Sen. Byrd Says Lance Resignation 'Inevitable'

By DAVID NAGY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Saturday budget director Bert Lance has no choice but to resign, and President Carter responded noncommittally by saying, "I respect the opinion of people like Senator Byrd."

Calling resignation "inevitable," Byrd said, "Mr. Lance's effectiveness has been destroyed. The cloud of suspicion is continuing to broaden and it will not be possible for him to regain his credibility."

Carter, who has defended Lance unflinchingly in the past, maintained only that his embattled friend and adviser must "have a chance to explain his side of the allegations" concerning his tangled personal finances.

Lance, director of the White House Office of Management and Budget, will get that chance Thursday when he testifies before a Senate committee investigating him — a committee led by two senators who also want his resignation.

Byrd's comment and Carter's relatively mild response concluded a week of developments that seemed to put Lance in an increasingly precarious position. They included:

— An IRS report released Friday night that alleged Lance failed to tell a Senate confirmation hearing that his personal banking affairs had been under criminal investigation. It also suggested federal sanctions against one of his banks may have been lifted only because he had been nominated to high office by Carter. Lance denies the latter allegation.

— Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles Percy, R-Ill. — the chairman and ranking Republican of the Governmental Affairs Committee now investigating Lance — advised Carter Monday they believe Lance should quit before the controversy goes any further.

— John Heimann, the new Comptroller of the Currency, told the Ribicoff committee he disagrees with Lance's claim that a comptroller report had "exonerated" him of any wrongdoing in his private-life banking affairs. Heimann said he thinks Lance violated "a narrow band" of federal banking laws.

Heimann resumes his testimony before the committee Monday.

Byrd, discussing the case with Capitol Hill reporters, said he agreed Lance should state his case to the committee — but made clear he doubts the budget director can save himself that way.

"It is inevitable that he will resign," Byrd said. "I think he should have his say before the committee on Thursday and then resign."

Reporters travelling with Carter on a Saturday tour of New Jersey asked the President for comment.

"I think it is fair to point out that Senator Byrd also emphasized his belief that Bert Lance should have a chance to explain his side of the allegations," Carter said.

"It was a balanced statement and obviously I respect the opinion of people like Senator Byrd. I agree that Bert ought to have a chance to explain."

The increasingly complicated Lance case involves a series of allegations raised by federal investigators concerning his personal financial transactions as a Georgia bank president, from the early 1970s until his appointment by Carter last year.

The original allegations concerned two personal loans, worth about $6 million, Lance obtained on favorable terms from banks that did profitable business with his own banks.

Subsequent allegations concern huge overdrafts run up at Lance's banks by Lance himself, his family and his campaign committee; the use of the same collateral to secure two personal loans; the use of Lance bank aircraft in political campaigns; and whether Lance made a complete, accurate disclosure of his financial affairs when he testified at his own Senate confirmation hearings in January.

N.C. News Briefs

Lured By Migrant Leaders

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Patients under heavy sedation have been lured from mental hospitals by migrant labor crew leaders to work in Johnston and Sampson counties, the director of a health clinic for migrant workers has charged.

Juanita Morrison, a nurse who directs a federally funded clinic in Johnston County, told WFMY-TV of Greensboro that the patients involved have been taken from out-of-state hospitals while being treated for severe psychotic conditions.

When the drugs wear off and the mental problems reappear, the crew leaders drop the patients off at her clinic, she said.

Invited To Testify

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Representatives of church and civic organizations have been invited to testify at an informal hearing on the living and working conditions of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in North Carolina.

The one-day hearing will be held by the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights at the Federal Building-Century Station, 300 Fayetteville Street, Raleigh, on Sept. 17 at 9 a.m.

Also invited to speak at the hearing are state and federal agencies which regulate and monitor the conditions under which farmworkers live and work.

Refuses To Reduce Rate Hike

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission, deadlocked by a tie vote after its chairman disqualified himself in the case, has refused to reduce a rate hike it granted in June to Carolina Power & Light Co.

The commissioners split 3-3 on the question Friday after Chairman Robert K. Koger said he would not vote on the matter. Koger cited a possible conflict stemming from his former position with the commission's engineering staff, which had recommended a smaller rate hike than the one granted June 29.

Because of the tie vote, no action was taken and the $44.2 million CP&L rate hike will stand. The commission had decided the increase to assure that CP&L would receive a 13.57 per cent return on its investment.

Will Meet On Guidelines

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina President William C. Friday will meet next week with members of the state's congressional delegation to discuss the university's response to federal desegregation guidelines.

At a meeting of the university's board of governors Friday, the UNC president announced he would meet with the legislators Wednesday in Washington.

AFL-CIO Approves Proposals

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Three proposals that will be on the November ballot in North Carolina, including a constitutional amendment allowing gubernatorial succession, have been endorsed by delegates to the state AFL-CIO convention.

In the final day of the annual state meeting Friday, the delegates approved resolutions supporting bond issues for water projects and highway construction and endorsed the proposed amendment to allow the governor and lieutenant governor to run for a second consecutive term.

Rivals Clash Over Plans

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Two rival corporations involved in the state's multimillion-dollar phosphate industry have clashed over plans by one of the firms for a $7.6-million addition to phosphate-shipping facilities here.

The dispute surfaced Friday as officials of Texasgulf Inc. asked the State Ports Authority to allow the company to build a 30,000-ton ammonia terminal and two dry-storage warehouses on state property at the Morehead City port.

Officials of N.C. Phosphate Corp. objected, saying the plans could "freeze us out of the port."

N.C. Phosphate is awaiting federal approval to begin a multimillion-dollar operation in Beaufort County, where Texasgulf has operated a phosphate mine since 1963.

Helms Criticizes List

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has criticized the choices a special nominating committee made for a vacant seat on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal.

The committee has submitted to the White House a list composed of U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan of Charlotte, Duke University Chancellor Kenneth Pye, former UNC Law School Dean J. Dickson Phillips, Duke law professor William Van Alstyne and Charlotte civil rights attorney Julius Chambers.

Four of the five don't meet the informal standards the committee set, Helms maintained. He said Van Alstyne and Pye are not licensed to practice law in North Carolina, McMillan is older than 60 and Chambers has practiced law for less than 15 years.

'A Pity'

BRISTOL, R.I. (AP) — As an Iranian student arrived in the United States for his first week of college, Alisina Goharjou looked forward to meeting his new roommates.

What he didn't know was that his roommates would be girls. What Roger Williams College officials didn't know was that Alisina is a man.

"At first I was a little upset. But that quickly changed," Alisina said.

Although the college has coed dorms, it does not have coed rooms. It wasn't long before a housing officer saw Alisina unpacking his bags in a room that was supposed to be for women.

"I think a mistake has been made here," Goharjou said a housing officer told him when he unpacked his bags in his assigned room. He was taken to the housing administrator who assigned a different room in a men's dorm.

Alisina was then told to go back to his first room, pack his clothes and head for his new room.

"When I got back the girls had arrived and were making up their beds," Alisina said. "What a pity."

Thousands Danced

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Thousands of Panamanians danced through Friday night in the streets of their capital to celebrate the return of

Gen. Omar Torrijos, the head of government, from Washington with a newly signed Panama Canal treaty.

The government-sponsored celebration continued into the early hours Saturday as Caribbean music blared from scores of bars and from loudspeakers mounted on trucks.

Automobiles weaved among revelers with horns blaring.

"It was an instant carnival," said a Panamanian standing in the middle of trash-strewn Central Avenue. "It's the biggest fiesta this city's ever had."

Police reported no incidents. A spokesman said American employees of the Panama Canal Co. had been warned against venturing into Panama City during the celebration, and U.S. soldiers were ordered to stay out of the capital.

The Zonians have been strongly opposed to the new treaty turning the canal over to Panama by the year 2000, and officials evidently feared clashes if they ventured into Panama City during the fiesta.

Many of the celebrants were brought in from as far as the Costa Rican border, riding all night in one of the many buses the government sent out all across Panama for the celebration.

An estimated 250,000 wildly cheering Panamanians turned out to meet Torrijos Friday as his air force helicopter landed on a museum rooftop.

Beheaded

PARIS (AP) — Hamida Djandoubi, a 28-year-old Tunisian farm worker, was beheaded by guillotine at dawn today in the courtyard of the Baumettes prison in Marseille, a brief announcement from the Office of Criminal Affairs and Pardons said.

Djandoubi was convicted Feb. 27 of torturing and strangling a woman friend, of raping a 15-year-old girl, and of attacking three minors, the announcement said.

He was the third man to be executed since President Valery Giscard d'Estaing took office in 1974. The president has commuted four sentences to life imprisonment.

Spotlight On Collards

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — A local man set a new collard eating record Saturday during the third annual Ayden Collard Festival by stuffing down six pounds of the green leafy vegetable in less than 30 minutes.

Walking from the table with a bulging gut, Johnnie Keys, 32, of Ayden said, "I feel pretty good but a little tight. I had to let my belt out about two notches."

Keys said no one talked him into the task. It was just "bull jive" on his part.

The winner, who received $50 and a plaque for breaking the old record of five pounds set last year by Brian DeMarcus, commented that if his mother had cooked the collards he could have consumed 13 pounds.

Nina Fussell of 1248 Juanita Avenue won the collard cooking contest also held Saturday afternoon.

Ms. Fussell, who was awarded $25 and a plaque, said her dish of collards was cooked with coun-

Jewish New Year Begins Monday

At sundown on Monday, September 12, the Jewish community in Greenville will be joining Jewish communities throughout the world to begin the celebration of the New Year Holy Days.

This year they will be marking the Year 5738, which, according to Jewish tradition, dates from the time of the creation of the universe.

The Holy Day Season, beginning with Rosh Hashanah (New Year) and continuing for ten days through Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) is a time of spiritual re-creation in the Jewish tradition.

The ten day season is called the "Days of Penitence," as it is during this time the Jewish people are to examine their deeds of the past year and resolve not to repeat any that would in any way tend to diminish from the holiness of God or the dignity of man.

This period of renewal culminates with Yom Kippur, on September 22, a day upon which the Jewish people partake of no food or drink for 25 hours and spend the day in prayerful contemplation and repentance.

Two Dead, 21 Hurt

By HANK LOWENKRON
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "We were just getting started and bringing out the food," Beverly Cook said about the picnic for residents of the Americana Healthcare Center. "Suddenly people were laying all over."
Without warning, a car driven by 81-year-old Leo M. Schulte of Indianapolis — who police say was soon to enter a nursing home himself — jumped a curb and plowed through the crowd of about 100 picnickers, many of whom were in wheelchairs.
Two were killed and 21 injured in the accident Friday.
The injured ranged in age from 47 to 93. At least 13 of them were more than 70 years old, eight of them in their 80s.
"I saw a car pulling up behind me," Schulte told reporters. "I jammed on my brakes to avoid hitting it. Then I put the car in forward. I thought I was hitting the brakes, but I must have hit the accelerator and that was it."
"Bodies, wheelchairs and food went in every direction. No one could move because most of the people were old and were in their wheelchairs," said Eunice Cope, a member of the Volunteers Association, which sponsored the picnic. Mrs. Cook is president of the group.
Leona Shrewsbury said

Schulte backed against the side of her vehicle as he was driving out of a parking lot of a professional building adjacent to the nursing home. Police said Schulte had just had an appointment with an eye doctor at the building.
"The next thing I knew, I heard his tires squealing, and it looked like he panicked and drove right into the yard of people," she said. "He just plowed right into them. I felt kind of sick."
"He not only drove into the crowd, he backed into a second group of residents," said Fred Moon, administrator of the nursing home. "I guess he panicked. I know he pushed the pedal to the floor."
Schulte was released after questioning. Police Sgt. Alvin Dunkin said the case will be sent to a grand jury.
"The man was licensed to drive, although I don't know how," said Dunkin. "We were able to impound the car, but had to let him go. It's a sad thing. Schulte was going into a nursing home himself on Oct. 1."
The two dead were identified as Virginia Dicks, 89, and Nellie Ford, 83, both residents of the home.
One person remained in critical condition today, and four others were listed in serious condition, hospital officials said.

Has Federal Money Reduced Crime?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials of the state Division of Crime Control said Friday they don't know if the $36 million in federal money they've received in the last three years to fight crime has reduced it.
Gordon Smith III, division director, told a meeting of the Governor's Crime Commission that part of the problem is caused by improved crime reporting. He said it is difficult to make year-to-year comparisons in increases and decreases in crime, because apparent rises in crime may just be better reporting.
But Chairman Burley B. Mitchell Jr. told the commission that crime prevention programs they approve are not adequately monitored. "I do think we are doing very little research into how well these programs are working," Mitchell told the commission.
The commission approves distribution of funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA).

The LEAA program has come under criticism from U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell, who has said the state commissions don't monitor the programs they approve, and that the LEAA money has not resulted in significant decreases in crime.

Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has expressed support for the LEAA program as it now exists.

Members of the commission agreed with Mitchell that they were simply rubberstamping decisions on programs made by committees. Mitchell said it was his impression "that it's a long day's drive to rubberstamp these items on the agenda."

He suggested more time spent in committees, so commission members could examine more closely the programs that interested them.

In Search Of South Moluccan Areas

Plot Uncovered

By STEPHAN KETELE
 ASSEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — Special police squads searching for weapons in the South Moluccan districts of Assen and Bovensmidde Saturday uncovered a new plot for seizing hostages, officials said.

Public Prosecutor Piet Muntendam told a news conference after the day-long action the searchers discovered a complete plan drawn up by South Moluccan extremists for a hostage-taking operation against "a certain object."

Without giving details, he said the plan was of such a kind to be taken seriously. He said the leader of the plot had been apprehended.

The house-to-house search of Moluccan districts was in an effort to end sniper fire from Moluccans protesting the trial of eight of their comrades for the seizure of a train and a school in May.

One policeman was wounded in the leg by sniper fire.

Special police and state trooper units swept into the neighborhoods Saturday following two days of violence and sniping as South Moluccan militants protested the trial.

The Moluccans on trial are charged with holding more than 160 persons hostage for nearly three weeks in the longest mass hostage drama on record.

Muntendam said 32 South Moluccans were arrested in Assen and one was arrested in Bovensmidde. All but four were released after questioning, but 16 will be charged will illegal arms possession, he said.

He said the arrest of the youth accused of drawing up the plan for the new hostage attack was not part of the search operation.

He said police seized two machine guns, eight hand guns, 250 rounds of ammunition and 50 other weapons, such as knives, as well as a box of Molotov cocktails.

One policeman was hit by a bullet as young militants offered sporadic but stubborn sniper fire against the searchers — sometimes from houses already searched for arms, police said.

Nudity For Rich, Vatican Claims

Crackdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission concluded a wide-ranging, four-day crackdown against illegal use of Citizens Band radios Saturday, closing down 279 operations in a stepped up response to frequency interference complaints.

Beginning last Wednesday, the FCC sent out 100 agents to 31 areas of the nation in the move against illegal use of the airwaves.

"Most of the illegal operations involved operating a CB radio on an unauthorized frequency," said C. Phyll Horne, chief of the FCC's Field Operations Bureau.

"The FCC has authorized CBers to use 40 specific channels. When they operate 'out of band,' they cause interference to other radio or television services," Horne said.

 ROME (AP) — The summer of 1977 saw more topless sunbathing than ever before on Italy's beaches, but the Vatican maintained today that "nudity remains a phenomenon more or less of the wealthy class."

"The great majority of our people even today think differently from the hedonistic materialism of the minority," Raimondo Manzini, editor of the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano, wrote in a front-page editorial.

"The little and middle class people did not respond and will not respond to this deafening invitation to the striptease."

Nonetheless, there were more women in mono-kinis than ever before on Italian beaches from Venice's Lido to chic spots near Rome to secluded coves on islands. And on some of the trendier beaches men and women alike sunned completely naked.

Italians youths known as "Metropolitan Indians," who spent the last year painting their faces and performing Indian dances in the streets, congregated on the island of Sardinia for the summer and decided that even Indian loin cloths were too restrictive.

One young girl who was arrested complained: "Here in Sardinia, everybody goes nude, only they don't say anything to the rich people on the Emerald Coast because they are consumers, while our principal fault is that of not paying the vacation fees."

To Resume Gas Hookups

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission will allow natural gas firms to resume extending services to residences on natural gas lines following an eight-month ban on all new natural gas hookups.

Death Toll Rises To 26

CAIRO (AP) — Authorities today raised to 26 the official death toll in the crash of a train that derailed and plunged down an embankment in southern Egypt.

Officials said more dead were believed trapped under the twisted wreckage.

"They are still waiting for cranes to reach the scene and lift the wreckage," an Interior Ministry spokesman said. "There is a big possibility that more bodies will be found."

At least 120 persons were injured in Friday's train wreck of the "Upper Egypt Express" traveling from Cairo to the town of Assiut. Officials said the driver apparently ignored warning signs of an approaching detour. He was arrested shortly after the incident.

Fighting Despite Assurances

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The United States has promised Lebanon that Israel will not interfere with a ceasefire in the border region between Christian rightists and Palestinian guerrillas, Beirut newspapers said Saturday.

Despite the assurances, however, fighting exploded overnight in the south after 36 hours of relative calm, a Lebanese reporter said.

Homes were leveled, cars destroyed and at least five persons killed in artillery and machine-gun duels involving more than a dozen towns near the Israeli border, the reporter said. At least nine persons were injured.

Another Balloon Attempt

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Two New Mexico men, hoping to complete a flight that has failed at least 14 times during the last century, have begun another attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean by balloon.

Ben L. Abruzzo, 47, and Maxie L. Anderson, 43, both of Albuquerque, slowly lifted off Friday night as about 2,500 onlookers cheered when one of them leaned over and smashed a bottle of champagne on the helium-filled balloon's gondola.

N.C. Tourism Up

RALEIGH (AP) — State revenue figures show that spending at North Carolina tourist and resort areas was 13.1 per cent — or $63 million — ahead of last year's record spending for the first five months of 1977, it was announced Saturday.

Secretary of Commerce D. M. "Lauch" Faircloth announced the increase and said, "Folks are coming in droves to our beaches and mountains, and reports from our Division of Travel and Tourism indicate receipts from the traditionally heavy months — June, July and August — will be even more impressive."

Standby Air Rate Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four major airlines have won approval for a new $256 roundtrip fare for standby passengers flying from New York to London.

The rates, which would compete directly with a new British charter service, would go into effect on a trial basis Sept. 15, pending review by President Carter.

The Civil Aeronautics Board approved the standby rates on Friday, but rejected two other reduced fare plans submitted by the four airlines — Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines, British Airways and Air India.

British Bread Panic

LONDON (UPI) — Bakery chains went on strike across Britain Saturday, causing panic buying that cleaned the shelves of family-owned bakeries in one hour and put loaves of bread on the black market. One union leader warned, "there will be no bread by Wednesday."

Long lines formed outside small, non-union bakeries hours before 57,000 workers for major bakeries walked off the job at 6 a.m. in a dispute over holiday pay.

Sun Only Energy Hope

By EDWARD K. DELONG
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Developments during the past two years suggest that coal and nuclear power have no long-term future, leaving the sun as the only hope for solving global energy needs, a new major report said Saturday.

Compared to the 20 per cent of all energy now supplied by some form of solar power, the report said, the world could draw up to 40 per cent of its energy from the sun by the turn of the century and 75 per cent by the year 2025.

It said the range of possibilities extends from solar heating and solar cells producing electricity for an investment of as little as 50 cents a watt to indirect tapping of the sun through windmills, falling water and the use of waste or crops as an energy source.

Windmills and falling water are considered indirect solar energy sources because the sun's heat creates the atmospheric conditions that produce wind, rain, water evaporation and so forth. Wastes such as corn stubble and even manure contain the energy absorbed from the sun by growing plants.

"Such a transition (to tapping solar energy sources) would not be cheap or easy, but its benefits would far outweigh the costs and difficulties," said the study by Denis Hayes of the Worldwatch Institute, a private, nonprofit Washington research organization.

"Two years ago the world appeared to have three energy alternatives on which to build a sustainable post-petroleum world: coal, nuclear power and solar energy. Today we have one clear-cut option: the sun."

Despite all the talk of an energy crisis, Hayes said, "we are not running out of energy."

Hayes said little real progress has been made toward solving energy problems during the past two decades, while the range of choices to deal with such issues is rapidly diminishing in both developed and developing nations.

15 Ugandans Executed

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Large crowds gathered on the outskirts of Kampala to watch the execution of 15 men condemned to death after Uganda's first public trial of suspected plotters against President Idi Amin.

The 15, including teachers, businessmen and former government officials, were lined up under the Queen's Clock Tower Friday afternoon and shot one-by-one by a firing squad.

Abroad, suspicion grew that reports of an operation on Amin and that he subsequently fell into a coma were a hoax, possibly to head off appeals for the lives of the condemned men.

Since the 51-year-old former boxing champion seized power in Uganda 6½ years ago, he has been accused of systematically eliminating rival tribes that threatened his grip on the landlocked country.

A Geneva-based commission of jurists recently estimated that Amin's agents have killed up to 90,000 persons, and other estimates run as high as 300,000. Some 250,000 refugees have fled Uganda, and the country's economy has been reduced to shambles.

First Step To Solve A Mess

The County Commissioners have named County Manager Reginald Gray and County Attorney W. W. Speight to prepare a resolution calling for merger of the city and county school systems.

The resolution, which will be considered by the County Commissioners, will ask the City and County Boards of Education to formulate plans for merger.

Commission Chairman Charles Gaskins said the two boards would be asked to devise or formulate a plan for merger of the school systems. And, he continued with an important addition . . . "keeping in mind the students, the parents, and the taxpayers of the whole county."

At last we might be seeing the first spark of leadership which could lead us out of the current city-county school district mess.

Gaskins says that the two school boards will be asked to have a plan by next April in time for the county's preparation of the 1978-79 budget.

We don't have much doubt that the County Commissioners are weary of negotiating budgetary differences between the school systems — and the public is tired, too.

We haven't seen much evidence of cooperation between the two systems, officials of the two school districts can help things by beginning to cooperate now. They don't even have to wait for the official resolution. They can begin discussions in a cooperative spirit right away.

We commend the County Commissioners for taking this first important step.

Collard Festival A Way To Have Fun

Folks over at Ayden wound up their third annual Collard Festival yesterday, and we are sure it was a big success.

Ayden has found a way to honor the lowly collard, bring a lot of people to town, spread the name of Ayden and just generally have a big time with the annual Collard Festival.

It is a fun project for the Pitt County municipality and we hope it will be continued for a long time.

THIS AFTERNOON Local Tax For All But 3

By Bill Noblitt
RALEIGH—Beginning this month, only three counties in North Carolina do not have in effect the one cent local sales and use tax.

Hyde County began collecting the local tax at the beginning of this month to become the 97th county. Hyde commission approved the tax under a law passed by the 1977 General Assembly which allows a county's governing board to take the action on its own initiative five years or more after a local sales tax question had been defeated at the polls.

Burke County, one of the three without the tax was specifically excluded from that change in the law on request of legislative delegates from that area. The other two without the local sales tax are Person and Scotland.

per year—the state has high hopes for an oil recycling plant it will build.

The 1.4 million plant will use a process developed by the Phillips Petroleum Co., and will be operated by Prison Enterprises—division of the Department of Corrections.

Phillips will build the pilot project—first of its kind in the nation—and have it in operation by the middle of next year. The plant will handle some two million gallons of waste oil a year, with the process recovering about 90 per cent. Phillips officials in Raleigh for the contract-signing ceremony said the process is faster (takes about three hours) and cleaner than any previous system.

Gov. James B. Hunt thinks that within two years the state will be saving at least 15 cents per gallon on the recycled oil as opposed to buying new oil. In five years, he believes, the plant will have paid for itself, and in 10 years the state will make more than a million dollars profit by using used oil. It is hoped that the state will be given the used oil without having to buy any.

Religion In School
United States Supreme Court decisions have ruled out religious worship in public schools—but not the study of religion. To the contrary "it went out of its way to point out that the academic study of religion and moral values is not only permissible but also highly desirable," says guidelines for religion in public schools recently adopted by the North Carolina State Board of Education.

The state's Association of Teachers of Religion had asked for guidance to help local boards and school people deal with the subject, and establishment of a policy and guidelines.

The policy notes that religion can be taught within other school courses (Biblical literature, history, social studies, for example); can be taught in separate elective courses such as Biblical Literature, Religious Issues, World Religions; and can be taught in courses on ethical and moral decision making.

The policy concludes that teaching religion ensures that schools will cover "all relevant aspects of human learning. To eliminate study about religion is to eliminate a creative force in civilization and life."

Guidelines suggest that teachers be certified and hired by local school boards and not volunteer ministers; that worship or devotional exercises are not allowed; that religion clubs are legitimate just as are French or athletic organizations; that Baccalaureate services are allowable campus if attendance is voluntary; and that observing religious holidays helps teach about religious beliefs and practices.

"But, from my point of view, however, things are looking up."

Sunday Morning Notes

Geoffrey Chapman, editor of The Beaufort Hyde-News reports that two tiny snakes were found on the premises of the Pungo District Hospital recently.

Administrator Perry Smith quickly saw to it that the little snakes were removed and also got the hospital exterminators on the job. There was no evidence of any other snakes around.

Smith was worried that the public might react adversely to the report of the tiny snakes being found.

"Snakes are not exactly folks' favorite animals," Editor Chapman wrote. "I never heard anybody describe a baby snake as cute and cuddly."

No one should worry.

"There's every chance that any snake upon entering the odoriferous world of medicine, is going to make a beeline (or snakeline) to the nearest way out," the editor continued. "No snake in its right mind would set up permanent residence anyplace where there's every chance that it will be promptly pickled in formaldehyde."

"Finally, although it's a mystery to the hospital how the snakes got in, it probably is no mystery to the snakes. They probably slithered in through a very small crack under a door — or through an open one. And there's just as much chance, perhaps more, that they could have done the same thing at anybody's home."

"So, don't worry about Pungo District. It's still safe, safer than a lot of big city hospitals, and a lot more secure against unsavory breakers and enterers."

You can believe that.

The Pungo District Hospital administrator might be consoled to know that every administrator has problems.

The impressive new Pitt County Memorial Hospital opened with visions of becoming a regional referral hospital for Eastern North Carolina. That is sure to happen, given the fact that the hospital is affiliated with the ECU School of Medicine.

Given such a bright future, what was Pitt County Memorial plagued with? Not snakes, at least not that we've heard about.

Rather the pest problem involved chickens. Apparently they had been fed by workmen during the construction phase of the hospital and when it opened they continued to hang around the emergency room.

Other Editors Say For Fair Trade

(Kinston Free Press)
High marks for economic diplomacy are due the Japanese and American negotiators who forged the agreement limiting exports of Japanese color television sets to this country.

For President Carter, who has been accused of all style and no substance in the accomplishments of his administration so far, an agreement was a happy combination of both that bodes well for the course of relations with all our other trading partners — the term "partners" is the correct one.

At stake was and is nothing less than this country's commitment to the principle of the freest possible international trade with the fewest possible artificial barriers and restrictions. The government has long been under pressure from shoe, textile, steel and other industries, to raise or impose tariffs or establish quotas to stem the flood of foreign products.

On the one hand is the undeniable fact that cheaper foreign imports have cost thousands of American workers their jobs — an estimated 70,000 in the television industry alone — and forced many manufacturers out of business (though at the same time giving American consumers better bargains than they would otherwise have had).

On the other hand is the equally inescapable fact that the erection of trade barriers by one country inevitable leads to protectionist countermeasures by others in a process from which nobody benefits. All countries must trade to live, some more than others, and one country's temporary advantage over another — whether because of artificial barriers of superior technology or lower labor costs — can ultimately be self-defeating.

That the Japanese recognized this is shown by their voluntarily agreeing to reduce their exports of completed and partially assembled TV units to the United States from last year's 2.96 million to 1.75 million over the next three years. This is a substantial reduction, better than 40 per cent.

Concurrent with the signing of the agreement was the announcement by the Japanese government that it will encourage its electronic manufacturers to invest in plants in the United States — which means more jobs for American workers.

With the agreement in hand, the Carter administration will now undertake to persuade other countries to sign similar voluntary agreements limiting their exports. For their best interest and ours, it is to be hoped that the U.S.-Japan accord becomes the model and standard for the future.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Weigh Abandoning Korea

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The same Carter administration document that contemplates losing one-third of West Germany to a Soviet attack contends that removing U.S. troops from South Korea gives Washington "flexibility" to determine whether or not to intervene against Communist invasion from the north.

PRM (Presidential Review Memorandum) 10, a top secret inter-agency study of U.S. force structures, also is gloomy about holding the South Korean capital of Seoul against invading North Koreans today. Even with U.S. air and naval intervention and U.S. troops still stationed in South Korea, the study suggests Seoul cannot be held.

All this contradicts President Carter's assurances that his decision to remove the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division does not undercut the U.S. commitment to South Korea. It also undermines current military doctrine based on the retention of Seoul as a necessity. Thus, South Koreans face the same problem as the West Germans: shall they believe public pronouncements of U.S. leaders or private documents of their staff experts?

The administration's claim that PRM-10 merely discusses options is simply untrue. Just as PRM-10 states that present allied forces could not hold one-third of Germany, its disturbing comments on Korea are based on conditions before and after the U.S. troop pullout, not on any option.

"Once the U.S. land forces are out of Korea," says PRM-10, "the U.S. has transformed its presence in Asia from a land-based posture to an off-shore posture. This . . . provides the U.S. flexibility to determine at the time whether it should or should not get involved in a local war."

The document goes on to reveal an unpublicized reason for removing the 2nd Division: to give Washington the choice of whether or not to intervene. With the troops gone, says PRM-10, "the risk of automatic involvement (which was a major factor in removing land forces from Korea) is minimized. However, should the U.S. decide to intervene, military forces would be readily available."

Even with the 2nd Division still on station and the U.S. supplying "initial air and naval support at D-Day," PRM-10 spins a grim scenario: "If the North Koreans were to achieve tactical surprise, it is possible that they could at least temporarily attain their most likely major objective — the capture of Seoul."

While predicting North Korea could not win "a sustained combat," it predicates this on major U.S. help. "With the U.S. contributions of land and carrier based tactical air assets and material support, it would appear that the U.S. and ROK (Republic of Korea) would prevail against North Korea in the longer term, but with possible initial setbacks — including perhaps the fall of Seoul."

Without U.S. help, the situation is desperate, according to PRM-10: "The level of forces which could be brought to bear at the front on D-Day would generally favor North Korea over the ROK in all categories. The ROK has widely spread infantry forces with limited mobility and vulnerable stocks of war materiel."

The document implies a return to the old U.S. strategy of keeping allied troops away from the DMZ and instead falling back on Seoul. Now-retired Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth changed that when he took command nearly four years ago, contending the North Koreans wanted to capture Seoul quickly and then start debilitating peace negotiations. So, allied strategy changed to a forward defense of Seoul.

Such a defense requires Korean confidence in U.S. readiness to supply indispensable airpower. South Korea long has worried that its defense pact with Washington provides a less automatic U.S. response to invasion than does the NATO treaty. President Carter's July 25 letter sought to reassure President Park Chung Hee that the U.S. troop pullout does not

Strength For Today

MEASUREMENTS
It certainly is — a measure of achievement. It is not, however, a measure of success. Money measures certain things that admit of quantitative measurement, but it never measures the quality of anything.

A man dies and leaves a large fortune. This measures the achievement of his efforts. It is an open question, however, whether the man was successful or not. If people hated him while he lived and rejoiced when he died, he was not successful. If his family disintegrated and his children grew up despising him, he was not successful. If he gained the whole world and lost his soul, he was not successful.

Success has to do with the quality of one's life, and this cannot be measured by money or any earthly standard. Earthly standards measure only earthly things, and the trouble is that many if not most of the things they measure are really not worth measuring at all.

It Continues A Man's World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Where work is involved, it's still a man's world, a conclusion one cannot avoid reaching if faith is to be placed in business surveys and scholarly examinations.

A study by John Robinson, recently published in book form as "How Americans Use Time," shows that women still handle almost all the housework and childcare, even when they, like their husbands, hold outside jobs.

Robinson asked a cross-section of women to keep diaries of all their daily activities. Analysing the diaries, he found that women claim to do 80 per cent of the chores, which include lawnmowing as well as dusting.

More revealing were their attitudes. Only 23 per cent of them looked to their husbands for relief or help with the chores, even though they said that some facet of housework was the least enjoyable part of their days.

A survey just completed by a management consulting firm shows something of the same sort in the business world. The average male officer in large corporations makes $50,000 or more; the women make under $30,000.

That report is from Heidrick and Struggles, which studied the careers of 148 women officers in industrial, banking, financial, insurance, retailing and other companies.

Women, it found, tended to come up through the ranks slowly, often graduating from long-held clerical positions to officer status later in life than their male counterparts. Many became corporate secretaries rather than vice presidents.

Perquisites, which increasingly have become more common in lieu of cash compensation in many companies, remain male-dominated. "Not a single one of a dozen perquisites is held by a majority of the women officers, although a number are widely held by males," the report relates.

The women did come close in one area — stock options — which were held by 49.3 per cent of those studied. But not one of them received "auto with driver," only 5.4 per cent held membership in a country club, and only 3.4 per cent held a management contract.

Travel seems to be another exception. "Travel plays a large part in the life of the typical male executive, but this is not the case with the female officer," it was reported. "Indeed, 37 per cent of the women do not travel at all."

That isn't to say that companies decline to send women on trips even when their positions entail travel. More likely, it's in the nature of the woman executive's position as secretary, which is essentially a headquarters job.

But type-casting women executives into the corporate secretary role, while perhaps not blatant discrimination, is discrimination nonetheless, and the women are quite aware of it.

Asked to cite the factor impeding their progress the most, 48.5 per cent said "discrimination." It was considered the worst single impediment, regardless of compensation, marital status, age or education.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Capacity Reached

A record year for travel in North Carolina... business up at least 20 per cent... total revenue close to $1.8 billion.

Reports of this kind from travel experts show the state is capable of attracting tourists without having liquor sales by the drink. As mountain and beach resorts become crowded to capacity in summer, their operators look forward to more visitors in off-season.

The mixed drink issue is slated to come up again in the 1978 legislature, and resort operators probably will continue their support of legalized sales. However, the sales pitch may as well be based frankly on the prospect of increasing profits; the patronage is already there. — The Robersonian (Lumberton)

Farm Ponds

Some good apparently will result from the prolonged dry weather across North Carolina in recent months — more farm ponds.

An unusual demand is being made of the Soil Conservation Service for assistance with farm ponds for irrigation as a result of the dry weather according to Jesse L. Hicks, state conservationist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The requests, he says come from every part of the state.

So, Conservation Service people in every county stand ready to help land-owners determine suitable sites for farm ponds and to provide technical assistance.

Down through the years, Tar Heel farmers have installed more than 67,000 ponds, but the dry weather this summer has pointed to the need for more.

Farm ponds can have uses other than irrigation. They can be used for recreation and for supplies of fresh fish. Every farm of any size really ought to have a pond because of the various potential benefits. — The Hickory Daily Record

Overcrowding Among Lawyers?

A record number (604) applicants recently took the North Carolina Bar examination, and a record number (542) got passing grades. Considering the fact that North Carolina now has five law schools, such large numbers are to be expected.

Some may wonder where those 542 new barristers will practice, or if they can make a go of it, judging by the sizable number of attorneys practicing in the state already. After all, this number figures out at better than five new legal advisors for every county in North Carolina.

But some of the newly licensed lawyers won't practice law at all. Others will go to other states to join law firms, or find their way into government work. The four or five hundred who may enter into practice in North Carolina likely shouldn't have much difficulty making a living, however.

With each passing year the laymen sees more evidence of more legalism and more red tape in our lives. And behavioral scientists tell us as human beings living closer together we aren't growing any less belligerent or more cooperative. When results of those conditions erupt in an individual's face, often his initial thought is a retain a lawyer. — The Laurinburg Exchange

Frank D. Schroth, was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for exposing police corruption during the administration of Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Farrell has in mind a rehabilitation of such editorial spirit.

"The paper still lives in the memories of those who know it," he said.

"Yes, the borough has a number of bad areas, and a very high number of black and Puerto Rican residents. But so do Newark and Philadelphia, and they have flourishing newspapers, and strong community identification with those papers.

"Jobs will be the editorial thrust. We don't believe there's any such thing as a minority person here. They're all in the majority of Brooklyn residents. I am as thorough an independent as anyone can be. But I'm very strong on the idea that this country needs lots of work for the people who want it."

Farrell plans to hire 20 staff writers — mostly editors of existing Brooklyn weeklies. There are only two qualifications, he says: writing ability and a love and knowledge of Brooklyn.

"We're going to put out only Sunday editions for a couple of months. By then we figure we can work out the kinks and then we'll convert it into a daily paper."

The new Eagle will be competitive, selling Sunday issues for 35 cents and daily editions for 20 cents, Farrell says.

"There's a crying need in Brooklyn for a new spirit," Farrell said. "I think a strong borough newspaper may be the answer. It's worth a try anyway, isn't it?"

Balance Sheet On Epic Boycott: No Winners

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The great Farah boycott began in August of 1972. It ended in February of 1974. In the annals of labor relations, this was an epic conflict. Now a little monograph comes to hand, offering a reflective judgment on the battle: Nobody won.

The monograph is the work of Harold P. Coxson, Jr., director of the labor law section of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Presumably the gentleman is biased toward business, but little such bias appears in his paper. Coxson sets forth the fact and lets us add up the score. The score, considering the injuries, was something worse than a scoreless tie.

At the time it all began, the Farah Manufacturing Company of El Paso was one of three major companies manufacturing pants for the wholesale trade. The company was a kind of lengthened shadow of Willie Farah, a stubborn, hard-working, passionately patriotic American of Lebanese descent. Under his direction, the firm had prospered.

Coxson looked up the figures. At their peak, Farah's factories produced 12,000 dozen men's and boys' garments per day. Their estimated annual cloth usage was 39 million linear yards. The company operated nine plants in San Antonio and El Paso. The payroll numbered 9,500 persons.

Before the boycott, Farah had an impressive record of sales and profits. In 1967 the company went public. Fortune magazine ranked it 38th among 1,000 companies in terms of earnings per share on invested capital. Its stock ranged from a low of $40 to a high of $90.

Over a period of several years, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union (AFL-CIO) had tried strenuously to organize the Farah Workers. Coxson does not go into the background of the prolonged dispute, but the bitterness and hostility have been widely reported elsewhere. This was a rough one—a militant union, with some fire-eating leaders, pitted against intransigent management, strongly entrenched. Black gum and thunder clashed. The union flexed its muscles and proclaimed a national boycott of Farah products.

In a nice, ironical sense, the boycott succeeded. In Pittsburgh, which Coxson takes to be a typical city, Farah pants had disappeared from the shelves of every major store by June 1973. The company began hurting. Its stock, which had traded between 19 3/4 and 49 1/4 in 1971, dropped to a low of 10 3/4 in 1972. In 1973 the range was between 3 1/4 and 12 1/2. In 1975, the year after the boycott ended, the high was 9 3/4. The company plainly didn't win.

When the labor troubles began, in 1969, the average starting wage at the Farah company was $1.70 per hour. The minimum wage was then $1.60. When Willie Farah at last caved in, and withdrew his opposition to the union, a settlement was reached. The new starting wage was $2.50, but the minimum wage by that time had increased to $2.20. Put another way, the union won an 80-cent increase, but the workers would have had 60 cents anyhow. At the end of a 22-month strike, when they had no wages at all, they won 20 cents, net, per hour. It is hard to see what the workers won.

Perhaps it was a union victory? Coxson doubts it. At the time of settlement, it was widely reported that the union had spent $4.5 million on the boycott. The union obtained 5,500 new members, paying dues (at the 1974 rate) of $3 per month. On that basis, the union would need 25 years to recoup its cost. The union had hoped to organize other companies in El Paso as a result of its success at Farah, but three years later, says Coxson, "only one-tenth of El Paso is unionized." If this was a union victory, it was pyrrhic victory indeed.

What of the public interest? During the boycott, consumers had choices of two major products instead of three. Not much public interest there. Farah's payroll dropped from 9,500 to 7,500 during the boycott; it has since dropped to about 6,500. Instead of nine plants, the company operates three. They produce only 3,500 dozen garments a day. Farah's purchases of material have dropped to 11 million linear yards. Farah's stock could be had a week or so ago at $3.50 a share.

"What does all this show?" asks Coxson. "When a union implements a consumer boycott that reduces or eliminates the demand for a particular product, nobody really wins. Employees lose jobs; the company and its stockholders lose money; competition is reduced in the industry, and consumers have one less brand to choose from."

Coxson expresses a hope that the American public will learn from the Farah experience, but the hope is probably forlorn. Wars—any wars—are fearfully expensive, but men keep fighting them anyhow.

NOT A STONE WALL-- BUT A SIMILAR EFFECT!

By GAIL MICHAELS

An Item Overlooked By The Organized Mother

My first reaction when Phillip suggests going to the beach is fear. It's not that I'm afraid of the water; it's that I'm afraid I'll forget to pack something vital — like my checkbook. Because I ALWAYS do forget something. So when Phillip's parents invited us to the beach for Labor Day weekend, I was determined that this time I would be so organized that I would forget absolutely nothing.

So I made lists of things to do, like: (1) go to bank; (2) remind Phillip to take his glasses; (3) water plants; (4) remind Phillip to take his wallet; (5) get ice for cooler; (6) wash Phillip's three sets of intact underwear; (7) cook ham; (8) remind Phillip to pack his three sets of intact underwear.

And I made a list of things to take: alcohol, Wet Ones, vitamins (Meg's), Bactine, cough syrup, Bufferin, flashlight, soap, towels, Solarcaine, peanut butter, vitamins (mine), Bufferin, oatmeal, Band-Aids, batteries, Pre-Sun, Bufferin...

All Friday I was a whirlwind of activity. I washed, I cooked, I packed. I ran errands, and at 5:30 when Phillip got home, four suitcases, two baby gates, a cooler, a plastic sand turtle, and Meg were all sitting by the door, ready to be escorted to the car.

"Good grief!" Phillip exclaimed. "We're going to be there for three whole days. Are you sure you packed enough?"

"Well, that suitcase in the middle of the living room floor is going, too, but I have to put a few more things in it before you can take it out."

"I don't believe it," he sighed, walking over to the suitcase and looking in. "Gail — why is there a jar of peanut butter in this suitcase?"

"Meg doesn't like seafood."

"And three bottles of Bufferin?"

"You have obviously never been a mother, Phillip Michaels. One for my purse, one for the beach bag, and one for general purposes."

He rolled his eyes toward Heaven. "And batteries?"

"Extras for the flashlight, which we'll need to read by after Meg's gone to sleep," I answered smugly. "See? I thought of everything."

"Right," he said. "I hesitate to ask this, Gail, but why are you carrying a can of Lysol?"

"Oh, come on, sweetheart. Haven't you ever walked into a hotel room and wondered who's been standing in that shower, and who's been sleeping on that bedspread, and just who'd been using that potty?"

"It sounds like Goldilocks," he groaned. "Are you sure we REALLY need all this stuff?"

"Positive. I am not going to have my weekend spoiled by getting down there and finding out we've left something that we should have brought."

Phillip shrugged his shoulders and packed the car without further complaint. After we had arrived at our motel and had unpacked the car, he said, "Now that that's done, why don't we reward ourselves. Let's leave Meg with Mom and go for a quick swim."

"Oh, no!" I wailed. "What's wrong," he said, rushing to my side. "I forgot my bathing suit."

Facing South

Cajun Artist Captures Trappings Of That Life

LAFAYETTE, La.—When Floyd Sonnier drives down the back roads of south west Louisiana, that region known as Acadiana, his car weaves all over the highway. He's looking at the countryside around him, fastening an eye on a particularly twisted oak tree, a swirl of scraggly Spanish moss, a weather-beaten barn, remnants of what was once a proud home.

He once had four wrecks in four weeks.

But he also captured in his mind's eye a piece of detail that will one day appear in the sketches he does of his countryside and his people—the Acadians, better known as Cajuns, a genteel, proud, French-speaking people who 200 years ago were taken from their homes, separated family member from family member, and expelled from Nova Scotia because the British feared their French tongue and Catholic faith.

That Cajun heritage of dispersion, resettlement, hard work, isolation by language and geography, and a love of life and laughter are what Sonnier and his work are all about with pen and ink he has created a series of drawings that set a mood, display an attitude and tell the story of the Cajuns. His drawing style is precise, building shapes and filling detail that present a precise image, but an image that suggests as well a sense of something that is felt as much as it is seen.

"A Cajun is about as emotional a fellow as you can find," Sonnier was saying — his speech still colored by a French accent, the language he learned first. "Listen to his music. It's folk music, much of which tells of all the loneliness, the fears, the agonies of a people who have lost so much—a people who have lost their homes, loved ones and almost their own identity.

"But there are the happy tunes, too, the ones that mirror the other side of the Cajun his characteristic joie de vivre, his philosophy that the right way to live is to dance a little, drink a little, work a little, cry a little, and laugh and love a lot.

"Part of it, of course, is that a Cajun is a Frenchman," he continued, "and the French are by nature an emotional people, quick to laughter, quick to anger and as quick to switch from one to the other. And that's what I try to capture in my sketches...not only the scenery, not just the countryside, not the distinctive architecture of their homes—although these are all a part—but the emotions of these people as reflected in their life and the trappings of that life."

Sonnier, the son of a sharecropper from the Pointe Noire area in Acadia Parish (country), traces his ancestry back to Southern France by way of Acadia in Nova Scotia, but it is not that European or Canadian experience that he remembers or reflects as he draws. It is the Louisiana Cajun of a hundred years ago, and the culture of that Cajun that until recent times was slowly being buried beneath the Americanization of South Louisiana.

Two Of Three Okay Carter's Job Performance

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Two out of every three Americans, 66 per cent, express approval of the way President Jimmy Carter is performing in office, matching his average approval rating for his first seven months in office.

The President's average rating for these seven months (based on 16 national surveys) exceeds the first-seven-month averages of his immediate predecessors, Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon, whose averages were 48 and 62 per cent, respectively.

While Carter's average rating to date exceeds those of Ford and Nixon, it falls below the initial seven-month ratings for Presidents Lyndon Johnson, John F. Kennedy and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Johnson's average rating for this period was 76 per cent approval, Kennedy's 75 per cent and Eisenhower's 72 per cent.

Analysis Of 'Why' Behind Approval

Interviews with many Americans in recent months indicate that Carter is in considerable measure succeeding in his desire to become the "people's President."

Among those who approve of Carter's performance in office is a 29-year-old female teacher in Boston who comments: "Carter has brought the presidency under the scrutiny of the American public and appears earnest and convincing in his approach."

A 62-year-old Florida businessman in Tampa says: "He keeps people informed of the status of all issues—people feel a part of the government."

A 54-year-old college professor in Tennessee comments: "I am impressed by the fact that he does things like carrying his own luggage as most of the rest of us do getting on and off aircraft. Not since the era of Jackson have we seen such a representative of the common man in the White House."

'Strong Moral Leadership'

Others who approve of Carter's job performance say he is providing strong moral leadership.

"I have confidence that President Carter is making the correct moral and ethical judgments," says a 29-year-old housewife in Villa Park, Ill. "They may not be the most palatable but they seem fair and right."

A 51-year-old aerospace engineer in Anaheim, Cal., has this to say: "The President's positions so far are based on principles which mattered when our nation was founded — that doing the right thing is more important than any immediate advantage."

'Trying His Best'

Others who give the President a vote of confidence at the present time feel he is making an all-out effort to do his best as chief executive.

"He is an energetic man with a real sense of contemporary issues from a humanitarian point of view," are the words of a 26-year-old businessman in Alliston, Mass.

A 52-year-old Denver housewife reasons this way: "President Carter has taken a stand on issues such as energy conservation, human rights, help for the poor and aged. He has made a supreme effort to do something. I don't always agree with him, but no one can say he is a 'do-nothing' President."

'Not Getting Enough Done'

Yet one of the chief criticisms of Carter at the present time is that he is not accomplishing as much as he should — he is given higher marks for personality than for performance.

"I think he is doing a great public relations job," says a 40-year-old teacher, "but he is not accomplishing very much regarding big issues."

A 30-year-old Miami housewife says: "I feel he is keeping a low profile — trying not to be controversial but he's not accomplishing very much."

'Not Fulfilling Campaign Promises'

Others feel that Carter is not fulfilling his campaign promises. "He sold out to too many groups, such as labor, minorities, and welfare recipients, in trying to get elected and he can't please them all and run the country properly," claims a 57-year-old male resident of Greenwood, Miss.

Still others feel the President to be an enigma. "I still don't know whether the President is a liberal or a conservative," says a young Washington, D.C., resident: "We haven't seen the results of government reorganization. We don't know if he can balance the budget. We don't even know if he can work with a Democratic Congress."

Criticized On Specific Programs

Much of the criticism of the President's performance is focused on specific issues, frequently foreign policy issues.

A 30-year-old Air Force personnel officer says: "He employs a double standard in foreign policy. He criticizes Russia, Chile and Brazil for human rights violations, but does not criticize Vietnam, Cuba or Cambodia."

A 71-year-old businessman in Towson, Md., comments: "He does not seem to know who his friends are in the world. He acts cozy with the Cubans and the Vietnamese and hurts our relationship with people who used to be our friends."

A 45-year-old factory worker in Hudsonville, Mich., itemizes his complaints:

"Inflation is still out of control...Carter has come up with a poor energy plan that doesn't seem to be working...The Post Office is in a mess...Social Security is a mess," he says.

Questionable Commissions

NEW DELHI, India AP—Indian investigators have learned that former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's eldest son Rajiv, allegedly received $990,000 in questionable commissions from the Boeing company, the Indian Express newspaper reported today.

The respected English-language daily said Rajiv, a pilot for Indian Airlines, received the alleged payment in a foreign bank account in connection with the purchase of three Boeing 737 jetliners by his mother's government.

The Express account said the payment was uncovered by Indian investigators now in Washington, D.C., to examine various business dealings of Rajiv Gandhi's more controversial younger brother, Sanjay.

Oil Reserve Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Persian Gulf, especially Iran, is receiving new importance in U.S. planning to protect its rich oil reserves from "foreign aggression," U.S. officials say.

President Carter issued a secret directive late last month expanding U.S. strategic priorities to include defending the Persian Gulf against any Soviet attack.

The memorandum, which followed a six-month study by the National Security Council, was sent to the Pentagon.

Pianist Ruth Laredo will open the Artists Series at East Carolina University at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, September 21, in a performance in the Mendenhall Student Center Theater.

Primarily known until recent years as the accompanist to her violinist husband, Ms. Laredo since the dissolution of their marriage in 1974 has acquired national recognition as a pianist in her own right.

Two Day Show For Chamberlain

Warren Chamberlain, who several years ago retired as a faculty artist from East Carolina University, actively pursues his dual loves — teaching and painting water colors.

Another show of his work, one that will have some recent paintings on public view for the first time, will take place on Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18, at the Farmville Art Center.

Best known for his rural scenes based on all seasons of the year, Chamberlain turns to old barns, crossroads stores, coastal landscapes and scenes of fields and woods as subject matters. The Farmville show will be comprised of about two dozen paintings, most of them of recent vintage.

A native of Rochester, New York, Chamberlain has taught numerous classes in the area — in Greenville, Farmville, Tarboro, Kinston, Washington, Rocky Mount — and has been invited to exhibit in a large number of local and regional shows.

Prior to his ECU retirement, he was Chairman of Interior Design and Watercolor Departments at ECU. In past years he also taught at New York State State University, at State Teachers College, Kutztown, Pa., and in schools in New York.

The Farmville show will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. The public is invited and there is no admission charge. The center is located just off W. Horne Street behind the National Guard Armory Building.

In 1800, Abigail Adams described the newly built White House in a letter: "We have not the least fence, yard, or other convenience, without, and the great unfinished audience room I make a drying-room of, to hang up the clothes in," she wrote.

One Child By Choice. By Sharryl Hawke and David Knox. Englewood Cliffs, N.J. Prentice-Hall, Inc., 227 pps., $3.95.

The majority of couples today still want children with the emphasis on the plural; only a small percentage wants a single child family, and, in fact, these parents counter strong social opposition to their decision. Local (East Carolina University) sociologist David Knox has examined the advantages and disadvantages of single child families in collaboration with Sharryl Hawke of the Social Science Education Consortium at Boulder, Colorado.

It is one of those lovely books, free of jargon and pretention, easily read and packed with information and insights presented in an interesting way.

First, Knox discusses the many people who have decided to have no children: "...turned off by the obvious distortions of the folklore (of parenthood), some couples never look beyond the myths to discover there are rewards in parenting — some very real and unique rewards." One of the difficulties, according to Knox, is that most parents find these rewards difficult to verbalize, however real they may be. "My son...has touched my emotions, opened my eyes, and rejuvenated me in a way no adult ever has." And a child causes a parent to grow. In some lives he may be the only person whose best interests come before self interest. "I wouldn't say I'm a 'better' person since I've become a parent, but I do think I'm emotionally, and to a certain extent intellectually, a more fully developed person."

Should the couple decide to have children after all, they rarely decide to have just one. Most feel only children are spoiled, lonely, maladjusted, dependent, underachievers and generally unhappy. Knox cites evidence to the contrary. Studies show only children share as well as others, they are more self-confident as a group, they socialize well because they've had to learn to, and along with first-borns they are generally more successful in school. They are no more maladjusted nor unhappy than the rest of the population. They do tend to have more possessions, get more parental attention, are more adultlike in their vocabularies and behavior, and tend to idealize the sibling relationships in other families.

The parents of single children are often older and have their children later in their marriages, are more adult-oriented, and more independent. However, they may be "more restrictive or more indulgent" and not as "relaxed as parents who have several children." They run the risk of being left childless should tragedy strike, but "the loss of their child is certainly no more profound for them than such a death is for any other parent." They may expect more from their children and be over-protective and be more likely to interfere with their child's activities.

The authors conclude that the advantages in raising an only child include a much smaller financial drain, more time to spend developing a close relationship with the child, no worries about favoritism, more time for careers, more time with husbands or wives, and a quieter and more orderly household.

The above is only a portion of the book, which devotes chapters to the advantages and disadvantages of multiple child families, raising an only child, careers for single children, and marriage difficulties and advantages for the only child. It is interesting and informative and will, perhaps, lay to rest many of the myths surrounding the single child.

David Knox has a long list of publications to his credit as does Ms. Hawke and, if this book is an indication, they will have many future successes. Perhaps the most overriding impression one gets from the book is that any child's best chance in life comes not from the size of his family but from the type of parents he has. If they are loving, concerned and considerate, he's got a good start.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MARGARET CLARK

New fiction this fall includes Pulitzer Prize-winning author Allen Drury's ANNA HASTINGS, the story of a successful publisher of a Washington newspaper. At the peak of her career, Anna Hastings writes her memoirs. Long-time friend Ed McCormack a journalist like Anna once was, refutes her self-serving autobiography by retelling the important incidents in his own way. Anna had set her sights 30 years ago to be a communications czarina. She married money, made powerful connections, found her new friends to her with loyalty if not always affection. Her newspaper is a high success but maintains such a harshly critical posture toward the government that the Senate holds treason hearings against her. Ed McCormack tries to correct the newspaper's bias from within as its managing editor but is fired. Despite her public success, Anna's personal life is in shambles. Devoting her emotional energies to her work, she slowly freezes her family out of her life. Timely, insightful, and well-crafted, this is a remarkable novel for its lack of sex and violence and for its aggressive female main character.

In his latest thriller, Alistair MacLean takes the reader aboard the SEAWITCH, the technological miracle that could blow the world's energy crisis sky high. The SEAWITCH is a mobile oil rig anchored off the American coast in the Gulf. It is owned by a billionaire named Lord Worth who's out to beat the big companies at their own game. The rig can supply him with enough cheap oil to undercut the world market. What he doesn't suspect is all-out war, direct armed assaults and a deadly campaign of sabotage, carried on by a ruthless soldier of fortune. Only two men in the world - two smart and very competent private eyes - stand between Lord Worth and total destruction.

As any romantic suspense fan knows, Victoria Holt is one of today's most popular writers. THE DEVIL ON HORSEBACK, her new novel, is set against the exciting background of revolutionary France and 18th century England. Minella Maddox is a young English school-mistress forced to live under an assumed identity in France. The terrors of revolution threaten the life of the cruelly handsome Count - the Devil on Horseback - who has fallen in love with her. She is also in danger, and events sweep them both into a hair-raising confrontation with death. The result is a first-rate tale of intrigue and love in the best Victoria Holt tradition.

Wants Women's Museum

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Two North Carolina women hope to put women's history in its place — out in front of the American public.

Most museums dedicate little more than a dusty corner to the accomplishment of women, so Dr. Anne Russell, a Raleigh writer, and Grace Rohrer, a former state secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources, want to develop the American Women's Museum.

The two recently obtained a North Carolina non-profit charter for the museum. They plan to suggest the idea to the North Carolina International Women's Year committee as a possible state project to be presented at the IWY Convention in Houston, Tex., Nov. 18-21.

"You would be amazed at how much history there is," said Ms. Russell, who thought of the museum while working on the biography of former U.S. congresswoman Patsy Mink last year in Hawaii

"I began to see how little was displayed," Ms. Russell said.

She said she visited museums across the country, seeing the same obligatory inaugural gowns of governor's wives but little else.

Mrs. Rohrer said she would like to see a women's museum system with a central facility in Washington, D.C.

Traditional Debutante Ball Held Friday

RALEIGH — Traditions highlighted the social scene here during the weekend as the annual North Carolina Debutante Ball was staged Friday evening.

The formal presentation included 222 young ladies from across the state, who made their bows to society. Miss Mabel Peele Geoghegan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dodge Geoghegan, led the debutantes in forming the cartwheel figure.

Debutantes from Greene, Martin and Pitt Counties this year included:

Miss Laura Leigh Harper of Snow Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. Harper; Miss Lucia Claire Peel, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Elbert Sydney Peel Jr., and Miss Carol Lawrence Watts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Watts Jr., all of Williamston;

Miss Bonnie Lynn Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Webster Lee; Miss Mary Ellen Longino, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Longino; Miss Laura Loraine Minges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin Minges II; Miss Elizabeth Ann Whitehurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst Jr.; Miss Margaret Elizabeth Winstead, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Lindsay Winstead Jr.; and Miss Ruth Daniels Woronoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray Woronoff, all of Greenville.

Wally Hinkamp and his orchestra provided music for the presentation. Bert Massengale and his orchestra played for the dance immediately following the presentation at the Carolina Country Club.

For her presentation, Miss Harper wore a white satin gown fashioned with a scooped neckline and high rise waistline. Seed pearls and iridescents accented the sleeveless bodice. The A-line skirt continued from the waistline.

A white gown of qiana jersey was selected by Miss Peel. The gown, styled with a Princess Anne neckline and high collar, featured a cotton lace design around the collar and a drape that extended from the high waistline to the hemline.

Miss Watts was attired in a sleeveless gown of antique satin. The gown had a scoop neckline and lace and pearl bodice. Scattered lace and pearl trim adorned the full skirt.

A formal sleeveless Priscilla of Boston gown of white silken organza over peau de soie was selected by Miss Lee. Featuring a motif of seed pearls and bugle beads, the yoke was of sheer English net. Re-embroidered alencon lace enhanced with seed pearls covered the bodice. Edged in scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace, her chapel length train flowed from an A-line skirt.

For her debut, Miss Longino wore a gown of white chiffon with a sleeveless, scooped neckline and bodice of English net. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace with accents of small pearls and iridescents sequins enhanced the bodice.

A formal gown of white silk organza by Priscilla of Boston was worn by Miss Minges. The gown was fashioned with a portrait neckline outlined with bridal pearls. The empire bodice was trimmed with jeweled re-embroidered alencon lace applied on English net. The front of the gown featured a lattice trim of pearls with jeweled alencon lace appliques.

tional white sleeveless gown styled with a portrait neckline. The bodice of alencon re-embroidered lace overlay on organza was embroidered with pearls. The A-line skirt, which fell from an empire waistline, was of organza over peau de soie.

Miss Winstead's gown of white qiana satin had an empire bodice of re-embroidered alencon lace outlined with clusters of seed pearls and iridescents sequins. The A-line skirt extended into a wide sweep train.

Miss Woronoff was wearing a white chiffon formal gown with alencon re-embroidered lace and pearls on the sleeveless empire bodice. The gown featured a scalloped scooped neckline and flowing chiffon skirt.

Following registration at the Raleigh Civic Center Thursday, rehearsal for the debutantes and marshals was held. A cocktail party honoring debutantes and their parents was held at the North Ridge Country Club during the evening.

Mothers of the young ladies were honored at a coffee hour given by the Honorary Chairman, Mrs. Henry Dockery Haywood, at the Carolina Country Club Friday.

Two groups — Mother's Finest and the Four Tops — provided music for dancing Saturday morning at the Carolina Country Club, while Bill Deal and the Rhondels and the Screaming Jackson Sisters played for the Saturday night dance at the Hilton Inn.

Terpsichorean Club members and their ladies joined the traditional figure just prior to the presentation of the debutantes at the Friday evening ball.

MSU Slips Past Purdue

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fullback Jim Earley plunged for an early touchdown and Hans Nielsen drilled four field goals Saturday as Michigan State edged Purdue 19-14 in the season opener for the Big Ten football rivals.

But MSU barely survived Purdue's passing attack, as freshman quarterback Mark Herrmann came off the bench to riddle the Spartans' secondary and almost steal the game. Early dived over from the Purdue one-yard line and Nielsen kicked a 25-yard field goal to give MSU a 10-0 halftime lead.

Navy Shells Citadel

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Navy, bottled up on offense for most of three quarters, broke loose for three touchdowns in the final 20 minutes of play for a 21-2 season-opening victory over The Citadel Saturday.

A blocked punt in the end zone by Dale Williams with 45 seconds left in the first half gave the Citadel a 2-0 halftime lead, and it looked for a while as if the Bulldog defense would make it stand.

But Navy quarterback Bob Leszczynski finally got his offense going midway in the third quarter, moving the Midshipmen 97 yards in three plays.

Southern Cal Gets Win

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Rob Hertel tossed touchdown passes to Randy Simmrin and William Gay and scampered 10 yards for another tally, leading fourth-ranked Southern Cal to a 27-10 victory over Missouri in the football season opener for both teams.

Hertel, throwing with pinpoint accuracy, drove the Trojans 73 yards midway through the fourth period after the Tigers closed to within three points. In the final seconds, his 10-yard touchdown burst cinched the victory and avenged a 46-25 loss the Tigers inflicted on Southern Cal in last year's opener.

Michigan Tops Illinois

CHAMPAIN, Ill. (AP) — Rick Leach hurled two touchdown passes and Harlan Huckleby scored twice to power second-ranked Michigan to a 37-9 victory over Illinois Saturday in a Big Ten football opener.

A record opening-day Illinois crowd of 60,477 saw Illinois take an early 3-0 lead on a 42-yard field goal by freshman Dave Finzer, but the rest was downhill in Gary Moeller's coaching debut.

Rose Ends Loss Streak

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

NEW BERN — Rose High School took advantage of a fine 51-yard punt by Jeff Aldridge and a 61-yard run by Robert Morehead to gain a 9-6 victory over New Bern Friday night, snapping a nine-game losing streak.

Oddly enough, the last team that the Rampants defeated was New Bern, last season, 13-0. The loss left Rose with a 1-1 mark on the year, while New Bern fell to 0-3. The Bears have not won a game in their last 14 games.

Aldridge's punt, in the second period, put the Bears in a hole at their own nine yard line, and they were finally forced to punt from their 17. On the snap, however, the ball sailed over the kicker's head into and through the end zone for a safety, giving Rose a 2-0 lead that held through halftime.

Morehead's run, which came on a perfectly executed pitch from quarterback Joey Mattheis just three plays into the second half, carried down to the two yard line, and two plays later, Mac Washington crashed over for the only Rose touchdown of the night. Yousef Barakat added the PAT kick for a 9-0 lead.

New Bern later came back in the third period to score on a 47-yard pass from Zeke Simmons to Kent Hatley.

While the Rampants had several other threats, moving down to the six-yard line late in the first half on their best effort, the Rose defense generally held New Bern in check.

The Bears had only two yards in total offense in the first half, and ended up with just 59 yards rushing and 60 passing, 47 of course coming on the touchdown play.

Rose ran up 227 with their ground game, led by Washington, Morehead and Mattheis, and added 37 passing.

Rose crossed midfield first, on its first series, but was stopped early by an interception. Then, on the next series, the Rampants fumbled on their own 40, giving the Bears top field position.

But the Rampants dug in and didn't allow a first down and got it back, only to fumble again, this time at the same place. After again holding, Rose got the ball back to the 40 once more, and this time punted away.

Aldridge's punt was downed on the Bear nine yard line, and on the first play, the Bears were assessed a five-yard penalty for delay of game. They were able to move it out to the 17-yard line, but found themselves in a kicking situation.

Simmons went back, but watched helplessly as the ball sailed over his head, into the end zone. He chased after it, but it rolled out the back side for a safety with 5:06 left in the half, giving Rose a 2-0 lead.

Starting a drive from their 40 after New Bern's free kick, Rose drove it downfield. Mattheis hit Reggie Selby on a 21-yard pass down to the Bear 22 on the key play of the series. But after getting a first down at the 10, the Rampants stalled at the six, and a fourth down pass fell incomplete, turning the ball over.

The Rampants got the opening kickoff and moved from their own 34 to open the second half. Washington got a yard on first down, and Mattheis added two more on second.

Then, Mattheis headed around the left side of the line, and just as he was hit, pitched back to Morehead, who took off down the sidelines. He was finally pushed out of bounds on the two yard line after picking up 61 yards.

David Northrup hit for one yard on first down, and Washington carried it over right tackle for the score on the next play. Barakat's kick made it 9-0 with 9:24 left in the period.

New Bern pushed the ball back across midfield, but was stopped on a fourth and inches play at the Rose 45 by the middle of the Rampant line.

After forcing a Rose punt, New Bern got it back with 4:33 left in the period on its own 18. Ernest Sampson picked up 13 around the left side, but Simmons was hauled down by Mike Joyner for a six-yard loss on the next down. A screen pass to Sampson returned 13 yards, and the Bears got a first down at the 41. Helped along by a five-yard penalty against Rose, the Bears got another first down at the Rose 49, and two plays later, Simmons hit Hatley across the middle, and he shook off the last defender and raced to the end zone to pull the Bears back within scoring distance, 9-6 with 48 seconds left in the period.

Late in the final period, Rose got the ball at its own 35 with 3:46 left, and ground out the yardage, getting a key first down at the Bear 42, when Washington picked up the three yards needed on fourth down. From there, the Rampants ran out the clock to keep the ball away from the Bears. Washington ended the game with 72 yards, while Morehead had 71.

"We should have scored more," Bumgarner said afterwards. "We did what we wanted to, except for scoring more. We moved the ball well."

Mattheis, listed as the number two quarterback going into the game, went all the way. "Scott Brady (the number one quarterback in pre-game plans) had a bruised shoulder. And then, Joey moved the ball well last week when he was in there. And he did a heck of a good job in running the team tonight."

Mattheis will probably get the chance again come Friday, when the Rampants travel to Kinston to meet the Vikings.

N. C. State Blanks Virginia

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Fullback Timmy Johnson and running back Ted Brown each scored on short scampers as North Carolina State wore down a puncheon Virginia for a 14-0 football victory Saturday night.

Atlantic Coast Conference game brought its overall record to 1-1. The game was Virginia's season opener.

Virginia's best chance to score came late in the third quarter when freshman quarterback Bryan Shumock hit on a 24-yard pass to sophomore tailback Paul Izlar at the N.C. State 13 yard line. The Cavaliers got as far as the 2 yard line with a first down, but failed on four attempts to enter the end zone.

The scores came on Brown's eight-yard run in the second quarter and Johnson's three-yard jaunt in the third period. The win in N.C. State's first 36-yard pass to Randy Hall at the Virginia 7 yard line with 11 seconds remaining. But the game ended on the next play without a score.

N.C. State's second score came when quarterback Johnny

Evans pitched off to Johnson as Evans was hit at the line, and Johnson scooted around the left side for the touchdown. The Wolfpack marched 80 yards in 14 plays, including a 21-yard run by Rickey Adams on an option pitch. The only score of the first half came when Brown took another Evans pitch around the left side for a touchdown and Jay Sherrill converted to make it 7-0.

N.C. State was led in rushing by Billy Ray Vickers who ran 102 yards in 13 attempts. Izlar led the Cuvvs with 51 yards rushing.

After holding the Devils, the Pirates got it back at their own 40. In three plays, they moved to the 50, then added four more plays down to the 28. Southerland relieved a winded Green and took the ball around the left side, falling into the end zone after a 28-yard run for the score. Creech again kicked and it was 17-10 with 1:52 left.

It makes the Dye-led Pirates 5-1 against ACC competition over the past three years.

Dunn's 254 yards was a personal high. East Carolina was led by Southerland with 34 rushing and 80 passing, while Green had 55 rushing and 22 passing. Theodore Sutton ran for 55 yards, while Willie Hawkins had 60 yards rushing.

The Pirates are again on the road next week, traveling to Toledo to meet the University of Toledo next Saturday night.

Deacons Down Furman

By DAVE NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Penetrating passes by quarterback Mike McGlamry backed up by the bruising rushes of tailback James McDougald gave Wake Forest a 24-13 college football victory Saturday night over Furman.

The Demon Deacons sputtered and stammered until late in the game when Furman's defense appeared to weaken while Wake Forest's attack seemed to get stronger. Wake Forest's first lead, 14-10, came well into the third quarter on a sensational 55-yard play. McGlamry fired a bullet over the middle to tight end Steve Young, who broke a tackle and scampered up the sidelines for the score.

Wake Forest stretched its lead to 21-13 early in the final to go to be a good football team." He added that the offense moved the ball well. "It was just a matter of getting our hands on the ball." As to the numerous penalties, Dye said it was poor coaching. He noted that Duke also had some telling penalties.

Asked to compare this win with the 38-17 win over North Carolina two years ago, Dye said, "That game had its place, and this one certainly has its place. The impact of playing Duke is mighty big for us."

Dye said that Duke quarterback Mike Dunn is everything he expected him to be. "He's a great quarterback. I think we did a hell of a job in holding Duke to just three points for over three quarters."

Dye now faces the job of getting the Pirates ready for next week's game with Toledo, and guarding against a let down by the Pirates.

"If we go around slapping them on the back and telling them how good they are, then they'll get lazy. But we won't. I love 'em in the dressing room on Saturday if they've won. But Monday it's a whole new ball game." —WOODY PEELE.

Eastern Wayne Downs Jaguars

NEW HOPE — Eastern Wayne scored on a long pass with just over two minutes left in the ball game last night to nip Farmville Central 7-6 in a game postponed from Friday night because of rain.

The loss was the first in two games for the Jaguars, who host Havelock next Friday night.

After a scoreless first half, Farmville Central took the lead in the third quarter when quarterback Donald Freeman hit James Tyson with a 25-yard scoring toss. Donald Reid's PAT kick was no good to make it 6-0.

Then, with 2:09 left in the game, Harlon Neal hauled in a 48-yard pass from Don Herlihy to tie the game up. Dale Edmondson then booted the extra point, which was the margin of the game.

Panthers Run Past Dragons

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
BETHEL — North Pitt's defense bottled up South Edgecombe's wishbone offense, holding the Dragons to just 31 yards rushing, while the Panther offense scored a touchdown in each of the first three quarters to give North Pitt a 20-6 win Friday night.

South Edgecombe got just 100 yards in total offense during the game and 49 of that came on a long pass play in the first half which produced the lone Dragon touchdown. The bomb was thrown by Robert Elliot to Mark Edmondson.

North Pitt showed a strong ground game in its first win of the year and quarterback John Hunt completed seven of nine passes for 82 yards.

The Panthers' first touchdown came on their first possession, but a bit of luck was involved. After being stopped two yards short of a first down, Hunt dropped back to punt, but the snap was over his head. He scooped the ball up and found Roy Briley in the clear 15 yards downfield. Briley outraced the Dragons for a 49-yard score. The other two Panther scores came on dive plays. Calvin Carmack went over from the three in the second quarter and Don Warren scored from the two in the third. Hunt ran for a two-point conversion following Carmack's TD, while a kick and run both failed after the other two.

Stadium Cheers Up Ailing Steve Carlton

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Steve Carlton left his house for the game in bad shape. Then he saw the ballpark and immediately felt 100 per cent better.

"This club really loves this ballpark," he said. He was, of course, speaking of Veterans Stadium, where the Philadelphia Phillies are nearly unbeatable.

So despite a painful back condition, the left-hander anxiously went to work and notched an 11-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night for his 21st triumph of the season.

The victory was the Phillies' 17th in the last 18 home games and extended their Veterans Stadium record this year to a brilliant 53-15. And it was forged despite Carlton's struggling effort.

In other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-1; the Montreal Expos edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the San Diego Padres 8-6; the Houston Astros turned back the San Francisco Giants 6-1 and the Chicago Cubs outscored the New York Mets 10-8.

The way Greg Luzinski was hitting; Carlton didn't have to be at his best. The big outfielder hit two home runs, one of them in a six-run first inning, and droye in five runs.

Luzinski's two-run homer, a career-high 34th, highlighted the first-inning rally and then he finished Philadelphia's scoring with a three-run shot in the eighth.

The victory capped a perfect day for Carlton. Earlier, the Phillies had revealed that the left-hander had signed a four-year contract extending through 1981.

Dusty Baker cracked a three-run homer and Tommy John notched his 18th victory as Los Angeles reduced its division-clinching magic number to eight by beating Cincinnati. Baker's 25th homer of the season erased a 1-0 Cincinnati lead in the sixth inning and snapped a five-game winning streak by Fred Norman, 14-11. It was John's 12th victory in his last 13 decisions and gave the Dodgers a 13½-game lead over the Reds in the National League West.

Expos 2, Pirates 1
Andre Dawson's two-run double in the third inning provided the winning runs as Montreal edged Pittsburgh. Hal Dues, making his first major league start, was the winner although he left after six innings for a pinch-hitter. Dues held the Pirates to one run and six hits before leaving.

Greene Central Blanks Cougars

SARATOGA — Greene Central thoroughly dominated Saratoga Central Friday night but was able to put only six points on the board to take a 6-0 victory.

The Rams had two touchdowns called back on clipping penalties, both of them by Dale Dixon. Dixon scored the only TD that counted, a 37-yard run in the second quarter. The PAT kick failed.

Washington Downs Conley

WASHINGTON — D. H. Conley was able to move the football against Washington Friday night, but the Vikings couldn't seem to get it into the end zone and lost a 14-8 decision.

Williamston Edges Bertie

WINDSOR — A 55-yard pass from Ted Stevens to Randy Freeman enabled Williamston to break a 6-6 tie and take a 12-6 victory over Bertie Friday night.

Indians Stop Bullets In Two Extra Periods

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville took Chocowinity into two overtimes Friday night before bowing to the Indians, 12-6.

The two teams played scoreless football for over three quarters before Chocowinity put the first points on the scoreboard with just nine minutes left to play. That score came on a 12-yard run by Peterson. The PAT run failed.

Jamesville was able to tie the game up before the end of regulation play, however, when quarterback Trent Ange found Bill Barber with a six-yard pass. It was the first win in

Bryant Scores Three In Win Over Chargers

TARBORO — Kelvin Bryant scored three touchdowns and one conversion to lead Tarboro to a 28-7 victory over Ayden-Grifton. Bryant staked the Vikings to a 12-0 first-period lead as he took a 33-yard pass from Tim Crisp and then scored on a 27-yard run.

The Chargers cut the margin to 14-7 in the second period when Terry Morris scored the local team's lone touchdown on a two-yard run. David Smith added the conversion kick.

Jimmy Williams broke loose for a 44-yard gallop in the third frame to give Tarboro its third TD of the night. Bryant's conversion run made it 20-7.

Williamston Edges Bertie

WINDSOR — A 55-yard pass from Ted Stevens to Randy Freeman enabled Williamston to break a 6-6 tie and take a 12-6 victory over Bertie Friday night.

The Tigers held a 6-0 lead at halftime on a four-yard sweep by Hank Edwards. Bertie tied the game up late in the fourth quarter, however, when Speller scored on a four-yard run.

That set up the game-winning pass which gave Williamston its first win in two starts. The Fred Biletnikoff of the Oakland Raiders, the MVP of the 1977 Super Bowl, made 40 or more pass receptions for ten straight years, 1967 through 1976.

Winning Fun For Brett, Serious For Rice

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

Winning has become fun for George Brett, but it's a more serious matter for Jim Rice.

Then again, Brett plays for the Kansas City Royals, who lead the American League West by seven games, while Rice's Boston Red Sox trail the New York Yankees by three games in the AL East.

"It's too soon to think about playing the Eastern Division winner," Brett said the Royals star after Kansas City defeated the Minnesota Twins 6-3 Friday night for their 10th consecutive victory. "When you win 10 in a row, it gives you confidence. And confidence makes the game a lot easier and a lot more fun."

So does hitting a three-run homer, which is another thing Brett did in support of Marty Pattin's eighth consecutive victory, which established a club record. Brett's three-run homer capped a five-run seventh-inning rally that propelled the Royals to their 21st victory in their last 24 games.

Pattin, 8-2, broke Paul Splitteroff's club record, set in 1976, for consecutive victories. He scattered eight hits before receiving relief help from Doug Bird, who recorded his 12th save of the season.

Rice, who blasted his 36th and 37th homers of the season in the Red Sox' doubleheader with Detroit, was more stoic about his performance.

"Sure it's nice to hit two home runs, but the big thing is to win. It's September and we have to win the games now. We can't stand around watching the scoreboard, we have to win our games."

And win the Red Sox did as they swept a doubleheader from the Tigers, 5-1 and 8-6, led by Rice's two-homer performance and relief ace Bill Campbell's 25th and 26th saves of the season.

Rice's two home runs and three runs batted in staked Luis Tiant to a 5-0 lead in the opener. However, Detroit combined four singles for a run before Campbell got Aurelio Rodriguez to hit into a bases-loaded, game-ending double play.

In the nightcap, Rice's sacrifice fly broke a 5-5 tie and Campbell checked the Tigers on one run over the final 31-3 innings as the Red Sox took their third game in a row.

In other American League action, Baltimore whipped Cleveland 7-1. New York blanked Toronto 2-0. Seattle blasted Texas 8-3. Chicago beat California 4-1 and Milwaukee nipped Oakland 3-1.

Orioles 7, Indians 1
Rudy May pitched a sparklung two-hitter and Terry Crowley hit his second career grand slam as Baltimore downed Cleveland and continued their drive to overtake the New York Yankees in the American League East.

Yankees 2, Blue Jays 0
Mike Torrez throttled Toronto on three singles and Cliff Johnson clubbed his 10th home run of the season as New York blanked Toronto to win its fourth game in a row.

Mariners 8, Rangers 3
Tom House scattered six hits and Lee Stanton blasted a two-run homer as Seattle ended a four-game losing streak by beating Texas.

White Sox 4, Angels 1
Steve Stone won his 14th game of the season, with relief help from Lerrin LaGrew, and Jim Essian blasted a home run as Chicago snapped California's three-game winning streak.

Brewers 3, A's 1
Moose Haas fired a three-hitter and Von Joshua and Cecil Cooper smashed home runs as Milwaukee handed Oakland its fourth loss in a row.

Haas held the A's hitless until the seventh inning when Rodney Scott singled. Wayne Gross spoiled Haas' shutout bid with his 18th homer of the season in the eighth.

THE NORTH CAROLINA Wildlife Resources Commission selected the 1977-78 waterfowl regulations at its regular meeting on August 29 from the options offered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

According to a Commission spokesman, the dates were selected in regard to the "input from a state-wide series of public meetings which were held and late August (and were) very helpful in making regulatory determinations.

The main points of the new regulations are:

- The 1977-78 duck hunting season will be split, with the early portion opening at noon on Wednesday, Oct. 5 and going out on Oct. 8. The second portion of the season will open at noon on Dec. 7 and go out on Jan. 20, 1978.
- The daily bag limit during the October season will be five birds per day, including wood ducks, with a daily bonus bag of two blue-winged teal and two scaup. This means that during the early season, wood ducks are treated the same as any other ducks.
- The extra daily bag bonus, applicable in certain waters, brings the total bag to seven ducks per day as long as at least two of those ducks are blue-winged teal or scaup. The extra daily bag limits on blue-winged teal apply to all hunting areas, while the limit on teal applies to all coastal waters designated as commercial fishing waters east of U. S. Highway 17, except in Core Sound between Drum Inlet and Harkers Island, in Pamlico Sound upstream and west of a line between Pungo River and Goose Creek and in Currituck Sound north of U.

S. 158.

- The bag limit during the last portion of the season will be five birds per day, with not more than two being wood ducks, with a daily bonus bag of two scaup in the above-mentioned waters.
- The five-bird bag limit may include no more than one black duck or one hooded merganser during either portion of the season.
- A special season on sea ducks (scoter, eider and oldsquaw) opens on Oct. 10 and runs through Jan. 20, 1978. The taking of sea ducks during this special season is limited to the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and to those coastal waters south of U. S. 64 which are separated by a distance of at least 800 yards of open water from any shore, island or marsh. The daily bag limit on sea ducks is seven.
- Possession limits for all species and all seasons are twice the daily bag limits after opening day.
- The season will be closed on canvasback and redhead ducks and swan.

IN ADDITION to the seasons on ducks, a 50-day split season on Canada and snow geese was adopted.

The first portion of the season opens on Nov. 22 and goes out on Nov. 26, providing for goose hunting on Thanksgiving.

The second portion of the goose season will open on Wed., Dec. 7 and go through Jan. 20, 1978. The daily bag limit set for geese is one Canada and two snows and the possession limit is two Canadas and four snows.

Shooting hours for geese and ducks are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

THE BIGGEST CHANGE in the waterfowl seasons is that up to five wood ducks can be taken during the first portion of the split season.

Wood ducks are the most abundant duck species in this area, although they are given special protection under federal law. The option of a greater bag limit for part of the season on wood ducks was offered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service because studies have shown it to be plentiful in most of the southeastern states.

This is a bonus for local hunters who often can find no other species in the area except wood ducks.

Farmville Central, Williamston Look Strongest Of Area Netters

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central of the Eastern Carolina Conference and Williamston of the Northeastern Conference appear to have the strongest of the area high school girls' tennis teams, while Roanoke and Greene Central should improve over last year's records.

Farmville Central
The Lady Jaguars are coming off of an outstanding 15-2 season and appear to be about the same as last year talent-wise, but their schedule is a little tougher, according to coach Don Dempsey.

"We lost our number one and number four players, but have the rest back and added one girl that wasn't in school here last year," Dempsey said. "I guess we'll probably be about the same as we were, but our schedule will be a little harder so our record probably won't be as good."

Sophomores Diana Gordon and Courtney Lancaster, who were numbers two and three, respectively, last year, should be the number one and two players this season.

At number three is Lynn Maye, Cara Burnette, Margaret McGaughey and LuAnn Eason are all back from last year's team and they are joined by newcomer Jill Johnson, who should fit into the top six, Dempsey said.

Williamston
The Tigerettes return five players off a squad that went 6-4 last year and first-year coach P. J. Taylor feels the team is "coming along real well."

With five returnees, all Taylor has to worry about is the sixth spot, where she will probably have to stick a freshman.

Alisa Robertson and Kristi Rogerson are the top two players on the team and the number one spot will be determined by a challenge match between those two. Robertson was number one last season, but Rogerson had improved greatly, especially on her strokes, Taylor said.

Jo Anna Lilley, Terry Hopkins and Susie Orton also return to the squad and the Tigerettes have had a good turnout of freshmen this year, Taylor said, including Cathy Gurganus, Mary Grace Baker and Vanessa Hood.

Taylor said she expects "a good return" out of the top five players on the team, although it might take time for the freshman players to come around.

Roanoke
Roanoke's girls' tennis program is only in its second year and all but two girls are back from last year's team which went 2-7, according to coach Bert Perkins.

Perkins is not overly optimistic about a good year for the Squaws, however. "I don't expect to do too well this year. The girls just don't have the talent we need to compete."

Only four matches are currently on the schedule, Perkins said, but if Roanoke could schedule a few more it is possible the Squaws could have a winning season.

Perkins said he expects Suzanne Mobley to play one of the top positions with "help at the top" from Fran Vanderford and Miriam Jones. Another girl "along the same speed" is Yvette Modica, he said.

Those top four are about equal, according to Perkins, but he doesn't know yet how he will place them. As for the rest of the team, he will have to look over them some more to see how much they have improved since last season.

Greene Central
First-year Greene Central coach Steve Bryant has had a problem getting girls out for the tennis team and the Ewes are coming off of a winless season.

Of the eight players out for the team, four should be "real good and help us out," Bryant said.

Cathy Shackelford is the number one player. "She played some last year, but practiced a lot and showed me that she can play well," Bryant said.

Number two is Denise Scott. She started playing last summer and "has a lot of physical ability, but needs work on her form," according to Bryant.

Crystal Pittman, who is in the number three position, is "going to be a pretty good player, too."

Bryant is not sure how the team will shape up after those first spots, but there is no place for the Ewes to go but up after last season.

Art Center Benefactor Still Active As He Approaches Age 90

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

On November 6 he will be 90 years old. "And I'm slowing down a little, but not much," Grover C. Maxwell, Sr. asserts in a voice far younger than his years.

A North Carolina native, Maxwell is one of the brothers who founded the Maxwell Furniture Company and in his lifetime nurtured its growth into a widespread chain.

"I just had a number of my men attend a management school," he mentioned, "but you know in my time we just got out and did the work and didn't know anything about management schools. It's all different now."

Maxwell, his wife, and his grandson, Owen Maxwell were briefly in Greenville Thursday afternoon to visit another of Owen's grandmother, Mrs. Ione Marshburn. (Her daughter is married to Grover C. Maxwell, Jr.). The Maxwells also took time to visit the Art Center despite the downpour of rain.

"It's the first time I've visited the Art Center in several years," he stated, "and I'm pleased with the work that has been done to the building."

Maxwell and one of his late brothers, Jeff Maxwell, have been generous contributors to an art acquisition fund established by their late sister, Mrs. Rachel Maxwell Moore of Greenville. The fund now stands at about $100,000 — the major portion donated by the two in memory of their sister.

Earlier in the day, he had left his birth place near Seven Springs, and had stopped at Goldsboro to visit a brother, Morgan Maxwell, who is hospitalized there. "From here I'm going on to New Bern to visit my other living brother, Harold Maxwell," he added.

Touching on the past, Maxwell said "It was in 1907 that I went to Augusta and opened my first store. Since 1968 I have maintained an office in downtown Augusta but last year I moved my private office to my house so I'd not have to fight the traffic."

"I still get my exercise working, but I'm working at my own pace now. The same with traveling. I've done a lot of it, Australia, New Zealand, tours in the south seas, several of them in the last eight years, but I don't intend to take any more long trips just now."

Maxwell seemed proud that his grandson Owen is planning to major in agronomy at the University of Georgia in Athens, where he is beginning his freshman year.

And young Maxwell was eager to know about the prevalence of Army worms and aflatoxin in the local corn crop.

As soon as the senior Maxwell had seen the bronze plaque of him and his brother Jeff that artist Bob Edmisten brought to the art center for his viewing, he indicated it was time to start the trip back to Georgia.

"That's the way he decides explaining that when he makes things," Mrs. Maxwell smiled, up his mind, he's ready to go.

Associate Director For Family Practice Center

ECU News Bureau
Dr. William O. Cornwell, 30, a family physician, recently joined the faculty of the East Carolina Family Practice Center at the ECU School of Medicine as Associate Director for the Center, according to Dr. James G. Jones, Director of the Center.
As Associate Director, Dr. Cornwell will help mold the course of the Family Practice Residency Program which has five men and one woman in training.
Dr. Cornwell came to the center from a tour of duty with the medical corp of the U. S. Air Force. He served in the Azores. After receiving his undergraduate degree from the University of Georgia in 1969, Dr. Cornwell attended the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta where he received his MD in 1972.
He did his family practice residency at the medical center in Columbus, Ga., which is affiliated with the Emory University School of Medicine. During his last year at the center, he served as Co-Chief Resident.
Dr. Cornwell is a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice and the National Board of Medical Examiners. He is also a fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians.
He feels the whole thrust of medicine is changing from fragmented care to on-going, comprehensive preventive care, and that family practice is the important link in the process of change.
While there are similarities to the "old country doctor," the modern family practitioner is not the same as his predecessor, Dr. Cornwell explained.
"We're getting away from episodic, crisis-oriented medicine. We're trying to do this in the concept of treating the patient as a human being and meeting the needs of the family," he said.

Hundreds Of Responses

Gov. Jim Hunt says that hundreds of "North Carolina Tomorrow" surveys are coming in each day and that he's "very encouraged by the response."
The survey results are to be used by the State Goals and Policy Board to advise the Governor on legislative programs for the 1979 General Assembly and on spending priorities for the last two years of his term.
A copy of the survey was published in the Aug. 29 edition of The Daily Reflector.
According to a list from the Governor's Office the Pitt and Greene County School Districts have approved distribution of the survey among students to take home to their parents.

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's chronic case of money-supply worries flared up again this past week, putting the stock market back on the sick list.

In the first few days of September, the market had put together a slow but steady up-change composite index dropped .69 to index was the American Stock Exchange market value index was down .52 at 118.34.

Big Board volume averaged 17.65 million shares a day, against 17.40 million the week before.

Credit experts frequently warn against trying to draw sweeping conclusions from the weekly data which the Fed issues each Thursday afternoon at the NYSE close.

CHECKING BY BRAILLE — A Winston-Salem bank has developed checking accounts for blind people that allow them to write checks and balance their accounts themselves. At top, customer reads bank-supplied braille balance sheet. At bottom, special equipment helps the customer write the check in braille. (AP Laserphoto)

But a good many traders still watch the figures closely for possible clues to the future course of the Fed's credit policy and interest rates.

This summer the Fed, in its efforts to curb inflationary pressures, responded to a surge in the money supply with moves designed to encourage short term interest rates to rise. Hopes had been spreading of late that monetary growth would slow, allowing the Fed to follow a less restrictive approach.

But those hopes suffered a setback this past week. And investors seemed unmoved by assurances from a number of economic observers that no sharp rise in interest rates was likely.

"The thrust is upward but the movement will be gradual," Elmore C. Patterson, chairman of New York's J.P. Morgan & Co., said Friday.

Similarly, Ben E. Laden, chief economist at the Baltimore-based investment management firm of T. Rowe Price Associates, asserted recently: "We believe that both short-and long-term interest rates will rise, but only modestly, over the next 18 months as the business cycle matures."

The market's stubborn gloominess this year has been a source of frustration for politicians, bankers and others who want—and feel they deserve—better treatment from investors.

Members of President Carter's administration have grumbled more than once about the market's "irrational" behavior.

Economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York characterized the current value being placed on stock prices as "anything for which there is a precedent in the postwar period."

...gravestones tell the tragedy of the Pettigrew family...

Pettigrew, A State Park With Many Attractions

Less than two hours by car from Greenville there's a public place that has just about everything to lure a visitor, whatever he may be seeking in an easy-to-reach retreat away from the growing metropolitan bustle of our town.

Pettigrew State Park, on the shores of Lake Phelps in easternmost Washington County offers history, outdoor activities, and beauty in a quiet rural setting, enhanced at this time of year by an ambience of early autumn's golden light and adult choruses of summer trained crickets.

The first hint of the sense of majesty that pervades the park area are the stately rows of cypresses that line the road to Somerset Place, a mid-19th century plantation house that was once the social and business center of the area. These now huge native trees were planted by slave labor well over a century ago along a canal that once served as the life-line of commerce for farm produce, primarily rice, grown on the plantation lands.

Somerset Place, the gracious home built about 1830 by Josiah Collins, III, was acquired several years ago by the state and furnished, using both original pieces and authentic items of the period. Today, it is a treasure house of the uncluttered, but elegant taste exhibited by the Collins family.

The spacious house is complemented by a cluster of original buildings, including the smaller Colony House, built for family living until the larger house could be completed. The original kitchen, storage houses and utility houses, all simply designed wooden buildings with steep roofs covered with split shingles, are fine examples of farm architecture.

The extensive grounds around Somerset have a small formal English-style boxwood garden, fig, apple and pear trees, and a grape arbor now laden with ripening bronze scuppernon grapes. Beautiful large cypresses, soaring oaks and sycamores, pecan trees, a squat glossy-leaved magnolia and a fragrant line of indigenous myrtle trees provide shade and the feeling of grandeur that only fine old trees can give to a home site.

The grouping of trees combined with open meadow-like areas enclosed by white picket or plank fences invite strollers and exuberant children alike to discover a corners where autumn wildflowers are half-hidden like stars of gold and amethyst among the green. Happily, Pettigrew is that rare place where the spirit is not dampened by "do not" signs.

Outdoor Activities
For those who are tempted to stay on, several wooded campsites area available, all served by an excellent, clean, modern bathroom facility.

The picnic site, adjacent to the road that leads to the boat launching ramp, has sufficient sturdy tables and grills to serve several dozen picnickers. These are placed beneath the spreading boughs of old cypresses and sycamores. Parents can relax while watching children play in the open game field across a road from the picnic area.

Fishing at Lake Phelps has been good in recent weeks. A spokesman noted that in 1971 the state stocked the shallow lake with striped bass and that catches of up to 13 pounds have been made. A variety of perch are also part of the fishing challenge offered on this five mile wide lake. The convenience of fishermen has been fully considered in establishing park rules. The access to the boat launch is open early and late.

The Pettigrew Cemetery
Not far from Somerset Place, a small cemetery is the burial site for members of the Pettigrew family, the early settlers who gave this area its name.

Located in the corner of a wood, surrounded by fields of corn and soybeans, the cemetery contains the gravesites of three generations of Pettigrews.

The inscribed stones tell a family history of tragedy — a tragedy so typical of early American years before the advent of modern medical care. One of the first generation, John Pettigrew "died in his 21st year of age," and the dim words note he was "loved and respected by all who knew him."

Another row of grave stones tell the story of Ebenezer and Ann Blount Pettigrew. Of their six children, five boys and one girl, three died very early. A fourth drowned at sea when he was 11, ironically on a sea voyage from New York to Mobile "for his health." The daughter reached maturity and married a minister, but died in her early 30s. The one son to survive childhood, James Johnson Pettigrew, achieved the rank of brigadier general in the Confederate Army but was fatally wounded in action in 1863 while still in his thirties.

Visitors who may wish to visit the Pettigrew Cemetery should seek directions from someone at the visitor's center at Somerset House.

The Pettigrew Area

The sense of sadness instilled by a visit to the Pettigrew Cemetery, fortunately, is quickly dispelled by the work-day rural charm of the Pettigrew area.

In these autumn days, strong sun bronzed farmers and their sons are busy harvesting broad fields of corn. Soon, they will be harvesting soy beans, and the fall crop of cucumbers now beginning to come to fruit in the fields.

The nearby village of Cherry, and the larger one of Creswell are worthy of a few minutes time to visit. Creswell, particularly, has several fine homes and two or three interesting old stores (now closed) with decorative woodwork of the type widely used in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

How To Get There

From Greenville, take U.S. 264 to Washington and continue on 264 toward Belhaven for seven miles, where you take N.C. 32 to Plymouth. At Plymouth, take U.S. 64 to Roper, and from there, the paved back road for 12 miles to just south of Cherry, and turn right for Pettigrew. Distance is 79 miles. An alternate route is to continue on U.S. 64 past Roper to Creswell, and take the Pettigrew Road there, for a distance of 85 miles.

Details On Facilities

Except for campsites, all facilities for the public at Pettigrew State Park are free. Campsites are $3.50 per night per family (50 cents extra for uncaged pet), and each site includes trash can, picnic table, grill and access to modern bath house with hot and cold water and showers. Reservations can be made in advance if stay is to be seven or more days, otherwise first come, first served basis. Late in day arrivals pay the next day.

Gate remains open for boat ramp access to permit early and late fishing. No charge. Game field and picnic area with multiple table sites, no charge, first-come, first-served basis.

Somerset House open for viewing seven days weekly except for official state holidays, 9 to 5 Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 5 Sunday. No admission fee.

Through September, general hours for game, picnic and campsites are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Beginning October 1 hours are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

For more details, call 797-4475 between 9 and 5.

Couple Weds In Raleigh Ceremony On Saturday

RALEIGH — The North Street Baptist Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Pamela Jane Beaver and Benjamin Dixon Forrest III.

The Rev. Michael Lee of In-gold performed the double ring ceremony at three o'clock. A program of organ music was presented by Don Mason of Raleigh. Mrs. Sharon Alvarez sang "The Wedding Song." Cindy Beaver, Mrs. Alvarez, David and Tim Beaver sang "The Story of Ruth."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McCoy E. Beaver of Raleigh, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a gown of ivory organza fashioned with a bodice and yoke of ivory Venise lace with a high neckline. The sleeves of silkened organza extended into points at the wrists. The full A-line skirt, with a full flounced hemline trimmed with Venise lace, fell into a chapel train.

Her matching veil of silk illusion was attached to a headpiece of Venise lace. Her cascade bouquet consisted of yellow sweetheart roses combined with white miniature carnations and fuji mums.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ernestine Forest of Greenville, and the late Mr. Benjamin D. Forrest Jr.

The bride attended Hard-barger Business College, Raleigh, and is a medical secretary. The bridegroom is a graduate of N. C. State University, Raleigh, and is an agriculture teacher at Washington High School, Washington.

The honor attendant was Miss Sue McQueen of Raleigh. She wore a spice polyester knit dress featuring a cape collar accented with white Venise lace. The flowing skirt fell from a shirred cummerbund. She carried a nosegay of mixed fall flowers.

Bridesmaids included Mrs. Carolyn Beaver and Mrs. Cindy Beaver, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Kathy Lanning, cousin of the bride, and Miss Jane Allen, all of Raleigh. Mrs. Lou Tina Cannon of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joy Wood of Goldsboro. They were dressed like the honor attendant.

Linwood Clark of Greenville was best man and ushers included David F. Beaver and Timothy M. Beaver of Raleigh, brothers of the bride, Sam Cannon of Ayden, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Lee Mills and Frank Tripp, both of Greenville, and Larry Underwood of Durham.

The mother of the bride wore a blue chiffon floor length gown designed with a shirred cummerbund and flowing sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a floor length gown of knit and chiffon with a fitted bodice, high neck and mandarin collar and matching lace yoke edged with a chiffon capelet. Following a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bridal table featured a center arrangement of fall flowers flanked with silver candelabra. Mrs. J. M. Perkins cut the three-tiered wedding cake and Mrs. B. J. Spence poured punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Horne welcomed guests and Ms. Debi Collins presided at the bride's book.

Bradham-Brinson Vows Spoken

GREENSBORO — Kathy Lane Brinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lebb Daniel Brinson of Greensboro, and Julian Terrell Bradham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian F. Bradham of Greensboro, were united in marriage Saturday at 3:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Calvin L. Capps in the Southside Baptist Church, Greensboro. A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Walter Anderson of Greensboro, organist, Chip Holden of Greensboro, pianist, and Miss Kathy Garrett of Belevs Creek, vocalist. Miss Garrett sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Follow Me," "That's The Way" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church Chancel background was decorated with a 15-branch candelabra with a basket of white gladioli, yellow mums, white daisies, peaches n' cream carnations and greenery. Spiral candelabra and baskets of flowers were used on each side. The couple knelt on a white satin kneeling bench and family pews were marked with satin bows and greenery. A candle service was used.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza. The gown was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline and bands of Venice lace. Vertical lace bands trimmed the sheer fitted sleeves and front skirt. Lace bands bordered the skirt and attached chapel train.

Her headpiece was covered with Venice lace and was attached to a silk illusion fingertip veil. The bride carried a nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Miss Kathy McAmis of Greensboro was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Clifton Moss and Mrs. Donnie Mazingo of Greenville, cousins of the bride, Miss Judy Morgan and Miss Dawn Tucker, both of Greensboro, and Miss Kathy Garrett of Belevs Creek.

The matching sheer jacket had long sleeves and a cinched waist forming a ruffle at the bottom of the jacket. They each wore a spray of yellow daisies and baby's breath in their hair and they carried a nosegay of peaches n' cream carnations, yellow daisies, baby's breath and white miniature carnations with white and yellow satin streamers.

The junior bridesmaid was Rhonda Short of Greer, S. C., cousin of the bride, and Melissa Marlowe of Greensboro was the flower girl. Their gowns were of the same material as the bridesmaids styled with an empire waistline and sheer billow sleeves. They wore baby's breath and daisies in their hair. The flower girl carried a white basket filled with daisies with white and yellow satin streamers.

I think I'm safe in saying that I have devoted the last 15 years of my life to jeans.

I've shrunk 'em, ravled 'em, patched 'em, bleached 'em, softened 'em, aged 'em, and pounded the wrinkles into submission. Cooped up in a utility room with nothing but jeans for that long can make you strange.

"If you ask me," I said to my husband, "jeans have gotten out of hand. They're all anybody wears anymore."

"What's the matter with that?"

"I read the other day where a bride went through her entire ceremony with her fly open."

"You exaggerate."

"I do not exaggerate. I went with your daughter the other day to one of those places with wall-to-wall, ceiling-to-floor jeans. I was the only one in the entire store with a skirt. I looked like a chair. Someone tried to put a wad of bubble gum on my knee."

"Why are you buying more jeans?" I asked her. "For once, why don't you buy a nice wrap-around skirt and a T-shirt with a little sweater knotted around your neck like Mario Thomas? Aren't you sick and tired of sounding like you're trying to start a fire without matches everytime you walk across the floor? If you don't want to consider me, think of your Grandmother who asked me just the other day if we couldn't chip in and buy you a pair of legs."

"Look Mom," said our daughter, "I'm an individual person. When I dress I want to be unique. Don't you understand? I want to be me."

"She said this surrounded by 25,000 pairs of jeans all alike. I'm worried," I said to my husband. "If jeans get any tighter...do you know there's a place in New York where you actually lie down on a car bed under a mirrored ceiling and three salespeople zip you into your jeans? According to them your eyes should bulge when you put them on."

"The fat has to go someplace," he said logically.

"You haven't heard the worst of it. Our daughter came out of the fitting room, flung her jeans at me and said, 'Mom, you'll have to shrink 'em two inches in the waistband, three inches in the hips and four inches off each leg. Then, rip out the pocket, take out the hems and fray the legs so they'll drag on the ground, wash them 15 times just to soften 'em up and bleach them for 15 minutes in the seat.'"

"Why are you buying them?" I asked tiredly.

"Because," she said. "They're perfect!"

On The Young Side

By Sharon Connolly

Now that the rush of the first week of school is over, Rose High students are once again becoming involved in the many clubs throughout the school.

The Art Club is one of two clubs that has changed its name this year. It is now known as the Arts Club. The club has expanded to include not only those interested in art, but those interested in music and drama as well.

During the first meeting held Wednesday night, members tentatively made future plans. Among these are to hold a film festival, to decorate the school during the visitation of the reaccreditation committee and to establish a Rose High Follies (talent show). A special committee was appointed to work on keeping the showcases in the main hall decorated attractively.

In addition to the two current advisors, Billy Stinson and Ron Williams, there is now a new advisor, Carol Bowman, teacher of speech, drama and english.

The new Arts Club officers include Clyde Owens as president, Howard Tucker, vice president, and Laura Lauffer, secretary-treasurer.

For those who wish to join a club is challenging, there is the Chess Club. Beginners and experienced players alike are urged to attend the meetings if interested. Later positions on the team will be earned while tournaments will be the highlight of the year along with a chance for the state championship. During this school year Stuart Long, president, will be assisted by Vice President Tommy Chenier.

Under the presidency of Suzanne McGee, the French Club is open to all students who wish to enhance their knowledge of the French language and culture if they are presently taking a French class or have taken one in the past. Many of the meetings will include sampling French cuisine and learning French games.

Serving as secretary-treasurer will be Lark Shea while a vice president will be elected at a later date. The club will operate under the supervision of Mrs. Bernadette Morris.

The Health Horizon Club, formerly known as the Health Careers Club, wishes to invite everyone interested in volunteer work or in exploring health fields found in the community to attend their first meeting Monday night, Sept. 12. Those interested in the candy stripping program will also be able to find out more information at this time.

With emphasis on community service, the club is closely associated with Volunteer Greenville and often works with programs such as the Special Olympics, the Hearth Fund, trainable children, and special education students.

This year's officers have been elected, including, Mary Katherine Hanifer, president, Cindy Browning, vice president, Deena Stocks, secretary, and Kathy Murphy, treasurer. The advisor of this club is Mrs. Virginia Read.

The Math Club, contrary to the belief of many, is not a club only for those advanced in math. It is open to all who enjoy and wish to learn more on the lighter side of this subject.

Math games, puzzles, guest speakers, visits to the computer centers at Pitt Technical Institute and East Carolina University, along with devising programs for the computers are just a few of the programs that the club members take part in.

The Math Club advisor is Mrs. Sandra Heath. Acting as president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and program chairman, respectively, are Paige Levey, Curtis Ebbs, Debbie Girdharry and Jeen Kim.

New officers were elected during the organizational meeting of the Wildlife Club held Wednesday night. The presiding President is Lee Hardee with Jesse Baker, vice president and Ronnie Smith, secretary-

History Repeats Itself In Jewelry

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of centuries after primitive man wore tusks, antlers and animal bones as status symbols to prove what great hunters they were, fashion has come full circle, reports the Jewelry Industry Council.

Bone jewelry is back — not, of course, in its crude form as discovered by archeologists in drawings on rock walls in excavations of the Paleolithic Era.

Today, says the council, bone jewelry worn by modern women has been refined to bone china. Handsome neckplates, earrings, pendants and bracelets are making fashion news. The new jewelry, often hand painted, has colorful butterfly, leaf or fruit designs.

Men, who had not shown much interest for the past several centuries in ornamental jewelry, are now very jewelry-conscious, the organization says. Men may not be wearing bone china jewelry, but body jewelry such as pendants, and bracelets and chains are now popular.

Diamonds, too, are enjoying a resurgence in popularity, seen in handsome daytime rings and on elegant dress watches.

Diamonds, the council notes, were around long before the Cave Man, with every one now in existence and still to be mined created when the earth began to cool down from its molten state.

Dear Abby

Teen Drivers: A Ghostly Warning

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last summer you wrote something that virtually saved my life—and maybe the lives of many others. I had just gotten my driver's license and that column really opened my eyes. I think about it every time I turn on the ignition in my car.

I am enclosing it. Please run it again. And run it every year for those kids who may have missed it.
LOVES LIFE AT 18

DEAR LOVES: Seldom has a column made such an impact as the one to which you refer. I shall repeat it with pleasure:

PLEASE GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded, "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled, I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17, I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please...somebody...wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Prof Says U.S. Could Learn From Japanese

By BARRY SHLACHTER
TOKYO (AP) — In the past 123 years the United States has introduced Japan to democracy, railroads, baseball and sliced bread.

Now a Harvard professor says it's time for Americans to learn a thing or two from the Japanese.

Japan has solved — or is in the process of solving — critical problems that the United States is now only beginning to face, sociologist Ezra F. Vogel said in a recent news conference.

In combating pollution and crime, conserving energy, keeping the work force loyal and on the job, and in long-range economic planning, the Japanese have been extremely successful, he told reporters.

"Here's a country working very well and doing things America is not able to do," Vogel said. The United States "is in more serious difficulty than people are aware (and) the Japanese are doing things more effectively."

Japan, which now boasts the world's third largest gross national product, has had to cope with resource shortages since the very beginning of its industrial development 100 years ago.

The United States, beginning to experience these problems for the first time, should try tackling them by learning from Japan — and perhaps by copying its methods, he suggested.

Vogel, 47-year-old chairman of Harvard's Council on East Asian Studies, said Japanese junior high students score better than Americans their age on science and math exams and have a higher literacy rate, despite having to master 1,850 Chinese characters.

One reason for this, he said, is Japan's highly centralized education system which sets curriculum guidelines and allocates equal budgets to schools.

ban schools receive twice the funds of inner city, ghetto schools," said Vogel. "It's not just an issue of blacks and whites." A centralized police force is part of the reason behind Japan's low crime rate, he said.

"We Make It White — You Make It Bright!"

Jobs For Teens In Iowa's Corn

TAMA COUNTY, Iowa (AP) — As sure as there's a corn crop in Iowa, thousands of the state's teen-agers have summer jobs.

For about three weeks, young people take to the corn fields, pulling the tassels off corn plants to insure cross-pollination, which is necessary to improve hybrid seed corn.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., one of several seed companies in the state, employs about 10,000 persons to detassel 39,000 acres of seed corn in Iowa.

"We use mechanical equipment only in emergencies," said Dennis Strayer, manager of a Pioneer plant in Toledo, Iowa. "We feel that qualitywise we're doing a better job detasseling by hand."

All-boy and all-girl crews — never mixed — work six to eight hours a day, seven days a week when the corn starts to tassel. The crews must go over a field three or four times to make sure all of the "seed parent" or "female" plants are detasseled.

That way, pollen from the "male" plant fertilizes the female plant.

"It's really pretty easy work," said Carol Landis, 15, of Waterloo. "It gets really boring, but it's about the best way to earn money in the summer. We get $2.30 an hour."

"It's not so bad if there are people you know on your machine, 'cause you can sing and talk."

Detasseling machines are strange contraptions with platforms to carry 10 people.

"You work no matter what the weather," said Kathy Sommerfelt, 15, also of Waterloo. "On rainy days, you wear raincoats — actually they look more like big garbage bags with holes for your arms and head."

In addition to rain, detassellers have to put up with variations in temperatures.

"You start out in the morning with pants on and shorts underneath and halter tops with shirts," said Miss Sommerfelt. "Then you strip as the day gets warmer."

The detasseling crews, with about 45 persons on each crew, are segregated by sex.

"That way we avoid any trouble and don't waste time," said Strayer.

BACHELOR'S APARTMENT ASSET TO PLAN

SPLIT ENTRY HOME OFFERS COMPLETE MAIN LEVEL

By Jerry Bishop

Self-contained and ready for family living, the main level of this split entry home is augmented by a well-designed bachelorette's apartment on the lower level.

The Fallingbush, a three bedroom plan, also features a lavish master bedroom with adjoining terrace, a large eat-in kitchen, and a lower level family room with half bath. Shake shingles and brick layer the exterior of this attractive home. Inside, the design is geared to dual functions as family home and separate apartment.

Double doors open to the split entry, and, up a few steps, a gracious foyer precludes the main level. Besides its role in channeling traffic, the foyer also provides an area for shedding and hanging coats and allows direct access to living room at left and terrace at right.

The living room extends 22 feet to include a cozy woodburning fireplace and joins a formal dining room at rear. Bordering the two rooms is a kitchen, large, functional, and well-supplied with laundry and dining space.

A hallway serves to separate activity areas from the sleeping wing, where three sizable bedrooms are grouped around two full baths. Indulged with walk-in closet and compartmented bath, the master bedroom enjoys sliding glass doors to the 25-ft terrace, roofed for use even during light summer rains.

Downstairs, a huge family room is warmed by a fireplace, and closet space and half bath are nearby.

The bachelorette's apartment, calls for full bath, cooking facilities, and closets. A double garage is provided.

Q. — I have been doing a lot of reading about kitchens lately because we are thinking of having our kitchen remodeled in about six months. Several times I have come across the expression "work triangle" to indicate an ideal layout from the standpoint of efficiency. While I have a vague idea of what this meant, I am not quite sure about the details. Can you help me?

A. — A work triangle refers to a step-saving arrangement which places a major appliance at each point of the triangle. Under an ideal setup, the three points of the triangle would be equal distances apart, but it is not always possible to achieve because of differences in the shapes of kitchens. At one point of the triangle pattern should be the refrigerator, at one the sink and the remaining one the stove. Usually, you move from the refrigerator to the sink to the stove, so the sink center should be between the two others, with the whole idea to cut down backtracking. An essential element of a good work triangle is that it is one through which no traffic passes.

Q. — Our house has very old wooden gutters that are generally in good shape. But there is one wood gutter where the wood has rotted a bit. How can this be repaired without cutting out the section and replacing it, which might be a difficult job?

A. — Most hardware stores and building supply dealers sell patching kits for that purpose. Some consist of pieces of fiber glass with instructions on how to apply and secure a patch. Or you can place a heavy piece of canvas or aluminum foil over the leaky area, setting it in roofing cement and then holding down the edges with the same cement.

Q. — I would like to make a small pool for our backyard garden. I intend to make it of concrete. Would it be practical to use a drain pipe at the bottom so the water can be emptied out occasionally?

A. — Yes, but be sure it leads to a point lower than the bottom of the pool where the drainage is good.

Q. — I know that spar varnish can be used outdoors, but is it good for furniture that is kept outside all year round in both hot and cold weather? Also, how did it get its name?

A. — The traditional spar

Of the 8,000 deaths by drowning in 1975, about 3,000 were related to swimming or playing in the water. The remaining 5,000 were non-swimming fatalities.

varnish got its name because it was, and still is, used on the spars that supported the rigging on ships. It is sometimes called marine varnish. While it is very durable, it is not meant for furniture, inside or out.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743.)

Do-It-Yourself Solar Heating

By LEE MITGANG
 Associated Press Writer

Most Americans don't realize it, but just by choosing the right color paint, using sensible weatherproofing and having windows facing in the right direction, an energy-wasting house can be turned into a more economical solar home.

Many home buyers and homeowners have shied away from the idea of using solar energy to heat their homes. They don't see much sense in building some ugly glass contraption on their roofs, at a cost of $5,000, $10,000 or more, and hoping the sun shines. But a new book, "The Solar Home Book" by architect and solar expert Bruce Anderson, puts a different light on how to put sun to work in the home, in language any do-it-yourselfer can understand.

A house itself "is a solar collector, or at least should be designed on the principle of one," says Anderson.

The book describes several quick, easy and relatively cheap ways persons who already own their home can "retrofit" for partial solar heating. It wouldn't mean throwing out the oil, gas or electric heating and a few simple projects can fill 10 to 50 per cent of a home's heating needs.

One project is the so-called "window box." A well-insulated wooden box with a glazed top and black plywood bottom is leaned against the frame of a southern-facing window. Cold air from inside the house enters the box, is warmed by the black surface, which has been heated by the sun entering the glazed surface. The warm air goes back into the house.

Depending on the size of the window box, Anderson says it can handle as much as 50 per cent of the heating load. The box is usually removed during the summer.

If there are few windows on the south side of the house, the book describes how the homeowner can make a "wall collector." A portion of the southern wall is covered with glass to collect solar heat and holes are cut in the wall to allow cool air into the collector and warm air back into the house.

More costly in the short-run, but more interesting, is the idea of building an attached greenhouse to grow vegetables and heat a portion of the home.

At 1976 material prices, Anderson calculates that a 1,000-square-foot greenhouse would cost the do-it-yourselfer $571. If the homeowner then farmed the greenhouse intensively, the food savings and lower heating bills alone would more than pay for the building costs in just one year.

If he or she didn't farm it at all, "it would take about seven years for the greenhouse to pay for itself — even less if gas prices continue to spiral," says Anderson.

Again depending on the size of the greenhouse, the captured solar heat could carry 10 to 50 per cent of the home heating load.

And if a person is thinking of adding a new room on the south side of the home, why not solar heat it? "If you're clever, you can also supply heat for the rest of the house," says Anderson.

A good start in building the new room is a concrete floor in a dark color. The concrete will capture and hold plenty of solar heat if the windows allow direct sunlight.

The house itself, if built and planned properly, can do the job of heating while reducing energy bills. For instance, the most solar-efficient house is elongated along the east-west direction. And a rectangular house is preferable to a square.

The home builder should know which way the house should be facing based on what part of the country it is being built in. Taking into account prevailing winds and sun angles, a house in hot, humid Miami should be facing almost due south and slightly east. In hot, arid Phoenix, a house should point a bit more to the east, while homes in New York or Minneapolis would be oriented more southerly than Phoenix, but less so than Miami.

A house should be able to store solar heat even when the sun isn't shining.

"Houses built of heavy materials such as stone and concrete do this best," according to the book.

The house should also be built to trap heat and only let it escape slowly. The color can be important, especially if insulation is poor. The darker the color, the more heat from the sun is absorbed.

Intelligent use of shading solves some of the summer cooling problems of the solar-oriented dwelling. Building awnings and overhangs and trellises is one method, but there's nothing like trees planted in front of south-facing windows — whose bare branches allow sun in during the winter, and provide shade in the summer.

("The Solar Home Book" is published by Cheshire Books.)

Q. I have several sugar and red maple trees in my yard and am wondering what the predictions for fall foliage color is for this season. (G. L., Troy)

A. My fall foliage forecast crystal ball is still a little cloudy because the next five to six weeks of weather is not predictable. However, the hot dry summer weather has been favorable for the formation of the red pigments particularly. What is needed now is a good early September rain, then clear, crisp days and cool nights with temperatures below 45 degrees and yet above freezing. With these favorable conditions, we should have a colorful fall. (Bill Stanton, extension forestry specialist)

Q. My red delicious apple tree has an exceptionally good crop this year. Unfortunately, many of the apples have roset spots. What can I do? (R. V., Morganton)

A. Contact your county extension office and ask for a copy of the home fruit spray schedule published by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. Begin following the schedule next spring and you will be pleasantly surprised at the quality of your next apple crop. (Ronald Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. Watering shrubs with city water can be expensive. Any suggestions? (Mrs. W. E., Kannapolis)

A. Yes. Build a mound of soil three to four inches high about two feet outward from your shrubs. Let the water flood inside the mound and soak downward. Water thoroughly or don't water at all. By getting moisture to the tips of the roots you encourage the growth of a deep root system. A three to four inch laser of pine straw, leaf mold or similar mulch will help to conserve the moisture. (A. A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. Is it safe to use chlordane in my yard to kill insects? I have been told that this chemical might be outlawed, is this true? (E. K., Goldsboro)

A. The Environmental Protection Agency has suspended the use of Chlordane except for special uses. It is my understanding that chlordane manufactured and labeled before the suspension can still be legally used for purposes listed on the label. Chlordane manufactured after the suspension can only be used for such things as imported fire ants and Japanese beetle larvae in quarantined areas, which are spelled out on the label. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

HINSDALE, Ill. (AP) — Almost 10 per cent of the nation's electric power capability is now nuclear, according to the Nuclear News.

The magazine reports that six more nuclear units started operation in 1976, bringing the U.S. total of nuclear units in commercial operation to 59. Ten more units are scheduled for startup this year, while 80 others are in various stages of construction.

If You Now Rent . . .
Do you feel out of place in that rented house or apartment? Nice enough place to live but just doesn't feel like "home" — right?
Well, you may be closer to home ownership than you think. Home Savings is out to put a lot of people in their place. We've got the mortgage money right here at Home to finance your new place in life. Why wait?
Don't get unnecessarily caught up in the "delaying game". Right now may be the best time for you to buy.

Housing and land costs will continue to rise. So waiting until you can "afford" to buy can be false reasoning for putting off your goal of home ownership.
It never hurts to ask . . .
If you're a little apprehensive — try this: Pick a home on today's market that is the house you want or one that is comparable in size and style. Come by Home Savings and ask any one of our loan counselors to do a preliminary "work-up" on the costs involved, estimate monthly payments and educate you as to the various requirements.

We'll be happy to take the time and work with you. Knowledge of the process can eliminate any apprehension you may have.
You'll probably find that you're ready to be in your place. Home Savings is certainly ready to put you there.

Come to see us.

Fifty Statuettes To Be Awarded At 29th Annual Emmy Ceremonies

A BIG EVENT — the 1977 Emmy Awards — The television industry's highest accolade honoring television programming during the 1976-77 season will be awarded during this two-hour special program Sunday, Sept. 11 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV. Angie Dickinson and Robert Blake, who are among this year's nominees, are the hosts of this live colorcast from the Santa Monica (Calif.) Civic Auditorium.

Remember the year there was peace throughout the world? The year Michigan mopped up the Rose Bowl with USC, 49-0? The year Citation, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, won the Triple Crown?

The year was 1948. There were 16 television stations in the United States and 190,000 black-and-white TV sets in use. And it was the first year that the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences awarded Emmy statuettes for excellence in the medium. Only six were given and the two awards went to Shirley Dinsdale and her puppet, Judy Splinters, and Mike Stokely's "Pantomime Quiz."

Emmy has come a long way... This year more than 50 will be awarded when the "29th Annual Emmy Awards" ceremonies is presented Sunday, Sept. 11, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV. The star-studded event will be televised live and in color to hundreds of stations across the country from the Pasadena (Calif.) Convention Center.

Robert Blake and Angie Dickinson will share hosting duties. Blake won an Emmy Award as Best Actor in a Drama series in 1975 for his performance in the title role of "Baretta" and is one of the nominees in that same category this year. Ms. Dickinson, star of "Police Woman," is also an Emmy nominee this year in the Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series category.

Among the host of celebrities who will be presenters this year are: Carol Burnett; Jack Albertson; Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Lee Majors; Robert Young and Jane Wyatt; film maker Alfred Hitchcock; Alan Alda; Henry Winkler, Leslie Uggams; Gilda Radner; Don Rickles; Dick Van Dyke; Lynda Carter; Valerie Harper; Telly Savalas; Lou Gossett; Jaelyn Smith; Tim Conway and David Soul.

The "29th Annual Emmy Awards" will be streamlined and, compared to previous Emmy ceremonies, the program's pace will be accelerated, says Don Ohlmeyer, the five-time Emmy winner who is executive producer of the telecast.

Ohlmeyer described some of the innovations:

"Nominees in various categories will be announced by superimposing the names over film clips or, whenever possible, by voice-overs. Presenters will read only the name of the winner and then present the award."

"Where a nomination is the result of a cooperative effort we have urged that one spokesman be selected, so that, should they win, there will be one acceptance speech. This will increase the pace of the show and make it more interesting to the viewer."

Wants To Keep Feet On Ground

"As long as I'm free to get myself a cup of coffee, I won't ask someone else to do it. And, if I'm not busy and someone else on the set needs coffee, I'll get it for them."

That's a promise made by Victor French, who stars as Chief Roy Mobey on "Carter Country," premiering Thursday, Sept. 15, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on ABC-TV. He's making it clear to fellow workers' but — more importantly — he's making it to himself.

"When you get up there in series television and you become so recognizable that you can't do your own shopping in the supermarket, there is a big danger of believing your own publicity," he notes. "There is especially the danger of thinking you're as important as quite a few people tell you that you are."

Victor is determined not to let this happen to him.

"I have a gut feeling that 'Carter Country' is going to be a success, and I don't want to become the sort of person who lets success go to his head — the dressing rooms, the trailers, the coterie of friends surrounding him and telling him how great he is," he said. "You start believing all that and you lose touch with reality. I've seen it happen to others. I don't want it to happen to me."

French is somewhat anxious about the changes series' stardom and recognizability will bring. "Always before, I was able to go places like airports and watch other people and pick up

Victor French (top) stars as Police Chief Roy, Kene Holliday (center) as Curtis and Harvey Vernon (r) as Police Officer Jasper Clinton, star in a new comedy series, "Carter Country," premiering Thursday, Sept. 15 (9:30-10 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Peter Frampton, Cher To Host Music Awards

Three years ago a classical winged and haloed figure cradling a whimsical guitar and posed against a psychedelic background joined that exclusive company of coveted symbols that represent excellence and recognition by one's peers in show business — like the Oscar, the Emmy and the Tony.

This emblem, a circular medallion, made its first appearance at "The Rock Music Awards," and will again be presented to winners in various categories when "The Third Annual Rock Music Awards" airs Thursday, Sept. 15, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Peter Frampton — one of the world's top rock stars — and special guest star Cher will host the event which features some of the biggest names in popular music.

Past winners include Frampton, Fleetwood Mac, Led Zepplin, Joni Mitchell, The Eagles, Bob Dylan, Linda Ronstadt, Elton John, Diana Ross and Brian Wilson.

Frampton, 26, hit it big last year with his double album, "Frampton Comes Alive," which sold 15 million copies world-wide and was No. 1 on the charts for 17 consecutive weeks.

Cher achieved TV prominence with the original "Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour," which ran from 1971 through the '74 season. The following February, 1975 Cher began her own variety series and was later joined by her ex-husband, Sonny Bono, on a new "Sonny and Cher Show."

The late Elvis Presley has been nominated for the Rock Music Hall of Fame, and Stevie Wonder leads in the number of nominations with 10. Trailing Wonder is Fleetwood Mac with five nominations; and The Eagles and Boz Scaggs with four each.

Presley was nominated for the event's Hall of Fame along with Little Richard, The Rolling Stones, Buddy Holly and Bob Dylan. (The honor went to Chuck Berry in 1975 and The Beatles in 1976.)

Wonder received 10 nominations in the categories, Best Male Vocalist, Best Single, Best Album, Best R and B Singles, Best R and B Albums, Best Song Composer, Best Producer and Rock Personality of the Year.

Five of the nation's governors will be the guests on a special one-hour edition of "Meet the Press" colorcast live from Detroit at the close of the National Governors' Conference, Sunday, Sept. 11, on NBC-TV.

ACTORS DON COP UNIFORMS

Mike Connors, after sleuthing for eight years as TV's "Manix," and Martin Milner, seven years on "Adam-12," don the blue uniform of the street cop for starring roles in "Stigma," the second of the new two-hour "Police Story" dramas that will air on NBC-TV this season.

New Faces Added

Tom Fucello and David Reilly have joined the cast of ABC-TV's daytime dramatic series, "One Life to Live," in the roles of Paul Kendall and Richard Abbott, respectively.

Paul Kendall, played by Fucello, was presumed dead for two years. During the time, he was an undercover agent for the government, which declared him dead to protect him from retaliation by criminals. The honest and idealistic Kendall has returned to the fictitious town of Llanview to lay claim to his wife and son.

Richard Abbott, played by David Reilly, is a striving, aristocratic young reporter, who has recently come to Llanview to make it on his own at the local newspaper. The charming, aggressive and sometimes brash young man is the cousin of Viki Lord Riley.

Fucello, who was featured in an episode of "Family" and also had a role in the television pilot "Shaughnessey," gained exposure to daytime audiences through a running part on "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing."

His extensive stage background includes roles in the Broadway productions of "Butterflies Are Free," "Grin and Bare It" and "The Unknown Soldier and His Wife." His theatrical credits also include repertory, stock, and touring productions throughout the country. A student of Seton Hall University, the actor has studied voice and dance and received further training at the H.B. Studio.

Reilly, a native New Yorker, created the role of Tye in Tennessee William's Broadway play "Vieux Carre," before making his daytime drama debut on "One Life to Live."

NEW YORK ACTRESS PREFERS BURBANK — Jocelyn Somers, who portrays the physically abused wife Jean Barton on NBC-TV's "Days of Our Lives," (Monday-Friday 1:30-2:30 p.m.), says if she has to make a choice, "doing daytime drama from Burbank is preferable to doing similar shows from New York." Jocelyn has starred in many prime-time programs since entering theatricals as a child actress.

Actress Likes Burbank

"In Burbank, you can look at the mountains. That about sums up how I feel. It symbolizes everything that's good out here."

For actress Jocelyn Somers this means a lot. It's the differences all rolled into one between working in Burbank, or New York.

"There is something nice about getting out of the studio when you're there from 10 to 12 hours, even if you're out only a bit," said Jocelyn. In New York, when you do daytime dramas, you seldom leave the studio building. At NBC-TV in Burbank, the walk from the studio to the commissary enables you to see the mountains, the sky and even trees.

'The Deep': Movie Special On CBS

The making of the box-office hit "The Deep," from its birth as an underwater adventure story to its execution as a highly complex and technical production, is the subject of an hour-long special, "The Making of 'The Deep,'" to be broadcast Sunday, Sept. 11, at 8 p.m. on CBS-TV.

The special traces the film from its beginning in February 1976 when producer Peter Guber negotiated with author Peter Benchley for the right to film it, until November 1976 when the raw footage of the film was placed in the editor's hands. In between is the story of how Benchley's undersea adventure was brought to life as a motion picture.

"The Deep," starring Robert Shaw, Jacqueline Bisset, Nick Nolte, Eli Wallach and Lou Gossett, was released by Columbia Pictures in June 1977.

Don't Sound The Alarm

Cut-pile carpet, beautiful as it is, can cause alarm once it's laid. An effect we call "shading and highlighting" creates apparent tones of color distortions, and if you picked one color you might think you were given another.

But such is not the case. The whole phenomenon is caused by the effect of light as it skips across different levels of cut pile creating shading in one place and highlighting in another.

So, don't sound the alarm. Your carpet is healthy as ever!

Disney Encourages Young Film Writers

It's been said that it's tough to get a break in Hollywood, but young scriptwriter Sue Milburn didn't let that stop her. She went out and won herself a writing contest sponsored by Walt Disney Productions.

The 27-year-old native of Bridgetown, New Jersey, was the recipient of the 1970-71 Walt Disney Filmwriting Award, and as such, received a grand prize of $2,500 as well as 10 weeks employment at Disney Studios.

Miss Milburn won the award, the money, and a grant of an equal amount for her school on the merit of a script she wrote during the spring semester of her junior year at NYU that was titled, "The Mystery of Dracula's Castle."

In 1972 she was flown to Disney Studios in Burbank, Calif., where she revised the original script with the guidance of producer Bill Anderson. Later that year her teleplay went into production, and the mystery adventure will be rebroadcast Sunday, Sept. 11, from 7 to 9 p.m., on "The Wonderful World of Disney," on NBC-TV.

The film concerns two brothers who discover a gang of jewel thieves operating in a small California coastal community. Johnny Whitaker, Scott Kolden, Mariette Hartley and Clu Gulager are starred. Johny plays a Dracula movie buff who sets out to make his own horror movie in 8-millimeter.

"I've been a horror fan myself for years," confided Miss Milburn, as she reminisced recently on Disney's backlot. "I'd always had this passion to write something about Dracula — he's such a fun character."

"When I first heard about the Disney contest, I began writing a dog story. I junked that script when I decided it was too trite."

"Next thing I knew, this image of Dracula came to mind. I had also recently completed three Super-8 films on my own, so I tied the two ideas together and wrote 'The Mystery of Dracula's Castle.'"

"The script was easy to write because I had just completed a class on 'The History of Hammer Films.' Hammer revived the old vampire with movies like 'The Horror of Dracula,' 'Prince of Darkness' and 'Dracula Has Risen From the Grave.'"

During the completion of her teleplay, Sue sent two earlier scripts around Hollywood which got her an agent, the first step in being recognized as a writer.

Disney Studios continues to encourage young people to submit ideas, and Miss Milburn is living proof that while Hollywood may be tough to crack, nothing's impossible.

Bionic Powers

"The Six Million Dollar Man" enters its fourth full season with the series' most spectacular and chilling adventure, as Steve Austin pits his bionic powers against the hijackers of a nuclear submarine in "Sharks" a two-part episode premiering Sunday, Sept. 11, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Lee Majors stars as Col. Steve Austin. Also starring are Richard Anderson as Oscar Goldman and Martin E. Brooks as Ruby Wells. Guest starring are Pamela Hensley, Gregory Walcott, and William Sylvester, with Stephen Elliott as special guest star.

In the premiere episode, "Sharks" Part I, Steve Austin is beset by sharks, while descending to investigate a nuclear submarine abandoned due to an unexplained power failure. He manages to reach the submarine but is captured and taken to the underwater-cave headquarters of Morgan Grayland, former U.S. Navy submarine captain.

Hermione Baddeley Of 'Maude' Fame Gets Role As Kezia Horn

Hermione Baddeley, outspoken but loveable housekeeper until this season, has found temporary sanctuary with another loveable character — Kezia Horn.

Miss Baddeley, who has departed from her Mrs. Naugatuck role, is the guest star in "Castoffs," the premiere episode of "Little House on the Prairie," Monday, Sept. 12, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"This is quite a change from 'Maude,'" the red-headed character actress said with delight. "I like it because it's one of the most sincere roles...has a lot of humanity in it. It's quite beautiful. It's quite a change of pace with its sincere, poetic sentences."

In "Castoffs," Hermione plays Kezia Horn, an old wanderer who wants to settle in Walnut Grove, but meets with opposition from the townspeople. The role of Kezia is quite a departure from previous roles as Hermione explained:

"I've done every type of strange character but have never done one like this — a gypsy. I'd never met it before. This old girl is a gypsy but also a philosopher: someone who's lived quite an interesting life. She loves life and hadn't particularly reached for a sophisticated life, either. But having lived and observed, the poor townspeople don't think she's quite right.

"That sort of character is a change — it's nice to see some lovely old thing going along," she added with an endearing smile and a crook of her neck.

The role of Kezia, a rather eccentric old character whose refreshing personality is a delight to the children, also will rank as one of the milestone roles for Hermione but for a more personal reason. As a lover of animals, Hermione works with a cantankerous old mule that likes candy and has a crow sit atop her head.

"I've worked with cats, dogs, even snakes and lions, but never a crow," she remarked with eyes growing wide. "I got so fond of it (the crow), we hit it off well. And what about that boy (animal trainer Brian Renfrow) who trained that bird. It was a fine job he did."

From the raucous shouting that takes place on "Maude" every week, Hermione Baddeley has learned that on the prairie, things are different.

"'Little House' sends something lovely over," Hermione said with that endearing smile and crook of her neck.

A NEW STRANGE CHARACTER — Hermione Baddeley who has departed her Mrs. Naugatuck role on "Maude," will guest star as an old wanderer with a pet crow in the season premiere of "Little House on the Prairie" Monday, Sept. 12 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV. "I've done every type of strange character but never one like this," the veteran actress said.

Instinct Told Her When It Was Right

"Babe Didrikson Zaharias had a gifted instinct for knowing when something was right," says actress Susan Clark. "She knew it with her body in sports," she knew it in the way she handled the press, and she knew it with her husband, George Zaharias. Their marriage was truly a great romance."

Miss Clark who stars with Alex Karras in "Babe," which will be rebroadcast as the "CBS Late Movie" Monday, Sept. 12, at 11:30 p.m., on CBS-TV, is a Toronto-born actress who undertook three months of grueling training for her role as the exceptional woman athlete.

For two months before filming began, Miss Clark spent her early mornings running two miles at the UCLA track, followed by 45 minutes each of basketball, javelin throwing and running hurdles.

"To do Babe justice in the period when she was earning good money on the entertainment circuit, I took voice lessons in the evenings, and studied with a dialectician to capture Babe's soft Texas accent," Miss Clark continues.

"Acting is like athletics, I believe, in that no matter how much you work you have to do to prepare, you're driven by the dream of doing your best — and more."

Through her research into the life of Babe Zaharias, she found that the romance existing between Babe and her husband, George was another facet of her remarkable story.

Goodbye, Sue Ann—Hello, Joyce Whitman

For Sue Ann Nivens fans all across the country, do not despair. She's not really gone. Although "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" has flown to that great land of syndication reruns in the sky, your old favorite, Sue Ann, is still around. Betty White's new character name in "The Betty White Show," bowing Monday, Sept. 12, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS-TV, is Joyce Whitman, and inside Joyce's character fighting to get out (and she does, quite often) is — you guessed it — Sue Ann.

It was a split decision for Miss White. After all, Sue Ann had won her two Emmy Awards and millions of new fans and, as she says, "I'd really grown quite fond of her, and hated to think of driving the wooden stake through her heart.

"On the other hand," Miss White continues, "we all (producers, writers, cast, for her new series) agreed that Sue Ann just wouldn't work as the lead character for a series. She was great as a supporting character, but it was really the relationship between Sue Ann and Mary that made it work."

While Joyce Whitman may not be quite as salty as Sue Ann, she certainly knows her way around a one-liner, and audiences won't have to wait too long before Joyce comes up with a zinger that is pure Sue Ann Nivens.

Basketball superstar Kareem Abdul Jabbar will play a nine-foot mineral prospector from another world in the "Giant" episode of NBC-TV's "Man From Atlantis."

Controversial Series Premieres In Wake Of Religious Criticism

Richard Mulligan, Cathryn Damon, Robert Guillaume, Katherine Helmond and Robert Mandan (from l to r), star in the new comedy series "Soap," premiering on Tuesday, Sept. 13 (9:30 to 10 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

ABC-TV's highly controversial new series, "Soap," that has been openly and strongly criticized by numerous religious groups and rival networks will premiere Tuesday, Sept. 13, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on ABC-TV. "Soap" follows the lives of two sisters, Jessica Tate and Mary Campbell, whose families have more than their share of problems and secrets.

In the first episode viewers meet members of the wealthy Tate family. Chester Tate, the father, is a pompous businessman with a roving eye. His wife, Jessica, is an eternal optimist and for her, life would be perfect if it were only set to music. Jessica and Chester are the parents of three children: two daughters, Corinne and Eunice, and a son, Billy.

The girls have decidedly different personalities. Corinne is vivacious while her sister, Eunice, is more of a traditionalist and quite conservative. Billy 14, is a bright teenager struggling through the problems of adolescence. Living with the Tates is Jessica's father, the Major, who still is fighting World War II. Working for the family is their servant, Benson, who has been with his employers for a number of years, and he knows everything about everyone.

Residing on the opposite side of town, are the Campbells: Mary, Jessica's sister, Burt, her husband, and sons, Jodie and Danny. Mary's life is a little more organized than Jessica's. However, life hasn't been too good to Mary, a woman determined to overcome her many adversities. Her husband, Burt, is a hard-working man who loves Mary very much. Although he does not make as much money as Chester Tate and will never be "upper crust," the Campbells, too, have their share of secrets and problems. Burt's biggest concert is accepting his stepsons, Jodie and Danny. Burt finds it hard to accept Jodie's special life style, and the fact that Danny is involved with the mob.

'Sha Na Na' Dooby Wah

Think back over the glorious history of rock and roll. Remember Woodstock? Sha Na Na was there. Remember the Fillmores, East and West? Sha Na Na was there. Go further into the past...Remember Little Richard, Jerry Lee Lewis, Elvis? It's their music Sha Na Na brings to life.

Every Tuesday, Sha Na Na, a rousing group of ten rock 'n' rollers who got lost in the 1950's and never found their way out, will come to life on Channel 12 WCTI, with their own show aptly titled, "Sha Na Na." It's a wry whimsical look into an era gone by. The show will feature these "kids of the street" in that setting, literally.

Each week, Bowser, Jocko, Dirty Dan, Johnny, Chico, Denny, Donny, Lennie, Tony and Screamin' Scott will face up to teenage travails in a neighborhood setting that could be in any city in which we all grew up. They'll do it with top notch celebrity guest stars like Frank Gorshin, Bernadette Peters, Carol Lawrence, Milton Berle, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Dr. Joyce Brothers, Phyllis Diller, Teresa Brewer, Jim Stafford, Kristy McNichol, Ethel Merman, the Lennon Sisters, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Adrienne Barbeau, Della Reese, Rosie Grier and Charles Nelson Reilly.

Avery Schreiber, who's known as "The Cruncher" for Dorita corn chips, accentuates the comedic proceedings with regular appearances as the local taxicab driver offering rapid-fire one-liners to keep the boys loose. Five other semi-regular guests appear on the show.

Sha Na Na was born in 1969 on the campus of Columbia University in New York City. At first amateur musicians who liked oldies, a few weeks later they were playing the Electric Circus, the mecca of rock in the East Village. Then it was on to the Fillmore, and before long, Woodstock. It was the big break for Sha Na Na.

The group was sprung on the national scene as a result of the performance itself and the film which followed. There simply was nothing else round to match the greasy good looks and zany antics of these nostalgia merchants.

Sha Na Na was a pioneer in what has become known as "rock theatrics." They led the way for today's David Bowies and Alice Coopers.

With its marvelous array of guest stars, semi-regulars and innovative performances, Sha Na Na is a totally unique thirty minutes of television entertainment, and has added another page to the glorious history of rock 'n' roll.

A Talented Bundle Of Energy Stars In Monday Night Movie

Tina Andrews says she loves doing comedy. And heavy drama. She also has several writing projects in the works. But her big love is singing and dancing.

"What I am is hyper," she admits. Tina, a petite, copper-skinned, compulsive talker who doesn't so much enter a room as bounce into it, is putting her enormous energy to good use these days.

She portrays LeVar Burton's girl friend in "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," airing Sept. 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" on NBC-TV. Then, the following Friday (Sept. 16) she makes her debut as a regular on "Sanford Arms," appearing as Teddy Wilson's 19-year-old daughter, Angie.

Tina recently completed a two-year run as Valerie Grant in "Days of Our Lives."

"On 'Sanford Arms' I play a bright, bubbly, flippant type," she says. "That kind of role is easy for me. I've been a comedienne all my life, joking and kidding around. So I'm basically playing myself."

"What I want to do is some heavy, heavy drama...taking a role that has nothing to do with what I'm like in real life. Then if it turns out well I feel like I've accomplished something."

At 13 Tina dreamed of becoming a top ballerina. But after three years of training, her ankle was severely injured when a car door was accidentally slammed into it and she had to forego ballet.

"So I re-channeled my energies toward acting which came very naturally for me. Growing up I was never particularly fond of myself and I escaped with my dancing. It was as though I was someone else when I was dancing. I found the same escape acting."

Tina would still rather sing and dance than do anything: "I have an act that I'd love to do on talk shows or variety shows."

She also has written two half-hour comedy pilots and a television movie. "There's virtually nothing about middle-class blacks on television. So that's what I'm writing about — blacks that are neither rich nor poor."

Until recently, Tina, who can play characters much younger than she actually is, hasn't been too happy with many of the roles offered to her. Now, however, she has played a gutsy street girl in the TV movie "The Weekend Nun," and a tough reform school inmate in "Born Innocent."

"I can't tell you how happy I was to bust out of the little sister roles," she says. "I was beginning to develop terminal cuteness."

Wayne, Hepburn Co-Star

The inspired teaming of John Wayne and Katharine Hepburn for the first time in their long careers adds a certain degree of cachet to "Rooster Cogburn," a western drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Sept. 17, 9 to 11:15 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Wayne reprises his "True Grit" role (the performance for which he won the Best Actor Oscar in 1969) as a cantankerous but effective lawman.

Wayne stars as Deputy Marshal Cogburn, who is relieved of his badge when a district judge decides that he is effective, but a little to rambunctious for a territory settling down to peaceful ways.

BUSY ACTRESS — Tina Andrews, who enjoys acting, writing, singing and dancing, portrays LeVar Burton's girl friend (l) in "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," a NBC World Premiere movie, Monday, Sept. 12 (9-11 p.m.). Then on Friday, Sept. 16 (8-8:30 p.m.) she debuts as a regular on the NBC show "Sanford Arms," as Teddy Wilson's 19-year-old daughter, Angie (r).

Cahill's Tough

John Wayne stars as J.D. Cahill, a tough lawman who sets his skills as a tracker against Fraser (George Kennedy), a wily bank robber, in the western drama, "Cahill, U.S. Marshal," to be rebroadcast as a special movie presentation, Sunday, Sept. 11, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Marshal Cahill is an experienced lawman, but also a father who, because he is absent much of the time, loses the trust of his two sons, Danny (Gary Grimes) and Billy Joe (Clay O'Brian). The young boys get involved with Fraser in a dangerous holdup. Fraser and the boys then become the targets of Cahill's determination to bring the robber to justice and his sons back to the right side of the law.

Full-Blooded Creek Pursues Holdup Men

One look at the face you know you're seeing the McCoy. He could have been the model for the brave on the old buffalo nickel. A full-blooded Creek from Oklahoma, Will Sampson physically fits everyone's mental image of the all-American Indian — almost.

Sampson stars, in his television debut, as an Indian — in this case an Arizona state trooper who is pursuing a band of bank robbers through a snowy, mountain wilderness, in "Relentless," a film special to be broadcast Wednesday, Sept. 14, 9:30 to 11:10 p.m., on CBS-TV.

In the drama, the struggle boils down to a contest between the Indian trooper's innate wild-country instincts and the modern military combat tactics employed by the crooks, led by a calculating combat veteran. Monte Markham, John Hillerman, Marianna Hill, Larry Wilcox, Antony Ponzini star in the production with Sampson.

It can't quite be said that Sampson looks authentic enough to have stepped out of a painting; not, at least, from paintings by such recorders of early-day Indian life as George Catlin, John James Aububon, Albert Bierstadt, Frederic Remington and Charles Russell. Indian braves in their works are slightly-built, slim and wiry, and by that standard it's hard to picture the 235-pound, six-foot-five-inch Sampson leaping nimbly astride a lean, dusty appaloosa and racing off across the prairie.

Spider-Man Spins Web For Change Of Clothes

To paraphrase a very old saying — clothes do, indeed, make the (Spider) man. Actor Nicholas Hammond can vouch for that.

Hammond portrays the superhuman, skyscraper vaulting, web-hurling hero, adapted from the comic book work, in "Spider-Man," alive-action adventure drama to air Wednesday, Sept. 14, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

After working for several warm summer days in the special skin-tight "Spider-Man" rig with its head mask, plastic two-way mirror lenses, high plastic boots and elasticized sleeves, Hammond declared: "There's really no secret to Spider-Man's ability to scale the side of a skyscraper. There's nothing superhuman about it. It's that suit — it makes him want to climb walls."

At first glance, the European-raised Ivy Leaguer would seem an unlikely choice to portray the fantasy figure whose feats of derring-do have made him a favorite with comic book readers around the world.

But only at first glance. After that, like all the other fantastic things about "Spidey," it all becomes quite comfortable logical.

In his special suit, Spider-Man is a creature from quite another world. But in his alter-ego role as Peter Parker, young student physicist and aspiring newspaper photographer, he is a dead ringer for Nicholas Hammond — and vice versa. Both are handsome, personable, mild-mannered, intelligent and hard-working.

Hammond was born in Washington D.C., but lived the first ten years of his life in Europe, where his father, Col. Thomas Hammond, was an aide to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. When the family returned to the U.S., young Nicholas wasted no time choosing an actor's career. He made his Broadway debut at the age of 11 in "The Complaisant Lover," and continued with the road company of the production. He appeared in the motion pictures "Love of the Flies" and "The Sound of Music" while he was still a youngster.

He is a graduate of Princeton University, where he majored in English literature and was president of the Triangle Club, meanwhile continuing to fill acting roles on the Broadway stage.

He has appeared in numerous television drama series and TV movies, but playing the fantasy figure Spider-Man is a real change of pace for the talented young actor. He readily admits that he thoroughly enjoyed the dual role.

"It was fun," he says, "as acting always is. Where else can one indulge one's wildest fantasies as just part of the job?"

Distinguished Cast Set For New Movie

One of the most distinguished companies ever assembled for a television movie has been set for "The Next Howling Wind," a three-hour NBC World Premiere movie to be colorcast during the 1977-78 season. Alan Arkin stars in the dramatic fact-based story of a man's nine-year incarceration in an institution for the criminally insane.

Members of the cast and company have received Academy Awards and nominations in addition to numerous other honors.

"No other television project has personnel that has won more honors for excellence within the entertainment industry than ours," said Ron Lyon, producer of the film which began a five-week shooting schedule recently on location at a mental hospital in northwestern United States.

Arkin was nominated twice for Oscars as Best Actor — "The Russians Are Coming" and "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter." He won the New York Film Critics Award as Best Actor for "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter" and for his performance in "Hearts of the West."

Director of "The Next Howling Wind," Jan Kadar, directed the Oscar-winning foreign film, "The Shop on Main Street," which also won every major film festival honor including the top Moscow and Prague Film Festival awards and the New York Film Critics Award. Another motion picture with which he was associated, "Lies My Father Told Me," won the Golden Globe Award as Best Film.

Leonard Rosenman, who will do the musical scoring for "The Next Howling Wind," won two successive Academy Awards for "Barry Lyndon" in 1975, and "Bound for Glory" in 1976.

Film editor Ralph Winters won an Oscar for "Ben Hur" and one of King Solomon's Mines." The much-honored Winters received four other Academy Award nominations — "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," "Kotch," "Quo Vadis" and "The Great Race."

MARK'S "MAN OF THE YEAR"

The Senior Citizens of Asbury Park, New Jersey think Mark La Mura is more than a talented actor. Mark, who plays Mark Dalton in the daytime drama, "All My Children," also actively works with senior citizens. He has an affinity for helping all types of people in need, and recently organized an all-volunteer song and dance show to entertain the citizens of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, scene of a recent flood which devastated the city. The Senior Citizens of Asbury Park thought that Mark's efforts should not go unnoticed, so they've named him their "Man of the Year."

Nicholas Hammond stars as Peter Parker, a young physicist who achieves mysterious super-human powers after being bitten by a radioactive spider, in the television production of the number-one comic book superhero, "Spider-Man," Wednesday, Sept. 14 (8-9:30 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

FERRER TO GUEST STAR

Mel Ferrer has been signed to guest star in "Man Out of Time," a segment of CBS-TV's new series "Logan's Run."

Winners Begin Sixth Seasons

Two of CBS-TV's most popular shows, "The Waltons" and "Barnaby Jones," begin their sixth seasons on the Network Thursday, Sept. 15, on CBS-TV.

In their premiere segment, "The Waltons" (8 to 9 p.m.) grow out of the depression era and into the 40's, encountering the rumblings of World War II, and their effects on the family and community.

Walton's Mountain begins to feel the first hardships of the war when men start enlisting in the Army. Included in Rev. Fordwick, who leaves the mountain without a minister, a hardship for the residents, especially at such a frightening time.

Olivia (Michael Learned), a devout, loving mother, and John Walton (Ralph Waite), the strong and understanding father, continue to hold their family together, with the help of Grandpa (Will Geer).

Mary Ellen, the eldest Walton daughter who has already left home after her marriage to a doctor, is pregnant. Jason (Jon Walmsley), the musician of the family, is now the eldest son living at home since John-Boy moved to New York to pursue his writing career.

Struggling through their growing pains are Erin (Mary McDonough), blossoming into an attractive young lady, with marriage on her mind, and Ben (Eric Scott), who is a business-minded young man.

The youngest Waltons, Jim-Bob (David W. Harper), who is mechanically minded, and Elizabeth (Kami Cotler), whose I.Q. exceeds her age, struggle to stand on their own as individuals.

Buddy Ebsen, starring as Barnaby Jones, takes a look behind the scenes of television news when an unethical newscaster stages a "news" event that results in the death of a priest, in the premiere segment of "Barnaby Jones" (10 to 11 p.m.).

Robert Reed, guest starring as no-holds-barred newsman Dewitt Robinson, previously had indulged in manufactured news on several occasions with the aid of movie stuntman Jim Anders. This time, their charade backfires when Anders poses as a bridge-jumping suicide who apparently is killed by the fall. But, in staging the event, the stuntman takes an innocent bystander, the priest who had offered assistance, to his death.

Pike's Peeks

By Charles Pike
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Everyone's curious but no one's issuing too many explanations about the reason Bobbi Jordan has left the cast of daytime's "General Hospital." Apparently, Bobbi was pink slipped, a common practice on the ABC show, with her character, Terri Arnett, being shipped off to Hawaii. However, the move came as a complete surprise to everyone, but there's no solid reason given. Could Bobbi be the first of many, again?

Dissension has struck the set of "The Bionic Woman," with series star Lindsay Wagner walking off the show in the midst of production because of "creative differences." Don't know if there's any connection, but the segment being filmed at the time of Lindsay's departure had Evil Knievel as the guest star.

If ABC's "Soap" doesn't make it on the air, or has a short-lived run, it'll give hope to those who think that Joe Public can't fight city hall and win. Those organizations and groups who have verbally criticized the show to the point that sponsors are informing ABC that they'll not support the series overcame insurmountable odds to achieve what they have, even if the network decides to forge ahead.

"James at Fifteen" will become a weekly series by the end of October as NBC attempts to capture some of the youngster market. It's no secret that that's the secret of ABC's success, and another reason it's received such opposition to "Soap."

Betty White promises to pick up where Mary Tyler Moore left off as far as being CBS's situation comedy queen. It is predictable that Betty's show will be one of the more pleasant surprises on CBS's schedule.

Suzanne Somers of "Three's Company" has 16 telephones in her Santa Monica condominium. "I have them so I can answer in a flash wherever I am," she explains. "Shortly after I arrived in Hollywood in 1974, there was a year of waiting by the phone for calls to work. But in those days it never rang."

Tenth-Season 'Five-O' Premieres

In what proved to be his final dramatic performance, the late actor Stephen Boyd, guest-starring as an Irish terrorist in the tenth-season premiere of "Hawaii Five-0," brings the bloody strife of Northern Ireland to tropical Hawaii, confronting startled Five-0 Chief Steve McGarrett.

The 1977-78 season-opener for the series, starring Jack Lord, will be broadcast Thursday, Sept. 15, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV. Boyd died at age 49 last June, three weeks after completing his work as Costigan in the production.

Costigan has engineered a hijacking, from a U.S. military facility, of a load of an exotic new explosive for the purpose of smuggling it to his henchmen in Northern Ireland. Then, a couple of Costigan's Hawaii hirelings suddenly became threats to his security and Costigan responds to both dangers with murder.

Meanwhile, another temporary confederate — young, idealistic American socialite Casey Fogarty — becomes a threat by falling in love with Costigan before perceiving the ruthless nature that underlies his attractiveness.

"Hawaii Five-0" has now become the third-longest primetime dramatic series in television history, trailing only "Gunsmoke" and "Bonanza," and Lord admits his surprise that the series has been so successful for so long.

"Back when it all began I thought we were going to have a pretty good show and, of course, I hoped we'd run for a respectable span of time, but I just didn't expect us to endure the way we have. I felt at that time that it wasn't a realistic expectation for any show, however outstanding its quality. Remember, no one knew how much longer even 'Gunsmoke' and 'Bonanza' were going to last."

Lord points to the one element of the show that has remained unchanged throughout as the likely reason for its long-lasting audience appeal.

"Over the years," he says, "we've experienced changes in executive producers, producers, and, in fact, in all varieties of production personnel. We've had to shift Honolulu studio facilities from time to time, and we've even had changes in the regular cast of the show. But the one thing that has never changed is our locale — Hawaii. Maybe that's why the show has persisted so well in spite of other changes."

('Wonder Woman' will be seen regularly thereafter from 8 to 9 p.m., beginning Sept. 23.)

Lynda Carter stars as Wonder Woman, the legendary ageless heroine whose exploits during World War II helped make the world safe for freedom and who returns now in 1977 with an assumed identity as Diana Prince, assistant to Steve Trevor Jr. at the Inter-Agency Defense Command.

On a top-secret mission with scientists who will develop a nuclear power plant for underdeveloped countries, Trevor's flight is sabotaged by a henchman of international terrorist leader Dr. Solano (Fritz Weaver) and is brought down on Paradise Island. Wonder Woman discovers the plane and its occupants, among them Steve Trevor Jr., whose likeness to his father recalls her fond association with the major. Learning of the terrorist conspiracy which threatens this and other international projects, Wonder Woman convinces her mother, The Queen of the Amazons, that she must once again go into the outside world, not only to help protect the free world from its enemies, but in this age of radar, sonar and laser scanning, to protect the secret of Paradise Island and its ancient culture.

Beatrice Straight, who won an Oscar for her portrayal in "Network," guest stars as Wonder Woman's mother, The Queen of Paradise Island. Fritz Weaver guest stars as Dr. Solano, head of an international terrorist conspiracy, and Jessica Walter guest stars as his aide Gloria. Normann Burton plays Gerald Atkinson, who supervises Steve Trevor and Diana Prince at the Inter-Agency Defense Command.

C3PO, R2-D2 Host ABC Friday Special

The two star robots, C3PO and R2-D2, of 1977's hottest boxoffice smash motion picture, will host "The Making of 'Star Wars' as Told by C3PO and R2-D2," a behind-the-scenes viewpoint of "Star Wars" airing Friday, Sept. 16, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Featured in the special will be interviews with director George Lucas and the "Star Wars" stars Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford and Carrie Fisher.

These interviews, plus film clips from the explosive boxoffice hit and behind-the-scenes footage from the production will form the basis of the special.

As early as 1971, writer-director Lucas says he had wanted to film a space fantasy. "Originally, I wanted to make a 'Flash Gordon' movie, but I couldn't obtain the rights to the characters."

He then began researching and found where Gordon's originator, Alex Raymond, had gotten his idea and discovered that it actually came from the writing of Edgar Rice Burroughs. From his research came the idea for "Star Wars."

The highly complex job of filming three separate worlds in an unknown galaxy presented major production problems. All the deserts of America, the Middle East and North Africa were researched and explored in search of a site for the first planet, Tatooine, a dry, arid desert landscape with limitless horizons filled with bizarre but real architecture. The location finally decided on was Tunisia.

Next came the problem of finding a large production facility near North Africa that could supply the sets and props and to be a base for months of studio production. A studio in England was the one selected.

Game Could Reveal Vital Clues

The Cornhuskers of Nebraska will meet the Crimson Tide of Alabama on Saturday, Sept. 17 at 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV. Monte Anthony, Nebraska's number four all time rusher, heads into his final season with the Big Red. Although plagued with injuries and three operations in the last year, Anthony will be counted on to contribute heavily to Nebraska's efforts this fall.

Last year, Oklahoma moved 80 yards in the last minute of play to defeat Nebraska 20-17. That loss shoved Nebraska out of the Big Eight football title. It almost marked the first time since 1961 that Nebraska had not won or shared some part of the crown.

Nebraska will face Alabama on Saturday, Sept. 17, at 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV. Both teams, as usual, are ranked in the top twenty in all major polls. Yet, just how powerful Nebraska really is, still remains somewhat of a mystery.

Anytime Nebraska coach Tom Osborne went anywhere last spring, he heard so many "Who's?" he thought it was an owl convention.

Like: "Who's the quarterback?" Or: "Who's the split end?" Or: "Who's the fullback?" Or: "Who's the defensive tackle?"

In recent years, those type of questions have been few and far between because the Nebraska Cornhuskers have usually had a flock of stars returning for more action.

Not so in 1977. No sure-fire All Americans blossomed in the spring, although a number of veterans demonstrated that they'll make a run at honors on the field this year. What was present in large quantity was a group of talented athletes who indicated they may leave the individual honors to other teams and charge into '77 as a team dedicated to excellence.

"We've probably got fewer cinch standouts returning this fall than we've had in years," Coach Osborne will tell you. "But we've got a great number of outstanding athletes who look like they could become a very fine football team. If you want a thumbnail observation, I'd say we could be a mediocre team — or we could be a great team. It all depends on how we jell and go after people this year."

After the Alabama game some vital clues will emerge as to just how strong a team Nebraska really is.

Toughs It Out

John Cassisi, who plays tough guy Victor Kreutzer on "Fish," really had to tough it out over the summer when it appeared that he might lose an eye. Over the July 4th weekend, an improperly placed firework exploded in his face, and his sight was seriously endangered. But all worked out well, and John is back in the series this fall. With the typical bravado he displays both in an out of character, John said, "This won't slow me down. I'm already back playing sports." He added it will be a while before he gets close to fireworks again.

Theme Is Sex

The rigors of filming have yet to take their toll on Moe Malone, the young actress who makes her screen debut as Marina Oswald in "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," a four-hour film currently shooting for ABC-TV. Despite the long hours and the hot days on location in Dallas, Miss Malone admits she's having a ball. "Everybody told me that film acting would be alternately hard and boring. So far it's been neither. Everybody has been wonderful. Everybody has been wonderful to me and I'm learning so much from great stars like Ben Gazzara and Lorne Greene. It's like a dream come true."

Bruin Linebacker Is Tough Tackler

Jerry Dewayne Robinson is the first UCLA sophomore ever to be named a consensus All American. In fact, he and Tony Franklin of Texas A and M were the first sophomores to make the All America squad since 1969. Named to the first All American unites by the Associated Press, the Football Writers Association of America, and the Newspaper Enterprise Association, Jerry also earned first team All-Coast (AP and UPI) and All Pacific-8 status. The Bruins' top tackler in seven of 11 games, Robinson will be back at his position of inside linebacker when UCLA challenges the Houston Cougars on ABC-TV's "NCAA Football" Monday, Sept. 12, at 9 p.m. Co-winner of UCLA's Jeff Bonchiff Jr., Memorial Trophy for Rookie of the Year along with Theotis Brown, Jerry displays an uncanny ability to fight off blockers and get to the ball. He has exceptional range, roaming from sideline to sideline. Robinson is an all-around athlete, and a closer look at his high school record at Cardinal Newman High School in Santa Rosa, California, reveals that he lettered not only in football, but also basketball and track. In football he played tight end, running-back and middle guard, and did some punting. His efforts earned him All America, All Northern California, and All Redwood Empire high school acclaim.

In basketball he was named All Northern California, and in track he had bests of 9.9 in the hundred-yard-dash, and 21.3 in the two-hundred-twenty-yard dash. He also leaped 23-2 in the long jump and 6-5 in the high jump. To top it off he served as captain in all three sports. Jerry Dewayne Robinson is an athlete youngsters can look up to. Perhaps that is why the NCAA chose him along with other top collegiate personalities to make anti-drug spot announcements.

Norton-Young Head For Goal In Night With Heavyweights

In September, 1976, Ken Norton fought Muhammad Ali and, in the opinion of many who saw the fight, won a 15-round decision and the heavyweight crown. But the judges gave Ali the decision. The disappointment of the loss was so severe that Norton spoke of retirement from the ring. That never came about, however, and in his next fight, last May, he solidified his position as the top heavyweight contender with the 58-second demolition of highly-ranked Duane Bobick. Now Norton is once again zeroing in on Ali.

In April, 1976, a then-unknown heavyweight from Philadelphia named Jimmy Young lost an extremely controversial 15-round decision to Ali. That loss, however, earned Young a shot at some of the leading heavyweight contenders and he responded in impressive fashion. In November, '76, he recorded a 12-round decision over hard-hitting Ron Lyle, and last March he surprised the boxing establishment by flooring former champ George Foreman en route to a masterful 12-round decision. Now Jimmy Young is a leading heavyweight contender and he, too, is within reach of Ali's title.

The next step for both fighters will come Wednesday, Sept. 14, when each will be featured in action during "A Night With the Heavyweights" — a power-packed card of four 10-round heavyweight bouts — an exclusive live NBC-TV colorcast from Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, 8 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Standing in Norton's way will be Italian Lorenzo Zanon, ranked No. 10 among the world's heavyweights by the World Boxing Council. The 25-year-old Zanon has a record of 20-2-1 including victories over European champ Lucien Rodriguez, and Alfredo Evangelista, who recently lost a 15-round decision to Ali. Norton, 31, has a career record of 38-4-0 with 31 KOs.

Young's opponent will be Jody Ballard, a heavy-hitter from Houston, Texas. The 26-year-old Ballard, who has a lifetime mark of 24-8-0, sees his bout against Young as "The opportunity of a lifetime" and is optimistic about his chances. "You are gonna lose," he told Young at a recent press conference announcing "A Night With the Heavyweights." Young sports a lifetime mark of 21-5-2 with 7 KOs while Ballard has 15 KOs.

THE ROAD TO ALI: Leading heavyweight contender Ken Norton (l), aiming for another title fight with Muhammad Ali, will need a victory to keep those title hopes alive when he meets Italian heavyweight Lorenzo Zanon (r) in a featured 10-rounder during "A Night with the Heavyweights" to be colorcast live Wednesday, Sept. 14 (8-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

U.S. Open Tennis A Growing Event

It was supposed to be a typical English lawn party, but when the guests arrived, their host, Major Walter Clopton Wingfield, handed them spoon-shaped racquets with long handles and displayed his new invention — the first outdoor tennis court. He then brought out the hollow rubber balls he had fashioned for the occasion.

In this country, the United States Tennis Championships, now named the U.S. Open, dates back as far as the game itself. Final court action of this year's Open will air Sunday, Sept. 11, from 12-noon to 7 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Lawn tennis clubs started springing up in the 1870's, mostly in the north-eastern states, but scoring, height of net, distance of the service line from the net, and size of the ball varied from place to place.

To help correct that situation, the United States Lawn Tennis Association was formed in 1881. Thirty-four clubs were represented and the first official championship was held later that year at the newly-built Newport Casino in Rhode Island. Richard D. Sears was the first USLTA champion and he went on to win six more years in a row.

The championships were moved to the new grounds of the West Side Tennis Club in 1914 so that more people could witness this fast-growing event. In the challenge round that year, Maurice McLoughlin's 17-15 record-breaking (number of games) victory over Norman Brookes gained national attention, and the game secured even greater stature.

With the move of Forest Hills, the game continued to gain new followers. It remained at that site until 1921, when it moved briefly to the Tennis Club of Germantown in Philadelphia for three years while a new stadium was under construction at the West Side Tennis Club.

The $150,000 Forest Hills Stadium was a unique and intimate horseshoe bowl, seating 14,000 spectators on 39 rows, with provisions for three courts. It opened in 1923, with the inaugural Wightman Cup matches between the United States and England. The United States Championships returned there the following year and have seen no other home since.

The championships took on its present name, the United States Open Tennis Championships, in 1968, when, for the first time, both professionals and amateurs competed.

Watch Cougars

For the first time in 19 years, Texas does not rank among the league's pre-season Big Three. On top of that, Arkansas is not ranked there either. To find a season in which neither Texas nor Arkansas was among the pre-season top three you must go back twenty-two years. Truly, the Southwest is upside down. Last season, the Cougars of Houston made their long-awaited debut in the Southwest Conference. Their first conference game was against Baylor and ended in a 23-5 loss. The Cougars quickly overcome their shyness and soundly defeated all other conference foes except Arkansas.

Tim Dances Great

"Wait till you see Tim Conway, the dancer. He's sensational."

It was Bernadette Peters speaking, prior to the taping of one of the big production numbers in "Uncle Tim Wants You," a musical-comedy salute to America's Armed Forces to be broadcast Saturday, Sept. 17, 8 to 9 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Miss Peters, who is Conway's guest star, along with Jonathan Winters and The Marquis Chimps, was happy as a clam because she was back doing what she likes best, singing and dancing, after hanging up her dancing shoes for a year to co-star with Richard Crenna in the comedy series, "All's Fair."

"I loved the show," Miss Peters declared, "even though I missed singing and dancing. Richard was a joy to work with, and I learned so much from him about comedy. His instinct about timing and how to deliver a comedy line is fantastic."

"Of course, I'm very lucky," Miss Peters continued, "because here I am again working with Tim who's not only one of the world's funniest men but also one of the nicest."

As Conway and Miss Peters took their opening position for their big production number, she exclaimed, "See how marvelous we look together." Then, making a sly reference to Conway's less-than-record-breaking height, she continued, "Tim's also one of the few leading men I can look up to without getting a crick in my neck."

It seems as if Conway's style in delivering a one-liner may have rubbed off on his leading lady.

Both Conway and another guest on the program, Jonathan Winters, think funny as well as act funny, and both share a healthy disrespect for the final version of a comedy script, so putting the two of them together in comedy sketches means the production staff is in for trouble trying to keep either of them within the boundaries of a script or a stopwatch.

Interesting to note are the many similarities between the two: both are from Ohio; both made their way to comedy through radio and TV, and both have a large group of other performers who are their biggest fans.

The ultimate shared-experience which best prepares them for their comedy salute to the armed forces, of course, is their own memories of G.I. experiences as enlisted men, Conway in the Army and Winters in the Marines.

Futuristic New Series Premieres On CBS-TV

"Logan's Run," an imaginative new adventure series set 200 years in the future after a nuclear holocaust has destroyed most of Earth's civilization, premieres with a special 90-minute episode, Friday, Sept. 16, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Gregory Harrison, who starred in the critically acclaimed film "Fraternity Row," stars as Logan, a Sandman (elite Policeman) who questions his regimented existence in the Domed City to which he is confined and breaks away to discover if there is something better in the unknown world outside.

Heather Menzies stars as Jessica, the girl who helps Logan escape from the Domed City and becomes his fellow fugitive in search of the nebulous utopia they have heard described as Sanctuary.

Champ Is Rarely At Loss For Words

Muhammad Ali — the heavyweight boxing champion whose animated likeness and voice are featured on "I Am the Greatest: The Adventures of Muhammad Ali" — is rarely at a loss for words. In each episode of that new series, which is telecast Saturday, 10:30 to 11 a.m. on NBC-TV, he can also be seen as himself with some show-closing words for his young viewers. Here's sample:

"Do you know who I am? I'm Muhammad Ali, boxing champion of the world. You see how I look, you hear how I speak. Well, I don't look like everybody else in the world. Neither do you. Look at my daughter, Hanna. She's about a shade lighter than me. Different complexions. There are no two people in the whole world alike. That don't matter. But what does matter is how we treat people. So, we should open up people. Look at the deeds, not the race, creed, class or color, and life will be much better, take it from Ali. Oh, my darling, everybody listens to me but you."

Another one of Ali's show-closing statements goes like this: "I know you're going to find this hard to believe, but even the great Muhammad Ali isn't perfect. That's right. I try to learn something new every day. I learn by watching television. I learn by reading books, even going to the movies, mainly by exchanging ideas with other people — and you could do the same. Learn something new throughout all your days and you will improve yourself in many, many ways. Try it."

And still another message: "You know, everybody gets lonely sometimes, even me, Muhammad Ali, the most famous man in the world. Usually we get lonely when our friends or the ones we love are not around."

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DONALD KENNEDY, Commissioner, Food and Drug Administration

What prompted you to accept your position without a medical degree or any experience in the field? — I.E.C., Forest Hills, N.Y.

● Because I hope to make a contribution toward more effective consumer protection. While my previous contacts with the FDA were few, I did serve on Government food and pesticide committees. My lack of specific experience may be an advantage because I can bring fresh ideas to the agency. I don't think the commissioner need be a physician. Many previous ones were not.

FOR TOTIE FIELDS, comedienne

Do you enjoy looking in the mirror more today now that you've gotten thinner? — J.S., Miami Beach, Fla.

● Heavy or thin, insecurity has never been a problem. Secure people don't need reassuring glances in the mirror. When I leave the house in the morning, looking O.K., I don't make periodic checks to see how I'm doing because I'm not a lump of ice. I won't fade away during the day. The most I do is touch up my lipstick. My hair does not budge — it won't dare. So there's no reason for me to look in the glass, unless I've forgotten what I look like.

FOR SYLVIA PORTER, financial columnist

Most women I know are good at math. How did they get a reputation for being poor mathematicians? — D.H., Fresno, Calif.

● I place the blame on our educational system and on parents who perpetuate the myth that woman is inferior to man in this department. I also blame the woman who thinks it's more feminine to pretend she can't add and then turns out to be a whiz at the supermarket.

FOR JIM McKay of Wide World of Sports

Who's the most memorable athlete you've met, and which sport do you find the most interesting? — Kurt Grell, Wausau, Wis.

● There are too many great athletes to single out one as a favorite. But the greatest performance I ever saw was Bob Beamon's long jump at Mexico City in 1968. I prefer golf because of the total concentration required and the ultimate satisfaction of a good shot, and skiing because of the great exhilaration.

FOR JOHN DAVIDSON, singer

How do you stay in such great shape? — S.M., Pt. Pleasant, N.J.

● I owe it all to the outdoors. I wouldn't be in the shape I'm in if I kept within four walls. Lots of fresh air (which I love) and sea breezes (I spend a lot of time on my boat) are very good for one's health. I also enjoy racquetball, scuba-diving and weight-lifting.

FOR DIAHANN CARROLL, actress and singer

What was your first job? — L.A., Savannah, Ga.

● I was a model. While at acting school, I was also in dire need of some extra cash. Without telling my parents — I knew they'd be furious at the idea — I did some modeling. When Ebony magazine booked me for a feature fashion layout, I decided to break it to Mom and Dad. Thought that would be better than their seeing the results themselves, without any warning, because the emphasis was on lingerie and sleepwear.

FOR CAROL CHANNING

What got you hooked on health foods? — F.M., Brewer, Maine

● Several years ago, I developed severe allergies caused by certain foods. My doctor recommended that I switch to natural foods. Since then, I have eaten only specially prepared health meals and, to make sure there's no slipup on the road, I travel with my chef, who takes care of all my meals.

FOR DICK CLARK, host of American Bandstand

Do you ever get hate mail, and what do you do with it? — S.G., Redondo Beach, Calif.

● Everyone gets hate mail: until you get it, you're not a success. Most of the writers don't use their full name — just initials. To those who give an address I send back this kind of note: "Dear Mr. (or Ms.) so-and-so: Some crazy person is using your name, as you can see by the enclosed letter, and I think you should be aware of what's going on."

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What can you tell me about the recent reports contending that Adam and Eve were not humans. — M.C., River Heights, Utah

● You must be referring to the new book, First Man, Then Adam by Dr. Irwin Ginsburg (right) in which he theorizes that our first man and woman were actually space voyagers from another planet. He suggests the Garden of Eden was nothing more than a rocketship that crashed on earth. But this is not a new theory. Erich Von Daniken came up with it some years ago in Gods From Outer Space. (Ginsburg has a Ph.D. in physics.)

FOR TOM BROKAW, host of the Today show

Is your wit instantaneous or prepared in advance? — Sarah H. Jackson, Johnson City, Tenn.

● I'm flattered that someone thinks my sense of humor is cultivated. Actually, if I am funny, it is generally accidental and almost always spontaneous. I figure that if you have to be up at that hour, you deserve a little laughter.

PRO AND CON

Should A Driver's License Be Required To Operate A Moped?

PRO Charles Fenner, manager, Traffic Safety Unit, Dept. of Motor Vehicles, Sacramento, Calif.

Yes. When sharing the street with 4,000-pound vehicles, the moped operator cannot hold his own — without the experience that comes with being a licensed driver. To stay out of trouble he must be in complete control of his vehicle and have knowledge of other vehicles. Also, if involved in an accident, an unlicensed moped driver, I believe, would have little chance of recovering damages. Finally, since the moped travels at low speeds and its low chassis reduces visibility, an inexperienced operator may cause an accident.

CON Assemblyman Charles Cook, (Rep.), 105th District, New York City

No. I am against most restrictions on the moped. We don't license 10-speed bicycles, which can go much faster than mopeds. The moped offers an opportunity for substantial gas-savings — in fact, it can be operated for pennies — and is a convenient and inexpensive mode of transportation easily available to a large portion of our population. Government tends to get overinvolved in regulating every small facet of individuals' lives, and usually the restrictions do more harm than good.

THE NATION'S BEST-KNOWN SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

As you might expect, the President is always thoroughly prepared when he presents the weekly Bible lesson, but he also reveals a surprising side of his personality.

Charles Sanks, associate pastor of Washington's First Baptist Church (left), and Charles Trentham, pastor, greet the First Family before a recent morning service.

By David Kucharsky

"The President is going to teach our lesson today."

About 130 people are on hand for the weekly meeting of the couples class, and they are obviously delighted with the announcement. The President and Mrs. Carter attend Sunday school every week they are in Washington, but the class never knows when he will teach. The regular teacher, a good-humored insurance executive named Fred Gregg, usually finds out only the day before.

It's nearly 10:00 on Sunday morning. The class has assembled in its place in the small balcony overlooking the sanctuary of

A former UPI correspondent, David Kucharsky is senior editor at Christianity Today and the author of The Man From Plains: The Mind and Spirit of Jimmy Carter (Harper and Row).

Washington's 175-year-old First Baptist Church. A few rows have been roped off for members and Secret Service agents; the usual turnout of curious visitors fills the remaining seats. A prayer is said, the roll is taken, and the smiling President, wearing a dark blue suit, steps up to the lectern.

"Which of the Ten Commandments is mentioned most often in the Old Testament?" Carter asks.

Before him are a pair of Bibles and a lesson guide. Carter knows the Scriptures well, in Spanish as well as English. Compared with the attention given to other aspects of the President's life, little has been said about his faith as "a born-again evangelical." Indeed, he has scrupulously avoided wearing his religion on his sleeve. But on Sundays there is no doubt that he is a conscientious Christian.

"He does his homework," says Dr. Charles R. Sanks Jr., associate pastor and theologian in residence. That means studying the lesson prescribed for that day. And people who hear Carter are impressed with his familiarity with the Scriptures.

Carter avoids flowery and bombastic oratory, finding a low-key but emphatic approach more effective. In addition to posing questions to the class, he often asks its members to read aloud a verse from the Bible. Then he proceeds to explain the meaning, give illustrations and relate the passage to problems of everyday life. He talks about the need for humility and about the constant temptation toward materialism. He also warns the class against hypocrisy, and he repeatedly speaks of the need to adopt higher moral standards.

After various class members spoke in response to his question about the Ten Commandments, Carter laughed, "You're all wrong. The answer is, 'No graven images.'" He went on to tell about how often the Old Testament concerns itself with the inclination to make substitutes for God.

Carter aroused class curiosity another time by asking, "What holds marriages together?" Some replied it was love, but the President said that was just part of it. "The word I was looking for is 'faithfulness.' Faithfulness is necessary in a life commitment. It tides you over in times of doubt and adversity. It is crucial."

That observation recalled Carter's famous Playboy interview in which he admitted to sexual temptations. It also brought to mind his admonition to a group of Government workers that they ought to get married if they want to live together.

Carter's comments to his class about marriage were based on one of the letters sent by the Apostle Paul to his young friend Timothy. Carter also cited the letter in commenting that, contrary to what a lot of people think, the difficulties of life are not in themselves damaging experiences. Adversity, he argued, prepares you for a better life: "People who meant the most to God did not have an easy life."

Carter's participation in the class has brought out a side of him of which most Americans are not aware: he enjoys jesting. That came out vividly one Sunday when Gregg was teaching, and the Carters were seated before him in the tan-painted pews. Gregg, who is happily married, was playing the chauvinist in commenting facetiously that he particularly liked a passage in the Bible that is interpreted by many to mean that women should be subordinate to men. Carter caused laughter when he blurted, "How do you know?"

Another incident between Carter and Gregg has become a standing joke with the class. Once when Carter called Gregg and offered to teach, the outgoing Gregg replied, "Oh, I could hug you. I've had such a busy week." It took only a moment for him to realize that he had inadvertently implied that the President had time on his hands. Carter has repeatedly kidded Gregg about the comment. When Gregg told the class about it and added an apology to the effect that he knew Presidents were busy, too, Carter responded, "It's about time you realized that."

Carter also throws in an occasional bit of humor when teaching. He avoids particulars, however, because they might be construed politically, and he always closes the class in a serious vein, urging the people to deeper commitment.

Prior to his election, Carter had said that if he won he would transfer his church membership to a nearby Baptist congregation in Washington. He also revealed plans to continue teaching occasionally. The church the Carters chose is several blocks north of the executive mansion along 16th Street and lies on the edge of the downtown business district.

Gregg himself only came to Washington a few months before Carter and was asked to teach the class. The first Sunday after the Inauguration Gregg saw the President as he walked toward the church from his parked car. "I felt as though my Adam's apple dropped to my shoes," he recalls. Gregg, a lean, white-haired son of a Baptist preacher, had not expected the President to come that first day.

Carter's church attendance reflects his desire to get closer to the people. It obviously presents problems for the security people, however, and, as Dr. Sanks puts it, "some fuss and feathers for the church." Sanks quickly adds, though, that "we have adjusted very well."

The church staff paved the way by working out some procedures when they were advised that the President would be worshipping with them. Ushers were trained to deal with special situations that might develop, and two restrictions were laid down: no cameras or tape recorders.

President Truman also attended the First Baptist Church while in the White House but lost interest when his pastor voiced criticism of Truman's intention of appointing a full-fledged ambassador to the Vatican. The only other Baptist President was Warren G. Harding.

Former Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon traveled more on weekends than Carter has so far, so their church attendance was more varied and sporadic. (Nixon also arranged a number of Sunday morning worship services in the White House with selected speakers and guests.) Several Presidents were Sunday school teachers prior to their election, but none kept up the practice while in office.

Carter has been attending church and Sunday school regularly since he was a boy. When he enrolled in the Naval Academy, he was given a class of preteen girls to teach at a church in Annapolis. After graduation and commissioning as an officer, he taught a class of fellow crew members on board a ship. Once, on a submarine at sea and with no chaplain, he conducted an Easter worship service.

Upon his return to Plains, he again became active in the Baptist church there. When he was elected governor, he became part of a congregation in Atlanta.

Presidential candidates normally have a hectic schedule and seldom get back home during their campaigns. But Carter's devotion to church life and his determination to continue studying the Bible were demonstrated first during the long effort to secure the Democratic nomination and then during the campaign against President Ford. Virtually every weekend the chartered jet airliner in which he toured the country was diverted to Georgia. Carter wanted to be at home with his family and to attend Sunday school and church even though the trips were costly and reduced his speaking schedule. He is keeping those priorities as President.

THE FRANKLIN LIBRARY TAKES PRIDE IN ANNOUNCING

The Collector's Library of the World's Best-Loved Books

The timeless masterpieces that have won the affection of readers throughout the world—in a limited edition of fine books custom-bound in genuine leather and ornamented in 22 karat gold.

Available Exclusively by Subscription
Subscription Deadline: September 30, 1977

Over the years—out of all the great books ever written—a small number have been chosen by readers themselves as their overwhelming favorites. Read by generation after generation. Universally praised and acclaimed. Cherished by all those who have a love for fine literature. For they are the books that will live forever in the hearts and minds of people throughout the world.

Throughout the past three centuries, careful records have substantiated the lasting popularity of these masterpieces. Now, working from these records, the editors of The Franklin Library have selected one hundred timeless masterpieces, to create The Collector's Library of the World's Best-Loved Books.

Each of the one hundred books in this extraordinary collection will be custom-bound in fine leather and ornamented in gold. This superb leather-bound edition will be created exclusively for those who subscribe by the deadline date of September 30, 1977. Thereafter, this private library of luxurious volumes will never be made available again.

Books that have lived for generations

This collection will include such immortal masterpieces as Tolstoi's War and Peace, one of the greatest novels ever written; The Three Musketeers, Alexandre Dumas' tale of adventure; James Michener's sweeping historical novel Hawaii; Swift's Gulliver's Travels, the brilliant and witty commentary on man's follies and foibles; Lost Horizon by James Hilton, the romantic tale of Shangri-La; Leaves of Grass, the beloved collection of Walt Whitman's poems; and Margaret Mitchell's unforgettable story of the Old South, Gone With the Wind.

Because the interests of readers range far and wide, so the books in this collection will be very diverse in style and content. From Mark Twain's wonderful story of American childhood, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, to Charles Dickens' tale of an obscure lad's rise to social status, Great Expectations . . . from Stephen Crane's poignant story of a Civil War soldier, The Red Badge of Courage, to James Jones' brilliant novel of World War II, From Here to Eternity . . .

And the collection will include other great works of fiction and nonfiction by such masters as Milton, Hugo, Poe, Hawthorne, Melville, De Maupassant, Zola, Maugham, Steinbeck and Hemingway.

Clearly, these are books to be read, re-read and enjoyed for years to come. Books that never lose their freshness or appeal. Works that succeed in capturing the thoughts and emotions of people, the aura and atmosphere of distant places, the rich adventure of life. Books that people have loved and love today.

In every respect, luxurious

Each book in this private library will be an entirely new edition, individually designed by a skilled book designer and totally distinctive throughout.

Each volume will be custom-bound in genuine leather. And this in itself is a great rarity in our day. For nothing matches the quality of fine leather-bound books. The soft and supple feel of the leather. The warm tones and shadings. The distinctive aroma. The air of elegance and good taste that only leather-bound books convey.

These exquisite leather bindings will be lavishly ornamented in 22 karat gold. The original binding designs will be worked into the leather in gold, and will embellish the front and back covers, as well as the spines. The pages, too, will be fully edged in 22 karat gold, to afford protection for the books as well as to enhance their beauty.

In the tradition of the finest collector's editions of the past, the spine of each book will be "hubbed" with raised bands, adding a most distinctive quality to each book.

To complement the gold and leather bindings, the endsheets will be of beautiful moiré fabric. And a matching ribbon marker will also distinguish each volume.

The papers on which these books will be printed are of exceptional quality as well. Fine book papers—produced especially for these volumes.

Works of art will illustrate each volume

The Franklin Library will commission prominent artists of our day to create original illustrations for many of the books, and such illustrations will appear only in these leather-bound volumes. In addition, famous works by outstanding artists of the past will be used to illustrate other books in this collection.

In every case, the illustrations will be created—or selected—to add to the collector's reading enjoyment. And to enhance the luxury of the leather-bound volume.

Informative literary commentaries

Each book in the collection will be accompanied by specially-written Notes from the Editors, providing fresh insights into the book, its author, the period of time in which it was written, and the role of this treasured masterpiece in literary history.

By reading these commentaries, prepared by knowledgeable scholars, you and your family will gain an even greater understanding and appreciation of those works that have captured the imagination of readers for so many years.

Each volume a limited edition

From the moment they are issued, the volumes in this private collector's library will have assured rarity. For each volume will be printed and custom-bound solely for subscribers. None will be made available in stores or rare book galleries. Furthermore, there is a firm limit of one subscription per person, and the total number of complete sets will be permanently limited to the exact number of valid subscriptions postmarked by the deadline date of September 30, 1977.

The price for each custom-designed, leather-bound volume is $39. And this very favorable price will be guaranteed—to each subscriber—for every volume in the collection. Furthermore, you will have the right to discontinue your subscription at any time you choose.

To enter your subscription, you must mail the application below to The Franklin Library, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania, no later than September 30, 1977.

HEROES OF THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD

In the midst of a chaotic nightmare, dozens of ordinary citizens risked their lives to save their fellow townspeople.

By Larry Hudson

When the southwestern Pennsylvania community of Johnstown was ravaged on July 20 by the third flood in its history, residents had only one defense against the water — personal courage and heroism.

For seven straight hours a storm that the U.S. Weather Bureau said could happen "once in 500 years" poured more than 11 inches of rain on the Johnstown district. An evening of terror unfolded into a night of horror.

Water rose to seven feet at some points of the city, and in the outlying areas, where the Little Conemaugh and Stonycreek rivers join to form the Conemaugh River, rampaging torrents swept cars, houses and people down river. Many of those flung into the water could only hope someone would heed their pleas for help.

In the Hornerstown section of Johnstown, a 20-year-old employee of the town's water company answered those calls twice.

D.J. Baumgardner had just finished helping his grandparents out of their house trailer in the Baumgardners' backyard when the two-week-old trailer floated away. From his front porch, the tall youth watched water roar past his brick home. Across the street, a frame house began to break up. Hearing screams, Baumgardner shot into the water to pull his neighbor, Donna Wolfe, from the twisted structure to the safety of his home.

Less than an hour later Baumgardner found himself on the back porch with his father, Fred, a former Marine sergeant. Nearly 100 yards away, Doris Lichtenfels clung to a small maple tree in the Baumgardners' backyard. The woman had been separated from her daughter, Becky, when they were swept off their rooftop three blocks away.

While his father encouraged the woman to hang on, Baumgardner, a lifeline around his waist, splashed back into the water, which by now was chest high. Buffeted by the current, he worked his way to the hysterical woman, grabbed her under the arms and pulled her back to the porch. At dawn, while checking on relatives, the young rescuer discovered that another life had been saved by city firemen. Mrs. Lichtenfels' daughter had been pulled out of the water and left at the home of Stan and Ethel Sipe. Baumgardner believes he was able to rescue Mrs. Lichtenfels because "he was concentrating on nothing but that lady." He was afraid, he admitted, but "I wouldn't be normal if I wasn't."

The catastrophe left much of the town in rubble. The flood was Johnstown's third. The 1889 deluge, the deadliest in U.S. history, left 200 people dead.

Rescue workers use a makeshift bridge across a tributary of the Conemaugh River to remove the body of a flood victim.

bathroom attendant. Because of that walk, several people were saved.

Gruss and a friend, Danny Price, saw that a small stream already had wiped out part of the pool, and then they heard screams over the roar of the water. Families were trapped on the other side of the stream, and the two boys ran to get help. They didn't know at the time that Sandy Run Reservoir, a few miles upstream, was about to break.

Returning with more men, the two assisted in bringing eight people across the swollen stream. Gruss recalled that as they pulled the last two people from a home along the water's edge, the reservoir let go with a roar. The cascading water smashed the home and carried a fire truck away just as the rescuers reached safety.

As neighbor helped neighbor on the ground, rescues in the air were beginning. Ray Custer, a civilian pilot for an engineering firm near Johnstown, took copilot Tom Thomas aboard his chopper at dawn. For most of the day, the two men gingerly set their craft down on rooftops across the city, evacuating people and carrying medical supplies from three hospitals. At one point, their battery overheated. At Lee Hospital, in downtown Johnstown, they dashed downstairs from the roof, took a bag of ice and packed the hot battery so they could keep flying.

Less than 20 miles south of Johnstown, other chopper rescuers saved 33 lives. In the borough of Seward, the uncontrolled Conemaugh River washed 58 trailers from the Hoover Trailer Park. Many became hung up in a grove of trees while others lay battered by water or blown apart by explosions of propane gas tanks.

Responding to a Civil Defense call, Dave Ravegum, a civilian pilot and a captain in the Pennsylvania National Guard, took Phil Pitzerell with him in the helicopter he flies for a living. Of the scene at Seward, Ravegum said: "I've been through two typhoons and two major floods, but I never saw devastation like that."

The first rescue was a three-week-old infant. "We were taking babies out first, then little children, then the injured," Ravegum recalled. None of the remaining survivors fought to get into his copter, Ravegum said. After the two pilots had taken 28 persons from trailer tops, they moved to a grove of trees. As they hovered, the rotor blades were two feet from the trees. "What I couldn't believe is that you'd fly toward those trees and see a couple of people in there." Ravegum said. "But once we got close, we saw 10 or 12 hanging onto the branches."

Although the craft didn't have a rescue sling, Ravegum took the chopper right down on the water. "I told Phil not to get out," he said. "I told him that if a dam broke up river, he was dead. But he handed me $600 out of his pocket and said, 'If I don't make it have a good time.'" Pitzerell can't swim, but that morning he carried a woman through chest-high water. She was a diabetic who was suffering from insulin shock and broken ankles.

Despite his achievements, Ravegum had nothing but praise for the rescuers below in boats. One rescue party found the Conemaugh River too wild for a 75-horsepower motor. "Those guys in the boats had a lot of guts," he said.

Ravegum doesn't want to be called a hero, giving most of the credit to Pitzerell. "I attribute what I was able to do to my military experience," he commented. "The good Lord had a lot to do with it, too."

Not far from the scene of the Seward rescues, another National Guard pilot, Capt. Mario Meola of Harrisburg, hovered his twin-rotor helicopter over a washed-out bridge. Below him were three men clinging to the upstream supports as wave after wave of water washed over their bodies, buffeting them against the concrete span.

Ronald Allison, Daniel Mansell and Harry Kuzminsky Jr. had been trying to start a car on the bridge when the water rose too high to get off. They became stranded at about 1:00 A.M., and now, at 11:00 A.M., Meola was easing his chopper between two poles holding high-tension wires. He gripped the controls of the giant helicopter as his crew hauled Kuzminsky, who is a diabetic, to safety.

On the ground, Jim Allison, Ronald's brother, was keeping a vigil that began the previous night. Waiting on drier ground, he listened periodically throughout the night for voices. At dawn, he remembers thinking that his brother was gone. Numb and exhausted, the two men were taken off the bridge at 1:30 P.M. on the day of the flood. They had spent 12 hours clinging for their lives.

Heroism in the Johnstown flood took many forms. Ralph Grove, whose home was safe from the water, drove into the town of Mineral Point to alert residents. While inside a home evacuating an invalid, his new truck was swept away. In the same community, Paul and Mary Shoemaker fed Mineral Point's 300 residents from their own kitchen for 10 days.

In the suburb of Richland, Police Chief James Mock and Sgt. Michael Gonchar had been evacuating residents when their car floated away, and the two swam for their lives. What had been a foot of water rose menacingly in five minutes, and the two policemen were forced to shoulder their car doors open and plunge into the water. The car was found hours later on its roof.

In the city's West End, disaster workers found that St. Rochus's Catholic Church had operated a well-stocked relief center. Just blocks away, though, in the Tanneryville section, the Laurel Hill Dam broke. So swift were the deadly waters that residents had little time to help even themselves. Still, people pulled others into treetsops as they washed past.

To Johnstown and its neighbors, horrible destruction was matched only by the disbelief that a flood disaster had struck again. In 1889 the city was destroyed when the South Fork Dam burst and spewed a giant wall of water upon the growing community. It was during this disaster that Clara Barton organized the Red Cross. Then again, in 1936, another flood swelled over the city.

From the second disaster came a million-dollar flood-control project. The Army Corps of Engineers installed ribbons of concrete along the city's river banks, and Johnstown declared itself once and for all a "Flood Free City."

The heroes of the Johnstown flood of 1977 have gone back to their roles as average citizens. But the toll in lives would have been far greater had they not chosen, for a few hours on July 20, to risk their lives to save others.

The disaster claimed at least 72 lives and left more than 50,000 homeless. Damage to Johnstown and the surrounding areas will total at least $200 million. If you would like to help the flood victims, contributions may be sent to the Salvation Army, Johnstown, Pa. 15907.

"Vantage is changing a lot of my feelings about smoking."

"I like to smoke, and what I like is a cigarette that isn't timid on taste. But I'm not living in some ivory tower. I hear the things being said against high-tar smoking as well as the next guy.

"And so I started looking. For a low-tar smoke that had some honest-to-goodness cigarette taste.

"It wasn't easy. The low-tar cigarettes I tried tasted like chalk. And high-tar cigarettes were starting to taste rougher as I went along.

"Then I tried a pack of Vantage. It was smooth yet it had taste. And a lot less tar than what I'd been smoking.

"As far as I'm concerned, when I switched to Vantage, I changed to a cigarette I could enjoy."

GOURMET CLUBS WITH ETHNIC THEMES SPARK FINE EATING

More and more people are joining together to create authentic dinners of a particular country or cuisine. Here are several all-time favorites.

By Marilyn Hansen

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

We know there is an increasing interest in gourmet clubs throughout the country. They may consist of couples who get together, an all-male or all-female group or just an informal mix.

However, it's always people who have a genuine interest in preparing and eating authentic foods of a particular cuisine or geographic region.

The gourmet-club trend makes sense, too, in these active living and working days. Many times the menu is planned ahead by the hosts, and then the various courses are brought by club members.

Some clubs allow one couple to plan for "special effects." This might include invitations, decorations, music and possibly entertainment — all appropriate to the evening.

Extra expenses for rental of a film or for special wines and such are divided among the club members.

We think the clubs are a good idea for people who enjoy getting together on a regular basis, have a common interest in good food and like to participate with others to make a successful evening for all.

I'll guide you step by step into your own thriving business

● While keeping your present job, would you like to gross $14 or $21 profit per hour?

a true story by Bob Ferrel

SOME YEARS AGO I was a printer in a small Michigan town.

I drew a pretty fair pay check but it wouldn't stretch far enough to provide the kind of living I wanted for my wife and five children.

Then one day I was reading a magazine just as you now are and I saw an ad. It intrigued me. It offered me the steadily growing income I had always hoped for. It said I would have greater security and personal independence... and that's what I had been wanting.

I was a little skeptical, but I said to myself, "for a postage stamp I can find out." So I mailed the coupon. In a few days, I got a letter with a booklet that gave the whole story. It opened my eyes. I could see why owning my own business was so much easier than I had always thought... why the day to day guidance of a successful worldwide organization could assure my own success.

I read the booklet several times. It just seemed too good to be true. I talked it over with my wife. We decided that now was the time to make the forward step... there was no reason to keep postponing an income increase.

So, I applied for a Duraclean dealership and I was accepted. I stayed with my job... ran a few ads... sent some mailings... contacted a few stores and told my friends about the superior services I was now equipped to give them. Evenings and Saturdays, I rendered the service. As the business grew, I added servicemen.

I found that I didn't have to develop a single idea myself. Every step had been prepared for me and pre-tested. Hundreds of other men had already proven my methods successful.

It didn't take long to see that I was making three to four times (yes, 3 to 4 times) as much per hour in my own business as in my printing job. So, after only seven months with a good following of customers, I quit my job to go full time on my own. In the meantime, I had enjoyed all this extra income on top of my salary.

Each day, we realized what a serious mistake not mailing that coupon would have been... and how that little act that seemed so trivial at the time actually changed our lives.

The steadily growing income brought us many things we could not afford before. My efforts were so much more productive. I scheduled my time to my own liking. When we wanted a day or two off, we took it. I worked hard but, if I wanted to be home early or quit at noon, I did.

This is not a business for a lazy man. But if a man is ambitious and will work to deserve those nice things in life we all want, this business is made to order for such a man.

I became so enthusiastic about this business and so appreciative of what it had brought my family that, whenever a man opened a dealership near me, I helped him get a quick start.

The company learned about this and had each new dealer in my section of Michigan spend a day with me. One day the president of Duraclean Company asked me how I would like to move to Headquarters and spend my entire time helping dealers to increase their sales and profits.

That was good news to my ears. Since then I have worked with hundreds of our dealers in their own towns and at regional meetings, conventions and dealer group meetings. But much of the time I am right here at my desk in touch with our dealers by letter and telephone.

Incidentally I sold my dealership at a good profit. Dealers sell their Duraclean businesses for up to ten times their cost. After 30 months, Leo Lubel sold for $7,116 above his cost. If for any reason a dealer wants to sell, we maintain a service to locate buyers and help him sell.

Our job here at headquarters is to show each individual Duraclean dealer how to use his own abilities to bring him greatest success. I know hundreds of our dealers on a first name basis. We work together as one happy family. If you become a Duraclean dealer, I'll be as close to you as your telephone or mail box.

It's Easier than You Think To Build Your Own Business

If you've wanted to BE YOUR OWN BOSS... to become financially independent and have a fast growing income, now YOU CAN. And you own a Nationally Advertised business.

You can stay at your present job while your customer list grows... then switch to full time, lining up jobs for your servicemen to do. One job a day brings a good starting income.

If you hire two servicemen (full or part time) while you keep your job, the national price guide provides you a gross profit of $14 an hour on their work and this is much easier to do than you think. We show you how... step by step. That's $490 for a 35 hour week.

Your gross profit on three servicemen is $21 per hour. Duraclean dealers find it easy to gross $7 per hour on EACH serviceman plus $12 an hour on any service they themselves render. The 24 page illustrated booklet we'll mail you (with no obligation) explains how most of your gross profit becomes clear net profit. Your income is limited only by the number of servicemen you employ.

You can operate from a shop, office, or your home. Equipment is light and portable.

At the start, you may want to render service yourself... or you can start with full or part time servicemen. This business is easy to learn... easy to start... so easy to service that women dealers do it. We prefer you have no experience... not have to "unlearn" old ways.

We are NOW enlarging this worldwide system of individually-owned service businesses. If you are reliable, honest and willing to work to become financially independent, we invite you to mail the coupon.

When you receive our illustrated booklet, you will see the way we show you step by step how to quickly get customers... and still more customers from their recommendations.

You have 7 superior services that are rendered "on location" in homes, offices, hotels, theaters, clubs, motels and institutions.

These are not ordinary services. You have the prestige and endorsement of leading furniture makers and carpet mills, of Parents' Magazine and McCall's, of Research and Testing Laboratories.

National magazine advertising explains superior merits of your services, builds your customer confidence and brings job leads to you.

We and a Duraclean dealer will train you and assist you. He'll reveal his successful, proven methods. You have pre-tested newspaper and yellow-page ads, commercials, and a full mailing program.

Stores, upholsterers, insurance adjustors, and decorators refer jobs to our dealers. These year 'round services are in constant demand.

Start Small, Grow Big in this Booming Business

Many men have said to us, "I can't afford to give up my job till I know I have a sure thing... a sound business that will provide both security and a better living for my family."

That made sense to us so we worked out such a plan... and those same men are now enjoying a Duraclean dealership in many communities. You don't experiment. You use tested, proven methods. You have our backing and "know how."

Does this appeal to you? Don't decide now. Mail the coupon so you'll have the facts to decide wisely. There is no obligation. You'll then know whether this is what you want.

You can start small and grow big. A third century ago Duraclean was an idea... but it caught fire and spread to a world wide service. Why did it spread? (1) superior processes. (2) proven customer-getting methods (3) Day to day guidance from Headquarters.

Our first service, the care of upholstery and carpets not only cleans, it enlivens the fibers... revives dull colors. Pile rises with new life. There's no harsh machine scrubbing. No soaking. Mild aerated foam lightly applied lifts out dirt, grease, many unsightly spots like magic. Furnishings are used again in a few hours.

Government figures show service businesses are growing faster than industries and stores... $750 million yearly potential just in rug and furniture cleaning. Your 6 other services are explained in the free booklet we'll mail you.

Only $1985 starts you in YOUR OWN business. A day's profit more than pays the monthly payments we finance for you.

Men frequently take in partners. We furnish electric equipment and, with first shipment, enough materials to return your TOTAL investment. If you have good habits and know the importance of customer satisfaction, you can likely qualify for a Duraclean dealership.

TODAY is the time to reserve a Duraclean dealership, before someone takes your location.

It's been said, "Opportunity knocks but once at every man's door." This could be that one rare opportunity in your life.

It is surprisingly easy to learn this business. You can decide from the information we will send you whether to apply for a dealership. So, with no obligation whatever, mail the coupon TODAY. Cut it out NOW so you won't forget to mail it.

Mail this coupon TODAY

It may put you in business

Duraclean International
7-9B9 Duraclean Bldg., Deerfield, Ill. 60015

With no obligation, mail 24 page illustrated booklet telling how and why I can quickly increase my income and family security while still employed, how you'll help finance me. No salesman will call.

PROBING THE MYSTERIES OF THE BRAIN

Why do some people fall prey to senility, alcoholism or insanity? Research at the Salk Institute may give us the answers to these and other medical enigmas.

By Floyd E. Bloom, M.D.

Imagine a computer the size of a soft, squishy grapefruit packed with 10 billion transistors and 10 trillion wires. Imagine, too, that this computer grows to full size all by itself, from a set of plans far too small for the eye to see. And imagine that it spends its long lifetime, commonly 70 years or more, running its own support machinery, that it keeps itself at a comfortable working temperature and supplied with energy and raw materials and that it learns from its own mistakes. Add to all this the ability to add up grocery bills, prepare tax returns, write poetry, enjoy music, dream of dragons and fall in love.

What you have imagined, of course, is your own brain.

Here at The Salk Institute, perched on a cliff overlooking the Pacific Ocean in La Jolla, Calif., my colleagues and I are trying to find out a little about how the brain does all these things. We're studying how our own personal computers allow us to think and reason and feel emotion — all through the chemical and electrical changes that go on inside them.

We also are trying to understand such things as why our brains start to fail us as we get older, why they sometimes drive us to seek alcohol and drugs and why they occasionally become confused by the world around us and retreat into madness. Gaining insight into these mysteries is a goal that only a few years ago would have been hopelessly overambitious. Solving them today is still well beyond reach, but no longer out of sight.

A major interest of our laboratory is in mapping different circuits within the brain, much like an electrician traces circuits in a house. We hope one day to be able to say, "Here's the circuit that controls such-and-so — hunger, perhaps, or feeling good." We may already have a lead on the brain's "feeling good" circuit. We suspect it may involve one of the chemicals — norepinephrine — the brain uses for passing messages around its circuits.

Every minute of your life, waking or sleeping, the 10 billion nerve cells in your brain are talking to one another flashing messages back and forth, messages that urge the cells to go faster, go slower. We've developed ways to eavesdrop on this brain-cell chatter. We can insert fine wires and tubes into the brains of animals and listen to the cells converse. The trouble is, we don't know what they are saying. These "go faster" and "go slower" signals, carried by chemical transmitters like norepinephrine, are part of a much more complex brain language we don't know how to interpret at the moment.

What we can do, though, is find out which cells are talking to one other. We've tracked down the brain cells that use norepinephrine to carry their messages. This particular circuit of cells is interesting because it seems to start in a region of the brain that we like to regard as a potential "satisfaction center" — that is, a group of nerve cells on which signals converge to register that what we are doing — or have just done — is satisfying.

We know a lot about one such center in rats. If a rat is wired so that it can give itself a very tiny electric shock in this center whenever it presses a lever in its cage, it will go on pressing the lever, ignoring food and drink and even members of the opposite sex, until it drops from exhaustion. Clearly, the rat likes what it feels.

Alcoholics and drug addicts often behave in a way that stimulates their pleasure centers. They pursue their habit even at great personal cost. People drink, for example, because they interpret their responses as reducing their anxieties and lifting their spirits — at least for a while. They appear to be "rewarded" for their drinking as the rat is "rewarded" for pressing the lever in his cage. Our suggestion is that the norepinephrine "feeling good" circuit may be switched on in both cases.

If we are right — and only more research will tell — we might find ways to activate the brain's reward circuits without using alcohol or drugs. If we can do that, then we might have found a way to cure these destructive addictions.

The biological basis of cancer, diabetes and autoimmune diseases, as well as the brain studies described in the above article, are part of the ongoing research at The Salk Institute. To find out how you can help support this research write: The Salk Institute, Box 1809, San Diego, Calif. 92112. Please enclose 25 cents for postage and handling.

Dr. Bloom is research professor and director of the Arthur Vining Davis Center for Behavioral Neurobiology at The Salk Institute. He is internationally regarded as one of the leading authorities on chemical messengers in the brain.

Observations

Talk, talk, talk. There's plenty of it in Washington about our need for more oil, but why won't they let us go find it? Some say there's not enough left to bother exploring in the U.S., but we've heard that argument since 1920, when a government report warned that U.S. production was peaking. Despite this doomsaying, U.S. Geological Survey experts think there are still more natural gas liquids and oil under America than all that have been pumped out since the first well was drilled. Which is why we say: let's put more push behind developing oil, gas, and coal resources and less on sacrificing American living standards and lifestyles.

Homing on the range. Reducing energy waste can help, although it can't by itself resolve the energy crisis. When you're grilling hamburgers, you'll use less energy with your electric frying pan than with the electric stove, say researchers at the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell. Its Energy Task Force praises such convenient kitchen "toys" as egg poachers, toaster ovens, and radiant broilers because they have enclosed heating elements, requiring less energy for the task they're designed for. An electric skillet can handle many of the functions normally assigned to the range—like stewing, pan broiling, and even some baking. Toys no more!

Practice what you preach. What U.S. industry was among the most conservation-conscious last year? Oil. A group of 51 refiners saved the equivalent of 67 million barrels in 1976, compared with 1972. That's about three percent of the country's total imports for the year. And it made the oil industry the only large industrial energy user in the country to trim unit consumption more than 12 percent below 1972 levels. Participants in the voluntary program aren't stopping there; they've pledged to boost this to 20 percent by 1980.

Dusting away energy waste. A good conservation habit is the once-a-year practice of disconnecting your refrigerator and freezer and vacuuming the compressor unit and coils. Dust in these areas acts as an insulator, lowering refrigerator efficiency and raising energy consumption. While you're at it, check the doors for air leaks. The easiest way is to close the door on a dollar bill. If you can slide the bill out easily, you need a new gasket—which you'll probably find at your local hardware or appliance store.

A quote we like. "We need not fear, to the extent we did in the past, environmental consequences of offshore oil exploration and production." President Jimmy Carter.

End Lawn Fade-Out — Brown-Out — Bleach-Out FOREVER!

NOW! Turn Your Lawn SOLID GREEN
IN JUST 5 TO 7 MINUTES...

Keep it looking lush
as a golf-green
ALL 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR!

Amazing INSTANT "GREEN-GROWTH" FORCE made from wonder-compounds used regularly by Country Clubs, Golf Courses, on Government Lawns, Municipal Parks, Major League Stadiums and Giants of Industry (such as the Telephone Co.), gives you an "ALWAYS-GREEN, NEVER BROWN" lawn ALL 12 MONTHS OF THE YEAR!

PROVEN SO EFFECTIVE — A SINGLE THIMBLEFUL OF THIS AMAZING "LAWN PLASMA" TURNS 1,000 SQUARE FEET OF LAWN LOOKING LUSH AS A GOLF-GREEN IN JUST MINUTES!

How many times have you slaved over your lawn all spring . . . nursed and bled it day in, day out . . . only to see sizzling summer suns drain and bleach out every last trace of color? Yes, how many times have you seen blistering "dog-day" heat turn your lawn from a lush green carpet to a shaggy quilt of half-straw, half-grass . . . starving for color and begging for life?

WORKS SO FAST YOU'LL SEE YOUR LAWN DRINK ITSELF GREEN RIGHT BEFORE YOUR EYES!

Well, do you know that in this country there now exists a "wonder serum" for lawns called "LAWN PLASMA" that is so fast-acting — even dry, dead-looking brown grass drinks itself back to emerald green in less time than it takes you to read this page!

Do you know that this brilliant wonder-plasma (based on a discovery by Nobel prize-winning German scientist Emil Fischer), is so powerfully effective it not only turns your lawn a luscious green in just 5 to 7 minutes . . . but keeps it green even through scorching heat waves . . . even through rainless drought . . . in fact, even if you forget to water your lawn for days at a time!

NOW! NO MORE YELLOW STREAKS — BROWN PATCHES, OR FADED "SUN-TANNED" GRASS! — EVEN IN DROUGHT!

And do you know that because "LAWN PLASMA" is actually absorbed on contact . . . penetrates and adsorbed by each blade of grass . . . you can now turn your entire lawn a rich, velvety green in minutes . . . and with regular 5-minute treatments KEEP IT GREEN ALL 52 WEEKS OF THE YEAR!

Yes, just like world-famous golf courses, municipal parks and Government memorial-lawns have finally licked the problem of summertime burn-out and wintertime fade-out . . . so can you enjoy a rich carpet of green lawn EACH AND EVERY DAY OF THE YEAR — thanks to wondrous "LAWN PLASMA".

YES! THIS IS THE NEW 1977 IMPROVED VERSION OF THE SAME INSTANT "GREEN TRANSFUSION" THAT'S THE SECRET OF THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN GROUNDSKEEPER!

Just think! Now when sizzling summer heat turns your neighbors lawns into a sea of straw . . . your lawn will be as fresh, green and rich-looking as on a dewy April morning . . . and can stay that way ALL 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR! And it's all so easy, even a 6-year-old child can perform this instant wonder-treatment.

Simply mix a single spoonful of "LAWN PLASMA" in water . . . then, with nothing more than a few sprinkles from a child's watering pail or a quick spraying from your garden hose you give your lawn the wonder-treatment of its life.

Simply sprinkle "LAWN PLASMA" on any brown spot, yellow streak, color-starved patch . . . even on grass so bleached, weak and faded you'd swear it was dead. Then step back . . . and be absolutely amazed how in mere minutes your entire lawn transforms itself into a rich carpet of green . . . a year-round ALWAYS GREEN, NEVER BROWN LAWN that you can keep looking as good in December as it did in May!

EASY AS WATERING — CANNOT HARM A SINGLE BLADE OF GRASS — COSTS BUT MERE PENNIES A TREATMENT!

And remember — "LAWN PLASMA" is as safe and gentle as water for your grass. It cannot harm a single blade. This INSTANT GREEN wonder formula is used on the world's most expensive lawns — and even on million-dollar country clubs. In fact, so sure are we you will be absolutely thrilled by the wonders "LAWN PLASMA" can do for your lawn that we make this unprecedented offer:

IT MUST WORK THE SAME WONDERS FOR YOUR LAWN AS IT DOES FOR COUNTRY CLUBS, GOLF COURSES, MAJOR LEAGUE STADIUMS, AND GOVERNMENT

LAWNS — OR YOU KEEP IT FREE AND IT COSTS YOU NOTHING!

Yes — if just minutes after applying "LAWN PLASMA" you can find one single bleached out blade of grass in your lawn — if with just a few applications your entire lawn doesn't keep its rich green color smack through 100-degree heat waves or summer-long droughts — in fact, if your lawn isn't the lushest-looking, greenest lawn in the neighborhood within 5 to 7 minutes after applying "LAWN PLASMA" . . . keep it FREE . . . it doesn't cost you a single cent . . . Just send back the box-top anytime and your money will be refunded in full (less postage and handling, of course). Could anything be possibly fairer?

THE QUEEN OF ROMANCE

At age 76, Barbara Cartland, the world's best-selling author of old-fashioned love stories, still turns out 20 books a year.

By Hans Knight

One recent afternoon, a blond, blue-eyed woman dressed in red velvet swept into the library of Camfield Place, a 30-room mansion in the heart of rural England. She eased herself onto a sofa, daintily placed one foot upon a hot-water bottle and began to talk a book — literally.

Three secretaries, working in relays, took down her every word. This, after all, was no idle monologue. The words that poured out in a melodious, three-hour stream formed a chapter in the latest novel by Barbara Cartland, Britain's unrivaled queen of romance.

At 76, Mrs. Cartland, who looks like a blend of Mae West and Zsa Zsa Gabor, is the world's best-selling author of old-fashioned romantic fiction. "My dear," she explains cheerfully over tea, "I am a phenomenon. There simply hasn't been anyone like me — ever."

That may be no exaggeration. Since penning Jigsaw at 21, her first earl-meets-girl novel, she has sold more than 70 million copies of her 200-plus books.

Long in demand in Europe and Asia, her novels recently invaded the United States when American publishers gambled that American women (and maybe some men, too) might be thirsting for some bubbly champagne amid the meaty diet of realism. The gamble has paid off: "We have trouble keeping up with the demand," marvels her publisher.

If demand threatens to outpace production, it is scarcely Mrs. Cartland's fault. "I am turning out the books as fast as I can talk," she frets in mock despair. "Last year I wrote 20 books. This year I expect to break my record — I'll write 21. What more can they expect from an old lady?"

As Cartland worshippers know, the plots of her novels, with titles such as The Disgraceful Duke, Passions in the Sand, The Heart Triumphant, are basic: beautiful, virtuous damsel in distress meets haughtily handsome, equally virtuous, duke in a perilous setting. (The damsels never succumb to the siren song of sex.) They are beset by such dangers as highway robbers, foreign spies and evil uncles before true love triumphs.

Although the stories abound in flowery fantasy, the backgrounds are authentic. "Underneath all that jam," insists Mrs. Cartland, "my novels are jolly educational. I have traveled all over the world, I study history intensively, and I know how lords and ladies talk — I've moved among them all my life."

When she does have to ask for expert help, she gets it. When she needed an authentic description of a naval battle for The Dream and the Glory, she simply invited Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, the hero of Burma and an old friend, to write the passage for her.

While some literary observers are baffled by the success of 19th-century romance in a remorselessly explicit age, Mrs. Cartland is not. "Look, my dear," she says patiently. "It stands to reason. There is so much ugliness around us today. Where is grace, chivalry, elegance? Everybody is running about in jeans looking perfectly awful. Women are longing for beauty. And men are romantics, too."

Born into an upper-crust family hard-hit by World War I — her father died in Flanders in 1918 — she took up journalism under the expert tutelage of newspaper tycoon Lord Beaverbrook. In time, she says, "I came to know virtually everybody who was anybody, from prime ministers to Indian yogis. Admittedly, I was extremely spirited and pretty."

Mrs. Cartland also is aware of the problems of our world. She has fought for better wages and conditions for nurses and midwives and established Britain's first permanent Romany gypsy camp in Hatfield (the gypsies named it Barbaraville). An ardent health advocate, she is a coveted speaker at health rallies and opens health-food shops with the flair of an empress.

Widowed since 1963, she is the mother of two sons and a daughter, all of whom frequently caution her against acting like a "liberated" woman. "I've always been liberated," she says. "But I've also always believed in being feminine."

Long interested in politics, Mrs. Cartland served on the Hertfordshire county council for almost 10 years. In addition, she has written several historical works and is now writing her biography. "I have to update it constantly," she sighs happily. "So much is always happening in my life."

Recent happenings include a holiday in Peru, where she traveled across the Andes at 12,000 feet "in a very, very old English train with every window broken," and a long interview with Mike Wallace on CBS's Sixty Minutes. ("A delightful man, this Mike. He really likes women. They say he is tough, but he is really a pussycat.")

Does she ever relax from her hectic schedule? "My dear" she laughs. "I can relax in the grave, and I haven't the slightest intention of doing that. Too much to do, you see."

INDEPENDENT COLLEGES: A VITAL NATIONAL RESOURCE

Only America has a multitude of privately supported universities that offer excellence in both teaching and research.

By Robert A. Plane

This month seven million of the country's young people are going to college. Most feel they are working toward fulfilling the American dream. For them, a college education is the key to success and increased earnings. A typical result may be found at Clarkson College (Potsdam, N.Y.), where a majority of graduates surpass their parents' annual earnings within seven years after graduation. There was a saying in my family two generations ago that went, "Spend your money on education, the one investment nobody can take away from you."

Going to college is not just selfish. Educated citizens are essential for a democracy — particularly in today's technological world. This truth was recognized by Thomas Jefferson and the other founders of the Republic. It was given substance a century ago by the Morrill Land Grant Act, which designated and funded universities in every state for children of the working classes. In this century access to higher education was boosted by the GI Bill following World War II.

The result of these Federal Government actions has been the establishment of state colleges and universities, and, more recently, local junior colleges. Of this fall's college students, three out of four will be enrolling in public institutions. The proportion of students at independent colleges has been steadily declining from the 50-50 mix just two decades ago.

Dr. Plane, a professor of chemistry and a nationally recognized scholar, is president of Clarkson College. He also is a member of the New York State Commissioner's Advisory Council on Higher Education and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities. In a future issue FAMILY WEEKLY will report on the case for state-supported universities.

Yet most private colleges have survived, and their survival in the face of a large tuition gap between themselves and state colleges demonstrates that they are meeting a national need. They compete for good students by making the education they offer worth the high price. That means making their programs responsive to society's and students' needs.

Among independent colleges are found both the leaders of traditional education, like Harvard and Swarthmore, as well as the innovators, like the Claremont Colleges of California. Private colleges can experiment with existing academic programs and add new ones more easily than public institutions can because their purse strings are not tied to state legislatures.

One characteristic that distinguishes most private colleges is genuine concern for the individual student. Their size — most have fewer than 800 students — and their residential atmosphere enable students to develop close personal relationships with both teachers and fellow students.

Because the strengths of independent colleges seem so obvious, we often fail to realize how fortunate America is to have them. We wouldn't expect to find such colleges in a Communist country, but I was surprised to read recently in the New York Times that Britain has only one independent college, the University College at Buckingham.

In America the concept is that everyone should have the opportunity for a college education, and our record belies the British fear of the independent college. Here, where there are strong institutions in both the public and private sectors, independent colleges have provided more than their proportionate share of national leaders, Nobel Laureates, Governmental advisers and research advances.

These institutions are also the leaders in most academic fields. In addition to the great law, medical and business schools at the well-known universities, a sampling of superior programs at private colleges includes: journalism at Northwestern and Columbia, music at the Juilliard School, art at the Philadelphia College of Art, drama at Yale, oceanography at Miami, engineering at MIT and Cal. Tech, foreign service and diplomacy at Georgetown and Tufts.

Furthermore, independent colleges do not enroll just the rich and state colleges the poor, as many think. New York State, with both the largest state university system and the largest independent sector, which comprises over 100 colleges and 40 percent of the state's college students, illustrates the fact. Of students in the independent colleges, 25 percent come from families whose net taxable income is $5,000 per year or less. In the state universities 26 percent do.

Independent colleges are able to serve worthy students from low-income families because they can offer student aid. At a typical state school all undergraduates are handed the same tax-subsidized tuition. At a typical private college the much higher tuition is paid only by those able to do so. For example, at Clarkson only one student in 10 pays the full tuition of nearly $1,800 per semester. The other 90 percent receive aid (scholarships, jobs, low-interest loans) based on family need.

Student payments do not cover the full cost of education at a private college. In recent years some states have recognized the public service provided by these institutions and grant them direct aid, but it is a fraction of the aid provided for state schools. Greater amounts are received from private gifts. The private donor has seen the importance of colleges and has made education a major recipient of charitable giving.

For students to have a choice among diverse colleges that are not publically funded is vital to a democracy and to the intellectual health of a nation. By acting on the American principles of being independent of collective authority, of focusing on the individual and of settling only for the best, independent colleges deserve a continuing place in the American dream.

How to Achieve Total Financial Freedom

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you. But it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than you.

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was just a few years ago.

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidentally, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa). I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, in fact it seemed too easy.

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who although not very smart, has made $117,000 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work

Mark Haroldsen, pictured with his wife Lois, spent four years perfecting a "wealth formula" and became a millionaire in the process: "I've found," says Haroldsen, "that most people just need a very specific road map to follow . . . they can do what I've done."

any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending a lot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straightforward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific. (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done/ in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.
- Put $10,000 cash in your pocket each time you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets every year. Legally avoid paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at 1/2 their market value.
- Allow you to travel one week out of every month.

When you send me a check or money order for $10, I will send you all my formulas and methods, and you are free to use them anywhere and as often as you would like.

Now, if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, simply because those of you who order my material will be helping to increase my net worth.

You shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. I guarantee that you'll be satisfied that my methods will help you or I'll send your money back!

TO ORDER Simply take any size paper, write the words "Financial Freedom", and send your name and address, along with a check for $10.00 to Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., Dept. E-837, Tudor Mansion Bldg., 4751 Holladay Blvd., Salt Lake City, Utah 84117.

If you send for my material now, I will also send you documents that will show you precisely how you can borrow from $20,000 to $200,000 at 2% above the prime rate using just your signature as collateral.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy about sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply post-date it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk. If you would like to check a financial reference, I have listed one below:

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

FIRST AND SECOND AID

My wife has shelves of beauty aids.
They fill our bathroom nearly.
And why they call them beauty aids
I understand quite clearly.
They aid my wife, of course, and yet
They have another duty.
That is to say, these beauty aids
Are made to aid her beauty.
And since her beauty's really what I see more oft than she,
I'd say these beauty aids in truth
Are meant for aiding me.

MONEY

Sneaky Ways To Save

One family recently kept careful track of how much each person (mother, father, two teenage children) spent in one month out of their weekly petty-cash allowances. The total amounted them: $113.35. Since reducing that amount by only 25 percent would mean a yearly saving of $340, they decided to

LITTLE EMILY

"Great hamburger, Pop. There's a spot between the raw and burnt parts that's just scrumptious."

"Lord, teach us to pray"

The need for prayer — especially in time of danger or anxiety — is instinctive in almost everyone. Yet many people regard it chiefly as a means of obtaining God's favors. And when everything they pray for is not granted, they often wonder if God is really listening.

Christ's teachings on prayer, however, reveal that God does indeed hear and answer each of our prayers... but not necessarily by granting every favor we want or think we need.

To help you understand why this is so, we have prepared a special pamphlet explaining the true meaning and purpose of prayer. You will learn from it how Christ gave us the Lord's Prayer not merely as words to be recited, but as the model for perfect prayer. And you will learn, too, the truth of Our Lord's promise: "Ask, and it shall be given you."

For your free copy of this pamphlet, just mail the coupon below. There is no obligation and nobody will call on you.

No Contest

Ed Nelson has a hobby that pays — entering sweepstakes and contests. Nelson, a retired air-traffic controller who lives in Jacksonville, Fla., has gotten sweepstakes-entering down to enough of a science that he's won as many as 67 prizes in a single year. Some of his favorite prizes have been a 10-day fishing trip to Sweden, a $7,000 car, a stereo and enough portable radios to supply his entire family, including grandchildren. How does he do it? Well, Nelson says he only enters a sweepstakes "if the odds are in my favor to win something." He prefers local sweepstakes because they have fewer entrants, and he finds out about current competitions by subscribing to a contest newsletter. Nelson advises following the official rules exactly ("if they say a 3-by-5 card they mean it") and using official entry blanks when possible. You'll also give yourself an edge by spreading your entries over the life of the sweepstakes and mailing them from different mailboxes. And whether you print or write, do it neatly — as many as 40% of entries have to be thrown away because the name or address is illegible.

A Mental Edge

If your favorite sports figure is in a slump, it might be because he hasn't seen his hypnotist lately. Los Angeles hypnotist Arthur Ellen, who recently hypnotized the entire California Angels baseball team before a game against Seattle (the Angels won), has been successfully working with sports figures since the 1940's, when he gave Giants manager Leo Durocher a hand. Since then, Ellen's sports clients have included Maury Wills, Ken Norton, Orlando Cepeda and Nolan Ryan. "Hypnotism doesn't give anyone talent," says Ellen. "The aim is to help the individual develop freedom from being distracted by emotional factors so that he can give the best performance he's capable of." Ellen says that one source of pressure on athletes is their high salaries. "Because of their publicized salaries, the athletes feel the need to be excellent, and public scrutiny by the fans can make them start worrying about the acuity of their skills."

Education For The Handicapped

Although there's been a law on the books for almost 2 years that has made important changes in Government policy concerning education of the handicapped, many parents still may be unaware of its provisions. Dr. Scottie Torres, an asst. dir. for policy research at the Council for Exceptional Children, says the most important provision of the law, "The Education for All Handicapped Children Act" (P.L. 94-142), "requires that every handicapped child get an appropriate education at no cost to the parent." Other provisions are that a written, individualized education program be developed for each child and that handicapped children must be placed in the least restrictive environment possible. You can get a copy of P.L. 94-142 by writing your Congressman. For a list of publications on education for the handicapped, write: Council for Exceptional Children, 1920 Association Dr., Reston, Va. 22091.

Drawing Cards

Does your child bring home drawings you think only a mother could love? That's what dozens of other parents thought, too — until their children's art work was accepted for publication by the Hello Studio, a card company whose line includes 72 greeting cards designed by children. "After their child's card is accepted, so many parents say, 'I never thought my child was talented; now I'll go out and buy him an easel,'" says Shelli Lipton, a New York artist, who is one of 4 partners that run the company. Lipton feels children's art work appeals to buyers of all ages because "children have no preconceived ideas." Hello Studio invites young artists and writers to submit original work for publication. Although the studio doesn't pay the children, each card used is signed by the artist, and 5% of sales earnings are donated to organizations for needy children. Even children whose art isn't selected for publication are winners — they receive a special certificate. Material may be sent to: Children's Art Collection, Hello Studio, 587 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Quick Takes

If you think cosmetics are only for people, guess again. Chemical Week magazine says that $10 million is spent annually on "horse cosmetics" and other horse-care products, such as shampoo coat shiners, hoof blackeners and even eye wash.... A nationwide Harris survey reports that the average American vacation is 8.5 days long, costs $470 and involves 873 miles of travel.... Talk about taking coals to Newcastle: Japan is preparing to sell hamburgers in the U.S. The first Japanese-owned franchise is scheduled to open next year, probably in San Francisco.... The average college freshman these days is now a freshman. The Census Bureau reports that women now outnumber men in university undergraduate schools by 200,000, making up 52% of the total undergraduate student body.

Colleges Stress Basic Writing

Convinced that there has been a deterioration in the ability of today's students to assemble subjects, verbs and objects on paper in a coherent fashion, colleges across the country are moving vigorously to bolster their teaching of basic writing. From the University of Maine to Stanford University, colleges are dusting off old writing requirements, adding new freshman composition courses and pouring thousands of dollars into elaborate "writing centers" stocked with cassette recorders, videotapes and other electronic gear. In addition, the College Entrance Examination Board has announced that this fall it is adding a short-answer test of standard written English to its college admissions testing program and reinstating a 20-minute essay section in its English composition achievement test.

I GOT THE WAGON ALL FIXED, TIGER

HOW MANY WILL IT HOLD?

LET'S FIND OUT

I GUESS IT'LL ONLY HOLD LESS THAN FIVE

Prince Valiant

Our Story: WHEN QUEEN HYPATIA LOADED THE CATAPULT WITH HER JEWEL CASE TO HURL AT THE ENEMY, VAL SUSPECTED SHE HAD LOST HER MIND.

FOR KHAZAN IS COMING SLOWLY ACROSS THE FLOODING FIELDS, URGING ON HIS RELUCTANT MEN.

WHEN THE ENEMY IS CLOSE ENOUGH, THE CATAPULT HURLS ITS GLITTERING PROJECTILE. IF THIS STRATEGY WORKS, IT MAY CAUSE A DELAY.

IT ALMOST HITS KHAZAN AND BREAKS OPEN IN A SPARKLING SHOWER OF GEMS. "WHY STORM THE WALLS WHEN THEY THROW THE PLUNDER OUT TO US?"

OTHER PRECIOUS MISSILES FOLLOW AND KHAZAN LOSES ALL CONTROL OF HIS AVARICIOUS TROOPS. IN HIS ANGER, HE CUTS DOWN A FEW WITH HIS SCIMITAR, BUT THE REST RISK HIS ANGER AND DELVE INTO THE MUD FOR JEWELS.

KHAZAN REFUSES TO BELIEVE THAT HIS MEN WOULD DESERT HIM, AND PLUNGES AHEAD INTO THE RISING FLOOD THAT GROWS DEEPER BY THE MINUTE.

KHAZAN, 'FAVORED OF HEAVEN,' 'SCOURGE OF THE INFIDEL,' MUST CHOOSE THE MANNER OF HIS DEATH. TO STAND THERE AND DROWN IN THE RISING FLOOD, OR DIE AT THE HANDS OF QUEEN HYPATIA'S FEMALE ARCHERS. HE CHOOSES TO DROWN.

SO THE RAID ENDS AND VULTURES ARRIVE. NOW QUEEN HYPATIA FACES THE NECESSITY OF CLEANING UP THE WRECKAGE OF BATTLE BEFORE THE PLAGUE TAKES ITS TOLL.

When the baby comes I'll have to quit my job at Wiwaco!

That's not till April!

We'll have to live on what you make at the garage!

A flea couldn't live on that!

Maybe Pop will give you a raise!

I'm already making more than I'm worth!

Slim, we have to plan ahead!

Let's worry about it when it happens!

Something will turn up!

Your mail, dears!

What turned up?

Four bills!
