Follow-Up Checkup

EARLY-MORNING FIRE — Greenville firemen check the exterior of a house at 105 South Jarvis St., for hot spots early this morning after fire caused heavy damage to the dwelling. Fire officers reported that the complete center of the house was burning when firemen arrived on the scene. Two fire department trucks were damaged when one engine rolled down a steep grade and into the rear of a second pumper, resulting in minor damage to the two vehicles. Officials said the house was unoccupied at the time of 2:35 a.m. fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Carter Sees Crisis Posing Big Ripoff

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the oil and gas companies are trying to become the war profiteers of the energy crisis, and warned that the nation faces the danger of "the biggest ripoff in history."

Carter keynoted his new campaign for his embattled energy program with a head-on attack on the industry, saying the administration plan would provide enormous profits "but the oil companies apparently want it all."

Carter told a nationally-broadcast news conference that he intends to devote "most of my time in the next few weeks" to reassembling the administration energy plan, virtually dismantled by the Senate.

He recalled that in proposing the plan initially, he had described the energy crisis as the moral equivalent of war. "I haven't changed my mind," he said. "In fact, the seriousness of the energy crisis is even more acute than it was then."

"But as is the case in time of war, there is potential war profiteering in the energy crisis," he said. "This could develop as the biggest ripoff in history." The President said the oil and gas industry is not part of the free enterprise system "because prices are not free." Carter said the question now is whether energy price controls and taxes are to be enacted as part of a fair and equitable program, or whether the industry is to gain enormous windfall profits.

On another topic, Carter said he was giving tentative thought to an economy-stimulating tax cut next year and that it would be "tied with a tax-reform package."

"The rapidity with which the tax cut could be instituted would be tied to the state of the economy," the President said. He added that "we won't really know about that until January or February."

Carter said his visit last week to the South Bronx slums in New York "certainly did have an impact" on his thinking about a new urban policy.

"It's important for me to demonstrate ... my deep concern about urban deterioration" and to "inform the American people that these places exist in our country," the President said of the tour.

Regarding full employment legislation, Carter said his aides have been working with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., "to evolve a full employment bill we could support without reservation or hesitation."

"I would expect within the next few days we would be prepared, if things go right this week, to announce our approval of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill," he said.

On unemployment problems in the steel industry, Carter said "steel imports are just one part of a fairly large number of problems that affect the U.S. steel industry and which affect the steel industry all over the world."

He said "our analysis has shown that reduction of imports would not materially increase" benefits to American steel producers.

"The general, over-all world recession, or slow growth, means you just are not building as many things all over the world that require steel," the President added.

Asked whether he might be trying to do too much at once, Carter replied: "I think if anyone analyzes already what the Congress has done ... and the major legislation they have presently before them, they will see that we have made substantial progress."

Nobel Prizes In Medicine Won By Three Americans

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Americans won Nobel prizes for medicine today, bringing to five the Nobels awarded this year to U.S. citizens.

Dr. Roger Guillemin, 53, of the Salk Institute in San Diego, Calif., and Dr. Andrew Schally, 50, of the Veterans Administration hospital in New Orleans, La., share one half of the $145,000 prize for their discoveries on peptide hormone production.

The other half went to Dr. Rosalyn Yalow, 56, of the Veterans Administration hospital in the Bronx, New York City, for discoveries concerning peptide production of the brain.

Two Americans and a Briton shared the Nobel prize for physics, awarded Tuesday. The Americans were John H. Van Vleck, 78, of Harvard University and his former student, Philip Anderson, 55, of Princeton University and Bell Laboratories. The third recipient was Sir Nevill F. Mott, 72, of Cambridge University in England.

The physics winners, who will share equally a $145,000 prize, were cited for research on the electronic structure of magnetic and disordered systems.

Americans collected all five of the Nobels awarded last year. No peace prize was announced last year, but it was awarded belatedly to two Northern Irish women Monday. Amnesty International, the London-based organization that seeks freedom for political prisoners, won the 1977 peace prize.

The 1977 prize for literature was won by a Spanish poet, Vicente Aleixandre. The award for economics will be announced Friday.

The medicine prize has been dominated by Americans and Britons since World War II. This was the third consecutive year that the prize went to the United States.

The 1977 Nobel laureates in physiology or medicine made their discoveries within the field of peptide hormones. Peptides are the substances built up by chains of amino acids. Many hormones in the body belong to this group, produced by the hypophysis, the thyroid gland, the parathyroid glands, the placenta, the gastrointestinal tract and other tissues. New such hormones are still being discovered, the faculty of the awarding body said.

"The important discoveries by the 1977 laureates have led to a formidable development of their own fields of research. Further, they have opened new vistas within biological and medical research far outside the borders of their own spheres of interest," a spokesman said.

Rosalyn Yalow's prize was awarded for discoveries concerning the peptide hormone production of the brain and for the development of radioimmunoassays of peptide hormones.

Guillemin and Schally helped lay to rest the long-held misconception that the pituitary was the body's "master gland." They did this by showing conclusively that the brain and central nervous system regulated the pituitary by secreting hormones.

They developed the scientific methods for isolating these hormones and their research made it possible for three of these hormones to be synthesized artificially in a laboratory.

The ability to synthesize the hormone that stimulates the thyroid gland has helped doctors to diagnose thyroid disorders.

Dr. Yalow had worked more than 20 years with Dr. Solomon Berson to develop a new, more sensitive way of measuring how much of various hormones was present in the body.

An early use of their technique showed that diabetics, who had been thought to lack insulin altogether, actually had some insulin but were unable to use it because their bodies resisted its action.

Bakke Ruling Not Due 'Til Summer

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

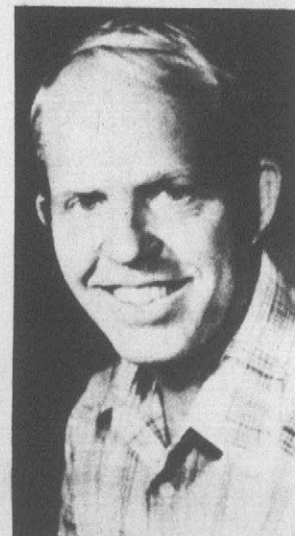

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall interrupted Allan Paul Bakke's attorney with an assessment of the precedent-setting "reverse discrimination" case:

"You're arguing about keeping somebody out," Marshall said. "The other side is arguing about getting someone in. It all depends on how you look at it."

How Marshall and the court's eight other members view the case argued before them Wednesday may determine the future of hundreds of so-called affirmative action programs in education and business.

Civil rights leaders say the court's decision, due sometime before the end of its term next summer, could determine the course of the nation's race relations.

Bakke, who is white, sued the University of California after twice being rejected for admission to the university's medical school at Davis.

ALLAN BAKKE

He successfully argued before the California Supreme Court that the school's special admissions program made him a victim of illegal racial discrimination.

The state court said the admissions policy, although aimed at giving preferential treatment to blacks and other minority members to overcome past inequities and meet a need for more minority physicians, nevertheless violated Bakke's constitutional right to be treated equally.

The California court's decision came after university officials conceded that they could not disprove Bakke's contention that he would have been admitted if the special admissions policy had not existed.

"Allan Bakke's position is that he has a right not to be discriminated against because of race," argued San Francisco lawyer Reynold Colvin. "The problem is that the university has become quota-happy."

Rose Homecoming

J. H. Rose High school will begin homecoming on Friday, October 14, at 4:30 p.m. with a parade through the downtown area.

The parade will start on Dickenson Avenue near the old Windixie and take a right onto Fifth Street at the police department and it will continue down Fifth Street where it will end.

This year's theme, "The Circus: The Greatest Show on Earth", will be in evidence as the many floats and student clowns make their way along the route.

The football game against Bertie will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium, followed by a dance in the school canteen-cafeteria.

The dance will start at 9:30 and will feature "Good News" from Florida. Tickets are $2.00 for single Rose High students and $3.00 per couple. Alumni may purchase tickets at $4.00 from Miss Wendy Allen, SGA advisor.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

BIG BROTHERS, SISTERS NEEDED

Volunteers to be friends to young people — Big Brothers and Sisters — are being sought by Mrs. Brenda H. Teel, Juvenile Court Counselor and Coordinator of the Pitt County Juvenile Volunteer Program.

Men and women 18 or older are needed to spend time with boys and girls who have special needs. "It's been found," Mrs. Teel said, "that the children who have some involvement with the law often can be diverted from further involvement if someone can act as a friend, tutor and role model to him or her during the critical period after this first involvement. She stressed that there is no specific requirement concerning education or experience, only a desire to be a friend and to get together with the child at least once a week over about six months or longer.

Individuals' questions may be directed to Mrs. Teel at 752-1811 and she will be glad to speak to groups about the Juvenile Volunteer Program. Applications may be obtained from the Juvenile Court Counselors' office on the Third Floor of the Pitt County Court House, or they will be mailed upon request.

Matching Funds Talked In Recreation Projects

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal to combine three on-the-drawing-board recreation projects into one, and to seek matching federal funds for the combined project, to be presented to the City Council for its action, was approved by the Recreation and Parks Commission at its October meeting Wednesday night.

The three already approved and budgeted projects amount to $60,000. They are: tennis courts at the West Greenville facility, $30,000; acquisition of new recreation land, $20,000; and a parking lot adjacent to Elm Street Gym, $10,000.

Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee explained that by combining these three, application for a matching grant from the Land and Water Conservation Department can be applied for — provided the City Council at its November meeting approves the Recreation Commission recommendation.

Deadline for making the application for the federal funds matching grant is November 15. Commission chairman Dr.

Edgar W. Hooks, Jr. explained that "once approved, the good thing is that these funds can, if necessary, be carried over into another fiscal year."

Tentative plans for acquisition of new land is for a recreation plot to serve the Belvedere-Club Pines-Westhaven Subdivisions area.

The idea of naming recreation facilities in honor of persons who have contributed in an outstanding manner to the Greenville recreation program is being considered as a future possibility.

Dr. Hooks appointed a committee of three to study the idea and to have a final report for the commission to be presented on February 8, 1978. Rev. Dan Earnhardt is chairperson of the Facility Name Study Committee, and other members are Mrs. Lib Proctor and Joe Godette. Hooks and Lee will serve as resource persons to assist and advise the committee.

Dr. Hooks expressed a need for serious thought on the idea before formulating a policy that could open the way for giving names of people to recreation facilities.

Soccer for boys is growing in popularity by leaps and bounds, according to a report made by Lee.

Lee noted that "last year 60 boys turned out to sign up for soccer. This year we have 160, and had to stop signing up any more boys because we ran out of uniforms."

Lee said, "Compared to football, its so much cheaper and so many more boys can become involved. The average cost per boy in playing soccer is $12 compared to $125 for football, so you can see there's really a big difference."

Snow In Boone Today

By The Associated Press

The season's first snow fell today at Boone as a developing storm off the coast spread winter-like weather over much of North Carolina.

Misting rain and snow flurries were mixed in the mountain town home of Appalachian State University, where the mid-morning temperature was 36 degrees after an overnight low of 33.

Snow was reported sticking to cars in the little community of Deep Gap about 10 miles east of Boone, but it was melting as it fell to the ground in Boone and elsewhere around Watauga County.

On the coast, the National Weather Service warned of possible lowland flooding and beach erosion.

The monthly report of the department shows that through September, total attendance at the major facilities — Elm Street, South Greenville, West Greenville, and the Senior Citizens Center — totals 178,803. Chances are that the last three months of 1977 will push the year's total to at least 200,000 total participants.

Grandmothers Galore In Infant's Family

By JENNIFER KIRKLAND
Clay Today Staff Writer
ORANGE PARK, Fla. (AP) — You could say one-month-old Clifford Eugene Hall had the odds stacked against him when he was born.

More than 50 million to one, as close as his grandmother, Mrs. Donna Waites of Keystone Heights, can figure.

Cliff, as his family calls him, in "varying degrees of greatness" has 10 living grandmothers. But as if that isn't enough, he was also born into a family with four instances of five generations.

Longevity isn't new to Cliff's ancestors, who have their roots deep in American soil.

When Cliff's mother, Deborah, was born 19 years ago she had eight living grandmothers and mathematicians then calculated that the chances of that happening were 50 million to one.

All of the grandmothers, who are scattered throughout North Florida, are "up and around," Mrs. Waites said.

The oldest is Sally Ellen Rouse, 94, one of Cliff's four great-great-grandmothers.

He also has four great-grandmothers, two grandmothers and five grandfathers.

That's not counting three step-grandmothers and one step-grandfather.

Having all these grandparents can get confusing but Mrs. Waites, who is an expert on her family's genealogy, patiently untangles her family's roots for interested listeners.

Cliff's maternal side of the family includes his grandmother, Mrs. Waites, 37, great-grandmother Flora Cunningham, 57, great-great-grandmother Annie L. Sears, 88, great-great-grandmother Leona Cunningham, 79, great-grandmother Sally Jane Fiveash, 57, and great-great-grandmother Sally Ellen Rouse, 94.

His paternal side includes grandmother Emma C. Hall, 36, great-grandmother Eleanor Forsythe, 62, great-grandmother Thelma Hall McAdmas, 57, and great-great-grandmother Louise Forsythe, 89.

On both Cliff's mother's and father's side there are four unbroken lineages of generations.

Mrs. Waites has traced her side of the family tree back to Danish nobility. In the 1880s, her ancestors moved to Ocala where her great-grandfather was a cabinet maker.

One of Cliff's great-great-grandmothers, who died only two years ago, lived to be 107 years old. He also had a great-grandfather who was part Cherokee Indian and lived to be 103.

Family reunions, which are held every few years, are a huge affair with anywhere from 100 to 300 people attending, Mrs. Waites said.

Although he's only one month old, Mrs. Waites already knows one thing about Cliff's future.

"He won't be spoiled with all these grandmothers around," she said with a laugh.

Is It Fair To Have A Child At 50?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been discussing having a child. I am 30 and he is 60. We are both well-established working people at present. We are happily in love and communicate fantastically well. He is very active in sports and doesn't appear his age. He has been through a marriage and children before. (I haven't.) I am confident we would be good parents and have a lot to offer a child.

Do you think it's fair to a child to have a father with less than a full-term parenthood expectancy? We'd like your opinion and perhaps the opinions of readers who have experienced this.

FACING FACTS

DEAR FACING: The age of a father isn't nearly so important as his physical condition and his attitudes about parenthood. The fact that you question the "fairness" of having a child under the circumstances speaks well for you. I say, go ahead.

DEAR ABBY: Never, but never, did this ancient, retired schoolteacher think he would take pen in hand for such a purpose.

Before I give you the bad news, let me give you the good news: You get straight A's in written English, spelling, grammar, sentence structure and vocabulary.

But, alas, teacher must flunk you in United States history! In attempting to console a bachelor, you stated that James Buchanan, our 16th president, was also a bachelor.

Dear, dear abby, for shame. Buchanan was our 15th president. Abraham Lincoln was our 16th.

HISTORIAN: NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

DEAR HIS: When I goof, I take my lumps. But this time I was the victim of a typographical error.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you answer this because I know I need help. I just hate children! Every time I see a mother holding her baby and making a fuss over it, I want to snatch it away from her, beat it and then drop it on its head.

I'm at the age (21) when a girl starts thinking of marriage, but I loathe the thought of getting married and running the risk of having a kid. I am sure I would make a rotten mother. I can't stand to hear a baby cry. I just know I'd beat the kid to death if it ever cried for very long.

Do all people hate kids deep down, or is there something wrong with me? If you think I need help, where can I go? HATES KIDS

House And Senate Adopt New Policies On Abortion

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Social service recipients would still receive their benefits and some 240,000 federal employees would still be paid under an emergency resolution before the House and Senate.

The resolution would allow the two chambers to continue their fight over abortion policy until the end of the month without jeopardizing either federal programs or federal paychecks. The abortion issue is included in a $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments, and disagreement between the two chambers has stalled the entire measure.

The House and Senate each adopted new abortion policies on Wednesday, but each house's position was expected to be unacceptable to the other chamber, continuing the deadlock.

The Senate took the first step to provide the temporary funds Wednesday night by approving a resolution that would provide money for key social service agencies until Nov. 1. The House was expected to vote on that proposal today.

House leaders have opposed such a resolution, fearing that any appropriation resolution would become bogged down in the abortion dispute.

But the resolution passed by the Senate would continue until Nov. 1 the abortion policy enacted last year with strong House support. It says the government will pay for abortions only where a woman's life would be jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy.

While continuing that policy, the resolution would get money to the departments for key programs and salaries. It would continue spending at the levels in force during fiscal 1977 and be retroactive to Oct. 1. Money to operate the agencies technically ran out then.

Programs like welfare and unemployment insurance have continued to make payments. But officials began saying this week that some programs might be cut off because of the impact on the states of losing federal aid.

The resolution also would provide paychecks for the agencies' 240,000 employees, many of whom faced half pay with their next checks and nothing but promises after that.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I take my marriage vows seriously.

All that jazz about better or worse, richer or poorer, sickness and health, I've handled it all — until my husband developed blind spots on the tennis court.

His first attack hit about seven months ago. I hit a ball well inside the serving court when I heard him yell, "LONG!"

I placed my second serve which I watched clearly land on the line and he yelled, "WIDE!"

Naturally, I didn't want to upset him, so I waited until the end of the set (which he won) and led him off the court. "Be careful, dear," I advised gently, "there are two steps in front of you at 12 o'clock, then there are exactly 65 steps to the car with only one curb in between and I'll tell you about them."

"I am not blind," he said irritably, shaking his arm loose from mine.

"Of course you're not," I conceded. But I was worried.

However, at home, his super vision returned. He noted a phone was off the hook just by looking through a wall, correctly predicted his son was wearing his underwear right through a pair of shorts, and took me to task for the dust on top of our seven-foot refrigerator.

That weekend, when we returned to the court for a rematch, his vision once again failed him. Lobs that landed on the line were called "out" or "in," depending on whose lobs they were. If I had so much as a shoelace that went over the serving line, he would call, "FOOT FAULT!"

A girlfriend of mine said her husband suffered from the same malady. "It's tennis elbow of the eye," she said.

"Are you serious?" I giggled. "It's not funny," she said. "It's painful as all get out. Comes from missing too many shots that are in."

"Surely we can't be talking about the same thing."

"Maybe not," she said. "Does your husband sometime call it out before you even serve the ball? (I nodded.) Does he sometimes win an entire set without stepping a foot on the court? (Again I nodded.) Does his vision return when he is in the pro-shop? (Again I nodded.) There was a cure for it last year," she said. "Of course, I don't know what they call it this year."

"What did they call the cure last year?"

"Divorce."

Candidates In Dead Heat

MATTHEWS, N.C. (AP) — When all the votes were counted Tuesday in the nonpartisan mayoral primary here, there was a tie for second place.

So at 11 a.m. today, the two candidates who each got 66 votes will draw straws to see who goes into a runoff.

"That's the way the ball bounces and you've got to accept it," said Graham E. Smith, incumbent mayor of this small town five miles from Charlotte, and one of the candidates who will draw straws.

Smith was in second place, in front of Clay Lefler by two votes, until two absentee ballots for Lefler evened the score at 66 each.

William B.A. Culp Jr., elections supervisor for Mecklenburg County, said the winner would be decided by drawing straws after an official canvass of the votes.

The winner will take on R.B. Collins, who polled 88 votes in Tuesday's election.

"Let 'em shoot it out at 30 paces," Collins joked when his opponents tied.

Lefler said he had not been sure how many absentee ballots were coming in but "I knew two (persons) had done it and I knew they were for me," he said.

Smith sized up the situation and said he did not mind settling it by drawing straws.

"It's a gamble that you take either way," he said.

Election Results Interesting

Tuesday's election in Greenville was an interesting one.

There was no opposition to Mayor Percy Cox and he was returned to office by the voters.

Running for the six council seats, however, were 18 candidates, which meant that any conscientious voter had his homework cut out to study the stands of so many candidates.

Only two of the field made it into office in the election. It was mildly surprising that Charles Vincent, local attorney seeking office for the first time, received the highest number of votes. He was followed by Joseph Taft, an incumbent, who also received a majority of the votes.

Three present members of the City Council were in the top six, but failed to obtain majorities. Millie McGrath was third, Clarence Gray fourth and William Hadden, sixth.

A fourth member of the present council still has a chance to return in a run-off election. John Howard was seventh in the field. Former City Manager Harry Hagerty was eighth, John Bizzell, ninth and Della P. Dayson tenth and all have a chance at election if a runoff election is called, a likely prospect.

Long-time council member Frank Fuller fell below the votes needed to call a runoff and will not return to the City Council.

A newcomer to city politics Judy Greene conducted a vigorous campaign and finished a strong fifth in the field.

It was interesting that one incumbent lost out completely in the city election and another fell below the top six. Two of the three black candidates can be among the possible eight in a runoff. All three women candidates could be in the runoff election.

From here on it will depend on how well the candidates can perform in getting their supporters back to the polls in a Nov. 8 runoff election. The fact that a general election is being conducted at the same time could increase the turnout.

Finally there is the possibility that some of the strong running candidates who didn't make the runoff will throw support to candidates who did.

At this point we know that there will be one new face on the new City Council, and that the remaining four positions are still far from settled.

Lee Says Plan For Future

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The ghost of LBJ hovers over North Carolina's Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

And the echoes of the oft-misfired cannons of the War on Poverty can still be heard in that agency's "new philosophy" of community development.

To Secretary Howard Lee, however, there is a big difference: instead of the confrontations of the 60s, he espouses the cooperation of the 70s.

Rather than CAP and VISTA and CETA and the other alphabetical firing line programs producing conflict between local governments and the low-income population, Lee sees whole communities involved together in grappling all the inter-related problems.

Must Plan

The key ingredient must be hardnosed, realistic planning: honest stock-taking of what North Carolina communities have, what they need, how they're going to get that, where they're headed, and how they're going to get there.

Such planning will become essential to getting state and federal aid programs in urban or rural communities all across the state, Lee says, and even without a statewide land and planning law—which a reluctant General Assembly continues to delay—the secretary thinks he can use the trusted carrot-stick approach in "urging" community planning.

Local governments will, in effect, need such a plan before they get in good position to win all sorts of recreational, housing, job training, water-sewer, or other aids directly available through Lee's agency. The secretary also says he is building lines of cooperation with other state agencies so that health, transportation, and other services "across the board" can be built into the required planning process.

Are local governments ready for such an approach? "Many of them are now saying that they want to do such plans, they're ready to do planning—quietly—but lack resources and technical know-how. We are going to provide that."

Where does all of the planning lead? To "constructive and orderly development," says Lee. It comes down to a situation in which communities must take stock, classify land uses, determine the impacts of new industries or housing developments on schools, parks, roads, and water-sewer availabilities.

The Future

All of this is a prelude to economic development, Lee believes. Given realistic plans and community directions (on file for future reference) solid decisions can be made about all sorts of investments, public and private, in those communities.

Meanwhile, Lee says, "Nothing can happen until we go in and get those communities ready." Actually, he adds, until they get themselves ready, for he insists on plans which suit local needs and wishes.

Still, many of the community development programs are holdovers from the War on Poverty, and victims of a decade of mismanagement, red tape, political machinations, administrative rubeology, and bureaucratic boon-doggling. And in the minds of many Tar Heels, the programs are not really community development aids, but Black aid programs. Will that history put the effort in jeopardy?

Lee thinks not. As for so many programs involving low-income Blacks, the secretary feels candidly that relieving unemployment or providing decent housing may appear to impact mostly on one part of the community; but in reality cuts across lines and has important effects on crime rates, schools, and tax rates.

"We have to emphasize that what we do is in the best interest of the entire community," Lee says.

And he believes that involving local governments and the state in a partnership for planning and carrying out programs, the mistakes of the past can be avoided.

Criminal Code Flaws

Ten years of hard and thoughtful work have gone into the pending bill for recodification of the federal criminal code. Regrettably, this has to be said: The sponsors need to put in a few months more. In its present form, the measure simply will not do.

I offer that opinion reluctantly. The pending bill, S. 1437, is an enormous improvement over the ill-considered S. 1 of the 94th Congress. Few persons question the need for wholesale revision and modernization of a criminal code that has been patched together in bits and pieces over nearly 200 years. The principal sponsors, Senators Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and John McClellan of Arkansas, have done a generally commendable job.

BOSTON (AP) — American doctors with degrees from foreign schools knew far less about medicine when taking a certification test last year than those who studied in the United States or Canada, a research report says.

Only 17 per cent of the Americans who studied abroad were able to pass the test in 1976 to certify them as specialists, compared with 80 per cent of those who went to American and Canadian schools, the study said.

To the editor:

As I pen this article, the U. S. Supreme Court has begun to listen and to consider the arguments and the briefs in the notorious BAKKE case. No case on this year's docket — and certainly no case within the past two decades — has created such a furor within this nation.

Whatever the Supreme Court decides, the ruling will undoubtedly be bitterly accepted. On one hand, people will feel the Court went too far; on the other side, citizens will believe the Court did not go far enough.

At stake is the system — affirmative action programs in hiring practices and for educational opportunities for disadvantaged minorities — upon which minorities have been able to achieve the progress of the last 20 years because of the historically proven systematic, arbitrary and capricious tool of discrimination. At stake in the BAKKE decision, implied or otherwise, is the determination as to whether or not minorities have progressed to the point at which they now need to be returned to subservience under the guise of "reverse discrimination."

Regardless of the verdict by the Supreme Court, people will be deeply disappointed. It is this writer's hope that the U. S. Supreme Court's decision will not spark a holocaust in this land. Stevie Wonder's cut from his "Songs to the Key of Life" Album personifies a strong message to which we all should live: "This world was made for all men."

The BAKKE decision will determine HOW people will live together — to a very great extent — in America.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Guru A 'Flop' In History

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's foreign policy guru, Zbigniew Brzezinski, spent 20 years as a professor at Harvard and Columbia. Recent events suggest it's fortunate that history was not his specialty.

The Polish-born Brzezinski, an expert on Soviet affairs and international relations, has demonstrated that he can be fallible indeed when it comes to footnotes to American history.

As a recent migrant from the classroom to the White House, Brzezinski couldn't resist playtheme, faced his "students" and asked, "I wonder if you know who the first U.S. president who traveled abroad was?"

After hearing suggestions of George Washington, Woodrow Wilson and John Adams, Brzezinski declared, "No, you are all flunking the history test."

The class then mentioned as possibilities Herbert Hoover, James Monroe and Theodore Roosevelt.

Proudly, the professor asserted, "The first president to travel abroad was (William Howard) Taft in 1909 to Panama." Taft traveled as president-elect, he added.

Well, Taft did go to Panama in January 1909. But Teddy Roosevelt beat him there by more than two years. Roosevelt actually was the first incumbent president to go abroad, visiting Panama in November 1906.

A week earlier, in announcing Carter's four-continent trek, Brzezinski erred in telling reporters that when Carter goes to Nigeria next month, it will be "the first black African country ever to be visited by a U.S. President."

Reporters were quick to discover that in 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Liberia, the first independent black nation in Africa.

The once-exclusive President's Club, an invention of Democratic fundraisers, isn't what it used to be. It is opening its membership rolls to all who can scrape up a $15 donation to the Democratic National Committee.

Maybe it's evidence that Democrats are getting more democratic.

When Lyndon B. Johnson was president, memberships cost $1,000 a head. For that kind of money, you stood a pretty good chance of getting invited to a stat dinner at the White House or, at the least, an invitation to one of a series of regional bashes at which LBJ showed up to shake every hand.

In those days, and on those occasions, the well-heeled donors got their pictures taken with Johnson, who subsequently sent them personally inscribed prints.

Jimmy Carter has just put his facsimile signature — a simple "Jimmy" — on a mass mailing to prospective members of the revamped President's Club. And this is what he says you now get for your money:

"The Democratic National Committee will send you your President's Club membership card soon after your contribution is received, and place your name on its mailing list to get periodic reports on our progress."

That's all, folks.

Although Carter suggests that donations average $25 a person, an enclosed business reply envelope has a place to check off gifts of as little as $15.

After Carter touched on just about all major foreign and domestic problems in addressing the national committee last week, a reporter playfully asked him about one problem the President did not address.

"How about kudzu?" was the question, referring to the noxious vine that spreads unchecked across much of Carter's native South.

"We don't have it under control," a smiling President responded, apparently meaning to suggest he's on top of the problems he did mention.

To the editor:

On 13 October, 1775, the Continental Congress authorized the fitting out of ships for the Continental Navy and thus began the great tradition of the United States Navy. The 202nd anniversary of that event will be celebrated at all Naval facilities and ships throughout the world.

The Navy Sabbath is an observance customarily held on the Sunday nearest the 13th of October of each year. This religious observance provides an opportunity for Thanksgiving for our Liberty and the freedom our nation has enjoyed for these 202 years. The services usually include tributes to those men and women who have served our nation so faithfully through its history. The Navy Hymn "Eternal Father Strong To Save" is a further expression of the feelings of grateful Nation.

Warned 'Something Coming'

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — There are at least two sides to every story, as is very obvious in tracking the trail of the snail, as the economy is sometimes referred to. Especially when the two sides seem to come from the same source.

Is the economy growing stronger or getting weaker? Take your choice.

That pledge of a balanced budget, low unemployment and low inflation — a very sturdy economy, that is — has never been officially withdrawn by the Carter people ever since it was first made during the pre-election campaign.

But Charles Schultze, the President's chief economic adviser, and Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal are saying a tax cut might be needed next year to spur a slowing economy.

Will there be a recession? Beginning a few months ago the word has been appearing in almost every stock market report and economic analysis. Some discount the notion, but the general feeling left is that, yes, something is coming by both land and sea.

Merrill Lynch Economics Inc., however, sees little reason to call out the militia. "In our judgment... a recession just isn't in the cards," it says, and goes right on to confuse us about another two-sided issue.

Isn't Business Week Magazine lamenting in its cover story this week about the "distressing" level of capital investing, which as you probably know is investment by industry in plant and equipment? Yes it is.

But Merrill Lynch maintains "we have fresh evidence that capital spending will move forward at a rapid clip in the months ahead and in 1978." The latest survey, it says, indicates a strong picture.

Turning to the stock market, which is the opposite direction being assumed by many individual investors, we spot two opposing views on the current valuation of stocks.

Says Data Resources Inc., a widely used numbers factory run by former White House economist Otto recovery has been the tremendous number of new jobs we've been creating — some three million a year," said Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

It's a different story also if you are black rather than white or white rather than black. Black joblessness in September was 13.1 per cent, down from 14.5 per cent in August. White unemployment was 6.1 per cent in both months.

Your interpretation of the jobless story might also depend upon your belief in statistical formulations, which is what these rates are. Remember the concern when the black rate leaped to 14.5 per cent in August?

For once, it appears, here was an issue on which nobody disagreed. The sudden rise of black unemployment meant that blacks were bearing the brunt of the slowdown, an interpretation with grave social consequences.

Or so it was said. On reviewing the figures Shiskin later indicated the August leap was of "dubious accuracy."

HAVING TREASURE OVERBOARD

Some of the most brilliant episodes in the history of England during the sixteenth century are the freebooting expeditions of Sir Francis Drake against the Spaniards in the New World.

On one occasion, after capturing several Spanish galleons, Drake's one remaining ship was so overburdened with gold and silver that it threatened to sink. Drake and his men desperately jettisoned everything non-essential aboard the ship, but she still rode so low in the water that it was doubtful whether the master and crew could make it back to home port. Finally, to lighten the ship, they threw overboard six cannons and a fortune in silver.

Throughout history many people and nations have tried to carry too great a cargo of cannons and silver. And even today, some of these nations may sink hopelessly in the great sea of human destiny because they will not part with any of these possessions... As with Francis Drake, our survival may depend on jettisoning treasures to which we have assigned an exaggerated value.

into American medical schools are enrolling in foreign universities.
A report on their training, prepared by the American Board of Internal Medicine, was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.
The board administers a certifying examination for doctors who specialize in internal medicine. John Meskuskas, associate director of the board, said the exam "measures the person's medical knowledge and problem-solving skills."
The tests are voluntary, and doctors can practice without taking them. "It's a mark of achievement," said Meskuskas. "It signifies that a person has the medical training that a specialty board requires."
The test was taken by 3,528 doctors trained in the United States and Canada, 1,302 foreign doctors trained abroad and 73 American doctors with foreign training.
Meskuskas said he believes that American doctors who study abroad do poorly on the exams because they are less bright and less well-trained than their American colleagues.
"These are people who by and large have tried to gain access to an American medical school and have been unsuccessful," he said in an interview. "They were unable to make it competitively."
"There is also some question as to whether the foreign schools have as effective a curriculum as American schools," he said, adding that student-teacher ratios and class and clinic time offered by foreign schools are not as good as American schools.
The foreign-trained Americans also did worse on the internal medicine exam than foreign doctors who practice in the United States. Twenty-nine per cent of the foreign physicians — all of them trained abroad — passed the test.
However, there were wide differences among nationalities. For instance, 45 per cent of the Peruvians passed the test in 1976, compared with 9 per cent of Filipino doctors.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prominent House Republican says release of a report showing congressmen spent tax money for bar association dues and staff parties scuttled the latest House reform plan.
Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said the report's release "pushed the buggy over the cliff." Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the House had been driven by "a wave of resentment ... against reform."
The House voted 252 to 160 Wednesday against considering the reform package, apparently dooming the measure for this year.

The day before, the clerk of the House released a report detailing how congressmen spent their $2,000 annual "district allowance" in the first six months of this year.
The accounts are meant to pay official expenses outside Washington.
The report showed some congressmen used the money for concert tickets, bar association dues, car insurance and even a rented tuxedo.
After its release, one congressman said, legislators stood in the rear of the House chamber "and whispered among themselves (that) those reformers are always getting us in trouble."

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the commission that drafted the reform plan, said the vote represented a frustration with "the acid reign of criticism over the past number of years."
"People are tired of having this institution shot at, sometimes for good reason, sometimes for lousy reasons," he said.
"This was an opportunity to vent frustration," he said, and the resentment "just exploded. ... Members had just had it."
The package drafted by the Commission on Administrative Review would have changed the way the House's $250 million operation is managed. The proposals would have streamlined day-to-day House operations by naming an administrator, auditor and comptroller and by establishing a personnel office.

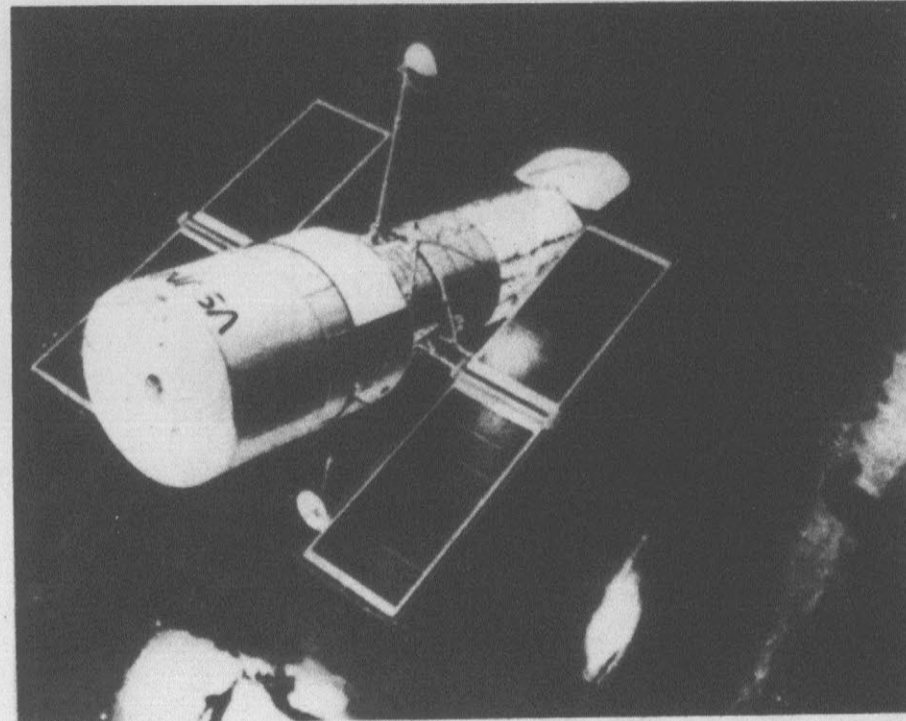

The measure also would have created a three-member committee to screen personnel complaints. Congressional employees have complained they are not protected from race, sex or job discrimination because Congress exempted itself from civil rights laws.
All 139 Republicans present voted against the plan. Some 113 Democrats opposed it despite pleas for support from O'Neill, who said, "You'll have to answer to the public. The public wants this place cleaned up."
Some Republicans, noting that certain perquisites would be expanded under the measure, said the "reform" would cost taxpayers $6 million.
"The cynics were right," Anderson said. "This isn't reform. It's higher allowances, more perquisites, more spending."

left to the states to prosecute according to state law.
Many other desirable features deserve applause. The proposed revisions would simplify 70 confusing federal statutes having to do with theft; the statutes dealing with "attempted" crimes would be beefed up; laws on bail jumping, loan sharking and racketeering would be strengthened. Fifty perjury statutes would be condensed to three. There is much that is good.
But in certain broad areas — areas unusually subject to abuse because of their very broadness — the drafters of S. 1437 have gone too far. Whether wittingly or unwittingly, they have forged weapons that malicious prosecutors and despot judges could put to terrible use.
We of the press may perhaps be forgiven a certain sensitivity in these areas. We have seen tinpot tyrants on the federal bench impose gag orders, as in Baton Rouge six years ago, that had to be obeyed under pain of contempt — even though the orders were blatantly unconstitutional. We have seen reporters sent to jail for refusal to disclose the names of confidential sources. The pending bill imposes no effective restraints upon such judges. Indeed, the bill authorizes a judge to impose a three-year prison term plus fine "in any amount deemed just by the court" upon a reporter who protects a source. Senator Kennedy denies that his bill would permit any such thing, but unless words have lost their meaning, that is exactly what his bill would permit.

The bill presents dangers not only to the press, but to everyone else. Section 1861, for example, gives startling authority to any "public servant," meaning any federal bureaucrat, in times of flood or riot. Section 1323, purporting to deal with witness tampering, is phrased so broadly that it might punish "any act with intent to improperly influence the conduct of a legislative inquiry." The civil rights section of the bill might well be construed to make federal crimes of virtually any misconduct involving speech or assembly.
The offending sections of the pending bill can be repaired. Provisions that are alarmingly broad can be carefully narrowed. With further thought, the sponsors can protect the people from despotism on the bench. This bill is very close to being a good bill, but it now suffers a fatal defect: It is not close enough.

$12,106 Pledge From Fieldcrest Employees

The employees at Fieldcrest Mills have completed their annual United Fund plant drive with a 9.8 per cent or roughly $1,000 increase over last year's effort.

General campaign chairman J. Melvin Moore said that employees at the Karastan Spinning and Karastan Worsteds plants contributed a total pledge of $12,106.78 this year.

Moore, division vice president and general manager of rug spinning mills, reported that out of 279 employees at Karastan Spinning, 249 or 89.2 per cent made a pledge to the United Fund. He added that 231 of the 279 employees pledged a day's pay or more.

According to the general chairman, 72 out of a total of 78 employees at Karastan Worsteds contributed to the United Fund this year and 70 of those employees pledged a day's pay or more. The percentage of employees making a pledge at the Worsteds Plant was 92.3 per cent.

Moore said that L. M. Skinner served as chairman of the Karastan Spinning drive while J. M. Strother chaired the solicitation effort at the Worsteds Plant.

The plant official attributed the success of the Fieldcrest drive to the "loyal employees who have supported the United Fund here for the past 17 years" and also to the payroll deduction plan at the plant that allows employees to contribute through a weekly deduction system.

Moore expressed his appreciation to the Fieldcrest employees for their participation in the United Fund program again this year.

Fieldcrest Mills is a participating member of the United Fund's Industrial Division, chaired this year by Bob Griffin, plant manager at Procter & Gamble.

Education Priority He Hailed By Phillips

Dr. Craig Phillips, N.C. State Superintendent of Public Instruction, spoke Tuesday night at a PTA banquet at Ayden Grammar School.

"It's refreshing that a governor is putting education first," said Phillips.

"Things will be happening at our schools."

He said that the aim of Gov. Hunt's new program emphasizing the importance of community schools is to use the school facilities 10 hours a day, six or seven days a week.

Phillips also stressed the new statewide reading program which will provide a trained reading aide for every 13 children in grades K-3.

"We have to find better ways to assure that every child can read."

He added that there are still too many students per teacher and cited the student-teacher ratio in grades 4-8 as 33 students per teacher.

Phillips praised the legislature for providing the funds for special education, including educable mentally retarded and gifted and talented, but added, "We have a long way to go, because we are only 60 percent of the way now."

Wreck Victims German Plane Is Seized

SPENCER, N.C. (AP) — All employees involved in the high-speed passenger train wreck which left 16 persons injured Saturday are scheduled to be questioned during an in-house investigation by Southern Railway officials.

However, engineer Sam Sharpe of Spencer has left on a planned vacation to Switzerland. Sharpe was at the helm of four locomotives pulling the Southern Crescent, the railroad's only passenger train, when the locomotives plowed into a row of freight cars and the impact derailed the Crescent.

According to C.T. Morrison of Atlanta, Southern's superintendent of rules, the passenger train had a clear track and was proceeding at about 50 miles an hour when it was diverted by a switch onto a parallel track occupied by the freight train.

ROME (AP) — A West German Lufthansa airliner with 92 persons aboard was hijacked during a flight from the Spanish island of Mallorca to Frankfurt today by a gunman and landed at the Rome international airport, police said.

The plane was directed to a secluded runway far from the airport buildings.

PUBLISHER RETIRING RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Tenant Bryan, 71, publisher of the Richmond Times-Dispatch and Richmond News Leader since 1944, announced today he will retire as publisher of the newspapers at the end of this year.

Police said it carried 85 passengers and seven crew members. In contact with the crew, police said they learned one of the passengers pulled a gun as the plane flew over the French Riviera and ordered the crew to fly to Rome.

immediate contact with the hijacker and did not know what he wanted.

Early speculation in West Germany linked the hijacking with the terrorist kidnaping of German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer more than a month ago. He is still missing.

Reconsider Ordinances On Bees And Rabbits

WILLIAMSTON — Things were buzzing and hopping in Williamston when the Board of Commissioners was confronted by earnest citizen pleas to reconsider ordinances governing bees and rabbits within the city limits.

First to approach the board were Haul Reddick and Morrison Myers, seeking a suspension of the bee ordinance approved in September that made within city bee hives illegal.

Riddick informed commissioners that his first attempt to comply with the ordinance; that of moving two bee hives from his back yard, had resulted in the loss of both.

Myers added the bees were of a race bred for their mild nature and that the likelihood of a person being stung by the bees on their two to three mile flights in search for nectar was highly unlikely.

When the board asked more pointed questions about the sting possibility of these bees, Myers told the board many people confuse hornet stings with bee stings. He also mentioned that many wild hives live in the wooded areas in and around town and that these bees too feed within city limits.

After a lengthy discussion, the board on a second motion suspended indefinitely the effective date of the bee ordinance.

The subject of rabbits followed the bee talks.

Town Attorney Dan Manning informed commissioners that the ordinance he had written prohibiting the raising of rabbits within city limits for commercial purposes had been questioned.

During ensuing discussions, other questions arose. One of these concerned a definition of how many rabbits could be kept as pets. Another was how many rabbits can be kept by a person without causing a health hazard.

When no definite decision could be reached, Manning agreed to rework the rabbit ordinance and also to look into some other town ordinances that might raise questions.

Ask Priority On Cooled Schools

WILLIAMSTON — Teachers in the Martin County Schools have asked the Martin County Board of Education to make air-conditioning in all the schools without air conditioning their number one priority.

At the board's October meeting, a delegation of nearly 40 teachers led by Williamston

High School teacher Sandra Beach, noted in a letter to the board that "We have suffered through the extreme heat since last April, and this has resulted in some of the students and teachers becoming ill and having to leave during the school day. We are asking that you revise any plans that you now have and that you make air-conditioning the number one priority for the coming school year."

The board agreed to study the request and to consider developing a plan to give the matter a high priority.

A low base bid of $49,875 made by James Paul Edwards, Inc. was approved for Phase I of the proposed work to be carried out on the athletic field at Roanoke High School. Other bidders were Eastern Construction Co. and W. E. Blackman.

Also approved was a $11,453 bid made by the National School and Industrial Corporation for a curtain for the Martin County Auditorium.

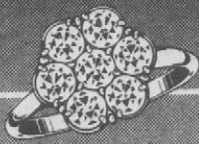

Phones Idled As Cable Was Cut

About 350 telephone on "College Hill" on the East Carolina University campus were put out of order Tuesday when a phone cable was accidentally cut by a Greenville Utilities gas crew.

Carolina Telephone Area Manager Don Collier said the phone company regrets the inconvenience to its customers. Service was restored about 6 p. m., he said.

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If a federal agency has its way, overweight Americans may find some of the pills they depend on to lose weight in short supply.

The Food and Drug Administration wants to curb production of amphetamines, the habit-forming "pep pills" that it says do little to curb hungry appetites.

"We intend to make them less available at the drug store for use in obesity control," FDA spokesman Jack Walden said Wednesday, adding that the focus will be on "housewife addiction."

"Our hope is they won't be available at the drug store for that purpose at all."

As part of its effort, the FDA has asked the Justice Department to use its authority to curb production.
He said more effective and less habit forming weight-control drugs are now available.
The FDA has not asked the Justice Department for an outright ban on amphetamines, Walden said, because limited quantities are needed to treat hyperactivity and narcolepsy, a rare condition of uncontrolled sleepiness.

The agency is holding a public hearing Dec. 2 on a proposal, expected to become final by spring, to ban manufacturers from labeling or advertising the drugs for weight control.

Walden said past FDA controls on amphetamine production were largely responsible for the number of prescriptions falling from 25 million in 1965 to five million in 1976.
But, he added, "the drug companies had been producing all they could sell."

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the prospective effects of rising interest rates kept the stock market in retreat today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen 16.28 points in the last two sessions to a 22-month low, lost another 3.03 to 820.95 by noon today.

Declines out-numbered advances by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Brokers noted fears that short term interest rates might have risen to the point of encouraging what Wall Street calls "disintermediation"—a flow of money out of stocks, bonds and savings accounts into such short term interest-bearing vehicles as Treasury bills.

Rates on 30-day Treasury bills have climbed well above 6 percent in the wake of recent credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve. Sony Corp. topped the active list, up 1/4 at 8. A 479,700-share block traded at that price. The NYSE's composite index dropped .12 to 51.45. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .35 at 116.13.

Volume on the Big Board reached 10.46 million shares by noon today.

Nearly An Inch Of Rain Here

Today's rainfall of almost an inch has made both farmers and foresters happy.

According to Buddy Hudson, of the Greenville Utilities Commission, the rainfall since mid-June has been .97 inches.

"The rainfall in terms of small grains can be helpful. It will help germination," said Agricultural Extension agent Leroy James. "It'll do more to help the small grains than anything else," he added.

James noted that the rain did not come in time to benefit the peanut crop, but that it is good for soybeans which are still germinating.

Mark Webb, county ranger for the N.C. Forestry Service said that the rainfall may delay the fall fire season.

"It's definitely going to help us out," he said.

Webb added that the fire season is not due for five another two weeks, but this may put it off a while longer.

He said that the rain was also beneficial due to the unusually dry summer that the area suffered.

"We usually have one or two fires, but this summer we had 10-12."

The Tar River level on the National Weather Gauge was 4.4 feet this morning. The 8 a.m. temperature reading was 48 degrees, with an expected high of 57 degrees and an expected low of 40 degrees.

Gradual Change Among Inmates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said racial segregation in the state's prison system "used to be the case to some extent, but that is being changed." He said that Corrections Secretary Amos Reed "is moving on it very strongly."

"If you mix inmates up too rapidly, without time to adjust, or what have you, you could have some behavioral problems within the prisons. I think everybody who's sensitive would understand why that is," Hunt said Wednesday.

Hunt also commented that segregation cannot be allowed. "We must obey the law of the land in that area," he said. "We're going to do that."

Rampants Seek To Snap League String

Defensive Back Mike Shank

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School will hold its Homecoming celebrations Friday night, and Coach Dave Bumgarner would love for his Rampants to break a streak of six straight Division I losses before the evening ends.

It's been that long since Rose came away with a win in the league. The last time was against Northeastern in the final game of the season in 1975. All last year, the Rampants failed to win in the conference, and in their only game this year, the Rampants bowed, 17-7, to Rocky Mount, the preseason pick in the league.

Bertie, however, will present problems to the Rampants, bringing in a strong offensive unit that scored 22 points in a losing effort against Wilson last week.

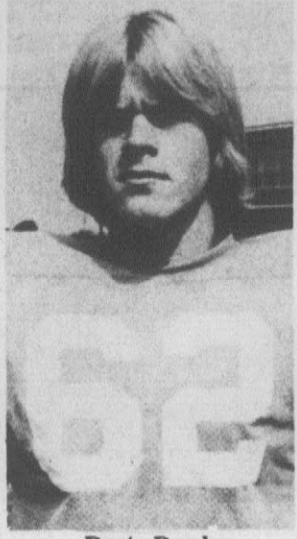

"The game is crucial for us," Bumgarner said. "But then, all the rest of them are if we are to get one of the two berths the conference has in the post-season playoffs."

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

Against Rocky Mount last week, Bumgarner felt that Rose played as well as it could on defense, but failed to get the offense moving.

"We just didn't move the ball or control it, and we had to do that to have a chance to win against a team like Rocky Mount," the coach said. "We had people open all night and couldn't get the ball to them. We should have scored at least once more, either a touchdown or a field goal, but that fumble stopped us."

The fumble, coupled with another and four interceptions, kept the Rampants from being able to move the ball with regularity.

"Their defense had a lot to do with their winning, but our poor play on offense didn't help us at all. On a couple of occasions, we picked the wrong play, and then then turnovers killed us."

Bumgarner was asked about the officiating in the game, but said that generally he had no gripes. "There were two things that could have meant something but I don't think they beat us. I thought Joey (Matheis) took a lot of cheap shots, and I think that throw they called a forward pass was a lateral that we recovered. The films tend to show both of our protests were right."

Bertie has the reputation of being a club that can move the ball. They bring a 4-2 record into the contest, having lost only to strong Ahsokie, 20-6, and fell to Wilson, 31-22. They also lost to Williamston, 12-6, but that game was later forfeited to Bertie because of the use of an ineligible player.

The Falcons downed Roanoke, 16-8; Edenton, 25-12; and

Jamie Adams

Plymouth, 14-0.

"I saw them play Wilson, and they move the ball as well as anyone we've played. They operate out of the wishbone, and they do an outstanding job. They got behind against Wilson, but they never gave up. They were still in there fighting for a score right at the end," Bumgarner said.

"They are not as big and strong as some of the teams we play, but they still have good size. It will be a tough game for us. We've got to get some breaks, control the ball and not make mistakes."

Calvin Balance leads the offense at fullback, while Jack Curlings, the All-Conference quarterback last season, returns to his position. He likes to give off to the fullback but will also keep it on the option. D.D. Hogard is the primary halfback carrier.

On defense, the Falcons have a lot of size. "Wilson gave them problems running the ball outside, but I expect that they'll have worked on this during the week," Bumgarner said.

The Rampants will work on trying to improve on execution this week. "We played well, and except for the turnovers, I think we had very few breakdowns against Rocky Mount.

"But we've got to win now if we hope to have any chance for post-season play. It's as simple as that," Bumgarner said.

NEW YORK (AP) — "These people are animals," Mike Garman, relief pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said of the unruly Yankee Stadium crowd after the Dodgers had leveled the World Series at a game apiece with a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday night.

"I hope we can win the next three, so I won't have to come back to this place. We are sitting ducks out there. I'll tell you the truth — I was scared to death," Garman added.

The game came close to turning into a fan uprising in the latter innings with a half-dozen spectators at various times running onto the field and being chased by security officers.

A smoke bomb, which trailed streams of green smoke, was tossed into right-center field near the 385-foot mark, obscuring outfielders from the crowd of 56,691.

Outfielder Reggie Smith of the Dodgers was struck on the head by a hard rubber ball as the game ended, and he went to the locker room complaining of "spasms down my neck and back."

"They were throwing apples, beer cans, rubber balls and anything they could get their hands on," Smith said. "It was ridiculous."

Yankee Stadium security officers announced that nine people had been arrested for "criminal trespass," an offense which carries a maximum fine of $100.

The extra-curricular show began midway in the seventh inning when a young man leaped from the stands near the Dodgers dugout and made a perfect hook slide into home plate. He was immediately pounced upon by four policemen and led from the stadium.

In the later innings, one spectator ran to center field and got an autograph from Mickey Rivers of the Yankees. Another rushed out and shook hands with right fielder Reggie Jackson. A third leaped over the center field barrier and headed for the diamond, but was tackled by two policemen — an effort that would have pleased any coach in the National Football League.

While these shenanigans were going on, ABC discreetly turned its cameras away from the ugly scene — a long-time television and sports policy to discourage exhibitionism. The cameras zoomed in on Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, sitting next to the Yankees dugout. He didn't look happy.

Dye Wants Pirates To Get Excited About It

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Pat Dye has a mission. He wants his team to realize something, and he's doing his best to get it across to the players.

"Maybe I'm the only one that's excited about this team," he said yesterday at his weekly press conference. "I don't know what the team is thinking now, but I don't think they realize what they've already done or what they can do from here on in."

He added that the players didn't seem to be as excited about football as they should be at this point of the season. "They do what ever we ask willingly. But we're having to push and pull too much on the practice field.

"This is not like other winning teams I've been associated with. Maybe it's the mid-season blahs," the coach added.

Dye said that when the offense and defense start moving like he wants them too that the coaches will slack off in practice. "But I have a guilty conscience right now about slacking off because I don't think we're getting the concentration and intensity on the practice field that we should be getting. I want them to go at it like they were shoo-nuff something special."

The coach said he realized that the team would not be fully mentally sharp for every game. "I just wish our work habits were better. We may be good enough to win the next five games, but we won't realize our potential like we're going."

Dye said that possibly the coaching staff hasn't done a good job in letting the team know of the national goals that can be obtained. "North Texas State is ranked this week, and I don't see any reason why we can't be. The players haven't realized what it can mean down the road to them by finishing on a high note, by jumping out and challenging folks and ending up among the top 20-25 teams in the country and having a chance to go to a bowl game. It would mean a lot to finish on this kind of note."

"The kids should realize this and be willing to get to work and not make the coaches force everything on them."

Dye added that it "tickles him to death" to see Duke and State winning like they are. "A lot of people say we couldn't beat them now, but I'm ready anytime. In my own mind, I thought we could beat South Carolina. And I think if we played them 100 more times that they wouldn't be able to stop our offense like they did. But they did THAT day."

Dye said the Pirates are still having some problems on offense. "We're not getting the ball to our halfbacks nearly enough. We haven't really put it all together since the Appalachian State game last year. But we've never had what we've had now (in talent) and I don't want us to lose our opportunities."

Dye felt the Pirates played better against Southern Illinois, but still not as well as they could. "We did play a lot of people and get a chance to see what some of Dye For Mayor?

Pat Dye was asked one surprise question at his news conference yesterday: "When will you formally announce your political career?"

Dye looked shocked, and asked, "What are you talking about?"

He was informed that he ran third in the Tuesday mayoral race in Greenville, collecting 11 write-in votes.

Dye just grinned and said, "How about?"

One listener suggested that electing Dye mayor might be one way to keep him in Greenville.

Homer Parade Smother Yankees, 6-1

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was an explosive combination that should protect New York City from power blackouts for a long time.

Catfish Hunter, a home run pitcher, was throwing big, hanging baseballs to the Los Angeles Dodgers, home run hitters, and the results were predictably powerful — particularly since Hunter hadn't pitched since Sept. 10.

The Dodgers walloped four homers, three off Hunter in the first 21-3 innings, and blasted the New York Yankees 6-1 Wednesday night, evening the 1977 World Series at one game apiece.

The ninth matchup of these historic baseball rivals now shifts across the country to Los Angeles for Game 3 Friday night, with Dodger left-hander Tommy John, a 20-game winner, hooking up with big Mike Lorrez, a right-hander with 17 victories in the regular season.

Meanwhile, Wednesday night, the Yankees fell meekly to right-hander Burt Hooton's baffling knuckle-curves with just five hits, saving their best hitting for the locker room, as has been their custom for much of their wacky, but winning season.

"What's he doing starting Catfish?" wondered Reggie Jackson, second guessing his manager, Billy Martin. "He hasn't pitched since Sept. 10."

"This is the World Series," Jackson said, lacing his remarks with a more-than-occasional epithet. "It's not fair to the Cat and it's not fair to us."

The Dodgers, lambs in the locker room, were lions on the field, as has been their custom all season, when they belted a National League-leading 191 homers. Four Dodgers — Reggie Smith, Ron Cey, Steve Garvey, and Dusty Baker — smashed 30 or more homers, the first time that has been accomplished in the major leagues.

"This team did something Murderer's Row and the great Red Sox teams with Bobby Doerr, Vern Stephens and Ted Williams couldn't do," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "They consistently hit with power, and that's what they did tonight."

"Our guys are capable of hitting them out of the Grand Canyon."

Martin agreed with that assessment. "There were no cheap homers," said the fiery Yankee skipper. "They hit 'em a long way."

The first one that went the distance came off the bat of Ron Cey, who slugged 30 homers in the regular season. After Hunter got the game's first two batters on fly balls, Smith doubled and Cey laced Hunter's two-strike pitch over the left field wall.

"It was a mistake on his part," said Cey, who carried the Dodgers' to their early-season surge, batting .425 with nine homers and 29 runs-batted-in during April. "It was a breaking ball and he didn't get away with it. I challenged Death Valley again and won this time. Last night I tried twice and lost."

Hunter, sidelined the past 32 days with an urological disorder after sporadic shoulder aches all season, got a pair of groundball outs to open the second before throwing a hanging curve to Steve Yeager.

"A hanging curve around the eyes is the easiest pitch to hit out," said Yeager, who launched the pitch over the left field wall. "Our ball club is very explosive. The long ball threat is always there, especially the heart of the lineup."

Yeager, the No. 8 batter, had 16 homers, half the total of Reggie Smith, the third stick in the Dodgers' potent lineup. After Bill Russell singled in the third, Smith pounded a low fastball over the right field fence. It was Smith's third World Series homer. He hit two in 1967, when he was with the Red Sox, one coming on the day when Boston slammed four homers — the last time that had been accomplished in the Series.

"These are the things we've been doing all year round," said Smith. "Hunter might think it was a good pitch for him, but it was a good pitch for me. I'm a low ball hitter."

Smith's smash finished Hunter, who allowed 29 homers in 1431-3 innings in the regular season, a generous rate of one every 4½ innings.

"That was the best he's thrown since Opening Day," said Martin, referring to Hunter's velocity, not his control. "I would definitely use him again."

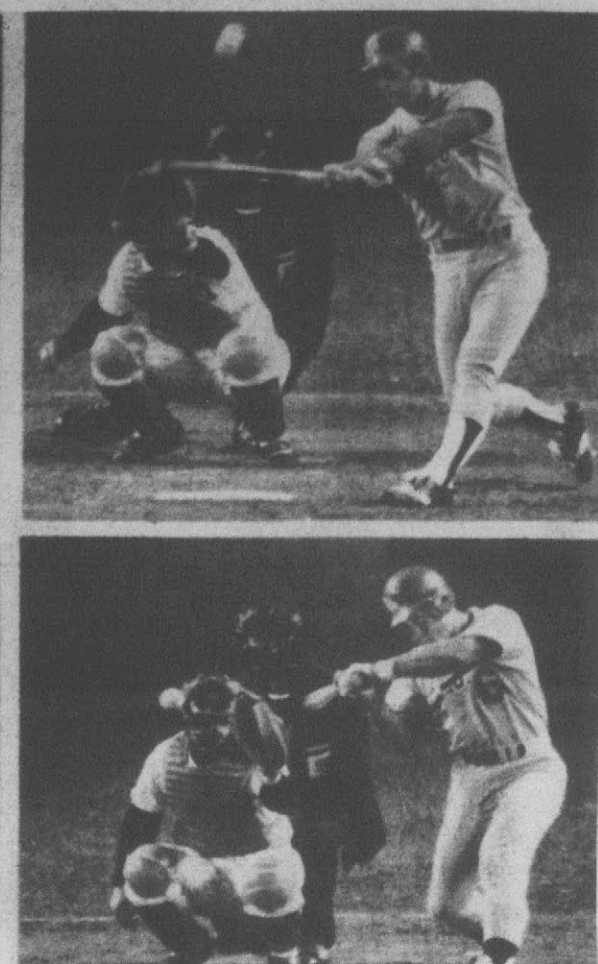

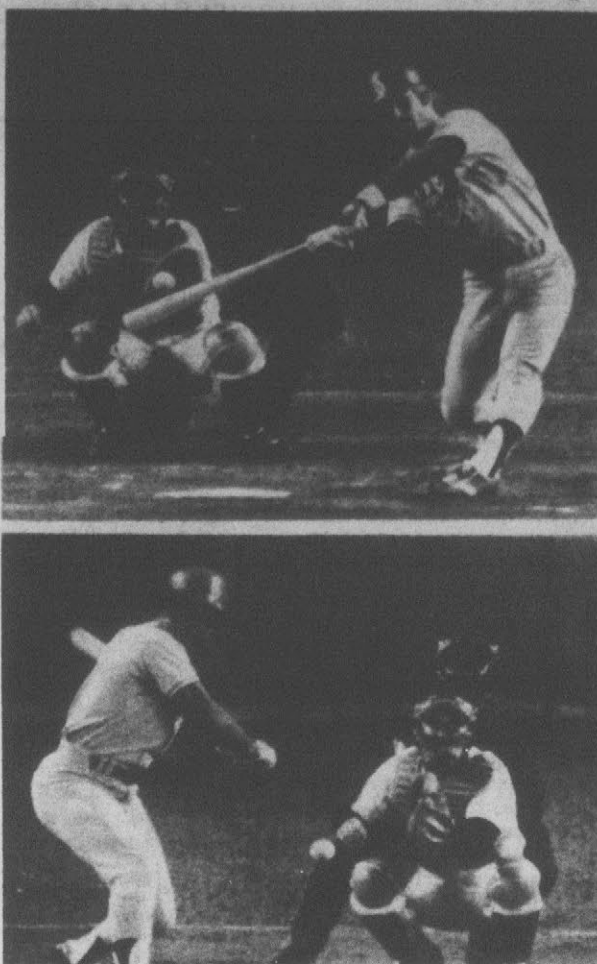

Hunter, a control pitcher, said the long layoff was like starting from scratch.

It was like spring training for me," said the Yankees' first expensive free agent. "I'm not tired. I didn't pitch very long."

Hooton, of course, lasted a long time, nine innings, and he looked like he could have controlled the Yankees for several more turns, picking up eight strikeouts and walking just one batter.

"I feel I pitched my normal game," said Hooton, who admitted losing his cool over some umpire calls in the NL playoffs last Friday, when he walked four straight batters. "I kept my head. Nothing bothered me."

Certainly not the Yankees' left-handed power hitters, who continued to have their post-season problems and have yet to collect an extra base hit. Jackson, Chris Chambliss and Graig Nettles each have one hit in the series. Mickey Rivers, New York's lefty leadoff hitter, is hitless in 10 at-bats.

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY, which seems to take particular delight in upsetting the University of North Carolina, appeared capable of pulling off another of those shockers for most of last Saturday afternoon in Chapel Hill.

But the Demon Deacons, who led 3-0 for half of the game, were unable to take advantage of four Tar Heel turnovers in the first half and, when the tables were turned and Wake was fumbling away the football, Carolina was ready to capitalize.

The Tar Heels had 148 yards in total offense in the first half, 86 from the running of freshman tailback Amos Lawrence, but were unable to put any points on the scoreboard due to two fumbles and two interceptions.

Of the five Carolina possessions in the first half, only the initial one didn't end with a turnover and the Heels were forced to punt without a first down on that one.

UNC gave Wake Forest the football on the Wake six, 48, 42 and 19 in the first two periods of play, but the Deacons were thwarted on all their drives, including a missed field goal.

THE TEMPO QUICKLY changed in the second half, however, as the Tar Heels started off the third period with a goal line stand. Wake running back James McDougald was stopped inches short of a first down on a dive play at the Tar Heel four.

Still, the UNC offense sputtered, but the defense came through minutes later as Alan Caldwell snatched a Deacon fumble from midair, after Bernie Menapace had hit Ronchie Johnson, and returned it 72 yards to give the Heels the lead.

Four minutes later, the UNC defense forced another fumble that led to a Tom Biddle field goal and, on the ensuing kickoff, Carolina recovered yet another loose ball on the Wake Forest 18. One play later, Billy Johnson burst over the right side, dragging half the Deacon defense into the end zone to give the Tar Heels a 17-3 lead.

FORMER ROSE HIGH running back Doug Paschal added the icing on the cake in the final quarter as he went four yards up the middle for the final Tar Heel touchdown.

Paschal, back at tailback after a few games at fullback, had what was probably his best game in his second season with UNC. He carried the ball nine times for a net 30 yards, scored his first Tar Heel touchdown and had two tackles on the punting team.

Carolina head coach Bill Dooley mentioned Paschal in his post-game press conference, saying the 6-2½, 205-pound sophomore ran well. He added that Paschal would probably stay at tailback for the rest of the season.

Pat Dye For Mayor?

Popularity naturally follows success, especially in the coaching field. So it should really come as no surprise that in Tuesday's municipal elections some voters looked to whom they felt was the best leader in town in casting their ballots for mayor.

In the unofficial totals compiled by The Daily Reflector, East Carolina football coach Pat Dye, whose Pirates sport a 5-1 record, received 11 write-in votes for mayor of Greenville.

Uneasy Year For Catfish

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Is Catfish Hunter through?

It was a question that had to be raised after the once-brilliant pitcher was pounded for three booming homers and five runs in just 2 1-3 innings Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers trounced the New York Yankees 6-1 and evened the World Series at one game apiece.

"Do you think I might think about that sometimes?" Hunter wondered after his first outing in more than a month turned into an embarrassing shelling. Manager Billy Martin mercifully lifted him after Ron Cey's two-run homer in the first inning, Steve Yeager's solo shot in the second and Reggie Smith's two-run blast into the center field bleachers gave the Dodgers a 5-0 lead in the third.

"Once in a while I think that this season might be the end, but my wife talks me out of it. During the off-season I'm not gonna worry about next year; I'm just gonna worry about hunting deer. I hope I don't have a bad year doing that."

Hunter's 1977 numbers were a 9-9 won-lost record, 4.71 earned run average and a whopping 29 home runs — not including Wednesday night's trio — in just 143 1-3 innings. His season was interrupted by a spell on the disabled list when he caught a line drive on his foot during an impressive opening-day performance. He was sidelined the last month by what was thought to be a hernia but later was diagnosed to be a urinary tract infection.

"When I think about being through, I only think about farming," said Hunter, a farm boy from Hertford, N.C. "I think about enjoying farming as much as playing baseball. My dad used to tell me to get an education because there's no money in farming."

"I didn't get an education. I made my money in baseball. And when I'm through, I'll go back to the farm just like him."

Even if Hunter can become an effective pitcher again next season, he says he will pack it in when his five-year, $3.5 million free agent contract runs out in 1979.

If this was Hunter's swan song, he went out with tons of class, patiently answering waves of questions from hordes of newsmen. He even managed to joke, as he usually does, about some of the long shots hit off him.

"How did you throw?" was the first question.

"Right-handed," was the reply, a faint smile tracing Hunter's lips. "I let the people back home know I can still give up home runs."

Hunter, winner of 210 regular-season games, was sacrificed to give the Yankees' ailing pitching staff some much-needed rest.

"I thought I was throwing good while I was warming up," he said, "but when I got out on the mound it was just like spring training."

Hunter was asked if he minded being used as a sacrificial lamb.

"The main thing, as the saying goes," he replied, "is that the sun doesn't shine on the same dog all the time. And it didn't this year. When you have a bad year it just seems to keep going on."

Ruth Delivered

CHICAGO (UPI) — Babe Ruth, then 38, was the batting hero of baseball's first All-Star game played at Chicago's Comiskey Park July 6, 1933, hitting a two-run homer in the third inning to provide the margin in a 4-2 victory for the American League.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference basketball said goodbye to seven first-round pro draft picks last year, but the thinned-out ranks of ACC stars will be ably reinforced by a promising crop of freshmen.

Returning players and coaches will soon get a chance to see what the new talent can do. The NCAA-prescribed first practice day is Saturday, and Clemson will get the jump on the competition with a 12:01 a.m. scrimmage.

North Carolina State must work 10 new faces into the team, including standouts Kenny Matthews, 6-3, Art Jones, 6-7, and Craig Watts, 6-11.

Clemson and Duke will each be welcoming five new men. The Tigers will have John Campbell, 6-9, and Billy Williams, 6-4. The Blue Devils welcome highly touted Eugene Banks, 6-7, and Bob Bender, 6-2.

Virginia will be getting Jeff Lamp, 6-5, and Tommy Hicks, 6-2, along with two other new faces, and Wake Forest will also have four new men, including Fran McCaffery, 6-4, Pete Budko, 6-8, and Al Wood, 6-6, are the new ones to watch for North Carolina. Maryland has great expectations of Albert King, 6-7, and Greg Manning, 6-2.

The freshmen will have plenty of competition. Rod Griffin will still be around for Wake Forest, Phil Ford and Mike O'Koren will return for the Tar Heels, Mike Gminski and Jim Spanarkel at Duke, Stan Rome at Clemson, Jo Jo Hunter for Maryland, Hawkeye Whitney and Clyde Austin for N.C. State and Mark Iavaroni at Virginia.

Dye Wants...

our young people could do."

While the offense was not as consistent as Dye would like for it to be, Dye was happy with the 300 yards rushing. "We're not as physical as I think we can be on offense. I still believe we can be an awesome team offensively, but we're not getting there. The 300 yards was good, but for just, just pretty good. We can do better. We probably should have run inside more, and we've got to get the ball to the halfbacks more. Our quarterbacks are carrying the ball too much."

Dye praised Southern Illinois defense as being second to VMI's in strength.

"But it was our kicking game that gave us the big play; (Gerald) Hall's two big punt returns, (Willie) Hawkins' kickoff return, and (Steve) Hale's run on the fake punt. That gave us good field position and helped us to win by the margin we won by. It was only late in the game that we got to the point where we could move the ball like we wanted to."

The Pirates will be seeking their sixth win in seven games, along with guaranteeing their sixth straight winning year, against the Richmond Spiders, Saturday at 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

NEW YORK (AP) — Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear when they were hollering "Sooy, Pig" for Frank Broyles at Arkansas and when Darrell Royal at Texas liked to "dance with who bring us."

Actually, that was as recently as last year. But a funny thing happened. Royal and Broyles decided to announce their retirements at the same time and it just so happened that ABC-TV decided to air the game as the regular-season finale.

The tears and the memories were flowing like beer as Darrell went out with a 29-12 whipping of his old golfing buddy.

Well, Texas and Arkansas tangle again Saturday in Fayetteville, Ark., but this time Darrell and Frank will be upstairs in the cheap seats as the respective athletic directors.

Marching the sidelines for Arkansas will be Lou Holtz, the noted amateur magician whose sleight-of-hand tricks flopped with the New York Jets. On the Texas side will be Fred Akers, who mostly just wins football games.

ABC again is showing this game nationally but this time because of the records — both teams are 4-0 — rather than the coaches.

Show the Longhorns the old Indian rope trick, Lou ... Arkansas 21-20.

That choice pick comes to you straight from the same corner who thrilled you last week with a record of 45 right, 25 wrong and two ties for a .643 percentage. For the season, it's 256-100-7-.719. Only the fact that two of the three Upset Specials — Washington State over California and Dartmouth over Yale — came through prevented the week from being a complete embarrassment.

Wisconsin at Michigan: Wisconsin is 5-0 for the first time since 1921. The gag is that Wisconsin has been undefeated, untied and unimpressive. Scratch undefeated ... Michigan 28-14.

Kentucky at Louisiana State: Not much to choose between these two Southeastern Conference contenders — actually Kentucky is on probation — so let's go with the home team ... LSU 24-17.

Tennessee at Alabama: Way back at the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1, Bear Bryant put his arm around Johnny Majors — John was at Pitt then but en route to Tennessee — and mumbled, "Welcome to the SEC, son." This makes it official ... Alabama 31-14.

Ohio State at Iowa: A couple of years ago, Woody Hayes was on the horn at Iowa Coach Bob Cummings' media luncheon. "We will be there Saturday," Woody snapped and hung up. Woody will be there again Saturday, Bob ... Ohio State 29-14.

Oregon at Southern California: USC has a date in South Bend next week, which means the Trojans will be looking past Oregon. Lucky for Oregon ... Southern Cal 49-6.

Notre Dame vs. Army at East Rutherford, N.J.: Notre Dame has a date with Southern Cal in South Bend next week, which means the Irish will be looking past Army. Unfortunately, Notre Dame isn't good enough to look past anybody. Upset Special of the Week ... Army 24-21.

Oklahoma at Missouri: A chance for the Sooners to rebound from their disastrous Red River rumble with Texas and prove that the Big Eight isn't really Colorado and the Seven Dwarfs ... Oklahoma 31-17.

Iowa State at Nebraska: The Big Eight race is heating up. Iowa State hits the road to play Nebraska and Oklahoma while Nebraska's next three opponents are ISU, Colorado and Oklahoma ... Nebraska 27-10.

Colorado at Kansas: Can that funny looking Jayhawk really be much of a match for a stampeding Buffalo? Close but no cigar ... Colorado 24-17.

Penn State at Syracuse: Thanks to that loss to Kentucky, Penn State might have to settle for the Orangemen rather than the Orange Bowl ... Penn State 35-14.

Texas A&M at Baylor: The Aggies' first outing since that embarrassing 4-13 Aggie joke at Michigan ... Texas A&M 27-10.

Hooten's Pitch Did The Trick

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Burton Hooten calls it his "knuckle-curve" and throws it the old fashioned way, with his knuckles hard on the baseball's seams.

The New York Yankees have other names for it, but whatever you call it, it's the reason that the Los Angeles Dodgers are heading home with a split in the first two games of the World Series.

The blond right-hander with the unique pitch pulled the Dodgers even with the Yankees Wednesday night, taming the hard-hitting New Yorkers with a conclusive five-hit, 6-1 decision.

"My knuckle-curve was my out pitch tonight," the right-hander said. "I used it in all the tough situations, when the Yankees had men on base in the early innings.

"I started the game with the knuckle-curve, had good control of it, and threw quite a few of them in the first four. I went to my fastballs in the later innings when I needed them, but I relied a lot on my knuckle tonight."

Hooten's special pitch is a product of his childhood days, when he was a big fan of Hoyt Wilhelm, the knuckleball king.

"When I was 14 years old, playing in the pony league, I had seen Hoyt Wilhelm pitch on TV," Hooten remembers. "I started experimenting putting my knuckles on the ball. Most knuckleball pitchers throw it off the tips of their fingers. I still throw it with the knuckles on the seams. It puts forward spin on the ball and makes it break down."

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda appreciated the dancing pitch about as much as anyone did in Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

"He had a nasty knuckle-curve tonight and a few of those Yankees went after it like they'd never seen one before — and, of course, they hadn't," said Lasorda. "It's a very unusual pitch."

He Loves To Hit 'Em

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — "I had rather knock down a linebacker than score a touchdown and that's the honest to God truth," says Duke fullback Ned Gonet, who is equipped to do either.

"I love to hit 'em. I don't really go out to hurt 'em, but if they get hurt, that's a part of the game. Tough luck, I say."

Gonet can't stop this kind of talk once he gets going. "I've had my bell rung many times and I love dishing it out and seeing their bells chime. There's nothing like seeing a linebacker looking for the ball and you come up on his blind side and cold-cock him."

Ouch.

"Boy, that's what it's all about."

No one ever admitted it. "Look, you've got to be a little crazy to play this game to begin with and I guess I qualify as much as anybody."

No argument there. "I just love football. You've got to have a little killer instinct in you if you play this game, and I've got it."

Gonet starts the day each morning by saying "I hate linebackers." He ends the day the same way.

"Before I fall to sleep at night, the last thought I have is knocking one down."

Gonet doesn't even like Duke's linebackers.

"You've got to be psyched up to play this game," he says. "You've got to be mean and that's the way I like it. Hell, I want to put Duke back where it should be in football and you've got to develop the attitude."

Gonet has developed the attitude.

BUFFALO (AP) — O.J. Simpson is second cousin to retired baseball star Ernie Banks, a relationship in which he sees some irony.

Noting Banks played 19 seasons for the Chicago Cubs and never got in a World Series, Simpson grinned and said, "I guess it just runs in the family, huh?"

In eight-plus seasons, Simpson's Buffalo Bills are 40-74-2, and are currently saddled with a 14-game losing streak. They seem light years away from making the Super Bowl, Simpson's greatest goal as a player.

This summer a frustrated Simpson verbally blasted the Bills management for its failure to build a contender. More recently he said, "I can't be second-guessing Ralph (Bills owner Ralph Wilson)."

But then he added, "After last season I thought it was apparent that some changes needed to be made. But they didn't make any. Instead they let two players (offensive linemen Donnie Green and Mike Montier) who had helped the team go."

Simpson also pointed out that several former Bills, such as wide receivers Ahmad Rashad and J.D. Hill, are now mainstays on other teams.

"They never took the time to develop players here. If a player didn't look good at first, he was gone. You have to give players time. Look at New England. They've got basically the same players now that they had three years ago when we were running all over them."

Simpson believes the Bills are currently building a potential winner under coach Jim Ringo, but he said, "I'm not going to see it. It takes time to build a young team like this."

The club failed to work out a requested trade last year that would have sent Simpson to a West Coast team, a contender, he hoped. The Los Angeles Rams actively pursued Simpson but felt Wilson's asking price (reportedly defensive end Jack Youngblood, back Lawrence McCutcheon, tackle Mike Fanning and two top draft choices) was too high.

Simpson now is certain he will end his career in Buffalo.

"It's never even crossed my mind that I might be traded after this season. I'm not going to ask for it."

"I thought it would be wise for the team to trade me for some players to build with, but I've got no hard feelings. I'm a team man all the way," he said.

Chicod In Victory

CHICOD — Chicod Junior High School captured a 2-1 victory over Ayden yesterday in volleyball.

Ayden won the opening game, 15-3, but Chicod, behind nine straight serves by JoLyn Hardee, won the second, 15-8. Chicod then took the third game and the match, 15-7.

The win left Chicod with a 1-1 record in the Pitt County Junior High League.

The Chicod "B" team also won, 2-0.

When Simpson asked to be traded, he cited as one reason his wife Marquie's aversion to living in Buffalo. That and earlier deprecatory remarks didn't sit well with residents of the city.

"I think most of those things were grossly misinterpreted. I'm from the West Coast, and that's where my interests are. I don't have anything against Buffalo. I just have other preferences," he said.

Many fans suspect Simpson of having an overinflated ego, a charge refuted by those who work with him behind-the-scenes.

Simpson thinks "it will take a miracle" for him to play in a Super Bowl now, but takes consolation in others' high esteem for him.

Youth Held In Slaying Of Girls

By KATHY SYLVESTER
Associated Press Writer

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — was a Brownie Scout with the Stuart Kreiner's little sister three murdered neighbor girls.

CHARGED IN TRIPLE SLAYING — Stuart Kreiner, age 16, leaves Anne Arundel County Police Station after he was charged with first degree murder in connection with the stabbing deaths of three young girls who lived in Southgate, Md. (AP Laserphoto)

His mother helped cook for the grieving parents. Police, who had suspected the killer lived nearby, have charged the 16-year-old Kreiner with the stabbing deaths.

Kreiner was to be arraigned today in Harundale District Court on first degree murder charges. Authorities said they proposed prosecution as an adult.

Kreiner, tall, slightly built and a junior at Martin Spaulding High School in nearby Severn, was arrested Wednesday for the murders of 10-year-old Deborah Anne Hogan, her sister Theresa, 8, and their playmate, Ann Marie Brzeszkiewicz, also 8.

The girls, who were to be buried together today, were found stabbed to death Monday morning in a shallow creek near their homes in this Baltimore suburb.

Authorities, who would not disclose whether they had a motive for the killings, said two of the girls had been stabbed through their parkas at least 40 times each.

Although police had said earlier that they suspected the killer was someone in the victims' Southgate neighborhood, news of young Kreiner's arrest shocked neighbors.

"I knew they were looking for someone in the neighborhood, but I never dreamed it could be Stu," said C.G. Morningstar, who lives across the street from the Kreiner family.

"He's a good kid," said Morningstar. "He works hard and doesn't run around like some teen-agers. He used to cut our grass. I don't have a son, but if I had one, Stu's the kind I would pick out."

Robert Wilkes, a next-door neighbor of Ed and Leona Kreiner, said his family had known the Kreiners since 1965, when they lived near each other in Falls Church, Va. Until recently, the elder Kreiner was director of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, a state labor union.

"Our kids grew up together," said Wilkes. "Ed was always strict with his children. You'd never see them standing out on a corner after dark like other kids. Stuart just rode his bike up and down the street."

The Kreiners have two other children, a son in college and a 9-year-old daughter, Karen, who was in the same Brownie troop with the victims. Mrs. Kreiner cooked meals for the stricken families on Monday. Police said later that the Kreiners had cooperated in the murder investigation, but no details were given.

The case was "a tragedy for both the families of the victims and the family of the defendant," said deputy police chief George Wellham.

sometimes taunted. "He was different than other kids. There's always somebody on the street that kids like to pick on," said one of several boys who asked not to be identified, "and around here it was Stu. Kids used to yell at him when he rode past on his bike."

Tobacco Crop Forecast Shows Small Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's tobacco crop forecast Wednesday showed a 3 per cent increase from the prospects a month ago. But at 1.89 billion pounds, the crop would be 11 per cent smaller than last year.

Based on Oct. 1 field conditions, the Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Board kept its estimate of burley tobacco production at 639 million pounds, or 6 per cent below 1976, and raised its estimate of the flue-cured tobacco crop to more than 1.09 billion pounds.

The projected flue-cured tobacco production is still 219 million pounds, or 17 per cent, below last season.

At the time of the surveys, the harvest was running about two weeks late, the board's report added.

Average yields of 1,960 pounds an acre are estimated for all types of tobacco, compared with 2,045 pounds last year. Only 965,100 acres were being harvested for 1977, compared with more than 1.04 million last year, the board said.

Flue-cured and burley tobaccos are the leading types in demand for cigarettes and for exports of both leaf and products, especially to Europe and the oil-exporting countries of the Middle East.

A 19.7 million pound crop is estimated for the dark air-cured varieties, 25 per cent more than last season but slightly less than expected a month ago.

Reports for cigar fillers, binders and wrappers indicated a harvest of 57.4 million pounds, compared with 56.6 million in 1976.

Southern Maryland is expected to produce 29.9 million pounds of tobacco, the same as last year.

The revised estimates for flue-cured production, by states and belts and compared with 1976, were:

—Type 11: North Carolina, 256 million pounds indicated this year compared to 338.5 million pounds last year; Virginia, 104.3 million and 124.6 million.

—Type 12: Eastern North Carolina, 345.6 million and 434.4 million.

—Type 13: North Carolina, 95.2 million and 110.2 million; South Carolina, 139.7 million and 153.4 million.

—Type 14, Georgia-Florida Belt: Alabama, 633,000 and 1.2 million; Florida, 25 million and 30.2 million; Georgia, 130.7 million and 123.8 million.

Plan Testing For Motorcycle Riders

WILLIAMSTON — At its October meeting, Arundel County Commissioners established a committee to find a suitable area for the testing of motorcycle riders.

The three member committee has been charged with finding a paved area near the courthouse to be used for new testing procedures due to go into effect January 1, 1978 for motorcycle riders.

On a suggestion that the parking lot adjacent to the courthouse be utilized for this purpose, some commissioners disagreed, saying the noise factor would create disturbances.

In other actions, the commissioners:

— Agreed to have the state jail inspector look into a request from the State Department of Human Resources that smoke detectors be installed in the Martin County Jail;

— Informed Marguerite Abeyounis of the Department of Administration that the board would select 12 county people to serve on a North Carolina Council on the Status of Women; and — Approved the construction of a water line on the McGaskey Road from the city limits to the proposed site of a new building of the June Day Manufacturing Company.

Morehead Port's Big Crane Yet To Work

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state port at Morehead City has a brand new, $2.5 million crane — and nothing for it to do.

The big, yellow crane that towers above the flat horizon of Bogue Sound was installed last spring, as was an identical one at North Carolina's other state-operated port at Wilmington.

Larger than the existing heavy equipment at either port, the crane is designed for loading and unloading modern containerized freight, which sits like truck trailers across long, flat ships.

At Wilmington, the 40-long-ton crane has been in use since installation. But at the smaller Morehead City port, officials concede, the crane hasn't lifted an ounce.

The reason is that the Morehead City harbor is currently too small and shallow to handle the international ships that are equipped to carry containerized freight, says William Greene, the newly hired executive director of the State Ports Authority.

Both cranes were bought through a General Assembly appropriation, plus a $1.2 million loan, said ports comptroller Ruff DeVane.

The loan is still outstanding. But what's worse, the officials say, is that the state will pay $60,000 a year to maintain the idle crane and $100,000 a year depreciation on it.

Purchase of the two cranes, like those in use at larger neighboring ports at Norfolk, Va. and Charleston, S.C., was authorized by the State Ports Authority under the previous Republican administration. That board was abolished and replaced by a new one during this year's legislative session as part of a general house-cleaning of GOP holdovers.

New Democratic appointees are critical of the decision, and of the Wilmington-Morehead City rivalry that led to it.

"It was premature," Greene said of the Morehead City purchase. "The container cranes were approved with the concept being to do for one port what you do for the other.

"I disagree with that. I think we should do for one port what will best serve its particular needs. We must operate in a more business-like way."

Greene and the board are now trying to decide what to do with their crane. One option is to dismantle it and move it to Wilmington, where one crane could supplement the other. Greene estimates the cost of such a move at $700,000 to $1 million.

The alternative is to dredge a large section of Morehead harbor about two feet, to a 42-foot depth. The problem, Greene said, is the 600 to 800-foot long container ships now can't get in and out of the port, and don't have enough room to turn around in if they could.

The board is expected to decide next month whether to go ahead with the dredging, at a cost of $800,000, and Greene concedes he is leaning toward favoring it. But even if that's done, he said, the crane might still be moved if not enough container trade is generated.

"We're studying carefully the future of that crane," he said. "And we are continuing to train people to operate it and continuing to maintain it. I do not envision an early decision."

Meanwhile, the crane can't even be used to load and unload the tobacco, wood, steel, paper, chemicals and other products that are carried in and out of Morehead City by smaller ships. Those ships have tall riggings and booms that would block the new crane, which slides on rails while extending an arm straight out over the ship.

"It would be like trying to fly through a field of telephone poles," Greene said.

$5,000 To Aid School's Band

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Board of Commissioners at their October meeting approved an appropriation of $5,000 to assist the Williamston High School Band in its current program.

The action followed a request by Band Director Mike Stevens and Margaret Selby. The two told commissioners the request was made because of the great increase in price for some of the larger musical instruments — and that the band had been using old instruments for a long period of time.

Also adopted was a resolution to file a grant with the Farmers Home Administration for an amount of $63,800. The funds would be to help in the cost of installing sewer lines from existing city limits to the proposed site of the June Day Manufacturing Company on McGasky Road.

In other actions, commissioners:

- Took no action on a proposed resolution to endorse a $300 million highway improvement bond issue coming to voters on November 8;
- Accepted a grant of $4,053 from LEAA funds to send police officers to school, with a cost to the town of about $250; and
- Amended the budget (with opposition expressed) to add $1,500 to cover repair costs for the summer house in the Woodlawn Cemetery. The opposition expressed concern that the building did not merit the expense of repair.

The largest open cut tin mine in the world, according to National Geographic, is on the outskirts of Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Its pit is more than 500 feet deep and half a mile wide.

Possible Life Term From Plea Congress Opens Door To Required Air Bags

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A North Carolina man faces possible life imprisonment for his plea of guilty to charges that he kidnapped and held for ransom a Tennessee banker's daughter.

Judge L. Clure Morton of U.S. District Court set Nov. 8 for sentencing Wayne Edward Garity, 29.

U.S. Attorney Hal Hardin said Wednesday that Garity changed his plea from innocent to guilty in the case and that the Stateville, N.C., man was then returned to Sumner County Jail in Gallatin.

Garity said he kidnapped Annette Adams, 19, daughter of banker W.C. Adams of Maryville. Miss Adams was lured by a woman from a fraternity party Sept. 8 at Vanderbilt, a private Nashville college where she is a student. A man shoved her into a car and the woman abductor drove away.

Morton asked Garity after he changed his plea to guilty whether he kidnapped the girl by himself or with someone else.

"There was another party with me, but they were unwilling," Garity said.

Shelby Ann Baker, 28, also of Statesville, was arrested with Garity and was also charged with kidnapping. She did not appear at Wednesday's court session and is to be tried Oct. 25.

Miss Adams was released unharmed early on Sept. 11 in Morganton, N.C., after her father paid a $150,000 ransom.

During the time she was kidnapped, newsmen throughout Tennessee voluntarily withheld reports of the case at the request of federal authorities. Officials said the kidnapers threatened to kill Miss Adams if they heard or saw any news accounts.

Garity's formal admission of guilt climaxes an interval since his arrest during which he told numerous reporters he was guilty of the kidnapping. His lawyer said the guilty plea should not have come as a surprise.

"He's had this under consideration from the beginning," Knight said. "He has indicated his guilt from the beginning. He gave statements to the FBI, he gave statements to the press. I think there was always a high probability he would change his plea."

Knight denied Garity's plea was part of any bargain for consideration when he is sentenced.

Hours after pleading innocent to the kidnapping charges last month, Garity admitted his guilt to a newspaper reporter in an interview at the Gallatin jail. "I'm guilty," Garity said at the time. "To tell you the truth, I'm guilty as hell." He said, however, that Miss Baker was innocent.

Authorities arrested Garity and Miss Baker at Conover, N.C., later on the day of Miss Adams' release following a police chase. Police said a state trooper rammed their station wagon from behind, forcing the vehicle into the trash dumpster of a motel.

Police said they found a satchel containing $148,090 in cash in the car bearing the fugitives. The FBI said the pair used $1,900 of the kidnap ransom money to buy a getaway car and gave Miss Adams $25.10 upon her release.

Miss Adams has since returned to classes at Vanderbilt.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

Special singing will be held each evening and a nursery will be provided.

The public is invited to attend, according to Theodore R. Bradshaw, pastor.

Congress Opens Door To Required Air Bags

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, refusing to overrule the Transportation Department, has opened the way for mandatory air bags or other passive restraints in all new cars by the 1984 model year.

Votes Wednesday in the Senate and in the House Commerce Committee mean the safety devices will be required for some cars as early as the 1981 model year.

The Senate, 65-31, and the House panel, 16-14, voted to block any congressional attempt to overrule last June's decision by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams making the devices mandatory.

Both houses of Congress would have had to act by Friday to prevent the new policy from becoming law.

By the 1982 model year, all full-sized cars must be equipped with passive crash-protection devices. All other new cars will have to meet the new standard by the 1984 model year.

"No single action taken by the Congress this year holds out more promise for saving lives and alleviating needless suffering," Adams said after the Senate vote.

"This is a victory for us, but even more for our children, because highway accidents are the single greatest killer of American youth," he said.

Supporters of requiring passive restraints contended in the Senate debate that the devices will save lives, prevent injuries and significantly reduce insurance costs.

But Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., one of the major Senate opponents of Adams' move, said the only passive restraint system now generally available is the air bag, which he said is unreliable and needs more testing.

Griffin and other air bag opponents said drivers should not be compelled to pay higher sticker prices for cars equipped with a safety system that may not work.

The opponents said some air bags may inflate accidentally, and that replacement models could cost three to four times the original.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said that if he were compelled to buy a car with an air bag, he would have it removed.

He said drivers should be able to decide for themselves whether to buy a car with such a device.

"We elected a President who said he was going to get the federal government out of our hair, and now, by golly, he's got it in the driver's seat," Goldwater said.

Resistance Up By Merchants

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More resistance surfaced Wednesday to special energy emergency plans being drawn up by the state Energy Policy Council.

Officials of the state Merchants Association said Gov. Jim Hunt will have a hard time persuading merchants to go along this year with restrictions on store hours aimed at saving energy during acute shortages.

Thompson Greenwood, executive vice president of the association, said last year's experience with energy controls had made merchants skeptical of their value.

"This time everybody will be searching for hard facts to justify any type of program at all, following last year's on-again, off-again program," agreed G. Wesley Williams, executive director of the Raleigh Merchants Bureau.

"It's a serious thing, when you have upwards of 700,000 people making their living in stores, to mess with store hours at all," said Greenwood.

"One of the things that happened last year was the vacillation," Greenwood added.

"Merchants, because of the vacillation, weren't convinced there was real trouble." Williams said, "it became a rather widespread consensus it wasn't needed to begin with."

The Energy Policy Council has already proposed emergency hours for stores, restaurants and gas stations. Some fast food chains and gas stations have already indicated they don't like the plan, which Hunt must approve.

Hunt's spokesman, Gary Pearce, said the limits on store hours and heating imposed last year had served a purpose, despite the merchants' criticism. "I think the best response is that North Carolina suffered less than any other state in this area. Fewer jobs were lost. We didn't have to shut down the universities. There were no mandatory shutdowns. Whoever is complaining should sit down with the Energy Policy Council and try to work it out."

Doubts Law Can Stand

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge in Charlotte says he may not be the one to say it, but he doesn't think the state's new anti-pornography law will stand up to a constitutional test.

Two firms have filed suit challenging the law in federal court in Charlotte, and U.S. District Judge James McMillan is presiding in the case.

The companies — Jolar Cinema of Charlotte and W-S Enterprises of Greensboro and High Point — claim the new law is unconstitutional. The law would permit civil suits against adults-only businesses aimed at having them closed as public nuisances.

Similar court challenges have been filed in Raleigh and Fayetteville. State attorneys are arguing that since the law hasn't been enforced against any of the plaintiffs yet, the cases should be dismissed.

McMillan said Wednesday he was having trouble deciding whether he should hear the case at all.

"This is a controversial and murky area for federal jurisdiction," he said.

"I don't think sex is much of a spectator sport," he added, "but I don't see how this statute could pass muster constitutionally."

McMillan said he would rule in the next few days on whether he would hear the case.

War Widow Not Bitter Over Death From Tunnel

EDITORS' NOTE — AP Pulitzer Prize winning photographer Horst Faas, who covered the Vietnam war for 12 years, recently revisited that country with a German tourist group and met a former Vietcong commander who remembered the death of an American officer. Here is a report by AP Pulitzer Prize winning writer Peter Arnett, who worked extensively with Faas, on the widow of that American officer.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Her officer husband was the first of his West Point class to die in Vietnam, and she was left alone to bring up their four children, but Harriet Linnell says she bears no bitterness toward the communist soldiers who killed him.

"George wanted to be a military man, he was trained for it, and we have always been proud of what he did," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Beaufort, S.C.

Mrs. Linnell has remarried, but memories of the death in battle of her late husband, Lt. Colonel George Eyster, returned with the Associated Press interview of the commander of the Vietnamese unit that killed him.

AP photographer Horst Faas was with Colonel Eyster in January 1966, when he was fatally wounded by sniper fire from a hidden tunnel complex northwest of Saigon.

The dying commander of the 2nd Battalion, 28th Regiment, 1st Infantry Division, whispered to Faas, "Before I go I'd like to talk to the guy who controls these incredible men in the tunnels."

While on a two-week return trip to Vietnam with a German tourist group early this month, Faas met that man, Capt. Nguyen Thanh Linh, who gave Faas the inside view of the fantastic tunnel complex that took 30 years to dig and stretched 150 miles, with tentacles sometimes winding right under the chairs of U.S. commanders as they sat in their headquarters.

The slightly built, 45-year-old Captain Linh said he was commander of the Cu Chi Liberation Battalion at the time of the American colonel's death, and recalled receiving intelligence reports about it.

Faas reported that Linh spoke in French with grudging respect and almost without hatred about his former enemies, the Americans.

Eyster's wife said Wednesday she held no bitterness toward the communist soldiers "because they were doing their duty, too, as they saw it." But she remains unhappy about the complete collapse of the Saigon government in 1975.

"I don't pretend to know the political subtleties, but we could not help asking ourselves what was all that loss of life for. Yet I hate to say George's life was wasted," she said.

The military tradition of the Eyster family is being maintained by his two sons, both in uniform. The eldest, George Eyster 4th, is a helicopter pilot in the Army, his younger brother is in the Air Force and both his sisters have married Army officers.

Their grandfather, George Eyster 2nd, was chief of information in the European theater in World War II. The commander of the U.S. Army's 1st Infantry Division at the time of the colonel's death in Vietnam, Lt. General Jonathan Seaman, said Wednesday that Eyster would have been a general like his father had he lived.

Many more Americans were to die in the tunnel complex after Eyster, but casualties were crippling in communist ranks, too. Captain Linh said that of the 600 men in the Cu Chi battalion when the American colonel was killed, only four survived the war, two officers and two noncommissioned officers.

AP photographer Faas reported that the former battlefield where Eyster died now looks lush and sleepy. Deep B52 bomb craters are still visible, retained as fish ponds or wallowing holes for animals.

The vast tunnel complex, now part of the tourist route for visitors to Vietnam, lies one, two and three levels underground. The routes were marked in black lines on a 12-by-12-foot map hanging from a briefing room wall at the Cu Chi district headquarters.

Faas's first reaction was that it looked like a map of the New York or London subway systems, with dots not for stations but for fighting positions and secret entrances and exits.

Faas was told the complex took 30 years to build. "We dug usually in the dark, squatting down. We carved out a meter every eight hours, and women distributed the earth on the surface, hiding it under fallen leaves."

Testify Others Also 'Favored'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Northwestern Bank board chairman Edwin Duncan Jr. wasn't the only one who got favored treatment in the bank's bookkeeping department, a bank employee testified Wednesday.

Testimony continued today in Duncan's federal court trial on charges of misapplying more than $257,000 in bank funds. Attorneys for both sides said they expected the trial to continue well into next week.

Duncan is accused of misapplying funds by ordering bookkeeping employees to stop his personal checks and hold them until he made arrangements for them to be paid.

Francie Rogers and another bookkeeper testified Tuesday that a computer diverted Duncan's checks to the bookkeeping department, where they were held, sometimes for as long as six months, until Duncan or his secretary picked them up.

FBI agent Thomas Brereton testified Wednesday that if these checks had been charged to Duncan's account when they were received by the bank during 1974 and 1975, Duncan would have had overdrafts of as much as $26,000.

Miss Rogers said under questioning by defense attorneys that Duncan's checks were not the only ones held in the bookkeeping department. She said large commercial customers of the bank got the same treatment if they were rejected for insufficient funds.

She said no interest or fee was charged for the service in these cases.

On one night, records for which were picked at random and handed to Miss Rogers on the stand, she said checks totaling about $92,000 were being held, of which $27,000 were Duncan's.

She said checks were sometimes held for customers with big savings accounts or large certificates of deposit.

By JUNE WATANABE
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Forty-seven years ago, on the stage at Chicago's Musical Trade Convention, a young Korean-American from Hawaii strummed a melody of now forgotten songs and became the "Banjo King of America."

The young islander quickly won international fame, touring the world twice in concert with the Kjerulof Musical Revue. Back home in America, the "Banjo King" performed as a soloist with the big orchestras of the day.

It was during Prohibition, vaudeville was at its height, and Paul Choy, the "Banjo King" played the circuit, flailing away at his round-bottomed instrument.

But by 1935, Choy yearned for the islands. Newspapers saluted the return of a local-boy-made-good, and Paul Choy used his fame to open a music studio and shop.

He was skilled on the ukulele, mandolin, mandola and steel guitar, but concentrated on teaching the guitar. "If I had to depend on the banjo for a living, I would have starved," he recalled in a recent interview. Choy says he had no real interest in music when he graduated from an electrical engineering school in Chicago a half-century ago. He worked at a radio manufacturing plant, returned to Hawaii to a lack of jobs and was back on the mainland before long — in Gary, Ind.

"I stayed there for 12 years. But during that time, I was so bored, I began looking for something to do," he remembered. "One day, I saw a blind man playing a banjo and I thought to myself, 'That ought to keep me busy.'"

The 71-year-old Choy claims he's semiretired, but six days a week he visits his tiny shop. "I love coming down here and banging on my instruments," he said.

The walls are plastered with album covers, program sheets, photos and other mementos of his musical career. In the midst of the galaxy of past stars is a picture of a young Oriental man with slicked-down hair, wire-rim glasses and a three-piece suit, banjo in hand.

The "Banjo King Banjo, Guitar and Ukulele Studio and Store" is locked most of the time. Choy opens the door only if he decides the caller is a serious customer.

What's more, a hand-painted sign states emphatically, "No browsing; No friendly visits; We don't sell guitar parts; We are open by appointment only."

Despite the rather abrupt message regarding "friendly visits," Choy isn't all that reluctant to discuss his skill with the banjo.

"You know, everybody else just strums when they play the banjo. But I pick, like picking the violin. I learned from 50 different teachers. That's why I have no one style," he says.

"But I tell you that I'm good and I like to play different songs that no one else would try on the banjo."

"When I'm playing my music, I say, 'To hell with the world — let the people fight, let them struggle.' Me, I sit here and I play and I'm happy."

Kaplan Offers A 'Small Event'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Come Sunday, Oct. 23, the star of ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter" will battle NBC's "Big Event" with an ABC special — called "Gabriel Kaplan Presents the Small Event."

It's his first special. And it's the first time he's been executive producer of one. He was asked what an executive producer does.

"I guess," Kaplan ventured, "he's the guy who decides what goes on. A lot of them never show up, they just handle financial arrangements and take the title."

"They say, 'Producer, you produce it; director, you direct it, and if makes money I take the money.'"

If it bombs, he suggested, custom calls for the executive producer to blame everyone, then blow town. But he vowed not to do this.

"The most important thing about this special is to really sink or swim on my own," Kaplan said. "The type of humor I think is funny is the type of stuff I'll be doing."

"I'll take the whole responsibility."

The Brooklyn-born comic, a soft-spoken, thoughtful guy who sprang to fame in 1973 on NBC's "Tonight" with a wild geriatric spoof of "The Dating Game," said he'll spoof specials on his first special.

For example, he said, he'll have a sports special, "The Battle of Celebrity Relatives," pitting Robert Conrad's aunt against Penny Marshall's mother. He'll cover the event as Howard Cosell's father.

There also will be a celebrity "roast" of sorts. But in this one, Kaplan said, "they're run out of celebrities to roast, so they're roasting the head of some obscure Eastern religious cult . . ."

Of special interest will be a one-man special dramatizing the words of a great former president, Millard Fillmore.

Kaplan, who spoke of all this by phone from Las Vegas, where he's working by night at the Frontier Hotel and commuting to "Kotter" by day, said his special even spoofs network executives.

He said the chief executive is a chap named Eddie Silvercup, whose name is similar to that of Freddie Silverman, ABC programs chief. Kaplan said he tried to get Freddie to play Eddie in the special.

Alas, Freddie said no dice, Kaplan sighed: "He was afraid he might get hot."

One of the Bols Bridge Tips suggested that, when you can't see how to defeat a contract, you should hold up a king. Just how dangerous indiscriminate use of this tip can be was proved by this hand from the recent European Championship.

South was afraid that his opponents had nine fast tricks at their no trump game, so he elected to sacrifice at four spades. He was wrong in his assessment of the opponents' capabilities, but he ended up with a huge profit nevertheless.

West attacked with king and another club, declarer ruffing the second round. He led the queen of spades from hand, and West ducked. This slight error proved to be fatal.

Declarer finessed the jack of diamonds and led a heart. East rose with the ace and continued clubs in an effort to promote a trump trick for his partner. Declarer ruffed with the ten and West correctly declined to overruff; he sluffed a heart instead.

The queen of diamonds was finessed and declarer discarded a heart on the ace of diamonds. He ruffed a diamond with his low trump and cashed the king of hearts, reducing West to nothing but trumps. Declarer simply exited with his last heart. West was forced to ruff this trick and then lead away from his king of trumps into declarer's ace-jack tenace. So West ended up making only one trump trick and declarer fulfilled his contract.

West can defeat the hand if he wins the king of trumps at trick two. He leads a heart to his partner's ace, and another club from East promotes West's nine of trumps to the setting trick.

All of which reminds us of the Goldsmith poem about the rabid dog that bit one of the citizens: "The man recovered from the bite. It was the dog that died."

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Brothers Rebuilding An Antebellum La. Mansion

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La. (AP) — Those who think they don't build houses like they used to ought to meet Walton and Richard Barnes. They're rebuilding an antebellum landmark in a forest in south Louisiana almost exactly as it was constructed in the 1830s. The mansion is Greenwood, a once-splendid plantation that survived the Civil War but burned to the ground after it was struck by lightning in August 1960. Eight years later, the father and son bought the hulking shell of 28 Doric columns and little else. "I remember that day well," said Richard Barnes. "Dad came out here and took a look at the columns. ... Once he learned that they were stable and solid, he said very quietly, 'Well, we'll just build it back.'" built as a home, a really lived-in home, not a museum," Walton Barnes said. "But we hope it will have all the charm and unique qualities of the plantation mansion that once stood here."

At one time there were about 40 accessory structures around Greenwood, including stables, kitchens, coach houses and cotton gins. They were all destroyed by Union troops who turned the plantation into a hospital during the Civil War.

Richard Barnes said he hopes to put those things back on the 300 acres around the house. Already built is a brick kitchen and a brick and shingle pigeoniere with a 10-acre garden on the drawing board. Doing some of the small work themselves and getting professional help with larger jobs, Barnes and his father have been working on Greenwood for nine years. They figure to be at it several more years until they get it like they want.

RESTORING THE PAST — Richard Barnes checks a window frame underneath the giant columns of the mansion Greenwood he is restoring near St. Francisville, La. The antebellum structure survived the Civil War only to burn to the ground after lightning struck it in 1960 (AP Laserphoto)

Since no original plans for the house were available, the Barneses relied on hundreds of old photographs and the memories of those who lived in Greenwood or had visited the mansion.

"It's really been fascinating to see the things people thought were interesting enough to photograph," Richard Barnes said. "They took pictures of single chairs and sections of mantels and sometimes just a corner of one room. One fellow must have lain flat on his back on the floor because he sent us a fine photograph of one of the ceiling medallions."

The original house, built by slave labor, was a slightly off-balance 85 feet by 87 feet. Nothing inside was a standard size and no two columns outside were the same distance apart.

It had a parlor, library, music room, morning room and butler's pantry on the first floor and six bedrooms on the second. All the rooms had 14-foot ceilings. Wide central hallways divided the floors and massive mahogany stairways connected them. An enormous glass enclosure topped the third floor.

All of that will be in the new Greenwood.

The younger Barnes, a clerk in his father's Baton Rouge law office, plans to live in the mansion with his wife and newborn baby. Eventually he wants to open its rooms to the public, like other nearby restored mansions.

PWP Group To Hear Talk Space Shuttle Passes Its Crucial Milestone

Greenville Chapter 1058, Parents Without Partners Inc., will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. at Jarvis United Methodist Church. Tish Blount Evans, MSW, will speak on "Gerontology and the Single-Parent Family." A discussion period will follow.

The business portion of the meeting will include election of a nominating committee for 1978 officers. All members are requested to be present and prospective members are welcome.

Chapter Pres. David M. Knowles said the group has accepted its 50th application for membership. This milestone was reached only three months after the group's formal affiliation with PWP International and is indicative of the acceptance by the community and the need filled by PWP, he said.

To be eligible for membership, one must be the parent of a living child and single — divorced, widowed, separated or never married. Custody of children is not a factor. More information may be obtained by calling 752-1674 or 758-9954.

By RICHARD SALTUS AP Science Writer EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The Space Shuttle has passed its most crucial milestone with a "superb" test flight that space agency officials had feared might not be possible in the shuttle's final form.

"It went better than most of us had expected," said Donald Slayton, manager of the Tests Wednesday after the bulky cargo carrier made a gliding, 2½-minute descent from 20,500 feet without its streamlined tailcone.

Slayton added that with the flight behind them, shuttle officials can look forward to the first mission into orbit of the craft, set for March 1979.

The tailcone had been used on three previous test flights to make the Enterprise a better glider, extending its flight time and also making it ride more smoothly atop the carrier plane that launched it in midair.

But when the shuttle actually returns from space it will not have the tailcone, and it was necessary to test the shuttle in this configuration.

"I'm sure there aren't going to be any problems flying it back (from space) now," said spacecraft commander Joe Engle, 45, after the flight. He and pilot Richard Truly, 39, divided the cockpit duties during what Engle called "the busiest flight I ever flew."

Lacking the tailcone, the powerless Enterprise after separation from the Boeing 747 dived steeply at angles approaching 28 degrees from the horizontal. It also landed faster than on previous flights — touching down at about 250 miles per hour before rolling to a stop 5,000 feet later.

The final flight in the test series that began here in February is set for Oct. 26. It will be much the same as Wednesday's flight except that the shuttle will land on a concrete runway instead of the dry lake bed strip.

Airline Sets Flight Over Both Poles

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Back on Oct. 28, 1927, a Fokker F7 trimotor plane took off from a dirt runway at Key West, Fla., and flew across 90 miles of water to Havana, Cuba, carrying sacks of mail in the first scheduled international flight by an American aircraft.

Freshly painted on the side of the plane were three letters: PAA — which stood for Pan American Airways. Within three months the fledgling airline was flying passengers as well as mail and cargo on regular schedules across the Straits of Florida.

It was a small beginning for what was to become one of the world's top international air carriers. Pan American World Airways' fleet of 100 jetliners now fly an average of 8.4 million passengers annually to all corners of the world.

To commemorate its 50th anniversary, and in what it says is a salute to the international air transport system, Pan Am will fly a Boeing 747SP jumbo jet on a record-setting round the world flight over the North and South Poles on Oct. 28 this year.

Only 150 passengers will be carried on the flight in the long-range SP (Special Performance) four-engine jetliner. The announcement said seating will be restricted to 22 first-class and 128 economy class to maximize the comfort for the round-the-world fliers.

William T. Seawell, Pan Am chairman and chief executive officer, in announcing the flight said it was intended to "focus world attention to the scope, capability and human and technical achievements of today's global air network which has developed over the past half century to serve the world under the leadership of the U.S. flag airlines and U.S. aircraft and engine manufacturers."

Seats on the flight will be available to the public on a first-come, first-served basis. Around the world fares would be $3,333 for first class and $2,222 for economy. Passengers will have the option of flying the entire route or one or more sectors.

The plane will take off from San Francisco, fly over the North Pole to London, then on to Cape Town, South Africa, over the South Pole to Auckland, New Zealand, and then back to San Francisco. There will be stops of about two hours each in London, Cape Town and Auckland.

The entire flight will cover 26,642 statute miles in an estimated flying time of 48 hours, 40 minutes.

Passengers making the complete flight will receive an official observer card from the National Aeronautics Assn. and certificates from Pan Am and the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the world-wide agency which approves speed, height and distance records.

A commemorative service will be held at Key West at which Pan American officials will dispatch the over-the-poles flight via a special communications hookup.

The announcement said passengers will be offered a wide range of in-flight services, including full meals and snacks on each of the four sectors, 24-hour bar service, selections of movies and various games and contests provided by four separate in-flight service crews.

Entertainment will include a fashion show, strolling musician and a magician. There will be a hairdresser aboard for women, according to the announcement.

United Airlines also observed a birthday this year — the 50th anniversary of transcontinental air service. It was on Sept. 1, 1927, that United's predecessors — National Air Transport (NAT) and Boeing Air Transport (BAT) — linked up for the first time in Chicago, Ill., to provide direct ocean-to-ocean service. NAT flew the New York-Chicago route while BAT provided services between San Francisco and Chicago.

The daring passengers of 50 years ago flew in either the two-place cabin of single-engine Boeing 40As or atop mailbags in the front cargo pit of Douglas M4s, also single engine. The lone passenger had to wear goggles, a flying suit and a parachute.

The flight between San Francisco and New York took 32 hours, 15 minutes, with 15 stops along the way. The fare for the flight over the original NAT-BAT cross-country route was $404.

United noted that passengers today can fly non-stop from coast to coast in about five hours and one way fares are as low as around $170 via night coach. United has 364 jetliners in its fleet today and flies about 34 million passengers annually.

LUCKY WINNER

Mr. J.R. Harris of Winterville, N.C. was the lucky winner of the $250.00 gift certificate given away during the 1978 Chevy Show at Phelps Chevrolet. Mr. Harris's guess was 17,800 cars and trucks. The total number of cars and trucks sold in the past 12 years at Phelps Chevrolet was 17,803. Pictured here (left to right) are Mr. Harris and Norman VanHorne, Sales Manager of Phelps Chevrolet.

We would like to thank the people of Greenville, Pitt County, and surrounding areas for this great achievement. We are hoping that 1978 will be the greatest year ever. Before you purchase your next car, let Phelps Chevrolet figure with you. We are a volume dealer and can save you many dollars on your next car or truck.

It Won't Be Like The First State Fair In 1853

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator North Carolina Collection CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina State Fair begins Friday, and there will be rides, rodeos, fireworks, games of chance, sausage biscuits, dancing girls, and we don't know what all.

For the more serious minded, there will be thousands of exhibits ranging from insect collections to needlecrafts and from sweet potatoes to early summer yearling bulls.

Judges will award enough ribbons to decorate nearby Carter Stadium.

But something will be missing. It won't be like the first State Fair held Oct. 18-21, 1853. For one thing, the first fair was more an educational exhibition without the variety of entertainment features. The 4,000 or so persons came to see what North Carolinians had produced.

While many of the more than half a million visitors expected this year also will view the exhibits, others will be there for the entertainment.

Another difference is the location. The first fair was held on a 16-acre site about a mile east of the Capitol. In 1873, the fair was moved to "Cook's Hill" off Hillsborough Road, opposite what is now North Carolina State University.

Finally, in 1928, it was moved to the present grounds.

A third difference is the sponsorship. The fair was begun and sponsored for 73 years by the State Agricultural Society, organized in 1852. The society gave up sponsorship in 1925, and a state fair board was appointed by the governor.

No fair was held in 1926 and 1927, but it was revived under state sponsorship in 1928, and it now is run by the Department of Agriculture.

Yet another difference will be in the opening ceremonies. This year, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and other dignitaries will, we hope, keep their remarks short, cut the ribbon, and let the people start streaming in.

Not so in 1853. On that occasion, A. W. Venable of Granville County was the opening speaker. Noting that he had been third choice for the task and insisting that he accepted the invitation only because the society felt that a formal speech "could not be dispensed with," Venable gave his audience quite an oration.

In fact, he went on and on and on. It took the "Farmer's Journal" two months to print it all.

Venable's theme was appropriate enough: he urged farmers to adopt radical new methods of farming, such as the use of guano, the rotation of crops, the planting of legumes, and the horizontal plowing of hillsides.

When the ceremonies were finally over, the visitors were admitted to the exhibit buildings, including Floral Hall, which was "crowded with articles contributed by the fair daughters of the Old North State."

Wrote Dr. John F. Tompkins of Bath: "The 18th of October, 1853, was a proud day for every North Carolinian; even those who denounced and ridiculed the State Agriculture Society in its infancy, surely must, when looking up the display on those grounds, (have) felt that . . . it was not worth their while any longer to dose Old Rip with their soporifics, for he had fairly opened his eyes . . ."

For North Carolinians, the exhibits were a revelation, so varied were the productions on display. They included crops and animals of all types, handicrafts, manufactures, farm tools, homemaking skills, clothing, and artwork — all products of North Carolina. Among the prize winners and their entries were the following:

G. M. J. Hawkins of Warren, a stallion, filly, jack, and jennet (for city folk, these are horses, mules, or a little bit of each); W. D. Cooke of Raleigh, a specimen of type for printing for the blind; G. R. Griffith of Pittsboro, patent camphene lamp and filler.

Also, Mrs. F. A. Graves of Caswell, shawl made from silk raised by owner; John R. Harrison of Raleigh, railroad passenger coach; Bobbitt and Min-tree of Warrenton, carriage and buggy; J. P. Nissen of Salem, one-horse wagon.

Also, Dr. Sidney Weller of Brinkleyville, wines from his vineyard; O. P. Copeland of Northampton County, painting titled "Death of John Wesley"; and Y. and E. P. Jones of Yanceyville, best specimen of manufactured chewing tobacco, "put in splendid boxes."

The fair has been so popular that it has been held every year except during the Civil War, during the influenza epidemic of 1918, in 1926 and 1927, and during World War II.

Competition Said 'Good'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Competition from private colleges is good for the state university system, the chairman of the University of North Carolina board of trustees says.

Thomas W. Lambeth told a University Day ceremony Wednesday that state universities should not oppose increased state aid to private schools.

"As private institutions get better, all education gets better," he said. "The competition is good for all of us; it's disappearance would be a disaster for all."

He added that when they aren't competing, leaders of public and private institutions should collaborate in plans for the future of higher education in the state.

Lambeth also said he supports efforts by the UNC Board of Governors and system president William C. Friday to change proposed federal guidelines for stepped-up minority enrollment at the system's 16 campuses.

"Government does force on Chapel Hill, as it does others, dollars-and-cents decisions that are at odds with educational policy," he said. Such decisions cannot be avoided, he added, but they must not cloud the mission of the university.

During the University Day ceremony which marked the laying of the cornerstone of Old East Building on Oct. 12, 1793, five persons were presented Distinguished Alumni Awards. They were Chief Justice Susie Sharp of the state Supreme Court; stage, screen and TV actor Shepperd Strudwick; Editor William D. Snider of the Greensboro Daily News; Nathaniel Perkinson Hayes, chairman of the board of Carolina Steel Corp. at Greensboro; and New York investment banker Phillip Hettleman.

Competing For Awards

ECU News Bureau Eight outstanding students in the East Carolina University Department of Mathematics have been selected to compete for national and international fellowships and scholarships.

According to Prof. Nan Manning of the department's awards committee, all nominees have academic grade point averages above 3.5.

The students include graduate student Jerry Worsley of Tarboro and undergraduates Linda Bryan of Vanceboro, Thomas Frandsen of Wilmington, Jay Gleason of Greenville, John Martin of Jacksonville, Donna Colevechio of Orange Park, Fla., Donnie Mercer of Kinston and Kathy Suggs of Farmville.

As a departmental nominee, the eight will be eligible to compete this year for the Rhodes Scholarship, the Fulbright-Hays Grant, the Marshall Scholarship and the Danforth Fellowship.
