

Inflation Holds To A 'Moderate' Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation held to a moderate rate last month as consumer prices rose by only three tenths of 1 per cent, the same as in August, the government reported today.

If averaged over the entire year, the September increase would mean a 3.6 per cent annual rate of inflation, a sharp improvement over the 10 per cent annual rate recorded at the beginning of the year.

The increases in August and September were the smallest monthly hikes since last November.

Some government economists predicted that the slowing of inflation during the summer will persist through the autumn as declining farm prices continue to exert a moderating effect on retail food prices.

Wholesale farm prices have been falling since April. The decline first began showing up at the retail level in July when consumer prices rose four tenths of 1 per cent, following monthly gains averaging seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices have increased at an annual rate of 4.2 per cent over the last three months, compared with an 8.1 per cent rate in the second quarter of the year and a 10 per cent pace during the first three months.

The improved inflation picture has been satisfying to the Carter administration which has been criticized for its economic policies because high unemployment persists and the rate of economic growth slowed over the summer.

Food prices rose only one-tenth of 1 per cent last month, following an increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent in August. Prices actually declined for pork, poultry, fresh fruits, eggs, coffee and dairy products, helping to offset increases for fresh vegetables and beef.

Non-food prices also continued to moderate last month, rising by only two tenths of 1 per cent, about the same as the three previous months. The cost of services rose five tenths of 1 per cent, the same as in August.

The Labor Department said the consumer price index stood at 184.0 in September, meaning that a market basket of goods and services selling for $100 in the 1967 base period now costs $184.

The index also showed that consumer prices in September were 6.6 per cent higher than that of a year ago.

Despite the improvement in the pace of inflation, the government said the price rise last month and fewer weekly work hours combined to chip four tenths of 1 per cent from the purchasing power of the average worker's take home pay.

Compared with that of a year ago, real spendable earnings were up 3.7 per cent, largely because of the increase in the federal tax deduction that reduced withholding taxes in June.

Leaf Mart Saw Record

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Tobacco Market, which held its final sale of the 1977 season Thursday, recorded the highest season average this year in the history of the market.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade here, said that the Greenville market finished the season with an average of $116.91 per hundred pounds, a record figure for the market.

Bryan noted that the record average was achieved through the sale of 41,238,428 pounds of tobacco for $48,212,220.

Last year's season average of $114.97 also set a record for the market as 54,495,951 pounds sold for $62,651,400, the sales supervisor pointed out.

"There was a 15 per cent reduction in 1977 pounds allocated to growers, and this, added to the poor weather conditions, resulted in fewer pounds to be sold during the 1977 season," Bryan explained.

Thursday's final sale saw an average of $92.46 per hundred pounds posted as local warehouses closed out their auction activities by selling 228,585 pounds for $211,340.

Stabilization receipts yesterday totaled 21.52 per cent as of ferings involved mostly leaf and non descript grades.

Bryan observed that "grade for grade, the Greenville market received top dollar this season, even through the last day's sale as buying companies purchased tobacco for up to $1.86 per pound for good quality leaf."

He noted, "I would like to thank the farmers who sold on the Greenville Market this year and to tell them that we will look forward to serving them in the future. We will make every effort at all times to give them the best service."

Early designation will make the operation of the 1978 marketing season as successful as 1977, he suggested. Bryan urged farmers to designate their tobacco to the "warehouse of their choice in Greenville as early as possible for the 1978 marketing season."

The local market began sales in 1890 and has had 87 years experience in the tobacco business, he added. When the designation plan was introduced in 1974, local warehousemen were prepared to meet the new need of the farmer as scheduling of tobacco had begun here several years prior to 1974.

The floor space devoted to handling tobacco here is over two million square feet.

Skyjacker Chose Suicide Over His Future Of Prison

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The skyjacker who commandeered a jet in Nebraska for a crosscountry dash to spring a friend from jail and then killed himself "made a value judgment" between prison or suicide, says his lawyer.

Thomas Michael Hannan, 29, had released his 13 hostages but was still talking to his lawyer aboard the Frontier Airlines Boeing 737 he had hijacked 14 hours earlier Thursday when he "just sat down and pulled the trigger," said James Dunn of the FBI.

The sudden gunfire ended a long day of quiet negotiation in which FBI agents carefully stalled Hannan over a ground-to-aircraft radio hookup, and Hannan, although occasionally bristling with impatience, returned polite "Yes, sir" and "No, sir" responses.

Hannan had hijacked the jet in an attempt to free George David Stewart — whom police identified as a fellow homosexual — and to get a $3 million ransom.

Both Stewart and his attorney, J. Roger Thompson, had urged Hannan to surrender. Dunn credited both with helping end the day-long drama with no other injuries.

Hannan and Stewart had been arrested in Mobile, Ala., last month and charged with stealing $7,000 from an Atlanta bank on Sept. 2. Stewart was kept in jail. Hannan was released on $25,000 bond and allowed to return to his home in Nebraska.

Hannan, called "Mike" by his friends, had moved with his family from Sioux Falls, S.D., as a youngster to Grand Island, Neb., where the hijack began early Thursday when he stormed aboard the plane with a sawed-off shotgun.

High school classmates in Nebraska remembered him as a popular, good-looking student who played varsity sports and liked women.

Hannan's parents flew to Atlanta Thursday to plead with him to surrender, but he said he did not want to talk to them, did not want to get involved "in some soap opera."

Hannan had ordered the pilot to fly the plane and its 29 passengers to Kansas City, where 18 passengers — eight women, eight children and two men — were released. One man had a heart condition and the second was a boyhood friend of Hannan's who was on the same flight by chance.

The plane continued to Atlanta where Stewart was being held.

Hannan kept two stewardesses, 11 male passengers and the two crewmen hostage after landing at Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport just after noon EDT. He demanded that he be given $3 million, weapons and two parachutes in addition to freedom for Stewart.

Hannan released the stewardesses just before dark.

Then Stewart, who was brought to the airport by the FBI, joined the forces asking him to surrender.

When Thompson told him over the radio, "There's really nothing we can do at the airport; we have got to do it in court," Hannan replied, "All right."

More anxious moments passed, then he lowered the jet's loading stairs, let the passengers off and allowed Thompson aboard.

Half an hour after that, authorities said, he shot himself. Officers scrambled on board, but the drama was over.

Guilty On Six Counts

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Northwestern Bank Chairman Edwin Duncan Jr., whose lawyers once cited the case of former federal budget director Bert Lance in his defense, was convicted today on six counts of misapplying $257,000 in bank funds.

Duncan, 50, was convicted in a separate U.S. District Court trial earlier on charges of spying on Internal Revenue Service agents who were conducting a probe at the bank in the early 1970s.

U.S. District Court Judge Hiram H. Ward said sentencing on both convictions would be issued on Nov. 11. He faces a third trial on Nov. 7 on charges that he illegally eavesdropped on FBI agents using an office at the bank's Wilkesboro, N.C. headquarters earlier this year.

Government attorneys contended in the latest trial that Duncan deliberately wrote checks which he knew his personal checking account could not cover, and that he intended to defraud the bank.

Minimum Wage Bill Ready For Carter Signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill giving nearly five million workers fatter pay checks the first of the year is now awaiting President Carter's signature.

The President is expected to sign the bill, which won final congressional approval Thursday on a House vote of 236 to 187.

The bill provides gradual increases over the next four years. The first takes effect Jan. 1, pushing the minimum from the present $2.30 an hour to $2.65.

Republicans argued the increases would be inflationary and put thousands of persons out of work. But Democrats said they would help bring low-paid workers a living wage, although it still is not above the poverty line for a family of four.

After the initial increase on Jan. 1, the minimum goes to $2.90 an hour on Jan. 1, 1979, and to $3.10 on Jan. 1, 1980, before reaching $3.35 on Jan. 1, 1981.

The bill also would exempt more small businesses from paying the minimum wage.

Rock Band Loses Three Members In Crash Of Plane In Mississippi

MCCOMB, Miss. (AP) — A twin-engine airplane apparently low on fuel crashed Thursday night while attempting an emergency landing, killing three members of the rock band Lynyrd Skynyrd and three other persons and injuring 20.

The propeller-driven Convair 240 skidded across tree tops for about 100 yards, then slammed into a swampy area and split open about eight miles short of the McComb airport after reporting it was "having fuel trouble or was running low on fuel," an air traffic controller reported.

The dead included lead singer Ronnie Van Zant, guitarist Steve Gaines and vocalist Cassie Gaines, Gaines' sister, medical authorities said.

Pilot Walter Wiley McCreary and co-pilot William John Gray, both of Dallas, Tex., and Dean Kilpatrick, assistant road manager for the group, also died, officials said.

Six other members of the hard rock band were injured, two hurt critically and four hospitalized in stable condition. The injured, some of them also in critical condition, included members of the group's road crew and a cameraman, said officials of Southwest Mississippi Medical Center.

A breakdown provided by officials listed 10 of the injured in critical condition and 10 in stable condition.

Authorities suggested that the pilot may have been trying to land the plane in one of several open fields near the trees where the crash occurred.

The chartered plane came down on its nose southwest of McComb, twisting the cockpit to the left, and threw seven or eight persons to the ground when it split open at about the middle of the fuselage, witnesses said. The impact, which triggered no fire, tossed other passengers toward the front of the aircraft.

"They were all in front of the plane and they were all shouting. 'Get me out, get me, get me,'" said Constable Gerald Wall. "We were actually standing on top of some people to get the others out."

Unemployment In N.C. Hits A 3-Year Low

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Unemployment in North Carolina dropped to 4.5 per cent in September, equalling a three-year low, the Employment Security Commission reported today.

The commission said that 117,300 Tar Heels were unemployed last month as compared with 125,500 in August when the rate was 4.7 per cent.

The September figure was last equalled in October 1974 before the nation plunged into the last recession.

North Carolina's September unemployment figure was well below the national rate of 6.6 per cent.

Although the unemployment figure improved in September, the number of North Carolinians holding jobs last month stood at 2,496,000, a drop of 36,000 from August. Seasonal declines in agriculture and temporary jobs of students were largely responsible for the drop.

Except for a gain of 32,000 in state and local government employment, job gains among the state's major industries were small. Tobacco manufacturing added 1,200 and apparel 800.

Meanwhile, gains were registered in the area of wages and hours. The average hourly wage rose from $4.16 to $4.18; weekly wages jumped from $165.57 to $167.62; and the average manufacturing work week increased from 39.8 hours to 40.1 hours.

Pitt Red Cross Chapter Board Hears Reports

The Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross held its quarterly board meeting Thursday night at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

During the board session, reports were given on service to military families, safety programs and the chapter's blood program.

It was pointed out that a disaster preparedness committee is being formed here and a training session with a representative from Red Cross division headquarters will be scheduled in the near future.

Board members also discussed a recommendation made by the Tidewater Blood Center that Pitt County discontinue its Bloodmobile visit to the Du Pont Plant in Lenoir County, effective immediately.

The Blood Center, it was explained, made its recommendation since Pitt has East Carolina University as a blood source as well as more of an industrial base to supply blood needs than Lenoir County. Lenoir, which schedules two visits at Du Pont per year while Pitt has one, would have three at the plant if the recommendation is followed.

The Pitt chapter is not bound by the center's recommendation but the matter has been referred to a local blood committee for study before a decision is made.

Board members expressed concern about the long range effects the loss of the Du Pont visit would have on the local blood program.

Chapter chairman Andy Warren presided at the meeting, attended by 16 members.

The next quarterly meeting is scheduled for Jan. 19.

Tell Son You Can Still Spank Him

DEAR ABBY: My husband refuses to tie his shoe laces. He steps into his shoes and lets the laces drag. We have a son in second grade who lets his laces drag on purpose. When I tell him to tie them, he says, "Daddy don't."

Now I don't know what to say or do. At school the children are graded on neatness, and our son always gets a black mark because his shoe laces are never tied. I've tried to tell my husband he is setting a bad example for our son, but it doesn't help.

So how do you train a child to tie his laces when his father doesn't? And when he gives me this, "Daddy don't" talk, what do I say?

CAN'T WIN

DEAR CAN'T: When the boy says, "Daddy don't," say "I know—but daddy SHOULD. And Daddy is too big for me to spank. But YOU'RE not!"

DEAR ABBY: A friend of many years found out about a year ago that her husband of more than 20 years was messing around with a much younger girl. He said it was just a crazy middle-age fling that was all over by the time his wife heard about it, but she keeps hearing rumors about him and other young women.

She says she isn't jealous, just humiliated, and at her age she is not about to compete with young girls. She is a very attractive woman and has a lot more sense than her husband does.

She started getting all her affairs "in order" such as her "will" and her finances. She says she can't see herself spending many more years with a husband who makes her feel inadequate and "too old" for him.

Do you think she's contemplating suicide?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Sounds more like she's contemplating DIVORCE.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please print this letter. It might make a few girls think twice before begging for a wedding ring.

I fell in love with Jack when I was 16. He was 18. I fought with my family because I wanted to quit school and get married. Jack wanted to go to college, but I talked him into taking a job in a grocery store so we could get married right away. We ran off and got married and broke our parents' hearts. I got pregnant real quick so our parents wouldn't have our marriage annulled.

Well, Jack wasn't really ready to settle down, so when he'd spend an evening with his buddies, I'd get mad and jealous. Then we started fussing at each other. He couldn't stand my whining, so he left me. Now we're getting a divorce because he says he missed out on his youth and it's my fault. I still love him, but his love for me has turned to hate.

Please, Abby, keep telling young girls to finish high school and let the guys grow up before they start nagging for marriage. I am 18 years old and pregnant, and in six months I'll be a divorcee.

KNOW I WAS WRONG

CONFIDENTIAL TO ERIC: Good manners are simply a sensitivity to the feelings of others. If you have that sensitivity, you have good manners, no matter which fork you use.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Friday, October 21, 1977—3

DEAR ABBY: You certainly opened a Pandora's box when you ran those letters from women who said sex was messy, sometimes painful, not worth the trouble, and that they could live without it.

I feel sure I have a better than average husband, but men are inept as lovers. (I am not a lesbian, and I do not have any such tendencies.)

Men do not begin to understand women, psychologically or sexually. Their attitudes about sex are selfish. (Me first and then you, if you can manage it.) Men make women feel as though there is something wrong with them if they're tired or have a headache, or just don't feel like it when the men do.

If men knew as little about their jobs or their golf game, they wouldn't be able to earn a living or get off the first tee.

Worse, they won't listen, read or take suggestions. And if their sex life is a flop, they say that it's their woman's fault.

Sign me, Disappointed, Disgusted, Desperate and DEAD

DEAR D.D.D. AND DEAD: Your husband may be guilty as charged, but don't put ALL men in the same bag. My mail tells me that some men are wonderfully competent lovers. They're considerate, unselfish, tender and willing to read, listen and take criticism. All men are not alike any more than all women are. (Thank heavens.)

DEAR ABBY: The letters from wives who don't think sex is worth the trouble prompts this.

Can you imagine two people "in love," and expecting to marry, asking each other, "On a scale of zero to ten, how does your sex drive rate?" But such a determination, done perferably by outside counsel, would prevent many unhappy marriages.

Low (or no) sex drive does not apply only to women. Though folklore would have us believe that all men are highly sexed, it just isn't so.

For sexual compatibility, zeros should marry zeros, and tens should marry tens.

GEORGE

DEAR GEORGE: It wouldn't work. Some zeros when properly motivated and coached become tens. And some tens, due to some of the other aspects of marriage, become zeros.

Supermarket Dating

NEWARK, Del. (AP) — Consumers should not confuse open dating on packaged foods with coded dating, cautions Sue Matusiak, Delaware extension home economist.

Open dating, the easy-to-read calendar date on a package, indicates product freshness. Coded dating provides information on when and where a product was packaged for manufacturers and retail stores, the home economist notes.

Companies now use four kinds of open dating, says Ms. Matusiak. They include: Pack date — this indicates when the food was packaged. Pull or sell date — this is the last date the product should remain on the store shelves. Expiration date — this tells you the last date that the food can be used. Freshness date — similar to the expiration date, this provides a guideline for storage of the product at home.

The home economist urges consumers to always check the open dates on packaged foods, but tells shoppers to be mindful that a dated container with an open lid is more likely to have mold growth than a product with a well-sealed lid, regardless of the date.

Elegant But Thrifty: Hungarian Man Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Once in a while we come on a thrifty ground beef dish that's stylish enough to serve to guests. This time around it's Hungarian-style Cabbage Beef. It tastes delicious, serves six and holds an element of surprise: it's rarely met up with in the United States.

The morning we tested it there were only two of us in the kitchen so most of it was left over. To see how the dish would strike guests, that evening we invited our sophisticated next-door neighbor Mary Cantwell (Managing Editor of Mademoiselle) and her Rhode Island house-guest to come over for a pick-up supper after drinks at Mary's house. My sister Phyllis, a practical cook, made a foursome. Mary liked the Hungarian-style dish very much, my sister was enthusiastic about it and the Rhode Island visitor, a busy working mother, begged for the recipe.

To make the leftover Cabbage Beef look attractive we cut it in wedges, arranged them slightly apart on a round serving plate and reheated them in our microwave oven. Then we garnished the interstices copiously with parsley and watercress and served up the dish. It looked great! French bread and sweet butter, a salad and dessert completed the menu.

HUNGARIAN-STYLE CABBAGE BEEF
2½ to 2¾-pound cabbage

2 slices white bread, diced (1 cup)
½ cup milk
2 eggs

1¼ pounds ground beef
1 cup cooked rice
3 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 tablespoon paprika
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons marjoram leaves, crumbled

1½ teaspoons instant minced garlic
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons oil
6 slices bacon
Cut core from cabbage. Immerse the head in boiling water; boil for 15 minutes; drain. Separate leaves and drain them. Soak the bread in the milk. In a medium bowl beat the eggs slightly; mix in the soaked bread, beef, rice, onion, paprika, salt, marjoram, garlic and pepper. Pour the oil into a 3-quart casserole (9¼ by 2 inches or 8½ by 3 inches). Arrange one-third of the cabbage leaves in it, putting some of the largest leaves on the bottom; cover with half the meat mixture. Repeat once more, covering with the remaining largest cabbage leaves. Arrange bacon on top. Cover and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 1¼ hours; uncover and bake 15 minutes longer. Remove from oven and let stand for 10 minutes before cutting into wedges. Makes 6 servings.

Moving Up Political Ladder

With more and more women running for public office and many of them winning, it follows that women will also be moving up the political ladder.

Thus it was that Mrs. Sara Albritton, a present member of the Farmville Board of Commissioners, was elected mayor in last Tuesday's voting. There were 11 other women mayors in January, 1976 in North Carolina.

Interestingly, Mrs. Albritton is not Pitt County's only woman mayor. Mrs. Ruby Hodges is mayor of Grimesland.

There has been a spurt of interest among women in seeking public office. In Greenville three women ran for the City Council, and all three were among the top ten in voting totals, meaning that all are eligible for participation in a runoff election.

Women are proving that, once they develop the interest in politics and municipal government, they can be elected to governing boards, and move on into the position of mayor. In fact there is no limit to what women can do in seeking political office in this country.

It is a trend that we welcome.

Good Start On School Merger Project

The Pitt County and Greenville Boards of Education have held their first joint session on the question of merger of the two systems.

The boards agreed to ask the State Division of School Planning to initiate a survey of the two systems.

This is a start and that is good. The boards should take adequate time to plan carefully for merger—but there should be no foot dragging.

THIS AFTERNOON

State Has Double Trouble

By BILL NOBLITT
Double dipping has gotten a lot of attention lately; mostly in the federal government, and mostly involving retired military types who draw down a pension and a salary from a full-time job.

The State of North Carolina has some double-dipping problems also—and the term applies to more possible mispractices than just retirees getting back on the payroll.

There's no way at this time to tell how widespread the condition is. But state auditors say there is a way they can find out.

Computerized lists of governmental employees and their Social Security numbers can be used to single out all such cases. The process would be costly and time consuming, but a legislative commission is mulling the possibility of doing just that.

Pensioners

"We have a good many people working in State government who are retired military or governmental employees who are also on pension," says John Buchan of the State Auditor's office.

Some have reached sufficient time on the state payroll to retire, get their pensions, then take another job. Former law enforcement officers, particularly, fall in this category since they can take earlier retirement than others. The situation also applies to former local governmental employees.

Besides the pensioner on the payroll, however, there are other forms of double-dipping which give auditors some concern.

A "good-buddy" system was in effect until just a few short years ago in which State employees with "unique talents" could hold down a full-time job in one agency while serving part-time as a consultant to another. The extra work is supposed to be done only on vacation or compensatory off-time.

The procedure was changed to require approval by the supervisor before an employee can receive such extra pay from another agency, and the paycheck must be written to the agency which hires the person full-time, and the amount then added to the employee's regular salary. That provides a cross-check of sorts—but since nobody keeps track of the system anyway it is still no known just how many people are doing it; or how much money changes hands.

Medicine

That activity, says Buchan, is especially noticable in medical fields where an employee of the State Health Division also does some work for the Medical School at Chapel Hill or at Memorial Hospital; or vice versa.

NOBLITT

A member of the Legislative Fiscal Research Staff takes the matter of double-dipping a little farther. Hilda Highfill defines it as any employee paid twice from any public funds.

Under that definition, the practice is even more widespread, and Mrs. Highfill can supply case after case.

A law enforcement officer who teaches a class at his local Community College while on the clock at the police station;

A prison supervisor who teaches basic institutional cooking classes to prison inmates while on duty, and also drawing down a check from the Community College system.

An employee at Western Carolina Center who taught nursing classes to 156 students while on salary, and getting the extra check. In many cases the classes are actually held on the premises of the institutions involved.

Problems with the system go even further, says Mrs. Highfill. Take the nursing class, for instance: running it actually cost just over $2,200. But under the law for budgeting money to the Community College system, the school received over $10,000 in earned Full-time Equivalent credit—plus additional money for administrative expenses, counseling, library and other school services for the numbers of students enrolled.

The Governmental Operations Commission chaired by Lt. Gov. James C. Green is looking into double-dipping with the possibility of authorizing auditors to set up the computer crosscheck.

Washington's Thinking

WASHINGTON — The most interesting thing when you leave the nation's capital and travel around the country is that everyone believes that Washington has a mind of its own. I know this because I am asked such questions as "What does Washington think of Jimmy Carter?" or "How does Washington feel about Bert Lance?" or "When is Washington going to do something about my fuel bill?" Or, if you're talking to business executives, the question inevitably is "Why doesn't Washington leave us alone?"

It is fruitless to explain to people that Washington doesn't think at all, and if it has any feelings it keeps them bottled up inside. A Washingtonian, whether he wants to or not, is expected to tell the people in the country what Washington is up to.

I find the best way to do this is to ask the taxi driver who is driving me to the airport to give me a briefing on Washington's thoughts. All taxi drivers in Washington, before they take their cabs out on the street, are handed a mimeographed sheet entitled, "What Washington Is Thinking Today." Whenever they are asked a question they refer to the sheet and respond with the answer.

The other morning I was on my way to Boston and I said to my driver, "What does Washington think of Jimmy Carter today?"

He picked up his clipboard. "As of this morning he's in a lot of trouble with Congress on energy, the Panama Canal and tax reform. Washington feels that style is not enough. It wants results."

"Please don't go too fast. I want to write all this down," I told him. "What does Washington think about the three-martini lunch?"

"Washington is for the three-martini lunch, though it's willing to compromise on a two-martini lunch if the grass roots put too much pressure on Congress. But it would rather do without lunch if Carter cuts it down to one martini."

"How does Washington feel about Moscow?"

"Washington doesn't trust Moscow," he said, reading from his sheet. "But it believes that it is important to get along with Moscow even if it can't love it. Washington does feel warmer toward Moscow this week than it did last week, but it is still holding its breath over SALT."

"How is Washington taking the South Korean scandal?" I asked.

"In its stride," the taxi driver replied. "Washington, of course, is very disappointed that Tongsun Park won't come back to testify, but it will have to live with other witnesses involved in the scandal. Washington

A Long Water Fight

By GAYLE FISHER
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The proud Truckee River is drying up, but a fight over who should get the water grinds on in federal court, where it has been for the last 64 years.

The Pyramid Lake Paiute Indian Tribe wants its fair share of water to maintain the fishery at Pyramid Lake, at the end of the Truckee. And along the way, users of the water — the cities of Reno and Sparks — want the myriad of ranchers — want their fair share, too.

Some say there isn't enough water to go around, and others say there is. That is the ground on which the battle lines have been drawn.

The latest chapter in the Truckee River saga begins Oct. 27 in federal court here.

Judge J. Blaine Anderson of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is scheduled to hear final arguments in a four-year-old suit filed by the U.S. Justice Department on behalf of the Indian tribe.

In this round, the Indians named the Truckee-Carson Irrigation District and 13,000 other defendants in an action seeking enough water to keep the 11 guarantee enough river flow to maintain the lake and its fishery.

But according to Claude Dukes, federal water master, said the current low river flow into the lake has resulted because the lake has no right to the water. It gets what is left over from the users upstream.

The tribe says it does have rights to the water, arguing that it was not given fair legal representation in previous litigation which led to river water use priorities.

Some of that complex legal maneuvering included the controversial Orr Ditch Decree of (Continued on page 6)

40 Years Ago Today

October 21, 1937

President Roosevelt said it had not been determined whether Congress would have to enact new taxes. He added, as things look now, such levies would not be necessary.

The President remarked treasury studies were being made and he hoped they would be in shape for use by congressional committees meeting in November to consider tax revision.

Governor Hoey said that North Carolina's "state road system" and especially "secondary roads" would receive major attention during his administration.

The governor spoke at exercises marking the opening of the Ahoskie-Coleraine road in Ahoskie.

Cordell Hull, America's secretary of state, summoned the "outraged conscience of mankind" today to set in motion forces designed to restore world peace.

In an address prepared for delivery at Toronto University, Hull inveighed against "international lawlessness" generally but did not refer specifically to the conflicts in China and Spain to which his remarks obviously were intended to apply.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Human Rights Shift

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The shift in President Carter's human rights campaign from shrill publicity to quiet diplomacy became evident in one aspect of Mr. Carter's talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Sept. 30.

Although strategic arms and a Mideast settlement were the centerpieces, the President pointedly raised one of the most celebrated Soviet human rights cases, believed here to be a direct violation of the Helsinki accords — the case of Anatoly Scharansky. Scharansky, a leading dissident, was arrested without public charge in mid-March and, so far as any one in the West knows, is still in jail.

Eschewing hints of threat or retaliation (both clearly in the U.S. arsenal), Mr. Carter repeated privately what he had said publicly on June 13: that the still-unpublished charge of high treason against Scharansky as a U.S.

spy is without foundation. He asked Gromyko to convey his strong personal hope to President Leonid Brezhnev that Scharansky be set free.

Mr. Carter's new hush-hush approach to human rights, a keystone of his foreign policy, was dramatically different from the soap-box treatment of earlier days, but so was Gromyko's response. He accepted the Carter thrust without reproach.

This toned-down exchange between the two leaders also contrasted sharply with the ferocious exchange between Rita Hauser, a U.S. delegate, and key Communist party leaders at the so-called U.S.-Soviet "Dartmouth" conference in Riga, Latvia, last July. When Hauser raised the Scharansky case and asked for an explanation, Soviet members of the conference flared, caustically telling her it was not the business of the U.S., that it was strictly an "internal" matter and that Soviet legal authorities had "evidence" against Scharansky.

The muted publicity now being given the human rights campaign has led many critics toward this angry but unproved conclusion: Mr. Carter, his White House adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and the State Department, stung by the Kremlin's public fury in expressing displeasure over the U.S. campaign have backed away from human rights to reach an accommodation with Moscow on strategic arms and other issues.

The critics may prove right in the end, but evidence is lacking today, as witness the following:

Item: In a high-level session with State Department bureaucrats in the National Security Council's situation room the afternoon of Aug. 23, Brzezinski switched signals on U.S. plans for the second session of the post-Helsinki Belgrade conference. In collaboration with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, he recruited Arthur Goldberg as chief U.S. delegate, Middle-level U.S. diplomats, wanting to minimize U.S.-Soviet disagreements, backed Ambassador Albert W. Sherer, a Class 1 career Foreign Service officer who headed the U.S. delegation in last spring's preliminary Belgrade session, but clearly lacks Goldberg's stature.

Item: Goldberg laid down a condition for accepting the post. Although he would not court "confrontation" with the Russians over mind-boggling Soviet violations of "Basket Three" — outlining basic human rights for nations that signed the 1975 Helsinki accords — he insisted on his unqualified right to "push compliance" by the Soviets.

Item: Pro-human rights hardliners in the U.S. commission on security and cooperation — set up to police the Helsinki accords — claim that Goldberg's public speeches and private argumentation during closed-door sessions at Belgrade so far are beyond complaint by those wanting the U.S. to keep Soviet feet to the fire.

Whether this mid-course judgment proves correct by the time the Belgrade conference ends remains to be seen. One unknown factor is how the Soviets themselves maneuver through the Belgrade conference and deal with pressures from the West to open the human rights "crack wider."

Strength For Today

THE BEST TIME IS NOW

In seventeenth century Britain, when war had bitterly divided the people, the chapel of Staunton Harold was built. The dedication inscription reads, "In the year 1653 when all things were throughout ye nation either demollisht or profaned, Sir Robert Shirley, Barronet, founded this church: whose singular praise it is to have done the best things in ye worst times and hoped them in the most callamitous."

The Apostle Paul declared that "tribulation worketh steadfastness; and stead-fastness, approvedness; and approvedness, hope."

Certainly the time to do good things would appear to be a season in which people appreciate the value of good things. Why cast pearls before swine? But Paul preached the gospel in an age when all he got for his trouble was blows, curses, and finally death.

And Sir Robert Shirley built a chapel when all things throughout England were "either demollisht or profaned." It remains to this day a temple to the glory of God.

Baffling U.S. Fiscal Puzzle

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past year and a half the federal government has been battling a fiscal puzzle equal to the medical mystery of the Legionnaire's Disease.

How is the disease transmitted, by air or water or through some unknown medium? Just as baffling is the fiscal mystery, which could have equally dire consequences for susceptible bureaucrats.

The mystery concerns the money that wasn't spent. It was budgeted, allocated and put into the pipeline, but evidence of its use didn't show up at the other end. Where did it go? What happened to it?

A known fact is this: Estimates made last June put federal spending for fiscal 1977 at close to $408 billion. More recently the Carter administration estimated the figure at $404 billion to $406 billion.

But now it appears that spending in the fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, came to no more than $403 billion, so even by White House estimates about $1 billion to $3 billion somehow was left over.

The federal government unable to spend money! What kind of ineptness is that, asked the critics, who had become accustomed to seeing Washington dispose of funds with elan and professional polish.

Such lack of spending might be attributed to bureaucratic ineptness, but this is not the case with the money unsent by our federal government. Every effort was made to spend it.

Still, the problem was widespread. Merrill Lynch Economics, which looked into the rare phenomenon, reports that "underspending has been spread throughout many functions and departments, including defense, veterans programs, the new job programs, etc."

To what can the situation be attributed? Economists at ML believe the government's desire was bigger than its ability — that in part the explanation is that officials simply overestimated their ability to quickly run through funds.

They overestimated, says ML Economics, in these separate areas:

—The cost of established programs.

—The demand for certain services of the federal government.

—The speed at which new programs could begin.

—The cost of established programs, such as defense manpower and procurement, have fallen below expectations. Military personnel expenses are going to run about $500 million below the official January budget, it reports.

In the category of "demand for services" the economists note that "the Department of Labor overestimated the number of people requiring unemployment insurance, and those outlays are $2 billion below that department's January estimates."

The Department of Transportation expected state governments to apply for more highway funds than they did. And Veterans Administration outlays apparently were far over the mark.

In the third category, that of overly ambitious estimates of how soon new programs could be implemented, a prime example is said to be the local public works program, under which the federal government offers grants to municipalities.

There are other reasons; these are only a few. But now that at least part of the mystery has been unraveled, critics say another one remains.

"Can it be done again?" they ask.

New Approach By Missionaries

By TERRAY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP)—After more than 100 years of trying to convert Japan to Christianity, foreign missionaries are changing both their attitudes and their tactics.

"We are moving toward a new type of Christianity," says the Rev. Jose M. de Vera, a Jesuit priest and dean of Sophia University's International College. "We have changed. We are not out to convince and convert people in large numbers."

"We are out to make them aware of the possibilities of Christianity. If they find something there, fine."

Despite the efforts of thousands of foreign missionaries since Japan was reopened to the world in 1856, only about one per cent of the 113 million

Japanese are baptized Christians.

"We've had a chance for 100 years, but we haven't exactly swept the Japanese off their feet," admitted the Rev. Neal H. Lawrence, a Benedictine missionary from Hartsville, Tenn.

Many missionaries say the reasons for their lack of success came partly from Japanese culture, partly from the western nature of Christianity and partly from the missionaries themselves.

First, the tactics of the missionaries often turned off prospective Japanese Christians. "When we first came here, we were trained to go door-to-door," said the Rev. Hubert Helling of the Church of the Nazarene. But in Japan, not even salesmen go door-to-door. "It's considered impolite, both-ersome."

Such direct approaches are still followed by a few religions in Japan — Jehovah's Witnesses, Latter-day Saints (Mormons) and some "new" religions, both Christian and non-Christian. The Unification Church, whose members are commonly known as "moonies," claims direct evangelism, including street corner pitches, has netted them 260,000 members in Japan since active missionary work began in 1964.

But a recent survey ordered by the Oriens Institute for Religious Research and conducted by the J. Walter Thompson agency found that Japanese respect and strongly dislike the direct approach, either on the street or at their door. It turns up few prospective converts and alienates the others.

"Japan may be the hardest country in the world for the old style 'conversion' missionary," said the Rev. David Swain, editor of the Japan Christian quarterly. "It's the Japanese delicacy of human relationships. You just don't go crashing into someone's life like that."

After a few years in Japan, learning the language and the culture, most Catholic and Protestant missionaries interviewed said they had moved away from such tactics as unproductive. Instead, they make themselves known in the town or city, work with already-converted Christians and wait for others to come to them.

Drug Abuse Omitted In Report On Presley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Drug abuse is not mentioned as the cause of death on Elvis Presley's death certificate, which was filed with local health officials Thursday, a published report says.

Dr. Jerry Francisco, medical examiner, completed the death certificate Thursday morning, which was hand-delivered to Memphis-Shelby County Health Department director Dr. George Lovejoy. The Commercial Appeal, the city's morning newspaper, reported in today's editions.

Francisco scheduled a news conference for today to discuss the extensive autopsy performed on the body of the 42-year-old entertainer who died Aug. 16 at his Graceland Mansion.

Neither Lovejoy or Robert E. Burke, director of the health department's statistical division, would release the cause of death Thursday. Under state law, a death certificate is a private document for 50 years, after which it becomes public record.

However, a source quoted by the newspaper said the cause of death was attributed to heart failure and there was no mention of drugs on the certificate.

The principal cause and contributing causes of death are ordinarily listed on death certificates, but contributing causes need not be listed.

"Vernon Presley (Elvis' father) has my report," said Dr. Eric Muirhead, chief of pathology at Baptist Hospital, where the autopsy was performed.

"Our dealings have been entirely with the family. He is the only one who can release it, if he wishes. That's all I am going to say."

Muirhead and his staff stated in the autopsy report that Presley's death was definitely caused by the 10 drugs found in his bloodstream, the newspaper said.

The drugs — including Demerol, codeine and the tranquilizer Valium — suppressed Presley's central nervous system, the newspaper said.

The published report also said the autopsy concluded that the singer suffocated.

When the singer passed out and fell to the floor of his bathroom, his breathing was probably hampered because he was facedown in deep carpeting and his circulation was cut off because of the position of the body on the floor, the newspaper said.

The autopsy concluded Presley's heart, diseased and depressed by drugs was strained by the restricted circulation, the newspaper said. Francisco said the singer's heart was almost 50 per cent larger than normal.

Celebrating Our 150th Anniversary Year

The world of tomorrow will be quite a place. A button will be pushed, and it will rain. Planes will wing through the heavens at 5,000 miles an hour. Freight will be shot across the continent by missile. Hurricanes will be halted in their course and sent back to sea.

Sound fantastic? Maybe. But time has a way of making the fantastic and incredible become commonplace. Few of us marvel over television any more. We take it for granted, along with the other wonders of today's modern world.

The future is frightening for many of us to think about. The unknown has always held a basic fear in the minds of some. Coping with the problems and challenges of the present is enough for most of us.

But whatever the future holds, each of us can march more confidently into it by trusting God. Attend His church regularly.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Friday's forecast includes rain for the Great Plains including major portions of Colorado and Kansas, according to the National Weather Service. Rain is also due for the Pacific Northwest and showers are expected to fall over west Texas and northern New England. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
High pressure covers the eastern third of the nation and the result, as far as North Carolina is concerned, is fine fall weather. Temperatures are a little below normal for this time of year, but there's little room for complaint.

Temperatures generally reached the mid to upper 60s around the state Thursday, although Wilmington managed to reach an afternoon high of 70. Today's high readings were expected to be about the same, possibly with more readings in the low 70s.

The outlook is for continued good weather on into the weekend with a warming trend. The forecast called for mostly sunny today and Saturday and fair tonight and a little warmer.

Temperatures this morning were a little nippy, with 31 at Asheville, 35 at Greensboro and Raleigh, and 37 at Hickory and Rocky Mount. Tonight's lows are expected to be mostly in the 40s, with some 30s in the mountains and some 50s on the coast.

Torrijos Says Treaty Includes Defense Aid

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanian leader Gen. Omar Torrijos, campaigning for the new Panama Canal treaty, said Thursday the United States would be "obligated" to defend this country if it is "attacked by a superior force."

Torrijos spoke in a "Conversation with the People" broadcast nationwide three days before Sunday's referendum here on the proposed treaty.

The main treaty would turn control of the canal over to Panama by the year 2000, and a separate treaty declares the canal neutral and open to ships of all flags. The neutrality accord gives the United States the right to defend the waterway if it is ever endangered.

"There are those who say I signed a receipt for intervention — but that is not true," Torrijos said, referring to leftist Panamanian critics of the agreement.

"If we are attacked by a superior force, the United States is obligated to defend us. I am not ashamed of this. I want the canal to be really neutral, so that all the world respects the isthmus," the general said. "If there is an attack superior to our forces, we push the button, the bell rings there (in Washington), and they must come to our defense."

He said he made this point to President Carter in their meeting last Friday in Washington.

Torrijos said he and Carter also discussed potential anti-American violence in Panama.

"He told me that I am in complete agreement with you, Torrijos, that when the peaceful means for a people's liberation are exhausted then they must resort to other means," the general recalled.

But, Torrijos added, "he told me that does not justify going directly to the road of violence" if the treaties are not approved.

"You have to convince the world that you are right because if not you will be accused of being intransigent," Torrijos said the President told him.

An estimated 800,000 of Panama's 1.7 million people are expected to vote in the plebiscite and approve the treaty.

Government officials say they have been surprised by the intense opposition to the pact here.

Torrijos said Thursday he had "a special message for the people."

"I would like to ask our people that hatred not be spread in the heat of this debate. I don't want to leave a country integrated under a single flag but with a divided people," he said.

Avers Security Is Uppermost

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster says he is more interested in the security of South Africa than in the views of the United States toward his government's latest crackdown on organizations and individuals opposed to apartheid.

In his first public statement since the mass arrests and bannings of black organizations and newspapers, Vorster told a group of cheering supporters Thursday that statements by the U.S. State Department were "irrelevant."

"The Carter administration has for 10 months now been trying to make policy for us," the prime minister said.

He said a State Department announcement that the crackdown could harm relations between the United States and South Africa "is none of my business."

"I am not interested. As far as I am concerned it is totally irrelevant."

"You want a government which looks at the safety of South Africa."

The government on Wednesday outlawed virtually all important black groups, shut down the two leading black newspapers, detained more than 50 prominent blacks and imposed restriction orders on seven white critics of apartheid, this country's system of racial separation.

Sources at the United Nations said a Security Council meeting on South Africa may be held Monday or Tuesday. The 49-nation African Group has asked the council to urgently examine the "repressive measures" here.

The resumption of the debate on South Africa, which has been in recess since March, could confront the American U.N. ambassador, Andrew Young, with a new dilemma in U.S.-South African relations.

If the proposals finally put to a vote include tough, black African-sponsored international sanctions against South Africa, the United States would have to decide whether to use its veto, approve them or abstain.

Mr. Carter's appeal for Scharansky's release without provocative response indicates extreme Soviet wariness as the world spotlights the grim human rights picture in the Communist heartland. Likewise, the Kremlin has suddenly permitted increased Jewish emigration, which reached more than 1,600 last month — higher than any other month in 1977 (though way below the peak rate of 1973 at the height of detente).

The shift to quiet diplomacy by President Carter has cost him a powerful cutting edge for domestic politics, but quiet diplomacy, as much as the Belgrade conference, may be having a more productive impact on Moscow than the headlines of early 1977. Scharansky still rots in jail, but no formal charge has yet been made against him.

1944 which gave the Indians 32,000 acre feet of water a year — strictly for irrigation. There was no provision for the lake level being maintained.

Dukes said the Indians get an average of 5,500 acre feet per year of irrigation, far below the Orr mandate.

The Indians have argued all along they have never been treated fairly in legal decisions on use of Truckee River water. In the 1973 suit, the tribe argued the Orr Decree should be set aside and that it should be allowed more water.

The defendants are arguing that the Orr Decree is final and cannot be changed.

Both sides are awaiting Judge Anderson's ruling. If he rules the Orr decree is not final, another hearing will be held to determine what the water rights should be.

Court experts say if that happens, it will open the door to a huge court fight, especially from the major users of the water.

If the judge holds the decree is final, the Indians undoubtedly will appeal. In either case, the matter could drag on for decades. He will rule after hearing the final arguments.

Tells Role In Newsroom

A temporary newsrooming job turned into an 18 year career for Daily Reflector reporter Stuart Savage.

Savage, a native of Greenville, spoke to a group of ECU journalism students on the mechanics and importance of his job.

Beginning his day at 8:30 a.m., Savage covers the police station, fire department, the courts, and other various areas. He also covers special assignments given him from the managing editor. All this work must be ready by the 11:00 deadline.

The afternoon is reserved for meetings and setting up news features for the following day.

Savage emphasized the importance of a good memory in combination with good note-taking. An error can make or break a potential story. Savage prefers note-taking to using a tape recorder, saying that "if a recorder is used, the reporter is actually having to listen to the same meeting twice."

Prior to his newspaper career, Savage served as an ambulance driver, police officer, and a member of the Marine Corps.

Savage has won several photography awards from the North Carolina Press Association. He said that photography helps in the advancement of a reporting career. Along with his photography awards, Savage has also won an award for newsrooming from the North Carolina Press Association.

FHA Team To Aid Applicants

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Congressman Walter B. Jones announced that the Farmer's Home Administration at the Washington level at his request is sending into North Carolina a team of 20 to 25 people to help process the Emergency Disaster Loan Applications.

Jones said that the applications have created a backlog at the Raleigh office.

He added that he hopes this will expedite the processing so that farmers who have made applications will be able to make plans accordingly.

'Laugh-in' Routine Hits A Stonewall

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Laugh-In" producer George Schlatter is morose. Why? It seems NBC won't let an explanation of how babies are made or avoided be in a new show of his, "The Great American Laugh-Off."

He finds this odd, considering the show, taped in San Francisco and featuring only young new comics, is airing late at night this Saturday in the slot usually filled by "Saturday Night Live."

"They've had some pretty raunchy stuff on there," he said, adding that last week's show had Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner in a salute to sex. "But I don't think anything in 'Laugh-Off' is raunchy."

The 2½-minute skit banned from Schlatter's show was taped outdoors before a daytime audience that included children.

Performed by a troupe called "Duck's Breath," it depicts a nun, a bishop and the Holy Spirit acting out the processes of conception and contraception with sight gags, odd noises and words.

"I fail to see what's offensive about it at 12:30 at night when it's been performed live on the streets of San Francisco at noon for even church groups and schools the last two years," he said.

Hermínio Traviesas, NBC's vice-president for program standards, said by phone from New York he initially had the routine proposed to him in script form and rejected it.

"Then George rightfully said, 'Would I take a look at it first,' so we did and turned it down," he said.

Asked why, he said, "Well, we just don't think the audience is ready for that specific a subject, of sexual education or how babies are born."

"And even though it's comedic, we just don't think we're ready for it" even late at night, he added.

Traviesas also said he was concerned about the depiction of church folk acting out the process of contraception, but "I'm not too sure I would have accepted it even without the religious part."

Schlatter, who says he considered the skit "totally inoffensive and charming," groused that the rejection of it goes against the whole idea of

"The Great American Laugh-Off."

And that idea, he said, "is to South made a fine effort to bring home his three no trump contract, but an alert defender forced him to bow the knee.

With 14 points and a perfectly balanced hand, South had a classic two no trump jump response. North could do no more than raise—to rebid his diamonds would show an unbalanced hand, suggesting there was better of having differing rules for the "Tonight" show, "Saturday Night Live" and his program when it comes to what is acceptable and what is a no-no.

hearts could even be dangerous—declarer was marked with at least one heart honor and he could see the ace-ten in dummy.

In short, clubs offered the only hope for the defense. So West shifted to the ten of clubs, and declarer was a dead duck. Whether he covered in dummy or not, the defenders would have to get two club tricks. They already had two spades in the bank, so the contract hinged on the diamond finesse. When East showed up with the king, that was five tricks for a thoughtful defense.

Area C-Of-C Sponsors Program On Bond Issue

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a program "Why North Carolina Needs a Bond Issue for Water and Sewer and a $300 Million Road Bond Issue?" at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the Holiday Inn Restaurant.

The speaker for the program, which will include free coffee, soft drinks and donuts, will be Thomas W. Bradshaw, North Carolina Secretary of Transportation.

Reservations for the program can be made by contacting the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce at Post Office Box 894, or calling 752-4101.

Voters on November 8 will go to the polls to vote on five constitutional amendments as well as the $300 million highway bond proposal and a $230 million clean water bond issue.

"It is absolutely essential that the public be informed about these critical bond issues," Bradshaw said. "When we look to the future, the need for clean water and improvements to our bridges and highways is apparent and essential for our continued economic growth. The need for additional funds is there. I want to do all I can to explain these issues to the people across the State."

Pirates Face Challenge Of Citadel

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Two years ago, East Carolina University's Pirates got off to what can only be modestly referred to as a "slow" start. The Pirates, in their second year under Coach Pat Dye, were beaten by N.C. State, overwhelmed by Appalachian State, before beating William & Mary. The Bucs then added a second victory over Southern Illinois, and hosted Richmond with high hopes.

That Richmond game turned sour at halftime however, as the Pirates blew a 14-0 lead to lost 17-14. It cost them any hope of a Southern Conference championship, and left them with a 2-3 record.

There were grumblings from the alumni and the fans. And Pat Dye learned just who his true friends really were as the fair-weather ones deserted him for drier ground.

That brought the Pirates to Charleston, S.C., where the Bulldogs awaited, canine teeth sharpened to a fine edge.

But something happened that week. The Pirates fought one of their guttiest games on defense and came away with a 3-0 win over the Bulldogs.

It was the start of a new life for the Pirates and for Dye. Now, those fair-weather friends have returned, along with a flock of new followers. Dye's Pirates have run off 21 victories, including that game, while losing only three times.

But this Saturday, it's back to Charleston, that noisy corps of cadets, and those Bulldogs with their teeth, somewhat blunted, but still dangerous waiting.

Despite the fact that The Citadel brings only a 3-3 record into the game, Dye feels that their home field advantage is a big one, and that the Bulldog defense is a tough one.

"They will give us a tremendous test," he said. "They play an eight-man front that gives us a lot of problems. They have always been good against us, and they are one of the best around in not giving up a score."

Perhaps one thing that scares Dye most of all, the cadets that will be up in the stands. They stomp, hollar, and generally keep up a constant racket the entire game. "That's so much of an advantage for a home team," Dye said.

The effect of the cadets can perhaps be seen in that all three Citadel wins came at home, and all three of their losses were on the road. They beat Wofford, 7-0, in the opener, then lost 21-2 against Navy. They returned home to beat Western Carolina, 20-0, then topped Presbyterian, 13-7, again at home. The past two weeks, they've been on the road, losing to Delaware, 23-7, and to VMI, 19-3.

The Bulldogs have been allowing 332.3 yards a game by their opponents, 183.3 on the ground and 147.3 through the air. They've picked up 236.3 per game overall. That includes 102.3 per game on the ground and 133.4 through the air.

They have one of the better passers around in Marty Crosby. He's hit on 67 of 137 passes for 791 yards, although he hasn't hit for a touchdown. Nine have been picked off against him.

His top target has been Mike Riley with 33 catches for 461 yards. The split end ranks second in the nation in per game receptions with an average of 5.5 catches per game.

The Citadel also has another national leader in safety Paul Gillis. He's picked up five interceptions, and with 0.83 per game is tied for fourth place in the country.

On the ground, the Bulldogs have had some trouble moving the ball. Tailback Lonnie Ford, listed as second string for this game, has 239 yards to lead the 'Dogs. Fullback Sam Scadlock is next with 105 yards, while backup Jeff Turner has 100.

Ford is their leading scorer with 18 points, while kicker Paul Tanguay is next with 14. He's kicked three of seven field goals, but three of his misses have been from 50 or more yards.

Gillis is also the leader in tackles, with 99, while defensive guard Tony Starks is next with 90. Kenny Caldwell, linebacker, ranks third with 83 grabs.

The Pirates counter that with an offense that has averaged 370.1 yards a game, 271.4 on the ground and 98.7 on the aerial route. The Bucs have allowed 140.4 per game on the ground and 137.9 through the air for a 278.3 total.

Fullback Theodore Sutton is the leading rusher with 456 yards, while quarterback Leander Green is next with 384. Quarterback Jimmy Southerland has 272 and halfback Willie Hawkins is fourth with 231.

Southerland has hit on 30 of 50 passes for 570 yards, with two interceptions and two touchdowns. Terry Gallaher is his favorite target with 13 catches for 292 yards.

Southerland is the leading scorer with 36 points, while kicker Junior Creech has 31. Green is next with 24.

The Pirates, now 6-1, will return home next Saturday for their final home contest, against Southwestern Louisiana.

But before that, they must shake off those tenacious Bulldogs.

Kickoff in Johnson Hagood Stadium in Charleston is set for 7 p.m.

Bolt Hoping For No More Lows At Citadel

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
There have been highs and lows for East Carolina offensive guard Wayne Bolt, but he feels that his lowest low came in a Pirate victory.

That win came just about two years ago at the same place the Bucs will be playing Saturday night—Charleston, S.C.

The Pirates, 2-3 on the year at the time, were playing The Citadel, and escaped with a 3-0 victory. It evened their record, and it turned around the season.

"After that game, I felt the worst I've ever felt after a game. It was a hard-fought game all the way, and we never had a chance to let up. But it turned our season around, so I guess it was pretty good after all," the 257-pound senior said.

Bolt says that he enjoys life down in the pit where it's muscle against muscle. "It's dirty and nasty, but somebody has to play there, and I guess that I'm built for it."

He shares the dream of many a college lineman, however. That dream is to look down and find that one of his backs has fumbled the ball. "I'd love to be able to pick up one and carry it for a touchdown. I'd really like to do a little dance or spike the ball or something.

"Sometime I even wish that one of the backs would give me the ball after he scores so I could do it," Bolt said.

Asked what the coaches would say about that since it would certainly draw a yellow flag from the officials and a 15-yard penalty on the kickoff.

"Well, I hope they wouldn't be too hard on me. It's getting late in the season, and I'm a senior," he said.

Bolt isn't bothered by the fact that the men who carry the ball get most of the media attention. "As long as they (the media, and the backs) don't forget us, it's okay. The backs know how important we are, and I guess that there is enough press for everyone. Besides, everyone loves you when you are winning."

While the win over The Citadel brought Bolt his lowest feelings, he has several highs. They came with the victory over North Carolina, and the twin-wins over N.C. State. "Getting selected to the all-Conference team last year, and winning the Southern Conference title were great feelings too," he said.

This year, with no conference, Bolt doesn't really feel that the Pirates are handicapped. "We all want to win, and we want to win them all. I think we can be 10-1 this year, and I think we can go to a bowl game. I'd love to go down to Florida or to the Peach Bowl."

"We've started putting it together more now, and if we win the rest, I don't see how they can overlook us."

Bolt, after the end of his career at East Carolina, would like to try his luck in the professional ranks. "I know my height (6-1) will not help me, but I feel that I can play either in the NFL or in Canada. It's been a dream for me. With a break or two, I think I can make it."

Kickers Defeated

ROCKY MOUNT — The East Carolina soccer team was shut out for the fourth consecutive game yesterday, as N.C. Wesleyan downed the Pirates, 2-0.

The loss dips the ECU soccer record to 2-8 on the year. N.C. Wesleyan rose to 4-3-1. The Pirates travel to North Carolina on Saturday.

There was a further shaking up of the standings on a panel of experts last week, but this week, there will probably be little movement.

We tried to come up with some close games, according to the Dunkel ratings, but just about everyone went with the same teams.

Jim Kyle is the only one who showed any inclination to go out on a limb by himself. Saturday will tell whether he was the smartest or not.

Currently Steve Hemric and Vickie Spivey lead the pack with 55-22-1 records, Joe Jenkins is one back at 54-23-1, while Tom Baines slipped to third at 53-24-1. Kyle is next at 52-25-1, while we trail the field at 51-26-1.

Chances are that everyone will be about the same position next week, but we hope that we'll all have good weeks to improve our percentages.

On the high school scene, we have only five games to choose from.

The highlight of course is the Farmville Central-Ayden-Grifton clash. We'll save that one for last.

Roanoke travels to North Johnston. That will probably decide if the Redskins have a chance to win the conference championship. It promises to be a hard-fought game, one that could go right down to the wire. We'll stick with Roanoke since they've

Friend's Tip Helped Jerry Pate Fire 64 To Lead Southern Open

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A tip from a friend helped Jerry Pate fire a sparkling, opening-round, six-under-par 64 for the lead in the $125,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

Pate, formerly of the University of Alabama, played near-perfect golf Thursday in establishing a one-stroke lead over the par-70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Dave Eichelberger was second at 65 entering today's second round. Eichelberger, an 11-year pro from Fort Worth, Tex., has been a winner twice in his pro career, capturing the Greater Milwaukee Open in 1971 and this year.

George Archer was two strokes back at 66, and Johnny Miller carded a 67. Lee Trevino was another shot behind and defending champion Mac McLendon had a 69.

"I played better today than I have all year," said the 24-year-old Pate, who won the U.S. Open last year and captured the Phoenix Open this year, the first tourney of the season in January.

"I hit every green," said

Pate, who has earned nearly $72,000 this year and a total of $227,000 in three years on the tour. "It was just a matter of making the putts."

Pate did just that. He putted only 30 times, including birdies of 30 feet, two of 20, two of six and another of about two feet. He did not bogey a hole.

"A real good friend in Pensacola, Fla., (Jimmy Cotton) noticed that I had been placing the ball outside my left foot," said Pate. "So I moved the ball back inside my left foot. I've been trying to get back to this since last Friday."

Pate added, "It didn't feel comfortable until today."

Eichelberger said, "I drove the ball in the fairway, hit my irons good and putted well. This is the best I've played since mid-summer."

Archer, who has been playing consistently of late, said he also putted well.

"I started a little shaky and it took me about nine holes to get warmed up," said Archer, who had bogeys on one and 18 but had six birdies in between.

Miller said he "scored better than I played, but happiness for a golfer is getting more out of your rounds than you deserve."

Atlantic Coast Title Race Can Be Narrowed Down After Games

By The Associated Press

Five teams are still battling for the Atlantic Coast Conference football title, but that number is likely to be reduced to three Saturday when Clemson hosts North Carolina State and Duke travels to Maryland.

Each of the four teams has one loss in conference play, and the losers of the two games will stand little chance to claim the ACC crown.

The winners will remain to challenge North Carolina, which is undefeated in ACC play. The Tar Heels have a nonconference date Saturday with South Carolina.

In the other ACC game Saturday, Virginia will host Wake Forest. Both teams have yet to win a conference game.

Here is a look at this week's ACC schedule:

N.C. STATE AT CLEMSON
1 p.m. Memorial Stadium
Clemson, S.C.

It has been nine years since Clemson defeated North Carolina State, but the Tigers appear to enter this year's encounter with a slight edge.

Clemson, ranked 20th in the nation this week, has won five straight since its opening-game loss to Maryland and is 2-1 in ACC play. N.C. State, 3-1 in the conference and 5-2 overall, was crushed by North Carolina last week, 27-14.

The contest shapes up as an offensive battle featuring the ACC's two most potent quarterbacks — State's Johnny Evans and Clemson's Steve Fuller. Evans averages 162.4 yards per game in total offense to Fuller's 154.8.

A capacity-plus crowd of more than 45,000 is expected for the game at Memorial Stadium, which visiting teams have come to call "Death Valley" because of the vocal Clemson fans.

DUKE AT MARYLAND
1:30 p.m. Byrd Stadium
College Park, Md.

Maryland, which earlier this season lost three straight games, has rebounded to win its last two and remains a contender for its fourth straight ACC championship with a 2-1 conference record.

But Duke, at 1-1 in the conference and 3-3 overall, is also in the thick of the conference race, despite losing to Clemson last week, 17-11.

Duke will rely on quarterback Mike Dunn to ignite the offense, but Blue Devil coach Mike McGee touts his offensive line as well, particularly 245-pound right guard Mike Sandusky and 248-pound right tackle John Patterson. "We know we can gain yardage behind Sandusky and Patterson," McGee says.

Larry Dick, who replaced injured quarterback Mike Mangels, has an impressive 60 per cent pass-completion mark for the Terrapins, the only ACC team to gain more yards this season through the air than on the ground.

WAKE AT VIRGINIA
1:30 p.m. Scott Stadium
Charlottesville, Va.

Wake Forest and Virginia fans have had little to cheer about this year. The Deacons have lost five straight since an opening-game victory over Furman, while the Cavaliers suffered five setbacks before tying Virginia Tech last week.

Both teams are 0-3 in conference play, and the loser of Saturday's game will be a prohibitive favorite to finish the season in the ACC cellar.

Wake Forest coach Chuck Mills is somewhat baffled at his team's showing so far. "Before the season, I thought we could make a run at the ACC championship," he says. "I look at the way we play sometimes and I think that was a fairly valid expectation. But it just doesn't show on the scoreboard."

Virginia coach Dick Bestwick is equally frustrated about his Cavaliers, who have scored only 21 points all season. "We're still a team that makes the big mistake at the wrong time," he says. "We just haven't matured enough to get the job done, but I think we will."

SOUTH CAROLINA AT UNC
1:30 p.m. Kenan Stadium
Chapel Hill, N.C.

North Carolina will try Saturday to score its first win against former ACC member South Carolina since 1964. The Tar Heels take a 4-2 overall mark into the game, while the Gamecocks are 4-3 after losing to Mississippi.

"South Carolina has very good personnel," says UNC coach Bill Dooley. "Ron Bass is certainly an outstanding quarterback. He can hurt you running and throwing."

Bass, directing the Gamecocks' triple-option offense, has passed for 918 yards and rushed for 214 more in seven games. But he will have to contend with a Tar Heel defense that has yielded an average of 7.3 points per game this season.

A new offensive star for the Tar Heels emerged in last week's victory over N.C. State, when freshman tailback Amos Lawrence ran for 216 yards, the third best ever by an ACC freshman.

S. Korea Diplomat Implicated

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The wives of two congressmen say the wife of a former South Korean ambassador tried to give them envelopes stuffed with cash during a congressional trip to Korea in 1975.

But other congressmen on that trip say the best offers they got were tailored suits and gambling chips.

House ethics committee hearings on alleged South Korean influence buying also produced hearsay testimony Thursday that South Korean President Park Chung Hee knew in advance of a $20,000 offer to a congressman by another Korean ambassador.

But former Korean intelligence agent Kim Sang Keun stressed to the committee he had only been told about President Park's knowledge and that he did not himself know it to be true.

The former agent said Washington-area businessman Hancho C. Kim, who ran a $600,000 operation financed by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, told him the $20,000 offer was made by former Ambassador Hahn H.E. Pyong Choon to an unnamed congressman.

The wives of Reps. E. de la Garza, D-Tex., and John T. Myers, R-Ind., testified that Mrs. Kim Dong Jo, wife of a former South Korean ambassador in Washington, tried to give them the cash-stuffed envelopes during midnight visits to their hotel rooms.

Both women said they and their husbands made Mrs. Kim and her husband take the money back.

Other witnesses testified Wednesday that former Ambassador Kim himself delivered envelopes full of $100 bills to congressmen's offices in 1972 and 1973.

But seven other congressmen who were on the trip to Seoul, most of them with their wives, said themselves or through aides that they received no such offers.

Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., recounted the story he has told before that a hotel gave him "$60 to $70" worth of free gambling chips.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said he refused an offer of a tailored suit. An aide said two suits were delivered to Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., in Washington after the trip, but that Badillo refused to accept them.

The ethics committee's rule against naming congressmen during this first round of hearings was accidentally broken by a witness who named former Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., as getting an envelope from Korean rice dealer Tong-sun Park.

The witness, B.Y. Lee, who worked for Tong-sun Park, said he delivered the "thin" envelope and took back a gold watch.

Passman, reached at his office in Monroe, La., said "I don't know the fellow (Lee). I don't recall any envelope ever being given to me. No one ever gave me an envelope containing money."

Meter-Tampering A Criminal Action

A new State law has established stiff penalties for persons who attempt to illegally cut their utilities bills by tampering with electric, gas or water meters, according to information from the Farmville Town Office.

House Bill 1277, which became effective Oct. 1, sets criminal penalties of up to $500 and two years' imprisonment and civil liability for triple damages for those who tamper with or alter such meters, Farmville Town Administrator Pat Thomas said.

The law makes it "unlawful for any unauthorized person to alter, tamper with or bypass a meter which has been installed for the purpose of measuring the use of electricity, gas or water from an altered or bypassed meter." An important feature of the law makes evidence of tampering or bypassing prima facie evidence of violation of the law by the person in whose name the meter is installed or the persons receiving the utilities service, Thomas said.

Farmville Water and Lights Department Director J. A. Wooten said the town has about a dozen instances of water meter tamperings a year and about a half dozen per year of electric meter tamperings. These have picked up in recent years as utilities costs have gone higher, he said, but should be curtailed with the passing of this new law.

Several Countries Have Trained Hijack Forces

By DONALD M. McNICOLL
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Besides the United States, West Germany and Israel, at least 10 other countries have highly skilled commando units trained to rescue hijack hostages, an Associated Press survey shows.

They are Britain, France, Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Austria, and Indonesia. The British colony of Hong Kong also has a commando group.

Though some governments acknowledge they have commandos whose job is to act against hijackers, authorities disclose few details about them. West Germany's unit flew to Somalia early this week and rescued the 86 surviving hostages of a hijacked Lufthansa airliner in Mogadishu. The rescue raid left three hijackers dead and a fourth wounded.

Until that operation, Israel's commandos were considered the world's elite anti-terror strike force because of their dramatic rescue of hijack passengers at Entebbe, Uganda, in July 1976.

Besides its commandos, Israel has security men aboard flights of Israeli El Al airliners. The United States and some other countries oppose that technique, citing possible danger to passengers in the event of gunbattles at high altitudes. In one dramatic operation in May 1972, Israeli commandos ended the hijack of a Belgian Sabena plane by disguising themselves as mechanics and bursting into the plane at Israel's Ben-Gurion airport. Two hijackers and one hostage were killed in the shootout, and 96 hostages were freed.

The British lent some assistance to the West Germans in the Mogadishu operation, sending two officers of the Special Air Services Regiment, usually known as the SAS, and providing specially developed grenades that explode with a flash which stuns anyone within range. They incapacitated the Mogadishu hijackers long enough to give the commando raiders the upper hand.

Secrecy shrouds the SAS, founded in World War II for sabotage operations behind enemy lines. The regiment takes part in anti-terrorist exercises at London's Heathrow airport, but so far has not been required to engage in any direct action against hijackers.

Typical of the secrecy surrounding the commandos is the sparse detail given by the Pentagon about the American anti-hijacking unit.

The Pentagon acknowledged that troops and equipment from each U.S. armed service branch have been assembled as an anti-terrorist group, but would say little more on the grounds that it might compromise the unit's effectiveness.

The Denver Post reported Wednesday, however, that commandos formed from the U.S. Army's Green Berets, the Marines, Navy and Air Force after the Israelis' Entebbe operation have been training at Fort Carson, Colo., Fort Greeley, Alaska, and Fort Irwin, Calif.

The newspaper said they have been reserved only for overseas roles. Domestic situations — like Thursday's hijacking of a Frontier Airlines plane to Atlanta, Ga. — are left to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and local police, it said.

Claims He's On Hunger Strike

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little's former attorney, Jerry Paul, said Thursday he was on a hunger strike at the Wake County Jail, where he is serving a contempt of court sentence stemming from Miss Little's sensational murder trial.

Paul said jailers had left his light on all night and he woke up with a migraine headache. He also said he had been denied medication prescribed by his doctor.

Jail officials said Paul had been given his medicine and the lights were a security measure.
