City Council Race Runoffs Likely

By TOM BAINES
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Incumbent City Councilman Joe Taft Jr. and first time aspirant Charles Vincent were the only candidates to gain clear majorities in an interesting city election that saw only four present Council members place in the top six.
 With voting activity light in Tuesday's balloting, incumbents Mildred McGrath, Clarence Gray and William Hadden joined freshman candidate Judy Greene in completing the top six slate, although none of the bottom four received majority figures and now face possible runoff challenges.

Incumbent Councilman John Howard ran seventh in the field and has the privilege of calling for a Nov. 8 runoff, as do candidates Harry Hagerty, John Bizzell and Della Dayson, who ran eighth, ninth and tenth.
 Long time board member Dr. Frank Fuller finished 11th in the 18-candidate field and is not eligible for the runoff activity.
 Mayor Percy Cox, who mounted a successful write-in campaign two years ago to gain his first term as mayor, was unopposed in his reelection bid this year and tallied 3,038 votes.

that sum by six and then by two, was 1,768.
 Mrs. McGrath, Gray, Ms. Greene and Hadden all were under the majority total although they finished in the top six. Only Vincent and Taft avoided the runoff by virtue of their vote totals.
 Howard, who has served on the city governing board for ten years, received 1,451 votes yesterday, followed by Hagerty with 1,414, Bizzell with 1,402, and Mrs. Dayson with 1,384.
 If any of the seventh through tenth place candidates wish to file for a runoff, they may do so by filing a written request with the board of elections here no later than 12 noon on Monday.
 Following Fuller in the balloting from 12 through 18 were: Billy Ippock, 838 votes; Matthew Lewis, 813; Lewis Evans, 712; E. E. Howell, 598; Glenn Willingham, 347; Eugene (Rocky) Fallon, 292; and Willis Stancil, 252.

Vincent and Taft ran strong in almost every precinct in compiling their front-running totals. Mrs. McGrath, who served as mayor pro tem for the past two years, also drew heavy support in nearly all of the nine polling sites.
 The top six candidates received their key support in the larger polling sites, including Greenville 7 (Elm Street Gym), 9 (Gardner Fire Station), 5 (American Legion Building), and 8 (Willis Building).

 With nearly 11,000 local citizens registered and eligible to vote Tuesday, apparently less than 4,000 exercised their voting privileges.
 According to Margaret Register of the Pitt Board of Elections, the official canvass of the election results will be held on Thursday at 11 a.m. at the elections office on E. Second Street.

Town Of Ayden Seeks To Terminate GUC Tie-In

By KEITH MILLS
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Director Charles Horne informed the Greenville Utilities Commission (GUC) Tuesday night that the Town of Ayden wishes to negotiate the termination of an existing 20-year contract with GUC for wholesale electrical service in order to request service from Carolina Power & Light Co.
 Under the contract, the Town of Ayden has a remaining 10-year obligation with GUC, which is serviced by VEPCO.
 In a letter to the Commission, Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger reminded the board of the "financial problems, created for municipal electric systems, as a result of the large rate increases, and fossil fuel cost increases, by VEPCO, within the past several years."

would be made. The motion was approved.
 At the request of attorney Tom Taft, the Commissioners agreed to share partial cost of a 3,500 foot sewer line extension from Ellsworth Drive to University Medical Park.
 Taft told the board plans are being made to develop the area for medical personnel and their families. "We are hoping to put together a project that will complement the whole medical school," he said.
 The Commission's portion of the estimated $80,000, which the project would cost, is contingent upon the Clean Water Bond Issue to be voted on Nov. 8.
 The Commission agreed to assume 25 per cent of the cost if the bond issue fails to pass. However, if it passes the board would consider further cost participation in the project.

private power companies.
 According to the Commission's resolution, the amendment would offer to all electric consumers of North Carolina an opportunity for combined savings of hundreds of millions of dollars in future electric costs.
 In further action, the Commission was informed that the state Unemployment Compensation Act, which will apply to cities and counties beginning Jan. 1, allows local governments to choose from two methods for payment of unemployment compensation tax.
 Method one, called the Contribution Method, requires 2.7 per cent of the first $6,000 of an employes wages. Method two, called the Reimbursement Method, provides that the city or county pay to the state the amount paid out of the city or county, claims filed and paid to previous employes of the unit.

 Under the Contribution Method, the cost to GUC the first year would be $32,400.
 Under the Reimbursement Method the city or county would not be able to determine the cost since the state will bill the unit once a year for claims paid.
 But based on information, indicating GUC would pay less than $20,000 the first year, the Commissioners adopted the Reimbursement Method.
 Other actions approved in-

WOMEN MAYORS

I understand that Mrs. Sara Albritton is the new mayor of Farmville. I wonder how many other female mayors there are in North Carolina. Can you find out? P. T.

The League of Municipalities supplied us with a list which is probably fairly accurate, since it was compiled in January, 1976 after the 1975 fall elections. At that time there were 11 towns and cities with women mayors—Aurora, Montreat, Fayetteville, Carrboro, Teachey, Black Mountain, Surf City, Ocean Isle Beach, Stem, Grimesland, and Bolton. Mrs. Albritton becomes the second woman mayor in Pitt County, joining Mrs. Ruby Hodges of Grimesland.

The League said there are four town managers who are women and 140 women members of governing boards.

Albritton Wins Farmville Race

By CAROL TYER
 Reflector Staff Writer
 FARMVILLE — Mrs. Sara Humphrey Albritton is the new Mayor of Farmville.
 There was no clear majority in yesterday's municipal election here for any of the seven candidates for the two Town Commissioners' seats, so the potential for a three- or four-way runoff in the Nov. 8 election exists.
 Some 1,236 of Farmville's 1,882 registered voters voted, so the vote of 681 for Mrs. Albritton is clearly a majority. Other mayoral candidates and their totals are 331 votes for incumbent Will E. Joyner; 183 for former town administrator W. A. "Andy" Martin, and 41 for Jimmie Lee Smith.
 The totals in the two-way Commissioners' race were as follows: 489 for David Stowe; 445 for Leroy Redden; 417 for Durwood Little; 340 for Linwood Mercer; 306 for Robert Evans; 171 for Carl Tanner; and 133 for Dan Thomas.
 Some 576 votes would be needed for any of the candidates for the Town Council to have a clear majority and since there are two seats to be filled, the two candidates in third and fourth positions may call for runoffs if they so choose.

Incumbent Durwood Little said this morning he will call for a runoff. "Since the vote was so close and since there were so many in the field, I feel I owe it to those who supported me to give it another try," the manager of the local branch of First Federal Savings and Loan said.
 Linwood Mercer, president of Factory Storage Corporation here, who was fourth in line, said he is undecided, but that he will let his decision be known later this week.
 Stowe, highest in the running, is owner and manager of Farmville Implement Company, the local John Deere farm machinery dealership, and Redden, second highest, is assistant principal of Farmville Central High School. Redden is a former member of the Board of Commissioners and was the only

Couple Weds In Private Ceremony

AYDEN — In a private candlelight ceremony Saturday evening at seven o'clock, Donna Frances Allegood and Paul Andrew LaMotte were united in marriage at the Ayden Christian Church.

The Rev. Ralph Messick, minister of Hooker Memorial Church, Greenville, and a former pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The altar of the church was flanked by two nine branch spiral candelabra with white candles, yellow mums, daisies and greenery.

As the bridal couple entered the church unattended, Mrs. Robert Weathersby, organist, rendered a program of wedding music which was continued throughout the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Royce Linwood Allegood of Ayden, and the late Mr. Allegood. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. LaMotte of Greenville.

For her wedding, the bride chose a street length suit of ivory wool with light brown accessories. She carried a nosegay of yellow mums and daisies.

The bride is employed by North Carolina Department of Corrections as a probation-parole officer in Greenville. The bridegroom is a real estate agent with Harris Realty, Kinston.

Following a wedding trip to Hilton Head Island, S. C., the couple will reside in Kinston.

On Friday morning, the bride-elect was entertained at a coffee hour by the prayer group of the Ayden Christian Church as the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gooding.

The bridal couple was honored Friday night at a dinner at the Beef Barn, Greenville, given by the mother of the bride.

Husband Upsets Wife By Indifference

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 40, and have been married for 20 years. For some unknown reason my husband has lost all interest in sex. I told him in a very nice way that I missed his loving, and he just laughed and said, "Oh come on, we're both too old for that kind of stuff!" (He's 42.) We get along fine, but it's like living with my brother.

He always come right home after work and never goes anywhere without me, so I'm sure there's no other woman. I can't understand his indifference. I keep myself neat and clean and I never nag him.

Our four children will all be gone and on their own soon, and if this is any sample of what my life will be like when they're gone, it won't be worth living. Sign me... UNDERLOVED

DEAR UNDER: Please read the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: How do you convince your husband that you still love him, but you aren't as young as you used to be—if you get what I mean?

After 20 years and five children, shouldn't there be more to marriage than sex? If I don't feel like making love every night, he pouts and says I don't "love" him anymore. Am I abnormal or is he? I always thought a man got less passionate after 40. Mine is unbelievable.

Please help me, Abby. I do love him, but I think he is expecting too much from a 40-year-old woman.

PAID MY DUES

DEAR UNDERLOVED AND PAID MY DUES: I don't know what's "normal" and neither does anyone else. Each person has his own emotional temperature, and what is "normal" for one could break someone else's thermometer.

Both of you should insist that your husbands be examined by physicians to rule out the possibility of physical deficiencies.

Then I suggest you consider seeing a qualified sex therapist. (If your physician can't recommend one, inquire at the Medical Department of your nearest university.)

Pity PAID MY DUES isn't married to UNDERLOVED'S husband and vice versa. But that's just another of life's inequities.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I have a problem I heard you might be able to help me with.

I am a middle-aged woman whose problem seems to get worse with age. I love to wear pantsuits, but I have practically no rear, so consequently all my pants are baggy in the seat.

Gaining weight is not the answer. I never gain there. I heard that you once mentioned a place that sold false fannies. If that's true, where is it?

FLAT IN BACK

DEAR FLAT: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be plugging Frederick's of Hollywood, but that's the place. If you write to them, perhaps they'll send you a catalogue.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

SEWING WITH NAPPED FABRIC IS NO PROBLEM

Don't let sewing with a napped fabric scare you away from using popular corduroy this fall. The only time the corduroy nap needs to concern you is when you cut out the pattern.

And it's no problem if you just lay all your pattern pieces with the tops in the same directions.

Corduroy is a napped fabric — one with an extra set of looped surface yarns. And the directions those yarns run — called the nap — makes a difference in the appearance of the fabric.

You can tell which way the pile goes by running your hand along the ribs or wales. If the fabric feels smooth, the pile is running in the direction of your hand movement. But if it feels rough, the pile is running the opposite direction.

When the nap runs up, you'll get a dark rich color. But when the nap runs down, you'll have a lighter, shadow-like look. Also, the nap running down the fabric usually wears better.

Obviously, the direction of the nap makes a difference in the color of the garment. So watch to see that all the pattern pieces run the same direction.

There is no right or wrong way for the nap to go — it's all up to your personal preference. So don't let the nap question keep you from taking advantage of the great corduroy looks this fall.

ESTATE PLANNING—DON'T AVOID IT

"But I don't have an estate," you say. Probably not, if you're thinking of ten bedrooms with library and conservatory set on 300 acres. Most of us don't.

In financial planning, however, the term, "estate" simply refers to all you own, and most people own much more than they realize. Not only your home, but also your savings, your business interests, stocks, bonds, life insurance, personal property, and even such items as stamp and coin collections are part of your estate.

Although it may be an unpleasant chore, it is to your advantage to make rational decisions now about the disposal of your assets when you head for the hereafter. Don't let lack of planning unravel the work of a lifetime, and leave your family with less than they could have had.

Here are some general tips: —Make sure you leave a will. If you don't the state will "write" one for you according to a legal formula which might not distribute your assets as you would have.

—Don't leave an unprepared spouse. Both marriage partners should know the whereabouts of important papers. A "letter of instruction" indicating where they are and the status of each is not a bad idea. It should also include the names, telephone numbers and addresses of the family attorney, accountant, banker, and insurance agent. Even better, call our office (758-1196) for a copy of "Record of Important Family Papers."

—Do leave some ready cash. Since snags in probate court are common, each spouse should have a bank account in his or her own name, or easily-disposable assets like U. S. Savings Bonds, for immediate bills and living expenses.

—Beware of an iron-clad will or trust. Remember that the course of world business is unpredictable and your family's situation might change. Draw up documents with some flexibility so that your executor and/or trustee may use discretionary power to adapt to changes.

—Don't rely blindly on joint ownership. This so-called "poor man's will" is no panacea. While it does eliminate the need of probate court, reduce estate taxes and legal fees, and transfer ownership of the property immediately to the survivor, it totally omits any other beneficiaries who might need consideration.

—Although personally written wills — if done properly — are legal, play it safe and have an attorney draw up your will.

Mrs. Ann Byrd, District V vice president of North Carolina Alpha Delta Kappa, and Peggy Congleton of Alpha Nu Chapter of Pitt County, Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, chaplain of N. C. ADK, Betty Speight, president, and Edith Holmes, treasurer of Alpha Iota Chapter of Greenville, attended the Executive Board, Committee Chairmen and President's Council meetings Friday and Saturday.

The meetings were held in Reidsville. Hostesses for the two days were Psi of Winston-Salem, Alpha Alpha of Eden and Alpha Tau of Madison-Mayodan.

To stretch a package of frozen sweetened strawberries for a fruit dessert, serve the berries over rings of unsweetened canned pineapple, drained. The leftover juice from the pineapple, combined with ginger ale, makes a refreshing cold drink.

Dual Lanes Ended Bottleneck

A new stretch of dual laned highway, from W. Third Street north to the Stokes Highway on Memorial Boulevard, was opened to traffic last week.

All construction work on the project is not yet complete but it is far enough along to allow traffic the use of both lanes.

The project involved the construction of second bridge along side the old bridge which carried traffic across the Tar River on the west side of the city for many years.

The additional lanes also had to be snaked by the runways of the Pitt Greenville Airport by the highway planners.

Opening of the dual lane section eliminates a major traffic bottleneck on the U.S. 13, N.C. 11-N.C. 903 route. It is heavily traveled and traffic conditions have been worsening with the development of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital complex in that area.

Within a month the construction should be fully completed and a badly needed artery in the city's thoroughfare system will be in routine use.

It is a good addition.

We're Going To Need Water Bonds

Among matters to be voted on in November will be a $230 million Clean Water bond issue, which will provide grants to local communities for improved water pollution control facilities.

Pitt County communities have shared in previous Clean Water bonds. Here in Greenville there will be major projects coming up on which our city will desperately need the financial assistance this bond issue will offer.

A vote for the Clean Water bonds will be very much in our own interests.

Tests May Bring Change

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There will be some turbulent times across North Carolina next year when the first returns come in from the all-student testing program, says Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

But the turbulence will also be exciting, he thinks, and will lead to major change — if things follow the proper path.

For the first time in the state, standard tests on which scores can be directly compared will be taken by all students in grades one, two, three, six, and nine. A special commission is now at work designing the program and selecting the tests.

The uproar will come when the test scores start rolling in and parents will be able to pinpoint areas of weakness in their local schools.

Grade Teachers?
Gov. Hunt makes it clear that while the new law specifically says that the intent of the program is not to provide a means of comparing and evaluating individual teacher performance, the new system will actually allow exactly that.

Already some teachers are complaining of that likelihood, and especially leaders of the North Carolina Association of Educators are warning of problems ahead.

Top state educators, however, believe that the teachers who are familiar with standardized testing, know how to understand the results and use them to achieve better results will welcome the information.

And in response to teacher concerns, the State Board of Education has approved within the guidelines a provision that individual student race and socio-economic data will be recorded so that those factors can be figured into analysis of test results in specific classes.

Gov. Hunt pushed hard in the General Assembly for the testing program, in the face of teacher opposition, and believes results can lead to important change in the public schools.

But it will be up to local school patrons to produce that change, he notes. Test scores from the state level will be compiled to provide data on regional and county operations.

Locally, it will be up to the people in a given community to make certain that test results are available and analyzed. Individual student scores will be available only to the parent or guardian, but scores will be available on a class-by-class basis.

Offer Help
With that information, the governor notes, those concerned about their schools can go to their local school boards or superintendents and demand answers to the problem, and offer to help solve it.

The burden will rest with local school interests to use the information and to demand steps to correct the problems, Hunt says.

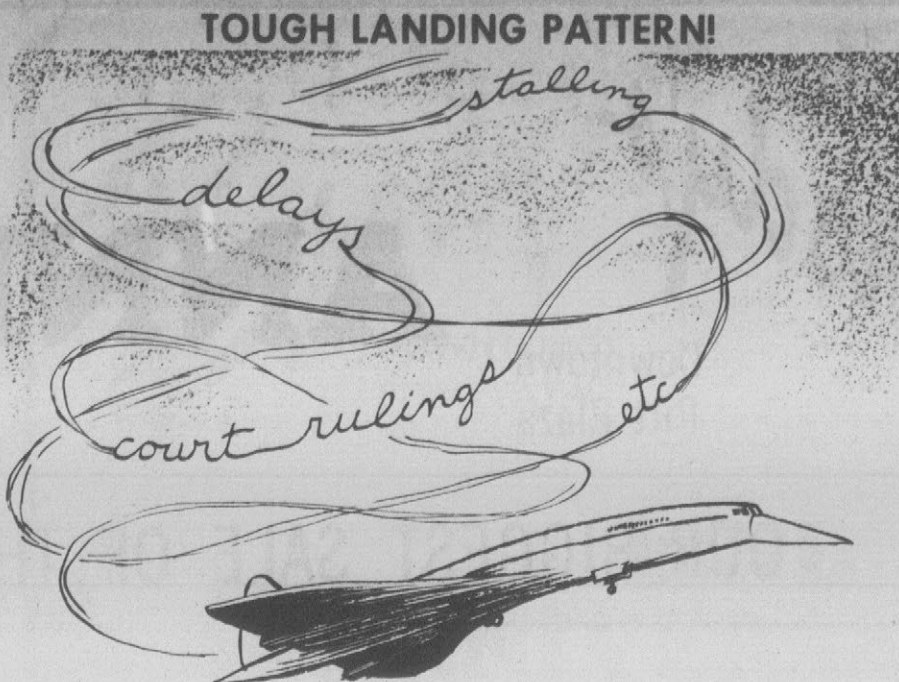

The end result, the governor hopes, will be greatly increased public concern and involvement in looking at problems in the schools, and a greater public willingness to help by increased budgets, more volunteers, redirected programs, and — given the necessity — changes in personnel.

The governor concedes that there are occasions when such drastic steps are necessary and that perhaps the rebirth of local school committees directly involved in education on a regular basis can produce the change needed in the schools.

"I would hope that in not too many years we can begin to see some real change for the better in our schools," Hunt says.

Rules of the testing program are designed to make the process as fair as possible to students and teachers. Unbiased test administrators assisted by aides and volunteers are to give the tests which will be scored at a central point. A series of local workshops to help local educators and parents learn how to use and understand the testing system is planned by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Tide Of Help Swells

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "If the governor can find time to do it," Dr. Sandra Thomas is frequently told, "then I can find the time too."

Gov. Jim Hunt doesn't exactly find time to volunteer; he makes time. His purpose, he never tires of saying, is to encourage North Carolinians to do the same, and Dr. Thomas says his campaign is working.

She is in a good position to know. Her job as executive director of the governor's Office of Citizen Participation puts her in touch with leaders of volunteer groups all over the state.

"Several have told me they're receiving more phone calls from potential volunteers," she says. "And I know that if I took a poll statewide, the answer would be the same."

Hunt has said he wants to double the number of volunteers in the state. He says he wants $4 billion worth of free citizen help with state problems like hunger, illiteracy, crime and dozens of others.

"Yes, I think the time will come when he'll be able to say he's done it," Dr. Thomas says. "It's hard to say when. Maybe by the end of the year."

"With his visibility the past couple of months, there has been a significant increase in the number of calls in to our office," she says. "Some of the calls are complaints or requests for help, but many indicate they would like to volunteer for something."

It is the job of Dr. Thomas and her staff to help communities make practical use of the energy and initiative which the governor mobilizes with his appearances as a volunteer in schools and hospitals around the state.

To do it, the Office of Citizen Participation:

—Keeps records of citizens with special abilities or skills and looks for government agencies or private charitable organizations that could make use of them.

—Helps communities with the nuts and bolts of forming new volunteer organizations to prevent crime, improve community health, conserve energy, etc.

—Keeps track of information and other resources that would be helpful to volunteer organizations.

40 Years Ago Today

October 12, 1937

President Roosevelt called a special session of Congress to meet on November 15.

He gave no indication of subjects to be considered, but the first business of the extraordinary meeting was to be farm legislation with surplus crop control as its main purpose.

Another teacher was allotted to Pitt county schools, bringing the total for the 1937-38 session to 194, a gain of three over the previous year.

Another counterfeit ten dollar bill was found in Greenville, the third in two days.

Chief of Police, George Clark, said his force was working in an effort to trace the bills, but so far had little on which to base an investigation.

Waiting For The Call

WASHINGTON — A few weeks ago President Carter called two Washington correspondents, Hedrick Smith of the New York Times and Jack Nelson of the Los Angeles Times, and spent a long time on the phone explaining how close he was to Vice President Walter Mondale and how hard he, Mr. Carter, was working in the White House.

When the President of the United States calls a newspaperman to explain what he's doing it makes you a big man in this town.

Since then every newspaperperson has a fantasy that he or she will get the next call from the President.

I have to confess that I, too, have been dreaming about it. In my fantasy Jody Powell goes into Mr. Carter's office and says, "You better call Buchwald. He's got it all wrong concerning your position on the three-martini lunch."

The fantasy has become so real that things have become pretty rough around house.

The first night I said to my wife, "Any telephone calls for me?"

"The Volvo service people called and said it would cost $321 to fix your car."

"I don't mean that kind of call. Have there been any from a high government official?"

"Why would a high government official want to call you?"

"Well, if you must know I'm expecting to hear from the President of the United States."

She started to laugh. "It's not a joke," I said angrily. "He's starting to call newspapermen in this town and he might be doing it alphabetically."

"If he does call," she said, still giggling, "should I say you're here?"

"Of course, you can tell him I'm here. You don't tell the President of the United States your husband isn't home when he is. And don't tie up the phone for the next two weeks talking to your sister."

The next night I found my son on the phone speaking to a girlfriend.

"How long has he been talking?" I asked my wife.

"About an hour."
"That's just great," I said. "The President of the United States is probably trying to call me and all he can get is a busy signal."

"I'm sure if the President was trying to get you the White House would interrupt the call."

"Well, tell him to get off."
My wife said to my son, "Finish the call. Your father is expecting to get one from the President."

My son said to his girl, "I have to hang up now. My Dad is waiting for her from President Carter. . . I'm not trying to get you off the line. That's what he says. Yeh, he has been acting a little funny lately. As a matter of fact, he hasn't been the same since Watergate."

"All right," I said, "everyone can make fun of me, but when the call comes through you'll be laughing out of the other side of your mouths. And because of your attitude I'm not going to let any of you listen in."

Since then, every time so . . .

THE INSIDE REPORT

Taxes Hit Middle Class

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Even before its delayed arrival on Capitol Hill, President Carter's massive tax reform is viewed there by both friends and enemies as an assault on the middle class — a perception with ominous overtones for the Carter administration and the economy.

The President would be hard put today to find 10 votes for his tax package on the 37-member House Ways and Means Committee. Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a key administration supporter on the committee, has warned the White House he cannot support what is being drafted. If loyalists such as Mikva are bailing out, what can be expected from the likes of Sen. Russell Long, the independent-minded chairman of the Senate Finance Committee?

The reply from the White House is that the bitter reforms will be sweetened by such generous tax cuts that opposition will fade. As of now, however, the President is threatened with demoralizing legislative defeat next year and a jolt to economic confidence now.

Delay in getting the program to Congress is partly caused by trying to meet these objections (though the White House also wants to get the energy taxes through Congress before sending up the reforms). Now wading through over 200 pages of reading material, Mr. Carter informed his aides he would make no key decisions before the weekend of Oct. 8-9.

Those decisions may well soften the program's impact on taxpayers in the $20,000 to $100,000 bracket. Nevertheless, revenue-producing reforms will most heavily cut not into the rich but into these upper-middle income taxpayers — numerically small but economically and politically vital.

What's more, middle-class sensitivity is heightened by the Carter-backed Social Security bill nearing House passage. To insure the fiscal integrity of the Social Security system, the bill would sharply increase payroll taxes on persons earning over $16,000 a year. Democratic Congressmen consider this a necessary evil but do not want to compound the injury through tax reforms.

This attitude is typified by Congressman Mikva. As chairman of the liberal Democratic Study Group, he might be expected to be an ardent tax reformer. But any such ardor is cooled not only by his upper-middle income constituency in Chicago's north suburbs but by practical experience as a congressional tax-writer.

Mikva has come to learn hard lessons that were foreign to Jimmy Carter as a presidential campaigner: tax reform cannot be a vehicle for helping the poor, who do not pay taxes anyway; the tax structure is not a suitable arena for class warfare; the Internal Revenue code is not "a disgrace to the human race" (candidate Carter's description) but grossly over-complicated and confusing.

So, Mikva has been trying to persuade the administration to lower its sights on tax reform. He has accomplished nothing with Mr. Carter's tax reform drafters — White House chief domestic policy aide Stuart Eizenstat and Assistant Treasury Secretary Laurence Woodworth. But he still hopes Mr. Carter will soften the program's impact on middle-class taxpayers before it reaches Congress.

No matter how little or how much the President softens the bite, revenue-producing reforms will still be aimed at the $25,000-plus business executive or self-employed entrepreneur. They, not coupon-clipping millionaires, will be affected by limitations on expense account lunches, home mortgage deductions and — by far the most important — treating capital gains as ordinary income.

Consequently, Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee view the combined Social Security-tax reform assault on the middle class as a political windfall. "I guess Carter meant what he said during the campaign about raising taxes for everybody making over $17,500," Rep. Barber Conable of New York, the committee's senior Republican, told us.

Eizenstat calls this nonsense, contending that proposed tax cuts are so substantial that practically anybody making under

Bargain Flights May Not Last

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The millenium might be short-lived, say some critics of the huge discounts now being offered by scheduled transatlantic air carriers on the New York-London run.

The misuse of the term is intentional, designed by the critics, among them some U.S. government officials, to draw attention to what they say may be predatory, below-cost pricing by the scheduled airlines.

If the scheduled airlines manage to drive out of business their competition, the supplemental or charter airlines, what then? Will the $256 roundtrip discount price revert to the regular 14-21 day tourist fare of $41?

Those who raise the questions doubt that the millenium, or thousand years of peace and happiness, has come to the troubled skies, as some consumers think. They say we shouldn't be surprised if it all ends as suddenly as it came.

Both the Justice Department and the Civil Aeronautics Board have openly suggested the possibility of a regression to the old fares. Overruled by President Carter, Alfred Kahn, CAB chairman, recently reaffirmed his views in a letter to the Wall Street Journal.

The competition, Kahn pointed out, is not so much among the many members of the International Air Transport Association, "a governmentally supported price-fixing cartel," as it is between IATA members and the supplemental airlines.

The latter do not run on regular schedules but instead charter out their crafts to groups. Running full most of the time, and not burdened with maintaining regular schedules, they generally can offer lower rates than the scheduled lines.

Some of the charter lines now would like to get into the scheduled end of the business and, in fact, one of them has. Laker Airways, a British firm, has obtained permission to operate a scheduled line, on a standby or no reservation basis.

The IATA lines, fearful of such competition, drastically discounted their prices to a level that many airline analysts say are below their costs, and which cannot be maintained without governmental subsidies, or, in effect, by subsidies from regular customers on other routes.

Thus the argument has developed that they are seeking not only to drive the supplementals out of the charter business, but remove them also as potential competitors for regularly scheduled routes.

One spokesman for a supplemental airline said this week that "at the present scheduled discount rates there's no possibility of us even attempting to obtain scheduled routes; the fares simply are too low for profit."

William Leonard, senior vice president of Trans International, the world's largest charter airline, maintains that predatory pricing has been used before and that it accomplished its goal — driving out the supplementals.

Strength For Today

BEFORE THE BAR OF HISTORY

When in the sixteenth century the suggestion was made that a canal might someday be cut across the Isthmus of Panama, a member of the Spanish court wrote indignantly in this vein: "I am of the opinion that human power should not be allowed to cut through the strong and impenetrable bounds which God has put between the two oceans. If we try to do so, we might well risk the vengeance of heaven for attempting to improve what the Creator has already ordained."

In the early eighteenth century, when vaccination was first practiced, many people condemned it as an affront to God, who had established smallpox as a part of His divine creation. Such utterances appear to us today to be fantastic. Yet we are probably just as fantastic in some of the opinions we hold. Therefore, we had better not be too contemptuous of the people of former days. Some hundreds of years hence we may appear before the bar of history as ridiculous as they.

Farmville School Demolition Project Questioned

FARMVILLE — The Town of Farmville is making public its reasons for seeking to have the old Farmville High School building, located on property bought by the town some time ago, demolished.

There has been considerable questioning of the decision from local citizens who feel the building could be saved and used.

Town officials cite the 1976 inspection report of a state government engineer which indicate "that substantial and costly repairs would be needed in order to make the former Farmville school property suitable for public use." Jesse F. Allred, a professional engineer and building code consultant for the N.C. Department of Insurance, surveyed the building in June, 1976 and cited alterations required for the building to meet modern code and safety requirements for public use, Town Administrator Pat Thomas said.

He said these include: possible need for extensive roof repairs because of known and evident leakage; improvement to make the building accessible to the handicapped (ramping, elevators and special restroom fixtures); virtual total replacement of stairs to convert to non-combustible materials; construction of firewalls, addition of fire-rated wall materials, and fire-stopping partitions in the attic and corridors; and sealing of basement if building is to be used for institutional purposes.

Thomas said the town is currently seeking bids from contractors for razing of the old school buildings, though he said there "appears to be some likelihood that the gymnasium will not immediately be removed."

Other reasons given by commissioners and the administrator and the building inspector include:

—"The public safety hazard posed by the buildings, which have possible structural weaknesses and have been heavily vandalized;

—"The difficulty and high cost of converting the buildings to even minimal energy efficiency (They are not insulated, have large amounts of window space and lack an operable heating and cooling system);

—"The fact that the central building is not well designed for government use, is much larger than is needed for local government use, and would require expensive partitioning and alterations;

—"The large amount of space and older style construction of the building, which would create high continuing costs for fuel and maintenance;

—"The major repairs and additions required to convert the building to office, institutional or assembly use, which could easily rival the cost of a new building designed specifically for town needs and energy efficiency;

—"The old buildings lack of architectural distinction to support preservation, whereas a new municipal complex could provide an attractive focal point for downtown and community activity; and

—"The combination of a new Town Hall complex and the Community Schools Program could provide a more economical solution to community needs."

One possibility Commissioners have mentioned is for the buildings to be demolished in the near future (with the possible exception of the gym), the site to be temporarily converted to a large Town Commons for outdoor community events and park-like leisure enjoyment, and construction in several years of a new municipal complex, with much of the site kept as a commons, and coordination of overall community facility needs with the schools.

The Town is currently conducting a governmental space needs study, with the assistance of architectural, engineering and planning consultants. It is supported by a State grant, Thomas said. "Town offices are currently scattered among several buildings and locations," he said. "Combinations of most of these offices in one location would free several downtown buildings for commercial growth."

Under the Community Schools Act, the Pitt County Schools are seeking a grant to develop a means of increasing public utilization of school facilities, Thomas said. This grant proposal, is being supported by the Town of Farmville, he said. He said County Commissioners' Chairman Charles Gaskins has indicated that one objective is to "avoid duplication of facilities already available in the newer active school buildings."

Methodist Workshop Scheduled For Sunday

A number of United Methodist churches are experiencing a rebirth in Christian education according to the Rev. Robert L. Baldrige, coordinator of Leadership Development for the North Carolina United Methodist Conference.

"While the traditional Sunday morning classes are finding renewal in some churches, many congregations are looking past Sunday and offering classes and fellowship times throughout the week.

"The United Methodist Church recognizes this diversified approach to Christian education and produces a mass of resources designed to meet the needs of any local church," he said.

These resources will be introduced to United Methodist Church School teachers, counselors and workers from a five-county area at a District Curriculum Workshop Sunday, Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, 1400 Red Banks Rd., Greenville, will host the workshop from 2:30-5:30 p.m. The Rev. David Hazelwood of the United Methodist Church's Board of Discipleship, Nashville, Tenn., will be the primary leader for the event. He will be assisted by Baldrige, the Rev. Hugh H. Cameron, coordinator of Children's Ministries, and the Rev. J. Edward Morrison, coordinator of Youth Ministries.

The workshop will feature a display of denominational resources and participants will have an opportunity to see these resources as well as receive instruction from a leader who has helped in their production.

This workshop is one of 12 being held in the North Carolina United Methodist Conference, which encompasses the eastern 56 counties of the state.

"Big mouth. Do you have to tell everyone?"

"I think it's kind of impressive. If he doesn't call by next week, why don't you call him? It might relieve the suspense."

"No way. You don't get the Pulitzer Prize if you call the President. The only way they'll give it to you is if he calls you."

Nevertheless, the perception of the program, fairly or not, as anti-middle class will further undercut consumer and investor confidence. That perception is enhanced by such forecasts as the Sept. 28 newsletter of economist Elliot Janeway: "The package about to be unveiled, though advertised as aimed against 'the big boys,' will deal the little people a body blow." That is what Ab Mikva, without success, has tried to warn the President and his men against.

Leading Drive In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Jaycees are conducting a United Way Fund Drive in the Winterville Community.

Steve Evans, chairman of the local drive, said that "the Pitt County United Fund is set up to help many agencies and people throughout the county."

He added that "by helping people through a united effort we'll eventually benefit and strengthen our society."

Interested persons are asked to contact Bob Braxton, Randy Avery, David Hooks, Bill Talley, Pat Deccuzzi, Jerry Cox, or Evans.

In addition to all this and more, Dr. Thomas says her office is looking for new ways in which volunteers can help solve major state problems.

"We're especially interested in needs that can be met through criminal justice volunteerism," she says. "Once we find ways to meet them, we hope within two years to establish an independent private agency to continue and expand those programs." Hunt has been as dedicated to the task behind the scenes as he has in public, she says. "There's no time our office can't get to the governor. When there's a volunteer opportunity, he moves everything else around. He thinks it's that important."

Appointed To Tax Study Committee

Speaker of the House Carl J. Stewart Jr. of Gastonia yesterday announced his appointments to the Committee for the Study of the Collection of Property Taxes on Motor Vehicles.

Stewart's appointments are Representatives Robert A. Jones of Forest City, Marilyn R. Bissell of Charlotte, Samuel D. Bundy of Farmville, Claude DeBruhl of Asheville, Fred R. Dorsey of East Flat Rock, and William T. Watkins of Oxford.

The committee was established by the 1977 General Assembly as a result of increasing difficulties experienced by counties and municipalities in collecting property taxes on motor vehicles.

The resolution establishing the committee noted that between 15-20 percent of all motor vehicles subject to the tax were not being listed, resulting in a substantial revenue loss to local governments.

The committee will make a comprehensive study of the present system of collecting property taxes on motor vehicles and review the systems employed by other states. Recommendations for appropriate legislative action are to be presented to the 1978 interim session of the General Assembly.

$111.79 Day On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — Competition was a little stronger yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market on some of the medium grades of leaf as compared with the last sale day, Louis Williams, sales supervisor reported today.

Better grades of all varieties continued to be in strong demand by all buying companies, he said.

Top price for company purchases was $1.70 per pound, with the volume of sales consisting of mostly leaf and nondescript grades.

Demand for some nondescript grades was stronger, Williams noted.

The market sold 414,200 pounds for $463,025 for an average of $111.79 per hundred yesterday.

To date the market has sold 23,206,173 pounds for $27,234,127 for an average of $117.36 per hundred pounds.

Police List 2 Wrecks

An estimated $2,325 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:59 p.m. mishap on Charles Street, 210 feet North of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, involving cars driven by Julia Ann Cleveland of Tarboro and Jeffrey Warren Baker of Greenville.

Damage to the Cleveland vehicle was set at $800 while damage to the Baker car was estimated at $1,000.

Mrs. Cleveland was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the collision.

A 12:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Tenth Street involved vehicles driven by Randy Lee Garris of Route 8, Greenville; Kenneth Ray Beachum of Route 5, Greenville and Ledonia Brigman Aldridge of 2619 Jefferson Dr.

Officers estimated damage to the Garris car at $25, damage to the Aldridge car at $300 and damage to the Beachum truck at $200.

Grifton Board Adopts Rules On Assessment

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board last night adopted a preliminary assessment rule for street improvements.

The proposed improvements would include all of Mashie Drive and portions of North Fairlane Drive, Village Drive, Lewis Drive, and Dogwood Lane, according to Town Clerk Nan Smith.

Sandra Hardison of the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton (WAG) Mentally Retarded Center requested that a 10 foot by x 10 foot storage building, with a cement base, be built behind the Center which is housed in the Grifton Civic Center.

The Board agreed with Hardison's proposal on the grounds that she obtain a building permit "that complies with the law," said Smith.

The Board also authorized

Fire Chief Johnny Craft to purchase a new siren, costing approximately $3,000, to be placed atop the local water tower.

A constitutional amendment permitting electric cities to own their own power plant was opposed.

Grifton Board also heard a request for a full-page ad to be placed in the Ayden-Grifton High School yearbook. The Board approved the request.

Found Remarks 'Prejudicial'

A Feedback For Cable TV Users

By TIM MILLER
COLUMBUS (UPI) — If offerings of the new television season seem lackluster, a large cable television firm intends to soon provide its viewers with a very different kind of programming — feedback television.

Feedback television, or two-way television as the Warner Cable Corp. refers to it, is when viewers participate in shows in progress by pushing buttons at home which register their vote or answer with the program. Their response is then disclosed on the air.

The system will be available to 30,000 cable subscribers here by the end of the year, according to the firm. Its chairman, Gustave M. Hauser, said it will "take us into a whole new era, the way television superseded radio."

Each subscriber will have a box of electronic equipment installed next to his TV. Viewers will also have a control box, similar to a pocket calculator, that will enable them to select among 30 channels and to "talk back" to the TV on two of the channels that are called "participatory."

One of the two is entitled Pinwheel. It is to carry a Sesame Street-type of children's show that will run from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The other is called Columbus Alive. It will feature a morning show similar to NBC's Today, a game show with viewers participating, and public service programs.

The game show, called "How do You Like Your Eggs?" is hosted by Bill Cullen. It was presented in the spring to 204 homes in an initial test of the service.

Contestants on the show tried to guess how viewers would respond to such questions as in the show's name.

The five buttons on the control box in the viewer's home stood, in the case of the question in the title of the show, for scrambled, soft-boiled, sunny-side up, hard-boiled and poached.

Viewers voted by pushing a button on their control box and contestants tried to guess what the result would be.

Within minutes, the company's computer told everyone that 48 per cent favored scrambled.

On Columbus Alive, some cable officials envision having politicians on a show and then asking the viewers what they think of the officeholder's positions, or simply asking the audience, "Do you believe him?" The computer then lets the politician know.

Viewers of Columbus Alive will be able to push buttons to tell program officials what topics they would like to see discussed, register approval or disapproval of guests, or just give their opinions of guests or show material.

One program may be devoted to having merchants show merchandise, such as electronic equipment. It envisions viewers then ordering items they want by simply pushing a button corresponding to an item displayed.

The computer will have the viewer's address and charge account number. Based on such orders, the product and the bill would then be sent to the subscriber.

Hauser says Columbus was selected as the test market because, "We felt it was an hospitable environment for a new business. Columbus happens to be a great city demographically. It's a good test market."

In some parts of Chile's Atacama Desert, rain falls only once in every 25 to 50 years.

It'd be right smart to give the local Doxol guy a call.

How-deee! This is Minnie Pearl. You know, school days are long past for most of us. But, not the Doxol guy. He still goes to special training sessions sponsored by his company.

He's the only one in the whole LP-gas industry with a program like this. That's where he learns the fine points of home heating, safety, and all those motor fuel, agricultural and commercial applications.

If you're looking for someone you can count on, it'd be right smart to give your local Doxol guy a call!

Pediatric Hospital Erasing Atmosphere Of Fear

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Remember when you were a kid and you had your tonsils out? You were put under by an evil-smelling gas and woke up scared to death.

Well, medicine is changing, and that atmosphere of fear is going the way of doctors who made house calls.

Pediatric hospitals around the country are erasing the fears of their tiny patients by treating the mind as well as the body and laying the mysteries of medicine out on the table.

At Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, for example, the gas masks smell of root beer and licorice. And Bert and Ernie and Kermit the frog dolls are doctored by the kids themselves who are trying to get better.

During play therapy sessions, the youngsters give their stuffed charges shots and blood transfusions of water, plaster their appendages with casts, and anoint their bodies with Band-Aids. They toss around medical jargon like OR (operating room) and IV (intravenous) with ease.

Sure, when real needles meet real skin, it still hurts. But once understood, needles and other hospital apparatus often aren't as frightening.

"We try to prevent surprises," explains nurse Linda Ogilvie, the hospital's parent services coordinator. "When they don't know what's happening, that's when they really get scared."

"For the kids, that's the most traumatic thing," says Mrs. Ogilvie. "Bobby says 'Ouch!' very loud during the show when he gets his injections."

"The kids usually look up into their parents' faces, as if to say, 'Is this really going to happen to me?'" The parents nod yes. The kids are very quiet. We take the same puppet them anyway. They're going to see them when they wake up from their operation and they're not feeling good and they have all tubes and wires in them. That's no time to start talking about it."

Before operations, patients can play with gas masks, and nurses model operating room caps and masks to give the kids a preview of operating room attire. Dry run "surgery" is performed on either Bert or Ernie, then the "Sesame Street" characters are bandaged up and "sent home to see their buddy, Kermit." The kids and parents seem to love it.

PUPPET DOCTOR AND NURSE — Linda Ogilvie, R.N., parent services coordinator at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, instructs Dejah, left, and Jaelith Fullweiler of Springtown, Pa. about hospital procedures by using puppets. (AP Laserphoto)

For many, the indoctrination begins before the youngsters check in.

Several weeks prior to admission, kids scheduled for surgery receive an invitation to a hospital party featuring a puppet show.

"They can bring along their parents, their brothers and sisters, and any children from the neighborhood," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

The puppets teach the kids about the new things they'll experience in the hospital: the higher beds, the wrist identification bracelets, etc. A puppet named "Bobby" talks about what he's going to do before his operation, about the two injections he'll get in the morning.

show to schools sometimes for kids who aren't going into the hospital. They laugh when Bobby says ouch."

The hospital party goes then tour the operating room, the recovery room and the waiting room.

"The morning before surgery we sit down with the child and family and discuss everything we know they'll feel when the youngster wakes up," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

"With the kids who are going to have serious operations, we take them and their parents down to the intensive care unit beforehand. And that can be pretty frightening because they're seeing other children who are pretty sick.

"But they're going to see

Memorial Fund For Hendrix Established

ECU News Bureau
East Carolina University is establishing a memorial fund in tribute to the late J. Curtis Hendrix of Greenville, one of the university's closest friends and strongest supporters.

Hendrix, executive vice president of the First State Bank of Greenville, died last weekend at the age of 43.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU Chancellor, made the first contribution to the Curtis Hendrix Memorial Fund, university officials said.

University administrators, staff, faculty and friends of ECU are also making contributions in Hendrix' name, officials said. The Memorial Fund is being established through the office of the Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs, C. G. Moore.

Hendrix received the B.S. and MA degrees from East Carolina University. He was immediate past president of the ECU Alumni Association, a past director of the Pirates Club, a member of the ECU Athletic Council and was a member of the selection committee which recommended the present ECU football coach, Pat Dye.

Hendrix's wife, the former Mary Alice Cox of Raleigh, said her husband's loyalty and devotion to his alma mater made such a memorial fund in his honor fitting and appropriate.

Republican Governors Pick Carter As Target

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (AP) — President Carter has been picked by Republican governors meeting here as their issue in the coming election year. They said Carter's recent slip in the polls would help them. John Connally, the former Texas governor and Treasury secretary who was once a Democrat, summed it up at the closing session of the annual Republican Governor's Conference Tuesday: "The job that's being done today," he said of Carter's administration, "domestically and internationally, is in my opinion the poorest job I've seen done in my lifetime." Other speakers were just as tough on the President, toward whom the GOP has become increasingly daring lately, especially since the resignation under fire of Budget Director Bert Lance. "America is adrift," charged Delaware Gov. Pierre du Pont. "We have no energy policy. We have no farm policy. But most important of all, we have no American economic policy. Any hope of a balanced budget is gone. "I know the White House doesn't have an ethics policy," du Pont said. "We've seen that in the Lance caper. We've seen it in the various ethical switchbacks that the administration has taken in regards to enforcing those high moral principles that the White House talks about and President Carter talked about in the campaign." Party Chairman Bill Brock suggested Carter is unfit to govern. Brock set the party line at its most personally critical level so far and acknowledged he had the President's sinking popularity ratings in mind. "We can take some solace, I guess is the word, in the polls

Now Focus On Panama Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations committee is shifting the focus of its Panama Canal treaty hearings to that country's human rights policies. Scheduled to testify at the hearings resumed today was Mrs. Rose Marie Aragon, wife of a Panamanian journalist who burned himself to death in Stockholm last month in a protest against Panama's dictator, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and the proposed American treaty to relinquish control of the waterway to Panama by the year 2000. In a related development, the Senate Rules Committee planned to consider a resolution, introduced by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-

W.Va., to allow live television floor debate on the canal coverage of next year's Senate treaty.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, unsettled by concern over rising interest rates, came under sharp selling pressure today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which hit a 22-month low on Tuesday, fell 6.32 to 826.06 in the first half hour.

Losers took a lopsided 4-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts blamed selling on fears of a continuation of the recent rise of interest rates.

Rising interest rates are often bad news for the stock market because they mean increased borrowing costs for business, and at the same time tend to attract money into fixed-income securities that might otherwise be earmarked for stocks.

Dow Chemical was the early volume leader among NYSE-listed issues, down 1/4 at 29 3/4. On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.88 to 832.38, its lowest close since it finished at 824.15 on Dec. 9, 1975.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 17.87 million shares, up from 10.58 million on Monday. The NYSE's composite index fell 41 to 52.09.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .56 to 117.99.

Yanks Grab Series Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Two left-handers, one who can pitch ever day and one whose season was supposed to be over, provided the hurling heroics, while a defensive specialist and a Punch 'n Judy hitter provided the important offense as the New York Yankees finally won their 100th World Series game.

It took 13 years and 12 action-packed innings Tuesday night before the Yankees reached the century mark, outlasting the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

"It feels wonderful," decided Yankee Manager Billy Martin, who managed his first World Series winner after four losing games against Cincinnati last year.

Last year, Cincinnati had left-hander Don Gullett, while this year the Yankees have him. The hard-throwing Gullett, an offseason free agent acquisition by the Yankees, was yanked after two innings last Wednesday in the American League playoffs because of a sore shoulder. At the time, Martin said Gullett was finished for the season.

But that was no mirage on the mound Tuesday night. It was Don Gullett, who combined with ironman Sparky Lyle to finish off the Dodgers, allowing the National League champions just six hits all night.

"The difference between the playoffs and tonight was that I was throwing the ball 10 or 15 miles an hour faster," said Gullett, who was given a pain-killing cortisone shot after his poor performance a week ago. "Even though I had trouble in the first inning, I had enough confidence in my stuff to know I would corral it sooner or later."

Lyle, who always has confidence in his stuff, checked the Dodgers on one hit for the last 3 2-3 innings to gain his third straight postseason victory. His winning relief stints Saturday and Sunday carried the Yankees into the World Series.

"My arm feels good right now," said Lyle, who has pitched 13 2-3 innings in relief since postseason play began for the Yankees last Wednesday. "I definitely can go tomorrow — I mean if he needs me."

Lyle didn't have to pitch all night because Paul

Blair, a brilliant outfielder inserted for Reggie Jackson in the ninth inning, stroked a two-strike single past short in the 12th, scoring the fleet Willie Randolph with the winning run.

In the sixth inning, Randolph had turned from speedster to power hitter, socking his first home run since July 12 (274 at bats) to tie the game at 2-2.

Blair, a beanball victim earlier in his career, still carries the psychological scars and ducks away from right-handed pitchers. But his clutch single in the 12th came off right-handed reliever Rick Rhoden, the fifth Los Angeles pitcher. He also singled off Kansas City right-hander Dennis Leonard Sunday, launching the Yankees' ninth-inning, pennant-winning rally.

See Box Score Page 15

Blair's game-winner came after he had failed to lay down successful sacrifice bunts in the 10th and 12th innings. "I was disappointed that I didn't get the bat down really good when I was trying to bunt," Blair said.

Randolph, the Yankees' 23-year-old All-Star second baseman, was the New York power hitter Tuesday night, stealing the thunder from sluggers Jackson, Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss, who remain in dismal slumps. None of them has an extra-base hit in postseason play.

Randolph already has two extra base blasts in the series, the homer to left in the sixth and the double to right leading off the 12th inning.

"All year I've been in the background, so this feels great," said the quiet Randolph, who had only four homers in the regular season. "But I'm not really a home run hitter and I don't look to hit the long ball. I just go up there and try to be aggressive."

Randolph has a chance to continue his hot hitting while the real Yankee home run threats hope to wake up their bats tonight in Game 2, when New York's Catfish Hunter pitches against Burt Hooton in a battle of right-handers.

Hunter, sidelined since Sept. 10 because of a urological disorder, may be well rested.

"I threw twice in the bullpen during the playoffs and I feel fine," said Hunter. "I'm too dumb to be scared, but I did call my son and told him he sure and watch the first inning so he won't miss anything."

The Yankee Stadium crowd of 56,668 — largest of the season — and a national television audience sure saw something Tuesday night in a match of historic rivalry between Dodger Blue and Yankee Pinstripes.

Bill Russell's run-scoring triple and Ron Cey's sacrifice fly sent the Dodgers out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but Gullett, calmed down by Martin and catcher Thurman Munson, then snuffed out the rally.

"I knew he was throwing the ball real hard," said Martin. "I just went out there to calm him down. His throwing as sensational. I'm very proud of him."

Munson was also in on the mound meeting. "He told me if we get this guy out, someone's in trouble the rest of the game," Munson related. "Don Gullett's a great competitor."

So is Munson, whose RBI single in the first was his sixth straight World Series hit dating back to the 1976 Series.

The Yankee captain also stroked an RBI double down the left-field line in the eighth, giving the Yankees a 3-2 lead, which didn't last long. Lee Lacy's one-out pinch-hit single off Lyle in the ninth chased home Dusty Baker and sent the game into extra innings.

Munson was also involved in the game's most controversial play, a sixth-inning tag play, with center fielder Mickey Rivers' throw beating Steve Garvey to the plate.

"The ball beat him," said Munson.

The Dodgers didn't agree.

"It looked like the umpire (Nestor Chylak) was on the wrong side of the plate when he made the call," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "Steve thought he was safe and so did I. But that doesn't matter. We have to think about tomorrow."

LA Hopes To Rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees got in the first blow of the World Series, but Mike Garman thinks the Los Angeles Dodgers have a counter-punch coming.

"There's no reason to be down," the Dodger relief ace said Tuesday night after Los Angeles was beaten by the Yankees 4-3 in a 12-inning World Series opener.

"We lost the first game of the National League playoffs to the Philadelphia Phillies, but bounced back and beat them three straight. We blew them out, and we're the type of club that can blow out the Yankees, or any other club. I feel there'll be no problem coming back." In charge of the hopeful Dodger comeback tonight will be Burt Hooton, a 12-game winner with world of confidence.

"We're a great comeback team," said Hooton. "We go out and play good baseball all the time and don't give away runs. You have to earn them against us."

Hooton, though, shows great respect for the American League champions, especially the hitting talents of Thurman Munson. "Munson looks like the toughest hitter in their lineup," Hooton noted. "He hits the ball to all fields, and consistently gets a piece of the ball. He's definitely their toughest out." One of the things that Hooton will try not to do is pitch Willie Randolph high and tight. The slender Yankee second baseman adjusted to that pitch from Don Sutton Tuesday night and belted the ball into the left field seats for New York's second run.

Catfish Hits Mound Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — With sore-shouldered Don Gullett having affected a miracle cure for the opening game of the World Series, the pitching-short New York Yankees are keeping their fingers crossed and turning tonight's second-game assignment over to a seldom-used right-hander also beset by an assortment of miseries.

But this pitcher, who hasn't thrown a ball in anger in more than a month, who didn't appear at all during the American League playoffs and who was ineffective during most of the regular season, just happens to be one of the premier hurlers in baseball history.

Surely you remember James Augustus "Catfish" Hunter.

"I just called my little boy and told him to watch the first inning so he could see me," said Catfish Hunter, only the fourth pitcher in this century — the others were Cy Young, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson — to record his 200th victory before his 31st birthday.

"I don't know how far I can go, but Billy (Manager Billy Martin) should have somebody ready from the fourth inning on," said Catfish Hunter, one of only three American Leaguers — the others are Johnson and Lefty Grove — to be a 20-game winner in five consecutive seasons.

"Billy told me something on the plane ride home from Kansas City about me starting either the second or third game," said Catfish Hunter, eight times a member of the AL All-Star team, winner of the Cy Young Award in 1974 and runnerup in 1975.

Catfish Hunter, owner of a 4-1 record and 2.36 earned run average in four previous World Series, has taken to crying on the inside while making jokes on the outside about his dismal 1977 season — only 22 appearances, a 9-9 won-lost record, 4.71 ERA and 29 home runs in just 143 1-3 innings of work.

This is the pitcher on whom the Yankees are relying in the wake of Tuesday night's 4-3 opening-game triumph behind the six-hit hurling of Gullett and relief ace Sparky Lyle and the hitting of Willie Randolph, Thurman Munson and Paul Blair, who singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning.

Asked what he expected from Hunter, Martin replied:

"I don't put any innings on him. It all goes according to what my eyes tell me. I had to use two starters the other day (Ron Guidry and Mike Torrez in Game 5 of the playoffs) and another one (Ed Figueroa) has a sore finger."

That is why Hunter gets the call tonight. Gullett was tapped for the opener for much the same reason, even though he had to leave the playoff opener against Kansas City last Wednesday with an aching shoulder after yielding four runs in two innings.

"When a pitcher has arm problems there's really some uncertainty," Gullett said after overcoming a shaky start as the Dodgers took a quick 2-0 lead, then settling down and working 81-3 strong innings.

"But I felt physically good and strong warming up and I knew I'd be okay. I told the pitching coaches and I kept shaking my head affirmatively. I'm gonna be the last guy to give up on myself."

When someone asked the 26-year-old left-hander how his arm felt, he replied: "Someone told me I was throwing at 96 miles an hour; does that answer your question?"

Clemson Tilt Big For Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke Coach Mike McGee says the Blue Devils' upcoming tilt against Clemson will be a challenge worthy of a team that could come from behind to beat South Carolina.

"This is going to be one of the finer games in the conference this year," he said. "I am most impressed with Clemson. They have fine line personnel and they have good strength and size. Steve Fuller is an excellent quarterback and they have excellent technique on defense."

McGee's charges are also expecting a big game.

"Morale is at an unbelievable high," said tackle John Patterson. "The guys are feeling confident. Last year we were hoping we could win but there's a difference now. We know we can win. It's a good feeling."

Fullback Ned Gonet predicts a "black and blue battle."

Chargers Prepare To Make Challenge

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Griffon's Chargers plan to make their move for the Eastern Carolina Conference football championship over the next two Friday nights, according to Coach Dixon Sauls.

The Chargers, currently tied with Farmville Central for the league lead, take on one of the leading contenders for the crown this week, Greene Central. If they get by that contest, they'll be facing Farmville Central in a game that could decide it all a week later.

Last Friday night saw the Chargers easily put down up-and-coming North Lenoir 21-6. In other games, Farmville Central handed D. H. Conley a 22-0 defeat and North Pitt won its first league game over Southern Nash, 21-6.

This week, in addition to Ayden-Griffon at Greene Central, North Pitt will travel to North Lenoir and D. H. Conley will host Southern Nash.

Ayden-Griffon
Sauls said the Chargers were "ready to play" against North Lenoir and showed more enthusiasm than they have had during recent games.

"We felt like our offensive line got off the football real well. We controlled the line of scrimmage on offense and defense," Sauls said.

Running backs Johnny Carmon and Terry Morris both moved the ball well, according to Sauls, and Morris had an excellent defensive game, intercepting a pass and recovering a fumble.

Other standouts for the Chargers were tackles Mike Teachey and Johnny Stocks, defensive end Bernard Coley and the entire secondary which did a good job stopping Hawk end Amos Pearcill. Sauls also had some kind words for his coaching staff.

Friday night's encounter with Greene Central is an important factor in the Chargers' season plans. "This game is important to put us in a position to make our move during the next two weeks in the conference race," Sauls said.

The Rams will undoubtedly be the best team Ayden-Griffon has faced this year, according to Sauls. They are solid and play outstanding defense. The fact that they have forced 15 fumbles in the past two games attests to their toughness, Sauls said.

The Greene Central offense is balanced with a good quarterback and two outstanding tailbacks. The most notable of these is James Best.

Sauls said the Chargers will "have to stop the tailback off tackle and the sweeps" to control the Ram offense. "We will have to do something to shut down the running of, or at least contain, James Best," he said.

Turnovers could make the difference in this one, Sauls added. "We're going over there with the idea of winning. We will have a real shot at the championship if we win this week."

North Pitt
The Panthers picked up their second win of the season, their first in the conference, with a victory over winless Southern Nash.

"We played real good ball in the first half, but we weren't too well pleased the second half with the offense," said coach Pat Smith.

"We didn't play all that well on

The team is going to have to throw the ball more effectively to be able to win against the Hawks' who have "one of the better teams that they've had," Smith said.

D. H. Conley
Despite the loss to Farmville Central, Viking coach Chuck Dunn had some things to be pleased about.

"I thought our defense played about as well as we could have," he said. "It was the best effort we've had all year."

"On offense, we obviously had some problems. We had some injuries in our line and they took advantage of it."

Dunn was pleased with the play of defensive players Kenny Phillips, Nuggie Worthington, Randy Edens and Sammy Tucker.

This week's foe, Southern Nash, is "obviously having some problems, too," Dunn said, but the Firebirds are big and "always seem to be up for us."

The game will depend, to some extent, on how well a few of Conley's injured players come around, Dunn said.

The contest could be a key one for the Vikings as they attempt to get back into the Eastern Carolina Conference race. Despite two league losses, "we haven't been overwhelmed by anybody," Dunn said. "If the chips fall right, we feel like we're still involved."

Farmville Central
Mental mistakes and penalties hurt the Jaguar effort against Conley last week, according to coach Gene Brewer, but he said his team played "fairly good" defensively.

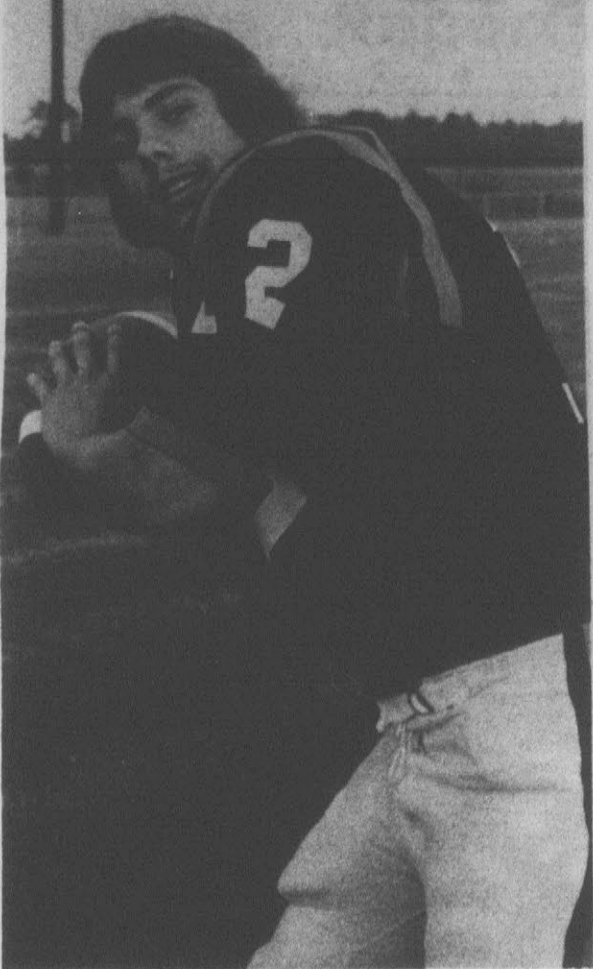

"Our offense didn't move the ball very well," Brewer said. The Viking defense was "about what we expected," but a number of good individual efforts by Conley players, plus Jaguar mistakes, kept the Farmville offense in a hole.

Brewer did have praise for his offensive backfield, however, quarterback Donald Freeman and running backs Donald Reid and Rufus Mayo.

Defensively, the Jaguar coach praised linemen Woody Edwards and William Maye, linebackers Ronald and Donald Reid and the entire defensive secondary, Tony Eason, Scott Evans and Rufus Mayo.

This week's opposition, the Falcons of C. B. Aycock "were having problems until they got (Shelton) Robinson back," said Brewer, referring to the Falcons' star running back who has been hampered by injuries.

Aycock has "a pretty good nucleus of kids" that have been

NP's John Hunt

Hunt Punting For North Pitt

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

One of the biggest factors in a successful punting game is out of the punter's control, according to North Pitt punter John Hunt. A key element in getting off a good kick is time and that's up to the offensive line, Hunt said.

A 5-8, 160-pound senior, Hunt has been getting a great deal of help from his line on punts this year, good enough for a 42.2 yards per punt average.

Hunt, who is the starting quarterback for the Panthers, didn't start punting until this season, although he has played football for North Pitt the past four years.

Hunt said he knew the team would need a punter this season and he had "messed around" punting the ball in the past. So, when he attended the East Carolina University football camp this past summer, he got some instruction on punting the ball from ECU assistant coach Henry Travathan.

"Coach Travathan showed me about punting and the different ways to punt," Hunt said. "I made up my mind to punt this year." That decision required a lot of practice, but Hunt said, "One thing I like about punting is that you can be by yourself and still practice."

There is another aspect to punting — the snapper. Hunt knows all about this part because he was the snapper for the Panthers in the ninth grade. "I've got to give a lot of credit to freshman Mitchell Leggett, our center. He's been doing a good job of getting it (the ball) back to me."

In addition to helping out the Panther field position through his punting, Hunt has also been doing a good job leading the Panther offense.

He is one of the top three rushers on the team, having carried the ball 63 times for 220 yards. In passing, he is 10-23 for the season for 130 yards with two interceptions.

Hunt said he enjoys playing quarterback because "I like the feeling of getting everybody together to play as a team. We haven't had too much of that out here."

The team is playing together better this year, than in any other year of Hunt's memory, however, and he feels the Panthers may achieve their best won-lost record ever this season.

With two wins behind them, Hunt says the team has a chance of a .500 record this season. "We only have about 24 or 25 people on the team, but the guys we do have want to play. They give 100 per cent almost every game," he said.

"That's why I think we're going to end up better than we ever have. Everybody's a lot more optimistic than they ever have been."

Hunt would like to play college football next year and wants to continue working with coach Trevathan as a team member at East Carolina. He hopes to continue his impressive punting statistics and land a job with the Pirates next season.

Lady Bucs Win Pair

DURHAM — East Carolina's women's volleyball team came up victorious again Tuesday night downing Duke and Elon in a dual match at Durham.

The Lady Pirates came back to win two straight against Duke, 15-10, and 15-11, after dropping the first game, 15-8. Coach Alita Dillon said that her team's net play was outstanding in the contest.

She cited Debbie Freeman and Gale Kerbaugh as having played strong defense in the match.

Against Elon, ECU took a close first game, 15-13, then easily outdistanced them, 15-8, in the second. Judy Halliday and Sandra Sampson were cited by Coach Dillon as having had good games.

The two victories raised the Lady Pirates record to 12-5 in the year. They return to the Minges Courts Thursday night for a match against N.C. State.

Maryland Is Wary

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—When Maryland's football team went unbeaten through the 1976 regular season, the Terps experienced their most difficult game against Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons, who posted a 5-6 record, scored with 1:29 remaining and then got the ball for three more plays before the Terps prevailed in their own Byrd Stadium.

"They have all but four or five of those players back this year," Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne noted while preparing for Saturday's clash with Wake Forest in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Things are a bit different for Maryland this time around, with the Terps having lost three of their first five games. Their record 21 game winning streak in the Atlantic Coast Conference was broken two weeks ago by North Carolina State, 24-20.

Wake Forest lost to State a week earlier, 41-14, but Claiborne borne is wary of an offense paced by three ACC individual statistical leaders.

Mike McGlamry of the Deacons tops league passers with 10 completions a game, Steve Young is the No. 1 receiver with 28 receptions, and James McDougal is the leading rusher with an average of 113 yards per game.

Maryland has the runner-up in two of the departments—passer Larry Dick and receiver Vince Kinney—and rusher Steve Atkins is just about coming into his own for the first time in a year.

Dick, Maryland's starting quarterback now that Mark Manges has been sidelined with a broken hand, ranks behind McGlamry with nine completions a game.

But Dick has a whopping 60-49 edge in percentage of completions, 631-598 in yards despite 42 fewer attempts, and has been intercepted only once to McGlamry's seven.

Kinney, with seven fewer receptions than Young, has gained 101 more yards and his average gain of 19.1 yards easily outdistances Young's 10.8.

Atkins, who gained 621 yards before being injured in the fifth game last season, ranks only fifth this year with an average of 56.4 yards a game.

But after he gained 92 yards against Syracuse last week, Claiborne said, "that's the best he has run since being hurt."

"Wake has been moving the ball well," Claiborne said, "but they've had trouble getting into the end zone."

Maryland has beaten Wake Forest five consecutive times since Claiborne became head coach of the Terps. Prior to last year's squeaker, Maryland had recorded four consecutive shutouts by a combined score of 134-0.

N.C. State's Easter Hides Disappointment

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jeff Easter is bitter and frustrated, but you don't find that out unless you ask him.

Easter was a starting defensive end for North Carolina State for two years. But last spring a younger, faster teammate took the position away from him, and suddenly Easter was without one of the things that meant most to him.

Wolfpack quarterback tells what might have happened and how Easter handled it: "Seniors who have played in the past but don't get to play much their last year can be like a cancer. You'll be sitting around the dinner table and they'll start talking about the coaches and why they should be starting and everything. The seed is planted and the discontent grows from there. It can tear a team apart at the guts."

But Easter has not been talking much about his disappointment, relying instead on his religious convictions to see him through.

"I admire Jeff for that more than anything else," Evans says. "I try to turn things over to the Lord, but that is a very, very hard thing to do. Jeff has done it and done it with something that means a great deal to him."

"Jeff accepted the coaches' decisions and came back this fall and told them he was ready to contribute in any way he could," Evans said. "He told them that he'd do anything he could to make us a better football team. Just like dissenion can spread, so can an attitude like Jeff's. To be honest, I'm not sure I could have done what he has."

Easter still wishes he could play, and he hustles when he gets the chance. Last Saturday he blocked an Auburn punt that set up one of State's two touchdowns in their 17-15 squeaker of a victory.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press
ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Defending titleholder Geoff Hunt of Australia scored an easy victory Tuesday over New Zealander Craig Blackwood in his first round match of the World Squash Racquets Open.

Hunt, the top seed in the tournament, beat Blackwood 9-5, 9-4, 9-0.

New Zealander Bruce Brownlee, No. 1 seed at last month's World Amateur Championships in Canada, scored a 7-9, 9-1, 9-1 victory over Australians Allan McCulloch.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls have reduced their National Basketball Association roster to 14 players by cutting guard John Laskowski and free agent forward Rudy Hackett.

Coach Ed Badger said Tuesday, "I really didn't have a choice" when he cut Laskowski, who spent three years with the Bulls after playing at Indiana.

"I drafted him," said Badger. "I scouted him in college and worked with him each year here. But it boiled down to Laz and Tom Kropp and Kropp had two good games over the week-end."

Blazers Seek Repeat

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Can the Portland Trail Blazers do it again? Can they become the first team in nine years to repeat as National Basketball Association champions?

"The hardest thing to do, in any professional sport, is winning a championship two years in a row," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay, who guided the Blazers to the top of the heap in his first season with Portland. "The motivational factors are different. There is a tendency to be less hungry."

"And we are no longer a team that people will take lightly. Everyone else is gunning for you. Wherever you go, the other team wants to knock off the champion."

Portland rose to the top with a blend of talent and teamwork, fine coaching and enthusiastic local support that will not be easy to duplicate. As Ramsay says, it's always harder the second time. The last team to win two in a row was Boston in 1968 and 1969.

In fact, the Blazers will have their hands full within their own Pacific Division. Los Angeles, which beat the Blazers for the division title during the regular season a year ago, has assembled a much stronger supporting cast for super-center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the league's Most Valuable Player. Phoenix also is much improved, while Golden State and Seattle are rebuilding.

The Midwest Division also appears to be strengthened. Chicago was the hottest team in the league the second half of last season, Denver has moved to build its backcourt, Detroit remains loaded with talent and tory. Kansas City and Indiana don't figure to compete for the Milwaukee is coming off one of the finest college drafts in his-title, but at least both made some moves in the off-season.

Pacific Division

Portland's future depends on the health and well-being of center Bill Walton, the precision passer and inspirational leader of the Blazers. He is the key to their fast break, their pattern offense, their pressure defense — everything.

Walton injured his back while chopping wood, however, and has suffered back spasms throughout the exhibition season. He spent four days in a hospital in traction, but Blazers trainer Ron Culp said he hopes the red-haired center will be in the lineup opening day. "We're a long way from panic," said Culp.

Walton's history of injuries is the Blazers' biggest problem. The backup center is journeyman Tom Owens, with forward-center Lloyd Neal also available. Neither can control a game like Walton.

Maurice Lucas and Lionel

Hollins provide Portland's points, Dave Twardzik and Johnny Davis do the playmaking and Bob Gross keeps things moving. It's not the best-known lineup, but it was good enough to win it all last season.

Los Angeles compiled a 53-29 record last season with Abdul-Jabbar and a supporting cast of one-dimensional players. This season, Abdul-Jabbar should have more help, if only because of the signing of free agent Jamaal Wilkes, one of the better two-way forwards in the game.

The Lakers' other pickups included playmaker Ernie DiGregorio, veteran swingman Lou Hudson and three No. 1 draft choices — forward Kenny Carr and guards Brad Davis and Norm Nixon. Much also is expected from second-year pro Earl Tatum.

Phoenix, decimated by injuries which knocked out starting frontcourtmen Alvan Adams, Curtis Perry and Gar Heard for much of last season, should bounce back strong.

Rookie forward Walter Davis of North Carolina is highly touted, and versatile Don Buse, formerly of Indiana, joins Paul Westphal and Ron Lee in a fine backcourt.

Golden State signed defensive star E.C. Coleman to replace Wilkes at forward, but the Warriors' biggest addition is rookie Ricky Green, the lightning-quick playmaker from Michigan who should start opposite Phil Smith in an explosive backcourt.

Seattle's new coach, Bob Hopkins, hopes to field a scrappy, running team which will make up for other shortcomings with extra hustle. Marvin Webster, after two years on Denver's bench, will get a full shot at the center job.

Midwest Division

Denver, with all-stars David Thompson, Bobby Jones and Dan Issel up front, obtained Brian Taylor from Kansas City and Bobby Wilkerson from Seattle to bolster its backcourt. Both are solid defensive performers, Taylor having ranked second in the NBA in steals last season. Tuesday's acquisition of rookie forward Bo Ellis helps the bench.

Chicago stumbled out of the blocks last season, but finished strong as newcomers Artis Gilmore, Scott May and Wilbur Holland blended in with veterans Norm Van Lier and Mickey Johnson. Coach Ed Badger is hoping the Bulls will pick up where they left off last season.

Bob Lanier remains the Pistons' bulwark, but there are no signs that the rest of the talent has been sorted out, and until that happens the team will not play up to its potential.

Milwaukee has perhaps the youngest team in the league, with a bumper rookie crop of center Kent Benson, forward Marques Johnson and swingman Ernie Grunfeld joining young veterans like guards Brian Winters and Quinn Buckner, forward Dave Meyers and swingman Junior Bridgeman. This team will be a contender — the question is, how soon?

Kansas City is hoping towering Tom Burleson will blossom after three forgettable seasons in Seattle. Second-year pro Richard Washington, a 6-foot-10 forward, is on the verge of stardom.

Indiana is happy just to have a franchise after last spring's financial crisis. Newcomers Adrian Dantley, Mike Bantom and Ricky Sobers will be hard-pressed to replace departed All-Stars Billy Knight and Don Buse.

Wilson Romps Past Rampettes

WILSON — Rose High School's girls' tennis team was defeated by Wilson yesterday, 9-0.

The Rampettes failed to win a set in the defeat, which saw their Division I record fall to 1-1.

The Rampettes will entertain Northeastern on Thursday. In an exhibition match, Wilson's Kathy Cook downed Nancy Garrett, 8-4.

Vouchers Pay For Lawmakers' Personal Expenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first public accounting of a $2,000-a-year expense account given members of the House shows that tax money paid for concert tickets, bar association dues, car insurance and even a rented tuxedo.

The expenditures were in the first semi-annual report of the House clerk since the chamber passed a series of reforms in January. The report covers the first six months of 1977.

The fund has existed for years to cover House members' official expenses outside Washington. But there was no public accounting until a task force pushed through the revisions in House procedures.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., head of the task force, said Tuesday there are no rules for spending the money, but the panel's latest proposals could lead to such provisions.

The new recommendations, due to be considered today, call for an appointment of an administrator to manage House operations and an auditor to oversee the members' accounts. These officials could "help work out some appropriate guidelines," Obey said in a telephone interview.

Members disclosed in the clerk's report that their accounts bought newspaper and magazine subscriptions, financed home offices and paid for travel in their districts. Dozens, however, used the non-Washington account to pay for meals in the House restaurant and other restaurants in Washington.

Rep. Joseph McDade, R-Pa., used $10 on tickets to a Harry James concert in March and spent $96 for a blind artists' concert in May.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., spent $40 for his Orange County Bar Association dues, $100 for his American Bar Association dues, $18 on a Yorba Linda country club assessment and $5 on dues to a Republican women's club.

Wiggins also was reimbursed $200 for his staff Christmas party, while Rep. Jerome Ambr, D-N.Y. paid nearly $95 to a Washington liquor store for inaugural reception supplies.

A $251 payment by Rep. Donald Pease, D-Ohio, went for auto insurance coverage on "district cars," and Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., spent $950 to decorate a recreational vehicle that served as a mobile summer office.

Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., rented the tuxedo.

Obey said he has not read the clerk's report but added, "I can think of cases where drinks would be proper and occasions where they wouldn't be. You have to determine what's proper by how it was used, not by what the title is." The fund will increase to $7,000 next year.

Advised To Consider Welfare

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Department employees are being told to think about going on welfare, buy cheaper food and remember the Salvation Army if Congress fails to dislodge money for next week's paychecks.

A memo to employees on how to cope with next week's looming pay cut suggests looking for ways to "legally delay or temporarily reduce payments to creditors ... reduce expenses (and) make essential purchases in ways that delay the actual payment date."

The departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare have run out of operating money because their appropriations for the fiscal year are stalled between the House and Senate in a dispute over when federal money will be used for abortions.

Last year, 300,000 abortions — most of them for poor women — were financed through the Medicaid program at a cost of about $50 million.

Paychecks next week for the 240,000 employees of the two departments will cover only one week instead of the usual two. And, until Congress acts, there won't be any more pay envelopes, although salaries could be paid retroactively.

An HEW official, asked if a similar memo was being sent to his department's employees, said he didn't know of any but suggested there might be some good in the financial crunch.

"If this goes on long enough, people in this department might find out what it's like to fill out all those forms for welfare and do the paperwork to get their kids into free lunch programs," he said.

The Labor Department

memo, prepared in an assistant secretary's office for distribution throughout the department, was given to The Associated Press by an upset employee.

A second Labor Department memo, to supervisors, advises that employees wanting time off to get financial help should generally be expected to work full time.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. told congressional leaders, meanwhile, he feels it is "grossly unfair to hold the vulnerable people of our nation and thousands of federal and state employees hostage" in the abortion dispute.

In letters to Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and several committee chairmen, Califano said if Congress cannot approve the appropriations bill by Thursday, a resolution should be passed to provide temporary funds.

He said if Congress does not act by then, benefits will be cut off for thousands of poor people, children, the sick, aged and disabled.

The secretary said New York will be unable to pay its welfare workers as of today, Texas is laying off 612 employees today and Idaho is out of money for its nutritional aid and community services for the aging.

Other threatened programs help finance state health agencies, federal aid to schools in areas with large government installations, education for the handicapped and social services for the aged.

Indictments Thrown Out

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — The first murder indictments under the state's new death penalty law have been thrown out because a Superior Court judge ruled the grand jury was improperly selected.

Judge E. Maurice Braswell ruled Tuesday that the Johnston County grand jury was selected without adequate assurances that it would reflect the number of blacks, women and young people in the community.

The ruling came in the case of David E. Stewart and James H. Smith Jr., two young black men charged in the slayings of a Four Oaks policeman and a Benson truck driver.

Their attorneys contended in a hearing that the 18-member grand jury which returned the indictments should have had four blacks on it but had only two.

District Attorney John W. Twisdale said he would appeal the ruling to the state Supreme Court, where it will go without being heard first in the state Court of Appeals since a capital crime is involved.

Twisdale had argued during the hearing that there might have been clerical errors in preparing the list of jurors from which the jury panel was drawn, but he added that "it's all right as long as there has been no showing of systematic exclusion" of minority groups.

"Blacks are proportionately represented on the grand jury," he insisted.

Stewart and Smith remained in the Johnston County Jail without bond Tuesday night. A bond hearing was scheduled today.

WHITE WEB IN SAN FRANCISCO — Paul Gimson of San Francisco poses with a piece of one of many white webs which floated to earth in the San Francisco Bay area on Tuesday. The mysterious white webs draped over cars, homes, trees and people; but experts dismissed the phenomenon as an eons-old ritual performed annually by millions of baby spiders. (AP Laser-photo)

Aerosol Propellents and the Eyes

A patient, a 20-year-old girl, made a bright observation that deserves to be brought to the attention of my readers. She became aware of intense pain in the eyes every time she used any kind of aerosol deodorant or hair spray. She made another interesting observation. She found that there were times that she was not able to use her contact lenses after being exposed to the same kind of sprays.

I made inquiry from a number of eye specialists who concurred with her "diagnosis." Apparently, specks of the chemical substances that are expelled at a high speed through the nozzle of an aerosol dispenser can injure the delicate outer covering of the eye (the conjunctiva).

The reaction of redness and pain is exactly like that which occurs when a speck of dust flies into the eye. The tiny particles may even become embedded in the eyes if the spray is accidentally directed straight into them.

There is an additional danger that the "freezing" propellant of the bomb may rapidly evaporate and cause damage, too. Fortunately, legislation now is aimed at the elimination of aerosol propellents. Even the new "squeeze" tops should be used with care in order to avoid injury to the eyes.

We've been trying to have a baby for two years. The many doctors whom we've consulted haven't been able to find any problem with me or my husband that would account for my infertility. I haven't had the courage to ask any of my doctors if there's a possibility that my problem may be psychological. I can't even discuss the matter with my husband. He becomes angry and refuses to talk about what he thinks is nonsense. Am I too far off base in this speculation? — Mrs. H.B., Ore.

Dear Mrs. B.:
 Your physicians would be the first to welcome an open discussion about the very wide idea that you introduce. In fact, the complete fertility workup done by specialists in the field always includes an evaluation of the psychological and emotional factors that may exist in relationships between wives and husbands.

When a thorough study fails to reveal any organic or physical defect, the possibility of emotional conflicts, tensions and stress are given top priority.

Frequently, slight physical defects which ordinarily would not interfere with fertility may do so in the presence of emotional problems.

You are wise to give this consideration. Perhaps there are some underlying emotional problems which neither you nor your husband have been aware of. Open discussion between yourselves and, later, with your doctors may be a far more important contribution than your husband thinks.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

White Cane Day Oct. 15

Greenville Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed Saturday, Oct. 15, as "White Cane Safety Day" in Greenville.

The proclamation reads in part that "the white cane is carried as a symbol of self-confidence and as a badge of equality and first class citizenship."

The white cane is a tool used by blind and visually impaired persons as an extension which provides a safety margin between the individuals and obstacles they encounter in leading active and mobile lives.

"The traveling public should at all times exercise due recognition of the white cane on the streets and highways of North Carolina," said Cox.

The Pitt County Federation of the Blind, a chapter of the National Federation of the Blind, will sponsor public observation of White Cane Day.

Apples Have Halloween Link

NEW YORK (AP) — For centuries apples have been associated with Halloween celebrations.

"Maybe it's because apples ripen at Halloween time, and were sacred to the early Druids," says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins. "They also figured in the Roman equivalent of Halloween, a festival honoring Pomona, the goddess of fruits."

The Halloween game of bobbing for apples or biting at apples suspended by a string originated generations ago in Ireland, Scotland and parts of England, according to Miss Hopkins. Sometimes a riskier variation was played by fixing an apple and a lighted candle at opposite ends of a suspended stick. The stick was rotated and the object was to bite the apple without getting burned by the candle.

Making Money With Fake Art

DETROIT (AP) — "Fake" may be a bad word to art museums and collectors, but it's going to put money in the till of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Capitalizing on the public's interest in spurious art, the Institute is planning a display of famous fakes as a fund-raising promotion. The Institute of Arts, which houses some of the finest examples of genuine art in the nation, will stage a one-night display Nov. 3 of fabulous phonies, with tickets for $12.50 and $25 entitling patrons to see Orson Welles' "F-For Fake," a movie about art forgery.

Prisoners Can Learn And Earn

By ROBERT MACKAY
CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois prison inmates no longer make license plates, but they earn up to $200 a month producing a wide variety of other items, including cigarettes, soap, clothes and furniture.

Wages paid to the 800 prisoners and 120 civilians in the Illinois Correctional Industries program, including ICI Director Edmund H. Muth, come directly from the sales of the products — not out of the pockets of taxpayers.

"We are very proud we receive no legislative subsidy," Muth said. "We try to run it as much like real factories as possible so it is like a training program."

"The ICI program is a good opportunity to teach... and also to address the terrible problem of idleness in prisons," he said.

Unlike license plates, which now can be produced easily and cheaply by private industry, items currently made in state prisons can be produced and sold at a cheaper price than comparable products in stores.

Under state law, the prison products can be sold only to state and local government agencies.

The program, near bankruptcy in the mid-1970s, had sales last year of $4.3 million and a profit of $70,000. Sales this year are expected to be about $6 million, Muth said. Profits are invested back into the program.

The Menard Correctional Center at Chester has one of the most unusual factories in the state prison system. Inmates make filtered and unfiltered cigarettes and package them under the name Pyramid. They are sold at 16 cents a pack to institutions, such as veterans and nursing homes.

"I've been told by other people they taste pretty much like Camels," Muth, a nonsmoker, said.

Prisoners at Menard also make knitted garments, such as underwear and socks, and brooms, brushes and wax, concrete drain culverts and parking lot curbs, and they upholster furniture and maintain a beef, dairy and swine farm.

"We think we make the best brushes and brooms in the world," Muth said, adding that wax is also in great demand. "Just try to imagine the miles of state hospital and prison corridors in Illinois."

Inmate clothing is made by prisoners at the Stateville Correctional Center near Joliet. They also make furniture and all kinds of soap, including both deodorant and non-deodorant bath soap. The laundry soap is "similar in appearance to Ivory flakes," Muth said.

Lumber for the furniture factory comes from a timber farm at the Vienna Correctional Center. Most of the other raw materials used in the factories are bought from private industry.

"We are a good customer for Illinois industry," Muth said, noting the program spent $3.5 million in buying raw materials last year.

The largest factory produces highway signs at Pontiac. Inmates there also rebind books and make dentures.

The Sheridan Correctional Center has a refinishing factory for used furniture and the Joliet Correctional Center makes mattresses and bedding.

A beef, dairy and swine farm is maintained at the Vandalia Correctional Center. The Vienna facility also has a beef farm to go along with its timber farm.

The Dwight Correctional Center, a facility for women, has a garment factory where inmates "make a full line of clothes for the state's mental institutions," Muth said.

The women usually are paid more than men because they produce more, Muth said. He attributed the higher rate of production to the "thrill" women inmates get when they are able to send money to their children or other relatives.

The ICI program "gives people an awareness that people are in state prisons and can do a good job... that they're not animals," Muth said.

"He's (the inmate) a valued employe. He's called by name, not by number. Without him, we wouldn't get paid. I think our guys do a helluva job."

Muth said most of the inmates save their money so they can live comfortably "on the outside" while searching for a job.

"Illinois still sends inmates away with $75 and a bus ticket home," he said.

Finns Flock To Estonia Weekends

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN
TALLINN, Estonia (UPI) — They call themselves "vodka tourists" and they pour into Estonia by the thousands. Most arrive in this old medieval seaside town aboard the ship Tallinn for a weekend of entertainment and a chance to wrap their hands around a cheap bottle of booze. In Helsinki, you can pay up to $12 for Russian vodka or $16 for a bottle of whisky. Prices are less than half that in Tallinn. The savings make a round-trip weekend worth while. For $88, Finnish tourists — who need no visa for the short stay — get a weekend trip that includes the three-hour crossing, meals and shipboard room. Others pay around $15 just for the fare.

Six times a week during summer, the Tallinn is jammed with 500 tourists, mostly Finnish.

On just about any summer afternoon, hundreds of tourists loaded down with luggage fill the popular Finnish-built Viru Hotel, the only modern hotel in the city.

The Viru is a classy, 22-story hotel that looks as if it were pulled right out of London or Paris.

It is obviously geared for the foreign tourist and the western currency. "It is not for our people," said one Estonian government official.

A major attraction is the Viru nightclub, which serves up a flashy, cabaret-style show that raises eyebrows all around.

A troupe of dazzling female dancers puts on a nightly show in costumes ranging from slinky and seductive to skimpy or less.

One act — downright erotic by Soviet standards — features a scantily-clad woman and a male dancer, wearing western-style flared pants, white platform shoes and an open, silky white shirt.

Those who can't wheedle a ticket to the show pack the adjacent bar. Most are Finns.

"We certainly have our reputation," said one Finnish woman who made the trek to Tallinn.

And the reputation stands up, even to the casual observer.

One woman, spotted over a three-day period, was never anywhere approaching sober.

"Bring us a drink," she slurred at breakfast one morning. "We're vodka tourists."

After a few loud exchanges with the waiter, she huddled with her friends who — according to one Finnish-speaking observer — decided they should all troop to their room for another round of drinks.

It was not yet 8:30 a.m.

The Finnish language is very close to Estonian, which makes Tallinn a very appealing city for the weekend drinker.

One Estonian woman, returning to her hotel at midnight quite sober, was met by the doorman who said in Estonian: "Not a Finn — not drunk."

He was astonished when she corrected him in fluent Finnish. This influx of Finns has led to a brisk black market trade and a distinct Westernization in attitude and fashion.

The Viru is a popular spot for Estonian prostitutes who charge Finnish businessmen, not in hard currency, but in blue jeans. They bring up to $150 on the black market.

The tourist traffic from Helsinki and the liquor run is now a regular summer routine — and vital to the economy.

One of the more popular plays in the Helsinki summer theater this year is about the three-day weekends in the Soviet Union.

The name of the play: "The Vodka Tourists."

Ervin Raps Succession

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. spoke out Tuesday against the proposed constitutional amendment that would allow governors to seek second consecutive terms in North Carolina.

"I think it has been a great blessing that a governor could not succeed himself," Ervin said. "He (governors) should spend his time working for the people of the state, not working for himself."

Ervin is one of the few prominent Democrats who have actively opposed the amendment, which is supported by Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt and former Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Tom Lambeth of the bipartisan committee which is campaigning for passage of the amendment on Nov. 8, said he was not surprised by Ervin's remarks. But he took issue.

"Sam Ervin was a great senator and he was great because he was allowed to serve for an extended period," he said. "We feel a governor should be in the same position."

Lambeth's committee, meanwhile, released names of several prominent Republicans who support the measure — former gubernatorial candidates Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount, Judge Robert Gavin of Pinehurst and businessman Jack Stickley of Charlotte; city council member Pat Locke of Charlotte and former state Atty. Gen. Jim Carson.

Gene Anderson, a former administrative aide to Holshouser, has been attempting to organize opposition to the proposed amendment.

Blame Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is moving to correct inventory problems after discovering it has lost track of $118.5 million in food and clothing.

Soldiers will have to repay the government for equipment lost through negligence, the Army said Tuesday. A new task force will recommend ways to prevent future shortages.

Lt. Gen. Marvin D. Fuller, the Army's inspector general, estimated that about 5 per cent of the missing material was stolen.

Tools, parts and clothing comprised most of the items. No weapons were found unaccounted for in the four-month investigation, Fuller said.

Blaming sloppy inventory procedures, he said the investigation also turned up $89 million in equipment that Army units didn't know they had.

No estimate was given for the time period when the missing material disappeared.

Animator Celebrating 14th Year In 'Peanuts'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Back in 1938, a young Mexican-born artist, Bill Melendez, knocked on the door of the Walt Disney studios in Burbank, inquiring about a job.

He got one, as assistant animator of the classic "Fantasia."

Now, he's celebrating his 14th year as animator-producer of another kind of classic — Charles M. Schulz' "Peanuts" specials, in which he doubles as the voice of the noted doghouse ace, "Snoopy."

His latest effort, "It's Your First Kiss, Charlie Brown," airs on CBS Oct. 24. It's the 17th half-hour "Peanuts" special he's made.

Melendez, 60, a tall, friendly man with graying crew-cut hair and a waxed mustache, was beginning work on another special, "Bon Voyage, Charlie Brown," when he paused for a quick chat last week.

Among other things, he was asked if drawing thousands of cartoons, shifting a figure's movements ever so slightly thousands of times to make a show, doesn't get a mite repetitive at times.

"Not really," shrugged the man who estimates he did 15 to 20 sketches a day, six days a week, for more than a year on "Fantasia."

"Animation is a series of drawings illustrating an action. So the characters are always moving, there's always a different position for the head, arms, body, whatever. So the drawings aren't identical."

Be that as it may, how long does it usually take to put together a "Peanuts" special that runs about 25 minutes without commercials?

"Oh, about six months from the time I start with Sparky (Schulz) on the story board," he replied off-handedly. "We work very closely at this time in San Francisco (Schulz' home base)."

"We talk and I take notes. Then I come back here and draw some more. It usually takes about two months to do the story itself, then four months to animate it."

Bill, who works with a seven-member team of animators at the two-bungalow studio he opened here in 1964, was sympathetic to the lot of those who turn out Saturday morning cartoon shows for TV every week.

He conceded such shows are criticized for their lack of detail, their almost stick-like sketches, "but there's no other way you can do it. They have a problem of budget and time ... it's impossible."

"The budget is so low they can't use many drawings. The more drawings you use, the more expensive the show is."

Melendez knows whereof he speaks, having worked not only at Disney, but also at Warner Bros., at UPA, which made the legendary "Gerald McBoing-Boing" cartoons, and on more than 1,000 TV commercials.

Despite nearly 40 years in the business, he still speaks of his labors as fun, particularly his first big-time work at the Disney studios.

"Oh, yes, that was a great place," he said, his eyes twinkling. "I think those were the happiest days of my life, because he (the late Walt Disney) was such an eye-opener."

"And there was such enthusiasm, vitality and talent all around me. It was a crazy studio — crazy in the sense of great stimulation and a lot of fun."

Italy regained the Women's title at the European Championships, with Great Britain second. That reversed the outcome of the 1976 event. Today's hand is from the encounter between these two teams from the 1977 championship.

The auction was straightforward. North's bid of three clubs was to check back on whether South held a four-card spade suit. When South obliged, North chose to play in the major-suit game.

Both teams reached the same contract, and in both rooms the opening lead was the queen of diamonds. The British declarer could not cope with the bad trump break and ended up down two. Now follow the technique of Luciana Capodanno.

The ace of diamonds won the first trick, the ace of spades was cashed and the king of hearts lost to the ace. East returned a diamond, taken by the king in dummy. Now declarer led the ten of spades, intending to finesse.

If East followed with a low spade. But since East held the eight, she had no problem covering with the jack, which lost to the king.

With the spade position now revealed, declarer realized she had two losers in trumps and, therefore, could not afford to lose a club. She managed that very neatly.

She entered the closed hand with the queen of hearts and ruffed a diamond in dummy. Now she played off dummy's two high hearts. Down to nothing but black cards, East realized that it would be futile to ruff either heart, for she would be end-played and forced to lead away from her king of clubs.

She tried to avoid the end-play by discarding two clubs, but declarer was having none of that. On the fourth heart she stuffed a club, then exited with dummy's last trump.

East could not escape the end-play. She took her two trump tricks, but then had to lead a club. Declarer played low from her hand, and the queen and ace of clubs took the last two tricks for a well-deserved gain.

Few Clues Turned Up In Slaying Of 3 Girls

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — A knife sheath. Reports of a stranger in a blue Volkswagen. Some undisclosed autopsy details. That's all police say they have to go on in their investigation of the stabbings of three girls here.

"What we're withholding is very important to us. It's all we've got going for us," Sgt. William Chaplin of the Anne Arundel County homicide squad said of the autopsy reports.

Authorities have concentrated the search for the killer — or killers — in the Southgate neighborhood where Deborah Anne Hogan, 10; her sister Theresa, 8, and schoolmate Anne Marie Brzeskiewicz, 8, lived and played.

The girls' parka-clad bodies were found Monday lying face down in a stream running through the muddy woods almost within sight of their suburban Baltimore homes. They disappeared Sunday evening while playing.

"All indications are that it is somebody in the community," was all Lt. Robert Russell would say Tuesday of the search for a suspect. "We are concentrating on the neighborhood."

Russell said two of the victims had been stabbed more than 40 times each.

"Who or whoever did this is crazy. The (repetitiveness) with which the girls were stabbed was incredible," said

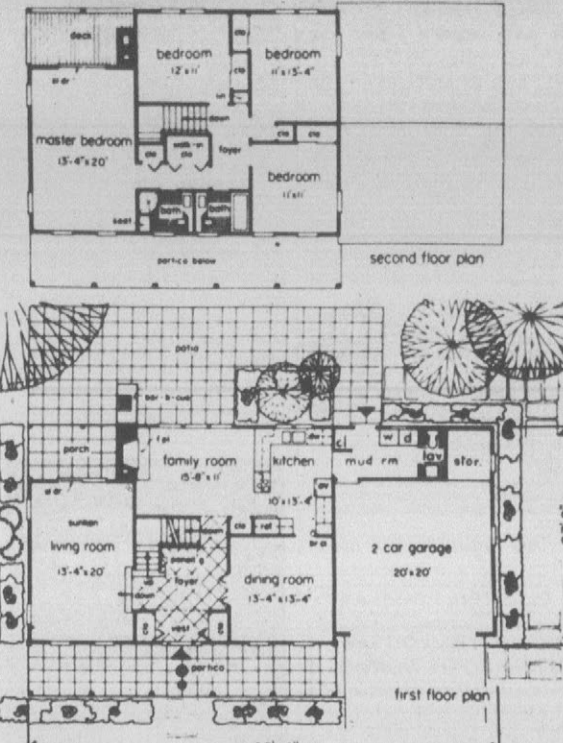

Capt. William Lindsay.

Lindsay said the girls were stabbed in the chest, face, back, arms and hands. Superficial wounds on their hands indicated that the girls had struggled with their killer, he theorized.

Dr. Anne Dixon, assistant medical examiner, speculated that there may have been more than one assailant since the girls were "three young, fairly active kids."

Police searched the wooded area Tuesday with metal detectors and emptied trash bins looking for clues. A hunting knife is suspected as the murder weapon. A leather sheath was found but authorities were unsure whether it was connected to the crimes.

The hub of the first floor is a foyer with a sunken living room, dining room, family room and kitchen on its various sides. A right angle staircase with midlanding leads to the four-bedroom, two-bath second floor. Plan HA 960P, designed by Samuel Paul, offers approximately 1,000 square feet per floor. YOU'D THINK IF YOU WERE THE ONE WHO DISCOVERED THE NEW WORLD, IT WOULD BE NAMED AFTER YOU...

"WRONG!" THEY NAMED IT AFTER THE GUY WHO DREW THE MAP AND SIGNED HIS NAME IN THE BLANK SPOT!

OR AT THE VERY LEAST, GET THE DATE RIGHT!

ON THIS DAY, OCTOBER 12, I CLAIM THIS LAND IN THE NAME OF...

WHOS THIS GUY? WE ALREADY CELEBRATED OUR DISCOVERY TWO DAYS AGO!

C.C.'S LAW! I ALSO DISCOVERED THE FIRST TOBAC!

TRUE OR FALSE? WELL, MA'AM, LET ME THINK...

I'LL SAY, "TRUE!"

I WAS RIGHT? HOW ABOUT THAT!

WHEN YOU'RE HOT YOU'RE HOT!

LIFE IS A GUT FEELING.

I BURN OUT 15 HORNBY PLATES TO HEAR HIM BITCH ABOUT HIS ULCER.

DON'T FORGET TO WAKE NUBBIN UP FOR LUNCH.

THAT'S RIGHT. I ALMOST FORGOT.

SPLASH!

WHY CAN'T I HAVE A ROOSTER THAT JUST CROWS?

WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN, ELMO?

THE PLAYGROUND. I ENTERED MY GOLDFISH IN A PET SHOW

I DON'T SEE ANY GOLDFISH

I KNOW... THEY SAT HIM NEXT TO A CAT!

ZERO, STAPLE THESE TOGETHER

ME?

YOU WANT ME TO USE THE STAPLER?

GOLLY! HE NEVER USED TO TRUST ME AROUND MACHINERY

LUCKILY, THEY NEED PISTOL PRACTICE.

WE HAD TWO ARMED SOLDIERS IN THAT CAR...

HEY, YOU MEN, GET UP!

OUT... COLD!

THEY HAVE... FUNNY MARKS ON THEIR JAWS...

THE SIGN OF THE PHANTOM.

OFFHAND, IT SEEMS TO SUPPORT THE COSMIC EGG THEORY

English Visitors Enjoyed Carolina

ENGLISH VISITORS — Eric Deakins (right), Parliamentary Under Secretary of State at the Department of Health and Social Security for the United Kingdom, and a colleague

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

In spite of its problems, the United States is still a great place to live, according to a recent English visitor.

"I love it...the spaciousness of the forests and the kindness of the people," said Eric Deakins, a Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Department of Health and Social Security for the United Kingdom.

Deakins visited Greenville Friday as a guest of the Burroughs Wellcome Co. He was accompanied by Drysdale Marks, an assistant secretary at the Department of Health and Social Security.

Deakins is responsible for all executive actions taken in relation to prices for phar-maceuticals in the National Health Service.

He said that the visit was to encourage better relations between pharmaceutical companies in the United States and England.

"We want to encourage more research in this field and to talk over any problems that may arise in the pharmaceutical industry," said Deakins.

Deakins added that this was his third trip to the States.

"It's beautiful," he said. "People are kinder, here, and that is something that one always remembers."

"I noticed it when I first came here in 1965," he added.

Deakins presented a lecture to the ECU School of Business early Friday and said that he was very impressed with the students. He added that he was surprised at the number of women in the classes and on campus.

"There are probably only a third as many girls going to the universities in England."

Deakins was appointed to his post in April, 1976 and was previously a Parliamentary Under Secretary of State at the Department of Trade.

Deakins, 44, is a History Graduate of the London School of Economics.

Siamese Twin Fighting Odds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Siamese twin girl less than a month old was fighting the odds of survival today after being separated from her sister at Children's Hospital.

In suburban New York, seven-month-old Siamese twin sisters separated by surgeons last month were expected to go home while an Arkansas Siamese twin separated from her sister Oct. 1 in Little Rock remained in critical, but stable, condition.

Dr. C. Everett Koop, head of the team of 19 doctors and nurses who performed the seven-hour operation Tuesday in Philadelphia, said the 7½-pound baby had only a 5 to 10 per cent chance of living. Her twin died in surgery.

The twins were born Sept. 15 in Monmouth, N.J. They had been joined from just below the collarbone to the navel and shared the same heart, a six-chambered organ which Dr. Koop said could not support life in two bodies.

Had the separation been successful, one would have received a two-chambered heart. She would have died, the surgeon said. A normal human heart has four chambers. The surviving baby, with her six-chambered heart, was placed on a lung machine after the operation.

In New York, Linda and Brenda McCall of Roosevelt in Queens were to be released from North Shore University Hospital. Spokesmen said the girls weighed just three pounds, three ounces, jointly, at birth but now weigh around nine pounds each.

Doctors at the University of Arkansas Medical Center said the surviving Siamese twin girl born Sept. 14 in El Dorado, Ark., remained in critical condition. The other died in surgery. The girls were born joined at the trunk and their hearts were joined.

Rats probably leave a sinking ship because their homes in the bilges flood first, driving them to safety, according to National Geographic.

Investor Goals Change With Advance Of Time

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

As an investor approaching middle age, your investment interests begin to change. Your current income is good and you are probably at the peak of your earning power. Your savings and insurance are probably ample. You have built a portfolio over your earlier years, you are financially more sophisticated and have more money to invest.

You can afford to become more aggressive in your investments. Since your level of earnings is increasing, you can assume more risk with additional capital for investing. Your portfolio holdings are likely to shift more often. You are in a higher tax bracket, so current income is of little interest. You are more capital gains oriented.

As an aggressive investor, you have many opportunities available to you. The timing of purchases and sales becomes a more important factor. Changing taste patterns of the stock market can create many profit opportunities. Some examples of the types of opportunities in common stocks you can invest in include "turnaround" situations, "unrecognized" growth companies, rapidly growing companies just beginning to attract attention, and natural resource companies.

Additionally, you can trade stocks on a short term basis, sell stocks short, or buy stocks on margin. Convertible bonds, warrants, and puts and calls are also available to you. You can also switch from stocks to bonds and back again as the market outlook changes.

Because you are in a high tax bracket, you can consider various ways to soften the tax bite on current income. Interest from state and municipal bonds is exempt from federal, and in some cases state, taxes. Other types of tax shelters include oil and gas programs and annuities, which can defer the periodic payout until you are older and in a lower tax bracket.

Stocks which pay low dividends should also interest you. Some cash dividends are all or partially tax free. A good example is utility stocks. Because of the particular accounting methods they use, a portion or all of a dividend might be considered a return of capital, rather than dividend income. This would reduce your taxable income, reduce your cost basis by the amount which is tax free, and thus provide for higher potential capital gains. Gifts to minor children can also be made; by spreading the income to other family members, your tax liability can be reduced.

Your temperament and your particular financial situation will determine which, if any, of these methods are suitable for you. Since one certainty of law is that it is always changing, an accountant and/or tax attorney can be of great help. There are many investment vehicles available to an aggressive investor. Careful investigation and discussions with your broker will reveal which ones are for you.

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

—By ROLL CALL REPORT

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 29 through October 5.

HOUSE
CRIME COMPENSATION — Passed, 192 for and 173 against, a bill (HR 7010) providing, for the first time, a program of federal cash payments to victims of violent crimes. It was sent to the Senate. The bill would provide benefits only in states that have enacted both a "crime compensation" law and a law under which a judge can direct a criminal to compensate his victim. HR 7010 would reimburse up to 25 per cent of the first $25,000 paid by a state to a victim.

Rep. James Blanchard (D-Mich.), a supporter, said: "The concept of compensation to victims of crime is one which has already proven workable at the state level. HR 7010 seeks to build on that success by funneling federal funds through the working state programs rather than setting up a duplicative bureaucracy-ridden federal program."

Rep. Richard Ichord (D-Mo.), an opponent, asked: "How can we possibly go into a program of this type when we do not know what it is going to cost and when we are approaching a national debt of $775 billion... Are we going to solve our problems of crime in this country by in effect merely printing up more money in order to soothe our conscience?"

Members voting "yea" favored the federal crime compensation program.
Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), W.C. Hefner (D-8) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Rose (D-7) did not vote.

NEUTRON BOMB — Rejected, 109 for and 297 against, an amendment to deny funding for development of the neutron bomb. It was proposed to HR 6566, a bill to fund the Energy Research and Development Administration's "national security programs." The bill, later passed and sent to conference with the Senate, contained a classified dollar

The neutron bomb is an "enhanced-radiation" weapon which kills primarily by radiation. Because it has less heat and blast than present nuclear warheads, it is said to do less damage to natural and man-made environments.

Rep. Ted Weiss (D-N.Y.), sponsor of the amendment, said: "Put bluntly, the development and deployment of the neutron bomb, intended by its proponents to destroy enemy tanks crossing into West Germany, will be a giant step along the road to World War III. Its actual use will mean the end of civilization as we know it."

Opponents of the amendment stressed the neutron bomb's value as a deterrent to war. "The naysayers," said Rep. Dan Daniel (D-Va.), "moan that the possession of a neutron warhead would invite escalation to a holocaust. No battlefield commander, no theater commander could order its use. Only the President of the U.S. can do this. The neutron warhead is a reasonable alternative to doomsday."

Members voting "yes" opposed development of the neutron bomb.

Hefner voted "yea."
Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

Rose did not vote.

NATIONAL DEBT — Adopted, 223 for and 194 against, a resolution (H Res 804) which had the effect of raising by $52 billion the "ceiling" up to which the U.S. government can borrow to pay its bills. The previous ceiling had run out four days earlier. This vote put the House in agreement with the Senate, and sent the measure to the White House. The $52 billion increment raised the ceiling to $752 billion through next Mar. 31, at which time it will have to be raised again.

Rep. B.F. Sisk (D-Calif.), a supporter, said that the legislative ritual of setting a debt ceiling is an "exercise in futility" because "it certainly has not restrained our spending because we are prone to vote for increased spending when the bills come up on the floor of this house."

Rep. Delbert Latta (R-Ohio), an opponent, said: "The interest for this next fiscal year (on the national debt) is going to run about $43 billion... We may believe we are going to escape the responsibility of paying the debt by passing it on to our grandchildren, but we cannot escape paying the interest."

Members voting "yea" favored raising the debt ceiling.
Jones, Preyer, Rose and Hefner voted "yea."
Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE
NATURAL GAS — Adopted, 50 for and 45 against, the so-called Pearson-Bentsen amendment to gradually remove federal controls from the price of natural gas. It was attached to S 2104, a part of the proposed national energy policy, which is pending in the Senate. The question of whether to continue federal regulation of natural gas prices will be settled later in a House-Senate conference on the energy bill.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.), a supporter, said deregulation is necessary to encourage exploration for new gas and cut down dependence on foreign energy supplies. "What we are trying to do is keep the factories open and keep the people at work, and do something about the balance of trade that in August was the second biggest deficit in the history of this country," he said.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), an opponent, said: "Natural gas deregulation poses a serious inflationary threat for the nation's economy. It will harm the average American consumer... will result in substantial price increases but will do little to achieve additional production."

Senators voting "nay" favored continued federal price controls on natural gas.

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea" and Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "nay."

'LIFELINE RATES' — Adopted, 56 for and 36 against, an amendment requiring utilities to sell a "subsistence quantity" of electricity to elderly residential customers (62 years of age and older) at the utility's lowest rate. It was attached to S 2114, the segment of the proposed national energy policy dealing with electric and gas utility systems. The bill was headed toward final passage and conference with the Senate.

Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.), sponsor of the so-called "lifeline rates" proposal, said: "The spiraling cost of home energy in recent years has created severe economic hardships for America's elderly — many of whom exist on low, fixed incomes."

Sen. Bennett Johnston (D-La.), an opponent, said: "The problem of lifeline rates is a difficult one which ought to be considered by each public service commission in each state, based on what they see as possible in their states."

Senators voting "yea" favored the special electricity rate for the elderly.

Helms and Morgan voted "nay."

NATIONAL DEBT — Passed, 58 for and 30 against, a bill (HR 9290) raising the national debt ceiling through Mar. 31, 1978 (see House vote, above). The increase is from the $700 billion ceiling that expired on Sept. 30, 1977 to a level of $752 billion. The bill also was passed by the House and signed into law by President Carter.

None of the 58 senators who voted "yea" spoke in favor of raising the ceiling. An opponent, Sen. Harry Byrd (Ind.-Va.), said: "The increase in our federal debt is not a phenomenon which occurs in isolation from other congressional and governmental actions. It is... a direct result of the repeated failure of Congress to confine expenditures to a level which can be financed by a tolerable rate of taxation."

Senators voting "yea" favored raising the national debt ceiling. Helms and Morgan voted "nay."

Pedals Can Power Tools

EMMAUS, Pa. (UPI) — A manufacturer here has come up with two multi-purpose pedal-powered machines to save fuel energy indoors and out.

Fringe benefit: they can also help trim your waistline.

The indoor device looks like a weird new exercise bicycle with a comfortable backrest on the padded seat. It's designed to operate kitchen appliances and power tools.

The manufacturer says it can be used to grind grain into flour, grind, chop and blend foods, churn butter and make ice cream. In the workshop, it can run small lathes, drill presses, saws and other tools; in the studio, potters' wheels, jewelers' lathes, polishing wheels, lapidary equipment and sculptors' tools.

Other suggested uses: powering radio and television sets, charging storage batteries, providing some power for lighting during blackouts and emergencies, helping pump water for irrigation, sawing wood, splitting logs and, equipped with a winch, pulling stumps.

Its companion device is a pedal-powered unit that generates enough power to operate gardening tools for plowing, hoeing, weeding and row-making. It takes two persons to operate: one to pedal and the other to guide the tool it's pulling.

Less Sleep For Aging Persons

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The older you get, the less sleep you need. A sleep study at the University of California at Los Angeles shows a newborn sleeps about 18 hours a day, young adults average seven to eight hours a night, but aging persons need only four and a half to five and a half hours out of every 24. The myth of everyone's needing eight hours of shut-eye a night leads many older persons to take sleep drugs they don't need, says a mattress manufacturer.

Baltimore Clipper Still Sails Eastern Seaboard

By MARY ELLEN HASKETT BALTIMORE (UPI) — The goodwill ambassador for this old Chesapeake Bay port city is tall, sleek, outstandingly beautiful and — quite literally — the Pride of Baltimore.

She's also unique — the only Baltimore Clipper ship in existence, one of the same breed of ships that inspired the bigger true clippers of the mid 1850s.

The ship, designed by naval architect Thomas C. Gillmer, was handcrafted by the International Historic Watercraft Society under the supervision of Melbourne Smith, who now is the captain of the Pride.

The workers built the vessel in a special shipyard at the edge of the Inner Harbor using only the kinds of material and tools available when the first Baltimore Clippers were built in the 1770s.

The Pride of Baltimore, launched Feb. 27 from the city's redeveloped Inner Harbor, is not a replica, but a composite of the best points of its predecessors, said Smith, a 47-year-old veteran seaman.

"We made it the same way as the first clippers," he said. "It's very authentic except for the engine. It's the only one in existence."

The engine is used only to maneuver the Pride in and out of the various ports during the ship's ambassadorial trips, promoting its namesake city and serving as a reminder of Baltimore's maritime importance, which is due in large part to the role the unique ships like the Pride played.

Smith now is sailing the topsail schooner on its fall cruise with stops scheduled in Washington, D.C., New York and then around the Chesapeake Bay.

The winter cruise of Southern ports begins in November and Smith said the constant traveling is to his liking.

"There's nothing worse than a boat just sitting," he said.

Since it was commissioned May 1 by Mayor William D. Schaefer, the Pride has been to ports in Bermuda, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

None of the Baltimore Clippers, which were smaller than the true clippers and used primarily in the coastal trade, were still in existence in 1976 when the Baltimore city council appropriated $350,000 to build one.

Like the original clippers, the Pride is a wooden ship with hand-tooled ironwork. It has the characteristic severely raked, towering masts which rise 89 feet above the waterline, enabling it to carry an enormous amount of sail — 10 sails measuring a total of more than 9,500 square feet.

The large masts combined with a low freeboard, small hull and narrow stem and stern make the Pride, like the early Baltimore Clippers, extremely fast.

It averages 13 knots and is about 136 feet long from bowsprit to boom with a 90-foot hull. It displaces about 121 tons of water.

The vessel, painted a subtle yellow with black trim, sports rosewood pinwheels and tiller (clippers traditionally used tillers rather than wheels for steering) and mahogany wood for the masts. The ship's sides are yellow pine.

Below in the hold, the ship also is constructed in the original clipper style.

The 12-member crew sleeps in hammocks slung from a ceiling so low a person of normal height cannot stand upright. The small captain's quarters are slightly more comfortable, with a built-in bed and rosewood cabinets which hold trophies the Pride has won, most notably for its appearance in the New York City Tall Ships Bicentennial parade.

A brick fireplace in the galley is used to cook meals, although a modern stove will be added. Kerosene lights sway with the water's movement and barrels on deck hold the drinking water. Overhead, the salt breeze unfurls the American flag, circa 1812, with 15 stars and the Baltimore city flag.

When the Pride pulls into a new port, it fires its handcrafted cannon — always a crowd pleaser — before dropping its two anchors — 500 pounds and 250 pounds.

"It's fun to sail the only one in existence," Smith said with a grin.

His obvious pride in the ship shows when curious passersby stop to stare and ask questions. Sailing buffs are ready to find fault with the authenticity of the ship, but usually leave "with very few criticisms," Smith said.

In addition to entertaining crowds, the Pride is used to solicit business and advertise Baltimore. At the same time, its sleek beauty and proud lines demonstrate why the Chesapeake Bay area was world famous for the design of its fast sailing ships.

From the Revolutionary War until about 1850, the Baltimore Clippers played an important role as privateers, merchant ships and revenue cutters. The American merchant marine had no navy to protect it after the war, so its ships had to be designed for speed as protection from pirates.

During the War of 1812, the ships proved to be well-suited for running enemy blockades since they could easily outmaneuver the slower heavy British cruisers.

American privateers, many of them Baltimore Clippers, captured or sank so many British vessels they became a crucial factor in England's decision to attack Baltimore in 1814.

As the era of the Baltimore Clipper ended, men like Donald McKay of Boston, inspired by the Chesapeake Bay ships, began building the bigger and even faster true clippers like the Flying Cloud and Sovereign of the Seas that were to dominate world trade.

The Pride of Baltimore is not the first ship to bear that name. A Baltimore Clipper named the Chasseur was sailed to England under the command of Thomas Boyle, where he declared a blockade that disrupted shipping by forcing the British ships to travel in convoys.

When Boyle brought his ship home, Americans lined the shores of Baltimore harbor cheering his gallant crew and vessel, which they immediately renamed the Pride of Baltimore.

But the speed which gave the Baltimore clippers their fame, caused them to begin fading from use after the War of 1812. The design which made them so fast also made them unsuitable for carrying much cargo.

Argentine Fish Exports Rise

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine fish and frozen seafood exports rose to 28,900 tons for the first five months of 1977, with exports for May alone totaling more than 10,000 tons.

Different View Of Isadora In Annabelle's Dance

By TERRY ANZUR
NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — This year marks the 100th anniversary of Isadora Duncan's birth, but the thing most people remember about the flamboyant dance pioneer is her death.

A long scarf wrapped around her neck tangled in the wheel of a new-fangled 1927 automobile, snapping off the kind of life people make movies about.

In 1967, somebody did. "The Loves of Isadora," starring Vanessa Redgrave, played out the tales of the dancer's free-wheeling career — emphasizing her wild, international love affairs and frequent overindulgence in champagne.

Annabelle Gamson prefers to remember the dancing.

"She was much grander in her art than she ever was in her life," says the mother of two from Long Island who has revived Isadora's simple dances to a surge of popular and artistic interest.

"It was partly the inaccuracies in the movie that made me want to do it," she said. "I'm not an entertainer. I'm an artist."

She appears on stage in her own version of Isadora's loose, Greek-style tunic, slit to the loins to fully bare both legs. A tuxedoed pianist begins to play Chopin, she begins a simple dance, and the viewer sees what inspired — or shocked — prim Victorian audiences.

"Isadora Duncan was the greatest American gift to the art of dance," choreographer Michael Fokine wrote in his memoirs. "She proved that all the primitive, plain, natural movements are far better than all the richness of the ballet technique, if to the technique must be sacrificed grace, expressiveness and beauty."

"She was not a flower child who just took off her clothes and danced barefoot on the lawns," said Ms. Gamson. "It was just that she was so rich in her understanding that she could inspire other people to take off their clothes and dance barefoot on the lawns. And, as she said herself, there is a certain charm in seeing little girls in bare feet."

Ms. Gamson became a fourth generation Duncan dancer at age 5 when she took lessons from Julia Levien, who studied with Isadora's adopted daughters, Irma and Anna. Then she put the Duncan training aside as her dancing career branched out to modern, classical and Broadway stage styles.

"After a while I had it up to here with performing," she said. "I wanted to live in Europe for a while, and I had an exodus in Rome and Paris."

Married to a painter, she traveled to some of the European cities where Isadora had her greatest triumphs and viewed the classical artworks where Isadora found her inspiration.

"There was something about seeing all the painting and the sculpture," she said. "Isadora believed that the function of the artist was to get as close as possible to nature. She went back to the ancient Greeks because they were so good at it."

She remembers returning to the United States, only to feel uncomfortable in a dance world she felt was dominated by heavy scenery and big production numbers. She returned to Julia Levien's studio and began relearning the Duncan dances.

"I became like a pupil studying the great drawings of the master, and I read everything she (Isadora) wrote," Annabelle said. "I wanted a form that would use nothing but dance itself to create a whole aura. That's when people can look at a movement a child could do but say, 'Yes, that's dancing.'" year-long tour of campuses as an artist in residence, sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts.

The technique stayed with her as she remarried in 1958 and watched her children grow into teen-agers. Four years ago, working with her old teacher, Ms. Gamson gave a small concert of Duncan dances.

Ms. Gamson offered an all-Isadora program at the American Dance Festival in Newport, the New England resort town where Isadora performed a composition called "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" on a mansion lawn in 1898.

She is at her best when she recreates the works of an older Isadora, the one who thrived in post-revolutionary Russia and learned the pain of losing her own children in an accident.

She would rather speak through her outstretched arms than with words, but she is quick to dispute the idea that she is anything like the real Isadora.

"Her biggest fault was that she was ridiculously generous — she made millions and she spent millions," Ms. Gamson said. "I'm very modest. I'm not flamboyant in the way I live.

"I just pulled them out and tried them again. I didn't really expect anyone to watch," she said. "But I must have bridged a gap of generations."

She is now preparing for a

I'm not making a statement, I'm just dancing."

Yet she is hardly common, this 49-year-old lady who whirls like a child in a flappy tunic, trailing a mane of gray hair. Isadora died at 50.

"I'm very proud of the fact I'm still alive," Ms. Gamson said. "I don't want to color my hair. I don't dance like a girl. I dance like a woman."

Launch Livable Cities Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Arts has a new $1-million Livable Cities Program.

It says the objective of the program is "to challenge citizens and community leaders alike to create places where people want to live and work."

Arabs Will Get Postage Meters

NEW YORK (UPI) — The postage meter, so familiar to American businesses, is showing up in some unfamiliar places — like Saudi Arabia.

Pitney Bowes, a leading supplier of postage meters in more than 125 countries throughout the world, will install meters in Saudi Arabia post offices this year. In addition, the mailing equipment and copier company will train the administrative and service personnel who use them, says Fred T. Allen, chairman.

Recently the company's postage meters were installed in Bangladesh, Swaziland, Hungary and Zambia.

Nonsense Poems Made Top Book

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — "Alligator Pie," a collection of nonsense poems by Dennis Lee, illustrated by Frank Newfeld, was recently named the "Top English-Canadian Children's Book of All Times" in a poll of Canadian children's librarians.

"Anne of Green Gables" by Lucy Maud Montgomery and "Mary of Mile 18" by Ann Blades finished second and third.

The poll was conducted by "The World of Children's Books," a review of children's literature published here.

Television Snared By Stereotypes

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Joseph Turow, assistant professor of communications at Purdue University, sees something in common between television programs and the paint-by-number sets. And it's not just color.

Turow, a researcher in the Department of Communication, is interested in the reasons for social and physical stereotyping by the television industry. He recently spent two months in California interviewing writers, directors, agents, casting directors and producers to learn how they select actors for "bit" or small parts.

Turow calls the constant flow of characters seen on the tube a "landscape of people." It is a fairly predictable landscape, he says, one in which some groups — notably women and military, which he explains as the professionals' "perception of what Middle America thinks a person in a particular occupation normally looks like."

For example, casting directors believe an actor would readily be accepted as a judge if the part were played by a white-haired, middle-aged man. They are hesitant to select an untypical-looking person for a part since they contend it distracts viewers from the story, Turow says.

The second guideline is visual balance, or "how characters look next to one another." The physical make-up of a person — short, heavy, bald, etc. — can affect whether he or she will be cast next to another actor. For example, in "Starky and Hutch," a man who is better-looking than the two policemen would probably not be selected for a guest part since he would detract attention from the two stars.

Shows also have certain "looks" which those in charge of casting try to maintain. For example, "Charlie's Angels" is a "beautiful people" show while "Baretta" is a "street people, grungy-type" show, says Turow.

"Agents, casting directors and other persons involved tend to settle into certain comfortable casting 'cliques' — unless they're influenced by outside pressures," says Turow.

Many of those interviewed said they were responding to pressures to increase the number of women, old persons, Mexican-Americans and Orientals seen on television, he says. (Blacks, they contend, are doing fine.) However, he adds, it was stressed that selection of such persons must still be done according to "credibility."

What effect does such stereotyped casting have on children who watch TV?

Turow believes it may give young persons incorrect ideas about what the world is like and what possibilities they have in life. He doesn't believe TV stereotyping will ever be eliminated, though.

"Human beings use simplified ideas about the world to help them go about their daily affairs comfortably and efficiently," he says. "Mass-media organizations do the same thing. In spite of that, people concerned about stereotyping should keep challenging the patterns they see on their home screen so that those in charge of casting will have to keep making the 'landscape of people' richer and more varied."

"And, most important, we have to teach our children that when they watch TV they are not seeing a mirror of life."

Teens Target Of New Campaign

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A nationwide campaign to help reverse the epidemic of teenage pregnancy was launched by the National Organization for Non-Parents at its convention here.

Half the country's teenagers have sexual intercourse by age 18, but only 20 per cent of them regularly use contraceptives, said N.O.N. president Peter Cott.

Project director Kenneth Hunter said the campaign by the Baltimore-based group includes development of motivational and educational advertisements, buttons, bumper stickers, posters and pamphlets for distribution in teenage markets. The project has a $30,000 grant from the Education Foundation of America, Westport, Conn.

Block House Of Concrete Economical

By LASZLO K. DOMJAN ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A building materials manufacturer has built a concrete block house to show that concrete can be insulated to provide more energy savings than a conventional frame home.

And, the firm says, time-saving methods used in building the house reduce labor costs. The house was constructed in St. Peters, Mo., for F. F. Kirchner Inc. President Dale Kirchner of Kirchner Industries, the firm's production company, said the construction involved preinsulated, light-weight concrete blocks coated with fiberglass adhesive.

"The walls are more efficient than a stud wall in acting as a reservoir for heating and cooling, so the furnace or air conditioner won't cycle on and off as often," Kirchner said. Kirchner built the house to market a line of concrete blocks the firm began to sell a year ago.

Using a new type of concrete aggregate, the company developed a block seven pounds lighter than conventional block. U-shaped pieces of polystyrene are inserted in the core to increase insulation.

A technique called dry stacking was used in the demonstrator home. Blocks were stacked without mortar into walls which were capped with a reinforcing beam and covered with a layer of fiberglass bonding inside and out.

The coating, which adds insulation and helps waterproof, can be applied in a stucco finish on outside walls or as plaster on inside walls. Kirchner said the bonding forms a wall comparable in strength to a conventional masonry wall and is fireproof, termiteproof and soundproof.

"The initial labor cost is reduced because construction time is cut by 30 per cent," Kirchner said.

The display house features other energy-saving devices. They include double-insulated windows and ceiling insulation. Kirchner said heating and cooling costs in the home average 25 per cent less than in a conventional new home.

"We are in the materials business, not the home-building business. Our sole purpose in building the house was to show that concrete blocks can be efficient insulators and that they can have residential as well as commercial applications."

The blocks with insulated inserts cost about 50 per cent more than regular blocks but Kirchner estimated the additional cost is recovered in fuel savings within three years.

"Builders were really interested in insulated blocks last winter," Kirchner said. "Some have lost interest as the weather has been warmer but I think they'll be asking for it again by December."

Immunizations Effort Pushed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The national childhood immunization campaign of the National League for Nursing is beginning a new phase.

A $260,000 contract with the federal Center for Disease Control will finance expansion of the on-going project. It will coordinate networks of voluntary organizations already established in each state with local and state health officials and professional associations.

The league's program is part of a federal government campaign announced last April by Joseph Califano, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Califano said at the time that almost 40 per cent of America's 52 million children under the age of 15 are not immunized against one or more of the diseases for which vaccines are available: for example, measles, mumps, polio, diphtheria, rubella and whooping cough.
