Two School Boards Asked Plan Merger

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners last night adopted a resolution asking the Greenville City and Pitt County Boards of Education to appoint a committee to study, plan and implement the merger of the two school districts.

The resolution calling for the merger plan cited disagreement between the two administrative units over district attendance areas and on the sharing of capital outlay funds received from tax levy and bond issue as two reasons for the merger.

The resolution also said "The administration and fiscal management would be much more efficient...and programs for the education of the school children could be better developed and administered." If the two administrative units were merged.

"The interest of each school child would be a paramount consideration of a single school board instead of being a struggle for funds based on attendance in each school administrative unit," the resolution continued adding that "the student population and school census does not justify the expense of two administrations."

The resolution also said, "Time is of the essence and the plan of merger should be approved by both Boards of Education and submitted to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in time for the next regular session of the Legislature to adopt enabling legislation if necessary."

Pitt County Attorney W. W. Speight, in explaining the resolution, said the committee from both education boards would plan for the merger. Any plan, he noted, would have to be approved by both Boards of Education as well as by the Board of County Commissioners.

Speight noted that the plan developed by the committee could call for a referendum on the issue — which would be binding. If no referendum is called for, Speight said, the plan must meet the approval of the State Board of Education.

Henry Dunn, chairman of the Greenville City Board of Education said he was not speaking for the board, but said "personally, I'm concerned with the language in the last paragraph..." which indicated the plan should be approved before the 1979 session of the General Assembly, some 18 months away.

Stuart Tripp, principal of Ayden Elementary School, said it was an attempt to correct a previous error.

Lance To Senators: His Record Is Misunderstood

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance told Senate interrogators today he may have made mistakes in running his Georgia banks but allegations about his financial past have been "erroneous... misrepresented... exaggerated and... misunderstood."

"I do not contend that I made no mistakes when running these banks," Lance said in his opening statement to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

"But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he said.

"Some of the claims are erroneous, some are misrepresented, some are exaggerated and some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts," Lance said.

UNSUBSTANTIATED, ALSO

Did you know that anyone at all could call your local Department of Social Services and report that you are abusing or neglecting your children? Your name and the names of your children and a lot of information about you would then go in to a central computerized registry of child abusers and neglecters in Raleigh, even if the report were determined by local social workers to be unfounded and even if a court found it to be unwarranted.

You sent along a copy of the form that is sent to the central registry and a copy of the law and you seem to have your facts right, according to Mary Lehman, Family Services Supervisor of the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

However, Mrs. Lehman does not feel as strongly as you, a social worker in a county far from Pitt, that the law is dangerous. She said she feels it is useful in that it allows for "tracking" of child abusers and neglecters from one part of the state to another and also in confirmation if the same parents come to the attention of the same or different county departments more than once.

Adopt More Compact Swimming Lesson Schedule

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
A new more compact time session for swimming lessons at the municipal pool was adopted at the September meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission on Wednesday night.

Instead of the prolonged, all summer session for swimming instruction, the new plan will provide 18 lessons of 45 minutes each to be completed within a time span of four weeks or slightly less. Fee for the course of instruction remains the same, $5.

This action followed a recommendation by pool manager Jim Parker that a more compactly structured plan would be beneficial to those taking instruction. Parker explained that up until now, swim students could string instruction out at times of their choice, resulting in some days with no students on hand, and other days where the program was oversubscribed.

In a comprehensive report of the operation of the pool during the past summer, Parker showed that total revenues for the season came to $5,111.72. Expenditures for the season are approximately $11,421. (The exact amount cannot be tallied until phone and utility bills are in for August).

This results in the pool having operated with a 55 per cent deficit.

However, Parker noted, "the deficit would have been less than 50 per cent, or about the same as past years, had it not been for the installation of racing lane markers and starting platforms which made our expenditures considerably higher. Also this year we used a single chlorinated system all summer which added to the operating costs."

Compromise Attained On Chicod Creek Watershed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A settlement in the legal hassle involving the controversial Chicod Creek Watershed Project was reached Wednesday as the parties involved agreed to a compromise arrangement that would modify the original project format.

Under the agreement, signed by U.S. District Court Judge John D. Larkins Jr., some 58 miles of the 66-mile Chicod project will be channelized while the remaining mileage in a swampy section of the creek would only be cleared and snagged of logs and other debris.

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service had sought to deepen and modify the 66 miles of stream channels in the watershed as a means of reducing flooding, providing water management for adjacent farmlands and improving the area's agricultural productivity.

A lawsuit involving five environmental groups, led by the Natural Resources Defense Council, was filed in 1971 against the SCS. The injunction granted following the lawsuit stopped work on the project.

Between 20-32 Million Americans Said In Need Of Mental Health Care

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 20 million and 32 million Americans need mental health care, a new report to the government says, but help is often unavailable because of inadequate community services, costs that are too high or the stigma of mental illness.

The time has come for mental health care to become part of a broader effort to deal with human needs," concludes the preliminary report of the President's Commission on Mental Health, released today.

The report notes that 15 per cent of the population need some form of help, ranging from counseling to long-term care, not counting the six million who are mentally retarded.

At any one time, the report adds, about 25 per cent of the country is under enough emotional stress that a doctor might diagnose such people as suffering from depression or anxiety.

Reverse Decision

AYDEN — The controversial merger of the Ayden and Grifton sixth-eighth grades received support Tuesday night when the Ayden Advisory Council reversed its original decision to oppose the issue.

Stuart Tripp, principal of Ayden Elementary School, said it was an attempt to correct a previous error.

Tripp said that Ayden came out against the merger in a previous meeting because they felt that this was what Grifton residents wanted.

"They didn't want to force ourselves on Grifton," he added. "Last night they decided that this wasn't the right thing to do. They thought that the merger was the best thing for the kids, so they went back and reversed the earlier decision."

The Grifton Town Board decided Tuesday night to oppose the consolidation. Tripp had no comment on the opposing views.

Massage Parlor Patron Not There for Backrub

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to HURT WIFE, who asked, "What makes a happily married, religious man go to a place like a massage parlor?" you replied: "Curiosity. Lust. An itch for variety. The fear of missing something. Wanting to be 'one of the boys.' Being too chicken to refuse when one of his pals suggested it. Temporary insanity." Abby, did it ever occur to you that maybe he just wanted a massage!

ARTHUR

DEAR ARTHUR: It's possible. But if YOU had been writing this column for more than 20 years, I'll bet that's the LAST answer you'd have come up with.

DEAR ABBY: I may be old-fashioned, but I can't see teaching sixth and seventh graders sex in the schoolroom. They are a long way from needing that kind of information. Why rush them? If you start putting ideas about sex into their heads, first thing you know, they'll start experimenting.

No wonder we have so many unmarried mothers among teenagers. I read in your column that venereal disease is now an epidemic in this country.

What can be done to stop all this sex education, Abby?

CONCERNED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR CONCERNED: If there really WERE all the sex education you claim there is, we'd have LESS teenage pregnancy and V.D.—not more.

No one has to put "ideas" about sex into the heads of children. It's there already. Sexual feelings and curiosity about sex are natural and normal in all children. And so is experimenting.

Ideally, parents should provide their children with a proper sex education, but surveys show that most of them do not, so some schools provide it. Unfortunately, the only states that have laws requiring sex education in the schools are Hawaii, Kentucky, Michigan, Maryland, Missouri and North Dakota. (Louisiana expressly forbids it.) The old saying, "What you don't know can't hurt you" is not true. On the contrary—it CAN hurt you. And it's hurting all of us.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people place so much importance on manners? From the time kids learn to walk and talk, adults hassle them about manners and being polite.

I don't see what good it does to stand up when an older person or a lady comes into the room. And there are dozens of other rules that come under the heading of "manners" that make no sense at all.

Maybe you can explain it to me.

DON'T GET IT

DEAR DON'T: To answer your question, no one said it better than the late and great Amy Vanderbilt:

"Good manners are the traffic rules for society in general. Without good manners, living would be chaotic, human beings unbearable to each other. Reduced to a phrase, good manners is consideration of other people in respect to their feelings, their safety, their privacy and their full social rights and privileges."

Advise Limits In Using Mammography

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A national breast cancer detection program should be continued, but its use of breast X rays should be restricted because of their potential for causing the disease in some women, a National Cancer Institute advisory group said today.

The report, presented today at a breast cancer screening meeting, said X-raying breasts, a process called mammography, effectively finds cancer that goes undetected by other methods.

But too much is unknown about the possibility of radiation causing cancer for mammography to be used routinely on all women, particularly those under age 50, the study said.

Attending the meeting at the National Institutes of Health is a group of scientists, physicians and laypersons who hope to develop a consensus on whether the detection program should be continued and what it should include.

The report reviewed data from the $54 million Breast Cancer Detection Demonstration Project, cosponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society, in which up to 270,000 volunteer women aged 35 and older are being screened for five years.

The value of the project has been questioned not only because of mammography, but also because it is still unclear if early detection improves long-term survival, as many medical authorities believe.

Project officials say the program so far has uncovered more than 2,500 cancers, using various screening methods.

The advisory group, headed by Dr. Oliver H. Beahrs of the Mayo Clinic, last January began reviewing the project to see what has been learned and if it could be applied to future controlled studies to resolve unanswered questions about early detection.

The current program began in 1973 with 12 medical centers and later expanded to a total of 27. Each center project is to screen about 10,000 women a year for five years, using a variety of methods, including physical examinations and thermography.

The advisory group recommended dropping thermography as a routine procedure in the program because it missed many cancers detected by X rays. Thermography is a method of measuring heat variations in the breast in hopes of spotting cancer "hot spots."

At a briefing, Beahrs said thermography still has potential and should be kept as an option. But he said the method, which has no risks and is cheaper than X rays, isn't yet good enough to stand alone.

The report said routine yearly mammographies should be restricted to women aged 50 and over, who are at highest risk of the disease. Women age 40 to 49 should have X-ray exams only if they had previous breast cancer or close female relatives had the disease, an indication of hereditary risk factor.

The study group said women 35 to 39 years of age should be screened with mammography only if they previously had breast cancer. The current program guidelines also allow this group X-ray exams if close relatives, such as a mother or sister, had cancer.

Town Keeps Its 31 MPH Limit

TRENTON, Tenn. (AP) — The speed limit in Trenton is 31 miles per hour and that's the way it will remain despite pressure from the Tennessee Transportation Department, the City Council has decreed.

The council voted Tuesday to retain the limit even though it means the city will have to bear the cost of replacing some old rusty speed limit signs.

The state offered to pay for the new signs if the city would adopt a more common speed limit — say 30 mph or even 35 mph — like other cities.

"Of the people that have talked to me, a big majority of old people and young people think it's unique and want it to stay as it is," said Mayor Glen Hurt.

The speed limit was set about 20 years ago.

Driver Collided With A House

Investigators reported the Jackson car collided with a house at 1707 Smith Street, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Jackson car and $100 damage to the dwelling.

Couple Speaks Vows In Saturday Ceremony

TAYLORSVILLE — In a private candlelight ceremony Saturday evening at 7:30, Shelby Jean Harris and Billy Neal Wike were united in marriage by the Rev. Gary Jennings, pastor of the East Taylorsville Church.

The bride, a former resident of Greenville, now lives in Taylorsville. She is the daughter of Mrs. Jack James. The bridegroom, a resident of Taylorsville, is the son of Mrs. Poley C. Wike.

A nuptial music program was presented prior to the ceremony by Miss Sharon Sigmon, pianist. At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. Lois Parker, sister of the bride, sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was met at the stairway by the bridegroom and escorted to the altar, which was enhanced by yellow burning tapers. On either side of the altar were cathedral columns holding arrangements of yellow mums and white pom poms accented with baby's breath and ribbons in varied avocado shades.

The bride wore a formal gown of blue crepe with long sleeves. The full flowing skirt was attached to the empire waist with a gathered cummerbund. The V-neckline was gathered at the shoulders and accented with a string of cultured pearls.

Her waist length bridal veil of blue illusion was attached to a headpiece of blue satin ribbons and bridal flowers with flowing streamers. The bride carried a Vanity Fair glabella bouquet of white gladiol accented with green velvet leaves and baby's breath with loops of blue satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joy Harris and Miss Sandra Harris, daughters of the bride. They wore identical formal gowns of pink crepe with a cape of yellow and green floral chiffon. They carried a remembrance bouquet of a light avocado mum with matching ribbons and lace.

Miss Valerie James, niece of the bride, was a junior bridesmaid. Her formal dress, of yellow and white organza, was accented with yellow satin ribbon streamers. She carried a bouquet identical to that of the other attendants.

The bridegroom's brother, Harold Wike, of Charlotte was best man. Ushers were Sam Wike of Taylorsville, R. D. Wike of Charlotte, Larry Parker and Jimmy James, both of Greenville.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a long sleeved dress of light green polyester crepe accented with matching buttons. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Betty Sue Wike presided at the guest register. The couple will reside in Alexander County.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held honoring the couple.

The table was covered with an avocado cloth overlaid with ecru lace. The corners of the table were accented with avocado satin ribbons edged in yellow lace. The centerpiece was of yellow carnations with touches of pink and blue pom poms accented with white baby's breath with burning yellow tapers.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice of wedding cake, it was served by Mrs. Ellen Wike, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Mrs. Jean James, sister-in-law of the bride, poured punch.

Mrs. Penina Ramseur, Mrs. Jo Chapman and Mrs. Alene Price assisted in serving.

Mrs. Teri Austin, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Lois Parker, sister of the bride, said good-byes.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Mark my word. The next group of militants to dominate the American scene will be the non-smokers. I've seen it coming for a couple of years now.

The face-off started out civil enough. First, the non-smokers displayed a small sign with, "THANK YOU FOR NOT SMOKING." The smokers retaliated with a polite, but stiff, "YOU'RE WELCOME."

The smokers countered with, "Do you mind very much if we smoke?" to which the non-smokers replied with a smile, "Of course not. Just don't exhale."

The exchanges have continued to gain momentum and every day in this country a bumper sticker proclaiming, "I QUIT!" crashes into a bumper sticker maintaining, "I DIDN'T."

Airlines have become a battleground for the dissention. The segregation of smokers and non-smokers has divided wives and husbands, executives and clients, and has gotten some illicit weekends off to a shaky start.

Recently, on a guided tour, the sightseeing buses were divided into smoking and non-smoking. One day when a man boarded the non-smoking bus, someone noted he had a pack of cigarettes bulging in his shirt pocket. "He's one of them," cried a non-smoker. "We don't want your kind on this bus," he said. "Take your nicotine breath and your stained index finger back to your own group!" For a minute, I thought the poor man was going to be stoned as he made a hurried exit.

"You shouldn't have talked to your Father that way," said the woman. "I know Mom," he said, "but sometimes being cruel is a kindness."

The battle is going to get worse. There are evidences everyday. Little things. Like a Marlboro man rode his horse on the lawn of a non-smoker in Wyoming the other day and made do do.

A sailor on one of the big ocean liners painted all the lifeboats SMOKERS ONLY. A smoker in New York daily goes around planting smoldering cigarettes on elevators and calling the N.Y. Times.

There is an underground movie being circulated showing that clean air causes bleeding gums.

Rumors have it that small fires are being started by militant smokers, but I don't for a minute buy that. I mean, have you ever known a smoker in your life who has a match on him?

Neighbors Complain Of Indian Drums

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Indian drums can cause a certain amount of sleeplessness, but the city planning commission says it doesn't warrant closing a halfway house for chemically dependent (narcotics-alcohol) American Indian women.

The move to shut down the Winaki House was instituted by a couple who said they had to sleep in the daytime. The planning commission sympathized, but said drum beating was not enough to cancel the operating permit for the house.

Holiday Decorating To Look Natural

DALLAS (UPI) — Decorations that look good enough to eat may hang from Christmas trees this year.

Miniature radishes, onions and strawberries made from polyester were among the natural design themes at this summer's Christmas gift, jewelry and housewares show at the Dallas Market Center. They are made of cotton fabrics and dotted swiss in traditional red, white and green colors.

Natural colors, designs and themes were more in evidence this year than at previous shows at the Trade Mart, the World Trade Center and Market Hall.

Decorations and decorative accessories, toys and housewares in earth tones, "nature" shapes and with natural ingredients were popular with retail store buyers shopping for holiday merchandise.

Christmas elves designed for hanging or standing were made of wood, dressed in crocheted caps and scarves or wielding wooden spoons and spatulas.

Marine influence showed in housewares designs. One line uses authentic shells and pieces of shells for serving trays and napkin rings. One manufacturer showed serving dishes in clear molded glass shell designs.

Always start peeling hard-cooked eggs at the air-cell end; this way you'll have the best chance of removing the shells neatly.

True, School Must Aid All N.C.

The Winston-Salem Journal opposed establishment of the ECU School of Medicine as strongly as any newspaper.

But recently the paper took note editorially of the school's opening.

"Although the location is regional, the mission of the ECU medical school is statewide," The Winston-Salem Journal said editorially. "The investment of money and effort it represents can be justified only on the basis of what it can mean for the level of health care available to all Tar Heels. That calls for an emphasis upon the quality of programs, and a close partnership with existing medical schools at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University in Durham, and Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

"A long period of controversy and conflict preceded the opening of the ECU medical school.

Along the way, there were strong arguments both within and without the medical profession against the creation of another medical school in North Carolina. Alternatives were offered which might have been less costly and equally beneficial but the school became a political issue, and Chancellor Jenkins and his supporters overcame all obstacles in securing legislative approval and funding.

"The entry of the first class means that the ECU medical school now is a fact and no longer a dream. That should write an end to the controversy and lead to a fresh approach to health care problems with emphasis upon cooperation and partnership. The new school must have the support of the state as a whole, and it must look beyond its region in contribution to the health needs of all citizens."

They are wise words from Winston-Salem. The ECU medical school must serve all areas and all citizens of North Carolina if its existence is to be justified. We think it can and it will.

Real Payoff Is Far Away

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH—North Carolina still hovers right at the bottom in spending money per citizen. The most recent national report puts the state 49th in manufacturing wages paid; up from 50th place last year. The state usually ranks 47 or 48 nationally in per capita income.

The goal of improving that economic condition is much on the mind of Gov. James B. Hunt, as it has been a concern of other governors before him.

Thus the recent top-level reorganization of the state's Department of Commerce is more than simple an internal restructuring of a state bureaucracy... it is another step in what Gov. Hunt describes as a "slow matter... it will take a long time before we see earnings go up, and it will take a lot more and a lot better industries to accomplish this. But we are dedicated to doing it."

Why Grow?

Why the constant political interest in economic growth? First, to the politicians in the General Assembly and the governor's administration improved wages mean not only helping people in a visible way, but helping the state's revenue picture as well.

Higher income means more tax income; it means more merchandise sold and more taxes collected; it means less government outlay for aid to people. In short, it means more money for the government without having to take the unpopular step of raising taxes.

Second, providing the opportunity for increased income to the people is one of the most popular and tangible ways government can serve the citizens.

Hunt's recognition of growth as a primary goal was evident in his successful legislative bid to establish the bid to Department of Commerce (with secretary D. M. Faircloth) as the development agency, pulling together matters of energy, ports, travel and tourism, and economic development, along with numerous regulatory agencies.

The recent refinements set up an international division, an industrial development division, and a business assistance division within the agency.

The business assistance program is to help existing firms grow and improve business. The industrial development division will catalog plant sites and target communities which need and can support specific new industries, while seeking to woo those prospects. Internationally, both foreign industries and investment capital will be sought, and markets for North Carolina goods developed, with special attention to Middle East, Africa, South America and Far East areas previously ignored.

BILL NOBLITT

Will It Work?

Will this "refining" as the governor describes it speak to the biggest problem in development? A study by legislative research experts a year ago singled out the lack of hustle in selling North Carolina as the number-one handicap.

The state has depended on "a large number of contacts by potential prospects such as a retail store depends on customers coming to that store. If the flow of contacts diminishes or changes in quality, then pace and quality of development in the state suffer. A reduction in the number of contacts would leave fewer from which to choose. If a large portion of those contacts were from low-wage industries, then in order to create needed jobs, the state may find itself in the position of attracting industries which may actually lower the average wage," the report suggested.

The need proposed was for an activist, aggressive, modern recruitment effort.

Gov. Hunt and his chief aides think that above all else, the restructuring of the development program makes it clear that the effort does have a high priority, that increased spending is being provided, and that the agency is expected to grasp the expanded responsibility and potential to begin an aggressive selling operation.

Some Don't Get 'Word'

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to an old Army expression, there's always somebody who doesn't get the word.

Events of the past week suggest that not getting the word can apply to the commander in chief as well as to the newest recruit.

Witness President Carter's statement to reporters last Saturday that he would hold a news conference this week at which he would respond to all questions about his embattled budget chief, Bert Lance.

Carter may have felt somewhat embattled himself Saturday, because the promise of a news conference was his way of fending off immediate questions about Lance.

What the President apparently did not know at the time was that his senior advisers already had discussed a possible-Carter news conference and decided it would be best to hold off until Lance had given scheduled testimony before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

When Carter finally got the word, he readily agreed that the news conference should be delayed.

As dignitaries arrived for last week's ceremonial signing of the Panama Canal treaty, two who arrived together were Lance and presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan, often regarded as Carter's two closest confidants in Washington.

Besides having the President's ear, Lance and Jordan share a long-standing friendship and, indeed, spent part of the Labor Day weekend together at the budget chief's home at Sea Island, Ga.

With all this in mind, some reporters were stunned this week when Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., told them it was Jordan who suggested that he and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., meet with the press immediately after recommending privately to Carter that Lance resign.

Percy said that, until Jordan suggested otherwise, he and Ribicoff had not intended to see reporters and, in fact, had parked their cars in a White House area closed to the press so they could leave their meeting with Carter unobserved.

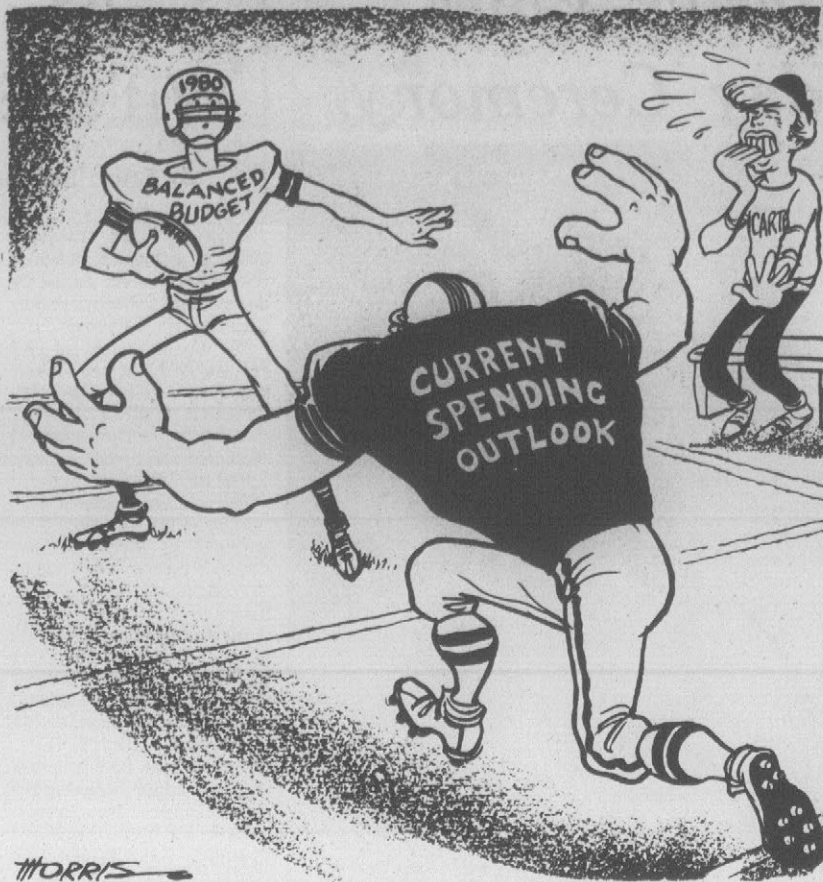

Could this have been intended as a message to Bert (Garcia) Lance?

Speaking of Carter's "Panama Canal Week," the President had private conferences with so many military strong men from Latin America that even some members of the vast bodyguard force assembled for the occasion found cause for amusement.

Thinking he was unobserved by outsiders, one security agent posted outside the Cabinet Room wore four

Guards Alaska Lands

By JAMES PHILIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus is asking Congress to preserve more than 90 million acres of Alaska wilderness, a move expected to spark an environmental battle of epic proportions.

At issue is the future course of the nation's last frontier, thousands of square miles of wilderness lands whose development will be determined by Congress.

The battle pits preservationists against developers.

Andrus seeks to protect an area almost the size of California for national parks, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers and national forests. Estimates of the amount of land Andrus will ask Congress to preserve range from 91.6 million acres to 92.8 million acres.

Environmentalists want even more land to be protected from development. In bills before Congress, they are asking that nearly 120 million acres be preserved.

Developers argue that the amount of land to be preserved is far too extensive and would block future development of oil and gas reserves, minerals and timber.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce filed suit Wednesday to block Andrus from testifying today before a House subcommittee, arguing unsuccessfully in U.S. District Court that the secretary is required by law to file an environmental impact statement before testifying.

According to Fred Krebs, a chamber attorney, the suit was prompted by "a fairly good cross section" of the mining, timber, oil and gas interests within the chamber.

Andrus' proposal is expected to break down as follows: national parks, 42.6 million acres; wildlife refuges, game ranges and wildlife preserves, 46.6 million acres; wild and scenic rivers, 2 million acres; national forests, 1.6 million acres.

Andrus' anticipated proposal — if enacted by Congress — would more than double the size of the existing national park system and the wildlife refuge system.

One proposed park contains a glacier bigger than the state of Rhode Island — and it is not the only glacier in the park. Nor is the glacier the park's pre-eminent feature.

Other lands Andrus is expected to protect include the Yukon Flats, flat tundra inundated with potholes and sloughs which provide nesting grounds for approximately one million waterfowl, the largest nesting concentration of wildfowl within the United States.

Greenville not only had the largest offerings of the "Big Four" tobacco markets, which include Wilson, Kinston, Rocky Mount, and Greenville, but also led in the average, official market reports showed.

The Taxpayer's Burden

Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, our town's leading practitioner of the gadfly profession, sank his teeth last week in the National Endowment for the Arts. In the process, he once again raised a fundamental issue of constitutional government.

The senator was upset—justifiably so—at the award of $6,025 in tax funds to Le Ann Wilchusky of Pittsburgh. The award financed the production of a 20-minute film depicting, in part, the dropping of crepe paper from two small planes flying over El Paso. In times past, though not at public expense, the same artist has dropped bouquets of plastic streamers, tire rubber, and even 25 rolls of toilet paper from airplanes. She told Proxmire's staff that while Johnny paper makes lovely patterns in the sky, crepe paper is even better. These things are not easy to explain.

The National Endowment for the Arts, in the year of this remarkable award, was financed chiefly by $82 million in tax funds. Most of this was paid out in federal-state partnership programs, and in large grants to museums, orchestras and public bodies. But the foundation also made 1,107 individual grants in fiscal '76 amounting to $4,863,000. These went, by way of example, to 78 poets, 45 novelists, 26 playwrights, and to whole flocks of artists, sculptors, printmakers, photographers, and even to 24 art critics.

The grant to Ms. Wilchusky came under the category of Public Media Programming in the Arts. Such grants are intended "to encourage quality programming film, television and radio." When Senator Proxmire complained to Nancy Hanks, chairman of the arts Endowment, she amplified this explanation. Such films as the Wilchusky film, she said, are designed "to document an event designed to alter an audience's immediate environment for a short period of time."

This was how the taxpayers had their immediate environment altered for a short period of time: Ms. Wilchusky, according to her final report, spent $1,424 on air fare and lodging for herself and her husband for a week's stay on the resort island of St. Maarten in the Caribbean. This was in February 1976, when things were a little bleak in Pittsburgh. Ms. Wilchusky told Proxmire's staff that she needed to go to St. Maarten in order to film one of the environments that had influenced her development as an artist. Her husband served as cameraman. The finished film shows various scenes for the artist posing in St. Maarten.

In August 1976, the artist, her husband, two sky divers and two of her children assembled in El Paso. They spent $1,713 for travel expenses on this venture. While divers then unreeled four rolls of crepe paper as they fell toward the ground. The camera whirled away. The children retrieved the crepe paper. The artist told Proxmire's staff that her work calls attention to the higher spirit of mankind and the coming era of peace and harmony on earth.

A spokesman for the foundation further explained

To the editor:

I am one of thousands of volunteers working in behalf of the Medic Alert Foundation, the nonprofit organization that uniquely provides a total system of emergency medical identification for individuals with special medical problems.

Our goal is to bring Medic Alert to the attention of the one out of every five people who has a special medical condition such as diabetes, heart condition, severe allergy or epilepsy. These are among the more than 200 common reasons for membership.

Today there are well over one million people who have the protection of Medic Alert, a number that is growing by nearly 2,000 every week. When one of these people can not speak in an emergency, for any reason, the Medic Alert emblem speaks for that person loudly. Emergency personnel are trained to search for the Medic Alert member's bracelet or necklace that carries the insignia of the medical profession in red. On the back is engraved the medical problem or problems of the wearer and the telephone number of the Emergency Answering Service which operates around the clock. Emergency personnel can call that number collect from any location and receive, within seconds, all the medical and personal information in a member's emergency record. This record can be updated at any time.

Proof that the Medic Alert system works is seen in the fact that, in a recent 12-month period, more than 2,000 persons reported that Medic Alert had helped them in emergencies, saving lives in many instances.

The Medic Alert System of emergency medical identification is uniquely endorsed and supported by the medical, hospital and nursing professions and by the public safety and paramedical services.

The basic lifetime membership is available for a one-time fee of $10. For applications and other information, write to Medic Alert Foundation International, P. O. Box ZG, 1009 Dept., Turlock, CA 95380.

Behind-Doors Terrorism Study

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A two-day conference is scheduled in Chicago later this month on the subject, "Terrorism and the American Corporation." No news people will be permitted to attend. No registration list will be published.

This, say the sponsors, is in keeping with the best defense against terrorists, "to study them as they are studying you," and to make the company and executives inconspicuous if to do so won't hurt the company's fortunes.

"Terrorists rarely strike at random," the advance literature relates. "They often research corporate targets in depth. They review annual reports and develop carefully constructed plans to exploit existing vulnerabilities."

Signs of the times; This is only one of a multitude of social, political, bureaucratic and other concerns facing today's multinational companies — only one of the issues on which companies such as Probe International depend upon for a living.

Probe is a tiny but influential intelligence concern operated out of Stamford, Conn., by Benjamin Weiner, a former foreign service officer in Southeast Asia, Europe and Washington, D.C. Its main client is the multinational corporation.

Concerning political issues, said Weiner, multinationals might be land-based but really "they are out at sea." They operate on assumptions and halftruths; they do not understand their countries. Through ignorance they blunder.

This viewpoint is supported to some degree by a Conference Board study released this week showing American multinationals and their executives score poorly when tested on their knowledge of the countries in which they work.

The horror of it all, as Weiner views it, is that these misunderstandings often invite terrorism.

For multinationals, problems are multitudinous. Earlier conferences dealt with opportunities and difficulties in the Middle East, bribery and corruption, boycott and antiboycott, Eurocommunism and prospects in Vietnam (immediately: nil; long range: modest).

In almost all situations, the prospect for terrorism or disruption is inherent. And since corporations know little about dealing with the problems, Probe has succeeded with its "trouble oriented meetings," once believed to be an anathema.

It's pre-emptive attack against terrorism begins with the thesis that there is nothing you can buy to protect yourself. There are no gadgets or guns or cages that can provide a seal of security.

This being, so, the best protection is said to be a low profile. "Don't make a public personality of yourself if it doesn't advance your company," says Weiner. Newspaper ads featuring the chief executive are foolish from his point of view.

But the details we won't hear about, because terrorism is best combatted by withholding information from potential terrorists, and in today's society, the potential terrorists may not stand out.

Strength For Today

THE PHILOSOPHER'S STONE

In medieval times, it was commonly believed that somewhere in nature a substance existed which would convert lead to gold. This substance was called "the philosopher's stone." Alchemists, who were the chemists of their day, mixing a little scientific knowledge with a great deal of superstition, often spent years in experiments seeking to produce this marvelous substance.

Of course no one ever found a "philosopher's stone," which would change lead to gold. But it is possible to develop good habits of thought and living which will turn leaden lives into golden ones. Benjamin Franklin once wrote, "If you know how to spend less than you get, you have the philosopher's stone." This, Franklin felt, was one way to contentment—and contentment is a very precious quality indeed.

If we would count the things we have, and make the most of them, most of us would find more happiness in our lives than if we found a real "philosopher's stone."

that transitory works of art, such as this one, are as creative in their way as objects made of clay or bronze or stone. It is, she said, kind of like filming a fireworks show.

The $6,025, said Proxmire, represented the total annual taxes paid by a factory workers in Milwaukee, a cleaning woman in Madison and a dairy farmer in Marathon County Wisc. Proxmire termed the award "an outrage."

This sort of thing is indeed outrageous, but such payments from public funds also raise grave questions under the Constitution. Where is the authority for this nonsense? Even is the general welfare clause is cited, it is absurd to contend that grants to individual artists and writers are for the general welfare. Such grants smack of monarchical largesse, of purses bestowed by wealthy patrons to their proteges.

Forget the Wilchusky film. What of these 78 poets and 45 novelists? For every poet who received a $6,000 fellowship, it is a fair assumption that ten applicants were turned down. The 19 members of the advisory panel on literature simple gave way public funds on their subjective judgment of the applicants' talent.

A few years back, the foundation paid out tax money for a poem that read, more or less in full, "liiggghhttt!" I would like six grand, if you please for my own poem of protest: "Arrggghhh!"

 extended.
 Recreation Director Boyd Lee revealed personnel changes and additions that have recently taken place.
 One is the hiring of Don Ball as a full time tennis supervisor. "This is on a one-year basis with funds from the federal emergency employment project," Lee explained. "Ball will be in charge of operating the courts, in maintaining them, developing a youth program, and teaching."
 Mrs. Nancy Harrington has been employed to fill the position of director of Volunteer Greenville, a city post that several months ago was placed under the supervision of the Parks Recreation and Parks Department.
 The third position, one resulting in a City Council directive, changes the status of former Recreation and Parks Horticulturist Terry Ogleshorpe to City Arborist. As such, Ogleshorpe will have supervision of all trees on public land in Greenville. He is responsible for permits to plant or take down a tree on city property, and for policing the trimming and cutting operations of firms employed by the city.
 In other matters Lee:
 — Reported that construction of the joint recreation-library building is progressing on schedule, with walls up and roof construction underway. "The building will probably be completed by the end of January," Lee noted.
 — Mentioned that money for tennis courts at West Greenville in the amount of $30,000 has been approved, and will likely be released next March or April.
 — Reported that architect Bill Friend is working up bids to be let for a new roof on the West Greenville building.

 — Explained that a possibility exists that Congress will continue the Youth Employment Program next year, the program that made possible hiring young people this past summer to clean up the recreation area north of the river.
 In a final action, the commission approved a request for use of West Greenville facilities for a three hour, community "West Side Exposition" event tentatively set for a Sunday in October. The exposition is chaired by Johnny Wooten, Raymond Williams and Dr. Andrew Best, and will include the appearance of music making groups and displays of a community nature.

Lance...

 tion undaunted as he headed into the arena of his Senate critics and a future as clouded as his past activities have appeared in the panel's week-old hearing.
 Turning to criticism of large overdrafts allowed him and members of his family by the Calhoun bank, Lance said: "The Calhoun First National Bank for years followed a liberal policy with respect to overdrafts. I make no apology for this practice. It was believed by the bank's management that a liberal overdraft policy was a valuable tool for the bank to use in attracting and retaining customers ... members of the Lance family were not accorded special favors regarding overdrafts. The liberal overdraft policy of the bank was available to all depositors."
 Lance told the committee that "no evidence" had been offered to support suggestions that he used his relationship with President Carter to exert improper influences on decisions of the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta to drop an investigation into possible violations arising from the financing of his 1974 gubernatorial campaign.
 He said the same applied to suggestions that he had used influence to bring about the lifting of restrictions placed on the Calhoun bank by the Comptroller of the Currency.
 Lance has said that the subject of these restrictions was discussed in a general way when he called on regional banking administrator Donald Tarleton in Atlanta last November 22, but both men have said that Lance did not ask for the restrictions to be lifted.
 Lance said the restrictions on the bank were "essentially of no consequence to me" because the bank had already complied with the requirements imposed, including discontinuance of criticized overdraft practices.
 "The only matter of concern was the paperwork involved in filing monthly progress reports," he said. This requirement was not lifted.
 "The sworn testimony of the persons involved is uncontested that at no time did I request or suggest to Mr. Tarleton that the agreement between the comptroller's office and the National Bank of Georgia be rescinded," Lance said.
 In regard to the investigation by the U.S. attorney's office, the budget director said, "once again, the false impression has been created that something sinister was involved."

Jimmy's Cousin Is 'Confident'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hugh Carter Jr., Jimmy's second cousin, says President Carter is confident the Panama Canal treaty will be passed, even though White House mail is running against it three or four to one.
 Carter, a former Greensboro resident, was in town to kick off the United Way drive. He said the President plans a "fireside chat" on the canal, and there will continue to be White House briefings of business, civic and other leaders.
 "You would be amazed at the number who walk into the meetings against the treaty and walk out for it," he said.

the office of the Comptroller of the Currency investigated whether there had been illegal overdrafts by the Calhoun bank to the Lance campaign committee, allowing Lance to benefit in the financing of his campaign from his relationship with the bank.
 The comptroller's office referred the matter to the Justice Department, but former U.S. Attorney John Stokes closed the case without investigation last Dec. 2. Lance's appointment as director of the Office of Management and Budget, which reviews the spending proposals of government agencies, was announced the next day by Carter.

Modern Homesteader Is Fixing Up Urban Home

HOMESTEADER — Edward Oliver finishes mowing lawn in front of home he and his wife, Bea, bought for one dollar in Indianapolis. (UPI Photo)

By B. J. GILLEY
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Bea Oliver is a modern pioneer — an urban homesteader fixing up a house she bought for a dollar.

She and her husband, Edward, are among a growing number of young people who are returning to older sections of cities to rescue houses whose former owners have given up on them.

"I just was down on my hands and knees stripping old wood floors — does that sound like I'm a modern woman?" she asked with a laugh when she answered the door of her one-story brick home five miles northeast of the city center.

The Olivers have one of 96 houses Indianapolis sold for a dollar to persons who promise to fix up and live in them at least three years. The city and two others were the first selected by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the program, called urban homesteading.

The houses chosen for the program are inspected to determine that they are physically sound. They have been "vacated rather than abandoned" — usually by those who started buying them with FHA insured mortgages.

All are in what the city refers to as "transitional neighborhoods," mostly post-World War II suburbs skipped over as the middle class moved further and further away from downtown.

Mrs. Oliver and others who made the plunge said they were glad they did, despite a lot of hard work.

She said there were no major problems with the house, and "our neighbors have been just lovely" — a view shared by other homesteaders.

"Oh, we had some pipe problems, but my husband took care of that. He does a little bit of everything," she said. "It was pretty messy when we first moved in. I understand it had been boarded up for more than a year before we got it."

The Edwards did all the work on the house itself, including enclosing the front porch as a solarium, but she wasn't sure about the costs. "I just get what my husband tells me and give him the bills."

The three-bedroom house is brick, as are several others in the program, and a couple are in older neighborhoods and have tree-studded lots.

Bob Godfrey, 42, a bachelor who is a bank branch manager, picked a small, wood frame house. It has four rooms and a bath and shows signs of being well cared for, including new paint.

"He got lucky with this house," said Harold Mowery, a 19-year-old nephew from Jasonville, Ind., who is living with Godfrey while studying electrical engineering in Indianapolis.

He said his uncle invested about $3,000 in fix up work, including putting in a new kitchen, carpeting and paneling, patching a ceiling and decorating it with a swirl pattern, and "a lot of painting."

Mowery said his uncle's example had "been good for the neighborhood. After he painted the outside, practically every house on this block was Painted."

Indianapolis officials said they hope to offer more houses for sale later this year.

The city housing agency takes applications for specific homesteads, runs a background check on the applicants and approves most of them for inclusion in periodic lotteries. Drawings are held for each available home.

One family went through a divorce, one had financial problems and the third was a bachelor who decided at the last minute he really didn't want to take part in the program, Vaughn said.

"All in all," he said, "our record for 'defaulting' is much better than other housing programs."

The bachelor who backed out of the program said he had wanted to move into a racially mixed neighborhood.

"But I got the distinct impression I would be the only white face on the block," said John Bradburn, 25, adding that his sales job took him out of town and he feared loss of property because he "wasn't too sure of the neighborhood."

But, Bradburn said, the program was worthwhile financially and a "good deal" for people if they know the sacrifices they may have to make.

Growth Stocks Are 'Poised'

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION
Growth stocks, once known as the fifty-fifty, the top tier, or simply glimmers, might be getting ready for a comeback. These stocks are characterized by above-average growth, high research and development expenditures, aggressive merchandising, and strong balance sheets. The industries they represent are considered to be among the fastest growing in the country.

With this profile, it might seem surprising that most growth stocks have been in a downturn since 1972-73. Stock prices are sharply below the peaks reached five years ago. Price-earnings multiples have fallen from the lofty heights of 30-80X earnings to a more reasonable 10-15X earnings. Dividends of some growth companies provide yields near 4 percent.

In terms of earnings and dividends, growth stocks performed about as they were expected to. Their price decline stemmed from a shift in interest by Wall Street from growth to total return appreciation and yield, with most of the emphasis on high current yield. Since growth stocks provided very low dividend yields and sometimes astronomical price-earnings multiples, they were especially vulnerable to selling pressures. Buying interest was centered around the cyclical stocks, which were selling at low price-earnings multiples and relatively high yields.

Many people believe the glimmers may be ready for a comeback. First, the reason that the value of consistent earnings gains will eventually be recognized and the growth stocks will then begin outperforming the market. Second, they doubt that companies will continue to let their stocks lag the market when all they have to do is raise the dividend.

The value theory appears to have merit. Earnings of cyclical companies improve sharply early in an economic recovery.

Earnings increases become progressively smaller as the recovery matures and earnings typically decline during recessions. In the first stages of a recovery, sharp earnings increases of the cyclical companies compare very favorably with the 10-12 percent consistent earnings growth of the glimmers. Later in the cycle and into a recessionary period, earnings gains of the growth stocks appear comparatively better. For the most part, growth stocks are in recession-resistant industries. They can report higher earnings even during a recession.

We appear to be headed for at least a slowdown in economic activity and a number of cyclical are reporting earnings declines. Growth stocks are not yet outperforming the rest of the market.

As for dividends, many growth companies already have records of regular dividend increases. Since dividends are paid from earnings and earnings have been rising consistently, dividend increases seem likely. Payout ratios remain low, since at least part of the growth of these companies is internally financed. Some companies reportedly are considering increasing their payout ratios, but they are likely to remain low enough to maintain regular dividend increases.

Will the growth stocks stage a market recovery? Only time will tell, but with P-E multiples of less than 15X and yields near 4 percent, growth stocks make more sense now than they did five years ago.

Mexico Mobilizes Police And Troops To Hunt Terror Gang

By ISSAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government put 10,000 police and troops on full alert today to hunt for a new left-wing terrorist group that claimed responsibility for the worst rash of bomb explosions in Mexico in decades.

Police said 23 blasts injured five persons and did an estimated $20 million worth of damage in Mexico City, Guadalajara and Oaxaca between midnight and 3 a.m. Wednesday. The police said 17 more homemade time bombs were found and disarmed.

Police squads, detective units and special anti-guerrilla military squadrons were making surprise searches and manning roadblocks at numerous points in the country. One unofficial report said 13 suspects had been arrested and taken to a military compound outside Mexico City.

Leaflets signed by the Union of the People, an organization not heard of previously, said it was responsible for the bombs. It called other left-wing terrorist groups "chicken" and vowed to bring "Lenin's revolution" to Mexico to stop "unemployment, hunger and exploitation imposed on the people by the dominant class." Lawyer Jose Rojo Colorado, who defends accused leftist terrorists, told newsmen in Oaxaca that the Union was founded in that city and had its headquarters there. He said the bombings were in retaliation for recent arrests of members of the Union and other leftist groups.

Mexico City's police chief, Arturo Durazo, was quoted as saying the "principal leaders of the organization have been identified."

Security forces also were hunting for armed gangs who kidnaped two doctors and three youths and killed the wife of one of the doctors in separate attacks Tuesday in small towns near Mexico City. But police blamed the kidnappings on the 23rd of September Communist League, heretofore the most active urban terrorist organization in the country.

Police believed the bombings were timed to disrupt ceremonies Friday celebrating the 167th anniversary of Mexico's independence from Spain. The bombs damaged or wrecked government buildings and businesses, including Sears

Roebuck and Woolworth stores, an American Motors dealer and a Pepsi Cola plant. Among targets where unexploded bombs were found were a General Motors assembly plant and the headquarters of the Colgate Palmolive subsidiary.

Governors Critical Of Energy Plan's Changes

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of southern and midwestern governors are criticizing President Carter's energy plan, now shorn of a proposal to reform the way utilities charge for electricity.

Oklahoma Gov. David Boren told the Senate Finance Committee that Carter's energy plan is a dead-end street because it focuses entirely on conservation and makes no provision for meeting long-term needs.

Boren said Carter's plan "provides for the most part only the rationing of a shortage, not for any long-range victory for the consumer through more adequate supplies."

He spoke on behalf of the southern and midwestern governors' conferences.

Carter wants to raise gasoline taxes to make the fuel more dear to consumers. The governors say profits, not taxes, should rise to give the industry an incentive to develop new supplies.

Meanwhile, the Senate Energy Committee Wednesday threw out most of Carter's plan to reform electricity pricing.

Only shreds of the President's utility plan survived. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., the panel chairman, called the utility rate proposal an unwarranted intrusion into state regulation.

The committee dropped provisions that would have ended discounts for large industries and mandated lower prices for household electricity use during off-peak hours.

In another energy development, Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary told a Senate Commerce subcommittee that "one or perhaps two" pipelines may be needed to carry surplus Alaska oil from the West Coast to the interior.

The panel is considering legislation to expedite federal approval of a pipeline plan to the distribute the oil once it reaches western terminals.

West Coast refineries can process only half of the 1.2 million barrels a day that will begin arriving in March by ship from the Alaskan North Slope fields.

Until the new pipelines are built, tankers will carry the surplus to Gulf Coast refineries.

Large Volume Of Low-Quality Leaf On Sale

FARMVILLE — An unusually large volume of low-quality tobacco on yesterday's sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market reflected the adverse weather conditions that prevailed throughout this year's growing season, says Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Nondescript grades and green grades of leaf accounted for a large percent of sales. Offerings of lugs showed an increase in volume on yesterday's sale and sold higher than at the first of the season. Some grades of quality varieties sold for $1.58 a pound, up $3 per hundred above the previous day.

The market sold 451,458 pounds for $570,510, for an average of $126.37 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 5,532,702 pounds for $18,200,161, for a season's average of $117.17.

Firemen Called Twice To Dorms
Greenville firemen have been called to two fires in East Carolina University dormitories in as many days.

Fire officials said firefighters were called to White Dorm Tuesday at 6:26 p.m. when a motor on an electric fan caught fire.

Fire units were dispatched to Green Dorm at 11:53 a.m. yesterday when a pot of beans was left unattended on a hot plate in one of the rooms.

Officers said no damage resulted to either building.

Merit Breakthrough Remains Unduplicated.

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

---

Since the introduction of MERIT, a number of other low tar brands have come along. But MERIT remains unique—the only low tar cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT delivers what others can only promise: the flavor of higher tar cigarettes. The kind of flavor made possible by a breakthrough in tobacco technology.

Here's how it was done:

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that delivered taste way out of proportion to tar.

These flavor essentials were then packed into MERIT, giving it extraordinary flavor.

Taste tests against a number of higher tar cigarettes proved it.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested. Cigarettes with up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.

Forlines Concerned A False Impression Created

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John Forlines, president of the North Carolina Bankers Association, wants you to know his checking account is not overdrawn. Neither is his wife's or any of his employees'.

But Forlines says he is worried that U.S. budget director Bert Lance's overdraft predicament has created suspicion in the public mind that all bankers play fast and loose with their stockholders' money. Forlines, president of the Bank of Granite in Granite Falls, N.C., was responding to U.S. Attorney H.M. "Mickey" Michaux's assertion this week that banks need stricter regulation.

That is the sort of reaction to the Lance case, the Northwestern Bank case and problems in the state Banking Department that worries Forlines. "We have 14,000 banks in this country and 250,000 bankers," Forlines said. "Then when we have one or two do something improper, people immediately think we need additional regulation. "I don't think this is the time for that kind of talk," Forlines said. "There are adequate laws to prevent abuses, abuses are relatively rare and when they happen they are punished."

"Congress has been trying for some time, we think unwisely, to add what we think are unnecessary and over-restrictive regulations on banks," he added. "Mr. Lance's problems just give them more ammunition. In my opinion we need a cooling off period."

Forlines says it's ridiculous to claim that Lance's massive overdrafts in the Georgia banks of which he was an executive were the sort of thing all bankers do.

"When bankers get together to talk about it, this is the kind of thing we don't understand," Forlines said. "How can this happen. I don't want to be hard on Mr. Lance, but this is certainly not a practice that most bankers permit."

"Our bank and most banks to my knowledge do not permit officers and employees to overdraw their accounts," Forlines said. "Ever."

Most bankers, he said, would support any legislation designed to prevent abuses. He said he was even willing to support the idea of a review of the Banking Department to determine if its ties to the banking industry were too close, a point raised by Michaux and others. "I see nothing wrong with a study to see if things should be changed," Forlines said. "But not in this emotional atmosphere."

"Everything's getting kind of out of joint," he added. "It's too bad nobody gives anybody a chance to talk about banking until something like this comes along."

Teacher Kills Wife And Then Turns Himself In

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Terry S. Goode and his wife, Jane, went to the PTA meeting together Tuesday night. Wednesday morning she lay sprawled by the stairs in their home, stabbed to death, while he was telling police in another city he had killed her. Goode himself had knife wounds in the throat and shoulder and had to be taken to Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem for surgery. He was in stable condition early today.

Neighbors and friends were unable to explain what had happened to the couple, both schoolteachers in Greensboro and parents of a third-grader daughter and a 3-year-old son.

But a detective in Kernersville, where Goode turned himself in, said that before the ambulance took him away, Goode said he and his wife had quarreled about another man. Goode had apparently stabbed himself, they said.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Goode called in sick Wednesday morning, he to Smith High School, where he was a wrestling coach and physical education teacher, and she to the elementary school where she taught kindergarten.

They sent their daughter off to school. Some time afterward the little boy was locked in a bathroom. Officials said Mrs. Goode was stabbed to death about 9 a.m.

Goode turned up about 25 minutes later at the Kernersville police station, his blue jeans and shirt soaked in blood, staggered to the front desk and told communications officer Robert Martin, "I need help. I just killed my wife. I'm sure she's dead."

Goode was taken by ambulance to the hospital for surgery while police headed for his home. They found blood splattered around the kitchen and living room. Mrs. Goode lay dead by the stairs. She had bled to death.

"I'm stunned," said Robert Barrett, principal of Kiser Junior High School where Goode taught for five years before transferring to Smith this year. "He is a fine gentleman and kind to everyone."

Plan Appreciation Banquet Sept. 22

A Law Enforcement Appreciation Banquet for the City of Greenville and Pitt County area law enforcement officers will be held here September 22.

The appreciation program is being sponsored by the Law Enforcement Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Committee chairman Mickey Herrin said J. Phil Carlton, secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety will be the guest speaker for the event.

The purpose of the Law Enforcement Appreciation Banquet, according to Herrin, is not only to honor and show appreciation for the Greenville area law enforcement officers, but to provide an opportunity for members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce to meet the officers and to converse with them on a one to one basis.

Herrin noted that Mayor Percy Cox will proclaim September 22 as Law Enforcement Appreciation Day in Greenville.

Prisons Draw Line On Handbook Mail

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If state prison inmates want to plot the downfall of the society that locked them up, their research will have to wait until parole time.

State prison officials say they don't censor much of the reading material that comes to prisons, but they draw the line at revolutionary handbooks.

Take "Beyond the Revolution," for example, a copy of which was mailed to an inmate at the Randolph County prison unit earlier this year.

"It's really a game plan for insurrection," said W.L. Kautsky, deputy prison director, who ordered confiscation of the 184-page treatise on radicalism published in 1972 by Jon D. Olsen.

Kautsky said the tract threatened "the continued order and security of prison facilities within the state of North Carolina," according to the prison director's review committee.

Only one other book has drawn such censure from the review committee in recent months. The other was "The Big Brother," less technical but still "a potential abridgement of security." It was taken from a Central Prison inmate in Raleigh, Kautsky said. Inmates are notified when their publications are confiscated. They can appeal to review committees and the courts.

The North Carolina Civil Liberties Union is now involved in a federal court challenge to the state's policy of forbidding receipt by inmates in all by minimum security prisons of publications from anyone but the publisher.

Officials say that policy is designed to keep out concealed contraband and involves security, not censorship.

Boulder, Colorado, Acts To Limit Urban Growth

EDITOR'S NOTE — No other American city of its size has adopted such hard-nosed measures to limit urban growth as Boulder, Colo. The policy has its critics, particularly its effect on low-income people. But supporters feel that restrictions of new housing coupled with an ambitious "greenbelt" program will preserve Boulder's social and scenic amenities for decades.

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — This handsome university town, a quiet white-collar community snuggled comfortably against the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, exploded with growth during the 1960s. Today, residents have applied the brakes with vengeance.

Boulder is the largest city in the nation to put a quota on growth, sharply limiting construction of new residential units.

Under regulations approved by citywide vote, Boulder's population will increase no more than 2 per cent annually — far from yearly rates of up to 8 per cent that raised Boulder's population from 20,000 in 1950 to nearly 90,000 today.

Boulder's plan limits housing developments to 415 units a year, half the current rate, and sets a merit system to decide what projects are approved.

Many in the business community say the restrictions go too far. The Chamber of Commerce complains that middle-income housing has nearly disappeared and is expected to seek repeal of the plan.

City Councilman Paul Danish says housing quotas will preserve the environmental and social atmosphere that attract a variety of residents dominated by academics, IBM employees and hippies turned entrepreneurs.

Critics say the development quotas simply serve to insulate Boulder from encroaching urban poverty of Denver 30 miles down the road and to unfairly confine lower-income families to that city and its environs.

Danish stresses Boulder's autonomy. He notes that the city has its own economy and — important these days — its own water system. "Most of us simply want to maintain Boulder's identity," he says.

In 1971, Boulder voters turned down a plan to limit population but changed their minds last November when they overrode a 5-4 city council rejection of the quota plan.

By restricting home building, the growth policy generated frenzied real estate activity. Home prices were up 13.5 per cent during the first three months of the year. But worries about runaway inflation waned when increases settled around 4 per cent in the following two months, though the cost of housing in the city is high, as always.

"The motive was not to make Boulder more exclusive," says Nolan Rosall, the planning director, "but certainly that's been the effect."

Boulder has checked expansion indirectly for nearly two decades, keeping a rein on development through utility hookup permits.

Both the Chamber of Commerce and Rosall endorse a compromise "comprehensive growth" plan. Boulder and Boulder County would be wedded to a joint growth management effort that could channel population increases away from the city and unincorporated rural areas to several small towns.

The planning director believes the 58-square-mile Boulder Valley needs stringent planning to maintain the environment and the proper levels of government services. But he says that as of today, the valley is far from overcrowded and "we have room to expand if we do it right."

He also believes Boulder may have a future responsibility to provide housing opportunities for low-income families.

Boulder's resolve to limit quantity is matched by its enthusiasm for quality.

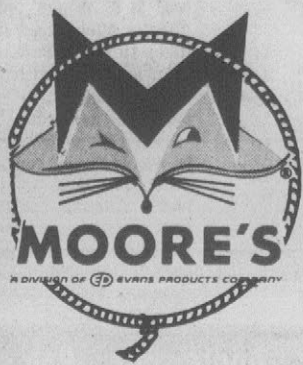

Housing development is allocated on merit after builders submit applications detailing features of the homes. The merit system considers factors such as open-space commitments, landscaping, architectural and environmental design, energy conservation and access to public services and facilities.

City officials say Boulder also has the most successful open space program in the nation, with thousands of acres being put aside for recreational uses like hiking, horseback riding and fishing which do not entail developing the property.

Don Walker, Boulder's director of real estate and open space, says booming real estate values in the area bring added tax revenues.

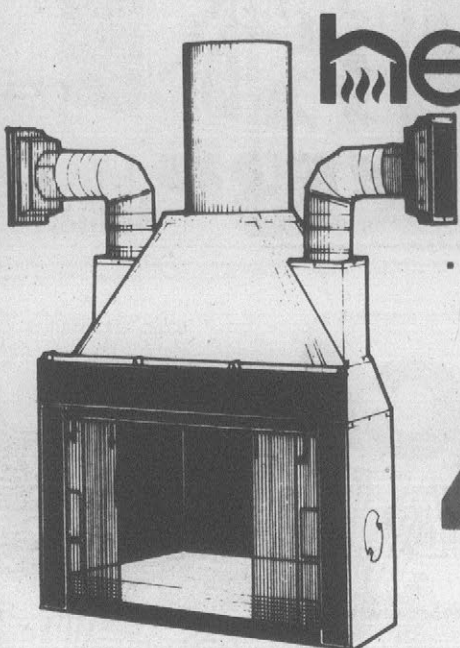

"Property values surrounding the land go up, particularly near the mountains, because people know that they will be living near a park for years to come," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today as traders awaited weekly money-supply data from the Federal Reserve.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than a point in early trading, was off .08 at 858.63 by 11:30 a.m.

Gainers held a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading remained light. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 4.19 million shares.

The market appeared to draw some early support from a report by New York's City bank that asserted that the economy was still showing solid signs of vitality.

But analysts noted that the main subject of investors' minds was the weekly report on the money supply due to be issued by the Federal Reserve at the NYSE close today.

Wall Streeters have been following the data with an almost obsessive interest lately, seeking clues to the future direction of the Fed's credit policy and interest rates.

A sharp rise in the money supply last week prompted the central bank to tighten up a bit on credit last Friday and Monday.

International Telephone & Telegraph led the active list, down 1/8 at 30 1/2.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .04 at 52.83, and the American Stock Exchange market value index rose .05 to 118.21.

Big Jet Crash Kills 20

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountain and exploded shortly after take off, killing all 20 persons aboard, military officials said.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Named
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The appointment of Dr. Arnold K. King as acting chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Asheville was announced today by UNC President William C. Friday.

King, 75, has served as an assistant to Friday since his retirement as UNC vice president for general administration in 1972.

after the crash late Wednesday night.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies before dawn today. Authorities said they did not know whether all of the victims were military personnel.

The four-engine jet crashed near the top of Manzano Mountain at 11:45 p.m., just three minutes after takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb... but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada.

The EC135, described as a "modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque to refuel, the spokesman said.

The plane crashed about 8,500 feet up the Manzano Mountain range, about five miles east of the Kirtland runway.

Rose Faces Kinston; Seeks 2nd Win

Defensive Back Mike Joyner

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants will be going after their second win in three games tomorrow night when they travel to Kinston, but the win will probably come much harder than last week's.

The Rampants snapped a nine-game losing streak by downing New Bern, 9-6, in a game that really wasn't as close as the score might indicate.

But in facing the Kinston Vikings this Friday night (kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. in Kinston), the Rose eleven has a much tougher task.

Kinston comes into the game with a 1-1 record, having beaten Northern Nash, 13-0, and then being downed last week by Wilson Fike, 17-12. Kinston had been rated one of the top teams in the East during pre-season. The Vikings may be interested in taking out some of their frustration from their loss on the Rampants.

Coach Dave Bumgarner is happy with the victory, but he's not as happy as he would like to be. "The important thing is that we won," he said. "We also moved the football, but we got bogged down occasionally. We also got people open and threw the ball. We just didn't score like I wanted to, and we are going to have to do this (score more)."

The coach praised the play of his offensive line. "They came off the ball much better this week. And in most instances, they blocked well. We still had some breakdowns in assignments, but there was a lot of improvement." Bumgarner said that Rose was gambling on the pass play that saw New Bern score on late in the game.

"Generally, our overall game plan went well, except for not scoring more. We should have had at least two more touchdowns."

Rose got close to one other score in the first half, but was faced with a fourth and four from the five yard line and elected to try for it. Bumgarner was asked about going for a field goal. "We could have kicked it, but I felt we needed the touchdown more. If we had missed the field goal, they would have had the ball at the 20 instead of the five, and that made a difference too. We didn't need three points, we needed six." He added that under the same circumstances this week—against Kinston—he would elect to go for the field goal.

"Kinston is a very different club from New Bern. The field at New Bern was in bad shape, too, and was very wet, and I was afraid of ball-handling problems on a kick. I hope the field is in better shape this weekend. We wanted to do more things, but had to keep the game more conservative due to the conditions."

Although the forecast is for the possibility of rain or showers, Bumgarner feels that the Kinston field will be in better shape.

Kinston is a "big, strong, quick team," according to Bumgarner. "They had a good chance to beat Wilson, but they didn't play as well as they should have. They have still done a good job so far."

The Vikings run their offense from the veer, while using a 5-2 defensive posture. Walter Gardner has been the leading rusher for the Vikings thus far, gaining 133 yards in two games.

"They've had some quarterback problems," Bumgarner said. "Their first string quarterback got hurt early, but their number two man has moved them. He likes to keep the ball, but he's not supposed to pass much. I think they'll try to keep the ball on the ground and pass only when they are forced to."

Keals Hoyt, the first string quarterback, suffered a broken finger early in the year, but is expected to be on the sidelines

Friday night. He will probably not play unless it becomes absolutely necessary. Gary Freeman, his back-up, will continue to handle the duties.

Everyone is expected to be healthy for the Rampants, with the possible exception of defensive back Mike Shank, still recovering from a broken wrist. "He may be ready, we just don't know yet," Bumgarner said.

Bumgarner plans continued heavy use of fullback Mac Washington, who carried the ball over 20 times last week. Washington is the leading rusher for the Rampants with 106 yards. Halfback Robert Morehead is second with 82 yards. Joey Mattheis is again expected to handle the quarterbacking duties.

Dye Plays Down ACC Rivalry

East Carolina football coach Pat Dye wants it understood he has no grudge against the Atlantic Coast Conference. All he wants is to whip every ACC team he comes across, and so far he's done just that.

Dye actually is not concerned about hostility of the sort that gets vented on the football field. But he said Wednesday he was concerned about an image his team is getting for having a special bone to pick with the ACC.

That sort of talk, Dye observed, could interfere with future invitations to play ACC members.

"There is entirely too much emphasis being placed on how ECU competes against ACC teams," Dye said at his weekly press conference. "To me, that has never been a way to judge how good we are or how bad we are. We play teams outside the ACC that are just as good as ACC teams and we have in the past."

Dye's Pirates polished off North Carolina State in their season opener and then surprised Duke last Saturday. But Dye is getting tired of seeing media references to ECU's "2-0 record against the Atlantic Coast Conference."

"I would like to see our sports information staff and our fans quit making such a thing over our competing with them," Dye said.

The coach said he has "never felt we were playing the ACC" as a group.

"I think us playing State, Carolina, Duke and Wake Forest is very important," he said.

"But it's not necessarily that important for us to be competing against the entire conference. I think it is just as important for us to be playing South Carolina as it is to be playing Virginia, Maryland or Clemson."

Dye said he wanted ECU to maintain "good and close relationships" with both the ACC and the Southern Conference.

"They have some good schools, some class schools and I hope our program will grow in class and prestige that will catch them," he said.

Wolcott On Grant

DURHAM — A Greenville football player has been named the recipient of one of 38 fully-endowed athletic scholarships.

The grants have been made possible through a $13.5 million campaign designed to make Duke athletic grants self-sustaining.

Senior placekicker Scott Wolcott of Greenville, has been named the recipient of a grant from Wrenn-Russell of Greensboro.

Larry M. Mewborn of Farmville is handling a grant which was presented to senior football player Dennis Knox of Tampa, Fla.

Volleyball Is Under Way Now

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Although volleyball is a relatively new sport to area high schools, having only been introduced here a few years ago, most of the area schools have already built good programs and are anxious to begin a new season.

Farmville Central The Lady Jaguar program is in its second year of existence. The team was 5-5 last season.

Coach Kay White said depth is the strong point for the Lady Jags and that they have also shown consistency.

Dianne Barrett is one of the top returnees to the Farmville Central team, along with Gail Harris, Lisa Satterthwaite and Linette Harris. They are joined by Beth Massey, who has "come up and is doing real well."

The rest of the Lady Jaguar lineup will be determined by who is playing best at a particular time. On a given day, any of the other girls on the team could start, White said.

D. H. Conley The Valkyries are also coming off of a 5-5 season and will have to replace two starters lost from last season's team.

"We have a real good group of sophomores," coach Norma Respass said, so finding replacements should be no real problem.

In addition, Conley has a little more height than last season and has progressed quite a bit skill-wise, according to Respass.

The top players for the Valkyries are Annie Wooten, Annie Hardy and Pam Manning. Manning could be the best server in the conference, Respass said.

Juanita Cash is another top player and the other two positions are currently unsettled with four girls battling for those spots.

North Pitt Coach Gale Stanfield was well-pleased with the Pant-HERS in their first match of the season recently and feels the team should have a good year, the third year for volleyball at North Pitt.

"From the way they played, I think we will have a very good season," Stanfield said.

Cynthia Barnes, Susie Grimes and Debbie Briley are the top servers on the squad, while Barnes and Machelie Brown are the best spikers.

There are only eight girls on the entire team and most of them are specialized, according to Stanfield.

Ayden-Grifton Another program in its third year is the one at Ayden-Grifton. Coach Debra Pfeil is hopeful of a strong season with only three losses from a team that won the tournament last season.

The Chargerettes are "working hard, have a good attitude and are playing together," according to Pfeil.

Karen Haseley is probably the most outstanding player on the team, Pfeil said. She is tall, a good server and a good spiker.

Vivian Ellis has a good serve and is real consistent, while Shonda Brock is a good passer and server. Other top players are Pam and Sandy Fulford.

In addition, the Chargerettes have some freshmen that should improve as the year goes along.

Greene Central Greene Central coach Tim Corbett is not very optimistic about the Ewes chances to challenge for the league cham-

Norton, Young In Tune Up Wins

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ken Norton continues to wonder whether Muhammad Ali will ever fight him again.

"I'll believe it only when I climb into the ring with him," said the No. 1 challenger from Los Angeles, who beat Ali once and then lost two disputed decisions to the current heavyweight boxing champion.

Norton, at 223 pounds, first has a date with Jimmy Young on Nov. 5, and the two tuned up with easy victories in nationally-televised bouts at Caesars Palace here Wednesday night.

Norton says Ali wants to avoid him, but the heavyweight champion — who has a title fight on Sept. 29 against Earnie Shavers — has gone on record saying he would put his title at stake against the Norton-Young winner.

Young, a 213-pound Philadelphia, started slowly but picked up speed and boxed his way to a one-sided 10-round verdict over Jody Ballard, 205, of Houston.

Norton started even slower and got tagged a couple of times. But at the end of the fifth round he knocked out No. 10-ranked Lorenzo Zanon, an awkward 207-pounder from Milan, Italy. There were only two seconds left in the stanza when a left hook started Zanon on the way out, so the time goes as 3:08, eight seconds after the round's scheduled end.

Neither Young nor Norton said he was impressed by each other's showing, but each made a point of watching the other.

"I hope Norton doesn't think he's going to do the same thing to me," said Young after watching the kayo on television. "He doesn't hit hard enough to hurt me," said Norton of Young. "He can't punch, but he does have speed."

The two showcased in the Sports Pavilion of Caesars, where they'll fight for more than $1 million each in the Fall.

On Aug. 1, 1941, Lefty Gomez of the New York Yankees walked 11 men and still wound up itching a shutout.

Jackson's Homer Paces Yanks

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Bunters build runs a base at a time. Home run hitters, an impatient lot, deliver them in four-base clusters.
Reggie Jackson is no bunter.

In the ninth inning of a scoreless game between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, Jackson was flashed the bunt sign to advance Thurman Munson to second base. He squared around on the first and third pitches, but didn't offer at tosses by Boston's Reggie Cleveland.

"I had to talk to (third base Coach Dick) Howser about the sign because I don't bunt often enough to know it," said Jackson.
Unable to gently lay the ball down, Jackson worked the count to 3-2 and instead laid out the Red Sox, smacking his 26th home run of the season and giving the Yankees a 2-0 victory Wednesday night.

The triumph, the Yankees' second in two games in a crucial three-game series with the Red Sox, lifted New York 3½ games ahead of third-place Boston in the American League East. Baltimore, with 6-5 and 4-2 victories over Toronto, sneaked into second place, 2½ games behind New York.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit swept a pair from Cleveland, 5-3 and 2-1; Kansas City beat Oakland twice, 5-2 and 6-0; Minnesota blanked the Chicago White Sox 7-0; Texas edged California 2-1, and Milwaukee beat Seattle 8-5.

game losing string in the opener, in which Tim Corcoran doubled home two runs and Ben Oglivie pounded out four hits, including a solo homer.
Twins 7, White Sox 0
Dave Goltz, 18-9, checked the White Sox on seven hits and became the first pitcher to throw a complete-game shutout against them this season. The Twins snapped a six-game losing streak.

Brewers 8, Mariners 5
Sixto Lezcano's three-run homer in the fifth highlighted a Milwaukee comeback that enabled the Brewers to wipe out a 5-0 Seattle lead. Reliever Eduardo Rodriguez allowed Seattle just four hits over the final 7 1-3 innings.

Orioles 6-4, Blue Jays 4-2
Lee May belted a two-run homer, his 23rd, in the first game and smacked a run-scoring double in the nightcap, pacing the Orioles to their sixth and seventh straight victories.
Royals 5-6, A's 2-0
The Royals continued to make a mockery of the race in the AL West, winning their 13th and 14th straight games, a club record and a major league high this season. The Royals' magic number now is nine; they lead second-place Chicago by nine games.

Dennis Leonard hurled an eight-hitter in the second game and Jim Colborn scattered seven hits but needed relief help from Larry Gura in the final two innings of the opener.
Rangers 2, Angels 1
Texas right-hander Doyle Alexander stopped California on three hits and became the winningest Ranger pitcher this season with 15 victories against 10 losses.

Texas' John Ellis drilled his third home run of the year in the third inning.
Tigers 5-2, Indians 3-1
A sacrifice fly by Ron LeFlore in the 10th inning gave the Tigers a doubleheader sweep. The Tigers had ended a six-

Aycock In 16-0 Win

WASHINGTON — E. B. Aycock Junior High School rolled to a 16-0 victory over Washington Junior High yesterday. It was the opening game of the year for the Jaguars.

Alonza Taylor scored both of the Aycock touchdowns, one each in the second and fourth periods. His first was a 16-yard run, and the other came on an eight-yard scramble. Taylor also added one two-point conversion, while Mark Douglas got the other.

Aycock rolled up 332 yards in total offense in the game.

"We had some good individual performances," Coach Wilson McDowell said. He singled out backs Taylor and Douglas, along with center Stuart Ward, tackles Scott Southerland and Jerry Cullipher, and guard Danny Moore on offense, along with halfbacks Kenny Barnes and Mike Pollard, end Donald Johnson and tackle Bobby McRoy on defense for their play in the game.

Aycock, now 1-0, travels to Rocky Mount next Thursday: E.B. Aycock 0 8 0 8-16

UFO In The Hot Corner

New York Yankees' third baseman Graig Nettles, accustomed to handling hard line drives in the hot corner, finds himself unexpectedly confronted with an apparent UFO during early action in Tuesday's game with the Boston Red Sox at New York's Yankee Stadium. Nettles gamely caught the disc, which was tossed onto the field by a fan, and then threw it off the field to allow play to continue. (AP Laserphoto)

Reds Rally To Stop Dodgers; Fading Cincinnati Hopes Alive

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Despite their nearly-hopeless positions in the National League divisional races, Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson and Pittsburgh's Chuck Tanner are keeping the faith.

Anderson's Reds came from behind with six runs in the final two innings to nip Los Angeles 9-8 Wednesday, leaving at four the Dodgers' magic number for clinching the Western Division. The Reds trail the Dodgers by 12½ games.

The Pirates were rained out after leading St. Louis 2-0 in the third inning, but that didn't dampen Tanner's spirits. With the Phillies losing to the Mets 1-0, Pittsburgh gained one-half game in the standings and is 7½ games back.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco nipped Houston 3-2, San Diego took Atlanta 6-4 and Montreal outlasted Chicago 3-2 in 12 innings.

"That was a courageous comeback we made," Anderson said after Ken Griffey smashed a two-run homer in the ninth inning to win the game. An inning earlier, the Reds scored four times, three on Cesar Geronimo's home run. George Foster also belted a homer, his 48th, tops in the major leagues, and knocked in his 137th run as the Reds beat Tommy John for only the second time ever.

John, 18-6, got home run support from Dave Lopes, Steve Yeager and Steve Garvey, who had four hits and his 30th homer.
Pittsburgh's plight is not quite as discouraging as Cincinnati's.

"We're not out of it until we're two games out and there's just one to go," said Tanner. "A collapse has happened before. One weekend can change a season. One club can get hot and another cold." Mets 1, Phillies 0
Nino Espinosa outduelled Philadelphia mound star Steve Carlton to help the Pirates. Espinosa hurled a three-hitter, struck out four and walked three. He also knocked in the game's only run with a single in the fifth.

Memphis Seeking New Baseball Franchise

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Avron Fogelman, who has been financially involved in Memphis' ill-fated professional basketball and football franchises, is ready to try again.

But this time the wealthy 37-year-old businessman is going it alone and this time the sport is baseball.

"I don't intend to lose money," Fogelman said Wednesday as he announced a working agreement between his still-named club and the National League's Montreal Expos.

Today his representatives are in Atlanta where the Class AA Southern League is expected to approve a two-team expansion that will take in Nashville and Memphis.

"We're going to have professional sports — or at least professional baseball — in Memphis as long as we're around," Fogelman said.

He said he wasn't fearful of Memphis' spotty record in professional sports.

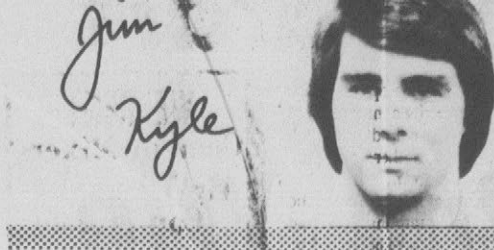

Fogelman was involved in Memphis' American Basketball Association franchise which folded in 1975. He was also a stockholder in the Memphis Grizzlies of the World Football League which foundered midway through its second season.

He was not involved in the old Memphis Blues, an International League club that died at the end of the 1976 season. Memphis has been without a professional sports team since the league withdrew the Blues' franchise.

Fogelman said his baseball club will be a one-man operation as far as financial support is concerned.

"There were too many people who had to make decisions before," he said of the ABA and WFL franchises in which he had been involved.

But Fogelman, who is presi-

EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY'S Pirates recorded two of the school's biggest football victories over the past couple of weeks, but the team has had its problems during those contests.

One of the biggest trouble areas is penalties. The Bucs are giving up around 100 yards per game due to penalties and have shown an uncanny knack for getting flags thrown at the wrong times.

Two outstanding defensive plays sealed victories for ECU in the N. C. State and Duke games, but if not for some key penalties, the Pirates could probably have clinched victories long before those final plays.

Head coach Pat Dye takes much of the blame for the penalties, saying a breakdown in discipline is the result of a coaching breakdown. Whatever the reason, the Bucs have made two tough games tougher on themselves by drawing the yellow flags.

ECU WAS PENALIZED nine times against N. C. State for a total of 89 yards. The most devastating call in the game came with less than a minute left and the Wolfpack driving for what could have been the winning its final touchdown.

The Pirate defense had seemingly stopped State at the ECU 40 after the Pack had driven from its own 22. Two Johnny Evans passes had fallen incomplete and the Wolfpack had a third and ten. Evans again passed and it was incomplete, but a personal foul on the play gave State new life with a first down at the Buc 25 from what should have been fourth and ten.

State got down to the two before Ruffin McNeil tackled Rickey Adams on the final play.

In the Duke game, East Carolina hurt its own offensive effort with a number of penalties, including one that nullified an apparent touchdown run by Eddie Hicks.

Kicking off at the start of the second half with a 10-3 lead, the Pirates recovered a Duke fumble at the Blue Devil 20 and seemed assured of increasing their margin.

On the first play from scrimmage, Hicks took the ball around left end and went the distance, but the Bucs were called for holding and the ball was moved back to the Duke 33. The Pirates weren't able to overcome the penalty and gain a first down and a Junior Creech field goal from the 22 was wide.

ON THE THIRD Pirate possession of the second half, the Bucs must surely have thought they were in a Chinese laundry with all the linen that was floating around.

A 19-yard carry by Willie Hawkins gave ECU a first down at the Duke 40. Leander Green took the ball around the left side for five yards, but a clipping penalty moved it back to midfield and gave the Pirates a first and 20. A holding penalty on the next play set them back 20 more yards to their own 30 with a first and 40.

Anthony Collins took a pitch around right end for 21 yards to the Blue Devil 49 to make it second and 19 and carried for nine more yards on the next play to make it third and ten.

Green then rolled out to the right and hit Ron Frederick for a first down, but the Pirates had an ineligible receiver downfield and that cost them 15 yards back to their 45, making it third and 25. Theodore Sutton took it up the middle for 15 and the Bucs were called for illegal procedure, but the penalty was declined; and with a fourth and ten situation, ECU punted to give up the ill-fated drive.

From a first and ten at the Duke 40, the Bucs gained around 70 yards, but lost it all on penalties, and were forced to punt on fourth and ten.

The Pirates can't afford to make the same kinds of mistakes they have been making and still expect to win. They have been lucky to stop State and Duke just a few feet short of scoring the winning points, but that luck might not hold for the rest of the season if they continue to make things hard on themselves.

Wind Blows For Americans

By ROBERT JONES
Associated Press Writer
BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — "If this wind keeps up, we're in with every chance in the world," said Tony Jacklin, veteran member of the British-Irish Ryder Cup golf team. And only minutes after he said it Wednesday, a sudden gust snapped a rope and brought the stars and stripes fluttering sadly down the staff as the band struck up the opening bars of the British national anthem at official flag-raising ceremonies.

Lord Derby, president of the British PGA, looked embarrassed and muttered a few words of apology to the United States team as the flag-raiser hastily repaired the halyard and brought the flag to the top of the staff again.

Jacklin's statement looked like a plea to the gods, but in fact it was a simple statement of his faith in the ability of the underdog British team to score an upset and snatch the Cup from the Americans for the first time in 20 years.

The match was to start today with five foursomes on the 6,822-yard, par-71 Royal Lytham St. Anne's course. And for the first time this week, a brisk wind fanned across the course — only a couple of hundred yards from the seashore — during practice Wednesday.

"The Americans aren't as experienced in winds as we are," said a confident Jacklin, who won the British Open on this same course in 1969 and the U.S. Open the following year. "They're going to find it difficult to manipulate the ball if it blows."

Don Finsterwald, non-playing captain of the U.S. squad — among them, the dozen members have career earnings of around $12 million — didn't echo Jacklin's assessment. But even Finsterwald implied some worries when he said after Wednesday's practice: "I was pleased to see some wind today. It gives us the opportunity to see the course under all conditions."

Today pairings included: Lanny Wadkins and Hale Irwin vs. Bernard Gallacher and Brian Barnes; Dave Stockton and Jerry McGee vs. Neil Coles and Peter Dawson; Ray Floyd and Lou Graham vs. Nick Faldo and Peter Oosterhuis; Ed Sneed and Don January vs. Eamon Darcy and Jacklin, and Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson vs. Tommy Horton and Mark James.

The Ryder Cup, inaugurated by British seed merchant Sam Ryder 50 years ago, was last won by the British in 1957. In the 21 series played so far, the United States has won 17 and lost only three, with one halved.

Vickers Off To A Fine Start

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Considering he's not even a starter yet, North Carolina State's Billy Ray Vickers is off to a better season than the rest of the Wolfpack.

Vickers, a quick sophomore fullback, is the second leading rusher for N.C. State, now 1-1. He's averaging 5.3 yards a carry in 26 totes, second in total yards only to State's highly touted running back Ted Brown.

But like the rest of the team, Vickers' has been bothered by a rash of frustrating fumbles — two in N.C. State's 28-23 opening loss to East Carolina and another in the 14-0 win over Virginia.

"The first time I carried the ball against Virginia, a guy pulled my arm as I went through the hole and I fumbled," the 5-foot-11, 196-pound Forest City, N.C. native recalled before practice Wednesday.

"That fired me up," said Vickers, who came back to lead all rushers with 102 yards in that game. "I went out knowing I was going to have a good game, and was mad at myself when I went back to the bench."

Still, Coach Bo Rein sent Vickers back in the game, continuing to alternate him quarter-by-quarter with senior fullback Timmy Johnson, the starter.

"They showed they had confidence in me, even though it was my third fumble of the season," Vickers said gratefully.

The fumbles have become a headache — and a dreaded word — around the Wolfpack camp. In the two games, N.C. State has fumbled 18 times, 11 of them in the win against Virginia.

Two thirds of the fumbles have been in the backfield and, even though only five have been recovered by opponents, the drops have slowed State's offensive attack.

"To me it just seemed like it wasn't real. Fumbling the ball is the worst thing you can do," Vickers said.

Preparing for Syracuse this week, Rein has tried everything he can think of to cut out the fumbles. In practice, the backs are handling balls soaked in water and lathered with soap.

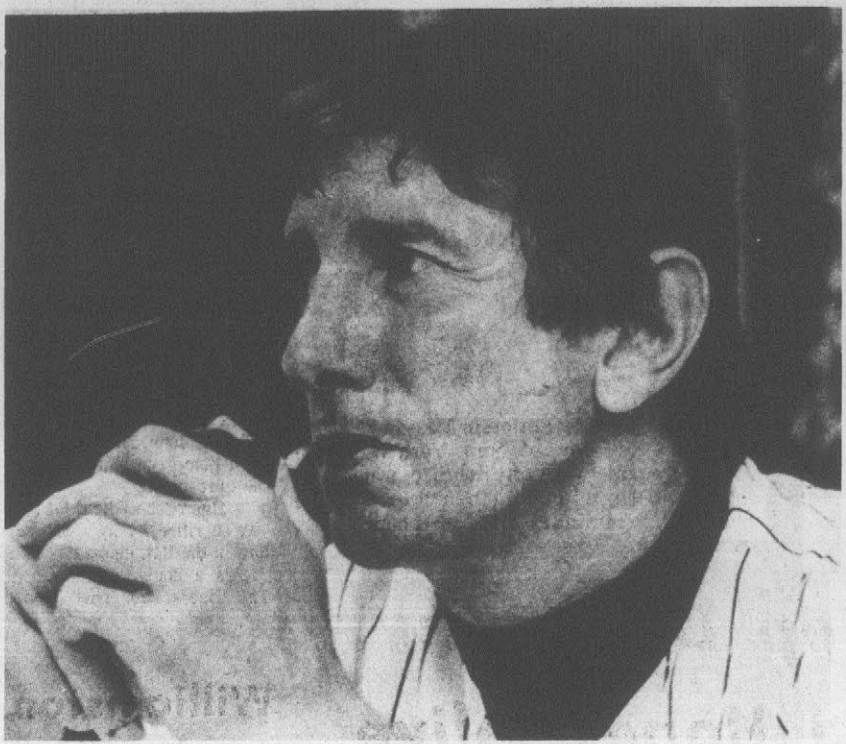

"I've tried to put fumbles out of my mind," Vickers said. "But now I'm also going to worry more about just getting the ball than running. I think maybe I was too relaxed running with the ball. Against Syracuse, Wolfpack quarterback Johnny Evans may look to Vickers on the option more than ever. Brown has missed practice all week due to the death of his mother and may not be at top form.

"We're going in with the same game plan that we had against East Carolina and Virginia," Vickers said, and with Rein a product of the Ohio State school of football, that means running.

"We'll move on the ground, then pass. But the ground comes first — it has to," Vickers said. "Coach Rein likes to run the ball, and that's fine with me."

Diving Opens Door To Underwater Paradise

By FRED T. FERGUSON
WAILEA MAUI, Hawaii (UPI) — A strong swimmer these days can have the first thrill of a 40-minute scuba dive in an underwater paradise with no more preparation than a brief training session.

Called an "underwater experience" or an "introduction to diving," most Hawaiian scuba schools and many elsewhere are offering the morning or afternoon-long opportunity to dive for the first time. It provides a basis for deciding whether to become seriously involved in the sport currently popularized by the movie, "The Deep."

"All it really takes," said Bob Chambers, 26, a Utica, N.Y., native, "is a love of the water."

"You need to like the water; to be able to overcome the fear of it; to be comfortable in it. And it helps if you are a strong swimmer," said Chambers at his Hawaiian Pacific Divers school before two swimmers with only snorkeling for background set out on their first scuba dive.

It also takes $32 here, which seems to be about the average charge for such an introduction. Getting any further into scuba diving involves training, certification and equipment rental or purchase.

Jim O'Brien, formerly of Mountain Lakes, N.J., is instructor for the scuba experience in which this reporter spent 40 minutes under water and remains amazed to have lasted more than one.

O'Brien, 26, had a brief career in professional football with the New England Patriots and looks "It" — a muscled torso above his wetsuit pants.

Gail Couto, 23, formerly of Asbury Park, N.J., helps shepherd the two novices. She follows behind to make sure neither strays and she tows the flag buoy marking the dive.

It is Jacqui Hyland's first dive. She is 15, of Bellaire, Calif., a student at the Strasberg Theater Institute. She is clearly excited as she is helped into weight belt, tank, backpack and tank, floatation pack, breathing gear, swim fins, mask and snorkel.

During this process, there is instruction in using the equipment and breathing apparatus, use of the floatation pack and emergency hand signals.

"This is neat," said Jacqui a number of times.

Entering the water from the beach is difficult since standing in the paraphernalia feels like staggering to the end of a 20-mile infantry march in full pack.

There is enough surf for surfers down the beach, so attempting to put on fins in it is a challenge — especially when you insist on doing it all yourself.

There are several quick practice dives in shallow water. It is a chance to practice equalizing pressure on the ears and clearing the face mask of water, both necessary from time to time during the dive.

"Okay, let's dive." O'Brien leads his charges close to multi-hued coral formations at ever greater depths and eventually into the fairy castles of the coral reef. All around are schools of fish more robust and varied in color than in the more elaborate aquariums.

O'Brien beckons the novices to join him at the bottom. They are now in 20 to 30 feet of water. The surface above is dark but the bottom remains illuminated. They tread within an inch of coral outcroppings to see the life underneath.

The sounds underwater seem the same as those depicted in underwater movies.

Eventually, the dive is over. Back on the beach, the novices are jubilant.

"Neat, neat, neat," said Jacqui.

"By the way," said O'Brien, "did you see those pink things under the coral?"

We had.

"Those were shrimp. And that yellow thing in behind them?"

Yes.

"That was a moray eel." "We've had beginners aged seven to 68," said Chambers. His school makes up part of the Ocean Activities Center here which he operates with two partners.

Chambers directs the school. Mike Salzer, 28, of Rocky River, Ohio, runs the glass bottom boat. Dave Podgett of Honolulu, handles deep sea fishing charters.

"We're a conglomerate," said

Chambers of their three-year-old venture.

Football behind him, O'Brien came to diving by way of a bartending job here on Maui. He still tends bar by night, but now scuba by day.

In the 10 months since selling Chambers he would like to learn to scuba, he has become something of an expert with tales of underwater adventure to tell.

O'Brien particularly likes the favorite dive of Maui divers — to the sunken U.S. Navy sub Blue Gill in 100-150 feet of water.

And he has been amazed at the native skill of Hawaiians who have spear fished all their lives without benefit of scuba gear but now come to the school for the five-day, 30-hour, $125 course prior to the test for scuba diver certification. Only certified divers can get their oxygen tanks filled at scuba shops.

Dives with these Hawaiians, O'Brien said, tend to culminate at night with fishfries on the beach and great good cheer.

"After I got into it," he said "I decided this was for me. It's fascinating, never boring."

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshman Sen. Edward Zorinsky, saying too many people in Washington feel comfortable spending other people's money, is returning to the government $313,016 in unspent office funds.

"I feel like one drop in a bucket helps," said Zorinsky, a Nebraska Democrat, whose unused funds will revert to the treasury on Sept. 30, when the current fiscal year ends.

"Sometimes a bucket can get filled if enough drops fall into it," he said in a telephone interview today.

Zorinsky, who has been in office only nine months of the fiscal year, said he would be returning more money to the treasury if he had been in the Senate for the entire fiscal year.

He said he simply didn't spend all of his appropriation for administrative aide salaries as well as money provided for such items as telephones, travel, stationery and other office expenses.

In addition, the senator is vowing to make his 19 staff workers earn the 7.5 per cent pay raise that will automatically be given to thousands of other federal employees in October.

Zorinsky, who serves on the Agriculture and Commerce Committee, also refused to use $139,278 authorized for hiring committee aides.

"The taxpayers can no longer afford to pay for all the services the federal government wants to provide for them," said Zorinsky, who winces at the thought of being dubbed a crusader.

The senator admits, however, that his tight-fisted spending policies have caused a stir among some colleagues.

"Some of them have referred to it jokingly," Zorinsky said, without naming names. "But I haven't encountered any animosity."

Does he feel like a fiscal

Lone Ranger?
"Not at all," Zorinsky said. "I just feel that I want to be sure I'm not wasting the taxpayers' money."

Not a single constituent has complained about Zorinsky's failure to spend all of the money allocated to his office, he said.

"In fact," said Zorinsky, the former mayor of Omaha, "I've received several letters from people saying, 'We wish there were more like you in Washington.'"

Pahinui's Star Soaring Again

By RON STATION
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Gabby Pahinui, at 58, is making something of a national name for himself. But after 45 years performing, the Hawaiian singer and slack-key artist is taking it all in stride.

"If this album goes well, maybe we'll do another," he said of his first nationally marketed record. "If not — well, nobody got hurt."

"The Gabby Pahinui Hawaiian Band," a big seller in Hawaii under the Panini label, was released by Warner Bros. in April.

Pahinui said he had no idea how the album would sell on the mainland or if there will be a second. "We'll let Warner Bros. and the public decide," he said.

The album is the result of a nine-day recording session at an isolated house on Hawaii Island in August 1974. Panini released it about a year later, and came out with a second about the same time Warners picked up the first.

Pahinui, for the session, had assembled seven other musicians, including two of his sons and country-folk artist Ry Cooder, whom he met during a concert appearance in Honolulu.

The Pahinui band features a unique sound of harmonizing slack-key guitars blending with the soulful voice of its leader in an offering of old Hawaiian songs.

Pahinui is unsure why mainlanders would be attracted to his music, but he said it may be a renewed interest in heritage music. And he said he isn't worried about Hawaiian music being classified as country-western and losing its identity. "They aren't going to take the Hawaiian flavor away," he said.

Pahinui's early influence was from jazz. By listening to progressive artists and the big bands, he learned to pick out melody, harmony and chords. He later watched the Hawaiian musicians, but never has learned to read music.

Since beginning his professional career at 13, Pahinui said, he's played at every club in Honolulu and has provided background accompaniment for recordings by several local singers.

A quiet, gentle man, Pahinui has become a folk hero in Hawaii. He remains modest about his work. "Whatever I'm doing, I hope I'm doing it right," he said.

Three TV Series Bow In Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three new series wobble in tonight — a California Highway Patrol party called "CHIPS" on NBC, and ABC's "Carter Country" sitcom and Redd Foxx's new comedy, music and old-times hour.

We warn right off the bat that NBC's entry is a stone dog. Intended as action without gunfire, it is show without mind. It stars Larry Wilcox and Erik Estrada as two cheery motorcycle cops.

Wilcox is your basic All-American, aw-shucks boy. Estrada plays the lady-killer, "Ponch." He has a crooked smile, but straight teeth. Both are dashing young bachelors, Kawasaki Kids, if you will.

In their premiere hour, they roar about, grin, meet a pretty crash victim and bring a hot-car ring to justice. Ponch also gets to fall in a mess of spilled glue and emit such classic lines as:

"If I ever scope that turkey again, I'm gonna pull him out through his wind wing, seat belt attached."

Second place in the dialogue derby goes to a stewardess on whom Ponch is putting the make. Says she: "London is a neat town."

ABC's "Carter Country" is about a young, New York-trained black cop (Kene Holliday) who is a sergeant on the small-town, once all-white Georgia constabulary of Victor French, who plays the police chief.

Tonight's premiere involves a presidential visit; French's fried chicken; a man-hungry, middle-aged secretary; a low-key redneck in police blue and a mayor who fears only his mother and French.

If the show has a memorable line, I forgot it. It's just another Hollywood attempt at Southern humor, with a few affirmative-action and mild racial gags tossed in to indicate progress.

Which brings to mind what Oscar Levant once said in improving a sponsor's slogan: "Progress is our most important product ... the merchandise is secondary."

The Redd Foxx hour on ABC has the only hope of success among tonight's new entries, and that hope is faint unless he relies more on improved skits and less on a friendly, laugh-at-anything studio audience.

He opens with a good bit involving two bogus world leaders, and follows with a passable monologue in which he notes ABC's censors "decided the only thing I could do from my night club act is smoke..."

But things bog down with now-obligatory Anita Bryant jokes; a skit on how a black named Yuma, Ariz.; a massage parlor routine, and a scene from "The Wiz" we saw on H. Cosell's variety show two years ago.

Still, three good moments are worth your time — a too-brief visit from Iron Jaw Wilson, an old Foxx pal; a surprisingly good reading of "Easy to Love" by Foxx, and a largely silent routine about inventors.

The last has Foxx and Byron Paul, ex-executive producer of last year's Dick Van Dyke show on NBC, as inventors of identical and amazing mixing blenders. Had Foxx cut the dialogue, shortened the beginning and end, the routine would equal Ernie Kovacs' best.

Even with its flaws, the bit is mighty funny. It may encourage viewers to tune in next week, just to see if Foxx tries a similar caper again.

They're Selling A 'Solar Dryer'

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — In her search for a successor to the "pet rock" gimmick, Patricia Moore left no stone unturned. She's pinning her hopes on the "solar dryer," a new name for the clothesline in this conservation-conscious town.

Mrs. Moore figures she's a step ahead of the town planners who are drawing up a new ordinance that encourages clotheslines instead of energy-gobbling dryers.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Each year, the International Bridge Press Association awards a prize to the hand of the year. We feel that this one will be a strong contender for the 1977 award.

The bidding was straightforward. South's jump to two no trump showed 19-20 points, and North had a bit in reserve for his raise to game.

West's ten of spades was a triumph for his side—it attacked the only entry to dummy's long suit. Nevertheless, Rita Seamon of Miami, wife of U.S. Internationalist William Seamon, found a way to make the hand, and there was nothing the defenders could do about it.

It was obvious that East had to hold just about every missing high card for his takeout double, so declarer had to engineer an endplay. She played low from dummy at trick one, East won the queen and declarer followed with the six! This was a key move in her plan.

East continued with a low spade on the ace, on which declarer played the seven. Declarer cashed the ace, king and queen of diamonds, then attempted to force an entry to dummy by leading the king and queen of hearts. East correctly held up the ace of hearts, but he was forced to win the third lead of the suit. When he turned up with only three hearts, the contract was home.

In with the ace of hearts, East tried to get out of his hand in spades. He cashed the king of spades, but declarer came up with another brilliant counter—she jettisoned her jack of spades under the monarch! That gave East a spade trick he wasn't entitled to win, but it gained declarer two tricks.

When East continued with the three of spades, declarer was able to underplay the two, and East was, once again, straddled by the lead. Now East was forced to lead away from his king of clubs, and the queen was an entry to dummy to cash the long diamonds. In all, declarer scored one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs, to just make her contract.

Soil Survey Of Outer Banks Is Now Available

By FRANK JETER, JR.
USDA-Soil Conservation Service
A unique soil survey of North Carolina's fabled Outer Banks has been completed and published, it was announced recently by State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks of Raleigh, who heads the Soil Conservation Service in the state.

The survey, more than 320 miles long, covers the Atlantic coastline from the South Carolina to Virginia line. Since the area surveyed is generally quite narrow, the survey covers only 157,000 acres.

Roanoke Island is also mapped in a supplemental survey, which will be provided in the near future.

First of Type

"This is the first survey of this type ever made," Hicks commented. "While there has been some soil mapping along coastal areas, no one has previously prepared one of the entire North Carolina coast."

The survey was prepared to aid planning along the Outer Banks area. It can tell planners whether any given area is suitable for dwellings, streets or roads, septic tanks, business or other purposes. It can also evaluate suitability for habitat of birds and small game and for many types of plants. Susceptibility to flooding, water tables and permeability are other factors covered in the soil survey.

To make it, soil scientists from the Soil Conservation Service and cooperating agencies walked over every area of coastland — including marshes and shallow water — to prepare a scientific map.

Cooperative Effort

The survey "was very much a cooperative effort," Hicks added.

In addition to the SCS, the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development (DNR&CD) and the Soil Science Department of North Carolina State University were involved in the field work. Monies from the Office of Coastal Zone Management, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the National Park Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, and the N.C. Coastal Resources Commission supported the preparation of the report.

The Soil Conservation Service provided both funds and soil scientists — a number of whom worked on the survey during 1976-77 — while the USDA agency and DNR&CD prepared and edited the manuscript for publication.

In addition to soil scientists, an SCS biologist and plant materials specialist worked on the survey.

"Besides providing useful information for planning," says Hubert J. Byrd, State Soil Scientist for the SCS, "this survey will help clear up the impression that the Outer Banks are sandy near the beach and probably 'mucky' on the sound. We have identified more than 30 different types of soil, and they are fully explain in this useful and unique survey."

As published, the Outer Banks Soil Survey will consist of two bound volumes. One will contain the manuscript with informational data, while the other will have detailed maps prepared on aerial photographs showing the actual consistency of every acre of soil. In addition to maps, many photographic illustrations are used to show the area.

Help Is Available

People seeking information from the survey are invited to contact local offices of the Soil Conservation Service, their soil and water conservation district, the Department of Soil Science, Agricultural Extension Service, North Carolina State University, or offices of the Coastal Resources Commission, North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development in Raleigh, or other related North Carolina agencies.

"We think it's going to prove very useful to people who are responsible for making wise land use decisions," Hicks concluded, "and we're glad that we can provide this at a time when it is vitally needed."

More Land-Use Planning Urged

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt called Wednesday for statewide land use planning and indicated the controversial Coastal Area Management Act was a good model for similar programs in other regions.

In a speech to the newly-formed 22-county Southern Appalachian Research-Resource Management Cooperative, Hunt said land use planning was one way to assure that the state's resources are used efficiently.

"Each day we learn more how the cumulative land use acts of individuals may have an adverse impact on society through environmental degradation, fewer natural resources being available for economic development or higher taxes all of us must pay to clean up land use mistakes," Hunt said.

The governor said North Carolina has taken a national leadership role in land use planning with the establishment of the Coastal Area Management Act, which created a commission to oversee development in 20 coastal counties and make sure it does not harm fishing areas and other natural resources.

"It is a program that is almost unique in that it places the greatest responsibility on local citizens to devise and use the plans," Hunt said, adding that the time had come to develop such responsibility statewide.

Also appearing at the cooperative's organizational meeting was former Gov. Bob Scott, now federal co-chairman of the 13-state Appalachian Regional Commission.

Scott raised his familiar call for "a balance between economic development, recreational opportunities and transportation needs, and conservation of the historical and cultural identity of the region."

Scott said the people of western North Carolina have some hard choices to make between short-term economic gains and the "stewardship of our natural resources for future generations."

By MARK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Writer
CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — It was like an old-fashioned revival meeting as the hometown folks stomped their feet, prayed and cheered one of their own — Bert "Good Ole Georgia Boy" Lance.

About 1,500 people — more than one-fifth of Calhoun's population — turned out in a demonstration of support for the director of the federal Office of Management and Budget on the eve of his appearance before a Senate panel investigating his financial affairs.

The crowd gave a standing ovation as the high school band played "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "I Did It My Way."

They had placards saying "Calhoun for Bert" and "Bert's A Good Ole Georgia Boy." They used words like "love,"

"friendship," and "honesty" to describe Lance, who did not attend the rally.

"I'll tell you what kind of a guy he is," said Jack Purcell, who used to be the catcher on the softball team when Lance was pitcher.

"I called him up last year to come speak to the graduating class of the school where I was principal. And even though it rained and the loudspeakers didn't work, he came and he spoke. And when I sent him a check for speaking to the class, he sent the check back because he didn't do it for the money. That's the kind of guy Bert is."

A downpour drove the crowd from the high school football field across the street to a gymnasium, but it didn't dampen their spirits.

Lance's minister, the Rev. Emory Brackman, told of the "very generous" contributions of time and money that Lance and his wife, LaBelle, made to the First Methodist Church. He recalled that Lance received "the highest honor" a United Methodist can receive when he was elected to the church's General Conference.

Lt. Gov. Zell Miller, who shared a double desk with Lance in grammar school, accused the news media of distorting the Lance affair. He denied a statement in an article in a national magazine that quoted him as saying Lance was a poor arithmetic student.

"Powerful and ruthless forces" — whom he later identified as the federal bureaucracy — have attacked Lance, Miller said.

"To say that Bert Lance has done something wrong does not make it so," he said.

Though some of the spectators admitted to doubts about the ethics of Lance's money-handling, most didn't want to talk about finances or politics.

They wanted to talk about the back-slapping, joke-telling Bert Lance who married his high school sweetheart and helped his neighbors as he rose from a 19-year-old bank teller to a 32-year-old bank president.

Responding To 'Survey'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — About 1,000 North Carolinians each day are responding to Gov. Jim Hunt's request for citizen help in planning the state's future.

"The response, I would say, so far has been very good," says Dana Herring of the state Department of Administration.

Herring is referring to answers to a questionnaire distributed in newspapers and through social service agencies and the schools, aimed at finding out what citizens want state government to do.

Another survey, a careful poll of a scientifically-selected sample of the population, is asking the same kinds of questions.

The results, Herring says, will hopefully be similar profiles of what the population wants its government to do.

Response to the two surveys will be handed over to the State Goals and Policy Board, a 15-member panel appointed by Hunt to develop long-range goals for the state and recommend how to reach them.

Hunt also plans to incorporate the survey results in his 1979 legislative program.

Shot, Killed In Stakeout

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A fireman in command of a sheriff's auxiliary patrol was shot and killed late Wednesday during a convenience store stake-out after he ordered a gunman to surrender.

The dead man was identified as Lt. R. G. Smith, 46, a Lafayette Village fireman who worked as a trained volunteer with the Cumberland County sheriff's department on stake-out duty.

Investigators were searching at daybreak today for a tall man with a goatee and a companion. Smith and another officer were hiding in the quick-stop store five miles southwest of here when a gunman entered and attempted to rob it. Smith reportedly ordered the man to surrender, gunfire erupted and Smith fell with a chest wound.

The gunman fled with another person who apparently was waiting outside the store. Bloodhounds were brought in to search the area.

Smith and his partner were part of seven two-man crews staking out stores in the area Wednesday night, when three other stores in the area reported robberies.

Receive 'Kits' On Stevens Case

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Ministers and laymen at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina have received special kits to familiarize them with the J.P. Stevens & Co. controversy.

Church officials say the packets are "balanced" in approach, and the idea is not for the synod to take a position on the material but simply to "reflect on this matter and study it."

Verdict Due On Superintendent

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A Watauga County jury was expected to render a verdict today in the case of county school superintendent Dr. F.L. Barker Jr.

Barker is charged with forging a signature in order to cash a school check. He also faces a charge of using a school credit card to pay for personal trips.

Barker has been suspended from his job since June.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Corneal Transplants: Gift of Sight

I was almost totally blind until four months ago. At that time I had a corneal transplant operation. Now, once again, I can see. I wish I could thank my benefactor, who so generously gave his cornea so that another person would be able to see again. — Mr. G.B., Ark.

Dear Mr. B.:

Through the miracle of modern surgery the successful transplantation of corneas from one eye to another can now restore sight.

Hundreds of people like yourself are again blessed with vision because of the unselfish gift of precious corneas for transplantation.

The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration was created in 1944 and has served as a dedicated agency in finding people who would bequeath the tiny piece of eye tissue that would restore vision to another. Since its origin, it has expanded into a vast network of communication with "Eye Banks," under the direction of the Eye Bank Association of America, all across the country.

Hundreds of people, in various stages of blindness, wait for the treasured corneas promised by unknown benefactors.

Your letter highlights the unselfish philanthropy of those who leave behind them the gift of sight.

Are there any special diets for a person who tends to get cystitis — Mrs. B.B., W.Va.

Dear Mrs. B.:

The cause of these repeated bladder infections must first be determined. With cultures of the urine, a specific kind of bacteria may be isolated. Then, sulfa drugs and antibiotics are used to clear up the infection.

Usually, large quantities of water are suggested when these drugs are given. Spices and strong seasonings should be avoided. There is no special food to which bouts of cystitis can be attributed.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Speech defects in children should be treated long before they become a source of embarrassment.

Hearing Clinic In The Schools

Greenville City School students will be evaluated in a two increment Hearing Conservation Program to be held at the Moose Lodge. The first dates for the program are September 19-22, with the second round of evaluations to be conducted September 26-28.

Lynn Shine and Greg Baldwin, both Speech and Hearing Language Pathologists with the city school system, will coordinate the program.

This year, students in kindergarten, and in grades one, three, five and nine, as well as those attending the Extended School Program, are to be tested.

Assisting in the evaluation will be eight volunteers who completed a training clinic as assistants held on Wednesday, September 13.

In addition, students of Dr. Garrett Hume, of the East Carolina University Speech and Language Dept. have also agreed to donate time in helping with the program.

The Hearing Conservation Program is focused on educable and trainable mentally retarded children in the school system. Among factors being checked are those that can create physical difficulties in communication — things like ear infections, allergies, etc. that might cause further damage if undetected and untreated.

Ms. Shine said that family doctors' pediatricians, ear-nose-throat specialists and other medical personnel would be kept informed and that these people could expect referrals once the evaluations are completed.

Dr. Lanier At Meeting

ECU NEWS BUREAU
Dr. Gene Lanier, chairperson of the East Carolina University Department of Library Science, participated in a library education conference last week in Raleigh.

Other participants included representatives from N.C. colleges and universities and professional staff members from the N. C. Dept. of Public Instruction.

Major topic of discussion was a competency-based program for library education, similar to the competency-based preparation program for teacher education adopted by the state in 1972.

Dr. Lanier served on the original committee which developed the proposed competency-based program in library education. Its purpose is to provide enough flexibility for differences in the educational background and experience of candidates but sufficiently structured to develop desired competencies.

Complicated By Mandatory Work Requirement

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Out here, in a day-care center 2,700 miles from the White House, welfare expert Willie Williams sees a wild card in President Carter's complicated welfare package.

A seven-year welfare veteran who took a job as a day-care counselor and worked her way off the dole, Mrs. Williams says, "The jobs program will be a big help. But the pay is so low, people will need welfare anyways. So what's the point?"

The point, say Carter aides, is to hold down costs and to provide an incentive for public workers to seek jobs elsewhere. In hearing that are scheduled to begin this month, administration officials will try to convince Congress that his jobs approach will work.

Subpoena wages are just one of the problems that make the jobs plan the most troublesome element of Carter's package of expanded welfare coverage, tax refunds and work.

—Carter wants to move poor people out of the welfare system and into private jobs, but his program offers almost nothing to aid the transition. And in many areas, the private jobs just don't exist.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says this is the most serious weakness of the jobs plan.

—A huge welfare work force could hold down salaries for regular public employees doing similar work at higher wages. For this reason labor unions vigorously oppose minimum-wage welfare jobs.

—There is a serious danger that some government officials will replace regular employees, paid from local tax receipts, with "bargain basement" public service workers paid from the welfare fund. The process, Marshall's No. 2 worry, is called "substitution."

—San Francisco manpower boss Eunice Patton says: "If welfare workers are of any use at all, there will be a tendency to rely on them."

—As Mrs. Williams points out, the minimum wage won't allow the welfare work force to escape poverty without also drawing cash welfare benefits — especially in expensive cost-of-living areas like New York or California. Dependency on welfare will continue.

Typically, a mother or father heading a family of four would receive benefits of $1,444 to supplement the minimum wage of $5.52.

These are the key problem areas that surfaced in discussions with public officials, manpower experts, union leaders and welfare recipients from Seattle to Baltimore, San Francisco to New York.

Carter's "program for Better Jobs and Income" would put 2½-million poor people to work in 1.4-million public service jobs, either full or part time. Federal welfare money would pay the salaries.

But the political opposition and built-in pitfalls threaten chances for success as the program begins its journey through Congress.

In an interview, Secretary Marshall acknowledged the problems and said administration leaders already are working to correct them.

The work requirement would force "employable" recipients to accept a job if one is available.

—But where other mandatory-work plans failed, Carter's could succeed because he offers more than ultimatums — he also offers jobs. And there is a wage incentive for people to keep them.

Says George Washington University manpower expert Sar Levitan: "You can't create jobs without spending money. You can't do it without dollar signs and zeroes."

Carter's plan has plenty of those: 8,800,000,000 dollars ($8.8 billion) earmarked to pay for the public service jobs.

The number of current public service jobs would be doubled at only a 49 per cent increase in cost because the current program for 725,000 jobs pays prevailing wages, usually much higher than the minimum.

Carter's plan would require an estimated seven million people who are eligible for welfare to work. Some will find low-paying, nongovernment jobs and will receive income aid from the government. But the economy doesn't absorb everyone who wants to work, and the public service jobs are planned to take up the slack.

Work requirements are attractive to many taxpayers who support the costly welfare system, but experts agree that jobs — not required participation — are what's needed to make the work plan succeed.

Study after study indicates that poor Americans want to work as much as the rest of us. Most recently the 10-year University of Michigan survey — "5,000 American families: A study in Economic Progress" — said poor Americans usually take work whenever they can find it.

It is hoped that the welfare work force will use public service jobs as a stepping stone to private employment. Public jobs lapse after 12 months and jobholders go on reduced welfare benefits for eight weeks in which they are supposed to seek a regular job.

If they come up empty, they are again eligible for a public service job. If one isn't available there is a safety net, a guaranteed income of $4,200 for a family of four.

"The safety net is critical here," says Arnold Packer, an assistant secretary of labor. The income net is especially important in areas of high unemployment where private jobs just don't exist.

Some poor people — "We don't know how many, exactly," says Marshall — will get help from state or local manpower officials in finding private employment.

Public service workers would be required to accept any private sector job that is offered, but the only dollar-and-cents incentive to find private employment is a tax refund of $54 a month. Even Labor Department experts say that might not have much impact.

Carter did not propose tax credits for companies that hire welfare workers. A credit now exists under the Work Incentive Program and Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long probably will want to retain it.

The welfare work force will be working at a wide variety of low-skill jobs such as cleaning up public parks, emptying hospital bedpans and tending day-care centers.

Regular workers, punching the timeclock at prevailing wages of $4 to $8 an hour in some cities, will not be replaced by low-paid members of the welfare work force.

The AFL-CIO says it will use its clout in Congress to defeat the low-pay provision and replace it with a prevailing-wage scale. And Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, says: "We stand together on this."

However, Baltimore manpower chief Marian Pines notes, "It would be next to impossible to move people out of public service jobs if we paid the prevailing wage. And it would cost a fortune."

The manpower officials believe one way around the thorny wage and substitution questions is to have welfare workers divide their time between public service jobs and training or job-search programs.

Another troublesome problem is that the Carter plan would phase out the current public service jobs, paying prevailing wages, established under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Mrs. Pines warns, "We've got big trouble if we lose this aid. A lot of cities would be totally screwed up."

In some troubled cities — San Jose, Calif., Hartford, Conn., and Newark, N.J., for example — one of every five city workers is paid with CETA money. New York City will count 28,000 city-CETA workers by the end of this year. These workers are paid the prevailing wages; many do regular jobs and they are eligible to join a union.

Some of the biggest welfare states actually lose money in the switch from Title VI to the welfare jobs program, and Jerry Wurf warns, "If Carter's program doesn't work in the big cities and the big states, it doesn't work at all."

Local manpower officials will implement the jobs program, and they are worried about dozens of technical problems.

Their biggest fear is the spectre of two classes of employees working side by side at differing wages.

Mrs. Pines says: "Our labor staff and personnel people are shivering in fright of this thing."

"It's unbelievably complicated," says Robert McPherson, manpower director in the Seattle area. He predicts nothing but trouble with the city's 39 separate public employee unions.

Despite their misgivings, the manpower community is willing to make a go of the Carter plan, should it pass Congress.

Wastewater Course Set

A laboratory training course for wastewater treatment plant personnel will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 6 p.m. in the Environmental Science Laboratory, Pitt Technical Institute.

The program will be sponsored jointly by the North Carolina Water Pollution Control Association. Course manuals will be supplied at no cost to the student by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The course will consist of practical classroom and basic laboratory training in the proper analysis of wastewater. Classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday from 6-9:30 p.m. for 18 consecutive weeks.

A fee of $15 will be charged to cover the cost of supplies. Checks should be made payable to the North Carolina Water Pollution Control Association, and should accompany the application.

A tuition fee of $5 will be charged for the course and is payable to Pitt Technical Institute on Sept. 20, 1977.
