red dress. Approximately two hundred people, mostly Grifton citizens gathered at a public meeting in the Ayden-Grifton High School Auditorium to voice their opinions about the proposed merger of the Ayden and Grifton middle schools.

The majority of the crowd expressed opposition to the consolidation. And the Pitt County Board of Education, headed by Mark Owens, sat at a long table in front of the auditorium listening to the opposition.

George Saleeby, the opening speaker who led the fight against the merger, summarized the reasons that Grifton residents are against it.

"We're concerned about the welfare and education of our children in the Grifton and Ayden area.

"We feel that the sentiments of the parents have not been considered. This is the reason that we are here tonight," said Saleeby.

He added that concerned parents do not think that the board has considered enough data regarding the disadvantages of the merger.

Saleeby presented a packet of information which was compiled by the SOS group.

"We've had over 200 people working to stop consolidation.

"We want our school left in Grifton," he continued.

According to Saleeby, the two major factors used in determining the need for the merger were a decline in attendance and the population projection for the Ayden-Grifton area.

He noted that the data behind these factors which was listed in a state survey booklet was incorrect.

"It's time that you as leaders of the county consider, not what comes from Raleigh, but what we the people who have the information concerning the best interest of the children believe."

Ed Hasley, who spoke on the inconsistencies in the state survey and population projected for the area, said that the citizens had been presented with very few facts.

He added that the population projection contained one mathematical error that "throws it off 70 percent." Hasley computed the equation again, saying that in doing so there was "no significant decline in population in the school grades."

"I don't see a decline in population."

He also said that the

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, sidestepping a controversial American-Soviet declaration, announced today he and President Carter have agreed on a tentative formula for holding a Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Dayan, facing reporters in the early hours of the morning following marathon talks with Carter, emphasized the formula must be accepted by his government and by Israel's Arab neighbors. He said it might well be amended in the process.

The surprise announcement was coupled with the reading by White House spokesman Jody Powell of a joint statement that pushed into the background last Saturday's American-Soviet declaration of principles intended as a guide for a Geneva conference.

The Carter-approved statement specified that acceptance of the American-Soviet initiative, which angered Israeli officials and set off shock waves among that nation's American supporters, "is not a prerequisite for the reconvening and conduct of the Geneva conference."

The statement said the United States and Israel agreed that 1967 and 1973 United Nations Security Council resolutions aimed at promoting a Middle East settlement "remain the agreed basis for the resumption of the Geneva peace conference."

While the American-Soviet declaration was not nullified, it clearly was pushed aside by Carter and Dayan, although the Israeli diplomat acknowledged that "politically it will still have its impact."

"We criticize and we do not accept many of its provisions," he declared.

Dayan said he would recommend that his government approve a working paper that would, if accepted by other nations involved, become "the agreed procedures for the Geneva peace conference." He said he expected early action by Israel.

"It is something we have been working on a long time," said Dayan. Powell told reporters the working paper already has been discussed with Arab officials and announced that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will be holding further discussions about it with the Arabs.

In talking to reporters, Dayan volunteered a hint that Lebanon might be added to the list of participants in the Geneva conference. As far as Israel is concerned, he said, "Lebanon can come in."

Carter was scheduled to meet with Lebanon's foreign minister this afternoon before returning to Washington following a twoday New York visit that featured talks with Dayan and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and an address to the United Nations General Assembly.

One of Israel's objections to the American-Soviet declaration was their interpretation that it would call for acceptance of a Palestinian state. The declaration referred to "the legitimate rights of the Palestinians" — a phrase Carter used for the first time in his U.N. address.

PLAYGROUND ITEMS NEEDED

I am on the Building and Grounds Committee of Sadie Sauter School. At a recent meeting we learned that the school is very much in need of athletic equipment for the children and the funds are low and the prices are outrageous. We were wondering if there are any people in this area who have extra sports equipment they might be willing to donate. Among the things our school could use are a volleyball net, volleyballs, deck tennis rings, footballs, soccer balls, basketballs, large rubber balls, an air pump for inflating balls, bats, softball, and an old military parachute. Anyone able and willing to share with the school may leave the items at the school between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. any weekday or may call Mrs. Smith at 756-2596.

Pitt School Board Told Line Was Never Settled

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

The crux of the disputed Lake Ellsworth school line issue rests on the question of whether the boundary has changed since 1941, when the line separating the county and city school districts was established.

C.W. Everett, a local attorney representing the Pitt County Board of Education in the dispute, told the board Tuesday during its regular monthly meeting that as far as he can determine the issue has never been settled legally.

"There must be a petition, a vote, an agreement by the two school boards and approval by the state Board of Education for it to be legal," Everett said. "Since 1941, we can't find where it's been done for sure."

The minutes of the September, 1941 Pitt County Board of Education and a tax district description prepared by the county attorney in 1965 spell out the Greenville school district line with approximately 80 percent of the Patrick Farm (now Lake Ellsworth) falling in the county school district and the remaining 20 percent in the city.

"In order for the Greenville school district to grow any, it must annex county attendance areas," the attorney said. "As far as can be determined, there is no evidence these areas have been annexed by the city."

"There was a petition and a vote, but whether there was an agreement between the two school boards and whether it was submitted to the state board for approval has not been determined." Two factors have contributed to confusion over the disputed line, he said.

"Rapid growth of the city has generated pressure for citizens of the enlarged city to go to city schools. Also, an agreement for the free transfer of students across boundary lines added to the confusion," he said.

Pitt County Superintendent Ott Alford intervened and said: "The free transfer of students continued to be done without conflict until this year when the city said city students could not go to county schools."

The second source of confusion, Everett said, is the "propensity of the Greenville taxing unit to pick up lands on outlying districts and tax them in the Greenville school district. Some tracts of land as far as a mile or so outside the city limits have been taxed inside the city limits."

"Once these school district lines are established they can only be changed by laws; no other factors are involved—what the people do or how they are taxed," he said.

"It would appear to me, and it's my opinion, this line across Patrick farm divides Lake Ellsworth. It seems to me it would be appropriate for the county and city schools districts to sit down and make it legal," he added.

Superintendent Alford told the board that in January of 1975 question was raised with regard to whether Lake Ellsworth was in the city or county school district.

"Sometime later an employee of the tax department called and in the

City Council Candidates Voiced Views

By STUART SAVAGE

Candidates for the six seats on the Greenville City Council — 18 of them in all, including the six incumbents — appeared at the League of Women Voters-sponsored Candidates' Forum last night to voice their views of the needs of the city and how they can best be met, and to respond to questions posed to them by members of the audience.

Long range planning for orderly growth and development, improved fire and police protection, expanded public transportation service, and improved cooperation between the city and county governments and East Carolina University, along with more control of the Greenville Utilities Commission and improved opportunities for Greenville children, both in the area of schools and recreation, seemed to be the prime concerns of the candidates.

However, none of the council hopefuls gave any firm ways to solve the problems.

Speaking in alphabetical order, the candidates for the half-dozen council seats were allowed four minutes to express their views, then faced a four-minute period of questions.

Candidate John Bizzell listed four-lane highways, new industry to provide jobs for unskilled labor, and more and better housing as prime concerns, along with additional street lighting, sidewalks and seeing a black appointed to the Utilities Commission, among his concerns.

Della Dayson, among other things, said in her opinion the city's blue law should be repealed. Other candidates, including Lewis Evans and William Ipock agreed, with candidate Judy Greene saying "I feel the citizens should decide."

Mrs. Dayson termed the law "archaic" and said, "the blue law is impossible to enforce," while Ipock said, "I don't think the city should dictate the shopping habits," of its citizens.

Eugene (Rocky) Fallon emphasized that one of his main concerns is the high turnover in the police and fire departments, suggesting that higher salaries might keep trained employees on the job.

Fallon noted that firefighters make less than policemen and transit authority drivers.

Incumbent Frank Fuller, who said he favors the appointment of a woman to the Utilities Commission, said he thought the merger of the county and city governments in Pitt County "is a different situation" when asked by Greenville Board of Education chairman Henry Dunn, "in the event County Commissioners succeed in their efforts to merge," the city and county school systems, how long will it be before a merger of the city and county governments.

Incumbent Clarence Gray, in addition to other things, said he favors "a better human relations program," conservation of the city's environmental resources and the installation of warning lights at railroad crossings throughout the city.

Judy Greene, who termed Greenville "a wonderful and enticing city in which to live," expressed support for preserving historic sites throughout the city and more participation by the citizens of the city in government.

"Representative government," she noted, "comes about only when people get involved."

Council incumbent William Hadden indicated that the availability of ample parking is an important need, along with the preservation and planting of trees and other greenery.

Hadden also felt a need to increase "people programs, citing Volunteer Greenville and Sunday in the Park as examples, and the need to "triple the Inspections Department" staff so dwellings could be inspected on a routine basis along with public buildings.

Harry Hagerty, who is seeking a seat on the council after serving for more than 11 years as Greenville city manager, said he is "intensely interested in the city," and it's "complex problems." He noted, "there are no simple solutions...only intelligent choices," to resolve the problems.

"Maximum service for the least practicable tax dollar," Haggerty said, was his goal, "...eliminate waste and duplication...conserve energy."

Incumbent John Howard emphasized that "long range planning is an absolute necessity" for orderly growth of the city and said the city's thorough fare plan, "needs constant study," and updating. Greenville has a good city students' grades in Ayden and Grifton were higher and were reflected in various standardized testing.

Another point that the opposition said was used in the Board's Aug. 5 decision to consolidate was teacher utilization.

Cheryl Dumelow, speaking for the opposition, expressed her opinion that better teacher utilization will not be found in a consolidated school.

She noted a need for close teacher-pupil relations, which she said were only possible in the atmosphere of a small institution.

"If we (Grifton Elementary) have problems with teacher utilization...it doesn't show up in testing."

Ed Bright of Pitt Technical Institute, a Grifton resident, called the recent concern for merger, not only on the local level, but also on a national level, a "phase."

"I think we're looking at a much different thing when we're looking at the consolidation of the elementary grades."

He emphasized a feeling that consolidation would move from the middle school level to the lower grades.

Virginia Chambers, a mother of three children and a student herself, spoke on the welfare of the children, and specifically, the K-5 children that would be left behind in Grifton should the merger take place.

"Is counselling solely provided for K-5?"

According to Chambers, if children are not treated for emotional handicaps at an early age, "what good will all these new programs at the consolidated school do for them?"

Mayor Dave Bosley of Grifton called the merger a "traumatic experience" for the children.

"Is it likely that such a change will have all advantages and no disadvantages?"

He also said that by adding new programs at the proposed school, such as music and better athletics, the school would be taking away from the education of the students.

George Saleeby then summarized with this sentiment.

"I would request of you (Board) to talk to the people. It's apparent that people haven't been contacted by the Advisory Council.

"We've done what we can. By God, all we ask is that you do something for us," he concluded.

Proponents for the merger were then given a chance to speak.

Joe Paget, a member of the Advisory Council, stated that the opposition should consider the welfare of the children.

"The Advisory Council is thinking of the education of the children and their further education. Don't be near-sighted and just look at the next three years," he continued.

He said that the population of the Ayden-Grifton area was growing but that the number of school age children was, in fact, decreasing as was stated in the state survey.

A local teacher for the 7-8 grades in Grifton, Faye Edwards said that better teacher utilization could be affected through the merger. She teaches four groups of children and makes six lesson plans each night.

Edwards also stated that concerned parents should be willing to travel three miles to the new school in order to support their children.

"I want to know if moving a school three miles, using the same teaching staff, is going to make a change in achievement scores?"

At the conclusion of the public meeting, Mark Owens, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education, stood and spoke for the Board.

"This Board was not obligated to come and listen tonight. We came out of concern for the children.

"We came here to volunteer with open minds. I feel that it should be studied. It should not be voted upon tonight...in order to secure accurate deliberation...and to allow the Board to respond as they see fit."

Owens did not say at what time the Board will deliver its decision.

Said Based On Intuition

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A state official says reports earlier this week that North Carolina's oyster crop this year would be less than in 1976 were based more on intuition than knowledge.

That's because nobody has surveyed the state's oyster resources since a Navy lieutenant did in 1889.

"It's good historical reading, but not useful any more," says Pentress Munden of the state Wildlife Fisheries office. "We hope now to come up with a workable survey so we can say what the economic impact is if a certain creek in Carteret County is closed."

Munden says his office has received a three-year federal grant of $600,000, part of which will be used to conduct a new survey and monitoring program.

"We want to be able to assign values to the resources. Then if someone wants to put a trailer lot on a site or dredge out their creek, we'll know what resources are lost," Munden says. "We want to be able to manage the beds."

Munden added that North Carolina's oyster industry, while far smaller than its counterparts in Virginia or Maryland, is more stable and does not have to contend with the heavy industrial pollution that they do.

"Most of our problems are related directly to humans — trailer courts, sewage. Those problems can be solved. But if it's kepone (a chemical pollutant), that remains for years," he said.

council, Ed Howell said, but emphasized, "I think it can be improved by electing me."

He proposed that the utilities commission be eliminated and the utilities operation be placed under "the control of the City of Greenville" in an effort to eliminate duplication and become more efficient.

Howell replied "yes mmm," when asked if he thought the Utilities Commission "serves as a rubber stamp" for what the professional staff of the utilities wants to do.

Hopeful William Ipock indicated he thought the city should take a stand against pornography, but said he would have to weigh the cost versus the benefits of bikeways throughout the city before supporting such a program, while Matthew Lewis indicated his prime concern was, "more jobs...deversified industry" that would provide employment for unskilled labor.

Incumbent Millie McGrath said, "the quality of life in Greenville," must be improved. "We must plan for the future while coping with the present."

She proposed extending the extra-territorial jurisdiction to the three mile limit where possible, and establishing "a green belt" around the city to make it more attractive in years to come.

Mrs. McGrath also said, "I think we should sell the electric system," which serves outlying areas and concentrate on providing improved service to city residents, while making every effort to keep utility bills from going higher.

Willis Stancill said in his opinion, other candidates "missed one key thing...the people...the people make cities...the people come first."

Saying "somebody has to stand up for the rights of the people," Stancill said his prime objective is "helping people."

Incumbent Joseph Taft expressed support for increasing professionalism among the Fire and Police Departments and making efforts to increase communications between city government and the citizens.

"This is an exciting town. It's fun being a part of this," Charles Vincent said. "We have to shape it...mold it... give it the character we want. We must take stock in ourselves... we must plan," he emphasized.

He noted that recruitment of industry and closer working relations with county government are important factors in the development of the city and surrounding area.

Glenn Willingham, the final candidate for the council, said, "we need a civic center in this area," along with youth involvement. We're not allowing the children to have a recreation center of their own," he charged.

He noted that the "cultural aspects" of life should receive more emphasis in the community, and suggested a communications system should be established for city employees so they would be more familiar with what the city government is doing.

Mayor Percy Cox, who is unopposed for reelection, appeared at the Forum and outlined some of the accomplishments of the present city council, over the past two years.

Cox said a cable television program should be in operation in the next few months, and proposed that city council meetings and meetings of the Board of County Commissioners should be televised.

Cox, responding to questions, said, "I don't foresee any increase at this time," in the city tax rate.

Found Success In Police Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Simon, writer and singer of songs, player of the 12-string guitar and sometime actor, now has dabbled in police work with the same success he had in those other fields.

It was about 2 a.m. Tuesday when Simon heard a racket outside his door. He went to investigate and saw a man with a gun in the hallway.

Police say the man, armed with an automatic pistol, walked up to doorman Jim Kelly, 20, at the Central Park West luxury apartment house and demanded to be taken to apartments where he could find "diamonds or cash."

Kelly first took the gunman to the 12th floor where all the apartments were empty. Angry and frustrated, the robber forced Kelly back into the elevator and down to the second floor where Simon lives. He rang the rear doorbell of Simon's apartment.

Curious about the unexpected caller, Simon walked down to the lower level of his duplex apartment and opened the rear door. There he saw Kelly and the gunman.

When the gunman was momentarily distracted by a passerby, Kelly knocked the pistol from the gunman's hand. The would-be robber pulled a knife, menaced those around him, and fled.

But Simon, 36, was hard on his heels. He hailed a taxi and drove to a subway station opposite Lincoln Center in midtown, and found two Transit Authority policemen.

The officers went to the apartment house in their patrol car, picked up Kelly and searched the neighborhood.

At 72nd Street and Broadway, they arrested a man identified as Gary Braverman, 32, of the Bronx.

Service League Members Hear Robert Beddard

Robert Beddard, of the Greenville Rescue Squad, presented the program at the meeting of the Greenville Service League held Monday at Elm Street Recreation Center.

Introduced by Mrs. Charles Carter, Civil Defense chairman, Beddard informed members of the requirements of the C.P.R. courses offered by the rescue squad for league members. He demonstrated the basic cardiac life support techniques and offered members the opportunity to sign up for the course.

Following the program, Mrs. Leon Moore, president, heard the following committee reports: Mrs. Thomas Mallison, Laughinghouse Fund chairman, reported one call for funds had been answered; Mrs. Frank Longino reported two calls for aid had been answered from the Emergency Charities Fund. Layettes Chairman Mrs. William McConnell said that two layettes had been delivered to the Department of Social Services and she secured volunteers to help make winter layettes.

Mrs. Al Ferguson, Bloodmobile chairman, announced the next visit will be Oct. 25-27 at East Carolina University.

She reviewed members on new procedures to be used by the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

Mrs. William Reading reported the hospital chapel was now in service again and she asked for volunteers to maintain it.

Mrs. Eddie Smith, Finance chairman, introduced Mrs. Boyd Lee, 1978 Charity Ball chairman. Mrs. Lee introduced her ball committee chairmen.

Mrs. Don McGlohn announced a workshop on Oct. 10 to make Halloween favors for the hospital.

1 pound snap beans, tipped and cut in 1-inch lengths
2 tablespoons butter
Medium onion, chopped fine (1/2 cup)
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons chicken bouillon granules dissolved in 1 and 1/3 cups hot water
3/4 pound (about) seedless

green grapes, stemmed, to make 2 cups

In a medium saucepan boil the beans in about 1 cup boiling water, covered, just until tender — 8 to 15 minutes; drain if necessary and reserve. Melt the butter in the clean empty saucepan and add the onion; cook gently until wilted; stir in the flour, then the sugar and lemon juice; gradually stir in the bouillon; cook gently, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in the beans and grapes and reheat. Makes 6 servings.

Marinating flank steak before broiling helps tenderize and flavor it. Lemon juice, oil, salt and pepper plus herbs make an excellent marinade.

Special Parking Plates Made For Handicapped

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you printed a letter from a person with heart trouble, diabetes, etc. He said he got dirty looks from people because he didn't look handicapped but parked in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped" so that he wouldn't need to walk great distances.

He's lucky he didn't get ticketed or have his car towed away!

In California, all a handicapped person needs is a letter from his doctor, and the Department of Motor Vehicles will give him special plates that entitle him to park in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped." He may also park by parking meters free.

One argument against these plates is that muggers tend to spot victims by their cars and lay in wait for them. So for those who feel threatened, placards that can be removed in isolated or high-risk neighborhoods are available.

Please print my letter because many handicapped people may not know this, and your column would be a good place to publicize it.

STAN IN SACTO

DEAR STAN: Thanks to you and to the others who wrote. Most states provide special plates (free) for the handicapped, but the laws and penalties for violations differ from state to state, so I urge those with handicaps (visible and otherwise) to inquire at their local D.M.V. offices. Parents of handicapped children may also apply for special plates and placards.

DEAR ABBY: Thought maybe you'd like to see an item that appeared in the REGISTER-GUARD, a newspaper in Eugene, Ore., that carries your column:

"In her column the other day, Dear Abby talked about sexism in the weather. Hurricanes are named for girls in alphabetical order. The year's first usually has a name like Abby, followed by Bertha, Candice, Debbie, Emma, Fern, Griselda, Hattie and so on through Zelda.

"It would be possible to name them for boys: Abner, Buster, Chuck, Darwin, Ed, Fred, Geoffrey, Hank, Isadore and on through Zachary.

"But the battle of the sexes would cool off if the names were devoid of gender. Try adversity, brutality, calamity, destructibility, emergency, fitfully, grisly, and on through zowie."

ABBY FAN IN EUGENE

DEAR FAN: I don't object to having a hurricane named after me. Especially since alphabetically Abby is always No. 1.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

No Reason For Lengthy Drive

Officials and volunteers for this year's United Fund kicked off the drive last week at a luncheon. The 100 or so in attendance was the largest ever for the kick-off session, President Tom Taft said.

The United Fund has a goal of $272,465 for this year's drive, up considerably from last year's goal of $248,418.

It is, however, a realistic goal and one that we should meet considering the number of agencies participating in United Fund and the benefit that they are to the community.

Jerry Powell, this year's campaign chairman, urged the staff to move quickly with the solicitations. He set the end of October as target date for closing out the United Fund drive.

That goal, too, should be realistic. There is no reason for the campaign to drag out and we can meet the goal by the end of the month, if everyone will cooperate.

Businesses and citizens should give promptly when they are contacted by a volunteer worker. Let's provide the funds that the participating agencies need without delay.

Frequently They Prove Best Workers

National Employ the Handicapped Week is a good time for any employer to look over his personnel needs with an eye toward hiring handicapped workers.

Jim Hannon, manager of the Employment

Security Commission, said, "We hope to convince employers that physical impairments do not equate with job impairments."

Handicapped people frequently make the best workers — and that's good business.

'Flagship' At Chapel Hill

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)
CHAPEL HILL — One of the most emphatic refrains heard as debate goes on about future directions for the University of North Carolina is, "There will always be a Chapel Hill."

One of the most pronounced fears among many opponents to new programs at other campuses in the 16-member university system is the fear that Chapel Hill will be diminished in the process.

Not so, say university officials. The first, biggest, and most prestigious member of the family will continue to have the array of offerings which make it the flagship.

For one thing, the investment in equipment, facilities, and programs is already in hand. For another, duplicating such investments at other campuses would be prohibitively expensive and in many cases would not serve sufficient numbers of students to warrant the investment.

Additionally, there is simply no way another campus could assemble the range of programs and offerings found at Chapel Hill — even if the politics brought to bear upon some programs were absent (the East Carolina Medical School controversy, for example).

Another Way
There is another way, however, of bringing to the reach of North Carolinians all across the state a broader range of university offerings without having to duplicate Chapel Hill in several different locations: regionalization of the university system, and the creation of coordinating councils.

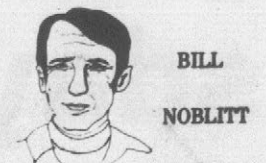

George Watts Hill of Durham, a longtime friend of the university and veteran decision-maker on the Board of Governors, sees the system moving toward a truly universal system of higher education dedicated to cooperative performance in service to students and citizens.

Regionalization is one of the factors, Hill says. While no single campus could offer the entire range of programs, different institutions within certain regions of the state could.

Such distribution of programs is specifically recommended in the Teacher Education Review Program now under study by the Board of Governors, and while the suggestion applies in this case to teacher training, university officials see the directions reaching into other university programs.

Here is the report comment on distribution: "It is recommended that the distribution of teacher education degree programs necessary for (preparation) be carefully planned and maintained to assure access to quality programs." That section calls for particular programs in certain regions of the state.

BILL NOBLITT

Other Programs
Similar approaches in other fields of university training would work equally as well, university officials believe.

Coordination is the other key element, and several recommendations in the teacher review book speak to the issue, and again are applicable to other programs as well.

There is a need for regular coordination between the users of university graduates and the schools training them; for coordination between the schools, the institutions, and the central staff; and for coordination of planning.

Each institution should review its own mission in relation to others in the state to develop "clear goals and objectives . . . in terms of institutional mission, the needs . . . in North Carolina, and the limited . . . resources in the University . . ."

The point is strongly made that such regular review and planning should be performed by existing university personnel.

"We have the talent here to do this, and with no added cost," says Donald J. Stedman, director of the teacher review. "We tend to bring in people from out of state, while some of our people spend a lot of time in Idaho," he commented in suggesting a program of research and evaluation for member institutions.

West Point's Laugh-In

WASHINGTON—A Pentagon commission has just released a study recommending, among other things, that West Point cadets develop a sense of humor, something it found the academy was lacking. As anyone who has dealt with military officers knows, this is easier said than done. But I'm sure that if the Pentagon recommends it, West Point will give it the old school try.

"All right, cadets, we will now devote the next hour to developing a sense of humor. Brinckley, are you prepared?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!"

"At ease, Brinckley. You don't have to stand at attention. Just tell us a joke"

"A WHAT, SIR????!!!"

"A joke. You know, something to make us all laugh."

"YESSIR!!!!!!!"

"Well, go ahead, Brinckley."

"IN THE ARMY THERE ARE THREE KINDS OF FOOLS, SIR. FOOLS, DAMNED FOOLS AND VOLUNTEERS."

"Very good, Brinckley. Very amusing. What is it, Grunback?"

"SIR, I TOLD BRINCKLEY THAT JOKE LAST NIGHT IN THE MESS HALL. HE STOLE IT FROM ME"

"If that's true, Brinckley, this is a serious violation of the Honor Code. West Point has a rule that a cadet will not lie, cheat or steal a joke from another cadet."

"SIR, GRUNBACK HEARD THAT JOKE FROM SOMEONE IN THE SECOND BATTALION. HE STOLE IT FROM THEM."

"Why didn't you report it under the rules of the Honor Code?"

"I INTENDED TO, SIR, IF IT DIDN'T GET A LAUGH."

"That's not very funny, Brinckley. I'm afraid you'll have to go on report. The academy will not condone a joke stealing, nor the failure to report another cadet who stole one. When you lead men into battle, they will expect you to make up your own jokes, and they will not follow an officer who takes jokes from someone else in the field. Have I made myself clear?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!"

"All right, now let's keep our sense of humor in spite of this tragic affair. O'Reilly, can you make the class laugh?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!"

"Well, go to it."

O'Reilly takes a banana cream pie out from under his desk and flings it into the captain's face. The captain, wiping the cream off his starched uniform, says, "That was very good, O'Reilly. I'm giving you an A in the course."

"THANK YOU SIR!!!!!!!"

"I am also going to have you court-martialed for striking an officer, insubordination and insulting the uniform of the United States Army under Article 12, Section 8 of the Military Code."

"BUT SIR, YOU TOLD ME TO MAKE THE CLASS LAUGH. THEY'RE HYSTERICAL."

"Good, then I am also adding the charge of mutiny. What is it Grimstead?"

"SIR, YOU STILL HAVE SOME WHIPPED CREAM IN YOUR LEFT NOSTRIL."

"Do you want to go to Leavenworth, too?"

"NO SIR, THAT WAS A JOKE. I JUST MADE IT UP."

"How would you like to march around the parade (Continued on page 5)

Gamble May Not Pay Off

BY BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The unprecedented decision by the United States to join the Soviet Union in promoting a Geneva peace conference based on Palestinians' "legitimate rights" represents a gamble by the Carter administration. It may not pay off.

What the President and his closest advisers are betting is that Israel, having no big ally other than the United States, will sit down against its better judgment and negotiate a homeland for the Palestinians.

The investive directed at Israel during the current U.N. General Assembly session in New York by the Communist and Arab blocs and the so-called Third World dramatizes the loneliness of the Jewish state on the world scene.

But despite its unique military and economic reliance on this country, Israel remains a sovereign state. It could decide that disagreement with the United States is less of a risk than a Soviet-backed Palestinian state run by the Palestine Liberation Organization on its border.

If Israel chooses to buck Jimmy Carter, as its initial negative response to the U.S.-Soviet formula suggests it may, then the President's strategy urged on him by proponents of an "even-handed policy" in the Middle East will have backfired.

Carter might have his Geneva conference by Christmas but without substantive negotiations.

If the pressure tactics work, however, the President will be hailed in much of the world for overcoming Israeli resistance and viewed at home as a determined leader who achieved a breakthrough in the Middle East.

There was little reason to suspect as Carter campaigned for the White House that he would be so tough on Israel or that so many differences would develop between the two countries. He needed Gerald Ford and the Republican administration for delaying arms shipments and for making Israel the 'scapegoat' of U.S. Middle East policy.

Once on the job, however, Carter adopted the view of Arab specialists in the State Department and a key White House adviser that Palestinians posed not only a refugee problem but were an identifiable people who deserved a homeland carved out of Israeli-held territory.

Carter also became convinced that Egypt, Jordan and Syria as well as their banker, Saudi Arabia, were finally resolved after four wars to a Jewish state in a Moslem world provided Israel returned virtually all the territory the Arabs lost in 1967.

The onus was put on Israel to relinquish the land, though there was no peace before 1967 when it was in Arab hands.

The Israeli government is prepared to test the theory that its neighbors want peace by negotiating treaties with them at Geneva. The alternative is a continued state of war debilitating to the Israeli and Egyptian economies. But Israel says it will not negotiate with the PLO, the sponsor of terrorist raids against Israeli civilians.

Other Editors Say: Parleys Flounder

(Kinston Free Press)

The three-mile limit was originally established a few centuries ago, we are told, because it was as far as cannons of the time could fire out to sea.

In other words, international law regarding freedom of the seas was less a matter of agreement by other countries of the world that the oceans were a common highway than it was a measure of their ability to molest each other.

We have since progressed to the point where, in 1970, the United Nations declared the resources on the floor of the sea itself were "the common heritage of mankind."

Yet for the past eight years, 156 countries participating in law of the sea conferences have been unable to reach agreement on putting that noble principle into international law.

At stake are untold billions of dollars worth of manganese nodules—little potato-shaped accretions scattered over the ocean floor at great depths—which also contain nickel, copper and cobalt.

A treaty seemed within reach only a few days ago. Other issues in the treaty "package" had been resolved, such as fishing rights, offshore oil exploration, pollution control and the like.

Unfortunately, the seabed minerals issue has foundered on a move by certain Third World countries — some of them land-based producers of the minerals involved—to make undersea mining entirely a U.N. monopoly run by the U.N. bureaucrats.

They also would limit the growth of mining and possibly require private industry to turn over its mining know-how to the United Nations as a condition for mining rights. All of which caused normally unflappable Elliot Richardson, American ambassador to the conference, to throw up his hands and suggest that the United States consider withdrawing from the deliberations.

Eight years is long enough to spend trying to reason with the countries of the Third World, many of which have shown themselves to be as greedy and exploitive as any 19th-century colonial power.

40 Years Ago Today

October 5, 1937
Government housing officials, as proud of their low rent dwellings as any young bride, said they would welcome a chance to show the Duke of Windsor how the United States has tackled its housing problem.

The Duke, accompanied by his American-born Duchess, was expected to leave Paris for a study of housing and labor conditions in Germany and this country.

From Stewart McDonald, FHA administrator, came a statement "we will give all cooperation and will make available to the Duke and Duchess all facilities of the FHA."

President Roosevelt bitterly arraigned aggressor nations before the bar of world opinion and called on peace-loving countries to join in a "concerted effort" to restore international tranquility.

Speaking out formally and aggressively on foreign affairs for the first time in months, but withholding any definite proposal for an international conference or invocation of peace pacts, he asserted in dedicating the outer link bridge in Chicago:

"There must be positive endeavor to preserve peace."

Strength For Today

THE BASIS OF FREEDOM
These words of Jesus are familiar to everyone, but many people miss the point of the Master's declaration because they emphasize the word "free" instead of the word "truth."

People think so much about their freedom that quite naturally as they read this statement of Christ they emphasize the word in which they are most interested. But it may well be that when Christ first spoke the words to his disciples, his emphasis was on "truth." It is truth that makes us free. Men can be born politically free—that is, they live under governments of their own choosing and enjoy protected human rights. But the inner freedom Jesus was speaking about is one which comes only to those who bow in submission to the dictates of spiritual truth.

People may live in a democratic society, but if they have false or warped ideas about God and the universe, their freedom is limited and will never blossom into the glorious liberty of the after life.

Signs Of Activity To Come

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Just when a lot of people were getting accustomed to the notion that the nation's economy was sinking into a quagmire, a few reports were issued that tend to riddle the notion:

—Machine tool orders, or orders for equipment that will be used in making other goods, spurred in August after declining in June.

—The level of orders at the nation's factories rose in August for the first time since May.

—The Index of Leading Economic Indicators also rose in the same months after having declined for two months earlier this year — and three straight until the July figures were revised from a minus to a plus. What all these indicators share in common is the future; they are all indicators of further economic activity. They represent commitments to that activity.

There is additional evidence of some underlying strength in some of the other individual indicators. Capital spending plans are moving up. So are building permits. Again, these are signs of activity to come.

It doesn't take much to change the kaleidoscopic pattern of the economy, just a one-month shakeup of the indicators. The change can develop with remarkable speed.

The stock market, for instance, is one of those leading economic indicators. When other components of the leading index show strength the stock market is inclined to rise as a consequence. And in rising, it contributes further to a rise in the index, of which it is a component.

A one-month rise after three months of weakness might not be enough to dispel the fog and drizzle that has been dampening Wall Street's outlook, but it should quiet for the time being some of the fog horns of disaster.

For months, their gloomy voices have been telling a tale of woe to come, of an international economy mired in recession, of inflation raging throughout the world, of problems beyond our ability to deal with.

To deny there are serious problems is to close the eyes to reality.

To name a few: teen-age unemployment, the plight of the debt-ridden poorer nations, the difficulty of maintaining free trade when jobs are lost to unfair competition, overregulation, underutilization of capacity.

The stock market, which is supposed to represent the investment community's attitude toward the future, is a special case of its own, depressed for reasons that many experts are at a loss to explain.

There are serious social and economic problems that seldom catch the headlines. The difficulties involved in starting a small business, for example. The lack of training programs to facilitate the employment of youngsters.

But to gather all the problems into a patchwork quilt and then try to spread it over the entire economy is just as unrealistic.

Those recent expressions of confidence in the economic future, for example, cannot be covered by the blanket. They protrude.

New orders at the nation's factories, a healthy level of building permits, orders for new machine tools, and financial commitments to new plants and equipment are the reality — or else the money so committed doesn't mean a thing.

Moderator Is Re-Elected

SIMPSON — The Rev. J. R. Person was unanimously re-elected Moderator of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association at the Association's 112th annual session at Phillippi Church here Saturday.

Other officers elected were the Rev. N. K. Dunn, vice moderator; the Rev. J. B. Crandol, secretary; the Rev. R. A. Morris, assistant secretary; the Rev. J. H. Hyman, treasurer; the Rev. J. H. Taylor, auditor; and the Rev. O. J. Rooks, historian. Dr. O. B. J. Burson, pastor of Trinity

Baptist Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., presided over the election. Dr. Burson delivered a sermon on the Prodigal Son. In his preliminary remarks, he congratulated the Association on its progress and its contribution to the development of religious life in this area.

Rev. Person traced the growth of the Association's participation in the General Baptist State Convention from 1970 to 1977. He reported that the Association has increased its financial support to the State Convention's program from $8,000 in 1970 to more than $22,000 this year. This program includes support of Shaw University, Central Orphanage in Oxford and foreign missions.

The convention opened Thursday morning with the Woman's Department in session and adjourned Sunday afternoon following the Eulogistic sermon, delivered by the Rev. A. C. Roberson, former pastor of Phillippi.

Moderator Person reported that this convention was the best attended in recent years and he thanked everyone involved.

Next year's session will be held at Macedonia Baptist Church in Farmville.

prices were expected to rise and feed prices were dropping, and it would have been a pretty good year without the drought."

Some Piedmont pastureland began reviving late in the summer when the rains returned, Elks said, but then an invasion of army worms swept across the state from its south central portion to the foothills and finished the job the drought had begun.

Elks said there probably would be little effect on consumer meat prices in North Carolina, since the state gets most of its beef from the mid-west, and the state produces a small percentage of the nation's beef.

Nichols and state farm statistician Dan Tucker said federal aid programs and a drop in feed prices would be of some help, but cattlemen will suffer a loss of income as a result of the premature sales of cattle. They didn't know how much.

Ironically, the drought, which killed thousands of chickens at its peak, represents a small boon for poultry producers.

Elks said egg and chicken production was high enough this year to threaten to depress prices seriously, and the drought damage helped stabilize the market.

presence of the county attorney, county manager, Bill Dansey and Harding Suggs, I was shown a tax document showing that the Patrick farm (now Lake Ellsworth Subdivision in part) had been listed for tax purposes in the Greenville school district since 1938," he said.

"The group consensus was that if contested it would be determined that the farm even as subdivided would be ruled a part of the Greenville district because of the long history of having been listed in the Greenville school district by the tax department," he said. "As superintendent I shared this feeling and further saw no reason for upsetting the residents of the area in that all of them were attending school in Greenville and apparently happy.

"On August 12, for further clarification I wrote the following letter to Assistant Attorney General Bunting: Would my action as Superintendent in January, 1975, when I took the position of the tax department and placed the entire farm in the Greenville school district in any way constitute a moving of the school district line? He said.

Alford said Ms. Bunting wrote back on August 15 that she would be unable to help in the matter.

"Never have I been in doubt as to the exact location of the line," he said. "It was upon receipt of the opinion of the Attorney General's office that I realized that I might have made an error in showing Lake Ellsworth as a part of the city district on a map I prepared for Superintendent Cox's office in the fall of 1976," he add said.

Everett, addressing the board, said "you get to the question now as to whether the conduct of the county board has been appropriate to waive the boundary.

"In my opinion this board had no right to waive anything. I don't think a course of conduct can determine a matter of law," he said.

The board thanked the attorney for his report and said it would take the matter under consideration.

New Kal Kan Mealtime has tail-waggin' taste from meat protein.

Dogs love the taste of meat. So, new Mealtime is made with real meat protein. (35% of the protein in Mealtime comes from meat). That's why Mealtime tastes good, and is good for dogs.

Clean teeth, healthy gums. Mealtime has a crunchy texture that gives dogs the chewing exercise they need for clean teeth and healthy gums.

More natural nutrition. Mealtime is made with wheat products. Most other dog foods are made with corn. Because wheat has more natural nutrition, Mealtime needs fewer additives. (Compare our ingredient list with other brands). Dogs get the vitamins and minerals they need in a more natural formula.

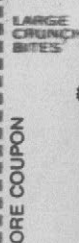

The right bite size for your dog. The appetizing red chunks and golden bone-shaped nuggets in Mealtime are available in two sizes: large crunchy bites for larger dogs and small crunchy bites for smaller dogs and puppies. So you and your dog have a choice.

Firm stools. The unique formula of Mealtime promotes proper food utilization and digestion. This helps dogs produce a firmer stool.

See for yourself. We say new Mealtime has tail-waggin' taste from meat protein. But don't take our word for it. Get some for your dog, and let his tail tell its own story.

Continuance On Shooting Death

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy charged with manslaughter in the shooting death of his 7-year-old brother had his hearing continued Tuesday. Court officials would not say when the hearing would be resumed.

Officials have said they consider it unlikely the boy would be removed from his home. The hearing is being held in juvenile court, and its purpose is apparently to see if the boy needs professional counselling.

More Quality Leaf On Market

FARMVILLE — An increase in the volume of quality tobacco on Tuesday resulted in the highest sales average recorded in several days on the Farmville Tobacco Market, it was reported by Louis Williams, sales supervisor.

Williams said that leaf grades accounted for some 75 per cent of the sales volume yesterday with the volume of other varieties about the same as in the past week.

Top price for leaf was $1.65 per pound, he said. The market sold 374,781 pounds Tuesday for $451,700, an average of $120.52 per hundred pounds.

To date, the market has sold 21,456,002 pounds for $25,288,403, an average of $117.86 per hundred pounds.

Public Is Silent At Hearing

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Since there was no comment from the public during a public hearing, the Farmville Board voted last night to amend its zoning ordinance to allow schools of fine arts to be placed in residential districts of R-6 and R-5 classification.

An offer from Management Improvement Corporation of America to provide consulting services on ways to save money was turned down. The Commissioners said they might reconsider the offer at the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1.

Oct. 25 was announced as the date bids for the demolition of the old high school building in the 200 block of North Main Street will be opened. A letter from Mrs. Lucy J. Rumley suggesting that the cost and advisability of saving and restoring the building be investigated. The Commissioners said they appreciate hers and others concern but that they already have a State Building Inspectors' report which says the building is dangerous and that repair is not advised.

Oct. 27 was set as the date for a dinner to show appreciation for those who serve the town on advisory boards.

The revised final subdivision plat of Marlboro Forest was presented and approved.

A resolution was made to recognize that the house at 212 Railroad Street has been repaired and certified for occupancy, following condemnation proceedings. The Board expressed congratulations to the person or persons who did such a fine job on renewing this house.

Library Funds, previously held separately, were transferred to the regular budget.

It was decided not to change the time of the Nov. 1 meeting, even though the town administrator will be away at a convention.

The budget was amended to allow for funds for four recreation movies a year, one each quarter.

Christmas holidays for town employees were set as Friday and Monday.

Per a Literary Club request, the possibility of beginning to once again post signs on a marker at the corner of Main and Belcher Streets on the corner of the old high school property now owned by the town was considered.

It was decided to buy a pickup truck for the town and to keep an old one it is replacing, rather than trading it.

Town Administrator Pat Thomas was given the go-ahead to begin use of a rubber stamp of his signature for signing payroll and other checks. He said it would save him about an hour a week.

Fountain Rescue Squad's request to be tied in to Farmville's pager communication system was enthusiastically approved. The town administrator and Farmville and Fountain police and rescue persons were asked to work out the details.

It was reported that the town has received more than it expected in Powell Bill funds — $66,615.19.

Consideration was given to accepting the local Sterling Radiator Company's offer to sell at cost two large gas heaters for use in heating the town gymnasium for winter use. Cost is to be about $600.

Hope was expressed that the County Commissioners will consider helping town with recreation departments with their costs so they can continue to provide services for those in outlying areas of the town, as well as for the town-tax-paying residents.

A resolution was passed endorsing the State Highway Bond Act of 1977, which will be voted on in the Nov. 8 election.

It was noted that some town residents have requested that speed deterrent humps be installed on Contentnea Street between Horne Avenue and Main Street Extension. No action was taken, but Police Chief Ron Cooper said this area is being heavily patrolled to discourage speeding since it is highly populated with children.

Approval was given to the spending of $122 as five percent matching funds for a police Department training grant from the federal government through the Mid East Commission.

Psychiatrist Joins Office

Dr. Barry A. Moore has joined Dr. A. Ray Evans in the practice of psychiatry here.

DR. BARRY A. MOORE

A native of Champagne, Ill., Dr. Moore says he is interested in the practice of hospital psychiatry at the new Pitt Memorial Hospital and in the future is to be involved in teaching in the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

He got a B. A. degree in 1966 from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. and an M. D. degree from Kansas University Medical Center in 1970. He did an internship at Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital in Cooperstown, N. Y. and was a flight surgeon in the U. S. Air Force from 1971-74. His residency in psychiatry was completed at N. C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill this year.

He and his wife, Diane, have three children — Andrea, seven; Aaron, five; and Ashley, 16 months.

Week Given To Marines

Mayor Percy Cox, observing that the Marines serve with "pride, devotion and unselfishness," declared Nov. 6-12 as U.S. Marine Corps Week in Greenville.

In designating the observance, the mayor pointed out that the Continental Congress authorized the formation of the Marines in 1775 and "this elite force has since been committed in every action, large or small, in which the United States has been engaged."

Cox said that the Corps "has developed traditions and a high degree of professionalism which have made the U.S. Marines famous over the entire globe."

Regular and reserve Marines, he noted, "are constantly training and serving their country and our state as America's Force in Readiness and continue to distinguish themselves by their gallantry and intrepidity."

The city official added in the proclamation, "We are proud that thousands of North Carolinians have helped build this reputation and many are continuing to serve in the finest tradition of the Marines."

He said, "It is fitting that we recognize this outstanding military service."

Visitations At PTA Meeting

The Parent-Teachers Association at Wahl-Coates School will have a class room visitation night on Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

The visitation program will follow at short introduction of teachers and a business meeting.

$118.25 Day On Market

Sales topped $1 million Tuesday on the Greenville Tobacco Market, according to J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the local Tobacco Board of Trade.

Bryan said that the market sold 958,416 pounds yesterday for $1,113,304, an average of $118.25 per hundred pounds.

Top practical price paid was $1.65 per pound, he noted, with good quality leaf selling for as much as $1.70 per pound.

Stabilization receipts on Tuesday accounted for 26.78 per cent of total sales.

Offerings on the warehouse floors consisted of leaf, cutters, lugs, primings and an increase in non descript tobacco.

To date, the market has sold 35,103,519 pounds for $41,504,556, an average of $118.23 per hundred pounds.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, faced with new evidence of rising interest rates, declined broadly today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped more than 3 points in the early going.

Losers took a 9-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Tuesday the San Francisco-based Wells Fargo Bank raised its prime lending rate from 7 1/4 to 7 3/4 per cent.

Today's early prices included International Telephone & Telegraph, down 3/4 at 31 1/2; Eastman Kodak, off 3/4 at 60; Exxon, 1/4 lower at 48 3/4, and Citicorp, down 1/4 at 24 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.88 to 842.08, wiping out a chunk of the 17.24-point gain it had posted in the three preceding sessions.

Sirica Eases Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge John J. Sirica, once known as "Maximum John," ended his Watergate tenure with a compassionate act, making it possible for the Big Three of the cover-up to leave prison after serving only one year.

"I guess you can now call me Minimum John," Sirica quipped Tuesday after he reduced the 2 1/2-8 year sentences of John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman to 1-4 years. "I'm glad it's the last major decision I'll have rendered in this case."

For Sirica, the ruling was the last of many in the five years since his involvement began in Watergate and its many tangled offshoots. He was known as "Maximum John" by courthouse habitués because of his tough sentences.

No more Watergate criminal cases are pending and the 73-year-old judge is considering taking senior status with a reduced workload.

Sirica announced his decision after listening to impassioned pleas by the three men and their attorneys. Ironically, in a courtroom where so much of the drama has concerned tape recordings, the voices of Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were on tape.

The judge had sent a probation officer to question the men inside prison and the playing of the tape was a dramatic surprise.

Ehrlichman becomes eligible for parole on Oct. 28 if federal judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who sentenced him in the Ellsberg psychiatrist break-in case, reduces that sentence also, as is expected. If not, Ehrlichman's parole eligibility begins next June, along with that of Haldeman and Mitchell.

Ehrlichman, domestic counselor to Richard Nixon when he was president, elected to begin serving his sentence before his appeal to the Supreme Court was decided and entered prison eight months before his co-defendants in the cover-up trial.

He works in the power house at the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz., and his lawyer, Stuart Stiller, told Sirica: "He went from sitting in the Oval Office and now he sits in the power house."

Mitchell, the 64-year-old former attorney general, suffers from an arthritic right hip that needs replacement — an operation that his lawyer, William G. Hundley, says cannot be performed while he is a prisoner at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

And Haldeman, the Nixon chief of staff who will be 51 later in the month, is "in charge of the chemistry at the sewer plant" at the federal facility in Lompoc, Calif., his lawyer, John W. Wilson said.

Their release from prison will not be automatic. When their eligibility date nears, each man will be interviewed by parole officers whose recommendation must then be approved by the U.S. Parole Commission.

Your biggest investment: How to improve on it.

If you're like most people, your home is your biggest investment. All told, you've got thousands upon thousands of dollars involved. And, since you've got so much in it, it makes sense to improve on your investment. (It can also be much more economical than moving.) Maybe your house needs repairs. Maybe you need another room. With the weather we've had lately, maybe you should improve your insulation and add storm windows to hold down utility bills. Here's an idea of some costs.

FIXING UP YOUR HOME: WHAT IT COSTS

Remodel Bathroom	$1,000-$3,000
Remodel Kitchen	$3,000-$6,000
Adding a 12 x 15 Room	$6,000-$8,000
12 x 15 Patio	$1,500-$2,000
Attached Garage, 12 x 24	$2,500-$5,000
Replace Plumbing Pipes	$1,000-$2,000
Replace Furnace	$700-$1,500
Atic Insulation	$250-$500
Storm Windows	$20-$40 each
New Roof	$1,000-$1,500
Enclose Side Porch, 8 x 15	$1,800-$3,000

Any of these improvements can pay off in your home's increased value, and, at NCNB, we'll be happy to help with the money you need. Because as a homeowner, you've proven that you know how to handle credit. So come see us. Let's talk over what you want to do, and the best way of doing it. It could be a Personal Loan, or it may be an NCNB Homeowner Loan, with lower monthly payments, over a long period. Either way, the people who make loans at NCNB will work with you to help improve the investment you have in your home. After all, we want to be your only bank. And the better service we give you on loans, the better chance we have of getting you to do all your banking business with us.

Adding a new room to your home costs several thousand dollars, but it could be well worth it, since it can increase the value of your home. Helping you with home improvements is just one of the ways we can help. For a booklet fitting your situation, wherever you are in life, just stop in at any NCNB office, or call 800-822-8855 and we'll send you a copy.

Duke, ECU Ink 3-Year Pact

Duke University acting athletic director Tom Butters and East Carolina University athletic director Bill Cain jointly announced today the signing of a three-year contract for football games in 1979, 1980 and 1981. All games will be played in Durham at Wallace Wade Stadium.

"The addition of East Carolina to our football schedule for 1979-80 is of significance to our program," Butters said. It allows state-wide interest and that is essential to both our intercollegiate program and our university. Consideration of scheduling between the two universities for additional games beyond these three will be given at the appropriate time."

Cain added, "The scheduling of Duke University represents the policy of East Carolina University to continually improve its athletic programs. Duke University is one of the nation's most respected universities. They have a well-known tradition of outstanding athletic programs as well as academic excellence."

The Blue Devils and Pirates met for the first time this season in Wade Stadium before a crowd of 38,200, the largest opening day home crowd in Duke history. The Pirates won that game, 17-16.

The dates of the future games are September 15, 1979; September 6, 1980; and October 3, 1981. The 1979 and 1980 games will be the season openers for the Blue Devils.

Lady Pirates Capture Game

GREENSBORO — East Carolina's women's volleyball team continued its winning ways Tuesday, capturing its second straight victory over UNC-Greensboro.

If took the Lady Pirates five games to win the match, and all the games were very close. The two teams played a match of even-odd, as ECU won the first, third and fifth games, while UNC-G took the second and fourth. ECU won by scores of 15-10, 15-13 and 15-12. The games lost were by 15-13 and 15-12 scores.

"I was really pleased with the way we hung on to win," said ECU coach Alita Dillon. "We came from behind in a couple of games to win. The overall team play was very good. I thought our serving went very well, and that everybody had good support for each other."

Mrs. Dillon cited Joy Forbes, Kim Clayton and Debbie Yreeman as having had particularly good games, adding, "Really, I thought they all did real well. There was not a one of them who did not have a good game."

ECU's record was raised to 4-1 with the victory, while UNC-G fell to 0-7. The Lady Pirates' next match is Thursday night in Raleigh against N. C. State and Appalachian State.

Rose Opens Conference Slate

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants are going to "hit the road" for their home game against Rocky Mount Thursday night, in hopes of pulling off an upset of the pre-season Division I favorites.

Thus far, Rose has posted a 3-2 record in non-conference play, and all three victories have come on the road. Both of the losses were in home games.

So, Coach Dave Bumgarner and his charges are going to "go on the road" for this one, taking a bus ride prior to the game to get the feel of a road contest.

The Rampants will be coming into the 7 p.m. kickoff game after a fine 33-6 victory over 3-A West Craven Friday night. In that contest, the Rampants played about everyone on both the varsity and junior varsity squad, getting a lot of people on the field.

"It was a good game for us, in that we won and we won well. But at times, we played poorly. We wanted to play a lot of people, and we did. We started a number of sophomores, and we fumbled several times in the first half. This hurt us some.

Still, the coach added, the Rampants could easily have had a 21-0 lead instead of a 6-0 margin at the half. "We had one touchdown pass called back, and another pass that would have been a touchdown was dropped."

The Rampants went back to their main personnel in the second half, and played their game in rolling up the lead that won it.

"We challenged the team to score 30 points and get 300 yards in total offense in the game, during halftime, and we almost reached both goals. We just missed out on the 300 yards," Bumgarner said.

The coach was pleased with the play of his junior varsity quarterback, Mark Shank. "I just wish we were six-foot tall," the coach said.

Others drawing praise included defensive end Raymond Wooten, defensive back Mike Joyner, and fullback Mac Washington. "Joey Mattheis did a good job running the club most of the times, but there were times when he didn't play up to par."

Bumgarner added that the offensive line blocked well, and the defensive secondary had a good game.

Rocky Mount, the first of the conference foes, brings a 4-1 record into the game. The Gryphons beat Tarboro, 18-0, then lost to Goldsboro, 19-0.

Since then, they've beaten Eastern Wayne 32-8; Hillside, 15-6, and Garner, 28-20.

Garner, last week, scored the first touchdown Rocky Mount has allowed in the first half of a game.

"They are a typical Rocky Mount team," Bumgarner said. "They run the Power-I, and they are big and strong. They haven't allowed much yardage, and they've scored an adequate number of points."

The Gryphons are known as a passing team this year, with quarterback Jess Eberdt hitting 43 of 84 for the year, including two touchdowns. He's passed for 537 yards, and had four picked off. He's also run for four touchdowns.

The chief targets have been wingback Dee Whitley with 17 catches, and split end Mike Lewis with 19 catches.

Tailback Rodney Birth is the leading rusher with 320, including over 100 in each of the last two outings.

"We've got to execute as well as we did against Kinston, and as well as we did in the second half against West Craven if we are to win," Bumgarner said.

The game is also a critical one, the coach feels. "When you only play five conference games, they are all critical," he said. "You don't want to get down, and then have to worry about coming back. All of the games from here on in are a must for us."

Bumgarner corrected one matter from last Friday's game, caused by a program change. During the West Craven game, Todd Tyson was a starting halfback, not Calvin Paige as listed in post-game stories. Tyson, up from the JV for the game, was wearing Paige's number. Paige is no longer on the team.

Murray Likes Being A Winner

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

David Murray went to get a haircut last Saturday at his barber shop. And he reported that it felt good to be able to hold his head up while sitting in the chair and talking with the barbers and other customers about Rose High School's win over West Craven.

"It really felt good," he said. "Being a winner is a lot better. When you lose, you don't want to see anyone after Saturday practice; even your father fusses you out."

David Murray

Murray, a senior offensive guard for the Rampants, is a second-year starter, but played offensive center most of last year. "I did play a little at tackle, but this year I've been at tackle exclusively."

He said that he preferred the tackle position, "a little bit more. There's more action as a tackle. And you don't have to worry about fumbling the ball on the snap. Of course, that's never the center's fault anyway," he joked.

Being in the middle of the line and not getting the same recognition as the backs doesn't worry Murray. "Last week, we had the number one rusher in the conference (Mac Washington). But if the linemen didn't open those holes for him, he wouldn't be doing so well. And after a while, when the people in the stands see the backs getting those good gains, they start looking in their programs to see who's opening those holes for them."

At 5-9, 165, Murray is not the typical offensive guard, but he doesn't worry about his size. "It hasn't been a handicap. I've been told that I've got pretty good quickness, and I think I have a psychological edge on my opponent. He looks over at me and says, 'Boy, I won't have any trouble with this runt.' That's when I get him."

Although in the line, most of Murray's blocks are downfield. "I pull to lead the way, or go by a linebacker to let someone else get him. I guess the toughest part of it really comes in practice. Coach (Ronald) Vincent works us pretty hard to get us ready. He really kills us."

When not on the field, Murray is active in the Key Club, the Monogram Club and the DeMolay. He also enjoys sailing and water-skiing.

"I'm too small for college football," he said, "so I really don't think about that. After I won the trophy for the Outstanding Lineman last year for the team, some people starting asking me about college, but I really doubt if I will try to play."

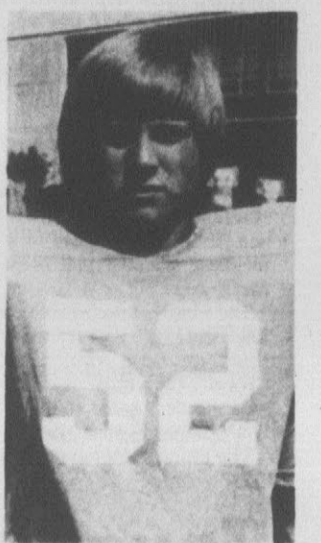

Otherwise, Murray will seek a course in business administration, with an eye toward a future in insurance or real estate, or both.

While the style these days is more toward longer hair on the boys, Murray makes no secret of his love for short hair on boys. "My dad doesn't influence me about my hair. I just think short hair belongs on boys and long hair on girls," he said.

So Murray makes several trips a season to his barber. And he hopes that each time, he'll be able to hold his head high and be able to talk about the latest Rose football victory, hopefully the one the night before.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Husky Greg Luzinski has suddenly learned to talk as powerfully as he swings a bat.

Luzinski belted a two-run homer Tuesday night that helped the Philadelphia Phillies take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five game National League Championship Series.

And after the Phillies' 7-5 triumph at Dodger Stadium, the 225-pound Luzinski challenged the West Division champions to put up or shut up.

"Personally, I think that if they don't win Wednesday, it's all over, as far as I'm concerned," said Luzinski. "If they don't, they have to win three straight in our park, where we play .750 ball."

The Dodgers' Steve Garvey heard Luzinski's ultimatum and retorted, "Did they shorten the playoffs to the best two out of three? We had a rough day today, but I think we'll bounce right back. ... We'll turn it around."

And Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda observed, "The name of the playoffs is that you still have to win three games to win it. Sure, we wanted to win the first one, but that doesn't mean we're out of it."

The Phillies bristled with confidence after the franchise's first postseason victory since Grover Cleveland Alexander won the first game of the 1915 World Series against Boston. The Phillies lost the next four to the Red Sox, and were swept in four games by the New York Yankees in the 1950 World Series. Last year they dropped three straight to Cincinnati in the NL Playoffs.

What excited the Phillies was the way they beat the Dodgers, blowing a 5-1 lead in the seventh when Ron Cey blasted a bases-loaded home run, and then coming back in the ninth to pull it out.

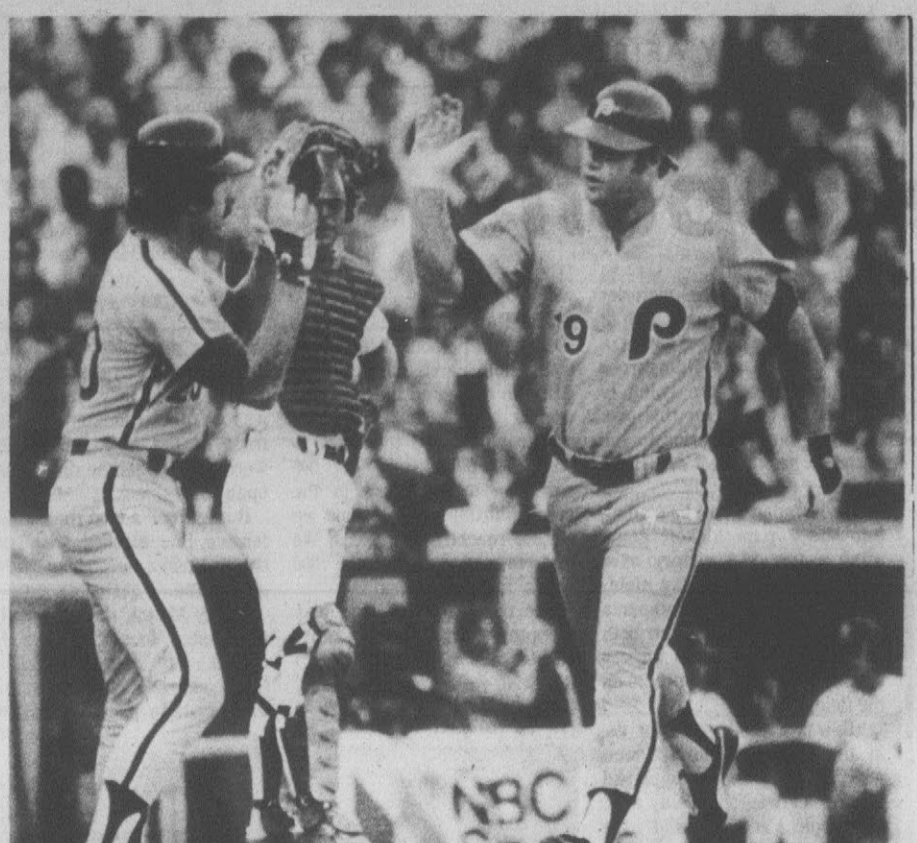

Actually, the series opener was decided where many experts said it would be — in the bullpen. After the Dodgers tied it 5-5 in the seventh and knocked out Phillies ace Steve Carlton, relievers Gene Garber and Tug McGraw contributed 2 1-3 innings of hitless, scoreless relief.

On the other hand, the Phillies raked Dodgers' reliever Elias Sosa for two ninth-inning runs that made the difference.

Sosa retired pinch-hitter Richie Hebner to start the ninth, but Bake McBride singled and Larry Bowa singled. That brought up Mike Schmidt, who had socked 38 homers and batted in 101 runs in the Phillies' drive to the Eastern Division Championship.

Sosa got a strike on Schmidt and then threw a slider down and away that the Phillies' third baseman ripped into left field, scoring McBride from second with the go-ahead run.

Then Sosa barked and Bowa, who had reached third on Schmidt's hit, walked home with an insurance run.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Greg Luzinski heads for home after hitting a two-run homer in the first inning Tuesday night in Los Angeles. At left is teammate Dave Johnson. Dodger catcher Steve Yeager watches the scene. (AP Laserphoto)

Holtzman, Hunter May See No Playoff Work

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - While other stars are gone but not forgotten, Catfish Hunter and Ken Holtzman were forgotten but not gone as the New York Yankees prepared to open the American League playoffs today against the Kansas City Royals.

Although Hunter had appeared in nine playoff games and eight World Series contests, and Holtzman in five playoffs and eight Series games, Manager Billy Martin said he had no plans to use Holtzman while Hunter would have to await a doctor's report Thursday to learn if he could pitch again this season.

How the mighty have fallen: —In 1971, Hunter pitched the second game of the American League playoffs for Oakland against Baltimore.

—In 1972, Hunter pitched the opener and the fourth game against Detroit and Holtzman, acquired by the A's from the Chicago Cubs the previous winter, started game 3. In the World Series against Cincinnati, it was Holtzman in games 1 and 4, Hunter in games 2 and 5, and both in relief in game 7.

—The following season, Hunter pitched games 2 and 5 and Holtzman game 3 of the playoffs against Baltimore. In the Series against the New York Mets, it was Holtzman in games 1, 4 and 7 and Hunter in games 3 and 6.

—In the 1974 playoffs against Baltimore, Hunter was the starter in games 1 and 4, Holtzman in game 2. And in the World Series against Los Angeles, it was Holtzman starting games 1 and 4 while Hunter saved the opener and started game 3.

—By 1975, Hunter had signed a lucrative free agent contract with the New York Yankees but Holtzman still was in Oakland, starting the first and third playoff games as the A's were swept by Boston.

—Even as recently as a year ago, when both were wearing Yankees' pinstripes, Hunter started twice in the playoffs against Kansas City and once in the World Series against Cincinnati. Holtzman, however, was the forgotten man of the pitching staff.

And 1977 was a year to forget for the two veteran pitchers. Hunter compiled a 9-9 mark with a 4.71 earned run average and was tagged for 29 home runs in 143 1-3 innings. Holtzman's record was even worse — 2-3 with a 5.78 ERA. His only victories came over expansion teams Toronto and Seattle and he pitched only two innings since Aug. 13.

"Right now, I don't plan to use him," Martin said of Holtzman, whose latest activity — he has pitched but 5 1-3 innings since July 15 — consisted of throwing for an hour in the bullpen last Saturday and 20 minutes of batting practice Tuesday.

Hunter, meanwhile, has what originally was described as a hernia but later diagnosed as an infection in the seminal ve-icles. Medication was prescribed, and Hunter is scheduled to see a doctor again Thursday.

"I think he'd have to throw some before he can pitch in a game," said trainer Gene Monahan.

"I can't pitch in the first game," Hunter said, "and whether I'm available Thursday night depends on what the doctor says. I last threw in Toronto about 10 days ago. I threw 130 pitches in batting practice and I felt okay, but it hurt the next day."

Lady Jags Top Conley

FARMVILLE — Sheila Newton came in for the injured Lisa Satterthwaite to serve 10 straight points in the final game as the Lady Jaguars downed D. H. Conley 2-1 in a volleyball match yesterday.

The Lady Jags won the first game 15-10, but the Valkyries came back to take the second, 15-5. With Newton's 10 serves, Farmville Central won the final game by 15-5.

The match leaves Farmville and Conley with identical 4-3 records and in a five-way tie for first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference. The Lady Jags play at Ayden-Grifton tomorrow, while the Valkyries will host North Pitt.

Gillman Tells Cage Plans To Sports Club

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Larry Gillman, new head basketball coach at East Carolina, poo-pooed any idea that the NCAA might investigate the Pirate basketball program should it become successful during the next few years.

Gillman was speaking to the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

"When you get good suddenly, there are always cries from people to investigate you. You guys know East Carolina; there ain't no money there."

With the start of practice just over a week away, Gillman told the group that he was anxious to get started with practice, and told the club that they would see a fast, colorful club this winter in Minges Coliseum.

"It seems like eight years since I came here, just waiting to start practice. Some people have claimed we are bush league, but when you open in front of 20,000 people at Indiana, you're certainly not bush any more."

Gillman noted that star recruit Oliver Mack has been listed among the top 25 players in the country by Playboy magazine this month. "This is great for us, especially when Mack hasn't played a game for us yet," he said.

"You'll never see the ball walked up the court by us, NEVER," he told the club. "This gives the opposing defense a chance to rest, then they're rested on offense. Our guys are going to rush the offense and pressure the defense at both ends of the court. They'll be in the best shape of Oliver Mack, incoming junior college transfer at East Carolina University, has been listed in Playboy magazine, as one of the top players in the country for this winter.

In its November issue, Mack is among the top 25 players in the country, and calls him one of the top newcomers in college basketball. The list states that Mack is "sure to make somebody's All-America team this season."

Mack is the first East Carolina All-America candidate in basketball.

their lives, and we won't lose because we're not in shape."

Gillman said that the hardest job he has to do is to teach the team to play hard and win. "We don't have as much talent as I'd like to have. We'll do well, but I'm not satisfied with that. Our goal is to win as many games as it takes to get us into a post-season tournament, and we're going to have to beat some of the name teams to do that."

Gillman noted that recruiting is very, very hard, "especially at a school that hasn't had a basketball tradition. Unless you get a kid who loves you, you're not going to get him."

For the Pirates to become a national contender, Gillman said that it takes two or three players of Mack's caliber. "You have to have five to seven who have a chance to play pro ball. Mack is this type of player, and we have a few others with the potential to be this type player. We want to recruit more." Gillman added that he thought three of the top 40 players in the country were within an hour of Greenville in Al Tyson (D.H. Conley), Alvin Rogers (Washington) and Mac Williams (Rocky Mount).

He also said that Mack, as a senior, would be the top back-court player in the country, and that this fall, no one would have a better back-court combination than Mack and freshman Walter Moseley.

The Sports Club will meet again on October 18, when NBC sportscaster Billy Packer, a former Wake Forest player, will be the guest speaker.

Pant-HERS Take Win

SPRING HOPE — North Pitt's volleyball team gained a 2-0 victory over Southern Nash yesterday.

North Pitt won the first game by a tough 15-13 score, then came back with an easy 15-6 win in the second game.

Michelle Brown led the Pant-HERS in scoring by serving up 11 points in the two games.

The win left North Pitt with a 4-3 record, while Southern Nash is now 1-6.

North Pitt goes to Conley on Thursday, while Southern Nash visits Greene Central.

Tough Games For Pirates

The second half of the East Carolina schedule isn't nearly as impressive as the first half was, but the Pirates still face an impressive challenge in their remaining six games.

Linebacker Harold Randolph puts it about as well as anybody could.

"We are going to be playing teams that are hunting our heads, whereas we could do the head-hunting before," Randolph said. "The other way is easier."

The Pirates, he said, "have to face the music."

In their first four games, the Pirates emerged winners against some teams they considered themselves lucky to be playing, much less beating. But South Carolina served them a slice of humble pie last Saturday, and now ECU will find out if it has the class to bounce back and win some lower stakes contests with less inspiration in them.

"Now we'll find out what we're really made of," said quarterback Jimmy Southerland. "I hope we're up to it."

"One big thing in our favor is that we're going back to Greenville to play and the Southern Illinois game will be homecoming," observed halfback Eddie Hicks, reflecting on this Saturday's challenge.

"I think our record in homecoming games is something like 95 per cent wins and that should give us something to get charged up about."

Aside from that, the Pirates could draw some strength from their desire for a bowl selection, something that has eluded them the past five years.

"I can't help but wonder if we could go 10-1 would the bowl scouts think more about this loss than our wins over State and Duke," Southerland said. "But we've got to beat a bunch of good teams before we are 10-1 and that's going to be the tough part."

ECU will be meeting the likes of Richmond, William and Mary, the Citadel and Appalachian State.

Coach Pat Dye has noted with discouragement that the Pirate offense the past few games hasn't had much spark behind it.

"We've got to get some guts back on our offense," he said. "Since the Duke game, the offense has gone backwards and there's no use in denying it."

"I don't think our offense has done a good job of meeting the challenge," concedes Southerland. "When the defense gets tough, we've got to get tougher, and we haven't been doing it."

Kickers Defeated

Duke University used two goals late in the second half to down the East Carolina soccer team 3-1 in a match at ECU Tuesday.

The two teams played on even terms throughout most of the contest and were even at the half, 1-1. Duke's John Banks had the Blue Devils' only goal of the half, that coming off a corner kick. Phil Martin then tied the score at one with a shot that eluded the Duke goalkeeper.

The second half was primarily a defensive battle, with rather rough play seeming to dominate. Duke broke out on top for good when an ECU defender was called for shoving around the goal area. Richard Murray's penalty shot was put out of the reach of ECU goalkeeper Mike Lawrence and the Blue Devils took the final lead.

Duke's Edwin Agyapong closed out the scoring for the day when he took an errant Pirate pass and rifled a shot past Lawrence with just over a minute left to play.

Each goalkeeper recorded 10 saves in the match, but Duke outshot ECU 21-17. ECU's record slipped to 2-4, while Duke raised its record to 2-3-1. The Pirate booters will travel to St. Andrews College on Saturday.

Lady Bucs In Loss

The University of North Carolina stunned the East Carolina field hockey team, 9-0, in a game here Tuesday.

The Lady Tar Heels dominated the game from the start, scoring three times in the early going, and building a 4-0 halftime lead.

The Lady Pirates never mounted an offense, forcing the North Carolina goalie to make but one save.

Vickie Greenwood was the star of the show for UNC, scoring four goals. Teammate Bashi Buba added three more, and Libby Mathison closed out the scoring with two goals.

The loss dropped the Lady Pirates' record to 1-3. Their next match will be Friday as they host Davidson.

Sooners Picked Over Texas

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This was a year ago in Dallas, just after the annual Oklahoma-Texas Red River rivalry game. After winning five consecutive games in the series, Oklahoma had to settle for a 6-6 tie, prompting one of the Sooners' coaches to form a "T" with his hands and say: "Tell Darrell we're just calling time out. We'll be back next year."
Well, next year is here, but Darrell Royal isn't. At least he isn't on the sidelines, having turned the Texas coaching chores over to Fred Akers and retired from the hot seat to a somewhat cooler chair in the athletic director's office.
Akers has made some changes, and it's no longer the War of the Wishbones.

"What they're doing now is lining up in multiple offensive formations and trying to make the big play by throwing the football a lot more," says Oklahoma's Barry Switzer. "They line up in a lot of different things."
Oklahoma doesn't. The Sooners stick to the Wishbone and they usually stick it to the opposition. Quarterback Thomas Lott, who makes them go, got his first starting assignment in last year's Texas game. A scared sophomore, he now is a juiced-up junior.
And for that reason, even though Texas has beaten three nobodies by a combined total score of 184-15, the pick here is ... Oklahoma 34-24.

expect to have quarterback Matt Cavanaugh ready. Cavanaugh broke a bone in his arm during an opening-game loss to Notre Dame and resumed workouts last week. It's Florida's home opener and the Gators will be snapping after being embarrassed by LSU last week. Besides, Florida Field can be a snake ... Pitt 28-17.
Michigan at Michigan State: Bo Schembechler wasn't passing out any I-told-you-so's after Michigan routed Texas A&M 41-3 last week because what he told everyone about how good the Aggies were didn't jibe with the outcome. The only peep out of Bo this week concerns his secondary. "It hasn't been tested like it'll be tested Saturday," he says. Sure, Bo, but you have a credibility gap in this corner ... Michigan 35-7.
Purdue at Ohio State: A long Ohio Stadium day for Mark Herrmann, Purdue's sensational freshman passer ... Ohio State 35-7.
Oklahoma State at Colorado: No more non-league patsties for the Buffs. It's Big Eight play the rest of the way ... Colorado 28-14.
Nebraska at Kansas State: "I think this is the best Kansas State team I've seen in several years," says Nebraska's Tom Osborne. "They seem to play better in Manhattan and we're gonna prepare just like we were playing Oklahoma or anyone else." That's bad news for Kansas State and good news for ... Nebraska 27-13.

Brigham Young at Oregon State: After Gifford Nielsen threw six touchdown passes against Utah State, people wondered what he would do for an encore. What he did was throw five against New Mexico. Obviously, that means only four this week ... Brigham Young 38-17.
California at Washington State: It's about time for Jack Thompson, Washington State's "Throwin' Samoan," to start throwin' again. Upset Special of the Week ... Washington State 24-19.
Mississippi State at Kentucky: Kentucky is fresh from a 24-20 upset of Penn State. But a hunch here says ... Mississippi State 21-14.
Louisiana State at Vanderbilt: The Bayou Bengals haven't won outside Louisiana in 12 games dating back to 1973 and a 51-14 rout of Ole Miss in Jackson. Up-and-down Vandy gave Oklahoma a hard time, then barely squeaked past Wake Forest, played Alabama tough, then was clobbered by Tulane. Go figure it ... LSU 27-20.

Illinois at Wisconsin: "I never thought we would ever be 1-3, but we are." Illinois' Gary Moeller said following last week's loss to Syracuse. How about 1-4, Gary? Except that Wisconsin may be looking ahead to Michigan, so let's try this as the second Upset Special ... Illinois 26-22.
Dartmouth at Yale: Where there's a second Upset Special, can a third be far behind ... Dartmouth 13-10.

House Checks On The NCAA

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has launched an investigation into the National Collegiate Athletic Association and what one committee member calls the organization's unchecked authority to ruin the careers of those it governs.
Rep. John E. Moss, chairman of the House oversight and investigation subcommittee, said last week his panel would probe alleged abuses by the NCAA in disciplining its 844-member institutions. Public hearings are expected to be held later this year.
Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., requested the probe after the NCAA placed the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas on two years probation.
"From the evidence I've seen so far, it is apparent that this problem goes far beyond the University of Nevada-Las Vegas," Santini said on Tuesday. "There are serious national implications involving a number of institutions."
"The NCAA possesses unbridled authority to ruin the careers of athletes, destroy coaches' professions and deal staggering blows to the athletic reputations of member institutions," he said.

Santini said he was concerned that the NCAA had "become arbitrary and indifferent in some of its practices."
In Kansas City, NCAA executive director Walter Byers said, "The NCAA, of course, will be delighted to cooperate with the committee and provide pertinent data on the issues outlined by the committee. Naturally, we hope that the committee members will approach these subjects in an objective manner and not try to champion particular infraction cases."
The NCAA has come under scrutiny by several congressional panels in recent years, including the President's Commission on Olympic Sports and the Senate Commerce Committee, which looked into the organization's relationship with the Amateur Athletic Union.

Psychologist, No; Telly, Yes

By RICK SPRATLING
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Television actor Telly Savalas is about to step out of the make-believe world of "Kojak" into a real Florida murder case in which defendant Ronny Zamora is pleading temporary insanity, allegedly caused by TV violence.

Savalas was to give a deposition today at an undisclosed Miami location. Judge Paul Baker then planned to decide whether to allow Savalas to testify as a witness for the defense. Zamora's lawyer, Ellis Rubin, says the murder was patterned after an episode of the TV detective series.

Baker ruled at the close of Tuesday's session that psychologist Margaret Hanratty Thomas could not testify as an expert because she could not cite a specific past instance of homicide caused by obsessive TV viewing.

"This is the premise for our whole defense," said Rubin in arguing to admit her testimony. Dr. Thomas, an assistant dean at Florida Technological University in Orlando, said she has published 15 professional papers on media violence and its relationship to aggressive behavior.

"Exposure to television violence can shape a child's conception of what is right and wrong," she told the judge in arguments with both the jury and the 15-year-old defendant excluded.

Darrell Agrella, 14 — who, along with Zamora, is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death last June 4 of Elinor Haggart, 83 — is to be tried separately. Both defendants are being tried as adults.

Zamora's mother, who testified that the defendant never missed Kojak, ended a tearful retracing of her son's life Tuesday morning by saying he had "changed completely" in recent months and became suicidal two weeks before the Haggart slaying.

Dr. Walter B. Reid, a clinical psychologist who examined Zamora, said the teen-ager "may be able to tell you why something is wrong, but it doesn't seem to keep him from doing it." Under cross-examination he conceded Zamora "can distinguish right from wrong."

Defense psychiatrist Michael Gilbert, in a deposition, says he questioned Zamora in jail two weeks ago while the defendant was under a hypnotic drug.

The deposition quotes Zamora as saying, "I took the gun and I went to the coffee table and I started fooling around. I could have even killed myself, I should have."

Zamora is reported to have said that Agrella handed him the gun while collecting money, jewelry and other valuables from the woman's house.

"One minute I held it (the gun) real tight. I don't know why, I was scared and before I knew it ... it happened so fast ... the gun shot her.

"I saw her fall back, no screams or blood. I just didn't believe I shot her. It happened."

The trial is being covered by a public television station. Still photographs also are being allowed in the courtroom.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast Wednesday for the Pacific Northwest as well as from the northern Rockies to the western

Plains. Showers are also anticipated for portions of Missouri and Arkansas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
High pressure was centered over western North Carolina this morning and drifting eastward. By tonight, it should be off the coast.

This will allow a cold front located through the Midwest to move in behind the high pressure system and it should reach the western part of the state by tonight.

The cold front will have little effect on the weather through Thursday with daytime temperatures ranging up in the 60s and 70s. Lows at night, under clear skies, will drop to the 30s and 40s in the mountains and range to the 50s along the coast.

Temperatures will be cooler Friday and Saturday.

Low readings this morning again were in the 30s in some areas as Rocky Mount and Raleigh registered 38 and Asheville 37. Greensboro had a low of 40 and Hickory and New Bern registered a 42.

Western Carolina Leaves Begin Turn

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The leaves have begun their seasonal turn and the colors are starting to appear high on the peaks.

The National Weather Service has opened its annual leaf watch and reports that at elevations above 5,000 feet about 25 per cent of the leaves have turned.

Poplar, hickory, oak and maple are contrasting brilliantly now with the evergreens and will continue to do so until about Oct. 15, the weather service reported.

By that time leaves between 3,000 and 5,000 feet will be in full bloom, among them dogwood, black gum, sourwood, sumac and Virginia creepers.

Oct. 22 is the projected date for peak coloring among leaves below the 3,000-foot level, the weather service reports.

This year's coloring is coming a little earlier than usual and won't last as long because of the dry summer weather. But a sharp, killing early frost, heavy rains or high winds could make the season even shorter, causing leaves to turn brown quickly and drop off.

Large trees have as many as half a million leaves, the report said, and some trees like the dogwood also sport berries in the autumn until the birds and squirrels get to them.

Claim Wallace Divorce Jurisdiction Arranged

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Attorneys for Gov. George C. Wallace circumvented the normal procedure for filing a divorce petition so Wallace's divorce case could be handled by a judge who has personal ties with the governor, it was reported today.

The Montgomery Advertiser said the Wallace divorce would be in the hands of Family Court Judge John P. Davis III because the governor's attorneys personally took the divorce petition to the judge Sept. 12 instead of filing it in the clerk's office.

Had the petition been routinely filed in the clerk's office, said the newspaper, it would have been assigned on a rotating basis to Davis or one of six other judges.

Wallace's petition to divorce his wife, Cornelia, was formally filed in the clerk's office after the two attorneys, Maury Smith and Charles Crook, conferred with Davis and the judge signed an order—prepared by the attorneys—setting a pre-trial conference, the Advertiser reported.

Asked about the filing of the petition, Smith first told the newspaper it was filed initially with the clerk's office. He later recalled, however, that it was filed through Davis.

Smith said he and Crook went to Davis to "appraise him of the situation and discuss the issues we could anticipate."

The Advertiser's legal sources suggested, however, that such a conference may violate the State Bar Association's code of ethics since Mrs. Wallace's attorneys were excluded.

At a pre-trial conference Sept. 19, Mrs. Wallace's attorneys asked Davis to disqualify himself in the case, arguing that it would be "inhumanly possible" for him to decide the case "objectively or unbiably" because of his past associations with the governor.

Davis was originally appointed to his post by Wallace but later was elected to the office. His father, John P. Davis Jr., was one of the governor's chief physicians and his father-in-law, Paul Corwin, was appointed to the state Real Estate Commission by Wallace.

Davis, however, refused to give up jurisdiction over the case, saying his association with the governor "does not constitute cause for recusal." The judge also noted that he has sworn under oath that he is unbiased.

Wallace, 58, in his petition, cited "incompatibility of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown" of the six-year marriage as grounds for divorce.

Mrs. Wallace, 38, filed a counter suit accusing the governor of "actual violence and cruelty," an accusation the governor later denied.

CHARGES DROPPED — Cocaine charges against country music star Waylon Jennings have been dropped — temporarily at least. Jennings' lawyer, however, says it may be a ploy to avoid giving him a speedy trial. (AP Laserphoto)

Too Many?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Too many people are charged in North Carolina with drunk driving, according to advocates of a new law that may cut down the number of arrests.

The law, which took effect last weekend, allows drivers stopped on suspicion of drunkenness to ask for a breathalyzer test before they are arrested.

If the test shows less than the legal limit for alcohol level, chances are the driver would be charged with reckless driving or some other lesser offense than driving under the influence.

Supporters of the law contended in legislative debate earlier this year that it would not reduce the number of convictions, simply the number of people charged by mistake.

The law does not require police or highway patrolmen to alert motorists to the fact that they have the right to take a breathalyzer test immediately. They must ask for it specifically.

The law was sponsored by Sen. William Smith, D-New Hanover, last spring and took effect Saturday.

Under the old law, a drunk driving suspect was charged at the discretion of the arresting officer and the breath test was administered afterward.

Win Medicaid Court Order

WASHINGTON — North Carolina and nine other states will not have their Medicaid funds cut off this month. The states won a federal court order Tuesday against the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

HEW wanted to cut off the funds because the states failed to meet a deadline for inspecting nursing homes which receive Medicaid funds. In North Carolina all but four of the state's 239 nursing homes were inspected by deadline time and the others within a month afterward.

direction and along the southern property line of 10th Street approximately 1,260 feet more or less to a point in the western right-of-way line of Charles Boulevard; thence, in a southerly direction and along the western right-of-way line of Charles Boulevard approximately 2,300 feet more or less to a point in the center line of the Norfolk-Southern Railroad; thence, in a westerly direction and along the center line of the Norfolk-Southern Railroad approximately 3,050 feet more or less to the point of BEGINNING.

The purpose of such hearing is to consider the undertaking of a project under State and local law with Federal assistance under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, to acquire land in the project area to demolish or remove buildings and improvements, to install, construct, or reconstruct streets, utilities and other project improvements; to make land available for development or redevelopment by private enterprise or public agencies as authorized by law.

At the hearing, the proposals and plans for the relocation of families, individuals and businesses located within the above redevelopment area as well as other elements of the project will be open for discussion. The redevelopment proposals with such maps, plans, contracts or other documents as form a part of said proposals will be available, for at least ten days prior to the hearing at the office of the Redevelopment Commission, 316 Roundtree Drive, Greenville, North Carolina. Any persons or organizations desiring to be heard will be afforded an opportunity to be heard at such hearing.

Indian Newspapers Say Arrest Of Indira Bungled

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two of India's leading newspapers said today that Prime Minister Morarji Desai's government botched its campaign against Indira Gandhi by arresting her prematurely and jeopardizing its future in the process.

The Indian Express and The Statesman, English-language dailies that opposed Mrs. Gandhi's emergency rule, accused the government of "clumsy work" and "monumental incompetence" because it failed to prepare an adequate case against the former prime minister before arresting her Monday night on charges of political corruption.

Mrs. Gandhi was freed Tuesday by a Delhi magistrate who said the government gave insufficient grounds for detaining her. Seeking to capitalize on the court victory, she immediately resumed her speaking campaign against the Janata party coalition that turned her and the Congress party out of office in parliamentary elections last March.

"There has been clumsy work at the crossroads," said an editorial in the Indian Express. "If those responsible for handling the processing of the case against her had gone about it with the deliberate intention of providing Mrs. Gandhi with ammunition for her charge of political vendetta at work, they could not have gone about their business with more skill."

The Express was the principal target of Mrs. Gandhi's campaign to censor the press during the 21 months of emergency rule that completed her 11 years in power.

The Statesman said Mrs. Gandhi's "formidable political talent will capitalize on the dramatic events to further divide the country and sow doubts in the people's minds about the Janata government's motives." It added that the government's performance during its six months in power "has disillusioned many and will only serve to give credence to the view that inquiries (into the actions of the previous government) and the drama of Mrs. Gandhi's arrest are a substitute for government action in other, more important, fields."

Mrs. Gandhi after her release met with aides and supporters at her home and gave brief interviews to foreign correspondents. She said the magistrate's action vindicated her and proved the Desai government was trying to discredit her politically with "trumped up charges."

Then she flew to Bombay, on the west coast, for three days of speeches in Desai's home state, Gujarat.

The government appealed to the Delhi high court to countermand the magistrate's release of Mrs. Gandhi, and the Central Bureau of Investigation said it would put together a more comprehensive case against her. A government source said the bureau had warned the government the case against her was not ready, but the political leaders insisted on the arrest.

Sources in the bureau said other criminal charges will soon be brought against Mrs. Gandhi, her son Sanjay and other members of her administration for abuses of power during the emergency period.

Four Traffic Mishaps Here

An estimated $6,125 property damage resulted from a series of four collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9:15 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive near the Country Club Road intersection involving cars driven by Beverly Tyson Dickerson of Williamston, David Gordon Lee of Bethel and James Edward Tripp Jr., of Route 2, Walstonburg.

Police, who charged Lee with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $2,500 to the Dickerson car, $1,000 to the Lee auto and $800 to the Tripp vehicle.

Alan Rogers Ayers of 501 East Gum Rd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Gum Road and VanDyke Street.

Officers said the Ayers car collided with an auto driven by Pamela Jean Tripp of 702 East Gum Rd., resulting in an estimated $600 damage to the Tripp car and $350 damage to the Ayers vehicle.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 12 noon mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 2 mile east of the Evans Street intersection.

Police reported cars driven by David Earl Turnage of 207 Hillcrest Dr., and Nora Elizabeth Shackelford of 305 Harvey Dr. collided, causing $300 damage to the Turnage car and $275 damage to the Shackelford auto.

An estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 4:20 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive, 225 feet South of the Dickinson Avenue intersection.

Drivers involved in the mishap were listed as Monce Marvin Edmondson of Bethel and Harold Wayne Ross of 2600 Cherokee Dr., who was operating a motorcycle.

Undecided As To Appeal

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for Edwin Duncan Jr., former board chairman of the Northwestern Bank, say they haven't decided yet whether to appeal Duncan's conviction on charges of buying Internal Revenue Service agents.

"There probably will be an appeal," said Greensboro attorney Ben Tennille, who helped defend Duncan.

"But we've got two more trials to go through," he added. "There's a lot more to do before that decision is made... There's always the possibility of appeal in this sort of thing. We just haven't gotten together and decided yet."

Duncan was found guilty of spying electronically on IRS agents using a bank office in North Wilkesboro as they probed Northwestern's affairs between 1971 and 1973.

On Thursday he is scheduled to stand trial on charges of misapplying a total of more than $257,000 in bank funds by overdrawing his checking account, letting the bank pay the checks and the later charging his account after he had deposited funds to cover the overdrafts.

When that trial is over he will be tried along with two other bank employees on charges of eavesdropping on FBI agents investigating the bank earlier this year.

Duncan faces fines totalling up to $20,000 and a prison sentence of up to 10 years in the Monday conviction. U.S. District Judge Hiram H. Ward delayed sentencing until after the other two trials.

Winner Of Scholarship

CHAPEL HILL — Amy Lou Clifton of 1113 Cedar Lane, Greenville, was recently awarded a James M. Johnston Scholarship for undergraduate study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

AMY LOU CLIFTON

The announcement was made by William M. Geer, director of Student Aid and of the Johnston Awards Program at UNC.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Clifton and a graduate of Rose High School where she was a nominee for Girls' State.

Clifton is presently a junior at UNC.

The Johnston Awards Program, begun in the fall of 1970, has 427 Johnston Scholars currently enrolled at the University on the three participating campuses — Chapel Hill, Greensboro and Raleigh.

The amounts of the awards vary according to need and range from $500 to $4,650 a year. Outstanding academic merit as well as leadership in the scholar's home community are among the criteria for these awards.

Disposal Of Defoliant Weapon Is Costly Project

By ROBERT C. MILLER
HONOLULU (UPI) — Sprinkled over the deep waters of the central Pacific are perhaps the world's most expensive carbon particles.

The particles were created by the cremation of $70 million worth of the defoliant "herbicide orange" which was produced seven years ago to help win the war in Vietnam.

At an admitted cost of $5 million and after seven years of bureaucratic bickering, the Air Force finally rid the world of what had started out as a harmless weed killer and became, in the minds of many, a horror fluid capable of producing birth defects.

The furnaces of the Dutch ship Vulcanus, heated to 2,732 degrees, incinerated the 2,290,000 gallons into harmless gaseous particles about 1,000 miles west of Honolulu.

The drums of herbicide orange had been stored at Gulfport, Miss., and the central Pacific atoll of Johnston Island during the years it took to find a satisfactory way of disposing of the defoliant.

Aerial spraying by specially modified Air Force tankers had dumped more than 11 million gallons of the weed killer on the lush Vietnamese jungles during the seven years it was used to wipe out ground cover that the Viet Cong might use for ambushes.

Then, after South Vietnamese newspapers blamed the spraying for increased birth defects, it took the Air Force seven more years to satisfactorily dispose of it. Not only was it suddenly dangerous to man, but also to fish and bird life.

For 30 years, the weed killer had been sold commercially across hardware counters and stored in barns from Maine to Oregon. Suddenly, it became such a threat that the two-and-a-half mile railroad track linking the Gulfport storage area with the dock had to be rebuilt before authorities would allow the 860,000 gallons to be moved.

"And the cars were allowed to move only at a speed of two-and-a-half miles an hour to prevent any derailment," said Col. Stanley A. Morrow, director of the disposal operation.

Morrow estimated $5 million was spent during the seven years it took to finally find and carry out a government-approved method of destroying the 45 pounds of dangerous TCDD (tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin) contained in the herbicide orange.

Pentagon sources close to the project said the total costs were "far more" than $5 million, and claimed the destroyed herbicide orange had a value of more than $70 million on the commercial market had Washington found a currently available and economically sound way for the toxic dioxin to be removed by filtering.

Morrow said the Air Force had considered offers by a chemical company to recycle the herbicide, but said the "environmental apprehension" associated with the disposal of the toxic-saturated filters killed the project.

Buried somewhere in the classified files of the Pentagon is the origin of "Ranch Hand," the code name given in 1963 to the defoliation project in Vietnam.

The theory, which in hindsight seems ludicrous, was that by defoliating all the jungle and vegetation which paralleled the roads and highways and surrounded the military installations, the Viet Cong would be deprived of cover from which to launch ambushes.

Transport aircraft were converted to tankers and for the next seven years the low-flying planes crisscrossed Vietnam, spraying their millions of gallons of herbicide orange on the landscape, and consequently, Vietnamese and Americans.

On one of the first flights in 1964, this reporter asked the crew what would prevent ambushes from the edges of the defoliated areas.

"Don't ask me," answered the pilot. "I just work here."

The first note of apprehension came from Saigon newspapers in June and July of 1969 when they reported a big increase in birth defects among people allegedly living in defoliated areas.

Then Bionetics Research Laboratories of Litton Industries said their research showed that mice and rats treated during early pregnancies with large doses of the chemical produced birth-defective offspring.

These well-publicized findings caused Washington to suspend certain uses of it within the United States, and the Pentagon subsequently ordered the end of "Operation Ranch Hand."

"To our knowledge," said Morrow, "there has never been a documented case of human intoxication traced to herbicide orange during Ranch Hand, although there were thousands of American servicemen working directly with the herbicide, frequently with little or no precautionary measures taken. Many were stripped of the waist while handling the herbicide, yet we have no record of any ill effects to any of these people."

Following the warnings of its hazards, nobody was allowed to move the 860,000 gallons awaiting shipment to Vietnam at Gulfport, and nobody wanted the 1,430,000 gallons in Vietnam returned to the United States.

Amidst tight security and extreme safety precautions, the Vietnamese supply was finally shipped to Johnston Island where increased safeguards were introduced, including restrictions on women staying on the atoll.

During the next four years, the various state and national environmental agencies competed to see which could denounce herbicide orange the loudest.

A proposal to burn the Gulfport supply at Deer Park, Texas, nearly brought out the Texas Rangers. When Suget, Ill., was suggested as another incineration site, the Air Force was engulfed with protests.

When a commercial company proved in a pilot plant that herbicide orange could be recycled at a profit of millions, the deal was blocked by environmentalists.

Preparations were made to bury the toxic-saturated filters from the pilot program in West Covina, Calif., until California's Health Department heard about it and vetoed the proposal.

The canisters were moved to Oregon, but when word leaked out that the unwanted filters were to be buried in Oregon's soil, state authorities ordered them removed. The Air Force had to set up a special flight to fly the canisters nonstop from Oregon to Johnston Island.

Finally this spring, the Air Force's Dr. Billy Welch told an Environmental Protection Agency hearing in Washington that the Dutch incinerator ship Vulcanus would pick up the Gulfport supply, take it 220 miles west of Johnston Island and incinerate it. Then the Vulcanus would incinerate the 1,430,000 gallons stored at Johnston.

The long-sought permit was finally given, and the Vulcanus was hired at a cost of $14,500 a day when she is in port and $15,500 a day while at sea.

Tennis Pro Confides Pet Peeves

WAILEA-MAUI, Hawaii (UPI) — Tennis professionals have their own pet peeves. Their students can learn from the instruction, says one resort tennis pro.

It is hard enough teaching in a resort where hotel guests come in for a lesson or two and then move on to another island. But when they fail to practice what they've been taught, it upsets Steve Lee.

"I think that's the worst," Lee said after conducting a "Stroke of the Day" clinic here.

"I don't care who the instructor is or what method he teaches, the most upsetting thing to him will be if you don't practice.

"If you learn something," said the bronzed Hawaiian, "the idea is to reinforce it with practice.

"Sure, we professionals make our living out of this. But we also like to feel we have achieved some kind of success.

"And you don't do that with what we call the professional lesson taker. Some of them come here just so they'll have something to talk about.

"You know, they want to tell people what their pro told them today — to brag about the wonderful new pro they are taking lessons from.

"We're just a nice conversation piece for them. I know practicing is hard sometimes — to squeeze in the time for it — but what it really boils down to, if you don't practice, you're wasting a lot of money."

What else bugs Lee, 27, of Honolulu, tennis pro at the Wailea club on Maui?

"The spectators that start giving the lesson themselves.

"It's happened once or twice. One time, there was this father. It was the first time I had taught his son. So I wanted to let him take some swings before I started giving instructions — give him a chance to relax, to loosen up. And I needed to find out how good he was and what he needed to work on.

"But the father, he starts right in giving instructions. I ask him, 'Pardon me, sir, but if it's all right with you, I'm giving the lesson, I'll tell him what to do.'

"He says, 'Well, tell him something then.'

"That kind of tennis parent, they are the worst.

"A lot of these parents, they're trying to relive their lives through their kids. We see them at the tournaments, too. What they tried and couldn't do, they're going to have their kid do.

"And a lot of kids I've known have quit because of that. They can just take so much of that kind of pressure."

Steve has one piece of advice for anyone serious about developing a good game.

"Try to find an instructor that you are compatible with. As far as the ratio of success goes, a pro wants to — has to — have the great majority of students succeed with him.

"But every pro knows there is a certain percentage of people that he can't get along with. No matter how hard you try, it just won't work. These people need to go to someone else."

Lee, who has taught five years here and in Honolulu, conducts the "Stroke of the Day Clinic" for tennis buffs needing a brush up and who lack time while here to take a full course.

But he prefers more concentrated private lessons for more advanced players.

Although beginners are sometimes self-conscious and need private lessons, he says the clinic helps a great many others gain confidence from being in a group.

It'd be right smart to give the local Doxol guy a call.

How-dee! This is Minnie Pearl. You know, school days are long past for most of us. But, not the Doxol guy. He still goes to special training sessions sponsored by his company.

He's the only one in the whole L.P.-gas industry with a program like this. That's where he learns the fine points of home heating, safety, and all those motor fuel, agricultural and commercial applications.

If you're looking for someone you can count on, it'd be right smart to give your local Doxol guy a call.

Harbor Raft Helps Study Of Corrosion

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD HONG KONG (UPI) — A way to save millions of dollars in the cost of protecting ship bottoms from corrosion may be found on a 13-foot raft in Hong Kong harbor.

It is part of an international study of the damage the marine environment causes.

Hong Kong's share in the project was sparked by a British zoologist's research in England starting in 1970 and his determination to make others aware of the limited lifespans of ship bottoms and harbor facilities.

Dr. Brian Morton, now with the department of Zoology at the University of Hong Kong, said the turning point came with his acceptance into the International Committee for Research on Materials in the Marine Environment based in Paris.

Morton is concerned with the frequency that ship hulls have to be repainted and wharves, buoys, fishnets, concrete, plastics, glass fibers and cables fixed or replaced.

The 35-year-old associate professor and his six-man team hope to determine the negative effects the harbor marine environment has, which organisms are responsible for different types of damage, the time factor involved, and the influence of different degrees of salinity and water temperature. "Two of the reasons why the Hong Kong Harbor is unusually appropriate for this study is its fluctuating salinity and temperatures. The water ranges from 28-12 degrees Centigrade (83-53 Fahrenheit), whereas the temperatures in many harbors remain fairly stable," Morton said.

While the results of Morton's efforts could save businesses millions, the study here is operating for at least two years on $20,000 from a local foundation.

Engineers at the university constructed the 13-by-13 foot square raft supported by four floats. An opening in the middle allows frames holding test panels to descend into 20 feet of sea water.

Locating the raft in harbor conditions was essential, Morton explained, "because the most damage occurs there, not in the open sea."

He said the most commonly destructive organisms — mussels, barnacles, tubeworms, algae and shipworms — thrive on all the material in a harbor.

"The paint on a ship's hull may have to be redone every two years. The cost of labor involved is high, but consider this in terms of all the seagoing vessels in the world."

Two-hundred materials can be tested at a time from Morton's raft. Since the frames are frequently checked, any firm wishing a test can expect at least a monthly evaluation of the status of its product.

The items the raft is equipped to test include any material likely to be found in a harbor. The Hong Kong results, as well as those from the other countries, are coordinated by the committee in Paris.

In addition to the British Colony, scientists belonging to the committee and working on various aspects of the project are in Japan, Australia, Egypt, Italy, Great Britain, Argentina, Canada, Denmark, Spain, France, Ghana, Greece and the United States.

How N.C. Representatives And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 22-28.

HOUSE
POPULATION COMMITTEE — Adopted, 258 for and 147 against, a resolution (H Res 70) setting up a Select Committee on Population to further study the world population explosion and propose means of curbing it. The committee is scheduled to go out of business on Jan. 3, 1979. A specific price tag will be considered later. Estimates are that it will cost "no more than $500,000" for staffing, travel and other expenses.

Rep. B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.), a supporter, said there is a "desperate need" for efforts such as this "if in fact we are going to be able as the human race to survive on this planet."

Rep. John Rousselot (R-Calif.), an opponent, said that two other House committees are concerning themselves with the population problem and that to create a special committee "to deal with a subject already being studied is a gross abuse of the American taxpayer."

Members voting "yea" favored creating the committee. Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "nay."

ASSASSINATIONS PANEL — Adopted, 290 for and 112 against, a resolution (H Res 760) enabling the Select Committee on Assassinations to go into court on its own, without the prior approval of the full House that virtually all other committees must obtain. The panel, set up to uncover new facts behind the murders of Martin Luther King and President John F. Kennedy, now can seek immunity for witnesses and contempt-of-Congress citations without consulting with the full House.

Rep. Louis Stokes (D-Ohio), chairman of the committee and supporter of the resolution, said: "If we are going to be able to conduct the type of investigation that has to be conducted here where there are allegations of conspiracy, this is a tool that is absolutely needed."

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), an opponent, said: "I cannot think of any instances where this power (to seek contempt citations) has been granted (one committee) with the possible exception of the Korean investigation. This committee does not warrant this kind of a broad grant of power."

Members voting "yea" favored broader legal authority for the select committee.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea." Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

EX-PRESIDENTS — Failed, 211 for and 303 against, to obtain the two-thirds majority needed for passage of a bill (HR 9278) increasing former President Ford's annual staff payroll allowance. A two-thirds majority was required by the shortcut parliamentary procedure under which the bill was brought to the floor.

Former presidents receive up to $1 million for official business conducted in their first six months out of the White House. Then they are entitled to $96,000 annually for life for staff salaries. This bill sought to increase the $96,000 to $150,000 for a 30-month period, after which it would fall back to $96,000. Ford is the only ex-President whose staff payroll would have risen to $150,000. However, the staff payrolls of both Ford and former President Nixon stood to benefit from an automatic cost-of-living increase the bill sought to provide for the staffs of the ex-presidents.

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), a supporter, said Ford has been on a "very busy official schedule" and that he "does in fact require the additional staffing these funds would provide."

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), an opponent, said that part of Ford's official schedule has consisted of endorsing the Panama Canal treaties, and that "if he wants to propagandize in favor of the treaty, he ought to do it at his own expense."

Members voting "yea" favored the larger payroll allowance for ex-presidents.

Fountain, Andrews, Preyer, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Whitley, Neal, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE
ENERGY — Failed, 46 for and 52 against, to table and thus kill an amendment to remove federal controls from the price of natural gas. The failure of this tabling motion kept alive a proposal to force immediate deregulation of new natural gas found on shore and deregulation after five years of new off-shore gas. The deregulation plan would replace President Carter's call for additional federal controls of natural gas at higher prices than now exist. Carter's plan is a major part of the national energy policy bill (S 2104) that was on the Senate floor during this vote.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan (D-N.Y.), a supporter of tabling, said: "I cannot endorse immediate deregulation, for the immediate doubling or tripling of prices which would ensue would be unduly disruptive of our already troubled economy, and highly inflationary."

Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.), an opponent of tabling, said: "Artificially controlled prices keep down supply. You cannot repeal the law of supply and demand. We do not have that kind of wisdom."

Senators voting "yea" were opposed to immediately removing federal price controls on on-shore natural gas.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea" and Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

ENERGY — Voted, 77 for and 17 against, to close a filibuster on the pending national energy policy bill (S-2104, see vote above). This margin far exceeded the three-fifths majority necessary to invoke cloture. However, it did not stop the dilatory tactics of the filibusterers, who turned next to introducing scores of amendments and sent the Senate into round-the-clock sessions for several days.

At issue was the question of whether to deregulate the price of natural gas or, instead, embrace President Carter's proposal to extend controls from the interstate to the intrastate market while raising the controlled price.

Senators voting for cloture were either proponents of deregulation or supporters of a compromise. Senators voting against cloture were the Senate's staunchest advocates of broader price controls.

Majority leader Robert Byrd (D-W.Va.), a supporter of cloture, said: "The time has come for the Senate to decide. This is a point beyond which deliberation is fruitless."

Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.), an opponent of cloture, said: "There is no way that there is going to be some sort of an ideal compromise unless we are allowed to debate these things openly and freely."

Senators voting "nay" favored expanded federal controls on natural gas prices.

Morgan voted "nay" and Helms did not vote.

RUMMAGE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to think out a well-rounded plan of action where your usual duties and activities are concerned. Later you are able to tune in on where and how you can make your greatest strides toward life having more breadth and scope to it.

ARIES (March 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of home affairs; then get into private business matters. Save recreational activities for later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to establish more harmony with allies and get better results in the future. Handle accounts carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care of monetary matters early. Study new data you have. Don't neglect correspondence. Enjoy hobbies with intimates.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of personal matters early and then delve into business concerns. Keep promises. Put money to work in proper channels.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study personal aims and set wheels in motion to achieve results. Consult with a good adviser. Socialize with good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to advice of a good friend and incorporate with your own ideas. Plan a social affair early so it works about satisfactorily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle that credit affair without fail. Gain a favor from a bigwig and later attend a worthwhile social function.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have fascinating ideas that should be studied well. Later you can gain backing from bigwigs. Making new contacts is wise, also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make pressing payments before you get into some new venture. Try to please loved one more. Find more advanced ways to get ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a better understanding with associates. Many situations arise that clarify the picture for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy at work requiring your personal attention. Then get together with partners and talk important matters over. Take needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to get creative ideas on the road, and then do the necessary work connected with them. Spend wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be alert to everyone and everything around him or her. Have as fine an environment and persons around as possible, otherwise your progeny could absorb all the wrong things and life here could be ruined.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Home Births Are California Trend

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Planned childbirth at home in "malpractice happy" California can save money for new parents, but it presents problems in emergency situations.

The popularity of home births is increasing so rapidly in the Golden State that a 29-member committee has been established in the State Department of Health in Sacramento to study alternatives to hospital birth. It is scheduled to submit its final report and recommendations by Jan. 1.

Debbie Boyd, 19, and Barbara Litwin, 28, are two mothers who opted to have their first babies at home.

"The hospital is not a place for babies to be born," said Mrs. Boyd. "It's a place for sick people."

"Home birth is for the woman who knows herself, who knows what she wants and can handle it," said Mrs. Litwin, who resolved as a volunteer worker in a maternity ward to have her children at home.

The Litwin infant was born at home in April, with the father present. Mrs. Litwin, like Mrs. Boyd, had prepared for the birth by attending six-week education class.

"I figure if my cat can do it, I can do it," she said.

Obstacles to home birth in California are raised by laws such as those outlawing lay midwifery and making nurse midwifery legal only with direct supervision by a doctor.

The only legal attendant in a home birth situation is a doctor, except in emergency settings. Few physicians are willing to handle them.

"California is malpractice happy," said Dr. John R. Repaire, one of the four doctors in the San Diego area who delivers babies at home.

"Dr. A is afraid to do anything that Dr. B doesn't do."

Repaire attended 107 home deliveries in the first eight months this year. He said infant and maternal mortality rates for his home birth practice are zero. He screens prospective patients carefully to exclude risk factors such as breach deliveries, small pel-vies and body chemistry disorders.

Repaire said doctors are discouraged from handling home deliveries not just by malpractice fears, but by the additional time involved and the lack of facilities.

Patients who favor home births give reasons such as economy, religious beliefs and their feeling that home birth is better for a child.

Repaire's fee for home birth and followup care is $750. A normal hospital delivery, including physician's fee, can cost $1,200.

A good alternative is a "home-oriented hospital birth," Repaire said. He said this method uses the same room for labor, delivery and care after birth. The father is present during delivery, and the baby remains with the mother afterward.

"This would be a definite step forward," the doctor said. "I would like to encourage it."

Proponents of home birth cite mortality rates for both mothers and infants that compare favorably with national rates for all births. Improved rates are cited by such groups as the Association for Childbirth at Home.

Opponents argue the question boils down to a choice between the comforts of home and safety afforded by a hospital.

If an emergency develops in home birth, the mother has to be rushed to a hospital. The extra time involved increases risks to both the mother and baby, said Dr. Richard H. McDonald, former president of the Orange County Obstetrical and Gynecological Society.

McDonald said that in his experience one out of every 50 home birth patients had to be taken to a hospital after labor started.

"Doctors must make greater efforts to initiate and accommodate emotionally satisfying childbirth techniques," he said. "They should also seek to create in the hospital setting an atmosphere of human concern and comfort for patient, family and friends."

The state health department committee was established by a bill introduced by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, "because of the growing recognition that early experiences of the infant may have a profound impact on his or her life, both physically and emotionally."

Issues it is studying include health care and procedures before, during and after birth; advantages and risks of various approaches and legal and malpractice implications.

Related measures pending include one by Assemblyman Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara, to allow women to receive an alternative maternity service at a "substantially reduced cost" through the licensing of lay midwives. That bill is scheduled for consideration in January.

Will Preach At Church Sunday

The Rev. Roger Hooke of Holy Hill F.W.B. Church will preach at St. Matthew F.W.B. Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The new location is on the corner of Perkins and Norris Streets. Sister Susie Moore is the sponsor.

The public is invited.

Visitations At School Oct. 11

The Parent-Teachers Association at Wahl-Coates School will have a class room visitation night on Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

The visitation program will follow at short introduction of teachers and a business meeting.

GROUNDING TANKER — A giant Dutch salvage tug, background, fails to budge the 20,000-ton bulk carrier Lamaria from her position atop the barrier reef northwest of Bermuda. The vessel ran aground at high tide last Wednesday and all attempts by local tugs to free it were in vain. Plans were being made to offload 400 tons of fuel oil from the Liberian-registered vessel in preparation for another tug attempt. Minister of Marine and Ports John Swan has warned the owners of the ship that he will not permit them to jettison the oil into the sea. (AP Laserphoto)

Prohibition In India Is Desai's Aim

By JOHN NEEDHAM
NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India has launched another of its battles against the bottle, this time with the personal encouragement of a teetotaler prime minister.

"There has to be prohibition by law and total prohibition," Premier Morarji Desai said in a recent speech that brought groans from the parched throats of hotel owners, tourist officials and everyday tipplers.

Desai, 81, is a puritanical man who shuns alcohol, cigarettes and most foods except fruits and nuts. He counts himself an associate and follower of the late Mohandas Gandhi, architect of India's independence and a lifelong campaigner against the demon rum.

Desai, who took office last March, told state government officials India should be completely dry "within a maximum of four years."

Although prohibition would cost India an estimated $500 million or more in annual taxes, Desai says that's no argument against a ban on liquor because such money is tainted.

"Would you commit a robbery to raise money for building a hospital?" he asks.

Desai contends that only about 15 percent of India's 625 million citizens drink now. For one thing, it's an expensive habit in a poor country.

Imported Scotch can cost $25 to $50 per fifth in government-licensed shops.

Indian whiskey, which can give a Westerner a headache with the first sip, costs about $5 a bottle. Beer, some of which is passable, runs a bit under $1. The wine is a little less subtle than kerosene and would be over priced even if free.

Each year hundreds, if not thousands, of Indians kill themselves drinking vile and lethal concoctions of furniture polish or derivatives of methyl alcohol.

There are no western-style bars, although the hotels catering to tourists do have bars attached. Indians can drink there except on "dry days," which used to be Wednesdays and the first and last days of each month. But the dry days are changed often enough to confuse the most dedicated alcoholic.

The loudest cries against prohibition, aside from those of Indian journalists, have come from people in the tourist trade.

"Prohibition will definitely affect tourism," one travel agency executive said.

"Foreigners are so used to their drinks that they will not accept its absence. From our experience in Tamil Nadu, where tourists have to get special permits for liquor, we know that if there is total prohibition they are going to think twice before coming to India."

Tamil Nadu, the southern state formerly known as Madras, and Gujarat, the western state that was home to Mahatma Gandhi and Desai, are the only two of India's 22 states that are now dry.

"Of course I'm an alcoholic," a senior Tamil Nadu government official laughed in an interview earlier this year. He explained that anyone knowing the right doctor could buy a certificate of alcoholism for about $5, which entitles him to drink legally. "All my closest friends are alcoholics, too," he said.

The system has since been changed, with permits now coming from the prohibition commissioner and government officials barred from drinking. But to beat the new rules, Tamil Nadu residents hurried to get certificates while they could. The number of permits was 27,000 on March 31, 1976. It shot up to 59,000 a year later.

Desai has long been a chief speaker at sessions of one or another of India's prohibition groups. His autobiography is riddled with tales of the harm done to poor people by drink.

As chief minister of what was then the state of Bombay, Desai introduced prohibition two decades ago. The city itself now is partially wet, with a patchwork of rules about who can buy what sort of alcohol where.

Desai says that when Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev came to Bombay in 1955 he was issued a liquor permit but didn't use it. He said Khrushchev praised the prohibition policy and expressed the wish it could be introduced in the Soviet Union.

The drive for prohibition is a periodic one in India. Two years ago the government of then Prime Minister Indira Gandhi announced a 12-point program to culminate in a dry nation, but nothing came of it.

Spitzbergen Discourages Any Tourists

By ERIK A. WOLD

LONGYEARBYEN, Spitsbergen (AP) — After an Austrian tourist was killed by a polar bear in the scenic Magdalenafjord area this summer, Norwegian authorities have stated that the Arctic archipelago of Spitsbergen (Svalbard) is not suited for mass tourism.

At times during the summer more than 500 tourists with their small tents and camping supplies were spread over the island group.

This was a much greater influx than was expected by the Norwegian and local authorities, who have consistently warned tourists against the harsh climate, barren and rugged terrain, wild animals and the almost total lack of basic facilities.

Tourists must bring their own supplies, including food. There is only a small provisional "hotel" — a simple barracks near the Longyearbyen airstrip, basically reserved for official guests. There are no plans to build more facilities.

The situation this past summer became so difficult that Spitsbergen Governor Leif Eldring had to deny permission to the West German cruise liner "Europa" to call upon the mining center of Longyearbyen, which was already overcrowded with other cruise tourists.

Several cruise ships have visited Longyearbyen recently and local authorities allow tourists only a few hours' sightseeing before the liners leave.

What worries authorities most is the great number of trips to Spitsbergen by individual tourists. They would like to see much more control over such visitors, who without firearms risk their lives hiking into isolated valleys and on glaciers. They often meet torrential summer streams.

The Austrian who was killed was camping with 15 friends in the Magdalenafjord area. When this reporter recently visited the area, he saw no polar bears but plenty of fresh bear footprints on the still ice-covered fjord.

Hans Olav Oestgaard, chief of the Ministry of Justice's Polar Division, commented: "All tourists who take the risk of moving outside the populated Longyearbyen area should carry firearms for their own security so they can protect themselves. Polar bears can pop up anywhere."

None of the Austrian tourists group carried guns. The 15 other members of the group hid among rocks until the bear finally disappeared almost 12 hours later.

The last person killed by a polar bear in the archipelago was a Norwegian, killed at Bjoernoya (Bear Island) in 1971.

There have been several narrow escapes since then.

Governor Eldring has only one helicopter and a small inspection ship to help in tracking tourists.

"We have to be very strict in allowing tourists to hike freely at Spitsbergen. There is no place where they can buy food or other equipment," he said.

He is also worried about trash left by tourists. Norwegian Boy Scouts are brought to Longyearbyen at the end of every summer to clean up the place.

Spitsbergen is completely without trees and it is hard to find green grass, but in middle of summer more than 150 different kinds of flowers can be found. But tourists are warned that all vegetation is protected and it is forbidden to pick flowers.

$150 Million Credit Test

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — The republic of Trinidad and Tobago is officially designated a less developed country and it recently borrowed $150 million from a consortium of 11 international banks.

But what makes Trinidad and Tobago different from most other LDCs is the fact it did not need the money.

Victor Bruce, chairman of the Republic's central bank, announced when the loan was negotiated that it was "to test the creditworthiness of the country."

Prime Minister Eric Williams said: "Establishment of a country's creditworthiness could most favorably be achieved at a time when, in strict terms, debt financing is not specifically required. Because in the eyes of the financial markets, the ideal debtor is one with no need for money."

Herman's Hermits Play Country Rock

STRADIVARIUS?—Bernard Powell of Wilton, Conn., holds a violin he bought last month for $4 at a Norwalk flea market. When Powell got the violin home and looked inside he saw a label that said it was made by Stradivarius in 1721. If it is true that the violin is an original Stradivarius, it could be worth as much as $300,000. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARY ELLEN HASKETT
BALTIMORE (UPI)—Herman's Hermits became the idols of millions of teen-age girls in the 1960s with simple, sticky-sweet love songs like "Can't You Hear My Heartbeat" and, most famous of all, the nonsense tune, "I'm Henry VIII, I Am."

After selling more than 40 million records during their heyday, the short drippy songs of the British group disappeared from radio for the most part in the early 1970s.

But the Hermits have kept on performing. "We've never stopped since we started in 1967," said guitarist Derek "Leck" Leckenby.

The Hermits have moved from packed auditoriums to smaller clubs or engagements such as a city-sponsored free outdoor concert in Baltimore's Hopkins Plaza. A 10-week summer tour included stops in Canada, New York, Vermont, Ohio, Indiana, Nevada, Colorado, and Maryland.

The fall from pop music stardom does not appear to bother the Hermits. Lead singer Carl Green, who started the band in the early '60s when the Hermits were aged about 16 to 18, said the group enjoys touring.

"We were never superstars—that's one of the media's words," Leckenby said. "We enjoy playing—making ourselves happy. We're not in it for the loot."

"We never thought we would make any bread, but when we had it, it was great because of the satisfaction it gave," Leckenby said of the group's formation in Manchester, an industrial city in Northern England. He said the group wants another hit song—"Sure, we're not crazy"—and is working on an album, but it is not the final, most important thing in the Hermits' lives.

"We've got a whole lot of new songs and we're trying to get a new deal," said Leckenby. "We want to produce it ourselves."

He said the album will contain more country-rock songs in a similar vein and mentioned the Atlanta Rhythm Section as having the "funky but down to earth" sound he likes.

The crowd of more than 1,000 at Baltimore's Hopkins Plaza listened happily, but only came to its feet clapping for the "golden oldies"—"Mrs. Brown You've Got a Lovely Daughter," "Silhouettes," "I'm Into Something Good," and "There's a Kind of Hush."

The most enthusiastically received song was, of course, "I'm Henry VIII, I Am."

The audience sang along with the Hermits, whose white costumes were spotlighted in pink. Nearly everyone knew all the verses.

The tunes, with talk of "blokes" and "sharp girls" sung in Manchester accents, were the same as in the 1960s, but the musical quality seemed to have more depth.

Leckenby said the group has changed somewhat and hopes to include more songs in the country-rock style in a future album.

After the show, a girl approached Leckenby with a ticket stub. "She told me we played in Baltimore 10 years ago and she still had her ticket," he said, shaking his hand in amazement.

The group still has three of the original members—Green, Leckenby and drummer Barry Whitham—who left in 1971, to pursue a solo singing career. "Peter felt the band held him back," Leckenby said with some bitterness. "But he's not good on his own."

The newest member of the group is Frank Ribshaw on guitar. Ribshaw and Leckenby write most of the group's songs, although Green will contribute a ballad-style song once in a while.

Although "Mrs. Brown You've Got a Lovely Daughter" alone sold more than seven million copies, the Hermits can't be too precise about their total sales other than to say more than 40 million, or about how much money they made for others. "We never knew the total," Leckenby said. "There are a lot of thieves around in the record business. I like to get paid in hard cash, then you know you got paid."

The last album the Hermits released in the United States was in 1968, but MGM stopped promoting it. However, the group kept releasing albums and touring in England.

The Hermits recorded two songs for Buddha Records last year, but again the records were not promoted and they quit the company at the end of 1976.

Those experiences have led the Hermits to insist on supervising production themselves for their next album.

Leckenby and Green brought their families with them on the summer tour so they wouldn't miss their children's vacations from school.

Leckenby, who is the oldest Hermit at 31, said the group is one of the few English groups from the 60s which still performs.

"We just got together because we enjoyed playing," he said. "If I had it to do over, I would do it again."

For only the second time since 1957 this year's world team championship will be held without an Italian entrant! Italy could finish only second to Sweden in the European Championship, so the Scandinavians will be back in the Bermuda Bowl for the first time in almost 25 years. But don't write off the Italians. They showed that they have lost little of the skill that brought them a raft of world titles over the past two decades. Witness the skill of Benito Garozzo on this deal.

Garozzo's decision to run from three no trump is rather strange—that contract could have been made with the help of a double finesse in clubs. However, when East made the error of alerting Garozzo to the bad trump break in five diamonds, he was signing his own death warrant.

The spade opening was covered by the jack and king taken by the ace. Declarer led a trump to the queen and returned a low trump. Since he had given away the trump situation, East was compelled to split his diamond honors, and declarer captured the ten with the ace.

Garozzo now demonstrated that he could make his contract without having to resort to the double finesse in clubs. He led a heart, and West did as well as he could by winning the ace and returning a heart. Declarer won the king in dummy, cashed the queen of spades and ruffed a spade. The ace and king of clubs were followed by another spade ruff.

Declarer had lost only one trick. He was down to king-nine in trumps and a losing club. He simply exited with his club, and he did not care which defender won the trick. There was no way declarer could be prevented from scoring both his trumps for his doubled contract.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Systems Make Snap Decisions
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Each of the brains that control the Space Shuttle's three rocket engines during blast-off make 50 separate decisions as quickly as you can blink your eye.
That's 100 times quicker than the human mind can work, according to the Honeywell engineers who built the 211-pound control systems.

Horn Honked By Impatient Dog
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Workers at a service station here were surprised, after opening the garage door in response to a honk, to see a young collie sitting behind the wheel.
It turned out that its owners, Mr. and Mrs. John Barker, were in the service department and the puppy named Sunny got impatient and blew the horn.
"He frequently does that if we keep him waiting too long," Mrs. Barker explained.

Interview Can

Mean That Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Keep in mind that some experts say the employment interview counts for 85 percent of the decision whether to hire or not, advises S. Robert Freede, president of Scholarship Search here.

Freede, author of "Cash for College," suggests that if you want the best possible odds in your favor arrive on time, look sharp — neatness definitely counts — know your qualifications and what you're looking for and don't be overly aggressive.

Contest Details

Our professional buyers recently put together 10 of the greatest values we have to offer. We've got them all for you in one great promotion. To add a little spice, we've made a contest out of it. Shop around. Compare prices. Pick out the one product you think represents the very best value. If your choice agrees with that of our buyers, you could win a Ford Courier. Entry blanks at each Lowe's store. On Oct. 29, each store will hold a drawing. The winning entry will be sent to company headquarters, where on Oct. 31, the Grand Prize winner will be drawn. No purchase necessary. You do not have to be present to win. You must be 18 or older. Void where prohibited by law. Winner will be notified. Contest ends Oct. 29—so hurry and get your entry in now!

Here's Important News: We Have An Energy Efficient Home That Can Slash Year 'Round Utility Costs

It's Called LOW-E

Here's How It Works
We've taken all we know about energy savings and put it together in one beautiful package: Extra insulation, 2x6 exterior stud construction, vapor barrier, caulking... & much, much more.

Here's What You Get

Low-E is part of our successful Homestead® program. We supply all the materials from the foundation plate up for you to build this beautiful home on your own lot.

For the full Low-E story, drop by for a free brochure.

Here's The Story On The Squire Above

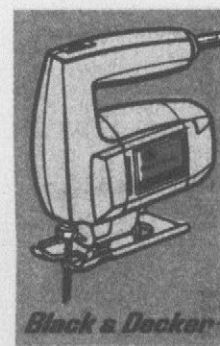

A handsome 4-bedroom rancher with Colonial styling. Covered front porch with four graceful columns. Inside, it features the popular "Great Room" concept, a large room suitable for many activities. Price includes the garage, electric heating & air conditioning.

Here's Proof It Works

Arkansas Power and Light Company reports that homes built to Low-E specs in their area are averaging a 65% savings compared to homes of the same FHA standards. These are actual metered results.

Here's What It Costs $18,135

Land and labor Not included
The basic information Above can also Apply to the Pinehurst Feature on the front page.
