

Panama Treaty-Signing Planned For Wednesday

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter welcomed Panamanian head of government Omar Torrijos to the White House today in preparation for the historic signing of a new treaty forged in 13 years of negotiations over the future of the Panama Canal.

Carter strode out of the Oval Office onto a colonnade to shake hands with the Panamanian. They chatted as they walked inside, flanked by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security assistant.

Torrijos and Carter spoke in Spanish as they posed for photographs at Carter's desk in the Oval Office.

"It's all very well organized," Torrijos noted, referring to the administration's elaborate preparations to receive more than 20 Western Hemisphere heads of state or their representatives. The dignitaries will observe the treaty-signing ceremonies Wednesday.

"I hope so," Carter replied, grinning.

"Well, we must have faith," the Panamanian replied.

Torrijos received a warm welcome at Andrews Air Force Base on his arrival Monday night and expressed gratitude to the United States for its willingness to yield eventual control over the canal.

With a military honor guard on hand, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance greeted Torrijos and said "good will and determination" enabled the two countries to reach an agreement "that protects the vital interests" of both.

Vance said the proposed treaties ensure the canal will remain "open, neutral, secure and efficiently run" for all nations of the world.

Torrijos was one of seven hemispheric leaders who arrived Monday for the Wednesday ceremony, to be held at the offices of the Organization of American States.

Nineteen hemispheric head of government will attend the ceremony, lured here by the promise of a private audience with Carter.

But all of the pomp and ceremony will be meaningless unless Carter is able to convince two-thirds of the Senate that the new treaties deserve to be ratified.

Recent polls have indicated a majority of the American people still oppose the treaties. One treaty would remove U.S. control of the canal after the year 2000 and the other would guarantee neutrality of the Canal Zone.

But support for the agreements reportedly is accelerating and administration officials hope this week's activities will provide additional momentum.

On his arrival, Torrijos said the treaty signing is of "great historic significance" and shows the United States recognizes the need to "correct an error instead of prolonging for an eternity an injustice."

Torrijos said the Panamanian people, mindful of the "moral basis" on which the United States was founded, never lost faith that Panama's aspirations for eventual control of the waterway would be met.

Other leaders who arrived Monday included Uruguayan President Aparicio Mendez, Chilean President August Pinochet, Ecuadorean President Alfredo Poveda, Peruvian President Francisco Morales, Haitian Foreign Minister Edner Brutus and Grenadan Prime Minister Eric Gairy.

Most of the remaining leaders were to arrive today. The gathering will represent the first summit meeting of hemispheric heads of government since a 1967 conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Accept Bid On New Van For Sheriff

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning accepted a $16,950 bid for a mobile identification van for the Sheriff's Department from Sirchie Laboratories in Moorestown, N.J.

The van will be purchased with federal grant funds under an Evidence Technician Grant received from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The board also approved an application by the Mental Health Center for the continuation of an operations grant amounting to $582,500. The grant request — an increase of about $200,000 over the current level of funding — will fund 33 positions and operating expenses of the mental health center for the coming year and allow the center to expand its services.

Commissioners, who adopted a resolution commending the Greenville Rescue Squad for winning first place in the heavy duty rescue competition sponsored by the International Rescue and First Aid Association in St. Louis, Mo. last week, also approved an application for a $10,000 grant to help fund the purchase of a new rescue unit for the Ayden Rescue Squad, and adopted a resolution requesting the Department of Transportation to pave driveways at the Station-House and Clarks Neck fire departments.

The board also adopted a resolution requesting the North Carolina General Assembly to re-consider its action which permits insurance companies to put new insurance rates into effect without prior approval of the Commissioner of Insurance.

Pitt Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson told the board that the cash flow picture at the hospital is improving and said funds borrowed to finance operation expenses should be paid back in the next two months.

A low occupancy rate over the past few months in the new facility failed to generate enough revenue to meet operating expenses. However, Richardson told commissioners that the census is "beginning to pick up."

An average of 225 patients per day is needed to generate sufficient revenue to meet operating costs. The average for the month of August was 207, he said, as compared to an average of 174 for August of last year in the old facility.

This morning, according to Richardson, there were 229 adults and 14 babies in the hospital, while last Thursday, the census was 260.

The hospital's physical plant director Ralph Hall told the board that all of the construction programs associated with the East Carolina University School of Medicine should be completed by the end of October, but noted that construction of a neonatal facility funded through the medical school should begin within the next several weeks.

Hall noted that last month the utility costs for the new building totaled $75,000.

HOTLINE gets things done for you. Call 752-1336, and tell your problem or sound-off, or mail it to HOTLINE, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, NC. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

BIG ITEMS

Response to the Hotline appeal for furnishings for the Jaycee Clubhouse, which is located in the old Greenville Fire Station on the corner of Spruce and Skinner Streets, was gratifying, according to Phil Dixon who requested the appeal.

Dixon said the club received two air conditioners and a refrigerator as a result of the appeal. He expressed delight at the club's being given such big items, which will be so helpful since the club's budget is limited to funds needed for repairs to and renovation of the building. The building is to be made available to other non-profit groups for a meeting place, as well as to serve as the Jaycee meeting place, he said.

RECYCLING

Hotline continually gets calls about where one can take particular items for recycling. So we want to pass along the information that the Kinston Recycling has opened a branch here in Greenville known as Reclaim. At present, according to secretary Beverly Perry, the local branch is accepting only paper and fabric waste. It is located in the Spunwind building on Albermarle Avenue. The phone number is 758-7260.

Swastika-Wearing Boy Guns Four In Crowd Of Picnickers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A swastika-wearing teenager who Monday gunned down four persons in a crowd of black picnickers, then killed himself, was "daffy about World War II" and owned a German rifle, acquaintances of the youth said.

One man, hit while he was pitching in a church-sponsored softball game, died from the gunfire.

Mecklenburg County police said the youth, standing about 40 feet from the softball field, opened fire with an M-1 carbine without warning about 3 p.m.

"At first I thought it was a plane," said Mrs. Willie F. Pierce of Charlotte, one of about 200 picnickers attending an annual gathering at the Jonesville African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

"But it kept going bam, bam, bam."

Police identified the youth as Kenneth Wilson, a 17-year-old junior at Charlotte's East Mecklenburg High School.

The paper said a car driven to the church by the gunman belonged to Wilson's father, and acquaintances of the youth verified the identity.

Eleven shots were fired as the Labor Day picnickers flattened themselves in the dirt and grass, and the gunman then put a bullet through his throat, police said.

Officers said they found another rifle, a German Mauser, in the car.

The Observer quoted Gene Manion, one of Wilson's junior high school teachers, as saying, "He and a friend were both daffy about World War II. You know — German planes, that sort of thing. They read about it extensively."

The friend, Doug Russell, 15, said he and Wilson talked a lot about World War II when they were classmates two years ago but he had not been close friends with Wilson since.

"It was just a hobby," Russell said, adding that Wilson owned a German rifle that he used for target shooting.

Witnesses said the assailant wore a light green military shirt, light brown military trousers and military boots. On his left arm was a red armband with a black swastika in a white circle.

No one could offer any motive for the shooting, or explain why the youth wore a swastika.

"We wasn't bothering anybody out here," said Edward Holmes, 65.

Lottie Carothers, organizer of the picnic, said she saw Roosevelt Davis fall from a chest wound. Davis, 29, of Charlotte, died about 20

Three New Assistant DA's Now Serve With Veteran Eli Bloom

There are three new Assistant District Attorneys now serving under District Attorney Eli Bloom. Two of them are women.

Ms. Henri Johnson was sworn in today and Ms. Nancy Barnhill and Willie Lee Lumpkin III were sworn in last Thursday, Sept. 1.

Ms. Johnson was born and reared in Greenville, though her parents, Badger and Jean Johnson, now live in Laurinburg. She is a UNC School of Law graduate, having done her undergraduate work at St. Andrews College and UNC-Chapel Hill.

Ms. Barnhill is from Roberstonville, the daughter of Mrs. J. Elliott Barnhill and the late Mr. Barnhill. She did her undergraduate work at Meredith College and graduated from Wake Forest Law School this year.

Lumpkin, who is from Louisburg, the son of Mrs. Edith C. Lumpkin, is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and Wake Forest Law School.

"This is the first practice for all three of us," Ms. Johnson said. "I think we're very fortunate to be working with a man of Eli Bloom's stature."

Indicted On 36 Federal Counts

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korean businessman Tongsun Park has been indicted on 36 federal charges, including conspiracy, bribery and mail fraud, stemming from the government probe of South Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill, it was disclosed today.

An official of the U.S. District Court clerk's office said the indictment was unsealed this morning.

Meantime, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and one of his top assistants scheduled a news conference to announce what they described as a development in the Tongsun Park case.

The indictment of Park, returned by a federal grand jury Aug. 26, was reported by the Washington Post last week. The indictment was kept sealed and no details about the charges have been available.

The clerk's office official said the 36 counts include charges of conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud, racketeering activity, election law violations, and violations of the law requiring foreign agents to register with the government.

At the weekend, Park apparently was still in Seoul where he has been for about a week.

'Will of Allah'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hanafi Moslem leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis was sentenced today to spend 41 to 120 years in prison for his role as leader of a 38-hour bloody siege that gripped this city last March.

Before the sentencing Khaalis said, "I know that whatever happens here will be the will of Allah."

Khaalis would be 97 years old before he is eligible for parole. A second defendant, convicted of stabbing two men at B'nai B'rith headquarters, received a slightly harsher sentence. Abdul Adam, 31, was sentenced to a total of 44 to 132 years in prison.

Khaalis and Adam were the first sentenced of the 12 Hanafis who were convicted July 23 of seizing three buildings here — the B'nai B'rith building, the Islamic Center and Washington's city hall — and with taking 149 hostages in an incident that began March 9.

Needlecraft Writers Are Specializing

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

With needlecraft books almost a glut on the market, more publishers are specializing.

Recent publications include one meant for large mesh needlepoint, another for people with impaired vision and/or coordination and others for monogramming, borders, Indian designs and the embroidery of rural China.

"The First Easy-to-See Needlepoint Workbook" by Joan Scobey and Marjorie Sablow (Rawson $14.95), a large-type book whose projects are designed for 5-, 7- and 10-mesh-to-the-inch canvases. Excellent directions are provided for finishing and mounting, techniques that can cost as much as the initial expense of canvas, thread and needles when you have the work done professionally.

All thumbs with needles? Iris Rosenthal's "The Not-So-Nimble Needlework Book" (Grosset and Dunlap $5.95) has embroidery, knitting, crochet and sewing projects for people with impaired eyesight or coordination problems. Among them are a lion's head pillow with knitting wool mane, cross-stitch placemats using a traditional gingham print for the pattern, and a reversible kerchief handbag with bangle bracelet handles.

"Needlepoint Letters and Numbers" by Carol Cheney Rome and Donna Reidy Orr (Doubleday $10) contains 28 different alphabets and nine styles in numbers. The alphabets include Hebrew, Chinese terrestrial signs, the Morse code, signal flags, typewriter print and an ornate variety called Roman majesty.

"Tribal Designs for Needlepoint," by Gay Ann Rogers (Doubleday $5.95 paper) contains 30 attractive, mostly earth tone designs adapted from Eskimo, Polynesian and American Indian art. The directions are explicit, fortunately, for many of the designs are complicated and require considerable patience and skill for working from graphs. Most are sophisticated in design. There are pillows, small rugs, two purses, a belt and an eyeglass case. Many pillow designs would make stunning handbags as well.

"Bargello Borders" by Nancy Hall and Jean Riley (Needlemania, Inc., distributed by Scribners, $9.95 paper) represents good value for inventive needlepointers who like to do their own designing. The authors operate a Franklin, Mich., needlecraft shop. Their patterns are designed for pillows, handbags, lamp bases, chair seat and footstool covers. Directions and graphs are clear, and canvas mesh sizes are specific for using patterns to best advantage.

"Creative Needlepoint Borders" by Maggie Wall (Scribners $14.95) contains more complex patterns than the Hall-Riley book, and some novel ideas for mountings that fake a bordered appearance with braid, ribbons and ruffled edgings.

Two strong trends, embroidery and ethnicity, combine in "Blue and White, The Cotton Embroideries of Rural China," by Muriel Baker and Margaret Lunt (Scribners $14.95). Their enchanting designs are taken from a traditional craft almost unknown in the West. The only drawback their book has for the avid needleperson is a lack of guidance for using the charts. However, photocopying shops can blow up or reduce designs without damaging the book, and the designs can then be transferred to fabric or even needlepoint canvas with tracing paper sold in home sewing departments. The stylized animals in particular would make delightful designs for children's quilts or clothing.

"Trapunto Quilting," by Mary Morgan and Dee Mosteller (Scribners $15.95) is another needle art less well known than it should be. This and other forms of raised quilting make beautiful quilts and pillows and trim for wearing apparel and accessories such as handbags. Trapunto gives a custom-made look usually found only on very expensive articles. For ultra-sophistication, the authors suggest superimposing decorator fabric motifs on solid fabrics to make pillows.

"The Needle Arts of Greece" by Joan Petrakis (Scribners $16.95) range from complicated, minutely detailed designs of historic and traditional articles to a charming chapter for children with designs the author says are within the skills of a seven-year-old. Maybe so. Our favorite nine-year-old already is working needlepoint kits, and would jump at the chance to draw and fill in her own pattern according to Ms. Petrakis's clear-cut directions.

Ski sweaters are rarely cheap even when you knit them yourself. But they are cheaper than hand-knits sold in stores, and you're not likely to find a more thorough guide than "Scandinavian Knitting Designs" by Pauline Chatterton (Scribners $17.95). The book also includes cushions, afghans, border designs, sweaters, scarves and hats. Some repeating designs would transfer handsomely to needlepoint canvas, easy to do either by counting stitches or graphing patterns for tracing on canvas. The author is a professional designer for yarn companies in New York City and London.

They Don't Talk Back Nor Say Thank You Mrs. Ure Likes Treating Wild Birds' Injuries

By GEORGE TIBBITTS
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Stellanie Ure's patients have been shot, hit by cars, or trapped, and they bite, claw, scream and sometimes scratch her face while she treats them.

But they don't talk back and they don't say thank you, either, says the 34-year-old Mrs. Ure, who runs Utah's only "raptor aid station" at her Salt Lake County home.

The state Division of Wildlife Resources brings her about 100 birds of prey, or raptors, each year that have been hurt.

A typical day finds a barn owl with a broken wing resting in the Ure dining room, a prairie falcon perched on the patio and a golden eagle with a trap-mangled leg in a special backyard shed. Six other birds, in various stages of recovery, roost in the shed or house.

Putting a bird back together is tricky and not always successful, Mrs. Ure says. When birds arrive, they are examined, fed a mixture of vitamins, bone meal, high caloric gelatin and Gatorade, then placed in a dark box for 24 hours, which calms them.

Specific treatment then starts — ranging from splinting a broken wing and administering antibiotics for infections to just rest. "You have to tease them and coax them along," she says.

Mrs. Ure's worst injury came when a bird leaped feet first onto her face, just missing her eye and opening a gash in her lip that took six stitches to close.

She doesn't blame the bird, though. "You've got a bird that's hurt, wild, stressed and crazed with fear. It's either going to limp or get that last surge."

Despite the care, not all birds return to the wild. Their hollow bones make fractures difficult to mend, and some never recover from the shock of injury or being taken from the wild.

Some maimed birds are given to zoos or research programs, but most of those unable to care for themselves are destroyed.

Al Heggen of Wildlife Resources said most injuries are from auto collisions or shootings. Raptors are protected by law, and persons convicted of harming them can be sentenced to six months in jail and a $299 fine under state law. Federal statutes carry higher penalties.

The mother of two works under federal permit and state supervision. The state helps pay feed and medical costs and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife pays to ship birds. Many materials and services are donated.

Now She Would Give Sitter Sex Ed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about whether to have a boy babysitter caught my eye because of an experience we had years ago.

When our daughter was 3 and our son was 5, we had a nice, shy neighbor boy stay with them occasionally. When the 5-year-old told us about some of the funny games the sitter was trying to play with our daughter, we reported the incident to the sitter's parents and decided "no more boy sitters."

Today I would amend that decision: no more boy sitters unless I knew the family well enough to be assured that their attitude toward early sex education was sufficiently enlightened and that they provided their kids with the information they asked for.

Our boy sitter did nothing violent; his transgression was the obvious result of a natural curiosity that had been consistently thwarted at home and sadly neglected at school.

Now, 17 years after that incident, I read in the papers about pregnant 12- and 13-year-old girls who don't know what "contraception" means, and teenage boys who accidentally become fathers. And I think that mothers should worry less about the danger of having a boy sitter and more about the backward attitude of the large and powerful "nice" segment of our society. This group seems hell-bent on keeping kids dangerously curious and uninformed even as they stand in the midst of wall-to-wall centerfolds.

What our kids don't know about responsible sex and parenthood is hurting us all.

CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Your concern about keeping children "dangerously curious" and uninformed is valid. But curious and uninformed sitters come in two sexes, and some GIRL sitters sometimes try to play funny games with little boys.

DEAR ABBY: A fine young bachelor has recently joined the firm where I am employed. I am not a matchmaker, but I know an outstanding single lady I think he would like. I have a feeling these two would find a lot in common, and I would like to get them together. How do I go about it without being too obvious?

Should I tell him I know a nice woman, and then wait for him to offer to take her out? That seems rather presumptuous, and I'm afraid it might make the woman appear too available. Any suggestions?

MRS. IN-BETWEEN

DEAR MRS.: Arrange an informal evening at your home and invite them separately. [The more people you invite, the less "obvious" you'll be.] And if they have as much in common as you think they have, they'll "discover" each other.

[P.S. One cardinal rule for matchmakers: Don't arrange a match unless you think you're doing them BOTH a favor.]

DEAR ABBY: I certainly hope you or your readers can help me with my problem. Is there such a group as "Spenders Anonymous" for "Clothes-holics"? If not, I would be interested in starting a local chapter.

We are a lower middle-income family. I started working recently to help with family finances, but all I do is shop! I am compulsive about buying clothes, and I can't seem to control myself.

Please help me. I am desperate.

McKINNEY, TEX.

DEAR McKINNEY: If there is such a group, I'll surely hear about it and let you know. If not, there ought to be.

Morning Cleanse Is Important

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (UPI) — "The hours you sleep are often the most dangerous hours for your skin, unless you happen to live in a Puerto Rican rain forest," says Shirley Lord, well-known beauty expert.

"While you are under the covers, your skin is busily excreting oils, body wastes and sloughing off old skin cells. Even more important, it is losing moisture, particularly if you keep air-conditioning or heating on. That's why the first cleanse of the day is so important, and why you must use soft water. Only soft water can replace the moisture that has been lost and clean away the wastes that have collected."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One of the most personal experiences I've shared with readers over the past 13 years was the occasion of sending my last child to school.

Boy, how I had lusted for that day. I was going to have all my stomach muscles back by lunch, go to the bathroom without locking the door, pull the shades and sing duets with Barbra Streisand, and burn my maternity clothes. (The statute of limitations had run out and I had won!)

But there was no exhilaration in my victory, watching "the baby" sit pathetically at the curb. I thought of the woman he was going to — Miss Chalkdust, or whatever. And I wrote "Miss Chalkdust, give him patience and gentleness. Please have a soft lap and a warm smile. I submit to your tender, loving care my son who is a little shy and a lot stubborn. Who can't cope yet with zippers that stick or buttons on sweaters that don't come out even. One who makes his 5-S sideways and doesn't know B-O-Y-S from G-I-R-L-S on the door. I may sue you for alienation of affection but for the moment, God bless you."

Those small, pathetic, scared children who are sitting out on the curbs this morning for the first time don't have their own column. If they did, they might confess that they didn't have breakfast this morning because they couldn't swallow. They didn't sleep well last night. They're afraid. Afraid they'll get lost. Afraid they'll goof up. Afraid they'll look different. Afraid they'll be called upon. Afraid they won't find the straw for their milk. Afraid they'll lose their lunch money. Afraid they won't get to the restroom on time — or ever. Afraid someone will laugh at their name. Afraid they won't find a friend. Afraid the wind will blow their papers out of their hands. Afraid of you.

One of the most poignant insights into a child's venture into education comes from a book written by Albert Cullum called "The Geranium On The Window Sill Just Died But Teacher You Went Right On." It deals with an insensitivity of the feelings of children and what they are going through. This is one of my favorites.

"I have a messy desk, I have milk money that rolls, I have a lazy pencil, a book that won't open, a mouth that whispers. I have a zipper that doesn't want to, homework that won't work, and a hand that throws crayons.

I have a shirt that's out, shoelaces that won't tie. And sometimes I wet my pants — but never on purpose." Miss Chalkdust . . . this is a day for all the love you have to give.

Qualified As Bidder

The Redevelopment Commission, meeting in a special session on Friday, qualified Dr. Badger Clark as a bidder for a disposal parcel in the downtown urban renewal area.

Clark qualified to submit a bid on Disposal Parcel D-3, located at the northeast corner of Reade Circle and Evans Street, containing approximately 8,500 square feet.

Clark indicated plans to construct a professional building of 1,250 square feet on the property if he is the successful bidder. The structure would reflect Williamsburg architecture, it was noted.

Commissioners also approved Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., serving as trustee of the S. T. White estate, as a developer for Disposal Parcel 7-A in the Central Business District.

Plans were indicated to extend the property on which the Western Auto Store is being remodeled out to Reade Circle in order to provide an entrance from Reade into the parking lot.

The disposal parcel contains approximately 6,300 square feet.

Assessment Is Still Difficult

President Carter burst on the national scene so suddenly to assume the powerful chief executive position that even now it is difficult to assess the job he is doing.

At the beginning of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination he was known largely for his service as governor of Georgia.

But, following Watergate, he seemed to offer what the people wanted — someone not connected with Washington who promised thorough honesty and openness.

Will he change the nation's direction for the better? After seven months in office for Carter, it is still too soon to say.

It was interesting though that Congressman Walter Jones sizes Carter up as "one of the most sincere, dedicated men I have had the pleasure of meeting."

His weakness is a no compromise attitude, which Jones hopes will be tempered as time goes along. At present Carter will listen but it doesn't seem to "sink in."

Jones also feels that Carter has surrounded himself with non-professional advisors who have little experience in Washington, and this is a mistake.

But, the First Congressional District Congressman summed up, "By and large, I feel the nation will be well served by Carter and his administration."

It seems that President Carter has a lot to learn about how things get done in Washington, but Congressman Jones' perceptive assessment of the new president tells us he is likely to learn rapidly.

Hodges Starting Campaign In East

It is significant to us that Luther Hodges, Jr. will begin his campaign for the U. S. Senate Democratic nomination in the East Wednesday.

His first appearance will be in Greenville at 10 a.m. followed by other stops across the state.

Starting campaigns in the East has become something of a trend in the past few years, and it indicates to us that Eastern North Carolina has at last become a serious part of the state-wide political process.

THIS AFTERNOON

Now, Selecting Of Judges

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In a new process recognized by the participants as a trial run for future statewide merit selection of judges at all levels of the court system, the Judicial Nominating Committee is now pushing the search for names to submit for Superior Court vacancies.

Moving speedily into action, the nominating committee set up by Gov. James B. Hunt was urged by its chairman to set the process into action at once.

"We are going to do this as fast as we can... there are vacancies now in the courts which are causing some sessions to be cancelled," says former Gov. Dan K. Moore, now a Supreme Court Justice and chairman of the committee.

such a nominating procedure, and in practice a significant number of judges have been so appointed and subject to public election only after first getting the job from the governor. Efforts through the years to eliminate the public vote and have judges at all levels selected through a merit process have so far proved unsuccessful in the General Assembly. An amendment to the State Constitution would be required.

Gov. Hunt hopes that the present demonstration of a merit system will convince the public and lawmakers that such a plan should be adopted.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Susie Sharp put it this way as the nominating committee took office. "It is my hope that we can ultimately demonstrate the effectiveness of a merit selection plan for all judges."

A demonstration of the governor's hope was shown by his recognition of Raleigh Attorney Charles H. Young as a former president of the Bar Association, chairman of that group's committee on merit selection, and the chief collaborator with the governor in drawing up the present plan.

Young is a member of the nominating committee, and presented the group a set of proposed rules which were adopted at the first session.

All Qualified

BILL NOBLITT

Hunt told the committee he wants the names of people equally well qualified for the jobs so that whoever is named will be the best possible, and he urged the group to seek out applicants.

"You may find it to be the case that frequently those who apply are not necessarily the best... you must seek them out."

Better judges, conducting themselves and presiding in a "better way" is critical to restoring public confidence in the courts, Hunt said.

The rules call for the committee to be broken down into regional panels to pick nominees in specific judicial districts, except for the special judgeships which are statewide.

Beginning immediately, public notice of all vacancies now known to exist will be given, and 20 days allowed for persons to apply or be suggested to the committee.

Another 20 days will be allowed for a complete background investigation of possible nominees by the State Bureau of Investigation, and for comments on the potential nominee to be gotten from Supreme and Appeals Court Justices, district attorneys, court clerks, U. S. court officials, and others.

Local panels can hold a public hearing if they wish to allow any interested people the opportunity to recommend possible nominees.

All of the procedure will be kept confidential, with the names being submitted to the governor. Hunt has said he will announce all nominees at the time he names his appointee.

Visions, Old Principles

WASHINGTON — Congress has some rough ones coming up: taxes, welfare, energy, health care, the Panama Canal, and electoral reform. But one problem, little noticed, may prove more troublesome than all the rest. It involves, quite possibly, the manipulation of the human race.

Bills now pending in the House and Senate, taking different approaches to recombinant DNA research, deal with the stuff from which science fiction is wrought. Indeed, this was the stuff of science fiction nearly 50 years ago, but Aldous Huxley was a piker. In "Brave New World," published in 1932, Huxley imagined the planned reproduction of test tube babies, and set the time for this at 632 A.F. (After Ford.) Huxley was off by maybe 490 years. Scientists are close to Huxley's fantasy now.

In an important autumn book, "The People Shapers," Vance Packard reviews the status not only of genetic research, but also of research in the eerie field of behavioral engineering. An excerpt appeared recently in Saturday Review. Depending on one's point of view, the picture he paints is either terrifying or exciting. The dreams the geneticists are dreaming could result in great good or in fantastic harm.

DNA is shorthand for deoxyribose nucleic acid. Back in 1944, an American biochemist, Oswald Avery, made the basic discovery of DNA's role in reproduction. A decade later, the secrets of life were further uncovered with identification of DNA as a double molecule. Another decade passed, and geneticists began to do tricky things with enzyme sequences and protein chains. Today, according to one scientist quoted by Packard, "modern genetics is on the verge of some truly fantastic ways of 'improving' the human race."

The legislative dilemma is apparent. On one hand is the principle of academic freedom — freedom of the mind. It is a principle deeply rooted in the First Amendment, which says that Congress shall make no law abridging a person's right to publish. On the other hand is the principle of the commonweal — the public's right to be protected from an undue risk of harm.

Four years ago this month, in Science magazine, a group of leading scientists fashioned a public letter. The technical ability existed, they said, to join together DNA molecules from diverse sources. These hybrid molecules "may prove hazardous to laboratory workers and to the public." In the name of prudence, they asked that the hazards be seriously considered.

That is about where we are now. The American Bar Association devoted a panel to DNA regulation at its Chicago meeting last month. The Senate Human Resources Committee in July reported a bill that would establish a new national commission to license and to supervise all recombinant DNA research. The House has a bill that would place such regulation under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Await Tragic Events

By JAMES H. PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists say a series of small spills and a pumphouse explosion along the Alaska oil pipeline have confirmed the wisdom of their opposition to its construction.

But the opponents also say they're accepting defeat philosophically and are awaiting tragic events that seem inevitable.

"I think we're just seeing the beginning of it," said Brock Evans of the Sierra Club. "We're going to see major oil spills and the crack-up of tankers up and down the West Coast. I hope I'm wrong, but ..."

Several minor mishaps have marred smooth operation of the 800-mile-long pipeline since it began moving oil from the North Slope to Valdez on June 20. But no coastal spills have been reported since tankers began carrying the crude oil south to refineries on the West Coast.

The $7.7 billion pipeline, one of the world's major engineering triumphs, crosses the last remaining expanse of wilderness in the United States, a region of Alaska where a man could travel on foot for weeks without seeing another human.

Other Editors Say: Over-Insured?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Are Americans over-insured for medical costs to the point where it is actually costing us more for medical care?

Clark C. Havighurst, director of Duke University's Legal Issues in Health Care Program, thinks so. Like most Americans, he carries a health insurance card. He is a group subscriber at Duke where he teaches law, and he has comprehensive coverage.

Yet, it is the "comprehensive" aspect of his coverage that causes him to look twice. He insists in article and testimony before Congress that comprehensive health insurance is a major contributor to spiraling medical care costs.

He regards the existing health care system as "a remarkably potent vehicle for misallocating the nation's resources" and he says in effect that Americans are buying too much health insurance—that they ought to pay for some medical services out of their own pockets.

Yet, that is precisely why most Americans have comprehensive coverage: They cannot afford the costs of medical care at today's prices. Most of us simply don't have that kind of money on hand. Perhaps it's vicious circle.

Havighurst insists, however, that comprehensiveness in health insurance, as supported by President Carter, would only make the current situation worse.

He believes the inevitable result of too much insurance has been widespread overspending by consumers and the medical care industry, both of whom see the flow of dollars from the insurance cornucopia as endless.

He also believes more selective coverage and the use of deductibles, as is done in auto insurance, would reduce the national outlay for health insurance and services, slowing the "incredible inflation" of 15 per cent a year in health care costs to a reasonable pace.

In grappling with new visions, terrifying or otherwise, we ought to rely upon old principles. When it comes to suppressing the explorations of the human mind, the devices of government are mere fetters of straw. DNA research can be conducted anywhere in the world. Ultimately the research could be done in high school laboratories. No act of Congress can repeal the laws of human behavior. Curious man, at the risk of disaster, must pursue his curiosity where it takes him.

The role of government therefore should be limited, and the exercise of federal authority should especially be limited. Once the all-powerful national state begins to regulate the course of scientific inquiry, we are headed down the Soviet road. A concerned public is entitled to reasonable oversight; the power of the purse can be invoked by granting or withholding federal grants; much can be done without "The pipeline breaks my heart every time I see it," said Pam Rich, Alaska coordinator for Friends of Earth, one of several organizations that filed suit to block the pipeline's construction. "The continuity of that wilderness tract has been broken," she said.

Not only has the pipeline brought a measure of human encroachment to the Arctic wilderness, "but it now looks like the caribou are shying away from it," she said.

Special care was taken to provide passages for the caribou to cross the pipeline on their migrations across the tundra. Whether the pipeline will cause caribou populations to decline is unknown at this time.

Evans said reports indicate that an oil glut exists on the West Coast, caused by the influx of Alaska oil. "I think we're seeing the oil going to the wrong place," he said.

The Sierra Club also opposed the pipeline route, arguing that

THE INSIDE REPORT

Lance Facing Hard Times

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Bert Lance's most faithful supporters privately admit the struggle to save him seems doomed, a confession whose grave impact on the presidency of Jimmy Carter through the declining economy is not yet appreciated at the White House.

While top officials assert that the true focus has shifted from budget director Lance to President Carter, they are talking in terms of morality rather than the economy. "We've all been so busy with Lance and the Panama Canal, that nobody has time to think about the economy," one presidential aide told us.

But Lance has. Alone among key Carter officials, he is fully aware of economic dangers ahead. Since even his critics within the administration concede nobody can fully replace Lance as "Deputy President," the latest decline in his prospects for survival reduces the likelihood of the administration acting to forestall economic disaster ahead.

Linkage between Lance and hard times is revealed by nightly telephone surveys across the country by economic pollster Albert Sinding. He finds a sharp decline in the President's popularity, but not because of the Lance affair. Rather, Mr. Carter's popularity, which had dropped to 35 per cent in Sinding's poll, moved back to 47 per cent after his announced decision to support Lance.

The Lance affair, Washington's obsession for weeks, interests people at the other end of Sinding's telephone calls not at all. Instead, they worry about Carter policies: raising oil prices, capitulating to the farm lobby, issuing confusing economic signals. Their lack of confidence leads Sinding to forecast recession immediately ahead.

Lance is aware of Sinding's data, but other officials here are preoccupied by the tenacious onslaught against Lance from the Washington press corps. Details of Lance's use of the same stock as collateral for two bank loans is much more familiar in the upper reaches of the administration than is the frightening weakness of commodity prices.

Insistence by the press that Lance leave office began breaking the administration's will this week. On Monday, one of his most sincere backers in the White House privately suggested that perhaps Lance should take a leave of absence to defend himself, possibly returning later — in another job. That was a white flag of surrender.

By Tuesday, scarcely any official honestly believed in Lance's survival. One cabinet member guessed Lance might quit when Senate hearings start Sept. 7, though the consensus was he would last longer than that. To administration officials, hopelessness was signalled by the debate's shift from Lance's financial integrity to his competence in office.

In a broader sense, the problem has become the President's, with criticism now directed at Mr. Carter for embracing his friend Aug. 18. Since the President is determined not to turn out Lance after having backed him, the decision must be made by Lance and Lance alone.

Lance tells friends that will not come soon, but he might change his mind if self-defense continues to dominate his every waking hour. Even Lance's staunchest defenders admit he is simply not running the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) while crucial spending decisions are due.

This effect is likely to transcend all the speculation about the President's loss of purity now transfixing Washington. No successor at OMB could approach Lance's effectiveness in pressing the effectiveness. Therefore, all too often we turn aside and abandon any efforts in this direction.

But the trouble is not the size of the organizations we want to change, but our jobs as we contemplate the job to be done. Too often we give up before we start. Usually there is a much wider range of possibilities open to us than we first realize. And when one person can influence another person to work with him or her toward a given end, the process of change is underway.

Strength For Today

SIZE AND SIGNS

A speaker at a college commencement recently made the statement, "The trouble with our present civilization is size." Apparently as a result of typographical error, when the statement appeared in the local newspaper, "size" was rendered as "sighs."

Actually this typo carries an important message. We tend to think that the great size of our nation, of our economy, even of our church, makes it hard to bring about needed changes and reforms. We feel that one person, or even one group, can't be very

A New Season After Labor Day

NEW YORK (AP) — On this day after Labor Day it's as if the summer were shot dead, executed by the same gun that begins the mad race to get everything done that should have been done the day before yesterday or earlier.

School is in, new cars are out, new TV shows are on. The calendar is loaded with big plans, conventions, sales promotions, ad campaigns, budget reviews.

Football nudges baseball. Hayfever blows into town. Congress returns. Elections begin. It's far too much for a nervous system that had lain becalmed all summer and is now fighting to keep from the rocks.

It is a time of conflict. A time when the guilty boss, trying to make up for all the time lost as he, and assumedly you, idled through the summer, clashes head-on with the subordinate determined to get a pay raise.

The stock market seems to react too. If averages rise Tuesday through Friday of this week the market probably will be higher for the next month, or so you will find in the vast archives of stock market mythology. Beware.

Greeting the new season will be a spate of statistics that should get you in the mood or, you might say, marching to the numbers again.

The Federal Reserve today will tell us all about consumer credit, which everyone is concerned about. Are we spending ourselves into a crisis? Some interpreters of those statistics will tell you we are.

Through the courtesy of the same sponsor, the Fed, we will also learn the condition of the big commercial banks, which everyone is concerned about. Some of the interpreters will say the big banks ought to tighten up.

Another house of numbers, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, will present the statistics on plant and equipment investment, which everyone is concerned about. Some of the interpreters will say we're in trouble unless spending rises more.

All this and more. And while there will be good economic news too, it seems that all news of late has been cast by critics in the shape of an ogre, in keeping with the shortening days and the lowering clouds.

Jumping the gun, the United Jersey Bank of Hackensack, N.J., announced prior to the holiday that as of today its prime lending rate is 7.25 per cent instead of 7 per cent.

United Jersey (about $1.2 billion in assets) doesn't hold the leadership role played by the Bank of America (more than $60 billion), but the timing, the eagerness to get itself on record might portend another round of general increases.

Yes, the silence of summer is shattered. Reality is here, the noise begins and most of us are off and running in the dash to next spring, when we can contemplate a little vacation.

Meanwhile, a certain few well organized individuals who have learned to think ahead, and who recognize that the secret of comfort often is in doing things when others aren't, are about to take their off-season vacation at discount rates, far from the madness of it all.

Ponder If Weather Linked To Legionnaires Disease

Terrorists Threaten Hostage

By EUGEN VIETINGHOFF
Associated Press Writer
COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Telephone messages threatened the execution today of a West German industrialist kidnaped in a street ambush in which his chauffeur and three bodyguards were killed.

Hanns Martin Schleyer, head of the national associations of industries and of employers, was abducted Monday at a Cologne intersection as he was being driven home from his office in a two-car convoy. Police said he was carried off by five young men but they had found no trace of them.

It was the third terrorist attack on a prominent West German in five months and the second on a business leader in less than six weeks.

A telephone call to the Munich bureau of the newspaper Bild Zeitung said Schleyer would be executed at 5:15 p.m. today (12:15 p.m. EDT) unless the government freed Andreas Baader, the leader of the Baader-Meinhof gang of urban terrorists, and his associates in the Stammheim prison in Stuttgart.

Two news agencies reported receiving similar calls from a terrorist group called the Red Army Faction.

Officials said it was not known whether the calls were authentic, but they were being investigated.

Justice Minister Hans-Jochen Vogel said a letter was found in the Volkswagen microbus used by the kidnapers and then abandoned. But he refused to disclose the contents.

"The bloody provocation in Cologne is directed against all of us," Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said in a special television appearance.

"We have to remain level-headed. Terrorism in the long run doesn't have a chance because the will of the entire nation is pitted against it."

He called on the public to help in the hunt for the terrorists.

The kidnaping of Schleyer apparently was a sequel to the murder of banker Juergen Ponto in Frankfurt on July 30 and the assassination on April 7 of Chief Federal Prosecutor Siegfried Buback, who directed the successful prosecution of Baader and two associates.

After the slaying of Ponto, a telephone call to a news agency in Bonn said "more members of the ruling class will be executed" unless "all political prisoners of war" were released.

Schleyer, a 62-year-old director of the Daimler-Benz automobile company, became head of the West German equivalent of the National Association of Manufacturers last year. As a frequent television spokesman for business and industry, he was one of the country's best known industrialists and an obvious target for terrorists. Interior Minister Werner Mahofer told reporters protection for him had been increased two weeks ago.

A total of 21 persons have been killed in terrorist attacks in West Germany in 5½ years. Most of the killings have been blamed on the Baader-Meinhof Gang and its disciples.

Baader, Jan-Carl Raspe and Gudrun Ensslin were sentenced to life imprisonment in April for bombings at U.S. military installations in the early 1970s in which four American servicemen were killed. Ulrike Meinhof, the other organizer of the gang, hanged herself in her cell during the trial.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The appearance of Legionnaires disease in Columbus late this summer has health officials speculating that a link may exist between weather and the infection that killed 29 persons in Philadelphia last year.

Dr. Ian Baird, director of infectious diseases at Riverside Hospital where all four confirmed cases were admitted, said the disease's recent history indicates it becomes active in late summer.

So far the disease has claimed the life of Catherine M. McCoy, 56, of Columbus, who died Aug. 6. Three other women, including one who recovered and was released Friday, are confirmed victims.

One other person, a 65-year-old woman, remains in serious condition at the hospital with symptoms of the disease, but a final diagnosis is not expected from the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta for at least a week.

Baird said his research shows there were late summer outbreaks of pneumonia-like deaths in Pontiac, Mich., and Washington, D.C., before the infection was isolated when 29 of about 180 persons stricken with the disease died during or after an American Legion convention in Philadelphia July 21-24, 1976.

He said blood samples saved by "far-sighted health officials" in Michigan and Washington show an antibody that is the same as those found in the blood of the Philadelphia and Columbus victims.

He said the appearance of the disease in Columbus lends more credence to the theory that the weather may increase the activity of the yet unnamed organism labeled as the cause of the disease, often undetected because its symptoms are similar to those of pneumonia.

"Really with Mrs. McCoy, we didn't know it was Legionnaires disease," Baird said. "She had rapidly progressing pneumonia and was only sick about a week. An autopsy didn't show the disease."

"But then 10 days later, a second case — an honest-to-God identical case — was seen and we called the Ohio Department of Health and sent blood from the second case to the CDC. We sent lung tissue from the first victim. A few days later we knew what it was," Baird said.

Although he will admit there may have been earlier undetected cases of the disease in Columbus, he said he seriously doubts any deaths attributed to pneumonia might actually have been Legionnaires disease.

"There might have been some milder cases which resolved spontaneously," Baird said. "I would not be surprised to see another one or two cases diagnosed. But I foresee no epidemic," he said.

The CDC has dispatched two specialists to Ohio to conduct the investigation into the most serious, concentrated outbreak of the disease since the Philadelphia deaths.

Since that outbreak, 30 cases have been confirmed, with three occurring six months ago in New Jersey, said Dr. Thomas J. Halpin, head of the Ohio Health Department's Communicable Disease Division.

risking fatal regimentation of applied research.

The problem is as old as the story of Prometheus, who stole fire from Zeus to show man with life. The enraged god then created a woman whom he named Pandora. He gave her a sealed vessel containing all the ills that flesh is heir to, to be given to her husband when she married. Well, Pandora married Prometheus's brother, who opened the jar and let the evils escape. Prometheus himself wound up nailed to a mountain, where eagles picked at his liver all day long.

Today's geneticists have stolen nothing. They have followed their minds in dangerous explorations. The principles of freedom teach us not to stop them; and experience says we could not stop them if we try.

Feel Growth Is Restricted

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Many small North Carolina communities feel their future growth is hemmed in by federal water pollution restrictions and limited tax bases.

The problem stems from the 1972 Water Pollution Control Act, which places growth restrictions on towns that release polluted water into streams. North Carolina counts 146 communities in that category.

The towns much expand wastewater treatment plants or build new ones to get off the restricted list.

"They just won't be able to grow," said Robert A. Carter, chief of the state's water quality operations branch. "Some of these required plants are approaching in cost the total assessed value of the community."

Some communities have expanded their plants with local money, but many smaller towns can't come up with such large expenditures. They can't afford to expand, but they can't grow to increase the tax base without larger treatment capacity.

"The restrictions have hit some of our communities pretty hard in terms of planning and improving their economic base," said Howard Lee, secretary of natural resources and community development.

Lee and the Hunt administration are urging passing in November of a $230 million clean water bond referendum to help towns fund new treatment plants.

A 1971 state water bond issue is expected to expire by the end of this year.

Even outspoken environmentalists, such as Chapel Hill Mayor James C. Wallace, say the federal law is more trouble than its worth.

"What we had thought was going to expedite the cleaning up of the nation's waters has in reality set up back a minimum of five years," Wallace said. "The water quality today is not any better than it was five years ago. In fact, it may be poorer, because of the incredible difficulty in getting anything done."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two graduates of the Orchestral Training Program for Minority Students, which is sponsored by the Los Angeles Philharmonic, have won posts with California orchestras.

Rufus Olivier, 21, has been named second bassoon of the San Francisco Symphony and Oscar Meza, also 21, has been named to a string bass chair in the San Diego Symphony.

The program was conceived in 1972 and selects about 50 students each year. The candidates' average age is 18. Each musician works with a member of the Philharmonic to develop all aspects of orchestral techniques.

Near-Sightedness and Far-Sightedness

I've tried to learn the difference between near-sightedness and far-sightedness. Can you explain it? — Kevin H., R.I. Dear Kevin:

Rays of light enter the eye from all directions. When these rays pass through the opening of the lens of the eye, an image is formed on the retina. The retina is a highly sensitive inner lining of the back of the eyeball. When these light rays land on the retina they become electrical waves and are carried to the brain. By experience, a person learns to recognize different images (pictures) and learns to tell the difference between a house, an auto, or a human being.

Near-sightedness, or myopia, results when the eyeball becomes less round and more oval. Because of the change in shape, the light rays that enter the lens now strike in front of the retina rather than directly on it. This causes blurring of the vision that must be corrected by wearing glasses.

When people are near-sighted their vision is better for near objects than for distant objects.

On the other hand, far-sightedness, or hyperopia, is a condition in which, again, the shape of the eyeball is not normal. The light rays that pass through the lens hit beyond the retina. Vision with this disorder is better for distant objects than for near ones. This, too, can be corrected with special lenses.

President for restraint on federal spending.

What may be ahead is reflected in "Promises to Keep," an excellent new book by veteran Washington correspondent Robert Shogan about Mr. Carter's first hundred days. Shogan reveals that in late March, Hamilton Jordan wrote a confidential memo criticizing the President for making decisions without reference to political factors. Jordan's memo complained about "disproportionate influence" by Lance and other advisers reflecting business views. "As Jordan pointed out, organized labor had done a great deal more to elect Carter than the business interests," Shogan writes.

Without Lance, such political pressures for higher spending will meet no effective resistance. Without Lance, the economic, energy and farm policies shown by Sindlinger's poll to disturb the country will have no effective critic. Those facts link Lance's probably fall with hard times in a way scarcely perceived by the President's men.

the oil should have been brought down through Canada to link up with pipelines that could have carried it both to the West Coast and Midwest.

James Dean of the Wilderness Society said the environmentalists' battle against the pipeline wasn't entirely futile. He noted that the court agreed with contentions that the original pipeline environmental impact statement was inadequate, setting a precedent that is still being followed.

Ms. Rich, who prefers that designation, said the controversy forced the oil companies to modify their pipeline design to improve safety and provide greater protection for the landscape.

But it is not simply the pipeline that alarms environmentalists. They are working to require better technology on tankers to prevent collisions or oil spills. And they see the newly built road which parallels the pipeline as spelling the doom of Alaska's Arctic wilderness.

Previously inaccessible except by plane or by foot, the road is expected eventually to open up the north.

Carter Warned; Resists Getting Lance To Resign

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is resisting efforts to get Bert Lance to resign as White House budget director, despite warnings by two leading senators that serious new allegations about Lance's financial affairs have been uncovered.

At a White House meeting Monday, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., told Carter the new allegations are "of such a serious nature" that Lance should step down before trying to defend himself.

But it was learned that Carter and Lance will not consider a resignation at this point. The President, it became known, still feels Lance has done nothing wrong and will be vindicated by the committee's investigation.

Ribicoff and Percy are ranking members of the Senate

Governmental Affairs Committee, which confirmed Lance as budget director. The committee and two other congressional panels are investigating Lance's activities as the head of two Georgia banks before Carter appointed him to head the Office of Management and Budget last January.

Among those scheduled to testify before the governmental affairs panel was Robert Bloom, who had been acting comptroller of the currency and had praised Lance before the committee during confirmation hearings. He reportedly planned to testify that he had not mentioned that he knew of Lance's financial problems because he had assumed senators had been told about them by White House aides.

The senators declined Monday to tell reporters what new information their staffs had uncovered about Lance's financial affairs, but Percy called for appointment of a special prosecutor to handle the investigation.

Ribicoff planned to brief the committee on the new allegations today as a House banking subcommittee was asking banking examiners how thoroughly they investigated Lance when he was first confirmed. Ribicoff had been a staunch defender of the budget director after previous inquiries into his finances. After hearings in July he asserted that Lance had been "smeared" by the press.

But Ribicoff told reporters Monday: "I think it would be wiser for Bert Lance to resign. I don't think Bert Lance can be an effective budget director while this is going on."

The only official White House comment on the Monday statements by the two senators was that the President appreciates their plans to begin hearings without delay.

Lance had no comment, but Ribicoff said he understands Lance is determined to remain in office and feels he has been maligned.

Comptroller of the Currency John G. Heimann cleared Lance of any crimes in a report to the committee Aug. 18. But Heimann has said his investigation did find unsafe and unsound — although legal — banking practices.

The congressional investigations center on bank overdrafts by Lance and his family, Lance's pledge of the same collateral for separate loans at different banks, his personal use of bank aircraft and whether he fully disclosed his investment holdings at his confirmation hearings.

Drawn By Eisenhower Library

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Abilene Reflector-Chronicle
ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — So many scholars, researchers, writers and other visitors come here to tap the rich resources of the Eisenhower Library that people are beginning to refer to it as an international shopping center for historians and architects.

The library is only one part of the mammoth Eisenhower Center complex that is a major Midwest tourist attraction, but the serious business of research is booming behind the scenes.

More and more foreigners are joining those who become part-time residents to make use of the collection of materials unfolding on the historic Eisenhower era.

This was an eventful period covering more than 20 years. It recorded many sensations and firsts in military, social and domestic fields — from battlefield victories, truce in Korea, development of the hydrogen bomb and space age to sweeping new civil rights legislation, admission of Alaska and Hawaii to statehood, opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway and stronger labor laws.

Even the Eisenhower Foundation Newsletter, issued as a quarterly overview of activities, refers to visitors from abroad as the increasing "international clientele."

Local citizens have become so accustomed to strangers they hardly turn heads any more.

"I come from the very heart of America," Eisenhower said in his Guildhall address in London immediately after the Allied victory in Europe. He envisioned the people-to-people approach for getting along between nations.

But no one dreamed of the role that his home town in the middle of the United States would have in fostering international understanding through what he described then as "one fine, progressive step toward peace in the world."

While the largest number of researchers are Americans, they have also come from at least 10 foreign countries, including Russia, in the past couple of years. India leads the list in numbers with seven on one or more occasions, according to John Wickman, director. Others have come from Australia, England, Sweden, Germany, Japan, Holland, Switzerland, France and Thailand.

Each study visitor is accredited in advance and asked to identify the specific area of interest that brings him. A staff of specialists is waiting to assist the visitors, who stay from a period of days to weeks at a time.

Several new revealing Eisenhower files have recently been opened to public research, Wickman said. One which is called the "Diaries Series" includes some 29,000 pages of notes prepared by Eisenhower's former private secretary, Ann Whitman.

Among other things they disclose that Ike was quite a random doodler, with numerous designs showing up on letters, records and scraps of paper.

The diary entries also provide new insights into his political philosophies. Some deal bluntly with national security, in some instances the only known record of discussions with cabinet members and others.

Ike never forgot his home town of Abilene and left it a great heritage endowment in the multi-million-dollar center. He is buried in a chapel across the street from his boyhood home.

The other side of the coin is the economic windfall in the form of tourist business which has become a major industry for his one-time rip-roaring cattle town at the northern terminus of the Chisholm Trail.

The millions of visitors from all over the world have spent millions here and elsewhere in the region, which many of them might not otherwise ever have seen.

Burglary Is Charged Man

A 21-year-old Tarboro man was charged with burglary early Monday following an incident at a Rt. 1, Fountain home during which he was shot by the homeowner.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Billy Lee Tripp of 301 Virginia Avenue, Tarboro, was shot in the left shoulder by Charlie Wright Strickland after Tripp was discovered in the Strickland home.

Tripp, who was arrested by Pitt deputies at 3:30 a.m. Monday, was charged with burglary and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was treated for his injury and released to the Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Tyson, who said that Tripp was shot with a pistol, reported that bond was set at $5,000 with a hearing scheduled for today in District Court here.

Officers discovered that a storm door at the Strickland residence had been forced open, the sheriff said.

Campus Fees Branching Out Into New Services

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Campus service fees extracted from college students have begun providing such sophisticated aids as legal advice, in addition to the old gym and health center coverage.

At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill last year, some 900 students sought legal advice in the plan's first year from Dorothy Bernholz, staff attorney for the campus' prepaid legal services plan.

Students at North Carolina State University and Duke University have similar legal services plans.

Problems range from landlord-tenant disagreements to civil suits seeking under $500.

Landlord tenant problems include the touchy subject of unmarried students living together, and then refuse to return security deposits.

"I've never litigated a case, because usually the students, because of the public shame, will just cave in a pay it," Mrs. Bernholz said Monday night in a telephone interview. "Sometimes they split the difference."

North Carolina law declares such cohabitations illegal, and some leases read that property can't be used for illegal or immoral purposes.

"The majority of large apartment complexes don't bother about it," she said, adding that she's seen a dozen such cases.

Mrs. Bernholz's counsel is available to any student who has paid the required services fees. The UNC student government body set aside $20,000 for the program last year. Although Mrs. Bernholz, a North Carolina Central University law graduate, is the only fulltime attorney, law students help research cases.

"We're just a function of money," she said of possible future needs for additional staff attorneys. In addition to office advice, she organizes preventive law workshops on avoiding legal pitfalls.

Landlord problems are not the only problems faced by unmarried couples living together, she said, adding that splitting up possessions at the end of a relationship can be a thorny problem.

The monthly workshops were held up by a suit which challenged the university plan's requirement that students use the staff attorney instead of an attorney of their choice.

U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan upheld the university plan and declared unconstitutional a law requiring freedom of choice in attorney selection.

The ruling means the university plan no longer has to set aside money for students who use private attorneys, and the money will go into Mrs. Bernholz' workshops.

Klan Rally Erupted In Violence; Ten People Hurt

Persistent Bird Pecks For A Payoff In Feed

LONG SHOT—An Arizona State University pigeon named "Elaine" has learned to play the long shot as well as humans in an experiment by psychologist Peter Killeen. She pecks at a white light until it goes out, then pecks a colored light to indicate whether she or a computer was responsible. If in doubt, she uses whatever response gives the greater payoff in feed.

By MIKE MC CLOY

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Pigeons warble and wobble and walk funny when they're about to eat, but it's not because they're stupid, says psychologist Peter Killeen. Killeen, director of graduate studies at Arizona State University, is using a $50,000 National Science Foundation grant to show that pigeons aren't acting out of ignorant superstition. They're playing the long shot. When a pigeon repeats any activity that was sometimes followed by food, the behavior is called superstitious, Killeen explains. The pigeon may pace and stare before pecking, or turn in circles and peck several times at a nail, for example. It makes as much sense as a person knocking on wood to forestab bad luck or scratching his head for inspiration. But it's not stupid, says Killeen. "I call it 'why-not' behavior — playing the long shot when there's nothing to lose." To demonstrate that pigeons can play the long shot as well as humans, Killeen rigged a box with a computerized set of lights and a feeding device. "Elaine," one of Killeen's pigeons, steps into the box and begins pecking at a white light, which is flanked by red and green lights. After a few pecks, the white light goes off and Elaine pecks the red light, signifying "I did it." Indeed, the pigeon, not the computer, turned off the light, and Elaine is rewarded with a shot of grain. After a few seconds, the grain hopper snaps shut, the white light goes out while she's looking at it but not pecking. Elaine pecks the green light for "I didn't do it" and gets another shot of grain. The kicker comes when Killeen pecks away at the white light and it goes out, but the timing is too close and she can't tell whether she did it or not. So she plays the long shot, pecking the "I did it" light. She may be wrong and get no grain at all, but if she's right the payoff is bigger than for hitting the "I didn't do it" light correctly. Killeen has the graphs to show that the pigeons always discern well whether they shut off the white light or not, but if in doubt, they lean toward the response that offers the greater payoff. "It's better thought of as performance biased by the payoff," he said. "It looks like it's the same in humans and pigeons." Overall, the pigeons are right in their responses 90 per cent of the time, Killeen said. College students score about 60 per cent the first time they try the same kind of test, but soon do better than pigeons, Killeen said. However, students aren't motivated by grain and become bored with scoring points. So Killeen says he plans to start paying "say, a nickel for each right response. That's $2 a half-hour session, something meaningful to a college student. That's a six-pack of beer." Even pigeons know "you've got to pay attention to the payoffs, or you're going to be right but hungry," Killeen says. "The idea that animals are going to tell us the way things are naive. It's going to be a function of their senses and the payoff."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan anti-busing rally at the Statehouse ended in violence Monday as police clashed with anti-Klan demonstrators who pelted Klansmen with eggs and shouted their leader. Police said they arrested 10 persons following the fracas, in which three demonstrators and seven policemen were treated for injuries. Dale Reusch, imperial wizard of the Ohio Klan, was able to speak for about a half hour before he and two dozen supporters, harrassed by continuous booming and chanting, packed up their portable sound system and American and Confederate flags. The violence broke out as Klan members exited through the Statehouse underground parking lot. Pushing and shoving started when city police walked among the crowd of more than 500 persons. In a matter of seconds, eyewitnesses said, two demonstrators were clubbed to the ground. It was the second consecutive holiday rally held by the Klan on the steps of the state Capitol to rally against court-ordered busing to achieve racial balance, now looming in Columbus and two other Ohio cities. At the first rally on Independence Day, violence erupted before Reusch had a chance to begin his speech. Four persons were arrested and two others injured in the brawl between some of the 300 persons at the rally — some supporting the Klan but most demonstrating against it. Reusch was able to speak this time while supporters flanked him in a cordoned-off area on the steps of the Capitol, ringed by 25 helmeted highway patrolmen. Dressed in the traditional white robes with red trimming, they had been searched by highway patrolmen before the rally started. Anti-Klan demonstrators screamed and chanted as Reusch, wearing a purple robe and white peaked cap, attempted to address the crowd. "The Klan is back in Columbus to oppose forced busing," Reusch, 38, of Lodi, said to a torrent of boos. About midway through his speech, a hail of eggs splattered Klansmen and the Capitol building. The Klansmen were unhurt. Afterward, Reusch said he was satisfied that he had gotten across his message and added that he would not return to Columbus for another anti-busing demonstration. The 10 persons arrested face various charges, including disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and disturbing a lawful meeting, police Capt. Robert Kern said. Kern identified those arrested and their charges as Ronnie Latson, 22, Columbus, disorderly conduct and menacing; Rex Wenger, 29, Cleveland, assault and obstructing official business and resisting arrest; John Woods, 26, Pittsburgh, resisting arrest, assault and disturbing a lawful meeting; David Mann, 28, Columbus, assault; Cathy Pikel, 26, Columbus, disturbing a lawful meeting and resisting arrest; Marian Kromkowski, 23, Detroit, assault and disorderly conduct; Leona Soles, 23, Detroit, assault and resisting arrest; David Watkins, 23, Detroit, felonious assault, carrying a concealed weapon and resisting arrest; William Gilbreath, 29, Detroit, felonious assault, and Peter Ostrow, 30, Detroit, assault.

Plan Campaign For Citizens To Initiate New Federal Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 12-year-old bus, which until recently carried school children over country roads in Virginia's Rappahannock County, will take to the nation's highways next month in a campaign to involve the voters in making federal law.

The bus, acquired from the rural school district and repainted red, white and blue,

New Rules Curb Plans

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A proposed change in savings and loan association charter regulations has caused a Kinston family to revise plans for controlling interest in a savings and loan.

The new rule would bar an individual or a family from owning more than 10 per cent of any of the state's newly legalized stock-owned savings and loan associations. William L. Cole, state savings and loan administrator, proposed the rule, which the state Savings and Loan Commission will consider Sept. 29. A public hearing on the matter is planned Sept. 19.

Developer Roy Poole and his family have expanded their list of stock subscribers of Family Savings & Loan from 14 to 64 as a result of rules proposal. The family would own 10 per cent of all shares. Another family affected would be that of Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles Jr., 1972 Democratic gubernatorial candidate. Bowles and seven relatives are part of a group seeking to form Scottish Savings & Loan Association Inc. Bowles family members would own 280,000 of the original 350,000 shares.

"The proposed rule is extremely strict," Cole said. "As I read it, the legislative intent in allowing stock-owned savings and loan associations was to keep an individual from controlling an association. We're going to have to come up with some rule to do that."

has been refitted as a traveling live-in office for Initiative America, an organization formed to promote the idea of letting citizens initiate laws without waiting for their congressmen to act. Leaders of the organization have succeeded in getting a constitutional amendment introduced in Congress. It would enable voters to initiate and then go to the polls and pass federal laws. But supporters concede they have an uphill battle to get it approved. For one thing, Initiative America is longer on enthusiasm than it is on political clout. The group's national headquarters is at 1316 Independence Avenue S.E. in Washington. That address may sound impressive, but it's really just a desk in Bill Harrington's townhouse.

"It will be a long-range process," says Harrington. He is one of three youthful political strategists, all veterans of environmental, consumer and political reform initiatives at the state level, who form the nucleus of Initiative America. Harrington and his colleagues, Roger Telschow and John Forster, claim to be getting support from both conservative and liberal groups for what they contend is a nonideological effort. At least one potent Washington figure, however, already has expressed reservations about the plan. "The initiative is a safeguard against legislatures that are too beholden to special interest groups and special interest money, but a national initiative right can only work if there is adequate access to the mass media for all viewpoints," said consumer advocate Ralph Nader. "Otherwise only those viewpoints with the richest pockets will be able to communicate to the public."

Harrington conceded little action is likely on the federal constitutional amendment until the next session of Congress at the earliest. It has been introduced in the Senate with the backing of three senators, but no hearings have been scheduled. No corresponding measure has been introduced in the House, but Forster said a ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee has agreed to sponsor one. Meanwhile, the group also

Prison Routine Like Students'

BUTNER, N.C. (AP) — Suspicions of psychosurgery experiments and brainwashing once threatened the planned opening of the $14 million federal prison here. Now, 15 months after its opening, some of the 360 men at the Federal Correctional Institution have daily routines resembling college students.

Prisoners are divided into three groups at the nation's newest federal prison. Care for psychiatric and general prisoners is much like those at other prisons. But inmates in the research group, selected at random by computer, are offered self-improvement and self-help programs including academic courses and vocational training. They are allowed considerable latitude during a loosely structured day. It was not until the facility was near completion in 1975 that the original concept for highly experimental biological and behavior modification research was abandoned, as was the facility's original name — Federal Center for Corrective Research.

Prisoners are housed in seven dormitories named after the seven colleges in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Most inmates live by themselves, in rooms without bars, furnished with a closet, bunk and desks. They wear their own clothing. "This is to see what happens when you put a fellow...in an environment without any coercion for treatment," said Warden Gilbert L. Ingram, a psychologist. Most of the men are from North Carolina, and are between 18 to 71 years old. Their offenses range from white-collar crimes to murder. "Remember though, they don't have their freedom," said Ingram, who added the program is an outstanding success. "They complain about everything, but no one wants to leave."

Dailey Says

He Feels 'Fine'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Actor Dan Dailey says he is experiencing no problems following surgery for the broken right hip he suffered in a fall during a dinner-theater performance. "I feel fine. I've always felt fine," Dailey said Monday in a telephone interview from North Carolina Memorial Hospital. Dailey, 63, stumbled on a piece of furniture and fell during an Aug. 25 performance of "The Odd Couple" at the Village Dinner Theatre in Raleigh. He was playing the role of Oscar Madison, the sportswriter. An operation to replace the ball in Dailey's hip joint was performed Thursday after a delay due to the actor's fatigue, a hospital spokesman said. But Dailey denied reports that he suffered from other complications. "I just broke my hip, period," the actor said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after its pre-Labor Day rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 16.89 last week, rose another 2 points in early trading today. But by 11:30 a.m. it was off 1.21 at 871.10.

Gainer maintained a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly quiet. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 4.24 million shares.

Analysts noted some encouragement over the market's showing last week, when it halted a five-week slide.

But they also said that investors remained fearful of a business slowdown.

This morning Chairman Edgar B. Spear of U.S. Steel Corp. reduced the company's forecast of 1977 industry shipments from the 95 million-96 million ton range to between 93 million and 95 million tons.

U.S. Steel shares were off 1/4 at 33 3/4.

Presley Cos., an American Stock Exchange issue, rose 1/2 to 9 1/4 on the company's report of sharply higher quarterly earnings.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .07 at 53.40, and the Amex market value index added .10 to 118.96.

minutes after being taken to a local hospital.

"I heard a shot and saw that boy (Davis) fall backwards," she said. "They (members of the church) told us to get down, get down. Whoever it was just kept shooting."

Jo Anne Terry, 28, of Charlotte was in critical condition at a local hospital where she was undergoing surgery Monday night. Joseph Walker Jr., 29, of Charlotte was in satisfactory condition with a foot wound while Larry Eugene Smith, 15, was treated for a leg wound and released.

Some witnesses said the assailant was accompanied by another man, similarly dressed. But police said several hours after the shooting that there was no search for another man.

One bullet struck the windshield of a car in which a 74-year-old woman was watching the Lord.

"I knew the Lord was right on my side or that madman would have killed me, too," the woman said.

Sylvester Gatewood was playing first base when the shooting started.

"I heard something like firecrackers going off and I saw my buddy fall," Gatewood said. "He was wounded. Then everybody ran. They thought we were going to be killed."

Lou Davis, a member of the board of trustees for the church about eight miles south of Charlotte, was cooking fish when he heard the shots. He said he ran to the church, let people in and told them to get down behind pews.

Again Blocks Gym Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan today blocked for the time being construction of a gymnasium at Kent State University on the site where National Guardsmen seven years ago killed four Vietnam war protesters.

Brennan, the second member of the nation's highest court to consider the Kent State case, said the start of construction should be postponed until university officials respond to a request by construction opponents that no gymnasium be built.

"It is ordered that the issuance of the mandate of the (6th U.S. Court of Appeals) be stayed pending the filing of a response to the application and further order of (Brennan) or of the court," Brennan's brief decision said.

Justice Potter Stewart, the circuit justice who usually handles urgent matters for the high court coming from the judicial circuit which includes Ohio, last Saturday refused to delay the construction.

A group calling itself the May 4th Coalition then went to Brennan, as it is allowed to do under Supreme Court rules.

A U.S. District Court order barring construction of the building near the site where the protesters died and nine other persons were wounded May 4, 1970, was to expire today.

Police said the burglar — described as in his 30s and wearing dark pants and a knit watch cap — caught one of the bullets and left a trail of blood in the yard.

For his part, Hilton stayed clear of the line of fire. "This is the first time since I've been here that anything like this has ever happened," mused the 89-year-old hotel baron.

Chinatown Offers Tips In Mass Murder Case

By JACK CHEEVERS Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chinatown residents, usually uncooperative with police, are providing leads in what is being called by investigators the worst mass murder case in the city's history, the slaying of five persons and the wounding of 11 others at a Chinese restaurant.

Three masked men believed aiming at rival gang members fired a submachine gun, shotgun and pistol into the crowded Golden Dragon restaurant at 2:40 a.m. Sunday, police said.

They left the ornate dining room strewn with bleeding bodies and upturned chairs, but apparently none of the victims had anything to do with a gang, authorities said.

"We're getting feedback from people in Chinatown," Homicide Lt. Dan Murphy said Monday. "Some people are coming forward."

Murphy's comments followed sharply worded statements by Police Chief Charles Gain that a "subculture of fear" had closed the mouths of potential Chinatown witnesses and hampered police efforts to solve a string of murders and shootings tied to Chinese youth gangs.

Police speculated the shootings may be another battle in the decade-long war between rival youth gangs struggling for control of Chinatown's lucrative gambling, extortion and drug rackets.

Murphy said two of Chinatown's most powerful gangs, the Wah Ching and Joe-Boys, may figure in the Sunday slayings of four men and one woman.

"There was a table of Wah Chings eating in the restaurant when another group came through the door — the Joe-Boys," Murphy said.

He said the Joe-Boy gang is an offshoot of the notorious Joe Fong gang, linked to extortion and several Chinatown gang killings in the early 1970s. Joe Fong, the gang's leader, is serving a 10-year-to-life sentence imposed in 1973 for conspiracy to commit murder.

The slaying did not stop tourists from filling Chinatown restaurants and walking its streets Monday night.

Dunn Worries Pirate Coaches

"Our biggest problem is to figure out how to stop Mike Dunn," East Carolina Coach Pat Dye said as the Pirates began preparations for Saturday's second game, against Duke University.

Dunn, the Atlantic Coast Conference's pre-season All-League quarterback, ran for over 700 yards and passed for another 1,000 last year for the Blue Devils, and is rated one of the top quarterbacks in the nation.

Dye again noted that he was disappointed in Saturday night's pass defense against N.C. State, which yielded over 300 yards. "It was bad from front to back," Dye said, critical of the pass run put on by the line, the underneath coverage of the linebackers and the deep coverage of the secondary.

However, there were some bright spots in the game. Leander Green, who alternated at quarterback with Jimmy Southerland, picked up 137 total yards on 12 plays, an average of 11.4 yards, breaking the old school record of 11.3, set back in 1964 by ECU Sports Hall of Famer Bill Cline against Lenoir Rhyne.

The Pirate coaching staff has also set up a "star" system for the Pirates, awarding them for points gained through the ECU grading system. In addition to those, a "Big Star" may or may not be awarded for a super play in each game.

Ruffin McNeil, who nearly didn't get back on the field for the final play, got the first "Big Star" award. McNeil, like other Pirates, thought the game was over when the score-board clock ran out, and raced into the locker room to celebrate. He was hastily called back by a coach, and just made it back in time to participate in the closing play.

And he stopped State's Rickey Adams just two yards short of the goal line, holding onto the Pirate win.

Dye also said that he plans to make some changes in the kicking game of the Pirates, another phase of the game he was disappointed in Saturday.

The Pirates face Duke Saturday at Durham.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the East Carolina-Duke football game to be played Saturday at Durham, are still on sale at the East Carolina Athletic Ticket Office.

Gary Overton, ticket manager, said that the tickets were going in a steady flow, but that a good supply was on hand for Pirate fans. The ticket office is open daily 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Astros Defeat Reds, Shoot For 2nd Place

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Still think the Cincinnati Reds are going to win the National League West, do you? Would you believe third place?

The streaking Houston Astros, winners of 10 of their last 11 games, defeated Cincinnati 5-1 Monday night. They ended Tom Seaver's seven-game winning streak in the process and moved within 5½ games of the second-place Reds.

"You bet we're shooting for second place," said Houston catcher Joe Ferguson. "We've got to beat the Reds and everyone else, but we're still fighting for it."

The Reds' setback reduced Los Angeles' magic number to 15 even though the Dodgers lost 1-0 to a two-hitter by Bob Ojeda of the San Diego Padres. Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Phillies maintained a seven-game lead over Pittsburgh in the NL East by splitting a doubleheader with the Pirates, losing 3-1 then winning 11-1 for Steve Carlton's 20th victory.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs downed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, the Atlanta Braves blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0 and the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 4-3.

The Astros tagged Seaver for eight hits and all five runs in six innings, including a homer by Enos Cabell and triples by winning pitcher Mark Lemongello and Cesar Cedeno.

Lemongello held the Reds to six hits and their only run came on a homer by Seaver, who must have thought he was back with the light-hitting Mets.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0

Owchinko avenged a heart-breaking 1-0 loss to the Dodgers on July 16, a game in which he retired the first 22 batters. This time, the rookie left-hander walked one, struck out five and didn't permit a runner beyond first base. The Padres scored in the third inning when Gene Richards singled, stole his 41st base of the season, went to third on a single by Bill Almon and came home on a throwing error by first baseman Steve Garvey after pitcher Doug Rau picked Almon off.

Pirates 3-1, Phillies 1-1
Carlton became a 20-game winner for the fourth time, scattering seven hits in eight innings and rapping his third home run of the season in addition to a run-scoring single. Jay Johnstone gave him all the runs he needed with a two-run homer in the second inning.

In the opener, John Candelaria, 16-4, and Rich Gossage scattered seven hits, including a homer by Jerry Martin. Duffy Dyer connected for Pittsburgh.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 2

Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a homer and sacrifice fly and Larry Bittner had three hits including a solo homer to back the six-hit pitching of Dave Roberts.

Braves 4, Giants 0

Atlanta's Dick Ruffen hurled a three-hitter for his first shutout since his first start of the season. Jim Barr was the loser, although he threw only three pitches.

Expos 4, Mets 3

Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine homered as Montreal sent Jerry Kosman, a 21-game winner last year, to his 18th loss in 26 decisions. Valentine was making his first appearance since he fouled a ball off his ankle three weeks ago.

Wooles Is Golf Winner

Mike Wooles captured first place in the 25th annual W. S. Moye Memorial Golf Tournament at the Greenville Golf and Country Club yesterday.

Wooles had rounds of 68, 73 and 74 in the three-day, 54-hole tournament to take the championship flight. Karl Thurber finished second with a 227 total, 12 strokes behind Wooles, while Dallas Clark was third at 230 and Cam Dudley Jr. was fourth at 237.

Joe Murad won the first flight with a score of 230, followed by Charles Bridgers at 248, Charles Gaskins at 249, and Jay Collie at 251.

In the second flight, Will Hickman was first at 245, trailed by Don Freeman at 253, Ken Hite at 255, and Mickey Herrin at 256. P.K. Andresen won the third flight with a 261. He was followed by Graham Jefferson at 277, Skip Bright at 286, and Ernest Schwarz at 292.

In the fourth flight, Ray Edwards took first place at 263, followed by Bert Aycock at 287, Tom Scoopmire at 292, and Frank Doyle at 307.

Reynolds May won the senior division with a 242, with Ercell Webb next at 245. They were followed by Don White Sr., at 248, and Connor Merritt at 252.

Sox Take Two, Yanks Lose As Gap Narrows

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees lost twice, the Boston Red Sox were stranded and the Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader — all of which closed the gap in the American League East Division race.

"Thank goodness they lost," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver about the Yankees. "Maybe they'll lose another."

New York Manager Billy Martin was glum but undaunted. "I'm not going to lose any sleep over it," he said of his team's double setback to the Cleveland Indians Monday, 4-3 and 5-4.

The Red Sox, who finished off the day with a doubleheader sweep of the Toronto Blue Jays, started it off at an airport in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

"It's been quite a day," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "I wouldn't want to go through too many like that."

At the end of the Labor Day 11-game marathon, the Yankees held a 2½-game lead over Boston while Baltimore is four games back of New York.

Even with Monday's twin loss, the Yankees have won 24 of their last 29 games. But Monday, it was Cleveland's turn as the Indians ended a 13-game losing string against New York.

Boston blanked Toronto twice, 8-0 and 6-0, while Baltimore lost to Detroit 3-7 in 11 innings before defeating the Tigers 5-0.

In other AL games, Oakland

and Chicago split, the A's taking the opener 8-7 and Chicago winning the nightcap 2-1; Minnesota edged Texas 5-4; Milwaukee nipped California 6-5 and Kansas City defeated Seattle 8-4.

The Indians' Bruce Bochte drove in five runs in the twinbill, including the game-winner in the opener, and Andre Thornton's checked-swing eighth-inning bloop double scored the decisive run in the nightcap.

Don Hood, 2-0, who started for only the second time this season, gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings in the opener. Jim Kern picked up his 18th save of the season despite giving up a solo homer to Reggie Jackson in the eighth.

Tigers 8-0, Orioles 7-5

The Tigers used seven pitchers in the opener, which Detroit pulled out on Rusty Staub's two-out homer in the bottom of the 11th.

Baltimore came back in the nightcap as Rudy May, 15-12, scattered eight singles in hurling his 10th complete game and fourth shutout of the season.

Red Sox 8-6, Blue Jays 0-0

Rookie Don Aase, 4-1, hurled a three-hitter in the first game and Reggie Cleveland, 9-7, tossed a five-hitter in the second as Boston blanked Toronto twice.

Jim Rice pounded a three-run homer and Carlton Fisk knocked in three runs in the opener while Rick Miller's two-run double started the Red Sox off to a three-run fourth inning to break open the nightcap.

A's 8-1, White Sox 7-2

Mitchell Page sparked Oakland in the opener and Wilbur Wood, 7-7, led Chicago in the nightcap as the two teams split their twinbill.

Page drove in two runs, scored another and stole three bases in the opener. Eric Soderholm's run-scoring double backed Wilbur Wood's pitching in the nightcap.

Twins 5, Rangers 4

Butch Wynegar knocked in two runs with a single and a homer as Minnesota broke a four-game losing streak. Paul Thormodsgard, 11-10, got the victory.

Royals 8, Mariners 4

Kansas City raced to its sixth consecutive victory behind Fred Patek, who scored twice and drove in two runs, and George Brett's two-run homer.

Jim Colborn, 16-13, snapped Seattle's three-game winning streak to get the victory. Dick Pole, 7-12, took the loss after lasting only 11-3 innings.

Brewers 6, Angels 5

Sal Bando and Sixto Lezcano slammed home runs to power Milwaukee over California and snap a four-game Brewers' losing streak.

Jim Slaton, 9-14, received relief help from Bob McClure and Eduardo Rodriguez to get the victory. Angels' starter Frank Tanana, 15-9, who has won only three games since July 5, took the loss.

Pitt, Irish In Early Clash

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The warmup weekend is over and now the real college football season is about to stand up.

Only two members of The Associated Press Top Twenty have seen action thus far — No. 13 Penn State mauled Rutgers 45-7 and No. 16 Mississippi State shaded North Texas State 17-15 — but 17 more are scheduled for action this weekend and there are two key matchups between ranked teams.

Pitt, the defending national champion and ranked seventh in this year's preseason poll, entertains No. 3 Notre Dame Saturday, while No. 11 UCLA visits No. 14 Houston Monday night. Both games will be nationally televised by ABC-TV.

Meanwhile, top-rated Oklahoma entertains Vanderbilt and runner-up Michigan visits Illinois. Elsewhere, it will be fourth-ranked Southern California at Missouri, Miami of Florida at No. 5 Ohio State, No. 6 Alabama against Mississippi at Birmingham, Ala., No. 8 Texas Tech at Baylor, Kansas at No. 9 Texas A&M, and No. 10 Maryland at Clemson.

Games involving Second Ten teams find Stanford at No. 12 Colorado, Washington State at No. 15 Nebraska, No. 16 Mississippi State at Washington, Oregon at No. 19 Georgia, and No. 20 Oklahoma State at Tulsa.

Mississippi State needed 80-yard touchdown runs by Len

Copeland and James Jones — with a tremendous block from Copeland — and a 30-yard field goal by Dave Marler to edge North Texas for the second year in a row.

Ambitious Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak was the nation's longest, was no match for Penn State, which may be ready to reclaim the Eastern title it yielded to Pitt last season. The Nittany Lions got two touchdown runs from Matt Suhey in the first period and a pair from fellow sophomore Mike Guman in the second quarter en route to a 38-0 halftime bulge.

Mississippi got a 100-yard performance from James Storey, including a 19-yard run for the game's only touchdown, as the Rebels edged Memphis State 7-3.

East Carolina, last year's Southern Conference champion, made its debut as an independent, bouncing North Carolina State 28-23. In overcoming a 301-yard passing show by N.C. State's Johnny Evans, the Pirates scored on Leander Green's 82-yard run, Zack Valentine's 60-yard interception return, a 62-yard pass from Jimmy Southerland to Billy Ray Washington and a 23-yard run by Southerland.

In Missouri Valley Conference games, Wichita State upset West Texas State 14-10 and New Mexico State held Southern Illinois to minus 10 yards rushing in defeating the Salukis 29-7 — quite an embarrassment for a team which last year had one of the nation's top runners in Andre Herrera.

Eastern Michigan whipped Northern Illinois 25-2 in a Mid-American Conference opener. Elsewhere, it was South Carolina 32, Appalachian State 17; Southwestern Louisiana 48, Tulsa 21; Northwestern Louisiana 28, Texas-Arlington 24; Tennessee State 27, Middle Tennessee 0; Southern Mississippi 42, Troy State 19; William & Mary 27, Norfolk State 13; Central Michigan 39, Alcorn State 7; Miami of Ohio 26, Dayton 23; Illinois State 20, Eastern Illinois 0; The Citadel 7, Wofford 0; Jackson State 17, Alabama State 6; Jacksonville State 21, Western Carolina 16.

Cole Relaxes, Takes Buick

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Cole has learned that the secret to winning at golf is simply to relax.

The 29-year-old Johannesburg, South Africa, native parlayed his steady mental attitude into a $20,000 pay check over the Labor Day weekend with a 17-under-par 271, good enough for a one-stroke victory over Fred Marti in the $100,000 Buick Open.

"I once tried playing psyched up and charged up every day," Cole said following his victory over the 6,902-yard, par-72 Flint Elks Country Club. "But it just isn't my nature."

The victory was Cole's first since joining the PGA tour nine years ago and nearly doubled his 1977 earnings, since he started the tournament with just $21,301 to show for this year's efforts. The victory also vaulted him from 89th into the top 70 on the money list.

Cole started the final round at 204, two strokes behind third-round leader Peter Oosterhuis. But Cole birdied five of the first six holes, made bogeys on 14 and 15, then surged to a birdie on the par-3 17th to nail down the triumph as Oosterhuis could manage only a one-under 71 in the final round.

Marti, the 36-year-old veteran from Baytown, Texas, shot the final day's best round, a six-under 66, but it wasn't good enough to catch Cole.

Jeff Mitchell, the 23-year-old Lubbock, Texas, pro who only joined the tour a year ago, finished in a tie with Oosterhuis for third at 15 under 273.

It was estimated that close to 25,000 paid to see the four-day event which seemed to please both PGA officials and sponsors who are trying to place the Buick Open back in a place of prominence it enjoyed before the carmaker pulled out in 1969.

The Buick was somewhat overshadowed over the weekend, however, by the $300,000 World Series of Golf played at the same time in Akron, Ohio.

Bartkowski Leads Falcons Contest Returns

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski is ready to disregard the possibility of a ruinous knee injury and get started on the brilliant career that has been forecast for him.

The third-year pro who missed virtually all of last season with knee surgery, played with a brace on the knee Monday night and, making adjustments in his delivery, led the Falcons to a second-half surge and a 24-16 exhibition victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I understand the consequences," he said afterward. "I know that I'm going to have some problems."

After re-injuring the knee last week against Tampa Bay, Bartkowski was fitted for a Joe Namath-type brace and sat out the first half while the Chiefs rolled to a 16-7 lead.

But he came out in the third quarter and converted three Kansas City turnovers into a pair of touchdowns and a Nick Mike-Mayer field goal while the Falcons' defense was shutting the Chiefs out.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett was hesitant to play Bartkowski after the knee slipped during warm-ups.

"We talked to the doctors and we talked to Steve," Bennett said. "He wanted to play. He wanted to test the knee."

Bartkowski, a first-round draft choice in 1975, has been so hampered by injury that his total playing time amounts to about 14 games. Team physicians have ordered him to wear the brace at all times for at least three weeks, and every time he plays for probably the rest of the year.

After Rick Byas intercepted a Mike Livingston pass at the Chiefs' 27, Bartkowski fired a 31-yard touchdown strike to

Wadkins Can't Believe It All Austin, King Advance In U.S. Open Play

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Many NASCAR Grand National drivers declare that winning the Southern 500, the "Granddaddy of stock car racing," would make their seasons.

But David Pearson, who fulfilled that winning ambition in a marathon Southern 500 Monday, wasn't about to say it completed his season.

"I sure hope it don't," the Mercury pilot from Spartanburg declared after outrunning Donnie Allison's Chevrolet for a $24,550 first prize in the Labor Day classic at Darlington Raceway. It was Pearson's first win since the season opener at Riverside, Calif., in January.

"Maybe this is just a turning point and we'll start winning some races now," Pearson said after the four-hour, 41-minute race that was interrupted by rain for 1½ hours, and slowed for a fourth of the 367 laps by seven caution flags.

Allison finished second in the $207,000 event with Buddy Baker third in a Ford. Two laps back, Richard Petty's Dodge took fourth with relief driver David Marcis at the wheel. Cale Yarborough was fifth in his Chevrolet.

Pearson, who started in fifth position, hung back during most of the race, letting Darrell Waltrip and Cale Yarborough do most of the fighting for the lead. After a wreck blew the two out of contention for the top spot in the second half of the race, Pearson had to contend with a flawlessly running Allison.

The Hueytown, Ala., ace led for 84 laps after the Waltrip-Yarborough tangle. But Allison stole the front spot with 23 laps left in the race when he pitted for fuel and was back on the track in just over four seconds.

When Allison came in for the same stop, he stayed twice as long and that made the difference.

"We only put in four gallons," said Glen Wood, owner of Pearson's Mercury. "We did it so fast I was afraid we didn't put in enough."

"I was on his (Allison's) tail when he came in. I came in as fast as I could because I knew it was going to be close," After Pearson shot back onto the 1.366-mile track, it was a matter of holding on to the lead.

"If he caught me, he still had to pass me and it's pretty hard to pass a guy here," said Pearson, winner of last year's Southern 500 and six other events at Darlington in previous years.

It was Waltrip and Yarborough during much of the race, with pole sitter Waltrip riding in front 12 times for 123 laps and Yarborough holding the lead 11 times for 70 laps. Until the two went spinning into turn three on lap 236, Waltrip ran with Yarborough as his shadow.

Yarborough had slipped past Waltrip on the backstretch, with Waltrip boxed in behind D.K. Ulrich's Chevrolet. As Waltrip tried to pulled inside, he and Ulrich collided. Ulrich hit Yarborough.

Yarborough limped into the pits with a crushed right side but feverish work by his Junior Johnson-led crew had the Timmonsville, S.C., star back on the track in two laps under the caution flag.

Waltrip's racer was less heavily damaged but he lost more time as his crew dove under the open hood for engine work. Waltrip finished in sixth place, seven laps behind Pearson.

Richard Petty left his Dodge on lap 27, after the first caution period of the day. Petty had requested that a relief driver wait in his pit area because of continuing pain from chest muscles he injured in a wreck last week at Bristol, Tenn.

"I'm just hurting, that's all," Petty said after leaving the race.

"I thought it was time to get out after just a couple of laps but I couldn't get out."

A flurry of wrecks caused 92 laps to be run under caution and dropped the average speed of the race to 106.791 miles per hour. Rookie Ralph Jones of Upton, Ky., collided with Lenzie Pond on lap 251 and Jones smashed into a concrete retaining wall. The collision knocked out seven feet of the wall and sent Jones' Ford spinning back onto the track in flames.

It took a 34-lap caution period to repair the wall.

For the third consecutive NASCAR Grand National race, rain was a factor. The drizzle that sent cars into the pit area Monday for over an hour and a half gave the drivers a chance to rest.

Pearson said the rain made no difference to him.

"I about went to sleep sitting there in the truck," he said.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They had watched Tracy Austin, Harold Solomon and Virginia Wade, but the fans at center court at the $462,420 U.S. Open Tennis Championships weren't going home without seeing Guillermo Vilas.

A chanting crowd of more than 12,000 clapped, stamped its feet and yelled Monday until tournament officials with scheduling problems relented, agreeing to bring on Vilas and Jose Higueras of Spain.

"We won't go," they cried. "We want Vilas."

They braved a thunderstorm, waited for the court to dry and watched a steady, unemotional Vilas dispatch Higueras 6-3, 6-1. Earlier Monday, 14-year-old Miss Austin overcame the scorching forehead of Romanian Virginia Ruzici for a 6-3, 7-5 victory, and Billie Jean King needed a tie-breaker to eliminate ninth-seeded Kerry Reid of Australia 6-1, 3-6, 7-6.

Ms. Wade, the Wimbledon champion and No. 3 seed from Britain, rallied to beat Fionella Bonicelli of Uruguay 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

No. 5 Betty Stove of The Netherlands defeated Kathy

Kuykendall of Miami 6-3, 6-0, reaching the quarter-finals against Miss Austin. No. 2 Martina Navratilova of Dallas beat Tanya Harford of Melrose, Ohio, 6-0, 6-2; No. 6 Rosie Casals of Sausalito, Calif., eliminated South African Brigitte Cuypers 6-2, 1-6, 6-2, and No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia ousted Janet Newberry of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-1, 6-2.

Solomon, the 12th seed from Silver Spring, Md., upset eighth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis of Kings Point, N.Y., 7-6, 6-3. The women's No. 12 seed, Australian Wendy Turnbull, and downed Barbara Jordan of King of Prussia, Pa., 6-4, 6-3.

Vilas and Higueras were kept waiting in the wings as tournament officials changed their minds several times about whether the match would be played before the daytime crowd. Officials had wanted to reschedule the match for night when the day matches ran longer than expected. There is a separate charge for night admission and the afternoon crowd knew it.

Finally, rain delayed the match until night, and the Chris Evert-Nancy Richey match that had been scheduled for the evening was postponed until today. Both players had eaten during the delay and Higueras said playing on a full stomach had made him uncomfortable.

"I think it's very nice," the 25-year-old Vilas said of the crowd's insistence on seeing him. "Better they say that than 'We hate Vilas.' I was happy, for sure."

Tiny Tracy, the innocent-looking ball of fire from Rolling Hills, Calif., had a far more difficult time against Miss Ruzici than she had against fourth-seeded Sue Barker Sunday.

In the second set, she answered Miss Ruzici's forehand with drives to her opponent's backhand and with lobs designed to slow the pace.

"Sometimes when Virginia started hitting harder, I'd just keep hitting it back and she'd hit harder and harder until she finally made an error," Miss Austin said.

Wadkins Can't Believe It All

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Lanny Wadkins still is in a state of shock.

The 27-year-old Virginian, his career threatened by a gall bladder operation less than three years ago, has won the PGA and the World Series of Golf titles and $145,000 in the last month.

His first prize of $100,000 in the World Series Monday exceeded his entire winnings for 1975 and 1976.

"It hasn't really hit me," Wadkins said after his record-breaking 65-267 total over the feared 7,180-yard Firestone South course.

"The PGA still hasn't sunk in. I hear them announce, 'PGA champion' and I look around to wonder who in the heck it is."

Even a record-tying 29 by playing partner Tom Weiskopf, six-under par on Firestone South's front nine, failed to rattle him Monday.

"I thought I put all the pressure I could on him. Lanny played perfect, fantastic golf. He never looked worried. That's why he's the champion," said Weiskopf, who finished in a tie for second place with Hale Irwin.

Weiskopf matched Wadkins' final-round 65. Irwin, one stroke behind the winner going into the last 18 holes on the hot, humid day, shot a 69. He and Weiskopf had 272 and earned $35,000.

Weiskopf birdied six of the first eight holes and was even with Wadkins at nine-under-par. Still, the former Wake Forest College star was unshaken.

"I was really pouring on the coals. I wasn't backing off. I hoped I could just hang on and something would happen."

It did. Weiskopf unleashed one of his booming tee shots at nine. Wadkins sent his drive 35 yards farther down the fairway, a total of 308 yards.

"Tom told me, 'I think there's something wrong with this ball. He was serious. He declared the ball unplayable,'" said Wadkins.

Moments later, Wadkins sank a 15-foot birdie putt and regained the lead, at 10-under-par. Weiskopf parred from 25 feet at No. 9. He never challenged seriously again. Wadkins was ahead to stay.

Wadkins followed with birdies at 10 and 12. His margin was four shots. The race for golf's richest prize was over. Two more birdies, at 16 and 17, ran his four-day total to 22 over the demanding 7,180-yard monster.

Even his only bogey of the tournament at 18 failed to keep him from eclipsing Ray Floyd's 72-hole course record of 268, set in the 1969 American Golf Classic.

Mark Hayes took fourth place money of $15,000, shooting 69-276.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, South African Gary Player and Floyd tied for fifth at 278 for $11,166 apiece. Nicklaus, now with more than $500,000 in Firestone tournaments, closed with a 68. Player and Floyd had 69s.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime is fine for expressing talents that are of a very basic nature — that is, where home, family property and possessions are concerned — and to unusual methods and appliances in so doing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You find it easy now to put your ideas across with those who live with you. Get a new project started but don't overtax your energies doing so.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Confer with an expert who can assist you in becoming more productive. Get your shopping done, but be exact in your figuring.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are able to handle a monetary affair efficiently, but be economy-minded. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have it in your power to bring cherished wishes within the orb of your influence now. Widen your circle of friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Talk over with advisers what is best for you to do in the future and then use your best judgment. Plan more time for loved one. Be optimistic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good but deliberate friend can be helpful in gaining personal aims that mean much to you. Take time for social fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into community work that improves your standing where you live. Study that credit affair well and you know how best to handle it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Anything new that really appeals to you should be studied carefully before accepting it. Make a valuable new contact today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study obligations well and know how best to handle them. Clear up a misunderstanding with loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact associates and cement better relations with them, make future more successful. You can get a civic affair solved in your mind first, then full speed ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have a big workload, but an early start and scheduling your time soon sees it done. Come to better understanding with co-workers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy early at whatever pleases you the most or at whatever you are most adept and be happy with people you like. Get the attention of big wheels with your talents.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be taught to more objective when dealing with others for best results throughout the lifetime. Give as comprehensive an education as you can and slant it towards dealing with the public. The less strenuous sports are fine here.

Expect Hit In Washington TV Series

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Ehrlichman, the ex-Nixon aide now in the slammer, once wrote a novel, "The Company." ABC made it the basis of a $7.5 million TV flick, "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

With ABC expecting a Roots-like rating, the first "Doors" opens tonight, the rest Sept. 7 through 11, with a fast-paced pageant of D.C. power, illegals, love, fear and loathing, even an embassy party.

Jason Robards, Cliff Robertson, Andy Griffith and Robert Vaughn star in this fictional version of the good old days — Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard M. Nixon, Vietnam, massive protests and buggings galore.

The series ends with a Water-gate-type bugging, begins with an election scramble touched off by the surprise announcement of a Johnsonesque president (Griffith) that he's too ill to seek a second term.

The bad news comes tonight as CIA director William Martin (Robertson) sits in his plush, carpeted office, partly watching what he thought would be a routine presidential speech on national television.

During this time, the CIA chief also is discussing with two aides various CIA business — including a secret $20 million, 3,500-man counter-insurgency program in Southeast Asia. Which is Hot Stuff.

The big news surprises him. He goes home, broods, tells his wife, Linda (Lois Nettleton), who also has seen the announcement on TV.

As we quickly learn, she's the president's ex-lover . . . and still cares for the old rascal. This distresses Martin, likewise a somewhat indelicate statement by Griffith the next day in the Oval Office.

There, after discussing business, he urges the CIA boss to start a family soon, adding: "Linda's a passionate girl. Go home and make a baby." This is known as the old flame angle.

The business angle concerns the secret Primula Report that could ruin Martin, as it concerns his part in assassinations of foreign leaders during a previous administration. Which is Extremely Hot Stuff. Griffith seeks the illegal aid of the CIA in getting his chosen successor in office — in return for stashing the report from hostiles.

But when a rival-party senator (Robards, whose aide-de-campaign is Vaughn) starts leading in the presidential polls, Martin . . . well, many machinations mount, and good luck in keeping track of them.

Then a marriage collapses, a love affair commences, an illegal $250,000 campaign contribution arrives and Robards, cast as a Nixon-like hater of the e-fete Eastern Establishment, is elected president.

The show is fairly good, with deft touches of reality, and the acting is excellent, particularly that of Robards and Robertson. Despite their work and a tolerable script, though, I have a feeling "Doors" is going to bomb in ratings during its six-night run.

My theory: Viewers by now are so turned off by anything Washington, except maybe rumors South Korea just laid off three congressmen, that they may not turn on "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

'The Elk' Looks To America For Success Eluding Career

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Elkie Brooks shook her long black hair and leaned forward in the armchair: "America's the place. That's where I've got to make the breakthrough and this time I think I can make it."

"The Elk," as she calls herself, is one of the best female singers in Britain, a gutsy lady with a dynamite voice and a reputation for tempestuous change.

She's been on the road since she quit school at 15, won a talent contest in her native Manchester and was groomed as Britain's answer to Brenda Lee by a cigar-smoking agent. Remember Brenda Lee?

She's bounced in and out of the charts every once in a while, but never really got the break that would mean the big time.

But now "The Elk" believes she's set. She's had a Top 10 hit in Britain with "Pearl's a Singer" — a song about a night club singer who never made it to stardom. Her second album's selling well and she hopes to launch a U.S. tour later this year.

"I was pushed into a lot of things in the past," she said. "I've been manipulated. But now I'm a lot more confident about what I want instead of relying on other people. I know I'm good. It's what's kept me going all this time."

She's repeatedly won critical acclaim and became a minor cult figure in the early '70s when she fronted the now-disbanded Vinegar Joe.

She went through all the changes — pretty girl singing mindless bubblegum songs, the cabaret bit, resident singer with a big dance band, gigging with jazz outfits and getting it on with Vinegar Joe.

She wound up a hardened all-around pro, able to handle anything from funky rock to jazz standards. A stint at Ronnie Scott's, mecca of jazz and progressive music in London, established her as a quality singer. But stardom eluded her.

The downers, the clashes with managers and agents, the wrong directions, the years in bandwagons cruising up and down the freeway linking London and the north, have left their scars.

"I enjoy singing," she said. "It's all there is. But I can't stand all the crap that goes with it. I hate this business really."

"I hope it gets easier as I get more successful. It'll mean I'll get richer, but it'll also let me do the things I want to do."

Elkie's got her own band now. It includes her husband and mentor Pete Gage on guitar. But she stresses she's the star out front now.

When she sang with Vinegar Joe she was wild and erotic, a cross between Janis Joplin and Tina Turner. She screamed and prowled the stage, battering her thighs black and blue with a tambourine. "I've learned to control my wild stuff," she said.

This self-control is part of Elkie's carefully studied formula for becoming a star. The image of what one writer once described as "a good-time shambles" is gone and now she's posing for glossy publicity shots in white tuxedo and slit black skirt and everything else it takes to sell a lot of records in the suburbs.

Fertilizer In Seaweed

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — If seaweed's success at fertilizing cucumbers is any indication of its potency, chemical fertilizer companies might want to cash in on the abundant water plant.

The prediction comes from William Campbell III of Greensboro, who has harvested and processed seaweed from the North Carolina coast into a spray fertilizer called "Aqua 10."

After three years of planning and testing, full production is set to begin in Beaufort. Satisfied customers already are on file.

One of them is C.L. Honeycutt, a Sampson County cucumber farmer, whose five acres of crop were sprayed with the mixture.

"The tractor picking up the cucumbers had to stop over so often to unload," he said. "I never saw so many durn cucumbers in my life."

Similar reports have come in on every experimental use.

Sprays have resulted in 200 per cent improvements in the production of peppers, 60 per cent in butterbeans and 50 per cent in Irish potatoes, Campbell said.

He said the product was also found to have increased yields when sprayed on land planted in hay and pasture grass, tobacco, corn, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers, sweet potatoes and peppers — all despite springs floods and summer drought.

Some card combinations that appear to offer a choice of plays in a suit are illusory. When you consider the consequences of the alternatives, one line is often clearly superior.

The auction was routine. Just in case North had corrected to three spades with two spades and three hearts, South rebid his hearts to show a five-card suit. However, North had a clear preference for spades. West led his fourth-best diamond, and dummy's ten forced the ace. Since East had the hearts stopped, he correctly shifted to a trump. Declarer won the ace and cashed the king, and learned the bad news that he had a trump loser.

Both defenders followed to the ace and king of hearts, but when declarer tried to ruff a heart in dummy, West trumped with the nine. He shifted to a low club. What card should declarer play from dummy, and why?

At first glance it seems that declarer has a pure and simple guess. Is West underleading the queen or the ace? If declarer takes a wrong view, he will be defeated.

Declarer rose with the king from dummy, and ended up making an overtrick. His remaining club went on the king of diamonds, and declarer could claim the balance after drawing the last trump.

Good play or lucky guess? Perhaps the fact that East had shown up with the ace of diamonds made it slightly more likely that West held the ace of clubs, but that was not the reason declarer went up with the king.

He realized that, if East gained the lead in clubs, he could always defeat the contract by returning his remaining heart, allowing West to ruff with the jack. Therefore, the king of clubs was clearly the correct play — the only way to keep East off lead was to hope that West held the ace of clubs!

Background As Activist

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — H.M. "Mickey" Michaux had a brush with the U.S. Justice Department before being named U.S. attorney recently. And the brush is not what would normally be expected of future federal officials.

"About 500 of us went to jail at one time," Michaux recalled of his law school days at North Carolina Central University, when lunchroom sit-ins and civil rights demonstrations were the order of the day.

"There were so many of us, they couldn't book us," he said. But the activities showed up in an FBI report compiled on Michaux prior to his being confirmed in the federal post.

"It's amazing what those people are able to dig up. A bunch of us (civil rights demonstrators) sort of took over City Hall in Durham," he remembered recently. "The FBI knew I was in on that."

Since those college days, Michaux made his political mark in the General Assembly before being tapped for the U.S. attorney's post in July. "Those were the most interesting years I've ever spent," he said of the legislature. Political success, he says, depends on one's ability to "ride the right horses," pointing to his early support of Robert Morgan's 1974 U.S. Senate campaign and of Jimmy Carter's bid for the presidency.

Social Security 'Repairs' To Begin September 12

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security pays benefits to 33.3 million persons and collects taxes from 108 million workers and their employers. It's also running out of money.

But Congress has no intention of letting benefits to the elderly, disabled, widows and dependents be cut off or reduced. It will start in earnest on the business of finding the needed money Sept. 12, when the House Ways and Means Social Security subcommittee begins putting together new financing legislation.

Witnesses already have described the uneasiness of the retired about the future of the system. Active workers, who in many instances are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income tax — up to $965.25 this year and probably $1,070.85 next year — worry that the load may become back-breaking and still leave them with no assurance of security in old age.

Since 1975 Social Security has been paying out more than it receives from the payroll taxes levied to support it.

It has been drawing down its reserves to keep up the payments. Latest estimates are that, if nothing were done, the trust fund for payments to those who retired for disability would be exhausted by late 1978 or early 1979 and current receipts would be insufficient for payments.

The corresponding fund for those who retired for age, and for their dependents, is not projected to last beyond about 1983 unless replenished.

Everyone agrees Social Security's financial problem is real and serious and that Congress must act quickly during the waning months of its 1977 session. But the agreement stops there.

The lawmakers are faced with what is always one of their most painful decisions: Who will pay?

Any tax increase runs counter to the efforts of President Carter and the Democratic majority to stimulate the lagging economy, while any additional spending not covered by taxes enlarges the deficit, threatens Carter's goal of budget balance by 1981, and may retard the growth of business confidence needed to provide job-building private investment.

Carter sent Congress early this year a package of proposals designed to see Social Security through its immediate financial pinch and make a start toward solving longer range problems that could cause the system even greater difficulties after the year 2000.

But at least one of the major elements in Carter's package is in deep trouble in Congress and no consensus on alternatives is in sight.

The more pressing problem facing Social Security results basically from the unforeseen persistence of high unemployment accompanied by continued inflation since 1974.

In times of unemployment, payroll tax receipts fall below estimates. Disbursements go up because more people retire early, and under existing law inflation automatically boosts the payments.

The trust funds are designed to carry the system over temporary slumps. The long economic woes of the 1970's proved them inadequate.

In 1970 the size of the trust funds were equal to a year's disbursements. By the beginning of this year they had fallen to half that and were continuing to decline.

Additionally, for reasons not fully understood, retirements for disability have outrun projections.

There are two major reasons for Social Security's longer-range problems, that could come to a head about 2010 unless corrected.

One is the changing age mix of the U.S. population. There are now about three workers to one beneficiary. In the next century the ratio may be two to one, meaning a bigger drain on each wage earner to help support the pensioner.

The other long-range threat to the system, one easier to pinpoint and correct, is a faulty formula for computing the future benefits of persons presently working.

In effect, it compensates twice for inflation. Unless changed, it could permit retirees by the year 2000 to draw benefits higher than their best working-year earnings.

In addition, there are anomalies and inequities in the system that call for reform, especially provisions widely regarded as unfair to women. The courts already have mandated some changes.

Congress certainly will not cure all of Social Security's ills this year or next.

It may well tackle the job in three installments — a quick temporary fix, perhaps involving borrowings among the various trust funds or from the Treasury; more substantial refinancing legislation, perhaps next year; thorough reform left to future congresses.

Carter's package addressed principally Social Security's short-range financing problems.

The administration's most controversial proposal is to transfer over the next three years $14.1 billion of general revenues — essentially the proceeds of the income tax — to the Social Security trust funds.

The shift would be intended to compensate for payroll tax receipts lost because unemployment has remained above 6 per cent since 1975. Whether such transfers would be permanently authorized whenever unemployment exceeded 6 per cent was left open for future study.

In a test vote, the Senate finance committee split 11 to 3 against the proposal.

The proposed transfer came under immediate and heavy fire not only from business groups, Republicans, some former Social Security officials and some economists, but also from the two congressional committee chairmen who will have most to do with the legislation. These are Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., of Ways and Means, and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., of Senate Finance.

The AFL-CIO and major organizations of older Americans generally support the administration package, including the transfer. Some economists agree. Chairman James A. Burke, D-Mass., of the Social Security subcommittee has long advocated a regular contribution of general funds.

Ullman and Long have taken the position that so long as the government as a whole is operating in the red, it is poor policy to cover one deficit by increasing another.

Both have said more revenues will have to be found for Social Security, if not by increasing the payroll tax, then by finding some new source. Both have suggested that a value added tax — a form of national sales tax — may be worth considering.

The argument about using general revenues for part of the cost of Social Security is as old as the system. Most of the other industrialized countries with similar systems do so.

When the U.S. plan was being developed in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, use of general revenue money was considered. The decision, however, was to rely on a payroll tax imposed equally on employers and employees.

Congress generally has held to that principle over the decades. It has increased the tax as the system has expanded to cover more people and provide greater benefits.

General revenues have been added only for special, limited purposes, and for the government's part of the Medicare doctor bill coverage.

The yield of the payroll tax can be enlarged by increasing the rate, raising the ceiling on wages subject to tax, or both.

The rate, now 5.85 per cent each on employees and employers, will go to 6.05 per cent Jan. 1 even if the law is not changed. The maximum wage base, now $16,500, will be increased next year, probably to $17,700.

Boosting the payroll tax yield by raising the ceiling on taxable earnings has appeal in Congress because it does not increase the burden on lower paid employees, while a rate raise hits everyone.

But since only about 15 per cent of workers earn more than the taxable maximum, the Congressional Budget Office estimates, it would take an increase of 63 per cent in the ceiling to raise as much revenue in the next six years as a 1 per cent increase in the combined employer-employee rate.

Carter's package includes some increases in the taxable earnings base, but not immediately.

He would by stages, beginning in 1979, eliminate the ceiling so far as the employer's tax is concerned, so that by 1981 the employer would be paying on his entire payroll.

The ceiling on earnings for the employee's tax would be raised in four steps, beginning in 1979, so that by 1985 the projected ceiling would be $30,300.

Carter's package contains other tax changes.

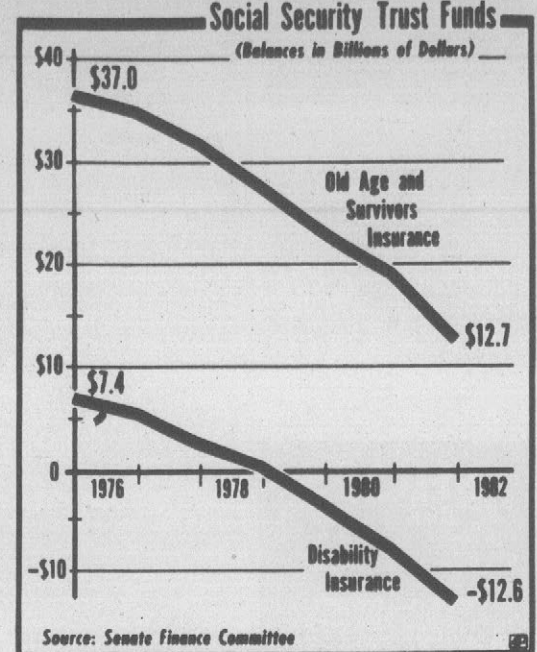

Present law contemplates an increase in the payroll tax rate of 1 per cent each on employees and employers in the year 2011. The administration would advance the change, putting one quarter of it into effect in 1985 and the other three-quarters in 1990.

The administration also proposes restoring the tax rate on self-employed persons to one and one-half times the employee rate. It has fallen in recent years to about one and one-third times.

The package also includes a new benefit formula to eliminate the double adjustment for inflation. Those already retired would not be affected and those retiring soon only minimally. The principle is unopposed, but there is some disagreement as to the exact formula.

If all its programs are adopted, the administration told Congress, the trust funds will have adequate balances by the end of 1982 and the system will be safely financed well into the next century.

'Hiccup Sound' In Old Music

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (AP) — Music scholars have found some 13th century sheet music with a melody that may be hard to hum.

The instrumental piece called a "hocket" — which means "hiccup" in medieval French — takes about 45 seconds to perform. Each note of the music was performed by alternating instruments, producing a "hiccup" sound.

Like most instrumental music of the period it was written for performance on many different kinds of instruments.

About 200 years after its composition, the manuscript was cut up and used for book-binding material. The original portion is pasted to the back cover of a manuscript at the university library in Salzburg, Germany.

Musicologist Peter Jeffrey discovered the music among photocopies collected by the music library at the Hill Monastic Manuscript Library of St. John's University.

tuck County town of Barco, about 20 miles south of the Virginia border.

Daisy Newkirk Graham, 31, of Willard, was killed in an accident on U.S. 117 in Pender County early Monday. Her car ran off the road just north of Burgaw and overturned.

Ann Caroline Shirer, 9, of Elizabethtown, was fatally injured late Sunday night when she was struck by a car on a Bladen County road two miles south of Elizabethtown.

A 26-year-old Charlotte woman, Patricia Perille, was killed Sunday afternoon when she was run down while attempting to flag down a car on a Lincoln County rural road 15 miles east of Lincolnton.

Danny Franklin Greene, 28, of Kannapolis was killed early Sunday when his car ran off a ramp connecting U.S. 29 and N.C. 152 and overturned. The mishap occurred in Rowan County just north of China Grove.

Henry Perry Lane of Rt. 3, Tarboro, was fatally injured early Sunday when he was struck by a car while lying on an Edgecombe County rural road five miles south of Tarboro.

A collision early Sunday in Person County claimed the life of a 23-year-old Roxboro man. Lewis Junior Cameron lost control of his car on N.C. 57 north of Roxboro, sideswiped one car and then collided head-on with a truck.

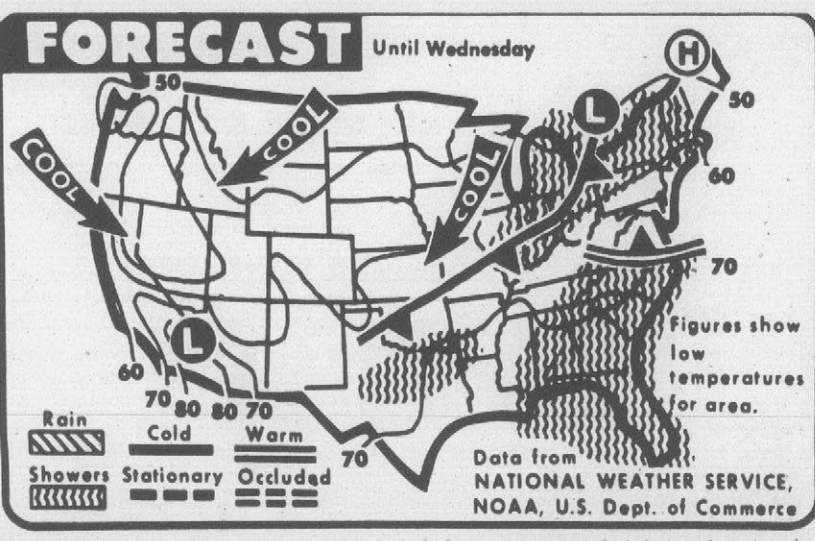

Turner David Moore, 44, of Winston-Salem, was killed Saturday night when he was thrown from his motorcycle on a Forsyth County road 10 miles north of Winston-Salem.

A pedestrian, Dorothy Louise Bass, 50, of Clinton, was killed Saturday evening when she struck by a car on U.S. 421 in Sampson County one mile north of Clinton.

Two persons were killed Saturday afternoon in Stanly County when their car, traveling at a high speed, sideswiped another vehicle on N.C. 8 near New London. They were identified as Tommy Ray Thompson, 17, of New London, and Roger Steve Harrison, 21, of Gold Hill.

On Friday night, Hartman Locklear, 64, of Rt. 3, Maxton, was killed when he was struck by a car on N.C. 211 near Red Springs in Robeson County.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast Tuesday for most of the East. Cooler air is expected to bring seasonably mild temperatures to most of the country, but the Southeast and East will continue warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The remnants of Hurricane Babe were just north of Baton Rouge, La., this morning, drifting slowly northward. Meanwhile, a weak low pressure system formed southwest of Wilmington on the North Carolina coast and this, too, was drifting to the north.

The combination of the hurricane remnants and the low set the stage for showers and thundershowers over the state through Wednesday. Heaviest rains are likely in the mountains and over the eastern part of the state.

Temperatures were some cooler around the state Monday, and Labor Day observations were accompanied by showers in some areas. Wilmington reported about one-quarter inch of rain and light showers were reported at Asheville, Charlotte, Goldsboro and New Bern.

Monday's temperatures ranged generally in the 80s. Charlotte was one of the warmest spots with 89 while Asheville had one of the coolest readings with a high of 82. Wilmington's high was 83.
