City's Polls Open 6:30 Tuesday Morning

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
While incumbent Mayor Percy Cox is unopposed in his reelection bid, the six current members of the City Council who are seeking to retain their seats face opposition in Tuesday's municipal balloting.

and the names of 18 Council aspirants, including the six incumbents.
The Council members running for reelection include John Howard, Joe Taft Jr., Mildred McGrath, Clarence Gray, Dr. Frank Fuller, and William Hadden.

The 12 other candidates for the six available Council seats include John H. Bizzell, Della P. Dayson, Lewis W.

Evans, Eugene D. (Rocky) Fallon, Judy W. Greene, Harry E. Hagerty, E. E. (Ed) Howell, William H. Ippock Jr., Matthew Lewis, Willis J. Stancill, Charles M. Vincent, and Thomas G. (Glenn) Willingham.

Voters will be asked to mark six choices on the ballot for the Council members, in addition to voting for one in the mayor's balloting.

The city's nine polling sites open promptly at 6:30 a.m. and close Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m., according to Margaret Register of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Miss Register reminded voters in the Greenville 4 Precinct that the polling site has been moved from the fire station on Chestnut Street to the Boys' Club of Pitt County facility on 205 W. Skinner Street.

In addition, Greenville 1 voters will cast their ballots at the VFW Post Home on Mumford Road rather than Meadowbrook Recreation Center, and Greenville 3 votes will be cast at West Greenville Recreation Center rather than at Third Street School as in past years.

Miss Register said that 10,910 local citizens are registered to vote this year, including residents who live in areas that have been annexed since the 1975 elections.

This year, as in the last municipal elections, the majority system will be in effect in determining the six successful candidates for the Council. Under the system, if more than six candidates receives votes totaling above the majority figure, the top six will win the Council seats. If, however, fewer than six receive a majority, those candidates having voting totals under the majority figure could be challenged to a runoff election on Nov. 8.

Miss Register explained that persons physically unable to cast their ballots may be assisted by any other voter or the registrar, judge or one of the assistants. If a disabled voter travels to the proximity of the voting place between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. but is physically unable to enter the voting site, a precinct official will execute the appropriate affidavit and provide the citizen with a ballot, it was noted.

She emphasized that the assistance will only be rendered between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Nobel Peace Prizes To Northern Irish Women, Amnesty International Group

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Nobel peace prizes were awarded today to Amnesty International and two Northern Irish women.

The 1977 prize was won by Amnesty International, the London-based organization that works in behalf of political prisoners.

Mrs. Betty Williams and Miss Mairead Corrigan were given the 1976 prize for their movement seeking to bring peace between feuding Roman Catholics and Protestants in their homeland. The prize had not been awarded last year.

There was widespread sentiment last year for giving the Nobel prize to Miss Corrigan, 24, and Mrs. Williams, 33. But the campaign for them was launched late, and their nominations were received after the deadline.

Instead, 22 Norwegian newspapers raised $325,000 and awarded it to them last year as a "People's Peace Prize." They used the money to set up a trust fund to provide care for orphans, create jobs and begin other community projects to ease the devastation of the Ulster fighting.

The two Roman Catholic women began their movement after Mrs. Williams saw three children killed by a runaway car whose guerrilla driver had been shot by British soldiers in Belfast. Miss Corrigan was the aunt of the slain children.

Braving threats on their lives by extremists, they organized peaceful marches by thousands of Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland, the Irish Republic and England.

Today's announcement said they were given the Nobel award for "their initiative to end the violence which has marked the unfortunate disintegration in Northern Ireland, and which has cost so many lives."

The prize to Amnesty International is worth $145,000 and the 1976 prize to Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan about $141,600.

The women's campaign, which began in August 1976, has not stopped or noticeably diminished the fighting between Protestant extremists and the Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army. The IRA launched the fighting eight years ago to end British and Protestant control over Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish Republic in the south.

But the Nobel committee said the initiative Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan took in Ulster released strong antipathy against violence.

"Alfred Nobel's wish was that the peace prize should be awarded to those who most actively worked for peace and fraternization," the committee said. "Mairead Corrigan and Betty Williams acted out of a deep conviction that individual people can do meaningful efforts for peace through conciliatory work."

Besides their efforts in their own country, the two women traveled to the United States last year and made an appeal to Americans to stop sending money to the two sides to buy guns and bombs.

In awarding the 1977 prize to Amnesty International, the committee said:

"Since the human rights declaration was adopted by the United Nations almost 30 years ago, positive forces have fought in many countries to evoke its ideals."

Cosmonauts Fail In Space Link-Up

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts failed to link up with an orbiting space laboratory today in a major disappointment for the Russians at the start of their third decade of space exploration.

The Soviet news agency Tass said flight commander Lt. Col. Vladimir Kovalenok and flight engineer Valery Ryumin were unable to dock with the Salyut-6 space station and were preparing to return to earth in the Soyuz-25 spacecraft after little more than one day in orbit.

Tass gave no indication what caused the docking failure. "Because of some deviations from the planned docking regime, the linkup operation was cancelled," Tass said.

The failure was the latest in a series that have dogged the Russians' second generation of manned spacecraft.

The Soyuz-23 mission a year ago was aborted after the spacecraft failed to complete a docking maneuver. In the interim, Soyuz-24 successfully completed a 19-day mission after linking up with the Salyut-5 space lab.

Soyuz-25 was launched Sunday from the same pad at the Baikonur space center from which Sputnik, the world's first man-made space satellite, opened the space age on Oct. 4, 1957.

"It's the beginning of the third decade of the space age and it's going to be a working decade," Kovalenok said as he climbed aboard the spacecraft. "There's a lot of work to be done."

He and Ryumin were assigned to dock on to the space laboratory sent into orbit on Sept. 29 and then move aboard her for a program of experiments.

Bedroom Fire

APARTMENT FIRE — Heavy damage resulted to a bedroom in an apartment at 109H Cherry Court about 11:50 p.m. Sunday. Fire officers, who reported an occupant of the dwelling suffered burns to her feet and ankles, said the blaze apparently started in the second floor bedroom, possibly from a cigarette dropped on a bed. Considerable smoke damage resulted in addition to the fire damage, fire officers reported. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

the grounds of their suburban London home in 1900. Clemens, at that time, was exhausted from a world lecture tour he was on at the time, and worried over his wife's falling health, said Memorial curator Wilson Faude. (AP Laserphoto)

Mid-East Authority To Open Housing Bids

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The Mid-East Regional Housing Authority of Washington announced recently that bids will be opened on Oct. 27 for the construction of public housing units.

Thirty units are proposed for Winterville, 20 for Fountain, and 50 for Windsor.

William I. Cochran Jr., Executive Director of the authority, said that he was pleased with the progress. The Authority has been working for a little over a year with the town boards and local officials, according to Cochran.

The Mid-East Regional Housing Authority covers six counties including Pitt, Bertie, Hyde, Washington, Beaufort, and Martin. The Authority presently manages 340 other units of public housing located in 10 communities in this area.

Construction should take approximately 12 months after contracts are signed with the successful bidder, said Cochran.

He added that several months before construction is completed, temporary offices will be set up and applications will be taken from eligible residents in the areas.

The Authority will manage and maintain the housing units once construction is completed.

Dr. John Allen of Fountain is the Pitt County representative on the Authority, and James Hoggard of Windsor is the the Bertie County representative.

HOW LONG?

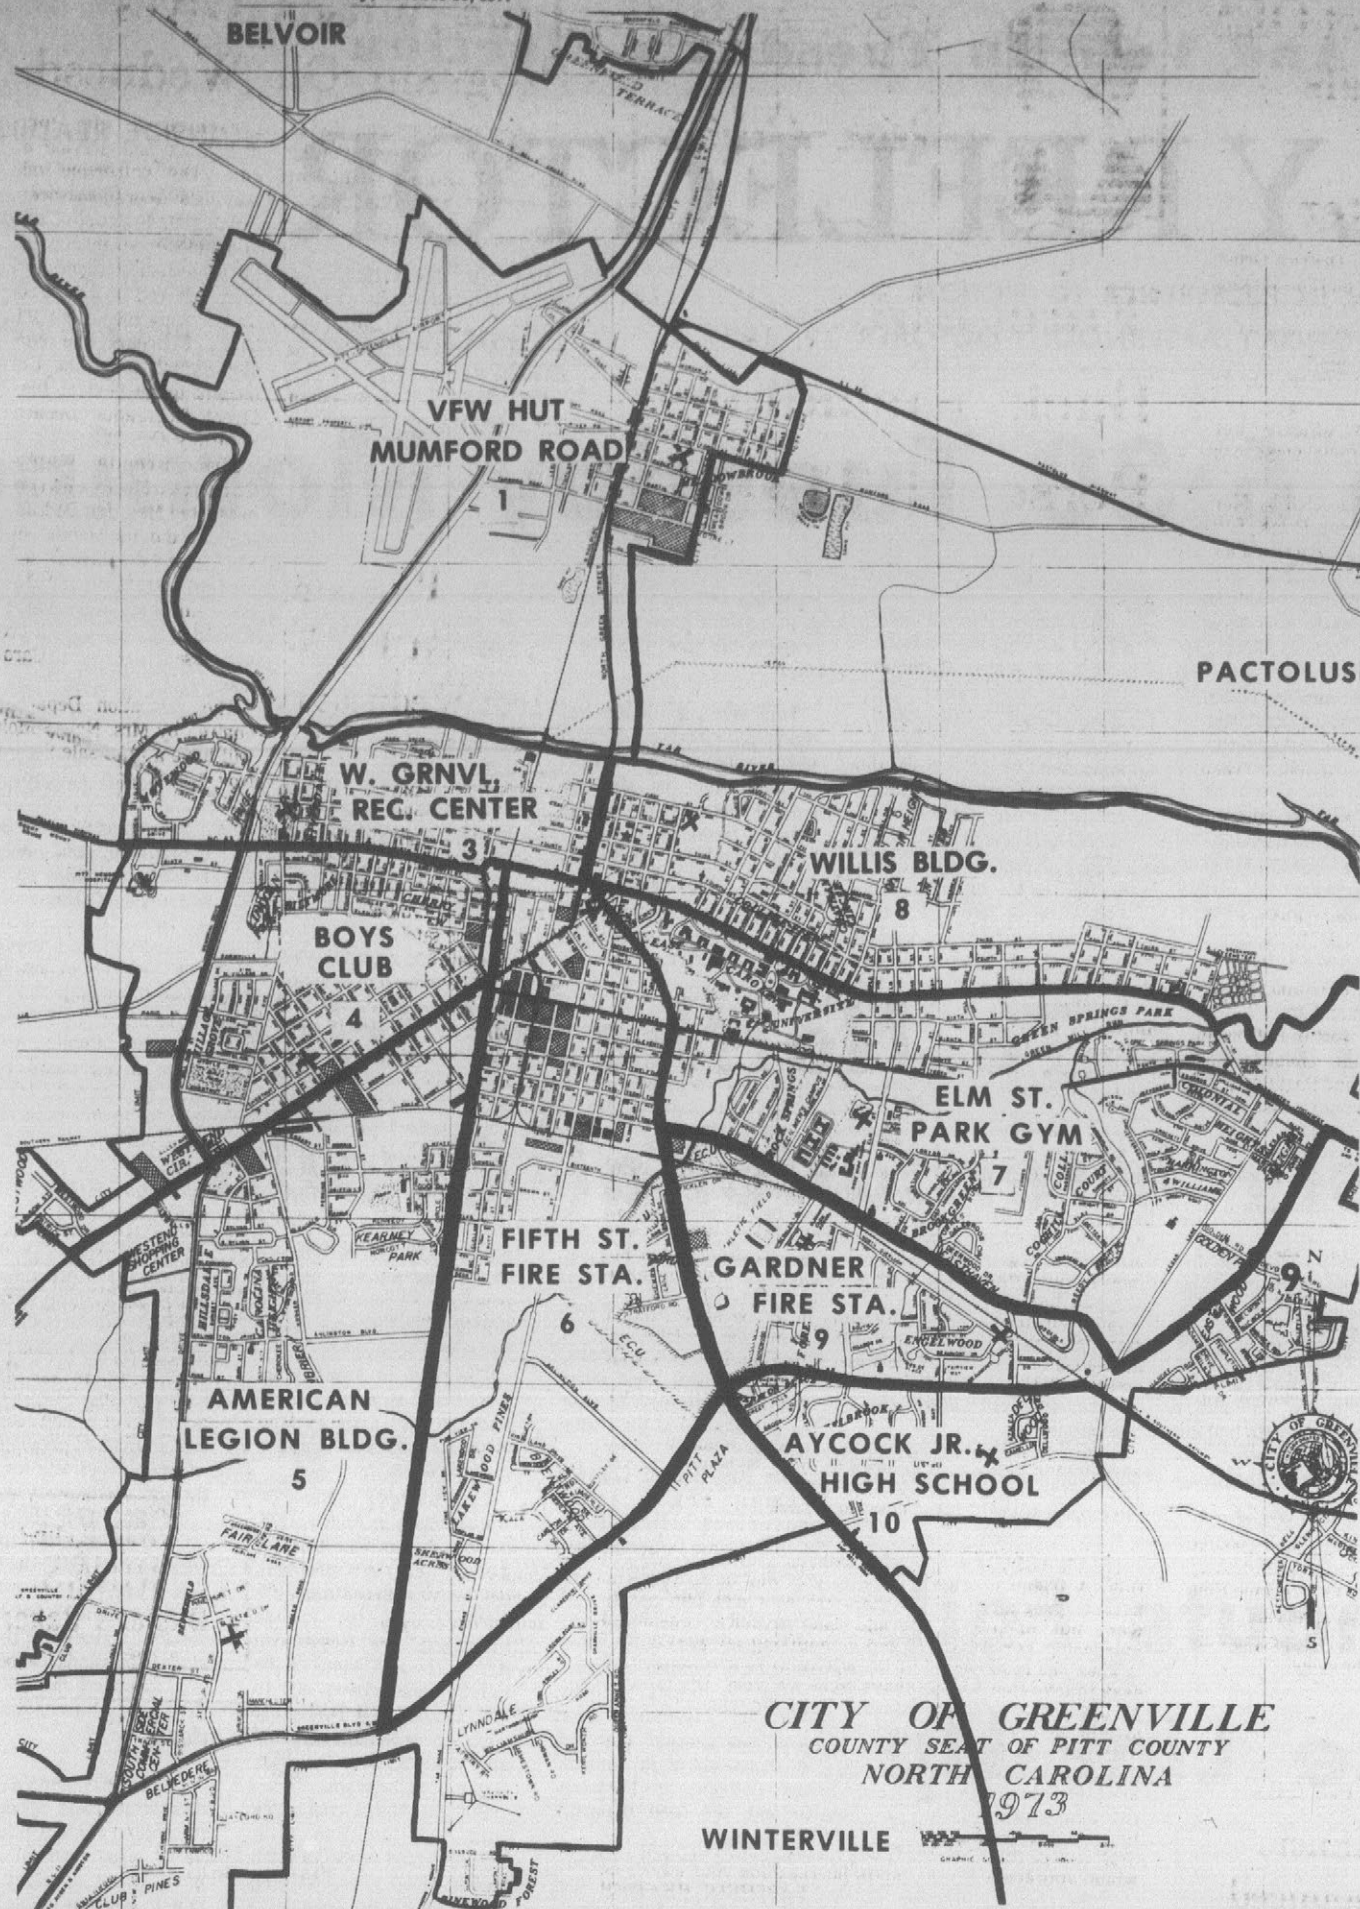

I would like to know if a property is condemned, do you have a certain time to bring it up to standard. How many times is an inspector allowed to come out and inspect the property? A. M.

Greenville Inspections Department Director Alton Warren said 60 days is the usual time given for an owner to either repair or demolish a structure once it is found to be in violation of city and state building codes. Usually a building inspector sees the building in question during the visit in which he or she decides whether it is in violation of codes and then when he or she goes back at the end of the 60-day period. Special circumstances are taken into consideration, however, Warren said, and times can vary somewhat.

Five Failed Gain Safety In Collapse

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — One minute seven men stood talking outside the building they were preparing to demolish the next day. The next minute five were crushed under the weight of the building's brick and steel.

Joe Durham, one of the two men who were able to run clear of the 63-year-old Andrews Building before it caved in Saturday, recounted the moments just before tragedy struck.

"We were all standing outside at the back of the building ... discussing barricading the building with plywood to get it ready for demolition," Durham said.

"As we talked, all of a sudden a brick fell off the top of the building. Jack looked up and yelled, 'Lord God, it's coming down on top of us.'"

"I just started running and I could feel the bricks beating me in the back as I ran," Durham said.

Durham referred to Jack Deutch, 48, supervisor of the project for Big Chief Construction Co. of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Deutch and four others were unable to escape the crumbling mass.

Deutch's wife, Jo Ann, and the wife of another victim, Sheila Collins, were waiting nearby in cars to take their husbands home.

"He was just running his heart out to get away from that building," Mrs. Collins said of her 23-year-old husband, Dennis. "He was so young."

Mrs. Collins said her husband, who had worked for Big Chief Construction Co. of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., for five years, did not consider the Spartanburg project much of a challenge.

"He joked about people making so much to-do about it," Mrs. Collins said. "He was looking forward to the next project." Mrs. Deutch said her husband had done construction work for 15 years without injury or even a close call. "He was a brave man but always had respect for the buildings," she said.

Deutch, the 48-year-old supervisor for Big Chief, was anxious to finish the Spartanburg job, his wife said, because he "didn't feel good about it."

"I asked him why and he said it was just a hunch or a feeling," Mrs. Deutch said. Besides Deutch and Collins, the victims were J.F. "Rusty" Russell, 48, of Houston, Texas, a demolitions expert with Tompkins and Co. of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Fred Parris, 61, of Holly Springs, S.C., of Joe Durham Construction and James Gillespie, 53, contracts officer for the city of Spartanburg.

Durham, owner of Joe Durham Construction Co. of Spartanburg, and Allen Carlisle, a demolition expert with Tompkins and Co. of Oklahoma City, Okla., fled to safety.

City officials said Sunday they still are not sure why the building collapsed 20 hours before its scheduled demolition. It was to have been exploded Sunday morning as part of a project to clear buildings downtown for a $30 million office complex.

Ironically, the building collapsed exactly as demolition experts had planned — like a house of cards falling in upon itself.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen admitted that both Deutch and Russell had expressed uneasiness about the Andrews Building.

"They said they had never run into anything like it before," he said. "They said the beams were made with a combination of angular irons instead of being solid. Mr. Russell said he was going to have to use twice the normal amount of explosives."

Carstarphen said, however, neither man said the project was unsafe.

Last week, many of the steel beams in the building had been spliced at strategic places to weaken the building and to insure a controlled leveling of the structure.

City Public Works Director Richard Campbell said he had roped off the area early last week, but not because anyone had warned of it being a safety hazard.

"I did it on my own initiative after finding out they were cutting beams. I didn't want to take any chances of anyone being hurt," he said.

King Tut Still Draws Crowds

By DAVID N. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The gold that made Tut famous is glittering in New Orleans and the crowds are rolling in, usually without waiting in the block-long lines which marked the King's appearance elsewhere.

On most days during the first three weeks of Tut's stay at the New Orleans Museum of Art, lines were short or non-existent with bleachers taking care of almost all of those waiting.

But that doesn't mean only a few people have been to see the Egyptian treasures here. Attention dance figures from the first three weeks ate 137,791, an average of 6,561 a day since the Sept. 17 opening.

That compares with 140,150 who saw Tut in the opening three weeks of its first stop at the National Gallery in Washington last November and early December.

In Chicago, where Tut went next, 190,583 people came through the first three weeks at Field Museum during late April and early May of this year.

"They come in and say 'thank you,' and they leave and say 'thank you' again," says Barbara Neiswender, the New Orleans museum administrator. "Everyone is so polite, we have had no problems at all. Some people have been waiting for a riot or a disaster, but that hasn't happened."

Lines in both Washington and Chicago began forming before the sun and lasted all day long. But in New Orleans, ticket sales are paced throughout the day with covered bleachers available if there is a wait after a ticket is bought.

The bleachers, which hold 1,200, have usually eliminated lines once the box office opens at 10 a.m.

"There is no reason to rush out here to be the first in line," Mrs. Neiswender said. "We have had some long lines on the weekends but most days that hasn't happened. It's been beyond our best expectations."

Poor Choice If On Dried Vines

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — If the last of this summer's tomato crop is on dried-out vines, the fruit is a poor choice for home canning. Extension food and nutrition specialist Teresa Shaffer says they are potentially dangerous for canning because over-ripe tomatoes or those picked from dead vines can be low enough in acid to permit bacteria growth when they are canned by the usual boiling water bath method of processing. Ms. Shaffer warns home canners to use only top quality tomatoes for home canning and processing. They should be firm and ripe, of good quality and high acid content.

lines once the box office opens at 10 a.m.

"There is no reason to rush out here to be the first in line," Mrs. Neiswender said. "We have had some long lines on the weekends but most days that hasn't happened. It's been beyond our best expectations."

Almost 836,000 people saw the jewels of the Boy King in Washington during the entire four-month stay there while 1.35 million saw them in Chicago. At the present pace, more than 800,000 people will see the exhibit here before it moves on to Los Angeles on Jan. 15.

Rode See-Saw For Charity

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Dismounting is its own reward after a marathon see-saw ride for charity.

"Sometimes you'd hobble back into the house like you just got off a horse or something," said Brian Walters, an organizer of a week-long teeter-in by University of Iowa fraternity and sorority members who raised $6,000 for the March of Dimes.

For 168 hours, about 90 students took turns, a half hour to an hour at a time, rain or shine, night and day.

At some points, fraternity members employed weights from barbells to balance unevenly-matched couples.

Author Shirley Ann Grau Surveys' Books, Career

By JOSEPH A. REAVES
METAIRIE, La. (UPI) — When Shirley Ann Grau got over with graduate school at Tulane University, she decided to read every book in the library. She never made it. Instead, she started a writing career that led to the Pulitzer Prize.

"I'd had a steady diet of finishing schools from high school on up and by the time I went to (Tulane's) Newcomb (College) and ran into one more finishing school I said, 'This isn't for me.'" Miss Grau said with a smile.

"My plan was to read my way around the library out of sheer boredom. I never made it. I hid in the library stacks and finished a collection of short stories and sent it off."

That collection of short stories was published in 1955. Nine years later she wrote her fourth book, "Keepers of the House," and won the Pulitzer for her efforts.

Surprisingly, Miss Grau still feels a little uncomfortable about the Pulitzer certificate which hangs in a simple frame next to a stack of books in her second-floor study.

"The Pulitzer is very strange because you know you've won it over people," she said. "Of course you want to win. It's just so bred in everybody. But it's a little unpleasant to realize you have to win over somebody."

"It's a great honor. It's second only, I guess, to the Nobel, and it's the only (literary) prize in this country that's worth anything. But it dilutes it a little bit to have to win it over somebody."

Today, Miss Grau uses a bulky typewriter she bought 14 years ago with her Pulitzer money to crank out a novel every three years.

"When you work completely by yourself, you have to set arbitrary limits," she said. "If you don't, nobody else will and you'll never do anything. So I set a book every three years."

In the 22 years since she started writing seriously, Miss Grau has kept her three-year average. She wrote "The Black Prince and Other Stories" in 1955, followed by her first novel, "Hard Blue Sky," in 1958 and "The House on Coliseum Street" in 1961.

"Keepers of the House" was next and then it was seven years until Miss Grau came out with "The Condor Passes."

"My fourth child blew it," said the 48-year-old brunette. "Kathryn is that missing book."

But Miss Grau caught up. She wrote "The Wind Shifting West" in 1973, just 18 months after "The Condor Passes." Her latest book is "Evidence of Love," published early this year.

"The arbitrary rule is all kind of silly, but you have to put marks on your work or the days just all blend together," she said. "You can just have so much fun working that you don't really put stuff out. So I set three years for a book."

Miss Grau also sets arbitrary hours to write each day. She spends from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. locked in her study while her husband works downstairs in his office.

"He's a writer of philosophy — things like metaphysics, technical philosophy and logic," Miss Grau said. "I really don't read many of his books because most of them are just too technical. My math doesn't keep up with them."

Miss Grau and her husband have been married since shortly after she wrote her first book and she uses her maiden name only in her writing.

"I did that because I already had the first book out," she said. "I use my husband's name for everything else, but I'd just as soon not give it out. Anyone who wanted it could find it, but most people won't bother."

Miss Grau and her husband have four children, two of whom live at home. The oldest daughter is attending Rice University this fall. The oldest son goes to a secondary school in Florida.

"During the day I can sit in my study and have my only little quiet isolated thoughts, but once the kids are home forget it," she said. "You know women's lib has never hit this house. Whatever crisis comes up, I have to take care of it."

But there are fewer crises these days. The youngest child is nine and things are often quiet around the house.

"I'm still fond, though, of going up to my study and slamming the door," said Miss Grau. "I don't like uproar. I like everything in order. I'm nine-tenths scholar anyway so I can always sit there and have a splendid time working completely by myself."

"I guess that's why I give so few interviews. You know from the outside, writing looks very dull. It's all so gray. All the fun and excitement goes on between my ears."

APPLE COFFEECAKE—It's made speedily with refrigerated buttermilk or country-style biscuits.

Coffecake Made With Refrigerated Biscuits

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: I find it easy to entertain at Sunday brunch — fruit, eggs and bacon and coffee cake. I've been buying the coffeecakes but have begun to find them cloyingly sweet. Is there a recipe I can put together fast? — SPEED ARTIST.

DEAR SPEED ARTIST: Our tasters thought this Apple Coffecake had just the right amount of sweetness — plus the delightful flavor of melted butter, pecans, cinnamon and fresh apples. And it's really speedy to make — especially since the refrigerated biscuits called for come in a new package that practically opens itself! How about that for technological ingenuity? — C.B.

APPLE COFFEECAKE
Two cans refrigerated buttermilk or country-style biscuits (10 biscuits in each can)
¼ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1-3rd cup finely chopped pecans

1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tart small or medium-size apples, pared and each cut into 20 slices
Butter the bottom and sides of a 9-inch round cake pan. Separate each can of biscuit dough into 10 biscuits. In a small skillet melt the butter; remove from heat and cool. In a small bowl mix the sugar, nuts and cinnamon. Dip the biscuits, one at a time, in the butter, then in the sugar mixture, and as you do so overlap 15 of them around the outer edge of the prepared pan; overlap the remaining 5 biscuits in the center. Tuck 2 apple slices between each biscuit so that they do not extend over the dough. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden brown — 25 to 30 minutes. Invert on a round serving plate and remove pan. Serve warm with sweet butter.

Quilt Exhibit Set For Sunday

TARBORO — The Edgecombe Historical Society will sponsor a quilt exhibit at the Pender Museum here Sunday, Oct. 16, from 2:30-5 p.m.

Old and new quilts and some in the various stages of being made will be included in the show.

The public is welcome and there is no admission charge.

In case of rain, the exhibit will be held at the Sunset Park Recreation Center, Highway 64 By-pass.

District OES Officials Visit Chapter

Jean Creech, District Deputy Grand Matron, and Joe Jackson, District Deputy Grand Patron of the Seventh District, visited the Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of Eastern Star, Tuesday night.

The district officers were making their official visits to the chapter. Guests were greeted by Mary B. Taylor, Shirley Price, Effie and Lonnie Hathaway. Presiding at the register were Pattie Mizelle and Lillian Hendrix. Sadie Wrae Carrington presented flowers to the district officers.

The chapter room, decorated by Mary Freeland and Mrs. Carrington, featured the Worthy Matron's colors of yellow, white and green flowers.

Mayo J. Rogers, Worthy Matron, and Charles Ledbetter, Worthy Patron, presided and gave the welcome.

Distinguished guests included: Elizabeth Moore, Grand Organist, Mrs. Creech, Jackson, and a number of Grand Chapter Committee members, Worthy Matrons and Worthy Patrons of the subordinate chapters and Past Matrons and Past Patrons.

Sarah Caprell, Associate Matron, and Arbie Taylor, Associate Patron, presented the deputies with honorary memberships and personal gifts from the chapter.

Following the meeting, a reception was held in the Whichard-Sugg dining room honoring the guests.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over white and centered with arrangements of yellow mums, baby's breath and greenery flanked by yellow burning tapers in silver candlesticks.

Blanche Jackson served cake and Sheri Strickland poured punch. Virginia Spencer, Shirley Price, Rebecca Futrell and Ruth Harris assisted in serving.

Approximately 86 people were present for the event.

'Force' Money Back Including Personal Tip

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I disagree on something we hope you can settle for us. I am a beautician and own my own shop. My mother insists on paying me when I do her hair—in fact, she even forces a tip on me.

I feel that she shouldn't pay me unless she is taking an appointment I could have filled. We would like your opinion.

PROFESSIONAL

DEAR PRO: I would not accept money from my mother for a personal service. "Force" it back on her—tip included.

DEAR ABBY: We recently had my mother-in-law over for dinner. Afterwards she decided to show me how to give Virgil (my husband) a back rub because he'd been having some back problems.

I really wasn't in favor of it, but since Virgil didn't object, I didn't. She ordered him to undress and lie face down on the bed with only a sheet over him. Then she massaged his neck and shoulders, and worked her way down his back. When she got to his lower back she removed the sheet and started kneading his bare backside! That's when I left.

She yelled, "You can stay. Nothing is showing," but I didn't return until I knew the massage was over. When she asked why I left, I told her I didn't think it was proper to watch while a 60-year-old woman gave her 40-year-old son a massage with no sheet on him. She insisted there was nothing wrong with it. Meanwhile Virgil didn't open his mouth, but after she left he said maybe he should have stopped her.

Now Virgil's mother is "terribly hurt" because I didn't stay for the demonstration. (She is not a professional masseuse or therapist—she's just a mother.) What's your opinion of this whole episode?

VIRGIL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Virgil's mother probably meant well but she shouldn't have gotten down to the bare basics. Having told both her and your husband what you thought of the "demonstration," you should now forget it.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have been wanting to tell you this. A friend of mine has a 14-year-old daughter who became pregnant. The mother was so upset she nearly went out of her mind, and she actually considered murdering her daughter and committing suicide!

Then she read the following advice in your column: "It's easy to love those who always do as we wish...the difficult part is to love those who do not. The child who is the least lovable needs your love the most."

Her mind cleared and she came to her senses. The daughter had the child, went back to school and received her high school diploma. The mother and daughter cared for the child, and eventually the daughter met and married a fine young man, and she kept her child.

Of course this was nearly 20 years ago, but I thought you would appreciate knowing how far-reaching your advice is.

FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER. Thank you. Your letter made my day.

Julia Wilson Gives Program On Wednesday

A program on interior design was given at the meeting of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville held Wednesday night.

Mrs. Charlene Holloway, chairman of the Arts Department, introduced Julia B. Wilson, of A.B. Whitley, Inc., as speaker.

Mrs. Betty Wilkerson, editor and scrapbook chairman, was presented a gift for her dedication and service to the club. The Wilkersons will be moving to Georgia in November.

Ways and Means Chairman Lou McNamee announced that all advertising materials have been received for the marionette show "Pinochio," that will be held in February. She reminded club members of the October bazaar to be held at the Elm Street Recreation Department Saturday, Oct. 22.

Mrs. Brenda Whichard, Conservation chairman, presented Mrs. Jan Dodson with the "Yard of the Month" award. She also displayed several stuffed animals made by department members that are to be sold at the bazaar. All profits will be sent to the North Carolina Zoo.

The Education Department, chaired by Mrs. Nancy Moldin, will have a bake sale Saturday, Nov. 5, at K Mart. Proceeds will be used for the retarded citizens of Pitt County. Ann Arrington, Home Life chairman, collected magazines to take to the Greenville Nursing Home.

The International Affairs Department will be distributing UNICEF canisters to downtown businesses this month. They will also be selling UNICEF cards. Sue Likosar, Public Affairs chairman, urged members to vote Oct. 11. The CPR training program for members has been set for November. Tommy Whichard will be the instructor.

President Mrs. Shelley Basnight announced that the District 15 fall meeting will be held Oct. 20 in Plymouth. The mid-winter board meeting will be held in Fayetteville Nov. 14-15.

Hostesses for the evening were Jane Moore, Ann Pridden and Jo Schlick. The chef salad dinner was prepared by members of the Ways and Means Committee.

Safety Program Given At PCIW Meet Wednesday

A program on safety highlighted the meeting of the Pitt County Insurance Women which was held Wednesday evening at the Ramada Inn.

Guest speaker was Kenneth (Jim) Jenkins of Dupont. He stressed "everything can and must be done safely."

A bake sale and a mark-a-thon on Oct. 22 have been planned by the members. The events will take place at Pitt Plaza. The bake sale will start at 10 a.m. and the mark-a-thon will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The organization will have a display on the Downtown Mall during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9-15.

During the evening, reports were given by the committees.

President Georgie Hall welcomed guests, including husbands of members.

The Elected Decide A Future

Tomorrow is election day for citizens of Greenville and Farmville. The two municipalities will be electing governing bodies which will serve for varying times, and there are races to be decided in each community. Polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and remain open until 7:30 p.m. In Farmville all votes will be cast at one precinct. In Greenville there will be nine precincts open for the day.

There are 18 candidates for the six seats on the Greenville City Council, and all of the incumbents are in the race. Mayor Percy Cox is unopposed for reelection. All are elected for two year terms. In Farmville there are four candidates for mayor and seven candidates for the two seats open on the board of commissioners. The mayor's term is two years, while commissioners will be elected for four year terms. No doubt some eligible voters will decide that it is not worth the trouble to go and vote. Some will say that with so many candidates it is too confusing to make a choice. It should be remembered that those who are elected will be deciding the communities' futures and they will be spending millions of dollars on behalf of the taxpayers. Here in Greenville the League of Women Voters and the Area Chamber of Commerce have made extraordinary efforts to inform the public as to how each candidate stands on various issues. All of us owe it to ourselves and our community to become familiar with the issues and to make a choice from the field of candidates on election day.

No Quarrel With Reduced Sentences

Judge John J. Garcia has dealt with the Watergate proceedings very properly over the years. And we have no quarrel with his decision to reduce the prison sentences of John Ehrlichman, Bob Haldeman and John Mitchell. The reductions mean that these men will be eligible for parole sooner. Justice has been served. Hopefully the nation can soon put this dark era behind us.

dination between public schools and teacher training institutions, regionalization of program offerings, and long range planning. Above all, that work is to be done by existing resources of the university, not by an outside consultant. Friday thinks this is a key element: This (teacher) review is the most important work done since the Board of Governors came into existence. It demonstrates that we can—the university faculty and administration people—examine educational issues, reach hard decisions, and carry them out.

WASHINGTON TODAY

Carter Invited Problems

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In the greatest of many ironies that have thwarted U.S. peace efforts in the Mideast for a decade, President Carter's sudden partnership with Moscow in laying down broad peace terms has roughly doubled Israel's ability to block the kind of settlement Mr. Carter wants. In short, the President has handed Israel an ally of great potential importance: those anti-Soviet hardliners who have taken an even-handed approach to the Mideast until now. They fear Russian encroachment on the region's oil riches more than they fear that continuing Israeli intransigence will bring a war which could wreck the economies of the industrial democracies. This country's pro-Israel lobby by itself has undermined peace efforts of recent American Presidents; Mr. Carter now must also face the full potency of the anti-Soviet bloc on Capitol Hill. Typical of conservative Republicans whose support for the Carter Mideast peace plan has been undercut is Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, who called the joint U.S.-Soviet declaration "an act of insanity."

Little if any political planning seems to have gone into Mr. Carter's latest attempt to reconvene the 1973 Geneva conference. There was no advance consultation with congressional leaders. They would have warned against bringing Moscow back to the Mideast action after Henry Kissinger had skillfully kept them out. Nor did White House aides understand how U.S.-Soviet partnership played into the hands of Israel's opposition to the Carter plan. The White House reaction at this writing is wonderment at the outcry. U.S. policymakers try to justify the deal with Russia on grounds that the Soviet Union, as co-chairman of the Geneva conference, is a full partner in its reconvening. In fact, nothing could keep Moscow away from Geneva. Kicked out by Egypt and on shaky terms with Syria, the Russians have had no other road back. Now, the President has sacrificed getting full political credit from the Arabs for his acceptance of Palestinian "legitimate rights." After long demanding but failing to get precisely that formulation from the U.S., the Arabs are now crediting Moscow, not Washington. In New York early this week, the foreign ministers of Jordan and Lebanon privately called the U.S.-Soviet joint statement a "tremendously important event." To them, it signifies full agreement by the two superpowers on overall settlement. It does no such thing. Leading questions between Moscow and Washington are in dispute. The Soviets have been given extraordinary bargaining advantages over

A TOUGH PLACE TO DO BUSINESS!

By ART BUCHWALD

Business Lunch Needed

WASHINGTON — The "business lunch," as we Americans have known it for so many years, may be a thing of the past. President Carter, who doesn't drink, has always railed against people being able to deduct a "three-martini lunch" on their taxes. Congressmen and senators, many of whom have been recipients of the "three-martini lunch," have offered a compromise proposal in the new tax bill, which is that only 50 percent of a business meal can be considered deductible. The other 50 percent will have to come out of the person's own pocket. The fight against the expense account business lunch has always been a popular issue with the masses. But let me, for the moment, be the devil's advocate and point out that the business lunch is essential to a healthy American economy. Most big deals are made at a business lunch involving not only money but orders for goods, which means jobs for millions of people. Let us say Mr. Jay wants to sell Ms. Zee 3,000 dresses for her department store. Mr. Jay takes Ms. Zee to a beautiful French restaurant in New York and buys her a delicious meal with the finest wines. Ms. Zee feels very, very good and orders Mr. Jay's whole new line. Mr. Jay goes back to his office and tells the factories to start humming. He deducts the paltry $80 lunch, but the government gets hundreds of thousands of dollars in return in the form of taxes from Mr. Jay's employees. Under the new tax plan, Mr. Jay may take Ms. Zee to an inferior Chinese restaurant, order half a pot of tea and insist on splitting his sweet and sour pork with her. Ms. Zee thinks to herself, "If this guy is so cheap at lunch, his clothes must be cheap, too. I'm not going to buy any of them." Mr. Jay calls the factory and tells them to shut down. For the lousy $40 that Mr. Jay couldn't deduct for a decent lunch, 500 good people are put out of work. All right, if you don't like that example, what about this one? Parsons is trying to sell the Pentagon a new anti-hand grenade. His firm has strict orders that he cannot spend more than $20 for lunch. He takes Gen. Cain, the Pentagon procurement officer, to a five-star Italian restaurant. They order three martinis each. Parsons has blown the entire $20. Gen. Cain says, "Let's order." Parsons says, "I didn't invite you for lunch. I invited you for drinks." Gen. Cain says, "Well, if that's the way you feel about it, the Army doesn't want any of your anti-hand grenades." "Then," Parsons says angrily, "you can pay for your own dry martinis." For a lousy fifty mignon, the tax reformers could drive a breach between the military-industrial complex that could never be repaired. Maybe you don't like that example, either. Let me try one more. Burt Arrow, the head of one of the largest banks in Atlanta, is trying to get the account of one of the biggest paper mills in the state. He calls the chairman of the board, Billy Joe Sherman, and invites him to lunch. "Where shall we eat?" Billy Joe says. "How about at the University of Georgia football game at halftime? I'll fly up in the bank's private plane," Burt says. The two men meet at the hot dog stand during the halftime show. They order

The seizure of eight tons of marijuana in neighboring Lenoir County serves to remind us that eastern North Carolina remains one of the major drug centers of the nation. It was in Pamlico County, less than 100 miles to the east, that a sea-going trawler was seized last year with its holds full of marijuana. And Goldsboro was the headquarters of the notorious heroin ring that spread from Southeast Asia to the metropolitan areas of the Northeast. Some of the "big boys" have been arrested in the past. And, happily some of them remain behind bars and will—or should—for many years to come. But with eight tons of marijuana on one farm, we know we again are not dealing with the penny ante street corner pusher peddling an ounce to a buddy. We have here the operation of a major supplier of "grass." Why has our state, more specifically our part of the state, become so notorious in the smuggling of dope and other commodities. Frequently we hear references to Mafia-type influences and Mafia money. The suggestion is that the operations here are organized and manipulated by outside influences. Perhaps—and probably—so. But with the volume of illicit traffic going on here, there is every reason to suspect that we not only are the hub of activities but the home of the headquarters people. The federal, state and local authorities did a good job in finally putting away the big heroin operators. They should be equally diligent now in getting the top people in the marijuana trade. Changing public attitudes toward marijuana doesn't change the makeup of those who are making millions of dollars on illegal drugs and spreading crime and misery in every direction. It is time for an all-out effort.

Postal Volume Rising

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are using the mails more and more, a trend the Postal Service says will mean stamp prices won't rise as fast in coming years as previously predicted.

A new five-year forecast by the agency predicts that the volume of mail, estimated at nearly 92 billion pieces this fiscal year, will hit almost 100 billion by fiscal 1981.

With many of the agency's costs virtually the same regardless of volume, more mail means more money in the service's treasury and thus less need to raise rates.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar has said it costs "about the same to have a letter carrier walking down your block whether he brings you 10 pieces of mail or one."

The five-year forecast predicts rising mail volume will produce a surplus of $282 million next fiscal year. That would be the first surplus since the Postal Service was born six years ago.

After 1979, rising costs are expected to bring new deficits, an estimated $391 million in fiscal 1980 and $1.4 billion the year after.

While an agency spokesman noted that stamp charges would still have to go up by 1980 or 1981 to avoid the deficits, he said the increase would be less than once thought.

The forecast of growing use assumes new postal rates requested by the Postal Service will begin next June and will stay in effect for five years.

Under the plan, first-class letters for businesses would go to 16 cents while individuals would continue to pay 13 cents.

Last April, the Commission on Postal Service had predicted first-class rates rising to 22 or 23 cents by 1981.

But Francis Biglin, the Postal Service's chief financial officer, noted in his report to the agency's governing board that "we will obviously need a first-class stamp price quite a bit less than the 22 or 23 cents."

Biglin, senior assistant postmaster general, did not predict the rate that would be needed if the forecast of higher volume proves correct. He was unavailable for comment on the report.

Biglin noted in his report that the new forecast squarely contradicts former predictions of declining mail volume and called the rise from fiscal 1976 to 1977 of two billion pieces "a very healthy condition for the Postal Service, its employees and its customers."

Biglin's report said the "flattening of volume (in the mid-1970s) resulted from the recession."

Looking To Economic Downturn

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YGK (AP) — Symbolic of the dreary economic mood is the very first multiple choice question in the 1977 member survey of the National Association of Business economists, to wit: "1. The next economic downturn will begin in: 1977... 1978... 1979... 1980... after 1980."

The most popular answer: 1979. Close to 43 per cent of members who responded chose that year. Nearly 29 per cent picked 1978. Very few chose either 1977 or 1980, and about 16 per cent thought the worst would fall after 1980.

The second question offers no more uplift. "Which of the following will be primarily responsible for the end of the current expansion?" Insufficient capital spending, declared the business economists.

And what is to blame for the lag in capital spending during current expansion? Insufficient confidence in future consumer demand, lack of confidence in future profitability, uncertainties created by regulation, they replied.

Next question: "The main problem with the Carter energy program is..."

Forty per cent of the respondents decided that "domestic oil and natural gas prices should be raised more rapidly toward world oil price equivalent."

"What do you think will be our most important economic problem in 1978?" the economists were asked. Nearly half chose inflation. Only 13 per cent thought unemployment would be No. 1. Almost 21 per cent said "excessive government controls."

It is quite remarkable that that out of this material the association holding its 19th annual meeting today and Tuesday in Philadelphia, extracted this bright announcement:

"The economic expansion that began in early 1975 will continue for another 15 months — that is the optimistic message emerging in the consensus of opinion of 425 respondents to a survey of the 2,700-member association."

While this attempt to view the bright side of things might be considered admirable, it is also a lonely exception to the mood. The survey questions and answers show too clearly that business today is brooding.

It is brooding about the uncertain future, about government energy and economic policies, and overregulation, about the lack of incentives for investment, about taxes. Inherent in the questions and answers is a frustration over the way we seek answers to our problems. The way to economic success, it is clear, is not through government spending but through business investment.

Similarly, the route to a vital economy is cleared by lessening government regulation rather than by shacking industry; and the energy shortage may best be dealt with by letting free prices play their role.

This is the battle that is now raging in our midst, so pervasive, so much an everyday occurrence, that we sometimes fail to appreciate it.

The economists didn't say it — they didn't even pose the question — but when they persist in talking about problems you tend to absorb the notion that the No. 1 problem as they see it might be Washington.

crucial negotiating points if — and it is a very big if — Geneva is actually reconvened.

But the worst of the new atmosphere Jimmy Carter has built in the Mideast is the great advantage he has unwittingly given Israel — and its American backers — to humble Jimmy Carter.

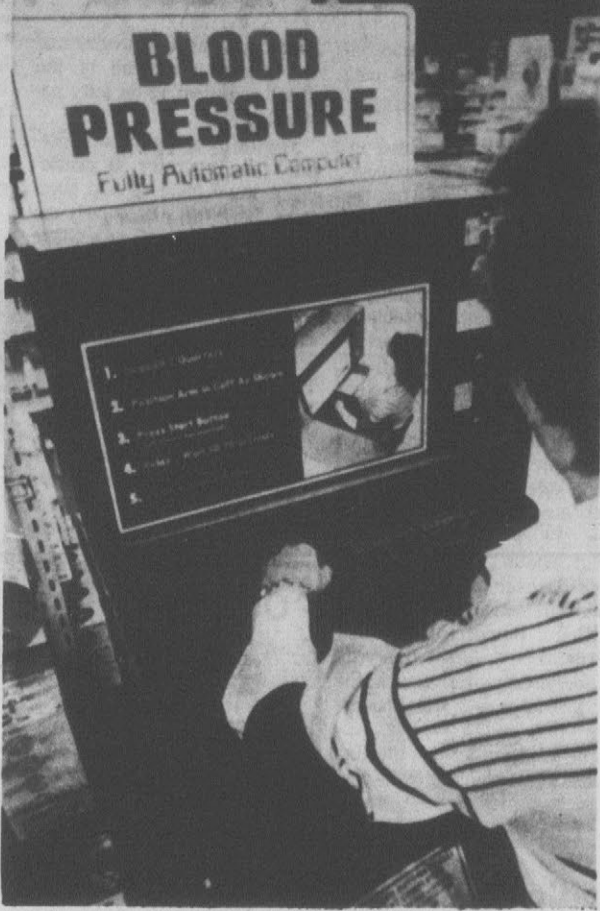

Fully one week before the joint U.S.-Soviet statement was made public Mr. Carter and Israel were on a collision course with no exit in sight. The issue was Palestinian participation in a pan-Arab delegation at a reconvened Geneva conference.

On that issue and even on the issue of "rights" for the Palestinian people, Mr. Carter had strong political support. When the battle with the American Jewish community began, the President would hold high cards. Now, following the joint U.S.-Soviet announcement, that battle has begun in earnest, but with an emotional linking of the Jewish and anti-Soviet lobbies.

Why did the President do it? High administration officials insist privately that the Russians are serious about bringing peace to the Mideast. In that belief, they consider Soviet acceptance of final peace treaties, instead of an end of belligerency, as a major Soviet concession.

But U.S. diplomacy had labored for four years following the Yom Kippur war to keep Moscow out. So, even if Moscow has made genuine concessions, the transition to a joint U.S.-Soviet policy is far too abrupt.

Oddly, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan seems to have understood the American political process better than Mr. Carter and his aides. Preferring to keep the Russians out of the Mideast above all, Dayan warned the President and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance of bitter reactions in the U.S. The handful of top officials in on the secret of the joint statement never saw the political issue in its true perspective. For that, Jimmy Carter may pay an exceedingly high price and with him, the Western world.

PRESSURE TESTER — Testing your blood pressure can be as easy as buying a soft drink. The computerized tester has appeared in some pharmacies, but there are doctors who doubt validity of the machine's results. (AP Laserphoto)

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Testing your blood pressure can be as easy as buying a soft drink from a coin-operated machine.

Two computerized machines, designed by a Florida physician-turned-engineer, are being distributed in Oregon and Washington although some doctors question their validity.

Slip two quarters in a slot, stick your arm into a cloth sleeve which tightens and a minute later your blood pressure reading appears on a screen in front of you.

The testers are "extremely accurate," says Mike Rovech, president of Vita-Stat Northwest, the distributor.

"The testers are being readily accepted by the public because they provide a service that's so darn valuable," Rovech said, adding that he has never known of any machine malfunctioning.

But a Vancouver cardiologist, Dr. James Woolery, said he would be "very skeptical" of such a testing method without the aid of a trained professional, calling it "almost a gimmick."

"Do it yourself medicine is not good," he said. "I think it's the wrong direction to go."

He said the only possible value the machine may have is in alerting someone to high blood pressure. On the other hand, he said, an inaccurate reading may be harmful by convincing a person his pressure is normal when it may not be.

Dr. Ronald Champaign, director of the Southwest Washington Health District, said "it's better to have someone there to explain what the pressure means."

A chart on the machine explains what the two numbers the machine gives are and helps determine whether the pressure is normal or too high but also cautions "as with any electronic equipment, a rare malfunction may cause error to occur in your reading."

The readout has two numbers. The first, the systolic, gives pressure in the blood vessel while the heart is pumping blood. The second, the diastolic, reflects the pressure while the heart is momentarily at rest, between beats.

Rovech cited statistics that claim 59 million American adults have blood pressure at the upper edge of the normal range or higher.

The machine works by picking up sounds from blood vessels in the arm with a small microphone in the cloth sleeve. A microprocessor computer than interprets the sounds and computes the pressure, he explained.

two hotdogs and two bottles of cola. Burt talks to Billy Joe about moving his company's account over to Burt's bank. Billy Joe says he'll think about it.

Burt pays for the food and then writes them off his income tax, together with the plane ride. The IRS claims Burt can only write off Billy Joe's hot dog and cola.

Burt hires Clark Clifford to defend him. The ensuing publicity drives Burt's bank stock down three points, and Billy Joe decides to keep his money where it is.

It's obvious from just these three examples that doing away with 50 percent of the tax-deductible lunch is counterproductive.

Having a meal on the expense account is what the American dream is all about. Everybody should be for it and say, "Even if I can't have a complete tax-deductible lunch, some day, God willing, my children can."

District Woodmen Gather Wednesday

WILSON — Between four and five hundred members of the Woodmen of the World are expected to assemble in the American Legion Building, located on Highway 301 south, Wilson, on Wednesday for the annual meeting of the Bright Belt District Association.

The guest speaker will be W. Lewis Spearman, National Trustee of the Woodmen of the World.

Spearman has been active in Woodmen activities since 1945. He was elected to the National Board of the Fraternity on Dec. 2, 1974, and was re-elected to a four-year term in July of this year at the National Convention held in San Diego, Calif.

Mrs. Thelma Whitford, president, will preside over the business session which begins at 5 p.m. Those appearing on the afternoon program are: Rev. William L. Butler of Oak City, William D. Frueler, Billy Dillard, and Harvey L. Bedsole, of Kinston, state manager of the W.O.W. for eastern North Carolina.

Serving as Master of Ceremonies for the banquet at 7 p.m. will be Dr. William Howard Carter of Goldsboro, president of the William Carter College, a

Final Race By Pigeon Clubs

The Golden Leaf and Cove City Pigeon Racing Clubs held their fifth and final race from Columbia, S.C. Sunday.

Ray Evans of Winterville took first place with a bird flying 1002.19 yards per minute.

Kincey Worthington and of Winterville placed second, and Virgil Thompson of Cove City placed third.

Tommy Fisher of Winterville carried the birds to Columbia where they were released.

According to Mrs. John Cannon, who was in charge of this year's publicity, the Golden Leaf Club had a very good season.

"Our birds have won 15 diplomas," said Cannon. The birds were awarded diplomas for each win.

The spring racing season begins in April, 1978.

Gives Toys He Won On Midway

By LINDEL HUTSON
Associated Press Writer
SHERWOOD, Ark. (AP) — Around this Little Rock suburb, Johnny Glaze is sometimes called the "Robin Hood of the Midway."

He spends each summer and fall winning a pile of teddy bears and Kewpie dolls at the state and county fairs. At Christmas, he gives them to the Arkansas Childrens Hospital and Salvation Army as gifts for children.

"A lot of people will go to fairs and win these things, then take them home and just throw them away, but the kids really appreciate the toys when you give them," said Glaze, 31, who has no children.

"They have a shelf at Childrens Hospital lined with these things. When they take kids out of surgery, they'll bring them by and let them pick one out."

Winning toys for children isn't the only reason Glaze goes to carnivals, however.

"I get a big charge out of just going," he said. "I've spent a lot of time trying to win."

He spends more than time. Glaze estimates he spent about $1,000 to win 300 toys in the past two or three years.

"If you go to a large store, I figure you're going to spend $15 to $20 for one of these larger toys," he said. "I can win them for $2, $3, $4. So, it's a whole lot cheaper, and I also get the fun of winning and the kids get the enjoyment of having them." He's made about 25 trips to carnivals so far this year and returned home a winner nearly every time.

"Right now, I've got a spare bedroom where I store the toys," he said. "You can just barely open the door and get in."

Glaze's secret to winning is to "find a game that you think you can win, and stay with it. A lot of people will play a game once or twice and, if they lose, they'll walk off."

Glaze doesn't reserve all his giving for Christmas. A few weeks ago, he spotted a little girl whose father had been unsuccessful in winning her a stuffed animal.

"They hadn't won a thing," Glaze said. "I just walked by and handed her a teddy bear. You should have seen the look on her face."

Household Survey To Begin Oct. 17

A sample of households in this area will take part in an annual survey on education to be taken the week of Oct. 17-22 by the Bureau of the Census.

regularly in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Joseph R. Norwood, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, said that interviewers will visit homes to obtain information about the number of school years completed by household members.

Results of the monthly employment survey provide data on conditions in the labor force, prime indicators of the economic health of the country.

There will also be questions about current school enrollment at all levels from nursery school through college. This information is used to measure current trends in education and to determine the need for additional or expanded educational facilities.

For example, in August the survey indicated that of the 97.7 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 90.8 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.1 percent, up from 6.9 percent in July but substantially below the recession peak of 8.9 percent reached in the second quarter of 1975.

The questions on education will be in addition to those asked

About 70,000 households across the country, scientifically selected to represent a cross section of American households, take part in this monthly survey. All information provided the Bureau is confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals in which no individual or households can be identified.

Interviewers who will visit households are Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Grimesland and Mrs. Marjorie J. Holland of New Bern.

SAVED BY A TEDDY BEAR — Three-year-old Christal Hearst stands with unidentified woman at the door to her grandparents' home in Tynan, County Armagh, in the south of the British province, Sunday. The child's mother was shot to death in her bed Sunday but the child was apparently saved from a bullet when the gunman fired into the teddy bear the youngster clutched to her body, police said. The militant Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the killing. (AP Laserphoto)

Republican Governors Study What They Have Done Wrong

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (AP) — When you have a losing record with scant precedent, it's time to look for what you've been doing wrong. That is what the country's Republican governors are doing at their annual meeting.

There are 36 gubernatorial seats up next year, and only nine of the incumbents are Republicans.

Ralph Griffith, executive director of the Republican Governors' Association, said as the conference opened that hard work might make the difference next year.

Brushing aside the Watergate scandals and other problems which have hurt the party's tickets in recent elections, Griffith said statehouse elections are essentially local races, run on local issues.

Any Republican even thinking about running for governor in 1978 has been invited to join in the discussions. About 30 have accepted.

"People who vote for a governor vote for him for reasons that are different, for issues that are different than for a congressman," Griffith said.

At the start of the 1970s, the GOP held a majority of 32 of the country's 50 governorships. Now they have 12.

As an example, he said Republicans have high hopes of ousting Democrat Brendan Byrne of New Jersey this year on the strictly local issue of his support for a new state income tax.

But they think the numbers are in their favor if they can only get their act together.

The program for this meeting reflects that thinking with panels on campaign strategies and voter appeals instead of the usual pontificating on lofty national issues.

include some governors who themselves have potential national political futures, such as James Thompson of Illinois, Pierre du Pont of Delaware and Robert Ray of Iowa.

The little brotherhood of Republican governors is considering some philosophical questions, however, particularly the direction their party as a whole should take in its rebuilding.

For Sale: One California Town Radiologists At Seminar

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (AP) — For sale: one Fat Woman, complete with five bungalows, two apartment, gas station, grocery store and cafe.

Several radiologic technologists and student technologists from Greenville attended the 1977 Fall Seminar of the N. C. Society of Radiologic Technologists in Wilmington.

The town of Gorda, which means Fat Woman in Spanish, is up for grabs. Larry Anderson of Los Angeles, owner of the nine-acre hamlet halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, wants $950,000. The town, population 20, was named for a nearby rock with vague feminine contours.

Garric Moore, R. T., program director of the Radiologic Technology program at Pitt Technical Institute, was chairman of the educational seminar. Sandra Harrison, R. T., Chief Technologist in the Pitt Memorial Hospital Department of Radiology, was program and finance chairman of the event which featured speakers from throughout North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Maryland. Lectures were presented on the diagnostic, nuclear and ultrasound areas of radiologic technology.

Derailment Injuries Are Not Serious

SPENCER, N.C. (AP) — Two persons injured in a train derailment Saturday in Spencer remained hospitalized today in nearby Salisbury, but a hospital spokesman said their injuries were not serious.

The Southern Railway Co. train, 11 cars and four diesel locomotives, derailed at about 50 miles per hour when they apparently hit a faulty switch. Some of the cars jackknifed, plowing up dirt and gravel and scraping a nearby freight train. "Actually, I had a premonition that this was going to happen," said Martha Henderson of Washington, D.C. "I should have taken a plane as usual."

Mrs. Henderson was still in satisfactory condition at the Rowan County Hospital today complaining of back pains and headaches. The other injured person still hospitalized was Terence T. DeFilippo of Fort Smith, Ark.

"I was in the washroom," he said. "There was no warning. We were going fast and all I heard was the hiss of air brakes. There was nothing I could do except hit the wall. I went off one wall and into another."

DeFilippo was suffering from leg and back pains and was reported in fair condition. A third person who had been hospitalized after the accident with cuts and bruises had been released Sunday.

The train, the Southern Crescent, was headed from Washington to New Orleans when it derailed about 3 a.m. Saturday near Spencer, about 50 miles north of Charlotte.

Four engines and five of the cars jumped the tracks, injuring 16 including the three who were hospitalized. The others were treated at the hospital and released.

Many passengers in cars toward the rear of the train felt only a mild jolt during the derailment, and some had to be awakened when the train was emptied after the crash.

Southern Railway officials said they were investigating the cause of the crash, but workers at the scene said it appeared a faulty switch had been responsible.

Elected To Who's Who

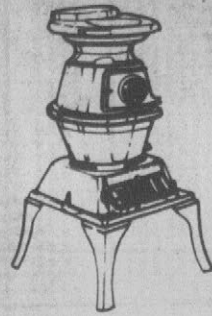

RALEIGH — Cindy Carole Allen, a Meredith College senior, has recently been elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Fourteen students from a senior class of 298 were named to the Who's Who list at Meredith. Students are nominated for the honor on the basis of scholarship ability, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship, service to Meredith, and potential for future achievement.

Nominations were made by faculty members from a list of eligible students. A student was considered eligible if she had completed 90 semester hours and had at least a 2.5 quality point average.

Miss Allen, an American civilization major, is president of the Student Government Association and a member of Kappa Nu Sigma Scholastic Honor Society, Silver Shield, the honorary leadership society on campus, and Phi Alpha Theta, international honor society for history students. She has also served as member of the Elections Board and as a student advisor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeness Allen of Greenville.

Quits Job In Protest Step

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A convenience store manager who believes marijuana is a serious health threat has given up his job rather than sell papers he believes are used by young people to roll marijuana cigarettes.

"The real principle is whether or not you can close your eyes to what is legal and what is illegal and if you want to make a fast dollar you'll do anything. To me, it isn't worth it," said Jerry Shroyer in a telephone interview.

Shroyer left his $800-a-month job as manager of a 7-Eleven store in a middle class Jacksonville neighborhood Friday after refusing to sell cigarette papers, some flavored and colored.

Later, Shroyer's step-daughter, Cheryl McLean, 30, a mother of four, also quit in protest. Shroyer had been manager of the store for more than three years and Mrs. McLean had also worked there about three years. "You're really just playing ostrich if you pretend you don't know what's going on," Mrs. McLean said of the paper's use.

Chester Shmoldas of Wilmington, district manager of the national convenience store chain, said Sunday in a telephone interview that Shroyer had not been asked to resign, but noted that he would have had to sell the papers to continue as manager. Merchandise is selected at the corporate level, he said. "It's not my choice whether we will sell them."

The issue, he said, "is kind of blown out of proportion." Shmoldas saw no problem with selling the papers and noted that other stores sell them.

"I don't know what they're used for," he said, conceding that they probably are commonly used to roll marijuana.

Shroyer, 44, is a retired Marine Corps sergeant who served three tours of duty in Vietnam. He fought the proliferation of drugs there and wouldn't accept marijuana even if it were legalized, he said.

"I don't believe in marijuana," he said, adding he thinks the plant is a health hazard and leads to more dangerous drugs.

Warren Named To Committee

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has announced the appointment of Jack S. Warren, a Pitt County agriculturist and businessman, to the Committee for the Study of the Collection of Property Taxes on Motor Vehicles.

The purpose of the committee, which was established by the 1977 General Assembly, is to make "a comprehensive study of the efficiency and effectiveness of the present system of collecting property taxes on motor vehicles in North Carolina in order to correct the problem of lost revenues for counties and municipalities due to the large number of unlisted motor vehicles."

Green praised Warren as a valuable addition to the committee.

The incidents were reported at 1:45 a.m. yesterday, the chief noted.

Chill Marks Flu Season Start

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The chill creeping into the air brings the approach of the flu season, and it's time to start thinking about protection and treatment.

The widely predicted swine flu epidemic of 1975-76 never materialized. But new strains of influenza A virus, the kind that causes pandemics or world-wide outbreaks, usually appear every 10 years and the last major problem was in 1968, with the Hong Kong flu.

Experts meeting in Maryland recently said a wide variety of flu viruses was circulating in the world this year. They said they still expected a relatively mild flu season in the United States, but declined to make firm predictions in the aftermath of the swine flu incident.

Influenza is an acute respiratory illness, whose symptoms include fever, headache, coughing, sore throat, runny nose and muscular aches, especially in the lower back and eyes.

The disease is caused by one of three types of virus — A, B or C. Both type A and type B can result in epidemics, but the latter is usually much milder.

Flu outbreaks often occur suddenly. The disease spreads through areas, peaking in about three weeks and subsiding after another three to four weeks. From 20 to 50 per cent of the susceptible population may be affected, with the highest incidence among children aged 5 to 14.

Most patients recover from the flu within a week, although they may feel tired or run down for some time. In the aged or chronically ill, the disease is more serious and, together with pneumonia, influenza is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States.

Vaccines have been developed to help guard against influenza. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says studies have shown the vaccines can be 70 to 90 per cent effective when matched to the current virus. The problem is that the viruses change their genetic makeup slightly every year, so annual revaccination is recommended.

Once you've got the flu, there is not much to do except go to bed, drink plenty of liquids and take aspirin to relieve some of the symptoms.

The symptoms of the flu — or any other virus, such as the one that causes the common cold — may be confused with allergies or bacterial infections. There are ways to tell the difference, however.

A runny nose, for example, is frequent with a complaint caused by a virus or allergy, but rare with one caused by bacteria. You probably won't have aching muscles as a result of an allergy or a bacteria, but you usually will with a virus. Both allergies and viruses will result in several symptoms, rather than a single complaint, such as a sore throat or earache. A bacterial ailment may infect only one part of the body. A cough is rare with an allergy, occasional with a bacteria and frequent with a virus. And dizziness usually accompanies a virus, but almost never is a sign of a bacteria or an allergy. More information on influenza, what causes it and what is being done to combat it is available from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in a nine-page pamphlet, "Flu." It costs 35 cents. To get a copy, write: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Shot, And Recaptured

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A recaptured prison escapee remained hospitalized under guard today as he recovered from surgery for several gunshot wounds in his head.

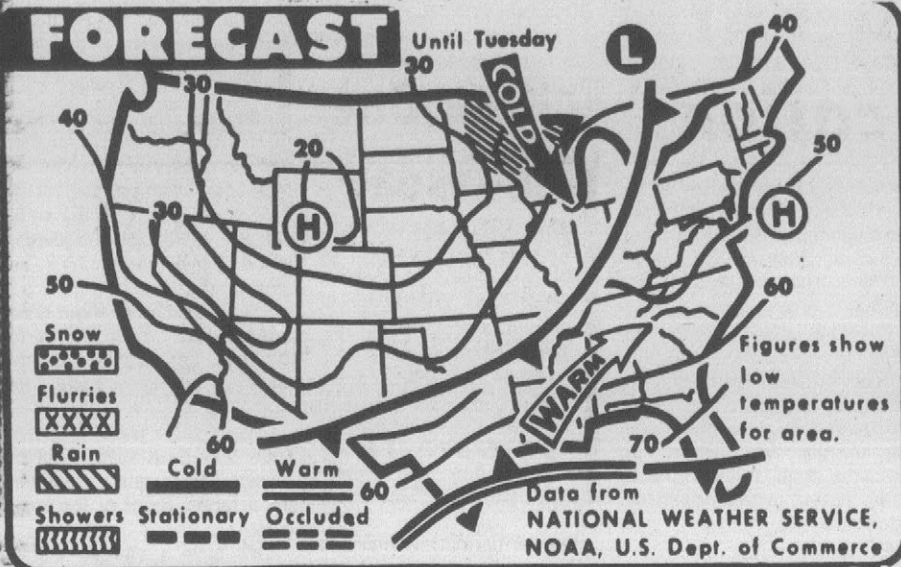

The wounded man, Terry Dobson, 29, of Concord, was charged with kidnaping, rape, assault with a deadly weapon, assault with intent to commit rape, robbery with a dangerous weapon, assault with a deadly weapon, crime against nature and housebreaking and larceny. He was shot during the alleged kidnaping.

Dobson walked away from the Guess Road Prison Unit last Friday, where he was serving a 19-year prison term for robbery. There were no guards with the road gang on which Dobson was working.

About a half-mile away from the gang, Dobson found a 19-year-old woman alone inside a home. He allegedly broke in, grabbed a rifle and raped the woman, then ordered her to go with him to her mother's apartment, where he held the two women at gunpoint.

A relative arrived unexpectedly, and in the confusion, the older woman grabbed a pistol and Dobson was wounded. No charges were filed against the woman.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin. Sunny skies are expected to prevail over the East, and fair weather is anticipated throughout the Plate

Qualification Policy Changed

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Davidson College officials say their first consideration in hiring new faculty members will be academic qualifications, a change in policy sparked by criticism earlier this year of a school by-law that gave preference to Christian applicants to the Presbyterian school.

Otherwise, temperatures will slowly rise into the 60s with some low to mid 70s along the coast.

A Jewish applicant, Dr. Robert Linden, protested the by-law, which denied tenure to most non-Christians.

Another clear and cool night with lows in the 40s and 50s is expected. Cloudiness will increase Tuesday, especially in the mountains where there is a chance of rain by late in the day. Small craft advisories are

TO THE VOTERS OF
From
Dr. Frank Fuller

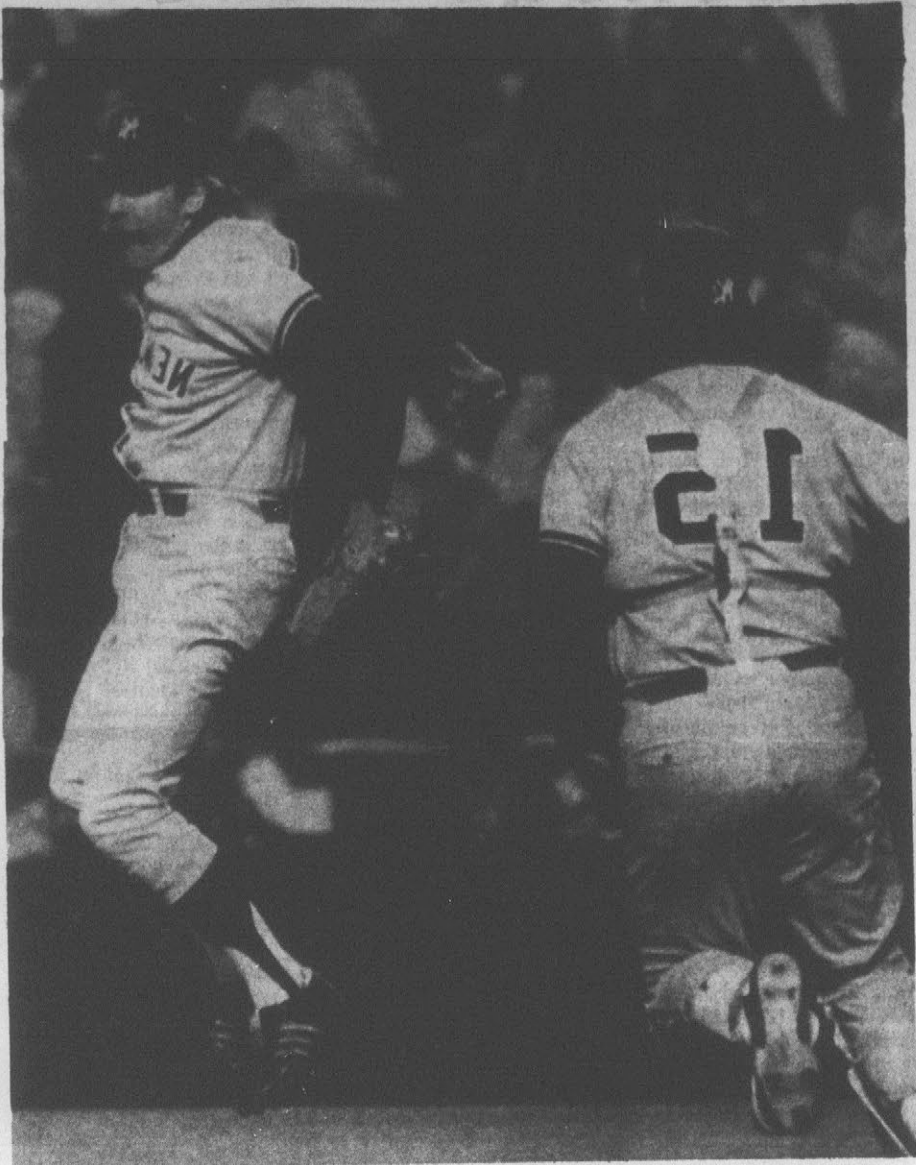

Each time I have run for election, I have reviewed the accomplishment of the past and projected some possibilities for the future. Accomplishments as I see it include:

1. Implementation of plans for the improvement of West Meadowbrook.
2. Development of plans and some work toward improvement of Southside.
3. Virtual completion of the Central Business District plan.
4. Beginning of a mass transit system.
5. Further development of a thoroughfare plan.
6. Zoning of a medical complex area to control development in the area of the new hospital and medical school.
7. Improved pay plans and personnel policies for city workers.
8. Developing of a recreation-library complex now nearing completion.
9. Completion of a new fire station in the western part of town.
10. Keeping city taxes at a reasonable level while making considerable progress.

- Vitally needed in the next two years are:
1. Implementation of the Community Development Program as presently proposed with planning for future progress.
 2. Expansion of GREAT (bus system) with assistance from the state and federal government.
 3. Continued improvement of salaries and working conditions for city employees.
 4. Continued progress in implementing the major thoroughfare plan and especially a corridor from east to west linking ECU with the medical complex.
 5. Continued support for the encouragement of the location of clean industry in Greenville to provide desirable jobs for our citizens.

I would greatly appreciate your vote so I may use the experience gained through ten years on the City Council to work for you and for the betterment of Greenville.

Sincerely yours,
Frank G. Fuller

Yanks Rally To Series

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Perfectly befitting their style and reputation, Billy Martin and his New York Yankees barged into a second straight World Series Sunday night with dash, drama, theatrics and controversy.

Three outs away from a defeat that many Yankee watchers felt would cost Martin his job, the quarrelsome pin-strippers staged a gritty three-run rally to defeat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 in the fifth and final American League playoff game.

The Yankees, who beat the Royals with a ninth-inning home run in last year's fifth game and went on to lose four straight to Cincinnati in the World Series, will meet a new foe, the Los Angeles Dodgers, beginning Tuesday night in New York.

"This shows the character of our club," said slugger Reggie Jackson, the $2.9 million free agent who was benched Sunday night in the latest swirl of controversy in the Yankees' soap opera season.

Benched with a 1-for-14 playoff slump, Jackson came through with a pinch-hit single and RBI in the eighth inning to lift the Yankees to within 3-2.

Then Paul Blair, the defensive specialist who replaced Jackson in right field, played his part in the drama by slapping a leadoff single off reliever Dennis Leonard in the ninth and coming around to score the tying run on Mickey Rivers' single.

"I'm glad he stayed with me," said Blair in the joyous Yankee dressing room. "Thank God I came through for him. That's the greatest hit I ever had in my life."

The eighth and ninth innings came down to a game of managerial chess moves between Martin and Kansas City's Whitey Herzog.

Paul Splittorff, the winner in Kansas City's 7-2 victory Wednesday in New York, checked the Yankees on one run through seven innings but ran into difficulty in the eighth when Willie Randolph singled leading off.

With right-hander Thurman Munson at the plate, Herzog pulled the left-handed Splittorff for right-handed Doug Bird, who struck out Munson but surrendered singles to Lou Piniella and Jackson.

Frank White, Royals' second baseman, then ended the inning with a spectacular grab of Chris Chambliss' hot smash.

Larry Gura, the loser in Saturday's contest, was brought in to deal with the pesky Rivers in the ninth and gave up the tying single.

Mike Torrez, who hurled 5 1/3 innings of shutout ball in relief of Ron Guidry, got in trouble in the Royals' eighth by issuing two-out walks to Amos Otis and Pete LaCock, and Martin called upon Sparky Lyle, his lefty bullpen ace who had shut out the Royals in five-plus innings to notch the New York victory Saturday.

Lyle met the challenge, striking out Cookie Rojas to end the eighth and finishing the Royals in the ninth by getting Darrell Porter on a pop fly and Fred Patek on a double play grounder.

"I went in there and cried," Martin said gesturing to the manager's office. "A manager is human. But it's worth it, though. If this is the result, then I'll accept all of it."

With Rivers on first and Roy White, who had walked, on third, Herzog brought in righthander Mark Littell, who watched Willie Randolph send Amos Otis to the warning track in center field with a sacrifice fly that scored White with what proved the winning run. One out later, George Brett fielded Piniella's grounder but threw wildly past first, sending Rivers across the plate with an insurance run.

"It seemed like we just went to pieces after they had two runners on base and nobody out," said Brett, whose scuffle with New York third baseman Graig Nettles triggered a near brawl in the first inning. "We just couldn't get right."

Brett's first-inning triple scored Hal McRae, who totaled three hits for the night, with the Royals' initial run. Both benches and bullpens emptied onto the field when Brett, who said Nettles kicked him, came up swinging.

Order restored with no injuries, Al Cowens slapped a chopper to Nettles to bring home Brett with the Royals' second tally.

Munson singled home Rivers in the third with the only run the Yankees could manage until the eighth. The Royals, whose 102 victories were the most in the major leagues this season, made it 3-1 on McRae's double and a single by Al Cowens in the third.

The victory left the Yankees weeping with joy and disbelief. The loss left the Royals weeping with shock and disbelief.

Defensive Squads Key Several ACC Contests

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer

There was plenty of scoring, but it wasn't the offense that took the credit for some Atlantic Coast Conference wins Saturday.

"You've certainly got to give credit to our defense," North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley said after taking a 24-3 win over Wake Forest in the Tar Heels' first ACC game of the season.

"They forced a big turnover and only allowed 3 points." It was turnovers forced by the defense that accounted for wins in a couple of other games too, as the ACC swept all three games against non-league opponents to up the conference's record to 11-11 against outsiders.

For North Carolina, three quick fumble recoveries in the third quarter put the trailing Tar Heels safely ahead in the third quarter. In other games, Duke got its final score on a pass interception to stun independent South Carolina 25-21, and North Carolina State scored after a blocked punt and a fumble recovery to take a 17-15 win over Auburn. Elsewhere, Clemson romped past Virginia 31-0 and Maryland snapped a three-game losing streak with a 24-10 win over Syracuse, though the Terrapins lost starting quarterback Mark Manges in the process.

The games did little to settle the ACC title race, which N.C. State still leads with a 3-0 mark. Duke and North Carolina are next with 1-0 records and tied for fourth place are Clemson and Maryland with 1-1 conference marks. Virginia, 0-3, trails.

"It looks like the kind of race that'll go right down to the wire," Duke Coach Mike McGee said Sunday. "So far only a couple have been eliminated. Virginia and Wake both have a couple of losses and I don't think you can win our conference with two losses. But I think you can win it with one loss."

A lot more will be known after next Saturday though, when N.C. State and North Carolina, both undefeated in the league, meet in Raleigh and Clemson, 1-1, goes to Duke, 1-0. In other games, Wake Forest is at Maryland and Virginia at Virginia Tech.

DUKE 25, S.CAROLINA 21
"Give credit to the defense. They're the ones that got things going," Duke quarterback Mike Dunn said after the comeback win.

The Blue Devils, now 3-2 overall, trailed by 18 at the half, but rallied under Dunn's two scoring drives. Then, with less than five minutes remaining and South Carolina clinging to a two-point lead, Duke cornerback Earl Cook intercepted a Ron Bass pass and carried it 30 yards for a touchdown and the win.

"It was as sweet a victory as we've ever had, a glorious victory," McGee said.

N.C. STATE 17, AUBURN 15
After reviewing his game on film Sunday, N.C. State Coach Bo Rein was not pleased.

"I'm sitting here thinking how much better we could be," the second-year coach said. "We see flashes of brilliance and flashes of things that are terrible. But we won, so obviously we were more brilliant than terrible."

Auburn, of the Southeastern Conference, held Ted Brown to 67 yards rushing, but that was still enough to give the junior the school's career rushing record 2,576 yards.

UNC 24, WAKE 3
North Carolina, 3-2, trailed by three after an error-plagued first half, but struck in the third quarter when Alan Caldwell caught a fumble and ran 72 yards for a touchdown. Wake Forest, 1-4, turned the ball over two more times in the third period, and the Tar Heels capitalized for a 17-point quarter.

Dooley has returned big Billy Johnson, who scored one touchdown on an 18-yard run, to full-back position after running at tailback. Freshman Amos Lawrence, though not a starter, rushed 109 yards from that position.

MD. 24, SYRACUSE 10
"It was a very costly victory," Coach Jerry Claiborne said after Maryland, now 2-3, lost quarterback Mark Manges for four to six weeks with a broken hand. "When you lose a person of the status and ability of Manges, it hurts."

CLEMSON 31, UVA. 0
"I've very proud of our football team again," Coach Charley Pell said after Clemson won its fourth game in a row against one loss.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

Tommy Lasorda, the lion-hearted manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, approached the National League playoffs like a zealous warrior preparing for the Holy Wars.

And when his blue-clad crusaders vanquished the Philadelphia Phillies in their own den to earn a trip to the World Series, the rookie manager saw it as a fulfillment of the scriptures.

"It was a tremendous script. To me, it had to be written by God," said Lasorda, oozing with joy after the Dodger Blue rhapsodized the Phillies 4-1 in the rainy conclusion of the league championship Saturday. Lasorda's troops marched into this forbidding city with a feverish cause built on vengeance.

"There were a number of things that irritated us. We got a clipping that said Greg Luzinski said we didn't belong on the same field as the Phillies. Another clipping was Danny Ozark said the series would be over in three. And everybody said we couldn't win at the Vet," said Lasorda.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life." But the effervescent manager said he wasn't going to lean too heavily on the Big Dodger in the Sky when the World Series opens Tuesday.

"I asked God for all the help he could give me in this one. I'm not going to ask for any help against the other league," Lasorda said.

The Dodgers, powered by Dusty Baker's productive bat and Tommy John's now supple left arm, won three straight games after dropping the series opener at home.

While the Dodgers swigged champagne, the Phillies gagged on the bitter ashes of defeat once more, a victim of their vanishing bats. Philadelphia hit a lousy .279 as a team in the regular season, then slipped to a paltry .225 with the title on the line.

After winning 60 of 81 games at home, the Phillies imitated a wounded elephant coming home to die. They lost two at home, the last one before a raucous record crowd of 64,924 diehards who goaded and baited the Dodgers until the bitter end.

"I'm more hurt by this loss than than any other in my baseball career. I was very optimistic," said a sorrowful Ozark.

Though the Phillies agonized over what could have been, the Dodgers rejoiced. Baker, the series' most valuable player with two homers and a National League record eight RBI, said it best:

"Did you ever see 'Love, American Style' where everything just explodes?" grinned the Dodger center fielder.

"I think the Phillies relied too much on the home field advantage," said Davey Lopes. "They said they just wanted a split in Los Angeles. They felt there was no way we could win two here. That's not the way to think."

The Phillies squandered their home advantage with a crushing defeat in game three. Holding the Dodgers by the throat, the Phillies had a two-run lead with two out and nobody on before Los Angeles made a miracle rally.

Jones Never Gives Up

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Bert Jones doesn't know when to give up.

Midway through the second quarter the Baltimore Colts trailed the Miami Dolphins 28-10. The Dolphins had exploded a 90-yard kickoff return by Freddie Solomon and touchdown runs of 52 and 66 yards by Benny Malone against the Colts.

But Jones, Baltimore's brilliant young quarterback, was not the least bit discouraged. "I'm an optimist," he explained. "I have the feeling we can do just about anything we want, if we put our minds to it. I knew that there were many things we could still do to score."

So Jones went to work. Touchdown passes of three yards to Glenn Doughty and 19 yards to Raymond Chester cut the deficit to 28-24 by halftime, then a 34-yard pass to Don McCauley in the third quarter put the Colts in front to stay. A 5-yard scoring pass to Doughty later in the period was icing on the cake as the Colts beat the Dolphins 45-28 in a battle of previously unbeaten National Football League powers.

It was a magnificent display by Jones, who completed 18 of 30 passes for 205 yards and four touchdowns, including seven completions in a row on the three scoring drives that put the Colts in front.

Dallas, Oakland and Denver also remained unbeaten after the fourth NFL Sunday, although the Cowboys received a big scare from the St. Louis Cardinals, who led 24-16 before succumbing to a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns as Dallas pulled out a 30-24 victory.

Oakland and Denver coasted towards their American Conference West showdown next Sunday as the Raiders beat the Cleveland Browns 26-10 and the Broncos defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 23-7.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, however, lost more than a football game in bowing to Houston 27-10. Starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw went out with a fractured left wrist in the second period, then reserve Mike Kruczek suffered a shoulder separation on the first play of the fourth period. Rookie Tony Dungy, a reserve safety, was at the helm for the Steelers the rest of the final period.

In other games, the Minnesota Vikings beat the Detroit Lions 14-7, the Washington Redskins blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 10-0, the Atlanta Falcons shut out the San Francisco 49ers 7-0, the Cincinnati Bengals topped the Green Bay Packers 17-7, the San Diego Chargers blanked the New Orleans Saints 14-0, the New England Patriots drubbed the Seattle Seahawks 31-0, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the New York Giants 28-10 and the New York Jets defeated the Buffalo Bills 24-19.

Tonight's game has the Los Angeles Rams at the Chicago Bears.

Baltimore and Miami combined to gain 792 yards — 397 by the Colts, 395 by the Dolphins — the most ever by two

NFL Roundup

NFL teams. The pro record of 871 was set by Boston and San Diego of the American Football League.

Miami Coach Don Shula put the game in perspective. "We had a lot of big plays in the first half," he said, "but they had all the big plays in the second half. And they turned out to be the biggest."

Cowboys 30, Cardinals 24
St. Louis led 24-16 going into the fourth quarter, but two pass interference penalties proved costly. A 42-yard penalty preceded Tony Dorsett's 1-yard run that moved Dallas within one, then a 40-yard infraction set up Roger Staubach's game-winning scoring strike to Golden Richards with 6:53 to play.

Raiders 26, Browns 10
Oakland posted its 17th consecutive victory, moving within one of the NFL record set by Chicago in 1933-34 and equalled twice since. Mark van Eeghen rushed for 113 yards and scored twice and Errol Mann kicked three field goals for the Super Bowl champions.

Broncos 23, Chiefs 7
Craig Morton completed 13 of 21 passes for 189 yards for the Broncos, who put on a big defensive show as well.

"That's a heck of a defense; 23-7, that's how tough it is," praised Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin.

Oilers 27, Steelers 10
Houston picked off four passes by Bradshaw in the first half and went ahead to stay on a 51-yard bomb from Dan Pastorini to Billy Johnson.

Doctors say Bradshaw will be out two weeks, but he hopes to return before that. Kruczek will likely be sidelined longer.

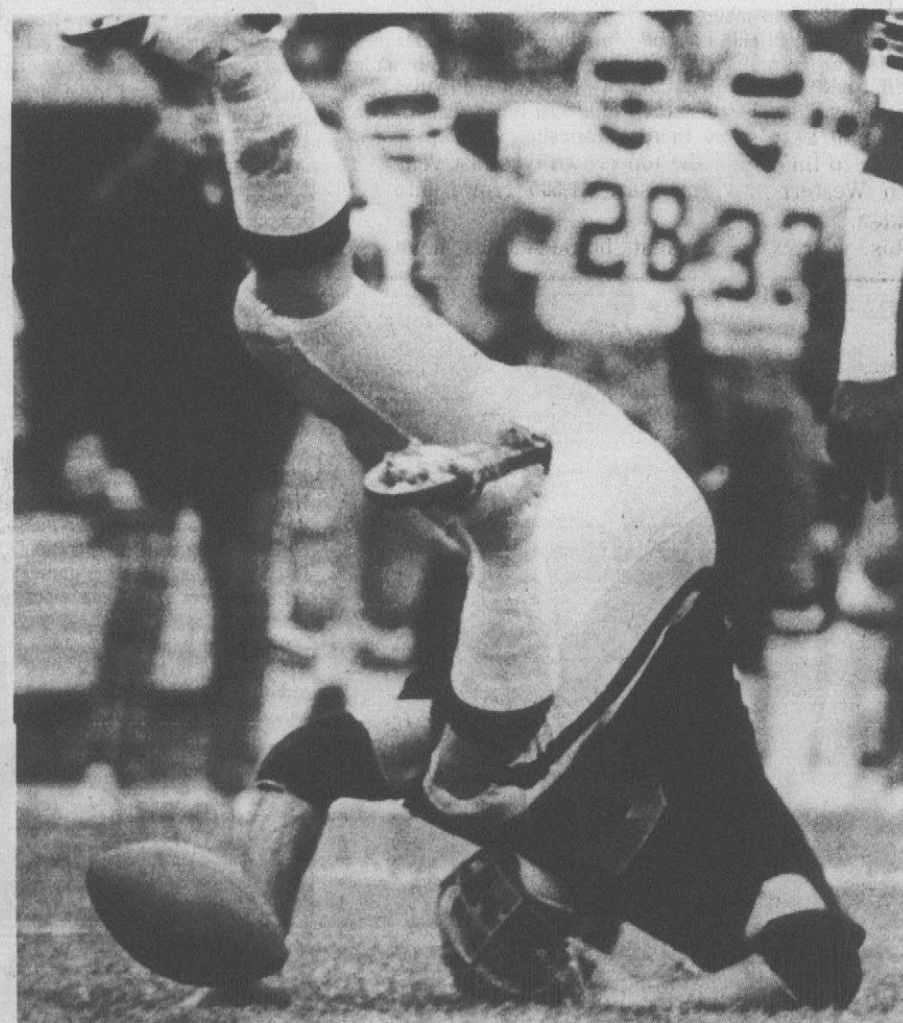

Vikings 14, Lions 7
Minnesota moved one game ahead of Detroit in the National Conference Central on two touchdown catches by Sammy White — and one of the passes wasn't even thrown to him.

Fran Tarkenton hit Ahmad Rashad with a 9-yarder, and as Rashad was about to be tackled he scooped the ball to White, who completed a 59-yard scoring play that provided the winning points.

Redskins 10, Buccaneers 0
Washington got all its points in the first quarter as Mike Moseley kicked a 44-yard field goal and Mike Thomas ran 6 yards for a touchdown.

Falcons 7, 49ers 0
The Atlanta Falcons, with the NFL's leading defensive unit, have now allowed just 19 points in four games while climbing to the top of the NFC West with a 3-1 record. A 39-yard touchdown pass from Scott Hunter to Alfred Jenkins was the only score of the game.

Bengals 17, Packers 7
Ken Anderson completed 14 of 19 passes for 190 yards and one touchdown and Boobie Clark rushed for 89 yards for the Bengals, who evened their record at 2-2.

Old Bear, Young Fred Provide College Punch

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Old Bear and young Fred provided college football with a stunning 1-2 weekend punch that merely punched out the nation's 1-2 teams.

Alabama's venerable Bear Bryant continued to embarrass those young whippersnappers in the Pacific-8 Conference. Having taught UCLA's Terry Donahue a 36-6 lesson in last year's Liberty Bowl, he picked up Southern Cal's John Robinson and the nation's top-ranked Trojans for a dramatic 21-20 triumph that helped throw the No. 1 rating up for grabs.

Meanwhile, Fred Akers, in his first season as Texas head coach following a legend named Darrell Royal, guided the fifth-ranked Longhorns to their first success over arch-rival Oklahoma in seven years, a 13-6 victory over the second-ranked Sooners.

The leader in this week's Associated Press poll likely will be third-ranked Michigan, a 24-14 winner over Michigan State as Rick Leach scored one touchdown and passed for another. And chances are for this time Coach Bo Schembechler won't ask the pollsters to vote him out of the No. 1 position.

The three teams immediately behind Michigan kept pace with the Wolverines — No. 4 Ohio State swamping Purdue 46-0 behind freshman fullback Joel Payton's four touchdowns, No.

5 Texas and No. 6 Colorado a 29-13 victor over Oklahoma State as James Mayberry galloped for 250 yards.

Rounding out the Top Ten, Arkansas, tied for seventh with Alabama, was idle while resting for next week's clash with Texas, ninth-ranked Nebraska downed Kansas State 26-9 as I.M. Hipp added touchdown runs of 88 and 62 yards and 207 overall onto last week's 254-yard performance and No. 10 Penn State scored twice in the final period to overcome Utah State 16-7.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Notre Dame and No. 12 Texas A&M had the weekend off while No. 13 Brigham Young bowed to Oregon State 24-19 — the Cougars lost quarterback Gifford Nielsen for the season with a knee injury after he threw three touchdown passes — and No. 14 California was upset by Washington State 17-10.

Elsewhere, Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh returned to action for the first time since an opening-game injury and helped the 15th-ranked Panthers battle to a 17-17 tie with No. 20 Florida, No. 16 Kentucky defeated Mississippi State 23-7 and emerged as a serious challenger to Alabama in the Southeastern Conference, No. 17 Texas Tech outlasted Arizona 32-26, No. 18 Louisiana State staved off Vanderbilt 28-15 and No. 19 Wisconsin blanked Illinois 26-0.

The nation's longest winning streak came to an end at 15 games when seventh-ranked Alabama held off Southern California in a nationally televised thriller.

Bama's triumph drew a turnout of some 4,000 — largest crowd ever to gather at Tuscaloosa Municipal Airport — to greet the team when it returned home early Sunday. Extra police were needed to direct traffic as happy Alabamians tooted their car horns and chanted "Roll Tide."

Tony Nathan's touchdown runs of 1 and 13 yards early in the final period helped the Crimson Tide to a 21-6 lead. But USC's Rob Hertel threw a touchdown pass to Calvin Sweeney and a 2-point conversion loss to Mosei Tatupu with 6:46 remaining. Lynn Cain scored with 39 seconds left but another conversion pass by Hertel was intercepted.

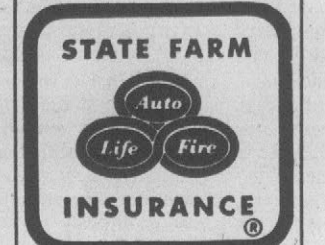

"I think we got a little help from upstairs," said Bryant. "We were lucky to get out of it. I've never seen a team come back so strong as they did."

Texas' Akers hasn't been around as long as the Bear. "You might see something like that in a story book, maybe make a movie about it, but I've never seen anything like that," he said after the Longhorns stunned Oklahoma. He was referring to third-stringer Greg McEachern's leadership after two Texas quarterbacks were injured, the running of Earl Campbell, who gained 124 yards and scored from 24 yards out in the second period, and field goals of 64 and 58 yards by Russell Erxleben, who set a major college mark with a 67-yarder a week earlier.

"I told Fred Akers after the game I hope they win the rest of them and the national championship," said Oklahoma's Barry Switzer. "They have a great, great football team. Campbell is just unbelievable and I told him I hope he wins the Heisman Trophy."

One of the nation's surprise teams is Wisconsin, whose 5-0 start is the school's best since 1921. The Badgers had to use a second-string quarterback, Charles Green, against Illinois but he completed 11 of 16 passes, including a 4-yard TD flip to David Charles.

Rams To Test Payton In Tonight's Contest

By JOE MOOSHL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Payton, the Chicago Bears' nifty running back who leads the National Football League in rushing, will get a severe test Monday night against the Los Angeles Rams in a nationally televised game.

Payton leads the NFL in rushing with 336 yards in three games and has scored four touchdowns rushing and one on a pass. The Rams will put up one of the stingiest defenses in the league, one which leads the National Football Conference against the rush.

"Payton is just an excellent, outstanding back," said Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox. "He won't go to the hole all of the time, if he sees daylight, he's off."

Despite Payton's talents, the key to the game could be defensive tackle Wally Chambers and safety Doug Plank, both of whom have been nursing knee injuries while the Bears suffered losses of 16-13 to St. Louis and 42-24 to New Orleans. Chambers and Plank have been working out and both are expected to see action. Plank might even start. With the two out of the lineup, Bear defenses have sagged to such a point that the team hasn't had a quarterback sack in the two losses.

"If Chambers plays, the Bears will be a lot tougher," said Knox. "It'll be tough enough coming here with Chicago coming off two losses. We have to be more prepared than anytime this season. If not, we will get our butts knocked off."

In addition to Los Angeles' strong defense, the Bears must cope with a punishing ground attack led by Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti and the passing of Joe Namath. Namath will not have Ron Jessie to throw to. Jessie is out for the season with torn knee ligaments and will be replaced by Dwight Scales.

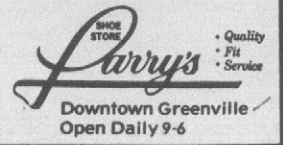

The Rams are favored by 4½ points. They opened the season with a surprising loss to Atlanta but have won their last two against Philadelphia and

San Francisco. The Bears have worked in reverse. They defeated Detroit 30-20 before losing their last two.

Bob Avellini, who won the quarterbacking job from Mike Phipps, has shown improvement. He completed 18 of 38 for 238 yards in the loss to New Orleans and had half a dozen passes dropped.

National 500 Biggest Payday Ever For Benny

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Benny Parsons felt like a million, but not like a millionaire.

Winning Sunday's $250,000 National 500 Grand National race ranked as "the most complete" of any of his nine career victories.

It was an especially satisfying one because Parsons, a former Detroit taxi driver, now calls North Carolina home.

And the $41,075 payday, the highest of his career, made him one of the sport's rare million-dollar career winners.

"I've been trying to get an advantage like this for eight years. I assure you it's not boring," Parsons said when asked if leading 248 of the final 260 laps was boring for him. "I would have liked to lead 'em all."

"It's a great honor to have gone over a million like this. I CONSIDER THE COMPANY I'm with to be the superstars of the sport."

Parsons needed only 260 starts, the fewest of any driver to exceed $1 million in prize money, to join Richard Petty, David Pearson, Cale Yarborough, Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker.

Asked if he felt like he belonged in that group, Parsons answered, "I don't feel like a superstar. I just feel like Benny Parsons."

He amplified, "I'm no millionaire. All that prize money hasn't gone into my pockets. But it has provided me and my family with a comfortable living."

Parsons recalled that he was ready to quit the sport after the 1974 season.

"I think of all the fantastic moments I would have missed if I'd gone off selling nuts and bolts or something," Parsons said. "I thought 1974 would be a banner year for me. I had won the Winston Cup championship the year before."

"But 1974 was a disaster for us. That winter I sat down and wondered if I could stand the frustration anymore."

However, his car owner, L.G. DeWitt, convinced him to put those thoughts behind him.

"Next thing I know, I went out and won the Daytona 500 and everything changed."

Enough sponsorship money materialized to permit Parsons to put together a competitive team.

"It took about a year and a half to get comfortable with one another, but we expected that," Parsons said.

Parsons has four victories this season, the most productive for him yet, and has been in contention in most of the races this half of the season.

"We like to think we had enough car today to win, no matter what happened," Parsons said.

As it turned out, that was true.

Parsons ran out of gas, with a big lead over Yarborough, just 70 miles from the finish. But he was able to coast in and get refueled, then use his power advantage to sprint back into the lead again.

"My crew radioed me to pit when I was in the third turn. At least I thought they did. I wasn't sure, so I thought I'd go around one more time. I didn't know we were that close on fuel," Parsons said. "I was coming out of turn four, too late to get into the pits, when it ran out."

He finished 19.5 seconds ahead of Yarborough, the only other of 41 starters on the same lap. Pole position winner Pearson was third, just ahead of Baker. Darrell Waltrip was fifth.

Richard Petty broke down while leading, and finished 32nd.

The tributes paid to East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins Saturday during the Homecoming celebrations were fitting and just.

While Dr. Jenkins contributions to the university have been many in many fields, we have come to know his donations to the athletic side of the fence.

We remarked to a fellow reporter on Saturday during the halftime that things had come a long way at East Carolina. In our short tenure of nearly 14 years, we have seen East Carolina grow from a minor-division independent to one of major status, striving for the ranks of the top leaders in the South.

Our first athletic contact with East Carolina came back on the night when Wake Forest came to town to help open Ficklen Stadium. At that time, the stadium consisted of the South stands and a set of bleachers along the north side. There was a full-house for that game, 17,000, in attendance.

Just a few short months later, we joined the Reflector staff, just in time to see East Carolina make a successful bid to enter the Southern Conference.

The hey-day of Clarence Stasavich was in bloom, and two more bowl games were to follow. Talk of expanding the stadium grew, and a few years later, Ficklen was indeed, enlarged to its present size. But it took until 1973, when East Carolina downed Richmond, for the first full house to be obtained. That night, 21,251 were in attendance.

Prior to this year, the top crowd was last year when Western Carolina saw 21,506 crowd into Ficklen.

This year, two straight home games have during Sunday's 18th Annual NAPA National 500 Race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. Benny Parsons from Allerbe, N. C. won the race and the $41,075 first prize. (AP Laserphoto) brought the fans of the Pirates flocking into Ficklen, with Saturday's estimated attendance in excess of 25,000.

Come the latter part of this year, there will be further expansion in the stadium, boosting the seating to 35,000. Then, the Pirates will have a true home to call their own, and will be able to attract more worthy opponents.

Seeing such a crowd as attended the game Saturday brought to mind how much Dr. Jenkins, leadership has meant to the athletic program.

The days of the Southern Conference are no more. Dr. Jenkins would like to see a new, strong conference built in the South. Whether it will be still a question.

With Dr. Jenkins' retirement only months away, East Carolina fans can only hope that the man chosen to follow in his footsteps will have the same foresight and desire for athletic achievement.

The football program is on the verge of greatness, and other programs are moving rapidly to the front. With continued leadership such as Dr. Jenkins has provided, the future will be a bright one for East Carolina.

Alcott Fights Off Challengers

HOUSTON (AP) — Amy Alcott admitted she had a case of nerves for 24 hours before she walked up the 18th fairway a winner Sunday, but she should have spared herself the trouble.

Miss Alcott, a 21-year-old three-year pro from Santa Monica, Calif., won the $50,000 Houston Exchange Clubs Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, breaking par for the third straight day to finish at eight-under 208. She fought off strong challenges Sunday from veteran Carol Mann of Towson, Md., and her playing partner, rookie Donna White of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Those two finished in second place at 209 along with Kathy Postlewait of Sylacauga, Ala.

"I was awfully nervous last night," said Miss Alcott, who led the tournament from the opening day Friday. "I felt a great deal of anxiety. I wanted to win, but I knew I was going to have to go out and play 18 holes Sunday against the greatest women golfers in the world."

She began the final round with a one-stroke lead over veteran Jo Ann Prentice, but Miss Prentice suffered bogies on three of the first five holes to quickly fall out of contention. But Miss Mann birdied three of the first four holes, briefly grabbing the lead early in the round, and Mrs. White knocked in a birdie putt on the third hole to come within a stroke of the lead.

The win, Miss Alcott's first of the season and fourth in her pro career, was worth $7,500. The tournament was the finale on the LPGA domestic schedule.

Blocked Punt Keys Wolfpack

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Wolfpack coach Bo Rein called State's blocked punt of Skip Johnston's kick the big play Saturday in their 17-15 football victory over Auburn. So did Auburn coach Doug Barfield.

"They had a 10-man rush and came from inside on the left," Barfield said. "We haven't had a blocked punt here in a long time."

The blocked punt resulted in a quick six points in the second period. A fumble in the first period had presented the Wolfpack another six points.

Put two extra point conversions, and the Wolfpack had a 14-0 lead.

Barfield said mistakes and NC's defense kept the Tigers backed up deep in their own territory, "and if you stay there long enough sooner or later you might make a mistake and we did."

The Auburn coach said the Tigers had "a couple of great opportunities" late in the second period "and we didn't cash in on them."

The offense was hot and cold, said Tiger quarterback John Crane. Barfield said he was disappointed as far as the offense in having "consistency about it."

"We had two plays on offense where we were hot in the first half, but we couldn't do nothing else," said a disappointed Crane.

Later a touchdown brought Auburn to within two. A two-point conversion would tie the game. But the Tigers' luck ran out.

Joe Cribbs ran the ball for 10 yards, but a holding penalty pushed the Tigers even further back to their own six.

China Is Making Changes In Educational System

EDITOR'S NOTE — A group of Associated Press executives and directors were given a look inside classrooms of China during a recent 16-day tour of the country. In this article, Louis D. Boccardi, executive editor and vice president of The AP, tells what they learned.

By LOUIS D. BOCCARDI
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — China's leaders are making major changes in the country's educational system, which they say was all but wrecked in the ideological disputes of recent years. The problems, and the proposed cures, came up frequently during a 16-day trip through China. —Peking University has no freshman class this fall because new standards for admission have not been drawn up. The university is 3,000 short of its 10,000-student capacity. —The new standards, still being formulated, will put new stress on letting the brightest students get the most advanced training, with ideology not the central qualification. —Because of ideological attacks on the universities and scholars by the now-ousted radical Gang of Four, textbook publishing virtually stopped during the last three or four years. Teachers, unsure which way the wind would be blowing, ran off their materials on duplicating machines — less permanent and less likely to cause trouble. —Scientific advance was interrupted. Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said in an interview that power struggles cost the country a decade of progress. —Examinations were attacked as a form of elitism not suited to a society of equals. Teng said they must be given. A leader in the current Chinese educational effort is an old hand, Chou Pei-yuan, a physicist in his 70s who studied in the United States before 1949 and is now vice chairman of Peking University. During a half-day visit to the university by a group of Associated Press executives and directors, Chou unfolded his story. He spoke in Chinese, although his English is excellent. Occasionally he would interrupt the interpreter to correct a nuance. Chou said that the Gang of Four, which included Mao's widow Chiang Ching, had taken tight control of the university from 1973 to 1976. (They were arrested last October.)

He said they attacked professors for their writings, assailed intellectuals as non-contributors to the labors China needed from every citizen, and sabotaged examinations. They attacked him, too, for his stress on China's need to make the best use of its brainpower, he said. Now, with the Gang of Four arrested and Vice Premier Teng leading an effort to speed China's modernization, the new order is illustrated in the discussions over who gets into the university. The old way, Chou explained, consisted of a class made up pretty much equally from among peasants, workers and soldiers. They were nominated by their factory or neighborhood or military unit and ideological purity was a key factor. Now, Chou said, that is to be changed. Plans are not yet final but perhaps as much as 30 per cent of the new students may be selected directly from middle school, with the selection based on their intelligence. That such a shift should be regarded as so profound may strike non-Chinese as strange. But it is central to China's efforts to modernize, and it is an important thread in the modernization effort a visitor hears about (and to a lesser extent sees) from one end of China to the other. In the interview, Teng said that the quality of education at all levels in China was too low and had to be raised.

The FARM SCENE

L. Gaylon Ambrose
Asst. Agricultural Extension Agent

Soil activators, soil conditioners, plant stimulators, soil inoculants, 'natural' minerals, liquid liming materials, seaweed, and humic materials are among the 'miracle' products being offered for sale to farmers. Such products have been around for quite some time but seem to be increasing in numbers in recent years. The promoters of these products often make fantastic claims for their beneficial effect on soils and crop growth. They are sometimes billed as 'cure-alls' which can be good for nearly anything that might ail a soil or plant. They may also be recommended as a livestock feed additive and claims are made for improving the nutritive value of both feed and food crops.

Promotional material for one product called a soil conditioner and plant stimulant, claims it will '—cut the use of fertilizer in half or eliminate it altogether—, revitalize worn out soils and eradicate root rot in such agricultural crops as cotton.' It further claims to, '—release nutrients bound in the soil,—reduce caking characteristics in soil and build soil structure,—improve root growth, stimulate circulation in the plant and provide trace minerals to plants.' As if that wasn't enough it is further claimed it, '—adjust soil pH to a favorable range.'

When asked how their products can produce the remarkable results they claim, the promoters often answer, 'We don't know why, but it works.' They may suggest it is due to some 'unknown' natural process or ingredient, or perhaps that the ingredients and how they must be kept secret to protect their investment. Another approach is to use a conglomeration of scientific terms in a sales pitch, which may sound legitimate to laymen not trained in the science necessary to fully understand such terminology.

The miracle products are usually used in very small quantities on an acre basis, some as little as two ounces per acre. Claims for one product are that two to three gallons of it will produce the same soil acidity neutralizing benefits as two to three of agricultural limestone. It boggles the mind to visualize such benefits. Skepticism is also cast on the claims that these products variously produce the following benefits: chelation of plant nutrients, improve soil water absorptive and holding capacity, increase numbers of earthworms and microbes, increase microbial activity, add beneficial microbes to soil, improve soil organic matter, eliminate crop disease, reduce insect infestation, increase root growth, and improve crop quality.

Beginning January 1, 1978 all soil additives sold in the state must be registered by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. A new law passed by the 1977 General Assembly requires that such product's merit must be proved through adequate research before registration can take place.

Sociologists On Program

ECU News Bureau
Drs. Avtar Singh and Marty Zusman of the East Carolina University sociology faculty appear on the program of the annual convention of the Midwestern Sociological Association at Dekalb, Ill. this week. Theme of the meeting is sociopolitical processes and conditions in South and Southeast Asia. The ECU sociologists will speak to the gathering on "Charismatic Leadership in Bangladesh," especially focusing on the events leading to the emergence of Bangladesh as an independent state and later to the assassination of Sheikh Mujib-ur-Rahman and the overthrow of his government. Singh and Zusman contend that "charisma" surrounding government leaders is "destined to be transitory and ephemeral without the formation of supportive bureaucratic structures."

Four Traffic Accidents In Greenville Yesterday

An estimated $4,950 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police Sunday. Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 10:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Grande and Albemarle Avenues involving cars driven by Charlie Barrett Jr. of 200 Nash St., and Landis Blow Jr. of Route 3, Greenville.

Officers set damage at $800 to the Barrett car, $1,000 to the Blow vehicle and $400 to the front of College View Cleaners and Laundry building which was struck following the collision of the two autos. Blow was charged by investigators with driving under the influence, failing to yield the right of way and no operators license. William Roy Weaver of 158 Aycock Dorm, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Hamilton Streets. Police reported the Weaver vehicle collided with a car driven by Laura E. Dixon of Bronx, N.Y. causing an estimated $250 damage to the Dixon car and $1,000 damage to the Weaver auto. An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars which collided about 12:35 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and

Strains Surfaced By Federal Grant

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Tension between Wake Forest University and the Baptist State Convention surfaced again over the weekend in a controversy over a federal grant to the school's biology department. The $300,000 grant is to come from the National Science Foundation, and school officials had planned to use it for a new biology building and equipment. But last week Baptist convention president Coy Privette said that the school should not accept such government grants for "self serving" purposes rather than to perform research or other services. Privette also said he thought Baptist schools shouldn't be taking government money anyway because of its source. "We just don't think that Baptist schools should take money from the general taxpayers to operate," he said. "We don't think we should take money from Jews, atheists and other non-Christians." Wake Forest University President James R. Scales said Privette's remarks do not "represent the thinking of most Baptists in this country. Baptists are citizens who bear the same burden and are entitled to the same benefits as other citizens." Scales added that he was "particularly concerned about his reference to people of other faiths."

Vaccine Deters Animal Cancer

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A common immunization vaccine has proven effective in attacking and killing cancer in animals, says a University of Connecticut Health Center official. Dr. J. Scott Nystrom said Friday repeated injections of bacille-calmette-guerin "rev up the body's immunity system." But he emphasized there had been "no conclusive findings." "It works in animals and it's being tested with humans," he said at the opening of a two-day meeting in Hartford of the American College of Surgeons. Nystrom, an assistant professor of medicine, said the vaccine has been used in the past against pulmonary tuberculosis. He said the potential application to cancer was discovered when researchers began looking for drugs that seemed to stimulate the body's defense mechanisms.

The grant is being held in escrow until a convention committee decides whether acceptance of the money would violate convention policy. Another convention committee is already working on improving relations between Wake Forest and the convention.

Elements Of Candor Absent In Panama Case

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — For people pledged by their boss to openness and candor in foreign policy, President Carter's team put on an odd performance in the case of the cable from Panama.

In the process, the State Department inadvertently gave opponents of the Panama Canal treaty a handy new issue to use in the battle over ratification. That's the last thing the administration needed in its campaign to shift public opinion and gain Senate support for the treaty to yield U.S. control of the canal in the year 2000. The issue arose over a confidential cable from the U.S. Embassy in Panama, reporting that the government there does not accept any U.S. right to intervene to guarantee the neutrality and security of the canal after it is turned over to Panama.

That was hardly a secret, since Panama's top negotiator on the canal treaty had said the same thing to his National Assembly and on Panamanian television.

But the cable was classified. When Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., got a copy and made it public, the State Department protested bitterly, saying the leak was more regrettable than the substance of the cable.

"... It represents a total breach of a process which is intended to be confidential," said Hodding Carter III, the department's spokesman.

He also said Dole, as a former Republican vice-presidential nominee, should know that it is harmful to impair the confidentiality of communications between an embassy and Washington.

Diplomatically, that may be correct. But the administration's problem right now is not diplomatic, it is political. And the retort was bad politics, made worse when another State Department official called the Senate ethics committee to ask whether there were any rules against the release of classified information.

Dole, no mean fighter himself, said he wasn't going to fly blind on the treaty, which he wants the Senate to change so it makes explicit the right of the United States to intervene militarily in defense of the canal.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, who is uncommitted on the treaty, came to Dole's defense, and criticized the administration call to the ethics panel. The State Department, meanwhile, was saying that the call was made to ask for information, not action.

"If that's the way they're going to play, all their treaties are going to have a tough time," said Baker, a pivotal man in the administration's effort to gain the two-thirds Senate vote it will take to approve the treaty.

Baker, who will be running for re-election next year, is under pressure at home and from conservative GOP senators to oppose ratification. If he does, it will be a severe setback for the administration.

Baker already has asked the State Department for embassy cables, notes, and any other documents that will help explain and reconcile differing U.S. and Panamanian interpretations of the treaty.

Now he says it is "imperative in the face of this new information that the administration give us access to all source data."

By making an issue of secrecy, the administration has given treaty opponents an opening for the suggestion that there are other potentially damaging documents hidden away in the files.

Campaigning for the White House, President Carter denounced a Republican foreign policy he said was based on secrecy, and promised that his administration would found its policies on open discussion with Congress and the nation.

That certainly doesn't mean publication of all the diplomatic cable traffic. But neither does it seem to fit the administration's handling of the Dole episode.

terway. And according to the administration, that includes a right to intervene militarily if necessary to keep the canal open after the year 2000.

Offer Three Nat'l Tests

ECU News Bureau
Three nationally-standardized tests will be administered at East Carolina University during November.

The Graduate Management Admission Test will be given at ECU on Saturday, Nov. 5. Applications to take the test should be mailed to the Educational Testing Service, Box 966-R, Princeton, N. J. 08540 to arrive by Oct. 14.

Applicants for the ACT Assessment test, to be given at ECU Saturday, Nov. 19, should be registered with ACT, P. O. Box 414, Iowa City, Iowa 52240 by Oct. 21.

The Allied Health Professionals Admission Test will also be administered at ECU Nov. 19. Applications should be sent to the Psychological Corp., P. O. Box 3540, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017 by Oct. 22.

Application materials and further information about the tests are available from the ECU Testing Center, 105 Speight Building, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

That is not spelled out specifically in the treaty, Panamanian negotiators don't buy it, and they have said they accept no such U.S. right.

In the cable, Ray Gonzalez, No. 2 man in the U.S. Embassy, reported to Washington that still another Panamanian official had disputed any claim of a U.S. right to intervene.

Gonzalez added his own comments:

"As we talk with other negotiators and officials who are campaigning for the treaty here, we will urge caution on any statement concerning U.S. rights under the neutrality treaty. But we are likely to be faced with increasing irritation over — and perhaps public disavowals of — our interpretations. Any assertion which deems to claim a right to intervene in Panama's domestic affairs is almost sure to be challenged here."

But such tactics won't paper over the real question, which is whether the treaty really means what the administration says it means about U.S. authority to keep the canal neutral and open.

A BIRD WITH A FUTURE — A Whooping crane shows its plumage during a press tour of the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center at Laurel, Md. Whooping crane production exceeded all expectations in 1977, Department of Interior spokesmen say, and the future for the endangered bird has never been brighter. Twenty-nine of these birds were hatched this spring, and biologists believe that even if half die from weather, predators, accidents or other causes, it will be a spectacular year for the species. In all, there may be 126 whooping cranes in existence in the wild and captivity. (AP Laserphoto)

Speaking of Your Health...

Informing the Terminal Patient

I was furious when our doctor told my husband that he had an incurable cancer and that he would die within a few months. Don't you think that the decision to tell or not to tell should first be talked over with the family who, after all, knows the patient best? How do you think such situations should be handled? — Mrs. B.B.R., N.J.

Dear Mrs. R.: I thoroughly agree with you that such an enormous responsibility should not be assumed by the doctor himself. Those of us in the practice of medicine have learned that there is no single universal law that can apply to all people everywhere.

Some patients are stoic and stalwart and seem to be able to accept the reality that their disease is terminal. Many, in fact, specifically request that they be told every detail so that they can put their family and business matters in complete order.

Yet, even among these people most doctors recognize that part of the stoicism is a facade that belies their real anxiety. It becomes necessary to gently ease even such apparently strong patients into the realization that their disease is terminal and hopeless.

There are patients who cannot emotionally accept the total impact of the truth of their condition. For "hope springs eternal in the human breast" and it is unkind to deprive them of that hope. Especially with patients with fragile, brittle emotions, members of the family and a religious advisor should first be consulted.

Dying is a very private experience. Many protective devices are at work that help most patients to reconcile themselves to the inevitable. That privacy must not be invaded by anyone who presumptuously may think that he has the privilege to do so.

Others may disagree with me. This indicates that there are no standard rules that apply to all such situations. Very recently, a prestigious member of the United States government left the hospital after having had major surgery. It had been well-known that he had a cancer and that repeated operations and treatments with chemotherapy and radiotherapy had been used.

That should be sufficient information to satisfy the needs of even the most curious. Apparently, it was not. For newspaper and television interviews with the doctor so deeply probed every facet of the surgery that the doctor was virtually made to speculate out loud about the brief time of survival.

Since sickness and dying are, indeed, intimate and private, the patient did not deserve to read, as he undoubtedly did, the details of his death sentence, which were so minutely extracted from the doctor.

When Raymond W. Edwards signed up for NCNB Cash Reserve, he got rid of checking account service charges and the paperwork of getting a loan.

Until 1975, about the only way to get no-service-charge checking in North Carolina was to keep a $100 balance in your checking account.

What's more, if your balance ever went to $99, you had to pay a service charge for every check you wrote.

That's how it was in 1975.

Then NCNB introduced the idea of giving you a choice of ways to get no-service-charge checking and, at the same time, give you the benefits of another NCNB service.

We call it The Triple Option, and in two years, thousands of people all over the state have signed up.

Here's how it works:
Option #1: Have $25 or more automatically transferred each month from NCNB Checking to an NCNB Regular Savings Account and get no-service-charge checking.

Option #2: Deposit and maintain $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings Account and you can get no-service-charge checking.

Option #3: Build a credit cushion into your NCNB Checking Account with Cash Reserve, and you can get no-service-charge checking.

So you can see just how The Triple Option lets you pick the other service that works best for you.

When we introduced it in 1975, it was North Carolina's most flexible no-service-charge checking plan. In 1977, it still is.

Because we want to be your only bank. And we figure that the better service we give you on a checking account, the more likely you are to come to us when you need a loan, or want to open up a savings account or need some other service you may be going to another bank to get.

Facts Important As Law In The Bakke Decision

By CYNTHIA MILLS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The facts will be as important as the law in influencing the Supreme Court's ruling in the Allan Bakke "reverse discrimination" case, set for argument this Wednesday.

Bakke, a white twice rejected by the University of California medical school at Davis, claims he would have been admitted if 16 places had not been reserved for minorities under a special admission program.

The California Supreme Court agreed the program unconstitutionally discriminated against him on the basis of race.

Now the nation's highest court must resolve, on appeal, a dispute that crystallizes a modern American civil rights dilemma: What happens when a program penalizes whites while helping blacks overcome the effects of discrimination?

Pro-civil rights groups and the Justice Department argue the medical school program did not constitute an illegal racial "quota," as Bakke claims.

They want the court to rule narrowly on the facts, and count on its preference for avoiding broad constitutional issues when it can.

Many a lawyer urging the court to make just such a sweeping ruling has been brought up short by one justice's question: "What actually happened?"

Allan Bakke faced several disadvantages: He was 33 by the time he was denied admission in 1973 and 34 when he failed on his second try.

Although he had a 3.51 undergraduate grade point average, and good test scores, he was among 3,700 students competing for 100 spaces in 1974.

The trial judge in his original suit said Bakke failed to show he could have won admission even if the special admission program had not existed.

He had applied to 11 other medical schools. All rejected him.

As the record makes obvious, Bakke, a mailman's son, wanted to become a doctor in the worst way.

An ex-Marine with a B.A. in engineering from Minnesota and an M.A. in the same field from Stanford, his desire to study medicine sharpened during his association with doctors at the National Aeronautic and Space Administration lab in California, where he worked as a research engineer.

Starting in 1971, he worked mornings and evenings so he could take pre-med courses full time by day. He did volunteer work in a hospital emergency ward.

By 1973, when Bakke made his move, the California medical school application forms asked one question beyond the usual background and achievement items: Did the applicant wish to be considered by a special admissions panel for persons "from economically and educationally disadvantaged backgrounds?"

Regular applicants like Bakke, if they survived preliminary screenings, were rated by a faculty panel. Bakke scored 468 out of a possible 500 in 1973 and 549 out of a possible 600 in 1974.

According to one analysis, only 35 persons would have been considered ahead of him in 1973 and 32 in 1974 if the special admission program had not existed.

Special admissions applicants went through a separate screening process, and did not compete with "regular" applicants.

Whites had applied for admission under the special program, but never were admitted through it.

There was no minimum grade point for the special admissions group.

The screening committee summarized each applicant's qualifications and made a recommendation to the regular admission panel. Eventually, 16 were admitted under the special program.

Special admission students had grade points as high as 3.89 and low as 2.11. Some had overall admissions ratings 20 to 30 points below Bakke's.

Since the Davis campus medical school opened in 1968, only one black had gained entrance without resort to the special admissions program.

Yolo County Superior Court Judge F. Leslie Manker decided the special admissions program discriminated against Bakke because of his race. But he refused to order Bakke admitted, saying Bakke failed to prove he would have gained entry on his own merits.

Both sides appealed to the California Supreme Court.

The university argued the number 16 was a "goal," not a quota. It defended race-conscious programs as the best way to make up for historic discrimination against minorities.

The California high court declared the special admissions plan unconstitutional, 6 to 1, in September 1976, "because it violates the rights guaranteed to the majority" by the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection to all.

It said the state must show "compelling interest" to justify such a classification of people on the basis of race, and the school failed to prove its goals could not be satisfied "by means less detrimental to the rights of the majority."

It said the university could use "flexible admission standards" without relying strictly on grades and test scores.

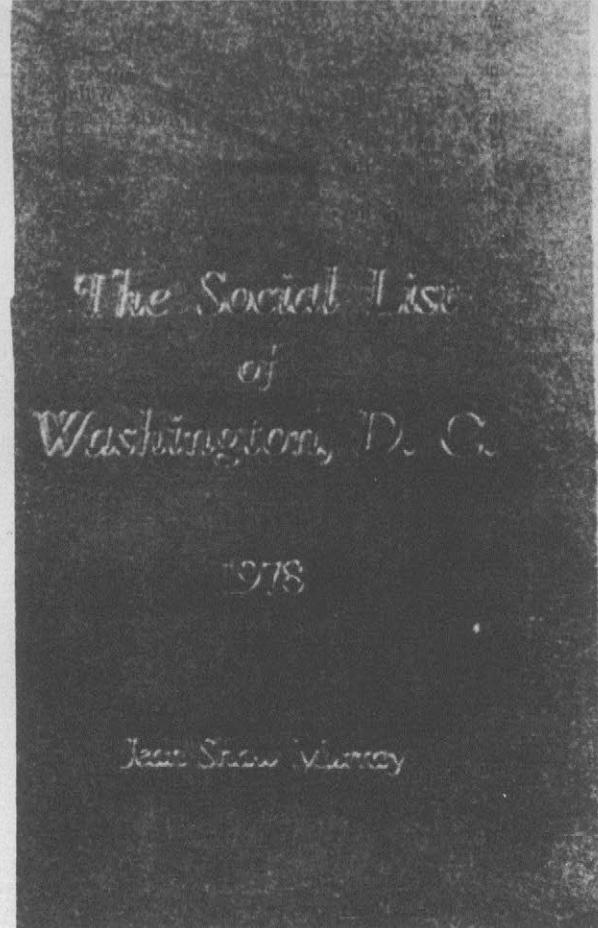

"It is difficult to avoid considering the university scheme as a form of an education quota system, benevolent in concept perhaps, but a revival of quotas nevertheless," the court said.

The sole dissenter, Judge J. Torriner, said "benign racial classifications" have been upheld in school desegregation, employment and public housing cases in the past.

He cited a U.S. appeals court ruling that said, "Our society cannot be completely colorblind in the short term if we are to have a colorblind society in the long term."

The California court ordered the university to admit Bakke.

The Supreme Court said that order when it agreed to review the case.

Traffic Kills 9 Over Weekend

Weekend traffic accidents killed nine persons in North Carolina, the Highway Patrol reported, bringing the death count for the year up to 1,094, compared to 1,138 at this time last year.

Freddie Wesley Russell, 56, of La Grange, was killed Sunday when the car in which he was riding left a rural paved road north of La Grange and ran into a tree.

A Rock Hill, S.C., man, Robert Lee Whitlock, 32, died shortly after midnight Sunday when his car went out of control on Interstate 85 and overturned in Mecklenburg County.

Randolph Dial, 26, of Rt. 2, Cary, died at 12:40 a.m. Sunday when his car slammed into a train parked at a crossing on a rural road in Robeson County just east of Maxton.

Elbert Freeman Ammons, 28, of Rt. 5, Mount Olive, was struck and killed about 3:30 a.m. Sunday as he lay on a rural road about two miles south of Mount Olive. The patrol said the car which struck Ammons fled the scene.

Killed in Lenoir County Saturday when his car went out of control on a rural road at a high speed and crashed into a wooded area was Frederick Justin Jones, 21, of Kinston.

Also killed during the weekend were:

—Mary Ann Rory, 16, and Roy Goggins, 17, both of Charlotte. Their car slammed into a concrete post at a high speed early Saturday. Four others were injured.

—Joe Lewis Hampton, 25, of Clarendon whose car crashed into a parked vehicle early Saturday.

—Jerry Lee Norman, 31, of Winston-Salem in a head-on collision near Winston-Salem Saturday.

ECU Chemist On NSF Panel

ECU News Bureau
Dr. James E. Hix, associate professor of chemistry at East Carolina University, was in Washington, D. C. recently working with a national Science Foundation selection panel.

The panel was formed to evaluate undergraduate research proposals in chemistry and to select the best proposals for NSF funding.

Hix holds degrees from Vanderbilt University and has done additional study at the California Institute of Technology.

A faculty member of the ECU Department of Chemistry for nine years, Hix has conducted research in the areas of inorganic biochemistry and chemical process control using digital computers.

New England Planning Haven If Nuclear Threat Is Raised

By DAVID WYSOCKI
Associated Press Writer
CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New England Civil Defense officials are developing elaborate plans to transform New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maine into a sanctuary for other residents of their area if the nation is ever threatened by nuclear attack.

"We expect to have something on paper that should work, in about two years," said David Hayden, who is coordinating the plan in New Hampshire. "Then we would make various refinements."

Under what is termed the Crisis Relocation Plan, people who live in more populated "risk areas," such as southern New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, would be evacuated to less populated "host areas."

The plan is designed to help disperse the population from "risk areas" near big cities and military bases that officials believe could be used as pawns in nuclear blackmail attempts.

"This plan would never work with normal cooperation, but if World War III were imminent, and the president says, 'this is what you have to do to stay alive,' we think the people would respond. A disaster seems to make people more cooperative," Hayden said.

churches, banks, schools, county homes for the elderly and other buildings as possible shelters.

The New Hampshire Statehouse would become the temporary home for about 7,500 people; the Sullivan County Home in Claremont would house 1,200; a wastewater treatment plant in Concord 563; the Shaker Building at the LaSalette Seminary in Enfield 1,700; Dartmouth College in Hanover about 69,000.

Hayden said. That means Connecticut and Rhode Island residents cannot flee west, but must head north, most of them into New Hampshire.

"Maine is not too bad area-wise. It is good for a tremendous amount of people, but the problem is transportation. There would be a tremendous bottleneck at the southwestern corner of the state."

The evacuation ratio calls for five "immigrants" for every "native." That would jam the streets of Concord, N.H., with about 175,000 people instead of the usual 35,000. Conway, N.H., would be transformed from a quiet resort town of about 6,000 to a crowded city of 30,000, all within 72 hours.

Hayden said some states already have car stickers designating where evacuees would go.

New York State is "pretty much taking care of itself,"

TO SURRENDER — Carmine Galante, above, reputed successor to Carlo Gambino as the "boss of bosses" of organized crime, will surrender Tuesday on a parole revocation warrant, officials said Saturday. It was believed the U.S. Parole Commission sought the warrant on grounds Galante was associating with known criminals, but authorities would not reveal the exact nature of the charges. (AP Laserphoto)

He said New Hampshire officials hope to sign a federally funded planning contract.

"After the contract is signed, we will go into the cities and towns, high-risk areas first, and talk with officials about cooperating," Hayden said.

"If a town says get lost, I will quietly get lost, but I'll tell them if the time comes, the people will come here, whether they plan or not," he said.

Private houses would not be used for the refugees, but an engineering study, compiled in a thick computer printout, lists

Dick Cavett Begins A New Talk Show On TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are those in the smart set who claim current TV talk shows provide no mental sustenance. They often sigh for the glory days when Dick Cavett had an ABC talk show.

It is their theory he got the ax because he is too urbane, subtle, witty and intelligent for commercial TV. Their theory is sorely tested by brother Cavett tonight.

Tonight, he begins his new, half-hour, $1.8 million nightly talk show series on public television by chatting with Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, who act for a living.

Cavett, flanked by his guests in a three-chair studio setting, complete with audience, starts things rolling by declaring to viewers he's delighted to be back with a regular interview show.

And, he says, "I'm especially pleased to be doing it in what I think is an appropriate and congenial setting of public television. I look forward to bringing you a season of the best people available, the most interesting, the most newsworthy ..."

Then he asks Sophia and Marcello, who estimate they've acted together in eight or nine films, in which movie they first teamed up and when.

Sophia says it was about 20 years ago, in "Too Bad She's Bad."

After some banter about Marcello's skinny legs, Cavett bears down with: "Do you believe in such a thing as ... chemistry?"

Sophia helps translate the meaning of performing chemistry to Marcello, whose English is passable. Amid more banter, she informs Cavett, "I speak English quite well."

"You certainly do for your age," he comes right back and says. "We are the same age, more or less, same generation," she tells her 40-year-old host. He says: "You're a miracle of preservation." She says: "You, too. You, too, I must say."

In time, Cavett pursues a harder line of inquiry. "Sophia," he says, "I don't mean this as just a fulsome compliment ... but why are you more beautiful off-screen than on?"

Later, he asks her: "What was the crossroad, the moment in your life, when you took the turn that led you to be a movie star rather than a housewife or whatever you might have been?"

Later, to her costar, Cavett inquires: "And what was it for you, Marcello, that spelled your destiny, what was the moment when you went down the road to movies as opposed to architecture, which I think was your great love?"

Marcello says it was when he got laid off as an accountant.

Pornography A 'Buzz Word'

BOSTON (AP) — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt says pornography is "the buzz word of the '70s, like communism in the '50s."

In an interview news conference here Sunday, Flynt also said he saw no reason why pornography should be prohibited on television.

"It's the price we have to pay to live in a free society," he said. "We have to tolerate certain things we don't like."

Dolly Expected To Win Again

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dolly Parton, who broadened her music this year to a more pop-flavored sound, is favored to be chosen entertainer of the year tonight in the Country Music Association awards. Entertainer of the year is the top award among 10 to be presented at the Grand Ole Opry House on CBS television from 8:30 until 10 o'clock (CDT).

Miss Parton also is nominated for another top award, top female vocalist, which she has won two straight years.

Other nominees for entertainer of the year are Merle Haggard, Waylon Jennings, Ronnie Milsap and Kenny Rogers. If Haggard is selected, he would become the first person in the 11-year history of the awards to win it twice. He won it in 1970.

Joining Miss Parton as finalists for No. 1 female vocalist are Crystal Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Loretta Lynn and Barbara Mandrell. Nominees in the male vocalist category are Larry Gatlin, Jennings, Milsap, Rogers and Don Williams. Milsap, whose big hit this year was "It Was Almost Like A Song," won the award last year and in 1974.

Jennings, a finalist in five categories, does not believe musicians should compete against each other and is not expected to attend the show. He missed last year's show when he shared three awards with Willie Nelson.

Jennings and Nelson asked the CMA in June to remove them from the competition, but the CMA declined because it did not want to be put in the role of deciding who should be on the ballot.

Word of their request did not become public until after the finalists were announced. But because of the request, support for Jennings in the final balloting is believed to have shifted to others who will regard the awards more meaningfully.

One of five nominees for the Country Music Hall of Fame will be chosen for enshrinement. They are Johnny Cash, Vernon Dalhart, Grandpa Jones, Hank Snow and Merle Travis, with Snow expected to win.

Other categories and the favorites: single of the year, "Luckenbach, Texas," Jennings; album of the year, "Ol' Waylon," Jennings; song of the year, "It Was Almost Like A Song," Milsap; vocal group of the year, the Statler Brothers; vocal duo of the year, Jim Ed Brown and Helen Cornelius; instrumental group of the year, Danny Davis and The Nashville Brass, and instrumentalist of the year, Hargus "Pig" Robbins.

Presenters or performers include Bill Anderson, Chet Atkins, June Carter, Johnny Cash, Roy Clark, Jerry Clower, Dave & Sugar, Davis and his band, Mac Davis, Miss Gayle, Haggard, Miss Lynn, Miss Mandrell, Milsap, Miss Parton, Minnie Pearl, Pride, Jerry Reed, Rogers, the Statlers, Mel Tillis, Conway Twitty, Williams and Tammy Wynette.

Saturday's Cryptiquip—WELL-TRAINED ARTISTS AND ARTISANS AWE TRAINEES.

© 1977 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: T equals P

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K7 ♥Q106 ♦AQ105 ♣AQJ6

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠7 ♥KQ94 ♦KJ105 ♣8762

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In support of hearts, your hand reveals to 12 points. Since you are a passed hand, you can get this information across to partner by making a non-forcing jump to three hearts. Had you not been a passed hand, you would have been faced with a tough problem. You would probably have to respond two diamonds first and then raise hearts.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠35 ♥QJ92 ♦Q1076 ♣KQ5

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—With 11 points in high cards, stoppers in the unbid suits and no particular fit for partner's suit, you have a perfect way to describe your hand—jump to two no trump. By a passed hand, this shows 11-12 points and is not forcing.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q72 ♥A109542 ♦9543

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♠ 1♥ 2♠ 3♥ 4♦ 4♥ 6♠ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Your length in partner's suit makes it highly likely that the opponents will fulfill their slam, so since the vulnerability is in your favor, you should plan to sacrifice in six hearts. Before doing so, however, we suggest you bid six diamonds as a lead-director. If the opponents venture on to a grand slam, we want to be sure that partner gets off to the diamond lead that defeats that contract.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQJ63 ♥KQ952 ♦K5 ♣Q

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass 2♥ Pass 4♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—All you need to know with this hand is how many aces partner holds, so wheel out the old Blackwood Convention. Depending on how many aces partner shows in response to your four no trump inquiry, you will place the final contract at an appropriate level.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠1074 ♥A854 ♦AK72 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West 1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 2♦ Pass 3♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—A no trump game is ruled out by the apparent lack of a spade stopper, but that does not mean you should give up all hope of completing the rubber on this hand. You have a very good hand that merits one more try. In view of partner's continued bids in clubs, you have excellent support for him, and you should raise to four clubs.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 11, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You and associates want to have improved relations, but mutual cooperation is necessary for this to happen. A time to strive for constructive accomplishments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some family members may not understand outsiders, so be sure no altercation ensues. Take no chances where finances are concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't let a communication at this time disturb you. Use different tactics with co-workers at this time and get excellent results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day to handle financial affairs, so postpone and take the recreation you need. Don't neglect to pay an important bill.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Check your home surroundings and make plans for improvement. Consult a business expert for the advice you need.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A private worry can prevent you from handling business matters in an orderly fashion, so forget it and carry on wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study monetary matters that are important. Take time to obtain advice from a financial expert. Be wary of strangers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Steer clear of an outside affair and get busy improving personal matters. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An excellent day to investigate a private matter and obtain the facts and figures you need. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal time to be with good friends to work out mutual interests cooperatively. Don't neglect an obligation you have.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study every aspect of your vocation and know where to make improvements and come to a better understanding with allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A time to study financial matters so you could have greater abundance in the days ahead. Avoid annoying tasks at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use modern methods in handling routine duties today for best results. Be sure to keep promises you have made to others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be most cooperative with others, who in turn will go out of their way to help your progeny, but teach to earn own way in life for best results. Ethical and religion training early in life is advised. Some sports are good here.
