dinners. A mere chief of a liaison office sits somewhere south of left field.

Secretary Vance's purpose in going to Peking last week was to pursue this rapid business of "normalization."

Why? Seriously, why? The Carter administration has made no case whatever in support of such a policy. It is not as if we had no means of communication with the People's Republic of China. The Communists have a liaison office out at Connecticut Avenue and Kalorama Road, headed by an efficient fellow named Huang Chen. We have a liaison office in Peking, headed by Leonard Woodcock. When our State Department has business to transact, our guys telephone their guys. The arrangement works just fine.

What would be gained by "normalization"? Some putative benefits could be cited: limited tourist travel, limited press coverage, more frequent interchange of scholars and ping pong players. But these advantages would be purchased at a terrible price, the price

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO says President Carter's welfare reform plan would create more than a million low-paying jobs that would undercut the nation's wage structure.

Sharply critical of several key elements in the President's package, the labor federation charged Monday the plan would result in a "pool of second-class citizens" and would not provide adequate aid for a family of four.

The organization's executive council said the Carter proposal "falls far short of what is needed to provide the poor with decent jobs or adequate income."

The federation's statement is among the first in what is likely to be a salvo of criticism leveled against the complex welfare reform package by many of the special interests groups that would be affected.

The National Governors Conference, meeting early next month in Detroit, is likely to endorse the welfare measure, but a source said the group is compiling "a growing list of unanswered questions."

The AFL-CIO leaders praised parts of Carter's proposal, but called for an increase in the benefit level proposed by the President. They also favor retaining the food stamp program and revamping the public service wage scale the President recommended.

"The jobs program is really the only new element in the Carter plan," said one state AFL-CIO leader. "It is an unknown. We're studying it with a fine-tooth comb."

Carter's plan would create 1.4 million public service jobs for the out-of-work poor. They would be paid at or near the minimum wage, now $2.30 an hour, or $4,784 a year for a 40-hour week.

The plan would phase out 725,000 public service jobs that pay the prevailing wage through Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Other Editors Say: Rarely A 'No' Vote

(Washington Daily News)

There are some statewide bond issues that voters over North Carolina just accept without much debate and approve at the polls because over the years it just has seemed wise to do so.

The governor of North Carolina, Jim Hunt, recently called upon some 500 county commissioners over the state to support the $300 million road bond issue and the $200 million clean water bond issue in the November voting.

Under ordinary circumstances, residents of North Carolina hardly would think of voting against any highway bond issue. It falls just about in the same category as God and motherhood, and the general feeling seems to be that "everybody is in favor."

The 500 county commissioners in a statewide convention hardly need much urging on this score. Insofar as we remember no road bond issue has ever failed in our state, and we expect this $300 bond issue to pass handily.

However, from our own standpoint, we would like to know for a change just what this Pamlico area can expect if the issue passes. For too many times we have been told that we would get our fair share of the statewide road bond issues, but somehow we must wonder what constituted that "fair share." We would like to see some things spelled out clearly now.

It is not so much that any of us will be against the issue. It is that we can have far more enthusiasm for its passage if we are told directly and clearly that we will get our share of the money right here in this area.

The clean water bond issue, we believe, faces no trouble. That one word in the title "clean" just about insures passage. We, the voters, would hardly dare defeat the word "clean" when applied to water and on a statewide basis.

We feel sure that Governor Hunt wants a resounding victory on both issues, and we cannot blame him for that. Frankly, we see no need for opposition to either the highway bond issue or the clean water bond issue.

Yet, this Pamlico area of which we are a part deserves some consideration which too often in the past we feel we have not received.

Simply and clearly, what can Beaufort and Hyde Counties expect when this $300 million highway bond issue passes?

THE INSIDE REPORT

'Ricochet' On Brzezinski

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — After explaining to Zbigniew Brzezinski that he wanted to lunch alone with Henry Kissinger last week, President Carter suddenly changed his mind and invited not Brzezinski but the top White House aide, Hamilton Jordan, to join him.

In an earlier day, such treatment of the President's national security adviser would have been deemed cavalier. It is unthinkable that predecessors of Brzezinski such as McGeorge Bundy, Walt W. Rostow or the fabled Dr. Kissinger would have accepted it.

In the Carter White House, however, Dr. Brzezinski not only blithely allowed himself to be odd man out but seemed unperturbed. "Remember," one White House aide told us in trying to establish a rationale for Brzezinski's exclusion, "there's a new attitude in the Carter White House — an attitude of mutual trust."

Perhaps. But the exclusion of Brzezinski was a symbolic act that points up this danger: lack of overall foreign policy coordination that has led to flatly contradictory positions by bureaucratic interests competing for Mr. Carter's favor; the result is bewilderment in foreign embassies and among the bureaucrats themselves.

It would be grossly unfair to blame this on Brzezinski. It is the President who sets the style and dictates the way he wants things done. The handling of the Carter-Kissinger luncheon on the terrace outside the Oval Office is a case in point.

Brzezinski's exclusion cannot be explained, as some White House aides say — ing, by the "limited" subject matter: the President's wooing of Kissinger to support the Panama Canal treaty. In fact, the two men ranged over many issues far removed from Panama. Jordan, in charge of rounding up enough Senators for ratification, took an active role in the conversation.

Brzezinski should by right have been there both to protect the President from possible end runs by the formidable Kissinger and to soak up a little of Kissinger's foreign policy lore. Most important, word of his absence immediately fed the capital's rumor mills, already choked with tales of Brzezinski's limited authority over the bureaucracy. Herewith a sampler:

To the editor:

"There ain't no free lunch."

It seems we all want to get something for nothing. The fact that I don't pay for my lunch doesn't make it free. Somebody picks up the tab... and that's why government handouts are as absurd as free lunches.

Government doesn't make goods. Everything produced is produced by the people... everything government gives us, it must first take from us. The only money government has to spend is that which is taxed or borrowed from our earnings.

When government decides to spend more than it gets from us, the printing press begins to roll. This devalues our dollar, and most folks call it inflation. It's the price we have to pay when we allow government to see us the myth of the free lunch.

Strength For Today

TO THE MOUNTAIN TOPS

If you have ever been in a section of the world which is below sea level, you have no doubt been entirely unaware of the fact.

Morally and spiritually, many people often live below sea level without realizing it. They have never been on the mountain tops of peace and confidence, which belief in God establishes in one's heart. They have never known what it means to have an experience of prayer which lifted them up as with eagles' wings and caused them to walk through hours and perhaps days with light and joyful steps.

Faith abides in the mountain tops of life. Although faith is a gift of God, it is true also that we have to do something to deserve that gift. We have to be willing to move out of the areas which spiritually are below sea level and follow the rough track of renunciations and self-effacement until we have scaled the mountain peaks of faith.

Less Certainty In Old Myths

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — We deal with myths all the time, and we learn to live with and accept them and even base economic and political policy on them, and sometimes we never really learn the truth.

But of late a few hissing sounds suggest that a few myths have been deflated if not punctured by new evidence, or at least we must assume some air is filtering from them until future studies create new truths or myths.

There's the assumption we must maintain free international trade for the sake of lower consumer prices. It is a controversial assumption, but it is widely adhered to by many economists and government officials.

But at least one government economist has doubts. He claims that low-cost apparel imports "do not result in any price benefit to the consumer."

Instead, he maintains, clothing retailers absorb the lower wholesale prices and pass on the goods to the consumer at prices similar to those of more expensively produced domestic goods.

Author of the report is Vladimir Pregelj, an economist of the Library of Congress, who conducted his studies at the urging of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is forever wrestling with the problem of imports.

Now that certainty has been reduced to a lesser level of confidence, those who must deal with the discussion of free trade versus trade restrictions, such as the White House and Congress, may begin to doubt that savings exist in other areas, such as shoes, as well.

It is the Census Bureau that provides evidence that would seem to deflate one of the most persistent economic assumptions of recent years, that home ownership is all but impossible for most new households.

Soaring prices, it is said, have priced home ownership beyond the means of ordinary families and threatened to end a steady upward rise since World War II in the percentage of owner-occupied dwellings.

But the Census Bureau claims that between 1970 and 1976 home ownership rose to 65.1 per cent from 63.3 per cent of all households, despite those big prices and the relatively high rate of unemployment.

Again, the so-called experts are confounded, and it won't be long before they'll respond with evidence that would suggest the contrary. In the meantime, there are some plausible explanations.

First, the meaning of the word household is changing.

More than one-half of American homes are inhabited by one or two persons, which permits the owner to apply more of his or her income to housing expenditures.

Couples are marrying later, and that often permits them time to acquire savings, particularly for the jumbo down payments needed on the more expensive homes. And they are having fewer children, again reducing costs.

Other myths are being deflated every day — in Congress, the White House, Wall Street, business and academia. But perhaps the most pervasive myth of all seems indestructible — the myth that continues to get local, state and national government into trouble, the myth that somebody else will pay.

Last seen, that myth was full of gas and floating high.

By The Associated Press
High pressure that is persisting over North Carolina is expected to produce mostly sunny skies during the day and fair skies at night for the next several days.

The only exception will be some scattered thundershowers, mainly during the afternoons and evenings in the mountains and along the coast.

Temperatures ranged generally from the mid 80s to the low 90s over the state Monday and similar readings were expected today and Wednesday.

High readings Monday included Charlotte 91, Greensboro and Raleigh 88, Wilmington 86 and Asheville 84. Lows this morning were in the upper 60s to low 70s.

Money For New Senior Centers Allotted Area

WASHINGTON, N. C. — This region has been allocated $24,409 for the acquisition, alteration and renovation of buildings to be used as "Senior Centers," according to Kathy Donoghue, who addressed the Mid-East Commission Board last Thursday.

Ms. Donoghue is "Aging Director." She said applications for funds out of this money are due in the Division of Aging Office in Raleigh by Sept. 15. She said the Williamston-Martin County Senior Center is applying for funds, she knows, and six other organizations are also interested in applying.

She requested the Board to authorize a committee from the Regional Older Adults Advisory Committee to rank the applications prior to Sept. 15. Criminal Justice Director Ted Shaw told the Board that the region has been allocated $22,471 for planning and $98,543 for projects. Two pending FY1977 applications in the amount of $328,000 are close to final approval, he said.

Manpower Director John Robertson said Manpower contracts were negotiated in Raleigh this week. He told them of plans to establish a regional manpower information consortium including businessmen, technical school personnel, employment Security Commission representatives and Manpower Program operators. The groups should be established Oct. 1, he said.

Training meetings will be held the third week in September and the second week in October for members of the Regional Manpower Advisory Committee.

Executive Director Bruce Beasley said the Town of Kelford in Bertie County has requested membership and has paid the assessment. The request was unanimously approved. Beasley continued discussion begun in previous meetings of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976, which authorized the governor of a state to designate regions in the state to handle solid waste management planning. He presented the Board with a resolution requesting Gov. Hunt to designate the Mid-East Commission to handle solid waste planning for Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties. The Governor must designate the planning regions by Oct. 21, Beasley said. The Board agreed to send copies of the resolution to all municipal and county managers for their review of this course of action.

Local Government Coordinator Wayne Harris told the Board of the approval of Tri-County Airport Authority's project for construction and expansion of facilities. The Economic Development Administration funded the project for $167,000.

Harris noted that the Commission is assisting the preparation of eight applications for recreation grants, through the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

In other business, the Board: —approved 10 clearinghouse project applications;

—was introduced to new Commission staff members, Bill Shelly, Community Development planner and Cy Grant, Assistant Local Government Coordinator;

—welcomed new Emergency Medical Services Committee Chairman Ray Eubanks of Grifton as a Board member.

Network Gives Data To BBB

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Officials of the PTL television network have provided preliminary financial information to the local Better Business Bureau. They also tentatively promised a complete audit within two days.

The information was provided Monday after Ted Law, president of the Charlotte Better Business Bureau, said last week that the Charlotte-based evangelical television network might go on the bureau's national unapproved donations list if it didn't come up with the information.

Law said he received "the majority of what I need" Monday to approve PTL for Better Business Bureau listing. But he added, "a certified audit is the key. They said they would get it to me, hopefully in a day or two."

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — The prospect of a large manufacturing firm coming to Person County and creating up to 300 new jobs has been met with mixed emotions — and provoked one of the most heated controversies in memory.

The new industry will bring unionism with it, but a large part of the county is not willing to give it up just for that reason.

Only a handful of the county's 12,000 working men and women — 12 sheet metal workers and a few in subcontracting work — are union members. Most people in this area near the Virginia border would just as soon keep things that way.

No sizeable industry has come to Person County in recent years.

But now Brockway Glass Co. of Brockway, Pa., is considering an industrial park just south of Roxboro as one of three possible locations for a new plant. The tax revenues and jobs generated by such a facility would bolster the county's economy.

But Brockway employees elsewhere are unionized, and some local residents wonder whether increased union membership in Person County is too high a price to pay for industrial development.

When Brockway representatives asked the county's Economic Development Commission what impact the plant might have locally, the response they got was that a unionized industry would not be welcome.

"We were afraid that any union activity at Brockway would not be contained to the plant and would get into other industries," said R. Michael Carden, a Roxboro attorney who served as chairman of the development group.

The group also told Brockway representatives that their hourly wage scale — ranging from $4.95 to more than $8 — was so high it might price some existing industries out of the local labor market and drive them away.

But the panel misjudged the feelings of many of the 5,000 people in the county. When its role in the Brockway negotiations became known last month, it touched off a furor that has not subsided yet.

"When someone is thinking about coming in an investing millions of dollars in a new plant, you don't just say, 'We want you only under these conditions,'" one local official said.

Tommy Bowes, a county commissioner, said a petition was signed by about 1,000 Person County residents and sent to Brockway officials, encouraging them to select the area for the new plant.

"If Brockway coming to Person County meant 2,500 people were going to be making $8 an hour, I might have to do it (pay comparable wages) myself," said Bowes, who runs a small grocery store. "But that's not what we're talking about. I don't see how 300 new jobs can do anything but help Person County."

Brockway representatives told local officials they would bring 60 employees — 30 in management and 30 unionized workers — to set up the new plant after the site is determined.

Besides Person County, Brockway is understood to be considering Reidsville, N.C., and Danville, Va., for the facility, which would eventually employ about 300 persons.

The plant would produce glass containers for breweries and pharmaceutical companies.

Because of North Carolina's right-to-work laws, employees of a Brockway plant here would not have to become union members. And there is some evidence that Person County residents would not be inclined to do so.

During the past two years, production and maintenance workers at Loxgreen Co., which manufactures storm doors and windows, and at the Carolina Power & Light Co. plant here have voted down union representation by overwhelming margins.

"Since we don't have any unions to speak of, you'd have to assume people here aren't all that hepped up about them," said Julia James, executive vice president of the Person County Chamber of Commerce. Still, Mrs. James said she was wary of a unionized plant here. "Of course it would have an impact, and that's what we told Brockway," she said. "If someone asks you, 'If I hit you, will it hurt?' and you say, 'No,' you're lying."

Wages here are relatively low. The average manufacturing employee made $181.59 a week during the fourth quarter of 1976 — below the statewide average of $184.31 for the same period, which was the lowest in the nation.

"We need higher-paying industries if we're going to keep the young people here," one local official said. "If we don't get Brockway, we may never see an opportunity like this in Person County again."

Camden and Mrs. James emphasized that "no one ever said 'no' to Brockway coming here." But some wonder whether the stand of the development commission — which has since resigned en masse in a dispute over its authority and jurisdiction — has jeopardized Person County's chances to land the Brockway plant.

"I think the development commission did Person County a disservice," said Bowes. "I hope we've learned our lesson."

Klan's Reign Of Terror Still Recalled By Columbus County

By LORI COOKE

Associated Press Writer

It's 25 years in the past now, but some people in coastal Columbus County still remember a reign of terror blamed on the Ku Klux Klan, when both blacks and whites were victims.

The Whiteville News-Reporter intervened and paid a price. In a series of stories in the early 1950's, the twice-weekly newspaper exposed the Klan and its doings. The reporting won the paper a Pulitzer Prize for meritorious service, but a rash of cancellations sent its circulation spiraling.

Publisher James High said in a telephone interview the News-Reporter's circulation was just over 7,000 in the early 1950s. The Klan incidents and stories occurred from 1951-1953 and the circulation took a downturn. By 1958, when High joined the paper, the circulation was 4,250.

Now, it's up to 9,250. High thinks time has something to do with that; "time heals a lot of things," he said.

In the early 1950s, the Klan in this southeastern corner of the state near the South Carolina line was blamed in several beatings which terrorized the community. High says the motive against black targets was apparently "putting them in their place."

In the case of white victims, the Klan claimed to be acting against adulterers and fornicators.

In one incident, recalled by a former News-Reporter staff member, the Klan picked up a couple indulging in such behavior, took them across the border to South Carolina and administered a beating there. Crossing a state line was a violation of the federal kidnapping statute, and the FBI entered the case.

Former Columbus County Sheriff Hugh Nance, who conducted his own investigations, recalls that the situation then was "right drastic."

"There was quite a bit of violence and floggings," Nance said. Nobody, he said, "could tell you really why," although Item: Central Intelligence director Stansfield Turner failed to coordinate with Brzezinski the CIA's strong opposition to the proposed U.S. sale to Iran AWACS (early warning) aircraft. A letter from Turner to Congress warning against the sale for security reasons damaged the administration's real position: strong support of the sale.

Item: One of Turner's National Intelligence officers told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee behind closed doors in June that withdrawing American troops from South Korea would incur "unacceptable risks" to the U.S. A few hours later, Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Philip Habib, Under Secretary of State, baffled the same committee by saying the administration favors the troop pullout.

Item: By agreement with presidential press secretary Jody Powell, Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke on Aug. 18 formally briefed the press on Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's China trip. The next day, Brzezinski summoned a dozen reporters for a "worldwide" briefing — which turned into a second Vance-to-China analysis. There was no coordination with the State Department.

Item: Although no one publicly admits it, aides close to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance insist he is admitted to the flow of policy decisions only at the last moment, straining relations with the White House.

A classic case: The deliberately hostile reception here for then Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin shortly before the Israeli election last spring, followed by an open-air reception for his successor, Menachem Begin. This seeming preference for Begin, who is infinitely more menacing to U.S. Mideast interests than Rabin ever was, was more a result of thoughtlessness than intention.

"We get a hip-shot from Zbig saying, 'This is what the President wants,' but it's not thought through at all," one middle-level State Department official told us. These hip-shots are undoubtedly fired by the President himself, but they are ricocheting on his adviser for national security.

"The AFL-CIO insists that no individual should be required to take a job, public or private, at less than the prevailing wage," the executive council said in a statement.

The prevailing wage varies according to job description. In Baltimore, for example, CETA pays $9,000 for a counselor for Prisoners' Aid of Maryland and a clerk-typist in a state agency receives $6,880.

Many CETA jobs pay more than $10,000 a year.

Brock Would Rather Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Now that the stolen base record is his, Lou Brock wants the St. Louis Cardinals to steal up on the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East race.

Brock swiped the 892nd and 893rd bases of his career Monday night, breaking Ty Cobb's 49-year-old record. But despite Brock's personal heroics, his St. Louis Cardinals dropped a 4-3 verdict to the San Diego Padres.

"It seems that every major record I've been involved in, the club has been losing," said the Cardinals' left fielder. "Now that I'm through with this one, maybe we can start winning again."

The Cardinals are in fourth place, nine games behind Philadelphia, after suffering their fifth straight defeat.

Brock walked to lead off the game and promptly stole second, tying Cobb's career mark and continuing to third when catcher Dave Roberts' throw sailed into center field. He later scored to ignite the Cards' three-run rally off Padres' starter Dave Freisleben.

Brock set the record in the seventh after reaching first base on a fielder's choice, then again stealing second on the first pitch.

"There hasn't been a lot of pressure on me the last few weeks, no more than there has been all year," Brock said.

Then in the eighth, Mike Ivie blasted a two-run homer to power the Padres to a come-from-behind victory.

In other NL games Monday, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 3-2 in 14 innings, Los Angeles defeated Chicago 4-1 and Montreal defeated Cincinnati 7-2.

Phillies 3, Braves 2, 14 innings
Dave Johnson walked with the bases loaded to force in the winning run in the 14th inning as Philadelphia nipped Atlanta. Johnson was the fourth batter walked by Braves reliever Steve Hargan in the inning.

The victory snapped a five-game Philadelphia losing streak and boosted the Phillies' NL East lead to four games over idle Pittsburgh.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 1

A two-run homer by Reggie Smith backed Tommy John's eight-hitter as Los Angeles defeated Chicago and ran its victory string to four. Bill Russell and Ron Cey singled home first-inning runs and the Dodgers managed only two more hits until Smith followed a two-out single by Russell in the seventh inning with his 25th home run of the season.

The victory enabled Los Angeles to improve its lead over Cincinnati in the NL West to 9½ games.

Expos 7, Reds 2

A former teammate — Tony Perez — turned against Cincinnati by smashing a two-run homer and an RBI single to spark Montreal over the Reds. Perez' single highlighted the Expos' four-run fifth inning.

Gary Carter also homered and doubled for Montreal, while Johnny Bench slammed his 29th home run of the season in the second for Cincinnati.

defensive back Roscoe Word as they reached the limit. The other victims were linebacker Larry Ball, defensive end Tim Guy, tight end Gary Butler and running back Robert Morgan.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Bears asked waivers on veteran tight end Doug Kingsriter and four rookies: defensive back Ron Bush, running back Rod Wellington, defensive back Terry Irvin and wide receiver Gerald Butler.

The Oakland Raiders traded linebacker Rik Bonness to the Buccaneers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

The Minnesota Vikings cut four players, the San Diego Chargers dropped five including veteran kicker Ray Wersching.

Worst Record

Rice's Homers Wasted; Chambliss' Is Winner

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Home runs are old hat to Jim Rice, Chris Chambliss...and now Duane Kuiper.

While Rice slammed three wasted homers in the Boston Red Sox's 8-7 loss to the Oakland A's and Chambliss — whose dramatic ninth-inning homer gave the New York Yankees the 1976 American League pennant — slugged a pinch three-run shot to again turn back the Kansas City Royals 5-3, Kuiper got into the act with the very first home run of his three-year big league career.

"This should put to rest forever the question of whether the ball is juiced up this year," quipped the Cleveland second baseman after his blast triggered a three-homer first inning that started the Indians to a 9-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

In the only other AL games, the Baltimore Orioles downed the California Angels 6-1 and the Minnesota Twins won a doubleheader from the Toronto Blue Jays 7-6 in 10 innings and 6-5.

Kuiper's maiden homer helped the Indians turn the tables on the slugging White Sox. Andre Thornton and Bruce Bochte also connected in the first inning and Thornton added another homer in the seventh as Cleveland breezed behind Rick Waits' six-hit pitching.

Kuiper, who had failed to hit the ball out of the park in 1,381 previous trips to the plate — the longest current string of homerless at-bats in the majors — was greeted by the entire Cleveland bench as he crossed home plate.

"It was exciting, believe me," he said. "At first, I didn't think it was going out, but I never think they're going to go out."

A's 8, Red Sox 7

Rice's three homers weren't enough as Oakland's Mitchell Page hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and a tie-breaking solo shot off Boston relief ace Bill Campbell in the ninth. "The homers don't mean much when you lose," said Rice, who had been homerless since Aug. 12.

Yankees 5, Royals 3
Chambliss' three-run shot off reliever Doug Bird with two out in the eighth nullified Kansas City homers by George Brett and Al Cowens off Catfish Hunter. It gave the Yankees to their 19th triumph in 22 games and a three-game edge over runner-up Boston in the AL East.

Meanwhile, the Royals' lead was sliced to 2½ games over Minnesota in the West.

Orioles 6, Angels 1

Pat Kelly's grand slam home run in the seventh inning off Nolan Ryan, who surpassed 300 strikeouts for the fifth time in six seasons, paced Baltimore's victory behind Rudy May's four-hit pitching. Ryan struck out 11 in his seven-inning stint, increasing his total to 305.

Twins 7-6, Blue Jays 6-5

Lyman Bostock's sixth-inning sacrifice fly scored Larry Hise with the winning run in the nightcap and Mike Cubbage homered as Minnesota relief ace Tom Johnson recorded his 15th victory. Hise accounted for six runs in the opener and Ron Schueler pitched 4 2/3 innings of scoreless relief. Hise, who tripled, doubled and singled twice, knocked in three runs and scored three, including the winner on Bob Gorinski's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning. Hise also enjoyed a productive second game with three hits, scoring twice and driving in his 109th run of the season.

Dye Again Is Unhappy

With the shadow of Carter Stadium looming closer with every hour, Coach Pat Dye is still worried about whether his East Carolina University Pirates are going to be ready for N.C. State's Wolfpack Saturday.

"I'm sure glad we aren't playing today," he grumbled yesterday following the practice session. "Heck, I just don't know. We just don't look right."

Dye added that the team appears sluggish and tired. "We're not sharp or quick," he said.

"We went on Saturday and not at all on Sunday, and I thought they would come back strong, but they didn't. No one is doing anything with authority. Just to look at them, you'd think they were in shorts and not in pads."

Two members of the team who have been sidelined with injuries did return to the team yesterday. Offensive lineman Matt Mulholland and safety Gerald Hall returned, but only went at half speed.

The Pirates have just four days of workouts left prior to Saturday's 7 p.m. contest in Raleigh.

The Bucs will be looking for their second straight win over the Wolfpack. Last year, East Carolina took a 23-14 win over the State team.

Wilt's Record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain scored 100 points for the Philadelphia Warriors in a game against the New York Knicks on March 2, 1962. His scoring average for the season was 50.4.

Junior Winners

A "Back-To-School" Junior Captain's Choice was held this weekend at the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club.

The team of Gordon Douglas, Brian Hill, Don May, Susan Corbett and Roger Warner took first place with a score of 68.

Several teams tied for second place with scores of 71. They included Mike Moye, Spencer Mayo, Lesley McPherson, and William Waugh; William Sneed, Skip Hill, Scott Wilson and Joey Hallow; Kelly Kee, David Rhodes, Dwight Garrett, Edward Schwidde; Craig Logue, Raynor Casey, David Woronoff, and Jim Hall; and Patrick Wilson, David Sneed, Steve Wall and Scott Kee.

Finishing in third place with a score of 79 were Ashley Taylor, Mark Douglas, Edwin Hall and Frank Woronoff.

Rookie Leads Giant Victory

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Ask tight end Bob Tucker of the Giants about rookie Joe Pisarcik and his eyes light up.

"He has the kind of personality you want from your quarterback," said Tucker after Pisarcik came off the bench and led the Giants to a 24-21 pre-season victory over the Buffalo Bills Monday night. "Very few quarterbacks generate that authority. The only other one I've played with was Fran Tarkenton."

That's fast company in which to place a National Football League rookie, but Pisarcik earned it by moving what had been a dormant Giants offense to three touchdowns and Joe Danelo's 30-yard, game-winning overtime field goal.

Pisarcik, who completed 15 of 21 attempts for 178 yards, came off the bench when starter Jerry Golsteyn twisted his knee in the first period. He knew he was playing for his job with the Giants.

"Before this game, I looked like the guy who was out of the picture," Pisarcik said. "Jerry was here last year. Steve Ramsey's been in the league for eight years. Randy Dean was a high draft choice. Me? I'm just a free agent."

But Pisarcik wasn't going without a fight. As soon as he came on the field, the Giant offense showed some life for the first time all season.

In the other NFL exhibition Monday night, the Houston Oilers bested the San Francisco 49ers, 17-3.

The Bills had looked sharp in the first half, getting a pair of TD passes from Joe Ferguson and 88 yards on 15 carries from O.J. Simpson. But Coach Jim Ringo wasn't happy with his club's over-all performance.

"We made too many mistakes to win," he said. "I don't like that. On defense, we were gambling too much and not executing."

Dan Pastorini fired a 57-yard touchdown pass to Jimmy Giles and Karl Douglas sneaked one yard for another touchdown as Houston snapped a nine-game exhibition losing streak with its victory over San Francisco.

The 49ers took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on a 38-yard field goal by Tom Wittum.

The Oilers, who had two first-half touchdowns nullified by penalties including a 91-yard pass from Pastorini to Ken Burroughs, are 1-3 in preseason.

The 49ers fell to 1-3. Aside from the score, the effect of the outcome may be known by 4 p.m., EDT, this afternoon, which is the deadline set for NFL rosters to be trimmed to 52 players.

The approaching cutoff time led to a number of transactions Monday.

The Dallas Cowboys pulled nearer the limit by waiving linebacker Mike Jacobs, safety Bill McCadden and guard Wes Phillips. The New York Jets placed three players on waivers — defensive tackle Danny Johnson, cornerback Rolan Smith and linebacker Ed Thompson — while linebacker Don Coleman was placed on the injured reserve list.

The Miami Dolphins released four players including veteran wide receiver Barry Smith, but needed to drop more players to squeeze under the roster ceiling. The others cut were defensive back Ted Bachman, offensive tackle Bill Windauer and running back Keith Ferguson.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers severed five players including

Experienced Rams Lacking In Depth

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

The inexperience which plagues many area high school football teams this season is not going to be a problem for coach Stewart Smith's Greene Central Rams, —but depth is.

A total of 13 lettermen, all starters, return from last year's squad, which won only two games. But, with all that experience coming back, Smith sees better things for this year's team, despite the fact that there are currently only 23 players listed on the roster.

"There'll be no platoon football here," according to Smith, but, "out of the 23, we have a good 18-20 that we feel good about. We won't have too many standing around that are not involved. Our total involvement is probably as good as a squad of 30-32."

Smith is expecting improvement on last year's record and feels the Rams may be able to make a run at the Eastern Carolina Conference title.

"Overall, we expect a good year," he said. "If we stay healthy, I think we can definitely be competitive. After our scrimmage with Clinton last week, I feel good that we can stand with the tall cotton."

Anything less than a .500 record this season "would be disrespectful with the people we've got," according to Smith.

The Ram's 5-2 defense looks better than last year, Smith said, and despite the fact that it has little depth, most of the players are versatile enough to be able to rest each other at different positions. "I'm very random about the defense because we've got so many combinations we can use to rest people," according to Smith.

Smith said he was uncertain as to who would start at many positions and he listed some of his players at more than one defensive spot.

Senior Dwight Butler (6-2, 195) and junior James Best (6-3, 190) are listed as the top two prospects at defensive end, while Jeff Scott (6-0, 170) and Mike Ham (5-9, 160) are listed as backups. Ham and Scott are juniors.

Shea McLawhorn (6-2, 185), a senior, is listed as a backup defensive end or tackle. The two starting defensive tackles are juniors Charles Lewis (6-0, 185) and Frankie Jones (5-10, 200).

Donald Shaw, a 5-7, 170-pound sophomore, is expected to get the nod at noseguard, while Eddie Jones is a backup at that position. The 5-8, 175-pound Jones is a senior.

Smith combines his linebacker and cornerback prospects into one group. That conglomeration includes senior Johnny Speight (5-10, 165), junior Fletcher Car-mon (5-7, 155), senior Jay Carraway (5-7, 150) and junior Marc Tripp (5-9, 175). Two other players may also see some action at the linebacker or corner spots. They are Best and Scott.

Russell Brann, a 5-6, 150-pound senior and Dale Dixon, a 5-10, 180-pound senior are listed as the top two safeties, with Carmon and Jay Carraway as their replacements.

Offensively, the Rams will run from the I-formation, utilizing both the pro set and two tight end set. This is a change from the veer offense the team ran last season.

Operating the Ram attack will be Brann, an honorable mention all-ECC performer last season. Two players will split time at fullback, Smith said, Tripp and Shaw.

Best, the biggest player on the squad is listed as the starting tailback. He was an all-conference player last season as a sophomore. Best will be backed by Dixon, who hasn't played football since ninth grade, but has looked good in practice.

Carmon and Speight are the top two performers at wingback, while Linwood Belcher (5-4, 130), a senior, may play there.

Overall, the speed in the backfield is adequate, while Smith is especially pleased with the depth. "I feel real good about the depth in the backfield," he said, "but the line is a horse of a different color."

Depth may be a problem on the offensive line, but experience is not. A total of nine linemen earned letters last season.

Jay Carraway was an all-conference performer at tight end last season and returns to that spot along with Butler. Ham, up from the junior varsity, and Scott will also play some tight end for the Rams.

The tackles and guards are all lettermen. Frankie Jones, Lewis and McLawhorn are listed at tackle, while Robert Hooker, Eddie Jones and senior Keith Joyner (5-10, 170) are the guards.

Letterman Donald Wooten, a 5-8, 175-pound senior, is the team's center and he can be backed up by a number of players, according to Smith.

The kicking game is a strong point for the Rams, according to Smith. It has been "very impressive" in pre-season practice. Shaw is the team's field goal and kickoff specialist, while Scott and Joe Carraway are both punters.

Smith said he feels the Eastern Carolina Conference race will be tight and, hopefully, the Rams will be in it. Among the contenders are Farmville Central, North Lenoir, C. B. Aycock, Ayden-Grifton and D. H. Conley. Farmville is the team to beat, Smith said.

"Hopefully, we can just hang back and kind of the the darkhorse to win the league. I don't see us as the clear-cut favorite, but I don't see anyone else as the clear-cut champion either."

Vilas, Wade Hottest Bets

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — If you're thinking about a final pitting Bjorn Borg against Jimmy Connors or Chris Evert against Martina Navratilova in the 1977 U.S. Open tennis tournament, you might find Guillermo Vilas and Virginia Wade upsetting your plans.

Vilas, the 25-year-old Argentinian who may be the hottest player in the world, is seeded fourth for the final Open to be played at the West Side Tennis Club. This year, Vilas has won the French Open and six U.S. tournaments; in the process, he has won 39 consecutive matches on his favorite surface — clay.

"The 39 in a row is no pressure for me," said Vilas. "I prefer to keep winning, of course, and I hope to continue doing so in the U.S. Open."

He may very well keep winning. The Open, which opens Wednesday, is played on a Har-Tru surface, which plays like a clay surface.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion — not to mention a hurting but determined Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Borg snatched the No. 1 spot in the men's tennis rankings last week from Connors, who had held it the past 3½ years. He will meet Trey Waltke in his first-round match. Connors, who announced Monday that a back injury will not prevent him from competing, will meet one of the tournament qualifiers in his first-round match at a date to be set.

Mrs. Wade, seeded third, has some impressive statistics of her own. She scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Miss Evert in this year's Wimbledon semifinal en route to the title. Last week, in a World Team Tennis championship match, she blitzed Miss Evert, 6-0.

Mrs. Wade's first-round foe here is Renee Richards. Miss Richards, the 42-year-old transsexual, ended a year-long battle against the United States Tennis Association by obtaining a court order which will allow her to compete in the Open.

Miss Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title.

Alice Seeking New Audience

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer
NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Alice Cooper, who helped usher in the age of glitter rock at the turn of the '70s, is back on the concert trail after a two-year absence, trying to expand his following beyond the usual rock audience. The going so far has been tough.

Cooper has put together a "best of" show, featuring his famous snake, guillotine and hanging scenes. He's also using several Las Vegas production numbers, one of which has him wielding a 40-foot toothbrush and chasing five dancing girls dressed as teeth, in hopes of attracting preteens and adults who usually shun rock concerts.

But thousands of empty seats greeted Cooper at his only New York area appearance, forcing scalpers to unload tickets for $2 and less. The audience seemed subdued during much of Cooper's show, which pales in comparison to groups like Kiss that vomit blood, breathe fire and use flamethrowers to wow fans.

"When I took the two years off I expected somebody to fill the gap," said Cooper, born 29 years ago as Vincent Furnier. "I don't think we do the same type of thing — we put more production into it. When we go into a show we do it as a Broadway production whereas Kiss goes into it as a rock 'n' roll show."

"Rob Iscove, who did Ann-Margaret and people like that, came in and choreographed the show. Joe Gannon, who does the lighting and direction for Liza Minnelli, helped produce it. I went out to get people who were real pros — not just rock 'n' roll people, but people who know how to work a Broadway stage," he said.

"We had so many comments from older people going to our shows. They said they never expected it to be like that because what it really was was a rock 'Hellzapoppin'." They said it was so entertaining, even though they really didn't understand why it had to be so loud," he said in a telephone interview.

Cooper came out of the rough-and-tumble Detroit rock scene, where he competed with bands like the MC5, Mitch Ryder and Iggy and the Stooges for public acclaim. He still dons mascara in concert to sing his early AM hits like "13" and "School's Out", which feature stellar guitar work by Steve Hunter and Dick Wagner.

His last three hits have been middle-of-the-road ballads — "Only Women Bleed," "I Never Cry" and the current "You and Me," keeping with his attempt to broaden his audience. But during "You and Me," a tender ballad about the love of a working-class man for his wife, the old Alice springs into action, hacking up a life-size female doll while he sings the lyrics in a misty-eyed fashion.

"I think the thing to be is an all-around entertainer. My whole roots are in rock 'n' roll. But I think you have to have some dramatics in there and some comedy. But I think at the same time you have to have enough tough rock 'n' roll to make it work."

Cooper now spends much of his time playing golf near his Beverly Hills home. His band plays Las Vegas regularly, he's appeared on television's "Hollywood Squares" and "The Gong Show" and is in Mae West's upcoming film, "Sexette."

"I'm 29 now and I'll keep going until I feel out of place in rock. I think the Alice Cooper Show will go on forever, production-wise, even if I'm not in the show."

On May 31, 1889, a flood claimed the lives of 2,209 persons in Johnstown, Pa.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUG. 31, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to put in motion a new plan of action that is appealing to you. Make sure details are ironed out so that you can be successful. Be astute when dealing with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have a worthwhile personal aim that can easily be attained at this time. Don't neglect the social side of life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Private talks with others bring the information you need. Keep a positive mental attitude and success will follow.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contacting good friends can help you gain personal wishes more quickly today. Take no risks where your good name is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in outside business activities today and gain many benefits. Avoid a troublesome person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Fine day for expansion so make plans for such, but think logically and intelligently. Obtain the data you need from the right sources.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study how well you are handling your obligations and find more up-to-date systems for improving. Sidestep a troublemaker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Confer with clever associates and work out a new plan intelligently. Take no chances with one who is tricky.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engage in new activities that can bring you greater benefits in new directions, and use your talents wisely. Make plans for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Work on a creative outlet at which you are most talented but have left dormant until now. Express happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure you handle those affairs at home which bring more harmony there. Take no risks in the handling of money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking cleverly now and should handle practical affairs wisely. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a business matter more wisely and you can handle it successfully. A business expert could be most helpful at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a very brilliant mind, so be sure to give the finest education you can afford and there could be much success throughout this lifetime. There is the ability here to look at all sides of any situation and to be fair.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

By winning the Life Master Pairs Championship at the recent American Contract Bridge League's Summer National Championships held in Chicago, Peter Weichsel and Alan Sontag of New York proved that they are perhaps the finest pair in the world today.

When this hand was played in that event, a variety of slam contracts were reached. Because of the form of scoring, many chose to play the hand in six no trump, but few succeeded in delivering the contract because of the unfortunate diamond break—a 3-2 split would have made declarer's life simple, as would a spade lead. Sontag was one of those who brought home six no trump. Follow his technique.

West led his fourth-best club. East played the queen and declarer won the king. He laid down the ace of diamonds, and was perturbed to see West's queen. If it was an honest card (and there was sound reason to believe it was), that meant that he had two diamond losers and no entry to dummy's spades. However, he found a way to get to dummy with the help of the enemy.

Sontag cashed exactly four heart tricks, discarding a spade and a club from dummy. Next, he took the ace of clubs, removing East's last card in that suit. Backing his judgment, he now led a low diamond and played low from dummy.

East won a cheap diamond trick with the eight, but he was well and truly endplayed. A spade would allow declarer to discard his three minor-suit losers. A diamond would be into declarer's combined K-10 tenace, thereby creating an entry to dummy's spades.

The full beauty of the hand is that declarer cannot afford to cash his fifth heart. If he does so, he discards a diamond, East can later exit with the jack of diamonds, pinning dummy's ten. If he discards a high spade, East can get out with a spade and declarer will eventually lose a second trick in one of the minor suits.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

New Plays Are Offered Often To Empty Seats

By JENNIFER SMALL
BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI) — In a converted, red brick church covered with ivy, unknown, New England playwrights are searching for a "genius" to help perpetuate "legitimate" theater on the American stage.

The 150-seat "Elliot Street Theater" off Main Street never plays to a full house. Professional actors from Boston either volunteer their time to help the writers or split the earnings from the $2 tickets.

Now in its third season, the New England Playwrights Guild is showcasing seven original works by playwrights in their 20s to age 73. The writers are students, teachers, actors and psychiatrists.

"Traditionally, we're supposed to have more brains in this region. I wanted to see if it was true," said NEPG founder Robert Rees Evans, 48, chairman of the Theater Arts Department at the University of Massachusetts' Boston campus.

A veteran actor and playwright himself, Evans believes "The health of legitimate theater has died — its vitality has been sapped."

"The big weakness in American theater has been the lack of playwrights since (Tennessee) Williams' talent dried up," he said.

"There are rather slim pickings in this country and even out of the world."

The best of the seven plays mounted this summer will be shown in Boston in January for larger audiences, agents and producers.

Evans said a writer's first few plays may not be significant, but it is hoped something of value will result. He said the purpose of the playwrights' guild is to encourage budding playwrights to write, produce and "suffer through the damn thing to see if he's got it."

Evans is looking for a script that "attacks reality," unlike the "slick and entertaining show business" he said is now presented on Broadway.

"New York presents false values — eat, drink, be merry and dance around the maypole. We want scripts that address themselves to problems, to go back to drama as literature."

Paradoxically, Evans also believes that a "positive vision" is needed, because he said audiences have been told too many times that life is "lousy."

"We're looking for a genius," he said.

The search for a genius is not receiving much financial help. Evans and the theater's director, Roy Richardson, 55, have been unable to obtain any federal or state grants to help them pay their actors or production costs.

Evans attributes that lack of support to personality conflicts, but Richardson said money is only given to established art centers that "don't need recognition."

"All the people who give money away give it to something that gives them prestige," he said. "They don't have insight into real art."

Order Probe Of Slayings

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The state's special homicide-investigation team has been ordered into the probe of the budgeon slayings of two Bladen County women last Labor Day.

Sheriff John B. Allen called the slayings of 74-year-old Josephine Davis and her daughter, 53-year-old Alene Davis, "the most brutal" murders in the county in at least 30 years.

The Davis women were found half-nude in their five-room farmhouse just north of Elizabethtown. They had been stabbed and beaten to death, according to investigators.

A medical examiner said one of the women had been sexually assaulted.

Sheriff's deputies and State Bureau of Investigation agents have probed the slayings, but so far no one had been charged in connection with the deaths.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, in ordering the SBI's special homicide-investigation team to enter the probe, said he is "very optimistic of a successful investigation."

The special team was formed this year and is headed by Special Agent Max Bryan.

Allen has not discussed the progress of the investigation for the most part.

But he has repeatedly said that a man who escaped from the White Lake prison unit the night before the women were slain is a suspect.

'Blue Angel' To Join The Clergy

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Navy Lt. Jim Bauer is leaving one set of angels to get closer to another.

Bauer, a combat veteran who now handles nonflying administrative duties with the Blue Angels flight team here, has resigned his commission to join the clergy.

He'll enter the Josephinum School of Theology in Worthington, Ohio, next month. He hopes eventually to be ordained a Roman Catholic priest in the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., his home area.

The 30-year-old officer says he finds no conflict between roles as warrior and priest.

"It really wasn't a problem," Bauer said. "I joined the Navy of my own free will — I knew what I was getting into. I incurred the obligation to carry out my orders to the utmost of my ability and I'm still operating under that same commissioning oath I took several years ago."

Bauer has been in the Navy for eight years. His father was a Navy radarman in World War II, and since high school Bauer had wanted a naval career.

Then as a student at Southwestern Missouri State University he began to feel "just an idea" about higher service.

It became a compelling drive. He said he made the decision to change about a year ago.

During the waning months of the Vietnam war, Bauer served in combat as a flight officer aboard F4 Phantom jets. The flight officer handles navigational and other duties while the pilot does the actual flying.

Bauer said his decision to enter a five-year seminary program doesn't require any judgment of: "Is the military right or wrong?"

"After ordination," he said, "I might possibly re-enter the Navy."

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT
VILLAGE OF SIMPSON
AUGUST 23, 1977
SIMPSON TOWN HALL
P.O. BOX 10
SIMPSON, NORTH CAROLINA 27879
(719) 738-9698

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

The above-named City proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following project:

VILLAGE OF SIMPSON COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT HOUSING REHABILITATION AND PUBLIC WORKS IMPROVEMENTS SIMPSON, NORTH CAROLINA $254,300

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the above-named City has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such decision not to prepare such Statement are as follows:

PUBLIC NOTICES

The findings of the Environmental Review Record indicate that the alternatives to both the human and natural environments are not negative. The beneficial implications of the program are such that the program should proceed on schedule.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the within project has been made by the above-named City which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the lobby of the U.S. Post Office Building between the hours of 8:00 A.M. and 12:00 Noon from 2:00 P.M. to 5:30 P.M.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City to the office of the undersigned, Southwestern Missouri State University, at the address specified on or before September 14, 1977. All such comments must be received at the City of Simpson, North Carolina, at the address specified in the preceding sentence.

TVA Says Snail Darter Probably To Be Extinct

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The endangered snail darter fish, that halted work on Tennessee Valley Authority's Tellico Dam, probably will become extinct because of the $116-million project, TVA officials say.

The 3-inch fish, on the federal endangered species list, was discovered living in the Little Tennessee River, where TVA is building its Tellico Dam.

"The plain fact of the matter is that the Tellico Dam, whether it is impounded or not, has destroyed the snail darter in the Little Tennessee River," Lynn Seiber, TVA general manager, said Monday.

Dick Fitz, a TVA biologist, says the population of the snail darter in the Little Tennessee has fallen from an estimated 10,000 three years ago to between 500 and 1,500. He said the fish will soon become extinct there whether or not the dam is completed.

Seiber said he received a letter Monday from the Fish and Wildlife Service denying a request to transplant the darters that can still be found in the Little Tennessee to the Holston River.

In the first case using the 1969 Endangered Species Act to halt a federal project, the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that completion of the dam would destroy the darter's only known habitat.

More than $100 million had been spent on the dam and TVA was ready to close its gates and impound a lake behind it when the court ordered work halted in January. TVA has appealed the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Fitz said he believes the number of darters in the Little Tennessee has dropped because the dam's sluice gates prevent the fish from swimming back upstream to spawn.

He said the darters lay their eggs and fertilize them in the portion of the river above the dam. They then float down the river as larvae and through the sluice gates into Watts Bar Lake, where they can live off micro-organisms.

When the darters reach the adult stage, their diets change and they try to swim back upstream where they can find insects for food, he said.

"The velocity of the water through the sluice gates is so great they can't swim through it," Fitz said. "They congregate in schools below the dam where they are subject to bass and other predators that don't exist upstream."

TVA has said 710 darters transplanted to the Hiwassee River between February and June of 1975 have reproduced there successfully. Opponents of the dam, however, contend several more years is needed to determine if the darter can survive in the Hiwassee.

Seiber said TVA collected 300 to 400 darters below the dam last winter and stored them at a fish hatchery near Morrisville with the intention of transplanting them to the Holston River. The Fish and Wildlife Service instead ordered them to be put back in the Little Tennessee above the dam, he said.

Old Cabin To Be Museum

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP) — An old slave cabin which will house a collection of memorabilia tracing the history of Chatham County blacks will be dedicated Sept. 6.

The cabin is to be moved from its original site on a nearby farm to the Chatham County fairgrounds.

When the fair is over, the cabin and museum will remain as a permanent display, including pictures and artifacts from slave days and special displays on the achievements of blacks in North Carolina.

The Chatham County Fair began in the 1940s when black leaders obtained a black farm and home agent to help blacks organize their farms and improve their homes.

As improvements began to show, the community decided it would like to conduct a fair to demonstrate the progress it had made. The first fair was in 1950.

The event was a success. Three thousand people showed up despite a rain that poured in through leaks in the tent and gushed in under the flaps.

The fair was moved to a better location the following year, and by 1952 it had a new permanent exhibit hall. In 1956 they added a baseball diamond.

Hunt Focuses

On Small Cities

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt said Monday that small cities are where the nation's greatest growth potential lies, and federal policy and fund distribution should recognize that.

Hunt is sponsoring a resolution before the Southern Governors' Conference in San Antonio, Texas, that calls on the federal government to pay more attention to cities with fewer than 100,000 residents.

The Great Pyramid of Cheops stands 481 feet high. It is constructed of 2.3 million blocks, each weighing 2½ tons.

4-H Citizenship Week Observed

The Pitt County 4-H Citizenship Awareness Week was held Tuesday, August 16 through Friday, August 19, 1977. A total of fifty young people between the ages of nine and eighteen participated in the week's activities. This event was the first 4-H experience for twenty-six of these fifty participants. Twenty-six adults also volunteered time and services as either adult leaders, tour guides, speakers, or special guests.

Speakers for the week included Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Greenville's Bicentennial Citizen of the Year, Mrs. Barbara Ellis, Chairman of the Pitt County Republican Party, and Mrs. Betty Speir, Chairman of the Democratic Party in Pitt County.

Special guests who met and talked with the young people included Senator Vernon White, Representative Sam Bundy, Representative Horton Rountree, Commissioner Bob Martin, and Mrs. Elvira Allred, Pitt County's Register of Deeds.

During the week the youths toured in Greenville, the Voice of America facilities, the County Jail, the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the Pitt County Health Department, the Court House, the Board of Elections, the Greenville Art Center, the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, and Wachovia Bank.

The persons responsible for the Greenville tours include

Miss Margaret Register, Supervisor of Elections, Mr. Edwin L. Yancey, Chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, Mr. H. L. Lewis, Jr., Clerk of Superior Court, Mr. Roger Barnaby, Pitt County Health Director, Mrs. Edith Walker, Director of the Greenville Art Center, Mrs. Dot Fisher, In-Service Educational Co-ordinator for Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Louise Congleton of Voice of America, and Miss Verna Smith, Personnel Manager of Wachovia Bank.

Also toured were the State Capitol, the State Legislative Building, and the Museum of Natural History in Raleigh.

The participants were tested on what they learned during the week through the process of a "before" and "after" questionnaire. At the beginning of the week's activities, the average number of questions answered from a total of twenty-seven questions was two. By the end of the week, this average had risen to twenty. The week proved itself to be an educational and enjoyable experience in the promotion and improvement of good citizenship qualities. It is hoped that Pitt County youths will have the opportunity to participate in similar citizenship awareness projects in the future.
