Balloonists Try Atlantic

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Two Colorado men attempting to cross the Atlantic in a balloon got caught in a "turnaround surface wind" off Nova Scotia early today. A ground control spokesman said the craft was not in danger but there was a chance its course could be altered.

Jack Vaeth, ground support director for the 85-foot high Eagle that was launched here Monday, said the balloon had crossed Yarmouth, Nova Scotia and then got caught in a wind that had pushed it south again.

Dewey Reinhard, 47, and Steve Stephenson, 42, lifted off Monday in what is recorded as the 16th attempt to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

Several hundred spectators gathered at the grassy launch site 200 yards from the ocean where Reinhard and Stephenson lifted off.

"We're going to make it. We'll see you over there," said Reinhard, who has spent two years and about $200,000 preparing for the trip.

Their trip was to take them across Nova Scotia and then out to open sea with landfall in either the British Isles or northern France, said Vaeth.

All 15 previous attempts to cross the Atlantic have failed, and several balloonists have perished in the attempts.

Indictment By Pitt Grand Jury

A Pitt County Grand Jury returned a true bill of indictment against Winterville machinist Aage A. Justesen, charged with the murder of Greenville grocery store operator Henry J. Bunton last month.

Justesen, charged with murder in connection with the machinegun slaying, waived a preliminary hearing last week in District Court, and the case was sent to Superior Court.

Justesen is scheduled to be arraigned in Superior Court October 31.

Roadblock Again Raised By Israel To Geneva Talks

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel will not give up any of the West Bank or the Gaza Strip, and his government has announced plans for 10 new military posts in the West Bank.

Dayan told the U.N. General Assembly Monday that Israel for the past 10 years was willing to surrender occupied land for genuine peace with the Arabs "but to no avail."

"Now our view is that redivision is not the answer," he said. "Nowhere is it possible to draw a dividing line which will satisfy not only the security but also the historical, economic and social needs of all sides."

Dayan said proposals for a Palestinian state made up of the West Bank and Gaza and governed by the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) were "a futile exercise in wishful thinking, totally unacceptable to us."

He said any peace agreement "should be based on our living together with the Palestinians in those areas and not on partition of the territory."

He also reiterated Israel's longstanding refusal to negotiate with the PLO because its covenant "calls in effect for the destruction of Israel." He added that Israel would reject PLO participation in a new Geneva peace conference even if the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist as a state.

There was no immediate official U.S. reaction to Dayan's speech. The Carter administration has endorsed the idea of a Palestinian homeland and in a joint declaration with the Soviet Union said the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians must be restored.

All the Arab delegations and a number of other Third World countries allied with them boycotted Dayan's speech. But Egypt's U.N. ambassador, A. Esmat Abdel Meguid, said Dayan is "mistaken" if he thinks peace can be achieved without Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territories.

Soyuz Flop Unexplained

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — No official reason has been given for the inability of two cosmonauts aboard the Soyuz-25 spacecraft to link up with the orbiting space laboratory Salyut-6, the latest in a series of Soyuz-Salyut failures.

The cosmonauts, Lt. Col. Vladimir Kovalenok and flight engineer Valery Ryumin, returned to earth today after 49 hours and 46 minutes aloft. Both men were reported in good health.

Western space experts in Moscow suggested two possible reasons for the aborted mission: that the docking mechanism did not work or, more likely, that the cosmonauts overshot the space lab and didn't have enough fuel for another try.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that Kovalenok and Ryumin ended their first mission in space with a soft landing "in the set area" 450 miles north of the Baikonur space center in central Asia.

The flight was to have been a dramatic celebration of the 20th anniversary of the space age, inaugurated Oct. 4, 1957, by the first manmade earth satellite, the unmanned Soviet Sputnik.

The only Tass comment on the failure Monday was that that there were "some deviations from a planned docking regime."

Lack of a booster rocket powerful enough to lift loads of more than seven tons into space is the crux of the problems with the Soyuz-Salyut program, in the view of Western observers here.

The Soyuz spaceship normally carries food and fuel for five days, but on longer missions fuel must be sacrificed for a larger food load. The American Apollo and Skylab programs, which use the Saturn-V rocket, are able to lift between 120 and 140 tons into orbit and can put a 50-ton payload on the moon.

Western experts feel this problem could prove a serious obstacle to the Soviet space program because it is geared to work by cosmonauts aboard orbiting space stations.

The first Soyuz spacecraft launched in 1967 crashed on its return to earth, killing cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov.

The Soviets aborted an attempted linkup with Salyut-1 in 1971 without explanation. The next manned mission, Soyuz-11, succeeded in putting three men aboard a space station, but the three died from decompression on the return to earth.

Two space stations were sent up in 1973 but failed before cosmonauts were launched to man them.

Driver Survived

DRIVER THROWN OUT BEFORE CAR IS HIT — A Grimesland woman was reportedly seriously injured this morning after she was thrown from her car. According to Trooper Fred Davis, Ella Daniels Maye, was traveling east on N. C. 33 when she ran off the left side of the highway, lost control of the car which overturned, throwing her out. The car then crossed a ditch, and ran onto the railroad into the path of a Southern Railway train bound for Raleigh. The train struck the car in the right side demolishing it. The accident occurred about 1.3 miles east of Grimesland about 7 a.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Redevelopment Hearing Process Schedule Is Discussed At Session

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The schedule for the planning and public hearing process in the development of the city's South Evans Redevelopment Plan was discussed Monday night by the Redevelopment Commission.

Joe Laney, executive director, explained that the Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting in September, certified the South Evans section as a redevelopment area. The area was certified several years ago for redevelopment designation as part of the General Neighborhood Renewal Program. According to Laney, the designated redevelopment area is bounded on the south by Norfolk & Southern Railway, on the west by Seaboard Coastline Railroad, generally by 10th and 11th Streets on the north, and by Charles Street on the east.

The next step in the program, he pointed out, will be a public hearing conducted by the Redevelopment Commission on the plan on Oct. 20, 7:30 p.m., at the Council Chambers at city hall. During the public session, the commission will present the plan that has been developed by the city's planning staff for the designated area. Citizens will be invited to make comments and recommendations at the public hearing.

Following the commission hearing, the plan will be presented to the Planning and Zoning board at their Oct. 26 meeting and following consideration by the board, the plan will be forwarded to the city with comments and recommendations.

The City Council will receive the plan at the Nov. 3 meeting

HIGH-PRICED THEFT

I am a millwright who was working under B & H Construction Company at a Texasgulf site at Aurora when my tools and lots of others were stolen from a locked room on the premises of Texasgulf around Sept. 1. As far as I know, the theft was never investigated and no one has been reimbursed. I am out about $500 in tools and must have them in order to work. I was told at the time I left my tools there, that Texasgulf would be responsible. Else I would never have left them. T. D.

Hotline talked first with W. W. Smith of Texasgulf, who said that Texasgulf would not be responsible and that there was nothing in any contract saying that the company should. We then talked to John Brady of B & H Construction of New Bern, who also said that there was no official promise for anyone to be responsible for your tools or anyone else. He said his company lost several thousands of dollars worth of tools in the same incident. He said that the theft was reported to local authorities, but nothing has come of it so far. He said even his own company's tools are not insured because of the high price of theft insurance. He said he regrets the incident happened while you were employed by B&H, but that there is nothing he can do.

We also checked with the Beaufort County Sheriff Department, a spokesman for whom said the theft is still under investigation. "We have so many larcenies," she said, "but we're still hoping some arrests can be made."

Voters' Turnout Is Light

Voter turnout at the city's nine polling sites was running light as of 10 a.m. today, according to precinct reports called in this morning to the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Margaret Register of the Elections office here said that the nine precincts reported a total of only 943 votes cast by 10 a.m.

A breakdown of the early voting activity in Greenville included: Precinct 1, 23 votes cast; Precinct 3, 78; Precinct 4, 81; Precinct 5, 153; Precinct 6, 78; Precinct 7, 178; Precinct 8, 119; Precinct 9, 156; and Precinct 10, 77 votes.

Total eligible voters registered for today's mayoral and City Council balloting is nearly 11,000.

According to Miss Register, Farmville had voted 478 out of a registration of roughly 2,000 by 10:30 a.m.

Local precinct officials are reminded to call The Daily Reflector tonight with voting totals as soon as they are available. The Reflector will tabulate elections returns this evening.

SURRENDERED

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A man and a woman wearing airline uniforms hijacked a Czechoslovak airliner to Frankfurt airport today, and surrendered to German police after holding 27 people hostage on the plane for two hours, police said.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, named N. C. Democrat of the Year at the September 17 meeting of the N. C. Democrat Club of Washington, D. C., was presented a silver tray and plaque here last night at a meeting of the Pitt County Democrat Executive Committee meeting.

Charles Winberry of Rocky Mount presented Mrs. Spilman with the plaque and tray on behalf of Gov. Jim Hunt.

Sharing Nobel Physics Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Americans and a Briton won the Nobel prize for physics today and a Belgian was awarded the prize for chemistry.

The Swedish Academy gave the physics prize to John H. Van Vleck, 78, of Harvard University; his former student Philip Anderson, 55, of Princeton University and Bell Laboratories; and Sir Neville F. Mott, 72, of Cambridge University in England.

The chemistry prize went to Ilya Prigogine, 60, of the Free University of Brussels. He is also director of the Center for Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics at the University of Texas.

The physics winners, who will share equally a $145,000 prize, were cited for research on the electronic structure of magnetic and disordered systems — work applied to development of the laser, advancement in the industrial use of glass, and in copper spirals for birth control devices.

Prigogine, who gets $145,000, was cited for contributions in the field of thermodynamics. The physics award was announced behind schedule after three hours' deliberation by the academy, which was reportedly divided over two sets of candidates.

A statement by the academy cited the winners' "highly valuable contributions" in "large domains" of physics.

had accepted the award for Mrs. Spilman who was unable to be in Washington for the presentation last month.

Mrs. Spilman, referring to newspaper reports that she is 97, said, "I'm not as old as it's been reported. Age is a state of mind. I've never turned any job down because it was too little to bother with."

Speaking at the meeting, Winberry commented on the November 8 election and reviewed the provisions of the five constitutional amendments and two bond issues to be voted on.

"What's before us on November 8," Winberry said, "is a chance to finish a job already begun," referring to the constitutional amendments which are the last of a series that have been put to a vote of the people since 1959.

Speaking of the highway and clean water bond proposals, Winberry said, "nobody should understand any better than those of us in Eastern North Carolina the importance of good roads and clean water. Highways and clean water go together. Industries go where they can get both," he said.

Referring to amendment three, providing the right to reelect or reject the incumbent governor and lieutenant governor, Winberry said, "Succession does no more than grant to the governor and lieutenant governor the same right as the president of the United States. "Only 17 states restrict their governor to one term," he noted. "The passage of this amendment would not insure that Jimmy Green or Jim Hunt would seek reelection. It would insure that the voters have the right to reject or reelect." Winberry noted that the amendment, "has been endorsed by every Democrat governor who is still living and by Luther Hodges before he died. Former Gov. Jim Holshouser, the only Republican to serve in the statehouse in this century also supports it," the speaker said.

"There is no magic in the passage of the amendment for anybody who is holding office now," Winberry emphasized.

In other business last night, the executive committee elected Sandra White to fill the un-expired term of the late Sam Manning, who was third vice-president of the committee.

Chairman Betty Speir presided at the session.

Sisters Use Natural Dyes In Their Weaving

By SANDRA L. LATIMER WEST LIBERTY, Ohio (UPI) — Spinning fibers into yarn and weaving the yarn into fabric is a way of life for the Smucker sisters, Christina, Isabel and Irene.

The sisters work in a small barn on the grounds of the Platt Castle just east of here. "After all," they say, "the basis for all fabrics today is twisted yarn."

They obtain their materials — plant and animal fibers — locally. They use sheep's fleece to make wool, make linen from flax and silk from silkworm cocoons.

Christina cards cleaned fibers by flailing the material against metal teeth on a large flat brush. She also combs fibers on the two brushes.

Carded fiber is then twisted to produce yarn. Carding also straightens the fibers and makes them easy to pick up for twisting.

Twisting strengthens the fibers so they cannot be pulled apart. Once twisted, the material is spun.

"Spinning serves two purposes, strengthening and lengthening," said Isabel.

She then tied a long length of twisted fiber around a spindle and began to twist and pull it into yarn as she twirled the spindle.

"If you were out in the fields tending sheep, you could take this spindle with you and spin quite a bit of yarn in one day," she said. "But at home, you have the spinning wheel."

The portable spindle was the forerunner of the spinning wheel, she added.

The spindle on a spinning wheel works in a similar manner, but is turned by a foot-operated treadle. Fibers spun on a wheel produce more uniform yarn than a portable spindle does.

"Spinning (on a wheel) is just the coordination of head, mind and feet," said Isabel.

Yarns can be used in their natural color or dyed.

The Smuckers search for natural dyes, from such plants as goldenrod, black eyed susans and walnuts.

Christina dyes yarn by layering skeins of it with flowers in her copper boiler until it is half full. She then adds soft water and simmers the mixture.

She likens her dyeing process to brewing tea.

"The flowers are not boiled," she said. "The process needs delicate handling."

Christina says the same process can be used at home with white yarns from pure materials.

Once they have woven fabrics, they wash the material before making it into garments or household items. Their weaving.

Once they have woven the fabric, they wash it before making it into garments or household items. Because fabrics shrink somewhat in washing, they always allow for shrinkage when they dress the looms for weaving.

They sell their production at a shop in the barn loft. It features mostly Sherpa coats and tabards, many hand-embroidered; woven and embroidered wall hangings; some woven placemats; craft items made from nature and paintings by the third sister, Irene.

They are open to the public 1 p.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, April through December. Demonstrations are available by reservation for groups of 15 or more, at $1.50 per person.

The Smuckers send guests on their way by singing religious songs Christina composes.

Quincy Market Tempts All

BOSTON (UPI) — The wares of historic Quincy Market here are like a bag of peanuts. One taste leads to another. And another. And another.

You don't need good eyesight to develop an appetite, although that helps. The aromas that drift from the more than 50 food operations tempt even the strictest dieter.

Freshly baked bread and pastries and fancy French sausages and quiches hot from a microwave oven are only the beginning.

Among the foods we sampled on a recent visit were French friends — mildly spiced pork turnovers in puff pastry; herb-flavored sauce de Toulouse and boudins blanc, both French sausages designed to be eaten hot; Greek gyros — thin, pocket-shaped rolls filled with grilled lamb and salad; German weisswurst — veal and pork sausages; ginger cake ice cream, several varieties of French cheeses and a French loaf called an epi, great for picnics because its sawtooth edge is created from oval rolls that are easy to break off without crumbling.

Other shops and stalls sell such things as ice cream, fresh frozen, ready-to-cook pasta, fancy coffees and teas, herbs and spices, cheese, candy and confectionery, cookbooks, kitchen and housewares, pottery, "natural" and "organic" foods, freshly squeezed fruit and vegetable juices, fresh produce, tropical drinks made with such things as guava, papaya and passion fruit, prime meat, fancy poultry, game and fresh fish and seafood.

The French charcuterie where we bought friends and sausages specializes in ready-to-eat delicacies, including several varieties of quiches, cheese roulades with creamy Gruyere filling garnished with shredded Gruyere looking for all the world like sweet cream rolls with shredded coconut, ballotine of duck en croute with glazed orange garnish (like a large meat loaf in pastry crust), head cheese and a ground pork spread called rillettes.

Quincy was the first of three buildings to reopen as part of the Faneuil Hall Marketplace restoration begun in the mid-60s. Since it resumed business in August 1976, thousands of Bostonians and tourists have crowded it in all weather to snack, lunch, dine, shop and sightsee, not necessarily in that order.

Parents come with babes in arms and children in strollers. Many carry shopping bags to fill with food and drink for home consumption. Many snack as they stroll from stall to stall. Others breakfast, lunch or dine at marketplace cafes and restaurants in Quincy Market or the South Market that opened this past summer.

Quincy is unquestionably the biggest drawing card, although the retail stores, boutiques and galleries in the South Market are acquiring a following, too.

Faneuil Hall Marketplace, which restored and operates the shopping center, hopes North Market will be ready by next August. Like South Market, it will contain shops, restaurants and, on the upper floors, office space.

The Quincy for whom the central building is named was Josiah, mayor of Boston at the time the warehouses were erected more than 150 years ago. He had them built as an extension when the number of food wholesalers outgrew their existing space in adjacent Faneuil Hall. By the 1960s, only a few tenants remained in what had become a rundown area near the waterfront.

The restoration is in the shadow of Boston's new, ultramodern City Hall and the financial district, and within walking distance of the Haymarket where retail produce stalls and pushcarts cluster. A few blocks beyond that is the North End, the city's Italian neighborhood that is also known for its good food.

The marketplace's permanent merchants and restaurateurs are flanked by pushcart vendors who can book space for a week to a month in walkways between the buildings. The pushcart people rotate, but some have already given way

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It was either the Pope... or maybe one of the Hollywood Squares... who said that raising teenagers is the happiest part of your married life.

I don't know how rumors like that get started.

If I were any happier, they'd take away my blunt scissors and the water glass in my bathroom before I hurt myself.

At a gathering of the neighbors a few weeks ago, Lillian said, "You are all so lucky to have teenagers who drive. I can hardly wait. You have no idea how much of my time I spend running the kids around the car."

No one said anything, but I caught a glimpse of Helen, whose daughter had put up two broomsticks in front of the house to practice parallel parking and was cited for speeding — in reverse.

There was Midge, whose son pulled their station wagon into the garage, left it in neutral, closed the garage door and couldn't get the door open again when it rolled back into the lock.

There was Barbara, whose teenager had 17 temporary permits and on his last try when he ran over the curb and the inspector's foot asked, "Does this mean I don't get my license?"

Lillian prattled on. "You don't know how I envy all of you with teenagers who eat well. My children are so finicky they won't eat anything."

I looked at Maxine as she wistfully remembered getting a court order to remove her son, "Jaws," from in front of the refrigerator where he had not moved in three months.

I thought I saw Reba wince as she recalled the time she had us over for bridge and her son had eaten two pounds of assorted mints, three pounds of cashews, a three-quart tuna casserole and four straw coasters shaped like strawberries.

"Well, only a few more years," Lillian chirped, "and I won't need a babysitter. I'll be like the rest of you and have one who lives in."

I smiled wilyly remembering last New Year's Eve when my daughter met me at the door with her hand computer and said stiffly, "No personal checks, please."

"I think raising teenagers must be the happiest part of your married life," said Lillian.

Our heads jerked up. I got Lillian out of there quickly... for her own safety.

Parents, Make Mealtimes A Happy Time

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Is the dinner table a place for gripes and problems? I am 12 years old, and I am sick and tired of having my dinner spoiled by a lot of unpleasant conversation every night. I know my parents have to get it out of their systems — but at the dinner table?

I know that some adults out there will say, "Since when do children tell their parents what to do and when," but we kids have rights, too, and we should be able to enjoy a peaceful dinner at home. Besides, we're not TELLING our parents, we're just ASKING them to please let us have a nice dinner with pleasant conversation.

FED UP IN HAWAII

DEAR FED UP: I agree, children do have rights, and I hope this letter will remind parents to make mealtimes a happy time. Concentrate on what you're EATING—and not on what's eating YOU!

DEAR ABBY: While vacationing recently, my husband and I stayed at a lovely motor inn. When we left I took some ashtrays and glasses. These things had the name of the inn on them, and I thought they'd make nice souvenirs. I was under the impression that guests are expected to take such things as souvenirs, and the cost of the items is built into the price of the room. My husband says I am wrong.

Why then would they have their name on everything if not to advertise?

Are guests expected to take souvenirs?
THIEF OR COLLECTOR?

DEAR THIEF: I would advise against taking anything. Before checking out, ask the manager for a souvenir and he'll either sell—or give you one.

DEAR ABBY: Who made up that rule that only virgin brides may wear white? And does it still prevail?
CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: According to Edith Head, the celebrated fashion designer and expert on proper dress for all occasions, the ancient Roman brides were wrapped from head to toe in orange-colored veils.

In medieval times, the brides wore red! The first white wedding gown was worn by Anne of Brittany when she wed Louis XII in 1499.

To cite bridal attire of more modern times, Emily Post wrote in 1922: "Brides have been known to choose colors other than white. Silver is conventional and so is deep cream. But gold cloth is more suitable for a widow than a virgin maid."

In 1952, Amy Vanderbilt wrote: "The formal wedding gown is generally white or ivory, but delicate blue and pink are sometimes seen."

So in all the literature concerning proper bridal attire (and Miss Head says there is surprisingly little) there is actually no "rule" stating that only virgins may wear white.

DEAR ABBY: First you credited Emerson with the following quote: "Pay every debt like God wrote the bill."

Then a Florida editor took you to task, saying he knew Emerson couldn't have authored that quote because it contained a grammatical error. He further stated that on looking it up he found the correct quote to be: "Pay every debt AS IF God wrote the bill."

Your Florida critic is right as far as he goes, but he fails to point out that Emerson made a grammatical error at least as serious as using "like" for "as if," for which YOU were so triumphantly chastened.

Proper sequence of tenses demands this phrasing: "Pay every debt as if God HAD WRITTEN the bill."
PEDANTIC PUNDIT

DEAR PUNDIT: Thanks friend. I'm honored to share a gaffe with so distinguished a literary figure as Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Nobel Prize Could Be Costly To Peace Movement

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The award of a Nobel Peace Prize to Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan has put their peace movement back in the headlines, but it could heighten jealousies and divisions within the 14-month-old crusade.

The delayed award Monday of the 1976 prize to the two founders of Northern Ireland's Peace People underlined that the organization is more popular and respected abroad than it is at home.

This year's peace prize went to Amnesty International, the London-based group which works toward freedom for political prisoners.

Mrs. Williams, 34, and Miss Corrigan, 32, are considered heroines in the United States and in Western Europe. But in Northern Ireland their campaign to end eight years of warfare is beset by ideological squabbles, dwindling support and criticism of the women's leadership.

A hard-core membership of 8,000 doggedly press on, braving terrorist threats and abuse to try to bring the warring Roman Catholics and Protestants together. But much of the crusade's early support has fizzled out.

"We haven't really stopped the violence and we've hardly dented sectarianism at all," one peace worker commented bitterly. "But we stick to it because the only alternative is continuing violence and the rule of the gun."

The movement was launched Aug. 10, 1976, after a guerrilla's runaway automobile killed three small Catholic children in Belfast. Their deaths set off an emotional tidal wave that brought scores of thousands of Protestants and Catholics together for the first time in years. Though the violence continues, the fervor has gradually diminished.

Foreign tours by Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan made them media superstars. But local critics said they should travel less and work more on the grim realities at home. Leaders of less publicized peace groups were angered.

Mrs. Williams, Miss Corrigan and the third member of the Peace People triumvirate, former journalist Ciaran McKeown, are all Catholics. So is the majority of the Peace People's members. This has fostered widespread distrust among the province's million-strong Protestant majority.

McKeown's radical politics is another divisive force. He has declared several times that the organization is a radical political force and argues passionately that an egalitarian state is the solution to Northern Ireland's troubles. But the Peace People's first assembly last week resolved to stay out of politics. Yet the Peace People have been more successful than any other pacifist group in breaking down hostility between the two religious communities. Protestants and Catholics are working together in small groups trying to forge a new unity. Though the gains have been modest, they believe they are chipping away at the sectarian barrier. "We don't have a political solution," Miss Corrigan told a reporter after the Nobel award was announced. "But in the Peace People we have got a model of a nonviolent community, and I think the people of Northern Ireland are beginning to realize that there's something beautiful growing here."

Four Accidents Here Yesterday

Four traffic collisions here yesterday resulted in an estimated $5,300 property damage, according to Greenville Police Department investigators.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:25 p.m. mishap on Charles Street, 600 feet South of the Red Banks Road intersection, involving cars driven by Charlotte Clifton Dickerson of Winterville and Hubert Carl Buck of Route 2, Greenville.

Police, who reported Dickerson and a passenger in his car were injured, charged the driver with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Dickerson car and $500 to the Buck auto.

Johnnie Ray Thorne of Route 1, Pinetops and a passenger in the car he was driving were reported injured in a 10:45 a.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth Street and the Nursing Home Road.

Police said the Thorne car collided with an auto driven by Eleanor Barr Coleman of 1003 East Fifth St., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Thorne auto and $1,000 damage to the Coleman car.

Helen Jarvis Lee of Arapahoe was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:47 p.m. mishap in the 300 block of Arlington Drive.

Investigators reported the Lee car collided with an auto driven by George Russell Moores of 1501 Willow St., causing an estimated $500 damage to the Moores car and $200 damage to the Lee vehicle.

Cars operated by Danny Lee Wells of Route 5, Washington and Melton Earl Joyner Jr. of Ayden collided about 4:35 p.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 50 feet North of the Truman Street intersection.

Investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $175 to the Wells car and $125 to the Joyner vehicle.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The Penalty of Forced Retirement

From the day my husband was forced to retire he became depressed and quickly developed all kinds of real and imaginary symptoms. Almost overnight he changed from a healthy person, full of vitality, to a chronic invalid whose life has no purpose. Since I am still actively teaching at a high school, his displacement from society has ruined both of our lives. Doesn't this deserve a medical column? — Mrs. G.E., Ohio.

Dear Mrs. E.: It most certainly does. I have previously written about my own reaction to the arbitrary displacement of a man or woman from a job during the still highly productive periods of their lives.

And the handwriting on the wall portends that more and more people will be forcefully retired at even earlier ages.

Interest by many social groups is now centered around making retirement a voluntary choice rather than a compulsory ruling. For any mandatory retirement plan deprives the individual of the opportunity to fulfill his life in the happiest, most productive way he knows how.

Sociologists consider mandatory retirement to be morally wrong. The right to earn a living, the right to continue creativity and productivity must not be taken away from those who draw the greatest satisfaction from their working endeavors.

Your husband's reaction is a familiar one. Many people, so displaced, find that their horizons of hope are modified. Impaired physical and emotional health are frequently the end result of being made to feel not needed and not wanted. The enormous progress of modern medicine has added 15 to 18 years of life to men and women. Unless these years are filled with a sense of personal dignity and unless the elderly continue to be wanted and respected in society, this gift of years becomes a burden of despair.

Nursing homes throughout the country are a sad testimonial to the fact that our social advances have not kept pace with our medical progress. Hundreds of thousands of elderly people, prematurely separated from their life's endeavor, are being warehoused in a static, monotonous prison of loneliness.

I asked a patient of mine who had been retired against his wishes what it was that he missed most. Surprisingly, he said, "The thing that I miss most are my vacations." Within the framework of this thought lies the need to earn the rewards of living rather than to be handed them through a government agency.

For the many whose work is a source of creative satisfaction and self-respect, forced retirement is a penalty they do not deserve.

Odds Are Against Free Press

Americans don't always appreciate the unique privileges we enjoy, thanks to our magnificent Constitution.

We can freely express our opinions in this country and generally we can read what we want.

We don't think it is always fully understood how closely these two freedoms are allied. Freedom of the press is occasionally under attack these days, and newspapers are described as too powerful.

Yet if we chip away at freedom of the press we can be certain that we will be undercutting freedom of speech and expression at the same time.

Since Watergate, the cry is heard at times from those in public office, that the press can bring down anyone in a public position.

In fact the press has no power at all except the printed word, the same words that individual citizens may speak under the Constitutional guarantees.

The real power lies with the elected officials and the vast bureaucracy of government. It controls huge armies of government workers, and an array of regulatory agencies that could bring any citizenry in line.

That tremendous power of government can only be held in check with words — words that citizens utter and newspapers and other publications print. If it looks like the odds are against us, they are. That is why every citizen should resolve to utilize to the utmost these freedoms that our Constitution guarantees us.

This is National Newspaper Week, but perhaps it ought to be National Freedom of Expression Week. That might make us all more cognizant of the individual roles we play in making a democracy work.

Dark Outlook And Little Preparedness

State officials and power companies see possible shortages of coal and electricity this winter.

If there are no shortages, the officials see increased costs of electricity because of higher coal prices.

It is all part of an energy picture that potentially could be bleak for North Carolinians this winter. And yet the nation still doesn't have any semblance of an adequate energy management program.

THIS AFTERNOON

Changes From 2nd Term

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Allowing a governor to seek a second term in North Carolina would have effects on other State government activities beyond the Governor's Office.

Whether such change would be for better or worse, the voters will decide November 8. But experts with the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill have put together a report on the proposed gubernatorial Succession Amendment which pinpoints some of the anticipated shifts.

Admitting that some of the results detailed in the report "involves some speculation," the Institute feels the discussion will help citizens make up their minds.

In the General Assembly, says the Institute report, "Fear that two-term gubernatorial succession would upset the executive-legislative balance of power could bring even further reforms."

Not Certain
Greater influence for the governor "is not a certainty," and while relationships would depend on the individual officeholders involved, the Institute report predicts that,

"a reaction is inevitable."

Among the possible changes in the General Assembly: House and Senate leadership would tend to remain in power longer; local legislative election campaigns may get mixed up with gubernatorial politics; lawmakers would be less inclined to buck a two-term governor, and some in disfavor might choose to drop out.

The governor's program is usually the most important items placed before legislators for consideration and action. The closely-related budget also comes from the governor. Having eight years (or the prospects of that) would give the governor more of an advantage in that respect, the Institute feels.

In addition, expanded ability to administer the budget, fill job vacancies (and judgeships), and make appointments to state boards and commissions should give a two-term governor "more persuasion with the Legislature than a Governor who can do those things for only four years. A legislator might well find it harder to oppose a Governor who could still be around seven years later than to oppose a Governor who he is sure will be gone in three."

Local Elections

Such pressures and changed relationships "might even begin to play a part in legislative election campaigns . . . legislative candidates might try to ride (the Governor's) coattails; or if the Governor was faring badly, they might run against his program . . . the Governor himself might want to campaign for or against key legislators to improve the chances for success of his program . . . state politics would become more important in what are now essentially local campaigns for legislative seats, also increasing the chances for splitting the State's political parties into factions," the report notes.

Given a two-term governor possibility, and the same for the lieutenant governor who presides over the Senate, "There is also the possibility that North Carolina, where the Legislature is known for its frequent turn-over of membership and leadership, will come to more closely resemble some of its neighboring states, where long legislative careers bring considerable power," the Institute stated. Some who might have aspired to two top posts would be forced to settle for lesser leadership roles in the General Assembly, and seek to hold them longer to enlarge that power.

Conflicts between the governor and the lieutenant governor could also be intensified if both hold office for longer periods, and the relationships between the governor and the other elected members of the Council of State (school superintendent, treasurer, labor commissioner, auditor, insurance commissioner, agriculture commissioner, secretary of state) could also either improve or deteriorate depending on personalities and issues.

Statewide, political activities focussing on the Office of Governor would also be affected, including traditional early jockeying for position by potential candidates, timing of announcements, party activities by hopefuls, timing of key political maneuvers, etc.

THAT WELCOME FALL INTERLUDE!

MORRIS

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

JISP, Son Of FAP

This was the way the headline read, a couple of weeks ago: "Moynihan Unhappy at Welfare Plans." From the news story, it appeared that Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who had praised the President's welfare program in August, had changed his mind in October. Now he found it "grievously disappointing."

"My God," cried the junior senator from New York, "it's certainly not liberal legislation."

For all practical purposes, the senator's pronouncement made it unanimous. Heavens to Betsy, I would add, it certainly is not conservative legislation either. What we have, in Mr. Carter's Job and Income Security Program, is a direct descendant of Mr. Nixon's ill-fated Family Assistance Program. The same causes that brought the death of FAP are likely to kill off JISP as well. And fine with me.

One hates to be excessively critical, for today's welfare mess is precisely as Mr. Carter has described it: A mess. The several programs are shot through with fraud and maladministration. The present system tends to encourage a status of permanent dependency. Almost any change, it might be supposed, would represent an improvement. But liberals and conservatives alike are discovering, as they dig more deeply into Mr. Carter's program, that often it is indeed better to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of.

The White House asserts, in defense of JISP, that Mr. Carter's program would "simplify" the administration of public welfare. The President would abolish Food Stamps, Supplementary Security Income and Aid to Families with Dependent Children. In their place he would substitute a single uniform, nationwide program of cash assistance. This sounds simpler. But on close examination, it becomes evident that the proposed reforms are far more complicated than the existing programs; they would require vastly more checking and monitoring by inspectors and auditors; they would not reduce the number of welfare claimants, but rather would make the number greater still.

When the President first started tinkering with "welfare reform," he was confident that a more equitable plan could be devised at no higher price. He knows better now. At the federal level, welfare now costs about $27.9 billion a year. Mr. Carter would raise that sum to $30.7 billion, but that is only for starters. The White House projection gives no account to $3.4 billion that would be lost to the Treasury through Mr. Carter's income tax credit proposals. These days, everything gets inflated. In net added costs to the Treasury, we are talking of a price tag around $36 billion.

A line could not be held even at that figure. Once JISP were written into law, Congress would confront an irresistible temptation to raise the level of cash assistance in every election year. The Carter program is compounded like a basic recipe for lemonade: Add sweeteners as desired.

The President's greatest problem, as Senator Moynihan's blast made clear, is that the White House has no constituency for this bill. Almost everyone is vaguely in favor of "welfare reform," but few persons feel passionate on the issue. Take away the federal bureaucrats, and whom do you have left? Welfare claimants might provide a potent constituency in themselves, but people on welfare instinctively distrust the name of "reform." Well they might. As a general

Announcement was received from Washington that the Greenville Water and Light Commission had been approved as agent for the Electric Home and Farm Authority, a federal agency, making low cost financing available to Greenville residents purchasing electrical appliances from local dealers.

It was understood that the local commission was the first in the state to be approved, although other cities had applied for agencies.

The plan was designed to save purchasers time and money. Instead of having to pay installments at various places, a person could make payments along with the water, gas and electric bill.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Castro's Angola Dilemma

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Deeply his commitment to Third World buccaneering, Fidel Castro is desperate to reduce his military involvement and embarrassing losses in Angola by seeking a Communist partner, East Germany — so far with no success.

Castro certainly does not want to weaken the world's perception of Communist Cuba's desire to export Marxist revolution. Rather, he asked help from the East Germans because he badly needs a temporary reprieve from an increasingly impossible mission: stamping out the civil war waged in Angola by Lucas Savimbi's guerrillas against the Soviet-backed Marxist government of Agostinho Neto. The only reason Neto has survived is intervention by Castro's Africa Corps.

In return for Castro's indispensable help in propping up the Kremlin's shaky man in Angola, the Soviet Union sends massive subsidies to prop up the shaky Cuban economy. Yet, in President Carter's State Department, this crucial service performed by Castro for the Soviet Union is deemed inconsequential. It is "no burning issue" Assistant Secretary of State Richard Moose recently told reporters.

What is "no burning issue" to Moose, top U.S. African policymaker, is Moscow's indispensable tool to penetrate deeper into black Africa at Western expense. But the tool, Fidel Castro, is getting trapped in a political quagmire from which he can find no way to withdraw.

Instead of fulfilling his "pledge" last year to then Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme to withdraw his 13,000 to 15,000 Cuban troops at a 200-a-week rate, Castro actually has been increasing his military commitment. During this past summer, five Cuban transport convoys are believed to have sailed to Angola from Cuba with troops and both military and civilian advisers.

There is little doubt here that this was a net reinforcement to bolster Neto's precarious situation following the barely aborted coup attempted against Neto last May. Cuban help was vital for Neto.

The troop reinforcements probably put Castro's Africa Corps close to 20,000. Despite the increase, Castro's shrouded efforts to reduce his staggering commitment are no longer doubted by Cuban experts here; nor is his growing concern about the domestic political impact of his Angola escapade.

Castro's brother and power-sharer, Raoul, is believed to have made a direct approach for help to East Germany during his visit there two months ago. One argument: the dispatch of tough, pro-Western Moroccan troops to protect pro-Western Zaire from a Soviet-financed invasion by mercenaries based in Angola poses a new threat to Castro's own troops in Angola. Fraternal Communist forces — principally East German — were accordingly needed to share the burden with Castro. So far, there have been no takers in East Germany.

Castro is showing signs of deep concern over Cuban casualties in Angola, and the

Dissatisfaction When Corked

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — When the cork stays in the bottle, which is to say when the boss stays beyond his expected retirement date, the dissatisfaction among ambitious managers below him spreads like a disease.

And now that mandatory retirement at age 65 is increasingly considered discriminatory, that disease might plague American corporations, causing them to lose some of their best managers and embittering others.

"Every time a chief executive leaves his position, 8 to 10 per cent of managers below typically receive changes in assignments as well as salary adjustments," Eugene Jennings, a management authority, points out.

"If the chief executive stays two years longer than the old mandatory retirement age, more managers who were just mildly disturbed before are unhappy. At three years there's a management exodus."

Jennings, management professor at Michigan State University, has spent three decades studying the corporation. He has authored many books on the subject and is a confidential adviser to corporate chairmen and presidents.

"If the chief executive stays five years longer than the existing mandatory retirement age one can see the possibility of hundreds if not thousands of executives having their hopes dashed on the corporate wall," he said.

"In the 500 largest industrial corporations, for example, 35,000 managerial personnel would be reduced to the condition of uncertainty, leading possibly to unhappiness and dissatisfaction." The ripple effect of just one person declining to retire when expected is sometimes overlooked by those studying the impact of delayed retirements, Jennings feels. But that effect cannot be isolated, he observed.

In one corporation of 250,000 employees and 15,000 managers, he said, the retirement of the chief executive meant reassignments for more than 1,700 employees. Had the top man not left, many of those managers might have.

"Usually I have noted that among 100 candidates for president or chairman, 15 per cent will leave to make it elsewhere," regardless of retirement policy. "But when the chief executive stays on, another 10 per cent or so will leave," he said.

"This means that when the chief executive stays, the quit rate among eligibles is close to 25 per cent, depending on how long he stays," said Jennings, adding:

"As long as the candidates can expect the chief to retire they can deal with the problem of making it or not. But add the uncertainty about retirement and it becomes too much. They look elsewhere."

The problem for the individual in such cases is the possible loss of what they feel is life's biggest prize. Candidates for the top jobs are aware that the "window ages," where they are observed, is 45-50 for president, and 51-56 for chairman.

They understand, said Jennings, that they must get their faces in the window at these ages. And if the top man stays, they either pass the window and out of the picture, or they transfer while they have the time. The stress and perhaps chaos in their lives is matched at the corporate level, where "in companies where the plug stays in an indeterminate time, the candidates left are relatively old or very young."

When the frustrated manager moves to another company, he sometimes does so only on the assurance that he can be a viable candidate. But if the top man there also stays on, "it might increase dissatisfaction with the whole system."

Recognizing that the problem is personal, societal, corporate and economic, and that defenses can be argued for both early and late retirements, Jennings made no attempt during the interview to defend one position or another.

He sometimes sympathizes with the top man, and in fact has advised him on how to convince the board he should be permitted to stay on. He feels there is a healthy aspect for society in that bottled up talent is often redistributed to companies that can effectively use it.

Be he observes also that there are consequences within corporations whose impact might be felt far beyond their walls.

Strength For Today

TOO MUCH TO SWALLOW

A very rare fossil of a fish which lived millions of years ago was recently acquired by one of our largest museums. The striking fact about this fossil is that the fish died trying to swallow another fish which was too big to go down his gullet. So for millions of years the fish and its half-swallowed prey have been preserved for us in the hard clay of the ocean floor.

This ancient fish is symbolic of a persistent human tendency. There are millions of people all over the world who are desperately trying to swallow more than they can get down their throats. They die in a mad race for wealth, or sensation and indulgence. Many seek fame, or the satisfaction of exercising their power over other people.

Often these people have pleasant epitaphs written on their tombstones. The symbol of the fish dying in its attempt to swallow another fish would be more fitting.

FBI Director Nominee Again Ordered Rest

By SCOTT SHEPARD
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., who "over did" it preparing for Senate confirmation hearings on his appointment as FBI director, will spend the next "week to 10 days" resting in bed.

The hearings were to begin today, but were postponed by the Senate Judiciary Committee after Johnson left Washington on Monday complaining of exhaustion.

The 58-year-old judge, who underwent surgery Aug. 26 to correct an aneurysm of the abdominal aorta, was met at the Montgomery airport Monday evening by his brother, Jimmy, and taken to his physician for an examination.

Dr. J.J. Kirschenfeld said Johnson was "basically in good health" although "some swelling" in the area of the abdominal wall caused "a good deal of discomfort" for the judge.

Kirschenfeld said the problem was not serious enough to require hospitalization, so he ordered the judge to spend the next "week to 10 days" resting in bed.

Johnson's condition, said the physician, was brought on by the judge trying to come back to work "too fast, too soon" following his surgery.

Johnson underwent surgery shortly after President Carter announced last August he had selected the judge to succeed Clarence M. Kelly as head of the federal crime-fighting agency.

The surgery to correct an aneurysm—a ballooning of an artery resulting from disease or injury—was performed in Houston by noted vascular surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey, who termed the operation a success and said Johnson would "make a healthy FBI director."

Kirschenfeld said Monday that Johnson "over did it" in Washington the past seven days attending briefings by the FBI and Justice Department.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell said through a spokesman that Johnson was "probably about two weeks ahead of himself and over-exerting himself."

Regarding the postponement of confirmation hearings, Bell said, "It's just a delay. It's nothing serious."

A spokesman in the office of U.S. Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., said the hearings probably would be delayed until the end of the year. Kelley, who took office in July, 1973, is retiring Jan. 1.

Johnson's busy schedule in Washington included courtesy calls on members of the Judiciary Committee, none of whom had indicated opposition to his appointment.

Before his release, Johnson sent the Judiciary Committee copies of his income tax returns and other information about personal finances.

Committee aides who have examined the records said they saw nothing to indicate any conflict of interest or other problem that might interfere with confirmation.

If confirmed by the Senate, Johnson will serve a 10-year term as FBI director. Under the law he would not be eligible for reappointment.

proposition, poor people are better off in the hands of their oppressors than in the arms of their benefactors.

Most of the truly important elements of Mr. Carter's plan already have been written into law. Federal welfare statutes already contain stiff work, requirements; the Food Stamp program already has been made more generous, so that it amounts to a veritable guaranteed annual income. The administration already has taken significant steps to cut down on fraud.

My thought would be to hang onto the news we have, which is at least a known and familiar mess, and to make haste slowly in fashioning "reforms." Mr. Carter's warmed-over hash made no hits with Senator Moynihan, and the senator has a chef's credentials. After all, Pat Moynihan was father to FAP.

'Gang Of Four' Preoccupies Chinese

By LOUIS D. BOCCARDI
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — Wherever visitors go today in China — newspaper office, middle school, factory, commune, university, fishing village — the one thing they are certain to hear is an attack on the "Gang of Four."

It is a national preoccupation. In a 16-day visit, a group of Associated Press executives and directors heard the purged radical leaders blamed for almost every conceivable setback China suffered in recent years, but particularly in the 13 months since the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. The format soon became familiar. Our host — perhaps the leader of a factory — would outline briefly what the factory makes, how large it is and so on. Then, quickly, a reference to how the workers are "deepening the criticism" of the radicals and trying to repair the damage done by their supporters.

The Gang of Four, now apparently under a form of house arrest, were Chiang Ching, Mao's widow; Wang Hung-wen, former party vice chairman; Yao Wen-yuan, a former Politburo member, and former Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao. These are a few of the things we heard them blamed for: —Excessive earthquake damage last year, because their interference retarded research into earthquake prediction. —Curtailed output at the Peking Arts and Crafts Factory, where they convinced some workers that making vases and other traditional objects was a waste of time. —Poisoning the minds of workers and students with the idea that there was no need to learn trades or work hard and that all they needed to do was to study Mao.

The list goes on and on. It is difficult to envision an American counterpart to this aspect of the Chinese experience.

It had been reported in the Western press that Mao's successor, Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, and the 11th Party Congress in August ordered the criticism campaign. But the scope of it, and the intensity with which China's leaders are pressing it, come clear only when one hears it day after day at stop after stop through the length of China.

Immediately after Mao's death in September 1976, the radicals apparently made their move to succeed him. Reports from the limited number of Western correspondents in China, and even reports carried by the controlled Chinese media, told of armed clashes in some of China's cities between Hua's supporters and those of the Gang of Four.

The nature of the dispute between them is complex. Mao's widow and her allies claimed to be following Mao's true line. They stressed Mao's thoughts while they accused the other side of stressing material production, of diluting the master's teachings.

Hua's side accused the radicals of trying to create chaos so that with the government unable to cope, the radicals could take over. And Hua's side, too, covered itself with Mao's mantle, saying that what they were doing was consistent with Mao.

Last October, a month after Mao's death, Hua moved, arresting the gang and setting the stage for the criticism campaign.

100 Squirrels Being Evicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shortage of peanuts is sending 100 squirrels packing from a park in front of the White House to a new home.

The squirrels, lacking a steady diet of peanuts from the patrons of Lafayette Park, have been dining on the square's geraniums and beech trees. A government spokesman estimates damage at $5,000 since early spring.

So federal agents have been catching the squirrels in the dead of night and ushering them off to suburban woodlands where, the government says, the menu is better.

George Berkclacy of the National Park Service blamed the problem on an unusually high number of squirrels coupled with a peanut shortfall caused by lower park attendance during a frigid winter and torrid summer. Even 200 pounds of peanuts donated by the park service didn't help; the squirrels went through the goobers and into geraniums.

"One day," said William Ruback, the park's manager said, "I came to inspect a bed of geraniums and it looked like someone had taken a lawnmower and chopped them down."

The service wants no comparison with the 1955 deportation of squirrels from former President Eisenhower's putting green. That move caused a small furor; the late Sen. Richard Neuberger, D-Ore., denounced the project on the Senate floor; a Save the White House Squirrels Fund was started; and two fence manufacturers offered to enclose the putting green for free.

The schemes were called off after Press Secretary James Hagerty said the three offending squirrels had already been removed to the city's Rock Creek Park.

treaty now before the Senate, would be commissioned "a full bird colonel" and provided with a white horse to lead the troops.

Reagan wrote Burton, "I thought you'd like to know that the cavalry never uses white horses. They make too good a target — or was that what you had in mind?"

Burton wrote back acknowledging the point was well taken and that he would "never want to see a horse exposed to unnecessary danger."

He said he would consider an amendment to provide a palomino or strawberry roan.

Without waiting for the House to complete action on an ethics code for its employees, Rep. Newton Steers Jr., R-Md., drew up one for his staff that among other things prohibits attempts to fix traffic tickets, using official stationery to lend weight to personal complaints or requests, and accepting gifts worth more than $10.

That limit, he said, "permits social gestures, such as a box of candy or some flowers."

Gifts offered and returned because of the ban include two radio sets, tickets to various events, elaborate books, lithographs and a solar-powered hand calculator.

Aiken Plans Visit Center

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's top mental health official has agreed to go to O'Berry Mental Retardation Center in Goldsboro to discuss conditions there with its director and Lonnie Butler, a critic of operations at the center.

Ben W. Aiken, director of the state mental health division, said he had decided on a personal visit after a two-hour meeting with Butler Monday. Aiken said he plans to make the visit in early November.

Butler and three other men who criticized O'Berry's administration were dropped last month from a human rights committee appointed to be responsible for human rights at the center.

One of the three, James Carter, attended Monday's meeting with Aiken and Ann Wolfe, state director of mental retardation.

Gov. Jim Hunt questioned Butler's removal last week and ordered the Human Resources Department to look into it. "We need more of these boat-rockers," he said.

Aiken said he was particularly concerned over the allegations of Butler and Carter that the human rights committee met at the call of O'Berry director Jose M. deVarona.

Aiken said the committee is supposed to be independent and not an arm of the director.

deVarona said last month that the four men were removed, at his recommendation, as part of a "reorganization" of the committee required by the state.

Dreams Of Fortune In Motorcycle Stickers

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Chuck Fowler, the motorcyclist's friend, is trying to turn a momentary flash of brilliance into a national bumper sticker campaign he hopes will improve public regard for cyclists. He also hopes it will make him rich.

Fowler, 37, a computer designer from Chicago, told his motorcycle club last month he was going to print a bumper sticker that read: "Have you hugged your motorcycle today?" To his astonishment he was offered money for extra copies.

Sent to North Carolina shortly afterward on a computer assignment at Research Triangle Park, Fowler found a Raleigh printer and had 1,500 of the stickers printed up.

He took them along on trips to a cycle rally and a drag race and on a weekend visit home in Chicago and sold all of them at $1 apiece.

"By the following Monday the cycle shops I had sold them to in Chicago had sold them all and they were calling my fiance asking for more," Fowler said. "This thing has a heavy emotional impact on bikers."

Back in Raleigh, he gave all the stickers he had left to a cycle dealer bound for a dealer's convention in New Orleans. The dealer told him all the stickers were sold within 40 minutes of his arrival and he had orders for another 1,000.

By now Fowler suspected he had stumbled on something big and began contacting executives and advertising officials of major cycle manufacturers.

He says they told him he could expect to sell as many as 10 million of his stickers and offered free help with financing and distribution. Fowler had already arranged on his own for an advertisement in Cycle News he expects will bring him 2.5 million orders.

"This thing is amazing," he says. "I took one out in a shoe store to show it to a friend the other day and I sold two on the spot to people who saw it."

Fowler, who has already dabbled in antique clock repair, motorcycle sales, disco dance school operating and an odd assortment of other sidelines, is now contemplating a career as a cycle-oriented inventor.

He already has an agreement with a rainwear manufacturer, he says, to design "the best rain suit ever made" for motorcyclists, and another company is working up a prototype of a cycle accessory he designed but doesn't want to talk about yet.

In the meantime, he is content in his role as self-appointed ambassador of good will between the cycle world and the society that believes motorcyclists are gangsters.

"If we could get one of these bumper stickers on every car in this country," he mused, "we could convince people that normal people ride motorcycles."

"Stedman Corporation manufactures fabrics, sportswear and underwear. The textile industry is a very competitive business. We have to keep our operating costs down to give our customers the most for their dollar.

"So when it came to choosing a health care plan for our employees, we chose Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage. They keep their operating costs down, too.

"Now, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina is showing our employees exactly how this fringe benefit is working for them. Each month, they send a personal Health Care Benefits Summary to our people who have incurred claims, listing what those claims were for and what was paid. It certainly helps people keep track of their health care expenses. And they can see what they're getting in Blue Cross and Blue Shield benefits.

"We have over 1,000 employees covered at six different locations. That amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars. And we want those dollars used as wisely as possible. So naturally, we have to look at all the options. We are convinced that, because of their excellent coverage and low operating costs, Blue Cross and Blue Shield gives us more value for the dollar than anyone else.

"Our employees are getting excellent coverage, and now they're receiving comprehensive reports that tell them what that coverage means, whenever they use it. When you come up with innovative programs like this and still operate so efficiently, you're making a good impression on Stedman."

"They give us value for the dollar, and they show our people how that dollar is spent."

Drop Ayden Rezoning Request Congress Moving On Child Pornography Bill With Senate's Action

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board last night accepted a withdrawal for a request to rezone an area of land between East Second Street and East

Third Street from B-2 Commercial to R-8 Residential. The store owner who had originally requested the rezoning said that he no longer wanted it, and the Board complied. The area will remain B-2 Commercial. In other business, a new electric policy was adopted requiring deposits on all rental property. The new deposits may be refunded after 12 months if the party has a good credit history.

Also, commercial and industrial property must make electrical deposits which may be refunded after six months. A Resolution of Intent concerning the electrical deposits was also adopted. It provides that deposits on old accounts will be refunded within five years.

The Board also recommended that the Mayor and Town Clerk enter into an agreement with the N.C. Department of Transportation to erect railroad advance warning signs at all railroad crossings in town.

The estimated cost to Ayden would be $31.40. Payment of the signs is being made on a 90-10 percent basis. The federal government will pay 90 percent and Ayden must pay the remaining 10 percent or $31.40.

The advance warning signs are to be placed at six locations in town and will be installed by personnel from the Department of Transportation.

In other action, the Board recommended the re-appointment of Mrs. J.R. Lowry and Mrs. Johnny Williams to a three-year term on the Recreation Commission.

The Board also recommended a public hearing be held on Nov. 14, to discuss paving assessments on Edgewood, Montague and Seventh Streets in town.

Bids were opened at the meeting for the sale of two pickup trucks, a 1973 police sedan, and a 1952 tractor. The Board voted to sell the surplus property to the highest bidder. The 1964 truck went for $65, the 1966 truck for $65, the police sedan for $250, and the tractor for $156.

A public hearing was also set for Nov. 14 to discuss a rezoning request for two lots on West Avenue belonging to Wayland McGlohon and Donald Carrol. The request asked that the area be changed from R-8 Residential to B-1 Business.

The area borders the business zone in downtown Ayden. The Town Board also accepted the 1977 tax releases and additions. Taxes released amounted to $167.95 and those added were approximately $6,400.

Some previous taxes were also added which dated back to 1973. Inventory errors on taxes accounted for an additional $75.79 to be added.

Also, the budget was amended so that approximately $12,400 could be brought under general funds, specifically salary funds to be used for janitorial services for the new town hall on West Avenue.

The Board also came out in support of the Department of Transportation's upcoming $300,000,000 highway bond to be voted on in the general election. No additional taxes will be required from the taxpayers.

Congress Moving On Child Pornography Bill With Senate's Action

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is moving closer to adopting a bill outlawing child pornography, which one lawmaker says has exploded into a multi-million dollar business using children as young as three.

The latest step was an 85-1 vote in the Senate Monday night for passage of a bill outlawing the use of children under 16 in the production of pornographic magazines, films and other materials. It also bars the interstate sale and distribution of such materials. The measure is similar to one passed recently by the House. But still another bill of this nature is expected to be acted on by the House next week, so the final form of the legislation is yet to be determined.

The Senate bill provides for fines of up to $10,000 and imprisonment for two to 10 years for a first conviction. For a second conviction, the penalties would be fines of up to $15,000 and imprisonment for five to 15 years.

An amendment offered by Sen. William Roth Jr., R-Del., and adopted on a 73-12 vote, would provide the same penalties for the sale or distribution of materials depicting sexually explicit conduct by children.

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, floor manager of the bill, called Roth's amendment "overkill." He said it might lead to a successful court challenge of the constitutionality of the measure, based on possible violation of the First Amendment, resulting in the entire bill being struck down and enabling those who use children in pornography "to walk away scot-free."

Roth said that the amendment's constitutionality undoubtedly would be challenged, but he predicted such cases would be viewed in a different light from other obscenity cases because the exploitation of children was involved.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, in acting on the bill earlier, had rejected Roth's amendment by a 9-4 vote.

Another section of the bill amends the Mann Act, which now bans the interstate transportation of females under 18 years of age to engage in prostitution, so it would apply to males as well.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., also won voice vote approval of an amendment making it a violation of the Mann Act to transport such young people across state lines to engage in sexually explicit conduct other than prostitution. Bayh said he had live sex shows in mind.

Before final passage of the measure, Culver said there has been "an explosion" in recent years in the use of children in pornography and prostitution and it now is a highly organized, multimillion dollar business on a nationwide scale.

"Some of these children are only 5 and 6 years old, even as young as 3 years old," he told the Senate.

DEBUT OF A SATELLITE — Dr. Peter Goldmark, communications expert who devised television systems used in lunar transmissions, discusses a model of the INTELSAT V, advanced communications satellite. Dr. Goldmark spoke to a seminar during the International Telecommunication Exposition in Atlanta on Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

Plan Adult Education Via Satellite System

ATLANTA (AP) — A number of community colleges across the country are planning a cooperative effort using satellites to provide low-cost adult education courses to rural areas.

Dr. Peter Goldmark, who developed the television system used in lunar television transmissions, said Monday the colleges have joined with his Connecticut communications firm to develop a system that bypasses the already crowded television channels with a satellite capable of beaming 100 different half-hour programs simultaneously to ground stations.

The system could "offer health education at various levels in rural hospitals, convalescent and senior citizens' homes and penal institutions throughout the country," Goldmark said during a seminar at the International Telecommunications Exposition.

Goldmark said the system, called Rapid Transmission and Storage, or RTS, uses a one-hour video tape reel that can store up to 120 half-hour programs to be transmitted to earth by a powerful signal.

"This system permits us to make satellite transmissions available to the widest possible audience across the nation at the least possible cost by making the satellite signal strong enough to be picked up by a small and simple ground receiver," he said.

Pilot programs are currently being established in areas near Charlotte, N.C., Kansas City, Los Angeles, Chicago, Eugene, Ore., and Costa Mesa, Calif.

Goldmark said the sponsors include the ACCESS Group of Community College districts, North Carolina's Rural Renaissance Project and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

He said the programs eventually could include courses for adults and school children in rural areas, vocational training and self-help programs.

Goldmark said he envisions 10,000 or more RTS centers around the country, but he added that the satellite system is not designed to replace or compete with conventional classroom education.

Turning To 'Hen Power'

WEST UNION, Iowa (AP) — Electricity generated from chicken manure is lighting up the henhouse on a northeast Iowa farm.

An Agriculture Department spokesman says waste from the 160,000 chickens contains enough methane gas to provide power to 200 average homes.

The $100,000 experimental operation "is to farming what the Wright brothers' airplane was to flying — a beginning," said one of the developers.

Engraved invitations were sent out, and there were state and USDA officials present for the unveiling of the hen-power setup Monday at the Heying Enterprises Farm. Former Iowa Sen. Hilarius Heying and his family put up half the money for the experiment.

"This is a first," noted Carl Larson, representing the USDA Department of Rural Development. "We in government are interested because we want to see farmers use such farm wastes for the betterment of our country."

Rod Riggs, director of the Iowa State Energy Policy Council, pushed the button that sent electricity from the methane-fired generator into the laying house complex.

He said he hoped the production of methane gas from Iowa's chicken manure could offset the nation's dependence on foreign oil.

Offer Artists Entry Service

Artists in the Greenville area who plan to enter the annual Springs Art Show in Lancaster, S.C. may use a regional entry service at East Carolina University.

Those using this service must deliver work, with entry forms attached, to the Jenkins Building on campus no later than 9 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 14. At that time, a Spring Mills truck will pick up the entries and deliver them to the art show in Lancaster. Entries submitted on campus will be returned to the Jenkins Building at the end of the show.

Robert Edmiston and Tran Gordley will coordinate this service.

Elitist Image Is Largely False

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most private school students are not wealthy. A recent study by the National Association of Independent Schools indicates one third now come from families with incomes of $25,000 or less. It also showed that 41 per cent of last year's new students were the first in their families to attend prep school. Minority enrollments have quadrupled nationally in recent years.

Amtrak Wants 353 New Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak wants to buy 353 new passenger cars as part of a five-year plan submitted to the White House and Congress for approval.

The 177-page document released Monday also projected an increase in passengers from 18.6 million last year to 26 million in 1982.

Amtrak wants to buy 53 high-speed electric engines for use between Boston and Washington, and 15 diesel locomotives.

A reserve fleet of 200 cars and 30 locomotives should be available for a quick upsurge in ridership, such as during an energy crisis the plan says.

It suggests a restudy of Amtrak's national route system, the first major review since the government-subsidized rail passenger corporation was formed in 1971.

The plan also: —Recommends increases from three-to-six daily roundtrips between Chicago and Detroit and from five-to-seven daily roundtrips between Los Angeles and San Diego.

—Says Amtrak is considering added frequency on routes covering Los Angeles-San Francisco Bay; Chicago-Memphis-Jackson; Chicago-Fort Wayne; Canton-Pittsburgh.

—Found six new routes with a high potential for success: Atlanta-Montgomery-Mobile-New Orleans; Kansas City-Denver; Pittsburgh-Youngstown-Cleveland; Cincinnati-Dayton-Columbus; Boston-Springfield-New Haven; and Grand Forks-Winnipeg, Alberta.

Discover Bodies Of 3 Missing Schoolgirls

FOUND SLAIN — These youngsters were found stabbed to death in a shallow stream near Elverton, Md.,

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — The discovery of the bodies of three missing girls, stabbed repeatedly through their parkas and left lying face down in a creek near their homes, has stunned the Southgate neighborhood here.

The bodies of Theresa Hogan, 8; her sister Deborah Anne, 10, and Ann Marie Brzeszkiewicz, 8, were found Monday. The school girls had left a house early Sunday evening to play and were last seen on a bridge over the stream, which runs through a wooded area near the subdivision where they lived.

State Medical Examiner Russell Fisher said two of the girls had been stabbed about six times, and the third victim had more than a dozen knife wounds. Fisher said the murder weapon was probably a hunting knife with a blade at least five inches long.

The girls were found fully clothed and there was no evidence that they had been sexually molested, authorities said.

"We don't have anything," said Detective Sgt. William Chaplin of the Anne Arundel County homicide squad. "No clues, no motives, no weapon."

News of the slayings sent parents to Southgate Elementary School to gather up their children when classes were dismissed. School officials said usually a dozen parents will pick up their children but about 150 were waiting outside Monday afternoon.

"You just feel like clutching them to you," said one anxious mother.

"You always hear about it happening somewhere else, but it doesn't happen in your neighborhood," said Roger Westphal, whose children played with the Hogan girls.

There was no comment from Jacob and Judy Brzeszkiewicz, the parents of Anne Marie. But Sgt. Chaplin said the couple, who have another daughter and five sons, took the news very hard, and that a doctor was called to the house.

Richard Hogan, the father of the other two victims, said, "We're deeply shocked. We have no idea what caused it or anything."

Speaking in a low, controlled voice, Hogan added softly, "They were beautiful kids."

IQ Tests Going On Trial Today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — IQ tests — and their alleged built-in bias against minority children — go on trial here today in a class action lawsuit filed on behalf of six black children placed in classes for the mentally retarded because of low IQ test scores.

"The basic claim that we're trying is that the IQ tests are culturally biased against black children because they don't take into consideration the cultural experience of the children," said attorney Sam Miller.

The class action suit was filed in 1971 after the black children scored below 75 on standard intelligence quotient tests and were placed in classes for the "educable mentally retarded."

The children scored 17 to 35 points higher when retested by the Bay Area Association of Black Psychologists, using tests reworded to better reflect the language and experience of the children.

Miller claims the misuse of IQ tests in class placement could result in irrevocably stunting the educational growth of some minority children.

After the suit was filed, U.S.

District Court Judge Robert Peckham stopped the placement of San Francisco black children in classes for the retarded when based on results of IQ tests, pending the outcome of the trial. Other criteria have been used since then. Peckham is hearing the nonjury trial.

At the time the suit was filed, 66.5 per cent of the students in the special classes were black, while 28.5 per cent of the total school population were black.

Attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a group called Public Advocates will assist in challenging the tests.

Defendants in the case include both the state and San Francisco school superintendents and the state and city school boards.

In pre-trial briefs, school officials argued that blacks predominate in the special classes in inner-city schools because of a whole range of social and economic factors, including poor nutrition, poor home environment and greater incidence of one-parent families.

The documents also referred to the possibility of "a poorer genetic pool for all races 'ghettoized' in the inner city."

Tom Griffin, chief counsel for the state Department of Education, said the genetic argument could be argued across race lines and did not represent any allegations that blacks were genetically inferior to whites.

In pretrial documents, Roger Lennon, an expert in testing, said there were no culture-free tests.

"We cannot build a test that is divorced from culture," he said. "If we could, it would be hard to see what utility it would have."

Lennon said the importance of IQ tests lay in their reflection of the language used in the classroom, although they might not reflect black culture.

Study Possible Canal Mission

By RICHARD PYLE Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is considering whether to send some or all of its members on a fact-finding visit to Panama as part of its deliberations over the Panama Canal treaty.

Consideration of the trip was on the committee's agenda today, along with more testimony from supporters and opponents of the treaty as week-long hearings continued.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has suggested that the members inspect the canal and "take a first-hand view of its defenses" before deciding what to do about the treaty.

A handful of other senators, most of them opponents of the agreement, already have visited Panama in the last few months.

Four American residents of the Canal Zone, testifying against the treaty on Monday, charged that the State Department has "hushed up or ignored" important facts about the treaty. They also disputed the contention of U.S. officials that the treaty was well-received either by Panamanians or zone inhabitants.

The witnesses, Harold Green, Louis Fatterosi, Mrs. Patricia Fulton and Mrs. Charlotte Kennedy, described the government of Gen. Omar Torrijos as conducting a "reign of terror" among Panamanians, with human rights violations commonplace.

They said the Panamanian government is infested with communist sympathizers at high levels, including four members of the canal treaty negotiating team itself. And, they said, many "thinking Panamanians" believe the U.S.

government put Torrijos in power and is helping to perpetuate an unpopular dictator through the treaty.

"If this treaty is ratified," they said, "the United States will have conflict on two fronts: one, from the anti-U.S. students who will want the complete and immediate elimination of the military bases and the other from Panamanians who feel they were stabbed in the back by the U.S. Congress who confirmed Torrijos in power for who knows how many more years."

The pact is in two indivisible parts, one providing for a gradual transfer of canal control to Panama by the year 2000, the second establishing its permanent neutrality thereafter, with the United States and Panama sharing responsibility for protecting it.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A campaign spokesman for former bank executive Luther Hodges Jr. said he has spent $182,671 in his bid for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Hodges, in a state elections board campaign report, says he has raised about $246,000 so far, roughly half of it a loan he made to his own campaign.

Parochial Teachers To Attend Session

Lay and religious teachers of St. Peter's and St. Gabriel's Schools in Greenville will attend an education conference at St. Mary's in Goldsboro October 13-14.

Designated theme for the workshop is "Catholic Schools: Heritage and Horizons".

Through the conference each teacher will be able to earn in-service renewal credit for his or her North Carolina certificate. (Schools of the Raleigh diocese recently began process toward North Carolina State accreditation.)

Bishop Joseph Gossman will welcome the educators, their volunteers, aides and parents. Rev. Alfred McBride, Director of the NCEA Religion Forum, will give the keynote address. Other general sessions will be led by Sister Maria Regina and the Rev. Frank Ebert.

Make-and-do workshops will be in art (all levels); music, physical education, classroom interest centers, language arts, mathematics, social studies, science, Christian Attitudes and Sexual maturity. Workshops will be held for secretaries, librarians and learning center personnel.

Twenty-five exhibitors will have text books and school material on display. Also, each school will have a display table to share students' and teachers' projects.

Dismisses Child Abuse Charges

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Child abuse charges against two Bladen County schoolteachers were dismissed for lack of evidence Monday.

Judge David L. Smith dismissed the case against Patricia C. Meshaw of Clarkton and Carolyn D. Scoggins of White Lake, convicted last July in District Court of child abuse in the paddling of a student.

The judge said the state had not proved the teachers intended to hurt the child seriously.

Five Arrested For Break-In

Five persons have been arrested by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department on charges of breaking into a home in Oakhurst Subdivision and larceny of approximately $3,500 worth of property.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the arrests followed investigation of the Oct. 8 break-in at the home of Sidney Sterling Shuman at 230 Chippendall Drive.

The sheriff said that officers arrested Danny Robert Boyd, 17, Noel Weldon Bradley, 18, and Richard Marks Nunn, 17, all of Lot Three, Oakwood Trailer Park, and Gene Allen McGowen, 17, of Rt. 3, Box 109 Holly Ridge Trailer Park, and Gilbert Alonza Harris, 17, of Lot 10, Homestead Trailer Park.

and schedule the matter for a public hearing at the December session.

Laney pointed out that the plan calls for the western end of the project area to be the only section designated for clearance. Most of the dilapidated structures in the project area are located in the western section, he said.

The eastern portion of the area is predominately residential now, it was noted, and the redevelopment plan retains the neighborhood as residential. Homeowners in the area may be eligible for low interest rehabilitation loans and some elderly citizens may receive Community Development rehabilitation grants for their homes.

According to Laney, a major objective of the plan is to widen 14th Street on the north side from Charles Street to the railroad.

In other business last night, assistant director J. C. Lamm reported that word on the final close out of the Shore Drive Project is expected any day from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Kirby Boyd, commission real estate officer, told commissioners that one parcel in the Central Business District, involving a structure on Seventh Street, was closed out since the last meeting. He added that two acquisitions were completed in Southside.

The objective of the plan, Laney added, is to retain the residential character of the eastern segment and utilize the cleared western area as a future location for the city's Public Works Department facilities. Property along the major thoroughfares would be designated for Downtown Commercial Fringe zoning.

Dr. Badger Clark also offered a bid on the parcel in the amount of $9,500, Boyd reported.

No relocation activity took place in Southside since the September meeting, according to project manager Faye Brewington, while one tenant and one non-profit organization (St. Matthews Church) were relocated from West Meadowbrook.

The staff rehabilitation officer, Ed Cobb, reported that four rehabilitation projects are underway in the Greenville Heights area in the western end of the city and eight more will be placed for bids on Friday. Seven of the rehabilitation projects are in the Greenville Heights area while the eight is in Southside.

Commissioners accepted the bid of the Garris heirs in the amount of $12,500 for Disposal Parcel D-3 located on the southeast corner of Evans Street and Reade Circle. The commission will recommend that the Council approve the sale with the Garris heirs as developers of the 8,500 square foot parcel.

All members and interested persons are invited.

No Evidence Of Foul Play

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today that there was apparently no foul play involved in the death of Isaac Adams, 73 of Greenville, found in a farm pond on the Winslow farm, off U.S. 264 East of Greenville.

Adams, according to the Sheriff, had apparently been fishing, and was found lying down in the pond, with his hat still on his head, about 9:12 a.m.

The cause of death was listed as accidental drowning, the sheriff noted.

Model Train In Non-Stop Run

FARMINGDALE, N.J. (AP) — A model train collector says his favorite train is setting a new world's record by running 273.85 miles non-stop — with no end in sight.

At 10 p.m. Monday, about 12 hours after passing the old mark, Henry Bodenstadt's German Pacific engine was still running. "We'll go until something breaks down," he said.

Bodenstadt said his Marklin train passed the old mark Sunday night after 10 days — more than 60,000 laps on a 5-by-8-foot track.

The 1977 Guinness Book of World Records lists the record as 273.84 miles by a Rover-Hornby Princess in England in 1973.

Plans Full Compliance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite an attorney general's opinion that groups campaigning for or against constitutional amendments can do so without reporting their expenses, the man who enforces the campaign reporting law says nobody had better try.

"We've determined that filing and disclosure provisions of state laws concerning elections apply with full force to groups organized to support or oppose constitutional amendments," said Wake District Attorney Burley B. Mitchell Jr.

That includes anything beyond a strictly personal effort or expenditure, he added.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten's office had said in July that the law did not apply to amendment campaigns.

"We're sufficiently confident of our opinion to go to court," countered Mitchell. "If the law is not complied with, we will go to court and let the defendants raise the attorney general's opinion as a defense. The court is the only proper place and forum to decide it."

State Elections Director Alex K. Brock has been advising groups they were not covered by the financial disclosure law, but he said he was rescinding that advice in light of Mitchell's remarks.

"If he and the attorney general disagree, we'll go with him, because he's the man who has to enforce the law," Brock said.

The only amendment on the Nov. 8 ballot that has excited any notable public interest is the one that would allow the governor and lieutenant governor to run for reelection.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Bum Steer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A school bus driver has found out just how helpful his student passengers can be.

The driver, a substitute who shall remain nameless, began the route routinely at 7:30 a.m. Monday. But after loading the bus with students from the east side of the city bound for Southwest Junior High School, strange things began to happen.

The driver, not knowing the way to the school, which is near Clemmons southwest of the city, asked directions from his passengers. The directions were explicit enough, but they led toward Greensboro in the opposite direction from the school.

About halfway to Greensboro, the driver learned the mistake and turned around. With apologies for their trick, the students again gave directions. This time, the driver unwittingly headed toward High Point.

Again the driver learned he had been fooled. Finally, after a devious trip by back roads, the driver found himself in Clemmons.

But the students talked the driver into stopping — next to a fast-food restaurant. Before he knew what was happening, he had an empty bus and students were loading up on burgers and shakes.

The students finally gave the harried driver directions to the school, where they were greeted with the news that they were suspended from riding the bus to school today. Harried parents organized carpools instead.

Principal Phil Coleman said, "It's hard enough to get bus drivers, and we don't need incidents like this. We questioned each student individually, and it seems that no one was innocent."

up the creek," Bishop said.

Well, Woodard used to add a little incentive to the shucking by burying a jug of corn squeezings in the stack of corn, Bishop said.

"As a reward for reaching the jug first, the lucky fellow could tilt the jug until his Adam's apple bobbed three times," Bishop said. "The other fellows only got one one bob."

According to Uncle Jack, Bishop said, Woodard took his turn at the jug during an especially bountiful harvest and then bellowed, "Hooray, Hooray for Pumpkintown."

"Well, folks began slapping one another on the back and shouting the words like an anthem," Bishop said. "And ever since then, the community has been called Pumpkintown."

Pumpkintown Still Lives Up To Name

PUMPKINTOWN, N.C. (AP) — The plump orange gourds that dot the fields around this southeastern Jackson County town this time of year remind the old timers of the century-old yarn about how the community was dubbed Pumpkintown by acclamation of sorts.

Joe Bishop, 80, recalls hearing the tale from his Uncle Jack Marr, who worked as a young man for a fellow named Billy Woodard.

Woodard was supposed to have been among the first settlers in the area and became famous for his corn shucking parties.

"They were big affairs, big socials you might say," Bishop said. "According to what the old folks told me, old man Woodard had the biggest corn shuckin's on the creek."

The creek, he added, was planted on both sides with corn and pumpkins, which rolled into the stream when they got fat and the vines died.

"They used to say that some years there were so many pumpkins that they would dam

Michigan Returns To Top Of AP's Ballots

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Michigan Wolverines returned to the top of The Associated Press college football ratings today while last week's 1-2 teams, Southern California and Oklahoma, dropped to sixth and seventh.

The Wolverines, voted out of the No. 1 position two weeks ago at the request of Coach Bo Schembechler, climbed back by defeating Michigan State 24-14 while Alabama stunned Southern Cal 21-20 and Texas knocked off Oklahoma 13-6.

Michigan received 44 of 61 first-place votes and 1,180 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The surprising Texas Longhorns, back among the elite teams in Fred Akers' first season as their head coach, vaulted from fifth place into the runnerup spot with 15 first-place ballots and 1,100 points.

Colorado, a 29-13 victor over Oklahoma State, jumped from sixth to third with one first-place vote and 775 points, followed by Alabama with 762 points. The Crimson Tide was tied for seventh a week ago.

Despite a 46-0 rout of Purdue, Ohio State slipped from fourth to fifth with 735 points and the other first-place ballot. The

The club's remaining tournaments are the Men's and Women's 35 and over doubles and open mixed doubles. Information can be obtained from Anne Sayetta and Butch Ricks.

Buckeyes were followed by Southern Cal with 639 points and Oklahoma with 657.

Arkansas, tied for seventh last week, was eighth this time with 424 points after an idle weekend. Rounding out the Top Ten, just like last week, were Nebraska with 471 points and Penn State with 304. The Cornhuskers beat Kansas State 26-7 while the Nittany Lions shaded Utah State 16-7.

Notre Dame, which also had the weekend off, remained in 11th place. Kentucky, a 23-7 winner over Mississippi State, rose from 16th to 12th.

The rest of the Second Ten consisted of Texas A&M, Wisconsin, Texas Tech, Louisiana State, Pitt, Florida, Houston and California.

Last week's Second Ten was Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Brigham Young, California, Pitt, Kentucky, Texas Tech, LSU, Wisconsin and Florida.

Houston rejoined the Top Twenty after a one-week absence even though the Cougars didn't play last weekend. They replaced the Brigham Young Cougars, who dropped out following a 24-19 loss to Oregon State.

Stringer Had Hunch

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "Sometimes," said North Carolina State Coach Bo Rein, "the kids' instincts and intuition out there on the field are better than anything we can tell them."

Rein was reacting to the play that saved the day last Saturday for the Wolfpack and gave them their 17-15 hair's breadth victory over Auburn.

Auburn was trying to tie up the game with a two-point conversion on a touchdown they had just scored on a 55-yard pass play.

Quarterback John Crane was aiming at tight end Reese McCall, but Wolfpack safety Ralph Stringer stopped the ball with a leap and a fingertip deflection. Stringer was supposed to be covering somebody else, but he had a hunch.

"I just had a feeling they were going to throw to him."

"But on these two-point conversions anything can happen so you have to be careful. They only need three yards, right? So they can run or throw," Stringer said.

"But when I saw him drag down the line and nobody pick him up, I went to him. I felt I had to. We had a little mix up. Somebody else was supposed to pick him up. I really don't want to talk about it."

That wasn't the only big play of the day for the Pack. Another was reserve defensive end Jeff Easter's block of an Auburn punt on the Tiger 36. Linebacker James Butler scooped the ball at the five and scored the Pack's second touchdown.

"It worked out just like it had on paper," Easter said. "The coaches noticed their blocking scheme in the films and we put in the rush just for this game. We felt that if we executed we would block the kick."

Bears Nip Rams In Hard Game

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears Coach Jack Pardee called it "a well fought game in the trenches." Los Angeles Rams quarterback Joe Namath agreed with the battle analogy.

"People get away with taking cheap shots and it becomes one big war out there," Namath said. "If you let people continue to get away with cheap shots, what happens to sportsmanship?"

He accused linebacker Waymond Bryant of hitting him after a play in the waning moments of the Bears' 24-23 nationally televised National Football League upset victory on a rainy, windy Monday night that ended with both teams sporting 2-2 records.

The officials slapped Bryant with a roughing-the-passer penalty and Rams right guard Dennis Harrah slugged him with a fist that brought Harrah a personal foul and ejection from the game.

"I did not see the hit but I know it was a cheap shot. I could feel it. What else can I say?" said a remorseful Harrah. "I lost my head and retaliated when I should not have."

Namath indicated that other Bears weren't bashful about getting in a tarry nudge or two either.

"If the league would look at the films, they'd see what's going on out there," he said. "Next time we play them we'll beat them. We're not that kind of team."

By the time Bryant bashed Namath in the chest, leaving him gasping for air, the Rams were straining to stay alive.

Pat Haden replaced Namath and led Los Angeles to its final touchdown, a 26-yard strike to Dwight Scales that drew the Rams to within one point with 27 seconds to play.

But the best quarterback on the field was a newly independent Bob Avellini, a third-year pro who is progressing week by week. Calling the plays for the first time this season, he said he was more confident. It showed.

He came up with scoring missiles of 70 and 72 yards to James Scott in the first half, which ended with the Rams ahead 16-14 on three Rafael Septien field goals and a 2-yard touchdown run by Lawrence McCutcheon.

Avellini's 29-yard touchdown pass to Greg Latta in the fourth quarter put the Bears ahead 24-16 and provided breathing room.

The Bears won with big plays, including a 51-yard scamper by Walter Payton, who gained 126 yards, to set up Latta's catch. But Avellini said that doesn't mean he's a more adventurous play-caller than the often conservative coaches.

"We've tried passes before. We were fortunate enough to hit them tonight," said Avellini, who completed 11 of 17 passes for 219 yards.

Namath, who went to the air 40 times, completed just 16 and had four intercepted. He said he had trouble with the bad weather and added, "Of course I played poorly. We lost."

One Goal May Escape O.J.

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

BUFFALO (AP) — Sometimes, O.J. Simpson simply shuts his eyes and lets it all wash over him.

He thinks about his superstar status as one of football's all-time greats; his lucrative advertising interests; his budding acting career; his top ranking in several polls seeking America's heroes.

Then he remembers the kid with skinny legs, running with street gangs in south San Francisco and living in a federally-funded apartment project.

"I was always a cocky kid. I always thought I'd be a great baseball player, but I never thought about all the off-the-field things," said Simpson.

"I grew up in a project. Now I've got a beautiful home. I've got all the money anyone would want. Sometimes when I think about it all, it's overwhelming."

Simpson's primary employer, the Buffalo Bills football club, is paying him an estimated $2.3 million over three years. Added to that are his considerable wages for the two or three film roles he takes a year and the proceeds from his advertising endorsements.

His Hertz "Superstar in Rent-a-Car" commercials, which feature a nattily-attired Simpson dashing through an airport terminal, have been wildly successful for the company. After their first year, Hertz reported a 50 per cent increase in net profits in 1976.

When Simpson ends his football career at next season's close, he will hold at least 10 National Football League records, including most yards gained in a season — an amazing 2,003 in 1973.

The 30-year-old Los Angeles resident now awaits his retirement ("Only 26 more games," he said after the Bills' most recent game — and loss) so he can devote full time to his acting. Simpson will leave football with many memories.

His best moment, he said, came in 1967 when he scored the winning touchdown to give the University of Southern California a victory over arch-rival UCLA.

"I'll never forget when we beat UCLA. Of course, that's the big game every year and that game cinched the Rose Bowl for us. Every college player wants to play in the Rose Bowl," he said.

His worst moment? "My third year here (1971), when the Bills finished 1-13. That whole season was bad."

Simpson has only two more goals in his football career. One is within reach, the other is hardly more than a dream. He hopes to overtake Jim Brown's all-time rushing record of 12,312 yards.

However, a slow start caused by nagging injuries and a more pass-oriented Bills offense has thrown him off pace.

"I'll be disappointed if I don't get it, but I'm not worrying about it. I've had so many other things," he said.

Simpson thinks now that "it will take a miracle" for him to attain his other goal: to play in a Super Bowl.

Next, Simpson talks about his team and the city of Buffalo.

Cale Near $ Record

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough is on the verge of breaking his own record for money won on the Grand National stock car racing circuit in a year.

The 38-year-old veteran has won $370,091 in 27 races this year. All he needs in the remaining three events is $17,083 to break the record of $387,173 he set last year.

Yarborough also has virtually clinched his second straight championship on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing circuit. He leads second place Benny Parsons by 378 points.

Richard Petty, a six-time champion, toppled from contention in the past two races. A broken shock absorber bracket forced him to settle for 32nd place at Charlotte Sunday and a wreck put him 24th at North Wilkesboro, N.C., a week earlier.

Parsons won at Charlotte, with Yarborough second. The victory put Parsons' career winnings above $1 million, an elite class he joins with Petty, Yarborough, David Pearson, Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker.

Point leaders after 27 races are Yarborough, 4,505; Parsons, 4,127; Petty, 4,109; Darrell Waltrip, 4,067; Baker, 3,579; Richard Brooks, 3,380; James Hylton, 3,124; Richard Childress, 3,120; Cecil Gordon, 3,030, and Bobby Allison, 3,028.

Fumble Proved Big Play For Tar Heels

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer

While North Carolina's offense was still sputtering, Tar Heel defender Alan Caldwell stepped in, picked off a fumble and carried it 72-yards for the score that whipped Wake Forest.

"We needed something good to happen to us, and it was that play that turned the game around," Coach Bill Dooley said, reviewing the Tar Heels' 24-3 victory over the Deacons — a win that was closer than the final score showed.

"It changed the momentum and, bam, we had 17 points," he said.

Caldwell's touchdown, his first in four years at UNC, came midway through the third quarter with the Tar Heels trailing by a field goal. The defensive coup is this week's Associated Press Play of the Week in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wake Forest had a first down at the Tar Heel 32, and was hungry for a score after being stopped at the 4 on its last possession. Quarterback Mike McGlamry called a routine handoff over the right tackle with sophomore Ronchy Johnson, in for tailback James McDougald, carrying the ball.

He didn't get far before UNC safety Bernie Menapace came out of the secondary to make the tackle.

"The way Bernie hit the guy, it twisted him and turned him around, and the ball went up in the air," Caldwell said later. "I reached up and caught it in full stride."

Caldwell, who was an offensive back in high school in Winston-Salem, knew what to do then. He raced up the left side, dodging tackle Dee Hardison who was throwing a key downfield block. Cornerback Ricky Barden ran along to take out the last Wake Forest man.

"It was a real good change," Dooley said. "All of our defensive players became offensive players — we had the ball and they became blockers."

The fumble, which came as a hard rain began, left the Deacons rattled. They fumbled two more times in the next five minutes, handing North Carolina a field goal and another touchdown.

"From that point on, we seemed to lose our poise," Wake Forest Coach Chuck Mills said Monday.

For Caldwell, his big play couldn't have come in a better game. Wake Forest is in his home town and he's friends with many of their players, working out with the Deacons in the summer.

"I can go home now," he said. "Two years ago when they beat us down here I took a lot of razing back home. I really wanted to win this one."

Contest Winners

Barry Nichols of Rt. 3, Box 83, Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Nichols correctly picked the winners in 25 of the 32 games listed in last week's contest pages.

Second place went to Marc Biloedau of 1207 E. 14th St., Greenville. He picked the winners in 23 of the 32 games. His second place finish, however, was based on his point total. His guess of 72 was just one off the actual total of 71, scored in Colorado State's 40-31 win over Texas El Paso.

Four other people also had 23 right, but were further off the point total guess.

In grading the contest, the two ties were counted wrong, since it is permissible to pick a tie.

The next contest appears on the following pages.

Bucs 2nd In Golf

WILSON — The East Carolina golf team started a new season Monday in the Campbell Atlantic Christian Collegiate Golf Invitational, which is being played at the Wilson Country Club.

After the first day of the two-day event, ECU is in second place, three strokes behind the North Carolina State "B" squad. The Pirates are tied for the second spot with UNCC. Both teams finished their first round in 395 strokes. Campbell followed at 399.

The Pirates' Keith Hiller was the medalist for the first day, shooting a round of 72 to capture the honor. Freshman Steve Jones was second best for ECU, coming in at 79.

Rose In 2nd Place

Strong Northern Nash beat out Rose High School's cross-country team yesterday in a meet on the Rampant 2.9-mile course.

The Knights finished the day with the low score of 33, while Rose had 42. New Bern finished third with 59, while Rocky Mount was a distant fourth with 106.

Mark Davis of Northern Nash was first in 15:01, while New Bern's Elijah Brown was second in 16:03. Others in the top five were Til Jolly of Rose, 16:15; Willie Austin, Northern Nash, 16:19; and Steve Blackwell, Rose, 16:22.

The second five included Frank Brown, Northern Nash, 16:24; David Jones, Rocky Mount, 16:30; Ted Gartman, Rose, 16:38; Ricky Hardy, Northern Nash, 16:42; Chuck Austin, New Bern, 16:44.

Other Rose finishers included Blair Smith, 12th in 17:07; Dan Mayo, 14th in 17:18; Sterling Ashby, 19th in 18:17.

The Rampants travel to Rocky Mount on Thursday.

EXPLANATION—The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Yanks Could Use A Pitcher

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — From the back of a crowd of newsmen, someone asked Yankees Manager Billy Martin if he needed another starting pitcher.

"We'll be all right," said Martin, his eyes fixed on the carpet. Then he looked up. "Hey, Tommy, how you doing? Damn. I could use you right now."

The probing questioner was none other than Tom Seaver, ace of the Cincinnati Reds and tonight a voice in the broadcasting booth when ABC gets its first crack at the World Series.

The truth is Martin could use Seaver or almost any other big league starter. His pitching staff, by reputation one of the best in baseball, seems to be now held together by one huge roll of medical tape.

Tonight he's starting Don Gullett, the same Don Gullett who was pulled after two innings' work last Wednesday in the opening game of the American League playoffs. The diagnosis was a sore shoulder.

"He told me he was all right," said Martin of his ace left-hander, who was 14-4 in the regular season while suffering from an assortment of ailments and a stint on the disabled list in August.

"I feel a big improvement," said Gullett, who opened last year's World Series for Cincinnati and beat the Yankees before leaving that game with a season-ending ankle injury. "There's more freedom in the shoulder. I told Billy I was confident I could do the job."

The next patient in Martin's patched-up pitching parade will probably be Catfish Hunter, 9-9 in just 22 games this season. Hunter, bothered by a sore shoulder most of the past two seasons, has been sidelined by a urological disorder and hasn't pitched since Sept. 10.

"I think I might start Catfish because of (Ed) Figueroa's finger," said Martin. "He developed a nerve problem in Kansas City and I had to take him out of the fourth game."

Hunter says he feels okay, but he's not certain about his control after a long layoff.

"Control will definitely be the problem," Martin said. "It all depends on how well he can zero in on the plate."

Martin's probable third-game starter in Los Angeles Friday night is Ron Guidry, who won the second game of the playoffs but didn't have enough zip on his fastball in the fifth game three days later. He's healthy but fragile, and requires at least four day rest between starts.

Mike Torrez, a strapping right-hander who pitched a strong 5 1-3 innings in relief Sunday with one day's rest, is another possible starter. Dick Tidrow is Martin's long man out of the bullpen, where right-hander Ken Clay and left-hander Ken Holtzman are expected to sit as spectators the entire series.

That leaves one man on the Yankees pitching staff — Sparky Lyle, who bailed the Yankees out with long and short relief wins on Saturday and Sunday. He's Martin's ace in the hole.

"Sparky's amazing, he's so good," said Martin, who wishes he had a super starter comparable to his fabulous finisher.

Top ACC Players

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland linebacker Brad Carr and North Carolina defensive back Alan Caldwell have been named Atlantic Coast Conference defensive players of the week.

Carr racked up 21 tackles in Maryland's 24-10 triumph over Syracuse, sacking the quarterback on one of them that triggered the fumble from which the Terps set up their first score.

Caldwell recovered a fumble and raced 72 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter to open scoring for the Tar Heels in their 24-3 victory over Wake Forest. He had 12 tackles and broke up two passes.

Earlier North Carolina State running back Billy Ray Vickers and Duke tackle John Patterson were named offensive players of the week.

FIGHTER'S FIGHTER

NEW YORK (AP) — Julio Valdez, a battling lightweight from Santo Domingo, has a battling co-manager. He is Billy Martin, manager of the New York Yankees, renowned for his baseball fistic exploits.

Martin's co-manager is Luis Morales of the Yankee ticket office, who had to talk Billy out of serving as a sparring partner for Valdez.

Sutton Wanted To Be A Yankee

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With all the millions the New York Yankees have been throwing around, a mere $13,000 was all that separated them from Don Sutton.

"They only offered me $2,000 as a bonus, and I didn't think that was enough," says Sutton, recalling his modest baseball beginnings. "I wanted $15,000."

So Sutton instead went westward as a young man and signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He got his $15,000, and tonight he gets even more than he ever dreamed of — a start in the World Series at Yankee Stadium.

"I once spent my whole life dreaming about pitching in Yankee Stadium," says Sutton. "You don't know how many mental shutouts I've pitched there. But I'm glad that I was in the All-Star Game last July at the Stadium. That got some of the apprehension out of my system, and now I won't be too awed."

Sutton, a 14-game winner but a virtual bust after the All-Star Game, wouldn't necessarily be his own choice to get the most prestigious pitching assignment of the baseball season. But Sutton surely wants the ball as much as anyone else.

"I think it would be easier for me to open than to just sit over there on the bench and watch it," said Sutton.

Possibly no one would enjoy it more than Sutton, either.

"It's fun," he says. "Playoffs and World Series are fun. I think we worked too hard to get here not to be able to enjoy one of the greatest spectacles in sports."

But despite the carnival atmosphere of the widely celebrated event, Sutton would never equate the World Series with a vacation.

"It's a workday," he says. "Once you cross the white line, it's work. I happen to enjoy my work very much, though. When I stop enjoying it that'll be the time for me to quit." Sutton, who grew up in Alabama a hard-line Yankees fan, will be looking at the New York team from a different viewpoint as the Dodgers face one of baseball's most expensive and explosive offenses.

"They've got four or five guys who can hit one out of Yellowstone Park," says Sutton, referring among others to high-salaried Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' $2.9 Million Man.

Sutton, though, has been known to stand up pretty well in such pressure situations. He has won 194 major league games, including World Series and National League playoff triumphs. He has pitched in four All-Star Games, including this summer when his 10-4 record earned him the starting assignment.

"Of course the All-Star Game was different," said Sutton. "It was pure pleasure. But you can't compare the All-Star Game to the World Series. Here, there are 33 full shares riding on how I do. It's more exciting to pitch when there's something on the line."

The Old Feud Is Renewed: Yanks, Dodgers Square Off In Series

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers, two franchises that divided baseball passions and World Series titles in the 1950s, square off in Game 1 of the 1977 World Series tonight.

"This is exciting for baseball," enthused the Dodgers' Tom Lasorda, a National League pennant winner in his rookie managerial season in the big leagues. "Here we have the two great teams which over the years have been synonymous with major league baseball."

Lasorda, who said he was cut from the Dodgers' 1955 championship team because of a young left-hander named Sandy Koufax, was highly emotional about the classic confrontation between the Yankees pinstripes and the Dodgers blue.

Meanwhile, his managerial counterpart, Billy Martin, proclaimed there was no longer any special rivalry between the Bronx Bombers and the Dodgers, former tenants in the borough of Brooklyn.

"The fifties were too long ago," said brash Billy, a hero of the Yankees' 1953 World Series win over the "Bums" of Brooklyn. "We used to travel by subway then. Now we go cross country in planes."

There now is a lot more separating Los Angeles and New York besides 3,000 miles.

The Dodgers, a team built from its minor league system, failed to enter the free-agent market. The Yankees, however, have been called the best team money can buy, adding free-agent plums Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett to last season's AL championship club that dropped four straight World Series games to the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers believe in the credo that the team that loves together plays together, while the Yankees play together on the field and argue about it in the clubhouse.

"We built this team on togetherness, love and spirit," said Lasorda, who managed many of his players in the Dodgers chain before succeeding long-time skipper Walter Alton this season. "I love my players because they got me here."

The Yankees' road to the AL pennant, won over Kansas City in the ninth inning of the fifth game for the second straight year, was a rocky one, highlighted by a near dugout brawl between Martin and Jackson, the near firing of Martin and personality clashes between Jackson and Yankees captain Thurman Munson.

"It's a relief we won," said Jackson, benched in the final game against Kansas City but a starter in right field tonight. "That way I don't have to hear how Jackson failed. It makes things a lot more peaceful around here."

It looked for a little while like the Yankees weren't going to be allowed to drift peacefully into tonight's game when Jackson received an eight-page telegram, allegedly from owner George Steinbrenner, saying his contract was terminated because his attitude had been degrading to the team.

After seriously scrutinizing the telegram for several minutes, Jackson was able to laugh it off as a hoax.

Things could stay peaceful for the Yankees provided they quickly pick up their 100th World Series victory and follow that fast with three more triumphs. To that end, Martin will send left-hander Don Gullett to the mound against right-hander Don Sutton tonight.

Gullett, who ironically was Cincinnati's opening-game pitcher against the Yankees last year, will be making his first start since a shoulder ailment knocked him out in the second inning of Game 1 of the AL playoffs last Wednesday.

At that time, Martin proclaimed Gullett was finished for the season. But Gullett, who said he threw pretty well on Saturday and Sunday, told Martin that he could pitch.

"There's been some physical improvement," said Gullett, 14-4 in the regular season. "I feel I can go out there and pitch."

Sutton, the Dodgers' ace right-hander, is both well-rested and healthy following his victory Wednesday over Philadelphia in the NL playoffs.

"I'm fine, did you hear anything different?" joked Sutton, 14-8 in the regular season and the winning All-Star pitcher last July.

"There's still a lot of excitement in being here," said the long-time Yankees fan who only changed his allegiance when he was signed by the Dodgers in 1965. "But it can't compare with my All-Star start. That was fun. This is work."

"I now have 33 full World Series shares riding on how I throw."

"We've never come back like that against anybody before, at least not since I've been at Duke," said quarterback Mike Dunn. "No one ever doubted that we could come back; it's just that we've never done it before."

"Now that we're by South Carolina," he added, "we can really roll. This was our turning point. Three wins in a row. Man oh man. I think we've got the potential to be a bowl team."

Earl Cooke was the hero of the day, intercepting a South Carolina pass and sailing down the sidelines for the game-winning touchdown with less than five minutes left on the clock.

"Earl's play was the big one, but the defense played well the whole second half," Dunn said.

"We built this team on togetherness, love and spirit," said Lasorda, who managed many of his players in the Dodgers chain before succeeding long-time skipper Walter Alton this season. "I love my players because they got me here."

"You'll never get rich sellin' wood to George Dickel!"
Bear Ferguson, logger, 1873

"It's not that George doesn't use a lot of wood in the makin' of his Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky—he does. But he's so durned persnickity.

"Like only wantin' winter-cut sugar maple that's not all sappy for his charcoal mellowin'. Then he picks over the lot like a hen eyein' a corn morsel.

"Times like that I most always end up sittin' on a cord of wood he's turned down, sippin' his whisky."

At George Dickel, we still use only the winter maple to help make every sip of our Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky as smooth as moonbeams.

George Dickel Tennessee sippin' whisky. Smooth as moonbeams.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle regular duties you have been delaying and derive benefits therefrom. Sidestep emotional excitement later in the day.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put those creative ideas in operation and gain the cooperation of allies for best results. Later attend a worthwhile social affair.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now easily impress a higher-up and make considerable progress in your line of endeavor. Avoid a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure you make the right overtures to loved one. Do something constructive about what you dislike instead of sulking about it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your financial affairs before investing in a new project you have in mind. Show increased devotion to mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You must have a firmer foundation in your interests to make them work more successfully. Keep an eye on one who is tricky.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan just how to rid yourself of obligations that have your stymied. You have fine latent talents that need expression.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will make many friends who can be helpful throughout lifetime. It's likely that your progeny will become so involved in business matters upon reaching maturity that can bring success but leave little time for social life. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." Top Country Music Award To Milsap

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Blind singer Ronnie Milsap, who once fell off a stage while performing, was not deterred. And Monday night, he won country music's top award — Entertainer of the Year.

Milsap, who now counts the steps to the orchestra pit before performing, also became the first person in the 11-year history of the Country Music Association awards to win top male vocalist three times. He won in 1976 and 1974.

Blind since birth, he was asked after the show what he would give to see the happy faces of his admirers. "I didn't see the faces but I had the chance to feel the electricity and the love," he said. "Sometimes you don't have to see."

His "Ronnie Milsap Live" was picked Album of the Year, making him the show's only triple winner.

Crystal Gayle was chosen No. 1 female vocalist, beating out her older sister, Loretta Lynn, a three-time winner, and Dolly Parton, who had won the honor the last two years.

Asked how it felt to upstage her sister, Miss Gayle said, "I don't think I was doing that. She was rooting for me before I won. No matter what the press says, there's nothing between us."

"Lucille," recorded by Kenny Rogers, was chosen both Single of the Year and Song of the Year. The Song of the Year award honored the writers, Roger Bowling and Hal Bynum.

Rogers, who also has been successful in popular music, marveled afterwards at the loyalty of country music fans.

"In the pop market, you're as good as your last hit. But in country music, I've seen people without a hit for years who still are big favorites."

Merle Travis, a guitarist-songwriter-singer, became the 30th member of the Country Music Hall of Fame. He is probably best known as a pioneer guitarist and as writer of the classic "Sixteen Tons."

Jim Ed Brown and Helen Cornelius were named top vocal duo; the Statler Brothers won No. 1 vocal group for the sixth straight year; the Original Texas Playboys were chosen top instrumental group, and Roy Clark was instrumentalist of the Year for the first time in his career.

Miss Parton and Waylon Jennings won nothing even though Miss Parton was a finalist for Entertainer of the Year and top female vocalist and Jennings was nominated for five awards — more than anyone else.

Jennings, who was arrested on cocaine charges last month, did not attend the show because he objects to musicians competing for awards. The charges against him were dismissed last week.

Other finalists for Entertainer of the Year were Jennings, Merle Haggard and Rogers. Larry Gatlin, Jennings, Rogers and Don Williams were the other finalists for No. 1 male vocalist and Emmylou Harris and Barbara Mandrell completed the finalists for top female vocalist.

Plan 'Salute' To Frank Capra

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucille Ball, Burt Reynolds and Carl Reiner will be the hosts for the 90-minute salute to six-time Oscar-winning director Frank Capra.

James Stewart, who starred in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "It's a Wonderful Life" for Capra, will appear.

The special, being made for NBC by Columbia Pictures Television, will highlight the 40-year career of Capra.

'Kookie' Byrnes Is 44, Now, And Adult Actor

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Yes, those were the days. He said, "Baby, you're the ginchiest," the girls cried, "Kookie, Kookie, lend me your comb." And what's become of their old flame?

Well, Edd's 44 now, still acting. Tonight, he joins a kind of human blast from the past on NBC in "Dick Clark's Good Ol' Days: From Bobby Sox to Bikinis." Others include Dion and Snoopy Lansons.

Do ladies with long memories and longer hair still cry for The Comb? "People don't shout that to me — you're putting words in my mouth," Byrnes grouched good-naturedly in a phone chat from Hawaii, where he was playing last week in a celebrity tennis tournament.

That being settled, Edd, a New Yorker who broke into show biz playing an Indian in Joe E. Brown's "Buick Circus Hour," was asked what he's been up to lately.

Well, he said, he was in Las Vegas recently, filming "Telethon," a made-for-ABC movie set for Nov. 6. He also played a music show host in a coming movie version of Broadway's "Grease."

For the last eight years, he's been in England and Europe, he said, making a film a year, four of them spaghetti Westerns of the Clint Eastwood variety.

It's the custom here for actors strongly identified with a TV series to rap the series in later years, to claim it got them type-cast and otherwise ruined their whole day. Not Edd Byrnes.

"I loved it," the man they called Kookie said of the series he left in 1965. "It was fun. It was a great break when I was just beginning my career. Right now, I'm in the best position of my life. I've finally become an, ah, adult. So I make much more money now than I ever did then, believe me."

Byrnes, who still hangs his comb in Beverly Hills but says he spends six months a year working elsewhere, has a new project afoot which he hopes a network might buy.

It'd be a two-hour TV movie. And yes, it'd be about that famous address on Sunset Strip. And he, Roger Smith and Efrim Zimbalist would show up there for a 12-years-later reunion.

"When I was in Las Vegas, I saw Roger and talked him into doing it," he said. "And when I talked to Efrim two weeks ago, he said he would do it."

Leo Tolstoy, author of "Aar and Peace," was born at Yasnaya Polyana, Russia, Aug. 28, 1829.

Appendicitis

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A young boy called the Broome County Sheriff's Department and urgently asked that an ambulance be sent to his home in nearby Sanitaria Springs.

The boy said his mother was in pain from appendicitis. Deputies dispatched an ambulance only to get another call — this time from the boy's father who said to hurry because his wife was having a baby.

When the volunteer ambulance crew arrived, Mrs. Allen Roody had given birth to a five-pound boy, her fourth child, all of them boys.

Mrs. Roody said she had not been aware of being pregnant.

Mother and child were in good condition later at a hospital.

Story Of Last Wild Indian

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ishi," a story of North America's last wild Indian, will be presented as a three-hour movie on NBC.

Academy Award-winner Dalton Trumbo wrote the first two hours before his death last year and the play was completed by his son, Christopher Trumbo. It is based on the book by Theodora Kroeber.

Begin A Sequel To 'Navarone'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Force 10 From Navarone," an action-adventure follow-up to Alistair Maclean's "The Guns of Navarone," has begun production in Europe.

Starring are Robert Shaw, Franco Nero, Edward Fox, Carl Weathers, Barbara Bach and Harrison Ford.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♥ 1♣
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

Looking at all four hands, it seems incredible that South failed by one trick in his contract of four hearts. Yet when this hand was played in a recent National Championship event, declarer went down thanks to devilish defense by East.

The stage for the coup was set in the auction, when West took advantage of the vulnerability to make a light overcall in spades. North brushed aside the interference with his leap to four hearts, and South was delighted with the contract.

West led his king of spades. East was Thomas K. Sanders of Nashville, Tenn., one of the South's great players and chairman of the Regional Bridge Championship to be held in his home town over the first weekend of December.

Sanders realized that his trump length might prove an unwelcome surprise for declarer. It seemed likely that the defenders would come to two spade tricks and the king of clubs, but that might be all they were due. Sanders decided that he would look to the trump suit for the setting trick.

West's overall was the key link in a plan that called for a bit of deception. To make it look as if he held a doubleton spade, Sanders won the ace of spades at trick one and returned the ten. The tactic took in West, who dutifully overtook the ten of spades to play a third round of the suit. Declarer also was sure that East had started with a doubleton spade. It looked perfectly safe to ruff in dummy with a high trump, and that's exactly what he did. He did not have to wait long to find out he had done the wrong thing. When he led a high trump, he saw that East now had a certain trump trick.

Declarer was not yet dead—if the club finesse succeeded, he was still home. But Sanders had that card as well, and declarer could only applaud a brilliant defense.

Natural Habitat Begins Shape Up

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — You can't see it yet, but what the state claims will be the biggest and best natural habitat zoo in the world is taking shape about a mile from the existing zoo.

In less than two years, officials say the first phase of the zoo will be ready, a 60-acre complex which will house zebras, giraffes, ostriches, lions, wildebeest, gazelles, elephants, rhinos, monkeys and Ramar the gorilla.

There will be no cages, although some animals will be confined at night. But in the daytime they will roam freely, isolated from viewers by moats and rock walls.

Zoo manager Andy Leuker said weather had kept work behind schedule by three months. But Leuker said basic construction work on the African complex is almost done and further projects on the site will be starting soon.

The General Assembly appropriated $2.8 million this year for the zoo, which will be used for a monkey island, a woodlands exhibit for hoofed animals, a second cat house in which Ramar will live temporarily, a white rhino and elephant exhibit and a picnic area and gift booth.

To Continue Picketing

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A top official of the East and Gulf Coast International Longshoremen's Association says his union will not stop picketing ships in Pacific ports even if ordered to do so.

"Regardless of the decision, we'll picket," James Cashin, secretary-treasurer of the I.L.A., said Monday.

Cashin was referring to a ruling expected today by California state arbitrator Sam Kagel on the legality of the I.L.A.'s action.

The I.L.A. pickets came to the West Coast Oct. 4 as part of a continuing dock strike on the East and Gulf coasts, and state arbitrators have remained at odds over the legality of that move.

Pickets have tied up shipping along West Coast ports, where the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union has agreed to honor I.L.A. pickets.

Meanwhile, shipping has been totally halted or greatly hampered in Gulf and East Coast ports. The I.L.A. is conducting a selective strike against containerized cargo. Dockworkers in New Orleans have extended the strike, which began October 1, to include all cargo.

Talks aimed at settling the I.L.A. walkout are at a standstill. Federal mediators met with representatives of the shipping organizations late last week in Washington. No progress was reported.

The union's chief concern is job security, especially related to container shipping, which requires fewer workers to load and unload cargo.

Saxbe Talks Up New Job

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe talked Monday with Nebraska legislators and livestock men about becoming an agribusiness watchdog for possible anti-trust violations.

Saxbe, who now lives in his home state of Ohio, met with representatives of an ad hoc committee of the legislature that has already wrested an out-of-court settlement from two major supermarket chains.

Sen. Loran Schmit, one of those who met with Saxbe, said if he was retained, Saxbe would monitor the agreement reached with Safeway and the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. (A&P), and would also "be available for any other activity that we determine might jeopardize the livestock industry."

The settlement, which grew from a June 1974 federal lawsuit, brought the panel $125,000 and an agreement that the firms would not engage in certain antitrust practices. The chains did not acknowledge having committed any violation.

Reports indicate some $90,000 from the settlement remains with the committee, $60,000 of which might be available for monitoring agribusiness after donations are refunded and expenses paid.

Russian Claims Exaggeration

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Problems between the Soviet government and its Jewish community have been exaggerated by the press, a Russian diplomat says.

Vladimir Mikoyan, grandson of former Soviet President Anastas Mikoyan, called the Jewish problem "over-inflated" and said the number of Jews wanting to emigrate is lower than what is reported.

Mikoyan, a 27-year-old attaché with the Soviet Embassy in Washington, said his chief duty is research on the Middle East.

He said he is touring the United States alone.

"I don't need anyone," he told reporters. "I'm my own bodyguard and I can carry my own suitcase."

Bataan Survivors Hope To Sue

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Although it's been more than 30 years, memories of the infamous Bataan Death March and subsequent "slave labor camps" remain so vivid for some former U.S. prisoners of war that they want to sue the Japanese government.

"We were the only POWs in history ever sold by a government as slaves to factories," according to retired M.Sgt. Samuel D. Moody.

Plans for the suit were revealed during a weekend reunion of the 27th Bomb Group, many of whose members fought unsuccessfully to hold the Bataan peninsula and the Philippines during World War II and became prisoners of the Japanese.

John R. Wood, an attorney from Sarasota, Fla., and a former POW, said the proposed suit would allege illegal use of prisoners as slave labor and would seek damages from the Japanese government as well as from the industries that used the POWs.

But Wood said the proposed suit is without precedent and many questions must be answered before it is filed.

"A fundamental question is whether international law will permit such an action as the suit we are proposing," he said. "We hope to establish tort (fault) liability on behalf of the warring nations for inhumane treatment. Also, we want to see if the companies the prisoners worked for can be held liable." An advisory council has been formed to determine if there are legal grounds for the suit, which could be filed in Japanese courts or in the World Court in Geneva, Wood said.

Moody, who serves on the committee along with retired Army Brig. Gen. Arnold J. Funk and Air Force Brig. Gen. William Hipps, explained that Americans were forced to work in Japanese factories so the Japanese "could send their own men to war."

Wood said the suit could hinge on the contention that "there is a difference between treatment that takes place in an act of war and in treatment as a consequence of war."

Although the distinction could have profound legal ramifications, the common theme of the reunion had less to do with the circumstances of captivity than its survival.

More than 36,000 Americans were ordered to surrender when the Philippines fell in the spring of 1942. Only 3,600 survived the war.

"More than anything else, a person has to be tied to something to survive — home or heritage or religion or something he wanted to get back home to," said Manny Lawton, a retired major from Estill,

S.C.

Lawton, who survived the death march and three years in a Japanese POW camp, said 1,500 GIs and thousands of Filipinos died during the march.

"It was survival of the fittest," Moody said, recalling when he and 1,600 other men were crammed into the hold of a ship for transportation to a POW camp.

"It was 115 to 120 degrees in that ship," Moody said. "Some of the men went mad that night. They turned into vampires from the heat and lack of oxygen. Fifty died of suffocation, 200 died in a bombing attack the next day and 50 more died the second night."

REDUCTIONS REPORTED

The Little Mint Inc. reported a reduction in revenues and increased losses for the year ended June 30 with the down trend attributed by management to an "abandonment and write-down of property and equipment."
