Spanish Poet Is Winner Of Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1977 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded today to Spanish poet Vicente Aleixandre.

The Swedish Academy awarded the prize to Aleixandre, born in 1898 in Seville, "for a creative poetic writing, which, with roots in the traditions of Spanish lyric verse and in modern currents, illuminates man's condition in the cosmos and in present-day society."

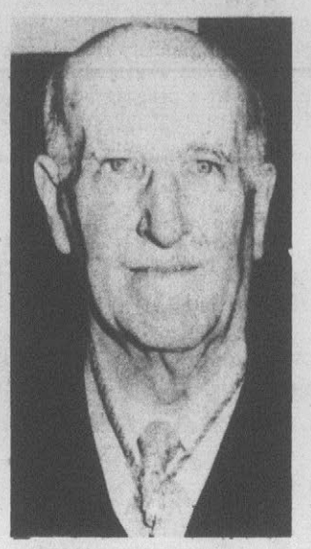
Aleixandre belongs to the same group of Spanish writers as Federico Garcia Lorca. But, like Italian poet Eugenio Montale, who won the 1975 prize, he is not widely known outside his homeland. The last Spaniard to win it was Jacinto Benevente in 1922.

The prize's cash award this year is $145,000.

On Wednesday the 18-member academy suddenly disclosed that the winner of the literature prize would be announced within 24 hours, breaking long tradition. The literature prize in the past usually was announced after other Nobel prizes.

Last year's literature winner was American novelist Saul Bellow.

Aleixandre had not even been mentioned in advance speculation about the 1977 award winner. In winning the prize he bettered such well-known authors as Doris Lessing of Britain, Guenther Grass of West Germany and



VICENTE ALEIXANDRE

Gabriel Garcia Marquez of Colombia.

The 79-year old poet first gained notice with the poems "Ambito" in 1928. This was followed by "Espadas como Labios" — "Swords as Lips" — in 1932, and two years later he was awarded Spain's top literary prize.

In 1935, shortly before the Spanish civil war broke out, Aleixandre's "La Destruccion o el Amor" — "Destruction or Love" — was published in Spain and later the same year "Pasion de la Tierra" — "Passion of the Earth" — in Mexico. Both works were carefully cadenced free verse, the latter changing to prose poems.

September Rise In Wholesale Prices

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose one-half of 1 per cent last month, the biggest increase since April, as the big drop in food prices began leveling off, the Labor Department said today.

After declines averaging nearly 4 per cent in the last four months, farm products declined in price by only two-tenths of 1 per cent in September.

Contributing most to the increase last month were industrial commodities, which rose eight-tenths of 1 per cent, the biggest jump in a year.

The biggest contributors were lumber and wood, which rose 4.4 per cent in September alone amid continuing demand for new houses.

Also increasing were fuels and power, nonmetallic minerals and transportation equipment.

The over-all increase of fivetenths of a per cent for September would average out to just over 6 per cent for an entire year, close to levels the administration considers an acceptable inflation rate.

Wholesale prices are paid by retailers and manufacturers before they reach the consumer, but the prices often show up later at retail stores.

Finished consumer goods, which are the furthest along the stage of production, rose four-tenths of 1 per cent in September after being virtually unchanged in the previous three months.

The September wholesale price increase was the largest since a 1.1 per cent rise in April, at a time when inflation was near the 10 per cent level.

As food prices began to decline, wholesale prices rose only four-tenths of a per cent in May and then dropped by seven-tenths of a per cent in June and by one-tenth of a per cent in July before going up by one-tenth of a per cent last month.

Pitt Board Asks Talk Date Change

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday rejected a proposed date for meeting with state and city school officials to discuss the possibility of a city-county school merger.

The board was informed that state officials could visit Greenville October 11, but members suggested a more suitable date be arranged

Regarding the merger, Ms. Annette MacRae, president of the Pitt County Unit of the North Carolina Association of Educators, requested that a representative of the organization be include on the Pitt County Board of Education's committee which will be appointed to study, plan and implement the merger of the rwo systems.

"We feel that N.C.A.E. can facilitate the planning and implementation of a merger in certain positive respects," she said. "N.C.A.E. can provide information on mergers and their results in other systems.

"N.C.A.E. can provide local information useful to the committee, and it can provide information on and possibly influence the response of educators and county citizens to the planning and implementation of merger," she said.

The board advised Ms. MacRae it would consider the request.

In other action, the board refused to endorse a proposed project by the Knights of Columbus involving a special showing at a local theater in Greenville of a classic movie at a price of $1 per child. Proceeds from the project would be returned to the county schools in support of education for the handicapped.

Also, Superintendent Ott Alford asked the board's feelings regarding attendance during the school day at special showings of films such as "The Lincoln Conspiracy." The board denied endorsement of such activities.

In other business, the board approved the following actions:

— A recommendation for the continuation of an agreement with Vocational Rehabilitation in which both parties mutually agree to operate a special Vocational Rehabilitation Program with emphasis on the rehabilitation of handicapped persons enrolled in the school system, or dropouts up to age 18.

— A request from the superintendent to submit an application to the Department of Public Instruction requesting consideration of a $25,000 grant to be funded by the Community School Act. The board has received a letter from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in support of the application as a vehicle for the implementation of a county recreation program.

— A recommendation by the superintendent that the high school curriculum be modified slightly to provide emphasis on reading for those students in need, both in English and social studies classes.

— Additions to the subsitute teacher list.

— A request by the superintendent to set the annual Appreciation Dinner for members of the various school advisory councils for Tuesday, Nov. 1 at 7 p.m. at Wellcome Middle School. Spouses of advisory council members are invited.

— An educational leave of absence for Doris S. Grubbs.

— The employment of the following personnel: Terry Sinclair, Robert Rippy, Karla Metcalf and Wiley T. Neal.

Senate Approves Cheap Electricity For Seniors

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate wants to give senior citizens cheaper electricity for lights, heating and cooking. But it seems cold to President Carter's proposal to overhaul electric rates for all consumers.

Senators, hoping to complete action today on the electric utility section of the President's energy program, were expected to go along with an energy committee recommendation to ditch Carter's plan to force utilities to revise their rate structures.

They added a provision to the bill Wednesday night requiring utilities to offer cheaper rates to senior citizens, a step sponsors said would mean a reduction of about 40 per cent in the electric bills of persons over 62.

Meanwhile, new efforts were expected today to try to resolve a Senate impasse over the President's proposed crude oil tax.

The Senate Finance Committee, which already has voted to reject the tax, planned another session to try to find a compromise that might be acceptable to the administration, consumers and industry.

However, a breakthrough seemed unlikely. "We're making no progress," said one committee aide.

He said one possibility being considered is to abandon the effort in the committee and to throw the entire question to the Senate.

At the same time, an effort to bypass the committee altogether is being planned by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

His proposal would lift federal price controls on some oil while putting a higher price ceiling on the remainder.

Johnston said he may offer the proposal today as an amendment to the electric utility bill.

He says his measure would drive up gasoline prices less than one cent a gallon, compared to the seven-cent-a-gallon increase under the Carter plan. Johnston also says his proposal would give oil companies greater financial incentives for finding new oil supplies than they have under the present pricing arrangment.

The expected rejection of the Presiden't utility rate proposal would be still another blow to an energy package that has already suffered repeated setbacks in the Senate.

The administration proposal, already approved by the House, would require utilities to offer lower electric rates to consumers at night and during other off-peak times. It also would halt the sale of power to large industrial users at bargain rates.

In action on Wednesday, the Senate approved, 56-36, an amendment by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo, to make electricity cheaper for senior citizens. Under the amendment, utilities would have to offer senior citizens the same low electric rates that they offer their biggest industrial customers.

Hart said these industries often get a discount rate as much as half of what residential consumers pay for electricity — a discount that the Carter plan seeks to eliminate entirely.

On the average, senior citizens would save 40.8 percent on their electric bills under the measure, Hart said.

Push Bail-Out

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a measure to bail out the Social Security System by raising taxes for the best paid workers and their employers are pressing for final action before Congress adjourns, even if this month's planned adjournment is delayed.

The bill, passed by the House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday, will almost certainly be compromised with a version being developed in the Senate.

The Senate Finance Committee has tentatively voted to shift more of the burden for keeping the deficit-plagued system to employers.

To keep Social Security from running out of funds by 1983, the House committee recommended tax increases beginning next year for upper bracket employes and for all covered employes by 1981. Employers pay the same tax. The increases would be in addition to those already provided by law.

The committee plans to put its bill before the full House in about a week.

The highest tax anyone is paying this year, in round dollars, is $965. Under the House committee bill, employes earning $19,900 or more would pay $1,204 in 1978. By 1981, the tax bite would be almost $1,800 on those earning $27,900.

For those earning less, the increase would be much more gentle.

As an example, a $15,000-ayear employe who pays $878 this year, would pay $908 in 1978 and $968 in 1581.

The bill would bring under Social Security more than six million employes of federal, state and local governments and nonprofit organizations, making it a virtually universal retirement system.

The bill also would allow retired persons to earn more without having their benefits reduced, provide better treatment of divorced spouses and remarried widows and eliminate other sex-based discriminations.

Offer Airing Of Public Opinion

Plans have been announced by the governor's office for a public conference to be held here later this month to give Pitt County citizens a chance to voice opinions on how they think state government can improve the economic situation.

The conference, scheduled for Oct. 27, will be held at 10 a.m. at the American Legion Building, according to the local steering committee appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt.

The local session, which is open to the public, is one of a series of meetings on balanced growth and economic development being held throughout the state during October by Hunt.

The local conferences are forerunners to a larger statewide gathering on balanced growth and economic development set for January, it was announced.

Pitt participants will have opportunities to respond to specific issues which help or hinder growth and economic development, such as the tax on manufacturers' inventories, highway monies and federal restraints; and policies relating to such matters as energy, water and sewer facilities, water resources and land use.

In addition, an address will be made by a'member of the governor's cabinet or staff and an overview of the state's economy will be presented.

Mobile ICBM Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown has tentatively approved full scale development next year of a revolutionary new mobile intercontinental missile that ultimately could cost $30 billion, Pentagon sources say.

Brown's decision is subject to review by the White House Office of Management and Budget and by President Carter himself before it can go to Congress early next year as part of the fiscal 1979 budget.

Brown is reported to have okayed about $250 million for full development of the MX missile, now in a preliminary research and development stage, officials said Wednesday night.

The MX would be the first U.S. intercontinental ballistic missile mounted on mobile launchers to make it much more difficult for the Russians to hit in a surprise attack in the 1980s.

Various methods have been studied, but the most likely one involves placing the MX on launchers that would be moved in trench-like shelters.

The Russians have a missile, the SS16, which is believed to have been tested in a mobile form.

Collision Killed Greenville Man

A 29-year-old Greenville man was killed yesterday when the car he was driving was involved in a collision with a tractor-trailer about 5:57 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenfield Boulevard.

Police Department investigators reported Robert Clyve Jackson of 111 Charlie's La., was pronounced dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital. They said he suffered internal and head injuries in the crash.

Officers identified the driver of the truck involved as Ralph Lester Gravitt Jr. of Route 6, Cumming, Ga.

Investigators said the Jackson car, headed South on Memorial Drive, made a left turn into the path of the Northbound truck, which pushed the car 62 feet before coming to a stop with the left front wheel of the truck pushed half-way through the small Jackson vehicle.

Damage from the fatal wreck was estimated at $800 to the truck and $3,500 to the Jackson car.

The North Carolina Highway Patrol reported Jackson was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of a 1:45 p.m. mishap about three miles North of the scene of his fatal mishap yesterday.

Investigators said the Jackson car turned into the path of a car driven by Norma Mayo Casper of Robersonville, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Jackson car and $125 damage to the Casper auto.

Bound Over To Superior Court

Aage A. Justesen was bound over to Pitt County Superior Court for trial yesterday after waiving a preliminary hearing in District Court here.

Justesen is charged with murder in connection with the September 13 machinegun slaying of Greenville grocery store owner Henry Bunton.

No bond was allowed for Justesen, a Denmark native who has operated a machine shop in the Winterville area for several years.

N.C. 'Crisis Plan' Drawn For Energy Crunch

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials, apparently anxious not to be caught flat-footed again this winter if another energy crunch develops, have come up with their crisis plan in advance.

The North Carolina Energy Policy Council adopted the plan Wednesday, which calls for voluntary household conservation and a limit of 60 hours per week of heating for businesses.

Gov. Jim Hunt must still approve the plan.

The heating schedule for businesses in the event of a crisis would be as follows:

Most stores would be allowed to stay open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Thursday, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Convenience stores would be open from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. to midnight, Monday through Saturday. All stores would be closed Sunday.

Service stations and restaurants would be able to choose their own hours, but would have to limit them to 60 per week. Only service stations within a mile of interstate highway intersections would be exempt from the plan.

The plan also calls for state employes to work a four-day week as they did during last winter's fuel shortage. They would work 10 hours each day.

There would also be heating limits on all state and commercial buildings.

W.J. Bowen, president and board chairman of Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., said Wednesday that he didn't think this winter would bring the fuel shortage the state saw last year.

Transco is the only natural gas pipeline into North Carolina. Bowen said he estimated Transco would be able to supply about 12 per cent more gas to the state this year than last and added he didn't think it would be nearly as cold this year.

"We're highly unlikely to have the coldest winters in 100 years back to back," he said.

Too Tall Girl Looks Down At Herself

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y.News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and I don't care if I ever see my 15th birthday. I am 5 foot 9 and weigh 188 pounds.

I hate being taller than all the boys my age. People say, "Wait a few years, they'll grow," but what is a girl suppose to do in the meantime?

I know I am too fat, but I don't care. I'm so tall I haven't a chance with a boy anyway, so I might as well eat and enjoy myself.

I am so mixed up and have made such a mess of myself, I wish I were dead. Is there any hope for me?

TOO TALL

DEAR TOO TALL: A girl who asks, "Is there any hope for me?" hopes with all her heart that there is. You have two of the most precious gifts in the world— youth and health—and you say you wish you were dead. I don't buy that. You letter tells me you want to live!

Tell your parents you want to see a doctor for a physical checkup and a sensible diet. Go and heed his advice. It won't be easy, but you can do it if you try hard enough.

Once you've taken off that excess weight, you'll have a new respect for yourself and like yourself better. And I promise you that you'll be well on the road to enjoying life and living it more fully.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin (I'll call her "Carol") is being married soon, and because of financial circumstances, she has invited only the members of her immediate family to the wedding. (Since cousins are not considered "immediate family," I am not invited.)

Carol hinted to me that I should give her a bridal shower and invite all her friends.

Would it be proper to ask girls to a shower that are not invited to the wedding?

CAROL'S COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Nowhere is it written that everyone who participates in a bridal shower is entitled to an invitation to the wedding. Or because someone "hinted," you have to do her bidding.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Right now, when fresh beets are at their best in home gardens and markets, is the time to consider making Russian Beet Preserves. In its homeland it is often savored by the spoonful with hot tea. But we find it an interesting accompaniment to chicken, turkey, duck, pork and smoked tongue.

RUSSIAN BEET PRESERVE

- 2½ pounds (about) beets (about 13 medium)
- 3 medium lemons
- 3 cups sugar
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon ground ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup sliced blanched almonds

Leave an inch or two of stem on each beet. In a large saucepot barely cover the beets with water. Boil gently, with the saucepot covered, until beets are tender. Drain and cool. Remove the stems and skin. Dice into about ¼-inch pieces — there should be about 5 cups.

Remove the rind from the lemons and dice the rind; turn the rind into a small saucepan with 1 cup water. Bring to a boil, then boil gently until tender — about 20 minutes; drain. Quarter peeled lemon and remove seeds and large center white membrane; chop coarsely.

Into the large clean saucepot turn the cooked beets, coarsely chopped lemon pulp, sugar, corn syrup, ginger and salt. Stir to mix well. Cook gently until the juices begin to flow, then cook over moderately low heat, stirring occasionally, for about 45 minutes. Add drained cooked lemon rind and continue cooking, stirring often as mixture thickens — about 20 minutes. Stir in almonds and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and bubbles break evenly on the surface — about 5 minutes. Skim if necessary. Ladle into clean hot ½-pint canning jars, leaving ¼-inch headspace. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Place jars on a rack in a large saucepot; add hot water to cover jars by at least 1 inch. Bring water to a boil, then keep at a gentle steady boil for 10 minutes. Remove jars to a wire rack to cool. Store in a cool dark place. Makes five ½-pint jars.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

As a rule my horoscope isn't enough to get choked up about.

Oh, I've had a few mad moments. Once I was told a tall stranger would walk into my life bringing me untold joy, and sure enough, my washer repairman made it on Tuesday like he said he would.

But usually, I can count on my stars petering out early, my work hampered, financial affairs unstable, and my bird will die around the 18th of the month.

You can imagine my amazement when I picked up my horoscope the other day to discover that "a strong physical desire surprises you. Daily routine can be neglected for an exciting pursuit."

For me an exciting pursuit is catching up with the Good Humor man in front of my house. "I can't remember when I last had a strong physical desire," I said aloud.

"It was when you threw up at the fair," said my husband.

"Not THAT kind of a physical desire."

"What kind of physical desire are YOU talking about?"

"The kind that occurs when you go to a Tupperware party and the only ones who show up are you and Robert Redford."

My husband left for work and I reread the prediction again. No sense neglecting my daily routine for my exciting pursuit.

I'd get everything out of the way and be ready for it. My neighbor, Helen, came over. "What's the house so cleaned up for at 10 in the morning?"

"I'm clearing the decks for a strong physical desire that is going to surprise me."

"It'll surprise ALL of us. Got any milk for the coffee?"

"No, and I'm not going to the store after it and take a chance on missing whatever is going to happen."

All day I sat in my color-coordinated separates in my lemon-scented house waiting for my exciting pursuit.

I know I had only dozed for a few minutes when Helen knocked on the door. "Did you see him?"

"See who?"

"Clint Eastwood. He's making a movie in town and I was standing not this far from him. What's the matter?"

Suddenly half of my prediction came true. I had the strongest physical desire to wring Helen's neck.

No one was surprised.

Many good cooks like to use beef chuck rather than beef round for meatballs because chuck is a fattier cut than round and that factor benefits the flavor of the meatballs. If you have a food processor you can easily grind the meat at home.

Stray Research Balloon Is Landed Near Halifax

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — A research balloon which many North Carolinians thought was a UFO has come to rest in a cotton field south of Halifax and researchers are beginning to sort out its contents.

Halifax County Sheriff W.C. Bailey said he posted a deputy out to the field to stay next to the balloon after it parachuted to the ground late last night. The balloon passed over Tennessee and much of North Carolina last night.

It's altitude was about 50 miles above the earth's surface, but to viewers on the ground it looked like it was only 10,000 feet away. The unusual sight prompted a flood of calls to newspapers and radio stations by puzzled residents.

The balloon was launched Monday night from the National Balloon Center in Malden, Mo., on a mission sponsored by Bristol University in Bristol, England.

It was carrying 3,000 pounds of scientific equipment to gather data on cosmic radiation at altitudes of 10,000 feet and more.

Dr. Tom Rokoswke, a physicist at Appalachian State University, said the balloon was being followed by a pilot sent it a signal when it was time to drop the instruments. The balloon was brought down by sending a signal to rip out one panel and let the helium gas escape.

The organization filed a flight plan with the Federal Aviation Administration for the balloon and told officials they thought it would stay in the Missouri area. But it was caught by unexpected winds and headed east.

Wrote JFK Risked Scandal

PARIS (AP) — John F. Kennedy's love of "pleasure and women" made him skirt the edges of scandal during his years in the White House, writes former French Ambassador Herve Alphand.

Alphand was a personal friend of the Kennedy family and the French envoy to Washington from 1956-65.

He discusses Kennedy in his published dairy, "The Astonishment of Being."

"His (Kennedy's) desires are difficult to satisfy without raising fears of scandal and its use by his political adversaries," Alphand said in an Aug. 2, 1962 entry.

"This will come perhaps one day, for he does not take sufficient precautions in this Puritan country," he added.

Lifesaver For Municipalities

Once again communities of this area are receiving Powell Bill allocations from the state.

These funds are collected by the state through the gasoline tax and distributed by formula to municipalities for local street work.

Greenville received the largest amount in the Pitt-Martin-Green Counties area at $404,838.97. In Pitt County towns receiving funds were: Ayden, $54,948.16; Bethel, $24,831.95; Falkland, $1,358.99; Farmville, $66,615.19; Fountain, $6,654.06; Grifton, $32,565.72; Grimesland, $5,797.76; Simpson, $6,120.72; Winterville, $26,912.82.

Snow Hill received $17,505.18; Williamston, $83,654.39 and Robersonville, $30,396.62.

The formula for distribution of the funds is based on 75 percent population and 25 percent non-state system local street mileage.

The funds can be used for mainteriance, construction and reconstruction of local streets.

A total of $32,015,470.78 will be distributed to North Carolina municipalities under the program.

The Powell Bill program has been a lifesaver for the state's municipalities in carrying out street improvement programs since it was instituted.

With the soaring costs of construction the municipalities even now are having trouble keeping up with needed street improvements and meaintenance. Without the state Powell Bill funds the situation would be virtually hopeless for most incorporated communities.

Reasonable Use For School Facilities

County Commissioners Chairman Charles Gaskins last week said the county government is talking to school officials about use of school facilities for developing a recreational program.

We hope those talks are progressing. The county needs an adequate program of recreation for rural citizens.

"Now, if anyone has a good reason why we SHOULDN'T televise our sessions, let's hear it now, fellow congressmen."

Porn Fight Moves Slowly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — "North Carolina is the pornography capital of the South," says State Senator Beverly Lake, Jr., D-Wake.

"Pornography in North Carolina has been shown to be an operation of organized crime . . . organized crime in New York . . . Sicilian surname groups in New York, whether of the Mafia-type organization or not. It can unquestionably be traced," says Wake County District Attorney Burley Mitchell, also chairman of the N.C. Crime Commission.

With those two alarming comments, Lake and Mitchell acknowledge that the groundwork is now being built for a test of the anti-pornography laws passed by the 1977 session of the General Assembly, now adjourned.

Mitchell's contention that organized crime is involved is based on positive evidence available from federal and state law enforcement agencies, and from his own study of conditions in the state.

No Evidence

Lake's description of the enormity of the situation in this state is not founded on hard evidence, he concedes, but while admitting he could not defend the claim in a courtroom, he is nonetheless convinced from talks with federal agents that it is true.

Action is presently moving ahead on two fronts — although slowly and quietly:

—Various district attorneys are gathering specific information about specific pornography outlets which will be targeted for prosecution under the new law. That evidence of what kinds of material is sold, displayed, or shown in movies and the volume of business will be an essential part of the cases which will ultimately be taken to court.

—Maneuvering is underway to test the Constitutionality of the law. A group of pornography operators have taken that issue straight to a federal court in hopes to strike down the state law before it is even enforced.

Mitchell thinks that is a mistake. He would prefer that the law be enforced first, tried out in State courts, then taken up to the federal so a clearcut final definition would be achieved.

Both Mitchell and Lake believe the law can be upheld. At its heart is the provision for law proclaiming pictures (still or moving) and paraphernalia obscene, penalties for peddling such, and a means of closing up the shop.

BILL NOBLITT

Constitution

This, both men agree, keeps the issue well away from concern over First Amendment guarantees of freedom of speech and press.

"I do think we have reached a point where we will never see the written word declared obscene . . . no likelihood," Mitchell says.

Lake thinks the law adequately meets the concerns of people legitimately fearing intrusion into their activites: librarians, for instance, who feared censorship; theater owners who worried they might be closed for a scene in an otherwise good movie.

"We feel the law has sufficient safeguards to protect the legitimate concerns . . . But the law also has to be effective, and if it were so filled with restraints in order to satisfy Constitutionality arguments as to be ineffective, then it would be a waste of time and effort," Lake feels.

Mitchell also thinks the law takes the matter out of Constitutional concerns, and into the area of legislating morality. "You can legislate morality . . . you should legislate morality . . . you can change the goals and values of society through civil and criminal law," he notes.

The anti-pornography battle, Mitchell believes, is based on the premise that repetition leads to learned behavior; that "repetitious exposure to aberrant sexual behavior will cause some to acquire that habit. TV violence has something to do with increased violence among juveniles . . . We have to assume some harmful effect from exposure to obscenity."

Farms See Hard Times

HASTINGS, NEBR. — Here in the Midwest, corn and wheat farmers are suffering from an old agrarian ailment: The best of times and the worst of times turn out to be all the same thing. Nebraska growers have tremendous crops this year — and they're losing their shirts.

It is an immemorial custom, to be sure, for farmers to complain of hard times. Farming would not be farming any other way. But the grumbling this autumn is louder than usual. Inflationary forces have pushed up the price of everything the farmer has to buy; the inexorable laws of supply and demand have pushed down the price of what he sells. Scores of mariginal farmers are giving up. On a recent Sunday, the Omaha World-Herald carried six columns of classified ads under the heading of "farms for sale."

Farming is just about everything out here. All day long and well into the twilight, farm machines, like dinosaurs, crawl clumsily across the chocolate fields. The beasts devour the dead corn, spitting silage from their long ungainly necks; their yellow headlight eyes search the dark land. For men and machines, farming is a task that knows no end.

In most years the task is financially rewarding. This year the figures tell a different story. It costs a Nebraska farmer from $1.50 to $3, depending upon various factors, to produce a bushel of corn. The University of Nebraska says $2.10 is a fair average. But the average price received by the farmer is headed toward $1.23. With every bushel he produces, he goes a little deeper in the hole.

The sun and the rain were too good to the farmer this season. Nebraska's average corn yield in 1976 was 83 bushels an acre. This year it increased to an even 100. The farmer who got 8,300 bushels off his 100-acre spread in 1976 got 10,000 bushels in 1977, but he raised no cries of jubilation. The '76 crop was worth $18,500; the '77 crop may have a market value of $12,300. Meanwhile, the price of all those dinosaur machines keeps going up.

There is talk of a general strike, but few persons take the talk seriously. A couple of thousand disgruntled growers went to Pueblo, Colo., a few weeks ago to give Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland a hard time. Bergland had some warm sympathy for them, and some cool advice also: Forget the strike talk. He wants Midwestern growers to reduce their production in 1978, and to store the grain they can't sell now. This too will pass.

The country radio stations crackle with gloomy predictions. A senate senator says one of every ten Nebraska farms will be sold a year hence. The paper carry ads for farm auctions in Hastings, Norfolk, Atkinson, Wayne and Grand Island. When these topics get exhausted, a hailstorm or a few tornadoes come along. Country living ain't no sweet-smellin' bed of new-mown hay.

Yet the wonderful thing

Other Editors Say: Nitpicking

(Greensboro Daily News)

State officials are right to seek a court injunction blocking a proposed $2.7 million cutoff in federal Medicaid funds. North Carolina's transgressions, in this instance, are minor. The wrangling between state officials and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on this issue tells more about the inadequacy of federal regulations than the quality of health care for the poor in North Carolina.

Here's what has happened so far. HEW has ordered funding cutoffs for North Carolina and 21 other states for failure to perform annual inspections of nursing homes serving Medicaid patients. It sounds pretty bad — until you look at the facts. Actually, during the auditing period in question, state inspectors reviewed all but four of the state's 239 nursing and intermediate care facilities. And those four were subsequently reviewed within 30 days of the deadline. That hardly qualifies as the kind of gross neglect you'd think a $2.7 million cutoff would be designed to penalize.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano says he doesn't like the confrontation, but has no choice because of the rigidity of regulations governing nursing home inspections. Members of both houses of Congress, including, Greensboro Rep. Richardson Preyer, have been working to change the law to allow more flexibility. A postponement of the cutoff to October 1 was obtained. But the deadline passed this week with no legislative relief in sight. The state had no choice but to seek — and win — a temporary injunction blocking the cutoff from Federal District Judge Franklin T. Dupree.

Presumably, some resolution of this problem will eventually be worked out. It is hardly the essence of humane policy to snatch away federal dollars which subsidize care the state's elderly poor otherwise could not afford. At the same time, no one would suggest that the government ought not to impose standards and accountability on the uses of federal health care money by the states.

What is needed is a system which upholds nursing care standards, but which exacts financial penalties only in cases of clear abuse. So far, nothing has occurred in this matter to alter Governor Hunt's earlier characterization of it as an example of "the kind of petty nitpicking and harassment that threatens to destroy the credibility of the federal government."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Labor And The Russians

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Leadership of the United Auto Workers (UAW) honored four visiting "trade unionists" from the Soviet Union not long after turning away a leading Soviet dissident, pointing up a deep ideological cleavage in the American labor movement.

On Sept. 28, four members of Soviet "trade unions" lunched with UAW brass at Solidarity House, the union's headquarters in Detroit. About two weeks earlier, UAW leaders could not find time to see Ukrainian dissident Leonid Plyushch. A respected mathematician expelled from the Soviet Union in 1976 after four years' imprisonment, Plyushch now lives in Paris and was making an American tour.

The UAW's position is directly opposite to AFL-CIO George Meany's and complicates the auto union's possible return to the AFL-CIO. The Carter administration authorized visas for Communist trade unionists over the objections of Meany, who considers Soviet labor leaders as mere government stooges. Meany has championed exiles from Communist oppression, and AFL-CIO officials helped Plyushch with his itinerary.

The four visiting Russians, labelled as ordinary workers but obviously handpicked by the KGB, began their U.S. trip in Chicago Sept. 23 singing the praises of life in the Soviet Union. "We work very hard and are very well paid," declared coalminer Andrei Gatsenko, adding that miners make more than doctors and can retire with half pay at age 50.

AFL-CIO headquarters naturally was not informed of the itinerary which had been arranged by an outfit called Trade Unions for Action and Democracy (TUAD) — formed in 1970 in close collaboration with the U.S. Communist party. The visiting Russians were met in Chicago by UAW regional officials and visited Steelworkers Local 1033 (which is in the satrapy of Steelworkers maverick leader Ed Sadlowski).

Sadlowski's lieutenants arranged for the Soviets to lay a wreath at a plaque commemorating the 1937 massacre in Chicago of Republic Steel Co. employes seeking to organize a union. To anti-Communists at AFL-CIO headquarters, identification of KGB puppets with bona fide trade union martyrs borders on sacrilege. From Chicago, the Russians went to Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York — meeting such anti-Meany unionists as the mine workers and meatcutters.

Emil Mazey, UAW secretary-treasurer, told us his union long has favored visits from Soviet trade unionists because "the only way you can relax the cold war is to establish relations between people." As for the Detroit visit of the dissident Plyushch, Mazey told us, "I wasn't able to meet him" for lack of time. However, he was distinctly unenthusiastic about Ukrainian nationalists (separating the Ukraine from Russia would be like "trying to unscramble an egg") and suggested a solution was for them to "leave the country."

UAW reunion with the AFL-CIO while Emil Mazey and George Meany still hold high positions has always generated skepticism. Their conflicting views on visitors from Russia shows why.

Strength For Today

THE CAT AND THE PUPPY

A family had a cat which had just given birth to kittens. Then someone gave this family a puppy. The puppy was lonely and tried to make friends with the cat and her brood. But every time he came near, the cat arched her back and snarled and spat.

One day the cat's head got scratched and she was not able to reach the wound with her tongue. While she moaned in pain the puppy came over to her and began to lick the scratch.

The wound soon healed and the cat and the puppy became fast friends. When the puppy became big the cat often slept curled up against him. And it appeared that the dog would not move until the cat waked up.

If cats and dogs can be friends in this manner, so can we. Actually it should be easier becuase we can communicate together. As Jesus said, "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, that ye may be children of your Father in heaven." It can be done.

Single-Family House Growing

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Little seems to stand in the way of the homebuyer's desire for a single-family house on its own plot — not money or energy prices or attempts by builders to change America's living habits.

The typical new house is still the conventional one-story, three-bedroom plan, but it now has two baths and is growing larger in other areas too. It is likely to have a fireplace and central air conditioning, and almost certainly a dishwasher.

All this despite an energy shortage that causes operating costs to be higher, and soaring purchase prices that preclude ownership by some families unless they borrow from parents to meet the down payment.

It isn't the first time that homebuyers have asserted themselves against what might be considered the better judgment of others. Planners and builders have tried cluster housing (small plots, shared green areas), co-ops and condominiums, modular units, no-frill housing and more.

As real estate agents note, young couples supposedly more attuned to change often seek conventional homes similar to those in which they grew up or to which their parents aspired ... only bigger and better. A study of Census Bureau material by the National Association of Realtors shows that the average size, speculatively built house in 1976 was 1,690 square feet, compared with 1,535 feet in 1971.

Fifty-nine per cent of the units had at least one fireplace, versus 34 per cent five years earlier, even though the detailed hand labor involved added greatly to the total cost.

Fifty-three per cent of the speculative homes (those built on expectation of sale rather than to order) contained central air conditioning, compared with only 38 per cent in 1971, when energy costs were much lower.

More than 70 per cent of houses had two bathrooms, against about 50 per cent five years ago. And 78 per cent were equipped with dishwashers against only 48 per cent in 1971.

Despite the strong market for new and better homes, a rate that now seems to assure some 1.9 million starts for the year, an even stronger market exists in sales of existing or used homes.

For the second year in a row, sales of such units will pass the three-million-mark, and might even reach 3.5 million units, an unprecedented figure.

It is this trend that perhaps suggests some change in the attitude of homebuyers, in that a good deal of existing housing is urban, whereas new single-family homes are usually built on suburban or semisuburban lots.

Urban buyers apparently have heeded nobody's advice but their own, recognizing that such units, even if abandoned, often represent better buys than new housing. Accommodations often are larger, construction sturdier. Sewers and water connections exist, as do transportation and other amenities.

Recognizing the absurdity of abandoning such housing — and sensitive to criticisms that money is being transferred from such areas to suburbia — savings and loan associations this week urged a new national urban housing policy.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose 4,461 member savings and loan associations are the primary source of mortgage money, said more emphasis on rehabilitation and less on new construction is needed.

Despite their affinity for what is termed the conventional new home, a good many young buyers already seem to have that idea, and they are asserting themselves in rehabilitation projects, whenever they can get mortgages.

Such housing, of course, was the conventional housing long before the suburbs and the "conventional new home."

world organization Tuesday and Wednesday. U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young said the trip was "an obvious success."

Several delegates said the President's personal style disarmed his critics and added weight to the message of human rights and disarmament that he brought.

"He's a very nice chap, and I think some of the diplomats won't find it so difficult to go along with American policies now," said British Ambassador Ivor Richards.

"He's not the kind of person you want to rant or shout at," Richards added with a grin. "I would say he has that U.N. touch."

Carter spent two appointment-packed days getting acquainted with some of the policy makers here for the General Assembly session. He lunched with African and Asian foreign ministers and ambassadors and talked trade with Latin America's representatives.

"I was at a luncheon with him and he made a point of shaking everyone's hand at the table," said Ambassador Jamil M. Baroody of Saudi Arabia. "It was just a small thing, but it shows he has great respect for the United Nations, more than most American presidents."

Calling Carter "charming" and "straightforward," Ambassador Iqbal A. Akhund of Pakistan said his visit revived the U.S. commitment to the United Nations after it appeared to lapse in recent years.

"The fact that he took two full days here underlines his attitude, I think," Akhund said. "Carter is very aware that the United Nations cannot function without strong U.S. support. It's a good sign for the future. I am very hopeful."

businessmen that the departure of Bert Lance has cost them their only important entree in the Carter administration reached an embarrassing climax in the White House Sept. 23, with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal listening.

Those fears were stated bluntly by duPont's Irving Shapiro, one of ten business leaders meeting that day with President Carter. Acknowleding Blumenthal's presence (and also that of Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps), Shapiro told Mr. Carter that American business is afraid it will no longer find a "sympathetic" ear in Washington.

Normally, the Secretary of the Treasury is the President's chief emissary to the business world. Thus, Shapiro's clear implication: Blumenthal, an expert on foreign trade and finance, is not regarded as being all that knowledgable about the special problems of business executives (though he was the highly successful head of the Bendix Corp.).

The lament over Lance's departure was reported in a press briefing by Shapiro and.General Electric's Reginald Jones. Not reported was the feeling of every business leader there that the incident conveyed this message to the Secretary of the Treasury with the President sitting in: Sorry, Mr. President, but we feel we cannot count on Mike Blumenthal to get our problems across to you.

Mr. Carter is trying to show the country he wants to work more closely with business. Although the executives wanted the Sept. 23 session (their first with the President himself) kept private, Mr. Carter gave it full publicity.

When the President walked into the meeting, he astonished the barons of business by saying that all of them were undoubtedly "more qualified" to be President than he.

Neighborhood Nervous Over The Death Signs

NEW HOPE, Minn. (AP) — "You Are Next," "Maybe You" were the ominous messages in black spray paint on two houses in the middle-class suburban neighborhood where a young newlywed was stabbed to death.

Susan Rosenthal, 29, was found dead of multiple stab wounds — perhaps as many as 13 — in the kitchen of her one-story home on a quiet dead-end street, authorities said.

The warning, "There Are More" was painted on the kitchen wall. The writing matched the signs on the outside of two neighboring houses, police said.

Prior to the killing Tuesday, nobody could remember so much as a burglary occuring in their peaceful block of $60,000 to $70,000 homes in this Minneapolis suburb.

On Wednesday, dozens of children gathered at the Rosenthal house trying to get a peek inside. Sight-seers cruised by regularly. Some parents kept children indoors and many neighbors were double-locking doors.

The first neighbors knew of the killing was when one saw two policemen running, pistols drawn, from the Rosenthal house.

Mrs. Rosenthal's body was discovered by a sister who was concerned because she had not shown up at the downtown office where she worked as a paralegal assistant.

Her husband, Allen, 34, was on a business trip in California at the time, police said.

Police would give few details of the killing and no indication of the motive.

The Rosenthals were married Sept. 16 and moved into the house eight days later. Even their closest neighbors said they did not know them.

They discounted persistent rumors that Mrs. Rosenthal's death had ethnic overtones.

Police Chief Kostanos said that "although rumors and stories are abundant, the investigation has revealed nothing to indicate any anti-Semitic, ethnic or racial overtones."

Police said the Rosenthals were of the Lutheran faith. No particular religious affiliation predominates in the neighborhood.

Dave Laughlin, 30, occupant of the home sprayed with the message "You are next" said, "We're concerned, that's all."

"You can't get excited," he said. "The police are doing a pretty decent job, a super job."

Kastanos said, "Really there's not much that you can do to assure people they're safe after something like this, but we've no indication that anyone else is really in danger — despite the signs."

about this region is that nothing really chills the Midwesterner's love of his land. This correspondent happened to wander through Nebraska just as the 50th annual Ak-Sar-Ben livestock exposition was under way. The papers were filled with photographs of the 4-H winners. A 15-year-old named Kevin Mobley had produced the grand champion market lamb. Fourteen-year-old Kathryn Wiese had the champion Hereford. A pleasant feature story dealt with 11-year-old Shelly Olson of Milford, the fifth of the Don Olson children to enter prize-winning Holstein cows.

You are never going to discourage these young people. Many of them will go off to college, and some of them will yield to the allures of urban life, but the pattern of family farming changes little year by year. In the worst of times, the emigration rate is higher: More sons go off to the city to sell cars or real estate or insurance. Things improve, and they tend to drift back. Farming demands immense capital these days, and not only capital; farming has become a highly skilled profession in which the inefficient producer gets plowed under.

An Eastern visitor listens to the grumblings, sympathizes with the low prices, and understands the economic woes. But a visitor is more deeply impressed by the rich land, and by the insatiable machines, and by the faces of the 4-H youngsters. The prairie people have survived worse hardships than corn at $1.23. They will make it through the next growing season, and through further autumns as far ahead as the eye can see.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Northwestern Bank board chairman Edwin Duncan Jr. goes on trial today in U.S. District Court here on charges of misapplying more than $257,000 in bank funds after his attorneys failed to get a change of venue.

MISSED DIAMONDS — Walter Karabian, former California State Assemblyman, who was aboard a Japan Air Lines Plane last week when it was hijacked by terrorists on a flight to Bangkok, tells newsmen in Los Angeles Wednesday how the hijackers missed nearly $2 million in diamonds aboard the plane. He said the stewardess paid no attention to the boxes containing the diamonds until they were released. Then she just picked them up and walked off the plane. (AP Laserphoto)

A&T Audit Dissatisfies

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Budget and finance committees of the N.C. A&T State University named a six-member task force Wednesday to study the school's financial situation and to recommend improvements to the full board.

Setting up the committee resulted from the recent release of a highly critical audit report on A&T prepared by the state auditor's office. It detailed a wide range of financial difficulties ranging from inappropriate payments of more tha $17,000 to a former university official to out-of-balance accounts and missing receipt books.

The task force will include: Dr. Otis Tillman of High Point, acting chairman of the A&T trustees; Marshall Bass of Winston-Salem, chairman of the A&T trustees' budget and finance committee; Richard Levy of Greensboro, a member of the budget and finance committee; Worth Kepler, a member of the state auditor's staff who worked on the audit; Bruce Harrington of the Division of State Budget and Management, and Hugh Buchanan, associate vice president for finance of the University of North Carolina general administration.

Memorabilia Stocks Store For Film Fans

By LASZLO K. DOMJAN

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Serious fans of the movies sometimes spend hours browsing at the contents of cardboard boxes at a small shop called Movie Collectables.

The customers — predominantly of high school and college age — squat on the floor as they sort through the thousands of motion picture wall posters that are the store's featured attraction.

"We can't think of any other way of displaying 10,000 posters in a one-room store," said co-owner Jerry Neeley of the store's bargain-basement arrangement.

While visitors looking for a particular poster might feel overwhelmed by the formidable stacks, all they need to do is ask Neeley, 30, or his two partners — his brother, Tim, 22, and Steve Polwort, 25. One of them can immediately tell whether the poster is in stock and its likely location in the store.

The Neeleys and Polwort know their merchandise because many of the rare posters come from their private collections. The posters the store buys in bulk lots from distributors include those aimed at followers of current fads, as well as the serious collector.

They cover the whole range of film entertainment and advertise films of Humphrey Bogart, Elvis Presley, Laurel and Hardy, Clark Gable, Barbra Streisand, Bruce Lee, Clint Eastwood and scores of others.

"It seems every actor has a following of his own," Jerry Neeley said. "Then there are people who collect anything dealing with a particular movie or a movie series, like the James Bond films or, right now, 'Star Wars.'"

The store tries to fill the need by selling, in addition to posters, paperback books about movies and stars, motion picture sound track albums, film publicity photos, movie lobby cards and the city's largest selection of specialized and general film magazines.

"People enjoy a movie and when they go home, they want to have something as a remembrance," Neeley said.

Where do poster buyers plaster their purchases?

"The most likely place is on a bedroom wall," Polwort said. "Some people redecorate their basements with them. Others have them in their offices."

Polwort and the Neeleys disdain the commercially produced movie star posters sold in department stores. The Movie Collectables' posters are the same ones theaters display on their walls. They also sell for more — sometimes much more — than ordinary store posters.

However, the Neeleys said they charge less than similar film specialty stores in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles. The average poster sells for $3.50 to $5 and the average 8-by-10 black and white publicity photo goes for $1.

Tim Neeley pointed to a $15 poster of the James Bond film "From Russia With Love" and said the same poster sells for $65 in Chicago.

"Even $15 is too much for most St. Louisans," he said. "The collectors know the values because they can't buy it for that price by mail. But the person who walks in off the street thinks we're overcharging. They don't realize that this is like stamp collecting, where you have to pay more for something rare."

His brother said he wants to give movie buffs a break.

"I know how much I paid for a poster," he said. "I'm making a good profit. I've been a fan and collector for 15 years, so I know what it's like to be ripped off. I don't want to rip off fans."

Jerry Neeley, a sometimes science-fiction writer and dedicated movie fan, said he had not planned on becoming a shopkeeper.

"We bought and traded movie memorabilia until it was overflowing from our homes," he said. "We were sort of forced into this."

Polwort said: "It's not really work," Polwort said. "It's more like a hobby. I would never have worked a 12-to-15-hour day at another job."

New Play About Supreme Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Fonda and Jane Alexander will star in a new play about the Supreme Court, "First Monday in October."

The play, written by Robert E. Lee and Jerome Lawrence, will premiere at the Kennedy Center in Washington on Dec. 26.

It concerns a conflict between Fonda, as the court's senior associate justice, and Miss Alexander, as the first female justice.

Synanon A 'Middleman' In Giveaways To Poor

By WILLIAM P. COLEMAN

BADGER, Calif. (UPI) — Synanon, the private foundation for helping drug addicts and alcoholics, is aiding people needing material help, too, simply by collecting things no one else wants.

A million pounds of vegetables, a complete auto wash and a hardwood gymnasium floor are among the items found along Synanon's ambitious and well-organized collection route.

Food, clothing and shoes have gone to thousands of people, usually through other charitable organizations, at no charge from Synanon.

"We don't look at these distributions as gifts from Synanon," said Matt Rand, the project director. "We're merely a link in a chain between surplus and need."

Seldom is there a shortage of supply.

"I am continually astounded at the amount of food and material that is available in this country," Rand said.

The only requirement to receive goods which Synanon discovers is that they must go through a non-profit organization and be given away at no cost to people who need the help but can't afford to buy it.

Synanon, begun in this Sierra Nevada setting in 1958 to help alcoholics and drug addicts find their way out of their troubles, has branched out to serve additional purposes.

The idea of distributing discarded goods was born in 1969 when the Synanon Foundation had to decline an offer of a boxcar of frozen peas because it was more than the Synanon residents could eat.

From its inception Synanon survived on unemployment checks of its members and on donations. It rankled founder Charles Dederich when he had to turn down the boxcar of peas.

He decided that Synanon should never turn away donations, and should set up a system of donating unsolicited material which it couldn't use to other organizations.

Last December, under Rand's direction, the idea became a reality — in the form of a computer keeping track of thousands of donors and recipients.

Recipients range from whole cities such as Detroit, Atlanta and Chicago down to individual boys clubs and churches.

A network of warehouses is used to store goods while it is worked out who gets them.

The largest single donation was 900,000 pounds of frozen vegetables, mostly potatoes, distributed to organizations throughout the nation.

SYNANON, a private foundation for helping drug addicts and alcoholics, is aiding people needing material help, too. Here members load up a truck with food for needy families as part of their work. (UPI Photo)

"The vegetables came from a firm in Idaho which had a freezer failure and the food was condemned for insurance purposes. To collect the insurance they could not sell the food but could use the tax advantage if they gave it away," Rand said.

He said another donor was a contractor in Marin County who had a contract to tear down a gymnasium.

"He couldn't see destroying the hardwood floor so he contacted us and we managed to find a youth organization who used the wood to build handball courts for underprivileged children," Rand said.

The city of Detroit became a Synanon recipient through the city's Neighborhood Services Program.

"We sent them 110,000 pounds of frozen potatoes and they were distributed to a number of organizations in the city," Rand said.

An Arkansas firm had a large quantity of turkey hotdogs which weren't selling, so the management decided to seek the tax advantage by giving them away through Synanon.

Since no takers could be found immediately, a cold storage firm held the goods until a trucking firm could ship them to California. By the time the hotdogs arrived on the West Coast there were several organizations lined up to distribute them to the needy.

The Rev. Richard Gonzales of the Apostolic Assembly of Faith in Jesus Christ Church in the Central California town of Sanger uses the service for individual poor families.

"We helped Gonzalez and his church set up a free store at the rear of the sanctuary, borrowed a freezer truck to hold the perishables and then delivered several truckloads of beans, ketchup, tomato sauce, a ton of sugar, half a ton of rice, salt, frozen fish and meat, cookies, clothing and shoes," Rand said.

In two days, nearly everything was gone, and 800 people had groceries that lasted them for two weeks.

One donation consisted of a complete car wash system from a dismantled service station, which Rand said will probably go to a Boys Club to help raise funds.

Rand said give-away food has gone to several jail facilities, including the Jackson State Prison in Michigan and the San Francisco County jail.

"The inmates in those facilities normally get only a bland diet because the government is working with a given food supply, but we were able to provide food to supplement the normal prison diet," Rand said.

The Synanon project is slowly increasing its network of donors and recipients with the help of the foundation's computer, special telephone lines, warehouses, trucking firms and other resources.

He said the project is profitable for everyone involved.

"And it doesn't hurt the economy," he said, "because the donated material doesn't end up on the market, but it gets to those who need it the most."

Boston Is Calm During Blackout

BOSTON (AP) — Electric company officials blamed a short circuit in a substation for a power failure that blackened a 30-block downtown area for about 3½ hours.

Police reported no looting or other disturbances due to the outage, which began just before 10 p.m. Wednesday and ended early today.

The blackout cut service to about 30,000 customers.

It darkened Kenmore Square, the Back Bay section, the Copley Square area including the large Prudential Center commercial and residential complex, the John Hancock Tower and the nearby South End.

A Boston Edison Co. spokesman said power was returned to the Prudential Center, Hancock and Kenmore Square areas by about midnight.

Resumption of power to the Back Bay and South End areas was delayed by a minor explosion in the Carver Street substation that occurred while repairmen were returning it to service.

Boston Edison said the short circuit occurred in an underground generating unit in South Boston.

Police sent special tactical officers to the blackout areas.

"People seem to be taking it calmly," said Sgt. Paul Conway, who is in charge of police communications.

He said the city was plagued with false fire alarms, but there were no fires as a result of the outage.

A fire department spokesman said the department had "only about four or five calls" to free people from stalled elevators.

Several radio stations were reported knocked off the air. Many have transmitting facilities atop the Prudential Center, the second tallest building in the city.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, which has its own auxilliary generators, said all subway lines were operating.

He said, however, that one station, at Arlington Street near Copley Square, was bypassed because the emergency lights there malfunctioned.

Crowds gathered on sidewalks in some areas, and one group outside a popular eating spot in Back Bay struck up a chorus of "God Bless America."

Several students from college dormitories were on the streets with flashlights, directing traffic.

Six Cases Legionaires Disease In Tennessee

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — The number of confirmed cases of Legionnaires disease at Holston Valley Community Hospital has risen to six.

Officials in the northeastern Tennessee town said Wednesday that two new cases have been confirmed by the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Diana Blalock, a health educator for the Sullivan County Health Department, said the four men and two women confirmed as having the disease were all between the ages of 26 and 59.

One of the six, a 51-year-old woman, died in the hospital on Sept. 7 but officials did not confirm that she had Legionnaires disease until last Saturday.

The first three cases were confirmed a week ago Wednesday.

Officials said at the time that blood samples from seven of the 10 patients then tested by the Atlanta center were negative for Legionnaires disease.

However, Miss Blalock said those seven were being retested because officials believe the disease, if present, had not progressed to the point where it would be picked up in the test.

Twenty-seven patients have been admitted to Holston Valley since Aug. 13 with atypical pneumonia, which has the same high fever, coughing and headache symptons as Legionnaires disease.

As of Wednesday, six of those 27 have been confirmed as having Legionnaires disease, 2 have tested negative and the other 19 are still being investigated, Miss Blalock said.

In addition to the 51-year-old woman, there have been three other deaths among the 27 patients admitted to the hospital. Miss Blalock said one of the deaths has been confirmed as not having the disease but tests on the other two are still being conducted.

Health officials said no evidence of the bacterium which causes Legionnaires disease has been found in dust samples taken from inside the hospital and its ventilator system and in soil samples around the facility.

Legionnaires disease gets its name from an outbreak in the summer of 1976 among persons who had attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia. The disease is not believed to be contagious from one person to another and can be treated effectively with antibiotics.

FORD PRICES UP

Republicans Oppose Pact

BY DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Republican National Committee at its meeting last weekend in New Orleans passed a resolution opposing ratification of the proposed Panama Canal Treaty.

Dr. John P. East of the East Carolina University political science department, as North Carolina's Republican National Committeeman, was a co-sponsor of the resolution.

East was also the principal speaker on behalf of the resolution

The resolution, in part, states that "the Republican National Committee wishes hereby to record its opposition to President Carter's current course.

"The test of effective American policy is not how piously one's good intentions are phrased but how consistently our actions yield progress toward peace, justice, and stability.

"SO THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Republican National Committee opposes the ratification by the Senate of the Panama Canal Treaty and the Treaty Concerning the Permanent Neutrality and Operation of the Panama Canal as proposed by President Carter."

According to East, the Republican National Committee is composed of three people from each state. These are a female representative, a male representative, and the state chairman for the Republican Party.

North Carolina representatives to the New Orleans meeting, other than East, were Betty Lou Johnson of Raleigh, and State Chairman Jack Lee of Fayetteville.

In a recent interview, East traced some of the events leading up to the Panama conflict.

"In the Presidential race last year between Reagan and Ford, this was the primary issue. It became a key point."

East added that the committeemen at the meeting were divided in their support for Reagan who was opposed to the treaty and Ford who supported it.

"Those of us opposed to the treaty were at least not sure we'd be able to get the resolution through. As it turned out we got it through with a healthy majority.

"I think the general sentiment was that this treaty was a bad proposition. We were giving up a great deal in return for vague assurances that all would be well," said East.

He noted that a voice vote was taken and a role call was not requested.

"Approximately 85 percent were for the resolution against the treaty."

According to East, only 34 U.S. Senators must vote "no" in order to stop ratification of the treaty.

"Then it is dead."

East noted the importance of the committee's stand.

"I think that those senators who are on the fence and who have presidential or vice-presidential ambitions might be sensitive to the wishes of the committee, since it represents some political contact."

For instance, U.S. Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.) who is senate minority leader , has not committed himself on the issue. East said that he believes the committee's decision could influence Baker to take a position, hopefully along side the committee.

East also used U.S. Sen. Charles Percy (R.-Ill.) as an example of indecision.

"It might at least cause them to pause and think how they'll vote on the issue. If they are on the line, this might push them over into opposition," he added.

East said that the key point

that he used in his speech at the meeting was "sovereignty and control," a phrase taken from the 1903 Treaty with which the United States obtained the Panama Canal.

According to this treaty, the United States acquired the canal "forever".

East added that instead of giving up our rights to the canal, we should make changes.

"My contention is that within the framework of the treaty (1903), we can make whatever adjustments are necessary to seem more equitable for the citizens of Panama."

He added that by giving up its "sovereignty and control," the United States would, not only lose on a military and commercial trade level, but also on a "symbolic" level.

East said that the country is apt to lose the respect of other nations by conceding to the wishes of Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian left-wing dictator.

He added that a good reason against giving up the rights to the canal is the instability of the Panamanian government.

"It's a reckless thing to give up control to an unstable government.

"We're being cajoled into this...It is the first step in a continued escalation of demands of Torrijos."

East said that he is not being jingoistic or waving a flag, but that he just does not want the United States to have to depend on the whims of a dictator.

"I think it is the will of the American people to maintain that which they have a legitimate claim."

Partial Sun Eclipse Due

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — There will be a partial eclipse of the sun over North Carolina next Wednesday, Oct. 12.

A solar eclipse occurs when the moon moves between the sun and the earth, blocking part of the sun from view.

Jim Manning, assistant director of the Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill, said the eclipse would be total over a small portion of the Pacific Ocean, meaning the sky will darken and the sun will appear to be a dark disc with a fiery border. Over North Carolina about one quarter of the sun will be obscured.

Manning warned that people who attempt to look directly at the eclipse will risk serious permanent damage to their eyes.

"The sun is always dangerous to look at directly because of its intense brightness," Manning said. "But during ecllipses, people are somethings tempted to ignore the discomfort and watch it. To do so is to risk one's eyesight and should be avoided."

Manning added that there is little protection from a pair of sunglasses or from exposed film.

The safest way to view the eclipse, Manning said, is to punch a small hole in a piece of cardboard and stand with your back to the sun, holding the cardboard over your shoulder. An image of the eclipse will be projected through the hole and can be viewed on a sheet of paper held in front of you.

The eclipse will last from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. The sky will look a little hazy and the sun will darken somewhat.

Computer To Conserve Wood

MACOMB, Ill. (UPI) — Two Western Illinois University mathematicians are attempting to conserve walnut by using a computer to determine the maximum number of gunstock patterns that can be cut from a three-inch thick piece.

Larry Cornwell and John Kalita are developing a computer program as part of an effort by the wood industry and the Forest Service to conserve natural resources while meeting the demand for finished wood products.

Radio Executive Is Abducted, Robbed

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Smithfield police are looking for a young man who abducted a broadcasting executive Wednesday, shot him twice and robbed him of $40.

Lewis V. Parrish, president and part owner of Wendell-Zebulon Radio Co., was in satisfactory condition today at Johnston Memorial Hospital with gunshot wounds in the arm and leg.

Parrish told police he was at a stoplight in central Smithfield early Wednesday morning when a young man forced his way into the car at gunpoint and ordered Parrish to drive to an isolated rural area.

Parrish was told to get out of the car and hand over his wallet. When he told his assailant he only had a few dollars, the man shot him.

Parrish ran down an embankment and lay in a ditch until he heard the gunman drive away in his car. Then he walked to a service station in Kenly and called authorities.

The car was found in the Neuse River south of Goldsboro with a stolen handgun inside.

Parrish was monitoring the signal from a Burgaw radio station at the time of the incident, driving to various points to test the signal's strength. He serves as a consulting engineer for several radio stations.

LOST REVENUE

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Sales of tax-free cigarettes at Indian reservation stores have cost the state $350,000 in lost revenue, a state official said Wednesday.

Corn Growers Are Organizing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State corn farmers have formed their own association, the Corn Growers Association of North Carolina. William V. Griffin of New Bern will be interim president.

The non-profit corporation will sponsor and promote research, education, production and marketing of corn.

Revival Planned For Weekend

AYDEN — Weekend revival services will be held at the Ayden Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning tonight and continuing through Sunday.

The Rev. John White of Vanceboro will be the speaker.

Homecoming will be held at the church Sunday. The pastor, Ola Porter, invites the public to attend.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today, shrugging off the news of the largest rise in the wholesale price index in five months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen 14.64 points in the last two sessions, showed a 2.16 gain at 839.48 by 11:30 a.m.

Advances took a slight lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly quiet. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 4.52 million shares.

Before the opening, the government reported that the wholesale price index climbed 0.5 per cent last month, for the equivalent of a 6.0 per cent annual rate. The increase was the biggest since last April, and exceeded most Wall Street expectations.

But the market recorded only some slight losses at the outset, and was headed higher by midmorning.

Analysts said traders appeared hopeful that weekly Federal Reserve statistics due at today's close would show further signs of progress in the Fed's effort to curb future inflationary pressures by restraining the growth of the money supply.

Blue chip issues posting gains included Du Pont, up 1⅛ at 111¼; U.S. Steel, ahead ⅝ at 30⅜, and Alcoa, ⅝ higher at 44½.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .05 at 52.48.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .10 to 118.28.

Installation By Civitans

Richard A. Stephenson has been installed as president of the Greenville Civitan Club for the club's 1977-1978 year.

The installation of officers was held at the club's annual fish fry by Jack Gentry, lieutenant governor of Civitan District East of North Carolina.

Other officers installed include: vice-president Harold Jones, secretary William Trotman, treasurer Robert Klein, and president-elect Hugh Wease.

The board of directors of the club include: Richard Murphy, Gil Windham, Julian Rauls, Ronald Swager, Ronald Sessoms and Nickolas Radeka.

Stephenson indicated that the club will increase its efforts in the coming year, to support their handicapped and mental retardation projects and to promote good citizenship projects in the community.

BANEBERRY — The Department of Energy released Wednesday a recently-declassified photo of a nuclear accident at the Nevada Test Site. Shown is a radioactive cloud of dust which was vented into the atmosphere during the Dec. 19, 1970 test code-named "Baneberry". The cloud rose an estimated 10,000 feet into the air, then drifted off to the northeast. About 300 persons were exposed to the radiation, but the exposure did not exceed NTS guidelines, officials said. (AP Laserphoto)

Appointed New Texas Treasurer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Warren G. Harding is replacing Jesse James as state treasurer of Texas.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed Harding to replace James as state treasurer.

James, 73, died of a heart attack last week. He had won elections as administrator of the state's money for 36 years despite his infamous name.

Harding, 56, has been treasurer of Dallas County since 1950. He ran a close second to James in 1956 and reportedly had been considering running again.

His appointed tenure lasts until 1978 when he will have to run for election if he wants to keep the job.

New Four-Lane Section Opened

The new four-laned section of N.C. 11 - U.S. 13, from Third Street to a point North of the N.C. 903 intersection, was opened to traffic yesterday.

Division Highway engineer C. W. Snell said this morning that, "we did open both lanes to traffic yesterday," but he said the "total project will not be completed until about November 1."

The 4.601 mile project was begun in June 1975 at a contract price of $2.65 million.

The project included construction of a new bridge to carry the two new traffic lanes across the Tar River.

Jaguars, Chargers Seek To Up Lead

Farmville Central's Scott Evans

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central's football team has seemingly taken over where last year's edition left off, ripping through league opposition straight to the top of the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Jaguars are currently tied with Ayden-Grifton for first place in the ECC with 2-0 records. D. H. Conley, at 1-1, is in a four-way tie for third place, while North Pitt is at the bottom of the league with Southern Nash at 0-2.

Last week's ECC action involving area teams saw the Jaguars roll over winless Southern Nash 47-14, while Ayden-Grifton was thumping North Pitt 34-6. D. H. Conley had its troubles against Greene Central, losing 27-0.

Friday night, the Jaguars will host the Vikings, the Chargers will entertain North Lenoir and the Panthers will be at home to Southern Nash.

Farmville Central

Despite his 47-14 victory, coach Gene Brewer was not entirely satisfied with the Jaguars' play Friday night. "I thought we would play better than we did," he said, "We didn't play very well at all offensively or defensively."

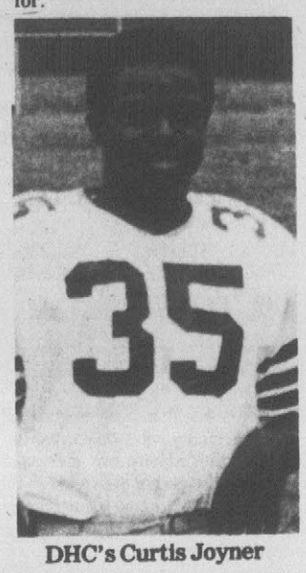
Brewer said the Jaguars weren't ready to play when they took the field, showing little emotion or enthusiasm for the game. "Everybody wanted to stand around and watch, rather than go on and play the game," he said. Brewer said he felt the team may have been taking the Firebirds lightly.

On the bright side for the Jaguars was the play of quarterback Donald Freeman, receiver James Tyson and defensive back Scott Evans.

Freeman and Tyson teamed up for two touchdowns on passes of 21 and 51 yards as the Jaguar passing attack accounted for 197 yards. Brewer said Evans' leadership on defense was a key factor in the contest.

Friday night, the Jags host D. H. Conley, a team not to be taken lightly: "Conley has got some good athletes — some good football players," Brewer said.

The Vikings "have thrown and run well during the year, they just haven't been able to put everything together in one ballgame yet. They've got good receivers, good running backs and a big defensive line — a lot of things we've got to look out for."



DHC's Curtis Joyner

Brewer said the Jaguars usually look forward to playing the Vikings and Conley should be ready to play when the Vikes get to Farmville.

D. H. Conley

Viking coach Chuck Dunn said Conley looks at the game as a challenge. Farmville Central is "quick, well-disciplined and (they) like to hit. They've got a lot of confidence going right now."

The Vikings are expecting a very tough ballgame, he said, but are looking forward to a chance to play the Jaguars, despite some injuries. Starting guard Buster Payton was lost for the year with a knee injury suffered in practice Monday.

Last Friday against Greene Central, the Vikings "left our game somewhere else." Fumble problems gave the Rams three easy touchdowns, Dunn said, and the Vike defensive squad was under pressure the entire night from poor field position.

Sophomore running back Curtis Joyner was the only bright spot of the game for Conley. He carried four times for 59 yards.

North Pitt

Panther coach Pat Smith thought his team played a pretty good first half in North Pitt's 34-6 loss to Ayden-Grifton, but the Chargers were "just too physically strong for us."

"Our offensive line is not big enough to be moving those guys," Smith said.

The coach was happy with the punting of John Hunt, however, who averaged 45 yards a kick. "He's just punting the ball tremendously," Smith said. In addition, defensive back Carl Knight had a good ballgame.

The Panthers take on winless Southern Nash this week in a game that will provide one of the teams with its first conference victory.

The Firebirds are "a lot bigger than we are, but I feel like we'll be quicker," Smith said. "I think it will be a real close game; it'll probably be decided by extra points."

The game will be at Southern Nash and is the Firebirds' homecoming, according to Smith, so they should be fired up.

Ayden-Grifton

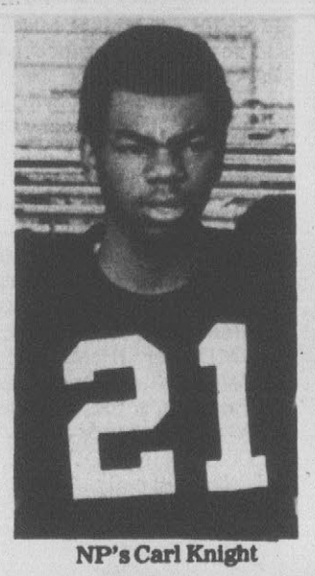
Coach Dixon Sauls said he felt the Chargers were able to establish their running attack early for the first time this year in their victory over North Pitt.

The Chargers were also able to pass against the Panthers, with quarterback David Smith having his second straight good passing game, throwing two TD tosses. Tailback Johnny Cannon showed promise running the ball, Sauls said.

On defense, guards Tim Odham and Chris Tripp, tackle Mike Teachey and end Randy Jones were the standouts. "I felt like these people pursued well and were able to shut down their running attack," according to Sauls.

The Panthers "played real hard, but were probably handicapped with the quarterback's (Hunt) recovering broken hand."

The Chargers eliminated a lot of mistakes they have been making, Sauls said, and got a chance to look over a number of young players who performed in the second half.



NP's Carl Knight

Ayden-Grifton is looking for a tougher game this week when the Chargers entertain North Lenoir. The Hawks "have quickness and size. Johnny Wiggins is an outstanding running back and Ronnie Chapman at quarterback is a good passer and scrambler."

Evans Sees A Different Team

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

The end results have so far been the same, but this year's Farmville Central football team is very different from its 1976 counterpart, which finished second in the East, according to defensive back Scott Evans.

Last season, the Jaguars rolled up big victories over all of their Eastern Carolina Conference opponents, while this season they are 2-0 in the league with wins of 38-16 over Greene Central and 47-14 over Southern Nash.

Despite that similarity, however, there are big differences between the two editions. Last season, the Jags relied on size and experience. This season, however, the team is small and relatively inexperienced, according to Evans, and is using quickness and speed to outdo the opposition.

"We're sort of small and young this year," Evans said. "We only have three people that played major roles on last year's team, so we have to work a little harder."

Evans was one of those three players and his experience and leadership is a big dividend in the Farmville Central defensive backfield, according to his coach, Gene Brewer.

Last season, the 5-9, 155-pounder was a flanker as well as a defensive back and played "pretty much all the time" he said. As a senior, he is almost exclusively a defensive back, logging some offensive time as a backup quarterback to Donald Freeman.

The switch from flaner to backup quarterback came about when junior James Tyson, who has good speed, emerged as a standout receiver. Now, Evans gets a little more rest on the sidelines during games, he said, and the backup receivers are able to gain some experience.

Being on top for two years does have some disadvantages, however, according to Evans. "We feel everybody is out to get us. We're ranked number one now and last year we beat everybody pretty bad. They kind of want to even the score with us."

Despite that, the Jags are "rolling along pretty good. We have a good chance of winning the conference and going into the playoffs again — I plan to do that, anyway" Evans said.

Evans also plays baseball at Farmville Central. He was a starting third baseman for the Jags last season. He plans to go to college, probably at East Carolina University, but isn't counting on an athletic career there.

He said he hasn't decided on a major or a career, but just wants to see what comes along. His hobbies include hunting and swimming.

Evans said he likes playing defense better than offense and enjoys his role as a defensive back. By providing leadership to a young team, he hopes to help guide the Jags into the state playoffs for the second straight year.

Lady Pirates Claim Victory

East Carolina's women's tennis team picked up its first victory of the season yesterday when it defeated St. Mary's here, 5-4.

The Lady Pirates were able to pick up wins at the top three singles positions and the top two doubles to register the triumph.

Louise Snyder, Debbie Spinazzola and Dorcus Sunkel all took singles wins in straight sets to get the Lady Pirates off to a good start. Spinazzola and Sunkel teamed to take the number one doubles, while Snyder joined with Diane Keough to win the number two doubles.

The Lady Pirates will be in action again today when they travel to Raleigh to face Peace Junior College.

Summary:

Louise Snyder (EC) defeated Allison Hines, 6-3, 6-1.
Debbie Spinazzola (EC) defeated Dottie Worsham, 7-6, 6-4.
Dorcus Sunkel (EC) defeated Nancy Burt, 6-2, 6-4.

Our column of picks is coming out a day early this week due to Rose High School's game being on Thursday night this week. Jim Kyle's column, a usual Thursday feature, will run tomorrow. Next week's columns will resume their normal days.

There is a pack at the top of the heap this week, as five of the six pickers are tied for the lead. Jim Kyle has fallen back into the cellar, but trails the leaders by only one.

Tom Baines, Joe Jenkins, Vickie Spivey, Steve Hemric and this writer are all bunched at 39-15, while Kyle fell to 38-16.

"Actually, I'm in second place," Jim tells us. "The rest of you are next-to-last. That's the positive way of looking at it."

Positive or not, there will be some changes this week, as usual.

Our high school picks last week went through the bottom, as nearly everyone surprised us. This week we will try for better results.

Roanoke travels to Elm City in an Eastern Plains game. I went against the Redskins last week, and came away red-faced. This time, I'm sticking with Roanoke.

Ayden-Grifton hosts North Lenoir in a tough game. The Chargers would like to hold onto a share of first in the Eastern Carolina, while North Lenoir would like to make up for lost ground. This one may be the game of the week in the conference. But we'll go with the home team and pick the Chargers.

Williamston is at Tarboro. Again, I was surprised by the Tigers last week, and also surprised that Tarboro was upset by Edenton. The Vikings must win to stay in the Northeastern Conference race, and I'm still going with them.

Mattamuskeet visits Jamesville. I thought the Bullets would win their first last week and they didn't. This week, I have no doubts about their losing streak continuing.

North Pitt travels to Southern Nash. This could be the chance for the Firebirds. It's their Homecoming, and this will add fuel to the fire. But I believe North Pitt will come out on top.

Conley is at Farmville Central. The Vikings have been up-and-down all year. Could this be their week to be up? It doesn't matter. The Jaguars are going all the way this season.

Finally, C. B. Aycock is at Greene Central. The Rams and Falcons have both lost once in the league, and both would like to hold onto what chances they have for a conference title. A tough game, with the Rams favored.

Turning to our panel's picks, we find Rose hosting Rocky Mount tonight. The Rampants and Gryphons both are coming in after good wins, and the first conference game should be a fine one. Rocky Mount is the pre-season favorite in the league and must win to maintain that edge. Our panel sees it as Rocky Mount, by a 4-2 edge.

The Pirates of East Carolina attempt to rebound after their loss to South Carolina against Southern Illinois. The Pirates will be boosted by an overflow Homecoming crowd, and that should be enough for them. The panel goes down the line here, picking the Pirates by a 6-0 margin.

Other concensus picks see: Carolina over Wake; Clemson over Virginia; Maryland over Syracuse; VMI over Richmond; Tennessee over Georgia Tech; State over Auburn; Duke and South Carolina, a toss-up; Southern Cal over Alabama; William & Mary over Virginia Tech; Stanford and UCLA, a toss-up.

The full poll:

David Pearson Wins Charlotte Pole For Ninth Time In A Row

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson could probably win the pole position at Charlotte Motor Speedway in his sleep.

The Mercury pilot did it again Wednesday by taking the pole for $250,000 National 500 stock car race. The NASCAR-sponsored event Sunday will mark the ninth consecutive race at the 1.5-mile track in which Pearson has started from the pole.

"We put a new gear in the car, stopped up the front end and gave it our best shot," a relaxed Pearson said after hurtling around the track for a two-lap average speed of 160.892 miles per hour.

His 67-second run earned him the $10,000 pole award.

Donnie Allison, National 500 defending champion, earned the front row spot beside Pearson, but only after he and Cale Yarborough pushed their Chevrolets to speeds that registered the same on timing clocks.

Both drivers turned in two-lap averages of 159.848 m.p.h. and Yarborough was actually listed as being a thousandth of a second faster. But NASCAR officials ruled that the listed speeds were rounded-off averages and Allison had gone faster.

Yarborough wound up on the inside of the second row, with Buddy Baker's Ford taking the spot beside him.

Richard Petty, with a run of just over 159 m.p.h. in his Dodge, and Darrell Waltrip, just under the 159 mark in his Chevrolet, filled the third row.

Pearson was the man to beat, and the drivers knew it before the first car took to the track Wednesday.

"Trying to catch Pearson is like going bear hunting with a .22 caliber rifle," Allison said.

Pearson set the pace early in the afternoon, being one of the first of 49 drivers to run for the 20 spots that were filled Wednesday.

"I knew Pearson's speed was almost impossible to beat," Yarborough said, adding that he felt "helpless, hurt" when the learned what Pearson had run.

Pearson's crew sets up the Mercury for high speeds over short distances to qualify for lucrative pole positions such as the National 500.

"You might as well go ahead and write that check to Pearson," Waltrip said after his run. "There's nobody going to beat him here. There is nobody who can run as fast as that Mercury here."

Pearson described his philosophy on the Charlotte track simply — money.

move the football early to, defeat North Lenoir,' Sauls said.

"They're 4-1 and have a lot of confidence and momentum, but its our homecoming." In addition Sauls is looking to the return of linebacker Scott Rivenbark, who has been out with an ankle injury.

Cubs Bow By 16-14

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School's junior varsity football team scored with just 27 seconds left in the game, but failed in the attempt for a two-point conversion, and fell to Rocky Mount yesterday, 16-14.

The two teams played to a scoreless tie in the first half, but Rose broke the ice with a two-yard run by Jamie Adams in the third period. Mark Shank ran over the PAT for an 8-0 lead.

Rocky Mount came back with a score on an eight-yard run by William Bynum, and a conversion by Victor Thorne to tie it at 8-8 before the period ended.

In the fourth quarter, Rocky Mount took the lead, with Jeffrey Newsome scoring on a 42-yard pass. Thorne again got the PAT for a 16-8 lead.

Shank scored on a three-yard run with 27 seconds left in the game, but the try for the two-point conversion that would have tied it up failed.

Shank led the Rose offense with 90 yards passing.

The Rampants, now 3-2, travel to Bertie next Thursday.

One Pitch Pulls Dodgers Even With Philadelphia In 7-1 Romp

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies are tied at one game each in the National League championship series today because of a pitch that was described as three feet too high, a foot and a half too far inside and hit 390 feet too far.

The picturesque description was made by losing pitcher Jim Lonborg, who threw the pitch to the Dodgers' Dusty Baker with the bases loaded in the fouth inning and the score tied 1-1.

Baker hit a grand slam home run to put Los Angeles ahead 5-1, a lead righthander Don Sutton protected as the Dodgers went on to a 7-1 victory that squared the best-of-five series at a game apiece.

So the series shifts to Philadelphia, where Burt Hooton and his knuckle curve will go for Los Angeles against power pitching Larry Christenson for the Phillies on Friday afternoon.

The second game simply narrowed down to that fourth inning after Bill Russell and Reggie Smith had singled and Ron Cey sacrificed. Then Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark took a slow walk out to talk to Lonborg.

"I had made up my mind to intentionally walk Steve Garvey," Ozark was to say later. "I just wanted to talk about how we would pitch to Baker."

Ozark said he reminded Lonborg to keep the ball down, so the infield could get a ground ball and bail out of the one-out jam."

"It was sound logic," said the crestfallen Lonborg, who threw a sidearm curve on a 1-2 count to Baker that the Dodger slugger hammered into the left field seats, the second grand slam in two games for Los Angeles.

"Danny didn't know I was going to hang a curve ball," said Lonborg. "I knew when the pitch was 10 to 15 feet toward the plate that I had made a mistake."

Baker said he wasn't insulted when the Phillies elected to walk the clutch hitting Garvey to get to the former Atlanta Brave who hit 30 homers during the regular season, one of four Dodgers to do that.

"I knew it was a good percentage play," Baker said. "I just tried to remain calm, not to get too excited. I wasn't trying to hit the ball out of the stadium. I just wanted to hit it hard and not into a double play."

Ozark and Lonborg knew that Baker was 0-for-7 against Lonborg this year, including a fly out in the second inning.

Baker, of course, was elated after the game.

"When I was a kid playing in the backyard in Riverside, (Calif.), I used to pretend I was the hero in a big game," said the Dodgers' left fielder. "I guess all kids play pretend games like that. But I never dreamed it would come true."

After Baker's big hit, the Dodgers turned the job over to Sutton, the right-hander who posted a 14-8 record in Los Angeles' drive to the West Division championship.

"I'd give myself a seven or an eight on a scale of 10 for my performance" said Sutton, who gave up nine hits, including a third-inning home run to Bake McBride.

The Dodgers tied the game in the third on Rick Monday's double and a two-out single by Davey Lopes.

Lonborg left after four innings and was followed by Ron Reed and Warren Brusstar.

The Dodgers scored a run off Reed in the sixth on Ron Cey's single, a stolen base and Steve Yeager's single. In the seventh, Reggie Smith tripled across Bill Russell, who had singled off Brusstar.

The Dodgers now have to win two out of three at Veterans Stadium, where the East Division Champions won 60 and lost just 21 during the regular season. Los Angeles was 2-4 in Philadelphia and suffered a three-game sweep in its last visit.

"Everyone is making a big deal about their record in Philadelphia," said Yeager, "but we've done well there overall."

Dye Hopes Bucs Learned Lessons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Pat Dye would like to forget South Carolina. But he's hopeful that some good lessons can be learned from the experience of losing, 19-16, to the Gamecocks this past weekend.

"What happened to us down there is the result of what has happened to the team over the past three weeks," he declared at his weekly press conference yesterday.

"During the past three weeks (against Toledo, VMI and South Carolina), we rushed for about 200 yards a game. That's about 100 yards less than what we consider a good game. That's a strong indication that our offense is not accomplishing what we want."

Dye said he didn't have the answers as to why this has happened. "But I do know what it takes to win and to move the ball. We haven't been executing like we should."

He pointed out that a five-yard motion penalty cancelled a first down that would have put the ball inside the ten-yard line and led to a touchdown. Instead, the Pirates had to settle for a field goal.

"It's a combination of mental mistakes and not fighting our guts out to overcome the man in front of you. Our superstars are not playing super. You can't blame it on any one thing."

Because of this, Dye and his staff have taken a different approach to practice this week. The Pirates have been scrimmaging more, with hard workouts both Monday and Tuesday. "If we get beat this week, I'd like to know that we did have 11 on offense who tried to win."

The defeat at South Carolina came because the Pirates were unable to move the ball in the second half. "If our defense was a little bit stronger, we still could have won, but they just wore us down, and we didn't have the depth to cope with it. It was disappointing because we did play hard. But it's very, very disappointing to lose in the fourth quarter after you are ahead. When you weaken at the finish line, you don't show strong backbone."

While Dye felt that South Carolina totally "devistated" the Pirates on offense, he did feel that some offensive players did perform well. He singled out Willie Hawkins, Theodore Sutton, Terry Gallaher and Ron Frederick as doing well. But, he noted, they were not down front where the Pirates were beaten.

On defense, Dye felt the Pirates got good effort. "We stopped them for a long time and we only allowed one touchdown." Those getting plaudits from Dye included Zack Valentine, Fred Chavis; Woodrow Stevenson, Oliver Felton, Noah Clark and D.T. Joyner. "Clark had the best game since he's been here, and he's got to be one of the best defensive linemen in North Carolina," Dye said.

He also singled out Harold Randolph, Harold Fort, Mike Brewington and Tommy Summers among the linebackers, and the defensive secondary of Gerald Hall, Willie Holley, Steve Hale and Charlie Carter as playing well.

"Against VMI we put a lot of pressure on the defense to win the game. Last week (vs. South Carolina) we put too much pressure on them. Our field position was terrible in the second half. If we could have gotten just one or two first downs during the last series (before South Carolina's winning field goal), I think we could have gotten away with a tie, or maybe even won it ourselves," Dye said.

The coach was also pleased with the announcement earlier in the day that East Carolina and Duke University would meet for three dates in the future.

"This is a great step for our football program. I have to think that the success of the game this year had a great deal to do with it,'" Dye said, in reference to Duke's having the largest opening game crowd in its history.

Then, referring to an article that appeared in the Duke student newspaper, Dye said, "Them truckers will be back up there in Durham." The article, published prior to the ECU-Duke game, stated that people might think there was a "convention of rednecks somewhere in Durham. They'll be right, for Saturday afternoon Wallace Wade Stadium will become Duke's answer to Mabel's Truck Stop."

Dye only laughed when he first saw the article, and noted, "The truckers won it, too, didn't they?"

Royals Rip Yankees By 7-2 Score

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kansas City Royals, those Missouri riverboat gamblers, are playing a confidence game that they think will make them the first American League expansion team to float into the World Series.

The Royals, rolling an unbelievable string of winners since mid-June, continued the fun Wednesday with an easy 7-2 victory over the New York Yankees, those big-money sharpies from the East Coast, to take a 1-0 edge in the best-of-five AL playoffs.

The Yankees' also lost starter Don Gullett because of an injured shoulder and New York Manager Billy Martin said he doesn't expect his ace lefthander to pitch again this year.

The Royals, who raced to a 6-0 lead in the third inning, got a big lift when leadoff batter Freddie Patek walked to open the game and Hal McRae followed with a home run over the left field wall.

"It helped to get off in front when McRae hit it out," said the speedy little Patek. "We realized we could score off Gullett. The adrenaline was flowing and our confidence was flowing."

The confidence has been building for the Royals since June 17, when they began an amazing streak of 68 victories in 92 games, a winning clip of .786. Along the way, they had stretches of 21 victories in 22 games and 32 in 36.

Last year, the Royals were an uncertain club when they met the Yankees in October and lost the AL playoffs in five games. They had lost seven of their last eight regular-season games and 22 of their last 35.

"The difference was like night and day," said McRae. "Last year we were terrible in the second half. This year we had a terrific streak in the second half. It's better to win. It builds your confidence and gives you lots of momentum."

Wednesday, they played with the assurance of a card shark holding four aces, adding power to their game of speed, timely hitting and effective — if not spectacular — pitching.

They profited from three homers, two-run shots by McRae in the first, John Mayberry in the third off releiver Dick Tidrow and a solo blast by Al Cowens in the eighth. Patek's two-run double down the third base line in the second knocked in the only runs not scored on homers. Thurman Munson's two-run homer for the Yanks was all the AL East champions could manage before a home crowd of 54,930.

"We hit with authority," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "But we're still a running ball club."

The man most responsible for the Royals' increased home run production is Al Cowens, who has gotten Herzog's vote for the AL's Most Valauble Player.

"He's the best defensive right fielder in the league," said Herzog. "He batted a steady .300, had 23 homers and more than 100 RBIs (112)."

Cowens, in just his second full season in the major leagues, said he wasn't going to worry about the MVP Award. He also said he wasn't concerned that, coming from the Midwest, he and his teammates were underpublicized, despite having the best record in baseball.

"The lack of publicity won't keep me from playing hard every day," Cowens said. "But by winning, we'll make things change."

Cowens did some changing himself this year. Moving into the cleanup spot, he clubbed 23 homers in 606 at-bats. Last season, in 581 at-bats, he had just three homers.

Cowens, who pulled his homer to left field, also beat out an infield single before Mayberry's third-inning homer and singled in the first. He made three fine plays in right field, including one in which he reached over the wall to rob Mickey Rivers of a homer.

Another confidence man in the Royals' lineup Wednesday was starting and winning pitcher Paul Splittorff, who was 16-6 this year, including a 15-2 mark from May 20 to the end of the season. He scattered eight hits, giving way to Doug Bird after one batter in the ninth.

"Starting the opening game gave me a special feeling," said Splittorff. "My biggest battle has been staying aggressive and maintaining my confidence. I used to be shy and timid and scared in certain situations, but no more."

Two of the Yankees' scariest batters, home run threats Reggie Jackson and Graig Nettles, surrendered meekly to Splittorff.

Nettles, with 37 homers this year, never pulled the ball in hitting out to the shortstop three times and the left fielder once. Jackson, with 32 homers, struck out and popped to the shortstop, second baseman and the left fielder.

"Andy's pitched very well here. He hasn't been lucky," said Herzog.

Guidry said he's looking forward to tying the series tonight.

"Last year, in the championship series, all I got to do was pinch run," he said. "Now I think I can make more of a contribution."

Then, stealing a page from the Royals' book on positive thinking, the lean left-hander said: "Gullett's hurting. I'm not."

Almost A Triple Play

It was in the ninth inning of the first American League playoff game between the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Royals Wednesday, and this almost became a triple play. Royals' secondbaseman Frank White fires to first in an effort to triple up Willie Randolph, who started the play by grounding to third baseman George Brett. Brett stepped on third for a force out, then fired to White, who forced the sliding Cliff Johnson. The throw to first was just a fraction late, however. (AP Laserphoto)

Recreation Ball

The Oilers claimed a 22-0 opening victory over the Bills in the opening Recreation Tackle League football game of the year yesterday. In the flag league, the Redskins tied the Dolphins, 6-6, while in soccer, the Rowdies tied the Hot Shots, 2-2, and the Cosmos downed the Kicks, 5-0.

Jeff Wilson scored three goals, all in the first half to lead the Cosmos to their win in soccer. Rob Ericson added two second half goals for the 5-0 win over the Kicks.

The Rowdies each got first half scores as Robbie McDonald scored first for the Rowdies, and David Jester added a score for the Hot Shots. In the second half, Jester put the Hot Shots ahead, but Steve Childers tied it up with two minutes left to play.

Charlie Pate had ten saves for the Rowdies, while Clark Stallings had six for the Hot Shots.

After a scoreless first half, Erwin Best scored on a 25-yard run for the Dolphins in the flag league football game. Arthur Grice scored on a 65-yard pass from Billy Michel in the final period to tie it up for the Redskins.

Michel led the defense of the Redskins, while Cedric Reed and Best paced the Dolphin defense.

It was all Oilers in the tackle game. George Blount scored from ten yards out in the first period with Roger Williams adding the PAT. Williams scored in the second period on a 13-yard run, and Blount got the PAT for a 16-0 lead.

The final score came in the fourth period, with Blount scoring from 22 yards out.

Knows When And Why Of College Homesickness

By NANCY KERCHEVAL

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Homesickness, the empty feeling that hits when a college freshman leaves home and finds himself surrounded by strangers, usually strikes students who come from rocky family situations.

Dr. Ghislaine Godenne, director of counseling and psychiatrict services at Johns Hopkins University, recently experienced one of the busiest times of her year — the first cases of homesickness.

Cases crop up during the first week of school and the final weeks of the first semester when students are faced with final exams, Ms. Godenne said.

"Homesickness is generally the one situation which surprises freshmen," she said. "They're so pleased to get away from home — but they become quite surprised when they find they are lonely. The most acute time is the first week."

Ms. Godenne, who has published an article in which she outlines the hazards that cause anxiety and depression among freshmen, says college life is not hazardous to a young person's life. But she quickly adds that her statement is made with some reservations.

Students who have grown up in a good family environment rarely suffer from homesickness, Ms. Godenne explained. She said usually it hits students who have had an insecure family life.

"Students never really get homesick if they had a good relationship with their parents. If you love your family — it might be sad — but there won't be any anxiety.

"But unconsciously, a person who feels he isn't loved or feels he doesn't really love his parents — he'll get homesick," Ms. Godenne said.

Her prescription for curing homesickness is not to allow the student to return home within the first week.

"The anxiety might be so great, he might not want to come back to college," she said. "We tell them it's okay if they want to go home, but not before one week. I've never had a student go back home after he's decided to stay."

Toward the end of the first semester, homesickness strikes again because the student is "getting tired, has to study and the excitement of college is over," she said.

For other students, anxiety builds up when they are thrown into coeducational living where "sex talk if not sex deeds is more open now than ever before, and thus (they) may feel forced into sexual relations for which they are not yet psychologically ready."

She said some students are "absolutely not prepared (for sexual experiences) and they get really scared. They're pushed into it because they want to be accepted."

"People do mature at different ages, but it is hard for a student to feel comfortable with the fact that he or she is still a 'virgin' when so many others brag of sexual exploits," she said.

But as she pointed out in her article, "So many kids brag about sexual experiences because it looks good in our day not to be a 'virgin.' Yet if one really looks at their histories, they've never had intercourse."

Financial sacrifices placed on a family who sends a child to college also can cause anxiety.

Ms. Godenne said parents should not hide their financial problems from their child, but at the same time they should not "rub it in" that they are doing without certain things for the sake of the child's education.

"College is pretty expensive these days and some parents really do mortgage their homes. Some students will begin to feel guilty if they don't do well," she said.

Ms. Godenne said the Johns Hopkins counselors see about 11 per cent of the student population each year, which she admitted is a very high percentage.

"But we go after it — it's not that students here are any sicker than any place else. This year I hope to get 12 per cent — that's optimal and equal to about the same percentage in the general population which needs counseling help," she said.

Ms. Godenne said most colleges' services are very small and the counselors "are not as keen to see trivial things."

"We really work hard at getting known to freshman and we get terrific results," she said.

ERA Proponents Mustering Strength For Final Big Drive

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment begin gathering strength this month for what will be their last chance to put North Carolina on the list of ratifying states.

"I expect it's going to be a lot different this time," said Moriah Bliss, president of North Carolinians United for ERA, a coalition of organizations that supported the controversial amendment.

"There are a lot of people who are going to feel pretty desperate," she said. "I think it's going to move pretty fast, because we haven't got an entire session."

The proposal passed the North Carolina House earlier this year, but opponents managed to defeat it by the slimmest of margins in the Senate.

Thirty five states have ratified the amendment so far. Three more must do so by March 22, 1979 or the fight is over. Will North Carolina be one of the three?

"I think it's pretty hard to assess the chances yet this time," Mrs. Bliss said. "As close as we came last time, with the extra work we're going to put into it and a new strategy, maybe we'll pull it off."

The new strategy is the problem right now. At the moment there isn't any, she said.

Devising one will be the job of the coalition's board, which meets Oct. 15 for its first planning session for the 1979 General Assembly.

The board will take up field services when it meets, the business of reestablishing contact with the hundreds of grass roots organizers who kept the heat on and helped make visits home unpleasant for wavering legislators during the last session.

Another discussion topic will be education, gathering material for presentations to committees and individual legislators.

The board will also try to bring itself up to date on any changes in the legislature since the last campaign and prospects of victory or defeat in 1978 for those who are up for reelection.

Mrs. Bliss said the board would have one strong point in its favor — its basic structure of 33 member organizations remains intact and ready to begin the fight again.

One critical item on the agenda will be fund raising. There has been none yet for the new campaign. ERA supporters spend more than $78,000 in the last session, which made it the biggest spender among interest groups in the state, according to lobbying reports filed with the secretary of state's office.

But Mrs. Bliss said that was a little misleading, since ERA supporters reported every penny they spent, even when the report forms did not require it. "We wanted to do the right thing," she said.

Mesopatamian Exhibit Shown

CHICAGO (AP) — A new permanent exhibit tracing the development of Mesopotamia, ancient Egypt's greatest rival, has opened at the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.

The exhibit, called "Mesopotamia," is entered through an archway made of 2,500-year-old bricks from Babylon and deals with thousands of years of conquest, defeat and cultural progress. The influences of the Sumerians, Akkadians, Babylonians, Assyrians and Chaldeans are stressed.

Artifacts on on display include amulets, examples of early writing forms, religious figures and a scale model of a typical temple built around 2500 B.C. The relationahips between Mesopotamian deities are detailed on a pantheistic "family tree."

Years Of Procrastination Ended As Italy Gets Color Television

By NORRIS WILLATT
UPI-Financial Times

COMO, Italy (UPI) — Belatedly but finally, Italy is entering the color television age.

Full scale color programming is becoming available to Italian viewers this year. It ends a 15-year era in which Italians have gone without a form of entertainment that was standard in the rest of Europe.

Behind this anomaly lies a story of procrastination, intrigue and party political conflict.

The basic cause for the delay was the long and bitter battle for supremacy between the West German PAL and the French SECAM color TV systems.

The battle was joined in the early 1960s when the two systems were competing for the European market.

Germany's PAL won in most of Western Europe, a prime reason being that it is compatible with the systems in the United Kingdom and the United States.

In addition to France itself, the SECAM system was adopted in the Soviet Union and the rest of Eastern Europe and subsequently by some countries in North Africa and the Middle East.

Italy teetered between the two. This was not so much because the government could not make up its mind, but more because of pressure by the proponents of the rival systems.

The state-owned Italian broadcasting corporation, RAI began experimental telecasts using both systems.

From the start, the technical experts favored the PAL system. But their judgment was over ruled as a result of the personal intervention on behalf of SECAM by then President Charles De Gaulle of France.

The government in Rome decided to give SECAM a further trial. As a result, Italy's color TV progress was stalemated through the latter part of the '60s. In 1969, the Italian technical people again decided in favor of PAL.

But the Italian economy was in recession. The politicians decided color TV could be put off until the economy recovered. That was the signal for a new outbreak of competition between SECAM and PAL.

It was not until 1975 that the politicians finally bowed to the judgment of the technicians and ruled in favor of PAL.

It was said that they had also come under strong pressure from Italian firms in the electronics business, who were incensed by the delays and favored the West German system as a way of gaining export markets.

Italians have not been entirely without color TV reception. Most fortunate are those living in the northern part of the country. They can receive color programs from stations in southern Switzerland, Monte Carlo and Yugoslavia.

Reception has been extended further south by private entrepreneurs, who have set up "booster" stations to retransmit the foreign programs as far south as Bologna, Florence, even Rome.

In 1974, the Italian government tried to put a stop to this "invasion" by ordering the transmitters to be dismantled. This decision was overruled by the Italian courts.

Install New Kiwanis Bd.

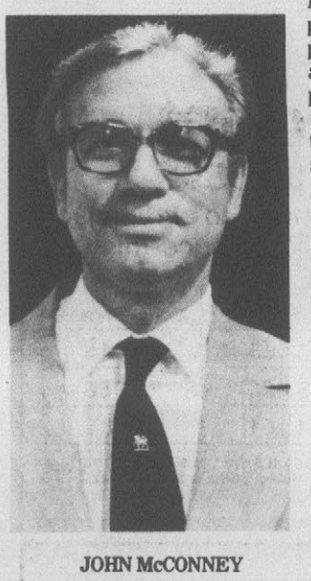
A new slate of officers for the Kiwanis Wednesday Evening Club was installed Wednesday night at Tom's Restaurant.

James Black, Lt. Governor of the 7-N District of Kiwanis conducted the installation ceremony.



JOHN McCONNEY

New officers for the 1977-'78 year, which began Oct. 1, are John McConney, president; Trenton Davis, vice president; and J. D. McGlohon Jr., secretary-treasurer. New board of directors members, who will serve two years, are DeRoch Vincent, Bud Wheless, Ormand Whichard and Doug Williams.

David Stevens is the immediate past president.

Legion of honor awards were presented to recognize members with 25 or more years of services to communities through Kiwanis. These awards went to Joe Taft for 50 years; Judge Dink James for 45 years; Charles Wilkerson for 40 years, Ted Ashworth for 30 years, Angus Blue for 25 years and Charles Gaskins for 25 years.

Joe Taft and Judge James were awarded Life Member Status and are the first members of this club to achieve this distinction. Individuals who achieve Life Member Status are those who are said to perpetuate the objectives of Kiwanis International, Pres. McConney said.

Priest Silenced By Authorities

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Jesuit priest, the Rev. John N. McNeill of Boston, author of "The Church and the Homosexual," has been ordered silenced by church authorities in Rome, the National Catholic Reporter says.

It says the order came from Cardinal Franjo Seper, head of the church's congregation on doctrine, directing Father McNeill not to speak publicly on homosexuality or sexual ethics, calling his position contrary to tradition.

Father McNeill, who afterward cancelled a scheduled speech to a meeting of Dignity, a Catholic organization of homosexuals, says he will obey the order, but that his book "will stand on its own merits."

Introducing FORD'S BETTER IDEAS FOR '78

featuring the new Fairmont...the Ford in your future.

Fairmont 2-Door Sedan

Fairmont Squire Wagon

The Fairmont idea.

Fairmont . . . a new car built for today, but designed for the years ahead. Fairmont combines fuel efficiency, space efficiency and cost efficiency. It's trim outside, and easy on gas, yet it's roomy inside. Stylish, but it doesn't cost a lot. Designed for driver efficiency. With impressive ride and handling. And excellent visibility all around. That's Fairmont —a whole new line of better ideas.

Fuel efficient.

Fairmont sedans offer the best mileage ratings in their class. Surprisingly, Fairmont's mileage ratings are the same as the little VW Rabbit when both are equipped with automatic transmission.

| 4-Speed Manual | Automatic Transmission |
|---|---|
| 33 MPG (Hwy) | 33 MPG (Hwy) |
| 23 MPG (City) | 22 MPG (City) |

EPA estimates with 2.3 litre engine. Your mileage may vary depending on your car's condition, optional equipment, and how and where you drive. California and Wagon ratings are lower.

Space efficient.

More than 90% of the head room, leg room, shoulder room of most large cars.

Even with its excellent mileage ratings, Fairmont is not a little car. It's engineered to be space efficient with 90% of the room in key areas of most large cars. And Fairmont's roomy trunk has a flat floor, so it holds ten assorted pieces of luggage.

Cost efficient.

No car with Fairmont's kind of room and mileage offers a sticker price this low.

|---|---|---|
| 2-Door Sedan | $3,589 | $4,015 |
| 4-Door Sedan | $3,663 | $3,956 |
| Station Wagon | $4,151 | $4,781 |

†Sticker price excluding title, taxes, and destination charges. Wagon price includes steel-belted radials and available 3.3 litre engine.

More new 1978 ideas to brighten your future driving.

1978 Thunderbird.

The new Thunderbird is ready for takeoff. With all the styling, luxury and fine engineering that you expect in a Thunderbird. Most surprising is its down-to-earth price—even with V-8 power, automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes, AM radio, and more, standard.

New Granada ESS.

Can you tell its looks from a $20,000 Mercedes-Benz 280SE? Our new ESS is styled in the tradition of expensive sports sedans. With special luxury inside and exquisite touches throughout. It's the flagship of our popular Granada line.

PINTO AND MUSTANG II STICKER PRICED LOWER THAN LAST YEAR.*

1978 Pinto Pony. At $2,995‡ it's actually sticker priced lower than last year.

Pinto offers American-style comfort at a lower sticker price than Datsun and Toyota.

1978 Mustang II. Now with lower sticker prices than last year. For even greater value in '78, the base sticker prices of all Mustang models are now substantially lower than last year.

Shown with optional T-Roof, pinstripes, bumper guards, dual sport mirrors, wheel trim rings, and front spoiler.

*Based on comparison of sticker prices for 1977 and 1978 vehicles.

New Ford Fiesta.

Europe's most successful†† new car . . . imported from Germany. ††During Ford Fiesta's first six months of sales, it outsold every new nameplate ever introduced in Europe. Engineered to give its driver dramatic performance. With front-wheel drive. Room and comfort for four.

1978 Ford LTD.

The roomy Ford that many families need. If you're one of the millions of people who need a standard-size car, the Ford LTD could be just the car for you. It has a deep-well, easy-to-load trunk. And stretch-out comfort for six that you expect from a Ford LTD.

Cable Fuels Canal Pact Issue

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unauthorized release of a confidential cable is fueling a new controversy over the Panama Canal treaty and giving an apparent boost to opponents who say it would endanger the future security of the waterway.

State Department officials hastened Wednesday to reaffirm their view that the treaty would allow the United States to intervene militarily after the year 2000 if the neutrality of the canal were threatened.

But Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher also told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the United States is in "continuing contact" with Panama "to clarify any points of interpretation" regarding the treaty.

The question of whether the United States would be allowed to defend the canal with military force after Panama takes control is one of the sharpest points of conflict between proponents and foes of the treaty.

The Senate is likely to wait until next year to vote on ratification, but President Carter already is trying to line up support for the pact while conservative organizations are hoping to defeat it.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., sparked the fresh debate Tuesday by making public the confidential State Department cable that appeared to indicate that the United States and Panama interpret the agreement differently on key points.

The communication was from Ray Gonzalez, No. 2 man in the U.S. embassy in Panama, to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. It quoted Panamanian negotiator Carlos Lopez Guevara as saying U.S. leaders should refrain from saying the right of future "intervention" is guaranteed.

Dole told the Senate panel Wednesday he saw the cable as proof that Panama disagrees that the treaty permits U.S. military intervention.

In a letter to the committee, Christopher said the treaty guarantees the permanent neutrality of the Panama Canal and that the United States and Panama "each will have the right to take any appropriate measures to defend the canal against any threat" to that neutrality.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the No. 2 Democrat on the committee, said after reading the letter that "the Senate is not going to ratify these treaties if crucial points are interpreted differently by the principal parties. This is a matter that must be clarified."

Meanwhile, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III criticized Dole for disclosing the cable's contents, calling it "regrettable" and saying it had "impaired the confidence of the (diplomatic) process." He added that Dole, as last year's Republican vice presidential candidate, "knows that as well as anyone."

Credits Lester Maddox For Chance To Succeed

ATLANTA (AP) — The governor first made Bobby Lee Fears a busboy. Then he made him a dishwasher. Then he made him famous.

Fears is the dishwasher in former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox's nightclub act, "The Governor and the Dishwasher."

He credits Maddox with straightening out his life.

Fears has been singing for years, including some studio work with stars in California in the 1960s and a year with the Ohio Players in 1968. But Fears, 32, said, "If it wasn't for Lester Maddox my name wouldn't be know across this country."

The act brought Fears several appearances on national televison.

Maddox is hospitalized, recovering from a heart attack suffered Sept. 23.

"When I heard about the governor being sick, I began thinking about my life and all the things I had done," Fears said in an interview.

Fears, who is black, credits Maddox, a restaurant operator who won the governorship after refusing to integrate his business, with turning him from crime back to the Christian teachings of his grandmother.

In 1975, Fears said, he was "a child of the ghetto," an ex-convict "with a record downtown as long as your arm" and no job.

He had been convicted in 1971 of possession of heroin because he "happened to be in a car that had heroin in it," he said, and he did time in Georgia's maximum security prison at Reidsville.

He went to Maddox and asked for a job — and got one as a busboy at the former governor's Pickrick restaurant. Maddox, governor from 1967 to 1971, often entertained patrons there.

"He came out and was playing a mouth harp and laughing and picking up babies," Fears said of the man he called "Poppa."

"The first thing I thought was, 'He's not anything like I thought,' so I asked if I could sing with him. He said I couldn't play his kind of music. I told him I can play any kind of music. And he took me out and bought a guitar and we sang 'Red River Valley.'

"Lester stopped the drinking for me," Fears said. "I was in a world of badness. He showed me the way. Every chance he gets, Poppa reads the Bible to me. And he's funny, too. That little man will tickle you to death, the way he'll joke and carry on."

Three Accidents In Greenville Traffic

An estimated $1,750 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:38 a.m. collision at the intersection of Reade and Cotanche Streets involving cars driven by Alfreda Clemmons Hilliard of River Bluff Apts. and Robin Marcia Ray of Tabor City.

Damage was estimated at $600 to the Hilliard car and $400 to the Ray vehicle by police, who charged Mrs. Hilliard with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Tobe J. Taft Jr. of Washington, D. C. was charged with following too close after investigation into an 8:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Chestnut Street.

Officers reported the Taft car collided with an auto driven by Ricky Harrell of Route 1, Ayden, resulting in an estimated $175 damage to the Taft vehicle and $300 to the Harrell car.

A 6:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Airport Road involved a car driven by Daniel Cris Webb of Elizabeth City and a motorcycle operated by Henry Junior Kornegay of Route 1, Winterville.

Damage was set at $200 to the car and $75 to the motorcycle.

$112.26 Day On Market

Auctions Wednesday on the Greenville Tobacco Market resulted in an average of $112.26 per hundred pounds as 939,726 pounds sold for $1,054,940.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade, said that 29.38 per cent of total sales went to the government loan program yesterday.

The top practical price paid was $1.65 per pound with buying companies on the local market purchasing good quality leaf for as much as $1.70 per pound.

Leaf, cutters, lugs, primings and an increase in non descript tobacco made up the volume of offerings available for sale, he reported.

For the season, the market has sold 36,043,245 pounds for $42,559,496, an average of $118.09 per hundred pounds.

Water evaporates from lakes, rivers and oceans throughout the world on sunny summer days at the rate of some 16 million tons a second making the air muggy and humid. The moisture eventually returns to the earth as rain, snow or some other form of precipitation.

Little Change In Leaf Prices

FARMVILLE — Grade for grade, prices were approximately the same yesterday as on Tuesday on the Farmville Tobacco Market, "with the exception of some quality grades of leaf and cutters that were $3 per hundred pounds higher than on the previous day," sales supervisor Louis Williams reported today.

He said more nondescript grades and damaged tobacco was on the floors than at any time this season.

Top prices paid by companies was $1.70 per pound, with top practical prices were $1.67 per pound.

The market yesterday sold 711,909 pounds of leaf for $811,516 for an average of $113.99 per hundread pounds. For the season, the market has sold 22,670,911 pounds for $26,909,919 for an average of $117.74 per hundred pounds.

Last Year, along with Johnny Evans, State quarterback, he was selected to the "Church Sportsman Hall of Fame" All American team.

Frank Hemingway, church lay leader, will be in charge of the service. He urges all members and others interested in hearing Sherrill's testimony to attend.

Training To Aid Blind

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina is pioneering efforts to train social workers to deal with the problems of the blind.

"When adults lose their sight, the trauma is often as severe as the loss of a spouse, and the person goes through predictable stages of grieving that a social worker must understand to help with the problem," said Tom Baldwin, a lecturer in the School of Social Work.

"There are special needs a blind person has that a social worker should be aware of," said Baldwin, who designed the special program for master's degree candidates.

Social workers need to develop skill in counselling the blind and their families, Baldwin said. They also need to know about special nutritional needs of the blind, many of whom are diabetics, and to be able to teach good nutrition for people on low budgets.

"Sighted social workers don't understand how a blind person orients himself to his surroundings and how he manages to travel," Baldwin said. "It is also difficult for a sighted person to talk without usisng nonverbal or visual messages that blind people obviously miss."

Califano Says Drugs Over-Used

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Too many Americans take drugs they do not need and don't know enough about, says the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He wants a "top-to-bottom, thorough overhaul" of government regulation of drugs.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said Wi esday he will begin by revamping the Food and Drug Administration, but also urged Congress to rewrite the 40-year-old law which governs the agency.

Califano said consumers often are not supplied enough information about drugs, both the prescription and over-the-counter varieties, and "our regulatory process itself is closed and secretive."

The result, he said, is that too many consumers take drugs that do not help them.

"Little dispute exists that much prescribing (of drugs) in this country is done for symptoms for which the drug is not recommended or is not effective," Califano told a luncheon sponsored by Public Citizen Forum, a consumer group.

"Too often doctors automatically write, and patients automatically expect a prescription for every ailment. Unnecessary use at a minimum wastes money and contributes to already soaring medical costs," he continued.

Califano said that since the law governing the FDA was enacted in 1938, sales in the drug manufacturing industry have grown from about $300 million to more than $7 billion a year.

"Today, more than 1.5 billion prescriptions are written every year — an average of 5.7 prescriptions for every man, woman and child in the nation," he said.

And he said the growth of the industry and scientific developments which have resulted in the development of many new drugs have made the current law archaic.

Califano said manufacturers should be required to disclose tests they make of drugs to assure that they are safe and effective. The results of such tests are withheld from the public on the grounds that "trade secrets" might be divulged.

"Not only should the (test) data be public but decisions should be made in open proceedings to provide interested groups an opportunity to submit views and to participate before the FDA," Califano said.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Heart and Vascular Diseases (II)

It is generally agreed that there is no single cause of heart attacks and strokes for it is acknowledged that heredity, sex, age, and race play an important role.

It is definitely acknowledged that cigarette smoking, obesity, severe emotional stress, and lack of exercise are prominent risk factors.

High blood pressure, high levels of fat in the blood, marked increase of cholesterol and triglycerides in the blood, and diabetes are important contributors to diseases of the heart and the blood-vascular system.

Unfortunately, not all of these factors can be controlled. Heredity, sex, age, and race cannot be changed. But cigarette smoking, overweight, emotional stress, and lack of excercise can definitely be altered.

High blood pressure, high cholesterol, and diabetes can be controlled once these conditions have been flushed from hiding and have been intensively treated.

So there is no validity to the idea that what is going to be is going to be. For the chances are great that heart disease and stroke can be reduced enormously if the controllable factors are given the consideration they deserve.

Nowhere in the entire field of medicine can it be said that preventive medicine is as important as it is in relation to heart attacks and stroke.

This prevention must start early in childhood. A fat infant becomes a fat adolescent and almost always an obese adult. Dietary programs must be instituted early so that they become part of adult dietary behavior.

Diets liberal with eggs, ice cream, and dairy fats must be replaced by more fruits, nuts, grains, and leafy green vegetables. High cholesterol meats such as ham, pork, fatty beef, and cold cuts can be replaced by low-cholesterol meats and fish. Turkey and chicken are excellent substitutes. Poly-unsaturated fats are liquid oils of vegetable and plant origin. Corn, safflower, soy beans, and sesame seed oils are excellent. Note that coconut oil is an exception. It is highly saturated.

Tobacco, especially cigarette tobacco, is a controllable menace. With time and ceaseless educational campaigns, perhaps one day sanity may be introduced into the lives of young people who would prefer a long life of health to a shorter one culminating in a heart attack.

Most intriguing to me is the great number of obese, cigarette-smoking adults who cannot believe they are expendable and will not alter their patterns of living.

Once they are stricken by a heart attack and brought to the emergency room of a hospital and taken to the intensive coronary care unit, a magic wand seems to be waved over them. They stop smoking, they go on a 900 calorie a day diet, and learn that their office can function as well, and perhaps better, without them. Must one come close to dying to learn to live?

Senior Citizen Day

SENIOR CITIZENS' DAY. . .was held at the Pitt County Fair yesterday, with Dr. Wilbur Ormond of Ayden helping with entertainment. (Photo By Mrs. Helen K. Burton, Grifton)

Senior Citizens' Day was observed at the Pitt County Fair yesterday.

Extension Agent Addie Gore estimated that about 140 persons from through the county participated. The Pitt County Council on Aging and other agencies provided transportation for many of those attending.

Dr. Wilbur Ormond of Ayden entertained the group by playing the accordian and by accompanying them as they sang various hymns and other old favorites.

The exhibits and other sights of interest were visited. The program was held between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and refreshments were served by the Fair management.

Wants School For Bartenders

CHARLOTTE (AP) — If North Carolina ever gets liquor-by-the-drink, Ted Stowers wants the state to be ready with an army of trained bartenders.

So Stowers, who was trained as a bartender in California and worked for a Charlotte hotel until he quit last month, is trying to establish the N.C. School of Bartending.

"A lot of people say it's a foolhardy venture," says Stowers, who has been running classified ads in local newspapers and signing his letters "Dean of Mixology."

"I don't think anyone else would be crazy enough to try this but me," the 36-year-old bachelor declares.

Stowers thinks the state may get mixed drinks within two years and as a bartender, he is behind the idea.

"How can you control a person here when they've got the bottle?" he says, referring to the state's brown-bagging law.

Officials in local and state tax offices and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in Raleigh did not know of any other bartending school in North Carolina. There are no state regulations governing such schools.

Stowers says he has gotten good reaction from his ads.

"I'm quite sure before I start classes Monday I should have at least 15 or 16 (students) signed up," he says.

For $100, in 60 hours, Stowers teaches 125 drinks, measure-by measure, and offers an explanation of state liquor laws and the proper approach to customer service.

But he does not guarantee a job.

Stowers' idea for the school came when he moved here last November from California and "looked around and saw no qualified bartenders."

His final exam is not for the casual drink-mixer. The written section is 65 recipes for drinks, without missing more than three. Then there's the speed trial: 15 different drinks in 10 minutes.

Plan Seminar For Employers

A seminar for local employers and their representatives is being sponsored by the Employment Security Commission of N. C. Thursday, Oct. 20, from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

The seminar will be held at the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute at the corner of Reade and First Streets here. Registration begins at 1 p. m.

The purpose of this seminar is to acquaint employers and their representatives with the services available through Job Service and legislative changes in unemployment insurance laws that will affect them and their firm. Among topics to be discussed are the Job Service placement process and the outlook for a computerized job and applicant matching system, the non-charging provisions of the UI Law an the changes in the Unemployment Insurance hearing procedure.

Discussion leaders will be John B. Fleming, director of the N. C. Employment Security Commission and Warren Whittmer, Director of the Unemployment Insurance Division of the Commission. Ample time will be provided for questions and answers.

Due to space limitations, only 150 persons can be seated. Employers and interested representatives are requested to make reservations early by notifying the Greenville Employment Security Office of intentions to attend. The phone number is 756-2686.

Talks Seek End Coal Strikes

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal contract talks are beginning with labor and management seeking a formula for ending wildcat strikes that have crippled eastern coal production and weakened the United Mine Workers Union.

An industry-wide strike is likely when the union's current three-year contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association expires Dec. 6. But it is expected to be brief.

Fear of a long and crippling shutdown has diminished in recent weeks and government officials believe a short strike by the union's 170,000 working members would have little impact on the nation's energy needs this winter.

UMW President Arnold Miller and chief industry negotiator Joseph Brennan were expected to present brief statements outlining their general bargaining goals at today's opening session, expected to be largely ceremonial. Hard bargaining isn't expected for several weeks.

The major issue in the negotiations is expected to be the wildcat strikes that have plagued the industry since the last contract was signed in December 1974. The strikes have meant lost production and a depletion of employer-financed health and benefit funds for the miners.

Both sides are looking for a way to prevent the illegal strikes, which Brennan calls "industrial anarchy."

The last of the walkouts was a 10-week strike last summer. It was triggered by a sharp cutback in medical care benefits available to miners and their dependents through the UMW Health and Retirement Funds.

The funds, which are supported by royalties based on a combination of coal produced and hours worked, were drained by rising medical costs and a series of wildcat strikes earlier in the year.

Miller is demanding full restoration of benefits and improvements in the system for financing the funds. But the coal operators are expected to tie this issue to the strike problem.

Brennan has indicated that the industry will attempt to devise an incentive system for paying health and pension benefits based on the amount of time an individual works.

There also is the matter of the union's call for a clause in the new contract providing a "right to strike" over local grievances, a proposal backed publicly by Miller. The theory is that such wildcat strikes would be confined to individual union locals, but the industry contends the idea won't work and has vowed to resist it at the bargaining table.

The miners, who currently average about $8.50 an hour and are already among the highest paid industrial workers in America, also are seeking substantial wage increases, shorter hours and improvements in mine safety rules.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today for portions of the Southwest as well as the Rocky Mountain states. Showers are also anticipated for northern New England and part of Florida. Temperatures will be cool over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A cold front will move across North Carolina today and early tonight. Skies ahead of the front will be partly cloudy and scattered showers will occur across the mountains. Highs today will range from the upper 60s to mid 70s.

As the front passes off the coast early tonight fair skies will return to the state. Lows tonight will range from the upper 30s and low 40s in the mountains to the low and mid 50s along the coast.

Skies will be mostly sunny Friday as high pressure builds across the state. Highs Friday will be a little bit cooler than those today, ranging from the 60s to the low 70s.

Sunny skies prevailed across North Carolina Wednesday. Afternoon temperatures warmed into the upper 60s to mid 70s. Warmest locations included Raleigh-Durham Airport, New Bern and Jacksonville with 75, followed by Cherry Point, Wilmington, Fayetteville and Elizabeth City with 74.

Cloudiness increased across the state last night. During the early hours of the morning, patchy dense fog developed across the mountains. Overnight temperatures cooled into the 40s and low 50s.

A cold front will pass over the state today and early tonight. Even so, the weather for outdoor activities will remain good. Scattered showers may interrupt some outdoor activities across the mountains briefly. Fair skies will return to the state tonight and Friday, along with cooler temperatures.

Two Rescued In Dwelling Fire

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An elderly blind woman and a middle-aged man were rescued Wednesday from a burning apartment building in Asheville.

Vance Wilkinson received minor facial injuries and Lillian Kaufman, 87, was not hurt.

Two men who had been mowing the lawn saw smoke coming from a fourth floor apartment, broke down the door and led the pair to safety. Firemen said they believed a cigarette started the blaze.

GOSPEL SING

The Gospel Seekers of Tarboro, and the Powell Brothers of Robersonville will sing at the Mayo Chapel Baptist Church Saturday, October 8 at 7 p.m.

The public is invited.

Allsbrook Named To Commission

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has announced the appointment of Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook, a Roanoke Rapids attorney, to the Mental Health Study Commission. Allsbrook represents the Sixth Senatorial District, comprised of Pitt, Halifax, Edgecombe and Martin Counties.

In announcing the appointment, Green praised Allsbrook, a veteran legislator, as a valuable addition to the Commission. Others appointed were Sen. Harold Hardison of Deep Run, Sen. Ollie Harris of King's Mountain and Sen. Cecil J. Hill of Brevard.

Bynum Chosen Club President

Merrill H. Bynum was chosen president of the Kiwanis Golden K. Club of Greenville at a meeting Tuesday morning.

Bynum's name was spelled incorrectly in Monday's edition of the Daily Reflector.

Other officers named to positions were: Vice-president Henry Oglesby, Secretary-Treasurer George Fleming, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer Lawrence Brewster.

Happiness In VOAC Nursing Homes

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — At 102, sculptor John Daniels says it's fun to live in Edina Community Care Center.

Fun in a nursing home? You can bet on it, because Edina Care is among those run by the non-profit Volunteers of America, an organization devoted to caring for people for the past 82 years.

Among other residents of the Edina center is the mother of Col. Robert Nolte, head of VOA's health care division and midwestern regional director.

Nolte said VOA felt there was a need for a national nursing home agency that used all efficient methods of operation. So Volunteers of America Care Facilities became a division of the VOA in 1970.

"Nobody wants to go to a nursing home, and that's not because it's a bad place," said Nolte's son, Bob Jr., recently appointed general manager of the VOA's nursing homes.

"There's a lot of family anguish involved in the decision to send a family member to a nursing home. But sometimes there aren't any other alternatives."

Father and son agreed that "only through better guaranteed care in nursing homes can we get over the stereotyped idea of the nursing home."

VOAC now has 11 health care facilities in the nation, with about 1,500 beds. The elder Nolte said the goal is to add 1,000 new beds at a projected cost of $15 million by the end of next year.

"We may look at 30 to 40 nursing homes before we find what we want," the younger Nolte said. "We just don't want them if they can't be brought up to snuff," his father added.

Besides the 162-bed Edina center, VOAC operates Crystal Care Center in suburban Minneapolis, a 192-bed nursing home, and Maplewood Care Center, a 176-bed facility.

The exteriors of the buildings are "as standard as a McDonald hamburger stand," the younger Nolte said, but each home is managed as an individual entity. Each has a different patient mix, a different set of circumstances and problems.

Administrators are given a wide range of latitude in developing new ideas to suits their particular needs, he said.

VOAC also operates Kettering Convalescent Center in Kettering, Ohio, and the Leisure Oaks Convalescent Center in Defiance, Ohio. In Florida, VOAC-operated nursing homes include Tanglewood Convalescent Center in Lake City and Richie Manor Nursing Home in Newport Richie. In Wisconsin, VOAC operates four residential facilities for emotionally disturbed and retarded adults and teen-agers.

"We aim for the nicest facilities in the country," the elder Nolte said. "But you can build all the nice buildings you want with grass and trees, and it won't work without the proper care that we get from most of the young people who come to work for us."

During their VOA career, Nolte and his wife worked in group homes and halfway homes. In 1966 they were doing so well with the Bar-None boys ranch outside Minneapolis he described himself as "the poor man's Father Flanagan."

But he couldn't keep up with the kids anymore, Nolte said, "and I felt there was a need for an agency like ours to be in the health care business. So 10 years ago we just started from scratch, and it seemed as though the VOAC program evolved from what happened in Minnesota."

VOA began the Minnesota nursing home project with 100 per cent funding. It operated at a loss for the first six months to a year, while beds were being filled at the Maplewood home.

But seven years later, after substantial gains in real estate values, "we are assuming an erect fiscal posture," Nolte said. "We charge competitive rates as set by welfare and, instead of the profits going to stockholders, they go back to the patients."

All VOAC facilities are privately financed by local banks and occasional bond issues. The 11 health care centers have an annual operating budget of about $14 million.

Nolte said people find VOAC homes through their clergy, doctor or telephone yellow pages. They visit the homes, and then the patient and family make a decision. Patients on welfare, he said, receive the same care as those with their own funds.

VOAC provides general nursing care, nutritional programs, physical therapy, weekly church services, social work counseling for both patients and family and arts and crafts activities, which John Daniels enjoys most.

"They have to set a timer to let him know when it's time to do something else," said Edina administrator Leila Campbell. "Otherwise he'd sculpt all day."

Mrs. Campbell proudly displays the center and introduces its residents. Her attitude is cheery, breezy and full of good humor.

"You need patience and an interest in the elderly when you're working in a nursing home," she said, "and sometimes you just have to sit back and deal with the positives."

Mrs. Campbell also initiated and works in an outpatient physical therapy program.

Another VOAC special service is a volunteer program at the Crystal home that brings people from the community to work with individual patients and groups. "This type of program just has to evolve in a home," Nolte said.

Flexibility is the over-all VOA policy guideline, says Gen. John F. McMahon, commander in chief of the volunteers.

"We like to think," Nolte said, "the organization has gone beyond its old image of the Santa Claus standing on the street corner soliciting contributions, that it has reached a more sophisticated era."

See Slow But Steady Growth For Economy

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION

Economic growth in the coming months is expected to be slower and steadier than it has been so far in this recovery. Growth could still average above the long term trend of 3.5-4 percent through at least part of 1978.

Inventory building has been responsible for the wide swings in economic growth since the Spring of 1975. Growth of this sector has ranged from 1.2 percent to 11.4 percent while final sales have grown in a narrower range, from 3.4 percent to 6.3 percent. Business inventories are now likely to rise in line with final sales, and thus are not expected to provide any additional stimulus to economic growth. Changes in the future growth rate of inventories are expected to be modest, with the rest of the economy growing at a relatively stable rate.

Cyclical recovery also seems to have run its course in homebuilding and automobile sales. During the first quarter of 1975, housing starts were at an annual rate of less than one million. This year, starts have averaged about 1.90 million units. The rate may edge somewhat higher at times, but future gains will not come near those of the past two years. Automobile sales have recovered from a low of 8.6 million units in 1975 to a current rate near 11 million units. Little further increase is expected in the next two years, and indeed the rate may decline.

With these three major sectors — inventories, homebuilding, and automobiles — no longer expanding rapidly, other segments of our economy must show improvement to keep the U. S. growth rate from declining. Capital and government spending are expected to do just that.

For the most recent 12 month period, capital spending rose at a 9.5 percent real rate, substantially higher than in the previous year. Investment plans and orders indicate that capital spending could increase at an 8-10 percent real rate in the future.

Government spending for good and services is also beginning to increase. Increases so far have been centered in transfer payments or have been the result of higher prices. The physical volume of goods and services purchased was the lowest in the first quarter of 1977 than it has been since the second quarter of 1976. Real purchases, especially for defense, are now rising. State and local governments, with the aid of Federal funds, are now spending more for public works and public employment. Increased government spending could continue for the next six quarters.

Strength in capital spending, government spending, and some increase in consumer spending, should enable the economy to grow at near the 4 percent trend rate. By historical standards, the current recovery is maturing, and the natural question is when will it end. Past recessions have been precipitated by extremes in monetary and fiscal policy, too much inventory, saturation of demand, and-or excessive speculation. None of these problems has begun to appear, leading us to expect continued growth, albeit at a slower rate, into next year.

Charging Boy Goes Against Tradition

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Charges against a 6-year-old Tarboro boy in the shooting death of his 7-year-old brother may go against an 80-year-old common law tradition that says anyone under seven years of age is incapable of committing a crime.

Edgecombe County District Attorney Frank Brown has said the boy could be charged, although he added it was unlikely he would be punished.

"There is no minimum age for prosecution," Brown said. "As a practical matter, there is not much in my opinion that the court can do except look at the case and see that the boy gets any counseling or examination he needs."

But Special Deputy Attorney General James Blackburn said Wednesday he had researched the law and found North Carolina judges have regarded small children as "incapable of crime."

Blackburn said there was no statute on the books making seven the minimum age for prosecution, but he found a North Carolina Supreme Court decision which said that "an infant under 7 cannot be indicted or punished for any offense..." because they are not capable of criminal intent.

Blackburn said a number of other judges have cited that decision since, and the U.S. Supreme Court endorsed it in 1967.

The Tarboro boy is charged with the Aug. 17 shooting of his brother in a juvenile petition which Sheriff Phil Ellis said was similar to a manslaughter charge, but "it doesn't have the word manslaughter."

LONG AND SHORT OF IT — Tony Pace, an employee of a concrete company, seems to have solved the problem of dressing for cold mornings and warm afternoons of fall. As the day warms up Pace wears cut-off shorts over his long underwear. (AP Laserphoto)

Archeologists Study Cultures

By Russell R. Nielsen

BATTLE MOUNTAIN, Nev. (UPI) — Lynda Waski and Bobbie McGonagle see lakes and villages where others see only barren flat terrain blistering under a desert sun.

Their job requires that kind of imagination, as well as the toughness to take dust and heat in a search of "treasures" which many consider unimportant.

The two women are archeologists for the Bureau of Land Management. Their jurisdiction covers 8.4 million acres of public lands in Nevada's Lander, Eureka and Nye Counties. They are looking for knowledge about ancient residents and their culture.

So far, less than one-tenth of one percent of public lands in Nevada have been surveyed for archeological and historical remains. At that rate, it will take another 200 years to complete the task, but they aren't discouraged.

"It's exciting, like a mystery — mind boggling but intriguing," said Ms. Waski.

Both have been with the bureau about two years. Ms. McGonagle did her doctoral thesis on an archeological site, north of Reno, where she unearthed artifacts dating back 12,000 years.

Neither fears the dangers of tramping through the remote desert. In fact, it's the few people they encounter who are most troublesome because of their lack of understanding of the work involved.

"Some people just don't take us or our work seriously, but being a woman professional and an archeologist are even more difficult," said Ms. McGonagle. "I have an even bigger job convincing people I'm serious and have an important job to do."

Ms. Waski said some people believe she is collecting artifacts "just so you can send them to a museum, put them in a box and forget them." Ms. McGonagle says she identified herself to a woman who said, "I hope you never find one arrowhead."

"Some people think we're going to take something that belongs to them personally," Ms. McGonagle said. "Of course, it belongs to all of us, and archaelogists need to study them, but sometimes that's hard for local people to understand. This information can help them by predicting the future from data about the climate and the people who lived here."

"For example, in excavation, we dig down by levels," Ms. Waski said. "By doing pollen analysis and other tests, we can tell what type of vegetation existed and when, what types of animals there were and what the climate cycles were.

"By studying tree ring data, we can pin down wet and dry periods. We can find out where animals went during droughts, and why certain kinds of vegetation survived and others did not. This information can help us deal with future droughts."

"Basically," said Ms. McGonagle, "we're trying to find out how cultures change and why. We can't predict the future until we know why we changed the past. We need to learn from what happened then to know where we're going now."

Sometimes their efforts are hampered by hunters of arrowheads and pots, many of whom know they are violating the federal Antiquities Act which protects archeological resources.

"Pot diggers are our biggest problem," said Ms. Waski. "Once they've dug a site, it's like someone dropped a bomb. Dating levels are all mixed up. Something 5,000 years old is right next to something perhaps 20,000 years old."

Ms. McGonagle said many persons collect arrowheads and don't see what harm it does.

"The shape of an arrowhead can tell us when it was made. If they're left in place, we can figure out what areas people used over what periods of time and what animals they were hunting. They might be the only evidence left of habitation in some areas."

Troubles and hardships of the job might cause many archeologists to choose an air-conditioned college classroom rather than the wide open spaces. The two women turned down that chance.

"It's simply the challenge," Ms. McGonagle said. "There's so much land and so little knowledge."

ECU Students Meet Official

ECU News Bureau

HEREDIA, COSTA RICA — East Carolina University students studying at the Universidad Nacional here, under a cooperative arrangement between ECU and the Coasta Rican campus, met with the Costa Rican minister of health recently.

Dr. Herman Weinstock, Ministerio de Salud for Costa Rica, discussed changes, needs and plans in the health service delivery of the Central American nation.

Meeting with Weinstock were members of the sociology class which is studying the health and welfare systems of Costa Rica. Their previous research has included analysis of the Seguro Social, which provides special services for children and the aged, family counseling, and aid to the handicapped.

Other resource persons for the ECU students have been Dr. Olf Amman, chairman of the Universidad Nacional Department of Sociology, and William Burrus, Regional Director of the Agencia International Tecnica,

The current ECU-Costa Rica study program ends Oct. 29, with a final field trip into Guatemala. The students will return home during the first week in November.

ON PROBATION

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A Moslem religious court has released a 117-year-old Malaysian man on probation after he pleaded guilty to living out of wedlock with a 40-year-old woman. It was his third conviction on the same charge, court officials said.

Offer Canoe Safety Program

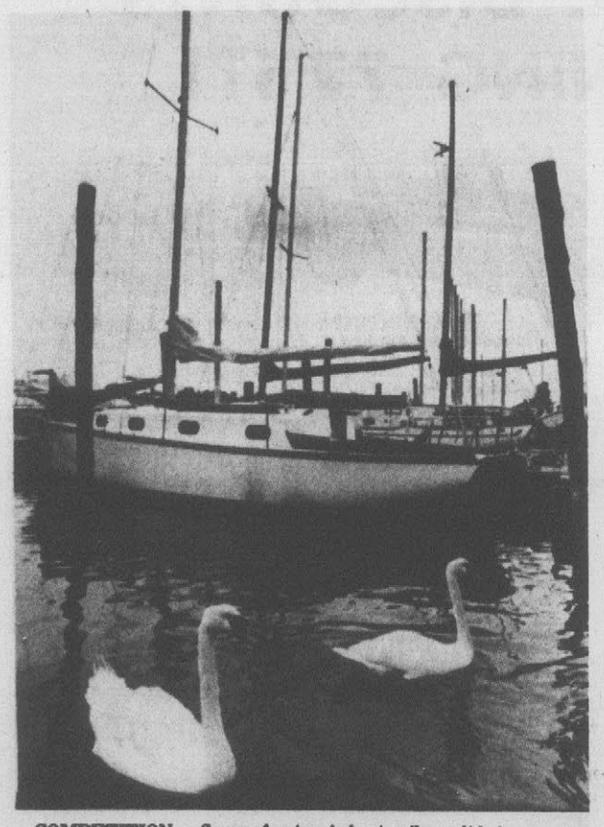
The October Sierra Club meeting will be the showing of a film and a program on canoe safety and white water canoeing.

The meeting will be held in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church at 8 p. m. Monday, Oct. 10.



COMPETITION — Some of nature's best sailors glide by some of man's best offerings recently at the Norwalk, Conn., in-the-water boat show at the Cove Marina. The show, in its second year, has already become the biggest in-the-water show on the Eastern seaboard, promoters say. (AP Laserphoto)

Only Known Jas. Boone Monument

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator
North Carolina Collection

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — In southwestern Virginia's Scott County there stands a state highway historical marker which reads, "Near here, October 10, 1773, James Boone, son of Daniel Boone, and Henry Russell, members of Boone's party on the way to Kentucky, were surprised and killed by Indians."

That is probably the only monument to James Boone, for there are no towns, counties, highways, wines or television shows named for him. Such names are traced back to his father, skipping over James as though he never existed.

North Carolinians, however, ought to take some pride in James. After all, unlike his father, he was a native of our state and grew up along the tributaries of the Yadkin River in the area in and around the present Davie County.

James, the first child of Daniel and Rebecca Bryan Boone, was born in 1757, only a few years after Daniel come with his parents from Pennsylvania to the backwoods of North Carolina.

Virtually nothing is known of James's childhood, but it is not difficult to picture the very special place that he occupied in Daniel Boone's affection. Although Rebecca gave birth to eight other children, undoubtedly the first-born son received favored attention from his father.

Daniel, who spent much of his time — particularly in fall and winter — in scouting and hunting, often took the lad along, teaching him the skills of a frontiersman.

Although Daniel Boone had explored the transmontane area several times before, it was not until 1773 that he sold his North Carolina property and packed his remaining worldly goods upon horses.

In September, he, his family and a number of friends began the long trek to their new homes in what is now Kentucky.

In the Clinch River valley of southwestern Virginia they received aid from William Russell, a pioneer settler there, and then pushed on. After doing some mental figuring, however, Daniel decided that they needed some more foodstuffs and tools, so he asked James to take a party back to Russell's and pick up the additional supplies.

The impetuous teenager rode off alone. He arrived safely, but Russell insisted that his son, Henry, and several of his hands return to camp with James. After all, the Shawnees were in an ugly mood over the white incursions.

On the way back to the Boone camp, the group became lost, and as night fell, they decided to camp near Walden's Creek.

During the night, a party of Shawnees saw the light from the campfire, slipped up, and fired into the sleeping men. Several were killed, James and Henry were wounded in the hip, and one of Russell's slaves slipped into the underbrush and witnessed the agonizing hours that followed.

Instead of ending the misery of the two wounded boys, the Shawnees proceeded to torture them with knives. The atrocity was all the more incomprehensible because the leader of the band was Big Jim, a Shawnee who had often visited the Boone cabin and whom Daniel had counted as a friend.

The pleas of the youths that their pain be ended with one blow of the tomahawk were ignored, and the slicing of strips of flesh continued until they both finally died.

James was only 16 years old, and unknown to his party, they had reached within three miles of his father's camp — three miles between death and safety.

The bodies were found the next morning, and James was buried nearby. Daniel, upon hearing the news, prepared for an anticipated attack upon his camp. But he also took time out to visit the fresh grave of his son, making sure that it was covered with logs to prevent violation of the body by animals.

While Daniel wanted to push on to Kentucky, the incident caused the remaining families to lose heart, and they turned back.

Daniel and Rebecca and their family, however, occupied a vacant cabin and remained in the Clinch River area until 1775 when they finally reached their destination.

Another son, Israel, also lost his life in an Indian raid in 1782. Daniel and Rebecca later moved to Missouri, where he died in 1820.

Applied Talents To Raise Money

WILTON MANORS, Fla. (AP) — The Rev. John Stauffer put his money where his Bible was and instructed his parishioners to go forth and make money to air condition the church.

They went forth with a variety of raffles, sales — and one poker game. They madeth $3,500.

Re-enacting the New Testament parable of the talents, the Rev. Mr. Stauffer took out a $1,000 personal loan and gave $5 to each of his parishioners at the First Christian Church in this Fort Lauderdale suburb. The church is raising money for a $34,000 air conditioning system.

"It was a tremendous success," said the 27-year-old minister.

"The story in the parable was that all men are not equal according to their abilities," says Stauffer. "What makes them equal is their effort to use their talents to the fullest. That is what we are doing now in the church."

The Bible tells how a nobleman gave a silver coin, or talent, to each of three servants. Two servants returned with more than they were given and were rewarded, but a third saved his and was admonished.

In the re-enactment, parishioner Gordon Price used his talent, and connections as a meat supplier, to raffle off some steaks. Pooling his $5 with two other church members, Price returned $178 to the church.

C.J. Salerno, a cabinetmaker, used his $5 to build bird feeders, which he sold to net $78 for the church. "It was right up my alley," he said.

Two families combined $50 and held a bingo party — earning $163. Others sold homemade shell necklaces, tables, and other items. Two teen-aged girls turned their living room into a restaurant and sold $10 steak dinners.

Rather than the parable of the talents, some church members received a reminder of the biblical admonition: "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

Andrew Winkler, for example, lost his money in a card game and scrambled to recover the funds in a giant garage sale.

"What I did was take my $5 and my wife's $5 and play poker and lost," said Winkler. "So we had to think of something else fast."

Nat'l Exams Set Nov. 12

ECU News Bureau

National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given at East Carolina University Nov. 12.

Scores from the examinations are used by states for certification of teachers, by school systems for selection and identification of leadership qualities, and by colleges as part of their graduation requirements.

According to the Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the tests, they are designed to measure knowledge gained from professional and general education and in 26 subject-matter fields.

Bulletins describing registration procedures and containing registration forms are available from the Testing Center, East Carolina University, Speight Building-105, Greenville, N.C., (919) 757-6811, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, N. J. 08540.

Deadline for regular registration is October 20. On-the-spot registration is not permitted.

Found Road To Riches Parking Cars

By BRUCE NICHOLS

HOUSTON (UPI) — Back in 1926, Durell M. Carothers parked his first car for pay at Uncle Billie Towell's downtown lot. The rate was 15 cents for three hours, 25 cents for all day.

The future chairman of Allright Auto Parks Inc. had found his route to riches.

"It was purely a one-man deal for Uncle Billie, makeshift, no great plans for the future," Carothers, 68, recalls.

Uncle Billie didn't even have a driveway. Instead, he dropped some timbers in the gutter so cars could jump the curb.

"While he was doing the physical labor of spreading the shell and stringing the lights, I was parking those first cars."

Carothers continued to work there part-time after he went to Rice. When he graduated at the beginning of the Depression, there were no jobs so he stayed, going to law school nights. In 1932, Uncle Billie wanted out.

"I organized the first corporation called Allright Inc. — it was the first of the Allright corporations — capital 1,000 bucks," Carothers said.

He opened other lots in Houston and, in 1937, a friend took the idea to Corpus Christi, Tex., tearing down the St. James Hotel to open a lot financed by Carothers and operated by the associate, as partners.

That arrangement set a pattern followed for years. Other companies formed with Carothers' backing and the Allright label. The trademark spread across the South, the nation and into Canada.

"Stumbling on a gold mine was certainly my reaction early in the game," he admits. "It just grew. But the gold mine ... is not just finding a nugget. It's really working that rather low grade ore and continuing to make it pay."

In 1963, Carothers and associates, who considered themselves "sort of a family," decided to consolidate and "go public" with a stock offering.

"There were eighty-eight of us locked in a room," Carothers recalls, to fight out the makeup of a single stock company, Allright Auto Parks Inc., that could meet Securities and Exchange Commission requirements.

The company now owns 50 independent operating companies with 1,426 locations in 65 cities in the United States and Canada. Only 85 of the locations are owned outright. Most of the rest are leased.

Carothers, as board chairman, retains less than 10 per cent of the stock in the firm which had revenues last year of $46.8 million, with net income on parking and property transactions of $3.4 million.

The road to success had some kinks.

Carothers recalls an early Allright manager asked attendants "if they could drive and if they said yes he said, 'well, go to work.'

"One of them that started on that Number One lot could drive all right but he hadn't taken the second step of stopping. He just drove right out the end ... plowed right through the fence and landed in the showroom across the street."

"Training and indoctrination" became part of the program.

Allright has tried nearly every form of parking operation, abandoning a few and now focusing on the self-park approach in which car owners put their money in a slot before leaving the lot.

"We have polished the techniques that make it possible to get your collections up to 99 per cent efficiency," Carothers said. "In the old days it was advertised as an 'honor system,' but honor has some limitations.

"The present means of collection involves a very, very enthusiastic group of checkers who really get with it," he said.

It also involves computerizing freeloader license numbers and, if need be, hiring a wrecker to tow cars away if repeated warnings have failed to change delinquent ways.

"That freeloader may move across the street or may move across town but that computer can tabulate how many different times he's parked and how delinquent he is in dollars and cents. Pretty soon he gives up."

Allright has made as much as 55 per cent on a single property investment.

"It was an old service station in Indianapolis ... across the street from a hospital. The dealer couldn't even make a living on it."

Carothers, married with five children and 13 grandchildren by a previous marriage, is a history buff active in historical organizations.

Of the often high profits achieved by his firm, Carothers feels no embarrassment.

"You set the rates callously on the basis of what the traffic will bear. We're in it to make money. We're not a utility."

Drawings Done By DanishQueen

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A special edition of the trilogy "Lord of the Rings" by J.R.R. Tolkien contains drawings done by Ingahild Grathmer — the Queen of Denmark.

The queen, using the pseudonym Ingahild Grathmer, drew 80 black and white illustrations for the 1,500 numbered copies of the deluxe edition that sells for $165, the Forum Publishing House said Tuesday.

The 37-year-old queen, Margrethe Alexandrine Thorhildur Ingrid, belongs to the worldwide following of Tolkien, the late Oxford professor who created a cult with his tales of medieval myths and legends. He is best known as the creator of "The Hobbit."

Sources said the queen did the drawings "just for the fun of it" before ascending to the throne in 1972. She mailed them privately to Tolkien, with whom she corresponded until his death in 1973, they said.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite some delays in putting in motion your plans, study as many new and worth while ideas as possible since you will soon be able to put them in motion with much success following.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine creative ideas now, but will find delays keep you from putting them across as speedily as you want. Do nothing that upsets a loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what a family tie has to say since this could be of great help to you. Get rid of the cause of any friction.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) By choosy where friends are concerned, since some could be nothing but time-wasters. Attend social affair with partner, even though you may be distraught. Be careful in driving.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study monetary matters carefully and do whatever will improve them. Make plans that are comprehensive and will work for a long time to come.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Speed up activities so that you get better results, both in business and in personal matters. Accept invitations of a social nature that are worthwhile. Dress in fine style.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Think out bigger and better plans for the future and you can have greater success. Confer with an adviser who has good ideas for you. Take no chances with reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Confer with good friends and see if they will assist you in gaining personal aims. Also cooperate with them in their goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some new outlet seems hopeless but there is a gold vein running through it that could make it a big success. Look for it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) New projects fascinate you, but they need more study if they are to work out successfully. You have many hunches, but weed out the wrong ones, use the right ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take a more practical view of your obligations and you can discharge them more intelligently. Try to meet expectations of loved one and be happier. Be wise to the ways of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to please associates more and be sure to keep any promises you have made to them. Don't permit an inconsistent person to lead you astray. Keep above board and and all is fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many important things to do so don't permit anyone to lead you in the wrong direction.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to think big and get big and will also help others along the way of life to become more successful, and will be a good friend. Give good ethical training early and don't neglect religious studies either.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Many TV Shows Not Fated To Last

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's cancellation — of "Sanford Arms" — suddenly reminded us this week that once again it's time for the annual Fearless Forecast of the new, somewhat bad television season.

As in the past, we, ah, guess which new series will poop or prosper. "Sanford," of course, already is disqualified from the forecast.

So is Richard Pryor of NBC. He canceled himself by reducing his series commitment from 10 to four shows before the new season began. The last of his series, NBC says, airs Oct.20.

As in the past, all new-show forecasts are made without benefit of tea leaves or their equivalent, ratings. The forecasts now begin.

SUNDAY — "On Our Own," starting this Sunday on CBS, concerns two young ladies who work in an advertising agency. They'd be wise not to plan any Christmas sales campaigns.

MONDAY — CBS' "Young Dan'l Boone" will be permanently lost in the woods by November. "Rafferty," a medicine show, also will expire then, but "Betty White" gets a full season, maybe two.

ABC's "San Pedro Beach Bums" will be all washed up by December, provided we all pray real hard.

TUESDAY — CBS' "Fitzpatricks," a close-knit family, will not be around for Thanksgiving dinner. But "Lou Grant" and his newspaper are good for at least a season's circulation.

No call yet for a new Tuesday family, NBC's "Mulligan Stew," airing Oct.25. But ABC's not-for-all-the-family "Soap" will float until January, then assuredly gurgle down the drain.

WEDNESDAY — NBC's "Oregon Trail" will be covered over before December, likewise "Big Hawaii," which started on aloha note.

THURSDAY — NBC's "Chips," a motorcycle hour, roars into oblivion in November, at which time "Rosetti and Ryan" will be disbarred. "Man From Atlantis," in what seems a salvage operation, moves to Tuesdays on Oct. 18. But the man and Atlantis will sink for keeps in December.

At ABC, "Carter Country" will be plowed under by January. A month earlier, Redd Foxx, who made a much-publicized network shift last spring, will prove that NBC's loss was ABC's loss.

FRIDAY — CBS' modernized "Wonder Woman" and new "Logan's Run" obviously aimed at the "Star Wars" trade. But The Force is not with them. Out they go in November.

SATURDAY — A similar fate awaits CBS' "We've Got Each Other." But it'll take at least another month before ABC's "Operation Petticoat" is pink-slipped and "Love Boat" joins the Titanic.

Nickel-Dime Operation Pays

SEATTLE (AP) — You can fall off the wagon for dimes and nickels here — and even the wagon ride is free.

Step into Irene's on Pine Street and buy a 6-ounce glass of beer for a dime, just like you could when the price was set 44 years ago.

Then walk a half-block up the street, catch the "Magic Carpet" — a free downtown bus — and go to the other end of the business district. There, you'll find the Breadline, a 3-year-old restaurant where you can sit down to a dinner for a nickel.

"It's volume," says Irene Hobbs. "At 10 cents a beer, you sell a lot of beer. When they come in for the little beers, they also buy cigarettes, eggs, play pool. I've got a nice summer place up at Camano Island now."

ECU Musician In Rocky Mount

ECU News Bureau

Gregory Nagode, assistant professor of piano pedagogy in the East Carolina University School of Music, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Rocky Mount Piano Teachers Association.

His topic was "Professionalism and the Piano Teacher." The event was the first meeting of association members for the 1977-78 school year.

| 6 ♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

In his Bols Bridge Tips, Pedro Paulo Assumpcao of Brazil alerted us to the overwhelming importance of timing. Judging by his play of this hand, declarer never read that sage advice.

Despite his weak doubleton, North elected to open one no trump to save himself rebid problems. When his partner forced with three spades, North was close to a cue-bid to show a maximum hand with support. However, he felt he had too much in clubs for that action, so he contented himself with a simple raise. But when South showed slam interest by cue-bidding, North took all the strain off his partner by jumping to slam—a move justified by the fact that he had first- or second-round control of the other side suits.

Declarer won the club lead in dummy, then cashed the queen and ace of spades. When West showed up with a trump trick, declarer was in trouble. He cashed two high diamonds and ruffed a diamond, but the queen did not drop. Declarer played off his high clubs, discarding all his hearts. West ruffed the last club and, in the fullness of time, declarer lost a trick to the queen of diamonds for down one.

The contract is cold if trumps break 3-2, so declarer should see what he can do if they split 4-1. Correct technique is to lead a trump to the ace at trick two and then a trump back to the queen. If trumps break, declarer can draw the last trump and concede a heart, for he can get two diamond discards on the high clubs.

When East shows out on the second trump, declarer has a second string to his bow—the diamond finesse. When a diamond to the jack wins, declarer cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond in dummy. Now he takes the high clubs, discarding his hearts.

West can ruff the fourth club, but by now declarer has gotten rid of all of his side-suit losers. He loses only a trump trick to make his contract.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. ## History In Photographs

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — For three generations, the Alinari family photographed Europe's works of art, monuments, landscapes and architecture. One thousand of their photographs, documents and pieces of photographic equipment recently went on display at Fort Belvedere here.

The exhibit, a sampling of the 120,000-piece Alinari family archives, is arranged in six categories: documents and photographs of the Alinari family, images of Florence, art treasures, cameras and accessories and pictures of European cities and landscapes.

Leopoldo Alinari, an engraver's son, became involved in commercial photography in the 19th century when it was still a relatively new concept. He was joined by his brothers, Giuseppe and Romoaldo. Their sons, Giuseppe and Vittorio, and grandsons, Leopoldo and Carlo, also became photographers in the family firm.

The company, Fratelli Alinari S.P.A., was sold in 1920. The current owners expanded the archives and are managing the exhibit.

Plans Re-Make Of 'The Champ'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Franco Zeffirelli's first American movie will be a remake of the 1931 hit "The Champ."

The Italian filmmaker and MGM will launch a nationwide talent search for a youngster between 8 and 10 years old for the part Jackie Cooper had in the original.

Wilder Turns Back To Drama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billy Wilder has switched back to drama with "Fedora" after nine straight successful film comedies.

Wilder is now directing the picture in Paris, from a story in Thomas Tryon's "Crowned Heads." It tells of a Garbo-like screen goddess who retires at the height of her fame, played by Marthe Keller.

William Holden, the young screenwriter in Wilder's "Sunset Boulevard," is an American movie producer.

Ensemble Is Giving Concert October 17

ECU News Bureau

The 27-member East Carolina University Percussion Ensemble will perform a program of varied percussion music, ranging from chamber literature to rock compositions, Monday, Oct. 17, at 8:15 p.m. in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall here.

Featured in the program will be compositions by John O'Reilly, Stanley Leonard, Michael Cunningham, Ronald LoPresti, Thomas Gauger and Frederick Dutton.

Soprano soloist Jacqueline Carnes will perform with the Ensemble in George Crumb's "Night of the Four Moons." Also appearing in the Crumb selection will be banjoist Michael Thompson, cellist Andi Smith and flutist John McClellan.

The Ensemble will be directed by Harold Jones, Ensemble conductor, and Jack Stamp a graduate student in percussion performance from College Park, Md.

A select group of student percussionists at ECU, the Percussion Ensemble has performed at music gatherings in the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia, and at the All-East National Music Educators Convention, the College Band Directors National Convention and at University Arts Series programs throughout the eastern U. S.

The Ensemble is scheduled to perform at the opening concert of the International Percussion Conference in Knoxville, Tenn. Oct. 28.

Two Miniseries On The Indians

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two sagas of the American Indian will be made into television miniseries.

NBC will air a 16-hour series on the struggle of a Navajo family over a 100-year period, called "The Yazzies." Oscar-winning screenwriter Budd Schulberg will write the first eight hours, which will begin filming next March in Arizona.

Producer David Gerber has commissioned Dee Brown, author of "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee," to write a novel following three generations of an Indian family. Gerber will then develop it as a miniseries for ABC.

'78 Dodge Aspen. Times are changing. But Aspen doesn't have to.

That's because Aspen has been styled, sized, and powered right . . . right from the start. So the changes you see in Aspen for 1978 are noteworthy additions to Aspen's traditional modern looks, greater comfort, and welcome efficiency. Aspen's new good looks, for example, aren't hard to find. There are a new grille, new decorative trim, and new accents. New rear styling to give this latest Aspen ready identification. In total—a look of richness far beyond Aspen's price.

A choice of exterior and interior option packages is also available in Aspen Custom and Special Edition designations. You'll want to talk to your Dealer about the combinations that best suit your taste.

When it comes to greater comfort, be our guest. Try an Aspen. You'll learn that Aspen's interior is actually larger than that of some luxury cars costing far more. And, for 1978, Aspen's roominess is enhanced by an extra-spacious trunk . . . so that things don't get in the way of people. Nor is Aspen's incredible ride an illusion. It's based on advanced transverse torsion bars at front and multileaf springs at rear.

Another Aspen talent: efficiency. A 225 Slant Six (Super Six on wagons) coupled to a three-speed manual transmission is provided as standard equipment. But here's the big efficiency news: An exclusive new lockup clutch has been added to the torque converters of most optional TorqueFlite transmissions. Result: measurable improvement in Aspen's fuel economy in both city and highway operation.

'78 Magnum XE... the totally personal approach to driving excitement.

Somebody thought a long, hard time about this new Dodge. Thought about a very special car with a very American way of getting a person who likes to drive where he'd like to go. A car with a uniquely personal environment where relaxing comes as natural as the driving . . . where the comfort is exceeded by only one other thing: the quiet.

Magnum XE epitomizes the personal driving machine. Sports-minded looks. With an aerodynamically styled front end that houses new head lamp covers designed to retract when the beams come on.

Hefty wheels and hefty tires to help the handling. A substantial look with substantial power ready to serve in an instant. Power from 318 cubic inches of "Electronic Lean Burn" V8 engine. Power front disc brakes. Power steering. TorqueFlite automatic transmission. All these features are standard.

That's a quick look at Magnum XE . . . the car that makes everything happen the way you want it to happen.
Your own private island. For a longer look, see your Dodge Dealer.

'78 Diplomat. No longer is luxury measured in inches, feet, or pounds.

Dodge is pleased to introduce the 1978 Diplomat . . . more specifically, the Medallion two-door. With its companion car, the Medallion four-door, it represents the most luxurious choice you can make in this distinguished new series of manageable-sized cars. You will notice that Diplomat's look is dramatic—but not theatrical. There is a contemporary elegance in its shape—far removed from the luxury car of the past that relied so heavily on sheer size to establish its identity.

Diplomat, in any of its very seductive versions, is neither big, nor cumbersome, nor overdecorated. This holds true inside as well as outside. For evidence, we exhibit the superb 60/40 front reclining passenger seat and center armrest finished in genuine leather and vinyl (a Medallion or wagon option). The Medallion's standard counterpart is a rich-feeling cloth-and-velour combination, and you'll find it on both two-door and four-door models. There are seldom-seen touches everywhere on the two-door: assist handles on door pillars, sun visors that fit flush to the header panel when not in use, reading lamps located between the two visors, as well as an unusual number of courtesy lamps and lights.

In total, Diplomat provides an aura of personal enrichment and comfort so tempting you'll want to arrange your own test-drive session.

The sense of rightness you will experience in the two-door is just as apparent in the Medallion four-door. First point of reference: the standard 60/40 all-cloth split-bench front seat with fold-down center armrest, separate full track adjustment, and recliner to suit the comfort requirements of the passenger. That's efficiency. But that same seat comes in six rich colors, each color-keyed to a smart door panel design and cut-pile carpeting to meet almost every preference. That's elegance. The same can be said of the standard padded vinyl roof, available in eight striking colors coordinated to exterior and interior treatments.

Tasteful efficiency comes to you also in Diplomat's modular instrument panel. Finished with rich-looking woodtone applique, the panel is easy to read with all gauges deeply inset to minimize reflection and glare. It's easy to use, too. Operational controls are placed at the left, comfort controls at the right, for easy, comfortable use. Other thoughtful touches are standard in the Medallion four-door. A carpeted trunk protects luggage or travel wardrobes. A Space Saving spare tire with cover is provided to increase an already generous trunk capacity. There are protective bumper strips, two in front and one in rear, with rear bumper guards, and fiber-glass-belted radial-ply tires with smart full-wheel covers. Efficient design, of course. But never offered at the expense of good taste.

Consider, also, Diplomat's new fuel efficient lockup in the torque converter for the optional TorqueFlite automatic transmission with some engines. Because it eliminates slippage in the torque converter, this new feature promotes more efficient use of fuel.

Colt. A little Dodge goes a long way.

And it goes a long way in a lot of areas. For example, Colt's standard features include reclining front bucket seats. An adjustable steering column. A rear window defroster. Trip odometer. All-around tinted glass. Even a locking fuel door. And more.

There's an abundance of inner beauty, too. The standard engine is a 1.6 litre overhead cam four-cylinder with hemispherical combustion chambers. And a 2.6 litre is available on the all-new Colt wagon (coming in December) and wagon with Estate Package. Both engines feature the new MCA-Jet System that utilizes a jet valve in the cylinder chambers to induce an extra-lean mixture for more efficient combustion. The result is improved fuel economy—especially in city driving.

The 1.6 litre powerplant works in conjunction with a standard four-speed manual or available TorqueFlite automatic transmission. And wagons equipped with the 2.6 litre engine offer an optional five-speed manual.

The suspension on coupes and sedans includes coil springs at front and leaf springs at rear. On wagons, you'll find coil springs at all four wheels. And the brakes are power front disc/rear drum.

One more thing, Colt offers all this small-car sophistication in a variety of configurations ranging from coupes, to four-door sedans, to the beautiful new Colt wagon.

You can even order a more luxuriously appointed Colt Custom coupe with road wheels, a woodtone-trimmed floor console, and a sports steering wheel.

The long and short of it comes down to this: Dodge Colt is a lot of little car for the money.

Dodge. The Fastest Growing Truck Company in America.

Consider, if you will, the following statistics:

One. Dodge sells more van-type vehicles than any other truck company in America.

Two. Dodge was a pioneer in four-wheel drive. And today, Dodge makes more four-wheel-drive pickup models than any other American manufacturer.

Three. We humbly submit that Dodge lavishes more attention on its line of pickups than anyone. We offer everything from plain Jane workhorses to completely equipped snowplow versions to tricked-up rascals like the Warlock.

Four. Dodge is the country's leading supplier of RV chassis (you know, the frame and fundamentals of motorhomes and campers and such).

And five. Over the past ten years—when truckin' has really come into its own—Dodge Truck has a growth rate of 237%. Which is faster than that of any other truck company in America. A great deal faster.

What it all boils down to is this: We're into this whole truck thing as heavily as America's drivers are. Only we're not newcomers. In fact, we've been at this truck business for over sixty years now.

So if you're about to take the plunge . . . if you're about to get your first pickup or van or four-wheel drive . . . or you're ready to move on to your next one . . . well, there are a lot of bright shiny reasons for you to visit your Dodge Dealer.

The same goes for the hard-nosed businessman who tends to be impressed, not so much by a truck's image, but by its practicality, its maintenance schedule, and its general ability to wring a lot of miles out of his investment.

Dodge can give you what you want. Dodge can give you what you need. And like we said, that's made Dodge the fastest growing truck company in America for the last ten years.

Presenting an exciting international event: The new Challenger by Dodge.

Challenger's a new kind of car for a new kind of driving. Equally at home on winding mountain roads, crowded city streets, and wide-open stretches of superhighway. A GT that's sophisticated in design without being overcomplicated and difficult to maintain. Spirited enough for adventurous driving, yet refined enough to provide the security and comfort of a luxuriously appointed interior. In short, a true sports car in the Grand Touring tradition. With seating for four, plus handling and performance that will make just about any roadway seem like the shortest distance between two points.
