House Moving Toward Payroll Tax Boost

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is heading toward passage of a bill to keep the Social Security system from going broke by drastically increasing the payroll taxes paid by American workers and their employers.

decision during nine hours of debate Wednesday, the House voted 386 to 38 against immediately bringing more than six million government workers under Social Security.

Including the government workers would have reduced the tax bite needed to keep the system afloat because the additional wage earners would increase the tax revenues going into Social Security.

The House vote approved an amendment deferring for at least two years any decision on making Social Security mandatory for employees of federal, state and local governments and of nonprofit organizations. The House Ways and Means Committee had voted to bring the workers into the system immediately.

Under the bill as amended, the maximum Social Security tax for both employees and employers would go up during the next decade from the present $965 per year to $2,982. Without the amendment, the maximum tax in 1987 would have been $250 less.

The amendment, proposed by Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., calls for a two-year study of bringing the workers, the last remaining major groups not under Social Security, under the program.

Federal workers now have separate retirement plans and employees of state and local governments and of nonprofit organizations have the option of forming independent plans.

Fisher argued, "The consequences of extending coverage to all workers has not been adequately studied."

Backers of the Fisher amendment said it would be unfair to phase out separate pension plans on which workers have made retirement plans.

"Imagine this situation," said Rep. Herbert E. Harris, D-Va., who like Fisher represents a district containing many federal employees.

"You have been contributing to a retirement program for 15 years. You have planned your family and retirement on that basis. Then Congress tells you that there will be drastic changes in the plan," Harris said.

Opponents of the Fisher amendment cited numerous studies dating back to the 1930s recommending including government workers in Social Security. They said another study is unneeded and said the real reason for the heavy lobbying by groups of federal employees for the Fisher amendment was the opportunity they have for "double dipping."

"Double dippers" collect two government checks. For example, a person can retire from a government job and then accept a job covered by Social Security to qualify for a second pension.

Opponents of Fisher's amendment said 45 per cent of retired government employees also collect Social Security pensions. They said that a person can collect a pension of $114 per month after paying as little as $111 into Social Security during his working life.

Trade Deficit Drops Proposed US 264-NC 11 Corridor Study Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. balance-of-trade picture improved in September when the United States sold more goods abroad than in any month in history, the Commerce Department said today.

However, the U.S. trade balance still showed a deficit for the month. But the deficit of $1.7 billion was a sharp drop from the $2.7 billion deficit for August and the smallest since a $1.2 billion deficit in May.

For the year, the United States has bought $19.2 billion more in foreign goods than it has sold abroad. The deficit could reach a record $30 billion for the year, administration officials have said.

The record exports for September totalled $10.9 billion, surpassing the $10.4 billion recorded in December 1976, the previous high. Most of the increase was in machinery and transport equipment, such as autos, manufactured goods, chemicals and food and live animals.

While exports rose 14.2 per cent, imports increased by about 3.3 per cent, mainly because of more imports of petroleum products.

The Carter administration has said almost all of the trade imbalance this year is caused by U.S. imports of oil from the Middle East. On his current Middle East trip, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has been trying to persuade oil exporters to keep prices down, saying it is in their best interests.

The City-County Planning and Zoning Commission, after endorsing last month the concept of the proposed US 264-NC 11 Corridor Study, voted four to three last night to abandon the study and to leave the area as is.

Wednesday's action by the joint board wrote another chapter in the controversial corridor zoning matter and once again created a split in the voting philosophies of board members.

After hearing several property owners along the western corridor express opposition to various aspects of the zoning plan, commissioner E. E. Howell offered a motion to leave the area as it now stands. Howell amended his motion to include abandonment of the plan after other board members requested clarification of his motion.

Joining Howell in voting to drop the corridor study for the present time were commissioners J. T. Manning Jr., William Heymann, and Elbert Mills, while Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, Wes Hankins, and Clarence Tugwell opposed the motion.

The vote at the September meeting to approve the corridor zoning concept was also split with Heymann, Mills and Manning opposing the endorsement and Howell abstaining.

In offering the motion to abandon the study, Howell noted that it does not mean

Approval Of Bond Issues Said Vital

Secretary of Transportation Tom Bradshaw this morning emphasized that the passage of the $300 million highway bond issue and the $230 million clean water bond proposal is important to the economic and industrial development of North Carolina.

Bradshaw spoke at an 8 a.m. Coffee Talk program sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce today on why the passage of the two bond proposals — to be voted on by the people of the State on November 8 — is needed.

"Both (bond issues) are important tools for the development of our state," Bradshaw said.

The $300 million highway bond issue Bradshaw said, will "help us expedite our building and improvement program. We can issue that amount of bonds without a tax increase."

The transportation official noted that "the cost of highway construction has doubled in the last 10 years. We need this to help catch up...and bonds are a good investment."

The highway bond program, according to Bradshaw, will produce $60 million a year for the next five years. These funds, if the proposal is approved by the voters, Bradshaw said, will bring in added federal highway funds.

One of the greatest needs of the State, Bradshaw indicated, is improvement of the East-West highway system, including a four-lane highway system linking the state's ports to the West.

Saying that improved highways is one tool used for economic development, Bradshaw emphasized that clean water is "that other tool."

Bradshaw said development of water systems and waste water treatment facilities — projects that would be funded with the $230 million clean water bonds — are essential for economic growth and industrial development.

He noted that Fountain, Farmville, Bethel and Greenville are presently in need of improved waste water treatment facilities to supply new industrial projects.

"We're really building a future for North Carolina...improving jobs and job opportunities," by approving the two bond proposals, the Transportation Secretary said.

"Now is our time to do our thing," he said.

Speaking about the Highway 264 improvement issue, Bradshaw said he drove to Greenville on the highway this morning, but noted "I drove on the new part under construction," in the Zebulon area. "It helped," he said.

Bradshaw noted that the Transportation Board at its last meeting awarded contracts for two additional lanes to be constructed between Bailey and Zebulon and said the board, at its next meeting is expected to award contracts for two additional lanes on U.S. 264 between Bailey and Wilson.

At present, the Zebulon to Wilson project includes two lanes constructed on a four-lane right-of-way.

Saying the Board of Transportation "is interested in and concerned for your transportation needs," Bradshaw said the most current study of the U.S. 64-U.S. 264 area "said build both of them...build both of them very quickly. They are high priorities," he said.

Bradshaw said, too, that a new Greenville by-pass is being considered as part of the U.S. 64-264 program.

Reveal Pneumonia Vaccine At Hand

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pneumonia vaccine may be available by the end of the year that would, for the first time, catch America's fifth biggest killer before the infection sets in, researchers said.

If the vaccine is approved by the federal Food and Drug Administration, it will be given nationally to three groups of people highly susceptible to pneumonia: the elderly, children with missing or defective spleens, and the estimated 50,000 persons — mostly blacks — who suffer from sickle cell anemia, the researchers said.

The results of a two-year study of 77 San Francisco Bay area black children with sickle cell who had been immunized by an experimental vaccine were announced at a news conference Wednesday by a team of researchers from the University of California at San Francisco.

"We have not seen adverse effects other than some local pain and fever," said Dr. Arthur Ammann, a UCSF director of pediatric immunology. "We feel it is a very safe vaccine."

Ammann suggested the vaccine eventually could join the arsenal of traditional immunizations, like polio, given all children.

Joining Ammann at the conference were Dr. William Mentzer and Dr. Joseph Addiego, both of UCSF. Results of their study were published today in The New England Journal of Medicine.

The vaccine is an "effective preventive treatment for one of the most important causes of death for children with sickle cell," Mentzer said. "We believe that cause of death can virtually be eliminated by prior immunization."

Despite antibiotics, pneumonia kills an estimated 25,000 Americans annually, doctors said. For some persons, the infection spreads through the body too quickly for drugs to be effective.

Heart disease is the most frequent cause of death in the United States, followed by cancer, accidents and cerebral vascular disorders.

Doctors said they also found the vaccine effective in 19 children whose spleens were missing or defective and were easy targets for the infection.

Two Area Men Among Judgeship Candidates

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

District Court Judge Herbert O. Phillips, a Morehead City native, and Greenville attorney David Reid, are included among a list of 34 men recommended as candidates for 13 Superior Court judgeships.

Eleven of the judgeships were created by the General Assembly last spring, while the other two vacancies were created by retirements, and Gov. Jim Hunt is scheduled to make his choices for the vacancies within the next 30 days.

The recommendations were made by a merit selection committee, the first of its kind in state, named by Hunt during the summer.

Phillips is currently a District Court Judge for District three, which includes Pitt, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico Counties. He has been a District Court judge since January 1969.

Phillips attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received his law degree from the UNC Law School in 1951. He entered the private practice of law in Morehead City in 1951 and served as solicitor of Morehead City's recorders court from 1951 to 1955 and served as the court's judge from 1955 to 1968. He also served as Carteret County attorney from 1963 to 1968.

He commented, "Needless to say, I'm happy" about the recommendation. "I appreciate the fact that they consider me qualified to serve on the Superior Court. I'm honored that they've seen fit to recommend me to the Governor to be considered under the merit selection process."

Phillips, emphasizing "it's an honor to be recommended," said "I'm hopeful, of course, the governor would be inclined to give me favorable consideration," but added, "whatever his pleasure is, he'll let us know."

Reid, an Asheville native, attended UNC and received his law degree from the UNC Law

School in 1959. He entered the general practice of law in Greenville in 1960 after serving as a law clerk for N.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne for about a year. He presently is a partner in the law firm of Mattox and Reid.

The attorney is a former member of the North Carolina House of Representatives and served as Greenville City Attorney for 11 years.

"I was flattered and honored that the judicial nominating committee thought my qualifications were worthy of appointment to the Superior Court bench," Reid said. "If appointed, I will do everything within my power to bring honor and credit to the court."

Japanese Cooking Schools Are Growing In Popularity

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — The heat of dozens of cooking fires in the smoke-filled room brought beads of perspiration to the faces of 150 young women as they stirred a fried rice dish in a Tokyo cooking school.

Teachers in white uniforms at one end of the room gave instructions over microphones and an occasional tinkle of broken glass or screech of dismay could be heard over the general din.

Gradually the noise died down as the tables of six girls each finished cooking and sat down to eat. The smoke filtered out of the room and the heat abated a little, but the aproned figures were too tired for much conversation.

They sipped green tea and quietly ate the meal that most had cooked for the first time.

The scene takes place 24 times a week throughout the year at the Tokyo branch of the Masaru Doi Cooking School, one of the largest in Japan.

Cooking schools here, unlike Cordon Bleu or La Varenne, are not the place for foreign visitors to pick up some of the spice of the Orient.

They are numerous — thousands throughout the country — crowded with mostly young girls, and taught only in Japanese. It takes many weeks of lessons to accumulate enough knowledge to put together a simple Japanese meal.

The intricacies of Japanese cuisine are seldom explored outside Japan. But for women here, it is essential to know how many seconds to leave dried bonito flakes in boiling water to prepare a basic soup stock, how to clean fish or choose an octopus.

A year of weekly cooking lessons is nearly a prerequisite for marriage, like the arts of tea ceremony or flower arrangement.

Doi has one school in Tokyo, one in Kobe and five in Osaka, with a total enrollment of about 20,000. A typical lesson begins with a lecture demonstration of a complete meal, usually soup, entree and salad or side dish.

Television monitors are hung from the ceiling throughout the room. After the lecture, the students divide into groups of six to cook the meal, while a group of instructors wanders about the room to check on their progress. General directions are given over a microphone.

Doi gives two reasons for the popularity of cooking schools in Japan. One is that the Japanese diet is one of the most varied in the world, with Chinese, Japanese and Western dishes equally popular.

"In other countries, when people want to have Chinese food, they go out to a restaurant, but in Japan we want to turn everything into home cooking, so lessons are necessary," he said.

Another reason is that cooking is not being passed on from generation to generation.

"During the war (World War II) there was very little to eat and what there was, wasn't delicious," he said.

"So a whole generation could not pass on their cooking traditions to their daughters. Of course, there still are many homes where this is done, but older people only know how to cook fish and not meat, which is popular among the young today."

And Japanese cooking, he said, is difficult.

"It is the kind of cuisine that requires we be able to taste each ingredient," he said.

"Western food is its sauce, Chinese food is its mixture, but Japanese food is simply the thing we are serving."

Japanese food continues to be a combination of the old and new, East and West. Fried bean curd in soy sauce goes back to the beginning of Japanese history. The regular beginners' course at the Doi School offers Chinese, Western and Japanese cuisine, going from a Chinese sweet and sour pork dish one week to spaghetti the next.

The fame of the school is due partly to Doi's regular television cooking programs over the past 25 years.

The times have changed since his first appearances, when he started out cooking over coal. Then he used kerosene, electricity and now propane gas.

At one time the lighting gave off so much heat that the utensils became too hot to pick up, not to mention wilting the lettuce. Now television technology is much improved, he added. The way Doi sees it, cooking is television's longest-running program.

Although Doi was taught cooking by his mother, he does not think men should cook and does not admit male students to his classes.

"For men, cooking is all right for leisure, but traditionally in Japan men were not even allowed in the kitchen. Even today many women only look after the home while their husbands go out to work. This is an old custom.

"So for the housewife, cooking is her biggest and most important work — the thing that has the most value. Men should not take this away from her. When men cook, they just use a lot of ingredients and don't clean up afterward."

TV Program Highlights Anniversary

RALEIGH — A television program "Nursing — A Diamond Jubilee" will highlight the 75th anniversary of organized nursing in North Carolina and will be aired on the UNC-TV network Friday at 10 p.m.

The program will culminate a yearlong observance by the North Carolina Nurses Association of its diamond jubilee year. Special events during the year have featured nursing history as well as the future role of nursing and health needs of future populations.

Some 30,000 registered nurses in North Carolina form the state's largest health profession. The N. C. Nurses Association serves as spokesman for the profession.

The program will be seen in Greenville on Channel 25.

European exploration of the New World from the 15th to the 18th centuries would not have been possible without the fresh meat provided by the green turtle, according to the American Museum of Natural History.

Dentist Could Solve Her Kissing Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I can't sign my name because I don't want to humiliate my husband, but I need some suggestions.

We've been married for 20 years and have a lovely family. We've had our ups and downs, but the biggest problem now is my husband's refusal to brush his teeth. It's repulsive.

He's a heavy smoker, which doesn't help his breath any, and he's always having problems with sore gums. He hasn't been to a dentist in years, and his teeth are rotting away.

His breath has gotten so bad lately that I told him I had a sore throat and he could kiss me only on the cheek. Now he's complaining that I've had the longest "sore throat" in history, and he's stopped kissing me altogether.

I love my husband and would like to kiss him, but that terrible breath turns me off.

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: If you could drag him to a dentist, I'd be all for it. But a grown man who refuses to clean up his act doesn't deserve to be kissed on the lips, so don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend stood me up last night. He didn't call me before work this morning to explain, and when I called him later, he got mad at me for being mad at him for standing me up. He said I should have "understood."

Tell me, what are the ethics in such a situation?

STOOD UP

DEAR STOOD UP: Your boyfriend has learned that the best defense is a strong offense. It's bad enough that he stood you up, but if you could reach him by phone later, he could have reached you by phone to explain.

Lose him, unless you are prepared to "understand" a lot of other things you can't understand.

DEAR ABBY: A lady with whom I was well acquainted passed away last week after a lingering illness. Her family was well aware of the hopelessness of her condition. The day after her death, her two teenage daughters were back in school going about their business as usual, without showing signs of their loss or sorrow in any way.

Their friends and teachers were shocked at this apparent lack of feeling. Am I wrong to feel that, out of respect to their mother's memory, they should have stayed at home for the one day between her death and her funeral?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: How other people handle their grief and react to their losses is a very personal matter. Judge not, lest ye be judged.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If there is any greater panic that grips a woman than when they open up a new register at the check-out line, I don't know what it is.

I have seen sweet little old ladies drive their carts over the bodies of small children, plow through gum displays, and suffer spark burns from cart-to-cart combat in an effort to get there first.

Last Friday, I was third in a check-out line when one of the stock boys opened a new register. Before I could back up my cart, a woman in a green warm-up suit, cut me off at the breath mints, leaped over the National Enquirer, and jockeyed to first place.

"I hope your Cornish game hen thaws," I said bitterly and could have bitten my tongue out. That is exactly the kind of a remark I deplore and is giving supermarkets a bad name. Where have all the manners gone?

Maybe what we need are guidelines. Possibly:

1. Thou shalt not find humor in the woman who always gets the shopping cart with the two wobbly wheels that head for the door when the other two wheels are headed down an aisle.

2. Thou shalt not separate only the good, firm bananas and leave the others to die alone.

3. Produce managers shall not make shoppers crazy by putting out 3,000 plastic bags and 27 wire bins.

4. Women who have opinions on what sweetbreads look like in the meat case should keepeth it to themselves.

5. Carry-out boys shall not pack bread and eggs under the ham and bird seed just to get your attention.

6. People who do not declare coupons until the total should not be given over to a mob for lynching.

7. Thou shalt not double park in the frozen food aisle lest those who are detained suffer from death by frost.

8. Shoppers who realize they have bought too much and put milk and fresh fish aside at the check-out counter should be treated with compassion.

9. There is goodness somewhere in women who have each of their five children go through the express line with six items each.

10. Thou shalt have patience with the shopper who cashes a check. On a bank in Leningrad.

With no I.D. For 500 rubles. At 5:30 in the evening. In the express line. Punch her out later in the parking lot.

Job-Finder

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina is better than any other state at finding jobs for welfare recipients, according to a government report.

Between Oct. 1, 1976 and July 1, 1977 North Carolina cut its welfare payments by nearly $5 million, ending payments to 1,985 welfare clients and reducing them for another 2,756.

The U.S. Labor Department said that performance was the best in the nation. The $5 million is for Aid to Families with Dependent Children and does not include corresponding reductions in Medicaid and Food Stamp payments for which the recipients had also been eligible before they got jobs.

The state Employment Security Commission and the Division of Social Services collaborate on the program. The employment people find the jobs and arrange the training. The social services people provide supportive services like day care.

About 45 counties are taking part in the program. The remaining 55 counties are rural and contain only 20 per cent of welfare cases and there are not enough federal funds to expand any further.

All welfare recipients in participating counties are required to register for a possible job if they are able to work and do not attend school full time.

Mumford Road.

Horne, who noted that GUC realized some time ago that land was needed for expansion, reported that one access would be provided off Mumford Road to serve the center, which would include eventually a main warehouse building, open land storage, operation center offices, parking area, repair and storage sheds, and garage.

The garage facility will probably be built initially, he said, since the present facilities are cramped. He said that the site offers access to the downtown offices as well as to the bypass area for service to various parts of the county.

Commissioners voted to table action on the annexation petition for University Medical Park located in the southeast quadrant of Stantonsburg Road and Allen Road, and also on the final plat of Pinewood Forrest, Section II. No one was present to represent the Pinewood Forrest development.

The Greenville board, after discussing the South Evans Redevelopment Plan, voted to recommend the adoption of the plan to the City Council with several recommendations.

City Planner John Schofield explained that the Redevelopment Commission held a public hearing on the plan and recommended that consideration be given to the acquisition of right-of-way on the south side of 14th Street rather than on the north side in widening the corridor (parts of 14th on the north side involve home locations), and also that consideration be given to the widening of Evans Street in the plan execution.

The redevelopment area is bounded on the south by Norfolk & Southern Railway, on the west by Seaboard Coastline Railroad, by sections of 10th and 11th Streets on the north, and by Charles Street on the east.

Schofield noted that the hearing conducted by the Redevelopment Commission was attended by approximately 85-100 residents.

Under the plan, the eastern portion of the redevelopment area would be retained as residential with homeowners possibly eligible for low interest rehabilitation loans and some grants available to elderly homeowners.

The western section of the area near the railroad would be designated for clearance and eventual use as the location for the city's Public Works Department facilities.

A major objective of the plan is to widen 14th Street from Charles to the railroad but initial proposals had called for the widening to involve right-of-way acquisition on the north side of the street. Evans Street widening was not included in the initial projections and commissioners last night indicated that the project should be added to the planning now.

Schofield explained that the area includes the last slum section in the city.

Bordering the residential zoning would be Downtown Commercial Fringe, Office and Institutional, Neighborhood Commercial and Highway Commercial zones.

The City Council will receive the plan with the recommendations of the planning board. A hearing will probably be scheduled by the Council for the December meeting.

Commissioners approved the preliminary plat of Twin Oaks Subdivision, Section II, located off Greenville Boulevard south of the Jaycee Park property, and tabled a request by the Community Development Department to change the zoning in West Meadowbrook from R6-MH to R6 south of Dudley Street to the flood plain.

In addition, action on the final plat of Lyndale Subdivision, Section Eight, was tabled when no representative was present at the meeting.

In a final, unscheduled item, commissioners gave unanimous approval to the Sedimentation Control Plan for Wilson Acres, located off E. Third and Elm Streets.

Prince Charles Met The Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — England's future king was a star attraction at a party where he mingled with stars like Cary Grant and Farrah Fawcett-Majors to help raise funds for a local hospital.

Prince Charles capped a busy day Wednesday — which he began by viewing the successful flight of the Space Shuttle Enterprise — with his appearance at the party at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Stars accompanying the prince on the dais included Grant, Miss Fawcett-Majors and her husband, Lee Majors; Sophia Loren, Telly Savalas and Dean Martin.

The prince spent four hours at the event, which drew about 1,000 people. The party was sponsored by the Variety Club.

that the matter can not be brought back up. He said that "for ten months, we haven't been able to make up our minds."

The commissioner suggested that, "We are sitting here writing a Bible on property that we don't agree on."

He proposed that property owners who wish to rezone be allowed to submit their requests and if the board does not agree with the zoning proposals, it can turn them down then.

Hankins said that he favored a limited number of highway cuts and driveways along the corridor and he cited the potential for increased traffic and accidents if commercial development is not internalized.

Mrs. Trevathan, who also supported the corridor plan, suggested in the past that residential development along the bypass would be proper if it was done in internal fashion and not fronting directly on the bypass. She said that the number of cuts can not be controlled since it is a state corridor.

Manning pointed out at past meetings that the bypass area was not suitable for residential zoning and he said that residents of the area wanted the property to be zoned commercial.

Jim Lanier, a resident of the Country Club Drive area on the north section of the study, said that he is in favor of "orderly and sane development" of the study area and he approved of rezoning from Highway Commercial to residential. Lanier said, however, that property owners in the area object to R-9 zoning backing up to the existing R-15 development.

A petition signed by property owners in the area was offered suggesting that the plan be amended to rezone a strip of land behind the country club neighborhood to R-15.

Chap Tucker, a property owner in the bypass area whose request for rezoning last month was recommended by the board for denial by the City Council, stated his opposition to the corridor study and also contended that the city does not have a "true bypass" in the existing 264 route.

Commission chairman Lyman Ormond said that "until we go in with limited access, we won't have one."

Curtis Worthington,

another property owner along the bypass, said that if the plan was approved, he would have no chance to come back before the board for seek a zoning change to develop his land. By not approving the plan with a blanket zoning for the whole area, he noted, property owners would not have their hands tied in seeking to rezone.

In other business last night in a three-hour meeting, commissioners waived the automatic tabling period and voted unanimously to recommend to the Council that the request of the Pitt County Fair for rezoning some 32 acres on the west side of Greenville Boulevard, northeast, from Highway Commercial and RA-20 to Unoffensive Industry, be approved.

Les Turnage, representing the fair, said that plans call for the new site to be used as the fair location in 1978. He noted that construction of necessary buildings will begin as soon as possible and the fairgrounds will be designed to be a model operation.

Turnage explained that traffic will not be held up at the new site with fair ticket purchases as has been the case at the present location. Fair visitors will park their cars in the designated areas and then purchase their tickets, he said.

Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities, reviewed the plans for GUC's new operation center scheduled for development on a site off

Mark A Disappointing Year

This is not one of the happiest years for the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. There has been little improvement in the amount of tobacco on hand for Stabilization. "We're pretty good going to end up this year the way we ended up last year," Fred G. Bond, general manager, said.

Stabilization buys tobacco at a support price level using borrowed money. The tobacco is later sold on the world market and the revenues used to repay the loans.

Unfortunately Stabilization has much tobacco on hand of poor quality and that is going to be difficult to sell.

Stabilization had 608.4 million pounds on hand at the beginning of the selling season. Some 213 million pounds have been sold this year, but new purchases are expected to be between 150 and 160 million pounds. Therefore the reduction of tobacco held by Stabilization has been disappointing. Stabilization Corp. has come through difficult times before, notably when it was loaded up with "slick" tobacco, or discount varieties in the 1950s. Somehow the co-op got through that.

This time, though, the entire tobacco program is under severe attack, and any sign of weakness of Stabilization will be pounced on by critics of the program. Without the price support system and Stabilization, tobacco production will be in chaos. With that will go the livelihood of thousands in North Carolina; many more in other states.

All that can be done will be for Stabilization to launch a vigorous sales campaign to sell some of this surplus tobacco on the world market. Its going to be difficult, but perhaps it's possible to find new markets for the tobacco on hand.

Unnecessary Words In Withdrawing

The field of candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate race — and the chance to oppose Jesse Helms in the election — is one less now.

Hugh Cannon withdrew from the race with a statement at a press conference Monday.

He acted with a blast at Sen. Helms which he should not have delivered. Cannon threw his support to Luther Hodges, but he could do Hodges more harm than good with his withdrawal statement.

State Plans Help Seniors

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — More and more North Carolinians are living longer, and it is time for the state to begin using the resource this population represents, instead of treating old folks as burdens, the state's leading spokesman for this age group believes.

Nathan Yelton, who classifies as a senior citizen himself, is assistant secretary of the Department of Human Resources with responsibility for the division of aging.

That is a new post created this year. And along with that official recognition of the need for action for the elderly, the General Assembly has established a committee to study problems and look for solutions.

do the job.

"I see, then, the need for only four people to help me develop and produce these programs:

"A research analyst, a researcher with statistical experience, a volunteer coordinator, and an education coordinator," Yelton said.

Given that "minimum number of personnel, a maximum of resources could be channeled into benefiting society and, at the same time, providing a better quality of life for the older adults of North Carolina."

The "maximum of resource" which Yelton refers to are the numbers of elderly, now some half-a-million strong in this state. Given declining birth rates and increasing health and longevity resulting from improved medical techniques, it is apparent that the elderly will continue to grow as a percentage of population.

Yelton wants his professional team to "develop demonstration projects to carry the message to the public and re-educate them that most of our senior citizens are not frumpy, frail, and fidgety... but are alive and energetic and have wisdom to contribute to society."

NOBLITT

Looking ahead, he told legislators he will seek funding for a variety of educational programs, volunteer approaches, and the coordination of governmental programs to help bring back into the mainstream of community life "one of the most ignored resources in our country and one which is growing astronomically... the energy, wisdom and expertise that our older citizens possess.

Alone

"They should be an integral part of the community, yet many are living alone and their talents are going to waste."

Yelton sees the need for research to develop information on aging, and on North Carolina's older population; to identify the variety of activities and programs of benefit to the elderly and in which they can take part; and to implement means of regularly keeping people informed.

A second priority is education—both for the elderly themselves, and for people who work with the elderly, the health care people, social workers, etc.

Also, Yelton wants to help older people "use their time creatively... part-time employment... public service volunteers... so that our state may benefit from the services of these people."

There are, says Yelton, many "gleefully waiting for that magic year of 65 when they can stop the treadmill of answering to the clock and can do many things they've always wanted to do..."

The state's goal ought to be to help provide that opportunity, he believes.

'Anger' On U.S. Policy

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jewish leaders who met with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance feel concern, frustration, anger and "a sense of outrage" over U.S. policy in the Middle East, the leader of the group says.

Their spokesman, Rabbi Alexander Schindler of New York City, told reporters after a two-hour closed meeting with Vance on Wednesday that many Americans, not just Jews, disapprove of the Carter administration's policy.

He said Israel had "practically bent itself into a pretzel" trying to accommodate the administration while the Palestine Liberation Organization remains "at the heart and center of a worldwide conspiracy of terror."

Schindler said that, while the administration says it does not want a Palestinian state, we "perceive it as being one of the goals."

Complaining of a "seeming escalation," he said the United States first talked about a "Palestinian homeland," then an "entity" confederated in some manner with Jordan, and then of "legitimate rights" of Palestinians.

He said the door has been opened wide to bringing the PLO into the negotiating process, and this, he said, is the "first step in an inevitable chain which leads to an independent state no matter what the goals of the administration."

Some 80 Jewish community leaders were invited to the session with Vance, a step in the recent campaign to ally concerns about U.S. policy toward Israel.

"The secretary of state asked for frank and open statements and he received those frank and open statements," said Schindler, head of the Conference of Presidents of Major Jewish American Organizations.

"The Jewish community expressed its concern, its frustration, its anger. This was a voice that came not only from the national leadership but from the grass roots, from the

The Petersburg Topics

PETERSBURG, VA. — Once they get away from sports, TV and wholly personal concerns, what are the American people talking about this fall? If Petersburg, Va., is at all typical, they're talking about a wide range of national issues.

In some ways, Petersburg may be as typical as you can get. It's a town of 36,000, situated in farming country 35 miles south of Richmond. Nearly all of its 8,900 families are native-born Americans; three-quarters of the residents were born in Virginia. In terms of income, education and employment, Petersburg is just about average for the South.

The town is typical in this way also, that it supports a Public Forum, sponsored by the First Baptist Church. A thousand dues-paying members gather in the new consolidated high school to hear a lecture. Then the audience has a chance to submit questions. Last week the audience wrote out 124 questions and sent them to an on-stage panel.

Sifting through the questions, an observer is struck by their variety — and by the depth of information they reveal. Small-town America is not composed of ignorant hicks. Obviously, the people who live in the Petersburgs of this country are reading newspapers and news magazines; they are keeping up with the news on TV; they are keenly aware of current events in Washington.

Exactly half of the questions dealt with domestic politics or government. Jimmy Carter evidently is in trouble. One after another, members of the audience spoke of the President's "inadequate" energy program or his "absence of leadership." A woman asked, "Why can't he get along with Congress? After all, it's run by his own party." One question dealt in plainly contemptuous terms with Brother Billy's earnings "on the carnival circuit." Four questions — two of them evidencing sympathy, two plainly hostile — dealt with former President Nixon.

Congress fares no better than the White House in the eyes of small-town America. "Is it apathy, or ignorance, or just what makes the general public elect, term after term, senators and representatives who are insensitive to the public needs? And how can congressmen give themselves raise after raise and continue to talk of curbing inflation?"

Half a dozen questions dealt knowledgeably with the federal debt, which was then in the news, and with federal finances generally. At least in Petersburg, Va. people worry about deficit spending. They believe the deficits fuel inflation, and they want a balanced budget. But none of the questions indicated enthusiasm either for higher taxes or for reduced outlays.

After politics and government, the Bakke case commanded the greatest interest. The predominantly white audience appeared to be overwhelmingly against minority quotas at state institutions of higher learning, but several questions indicated deep concern for the training of black doctors if racial preferences are forbidden. Twenty-odd years ago, this southside Virginia town would have phrased its questions differently. Attitudes do change as time goes by.

Except for a single question about the Middle East, all the questions in foreign affairs had to do with the Panama Canal. Here one perceived no doubts at all. Petersburg, Va., wants no part of a "giveaway." President Carter's vigorous support of the pending treaties evidently has cost him with his Southern Constituents.

Members of the audience had questions about the press — tough questions.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Mideast Peace Obstacles

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
JERUSALEM — The unleashing of intense Zionist emotions under the banner of Eretz Israel — a larger, Old Testament Israel — is becoming a threat to President Carter's Mideast peace plans, with Prime Minister Menachem Begin cast as a modern Joshua.

Israel's new and immensely popular leader confides to intimates that he now knows he underestimated Mr. Carter's angry reaction to the establishment of new Jewish settlements inside the Israeli-occupied Palestinian West Bank. But whatever Begin says privately, his government's blueprint for comprehensive systematic movement of Jewish population into the West Bank seems to continue with a life of its own.

The plan, as explained in interviews and speeches by Erik Sharon, the man in charge of new settlements, is not modest. It assumes population resources far beyond Israel's present capacity: urban industrial centers in the heart of the Arab West Bank, surrounded by satellite agricultural settlements.

This would require the movements of tens of thousands from the thickly-populated coastal cities on the Mediterranean to the highlands of Judea and Samaria and a new network of highways. The object: virtual isolation of the centers of Arab population (total about one million) like Nabulus, Ramallah and Hebron.

Whether Israeli voters would sanctify these colonization plans in a referendum is highly questionable. Certainly, the plans would die aborning in any conceivable peace settlement that might emerge from Geneva. But despite Begin's clear reluctance to press ahead right now, with Mr. Carter and the whole world demanding a halt, the plan to colonize the West Bank in the name of security seems to be proceeding against the prospect of a political settlement, which many political leaders here feel may be beyond reach. Should a political settlement fail, Sharon's ringing words to the Jerusalem Post in an interview last month will point the way: colonizing the West Bank will be done because it has to be done.

The impact of this profound Zionist response to centuries of the Jewish diaspora is hard to measure, but at the least Begin and Sharon have touched a past chord in the Jewish psyche which has reinforced the almost mystical drive to settle Eretz Israel.

It is a vision, a young woman named Yael Ben Yacov told us in the brand-new hilltop settlement of Beit Homotaim near the Arab village of Sanur. Army trucks and a front loader had already completed an encirclement road around the windy, bleakly beautiful hilltop; travel and sand were ready for pouring; 21 tents were staked along one side of an old Jordanian police post; three pre-fab shelters, each for three families, were in place; a makeshift kitchen was serving lunch to the 23 children of Beit Homotaim:

the inevitable barbed wire fence was up.

"It is a vision and it will stay with us forever," Mrs. Yacov said. Most of her group (but not she) are members of the Gush Emunim, fanatical religious believers in Eretz Israel. Evicted by the army three weeks ago when they first tried to settle, they returned one night and planted the Israeli flag on top of the hill. After a personal interview with Sharon, the settlement was approved. Sharon himself came to dedicate it.

But what if there is peace and you are out? Could this be only a temporary settlement? "We say in Israel whatever is temporary is the most permanent," Mrs. Yacov said — "and do not forget," she went on, "that Begin promised the liberated West Bank would be open to all Jews anywhere." Did she vote for Begin last May?

"I was brought up to hate Begin," she said. "Whenever he came on the radio, it was turned off in my house. But I myself voted for him. My parents did not understand. But I understand. History tells us wherever the Jewish people settle, that will be the border."

With rare exceptions, that conviction is universal in the

Other Editors Say Drivers Are 'Key'

(Raleigh Times)

Millbrook Assistant Principal George Sanders may have put it better than he knew when he said Wake's mostly-teenage school bus drivers "are the key" to making the tough new bus discipline policy work.

More stringent penalties for bus behavior violations were essential. The schooling public and its parents must be able to count on reasonably orderly bus transport. The new code provides, for a first reported bus offense, a registered letter to parents; a second, five days' bus suspension; a third, 30 days' bus suspension. Principals have welcomed the new code and promise to apply it firmly when violations are reported.

But the bee for reporting them is on the young drivers. The policy is only as strong as their will and ability to implement it. And many drivers are going to find that hard to do, especially those who drive high school routes who passengers are their peers in age and sometimes their friends and schoolmates.

We have already advocated hiring no bus drivers under 17 or with under a year of driving experience, and study of ways to get more adult drivers. The monitor idea has also been advanced.

But for now, the youthful drivers and the new policy need all the support they can get from the schools. It seems to us that candidates in bus driver training ought to have at least an hour or two of specialized instruction in how to deal with their lively passengers and how to implement the discipline policy as part of the required work for a bus driver's license.

What gives a person "authority" is not altogether a mystery. There are psychological techniques for asserting it that can be taught and learned, as the recent vogue for "assertiveness training" attests. Wake's bus drivers need these tools to handle their great responsibility well under conditions that can get very tough indeed on occasion — and to make the new discipline policy work.

columnist suggested that if the American people wanted a bellhop in the Oval Office, they would elect one.

Carter subsequently laid down the burdens of baggage for the larger ones of his new office. Now he customarily carries nothing larger than a thin briefcase, if that.

Departing for a recent weekend visit to Camp David, Md., however, Amy Carter put her father back in the baggage handling business. Emerging from the White House with a hatbox in hand, Amy intercepted her father near the ramp of a waiting helicopter and thrust the luggage at him.

While the President stood on the lawn, looking bemused, Amy raced off toward some White House sedans parked 50 yards away. Her Secret Service bodyguards gave pursuit.

In a couple of minutes, Amy returned from one of the cars carrying her violin. Practice sessions obviously are a part of her Camp David routine.

During Carter's flight from Denver to Los Angeles last weekend, aides canvassed reporters aboard Air Force One for jokes or one-liners the President might consider using in addressing an evening fundraising dinner for the Democratic National Committee.

One suggestion was adopted. Courtesy of a newsman, Carter was able to tell his audience about efforts to involve brother Billy in the affairs of government.

"I had it all arranged," the President reported. "I was going to reorganize and put the CIA and the FBI together. But Billy said he wouldn't Governor Clyde Hoey said, in High Point, that "North Carolina is definitely in favor of crop control legislation" in a speech at a luncheon attended by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace.

"The one good effect of the special session of Congress," Hoey said, "should be early passage of farm legislation so that the farmer will know how to plan for his crops in 1938."

The governor and secretary visited soil conservation projects near High Point and then went to Winston-Salem for a banquet of the state grange.

Dr. Maurice Fishbein said reports of seven additional fatal cases were received, but had not yet been traced to the elixir.

Strength For Today

DOORS

Stanley Jones, a great preacher and writer of a generation ago, often spoke about the necessity of turning our denials into doors. By this he meant that every time we shut a door against something in life we very much desire, another door is opened; and this will prove to be a door which will lead us into great satisfaction.

Every time we close the door on something low, God opens a door for us on something high. Everytime we say no to our evil selves, God gives us strength to say yes to our better selves.

How many people, disappointed and left in despair, have suddenly found that because of this circumstance God had placed their feet in highways which later led to great service and happiness. For example, it was his home life which made Hosea the great prophet of love. It was the thorn in the flesh which made Paul seek more avidly for God's sustaining grace.

Campaign Habits Fade Slowly

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter no longer hops off airplanes hauling a garment bag, but he demonstrated during his recent Western swing that campaign habits die hard.

When Carter's limousine pulled up at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, where he was to spend the night, the President headed straight for the vehicle's trunk and removed not only a garment bag but also a small black suitcase.

The White House naval aide made a serious attempt to unburden his boss, but Carter was adamant about serving as his own bellman.

During last year's campaign, Carter and his garment bag sometimes seemed inseparable, to the point where a Washington society head up any agency that he couldn't spell...."

In his Los Angeles talk, Carter said he was hopeful the dinner would "raise enough money to have my brother Billy come out and speak next year." After the laughter subsided, the President added, "Billy brings me a lot of good publicity, as you well know."

Carter also poked fun at California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr., seen by some at the White House as his most formidable potential Democratic challenger in 1980.

The President said he had received "a personal handwritten letter" from Brown inviting him to the $1,000-a-plate dinner.

"I decided to come out here anyway," Carter concluded.

While the President stood on the lawn, looking bemused, Amy raced off toward some White House sedans parked 50 yards away. Her Secret Service bodyguards gave pursuit.

Campus Radar May Be Turned On Bicyclists

ELLENSBURG, Wash. (AP) — Cars are banned on the tidy campus of Central Washington University, but college police are peering into a radar screen and planning to issue tickets. Student bicyclists are speeding.

"We had a hit-and-run just last night," CWU police chief Adolph Brickley said Wednesday. A 64-year-old man suffered cuts and a bloody nose when a bicyclist knocked him down and then disappeared into the darkness.

Two students have been injured in collisions over the past two weeks. One sustained a broken collar bone. Brickley said there have been numerous bump-and-bruise accidents in the past, but the hit-and-run forced the crackdown.

The radar program, two weeks old, is just in the "warning" stages on the one-and-a-half square mile campus, Brickley said, but in another week police will begin handing out tickets.

"We want to publicize it pretty well so there won't be any claims of a trap," Brickley said.

"We want to use it as a deterrent, to slow people down, just like you lift your foot off the gas when you see a police car parked along I-90," he said. The radar unit is in police cars parked on campus. Although the campus population is only about 9,000, including faculty and staff, Brickley said bicycles number at least 2,000. Only university and emergency vehicles are allowed on campus, and the uniform speed limit is 5 miles per hour.

"Short of banning bikes on campus all together — which I don't like doing — I think we must regulate their speed," said Brickley. "We have clocked riders moving as fast as 22 miles per hour during the first week we experimented with the unit."

"When you are going that fast the impact can be pretty drastic on a two-wheel vehicle."

Brickley said citations and ball schedules will carry the same penalties on campus as with any other moving violation occurring on public streets. For example, a speed of 10 m.p.h. over the posted limit carries a $30 fine.

Student reaction to the radar is 85 per cent positive, said Brickley, "but there are always a few malcontents who maintain we're infringing on their rights."

Spending Money To Make Money

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina and its travel industry learned this year that you have to spend money to make money.

The state spent $427,000 on tour and travel promotion this year, which officials say is partially responsible for a $107 million jump in travel business in the first seven months of 1977 compared with last year.

William V. Arnold, head of the state tourism and travel industry division, says some of the credit has to go to past advertisements.

"Momentum counts for a lot," he says. "You need to get people to thinking of your state as a vacation area."

Some of those people he's talking about happen to live in North Carolina already, but Arnold says that doesn't mean they won't spend their vacations here. More of them are heading for North Carolina resorts instead of Florida.

Arnold says there doesn't appear to be any reason 1977 can't be a record year for the tourist industry.

October business, he says, has been "super," not only in the mountains where the leaves have been turning, but also along the coast, where motels report they're still getting advance bookings, some for as late as December.

Once the leaves are gone, the money maker should be skiing, and Arnold says ski resorts are expecting a very good year. Last year's season set records when the severe winter stretched the normal season by two months.

Resort operators are hoping this year for at least a three-month season, December through February.

suggesting significant hostility toward the media. A couple of questions dealt with proposals for the direct election of presidents. One question asked about ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. There were questions about the cruise missile, the B-1 bomber and the neutron bomb. Six persons asked about Bert Lance; none of them seemed to admire the former budget director.

These are the very issues, of course, that occupy Washington correspondents all the time. Sometimes we wonder if our concerns are truly shared beyond the Potomac. To spend an evening in a small town high-school auditorium is to gain reassurance: Americans care.

settlements we visited: the beginnings of the first industrial park between Jerusalem and Jericho, the army camps on the new, unpaved Allon Road along the spine of hills through the center of the West Bank, and in the agricultural fields of the Jordan valley.

The politicians claim all settlements that must be terminated in an Arab-Israeli peace will be — whatever the cost to the Yael Ben Yacoovs who believe what they have been told. If so, the government's approval of new settlements will end in cruel disillusionment.

But a far graver question is raised: whether the only peace Israel will approve is one that must treat these settlements as permanent. That would be the kind of peace the Arabs would never accept.

Steelmakers Report Record Net Loss

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest steelmaker, recorded a third quarter net loss of $477 million, the biggest quarter loss ever by an American firm.

The loss, announced Wednesday, is equivalent to $10.92 per share and was more than 10 times greater than the net profit of $45.5 million, or $1.04 a share, earned in the same period last year.

The largest quarter loss previously recorded by a U.S. firm was in the third quarter of 1972, when RCA Corp. reported a $250 million loss. In 1970, the Penn Central Transportation Co. declared a 12-month loss of $431.2 million.

The company's loss before tax credits was $894 million. The largest part of that was a pre-tax loss of $750 million caused by the shutdown of steel mills in Lackawanna, N.Y., and Johnstown, Pa., where a disastrous flood on July 20 interrupted production.

The company set out in late July to trim costs by cutting production 10 per cent. Some 7,300 workers were permanently laid off in Johnstown and Lackawanna, and Bethlehem estimates layoffs will reach 12,000 employees.

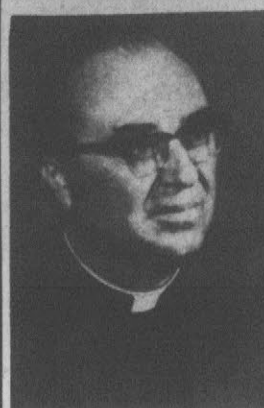

"We believe the closing of marginal facilities and other actions taken leave Bethlehem in a stronger and leaner condition to take advantage of opportunities for growth," Chairman Lewis Foy said in announcing the record loss. Foy cited factors responsible for Bethlehem's decision to close plants and write off its losses, including unfair import competition, rising labor and material costs, sluggish demand and expensive environmental requirements. "These and other problems are continuing to have a substantial negative effect on our business," he said. Bethlehem is the sickest of the country's ailing steel companies. U.S. Steel, the nation's largest producer, said this week its profits dropped 75 per cent in the third quarter.

U.S. Steel reported net earnings of $27.1 million for the quarter, or 30 cents per share, compared with $112.5 million, or $1.38 per share, for the same time last year.

The nation's top five producers have reported aggregate nine-month earnings of $211.5 million, a drop of 69 per cent below 1976 levels.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today for the Great Lakes but mild weather is expected for most of the country.

Rain is due for the northwest coastal areas and showers are expected in Oklahoma-Kansas and eastern Florida. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The worst of the state's stormy weather is over, but cloudy skies will persist through Friday with a chance of more rain in eastern North Carolina. Highs today should be in the 70s in Piedmont and western North Carolina and in the 60s in the mountains. Winds will be generally light and variable in most areas, but will become southerly along the coast.

As the full fury of a storm moved across the state Wednesday, rainfall ranged from one to more than six inches, with two to three inches reported in most areas. In Union County, the town of Monroe measured 6.15 inches of rain.

The drenching rains raised the level of Chapel Hill's drought-devastated University Lake by 32 inches. But the reservoir remained 39 inches below full, and Orange Water and Sewer Authority officials said mandatory conservation measures would continue.

The storm front lashed the North Carolina coast with high winds, rain and pounding surf, tearing away hunks of beach up to 10 feet wide in some places and spawning a destructive tornado in Lenoir County.

More erosion and flooding along the coast was forecast today, depending on how fast the front moved offshore.

On the southwest corner of Emerald Isle in Carteret County, winds up to 46 miles an hour pushed the surf two or three feet higher than normal high tides and caused the worst erosion.

The twister tore through the Deep Run section of Lenoir County Wednesday morning, ripping away a store awning and destroying a storage house and three bulk curing barns at the Odell Hill farm and store.

Wrightsville Beach lost about three feet of shoreline in Pender County. Winds up to more than 70 miles an hour buffeted Diamond Shoals Light Tower 50 miles offshore and forced two U.S. Coast Guardsmen to remain on the island under the winds subsided.

They had been making last-minute adjustments in a new automatic operating system for the lighthouse.

North of Cape Hatteras on Hatteras Island there was minor erosion. Inland, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Jacksonville and northeastern counties had heavy rain.

Asked Join 'Child Find'

Greenville City and Pitt County Schools have been asked to participate in "Child Find" month.

The state's 145 school systems will be involved in the program. Gov. Jim Hunt proclaimed November as "Child Find" month in a statewide effort to locate and identify every handicapped and gifted child through age 21 who is not currently receiving services.

The Child Find census is one result of recent legislation enacted by the 1977 General Assembly which guarantees children with special needs a free, appropriate education.

People interested in volunteering to help with this campaign should contact their local school systems. Individuals who know of children who are not receiving educational services are advised to contact their local school system, the Division for Exceptional Children, or call Careline, toll-free, phone 1-800-6627030.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Listening to an Erratic Heart

I'm a retired registered nurse. I was listening through a stethoscope to my husband's heart. It sounds erratic to me; it skips beats and changes rhythm. He is 53 and is 6 feet 3/4 inches tall. He has a history of high blood pressure which is new under control. He jogs a mile twice a week and jumps rope in between. What sort of medicine should he be taking to regulate his heartbeat? He does have a yearly physical examination, including an electrocardiogram. — Mrs. B.S., Pa.

Dear Mrs. S.:
You cannot possibly be retired so long from the field of medicine not to have some inkling of the injustice you are doing your husband.

The fact that he has a regular yearly examination does not mean that he will get two demerits for making a telephone call to his doctor to report his irregular heartbeats. There is no law that says that anyone with a problem cannot see his doctor more than once a year.

control irregularities of the heart. But before any of them can be used by your husband the exact cause must first be determined.

May I make this suggestion? Get rid of your stethoscope.

I am a person of moderate means. I have finally been able to scrape together enough money to buy a hearing aid. It does improve my hearing considerably. Now my big problem is that I constantly have to buy new batteries after I use the aid for a short while. The cost and the nuisance are getting me down. — Mrs. J.T.O., Fla.

Dear Mrs. O.:
It is true that the high cost of hearing aids is compounded by the need to replace batteries regularly. The life cycle of a hearing aid battery is very short.

There is a new rechargeable nickel-cadmium battery that is said to last 16 hours on one charging, and can be recharged about 500 times.

The manufacturers say that the battery can be used with hearing aids in eyeglass frames as well as with the regular aids.

The batteries are said to last about three years, with little or no change in strength. If they fulfill their promise this will be an enormous boon to hearing aid users. They are manufactured by Varta Batteries, 85 Executive Boulevard, Elmford, N.Y.

Now, ask yourself this question. Does it make sense for anyone with high blood pressure (controlled or not controlled) to jog and jump rope when there is any irregularity of the heart?

Many irregularities of the heart are of no importance. Others are very significant. There are now dozens of excellent drugs available to

Some Shipping People Seem Ready To Accept

NEW YORK (AP) — As the impact of the dock workers' strike against containerized shipping increased today, some members of the fragmented ocean shipping industry seemed ready to try to meet the longshoremen's demands.

Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the 50,000-member International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO, reported he had met with Rex Wheeler, new president of the Council of North Atlantic Shipping Associations.

He said Wheeler wanted "to see what it takes to fix up a GAI program," or guaranteed annual income plan that the union leader wants to see extended to all ports from Maine to Texas.

"They were probing," Gleason said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the strike's economic toll mounted, cutting into Christmas supplies and tightening a ring around shipping-dependent Puerto Rico as 46 big U.S. container ships lay idle Wednesday.

The Maritime Administration said 34 of the U.S. ships were caught in Atlantic Coast ports, four on the Gulf Coast and one on the West Coast while seven were laid up in northern Europe. In addition, 11 foreign container ships were trapped in East and Gulf Coast ports.

The dock workers are in the Shipping Association said he doubted it. He noted that NYSA had withdrawn from CONASA last weekend when other members "wouldn't even consider" a proposal by ocean carriers to assure the feasibility of a guaranteed annual income and other benefit funds.

While there were doubts among shippers that the fragmented talks would be productive, officials said they would welcome any break in the impasse, regardless of origin, because the multiple negotiations were proving "extremely difficult."

Four Mishaps On Wednesday

An estimated $4,200 property damage resulted from a series of four collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police. Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:55 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets involving cars driven by Karen Louise Wardle of 108 Abby Rd., and Minnie Daugherty Savage of 2505 East Fifth St.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $700 to the Wardle car and $1,000 to the Savage vehicle.

Joanne McCoy Goins of Route 1, Greenville was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 7:53 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Moore Streets.

Investigators reported the Goins car was involved in a collision with two other vehicles, a truck driven by Claude Vines of 407 East 11th St. and a car driven by Eva Blackburn Turner of Route 4, Greenville.

Vines truck, $1,000 to the Turner car and $250 to the Goins auto.

Cars driven by Lloyd Wilson of 110 Azelea Dr. and Kelly Wooten of 1305 West Fourth St. collided on Dickinson Avenue, 50 feet East of the Wilson Street intersection, injuring both drivers and a passenger in the Wilson car.

Damage was estimated at $450 to the Wilson car and $300 to the Wooten vehicle by officers who charged Wilson with driving under the influence.

Jennifer Helen Cherry of Route 5, Greenville was charged with following too close after investigation of a 4:15 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 2,000 feet North of the First Street intersection.

Again Planning Totie's Future

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedienne Totie Fields, who underwent a mastectomy three days ago, is "doing great," says a spokeswoman for Los Angeles Holy Hospital.

Her manager, Howard Hinderstein, says plans are already being made for her to perform Jan. 5 at the Sahara in Las Vegas.

Monday's operation for removal of a tumor was the third operation for Miss Fields, 46, in 1 1/2 years. Her left leg was amputated in April 1976 because of a circulatory problem. In May this year, she underwent eye surgery.

"Usually we say a patient is satisfactory or in good condition," spokeswoman Susan Weight said Wednesday. "But with this lady I have to say she's vibrant. She's doing great. She's a fantastic person."

whether to back a resolution calling for an immediate arms embargo against South Africa or one threatening a ban if the white South African government doesn't soften its racial policies by a certain date.

U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young is reported urging joint Western support of the demand by black African nations for an immediate embargo. But Britain and France, which with the United States, the Soviet Union and China have a veto in the council, are reported holding out for a warning resolution.

The black states submitted two proposed resolutions against South Africa after its government last week outlawed most important black organizations and arrested some 50 leading black opponents of its apartheid racial policy.

The other African resolution calls for a halt in new foreign investment in South Africa.

Council debate on the resolutions has been adjourned until Friday while delegates negotiate and confer with their governments. American sources said they did not expect a vote before Monday.

President Carter is expected to announce U.S. support for an arms embargo resolution at his news conference this afternoon.

The United States, Britain and France vetoed such a resolution in 1975. The three major Western powers all say they are enforcing an arms ban voluntarily, but South Africa is reported getting arms surreptitiously from dealers evading government license requirements as well as weapons more openly from Israel and a handful of other countries.

Richard Moose, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, told reporters in Washington the Carter administration also has been considering such economic sanctions as withdrawal of guarantees for American commercial loans and a cutoff of scientific assistance.

However, the administration is reported not ready to support a massive assault on the South African economy. Last year American firms sold $1.35 billion worth of goods to South Africa, and U.S. companies have an investment of about $1.5 billion in the country.

South African Prime Minister John Vorster said Wednesday that his government will not heed foreign calls for full political rights for the black majority including "one-man, one-vote now or in the future, whatever the pressure."

Three veteran employees of East Carolina University have been presented Thirty Year Service Awards in special ceremonies marking their employment longevity.

Chancellor Leo Jenkins made the presentations to Edith Teel and Lou Parker Dunn, Housekeeping Assistants, both of whom began work in the campus laundry in 1946 and who were transferred to housekeeping when the laundry was closed. Both are residents of Greenville.

A third employee, Adelaide Dunn of Greenville, Development Disabilities Specialist, also received the Thirty Year Service Award but was unable to attend the ceremonies because of illness. She has 32 years aggregate state employment service and began work at ECU in the Developmental Evaluation

Center under Dr. Malene Irons in May, 1965.

Dick Farris of the ECU Personnel Department said a total of 107 Service Awards representing a cumulative total of 1,045 years of state service have been made to East Carolina University employees this year. The awards are presented under a statewide program of recognition for years of service and are made with each five year increment in state service.

Test Series Ends For 'Enterprise'

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Aerospace's odd couple, the space shuttle Enterprise and its companion Boeing 747, have made their last test appearance together. Next stop: outer space.

The Enterprise, launched from the back of its jumbo carrier for the fifth and final time Wednesday, made a quick, steep swoop to a bumpy but safe landing.

Britain's Prince Charles, a former Royal Navy flier who had piloted a simulated shuttle earlier this week, was among those at the landing site who sighed with relief when the craft finally settled on the runway.

Fred Haise and Gordon Fullerton were in the cockpit for the one minute, 55-second flight, the shortest and steepest of the shuttle's five test runs. The flight was a test of how well the shuttle's landing and braking system would handle a concrete runway, the same type that will be used when the craft first returns from space in early 1979.

While the other landings took place on a broad, dry lake bed, Wednesday's landing was to have been a pinpoint touchdown on the 15,000-foot landing strip. But the shuttle hit the concrete runway and bounced back into the air, its stubby wings wobbling from side to side.

After another little hop, the 93-ton craft touched down smoothly and rolled quickly to a stop with 2,000 feet of runway remaining.

Prince Charles, who had met Haise and Fullerton during his visit to Houston, "was a little tense" when the craft bounced on landing, said NASA official Stan Miller, who watched the landing with the prince. "But he's a pilot, and I think he understands those things."

Haise, who piloted two of the other test flights, said Wednesday's bumpy landing made the test "somewhat of a personal disappointment, because you always want to do the right thing, and in this case, the right thing was to put it down right on the line."

"Overall, however," Haise added, "I'm very happy because we got the vehicle on the ground safely."

Fullerton, Haise and testing project manager Donald Slayton termed the test a success. Slayton said further tests are unlikely.

So the next time a shuttle flies on its own — in 1979 — it will be boosted like a rocket into space bearing two astronauts who will orbit the Earth, then pilot the craft back down to an airplane-like landing here.

Rats In House Are Just Pets

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Dozens of rats roamed through Leonard Frantz' home, but the self-employed chemist wasn't upset. The rodents were "just like hamsters or gerbils," he said.

District Court Judge James Denato didn't see, it that way, however, and ordered Frantz on Wednesday to get rid of all but 24 of his dozens of pet rats — and to keep those in cages.

"There is a well-founded prejudice against the wild rat, the sewer rat," Frantz said. "But my rats are domesticated. They cause no trouble." He said he would appeal the order.

Frantz, 54, said he was trying to breed a strain of tame rats with "the ability to relate to a person in a manner similar to a dog or cat." The best way to do that, he argued, is to keep them out of cages.

During the hearing, which followed neighborhood complaints about the rats, Frantz was asked if he ever had been bitten by his rodents.

"Oh yes. Hundreds of times," he replied.

"What do you do?" asked an assistant county attorney.

"Nothing. It gets well in a few days. It might take a week. They'll bite right through your finger if they don't hit bone. But there's no diseases carried by these rats."

Officials of the Des Moines-Polk County Health Department testified that rats can carry numerous diseases, some of which can be transmitted to humans.

Steve Gunson of the department said officials would not be concerned if Frantz kept the rats in sanitary surroundings, but told Frantz: "I don't think your rats are under control."

After the ruling, Frantz said that "the purpose of the experiment is dead."

"My rats are in a cage — of sorts — a walk-in cage," Frantz said. "They're no problem. The health department is causing the problem."

Harvest Day Festival Set

AYDEN — The annual harvest day festival of the Ayden United Methodist Church will be held Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The bazaar will feature a country kitchen, plants, crafts and a Christmas room. A rummage sale will also be held.

The Methodist Men will be serving Brunswick stew at the church from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

WITHDRAWN — The Carter administration will withdraw the nomination of William E. Schaefele as ambassador to Greece, informed sources in Washington say. The State Department said an "unfortunate misinterpretation" of his remarks on the Greek-Turkish situation led to a hostile reaction in Athens. (AP Laserphoto)

A Drainage Problem In Big Rainfall Grant Supports Oil Spill Study

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Yesterday's rainfall caused some problems for the Greenville Public Works.

Approximately 2.30 inches of rain fell on the area between midnight Tuesday and last night.

According to Mayo Allen of the Public Works Department, the rain caused a water backup on Woodstock Drive in Belvedere subdivision.

Eight to nine inches of water were standing in the street yesterday, said Allen.

He said that the problem was caused by a pipe in the new section of Belvedere that is too small, causing a "bottleneck."

"That was the only place that we had trouble," Allen added that Lynndale subdivision which has had drainage problems in the past had water standing in the ditches, but not in the streets.

"The runoff is not as good there as I'd like to see it," he added.

He said that Woodstock Drive has not been dedicated yet and that he will bring the drainage problem to the attention of the City Planner before that time.

Other drainage pipes in Greenville performed well yesterday. "But if water comes down that fast it's going to take some time to clear," he added.

The Tar River level stood at 5.3 feet on the National Weather Gauge this morning.

The 8 a.m. temperature reading was 64 degrees. Yesterday's high was 77 degrees with a low of 60 degrees.

ECU News Bureau
Two East Carolina University sociologists have received a grant of $11,498 from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to study the socio-economic impact of the Argo Merchant oil spill off the coast of Massachusetts.

The spill occurred in December, 1976, when the Liberian registered tanker, loaded with 27,000 tons of fuel oil, ran aground and finally broke to pieces. The oil, however, never washed ashore but for many days, coastal New Englanders were fearful that their resort beaches would be polluted.

The study, headed by Dr. Peter Fricke and Dr. John Maiolo, will include a survey of residents in the towns of Nantucket, Edgartown, Chatham and Falmouth as well as the collection of data covering fisheries, tourism and recreation in the area.

The object of the study, according to Dr. Fricke, is to identify any divergence of popular beliefs concerning the socio-economic impact of oil spills and the real impact the spill would have in a community.

"We want to find out what people know about oil spills and what they think would happen. Did fewer people come to the Cape this year because of it? Has it affected such things as fishing patterns, recreation and property ownership?"

The study fieldwork will be conducted from a research base in Falmouth. It is to be completed by mid-November and the report submitted to the NOAA in December.

Dr. Fricke is a visiting associate professor of sociology at ECU and a senior scientist in the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources. From 1975 to 1977, he was a research associate at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Dr. Maiolo is chairman of the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Five Were Injured In Street Affray

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Five persons were reported injured in an affray near the intersection of Fifth and Elizabeth Streets late last night, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, who noted that the injured were all apparently members of the Lamba Ki Alpha fraternity.

Cannon said John Bashford of 500 Elizabeth St. was at the rear of the fraternity house when he saw a black man and woman apparently engaged in an argument along Fifth Street.

The couple crossed to the southwest corner of the Fifth Street-Albemarle Avenue intersection where several other black men joined in what Bashford told officers was an apparent attempt to man-handle the woman.

Cannon quoted investigators as saying Bashford crossed the street, then when other members of the fraternity went to aid Bashford, a confrontation, and fight erupted.

As a result of the melee, Cannon said Joey McNeil of 506 East Ninth St. received lacerations to his head, while Clay Smith of 500 Elizabeth St. received a laceration to his jaw. Both were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad where stitches were put in place to close their wounds.

Other persons injured in the fight, according to Cannon, were identified as Woody Teague of 303F Eastbrook Apts., Tim Carrere of 451 Aycock Dorm and Bashford. Teague and Bashford reportedly suffered bruises and abrasions to their faces while Carrere suffered a laceration on his forehead.

The chief noted that investigation of the 11:55 p.m. incident is continuing.

More Injuries Due Skateboard

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More people will be injured riding skateboards this year than playing scholastic, collegiate and backyard football, a new federal study discloses.
The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates 375,000 people will be injured in skateboard accidents in 1977, compared to some 370,000 in all the non-professional football games in the country.

An unreleased report based on the study predicts that the number of skateboard injuries will be more than double last year's 188,000.

A commission official said no other product under its jurisdiction has shown such a dramatic growth in the number of injuries associated with it.
William Kitzes, the agency's program manager for sports and recreation, said only bicycles will account for more injuries this year. There are about 80 million bicycle riders, compared to 20 million skateboarders.

Kitzes said in a telephone interview Tuesday night that more than 25 per cent of all skateboard accidents occur the first day of use.
He said the skateboard report, which won't be finished until next month, shows that only 2 per cent of the injuries result from defects in the skateboards.

Most injuries come from skaters' inexperience or problems such as potholes.
About 40 per cent of those hurt go to hospital emergency rooms, he said.
Of those treated, 30 per cent break an arm or leg and 24 per cent have cuts and bruises, while strains and sprains account for 18 per cent.

The commission previously reported there were 13 skateboard deaths between 1973 and last April.
The number of skateboards has grown from about 14 million in 1975 to 20 million in 1976, the commission said.

Skateboards have been around in some form since the 1950s, Kitzes said. But the early models allowed only a straight ride — not the turning, weaving and speeds of up to 90 miles an hour that riders can now experience.
The safety commission's options range from banning the product to safety campaigns. Kitzes said a ban is unlikely.

HONOR OLD SOLDIERS
BENTON, Ill. (UPI) — A plaque at the Franklin County courthouse honors 14 Revolutionary War soldiers who are buried in the Southern Illinois county.
"The trend is toward safer skateboarding," he said. "That's what we're interested in."
Kitzes suggests that riders wear safety equipment, such as helmets and pads.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, riding the momentum of Wednesday's strong rally. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 1.73 to 815.14 in the first half hour. Gainers took a 5-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the rally was fueled by the assertion of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns that the Fed would stick with its goal of curbing inflation by restraining the growth of the money supply.

They also noted encouragement over resistance from some leading California banks to the latest increase in the prime lending rate from 7 1/2 to 7 3/4 per cent.

Dow Chemical was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, up 1/4 at 27 1/2. On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 11.87 to 813.41 for its best gain since it picked up 13.06 points last April 12.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-2 margin on the NYSE. Big Board volume hit a three-month high of 24.86 million shares against 23.59 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .55 to 50.41. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .78 to 112.16.

Threat Of Elon Fires

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Arson is suspected in a series of fires in Elon College dormitories that were followed by a telephone threat that "smoke will pour out of every building by morning."

Two mattress fires were reported Wednesday night, one at 9:51 p.m. in the Virginia women's dormitory and another at 11:45 p.m. in the Carolina men's dorm. No injuries were reported, and the fires were extinguished before spreading to other rooms. However, there was an estimated $10,000 smoke and water damage.

The fires followed one a week earlier in a room across the hall from the Wednesday night blaze in Virginia dormitory.

Late Wednesday night, Bill Hetzel, chief of the Elon College volunteer fire department, said he received a telephone threat that there would be fires across the campus by morning.

Fred Young, Elon College president, said off-duty Burlington city policemen and Alamance County sheriff's deputies were called in to patrol dormitories, classrooms and administrative buildings following the threat. No additional blazes were reported, however.

The State Bureau of Investigation has begun a probe of the fires.

Terrorists Are Buried

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Three West Germans terrorists whose prison deaths touched off cross-Europe demonstrations were buried today as several hundred heavily armed police stood by.

There were no incidents as Andreas Baader, 34, Gudrun Ensslin, 37, and Jan-Carl Raspe, 33, were buried in a common grave in the city's Dornhalden cemetery.

Mourners included Miss Ensslin's father, the Rev. Helmut Ensslin, and Baader's mother.

The three, who were serving life terms for murder, were found dead in their maximum security cells Oct. 18 a few hours after an air hijacking staged to force their release was foiled by West German commandos.

Officials said Miss Ensslin hanged herself with a lampcord and the others shot themselves, but there was no explanation how Baader and Raspe obtained weapons. Supporters of the terrorists claim they were murdered.

Government spokesman said the three apparently committed suicide after learning that the hijacking had failed and tried to make their deaths look like murder.

Avers U.S. Is Still A Threat

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
Associated Press Writer
HAVANA (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says the United States remains a "potential danger" to Cuba and is still trying to foment rebellion in his country.

In brief remarks, he told a Massachusetts trade delegation Wednesday that problems between the two countries persist. But he added that President Carter's policies make the United States appear less threatening.

Castro said the United States is encouraging terrorism aimed at Cuba by exiles. He said the U.S. government is aware of activities against Cuba conducted by CIA-trained terrorists.

He also called the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay "an instrument of humiliation" and said the United States should leave foreign bases it occupies.

Dedication Of Project Sunday

Dedication and Open House for the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District (CMSD) project is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at the project site east of Grifton on state road 1910.

According to Secretary of CMSD Don Russell, federal, state, and local officials that have participated in the development of the plant have been invited to attend.

Floyd Lupton, administrative assistant to Congressman Walter B. Jones, will be the guest speaker.

The public is invited.

"The U.S. government needs time. I believe there are various problems the U.S. administration faces, such as the treaty with Panama. Time is not important because we have totally consolidated ourselves.

He said he doesn't consider the United States a potential threat "as long as President Carter's policy is maintained.

"But the United States," he added, "is a powerful country. It has adopted different policies at different times. It is potentially a danger," Castro added.

Rose, Wilson In Important Meeting

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It might be surprising for a team that has won two of three conference games to have its back against the wall, but that's exactly the case for both Rose High School and Wilson Fike when the two meet Friday night in Wilson.

Kickoff will be at 8 p.m. in Titan Territory Stadium.

Both of the Division I teams come into the game with 2-1 conference records, sharing a three-way tie for second place in the league with Northeastern.

A loss in the game, however, will just about eliminate the loser from any chance of gaining one of the two berths the conference has in the post-season state playoffs.

After the contest, both teams have one regular season game left, and that one, too, will also be a crucial one for the winner.

The Rampants are coming off a 24-21 win over Northern Nash in a game that should have seen Rose have little difficulty according to Coach Dave Bumgarner.

Two of the Knight touchdowns were set up by Rampant mistakes, both fumbles, while the other came on a long run that saw the scorer break two tackles at the line of scrimmage. Without that play, along with the fumbles, the Knights would have been scoreless and held to less than 100 total yards.

"Offensively, I think we are beginning to get things to jell," Bumgarner said. "Mac (Washington) is getting the rough, tough yards up the middle that make people respect him. And this is opening up our quarterback (Joey Mattheis) to get outside and to work the option."

"But the biggest thing is the hard-running we're getting from Mike Joyner now, and the excellent blocking on the outside by Robert Morehead and Reggie Selby. We've also hit some key passes, and this has made people respect that part of the game. It backs folks off and opens up our offense."

Rose hit only three of four passes for 41 yards last week, but each of those passes was a crucial one that helped open up the game.

"Defensively, if you look at the statistics of the game, Northern didn't do much except for that one play. It was a good run that we just missed. It happens. I think the score should have been 24-7 at the most."

"That field goal (by Yousef Barakat) meant a lot, too. Maybe we could have gotten the first down yardage. I don't know, but we went for the field goal, and it eventually was the difference in the game," Bumgarner noted.

Wilson, while not big overall, does have some size in its line.

where 6-4, 240 Gurnest Brown, and 6-2, 230 James Barron operate. The two defensive tackles anchor the Titan 5-2 defense, along with George Mincey, a 5-9, 145-pound linebacker who likes to hit.

"They have a very good running game and a good passing game. The two compliment each other well," Bumgarner said. "They move the ball quite well."

For the third straight week, the Rampants will be playing a Homecoming game, too. First, their own, then Northern's and now Wilson's. "It's no big deal. We didn't even think about it last week."

Bumgarner pointed out that Wilson, while having a good offense and defense, has been opportunistic. "They rallied against Bertie and they beat Northern Nash in overtime. They were ahead of Elizabeth City last week, 10-7, and lost in the second half, 14-10. They meet the occasion quite well."

Quarterback Michael Terrery has hit 52 of 114 passes for 645 yards on the season, including eight touchdowns. He's had six intercepted.

Tailback Frankie Hinnant is a workhorse in every respect when it comes to rushing, however. He's carried the ball 224 times already for 841 yards, a 3.8 yard per lug average. He's scored five touchdowns, and is the leading scorer for the Titans.

Mac Washington leads the Rose offense, rushing for 638 yards in 144 carries, and 4.6 average. Morehead is next with 259 yards in 44 carries, 5.9 per trip.

Mattheis has hit on 21 of 63 passes for 348 yards. He, too, has had six picked off.

Jeffreys Leads Rose Into Sectional Play

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

To look at Rose High School's Karen Jeffreys, you wouldn't think she was the lone senior on the girls' tennis team.

She looks like she might be a sophomore because of her small size.

But when she takes the court, the experience she brings to the team leave no doubt of her leadership of the team.

"She's going to be awfully hard to replace," Coach Gwen Waller said. "Not only is she a good player, but she has a great personality. All of the coaches on the other teams like her, and the other players admire her for her sportsmanship."

Karen started playing tennis about five years ago, but has only been serious about it for the past three or four years.

"I went out for tennis while I was in junior high school, and it was just something to do. I played just to be playing," she said.

But the game began to interest her, and she put a little more time into it.

"I developed a funny forehand," she admits. "I drop my wrist. Coach Waller has worked with me to work around it, but I guess it's too late to try and change it."

Karen feels that her backhand is her strongest suit, however. "I've learned how to hit it two-handed, and I like it a whole lot better," she said.

Like most tennis players, she's a fan too, and likes Yvonne Goolagong among the pros. "She's just so natural," Karen said.

Last year, Karen lost only one match, her final one of the year, after 12 straight wins. This year, she's put together a 10-4 record. As a sophomore, she was 9-4.

But during that time, she's moved up the ladder. She started as the fifth seed as a sophomore, moved up to number three as a junior, and has played number two this year. "I guess I've just run out of time as far as getting to number one is concerned," she said.

Karen would like to enter East Carolina next year and play either tennis or basketball. If she gets the chance, this year, as in the last two, she'll be playing basketball for the Ramettes. She also played softball as a sophomore, but did not play last year.

She's also a football fan—both active and passive. "I've played some powder-puff football, and I think tackle is fun too, but I don't know if I'd like to wear shoulder pads," she said. "I guess I really just enjoy all outdoor sports."

Before her high school tennis career is over, Karen hopes to have a few more matches. She'll be teaming up with junior Margaret McGlohon for the doubles competition in the sectionals next week. "I think we have a pretty good chance to get into the regionals. Wilson will be the favorite, and we lost to them only 10-8 last week, so I think we have a pretty good chance. We're playing well together right now."

And a trip to the state finals would be a nice way to finish up a high school career, anyway.

Sports Briefs

SEATTLE (AP) — Rene Lachemann, who managed minor league baseball for five years, has been appointed manager of the San Jose Missions, the Seattle Mariners' Class AAA baseball farm club.

Lachemann, 32, managed the Missions in 1977, when San Jose was affiliated with the Oakland A's. The Missions finished with a 64-80 record.

His previous managing experience included the 1973 and 1974 seasons at Burlington in the Midwest League, 1975 at Modesto in the California League and 1976 at Chattanooga in the Southern League.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Joel Eaves, who suffered a heart attack last month, says he will return next Tuesday to his job as athletic director at the University of Georgia.

Eaves, 63, suffered a heart attack Sept. 30 while in Tuscaloosa, Ala., for the Georgia-Alabama football game.

The former Auburn University basketball coach underwent open heart surgery at Emory University Hospital in Atlanta and is now recuperating at his home in Athens.

Pirates Snap Losing String

PEMBROKE — East Carolina's soccer team snapped a couple of streaks yesterday as the Pirates downed Pembroke State, 5-2.

Mike Browning and Phil Martin were the stars of the show for ECU, as both scored two goals and Martin added an assist. The Pirates' other goal was scored by Mike Hitchcock on a penalty kick.

The Pirates broke out on top early, taking a 3-0 lead in the contest and pushing the score to 4-1 at the half.

The ECU offense got on track in the contest, which was good news for coach Brad Smith. The Pirates had 27 shots on goal to Pembroke's 12.

"We just decided to win one for a change," said Smith afterwards. "I was really pleased with the play of both Browning and Martin. I'm glad we put one together finally."

The win snapped a seven-game losing streak for the Pirates and also marked the first time in six contests that the Pirates have managed to score. The win pushes the ECU record to 3-9 on the year. Pembroke dropped to 1-13.

The Pirates will play their final match of the year Friday at William & Mary.

Dye Liked Second Half Pirate Rally

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Pat Dye, head football coach at East Carolina University, had praise for The Citadel for stopping East Carolina in the first half last Saturday night, but heaped praise on his own Pirates for their comeback in the fourth quarter.

"We scored the first time we had the ball, then got another quick score on the blocked punt," Dye said at his weekly press conference yesterday. "It wasn't a question of us letting down after that, it was a question of The Citadel finally playing like we had expected them to. A lot of credit has to go to them for coming back and playing like they did."

Dye felt that the Pirates weren't flat at the start of the second half, but ready to play. "We moved the ball right down the field, but lost it on a fumble. We held them, got them to punt, then fumbled again, and they took that one in for their go-ahead touchdown. We came right back and missed a field goal, and I knew then that it was just a matter of time. (Gerald) Hall's 11 yard punt return put us in real good field position at their 44, and we were in four-down territory after only one first down. We could afford to go to (Terry) Gallaher then, since we could still run four downs after that."

Those runs, however, weren't necessary, as Gallaher caught a touchdown pass that put the Pirates back into the lead, this time for good.

"The two interceptions helped us a lot in the final quarter, when we scored 19 points. We had a lot of yardage in the second half, and scoring in the last quarter is an indication that we are wearing our opponents down."

The coach felt that offensive linemen Wayne Bolt and Joe Godette played "extremely well" in the line. Willie Hawkins and Eddie Hicks also had good games in the backfield.

"Hicks may have had his finest game of the year. He blocked very well," Dye said. He also praised both of his quarterbacks, Jimmy Southerland and Leander Green. "Southerland did very well. He got the big play to Gallaher. Green actually graded higher than Jimmy. The two were close and even. Both took 'em in twice, and the defense got one score for us."

Gallaher, according to Dye, had a "super, super game." "I can't say enough about what he's done time and time again, blocking, receiving, getting open, and in leadership. He's a team man, and I've never heard him make any comments about not throwing the ball more." And he had a little something extra on that touchdown pass. We had to have it to win."

On defense, Dye felt that the Pirates gave up too many points. "The Citadel did an excellent job. Their quarterback (Marty Crosby) did an excellent job of throwing the ball. He mixed up his passes with drop-backs and roll-outs to take away our effectiveness on the rush. And the motion they used got us out of some of our coverage."

Dye again cited his defensive ends, Zack Valentine, Fred Chavis and John Morris, as playing outstanding football. Woodrow Stevenson and Noah Clark drew praises in the line, while Mike Brewington and Harold Randolph did well at linebacker. "Harold had some problems, but I think that was due to his missing most of the week with a leg injury."

Dye also praised freshman walk-on Chuck Jackson for blocking the punt that set up the second touchdown. "That was a big, big play in the game for us. He showed me that he has courage, and I think we're going to try and make a linebacker out of him."

While The Citadel threw for a lot of yards, Dye still had praise for the defensive secondary. "About 50 to 60 per cent of their passes were completed in the area underneath the secondary, plus they threw the ball a lot, too. All four played well."

Dye felt that the kicking game was a big factor in the game. "They had no long returns."

The coach pointed out that it is not easy to get up when you are supposed to win. "I'd like to be favored in all 11 games. I want the other team to be scared and tight. But you have to be winning for a long time to establish a tradition like that."

There was one disappointment in the game for Dye. "We didn't play our second unit enough. I really wanted to have our second team in there on that last drive, but the way the game went, we just got out of our game plan."

WINTERVILLE RESCUE SQUAD

Located on May Farm, 1 1/2 miles north of Winterville, across from Pitt Tech.

HAVING BEATEN AYDEN-GRIFTON, Farmville Central's Jaguars would appear to be assured of picking up their second consecutive Eastern Carolina Conference football championship.

The Jaguars are 5-0 in the league, they hold down first place and have already recorded victories over two of the next three teams, Ayden-Grifton (4-1) and Greene Central (3-2). North Lenoir, also 3-2, and the only other team with even a remote shot at tying the Jags, will face them in the last game of the season.

Ayden-Grifton is the only team with any real hope of challenging for the crown. For them to win, the Jags would have to lose their remaining two games with next Friday at North Lenoir and this Friday when they host North Pitt. That the Jags could lose next week is improbable, but that the Panthers could sneak up on them is just this side of impossible.

Farmville Central has not simply managed to get by all its conference opponents this year by any means. The closest margin in an ECC game was the 14 points in the Jags' 21-7 win over C. B. Aycock. Some of their more impressive wins have been: 38-16 over Greene Central, 47-14 over Southern Nash and 32-15 over Ayden-Grifton.

Winning big is nothing new to Farmville Central, which romped through the year last year in an even more impressive fashion and has 14 straight loop victories. What's so striking about all this is that the Jaguars have been able to roll on in what was supposed to have been a rebuilding year for them.

LAST SEASON, when the Farmville Central was working towards a second-place finish in the eastern 3-A, the team was led by a number of talented seniors. Among these were running backs Kenno Farrow and Ted Dunn, quarterback Carroll Griffin, big tackle John Dupree and flanker-defensive back Mike Jenkins. These standouts seemed irreplaceable.

But coach Gene Brewer just reached a little deeper into his bag of players and pulled out a number younger, but equally-talented players, most of whom are underclassmen.

Perhaps the most impressive of the bunch are a pair of twin brothers who are only sophomores. They are the Reids, Ronald and Donald, and both are multi-talented. As the team's starting linebackers, the two are devastating on defense. Donald is also a starting running back, while Ronald is the Jags' placement specialist.

Going into the Ayden-Grifton game last Friday night, Donald was the top scorer in the conference with 61 points and was also ranked among the league's leading rushers.

Another Farmville sophomore, Walter Blow, is the fifth-leading rusher in the league, having carried the ball 68 times with a 5.4 yards per carry average.

The team's quarterback, Donald Freeman, is but a junior and is one of the most talented high school signal-callers around. He has good size, 6-1, 165, and should be one of the top college prospects in the state at his position next year.

Freeman is the ECC's top passer, connecting on 52 per cent of his tosses. His 773 yards passing is the highest in the conference and he averages 14.9 yards per throw. He has thrown eight TD's and only three interceptions in 100 attempts.

WITH SUCH A TALENTED BUNCH of underclassmen, the question is: Will anybody be able to touch the Jaguars next year?

There are only six seniors on the team, but Farmville Central will suffer some losses after graduation this spring, mainly in the line.

There, two mainstays will be lost, tackle Len Hunt and guard Woody Edwards.

Rufus Mayo, the top receiver in the ECC from his flanker position, is also a senior, as is defensive back and back-up quarterback Scott Evans.

The Jaguars will be hurt a bit by the loss of these players, but with such talent returning and the new faces Brewer always seems to come up with, they could do it all next year, if not this year.

Syracuse Game Was Terp Turning Point

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — If Maryland beats North Carolina Saturday, the Terps may leave the field saying they owe it all to Syracuse.

That requires some explanation.

About three weeks ago Maryland was on the ropes, with three losses against one victory. The Terps' chances of repeating as Atlantic Coast Conference champions seemed about nil.

"That was our lowest point of the season," said Terp quarterback Larry Dick. "Things have never been that low since I've been here. At about that time we were going out on the field wondering about losing. We had no confidence whatsoever."

Then along came Syracuse and a much-needed victory.

"The only thing we needed was a win," Dick said. "We needed to know how it felt to win because we had forgotten how to win. We needed the Syracuse game and since then we have been playing closer to our capability."

Two more victories followed, and Maryland now stands 4-3 overall and 3-1 in conference play, which puts the Terps next to Clemson behind North Carolina. This week's game could be a turning point for the ACC.

Dick doesn't expect any big changes in the Carolina game Saturday.

"I don't believe their coaches will want to change anything that has been as successful as their defense," he said. "We know they're good and that they have the inside track on us in the ACC race. But we have put an awful lot of hard work into being defending champions and we would certainly like to repeat because of it."

After Eight Days, No Unbeatens Left

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

How's this for balance — the National Basketball Association season is only eight days old, and there's just one undefeated team left.

What's more, every team except one has at least one victory.

The defending champion Portland Trail Blazers fell from the unbeaten list Wednesday night, dropping a 111-108 decision to the Nuggets at Denver.

That leaves Phoenix as the only club in the 22-team league with an unblemished record. The Suns were idle Wednesday and do not play again until Friday night, when they put their 3-0 mark on the line against the Jazz in New Orleans.

The New Jersey Nets, meanwhile, dropped to 0-4 by bowing to the Atlanta Hawks 113-110 in overtime.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, the Detroit Pistons defeated the Golden State Warriors 123-107, the New Orleans Jazz beat the New York Knicks 123-106 and the Seattle SuperSonics topped the Buffalo

Braves 97-92.

Nuggets 111, Blazers 108

Denver took a 34-22 first-quarter lead by scoring 19 in a row but saw Portland chip away at the lead and finally go ahead in the fourth quarter. But Denver came on again, going ahead to stay on a jumper by Dan Issel with 1:57 left.

David Thompson led the Nuggets with 24 points while Bobby Gross had 22 for the Blazers.

The loss dropped Portland to 3-1, one-half game behind Phoenix in the Pacific Division.

Hawks 113, Nets 110, OT

The Nets blew a nine-point lead in the fourth quarter. Reserve guards Charlie Criss and Eddie Johnson led the way for the Hawks, Criss scoring six points in the final period and Johnson six in overtime.

The Hawks put the game away with nine points in a row in overtime, including four by Johnson.

Pistons 123, Warriors 107

Golden State trailed by only four at 107-103 with four minutes to play, but Detroit buried the Warriors with a closing 16-4 burst. Detroit's two big men paced the victory, Bob Lanier scoring 25 points and Marvin Barnes grabbing 19 rebounds, his NBA high.

Phil Smith scored 32 for Golden State.

Jazz 123, Knicks 106

Pete Maravich's hot shooting sent the Jazz in front early, and the Knicks were never able to assert themselves. Maravich scored 30 points and Gail Goodrich and Len Robinson had 25 each for New Orleans. Robinson also had 18 rebounds.

The game was halted twice when players passed career scoring milestones. Goodrich passed the 17,000-point mark, and New York's Earl Monroe surpassed 15,000.

Sonics 97, Braves 92

Fred Brown, who scored 37 points, put Seattle ahead 93-92 on a corner jumper with 56 seconds to play. He then hit a 30-footer with 24 seconds left and closed out the victory with two free throws seven seconds later.

Buffalo scored just 10 points in the first period.

Berra Would Give An Ear

ATLANTA (AP) — New York Yankees Coach Yogi Berra says he's ready for an Atlanta Braves' pitch to become the team's new manager.

"I'm always willing to listen, but I haven't heard anything yet," Berra said Wednesday from his New Jersey home. "What the heck, I think Atlanta is a great town. I might want to manage again, but I haven't heard a word."

The former Yankee catcher, who won pennants as a manager of the Bronx Bombers and New York Mets, said the Braves haven't called him yet about replacing Dave Bristol, ousted this week after two consecutive last place finishes in the National League West.

"I'll be willing to listen if they call," Berra said. "That doesn't mean I'm gonna take it, but I'll listen to what they have to say."

But Berra's wife Carmen didn't seem too keen on the idea.

"To tell you the truth, I'm not too interested in the whole thing," she said.

Meanwhile, veteran Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro made a pitch for the job, the Braves' front office said no decision was imminent, and team owner Ted Turner said he didn't have anything to do with Bristol's dismissal.

Turner, sitting out a one-year suspension from baseball, said he didn't hear about the firing until 24 hours later. He said whoever the Braves' board of directors picks as manager is fine with him.

Niekro, the 38-year-old pitcher who led the National League in strikeouts this year, told Braves' General Manager Bill Lucas that he wanted to become the major leagues' first manager-pitcher since Ted Lyons combined the two jobs with the Chicago White Sox in 1946.

"If I didn't think I could do it, I wouldn't say anything about it," said Niekro.

But Lucas said he had just begun to compile a list of 20 candidates.

"Everyone from Henry Aaron, Yogi Berra and Phil Niekro to (Los Angeles Dodgers' minor league manager) Stan Wasiak has been mentioned, but we have not talked to anyone about the job," Lucas said.

"We're in no rush to make a decision," he said. "I'll screen my original list to about five names, then I'll interview the finalists and recommend my man to the board."

Right-hander Walter Johnson, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, lost 26 games by a 1-0 count in his 21 seasons with the Washington Senators.

To Hold Clinic

Four members of the East Carolina University football team, along with one of the assistant coaches, will put on a mini-clinic on football at the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop tonight.

The clinic will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at the workshop.

Football players attending will include offensive guard Wayne Bolt, defensive ends Zack Valentine and John Morris, and quarterback Leander Green. Defensive linebacker coach Frank Orgel will also attend.

3-Man Crews For The NBA?

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Drucker, the National Basketball Association's new supervisor of officials, says he favors using three-man crews to referee NBA games.

"The way the game of professional basketball has changed, it really behooves the league to take a hard look at it this year," Drucker said of the switch from two referees a game to three, something a few college conferences will be experimenting with this season but which has never been tried by the NBA.

"The game has speeded itself up, but the referees haven't kept pace. Football went from two or three officials to six. Baseball started with two, then went to three, now has four and in the World Series has six. Basketball is getting to that point."

"I like three-man crews from a technical standpoint," Drucker added in an interview at NBA headquarters here. "It's easier to cover the complete floor. There would be other problems — personalities and things of that nature — but I think over-all, for getting the best job done, three referees would help."

Drucker, who joined the NBA as a referee a quarter-century ago and last month succeeded the retired John Nucatola as supervisor of officials, says he also favors some sort of no foul-out rule.

"The no foul-out rule in the ABA was my idea," said Drucker, who refereed for seven years in the American Basketball Association — also doubled as supervisor of officials part of that time — before rejoining the NBA last year.

Under the present NBA rule, a player must leave the game after committing his sixth personal foul. In the ABA, if a player committed six fouls he was permitted to remain in the game, but after each subsequent foul he committed, the other team received possession of the ball as well as its free throws.

"I think that penalty is too severe," said Drucker. "That could mean a five or six-point play, and not too many coaches are going to keep a player in under those conditions."

"There's a school that thinks if a player is that poor and fouls that much, he should be penalized. I really don't think so. I think whether he plays or not should be a coach's decision. It's like saying if a short-stop makes four errors, he has to leave the game. If he's making four errors, he's hurting his team, and it's the manager's problem."

NFL True Winner In Network Battles

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — All the wrangling and maneuvering over the networks' new contracts with the National Football League seems to have resulted in one clear winner ... the NFL.

The league will realize an estimated $656 million over the length of the four-year agreement which starts next season. That's roughly twice as much as it got over the last four years.

All things included, ABC will pay about $240 million, CBS about $216 million and NBC expands from 14 to 16 regular season games next season and both CBS and NBC get an extra playoff game each.

The thorny issues of who gets the extra prime time games and ABC's desire to get into the Super Bowl rotation were resolved by a compromise. Originally the NFL was offering two of the four Super Bowls in the new contract as a bonus to whichever network picked up the new prime time package, consisting of four to six games per season to be shown Tuesday, Thursday or Sunday nights.

But ABC decided it was more important to protect its exclusive rights to prime time NFL games than to pick up a Super Bowl or two. So CBS and NBC will continue to rotate the Super Bowl with ABC getting the extra night games.

Conference champ Georgia. This year CBS has a good shot at stealing the show because the Southwest Conference champ, which could be Texas, is committed to the Cotton Bowl. And Texas is the only major power still undefeated, a challenge the Irish would be hard pressed to ignore.

Of course the whole picture could change if either Texas or Notre Dame stumbles en route to their rumored Jan. 2 showdown.

ABC used Frank Broyles as its commentator for Saturday's game, the first time since his retirement that ex-Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian has not worked an Irish TV game. ABC denies that Parseghian was replaced because of alleged pro-Irish tendencies.

The network says that Broyles was used strictly as a change of pace. ABC claims it has not gotten much flack over Parseghian's commentary on Notre Dame games. The only notable complaints have come from Alabama fans who felt he was pro-UCLA in last year's Liberty Bowl and from those who just don't like his voice.

Upcoming on ABC Dec. 3 is Texas A&M vs. Houston, which looms as a one-sided romp for the Aggies. Not upcoming on ABC is the Nov. 26 Texas vs. Texas A&M game, which looms as the battle for the SWC title.

ABC, along with everyone else, underestimated Texas this season and, having to choose parts of its TV schedule early, decided Houston-Texas A&M would be the better game. When it became apparent that the Cougars were going nowhere, the network tried to get Houston to relinquish its TV game so that A&M-Texas could be shown instead.

ABC promised they would give the Cougars a TV shot at a later date in return. But Houston refused. The Cougars go on NCAA probation for recruiting violations next season and will be barred from TV. They apparently didn't feel like waiting until 1979 for more TV exposure.

Pensacola Open Important To Handful Of Golfing's Rabbits

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Considerably more than a $25,000 first prize is at stake this week in the Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

For a handful of players, their performance in the tournament that began Thursday will have a major effect on the conduct of their lives for the entire 1978 season.

As the last official event of the year, the Pensacola Open is the touring pros' last shot at a coveted exemption from qualifying for next year's tour. If they make the exemption, they can play in any regular tour event they want. If they miss, then they face the rigors and traumas of the Monday morning qualifying rounds, what they call "the Suicide Open," just to gain a spot in the tournament field.

"The first goal any player sets for himself is making the top 60 and getting that exemption," said John Mahaffey. "It's almost impossible to overemphasize the importance of having an exemption. It may be the most important thing on the tour; probably is the most important."

Mahaffey, slump-ridden and plagued by injuries most of the season, is in one of the two major races for an exemption. He's gunning for a position in the career top 50 money-winners. The other race involves the top 60 money-winners from the 1977 season. Both lists close with this tournament.

The current top 60 is unusually stable this season, with only a couple of players in the scramble for the No. 60 spot now held by Roger Maltbie with $51,462. Often, as many as 15 or 20 players come to the last tournament with a legitimate shot at the man in the No. 60 position.

Ed Sneed, 61st on the list, is recovering from surgery and isn't playing. Kermit Zarley, with $50,391, and Mike Hill, with $50,323, are next. As a tournament winner, Hill is exempt for most of 1978, but the veteran Zarley needs to win $1,072 more than Maltbie to go into the top 60 and get the exemption.

Mahaffey, who lost a playoff for the 1975 U.S. Open and led the 1976 American National championship for three rounds, has won only $7,430 this season.

He ranks 51st on the all-time money-winning list, however, and needs to climb one position to gain an exemption. Rod Funseth currently is No. 50 with $510,808. Mahaffey has $508,426. He needs to beat Funseth's winnings by $2,383 this week.

Jerry Pate, a winner last week in the Southern Open, was the favorite for the title in the 72-hole test over the 6,549-yard, par-71 Pensacola Country Club course.

His chief opponents included Johnny Miller, defending champion Mark Hayes, former champion Lee Elder, PGA king Lanny Wadkins, Arnold Palmer, Miller Barber and Ray Floyd, a two-time winner this season.

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

On The November 8 Ballot: Two Big-Money Issues

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Voters will face two big-money questions on Nov. 8, both of which have stirred much talk but little disagreement.

One is a $300 million bond proposal for expansion and improvement of the state's highways and the other is a $230 million bond proposal to help local governments finance improvements in waste-water treatment facilities.

Gov. Jim Hunt and two cabinet members, Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw and Natural Resources Secretary Howard Lee, have been on the stump for the two bonds since late summer. Hunt has traveled three or four days a week, making three or more speeches a day.

Dedicated New Tree Nursery

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Weyerhaeuser Co. dedicated its 100-acre tree nursery here recently in honor of George H. Weyerhaeuser, company president.

The ceremony in which the nursery was named the George Hunt Walker Weyerhaeuser Nursery climaxed a three-day visit to North Carolina and the region headquarters in New Bern by the board of directors and members of the senior management team.

The nursery, Weyerhaeuser reported, has 30 million high density seedlings in a 40-acre bed area producing 36 families of seven species of trees including loblolly, longleaf, slash, piedmont, pond, sweetgum, and sycamore.

Hunt has concentrated on the economic growth he claims North Carolina could realize from the two bond proposals. He has mounted a bipartisan campaign called "Bonds for Progress" and organized a 120-member statewide committee by that name.

"The bond issues are really about jobs," he told the committee at its first meeting. "That's the bottom line. Are we going to strengthen our economy?"

Hunt's campaigning has been questioned by some, who interpret it as a smoke-screen issue for the proposal to allow N.C. governors and lieutenant governors to succeed themselves. The succession question is one of five proposed constitutional amendments also on the Nov. 8 ballot.

"Tom Bradshaw speaks for the road bonds every chance he gets, and he does it real well," one legislator remarked. "Then he gets in a little bit for succession, and does that real well too."

Both bonds sailed through the General Assembly with little opposition, although the highway bond proposal was criticized by some legislators who favor a pay-as-you-go approach, and by others from urban areas who said the cities would not get enough of the revenue.

The clean water bond has won solid support from local governments, particularly in 146 communities in the state where moratoriums on commercial or industrial development have been imposed because of inadequate sewage treatment facilities.

W.E. Knight, director of the state division of environmental management, says that with the bonds and 75 per cent matching federal funds, wastewater systems could be upgraded within five years in most of those areas and in several hundred other towns. About half the money will go to development of water reservoir facilities, which usually receive less in federal assistance than the waste projects, he said.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles has endorsed both bonds.

Week Of Revival Begins Sunday

BETHEL — A week of services will be held at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church beginning Monday night and continuing through Nov. 4.

The speaker will be the Rev. F. C. Mitchell of Greenville. Services will be held at 7 p.m.

The following choirs will be present: Monday, the Birdlifter and No. 2 Choir of Bethel Chapel F.W.B. Church; Tuesday, Andersons Chapel and St. Matthew Baptist Church, Whitakers; Wednesday, Conetoe Chapel and Mayo Chapel; Thursday, Arthur Chapel Senior Choir and United Male Choir of Bell Arthur; Friday, W. H. Phillips Travelers Choir of Rock Spring, Greenville.

The public is invited to attend.

"Our conclusion is that, though in excess of anything the state's ever put before the people before, the bonds are still reasonable in terms of the state's ability to pay," he said.

If the road bonds are approved, $60 million would be made available annually for the next five years for road improvements. The revenue would be divided, with $175 million going for primary road projects, $75 million for secondary road work, and $50 million for urban highways. Ten per cent in each category would be reserved for bridge repair and replacement.

Bradshaw estimates the state has more than 16,000 miles of roads and 5,000 bridges that need to be widened, resurfaced, completed or even replaced. But the total cost to bring the state's 75,000 miles of state-maintained roads up to par would be a staggering $7 billion, and that's a conservative estimate, says William Caddell, assistant secretary for planning.

"The bonds will just keep our program going," Caddell said. "It's just a trickle, but we're trying our best to keep a transfusion going."

By legislative design, the $175 million for secondary roads will be divided according to the number miles of unpaved road in each county. As a result, Wilkes County will get the most, $2.1 million, and Hanover County the least, $84,000.

The urban and primary road allocations will be up to the state board of transportation, and Caddell said planners are counting on improvements in East-West road systems receiving a priority.

"There will be very little building of new roads," he said. "It will be primarily adding lanes to existing two-lane roads, bringing other two-lane roads up to modern-day standards, and building some by-passes."

The road bonds received just five dissenting votes in the state House and one in the Senate earlier this year. Although no organizations have surfaced to urge rejection of the proposal, a few legislators have continued to oppose it.

Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, wanted to give voters a choice between the bond issue and a two-cent a gallon tax increase on gasoline, from the current 9 1/2 cents.

Some would still prefer a tax hike. "My theory is if we raise the gas tax two cents, we would get $65 million every year," said Rep. Vernon G. James, D-Pasquotank. "With the bonds, we'll be tying ourselves up for 20 years."

Bradshaw and Hunt have both stressed that the bond would require no new taxes, with one cent of the current per-gallon tax, or more than $35 million a year, being used to pay it off.

But because of rising highway construction costs and the slowing pace of gasoline tax revenues, some think a tax hike is inevitable, bonds or no bonds.

"If it does not pass, a higher tax is the only alternative," Watkins said. "And if it does, in four or five years we'll be at a crossroads again, and there will have to be a tax increase."

Book 'Jazzes Up' The Class

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — A history professor and a former student at Central Michigan University have come up with a book to "jazz up" conventional history classes.

Called the "Great American Quiz Book: 1,001 Incredible Questions, Facts and Answers about American History," it looks at the unimportant aspects of history "that are still fascinating in themselves," Prof. William Bulger said.

Bulger and former student Frank Ragner spent six years dredging up such trivia as:

—President William Taft was so fat he reportedly got stuck in the White House bath tub.

—Adolf Hitler once claimed he inherited 8,960 acres of land in Colorado.

—The only member of the Michigan legislature to also be a "king" was King James Jesse Strang, the Beaver Island Mormon leader whose followers made him monarch.

—George Washington gave the shortest presidential inaugural speech on record — 134 words.

Bulger said he hopes the book "will be of some interest to history teachers at all levels to help them jazz up their courses a little."

"You'll never get rich sellin' wood to George Dickel!"

Bear Ferguson, logger, 1873

"It's not that George doesn't use a lot of wood in the makin' of his Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky — he does. But he's so darned persnickity.

"Like only wantin' winter-cut sugar maple that's not all sappy for his charcoal mellowin'! Then he picks over the lot like a hen eyein' a corn morsel.

"Times like that I most always end up sittin' on a cord of wood he's turned down, sippin' his whisky."

At George Dickel, we still use only the winter maple to help make every sip of our Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky as smooth as moonbeams.

Racial Quota Dispute Delaying Funds

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A dispute over racial quotas threatens to delay $4 billion in federally-funded jobs and could have an important impact on black businessmen trying to break into the construction industry.

The dispute, now moving through the courts, also affects millions of dollars of public works projects in several states and cities which have rules to assure that a share of the work goes to businesses owned by blacks and other racial minorities.

"This is hard to explain but it's of interest to every working man," said a Justice Department official familiar with the issues.

The argument involves a $4 billion public works program approved by Congress last spring.

Congress earmarked 10 per cent of the federal money for businesses owned by racial minorities. This was designed to compensate for the past discrimination which kept blacks and other minorities out of the construction industry.

The Justice Department, which now is defending the constitutionality of the program, calls the 10 per cent requirement a proper goal. Department officials note that the 10 per cent rule can be waived if no qualified minority firms are interested in a particular project.

But the requirement angered the Associated General Contractors, a national trade association which represents about 8,000 general contractors across the country.

The association's 400-member board last month voted unanimously to challenge the restriction as an unconstitutional quota.

Association chapters in California, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Montana have brought suits in federal courts in those states. John Ellis, assistant executive director of the organization, says suits are planned in at least five other states.

Both sides agree that the case is likely to wind up in the Supreme Court. And that would mean it could take several months before a final judgment on the program's constitutionality.

Meanwhile, the government is likely to be blocked from awarding the construction money, at least in some parts of the country.

Congress had intended the program as swift medicine for the economically-depressed construction industry. The Commerce Department, which is in charge of passing out the money, was supposed to make sure all of the contracts were awarded and construction had started by the end of December.

"Our contention is that this is an illegal requirement," Ellis said. "It's much more than affirmative action. This is essentially a racial quota, and it means that the nonminority segment of the construction industry is precluded from competing for 10 per cent of the work."

On the other side, Justice Department lawyers note that blacks and other racial minorities make up 17 per cent of the U.S. population, yet minority-owned construction firms account for barely more than 1 per cent of gross receipts in the industry.

The law "does not require a contractor to meet the 10 per cent goal where it is in fact unattainable," government lawyers have said. "It merely requires that he make a good faith effort."

Museum For An Inventor

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Although it has no connection with the man whose name it bears, The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has become the repository for Charles Goodyear's manuscripts and artifacts.

Latest additions to the collection on display here date from the early 1850s, when Goodyear went to England to promote his vulcanizing process in Europe.

Goodyear, the inventor who used heat and sulphur to make rubber the first of the modern plastics, had been dead nearly 40 years when The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company was founded in 1898.

Among his possessions recently acquired by the company is Goodyear's book of "notes on applications for India Rubber and improvements in manufacture," which anticipated many later developments in the rubber and related industries which owe their existence to his discoveries.

Also new to the collection is an address book listing Goodyear's London friends and associates, including Charles Dickens; a medical journal kept by his wife, and a letter the inventor wrote to his brother in the United States reporting on business and family matters.

The original items in the Goodyear Memorial Collection include paintings and personal mementos. First exhibited in the Smithsonian Institution, they were obtained by the company from Charles Goodyear's heirs in 1963.

The collection is on display in the The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's World of Rubber museum here, open Mon.-Fri., except holidays, 8:30-4:30. A tour of a tire plant leaves the museum at 1:30 pm.

No-Fault Insurance Is Not Without Some Flaws

NO-FAULT STATES — The dark-colored states in this map have some form of no-fault automobile insurance. (AP Laserphoto)

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

No-fault auto insurance, once promoted as a means of cutting costs for consumers, has failed to stem the tide of soaring premiums, but authorities say it has succeeded in its main goal of getting benefits into the hands of accident victims more quickly.

"We consider it a smashing success," said William Shepard, Pennsylvania insurance commissioner, when asked about his state's no-fault program which took effect July 19, 1975.

"It has accomplished everything we said it would accomplish," said Jack Davies, a Minnesota state senator who sponsored a no-fault plan that began Jan. 1, 1975.

"No-fault is working well," said Kentucky Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey.

"It's doing the job it's supposed to do — paying more people more money and arranging quick settlements. We have had practically no complaints."

At the same time, however, the drive for no-fault at the state level has stalled. Several states which passed no-fault laws early in the 1970s have been forced to make major changes.

President Carter has endorsed the concept of a federal no-fault bill, but the measures have not gotten beyond the hearing stage.

Premiums, meanwhile, are going up. And up. They increased almost 50 per cent from August 1975 to August 1977.

If no-fault is working so well, why haven't more states passed no-fault laws? What went wrong with the existing ones?

Why the delay in passing a federal law? And why are prices rising?

The concept behind no-fault is simple: each party in an accident is compensated, for medical expenses at least, by his own insurance company. An individual's right to sue for further damages is limited. Expensive court cases and lengthy delays are eliminated.

Massachusetts became the first state in the nation to enact a no-fault law. The plan took effect Jan. 1, 1971. Since then, 15 other states have passed no-fault laws. They are: Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah. The most recent law — North Dakota's — took effect on Jan. 1, 1976.

(Eight other states passed laws that were described as no-fault, but they place no limitation on the right of an accident victim to sue and cannot really be counted as part of the no-fault system.)

One reason for the problems with no-fault is a lack of understanding about what it can and cannot do.

No-fault supporters themselves may be partly to blame for the confusion. Ron Arnold of State Farm Insurance Cos., the nation's biggest auto insurer, said that politicians, eager to get support for the concept, appealed to people's pocket-books. They promised — mistakenly — that no-fault would lower premiums and, in some cases, ordered rate decreases when no-fault went into effect.

Some state officials concede privately that the money-saving claims were a come-on and not realistic. They say now that the advantages of no-fault are not monetary.

There are several reasons for the lack of cost saving. No-fault generally applies only to bodily injury. Property damage stays under the old system — the insurance company of the motorist at fault has to pay. And property damage, according to State Farm, accounts for 60 cents of every dollar you pay in premiums on a nationwide basis.

James Hunt, director of the State Rating Bureau in Massachusetts, said bodily injury rates dropped 45 per cent from 1970 to 1976. Without no-fault, he said, they would have increased 63 per cent.

"The real proof of our success with no-fault is the steady reduction in bodily injury insurance rates," said Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who, as a legislator, was a major sponsor of the state's no-fault law. "Unfortunately, the rate reductions for bodily injury have been counter-balanced by rates for other coverages which have gone up about as fast as bodily injury rates have come down."

Other officials said the rate increases would have been even worse without no-fault. Dr. James C. Nicholas, staff director of an ad hoc Automobile Insurance Commission in Florida, said that the cost of commercial vehicle insurance — which remained under the conventional system — has risen 130 per cent since 1971. Auto insurance, under no-fault, has risen 100 per cent in the same period.

State Farm said a survey showed that the average increase in automobile insurance rates in the 16 no-fault states from Dec. 31, 1970 through the end of last year was 24.6 per cent, compared to a nationwide average boost of 27.7 per cent.

Authorities also say that while no-fault has eliminated some of the legal costs surrounding accidents, the savings has been offset by the fact that more people are getting benefits since they are automatically paid by their own companies.

A Department of Transportation study showed that in Connecticut, an estimated 25 per cent more accident victims recover economic losses under and replacing it with a requirement that generally prohibits suits unless the accident results in death or serious injury.

"With this no-fault system, people no longer have to worry about begging themselves to pay for their injuries," said Milton Friedman, counsel to the New York State Insurance Department. "And people in single-car accidents — who never got anything under the old law — are also being compensated."

Gene Glascock, supervising analyst for the Colorado Insurance Division, said no-fault "has reallocated funds, putting the funds in the hands of the injured rather than in the hands of the attorneys handling court cases. It hasn't really altered the cost to the insuring company."

One problem with existing no-fault programs, say officials, is that it is still too easy to sue. The laws generally allow a person to go to court after medical expenses reach a certain threshold. In nine states, the threshold is $750 or less. In New Jersey, it is only $200.

"I would guess that with continued inflation we would have to look at ... the threshold," said a spokesman for the Insurance Department in North Dakota, where a victim with medical expenses exceeding $1,000 is allowed to sue. "With the increased cost of medical services ... the $1,000 figure might not be realistic any more," he added.

State Insurance Commissioner Dick Rotman of Nevada, which has a $750 threshold, said: "It doesn't seem to be much of a problem for a person to sue, even if injured only slightly."

To correct the problem, authorities are considering raising the dollar threshold or eliminating it completely as New York and Florida have done recently and replacing it with a requirement that generally prohibits suits unless the accident results in death or serious injury.

"We don't anticipate nearly the rapid rise in rates" of the past two or three years, said a spokesman for State Farm. He said State Farm increases on a nationwide average have been ranging from 12 to 15 per cent in recent years; this year, he said, the average increase will be 6 to 7 per cent.

The Consumer Price Index shows that auto insurance prices went up 12.5 per cent from August 1976 to August 1977. That compares with an increase of 31.2 per cent in the preceding year.

Published Data On Forest Resources Of North Carolina

A new publication on improvement of forest resources has been compiled by the USDA-Soil Conservation Service and is now available, according to State Conservationist Jessie L. Hicks, Raleigh.

"Since our forest resources in North Carolina are a key asset in our state's economy, we believe this new booklet will have wide usage," Hicks commented.

Entitled "Trees, Soils and People," the booklet is made up of six articles previously printed in Soil Conservation Magazine, dealing with such topics as improved timber production, wildlife habitat, recreation in woodland, and aesthetic values.

"In addition, this new booklet tells of logging practices and forestry techniques that help prevent erosion and improve water quality," Hicks added, "and people are becoming more concerned about these environmental aspects as we see problems created by unwise practices."

He pointed out that advice on good woodland management is available without charge at every Soil Conservation Service office in North Carolina—one in each county—or through local soil and water conservation districts.

Forestry assistance, like all programs and services of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is available to everyone without regard to race, creed, color, sex or national origin.

Safer Helmets For A Handful

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Some Fairfax County firemen will be getting new helmets. It seems the old ones had an annoying habit of melting during fire-fighting.

Fire Chief George Alexander said the plastic helmets melt in extreme heat, with the protective crown collapsing and curling over the hat's rim.

The new helmets, also plastic, are designed to stand up to higher temperatures, he said.

The county supervisors said they could afford new helmets for only 150 firemen at a cost of $25 apiece. The rest of the 635-man force will wear the old helmets for a while.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

One extra entry was all that stood between two declarers and success on this hand from a recent team match. The two declarers tried different methods, but to no avail. The winning play, which isn't easy to spot even looking at all four hands, was not found at either table.

South did not have an easy bid to make. Since the hand was a whit too weak for a two diamond opening bid and too strong for a one-bid, we are inclined to accept his slightly off-shape two no trump opening bid. Despite his six-card suit, South held no singleton and he had stoppers in all the suits. North has an easy raise to three no trump.

At both tables the opening lead was a heart, taken by the king, and at both tables West ducked twice when declarer led the king-queen of clubs. The first declarer then ran the queen of spades. East promptly won the king and returned a heart, and there was no way for declarer to make the contract.

The second declarer tried to reach dummy immediately by leading a spade to the nine. But he, too, had to concede after East won the king and returned a heart. When West got in later with the ace of clubs, he could cash three heart tricks to upset declarer's plans.

Have you, dear reader, spotted the winning line? It has eluded many experts who have been shown this hand.

At trick four declarer must lead the queen of spades and overtake in dummy with the ace! But that's just the first move. Next declarer leads the jack of clubs and discards the ace of hearts!

Now there is no way the defenders can set up hearts without giving declarer an entry to dummy with the jack of hearts. And if the defenders do not continue hearts, declarer can force an entry to the table by leading a spade to the nine. In all, he will take five clubs, two diamonds and at least two tricks in the major suits.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? 'Best Of Families' Provides Story And History To Viewers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Best of Families," a much-publicized, eight-part series, premieres on public TV tonight in most areas. The series covers the period 1880-1900 and is set in New York City.

Taped in that hamlet, it uses three fictional families representing the upper, middle and lower classes to illustrate an era of profound change in America's technology, politics and society.

Gallico Story

Will Be Filmed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC will film "Fire in the Sky" from a Paul Gallico story about a comet that explodes near Phoenix, Ariz.

Michael Blankfort and Dennis Nemec wrote the three-hour script from Gallico's story after the aftermath of the devastating explosion.

It was made by the Children's Television Workshop, which says the project cost $6,150,000. Seems high, considering that 13 episodes of "Six Million Dollar Man" would total about $5.3 million.

But "Families," whose costly, meticulously researched costumes and sets were created from scratch, isn't intended as throwaway pop entertainment. It aims at educating as well as entertaining.

Indeed, 14 advisers, mainly historians, worked on it, as did a full-time team of six researchers. And the noted actor John Houseman was hired to host it, to explain each chapter's significance.

All this care is mighty admirable.

But honest to Pete, the first half of tonight's two-hour opener struck me as so deadly dull it seemed wise to skip Hour Two, lest that one cause the mortal sin of snoring in the screening room.

Loring Mandel, one of six writers doing various episodes of the series, wrote the premiere, which wanders back and forth from family to family, introducing them and getting their crises under way.

Our lower-class folks are the devoutly Catholic Raffertys. The clan's head and his two grown sons are barely making ends meet as laborers on a building project. Suddenly it goes bust, and they're out of work.

The upper class is the Wheelers. It also runs into fiscal woe — but only because the head of the family disregards his banker's advice to sell his stock in a railroad which now is in bankruptcy.

The in-between set is represented by the Baldwins and ambitious James Lathrop. He's a young engineer-architect who, like the Rafferty men, is thrown out of work by the collapse of the building project.

He seeks help from his middle-class minister, Dr. Frederick Baldwin, who is plugged into New York's Protestant power structure. The reverend also has a comely daughter, a Vassar graduate.

She catches Lathrop's eye in church, setting the stage for wooing and wedding.

The show opens on a promising note — the opening of an Irish saloon.

It also has at equally important aspects of New York life in 1880 — Tammany Hall power, Irish politics and the start of what men now call women's lib. It could have proved rich historical drama.

But what I saw of it mainly seemed a collection of sighs and furrowed brows. The lively wit of New York's Irish was AWOL, brooding ran rampant and the cast appeared an ensemble cure for insomnia.

Rock Hudson In New Miniseries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock Hudson and Lee Remick will star in the 10-hour dramatization of Arthur Hailey's novel about the automobile industry, "Wheels."

Universal will produce the miniseries for airing on NBC. Hudson will play automobile executive Adam Trenton and Miss Remick will portray his wife.

STAR HUNT — HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — MGM has initiated a search for a boy, 8-10 years old, for the starring role in Franco Zeffirelli's updated version of "The Champ," which made a star of Jackie Cooper in 1931.

Private Eye Story Filming

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Dain Curse," Dashiell Hammett's forerunner of the hard-boiled private eye, is now in production on Shelter Island, N.Y., for an NBC miniseries.

James Coburn stars as detective Hamilton Nash in the murder mystery, set in 1928.

Competition For Flute In 1978

NEW YORK (AP) — The Walter W. Naumburg Foundation says it will hold its first competition for flute in the United States in May 1978.

The foundation says "flutists of every nationality who reside in the United States and who are not under 17 years of age or over 30 years as of March 1, 1978, will be eligible."

First prize will be $2,500, a fully subsidized recital, and a commissioned work written specifically for the recital.

Buying Guns, Better Locks After Neighborhood Killings

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Burglar bars, dead-bolt locks and fear are only part of the reaction in a neighborhood here where four middle-aged or elderly women have been murdered in the past six weeks.

“What bothers me is the guns. Everybody seems to be getting guns,” said Buster Coppage, a resident of the neighborhood where many widows and single women live.

“The other night an alarm or something went off, and there must have been a dozen men who ran to the house with shot-guns, and this is no good,” Coppage said.

The murders began Sept. 16. The first three victims were found in their beds, strangled with a stocking and sexually assaulted. When the fourth victim, Martha B. Thurmond, 69, was discovered Tuesday, police withheld details, saying they feared the killer might be encouraged by publicity.

Police have not said that the four deaths are necessarily the work of one person.

Since the slayings began, churches have encouraged elderly women to move in with relatives. Neighborhood lookouts have increased, and city officials are trying to provide women with dogs from the pound.

Gov. George Busbee has offered to send state Bureau of Investigation agents to help local police and has raised a reward offer from $2,000 to $5,000. “The women who come in here are scared to death,” said Euell Powell, a service station attendant in the neighborhood. “They want to know if they should buy a gun. I tell them no, because they’d be too scared to use it, and to get them one of those little squirt things that the postman uses for dogs.”

Jean Dimenstien, 71, was found in what officials called “a video-taped instant replay.” Last week, the body of Florence Scheible, 89, was found just a few blocks away.

In declining to release details of the latest slaying, Muscogee County Coroner Don Kilgore said, “We’re going to try another way this time with the idea that the killer may be standing out in the crowd laughing at us ... and we don’t want to release everything.”

Claim Anita Lost Impact

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant, the singer whose campaign against rights for homosexuals has enmeshed her in controversy, may be on the way out as the Florida orange juice industry’s leading representative.

ANITA BRYANT

Edward Taylor, executive director of the Florida Department of Citrus, said Wednesday that “a change will have to be made in the foreseeable future.”

Miss Bryant’s crusade against a Dade County, Fla., ordinance forbidding discrimination against homosexuals in housing and employment changed her image to the point that “when consumers see her they don’t think about orange juice, they think about the gay rights issue,” Taylor said.

Market research studies show that the singer is not reaching the younger people, the industry’s future customers, he said.

John Dean Was Target Of Pie

FREDONIA, N.Y. (AP) — John Dean III, whose testimony helped break the Watergate scandal, was nicked by a banana cream pie while giving a lecture at Fredonia State college, campus police said.

Moments after Dean began his speech Wednesday, a young man in the audience donned a mask, laughed loudly and yelled, “There is the con man, there is the con man.” As the masked man ran from the lecture hall, the pie-thrower struck, police said.

“It just brushed me,” said Dean.

John Paul Yuskiv, 23, of Fredonia, was charged with disorderly conduct and issued an appearance ticket, said police.

Half a dozen students gathered outside before the speech and displayed signs reading, “Crime Does Pay.”

Dean reportedly received a $2,500 fee for the lecture.

Unions Talking 'Retribution'

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO, in a major shift of political tactics for the 1978 congressional elections, is planning to punish a number of one-time Democratic friends who voted against key labor issues this year.
"Who should we help someone who's going to put a knife in our members' backs," said an official of the Committee on Political Education, the AFL-CIO's political arm.
Officials of the committee, known as COPE, say there are several tactics that may be used against their "former friends," including withholding support, running someone else in the primaries or endorsing acceptable Republicans.
COPE contributed about $3 million to House and Senate campaigns last year, most of it to Democrats. Of 28 candidates COPE endorsed for the Senate, 19 won. In the House, it endorsed 362 candidates; 256 won.
The committee in the past has lent its support to candidates who shared the labor federation's general economic and social objectives.
Next year, it will focus more on specific labor issues and be more selective about the Democratic candidates it backs, according to one official.
But a top union political strategist said the new policy "shouldn't be a threat at all."

Student Nurses Sponsor Dinner

The Pitt Technical Institute Student Nurses Association sponsored a dinner program Tuesday night, Oct. 25, at Three Steers Restaurant in Greenville.
First and second year nursing students attended. Mrs. Judith W. Kuykendall, director of Nursing Education at P.T.I., Ms. Patricia Earnhardt and Mrs. Renatta Luquist, instructors of nursing, were also in attendance.
After the dinner, Mrs. Maxine Weaver, vice president of District 30 of the North Carolina Nurses Association, spoke to the group about different aspects of the N.C.N.A. Included in the talk were the advantages of belonging to this professional organization and the importance of being aware of new nursing trends.

Ford And Nixon Won't Attend

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — When Republican governors gather for their Western States Conference this week, two former Republican presidents won't be there. Gerald Ford chose not to attend and Richard Nixon wasn't invited.
But there'll be no shortage of presidential aspirants at the three-day conference beginning Thursday, among them former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Texas Gov. John Connally and Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Robert Dole of Kansas.

'Sedentary' Life Style

BOSTON (AP) — Many Americans may be leading such sedentary lives that they are "virtually motionless," moving about little more than if they remained in bed 24 hours a day, Dr. William Kannel, director of the famed Framingham Heart Study, said here recently.
Kannel said 16 percent of men and 21 percent of women in a group studied in Framingham achieved activity scores of 29 or less. He said that spending 24 hours in bed rates a score of 24.
Now known as the Boston University-Framingham Heart Study, the project has involved studying several thousand Framingham residents for 27 years, first under federal sponsorship and since 1971 under private auspices.
Kannel told a symposium on leisure time sponsored by the Massachusetts Medical Society that even in the group scoring the highest levels of activity, with scores higher than 36, few would qualify for a high level of physical fitness. If these people are typical, many Americans are unfit, he added.
Despite the lack of scientific evidence on exact relationships between activity and fitness, he said, "it is of interest that the greater the dose of those sedentary traits, the greater the risk of cardiovascular disease."

Inaugurated Rural Free Delivery In North Carolina

By Dr. H.G. JONES
Curator, North Carolina
Collection
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — On Oct. 23, 1896, J. Bruner Goodnight rode his horse out into the country around China Grove and made history. He inaugurated rural free delivery in North Carolina. Actually, "inaugurated" may be a bit misleading, for the rural folks' reception of the radical new service was so poor that Goodnight gave up in disgust. Only C.A. Linn of Landis and Martin Blackwelder of Kannapolis welcomed the delivery of the mail to their homes. Others grumbled that this was just another scheme of the politicians to waste the taxpayers' money. Some objected to having their mail left in a small, unprotected box along the road. And some farmers resented any interference with their excuse to travel to the nearest post office, a trip that often took on a social aspect. At nearby Salisbury, Postmaster A. H. Boyden was upset when the China Grove experiment failed. After all, the Rowan County community had been chosen because a native, Kerr Craig, was third assistant postmaster general, and RFD had been championed by Sen. Marion Butler and former Congressman John S. Henderson. So, with the approval of the post office department, Boyden persuaded a China Grove merchant, John C. Deaton, to become postmaster and carry out the plan. Deaton hired two men and gave them rural routes. Guy Trexler took the eastern route and A.L. Cagle delivered mail to the west of the town. Charlie Kimball was also one of the earliest carriers. This inauspicious but gradually successful beginning of rural free delivery in North Carolina followed by only 22 days the very first experiments in the nation. Congress, urged on by rural champions like Marion Butler, North Carolina's Populist senator, appropriated $40,000, and in 1896 Postmaster General William L. Wilson, a former president of West Virginia University, selected three communities in his home state to begin the new program Oct. 1. Despite the resistance in many communities across the nation, rural free delivery won converts, and within six months after its establishment, 82 routes had been established in 28 states. Within six years, there were 8,000 rural carriers in America, and politics had permeated the program. Since most of the carriers were appointed under a Republican president, they were placed under civil service to prevent their removal in case Democrats won the presidency. Politics, too, was evident in the establishment of routes. In 1902 North Carolina had just 56 routes, but Ohio, the home state of the current postmaster general and the recently-deceased president, had 629. Nevertheless, RFD grew in popularity among leaders of both parties. Rep. Spencer Blackburn of Wilkesboro sought higher payment for rural carriers. He described a 32-mile route in his district which wore out four horses and two carts per year. The carrier received only $400 for his time and property. Rep. John H. Small of Little Washington characterized the RFD carrier as a "travelling postmaster." He told Congress: "The growth of this service will be an incentive to the building of good roads. It will place the farmer nearer commercial centers and put him in touch with the markets of his products. "It will carry the daily newspaper and the periodical and the magazines into his home. It will prove an educational factor. The home life will be brightened and made more attractive." RFD, Small said, ought to be extended to the homes of the "humblest citizens." And that is exactly what happened. For more than a half century after he first carried the rural mail at China Grove, Guy Trexler recalled that the novelty soon wore off and farmers eagerly looked forward to the arrival of the mail. Trexler said he traveled by horseback, cart and bicycle. The bicycle, of course, was reserved for good weather when the roads were clear of mud.

He earned $28 per month for covering his rural delivery route. By 1960 there were more than 31,000 RFD routes in the United States covering nearly 2 million miles daily. China Grove, N.C., retains the distinction of having launched one of the first experiments in what was 81 years ago a radical new service to rural America.

Governorship Is Worth 30 Yds.

SEATTLE (AP) — Being governor is worth 33 yards at college football games, says former Gov. Dan Evans. "I used to sit on the 50-yard line at University of Washington football games," he said in a recent interview. "Now I sit on the 17." Evans, the state's Republican governor for 12 years, is now president of Evergreen State College. Evans, who did not seek re-election, was succeeded in January by Dixy Lee Ray, a Democrat.
