

O'Neill Says Tough Energy Bill Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, pleading with Congress to resist what he views as undue oil industry influence, won a prediction today from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that the final version of the energy bill will be a tough one.

After a congressional leadership breakfast with Carter at the White House, O'Neill told reporters: "I don't want to get into what the (House and Senate) conferees are going to do. I just say that we're going to come out with a strong bill."

In a brief conversation with reporters after his meeting with the congressional leaders, the President said: "We'll have to wait for the outcome" of the conference committee that ultimately will determine the shape of the legislation.

The Senate scheduled more work today on natural gas pricing after voting down a new attempt Monday to bring up Carter's proposal for continuing controls on gas. It was the second defeat of the day for the administration's plan.

The Carter program has seen few encouraging moments since it sailed through the House last month.

The President is fighting the Senate blows with a veto threat. But Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd says the Senate appears determined to "exercise its own independent will, despite what remarks are made from the outside."

O'Neill shied away from specifying what instructions House conferees will have to try to soften the Senate blows. "The House is not set in cement," the speaker said. But he added: "It is going to be pretty rigid."

Senate Majority Whip Alan Cranston of California echoed that, saying: "Tip has indicated, not today but on previous occasions, that they'll be very tough on natural gas. They're willing to discuss compromise, but they're not going to go for deregulation."

O'Neill said that the House will cast one final vote on the measure after the conference committee is through, even though the bill might be in five sections. "The President could veto any one of the packages," the speaker said.

"Don't judge the leadership of the Senate or of Sen. Byrd until you see the final package," O'Neill said. "I have confidence in him."

In the other setback Monday, the Senate Finance Committee rejected the President's proposal to force conservation by taxing U.S. crude oil, a central element of Carter's energy program.

Suspect Is Held For 1963 Alabama Church Bombing

By PHIL ORAMOUS
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Robert Edward Chambliss, 73, of Birmingham was held without bond today after being indicted on four counts of first-degree murder in that 1963 bombing of a church that had been used as headquarters for civil rights demonstrations. Chambliss was arrested Monday after the indictments were handed down by a Jefferson County grand jury in a one-day special session.

The charges stemmed from the Sept. 15, 1963, blast at the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church. Four girls died in a restroom area near the stairwell in which the explosion occurred.

Nineteen people were hurt and rubble was strewn over a wide area.

The explosion came nearly seven months after the beginning of massive street demonstrations led by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

A number of other bombings occurred during and before the demonstration era that eventually led to passage of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Published reports in the Birmingham Post-Herald and The Atlanta Constitution said Marietta, Ga., attorney J. B. Stoner had been indicted in an unrelated church blast.

The newspapers quoted sources as saying Stoner was charged in a 1958 explosion at Bethel Baptist Church in Birmingham. There were no injuries.

The Post-Herald said its sources said they did not know when Stoner would be arrested.

The Bethel church was pastored at the time by the Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, president of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights and one of the leaders of the demonstrations.

The grand jury, which met for three months, considered evidence gathered by the Alabama attorney general's office in some 50 racial bombings in Birmingham in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

CPA SERVICES NEEDED

The Pitt County Humane Society is thinking of setting up an office in space donated by a local business. The advice of a Certified Public Accountant is needed to make the necessary arrangements, but the Society is reluctant to spend donated funds for animal welfare for this project, Society President Jeanette Fiore said. Cut Six Teacher Programs

Six teacher training programs at East Carolina University are among 46 small programs the Board of Governors planning committee has recommended for discontinuation at various University of North Carolina campuses.

The committee voted to end the programs July 1. The Board of Governors is scheduled to consider the committee's recommendation at its meeting October 14.

The teacher training programs were recommended for deletion because of the small number of persons enrolled in the programs and because of the problem of too many teachers seeking too few jobs.

The programs recommended for deletion at ECU include a bachelor's degree program in geology; master's degree programs in curriculum and instruction; physics, chemistry, and sociology; and an advanced credit program in curriculum and instruction.

ECU officials this morning declined to comment on the proposed cut until official notification is received from the UNC administration.

Everett Named Chairman Of Pitt Tech's Trustees

The Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees unanimously elected Clifton W. Everett, Sr., of Bethel as chairman of the Board on Monday night.

Everett was elected to succeed Sen. Vernon E. White, chairman of the Board for the past seven years. Sen. White had requested that he not be considered for the position for 1977-78.

Everett has been on the Board of Trustees since the Institute began in 1964. He has been vice chairman since 1971.

Mrs. Kay Whichard of Greenville was elected vice chairman of the Board, succeeding Everett as vice chairman. Nancy Mewborn was re-elected to her fourth term as secretary of the Board.

Everett commended Sen. White for his efforts as chairman of the Board on behalf of the staff, faculty, and students of Pitt Technical Institute. He remarked that the Board of Trustees and all those interested in the Institute's growth are indebted to Sen. White for his many contributions.

"I am proud of Pitt Technical Institute," said the new chairman, "and I consider it a high honor to be elected chairman of this Board." The reason P.T.I. has done so well, according to Everett, "is because of the high caliber of men and women on the Board and the administration."

Everett stated that he had confidence in the Board and administration and felt that the best interests of Pitt County were being served well by the P.T.I. Board.

As the third chairman of the Pitt Technical Institute Board, Everett said, "Sen. White and Sen. Robert L. Humber (first Board chairman) have ably led this Board through the years. I hope that I can provide that same level of leadership."

Sen. White expressed his appreciation to the Trustees for the privilege of serving the Board as its chairman for the past seven years.

"I have always had outstanding cooperation from this Board," he said, "and feel that the Board has been dedicated to the goals and purposes of the Institute."

"I have the greatest confidence in Mr. Everett, Mrs. Whichard, and Miss Mewborn," White said. "I urge you to support them as

Secretary Of Defense Says Pentagon Wholly Backs Panama Treaty

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today the Pentagon "wholeheartedly and fully" supports the new Panama Canal treaty and believes the agreement will improve U.S. national security interests in the Western Hemisphere.

Critics of the treaty have questioned whether U.S. military leaders fully support turning control of the waterway over to the Panamanians after the year 2000.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretary said: "The Department of Defense has been fully involved in all stages of the drafting and negotiating of the treaties."

Gen. Brown limited his testimony to the brief three-page description of terms of the treaty calling for a continued U.S. military presence in the Canal Zone until 2000.

The general said the Joint Chiefs "support the treaty as being protective of military interests of the United States and as providing an effective basis for defense of the canal."

Testifying that the pact will pose no heightened threat to American access to the waterway, Secretary Brown said the U.S. Navy retains control of the approaches to the canal, regardless of treaty terms.

"Our armed forces now control and they will continue to control with overwhelming forces the sea approaches to canal on both the Pacific and Caribbean ends," he said. He said the bigger danger is a military threat from within the Canal Zone.

"If Panama and other Latin American countries or major elements of the Panamanian population became hostile to the United States, then protecting the canal against internal threats, terrorism and guerrilla actions would be much more difficult," the secretary said.

The military leaders testified on the second day of three weeks of hearings the foreign relations panel is holding on the treaty signed by President Carter and Panamanian President Omar Torrijos on Sept. 7.

Increasingly, Senate skepticism over the pact has focused on whether Panamanians agree that the United States could intervene militarily if there were a threat to the neutrality of the canal.

Firm Indicted By Grand Jury

WILLIAMSTON — A Martin County Grand Jury indicted a Greenville firm yesterday in connection with receiving some $23,000 worth of brass fittings stolen from a Martin County firm.

Sheriff Raymond Rawl said the stolen property was recovered about three weeks ago. In addition to the indictment brought against Southmet on North Greene Street in Greenville, Rawl said the Grand Jury also brought indictments against several men in connection with the theft.

Rawl, who said the indictment against Southmet in Greenville is one of the few instances an indictment has been brought against a company rather than an individual, said the papers would be served "on individuals of the company," although no individuals were named in the indictment.

The sheriff noted that bringing charges against a company rather than individuals, is a "new procedure."

vestigators, who listed cause of the fire as undetermined, said cabinets and a wall in the kitchen were damaged by the fire as well as the attic over the kitchen. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Joan Mondale Travels Widely Promoting Art

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joan Mondale, accomplished potter and veteran political campaigner, thinks artists and politicians have much in common. "Both deal with human emotions and human conditions," she says. After 15 years on the campaign trail, and with a lively interest in art that dates from her high school days, the vice president's wife has become the Carter administration's chief advocate for the arts and crafts.

'Natural' Is Convincing Sales Claim

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
The most convincing sales claim to put on a food or beverage label is not newness, good value, convenience, flavor or quality. A new survey by the Ask One Omnibus Division of Consumer Response Corp., a marketing research firm, says 59 per cent of all consumers think a product labeled "natural" has positive implications; that a food or beverage is healthier, safer, and better for them. The findings are based on a representative sample of more than 1,000 people interviewed by telephone across the country.

Asked to define natural, 44 per cent described such foods and beverages as "nothing artificial." Other phrases mentioned almost as frequently: organic, 42 per cent, no chemicals, 41 per cent, pure, 41 per cent, real, 36 per cent, and no preservatives, 36 per cent.

When consumers compared foods and beverages labeled natural to similar products without that description, 43 per cent identified the natural items as "pure with nothing added." Asked to describe purity, 14 per cent mentioned "no preservatives," 13 per cent, "no additives," 10 per cent, "nothing artificial," and 6 per cent, "no chemicals." Only 7 per cent of the respondents said natural products would "taste better or different."

Corporation President David Schwartz said 68 per cent of the respondents, particularly the better educated, listed at least one benefit.

The most frequently mentioned benefit of food and beverage products labeled was that they cause no adverse side effects. About 42 per cent of consumers expressed this belief.

week in her studio perfecting her craft. She's not pushing for more federal subsidies for the arts. A combination of government, foundation, corporate and private contributions, she feels, should help the arts out of their financial binds.

As for larger government subsidies, Mrs. Mondale says: "The last decade was a period of enormous expansion for the arts. Cultural organizations are larger, more numerous and more popular, and the desire of the American people for the arts is more pervasive than at any other time in this country's history."

Mrs. Mondale, a soft-spoken woman of 47, traces her interest in art in part to the influence of her family.

"My uncle, Philip A. Adams, my father's brother, was director of the Cincinnati Museum of Art," one of the oldest and best regional art galleries in the country. "I took a course in jewelry making when I was in junior high. When I was in college I visited my uncle, who suggested that I should work with children, and that's what I ended up doing."

After graduation from Macalester College with a major in history and minors in French and art, she went into museum work.

She worked as assistant slide librarian at the Boston Museum of Art and later as an assistant in education at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts cataloging prints and teaching children's classes. She also was a docent, or volunteer guide, taking children's classes through art galleries.

A recent four-day trip to North Carolina to promote that state's craft activity is typical of her missionary efforts.

She visited the Penland School of Crafts, one of the best in the nation, just off the Blue Ridge Parkway between Asheville and Blowing Rock, and dined with students and faculty.

One student potter, Etta Ellington, was working on two porcelain plaques, and Mrs. Mondale seemed happy to autograph them with a stylus.

'Her Passion' Is Composing

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Thea Musgrave's father, back home in Scotland, didn't think that becoming a composer of classical music was a canny move, so he didn't encourage her.

Still, he figured, if a man became a classical composer, married and had six children, eight people would starve. If a woman married and had six kids, the husband would have to support her. So he didn't discourage her, either.

With that, Thea Musgrave, at Edinburgh University, turned from medicine to music because "an overwhelming passion" overcame the earlier choice made on the cooler reasoning that doctors make a good living.

Today she composes, is married, has no children, isn't starving. And her third opera, "The Voice of Ariadne," will be given its American premiere at the New York City Opera on Sept. 30.

A fairly formidable output, along with her orchestral and other works, in a field that hasn't exactly been crowded with women. "I never felt unwanted," Miss Musgrave says. "It's difficult and involving enough to master your profession and be good at it. If you had to fight a battle at the same time that women should be allowed ... I never felt I had to do that."

After abandoning medicine, Miss Musgrave first studied piano, then composition under Nadia Boulanger in Paris. She won the Lili Boulanger prize for composition there, a prize in honor of Miss Boulanger's sister, also a composer.

"It's vital for a young composer to get a chance to hear her work played," says Miss Musgrave. She had better luck than most. The British Broadcasting Corporation's classical orchestra in Scotland, which liked to play music by Scottish composers, performed many of her early works.

Miss Musgrave wrote her first opera, in one act, while still a student in 1955. Her second opera, "The Decision," in three acts, was written in 1964-65. "It's about a Scottish mining disaster," Miss Musgrave says. "I was asked to do music for a TV play about this story. I was driving home from the final run-through, and it came in one of those flashes — 'This is what I want to do.'"

Miss Musgrave, brisk, cheerful, and slender, came to Santa Barbara Calif., some years ago to teach for three months. She met teacher-violinist-conductor Peter Mark there. They married and she stayed.

Open Letter to Dan Rather (author of "The Camera Never Blinks")

Dear Dan: I am addressing you rather informally as you nearly missed being named in a suit to end a 28-year-marriage.

Last Sunday I was reading your book when my husband said, "How do you like the book?" I told him I thought it was fascinating and he asked if you broached the subject of that infamous press conference when you arose to scattered applause and Mr. Nixon asked, "Are you running for something" and you replied, "No, Mr. President, are you?"

"I always felt that was an out-of-line retort," said my husband. "You had to have been there," I said. "It wasn't the way it seemed at all."

"Knowing you, you probably got it screwed up anyway."

"What do you mean by a crack like that?"

"Exactly what you think I mean. You are always quoting statistics that when tallied up exceeded 100 per cent."

"At least I know how I feel before a bumper sticker comes out on it."

"Unlike some people, I do not have time to read for pleasure. I am too busy cutting the lawn, moving the hose and cleaning the garage. If I had wanted to work Sundays, I'd have been a priest."

"And I suppose I do not work Sundays? This morning, I did a load of towels, got breakfast, went to church..."

"That's another thing. Why is it when we are supposed to give one another the kiss of peace, you kiss me on the lips, then turn to the people behind you and whisper, 'Who IS this weirdo?'"

"Just a little humor. Can't you take a joke anymore?"

"Speaking of your mother, she wants you to call her."

"You know what I can't stand about you? It's the way you smile when you argue. Why can't you snarl like everyone else. I read the other day where 69 per cent of the American people hate it when you smile, 35 per cent like it, and 13 per cent had no opinion."

"There you go again. That adds up to 117 per cent." He picked up the book. "Why does Dan Rather want to break up our marriage?"

"I don't know. I never figured him for a homewrecker."

I don't know your reason for doing this, Dan, but I know that Walter Cronkite would never make trouble!

Hearts Also Come In Economy Size

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "John") took out a life insurance policy 15 years ago. The agent hesitated selling him a policy because John is 6 foot 9. The agent said "extra tall" people have a shorter life expectancy because they usually develop heart problems. He explained that the heart has to work much harder pumping the blood in a very tall person than in a person of average size.

I believe Mother Nature compensates by giving the extra large man a heart large enough to handle the job, but John believes the agent, and he keeps insisting he'll never see 55. (He's 45 now.) Both John's parents are alive and in their 80s.

Anything you can find out about this will be greatly appreciated.

JOHN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: My heart expert says, "I am not aware of any documented evidence supporting the theory that the heart works harder in extra tall people; certainly it doesn't in giraffes and in professional basketball players. John would do better to listen to a competent cardiologist than to the insurance agent."

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who recently married a widower. He keeps talking about his first wife. What should I do?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Keep talking about your next husband.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office, and every time there is a collection to be taken up to buy a coworker a gift, this one woman always does the collecting and buying. Recently she bought our supervisor a purse. She said it cost $21. I like the purse very much and went to the store to buy one for myself. There, I found it was marked $16.98, so I asked the manager if the purse had been marked down. He assured me it had not, and he said they never had one even similar at any other price.

In checking the price on a few other items, I found that this woman had ripped us off when buying some other gifts. I told several coworkers, but no one wants to mention it to her, and I don't either.

Next time a collection is made, how should this be handled?

Suggest Job If No Children Planned

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Older people and those who don't intend to have children could be recruited to handle DBCP, a pesticide suspected of causing sterility, says a national agricultural organization.

The National Peach Council made the proposal to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration as an alternative to government restrictions "which have had effect of halting production" of the pesticide.

The idea was offered to the government by Robert K. Phillips, executive secretary of the peach council, an agricultural organization representing the interests of peach growers.

In a Sept. 12 letter to Dr. Eula Bingham, administrator of OSHA, Phillips accused the government of overreacting to evidence of sterility in a dozen male workers at Dow Chemical Co.'s DBCP plant at Magnolia, Ark.

In a telephone interview today, Phillips said the suggestion was made in good faith and sincerity. He acknowledged, however, that there has been no response from Dr.

Bingham.

"They may think I'm doing it tongue-in-cheek, but I'm not," said Phillips, whose organization is based in Martinsburg, W. Va. "All these government agencies over-do everything. I know they carry things to extremes. They should at least consider alternatives to banning this material."

OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency, responding to pressure from union and consumer groups, imposed emergency restrictions on the handling of DBCP after learning of the sterility problem at the Arkansas plant last month.

Since the restrictions were imposed, the pesticide has been recalled by two manufacturers, Dow Chemical Co. and Shell Oil Co.

Sheil reported on Aug. 26 that 16 of 21 employees tested after exposure to the pesticide in Mobile, Ala., and Denver have abnormally low sperm counts.

OSHA is considering an emergency standard for DBCP in response to pleas by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

DBCP, also known as dibromochloropropane, is sprayed on citrus fruits, cotton and soybeans to control worm-like nematodes and other pests that attack these crops.

In addition to being linked to sterility, a study by the National Cancer Institute said DBCP causes cancer in rats and mice. But Phillips said this was the case only in rats fed large doses of the chemical.

In his letter to OSHA, Phillips noted that there are many people now paying doctors to sterilize them to assure that they will not be parents.

"If possible sterility is the main concern, couldn't workers who were old enough that they no longer wanted children accept such positions voluntarily?" he asked.

The principal manufacturers of DBCP include Dow, which markets the pesticide as Fumazone; Shell, which calls it Nemagon Soil Fumigant; and Occidental Chemical Co., which makes DBCP products called CHA-KEM-CO, Garden Fume and Green Light.

Carter Trade Policies Prompt Sigh Of Relief

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's pledge to resist imposing trade restrictions on imports, despite a huge U.S. trade deficit, is expected to prompt a collective sigh of relief from other nations.

Carter told a joint meeting Monday of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank that he is "firmly committed to policies to promote freer and wider trade without the deleterious consequences of protectionism."

He made his pledge only a few hours after the U.S. Commerce Department announced a $2.7 billion trade deficit for August, the second largest monthly deficit on record. The nation likely will end the year with a total deficit of about $25 billion, which would be a record.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and finance ministers of several other of the IMF's 131 member nations were on the speaker's list today.

Concern has been widespread among member nations that the Carter administration might succumb to domestic pressures from labor and industry to impose restrictions against imports of some goods to protect U.S. industry and jobs.

But IMF Managing Director H. Johannes Witteveen said such a course would be a mistake that would hurt the entire world economy in the long run.

"Let me emphasize the importance for the rest of the world that expansion of the U.S. economy be maintained at a satisfactory rate," he said in his address Monday.

The United States so far has come in for general praise for its economic policies, but there has been considerable criticism of Japan and Germany for failing to meet their economic goals for the year.

Witteveen said all three countries have an "international responsibility" to pursue economic policies that will help nations with weaker economies.

Carter said the United States will meet its goals for economic growth both this year and in 1978, although he emphasized it would be non-inflationary growth.

Mountain Wisdom Backs Prediction

BURNETT COVE, N.C. (AP) — "From what I hear from the old timers in these parts, this winter will not be as bad as last winter, but they say it will be rough."

That bit of mountain wisdom came from Johnny McLean, forest ranger at Burnsville and Mount Mitchell, but it is echoed in mountain towns all over western North Carolina. And the principal evidence the mountain men use to back it up is the nut crop.

"It'll be comin' on late, but it'll be a rough winter," said Albert Burnett, a veteran woodsman and fox hunter who lives in Burnett Cove under the Pisgah Ledger.

"Whenever you've got a heavy mast (nut) crop, you can look out. There was a heavy crop last year and we had a winter that was really a winter," he said.

The nut crop is heavy all over the western mountains, from the Blue Ridge to the Blacks, the Pisgahs, the Balsams, the Smokies, the Nantahalas and the Snowbird mountains.

"I've been out on the big ridges and the high tops back yonder and there's a site of mast," Burnett said. "The white acorns are extra good. The red oaks are coming in. And there's a heavy crop of walnuts.

"The squirrels are all congregating in these coves where there's plenty of hickories," he added. "They started working them pretty early. When they start cuttin' early you'd better look out. They're trying to get all they can before it comes dead winter on 'em I guess."

Ned Allison, the ranger at Oconaluftee above Cherokee, said the nuts are so thick in the Great Smokies, the bears aren't bothering the campsites.

"The bears have been staying in the back country feeding on mast," Allison said. "There's plenty of acorns and the beech mast is good in spots."

$120.77 Day For Market

The percentage of non descript and poor grades of tobacco increased Monday on the Greenville Tobacco Market as the season entered its tenth week of sales.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade, said that Stabilization receipts went up to 19.47 per cent of total sales as a result of the lower quality of offerings.

The market posted an average of $120.77 per hundred pounds yesterday, he said, as 687,761 pounds sold for $830,628.

Top practical price paid here was $1.60 per pound, the official noted.

In addition to the non descript tobacco, offerings included leaf, cutters and lugs, it was pointed out.

To date, the market has sold 30,773,632 pounds for $36,377,446, an average of $118.21 per hundred pounds.

A Complicated Alternative

A judge has found North Carolina's peeping tom law so vague that he has declared it unconstitutional.

District Judge B. Gordon Gentry made the ruling in a case against a 15-year-old boy. The Guilford County district attorney said the case would be taken to the N. C. Court of Appeals.

The law, nearly 50 years on the books, is worded simply, "Any person who shall peep secretly into any room occupied by a female person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court."

An assistant public defender pointed out that many everyday occurrences would be punishable under the law.

Illustrations included were a mother looking in her daughter's room to see if she were all right, or a daughter looking unannounced in on her sick mother.

We can't disagree with that, and yet this law has been used without question for 50 years. Once the Legislature tries to correct it, it undoubtedly will become so complicated it won't apply to any thing.

Surely there is not a judge in the land who would convict a daughter looking in on her sick mother under this law. Maybe we are expecting too much to leave certain unsaid things to the judges' discretion in writing our laws. The alternative, however, is laws so complicated that no citizen can understand them.

Sad Choice For N.C. Medical Schools

It is a sad thing when North Carolina medical schools are faced with the choice of turning down federal money or admitting students they consider unqualified.

That is possible, however, due to a federal law which requires medical schools receiving funds to admit U. S. students from foreign medical schools.

Duke, Bowman Gray, and UNC-Chapel Hill are considering turning down the federal funds, although no action has been taken pending further consideration of the law by Congress.

Laws such as this one should never slip through Congress, and it should be changed without delay.

System Curbs Prevention

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — Prevention of a host of social and personal problems before they reach a crisis stage is surely a desirable goal, a growing number of health and education experts agree.

But there are a variety of stumbling blocks in the way of that aim.

Existing special interest treatment systems, well funded and backed by organized supporters; the political savvy of already organized interest groups; and the lack of political understanding or clout on the part of "preventers" are the principal problems, according to a group of local, state, and national proponents of prevention who participated in a clinic at Charlotte.

What is prevention all about? A statement growing from that conference sums it up:

of the total person.

"Primary Prevention is an obligation of all health delivery and educational systems; has no selective target population; addresses the need of the total person before the case becomes history; and offers alternative styles and skills for coping with stress to an individual (through) preventive health measures, preventive social measures, psychological growth and personal skills, and spiritual growth."

Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, has said essentially the same thing in other words. She doesn't think the system has done enough to prevent problems; and has concentrated on rehabilitation after the problem is severe.

Dr. Morrow says she would like to lead the social programs in this state in the direction of treating the whole person, with particular attention to early childhood intervention.

But the Charlotte conference sponsored by the Charlotte Drug Education Center and the College of Human Development and Learning at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte helps to ferret out the roadblocks in that path.

Dr. Jonnie McLeod, a Charlotte pediatrician, associate professor at the Charlotte campus, and chairman of the North Carolina Drug Commission, was a chief organizer of the session and is pushing for statewide participation in an Alliance for Primary Prevention.

BILL NOBLITT

The Blocks

Some brief excerpts from remarks by participants in the conference help to focus on the problem:

Dr. Charles Palmgren of Atlanta: "Our task is one of making institutions personal and accountable. . . We must reduce the competitive fragmentation. . . There must be a willingness to share information, personnel, and financial resources. Turf protecting must be phased out in favor of turf sharing. . ."

Dr. John Olsen, chief of preventive services, national drug agency: "At the present time, we . . . spend two per cent of our money on (prevention, or less. I would say that if we looked at the other institutes. . . we might fine the percentage is even less. . ."

"Why is this? . . . it is much cheaper to deal with people before they become addicted (but) why spend $70 when you can hold out for a little while and get $1,700. . . prevention is just too much of a threat to the whole treatment industry. . . if we really prevented illness, it would be so cost effective that it would put a lot of people out of work. . ."

Phillip J. Kirk, Jr., former secretary, N. C. Human Resources: ". . . what is wrong with America is the sum total of what is wrong with parents. . . If problems are identified and solved early, future serious and costly troubles. . . can be avoided. . . (and with existing resources) by recognizing and training those already available locally."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Human Rights And Israel

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — Even the most pro-Israel members of the House International Relations Committee scarcely believed their ears Sept. 12 when a scholarly witness praised Israel's mushrooming settlements on the West Bank as "an important contributor to the region's well-being and to the fostering of better relations" between Jew and Arab.

In President Carter's view, no issue has so poisoned relations between the U.S. and Israel as Prime Minister Begin's claim to the entire West Bank of the Jordan River as "liberated" lands that belong to Israel, with an inherent Israeli right to plant settlements.

Far from "fostering better relations" with the 700,000 Palestinian Arabs who live on the Israeli-occupied West Bank, the Jewish settlements are officially labelled by the Carter administration as "obstacles" to peace. The settlements, furthermore, are clearly "illegal" under various international conventions. So, it might be expected that members of the human rights and Mideast subcommittees of the International Affairs Committee would hear some Arab spokesmen when they conducted the Sept. 12 hearing on legal and human rights aspects of the Israeli settlements.

They did not. Nor were the Congressmen aware of an essential fact when they heard Prof. Fred Gottheil of the University of Illinois express those remarkable views about Jewish settlements. The fact: he had been picked as a witness by staff of the two subcommittees at the express request of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC).

AIPAC, which is run by Morris J. Amitay, is this city's most important and effective pro-Israel lobbying group. Its roots run deep into the political soil of both the House and Senate and its network of political and public relations contacts extends to every major American city.

AIPAC and other political arms of the American-Jewish community did not want any hearings at all on the politically combustible issue of West Bank settlements. Rep. Edward Derwinski of Illinois, ranking Republican on the human rights subcommittee headed by Rep. Don Fraser of Minnesota, sought to block the hearings altogether.

Calling the subject "explosive," Derwinski said public hearings might "complicate" Mr. Carter's Mideast peace plans at a delicate moment in the negotiations. Fraser and Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, chairman of the Mideast subcommittee, disagreed. But the political courage implicit in their decision to move ahead with hearings filled with political boobytraps was overshadowed by extraordinary kowtowing of their staffs to the pro-Israel lobby.

Not only was AIPAC permitted to "recommend" at least one witness (Prof. Gottheil), but the decision was made to veto all testimony from any Palestinian or Arab-American witness. Considering the fact that the Sept. 12 hearing related only to the human rights and the legal issues of Jewish settlements in Arab Palestine, the refusal to take testimony from Palestinian Arabs seems surprising.

What made this especially frustrating to the largely unorganized American-Arab community was the futility of

KEEP ON WEEPING
 "Keep on smiling" has become a slogan so generally accepted that few of us would care to argue with it. It may come to us as something of a shock, therefore, to read the Biblical statement, "Blessed are ye that weep now for ye shall laugh."

What good is there in weeping? Plenty. In fact, the people who cannot shed tears are on a level with the animals, which of course never shed tears. And the reason for this is that only humans have a sense of values which causes them to be sorry for something other than their own misfortune.

Jesus said, "Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." What he meant was, blessed are the people who have the capacity to be sorry, sorry for their sins, sorry for the sins of the world, sorry for the misfortune in which humanity is always steeped.

And if you do weep, then the day will come when you will laugh with gladness when good triumphs over evil, and the sin of this world is supplanted by the perfection of another.

Lance's Affair's Legacy

Back in January, a United States senator was talking reflectively to a person who had been nominated for high government office.

"I think we have got to be extraordinarily careful," said the senator, "in what we ask people to do for government service. You will get a fraction of your former salary, your life is never your own, and we cannot go overboard in making it uncomfortable for people to hold public life. Otherwise we will end up with mediocre people making mediocre policy."

It is not likely to surprise you that the senator was Charles Percy of Illinois, and the nominee was Bert Lance of Georgia. The senator's comment appears at page 115 of the original Lance hearings eight months ago.

Percy was right; and it is perhaps more useful to dwell upon the senator's insights than upon his hindsight's now. If any gain whatever is to be salvaged from this whole unhappy affair, it will be plucked from the senator's sound counsel: Let us not go overboard in making it uncomfortable for people to hold public life.

Sad to say, just about everyone went overboard in the Lance affair. The press had abundant leads to the story long before Lance came up for confirmation as budget director. The Senate committee had abundant opportunity to explore these matters in January. But the hounds of the press went baying off on other trails and the Senate committee lay down on the job.

A vast deal of human suffering and political damage might have been avoided if the system had worked at the time. The malfunction of last winter was savagely corrected in the summer. Everyone connected with the affair slipped into some excess. The President said he was proud of his old friend, Jody Powell lapsed into bush league antics. The Senate committee backed and filled and harumphed and squabbled. The committee staff looked awful. A fellow named Bloom looked worse. The press took after Lance with a kind of blood lust for the wounded bear.

At the risk of repeating a view I have voiced before, let me say this: I tried to read within the limits of time and understanding every significant document in the Lance affair. In my own view, for whatever it may be worth, the story was wildly overblown. Lance's offenses against banking practices seem to be mostly trivial and they were entirely harmless; they never added up to proof that he was incompetent to serve as budget director and presidential confidant.

The affair got completely out of hand. By the morning of the day Lance resigned, truth and judgment having been parked somewhere in the depths below, the New York Times was wandering about in the fourth sub-basement of hearsay. The Times gravely reported that an IRS report said that Mr. Patriarca said that Mr. Tarleton said that in essence Mr. Lance had said: "I just wondered if you could see your way clear to lift the agreement on Calhoun." Pfu!

Let me come back to the point: As a consequence of his willingness to serve his government, a good and

To the editor:

Sept. 19's lead editorial suggested the County school board "stick by its decision" to build a middle school between Ayden and Grifton "unless compelling new arguments are offered."

Their original decision was to replace the middle-school building in Ayden. Later a recommendation to consolidate appeared in the press attributed to the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Committee (which advises the consolidated high school, not the grades affected) — not the County board. The Ayden Advisory Committee later voted against consolidation (and still later reversed itself) on grounds that they didn't favor consolidation if Grifton didn't. No mention of the original recommendation exists in the Grifton Committee's minutes. This curious merry-go-round prompted the County board (4 out of 9 members) to reverse its original decision — an artificial solution to a non-existent problem whose merits have become subordinated to saving face.

You state the County board put "many hours" into studying the matter. A group from Raleigh — not the board. That group receive and summarily ignored compelling arguments, including professional projections more reliable than the cohort-survival method they used.

The most compelling arguments require only observation of falling academic achievements county-wide. You have no doubt printed articles on high-school graduates' reading weaknesses, declining SAT scores and proposals to require eighth-grade standards for high-school graduation. Unconsolidated Grifton students now rank high in Pitt County.

The special Oct. 4 meeting will request the County board to do what your editorial assumed they have done — study the matter and base their decision on the best information. Interested public can provide information. Whether to guide Pitt County schools into demonstrated disaster is up to the board.

Bright Light In Aid

By DAVID TOMLIN
 Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Migrant workers, it appears from recent reports, are abused by growers and neglected by government in North Carolina, but there is at least one area where the state makes an effort to help.

This year special school programs were provided in the state for more than 12,000 children of migrant families or families which have left migrant farm work in the past five years and settled in North Carolina.

The effort cost about $3.1 million, all of it provided by the federal government under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. By next year the total should exceed $4 million.

Robert Youngblood, who administers the program, said it has two principal components — small tutoring groups during the regular school year to help migrant children keep up with their classmates and summer sessions for brushing up the kids on their basic reading, writing and arithmetic skills.

Too many migrant children simply stop going to school because their poor backgrounds and frequent moves make them almost sure to lag far behind, Youngblood says. So the emphasis in the migrant education program is on giving the kids a chance to succeed in school, even if it has to be at a lower level at first.

"They haven't been able to succeed in regular schools," Youngblood says. "Since they don't have to go to school during the summer, it's especially important to keep them happy."

Most of the federal money goes to hire regular teachers, who receive special training in dealing with migrant student problems before taking on the special tutoring chores in addition to their regular school duties.

Another feature of the program designed to help keep the migrants in school as long as possible is the National Migrant Student Record Transfer System.

Since the average migrant stays in one place only five or six weeks, his children move frequently from school to school.

Rev. Lowell F. Sodeman arrived in Greenville to assume duties as pastor of Memorial Baptist church during the illness of Rev. A. W. Fleischman who had been ill for several months.

Ten survivors declared 300 men, women, and children were killed when a Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese junks off the south China coast.

Some of the junks were understood to be sailing under British registry and authorities of a British naval base started an immediate investigation.

The 10 survivors, themselves all wounded, were brought aboard a German liner which brought them to Hong Kong.

Goals Probably Set Too High

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You might say it's the Carter Administration's own fault that its economic projections are now being criticized. It probably set its goals too high.

That observation is inherent in almost all the reports from business economists and a good many academics too, and to some extent it seems also to be shared by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

One inevitable consequence of setting such high goals — originally, they were 4.5 per cent unemployment, 4 per cent inflation and a balanced budget by 1981 — is that good news is viewed as fair, and fair as poor.

The administration currently says it expects growth in Gross National Product, the total of all goods and services produced, to reach about 5.3 per cent next year. The congressional committee says 4 to 4.4 per cent.

That latter rate certainly doesn't suggest weakness, but it is being viewed that way because, it is observed, it is 20 per cent or so lower than the administration's goal.

The truth is that the Joint Committee's estimate is considered bullish by some nongovernmental forecasters, whose own figures are even lower. Still, these academic and business forecasters aren't worried, about recession.

The latest figures from the Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates, a group which analyzes the economy every three months, foresees real growth of 4 per cent or so, a decline from this year, but hardly a disastrous one.

In fact, Lawrence Klein and others at the Wharton unit foresee some areas of strength, including a "boomlet" in fixed business investment, or capital spending.

Such a development has been awaited for many months. Repeatedly forecast, it never seemed to develop. But now, as some forecasters expect some moderation in consumer spending, capital investments are likely to take up the slack.

This probability also has been expressed by the leasing-financing unit of Commercial Credit, which reports that in the past two months its clients have stepped up their capital spending plans strongly.

At the same time the Joint Economic Committee was issuing its report, a group of top business executives was telling President Carter that the economy is in somewhat better shape than some of the bearish forecasts indicate.

Business, of course, sometimes sees things from a vastly different point of view than does labor. It is perhaps more concerned about inflation, for example, than it is about unemployment.

Still, business profits suffer along with unemployed workers, and so to some extent the two, business and labor, share a mutual concern for economic conditions. The business executives see a slowdown, but not a recession.

Nevertheless, there is no denying that a mood of displeasure, and even a sense of failure, is mixed into the attitudes of many students of the economy. And there is little doubt that some of it originates with the administration's own projections.

their efforts to change that committee decision. The American Arabs were denied the same chance to propose witnesses that the committee gave AIPAC. The record is slightly chilling.

A staff aide of Sen. James Abourezk, the Senate's only Arab-American, was secretly informed by a House Committee staffer in June that the hearings were being planned for September. He informed the Middle East Research Center, an Arab-American lobby. It privately requested the staff of Fraser's subcommittee to consider taking testimony from Abdeen Jabara, a prominent Detroit lawyer and leader in the Arab-American community.

Some two months later near the end of August, the Middle East Research Center was told by the Fraser subcommittee staff that, regrettably, there was the no place for any Arab witness recommended by the Arab-American lobby, Jabara included.

Gottheil, picked to testify by Amity's AIPAC, was joined by Prof. Raymond Tanter of the University of Michigan, who spent five years in Israel as a visiting professor at Hebrew University and was also approved by AIPAC. Tanter's testimony, though certainly reflecting his own conviction, was virtually indistinguishable from the Israeli foreign office.

"Contrary to propaganda claims of violations of human rights," Tanter testified, "Israel's occupation of the West Bank has served to broaden human rights...The net effect of the occupation...is positive."

That novel reading of Israel's colonization of the West Bank and other Arab lands seized in the 1967 war brought a low-key response from Paul Quiring, an experienced Mennonite social worker who has helped West Bank Palestinians on relief projects since the 1967 war. Taking a pro-Arab position, he said: "It strikes me as odd that the construction of Israeli settlements could improve human rights conditions without the (Palestinian) people being aware of it." That is no odder than the hearing itself.

decent man has been put through hell. His family's canceled checks have been hung out like a line of wash. He has lost a couple of million dollars and finds himself heavily, if not desperately, in debt. When it is said that he brought all this on himself, one has to acknowledge an ironical truth. Yes, he brought his own ruin by agreeing to the sacrifice his President asked of him.

Where do we go from here? I had an old journalism professor, nearly 40 years ago, who laid this maxim down: Dull people lead dull lives. This is essentially what Percy was saying to Lance in January. Plenty of dull people, mediocre people, people of pedestrian minds and narrow vision, always will be available for public service. Their dull records would yield no scrap of excitement for the press to feed on.

But after the Lance affair, how many spirited, talented, bold and imaginative men and women will now risk a like catastrophe? How many successful executives will take a chance on humiliation, public ridicule, and grave financial loss? The evils of Watergate have spawned contradictory evils of their own. By demanding needlessly lofty standards of purity and virtue, presidents and senators and sanctimonious editors may believe they have served the public interest. I put it to you bluntly: They have not.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — An official of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association says it was an oversight that the association failed to comply with a Minnesota law requiring registration and annual reports of annuity plans sold in the state.

State Securities Commissioner John Larson said Monday that the evangelistic association has not complied with the registration law since 1975.

George Wilson, executive vice president of the association, called it an oversight and said the situation would be corrected by the end of the year.

Larson's department is investigating the annuity and has asked the association for information on assets and payments. The lapse was discovered a few months ago.

The Graham annuity program, which is operated by the Minneapolis-based evangelical association, pays interest for life on money paid into it. The payments vary according to the age of the recipient and follow an actuarial table.

A Graham spokesman has said the association has an operating budget annually of about $25 million. The Charlotte Observer reported last June that the association supplies between 80 and 90 per cent of the money for a fund known as the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund of Dallas, Tex., with assets of $22.9 million including land and blue-chip stocks and bonds.

The Graham association registered its Gift Annuity Plan with the state on Feb. 6, 1974, seeking to sell $200,000 in annuities, and listing $751,158 in assets, records show. An annual report, due June 1975, was not filed and the registration was withdrawn on Dec. 9, 1975, according to Larson.

A 1973 law requires charitable annuities to be handled as securities, with registration and annual reports. It was amended in 1975 to require quarterly reports.

Wilson said the annuity program puts 100 per cent of every dollar into the trust. "Probably no other institution does that," he said.

Walter Pidgeon Is Home Again

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Walter Pidgeon has returned home to recuperate from a blood clot on his lung.

Pidgeon, who celebrated his 79th birthday this weekend, left St. John's Hospital on Monday. He had been hospitalized since Aug. 4, when he entered St. John's for brain surgery and was forced to stay when a clot developed on one of his lungs.

"He's in very satisfactory condition, and he'll be going home to recuperate," said spokeswoman Peggy Frank. She said Pidgeon was cheerful and had been given a small party for his birthday.

Pentagon Study Lists Needs For West Point

By JAMES H. RUBIN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's military academy at West Point should offer new courses on ethics and sex education, produce winning football teams, and develop a sense of humor, a Pentagon study says.

The 175-year-old Army institution is suffering from poor morale, a lack of supervision and planning, overburdened cadets, resistance to change and even a pervasive lack of humor, according to the 200-page report released today.

These problems must be solved if the academy is to regain lost excellence and recover from last year's cadet cheating scandal, said the report, drawn up by a study group headed by three generals.

The study said there was "a slackening of the pursuit of excellence" that "appears everywhere in cadet life but is most troubling in the academic program." "Marginal scholastic performances do not preclude graduation," the report said, adding that "even the frequency of success on the playing fields has declined. There is a pervasive need to set and enforce standards in all aspects of cadet experience."

The report recommended a sex education program "that would be straightforward, mature and sufficiently broad to encompass physiology, reproduction, contraception, hygiene and responsibility."

It also suggested upgrading intercollegiate athletics on a campus that was once famed for its football teams. But athletic recruiting should be limited to top prospects who also can do the academic and military work, the report said. It also proposed building an indoor athletic facility.

In trying to determine what is lacking at West Point, the study group also said it "found that a relatively humorless atmosphere seems to prevail... A certain grimness marks many of the cadets, an outlook which may blind them to many of life's humorous aspects and rob them of much of the enjoyment of their four-year experience."

The study also criticized the academy for a general inability to spot and correct its own weaknesses.

The study group, which submitted 152 recommendations in its report to Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, stressed the need to give cadets more time to devote to special academic areas of interest while eliminating emphasis on class rankings.

The report also urged retention of the controversial honor system and the "non-tolerance" clause that requires cadets to report violations of the honor code. But the study said slight infractions should not be punished by expulsion.

A total of 152 students left the academy because of the 1976 cheating scandal, which involved a routine homework assignment in a computer course called Electrical Engineering 304.

The academy offered to reinstate 105 of those cadets, and 98 of them returned this past summer and began regular classes three weeks ago. The academy has 4,475 cadets, including 177 women.

Maddox Is Resting Well

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Georgia Governor Lester Maddox was reported resting comfortably late Monday after suffering a heart attack Sunday night.

A hospital spokesman said Maddox was in guarded condition. Earlier, his doctor had expressed satisfaction with Maddox's progress. He suffered the attack while working in the garden of his Marietta home.

An avowed segregationist, the 61-year-old Maddox recently caused a stir by launching a nightclub act in partnership with a black former employe of his restaurant, Bobby Lee Fears. Maddox billed his act "The Governor and the Dishwasher."

Maddox was governor from 1967 to 1971 and lieutenant governor from 1971 to 1975.

Youngblood noted that about half the 12,000 students served by his program this year were now living permanently in North Carolina.

He said federal officials had decided it takes a while for a migrant student to adjust to regular school attendance, so a special provision makes the special tutoring available to those students for five years.

"Most of these students have been dropping out before they even get to high school," he said. "We're trying to keep them in the program, and our evaluations show that we're having some success."

"It's a long, hard battle," he added. "But we do feel we are making some progress."

Overdraft Rights Not Unusual

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly two-thirds of the banks examined in a new government survey allow their directors and other insiders to write interest-free overdrafts on their accounts. Bert Lance, who last week resigned under fire as director of the Office of Management and Budget, had been criticized for writing similar overdrafts at the Georgia bank he operated.

The survey, made by examiners of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., also shows that the dollar volume of the overdrafts by insiders was less than 1 per cent of the total overdrafts allowed to all depositors in the 189 banks examined.

The results of the FDIC survey, conducted during the week of Sept. 12, were reported Monday to the Senate Banking Committee, which is considering laws to tighten federal regulation of banks.

Called as witnesses today were officers of three banks from which Lance received personal loans while the banks had the use, without paying interest, of depositors' money from banks Lance headed.

During Senate hearings, Lance maintained that the large overdrafts he and his relatives ran up at the family-owned First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., were part of a liberal overdraft policy available to all depositors.

But in a report issued Aug. 18, Comptroller of the Currency John G. Heimann said the overdrafts by Lance, his wife and members of her family who were bank directors constituted "unsafe and unsound banking practices."

The overdraft survey showed that during a 90-day period, insiders such as bank officers or

Must Find Space For U.S. Nuclear Waste

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal energy officials say states which don't want nuclear waste buried in their land don't have to have it — as long as somebody else takes the radioactive junk off their hands.

"States which say 'no' won't get it as long as there are enough sites to choose from," he said.

Bill Bishop, assistant director of waste management for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said federal officials probably will give up on a proposed storage site in the face of strong local political pressure.

But Bishop said storage sites must be found somewhere by 1985. He said there are 65 nuclear plants operating in the country now, which daily add to the current stock of waste which he said is equivalent to the yearly waste of 300 plants.

Bishop said that the President and Congress have the ul-time power in picking waste disposal sites if too many states oppose the idea.

Bishop is one of several federal officials meeting here with representatives from 16 states in the second of three conferences aimed at getting local ideas on nuclear waste disposal.

He said he believes that concerned state officials and federal regulators are all after the same thing — "Keeping the rascals from doing it wrong."

Carl Kuhlman of the Energy Research and Development Administration also said that states will have some veto power over federal decisions in choosing storage sites.

"If we can locate sites in states that don't object, we will try to go there," he said.

Salt domes in Louisiana and other Gulf Coast states, for example, are being considered as sites for dumping nuclear trash. But the Louisiana legislature has passed a law, with the backing of Gov. Edwin Edwards, opposing such moves.

But Kuhlman noted that federal officials still are studying the possibility of storing wastes in Louisiana, despite the state's objections.

Kuhlman is deputy director of the division of waste management for his federal agency — the agency which first chooses disposal sites. Bishop's agency will approve or reject such choices.

Kuhlman said his agency wants to locate two sites by the end of next year and have the disposal systems operating by 1985.

Chosen To Get Professorship

The Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University has been chosen to receive one of 12 Wellcome Visiting Professorships, which bring distinguished scientists to scientific institutions in the United States.

Prof. Laurens L. M. Van Deenen, head of the Department of Biochemistry of the University of Utrecht, The Netherlands, will be the Wellcome visiting professor at Bowman Gray March 23-24. He is considered one of the world's foremost authorities in cell membrane research.

Officers Of Honor Soc.

ECU News Bureau
Five students in the East Carolina University Department of Library Science have assumed office in the campus chapter of Alpha Beta Alpha national honor society.

The Burroughs Wellcome Fund of Greenville and the Research Triangle Park sponsors and supports the professorships. The Wellcome fund, a non-profit foundation, provides the honorariums given to the visiting professors and pays for their travel expenses.

March 27-29, Van Deenen will participate in the Regional Lipid Conference at Western Carolina University, co-sponsored by WCU and Bowman Gray.

Much of the progress made in unraveling the mystery of how cell membranes work in the past decade has been the result of the work of Van Deenen and his colleagues in The Netherlands. He is secretary-general of The Federation of European Biochemical Societies. The recent recipient of the highest research award given in The Netherlands, he is author or co-author of almost 300 scientific papers.

New president of ECU's Alpha Eta chapter is Starr Balten of Middlesex, and serving as vice president is Sharon Horn of Moorestown, N.J.

Marianna Long of Salisbury was elected treasurer; Linda Mayo of Greenville, secretary; and Sarah Earnhardt of Mooresville, recorder-historian.

The chapter plans a fund-raising drive to send members to Washington, D. C. for a visit to the Library of Congress.

Alpha Beta Alpha promotes and recognizes academic and professional achievement in the field of library science. Ludi Johnson of the ECU library science faculty is chapter advisor.

Offer Federal Law To Bar Child Pornography

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is sending the Senate a bill that would make it a federal crime to use children in pornography.

The bill's author, Rep. Dale E. Kildee, D-Mich., says thousands of boys and girls — some as young as three years old — are being sexually exploited in films and magazines.

"Just as pernicious as the sweat shops in the early part of the century which left physical scars are the modern-day conditions which leave psychic scars," Kildee said Monday before the 375-12 House vote in favor of the bill. "Cold-hearted abuse in the pursuit of profit is a particularly heinous crime."

Some members of the House Judiciary Committee warned, however, that Kildee's measure may be so broad that it violates the First Amendment rights of freedom of speech and expression.

They said they fear a prolonged court test if the bill becomes law. The measure would make it a federal crime to use children under age 16 in real or simulated sexual activities if photographs or films of them are sold across state lines.

The maximum penalty would be 20 years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

Kildee's bill would apply only to goods sold in interstate commerce.

Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the judiciary panel's crime subcommittee, advocated shelving the measure while a new bill is drafted to preclude a constitutional confrontation. Other members of the subcommittee backed his proposal.

Conyers said legal experts, including Justice Department witnesses, have serious reservations about the constitutionality of the Kildee bill, which authorizes the prosecution of distributors and sellers of such material without a requirement that it be proven obscene.

"We are going to furnish an obvious 'out' that any lawyer can find," Conyers warned.

The Senate Judiciary Committee recently approved a bill to make using a child under 16 in pornographic material a federal crime.

That proposal would ban taking children across state lines to engage in prostitution.

Fearing a drawn-out constitutional battle, however, the Senate rejected an amendment banning the sale or distribution of obscene material depicting sexually explicit conduct by children.

If the House version is not approved by the Senate, the differences would have to be resolved in a conference committee.

Princess Margaret Says She Is Not Expecting To Marry Again

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret, separated from her husband for 18 months, says she doesn't expect to marry again, gossip columnist Nigel Dempster reported today.

The weekly magazine Woman's Own published the first of three articles by Dempster on the 47-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth II. He said she never gives interviews, even to him, but he got his information from some of her friends.

Since her separation from Lord Snowdon, Margaret has been going around with Roddy Llewellyn, who is 17 years her junior. But Dempster wrote that she has told friends, "I don't see myself marrying again."

The columnist said she knows that as a member of the royal family, she is a figurehead and re-marriage would present problems.

"Anyway, it would probably be too much of a bore," she is quoted as saying.

Margaret lives with her two children in an apartment in Kensington Palace.

Dempster's article purports to give an account by Margaret of her love affair with Group Capt. Peter Townsend when he was an equerry to her father, King George VI. Dempster writes that she told a friend:

"He appeared when I was 14 — I had a terrific crush on him. My father was very fond of Peter — they both stammered."

"We were given to believe that we could marry. If I hadn't been told so, I wouldn't have given it another thought. It would have been out of the question and Peter could have gone off quite peacefully."

Leaders of the Conservative government and of the Church of England opposed the match because Townsend was divorced. On Oct. 31, 1955, Margaret announced that "mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble," she had decided not to marry Townsend.

But Dempster reported that years later when a friend asked why she had not married Townsend, she replied, "He didn't want to."

Four years later, while Margaret was at Balmoral, the royal castle in Scotland, she got a letter from Townsend saying he planned to marry a 19-year-old Belgian heiress, the account continued.

"That evening I became engaged to Tony (Lord Snowdon), princess reportedly told the friend. It was no coincidence," the friend.

See Hot Water Source In Volcanic Mt. Hood

By ROBERT LOCKE
Associated Press Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A natural gas company hopes to turn volcanic Mt. Hood into a virtual hot water faucet that eventually may supply the entire city of Portland.

Northwest Natural Gas Co. said its plan would provide a "renewable and essentially inexhaustible" reservoir of hot water.

A projected five years of research and construction begins Thursday with drilling on two small exploratory wells designed to test geologists' belief that hot water is available in a 10,000-acre area 43 miles from Portland. The initial goal is to supply factories.

But "there's certainly a possibility of finding enough hot water ... to heat the whole city of Portland if it becomes economically feasible," said consulting geologist John Hook. The company believes it can use the geothermal method to deliver water at 150 degrees Fahrenheit and hotter.

The test wells are on federal land and the utility must get permission from the U.S. Forest Service to develop the geothermal system. Company officials say the utility is applying for a lease.

Water from artesian springs and melting snow is heated when it drifts near the white-hot core of Mt. Hood, said Hook.

Initially, the project would ship hot water through a pipeline to factories about 43 miles west of Mt. Hood in the Oregon Cascades, NWG vice president Paul Howe Sr. told a news conference Monday. It might also be diverted to heat private homes along the route of the buried pipeline, he said.

Preliminary results on the test wells should be available within about two weeks, Howe said.

If results are favorable, Howe said, the project would cost about $50 million to complete.

Hunt Opens Funds Drive

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt launched a campaign today to raise $5 million from private citizens, corporations and foundations toward a new building for the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Hunt unveiled a rendering of the new building, which is scheduled for completion by January, 1980, at a press conference this morning at the museum's current home, a renovated four-story section of the state highway building.

In prepared remarks, the governor named Louis C. Stephens, president of Pilot Life Insurance Co. of Greensboro, as chairman of the fund drive.

Hunt said the state's art collection, valued at more than $40 million, is wasted in the current building.

"We can't even display half our works of art in this building," Hunt said, "there's not enough room. It's doesn't have classroom space or an auditorium, so we can't use it to help educate our children adequately. You can hardly even park near here — unless you're the governor."

Stephens said the fund drive has already received a $1.5 million challenge grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem. The award is contingent on the state's beginning construction of the entire first phase of the building by December, 1978.

Helping Cerebral Palsy Victims

The United Cerebral Palsy of New York City is a voluntary agency devoted entirely to the problems and the needs of cerebral palsy victims.

After a quarter of a century of devotion to cerebral palsy victims, a new complex of buildings is being established in Brooklyn, N.Y. It encompasses the most modern concepts of rehabilitation for multi-handicapped children and adults.

Besides physical rehabilitation, educational programs will concentrate on the preschool child, the child of school age who cannot be accommodated in public school programs, and the teenagers and adults who wish to continue their education, and to pursue social and vocational activities.

Many medical, scientific and psychological disciplines are coordinating their talents to give these handicapped persons the greatest potential for being integrated into society as productive, happy people.

John Miller, president of the Hearst Foundation, after inspecting the Brooklyn Rehabilitation Campus for Cerebral Palsy, was enormously impressed by the planned service programs aimed at the total rehabilitation of the courageous victims of cerebral palsy.

I have been told that eating licorice is an excellent way to help break the smoking habit. I don't want to take it in candy form because I don't want to put on weight. Can licorice be taken in pill form to serve the same purpose? — Mrs. G. S., Ohio. Dear Mrs. S.:

Licorice comes from the dried root of Glycyrrhiza glabra. For years, it has been used for a variety of medical purposes. Sometimes it is used as an expectorant, and even as a laxative.

Many people have found that the taste of licorice is effective in reducing the need for a cigarette. It seems to be particularly helpful after drinking coffee, when the desire for a cigarette is at a peak.

Recently, however, it has been found that large quantities of licorice in any form may produce odd symptoms. Nausea, palpitation, headaches and extreme fatigue are sometimes noted in "licorice addicts."

It has also been found the adrenal gland, which produces a special hormone, may be overstimulated by too much licorice.

This should be kept in mind by those using licorice to break the smoking habit and also for people who eat licorice just because they like it.

To take licorice in pill form would serve no purpose because it is the taste of licorice in the mouth that can act as a deterrent to smoking.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, failing to sustain a rally it began late in Monday's session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which rose 2.51 on Monday, dropped back 2.86 to 838.79 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers held a very slight edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was moderate. Big Board volume totalled 5.22 million shares in the first hour.

Analysts said the short-lived upswing in the last hour Monday and the first few minutes today stemmed mainly from internal market forces.

They noted that it was unable to attract any lasting support in the face of continuing concern over rising interest rates.

Money-market observers said Federal Reserve actions Monday suggested that the central bank was seeking to tighten credit further in its effort to reduce the growth rate of the money supply.

General Electric fell 7/8 to 51 1/2. The company disclosed management changes in its troubled nuclear-reactor business.

General Motors topped the active list, down 1/4 at 69 3/4. The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was up .06 at 52.26.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .28 to 117.41.

you have supported me."

Two of the Trustees were recently reappointed to the P.T.I. Board of Trustees and took the oath of office as Trustees. Sen. White of Winterville was reappointed by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners; and W.F. Tyson of Stokes, by Gov. Hunt — both for eight-year terms.

The Building Committee, chaired by Everett, reported that the bid date for the new shop/classroom building is Oct. 4. The Board approved plans submitted by the Building Committee for a new shop/maintenance Building. The new facility is to be used for receiving and storing maintenance supplies and institutional equipment, and repairing and servicing vehicles. The site work, foundation, and floor are to be contracted, but Pitt Tech's students and staff will complete the 2,880 square-foot facility above ground.

P.T.I. programs involved will include Masonry, Electrical Installation and Maintenance, Carpentry, Heating, Refrigeration, and Architectural Drafting.

The shop/maintenance facility has been needed for several years, according to Everett. Funds for the project will come from the 1977-78 county capital outlay budget. The building will be Georgian style, single story with attic storage, hip roof, and brick veneer.

The first phase of the master drainage plan for the P.T.I. campus has been completed, according to Everett. The second phase is to be a part of the new shop/classroom facility plans.

Mrs. Kay Whichard, chairperson of the Personnel Committee, recommended to the Board, on behalf of the committee, the appointment and employment of six people to faculty and staff positions at the Institute. The Board approved the recommendation.

The Board also endorsed a report form the Program Committee presented by G. Henry Leslie authorizing the Institute to offer four new programs and change the name of one program. New programs were Banking and Finance, Auto Body, Nurse Assistant, and Hospital Ward Secretary. The name of the Mental Health Technology curriculum was changed to Human Services Technology.

In other action, the Trustees formally adopted a state budget of $2,514,770 and a county budget of $336,494. The Board acknowledged and accepted contributions made to the Institute since its last meeting.

Gifts included: $1,500 from Union Carbide Corporation $100 from Planters National Bank, $500 from First State Bank, $250 from Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., $50 from C.D. Langston, and $50 worth of

House Deciding On Who To Pay For Abortions

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is deciding whether taxpayers should pay for abortions for poor women who are the victims of rape or incest or whose doctors say they need the surgery. Today's vote on a Senate proposal that is less restricted than the House stand limiting federal aid to cases in which a woman's life is in danger.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill had earlier forecast a decision Friday but speeded up the vote in the face of pressure from the Senate leadership and 70 fellow members of the House.

The abortion impasse has blocked final congressional approval of a $60.2-billion appropriation for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Without the congressional action, the two agencies would run out of money Friday, the end of the fiscal year. A resolution to continue spending at present levels would then be needed for payrolls to be met.

O'Neill scheduled the vote on the Senate provision over the still-vehement opposition of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., chairman of the Labor-HEW appropriations subcommittee. Flood, who has refused to allow the House to vote directly on the Senate language, Monday refused to take any part in bringing the Senate provision to the floor, as O'Neill had ordered.

Over the weekend, 70 congressmen with varying views on the abortion controversy asked Flood not to oppose a floor vote on the Senate provision.

The chairman of the full appropriations committee, Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, Monday tried to persuade Flood to back a floor vote to break the Labor-HEW funds impasse.

Flood resisted again, however. Ultimately the House leadership persuaded Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, to bring the Senate provision to the House floor.

"Our concern is that the bill move out of Congress," a Stokes aide said. "Evidently no one else is willing to take a stand."

Since last summer's Supreme Court ruling that public funds need not be used to finance abortions for poor women, the federal government has cut off all Medicaid abortion aid except in cases where a woman's life was endangered.

After the court's decision, the Senate voted to expand federal aid to cases of rape or incest or where an abortion was deemed medically necessary. Twice since then, it has rejected the more restrictive House provision.

Investigation is underway by the Pitt Sheriff's Department into the weekend theft of 11 storm windows from a building site located off Stantonsburg Road west of Greenville.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the theft of the storm windows from a carport of a house under construction in Harrell Subdivision was reported Monday morning at 10:15 a.m.

The sheriff said that the stolen property, owned by Ed Tipton Builders of Greenville, was valued at $175.

Obituary

Howard
HAMPTON, VA. — Mrs. Mattie Howard, formerly of Edgecombe County, died Saturday in Riverside Hospital here. She was the sister of Mrs. Annie Roberson of Fountain. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Hemby Funeral Home of Fountain.

Murdered Who?

LONDON (AP) — The current issue of The Lancet, a British medical journal, includes this contribution from L.R.C. Agnew of the University of California School of Medicine at Los Angeles:

"One way of catching class attention is to ask what advice students would give when presented with the following family history. The father has syphilis, the mother tuberculosis; they have already had four children — the first is blind, the second died, the third is deaf and dumb, and the fourth has tuberculosis.

"The mother is pregnant with her fifth child, and the parents are willing to have an abortion should you so decide. Assuming there aren't too many Catholics in the class, you will usually find a majority in favor of abortion. You congratulate the class on their decision to abort — and then you tell them they have just murdered Beethoven."

Agnew added that all too often today there is no "love of man" in the practice of medicine.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, who asked newsmen a week ago not to vote his team No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll, got his wish today.

The Wolverines, who squeaked past Navy 14-7 after struggling to beat equally-unheralded Duke 21-9, dropped to third place in this week's poll behind Oklahoma and Southern California.

Oklahoma, the preseason leader, surrendered the first spot to Michigan for the first two weeks of the season but climbed from third place back to No. 1 by nipping Ohio State, last week's No. 4 team, 29-28.

The Sooners received 23 first-place votes and 1,164 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

Southern Cal, a 51-0 winner over Texas Christian, actually received one more first-place ballot than Oklahoma but the Trojans only totaled 1,116 points to remain No. 2.

Then came Michigan with eight first-place votes and 981 points, compared to last week's 42 and 1,094.

Penn State continued to climb, rising from fifth to fourth with seven first-place votes and 860 points after a 27-9 whipping of Maryland. The Nittany Lions were followed by Texas A&M, up from sixth to fifth with no first-place votes but 798 points thanks to a 33-17 victory over Texas Tech. The loss dropped the Red Raiders from eighth to 13th.

Next came Ohio State with 601 points, followed by Colorado with 581. The Buffs, eighth last week, trounced New Mexico 42-7.

The remaining first-place ballot went to Texas, which had the weekend off. The Longhorns, who have outscored their two opponents 112-0, received 430 points in climbing from ninth to eighth.

Florida, 13th a week ago, defeated Mississippi State and cracked the Top Ten, vaulting to ninth place with 395 points. Rounding out the Top Ten is Alabama with 320 points. The Crimson Tide, also 10th a week ago, defeated Vanderbilt 24-12.

The Second Ten consists of Nebraska, Arkansas, Texas Tech, Notre Dame, Brigham Young, Pitt, California, Mississippi State, Houston and Arizona State.

Last week, it was Notre Dame, Mississippi State, Florida, Nebraska, Washington State, Arkansas, West Virginia, UCLA, Houston and Brigham Young.

Pitt, California and Arizona State replaced Washington State, West Virginia and UCLA. Pitt swamped Temple 76-0, California beat Missouri 28-21 and Arizona State edged Oregon State 33-31. Meanwhile, Kansas downed Washington State 14-12, Kentucky knocked off West Virginia 28-13 and Minnesota upset UCLA 27-13.

Sipe Tried To Talk Gregg Out Of Going For Fateful Field Goal

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns Coach Forrest Gregg watched intently during overtime as his team moved steadily toward the New England goal line.

Suddenly, defensive backfield coach Billy Kinard broke into his thoughts with a surprising suggestion.

"Why not get it?" Kinard said, referring to a field goal attempt.

Gregg gave it some thought, quarterback Brian Sipe tried to talk him out of it and — after the coach rejected Sipe's plea — Don Cockroft calmly booted a 35-yard field goal to give the Browns a 30-27 National Football League victory over the Patriots.

The Browns won the toss and received the kickoff in the fifth period. Sipe felt he had good reason to try to veto his coach, since he had directed the Browns from their own 29-yard line to New England's 17. It was second-and-nine when Cockroft connected on his third field goal of the see-saw game 4:45 into the extra period.

A crowd of 76,416 at Cleveland Stadium and a national television audience watched as Cockroft's kick stayed barely inside the right upright, giving Cleveland, 2-0, its second straight upset victory.

"I felt we have a field goal kicker who can get it through the uprights," Gregg explained. Cockroft, whose second 37-yard field goal of the night had given the Browns a short-lived 27-24 lead with 55 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter, agreed enthusiastically with Gregg's decision.

"I was ready at 50 yards," he said. "I hit some 55-yarders in practice."

New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I was not necessarily surprised by the field goal at that point. He was close enough to make it and they weren't risking a fumble or loss.

What made the loss more bitter for the Patriots, 1-1, was the fact they blew leads of 17-7 and 24-17. They got a new life when quarterback Steve Grogan moved the team 72 yards in six plays, setting up a tying 34-yard field goal by John Smith with no time remaining in regulation play.

"If we would have got the ball, we would have scored again. But Cleveland won the toss in overtime," said New England tight end Russ Francis, who caught one of Grogan's two scoring passes and lugged a 28-yard toss to Cleveland's 17 with just one second left in the fourth quarter.

Sipe also passed for two touchdowns, one of them to running back Greg Pruitt, who also threw a five-yard scoring pass on an option play and darted for 151 yards in 26 carries.

Grogan finished with 15 completions in 23 passing attempts for 172 yards, seven of them to fullback Sam Cunningham, who also netted 70 yards on 18 running plays.

Rampants Take Fourth Victory

Rose High School's cross-country team rolled to a twin victory yesterday, downing Northeastern and Rocky Mount.

The Rampants finished the meet with a low score of 25, while Northeastern had 60 and Rocky Mount had 72.

Rocky Mount took first place in the individual event, while Northeastern was second, but Rose took each of the remaining places in the top ten.

David Jones of Rocky Mount crossed the finish line first in 16:19, followed by Frank Yoder of Northeastern in 16:43.

Bill DeVanzo led the Rose contingent across, finishing in 16:50. He was followed by Til Jolly in 16:52 and Steve Blackwell in 16:57.

The next five, all from Rose, were Ted Gartman, 17:07; Blair

Smith, 17:26; Dan Mayo, 17:38; Mike Norfleet, 17:49; and Edwin Yancey, 17:50.

Other Rose finishers included Sterling Ashby, 12th in 18:24; and Latham Mills, 15th in 19:15.

The Rampants travel to Northern Nash on Thursday.

Contest Winners

John Foster of Lot 66, Oakwood Acres, Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Foster correctly picked the winners in 28 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's Reflector contest. His victory, however, came through his point total guess after he tied with another entrant for first. Foster guess 76 points would be the most scored in any one of the contest games. The actual total was 77 scored both in Louisiana State's 77-0 win over Rice, and in Boston College's 49-28 win over Army.

Second place went to Jack Wall of 405 Winchester Dr., Greenville, who also listed 28 winners. His point guess was further off the actual total with 80.

This week's contest appears on the following pages.

McGee Looks For Close Contest

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke coach Mike McGee expects a close contest Saturday when the Midshipmen of Navy come to Durham.

Both teams have tested themselves against top-ranked Michigan and come away with a measure of self-respect, Duke with a 21-9 score and Navy an impressive 14-7 loss. The Midies are 2-1 on the season; the Devils are 1-2.

"Other than Michigan, Navy will be the best team we've played this year," McGee said. "It rivals the Staubach and Bellino teams of the past.

"Navy has a great passer in Bob Leszczynski, who had 190 yards against Michigan in their loss. He had a lot of poise and came through with a number of clutch, third down pass completions in that game," McGee said.

"Defensively they pursue extremely well," he added. "Against Michigan they held the Wolverines without a first down for the first 20 minutes of the second half and allowed them to get back in the game. They play with great confidence."

After an opening loss to East Carolina and the Michigan tilt, Duke bounced back last week to whip Virginia, 31-7, a "solid victory," McGee said, which sends the Blue Devils into Saturday's game in good spirits.

"We showed great intensity, even after two very emotional games," McGee said. "Our blocking was super, particularly downfield, and our defense showed great quickness. In fact, I would say our defense has the potential to be as good as any I've had at Duke."

Paul Waner had a career batting average of .340, the top mark for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

'Famous Amos' Pass Finally Got Dooley's Dream To Work Saturday

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Freshman Amos Lawrence has finally accomplished what North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley's been trying to get his Tar Heels to do for five years — he completed a halfback pass. "It keeps them honest," Dooley said of Lawrence's 20-yard touchdown toss against Northwestern Saturday. "It makes those defensive backs know they can't just come up on us every time they see a pitch to the tailback." Lawrence's strike to tight end Brooks Williams on first and three was a bit of fancy playmaking that the Tar Heels could afford to try with a comfortable 27-7 lead in the third quarter. The Tar Heels finished with a 41-7 rout of the Wildcats, and the play is the AP Play of the Week in the Atlantic Coast Conference. It came on Lawrence's first big day in college football. After seeing only limited action in UNC's first two games, the rookie tailback scored on a 53-yard touchdown run and rushed for 101 yards in 10 carries. Dooley has tried unsuccessfully to get his tailbacks to complete a pass every season since Sammy Johnson threw two, one for a score, in 1972. When all-ACC tailback Mike Voight, who graduated last year, tried, "it looked like a wounded duck," Dooley said. But for Lawrence, a highly sought-after high school standout from Virginia Beach, the play was nothing new. "Our high school quarterback was not a great passer, so my coach had me throwing about four or five passes a game," Lawrence said. "On the touchdown, I just lofted it in the air and Brooks ran under it." The secret to the play was the reaction of Northwestern's secondary. Dooley said, Thirdstringer Clyde Christensen was quarterbacking and pitched out to Lawrence, who rolled to his left. The right guard and tackle pulled to their left as if it were a sweep, Williams' defender moved in toward Lawrence and left Williams wide open in the end zone. "Famous Amos," as the Tar Heels call him, nearly completed one the week before against Richmond, but the play was broken when an official got in the receiver's way. "It was just something we saw that we could use, so we sent it in," Dooley said. "We'd been running sweeps a bit and they'd been coming up. It's just part of the whole offense. It's one thing you use when they start edging up closer. We just executed it well."

The New York Yankees have it all figured out. If they win their remaining six games, it doesn't matter what the second-place Boston Red Sox do. "We want to do it ourselves," second baseman Willie Randolph said after the Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-2 Monday night. "We don't

Turnovers Switched

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State, plagued all season by decisive fumbles and interceptions, finally got a chance last Saturday to see what it's like to play a team that can't hang onto the ball. State, on the other hand, gave up the football only when it decided it was time to do so as the Wolfpack whipped Wake Forest, 41-14.

"Wake Forest had a game like some we've had," said defensive back Ralph Stringer, who nailed six Deacons and intercepted a pass. "Then turned it over early and got in a hole. It's hard to dig yourself out of a situation like that. In the second half, we were able to guard against the things we knew they did best."

The Deacons had five turnovers, which helped to explain why the Wolfpack rang up 17 points in the first half on three drives that totalled only 128 yards and took just 24 plays. Aside from a 56-yard run that gave Wake one of its two scores, Deacon running whiz James McDougald was held to 3½ yards per carry. "Their defense is too good to beat when you give them the kind of field position we did in the first half," said Wake end Steve Young. "The fumbles and interceptions took our game away from us. It's hard to pass when they're looking for the pass."

Newsome Top Back

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Timmy Newsome, 6-foot-3, 220-pound running back from Ahsokie, N.C., who plays for undefeated Winston-Salem State University, has become the second NAIA District 26 football player to win national Division I offensive player of the week honors this season. Newsome scored three touchdowns and rushed for 202 yards in 22 carries last Saturday as he led the Rams to a 39-31 victory over Virginia Union University. Winston-Salem State, which plays Norfolk State this weekend, is 4-0 and off to its best football start in years. A major factor is Newsome, who has rushed for 412 yards and scored six touchdowns.

FOREGO'S SHOWER
ELMONT, N.Y. (AP) — The daily and lengthy shower with a garden hose given the great race horse, Forego, is a great help to him, according to trainer Frank Whiteley. "We keep a steady stream of water on his legs," the trainer said. "We work with him for a couple of hours every day. I'm sure the water helps his circulation. He loves it and all our stable help chips in to help in every way for the champion."

BEARS TOP HALL
CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The Chicago Bears have not won a National Football League championship since 1963 but they still rule the roost numerically at the Pro Football Hall of Fame here. This year's inductee, running back Gale Sayers, is the 16th ex-Bear to make the Hall. The others, in alphabetical order, are: George Connor, Paddy Driscoll, Dan Fortmann, Bill George, Ed Reagle, George Halas, Ed Healey, Bill Hewitt, Sid Luckman, Link Lyman, George McAfee, Bronko Nagurski, Joe Stydahar, George Trafton and Bulldog Turner.

want any help from anybody." The Yankees have a 3½-game edge over the Red Sox, who have seven games left to play after having Monday's contest against Toronto rained out. New York's "magic number" is four — any combination of Yankee victories and Boston losses totaling four — to capture its second straight American League East title. "I can't worry about the Red Sox," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin. "I don't care if they win a doubleheader tomorrow as long as we win."

In the other AL game played Monday, Oakland crushed Kansas City 7-1. In the National League, Chicago downed Philadelphia 10-7, Atlanta beat Houston 12-10, Montreal defeated St. Louis 9-5 and San Francisco clobbered Los Angeles 9-1. "Thank God for Sparky," said Yankee starter Mike Torrez, 17-13, after Lyle came on in the seventh to record his 26th save of the season and the 201st of his career.

New York scored two runs in the first inning when, with the bases loaded, Dave Kingman was hit by a pitch and Cliff Johnson was walked by loser Don Hood, 2-1. The Yankees got run-scoring singles from Thurman Munson in the fourth inning and Paul Blair in the seventh.

Cubs 10, Phillies 7
Home runs by Bobby Murcer, Greg Gross and Larry Biittner paced Chicago's 20-hit attack as the Cubs defeated Philadelphia, keeping the Phillies from clinching the NL East title. Philadelphia's "magic number" remains at one.

Braves 12, Astros 10
Seventh-inning home runs by Jeff Burroughs and Gary Matthews snapped a tie and boosted Atlanta over Houston. Matthews also had a two-run homer in the second inning and Brian Asselstein added a solo shot. Jose Cruz and Bob Watson homered for the Astros.

Expos 9, Cardinals 5
Montreal erupted for four runs in the ninth to defeat St. Louis. Gary Carter slammed a three-run homer in the seventh and added a two-run single in the ninth to spark the Expos. Gary Templeton had a two-run, inside-the-park homer for St. Louis.

Giants 9, Dodgers 1
Willie McCovey and Gary Thomasson slammed two-run homers and Ed Halicki, 15-12, backed his six-hit pitching with a solo shot as San Francisco crushed Los Angeles. The homer was McCovey's 27th of the season and 492nd of his career, one short of Lou Gehrig, who holds 12th place on the all-time list.

A's 7, Royals 2
Joe Coleman scattered five hits and Jeff Newman and Mike Jorgensen both homered as Oakland snapped Kansas City's eight-game winning streak and handed the AL West champion only its second loss in 26 games.

Guy's Kicks Lead Oakland

By GARY MIHOSES
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ray Guy gives the Oakland Raiders a leg up on the rest of pro football, says Coach Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "Ray Guy's punting and kickoffs were priceless," Noll said Monday in appraising the work of the Raiders' All-Pro specialist in Oakland's 16-7 weekend victory over Pittsburgh. "Ray is unquestionably the best in the league," Noll added. "I don't know of anybody that is a close second." The Raiders took a 9-0 lead on three second-quarter field goals by Errol Mann, and the 6-foot-3, 195-pound Guy followed each score with an unreturnable kickoff into the Steeler end zone. Guy also averaged 43.6 yards on eight high, long, spinning punts. That average was deflated by a 27-yard punt he sent out of bounds at the Pittsburgh 6-yard line. He also punted out of bounds at the Pittsburgh 8.

All told, his five kickoffs and eight punts were returned a total of 33 yards. "I was trying to give them 80 or 90 yards to go. That's what I like," said Guy, who in 1973 became the Raiders' No. 1 draft pick and the only punter ever selected in the opening round. "A kicker has to give the defense some room," added Guy, who led the NCAA in punting at Southern Mississippi in 1973 with a 46.2-yard average. Pittsburgh punter Bobby Walden, like Guy a native of Georgia, didn't fare so well in Sunday's game. In the pivotal second quarter, Walden was back-

Janssen Will Play No Lawman In Own Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Janssen plays a police sergeant tonight in the new-season start of NBC's "Police Story." But never again, he says, will he play a gendarme or gumshoe in a series of his own.

"I've just sort of had it with continuing series involving law enforcement," says he. "Obviously, I don't mind doing a show about it. But not a series, because I'd only wind up copying myself."

His adieu to windy cops-and-robbers work ends a tour that began with "Richard Diamond," then went through a four-year run from the law in "The Fugitive," a one-year stint as a G-man in "O'Hara, U.S. Treasury," and finally, "Harry O."

That series, in which he played a sardonic but decent private eye, was considered by many critics as one of the best of its kind. Alas, ABC axed it in the spring of 1976 after a two-year run.

"I enjoyed that show when we did it the way we all wanted to," the 47-year-old actor said in his familiar raspy drawl.

What he wanted, he added, was an emphasis on character studies, not car chases and gunsmoke.

ABC, however, wanted more action and "they wanted something I didn't want to do," he said. "I didn't want to jump over cars and play cops and robbers."

He laughed when told it seemed kind of ironic that he was fighting for what the network TV this season — less violence in entertainment shows.

"Well, it's been whispered in network circles that they're looking for another Harry O-cell type of show," he said. "Which is no particular pat on the back to us. We just liked doing the show when we could do it our way."

He spoke by phone from New Orleans, where he's playing a pro football executive in a TV movie involving murder and the Super Bowl.

The actor, recently acclaimed for his work in the NBC movie "A Sensitive, Passionate Man," said despite his success in series, he'd now prefer doing five or six TV movies a year instead of a series.

"The long form of TV is more appealing to me as an actor than an hour or half-hour show," he said.

He's also trying a new route, writing music lyrics, and to date has put words to 12 songs, including the title tune of "A Sensitive, Passionate Man."

What comes after his current TV project?

"I don't know," Janssen said. "I just bought a house in Malibu and I'd like to lay out on the beach awhile."

"I'm always responsive to a good script, but I don't really have any offered on a 'we-go-next-month' basis. So I'm reading some things we're talking about for early next year."

"And it wouldn't bother me at all to sort of pay out for a while."

JACK SWIGERT, the Apollo 13 astronaut who helped guide a crippled spacecraft back from an aborted trip to the moon, announced Monday that he will run for the U.S. Senate as a Republican from Colorado. (AP Laserphoto)

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 28, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime find you with poor judgment in making important decisions. After the sun goes down you are able to make long-range plans that will give you more abundance in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you have all the facts and figures before going ahead with a new project you have in mind. Follow the advice of an expert.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't postpone any work that has to be done even though it may be annoying. Obtain the data you need from the right sources.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some social affair you are planning could give you headaches early in the day, but later it all works out to your advantage.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) An outside matter has you worried but do it to the best of your ability and it turns out just fine. Be astute.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have many new ideas which require study to know which are best to put in operation. An out-of-towner can do you a big favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Come to a better understanding with debtors and creditors and put your affairs in better order. Strive for happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You could be at odds with others now and you must do something constructive to have harmony in the future. Show more patience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend to bothersome work early in the day and you'll have free time for more important matters later in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan your time well so that after your work is done you'll have time for recreations. Build up your vitality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Things may not seem to go right early in the day but later all spruces up and harmony reigns. Plan to have greater abundance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) An associate could prove too demanding and get you confused if you permit. Show increased affection for loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk to a financial expert and you solve a problem wisely. Make long-range plans to have greater abundance in the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . He or she will have innate abilities that may not manifest themselves unless you provide with a good education that will bring them to the fore. Give good religious training early in life and don't neglect sports to build up the body.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Probe Is In Final Stage

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation is in the final stages of its probe of possible bribery or other wrongdoing in the crumbling of a nearly-new highway.

The highway, the U.S. 74-76 bypass at Whiteville, began falling apart only months after it was completed. When officials investigated, they discovered tree stumps and other debris in the subgrade beneath the pavement.

Theo Brothers Construction Co. of Woodruff, S.C., did that work for $5.5 million, but a state Transportation Department employee supervised the work and accepted it officially before the contract was paid off.

State Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw asked for the SBI probe at the instigation of Arthur Williamson, a member of the state Board of Transportation.

About $100,000 has been set aside to repair the damage, but Williamson said the actual cost will run closer to $3 million, since it appears large portions of the highway will have to be torn up and the subgrade cleared of debris.

Two SBI agents have been working full time since early last month and officials have said the probe was covering possible criminal activity, including bribery. Officials said the investigation was nearing completion.

"I would think it wouldn't be long," said Bruce White, deputy attorney general in charge of the probe.

A weak cold front drifted slowly across North Carolina early today, trailed by a low pressure wave forecast to bring scattered showers and thunder-showers to western portions of the state by evening.

The cool front pushed scattered showers ahead of it into the state late Monday, with most of the rain activity confined to the mountains and coastal areas. Only isolated showers developed across the middle of the state on Monday.

Nearly one-third of an inch was reported in some mountain regions.

Cloudiness limited temperatures generally to the low 80s in the mountains while abundant sunshine hike temperatures to the high 80s in the eastern portions of the state. The sky cleared from west to east overnight and remained mostly clear except for patchy fog conditions in some areas.

Early morning temperatures cooled into the 50s over the mountains and portions of the Piedmont, with mid-60s elsewhere.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young women attracted to the role of average housewife have dropped from 42 per cent to 25 per cent during the past six years. But 49 per cent told survey takers they expect to end up as housewives anyway. These figures are based on a series of surveys of 14-25-year-olds, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

As declarer, it is a wise policy to count your tricks before following to the first trick. It could guide you to the correct line of play.

When we saw this hand played, we were impressed with South's bidding judgment. After North had shown a hand capable of playing in game opposite a maximum no trump opening bid, South, despite possession of a "mere" 16 points, felt that his five-card suit and good intermediates merited acceptance. Unfortunately, his play fell short of his bidding skill.

West led his top diamond and declarer correctly won in dummy to preserve his tenace. With such a good, long club suit waiting to be established, he immediately led the queen of clubs. East won the ace and returned a diamond to the ten and jack, and West knocked out declarer's last stopper in the suit.

Declarer could count only eight tricks, so he tried for his ninth trick in spades by
