

Compromise Brings End To Senate's Filibuster

By MIKE SHANAHAN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, its tumultuous filibuster on natural gas prices at an end, is nearing a vote on a compromise deregulation plan that the Carter administration is accepting reluctantly.

controls, White House energy advisers say they will not oppose deregulation beginning in 1987, at least in the Senate. A vote was possible today on the newest compromise proposal, sponsored by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee. Jackson suggested a $2.03 ceiling rising to $3.36 by the end of 1986, with price controls lapsing on Jan. 1, 1987. The finale to a 13-day legislative deadlock came Monday after Senate leaders enlisted the help of Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who used sharp parliamentary tactics against filibuster leaders. The two leaders, Democratic Sens. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and James Abourezk of South Dakota, called off their filibuster as Jackson was announcing his new compromise proposal to the Senate.

"We have had the rug pulled out from under us by the President of the United States," Abourezk said. "We have been led to believe the administration would support us all along."

Throughout the frequently acrimonious impasse, the White House remained publicly silent about the successful maneuvers of Abourezk and Metzenbaum in preventing conclusive votes on deregulation.

While the two senators carried a militant anti-gas industry banner, White House supporters sought a middle ground which would retain controls, but at a price high enough to attract the few votes needed to win.

Two test votes had demonstrated that a deregulation plan sponsored by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and James Pearson, R-Kan., would have passed if allowed to come to a vote.

But on Monday, the unspoken alliance between the filibuster leaders and the White House came to a halt.

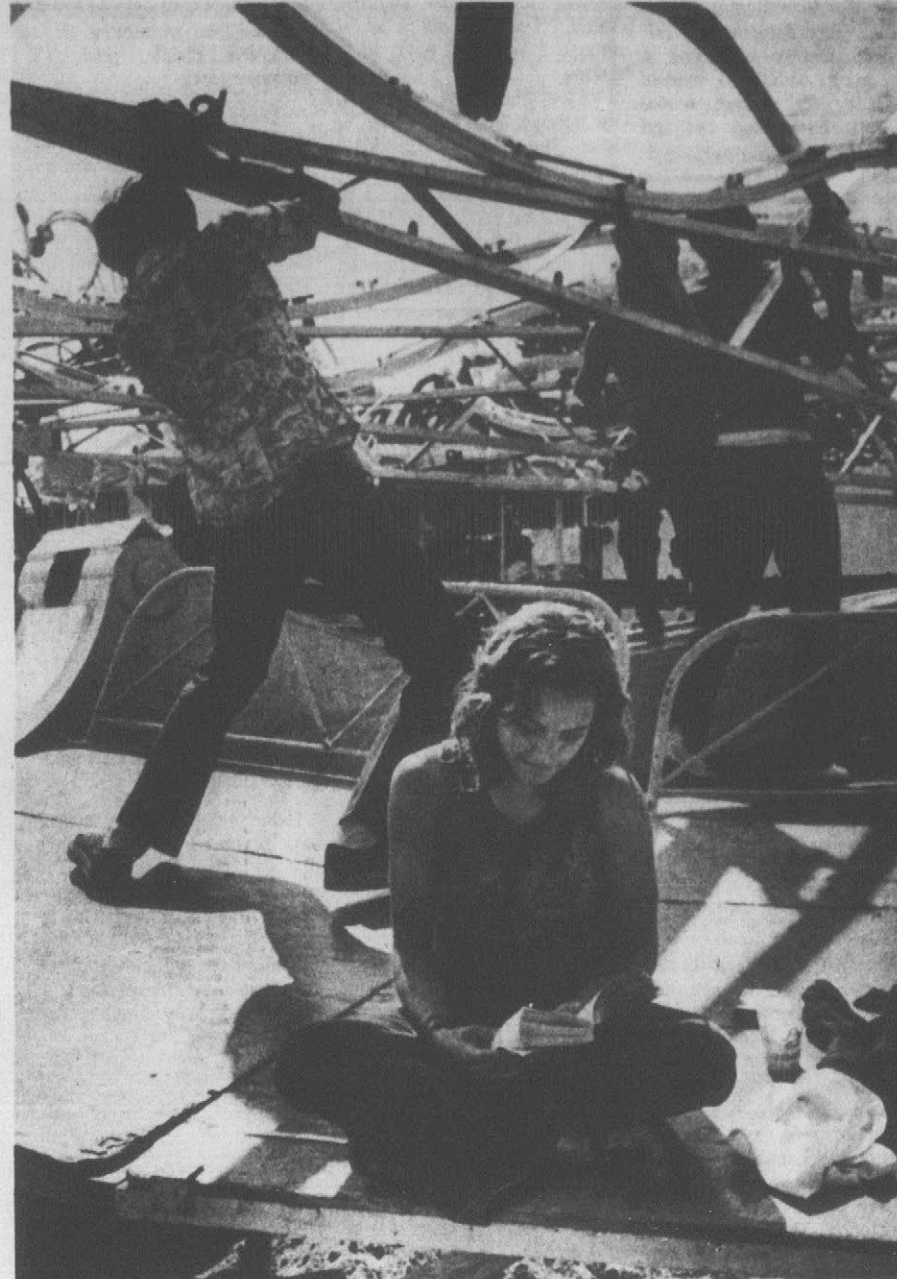

Abourezk and Metzenbaum had about 300 minor amendments remaining in the stack which they had been using to block a decisive vote.

While Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd had been voting against deregulation, he declared his determination to get the Senate to a vote, even if the result was a decision lifting controls.

The House has approved continued regulation with a $1.75 price ceiling per thousand cubic feet of new natural gas and Byrd expects a House-Senate conference committee to knock out deregulation even if voted by the Senate.

To speed the elimination of amendments, Byrd arranged Monday for Mondale to play his role as Senate presiding officer.

At Byrd's request, the vice president ruled 32 consecutive amendments out of order while senator after senator shouted for recognition only to be ignored.

County Board Cuts Fees For Landfill Use

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County Commissioners yesterday approved a reduction in fees for use of the sanitary landfill and approved a recommendation from the board's Buildings and Grounds Committee to allow senior citizens to meet in the nursing home building at the old Pitt Memorial Hospital.

municipalities to determine their areas of service. He told the board that when the meetings are concluded, commissioners will be able to develop plans for a county-sponsored water system to serve areas that will not be served by municipalities or non-profit corporations already operating.

The board plans to use State clean water bond funds and FHA loans and grants to fund the county system.

Following yesterday's board meeting, Gaskins told newsmen that plans are progressing toward "organizing solid waste collectors" in the county. He noted the move is being made in conjunction with plans to improve solid waste collection and disposal in Pitt.

He noted that so far, 13 private collectors have "expressed interest in participating in the program," which, according to Gaskins, is designed to "organize haulers on a district basis so there will be no overlapping" of service, and provide door-to-door pickup service on a fee basis for all residents of the county.

Under the plan, the private enterprise haulers would be assigned specific areas of the county, which would contain about an equal number of people to be served and about an equal amount of distance to travel. For door-to-door pickup service, residents would pay a

McNeil Smith Feels He Can Unseat Helms

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

State Sen. McNeil Smith says that in campaigning for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Jesse Helms, he is placing both his own record and that of Helms before the public and he is confident the voters will take a "dim view" of the incumbent's performance chart.

The Guilford County Democrat, in Greenville for a campaign stop, said Monday that he feels he is "not only the best candidate but the only one who can beat Helms."

Smith, who was appointed to the North Carolina Senate in 1971 by the governor to fill the seat vacated by Hargrove Bowles, was reelected to the Senate in 1972, 1974 and 1976. Prior to his Senate appointment, he was elected to the House of Representatives in 1970.

That success in reelection efforts and in leading the tickets in election balloting, as well as his record of "progressive legislation" and success in "getting a large number of bills passed addressing vital issues," makes Smith the leading candidate, he asserted.

Smith pointed to his sponsorship of various bills involving energy, conservation, utilities rate reform and education and noted that during his tenure in office, more of his bills have become law than of any other legislator.

Among those adopted by the legislature were bills calling for peak load pricing of electricity and legislation requiring proper insulation for all new buildings constructed in the state.

Legislation in the area of education that received sponsorship from Smith included the statewide kindergarten program, a bill seeking funding for a reading program that received $2 million to organize a pilot reading effort, a bill regulating class size on elementary and high school levels, and a bill calling for pre-school screening for all children, he reported.

The candidate also noted that he authored the amendment in 1971 that resolved the "bitter divisive struggle" involving the reorganization of the state's public university system.

Smith said in his interview that he is proud of legislation that he sponsored dealing with strengthening the state's drunk driving laws, one of which makes the operation of a motor vehicle while having a blood alcohol content of .10 a definite traffic offense.

The law that results in the automatic loss of license for a driver who refuses to take the breathalyzer test also carried Smith's sponsorship, he pointed out.

Several attempts were made during the past session of the General Assembly to loosen up the drunk driving laws, the candidate added, but they were defeated.

Helms, who is seeking to retain his Republican seat in the Senate, has established himself "in the unique role of being the most backward, negative person purporting to represent North Carolina in the Senate," Smith contended.

He said that the incumbent has voted wrong on a litany of things, including matters that hurt North Carolina. Helms, according to Smith, voted against federal aid to public schools and higher education, the school lunch program, the vocational rehabilitation program, child care centers for working mothers, and also against legislation insuring the right of handicapped children to a public education.

Smith pointed out that Helms also voted against solar energy research and he cited a 1952 study made by the Truman administration that concluded that in 25 years from that date the sun could provide up to 20 per cent of the nation's energy needs.

That 25-year period is up

Preliminary Hearing Slated

A preliminary hearing has been set for District Court here tomorrow for Aage A. Justesen, a Winterville machinist charged in connection with the machinegun death of Greenville grocery store operator Henry Joseph Bunton here last month.

Justesen has been found competent to stand trial by psychiatrists at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh where the defendant has been since an examination was ordered by the court September 15, two days after Bunton was shot.

Dr. James Groce, a forensic psychiatrist at Dix Hospital, said the hospital medical staff has found Justesen "competent to proceed."

Local Banker Is Hospitalized

Curtis Hendrix, executive vice-president of First State Bank, was admitted to the intensive care unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital after being taken ill at his home about 12:25 a.m. today.

Bank officials said this morning that Hendrix is "apparently in critical condition" possibly suffering from a cerebrovascular accident.

Hendrix was employed by the old State Bank and Trust Company and was a North Carolina National Bank vice-president after NCNB took over the State Bank. He has been executive vice-president of First State Bank since 1972.

Pitt County Fair Now In Full Swing

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

An estimated 3,500 persons attended opening night at the Pitt County Fair last night, according to fair manager Sam Winchester.

Winchester said paid attendance last night was 1,100. But he noted that last night was ladies night and "they really did flock in."

He noted that attendance last night was off about 500 to 800 from opening night last year, probably due to the sudden cool weather.

Amusements of America shows are on the fair midway this year with about 30 rides and shows. Amusements of America replaces the Buck-Page Exposition Shows which have played the Pitt fair for many years.

Roland Page, a Wilson native and former owner of the Buck-Page shows is here in a management level position with the Amusements of America.

He explained that the O.C. Buck Exposition played the Pitt fair for "16 or 17 years before I became part owner in 1967."

Phil Vivona, one of five brothers who own Amusements of America said that firm, established in 1941, owns over 100 rides "It's one of the top three in the country and the largest carnival east of the Mississippi," he noted, playing engagements from Ottawa, Canada, to Key West, Fla.

He explained that the Amusements organization allows for scheduling three fair dates at one time. During the off-season, they are capable of playing five self-sustaining carnivals at once.

Headquartered in Englishtown, N.J., Amusements of America has winter quarters in Miami where some 100 employees repair the equipment for the coming season.

Vivona explained that two of the fair units are about the size of the one on the midway at the Pitt fair this week, while the third is a "state fair unit" playing in Florence, S.C. this week.

The third unit, he noted, is in Henderson.

Vivona said the large operation gives Amusements of America the versatility to "bring in as much equipment as the location requires."

Amusements of America, according to Vivona, plays more engagements in North Carolina than "any other carnival today" appearing on 11 midways in the state.

Both Page and Vivona said the new fairground site, scheduled to be used for the Pitt fair next year should "work out real well." The location, near the intersection of the Eastern Bypass and U.S. 264-N.C. 33, should provide better access and room to expand. "We're not worried about it," Page noted.

Vivona noted that carnivals have moved away from the "dream world" atmosphere of years' past which featured "freaks" in side shows and $15,000 to $20,000 rides. Carnivals now feature rides costing from $60,000 to $70,000, to $300,000, and "high class entertainment such as fun

Hold Terrorists

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The Algerian government held five Japanese Red Army hijackers, their $6 million ransom and six comrades today while their last freed hostages waited to complete their journey interrupted by the hijacking of a Japanese airliner six days ago.

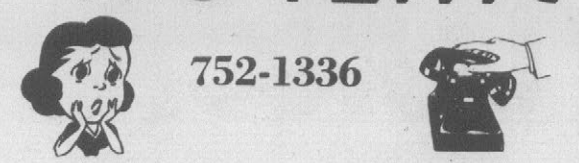

The terrorists freed the 12 passengers and seven crew members and walked out of the hijacked Japan Air Lines DC8 jet with their hands up about two hours after it landed here Monday, ending a 5,000-mile journey without loss of life.

Officials said the hostages, who stepped off the aircraft ahead of the terrorists, were relaxed and smiled as they boarded an airport bus to hotels in Algiers. A Japanese spokesman said they were "in very good condition."

The only American among them, State Department employe Thomas Phelan, 29, of San Francisco, was "well but tired, with digestive problems resulting from irregular meals," U.S. diplomatic sources said.

Algerian officials refused to say what would become of the 11 Japanese terrorists, who were driven away in official vehicles, or the $6 million. In the past the Algerian government has held hijackers for a few days, then sent them to another country without making any announcement. It has confiscated ransom money and returned them to the governments that paid them.

GO ALONE? I know my husband and I have serious marriage problems, but he refuses to go with me to see a counselor. Will it do any good for me to go alone? S.J.

Sandy Walton is one of a number of marriage and family counselors in Greenville. She is a psychiatric nurse associated with Dr. Ray Evans and Dr. Barry Moore. We posed your question to her.

She said that it is usually better if every person involved in a difficult relationship gets counseling to try to make it better. However, she said, if one person is uncomfortable and feels the need for counseling, even without the other's support and accompaniment, it probably will help. And in many cases behavior of even the person not being counseled can be improved by the partner's changing his or her responses. There are no certainties in human interaction, she said, but she said she'd encourage you to seek counseling if you feel the need for it. She'd be glad to hear from you or you may see someone at the Pitt County Mental Health Center or be referred by the center to a private counselor or counseling team. Good luck.

Authority Accepts Bond Underwriting Proposal

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The Housing Authority voted last night to accept a proposal by Interstate Securities Corp. of Charlotte for bond underwriting services involving the proposed Section Eight housing units for the elderly here.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported that the Bond Department of Interstate Securities offered a proposal to underwrite the bond financing services for the project for 2.5 per cent of the total bond issuance.

In addition, according to Laney, the firm proposed that since the slight possibility still exists that conventional mortgage financing might be available for the new housing program, it would hold the door open for that financing route at the same 2.5 percentage.

Laney noted that if conventional financing could be secured, it would save the Authority money since the various costs involved in bond underwriting would be eliminated.

Interstate put together the bond underwriting package for a project in Rock Hill, S.C. and is also working on a bond program in Statesville, the director reported.

Proposals were also received from the firm of J. Lee Peeler Inc. of Durham for 2.5 per cent of the total issuance and from United Municipal Investment Corp. of Memphis for 3.5 per cent.

Working drawings on the Section Eight program, involving 50 units of housing for elderly citizens, are nearing completion, Laney added. He said that since the Authority is working with a fair market rent schedule that is some one and a half years old, it is felt that a change is needed in the market rent.

Laney suggested that the Authority select an underwriting firm before going to the Department of Housing and Urban Development with a request for an increase in the rent schedule.

Site work is progressing on the Southside housing project location off Evans Street, it was reported, and should be completed within 30 days.

Sub-contractors are moving along in preparing the site for the proposed 14 units of new housing. Laney (Continued on page 8)

Cluster House Offers Alternative

By ELLEN L. SLOTT
NORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Faye Butler, a former drug addict and convicted armed robber, has accomplished more while in prison than she ever did as a free woman.

While incarcerated, the 33-year-old mother overcame a drug habit, completed courses necessary for a high school diploma and clothing, fed and raised her three young children.

Her seven-month term was spent in a semi-detached house in the center of this Philadelphia suburb. The home, called Cluster House II, provides a residential facility for adult women offenders and their children. A second nearby dwelling, Cluster House I, operates similarly for single female offenders.

"I feel pretty good since I been at this place," Miss Butler said while slicing potatoes and carrots for a cool summer salad. "I worked out a lot of things I wouldn't have in a prison."

"I took high school equivalency courses and I'm going to take the G.E.D. (graduate equivalency diploma exam)," she added emphatically. "I've been getting pretty good marks so I think I'm ready."

At first, Miss Butler protested when the judge remanded her to the Cluster House.

"I knew about halfway houses," she said. "When they told me I was coming to Cluster House in Norristown, I didn't want to come. I hadn't even heard of Norristown."

"You know what I expected?" she asked, then interrupted her thoughts to yell at her 9-year-old son swimming in a backyard plastic pool. "I expected locks."

"There are no locks," stressed Robert E. Greene, Executive Director of Cluster House. "In four years only three or four out of 60 escaped. They did not take off because they committed new offenses. They took off because they weren't ready for this type of situation."

Greene, 29, said he and his staff make no pretense of offering secure facilities because they "don't have to and we've never had to."

"A jail on the street would serve no purpose," he said. "Prison is disillusional. The basic question is what does society want. Do you want to punish — which I understand — or do you want 60 women coming back with more responsibility than when they left."

"If I have 60 women here in four years who have not gotten rearrested," he said, "then I've protected society more than any prison."

A woman may be committed to Cluster House as an alternative to serving a prison term. She may also be sent there for the last three to six months of her sentence as a way of easing her reentry into society.

Cluster House I, which was begun in 1973 by the Main Line Cluster for Justice, can accommodate up to eight women and Cluster House II, founded in August, 1976, has room for six women and 12 children. Both homes are staffed by a live-in resident manager and a director.

A Cluster House resident is required to either find employment or enroll in a job training program, tend to her children, clean the room she shares with them, do assigned household chores and undergo mandatory in-house therapy each week.

"As they accept more and more responsibility they move up on the ladder and are allowed more privileges to the point where they might be able to go home for the weekend," Greene said.

"The reality is that they come and go as they please during the day so if they want to get into trouble they don't have to look too far."

Cluster House is funded through the Governor's Justice Commission by a grant from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and $60 a month per diem payments from each resident and $20 a month for each child.

Because of the low rents, Miss Butler finds it difficult to leave. Her prison term was over in June but she sought and won a court extension until Aug. 15.

"I don't know of any place where me and the kids can stay cheaper," she said. "I asked for the extension because I want to get into school or hooked up cause with free time you'll probably see me back on the street."

"I have three kids and I don't anticipate getting on welfare," she added. "I'll probably move back to York (Pa.) but what I want is to get hooked up before I can go."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Isn't it funny. I can remember the exact day I first heard the word "portable." It was Aug. 16, 1956, at 3:35 p.m. when my husband presented me with a "portable" sewing machine.

(It's probably a coincidence but that's the exact day he got his first slipped disk by lifting the "portable" sewing machine to the table.) I didn't think much about it again until we bought a "portable" air conditioner for the den. That was — let's see — Thursday evening, the 20th of March, 1961.

(I remember saying how great it was that the warranty covered the damages to the unit when my husband dropped it on my foot.)

Frankly, I don't know what we did before American ingenuity discovered that if you put a handle on something or a set of wheels it became "portable."

It has opened up a whole new world for those of us "on the move."

We thought a swimming pool was out of range until we found a "portable" pool we could put up ourselves. That was . . . I got it, Memorial Day, 1971, to November of that same year.

(I remember saying to my husband he couldn't have swum in it anyway until they took the stitches out of his hands that he cut on the fence.)

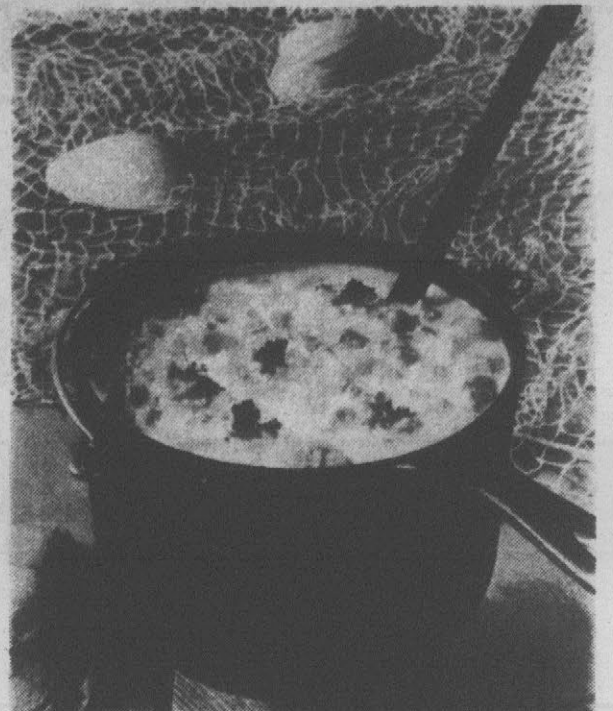

And who could forget our portable boat that made a dent in the roof of the car, the portable microwave oven that we took apart to transport, the portable stereo that took five boys to carry, and the portable picnic table that we carried in the portable trailer.

Neither of us will ever forget the excitement of owning my first portable typewriter. At first, I worried because it hurt my arm to lift it off the floor. Within a matter of days, however, my arm stretched out about five inches and the typewriter slid comfortably across the floor while my hand steadied it.

A lot of people bad-mouth "portables." However, when our neighbors had their house ripped off and the portable TV was missing, they found the thief and the set within a couple of hours.

The guy was checking into a local hospital for emergency hernia repair just as the police were checking the cars in the emergency lot.

Isn't that a coincidence?

Chef Would Replace Pots, Pans

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

David Held wants us to throw away all our pots and pans except the soup pot and start cooking with woks.

This great-great-grandnephew of Gay Nineties' songbird Anna Held aspires to be a cooking teacher and author and pioneer of American wok cookery. He's also considering opening a catering service in Rhinebeck, N.Y., where he lives.

Held is a recent graduate of the Culinary Institute of America in nearby Hyde Park. In an interview, he said he became enamored of the dome-shaped pans when he took over a Woodstock, N.Y. restaurant in 1969 and ran it for two years almost single-handedly.

He claims he'd never seen or heard of a wok until he went to buy pots and pans for his Creative Cookery restaurant in Woodstock. The wok's all-purpose shape, ease of use and manipulation made so much sense to him that he bought three. With just those and a grill, he prepared and served 120 meals nightly for two years.

"Nobody told me the wok was the exclusive province of the Chinese and other Orientals," he said.

"But I was so ignorant of the restaurant business that I didn't know how many people I needed in help," he said. He got along with one. He grilled salmon, capon and lamb steaks, wok specialties, chicken with scallions and sesame seeds.

"I used oriental and health foods, ethnic spices."

But the food was strictly American, he insists.

After leaving Woodstock, he worked at a New York City restaurant and as a journeyman chef preparing continental and American food in several New England eateries before enrolling for formal training at the institute. He graduated Aug. 19.

"I'm a good faker," he said, with a smile. "Once I get behind the range, I can produce the food."

While still a student, he made a teaching film about wok cookery for American food.

"It was a big step for the school to allow me to do this," he said. "It's so untraditional."

The film in turn led him to plan and help prepare an American-style wok dinner recently for 75 members and guests of the Fellows of the institute.

The first course of international pickles and olives included tiny, peppery Japanese salted plums, Japanese pickled radishes, Greek calamata olives, Kasher green tomato pickles and Chinese spicy hot cabbage.

Another appetizer, marinated melon cocktail, came with sesame oil dressing and fresh violet leaves as garnish.

The other courses were a green and velvety chilled potato and watercress soup, turbot with tarragon shrimp sauce, green noodles and carrots, sauteed turkey scallops with morel mushrooms, spinach, steamed broccoli and rice fritters (the only disappointment; they were rubbery).

Held said the turkey course was prepared by three chefs using three woks just 12 minutes before it was served.

At home in Rhinebeck, he does the cooking and his wife, Susan, does the cleaning up. But that may change soon, at least temporarily. Their second child was due.

Pantryshelf Yields Good Clam Chowder

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A few weeks ago I asked five friends to come for a "guinea pig" supper. I wanted their opinion of a clam chowder I had concocted. Should I let the recipe I had developed stand or work on it further? The consensus was gratifying: "It's delicious. Let well enough alone!"

Although I was trying to duplicate a chowder made with fresh clams that I had tasted years before on Cape Cod, my version is for pantryshelf cooks and inlanders because it calls for canned minced clams and bottled clam juice. However, it incorporates the trick I learned from the cook at the Provincetown restaurant (now no longer in existence) where I used to enjoy the chowder: diced onion is browned in bacon fat and added to the soup, along with crisply cooked and crumbled bacon, shortly before serving. This way the special flavor of the onion remains because its golden-brown isn't washed off and its color mingles becomingly with the bacon.

This is a rich chowder. If second helpings are allowed for, the rest of the menu can be light.

COPYCAT CLAM CHOWDER
6 slices bacon
1 cup diced (1/4-inch) sweet onion
Two 8-ounce cans minced clams
8-ounce bottle clam juice
1 pound (3 medium) potatoes, pared and diced (1/4-inch) to make 3 cups
4 tablespoons flour
3 cups light cream
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1 cup milk

In a large, wide saucepot gently fry the bacon until crisp; remove bacon, drain on brown paper and crumble. To the bacon drippings add the onion, fry gently, stirring often, until a rich, dark golden-brown. With a slotted spoon remove the onion.

Drain the liquid from the clams (reserve the clams) and add to the drippings in the saucepot along with the bottled clam juice and the potato. Boil gently, covered, until the potato is tender.

Gradually stir about a cup of the cream into the flour, keeping smooth; add to the potato mixture with the remaining cream, the drained clams and the salt and pepper. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in the milk, bacon and onion; reheat.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

VEGETABLE SKILLET
Olives add piquant flavor.
1 pound new potatoes, cut in wedges
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, sliced
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts, thawed
2-3rds cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1/8 teaspoon pepper

In a large skillet over medium heat, fry the potatoes in the hot oil until lightly browned. Add onion and garlic and cook about 5 minutes. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Cover and cook until potatoes and artichokes are tender. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Girl In Trouble Needs Friendship

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My best girlfriend is in trouble and just about everyone in the neighborhood knows about it. She has been a good friend to me for a long time, and I really like her. Some of my other friends tell me that if I hang around with her, I will get a bad reputation because she's "bad," and birds of a feather flock together. She's never been in any kind of trouble before.

What should I do?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Birds of a feather may or may not always flock together, but I am reminded of another saying: "One swallow doesn't make a summer." And one mistake doesn't make a girl "bad." If she's your friend, stick by her. She needs your friendship now more than ever.

DEAR ABBY: How can I help the man I love overcome his reluctance to marry? We are both in our late 30s and have been married before.

My marriage ended in divorce after 15 years. It was a bad scene from the start. He says his marriage was a 12-year honeymoon. Then his wife died after a lingering illness. He says he will never marry again because he couldn't bear the experience of losing another wife. His mother, with whom he lives, is raising his two children, so he doesn't need a wife to make a home for his children.

He claims that he loves me, but that he can't consider marriage. We are so right for each other and I want to marry again. How can I get him to change his mind?

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: I don't think you can. For a man to deny himself happiness today because he may lose it tomorrow doesn't make much sense. Don't count on him if you have marriage in mind. He hasn't.

DEAR ABBY: Sorry, but you blew it when you said that even though there was no law against females going topless in Texas, they could be arrested for indecent exposure and/or disorderly conduct.

Not so. According to the Texas Penal Code, effective January 1, 1974, a female who goes bare-breasted in public is not guilty of indecent exposure or disorderly conduct. (I am enclosing a copy of the Penal Code.)

PARK RANGERS, AUSTIN, TEX.

DEAR PARK: Thank you. I hereby revise my answer to read: Females who go topless in Texas cannot be arrested for indecent exposure and/or disorderly conduct unless they are also BOTTOMLESS!

Italians Made First Ice Cream

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ice cream, supposedly as American as Apple pie, actually originated in Italy in 1550. It didn't become an American treat until the early 1700s, and for the next 200 years, ice cream lovers relied on a spoon and bowl to enjoy the frozen confection.

The ice cream cone, however, which made the dessert mobile, was introduced here in 1904 at the World's Fair, making it easier for Fair visitors to eat while strolling through the grounds.

Public Hearing For Farmville Developers Make City Flood Problems

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Board of Commissioners will hold a public hearing tonight on a zoning ordinance amendment that would permit "schools of fine arts" in residential areas.

New business includes consideration of the following: a Library Board appointment, award of a bid for a pickup truck, approval of signature stamps, the Fountain Rescue Squad communications request, Crime Prevention officer residency, budget amendments — Fiscal 77 payables and Revenue Sharing and Powell Bill.

Unfinished business includes consideration of the following: The MICA consulting proposal, advisory board dinners, the revised final subdivision plat of Marlboro Forest, a resolution finding that 212 Railroad Street is properly repaired, a privilege license ordinance amendment, planning board attendance, and curb, sidewalk and drainage financing policy.

Reports will be given on the following: library funds transfer, demolition bids, possible rescheduling of Nov. 1 meeting, League of Municipalities convention, downtown project bids, budget amendment from contingency for recreation movies, Christmas holidays, Literary Club request and Southwest Farmville drainage problems.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. It is held in the Municipal Courtroom here.

—Last fall the south Mecklenburg town of Pineville had $300,000 in flood damage from water that ran from Charlotte streets into Big and Little Sugar creeks. The water hits a bottleneck at Pineville, where two earthen levees have now been built to contain it.

—Lancaster, S.C., development has spawned flooding in Gill's Creek, where the Soil Conservation Service is paying for a dam. But the dam will not affect flooding from new development below the dam.

"Communities are going to have to start taking a look at the channels below the developments to see if they have the capacity to carry off the extra water," says SCS conversationist Russell Patrick. "If they can't, the communities are going to have to say, 'no more building.'"

But, he added, "it's a hard thing to get people to stop building on commercial land that's worth $4,000 to $5,000 an acre."

One answer is to require builders to compute the amount of additional runoff their construction will create and provide adequate channels for it.

One such law was proposed in North Carolina in 1975 but died in committee. No proposals are pending in South Carolina either.

Other possible solutions, officials say, include holding ponds, porous paving that would let water through to the ground and local statutes requiring builders to handle runoff problems.

Says N.C. Oyster Industry Declining

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — "The oyster industry is doing nothing but declining," said Edward G. McCoy, director of the state Division of Marine Fisheries.

McCoy said he was especially concerned with North Carolina's share of the market, which he said would be larger if the state took more of an interest in the state's oystermen and their problems.

"We've been operating on $130,000," McCoy said. "In the last legislature we got an additional $50,000 for shellfish work, but that's not very much. That's about 10 per cent of what Virginia spends in shellfish rehabilitation."

Last year North Carolina harvested 333,315 pounds of oysters worth $292,058. This year's crop, McCoy said, is likely to be smaller.

Virginia took in $5.8 million last year, by contrast, and Maryland harvested $16 million worth of oysters, although marine biologists predict their crops will not be as large this year.

One reason their crops are larger, McCoy said, is that they spend more on shellfish — $600,000 in Virginia each year and $1.5 million in Maryland.

"We pay a 35-cent a bushel tax in Maryland and that 35 cents is taken to reseed the beds," said Raymond Carter, who owns an oyster canning house in Shallotte, N.C. "North Carolina charges only eight cents and they stock very little

Rate Hike Smaller Than Asked

Virginia Electric and Power Co. announced last week that an agreement had been reached with North Carolina and Virginia electric cooperatives on a $6.72 million rate increase.

The increase is far less than the $11.8 million requested by VEPCO in June. There is also a provision in the agreement that no further increases will be requested before next June.

There are 13 co-ops in Virginia and six in North Carolina which will be affected by the agreement.

Included is Edgemont-Martin.

The co-ops, of course, will have to pass the increase on to their customers which means higher cost of living for everyone. That is, however, a part of the stark reality of living in our inflation-plagued age.

The rate increase is not very palatable, but at least it represents a compromise between VEPCO and the co-ops. It also gives the co-ops until next June before they could face another increase.

New Harrassment On The HEW Front

It seems North Carolina is facing more harrassment from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with the threat of a $2.7 million Medicaid fund cutoff.

The state has asked for and got a federal court injunction against the cutoff. State officials say it came about because of a failure to inspect four of 239 nursing homes for Medicaid compliance standards.

HEW's attitude toward North Carolina is not good. It seems bent on depriving the individuals who receive those Medicaid funds in order to pick at state officials.

THIS AFTERNOON

Await A 'True' University

By BILL NOBLITT (First of Two Articles)
CHAPEL HILL — One of the most important elements in the recently completed Teacher Education Review Program has little to do with teacher training itself.

The more important point emerging from that process—and from talks with key university officials—is the beginning in North Carolina of a confrontation with the question of whether this state has a true university system.

"The University of North Carolina is composed of the sixteen public senior institutions in North Carolina." That slogan is printed on various publications put out by the university system.

But is the University of North Carolina a fused entity of mutually concerned and supportive elements dedicated to providing education, as the name implies?

Those familiar with the history of inter-departmental and inter-campus feuds of the past would have to answer "perhaps not."

There has been a tradition of the 16 members of the corporation displaying jealousies, political machinations, and competitiveness.

One System

One of the central purposes in the creation of a Board of Governors was to resolve those differences and aim North Carolina at a "true" university, and key insiders now see that process taking place.

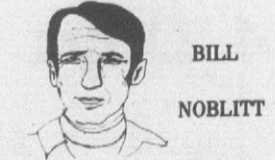

For the first time ever in this state—and possibly in the nation—the university has taken a long, hard look at itself, found shortcomings and problems, and is outlining some difficult steps to be taken (including the termination of programs) all without wrangling or political posturing.

It is no doubt significant that the evaluation of teacher education pointed to a growing oversupply of teachers in the state, quality gaps in some areas of teacher preparation, a lack of coordination between teachers being trained and the kinds needed in the public schools, and a growing public loss of confidence in the schools.

The review, among many other recommendations for change, suggests ending 46 training programs, and lists 109 others which need review and are "candidates" for termination.

Beyond such specifics, however, other points speak to the whole nature of the university system. Recommendations call for coordinating councils from the various campuses, coordination between the university system and the public schools, each institution to review its program all the time and objectively, shifts in the distribution of particular programs at campuses with attention to a regional focus across the state, and ongoing evaluation of university programs — by university people.

BILL NOBLITT

A Family

George Watts Hill of Durham, a knowledgeable veteran of university development and member of the Board of Governors, puts it this way:

"The closer we come together as a university, the more we realize that our relationships are like those in a closely-knit family. We find that our concerns must reach out to one another; we must not perform selfishly, but rather be concerned with one another—various needs and desires.

"And that is how this university system will become." Hill believes, "sharing and concerned jointly over the central goal."

The future impact of the Teacher Education Review Program (and others in legal, health and health related, and another coming up on professional workloads and tenure... and others in the future) will be toward developing a truly universal system of higher education in North Carolina; ending competition and program infighting among the institutions and looking instead to true service for the students and citizens of the state, Hill thinks.

University President William C. Friday, shares that conviction, and finds the most significant point in the process being the "demonstration that we can objectively evaluate ourselves, and do the even more difficult task of changing ourselves."

Traveling Man's Notes

LOS ANGELES — If the innkeepers of this country are listening, may the traveling man speak up? All that a traveling man really wants on the road is a little tender loving care, and it seems to be hard to come by.

The operative word is "care." Those of us who spend much of our lives at the mercy of desk clerks want someone to care if we are comfortable. We want someone, somewhere in the hostelry, to care a whole lot. Here and there one encounters the old TLC, but the here-and-theres get fewer all the time.

A wandering journalist spent a couple of nights recently at the Airport Holiday Inn in Lincoln, Neb. Most Holiday Inns earn a rating of fair to good, but this one was having its problems. The courtesy car had broken down three days before and no backup car had been provided. The carpets, bedspreads and draperies had been chosen to achieve the most nauseous possible clash of colors. The restaurant vended a piece of meat, uncertainly labeled a filet mignon, that had not passed within two feet of the tenderloin. It was not a happy stay.

The journalist wandered on to Las Vegas, where a vastly more dismal experience awaited him. This was at the Las Vegas Hilton, and if a conservative moral may be drawn from the tale, it is this: Beware of bigness. This particular Hilton has about 2,000 rooms now and is about to add 600 more. Don't say you weren't warned.

An indifferent, unsmiling desk clerk assigned the visitor to a room that was said to be vacant and made up. Alas, it was not so. By sheer luck, the newcomer did not intrude upon guests in bed or in the bathroom, but their clothes were scattered about and he retreated in confusion. The second assignment was to a room manifestly too small. The third assignment, appeared to be satisfactory, and the journalist settled down to watch a football game on TV. The TV was not working that day.

It was at this point that the matter of caring — simple caring — began to assume importance. For it was evident that no one in this magnificent edifice cared a whit whether the guest had a working TV set, or not. A repair man might or might not drop by during the afternoon. No spare set would be shifted. Ho-hum. An exiled grand duke, having been graduated cum laude from the Hilton Haughtiness School and made an assistant manager, was a model of coolth. He offered still a fourth room, to which the journalist transported his baggage. It was now 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The fourth room was still a shambles, no one having troubled to clean it up.

The buffeted journalist, worn down by the strain upon his adrenals, accepted yet a fifth room assignment. Here the TV set worked! And the sheets on the bed were dirty. There the journalist reposed, breathing purple maledictions upon the very name of Hilton.

This same traveler wandered on to Los Angeles, seeking surcease in the Century Plaza, a hostelry that at one time ranked among the great establishments of the West. Alas, its $66 room came equipped with a three-legged luggage bench and a shabby chair.

So it goes. What is lacking in too many hotels and motels is an elementary sense of concern — a sense of caring, really caring, about the needs of the traveling man. Confirmed reservations have a way of getting rudely unconfirmed when a hotel has overbooked. Lamps won't function because a maid has forgotten to replace a burned-out bulb. You can't find a telephone book. The heating or the air conditioning is on the fritz. The windows are dirty. Room service is slow and indifferent. That Holiday Inn in Lincoln didn't even have soap in the room. It takes forever to get checked out by a hard-eyed cashier.

Rough Spots Remain

40 Years Ago Today

October 4, 1937

In spite of downpouring rains more than a score of persons were present at the community chest breakfast to begin the canvass of the people of Greenville for support of the cooperative social program.

The safety of American refugees at the port of Chefoo in Shantung province 400 miles north of Shanghai was in peril by a Chinese threat to destroy the breakwater protecting the harbor.

Chinese military authorities warned the United States destroyer Squadron 5 to evacuate the harbor within 48 hours as they might find it necessary to blow up the whole wharf, making the harbor unsafe for shipping.

Greenville voters were slow in going to the polls to express their opinion on the question of issuing $200,000 in bonds for improvements to the water and sewer systems and to construct new hard surface streets.

Apparently many stayed away on account of the rain.

Of the total amount, $150,000 would be used by the Water and Light Commission, and $50,000 would be set aside for street improvements.

A light vote had been anticipated.

No organized opposition had made its appearance until a day or so before the election when a printed handbill was distributed through the city urging citizens to vote against the measure. The handbill was not signed and its author was not known.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter Tactic Indicative

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A recurrent cause of trouble not only for his energy program but for his presidency surfaced again over the Sept. 24-25 weekend when President Carter personally alerted surprised energy officials that he was "going public" to save his bill in the Senate.

There is no evidence that any official in the Energy Department objected. But after President Carter entered the White House press room on Sept. 26 to blame "special interests" — that is, big oil and its Senate allies — for dismemberment of his energy bill, the department spread the word across Capitol Hill that it had no part in the attack.

It was in fact pure Jimmy Carter — evidence that in some respects he has changed very little after eight months in office. The President is still inclined to moralize on issues that, far from being moral, are matters of practical politics and to appeal directly to the voters whenever he runs into trouble in Congress. The anger on Capitol Hill generated by Mr. Carter's outburst promises deepening trouble ahead when his ambitious legislative program encounters inevitable obstacles.

Even some administration officials admit that it was no high-pressure lobbying campaign by the oil and gas industry that delivered multiple wounds to the energy program. Only a handful of the industry's giants (led by Gulf and Mobil) have pressed hard against the Carter program — a mere shadow of massive oil lobbying in past years. Indeed, consumer and labor lobbyists were more effective in sabotaging the oil equalization tax.

The Senate disaster grew from a combination of factors: deepening public unrest with government regulation; fading public support for the Carter program; failure to devise a Senate strategy after Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill guided the program through the House so easily.

Both friends and foes of the program use a harsh word to describe a basic source of the problem: incompetency. A case in point was the oil equalization tax. Shortly after Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger appeared before the Senate Finance Committee to discuss compromises, Assistant Treasury Secretary Laurence Woodworth proposed a different approach. When Woodworth left the room, Assistant Energy Secretary Al Alm popped up with still a third version.

In this chaos, the President used a technique he often employed as governor of Georgia: lumping his opponents with "special interests." It was the decision of Mr. Carter, not of his congressional lobbyists or his Energy Department. But Dr. Schlesinger, himself hostile to big oil, approved it.

Other administration officials did not at all approve. "If you make the same appeal against special interests too many times," one told us, "it begins to lose all effect." Other officials saw inconsistency in the President attacking the industry for raising the cost of energy when his own program does exactly the same thing.

Knowing from experience that the President could not be moved, officials confined their activities to toning down Mr. Carter's language. Names of individual Senators and oil companies were removed from the statement.

The President need not have pushed the panic button. The energy bill, though in disarray, is far from dead. At this writing, it seems the Senate may pass a natural gas deregulation bill, but the Senate-House conference will surely find a compromise setting a higher regulated price. The tax features of the program are still subject to compromise.

The President's tactic was clearly a bad way to approach U.S. Senators. The judgment of one Democrat who has strongly opposed gas deregulation and generally backed the President's program: "It is patronizing when the President sets himself above us

To the editor:

In regards to parents who don't wish for their children to see "The Richard Pryor Show": why don't you just switch channels? In the same time slot you can also view "The Fitzpatrick's", "Happy Days", and "Laverne and Shirley", or even something on the educational channel. If these don't agree with you, why not simply turn off the television?

I am tired of self-appointed censors crying about unsuitable television shows. There are among your neighbors people who consider Richard Pryor to be one of our best comedians and also a fine actor. Give him a later time slot, perhaps, but don't take him off the air. I want the freedom to decide for myself what I and my family can watch!

Melissa T. Faber

To the editor:

I just moved to Greenville a few months ago and have become more and more concerned about the lack of consideration many parents have for their small children.

I am speaking explicitly about parents' allowing small children to stand up in the front seats of their cars while riding with the driver (who usually is the parent). This is just about as stupid as an adult could get. I'm sure this is not lack of love for their children, but pure lack of thinking clearly. One quick stop or bump from behind will throw that child into (or worse still, through) the windshield.

Come on parents — think like the adults you are. Show those children you really love them by strapping them into a child's seat or seat belt. It only takes a few seconds for a disaster to happen — and then you will grieve the rest of your life for being so casual with their little lives. The next time you see a friend or member of your family doing this foolish, foolish thing — call their hand on it. Make them stop and think.

Promise-Keeping Report Card

By JOHN CUNNIFF NEW YORK (AP) — Tired of mere lip service, an association of independent business people last year decided to keep a report card on the promises by the two major presidential candidates.

The group, the National Small Business Association, persistently extracted from each candidate his views on small-business issues, such as correcting what was felt to be unequal treatment versus big business.

The first report card, on Jimmy Carter of course, is in, and it appears the President didn't pass. "No substantial progress" was marked beside 7 of 11 issues measured.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest corporations, unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

It now reports: "No substantial progress."

Carter also promised that "As president, I would introduce and support concrete programs which would have as high priority the expansion of the independent small business sector of the economy." Again, "No substantial progress."

And so it goes through the first four categories before the President receives a favorable notation.

The commitment: "As president, I will see that small business has a strong voice in the White House. ... My objective is to establish closer ties with small business."

The accomplishment: "Substantial progress. Good lines of communication have been established with the President and his staff. March meeting between President, key aides and small business reps have been followed up with ongoing meetings at high levels."

The administration also was credited with some progress in correcting inequities in government procurement, on freeing business people from routine record-keeping by a regulatory agency, and on minimizing the impact of an antiprice maintenance report.

But that ubiquitous "no substantial progress" was recorded against his promise to involve small business in science and innovation, on his promise to develop yardsticks to measure small business growth, on Federal reorganization, on his promise of a better climate for raising capital, and on tax reform.

On the latter, the independent business people conceded that the President's tax reform proposals might change their estimate, but not in time for the first year's report card.

Strength For Today

INDIFFERENCE AS BAD AS WICKEDNESS

When the famous evangelist of the early twentieth century, Dwight Moody, was visiting England, he was asked whether he thought enough was being done to bring the gospel to the unsaved. Moody's answer was, "I am told that there are 150,000 people in this very city of Sheffield who never go near a place of worship. It seems to me, if there be upon God's earth one blacker sight than these thousands of graceless souls, it is the thousands of dead and slumbering Christians in their very midst, rubbing shoulders with them every day and never so much as lifting a little finger to warn them of death and eternity and the judgment to come."

"I believe," he went on, "that if there is one thing which pierces the Master's heart with unutterable grief, it is not just the world's iniquity but the church's indifference."

The point of this declaration scarcely needs to be emphasized. We need the full grace of God, however, to take it into our hearts and do something about it.

Some Use Ammonia On Indira Freed, But Faces Trial Corn With Aflatoxin

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
EAST PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Government scientists are telling farmers about a simple, dramatically effective way to salvage corn contaminated by the poisonous cancer-producing substance aflatoxin.

However, because the method does not have Food and Drug Administration approval, "we can't recommend anything on this," cautioned Dr. Alex Ceigler, a microbiologist for the USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

He told an audience of farmers and grain elevator operators Monday night, "As a government employee, I can't tell you what to do. I can tell you what others have done and what you do is up to you."

What Ceigler and fellow researchers are doing is dousing contaminated corn with ammonia, virtually destroying any aflatoxin. Produced by the mold aspergillus flavus, aflatoxin is a major threat to corn in Southern states.

This year, with extreme drought followed by heavy rain, it was found in unacceptably high levels in 70 per cent of Georgia's corn crop. In the past two weeks, discovery of aflatoxin in Illinois, Iowa and Indiana has led to some corn being turned away at Midwest grain elevators.

If the aflatoxin level exceeds 20 parts per billion, corn is supposed to be destroyed. It can even be seized by FDA inspectors.

The substance causes stunting and even death in poultry and livestock and has been linked to liver cancer in humans.

Ceigler said some farmers with moldy corn have already taken his advice. "Some people in the South have taken their wagon load of corn, sprayed it with ammonia and covered it with a plastic tarp. And low and behold, in a couple of days they can hardly detect any aflatoxin."

The USDA has given treated corn to animals and they "show absolutely no damage from being fed the ammoniated corn," Ceigler said. He added that the FDA will take two to three years before ruling on his procedure.

The ammonia method is intended for farmers who will use the corn in their own operations. It turns corn "quite brown. You can't pass that corn off on anybody. But if you use it on the farm, animals don't give a hoot what color it is."

Ceigler said he dries corn to 17 or 18 per cent moisture content, mixes 100 pounds of corn with 1½ pounds of ammonia and seals it in a covered bin for two weeks. "But to tell you the truth, it's not necessary to go to all that trouble," he admitted.

Only a few instances of aflatoxin have been found in Midwest corn, Ceigler said, and none of it exceeded 20 parts per billion.

The USDA's Northern Regional Research Center at Peoria has started a massive testing of corn throughout the Midwest. Results showing the extent of the aflatoxin outbreak are not expected for at least a month, Ceigler added.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indira Gandhi was brought to court on corruption charges today after a night in police custody, but Magistrate R. Dayal said there were "no reasonable grounds" for her detention and freed her.

The government said collection of evidence against Mrs. Gandhi would continue and she would be brought to trial. But it gave no indication when the trial might take place, and her sudden arrest and swift release were likely to prove a sizable boost to her attempt at a political comeback.

Police used tear gas and clubs on demonstrators for and against the 59-year-old former prime minister outside the courthouse. Gas fumes drifted into the packed courtroom as competing chants of "Shame, shame, shame, Indira Gandhi!" and "Long live Indira Gandhi!" drowned out some of the lawyers' arguments.

Mrs. Gandhi rejected an offer of bail when she was arrested Monday night and did not request bail in court. Her lawyer, Frank Anthony, told the magistrate the charges against her were "vague, utterly fatuous, trumped up and political." He charged that her arrest had been ordered personally by Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Attorneys for the government asked the court to take jurisdiction of Mrs. Gandhi, saying they had brought her before Dayal in accordance with the legal requirement that anyone arrested without a court order be produced in court within 24 hours.

The magistrate ordered her freed with no restrictions on her movements.

Mrs. Gandhi was escorted from the courtroom by her son Sanjay, who also is under investigation, and chanting supporters. Followed by a police car, they drove to her New Delhi home. There she told a cheering crowd her freedom did not matter, the important things were the country and the unheeded grievances of the people.

"Has the government come into power to arrest me or to solve people's problems?" she asked.

Rioting by the rival crowds of several thousand outside the Parliament Street courthouse lasted nearly an hour and brought activity in neighboring offices and banks to a standstill.

Cars, motor scooters and windows were damaged by rocks thrown by the demonstrators. The police used tear gas and clubs on another crowd of stone-throwing supporters of Mrs. Gandhi outside the home of Prime Minister Desai.

Mrs. Gandhi was charged with conspiring with others to award an oil drilling contract to a French firm that had bid $13.4 million more than an American competitor, and with pressuring firms to provide 104 jeeps for her Congress party's unsuccessful election campaign last spring.

Four of her former cabinet ministers, three industrialists and other former officials and secretaries were arrested in a national sweep by the Central Bureau of Investigation.

Some of them were released on bail, but Mrs. Gandhi chose to spend the night under detention at a police headquarters.

roads left vulnerable by last year's winter pounding and the state's inability to fix all the rough spots.

"The damage that was done to our road system last winter was greater than in any year in the past," said Floyd J. Bass, manager of maintenance and equipment for the state Highway Division.

Last July when officials tallied up all the cracks, gouges and gaps in state roads, especially in the mountains, that the unusually harsh winter left behind, they figured it had cost the taxpayers $31.6 million over and above normal maintenance.

Bass noted that in April, $6.1 million was taken from the division's contingency funds to start repairing the damage. In July $12 million was added, virtually wiping out the 1977-78 contingency fund, plus $1.5 million from another budget item.

Bass said not all of the $19.7 million would probably be spent before winter closed in this year, and the remaining $12 million worth of damage would have to wait until next year.

"You never really catch up on these things anyway," Bass said, "and when you have damage like we had last winter, it will continue to show up for several years."

But the problem will become truly serious, Bass said, if North Carolina gets another winter this year as brutal as the last one. The division will have no extra funds with which to begin patching up next spring.

"If the damage is as great this year, then the legislature when it meets in May is just going to have to speak to it and find some money," Bass said.

There is some indication of the severity of last year's ice and snow in the amount of road salt the division had to buy.

In the winter of 1975-76, the state used 18,634 tons of the stuff, which was an increase over the previous year. But last year the state had to buy 37,058 tons of salt, almost exactly twice as much.

"We got down to the point where we were real short, and we had a hard time laying our hands on any more," Bass said, adding that this year custodians of the various salt storage areas have been warned to fill up early and suppliers have been alerted that more salt may be needed.

In the meantime, road crews are working feverishly to finish patching last year's damage before this year's wintry assault on the pavement.

Patching crews based in North Wilkesboro, Sylva and Asheville have been working 10-hour days for the last few months and outside contractors have been hired to help get the job done, Bass said.

The picture is not unreservedly bleak. A traveling man still encounters a few places that care. The Marriott folks have managed to stay friendly as their chain has grown large. In Washington, the Madison Hotel, Stouffer's and the Georgetown Holiday Inn make an extra effort. The Fairmonts in San Francisco and New Orleans are places one wants to return to.

Given the requisite capital investment, all that is required to run a first-class hostelry is a manager who honestly, truly wants his guests to be happy. Speaking as a traveling man who spends 120 nights a year on the road, I am minded to say it would be pleasant to encounter more such managers now and then. I haven't met many of them lately.

and suggests we are being manipulated by lobbyists." What particularly irritates supporters of gas deregulation is the fact that candidate Carter himself backed this position just a year ago when seeking support from oil-producing states. Accordingly, these Democratic Senators feel that the President's hostility to the industry is not born of conviction but of opinion polls showing emotional public resentment against big oil.

"It was poison," confides one administration official in describing the Senate impact of the President's tactic. On a Senate gas deregulation vote just following the Carter attack, the President lost two additional Democratic Senators — North Dakota's Quentin Burdick and, from his own state of Georgia, Sam Nunn.

Coming less than a week after the resignation of Bert Lance, the sudden attack on "special interests" suggests the Lance affair has by no means ended moralizing in the Oval Office. Upgrading conventional political questions to the status of good vs. evil is still an ingrained habit for Mr. Carter, but one that has not helped his energy program and could do him harm in the future.

'77 COLDEST IN 37

Carolina In Deep Freeze

Shivering residents of North Carolina bundled up against the coldest weather in 37 years yesterday as temperatures dropped below zero in the early morning and never got above 17° all day. The National Weather Service station at the airport reported -2° at 5 a.m. The lowest reported at Kerr-Scott Dam was -8° at 4 a.m., while many points in the mountains unofficially reported temperatures as low as -16°.

Nowhere in the state, not even along the coast, did temperatures rise above freezing. As the chill deepened state wide, weather service spokesman offered no hope for relief in the near future, blaming the deep freeze on an arctic air mass moving slowly down from Canada.

Meanwhile counties across the state reported numerous school closings due to the cold weather, as pipes burst and school buses refused to start.

Midway People Join For Varied Reasons

DEBBIE HOLDER... with children, Paul, 2 and a half months and Nicole 16 months.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Money, travel, accompanying a mate, getting away from a humdrum life or job that was no longer satisfying — all these were given by Pitt County Fair midway workers interviewed Monday as reasons they're "carnies" now.

"Carnival people are the best," said Carol Van Ouwkerk, who spends her summers with a quarter slide game in Carolina Beach and the remainder of the fair season, which runs from April to November, on the road with the same game. "When you're one of them, they'll do anything in the world to help you out. You can live in the same town all your life, I've found, and find when you're in trouble that your next-door neighbor doesn't want to get involved. Here your friends will stick up for you."

Mrs. Van Ouwkerk and her roommate, Carmen DuVerge, say they live in motels and have found those in Greenville "expensive." Mrs. Ouwkerk says her only problem is that she misses her eight-year-old daughter and she proudly showed a locket-held picture of the beautiful child. "She stays with good friends during the school year," she said, "and she's with me all summer at Carolina Beach."

Jay Bruckhart said he left a cookware-selling job in Charlotte to join the shows in Danville, Va. at the first of this season. "I've enjoyed the travel," he said, "and may stay in this kind of work and buy my own joints (the term he used for the games of chance in which he works) later on."

Jay's boss, Wayne Furr, resembles the famous disc jockey, "Wolfman Jack". The Cabarrus County native said he left Elon College in the North Carolina Piedmont 15 years ago when his summer job, managing a fair concession, became "more profitable and more challenging than college and what I thought I might be preparing for." He now owns a number of concessions and rides and employs "seven or eight regulars — my key personnel — and several others in each town."

His wife, Jean, and their younger pre-school child travel with him, living in a trailer. During the season when they're not working, they spend some time in Concord, Furr's hometown, and some "cooling it in Miami."

Debbie Holder is working in a "concession or a ride, I'm not sure which yet" for the first time this week. She and her husband, Richard, left Sanford at the first of this season to travel with the fair. She said she "gets along fine" managing a 16-month-old daughter, Nicole, and a two-and-a-half-month-old son, Paul, as they travel. Asked who will mind the children while she works from now on, she answered,

"Nicki will stay with her daddy (He runs the F-80 kid- dy plane rides) and the baby will be with me."

Vickie Patterson is a ticket seller and was one of the few people at the fairgrounds yesterday afternoon who wasn't busily setting up the various rides and concessions. She sat on the base of a ride being erected and read a book, with one eye on her daughter, Heather, two, who played with two other children nearby. She said she joined the show to be with her husband, Eddie, the foreman of the Paratrooper ride. "The fair came through my town in Pennsylvania," she said, "and I came out to a party with some friends and met him."

Asked what she'll do this winter, she said, "If it's like last year, I'll get a job and he'll draw unemployment."

Frank and Audrey Ross left Florida, where he'd been employed by a nationally known restaurant chain for years. "I just got tired of being the company's troubleshooter," he said. "I'd go into a restaurant that was not producing and beef up the service. Then when it started making a profit, they'd ship me elsewhere. Things are too expensive in Florida, too. We were paying $400 a month house rent. We were ready to move on and to have more time to spend with each other."

He and Mrs. Ross run the candy apple concession and like it, they say. Their three children are with them in the summers and with his parents during the school year.

WAYNE FURR

The midway shows, Amusements of America, traveled here from Sanford and began setting up about 10:30 yesterday morning. They were "open for business" by 4 p. m. Saturday night or Sunday morning early, they'll be in Chase City, Va., ready to set up all over again.

Brick has been selected for the new units, it was pointed out.

All units were occupied at the end of September in the various housing developments operated by the Authority, according to Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs.

Rent averages included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $65.88; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $79.38; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $82.12; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $76.58; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $69.72. Average rent for the 531 units amounted to $61.99 for the month, she reported.

Mrs. Streeter said that reexamination of tenant incomes has been completed and rents in the five developments will be up at the end of October as a result of the increases in both ceiling rents and income levels.

Commissioners adopted a resolution establishing a new rent range for the housing units as required by HUD.

Laney said that the rent range is aimed at providing a good mixture of incomes, including a percentage of tenants in both the lower and upper income levels. The distribution of rent ranges is calculated to provide financial solvency and stability for the housing program.

The resolution points out that "tenants will be selected from among the applicants eligible for dwellings of given size and within such ranges of rent as may be established from time to time to ensure the financial solvency and stability of the program and to maintain a socio-economic cross section."

The Authority has been operating on its present rent range for close to two years, it was mentioned. Adoption of the new ranges will mean an increase in the overall rents for the housing units.

Convicted On 'Bugging' Count

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Convicted on a federal bugging charge Monday, former Northwestern Bank board chairman Edwin Duncan Jr. goes on trial Thursday on charges of misapplying bank funds.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated three hours before finding Duncan guilty Monday of two counts of electronic eavesdropping on Internal Revenue Service agents between 1971 and 1973.

Sentencing was deferred by Judge Hiram H. Ward until after Duncan's trial on the misapplication charges and another charge of bugging FBI agents earlier this year.

The IRS agents were investigating bank affairs and had borrowed an office at the bank's North Wilkesboro headquarters.

Government witnesses testified that Duncan ordered that office bugged and then helped install and test an electronic listening device in the ceiling, which transmitted to an FM receiver and tape recorder in another room.

Duncan's attorneys argued that eavesdropping is not illegal if there is no expectation of privacy, and the IRS could not have expected privacy in a bank where the atmosphere was as hostile as it was at Northwestern.

They also contended that Duncan lost interest in the bug before August, 1972, the earliest date for which he could be prosecuted for a crime under the five-year statute of limitations.

The government answered that the IRS began investigating Duncan personally after that time, and Duncan must have been interested in what they were doing.

The misapplication charge to be tried later this week concerns a system Duncan allegedly set up at the bank for handling of his personal checks.

Duncan allegedly ordered bank employees to hold his checks, pay them with bank funds and then charge them to his account only when he gave the order to do so.

Duncan's attorneys have argued in pre-trial motions that what Duncan allegedly did was no worse than the large overdrafts former U.S. budget director Bert Lance and his family ran up at banks where Lance was an executive.

Prosecuting Duncan while Lance goes free, the attorneys have argued, is discriminatory.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today for various regions, including: northern New England, southern Florida, the Great Lakes to the Central Plains, and from

By The Associated Press

High pressure centered over Kentucky controlled North Carolina's weather today as sunny skies and cool temperatures continued. The forecast calls for about the same Wednesday, but by Friday a warming trend is expected to be under way.

Today's temperatures were expected to be in the upper 50s and low 60s with some slight moderation Wednesday, when high readings will range in the mid 60s to low 70s.

Under clear skies tonight temperatures will dip into the 30s across the mountains and the 40s east of the mountains. There also is a risk of scattered frost across the mountains where a frost warning is in effect for tonight.

The extended outlook has the fair and cool weather continuing into Thursday. Some warming will occur Friday and Saturday as daytime temperatures warm into the mid 70s to low 80s. There is little chance of any rain through Saturday.

The cold front that moved through the state Sunday ushered autumn weather into North Carolina.

Southern Cal, Now In Driver's Seat, Must Overcome 'Bama Next

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Southern Cal is sitting in the driver's seat for a national championship, says Coach John Robinson, but the road to No. 1 is filled with hurdles and holes.

"All we have to do to win the national championship is go undefeated," he notes with some apprehension, then adds: "Of course if we go undefeated, we'll deserve to win the national championship."

Robinson isn't talking through his field cap. The nation's No. 1 team will need some muscle to stay in that position, considering the remaining games on the schedule.

Moved into the top spot in The Associated Press' weekly poll Monday, the Trojans have a formidable schedule the rest of the way and will continue their tough timetable toward the national championship against Alabama this Saturday.

"It'll be difficult," says Robinson, "and it should be exciting. But we do have the confidence. That's one thing that we always have here at Southern Cal, and it doesn't matter what position we are in the polls.

"Actually, I don't think poll position means that much to us at this time of the season. It doesn't change our goal, which is just to win the next game as it comes. We don't get motivated by ranking — we're able to motivate ourselves."

After Alabama, the Trojans will face several other strong teams toward the end of the season, including Notre Dame and Pac-8 rivals California and UCLA.

The Trojans just came off a pretty big game — for them — a 41-7 victory over a tough Washington State team, and the impressive decision was the reason they were made No. 1 in the poll by the nationwide panel of 60 sports writers and broadcasters.

They replaced Oklahoma, which fell to second despite a 24-9 triumph over Kansas. Michigan, a 41-3 victor over Texas A&M, held third place in a torrid three-way race for No. 1. The top three teams are separated by a mere total of 58 points — 1,106 for Southern Cal; 1,052 for Oklahoma and 1,048 for Michigan.

The rest of the Top Ten included: Ohio State; Texas; Colorado; Alabama and Arkansas in a tie for seventh; Nebraska and Penn State. Notre Dame was No. 11, followed by Texas A&M; Brigham Young; California; Pitt; Kentucky; Texas Tech; Louisiana State; Wisconsin and Florida.

Yank Roster Includes Some Who Won't Play

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees go into the American League playoffs against Kansas City Wednesday, technically one player short of the 25-man limit. But actually, the East Division champions have far fewer usable men than the 24 their roster lists.

Included among the Yankees eligibles are pitchers Ken Holtzman, Catfish Hunter and Ken Clay, none of whom are likely to see any meaningful action.

call a hernia and is questionable at best after going more than three weeks without work. Clay, a rookie, has been used in just 20 games, almost exclusively in mop-up situations to save more important pitchers for later games.

Remove those three and the shrinking Yankee roster dips to 21. But that includes infielder Mickey Klutts, who played all year at Syracuse of the International League and is eligible for the playoffs only by a quirk. Klutts was called up to the Yankees when third baseman Graig Nettles injured a knee and the rookie happened to be with the parent club on Aug. 31, the date post-season rosters are frozen. His New York appearances this season comprise a total of just five games.

Then there are two other infielders, both with the club all season, who have been used most sparingly. Fred Stanley, last year's regular shortstop, has appeared in 48 games as a backup for Bucky Dent this season. He has a total of 12 hits — two of them in the final game of the regular season. Rookie George Zeber has appeared in just 25 games as the backup man for second baseman Willie Randolph.

Also among the eligibles is catcher Fran Healy, whose main contribution to the Yankees cause this season has been warming up pitchers in the bullpen. Healy has been in only 27 games.

With the Yankees already short a man because of the mid-September sale of Carlos May to California, the club petitioned AL President Lee MacPhail for permission to fill the roster vacancy. MacPhail rejected the request and Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and President Gabe Paul charged that he was pressured into refusing to allow New York to add a 25th player.

Nobody is enjoying the Yankee roster wrangle more than Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog, who made his last trip to New York under duress. That was in late August when KC had to make a one-day stopover at Yankee Stadium to make up a game that was postponed in late July. The Royals argued that the game should never have been postponed originally and was called by the Yankees because New York was experiencing pitching problems and needed a day off.

Herzog made a symbolic protest that day by listing four pitchers in his starting lineup, then technically pinch hitting for three of them as their batting turns came up. In the playoffs, New York Manager Billy Martin won't have the luxury of wasting bodies that way.

Holtzman has pitched only once since Aug. 13 and appeared in only 18 games all season. His lone appearance in the last seven weeks was in a mop-up role during a 19-3 loss to Toronto on Sept. 10. That same game marked the last appearance of Hunter, who is suffering from what the Yankees

Evans Pass Was The 'Big Play'

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer

With less than a minute to play and North Carolina State still near mid-field, Wolfpack coach Bo Rein thought he might have to go for a field goal and a tie with Maryland.

But then Johnny Evans threw a sideline pass to Elijah Marshall for 20 yards and the first of two crucial penalties was called against the Terrapins. In seconds, N.C. State had moved to the 13 and was in position for the final touchdown that whipped Maryland, 24-20 last Saturday.

to go for the touchdown," Rein said. The play was followed by another penalty for pass interference on Maryland's Lloyd Burruss that put the ball at the 2, and on the next down Evans plunged into the end zone with 27 seconds remaining.

Marshall was the primary receiver on a sideline pattern, and had double coverage from Maryland's zone defense, Rein said. Maryland was in its wide-tackle six defense, and the Wolfpack line provided enough protection for Evans.

"It was an excellent pattern by Elijah," Evans said. "He beat their end on the bump and run, and just sat in that dead hole between the zones, and made a great catch."

Because time was precious Evans had to throw to the sidelines and stop the clock. N.C. State had been unable to catch a pass deep against Maryland's zone, so Marshall headed for that dead hole, or "seam," between the coverage areas of the defensive end and halfback.

"It takes a delicate touch by the quarterback to drop it into that seam before the defensive back can move up and cover," Rein said. "He was pretty close to the sidelines and had to be sure he didn't step out before he had it."

Marshall, a senior split end, said he ran the pattern shorter than normal.

"Johnny told me before where it was open. We just tried to ad lib it a little bit," Marshall said. "I feel pretty good about it. I haven't beaten those guys since I've been here, and it was a real thrill."

"That one play got us the most yardage while we were in our two minute offense," Rein said Monday in analyzing the game — Maryland's first loss against an Atlantic Coast Conference team since 1973.

The play began at the Maryland 46 and covered 20 yards, but a personal foul penalty against Maryland sophomore defensive back John Baldante for tackling Marshall out of bounds moved the ball to the 13, halfway to the goal. The 33-yard gainer is this week's AP Play of the Week in the ACC.

"That one play took us from where we had to think about the field goal and a tie, up to where we could use our plays

ASU Players Gain Honors

By The Associated Press

Appalachian State halfback Emmitt Hamilton's three touchdowns in Saturday's 28-20 win over Marshall helped win him Southern Conference offensive player of the week honors.

Hamilton, a senior from Goldsboro, N.C., is the conference's leading scorer. Included in his Saturday performance was a 90-yard touchdown run and 181 yards total rushing.

"Emmitt had a super day running the football as evidenced by the fact that he gained 181 yards," said Mountaineer coach Jim Brakefield. "But more important to our winning effort was the tremendous leadership he gave the team during the week's preparations and his performance in blocking and faking when he didn't have the ball."

The men's 35 singles tournament will be held this weekend.

Herzog's Success Built On His Ability To Get Along With Team

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "Hey, Whitey," George Brett hollered across the Kansas City Royals' dressing room. "I was just asked what do I like most about you. I can't think of anything."

"Put your mind to it and concentrate," Whitey Herzog replied. "No, on second thought, you might hurt yourself."

An All-Star third baseman who hits over 300 and a manager who just won his second straight divisional title could be expected to engage in light-hearted banter.

But the rapport Herzog has established with his players — the unsung journeymen as well as the superstars — is the cornerstone of the success he and the Royals have enjoyed since he became manager of a dis-sension-wracked club on July 24, 1975.

"This team has the talent to win if it's used right," he said then. "It's my job to see that it's used right."

From that day to the end of the season, the Royals' team batting average jumped 13 points and the staff earned-run average fell from 3.75 to 3.06. The next year he guided the Royals to the division title, the first championship in Kansas City's 20 years of major league baseball.

This season, while defending their title with essentially the same personnel he inherited in 1975, Herzog's Royals swept to a 102-60 record, the winningest team in the major leagues.

Clearly, Dorrel Norman "Whitey" Herzog has done his job.

"I've been lucky," he says. "I've got the best staff of coaches there is, and a bunch of good, dedicated players. Any manager is only a good as the people around him."

But his players and coaches don't see it that way.

"There's no way you can measure it," said outfielder-designated hitter Hal McRae, "but, to me, it seems very, very unlikely we would have won this many games without Whitey. He's got an uncanny knack of handling pitchers."

"And he's the first manager I've ever known, or even heard of, who doesn't have a doghouse. He gets mad, he's had some pretty hot arguments with guys. But the thing about Whitey is he sees to it that no hard feelings develop. I've seen him chew out guys real bad, but the next day they're laughing and joking and it's all forgotten."

Herzog's baseball experience encompasses almost every facet of the game except ownership. An outfielder-first baseman, he compiled a .257 lifetime batting average in a 9-year career that included stops at Washington, Baltimore, Detroit and the old Kansas City Athletics. He spent seven years in the New York Mets organization, five as director of player development.

Herzog, who takes his nickname from his butter-colored hair, admits his player-manager philosophy is somewhat unique.

"I've seen it all my life," he says. "Good players sitting on the bench because they're in the doghouse with the manager. I've never understood it. When I was a player, I liked it because I was never any good, and I got to play ahead of some stars."

"But after I tell a player off, the next day, if he's the best player, he's going to be in the lineup."

Contest Winners

Jack McDavid of P.O. Box 3, Farmville, captured this past week's Daily Reflector Football Contest by correctly predicting the winners in 26 of the 32 football games.

McDavid won on the basis of his point total guess. His guess was 71, while the actual total was 67 scored in Kent State's 44-23 win over Ohio University.

Second place went to Bill Cozart of P.O. Box 277, Ayden, who also picked the winners in 26 games. His guess on the points was 76.

One other entrant also had 26 right, but was further off on his point total.

The next contest in the series appears on the following pages.

Raiders Show Why They're Best

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — John Madden wrapped his meaty hand around a soft drink can, sighed, and declared that his Oakland Raiders had just shown the world why they are the reigning champions of professional football.

"It's because of things like this that we are champions — being able to handle adversity, whether it's self-inflicted or not," said the Oakland coach.

Stunned by three Mike Livingston touchdowns passes in the second quarter Monday night, Madden's Raiders went to halftime trailing the winless, but emotionally, deflated the Chiefs and sent the Raiders rolling to a 37-28 victory before a nationwide television audience that had to be impressed by their poise, precision and grace under pressure.

Madden was impressed.

"At halftime, we came in, talked it over and came out in the second half and took it back," he said. "We got it back under control. One of the reasons we're champions is games like tonight."

Fred Biletnikoff fried rookie cornerback Gary Green on a 21-yard touchdown pass late in the first quarter, and by the time Errol Mann booted a 42-yard field goal in the first-minute of the second quarter the rout many experts had predicted seemed to be taking shape.

Then Livingston, who was booed mercilessly by Chiefs fans the week before, tossed touchdown passes of 48 and 2 yards to tight end Walter White, then, 29 seconds after White's second score, teamed with Henry Marshall on a 42-yard scoring play.

The Raiders recovered in time for Mann to hit a 34-yard three-pointer with 1:02 remaining, but rookie running back Tony Reed, who totaled 102 yards, darted and weaved for 59 to the Oakland six as time expired.

The Raiders re-established their dominance in the third quarter with chilling efficiency. A 69-yard march in 12 plays with the second half kickoff, capped by Pete Banaszak's one-yard plunge, made it 21-20.

Starting again from their 30, the Raiders needed just three plays, highlighted by Ken Stabler's 26-yard pass to Dave Casper and Clarence Davis' 37-yard touchdown run, to regain the lead, 27-21.

The next scoring drive covered 47 yards in four plays, with Davis again taking it in, from the 2.

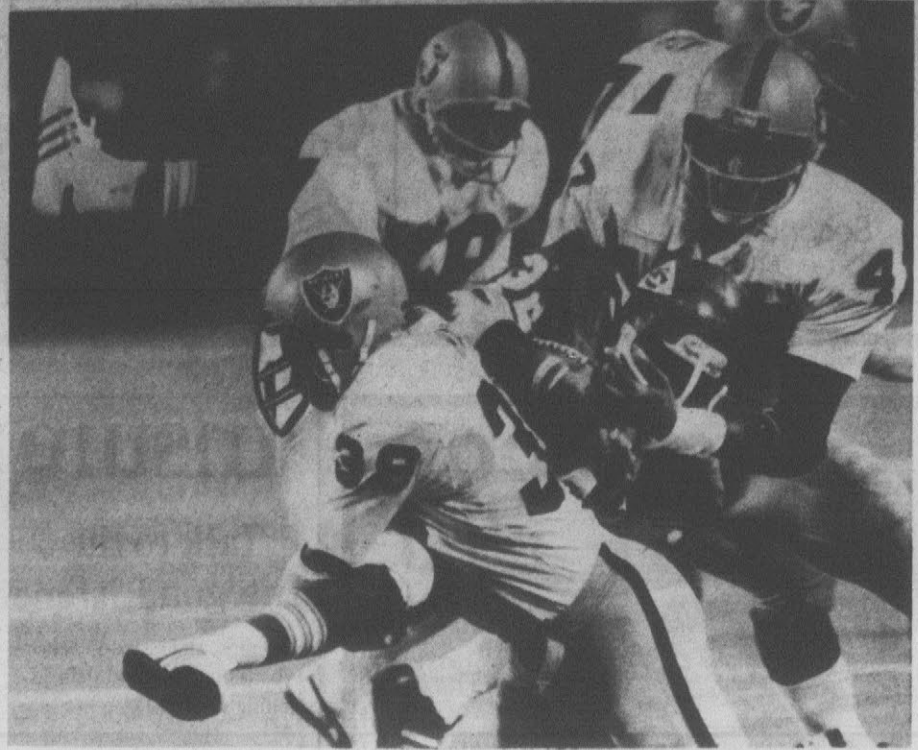

The Raiders had swept 186 yards for three touchdowns in 12 minutes, seven seconds. The Chiefs had never gotten closer than the Raider 31, and they were defeated.

"They're the world champions," said Coach Paul Wiggin of the Chiefs. "They are an outstanding football team. We just couldn't stop them."

The Chiefs added a fourth-quarter touchdown on Lawrence Williams' 15-yard run on a reverse, and Mann, who is 7-for-8 this year, got to kick one more 22-yarder.

Madden snorted when it was suggested that the Raiders may have been overconfident.

"Hell, no," he said. "We just gave 'em a little life and they took advantage, that's all."

Carlton, John Square Off In Playoff Opener

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies will go with 23 game winner Steve Carlton and the Los Angeles Dodgers with 20 game victor Tommy John, but the big news at the National League playoffs today was the Phillies' loss of star center fielder Garry Maddox.

The Phillies' prospects of winning their first NL pennant since 1950 took a sharp drop when team physician Dr. Philip Marone said Maddox probably would miss the first two in the best-of-five game series with the Dodgers.

Maddox, who hit .293 and finished the regular season with a 14-game hitting streak, sustained a contusion of the left kneecap, which caused fluid to build up on a joint, limiting the outfielder's ability to walk, let alone run.

Maddox, referred to in Philadelphia as the Phillies' secretary of defense, might not even be able to play Friday when the series shifts to Philadelphia for game No. 3.

If Maddox doesn't play — and Phillies Manager Danny Ozark insisted on the use of the word "if" — Bake McBride will move from right to center field, and either Jerry Martin or Jay Johnstone play right. Martin or Johnstone probably can pick up Maddox' lost offense, but even the accomplished McBride can't cover center field like the injured star.

And if the Maddox problem wasn't enough, the Phillies had another gripe after Monday's workout. They protested to league officials the condition of the dirt in front of home plate, contending it was raked for John's style of pitching.

Phillies' officials and the umpires assigned to the series will meet at the Stadium at 2 p.m. PDT to inspect the playing surface. John's slow stuff, which induces batters to hit into the dirt, is the Phillies' concern.

The Dodgers, who won the West Division by 10 games over runnerup Cincinnati, were 6½-5 favorites over the East champion Phillies, winner by five games over Pittsburgh.

The matchup of Carlton against John featured two of the leading candidates for the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher.

John, whose operation-scarred left elbow looks like a map of the Los Angeles freeway system, posted a 20-7 record with a 2.78 ERA. He started 31 games, completed 11. Against the Phillies he was 1-1 with a 3.00 ERA.

Carlton went 23-10, compiled a 2.64 ERA, and completed 17 of 36 games started. He was 1-1 against Los Angeles, with a 2.40 ERA. Carlton, previously a pigeon for base runners, developed a new move this season that resulted in 22 pickoffs.

Both teams have power, with four Dodgers hitting 30 or more home runs — Steve Garvey (33), Reggie Smith (32), Ron Cey (30) and Dusty Baker (30). The Phillies' Greg Luzinski slammed 39 and Mike Schmidt 38, with six others in double figures. The Phillies appear to have an edge in speed, defense and bullpen, the Dodgers have deeper starting pitching.

The teams split 12 regular-season games with identical 2-4 home and away records. Overall that's about the way they stack up for the playoffs. The loss of Maddox could give the Dodgers the edge.

Duke Defense Did Big Job

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — It must have been tough Saturday for the Duke offense, watching their defensive squad walk away from the Blue Devils' 28-16 victory over Navy with the bulk of the scoring honors.

George Gaudwin scored off a punt return, Earl Cook returned a blocked punt to the end zone and Bill King converted a pass interception into six points. The offense contributed great field position to the defensive squad.

"It was very frustrating," said offensive tackle Frank DeStefano. "We were moving in spurts and you can't have an offense like ours moving in spurts. The idea of our offense is to control the football and we weren't."

Part of the problem was probably quarterback Mike Dunn, who hurt his ankle against Virginia last week and was forced to favor it at the expense of his usual tackle-defying moves.

"The ankle felt good, but I twisted it early in the game," Dunn said. "The coach limited my play a little because of the ankle."

Dunn said he thought that with the lead in hand, the Blue Devils may have laid back a bit.

"The quarterback has to get keep 'em going and I didn't," he confessed. "It's going to fall on me this week to make sure the offensive line keeps its consistency and intensity throughout the game against South Carolina. I'll be at full speed for that game."

That assessment agreed with coach Mike McGee's.

"A lot of the errors came after the momentum had swung so strongly in our favor that it was beyond question that we could sustain ourselves downfield, although we didn't get the ball in."

Pack's Victory Was Sweet One

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — For North Carolina State's Wolfpack, with last season's 3-7-1 record still haunting them, Saturday's victory over conference Goliath Maryland was an event to be savored.

"I've never felt so good," said cornerback Tommy London. "In high school when you win a big game you think that's the greatest, but I've never been happier, playing any kind of ball, than I am right now."

"The losing is behind us now, we hope," he continued. "But we've still got to take the games one at a time to have a great season."

The Wolfpack's 24-20 victory over the Terps was the first Maryland loss in the last 21 tries.

"It wasn't very pretty," observed defensive coordinator Chuck Amato, "but I'm proud of the defense and the win."

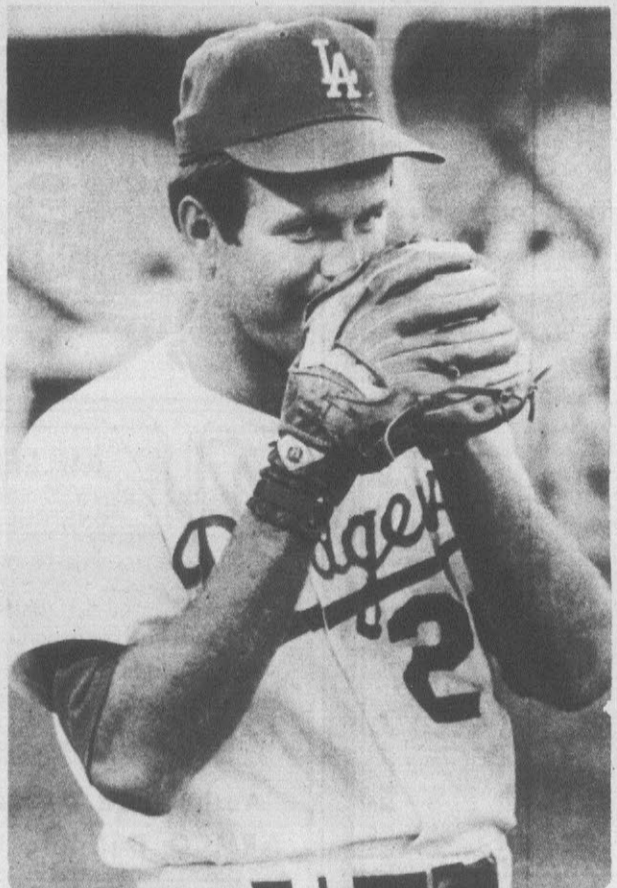

"In the first half we didn't play the sweeps like we wanted," Amato said. "But in the second half these kids really got after them and really their scores in the second half came off our fumbles."

"It's a young team," he went on. "But the seniors do come up with the big plays. A.W. Jenkins, Tommy London, Ralph Stringer, Richard Carter. For all the seniors this is the season they'll remember most."

"Carter came up with an interception, but Stringer may have set up the interception because he was closing in on the quarterback and forced him to throw," Amato said.

Jenkins' moment of glory came with three minutes left in the game when he charged through the Terps' line and pulled down running back Alvin Maddox for a two-yard loss, forcing a punt that began State's final scoring drive.

"Did I really do that," he asked later. "The thing I remember most and the thing that was the sweetest to me was when Johnny Evans went over that goal line for our last touchdown."

Readying For The Playoffs

64 Free Agents Look For End Of Rainbow

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
With the regular season over, the free-agent season can't be far behind. Like Christmas, that's the season to be jolly for a handful of players who can command high bidding for their services.

It's also the season of good cheer for teams that can fill weak spots by signing top-notch free agents without giving up comparable players. Of course, they will probably need a pile of green stuff as high as a giant Christmas tree.

As of today, there are potentially 64 players eligible for the second annual re-entry draft Nov. 4. (That figure does not include the two dozen or so players who were minor leaguers for all or much of the 1977 season.)

About a dozen of the 64 major leaguers can be considered blue-chippers who will stimulate the laws of economics and the competitive juices of the baseball owners looking for the winning edge.

Twenty-three of the 64 players snipped off their chains by not signing 1977 baseball contracts. The rest are six-year veterans whose contracts, signed after Aug. 9, 1976, expired after the current season.

Need a big home run hitter who will stop the pitchers from laughing at your powder-puff lineup?

You don't have to look much further than Richie Zisk (30 homers, 101 RBIs), Larry Hise (27 homers and an American League-leading 119 RBIs) or Dave Kingman (26 homers and 78 RBIs for four different teams this season.)

Zisk, Hise and Kingman, all outfielders, represent the top right-handed sluggers. If your lineup lacks a left-handed swinger who can bust fences and end ball games, Oscar Gamble is your man. Gamble, an outfielder, socked 31 homers for the Chicago White Sox and had a phenomenal slugging percentage of .586.

At 27, Gamble wouldn't be much of a risk. But he won't come cheap. Willie Stargell, the longtime left-handed lumberman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, would be more of a gamble since he is coming off an injury-plagued season, in which he totaled 13 homers in 63 games. He's also 36 years old.

These big guns wouldn't have loomed so big if the batters earlier in the lineup didn't get on base. That's the value of a Lyman Bostock, who batted .336 while scoring 105 runs and knocking in 90. Ralph Garretted .302 and scored 78 runs.

The minor leagues will have to provide the majors with new infield and catching talent. The free-agent infielders and catchers, not a pvt talented lot, aren't expected to arouse much interest.

There's no Don Gullett or Wayne Garland, a 20-game winner in 1976, in the list of free-agent pitchers. But Mike Torrez, a 17-game winner, Ross Grimsley and Doc Medich are respected hurlers who could make many teams' starting rotations.

The pitching plum may be Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh, one of the top relief specialists in the game. Gossage, a right-hander, won 11 games and saved 26 others while posting a stingy 1.62 earned run average this season.

Gossage is 26, as is Rawly Eastwick, last year's top reliever in the National League. Eastwick had contract troubles with Cincinnati and was traded in mid-June to St. Louis. Under the strain of contract difficulties, Eastwick slipped to 5-9 with 11 saves and a 3.90 ERA.

It takes time to make a great bourbon.

Making a good bourbon takes time. Making a great bourbon takes extra time. Time spent in charred oak barrels that imparts extra bouquet, mellowness and flavor.

Some bourbons are aged longer than others. Only a few like Ancient Age are in the barrel a full ten years.

The extra years change Ancient Age from a good bourbon to a great one.

It isn't easy to make. That's why it's so easy to enjoy.

'Fernwood' Has Not Forgotten

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When last seen, Mary Hartman had run off with Police Sgt. Dennis Foley. Then Barth Gimble came from Miami to Fernwood to host a summer talk show, "Fernwood 2-Night." Last Friday, Barth held a telethon to buy furniture for his show and raise legal defense funds. He then split for Miami to face vague charges, something about young girls.

Monday, life in tiny Fernwood returned to abnormal as "Forever Fernwood," Norman Lear's syndicated sequel to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," began seeking its place in American tube history. True, Louise Lasser, who played Mary for 325 episodes, was gone. And the show's theme music no longer featured the plaintive cry, "MARY Hartman! Mary Hartman!"

But producer Lear's split-level vision of daily soap opera — comic and cosmic — remains happily intact, as gently surreal as ever. And it's mighty good to see everyone back, at least for a 26-week trial run. Monday's opener brought MH-2 fans up to date during a guest visit by Rona Barrett. She runs Hollywood's Tell-All concession, but came to Fernwood when her plane had to make an emergency landing near town. She wound up in Fernwood's Capri Lounge with 12 hours to kill, during which time she helped recall past history in Fernwood, including Mary Hartman's departure with the good Sgt. Foley.

Among events unfolding with or without Rona's aid: —Mary's husband, Tom (Greg Mullavey), now lives in his station wagon, refuses to return to the house he and Mary once shared.

—The mayor (Dabney Coleman) was found guilty of graft and such by the city council. Stripped of his salary, he now lives in a $6-a-day motel, is flat broke and reduced to hawking his household goods, even "the mayor's comb," on the street to make ends meet.

—Country music star Loretta Haggers (Mary Kay Place) got drunk while on tour, wound up in bed with her young, handsome lighting man, but isn't guilty of infidelity to her husband (Graham Jarvis).

—Two attractive sisters (Shelley Farbares and Judy Kahan) moved to town. Shelley plays a tennis star made a "hopeless cripple" by a tennis accident. Judy, as the sister, can't stop stuttering unless she breaks something to relieve her frustration.

—Mary Hartman's father, George (Phil Bruns), underwent extensive plastic surgery because an accident at the

—The surgery changed this human ruin of middle age into a well, consider that Tab Hunter, the Tab Hunter, will be playing George for five or six more weeks.

There does seem less interest in Fernwood by TV stations with the departure of Mary Hartman from town. More than 100 outlets had signed for MH-2, compared to 31 listed for the sequel so far.

Still, I suspect the defectors will return once they see "Fernwood Forever." It has no Mary, but the waxy yellow buildup she began still is there, shiny as ever.

Will Open To Elvis' Fans

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fans of Elvis Presley will be permitted to walk through a garden at Graceland to visit the gravesites of the singer and his mother, beginning in mid-November.

Vernon Presley, the singer's father, said Monday the gates of the estate will be opened from "late morning to early afternoon" in about four or five weeks.

"We'll allow the public to view the gravesites during certain hours of the day after I can get them prepared and ready for viewing," Presley said.

During visiting hours, which have not been established, no one will be allowed "anywhere else on the grounds except the gravesite," he said, and security guards will be at the gravesites around the clock.

The copper coffins of the singer and Gladys Smith Presley were moved in two white hearses without disruption from the mausoleum at Forest Hill Cemetery to the mansion grounds Sunday night.

"One of my reasons for moving them from the cemetery was that the fans were not able to get inside the mausoleum and it was disturbing the other visitors," Presley said.

"I think the public should be allowed to view the gravesites and it's just like I made the decision to allow the public and fans to view the body before he was entombed."

Officials estimate that more than one million people have visited Graceland's gates since Presley died Aug. 16.

The graves are in a landscaped area near the southern boundary of the estate just south of the swimming pool and are between a fountain and a crescent-shaped stone wall containing four stained glass windows depicting religious scenes.

Presley said the graves will be covered with granite, bronze or marble before the public is allowed to view the gravesites. The statue of Jesus which stood over Mrs. Presley's grave at Forest Hill will be cleaned, repaired and placed nearby.

The singer was entombed in the mausoleum two days after his death. His mother's body, buried at the cemetery in 1958, was later moved into the mausoleum.

Presley was 42 at his death, his mother was 46.

Bad Reviews From Plains

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — "Carter Country" doesn't look a bit like Carter Country, say people in President Carter's home town.

"Carter Country," a new television comedy which features a white Southern sheriff and a black deputy from New York, was panned by many Plains residents surveyed by a local weekly paper, The Plains Monitor.

Some thought it was comical and others called it disgusting, but almost no one said the television show resembled real-life happenings here.

Most of those surveyed said they hadn't seen the show. Others compared it to "Barney Miller," another situation comedy about dim-witted cops.

Police officer Errol Hart said the show needed a star like Andy Griffith to make it click, while the President's mother, "Miss Lillian" Carter, said, "I hate it! I don't see a thing that looks like Carter Country in it."

Mayor A.L. Blanton said he saw only the opening episode, and he didn't like it.

"My reaction to 'Carter Country' is that it won't last too long. No similarity to anything around here — not that I know of anyway," Blanton said. "This particular show will not help Plains. It's corny — it doesn't show the true picture of the Plains area. My advice to the producers is 'Take it off the air!'"

High Tar No Longer Essential To Taste.

Tests prove low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes.

For years, it seemed the only way to get real taste from a cigarette was to smoke a high tar brand.

High tar cigarettes had an "exclusive" on taste.

Today, all the standards are changing because of a new taste breakthrough called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke and proven to deliver flavor way out of proportion to tar.

© Philip Morris Inc. 1977

Kings: 8 mg. tar, 0.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec. '76 100's: 12 mg. tar, 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Test Data Conclusive

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. Thousands of smokers were involved.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
