

Carter Energy Program Gets Its Stiffest Test This Week

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Votes on the Senate floor and in the Senate Finance Committee this week will give President Carter's energy plan its stiffest congressional test since the package was first sent to Capitol Hill last April.

An extremely close vote is expected in the Senate on the critical issue of lifting federal controls over the pricing of natural gas.

The President's plan, approved in the House, would retain federal regulation but would permit the price per thousand cubic feet to rise from the current $1.46 ceiling to $1.75.

In 1975, the Senate voted 58 to 32 to deregulate natural gas prices, long urged by producers who argue that freeing prices from government restrictions is necessary to provide enough economic incentive to encourage the search for new reserves.

But Carter's energy advisers say the $1.75 price will provide enough increased profits to encourage added production and avoid short-tages like those that closed factories and schools last winter.

At least two versions of deregulation will be voted on sometime after the natural gas debate begins on Tuesday.

Whatever the Senate and the House eventually agree on will mean higher fuel bills for homeowners.

Before moving to the natural gas bill, the Senate scheduled a vote today on
of legal help for the poor, including attempts to narrow the types of court suits Legal Services Corp. attorneys can file under the program.

The Senate Finance Committee, meanwhile, will begin crucial votes on the tax portions of the energy plan.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who heads the panel and is among the most powerful committee chairman in the Senate, said last week the panel will set aside Carter's proposals for rebating heavy taxes on crude oil to consumers.

Instead, Long is urging that new taxes on the oil companies be turned back to the companies to encourage the search for new reserves.

In the House, Carter faces another uphill fight on the question of whether the United States should continue developing a fast breeder nuclear power plant, which uses plutonium for fuel.

The plant, scheduled for construction in Clinch River, Tenn., would mark a commitment to a type of nuclear technology that Carter contends would lead to the proliferation of nuclear weaponry and make it possible for terrorists to manufacture small nuclear bombs.

The plutonium used in fast breeder reactors can also be used to make nuclear weapons, and Carter has said the United States should take the lead in discouraging its production and use.

Despite Carter's opposition, the House is expected to defeat moves to kill the program and instead vote to continue the project.

The House is also scheduled this week to decide whether to permit the Pentagon to go ahead with production of the neutron bomb, a small nuclear device designed more to kill people than damage buildings or property.

Other votes are also planned on funding for black lung disease treatment and on the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

Continued Lance Inquiry Weighed By Committee

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —
The Senate committee investigating the financial affairs of Bert Lance is deciding whether to continue its inquiry as two key members say they still want Lance to resign.

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee planned to call witnesses from its own staff today to answer Lance's assertion that he told committee investigators in January about the financial troubles now under investigation.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., the ranking Republican on the committee, said the staff members called to testify would contradict Lance's contention that he told investigators about his financial dealings before being confirmed by the Senate panel.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, DConn., chairman of the committee, said members would meet in a closed session later to decide whether to end the investigation or call more witnesses.

And he noted the committee can do little more than it has done. "There's no way a committee can unconfirm an executive official," he said.

Ribicoff said Sunday night that Lance's three days of testimony last week did not change his opinion that the budget director should step down. In fact, Ribicoff said, Lance's position was worsened by his testimony.

Ribicoff said in a telephone interview: "My position hasn't changed as to my statement of Labor Day. The hearings have made it worse, not better. Personally, I think he's looking worse."

On Labor Day, Ribicoff and Percy met with President Carter and urged that Lance quit because of information committee investigators uncovered about his banking practices.

Percy said Sunday he still feels Lance should quit.
Percy said the three days of testimony by Lance "strengthened considerably my feeling that he should leave government."

President Carter dodged questions about Lance on Sunday. Last Friday, about midway in Lance's testimony, Carter said he thought his old friend had "enhanced his position." But Carter added that he was

"keeping an open mind about the entire subject."

Two other members of the committee, a Democratic supporter and a Republican critic of Lance, said Sunday they expect the budget director to remain at his post at least for a while.

"I see no reason Bert Lance should resign or certainly be fired," Sen. Thomas F.

Eagleton, D-Mo., said on the CBS television program
"Face the Nation."

Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., was asked on the same program whether he expected Lance to be retained as budget chief and replied:
"It certainly sounds to me as though that is the current intention of the President."

Completing his testimony before the committee at an unusual Saturday session.

Lance said he would "return to my duties ... with an even firmer sense of responsibility and dedication."

As for the question of taking further testimony, Eagleton said Sunday the hearings should stop. "They have gone on too long and are becoming a three-ring circus," he said.

Ignored Fire Safety Rules

By ANDY LIPPMAN

FT. MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) —
The Beverly Hills Supper Club, where 164 persons died in a fire last May, was an "electrician's nightmare" with numerous building code violations that were covered up, a new Kentucky state report says.

"A reading of this report shows a shocking and total disregard for human life by the owners of this club," said
Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, who released the long-awaited report Sunday night.

At a news briefing, Carroll said he has suspended with pay three top state fire investigators for what he called "ineffective enforcement, generally, of the law."

The report was released as congressional investigators gathered in nearby Cincinnati today to begin hearing testimony on the May 28 Beverly Hills blaze and on national fire codes. Carroll was expected to be among those testifying.

"Not only did they construct in clear violation of the law, but they operated in violation of the law and then failed to use reasonable care to evacuate the premises," Carroll said.

James Osborne, an attorney for the owners of the Southgate, Ky. nightclub, said Sunday night he had not read the report and would have no immediate comment.

"Everyone but the victim patrons knew about these violations," said Ovid Lewis, a Northern Kentucky University professor who helped in the investigation.

The report cited numerous electrical violations, including installation of improper wiring without approval or proper inspections.

In addition, state investigators also said the building did not have an approved sprinkler system, as required by the code.

The investigative team estimated that at least 1,300 persons were in the Cabaret Room at the time of the fire, while calculations by the fire marshal indicated that the capacity should have been 536.

The number of exits at the club were sufficient to accommodate 1,511 persons, the report said. "This many people may have been present in the Cabaret Room alone," it said.

The report said aisles and ramps of the Cabaret Room were jammed with tables and chairs.

The governor announced suspension of the state's highest fire official, Warren Southworth, and two of his subordinates, Stanley Boyd, head of the division for new construction, and John Bramlage, a northern Kentucky field representative.

New York City Runoff Primary

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward Koch and Mario Cuomo, two centrist candidates, squared off in a runoff election today to determine the Democratic nominee for mayor.

About 800,000 persons were expected to turn out for the voting. The winner rated the favorite's role in the November election in this heavily Democratic city.

Koch, a five-term congressman, edged Cuomo, the state's secretary of state, in the party primary Sept. 8. They finished ahead of incumbent Mayor Abraham Beame, former Rep.
Bella Abzug and three other candidates.

Checking Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Joseph A. Califano Jr., said today he is asking for an investigation in 20 major cities to see if federal employees are improperly getting welfare benefits.

Califano said a recently completed investigation in the District of Columbia has identified 1,712 federal civilian employees who are getting welfare benefits from the municipal government.

Califano said they are on the rolls of local residents in the federally subsidized Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

He said 380 — more than 20 per cent — earn over $10,000 a year.

Of the 216 HEW employees discovered on welfare rolls, 136 cases are now being checked for possible civil or criminal prosecution.

"Based on our experience to date, thousands of federal civilian employees may be improperly receiving AFDC payments," Califano told the House Ways and Means Committee.

"I have asked the inspector general to undertake immediately similar efforts in 20 major cities with high concentrations of federal employees in an attempt to find federal civilian employees, who, through fraud and error, are improperly on the welfare rolls," Califano said.

He was the lead-off witness on the administration's proposed welfare reform legislation before a new welfare reform subcommittee that combines persons from three separate committees.

PRYOR PROTEST

I would like to know what we, as parents, can do about moving the new Richard Pryor Show up to a later hour. I don't like for my children to watch shows like that and I know many other parents feel the same way. Mrs. B. A.

I would like to start a petition to take the Richard Pryor Show off the air. I don't think kids should watch a show like this. N. N.

Hotline talked to Paul Oughton, Vice President of Operations of WITN-TV, Washington, N. C., which aired the show for the first time Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. He said anyone who wishes to protest the show's being on at all or it's being on during the "family hour" may write to him or directly to NBC.
He will pass along any letters he gets to NBC, he said. He said he understands that, at the present time, NBC only has five shows from Richard Pryor committed. More may not be accepted if the show is objectionable to a lot of viewers, as it is to both of you, he said.

The two addresses to which protests may be sent are: NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N. Y.

ATLANTA (AP) — Despite
of America's inner cities, the downtown business district remains "the single most important area within the city and normally within the metropolitan area," a federally funded study concludes.

The study, prepared for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said the shift of people and income to the suburbs has accelerated in the past two decades.

The report, done by the Real Estate Research Corp. of Chicago and the International Downtown Executives Association, also said:

—Downtown areas of older Eastern or Midwestern cities are no more likely to be decaying than newer Southern and Western urban areas.

—There is no correlation between an influx of minority and poor families and a decline of the central business district.

—There is no correlation between the percentage of minorities in a city and its retail sales.

—The key to revitalizing the downtown area is cooperation between public and private sectors.

From 1950 to 1960, surburban areas of the 25 cities studied grew much faster than the central cities, and in the decade from 1960 to 1970, the trend accelerated, the study said.

In 1960, average household incomes in the suburbs were nearly equal. But by 1970, the study said, the income of inner city dwellers dropped to 89 per cent of that of the entire urban area.

The health of a downtown area depends on "the number of jobs the city, itself, can offer; the competitiveness of its housing stock and facilities to retain the city population; and the access to and servicing of its downtown employment facilities," the report said.

Population loss and competing centers cannot explain the loss of downtown retail sales, it also said. Much of the decline "can be attributed to downtown merchants who have not remained competitive."

The study said there was no significant pattern to the success of programs to upgrade downtown areas, except for urban renewal, undertaken by 13 of the 25 cities.

Urban renewal was found to be "quite successful in halting the spread of blight, strengthening the local tax base and stimulating new employment and development."

The cities studied were:
Allentown, Pa.; Baltimore, Burlington, Vt.; Charlotte, N.C.; Chicago; Cincinnati; Clayton, Mo.; Clearwater, Fla.; Dallas, Tex.; Evanston, Ill.; Kalamazoo, Mich.;
Knoxville, Tenn.; Lincoln, Neb.; Minneapolis; New Orleans; Oak Park, Ill.;

Blame Dayan In Killing Of 34 Americans By Attacking Navy Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American group sympathetic with the Palestinian cause is charging that Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan ordered a 1967 attack on a U.S. Navy ship, in which 34 Americans were killed.

The American Palestine Committee said Sunday the revelation was contained in CIA documents it obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

The group asserted that Dayan, one-time Israeli military commander, personally ordered the attack during the Middle East War, even though he knew the target was a U.S. vessel.

Avi Pazner, a spokesman for the Israeli embassy in Washington, immediately denied the charge, saying the group was trying to smear Israel over a "regrettable incident."

Release of the documents by the pro-Palestinian group apparently was timed to coincide with Dayan's visit to United States this week.

A CIA spokesman, Dennis Berend, said the three documents cited by the Palestinian group contained "unevaluated information."

He said the CIA could not judge "the possible merits and demerits" of the material. Ber-end noted, however, that the agency "receives and handles intelligence material of varying degrees of veracity, some of it unsubstantiated."

Rep. Jones Bringing Mrs. Spilman's Award

Mrs. J. B. Spilman says she

Gov. Jim Hunt called the night about 10 o'clock to tell over a state newspaper's reporting her age incorrectly.

"They said I'm 97," she said.
"That sounds really ancient.
Maybe people will let me rest a little more and not ask me to give so many programs if they think I'm that old. Don't tell folks my real age. Just let

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Pathologists for the government and the family of dead black leader Steve Biko today disputed American news reports that he suffered multiple head and body injuries.

Washington Post and CBS News, which carried the report of the injuries and said the information came from "well-placed" South African sources. "I am confident that no source close to the autopsy would have made such a statement," Gluckman told the Rand Daily Mail, Johannesburg's leading English-language newspaper and an opponent of the government.

"It is a scandalous suggestion to say anybody involved in the affair would have said anything at all about it," he continued. "The job is not completed until the microscopic-chemical work is completed."

Giraffe Is Still Down

MARWELL, England (AP) — Victor, the downed giraffe, had a good night and "seems to be making progress," Marwell Park Zoo Director John Knowles reported today.

He appears to be gaining strength, Knowles said of the 15-year-old Victor, who has been spread-eagled since last Thursday when he collapsed at this zoo, about 70 miles southwest of London.

Advice on how to help the brown-spotted giraffe, who tops 18-feet when standing, continued to pour in from around the world as Victor spent a fourth night splay-legged in his open air enclosure.

The zoo allowed a man who said he was a faith healer lay hands on Victor, but the giraffe stayed down.

Lifting gear was en route to the zoo today. Officials have a plan to erect a gantry around Victor, which him to his feet and then support him in a specially built, padded container until he is strong enough to stand unaided.

Members of the zoo staff say they're not sure what is wrong with Victor. They say he may have hurt a leg or his trouble may be psychological. He slipped during an attempt to mate and failed to regain his feet, despite his own efforts and the help of a veterinarian, firemen, zoo staff and visitors.

Hunt Urges Bond Vote

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt told the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association today that the $300 million highway bond issue is essential to the effort of building a strong foundation for economic development in the state.

"A modern transportation system is essential to business and economic growth," he said in remarks prepared for the group's meeting in Pinehurst.

The governor noted that he has begun an aggressive economic development program under the Department of Commerce. But the program can't succeed without improvements in the state's roads and highways, he said.

Hunt said that linking North Carolina ports and the coastal farming region with the big markets of the Piedmont and on to the west is foremost among the needs of the development program.

He said the state needs to improve 7,000 miles of primary roads, 9,000 miles of secondary roads and 300 miles of city streets. In addition, 5,000 of the state's 16,000 bridges need replacement or major repairs, he said.

"Altogether, it would cost us $7 billion to meet all those needs," Hunt said. "Obviously, we can't do all that. Normal state and federal funding will provide about $1 billion over the next five years. That will simply enable us to hold the line and maintain our existing roads. The $300 million in the bond issue will enable us move ahead."

Over the next five years, the bond issue, if approved, will provide:

- $175 million for primary highways.
- $75 million for secondary roads, to be divided among the counties according to a formula and spent by the county commissioners.
- $50 million for urban streets and highways.

Ten per cent of each category also would be earmarked for bridge work.

Ian Smith Rebuffed By Rhodesia 'Moderates'

BY JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rebuffed by moderate black leaders, Prime Minister Ian Smith says he has shelved his plan to negotiate with them and is awaiting clarification of the new British-American plan for transition to black rule.

Smith told the Sunday Mail he "would wait awhile to see whether the new Anglo-American proposals are going to make any headway or not."

He said he had asked the British government for elaboration on some aspects of the plan delivered to him earlier this month by British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young.

Smith said he would make counter proposals, and "provided we can get the British and American governments to go along with our kind of thinking, then there is no reason why we should reject this (plan) or turn our backs on it."

In the meantime, he said, he would delay bringing moderate blacks into his government as a prelude to negotiating a larger political role for Rhodesia's black majority.

Smith has already rejected the British-American plan's proposal to replace the Rhodesian army by a new army made up largely of the black guerrillas that have been fighting his white-minority regime for more than five years. He also opposes the plan's proposal for universal black suffrage without property or educational requirements.

The white Rhodesian leader had said he would go ahead with negotiations for an "internal" settlement with black leaders in the country. But the only such leaders with any sizable following and standing as black nationalists, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, both rejected direct negotiations with him.

Smith refuses to negotiate with Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the two black nationalist leaders directing the guerrilla war from outside Rhodesia.

Sithole and Muzorewa generally support the British-American plan, but spokesmen for Nkomo and Mugabe have expressed reservations about it.

Transportation Bd. Arranges Speakers

RALEIGH — North Carolina Transportation Board members George G. Harper and Joseph E. Thomas announced today the formation of a speakers bureau available to groups or clubs in Pitt and Greene Counties, as well as in Craven, Lenoir, Jones, Pamlico and Carteret counties. The two DOT board members said the purpose of the speakers' bureau is to inform area residents about the upcoming $300 million highway improvement bond issue to be voted on by State voters November 8.

Harper and Thomas said programs can be scheduled by calling Harper at 532-3115, Thomas at 346-9721, or DOT Division Engineer C. W. Snell at the division office in Greenville (752-6157).

DOT Secretary Thomas W. Bradshaw said, "We feel it is absolutely critical that the citizens of North Carolina understand the issues surrounding the Highway Improvement Bond Issue and its impact on the future of our State."

Bradshaw said the speakers' bureau, composed of DOT board members and DOT staff, "is one important way we can provide information and answers to the public's questions and to solicit their support."

As DOT Secretary, Bradshaw serves as chairman of the Board of Transportation.

Advise Visitors To Keep Fit

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — "Keep Moving" is the theme of a telephone dial-in service in Hamburg, sponsored by the city's health department.

Should you visit the city, dial 11 602; this is what you'll hear: A friendly announcer will remind you that almost every second person in Germany is troubled by heart, arterial or circulatory disease. And since prevention is still the best medicine, the voice suggests a program of daily activities, such as a walk in the woods, for example. At the same time, you'll be reminded to pick up a brochure at the local tourist office describing fields and forests surrounding Hamburg.

No-Show Stirs Possible Suit

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy has incurred the wrath of Kansas State Fair officials.

They've asked the Kansas attorney general to sue her for canceling an appearance last Friday.

The fair's board of managers announced its intention over the weekend after deciding that Ms. Reddy did not have a sore throat nor had she been in the hospital. Those were the reasons they had been given for her cancellation.

A spokesman for the Las Vegas hotel where she was performing last week said she completed a two-week engagement Thursday night without missing a show.

Have Portrait Of Early Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, has acquired what Marvin Sadik, director, says is the only known life portrait of Revolutionary War hero Enoch Crosby, master spy.

The portrait, which was done by the studio of Samuel Waldo and William Jewett, was commissioned by John R. Peters of New York and painted in 1830. It belonged to Peters' descendants before passing into the hands of the gallery.

Crosby, a hero in his own time, was considered one of the most skillful spies in the revolution.

Marsh-Welch Vows Solemnized

MRS. MICKEY MARSH

Miss Jackie Welch and Mickey Marsh were married at 3:00 p.m. in an out-door ceremony Sunday at the bride's home by the Rev. Gordon Conklin, pastor of the Oakmont Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack H. Welch of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dewey Marsh of Atlantic Beach.

Wedding music was provided by Dr. Charles Bath, pianist, and his wife and children, Pamela, Patricia, Stephen, and Andrea, violinists. Soloist was Mrs. Donna Kelly of Lexington, Ky. She sang "Ich liebe dich," "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride wore a gown of peau de chine with a frosting of Guipure lace etched on the bodice and repeated on the long tapered sleeve and full-length cathedral train and accentuated with a traditional fitted waistline. She wore a walking length veil of illusion with a soutache satin trim. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses with a white-orchid center. A corsage of the orchid and yellow roses was lifted from the bouquet for the bride to wear on her wedding trip.

Maid of honor was Miss Kathryn Jeane Welch, sister of the bride, of Greenville. She wore a long yellow gown with a chiffon overlay and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Martha Carroll Welch, sister of the bride, of Greenville, and Mrs. Peggy Kneib, sister of the bridegroom, of Kinston. They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor.

Miss Erika Kneib and Miss Gretchen Kneib, both of Kinston, nieces of the bridegroom, were flower girls. They wore dresses of ivory satin to match the bride and garlands of flowers in their hair. They carried baskets with bouquets of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Robert Welch, brother of the bride, of Greenville, Dr. Patrick Marsh, of Alexandria, Va., brother of the bridegroom, and Jan Kneib of Kinston, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High, attended Peace College and received a B. A. in science education from East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of West Carteret High School and is vice resident of Marsh's Surf-Sea in Atlantic Beach.

After the wedding a reception was held under a gazebo which featured a champagne fountain.

The cake was served by Mrs. D. C. McLawhorn, grandmother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Burden of Raleigh presided at the register and greeted guests at the door.

After a wedding trip to the Canary Islands and Spain, the couple will reside at 212 Atlantic Beach.

On Sunday morning, the bridal couple and their families were honored at a wedding breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. James D. Marsh, parents of the bridegroom, at the Ramada Inn, Greenville.

Out-of-town friends were also guests at the breakfast.

On Saturday night, the bride-elect and bridegroom-elect were honored at an after-rehearsal pounding at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

An old-fashioned Toledo scale was placed at the entrance to the country club. Guests weighted in a pound of something which was given to the honorees. A cocktail buffet was held followed by dancing to the music of Clockwork.

Hosts and hostesses for the pounding were Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Burden, Mrs. J. O. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Dick E. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lanier Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Frank Longino, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Marsh, Dr. and Mrs. William R. McConnell, Mrs. D. C. McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McLawhorn Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Charles Pace, Dr. and Mrs. Allen Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Warshauer, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Welch.

Miss Welch was honored at a luncheon Wednesday given by Mrs. Don Wilkerson and Mrs. Ed Clement.

Miss Price, Mr. Lassiter Are Married

Miss Vicky Leigh Price and Ronald A. Lassiter Jr. were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Alvis Harris performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Price. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Merlene Bland and Mr. Ronald Lassiter.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Randy Buck. He played and sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with a 15-branch candelabra holding an arrangement of yellow and white gladioli, chrysanthemums, pom poms and carnations flanked by two nine branch candelabra holding palms of emerald greenery. Two single candelabra were used on either side to complete the wedding scene. A three branch candelabra was used for the candle ceremony. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal white gown of silk organza over peau de soie and silk Venise lace. The gown was designed with a sculptured square neckline appliqued with lace and pearls. The bodice lace formed a V-bib effect. The sheer bishop sleeves were accented with silk Venise appliques and flowerettes. The double flounced lace edged skirt flowed into an attached chapel train.

Her tiered veil of silk illusion, bordered in lace, was attached to a capulet of Venise lace. The bride carried a colonial nosegay of white marguerite daisies with matching streamers of satin ribbon.

Miss Joyce Price of Raleigh, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a formal length yellow spaghetti strapped gown topped with a lace, embroidery and matching capelet. She wore a matching headpiece of white satin ribbons attached to yellow netting. She carried a cascade bouquet of white marguerite daisies and yellow miniature carnations tied with yellow and white ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Miss Susan Bach, Miss Sarah Edwards and Mrs. Leroy Cherry Jr., all of Greenville. They wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor and carried identical bouquets with white streamers.

Miss Amanda Phelps, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of yellow white dotted swiss and carried a basket of yellow and white daisies and carnations with matching ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen were Ray Gladson, Rooney Haddock, Keith Houston and Lindsey Moore, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length maize knit gown overlaid with maize chiffon designed with a V-neckline and empire bodice with a rhinestone inset. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length long sleeved green jersey knit gown designed with a scooped neckline. Both mothers wore white daisy corsages.

Mrs. Joe Price, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Roy Lassiter, grandmother of the bridegroom, were remembered with corsages of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Price, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the register and Mrs. Edward Noble, cousin of the bride, directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Brook Valley Country Club. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Edwards.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice, the four tiered cake was served by Mrs. Edward Patrick, aunt of the bride. Punch was poured by Mrs. Elva Matthews, aunt of the bridegroom. Mrs. James Phelps, Miss Pauline Patrick and Mrs. Cannis Tilghman were hostesses for the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lassiter entertained the bridal party at an after-rehearsal dinner Saturday night at Western Sizzlin.

Mrs. G. S. Bland, mother of the bridegroom, honored the bride-elect at a bridesmaids luncheon Saturday at her home.

For a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the bride wore a yellow three-piece suit and her mother's corsage.

The bride graduated from Rose High School and is employed by Eaton Corp. The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is self-employed.

The couple will reside in Calico.

Dear Abby

Pastor's Lesson: Speak Up For The Oppressed

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In stressing the importance of speaking up for oppressed minorities, you published a quote and asked if anyone knew its origin.

The original quote was somewhat different. Its author was Martin Niemöller, who served aboard a German U-boat during World War I. He later became a Lutheran minister. When Hitler rose to power, Niemöller opposed him and was promptly thrown into Theresienstadt—a Nazi concentration camp. At this camp 76,000 Jews (of which 15,000 were children) were sent to their death. At the time of the liberation, only 100 children had survived.

When Pastor Niemöller was released, he was asked, "How did the world let this happen?" He responded:

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

How sad that only 32 years have passed and many of us have already forgotten that lesson. Let this serve as a reminder.

SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR SAN: Thank you and the hundreds of other readers who sent me their versions of that brilliant quote.

The same sentiments were expressed by Thomas Paine (1737-1809), a revolutionary, whose writings greatly influenced the political thinking of the leaders of the American Revolution.

He said, "He that would make his own liberty secure, must guard even his enemy from oppression, for if he violates this duty, he establishes a precedent that will reach to himself."

And that, my friends, is what human rights are all about.

DEAR ABBY: I have been meaning to write this letter for years, but I never got around to it until now. I want you to know that a letter in your column signed TOO LATE caused me to visit my mother every day during her last two years in a nursing home.

I will always feel indebted to you, Dear Abby, for motivating me to do something that now permits me to live with a clear conscience.

J. E. K., JR., AMERICUS, GA.

DEAR MR. K.: Thanks. Your letter made my day.

Decision Will Probably Stand

The Pitt County Board of Education believed it had the question of where to build a new middle school for Ayden and Grifton settled. After hearing all the arguments the board decided to merge the two schools and build a new facility at the site of the Ayden-Grifton High School. Alas, the matter has arisen again and the board agreed at this month's meeting to hold a session following the October meeting to hear further expressions on the question. There are some school patrons — apparently many in the Grifton area — who feel that consolidating the two schools will be harmful in that it will move another school away from the community.

The feeling is understandable and we are glad to see the feeling of community pride in wanting to keep the schools. On the other hand, the Pitt County Board of Education has put many hours into studying the matter. The board made its decision based on the best information it could obtain and, we feel, sincerely wanting to do what is best for present and future school children. The board is doing the right thing to hear any final arguments citizens of the area might have to offer. Unless compelling new arguments are offered, however, the board undoubtedly will have to stick by its decision.

Extension Of Planning A Logical Step

Gov. Jim Hunt has urged statewide land use planning. In a talk to the Southern Appalachian Research-Resource Management Cooperative, he cited the Coastal Area Management Act as a good model. That covers a 20 county coastal area. The act is designed to make certain that development does not harm fishing and other natural resources. Extension of such planning to other areas of the state seems logical. It could be the answer to some of our ecological problems.

THIS AFTERNOON

Great Asset In Manpower

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina considers manpower its most valuable resource, says the lead sentence in a new brochure prepared as one part of a beefed-up industry recruitment campaign.

One of a set of booklets (others on legal, taxes, livability, etc.) to be delivered to industrial prospects, the "Manpower" pamphlet presents a graphic picture of "North Carolina's abundant manpower for new and expanding industry."

The presentation is designed to allow the corporate maker to mull at length and privately over the elements of North Carolina's prospects as a site for industrial expansion. For Tar Heels, the information is equally worth study.

From The Farm
There is, for example, a continuing shift from agricultural to non-agricultural employment in the state. The most recent report on the state's labor force from the Employment Security Commission bears that out: In July there was a drop of 46,100 in farm employment which now stands at a total of 192,600 persons.

The total work force in North Carolina is now more than 2.5 million (of a total population of 5.5 million), and during the past year employment has increased 30,600 for an increase of 1.2 per cent.

Where were the biggest gains? Government (10,600), textiles (8,800), apparel (8,500), and retail trade (12,100) lead the field.

The state brochure notes that nearly two-thirds of all manufacturing employment is labor intensive (such as textiles, apparel, furniture, tobacco), but reports, "major gains in recent years in chemicals, metal working, and plastics."

Noting the link between good education and good prospective employees, the book details enrollment at all levels, reporting 300,000 full-time students in all public and private institutes of higher learning, and another 400,000 in part-time courses.

Details of available labor in the state is presented, with data on unemployment (a recruitable supply) and underemployment (those who have jobs, but would be ready for more skilled work at higher pay).

Turning again to the most recent data, total unemployment in the state in July was 153,000, up 10,000 over June, but well below a year ago when it was 176,200. The unemployment rate in July was just over five per cent, against a national rate of nearly seven per cent.

BILL NOBLITT

White Females
Contrary to national reports which have pointed out young Blacks as the most disturbing unemployment sector, in this state the figures show that young, white, and female is a more accurate description of the unemployed. All told, 67.2 per cent are white; 57.9 per cent are women.

Unionism—or lack of it—is an important industrial recruitment selling point for North Carolina, and while the booklet doesn't lead off with that subject, it is strategically placed inside the booklet on the fold so that the book just falls open to that spread.

Graphically and in text, the presentation reports that "Union membership in North Carolina . . . represented 6.9 per cent of the state's total nonagricultural employment, compared to 26.2 per cent nationally. North Carolina's percentage of unionized employment was the lowest among all 50 states in 1974."

In actual numbers, 140,000 Tar Heels are union members. A strong point is made of the fact that "It is public policy of North Carolina" that people cannot be forced to join a union to get or keep a job, and the related fact that the state suffers little lost production time due to work stoppages: lost work due to labor disputes averages five and one-half times greater nationally than in North Carolina.

Turning again to the most recent labor statistics, in July there were 193,236 Tar Heels looking for jobs, and 16,012 unfilled jobs listed with local Employment, Security Commission offices.

Giving Bad Impression

WASHINGTON — While the miniseries "Behind Closed Doors" was very entertaining, I'm afraid it's going to give people a wrong impression of Washington. Since it was meant purely for entertainment, the producers took liberties with the way things work at the White House and in the rest of the town. This could damage the cause of clean honest government which the people in the country expect of Washington and fortunately get. The idea of the film is as farfetched as anything ever seen on the TV screen. It is unthinkable that a President of the United States (in this case Jason Robards) would use his power and that of the CIA and the FBI as well as unsavory people in the White House to do harm to his political enemies. While this makes good theater, it obviously could never happen. If anyone suggested such a thing, the President would fire him immediately. In "Behind Closed Doors," the characters, supposedly based on such real people as Bob Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, John Dean, John Mitchell, Howard Hunt and many others, were portrayed as schemers and sinister hatchet men, ready to protect the President at any cost, even if it meant violating the law of the land. This, of course, makes a good story, but it could never have happened. The men who have worked in the White House always came from the best families, were educated in the best schools and raised in the American tradition of fair play and patriotism. They never would have resorted to any illegal act to further the re-election of the President. It just wasn't in them, and even if a President had suggested it, which no President would, they would have immediately resigned rather than carry out his orders.

The television drama also gave another very unreal picture of Washington. It showed a businessman trying to buy an ambassadorship for his wife with a large political campaign contribution. Now this is where the writers have gone too far. In the history of American diplomacy, no ambassadorship has ever been given in exchange for a political campaign contribution. If this were true, we would have ambassadors all over the world who didn't know what they were doing, and we would have some of the most unqualified people in the country reporting back to Washington on the affairs of state.

For those of us who live in Washington, the most unfair incidents in "Behind Closed Doors" concerned the women of this town. The TV series showed them going to bed with men in power to whom they weren't married. The CIA director in the plot even left his wife for a widow, and

WASHINGTON TODAY

Crippling Future Carters

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic reformers are considering rules to condense the schedule of presidential primary elections, a change which would make the campaign path more difficult for future Jimmy Carters.

That is not the intent, but it surely would be the result should the system be changed so as to prevent scattered, small-state contests at the beginning of the presidential election season.

It is in such competition that the long-shot candidate can start making a name, or at least a dent, just as Carter did in his climb from obscurity to the White House.

A Democratic commission on the primary system has recommended tentatively that the process of selecting presidential nominating delegates in 1980 be conducted during a 13-week period, beginning on the second Tuesday in March.

By that point in the last campaign, there had been delegate competition in seven states, and Carter had established himself as a top contender for the presidential nomination which at first seemed beyond his reach.

The process of picking Democratic delegates lasted for six months, but by the time the winter was over, Carter was in command, his ranking won as the result of a year's campaign in states like Iowa and New Hampshire.

It worked because the process was gradual, and the fruits of one victory could be parlayed in another state. That strategy would be less likely to succeed if the newcomer had to confront better-known rivals in a half-dozen contests all on the same day.

But there is a problem, for there is no national pattern or calendar in the current primary process. And whatever is done about it, the change will inevitably alter the way the campaign game is played.

"The single biggest complaint about our presidential nominating season was that it goes on forever," said Morley Winograd, chairman of the Democratic party panel. "We simply want to shorten the time span to 13 weeks."

Those will be fighting words in the head start states, especially New Hampshire, which has a state law to guard its leadoff presidential primary status by setting the vote one week ahead of any other state's primary election.

The states make their own laws on the primaries. All the Democrats can do is try to get the legislatures to change them, or grant exemptions, or require that nominating delegates be chosen outside the primary system, in party caucuses, in states that don't conform to their rules.

The schedule is not the only subject for the Democratic rulemakers.

They also want all entries who have met the fundraising test that entitles them to federal campaign subsidies to be listed on the ballot in each primary and caucus.

That would change the strategy of the candidates, too. Carter and his savvy lieutenants entered his name in every presidential primary in the last campaign, while rival candidates cautiously picked their spots and stayed off the ballot in states that looked too tough for them.

As a result, Carter gained delegates even in states he lost, while his opponents sometimes found themselves shut out because they hadn't entered.

The Democrats don't own the franchise on those issues, or the others their commission is considering. The Republican party is considering the nominating system, too, and there are proposals for change in Congress.

Among them are bills for a national primary, for regional presidential primaries, and for a system that would have all the elections held on four or five dates specified by law.

But there is no sign that Congress is going to act, and if there is a change in the system, it is likely to stem from the rules of the political parties.

Strength For Today

WE'RE ALL BELOW OUR POTENTIAL

A book agent was trying to sell a farmer a set of books designed to show him how to improve his agricultural methods. When pressed to buy, the farmer grinned and said, "I don't need the books. I'm not half as good farmer now as I could be."

What he needed was not information but stimulation. Most of us are like the farmer—not half as good at anything as we could be. There is seldom a job being done which could not be done better. The reason is not that we can't, but that we don't.

We will not be helped by being told how to do better. We're only too conscious that if we did as well as we already know how, we would do twice as well as we're now doing.

We need, along with the farmer, to get stirred up on the inside of our lives. The psychologist would say that we need motivation; the preacher, that we need revitalization; the doctor, that we need vitamins. But when we begin to use the resources we have, nothing will help as much as religion. —By Elisha Douglass

The Forecasters Can't Forget

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Financial circles here are having as difficult a time determining the immediate future of the economy as Congress is having in evaluating the actions of Bert Lance.

Just as Washington and the rest of the country cannot forget Watergate, economists and those who depend upon their judgments cannot forget the most recent recession, from 1973 to 1975.

For some forecasters that recession left deep wounds; few of them had much of an idea of just how bad it was going to be. And now, lest they repeat, they are looking at everything through brown colored glasses.

Thus they are grasping at every little piece of economic information as if it were an omen instead of flotsam drifting on the economic current. No bad news is ignored; instead it is displayed.

Some economists, for example, have read the minutes of the July meeting of the Federal Reserve's open market committee and see the possibility of a severe downturn, even though the committee expressed confidence in the economy's strength.

Others are talking about the rise in the prime interest rate and the stubbornness of unemployment, the surge in consumer credit outstanding, the persistence of the trade deficit and insecurity about the Carter administration.

The implications are obvious: the economists are covering themselves. They are positioning themselves to say "I told you so," but they're not really coming out and saying it.

The truth is that a forecast of an economic downturn can be made at almost any time in the up-down economies of modern times. They are cyclical, and if you hedge the time element in your forecast, you're bound to be right.

There are notable exceptions to the bad-mouthing. Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, headlines its September economic letter with the words, "Chicken Little, go home!"

The sky isn't falling, says Citibank, even if the spirits of some economists are. "The recovery is still very much alive," it comments, "although probably a bit tired by now of trying to prove its existence."

Some of the best evidence of strength comes from the National Association of Purchasing management, made up of buyers who are positioned where the action is. They foresee a cooler but certainly not a cold economic winter.

Agency Draws Praise

By DAVID R. NELSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission has taken a new attitude, one that is bringing it some praise.

For years the commission was criticized as being too protective of the utilities and having little concern for the ratepayers. A recent decision illustrates a change even though the decision was in favor of Carolina Power & Light Co.

"I think, even with the results, it reflects a stronger regulatory process that I've been urging. Our people should feel very good about it," Gov. Jim Hunt said of the case.

Earlier this year, Hunt appointed five persons to the seven-member commission. He had promised that he would appoint commissioners who would be tough and make the utilities prove their need before granting higher rates.

Though the new commission has not yet ruled on a major case, it did review a CP&L increase granted by the previous commission. On a 3-3 tie, the increase stood. Three Hunt appointees wanted to reduce the amount of the increase, one argued that it would be improper for the new panel to review decisions of the old commission and the other had disqualified himself from voting.

The cheery news for consumers was in the way the three opponents handled the question before them. Also, the non-voting commissioner had been on record in the original case as opposing the full rate increase.

"It impressed me," Hunt said with a smile during an interview last week. "They're doing exactly what I wanted them to do."

Jerry Frucht, chief attorney for the Public Staff which represents ratepayers in cases before the commission, said the case "puts the utilities on notice." They are going to find rate increases harder to get, he predicted.

There is little room to question his assessment. The Hunt appointees who opposed the full increase for CP&L took the time and effort to thoroughly examine the case and to write their conclusions.

Dr. Robert Fischbach, a physicist, was especially meticulous in his review of the case. He shot holes in much of the CP&L evidence upon which the rate increase was granted.

For example, Fischbach argued that when an expert witness hired by CP&L compared CP&L's earnings with other companies, the expert rejected some evidence that would not help the company's case. As another example, Fischbach noted that a CP&L staff witness failed to show the validity of the figures he used in arguing for higher rates.

Hunt commented last week that he knows rates must go up and that utility companies must be assured of adequate earnings to stay in business. But, "Our people mustn't pay any more than is necessary," he said.

The new commission, he said, will ensure that.

Marina Feared Oswald Planned To Kill Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald planned to shoot Richard Nixon in Dallas seven months before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy but was stopped by his wife, according to an article in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal.

In a copyright excerpt from Priscilla Johnson McMillan's book "Marina and Lee," Marina Oswald Porter is quoted as saying Oswald was angry by a speech Nixon made in Washington on April 20, 1963, attacking Cuban leader Fidel Castro and calling for the ouster of the Soviets from Cuba.

After reading accounts of the speech the next day, she said, Oswald, who was slain by Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas police station after being arrested for Kennedy's killing, put a pistol in his pocket and said: "Nixon is coming to town. I am going to have a look."

Taking that as a threat to Nixon, Mrs. Porter said she asked Oswald to follow her into the bathroom, then ran out and braced the door closed to lock him inside.

She said she warned him that if he did not agree to stay home, she would tell police about an assassination attempt he allegedly made 10 days earlier against former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker.

At the time, Nixon was in private law practice following an unsuccessful campaign for governor of California in 1962.

Escalating N.C. War On Crime

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says his administration has escalated the war on crime, and for the rest of his term North Carolinians can expect to hear a lot about how he thinks they should respond.

The General Assembly acted to give crime control cabinet-level status, to provide speedier trials and tougher sentencing, to increase the number of judges and prosecutors and to add restitution to victims as a sentencing option, he said. Now, Hunt said in an interview, citizens should enlist as volunteers in community watch programs, reading projects and supervision of youngsters on probation. "They need to be volunteers, that's No. 1," he said. "They need to support efforts to make our courts work better and upgrade law enforcement. They need to support changes in law that will help us reduce crime. They need to be willing to sit on juries and convict where the evidence requires it, including drunken drivers."

"They need to understand that crime comes about, in many cases, because children did not learn to read and because of poverty and because many young people need a friend," Hunt said.

"The most important thing we can do to reduce crime is for volunteers to get involved in helping us both in community watch programs and in working with people on probation and parole to prevent them from committing other crimes."

Phil Carlton, secretary of the new Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said his experience as a judge convinced him that fighting crime must start with juveniles. It also convinced him that juveniles become delinquents because they are idle and bored, he said.

"I don't think you can ever control crime until you can do something about juvenile delinquency," Carlton said. He recalled presiding over trials of 13- and 14-year-old children shoplifters then seeing them back in court as adults who committed more serious crimes.

Hunt agrees that the most productive efforts should be aimed at the young.

"In the long range, the best thing we can do to prevent crime is to teach a child to read," Hunt said. If a child can read and progress well in school, "he is less likely to drop out and become involved in crime."

The legislature this year approved about $50 million dollars to begin implementing a reading program for the first three grades. The program is designed to depend largely on volunteers. Penny Owen, who coordinates the effort to enlist volunteers to work with persons on parole or probation, said volunteers can provide telephone services, serve as volunteers who take certain kinds of inmates on short excursions from the prison, or do clerical work in probation and parole offices.

Volunteers are also sought for neighborhood crime watch programs. The statewide promotion of this project is headed by Jay Trivette, who organized about 300 such programs as a lieutenant with the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department.

Trivette works with local sheriff's departments to initiate such programs in neighborhoods where citizens already have expressed an interest.

Eventually, Carlton said, "we're going to make it available to every community in the state. These programs just plain work."

Carlton said the administration also hopes to enlist the volunteer efforts of the business community.

"I think we've got to provide more jobs and more opportunity," he said. "I think private enterprise needs to develop opportunities for kids to work after school, weekends, summers. If we come up with a good plan to make it easier for private enterprise to keep kids busy, then we won't hesitate to ask that some laws be changed."

a young college girl had an affair with a White House aide in hopes of getting a job.

The implication was that the morals in Washington are "loose," and that people go to bed with each other whether they're married to them or not. This is a terribly unfair picture to show because it gives the wrong impression of what Washington is all about. As long as I've lived here, I've never known sex to play any part in government.

Washington women think too much of their reputations to bed down with a man just because he is in power. And a man in power would never take advantage of his position to seduce a woman he was not married to. For one thing, it would compromise the high ideals the constituents expect of their politicians and high government officials. For another, it would be a sin.

When it comes to politics, power and sex, Washington is above reproach. Even the newspapermen who cover this town would never do anything to sully their reputations, such as lie, cheat or go to bed with someone just to get a story.

The reason this city has never been touched by scandal is that everyone from the President down to the most humble South Korean businessman has a sense of morality and ethics which, unfortunately, cannot be found in the rest of the country.

"Behind Closed Doors" has done a great disservice to the political system by presenting Washington and the people who work here in a terrible light. It is a fairy tale and should be seen as such. If there was even a smattering of truth to it, G. Gordon Liddy would not be our President today.

Another warm day was in prospect over North Carolina today, and while it was expected to be generally partly cloudy, there was a chance of afternoon thundershowers.

Sunday was mostly sunny after early morning fog burned off in many sections of the state, and temperatures rose to around 90 in the southeast and into the high 80s elsewhere.

Temperatures were expected to be mostly in the 80s again today, and thundershowers predicted in the mountains should spread eastward tonight and end from the west Tuesday.

Temperatures are expected to range in the 80s again Tuesday after lows tonight in the 60s and low 70s.

OPERATING-ROOM EFFICIENCY. OURS.

Ever wonder what we do with all the money you send us? Aside from paying claims? Well, we'll gladly tell you.

First, about payment itself. On the average, we use less than 6 cents of your dollar to run our entire operation. All the rest comes back to you in benefits and additions to reserves for your future use.

Meanwhile, after we've received your claim, here's what happens.

We enter it into our computer which checks it for duplication, runs it through hundreds of special audits, prepares a data sheet for our skilled claims examiner, adds to your stored history, writes a check—fast—and sends you a monthly benefits summary. So you'll know exactly what was paid.

Claims are checked both in the computer and by our staff for diagnosis, treatment and charges against area norms.

If you have any questions about your claims, we can ask the computer directly via terminals and usually give you the answer while you're still on the phone.

Last year, we answered millions of inquiries this way.

When we do all that, plus pay 325,000 claims a month through the system, provide all the other services we do, and spend less than 6¢ of your fee dollar to do it, we're proud to tell you about it.

Troubles Plague 2 Icebreakers

TIED TO DOCK — For months the Coast Guard's two new super-icebreakers sat tied to a dock in Seattle. Now one of them, the Polar Star, has entered drydock for installation of retooled propellers. The Polar Sea (in foreground) remains at dockside. (AP Laserphoto)

Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Many joined the Coast Guard to see the world. Instead, the crew members of the $52 million icebreaker Polar Star have spent more than a year gazing at the backside of a warehouse while tied to a dock in Seattle.

"Clean or not clean, you clean it," said Seaman Craig Barnes, 21, of Eugene, Ore. "The whole ship has been repainted, some parts more than once."

The Polar Star, the United States' largest icebreaker, was tied to a dock on July 1976 until last week with propeller problems. The Star's sister ship, the Polar Sea, has been tied to the same dock since March with similar propeller problems.

Now in drydock, the Coast Guard hopes the Polar Star will be ready to weigh anchor and start cracking ice in November.

All of the crew works on the ship during the day and at night one fourth of the crew is on board.

"A ship of this size and this complexity requires an elaborate maintenance and training program," said Capt. Robert Smith, who took command of the ship in June.

Hailed as the most powerful and sophisticated conventional icebreaker afloat, the Polar Star has suffered sinking fortunes since it was commissioned in January 1975. The vessel ran aground two days after commissioning and constant mechanical malfunctions allowed it to be at sea only six days out of the first three months in service.

Five months after commissioning, the Polar Star headed north for ice trials, during which the propeller problems were discovered. Two of the ship's driveshafts malfunctioned and it limped back to Seattle under escort.

With the shafts removed, the Polar Star has sat at dockside since July 1976.

"By no stretch of the imagination do we have a lemon," insists Smith. "Compared to past icebreakers, she's incredibly better. Up north, what she went through would have stopped another icebreaker cold."

Nevertheless some of the sailors have rented apartments, bought homes and set up all but permanent residence in Seattle with their families.

"It's almost like shore duty for most of them," said Chief Petty Officer Gary Moore, 28, of San Antonio, Tex.

"It's kind of embarrassing sitting at the dock and hard to justify our jobs," he said.

Maneuvers In October

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Some 20,000 troops from across the southeastern United States are scheduled to take part in ecologically minded military maneuvers at Eglin Air Force Base next month.

Operation Bold Eagle '78 was approved Friday by Gen. John Hennessey, commander and chief of the U.S. Readiness Command at MacDill Air Force Base, who announced that environmental measures would be taken to protect endangered wildlife at the reservation.

Environmentalists had expressed fears that extensive use of tanks would permanently destroy woodpecker nesting trees and darter streams in the area. The military prepared an environmental statement and a public hearing was held in Fort Walton Beach last month.

A military spokesman said nesting trees in the area are being marked and troops have been instructed to avoid forested sections and streams when possible.

Military planners have also allocated funds to repair damage to any bridges, roads or parking lots resulting from the maneuvers.

The joint readiness exercise is planned for Oct. 11 through Nov. 11. It will involve 114 Army and Air Force and National Guard units from the Southeast.

Police Probing Reported Rape

Greenville Police are continuing their investigation into a reported rape here early Saturday morning, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Cannon said a 21-year-old East Carolina University co-ed reported she was attacked in the area of Evans and 12th Street before dawn.

Cannon quoted the victim as saying she and several friends held a party at her home between 9 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday, then went downtown for a while, returned home, then went to the home of a friend.

Cannon said the victim and an out-of-town friend returned to the co-ed's home between 3:15 and 4:15 a.m. and her friend went to bed.

The chief noted that the friend said she was awakened by someone beating on the rear door; went to the door, and found the victim standing there with her blouse tied about her neck and carrying her corduroy jeans in her hand.

According to Cannon, the victim told officers she did not remember what had happened, other than she was threatened and raped by more than one person.

The chief noted that the victim suffered bruises about her neck and abrasions on her arms, knees and buttocks. The incident was reported to police at 7:30 a.m. after the co-ed was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination.

Charge Assault, Put Under Bond

Charles Long Jr., 19 of Route 2, Chocowinity, was charged with assault on a female following an incident on the East Carolina University campus about 2:20 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Long allegedly assaulted a Jarvis Dorm resident my making advances toward her in a secluded spot near Slay Dorm.

The chief noted that the two had allegedly been to a party together prior to the incident.

Long was placed under a $500 bond pending court action in the case.

Justice Dept. Studies Its Case In Upcoming Hearing On Quotas

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials are doing the final proofreading on a slim, gray paperback book written for an audience of nine but containing subtle messages for the nation's educators, employers and civil rights leaders.

The volume is the Carter administration's brief to the nine Supreme Court justices in perhaps the most important civil rights case in more than 20 years.

The case involves Allan

Bakke, a white applicant denied admission to the University of California Medical School. Bakke contends he was the victim of unfair discrimination because the university reserved 16 places in the entering class of 100 for black applicants.

The Supreme Court agreed to review the decision by a California court, which ruled in Bakke's favor. Its decision, some weeks or months after hearing arguments Oct. 12, could profoundly influence government efforts to assure equal education and job opportunities for blacks, Hispanics and women.

Because of the probable impact on federal programs, President Carter, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and Solicitor General Wade McCree decided the administration should tell the courts its views about the California system for recruiting blacks into the medical school.

The government brief, though heavy with legal terminology and addressed largely to the Bakke situation, is being perceived as a presidential policy statement on the issue of racial quotas and affirmative action plans.

Unlike most government briefs, this one has been cleared with Carter personally and draft copies were circulated to White House aides and Cabinet members for comment.

Justice Department officials were keeping the final draft under wraps during the weekend, but an earlier version disappointed black leaders and some Cabinet members. The tentative draft endorsed affirmative action programs but declared racial quotas unconstitutional.

Leading civil rights groups, including the NAACP, the National Urban League and the Congressional Black Caucus, publicly denounced the draft statement.

The controversy hinges on the definition of two terms, quotas and goals, which became a part of the lexicon of civil rights after enactment of anti-discrimination laws of the 1960s and early 1970s.

The theory underlying affirmative action programs is that employers and educators must take positive action to ensure fair treatment for minorities and women to compensate for past discrimination, which shut out those groups from many jobs and schools.

Some affirmative action programs, such as the one at the California medical school, are being called racial quotas. And hardly anyone will publicly admit to supporting quotas.

Claims CIA Aid By Wm. Paley

NEW YORK (AP) — Daniel Schorr claims his former boss at CBS cooperated with the CIA.

Schorr has written a book in which he says board chairman William Paley was on "a very personal basis" with the spy agency.

Schorr left the network after the release of sensitive information to a newspaper. Now he's telling all in a book called "Clearing the Air," excerpted by New York magazine.

Among the incidents cited by Schorr was one in which Paley supposedly let the CIA use the CBS booth overlooking the United Nations Security Council so a lip-reading expert could spy on the Soviet delegation.

CBS spokesmen were unavailable for comment on the article but have said after similar allegations were published in the past that CBS, along with most

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What do you bid now?

A.—Four no trump. That is the old Blackwood, asking for aces. You want to play five, six or seven spades, depending on how many aces partner holds.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J107 ♠K10542 ♦Q85 ♠93
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♥
Pass 1NT Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner has shown a very strong hand. By first doubling and then bidding no trump, he indicates that he was too strong for an immediate overcall of one no trump. Your action at this point will be determined by your bidding philosophy. Conservative bidders will raise to two no trump, while the more aggressive will try three no trump on the strength of their five-card suit and fine intermediate cards.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

2 ♦ Pass 2NT Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Bid two hearts. You are slightly better than minimum for your takeout double—had the king of hearts been a low heart, you would still have doubled. You can get this message across to partner by raising.

The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid now?

A.—Two clubs. Tread gently. With no fit for partner or a long, powerful suit of your own, you are too weak for a jump shift. If partner passes your change of suit, odds are you will be in the right spot. Should partner bid again, you will be well placed to judge the potential of the hand.

The bidding has proceeded:

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. You do not want to take any action that would bypass three no trump, which could be your only game contract, or that would prevent your side from punishing East for a possible indiscretion. Give partner the right of way—he is better placed than you to make the right decision.

Q.8—As West, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ74 ♠8 ♦A982 ♠KQ63
The bidding has proceeded:

What is your opening lead?

Therefore, declarer will try to score his low trumps by ruffing. The only way to stop this is to draw trumps, and the sooner you start doing this, the better.

fantastic. To Newhouse, it represents a chance for more students like Jim Pairitz of Mishawaka, Ind. and Chung T. Ho of Broomall, Pa., who helped build the box, to enjoy seeing their devices used. He also predicts broader application of engineering to rehabilitation in the future. With donated time, he himself already has developed a correctional device for children called a head-position trainer.

New Try By Balloonists

BAR HARBOR, Maine (UPI)—Two Colorado men in the next few days will embark on a quest that has seen 14 failures and five deaths—the first trans-Atlantic crossing by balloon.

Steve Stephenson, 44, and Dewey Reinhard, 47, both of Colorado Springs, are readying their 85-foot balloon, the Eagle, for a voyage they said could take anywhere from a week to a month—a will cost about a quarter of a million dollars.

Just last Tuesday, the 14th attempt to fly across the Atlantic by balloon ended when two New Mexico men, Maxie Anderson and Ben Abruzzo, were forced to ditch their craft off Iceland after becoming lost in a blinding snow and ice storm.

Reinhard, the pilot, and Stephenson, the copilot, who met several years ago at a national air show, say the fact that five persons have died attempting the 3,000-mile journey doesn't scare them because they are sure they have taken the right procedures to make the trip safe.

"I'm more afraid of not making it across the Atlantic than of dying," said Stephenson, a retired army officer.

Reinhard, a businessman, has been planning the trip for two years but said he had thought about taking the trip alone but decided against it after talking to Edward Yost, another who tried and failed to make the journey by free-class balloon in which wind is the only means of propulsion.

"The work load is too great for one person," said Reinhard. He chose Stephenson as co-pilot less than a month ago.

Student Govm't Officers Named

Karl B. Pace Academy of Greenville elected Student Government officers on Friday, Sept. 16.

The officers are as follows: President John Minges, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Minges II; Vice-president Jim Swinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby M. Swinson; and Secretary-Treasurer Kent Briley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Briley.

The Pace Academy SGA sponsors various projects for the student body and the school. This year's plans include a sales campaign, participation in the school's annual Halloween Carnival and beautification of the school.

Math teacher Joyce Holloway is the advisor for the Pace SGA.

"The suburbs have continued to grow, but we have seen some good things, like older but well-preserved neighborhoods experiencing a resurgence of young people, families with children moving in," Sawyer said Sunday night in a telephone interview from his home in Charlotte.

The federal study noted that 13 of the 25 cities studied had urban renewal projects that were "quite successful in halting the spread of blight, strengthening the local tax base and stimulating new employment and development."

Following passage of the federal Housing and Urban Redevelopment Act of 1949, cities received impetus to clear decaying, slum-like neighborhoods due to the federal government's promise to match every local dollar with two federal greenbacks.

The Brooklyn neighborhood, southeast of the central business area, was Charlotte's first project, Sawyer said.

"It was a major tearing down. I don't know the total cost now, but it was in the millions. The whole use of the area was changed from residential to commercial," he explained. "Before, there were some of the worst slums in the city. There was no way you could rehabilitate those slums."

Land clearing began 13 years ago. Since then the area has been transformed with a park, a school, a church, in addition to commercial structures such as a 13-story office building.

The latest project completed was a 180-unit high rise for elderly citizens, which was occu-

Renewal efforts spread out from the Brooklyn project to downtown itself. A 42-story office building, a new hotel and the Charlotte Civic Center are among the products of downtown revitalization efforts, he said.

Sawyer agreed with the federal study's conclusion that cooperation between the public and private sectors is the key to rejuvenating sagging downtown areas.

"It was extremely important here. We had it (cooperation) right from the start, from the chamber of commerce, major leaders downtown, financial and corporate sectors," he said. "That's why the project was so successful. A city can't come in unless it has an understanding that it's not trying to push itself in."

Newhouse, who started the clinical engineering program at Purdue five years ago, says if the device works well, he will make the circuit and building instructions available free to anyone who has use for them.

"The device has about as much electronics equipment in it as a black-and-white TV," the professor said. It is essentially a sophisticated computer system that can recognize up to five different instructions.

Until he got the box, Lee had written short stories, plays and poetry by dictating to his mother, Mrs. Muriel Lee, a speech teacher at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

"We've been trying to find an answer to dictating term papers and other writing," said Mrs. Lee, "but we couldn't find

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today, depressed by signs of an economic slowdown and rising interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was off 4.77 at 852.04.
 Losers outnumbered gainers by a 2-1 spread among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow's decline took it once again below the 20-month closing low of 854.12 it established on Aug. 25. The average dipped below that point in mid-session several times last week, but recovered to close above it on each of those occasions.

At the weekend the Federal Reserve Board reported a 0.5 per cent drop in industrial production during August. The decline was the first in that economic indicator since the deep freeze of last January.

Meanwhile, a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate to 7 1/4 per cent, initiated last week by New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, continued its spread in the banking industry today.

Zenith Radio gave up 3/4 to 1 1/2 in active trading, setting a new 1977 low for the second straight session. The company said it planned research cutbacks and some layoffs in a cost-cutting drive.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was off 21 at 52.58, and the American Stock Exchange market value index gave up .27 to 118.06.

Dayan Is Arriving Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan is arriving in Washington for Middle East peace talks with President Carter, who is still pressing for a reconvening of the Geneva conference.

It is not known what peace proposals Dayan may be delivering to Carter from Prime Minister Menahem Begin. The foreign minister was scheduled to meet today with both Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Dayan will be followed to Washington by his Egyptian and Syrian counterparts. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy will confer with Carter later this week, and Damascus Radio said Sunday that Abdul Halim Khaddam will visit Washington on Sept. 28.

An aura of mystery surrounded Dayan's arrival in New York City on Sunday. He had originally planned to leave for the United States on Friday but abruptly changed his itinerary, flew secretly to Paris Saturday and later returned home to consult with Begin.

Begin said Sunday that there was no mystery to Dayan's change in travel plans. He said the foreign minister was in Europe "on an important visit and is about to go to the United States on a more important visit."

The schedule changes prompted rumors of possible new developments in the Middle East. Some Israeli newspapers speculated that Dayan had secretly met with a top-ranking Arab or Soviet official in Paris for talks that might affect his U.S. mission.

Major Hitch In Flight Permit

DENVER (AP) — Trans World Airlines has the go-ahead to begin nonstop flights between Denver and London, but there's a hitch — the wide-bodied Boeing 747 often used on such long flights can't make it from Denver to London.

The problem came to light after the Civil Aeronautics Board granted TWA the route last week.

A man who identified himself as a 747 flight crew member from a competing airline pointed out to reporters that a non-stop flight from Denver to London would be impossible for a 747. Denver's mile-high atmosphere is too thin to permit a 747 loaded for an intercontinental flight to get off the ground.

TWA official Jerry Cosley, contacted about the report, admitted after some research that the caller's information was accurate. He said the 747 could fly from London to Denver with a full load, however.

Save Village In Long Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The four-year battle of the citizens of a small Icelandic fishing village to save their homes and livelihood from the ravages of a large volcanic explosion seems to have paid off.

According to a National Geographic Magazine report, the 5,000 people of Vestmannaeyjar on the island of Heimaey couldn't wait to return to their village after being driven away in 1973 by fire, lava and heavy ash that threatened to close forever the mouth of their harbor and cover their homes.

At one point, firemen sprayed cold seawater on the encroaching lava flow in an effort to create a dam that would divert the molten rock. Now, with the village mostly cleaned of ash, the fishermen find themselves with an improved harbor and a potential source of heating energy from the lava deposits.

Native Corporation In Alaska Said Prospering

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
KOTZEBUE, Alaska (AP) — John W. Schaeffer, Eskimo, is visibly proud when he talks of the way the NANA Regional Corporation doubled its assets in less than five years.

Through the window behind him in a rather spartan office in the new Nul-Luk-Vik Hotel, Kotzebue Sound is visible. This is NANA country, the home base of one of the 12 regional Native corporations established in the state under the 1971 Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act.

Under that legislation, designed to extinguish aboriginal land claims, Alaska's natives were granted $62 million and the right to select 40 million acres of federally owned land in the state.

While most of the other Native corporations have struggled financially — only five showed a profit last year — NANA has prospered. It has been in the black for the past three fiscal years.

Since the settlement act was approved by Congress, NANA has received $12.2 million from the Alaska Native Fund. Yet NANA's annual report for fiscal 1976 shows assets more than double that, $27 million.

Schaeffer is hoping that this year NANA and its business subsidiaries will earn enough to start a distribution of dividends to the 4,900 Eskimos scattered over a vast area of northwest Alaska who are shareholders in NANA.

Their is primarily a subsistence economy. They live for the most part off their harvests from the sea and the land and the rivers — caribou, seals, walrus, salmon, tom cod, berries, sheefish, birds.

Kotzebue, an arctic distribution center of about 2,400, is the largest community in the pipeline camps north of the Yukon River, and a reindeer herd.

Schaeffer says there has been no dividend distribution to shareholders as yet because "we had several years of operation in which we had no business operations. But we did have expenses — organizing, land selections, that type of thing. So, we have those losses to make up."

NANA, however, has increased its assets dramatically through what Schaeffer describes as a calculated, "fairly conservative" philosophy for investment of NANA funds, including stock, mostly preferred, and U.S. Treasury and commercial notes.

The remainder of the corporation's funds have gone into operating expenses and a wide variety of business ventures. Among them is the NANA Construction Co. of Anchorage, which has completed or is working on such diverse projects as a new control tower at Anchorage International Airport, schools, banks and a new Museum of the Arctic here.

Other business ventures include an oil field service firm, hotels, a catering company, a firm which holds the contract for security at trans-Alaska

NANA also operates as a subsidiary the 52-room Nul-Luk-Vik Hotel, opened two years ago at a cost of more than $3 million, a 20-unit apartment building in Kotzebue and 20-room hotels in Noorvik and Kiana.

Associated with the Museum of the Arctic, now under construction, will be a cutting and polishing facility for gems from NANA's jade mine 100 miles northeast of Kotzebue, a building and supply firm, and a gift shop.

Schaeffer estimates that NANA's payroll statewide is

INVESTING IN LAND
 One of the nice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt.
 For the typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 25% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long-term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment.
 The key to a good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a good, local Realtor comes in. He has intimate knowledge of community needs, and can forecast, far better than the layman, what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

Courageous Wins

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner blew away Australia's hopes for capturing the America's Cup and then, with healthy helpings of champagne and rum, got blown out of his deck shoes.

Turner, alias "Captain Courageous," "Terrible Ted" and "The Mouth of the South," sailed veteran defender Courageous to a victory margin of 2 minutes and 25 seconds against Australia Sunday and then the celebration began.

Hundreds of yachts, sailboats, outboards and even surfboards with sails greeted Courageous' return to Newport Harbor after the sleek white-hulled yacht made it four straight in the best-of-seven series for the cup.

Turner's victory marked the 23rd time that the United States has successfully defended the 126-year-old trophy and the third time that Australia has had a 12-meter yacht in the finals and lost.

After joining the Australia crew in a swim at his dock, Turner walked the four blocks to America's Cup headquarters with his wife and a Newport policeman helping him navigate.

Even with a lot of help, Turner kept walking out of his deck shoes. "Ted's the name and baseball's my game," Turner said as he wobbled down the street with a bottle of rum clenched in his fist.

First to arrive at the headquarters were Alan Bond and Noel Robins, syndicate manager of Australia and skipper, respectively. Soaked from their swim, Bond and Robins were carried down the street by four crewmen.

The Aussies sang strains of "Waltzing Matilda" and, when Turner and Courageous tactican Gary Jobson showed up to face reporters, the song changed to "Dixie," in honor of Turner's home state of Georgia.

dripping from his dunking, staggered inside with a grin on his face, the bottle of rum drained midway and a cigar ready for action. He sat down at the press table, plunked down his bottle, lit the cigar after a few misses with a match and smiled while he puffed.

A photographer removed the bottle and sat it along with Jobson's rum in front of the table. The news conference began and was quickly interrupted when Turner crawled under the table to retrieve the refreshments.

"I just wished my good friends from Australia could play baseball like the Los Angeles Dodgers," Turner said. "I just want to say I have never raced against such good sportsmen as my friends from Australia."

"They are the best of the best. They are the best of the best. I just want to say, they are the best of the best," he added in his best Foster Brooks imitation.

The Oakland Raiders did their thing and the Minnesota Vikings did theirs. Like the man said, the more things change, the more they remain the same.

The Raiders picked up against San Diego where they left off last season, with the defense doing lethal but legal things and Ken Stabler throwing touchdown passes en route to a 24-0 whitewashing of the Chargers. It was the same score by which the two teams finished the 1976 regular season against each other.

The Vikings, meanwhile, picked up where they left off last January — losing. This time it wasn't the Raiders doing the damage, the way they did in Super Bowl XI. It was Roger Staubach and the Dallas Cowboys, by a 16-10 sudden-death overtime score. The last time the Vikings had been beaten at home was in the 1975 playoffs. They were victimized by ... who else? ... Roger Staubach and the Dallas Cowboys.

There were some changes, of course, in the NFL course of things. A few teams did rise up and shock fans and foes alike:

—The Atlanta Falcons gave Coach Leeman Bennett a first-game present of a 17-6 victory over Joe Namath and the Los Angeles Rams.

—The Cleveland Browns marched into Cincinnati, declared the Bengals with a ferocious defense and waltzed out with a 13-3 victory, their first triumph in Riverfront Stadium in five years.

—The New York Giants went with untested quarterback Jerry Golsteyn and rode his first pro TD pass — and other opportunistic moments — to a 20-17 victory over the grizzled Washington Redskins.

Oh, some things remained very much the same — like Tampa Bay and Seattle, whose expansion futurity of 1976 resumed with frustration in 1977, punchless offenses compounded by porous defenses. The Bucs were beaten 13-3 by Philadelphia and the Seahawks were belted 29-14 by Baltimore.

In Sunday's other season opener it was Chicago 30, Detroit 20; New England 21, Kansas City 17; Miami 13, Buffalo 0; Green Bay 24, New Orleans 20; Denver 7, St. Louis 0, and Houston 20, the New York Jets 0. Tonight it's San Francisco at Pittsburgh.

"It's nice to get a shutout and great to get off to a winning start," said Raiders Coach John Madden. And it must have been particularly nice to see a couple of rookies — people the Raiders didn't figure to be playing — figuring strongly in the scoring.

Rookie Lester Hayes blocked a punt, rookie Randy McClanahan scooped up the loose ball and ran 18 yards to the San Diego 13, and Stabler cashed it in with a seven-yard scoring toss to Cliff Branch. Later, rookie Jeff Barnes recovered a fumble by San Diego's Johnny Rodgers, and Stabler turned it into a one-yard TD flip to Dave Casper.

"It was a near-perfect game," San Diego Coach Tommy Prothro said.

He wasn't talking about his Chargers.

ten his lumps running with the ball, got the okay from Coach Tom Landry to try it against the Vikings with the ball on the Minnesota four-yard line midway in the fifth period.

He got a few more harmless lumps — and six big points. The Dallas quarterback, who earlier had pitched a seven-yard pass to Preston Pearson for a touchdown, took the first-down snap and took off for the left corner of the end zone. He made it — barely.

With a little luck, the Vikings wouldn't have even had the chance to try and stop him. After Minnesota's Fred Cox kicked a 35-yard field goal with 1:25 left in the fourth period to tie it, Dallas drove deep into Viking turf — but Efen Herrera missed a 27-yard field goal try with three seconds left.

All it did was prolong the agony for the Vikings.

Falcons 17, Rams 6
"I think no matter what we'd have done, the way they were playing, we'd have had a tough time," said Namath, who completed half his 30 passes for 141 yards — and lost 33 of them when he was sacked three times by the Falcons.

Namath threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson for the game's first score. Thereafter it was all Atlanta one-yard TD plunges by running back Haskel Stanback and quarterback Scott Hunter and a 33-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer.

Browns 13, Bengals 3
Having disposed of Cincinnati, perhaps the team to beat this year in the American Conference Central Division, Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe began thinking big ... that is, BIG!

"If we win two of our next three games, nobody can keep us out of the playoffs," he said of a Murderer's Row of schedule — New England, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

He made the Bengals believers, hitting 15 of 22 passes to put the Browns in position for Don Cockroft's field goals of 41 and 25 yards and Larry Poole's 12-yard TD run.

Giants 20, Redskins 17
"This is going to be a tough week in Washington," Redskins quarterback Billy Kilmer muttered after the loss to the Giants, who got half their points in the final 1:56.

New York's 10-0 lead became Washington's 17-10 lead in the fourth period before the Giants came back, tying it on Golsteyn's eight-yard TD flip to tight end Gary Shirk, then winning it on Joe Daneolo's 30-yard field goal with three seconds on the clock.

Eagles 13, Bucs 3
Ron Jaworski's two touchdown passes — a seven-yarder to running back Tom Sullivan and a 17-yarder to tight end Keith Kreffle — kept Tampa Bay winless in games that count. The defense also kicked in by sacking the Bucs' rookie quarterback, Randy Hedberg, four times for 44 yards.

Colts 29, Seahawks 14
Don McCauley and Roosevelt Leaks each plowed in for first-half touchdowns and Bert Jones scissored Seattle's secondary with 220 yards passing — 21 of those yards worth a TD to Roger Carr — in Baltimore's victory.

Bears 30, Lions 20
Walter Payton careened for 160 yards and two touchdowns and Steve Schubert returned a punt 70 yards for another score as the Bears downed Detroit.

Patriots 21, Chiefs 17
Darryl Stingley scored twice, on a 34-yard reverse play and a 21-yard pass from Steve Grogan, then Jess Phillips ran 11 yards for the third-period TD that completed New England's comeback victory over Kansas City, which had built a 14-0 first-period lead.

Dolphins 13, Bills 0
Seven Buffalo fumbles were more than enough for Miami, which still struggled to beat the Bills on Norm Bulach's 20-yard TD burst and Garo Yepremian's field goals of 32 and 37.

O.J. Simpson was held to 71 yards rushing.

Packers 24, Saints 21
Green Bay built a 24-0 first-half lead on a 75-yard punt return by Willard Harrell, Lynn Dickey's 15-yard pass to Ken Payne, Barty Smith's two-yard TD dive and a Chester Marcol field goal, then had to hold off the Saints, who got two TD runs from Chuck Muncie.

Broncos 7, Cardinals 0
A misplaced St. Louis punt attempt paved the way to Otis Armstrong's 10-yard TD run in the third quarter that carried Denver past the Cards.

Oilers 20, Jets 0
One-yard TD dives by Don Hardeman, Dan Pastorini and Rob Carpenter enabled Houston to beat the Jets.

In 1968, Bob Gibson, St. Louis Cardinal right-hander, pitched a shutout against every team in the National League except Los Angeles.

Reds Just One Step From Elimination

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are one game from elimination in the National League's West Division race and they have Willie McCovey to blame for it.

On "Willie McCovey Day" at Candlestick Park, the veteran Giants' slugger singled in the winning run in the ninth inning as San Francisco beat the Reds 3-2. Even though the Dodgers lost 9-8 to Atlanta, Los Angeles clinched a tie for the division title.

"Without a doubt, this is one of the great moments in my career," said McCovey, whose 15th game-winning hit of the season sent Derrel Thomas home with the decisive run. "What could be better than to be given a day, have all those nice things said about you and then cap it by winning the game."

McCovey received several long ovations before the game when he was given an automobile by the Giants and a plaque from National League President Chub Feeney honoring his 2,000th hit.

NL Roundup

Obscured by McCovey's day was the five-hit pitching of Bob Knepper, who won his fourth game in the his last five decisions.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis blasted Philadelphia 12-5, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 7-5 and Chicago and the Mets split a doubleheader, the Cubs taking the opener 6-3 and the Mets winning the nightcap 6-0.

Braves 9, Dodgers 8
A four-home run assault by the Dodgers was not enough to outslug the Braves. Ron Cey and Reggie Smith each hit home run No. 30. Steve Garvey slammed his 31st and Dusty Baker got No. 28, but Jeff Burroughs' 40th round-tripper and Brian Asselstine's third helped Atlanta win the game.

Cardinals 12, Phillies 5
Keith Hernandez slugged his third grand slam of the year, tying a National League record, and Lou Brock went 5-for-5 to lead St. Louis' romp. Hernandez' blast came off reliever Warren Brusstar in the Cardinals' nine-run second inning and was the sixth grand slam of the season for St. Louis.

Bob Forsch, 18-6, was the

Pirates 7, Expos 5, 11 innings
Phil Garner tripled home

Frank Taveras for the go-ahead run, then scored the eventual winning run on a Steve Rogers' wild pitch. Bill Robinson followed with his 26th homer to cap the rally.

Kent Tekulve, 10-1, was the victor over Rogers, 16-14.
Cubs 6-0, Mets 3-6
Rick Reuschel became the second 20-game winner this season in the Cubs' opening game triumph. Reuschel, 20-8, doubled and tripled, and drove in the winning run.

The Mets took the nightcap with a five-run seventh capped by Steve Henderson's two-run triple. Craig Swan surrendered just four hits but needed relief help from Bob Myrick, who recorded his first save.

Yanks Stretch AL East Lead

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

While Detroit was throwing a scare into New York, Baltimore and Boston were continuing their torrid battle in an attempt to keep pace with the American League East Division-leading Yankees.

The winner was ... New York. "When there are just 13 games left, they're all important," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer after his Red Sox defeated Baltimore 10-4 Sunday.

Sunday's triumph kept the Red Sox from falling out of the division race as they open a two-game series at home tonight against New York. The

AL Roundup

Orioles trail the Yankees by 3 1/2 games while Boston is 4 1/2 games behind.

"The last time in New York, we played well enough to win the two games we lost," Zimmer said. "Now, yes, we have to win two from the Yankees."

"If we can beat the Yankees two straight it could still be interesting for us and for Baltimore. But it's not easy to do."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver also was doing some calculating as the season rapidly runs out.

"If we should happen to get lucky and take four in a row from Toronto, I'll be interested to see what the standings look like Friday morning," Weaver said. "I'll be rooting like hell for Boston (in the New York series). I'll tell you that."

In Detroit, the Yankees jumped out to a 6-0 lead, then saw the Tigers rebound before finally falling 6-5.

In other AL games Sunday, Chicago swept a doubleheader from California, 6-3 and 7-5; Texas took two from Minnesota, 5-4 and 8-3, Toronto defeated Cleveland 7-4, Kansas City clobbered Seattle 8-3 and Oakland downed Milwaukee 3-1.

Boston rookie Ted Cox tied a record by getting four hits in his major league debut. Recalled recently from Pawtucket of the International League, Cox was inserted as the Red Sox' designated hitter.

Yankees 6, Tigers 5

Home runs by Dave Kingman and Reggie Jackson gave New York a 6-0 lead before Detroit scored all five of its runs in bottom of the ninth. It was New York's 10th triumph in its last 13 games.

Ron Guidry, 15-6, got the victory, but reliever Sparky Lyle had to come in for the final out.

Royals 8, Mariners 3
Kansas City continued its hot pace, posting their 29th victory in their last 33 games, as rookie Clint Hurdle and John Mayberry clubbed towering home runs to down Seattle.

Rangers 5-10, Twins 4-8

Toby Harrah slammed his 25th homer of the season in the first game while Ken Henderson and Mike Hargrove homered in the nightcap as Texas chalked up its sixth straight doubleheader sweep.

Gaylord Perry, 13-12, won the opener while Jim Umberger, making his first start of the year for the Rangers, got credit for the nightcap victory.

White Sox 6-7, Angels 3-3

Chicago used its home run punch to sweep a doubleheader from California. Wayne Nordhagen slammed a two-run homer and Bill Nahorodny added a solo shot to power the White Sox's second-game triumph after Oscar Gamble and Jim Spencer belted solo roundtrippers to spark Chicago in the opener.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 4
Roy Howell blasted a first-inning home run and Toronto tallied five more runs in the fifth inning en route to its victory over error-plagued Cleveland.

A's 3, Brewers 1
Mitchell Page scored on Manny Sanguillen's eighth-inning single to snap a 1-1 tie as Oakland defeated Milwaukee. Page led off the inning with a walk and Jim Tyrone singled, chasing loser Bill Travers, 4-10. Sanguillen singled off reliever Bill Castro to score Page and Tyrone tallied an insurance run on Tony Armas' sacrifice fly.

Woody Peeler

This Saturday evening, Pat Dye and his East Carolina Pirates will walk onto the turf of Ficklen Stadium for the first time this season. And there is one thing that Dye wants to see more than anything else—a full house.

"I'm sure that our players are going to be glad to get back home. I know I sure am. They've played three tough games all on the road. It's been a fight and a struggle in each of them."

"We've had good following at Duke and at State, and we had several hundred go all the way to Toledo, but it ain't like being at home," Dye said.

"I just hope the people of Eastern North Carolina will come out and show this team how much they mean to them."

Dye said, Sunday afternoon, that he had not had a chance to see the game films yet, due to their late arrival from the processing plant. "I always like to see the film to see how we really did. A lot of times you get one feeling on the sidelines, then find out you really weren't quite right."

But, he added, not having seen the film, he really hadn't changed his mind about the game.

"We had a lot of big plays defensively. And our overall kicking game showed improvement both in return and in coverage. We had no major breakdown in this department this week."

Toledo's defenses caused the Pirates some problems, the coach pointed out. "We probably should have gone inside more than we did. If we had, I think we could have controlled the ball more. They were giving us a lot of looks and that bothered us."

"I'll say this: Toledo was not a bad team (Saturday) night. They were just a heck of a lot better than they were against Ball State."

Dye did admit that the Pirates probably weren't as sharp as they should have been in the game. "We knew it was coming, and we're glad to win when we don't play up to our full capabilities."

"The kids knew that they weren't probably mentally prepared for the game, but they still did what they had to do to win. It makes a big difference when you go from playing in front of 40,000 or 50,000 fans to playing before 10,000. We had a couple of hundred up there, but there still was not as much excitement, and no natural rivalry. The kids played on pride, and their desire to strive toward their goals."

Dye said that no one mentioned the problems the two schools had earlier when East Carolina sought to replace Toledo with a home game when Duke came on the schedule.

"They are not in school yet up there, and I think that was one reason they played so much better. They had all day during the week to work on correcting their mistakes and to get ready for us."

Now, the Pirates must prepare for Saturday's home Virginia Military Institute.

"VMI upset William & Mary, and played Army a real tough game," Dye pointed out.

"They have one of the nation's best kickers (in Craig Jones), and they'll be ready to play us."

Dye still will be looking toward the stands come Saturday night. He'll be trying to spot an empty seat.

Hopefully, the game will be played before a standing-room-only crowd—the first of four such crowds this season for Ficklen.

Solar-Powered Home Designed And Built For Family In Utah

BUBBLE DOME — Overcoming opposition from building inspectors, financing agencies and contractors, who said it couldn't be done, Paul Isaacson of Provo, Utah, built this underground solar-heated home. He, his wife and their seven children have lived in it

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer
PROVO, Utah (AP) — Most people cover their lots, or portions of their lots, with their homes. Paul Isaacson covered his solar-powered home with a lot, along with two concentric plastic bubbles.

Isaacson, a draftsman with no experience in designing or building homes, decided several years ago he wanted to live underground.

Four and one-half years ago he completed the design, and after battling building inspectors, contractors and financing agencies who said it couldn't be done, he built it.

The inner dome is over a 20-foot-diameter solarium, the central part of the house. Between the domes will be a garden — with citrus trees and a dichondra lawn — and steps leading to living quarters below.

The underground solarium is encircled by six rooms: three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bathroom. The entire structure underground is a circle 50 feet in diameter.

"This gets away from claustrophobia. From the master bedroom you can see a mountain ridge. The glass is tinted to keep the sun from fading the carpet," Isaacson said.

The house, including the walls between the rooms, is steel-reinforced concrete, covered with cold tar. "I don't know how many tons of steel are in it. It took a lot to satisfy the inspectors," he said.

The solar collectors are cone-shaped devices mounted on the inside of the outer dome and pointed southward. Are they cone-shaped because that's the most efficient model for collecting heat?

"No, because they are cheap," Isaacson said. "They're just Dixie cups painted black, or they can be green or some other color."

"People get caught up in efficiency," he went on. "Most solar collection systems cost $7-$10 per square foot. Mine will be 20 square feet and cost about $2.50-$3 per square foot," he said.

A blower on his electric furnace will circulate air among the cones, then put the heated air into a hole filled with rocks. The rocks will store the heat up to five days, he said.

From the chamber of rocks the air goes into the furnace and out through seven ducts to the seven rooms.

The temperature in each room is monitored separately by a small computer, and each room is heated separately. The computer decides the best source for heating: dome, collector, rock chamber or — as a last resort — the furnace.

The temperature underground never falls below 57. Isaacson figures that even without solar power, his heating bill would have been one-fifth that of a conventional home.

He expects that with the solar heating, his heating bill will be one-tenth that of a conventional home.

Isaacson said the home is earthquake-proof and soundproof. "Until we put in the doorbell, we couldn't hear people knocking at the door."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harriet Frank Jr. has not been single for 30 years. But her first novel, "Single," has been scooped up by a prestige publisher, book club and paperback house at prices that make a presold winner.

"I feel modern literature has slighted the single woman, the tough-minded woman," says Ms. Frank, a top Hollywood screenwriter who turned to the novel for her 1970s story of women alone.

"There are books about weepers and wailers. I wanted to write a book about women who are not everyday girls-next-door. They are:

—Nell, a successful doctor whose cool detachment makes her love affairs temporary.

—Stella, a slovenly alcoholic poet who curses her benefactors while proclaiming her own brilliance.

—Hortense, a tough, black schoolteacher whose acid tongue burns her pupils, friends and two-timing boyfriend.

—Eunice, a sexually promiscuous movie studio secretary who retains a childlike optimism through affairs, abortions and abandonments.

There are traces of Ms. Frank in her characters. "Like Hortense, I'm naturally acerbic," she says, then grins: "Like Stella, I'm full of myself."

Despite some leftover movie stereotypes — the blowsy-blonde-with-a-heart-of-gold — Ms. Frank says her novel, heavily spiced with sex, could not have been written 20 years ago.

"We're beginning to take a cooler look at women's place in society," she says. "Now women can make choices about careers and success. ...

"I'm trying to say that you can survive success if you have a strong sense of yourself. That doesn't necessarily require love and marriage."

"To be single," says the author, "is not to be a burden. It just means you're alone and it needn't be a tragedy to be alone."

However, in the next breath, Harriet Frank Jr., also known as Mrs. Irving Ravetch, cheerfully contradicts her own thesis.

"I've been happily married for 30 years," she says. "I think the married state is the best that life can offer. ... I think quite naturally women have a strong desire to love and be loved. ... I think the pairing instinct is a strong one, a good one."

"If you like yourself, you'll have good company and wind

Speaking of Your Health...

Complete Physical—How Often?

My wife insists that I have a complete medical checkup every year. I'm pressured into doing this even though I have no complaints. The examination is time-consuming and expensive. I find myself filled with annoyance when, each time, I hear, "Everything is normal." Wouldn't it make more sense to wait until I have something to complain about in the way of symptoms? — Mr. T. D. F., Pa. Dear Mr. F.:

A general physical examination should not be the end result of being pressured or nagged. Rather, it should be a sensible part of the concept of preventive medicine.

It's paradoxical that you should be annoyed by the fact that all the findings are "normal" and that you are in excellent health. When one does develop any symptoms or complaints this calls for another type of medical examination to meet the urgency of the specific problem.

Perhaps the concept of a "complete" examination may have been overemphasized in some instances. Yet there is no mistaking the fact that regular, extensive workups often detect diseases that might have been overlooked until complications arose.

There obviously are no mathematical guidelines about annual medical checkups. But some rules have been established that might give you and other readers a basis for judgment.

The FARM SCENE

By LEORY JAMES
Agricultural Extension Agent
The harvest season is one of the busiest and most dangerous seasons of the year for a farmer.

About one-third of the farm accidents happen during the late summer months. Thirty percent of farm accidents involve machinery and 91 percent of farm accidents involve members of the farm family.

Unfortunately, farmers do not concern themselves with safety as much as they should especially during the harvest season. At this time everyone is rushed, overworked, and both mentally and physically tired. This is the time when you begin to take unnecessary chances which lead to accidents.

Safety Can Become Automatic
A program where safety is constantly before the worker at all times can reduce accidents. Safety can become automatic regardless of mental or physical conditions. A simple procedure of cutting off the tractor engine before dismounting or working on implements could save a hand, a foot, or even a life. It might be yours or your child's.

What can be done to prevent some of these unnecessary accidents during harvest? A good place to start is to never allow anyone to ride on tractors or other farm machinery except for the driver. Machinery is not designed for passengers. Children are usually the victims of this type of accident. Make it a policy to keep children off and away from machinery.

Tractor Accidents Prevalent
Tractor accidents account for a large percentage of farm accidents. The OSHA regulations require that all tractors manufactured after October 25, 1976 be equipped with a roll bar. The regulations also require any employer to see that all employees keep seat belts fastened on tractors with roll bars. This will be very difficult to accomplish, but make it a policy to keep children off and away from machinery.

Harvesting equipment is more dangerous than tractors. Harvesting equipment has moving parts that cut, puncture, grab, or crush the crop. The equipment will do the same thing to the human body.

Machinery Cannot Think
To keep all your fingers and your life, remember, that machines cannot think. A corn picker, or any other machine cannot distinguish between a cornstalk and an arm. Machines respond only to control and these controls may be moved accidentally. Always cut the power off on machinery before working on it. A sudden machine failure such as a rupture in a hydraulic line supporting a combine header could be tragic if someone was working under it.

Although some accidents will happen despite all efforts to prevent them, we must continually try to anticipate them. Good equipment maintenance will help prevent unexpected failures and help insure safety. Training the operator in the safe and proper operation of harvesting equipment will help make the harvest safe and efficient.

Review Safety Policies
Review your safety policies before you get into the harvest rush. If you have an accident with a harvester, where the operator is injured, the harvesting operation will be delayed, and a new operator must be found and trained. Equipment may be damaged, resulting in delayed harvesting operations. It can all add up to suffering on the part of the injured and a sizeable cost to the farming operation.

Now is the time to take a good hard look at your safety program, and do something about it. The accident that you hear about could happen to you.

Modern Range War To Be Taken To Federal Court

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — A long-smouldering dispute pitting traditional rights against property rights — a conflict that has sparked a modern-day range war in the ranch and farm county of southern Colorado — will be taken to federal court here today.

Principal characters in the controversy are Jack T. Taylor, owner of the 77,000-acre Sangre de Cristo Mountain Ranch, a handful of county officials and the Mexican-Americans who have called the land home for more than a century.

Taylor, a North Carolina lumberman, acquired the mountain ranch in the San Luis Valley in 1960, the year the trouble began.

Shortly after taking over the last unfenced section of the historic Sangre de Cristo land grant, Taylor fenced the vast acreage, erected barricades and dug ditches to close off four roads leading into the area.

That denied access to residents of the valley who had for years gone there to cut firewood, graze their animals, and to hunt. Those residents, of Spanish descent, believe they had an unwritten right to access, as their ancestors had before them.

The original million-acre land grant, made under Mexican law but ratified by the United States in 1844, had given the first settlers and their descendants perpetual rights to use the land Taylor now owns.

But Taylor refused those privileges — except to those who paid for the right to enter.

Violence began. There were threats first, then assaults, shootings, bombings, and arson.

Taylor was confronted by an angry mob in 1962 after he was arrested, jailed and convicted in the town of San Luis following the beating of three Mexican-Americans allegedly caught trespassing on his land.

Shotgun-wielding deputies protected Taylor from serious injury as the mob threatened to storm the jail.

Later, Taylor turned to the federal courts in Denver, seeking clear title to his land. The court upheld Taylor's claim that the old Spanish and Mexican laws on which the "settlers' rights" were based was not applicable.

The court noted that others had purchased land in the grant, fenced it and kept outsiders from using it without first obtaining permission.

During the summer of 1974 trouble flared again, this time triggered by a group of militant young Mexican-Americans who were convinced their people had been cheated by Taylor and the courts.

They were angry over a court-approved agreement which gave Costilla County until this year to extend a county road that ends on Taylor's ranch — and agreement that in effect would have recognized Taylor's title to the land.

The extension, in fact, never was built, but the county commissioners contended that road and three others on the ranch were public highways by virtue of their long use by all who wished.

Asserting their stand, the commissioners sought and received the aid of the county sheriff, who rounded up a posse of local residents and removed the barricades and filled in the trenches Taylor had dug.

Angered at that action, Taylor went to federal court in August of 1974 and won a temporary restraining order barring the sheriff and all other county officials or residents from entering his property.

He also filed suit claiming his civilrights had been violated by the county officials, in that they had deprived him of his property without due process of law. It is that suit, transferred from Denver for the convenience of witnesses, that will go to trial here Monday.

Last Nov. 15, while Taylor was in bed at his ranch home, a group of riflemen opened fire from a nearby hillside, riddling the building with bullets.

A slug tore into Taylor's right ankle, knocking him out of bed onto the floor. Other bullets slammed into the bed as he lay bleeding.

He now wears a brace on his leg from the wound and has offered a $10,000 reward for the arrests of the men who shot him.

Taylor went to his New Bern, N. C., home after the attack, and earlier this year asked a federal grand jury in Denver to investigate the night ambush.

Despite an intensive probe by the grand jury, and investigations by the FBI and the Colorado Bureau of Investigation, there were no indictments or arrests.

Last week, Taylor's lawyers, Jon Holm and Al Wolf of Denver, filed a motion with U.S. District Court Judge Hatfield Chilson seeking transcripts of the grand jury probe or the reports of the FBI and the state investigators. They argued that an "atmosphere of fear and intimidation" is so strong in the valley that witnesses they need are refusing to come forward. The county's legal officers have argued against release of the reports. They also have filed a cross-claim against Taylor, seeking again to have the roads declared county property and $5,000 from Taylor to pay for removing barricades.

House Vote Near Over 65 As Retirement Age

By ROD ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — They may still do it to horses, but starting next year it will be illegal to turn most California jobholders out to pasture at a certain age.

To keep on working after normal retirement age, most jobholders will need only the desire and the ability. Maine is the only other state with a law modifying mandatory retirement. The Maine law, which takes effect next July, covers civil service workers only.

In Washington, the House was to vote Wednesday on a measure dropping the mandatory retirement for federal workers. The proposal contains a provision to extend the private sector's mandatory retirement age from the present 65 to 70.

Under the new California law, the employees of the state and local governments will need only a state certificate of continued competence to stay on the job. The law won't apply to fire and police officers or schoolteachers.

In the private sector, an employe could stay unless his or her employer went through a state agency and demonstrated that the employe's abilities would be reduced.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who signed the end of mandatory retirement into law late last week, said, "I see this not only as a matter of individual liberty, but also as a necessity for collective survival."

While the retirement legislation drew little attention before it was passed, supporters said Brown had come under pressure from the business community to veto it. And Brown has taken heat inside his own cabinet.

"I'm opposed to the whole idea of people staying on the job until they die or get in poor health and are forced to quit," said Leonard Grimes, secretary of agriculture and services.

The author of the retirement legislation sees the issue from another angle. "It's ridiculous that when they reach the magical age of 64 or 65, you tell them they have no worth. Some of our best contributions come from people over 65," Assemblyman Richard Alatorre said.

Auctioning Off Robinson Art

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP) — An estimated $2.5 million worth of art objects from the estate of actor Edward G. Robinson has been auctioned off here.

Attorneys for Robinson's estate consigned the collection to the Blowing Rock Art Gallery, which last month auctioned $4 million from the homes of Emma Vanderbilt.

More than 600 pieces were on the block, and among the last remaining items were a Chagall painting valued at $80,000, a 62-carat diamond necklace worth $500,000 and a pair of 130-year-old jade ducks worth $25,000.

Find Body Of Train Passenger

APEX, N.C. (AP) — The body of a man listed as a passenger on a Saturday night Am-track train was found Sunday morning several feet from railroad tracks near this Wake County community.

He was identified as George D. Jones, 51, of Maryland who was a confirmed passenger on a train which passed through Apex at 9 p.m. Saturday.

Dr. Lorene Kaasa of the Wake County medical examiner's office said Jones died on multiple internal injuries, probably suffered in a fall.

Wake County Deputy Ronald H. Hearn said Jones' relatives in Maryland said Jones had boarded the train in Washington, D.C., and was traveling to South Carolina.

His body was discovered by an engineer on a passing train.

One-Hour Sitcom Bows In On ABC Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's not true ABC plans a hard-hitting beach expose called "Malibu: Behind Closed Doors." No, it's going for ratings now with "San Pedro Beach Bums," a one-hour sitcom.

It premieres tonight, reportedly costs $360,000 an episode. For this you get 10 legs and many bikinis. Aw, geez, I gave away the plot.

The legs are attached to five dim, cheery bachelors living on a boat they call "Our Boat." They are Christopher Murney, John Mark Robinson, Stuart Pankin, Darryl McCullough and Chris De Rose.

The bikinis are worn by lovely lady extras wandering about the beach at San Pedro, Calif., where the Bums tonight try to put on the annual Miss Harbor Beauty contest.

(Most of the Bums have New York accents. Everyone from New York seems to be moving West lately. You can tell because every new apartment here has four locks per door.)

Murney, a judge in the contest, is pressured by his pals to pick their girls as winner of the beauty pageant. First prize is a $15,000 car. But all soon have bigger worries.

The car dealer (Herb Edelman) who donated the wheels wants to call off the contest because it lacks both publicity and celebrities. The Bums get alarmed and wonder how to dig up a celebrity.

One suggests President Carter as a prospect. He's asked if he knows Carter. No, he says, "but I know he's a celebrity. His brother talks about him all the time."

Several wit displays like this later, they try for three actresses who are in another ABC series. I forget their names, but producer Aaron Spelling, who made this series, also makes theirs. Let him tell you.

The Bums sneak into a studio lot, dress as movie extras and try to get the actresses. They meet one. She wonders if they are "a string quartet in a Mel Brooks movie." The laugh track roars.

The two other actresses are found in San Pedro, filming their show. They agree to be judges at the beauty contest so everyone can be reminded of their show. This may be a plug, so stay alert.

During "Bums," you will see a bribery attempt and two Bums bumbling about a nudists' beach. A surprise: Their clothes are stolen.

You also will see the lads break into a hospital to rescue Murney. And if you're a true bad-show buff, you'll want to stick around to see a lovely in the beauty contest twirl a flaming baton.

It is a pity she did not apply one end of the baton to the script. It was written by Simon Muntner. He may be in hiding now, likewise E. Duke Vincent, billed as creator of this, ah, series.

"Bums" is inept, awful and not very good, either. ABC's programs whiz, Fred Silverman, must be losing his touch. He should yank this one immediately, or all is lost in the Monday ratings.

He should call up Darren McGavin and ask him to bring back "Kolchak, the Night Stalker." I'm not kidding. That show would be a hit Mondays, even with three actress sent in from an Aaron Spelling series.

SNAKE CHARMER—Connie Mitchell works amid these slithering cobras but doesn't mind a bit. They are real, but stuffed, snakes from India and adorn the window of an office supply firm in Seattle.

The cobras cost $50 each and sell well, a store employee said. "They're just conversation pieces", he explained. (AP Laserphoto)

At Least 9 Die In N.C. Traffic

Nine persons died in weekend traffic accidents, raising the year's death toll on the state's roads to 1,001, the Highway Patrol reported.

The total in the comparable period last year was 1,051. Theodore Samuel Barner, 28, of Rt. 1, Lawndale, was found dead in his car Sunday morning by patrolmen on a Cleveland County road two miles west of Polkville. Authorities said Barner apparently ran a stop sign and hit an embankment.

Karen Mannie Edwards, 54, of Charlotte died Saturday night when she walked in front of an oncoming car in Charlotte.

Carlton H. Jordan, 40, of Rt. 1, Ahsokie, was killed Saturday afternoon on an unpaved Bertie County road one mile west of Lewiston when he fell from the fork lift on which he was a passenger and was run over by the lift.

A pedestrian, Joyce Howell, Sellers, 43, of Whiteville, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon when she was struck by a car on N.C. 130 in Brunswick County two miles east of Shalotte.

Two 15-year-old Godwin youths, Jeffery Lynn McGuire and Lester Lee McGuire, were killed in a hit-and-run accident early Saturday as they were walking along U.S. 301 in Cumberland County one mile north of Godwin.

Jean H. Old, 33, of Jacksonville, was killed early Saturday when the car she was driving overturned at a high speed on an Onslow County road one mile west of Jacksonville.

Timothy Dewey Harper, 23, of Roanoke Rapids, was fatally injured Friday night on a Halifax County road six miles south of Roanoke Rapids when the car he was driving collided head-on with another vehicle.

Cite Need For Less Energy-Use

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — The need for reduction in energy demands was cited often during a debate on nuclear power in the state at a weekend energy conference.

The League of Women Voters sponsored the session. Among the participants was Gerald Meisner, a physics professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, who advocated conservation instead of building more nuclear plants.

Johnny Elliott, an engineer with Duke Power Co., said nuclear power should be allowed to compete with other power sources.

The borrowing power of a home: How to use it.

Buying a home gives you more than a place to live.

It gives you borrowing power.

With The NCNB Homeowner Loan. Using the equity you've built in a home, you can probably borrow a lot more money than you expect.

And make much lower monthly payments than you expect. (In some cases, as much as 50% lower than regular installment loans.)

Here are some examples.

AMOUNT FINANCED	NO. OF MONTHLY PAYMENTS	AMOUNT OF MONTHLY PAYMENT	TOTAL OF PAYMENTS
$ 3,000	60 (5 yrs.)	$ 66.73	$ 4,003.80
$ 5,000	60 (5 yrs.)	$ 111.22	$ 6,673.20
$ 5,000	84 (7 yrs.)	$ 88.26	$ 7,413.84
$ 7,500	84 (7 yrs.)	$ 132.40	$ 11,121.60
$10,000	84 (7 yrs.)	$ 176.53	$ 14,828.52
$ 5,000	120 (10 yrs.)	$ 71.74	$ 8,608.80
$ 7,500	120 (10 yrs.)	$ 107.60	$ 12,912.00
$10,000	120 (10 yrs.)	$ 143.47	$ 17,216.40

Annual Percentage Rate 12%*
