Energy Program Is Still Weeks Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic Whip John Brademas said today that congressional approval of a national energy program is "a few weeks off," raising the possibility that President Carter may be forced to cancel his four-continent trip next month.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said after he and Brademas, D-Ind., emerged from a White House breakfast with Carter that the legislation may be on the President's desk within three weeks.

Carter is scheduled to leave on the trip on Nov. 22, four weeks from today, but he has said he would postpone or cancel the journey if Congress is still working on the energy program.

Asked whether the President raised such a threat at the meeting today, as he had last week, Brademas said "he did not allude to that."

But Brademas agreed that the "few weeks" he predicted it may take to pass the legislation could delay approval until December.

O'Neill, unusually reticent, said no agreements on the legislation had been reached among House and Senate Democratic leaders at the meeting.

But, he said, "I think the President is doing everything he can."

Brademas said Carter emphasized his hope that the Senate will act quickly on the energy tax proposals coming out of the Senate Finance Committee so that conferees reconciling differences between the House and Senate bills can begin work on the entire energy program.

He said Carter told the congressional leaders he wanted an energy bill that treated consumers fairly, wouldn't enrich oil companies, encouraged reduced energy consumption and wouldn't destroy his hopes for a balanced budget.

The whip reported that Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chairman of the Finance Committee who has been at odds with Carter on many aspects of the energy legislation, said he did not want to sign a conference report for a bill that Carter would veto.

The Senate today is debating whether to raise taxes to force fuel saving or cut them selectively to reward conservation.

How the question is settled in the Senate and in a Senate-House conference committee next month will have long-term effects on the U.S. economy and national security.

Mild-Mannered Suburban Boy Becomes Werewolf

By DAVID TOMLIN

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The harvest moon of Halloween turns The Dancer's Shop into a ghoulish meeting place, where Benita Allen can transform the living into the living dead for $3 to $5.

Ms. Allen is manager of the shop, an ordinary looking place which for most of the year deals in leotards, dancing shoes and other show business paraphernalia.

But when the autumn moon is full and Halloween candy appears on supermarket shelves, Ms. Allen starts to work her bewitchery.

"It all began about three years ago, when we started carrying theatrical makeup," she said.

"We didn't realize how much makeup sold at Halloween. We were amazed. Last year it was so big that we realized how effective it was, really, so we decided this year to open a clinic," she said.

The "clinic" is a series of little seminars each night this week in which Ms. Allen and her sister, Jeanie Wilson, provide free instruction on an assortment of bizarre transformations.

The werewolf was Monday's exercise. It required about $3 worth of crepe hair, spirit gum and black makeup. Blond werewolves required applications of dark hair spray to keep from blowing their cover.

On Tuesday the sisters planned to produce dogs and ghosts. On Wednesday they were to teach youngsters how to use liquid latex to add about 70 years to their age. "Their faces will actually be wrinkled," Ms. Allen explained. "This one costs a

Jury Deadlocked

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — A jury said Tuesday morning it could not reach a verdict in the case of Buddy Cochran, charged with ramming his car into a crowd at a Ku Klux Klan rally in President Carter's hometown, but the judge sent them back for more deliberation.

"I feel we have searched through all areas. We cannot reach a verdict," said the foreman of the jury of six black and six whites.

But Superior Court Judge William F. Blanks asked the panel of nine women and three men to return to the jury room to either reach a decision or inform him how long it would take to do so.

The jury deliberated eight hours Monday without reaching a verdict on eight counts of aggravated assault brought against the white former Marine after his sports car plowed through a KKK rally in Plains last July and injured 32 spectators.

In charging the jury, Blanks said it could reach one of four verdicts — guilty of aggravated assault, guilty of simple assault, innocent or innocent by reason of insanity.

N.C. Delinquent Parent Search Is Paying Off

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's effort to track down delinquent parents to secure child support payments has begun to take in more than it costs to operate the program.

The program was set up two years ago. During the first year it spent more than it made in support payments.

But in the first seven months of this year, the program has brought in payments of $3.2 million, and its expenses were $2 million, according to Edwin C. Riley of the state Department of Social Services.

The money goes to reimburse welfare agencies which have been supporting families in which a parent has run off. Most often it is the father, but Riley said that in 15 per cent of the cases the mother was the delinquent parent. In other cases, both parents desert, leaving the children with relatives.

Riley said that since the program was created it has generated $5 million in support payments by tracking down parents and establishing paternity in cases where it is disputed.

Even if the father has not been ordered by a court to

Cannon Out Of Running

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorney Hugh Cannon became the first Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate to withdraw from that race today, throwing his support to Luther Hodges Jr. and blasting incumbent Sen. Jesse Helms as "a racial bigot."

Cannon, who was the first Democrat to enter the race for Helms' seat last year, said he was endorsing the former Charlotte banker because he thought Hodges stood the best chance of winning the nomination and defeating Helms.

Hodges was at Cannon's side when he made the announcement at his Raleigh law office.

"There's nothing I'd like better than to be the next senator from North Carolina. I'd almost sell my soul to do it," Cannon said. "I just haven't been able to put it together, and I think Luther Hodges is putting it together."

Cannon said he entered the race early because of his strong opposition to Helms, and when pressed, said he would document his bigotry charge over the next year.

"He doesn't represent North Carolina. He doesn't represent America. He doesn't represent anything we believe in," Cannon said. "A racial bigot cannot represent North Carolina, because we are not racial bigots."

Cannon said he is a close friend of another potential Senate candidate, Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten. But Cannon said he assumes Edmisten will not run, and intends to work actively for Hodges' campaign.

Hodges declined to say he agreed with Cannon's description of Helms, but said he welcomed his support.

Cannon, who spent less than $500 on his campaign, said he did not think most of the Democrats now in the running stood any hope of winning.

Weigh Sanctions For South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young says he favors mandatory United Nations sanctions against South Africa but the Carter administration has not decided yet whether to go that far because of the white South African government's latest crackdown on blacks.

In a Security Council debate that began Monday, black African nations are demanding that the council order a mandatory arms embargo and other stringent international measures against South Africa.

Young, emerging from the first day's debate, replied "Yes" when asked by reporters whether he supports some form of sanctions against the Pretoria government.

But he added: "My role is to describe the situation and possible alternatives (to the White House). ... The President and secretary of state will have to decide what sanctions are appropriate in these conditions."

The United States, Britain and France used their vetoes in the Security Council in 1975 to block a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa.

Young last March managed to fend off the same African resolution, which also calls for a halt to new investment in South Africa. But U.S. diplomatic sources say the situation has changed considerably since then.

"There are a lot of people in Washington saying we can't just dig in our heels and stick with the status quo," said one American.

Last week the Pretoria government outlawed 18 black organizations, shut down two black newspapers and arrested at least 50 leading black critics of its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

Leaf Price Support Program Outlook Is Glum

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite efforts to persuade farmers to bring cleaner leaf to market and a drought that shortened the tobacco crop, 1977 did little to improve the standing of the price support program.

"We're pretty much going to end up this year the way we ended up last year," said Fred G. Bond, general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

The co-op sets a support price level for each grade of tobacco, then borrows money and uses it to take tobacco off the hands of farmers who can't sell it on the market for at least 80 cent above the support price.

Later, the theory goes, the farmer-owned co-op can sell the tobacco it has taken and repay its loans.

But the co-op has so much tobacco on its hands, most of it of poor quality, that there is a possibility the federal government will have to cover some defaulted loans, a development that could spell the end of the program.

At the beginning of the season the co-op had 608.4 million pounds, and Bond was hoping this year to be able to cut that figure by a least 100 million pounds.

But the way things appear to be going now, 1977 sales are 213 million pounds and purchases of new leaf are expected to be between 150 million and 160 million pounds for a net reduction of well under 75 million pounds.

Purchases this year are more than twice what Bond was hoping to keep them to. Between Oct. 12 and Oct. 20 as much leaf was bought by the co-op as in the entire period between market opening in July until this month.

"When we get through, we may be handling 15 per cent of this crop," Bond said.

Learning Contents Of Products Can Aid Buyers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Castor oil, beeswax and borax. These are the items dreams are made of for American consumers who spend nearly $10 billion a year on cosmetics and toiletry preparations.

Learning what's in the different products can help you save money, decide among competing brands and protect yourself against items you might be allergic to.

The principal ingredient in lipstick, for example, is castor oil. Beeswax also is used in lipstick and it is mixed with borax in cleansing cream to prevent oil and water from separating.

A Food and Drug Administration regulation which took effect April 15 requires cosmetic manufacturers to list most ingredients on product labels, or, in cases where the item is very small, on accompanying packaging. But the agency says a lot of misinformation persists about what cosmetics can — and cannot — do.

The Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act defines cosmetics as substances which may be "rubbed, poured, sprinkled or sprayed on, introduced into or otherwise applied to the human body for cleansing, beautifying, promoting attractiveness or altering the appearance without affecting the body's structure or functions."

The effect on bodily functions is a key part of the definition. Products such as antiperspirants and antidandruff shampoos are legally classified as drugs because they are designed to change the way the body acts; deodorants and regular shampoos are cosmetics.

Drugs are much more strictly regulated than cosmetics. They must be proved safe and effective before they are placed on the market. No such testing is required for most cosmetic ingredients although the FDA does insist that if the manufacturer has not substantiated the safety of a product, the label must carry a statement saying: "WARNING — The safety of this product has not been determined."

Unlike the other ingredients, color additives used in cosmetics must be approved by the FDA for purity and safety. One of the best-known colorings, Red Dye No. 2, was banned by the government last year and manufacturers have been forced to develop substitutes.

Many of the color additives that have been okayed for general use in cosmetics are not approved for use in products applied around the eyes because of the sensitivity of the area. The FDA also announced recently a plan to make sure that eye cosmetics have adequate preservatives to make them bacteria free, even when exposed to potential contamination during ordinary use. The agency acted after receiving reports of instances where contaminated cosmetics caused eye infections.

While cosmetic manufacturers and retailers claim special properties for individual brands, the basic ingredients for a given product are fairly similar. The difference in product — and price — may lie mainly in packaging and promotion. Personal tastes and reactions also play a major role. What works for you may be a disaster for your neighbor.

Advertising and promotion claims may be confusing and

Hodges-Lee Vows Said Recently

WASHINGTON — The marriage of Elizabeth Boyd Lee and David Kyle Hodges was solemnized Sunday, Oct. 16, at three o'clock in a ceremony in the First United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Frank Odell Walker officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Lee of Rt. 1, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Elmore Hodges of Grimesland are the parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Blake Lewis and Mrs. Odell Walker, vocalist, presented a program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza over white peau de sole designed with a high neckline of ruffled imported Val lace. The empire bodice was styled with an inset of English net applied in a floral motif, beaded with pearls and outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace. Matching beaded lace was repeated at the waistline. The full bishop sleeves, featuring miniature appliques, were finished at the cuffs with re-embroidered lace edged in ruffled organza. The modified A-lined skirt and attached chapel length train were enhanced with a ruffled flounce of imported Val lace topped by a panel of re-embroidered lace. Miniature appliques were scattered over the skirt.

She wore a fingertip silk illusion veil edged in re-embroidered lace held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in lace beaded with pearls. Appliques were featured on the veil. She carried a cascade arrangement of white bridal orchids filled with baby's breath on baker's fern.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Jane Lee Cooke, her sister, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Cindy Lee Jones, sister of the bride, Miss Lynn Laughinghouse of Greenville, Miss Jane Price and Miss Cindy Edwards of Williamston, and Miss Fennette Waters of Plymouth. Miss Denise Lee was the junior bridesmaid.

Honorary attendants were Miss Gille Witt of Harve de Grace, Md., Miss Sally Homes and Miss Lalla Hodges of Washington.

The flower girl was Miss Tina Ward, cousin of the bride, of Washington. The ring bearer was Denny Watson of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Kim Hodges of Grimesland, brother of the bridegroom, Randy Lee of Washington, brother of the bride, Milo Arnold of Washington, Bill Ellington and Billy Ellington, both of Greenville.

Mrs. John I. Morgan and Mrs. James E. Hodges were church hostesses.

Miss Tanya Ambrose presided at the guest register located in the church foyer.

At the end of the double ring ceremony, the bride and bridegroom presented their mothers and grandmothers with a single long-stemmed red rose.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College, Raleigh, and will be certified to teach kindergarten through third grade in December. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is employed by Heilig-Meyers Co., Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will make their home in Grimesland.

Following the Hodges-Lee wedding, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. John Irvin Morgan and introduced to the receiving line.

After the bride couple cut the first slice of wedding cake, Mrs. James E. Hodges and Mrs. Sam Lee of Rocky Mount served guests. Mrs. Hugh B. Ward, Mrs. Hick Galloway and Mrs. Eddie Hodges poured punch.

Assisting in receiving and serving were Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Woolard, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Swain, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Roberson, Mrs. Charles Inabnett, Mrs. Pete Lilley, Mrs. Tom Talley, Miss Suzanne Woolard, Miss Ginger Woolard, Miss Diane Ronan, Miss Marian Inabnett and the bridesmaids.

Mrs. David Kyle Hodges

Miss Ambrose, Miss Lala Hodges and Miss Sally Homes presided at the guest register. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cooke and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones.

The parents of the bridegroom and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ellington of Greenville, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom, entertained the Hodges-Lee wedding party, close friends and relatives at a rehearsal dinner in the fellowship hall of the Proctor Memorial Christian Church, Grimesland.

Other pre-nuptial parties honoring the bride couple were a nuptial breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lee Jr. of Rocky Mount, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones of Sanford and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cooke of Wilson.

Guests included members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests. The breakfast was held at the Holiday Inn in the Camelot Room.

Miss Lee was honored at a bridesmaid luncheon given by Mrs. John I. Morgan and Mrs. James Edward Hodges in Washington Park.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The first and only time I was on a ski slope, I had the attention of every person within a two-mile radius.

It could have been my color-coordinated pants and jacket. It could have been my oversized goggles.

It could have been my knitted cap with the signature of a leading skier on it.

My husband seemed to think it was because I was the only woman on skis carrying a handbag.

I can't help it. Do men actually believe women enjoy lugging around a handbag everywhere they go? By the time everyone in the family unloads their stuff on me, I feel like an arvil salesman.

I don't know when it all started, but somewhere in history someone decided women were the keeper of the nose tissue, fingernail clipper, breath sprays, band aids, change for restrooms, pins, hair spray, sticks for chapped lips, road maps, combs and scratch pads. I never see a film clip of Queen Elizabeth with that large handbag slung over her arm that I don't half expect to see Prince Phillip lean forward and say, "Got any gum, Ducky?"

History was kinder to its women than they are nowadays. Did you see Joan of Arc carrying a Gucci to war? Did Pocahontas lug around a pouch to match her moccasins? And I don't know where Lady Godiva carried her credit cards, but it wasn't in a handbag. I would have noticed.

Believe me, there is nothing that detracts from a woman's aura of mystery and intrigue like wearing a black suede over-the-shoulder bag with a pale blue bathing suit.

I think it's time we women stopped carrying supplies for the entire family. If children don't have room to carry their own toys, if men don't have pockets in their pants, tougho.

Things are clearly out of control. I didn't mind rummaging through my bag for the ring at the wedding ceremony. I didn't raise my voice when I went to surgery with a tote bag over my chest. But the other day, I realized things had gone too far. My husband said, "These Life Savers are stuck together. Where did you have them?"

When I went to the sauna

"You didn't!"

Is College Education Earning Handicap?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband works long hours (without overtime pay) in a position of importance with a large, nationally-known firm. He's had six years of college, but some of the men who operate machinery make more money than he does. This hurts.

For example, our neighbor never even finished high school. He does manual labor, but because he belongs to a union, he earns more and has more benefits than my husband. It doesn't seem fair that with all my husband's education he isn't able to give his family as much as some uneducated laborers.

I am not saying that common laborers should make less, but in a society screaming for youngsters to get an education, it's ironic that uneducated laborers should make more than college graduates. I hope you aren't too intimidated by big business to respond in your column.

RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: I understand your resentment, but perhaps those whom you label "common laborers" are skilled laborers in their field. Many men who have never seen the inside of a college (or high school) have a technical knowledge equal in importance to some college educations. I, too, would like to see higher education bring greater rewards, but don't confuse a man's worth with his college education—or lack of it.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my pet peeve? It's people who invite guests to their home to play cards and then bring out decks of cards that are old and filthy.

To compound the insult, they moisten their fingers when they deal. Yech!

CANDY

DEAR CANDY: You may "air" your pet peeve, but don't expect results until you direct your compliments to the offenders.

DEAR ABBY: I know you must get thousands of letters every day, so this will probably go unread and unanswered. It is really important, though, as I know lots of teenage girls my age with this problem. It might even help some of the boys who read it.

Whenever I walk down the street, boys in cars stop and honk, etc. Some of them are very nice and quite cute, but if a girl stops and talks to them, or goes for a ride with them, she gains a reputation as a pickup.

On the other hand, if she doesn't, the boys consider her a stuck-up-snob. Which would be better, to stop and be sociable, or to act like a snob?

WANTS TO BE SOCIABLE

DEAR WANTS: One of the first things a mother teaches a little girl who is old enough to walk down the street alone is, "Don't talk to strangers or ever get into a car with one!"

Whether the girl is 6 or 16, the advice is still good. To refuse invitations to socialize from strangers in automobiles is not snobbish, it's sensible.

Insurance Women Hold Wednesday Meet

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its meeting Wednesday at the Ramada Inn.

Special guests introduced by Joyce Mills included Mr. and Mrs. Perry Rogers. Rogers was named "Fireman of the Year." The selection, made by other firemen, was announced during Fire Prevention Week.

Other guests included Fire Chief Ray Smith, Assistant Chief Tony Brannon and Joe Burris, of the Greenville Rescue Squad. Burris presented a program of slides made from two events: a mock disaster which was simulated, for training purposes and pictures taken during the 1975 state competition in which Greenville won second place. A certificate of appreciation was presented to Burris by the club.

It was announced that the club will sponsor a bake sale and mark-a-thon at Pitt Plaza Saturday.

Sophia Sumner was chosen to serve on the Nominating Committee for officers of the North Carolina Association of Insurance Women.

Jean Mason, president of the N. C. Association of Insurance Women, will be in Greenville for the February meeting.

President Georgia Hall presided at the meeting and the club collect was read by Evelyn Stroud.

In keeping with the theme of Safety and Fire Prevention, favors of fireman's hat marked the place of those attending the dinner meeting.

Wine Shipments

Up 12.6 Per Cent NEW YORK (UPI) — Table wine shipments to the United States rose 12.6 percent for the first six months this year. Shipments of fruit-flavored and other "pop" wines and dessert wines continued to decline. "Impact," a semi-monthly newsletter of the wine and spirits industry, says table wine now holds a 66 percent share of the U.S. wine market, the highest share it has ever experienced here.

Record Tobacco Market Year

Greenville Tobacco Market has finished up its sales year with a record average. J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor reported a season's average of $116.91 per hundred pounds, compared to last year's average of $114.97. The market this year sold 41,238,428 pounds for $48,212,220. Both pounds and money were well below last year's because of a 15 percent cut in pounds and poor weather conditions. It was interesting to note that good tobacco was much in demand throughout the year. Even on the closing day of sales company purchases ranged up to $1.86 per pound for quality tobacco.

Tobacco growers will argue correctly that even with the record average profits will be squeezed because of the inflationary cost of growing tobacco and preparing it for market. Nevertheless this year could have been a lot worse. Growing conditions were not ideal, but in the Greenville market area farmers were still able to produce some fairly good quality tobacco. Good quality tobacco brought good prices, and it has to be obvious that the only way U. S. grown tobacco is going to survive in the world market is for our growers to deliver a superior product. That is a fact of life that is going to stay with us.

Better Employment Rate Than Most

There has been concern about North Carolina's low standing among states in average annual wage, but at least we are enjoying a better employment rate than the nation as a whole. The Employment Security Commission reported that unemployment in North Carolina dropped to 4.5 percent in September, equaling a three-year low. The national unemployment rate is 6.6 percent. We should be concerned about the average annual wage figure, but the employment rate is encouraging.

Would Name It Denali

By OWEN ULLMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An Ohio congressman says Alaska is trying to deal a low blow to one of his state's favorite sons, stripping William McKinley's name from North America's highest peak. But Alaskans maintain the mountain was Denali, The Great One, long before a wandering prospector had the temerity to attach the name of a flatlander politician, a name chosen partly in a fit of revenge.

The dispute involves the 20-, 320-foot Alaska mountain which has borne McKinley's name for 81 years. Alaska wants its historic name restored. Rep. Ralph S. Regula, R-Ohio, says it would be "an affront to the presidency and to the memory of William McKinley" to rename the mountain now. Except for Ohio's 25-member congressional delegation, Regula says there is no organized opposition to the change. But he hopes to marshal support for his cause following today's Interior Department hearing on the proposal.

"Out of respect for a president, and a martyred president at that, this change ought not to be made," said Regula, who concedes he has never been to Alaska or seen the peak. The Alaska Legislature petitioned the interior secretary in 1975 to approve the name change. Alaska's governor, several conservation groups and the National Park Service back the move. Congress also is considering a bill to rename the 1.9-million-acre Mt. McKinley National Park, where the peak is located, to Denali. The interior secretary can rename the mountain, but only Congress

Teacher Aides Demanding

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Some of the experts predicted it would happen sooner or later: that the influx of teacher aides into North Carolina classrooms would lead to a growing clamor for more pay, status, and political recognition.

It's happening sooner rather than later. Although isolated just now in a handful of counties, the aides are organizing, lobbying their legislators, making demands—and in at least one instance threatening to strike.

Aides are relatively new on the scene in North Carolina. Some were on the job under special federal programs. Public school kindergartens put more on the payroll. Then came the statewide primary reading program putting an aide in each first, second, or third grade; a process now 40 per cent complete.

4,300 Aides
The net result so far is approximately 4,300 classroom aides on the job. Requirements for employment are minimal—a high school diploma, and other criteria established by local school boards.

But over-production of certified teachers has created a tight job market in most fields, and many college graduates with Class A. certificates are taking jobs as aides. Some say they're satisfied in that role; others that they take the aide job just to get a foot in the door and be ready when a regular teaching job opens up.

This situation has made a lot of school administrators happy. They can hire three well-qualified people for the price of one.

And that is one of the big complaints now budding among the teacher aide ranks—the matter of low pay, and unequal pay, for the job being done.

The other consideration in the forefront of complaints is that some teacher aides have actually had to take salary cuts due to adjustments in the funding process instituted by the State Board of Education.

State legislators are already hearing from the vocal leadership of the teacher aide circles, and the situation promises to create more pressure as time goes by and the ranks of aides grows.

A study of the situation by staff members of the Legislative Fiscal Research Division pinpoints what happened on salaries for kindergarten aides.

NOBLITT

Package Deal

Until this year, the state gave each local school unit a package deal per kindergarten class. The package included salaries of the teacher and aide (set at statewide averages), fringe benefits, supplies and materials, and workshop money. Local school units could transfer back and forth within the $17,867 package.

So if the teacher salary didn't use up the $10,398 allocated because the teacher hadn't reached that level, some surplus accumulated.

In many cases, particularly where the aide was a certified teacher, the surplus was used to provide more than the state salary of $4,266. In addition, some units pay a local supplement, and some don't.

The state changed the formula for kindergarten funding: this year the supplies and equipment money is separate, and the salary money is paid on the actual cost for the teacher and the aide. This formula resulted in a savings of nearly a million dollars at the state level.

But the savings came out of the salaries of aides who had been paid more than the state level. Local units have been advised they can continue paying the higher salaries if they wish—but they'll have to find the money somewhere besides the state's kindergarten allotment.

Meanwhile, the reading aides were signed up at a state salary of $4,475, and kindergarten aides are complaining at this differential over them.

The law is clear that state levels will be set and local units can do beyond that what they please. But pressure on legislators is already producing some sentiment to change, especially to provide higher pay for the fully certified teachers who find themselves among the ranks of aides.

Subsidizing The Arts

WASHINGTON — Let me return, if I may, to the business of the crepe paper, the sky divers, the sizzling senator and the six thousand dollars. Michael Straight has some further reflections, and his further reflections prompt my further reflections.

To refresh your memory: A year or so ago, a Pittsburgh artist, Le Ann Wilchusky, obtained a grant of $6,025 from the National Endowment for the Arts for the production of a 20-minute film. Part of the grant financed a week in the Caribbean for the artist and her husband, where he photographed her at work. Most of the balance paid for a short flight in a small plane over El Paso in August of 1976. It was during this flight that four rolls of crepe paper were unrolled while a camera recorded the interesting scene.

Word of this expenditure eventually floated back to Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin. The senator hit the ceiling, all splattered out, and some time elapsed before he returned to the floor. Then he denounced the award as "outrageous," and awarded the National Endowment for the Arts his Golden Fleece of the Month.

Now Michael Straight, acting chairman of the Endowment, has come forth with a useful suggestion: The Endowment itself, he says, should stop making direct grants to individual artists, composers, poets and the like. Such grants lay the endowment open to attack, and cause more trouble than they are worth.

Mr. Straight asks: How is artistic excellence to be determined? It may be possible to reach a consensus in some areas. If 30 young pianists compete in a blind competition, playing the identical work, a competent jury usually will arrive at agreement on their talent. The same thing is true, Mr. Straight believes, of works of literature. But what of the visual arts? Here agreement comes hard.

"There are Anti-Object Artists, and Earthwork Artists, Conceptual Artists and Performance Artists; Minimalists and Minimal-Systematicists; Traditionalists committed to form, and Iconoclasts, whose sworn purpose is to annihilate all form in the visual arts. Given this range, standards become meaningless; no consensus can be assured."

Mr. Straight's idea is to increase the public funds available for individual artists; but to change the grant procedures. He would halt "handouts," which perpetuate the alienation between the artist and the taxpayer. Instead, he would have the government match purchase awards by art museums, publishers and local symphonies. But dispersing the "patronage power," he feels, a major obstacle to the continued growth of public funding for the arts could be removed.

Other Editors Say: Double Standard

(Henderson Dispatch)

A study by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce reveals what it terms an EPA double standard of law enforcement. An Article in the New York Times said EPA has a get-tough policy toward private industrial polluters and a get-soft policy toward Federal government polluters.

At a news conference, EPA announced a crackdown on some 600 industrial polluters and 2,000 cities with facilities that failed to meet a July 1 deadline to clean up their discharge waters. Meanwhile, said the Times, "undisclosed and unprosecuted" are hundreds of Federal facilities also in violation of the Clean Water Act. When confronted with this information, EPA officials admitted that probably 25 percent of all Federal installations are violators.

In the EPA Midwest region, a Chicago official disclosed that 92 of 185 Federal water discharges in six states had not met EPA standards.

The U. S. Chamber study listed these Federal violators: Naval Academy at Annapolis, Yosemite National Park, twelve U.S. Bureau of Reclamation power plants in Wyoming, Quantico, Va., Marine Base, Army Infantry Training Center at Ft. Benning, Ga., three facilities of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Arizona, the Navy Yard in Washington, and the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville, Fla.

To quote John Robinson, of the U.S. Chamber: "None advocates that we abandon our efforts to clean up the nation's waters, but if industry must spend billions of dollars to achieve this goal, the government should also meet the rules for water quality."

This information came across the desk, and it seemed that these irregularities and inconsistencies should become a matter of common knowledge as to how the government treats citizens in connection with its failure to abide by its own regulations.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Texas Democrats Cool

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
AUSTIN, Tex. — When President Carter sent shockwaves through the Southwest's political establishment Oct. 13 by warning of an infamous oil industry "ripoff," it climaxed the disillusionment of one influential Texas Tory Democrat who last year greeted Jimmy Carter's candidacy with enthusiasm.

"I give up on him," this important figure told us. Prepared to sell his fellow Tories on the virtues of the Panama Canal treaty, he now opposes it himself. To this Texas politician, Mr. Carter has branded himself "just another ultra-liberal even if he is from the South."

We found that attitude prevalent among Democratic politicians we questioned in the oil-producing states of Texas and Oklahoma the week after the President's "ripoff" charge. Those presidential advisers who see anti-Carter resentment here limited to big oil do not appreciate the hostility among moderate-to-conservative Democrats who last year embraced the peanut farmer from Georgia as one of their own.

That the President's difficulties in this region stem from more than oil policies can be seen in the disaffection of three early Carter backers: Oklahoma Gov. David Boren and Lt. Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Texas Gov. William Hobby of Texas. Their stories possibly point to reasons for the President's national decline.

Hobby: An admirer of Mr. Carter since visiting him in 1971 to observe his reforms as governor of Georgia, the widely respected lieutenant governor has no channel to the administration. He has been unable, for example, to contact Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger. Hobby says he reacted with "sorrow" to Mr. Carter's blast at oil, but his private reactions are markedly stronger.

Briscoe: He was friendly from the start toward the Carter candidacy and risked his own prestige to carry the state for Mr. Carter last November. The phlegmatic governor is genuinely outraged by the President denouncing Texas politicians for supporting natural gas deregulation which had been promised by candidate Carter.

Boren: The aggressive 36-year-old governor of Oklahoma represents a highly dramatic change of relationships with the President. The first governor west of the Mississippi to back Mr. Carter for President, Boren elicited the now repudiated pledge for gas deregulation. Boren was completely cut off from the White House before the energy program was unveiled last April, his telephone calls unanswered. Since then, he has had only one personal contact with the President: an astonishing — and fruitless appeal from Mr. Carter for Panama Canal treaty support. At no time has the President explained to the governor, much less apologized for, breaking his word on deregulation.

Thus, the President's Southwestern slump is caused not only by his stand on oil but how he has taken that stand. While not trying to soften the blow among his supporters, the President implied that anybody opposed to him is more interested in appeasing the greedy oil companies than in furthering the national interest.

Nor is resentment limited to politicians allied with the giant oil corporations, as the White House supposes. Govs. Briscoe and Boren to be. Texas state land commissioner Bob Landis Armstrong, a liberal and Mr. Carter's Texas campaign chairman, opposes both the substance and the rhetoric of the Carter energy program. Needless to say, his advice has not been asked.

Even more striking is Robert A. Hefner III of Oklahoma City, an independent oil producer and political foe of both the big corporations and Gov. Boren. While attacking Boren as too closely allied with Phillips Petroleum, Hefner is no less outraged than the governor over Mr. Carter's position. The President's "ripoff" statement is "a theatrical attempt to gain emotional support," Hefner told us.

In fact, independent producers are perhaps more anti-Carter than the oil giants the President chastises. The independents believe that (Continued on page 5)

OVERCOME EVIL WITH GOOD

More than one hundred years ago Thomas Chalmers, an eloquent Scottish preacher, delivered a sermon on the topic, "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection." His theme was that the way to eliminate from the human heart a love of evil was to replace each evil attraction by a good attraction. He was convinced that it was fruitless to try to drive an unworthy desire out of the heart unless one does so by

The wording of Chalmers' idea — "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection," is quaint and old-fashioned, but the idea itself is surprisingly modern. It is difficult and often futile to attack evil by will power alone. A much more effective tactic is to search for something attractive of an innocent nature which can replace the evil. Or, to put it in another way, we should attempt to change our environment so that we can remould our preferences toward the good and away from the evil.

Perhaps no other investment law on the books is more criticized for such a variety of reasons. Some investment managers confess that their biggest daily battle is now between ERISA and the maintenance of their own sanity. It isn't difficult to understand why. In passing the act, Congress failed to define what it meant by a "prudent man," whom investment advisers are supposed to emulate. It's still anybody's guess, which is too precarious an approach to law for less than steely nerved portfolio managers.

because I genuinely am trying to do a good job, but I have no guidelines," said Paul Wilson, executive vice president in charge of the trust department at Fidelity Bank, Philadelphia. Critics say the law's vague terminology is forcing pension fund managers to be overly conservative, cutting down yields and depriving companies not among the nation's top 50 of investment capital. "It's forced us to a very conservative, passive approach," said Wilson. "We have the desire, knowledge and technology to do a good job, but we're back to basics. We're superprudent." Explaining the consequences, Wilson continued: "We're timing market moves rather than varying our item selection. We choose only the very best companies. We've given up on the marginal companies."

Said Kenneth Brown, president of Graphic Arts International Union, and labor trustee of pension funds: "Many small businesses are being denied the capital that would otherwise be available to them."

Investors' Service handles $600 million of retirement funds, maintains "The prudent man" provisions...have increased the portions of portfolio funds which are invested in corporate and government bonds." Stocks, he feels, have become too risky for uncertain money managers. The conservative practice of indexing, in which fund managers seek only to match the popular averages, is said to be another consequence of the term's vague definition, the rationale being that averaging is seldom in violation of the law. "We have to guess what is reasonable," said Wilson. "The law is so abstract that I cannot tell mechanically what I should do every day." Fear is but one of the drawbacks said to result from the law. The paperwork burden sometimes is overwhelming, the critics say, but it becomes maddening when the government, equally confused, changes the documentation required. Brown claims the complex reports required, and the constantly shifting government deadlines and changes in reporting standards are moralebreaking for fund managers. In a speech last week to the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans here, Brown said ERISA is a factor in the termination of a large number of benefit plans, although he conceded there were other factors also, including an unpredictable market. "The administrative costs are driving us berserk," Wilson admits. "We're spending a lot of money on reports the government then says it doesn't want, and that kind of inconsistency is adding enormously to costs." When investment charges go up, of course, the return to the pension fund goes down. They have less to distribute to retired workers because the already weakened investment yields are diminished further. "Banks have raised their fees for administration by 300 per cent here," he said. A job that trust departments once handled with ease, and with profit, has become a headache to many banks, he said. Nobody says we don't need ERISA, Wilson said. "The goal is fine." The execution, can rename a national park. According to officials of the U.S. Board on Geographic Names, which is conducting the hearing, the mountain was called by the Indian name Denali for centuries. But in 1896, prospector William A. Dickey stuck the McKinley tag on the peak.

Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond said Dickey "fell in with a trio of prospectors who were rabid champions of free silver, and after listening to their arguments for many weary days, he retaliated by naming the mountain after the champion of the gold standard."

Hammond said Dickey also selected the name because the first news he heard upon leaving the wilderness was that McKinley had received the Republican nomination for president.

The name grew in status after McKinley won the election that fall, and his assassination in 1901 further popularized the name, even though McKinley never set foot in Alaska. Interior Department officials say the department has received 6,000 letters and petition signatures on the issue, and 62 per cent favor the name change to Denali. The only opponents, other than those in Ohio, are several Alaska chambers of commerce and vacation firms which contend the name change could harm the tourist trade.

Carter program, with its emphasis on government regulation, could eventually doom the independent and unwittingly limit oil production to a few big hands. That sentiment has poisoned the political well, far beyond just oil industry executive suites, for Mr. Carter in Texas and particularly in Oklahoma (where Boren privately tells friends the President could win no more than 25 per cent of the vote today.)

Even with this disagreement over oil and unhappiness with his position on farm questions and illegal aliens, the President could restore his position in the Southwest — if he began rebuilding burned bridges to the Borens, Briscoes and Hobbys. The alienation of the Southwest is no less a matter of decaying personal relationships than of unpopular policies, perhaps a hint of what has gone wrong with the Carter presidency.

makes sense; it ought to be promptly approved by Congress. If some state or private museum had been willing to put up $3,000 toward Ms. Wilchusky's crepe paper epic, at least the National Endowment could have ducked half its responsibility. But Mr. Straight's temporizing suggestion begs the fundamental issue.

This is the fundamental issue: What is the federal government doing in the arts business in the first place? You can search the Constitution from Article One through Article Seven and find not one shred of authority for Congress to spend the people's money in this fashion. The power simply is not there. Only by stretching the general welfare clause to its utmost limit can even a tenuous rationalization be found for these expenditures.

Even if the Constitution permitted such outlays, federal subsidies would remain a poor idea. At any given moment, thousands of artists, sculptors, poets, novelists, playwrights and composers are at work. If public funds are given to Poet A, the funds must be denied Poet B. If the government smiles upon Sculptor C, whose art is to smash tin cans, such financial aid must be denied Sculptor D, who carves in classic themes. Erica Jong got $5,000 of the people's money in order to write a dirty book, "Fear of Flying." Is this what we have to pay taxes for?

No, sir. Artists, writers and composers should make it on their own, or not at all. Once the government stamps its imprimatur on their works, the government makes the race unfair. Congress is forbidden to make any law respecting an establishment of religion; by the same token, it ought to be prohibited from funding an establishment of art.

Leaving Congress For Old Job

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania congressman says he is giving up his Capitol Hill career to return to a job in a steel mill, convinced that any guy next door can make a good legislator.

"I look at my colleagues, and some of them who have gone on to the Senate and probably someday will be considered presidential material — and I just don't see there's much difference between them and the people who are my neighbors or relatives back home," said Republican Gary A. Myers. "I'm convinced that many white-and blue-collar people I come across in my daily life back home could serve as president," said the 40-year-old Butler, Pa., resident who plans to quit Congress when his second term expires in 1979.

Myers, a former steel plant foreman, said his political life hasn't left him with enough time for his family.

He didn't realize, he said, how much he would be away from his wife Elaine, 12-year-old daughter Michele and 10-year-old son Mark.

He spends up to 120 days a year in his western Pennsylvania district, leaving his family behind at their McLean, Va., home. And when he's in Washington, he works 80-hour weeks.

On top of that, he said, he usually brings home a briefcase full of paperwork.

His congressional career has placed other strains on his home life.

Myers complained that when he leaves home in the morning, he doesn't know if a prolonged debate or committee meeting will delay his return that evening.

"I don't want to wake up suddenly a couple of years from now, see my kids on the high school graduation stage and realize I didn't even know them at all," he said.

His public life has cut into the time he spends with his wife, Myers said. They don't go out as much and Mrs. Myers finds herself alone at home more often than before, he said.

Before his election, he was a foreman at the Armo steel plant in Butler. His old job has been filled by someone else, he said, and he doesn't know what he'll be doing when he returns.

Whatever it is, he faces a hefty salary cut, to less than half the $57,500 he makes as a congressman.

Myers ignored tips from political pros to slowly work his way up the ranks — from local elective office, to the state legislature, to the Congress.

"You just don't have to wait, or go through training," said Myers, pointing to his own career. He ran for the House in 1972, lost, but tried again and won a seat for 1975.

Myers also vows never to seek another political position, comparing his two terms in Congress to a tour of military duty. "Once it's over, it's time to move on," he said.

Bing Crosby's Will Insures His Privacy

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby, who guarded his privacy in life, apparently has managed to maintain his privacy after death.

The popular entertainer established a "living trust" four months before his death to handle the bulk of his estate, guaranteeing privacy the estate would not have under normal probate proceedings. Crosby's will was filed for probate Monday.

The living trust, in essence a private will, also provides tax breaks for heirs of the Crosby estate.

The living trust arrangement was unveiled when attorney Richard S. Arnold of Los Angeles filed Crosby's nine-page will for probate in San Mateo County Superior Court.

The will listed cash gifts of $400,000, left Crosby's personal effects to his widow, Kathryn, and gave instructions for the funeral of the entertainer, who died Oct. 14 in Spain. He was 74.

Cash bequests in the will included $150,000 to his widow, $50,000 each to Gonzaga High School and Gonzaga University, both in Crosby's home town of Spokane, Wash., and $5,000 to St. Aloysius Catholic Church, also in Spokane.

Crosby also left gifts ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 to a sister, a cousin, four nieces and four longtime business associates.

Richard C. Bergen, Crosby's longtime attorney and friend, was named executor of the will, and the "Harry L. Crosby Trust," both of which were drawn up on June 27. Harry was the crooner's given first name.

Crosby's press spokesman, Maury Foladare, said in Los Angeles Monday that the living trust provides for all of Crosby's seven children, including four sons by his first marriage and two sons and a daughter by his marriage to Kathryn.

Awards Go To Lawton Nisbet

Lawton Nisbet, Greenville stockbroker and Chamber of Commerce president, was honored Saturday at an investment conference in Charlotte.

Nisbet was presented with two awards including a silver service for "outstanding achievement and professionalism" at the meeting of executives, key personnel, and brokers. The meeting was sponsored by the Interstate Securities Corporation and was held in the new Radison Plaza Hotel in Charlotte.

Nisbet serves on the Board of Regents for the Presbyterian Home for Children at Barium Springs. He is a vice president of Interstate Securities and manager of their branch office in Greenville.

DR. WILLIAM QUICK

A South Carolina native, Quick is the youngest pastor ever appointed to the Detroit pulpit. He has been serving there since 1974.

In 1963, Quick became pastor of Saint James Methodist Church. During his six-year ministry, the congregation built a sanctuary, chapel, educational building and narthex. A total of 890 members were received and a total of $607,333 was raised by the congregation.

While at St. James, he was a member of the Greenville Jaycees and Rotary Club and named by the Pitt County Commissioners as the first Chairman of the County Good Neighbor Council. He was also a member of the state Good Neighbor Council, appointed by Gov. Dan K. Moore.

Saint James United Methodist Church was sponsored by Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and was formally organized on July 13, 1952. Its first minister, the Rev. E.L. Earnhardt Jr., met in the Library of the old Greenville High School with the 73 members in the early days of the church.

Later the church moved from the school to Third Street School. The groundbreaking ceremony for the building program on the present site took place in 1954 with Bishop Paul Neff Garber presiding.

Building was completed and services were conducted on March 6, 1966. Saint James presently has over 1400 members.

Director Says No Prodigies Among Suzuki Troupe

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The average child is between eight and ten years old and plays like an accomplished musician. These are the Suzuki children who appeared last night in East Carolina's Mendenhall Student Center Theatre before a sell-out crowd of approximately 900.

According to Dr. Masaaki Honda, director of the Suzuki Talent Education Tour in the United States and Canada and director for the organization in Japan, these are not child prodigies, but normal children.

"We believe that every child has great potential," said Honda.

The Suzuki method of music education, which emphasizes violin, was developed by Shinichi Suzuki in Japan shortly after World War II. In short, children are taught to play much in the same manner they are taught to speak.

"Babies learn language by ear... by the flood of information that they hear," said Honda.

A Suzuki child himself, Honda said, that the children are taught to imitate sounds and much later they are taught to read music.

According to Honda, people do not need to know how to read before they can speak, so it follows that children need not know how to read music before they can play.

He added that the children must have some musical ability to start. This ability is reinforced through reassurance and repetition.

"Their ability is developed by repetition always making progress."

Honda noted that the children, cannot only play well, but that they can begin a piece at any point of the movement, a feat that many adult musicians find difficult.

The children develop their powers of memorization, concentration, endurance, and patience, according to Honda. He said that he feels these characteristics will benefit the students even if they decide not to become professional musicians.

They also develop a love for music.

"It's very important not to force them to practice."

He added that the ten children on tour practice between three and four hours a day, but that they are at a point now where the "love of music is instilled in them."

Honda said that from his observations the percentage of children who keep up with their music later on in life is much higher with Suzuki students than with those taught by the conventional method of learning to read music first.

Honda was 32 years old when he first heard a radio announcement in Japan in which Suzuki himself was explaining the principles of his method.

"I thought Suzuki was talking about lessons for adults or special children. But he said that these were ordinary children of farmers and merchants."

Honda and Suzuki made their first trip to the United States in 1964. Honda compared the experience to "walking on thin ice."

He said that he feared the American people would think the children were just mimicking the music and actually had no musical ability.

"But they understood the philosophy very well."

This is the tour's 13th year and Suzuki, who is now 79, still teaches his method. According to Suzuki, he began the movement after viewing the suffering of the Japanese children following World War II.

"After the war... I started this movement, realizing how these innocent children were suffering from the dreadful mistake made by adults."

He noted that they were lacking, not only in the necessities, but also in education.

"I found to my amazement that small children develop their abilities far beyond what anyone would expect of them. Given normal mental ability, any child can be taught to appreciate music."

According to Jo Ann Bath, a local Suzuki teacher, Suzuki students are usually among the highest in their classes at school. She attributes this to their ability to concentrate and memorize.

She added that the Suzuki method, which is part of the immersion or "mother tongue" method, can be used in teaching foreign languages or math.

Bath said that of the ten Greenville music teachers, all of them use Suzuki's method "to a greater or lesser extent."

He encourages teachers to use their own ideas, but there are guidelines.

According to Bath, the children on the tour were chosen by Suzuki himself after performing solos.

"They each have their own private lessons, but they play together about once a month."

The children arrived in Greenville on Sunday and have been staying with local families. They leave for the next point on their tour, Philadelphia, Penn., today.

A Review Amateurs Gave Superb Show

The recent East Carolina Playhouse production of Bye, Bye, Birdie is proof that amateurs can often outshine professionals. Edgar Loessin's company presented a superb show with the definite aura of Broadway.

The play, which centers around 50's rock star Conrad Birdie, was selected as a tribute to the late Elvis Presley and is itself a delightful play boasting such popular songs as "Put On A Happy Face," "A Lot Of Living To Do," and "Kids."

Lucien Hutcherson in the title role was the typical stereotype of the egotistical, hip-swiveling, beer can popping rock star who has grooves of groupies swooning over him. His musical numbers were sexy to the point of caricature, as was meant to be.

Kim Woolen was delightful as Kim Macafee, the fifteen-going-on-twenty-five year old girl who was selected at random as a publicity stunt to receive the "last kiss" from Birdie before he goes into the Army. She is torn between her loyalty to the Conrad Birdie Fan Club and her jealous boyfriend, Hugo (hilariously portrayed by Dave Massengill), to whom she has just become pinned.

Bill Vann was also quite good as Albert Peterson, the would-be English teacher who is Birdie's manager.

But the star of the show was Janice Vertucci Schreiber as Rosie, Peterson's die-hard secretary who is determined to win her boss and become "Mrs. Phi Beta Kappa, the English teacher's wife." Her performance was perfect. She is a beautiful woman with a beautiful voice.

All of the supporting performances were excellent, especially Anita Brehm as Peterson's overbearing, over-possessive mother and Mick Godwin as Mr. Macafee, Kim's troubled father who muses, "What's the matter with kids today?"

Edward Hayne's sets, which included the two-story Macafee house, were exceptionally good for a college production. Frank Wagner's original choreography was lively and was well danced by the ensemble.

A special round of applause for Barry Shank and his orchestra was well deserved. They were marvelous.

Bye, Bye, Birdie provided an evening of outstanding entertainment. With a performance of this caliber to recommend the Playhouse to local audiences, it is certain the next offering will be eagerly awaited.

Gen. Torrijos Content Over Vote On Treaty

By ANNE ZUSY
Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos says he is content with his people's 66 per cent "yes" vote for the new Panama Canal treaties.

But opponents of Torrijos' authoritarian rule say the size of the "no" vote is encouraging to their campaign for a return to democratic government.

An unofficial count of 95 per cent of the votes in Sunday's plebiscite, announced Monday night by Controller General Damian Castillo, showed 468,664 in favor of the treaties, 228,697 against, more than 12,000 invalid ballots, and a turnout of 96 to 98 per cent of the estimated 800,000 persons eligible to vote.

Castillo, who headed the election board, said Torrijos told him he was "content with the turnout and the results." Other government officials said the vote for approval was a "bit less" than the 70 per cent they had hoped for.

Torrijos' opponents also expressed satisfaction with the results.

"These were very good results and show we are in a very good position," said Diogenes Arosemana of the Independent Lawyers' Movement, which led the opposition to the treaties.

"We have been fighting for the renewal of political parties," Arosemana continued, "and now that we have this backing, we believe we have enough popular support to continue. We may try to organize a National Liberation Front in order to act politically."

Political parties are banned by Torrijos, who took power from a civilian president nine years ago. The people had more freedom to discuss political ills during the six-week treaty campaign than previously under Torrijos, and some officials expressed concern that "opposition voices may continue at high pitch."

"That may cause trouble for the government because there is little room for dissent in a dictatorship," said one observer.

The treaties, which provide for the canal and the canal zone by the year 2000, must be ratified by the U.S. Senate before they can take effect. There is strong opposition to them in the United States.

Cites Debt To Viet Veterans

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says America owes "a special debt of gratitude" to Vietnam veterans who won little thanks for their sacrifices.

Speaking at Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery on Monday, the President compared his experience as a military veteran to what his son Jack faced after fighting in Vietnam.

"Although I came back from the war as some kind of hero, although I was not a hero, my son came back unappreciated, sometimes scorned by his peer group," Carter said.

"I think there's a special debt of gratitude on the part of the American people for those young men who went to Vietnam, because they have not been appreciated enough," he said.

After laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Carter noted that his administration has recommended increases in Veterans Administration compensation, pensions and GI Bill coverage.

"When we initiated our jobs program this year, we put veterans at the top place in the responsibility to give them gainful employment," the President told the crowd of 3,000.

The speech had special meaning for 31-year-old Ian Stirton, an unemployed Vietnam veteran with a master's degree in international affairs.

"The GI Bill by anyone's standards has been totally inadequate and every time we've had an increase we've had to fight tooth and nail for it," Stirton said. "The joblessness rate among Vietnam veterans ... is disgusting."

Unemployment for all Vietnam veterans has dropped over the last year from 8.9 per cent to 7.7 per cent, but it has increased from 16.5 per cent in the first quarter of 1977 to 20.1 per cent for veterans aged 20 to 24.

"I think a lot of Vietnam veterans have just gotten to the point where they're disgusted," Stirton said. "They don't believe anything that they hear."

Begin Concerts At Louisburg

LOUISBURG — The College Concert Series of Louisburg College for the 1977-78 season will open at 8 p.m. Thursday, October 27 with the Mac Frampton Show. The concert will be in the College Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

Frampton, a bronze medalist of the Van Cliburn Piano Competition, is supported by bass and percussion in performances of a wide range of pops, swing, classics, and a touch of rock-alternative.

Tickets will be available at the door beginning at 7 p.m. on the night of performance.

'Coffee Talk' Is Set Thursday

The Coffee Talk sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce at which N.C. Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw is scheduled to speak on the topic, "Why North Carolina Needs a Bond Issue for Water and Sewer and a $300 Million Road Bond Issue?" will be held Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at the Holiday Inn Restaurant.

Chamber of Commerce officials who earlier said the meeting was to be held Wednesday morning, announced yesterday that the session, featuring free coffee, soft drinks and donuts and Bradshaw's talk has been rescheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday.

Hunting Club Treasures A Gracious Life

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer
ASTOR, Fla. (AP) — The huge old hunting lodge sits majestically on the edge of a lake, commanding a view of private forest land that extends for miles.

The lodge and the gracious Old English style of country life enjoyed by its infrequent visitors are the zealously guarded vestiges of an even greater era once enjoyed by the 45 members of the exclusive Juniper Hunting Club.

It's a club little known outside its membership, and members like it that way. "There are only 45 members in the club," says resident manager Budd English. "And one must literally die before another is voted in. They meet every Wednesday in Louisville, Ky."

English would not discuss who the members were. However, he said that they once owned the entire Grandee Arredondo Spanish land grant, 33,000 acres of prime forest just west of the St. Johns River near Lake George in Central Florida.

The only means of transportation was a narrow gauge railroad which got as far as Astor. Ongoing travelers made the rest of the journey by horseback to the club site deep in the wild woods.

A sawmill cut the giant virgin pines into lumber for living quarters, boathouses, accessory buildings and a dock jutting out into the lake.

The game was so bountiful that the club had a rule: No one could go fishing until he had first bagged two deer.

Today, the Juniper Hunting Club owns a mere one tenth of its original land grant. The federal government acquired all but the present 3,400 acres in the 1930s when the Ocala National Forest was established.

And the club members, all from Kentucky, fly into the area several times a year and travel in motorized vehicles over paved roads to reach their forest Shangri-La.

Inside the lodge, wild game trophies cover the walls, and the bricks over the fireplace have inscribed on them the names of each year's club chairman since 1909.

The skull of old "Slew Foot" rests on the mantel in the dining room. One of the club's scrapbooks contains a note penned in 1938 by Marjorie Kinan Rawlings, author of "The Yearling," accepting an invitation to come to dinner.

When the book was made into a movie, much of it was filmed on the club's property and that's why the skull of the bear made famous by Miss Rawlings occupies a prominent place.

Upstairs, there are 24 beds among the double and single bedrooms that open onto the long main hallway.

The passage of time and changes in lifestyle haven't really affected the members of the Juniper Hunting Club, English says; for they come, as they always did, just to have a good time.

Plan Career Workshop

The ECU Collegiate Chapter of Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) within the School of Technology is sponsoring a CAREER ORIENTATION WORKSHOP on Thursday, Oct. 27 on the ECU campus.

All eastern North Carolina high schools having distributive education programs have been invited to participate in the workshop. Approximately 500 students are expected to attend the day's scheduled events.

Topics of presentations include: Apparels and Accessories, Petroleum Industry, Food Services, Food Marketing, and Distributive Education teacher-coordinator. The purpose of the workshop is to expose the high school students to the many careers available in the above occupational areas.

Representatives from the State Department of Distributive Education Clubs of America in Raleigh will also be present for the workshop.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

IT'S BACK TO THE RANCH for those looking for a smaller house suited to a variety of needs. There are two bedrooms, but a hobby room can double up as a guest room with its own private bathroom area. From the kitchen there is easy access to all rooms, yet it cannot be seen from the formal living room. Plan HA964Y by Herman H. York offers a house approximately 43 feet long that can be used on a lot with only a 60-foot frontage. Those wishing further information may write the architect—enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope—at 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432.

Reds Rehabilitate 'Scarlet Women'

By PAUL VOGLE
HONG KONG (UPI) — The bride wore white, but her past was unabashedly scarlet.

The bridegroom of Pham Thi Kim, 19, also had an embarrassing past.

Nevertheless Kim and her husband received flowers and gifts from the Women's Union and the Communist Youth Union when they walked down the aisle in the main hall of Ho Chi Minh (Saigon) City's "For Tomorrow" school recently.

Kim "graduated" from the school after 18 months of training. She was sent there after the Communist victory in South Vietnam in April, 1975.

The first six months of her "schooling" Kim spent being cured of venereal disease at the "School for the Restoration of Women's Dignity."

As the official Vietnam News Agency said in a recent frank report, the school is a "craft training school for former whores."

Kim's new husband, Hoang Tat Dac, 23, had been a soldier in the South Vietnamese Army, defeated by the Communists in 1975.

He fared better than tens of thousands of his former comrades-in-arms who have been sent to reeducation camps.

After the defeat, "Dac returned to his home village where he started life afresh as a farmer," VNA said.

The union of Kim and Dac in wedlock was a resumption of a childhood friendship interrupted by the war.

"Kim met Dac when she was at high school," VNA said. "Their romance was interrupted by Dac's conscription into the Saigon army and it was then that Kim became a prostitute."

But the war, the life of prostitution and separation are behind them now, and with the state's blessing.

VNA said the government-run school has retrained 700 former women of ill repute. The government has reported sending several thousand former prostitutes to be reeducated. It has officially claimed there were 300,000 of them in Saigon at the end of the war.

"This wedding ... was the first performed at the 'For Tomorrow' school," VNA said. Banners, garlands of flowers, and sweets made from coconut meat graced the wedding hall.

"Everyone has been preparing for my wedding as if it were their own," Kim told VNA.

And the bride wore a traditional ivory-white tunic, the report said.

Junked Cars Go Slowly

CAPE LOOKOUT, N.C. (AP) — Equipment problems and the elements may prevent Joe C. Griffin from keeping his promise to remove nearly 2,500 junked cars from a long, narrow island in coastal Carteret County.

The broken promise is the least of Griffin's worries. He had to post a $25,000 performance bond when he won the contract to remove the cars, abandoned over the years by fishermen who literally drove them into the sand.

Griffin has already invested $40,000 in the project, not counting the bond, and he isn't ready to give up. But he's worried.

"I need some luck," he said the other day. Griffin has had troubles. First the truck he was using to haul the cars to the loading site for shipping to the mainland sank in the sand and had to be towed by a forklift with oversized tires.

Then a barge loaded with junked cars sank and could not be refloated for several days because of a storm. Less than 24 hours after it was finally pumped out it sank again.

"It's just one thing after another," Griffin said. To make matters worse, the price of scrap metal has plunged since he offered the state $1,445 for the right to remove the cars. He expected to receive about $60 a car and the price dropped to about $30.

Complains Police Beat Down Door

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Police internal affairs investigators are probing a complaint that officers beat down the front door of a woman's home early Sunday, ordered her guests to lie down at shotgun point and searched the house without showing her a search warrant.

The actions allegedly took place when police went to the residence to search for marijuana. They said a small quantity was found.

"They just said, 'Police! This is a raid,' and beat down the front door before it was unlatched," said Patricia M. Higbie.

"I was in the kitchen making coffee, and a cop shoved me up against the wall. My daughter was crying. They ordered my guests to lie down on the floor and said that if anyone moved, they'd be shot."

Mrs. Higbie, 38, said, "I asked for a warrant, but they just told me to shut up."

Capt. W. J. Moore said four of his officers searched Mrs. Higbie's house about 1 a.m. Sunday. He declined further comment.

A search warrant on file in Circuit Court shows that an informant swore before a magistrate about 45 minutes before the raid that he had been offered a marijuana cigarette at the house.

The warrant stated that marijuana was the target of the search. Police said a plastic bag containing about half an ounce of marijuana, another plastic bag containing 2 grams of marijuana and the remains of a marijuana cigarette were seized during the search.

Neither Mrs. Higbie nor any of the eight men in her house at the time of the raid have been charged with any narcotics violation in connection with the incident.

Mrs. Higbie was issued a summons to appear in court for operating a disorderly house. The men were issued summons for frequenting a disorderly house.

Mrs. Higbie's summons instructs her to appear in General District Court on Jan. 12, 1977, more than nine months ago.

Mrs. Higbie filed a formal complaint Sunday about the officers' conduct, claiming that they failed to show her a search warrant, destroyed personal property threatened to have her children placed in the custody of the Department of Social Services and were rude.

Capt. C. O. Hathaway, head of the police Internal Affairs Division, said Monday that he received the complaint and has begun an investigation.

"There are always two sides to every story, but the charges are serious," he said.

According to the city code, a disorderly house is a place "where disorderly persons meet or may meet for the purpose of illegally dispensing or indulging in intoxicating liquors, gaming, or boisterous or other disorderly conduct."

Advise Caution On Halloween

WINTERVILLE — Parents should exercise caution in sending their children out this Halloween, according to Winterville Police Chief G.I. Jones.

The following suggestions, have been made by the Winterville Police Department:

- Age limit for trick or treaters should be 12 years of age or under
- Maximum time for children out trick or treating should be 8:30 p.m.

- Have children carry a light or wear bright clothing, so that they may be seen easily.
- Parents should accompany small children.

Jones added that parents should examine all treats before the children are allowed to eat them.

Earplugs In Band Room

SEATTLE (AP) — When the Ingraham High School band practices, earplugs go in, hoods go up and the buzzing in the brain soars.

"You can't hear yourself," says Chuck Karschney, 17, a senior French horn player.

The problem isn't with the musicians — it's the acoustics in the music rehearsal room.

After repeated complaints last year, the school district ran a sound test, but it was done during the last week of school when 30 per cent of the band members had left.

Even so, the test report showed the decibel readings ranging from 95 to peaks of 108 when the band played "Minstrel Boy." Audiologists say anything above 90 decibels for prolonged periods is harmful.

The report recommended "requesting a survey and cost estimate for improved acoustic treatment of the room," but nothing was done.

So band members like senior Doyle Meyer, a drummer, shelled out $5.95 for a pair of earplugs. Meyer uses them "to protect myself."

Ratcliffe Is Club Speaker

Dr. Robert Ratcliffe spoke on "Mid-Life Crises" to members of the Greenville Rotary Club Monday night.

Dr. Ratcliffe, who is Associate Medical Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, said everyone goes through a certain period during middle age when he or she is dissatisfied with such areas as job, marriage choice, or activities or behavior of children.

He discussed risk illnesses during mid-life clinically recognizable in psychiatry. Common risk illnesses during middle age are alcoholism and depression, he said.

The "unraveling phenomenon" was said by Dr. Ratcliffe to be a complete reversal of the accustomed personality of the middle-aged person as measured by what he was formerly doing in work, play and love. More people are seeking help with problems earlier during times of crisis because there is less stigma now in seeking psychiatric help than there was in previous years, he said.

Giveaway Stirs Interest

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Interest in Valdosta State College's annual student publication "The Pine Cone" dwindled recently to the point where the editors figured they would have trouble giving it away.

So they decided to give away money. A few lucky students casually leafing through the book found $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills sandwiched between the pages. Junior Debbie Bruner of Leesburg, Ga., said her issue contained a total of $50.

As the word spread around campus, student demand for "The Pine Cone" soared, reaching an all-time high.

A spokesman for the annual said he wasn't sure how much money had been planted in the issues.

"I never won anything in my life," Miss Bruner said. "I guess money is a good way to start."

When Raymond W. Edwards signed up for NCNB Cash Reserve, he got rid of checking account service charges and the paperwork of getting a loan.

Until 1975, about the only way to get no-service-charge checking in North Carolina was to keep a $100 balance in your checking account.

What's more, if your balance ever went to $99, you had to pay a service charge for every check you wrote.

That's how it was in 1975.

Then NCNB introduced the idea of giving you a choice of ways to get no-service-charge checking and, at the same time, give you the benefits of another NCNB service.

We call it The Triple Option, and in two years, thousands of people all over the state have signed up.

Here's how it works:

Option #1: Have $25 or more automatically transferred each month from NCNB Checking to an NCNB Regular Savings Account and get no-service-charge checking.

Option #2: Deposit and maintain $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings Account and you can get no-service-charge checking.

Option #3: Build a credit cushion into your NCNB Checking Account with Cash Reserve, and you can get no-service-charge checking.

So you can see just how The Triple Option lets you pick the other service that works best for you.

When we introduced it in 1975, it was North Carolina's most flexible no-service-charge checking plan. In 1977, it still is.

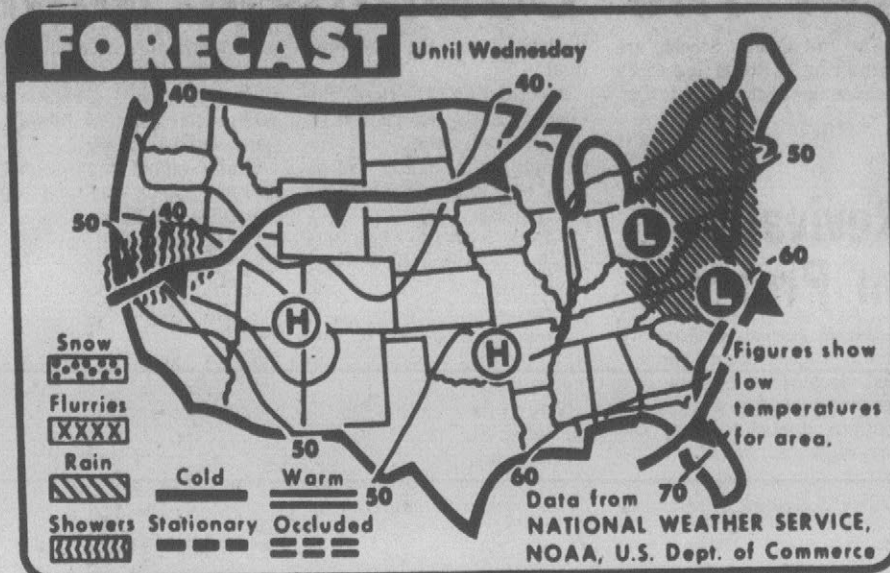

Because we want to be your only bank. And we figure that the better service we give you on a checking account, the more likely you are to come to us when you need a loan, or want to open up a savings account or need some other service you may be going to another bank to get.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for much of the East Coast, ranging from Vermont south to the Carolinas. Showers are anticipated for portions of California and Nevada. Temperatures are expected to be mild over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Rain will move into North Carolina from the west today, and by this evening the storm is expected to affect almost all of the state. Showers may be heavy at times over the western counties before the storm tapers off Wednesday.

Some light rain was reported Monday in eastern North Carolina, with .07 at Cherry Point and a trace at Jacksonville, Wilmington and Raleigh-Durham. Highs Monday ranged from 75 at New Bern to the low 60s in the mountains.

Highs today will be in the 60s in the Piedmont and western counties and will reach the low 70s along the coast and Outer Banks.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are unhappy with President Carter's definition of a political independent.

The minor flap occurred when Carter submitted his nominees for the five-member Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in the new Department of Energy. The agency replaces the Federal Power Commission.

The legislation creating the Department of Energy specified that "no more than three members of the commission shall be members of the same political party."

Carter sent the Senate the names of three Democrats, one Republican and Charles Curtis, whose voter registration lists him as an independent.

The nominations require Senate confirmation and Republicans on the Energy Committee cried foul when they saw Curtis' name.

They noted that not only had Curtis spent five years employed as counsel to the Democrats on the House Commerce Committee, but he also supported Carter's presidential candidacy and was a coordinator in the Carter transition office.

"Mr. Curtis has been very active in Democratic affairs," said Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore. "Let's face it, his commitment is to the Carter administration."

And Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., said, "It is questionable that the nomination of Mr. Curtis as an 'independent' meets with the spirit of the act."

Apparently, Carter thinks Sen. Dole is still Ford's vice presidential running mate and obligated to support the stands taken by Ford.

Dole recently received a telephone call from Carter, who said he wanted to congratulate the senator for his courageous stand on the treaties.

Dole is one of the most outspoken opponents of the treaties in their present form.

Spice Usage Up In Five Years

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey shows the average American homemaker has tried 20 different spices and keeps 17 on hand, uses more kinds and uses them more often than she did five years ago.

The study by the American Spice Trade Association also indicates that the average homemaker now considers spices everyday ingredients instead of fancy ones. She uses spices mainly to improve rather than vary flavor. She is most apt to use them in stuffings, casseroles, roasts, hamburgers and poultry.

She also adds spices to packaged prepared foods.

Her favorite nationality foods are spaghetti, chili and lasagne.

The survey of 1,000 homemakers was statistically balanced to represent the national average, an association spokesman said.

Queen Honors J.B. Priestley

LONDON (AP) — J.B. Priestley and three other Britons have been appointed to the Order of Merit, Buckingham Palace announced today.

It is one of the few honors whose recipients are personally selected by Queen Elizabeth II. Most honors are conferred by the monarch on the advice of the prime minister.

In addition to the 83-year-old Priestley, a novelist, others receiving the honor were Sir Frederick Ashton, 71, a choreographer and former director of the Royal Ballet; Lord Franks, 72, former ambassador to the United States and chairman of several recent government committees of inquiry, and Lord Todd, 70, a research scientist.

employees to retire, the question turned to whether teachers should be included among those covered by the bill. This prompted a discussion of academic tenure. Once a professor is granted tenure he cannot be dismissed except for cause.

During that discussion, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., offered this nugget from the history of Harvard University:

"I understand that in the history of Harvard, 300 years-plus, there has never been a professor let go for cause, even though one did murder his wife and did go to the electric chair with his tenure still intact."

It took two large cartons to hold the news releases Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., sent to the press gallery. Attached to each release was a copy of a letter Dole had sent to every member of the Senate, asking them to "join me in observing the National Day of Bread ... We are delivering a loaf of bread to you and your staff, compliments of the wheat growers, millers and bakers ..."

The two cartons delivered to reporters were filled with loaves of bread.

President Carter is lobbying hard for votes for the Panama Canal treaties. He was delighted to get the support of former President Gerald R. Ford, the man he defeated in the 1976 presidential election.

Offered Gifts To Remain In School

MIAMI (AP) — Pupils who play hooky from two local schools may miss out on Frisbees, hamburgers, T-shirts and yo-yos as well as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Children and teachers at Brownsville Junior High and Douglas Elementary schools in Dade County are being offered gifts in an effort to curtail sagging attendance. The prizes for the teachers include gasoline, record albums and dinners.

The two schools have the worst truancy and teacher absenteeism rates in the school system, and that is costing the schools state funds.

The state pays $824 annually for every student enrolled, but only if the student is in school during an annual census count. That count was taken earlier this month, and gave Brownsville and Douglas the poor records.

Brownsville averaged 13 per cent absenteeism last year and Douglas 8 per cent. But both schools reported improvement this year after school officials began putting pressure on parents to send their children to school.

School officials hope their campaign will help pupils ever if it doesn't solve the money problem.

The gifts, called "attendance incentives" are being donated by local businesses.

Brownsville principal Walter Oden says the program won't eliminate the problem.

"With some kids, nothing is going to help them," Oden said. "They'll still be out on the street no matter what we do. But this is something we haven't tried before. If it works for five kids, it has been a help."

Desoto Attends Training Meet

Bob Desoto, program director for the Boys' Club of Pitt County Inc., recently returned from a one-week training seminar in Atlanta, Ga.

Subjects covered during the seminar included: ideal program goals, assessing the needs and interests of children, group work, and activity planning and implementation.

Desoto, a 1975 graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in social work, has been employed at the Boys' Club since February of this year.

The Boys' Club has over 250 members and is financed by the United Way and contributions from local business firms, civic clubs, and individuals.

Amendment 3

FOR constitutional amendment empowering the qualified voters of the State to elect the Governor and Lieutenant Governor to a second successive term of the same office.

You deserve this choice.

Good intentions.

Once upon a time, some of King George's royal governors really pushed the colonists around. And you've been short-changed, ever since. After the Revolution, when state constitutions were being written, people remembered the crown's wrongs, and made sure that future governors couldn't abuse the power of the office. So, in many states, a governor was barred from serving more than one term. In N.C., the Assembly elected the Governor, up till 1835. Then, you got the vote — and the one-term limit. It seemed like a good idea, at the time.

But times change.

As our nation grew, and grew up, the rights of the voters and of the state legislatures grew stronger. The task of running a state government grew more complicated. And the task of finding really well-qualified people for the job of Governor grew more and more difficult.

So the states changed.

Seeing that the old fears of a governor gaining too much power were groundless under modern systems, more and more states realized that it only made sense to keep a good governor on the job. Instead of automatically turning him out and having to start fresh with an unknown and unproven person.

43 of 50.

And so, state after state gave their voters this option: To reject or re-elect an experienced governor. Alaska and Hawaii brought it with them to statehood. In 1966, Oklahoma changed. In 1968, Louisiana and Missouri. 1970: Florida and Pennsylvania. West Virginia in 1972, and just last year, our neighbors in Georgia passed their amendment. Today, the voters of 43 of the 50 United States have this important right.

Here's our chance.

On November 8th, the voters of North Carolina can vote themselves this right. On the ballot, Constitutional Amendment #3 empowers the voters to re-elect their Governors and Lieutenant Governors for a second term, if they choose to.

A bipartisan effort.

A majority of the N.C. General Assembly voted to recommend this amendment. Leading Republicans, Democrats, and Independents support its passage. All of the past five former Governors: Luther H. Hodges, Terry Sanford, Dan K. Moore, Robert W. Scott, and James E. Holshouser, Jr. endorse it. And a recent citizens committee on constitutional reform urged this change be made.

For better government.

Our state suffers from the one-term limit.

Long-range problems like water, energy, and new industries and jobs demand long-range solutions. From short-range governors. By the time our governors learn the job, their term is half over. So they can't initiate and administer the kind of farsighted programs that our state needs. But even just the possibility of re-election would encourage and allow stronger, more consistent leadership.

A fairer share.

The one-term limit shortchanges North Carolina in other ways. The people who run the federal programs and who participate in the regional conferences know full well that the N.C. governor is an automatic lame duck. So they pay less attention to our needs. Squeaking wheels get the grease; but our governor isn't around long enough to establish the working relationships or make the necessary contacts to have the kind of influence our state deserves.

And your full rights.

But over and above all the logical, practical reasons for Amendment #3, the real key is that the one-term limit is contrary to the democratic process. It deprives you of a fundamental right. If the voters are capable of finding people good enough to be governor for four years, they are capable of deciding whether they want to re-elect them for four more. To continue a good job. And they are capable of deciding that the job wasn't good enough; so they can choose to reject them after four years. Either way, you should have the choice. And Amendment #3 gives it to you.

3. FOR constitutional amendment of the State to elect the Governor second successive term of the same office.

AGAINST constitutional amendment of the State to elect the Governor second successive term of the same office.

November 8 vote for the right to reject or re-elect. Vote for Amendment 3.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly again today, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average below 800 for the first time in more than two years.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips dropped 3.03 to 799.29 in the first hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow last closed below 800 at 794.55 on Oct. 2, 1975.

The latest selling wave in the market has been blamed on concern over rising interest rates, weakness in the dollar, and disagreement between the White House and the Federal Reserve over the Fed's tightening of credit.

Analysts also noted selling today by followers of the so-called Dow Theory, which flashed a negative signal Monday when the Dow Jones industrial and transportation averages simultaneously reached new lows for the year.

Trading was active. First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 6.48 million shares.

General Motors was the most active NYSE issue, down 3/4 at 69 1/2. A 257,600-share block traded at 69 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index, like the Dow, broke through a round-number level, in this case 50. It was down 3/4 at 49.94.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 42 at 112.55.

Planning Commissions Have Ten-Item Agenda

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will consider a total of ten items at Wednesday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Items scheduled on the joint agenda include: consideration of the 264-NC 11 Corridor Study (old business); request of Pitt County Fair to rezone some 32 acres on the east side of Greenville Boulevard, northeast, from Highway Commercial and RA-20 to Unoffensive Industry;

Review of plan of Greenville Utilities for operation center located on Mumford Road; consideration of the annexation petition for University Medical Park in the southeast quadrant of the intersection of Stantonsburg Road and Allen Road; and final plat of Pinewood Forrest, Section II.

Greenville board members will consider: (old business) preliminary plat of Merle Bowser and J. B. Sures III lot division located in the northeast intersection of Forrest Hill Circle and Sixth Street; (new business) request by the Community Development Department to change the zoning in West Meadowbrook from R6-MH to R6 south of Dudley Street to the flood plain line;

Final plat of Lynndale Subdivision, Section 8; preliminary plat of Twin Oaks Subdivision, Section II; and review of the South Evans Redevelopment Plan.

Identify Coed Crash Victim

The identity of the East Carolina University student killed in a collision near here yesterday morning has been revealed as Mrs. Clarisa Blakely McElmon of Morehead City.

The name of the 22-year-old Special Education major was withheld yesterday until her husband, Albert McElmon of Morehead City, could be notified.

Dr. John Richards, chairman of the Special Education Department of ECU, said Mrs. McElmon commuted from Morehead City every class day. Trooper A. G. Wright, who investigated the accident, which occurred at 6:55 a. m. on Highway 43, 14 miles south of Greenville, speculated that going to sleep at the wheel was what caused the woman, driving alone, to cross into the opposite lane and sideswipe a truck. He said the truck driver, Lonnie David Simpkins of Greenville, was not injured.

Dr. Richards said he was Mrs. McElmon's faculty advisor and that she was "an excellent student who will be greatly missed in this department."

"She transferred here from Gardner-Webb College in the fall of 1976, about the time she was married, I believe," he said. "She was a senior and was scheduled to practice teach spring semester."

Ask Volunteers For Clean-Up

Volunteers are being sought to assist in a clean-up of the Bill Galloway Cemetery located at Galloway's Cross Roads. Clean-up of the three acre cemetery is sponsored by the Sweet Hope F.W.B. Church. The project will take place on Thursday, October 27.

Those with tools are asked to bring them, and volunteers without tools will be furnished ones to use. The clean-up work will begin at 8 a.m. and continue throughout the day or until work is completed.

Carnival Will Be Wednesday

St. Peter's School will hold its annual Halloween Carnival at the school from 6-9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 26.

There will be games, baked goods sale, arts and crafts, and a hot dog supper served.

Read-a-thon Scheduled On The Downtown Mall

The Pitt County Schools are sponsoring a Round the Clock Read-a-thon beginning at 10 a.m.

Wednesday on the downtown mall.

According to Ott Alford, Pitt County School superintendent, the program which will run through 5 p.m. Friday will involve both local youngsters and area officials.

"We're trying to show that reading is pleasurable. People should take time to do it," said Alford.

A red schoolhouse will be placed on the mall tomorrow morning, he added.

Some of those participating in the program are: Mark W. Owens, chairman of the Pitt County School Board; Blake Lewis, general manager of WECT; Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU chancellor; Walter Dail, Winterville mayor; Glenn Cox, superintendent of Greenville City Schools; Percy Cox, Greenville mayor; Pat Dye, ECU football coach, and Carl Stewart, Speaker of the House.

Alford added that school-oriented reading material will be provided for the participants, but they may bring any additional reading with them.

He said that the Read-a-thon will continue "through rain or shine."

Alford urges Greenville residents to visit the schoolhouse and support the project.

Revival Is In Progress

Special revival services are now in progress at the Church of God, located on Skinner and Spruce Streets. The services will continue through Oct. 30 and start nightly at 7:30.

Texas Gains Lead In Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

In a near-unanimous vote, the amazing Texas Longhorns are the new No. 1 team in college football.

Picked by most experts to finish somewhere around the middle of the Southwest Conference, 6-0 Texas surged to the top of The Associated Press poll today by defeating Southern Methodist 30-14, while previously unbeaten Michigan was upset by Minnesota 16-0 and skidded from first place to sixth.

Texas received 65 first-place votes and a near-perfect 1,336 of a possible 1,340 points from a nationwide panel of 67 sports writers and broadcasters.

Taking advantage of Michigan's loss, Alabama, Ohio

State, Oklahoma and Notre Dame all moved ahead of the Wolverines.

Alabama, No. 3 a week ago, inched up to second by pasting Louisville 55-6. The Crimson Tide received 1,077 points.

Ohio State moved from fourth to third with one first-place vote and 963 points for a 35-15 licking of Northwestern. The Buckeyes were followed by Oklahoma, a 35-16 victor over Iowa State, with 952 points.

Last week, it was Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Pitt, California, Iowa State, Brigham Young, Nebraska, Florida and Clemson.

Minnesota was a 1977 newcomer to the Top Twenty, along with Florida State, which trimmed Auburn 24-3.

Iowa State, which lost to Oklahoma, dropped out, as did California, which bowed to UCLA 21-19.

Southerland Okayed After Physical Exam

Quarterback Jimmy Southerland of East Carolina has come through a checkup and been pronounced in good condition.

The senior almost missed playing Saturday against The Citadel, but came off the bench to lead the Bucs to a 34-16 win over the Bulldogs. He had complained of pains in his abdomen prior to the game.

A check after his return to Greenville yesterday revealed minor abdominal problems, which are expected to be cleared up by the end of the week. He is not expected to miss practice this week, either.

Southerland's throwing in the game brought about one touchdown and set up another as the Pirates came from behind to win. He brought his career total to 801 yards, eighth best in Pirate history. He needs only 19 more yards to take over seventh place.

Gerald Hall, who led the nation in punt returns last week, returned two for just ten yards against The Citadel Saturday, and dropped to second place nationally. He is averaging 17.8 yards a return. Jimmy Cefalo of Penn State is the new leader with a 19.0 average.

Willie Hawkins, in addition to tying the season mark for kickoff returns, and surpassing the mark for kickoff yardage, moved up to the sixth spot in career rushing with 1,679 yards, passing Les Strayhorn.

Terry Gallaher, who moved in to second place in the all-time pass reception yardage category, with 1,083 yards, needs just 110 to tie the existing mark. In doing this, Gallaher has caught 44 passes, good enough for just eighth place in the reception list. He needs four more to move to seventh.

Gallaher, with 11 touchdowns during his career, needs one more to set a new school record. He tied the old mark last week.

The game Saturday against Southwestern Louisiana will be the final home game of the year for the Bucs, and only 3,489 fans are needed to set a new school attendance mark for the season. Pirates officials, however, are hoping for a full house.

Fifteen seniors will be playing their final home game Saturday. They include offensive guard Wayne Bolt, kicker Junior Creech, defensive back Drew Fish, linebacker Harold Fort, split end Terry Gallaher, safety Steve Hale, running back Willie Hawkins, center Rickie Holliday, tight end Barry Johnson, fullback Vince Kolanko, nose guard Eddie Murphy, defensive end Ed Nelson, linebacker Larry Paul, linebacker Harold Randolph, quarterback Jimmy Southerland, along with manager Jack Andrews.

Pistons Bomb Celtics, 100-85

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons bombed the Boston Celtics with a second-half flurry that gave the Pistons a victory and left the losing team's coach, Tom Heinsohn, fuming.

Heinsohn didn't have much praise for Detroit after its 100-85 National Basketball Association triumph Monday night.

"The reason? The Boston coach was too busy bracing his own team with criticism.

"We played dumb, non-hustling basketball," said Heinsohn. "We played well enough in the first half, then rolled over and died. They are not thinking out there."

Bob Lanier, who teamed up with Eric Money to pace a second-half blitz that overcame a 49-42 halftime deficit for Detroit, agreed with the Boston coach.

Lanier said Boston "isn't the team out there that it was before. They don't play well together. Usually, they keep coming in to you, but right now they're not doing that."

Boston is 0-3 for the season. Detroit is 3-2, but the Pistons seem to be unbeatable at home. Detroit has won nine straight games in Cobo Arena in a string of victories dating to last March.

On Monday night, Lanier had 19 of his game-high 33 points during the third and fourth periods. Money caged 16 of his 24 points in the second half.

Tom Boswell had 19 points and Jo Jo White and Charlie Scott had 16 each to top the Celtics.

Defensive back Raymond Griffin of Ohio State is a brother of the former great running back of the Buckeyes, Archie Griffin.

Contest Winners

H.O. Hudson of 104 N. Green St., Farmville, captured first place in last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Hudson correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed on the contest pages last week.

Second place resulted in a tie between Bill Messick of 1200 Drexel Lane, Greenville, and Ernest Carraway of 1605 Beaumont Dr., Greenville. Both of them correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games. They tied in their point total guess, both listing 69. A total of 82 points was scored in the Western Michigan-Marshall game, won by Western, 53-29.

Six other people also had 26 games correctly picked, but were further off on their point total guess.

It has also been noted that a number of entries are being received each week without names or addresses. Entrants should be sure that they properly fill in the entire entry blank before mailing it or bringing it by the Reflector office.

The next contest in the series appears on the following pages.

More Tests For Louis

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis faced further tests today for a suspected heart attack.

The boxer — who wore the heavyweight crown longer than any other and defended it more times — remains in guarded condition in the coronary care unit at Sunrise Hospital, his heartbeat monitored electronically.

The 63-year-old "Brown Bomber" was rushed to the hospital late Saturday after experiencing chest pains at his home. He experienced symptoms related to those of a heart attack, but tests failed to show conclusive evidence of one.

Louis, who has worked as a host-greeter at Caesars Palace for a number of years, has received scores of telephone calls and telegrams from all over the nation. The only visitor permitted in his room is the former champ's wife, Martha.

The couple's 15-month-old adopted daughter, Janet, is in critical condition at the same hospital. She remains in a coma after being injured Oct. 3, when she fell into the family's backyard swimming pool and was rescued by members of an emergency squad.

Joe Louis posted seven consecutive knockouts in defense of his heavyweight title from Feb. 23, 1938, to Sept. 20, 1939.

Globetrotters To Play Here

The world's greatest family entertainment, the Harlem Globetrotters, will be coming to Greenville for one game only on Thursday night, November 3, at Minges Coliseum. The show gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

Each time the Trotters step onto the court, sports history is made. In more than fifty years of sports and entertainment magic, the harlequins of the hardwood have been seen by more than 82 million fans around the world.

questionably the most popular sports team this side of the moon, have played more games before more people than any team in history.

Attendance records are staggering. The outdoor basketball attendance record, which to this day has not been approached, was achieved in 1951 when the Trotters played before over 75,000 in Berlin.

The Trotters hold the indoor pro-basketball attendance record, too. A mark was set when more than 30,000 viewed them in the Louisiana Superdome.

Records continue to be set. In just one season, nearly three million see the Trotters perform, and the number continues to grow.

The November 3 appearance of the Globetrotters in Minges Coliseum is a presentation of the East Carolina Athletic Department. Tickets are on sale at the Athletic Ticket Office for $4, $5, and $6.

Goldsboro Tops EBA

Goldsboro handed E. B. Aycock's football team a 20-8 loss yesterday in the Jaguars' final game of the season.

Goldsboro's Karrangery scored two touchdowns for his team on runs of four and 35 yards. Elliot returned a fumble ten yards for another Goldsboro score and the team also made a safety when John Vestal was tackled in the Aycock end zone.

Aycock's lone touchdown came in the first quarter on a six-yard run by Jerome Cox. Kenny Barnes ran the two-point conversion to give the local team a brief lead, but Goldsboro regained the edge in the second quarter and never trailed again. Goldsboro 6 6 0 8-20 E. B. Aycock 8 0 0 0-8

WEEKLY PRIZES

1st PRIZE $15.00

2nd PRIZE $10.00

CONTEST RULES

1. Thirty-two football games are placed on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $15.00. Second place $10.00.
2. Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
3. Only one entry per person per week. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
4. Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: FOOTBALL CONTEST, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable Facsimiles also accepted.)

Guess Who ops AL Stars? Rod!

NEW YORK (AP) — A .388 batting average, 239 hits, 128 runs scored, 14 home runs and 100 runs batted in. Even Rod Carew would be impressed by those statistics.

Since those numbers belong to the Minnesota first baseman, it is understandable that he was the leading vote-getter on The Associated Press' 1977 American League All-Star team. Carew, after having the best season of his illustrious career, impressed a whopping 405 of 422 voters in the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters across the country.

Joining Carew on the AL squad was teammate Larry Hise, who led the league with 119 RBI, in addition to 27 home runs and a .301 batting average. Hise led the outfield voting with 195 votes, six ahead of Baltimore's Ken Singleton and 24 votes more than collected by Bobby Bonds of California. New York's Reggie Jackson, the most valuable player in the World Series, was fourth.

The world champion New York Yankees placed one player on the squad, second baseman Willie Randolph, who gathered 108 votes in easily outdistancing rookie Bump Willis of Texas. Several Yankees placed second at their positions, including catcher Thurman Munson, who lost out to Boston's Carlton Fisk 260-116, third baseman Graig Nettles, who finished 97 votes behind Kansas City's George Brett, and lefthanded reliever Sparky Lyle, who wound up second to Frank Tanana in balloting for the top left-handed hurler in the AL. Yankee left-handers Ron Guidry and Don Gullett followed Lyle in the voting, giving New York three of the top four lefthanders.

The right-handed pitcher on the team was Jim Palmer of Baltimore. Aside from Fisk, Boston's Rick Burleson was named a starter at shortstop with 231 votes and Jim Rice was selected the designated hitter with a 291-vote total. It was the first time the designated hitter spot was included on the team.

Job Saving Time At Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Some Duke players say they're getting tired of the feeling that they're playing to save Coach Mike McGee's job.

"It's common knowledge around campus that Coach McGee's job might be on the line now," said Blue Devil tackle Lyman Smith. "Heck, it's the same thing people were saying last year this time."

"We'd like to think we're not playing for a coach's job. We're playing for ourselves and for pride. And if we win, it'll reflect on the coach — on all the coaches."

The Blue Devils, scarred by injuries to key players and two damaging losses in recent weeks, will be trying to win one this Saturday against Georgia Tech.

"But Coach McGee is very much in the back of our minds now," said quarterback Mike Dunn. "Before, we were just concerned with winning ball games. Now, for the first time, we must concern ourselves with both winning and our coach."

Bad Night For Tarkenton

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, of the Minnesota Vikings, is about to be hauled down on one of the four times he was sacked during the game with the Los Angeles Rams Monday night in the Coliseum. Rams' Cody Jones is doing the job this time. Tarkenton completed only ten passes for a total of 108 yards, with two interceptions. (AP Laser-photo) free agent, was No. 2. Haden credited his teammates on the offensive platoon, saying: "They just gave me great protection all night. Most of the time I had time to count the house, eat a snow cone and then throw the ball."

Haden Triumphantly Leads Rams By Vikes

By JACK STEVENSON AP Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Namath, in the twilight of an illustrious career, now knows that youth must be served.

Fran Tarkenton also might be giving a little thought to the prospect after the Minnesota Vikings fell 25-3 to the Los Angeles Rams and youthful Rhodes Scholar Pat Haden. It was a triumph for the 24-year-old Haden before a near full house at the Coliseum and a national television audience. He won his spurs last season and then lost them to Ram newcomer Namath at the start of this National Football League season.

The Rams were 2-2 with Namath at the helm before Haden again got the call against New Orleans and came out on the winning end of a 14-7 score. The rout of defending NFC champion Minnesota ended any doubt that Haden was No. 1 and that Namath, acquired from the New York Jets as a

Even at the game's end, Knox kept Namath on the bench and inserted No. 3 quarterback Vince Ferragamo to finish up.

"I didn't want to put Namath in on a situation when we are ahead 35-3," said Knox. "We felt it was a good chance to give Ferragamo some work." Knox has wrestled with the youth vs. age quarterback situation since Namath joined the team last summer.

Haden hit 12 passes of 21 attempts for 116 yards and the two touchdowns and rushed three times for 13 yards, including the initial score. Tarkenton, the 37-year-old Minnesota quarterback, hit 10 of 27 for 108 yards and had two touchdowns and one interception. Haden said he called most of the plays except the pass to Young "and the one that Harrah called."

He explained: "It wasn't in the game plan. Harrah kept telling me all through the third quarter that it would work. More or less to shut him up, I called it."

Earlier, a 13-yard run by rookie Tyler from UCLA set up a 1-yard touchdown plunge by John Cappelletti. The only Minnesota score came on a 42-yard field goal by Fred Cox with 20 seconds gone in the fourth quarter. Bob Lee had taken over for Tarkenton at that time and engineered the drive.

Foster Paces National League Star Selections

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer CINCINNATI (AP) — Garry Foster, baseball's leading slugger in 1977, received the most votes of any player on The Associated Press National League All Star team announced today.

Foster, whose 52 homers and 149 RBI made him one of the top single-season sluggers in baseball history, received 418 votes from a nation-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Foster was one of three Reds named to the NL squad. The others were second baseman Joe Morgan, who had 270 votes to 95 for runnerup Rennie Stennett of Pittsburgh; and right-handed pitcher Tom Seaver with 255 votes to 150 for Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs.

First baseman Steve Garvey was the only member of the NL champion Los Angeles Dodgers named to the team in the voting that was completed before the start of the playoffs. Garvey scored the most lopsided victory in the balloting, receiving 352 of the 377 votes cast for his position.

Ax Falls On Bosox Leaders

By DICK BRAUDE AP Sports Writer BOSTON (AP) — The ax fell at Fenway Park and the heart of the Red Sox front office is in the unemployment line.

"It was a clearing of the air about who's in charge," said new Boston General Manager Haywood Sullivan, 47, once a second-string Red Sox catcher.

He assumed that title Monday as executors of the estate of the late owner Thomas A. Yawkey fired three top Red Sox executives, including General Manager Dick O'Connell, whose association with the American League team dated to 1946.

On Oct. 31, Sullivan and former team trainer Edward (Buddy) LeRoux, will, along with 11 "limited partners," buy the team from the Yawkey estate for a reported $15 million. Yawkey's widow, Jean A. Yawkey, is among the new partners.

Sullivan disclaimed blame for the firings, saying it was the decision of Mrs. Yawkey and the two other executors, Joseph LaCour and James Curran. However, it had been evident since the Sullivan-LeRoux group's bid for the team was accepted Sept. 29 that O'Connell would be released.

Evangelist And Atheist Cancel Sideshow Debates

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The "Chaplain of Bourbon Street" and the atheist who took prayer out of public schools have angrily cancelled their travelling sideshow debates on God and religion.

As usual, they could not agree — not even on why they suddenly dumped what had been an unusual and attention-drawing attraction.

"She walked out and gave me a 32nd round TKO in our fight to the finish," crowed the Rev. Bob Harrington, who operates his national evangelistic campaigns from the New Orleans French Quarter.

"I consider it the greatest Christian victory in atheist history."

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, reached at her American Atheist Center in Austin, Tex., said she quit during the 32nd debate because the minister broke his word to keep patriotism out of the uproarious and emotional encounters.

To argue over whether God exists is one thing, she said, but to escalate the quarrel by inferring that atheists are automatically un-American is something else.

"I am not going to be a party to giving anybody a platform which which to resurrect McCarthyism," she said. "That is a snake which should be left buried."

The blowup centered on the Rev. Harrington's tactic of leading the audience in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, with emphasis on the line:

"One nation, under God, with justice and liberty for all."

"Every time the crowd recited that line, Bob would shout, 'Say it again!' They would roar back through it.

Then he'd shout, 'Say it again!' It got to be dangerous, the crowd was so hostile," Mrs. O'Hair said.

She said the minister agreed to drop any reference to patriotism, including printed leaflets in which he said he was for God and country, while his atheist opponent was against God and country.

"Then a CBS television crew showed up to film the debate and he couldn't resist. There he was, out there leading the pledge. I told him that the next time he pulled this stuff about atheists being un-American I was leaving."

The flash point came last Thursday before some 1,200 spectators at Bryan, Tex. Mrs. O'Hair said writers from two magazines were covering, along with newspaper reporters and photographers, and "Bob pulled this off again."

"I told the audience, 'You deserve each other.' I gathered up my material and walked out. Quietly. Now he says I left the stage screaming at him."

"I believe the real reason was not the pledge, which I had done many times previously, but the fact that she had evidence that she was losing credibility with her atheist supporters," the Rev. Harrington said.

Tour expenses were covered by collections taken up at the end of debate. The donor specified which side his cash should go to.

Harrington said he paid all tour expenses and lost money. Cancelling 18 debate dates left for 1977 cost him $8,000 in advance rent he had paid on the halls, he said.

Mrs. O'Hair said it cost her, too, since she was averaging about $1,000 a week for her legal fund.

"That's $50,000 a year," she said. "I threw away $50,000 a year because I was full of integrity. I don't know if my chapters will think that is so smart."

2 Accidents On Monday

An estimated $2,075 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 1:30 p.m. collision on Cotanche Street, south of the Ninth Street intersection involving vehicles driven by Danny Keith Strange of Rocky Mount, Jerry Glenn East of Route 1, Washington, and Caroly Reavis Setzer of Route 1, Stokes.

Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the Strange car and $500 to the East truck. Officers who said no damage resulted to the Setzer car charged East with following too close.

Edna Tebeau Waldrop of Elm Villa Apts. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:10 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Reade and Third Streets.

Investigators reported the Waldrop car collided with an auto operated by Albert Lee Brown of 401 Arbor St., causing an estimated $75 damage to the Waldrop car and $300 damage to the Brown vehicle.

Now Turning To Painters

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Carpetmakers, who for years have simply copied their predecessors, now are looking at painters and trying to implement their techniques, the chairwoman of the Carpet and Rug Institute's Style and Design Council said Monday.

"For years we relied on history, trying to make our carpets look like the hand-knotted kind or trying to give nylon the appearance of wool," said Marjorie M. Rhodes, of Dalton, Ga. "Now we're using techniques painters learned after centuries of experimentation and applying them to carpets," she said in an interview during the institute's two-day convention in Charleston.

She said the idea is to do "the same thing that artists do. We cover a flat surface, trying to give an illusion of nature. I'm not talking about putting nudes on carpets, but we could do it."

Carpet makers are using natural forms and colors to create imagery giving the illusion of rocks, jewels, shells and flowers.

"We take colors that God puts on rocks, the impressions a bird sees as he flies over a flower garden and blend them into a carpet pattern," Mrs. Rhodes said.

"But, instead of red roses on the floor, we produce out-of-focus roses that will complement walls and furnishings," she continued.

She said there is a practical side to the multi-colored carpeting. "If they spill ketchup on the carpet, they're just adding another shade that won't be noticed."

Order Electric Chair For Sixteen-Year-Old

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy who was convicted of stomping an elderly widow to death in a $6 robbery has been sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Frank Ross Jr. of DeSoto City, Fla., stood calmly and said nothing Monday as 10th Circuit Judge Clifton Kelly imposed the death penalty for the Nov. 15, 1976, murder of 64-year-old Helen Dixon of Avon Park.

"The idea of a teen-ager being executed by the state immediately invokes a natural feeling of repugnance and aversion," Kelly wrote in a footnote accompanying the death sentence. "But there is a still greater feeling of repugnance and aversion when you consider that a helpless, wholly innocent, 64-year-old woman who was living alone in her own home was brutally killed," the judge wrote.

A six-man, six-woman jury had convicted Ross of first degree murder in February. The same jury deliberated only 17 minutes Monday before recommending the death penalty.

Ross' mother, Cressie Belcher, sat quietly as the sentence was pronounced.

"What had to be had to be," said Mrs. Belcher outside the courtroom.

Highlands County Assistant Public Defender Nick Chommer said an appeal is automatic when a death penalty is imposed. Judge Kelly said he would forward the sentence to the Florida Supreme Court for review, another automatic procedure.

Ross was charged with another DeSoto City youth, James Wells, 17, who was found guilty Aug. 12 in a separate trial and sentenced to life in prison by Kelly.

Both boys testified that they had gone to look at a car offered for sale by Mrs. Dixon. Wells testified that Ross knocked the woman down, kicked her, took the money and ripped out her telephone.

When Ross took the stand, Assistant State Attorney William Fletcher asked repeatedly why Ross attacked Mrs. Dixon. The youth said he didn't know.

"I didn't intend to rob her. I didn't intend to kill her," he said.

Adjustments Board Meeting Thursday

Five items of business, including four public hearings, will be considered by the Greenville Board of Adjustments at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday at city hall.

Public hearings are scheduled on request by: Greenville Cable TV Inc. for a special use permit in order to construct and operate a cable television facility on Arlington Boulevard adjacent to Evans Street Park and bordered by Seaboard Coastline Railroad;

Anderson Restaurants Inc. for a special use permit in order to add a drive-thru window to the Burger King located at 321 E. Greenville Boulevard;

Lamar-Dean for a special use permit in order to erect two outdoor advertising signs 400 feet apart on the west side of the 264 Bypass in the area behind River-view Estates Mobile Home Park; and by Stegall Co. for a special use permit in order to operate a Christmas tree sales from Thanksgiving through Christmas on the southwest corner of Arlington Boulevard and Clifton Drive.

The board will also consider a change in the date of the November meeting since it falls on Thanksgiving.

Beachgrass Data Published By SCS

The Soil Conservation Service has published a color leaflet on Cape American Beachgrass and copies are now available free from SCS offices in North Carolina, State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks said today.

The conservation plant has proved highly successful in stabilizing beach and sand dune areas along the beaches from North Carolina to Maine, and is featured in summertime "conservation beach clinics" held each year in North Carolina.

The grass prevents erosion and controls shifting sand. It was developed by SCS plant materials specialists, and is now generally available from nurseries in North Carolina and other states where it may be used.

The leaflet features 11 color photos and text that tells how to plant and maintain Cape American Beachgrass.

The SCS plant materials program is available to everyone as are all other programs and services of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Conservation advice on stabilizing beach areas is available from Soil Conservation Service offices in coastal areas, or through local soil and water conservation districts.

Contests At Elm St. Gym

A Needle-In-A-Haystack Contest and a Pumpkin Decorating Contest will be held on Friday, October 28 at 7 p.m. in Elm St. Gym.

For the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department sponsored event, children will be divided into age groups for each of the two contests.

In the Pumpkin Decorating contest, contestants are asked to bring their own decorated pumpkins. Four winning pumpkins will be picked on the following basis — scariest, smallest, largest and most original.

In the haystack contest, children will try to find a hidden needle in a haystack.

Prizes will be awarded in each of the contests. All Greenville citizens are invited to attend this Halloween Festivity.

Advisory Body Meets Tonight

The first meeting of the Greenville City Schools' Parent Advisory Council will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Office, 431 W. Fifth Street.

All representatives and interested citizens are asked to attend this orientation meeting.

Speaker At Ass'n Meet

ECU News Bureau
Inez Norwood Fridley, residence hall counselor at East Carolina University, addressed a session at the recent three-day meeting of the N.C. Housing Association in Greensboro.

Her presentation, given in collaboration with Brenda Rowe of UNC-Charlotte, was entitled Educational Programming How-to's and included basic community building skills and techniques in group problem-solving, such as "brainstorming", consensus and force-field analysis.

The presentation was based upon a retreat-workshop she conducted last month with student residents of ECU's Slay and Umstead Residence Halls.

About 200 persons, representing most of North Carolina's campuses attended the Greensboro meeting. Other ECU delegates were Dan K. Wooten, Director of Housing; Carolyn Fulghum, Associate Dean of Student Affairs; and residence counselors Jon Rogers and Jim Westmoreland.

Another Large Family Appears On Television

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Small families may be in, but not on TV. We have "The Waltons," "The Fitzpatricks," "Family" and "Eight is Enough." And yet another large-clan series arrives tonight.

It's NBC's "Mulligan's Stew," with Lawrence Pressman as a high school coach and Elinor Donahue as his wife, Jane, a school nurse. They and their live-in family live in a small California town.

They have three kids of their own, plus four more — including a young Vietnamese girl — they took in after the deaths of Jane's sister and brother-in-law in a plane crash. The kids range from tot to teenager.

This could signal a predictable show, but fortunately "Stew" has no family dog and not once does Pop bumble in the front door, take off his coat, beam, and cry: "Hi, what's for dinner?"

This is a pretty good omen, despite some pretty bad child acting and simple-minded dialogue and scenes in tonight's premiere episode.

Wonder of wonders, "Stew" even proves a surprisingly relevant hour about three topical matters — the "battered child" syndrome, an alcoholic parent and the effect of TV on some of today's kids. It revolves around an 11-year-old wail (Matthew Laborieux), a cocky, new-to-town kid from New York who seems an uptown Huck Finn.

Befriended by two boys in the Mulligan clan, he claims his father is rich, a world traveler, a man of adventure. He lies.

He gets an invitation to dine at the Mulligan house and spends two nights there, causing Mrs. M. to suspect all is not well at his home — a suspicion heightened when she sees bad bruises on his back.

In time it's revealed the lad's father (Donegan Smith) is a broke, unemployed failure who once gave Alcoholics Anonymous a try, but has since lapsed back into equal mixtures of self-pity and the demon rum.

Amid all this and assorted fluff about kids in and out of school, there's teen-aged Mark Mulligan (Johnny Doran) who's making a "documentary" for his high school film class.

He's into "social realism." He doesn't find it until he and two younger boys of the Mulligan clan go visit the rundown home of Laborieux, their supposedly rich new friend.

The boy's dad, in a drunken rage, chases the kid out of the house and hits him. The youngsters are stunned, save for Mark. He calmly films the beating for use as the high point of his "documentary."

When he shows it to his folks, they're rightfully shocked, both at his insensitivity and that he defends the film as "docu-drama, on-the-spot reportage" of the kind seen on television all the time.

Alas, a scene where the film sets the drunken father on the road to righteousness is a stock cliché also seen on TV all the time.

Despite this and other flaws, tonight's effort is a thoughtful first try and indicates "Stew" could be a hit, given time to improve. At the least, it's a show the entire family can watch.

This may worry NBC. Weird as it sounds, NBC airs the show at 9 p.m. EDT. Which is the hour after TV's so-called "family hour."

'Miss Vickie' Is Again Single

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Tiny Tim and his wife, Miss Vicki, have been divorced, ending a marriage that began on a national television show in 1969.

Tiny Tim, the falsetto singer whose career peaked in the late 60s with his song, "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," did not attend Monday's divorce proceedings in Superior Court. His lawyer, Philip Paley, said the singer was on a concert tour.

Miss Vicki, the former Victoria Buding, filed for divorce in 1975, citing irreconcilable differences. She has not requested alimony or child support for the couple's 6-year-old daughter, Tulip.

Although he contested the divorce, Tiny Tim, whose real name is Herbert Khaury, said his wife's occupations as a go-go dancer and part-time nude model caused him "embarrassment and mental anguish."

Miles Appearing In 'Brigadoon'

BOONE — R. David Miles of Greenville, a sophomore at Appalachian State University, will appear in the musical production of "Brigadoon," Nov. 17-19, in ASU's Chapel Wilson auditorium.

The musical is being presented by Phi Mu Alpha musical fraternity and Alpha Psi Omega drama fraternity.

Miles, a music major, is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. E.H. Miles of 1805 Spruce Street.

Presley Awakened His Jeweler In Wee Hours

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley ordered his fiancee's 1 1/2-carat engagement ring at 1 a.m., sometimes bought $200,000 worth of gems at once and didn't like the word "no," his jeweler recalled.

"I got many calls in the wee hours of the morning," said Lowell Hays, recalling his four-year business-friendship with the entertainer.

"He was very generous. He loved to sit in the middle of his bed with jewelry spread all over the bed. I'd be on the other side and usually he'd have Joe Esposito or Billy Smith there and the four of us would decide what piece of jewelry would look best on who."

Hays said Presley bought between $500,000 and $700,000 in gems from Lowell Hays Jewelry before his death Aug. 16.

Hays often flew to the singer on tour to satisfy his impulse-buying, carrying $200,000 or more in jewelry in a specially-designed briefcase. At first, the jeweler was nervous.

"But I got used to it and more or less accepted the fact that I was vulnerable. But usually I got a call from Elvis or one of his close bodyguards and I knew that no one else knew I was going to make the move. I felt I had a certain amount of security that way."

Hays said Presley did not like to be told "no," especially when he ordered Ginger Alden's ring at 1 a.m.

"I told him what he wanted was impossible and he told me, 'Look, I do all my business with you and when I need something special I need it special. I want this diamond and I want it tonight and I want you to get it for me.'"

Hays said he called some diamond brokers in New York, who couldn't get anything to him. "Elvis offered to send me in his jet, Lisa Marie. But all the diamonds the size he wanted are kept locked up in vaults, including mine."

Presley apparently made some other calls, then tried Hays again. "Then he called me back and when he woke me up this time, I realized he really meant business, that he really wanted that diamond that night."

"So I made arrangements to get the diamond he wanted out of my vault in the middle of the night, called my jeweler and he met me at my store and we put the ring together for him and got it to him about 8 in the morning." The price tag: $50,000.

The bidding: North East South West 1 ♠ 1 ♣ 5 ♠ Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

At the end of the play of this hand, East gave declarer some suspicious looks. There was no need for that—declarer had simply taken the best line available.

The bidding was unremarkable. After East interjected a one spade overall, South bid the limit of his hand.

West led the eight of spades and declarer won the ace. His first play from dummy was the ace of clubs, and when the king dropped, the hand was over.

There might be some among our readers who think that South was just plain lucky and that the correct way to tackle the club suit, in view of the overall, was to lead low to the queen. We don't like to disillusion you, but despite anything that might be said to the contrary, declarer's line of play was winning technique and not blind chance. Let us look at the hand from declarer's angle.

When dummy came down, declarer saw immediately that he could not lose his contract if East held the ace of hearts—he would have to give up only one heart trick and one club. But what if West had the ace of hearts?

In that case, declarer might still be able to set up the club suit for a heart discard. He could accomplish that if the suit broke no worse than 4-2 and if East did not hold the king of clubs. Dummy's trumps would serve as entries to ruff out the clubs and cash the long club for the heart sluff.

If East did hold the king of clubs and West the ace of hearts, declarer was a goner except in one unlikely event—that East's king of clubs was singleton. So cashing the ace was safety play which actually gave declarer several extra chances to bring home his contract. For instance, it would also succeed if East held a singleton jack of clubs.

Soviet Pushes Nuclear Power; Put Lid On Safety

BY PEGGY POLK
MOSCOW (UPI) — Normally the official Soviet press is quick to seize upon mass anti-government demonstrations in the West as fresh evidence of the failure of the capitalist system.

But when 30,000 French, West Germans, Belgians and Swiss staged a protest at the site of France's super Phoenix fast breeder nuclear reactor in Creys-Melville recently, the Soviets remained silent.

Not a word about the demonstration appeared in newspapers. Nothing was said on radio or television.

Instead, at least in part for the benefit of the considerable number of Soviets who listen to the Voice of America and Radio Liberty news reports, a series of newspaper articles appeared extolling the virtues of atomic power in terms of efficiency, economy and safety.

The reason is that the Soviets have opted to go nuclear in a big way. And the last thing the Kremlin wants is to sensitize its complacent citizenry to the environmental and safety issues which have triggered sometimes violent debate in much of the non-Communist world.

Controversy over nuclear power does exist within Soviet scientific and engineering circles. Critics include one of the country's most distinguished scientists, Pyotr Kapitsa, 83, the founding father of Soviet nuclear physics.

Kapitsa warned almost two years ago in a speech at the 25th anniversary celebration of the Academy of Sciences that accident or sabotage at a standard million kilowatt atomic power station could release as much radioactivity as the Hiroshima atom bomb.

He said atomic power stations should be built far from populated areas. Kapitsa also asserted that the problems of adequately disposing of atomic waste and of dealing with the increased supplies of plutonium-235, key ingredient of nuclear weapons, created by fast breeder nuclear reactors, remained unsolved.

Tried Three Years To Make The 'Mix' Work

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Robert and Carol Murray, a young white couple, tried for three years to win acceptance in a predominately black neighborhood. They lost.

Murray was beaten to death Sunday while walking home after making what his widow says was "his last attempt to get the neighborhood to accept him."

Now the young woman vows never to return to their home. Murray went to an evening meeting a half-mile from his east Oakland home after offering to donate some athletic equipment for a new youth center.

Some Aliens Slip Ashore

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina is always interested in attracting good people, but there's one way the state doesn't want to get them and that's by jumping ship in one of North Carolina's two ports.

About 50 foreign sailors each year jump ship in Wilmington or Morehead City, according to federal immigration inspector Elwood Burnham, who says most of them don't stick around long.

The captains aren't eager to talk with Burnham, because a desertion can mean a $1,000 fine, plus the cost of deporting the wayfaring seaman if he is caught.

As additional precautions against ship jumping, American regulations forbid payment of more than $300 to a sailor while his ship is in a U.S. port and it is the captain's job to see that crewmen put ashore for illness leave the country within 29 days.

Sailors considered likely to jump ship can be confined on their ships altogether, a step that was taken with about 100 foreign seamen last year, Burnham said.

The Vital Role of Social Workers

Reading your articles with regularity makes me aware of your psychological insight. It is refreshing to find a doctor who coordinates physical problems with an understanding of the importance of the emotions. But I have a complaint. When you suggest to readers that there is a need for a psychologist or psychiatrist you somehow seem to overlook the contributions that can be made by social workers who have obtained graduate degrees in psychology. — Ms. K.S.R., Mass.

Dear Ms. R.: I'm delighted that so many of my readers are aware of my interest in the psychological aspects of modern medicine. It is my firm belief that the tensions of living today impose emotional overtones to almost all physical problems. I find it impossible to practice medicine or surgery without this constant awareness.

Obviously, you missed a recent column in which I highlighted the important contributions made by graduate social workers in the field of psychological medicine. Perhaps I have not, in the past, put enough emphasis on the fine work they are doing in schools, hospitals and clinics.

The social worker is one of the great adjuncts to the field of psychology. Many of them are indeed the first line of support and the sustained support for the patients referred to them.

I have two cocktails before dinner and usually take wine during the meal. I'm 66. During the past year I awaken with a definite swelling above and below the eyes. Could it be the wine? Or the alcohol? Or could it be the down pillow that I sleep on? — Mrs. W.R.W., Wash.

Dear Mrs. W.: As you suspect, you may have some allergic reaction, either to the wine or to your down pillow. Is this a recent purchase? Swelling of the eyes is frequently attributed to allergy. In your case, it is not difficult to track down the reason for the swelling. All you have to do is eliminate the wine for a few days. If this is not effective, eliminate the cocktails. Sometimes, a combination of both may be responsible. If this doesn't throw any light on your problem, you can try eliminating the pillow, or covering it with non-allergic material.

If this technique is not effective, then other causes for swelling of the eyes should be explored with your doctor. I have known many patients who develop swelling of the eyes whose problem is traced to the use of hair sprays, hair dyes, cosmetics and, strangely, to nail polish.

Former U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold was killed in a plane crash in 1961.

Very few of our ship jumpers actually stay here," he said. "You don't have many in Wilmington because you can't get out of here easily."

The catch is geographical. "The eastern part of the JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) - The mud is gone and the homeless have shelter, but this city is troubled by mental strain and rising joblessness as it rebounds from its summer flood.

Thomas Carroll, chaplain at Johnstown's community hospitals. "Anxieties seem to be coming out now. People seem more edgy."

Disaster struck this southwestern Pennsylvania city of 41,000 twice this summer. At least 77 persons died when the Conemaugh River flooded July 20, causing an estimated $325 million in damage.

Officials at Johnstown Central High say uncertainty about Johnstown's future has caused seniors to take an early interest in enlisting in the military.

Sen. Robert Dole Thinking Of White House Race

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole, flying to speaking engagements around the country and moving to the forefront of the Panama Canal treaty controversy, acts like he's still Gerald Ford's running mate.

But Dole, no longer interested in being anyone's No. 2, is thinking of 1980 and a run for the White House.

"I'd be less than honest if I said I didn't know 1980 was coming up," the Kansas senator commented in an interview in his Senate office.

"We've been active, I can't deny that," he says when asked what he's up to.

With public opinion polls showing President Carter could be vulnerable, Dole is one of several Republicans showing an unusually early interest in the race.

He's been in the forefront of the Panama Canal issue and has taken strong, early stands opposing aid to Vietnam and normalizing relations with Cuba.

Although he's not a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he has used its hearings on the treaty as a platform for his views.

Dole says he wants to clarify the language of the Panama Canal treaty, but does not want to defeat it.

He sparked Senate debate over the defense provisions of the treaty with his Oct. 4 release of a confidential cable from the U.S. embassy in Panama to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

The cable contained a warning from Panamanian negotiators that U.S. leaders should refrain from saying the treaty guaranteed the right to intervene in the event of war after the year 2000, when Panama is due to take control of the canal. Nine days later, Dole charged that members of Panamanian head of state Omar Torrijos' family had been implicated in drug trafficking, a charge that was confirmed by the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Since January, Dole has made nearly 150 appearances in 24 states, Puerto Rico and Israel. And hardly a week goes by without a position paper coming from his office.

As the ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, he has a forum for maintaining that the administration is responsible for declining farm income.

And as a member of the Senate Finance Committee, the panel with jurisdiction over Carter's energy tax, welfare reform and Social Security proposals, Dole has another forum for speaking out on major domestic issues.

Not a bad spot for a senator with White House ambitions.

With Carter coming under increasing criticism from the American Jewish community for what is perceived as a policy tilt toward the Arab viewpoint in the Middle East, Dole is emerging as a strong supporter of Israel.

But it's three years before Election Day, 1980, much too soon for anyone to declare a presidential candidacy.

"Everybody disclaims any interest in the nomination," Dole said, "while they're boarding the plane for the speaking engagement."

Will Ignore Ban On Whale Hunt

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Despite an international ban and a lost battle in the federal courts, an Eskimo leader says that when the spring thaws come and bowhead whales appear near the North Slope shores, Eskimo whalers will go on their traditional hunt.

The International Whaling Commission's ban on hunting the endangered bowhead went into effect Monday night. Biologists think there may be as few as 600 and no more than about 2,000 surviving bowheads.

Last week, Judge John Sirica ordered the State Department to use its privilege to file a formal objection to the ban. But on Monday a Washington, D.C., federal appeals court and then U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger vacated Sirica's ruling, leaving the whaling ban intact.

"... We'll go ahead and proceed with our scheduled whaling season come spring, despite a ban. That's our only story," said Mayor Eben Hopson of Alaska's North Slope Borough.

The IWC voted last June to impose the one-year ban on subsistence hunting of bowheads, which had already been ruled off-limits to commercial hunters. The United States abstained.

Under commission rules, subsistence hunting could have continued had the United States filed the formal objection on behalf of the Eskimos.

A group of Alaskan natives and the Alaska Eskimo Whaling Commission sought help in the federal courts, arguing that the ban would deprive Eskimo villages of their main sources of protein.

The State Department argued that an objection would encourage commercial whaling nations such as Japan and the Soviet Union to ignore whale quotas.

Simon Leaves Paper's Board

NEW YORK (AP) — William Simon, former secretary of the treasury, has resigned as chairman of the board of The Trib, a planned daily newspaper, at the request of the paper's publisher, Leonard Saffir.

Saffir said Simon's resignation was requested because Simon had "attempted unsuccessfully to gain editorial and financial control for political purposes."

According to Simon's secretary, Simon, now working for a management consultant firm, "has resigned due to a commitment of time and other personal reasons."

The five-day-a-week paper is due to begin circulation on Jan. 9.

Meanwhile, in Boise, Idaho, at a Republican fund-raising event, Simon said he's not running for president, the U.S. Senate, or any other public office, despite persistent speculation.

There has been speculation that Simon will challenge Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., or run for the spot in the event Case retires.

"I have no intention of running for any office," Simon said. "...As far as I know, Cliff Case is going to run again."

TOMLIN DOUBLES

HOLLYWOOD, (UPI) — Lily Tomlin will double up as producer and star in Universal Pictures' "The Incredible Shrinking Woman". The film will be the first project under Tomlin's studio contract which calls for her to produce and star in two movies over a three-year period.
