Crosby Funeral Tuesday

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bing Crosby will be buried beside his mother, father and first wife next Tuesday, following a simple religious service for family and a few close friends and associates.

A family spokesman disclosed Saturday that Crosby's funeral would be held at St. Paul's Catholic Church in the Westwood area of Los Angeles, with burial in the "family plot" at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Kathryn Crosby, the singer's second wife, told reporters outside her home near San Francisco that her husband would be buried alongside his parents and former wife, actress Dixie Lee, who died of cancer in 1941.

Their son Harry, 19, who flew to Spain from London to represent the family and accompany his father's body on the flight home on Monday, said the service would be "a quiet memorial to a low mass like my father would have wished it."

Mrs. Crosby, who said the service would be "a low mass only," indicated it would not be as small as her husband, a devout Roman Catholic, might have desired.

"He wanted only the children and myself," she explained. "But I think there are those who worshipped him for 40 years who have a right to be there."

She mentioned Crosby's business manager and agent and "the girls in the office" as those who would be included in the plans.

Father Elwood Kaiser, a Paulist priest and family friend, was to officiate at the service. Bob Moonan, another friend and organist at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco, will play at the service.

Mrs. Crosby asked that memorials to her husband be made to the Bing Crosby Fund at Pebble Beach, Calif., which aids hospitals and provides student loans, or to the Queen's charities in London.

Tributes From Colleagues

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Deep sadness and fond reflection fell over the entertainment world upon the death of show business legend Bing Crosby.

For two of his oldest companions and friends, expressing their love and loss, it also meant no last "road."

Dorothy Lamour, who costarred with Crosby and Bob Hope in the series of "Road" movies, said she learned of her friend's death Friday on the radio while reading a newspaper story about plans of the trio for one last "Road" picture, to be entitled, "The Road to the Fountain of Youth."

"I couldn't believe it," said

Miss Lamour. "It's such a great loss. Bing was an individual. He was Bing Crosby. He was a wonderful man, a religious man."

"My only wish is that his road to heaven is as happy as the 'Roads' we traveled together."

Hope, a movie partner and off-screen pal, was one of the hardest hit by news of Der Bingle's death from a heart attack.

"I still don't believe it. I'm absolutely numb," he said.

Hope, who was scheduled to give a benefit performance in Morristown, N.J., canceled the date and planned to fly home to Los Angeles.

"I just can't be funny tonight," he said. "It's just not in me."

"The death of Bing Crosby is almost more than I can take," said Frank Sinatra. "He was the father of my career, the idol of my youth and a dear friend of my maturity."

Duke Dean Nominated

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Paul D. Carrington, 46, expert on civil procedure and the appellate courts, has been nominated as dean of the Duke University Law School, a post that has been vacant since 1976. Carrington is now a professor of law at the University of Michigan. His name will be submitted to Duke trustees at their meeting next month. With their approval, Carrington will become dean of the law school next July 1, according to Duke Provost Frederic N. Cleaveland.

He is a member of Sudan Temple of New Bern, Greenville Moose Lodge, Pitt County Shrine Club, Rotary Club, Pitt County Heart Fund, and is also a member of the Greenville Bikeway Committee. Burnette is currently vice president of the Pitt County Wildlife Club.

The bank executive is married to the former Pat Matthews of Fuquay-Varina and they have two children. The family attends St. James United Methodist Church.

Burnette is heading this year's out-of-town planning conference for the Chamber, scheduled for Nov. 11, 12 and 13 at Williamsburg, Va. Deadline for registration is Tuesday.

Charles Burnette

Burnette Elected Chamber President

Lawton Nisbet, president of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, announced that Charles D. Burnette Jr. has been elected president of the Chamber for 1978.

Burnette, who has served as president-elect, is vice president and manager of Bank of North Carolina N.A. here.

Nisbet reported that Jerry Powell, city executive for North Carolina National Bank, was elected as the Chamber's new president-elect, while Don McLawhorn of the Hines Agency here was elected vice president of finance.

The officers will assume their duties on Jan. 1, it was pointed out.

Born in Mt. Olive, Burnette attended Hargrave Military Academy, Georgia Military Academy Junior College, and the University of San Francisco.

The new president, who served a tour of duty in the Air Force, was associated with Burnette Oil Co. in Mt. Olive and has served with Bank of North Carolina for the past 13 years.

Burnette, who managed the bank's Lillington office, came to Greenville as manager in 1971.

He was active in the Mt. Olive and Lillington Chamber of Commerce organizations and is a past president of the Mt. Olive Merchants Association. In Greenville, he has served as a member of the Chamber's board of directors, executive committee, treasurer and president-elect.

Hostages Appeal To German Chancellor

By NED TEMKO

DUBAI (UPI) — Hostages aboard a hijacked jet Saturday ate cake at a birthday party for one of their members then appealed to West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt as "our only and last hope" only hours before their captors threatened to kill them.

Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid al Makhtout, the United Arab Emirates defense minister, negotiated with the hijackers and said the hijack leader "is a bit nervous (and) not sure what he is doing."

"I don't think they'll blow it (the plane) up, but they might start harming people," Makhtout said.

The 82 passengers and 5 crew members of the hijacked Lufthansa Boeing 737 jetliner made their appeal to Schmidt amid reports West Germany planned to pay a $15.5 million ransom demanded by a group of kidnapers apparently working in league with the hijackers.

However, there was no mention of the hijackers' demand that 13 comrades be freed from German and Turkish jails.

"We all depend on your decision," said the pilot of the aircraft in relaying the message from the hostages to Schmidt through Makhtout. "You are our only and last hope."

The hijackers said the prisoners and the ransom money had to be safely in Somalia, North Vietnam or South Yemen by Sunday or they would blow up the plane and everyone in it.

A West German urban guerrilla group also threatened to execute kidnaped West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, abducted six weeks ago, unless the plane hijackers' demands were met. The German group sent their ultimatum through a Swiss intermediary.

Although the hijackers have made no mention of the $15.5 million ransom, demanded in the Bonn ultimatum, Makhtout said Dubai, an oil-rich Sheikhdom, would be willing to pay the money if requested.

"Of course we would," he said. "We would do anything to save the lives of the passengers."

"But if I were making the decision, I would not release criminals from jail," the Dubai minister said. "I have dealt with hijackers before. This Mahmoud is a bit nervous. He is not sure of what he is doing. Sometimes he loses his temper. We know how to make him nervous and how to calm him down."

"The fact that they are nervous is dangerous in a sense," he said. "But all hijackers are dangerous."

At one point, the hijack leader, identified as Mahmoud, cracked over the radio that the passengers all were "happy and had a nice birthday party" for 28-year-old Anne-Marie Sta-

Joan Little Escapes

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, acquitted in 1975 of the ice-pick slaying of a white jailer, escaped from Women's Correctional Center Saturday night where she was serving a seven-to-10 year sentence for breaking and entering.

Sgt. G.T. Barbour, officer in charge at the center in eastern Raleigh, said she was discovered missing about 6:30 p.m. He said officers were unsure how she fled the jail.

The highway patrol said a search was underway for the woman.

Miss Little, 21, was recently suspended from her work release job with a Raleigh dentist, reportedly for not showing up at her job for two days.

A month ago she became eligible for parole and officials told her then she would know whether she could go free by Nov. 15.

Barbour said Miss Little was last seen wearing blue jeans, the green shirts worn by honor-grade prisoners and a blue-gray sweater.

Miss Little was awaiting appeal of her breaking and entering conviction in the Beaufort County jail in 1974 when jailer Clarence Alligood was killed.

During her trial, she said she stabbed the jailer while fending off sexual advances. She was acquitted of the charge but had to return to jail in late 1975 to finish serving the term for breaking and entering.

HEW Proposal Called Absurd

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

People interested in the tobacco industry seemed amazed at a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare memo that suggested smoking in the U.S. could be reduced by ending the price support system and placing farm families on welfare rolls to help ease the economic loss.

A special HEW task force produced a list of 35 options the government could take to reduce smoking. The list included elimination of the price support program for tobacco, the use of programs such as the soil bank to aid farmers in switching to other crops, increased federal tax on cigarettes, strengthening government controls on the "harmful substances" in cigarettes, and giving tobacco farmers assistance like Medicaid and food stamps while switching from tobacco to other crops.

P. K. Andresen, president of the International Tobacco Co. here said, "I think that they (HEW) are sticking their necks out too far." Greenville warehouseman Harding Sugg said, "I think it's utterly ridiculous when our Congress and the president are trying to get this country's economy on its feet, and tobacco contributing a very substantial amount to the balance of trade."

Sugg continued, "such a suggestion (eliminating price supports and placing farmers on welfare) as put out by the HEW committee would put thousands of people on the welfare rolls."

Bruce Strickland, a tobacco farmer and warehouseman and member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners said, "It's absurd."

Members Of 1927 Class Talk To Hatem In China

DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The telephone connection sounded as if they were speaking to a friend across town, but the 25 Greenville classmates were actually talking to a famous colleague of theirs in Peking, China.

Dr. Shafik Hatem, a Greenville native, who later gained recognition as the one person most responsible for ridding the Republic of China of venereal disease, spoke to his classmates of 50 years ago at their reunion Friday night.

Samuel B. Underwood Jr., a member of the class of 1927 at Greenville High School, spoke of his friend shortly before the telephone conversation took place.

"Dr. Hatem, 63, grew up in Greenville, was educated at the University of North Carolina, and has been in China for 40 years."

"He has been called a legend in our time," Underwood added.

Underwood read from a Chapel Hill news release which stated that "China is the only nation in the world that has eradicated V.D." The article continued by giving sole credit for this accomplishment to Hatem.

According to Underwood, the doctor decided to go to medical school after finishing his undergraduate work at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Money was short at the time and "it was cheaper to go to medical school in Switzerland."

"When he finished school in the 1930s there were some really hard times, so he decided to go to China to set up a practice," said Underwood.

He added that he inquired as to Hatem's whereabouts in 1937 and was told that the doctor had left on an expedition to the interior of China. For approximately 20 years, Underwood could not find out any information concerning Hatem.

"Some people thought that he had died."

In the 1950s, they found out that Hatem had stayed in the interior and then went on to Peking.

"I assume that he stayed with the Communists in that long march to get away from the Nationalist Chinese...and became a doctor under the Communists."

When Underwood first heard of Hatem again, the doctor was in charge of the entire public health system for the Republic of China, working specifically with venereal disease.

An article concerning Dr. Hatem.

Five Die In Pinetops Wreck

The mangled car in which five women died. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest).

PINETOPS, N.C. (AP) — Five women, including the wife of the mayor Pinetops, were killed Friday afternoon when their car collided with an oxygen tank truck in the rain.

Highway Patrolman Cecil Mabe identified four of the victims as Mrs. Lida Phillips, wife of Pinetops Mayor W.E. Phillips; Mrs. Addie B. Dunn of Pinetops; Willie Mae Holton, a retired schoolteacher; and Mildred Thomas Gardner of Pinetops.

Mabe withheld identity of the fifth victim, because the woman's daughter was traveling out of town and could not be notified.

Mabe said all of the women were in their 50s and 60s, and that all but one lived on the same block.

Milton Carlton of the Pinetops Police Department said the victim's car was demolished when the two-axle truck overturned on top of it and caught fire. The collision occurred on a curve on N.C. 42 in Edgecombe County, about 100 lines from the Wilson County line.

The truck driver, James Strickland of Plymouth, did not require hospitalization.

No charges have been filed in the wreck.

Correction

In the article on the 150th anniversary of Memorial Baptist Church, appearing in this paper on Friday, it was incorrectly stated that Rev. Norman C. Bennett, Jr., is the church's pastor.

The current pastor is Rev. E. T. Vinson, and his name should have appeared in the text that referred to his predecessor, Rev. Bennett.

Change, If Tradition Followed

One of the changes that could come in the City Council which is seated in December may be in the position of mayor pro-tem.

Council member Millie McGrath has served in that position for the past two years. There has been a tradition of naming the councilman who received the highest number of votes to the mayor pro-tem position. Two years ago Mrs. McGrath was the top candidate in terms of total votes. Then-mayor pro-tem Percy Cox moved into the mayor's seat by virtue of his win as a write-in candidate for the office and subsequently the council elected Mrs. McGrath to the mayor pro-tem position.

In the Oct. 11 election, of this year, however, Mrs. McGrath placed third among the field of candidates and, in fact, since she didn't receive a majority she could be involved in a runoff election on Nov. 8.

The top vote getter this year is a newcomer to the City Council, Charles M. Vincent. Second high was Joseph Taft, currently a member of the council. Both won clear majorities in the election.

If tradition is followed, Vincent could become the new mayor pro-tem. He could, of course, elect to pass up the honor, being new on the council; nor is the City Council legally bound to elect the high candidate to the position.

The mayor pro-tem enjoys a slightly elevated prestige among the councilmen, presides in the absence of the mayor, represents him at times at official functions and would become mayor if the office were vacated.

The decision on who will fill the position will be made when the new council is seated, and the outcome of the election leaves open the question of who will become mayor pro-tem.

Problems For Soviet Space Program

Far more than the space program of the United States, the Russian program seems to have been beset with problems.

Its latest mission involved sending two cosmonauts into space to link up with a space lab.

For some reason the mission was aborted and the space craft was brought back to earth.

The Russians were first in space, but subsequently our program has been far more successful than theirs.

THIS AFTERNOON

Little-Known N.C. Facts

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Governmental statistics don't have to be all dull reading. Witness this collection of information from various sources:

Calabash has a population of 170 people. Last year Calabash had more than one and one-quarter million visitors who dined in the 22 seafood restaurants which make that village the Seafood Capital of the World. Total food consumption—668,000 pounds.

Jobs

Nearly 65 per cent of the jobs in manufacturing in North Carolina are in five industries: textiles (36 per cent), apparel (10.8 per cent), furniture (9.6 per cent), food (4.9 per cent), and lumber (4.5 per cent).

Of 19 major industry classifications on which records are kept nationally, those five have the lowest average wages.

People

Projections call for North Carolina to rank tenth nationally in population by 1980 edging Massachusetts.

Distribution of people across the state is remaining fairly steady. A look at the record for five years shows the Piedmont is home for about half the state's 5.5 million people; the Coastal Plains has about one-third, and the mountains contain slightly more than 17 per cent.

Growth

Where are newcomers settling in North Carolina? The Piedmont was winning without challenge in the decade between 1960 and 1970. More than 69 per cent of the state's growth was in the Piedmont; 16.9 per cent in the mountains; and 13.8 per cent in Coastal regions.

For the past five years, growth has been distributed this way: 46.8 per cent in the Piedmont; 34.3 per cent in Coastal regions; and 19 per cent in the mountains.

Beaches

A record vacation year has left beach businessmen happy. Vacationers came to enjoy 338 miles of beaches, 12,000 motel rooms, 42 ocean fishing piers, 35 golf courses, 154 charter fishing boats, 50 campgrounds, 74 marinas, and 115 tennis courts.

Cafeterias

Last school year a total of 153.3 million lunches were served in the school cafeterias—an increase of 3.6 million over the previous year.

Ralph Eaton, director of food services at the State Department of Public Instruction thinks a combination of things such as more relaxed atmospheres (band concerts, art), and more freedom of choice account for the increase.

Breakfast is growing more popular in the school cafeterias, too. Last year more than 20.3 million were served.

Buses

It takes 845 mechanics to keep North Carolina's fleet of 11,700 school buses running delivering more than 760,000 students to school and back home each day.

Most of the drivers (9,000) are students which is a big part of the record low cost of $53.88 per student per year to provide transportation—the lowest per-student cost in the nation.

Sunday Morning Notes

Barbara Jarvis of The Daily Reflector office staff, took her daughter, Terri, to the Pitt County Fair last week.

The trip included a visit to the swine exhibit where Terri, age seven, became interested in a huge sow.

She asked its weight and was told that it was 550 pounds.

Terri thought about that for awhile, then commented to her mother, "It weighs more than you."

Someone called last week to say that the Home Savings and Loan Association time-temperature sign at Reade and Evans was showing 119 degrees.

Now for October, that's hot.

The Raleigh Times reports that City Council candidate G. W. Poole got swamped in last week's Raleigh municipal election.

The 25-year-old engineer received only 125 votes. His nearest competition received 1,107 votes and the next received 2,007 votes.

Was he perturbed? "I'm not going to lose any sleep over it," Poole said. "I've got a lovely wife, no bills and a half-tank of gas. So it doesn't crush my ego."

All that, and 125 sure friends.

The Boss put a bulky UNC System's report on your columnist's desk the other day.

The hefty volume pretty well weighted down the desk. A note was on top.

"Just in case you want to read the book before they make the movie," it said.

Can't wait for the movie.

And staffer Stuart Savage swears he was bitten by a leech as he hunted for shark's teeth in a county stream.

He said he noted a dark spot on his foot and assumed it was mud. He kicked, but it held on.

That was because it was a leech, Stuart says.

Somehow he got the creature off. There was a time when we believe leeches were good for your health.

An Old Craft Lives

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — Paul Lewis, who swears by the durability of homemade red oak shingles just as his grandfather did, still trains apprentices who eventually take up the business of restoring old homes.

The 73-year-old craftsman exhibits his knowledge of making shingles by hand at Catocin National Park every weekend from May to November. His apprentice works by his side.

"Red oak shingles will last over 100 years. One roof will stay on a house for a lifetime," he said, adding that his own

Other Editors Say Aid For Farmers

(The Wilson Times)

Writing about farming, and the many conditions which govern the success of the crops is interesting, but forecasts cannot always be factual. The reason farming is so hard to anticipate is the many conditions that influence it.

Take tobacco, we know when we have a good crop and high prices, for this is the biggest tobacco market in the world. But we cannot forecast the grain crops except from reports and this is true of cattle and the many crops which grow in this nation with its varied climate and soil.

The farmers' drought woes are over so the anticipated financial relief may shortly ease their money worries. You can see relief already appearing in improved grain and cattle prices a federal loan support and target price aid.

Several factors brighten the farm income and credit picture according to the experts. There is relatively low indebtedness. Half of our farmers have no debt at all. The current farm debt asset ratio is 18 per cent which is excellent compared with other segments of the economy.

Overall financial soundness is the way the American Farm Bureau Federation describes the farming conditions. We cannot forget that statistics do not tell the whole story. The farm people recognize you have to have good years and bad years. But when we have a bad farm crop it is a hardship on the people for we are dependent upon farming, tobacco especially. The crop this year is bringing in a high price for the top quality.

So agriculture is in pretty good shape. Land values have doubled in the last five or six years or in half the time of the complete price index.

Certain bullish elements have already entered the picture. Wheat prices have advanced every week for five weeks, corn and soybeans prices have firmed up. The outlook is not so depressed.

Another example of being unable to forecast what the farmers are doing is offered by the grain farmers in Colorado who are threatening a nationwide farmers' strike Dec. 14 if the government fails to support grain prices at more than double the current level. The farmers having the worst time are the ones who borrowed heavily in recent years.

So we come back to the beginning weather, soil, moisture and demand are all factors in the farmer's life. He has more to combat than those who pursue any other occupation and this will always be true. Farming is one profession we cannot do without, so we should take all points into consideration and cooperate with the farmers.

Displeasure In Money Market

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The news from the monetary front is somewhat distressing. After big advances in the money supply in recent months, the Federal Reserve now feels it has overextended itself and must pull back.

Too much money chasing too few goods leads to inflation, you see, or maybe you don't. How can anyone today be convinced there is too much money? It's like saying we have too many bullets for the number of enemy.

But the monetary generals have studied this issue in depth, and the answer is a bit more complex than that. Inflation is a modern scourge. It is a foe that must always be watched. And to the Fed, the time to do so is now.

This of course suggests some belt-tightening, and is even encouraging some fifth columnists to pronounce the onset of a period of relative austerity, perhaps even recession. It wouldn't be the first time we have been led into recession.

The Fed's generalship has long been under fire by its critics who, among other things, maintain that any need for a pullback in the money supply at this time is primarily a consequence of the Fed's earlier mismanagement.

It is more the excesses of the Fed, they claim, than the excesses of the economy itself. They cite the realities: high unemployment, unused industrial capacity, capital-raising problems. All are hurt by a pullback.

The generals of fiscal policy also are being barraged by criticism, mainly because of budget deficits and a belief by some congressional officers that incendiary socio-economic problems are cooled by spraying them with money.

A feeling also exists, if you can judge from the dispatches by correspondents close to the fiscal battle, that uncertainty, procrastination and sometimes equivocation can be detected in those leading the fight for economic peace.

Some captains of industry, for instance, maintain that government officials involved with economic strategy are more concerned with appeasing than fighting foreign competition, which they say is flooding the United States with below-cost goods.

One of the most visible measures of this public displeasure with monetary and fiscal leadership is the stock market, where some big investors have almost ceased activity. That is the market's most severe criticism.

Reflecting this mood, the most popular indicator, the Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks, fell this week to its lowest level in almost two years, even though some sources claim many stocks are greatly undervalued.

Battle-scarred veterans of previous monetary and fiscal battles maintain the situation these days is nothing new and that, in fact, we have faced the same dilemmas several times in the past decade.

Though weary and wary, they nevertheless have been sending communiques urging patience and confidence, but those receiving the messages seem to be saying that words cannot substitute for action in the war against inflation.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Presidential Crisis

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, the miracle worker of 1976, is now marked by critics as the political incompetent of 1977 whose compulsive industriousness has produced a swirl of confusing objectives and made him an easier prey for the vultures in Washington's power centers.

That a crisis now exists cannot be denied. The hope of Carter insiders that the President's popularity would survive in the countryside while his status fell in Washington was shattered by the NBC poll putting his approval rating at 46 per cent. What makes this descent alarmingly different from past presidential crises is that it comes from no war, no economic collapse and no major scandal.

Rather, its source is deep inside the methods and procedures of the Carter presidency. Although the President's popularity will surely rally, he is liable to stay in trouble so long as he conducts his office as he does now. Thus, the most distressing fact in Washington today is that there is no signal yet pointing to any significant changes in the way Jimmy Carter functions as President.

Although many Democrats blame Mr. Carter's problems on the profusion of leftist appointees pushing policies not compatible with his own, the criticism comes equally from left and right. Indeed, part of his troubles may derive from a deficit, not a surplus, of ideology. Not linked to a philosophy other than an obsessive work ethic, the President has forged ahead with overambitious programs, both domestic and international, many parts of which relate to no overall theme.

Voters expected a President bringing calm and stability. Instead, confides one middle-level administration official, "they got a Lyndon Johnson over-achiever" just as the presidency was entering a dangerously weakened state induced by Vietnam and Watergate. Mr.

Carter seeks to be a strong President in the Rooseveltian tradition at a time when the spirit of Congress makes that goal unreachable.

The inevitable defeats suffered in the collision between a massive program and an independent Congress with the bit in its teeth are compounded by the fact Mr. Carter not only is an outsider but came here boasting about it. Lacking real friends in Congress intimately tied to his fortunes, the President was set upon by Congressmen acting like vultures sniffing blood from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

There are also vultures in his own administration. No recent administration has evidenced less personal loyalty to the President within the departments. Officials at the assistant secretary level, picked by heads of departments in Mr. Carter's "cabinet government," owe their loyalty to the secretary rather than the President and show no hesitancy about criticizing the President. Lobbying on Capitol Hill, usually a source of White House power, is also diffused within the departments.

In this situation, the President himself — whose political assessments on the road to the White House seldom have been matched in shrewdness — might be expected to assess the situation and change it. Some senior aides believe the prodigious output of domestic and foreign initiatives must be slowed.

But like the sorcerer's apprentice, Mr. Carter is too busy to stop the process. A few insiders say his schedule is too fully booked to think seriously about his presidency. Aides proudly point to his appetite for official reading. He has devoted 26 full hours to studying the defense budget, and more such time is being set aside. He spent much of last week going over 200 pages packed with tax reform data.

Such total immersion would be unimaginable for statesmen such as Otto von Bismarck, Winston Churchill or Charles de Gaulle. "Jimmy sees things that any assistant secretary shouldn't see," one administration official told us. Mr. Carter is so deep in details that he seems compelled to push forward, further overloading his circuits.

The answer by many friends is to broaden his staff — "to get some aides in there with a little gray in their hair," in the words of one cabinet member. Yet it may be unrealistic to believe that newly recruited aides could succeed where old ones have failed in changing what very well may be Mr. Carter's set style.

The hard reality is that

Strength For Today

COMPASSION

Elizabeth Fray, an early Quaker, believed that she had been called by God to minister to British prisoners in the day when prisons all over the world were an outrage to decency and humanity. She was a woman born to privilege, yet she said that the reason why she took up her ministry was that "I feel like a contemptible fine lady, all outside, no inside."

Our Lord spoke his most terrifying parable against the rich man we call Dives who allowed the poor beggar Lazarus, covered with sores, to lie helpless and untended at his door. Dives appears not to have been a bad man. He merely feasted while others starved, and indulged himself while others suffered. Jesus consigned him to the fire of hell, begging for a drop of water to touch his parched tongue.

We need to think of Dives and Lazarus in these days when millions in the world are hungry. There is such a thing as being fine Christians "all outside" and "no inside."

To the editor:

Because of current concern for quality education (Many No's Heard on Proposal To Merge Schools, Reflector 10-5-77) and emphasis on the importance of community schools (Gov. Hunt's program), you may wish to read Sher and Tompkins' study, "Economy, Efficiency and Quality—The Myths of Rural School and District Consolidation (1976)". This report was prepared by the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C., and excerpted in Education Digest, April, 1977.

Sher and Tompkins say recent studies refute the long-held belief that consolidation improves the quality of education. They found "nothing less than a complete reversal of the traditional conclusions about the correlation between school size and children's achievement scores. In fact, of the recent controlled studies, there is NOT ONE which records a consistent, positive correlation between size and achievement, independent of IQ and social class." (emphasis by authors)

The authors say much consolidation and reorganization has gone on even though little evidence existed to support its claims because of the claims of the educators have not been challenged. Economy and efficiency "arguments asserted over and over and left unchallenged, came to be believed."

Another reason was that "performance outcomes were (and are) hard to measure, and even harder to agree on... ability to relate well to others, creativity, strong self-concept... therefore, most research focused on inputs — buildings, teachers' equipment, curriculum — and did not try to measure and compare outcomes."

They conclude "There are values in smallness that are lost with reorganization and consolidation. Second, alternatives should be seriously considered... resources can be brought to children, rather than forcing them to go to the resources. Third, research done to demonstrate the value of proposed reforms should be scrutinized carefully."

This is what the 14-month controversy in Grifton and Ayden is about.

Mrs. Cheryl Dumelow

To the editor:

When in the course of human events, arbitrarily and without explanation, a Board of Education takes away the right of the people, then it is time to stop electing and to start rejecting.

The 14-month controversy around removing a portion of the schools from two communities, Grifton and Ayden, is a case in point.

An elected representative is morally bound to listen to the people with an open mind and wherever possible, reflect their wishes. If 200 people oppose an issue and two are in favor of it, and the representative decides in favor of the two, then that is not democratic representation.

"When Free Men Shall Stand", a book by U. S. Senator Jesse Helms, says "the multitudes of parents who group themselves in neighborhoods and communities based on historic traditions, have the right to determine what kind of culture will be the setting for the education of their children. This is the heart of the matter."

A representative should represent people, instead of resenting them. If fulfillment of duty is not performed by local representatives, then do we have the right to criticize parents for striking back? NO!

To the editor:

I am a 23-year-old student of education at East Carolina University and I have a complaint on the bureaucracy of the university.

I do not understand why mature, intelligent people want to spend my tax dollars to build a crosswalk across 10th Street "for the students." I have not talked to one student who thinks it is a good idea, much less one that will use it. They say it is a dangerous crossing. There is a stoplight there! Most of the people I know were taught how to cross a street by the time they were old enough to cross one.

If the bureaucracy really wants to spend the taxpayers' money, I have a much better idea. Why don't they go in a parking lot in the same area on 10th Street and build a high-rise parking area for students? There is never enough parking area for students and it would soon pay for itself.

Let's say they build a four-story parking complex. They could charge 25 cents for the day. They would have students going in at 8 a. m. paying 25 cents for three or four hours and leaving. This would mean another student going in after the first and paying 25 cents for the rest of the day. If there were 20 parking places per floor, that would come to at least $10 a day or $50 a week. Counting only 27 weeks of the year, it would come to $270 a year. This would not include summer sessions.

I just cannot understand why the bureaucracy wants to build a crosswalk that is not wanted or needed and provides no return, when they could take the same money and build a parking area that is needed and would eventually pay for itself.

Lynn Nichols

To the editor:

Here is my story of how gullible people like me fall prey to schemes of those who think faster than we do:

On June 12, 1977 I returned the pre-prepared coupon, along with my check in the amount of $15.95, to Columbia Research Corporation.

However, as a result of publicity given the activities of the company in The Daily Reflector Hotline column June 14, I requested North Carolina National Bank to stop payment on my check.

I'm still getting letters about the "unavoidable delay" of the brand name items I am supposed to receive, but, thanks to Hotline, the company doesn't have my money.

If I ever receive the package, I'll send it to Hotline. Otherwise, I'm happy — and satisfied.

home was adorned with home-made shingles until fire destroyed them.

The process of splitting the wood and shaving the shingles down until they fit together is slow, he admits.

"A power mill can make a dozen while I make one," he said as he straddled a shaving horse. "Depending on the size, it takes about seven days to make 10 squares working 10 hours a day. There are 350 pieces of shingle in 10 squares."

Lewis retired seven years ago as a carpenter but said he has made shingles for "60 years on and off."

His tools were handed down to him through two generations, beginning with his grandfather. "It was a living. That's why I started to make them," he said. "I was the oldest of nine. My father fell down one day and an axe cut his arm. He was crippled for life. That's when I got started."

"I must like it or I wouldn't be here," he said of the trade. Lewis has six children of his own, including two sons. But he said his sons were not interested in learning the trade. They went into the contracting business.

Still, he said, "I'm training new ones who often go into the business of restoring buildings."

Douglass C. Reed, who has published several pamphlets on the art of restoring old buildings, worked under Lewis. "He learned everything he knows from me," Lewis added proudly.

A Conservative View

'Reform' Package Is Big

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

A couple of weeks ago, conservatives on Capitol Hill were having a merry time. They had just dealt organized labor a series of setbacks on the minimum wage bill in the House, and they were about to break their arms patting one another on the back. They can stop the exercise now. Face it, my brothers: We got clobbered.

There is no way to paper over the defeat suffered by the business community on October 6. By a vote of 257-163, the House approved a "labor reform" package that gives Big Labor its sweetest victory in 32 years. On the following day, the Senate made bad matters worse: The Senate approved a four-step hike in the minimum wage that would produce an hourly minimum of $3.40 by 1981. As Leo Durocher once remarked, in a different context, it was "Poil Harbuh for duh Gi'nts."

Credit ought to be given where credit is due. This was a personal triumph for Alexander Barkan, the 69-year-old chief of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education. He is a Dickensian figure, held in affectionate regard even by his right-wing foes. He turned up at a Capitol Hill reception on the night of the labor reform vote, grinning like a well-fed collie, his homely mug alight with honest jubilation.

A newsmen asked him how he brought it off. Well, said Al, it was organization — a lot of organization, plus a little bitty nudge at the end. Three months ago, COPE set up a Labor Reform Task Force in every congressional district where there appeared to be a chance of influencing a vote. An $800,000 fund was raised through special assessments. Union representatives then began to put the pressure on members of the House.

During the August recess, while members were mending fences at home, union spokesmen made it a point to pay a social call. Toward the end of September, when floor action was scheduled, the $800,000 fund was tapped to bring nearly 500 local union lobbyists to Washington. They systematically pounded the corridors of the three House office buildings, pleading a well-informed case for the bill.

Then came the little bitty nudge. Barkan's boys politely laid out the facts of political life to more than a hundred members who had enjoyed Big Labor's support in the 1974 and 1976 elections. "We just asked them to think about how they would like to get along without that support in 1978." No threats, says Al. No reprisals. Nothing ugly. Just think it over.

Members thought it over; and Al romped home with a margin of 80 to 100 votes on every critical amendment. By any objective yardstick, it was a very fine performance.

And it produced a very bad bill. This "labor reform" package is as imbalanced as the original Wagner Act of 1935. The measure is carefully drawn to give organized labor every possible advantage in its drive for new members — a drive of surpassing concern to the AFL-CIO. Over the past two years, the unions have lost 767,000 members; they now represent barely a fifth of the nation's labor force.

Victory For Unions

If the Senate goes along with the House proposal, Big Labor should be able to recoup — at the cost of some heavy-handed impositions on employers. The bill encourages hurry-up votes on representation elections; the bill would penalize employers who try to resist. To make certain the scales stay tilted, the bill would add two members to the National Labor Relations Board. It is a fair assumption that in any doubtful case, Mr. Carter's appointees would go along with Al.

The Senate will not take up the labor reform package until next year, but its vote of October 7 on the minimum wage bill offers no encouragement to the business community. The Senate rejected an attempt to provide a special sub-minimum wage for teenagers, and it added limitations to the House-passed exemptions for certain small businesses.

Conservative spokesmen will have to fall back and regroup. Businessmen staged their own fine performance some months ago, in defeating the common site picketing bill. Right-to-work forces also have worked effectively to forestall any serious effort for repeal of Section 14(b) of Taft-Hartley. But on the labor reform package, they face an uphill struggle. They might consider a task force in every state, an $800,000 special fund, an organized effort, and some well-directed nudges. What business needs most of all, if an envious word may be forgiven, is its own version of a guy named Al.

WHATEVER THEY DECIDE, YOU'LL PAY MORE!

A Let's-Forget Offer Is A One-Way Street

Phillip may not be able to remember the time of arrival of the guests he invited for Saturday night and forgot to tell me who were coming, or the last place he threw his blue jacket, or the last name of our closest friends — but he ALWAYS remembers our anniversary, my birthday, and Christmas, probably because I ALWAYS remind him at least two weeks ahead of time. And he always remembers with a special gift — that is, until our last anniversary.

"I don't think we should give each other anything for our anniversary," I told him two weeks beforehand. "We've bought paint for the downstairs and curtain material, and I think that's plenty of money to spend in one month."

"Are you sure?" he asked. "I know how you like to celebrate."

"Sure, I'm sure," I said. "We'll be at the beach with your family celebrating Labor Day anyway. We'll just make a pact to forget our anniversary this year."

So he did. He didn't give me a card that weekend. He didn't even tell me "Happy Anniversary." "That's all right," I thought. "I know he's got something special planned for dinner."

"Where are we going for dinner tonight?" I asked casually as I stepped out of the shower, scraped the dust off my hot curlers with a metal nail file and plugged them in, and doused myself with Chanel No. 22.

"Well, Mom and Pop asked us out to Spooner's Creek Restaurant," he said.

"They did?" I glowed.

"But I told them no." Noting that my chin had dropped to my knees, he added, "I thought we'd rather eat alone."

"You got a babysitter," I cooed.

"... alone with Meg," he continued. I stared with a sinking feeling at my frenetic daughter and my husband's khaki shorts. "Where?"

"How about Hardees?"

"How about soaking your head!" I yelled. "Do you know what day this is?"

"Yes, but you told me to forget it."

"Well, you were pretty successful!" I sniffled. "You can go catch your dinner on the pier for all I care. I'm staying here."

"If you feel that strongly about it, we can still meet Mom and Pop."

"No, it's too late," I sobbed. "I've lost my appetite."

He spent two days trying to make up. He brought me back a Huskie and fries that evening, which I promptly threw in the trashcan. He put Meg to bed and went out, casting meaningful backward glances, to the moonlit deck. I went to sleep in the extra bed. A week went by before I spoke a full sentence to him — and that was "Mother told me it was over when you gave me a vacuum cleaner for Mother's Day!"

Last week I saw a piece of furniture I really wanted, and I told him, "Oh, please let's buy it. You can give it to me now and just forget my birthday and Christmas."

He just stared at me for awhile, then said, very slowly, "You've GOT to be kidding!"

both the overambitious legislative program and the work habits are pure Jimmy Carter. The blunt assessment of one administration official — "he's not a statesman, he's an engineer" — may be too harsh, but it points to the problem.

Some of Mr. Carter's supporters outside the administration believe his first imperative is to slow the mad pace and offer voters the impression of calm and orderliness they had expected from him. Instead, he has scheduled frenetic barnstorming, starting coast-to-coast on Oct. 21 and then hitting four continents. Considering its unique nature, the Carter crisis may well be exacerbated by these standard efforts to revive the President's popularity.

Center Keeps Abreast Of Natural Disasters

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A landslide leveled three small villages high in the mountains of Yugoslavia, and eight people took notes in a basement near Harvard Square.

The next day, they darted after details about an earthquake shaking eastern Romania, 682 rare red-necked grebes wintering along the Massachusetts coast and a volcano spouting eight streams of lava in the Aleutian Islands.

Pestilence, catastrophe and assorted acts of God are the daily concerns of this curious group. It is the Center for Short-Lived Phenomena, perhaps the world's strangest news service.

For a yearly fee, they inform scientists, corporations, libraries and amateur naturalists around the world about oddities of man and nature.

Unlike the sooner-or-later approach of scholarly journals, this group thrives on immediacy. And depending on how much its subscribers are willing to pay, it will send daily telegrams or weekly packets of reports.

"We try to report everything around the world," says Richard Golob, the center's director. Everything boils down to about 300 "event notification reports" a year.

Typically, half of the reports concern natural events: earthquakes, tidal waves, fireballs, red tide, dolphin strandings, meteorites, mudslides, forest fires, epidemics and rat infestations.

The rest tell about pollution accidents. They range over chemical leaks in Chicago, oil spills in the Strait of Malacca and the escape of dangerous gas from a refinery in Houston.

The center was set up nine years ago as part of the Smithsonian Institution. It was intended to let the institution's scientists know about volcanoes and other natural outbursts so they could dash off to study them.

Two years ago, however, it split from the government and now is struggling to meet its $150,000 annual expenses as a private, non-profit organization.

It is trying to build a reputation of impartiality that will make it as trusted by conservation groups as by oil companies. MORE "Newspapers take a very man-oriented view toward the world," Golob says. "It's a different type of information that we provide. It doesn't focus on individuals. It focuses on events."

"We report all earthquakes 6.5 on the Richter scale and above. We report them whether they are on a remote island or kill 60 million people in China."

The reports are pieced together in a small suite of offices in the basement of a building on the fringe of Harvard University. Golob, 26, directs a staff that deals by mail and phone with a scattered global corps of correspondents.

The number of these contributors, 2,000, rivals the list of subscribers, 2,200.

Most contributors are government scientists and college researchers. But they also include common folk who happen to see the unusual. A cab driver in Chicago, for instance, calls with reports on pollution spills, and a radarman in Alaska watches vapor clouds over volcanoes.

"I always had a great conflict between doing work in a laboratory and being in the outdoors," Golob says. He has a biochemistry degree from Harvard, but the environment is as much a concern as molecular formulas. "So this organization is a very exciting marriage between my interests."

Dealing with nature on its most terrifying scale has given him a feeling about how man fits in.

"The constant exposure to volcanic eruptions, earthquakes and infestations does provide a very real sense of man's niche in the ecosystem," he says. "Man is one of many species occupying the planet, and the forces of the planet are so powerful that man cannot deal with them."

Most of the people who subscribe to the service receive the reports in weekly packets of postcards. The costs range from $35 a year for reports on natural science to $600 for telegrams on all of the center's reports.

Problems Marked Bing Crosby's First Marriage

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bing Crosby's death left millions of people around the world stunned with the intensity that the loss of a family member brings.

No show business figure, not even the late Elvis Presley, reached so many people in so many ways.

For more than 50 years his smooth-as-polished-oak baritone was heard throughout America, first as a member of the jazzy Rhythm Boys with Paul Whiteman's orchestra, then as solo singer for whom the word crooner was invented. His records sold more than any other singer's, his Paramount films were world-wide hits, his radio show was top-rated.

But Bing, who died of a heart attack Friday, never seemed at ease with his fame.

Crosby's on-screen nonchalance faded in his personal life. His first marriage to actress Dixie Lee was rocky, and his troubles with her contributed to his desire for privacy. When they married, she was a bigger star than he was, and her gaiety seemed to vanish when she assumed the role of Mrs. Bing Crosby and mother of their four sons.

Her drinking sent Bing into a dark period during which he was aloof and difficult.

Dixie Crosby died in 1952, and in 1957 he married a Columbia Pictures actress, Kathryn Grant, who was 30 years younger. They had their own family of a daughter and two sons and moved out of the Hollywood scene to Hillsborough, just south of San Francisco.

"Kathryn was a good influence on Bing," says a close family friend. "She got him out of his shell, and the kids kept him young, too."

After a period in which Bing seemed content to play golf and fish off Baja California, he re-activated his career in recent years. He sang at concerts in Los Angeles, New York, London and elsewhere, usually joined by his wife and one or more of their children.

Last March, he was hospitalized after tumbling 20 feet off a stage during the taping of a television special celebrating his 50th year in show business.

He had just wrapped up a tour of Britain, highlighted by a two-week, sell-out performance at the London Palladium, and was planning to tape some exchanges with Bob Hope for a TV special honoring his old partner's 40 years in show business.

He also was planning his first movie in 11 years, hitting the "Road" once more with Hope and Dorothy Lamour.

Not Brutal With Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter let it be known Friday that he doesn't think his discussions with Israel's foreign minister have been "brutal," and he denied threatening Israel with isolation if it didn't agree on preparations for Middle East peace talks.

At the same time, a White House official who asked to remain anonymous said Carter's top advisers felt he wasn't tough enough with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

"If anything, he was too mild and restrained," the official quoted one adviser as saying.

Talk With Hatem...

Hatem appeared in Parade magazine in 1973.

Lloyd Shearer in the article calls Hatem's accomplishment "one of the greatest, if not the single greatest achievement of the Communist regime of Mao Tse-tung."

"He is a very smart man," said Underwood.

"He was the brains of this outfit," he added, speaking of the 1972 class.

Underwood added that his colleague married a famous Chinese actress and they now have two children.

He wrote Hatem asking him to attend the 50th reunion, but Hatem was unable to do so. Underwood thought up the idea of calling him direct and letting the other classmates talk to the doctor.

With the help of Don Collier, of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph, the connection was made and the overseas operator in Denver, Colo. put Dr. Hatem on the line. A speaker phone and microphones were used to enable the 25 people in the room to speak to Hatem.

Prior to the conversation, Collier warned of the danger of atmospheric interference on a call of such distance. However, trouble arose only one time when static interfered for about a minute.

In speaking to his old friends, Hatem said, "It's nice to catch up again. What are you drinking?"

From there on, the conversation sounded like old buddies sitting in the same room shooting the breeze.

"It's been nearly 50 years, hasn't it?" he added.

"I'm sorry I couldn't make it. It's very thoughtful for you to do all this. All of you certainly sound young."

"I've waited for 50 years and you've waited for 50 years. One of us is going to have to break the ice," at which time it was decided that Hatem would visit Greenville soon for another reunion.

Before hanging up, one of the ladies in the group played a recording of an old song for Hatem.

The reunion was held in the Rotary Building on Rotary Street.

After the phone call, the classmates studied an old picture that Hatem would visit Greenville soon for another reunion.

"I get so excited about it. It's been half a century," said Lou Ray Roberson.

"We had a reunion in 1969, but there were about twice as many people here."

Edna Forbes played some familiar tunes on an old piano in the corner of the dining hall — "Young at Heart" and "Moon River." When it was over everyone was all smiles.

Community Chorus Elects Officers, Announces Plans

A new slate of officers for 1977-78 has been elected for the Greenville Community Chorus.

Patricia Hiss is president; Dan Pickett, vice-president; Jean Duff is secretary-treasurer; and Anne Langdale, parliamentarian. Others elected are Nancy Twigger, program director; and Edward Glenn, chorus director. Accompanists are Joe Goodwin and Mickey Terry.

A spokesman for the East Carolina University Student Union has informed that almost all tickets have been sold for the October 24 performance of Shinichi Suzuki's Talent Education Tour.

Persons wanting any of the few remaining tickets are urged to get them at the earliest possible time by telephoning 757-6611, or coming by the ticket office at Mendenhall. Also, holders of season tickets to the Artists Series are reminded that seats will not be held for patrons past 8 p.m. on the night of performance.

Officers also have appointed an Advisory Board of nine community persons who have agreed to help the chorus to develop fund raising programs.

Advisory Board members are Dr. Clyde Hiss, Dan Pickett, Phil Carroll, Dr. Jack Wilkerson, Nancy White, John McKonney, June Ficklen, Evelyn Evelyn Laupas, and Nancy Hannah.

The Advisory Board will correlate activities designed to raise matching funds for a $500 grant received by the chorus from the N.C. Arts Council.

Some of the means of achieving this will be to take segments of the chorus, ten to 15 members — to appear in concerts before local groups, church audiences and other public agencies.

Representatives of groups interested in such appearances are to contact (during evening hours after 6 p.m.) Nancy Twigger, 758-4410, or Edward Glenn, 756-1441.

Chorus rehearsals are held each Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Memorial Baptist Church. Candidates for membership in the chorus are welcome at any time, and interested persons can contact either of the two persons listed above.

The Greenville Community Chorus is a non-profit organization that for several years has presented two major concerts annually.

Tentative plans are for the chorus to be the opening entertainment for the summer 1978 "Sunday in the Park" series.

Why, heck if it wasn't for using Duxol for all this cookin', we'd have a whole winter's worth of wood burn't up by now. Nice thing about it, though, is our local Duxol guy. Why, that man's more reliable than company on Sunday afternoon. And, that's important when you're cookin' for folks like of Junior Samples. He can pack away more groceries than a sack at a supermarket.

When we need service, the Duxol guy takes good care of us. He even goes to special training sessions sponsored by his company. That's where he learns the fine points of home heatin', safety and all those agricultural and commercial applications.

When it comes to good gas service, the local Duxol guy is a step ahead. Give him a call and see what you can "cook up."

ECU News Bureau
East Carolina University's Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity has won the organization's national Outstanding Chapter Award for the 12th consecutive year.

The award was presented at the fraternity's annual national convention in Washington, D.C. last weekend, which drew delegates from campuses throughout the U.S.

Representing ECU were John Gilchrist of Kernersville, president of Tau chapter; Dr. Jack Thornton of the ECU economics faculty, the chapter's faculty advisor; Dr. Richard Todd, former faculty advisor to Tau chapter and national alumni representative; and the following student members:

Randy Ziglar of Walkertown, Barry Mitsch of Riverside, N.J., Ron Rouse of Sanford, Bobby Christiansen of Greensboro, Don Turner of Rocky Mount, Hal Sharpe of Lumberton, Mike Armstrong of Smithfield, Sam Collier of Goldsboro, Guy Taylor of Kinston, Ed Bean of Kannapolis, Bruce Pearce of Greenville and Mark McCoy of Moorestown, N.J.

Dr. Thornton was elected national historian for a two-year term.

Theme of the convention was "Meeting the Challenge." A keynote address was given by U.S. State Dept. official Brian Crowe, who spoke on economic problems of developing nations.

will give so much for every mile they walk or ride a bicycle. The course is 15 miles long and any part of it may be walked or ridden. There is a separate route for Grifton area participants.

There will be first aid station manned by volunteer nursing students from East Carolina University along the routes and also refreshment stands.

Benefit Bike-Hike Set

A "Hike-Bike" is to be held Saturday, Oct. 22 to raise money for the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens and WITN Sportscaster Ken Strayhorn is honorary chairman of the event.

Strayhorn, a Trenton native, is a former East Carolina University and pro football player, now on the staff of WITN television station in Washington, N.C. He holds five individual school records at ECU and played for the New York Jets of the NFL and the Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Canadian Football League.

Participants in the Hike-Bike are asked to have sponsors who

Smoking Withdrawal Clinic Scheduled

A smoking withdrawal clinic under the name "Kick The Habit," sponsored by the Eastern Lung Association, will be held in Greenville beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday, October 18.

The clinic will be conducted twice weekly, Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 7 to about 9 p.m. for a period of three weeks and will be held in the association's headquarters at 112 South Pitt Street — just across from the main post office.

A fee of $5 will be charged to cover costs of materials used for the six session clinic. Registration will be limited to approximately 20 persons, so early registration is advised. This can be arranged by calling 752-5093 or signing up at the association building.

The clinic will be conducted by Lorey White, Jr., executive director of Eastern Lung Association; Gary Taylor of the N.C. Health Services; Martin McDowell, of the Pitt County Health Education Office; and Connie Landen, program director of Eastern Lung Association.

A number of guest speakers including a physician, a nutritionist, a respiratory therapist, and smokers who have managed to quit smoking will also make appearances during the clinic.

"We are hoping to establish a positive approach to the struggle for smokers to give up the habit," White commented. "We want to focus on the fact a person will likely feel better and be in better health by not smoking."

Ken Strayhorn

First prize is a 10-speed bicycle and second and third prizes are U.S. Savings Bonds. There will be a special prize for the ECU organization raising the most money. A special booth has been set up at ECU for participants to sign up.

Chairman of the event are Margo Smith and Susan Peterson. Ms. Peterson will answer questions about the activity. Her phone number is 758-1683.

REAL Held Open House

A number of university and area community leaders attended the Open House at REAL Crisis Intervention held on Wednesday.

Among those attending were: Dr. Stephen Creech, Dan Kelly, Ben Webb, Dr. Ken Taylor, Dr. Robert Graham, Dr. John Childers, J. P. Sumrell, Dabney Overton, David Bosley, Paul Jarret, and Ed Turcotte.

In addition to a tour of the facility and a briefing on programs provided by REAL — Dial-A-Teen Employment, Rape Victim Companion service, the HELP Line, and Walk-In and Off-Site services, the Open House event also featured serving guests a spaghetti dinner.

William E. Harris, REAL's director, was presented an award from volunteer workers of REAL for his outstanding contribution and leadership since he took over as Volunteer Director July 1, 1977.

Tune-Up Course

Pitt Technical Institute is offering an 18-hour course beginning Oct. 19, at 7 p.m. in room 28.

Registration is $5 per person except for persons 65 years of age or older who will not be charged.

Enrollment is open to anyone 18 years of age or older and not enrolled in high school.

The course is designed to teach a person how to perform minor tuneups, change oil, etc.

For further information contact the Continuing Education Division of Pitt Technical Institute at 756-3130.

Rocks that have the composition and properties of granite predominate in the upper part of the earth's crust, while rocks with the properties of basalt prevail in the lower part.

PITT COUNTY'S NEWEST — Clarks Neck Fire Department is Pitt County's newest fire department being organized in late 1976. The department has 25 members and a new 750 gallon per minute pumper. Above, Assistant Pitt County Fire Marshal Tony Smart, left, talks with the station's first fire chief, Frankie Singleton. Ayden Clinic Opens AYDEN — A new satellite health clinic opened in Ayden Thursday following a formal ceremony led by Mayor Persinger.

The clinic will be an extension of the Pitt County Health Department.

According to Town Clerk Ralph Ford Ayden previously had a health clinic in the town Community Building.

"They didn't have any closed rooms in there, and they had trouble keeping the patients warm in the winter," he added.

Ford said that hopefully the clinic will soon be open on more than one day a week. Previously, it has only been in operation on Thursday.

The new clinic is located in the old Town Hall.

Survey Pitt Conditions

Are Americans becoming "turned off" by their jobs? What problems are being faced by the ever-growing number of women workers? How does a worker's job affect his or her family life?

Answers to these questions will be sought in a large-scale survey of working conditions that will begin in Pitt County this week when the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan begins interviewing 2,000 workers throughout the nation.

This is the third national survey of working conditions conducted by the Center. The first was in 1969; the second, in 1973. Future surveys will be made every four years in order to map changes in Americans' attitudes toward their work and the effects of their work on their lives.

Interviewers in Pitt County conducting this study are Virginia Lansche and Lynda Mann.

Salvation Army Sets Yard Sale

The Salvation Army is scheduled to hold a yard sale at the Citadel on Dickinson Avenue October 22 from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Freda Steinbeck, chairman of the project, urged local area residents to contribute clothing, household items, "things you can't make over because you don't sew, saw, mail or paint...things you don't want to stumble over, walk around, or stuff in your closet," to the project by bringing the items to the Citadel before October 22.

She noted that the proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase food and fuel and fund other emergencies during the winter months for less fortunate persons.

Bobby R. Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Henderson of Winterville, recently completed all requirements for his Ph.D. in Educational Leadership at Georgia State University, Atlanta, Ga.

A Winterville native, Dr. Henderson attended Robinson High School. He completed his undergraduate work at St. Augustine's College in Raleigh for his B.A. and earned his M.S.L.S. degree at Atlanta University in Atlanta, Ga.

Set Halloween Festival Plans

A Halloween festival will be held at the Ormondsville Free Will Baptist Church Thursday, Oct. 27.

A country store and haunted house are among the planned activities. Games will include darts and an apple bob. Hotdogs and drinks will also be available.

The festival will begin at 4 p.m.

Closing Week Of Activities

Sunday's service will close a week of activities involving the Warren Chapel Church members.

At 11 a.m. the choir, ushers, and congregation will render a service at Holly Grove F.W.B. in Lagrange.

At 7:30 p.m. the group will be back at Warren Chapel to celebrate the Senior Usher Board's annual anniversary.

The guest minister will be the Rev. Luke McLawhorn of Red Bank, N.J.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at the Pitt County schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — Teacher Workday
Tuesday — Sloppy Joe on bun, buttered corn, tossed salad, strawberry shortcake, milk;

Wednesday — (manager's choice) Fried or Barbecued chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, seasoned green beans, rolls, sliced peaches, milk;

Thursday — Vegetable-beef soup, crackers, sandwich, apple, cookies, milk;

Friday — Barbecue on bun, french fries, cole slaw, Jello with topping, milk.

'Bye, Bye, Birdie To Open 1977-78 Playhouse Season

At 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, October 19, the curtain will rise on the opening production of the East Carolina Playhouse 1977-78 season, with the presentation of Bye, Bye, Birdie directed by Edgar Loessin.

The play will run for a total of four performances—on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 19-22. Tickets are $3.50 each, with group prices for 20 or more persons at $3 each.

Production choreographer is Frank Wagner, and Barry Shank will conduct the Playhouse Orchestra. Sybil Thornton is stage manager.

Lucien Henderson has the role of Conrad Birdie, the rock-and-roll singer who is drafted into the armed forces.

Bill Vann is cast as Alert Peterson, Birdie's publicity manager, and the role of secretary Rosie Alvarez is to be played by Janice Vertucci.

Others in the cast are: Kim Woolen as Kim McAfee; Vandy

Behr and Tim Shank alternating as Kim's little brother; Ursula, Sally Nell Clodfelter; Kim's boyfriend Hugo, Dave Massengill; and Kim's parents, Mick Godwin and Connie Hilliard.

Also in the cast are Anita Brehm as the eccentric mother; Cary Page as Gloria Rasputin; McCall Thompson as Charles F. Maude; Myron Carter as the town policeman; John Jeter and Charlotte Cheatham in the roles of the mayor and his wife; Ed Gaines, Mr. Johnson; and Sharon Wood, Mrs. Merkle.

Chorus members are: Alecia Baucom, Jennifer Brandt, B. J. Denny, Holley Jerome, Anita Lancaster, Valeria Segreaves, Denny Wright, Gregory Woolard, Aubrey Simpson, Jeff Krantz, Kim Shipley, Steve Williford, Tina Padilla, Lisa Clark, Lisa Black and Phyllis White.

Tickets for Bye, Bye, Birdie are now on sale at the East Carolina Playhouse Box Office in McGinnis Auditorium. Reservations may be made by phoning 757-6390 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

HOMEMADE MUSIC — Houston Southerland, 89, says he passes time by doing "as little as possible," but his neighbors might disagree. Southerland reads avidly (three newspapers a day), tends a large garden, and whittles his own musical instruments. Here he is seen playing an instrument that he whittled out of pine. (AP Laserphoto)

Indian Speaks By Song

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tommy Overstreet's Indian name is Hatak Ya Achi A Ataloo — man who speaks by song.

It certainly fits. Overstreet, the descendant of an Indian princess and an honorary chief of the Choctaw nation, has had five No. 1 country music songs and 17 straight crowding the top of the charts.

Perhaps it's because he values success more highly than money and remains unsatisfied despite his accomplishments.

"I have never put money as the prerogative of my career," Overstreet said in an interview. "It doesn't take a lot of money to make me happy."

His ambition thrives despite No. 1 hits like "M en Congratulations," "I Don't Know You Anymore," "Heaven Is My Woman's Love," "Ann, Don't Go Running" and "Jeannie Marie, You Were A Lady."

"One of my goals is to write a song that will live beyond my time — a standard," he said. "I also want to get involved with three or four acts — do some producing."

He's one of the busiest country music singers. A reporter caught up with him recently during a brief stopover between engagements in Buffalo, N.Y., one night and Atlanta the next.

"I haven't had a vacation in 12 years," he said. "I don't have a hobby except art collecting. I guess I'm kind of boring."

He's wrong. His art collection, 30 oil paintings worth an estimated $20,000, sets him apart from Nashville's country music set. The prototype country singer — most comfortable in a rhinestone suit singing a cheating song in West Texas — is an unlikely connoisseur of art.

He and his parents ran an art studio on Music Row for about a year.

"It was a lot of fun," said Overstreet, 39. "But we didn't make enough money to hire outside help so we closed it."

His fans were surprised recently when he returned from a 30-day tour of Europe with a beard and gray hair. "I dyed my hair until just recently," he confessed. "I was gray at 20. I feel more natural than I have in a long time. I'm more relaxed on stage."

His striking change in appearance should help alter a worrisome image.

Hospitality House

The opening of the 1977-78 Christmas Seal campaign and an interview with Bugs Barringer are the two events to be seen today on Kay Currie's Hospitality House. The show will air from 11:30 to noon over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Lorey White, Jr., Executive Director of the Eastern Lung Association, and George Rouse, president of the association, are guests discussing the forthcoming campaign. Also, hostess Currie is serving for the second consecutive year as campaign chairman for sale of the familiar Christmas seals.

Bugs Barringer, a professional journalist who writes a garden column, discusses a book edited by himself, his wife, and Leal Chesson. The book, Rocky Mount — A Pictorial History has recently been published by a Norfolk publisher.

Freddie McLean Recital Set

Freddie McLean, bassoonist, a senior in the East Carolina School of Music, will perform in a recital at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

He will be accompanied by pianist Carroll Ridenhour, and assisted by Dr. Charles Bath, pianist and his bassoon teacher, David Hawkins. Hawkins will play the oboe in the Poulenc composition.

Works to be performed by McLean are: von Weber's Andante and Hungarian Rondo; the Vivaldi Concerto in G Minor; Concert Piece by Burill Phillips; and Poulenc's Trio for Piano, Oboe and Bassoon.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

New Director For Boys' Choir

THOMAS HAWLEY, JR. ... is the new director of the Greenville Boys' Choir. He is currently a music therapist at Caswell Center and Director of Choirs, First Christian Church, Greenville.

Thomas E. Hawley, Jr., a music therapist at the Caswell Center in Kinston and Director of Choirs of the First Christian Church in Greenville, has been named the new director of the Greenville Boys' Choir.

A native of Dunn, Hawley holds the BA degree in English-Psychology from Campbell College; a certificate in German from the University of Heidelberg, Germany; and the BM degree in Church Music-Music Therapy from East Carolina University.

"I'm looking forward to a very exciting year in working with the boys' choir," Hawley commented. "There are a number of things planned that I'm excited about. Hopefully," Hawley added, "this choir will become one of the outstanding boys' choirs in North Carolina."

Hawley noted that among plans being made are to order new music and to arrange some trips for the members.

"I would like," he said, "to take this opportunity to encourage more community sup-

'Cabaret' On Tuesday

The popular Broadway musical that deals with the decadence of Berlin in the 1930's, Cabaret, is coming to Greenville for a one-time performance.

Cabaret, sponsored by the East Carolina University Student Union Theater Arts, will be on stage at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18 in Wright Auditorium.

Set during the frantic days just before the Hitler regime in Germany, Cabaret is a haunting evocation of a dream world of shadows that helped people forget the real world looming outside.

Cabaret's plot hinges on the relationship of two outsiders, Sally Bowles and Clifford Bradshaw. The musical opened on Broadway in 1966 and ran three years. It won both the New York Drama Critic's Award and the Tony Award as the best musical of the season.

New York Times drama critic

Walter Kerr wrote "Anything we learn of life during the evening is going to be learned through the tipsy, tinkling, angular vision of sleek roughed-up clowns who inhabit a world that rains silver."

Life magazine called Cabaret a "sociological document in jazz tempo... one of the best musicals in Broadway's history."

Tickets for the single performance are priced at $5 (or by a season ticket priced at $10 for four Theater Arts productions). These are available from the ECU Ticket Office, telephone 757-6611.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Linda M. Stancill

Among the current fiction are novels of suspense by popular authors in the field.

Evelyn Anthony, known for her novels of international intrigue and romance, gives us her most ambitious and engrossing novel yet with THE SILVER FALCON. Sweeping from the Kentucky bluegrass country and the legendary stud farms of Ireland to Paris' glittering Longchamp, and climaxing at Epsom Downs on Derby Day, it is the story of a beautiful young widow caught between her husband's deathbed wish and the ambitions of the men who love her. Isabel Schriber's husband died leaving her a vast racing empire and a simple request that his colt, Silver Falcon, stand in the winner's circle at Epsom Downs on Derby Day. Schriber had bred and trained the horse specifically for the English Derby, pinnacle of races. Isabel's attempt to make his dream a reality evokes the world of multimillionaire breeders, reckless bettors and their beautiful reckless women, and fills THE SILVER FALCON with haunting fear and taut suspense.

John Le Carre's last tremendous success, TINKER, TAILOR, SOLDIER, SPY ended with the devastating unmasking of a double agent at the heart of the British Secret Service. Now in Le Carre's THE HONOURABLE SCHOOLBOY, George Smiley, who has assumed the unenviable job of restoring the health and reputation of his demoralized organization, goes over to the attack. Salvaging what he can of the Service's ravaged network of spies, summoning back a few trustworthy colleagues, and working around the clock, he searches for a clue that will lead him back to his opposite number, Karla, the Soviet officer in Moscow Centre who masterminded the infamous treachery. Set in the Far East, the odyssey moves from Hong Kong and black-mail and murder to collapsing Cambodia and Vietnam and drug traffickers, to the CIA, and a huge and mystifying "gold seam" spilling out of Russia. Jerry Westerby, an Old Asia Hand surrounded by Smiley, thrusts himself into the centre of an intrigue of money, defection, passion and finds not only fertile grounds for Smiley's revenge, but a drama of loyalty and love that tests his courage and spurs his belated coming of age, in tragic defiance of the voracious requirements of the Service which owns his allegiance.

In John Hersey's latest novel of suspense, THE WALNUT DOOR, we watch the fateful convergence of two lives. A young woman flees from her suddenly unbearable "college kid" self and from the place and lover that were part of it to a strange city anxiously waiting for something new and important to begin. A man, breezy, pony-tailed and beautiful, who's been stranded by the passing of the sixties whose excitements had nurtured and consumed him, now lavishes himself on loving craftsmanship, on the construction of wooden doors, on the mystery of locks, and on the artful offering of security of these locks and doors to women who are alone. The meeting of this young woman and this man and their love affair are revealed in THE WALNUT DOOR, a novel that enlightens the fearful and the fear-makers in our decade.

Poet To Read Thursday

Greenville poet Gerda Nischan will read some of her poetry in a reading to be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, October 20 in the auditorium of the Biology Building, East Carolina University. Some of the selections she will read are poems recently published in Red Sky in the Night.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

In the span of three years since she first began writing poetry in English, German born Ms. Nischan has had more than 80 poems published by 40 magazines in the U.S., England, Germany, and Australia. Five poems from Red Sky in the Night were just recently published in both the original English version and in German translations in a popular German magazine with a circulation of more than four million.

Ms. Nischan is also scheduled to read at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C. on December 1; and for 1978 she has been booked for readings at Rutgers University, the University of California, Berkeley, and at San Francisco City Center.

ACC Exhibit

WILSON — A first exhibit of works from the Atlantic Christian College permanent collection is now on view and will be up through Oct. 29.

The exhibit is at the Case Art Building Gallery, and includes more than 40 drawings, paintings, graphics and ceramics.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. The gallery will be closed Oct. 17 and 18, but will re-open Oct. 18. There is no admission charged.

Autograph Party

An autograph party for poet Gerda Nischan will be held at the East Carolina University Student Store on Wednesday, October 19. The event will begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until 2 p.m.

Nouveau Rediscovered

By RUTH E. GRUBER

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Thanks to a recent wave of nostalgia, the world has "rediscovered" the sinuous forms of Art Nouveau, the graceful Gay '90s style of architecture. And Brussels is where it all began.

Several masters of the distinctive turn-of-the-century movement lived and worked in the Belgian capital — including Victor Horta, acknowledged to be the father of Art Nouveau architecture.

Some masterpieces have been torn down during bursts of urban renewal — one art historian has termed the Belgians "relentless" in their destruction of the past — but buildings by Horta, Paul Hankar, Josef Hoffman and others still dot the city.

These include Hoffman's magnificent Hotel Stoclet, with its famous understated facade, statuary and dining room murals by Austrian artist Gustav Klimt, and the Gustave Strauven house on Square Ambiorix, with its fantastic swirling metalwork.

It was on a residential Brussels sidewalk that Horta erected a home for the Tassel family in 1893, stunning the architectural world and creating what became known as a whole new architectural language.

This language drew its elements from branches, tendrils and other natural forms.

"It is a date, a grand date in the history of architecture," wrote turn-of-the-century art historian Sander Pierron of the Hotel Tassel's construction. "The first manifestation of a movement that is now victorious, the first modernist work in the order of time..."

The home made use of iron and glass — relative newcomers as structural materials — and introduced a facade of windows and decorative ironwork in what became the typical Art Nouveau style.

According to Franco Borsi in his book "Brussels 1900" the Tassel home "emancipated the Belgian cultural world from French classicism."

But it was only a beginning for Horta and the others. They put up house after house — as well as public buildings and shops — at an astonishing rate until World War I halted their activity.

Many considered the Maison du Peuple — the People's House — Horta's major single creation. A complex of shops, cafes, auditorium and meeting rooms built for the Belgian Workers Party in 1895-99, it wedded the sinuous Art Nouveau lines to a practical structure. The building was torn down in 1965.

Of all the Horta buildings still remaining, however, none compare with the architect's own home and studio at 25 Rue Americaine — if only because it probably was the most lovingly designed.

Preserved as a museum, it is also the most accessible.

Sherbeck Reception Today

BELHAVEN — Paintings by Carmen Sherbeck of Waynesboro, Va. will go on view at EEI's little KORNERS of the World today with a reception for the artist from 1 to 5 p.m.

For her show, Ms. Sherbeck has scenes ranging geographically from the Shenandoah Valley to water and harbor scenes. Many of these were sketched along the intercoastal waterway.

The artist is showing oils, watercolors, lithographs and silkscreens, in both realistic and abstract styles.

She has studied with Dr. Emily Farnham (at Mary Baldwin College), with Carl Peters and Maxwell Star. Exhibitions of her work have been held in Alberta, Canada, Paris, Stockholm, and in New York, Washington, D.C., Virginia, Indiana, Tennessee and North Carolina. She is the winner of a number of major painting awards.

The public is invited to attend the reception and to meet the artist.

with previously finished product (right). He buzzes Indian heads, squirrels, horses, dogs, cats, monkeys and mushrooms — from eight inches to three feet in height. (AP Laserphoto)

Watercolors At Gray Gallery

North Carolina is handsomely illustrated in a big show of watercolors now on exhibit at the Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus.

In the 1977 Annual North Carolina Watercolor show, 65 artists are showing a total of 90 watercolor paintings.

Realistic styles predominate in this show that richly covers the state's variety of land forms — mountains, gentle hills and seashore.

While one of North Carolina's best known architectural features, the tobacco barn, is more than adequately represented, this show is by no means one that caters only to picturesque Tar Heel scenes. People, flowers, a lone nude painting, and an occasional out-of-state scene are among the subjects in the show.

Based on this statewide cross section of contemporary watercolor work, North Carolina watercolor artists to a great degree prefer using watercolors like paint. Only a few of the artists utilize this medium to create light, airy, painting with Purchase Award painting.

The second place award was given to Thomas Bruce Cowan for a highly realistic quartet of watermelons, and ECU's Bill Holley received the third place award as well as an honorable mention.

The 1977 N.C. Watercolor show is competent and professional, but one generally without the pleasures that the best watercolor painting can generate.

Jerry Raynor

TOP AWARD WINNERS . . . "Land Formations," a watercolor by Ruth Ogle of Raleigh; and "Watermelons," by Thomas Bruce Cowan of Rutherfordton, are the first and second place award winners in the 1977 annual N.C. Watercolor Show. The show is now on view in the Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the ECU campus.

Irreverent Review Of London

By PAUL TREUTHARDT

Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Londoners who survived the Blitz should be able to live through a wickedly irreverent review of their city by two French food and travel writers, but the guide may change the habits of French tourists.

The French-language guide written by Henri Gault and Christian Millau surveys "1,500 good, very good and very bad addresses in and around London" and concludes the city is "the most exciting, the most absurd and, to say it all, the most exotic" in the world.

Written for the thousands of French tourists who go there to spend devalued pounds, the guide has high regard for London's many pubs and specialty shops but hilarious scorn for some of its better-known restaurants and hotels.

Wilton's serves "infamous lobster newburg, a creme caramel as insipid as a kiss from the Queen Mother, and a check which is a slight case of indecent assault," the critics wrote.

The Playboy Club, they said, is like "an aquarium where they forgot to change the water."

London's famous hotels were showered with faint praise.

The Grosvenor House is "a railroad station on a strike day," they said. "Don't venture into the succession of salons without an apenstock and good walking boots — night may fall en route."

ECU's Long Plays Smoke Richmond

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Some years back, when Muhammad Ali was first starting out, he fought Sonny Liston in a rematch, and kayoed him in the first few seconds of the first rounds. The late arrivals missed it all.

Pirate Jimmy Southerland looks for his pitch man.

the University of Richmond counterpunched with a 94-yard kickoff return for another touchdown.

It took the Pirates only six more plays to regain the lead, 14-7, and after that the Bucs danced their way to a 35-14 win over the Spiders.

In a way, it was sweet revenge for the Pirates, who last lost in Ficklen Stadium in 1975 to these same Spiders from Richmond.

The Pirates put five touchdowns into the end zone in several different ways. Quarterback Jimmy Southerland started the TD parade with a 49-yard race down the sidelines, but that was matched by Demetri Kornegay's 94-yard kickoff return.

Eddie Hicks then put the Pirates ahead to stay with a five-yard burst.

In the second period, Southerland hit Terry Gallaher on a 71-yard scoring pass, and Gerald Hall raced 80 yards with a record-setting punt return to up the lead to 28-7. Richmond scored on a fake reverse with Buster Jackson going 22 yards, and Leander Green finished off the scoring for East Carolina with a 60-yard run that really covered over 100 yards.

The offense of the Pirates ground out the yardage in their best performance of the year, picking up 558 yards. Richmond got only 238 yards overall.

The action was fast and furious at the start, but slowed down after those first frantic five minutes.

On the first play from scrimmage, Southerland faded back and hit Gallaher for a 35-yard aerial from the ECU 16 to the Richmond 49. After no gain on the second play of the game, Southerland went around the left side of the line and raced down the sidelines for the touchdown. Creech's kick with 13:38 left made it 7-0.

But it stayed that way only for 12 seconds. That is the time it took Kornegay to gather in the ball at the six and find an opening down the left side of the field. He broke into the open quickly, and raced all the way, and Adams' kick tied it up at 7-7 with 13:26 to go.

The Bucs started their next drive at their own 23.

On the second play, Theodore Sutton broke through the middle, was almost knocked down, but kept his balance, and got away to run all the way to the Spider 17 before Dave Haynie finally pushed him out of bounds.

Vince Kolanko got five yards on two plays, and Sutton returned for seven more to the five. Southerland then started left, pitched to Hicks, who went the rest of the way for the score. Creech again kicked, and the Pirates were back ahead, 14-7. The clock showed 10:18.

On their third possession, the Pirates drove again, but were finally stopped on downs after reaching the Spider 28. Richmond later drove to the ECU 26 before an Adams field goal attempt of 43 yards was short.

The Pirates took over on the 20, and on the first play, Sutton went for nine. On the next, Southerland went down the line as if to run it, but suddenly planted and tossed a long bomb to Gallaher, who had his man beaten down the sidelines. The pass covered 71 yards and the touchdown put the Pirates into a 21-7 lead with 8 minutes left in the half.

Less than two minutes later the Pirates were back on the scoreboard. Richmond punted from its own 21, and Hall pulled it in on the ECU 20. Hall found a hole quickly, and outraced the Spiders as he went all the way for the score.

The 80-yard run the mark for the longest punt return, formerly 77 yards set by Bobby Ellis against Lenoir Rhyne in 1965.

That made it 28-7 with 6:48 showing.

The Spiders drove for their second touchdown following the kickoff. The drive seemed to have stalled at the 34, however, when Jesse Williams picked up ten yards on third and six. Then, from the 22, on fourth and eight, the Spiders faked the same play, but this time; tailback Jackson kept the ball, and went around the right end for the final 22 yards and the score. Adams' kick cut the lead to 28-14 with 2:08 left in the half.

The lone score of the second half came on a freak play. The Pirates, facing a third and five from their own 40, saw Green scoot down the line, and just as he was about to pitch to his trailing back, he was hit. The ball

Tigs Claw Blue Devils

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Fuller rambled 3 yards for one touchdown and fullback Lester Brown took a 7-yard pitch from Fuller for another score as Clemson rallied in the second half to defeat Duke, 17-11, in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game Saturday.

The Clemson offense, stifled in the opening half, came to life in the third quarter, led by long passes from Fuller to Anthony King and Jerry Butler.

The Tigers took a 17-3 lead in the fourth quarter when Brown gathered in Fuller's pitchout on first-and-goal and ran 7 yards around the right side to score. On the previous play, Butler had taken a third down pass from Fuller that covered 47 yards.

But led by the scrambling and passing of quarterback Mike Dunn, Duke came back late in the game to cut the Clemson lead to 17-11. Dunn tumbled backward into the end zone on a 4-yard keeper to give Duke its only touchdown with 4 minutes left in the game.

Then, on a two-point conversion attempt, Dunn carried several would-be Clemson tacklers over the goal line to bring Duke within 6 points.

Duke missed a chance for another offensive drive when the Blue Devils fumbled a Clemson punt at the Duke 48 with 2 minutes remaining in the contest. Duke got the ball back for the final play of the game, but Dunn was sacked while trying to pass from his own 32.

Clemson's first score came after Tiger defensive tackle Jim Stuckey intercepted a deflected Duke pass on the first play of the second half. The Tigers then moved 55 yards in six plays including a 26-yard pass from Fuller to King. Fuller capped the drive with a 3-yard keeper around left end that gave Clemson a 7-3 lead.

The Tigers increased their lead 10-3 later in the third quarter on a 46-yard field goal by Obed Ariri. Flanker Dwight Clark had kept the drive alive when caught a 14-yard third down pass from Fuller that gave the Tigers a first down at the Blue Devil 44.

Duke's first scoring drive was set up when sophomore cornerback George Gaudin recovered a fumble by Brown at the Clemson 37. Duke kept the ball on the ground, traveling to the Clemson 13 before, Scott Wolcott booted a 31-yard field goal with 10 minutes left in the half.

Tar Heels Hand Wolfpack First Conference Loss

(AP Laserphoto)

N.C. State QB Johnny Evans is chased by T.K. McDaniels.

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

RALEIGH — A fake field goal and an interception return for a touchdown helped the University of North Carolina to a 17-0 halftime lead and the Tar Heels rode the amazing running of tailback Amos Lawrence to two additional second-half scores for a 27-14 victory over N. C. State yesterday afternoon.

The difference in the ballgame was actually greater than the final score indicated as the Tar Heel defense held the Wolfpack in check until midway through the final period with the score, 27-0.

For the Pack, it was a case of too little too late as State's late rally added some excitement to the final minutes, but never threatened to change the outcome of the contest.

A record Carter Stadium crowd of 51,300 watched as UNC dominated every phase of play, except passing (nearly three-quarters of the State passing yardage came in the final period), in handing NCSU its first Atlantic Coast Conference defeat of the season against three wins. Carolina is now 2-0 in the conference.

The Tar Heels picked up two touchdowns and a field goal in the first half. Tom Biddle, who booted a pair of three-pointers, got the scoring started with a 38-yarder in the first quarter. His other field goal came in the third period, a 21-yarder. Biddle also kicked three PAT's.

Brooks Williams scored the first TD for the Heels, a six-yard pass from quarterback Matt Kupec. Linebacker Buddy Curry rounded out the first half scoring with a 31-yard interception return, while Bob Loomis scored the other UNC touchdown on a 16-yard run.

Quarterback Johnny Evans passed for both of the State scores. The first was a 38-yarder to Lin Dawson and the other was a 10-yarder to Ted Brown. Jay Sherrill kicked PAT's after both scores.

Biddle's field goal was about the only action in the first quarter of play. It capped a 40-yard Carolina drive, which was helped along by Doug Paschals four-yard run up the middle on fourth-and-one at the Wolfpack 31. Paschal, a Greenville native who seems to have carved out a place for himself as the Tar Heel's short-yardage specialist, rushed for 54 yards in the game.

Lates in the initial period, the Tar Heels took over at their own 43 following a State punt.

Tailback Phil Farris moved the team to a first down at the Wolfpack 46 and tailback Amos Lawrence picked up another first-and-10 at the 32 with a 12-yard run over the left side.

A holding penalty bogged down the drive however, and Biddle lined up for a 50-yard field goal attempt on fourth-and-12. Holder Jim Rouse quickly rolled to his left on the play, however, and hit Brooks Williams in the clear. The Tar Heel tight end got down to the 13 before being stopped by Kyle Wescoe.

Two plays later, Kupec found Williams in the end zone. He caught the ball in a crowd for the six-yard TD. Biddle's extra point made it 10-0 with 11:52 left in the second quarter.

A trade of turnovers resulted in a missed Biddle field goal and the Wolfpack took over on the State 20. A good run by Ted Brown on a screen pass moved the ball to the 36, but Evans was sacked on the next play.

The Wolfpack ran a pass on second-and-23, but Buddy Curry intercepted the Evans toss in the left flat and headed for the corner, falling into the end zone with 3:42 left in the half. Biddle's kick gave the Tar Heels a 17-0 lead.

Freshman sensation Lawrence, known as "Famous Amos" in Carolina country, keyed both the Tar Heels' second-half scoring drives. The 5-9 170-pounder was the leading rusher in the game with 225 yards on 28 carries.

A 22-yard gallop on a pitchout by Lawrence gave the Tar Heels a first down at their own 42 on their first possession of the second half and a facemask penalty on the next play moved the ball into Wolfpack territory at the 38.

Lawrence then picked up seven yards on first down after reversing his field and Paschal went over right tackle for two yards on third-and-one. The drive was stopped right about there, however, and Biddle was short on a 49-yarder.

Apparently having trouble finding a weakness in the Carolina defense, the Wolfpack punted after only four downs. The Tar Heels took over at their 22 and Lawrence found a big hole of left tackle on first down, scampering 42 yards to the State 36.

The Tar Heels moved the ball down to the five when Kupec nailed Williams with a nine-yard pass behind good protection.

Paschal hit the line twice, but penetrated only to the four and Kupec was run out of bounds at the line of scrimmage when he was unable to find a receiver on first down. In came Biddle, who hit on a 21-yard attempt for a 20-0 UNC lead with 3:30 left in the third.

Ken Sheets recovered one of five State fumbles at the Carolina 32 to launch the Tar Heels' final scoring drive. Again, it was Lawrence providing the fireworks as he went twisting over the left side for a 53-yard run to advance the ball to the State 22.

Two runs pushed the Tar Heels down to the 16 where fullback Bob Loomis took a handoff on a quick opener of the right side and scored with 14:50 on the clock. The PAT kick by Biddle made it 27-0.

State failed on two more drives, one ending in a fumble and the other a punt, before finally starting to click offensively. Evans directed both the efforts and his scrambling passes were the key to the Wolfpack's late success.

Defensive end Marion Gale got State on the right track with an interception of a Kupec pass at the Wolfpack six. Evans completed six passes in the nine-play, 94-yard drive and ran for 16 yards. The touchdown came when Evans, on an amazing scramble, passed to Lin Dawson for a 38-yard TD with 6:09 left in the game.

Sherrill, who booted the PAT, hit a pop-fly on the kickoff and it was recovered by Danny Miller for State at the Carolina 47. The Pack drove down to the 10, but were seemingly stopped there with a fourth-and-eight before Evans, under pressure, threw the ball up for grabs and Brown caught it in a crowd for the game's final TD at the 4:19 mark.

The Wolfpack will have another tough ACC game next week when it travels to Clemson, Carolina will host South Carolina on the same day.

Guidry Gives Yankees 3-1 Series Lead

(AP Laserphoto)

Winning pitcher Ron Guidry relaxes after guiding the Yankees to a Series triumph, 4-2.

Sooner Run Away

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Oklahoma's quick striking offense sprang Thomas Lott for sprints of 65 and 62 yards and Elvis Peacock for a 35-yard touchdown burst as the seventh-ranked Sooners survived a rash of turnovers to defeat Missouri Saturday 21-17.

Missouri, with quarterback Pete Woods passing for more than 220 yards in his first start since suffering a knee injury in the season opener, stormed to a 10-0 lead with less than a minute remaining in the first half.

Then Lott swept around left end for 62 yards to the Tiger 18, and two plays later lofted a surprising pass out of the rumortied wishbone formation to tight end Victor Hicks, who was alone in the end zone.

Missouri drove deep into Oklahoma territory with less than a minute remaining, but Darroll Ray intercepted Woods' pass and returned 71 yards to snuff Missouri's final bid.

Oklahoma, 5-1, took control of the game with two quick touchdowns in the opening minutes of the third quarter following a 27-yard Missouri punt and an interception of a Wood's pass.

Oklahoma took over on the Missouri 46 with its first second half possession and on second and 13, Peacock cracked over left tackle and zipped untouched 35 yards for the go ahead touchdown.

Georgia Downs Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Quarterback Jeff Pyburn ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday as Georgia defeated fumble-plagued Vanderbilt 24-13 in Southeastern Conference football.

Pyburn, a sophomore, scored on runs of four and 18 yards within the last 11:20 of the fourth quarter after Vanderbilt had led 13-10. It was the fourth victory in six games for the Bulldogs and their second in three SEC games. Vanderbilt, which skidded to its fourth straight loss, is 1-5 overall and 0-3 in the conference.

Commodore fumbles led to Georgia's opening touchdown and go-ahead touchdown. Vanderbilt quarterback Mike Wright fumbled the ball away early in the fourth quarter at his 30-yard line, setting up Pyburn's first score of the final period six plays later.

Huskers Upset By Iowa State

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Scott Kollman's 32-yard field goal proved the winning margin as Iowa State used total teamwork to upset ninth-ranked Nebraska 24-21 Saturday in a key Big Eight Conference football game.

Nebraska I-back I.M. Hipp scored all three Nebraska touchdowns in the losing effort, but three Cyclones' backfield men chipped in with a touchdown apiece to offset Hipp's flashy running display. Hipp's final score came on a seven-yard scamper in the third stanza, but a scoreless final quarter sealed the Huskers' fate.

Terry Rubley mixed pinpoint passing for seven completions in 13 attempts with the 100-yard running of backs Dexter Green and Cal Cummins as each of them scored in the first half for Iowa State.

Hipp dashed 59 yards for the game's initial score the second time he touched the ball. His 17-yard TD slash, also in the first quarter, put the Huskers in an early lead.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I think," said Ron Guidry, "we're in an unbeatable situation."

The slender New York lefthander was talking about the Yankees' commanding 3-1 lead in the World Series following Saturday's 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. And if the Yankees, one triumph away from their first World Championship since 1962, are unbeatable now, they can thank Guidry, who pitched a brilliant fourhitter for the victory.

Guidry was low man on the Yankees' pitching pole during spring training and almost didn't make the club. "He had a terrible spring," said Manager Billy Martin.

Guidry disagreed.

"I thought it was horrible," he said.

But when injuries sidelined some of the higher-priced pitchers on Martin's staff, the manager turned to the slender southpaw and Guidry came through.

Guidry had a 16-7 regular season record and fired a three-hitter against Kansas City in the second game of the American League playoffs.

"I just wanted to do my job," he said. "I wanted to prove I could do it. Some people didn't think I could pitch up here."

Still, World Series starts sometimes shake seasoned veterans. But Guidry stayed cool against the Dodgers. "I didn't feel any jitters," he said. "I never do."

In the Dodgers' dugout, Manager Tom Lasorda was impressed.

"Don't take anything away from the outstanding game that youngster pitched," said Lasorda. "He pitched a beautiful game."

Martin thought so, too.

"He had a good breaking ball and he was pitching to spots," the manager said. "He's as gutsy as a guy can be."

Reggie Jackson busted out of an extra-base slump with a double that touched off a three run rally and a booming home run.

Jackson, so often the center of controversy in this troubled Yankees season, settled his latest squabble with Manager Billy Martin in a brief meeting Friday before Game 3. Jackson had criticized Martin's selection of ailing Catfish Hunter to start the second game of the series for New York.

"You should probably give Billy Martin the Nobel Peace Prize for mangling this team," said Jackson.

The $2.9-million right fielder had driven in one run and scored two others in the Yankees' 5-3 third-game victory.

The rally had been built around four New York hits—all to the opposite field—and gave Guidry, the Yankees' most dependable pitcher all season, an early lead with which to work.

Jackson started the rally, ripping Rau's second pitch of the inning into the left-field corner for a double. Lasorda, sensing trouble, immediately got Rick Rhoden up in the Dodgers' bullpen as Rau went to work on Lou Piniella, the Yankees' leading hitter in the Series.

The count went to 1-1, then Piniella smacked a single to right field, chasing home Jackson with the game's first run. Next was Chris Chambliss, who, like Jackson, had not had an extra-base hit since the end of the regular season. He snapped that slump with a double to left field that sent Piniella racing to third.

That finished Rau. Rhoden came on to get Graig Nettles on an RBI grounder to second base as Chambliss moved to third. Now the Dodgers pulled their infield in, hoping to cut off the run at the plate.

But Bucky Dent ruined that strategy with a single to right, scoring Chambliss with the third Yankee run.

The slender left-hander with the explosive fastball did not allow a hit until the third inning when, with two out, Rhoden drilled a double that bounced into the left-field stands. That brought up Dave Lopes, who was mired in an 0-for-13 Series slump.

The count went to 2-2 on the Los Angeles second baseman, then Guidry made one of his few mistakes all day and Lopes powered the ball over the center field fence for a two-run homer.

That brought the celebrity studded record Dodgers Stadium crowd of 55,995 to its feet, roaring approval. Now the score was 3-2 and Rhoden was mowing down the Yankees.

It looked like Los Angeles had the tying run in the fourth, when Ron Cey, who hit 30 home runs during the regular season, jumped on Guidry's first pitch and sent it soaring toward the left field bleachers.

Piniella, fighting a brilliant sun, turned and went to the wall. The Yankees' left fielder timed his leap perfectly, reached over the fence with his glove, and came down with the ball—preserving the one-run lead.

The splendid catch seemed to give Guidry a huge lift. He allowed only four more runners the rest of the way and his lone tough spot came in the seventh, when a leadoff single by Cey and a two-out walk to Lee Lacy brought up Steve Yeager.

But the Yankees' left-hander got Yeager on a forceout grounder, ending the threat.

By then, Jackson had supplied an extra run with a twoout homer in the sixth. It came on a 1-1 pitch and was the third career homer in Series play for Jackson.

Except for Jackson's shot, Rhoden worked seven outstanding innings of relief. He permitted just one other hit, struck out five and walked none. But it wasn't quite good enough against Guidry.

With relief ace Sparky Lyle warming up in the bullpen, Guidry carried his two-run lead into the ninth. He retired Reggie Smith on a pop fly to second, then Cey doubled down the left field line on a ball the Yankees argued was foul.

But, with the tying run at the plate, Guidry got Steve Garvey on an easy grounder ball to second and finished Los Angeles by getting Dusty Baker on a fly ball to center field.

After the final out, the Yankees temporarily forgot their problems. In the dugout, Martin took Jackson's face in his hands and appeared to plant a big kiss on the right fielder's cheek. The Yankees were together, at least for Saturday.

The Yankees knocked out Rau in the second inning, when Reggie Jackson doubled, scored on Lou Piniella's single, and Chris Chambliss followed with another double.

The two-base hits by Jackson and Chambliss were the first extra-base blows by the two left-handed batters since the end of the regular season.

Rick Rhoden relieved for the Dodgers and surrendered another run on Graig Nettles' grounder. Chambliss moved to third on the play and, with the infield drawn in, Bucky Dent cracked a single to right to make it 3-0.

The Dodgers got two runs back in their half of the third. With one out, Rhoden smacked a double that bounced into the left-field seats. It was the first hit off Guidry and a moment later, the Dodgers had their first runs when Dave Lopes ended an 0-for-13 Series slump with a home run over the fence in center field.

Late Texas Score Whips Hogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Quarterback Randy McEachern, a third stringer until a week ago, resorted to his passing magic three times Saturday on a pressure-cooker fourth-quarter 80-yard touchdown drive and the second-ranked Texas Longhorns rallied to nip eighth-ranked Arkansas 13-9 in a shootout of unbeaten Southeastern Conference teams.

The classy little McEachern, who replaced Texas' top two injured quarterbacks and led the Horns to a 13-6 victory over Oklahoma last week, again had it in the clutch.

With Texas trailing 9-6 and driving into a stiff 20-mile an hour wind, the redshirt junior from Pasadena, Tex., completed passes of 14 yards to Johnny "Ham" Jones, 31 yards to Alfred Jackson and 28 yards to Early Campbell.

Ham Jones punched across from one yard out for the game's only touchdown with 4:31 to play to silence the rabid Razorback Stadium crowd of 44,296.

The nationally televised game was strictly a cross-country field goal duel between Arkansas' Steve Little and Texas' Russell Erxleben until the last-ditch Longhorn drive.

Erxleben kicked field goals of 58 and 52 yards in the first period and Little retaliated with Howitzer shots of 33 and 67 yards in the second period to tie the game 6-6 at halftime.

Little's 67-yarder tied the NCAA record held by Erxleben. Little kicked a chip shot 25-yard field goal to give Arkansas a 9-6 lead midway in the third quarter.

Texas is now 5-0 over-all and 2-0 in SWC play while Arkansas is 4-1 and 1-1 in league play.

Campbell, the rough-house running senior tailback of the Longhorns, thundered 189 yards on 34 carries as he broke the school rushing record and the all-time SWC mark.

Chris Gilbert, held the old Texas record and Campbell shattered Dickey Morton's ledger of 3,317 yards he established at Arkansas. Campbell now has 3,386 career yards.

Texas almost fumbled the game away in the third period as Campbell lost the ball twice and Ham Jones coughed it up once.

Arkansas drove to the Texas 12-yard line where Arkansas quarterback Ron Calcagni faced a third-and-eight. Calcagni was stopped on a rollout at the Texas eight-yard line and that was the closest Arkansas got to the Texas goal as the Razorbacks settled for Little's third field goal.

Texas' Jimmy Johnson returned a punt 49 yards to the Arkansas 21-yard line early in the fourth period, but the swarming Razorback defense shot down the Texas offense at the 15.

Erxleben then attempted a 33-yard field goal which would have tied the game, but the officials ruled it wide to the right. Erxleben thought it was good and was visibly upset over the call.

Little uncorked a 56-yard punt into the Texas end zone with 8:36 to go and then McEachern guided Texas downfield on a masterful 80-yard journey.

Texas won the toss on the sun-splashed 52-degree day and decided to take the gusty North wind.

Texas Coach Fred Akers' strategy proved to be wise as Little could manage only a 26-yard punt to the Longhorn 49.

Texas could not make a first down, but Erxleben made it 3-0 with a 58-yard field goal. Little punted for 28 yards and Texas again had the ball on its own 49. Campbell dashed for 10 yards and, after the Arkansas defense stiffened, Erxleben boomed a 52-yarder.

Then it was Arkansas' turn for some long distance artillery as the Razorbacks got the wind in the second period. Arkansas drove to the Texas 15 on Calcagni's runs and passes, but on third-and-eight defensive back Derrick Hatchett broke up Calcagni's pass. The Razorbacks settled for Little's three-yard field goal.

The Longhorns struggled to the Arkansas 24-yard-line where defensive back Patrick Martin blocked Erxleben's 41-yard field goal attempt.

Arkansas then sputtered to the Texas 49 where Little unleashed his record-tying 67-yarder with a kick that cleared the crossbar by at least five yards. Razorback Coach Lou Holtz threw his hat into the air when the ball sailed between the uprights.

Arkansas' great tailback Ben Cowins rushed for 94 yards in 24 carries as the Razorbacks' top ground threat.

Tide Rolls Over Vols

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Jeff Rutledge scored two touchdowns and fired a 30-yard scoring pass to Ozzie Newsome as fourth-ranked Alabama downed Tennessee 24-10 Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

The Crimson Tide, whipping Tennessee for the seventh consecutive season, had numerous opportunities to turn the game into a rout, but six times failed to score after penetrating the Vol 35.

Rutledge scored both of his touchdowns in the final three and one-half minutes of the first half when Alabama struck suddenly to break a 3-3 deadlock and take a 16-3 halftime lead.

Rutledge's first score came on a four-yard run at the end of a 78-yard drive, and he came back with a nine-yard scoring trip with only 13 seconds remaining in the half.

Alabama had taken advantage of a 23-yard punt by Craig Colquitt, the nation's No. 3 punter, to add the late secondquarter touchdown. The 40-yard drive took only two plays after Rutledge had connected with Newsome for 31 yards, setting up the score.

Rebels Save

Coach With Win

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Fullback James Storey and tailback Freddie Williams broke through South Carolina's defenses for clutch touchdown runs Saturday to give Mississippi's Rebels a 17-10 football victory over the Gamecocks.

Ole Miss capitalized on fumble recoveries to launch both of its touchdown drives in a game termed essential to the future of Rebel Coach Ken Cooper's job.

The Rebs got their first touchdown after South Carolina fullback George Rogers fumbled on the second play of the game and defensive back William Day recovered for Ole Miss at the Gamecock 33.

It took only five plays for the touchdown that launched Ole Miss on the road to the upset triumph. Storey banged the final yard after teaming with quarterback Tim Ellis to account for 30 yards in four plays.

Ole Miss got a second touchdown, enough to ice the contest, when Williams circled right end, burst free at the 40 and raced down sidelines for a 48-yard touchdown run.

Linebacker Eddie Cole had recovered a fumble by Gamecock tailback Spencer Clark to start the third-quarter march.

South Carolina rallied a few minutes later as quarterback Ron Bass flipped a short pass to Rogers and the fleet freshman broke away from a half dozen tacklers on a 72-yard sprint to the goal.

Tech Rambles

By War Eagles

ATLANTA (AP) — Running back Eddie Lee Ivery rushed for two touchdowns and passed for another as Georgia Tech ripped mistake-prone Auburn 38-21 Saturday in a college football game.

Tech quarterback Gary Lanier opened the scoring after only 4:30 of the opening quarter when he scampered over from one yard out after the Yellow Jackets recovered an Auburn fumble, the first of six Tiger turnovers.

Ivery, Tech's leading rusher, then burst into action. He scored on a four-yard run to give the Jackets a 14-0 edge after one period, tossed a fiveyard scoring pass to Drew Hill and added a six-yard TD run for a 28-0 Tech bulge shortly before halftime.

Cavs, Gobblers Tie

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech's Gobblers, directed by quarterback David Lamie, drove 70 yards in the last 4:13 and added a 2-point conversion to gain a 14-14 football tie with Virginia's Cavaliers Saturday.

Virginia, winless in seven previous games including five this season, appeared to have victory in its grasp, but with 7:29 remaining Paul Engle booted a 56-yard field goal to decrease Tech's deficit to 14-6.

Then Lamie completed 5 of 7 passes for 52 yards to set up a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Roscoe Coles with 45 seconds to go. Lamie then passed to Kenny Lewis for the two extra points that tied the game.

Chip Mark, who watched Virginia's first five games from the bench, started at quarterback and ignited a previously ineffectual Virginia offense with a 14-yard touchdown pass to Mike Newhall that staked the Cavaliers to a 7-3 intermission lead.

Then Virginia, aided by two personal-foul penalties against Tech, went 84 yards in the third quarter for its second touchdown with Billy Harris scoring on a 4-yard slant off right tackle. It marked the first time this season that Virginia, outscored 157-7 coming into Saturday's game, had scored more than one touchdown in a game this season.

The Gobblers, 1-4-1, dominated the first 20 minutes of play as Lamie effectively executed the option. But the Gobblers fumbled away two scoring opportunities after Engle had kicked a 32-yard field goal on their first series of plays.

Dickie Holway fumbled at the Virginia 11 and Coles lost the ball at the Cavaliers' 28.

With less than a minute left in the half, a Virginia turnover gave the Gobblers another scoring opportunity from the Cavalier 28. But after three unsuccessful plays, a 47-yard field goal attempt by Engle fell short as time ran out.

Boston College Upsets W. Va.

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Third-team fullback John Cassidy scored a pair of touchdowns as opportunistic Boston College overcame a pair of spectacular scoring returns by West Virginia University freshmen Joedy McKown and Fulton Walker to upset the Mountaineers 28-24 in football Saturday.

Cassidy, playing only after regular fullback Dan Conway and second teamer Jerry Stabile went out with injuries, scored his second touchdown from two yards out with 7:43 to go in the game to pull the rallying Eagles to within one point at 24-23.

Deft Eagles' quarterback Ken Smith then found wide receiver Mike Godbolt in the right corner of the West Virginia endzone for a two point conversion that put the Eagles in the lead for keeps at 25-24.

Penn State easily

Penn St. Easily

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Tenth-ranked Penn State, playing without Coach Joe Paterno on the sidelines, got two touchdowns from Steve Geise and held off a fourth-quarter rally to beat Syracuse 31-24 in college football Saturday.

Penn State rolled up a three-touchdown lead going into the fourth quarter, but the Orange-men scared Penn State with a rally behind the record passing performance of quarterback Bill Hurley.

Penn State pulled away from Syracuse on the pair of one-yard touchdown runs by Geise, a 12-yard touchdown reception by Bob Bassett, a 23-yard field goal by Matt Bahr and a 10-yard touchdown by Matt Suhey and built a 21-point lead after three quarters.

Irish Halt Army

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Workhorse halfback Jerome Heavens rambled for 200 yards to establish a Notre Dame rushing record and lead the 11th-ranked Fighting Irish to a 24-0 victory over Army before 72,594 at Giants Stadium Saturday.

Heavens, a 6-foot, 209-pound junior who carried 34 times and scored one touchdown, broke the Irish rushing record of 186 yards set by Emil Sitko against Michigan State in 1948.

Conley Passes Dump S. Nash

HOLLYWOOD — Nuggie Worthington scored on a 50-yard pass play from quarterback Jeff Allen to start a fourth quarter rally, and lead the D.H. Conley Vikings to a 20-12 win over Southern Nash.

The Vikings scored all of their touchdowns through the air. They clinched the victory when Allen connected with Tim McClanahan on their second touchdown of the Saturday afternoon game.

For the game, Allen was seven of 12 for 150 yards and all three Conley touchdowns. Worthington rushed for 104 yards, intercepted one pass, and recovered a fumble.

Southern Nash rallied from a 7-0 deficit when Greg Pope ran 38 yards from scrimmage. Though the kick failed, the Firebirds closed the Margin to 7-6. They took the lead in the fourth quarter when Pope hauled in a 52-yard pass from Roger Strickland. The try for the extra point failed on the second try.

Now 2-5, Conley travels to C.B. Aycock next Friday. Southern Nash remains on the road next week, still looking for a win against North Lenoir.

Chargers Slip Past Rams By 10-0

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
SNOW HILL — Ayden-Grifton's football team remained unbeaten in Eastern Carolina Conference action and knocked off a leading contender Friday night with a 10-0 victory over Greene Central in a muddy, defensive battle.

The Chargers scored all of their points in the first half, leaving the remainder of the contest in the capable hands of the defensive unit, which held the Rams to just 75 yards in total offense.

A first-quarter field goal by Paul Setliff from 38 yards away gave the Chargers a 3-0 lead in the game and Terry Morris added six more on a 17-yard run in the second period. Setliff rounded out the scoring with the PAT kick following Morris' run.

The Chargers dominated play in the first period, running 19 offensive plays to just four for the Rams. Midway through the quarter, Ayden-Grifton took over following a Greene Central punt at its own 28.

Morris ran for five yards on first down and a personal foul penalty gave the Chargers 15 more. Quarterback David Smith snuck up the middle on third-and-two to give Ayden-Grifton a first down at the Ram 41 and Morris carried three straight times for another first-and-10 at the 30.

A run by Johnny Cannon and two by Morris netted nine yards and Smith pulled another quarterback sneak on fourth down, getting two yards to the 19.

The Ram defense began to stiffen, however, and on third-and-seven Morris was thrown for a five-yard loss by Shea McLawhorn. Setliff booted a field goal from the 28 on fourth down with 12 seconds left in the period.

Greene Central picked up its first first down of the game after the kickoff, but on third down, Russell Brann's pass was intercepted by Mark Cannon at the Charger 48 and was returned to the Ram 28.

A mixup on first down resulted in a loss of two and Ricky Harris was stopped for no gain on second down. But Smith found Terry Morris waiting at the eight on third down and he had no trouble getting into the end zone for the game's only touchdown. The pass play covered 30 yards and came with 10:45 left in the half. Setliff's kick made it 10-0.

The Rams made their greatest penetration of the ballgame on their next series, driving from their own 33 to the Charger 32. Tailback James Best did most of the work, including a 14-yard jaunt off left tackle. The Chargers held Greene Central on fourth down, however.

Starting Ram quarterback Russell Brann was lost to his team when he was injured just before halftime. He was replaced by backup Melvin Streeter, who guided the club for the remainder of the game.

The second half was a series of goal line stands by the Rams.

On their first possession of the half, the Chargers took over at their 46 and moved down to the Greene Central three before being held on downs. Smith ran for 12 yards to pick up one first down in the drive and hit Sheldon McCarter with a 12-yard pass for another. The big play in the series was Morris' 21-yard gallop on which Melvin Bynum made a touchdown-saving tackle.

The Rams were unable to move the football after taking over, however, and punted back to Ayden-Grifton just before the end of the third quarter. Again the Chargers drove down near the goal line, this time to the two.

Smith kept around the left side for 23 yards on the first play of the drive to move the ball down to the Ram 36. Runs by Morris and Brady Quinn, playing for the injured Johnny Cannon, got the team to the 22 and Smith hit Harris with a nine-yarder to set up a first-and-goal just inside the 10.

Morris carried twice down to the two before Smith was stopped for no gain on third down. pith a fourth-and-goal, Morris went over the left side, but was stopped just a foot short of the end zone.

The Rams were able to get the ball out to the 13 in two plays, but a pass by Streeter was intercepted by Harris at the Greene Central 36 and he returned it to the 31.

Once again, the Chargers made a deep stab into Ram territory. Smith ran another keeper for 14 yards and runs by Morris and Quinn produced a first-and-goal at the eight.

Morris and Smith carried down to the five before Morris fumbled on a run over right tackle after being hit by Van Jarrell. Donald Shaw recovered at the four for the Rams.

Harris intercepted his second pass of the evening just three plays later, returning it to the 20 before being run out of bounds.

The Chargers got down to the six, with the help of a 14-yard carry by Morris on fourth-and-13, but time ran out.

The win leaves Ayden-Grifton with a 5-2 overall record and 4-0 conference mark, while Greene Central drops to 5-2 and 2-2.

Next week, the Chargers host Farmville Central in a game that could decide the conference championship. Rams will play at North Pitt.

Jaguars Pop Falcons, 21-7

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central set the stage for a showdown with Ayden-Grifton by romping past Charles B. Aycock this past Friday, 21-7.

The win sends the Jaguars, the defending Eastern Carolina Conference champs, into this weekend's game with Ayden-Grifton, with the two teams unbeaten in league wars.

Farmville Central's offense sputtered from time to time against the Falcons Friday night, but the defense had little trouble in holding Aycock in check.

Aycock finished the game with just 36 yards in total offense, 14 on the ground and 22 through the air. The Jaguars picked off three interceptions, and recovered one of two Falcon fumbles.

Oddly enough, however, Aycock held the lead briefly in the first half.

The Jaguar offense, hampered by penalties, put the first score on the board in the first period. Donald Reid got the first score on a ten-yard pass from Donald Freeman. That put Farmville into a 6-0 lead.

But Aycock came back, with Shelton Robinson scoring from the one-yard line, and Dave Thomas kicking the extra point. That staked the Falcons to a 7-6 lead, but it was short-lived.

Farmville came storming back in the second period to score, with Freeman doing the honors on a nine-yard scamper. Rufus Mayo took a conversion pass from Billy McLawhorn to run the Jaguar lead to 14-7.

The other Farmville touchdown came in the final quarter as Reid got his second touchdown of the evening on a nine-yard pass from Freeman. Brother Ronald Reid scored the conversion with a kick, giving Farmville its 21-7 advantage.

The Jaguars and Chargers meet Friday at Ayden-Grifton in the key contest that will probably decide the league championship.

Conley, FC Advance

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley and Farmville Central gained berths in the semifinals of the Eastern Carolina Conference volleyball tournament with Friday night victories.

Conley downed Southern Nash, 2-0, in a match on the Valkyries court.

In the opening game, Conley took a 15-4 win. Teresa Mills led the way with six straight serves.

Conley came back with a 15-9 win in the second game. Annie Hardy served up seven times in a row early in the match, then finished it up with four more in a row at the end.

Farmville Central downed Ayden-Grifton at Littlefield, but details and scores were not made available to The Daily Reflector.

Farmville and regular season winner Greene Central clash Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Ayden-Grifton, with Conley meeting North Pitt at 8 p.m. The two winners play for the championship at 9 p.m.

Bullets Defeated

MANTEO — Manteo High School rolled up a 44-14 victory over Jamesville Friday night.

The loss was the seventh straight for the hapless Bullets, who have yet to post a victory this season. Manteo extended its record to 3-4 with the win. The Indians are now 3-2 in Tobacco Belt Conference play, while Jamesville is 0-6.

Details of the game were not made available to The Daily Reflector.

Loveless Yankees Stop Dodgers, 5-3

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Love is an integral part of tennis. The New York Yankees are the best proof that it has nothing to do with baseball.

"Nobody cares about our problems as long as we win," said Reggie Jackson. "People give credence to the things that don't matter to ballplayers. All the players want to do is play baseball."

Once again the Yankees left their problems in the locker-room and made problems for the Dodgers on the field, whipping Los Angeles 5-3 Friday night to take a 2-1 lead in the 1977 World Series.

Jackson joined the Yankees' other major malcontents, Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson, in scoring three first-inning runs.

Then the Yankees' potential free agent, Mike Torrez, was sensational after yielding Dusty Baker's three-run homer in the third inning. Rivers knocked in the winning run in the fourth and Jackson scored the insurance run in the fifth.

"Personal problems don't bother my playing," said Rivers, the Yankees' leadoff man and the catalyst of their offense who has asked to be traded from time to time this season.

"I ain't been hitting," said Rivers, who snapped an 0-for-10 streak with two doubles and a single, one run scored and one RBI. "But I'm starting to pick up just where I left off in the playoffs."

Munson, who has asked to be traded to Cleveland, followed Munson's leadoff double with an RBI double down the first base line. He struck out in his next three appearances, saying his knee and head ached.

An aching head was no surprise since in the past two days Munson has said he wanted to be traded near his Canton, Ohio, home, blasted Jackson for Jackson's criticism of Yankee Manager Billy Martin and complained about his allocated ticket locations.

"I'd like to be home next year," said the Yankee captain, the American League's Most Valuable Player last year. "It's a shame because the fans in New York have treated me so super. Money is one of the many things that have something to do with it."

Jackson sounded drained after the game, more likely the result of the controversy he triggered when he criticized Martin for using a rusty Catfish Hunter in Game 2 than the game he just played.

"On a day like yesterday (Thursday), I would just like you to put on glasses and No. 44 and see what it's like," said the $2.9 million outfielder whose RBI single capped the three-run first.

Torrez left two runners on base in each of the first two innings, but didn't strand any runners in the third. That's because Baker cleared the bases with a three-run shot over the left-field wall.

After Baker's blast, Torrez allowed just two hits and walked only one. In all, Torrez fashioned a strong seven-hitter, striking out nine, including the last two batters on called third strikes.

"Those were nasty pitches," said Torrez of the game-ending whiffs of Manny Mota and Davey Lopes. "They were just where I wanted them."

Torrez termed the pitch to Baker, a slider over the middle of the plate, a mistake. But it also served as a stimulant.

"I got mad," said the big right-hander who will become a free agent following the World Series if he doesn't sign a new contract with the Yankees. "That's when I started getting my slider down and my curveball over."

The Yankees overcame Baker's homer with single runs in the fourth and fifth, both runs aided by balls hit off Dodger gloves.

Graig Nettles singled in the fourth and took second when Bucky Dent's ground ball tipped off third baseman Ron Cey's glove. After Torrez sacrificed, Rivers' ground ball to the right side scored Nettles.

Jackson walked and took second when Dodger pitcher Tommy John deflected a possible double play grounder with his glove. Jackson then scored on Chris Chambliss' single to right.

In all, the Yankees' left-handed hitters—Rivers, Jackson, Chambliss and Nettles—had six hits in Game 3. In the first two games, they tallied just three hits against a pair of right-handed pitchers.

The Yankees were 20-3 since Aug. 1 in games started by left-handers. They got to face another one today when Dodger lefty Doug Rau, sidelined since the end of the regular season with a sore shoulder, hooked up with left-hander Ron Guidry.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defenseman Andre Dupont will miss the Philadelphia Flyers' game with the Penguins in Pittsburgh tonight because of a strained left knee.

Dupont is expected to skate again Monday and to be ready to play against Pittsburgh for the Penguins' game here next Thursday, the National Hockey League team said Friday.

Also not with the team for the Pittsburgh game are winger Paul Holmgren, defenseman Jim Watson and center Mel Bridgman, all of whom are serving suspensions levied by the league office for their involvement in an exhibition game brawl with the Boston Bruins.

Winger Bob Kelly is expected to play after sitting out Thursday night's opener because of a one-game suspension.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The People's Republic of China soccer team ends its five-game tour of the United States by playing the U.S. national team Sunday at Kezar Stadium.

Two U.S. national team has defeated the Chinese 1-0 and the two have battled to a 1-1 tie in two previous games.

The Chinese defeated the Tampa Bay Rowdies of the North American Soccer League 2-1 Thursday night to make their over-all record on the tour 1-1-2. They earlier played the New York Cosmos to a 1-1 tie.

TAIPEI (AP) — With superior strength from seven of its 1976 Olympic players, Japan downed Taiwan 44-14 Friday night in the Asian qualifying round of the 1978 men's indoor handball world championship.

Japan finished the first round of the double round-robin tournament with two straight victories and no defeats while Taiwan had one win and one defeat and Saudi Arabia had two losses.

The winner of the Taipei tournament advances to the finals of the world championships, to be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, next January with six teams from Asia, Africa and Europe and six others from the 1976 Montreal Olympics participating.

The Soviet Union is the defending world champion.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Quarterback Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals has been declared medically sound for Sunday's National Football League game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"Jimmy's made good progress this week," trainer John Omohundro said Friday of Hart, who suffered a bruised neck and left shoulder last week against the Dallas Cowboys. "It's been about as much as we could have hoped for."

The 33-year-old Hart has not missed a game since 1973. If he is unable to play Sunday, his place will probably be taken by second-year quarterback Bill Donkers.

That's It For Game Three

New York Yankees' pitcher Mike Torrez clenches his fist and jumps into the air as the Yankees defeat Los Angeles, 5-3, in the third game of the World Series. The win Friday night gave the Yankees a 2-1 lead in games. (AP Laserphoto)

Connors Is The Favorite

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — American tennis star Jimmy Connors is the solid favorite going into this week's $125,000 Australian Indoor Tennis Championship, the country's richest tennis tournament.

Connors joins almost 60 foreign and local entrants in this year's tournament, which offers a $25,000 winner's purse. It is the second visit to Australia for the 25-year old American.

On his arrival in Sydney Friday, Connors expressed confidence in getting to the final and possibly winning the championship.

"I'm playing pretty well at the moment and I'm happy with my physical condition," he said.

"I have to get through to the finals yet, and there are a lot of good players to get past in the draw but I'm confident of getting there."

Other Americans taking part in the week-long tournament are Vitas Gerulaitis, Harold Solomon and Bill Scanlon. Other foreigners include German champion Jurgen Fassbender, Czech Jiri Hrebec, India's Sashi Menon and New Zealanders Brian Fairlie and Onny Parun.

Here's proof it can cut heating and cooling bills up to 65%.
The Arkansas Power and Light Company advises that homes built to Low-E specifications in their area are averaging a 65% savings when compared to homes of the same size and built to conventional construction standards.
The Arkansas results are actual results over a full two-year period. No gimmicks. No sales pitches. But actual metered results in their area. Just imagine what this can mean to you in dollars-and-cents terms!

Here's how we did it!

We obviously can't go into complete detail here — we've got an entire 8-page brochure that does that. But, briefly, we began by doubling the standard amount of insulation to 12" in the ceiling and 6" in the walls and floors. We used 2 x 6 studs in post & beam construction 24" on center, instead of the usual 2 x 4's, 16" on center. And the window area was kept to about 8 to 10% of the floor space.

Barnes Feels Jail Term Made Him Better

BUFFALO (AP) — His jail term behind him now, Marvin Barnes is hoping he can put his reputation as basketball's bad boy in the past, too.

Barnes rejoined his Detroit Pistons teammates at Friday night's National Basketball Association exhibition game with the Buffalo Braves. Playing less than 24 hours since his release from the Rhode Island Correctional Facility, Barnes scored four points and grabbed three rebounds.

"I had a chance to check myself out while I was in jail," Barnes said. "It made more of a man out of me. I thought about what it would be like coming out and I paid my debt to society, and now I want to be a man and play basketball."

The 6-foot-9 former Providence College star served five months for violating probation after he was found carrying a revolver in his luggage at an airport last October. His probation stemmed from a college incident when he slugged a teammate with a tire iron.

The soft-spoken, 25-year-old has a troubled basketball background. In 1974, he said he'd "rather work in a factory" and went AWOL from the St. Louis Spirits of the American Basketball Association. He also habitually missed team plane flights and practices.

Barnes said that except for two incidents, he was well-treated by his fellow inmates.

With help from three Providence College teachers, Barnes worked to within two credits of his degree.

Barnes said he also got his personal finances in order and stayed close to his mother. He confirmed that an extortion attempt was made against her but didn't elaborate other than to say, "It hurt me mentally when I heard about it."

DON'T RAISE HOOP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wooden has been retired for a couple of years as head basketball coach at UCLA but he still has definite ideas about how college basketball should be played. The great coach was asked what he thought about raising the basket a foot or two to cut down on the advantage enjoyed by taller men over short ones.

"I'm not really for it," he said. "I think taking away offensive rebound baskets would achieve the same purpose. Raising the basket would only cut down shooting percentages and lead to stalling. Any team that got as much as ten points in front would think it had the game won and would simply go into a stalling act."

Pats Try To Get It Going

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Before the National Football League season, the New England Patriots were considered strong title contenders in the American Conference East, while the San Diego Chargers were given little chance in the AFC West.

Four weeks into the season, both teams are making the prognosticators eat their words. Sunday in San Diego, they will be trying to gobble up each other.

The Patriots, who were supposed to battle Baltimore for the AFC East title by virtue of a supposedly mushy schedule, are just beginning to jell and are only 2-2. The Chargers, meanwhile, have won three of four games with a sometimes lightning offense combined with a vastly improved defense.

Sunday's other NFL games are Denver at Oakland, Washington at Dallas, Baltimore at Kansas City, Tampa Bay at Seattle, Atlanta at Buffalo, Chicago at Minnesota, Cleveland at Houston, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Detroit,

New Orleans at Los Angeles, the New York Jets at Miami and San Francisco at the New York Giants. On Monday night, it's Cincinnati at Pittsburgh.

The Patriots, with All-Pro offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray back in the lineup, got their act together last Sunday and mauled Seattle 31-0 while the Chargers were blanking New Orleans 14-0. San Diego's performances have brought praise from both coaches.

Something's got to give in Oakland, where the Raiders and Broncos put their 4-0 records on the line with the AFC West lead at stake.

In addition, the Raiders have won 17 straight games, one shy of the NFL record set by Chicago in 1933-34 and matched by the Bears in 1941-42 and by Miami in 1972-73.

Baltimore and Dallas have the NFL's other perfect records, while Seattle, Tampa Bay, Kansas City, Buffalo and San Francisco all are winless.

Jesters Court Dodger Players

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the picture-festooned manager's office at Dodger Stadium, puckerish Tommy Lasorda devours a plateful of lasagna, washes it down with a can of beer and holds court before the World Series game.

It is a unique court indeed—a court of jesters.

Don Rickles, the standup comic, insults everybody in the house with quips that come off his tongue at 200 jibes a minute.

Jonathan Winters does his Maude Frickett bit and a half-dozen other imitations.

The big room, smelling of ointment and rich Italian cooking, is traditionally the gathering place of show business personalities, all confirmed Dodger fans, helping Lasorda maintain the loosest ship in all baseball.

"We got a lot of friends," said the jowly, 50-year-old Los Angeles skipper, "and the door is always open to them."

In contrast to the grim, discordant atmosphere in the rival Yankee locker room, the Dodgers are a free-wheeling, prankish group who act more like the movies' Bad News Bears than a dignified major league team.

Their therapy: Some of the highest priced talent in Hollywood. Almost every night for the Dodgers is Las Vegas Night. If they had to pay for the relaxation potion, they couldn't afford it.

"Take our first game of the National League playoffs against Philadelphia," says Lasorda. "When we lost, Don Rickles was one of the first guys in the locker room."

The Dodgers' chief celebrity mascot is "Ol' Blue Eyes," Frank Sinatra, a rabid fan and close friend of the manager. His is a special place in the organization.

THE TALL TALE, or "fish story," has been around probably as long as fishing has and is as much a part of the sport as monofilament line and artificial worms.

Each year, the Gladding International Sport Fishing Museum, a non-profit organization in South Otselic, New York, sponsors a tall fishing tales contest. This year's winners were the Rev. John T. Marchak of Indiana and Ed Blair, an Ohio outdoor writer. They both won black marlin fishing trips to Panama.

Marchak told a tale about a bearded old man he met on an ice-fishing trip. The man was carrying a bucket with seven 10-pound bass in it.

Marchak drooled over the catch and the old man led him back to the lake to let him in on his fishing secret.

The lake surface looked like a beehive from all the holes drilled in it, Marchak said. The old man positioned Marchak on one side of the pond and then went around to the other. He showed Marchak how to slip his fingers between the ice and dirt at the edge of the pond and, doing this, the two lifted the entire frozen pond out of its bed.

When they turned the icy chunk over, the fish fell out of the holes faster than you could bail water from a boat! When Marchak finished picking up the fish, the old man was gone. But, he vowed never to tell the secret of catching 10-pound bass in the dead of winter.

BASS FISHERMAN Gunner Briar of Cincinnati is the subject of Ed Blair's tale. He was one of the most successful fishermen in the area and the key to his good fortune was his artificial worms.

No one knew if Briar made or bought his worms but, although he wouldn't let on, he let Blair use one once in a while.

One morning, Blair learned that Briar had been arrested and it provided the opportunity for him to learn the secret of the special worms.

Briar had been nabbed late one night in Riverfront Stadium where the Reds play baseball. Neighbors had reported strange lights and a car parked in the area on warm, wet nights.

After an hour or so of pleading, Briar finally got the truth out of Briar. It's really simple. Riverfront Stadium has artificial turf. On warm, wet nights, you just go down there and collect the worms just like you would do in your own backyard. Where else would artificial worms come from?

Coastal Fishing Report

Bluefish are becoming more abundant, spot are getting bigger and king mackerel are being taken in numbers along the coast this week.

Despite the weather, surf fishermen are taking blues in the five-pound range in the Cape Hatteras area and the pier fishermen are catching spot. Boat fishermen are getting action from king mackerel out of Oregon Inlet and gray trout are being caught in the inlet and sound.

That is pretty much the story all down the North Carolina coast. With the arrival of the big blues, the Spanish mackerel seem to have vacated the Cape Lookout area. Piers in the Atlantic Beach area are decking around nine kings per day.

Near Wilmington, king mackerel are being caught off piers, while red snapper and grouper have been taken offshore when boats were able to get out. Blues and flounder are showing up in big numbers at Long Beach, while pompano seem to be thinning out.

Retiring The Yankees

Familiar Faces In Different Places

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Familiar faces in different places will be the theme when the National Basketball Association opens its 32nd season Tuesday night, with the Portland Trail Blazers striving to become the first team in nine years to repeat as champion.

More than a dozen top-flight players have changed uniforms since the close of last season as the have-nots among the 22 NBA clubs sought to strengthen themselves in the chase for the 12 playoff berths.

Walt Frazier, Tiny Archibald, Billy Knight, Adrian Dantley, Bobby Dandridge, Jamaal Wilkes, Truck Robinson, Don Buse — all players of all-star caliber who will be wearing new uniforms this year. And they're only a part of the list of NBA stars who have new forwarding addresses.

One franchise has moved, too. The former New York Nets are now the New Jersey Nets, operating out of the Rutgers University gymnasium in Piscataway, N.J., roughly halfway between New York and Philadelphia.

Then there are the rookies. As always, because of the popularity of college basketball, a host of players with big reputations are coming into the NBA. Unlike most years, however, three of the most promising first-year men are on one team.

The Milwaukee Bucks, with three high first-round draft choices, landed three plums: center Kent Benson, a two-time All-American from Indiana; forward Marques Johnson of UCLA, college basketball's Player of the Year, and swingman Ernie Grunfeld, the leading scorer and rebounder in Tennessee history.

Other rookies to watch include forwards Greg Ballard of Washington, Cornbread Maxwell of Boston, Bernard King of New Jersey, Kenny Carr of Los Angeles and guards Ray Williams of New York, Otis Birdsong of Kansas City and Ricky Green of Golden State.

There are three new coaches, but all are familiar faces. Willis Reed, captain of New York's 1970 and 1973 championship teams, has taken over the Knicks for Red Holzman, now in the front office; assistant Bob Hopkins has moved to the head job at Seattle which Bill Russell vacated; and Cotton Fitzsimmons, former coach of Phoenix and Atlanta, has taken over at Buffalo.

No major rules changes have been made. But there is strong sentiment towards experimenting with the three-point field goal and a no foul-out rule, two innovations of the late American Basketball Association, as well as the idea of using three referees to work a game. These will likely be topics of discussion at the midseason league meetings. Don't be surprised if the NBA decides to try them out next preseason.

The roster limit has been cut from 12 to 11, although an appeal by the NBA Players Association is now before the National Labor Relations Board.

The NBA has survived its first summer of free agency with no major upheaval. Next year, though, will probably see more action in the marketplace now that Commissioner Larry O'Brien has shown that he will not set unduly severe compensation for teams signing free agents.

Detroit Tiger pitcher Eldon Auker allowed 10 singles in one inning in a game in 1935.

Victory May Have Been Swan Song

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Mike Torrez comes down from the clouds following his strong World Series pitching performance Friday night, he will have to face the fact that it may have been his swan song with the New York Yankees.

"No, that didn't really cross my mind," the tall right-hander said after hurling a seven-hit, nine-strikeout 5-3 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers that gave the Yankees a 2-1 Series lead.

Torrez, acquired from the Oakland A's in an April trade, is the Yankees' only unsigned player. And unless the Series goes to a sixth game, Torrez will view the rest of it from the dugout bench.

"It's been on my mind all season that I've been playing without a contract," he said. "But I try not to really think about it. It's up to my agent and Mr. Steinbrenner (Yankee owner George Steinbrenner)." Torrez agent, Gary Walker, has another negotiating session scheduled today with Yankee officials.

For three innings, it appeared that Torrez might be an ex-Yankee any minute. He squirmed out of trouble in the first and second innings but served up a game tying three-run homer to Dusty Baker with two out in the third.

"I got mad after that and I started getting my slider down," he said. "I felt more confident in my breaking pitches and it started right after he hit the home run.

"That home run jolted me into saying, 'Don't give up.' I wanted to throw Baker a strike on 3-2 but not a good-enough strike. Instead, I threw a slider that stayed right over the middle of the plate and didn't do anything. I should have gone with my best pitch, a fast ball."

Torrez learned his lesson well. The Dodgers' last threat came in the fifth when Baker again came to bat with two on and two out. This time, Torrez fired a sinking fast ball that resulted in an easy grounder to third.

Today, the Yankees will hand the ball to Ron Guidry, a skinny, hard-throwing left-hander who posted a 16-7 record in his first full season. In last year's World Series against Cincinnati, Guidry was the last man on the pitching staff waiting for the mop-up call that never came since the Yankees never had anything to mop up.

Violence Under The Surface Of Marquette Park

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor
CHICAGO (UPI) — There is a sign starting over Oakley Avenue in the Chicago neighborhood known as Marquette Park which says "St. Rita Welcomes You."

No disrespect to St. Rita, but it is debatable whether many or any strangers are welcome in Marquette Park lately. Black or white, strangers are regarded by both blacks and whites in the neighborhood as instigators of big trouble.

St. Rita, it may be presumed, is neutral. The sign is spread at the top of a stadium where the St. Rita High School football team, perennial terrors of the Chicago Catholic League, plays its home games.

St. Rita's welcome is addressed to the people in the stands, not to the newcomers across the street on Oakley.

The newcomers are black. In Marquette Park, there is no welcome wagon for them.

Instead, they get fire bombs through their front windows, signs saying "nigger beware" on the lamp posts when they go shopping, and marches — one march after another by people who say they are standing up for the newcomers' rights.

What they get is the torment of a once-pleasant neighborhood where activists and extremists, black and white, have faced each other in sometimes bloody conflict, each side professing it knows what is best for Marquette Park.

There is evidence the people in Marquette Park rarely get asked what they think is best for them.

The open housing marchers into Marquette Park last summer were a mixed breed of white and black. Sometimes, the whites outnumbered the blacks. Last Aug. 3, to take one marching day, there were 25 demonstrators from the Martin Luther King Jr. Coalition, 30 from the Socialist League and 15 from the Progressive Labor Party.

They were not, for the most part, from Marquette Park. According to a former, disenchanted march leader, a lot of them were not even from Chicago.

Over the weary months of confrontation, the marchers have been met by what has been called "a ready made army."

A white community leader describes these forces as young white loafers, often drunk or stoned on dope, who hang out in the park which gives the community its name. They furnish ready recruits for a minuscule band of American Nazis who are dead set on stirring up trouble in Marquette Park.

The pastor of one of the largest Catholic parishes in Marquette Park agreed, with a demurrer: "Sure you can talk about those kids hanging out in the park. But where are they from? They're from South Holland, from all over. Oh, there's kids from this neighborhood, but not all. The others come here with their bikes and chains and stuff, just waiting for something to happen."

"They want to get in on the action."

Why the action in Marquette Park? One could peg the beginning on Martin Luther King, because he got hit by a rock in the park 11 years ago.

To King, his 1966 march in Marquette Park was just another of scores he had led in the South and in Chicago. The rock was nothing new to him, either. But a newspaper photograph caught him falling to the grass and suddenly Marquette Park was on the map of racial strife. It has been there ever since.

James Capraro is executive director of the Greater Southwest Development, a largely business-oriented organization seeking to stabilize the neighborhood. "Marquette Park has become a symbol," he said disgustedly. "If you want to start a racial war, start it here."

It could hardly happen to a nicer neighborhood.

Marquette Park on Chicago's Southwest Side is a leafy place where a stroller can savor the peace of a still summer afternoon. Children spill from the well-barbered lawns onto the sidewalks. The yellow brick one and two story homes stand in their lots like small fortresses.

It is the sort of neighborhood which has come to be called ethnic. The predominant strain is Lithuanian. They started coming here after World War I. Far more poured in when the Communists took over their homeland after World War II.

They created a little Lithuania — their own church, hospital, cultural programs, restaurants and stores. Many had been driven from one Lithuania and now they are afraid of being driven from another.

Of the 25,000 or so people living in the neighborhood, there are also plenty of Poles, Germans and Italians along with the new people on Oakley and the adjacent streets of Bell and Claremont.

The blacks started crossing the railroad viaduct which forms Marquette Park's eastern barrier roughly two years ago. They got no further than Western Avenue, three blocks to the west of the viaduct. Nor did they take over. Bell, Claremont and Oakley are still about 50 percent white.

To the eye, the streets do not seem much different than those to the west. But they feel different. There is trouble there, and danger.

It is regarded as gospel in and around Marquette Park that the trouble did not start until the marches. If one speaks of the current series of marches, as opposed to King's, that is not true. The trouble began almost as soon as the first blacks moved past the viaduct.

Robert McClory is city editor of the Chicago Defender, a daily newspaper serving Chicago's black community. He checked the record and reported "there were bricks, fire bombs and burning crosses throughout April, May and early June of 1976 — more than 80 separate, newspaper recorded instances."

Then the first of the marchers came on June 6, 1976. And the Nazis came, 25 or so bully boys who established headquarters in Marquette Park, and a smattering of Ku Klux Klanners. Then the police came, and high time.

All three elements fought each other on the eastern edge of the park (the marchers rarely, if ever, got into the park itself). Through the two summers, hundreds were arrested, among them Nazis accused of stock-piling weapons and off-duty policemen charged with joining the white forces. Scores were injured.

It was riot time and Marquette Park was where the action was in Chicago. There were plenty who wanted a piece of it.

Capraro, the man who spoke of the "ready made army," said, "The people who come in on the marches come from the east, across the tracks. And the white kids with them in red shirts — that's a symbol of something."

"And in the park, the white people, look at the arrest records. You get people from Oak Lawn, Berwyn places miles away."

"The thing that scared me was last August. A man named Arthur Hall picked up his Chicago Tribune on his front porch and it exploded. He lost a hand and an eye. That bomb wasn't meant to scare somebody. It was meant to kill somebody."

It is reported police have determined the bomb's batteries and transistors were not bought in Marquette Park. They came from a suburb miles away.

Rev. Anthony Zakarauskas, is pastor of Nativity BBM Church, where the masses are held in Lithuanian. He had no doubt alien forces were tampering with his parish. He named Frank Collin, the posturing leader of the Nazis, and the Rev. A.I. Dunlap, director of the Martin Luther King Jr. Coalition, chief instigator of this year's marches.

"I just have to wonder where they get their money," he said. "Neither is a group of consequence, neither of influence."

"But someone has to be backing Rev. Dunlap. And Collin — where does he get the money to hand out those t-shirts with 'white power' and swastikas on them? Where does he get the money for all those decals he puts on street poles, those hideous canvass things with skulls on them and signs saying 'stop the nigger' and 'nigger beware'? It's got to be coming from some place."

Nor, it could be argued, can the marchers claim neighborhood purity.

The Rev. C.H. Turner led the marchers last year. He did not this year because "at board meetings, we'd have 75 white people, 25 blacks. They (the whites) flew in from all over the country, from Detroit, California, all over."

"I started the marching. I lived in the neighborhood, gave wine to the winos, shook hands with the neighbors. We would have 200 black marchers at the height. But then the people from the community told us 'we don't want you to march.' So I stopped marching."

"I was getting 75 per cent whites for the marches. And when they (the police) stopped us at Damen, they wanted to go ahead and fight what they called the pigs. What else did they call them? Oh yes, fascists. Fascist pigs."

The Rev. A.I. Dunlap, Turner's co-leader in 1976, did not stop, even though the number of his followers often dwindled this summer into the 20s and below. Still, he confessed himself uneasy.

"We lost a great deal of white support because they wanted us to get violent," he said. "'Smash the Nazis,' they'd say. I'd say 'what are you going to smash them with? Go ahead.' But they wanted black people to smash them."

"We didn't sell out. Even 25 people are a whole lot for a march. It only takes people with guts."

Even Dunlap's enthusiasm for street marching appears to be waning.

An apparent reason is that the action has shifted from Marquette Park to the west. There, in the neighborhood called Bogan, white mothers have tried to stop the busing of a very small number of black children into the neighborhood's schools.

Bogan is where the violence and hatred have been for the past month. That is where the reporters and the cameras go. For the time being, Marquette Park seems almost a backwash.

Turner said, "Marquette Park is a dead issue now. The issue is protecting the kids ... protecting our women."

"Our first agenda is to get jobs for blacks," Dunlap said. "We're going to be working in this direction."

Dunlap maintained he will keep on marching. On the night of Sept. 24, he announced he was about to lead his followers into Marquette Park to protest what was going on in Bogan.

Police checked and reported there was only one person ready to march: The Rev. Dunlap.

About the House:

How to choose the right color and design for underfoot beauty

By LIS KING

In tune with the new trend towards natural and carefree design materials, ceramic tile is rapidly becoming a favorite flooring material. And not just for baths and kitchens, either.

These days it's stepping into foyers, living and family rooms, dining areas, and even bedrooms.

Everybody agrees that a ceramic tile floor looks great, and is the most fuss-free material one can have underfoot. But choosing the right design and color is often a problem, because today so much tile fashion is available.

And since tile lasts and lasts, the selection has to be made a lot more carefully than when you're picking carpeting or vinyl flooring.

But don't let this scare you too much. Just follow these common sense rules from the Tile Council of America:

- Anticipate decor changes in your future. If, for example, your present furniture is contemporary, but you're planning to go provincial one of these days, choose a floor tile that'll go with both styles.

- Also anticipate the preferences of future buyers of your home. So choose fairly conservatively. Perennial ceramic tile favorites that boast great versatility are square and brick-shaped tile in neutral colors such as white, brown, beige, and terracotta.

- Strong, unusual colors are fine for small surfaces and as accents. But keep them away from large surfaces in rooms where you spend a lot of time.

- Don't be afraid to select those pale colors you've always wanted underfoot, but never dared pick for practical reasons. With washable ceramic tile, you can light up a floor with anything from snow-white to ice blue, even if it has to withstand the antics of a gang of kids.

But remember that white and blue tend to cool a room, so if you want a warmer feeling, go with a soft yellow, or at least an antique white.

- Consider one of today's colored grouts (the stuff that goes between the tiles) for extra decorating punch. Black, for example, dramatizes white tile, while light blue countrifies it.

- For informal decors, you can't go wrong with brick-shaped floor tile in earthen-red, antique white, beige, and the huskiest gold.

- Black, slate-blue and dark brown are sophisticated choices for contemporary and eclectic rooms.

- For very elegant rooms, consider quarry tile in wood tones, laid parquet fashion; traditional medallion patterns, leather finishes, or deeply glazed tiles in jewel tones.

- If you're artistic, put those terrific mosaic tiles to work. Use them to "paint" a picture underfoot in the bath. Or to create special pattern effects in a foyer.

- Hex shapes are particularly well suited for provincial rooms.

- If you're fond of ornamental rugs, patterned upholstery, wallcoverings, and draperies, better stay away from heavily decorated floor tiles.

Earthy quarry tile wins top honors for understated elegance underfoot

By LIS KING

Suddenly quarry tile, that earthy flooring material we've come to associate with eateries specializing in whopping burgers and sizzling steaks, is paving its way into fashionable homes everywhere.

Designers, architects and homeowners alike have taken to this prosaically named flooring material in a big way, making it the "hottest" thing underfoot.

But this is hardly a surprising development, says the Tile Council of America, offering these explanations for the sky-rocketing space-age popularity of a flooring material that's as old as the hills: quarry tile suits today's more casual lifestyles to a T; it's a breeze to keep clean; it represents the best of today's popular "natural look;" and, like the fascinating chameleon, it lives up to its surroundings every single time.

The last part of the Tile Council's statement is the most puzzling to the average homeowner. The rugged earthiness is appealing, yes. And everybody, but everybody, knows that it's practically indestructible. But will it go with French provincial, contemporary, traditional or whatever style Mr. and Mrs. Suburbia call "home"?

QUARRY TILE is one of the most versatile flooring materials available. Here an American Olean version, laid in a classic brick pattern, proves that quarry tile is as perfect in a contemporary room as it would be in a colonial or provincial decor.

The answer is a definite "yes." Quarry tile will go with most any decor. The only exceptions would be the fussy European court styles of the 18th and 19th centuries. But then again, not too many suburban homeowners favor museum-caliber Italian Rococo...

The key to quarry tile's versatility lies in the new array of colors and shapes it has assumed in recent years. It is no longer "just" terracotta, and square. Now it comes in delectable colors from caramel to chocolate and in shapes from bricks to octagons. And here, from the Tile Council, are some ideas to send your imagination soaring:

- Try a classic Pompeian red quarry tile floor in your foyer. Choose the hexagon shape if you favor French country styles, over-size squares if contemporary is your cup of tea.

- A brick-patterned quarry tile floor, in the mellowest hue you can find, will be perfect for Colonial rooms, be it kitchen, dining or family room.

- Get to know the effects of today's colored grouts. With them you can create extraordinary effects. Just think what a difference there would be between a sand-colored quarry tile grouted with soft slate-blue, black or a sand color to match the tile. Slate-blue would create a provincial mood; black would be distinctly contemporary; and a grout-to-match would lend a formal feeling.

- Have your brick-shap-

Hanging your own wallcoverings: easy, fun, and very rewarding!

CREATING FASHION WALLS in a bedroom is a good first project for do-it-yourself "paperhangers." This room usually features plenty of straight wall space to make even a rank beginner a "pro." Here, it's York's "Juliette Stripe" wallcovering design that pretties up a master bedroom, while a companion pattern, "Juliette Tile," is used in the adjoining dressing room.

darkest corner of the room.

- Drop a plumb-line one width of your wallcovering less an inch from the spot you've chosen as your starting point. This will guarantee you straight vertical seams. Drop a plumb-line on every new wall you get to.

- Measure the length of the strip needed, add three to four inches each for top and bottom, and cut a strip of wallcovering that long. Cut one strip at a time, making sure to match the pattern before you cut the next.

- Cover the back of the wallcovering with adhesive. Or, if you're working with a pre-pasted wallcovering, roll it into a water tray (available from wallcovering retailers). In either case, make sure you follow the manufacturer's instructions for mixing, time wallcovering should be immersed in water, etc.

tile floor in the bathroom? It should inspire some fantastic decorating ideas. How about matching it with a "barn-sided" vanity, for example? Or an antique mirror, wood-shuttered windows, or a calico-patterned shower curtain? The mood will be decidedly early American.

ed quarry tiles laid in a herring-bone pattern if you like sophisticated decorating.

- If townhouse elegance is your style, take a good look at the extraordinary parquet shades and patterns now available in quarry tile.

- And why not a quarry

- Wash off excess paste on wallcovering and woodwork as you finish each strip.

- After two or three strips are up, trim excess wallcovering at ceiling and baseboard, and continue hanging.

- Corners are rarely straight, so when you come to one, cut the strip to cover it extending 1/2 inch onto the next wall. If this leaves you with a strip wider than 3 inches, fine. You'll use it to start in on the new wall.

- Hang the left-over strip, or a full, new strip right into the corner. Nobody will ever notice a slight pattern mis-match in corners... not even you!

- However, if you're dealing with a discernible horizontal pattern, you must make sure the new strip lines up horizontally with the motifs on the adjoining wall.

- Use diagonal cuts to get a trim fit around windows, doors, and at corner ceiling and baseboard levels.

- Cut out wallcovering strips over switches and outlets, so the plates will cover the edges.

Great home decorating can be yours with the help of great beginnings!

Great home decorating doesn't just happen. It takes careful planning and extra attention to make a room look special, in harmony with its surroundings and warm and receptive to guests.

Too many homeowners and apartment dwellers make the mistake of buying their furniture, carpeting, and accent pieces without thought as to the kind of general effect that they would like to achieve. And, unfortunately, their decorating results often reflect this attitude—uncoordinated, drab or clashing, generally unbalanced.

This does not mean that we should all abandon our homes to the hands of a professional decorator. It is possible for the do-it-yourself interior designer to turn any room into a smashing showpiece—or a cozy haven!

No matter what style or feeling one wishes to achieve, great rooms need great beginnings, and great beginnings start with some simple but important guidelines.

Color is probably the most important factor in any room's decor. You should never select a color (or anything else, for that matter) just because it happens to be in fashion. Go with your natural inclinations, select your favorite color, then sit down with a color wheel and decide your color scheme: monochromatic, adjacent, complementary, or split complementary.

Since your carpet is probably the most dominant color force in the room, it should be selected first, giving thought not only to tone, but texture as well.

Furniture, both in style and fabric, should be in proportion to the room. Large pieces or patterns will overpower small quarters, for example.

Don't be afraid to mix patterns, as long as you keep one subtle, dominant theme. Texture should also be varied, from carpet to upholstery to draperies and wallcoverings, to add eye interest and extra dimension.

Every room needs a center of interest, such as a fireplace or a particularly striking window arrangement, or unusual GREAT HOME DECORATING needs great beginnings! And great beginnings can be yours with some careful planning and a few basic guidelines to follow along the way to a fabulous room setting. Color, design, accent pieces, and—most of all—carpeting should reflect your distinct personal tastes while blending harmoniously for a perfect total effect. For helpful information on do-it-yourself home decorating, send for the informative, 27-page booklet Great Beginnings, complete with a color wheel and color photographs. accessory accents such as a coffee table, lighting and picture arrangement or an accent rug.

From this center of interest, the room must, like music, have rhythm. It may sound complicated, but a few drafts on paper will show you just exactly how your furniture can be arranged to keep "traffic lanes" open and a good, free-flowing feeling alive.

Finish your room with the things that you love; choose accessories that reflect the final personal touch. These are the all important accents that make the room speak for you and the beautiful job of decorating that you've accomplished!

How to buy and care for pillows

If you're buying new bed pillows, there are certain tips you'll want to keep in mind. Pillows are available in a wide range of fillings and sizes so you should consider how you want to sleep and what size bed you have.

There is no perfect bed pillow for everyone. A pillow that will give you many years of comfortable sleep may keep someone else tossing and turning.

To each his own

Ideally, everyone should select his own pillow, but if you're buying pillows for your family you should check with them to find out their preferences. Ask if they like a soft, medium or firm pillow and what size pillow they prefer.

Before you buy a pillow, you should test it. Pick it up and feel it with your hand to see if it is comfortable. If you're buying a pillow for someone else, ask the salesperson if it is soft, medium or firm.

A good pillow should be resilient and free of lumps and odors, regardless of its filling. Check the label on the pillow to see what filling it contains.

Soft or firm?

The softest and most luxurious pillows are filled entirely with down, the soft shaftless fluffs from the breasts of geese and ducks. For people who prefer their pillows firmer, select a pillow filled with a blend of down and feathers.

The more feathers in the blend, the firmer the pillow. All-feather pillows are the firmest of the natural fills. They are less expensive than all-down or blended feather and down pillows, and will also provide years of comfortable sleep. Pillows are also made of polyester or foam rubber, and these tend to be firm.

Down, feather and down, or feather pillows will usually outlast synthetic pillows. They are considered a good investment because they will give you restful comfort for a long time.

In addition to selecting the filling and firmness, you can also choose one of three basic sizes—standard, queen and king.

A twin size bed usually uses a standard pillow; but it can also use a queen or king size one. A queen size bed will use two queen or standard size pillows. A king size bed requires two king or three standard size pillows. What you select will depend on the size of the bed, the size pillow you or your family are comfortable sleeping on, and how many pillows you like on the bed when it is made up.

Preserve plumpness

After you've purchased your pillows, fluff them daily and push the corners toward the center so that the crown stays high. This will keep them plump.

One tip that will help keep your feather and down pillows fresh is to pop them

New concept in bedroom furniture provides multi-functional styling

The whole concept of bedroom furniture is in the process of undergoing an enormous change. Stanley Furniture designers have just come out with a complete system of modular wall units that could replace the conventional matching headboard, night table and dresser suite.

Storage and multi-functional use are the purpose behind this streamlined new "look" for the bedroom. For example, instead of small night tables, you will now be able to buy tall, narrow bookcase units that include both drawer and shelf space and extend almost to the ceiling. Concealed lighting eliminates bedside table lamps.

Dressers are now designed as part of the Stanley system of sectional units that can be combined in varying ways to give you wall-to-wall, floor-to-ceiling shelving, storage cabinets and dresser space. And yet an even more practical feature of this new Stanley modular bedroom system is that all units are an ample 18 inches deep to accommodate any sized electronic equipment—TV sets, stereo speakers, turntables, tape decks, CB base stations and video cassette recorders!

For an informative booklet on "Everything You Should Know Before You Buy Another Piece of Furniture", mail $1 to: Stanley Furniture Co., Dept. M11, Stanleytown, Va. 24168.

FALL'S NEW BEDROOM FASHIONS... Stanley Furniture designers combine the Gay 90's golden oak "look" with the modern-day modular wall unit concept. Headboards incorporate shelves and storage cabinets, while 78" high bookcases replace night tables. Concealed lighting in the overhead shelf does away with conventional bedside table lamps. Put carefree convenience in kitchen with a microwave

More attention is being focused on the lifestyles of those entering the "mature years"...and, well it should be, as these vital men and women have a great zest for living.

Most have a keen interest in travel, hobbies, new education-for-fun pursuits and a wide variety of recreational activities. And now they have the time to enjoy many things there was never time for.

Simplicity

Many manufacturers have come to recognize this important segment of American society and have designed easy-to-care-for furnishings and efficient compact appliances to best fit this active group's plans for a lifestyle based on simplicity.

Whirlpool home economists say that's just one reason the microwave oven has such appeal. It offers convenience, efficiency, nutritional benefits, speed, easy cleaning—and does all of this in just a minimum amount of space.

Cleaning is a snap... the oven cavity can be wiped out with a damp dishcloth and most utensils can go right from the microwave oven to the table and on to the dishwasher.

Nutrition plus

Vegetables need little or no water added to cook them in a microwave oven, so few nutrients are thrown down the drain with the cooking liquid.

An added plus to the nutrition factor is the fresh flavor and appearance vegetables can retain after microwave cooking.

"Microwave cooking is different from conventional cooking," Whirlpool home economists advise. "Remember when you first learned how to cook and you always had the cookbook propped open to double check the recipe? Well, when first learning to use the microwave oven, you may find yourself doing the same thing for a short while. This is why Whirlpool developed an easy-to-follow cookbook designed specifically for the microwave oven."

Time-saving ideas

A cookbook devoted to "proven" microwave recipes, tips, and instructions, is included with every Whirlpool microwave oven.

Along with its speed and convenience in preparing a wide variety of foods, the microwave oven is also great for lots of other things like melting shortening or chocolate for baking, warming up leftovers, defrosting foods in a hurry, making sauces, cooking bacon without spattering, baking potatoes quickly, and on and on and on.

For those into crafts...

the microwave oven can help out in that area, too. For example, in drying flowers and fingerprints and paper mache projects.

'Odd-ball' jobs

Many "odd-ball" jobs are also easily done such as softening dried-out shoe polish, heating the last bit of ketchup in the bottle to get it out more easily, making hot compresses and finger towels, and heating jams or jellies that have crystallized.

COOKING VERSATILITY offered by the Whirlpool microwave oven with its Meal Minder® variable power control gets everyone into the kitchen act... and even better—gets the job done fast!

Modern carefree cooking

"Of course, its primary purpose," say the home economists, "is to cook foods the fastest, easiest, coolest way... and that is just what it does." They say, "The only demand this easy-to-clean appliance makes is that you learn to use it."

The microwave is truly a product in its own time... and it can help make your kitchen as carefree and up-to-date as you are.

FUEL-SAVER is this super skillet requiring only low or medium setting for every need. The secret lies in the exclusive, patented non-stick surface achieved by mechanically bonding polytetrafluoroethylene (PTFE) to an aluminum base. Cooking and cleaning-up is lots easier, too—food simply can't stick to the slick surface of these pans.

Super no-stick skillet saves on energy, too!

Remodeled American kitchens are often marvels of beauty and efficiency, but the cookware used in them can sometimes need as much updating as the kitchen itself.

Take the skillet, for instance—the most basic of all pieces of equipment. In the hands of the French, it's undergone a revolutionary change that puts it as much ahead of ordinary pans as electronic ovens are ahead of woodburning stoves. This cookware, known as T-Fal, fulfills just about every need a cook might have, short of magically producing the dinner itself.

Food simply does not stick in these pans because of the patented PTFE-impregnated surface. And because food doesn't stick, cooks don't scrub, either. The merest whisk of a soapy cloth or sponge is all that's ever needed to clean up afterwards.

But ease of clean-up is only half the story, for these pans pay their way in energy savings, too. With heat distributed evenly and quickly, you can forget about the "high" setting on your gas or electric stove—you use only low or medium heat for all your cooking.

If the only thing holding you back from trying one of these remarkable pans is that you have nothing to cook in it, try this recipe for delicious

Surprise Meat Balls. SURPRISE MEAT BALLS (Serves 6)

- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 1½ pounds ground chuck
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 egg
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 1 jar (3 oz. drained weight) small stuffed olives, drained (24)
- 2 cans (1 pound each) stewed tomatoes
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 1 pound spaghetti
- Grated Parmesan cheese

In a 12-inch T-Fal® skillet, heat oil and cook onions and garlic until golden, stirring occasionally. Mix chuck, salt, egg and parsley. Divide meat mixture into 24 pieces. Wrap one piece of meat around an olive and shape into a smooth meat ball; repeat with remaining meat and olives. Add meat balls to skillet and cook slowly until brown on all sides; drain excess fat. Stir in tomatoes and tomato paste, stirring to blend. Simmer over low heat until sauce is thickened. In the meantime, prepare spaghetti according to package directions. Spoon meat balls and sauce over hot spaghetti and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

THE EIGHT-HUNDRED-DOLLAR-ROOM starts with sturdily traditional all-wood furniture from SK Products and finishes with everything else from the dime store to make a room that is low on budget and long on imagination.

New appliance wizardry reduces kitchen chef chores to minimum

Let's assume for a minute you're making Waldorf salad. You bring out the cutting board, slicing knife, paring knife, grater, nut-chopper and mixer and the celery, apples, walnuts, dressing ingredients and all.

Then you're ready to chop, slice, peel, grate and you get a great tasting salad. There's an easier way. You can now do all these operations in one appliance—slicing, to shredding, wet or dry.

The Food Processor from General Electric is one of the most functional appliances in today's kitchens—and at a price that will please economy minded consumers.

With the Food Processor, time consuming food preparation chores can be done in a fraction of the time it takes by hand.

For example, in less than 60 seconds, GE's food processor can shred a two pound head of cabbage for cole slaw or chop a pound of raw beef cubes for hamburger or mix the pastry for two nine-inch pie crusts. It's a versatile appliance whose uses are as varied as your cooking imagination.

Two basic attachments make it extra easy to use. The two-in-one reversible disc has a side for slicing and a reverse side that becomes a shredding attachment for cabbage or onions or cheese. A stainless steel knife blade is perfect for chopping, grating, grinding, mixing, pureeing and mincing. Both are dishwasher safe and can be handily stored inside the Food Processor bowl—right in the appliance to eliminate counter clutter.

THE FAST AND EASY WAY to shred hard cheese these days is with a food processor. Cheese fondue, omelets, quiches, and sauces are ready in a fraction of the time they used to take. The General Electric Food Processor also chops, slices, grates, grinds and minces just about everything in a jiffy. Now you can get on to the fun things fast, with time to spare.

Prepare for winter

Vacation homes are a relaxing hideaway, but they also are a responsibility, especially between seasons. If you spend a few hours in the fall preparing your house for the winter, you will save both time and expense when it is reopened in the spring.

Here are some helpful reminders to put on your winterizing checklist:

- Broken water pipes are no way to begin a summer season; remember to turn off the main waterline and drain pipes to prevent them from freezing during the winter.

- Strip the linens off all beds. If you leave the beds made-up, the sheets may become damp and musty and attract unwanted, pesty insects.

- Phone the utility company to turn off service for the winter months; discontinuing gas and electric service is not only economical, but an important safety precaution, as well.

Also, check with the phone company to suspend service until further notice. This will lower your monthly bill and avoid a re-installation charge next season.

Inform the post office to stop all delivery and to forward mail to your winter address.

- A thorough cleaning of all walls, floors, and other washable surfaces to remove spills and splatters left-over from summer fun will make reopening of the house and spring cleaning less hectic.

New time

CASED IN EBONY, framed in chrome, this handsome wall clock is a contemporary version of the jeweler's regulator, known for accuracy. By Howard Miller, it has an ivory porcelain dial and its lyre pendulum and cablehung, crank-wound weights are of polished brass. Eight-day movement counts the hours, strikes the half-hours.

Charming new decorating for the dime store budget

The most attractive ways to decorate do not always depend on what you pay. To prove that imagination is more important than money, designer Shirley Regendahl created a highly functional dining room filled with immense amounts of comfortable, cheery furnishings—and a bill that was less than $800!

The sturdy, well-made wood furniture in the Country Pine finish was budget-priced for a start, and then everything else—from the fabric on the walls to the dishes in the buffet—were found in dime stores.

It all began with SK Products' oval table that expands to 60 inches and costs only $105. Comfortable chairs were about $50 each and the commodious buffet hutch was $340, for a total of $645 for the furniture.

With the $150 that was left, here's how the room was furnished:

Walls—10 yards of blue-and-white bandana fabric at $1.99 a yard, stapled to the wall.

Windows—11 yards of white fabric at $1.09 a yard, edged with 10 yards of ball fringe at 30 cents a yard.

Floor—a do-it-yourself stencil painted on a solid color border, either with a stencil kit or from a stencil you can cut yourself. Cover the paint with a protective coating.

Lamp—a $10.98 shade was made into a hanging lamp with a socket and cord that runs through a large cup hook in the ceiling, and then down to the nearest electrical outlet.

Charming bird prints with gay red mats were found in the dime store. So were traditional china and flatware patterns as well as the stemware and glass accessories.

Hanging baskets and colorful fruit add the finishing "country" touches.

The furniture's rich hand-rubbed finish and the deeply-carved details on the buffet and hutch helped add dignity as well as convenience to a deceptively budget-conscious room.

How to add warmth, personality to that modern chrome-and-glass look

Even contemporary decorating fanatics often wind up with an overabundance of paintings, greenery, needlepoint pillows, and even knick-knacks to overcome that straight-edged, sparse look typical of so many "modern" rooms.

But cluttering up the room with incidental knick-knacks is NOT the way to banish bareness. There are better ways, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau, and offers these hints for contemporary purists:

- Choose a super-graphic mural for one or several walls. Many of today's contemporary murals are designed in mix-and-match panels, so you can create your own very special design.

- More murals worth considering for contemporary interiors: a skyline "view," bigger-than-life cartoons; that famous moon photo of the earth rise, blown up to super proportions; a bold rendering of beach grasses blowing in the wind; an alley of winter-bare trees. The possibilities are endless.

- Gentle wallcovering graphics in colors from pastels to gentle pastels are superb for softening the gleam of chrome and glass.

- Art deco, a rage with Victorians, is often a terrific and whimsical match for contemporary furniture.

- Pattern power a la folk art and ancient crafts is a superlative background for low-slung, modular settees and glass-topped tables. And this isn't really so surprising. There is a simplicity in Aztec and Mayan design that brings out the best in contemporary furniture.

- If you don't like pattern, go with texture. Imagine a cocoa-brown burlap texture, for example, with furniture covered in pale linen. Or eggplant-colored moiré if sophisticated elegance is your look.

- Oriental themes suit contemporary, too. Just picture a wallcovering with stylized branches as background for a glass and chrome etagere, wall-to-wall white banquettes, and ginger jar lamps. Perfect!

- Finally, you may want to play the contrast game. But remember, it takes daring and a sure eye to play that game. Some of the contrast possibilities for strictly contemporary furniture: black-and-white antique advertisements; colorful Toulouse-Lautrec posters; Renaissance renderings of life at court, all in varying shades of browns or burgundy; or an over-sized paisley.

We want to pretty up our enclosed porch. What do you suggest?

Mrs. A. R.,
Westport, Conn.

A garden-room feeling would be perfect. Choose a trellis wallcovering design, use patio-type furniture, have greenery everywhere, and, if your husband is handy, have him whip up some trellis-type arches to frame the windows. Stick to a green and white color scheme with furniture cushions and pillows sporting some yellow and/or orange accents.

Is there some place in my area where I can go see a demonstration on how to hang wallcoverings?

Mrs. J. M.,
Bethesda, Md.

Many wallcovering retailers, home centers, and even department stores, such as J. C. Penney, schedule how-to-hang wallcoverings demonstrations. Call around and ask stores in your area if they have such seminars or demos coming up.

Readers may send questions to Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. M, P.O. Box 503, Mahwah, N.J. 07430. Questions cannot be answered personally, but the most commonly asked will be answered via this column.

Replace windows to save on energy

Does your list of home improvement projects include replacing old windows? That could be good news.

Because of advances in window technology, modern wood units offer a number of benefits from high style to low maintenance that were probably not available when the original units were installed. Most important, perhaps, proper replacement windows, properly installed, can make a substantial contribution to energy conservation—and can cut your fuel costs.

In an average home, windows occupy a large part of exterior wall space. If uninsulated or poorly insulated, these units can account for excessive amounts of heat loss. To combat this expensive fuel waste, you should select windows with superior insulating capabilities. That means units which reduce heat loss through the frame, sash and glass and prevent air infiltration through openings between the sash and frame.

Modern wood windows meet these qualifications. Wood sash and frames are natural insulators, because wood does not transmit heat. The units are available with insulating glass—two panes with an insulating layer of air between. And they have tight, factory-applied weatherstripping.

Style options in modern wood windows are another advantage. They include traditional double-hungs, wide-view bows and bays, convenient-to-operate casements, awnings and hoppers (usually used to provide ventilation with fixed-sash units), sliding windows and sliding patio doors. Sophisticated fittings and hardware make the windows easy to open, close and lock.

Wood windows in a wide range of styles and sizes are available at local lumber dealers or building supply stores.

WINDOWS CAN DO A LOT to improve living conditions. This handsome wood bay window fills the kitchen with natural light while providing an excellent view of the outdoors. At the same time, factory-applied weatherstripping and the wood sash and frame help conserve energy.

HOME INSTITUTE FORUM

The CertainTeed Home Institute receives hundreds of inquiries each month from homeowners and home builders regarding roofing and siding products and exterior maintenance problems. If you have a question you'd like the experts to answer, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482.

Can siding save fuel?
Q. I've heard that adding siding to my home would significantly reduce our utility bills. Is this usually the case?

—W.A., Cherry Hill, N.J.
A. The two most popular siding products are solid vinyl siding and aluminum. You probably won't see a major shift in the energy use patterns in your home when you add aluminum siding to it unless the contractor installs insulation underneath it. Even then, the only time you might find a significant change is in a very old frame house which has multiple openings in the framing and no sidewall insulation. Residing such a home helps seal up some of these "air leaks", to reduce the infiltration rate. That could save some money for you.

There have recently been some studies which indicate that re-siding with solid vinyl siding may produce measurable energy savings in your home. Test results are preliminary at this time. However, your most cost-effective home improvement to save energy is making sure you have at least six inches of fiber glass insulation on the attic floor and good storm windows on the house. In your area, we recommend nine inches (R-30).

New lifestyle furniture is geared to relaxed, casual way of living

The big news in home furnishings this year is something called "Lifestyle" furniture... and people everywhere are finding that it suits their lifestyle just fine.

"Lifestyle" is the name given to the new type of fresh, casual, easy-to-afford and easy-to-live-with furniture that seems designed especially for today's easy going consumers.

One of the best things about this furniture is the fact that you can generally take it right home with you when you buy it.

New designs like those introduced recently by The Bunting Company are neatly packaged in their own carry-home boxes, complete with basic hardware and assembly instructions that make everything as convenient as possible—even for the unhandiest among you.

The clean-lined Bunting collection has sofas, chairs, and tables with sleek modern styling in natural materials like chrome and wood, canvas and butcherblock.

All of the pieces are just right for casual settings in almost any type of home. And when you're ready to move they can pack up in minutes and go right along with you.

Decorating around "Lifestyle" furniture is different and easier than when you work with more conventional, formal pieces.

The experts at Bunting offer some basic guidelines to apply in almost any type of room.

THIS PINT-SIZED LIVING ROOM gets its clean-lined good looks from Bunting's newest collection of casual Lifestyle furniture. The sofa and chairs, in puff-cushioned canvas on sleek steel frames, are carried home in a box and assembled in minutes. Do-it-yourself touches... a bright patterned fabric for window panels, and painted wood "floating" storage shelves... add eye-appeal to this budget-wise setting.

First, the best approach is to have everything clean and simple, in keeping with the clean lines of the furniture itself.

That means, as a rule, bright area rugs instead of wall-to-wall carpet; shades or blinds in place of heavy drapes; crisp, light backgrounds in white or clear colors; accessories that lean to the fun-and-funky rather than dressy antiques; and lots of plants and baskets to carry out the soft natural mood.

"Lifestyle" furniture helps make rooms look as though they're really designed for people to live in—not just to look at. And since it's moderately priced, there are more people who can afford to own it and enjoy it, no matter what their age or income bracket.

It's right for city apartment or country hideaway and mixes well with almost everything else you own or acquire.

With all these things going for it, "Lifestyle" furniture, a phenomenon of the 70's, is certain to be around for some time to come.

Natural new hues for the kitchen

Natural foods, natural fabrics and comfortable natural lifestyles are the current trend, as people everywhere are learning the advantages of uncluttered, back-to-basics living—away from the hectic workaday environment.

The modern family wants a home that will reflect all of the peace and easy warmth that this return to the natural has to offer, and now there's a way for the modern homeowner (or apartment dweller) to add a touch of neutral, natural serenity even down to necessities, the kitchen appliances!

As a beautiful new alternative to the traditional home appliance selection, Frigidaire is introducing a quiet and earthy new color, almond, to complement every kitchen and turn appliances from starkly functional to softly eye-pleasing.

Decorators and families would agree that the kitchen, the busiest room in the house, needs the quiet warmth and calmness that color can bring. That is exactly what almond does, according to the Frigidaire kitchen stylists who describe it as subtle and relaxing.

Almond is a serene, warmly muted shade that takes its place between off-white and pale beige (think of rich blanchet almonds!). Almond appliances can be matched with any decorating style and color scheme.

Those who want a dash of brightness can add vivid accessories like wallpaper and paint—which are less costly to change with time.

Almond is the perfect natural blend for all wood cabinets, and for the truly contemporary tastes it gives a striking effect when offset with black. Almond will be available in seven of the refrigerator models.

There will be optional almond front panels for under-counter dishwashers and two of the mobile dishwashers will have the new neutral.

Almond will highlight a total of eleven free-standing ranges, eight wall ovens and Compact 30's and two cooking tops, along with two washers, electric and gas dryers and laundry centers.

Now your kitchen appliances can reflect all the warmth and easy-going comfort of your natural lifestyle.

Super-efficient fireplace is selected for energy-conserving 'Answer House'

Can a fireplace be part of the solution to the energy crisis?

The Georgia Power Company thinks so. Georgia Power's "Answer House" in Atlanta has chosen a new, highly efficient fireplace, called the "Energy Miser," as one of its innovative energy saving features.

The "Answer House" was designed as a research and demonstration program to test practical ways for lowering energy requirements by 40 to 50 percent in new Georgia homes.

It contains such features as solar space and water heating, chilled water storage for summer air conditioning, super thick insulation and triple glazed windows.

Other energy conserving features include steel doors with foam core, magnetic weather-stripping, extensive fluorescent lighting, improved natural attic ventilation and highly efficient appliances.

The Energy Miser fireplace, made by Preway, Inc. of Wisconsin Rapids, Wisc., is a prefabricated built-in, wood-burning unit especially designed to conserve fuel. Unlike a conventional fireplace, the Energy Miser is constructed so that no warm room air can escape up the chimney and no heat is wasted.

It works by drawing outside air into the firebox for combustion while room air is drawn into a heating chamber completely sealed off from the firebox; there it is warmed and recirculated back into the room.

Glass doors on the front of the fireplace prevent the escape of warm air while radiating additional heat.

With this simplified air circulation system plus an adjustable front control damper, a lower "burn rate" is achieved — which means more room heat per log.

Easily installed, the fireplace can be recessed or projected as it is in the Georgia "Answer House." It can be placed directly on wood floors with no special support necessary, and is available with either a 36-inch or 28-inch firebox.

Both sizes are U.L. Listed; both also meet HUD requirements for modular and mobile home installation.

Preway, Inc., manufactures a complete line of built-in and freestanding fireplaces. If you should be unable to find information about them at your home remodeling center, please write to: Preway, Inc., 1430 Second Street North, Wisconsin Rapids, WI 54494.

ENERGY SAVING FIREPLACE is so unique that it was chosen for Georgia Power's "Answer House." Made by Preway, Inc., the Energy Miser fireplace has been installed in the living room of the house, a demonstration project for ways to reduce home energy requirements.

CONTEMPORARY STYLING/CONTEMPORARY ELECTRONICS — both here in General Electric's new 19-inch remote control, VIR "broadcast-controlled" color television. The set features full-remote controlled operation and VIR "broadcast-controlled" color adjustment. Through the use of a light dependent resistor system, contrast, brightness and color intensity are set according to room lighting conditions. The cabinet is styled with a walnut finish on high impact plastic with the designed coordinated base offered as an optional extra.

What's Afoot in Decorating

Turning an extra room into a sunny-side-up sitting/dressing room provides a bright beginning to your day and a cheerful private retreat.

The free-wheeling use of color, paint, fabrics and plants follows no hard-and-fast, old-fashioned decorating rules. Here we blend decorating drama with enduring economy and modern, easy maintenance.

To obtain this designer effect we carry the tree theme through from floor to ceiling. The trees painted on the walls and ceilings match the leaf designs in Mannington Mills' no-wax, resilient floor pattern, Bergamo, from their Lustrecon collection.

The multi-mix of prints in different sizes in coordinated colors gives the room its decorating unity. Breezy wash 'n wear fabrics make the living easy. A cotton-blend desk skirt, lounge cover and pillowcases all zipper-off for easy cleaning. Pillows unstuck to provide sitting room for visitors.

Every window is a special decorating opportunity. Here we let the sun shine through. Strips of material hold back a billowy curtain. Glass plant shelves, mirrored desk top and plant pedestal add depth and reflect the bright sunshine.

New things under the sun . . .

Significant progress in solar heating system

By SHAWN BUCKLEY
Associate Professor, Department of Mechanical Engineering,
M.I.T.

Solar energy used to heat buildings, has been investigated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for nearly 40 years. Indeed the first of five solar houses was built at M.I.T. in 1939.

Far from free

Although solar energy was able to heat these houses, it proved too expensive when compared to the cheap price of electricity, oil and natural gas of the 50's and 60's. With the Arab oil embargo, the cost of energy skyrocketed so that solar energy has suddenly become practical.

But why is solar energy expensive; isn't sunlight free? Yes, sunlight is free but the equipment to capture the sun's heat can be expensive.

The situation is analogous to your owning a low-grade gold mine. The gold is yours for the taking but the equipment to dig up the gold is very expensive.

Solar investment

If the price of gold is low you might lose money digging it up. But if the price of gold is high, it becomes worthwhile to invest in gold-digging equipment to help you get at your "free" gold. Similarly, if the price of energy is high, it's worthwhile to install a solar system to let you use the "free" sunlight.

PROGRESS IN SOLAR HEATING—"Solar Diode" combines solar collectors and storage in a single unit; it can significantly reduce the costs of installing home solar heating system. The M.I.T. invention is now being tested around the country.

A typical house needs about 500 square feet of solar collectors in most regions of the country—about the same area as five 9' x 12' rugs. A good rule of thumb is that the collectors should cover an area a third the size of the house's floor area.

Southern climates generally need less area and northern climates need more. But the fact remains: to significantly solar heat your house you'll need a big array of solar collectors.

Half the cost of a solar heating system is buying the collectors. Another third is the cost of actually installing the system into a house. The rest of the cost is for over-night heat storage (usually insulated water tanks or gravel bins) and miscellaneous pumps and controls.

Why are installation costs so high? Since the collectors are on the roof and storage is in the basement, a contractor must spend a lot of time and money connecting the two with plumbing or ducting.

In my research in solar heating at M.I.T., I have attacked the problem of high installation costs. My invention, the thermic diode solar panel, combines a solar collector and its heat storage into a single module.

Compact modules

So instead of stringing the solar system from attic to basement, these modules can be laid out on a roof like linoleum tiles on a kitchen floor.

The "Solar Diode" is four feet wide, eight feet long and about ten inches thick. Inside each one is a complete solar heating system: collectors, storage, controls, heat exchangers and ducting.

In spite of having all these features, a module will cost about the same as a conventional collector. Cost savings result because the units can be installed easily and because they eliminate the added cost of storage and controls.

Natural convection

Our investigations, sponsored by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration, indicate that a Solar Diode heating system would be 30 to 50 percent cheaper than conventional solar systems.

In simple terms, a Solar Diode is a panel filled with water. The panel collects heat from the sun on its front side, stores it and supplies warmth to a building via the back side.

The sun's energy not only heats the water but also pumps it to the panel's storage tanks. No electricity is needed; the subtle forces of natural convection carry the heat to where it's stored.

An ingenious valve prevents these same natural convection forces from reversing their action and leaking out the precious solar heat at night. The valve—about the size of a thermos bottle—has no moving parts to bind or corrode.

One-way "lock"

A thin layer of oil inside the valve lets the solar heat in but won't let it back out when the sun does down. That's where the name comes from: "diode" is a term borrowed from electronics that means a one-way capability. Just as a turnstile lets people through in one direction, a Solar Diode lets heat flow only one way.

Solar Diodes aren't commercially available yet. Under government grants, they're being tested in five locations around the country to verify our computer predictions of how well they should work.

Something new!

Their modular construction lets Solar Diodes be used in homes, apartment houses, office buildings and even factories; they can be put on walls as well as roofs.

With slight variations, Solar Diodes can heat, service hot water and even help cool your house. So you see, there's something new under the sun.

Quality Cutlery

You'll have the edge when it comes to buying scissors, shears and other cutlery if you know what to look for.

Scissors and shears should be set with a properly hardened and plated screw—not a rivet. The blades on scissors and shears should be of equal hardness so as not to cut into one another. This hardness must be sufficient to hold the cutting edge, yet not too hard to cause brittleness. Plating should be double—chrome over nickel to resist rusting or tarnishing.

KEEP A SHARP EYE out for fine features when shopping for scissors and shears.

Good scissors or shears should be well balanced. They should run smoothly, and cut to the very tips without pulling. They cut without effort, or hand pressure.

Another sign of quality is being the product of a company that's been around a long time. Clauss Cutlery is that kind of company with 100 years of blade-making behind it.

Heeding these hints can help you be an expert on the scissors and shears you buy.

For free information concerning a collectors' shears commemorating the 100th Birthday of Clauss, write to Clauss Cutlery Company, 223 North Prospect Place, Fremont, Ohio 43420.

The first police force in America was formed in New Amsterdam in 1658.

heat for each unit of electricity consumed.

The users can take advantage of heat pump economy in mild weather by using their electric furnace only at very low temperatures. This can cut their annual electric heating bill substantially, depending on climatic conditions and geographic location.

EVEN SMALL KITCHEN AREAS can be efficient and attractive if well planned to utilize the space available. This U-shaped kitchen features bright colors, reflective surfaces, and built-in black glass and white appliances from Hotpoint. The appliances are a 21.6-cubic-foot refrigerator with exterior Water 'N' Ice service, glass-ceramic Smoothline® cooking surface with vented hood, built-in Self-Cleaning double ovens, 12-cycle undercounter dishwasher with Dish & Pot Wash and power-saving Natural Dry cycles, built-in Trash Compactor, and Countertop Microwave Oven with Automatic Temperature Control probe. Small alcoves contain matching Hotpoint standard-capacity washer and dryer and a small planning center. All of these ideas can be adapted to limited kitchen areas, according to kitchen planning experts from Hotpoint.

Clean lines, color contrast give kitchen a modern look

SAN FRANCISCO—Clean, simple lines along with cheerful colors and the contrast of black glass with white appliances can help give a kitchen a contemporary look while still being efficient.

That's what William J. Ketcham, CKD, Manager of Kitchen Design for Hotpoint, points out, adding that even a comparatively small space can be designed for smart appearance, particularly with the use of modern, fully-featured appliances.

Compact variety

Such a kitchen was featured by Hotpoint at the Pacific Coast Builders Conference in June.

Ketcham described the kitchen as one way a builder or remodeler can take a limited space and adapt it for use in a variety of ways.

The display kitchen, which is basically U-shaped and measures approximately 10 by 13 feet, uses built-in Hotpoint appliances wherever possible.

Mirrors enlarge

Mirrors and mylar-surfaced walls help to give the room a larger appearance, while the appliances are located so as to improve the homemaker's work efficiency.

There is counter space next to the refrigerator over the built-in dishwasher, and the glass-ceramic Smoothline® cooktop gives additional countertop space when not in use. A trash compactor is conveniently located under the counter, and built-in double ovens with black glass doors are not only convenient but also add to the kitchen's contrasts.

The Countertop Microwave Oven, located on the adjacent counter, could, depending on space available and shape of the kitchen, either be placed on a shelf or, with a kit, be built into the wall.

Cabinetry in the display kitchen has simple lines with small knobs, making cleaning easier.

Round the bend

Completing the U-shape is an all-purpose work, snack and serving counter, while at the other end of the area are small alcoves, one for a matching washer-dryer pair, and the other for a small desk/meal-planning center.

Secure heat resource . . .

Give the bulk of your heating load to heavy-duty heat pump

The cold winter of '77 plus the current experience of oil and natural gas shortages, coupled with skyrocketing fuel costs or possible cut-offs, find many homeowners seeking alternate methods of keeping warm.

Security

Adding a GE Weathertron® all-electric heat pump to a fossil fuel heating system can help to solve this problem, because such an alternate can provide the homeowner with the security of another heat source in case of shut-offs or short-supply resources of the primary fuel. It essentially can become a supplement to existing forced-air systems.

When adding a heat pump to a fossil fuel heating system, GE engineers suggest operating the heat pump as long as it can satisfy the indoor room temperature, then automatically switching over to the fossil fuel system when the heat pump can no longer handle the load. This provides economical heat pump operation and minimal use of short-supply and/or expensive fossil fuels.

While not new in the heating and air conditioning industry, the heat pump may be a new principle to many consumers. Basically, it is a central air conditioning system that can both heat and cool.

Powerful pull In summer it extracts heat from the air inside a home and pumps it to the outside, and in winter, extracts heat from the outside air, raises the temperature and distributes it inside the house.

The magic of the heat pump is its capability to pull enough heat from the outdoor air during most of the heating season to keep the indoor air comfortable. This is possible because even at cooler temperatures, there is still 89 per cent as much heat in the outdoor air as there is at 100°F.

Homeowners with existing electric furnaces may also benefit by adding a heat pump to their system. They can save 30 to 60 per cent when compared with ordinary electric heating costs. Of course, actual figures vary, according to where and how you live.

The heat pump offers this excellent return because the electricity being consumed is not being turned directly into heat. It is being used to transfer already existing heat from the outside air into the house.

Possible savings

By comparison, an electric resistance heating furnace produces only one unit of

From hopeless to neat haven: miracle work for teenager's room

A teen-ager's room doesn't have to be a mess, although there are many parents of teen-agers who may need convincing on this point.

One of the best ways to encourage the maintenance of a room that doesn't look as though a cyclone had just passed through it is to make it special.

A room in which a teen-ager can proudly entertain friends is one prescription for a room that may be kept at least reasonably neat. Eliminating the bedroom look and turning it into a "studio" suitable for studying, entertaining or just for private moments has worked in many homes.

There's a great deal to be said for investing money in re-doing the rooms of young people—and it doesn't necessarily require a big investment to achieve really worthwhile results.

Some of the excellent consumer-assembled furniture on the market today offers unusual value for modest cost.

One parent turned her fourteen-year-old daughter's room into a charming studio retreat at minimal cost. Furniture was added that not only solved all the space and storage problems of a fairly small room, but also said "grown-up" and will, in fact, be equally good in years to come.

The bed was turned into a couch with bolsters and a generous supply of pillows. A desk/table on one side of the bed provided study space. An etagere on the other side was a particularly successful choice for utilizing the wall space efficiently giving her extra shelves for storing books and favorite objects.

A TEEN-AGER'S BEDROOM becomes a really private and special place for working, entertaining friends or just for being by herself when it's turned into a "studio" as in this room belonging to a fourteen-year-old young lady. The etagere for storing her books and favorite art objects, the desk/table and chairs and bunched table are all from James David's consumer-assembled collections. The chrome, oak and glass furniture is purchased in a box and can be carried right out of the store to be assembled by the owner, thus cutting costs considerably.

A small bunched table for in front of the couch, a comfortable chair for reading and a desk chair that can be pulled around for extra seating when friends come completed the furniture purchases.

The new furniture was selected from James David's consumer-assembled collections of durable chrome and tempered glass for a light, airy look. It was purchased in boxes, carried right out of the store and put together the same day.

The total cost of all the new pieces was only about $500, a price made possible because of the savings effected by the owner putting it together herself (and, it was so simple, most of the work was done by the teen-age daughter).

The finishing touches in the room included painting an existing dresser white and adding a new slipcover, pillow covers and Austrian shades in a crisp blue, white and green color scheme. A fabric design mounted on wooden stretchers to create a huge picture tied the colors together.

According to the most recent reports from this mother the teen-age haven is now mother's heaven.

Mix 'n match beauties for the bath

THE BEST THINGS in fashion don't necessarily match, examples being these marriages of Jackson shower curtains with Jackson International accessories that don't match at all, but mix well: left, ceramic accessories with sandy stripes and a trompe l'oeil film curtain called "Ditto"; right, porcelain and melamine accessories with a Greek Key motif and the textured film shower curtain "Bamboo."

New recipe revolution

There's a revolution taking place in the kitchen. It probably started 20 years ago with the invention of glass-ceramic cookware that introduced both fashion and cook-and-serve convenience into the home.

The trend toward microwave oven cooking is adding a new dimension to this revolution. And, the same glass-ceramic cookware that was responsible for the trend to cook-and-serve convenience has become the ideal cookware for microwave oven use.

It has the characteristics necessary for microwave oven cooking. With nearly one-fourth of all American homes expected to have microwave ovens by 1980, the need for microwave oven accessories and recipes is growing.

Corning Glass Works' technology, which has played a big part in this revolution, has introduced a microwave oven cooking set, along with a microwave oven cookbook, MASTERING MICROWAVE COOKING, by Jack Denton Scott and Maria Luisa Scott.

The set includes dishes of appropriate shapes and sizes for various microwave oven cooking opportunities, including a browning skillet.

A clear indication that microwave cooking has come of age is seen in the development of a microwave cooking accessories market. The growth of microwave oven sales is having a parallel effect on accessories.

Industry sources predict there will be four million microwave oven sales a year by 1980.

Corning is closely associated with microwave cooking. This is because it manufactures heat-resistant glass and glass-ceramic cookware ideal for microwave ovens.

It has also used its glass technology to develop special browning skillets and dishes for microwave ovens.

The browning skillets are footed, glass-ceramic skillets, undecorated. Browning skillets add versatility to microwave ovens, permitting more complete food preparation. Made of glass-ceramic, the skillet can be used for browning, searing, grilling, frying and baking.

A special coating on the outside bottom of the dish interacts with the microwave energy, producing heat just as the food interacts with microwave energy to produce heat.

Do-it-yourself— but do it with style!

These days, "doing-it-yourself" is a way of life. Consumers who could scarcely hang a picture 10 years ago today take on do-it-yourself improvement or maintenance projects as part of the price of owning a home.

Manufacturers are responding with products that make doing-it-yourself as simple as possible.

For example, General Electric offers three Potscrubber II® dishwashers with an installation module designed to simplify the job of making plumbing and electrical connections.

The GE installation module is connected to the house plumbing and electrical systems before the dishwasher is put into position, affording much more room to work.

After the initial connections have been made and the dishwasher slid into place, the module is easily accessible for the final hook-ups.

The dishwashers, models GSD870, GSD970 and GSD1070, feature GE's exclusive PermaTuff® interior material that will not chip, crack, peel or rust in normal use.

They also have a larger, more rugged upper rack, and door panels which provide consumers the option of selecting any five of The New Naturals® colors: Snow, Harvest Wheat, Fresh Avocado, Coffee and the all-new Almond.

Almond is a light beige that is neutral enough to mix or match with most types of kitchen decor and existing appliance colors, and complements today's trend to the use of natural materials in home decorating.

Also available in an optional kit is stylish Onyx, a high-gloss black that serves to highlight and act as a dramatic counterpoint to kitchen decor.

Between the flexibility of installation offered by the module and the flexibility of kitchen decor afforded by The New Naturals colors, GE offers the chance to do it yourself... and do it with style.

MICROWAVE COOKING CENTER from Hotpoint: Built-in double oven (Model RH966C) features a lower self-cleaning oven and a microwave upper oven that cooks by time or temperature. The ovens are designed for a 27-inch base cabinet. This is the first Hotpoint built-in offering Automatic Temperature Control (ATC), previously available only on Countertop Microwave Ovens. The variable-power levels on the microwave oven provide a range of approximately 100-625 watts to accommodate everything from slow simmer to high-power cooking for maximum speed.

Waterwise ways are worth a shower of home savings

Suddenly, water is the new precious commodity in your home.

Soaring costs and stunning shortages have made Americans all across the country water-conscious as never before. Researchers predict the moves toward strict water conservation will accelerate as we face the fact that clean, usable water is indeed a limited—and increasingly expensive—resource.

What is the outlook? And, what can you do to become a water-wise consumer?

Good questions. And, the experts at Eljer Plumbingware, leading fixture manufacturer, have developed solid, practical answers to both.

First, the "water crisis" is real. Runaway consumption is a problem everywhere. By 1980, unless we learn to conserve, total withdrawals of water in the U.S. are expected to hit 800 billion gallons daily—100 billion gallons more than nature provides us each day.

That means depleting reserves and trying to survive with steadily worsening shortages. Severe drought in many areas has already hastened this confrontation.

Further, sewer and waste treatment capacity in nearly all communities is limited. Plants can only process so much waste as they move toward meeting the 1985 clean water standards mandated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Water saving becomes vital to avert rationing, building moratoriums and tremendous increases in costs to all taxpayers.

Now, the good news. You can do a lot to help solve the water crisis—and pay yourself substantial savings at the same time.

Eljer experts showed that in Wheaton, Illinois—where average household daily water use of 269 gallons mirrored the typical American home EPA estimate of 225 gallons—installation of water-saving fixtures and fittings throughout a house could theoretically save a Wheaton homeowner nearly 41 percent on his water bill.

That meant savings of up to 109 gallons each day for the home equipped with water-saving fixtures from Eljer's product line . . . enough water in a year to take an incredible 1,591 average baths!

The authoritative "American Home" magazine, in a special report on the water crisis, said consumers must "demand that builders install water-saving fixtures and appliances." It urged owners of existing homes to "replace outmoded plumbing equipment when it fails" with water-saving models.

A new water-saving toilet, such as Eljer's "Emblem," works as effectively and costs no more than a conventional model, yet typically saves you 3,000 gallons of water yearly.

Reduced-flow shower heads and faucets such as those in Eljer's product line produce water savings of as much as 50 percent while still giving you ample water flow.

These water savings were projected from laboratory tests; personal usage can affect savings data on an individual basis.

"The use of water-efficient toilets and showers offers the greatest opportunity for significant savings," Eljer researchers report.

Besides installing attractive, water-saving new fixtures, you can cut home water consumption dramatically by following these easy-to-do tips from Eljer:

Have a qualified technician from your water service check the water meter. A worn, leaky meter wastes water.

Fix any leaky pipes. Check connections. Replace worn washers and defective fixtures. A pinhole leak from a faucet wastes 170 gallons a day at normal household pressure; a constant dribble a staggering 3,600 gallons daily.

Toilets can leak gallons and gallons without your knowing it. Pour a few drops of food coloring into the tank. If the color shows up in the bowl without the toilet being flushed, there's a leak.

GOOD-LOOKING AND WATER-SAVING, TOO!—These smart fixtures from Eljer Plumbingware's product line carry a double bonus. They're decorator-designed to handsomely complement your bath. And, their specially-engineered water-saving fixtures make them perfect for lowering your family's water use and costs.

Give room deep, rich look with textile wallcoverings

Are the walls in your home in dire need of a facelift? Choose carefully and you can work wonders with textile wallcoverings, which have come a long way since the Chinese first rice-papered their walls centuries ago.

Consider covering them with a Belgian linen yarn wallcovering. Their rich textures add another dimension to walls while their neutral, natural shades enable the use of additional colors and diverse furnishings without conflict.

Many advantages are accrued by using textile wallcovering. Yarn wallcoverings can be installed not only vertically but horizontally, on the diagonal or in a chevron pattern with commercially available adhesives.

Insulation and acoustical advantages are also attained. Walls need not be prepared in any special manner. Cracked and bumpy walls are easily camouflaged.

Since linen does not attract dust, maintenance is minimal. A vacuum cleaner used periodically takes care of that problem easily.

Spots are removed by means of a damp sponge and mild detergent, while some stubborn stains are removable with a solvent cleaner.

PROPER WALLCOVERING SELECTION plays an integral part in the success of this studio apartment. The Belgian linen yarn wallcovering is a backdrop and the cohesive element holding together the multifunctional furnishings needed to accommodate the many activities of studio living, working, entertaining, relaxing, and sleeping. Even a small indoor garden is included for the horticultural enthusiast.

Zero in on refrigerator needs

DOOR-WITHIN-A-DOOR OFFERS MORE! Whirlpool Corporation produces a handsome new refrigerator to meet the needs of consumers who require a large capacity unit. Called the "Serva-Door" (Model EED251MM) this 25 cu. ft. refrigerator-freezer features a door-within-a-door that allows a quick, easy entry to those "most used" everyday items—without having to open the entire refrigerator section. The user need only open the lower portion of the refrigerator door for access to four shelves (three are adjustable) for condiments, soda, milk and snacks. A dispenser mounted on the outside of the freezer door further enhances the appearance and utility of the unit. The user can get ice or water automatically without ever opening the door which helps to keep that cold air inside where it belongs and also helps keep frozen foods at a constant temperature.

Making Family Life More Fun

Room For Leisure

LIVING ROOM PLUS—Smart designing can transform a living room into a recreation room.

Decorators who understand family recreation suggest making your living room into something more: a game room, reading room, or music room with stereo and television.

A busy family, for example, might like a room that's set up to be restful. Monochromatic modern (like the room in the picture) can be a smart choice. Good acoustics and interesting textures are combined in the use of fabric wallcovering and soft surfaces because the room is designed for listening to music as well as relaxing. Plump, puffy Italian seating, upholstered in a color-flecked oatmeal, gives the room a comfortable quality. Drop lighting adds brightness.

The focal center of the room might be a favorite subject of family interest—a portable color television, such as a 15-inch model from Magnavox. Poised on an attractive pedestal, it can be seen from any seat in the room. Your stereo could be modular music components in a plexiglass giant dust cover mounted on the wall. For easier listening, the dust cover is designed in three pieces so it can lift up.

One way to encourage family activities is to set up a pleasant room in which everyone will be happy doing his or her favorite things.

Easy-to-do wood flooring

NOTHING ADDS TO THE NATURAL BEAUTY and warmth of a room like real wood. Solid oak parquet flooring, from Hartco, offers the elegant look of handsome wood patterns that are practical as well as beautiful. Hartco's adhesive-backed wood Foam-Tile with Par-K-Stik is inexpensive, durable and easy to install yourself. Wood flooring is a natural that will enhance the total look of any room.

Down is a 'natural' in energy shortage

Living in cooler rooms, a necessity since the energy crisis began, may actually be a blessing in disguise. Cool air is more healthful than the super-heated air many Americans have been accustomed to breathing. It's an energy wise idea to keep your home on the cool side—and it's healthy too.

For cozy sleeping, keep yourself warm with a comforter filled with down or a mix of down and feathers, and your bedroom temperature low.

A low thermostat and a fluffy comforter are the key to comfortable and healthy sleep. A comforter, filled with down or a combination of down and feathers, will drape to your body and keep you warm in the winter and comfortable in the warmer months. Its insulating qualities maintain your body temperature, so you act as your own thermostat.

Lightweight
The natural fill comforter is so lightweight that every night's sleep will be pleasant and refreshing — there are no heavy covers to weigh you down.

If you like to toss and turn in your sleep, don't worry — the comforter filled with natural materials will contour to your body with every toss and turn.

And, if you're the kind of sleeper who likes to "wrap up" in your covers, go ahead. With a comforter, there are no electrical coils to worry about, and no electric bills either.

A Practical Plus: A quality down or down and feather comforter will give you years of comfort and luxury. In the long run it will actually be less expensive than the cheaper ones because it will have a long and durable lifespan. It will retain its fluffiness and insulation qualities for years.

Ecological
An Energy Plus: The down and feathers used to fill comforters are a by-product of the duck and goose food industries throughout the world.

Spark your cooking with fresh taste of fresh herbs

Whether it be winter or summer, fresh herbs growing in a kitchen are a delight to the eye as well as the taste buds. Some herbs are quite fragrant, too.

What more delicious way to cook than to include one's own home-grown herbs in appetizers, soups, salads and entrees?

Herb cookery can be as creative as you like. Practice makes the difference; you'll learn by experience which herbs to use in your dishes and how much of each.

For beginners, a good cookbook makes an excellent guide . . . then let your own taste and inclinations take over.

Herbs are a natural way to avoid too much salt in one's diet, too. Learn to educate your taste to the subtle new flavor herbs can convey to foods.

Start with a good, all purpose soil mix. Soil for African Violets is especially good.

Planters should insure good drainage. Rubbermaid's windowsill planters are an ideal choice since they offer drainage holes and removable saucers to catch any water overflow. These planters are small enough to fit on even a narrow window ledge. If you're still short on space, group herbs in a hanging basket for a charming effect.

Plant herb seeds about one half inch apart and a quarter inch deep in the soil. If you buy herbs already started at a nursery, they may require a thinning before planting.

Chives, in particular, often die from overcrowding.

Keep soil moist but not soaking wet. As herbs begin to grow you can begin your harvest. Herbs with branching stems such as rosemary should be pinched at the tips to encourage bushy, full growth.

Parsley and other plants whose growth comes from the center should be harvested by removing outer leaves first.

There are numerous varieties of herbs to grow, but a good choice for beginners could include parsley, basil, chives, rosemary and thyme.

Mint is also a pleasant surprise; crush the leaves for a new flavor in citrus drinks, or use leaves as a garnish in foods and drinks.

Here are a few more tips for growing healthy herbs:

- Sun lovers by nature, herbs prefer a southern exposure or a sunny east or west window. You may need plant lights if your kitchen is lacking bright sun.

- Weekly washings under tepid water keep herbs clean, pest-free, and help increase the humidity they require.

- Rotate plants weekly to achieve even, shapely growth.

- Hold back on pesticides . . . remember, you'll be eating these plants.

Not only will herbs bring a fresh scent and sight to your kitchen, but a fresh taste to your food. Enjoy!

FABRIC COVERED WALLS, an upholstered chair, tie back draperies and a dust ruffle establish the overall theme in this master bedroom. Rich dark wood and a soft, luxurious down comforter complete the sense of peacefulness and tranquility in the traditional setting—yet both would be equally at home in a more contemporary bedroom. Carpeting, a curtained bed and the warmth of a natural fill comforter to snuggle under keep you warm even though the thermostat is set on low to conserve energy.

Comforters—favorite in fashionable warmth

A sense of tranquility and comfort are important considerations in the selection of bedroom furniture and linens.

The bedroom should be a place to relax, read a good book and sleep comfortably. It should be a refuge from hectic, activity-filled days.

Traditional favorites

Traditional favorites, such as the down comforter, are regaining an important place as a bedcovering choice. Old world charm, combined with the energy shortage which requires lower thermostats and today's interest in efficiency have contributed to this renewed demand.

Comforters filled with down or feathers and down have been popular for centuries in Europe, where the bedrooms are often cool.

Living in cooler rooms is an energy-wise idea that is also a healthy one. A low thermostat, which helps conserve energy, also means healthful sleep.

Cozy sleeping

For cozy sleeping, the natural fill comforter drapes to your body and keeps you warm, while your bedroom temperature stays low.

In addition to keeping you warm all night, comforters look right all day. They are becoming the most popular bedcovering in America today because they give a finished look to the bedroom without the nuisance of using both a blanket and a bedspread. They save time in making up the bed.

A luxurious looking comforter is just as at home in a traditional or contemporary bedroom and adds a touch of elegance anywhere.

Coordinate color

With all the attractive patterned sheets available today, it makes good sense to select a solid color comforter that will coordinate with a variety of patterns.

Many decorators recommend a solid color because it won't compete with your decorating scheme and it will fit in with any changes you may make in fabrics, draperies or dust ruffle.

Years of service

A good comforter will give you years of service and still look fluffy while it keeps you comfortable.

Some down comforters have been in families for years and years, passed on from one generation to the next.

For warmth, a sense of luxury and a refreshing night's sleep every night, a traditional down comforter is the right bedcovering choice for today's bedroom.

Free tabloid explains window economics

No matter how well-insulated your home may be, you'll waste many dollars' worth of precious energy this winter unless you also have good insulating glass in the form of storm windows or new "thermalized" windows.

A free 8-page tabloid, "Energy Saving Window News," available from Schlegel Corporation, Rochester, N.Y., gives all the details.

leaking, it's time to start thinking about new windows. The best alternative is to invest in new thermalized windows which have many energy-saving features. Today's thermalized windows are custom-made to fit any size wall opening.

Even the oldest wooden windows can be replaced with no mess and no need for costly renovations. A thermalized window has not just one, but two or more layers of glass—so it insulates your home far better than an ordinary window. It offers these additional features:

- A special type of weatherstripping known as double pile weatherseal is built into the window to create an extremely tight seal which practically eliminates air leakage.
- An energy-saver weatherseal, such as Fin-Seal weatherseal by Schlegel, also permits quiet, easy opening and closing of windows.
- A vinyl or plastic thermal barrier is built into the window frame. This material, which is an excellent insulator, has the same effect as the double glass: it slows down heat transfer through the window frame, cutting conduction losses even further.

The thermal barrier also prevents condensation and frost from forming on windows.

- Thermalized windows are available with sturdy aluminum or vinyl frames. Both materials are durable, weather-resistant, color-fast, and virtually maintenance-free.

If you really want to save energy, you can install storm windows over thermalized ones. By thus adding a third layer of glass, your energy savings can be increased from 50% to 65%.

Learn more about windows: To help you fight the energy crisis in your home, an eight-page newspaper is being offered free. It's full of energy-saving tips and the latest data on storm and thermalized windows. To get your copy, write to Window News, Schlegel Corporation, P.O. Box 196, Rochester, New York 14601.

FREE NEWSPAPER offers home energy-saving tips and the latest information on new thermalized windows. Free copies of WINDOW NEWS are available from Schlegel Corporation, P.O. Box 197, Rochester, N.Y. 14601.

ARE OLD, DRAFTY WINDOWS making your fuel bills skyrocket? New "thermalized" windows can cut energy losses up to 65%. These windows have insulating glass, weather-tight seals and maintenance-free frames... making homes more comfortable, attractive, and energy-efficient! Schlegel Corporation, Rochester, N.Y., has a free newspaper that explains all about thermal windows.

Energy waste

If your home has single-glazed windows (i.e., only one layer of glass), these windows may account for up to 38% of your heating bill, and up to a third of your air conditioning costs. In fact, it's estimated that such windows waste five billion gallons of fuel each year in this country!

But there is a way to combat the problem: by equipping your home with windows which have multiple layers of glass and good weatherstripping.

Not only will such windows make your home more attractive and comfortable—they'll pay for themselves over the years in energy savings.

Add some air

How multiple glazing helps you save: Glass is a poor insulator and an excellent conductor of heat. As a result, much of your heating fuel is transmitted right out the window—literally.

Air, however, is a very good insulator, and when confined between two layers of glass, it can slash your heat loss dramatically.

According to government studies, a double-glazed window can reduce your energy losses by about 50% compared to single glass.

Storm windows. The easiest way to "double-glaze" your windows is to add storm windows.

Pay for themselves

Triple-track aluminum storm windows are durable, have good weatherstripping, and contain built-in screens so the windows can be left in year round.

These windows help prevent uncomfortable drafts. And they pay for themselves in just three to four years in fuel savings.

Thermalized windows. If the windows in your home are old, warped, cracked or

The sun is six billion years old—and will probably last another six billion years.

A country house with just the right combination of elegance and easy living...furnished with pieces from Bunting's clean-lined collection of indoor furniture.

This striking, spare setting is comfortably furnished for casual dining with Bunting's light-scaled, easy-to-assemble furniture designs.

Many people are pleased to discover that one of the latest looks in home decor is furniture that's sleek, slim, simple—and inexpensive.

Chrome and canvas and easy-to-clean surfaces blend appealingly with unpainted panels, wooden floors and few accessories.

The easy-to-live-with living room is furnished with Bunting's foam-slab sofas covered with practical, sturdy canvas, sling-seated chrome-framed chairs and laminate-topped tables. Add a bold Indian design rug on the wall, a low-slung magazine rack on casters, fresh flowers and piled pillows. A folding canvas screen closes off a cluttered corner—and adds its own accent. Bicycles looking like modern sculpture are hung for storage on ceiling hooks. Put in a potted fern and a carved candlestick and your decorating is just about done.

For a delightful dining room frame a poster and bedeck the walls with baskets. Add a trestle table with a butcher-block top and comfortable chrome chairs covered in rust corduroy. For serving convenience try a trolley on casters.

All the furniture can be found in the indoor furniture collection from Bunting and except for the couches, comes packaged in handy carrying cartons, ready to assemble in minutes for almost-instant decorating with a stylish new look.

TO DETERMINE HOW MUCH INSULATION you'll need to conserve heating and air conditioning energy, use the charts prepared by the CertainTeed Home Institute. First, locate the climate zone where you live. Then, select the heating and cooling costs closest to those in your area. You'll find suggested insulation levels for your climate zone and utility rates expressed as R-Values. R-19 is the equivalent of 6 inches of fiber glass batt insulation. R-38 is 12 inches of fiber glass batt insulation. For additional information, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860-M, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482.

More than anything else... Windows are the worst energy wasters in any part of the home

Heat does not always rise. Heated air tends to rise, but heat itself travels only in one direction—toward cold. It travels down through floors. It travels horizontally through walls... and doors and windows. And it also travels up, through ceilings. But it travels faster through windows than through floors or walls... or ceilings.

When it is 0° outside and 75° inside, ceilings lose heat at the rate of only 23 Btu's per hour per square foot. This compares to 105 Btu's per hour per square foot lost by windows. Windows waste energy almost five times as fast as ceilings.

Looking at the average two-story house, we find the average ceiling is 750 square feet and loses 17,250 Btu's per hour. The same house has 200 square feet of windows, and loses 21,000 Btu's per hour if the windows are in average condition (U value of 1.13). If the windows are deteriorated, (U value 1.562) they will lose 29,400 Btu's per hour.

Deteriorated windows in the average two-story house lose 70% more energy than the ceiling. As the number of floors in a home or building increases, the significance of the ceiling becomes less and less, and the opportunity for energy savings with windows increases.

In a two-story house, the windows lose 170% as much as the ceiling. In a three-story house, the windows lose 255% as much energy as the ceiling.

A thermalized replacement window can dramatically decrease this energy loss through windows. It can change the U value of a deteriorated window of 1.562 to a new U value as low as .445... reducing fuel consumption by 61%. Fuel savings alone will repay the investment in new thermalized windows.

In addition to fuel savings, there are other savings that accrue to the home or building owner. Because custom-fit, thermalized replacement windows are aluminum, they practically eliminate the need for maintenance, such as scraping, painting and reglazing.

These maintenance savings on top of fuel savings not only reduce the investment payback period, but they increase the homeowner's direct dividends in savings once the window investment is repaid.

Complete information about windows and energy can be found in "The Window Book"... a $1.95 value which can be ordered direct for a special publisher's discount by sending only $1.00 to The Window Book, Seasonal Industries, Inc., Indiana, PA 15701.

FOCAL POINT—Arrange furniture to suit family activities.

Living rooms can be as versatile as the people who live in them. Here are some tips from expert designers on how to tailor your living room to your family's life style.

1. Consider what mood will suit your family best. Choose a color scheme and furniture styles that will reflect and enhance it. For example, gold walls and plush brown velvet couches (as in the picture) are warm and restful—and comfortable.

2. Think about what your family likes to do. If TV is a favorite activity, arrange furniture and wall decorations in such a way as to make the set a focal point. Bookshelves built around a TV, such as a 25-inch console by Magnavox, make an economical and attractive use of space.

3. Let the living room reflect your tastes and experiences. Wicker baskets might replace the conventional coffee table and provide a good spot for knickknacks.

If you follow these tips your family may be sitting pretty—in a living room designed for leisure.

New Guide To Carpets
Choosing the right carpet can be confusing. There are many questions concerning texture, design, fabric, price, and, just as important is the matter of performance. In other words, what kind of job will the carpet do once it's installed? Is it the right quality for the right room?

One of the country's largest carpet manufacturers, Bigelow-Sanford, has produced a small booklet that provides valuable tips in selecting carpet according to the amount of use it will receive. Consumers should evaluate three critical factors when considering carpet performance: 1) How much traffic, generally, does the home receive? 2) How often will the carpet be cleaned? 3) Which are the heaviest traffic areas? Once those questions have been answered, you have a guide to selecting the proper grade of carpet. As a further help, Bigelow labels its carpet according to performance: light, moderate, general and heavy.

The booklet provides guidelines on how color and pattern relate to carpet performance and recommends the use of chemical soil retardants, such as Scotchgard. For a free copy, visit a Bigelow carpet dealer or write: Bigelow-Sanford Inc., Dept. of Consumer Information, P.O. Box 3089, Greenville, S.C. 29602.

Water-saving habits

Water conservation is fast becoming a necessity. The experts at Eljer Plumbingware, a leading fixture manufacturer, have shown that water-saving fixtures and fittings can significantly reduce water waste—and water bills. In addition, Eljer suggests some water-saving habits around the house:

In the kitchen
You can stop squandering water when washing dishes by hand. "Pond" wash water in one basin, rinse water in the other, or a pan.

Use a nylon net scrubber to remove sticky foods. This cuts rinsing which wastes about five gallons a minute. If you have an automatic dishwasher, make every load count. Fill the racks. You don't have to pre-rinse dishes with most units, either. If you must remove a sticky substance, do it by soaking utensils in detergent, not running water.

Read your operating manual. Some machines use shorter wash cycles for some types of loads. That means less water.

Fill your garbage disposal before using. Don't run this water-guzzler separately for every scrap.

Don't waste water by running the tap until the water cools; keep a bottle in your refrigerator for those cool drinks.

Keep a pan of sudsy water on a kitchen counter for rinsing your hands as you go from one household chore to another. This rinse can sanitariously be used many times during the day, avoiding the need for turning on a faucet over and over.

In the laundry
Wash full loads. If you must do a small load, use the water-saver level switch which saves as much as 12 gallons a cycle.

Check into equipping your machine with a suds saver which stores wash water for re-use during the second cycle. It could save literally thousands of gallons a year.

THE RACING SCENE

For every man at the wheel embodying the glamour of stock car racing, thousands cheer, weep, sweat, work and wait. The legions of racing devotees far outnumber the stars—the top drivers and their cars—who usually have all the attention focused on them. The photographs on this page, made at Syracuse, N.Y., Stafford Springs, Conn., and Trenton, N.J., show some of the people who can be found in and around tracks in the Northeast, where the eight-month stock car racing season is just about to get going again. There are the hoarse throats, the greasy fingernails, the tired arms. The crowds and the crews are as much a part of racing as are the drivers. The same love of the sport holds them all.

TERRACE, BREEZEWAY INVITE OUTDOOR LIVING

PLAN OUTLINES EASY LIVING, ENTERTAINING

By Jerry Bishop

With a flagstone terrace and breezeway that separate garage from living areas for outdoor enjoyment, the Braddock, a one story contemporary, takes a modern approach to home function and promises, above all, livability.

A traffic-director foyer, a family room and living room equally close to the kitchen, and a generous use of space all contribute to the design, comfortable for entertaining or everyday living.

Simple, attractive lines mark the facade, dramatically dominated by an expanse of windows, including gable end windows that edge the cathedral ceilings. Inside, the tiled foyer speaks instant welcome and helps create the space-saving many activities and enjoys the view and access of sliding glass traffic pattern.

Directly off the foyer is the airy family room. The room juts forward in the design, a technique that both spotlights the room and adds a measure of insulation from other living areas. The family room is linked to the kitchen by a breakfast bar effectively buffered from noise. The kitchen itself radiates the careful design. Incorporated in the wall space are a washer and dryer to save time and steps. In addition, the room offers access to the breezeway for easy living comfortably, the Braddock offers 1412 sq. ft. of living and to the living room, which space, plus 484 sq. ft. of garage can be arranged to offer a dining and storage area.

A recent column, in a general discussion of the use of solar energy for homes, contained a brief reference to tests under way in Albuquerque, N.M., and Wading River, N.Y., utilizing heat pumps.

Seldom has a comment brought such a flood of mail, with most of the readers asking for more detail on the use of heat pumps in connection with solar energy. Heat pumps powered by electricity actually have been in use for many years, growing in popularity recently along with the increased demand for air conditioning, since they take care of both heating and cooling needs.

The Albuquerque-Wading River projects encompass solar houses with electrical backup systems. Heat pumps will work in conjunction with solar collectors on the roofs of the houses, pulling heat from outside air even during cold weather periods. In addition to supplying the heat directly to the houses, the solar collectors will provide heat to warm water in 200-to 300-gallon storage tanks. These tanks will be used for heating at night and on cloudy days. A mini-computer, located in the basement of each house, will gauge the house's energy requirements and automatically instruct the system how to meet these needs.

Many other such projects are now being tested. In some cases, year-round solar heating and air conditioning systems have already been introduced into development homes. At Sun City, Ariz., such a system has been installed in three-bedroom model houses of approximately 1650 square feet. Such a system is not inexpensive. It's presently priced at $9,500. The engineers figure that the pay-back period, considering the upward spiral of utility rates, could be less than 10 years. Competition will bring down the

Q. What kind of vegetable is the "kershaw?" How do you grow it and cook it? (Mrs. T. D., Greenville)

A. The correct spelling is "cushaw." The fruits are usually large, curved and green striped. They are grown and cooked by the same methods as pumpkin. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. What is the name of the red, hard apple that is lopsided? (R. E., Winston-Salem)

A. York Imperial. North Carolina produces only a few of them—less than 10,000 bushels out of the 10 million bushels produced in the nation. However, this variety often appears in our stores in March and April from Pennsylvania and New York. It is an excellent processing apple and can be eaten fresh. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. My turnip (roots) have dark, pithy centers. What causes this? (T. C., Salem)

A. A deficiency of boron. Like all plants of the cabbage family, turnips require more boron than other types of crops. To prevent a deficiency, apply two tablespoons of borax, solubor, borateen or similar material per 100 feet of row. Mix the borax containing material with fertilizer or sand to help get an even distribution. Do not apply a rate higher than suggested. (A. A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist) cost of solar energy systems, while parts and equipment now handcrafted will be less expensive when manufactured in mass production.

Solar energy systems and products of all sorts are being manufactured by hundreds of companies, with the result that some extravagant claims are being made. The government and industry are working on programs designed to see that the solar products live up to the claims being made for them.

For instance, the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, a trade association of manufacturers of heating-cooling equipment, expects to have a rating program for solar collectors within a year. The collectors will be rated by their ability to collect heat from the sun, with testing done by independent laboratories as well as the institute. One of the objectives of the program is to provide information that will help consumers decide how long it will take for the cost of the solar equipment to return savings on fuel costs. Incidentally, there are now more than 200 different types or models of solar collectors.

New Wood-Burner Might Help

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Many people are seeking supplementary heat that will help cut the cost of their fuel bills, especially if they have a costly heating system.

The average wood-burning fireplace may throw little heat into a room, although some owners of well-insulated homes use their fireplaces more often than their major heating systems. But there are fireplace units that can recirculate heat into a room and these can provide considerable warmth. Then, too, fireplaces may be supplemented with wood stoves.

In her book, "The Wood Burning Stove," Gerri Harrington aims to provide information about heating and cooking alternatives.

Such stoves include heavy cast iron and plate steel box types that have become popular as emergency heat in the northeast and other areas where there have been power outages. Like generators, which small-home owners often acquire after a big storm, upkeep is needed so that the heating units are ready to provide service when it is necessary. But more and more people are considering such stoves as major heating sources.

Unless you have previous experience with wood-burning stoves you should not replace your central heating, cautions the author, who says, however, that heating and cooking bills can be cut enormously by using a wood-burning stove to supplement a regular heating system.

With wood there should be no worries about running out of fuel, she reassures. A never-ending supply of firewood is available in the forests and backyards of America. Man merely harnesses nature to take care of his needs, she says.

If it takes 141 gallons of oil to equal a cord of wood (as fuel potential) and if oil costs 40 cents a gallon, a person could afford to pay $56 for a cord of wood, the author states. In fact a cord of shag bark hickory will deliver as much heat as 251 gallons of fuel oil, she claims.

"Even then you don't need to buy all your wood," she says, "there is so much free." It could come from the property of friends, relatives, dumps, landfills, state forests, national forests, telephone company tree clearings, hurricanes, ice storms and the like. She cites wood for its availability, easy storage, non-pollution and beauty. And if you can order it in four-foot lengths, you can save additional money. A typical pick-up truck can not handle a cord of wood which likely weighs more than a ton and a half, she points out. A full cord of four-foot wood requires a dump truck.

Wood burning also has some disadvantages. Wood is heavy; stoves need maintenance; fires and chimneys need tending.

The book includes a wood-burning stove catalogue with information about the purchase of stoves that range from the Franklin type and Scandinavian stoves to cook stoves that have ovens and warming closets, and box stoves with cooking tops and lids that become griddles. There are also thermostatically controlled heaters—one with a seven-and-a-half-foot firebox requires loading only once in 12 hours. Another, a cast iron Danish box stove, can heat an area of 10,000 cubic feet. And those pot-bellied stoves, originally made for railroad stations, are still available. So, too, the trim little parlor stove. There is information on how to buy and order the stoves.

In addition to comparison of wood fuel values there is information on recommended dimensions of fireplaces and heat equivalents of wood.

("The Wood Burning Stove" is published by Macmillan.)

Q. — We have an oak floor in our living room that is so beautiful we do not cover it with a rug. When we moved in a year ago, the floor was finished with a penetrating sealer, the kind that is clear. There now are several marks on it, possibly from the bottom of someone's shoes, although we don't know exactly what it is. We don't know much about these things and have hesitated to try to get the marks out for fear of ruining the floor. Can you give us some advice?

A. — Most stains and marks can be removed by rubbing the area lightly with fine steel wool, then cleaning with a cloth dampened with turpentine or mineral spirits. Wipe dry and repeat the process if necessary. There is no danger of ruining the floor. If the marks are very stubborn, try sanding lightly with fine paper. In extreme cases, you may have to use wood bleach, in which case you will have to be very careful not to get any on your hands, face or clothes. Wear rubber gloves and goggles. In any of these methods, removing the marks may also take off a little of the finish. One advantage of a penetrating sealer is that you can touch up an area and make it blend with the surrounding surface.

Q. — I want to buy a step-ladder and don't know whether to get one made of aluminum or wood. This is of concern to me because I weigh more than 200 pounds. What do you suggest?

A. — Most ladders have a rated capacity marked on them. Get one of that type. Whatever the capacity is, the ladder will hold several times that weight because of safety standards set by government agencies and the manufacturers themselves. You should have no problem. Wood ladders are heavier than aluminum and do not conduct electricity, so should be favored if you do electrical work. Aluminum ladders are easy to handle. In either case, inspect the model you choose for signs of good or poor workmanship.

Q. — I have inherited an old dining-room table made of maple. It has no finish on it and I want to stain it a walnut color. Do I have to put a sealer over the stain before I apply varnish?

A. — Before answering your question: I am against staining maple a dark color. Instead of having a nice piece of maple furniture, you have some kind of undistinguishable wood with no character. Why not use a maple stain? As for a sealer, yes, it should go on over a stain. If you use a varnish, make it the semi-gloss type.

(For Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which describes the techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., send 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Personal replies cannot be given, but questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Chopsticks Fire Up A Model Train's Engine

ALL ABOARD—Railway lover Hans J. Lorbeer of West Germany steams up his 1/8-scale SEJ-104 "Malay" type steam locomotive before proceeding to a turntable at right, as hundreds of spectators watch during a Tokyo International Model Engine Exhibition.

By NAOAKI USUI
TOKYO (AP) — Twenty-seven model trains, ranging from 1-11th to 1-8th actual size, puffed around the foot of a 52-story office building in Tokyo recently, providing rides for about 54,000 kids during a nine-day run.

The occasion was an International Model Engine Exhibition that drew rail buffs from as far away as Germany, Britain, Switzerland and Australia.

The steam locomotives, with smoke flying and whistles sounding, operated on an 800-foot track set up for the event. Joining the steam engine buffs were Gordon Howell of Andover, England, and three other enthusiasts with their "traction engines," steam-powered towing vehicles that resemble a tractor and need no track. They helped provide rides for Japanese youngsters, a top of 19,000 on a Sunday.

Torah Thieves In Jerusalem

By ARTHUR MAX
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli criminals are doing a thriving export trade in Torah scrolls, the most sacred artifacts of the Jewish religion, which are easy to steal, since synagogues rarely lock their doors.

Police say 200 scrolls — valued at $1 million — were stolen in 1976, and the pace has picked up this year, with the most recent heist netting no less than eight of the valuable parchments.

Torahs are the first five books of the Old Testament, ardently handwritten on parchment by trained scribes. Many of the stolen editions are believed to be smuggled abroad to Jewish communities, which pay about $5,000 for a scroll they don't know is stolen.

None of the thieves has been caught, and investigators admit they are stumped. A few synagogues have installed burglar alarms around the holy arks in which the scrolls are kept, and a technology-minded rabbi wants to put a computer to work tracing the missing items.

Ancient tradition says the Torah was handed to Moses on Mount Sinai wrapped around a sword, during the Israelite flight from Egypt.

The Torah is central to Jews, governing virtually every aspect of daily life. For 2,000 years the Torah has been read in synagogues, three portions a week, so that the entire scroll is read aloud in the space of a year.

A scribe may take years to copy the five Books of Moses onto parchment made from a ritually slaughtered animal. A single letter wrongly penned can disqualify an entire segment of the work, since it is forbidden to make mistakes.

Benedict Arnold escaped to the British in 1780 after his attempt to betray West Point.

"Isn't it amazing that there are so many kids fascinated by our engines?" said Barry Glover, of Australia. "And it's unbelievable that most of them are carrying cameras."

As a result of the Japanese site, the model railway participants found a new, and what they called ideal, wood for firing up their steam engine — chopsticks.

Howell said he got the idea for using the chopsticks while taking part for the first time in a Japanese-style dinner in Tokyo.

"We started the fires with used chopsticks as Howell suggested," an official of the exhibition site building told The Associated Press in an interview. "We needed about 600 pairs every day. Japanese restaurants gave them to us."

After the exhibition closed, the visiting model railway operators toured Japan — by train all the way.

ECU News Bureau
Seven members of the East Carolina University School of Technology faculty represented ECU at two recent gatherings.

Four ECU delegates attended the 16th annual Southeastern Industrial Arts Conference in Atlanta.

They were Dr. Norman Pendered, chairman of the ECU Dept. of Industrial and Technical Education, and faculty members Douglas Kruger, Kenneth Mayer and Darryl Davis.

Theme of the conference was "Forces that Move Industrial Arts Education." The meeting featured panel discussions, presentations of research and development projects, and reports on legislation affecting industrial arts.

Attending the N. C. Vocational Association's fall conference in Fayetteville were Dr. Thomas Haigwood, dean of the ECU school of Technology, and industrial arts faculty members Frederick Broadhurst and Paul Waldrop.

The NCVA meeting included several sessions designed to inform members of current funding status, regulations of the 1976 Federal Vocational Act, current issues in vocational education and the role of youth organizations.

World Of 'Egg Man' Is Same

EDITOR'S NOTE — He comes from the days when kids were needed on the farm. From the days when a man didn't need much to get by. The world's changed, what with credit cards, fast cars and fancy gadgets. His world is the same. But he's hardly had time to notice.

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
NORTHFIELD, N.H. (AP) — Since he was 14, Bert Southwick has delivered eggs and vegetables from his family's farm to his neighbors in the villages of Northfield and Tilton, first by bicycle and later by horse-drawn wagon.

"When school closed last spring, I finished 41 years," Bert says. Now 56, he's still on the job, a vestige of a passing Americana.

It's all there. The green and yellow milk wagon with red wheels and black roof, pulled by Misty, the 8-year-old pinto mare. At Misty's side is her colt, nursing.

"The colt ain't big enough to have a name yet," Bert's face is weathered, his frame sturdy. Blue overalls ordered from the Sears catalog cover his short-sleeved blue shirt, the one his mother laid out for him this morning.

Bert was born a farmer. His father, Carmen Southwick — he died nine years ago — bought the 300-acre farm on Zion Hill Road in Northfield in 1916. Bert still lives there in the 10-room house with his mother Vida, 83, who cooks on a wood-burning stove, and his sister Edna, 54.

He's a shy man. He never went beyond eighth grade. "He was more interested in getting home on the farm," his mother says.

"It all has to be done to keep it rolling, so there ain't much to dislike about it," Bert says. "You just have to do it to make it go."

Bert Southwick is one of the last of the old-time peddlers, a simple, hard-working man. He's a living portrait from the turn of the century. Children flocking around his wagon. Dogs barking at Misty and the colt. The tree-lined country lanes. The river that divides Northfield and Tilton.

Bert recalls the days when he started. "Of course, a lot of people raised little gardens and had a few chickens and took stuff around some. Because the stuff got so expensive, grain and things got so expensive, why they just gradually kept dropping out."

And moving on, making money to buy things they need instead of growing their own. Things like cars, something Bert has never owned. Never driven, either.

"Cars are all right if they fit your job but they don't fit this job. There's stopping and starting. If we run a motor vehicle we'd have to have a special one. We wouldn't use it enough to have it work good. The license and insurance would cost more than we'd get out of it, so there'd be no point in us doing it if we had to do it with a car."

Bert makes his egg rounds once a week, on Friday, averaging 130 dozen on his eight-mile route.

"There's only two or three of the first customers that I had that I still take eggs to. I'm selling eggs to the grandchildren of people I sold to when I started. And they're grown up now. There's children that weren't born when I started that have children old enough to leave school now."

Bert usually is up by dawn.

"It varies a little. Schooltime, sometimes we have some school kids helping and we work late at night so we don't get started so early in the morning like some people. We're most always going before six. By six. We finish when we get done so we can quit."

He has only one fulltime hand working for him.

"My sister works outside in an office. My mother, she does a little something most of the time, tending the eggs, the garden, the housework."

Bert has 500 hens right now. He lost 500 in a fire in his barn last June. He has 30 horses — some of them boarders, others he rents to an amusement park in summer — 25 cattle, three pigs. He raises almost all of his hay on 100 acres. His biggest crop is potatoes, grown on two acres.

"We sell most anything we raise more than enough to eat — beets, carrots, tomatoes. We also sell wood that we cut ourselves."

Has Bert Southwick ever dreamed of bigger things?

"I guess I grew up that way. And we haven't — we've been busy enough so there hasn't been time off to go to anything else anyhow without giving it up. So we're still at it.

"It's part of our income. We have to have money to pay our bills with so it's just part of our job. We started with a bicycle to deliver stuff, and in order to get something for it, we have to sell part of it."

Bert is clearly one of a vanishing breed. Have modern technology and the modern temper passed him by?

Low-E

Energy Efficient Homesteads®

Our Low-E homes are designed from the ground up to be the most energy-efficient you can buy. Purely and simply, what we have done is combine all the existing energy-saving techniques with some innovative building methods. The result is a home that can cut heating and cooling costs up to 65%. The Arkansas Power and Light Company reports that homes built to Low-E specifications in their area are averaging a 65% savings when compared to homes built to FHA minimum property standards. The Arkansas results are actual metered results over a 2-year period... no gimmicks, no guesses... but actual metered results! Imagine what that means to you in dollars-and-cents terms. A Low-E Homestead® represents energy savings wrapped up in one beautiful structure.

Not a pre-fab. Not a shell house. Each energy-efficient Homestead® is a complete materials package necessary to build the home of the future... today... on your lot from the foundation plate up. Construction labor costs not included.

You provide the construction labor, lot, and foundation; we provide the materials to complete — from the foundation plate up — the interior and exterior of these homes according to plans and specifications. The materials furnished will meet or exceed the national minimum property standards of FHA. Any changes required to meet local or state codes may alter the price accordingly. Lowe's quotes you one price for all the materials, so you know before you start, your total cost!

Designed from the ground up to meet the demands of a changing world. Here's how we did it!

We obviously can't go into complete detail here — we've got an 8-page brochure to do that. But, briefly, we began by doubling the standard amount of insulation used: to 12" in the ceiling and 6" in walls and floors. We used 2 x 6 studs with post and beam construction, 24" on center, in the walls to accommodate 6" insulation and specially designed trusses for 12" insulation in the attic. An electrical raceway allows application of insulation flush to the walls, while the electrical cable in the attic is strung above the insulation. We also cut window area down to 8-10% of the floor space, used caulked double-pane windows, and insulated metal doors with magnetic weatherstripping. We caulked between the sole plate and the flooring, with insulation between the sole plate and foundation wall. A vapor barrier is used next to the sub-flooring and in the walls and ceiling. The design also allows enough roof overhang to shade windows and a light-colored roof to reduce heat in summer, with natural air flow throughout the attic. Finally, polyethylene was applied to the ground in the crawl space to greatly reduce moisture accumulation.

Can cost no more to build than a minimum property standard home having similar features.

Does that sound too good to be true? Well, believe it! We've utilized some innovative building techniques to really trim labor costs. And our homes require fewer board feet of lumber, which reduces construction costs even more. Even better than that — studies have shown that a Low-E Homestead® is as structurally sound as a conventionally built one.

Interested? We've got a beautiful brochure that tells the complete energy-efficient Low-E story. It's yours for the asking — just drop by our store.

Whoopers At Last Seem To Have Fighting Chance

EDITOR'S NOTE — Look up. Because that's where things are looking up. The whooping crane is back in business, it seems. Still endangered, it's true, but 114 strong. The only question that remains: Can the whooper do for himself what man has been doing for him?

Your Jogging Dog May Require Conditioning

DETROIT (UPI) — If you've decided Rover needs more exercise, don't just dash off with him on your daily jog around the block.

More and more dogs are accompanying their masters jogging, and a Detroit veterinarian cautions that man's best friend needs conditioning just like his master before getting involved in vigorous activities.

"The first step ... is a thorough physical examination," said Dr. W.J. Westcott.

Westcott, past-president of the American Animal Hospital Association and operator of an animal hospital here, said dogs should be checked for heartworm and internal parasites. Booster vaccinations may be required if they are not up to date, he said, and the rabies immunization should be current.

"Your dog should be exercised throughout the year," Westcott said, "but a gradual increase in conditioning exercises is essential if strenuous jogging, hiking, hunting, field trials or obedience training is planned."

He said a regular conditioning and exercise program strengthens a pet's foot pads, muscles and cardiovascular system.

Dog owners also should discuss their pet's diet with a veterinarian.

"If your dog is going to be very active," Westcott said, "your veterinarian may suggest you increase his food intake somewhat as you accelerate the training and exercise program."

"When active throughout the entire day, your dog may need or might enjoy a midday snack. And always be sure to have plenty of drinking water available."

He said pet owners should make sure their dogs are under control at all times and fitted with proper identification tags.

"You might even consider having your dog tattooed," he said. "Make it easy for a lost dog to be found."

"But the best advice is to keep your dog under control."

Dogs taken on hikes and walks through fields or woods may be exposed to many types of parasites and ear, eye or skin irritants.

Westcott said long-haired dogs should have their leg, ear and body fur trimmed before entering brushy or wooded areas.

"Brush your dog thoroughly after a day of outdoor activity to help eliminate dirt or burrs from his coat and outer ears," he said. "Be sure to closely examine his skin to check for any ticks or other parasites."

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The majestic white birds rise from forested bogs of the north and west, spiraling higher and higher above the spruce and tamarack before turning south to ride the wind the length of the continent.

From the ground the whooping cranes resemble black-tipped crosses moving across the sky. Their clarion calls fill the heavens with a windsong of trumpets.

The flight takes them from northern Canada across the Great Plains to Texas' Gulf Coast, a 2,450-mile journey marking the changing of the seasons.

But this autumn's migration differs markedly from those of past years. More endangered whoopers are flying south than at any time in recent history.

The whooping crane, once believed doomed to extinction, has stepped back from the abyss.

From a record low of 14 whoopers in 1939, at least 114 survive today: 69 adults and nine young that comprise the primary flock nesting in the Northwest Territories, five immature birds and at least five fledglings forming a new flock in Idaho, and 26 captive cranes.

So dramatic has been the whooper's recovery in the past decade that Dr. Ray C. Erickson of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says, "The whooper's future looks very encouraging."

But the optimism is tempered by caution. The comeback is in large measure attributable to man's eleventh-hour efforts to save the species. The question now is whether or not the whooper will be able to do for himself what man has done for him.

Authorities estimate 1,000 to 2,000 whoopers inhabited North America when the Pilgrims stepped ashore, the last survivors of a breed that flourished 500,000 years ago in the wake of the last ice age.

Fossil records disclose the bird was found from coast to coast, from the Arctic to Mexico. The population explosion stemmed from the broad marshes and savannas created by the retreating glacier. The wetlands provided ideal habitat for the spindly legged bird. It spends most of its time wading in shallow water in search of food — small crustaceans, reptiles and fish.

But the wetlands gradually were claimed by forests, and the whoopers numbers shrank. The coming of the white man accelerated their demise.

Hungry settlers swarming across the continent destroyed the remaining habitat. Marshes were drained and grasslands were plowed under.

In addition, hunters killed the whooper for plumage. Egg collectors plundered nests.

The whooper's attraction is understandable. He is striking in appearance: Snow white plumage garnished with a splash of crimson across the forehead and cheeks. Adult males stand four feet high — tallest bird in North America.

The last survivors held out by nesting in a remote and inhospitable region of the Northwest Territories. They wintered along Texas' Gulf Coast where sparsely settled tidal marshes stretched for miles.

The wintering grounds ultimately were protected by the establishment of Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. The nesting grounds fell within the boundaries of Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park.

Biologists hoped increasing protection would enable the species to naturally rebuild its numbers. But the recovery process was slow.

The 1939 winter census found only 14 whoopers on the Texas coast. Twenty-five years later there were 44.

The slow increase prompted authorities to extreme measures. In 1967 biologists began raiding the nesting grounds to steal whooper eggs. The eggs were taken to the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland and hatched in incubators. The chicks matured, forming a breeding flock.

Critics who wanted preservation efforts focused on the wild population castigated the flock, arguing captive cranes simply represented a new form of poultry.

In 1975, wildlife biologists hit on a plan to establish a second wild flock by launching the foster parent program. Whooper eggs were placed in sandhill crane nests at Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Idaho.

The sandhills proved excellent parents, raising the adopted young and guiding them south for the winter at Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge in New Mexico. A migratory tradition was begun.

To date, five whoopers have completed the Idaho-New Mexico journey. At least five more are expected to make the flight this fall.

But several years must elapse before it will be known if the immature whoopers will nest and guide their own offspring south to New Mexico, cementing a tradition that could link generations of whoopers.

Biologists hope to create at least two more new flocks using sandhill cranes as parents. Until at least four distinct flocks are established, "the crane's future is not secure," Erickson says.

Dolly Doll Throws A Curve At Barbie

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — It was not easy to convince New York executives to market a doll with the generous curves and fat hair of Dolly Parton.

They were incredulous when Ann Warden tried to sell them the idea, describing her longtime friend and business partner with expansive gestures.

"Does she really look like that?" was what they asked," Mrs. Warden said with a giggle.

"If I wasn't born with them, I would have had them made," Dolly once said.

But the toy company executives knew nothing of her sweet soprano or popular country tunes. Nor were they familiar with the flashing jewels and tight, gaudy spangled outfits made famous by the lush-bodied entertainer.

"They didn't know her," Mrs. Warden said. "They were thinking about Barbie dolls with conservative clothes and Dolly's face on them. They just didn't understand."

A photograph helped, but Mrs. Warden finally took a Barbie doll and packed it with modeling clay in imitation of Dolly's remarkable measurements. That was two years ago.

"We've had an overwhelming response since the Dolly doll came out in June," Mrs. Warden said. "Chain stores are placing big orders and we're getting letters from all over."

She says one letter came from a mother who enclosed a snapshot of her son clutching a Dolly doll with an angelic smile on his face.

"She is like Cinderella to children; she's almost too much," Mrs. Warden said. "Someone that beautiful is hard to be true."

The doll has a wardrobe much like Dolly Parton's own gaudy finery: a beige chiffon frock trimmed in gold, a scarlet gypsy outfit with matching bandana and a shocking pink, skintight jumpsuit.

"Real flashy looking," Mrs. Warden said. "Not that they're just glamorous clothes — Dolly's always extreme in everything. Even if she has on jeans, there will always be teeter-totter platform shoes."

Mrs. Warden said the last holdout among executives at the prestigious New York firm marketing the doll finally was converted when the 82-year-old man attended one of Dolly's performances and heard her sing "My Tennessee Mountain Home."

"She had him singing about his Tennessee mountain home as if he'd never set foot in Brooklyn in his life," Mrs. Warden said.

WHO STOLE MY PUMPKIN? — Michael Adler, 8, sits disgruntledly in a now-vacant pumpkin patch. His fourth grade class was growing the pumpkins for Halloween presents to the handicapped and nursing home patients in Concord, N.H. During the weekend, thieves stole 250 of the best pumpkins from the patch, dashing the annual project. (AP Laserphoto)

Business Can Go Underground

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The movement to save energy has gone underground here.

Dr. Truman Stauffer of the University of Missouri at Kansas City, a recognized authority on the industrial use of underground space, says the answer to the high cost of energy for business and industry lies in huge limestone caverns — not in reserves of coal, oil or natural gas.

He points as examples to the huge caverns beneath this city that house manufacturing, freezer storage, warehousing, distribution and general office operations employing over 2,000 persons.

"Crippling winter cold spells and summer heat blackouts in many parts of the country do not need to impede the energy-conscious business," the geoscientist says. "The answer lies in over 80 million square feet of temperature and humidity controlled space 50 to 200 feet below the Kansas City metropolitan area."

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Lufthansa is offering passengers on all 747 and DC10 flights 30-minute German-English language lessons, concentrating on words and phrases useful for travelers.

Pitt Group At UNC-G

GREENSBORO — The University of North Carolina at Greensboro has an enrollment of 9,964 this fall, including 13 Pitt County students.

Pitt is among 96 counties represented on the UNC-G campus this year. The school has 231 more students than it had last year.

Black enrollment increased from 745 last year to 805 this year, or 8.1 percent, well beyond the 6.7 percent called for in the revised "N. C. Plan for the Further Elimination of Racial Duality."

Male enrollment increased from 3,023 last fall to 3,123 this year at the UNC branch which was formerly known as Woman's College. Men now comprise more than 31 percent of the student body.

Adopt-A-Pet

This four-month-old female part Cocker Spaniel named Scamp needs a home.

Homes are also being sought by the Pitt County Humane Society for 18 puppies, three full-grown dogs (two female, one male), six kittens which may be seen at the Barwick Veterinary Clinic, a white German Shepherd dog (with no pedigree papers) and a mixed German Shepherd-Collie dog.

Reduced fee spaying certificates will be given with all of these animals.

The cat pictured in last Sunday's column was placed in a good home, Humane Society President Jeanette Fiore said.

Mrs. Fiore will be glad to receive calls from anyone who would like to adopt any of these pets. Her phone number is 758-0468, and callers are requested to call only between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Surprised With Surplus Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

After meeting its expenses for the last year, St. Christopher's Church, a middle-income Roman Catholic parish of about 900 families, found that it had a surplus of $40,000 in the bank.

"What should we do with it?" the Rev. James T. Smith, the pastor, phrased the question the parish council raised. "Should we keep it in the bank when there is so much need around the world?"

They decided to spend half of it for the poor overseas. After getting advice from the head of Catholic Relief Services, Bishop Edwin B. Broderick, $20,000 from the parish will go to provide some 5,000 poor farmers in rural Ecuador with pure drinking water in their villages, and to help set up a marketing cooperative in the famine-stricken Bawku district of Ghana.

Copies of the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS may be obtained at the office of McDavid Associates, Inc., located at 120 N. Main Street, Farmville, N.C. 27828, upon payment of $50.00 for each set.

Any BIDDER, upon returning the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS, promptly and in good condition, will be refunded its payment, and any non-bidder who fails to return the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS will be fined $50.00.

INFORMATION FOR BIDDERS
BIDS will be received by Town of Farmville (herein called the "OWNER") at Town Hall, Farmville, N.C. 27828, until 2:30 p.m., Nov. 22, 1977, and then at said office publicly opened and read aloud.

Each BID must be submitted in a sealed envelope, addressed to Town of Farmville at 124 N. Main St., Farmville, N.C. Each sealed envelope containing a BID must be plainly marked on the outside as BID.

CONTRACT #1 — Downtown Sidewalk Replacement
CONTRACT #2 — Downtown Water Main Replacement CONTRACT #3 — Downtown Electrical Replacement

The OWNER shall bear on the outside the name of the BIDDER, his address, his license number, if applicable and the name of the project for which the BID is submitted. If for any reason the sealed envelope containing the BID must be enclosed in another envelope addressed to the Town of Farmville, P. O. Box 84, Farmville, North Carolina 27828.

All BIDS must be made on the required BID form. All blanks spaces for BID prices must be filled in, in ink or typewritten, and the BID form must be fully completed and executed when submitted. Only one copy of the BID form is required.

The OWNER may waive any informalities or minor defects or reject any and all BIDS. Any BID may be withdrawn prior to the above scheduled time for the opening of BIDS or authorized postponement thereof. Any BID received after the time and date specified shall not be considered. No BIDDER may withdraw a BID within 60 days after the actual date of the opening thereof. Should there be reasons why the contract cannot be awarded within the specified period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the OWNER and the BIDDER.

BIDDERS must satisfy themselves of the accuracy of the estimated quantities in the BID Schedule by examination of the site and a review of the drawings and specifications including ADDENDA. After BIDS have been submitted, the BIDDER shall not assume that there was a misunderstanding concerning the quantities of work or of the nature of the work to be done.

The OWNER shall provide to BIDDERS prior to BIDDING, all information which is pertinent to, and delineates and describes, the land owned and rights of way acquired or to be acquired.

The CONTRACT DOCUMENTS contain the provisions required for the construction of the PROJECT, in form and substance as assumed by the CONTRACTOR or relieve him from fulfilling any of the conditions of the contract.

Each BID must be accompanied by a BID bond payable to the OWNER for five percent of the total amount of the BID. As soon as the BIDS prices have been compared, the OWNER will return the bonds of the remaining unsuccessful BIDDERS will be returned. The BID BOND of the successful BIDDER will be retained until the payment BOND and performance BOND have been executed and approved by the OWNER.

A certified check or a payment BOND, each in the amount of 100 percent of the CONTRACT PRICE, with a corporate surety approved by the OWNER, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract.

Attorney who sign BID BONDs or payment BONDs and performance BONDs must file with each BOND a certified and dated copy of their power of attorney.

Halloween Has A Split Personality

CHICAGO (AP) — If ever there was a holiday with a split personality, it's Halloween.

Though it was the Christians who designated the Oct. 31 date Allhallow's Eve, or "eve of the holy ones' day," in prelude to their Nov. 1 All Saints' Day, it was earlier pagan peoples who gave the annual holiday the sinister meaning and traditions it still holds.

It was the Celts who first chose the date as their New Year's Eve and who originally intended it as a celebration of everything wicked, evil and dead, according to "The World Book Encyclopedia." They believed that paying homage to Samhain, their lord of death, allowed the souls of the dead to return to their earthly homes during that one evening only.

Also during their celebration, the Celts would gather around a community bonfire and offer as sacrifice their animals, their crops, and sometimes themselves. And wearing costumes made from the heads and skins of other animals, they would also tell one another's fortunes for the coming year.

Later, this Halloween fortune-telling would involve baking a coin, a ring, and a thimble in a cake. The person who found the coin, it was believed, would become rich. The one who found the ring would soon marry. And the luckless one who got the thimble would be destined to remain single.

The celebration remained much the same after the Romans conquered the Celts around 43 A.D. The Romans did, however, add a ceremony honoring their goddess of fruit and trees and thus the association with apples and the custom of bobbing for them.

Yet even after the Christians tried to change the meaning of Halloween, the Irish still paraded about in costume, begging for food. The Scots still marched with their torches, in hopes of driving away witches and evil spirits. And the Welsh still threw a marked stone into a huge fire, believing that if their stone was missing the next day, they wouldn't live to see the next Halloween.

It was the Irish and English, says "The World Book," who first carved vegetables into jack-o'-lanterns, naming them after a legendary character who, the story goes, was refused entry into heaven because he had played tricks on the devil. Jack, it seems, was forced to carry his lantern and walk the earth until Judgment Day.

Many of these ancient traditions still exist. Youngsters still dress in costume and go trick-or-treating; begging, in a sense, for food while promising to refrain from evil deeds. And, too, they still light their candles, although much smaller than a torch, and place them inside their pumpkins.

Although there are few people left who actually believe that the ghosts of the dead roam the earth, or that all witches meet on this one evening, most of the early symbols of Halloween still exist.

The party to whom the contract is awarded will be required to execute the Agreement and obtain the performance BOND and payment BOND within ten (10) calendar days from the date when NOTICE OF AWARD is delivered to the BIDDER. The NOTICE OF AWARD shall be accompanied by the necessary Agreement and BOND forms. In case of failure of the BIDDER to execute the Agreement, the OWNER may at his option cancel the BOND in default, in which case the BID BOND accompanying the proposal shall become the property of the OWNER. The OWNER within ten (10) days of receipt of acceptable performance BOND, payment BOND and Agreement signed by the party to whom the AGREEMENT was AWARDED, SHALL SIGN THE Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the OWNER not execute the Agreement within such period, the BIDDER may be WRITTEN NOTICE withdraw his signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of the notice by the OWNER.

The NOTICE TO PROCEED shall be issued within ten (10) days of the execution of the Agreement by the OWNER. The BIDDER may be reasons why the NOTICE TO PROCEED can not be issued within such period, the OWNER shall be notified by mutual agreement between the OWNER and CONTRACTOR. If the NOTICE TO PROCEED is not issued within the ten (10) day period or within the period mutually agreed upon, the CONTRACTOR agrees to terminate the Agreement without further liability on the part of either party.

The OWNER may make such investigations as he deems necessary to determine the ability of the BIDDER to perform the WORK, and the BIDDER shall furnish to the OWNER all such information and data for this purpose as the OWNER may request. The OWNER reserves the right to reject any BID if the evidence submitted by the BIDDER is insufficient to complete the WORK contemplated therein.

The owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Bidders must be properly licensed under Chapter 187, General Statutes of North Carolina (G.S. 87-15).

A conditional or qualified BID will not be accepted. The lowest responsible BIDDER.

All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over construction of the PROJECT shall apply to the contract throughout.

Each BIDDER is responsible for inspecting the site and for reading and understanding thoroughly the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS. The failure or omission of any BIDDER to do any of the foregoing shall in no way relieve any BIDDER from any obligation in respect to his BID.

Further, the BIDDER agrees to abide by the requirements under Executive Order No. 11246, as amended, including specifically the provisions of the equal opportunity clause set forth in the SUPPLEMENTAL GENERAL CONDITIONS.

The low BIDDER shall supply the names and addresses of major suppliers and SUB-CONTRACTORS when requested to do so by the OWNER.

Lots Available Cherry Oaks Camelot MacGregor Downs Fox Run WE CUSTOM BUILD

Contemporary With Two Decks
A huge family room with a fireplace is the focal point of this efficient floor plan. The sky light allows extra natural lighting and openness to the kitchen, dining, and family areas. Three bedrooms and 2 baths complete the 1530 sq. ft. A private deck for family activities extends around the kitchen and family room. Avalon Lane in Camelot. $47,000

Lot 10-B Fox Run
The kitchen is in the front of this 1250 sq. ft. ranch. A covered patio is found in the rear. The master bedroom is large and airy, with a full wall of closets and its own bath. The two front bedrooms are divided by a wall of closets. A second bath serves this area. $35,500

Cherry Oaks
This farm house design captures a decidedly down home Carolina flavor. The wide wrap around porch is suited for a swing and rocking chair relaxation. Inside, modern adaptations have not altered the emphasis on generous family living area and a huge country kitchen. Of the 4 bedrooms, the master bedroom features a cozy bay window sitting area. Wide plank wood flooring and a brick foyer accent the country motif. Located on a heavily wooded lot at the end of a cul de sac in Cherry Oaks. $80,500

Cherry Oaks
The ambiance of a colonial gambrel. This 4 bedroom house is tailored to present day convenience without sacrificing the atmosphere of the past. The family room has the scale of a room from the past along with wood beamed ceilings and an over sized fireplace. The modern garage has the character of an old carriage barn. A surprising amount of spaciousness is contained within the 2,265 sq. ft. of living space. $76,500

Cherry Oaks
Diagonal cedar siding is used to create appeal to the front of this 1730 sq. ft. home. Two wooded decks, one adjacent to the sunken family area and one off the kitchen, provide added livability. The floor plan is laid out for easy traffic flow. The 3 bedroom, 2 bath private area is separated from the living area. An added feature for the entertainer is the wet bar with glass shelving. Bath Street. Cherry Oaks. $56,000

Lot 9-B Fox Run
This compact and comfortable 3 bedroom, 2 bath home in Fox Run could meet your housing needs. A heat pump and storm windows will save on electrical bills. $36,750

Cherry Oaks
All the congeniality and coziness of country living is found in this redwood stained farmhouse. Compact in size, the house features all the assets of a larger home in its 1464 sq. ft. Three bedrooms of spacious size are found at one end of the house with a central hall connecting the living areas. Hall walls with spindles that visually designate areas without cutting them off are found in the foyer and kitchen areas. A front porch, roomy enough for rockers and a wood deck adjacent to the family room all add to the casual and friendly atmosphere that prevails this house. Avalon Drive. Camelot. $47,000

Joseph Place Cherry Oaks
Brick and siding, shuttered windows and a gracious double door entry give this traditional house a feeling of timeless strength and shelter. The floor plan is spacious and offers the homeowner a large family room with fireplace and built in bookcases. The efficiency of a centrally located kitchen offers easy access to formal dining and breakfast areas. Privacy is created by the separation of four bedrooms and two full baths on the second level. Cul de sac location in Cherry Oaks. $60,000

Dormer Windows Add Appeal to Charming Cape Cod
1245 sq. ft. of economical design delivers great exterior appeal and fine livability. Downstairs houses an inviting living room space with fireplace and separate dining room. An efficiently planned kitchen offers the extra bonus of a breakfast nook. The first floor bedroom has convenient access to a half bath. Upstairs has a full bath and two airy bedrooms, both with walk in closets. An added feature found here are dormer windows that provide extra light and cozy seating. Located in Fox Run subdivision. $38,000

Avalon Lane Lot 15A
Two bathrooms and three bedrooms — equipped with generous closet space — are secluded in one wing of this clean lined contemporary. A gathering room boasts a raised hearth fireplace with sliding doors. The two car garage is an added bonus. Located in Camelot. $48,500

Carport with extra storage is a nice feature of this 3 bedroom, 2 bath ranch. A roomy kitchen area, 21' long features sliding glass doors that enhance the eating area. $35,500

We'll put you in your place.

If You Now Rent . . .
Do you feel out of place in that rented house or apartment? Nice enough place to live but just doesn't feel like "home" — right?

Well, you may be closer to home ownership than you think. Home Savings is out to put a lot of people in their place. We've got the mortgage money right here at Home to finance your new place in life. Why wait? Don't get unnecessarily caught up in the "delaying game". Right now may be the best time for you to buy.

Housing and land costs will continue to rise. So waiting until you can "afford" to buy can be false reasoning for putting off your goal of home ownership.

It never hurts to ask . . .
If you're a little apprehensive — try this: Pick a home on today's market that is the house you want or one that is comparable in size and style. Come by Home Savings and ask any one of our loan counselors to do a preliminary "work-up" on the costs involved, estimate monthly payments and educate you as to the various requirements.

We'll be happy to take the time and work with you. Knowledge of the process can eliminate any apprehension you may have. You'll probably find that you're ready to be in your place. Home Savings is certainly ready to put you there. Come to see us.

Restored Kenan Home Is Interesting Site

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
KENANSVILLE — The county seat of Duplin County bears the name of one of its founding families and has the family home, Liberty Hall, as an interesting historical attraction.

"The Kenans have meant a lot to Kenansville and Duplin County," Mrs. Carolyn Outlaw, tours director at Liberty Hall, says. "Everybody around here just loves 'em."

Mrs. Outlaw and many other native Dupliners recall when Liberty Hall was a rundown weed-surrounded house whispered to be filled with valuable antiques. Then in 1965 the Kenan family, none of whom live in Duplin County, gave the house to the Duplin County Board of Education and Board of County Commissioners. The younger generation of the family had decided to restore the house as a memorial to the early Kenans who came to Duplin County in the 1730's.

"It was our hope to establish a tangible link with our rich heritage and to create a restoration that could visibly show the atmosphere and feeling of a working plantation home prior to the war between the States," said Thomas S.

Kenan III, chairman of the Liberty Hall Restoration Commission. Kenan, who lives in Florida, takes continuing pride in supporting and adding to the Liberty Hall restoration, according to Mrs. Outlaw. She said he visits about once a month and often brings antique items to add to the collection there.

The Liberty Hall in Kenansville was built in the late 1700's to replace an earlier Kenan home which burned at the nearby town of Turkey. James Kenan, son of Thomas Kenan who had immigrated from Ireland in 1736, was a member of the Colonial Assembly of 1773 and '74 and of the Provincial Congress of 1774, '75, and '76, chairman of the Duplin Safety Committee and the Wilmington Committee. He served nine consecutive terms in the N. C. State Senate. He was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1788 and '89 and one of the original trustees of the University of North Carolina. He was chairman of the Committee of the Whole on Ratification of the U. S. Constitution.

His son, Thomas S. Kenan built the present Liberty Hall and lived in it until 1833 when he moved his wife and younger children to Selma, Ala., leaving the house to his son, Owen Rand Kenan. An invitation to Owen's funeral hangs on display, one of the dozens of papers and documents found in the house when restoration began in the 1960's.

A major social event to take place in the house was the wedding of Mary Lily Kenan to Henry Morrison Flagler in 1901. Miss Kenan came to the ancestral home, which was then occupied by her aunt, Miss Annie D. Kenan, to be married to Mr. Flagler, a multimillionaire who had, with John D. Rockefeller, founded Standard Oil Company.

Flagler, who was then in his 70's, arrived by private train in Magnolia, a few miles away, took his carriage and horses off the train and proceeded to Liberty Hall to be married in the parlor. The couple lived mostly in Florida, where he built his bride a 600-room marble palace called Whitehall in Palm Beach. This, too, has been restored for the public to visit.

Furnishings of Liberty Hall are mainly originals that have stayed in the house through the years, though some period pieces, some on loan, have been added. Three years were spent restoring the house and the interior was recreated by noted interior designer, John E. Winters of New York, aided by Mrs. Zelma Brunschwig and Mrs. Murray Douglas of the Brunschwig and Fils fabric house, who created the fabrics and wallpaper from historical documents.

Rooms downstairs in the house are a spacious t-shaped entrance hall; a parlor and music room, one on either side of the front portion of this hall; a library, a winter dining room, a summer dining room, a kitchen separated from the house proper by a porch, and a wine cellar. Upstairs are four bedrooms — a boys', a little girls', a gentleman's, and a lady's — each opening onto a central hall.

In the library are two interesting documents found after restoration began — a 1970 land grant from King George III deeding land to Henry McCulloch, who later deeded it to James G. Kenan and the original draft of the bill that established Wake Forest College in Thomas Kenan's handwriting.

The entrance hall holds an original huntboard and a sofa which belonged to Robert E. Lee's mother, the latter on loan to the Liberty Hall Restoration Commission.

In the music room is a secretary, complete with secret compartments, which was saved from the original Liberty Hall fire. It is made of walnut grown on the plantation.

The kitchen, with its whitewashed walls, has among many utilitarian furnishings, an original pie safe which shows evidence of having been gnawed by rats some time along the way.

The little girls' room has everything in miniature, including the fireplace. Covering its floor is a rug of 189 needlepoint squares in childish designs, no two alike.

The house is opened to the public Tuesday-Saturday from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. and Sundays from 2 to 4:30 p. m. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. For groups of 20 or more, there is a 10 percent discount, Mrs. Outlaw said.

China Not Drab, Regimented As Was Expected

By SHIRLEY METZENBAUM
Written for UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drab, drab, drab. That was the stereotype I had in mind before we visited the People's Republic of China.

I had visions of millions of people in shapeless, olive drab or dark blue clothing, walking through their days with little or no color in their lives.

I was wrong.

There is a oneness — a regimentation that is pervasive — but a mood of individuality is also there and it is expressed in many ways, from the bright colored fabrics in the shops to the gorgeous art work and embroidery we saw throughout the country.

And, instead of an Orwellian atmosphere of erasing the past from memory, the Chinese seem intent on preserving and promoting their heritage.

In the humid weather of China this summer, few of the Mao jackets were to be seen. Instead, we were surprised to see men walking around in undershirts dyed in brilliant red or vibrant royal blue. Women were dressed in vari-colored pants and tops. The Shanghai women were more fashionable than the women in other cities we visited.

The fabric stores were plentifully stocked with beautiful brocades and colored silks. Much of the material, we were told, is used for quilt covers and pillow covers, but a sizable amount is fashioned by the women into brightly colored blouses and inner jackets that are worn under the Mao jackets in winter and in the privacy of their homes.

I had long been interested in working with the elderly and retarded so I made it a point to inquire about the problems they may have in caring for these groups in China. The answers I got seemed to contain a degree of incredulity — a sense of surprise that problems should even exist anywhere.

We were told that there are no nursing homes for the elderly, that they are cared for "within the bosom of the family" and if there is no family, there is always someone else to care for the aged person.

It is almost structured in steps — if the family isn't there, then a neighbor will be. If a neighbor cannot care for the person, then the neighborhood committee will take over — but someone will care for that person.

As far as the retarded are concerned, we were told that there are very few retarded children born because pregnant Chinese women don't take medication.

One of the biggest expenditures of time as you travel through China is The Brief Introduction, which came to be known to us as simply "The BI."

At every stop along the way, the BI is standard operating procedure, and it was identical in every case. First you would be ushered into a room and led to a chair with the ever present cups of tea on the table in front of you.

After welcoming you to China, the various dignitaries would be introduced and the interpreter would launch into the Brief Introduction — that never was very brief.

In addition to a description and explanation of everything you were going to see, a liberal dose of propaganda would be inserted, telling of all the good things that happened because they carried high the banner of Chairman Mao and all the bad things caused by the Gang of Four.

After the first few BI's, we tried politely to have them cut the introduction short, but it never worked. It became obvious that this was their job and they were going to do it.

In Shanghai, there are at least a dozen educational and recreational centers, known by the rather incongruous name of Children's Palaces. They are an adjunct to the schools, appearing to specialize in extracurricular activities and indoctrination.

The children get musical instruction, build models, learn woodcarving, martial arts and take part in all kinds of sports.

At the Children's Palace we visited, 2,000 youngsters between the ages of 7 and 16 attend it every day between 3:00 and 5:30 p.m. The children were unbelievably neat and clean. In fact, they were almost too clean — but children are children the world over and, being the mother of four daughters, it was a great relief to finally spot one little girl who had very dirty knees. It made me feel good.

Each of us was assigned a child who was our guide and they were extremely polite and well trained. Throughout the building, we found youngsters being taught how to put together TV sets, practicing table tennis, doing embroidery — and being told over and over to "study, keep fit and work hard" because that is good for the Party and good for the country.

China is a beautiful country but we ended up finding ourselves in much the same situation that most tourists do — too much to see and not enough time. And, as most tourists, we rushed from place to place as in the old saying of "If it's Tuesday, this must be Belgium."

The Chinese have a phrase for that also. And it is far more beautiful.

They said we were "looking at the flowers from a galloping horse."

I became convinced in my discussions with the people, that as more Americans visit China, it is important for them not to accept everything told them as gospel. I found that by raising questions, prodding them and also pointing out some of our pride in our own accomplishments, a large degree of mutual respect can be attained.

In many cases, I found a willingness to talk about criticisms after I had voiced them.

For instance, there appears to be quite a distinction between rural workers and urban workers when it comes to pay, education and overall treatment. There is a class distinction between the Han people who make up 94 percent of the population and the southern minorities (not racial, but ethnic and geographic) who are small in number but occupy 50 to 60 percent of the entire land area in China. But, to their credit and based on the teachings of Mao, they acknowledge the problem and are working to correct these inequities.

In Peking, we were afforded the opportunity of a long meeting with Tan Chen-Lin, vice chairman of the National People's Congress. A 74-year-old veteran of years of guerilla warfare with Mao, Mr. Tan was easily the most interesting person we met on the trip.

As we progressed in our conversation, he began to bring up and answer many of the questions I had raised along the way to Peking, convincing me that he had been well briefed about the questions and issues we had been raising.

In the area of normalization of relations with the People's Republic, Tan recited the three conditions that appear to be the cornerstone of his nation's policy. First, we must remove our troops from Taiwan; second, we must sever diplomatic relations with Taiwan; and finally, we must abrogate our mutual defense treaty with that nation.

Although Tan was adamant in reciting these conditions, I came away with the feeling that there is not a sense of urgency on the part of the Chinese to normalize relations with the United States. This was somewhat contradicted by the strong language of their main spokesman, Teng Hsiao-p'ing, after we returned to the United States.

The Chinese make much of their exercise of the virtue of patience and therefore a discussion of compromise is difficult. In fact, when I alluded to this possibility, it was met with a laugh by Mr. Tan — much as if I had just made a good joke.

But Chinese policies have been known to change in the past, as have ours. Since we have already committed ourselves to removing our troops from Taiwan, perhaps compromise is still possible.

In my discussion with Mr. Tan, the poisoning of a million Russian troops on the Sino-Soviet border also came up with a response of seeming unconcern by him and a cryptic answer that the Russian troops are more of a threat to Japan and the United States than they are to China. I don't see it that way, and I told him so.

I came away with the feeling that there is a great concern for human life in China, again contradicting the old shibboleth that there is an indifference for life and that they would have no concern over losing millions of people in a war.

I found a feeling of strong family relations. As in our country, Chinese parents love their children very dearly. Yet there is also a dedication to defend themselves to the bitter end if it becomes necessary even at the cost of thousands of human lives.

Article About Woman Editor Is Published

By FRANCEINE PERRY

Elizabeth Timothy (died, 1757), America's first woman newspaper editor, is the subject of a recently-published article by Ira Baker of the East Carolina University journalism faculty.

The Baker article, which appears in the current issue of "Journalism Quarterly," traces the life of Elizabeth Timothy from her emigration from Holland with her husband Lewis Timothy to her death in Charleston, S.C. and discusses in detail her seven years as editor and publisher of "The South Carolina Gazette."

Elizabeth Timothy succeeded her husband, who died in 1738 after several years as an established printer in Philadelphia and Charleston, during which time he was a business partner of Benjamin Franklin.

Elizabeth announced that she would assume the printing and editing operation in a January, 1739, number of the "Gazette":

"Whereas the late Printer of this Gazette hath been deprived of his life. . . I take this opportunity of informing the Publick, that I shall contain the said paper as usual; and hope. . . to make it as entertaining and correct as may be reasonable expected."

She begs the "Gazette's" readers to continue their subscriptions and support, referring to herself as "this poor afflicted Widow" left with "six small children and another hourly expected."

The "poor afflicted Widow" proved to be a capable manager and competent editor. Baker quotes from Benjamin Franklin, who commented that Mrs. Timothy operated the business "with the greatest regularity and exactitude" and ultimately was able to purchase his share and leave the entire business intact for her eldest son.

Franklin attributed the widow's business acumen to her having been "born and bred in Holland, where, as I have been informed, the knowledge of accounts makes a part of female education. . ."

Baker notes that like most early American editors, Elizabeth Timothy had to fill her columns which much purely literary material — poetry, drama, eulogies of deceased prominent citizens, satiric verse and essays reprinted from English periodicals.

Local news in the sparsely-settled colonies was scarce, and most news from the continent was at least six months old when it reached the colonial shores.

The "Gazette" was a major literary influence upon its provincial readership, and the quality of its material was such that even sophisticated British publications, among them the "London Magazine," reprinted items from it.

For most of Mrs. Timothy's years as editor, the paper's two-column format remained the same, although it was modified to three columns in 1745. Early in her editorship, woodcut illustrations began to appear in greater number and were regularly interspersed among the "Gazette's" columns of print.

Elizabeth gave up her publishing and editing career when her son Peter reached the age of 21. Her remaining years were divided between Philadelphia and Charleston, and her activities included managing her properties in the two cities and operating a Charleston book and stationery shop.

The article concludes by citing indisputable proof of Elizabeth Timothy's "shrewd business ingenuity" — a will which divided her estate among children and grandchildren, with bequests of several houses and slaves as well as the printing business.

Elizabeth Timothy's printing venture not only signifies a "first," says Baker, but also the beginning of a trend; that of other windows of newspaper printers assuming responsibilities for their deceased husband's publications.

Later women editors and publishers include Catherine Zenger (New York "Weekly"), Ann Franklin (New Port "Mercury") and Clementine Rind ("Virginia Gazette").

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A letter written by a school friend to "The Arkansas City Traveler" newspaper in Arkansas City, Kan., resulted in the naming of two "Traveler Good Guys" of the week.

The letter, written by Mike Neal, told how his friend, Jim O'Brien, and his gym teacher, Mike Carson, saved a small dog from drowning.

Jim and his family, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien Sr., are former residents of Greenville, N.C.

"Today, our gym class went down to Curry Field to play football," Neal's letter said. "When it was time to go to the showers, Jim noticed a small dog trapped in the sewage canal between the football field and the high school."

"Class was dismissed and Coach Carson usually has me clean up with him," O'Brien said. "I was on my way back, when I saw this dog in the ditch. The dog looked like it belonged to someone. I could see it wore a collar as it stood on a cement block in the middle of rushing water in the drainage canal."

"I told coach I would go in and get it," O'Brien said.

"He jumped into the canal to get the dog out. The walls are about six feet high, so the dog couldn't get out himself," Neal said in his letter. "The dog was a little scared," Neal wrote, "so Jim had to chase him a little ways."

"The dog tried to run in a pipe and get away from me. He just looked like he was shaking and scared. I thought I should get him fast because he looked like he was pretty cold," said O'Brien.

"When he caught up to him," Neal wrote, "He had to calm him down enough to carry him. Coach Carson jumped in and helped Jim calm the dog."

"It was nothing really big, but seeing how teenagers get put down for all the things they do — well, most guys would have said, 'I'm not going to go down there,'" Neal said. "But Jim just jumped down in there. Our whole gym class was pretty proud of him."

"Afterwards, we decided that Jim and Coach Carson should be Traveler Good Guys of the Week," Neal wrote at the end of his letter. "A teenager finally did something that wasn't destructive and we think it should be noticed."

While living in Greenville, young O'Brien was a member of the Optimist Little League Baseball Team. His mother Linda, worked in the Provost Office at East Carolina University and his father was a member of the Greenville Parks and Recreation Commission. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bullock of Greenville.

Cool Fall Mornings Mean Holiday Baking

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
BUCKHEAD, Ga. (UPI) — When the delicate white blossoms of the clematis vine near Mrs. Gordon Brewer's back door begin to fade in the cool fall mornings, she knows it's cake baking time again.

Soon after the first frosts arrive in the small east Georgia town of Buckhead, Mrs. Brewer, 63, starts firing up her three ovens, preparing to bake dozens of coconut, carrot, caramel, chocolate and fruit cakes.

She bakes cakes the year round but says, "My heaviest season is in the fall, getting ready for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays."

"One of my specialties is an all-butter pound cake," she said in an interview. "I sell more pound cakes than anything else."

Mrs. Brewer began cake baking as a hobby many years ago, "just to see if I could do it." The hobby became a thriving business. She said she grosses about $5,000 per year, nets only about $2,000.

"I bake close to a thousand cakes a year. November and December is the busiest time, and it will run to about 265 cakes in those months."

Her daily record is 32 cakes. Her worst run of bad luck was the day she burned out two oven units and a light switch and ruined four cakes.

The Brewers' large, comfortable home is just up the road from their country grocery store and gas station.

She sells some of her cakes there. But most customers place their orders by phone and come by to pick up their cakes in Buckhead or the nearby town of Madison.

Her fame as a baker of fine cakes has spread beyond Morgan County. She ships to many distant states. She also gets letters, and has found she does not have time to answer all of them.

Her cake business has grown so much that Mrs. Brewer is beginning to wonder if she will be able to keep up with the demand. She doesn't want to hire anyone. "I just can't work with help," she said. "I'm too nervous."

She averages 8-10 hours a week baking cakes. When the house needs painting, she hauls out a ladder and does that, too, in addition to weeding and picking a big vegetable garden and helping her husband run the grocery.

Next to the Brewer home is a smaller structure that's come to be known as the "cake house." Mrs. Brewer has a big electric oven in the cake house and a long, deep freezer stocked with all kinds of fruits and nuts.

She never uses cake mixes, and says the secret of good cake making lies in the ingredients used and the way they are blended.

Mrs. Brewer was married in 1927 when she was only 14. She and her husband will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 4 at the Bethel Baptist Church. Mrs. Brewer's cakes are expected to be one of the principal attractions.

Founder's Day Program Held

The Alpha Nu and Alpha Iota Sororities, local chapters of Alpha Delta Kappa, joined in celebration of Founder's Day at the Ramada Inn this week.

Brenda Little, vice president of Alpha Nu, conducted the session.

Following dinner, the Melody Makers of Black Jack presented a program of inspirational songs. Members of the group are Randy Buck, Donnie Dixon, Wayne Dixon and Jim Page. They were introduced by Mrs. Kelly Wallace.

The theme of the Founder's Day program was "Friendship and Inspiration," and was presented by Faye Dempsey, Peggy Congleton, Arlene Murphy, Helen Collins, Ada Bett Savage and Barbara L. Luce.

District President Ann Byrd reminded members to send their district workshop fees to Faye Dempsey of Alpha Nu. The workshop begins with a coffee hour at 8:30 a.m., Oct. 22, at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

On The Young Side

A visitor would have seen some unusual sights at Rose High this week as students participated in special activities during Homecoming Week.

It started off with "Blue-Green Day" Monday. Each person was asked to show their school spirit by wearing these colors.

Tuesday was known as "Circus Day." To support this year's theme, students dressed up in costumes representing different people of the circus. Many clowns were to be seen as well as a ringmaster and a sword swallower.

Teachers as well as students went bananas on Wednesday. This day was designated a "Go Bananas Day." Participation in this activity included mismatched clothing, weird hairstyles, clothes on backwards or inside out, and even a person dressed as a large rabbit.

The highlight of Wednesday was the play "Bananas" performed by an acting group from Biolux, Miss. This group travels to many high schools in the southern states to perform before different groups. Special thanks goes to the Arts Club for sponsoring this event.

Competition between the seniors, juniors, and sophomores was evident Thursday as the selling of spirit links began. Each link cost a penny and the class with the largest amount of money won an award. The seniors took first place, with the sophomores second, and the juniors third.

After much hard work and preparation Homecoming Day finally arrived Friday. Homecoming assembly began with a welcome speech by SGA President Anne Middleton. Next came the introduction of the sponsors followed by the performance of a skit by the drama class. The Homecoming cheerleaders led the school in "Dear Old Greenville" as they did a routine while the stage band supplied the music.

At last came the moment

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, October 16, 1977—C-3

many were waiting for, the announcement of the princesses, Mr. and Ms. School Spirit and the queens.

This year's two sophomore princesses are Patricia Bath and Angelene Edwards. The junior princesses are Diane Davis and Carol Lee. The two couples representing Mr. and Ms. School Spirit are Mike Joyner and Debbie Girdharry and David Murray and Karen Jeffreys. Receiving the special honor of Homecoming queen for 1977 are Inky Dawson and Robin Dixon.

Nuns Discuss Missionary Life

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Being a missionary is a way of life. But why Uganda? That question is often put to Sister Elizabeth Ellis, 68, of Uganda, one of several hundred Franciscan Missionary Sisters for Africa.

"The Africans want us to stay ... if our presence strengthens and encourages the faith, we do not want to desert them," she often replies. Sister Elizabeth, who was born in Ilion, N.Y., was recently in the United States on home leave.

It is a modest answer. The mission — founded by her aunt, Mother Kevin Kearney of Wicklow, Ireland — celebrates its 75th anniversary next year and it has made tremendous strides. In the first 40 years, 23 mission stations were opened in Uganda, Sister Elizabeth points out. Now the sisters are training African sisters, whose congregation also was founded by the late Mother Kevin in 1923, to take over their work in Uganda. In other areas — Rhodesia, Zambia, Kenya, South Africa — there are 20 new convents.

"Africanization of the church has helped make Christianity a more dynamic way of life than it was 40 years ago," Sister Elizabeth explained. "In Uganda there is an African cardinal, five African bishops and each year the numbers of priests and sisters increases."

In Uganda the sisters run a large hospital with doctors, nurses, technicians and a training school for African nurses; two large leprosy centers with outposts for treatment — there are more than 80,000 lepers in Uganda, and Africans are being trained to bring clinics to villages; a grade and high school for 800 African girls; and a teacher-training college where about 40 girls become qualified each year to teach in Ugandan schools.

Sister Elizabeth and two other er sisters are teaching 50 Africans to become religious sisters who will go off to the outer missions to teach.

"Uganda has been Christianized for more than a hundred years. Its present troubles are political and tribal and our work has not been hampered," Sister Elizabeth points out.

The sisters — American, English, Irish, Scottish and Asian-born — are engaged in social work, teaching and nursing, and they graduate with an R.N. degree. Some are also doctors and surgeons. As for leprosy, they take normal precautions and "in 40 years no sister has contracted the disease" although there is a lot of malaria.

Sister Alcantara White, who has been accompanying Sister Elizabeth on her fund-raising tours of churches, has spent a good part of her adult life in Uganda and has been encouraged "that the people are turning more and more to God." Born in Tipperary, she has been stationed for four years at Brighton, Mass., the mission's only convent in the United States. The motherhouse is in Ireland.

"At Easter our mission church has about 100 converts receiving baptism. There has been no religious crisis in Uganda. Five of President Amin's children attend our Nomagunga Secondary School and he has visited quite often." She remembers having met him on friendly occasions before he became president.

Although flour, sugar, salt and clothing can't be bought right now in Uganda, Sister Elizabeth will not take them with her when she leaves the United States. She hopes to have "a little money" to make such purchases in Kenya.

"In the present political crisis the economy suffers and the currency is upset, so there are a lot of things one can't buy in Uganda."

The recruitment of young missionaries is a major concern and had virtually come to a halt — especially during the confusion of the '60s — but now

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It seems like every other book I pick up these days, an author is dissecting relationships and behavior patterns. One of the largest groups in this country and ironically the least understood has yet to be explained. It's your basic Monday dieter.

At last count, there were 18 million of these disciples who, every Monday morning, make their annual pilgrimage to the shrine of cottage cheese. Who, every Monday morning, look at themselves in the mirror and declare to the image, "This is the first day of the rest of my thin life." One of the first things you must appreciate about the Monday dieter is his or her optimism. Here is a person for which Tuesday never comes. Nor Wednesday. Nor Thursday. Nor Friday, etc. He just knows that some time between Monday morning and Monday evening the rest of the week will be cancelled due to the lack of attendance, and he will be off the hook diet-wise.

Secondly, Monday dieters are lousy with virtue, but are basically weak, which is a polite way of saying they have absolutely no scruples whatsoever. They will tell you outrageous lies like, "Pasta will never pass my lips," and as they are telling you this have a pound of linguini hidden under a stack of Weight Watchers magazines in the hall closet.

They cannot help themselves. They will lie about their weight on their driver's license, subtract 15 pounds when they weigh with their clothes on, tilt the bathroom scale against the toilet to make it weigh lighter, and on insurance charts will declare themselves "large boned."

Monday dieters are predictably neat people. They cannot stand to leave an uneven row of fudge in a pan or a dab of ice cream at the bottom of a half-gallon carton. They are kind to their mothers. "I'll eat the rest of that pizza, Mother, if your teeth are bothering you!" and are good with numbers. ("Let's see, I had the beef stroganoff, baked potatoes with sour cream, asparagus with the Hollandaise and the banana cream pie, so pass me the artificial sweetener for my coffee.")

In case you're wondering why I'm such an authority on the Monday dieter, it's because I have dieted for the last consecutive 1,456 Mondays.

Why Mondays? Who knows. Frankly, I think it's stupid to pick a day with 36 hours in it when every other day of the week only has 24.

IN THE MISSIONARY SPIRIT—Dr. Kathleen O'Sullivan, a Franciscan Missionary Sister for Africa, and a Ugandan nurse tend to a patient at the missionary hospital in Kampala, Uganda.

Handy Checklist For Diagnosing Alcoholics

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am not sure, but I think someone in my family is an alcoholic. He says he can take it or leave it alone, but he always seems to be "taking it." It has me worried. How can I be sure?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: The American Medical Association has devised the following list of questions that they say are useful in diagnosing alcoholism. An affirmative reply to one makes a person suspect, while an affirmative reply to two "definitely" classifies a person as a problem drinker:

1. Does the subject drink to calm his nerves or to sedate himself?
2. Does he become increasingly irritable while drinking?
3. Does he frequently drink until he becomes quite drunk?
4. Does he drink a steadily increasing amount of alcohol?
5. Does he hide his source of alcohol?
6. Does he lie about his drinking?
7. Does he take a drink first thing in the morning?
8. Does he miss work or shirk his duties because of drinking?
9. Does he neglect his family?
10. Does he experience periods of blackout or amnesia?
11. Has he been hospitalized for drinking?
12. Has he lost his job because of drinking?

For 20 years I have recommended Alcoholics Anonymous for those with a drinking problem. They're in the telephone book, but you must call THEM and ask for their help. Friends of families of alcoholics are welcome to call ALANON (affiliated with A.A.) to learn how to cope with an alcoholic. It's free and could be the most valuable call you've ever made.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a rest home where at least half the residents are senile. They tell their families that we don't feed or bathe them. Some even say that we steal from them! Abby, oftentimes, these stories are believed. Wouldn't you think that they would realize that these poor old souls are confused at times and not responsible for what they say?

Five minutes after they have cursed (and even tried to strike us), they reach out to hug and kiss us—having forgotten all they've said and done.

Please print this so the families of these poor old souls will realize that if we didn't love and understand them, we wouldn't be working here.

CARING NURSE

DEAR CARING: Orchids to you and to others who work in places where this type of understanding is so desperately needed.

The only way to handle those who are not responsible for their actions, be they senile or mentally ill, is to love them, love them, love them.

DEAR ABBY: I had a shower in my home and served a very nice lunch. One woman asked if I had an extra dessert she could take home for her husband. I couldn't very well have said no, so I said yes. Then two more women spoke up and asked if they could take home "a treat" for their husbands, so I was stuck again. That cleaned me out of dessert.

One invited guest came late due to working, and there was no dessert for her. And, of course, my family got nothing. Please print this.

I have never seen anything in your column about the boldness of people who ASK if they can take home goodies for their family.

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: You have NOW.

Group Marks 25 Years At Tea

RALEIGH — The 25th anniversary of the North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations was celebrated at a tea held here Thursday afternoon at the Governor's Mansion.

Dr. Guion Johnson of Chapel Hill, who organized NCCWO, was among the 100 persons attending the event which was hosted by Gov. and Mrs. James B. Hunt Jr. They also paid tribute to the N. C. Council on the Status of Women.

Jane Patterson, assistant secretary of the N. C. Department of Administration, also welcomed the women and announced that a Governor's conference on leadership for women is being planned.

Others making brief remarks at the event were Betty Wiser, president of the N. C. Council of Women's Organizations, and State Senator Helen Marvin of Gaston County, who is chairman of the Council on the Status of Women.

Mrs. Tennala A. Gross of Greenville attended the tea. She is currently serving as chair of

Bazaar Plans Discussed

The meeting of the St. Gabriel's Women's Club was held Monday evening. Plans for a bazaar, featuring handmade articles and homebaked items, were discussed. The bazaar will be held Dec. 3.

Mrs. Ann Allen, craft chairperson, said donations of all types of materials and trims would be welcomed by the group. Mrs. Betty Villano announced that most of the club cookbooks have been sold.

Mrs. Ann O'Connor led a discussion on long range plans for upgrading the church playground. Mrs. Shirley Barnes, president, will invite officers of other organizations of the church to attend the November meeting for a continuation of the discussion.

"there is a trend," says Sister Alcantara, who is trying to interest young people in the vocation. "To be sure, it is only a trickle," says the Irish-born nun, "three girls in two years, but it is a good sign, and there are a number of young girls on our mailing list."

"It is a rigorous life," she continued. "Up at six o'clock. On duty at 7:30, sometimes until 10 at night. Doctors and nurses often work around the clock. We need more young people."

There are great rewards in the satisfaction of the work and there is recreation, and vacations — every three years a home trip, that may be combined with fund raising.

"And sometimes we go to Mombasa, the seaport for Kenya and Uganda, where we rent a cabin, swim and relax," she said.

Fast cooks like to use cream cheese, melted over very low heat or over hot water, as a sauce for vegetables. To thin the sauce, add two tablespoons of milk when you use a 3-ounce package of the cream cheese.

Blurred Line On Where Free Speech, Rights Meet

EDITOR'S NOTE — Where does one person's right to speak freely end and the rights of another person begin? This is the issue in an unusual and emotionally searing confrontation between American Nazis and American Jews in a Chicago suburb.

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer
SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — The telephone rang in the cool hours before dawn one morning last May, and Herta Levy never slept well again.

"We are going to kill you," the voice said. "We hate you. Jew die, Jew die."

She was 79, a widow for 17 years, a Jew born in Germany, living alone on a quiet Skokie street. Her mother, sister, brother-in-law and nephew were killed in World War II German concentration camps.

She had only one living relative, a nephew in California who occasionally called her at night. But she stopped answering her phone.

"She put a stiletto in her nightstand," recalls a friend. "She thought they would come for her in the night. She was terrorized. She became very withdrawn. Her whole personality changed."

The terror, so long repressed in the shadows of memory, was revived for thousands of residents of this predominantly Jewish suburb north of Chicago.

American Nazis want to march in Skokie streets, in uniform, to dramatize their demands for "white power." Efforts by Jewish leaders and community officials to stop them in the courts have created an unusual test of the First Amendment right of free speech. The American Civil Liberties Union, long a defender of unpopular groups, has suffered defection of members because it is representing the Nazis. And people like Herta Levy have been frightened.

On June 6 she went shopping,

"She walked to the bus stop and collapsed," the friend says. "They said she had a stroke. But I think stress killed her. I think the Nazis with their threats to march and their calls in the night killed her."

"Although there is no clear cause and effect, certainly it's a possibility, even a probability that the stress was at least a contributory cause," said Dr. Lawrence Z. Freeman, professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago Medical School. He's an expert witness in a suit filed to prevent American Nazis from marching.

Sol Goldstein's mother was murdered by Nazis. They "threw her into a well with 50 other women, while alive, and covered them with gravel," Goldstein says.

He is president of Survivors of the Holocaust, a group of about 12,000 survivors and immediate relatives of death camp victims. Seven thousand of the group's members live in Skokie, an upper middle-class community of mostly one-family homes.

"When we meet to talk about this, some of us get hysterical. We cannot continue talking. We cannot control ourselves."

"When I went back to Germany five or eight years ago I saw a German policeman and I started shaking all over. He wasn't even wearing a swastika or a gun and still I started shaking all over and I had to run away to another street."

"Now they want to carry their swastikas to our homes in America."

Goldstein has sued in Circuit Court in Chicago to block the National Socialist Party of America's efforts to display swastikas and picket in front of Village Hall.

The village also has sued, saying a Nazi demonstration would violate public peace. That suit resulted in an injunction barring the march planned for April 30. On June 15, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered the injunction speedily reviewed.

The Nazis canceled a planned July 4 demonstration in Skokie while the Illinois Appellate Court reviewed the injunction, now on appeal in the Illinois Supreme Court.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, founder of the militant Jewish Defense League and a member of the Israeli parliament, used the July 4 date for an anti-Nazi rally in Skokie. It attracted about 2,000 supporters.

Until they tried to demonstrate in Skokie, Chicago's Nazis were largely ignored. Nazi leader Frank Collin says the Skokie controversy is "the best thing that ever happened to us. We've got a hold of it, and we're not going to let it go."

"All we want to do is have 30 to 50 Nazi party members picket in front of Skokie Village Hall, carrying signs saying 'free speech for the white man.' If village officials had let us march last April, all of this would be over and forgotten."

An impossible solution, says Goldstein. "How can you expect people who lost loved ones in Nazi death camps to sit back while Nazis march in the street again?"

Freeman, witness in the survivors suit, says the "survivors are afflicted with guilt feelings for having survived ... for not having done enough to stop the persecutions — to save their families — during the Hitler era." He argues that this makes them a captive audience because they feel they can't ignore the Nazis this time.

Goldstein's suit says the survivors are such a unique group that the Nazis should be denied their First Amendment right of free speech and assembly in Skokie.

David Hamlin, executive director of the Illinois American Civil Liberties Union, says the Skokie-Nazi dispute is "one of the best-framed First Amendment cases I've ever seen. But there's something else to it that I don't understand."

"We've been defending the Nazis for eight years on and off, and the Anti-Defamation League has never been too terribly concerned. Skokie's officials certainly weren't hollering. I really don't know what's different in this case except the location."

Goldstein's attorney, Jerome Torshen, says the difference is the presence of the Holocaust survivors, who have "no equal unless it is the survivors of Hiroshima."

Torshen says the U.S. Supreme Court has set precedents the case ends.

Goldberger, who is Jewish, has come under the most intense criticism for defending the Nazis. He says some of his relatives have stopped talking to him.

Harvey Schwartz, the village attorney, says he, too, is surprised by the intensity of outrage in Skokie since the Nazis set their demonstration plans.

"I'm a Jew living in Skokie, and I thought I recognized what the Holocaust and the survivors were all about. But I didn't really — not until I got into this thing last spring and saw how the survivors reacted."

The 1970 census says 39.2 per cent of Skokie's Jews are 45 or older — well above the national average.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This day is loaded with opportunities to advance in your line of endeavor. A good time to make arrangements for any travelling you may do in the future. Take on a more positive attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be alert of opportunities that can lead to expansion and advancement now. Make new contacts that can be helpful in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen carefully to your hunches now and follow them since they are quite accurate. Avoid any foolish expenditures of money.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come to a better understanding with family members. Plan what must be done to become more popular with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to return favors to others and to show your appreciation. Take time to improve your health so you feel better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact congenials and have a good time at the amusements you enjoy. Make plans to have greater security in the days ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Strive to have more harmony at home and be happier there. Make plans to have greater security in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make contacts with others via the social avenues and make an excellent impression. Don't neglect important correspondence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time for meditation early in the day. Later study new outlets that could bring more abundance in the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can do much to make your life more successful by applying yourself more to the tasks at hand. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to meditate about the philosophy of life you wish to follow in the future. Spend more time with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to be with persons you truly enjoy after you have spent time at religious studies. Desired wishes can be yours now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Taking part in a civic affair now can be most helpful to your career. Make plans that will give you more income in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand what is the best philosophy of life to live by and will be of great help to others. Give the finest education possible and success will follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, OCT. 17, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to get your affairs on a more solid and secure footing. Organize thoughts and resources in such a manner that you take away the risk of following impulses which might later prove unwise.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you are civic-minded or you may run into trouble with an official. Study your credit rating well, and be objective with those handling your affairs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make decisions regarding a trip you are considering. A difficult individual could give you trouble if permitted. Maintain your cool. Be open-minded to the views of others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Review obligations and best ways of dealing with them. Your mate may provoke you, but remain calm; all will work out. Be wary of strangers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to meet the expectations of others and gain their trust today. Show that you are cooperative. Be kind to a person who is emotionally upset.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) See your undertaking through to the end; you may have much to lose later. Take care of any physical ailments you may have. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan your time constructively allowing for recreation in the days and weeks ahead. Do not break any promises. Be confident but not overly so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Give special attention to home and kin. Make conditions there as ideal as possible. Stop being a doormat and you will be respected more. Avoid one who is a trouble-maker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid arguments with partners. Drive carefully today. Be precise in handling reports and agreements. Don't procrastinate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle financial affairs carefully. Try to economize more. Don't invest unwisely. Be tactful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Judgment is good now, both in business and personal matters. Get routine chores out of the way, then enjoy the company of friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be practical; it will pay off in the future. Don't be extravagant. Show mate you are truly devoted, the response will be good.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seek help from professional friend. Enjoy good friends to relieve tension. Be happy!

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those who can make life a delightful adventure. Teach the child early how to cope with disappointments, delays and needless worry. This is a most successful chart, especially where finances, real estate, etc. are concerned. Your progeny will be a hard worker who will have to learn to place an appropriate value on recreation.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Always New Foes Await Tireless Germ Warrior

EDITOR'S NOTE — The nation's chief strategist against flu, measles and other communicable diseases is a towering former medical missionary. Dr. William F. Foege believes in jogging, preventive medicine and the continued forward march of the health sciences.

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — More than a decade ago, Dr. William H. Foege was huddled over maps and microscopic slides, plotting his next step in the war against smallpox.

A medical missionary then, the 6-foot-7 Foege was among the frontline fighters against a disease that was killing between 500,000 and a million people a year.

Today his hopes of wiping out smallpox are all but realized. By next year, says Foege — now director of the national Center for Disease Control — smallpox will have just about disappeared from the Earth.

He has new enemies to keep him busy. Legionnaire's diseases, for example. His CDC researchers painstakingly tracked it down to a bacterium. Now they are finding it was not just an isolated strain in an outbreak following the Pennsylvania American Legion convention in Philadelphia last year.

The latest incidence was in Burlington, Vt., and Columbus, Ohio, and the same strain of bacterium has been identified in other outbreaks over the past 15 years. Foege is confident that CDC researchers eventually will discover how it is spread. Foege became director of the CDC after last year's ill-fated swine flu immunization program. He says he plans no changes in the center's mode of operation, but he'd like to see the government do more to get people to stop smoking.

That ties in with Foege's stress on preventive medicine. "Preventing disease has been the most significant factor in our current longevity," he says. "It's been more important than curative medicine."

"The effects of cigarette smoking may turn out to be the No. 1 preventive medicine problem in the country. The health people discuss this as a health problem. There are others who discuss it in terms of the economy. The implication is that the economy is more important than the health aspects. I don't think the argument makes much sense."

He'd like to see tobacco advertising "much more restricted" and believes the government should find ways to help people who want to stop smoking but can't, and also to aid farmers who give up growing tobacco.

Foege (pronounced Fay-ghee) is a vigorous 41, jogs two miles each day and considers a backpacking trip into the wilderness with his wife and three young sons as the ideal vacation.

Unlike the fashionable pessimism of many, his view of the future is that life — and the quality of it — will steadily improve.

Life expectancy in the United States now is 72 years, six him up in interviews with The Atlanta Constitution.

In recent years, said senior linebacker Ben Zambiasi, "we had dippers on offense and chewers on defense."

But now the balance has swung.

"Dipping tastes better," Zambiasi said. "You don't have to spit as much and it doesn't smell as nasty. And it doesn't eat holes in your teeth; it eats holes in your gums."

The chewers are easily identifiable by lopsided faces, one cheek distended by a big chew. The dippers take a bit of tobacco and — in the words of the advertisement many of them quote — put "just a peenche between your cheek and gum."

Pat Collins, the one who talked about the "buzz," said of his snuff, "I was chewin' and doing some yardwork, and it got me drunk."

Vince Farriba, who mentioned the milkshakes, says he doesn't depend on snuff but likes it pretty well.

But not all the players dip or chew.

So far it seems to be a cultural phenomenon limited to white players; black players don't want any part of it.

Placekicker Cary Long refrains on simple grounds: "sanity."

And Coach Vince Dooley doesn't allow it on the field.

But off the field, the Bulldogs are becoming known for carrying paper cups for spittoons and keeping refrigerators stocked with fresh tobacco supplies for nonsmokers.

New 'High' In Chewing Tobacco, Dip Of Snuff

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — "You get a buzz," is the way one college student describes it. "It'll get your head spinnin' after a while."

"It's not a dependency," claims another. "It's just something you like — like banana milkshakes."

Exotic drugs for flower children?

Nope, it's chewing tobacco

Cites 'Threats' To Education Personnel

ECU News Bureau
"New threats to higher education" were discussed by Dr. Morton S. Baratz, General Secretary of the American Association of University Professors, in an address to the N. C. Conference of the AAUP at Boone last weekend.

Baratz expressed alarm at the growing challenge to the governance role of faculty on the part of college and university administrators, increasing insecurity of faculty members in the face of "financial exigency" which forces campuses to dismiss instructors and cancel programs, threats to the tenure system, and trends toward interference by state legislatures in the internal affairs of campuses.

Eighteen N. C. colleges and universities were represented by delegations at the meeting, which marked the 20th anniversary of the founding of the N. C. AAUP Conference.

Prof. Henry Ferrell of the ECU Department of History, a past conference president, participated in a review of the Conference's history.

Current state AAUP president is Anne Briley of the ECU Department of Library Services.

Other ECU delegates at the meeting were faculty members Sallie Mann, Ray Martinez, Vernie Saleed and Patricia Daugherty.

what medical science has accomplished generally in reducing disease, but the old enemy hasn't run out of tricks. New viruses keep cropping up — lassa fever, marburg fever and ebola fever among the more recent. All are often fatal, but only lassa fever has occurred in the United States, an import from Africa.

"We'll continue to see new viruses and each time we'll react as fast as we can to see how they spread and how to control them," he says. "No one will be foolish enough to say we will know all the answers. But the more we plan the more we will be prepared. We have access to the whole world — we get cooperation from everybody, including Russia and China."

And there's always influenza, mild at times, severe at others. While the swine flu program, troubled from the start, gave CDC a black eye in the view of many, Foege notes that it was the first time that epidemiologists detected a shift in the flu virus fast enough to develop a vaccine quickly to fight it.

"The epidemic didn't occur, so we couldn't prove it," he says.

Halloween Mask Risky

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Halloween masks can be a hazard and should be avoided, warns the American Optometric Association.

Non-allergic makeup applied by adults is a safer choice for disguising trick-or-treaters, the group suggests.

Masks can slip out of place or have such small eye holes that they block a child's view of approaching cars, objects on the ground, steps, curbs and holes in lawns or streets.

Another Halloween safety tip from the optometrists is to decorate costumes with retro-reflective material to make wearers highly visible to drivers.

According to optometric studies at Indiana University, retro-reflective material on shoes and clothing makes pedestrians safely visible to drivers even at high speeds. Nothing else, not even white clothing, can top it, the studies show.

Retro-reflective material can be purchased in iron-on, sew-on and stick-on varieties in most hardware and department stores. It should be applied to the front, sides and back of the costume and can be incorporated into the costume design.

Parents should also caution their children not to walk in the street (to use yards if there are no sidewalks), to look carefully before crossing a street; to cross at a corner with a street light if at all possible; and to carry a flashlight or battery-operated lantern.

Yogurt Is Proven Nutrition Leader
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Yogurt fans are right. Their favorite cultured milk product is more nutritious than other fermented milks and even non-fermented milks.

Scientists of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service checked this out by feeding young, growing rats on yogurt, three types of acidophilus milk and two types of buttermilk, each made with a different bacteria strain.

Engineers Face Jungle And Guns On Thai Project

By PAUL WEDEL
NAKHON SI THAMMARAT, Thailand (UPI) — The physical obstacles are nothing compared to the human ones in construction of a highway through southern Thailand's jungled mountains.

The $45 million, 200-mile road will run through heavy forest, skirt precipitous limestone peaks and cross hundreds of streams and one major river. The head engineer for the project, American Hal Monday, was driving back from a work site April 5 with a Thai engineer. A motorcycle with two riders pulled up beside the car and fired six shots through the windshield, killing both men.

Monday had rejected the work of one of his contractors, a local strongman, on the grounds that the concrete hadn't been agitated properly and could cause a bridge to collapse. The strongman took the rejection personally.

In early August, a 57-year-old Danish engineer for one of the building contractors was abducted by terrorists and held for three weeks before finally being released for an undisclosed sum.

On Aug. 19, 100 Communist insurgents surrounded a construction camp on the southernmost section of the road. For 40 minutes, they poured gunfire into the camp until police assigned to defend the camp threw out their weapons and gave up. Four policemen had run away with the first shots and eight were wounded.

"I watched from the window as they lined up and read a declaration accusing the company of being tools of the government in the suppression and exploitation of the people," said a pretty secretary at the camp. "They said villagers with land along the right of way had been cheated by government officials who made personal gains."

Sunlight streamed through bullet holes in the office as she spoke.

An engineer on the project said the contractor had received demands from the terrorists for 300,000 baht ($48,000) before the attack.

"They (the contractor) couldn't just up and pay that kind of money to anyone who can write a letter. So I guess the terrorists had to prove something," he said.

Has the payment been made? The contractor refused to talk about it, but workers on the road think it has and they feel relieved.

They are not so relieved about an earlier payoff for the release of a captured Thai foreman. Payment was demanded, and made, in ammunition.

"We might have been dodging bullets supplied by our own company," said one of the employees present the night of the attack.

Office workers on the southernmost section no longer stay in the dormitories provided at the construction camp. Despite 40 hired mercenaries and barbed wire tangles around the perimeter, no one wants to be there when and if the Communists come back.

The big problem, say those associated with the project, is that the new highway is going through areas long isolated from the rest of the country — and from law and order.

Local strongmen, sometimes given official titles and a salary, ruled their areas as they saw fit. Anything happening there had to have their approval — meaning they had to profit from it.

One way now for the local strongman to get his cut is to sign on as sub-contractor. It was such an agreement which led to Hal Monday's death.

One engineer said he is worried the same problems will arise with the bridge over the broad Tapee River.

"The area is a wild one and our contractor has had to sub-contract the bridge to the local tough guy," he said. "He has nothing to lose if that bridge falls down. It's his first and last bridge. I'm afraid of getting shot if I don't approve. They start casting the piles this month."

The new American chief engineer is a tall, heavily built man with a craggy face. He often travels with two armed guards and doesn't follow any regular patterns. "No matter how many people get killed this road is going to get finished sometime next year," he said. "In the meantime I'll keep my guards and keep on looking down the road for ambushes."

Diver Is Paid $1,000 A Day On Rig In Gulf

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Diver pay is $1,000 a day at Cognac — the name Shell Oil Company gave to its $275 million project to erect the world's highest offshore oil production platform.

Counting his money is one of the few pleasures in life for a diver working 39 straight days in the weird world of "saturation."

They have been the indispensable men out there on the blue Gulf of Mexico, 85 miles south of New Orleans, where a Shell derrick barge is nailing down a steel framework the size of a city block on the bottom of the sea.

It will be the base for a 1,265-foot tower, 15 feet taller than the Empire State Building, standing in 1,024 feet of water.

Only divers who have worked in murky depths can fully sav- or another pleasure at Cognac: no murk.

"This water is so clear as to be unbelievable," said George Cundiff, supervisor of diving aboard the barge. "Beautiful."

In "saturation" work a diver goes into pressurized atmosphere of 3 per cent oxygen and 97 per cent helium and lives in it for a month or more.

Cognac's record: 39 days. That's 39 days of working under 1,000 feet of water, discouraging sharks by whacking them on the snout, sleeping and eating in a cramped and crowded pressure chamber, talking in the strange "helium voice" that makes a diver quack like a duck with laryngitis.

When he gets on the telephone line to people on the barge deck, the quacks must go into an "unscrambler" and be replayed before the words can be understood.

Divers work in saturation because it takes so long to decompress after reaching such depths. After a month at pressure it takes nine days to get through depressurization, to get the body back to normal, with all bubbles out of the blood.

There are 300 men on the construction project, with two-man diving teams as the eyes and guiding hands down in the dark deep.

They work aided by television cameras, powerful lights and a $600,000 orange-colored robot swimmer the size of a beach ball. They call it, with affection, "Harvey."

Equipped with television camera, bright headlights and various instruments, Harvey swims at the end of control lines operated by a handler aboard the barge.

Divers guided the placing of 24 pilings that pin the 42,000-ton steel framework to the seabottom like gigantic nails. Each is 625-foot-long tube of two-inch thick steel.

A piling, lowered by the derrick barge, is slipped through a steel sleeve on the platform edge, then hammered into the sea bottom.

The hydraulic hammer is the world's biggest, naturally — but everything about Cognac is outside, including the total cash outlay of $787 million by Shell and 13 oil company partners.

Sam Paine, Shell's general manager of production, estimated that over 100 million barrels of crude oil and 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas lie beneath the tower.

The middle section is to be fitted on top of the base early next year. The top section will be installed next summer.

When complete in 1982 with all 62 wells gushing, the platform will pump 500,000 barrels of crude ashore each day through underwater pipelines.

Since it is a new field, the oil qualifies for "upper tier" pricing on the domestic scale, now about $11.70 a barrel — not as sweet as the world price, which the Arabs have jacked up to about $14, but better than the "old oil" price that now stands at about $5.44 a barrel. Natural gas has been going up fast.

The Gulf of Mexico, where offshore drilling was born in 1938, now ranks as a "mature" area, meaning that a lot of its wealth is now gone. So Cognac does not compare to Prudhomme, the North Sea or the Arabian Gulf. But it is not to be sniffed at.

Like the divers today, Shell, its partners and their stockholders will soon have the great pleasure of counting money.

Illegal Bugs Counterspy

BUG-STOMPER—Seeking out illegal listening devices is former intelligence agent Jesse Creech's new job. The Spring City, Tenn. man says wiretapping units can range in size from the one in his hand to no larger than a pinhead.

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer
SPRING CITY, Tenn. (AP) — "Bugging is big business in America these days, says one counter-intelligence expert, and less than one percent of it is legally done."

"There's a jillion of these listening devices," Jesse Creech says. He's the founder of Creech Counter-Intelligence Inc., a rather startling small business in this sedate eastern Tennessee town.

"I would say 90 percent of the time we go on a sweep, we find something," he explains.

Creech says he retired to a countryside south of Oak Ridge after serving 30 years as a government agent. He declines to name his former employer or to discuss what he did and he insists on taping interviews so he can send them to Washington for clearance.

Now Creech hires former intelligence officers to make sure that businesses and homes are free of unwanted ears.

"Many, many times, a used-car salesman will leave you sitting in a cubbyhole while he goes back to talk to the boss about what kind of a deal they can get for you," he says. "And he and the boss are there in the back listening while you tell your wife that you'd buy that thing for $200 less."

"Car salesmen, real estate salesmen, and finance people use it covertly," he says. "Of all the bugging and electronic surveillance done today, less than one percent of it is done legally with a court order."

Bugs start simply with a $21 wireless microphone sold over the counter in many electronic shops.

With materials readily available and a schematic, more sophisticated bugs can be built. "By using a condenser microphone, you can get a bug down to the actual size of a pinhead," Creech says.

And there is a black market for precision-made listening devices. One unit about the size of a domino can pick up a whisper 50 feet away and transmit it 1,000 feet to a booster transmitter or a tape recorder with a sound-activated on-off switch, he says.

Another unit — once sold over the counter, but now sold only through security specialists — allows a person to dial a phone number and listen in through the telephone speaker.

"The phone never rings, but you have taken control of the telephone line and you can sit in your room and listen to everything that goes on in a house 5,000 miles away," Creech says. Such units now bring $2,000 to $10,000 on the black market.

"When someone picks up the phone, you merely release the line and he gets a dial tone."

Such invasion of personal privacy is frightening, Creech says, but it makes for an exciting and rapidly growing business.

"This business is unlimited," he says simply. "I'll never live to see it reach its potential."

ECU Programs Receive Grants

ECU News Bureau
A total of $384,599 was awarded East Carolina University by federal and state government agencies during September. The funds will support five research and training programs at ECU.

The N. C. Dept. of Human Resources granted $203,936 to the ECU Department of Social Work and Correctional Services to renew a Title XX grant for support of ECU's human service curricula.

Graham Board OKs Disclosure

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The board of directors of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association has voted unanimously to begin making public its annual, audited financial reports, beginning at the end of this year.

It will cover affairs of the BGEA and its affiliated organizations. The step was taken at Graham's recommendation.

Testing Reader Of Price Tags

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The nation's largest retailer is experimenting with "magic wand" price tag-reading equipment at its St. Louis stores.

By next spring Sears, Roebuck and Co. expects to have the computer-assisted scanners in more than 600 of its 875 stores.

Clerks pass the scanners over merchandise tickets containing price, stock number and other data. The information is transferred electronically to the register, which records it and rings up a sale.

The U. S. Office of Education gave $70,000 to continue support of ECU's Office of Cooperative Education, directed by Dr. Betsy Harper of the ECU business education and office administration faculty.

Drs. Peter H. Fricke and John R. Malolo received $11,498 from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for a joint research project on the socio-economic implications of the "Argo Merchant" oil spill.

Dr. Malolo is chairperson of the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and Dr. Fricke is affiliated with the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources.

The School of Nursing received funding for two training programs from the Public Health Service. An award of $64,065 will support a program in psychiatric-mental health training, and a $35,100 grant will fund a professional nurse-practitioner training program.

Announcement of the grants was made by the ECU Office of Sponsored Programs.

Set Oct. 23 As Day Of Prayer

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Baptist World Alliance, representing 29 million Baptists in this country and abroad, has set Oct. 23 as a "Day of Prayer for Peace" in response to requests from church people in many nations.

It is to be an annual observance, on the Sunday preceding the anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Drops Career As Performer For Business

A CHANGE IN CAREERS — The dream of becoming a concert pianist, sustained Ronald Zalkind through 17 years of piano lessons, studies and several years of performance. Now he has started a school about the business of music with classes ranging from contracts to concert production. (AP Laserphoto)

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Like many young musicians, Ronald Zalkind had the dream of becoming a concert pianist. He would work hard, get the breaks, and end up as a world-acclaimed soloist.

That dream sustained him through 17 years of piano lessons, bachelor's and master's degree programs at Juilliard School of Music and several years of performance and directing with symphonic ensembles in New York.

"I was past 20 when I really went through a crisis," Zalkind recalled. "I realized it was a mistake to pursue a professional music career. I was not a musician. I didn't have the sensitivity."

After casting around for several years and writing a book ("It will never be published, but it got a lot of bitterness out of my system"), Zalkind found another dream. At 28, he has borrowed $25,000 and set out to make it come true.

Zalkind has started a school not about the aesthetics of music but about the business of music. He wants to teach others with dreams of music careers how to survive in the "entertainment jungle."

After newspaper and radio advertisements announced its advent, more than 300 people enrolled for the nine initial courses at the Zado Institute for Practical Learning. The name, he said, "was an attempt to find something like Kodak or Xerox, something unique so I could get a trademark."

Classes on topics from concert production to contracts and fund raising began Sept. 26.

Zalkind says many of the new students responded to a pamphlet distributed at record and sheet music stores in the area. It read: "There are at least a thousand ways to fail in the music business ... We want to help you avoid them."

In addition to guiding would-be performers, "the school also will make musicians aware that alternative music careers exist," Zalkind said. "This kind of information just isn't available in music schools, even schools like Juilliard."

Lawyers, engineers, concert promoters, salesmen and media personalities have been hired to teach in rooms rented at an East Side community house. But Zalkind has reserved the overview course — the Business of Music: A Basic Course in Survival — for himself.

Kares Elected To Ass'n Post

ECU News Bureau
Artemis C. Kares, assistant professor of library services at East Carolina University, has assumed office as secretary and executive board member of the N. C. Library Association.

Ms. Kares formally took office at the NCLA's recent biennial conference in Winston-Salem. Other ECU library service personnel attending the event were Judy Moore, Ann Watson, Sallie Mann, Janet Kilpatrick, Elizabeth Smith, Katie King, Leah McGlohn, Wilson Luquire and Dorothy Brockman.

A member of the ECU faculty since 1972, Ms. Kares is a former reference librarian at the N. C. State Library. She is an active member of several professional organizations.

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN
LONDON (UPI) — Looking from a window over the placid Thames river, Peter Black said, "It would be the greatest natural disaster this country has ever faced, a catastrophe for the capital on the scale of the great fire of London."

The House of Commons stands 300 yards across on the north bank. Pleasure craft laden with tourists chugged peacefully up and downstream between Hampton Court and Greenwich.

The river slapped the embankment and the piers of Westminster Bridge. Then it rolled gently on "down to the mighty sea" — 40 miles east in the English Channel.

But, Black continued, "The lives of over one million people are at risk. The damage alone would cost between 2,000 and 3,000 million pounds ($3.5 billion)."

"No one disagrees. Sooner or later — and no one knows exactly when — a huge tidal surge will come up the Thames."

Black is no demented writer of disaster movies. He is the matter of fact chairman of the Recreation and Policy Committee of the Greater London Council, the body responsible for the day to day affairs of 8 million Londoners.

And what he says has been official policy for at least a decade. All that is required for fulfillment of the apocalyptic scenario is a set of meteorological coincidences.

A "spring" or maximum tide, a river swollen by heavy rain or snowfall and a surge in the narrow North Sea between Britain and mainland Europe. The surge can be caused by a combination of a drop in barometric pressure and a northwest wind.

This would drive the abnormal North Sea tide down the funnel and sweep it up into the Thames estuary where the regular flow of the river would be no match for it.

Ten times this century it nearly happened. In 1953, only a change in the wind direction saved the capital. But 307 persons perished, 52,000 were made homeless and $120 million damage was caused to the east coast and the heavily-populated estuary approaches to London.

September marks the start of the period of maximum danger. Until March, when the spring tides abate, experts in an underground tide watch room will monitor tides, winds, rainfall and barometric pressure hour by hour.

If danger threatens, World War II air-raid sirens will sound in the low lying areas of the city and workers in the City of London will be sent home before the river sweeps into the subway system. Workers will

Reception Honors Sugg

The East Carolina University Manuscript Collection staff was host at a reception honoring Dr. H. A. I. Sugg of the ECU political science faculty Wednesday afternoon.

Donald Lennon, curator of the Manuscript Collection, presented Dr. Sugg an inscribed plaque as a tribute to his support of the collection. The plaque will be mounted on a wall in the collection's new facility, located in Joyner Library.

Several recent acquisitions were on display during the reception including a collect of Navy-related documents, records letters and diaries of foreign missionaries, several family papers and political papers.

The ECU Manuscript Collection is a repository for all types of documents, chiefly those relevant to North Carolina history. Papers in the collection span several hundred years and are available as resources for historical research.

Among the reception guests were friends of Dr. Sugg, members of the ECU Manuscript Committee and other members of the university administrative staff and faculty.

install sandbags along the embankment in central London. The flood threat has been recognized for 200 years. But it is becoming worse every year because of an irreversible geological fact.

London — and southeast England — is sinking 13 inches a century. The capital is 15 feet lower than it was in Roman times, 2000 years ago.

In medieval days, high tide on the Thames reached only as far as London bridge. Today it pushes as far as Teddington, 20 miles upstream.

Now, with the river banked for most of its length from the sea to beyond London, 18 inches of water spilling over the top could send up to eight feet of water into a 45-square-mile area, according to official predictions.

The Palace of Westminster, containing the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, government offices and even Buckingham Palace, would be inundated.

On the south bank, the National Theater and Lambeth Palace, home of the Archbishop of Canterbury, would be endangered.

To meet the extraordinary threat — which most Londoners ignore — the government is building a major flood dam downstream from central London.

The Thames barrier, a $750 million construction between Silvertown and Woolwich, is scheduled for completion in 1981.

The barrier will consist of seven piers supporting six huge steel plates measuring about 75 feet high. The gates will remain in recesses in the riverbed for most of the year. But once a flood alert is sounded, the gates will be rotated separately upward to keep out the rushing tide.

The barrier, equipped with its own power supply, will have 200-foot openings between piers to allow shipping to pass when the gates are down.

The barrier was hailed as "an eighth engineering wonder of the world" when its plans were first unveiled in 1973. Said one commentator, "Not since Moses turned back the Red Sea has anything so daring been attempted."

London officials are keeping their fingers crossed it won't be needed — at least for another four years.

Nature Cooperates In Production Of NBC Drama Series 'Big Hawaii'

PARADISE RANCHERS — Cliff Potts (r) and John Dehner play the father and son team of ranchers who crash land their plane near an erupting volcano in "Red Midnight," a segment of "Big Hawaii." Even Mother Nature follows the scripts.

"Big Hawaii" is the new NBC-TV drama series filmed entirely in the 50th state and starring Cliff Potts. "Red Midnight," an episode scheduled to air Wednesday, Oct. 19 (10 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV) has two disasters, one natural and one man-caused.

Mitch Fears (Potts) is a newly licensed pilot who takes his father, Barrett (John Dehner) up in a private plan to survey the lava flow from the erupting Mauna Loa Volcano.

They run a huge ranch on the big island and must see if the lava is endangering their cattle. After flying around the craters, they head back but the plane develops mechanical problems and they crash land. The plane explodes just after they leap out.

"Our plan," said producer Bill Finnegan, "was to use stock footage of the volcano erupting. That's what all film makers do, and here in Hawaii there are a lot of old films of erupting volcanoes. But while we were filming the segment, Kilauea decided to erupt so we went up and filmed it."

Kilauea, part of the Mauna Loa chain, is the world's most active volcano and scientists had predicted that it would erupt soon, but "Big Hawaii" producers did not expect it to erupt on cue.

As for the plane crash landing and exploding the show paid $7,000 to build a plane to be destroyed. A Cessna mockup was attached to a tower and steadied with wires. Then the wires were cut and the plane dived about 10 feet to the ground.

Several problems with the plane and special effects man Cliff Wenger had to get his hammer and tools out several times to repair the plane for retakes. The crew got tired of waiting around but as Black said, "This business is a lot like the Army, you hurry up and wait."

Finally, the crash worked and the director moved on to the explosion. It worked the first time, which is a good thing. It was the only plane they had to blow up.

Leslie's Career Soars

Lesley Ann Warren burst onto the national consciousness as the beguilingly innocent Cinderella of the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein II television special several years ago.

In the intervening years, Ms. Warren's career has soared, and she will again captivate small screen viewers with her starring role in "79 Park Avenue." A role, incidentally, which is far removed from the winsome, lovely Cinderella.

"79 Park Avenue," an NBC Novel for Television, is a 6-hour drama that will be telecast on 3 consecutive nights, Sunday through Tuesday, Oct. 16-18, 9 to 11 p.m. each night, on NBC-TV. It is a saga of a girl's slide from innocent teen-ager to infamous madam, and is based on Harold Robbins' best seller.

Starring with Ms. Warren in the drama set in New York in the 1930s, are Polly Bergen, Raymond Burr, Michael Constantine, Peter Marshall (host of "The Hollywood Squares"), Albert Salmi and Jack Weston. Also starring in the story are Barbara Barrie, David Dukes, Margaret Fairchild, Lloyd Haynes, Sandy Helberg, Matthew Laborteaux, Jane Marla Robbins, John Saxon and Marc Singer.

Born in Manhattan, Lesley Ann was always interested in the theatre. Ironically, although she took dancing for years as a child, she wasn't accepted at the High School of Performing Arts in New York. However, after a one month crash course in painting, she was able to pass the rigorous entrance exam to the High School of Music and Art.

At fourteen, she won the ingenue lead in the national company of "Bye, Bye Birdie."

SHE ULTIMATELY SURVIVES — Lesley Ann Warren stars as a young woman who, in spite of her contact with the underworld of vice in New York, manages to endure many setbacks and has her day in court in "79 Park Avenue" the "Big Event" premiering on Sunday, Oct. 16 at 9 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Action Drama Hits Home

"White Line Fever," the action-packed drama of an idealistic young man's struggle against the corruption and brutality of the Arizona trucking industry, makes its television debut as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Oct. 16, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Jan-Michael Vincent, Kay Lenz, Slim Pickens, Don Porter and L.Q. Jones head the cast of this motion picture set in the awe-inspiring Arizona desert.

In "White Line Fever," Michael plays Carrol Jo Hummer, a likeable Air Force veteran who arrives home to marry his childhood sweetheart, Jerri (Lenz). He goes into debt to buy a massive truck and soon finds himself blackballed when he refuses to smuggle contraband material across state lines. Nursing a set of savagely broken ribs, Hummer decides to muscle his way back to work using the barrel of a gun and eventually picks up some support from his fellow truckers.

In the meantime, the crooked conglomerate that controls the Arizona trucking industry (as well as the local police and judiciary) spares no violence in trying to stem Hummer's 'organizing.' His rig is desecrated, his body beaten, his house burned and he's even framed for the hit-and-run murder of his father's old partner, Duane (Pickens). Then Jerri suffers a miscarriage, and Hummer really gets angry.

Like the protagonist in the "Walking Tall" films, Hummer represents a raw form of proletarian American hero with the strength and moral steadfastness that the American public finds appealing.

Colts To Start Leaks

Baltimore's Roosevelt Leaks stepped into a starting role at fullback in 1976 and responded with 445 yards on 118 attempts and seven touchdowns. He was the number one fullback in 13 games last season, missing only the St. Louis contest because of injury. Leaks will be starting again when the Colts meet the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday, Oct. 16, at 1 p.m. on NBC-TV.

"Leaks is an outstanding blocker and short yardage running back, and I think we can expect more yardage from him this year," says Head Coach Ted Marchibroda.

As a fifth round draft pick in 1975, Leaks came to Baltimore with excellent credentials as a sophomore and junior, but a bit of a question as a senior. He had suffered a serious knee injury in the spring of his senior year, 1974, and after his surgery, he saw only limited action in his final football season at the University of Texas. He gained 409 yards and scored four touchdowns on 96 carries. While these statistics are respectable for many college backs, they were not in keeping with what fans had come to expect from the powerful Leaks.

Leaks had earned All-Southwest Conference honors as a sophomore and a junior. In 1973, his junior year, he set SWC records for rushing with 1,415 yards on the season and a single game mark of 342 yards against SMU. Also that same season he gained All-America recognition and finished third in the Heisman Trophy voting.

Roosevelt Leaks quickly dispelled any doubts concerning his total recovery the following fall when, on his first carry in the NFL, he scored in the season opener against the Chicago Bears.

'As The World Turns' Is Family Affair For Star

The CBS-TV daytime series "As the World Turns" could well be described as a 'family affair' for Marie Masters. Marie, who plays Dr. Susan Stewart on the series, isn't the only member of her family who reports to the studio — her eight-year-old daughter, Jenny, also has a part in the 'soap.' What's more, she plays Susan's daughter.

Marie says Jenny "gets a little confused sometimes, because she doesn't really understand the difference between real-life and 'pretend'."

"I remember when Susan was in jail once, and Jenny didn't know about it until she was out, and she was just furious," Marie exclaimed. "She said to me, 'Why didn't you tell me and let me come to see you in it? I would have visited you if you'd just told me you were there.'"

Marie says that Jenny's twin brother, Jesse, shows no signs of jealousy about his sister's role in the show. "Jesse's done some 'extras' from time to time, but he's shown no real interest in acting. He's very involved in other things at the moment."

"Susan," says Marie, "has always been a 'troubled' character. And I think her major conflict has come from being a professional person and having a husband who wanted her to stay at home."

Can she list the numerous 'crises' Susan's been through during the past nine years?

"Gee..." she laughed. "She's done everything. Just unbelievable things..."

One very believable problem Susan has wrestled with is alcoholism, and Marie has done considerable research on the subject.

"When I first started working on the part, I did some reading, but the major research I did was to spend time at Alcoholics Anonymous...going to various types of meetings and talking to a lot of people who are members of AA."

She says the organization's members were "extremely generous — as most AAs are — and they shared their experiences with me. They are so anxious to help people — to help each other. They're really extraordinary."

Marie Master bristles when somebody downgrades actors in any of the daytime series. "I don't like to be referred to as 'half' a prime time star. Frankly," she candidly admitted, "they give me a big, fat pain. And it's just not fair, because we are very professional people, we do a very good job, and we work very hard. Also," she added, "daytime shows make the bulk of the money for the networks."

Legend Becomes Myth For Female Co-Stars

Legend has it that actresses must be established in their profession before they can even consider the possibility of being cast as stars of a TV series. However, this is not always true, and the legend is a myth where two unknown actresses, Bess Armstrong and Lynnie Greene, are concerned. These two girls, both 24, are co-starring in "On Our Own," a new series on CBS-TV that airs Sundays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.

Lynnie's only experience on TV up to now was as a contestant on a game show last winter and, for her, it was a most productive experience — she won $10,000.

Bess has had a little more exposure on the tube — in a segment of "The Andros Targets," a series which aired for a short while on CBS last year. She's also made several TV commercials.

Obviously they're two extremely talented young people. But...how'd they get these co-starring roles?

"They didn't want to see us," Bess stated flatly, referring to the show's casting crew. "They really didn't. They'd gone through everybody they knew — all the kids who'd established themselves, and we got in on the seventh and eighth week of auditions. They'd already told our agents several times that we weren't right for the roles and to just give up."

But they didn't give up. They continued to try. "We'd never met until the day we were both in the waiting room that was jammed with other girls who were going to audition," continued Lynnie. "We were the only ones in the whole room who were studying our scripts. Everybody else was smoking, or talking about their job, or combing their hair."

Bess picked it up from there: "We spied each other about the same time and decided to study our scripts together. Then we asked if we could audition together."

Kay Lenz (l) and Jan-Michael Vincent star as newlyweds, Jerri and Carrol Jo Hummer, in the action packed saga of one man's struggle against corruption in the trucking industry, "White Line Fever," making its television debut as the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," Oct. 16 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Disney Special Airs On Sunday

Motion picture and television star Fred MacMurray, Cloris Leachman and Harry Morgan star in a heavenly comedy about an angel assigned to deliver an expired soul for final judgement, in "Charley and the Angel," a special two-hour television premiere on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday, Oct. 16, 7 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV. Kurt Russell also stars.

Charley Appleby — having narrowly escaped three near-fatal accidents — pleads for more time when he is called upon by Roy Zerney, an angel assigned to deliver him for final judgement. When our hero pleads for more time, and angel considers his argument and vanishes to check with Headquarters regarding a reprieve.

Determined to prove worthy of a reprieve, Charley arranges for repairs on the house that he's promised for months. Be even decides to withdraw his savings to take his family to the Chicago World's Fair, but the bank is suddenly bankrupt.

To raise cash for the trip, Charley makes the ultimate sacrifice: he puts his small hardware store up for sale.

In the meantime, his two sons try to earn money toward the trip and unknowingly become delivery boys for bootleggers. Charley inadvertently learns of their involvement and goes to the local speakeasy to straighten things out. The place would be raided and Charley is arrested; his picture with the club flappers splattered all over the papers.

After some fast-talking, Charley is released and soon back on the trail of the hoods who force his sons to drive them out of town. A high-speed chase ensues resulting in Charley's arrest again, while the mobsters escape. Again Charley cons himself out of jail.

Cher Signs

Cher, one of the country's most exciting and dynamic entertainers, has signed an exclusive agreement with ABC-TV, it was announced recently by Fred Silverman, President, ABC Entertainment.

The agreement calls for Cher to star in a major hour-long special scheduled for telecast on ABC in February, 1978, and to star in a world television film premiere planned to air on the network later this year.

'Weekend Nun' Is A True Story; Airs Monday On CBS Late Movie

Few people have the opportunity to relive their past life. And for those who do, the chances are their feelings will be a mixture of happiness and pain.

Consider the case of Joyce Duco, who led a double life as both a nun and a juvenile probation officer. Her story is shown in "The Weekend Nun," airing as the "CBS Late Movie" Monday, Oct. 17, at 11:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

"It has been a remarkable experience and very rewarding," she said after serving as technical advisor on the film. "It also brought back so many memories both good and bad that I sometimes wonder if I've done the right thing. But I wanted to tell my story for so long."

The petite Miss Duco was Sister Fabian of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Bourg for ten years, working as a teacher in the New Orleans schools serviced by her order. Anxious to work with problem children, she applied for a job with the juvenile court, and she became a juvenile probation officer.

"I worked my case load during the week and became a weekend nun," she said. "At first the other officers didn't know I was a nun because I wore secular clothes. They thought there was something funny about me, though, because a nun is taught to serve and I was always opening doors for both men and women.

"I have a rough case load because I think they wanted to see if I could take it. I had teenage prostitutes, shoplifters, sneak thieves and a psychotic little boy who would have killed me if someone hadn't come along at the right time."

The dual life of Joyce Duco was headed for a collision course, however. The pressures of the court and the convent were too great and she had to choose which vocation she truly wanted. After much personal anguish, she asked for and received a papal dispensation from her vows. But her life as a probation officer was soon to end also. "There were too many children I couldn't help, and the revelation that I was a nun presented unique problems. I couldn't be happy in New Orleans anymore, and I felt I had to leave."

She had kept a careful diary of her experiences, and she began to think that someone might want to publish her story.

The end result is "The Weekend Nun" starring Joanna Pettet, Vic Morrow, Beverly Garland and James Gregory. In addition to serving as a technical advisor, Miss Duco also donned a habit again for a small role as a nun.

Never Was 'Goody-Two-Shoes'

Joyce (series star Betty White) discusses a scene with Hugo Muncy (Charles Cyphers), her stuntman for her television series, in "The Betty White Show," Monday, Oct. 17 (9-9:30 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Even after four seasons of playing wicked, wanton Sue Ann Nivens (and receiving two Emmy Awards for her efforts) on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," Betty White finds it difficult to get away from the "goody-two-shoes" image she picked up from her previous television roles, though she doesn't fully understand that, either.

"I really don't know where the public got the idea I was a fragile thing. I was never very shy about speaking my mind. My father was a traveling salesman, and I was trading one-liners with him before I learned my ABC's."

Now the star of her own new series, "The Betty White Show," seen Mondays, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS-TV, Miss White continued:

"I was delighted to play the role of Sue Ann Nivens, however. In fact, I'd been waiting all my life for that kind of role, because it's so much fun to play. There's a lot of Sue Ann in my new character, Joyce Whitman, though I think she's a little more three-dimensional, and I hope viewers will like her as much as I do."

Yvette Wrote Script

If you can't find a good woman's part to play, write your own script. That's what Yvette Mimieux did.

The resourceful Miss Mimieux plays the title role in "Hit Lady," the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" airing Oct. 18, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC-TV, in a screenplay authored by the blonde star.

FABIAN'S BACK

Fabian Forte, singing sensation of the late '50s, appears as himself in an upcoming episode of "Laverne and Shirley."

McGoohan Is Destined For Acting

Patrick McGoohan, who stars as Sid Rafferty, M.D., on "Rafferty," new medical drama series seen Mondays 10 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV, has never in his life aspired to become a physician.

However, his many other stage, television and movie roles include that of a priest, and a priest is something that McGoohan nearly did become.

The only son of a rural Irish family traditionally is expected to take the cloth, and as a youngster, McGoohan looked forward to the calling. With his four younger sisters as his flock, he would deliver "sermons" and anticipate the day he would enter the seminary. Then, at age 16, he suddenly decided that "my sense of vocation was inadequate."

McGoohan was born in the Astoria, Long Island, section of New York City. His parents, Thomas and Rose Fitzgerald McGoohan, had come to America in steerage from a farm in County Leitrim in Ireland. But by the time Pat was 6 months old, his parents were so homesick that they went back to Mullhemore, where the McGoohans had lived for 400 years.

McGoohan spent the rest of his first seven years on the farm. He still recalls, with nostalgia, he notes, the tall barn, the white cottage with its thatched roof, "the fat roses that covered the garden wall in summer, the smells of peat fires, oatmeal cookies, and new mown hay — the rich simplicity of life."

This seemingly idyllic existence ended when the effects of world depression reached the small farm, rendering it incapable of supporting the family.

Again Tom McGoohan emigrated, this time to England. Patrick then found himself surrounded, not by pastoral beauty but by the industrial grime of Sheffield. Nevertheless, it was a city of promise, the place where McGoohan's career as an actor had its birth — a beginning that he is certain could never have taken place for him amid the green fields of Ireland.

GOOD OLD NAME

When the producers of "Carter Country" needed a last name for Barbara Cason's policewoman character, Cloris, she was ready with the suggestion that they use her maiden name, Phebus. And they did. "It's a good southern name," explained Barbara, who was born in Memphis, Tenn.

As NBC-TV's "Police Woman," Angie Dickinson portrays a plainclothes detective whose undercover attire often is anything but "plain clothes."

June Lang, one of the real-life inspirations for the series seen on Tuesdays (10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV), credits the dangerous predicaments and sexy outfits Dickinson gets in and out of with encouraging women to enter police work.

Lang, who served with the Los Angeles Police Department for 20 years, now lives on a northern California ranch. Since "Police Woman" is not aired in her area, she seldom has a chance to watch her video counterpart.

"It's a beautiful job," said Lang. "That is, as long as you realize it's not all glamour and excitement."

Nevertheless, the series has provoked more than token interest among women to join the police force. Lang adds that LAPD Chief Ed Davis informed her that female prospects request "a job like Angie Dickinson's."

UNDERCOVER COP — Angie Dickinson is shown in a couple of the fetching outfits she wears as an undercover officer in "Police Woman," seen Tuesdays (10-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV. June Lang, a former Los Angeles policewoman who was one of the inspirations for Angie's character, credits Dickinson's sexy out-fits with encouraging women to enter police work.

Network Defends 'Soap'

Alfred R. Schneider, Vice President, ABC-TV, said recently that the success or failure of ABC's new TV series "Soap" should be determined by public reaction, not by "constraints imposed by prior censorship."

Schneider stated that in putting "Soap" on the air, ABC felt it imperative to "maintain a freedom as broadcasters to present responsible entertainment programs and that adults have similar freedom to choose to watch or not watch such programs."

He further said, "We do not regulate the flow of new and creative ideas. It is not our intention, in that sense, to be censors."

Working closely with the producers and writers of "Soap," Mr. Schneider said, ABC is maintaining standards, avoiding needless, gratuitous, offensive material. While "Soap" deals with a number of delicate subjects, he said they have all been dealt with many times before.

He emphasized the use of guideposts for "Soap": "The comedic treatment, the continuous story-line, the development of the characters over a period of time, and most important — immoral behavior will not be rewarded and there will be retribution."

The controversy surrounding "Soap," Schneider noted, even produced conflicting pressures from various groups. "On the one hand, the Church criticizes us for a too positive portrayal of homosexuality in 'Soap,' while gays argue that our portrayal is negative and stereotypical, and likely to constitute a substantial set-back to the Gay Rights Movement."

Schneider noted that pre-screening of programs by special interest groups, boycotts and government control are roads that lead to inhibition and the eventual destruction of the free-flow of ideas. "There is no question that prior review by outside interest organizations can have a chilling effect on the creative process in entertainment and then perhaps on other forms of information.

Angie Is No 'Plain Jane'

She was one of the first LAPD women to pioneer work in plainclothes intelligence, burglary, homicide and organized crime. This varied experience convinced her that uniformed female officers should not be in the field.

"I can't see a woman out on patrol in uniform. I just don't feel they can do a dangerous job unless they have a backup team," said Lang.

Doug Benton, "Police Woman's" producer, first contacted Lang four years ago when the show was spawned as a spinoff of "Police Story." She served as a technical consultant to the series, but no longer continues.

"She was a legend at the LAPD, she was so good," said
Benton.

Remembering the less stimulating stretches, Lang acknowledges that undercover work has its share of drudgery.

"There are so many boring, long, hard cases," she said.
"There are routine jobs to be done."

Her husband, Jim, is a former LAPD lieutenant now serving as a Tehama County justice court judge. Vicki, their daughter, maintains the family tradition by working in the LAPD child abuse unit.

Meanwhile, another "Police Woman" will be in a similar capacity when the series premiere drama (Oct. 25) focuses on the battered wife and child.

"Having Babies II"

Emotional crises involving birth, adoption and first love affect the lives of several couples in "Having Babies II," the sequel to one of last year's most popular television films. "Having Babies II" will air as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Oct.
21, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

"Having Babies II" features a cast of leading television and motion picture stars. Included are: Tony Bill, Cliff Gorman, Carol Lynley, Lee Meriwether,
Paula Prentiss, Nicholas Pryor, Wayne Rogers, Susan Sullivan and Cassie Yates.

The story focuses on various couples, each with their own problems: a childless couple (Rogers and Miss Yates) who desperately want a child and end up having twins; a husband (Tony Bill) whose neglect of his pregnant wife (Miss Prentiss) leads her to endanger their unborn child by taking drugs; a couple (Gorman and Miss Lynley) whose adopted son feels so threatened by the pending arrival of a new baby that he strikes out at the people he loves; and two teenagers experiencing the pangs and pressures of first love. Involved with all of them is Dr. Julie Farr (Miss Sullivan) who finds herself torn between her work and the man she loves.

The film concludes with dramatic footage of the actual birth of twins.

Leaves Role Behind

Jean Stapleton has found happiness as a dingbat, but she leaves her role of Edith Bunker behind when she leaves the studio.

The beloved star of "All in the Family" admits that she doesn't always answer when fans call her Edith.

"I do say to them that they can call me Jean," she says. "It can be hard on performers when they're expected always to be in character."

She is delighted, however, to be coping with the problems of marriage to Archie Bunker, on "All in the Family," now in its eighth season on a new day, Sundays (9 to 9:30 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Miss Stapleton, who began her career as a dramatic actress, says she is very grateful to be doing comedy.

Morgan Thrives On Variety

Demonstrating that variety is the spice of life, actor Harry Morgan escapes the weekly rigors of the Korean Conflict, where war is hell, to take part in a heavenly comedy.

Colonel Sherman Potter of television's "M*A*S*H" becomes Roy Zerney, a novice but well-meaning angel who visits the planet Earth to tell Fred MacMurray, "Your time is up," in the fanciful feature film, "Charley and the Angel."

Academy Award-winner Cloris Leachman, Kurt Russell and Vincent Van Patten also star when this hilarious film makes its television debut on "The Wonderful World of Disney,"

Sunday, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"I haven't played as many lovers as I would have liked," admits Morgan, "but I've done everything else under the sun from comedy to drama to adventure. I used to do a lot of heavies in the early days."

Sometimes his characterizations come in groups. For instance, a year after he played a sheriff in Disney's "The Apple Dumpling Gang" in '75, he played a tin star in the critically acclaimed John Wayne movie, "The Shootist." From his "M*A*S*H" role as Colonel Potter, the Detroit native steps up to the rank of General in his sixth Disney movie, a cosmic comedy called "The Cat From Outer Space," scheduled for release next summer.

Morgan, who has over 50 movie credits, began his TV career in the early '50s as next-door-neighbor Pete Porter on "December Bride." "The well-known actor carried the characterization to his own series, "Pete and Gladys," and in 1962 joined "The Richard Boone Show."

Since then hardly a year has gone by when his familiar face is not seen as a television series co-star. From the short-lived "Kentucky Jones," Morgan went on to play Officer Gannon in the second "Dragnet" series. Then came "The D.A." where Morgan teamed with Robert Conrad.

He joined the "M*A*S*H" troop in '75 and has been a regular since. His acting and directing for the series have earned him Emmy nominations in both areas.

Morgan and his wife Eileen live in West Los Angeles and own a ranch in Santa Rosa, Calif.

They have four sons: Chris, a television producer; Charlie, who works for a law firm in Houston; and twins Paul, a lawyer, and Danny, a court reporter.

SPECIAL HELP — Although his wife (Cloris Leachman) is unaware of what's going on, Charley Appleby (Fred MacMurray) thanks his guardian angel (Harry Morgan) with a friendly wave good-bye, in "Charley and the Angel," on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday, Oct. 16 (7-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Stars In Encore

Burt Reynolds is a smooth-talking country boy who loves country music, robbing gas stations and a girl named Dixie — three hobbies that keep him in heavy trouble — in "W.W. and the Dixie Dancekings," an encore presentation airing as "The ABC Friday Night Movie" Oct. 21, 9 to 11 p.m.

Art Carney, Conny Van Dyke, Jerry Reed and Ned Beatty are co-starred in the comedy, which was directed by John Avildsen.

W.W. Bright (Reynolds) is a good ole boy with a fondness for his fellow man — he always shares the take with the bewildered attendant when he robs a filling station — and a yen for a fetching woman called Dixie (Conny Van Dyke). Dixie is a country singer, backed by a band called the Dancekings, and W.W. meets her on stage when he pretends to be a part of the group to avoid a highway patrolman who suspects — quite rightly — that W.W. is the robber of a local gas station.

After meeting the Dixie Dancekings, W.W. adds another goal to his list of ambitions and announces that he will make them all stars by calling on his powerful friends in the Nashville music business. (W.W. does not know a soul in the Nashville music business. W.W. does not always tell the truth.)

'Mary White' Airs Two-Hour Movie

"Mary White," a two-hour "ABC Theatre" special inspired by Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist William Allen White's legendary editorial will be presented in November.

Starring as William Allen White is the double Emmy Award-winning Ed Flanders. Kathleen Beeler portrays the pivotal role of White's daughter, Mary, whose tragic death in a horseback riding accident at the age of 16 led to the famous, poignant editorial.

The film is the first ever produced for television by Robert B. Radnitz, producer of the four-time Oscar-nominated motion picture, "Sounder." It was filmed entirely on location in Emporia, Kansas, home of the Whites, where Mr. White was the fabled editor of the Emporia Gazette.

Also in the cast is Fionnuala Flanagan, as Mrs. Sallie White, who won an Emmy Award last year for her performance in "Rich Man, Poor Man, Book I." In special cameo roles are Donald Moffatt as novelist-playwright Sir James M. Barrie and Diana Douglas as Jane Addams, founder of Chicago's Hull House.

Much of the program was filmed in the home where Mary White and her family actually lived. This moving testimony to love and to life itself focuses on the complex but deeply affectionate relationship between William Allen White, one of the nation's most influential newspapermen — the confidant of kings, presidents and leaders in all fields of life — and his daughter Mary.

Caan Stars In 'The Killer Elite'

James Caan stars as a agent who becomes the victim of underhanded tricks and deceptions from within his own organization in "The Killer Elite," airing as the "CBS Wednesday Night Movie" Oct. 19, at 9 p.m., on CBS-TV. Co-starring are Robert Duvall, Arthur Hill and Gig Young.

The film is an action-thriller and, after a few scenes, the focus is on several men at work planting bombs and explosives at an unspecified site, while on the soundtrack the voices and sounds of children at play are heard. One man, played by Caan, is the number one agent of a private intelligence organization that protects very important clients. Suddenly, for no apparent reason, Caan's buddy and fellow agent (Duvall) puts him out of commission by plugging his arm and leg with bullets.

For a while, Caan is out of work, rejected unsympathetically by organization heads Gig Young and Arthur Hill who dismiss him as a cripple, while Duvall disappears. Later, after Caan's hospitalization and recovery, Duvall reappears secretly employed by Hill and assigned to assassinate an anti-communist activist. At this point, Caan's former employers make him an offer he can't refuse: a chance to work again, protecting the Asian leader, and to confront Duvall. He succeeds against seemingly insurmount-table odds, including a veritable army of deadly marital artists, in doing both.

In the film's portrayal of a world inhabited by ruthless, power-hungry individuals, there are several outstanding action scenes. A shootout between Caan and his men on a crowded Chinatown street while Duvall and his back-up men are positioned on a rooftop is particularly well handled. Surpassing the fireplay in intensity is the concentration on various forms of marital arts in a string of sequences which should have special appeal to staunch karate fans.

"The Killer Elite" is an extremely handsome film, with the cinematography keeping everything razor sharp and providing some attractive San Francisco backgrounds.

Robert Duvall (l) and James Caan (c), as employees of a private company of paid killers, escort one of the fugitives (Helmut Dantine) they are hired to protect, in "The Killer Elite," to be broadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movie," Oct. 19 (9-11:25 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

She's A Talented Little 11-Year-Old

There's a charming new personality who has joined the "Good Times" cast this season — Janet Jackson, the 11-year-old, "littles" member of the famed musical Jackson Family.

For Janet, it's another big step toward realizing her avowed intention of someday becoming a genuine movie star. The shy, off-camera daughter of Joe and Katherine Jackson is already well on her way as a professional entertainer. Her family's tours of the U.S. and abroad, plus their two mini-stints on TV with their own musical series, have earned Janet a sizable following and considerable exposure as an entertainer. Her singing, dancing and impersonations of Mae West, Cher, Diana Ross, and others have highlighted the Jackson Family performances. However, her "Good Times" casting is among her biggest thrills to date.

Janet DuBois, who co-stars in "Good Times," seen Wednesdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS-TV, is amazed and delighted by Janet's first efforts with the company. "She's tremendously talented and shows a stage poise well beyond her years," said Miss DuBois. "She's a most welcome addition to our cast."

Janet, an admitted tomboy who loves animals, drawing, playing cards, horseback riding, Stevie Wonder, and eating, was introduced as a regular member of the "Good Times" cast in a special four-part story dealing with the subject of child abuse.

Janet's performing talents will also be utilized along with her blossoming acting skills. She'll be seen in brief impersonations of Mae West and Cher in well-integrated scenes that contribute to the overall story line.

Certainly one of her biggest thrills came when Janet's family joined the audience for the taping of the first episode of "Good Times."

Raskin, president of the society has announced. The award will be presented at the Society's Fall Dinner, Oct. 24, in New York.

Mr. Raskin, labor columnist for the New York Times, said Mr. Reasoner would receive the award under the rules of the society for being active in the media for a quarter of a century. Other winners have been Walter Cronkite, CBS-TV; Edwin Newman, NBC-TV; Peter Kihss and Mr. Raskin, New York Times; William Randolph Hearst, Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers, and James Kilgallen, Heart Headline Service.

In 1974 Reasoner shared an Emmy Award as "News Broadcaster of the Year"

DANNY'S BATON BRINGS RESULTS

Danny Kaye has raised what is said to be in excess of $5,000,000 for symphony orchestra pension funds during the last 20 years as unpaid guest conductor.

Tyson Cast

Cicely Tyson, Oscar nominee and Emmy winner, will play the lead in NBC-TV's four hour dramatization, "A Woman Called Moses," the true story of Harriet Tubman, a former slave who masterminded and operated the underground railroad through which many slaves escaped to freedom in the 19th century.

Tyson was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "Sounder," the story of a family of Southern sharecroppers.

Very Carefully, That's The Way

How does a 170-pound actor play basketball against an opponent who is a 290-pound, 6'7" professional football player? Answer: very carefully.

Larry Wilcox and Erik Estrada, stars of NBC-TV's new fall series, "CHiPs" (Thursdays at 8 p.m.), found out when one script called for the California Highway Patrolmen's basketball team to play a team of Los Angeles Rams football players.

"At lunch before we played the game," Wilcox explained, "I figured the only way to live through the afternoon would be if the Rams over ate."

"My hopes were really high," Estrada said. "In my entire life, I've never seen guys eat so much. But I've never seen so many big guys in one place, either."

The Rams team was Defensive Tackle Larry Brooks, Wide Receiver Ron Jessie, Quarterback Monty Jackson, Running Back Jim Jodat, Tackle Doug France, Linebacker Rick Kay and Quarterback Vince Feragamo.

Wilcox and Estrada's "CHiPs" teammates included series technical adviser and associate producer Bob Hayden (as CHP officer on leave of absence), actor Lew Saunders (who once played football for the Atlanta Falcons) and several bit players and stand-ins with high school and college basketball experience.

The "CHiPs" team had never played together before and when they saw 6'7", 290-pound Doug France they began having second thoughts about the whole thing.

The script called for the Rams to trounce the "CHiPs" team. But the actors didn't follow the script. They scored the first 10 points.

The lead was short-lived. When the Rams' big lunch settled, so did their basketball play. And soon everyone was following the script.

"When big Doug France came in from lay-ups," Wilcox said, "I just stepped back and let him have them."

For the finale, director Chris Nybe said, "In the next shot I want Doug France to come barreling down the court and I want the 'CHiPs' team to get in his way. I figure you'll look like tens."

And he was right. They did.

DO-GOODERS — Officers Poncherello (Erik Estrada, l) and Baker (Larry Wilcox) break the rules and take an injured dog (Muffin) to a veterinarian in "Dog Gone," an episode of "CHiPs," Thursday, Oct. 20 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

NBC Plans Special

Barbara Harris, Jack Gilford, Will Jordan and the Rev. William Sloane Coffin (Senior Minister of The Riverside Church in New York City) are among those speaking for the characters in "A Doonesbury Special," to be colorcast on NBC-TV later this season.

This is the first animated special based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning comic strip, "Doonesbury," and Garry Trudeau, creator of "Doonesbury," also created the special and wrote the script.

Two original songs, "Stop in the Middle," and "I Do Believe," were composed by Jimmy Thudpucker (music and lyrics). Harmonica solos are by John Sebastian (whose credits include the theme song for the series, "Welcome Back, Kotter").

All principal characters of the "Doonesbury" strip are part of the special. Harris will be heard as Joanie Caucus; Gilford as the referee; Jordan as the sportscaster. Other professional performers include Richard Cox, speaking for Zonker Harris; and Charles Levin, for Mark Slackmeyer and Ralphie.

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Isn't it true that Cheryl Ladd of "Charlie's Angels" and hubby David will sue a major weekly newspaper for some $20 million as a result of the tabloid's banner headline that the couple was heading for the divorce courts? Needless to say, their marriage is very much in tact.

The future of "The Fitzpatricks" is undecided at this time, but there are thirteen segments, or half a season, "in the can" as they put it in TV jargon, so there's little doubt that CBS will try to salvage the show in some manner.

There's growing speculation that the controversial "Soap" will leave ABC's schedule by mid-season regardless of its ratings, since the network is being overwhelmed with negative mail. The network, of course, can live with such objections, but sponsors can't.

It's not surprising that NBC axed "Sanford Arms" and Richard Pryor's show. The network had censorship problems with the latter series, and "Arms" simply didn't catch on with the absence of Redd Foxx. Besides, the network was obligated to find some place on its schedule for Don Rickles' "CPO Sharkey," which returns Oct. 21.

David Lander, "Laverne and Shirley's" odd-ball neighbor, Squiggy, is a avid fan of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team. During this baseball season, David traveled to several cities with the team and attended a total of 33 games. "I guess you could call me their unofficial mascot," said Lander.

And isn't it true that Henry Winkler and girlfriend Stacey Weitman are planning a very special day come November? Henry vowed to marry once the Fonz craze dissipated somewhat so he could live a more normal life.

It looks like Toni Tennille will make her movie acting debut (without the Captain) opposite Elliott Gould in "Matilda," a picture about a boxing kangaroo.

Jack Lord Stars In Durable Movie

Jack Lord stars in the most durable TV drama running, "Hawaii Five-0," but it's a short-term when it comes to one of his movies which is now playing for the 25th year.

"Hawaii Five-0" (seen Thursdays at 9 p.m. on CBS-TV) is now in its 10th year, and "The Story of a Patriot," in which he starred, will probably surpass "The Birth of a Nation" and "Gone With the Wind" as far as longevity is concerned.

"The Story of a Patriot" plays every day over and over again in side-by-side theaters in Williamsburg, Va., as part of the well-known tourist attraction.

Lord hasn't seen the film since it was completed, but it continues to play an important part in his life.

"I was a young actor when I did the picture, and I was paid minimum scale. We shot it in Williamsburg, and I had no idea that it would run so long."

Lord says that he receives stacks of letters from fans who've seen the film, and he's been told that children seeing the film shout "There's Steve Garrett."

Lord was equally unprepared for the longevity of "Five-0," and says, "I can't believe we've done 250 episodes. Among dramatic shows only 'Gunsmoke' and 'Bonanza' have had longer runs. "Over the years we've knocked down nine shows up against us, and we've been consistently in the top 15 in the ratings."

'Rockford Files' Was Honored

NBC, recent Emmy Award winner James Garner, "Rockford Files" executive producer Meta Rosenberg and writer Jaunita Bartlett have been honored by the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers for an episode dealing with "shocking abuses of the grand jury system."

The honor, only the fourth such award presented in the association's 19-year history, cited the episode, "So Help Me God," which was telecast on NBC-TV's "The Rockford Files" in November, 1976.

In the segment, Rockford, as portrayed by series star Garner, is thrown in Federal prison after being cited for contempt during a grand jury hearing. The storyline showed how the grand jury system can be used more for harassment than for investigation.

The citation reads, "The National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers Special Award presented to:

— The National Broadcasting Company for its production, "The Rockford Files," for the episode entitled "So Help Me God," which accurately and dramatically portrayed the shocking abuses of the grand jury system in America today.

— "And to James Garner for his superb performance as Jim Rockford.

— "Jaunita Bartlett for the script.

— "Meta Rosenberg, the executive producer, responsible for this timely and important service."

Robert C. Heeney, of Washington, D.C., and Rockville, Md., president of the NACDL, and John Ackerman, of Houston, Texas, member of the board of directors, made the presentation to Garner, Rosenberg and Bartlett during a break in production for the series' fourth season.

A second plaque was presented to John H. McMahon, Vice President, Programs, West Coast, NBC-TV, in his offices at the network's Burbank facilities.

Previous NACDL special award winners were Raymond Burr, for the "Perry Mason" series; Henry Fonda for his portrayal of the famed attorney Clarence Darrow; and Arthur Hill for a segment of the "Owen Marshall" series.

Robert Wagner (l), as Pete Ryan, talks with Wayne Newton, as himself, in Las Vegas in an episode of "Switch" to be broadcast Friday, Oct. 21 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Sharkey' Finally Gets In

The execs at NBC-TV liked Don Rickles' "CPO Sharkey," which premiered last season. They really did. But when it came time to schedule shows for this fall, there was no room for "Sharkey." They hung on to it, however, and now it's replacing "Sanford Arms" on Friday, at 8 p.m.

Veteran character actor Richard X. Slattery, once a New York City Police officer, will co-star as the commanding officer of Rickles in "CPO Sharkey."

Said Slattery: "This is the highest TV rank I've ever had. In 'Mr. Roberts' I was the ship's captain and in 'The Gallant Men' I was a sergeant. I enjoy the military characters. There's more opportunity for give-and-take... more things happen."

In the fanciful kingdom of comedy, Don Rickles is generally considered a rare avis — a brash and tart-tongued wag whose humor is wholly spontaneous and who is beholden to no battery of gag writers for his material. Although his trademark is the abrasive comment, the acidulous ad lib, the barbed retort, Rickles maintains that he really doesn't insult his audience subjects. "I put people on, rib them as you'd rib a friend at a party," he explains.

Don Rickles burst into national prominence in 1957 — after several years of playing small clubs around the country — during an engagement in Los Angeles. Spotting Frank Sinatra in the audience opening night, Rickles called out: "Remember the good old days, Frank, when you had a voice?"

It's...Buck Rogers

Buck Rogers, the 25th century comic strip hero whose daring exploits in outer space precede the success of "Star Wars" by almost 50 years, will come to life in a new-updated, one-hour weekly series to be presented this season on NBC-TV.

The television series will include all of the characters familiar to those who have read the comic strip and seen the movie serial: Wilma Deering, 25th century scientist and space pilot; Dr. Huer, doctor, historian and philosopher; and Barney, ace pilot and wing-man for Buck Rogers.

The updated version will find Buck Rogers, an astronaut from the 20th century, surviving an Earth holocaust in the late 1970s and entering a state of suspended animation. When he awakens, he is in 25th century America, in a time when conflicts threaten the solar system and neighboring star systems.

Buck Rogers was born Jan. 7, 1929, when the comic strip made its first appearance in American newspapers. The author was Philip Nowlan, who based the story on two articles he had written for Amazing Stories in Aug., 1928, and March, 1929. The idea to adapt the articles into comic strip form came from John Flint Dille, President of the National Newspaper Syndicate of America.

The legendary fighter for freedom and justice ran in comic strip form until 1967, appearing in 450 newspapers. Buster Crabbe starred in a motion picture serial version from Universal, released in 12 chapters in 1939.

The television series will be "high-energy adventure, science fiction and romantic fantasy," according to Executive Producer Andrew J. Fenady, and special effects will be an integral part of the series.

You Don't See It Very Often

Charles White (5-11, 187) sophomore is the newest in a long line of outstanding USC tailbacks. White is expected to carry the ball 35 to 40 times when the two NCAA powerhouses Notre Dame and Southern California square off in South Bend, Indiana for what is sure to be an explosive contest on ABC-TV's "NCAA Football," Saturday, Oct. 22 (1:30-5 p.m.)

Few are the times that a college freshman enters a varsity sport, excels, and remains consistently good. Charles White has done just that for the University of Southern California.

White began last season as Rickey Bell's backup at the tailback position. On his third USC carry in the season-opener against Missouri, he broke two tackles and ran 6 yards for a touchdown. On his sixth carry he ran 79 yards for another touchdown.

Through the course of the season, numerous injuries gave White the opportunity to see more and more action. Before the season was over, Charles White racked up 858 yards in 156 carries, scored 10 touchdowns and rushed for four 100-yard-plus games. These games included Iowa (120 yards), Oregon State (107 yards), Stanford (136 yards), and Michigan (114 yards) in the Rose Bowl.

"White's performance in the Rose Bowl under all the pressure of that game was one of the finest individual efforts I've ever seen," said Coach John Robinson.

He went into the Rose Bowl against second ranked Michigan (the nation's fifth-leading defensive team against rushing) when the game was just five minutes old, because Bell had been knocked cold. He stayed on to hammer out his 114 yards on 32 carries including a 7-yard touchdown shot through right tackle that virtually clinched the game with 3:03 left.

When the football season finally came to an end, the San Fernando High School star had stepped into the college ranks and wound up second team UPI All-Coast and was named first team Freshman All-American by The Football News.

"Charles is USC's best breakaway threat at tailback since O.J. Simpson," says Robinson. "It was hard to believe a freshman could be that good that fast."

Now in his sophomore season, Charles White is giving USC the ground attack it needs to open up the passing offense of Rob Hertel. With White running and Hertel passing, the Trojans can explode for a score from anywhere on the field.

PATIENT MAN

Harold Gould, who starred as Carl Tessler, head of the National Security Council in "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," plays a completely different kind of role when he guests in an upcoming episode of the "Soap" series. Gould will appear as a hospital patient with a wry sense of humor in the continuing adult character comedy.

TO B. BAGGETT, WILMINGTON, N.C.: "The Untouchables" ran on ABC-TV from 1959 to '63, then went into syndication. Robert Stack starred in the crime drama as Eliot Ness, who headed a Federal Special Squad.

TO MRS. D.R., DARLINGTON, S.C.: Sonny and Cher aren't scheduled for any appearances on TV at this time. They're not exactly video-land's hottest property nowadays.

TO C. MOSTELLER, MADISON HEIGHTS, VA.: "Alice" is still around — but she, Mel and Flow have been moved to Sunday evening, 9:30 on CBS-TV.

TO B. BATCHELOR, WILLARD, N.C.: Barbra Streisand's son, Jason Emmanuel Gould, is now 9-year-old and apparently the only lasting love in his mother's life. The 'Emmanuel' is for Barbra's father, who died when she was just 15 months old.

TO J. MARTIN, FLORENCE, S.C.: Write to that slim, trim Kay Heberle (JoAnn Curtzynski on "The Young and the Restless") c-o CBS-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 91505. Kay's part has been cut down, but she will continue to make staggered appearances on the show.

TO T. HANKS, LYNCHBURG, VA: No network has announced plans for a special featuring the rock group Kiss this season.

TO J. PARKER, BOLIVIA, N.C.: David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser ("Starsky and Hutch") are as opposite in real-life as they are in the series. Paul's bombastic about everything he does, and David's the strong-silent type. Incidentally, David, who's had records in the top-ten, was a musician before he ever thought about an acting career.

Special Features Heroes

Two of the most famous tall story characters in American folklore, Davy Crockett and Mike Fink, are featured in an animated special, "Davy Crockett on the Mississippi," to be rebroadcast on "Famous Classic Tales," Saturday, Oct. 22, 1 to 2 p.m., on CBS-TV.

The frontier tall story was among America's earliest contributions to literature. They began as oral histories, told by backwoods storytellers, about real people and real events.

Super Bowl Is His Goal

"What I want is a trip to the Super Bowl, so that we can stop being number two," says Ken Anderson, quarterback of the Cincinnati Bengals. "That's my goal."

Yet, thus far in 1977 the Bengals are still coughing and sputtering. They appear to be having problems getting their offense in gear. Even their 42-20 rout of Seattle in their second game of the season showed the Bengals in a sluggish light.

The Bengals must 'snap to' for their Monday night game against the Pittsburgh Steelers on ABC-TV at 9 p.m. on Oct. 17.

Trojans And Irish Meet In 49th Encounter Saturday On ABC-TV

The forty-ninth meeting between the Trojans of Southern California and the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame will be televised on "NCAA College Football" Saturday, Oct. 22, at 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Although the Irish have dominated this great intersectional rivalry with 26 wins, 18 losses, and 4 ties, Southern Cal has won seven of the last ten confrontations. USC improved its record to 7-1-2 after being clobbered 51-0 in 1966.

Last year's 17-13 win was less than artistic, but USC used two big pass plays to squeak past Notre Dame. Probably suffering somewhat of a letdown from the emotion-packed UCLA game the week before, the Trojans nonetheless ended the 1976 season by winning their 10th straight game after an opening loss to Missouri.

Once again it was the Trojan defense making the big plays when USC needed it most that made the difference in the game.

The Irish were in scoring position six times — reaching the USC 32 in the first quarter, the USC 14, 23, and 32 in the second, the USC 10 in the third, and the USC 32 in the fourth — but were stopped, in order, by a Ron Bush interception, a Bush fumble recovery, a Clay Matthews fumble recovery, a hit by Mike Burns of Al Hunter for a yard loss on the fourth down, a missed field goal, and a Clint Storzler interception.

After extending their winning streak to 15 games with a 41-7 defeat of Washington State, USC moved into the number one spot in the AP's weekly poll. In assessing his team and their national championship aspirations, Coach John Robinson acknowledged his formidable schedule with Alabama, Notre Dame, UCLA and California as major obstacles.

"We do have confidence," said Robinson. "That's one thing we always have here at Southern Cal, and it doesn't matter what position we are in with the polls.

"Actually, I don't think poll position means that much to us at this time of the season. We don't get motivated by ranking — we're able to motivate ourselves."

The drive to come out on top is based in Trojan tradition, not a name in the weekly polls. This desire is quenched with the guidance of one of the best passers, Rob Hertel, and he has enabled Southern Cal to travel by air.

Southern Cal will be looking to make it four in a row over the Irish but, more important, it would be another hurdle successfully overcome. As for the Irish, an improved national ranking and an improved bowl potential are at stake.

Charley Taylor Is Top Receiver

At 35, with 13 years of pro football and 625 catches tucked in his arms, Charley Taylor is the chairman of the board of National Football League pass receivers. He became football's leading pass-receiver by catching number 634 in the 4th quarter against the Philadelphia Eagles on Dec. 21, 1975. That 11-yard pass from Joe Theismann enabled Taylor to eclipse Don Maynard of the New York Jets.

Although Taylor missed all of last season with a shoulder injury, he is at full speed now and will be in action when the Washington Redskins meet the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday, Oct. 16, at 4 p.m. on CBS-TV.

"It's not hard to catch footballs," says Taylor. "Anybody can be a receiver. To be a complete receiver takes more than that, though. It's the ability to run patterns, honest-to-goodness, decent patterns. It's blocking. Homer Jones was a helluva receiver, but he couldn't run patterns. I'm not putting Homer down, because Homer's my cousin. Take Oakland's Biletnikoff; he can catch the ball.

Exciting, hard-hitting action such as this is characteristic of one of the nation's great collegiate rivalries — Notre Dame vs USC. The Fighting Irish host USC for this year's clash, which will be televised by ABC Sports on "NCAA Football," Saturday, Oct. 22 at 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Fran Discusses QB Conferences

As the most senior member of the NFL's fraternity of quarterbacks, no one is more qualified to describe just what goes on when the quarterback goes to the sidelines to confer with his coach before a crucial play than Fran Tarkenton.

Tarkenton, now in his 17th NFL season, talked about those high-level meetings that often have direct bearing on the game's outcome during a recent segment of his on NBC Sports' "NFL '77" program.

"There's a lot of ego over there on the sidelines between the coach and the quarterback and it's not always hearts and flowers," said the diminutive signal-caller who holds all major NFL lifetime passing records.

"The conversation gets very stern at times. Like back when I played for Norm Van Brocklin, we had absolute wars on the sidelines, yelling and screaming, trying to come up with the play. With Bud Grant, many times I come to the sidelines. I look at him. I talk. And, all I get is a stare. And when you see both of us staring that means we're really in trouble.

The next play is not always firmly planted in the quarterback's mind when he leaves the sideline according to Tarkenton. "You might talk about seven or eight different plays," he said.

"Many times I've talked about all those plays and said, 'Well, I still don't know what I'm going to call. I'll think of something on my way back to the huddle.'"

When it comes to the success of the play, Tarkenton stresses one bit of quarterback's philosophy: "Always remember, if the play bombs out and goes up in smoke, it was the coach's call. If it goes for a touchdown, it's always the quarterback's call."

Hosts Comedy Special

San Francisco superstar Nancy Bleiweiss heads a cast of mad-cap performers, many of them her castmates from "Laugh-In," when she hosts "The Great American Laugh-Off," a parade of comedy acts never previously seen on network television, Saturday, Oct. 22, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on NBC-TV.

The special, originating from Bay City's Great American Music Hall, Preempts "NBC's Saturday Night Live" on this date only.

From "Laugh-In": "Go-Crazy" Lenny Schultz relates the history of the world in four minutes; Ben Powers impersonates famous singers and Jim Giovanni impersonates famous non-singers; Robin Williams does a takeoff on a Russian tourist; Toad the Mime turns up as a stewardess of the future; Ed Bluestone and Bill Rafferty take monologists' looks at our life and times.

Nancy, garbed in skin-tight gown, Floradora hat and boa, makes her entrance through the audience singing "San Francisco," her theme song since she opened two years ago as star of the San Francisco revue, "Beach Blanket Babylon Goes Bananas," which is still running.

Later, Nancy sings "Bosom Buddies" (special material by Digby Wolfe) in a duet with Madame, Wayland Flowers's gabby puppet. Nancy, with accordion, returns as Carmen Miranda in a wacky song-and-dance version of "Lady in Spain," with "Laugh-In's" Michael Sklar as Valentino. With Toad, Nancy does a reverse strip tease. Sklar returns as film critic Milton Devine.

Duck's Breath, a group of comics from the University of Iowa, is spotlighted in "Conception," their version of a sex-education playlet for second-grade schoolgirls. The Graduates, three alumni from "Second City," the famed Chicago improvisational company, conduct a different type of driver-training school.

Portions of the show originate from the San Francisco tourist attraction, The Cannery.

Dustin Hoffman Plays Old Man

Dustin Hoffman stars as an incredible man whose life has spanned 121 years and in many ways reflects the exciting and tumultuous history of the Old West in "Little Big Man," an adventure drama on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Oct. 22, 8 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV. Martin Balsam, Jeff Corey, Chief Dan George (who was nominated for an Oscar for his performance) and Faye Dunaway co-star.

'79 Park Avenue' Airs

"79 Park Avenue," an NBC Novel for Television, will air on three consecutive nights, Sunday through Tuesday, Oct. 16-18 (9 to 11 p.m. each night), on NBC-TV. Lesley Ann Warren stars.

Sunday, the drama opens at the wedding reception of Marja Fludjicki's (Warren) mother, Kaati (Barbara Barrie), and Peter Markevich (Albert Salmi).

Marja dates both Ross Savitch (Marc Singer), to whom she is attracted, and Mike Koshko (David Dukes), a true friend.

Ross is the son of a gambling magnate Ben Savitch (Michael Constantine) and his wife, Myrna (Margaret Fairchild), who strongly disapprove of Ross's relationship with Marja, especially when they find her in their home in a state of undress wearing Myrna's jewels.

When Kaati develops tuberculosis, Ross gets Marja a job as a taxi dancer in Joker Martin's (Jack Weston) dance hall. Marja's stepfather makes improper advances toward her and she retaliates with a knife. Despite lawyer Harry Vito's (John Saxon) pleas, Marja winds up in a reform school where she learns the art of stripping.

Following her release, she finds that strippers don't earn enough money to pay hospital bills so she seeks employment at 79 Park Avenue, a brothel run by a madam named Vera (Polly Bergen).

Monday's segments depicts Marja as a hooker who's changed her name to Marianne Morgan. She is reunited with Mike and decides to marry him. But after a brief courtship, Mike discovers her "profession" and departs from her life. To keep her kid brother, Paulie (Matthaw Labordeaux), from discovering what she does for a living, Marianne enlists the aid of client Brian Whitfield (Peter Marshall).

Underworld circumstances force her to marry Ross, who is now in the rackets, a syndicate boss Armand Perfido (Raymond Burr) suspects Ross is not to be trusted.

In Tuesday's concluding episode, Ben Savitch is suspicious that Marianne betrayed Ross and orders her back to 79 Park Avenue as a madam, to show her good faith. Mike has become a lawyer and has married the district attorney's daughter. The DA, who has political aspirations, wants to break up the syndicate and Mike finds himself prosecuting Marianne — for murder. Marianne is defended by Attorney Martin Stevens (Lloyd Haynes).

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR TOM LANDRY, head coach, Dallas Cowboys
Why do you wear a suit and tie during games?
— Michelle Pappe, Sparta, N.J.

● I've always felt the way you look is a perfect indication of what you represent. I believe professional football is an excellent vocation and that the athletes who participate are top-notch people. If my players conduct themselves in a proper manner, the people who observe them will be impressed by their character and class. Since we don't have the chance to meet our fans, they'll know what we are by the way we look.

FOR ANN-MARGRET, star of The Last Remake of Beau Geste

Did you ever meet a VIP who seemed in awe of you?
— D.M., Joliet, Ill.

● No one has ever been in awe of me, but how about scared stiff? Prince Philip was. I was in London for a film premiere, and there'd been newspaper pictures of me in bikinis splashed on the front pages. Although the Prince didn't mention it when we were introduced, I knew he had seen those photos. He was very cordial but also cautious and remote.

FOR MARGAUX HEMINGWAY, model and granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway
What do you remember most about your grandfather?
— H.J., Spartanburg, S.C.

● Since I was young when he died in 1964, I hardly knew him. The only memories I have are of sitting on his knee at 3 when our family lived with him in Cuba for a couple of years. I was fascinated by his beard (if ever anyone had the right to wear one, it was Grandpa) and liked to pull it. I also remember his cats — I think he had 37. But I know him best from the stories my family tell me about him.

FOR DIRK BOGARDE, star of A Bridge Too Far
You don't seem to have aged or gotten heavier. What's the secret? — H.M., Torrance, Calif.

● When I'm not working, I live in a 17th-century farmhouse on the Riviera. It's a 12-acre estate, complete with sheep and an olive grove. My days there always start at 6:00. There's so much to be done, the least of which is picking olives and filling in potholes. It's hard work, fun and slimming.

FOR FRANK ZAPPA, rock star
Do you keep track of your rehearsal time before a concert? — D.S., Casper, Wyo.

● Definitely. I want to make sure everything is perfect before I go on stage. Before my last New York concert, I put in well over 100 hours. For my most recent LP (Zappa Live), I rehearsed my band six to eight hours a day for two weeks.

FOR JACQUELINE BISSET, star of The Deep
How do your family and friends react to your stardom? Do they treat you any differently? — L.M., Vancouver, Wash.

● Other than being proud of me — behind my back, not to my face — they treat me the same as they always did. I do have four cousins who always want me to get them autographs (Charles Bronson is high on the list), but no one really takes advantage of me in terms of getting or doing things for them. Everyone showers me with questions about the stars, such as "What's Elizabeth Taylor really like?"

FOR JULIE BUDD, singer
I saw you on TV and got the impression you're very domesticated. Am I right? — Mary Lanning, Corpus Christi, Texas ● Wrong. I've detested housework for as long as I can remember and don't think I'll ever enjoy it. I'm ashamed to say that when I lived at home, I never helped with the chores. Mom always complained: "Julie's a star — a star slob. She can handle an audience, but not a vacuum cleaner." When she said that, my grandmother took my side. "Better the dust stay on the carpet than in her lungs," she'd shout at my mother.

FOR MORTON DEAN, CBS news commentator
You have such a soothing personality. How do you manage it? — Mary Jane Netherton, Anchorage, Alaska

● By the time the news broadcast is on the air, most of the hard work is done. We have written it, edited it and timed it. I read the copy several times to be certain that I'm completely familiar with it (not always possible with late-breaking stories). When the broadcast schedule or lineup falters, I have to work hard at achieving that relaxed manner because it would be wrong and perhaps misleading to suggest to the audience that something is amiss.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR
Can you tell me something about Elvis Presley that hasn't been in all the papers? — C.D., Miami, Fla.

● Shortly before he died, his 1954 record, "I Love You Because," was played on a New York radio station with a glowing introduction by disc jockey Stan Martin. Afterwards, Martin had a long-distance call. "I just want to thank you for those wonderful things you said," the caller said. "Who is this?" asked Stan. "It's Elvis, in Texas." "I can't believe you're calling direct," added Martin. Presley then told him that thanks were meaningless if conveyed by a go-between.

FOR JOHN L. FERGUSON, State Historian, Arkansas
Any reason why so many Arkansas towns have biblical names like Palestine, Jerusalem, Mount Olive, Jericho? — Bill Hill, Langdon, N.D.

● Because the Bible is an important part of our heritage. Arkansas is not unique in this respect. Of the places you mentioned, you also will find Palestine in Illinois, Ohio, Texas and West Virginia; Jerusalem in Ohio; Mount Olive in Alabama, Illinois, Mississippi and North Carolina; and Jericho in New York, South Carolina and Vermont.

PRO AND CON

Should A Representative's Term Be Extended From Two To Four Years?

PRO Rep. Morris K. Udall (D.-Ariz.)

The House of Representatives is truly the "People's House," and this is as the Founding Fathers intended. But Congress has become a full-time job, something the Fathers never anticipated. Congressmen no sooner finish one election campaign than they have to begin to worry about the next primary. I believe the Founding Fathers, if brought back today, would agree that a four-year term (half up for election every two years) would still give voters a chance to make some changes every two years while giving members at least three years to concentrate on legislation.

CON Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr. (R.-Calif.)

In contrast to the deliberately slower-paced Senate, the "People's House" often makes dozens of daily decisions that affect the lives of all Americans. The House also controls the nation's purse, since it decides where taxes will be collected and spent. Such enormous power must not be allowed to go unchecked for more than two years at a time. The voters must be given the opportunity to give approval, or to "throw the bums out" in regular, closely spaced intervals. Think about it: Would you want your Representative loose for four years at a time?

Wild Stallions

by Don Polland

A limited edition sculpture in fine pewter

Ordering deadline: October 31, 1977.

For Don Polland, mustangs are the embodiment of all that is spirited and free. As a boy, growing up in the West, the sight of them fired his imagination. And now, as a sculptor of surpassing skill, he has found these beautiful creatures to be a most natural and rewarding subject for his art.

Polland is one of today's leading Western artists. His works are in the permanent collections of the Whitney Gallery of Western Art, the C.M. Russell Gallery and Museum, and other major collections here and abroad.

In this extraordinary new sculpture, Don Polland has portrayed the classic confrontation of rival stallions, vying for dominance. With a sure hand, he has perfectly captured the taut muscles, the flaring nostrils, the flying manes and tails of these Wild Stallions in combat.

This important new work of art has been privately commissioned by The Franklin Mint and is available exclusively from the mint, by direct order. It will not be sold through art dealers or those galleries which generally handle Mr. Polland's works. There is a firm limit of one sculpture per person, and the issue price is $150, payable in convenient monthly installments.

Wild Stallions is one of four new sculptures, portraying mustangs of the American West, being created by Don Polland for issue by The Franklin Mint. Owners of this first work will have the guaranteed option to acquire any of the three remaining sculptures—Foaling, Survival, Running Free—at the same issue price. But there will be no obligation to purchase these later works.

The absolute ordering deadline for Wild Stallions is October 31, 1977. All orders must be postmarked by that date to be eligible for acceptance. The edition will then be permanently closed.

KITTY O'NEILL: MOTHER, HOUSEWIFE, DAREDEVIL...

...Oh, yes, and two other things: she holds 22 land and water speed records and has been deaf since infancy.

By Joseph N. Bell

Six years ago, a contestant in a California motorcycle race hit a curve too fast, lost control and tumbled end-over-end on the bike. A Hollywood stunt man named Duffy Hambleton saw the accident and pulled out of the race to give first aid. Duffy saw blood pouring from the victim's left glove. When he removed the glove, two fingers, severed at the first joint, fell out. The injured racer clutched the fingers and tried to remount to finish the race. Only Duffy's greater strength forced the victim into an ambulance.

What kind of macho character would try to resume a race with two severed fingers?

This one had long, raven-black hair, a figure out of Vogue, weighed 95 pounds wringing wet — and was stone deaf. Her name: Kitty O'Neill.

Duffy Hambleton didn't know Kitty very well, but some quick decisions had to be made at the hospital, and only Duffy was around to make them. The surgeon said the fingers could be sewed back on but would always be stiff. What position would the young lady prefer? Since Kitty was in shock and not reading lips very well, Duffy decided to have the fingers attached in a slightly curved position. It was a good decision. Kitty's hand doesn't look disfigured today, and she is still able to play the piano proficiently.

Kitty was in surgery for four hours, while Duffy paced the hospital waiting room. "I realized then that this wasn't just a woman in a man's sport but an incredibly determined human being who was saying: 'You tell me I'm handicapped, and I tell you I can do anything you can do — and maybe do it better.' I was intrigued."

Six months later they were married. And Duffy's been helping Kitty make career decisions ever since.

It says something for those decisions that Kitty — up to her pretty neck in danger almost daily — hasn't been hurt since that motorcycle accident. Yet, she's undertaking ever more hazardous feats — with the approval and assistance of her husband.

She has the tools — the skill, the nerve, the timing, the reflexes. And she has something very special going for her, too. Kitty, who has learned to speak without ever hearing her own voice, told me firmly: "Being deaf gives me one big advantage: I have total concentration." Duffy puts it this way: "Kitty is really good at what she does, so I'm not afraid for her. If I were, we'd be in some other line of work. My job is to make sure every safety base has been touched ahead of time."

In Los Angeles recently Kitty was doing a number for NBC-TV as part of an upcoming special on the world's outstanding stunt men and women. All she had to do was tip over a burning van, emerge with her clothing afire, and fall seven stories over the parapet of a parking garage. A routine day in the life of a stunt person.

The preparations were meticulous. The van was carefully weighted to give it the proper balance, and a powerful roll bar was welded into the floor. Kitty — encased in shin, knee, and elbow guards and a helmet — looked rather like a diminutive lacrosse player. Duffy checked her strapings several times, then talked with her earnestly. She watched his lips and kept nodding and saying, "O.K., O.K." impatiently.

When the director dropped his arm, Kitty roared across the garage deck and ran her left wheels up a steep ramp until the van flipped. At that moment, two gasoline-soaked charges were set off under the van and it burst into sheets of fire as it went over. Firemen doused the flames; then the stunt crew pulled off the windshield and removed Kitty, who was still strapped in the seat of the overturned van. She emerged laughing, making her professionally executed piece of work look all too easy.

How did Kitty O'Neill — a tiny, deaf part-Indian girl — get to where she is today?

Kitty's mother was a full-blooded Cherokee who married an Irish oil wildcatter in Oklahoma. Kitty, their firstborn, contracted mumps, measles and chicken pox simultaneously when she was four months old, and doctors had to pack her in ice to keep her alive. When the fever subsided, Kitty had lost her hearing forever. So Kitty's mother dedicated her life to preparing her daughter to compete in a hearing world. She taught Kitty to read lips proficiently as a small child, then opened a school to help other deaf students master this difficult technique of lip reading.

She hopes to become the first to break the speed of sound on the ground.

Kitty entered public school in the third grade ("the first time," she says, "I really understood I was different from other people") and finally completed junior college, more than holding her own without seeking any special advantages. She was an outstanding amateur high diver (her coach had to fire a gun to tell her when to break her dive: she was able to feel the percussion) and was competing in the Olympic trials at age 16 when she broke her wrist.

She gave up diving and turned to high-speed water-skiing and other motor sports. That's how she happened to be racing motorcycles when she met Duffy Hambleton. Duffy — an aspiring linebacker who didn't quite make it with the pros — has been a Hollywood stunt man for almost two decades. After he and Kitty were married, he coached her in the skills that earned him more than $100,000 a year.

After her NBC stunt, Duffy remarked: "I can give her the basics — ways that I know from experience work — but beyond that, she's always trying to be innovative. When she wants to experiment, and I say, 'No,' there's a confrontation. We usually end up doing it my way, but she manages to throw in a little of her own."

Actually, the stunt work is almost a sideline to earn money while Kitty and Duffy take aim on a passel of speed records. Kitty already holds 22 land and water speed records, but the big ones have eluded her — mainly because she has been denied the equipment required to set them. Last year, for example, Duffy put up $20,000 to buy Kitty a ride in a one-of-a-kind rocket car powered by hydrogen peroxide. Kitty shocked everyone but Duffy by reaching 618 mph, only four mph under the world speed record and the fastest speed ever recorded by a woman. After that near miss, the car was withdrawn from her, and Kitty hasn't been permitted another shot. Since then, Duffy has used most of the family savings to build his own vehicle, but he still needs commercial sponsorship.

Duffy says that if Kitty is to set the record, it will probably have to be in her own vehicle. "A lot of people have reservations about underwriting a woman. What they don't understand is that the public is in love with Kitty. When she drove the rocket car, hundreds of deaf people showed up to see her and blind people came just to hear the car."

Kitty and Duffy live on a 10-acre citrus ranch north of Los Angeles with Duffy's two children — a boy, 15, and a girl, 14 — by a previous marriage. Kitty runs the household and helps with farming chores. She communicates easily with the children and works with them on the physical activities she does so well. She reads a good deal and even plays several musical instruments by feeling the vibrations. That's also the way she learned to talk. Her voice, as with most deaf people, is high-pitched. But, says Duffy, it is coming down year-by-year and sometimes slips into a normal pitch. Once she and a listener get accustomed to each other, the conversation flows.

Kitty thinks she's lucky to be able to cut out of dull company, "leaving me," says Duffy, "holding the bag." Kitty admits, with a benign smile, that there are other advantages to being deaf. "I get to sleep late," she says, "and have total concentration when I want to read or think, and I don't have to listen to bad sounds like tires screeching or loud rock music. And I don't have to talk on the telephone."

Kitty's biggest handicap, says Duffy, is that she tends to trust everyone. "If you're concentrating on just communicating with people," he says, "you haven't got time to figure out whether they're telling you a lie. Kitty has this naive conviction that everybody out there is true blue and honest and straight arrow, and she'd have been eaten alive in this business if I hadn't stepped in. She's taught me a lot of things about courage and determination, but mostly she's taught me patience and tolerance and understanding. I was a pretty aggressive, impulsive guy before we got together. I often have to repeat and put things in a form she'll understand, and that didn't come easy for me. But beyond that, we live a pretty normal family life."

Over the next few years, they will go all out to establish Kitty as the fastest human in the world. "We're going after the land, water and low-altitude speed records for Kitty," says Duffy. "She's only four miles per hour under the land record and 10 under the water record, and we're making plans now. That would be quite an accomplishment for any human being. And if that's what she wants, I want it, too."

Kitty had scraped her instep when she overturned the van for the TV stunt, and it was bleeding a little. She showed the injury to Duffy, and he examined her foot gravely, then brushed it aside, saying, "That's a long way from your heart." He grinned when he said it, and Kitty grinned back. They both know where her heart is — and if they have their way, a good many million other Americans are going to know, too, in the immediate years ahead.

Observations

Loud and clear. The facts of life on energy are beginning to get through to the American people, according to a recent poll by the Roper Organization. A full 87 percent (up 10 points in a year) now want a major government effort geared not only to energy conservation, but to encouraging development of U.S. energy supplies.

Still a job to do. Support for finding and producing more U.S. oil, gas, and coal would be even greater if more people understood America's growing dependence on foreign crude oil—now close to 50 percent of the oil our country uses. Yet, according to the Roper poll, 37 percent of the people still believe we can get by without using imported petroleum. The fact is, even a sharp reduction in foreign imports would cut into America's economic muscle, causing hard times, unless steps are taken to substantially increase domestic energy supplies.

"Good evening, sir. Would you like to do your part in conserving energy?"

Farewell, zero growth. The Roper poll also found that 58 percent of Americans favor "moderate" economic growth, thereby rejecting the extremes of boom times and no growth at all. We're buoyed by the majority view because we've been saying for some time now that only a bigger economic pie can provide enough slices for everybody.

For whom the bridge tolls. During the morning rush hour, 21,000 cars cross San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge carrying an average of only 1.3 persons per car. To promote better vehicle use, no tolls are charged to cars with three or more passengers. Some 5,000 commuters carpool that way daily. It's one way drivers can cut down on energy waste.

A quote we like. "America has had less than a dozen years' supply of oil left for a hundred years." Professor Edward J. Mitchell of the University of Michigan

S-T-R-E-T-C-H SPACE THROUGHOUT YOUR HOUSE

Want to overcome the "shrinking-space" syndrome? Try these ways to give you more spacious interiors.

Attic-Guest Room

Create an instant place for guests in an unfinished attic, utilizing assemble-yourself furniture. The Spherical sofas each become four mattresses. Furniture by James David sets up with a screwdriver. Lamps by Phil-Mar. Rug by Ege Rya. Dividers by Screen World. Shades by Joanna. Sheets of Kodol-cotton by Vera for Burlington. Room design by Peg Walker.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Is there any family that hasn't wished its house were just a little larger? Well it can be. Here are some decorating do-it-yourself ideas that will do the trick, usually without major remodeling.

Living Room

Even if it is already furnished, study your living room carefully. Awkward traffic patterns, oversized pieces and empty, unused areas waste valuable living space. Corners are often ignored. Today's new modular seating pieces, called "pit furniture" because the modules can be moved into a large group or pit, have been scaled down to accommodate small rooms.

Screens, which work well in living rooms, can create full or part-time living space. They provide privacy and allow you to redefine the shape of a room. A "see-through" divider can be as simple as spaced plywood strips extending from floor to ceiling — perhaps with several hanging plants in between. You also can buy freestanding wall systems, finished on both sides for attractiveness.

The newest designer furniture has a clean, simple look that is not hard for the home handyman to copy. You can build basic wood boxes as tables, in any length or height, with hinged tops that allow you to store things inside. For seating, cover them with colorful fabric, lined with sheets of fluffy fiberfill and topped with a foam pillow to give an upholstered look. Or leave the wood unfinished or stained in one of the light hues. Light woods, especially the bleached wood tones that are "in" now, do a lot of visual expanding on their own. If you want to achieve a traditional look, add trim molding to the construction and give it an antique stain.

Take a look at the living-room walls and decide whether you're using every practical bit of space. A "dead" spot that can come alive might be between windows. Built-in bookcases or wooden shelves attached to the wall with wood or metal brackets or decorative pedestals can be used for display and to "unclutter" table tops.

Dining Room

Are you allotting too much space to the dining room? A drop-leaf table takes up less space than a full-sized one. The customary sideboard, which usually accompanies traditional dining-room suites, might be moved into another room and replaced with a long, narrow wall shelf for serving pieces. An odd closet can be converted into a refreshment spot. Attach shelves to the closet door for glasses and build a unit with counter top and storage space below for bottles. Stem glasses can be hung from wood slats.

Kitchen

Don't be afraid to change a room entirely. Dispense with the dining room, if you have a good-sized eat-in kitchen, and gain a much-needed family room. Your guests can enjoy appetizers while you are cooking within earshot of the conversation.

Kitchens are a magnet for infrequently used counter-and-closet-cluttering gadgets and appliances, so take to the walls and shelve everything possible. A random arrangement of shelves, painted in contrasting hues, can stretch space and brighten a room better than new wallpaper. Add a practical and decorative note with plate rails (use quarter-round crown molding), which are ideal for large serving platters or an antique plate collection. Check out overhead racks. In gleaming metal or wrought iron, they're marvelous catchalls and offer an instant gourmet touch.

Bathroom

A visual space stretcher that also will lighten and brighten a small bath is a mirrored wall or ceiling. The least expensive way to mirror is with self-stick mirror tiles.

To gain storage space, construct a vanity cabinet around a pedestal or chrome-leg sink. Or utilize the space over the toilet with a made-to-measure "bookcase." If your bathroom has a window, install shelves on either side for toiletries.

Bedroom

Rare these days is the palatial bedroom, but the good news is that furniture manufacturers are paying attention to this lack. So, instead of the usual matched suite, with a set number of pieces, you now have space-saving choices. For instance, beds are being designed with storage headboards (and reading lights), often flanked by modular units with doors or drawers that, when added to, can wrap around a good portion of the room.

For the children, trundle beds and captain's beds (those with a storage drawer) are back in style. Each of these furniture trends spells comfort and practicality.

Family Room

Ideally, a family room should be multifunctional — available for game-playing, snacking and entertaining. A table tennis or billiard table, for example, can be overlaid with a larger wood top from the lumber yard and covered with a linen cloth for sit-down dinners.

Ernest Silva

Garage Get-Away

Convert your garage into an extra room. Designed with the American Plywood Association, the interior is of rough-sawn plywood siding. Furniture by Syroco. Free-standing fireplace by Majestic. Carpeting by Monticello in durable antistatic Anso-nylon.

Family-room seating can be as simple as a carpeted platform. If you plan to build a platform or other seating unit, incorporate storage space into the design. Stereo units, for instance, can be contained in flip-top boxes that also may double as end tables or ottomans.

Garage Into Family Room

Many families, in real need of extra space, are opting to convert their garages into added living quarters. It might turn into a family or hobby room, a workshop or a combination of both. Recommended furnishings for this kind of room: heavy-duty carpeting and easy-care plastic furniture in a light and cheerful color scheme.

Room At The Top

If you have an attic in which you can stand, why not turn it into a guest room?

You can do this without finishing the attic, either. Shop around for one of the new, inexpensive, assemble-it-yourself sofa beds, or refurbish the one you relegated to the basement with a ready-made slipcover.

Then set up a table or two with reading lamps as well as a chest or étagère with baskets for guests' foldables. Add warmth with a large area rug.

How To Wake Up The Financial Genius Inside You

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula."

We've never met and probably never will, but I think we share a common interest. That interest is in achieving complete and total financial freedom.

Because of this common interest, I think we can be of great help to each other. You see, a little over twelve months ago my net worth reached the magic million dollar mark, and it only took me 48 months to achieve that.

That might not impress you, but if you had seen me six years ago, you might wonder how I did it. I lived in Denver then, in a cramped, tumbled down house at 2545 South High Street. My wife was expecting our second child and we were so broke we had to borrow $150.00 from a relative just to buy food and pay the rent.

By the way, I know I didn't make a million dollars because of my superior intellect — I barely got through Ames High School (Ames, Iowa) with a C average and I think that if you'll stop and think, you'll realize and agree, there is not a single millionaire that is 10, 20, or 50 times smarter than you, or that works 10, 20, or 50 times harder or longer than you.

Now, how can we help each other? I am willing to share everything I have learned and know that would help and guide you to achieve your own financial freedom and independence. But the only way I would ever give you my secrets, methods and formulas is if I benefit also. Because as you will find when you reach your ultimate financial goals, you really don't want to stop there but you are motivated to go and make more. It seems that most people who are charging for financial advice have studied how to "do it" but have never actually "done it" themselves. You will find as you read my formulas, that since I have actually achieved total financial freedom myself, that you will receive from me more than just the motivation to achieve your own financial independence, but a workable step by step plan to actually do it.

You may have seen part of my formulas advertised in the nation's most prestigious financial journals such as Forbes, Barrons, Money, Fortune and the Wall Street Journal. This work is entitled How To Wake Up The Financial Genius Inside You. The various formulas contained in the volume will show you exactly how you can do each of the following:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.
- Put $1,000, $10,000, or even more cash in your pocket when you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets regularly and consistently.
- Legally avoid, reduce or postpone paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at a fraction of their market value.

If you apply these formulas and methods you could spend three weeks out of every month doing anything you care to do, and I think, at that time, you will find as I have, that spending several weeks on the beaches of Hawaii, or on the ski slopes of Colorado, or just sightseeing in Europe, or any other place in the world, you begin to understand what real freedom is all about.

Most people think that it would be impossible to do some of the things listed above. For example, to buy a property, and at the same time put $10,000 (or more) cash in your pocket without selling the property, or to buy a property with little or no cash down.

Believe me, it is possible for you to do it. This is exactly how most wealthy people actually do make 10, 20, or 50 times more money than you do.

These formulas of mine do not have to be used with income properties only. They actually can be applied to virtually any asset.

While I was struggling on making my first million, I often thought how nice it would be to have the personal advice and counsel from someone like Howard Hughes or J. Paul Getty.

What would I have been willing to pay for this service? I can tell you one thing for sure, it would have been a lot more than the $10.00 that I'm going to ask you to invest in your financial future.

What will this $10.00 actually do for you? It will give you a complete step by step plan that you can follow to become totally and completely financially independent.

Please try to understand my dilemma. I'm not a New York advertising agency, with all their professional skill and manpower to write a powerful and persuasive ad to convince you that I can make you financially independent. I am just somebody who has actually 'done it' and can really show you how to 'do it'.

What would you do, if you were in my shoes. You have in excess of $1,000,000 net worth, you have a desire to share your formula with others, because you not only have a simple, honest and workable method whereby others too can enjoy the riches of this land, but you also want to benefit and make money from sharing this information, so you can continue to grow financially.

I think you might do what I'm doing — that is to write a simple message to the type of people who share similar goals as mine asking them to try the formulas for themselves, to see if they work as well as the claims described. Because, I know, as you would know if you were in my shoes, that if I can just convince you to test my formulas and methods, you will see for yourself that they will work as easily for you as they did for me.

It's really quite frustrating to have something so valuable as I know I have, but lack the skill to convince people to try it for themselves. I hope by my simple, direct approach, I can convince you to try my formulas.

It seems the majority of the people in our rich country lose, not because they lack intelligence, or even will-power, but because of procrastination, or lack of action — please don't be like the masses. A HOTLY CONTESTED COMPETITION

Next week thousands of lovers of the "grains of paradise" will attend the International Chili Society's World Championship Chili Cookoff.

By Forest L. Kimler

The International Chili Society — worshippers of the all-fired chili pods, which are known to these true believers as the "grains of paradise" — was founded in 1970 for the primary purpose of improving chili.

And once again the fires will be lighted under the pots on Sunday, October 23rd at the Tropico Gold Mine near Rosamond, Calif., where 30,000 of the faithful, the curious and the merely hungry swarmed across the desert last year to hail a full-blooded Ute Indian as the king of the chili chefs. They will come from every state in the U.S., England, Tahiti, India, Scandinavia and Mexico (despite a declaration in a Mexican dictionary that chili con carne is "a detestable dish sold from Texas to New York City and erroneously described as Mexican").

They will come carrying trophies proclaiming them as "Champion Chili Chefs" of their states, regions, countries and clans and possessed of secret recipes known only to themselves.

Rufus Valdez, the Ute Indian who now wears the 1976 crown by virtue of his Indian's Revenge Chili recipe, says he expects to live to be 100 because he has chili at least twice a week: "My grandfather lived to 98, my grandmother 102 and my uncle 104, and they were all chili buffs."

That's enough to make anyone believe chili eaters are among the chosen people.

RUFUS VALDEZ'S WORLD-CHAMPIONSHIP CHILI

- 4 lbs. flank steak
- 2 lbs. center-cut pork chops
- 1 teaspoon cumin seed
- 1 teaspoon fresh-chopped oregano or dry oregano leaves, crushed
- 3 cups chopped onions
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 4 medium tomatoes, chopped
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 4 cans (7-oz. size) chile salsa
- 4 roasted green chilies (Anaheim variety)*
- 1 tablespoon mild New Mexico ground chili powder*
- 1 tablespoon medium New Mexico ground chili powder*
- 1 tablespoon hot New Mexico ground chili powder*
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 qt. water
- Salt to taste

1. Coarsely grind 2 lbs. of the flank steak. Cut remaining 2 lbs. flank steak into ¾-inch pieces. Cut pork into ¼-inch dice.
2. Cook steak and pork separately in large, heavy kettles. Stir frequently until meat changes color.
3. Combine meats in large kettle, add cumin and oregano, cook ½ hour, uncovered. Stir often.
4. In 2-qt. saucepan, cook onions and celery in 2 tablespoons oil for 10 minutes. Stir frequently.

5. Add tomatoes and salsa to the onions and celery and cook for ½ hour. Stir in chili powder, roasted chilies and garlic.

6. Add tomato-chili mixture and water to meat; stir. Cook for 1 to 1½ hours until thickened.

7. The last ½ hour should be just under a simmer.

Stir now and then. If necessary, add water for desired consistency. Add salt. Makes 1½ gallons

*If you can't get Valdez's ingredients, use:

- 1 can (10 ozs.) roasted and peeled whole green chilies, drained, seeded and chopped
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 3 tablespoons chili powder

HOW THE SPACE SHUTTLE WILL IMPROVE OUR LIVES

As early as 1980 it will spark a revolution in communications, energy, medicine, meteorology — and even cosmic tourism.

By Paul W. Hoffman

The space shuttle is short, stubby and unglamorous, but it promises valuable benefits for mankind. It is the first reusable spaceship that will ferry people and equipment to a nebula of space stations, sky labs and satellites. There, engineers will exploit the outer-space environment — no gravity, no contamination, no energy shortage — to manufacture a host of new medical and industrial products. The 150,000-pound shuttle, christened the Enterprise after the spaceship in Star Trek, will take the merchandise produced in these "space factories" back to earth.

The shuttle, also called the orbiter, is propelled by two booster rockets and an aluminum fuel tank that are strapped to its underbelly. The craft can orbit the earth for up to 30 days from as far out as 500 miles. And, having dropped off its crew and cargo at a space lab, it can glide safely back to earth without engine power.

Without engines that can be manually operated, the safety of the crew is in the hands of five computers that guide the vessel and keep it from burning up during reentry, when air friction boosts its temperature to a searing 2,700 degrees. To guard against technological malfunction, the computers cross-check each other's calculations 50 times per minute.

Once the shuttle shows that it can fly safely and smoothly, the two-man test crew will be replaced by seven newcomers, who will roam the decks in comfortable shirts and jeans, not bulky space suits. Because NASA plans to start training astronautettes, skirts also might be seen on board.

Plans call for five shuttles by 1980 that will loft people and cargo into orbit on a weekly basis. NASA expects the shuttle to spark a new industrial revolution in medicine, communications, energy, material sciences, meteorology and, yes, cosmic tourism.

Two years ago, the Apollo-Soyuz mission demonstrated how outer space research can advance medicine. On earth, gravity interferes with the attempts of scientists to isolate and culture important medical substances. For example, it is too expensive to mass-produce the rare enzyme urokinase, the only substance known that effectively dissolves blood clots. Useful in treating heart attacks, strokes and phlebitis, urokinase was easily produced in the weightless Apollo-Soyuz environment. On the shuttle, scientists want to improve the production process even further and hope to culture the anticoagulant for as little as $100 per dose, down from the present $1,000.

Paul W. Hoffman is a senior at Harvard College majoring in the history of science. He is planning a career in scientific journalism.

A NASA painting of two crewmen in earth orbit. This is an "on-board" view, looking down the length of the orbiter's huge cargo bay.

Other important medical discoveries are bound to follow from space research. Scientists anticipate that a real breakthrough could occur in less than a decade: It would be the production in space of some miraculous medical substance that cannot be made on earth at any cost. "No one is going to walk off the first flight of the shuttle with a hypodermic needle full of cells that we can inject into a person," says Dr. James H. Brett, NASA's manager of space processing applications. "People aren't working very hard inventing experiments that they cannot currently do. There will be an induction period when only a few innovative scientists perform exciting experiments on the shuttle. But when the bulk of the scientific community joins them, a lot of progress will follow."

Progress will also come in the manufacturing of metals and semimetals. Gravity prevents the creation of homogeneous, metallic mixtures because the ingredients that are the heaviest tend to sink to the bottom and separate out. This occurs, for example, when ball bearings are made from two different metals that are melted together to form an alloy.

Also, gravity makes containers necessary; but in weightless space they can be done away with because gases, liquids and solids remain immobile even when they're suspended in mid-air. Containers can contaminate ultrapure materials, and they can distort the shape of delicate substances grown from fine crystals. In space, where zero-gravity promises perfect crystal growth, scientists will produce metallike compounds for use in lasers, optics and computers. Says a high-ranking NASA official, "With these new materials, engineers will build TV cameras that can see in the dark. ... If you want to know what the cameras will be used for, go ask the Pentagon or the police."

The orbiter also will provide astronomers with new equipment and techniques. In late 1983 the shuttle will put into orbit a $450-million, solar-powered telescope, which, freed from the interference of the earth's atmosphere, will enable scientists to gaze seven-times deeper into space than ever before. The 95-inch-diameter scope will relay pictures of galactic objects back to earth — objects that are 50 times fainter than any that can now be viewed through ground-based telescopes. With a resolving power equivalent to a marksman in Boston zeroing in on a dime in Washington, D.C., the orbiting instrument will see to the edge of the universe as we know it. The light that will reach the giant telescope started out some 30 billion years ago and will help scientists unravel the ultimate cosmic puzzle: how the universe began.

Not only can the shuttle launch new satellites, like the giant telescope, at rock-bottom prices, but it also can retrieve, repair and check out existing ones, rather than letting them waste away. The money saved on communications satellites, for example, would show up in lower phone rates for transoceanic calls. Engineers are developing a satellite that will permit people a continent apart to talk by walkie-talkie at 10¢ per minute.

Meanwhile, engineers at the NASA Johnson Space Center in Houston are looking into ways that outer space might supply energy. They are currently developing a shuttle-launched satellite that will collect solar energy and beam it back to earth. A huge screen, some 15 miles in length and three miles in width, will absorb the sun's rays and transform them into microwaves (the same kind of high-frequency energy that cooks roasts in microwave ovens). These will travel to earth-based receivers to be converted into electricity and pumped into power lines. The orbiting screen will collect six- to 15-times more energy than could be gathered from the sun by a comparable screen on earth. There's no day or night, no clouds or atmosphere to stop the sun's rays from falling constantly onto the collector. The only thing that prevents scientists from launching solar cells tomorrow is the tremendous expense. By 1985 or 1990, however, the price of coal and oil will have escalated to the point where solar collectors will be economically desirable.

Large satellites, like the solar screen, won't fit in the shuttle's cargo bay. Instead, the orbiter will carry prefabricated sections of the satellites that will be hooked together in space by astronaut carpenters.

Since the Government's cargo will not completely fill the shuttle, NASA is selling the remaining space for $3,000 to $10,000 per five cubic feet. Entrepreneurs and educational institutions are snapping it up, and the University of California at Los Angeles is offering a special course for future shuttlenauts.

With the orbiter almost off the ground, NASA's engineers have gone back to seeing Buck Rogers movies for inspiration. What's next? MIT students have designed the Space Tow Truck — a powerful engine that would haul small planets into the earth's orbit so that they could be mined for valuable minerals.

CUT BUILDING COSTS WITHOUT LOSING QUALITY

DO YOU WANT... exceptional quality in construction and appearance?... all the room you've ever dreamed of having?... would you like a home that looks and lives bigger than it is?... a plan of construction that offers unbelievably low cost? Do you refuse to settle for less home than you honestly want to build on your property but feel that costs have gone beyond reason? If you do we want to talk to you.

The OXFORD
3 BEDROOMS — 1 BATH

We want you to have facts, first hand without preconceived ideas of just what Jim Walter builds, how he builds, the type of materials used, models offered, how many there are, and everything else a person has a right to know about his builder. We want you to know just what we can do to cut your building costs to the bone, how we can save you money, not just a little, but many, many dollars. But first, let's put to rest right here and now a few questions you may have in your mind about Jim Walter-built homes.

Jim Walter is NOT only a "shell home" builder. A "shell home" is one completely finished on the outside, completely unfinished inside. We will build a "shell home" for you but only if you ask us to, and only if local building codes permit. We will build to almost ANY stage of inside completion and allow you to complete the rest, to save you money. As for quality and size there are more than 20 models from one to four bedrooms and in addition, variations to size and floor plans can be had. As for quality construction... you may buy a different house but you'll be hard pressed to buy a better one. All materials are especially selected for their long wear, low maintenance qualities. Jim Walter-built homes are NOT prefabricated... they are custom built, board by board, on your property and it doesn't matter where it's located...

but that's not all, there's more, lots more that you'll want to know about Jim Walter-built homes... and WE WANT YOU TO KNOW. Our booklet showing all the standard models and full of information about how we can build for you... how we can help you cut your building costs... about our financing... our construction and all about our company is yours... FREE FOR THE ASKING. Send for it and then let's talk... let's talk price, size, mortgage payments and just exactly what you would like to have. If you own property and would like to build the most home for your money, WE WANT TO TALK TO YOU. Send for our booklet today.

A complete line of second home COTTAGES is also offered.

HOLLYWOOD'S LATEST GOLDEN BOY ALMOST DIDN'T MAKE IT

As a child Jan-Michael Vincent felt "totally inadequate"; as a teenager he was rebellious. So why is he now one of the screen's hottest new stars?

By Patricia Baum

He's been called the next Robert Redford, the next Paul Newman, the next Steve McQueen. This "next" is Jan-Michael Vincent, who has rapidly become one of the hottest male stars on the Hollywood scene. Since his milestone picture, Buster and Billie, he's been chalking up one solid screen credit after another, playing, among other roles, a young recruit in Baby Blue Marine and a rebellious truck driver in White Line Fever. His newest films, Survival Run, about the aftermath of nuclear war, and the soon-to-be-released Big Wednesday, a story of surfing friends, promise to propel him even further toward superstardom.

Jan's quick rise did not surprise seasoned moviegoers. He's certainly got what it takes — and perhaps more. For one thing, his sensitivity adds a touching realism to his roles. But what fans dig most, according to the thousands of adoring letters he receives each week, is his rugged, handsomeness. One is immediately struck by his deep blue eyes (one magazine gushed "he's the first contender since Paul Newman for screen eyes of the century") and his golden-boy look, acquired through years of surfing.

Curiously, Jan never intended to be an actor, let alone a movie star, and, despite his sexy good looks, grew up sorely lacking in self-confidence. He felt, he says, "terribly inadequate."

The son of a sign painter, Jan was raised with a younger brother and sister on a 20-acre ranch in Hanford, Calif. "I was always under pressure to conform," he explains in his soft-spoken voice. "And when I tried to, I'd usually end up feeling bad for not measuring up to what was expected."

As a teenager, Jan was totally alienated, openly rebellious and constantly in trouble for one thing or another — drinking, fighting and even setting off carbide bombs in school. Once, too, he ran away for three days and "blew everybody's mind." Recalling this period, Jan says, "It's Patricia Baum is a free-lancer who has written for many magazines, including Parents and US.

With daughter Amber, 4, who takes priority over everything.

a wonder I got through without being killed. I was the most confused person imaginable."

He did graduate from high school, though, and enrolled as an art student at Ventura City College. But he felt no more at ease. Then, while waiting in line to sign up for a fourth term, he suddenly asked himself what he was doing there. "I couldn't give myself an answer so I turned around, got in my car and kept driving until I reached Mexico." There he surfed, caught seafood, explored the jungles and contemplated life long enough to decide on his next move — joining the National Guard to avoid being drafted. Duty over, Jan drifted into acting through an incredible stroke of luck: An agent spotted him and took him to Universal Studios, where Jan was immediately signed for a low-budget Western in Mexico.

Recalling that first experience, Jan admits that "I didn't know what I was doing." But, he adds, "As half the crew couldn't speak any English, I didn't feel too bad. At least I said my lines with conviction." Enough conviction to keep TV and movie parts rolling in at a swift pace.

No doubt Jan was helped by playing many roles that mirrored his own rebellious and angry youth. In Buster and Billie he identified closely with the high-school senior who turns violent when classmates kill his girlfriend. And he sympathized so with the hippie who gets drafted into the Marines in his TV-movie Tribes that "I would have made that picture for nothing."

In fact, by acting out his own troubled life, Jan has turned his career into a unique form of therapy. At first, having backed into acting, he saw it only as "a chance to get paid for goofing off. It was great fun for me because on the set there were no pressures to conform, and for the first time I could be myself." But, gradually, acting took on deeper meaning for him; through it he was able to release and purge many of the pent-up hostile feelings that had been plaguing him. "For instance," he explains, "by going through the whole military drama in Tribes, I got rid of my negative attitude toward the military. In the last few years I've become a much more easygoing, confident and self-aware person."

Now a full-fledged star, Jan sharply separates his work and private life. On the set he's subjected to the inevitable star treatment by solicitous fans or concerned crew — "I get pretty bothered with people brushing my hair and straightening my clothes, touching and messing with me." But at home, in a remote rural canyon, he can be just one of the guys, surfing at the nearby beach, driving his pickup truck to the general store and growing his own organic food. And in the primitive house he has built, he tunes himself physically and spiritually by practicing yoga and playing the guitar. A friend calls Jan "the original pioneer man: living out in the woods by himself and deeply in touch with the universe."

Until recently, Jan lived with his wife Bonnie, whom he met at college and married in 1969, and his daughter Amber, now 4. Blaming himself, Jan says they separated "because I had so little time and energy for my family. When I was with them, I'd feel so exhausted I was like a carcass. And I demanded that our home revolve around me. Bonnie had little time for her own interests."

He considers their present arrangement an improvement. "Bonnie can do her painting," he explains, "and when we're together we don't quarrel. I make sure I see my family when I'm rested enough to give them my best." Meanwhile, Jan is striving for a better balance with his time. "I must discipline myself more," he says resolutely. "I have to remember that my family takes priority over everything, including my career."

Jan seems quite content to leave his career in the hands of fate. "I never had any great expectations," he shrugs, "and I'm going to keep it that way. I've stretched myself and grown a lot. And if I find the best way to serve myself and others is to get out of the business, I'll try and find a way to take the turn. Who knows? Maybe in 10 years I'll be driving a truck or pumping gas."

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle of Hamburg!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Hamburg with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans of all ages—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, burning nerve ends, pain in the balls of your feet, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you guaranteed relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Hamburg can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking.

Low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes—
'Enriched Flavor' breakthrough confirmed.

For years, you couldn't get real tobacco flavor without high tar. As a result, many smokers wanting to switch to a low tar cigarette couldn't.

Couldn't—until MERIT.

Until 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. A breakthrough in tobacco science that resulted in a way to boost natural tobacco flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

This breakthrough has made MERIT one of the most popular new cigarettes in twenty years. More importantly, over 75% of all MERIT smokers are former high tar smokers.

It's clear: low tar MERIT is delivering the kind of flavor that can satisfy high tar smokers, the toughest "taste" critics of low tar smoking.

Taste-Test Proof

MERIT and MERIT 100's were packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And taste-tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Is a smile the best way to cool someone's wrath? Is the telephone your best ally during a heated argument?

WHEN PEOPLE BECOME ANGRY

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If someone is angry with you, the worst place to discuss and attempt to settle your differences is in a dimly lit restaurant — or any other meeting place where the lighting is subdued.
2. Unfortunately, no matter how angry a person has made you by his conduct, there isn't much you can do to "put him in his place."
3. When someone loses his temper and begins berating you, the best way to cool his anger is with a smile; it will throw him off balance and help dissipate his feelings of hostility and aggression.
4. If you face a confrontation with a short-tempered person, the telephone could be your best ally.
5. When you're angry at someone, it's a good idea to "ventilate" your resentment by talking about it to another person.
6. The things that make you mad depend on whether you're a man or a woman.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at Wright State University have indicated that lighting can have an important effect on social behavior. Tests showed that a dimly lit setting markedly increased feelings of aggression and hostility between two interacting individuals — and that this effect is heightened when the subjects are in close proximity. Research also has shown that the dark and semidark of the polar night "have a tendency to bring out the least-desirable elements of human behavior — envy, jealousy, suspicion, egotism, irritability."
2. False. Wit and humor rank as two of the most devastating weapons with which to vanquish a foe who has tried your patience by behaving in an obnoxious manner. In his treatise on the subject, sociologist J.O. Hertzler cites hostile repartee (studded with wit and humor) as a highly sophisticated and effective form of conflict — a duel of wits involving smart verbal attack. It's further described as word play taking the place of sword play; a duel fought with points of jokes. It can also involve "a deliberate playing to the gallery; the audience (of one or several) just sits back and laughs after each touché."

3. False. A study conducted by investigators from Purdue and Vanderbilt universities found that a smile actually increased hostility and aggression, while an angry expression (frown, scowl or stony look) decreased aggressive behavior in the other person.

4. True. If he really blows his top, he'll vent his violence on the telephone instead of you. For example, General Telephone of California reports that one of the most common damages to phones is people getting so angry during arguments over the phone that they slam down the receiver hard enough to shatter it, or — if they're very mad and very muscular — tearing the whole instrument out of the wall. One Los Angeles man, apparently too slight to qualify for this type of action, simply drove his car into the phone booth after losing an argument with his girlfriend.

5. False. Studies at United States International University show that "getting things off your chest" may make you angrier than you were before. The findings suggest that one good way to cool your anger is "involvement in humor." (See an amusing show or do something that makes you laugh, or let your sense of humor come to the fore, enabling you to see the funny side of the situation.)

6. True. University of Wisconsin studies show that women are most angered by condescending treatment — regardless of whether it is dished out by a man or a woman. Men's hostile feelings were triggered quickest by another man's physical or verbal aggression. Condescending treatment caused men's tempers to boil only when it was received from a woman.

"Pop, you remember that new fender on the car? Well..."

$10,000 REWARD!

WE'LL PAY YOU $10,000 FOR A 1943 COPPER PENNY LIKE THIS ONE. IT'S DIFFERENT FROM MOST 1943 PENNIES. DO YOU KNOW WHAT THE DIFFERENCE IS?

Our brand new 1978 Coin Guidebook shows you how much America's best coin dealer guarantees to pay for hundreds of valuable coins.

For	Dated Before	Up To
Certain Nickels	1914	$95,000.00
Gold Coins	1932	88,000.00
Silver Dollars	1935	75,000.00
Quarters	1955	5,000.00
Half Dollars	1901	1,200.00
Pennies	1961	10,000.00
Dimes	1926	310.00

Certain special coins listed in the guidebook dated before the dates given above are valuable.

Did you spend this coin today? Think of the many other valuable coins that might slip through your fingers in your change each day. Some coins will bring you over $1,000.00. Mr. J.G.M. of St. Louis recently found a penny like the one shown in the picture above.

Imagine owning things like a new house and car or seeing your picture in the paper. You can be one of the fortunate people to strike it rich. Read on and find out how profitable your coins can be.

BIG PROFITS FROM SMALL CHANGE!

Not long ago every coin of a certain type tripled in value almost overnight! This type of coin wasn't rare; in fact, most coins in circulation fell into this category. The total increase in value to people who knew what to look for amounted to billions of dollars.

YOU CAN HIT THE JACKPOT!

Recently I investigated an estate sale of a country storekeeper. All he had done was save change without even knowing what to look for.

His heirs must have been as astonished as I was with the treasure trove he had accumulated. It contained thousands of dollars in coins that were all worth many times their face values.

• Mr. M.H., a medical assistant in a Roanoke, Va., hospital, noticed an unusual coin while going through change at work. It was an old three-dollar gold piece. He was amazed when I paid him $60.00 for it.

• A cousin gave Mr. F.P. of Culladen,

Ga., an old coin as a gift. A few years later she sold it to me for $20.00. It had increased tremendously in value.

• In Macon, Mo., a lady who works in a coin-operated laundry takes advantage of her opportunity to look through hundreds of coins in change every week. Almost daily, she turns up valuable coins, because she knows what to look for.

• Dana College in Blair, Neb., recently received a very unusual donation from Anna T. — an old rusty syrup bucket filled with 300 silver dollars and hundreds of nickels and cents, all dated before World War II. Anna's husband had told her, back during the Dust Bowl days, to save the bucket for a rainy day. Years later, oil was discovered on her farm, so she donated the hoard to Dana College. One source says the coins are now worth a minimum of $2,000.

• Mr. G.B., an electrician for the Potlatch Corp. in Idaho, recently found an old $20.00 California gold piece at an abandoned race track. Only two similar coins are known to exist. He has received an offer of $300,000.00 for it. When he learned its value he put it in a bank vault where it will stay until it's sold. He'll retire in two years with complete financial security for himself and his family.

ORDER NOW!

Order your Coin Guidebook now so that you can learn the rare dates and how to spot valuable coins. Coins don't have to be old to be valuable. Hold on to your coins, but don't send them to us until you read the very important mailing instructions in the Coin Guidebook.

Inches Off Instantly

Want to lose 10 pounds in two minutes? While only a sound diet can help you take off that fat for good, following a few simple suggestions can help you look thinner instantly. Lois L. Lindauer, international director of The Diet Workshop, the largest independently owned weight-control organization in the U.S., says, "When people start dieting, it's often hard for them to change their body image — they still hold on to their 'fat' hairstyle, 'fat' clothes and 'fat' makeup." To help yourself look lighter and feel better, Ms. Lindauer suggests:

- Stand thin. Straightening up to your full height by pulling the rib cage up and stomach in will distribute your weight over more territory.
- Sit thin. A good tip to remember, especially if you're sitting in front of a group or being photographed, is to cross legs at ankles and slide forward in your chair to reduce calf and thigh bulge.
- Make up thin. Use light, sheer makeup with color to even skin tone, darker blusher to contour under cheeks and to slenderize face.
- Dress thin. Draw a slenderizing line down your middle with a complete hem-to-collar look, like vertical stripes or a classic shirtwaist.

Putting Themselves In Students' Places

Teachers enrolled in a Purdue Univ. intensive course this past summer got a good idea of the problems faced by their handicapped students by using wheelchairs, crutches and blindfolds. Mary Louise Foster, who taught the course, feels that the device was more than a gimmick. "It gives you an awareness of problems we don't ordinarily think about." For example, she continues, "you get the feeling of not being able to reach things — when you're in a wheelchair you're less than 4 feet high." Some of the problems the teachers recognized by seeing the campus from the students' vantage points were that drinking fountains are too high and rest rooms often inaccessible.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Programmed For Success

There's a special young people's club that has only one membership requirement — you have to be a high-school dropout. Called SEVCA (70001 Career Assoc.), it's the youth organization of 70001, a program designed to help young people between the ages of 16 and 22 who have dropped out of school. Started in 1969 by local businessmen in Wilmington, Del., 70001 operates 29 programs in 16 states ranging from Conn. to Calif. and has a contract from the U.S. Dept. of Labor to open 12 more programs within the next year. 70001 guides its members (called "associates") into unsubsidized, full-time employment in retailing and other fields. Coordinators help the associates upgrade their job skills, and during off-hours the associates study for their high-school equivalency diplomas. A recent survey reported that 75% of 70001 graduates were employed or furthering their educations. 70001's Jerry Sapienza says that the key to 70001's success is its youth organization, which helps to motivate the young people. Supersitters

Does your baby sitter know what to do in case of an accident or emergency? The answer is yes if he or she has completed the Mother's Aide course offered by the majority of Red Cross chapters across the country. Based on the premise that even if they have a baby brother or sister at home most youngsters have little idea of how to care for an infant or toddler or what to do if an emergency should arise, the free course aims to prepare teens for baby-sitting emergencies. Mother's Aide courses vary somewhat from chapter to chapter but, says Red Cross program developer Dr. Marcia Dake, will include instruction on how to handle, feed and care for a baby, basic first aid and personal safety. At the end of the course, participants receive a Red Cross certificate. To locate the nearest Mother's Aide course, contact your local Red Cross chapter.

Don't Be A Water-Waster

We use water so often that most of us tend to take it for granted — until a situation like a drought makes it painfully apparent how important it is. Fact is, most of us are water wasters. But following a few simple tips suggested by the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau can help conserve this valuable resource. For instance, did you know that taking a bath with a full tub uses far more water than a regular shower? And if you use the wet down, soap up and rinse off shower routine, you'll cut water consumption to a mere 4 gallons. If you leave the tap running while shaving you could use up to 20 times as much water as you would if you filled the basin. Leaks are a big water siphoner and should be reported immediately — a small drip wastes 25 gallons a day.

For The Record

If it seems that every time you open a drawer at home canceled checks fall out, you may be hanging on to more records than you need. Not all canceled checks must be saved — just checks and receipts that may be needed for income-tax purposes. The Internal Revenue Service has 3 yrs. in which to audit Federal income-tax returns in all but unusual cases; time limits for state income taxes vary. Irreplaceable papers, such as marriage and birth certificates, citizenship records and divorce and adoption papers, should be kept in a safe-deposit box. Another document for your safe-deposit box is your inventory of household valuables, which is necessary in case of fire or burglary. The original copy of a will should be kept in the safe of the attorney who prepared it. For more tips on which records you can throw out safely, write for the Government's Keeping Records, What to Discard. Request your free copy from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 625E, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Quick Takes

Contrary to popular belief, it seems that breaking up is tougher on men than on women. Research reported in the Journal of Social Issues says that more men than women felt "depressed, lonely, less happy and less free" after breaking up... Ever wonder what's the safest place to sit on an airplane? The National Transportation Safety Board says that, all other things being equal, you'll be safest sitting over the wings or in the tail section — the two areas shown to have sustained the least amount of damage in survivable accidents... Despite the money that can be saved by comparison shopping for food, many Americans apparently prefer the convenience of one-stop shopping. Sixty percent of food shoppers polled in a nationwide survey by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture said they usually go to only one food store... Money can't buy happiness says a psychiatrist who has counseled several patients in control of $10 million or more. Seems the superrich have many of the same problems as the very poor — severe maternal deprivation in many cases, discrimination as a "special group" and a lack of positive role models for adult behavior... Going on a diet? Your chances of success will be increased if you have the support of someone such as a spouse or a friend says a dieting expert. A survey of instructors at a national weight-control organization reported that the motivating factor in 62% of successful losses was support from family, friends or program instructors. Many wives said they couldn't bear to disappoint their husbands with poor weigh-ins, and others were goaded by husbands' taunts that they would "never make it."

Our Story: WHEN THE FOREIGN AMBASSADOR LEARNS THAT HIS SON HAD COLLAPSED FROM EXHAUSTION IN THE MUNICIPAL GYMNASIUM HE IS FURIOUS. SOMEONE MUST BE PUNISHED FOR CAUSING HIM SUCH ANXIETY.

THE OFFICIALS AT THE GYM ARE JUST AS ANXIOUS TO FIND A SCAPEGOAT TO HIDE BEHIND, SO THEY TELL HIM OF THE GIRL, KAREN.

"SHE IT WAS WHO RACED WITH HIM. HE WON, BUT IN HER DEFEAT SHE USED A MAGIC SPELL TO STRIKE HIM DOWN. YOU WILL FIND HER AT THE GUEST PALACE."

HE COMES BURSTING INTO THEIR QUARTERS. "SO! YOU ARE THE ONE WHO PUT A CURSE ON MY SON! DO YOU KNOW WHO I AM?" KAREN REPLIES: "NO ONE OF IMPORTANCE OR THE STEWARD WOULD HAVE ANNOUNCED YOU AT THE DOOR."

HE BELLOWS THAT HE IS IMPORTANT AND BRAGS WHY. KAREN LOOKS BORED, WHICH MAKES HIM LOSE HIS TEMPER AND BECOME ABUSIVE. "THAT IS NO WAY TO TALK TO A PRINCESS," SAYS PRINCE VALIANT AS HE ENTERS THE ROOM.

"A PRINCESS! DID YOU SAY A PRINCESS?" HE ASKS, BEGINNING TO SWEAT. "YES," ANSWERS VAL, "THE DAUGHTER OF ALETA, QUEEN OF THE MISTY ISLES."

"OH, MY HEAVENS," EXCLAIMS THE AMBASSADOR, "I AM RUINED!" AND HE LEAVES MOANING.

"FOR YEARS I HAVE PLEADED WITH MY KING TO APPOINT ME AMBASSADOR TO THE MISTY ISLES AND NOW...?" NEXT WEEK - The Merry-makers

GASOLINE ALLEY

Thanks fer hepin' with th' taters, Mister Walt! Enjoyed it, Joel!

Nice basket! Foun' it floatin' out o' th' sewer full o' cats!

Amazing! It looks just like the basket Skeezix was left on my doorstep in!

But it isn't! That one is safe in Slim and Clovia's apartment!

The basket is gone, Clovia! We've scoured the town! Poor Gramps!

Who's going to break the awful news to him? Poor Slim!
