Congress Convinced Cars Biggest Energy Wasters

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, convinced the automobile is the chief cause of energy waste, is looking for a way to steer American motorists toward gasline-slinging cars.

But the lawmakers, who are now considering the transportation part of President Carter's energy program, cannot decide whether to impose a tax that will make inefficient autos unattractive to buyers or to ban them altogether.

The Senate planned to vote today on the tax, similar to the one recommended by Carter and passed by the House.

Meanwhile, a Senate-House conference committee that is considering non-tax portions of Carter's program is hoping to break a deadlock over a provision, already passed by the Senate, that would prohibit production of cars that get poor mileage.

That ban, which House conferees have twice refused to accept, would apply starting in 1981 to cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon, and rising to 21 mpg by 1985.

The auto tax is one of several issues that remain to be considered before the Senate completes work on its energy tax bill. Approval of the bill could come late today, sending it to the conference committee.

Another set of conferees representing the Senate and House will try once again to agree on conditions under which federal Medicaid funds could be used to finance abortions for the poor.

The dispute is tying up a $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Failure to act on that bill could delay paychecks for thousands of federal workers.

The House has voted to allow federally paid abortions only in cases in which the woman's life would be endangered by a full-term pregnancy and in some rape cases. The more liberal Senate position would require that the health of the woman and her fetus be considered.

In other congressional action, House leaders planned a vote today on a resolution aimed at winning cooperation of the South Korean government in the investigation of alleged efforts by Koreans to buy influence in Congress.

Tuesday will bring House consideration of a bill to implement President Carter's decision granting Alcan Pipeline Corp. the right to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver Alaskan gas to the 48 contiguous states.

Two priority issues stand in the way of congressional adjournment for the year: energy and Social Security. Because of delays in reaching agreement on a national energy policy, adjournment — originally scheduled for Oct. 8 — now is unlikely before the end of November.

The toughest issues on energy — taxes and natural gas pricing — have not even been considered yet by the conference committee that will write the final compromise bill.

N.C. Economic Growth Is Second-Fastest In Nation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has the second fastest growing economy in the nation, the state Board of Economic Development was told Sunday.

"In economic growth, North Carolina is second only to California," said board chairman Lynwood Smith.

This year, industrial development experts say, North Carolina may set a new record for growth.

State Commerce Secretary D.M. Faircloth told the board at its meeting in Raleigh that North Carolina industries spent $460.5 million through September on expansion and new industries brought in another $302.1 million.

Faircloth said that total of $762.6 million compared to $718.8

million for the same period last year.

The largest single investment this year so far has been the Timken Inc. roller bearing plant in Lincolnton, which represents a capital outlay of $135 million.

Frito-Lay snack foods announced it planned a $35 million plant in Charlotte.

Smith said a recent trade delegation to Japan made valuable contacts and drew at least one serious inquiry from a Japanese firm interested in building a plant in North Carolina.

Deputy Commerce Secretary Vic Barfield said Gov. Jim Hunt would be making a world tour next year to promote trade, with stops in Japan, the Middle East and Western Europe.

Suggest Hostage Exchange To Deter A Nuclear War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should the United States swap about a million Americans for an equal number of Russians, with each group serving as hostages in the other's cities?

How about exchanging U.S. and Soviet leaders and using them as hostages so that "neither side would attack the other for fear of killing its own leading citizens"?

These suggestions were among those offered by people responding to an unusual advertisement for ideas on stopping the nuclear weapons race. The ad was placed by a Pennsylvania political science professor working temporarily at the Pentagon.

Dr. Martin E. Goldstein, who holds the temporary title of assistant to the deputy director for negotiations and arms control, said he drafted the appeal in an effort to generate "a fresh source of ideas" on ways to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

"I asked myself how it would be possible to reach people who have been thinking of this problem but who don't know how to make their views known," said Goldstein, a 37-year-old associate professor at Widener College in Chester, Pa., now at the Pentagon on a fellowship.

"I decided that one way was to put notices in a couple of professional journals. It wouldn't cost the government anything. So last February and March, I put notices in the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists and in PS, journal of the political science community.

A career bureaucrat would be unlikely to do anything like that. But Goldstein said he regards himself as a kind of free soul — "I'm outside the government system, so I could do something like this."

As a result, Goldstein said, he received about 25 written replies ranging from the bizarre to the practical, a number of them accompanied by extensive discussions.

"Some came from fantastic crackpots," Goldstein said.

"But there are some from very knowledgeable people."

He has digested and summarized some of the ideas he received and plans to forward them to David McGifford, assistant defense secretary for international security affairs.

Some of the other suggestions offered:

— "Arouse public awareness of the dangers of nuclear weapons proliferation...by taking rash actions that will reawaken the public's horror of nuclear war. Such actions might include renewal of atmospheric (test) shots, so scheduled as to be tourist attractions."

— "Press the World Bank and other such lending institutions to deny credit to those nations that acquire nuclear weapons."

— "Decrease the number of nuclear warheads in national arsenals by substituting a certain number of 'dud' warheads on actual missiles. Since the enemy won't know which warheads are duds, a nation could have the same deterrent with a reduced number of live warheads."

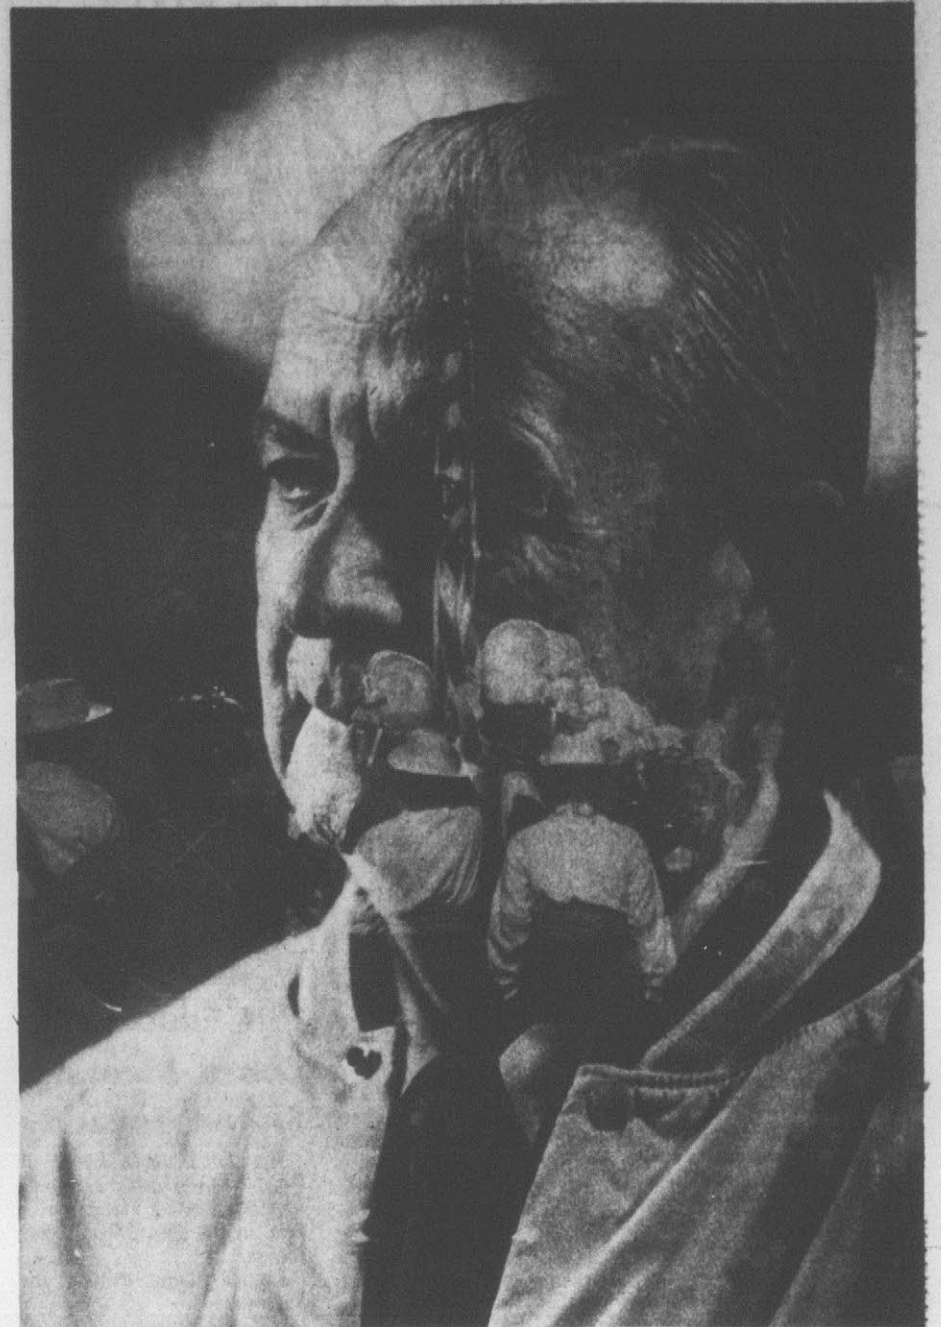

Still others offered ideas on prohibiting production or shipment of nuclear weapons materials, shutting existing nuclear power plants and strengthening international inspection and enforcement powers.

Offered Money To Attend PTA

DETROIT (AP) — About 170 parents and teachers turned out for parent-teacher day at Northwestern High School. It's possible they really wanted to meet each other. It's also possible they wanted to pick up some cash.

Parents were offered $15, teachers, $30, to participate. The money came from a special federal grant for the one-day affair.

Those who came heard several speakers, conferred with their children's teachers, toured the building and watched a program staged by the school's drama and music departments.

Poignant Moment

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM... as played by the East Carolina University Marching Pirates produced a display of emotion in the face of Dr. Leo Jenkins during the last home football contest during his tenure as ECU Chancellor. Reflector Photographer Tommy Forrest used a double exposure of the flag, the band, the fans, the glare of the stadium lights, and Dr. Jenkins to convey the feeling of the moment.

State Tobacco Price Support Program Is Raised As A Solution

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tobacco leaders are being forced to face the possibility that the federal price-support program for tobacco might be scuttled. It is not an attractive prospect.

The price support program uses federally-sponsored loans to buy up tobacco that won't sell on the market at the support price. The program sells the leaf later and repays the loan, but it is swamped now with low quality tobacco it may not be able to sell.

If the program then has to default on federal loans, tobacco critics may have the ammunition they need to kill the program entirely.

"This is a sobering and penetrating question, and it's one that we don't like to face up to," said James W. Hill, managing director of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association.

Nevertheless, the grower-owned cooperative that manages the federal support system in North Carolina has quietly commissioned a confidential study of what might happen if the federal program ended.

Sources familiar with a first draft of the study report say it does not go so far as to discuss a state-run tobacco price support program. But some tobacco leaders, including Gov. Jim Hunt, feel that may be what happens.

"That's exactly what we would try to do," Hunt said. "The problem is, in order to have a binding production control program, you need federal laws."

North Carolina alone, he added, could not operate such a program, since there would be no way to keep farmers in other states from exceeding production limits.

But even if such a state-run program could be set up, friends of tobacco are not enthusiastic at the prospect.

"This would have to be a poor substitute in lieu of what we've got at the present time," said John W. Sledge, president of the state Farm Bureau Federation. "The program now is so clean. It's administered by a third party now."

Edward L. Rivenbark of Tabor City, chairman of the state Tobacco Producers Association, doesn't even like to talk about it.

"For us to even consider a program by the state government is a step in the wrong direction," he said. "If we give our opponents the idea that we are even considering it, it just gives them more ammunition. That's what they want us to do — get scared."

Border Fights For Rhodesia, South Africa

By The Associated Press

The South African and Rhodesian governments reported killing 87 black guerrillas in two border battles as the U.N. Security Council prepared to vote today on four African resolutions censuring South Africa.

The South African government reported its troops killed 61 guerrillas and lost five of its own soldiers in a 36-hour battle last week along the border between South-West Africa and Angola. It was the heaviest fighting reported in the 10-year-old bush war for the independence of the pre-World War I German territory.

The announcement did not say where along the 800-mile border the fighting took place.

Meanwhile, the Rhodesian government said its army intercepted a guerrilla force crossing into Rhodesia from Zambia and killed 26 of the black insurgents. It did not say when or where along the border the battle took place.

The Rhodesian government also announced an exchange of fire with Zambian troops across the Zambezi River near the Victoria Falls.

Regional Sewage Project Was Dedicated Sunday

GRIFTON — Dedication ceremonies for the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District (CMSD) were held yesterday at the plant site southeast of Grifton.

The regional sewage project was undertaken by Winterville, Ayden, and Grifton in 1971 when all three sewage systems were in danger of being condemned, according to Donald Russell, Ayden Town Manager and CMSD secretary.

Elliott Dixon, CMSD chairman, yesterday thanked all those persons involved in the development and completion of the project. Special appreciation was expressed to the mayors of the three municipalities, the state legislators who passed enabling legislation allowing the project to cross county lines, and the Farmer's Home Administration for purchasing bonds to support the project.

"To all these people, we'd like to thank you for helping these three towns in getting this facility," said Dixon.

Floyd Lupton, administrative assistant to Congressman Walter B. Jones, was guest speaker at the dedication.

Lupton called the new plant "one of the most modern sewage plants in the state."

"The participation between the cities and government that prevails here is unprecedented in my

SAME RATES?

I would like to know why the rates at the new Pitt County Memorial Hospital are the same for private and semi-private rooms. Why are the rates submitted to Blue Cross as semi-private when some are really private rooms? Mrs. A. A.

Hospital Finance Officer Warren McRoy said the reasoning behind the identical rate charged for private, semi-private and ward rooms ($80 per day) is that the patient-day charge is mainly for nursing service, which should be of the same quality in each. Also, the space allotted and privileges granted a patient in any of the three kinds of routine-care beds is supposed to be the same, he said. Phones and television sets are furnished in all three types of rooms as part of the room rate.

There are 56 semi-private beds in the acute care section of the hospital and in the psychiatric and rehabilitation departments. The wards are in the psychiatric and rehab departments.

Blue Cross policyholders who have a semi-private room rate pay plan have their rooms, whether private or semi-private paid in full, since the charges are the same, McRoy said, adding that he does not believe there is any such thing as a private room rate pay plan. $77 of the $80-per-day charge is paid when the policyholder has a ward rate plan, he said.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cooler temperatures are forecast today for most of the nation. Mild weather is expected for the East. Showers are forecast from the central Gulf to the Great Lakes. Showers are also due in North Dakota and rain for the Pacific Northwest. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The ghosts and goblins will be in for a bit of a chill tonight in North Carolina.
Temperatures will be in the mid to upper 50s this evening before dropping into the 40s overnight. Strong northeast winds will add to the chill and there is also a chance of some light rain along the coast.

Highs today will be in the 60s in eastern and Piedmont North Carolina and in the 50s in the mountains. Cloudy skies will prevail along the coast and in the mountains, but skies will be clear over the Piedmont.

TEN POWERFUL WOMEN — These women were selected by Harper's Bazaar magazine as the most powerful women in America, partly because they have "overcome formidable odds by

Magazine Names Powerful Women

NEW YORK (AP) — News-caster Barbara Walters, tennis player Billie Jean King and publisher Katharine Graham are among the 10 women considered the most powerful in America by Harper's Bazaar magazine. The magazine said in its November issue that the women it selected had "overcome formidable odds (in) boldly invading traditionally male dominated areas."

The other women named were: —U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas, who "commands more national recognition than most of her colleagues can look forward to in a lifetime."

—Lady Bird Johnson, "a spirited and tenacious campaigner for dozens of environmental projects."

—Washington Gov. Dixy Lee Ray, a biologist who headed the old Atomic Energy Commission and remains a science adviser to the Department of Defense.

—First Lady Rosalynn Carter, who "rallied support for her long-standing drive to upgrade mental health."

—Charlotte Curtis, Op-Ed editor of The New York Times.

—Mary Wells Lawrence, head of Wells, Rich, Greene Inc., an advertising agency.

—Sarah Caldwell, conductor of the Opera Company of Boston.

The magazine noted that Ms. King is credited with helping tennis achieve its current popularity.

Mrs. Graham, the magazine said, heads a business empire which has made the Fortune 500 list of top corporations.

Many Contend For Cheapness Award

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the unhappy wife whose husband always gives her unsigned greeting cards on special occasions.

He sounds like my husband. One year he gave me a birthday card with a $10 check in it. On the card he wrote, "Put this away for us to use on our vacation."

Can anybody top this for cheapness? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. Read on for three toppers:

DEAR ABBY: For Mother's Day my big-hearted husband gave me a check for $50 and asked me not to cash it until after June 1. Well, I waited until June 5 to cash it, but it bounced anyway!

PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that on her birthday her mother instructed her to go to the desk and get out the box of handy "all-birthdays," read it, and then put it back in the box!

HYSTERICAL

DEAR ABBY: How's this for a "generous" anniversary present from a loved one. Just before our 10th anniversary, my husband asked to borrow $100 so he could buy me something really special. I gave it to him, but I never saw that "something special"—and I never saw my $100 again, either.

(P.S. He's not my husband anymore.) GOOD RIDDANCE

DEAR ABBY: What is my obligation to a woman, 30 years my senior, who is ignorant, petty, vicious, demanding, selfish and obnoxious? She lives nearby and does not leave me alone for one day. Everyone in the family visits her for five minutes and runs. She is my mother-in-law, and I cannot stand her!

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Get help, dear. All that hostility, bitterness and resentment is doing YOU more harm than the object of your hatred.

DEAR READERS: To illustrate how much times have changed in the past 50 years, this item appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel in 1927.

"MILWAUKEE—The Marquette University dean of men has announced a ban on private apartments for men. First thing we know," he said, "these apartment dwellers invite in some girls for a party, and trouble follows." Girls must present excuses if out after 11 p.m., the dean of women announced, but otherwise will have plenty of freedom. They may wear short skirts and apply rouge as their consciences dictate."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box, No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Universities Minister Doesn't Believe In Programming Students

EDITOR'S NOTE — Can a country long attuned to the arts and the idea that men are dominant accept more vocational training in higher education as espoused by a woman? From a practical standpoint, perhaps. From a social and political standpoint, well ...

By DAVE ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Alice Saunier-Siete's hobby is flying airplanes. She often wishes that the French university system she runs could dedicate itself to ideas so practical.

Mrs. Saunier-Siete, secretary of state for universities, controls a $2.2 billion budget and an educational system encompassing 77 institutions and about a million students and teachers. Her major worry is that French students spend too much time studying liberal arts and too little time at more practical research.

"We have far too many holders of liberal arts degrees looking for jobs," she says. "What France needs is more researchers, more scientists, more people with tangible laboratory skills."

Mrs. Saunier-Siete doesn't believe in programming students into vocational courses against their will. "But there must be more counseling at the pre-university level so that those who lack the aptitude for arts and letters will gear themselves toward vocational careers."

The universities minister, 52, a widow and a mother of two, is a study in why she's hesitant to railroad unwilling students. As a teen-ager during World War II, she ran messages for the resistance, later dabbled in philosophy, then bucked her parents' wishes that she stay home and marry by going to the Sorbonne to study geography. Her dream was to be an "explorer-journalist," but it was tempered by practicality — courses in secretarial skills in case her career didn't pan out.

She did have a brief fling with her chosen profession, examining how man adapts to high altitudes in harsh climates in the remote reaches of Iceland, Norway, Canada, Alaska and the Arctic. Then she returned to France and began working her way through the educational ranks, reaching the top and her first major conflict 18 months ago.

"I took office right in the midst of the university strike," she says. "I was attacked violently. The strikers wanted to topple me. They thought they could have my skin because I was politically naive. They thought they would have an easy victory. But in November, after I presented my budget, they realized how wrong they were."

Mrs. Saunier-Siete earns $44,000 a year in her government post. In addition to promoting more basic research, she is trying to make sure her budget is spread more equitably among the universities and that qualified personnel have more job security.

The main thorn is the political left.

"If the left wing wins the legislative elections in March," she says, "political criteria will replace scientific criteria, the criteria of competence, in much of the university system."

Of working mostly with men she says, "The war changed the attitudes of my generation. The girls did the same work as the boys but it became clear to me that a woman must always do more than a man to prove her capability.

"You must remember, too, that I was a university teacher and have always worked mainly with men. And they are the ones who always picked me for positions of responsibility, to be head of the team, like a mother or big sister. I never had any personal ambition, and I think they chose me for my qualities of leadership ..."

Mrs. Saunier-Siete has a staff of 12 which she consults regularly before making decisions. "There are no secrets among us," she says. "Everyone knows the major lines of policy, and while there have been some differences, I have experienced no disloyalty in the 18 months I've been here."

Her outlets are fencing, swimming, volleyball and flying her single-engine plane. She has a private pilot's license and is working toward a navigator's license.

"When you leave the ground and are alone in the plane you think only of piloting," she says. "It's an extraordinary liberation, a real cleansing of the brain."

Speaker Makes It Interesting

Sec. of Transportation Tom Bradshaw knows how to make the $300 million road bond issue interesting to people of this area.

The secretary was here last week and promoted the road bond issue and Clean Water bond issue at a Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce sponsored meeting.

He said that the bond issue will produce $60 million per year for the next five years. More highway construction money will be made available because the bond money can attract additional federal highway funds.

Bradshaw got the interest of the local people when he started talking about U. S. 264, our main highway from Greenville to Raleigh. He said he rode on the highway that morning including the new part under construction in the Zebulon area. "It helped," he said.

He said a study had urged the improvement of both U. S. 64 and U. S. 264. It said, "... build both of them very quickly. They are high priorities."

In an area that the study did not consider, Bradshaw said a new Greenville bypass is being considered as a part of the highway improvement plan.

There were, of course, no promises about any phases of the U. S. 64-264 projects, but the transportation secretary's words were encouraging for those of us along U. S. 64 and U. S. 264 who have long seen the need for improvement.

The projects can be moved along and we would hope that with passage of the road bond issue we won't see any more delays.

Notable Achievement For Blood Bank

Once again the students and staff at East Carolina University have come through with a remarkable effort for a Red Cross Bloodmobile visit.

Last week during a three day visit the Bloodmobile collected 1,036 pints at Wright Auditorium. The visit was sponsored by the AFROTC and it saw 320 pints collected Tuesday, 295 Wednesday and 421 on Thursday.

The AFROTC, students staff and everyone connected with this accomplishment deserve the highest praise. The blood donated will undoubtedly mean the difference between life and death for many recipients.

Education Reform Pieces

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There may not be a "grand design" behind seemingly unrelated activities currently underway in public education in North Carolina, but the end result is going to be far-reaching reform of the state's public school system.

Things are gradually coming into focus which could—given top level cooperation between the General Assembly, the governor, and the university system—proud reform.

"It may take four or five years. And it will definitely have to involve local people interested in their schools for that is where the most significant change must occur. But, we are not looking at simply isolated pieces... but at a total reform package," says Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

Some Steps
The governor has a direct involvement in several of the activities:

- All-student testing which will allow direct comparison of student learning success or failure on classroom-room basis;
- Competency testing as a requirement for a high school diploma;

—The first, tentative steps into the Community School Act which will open schools to community use and create school committees to take a direct interest in what is going on in the local schools.

Hunt predicts that in those communities which recognize the power in those tools to force change in the schools, there will be a great deal of activity. He is well aware that some educators are just now recognizing the total impact of the measures and are resisting. But the steps are now law and even the governor privately expresses some amazement that the package made it through the General Assembly without a major fight from the teachers' lobby.

Did Hunt see all of this as part of a reform package at the very beginning? Not really, he concedes. He knew that there was a growing gap between what the public support, expected was down; and that parents are worried about lack of discipline and about the failure of schools to respond with improved effectiveness.

As he talked during the campaign about ways to measure the output of the public schools and not just the input (dollars invested) the pieces began to mesh.

NOBLITT

Law Change

Meanwhile, the General Assembly had authorized a study of all public school law which produced a number of reform suggestions which received scant attention. The study was kept alive, however, and will come back with another set of proposals. Those changes have to do with who sets policy on education and the method of selecting a superintendent (now elected) and the State Board of Education. Support is strong for an appointed superintendent.

That committee is also grappling with what many consider the most critical part of the public school dilemma: teacher tenure which provides strong protection and makes it difficult to weed out incompetence; and what is generally conceded to be an ineffective system of evaluating performance by teachers and administrators.

Another study group is studying teacher certification and re-certification through in-service training with signs pointing at the need for a system which guarantees only the best will be licensed to teach.

At the University of North Carolina, work is moving ahead on weeding out a number of unproductive teaching courses and shoring up teacher training to recover from weakness contributing to "a steady erosion of confidence in teacher education..." as that study report noted.

Another major activity is the Governor's Commission on Public School Finance now organized to look into equal student access to quality education; distribution of resources; means of evaluating the effectiveness of school funding; whether full state funding is a strong option; and ways to help the system meet change.

A New Educational Plan

WASHINGTON—There is a tremendous concern in this country about our educational system. At least 1,567 commissions are studying it; 18,732 professors are now writing books critical of it, and every politician running for office is demanding a change in it.

I myself have opted for the Makepiece Plan, put forward by Harvey Makepiece of the Society for the Abolishment of the Three-Chocolate-Milk Lunch.

Makepiece told me, "It's obvious that 5-and 6-year olds are not ready for grade school. Their minds and bodies are too fragile to take on the difficult tasks that their teachers assign to them. They should have more leisure and fun before they get down to work."

"What do you suggest?" I asked him.

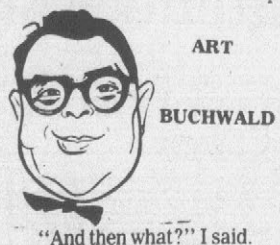

"We send them to college first and let them work off their high spirits."

"I'm not sure I follow."

"Let first graders have their first taste of school in college. Give them a chance to join sororities and fraternities, go to football games, frolic on the campuses and have party raids in the dorms. College is not the time for serious schoolwork, and it is the perfect place for children from the ages of 5 to 9 to have a good time and get used to attending classes, where they can sleep, flirt or cheat on their studies.

"Very few demands are made on college students. They can cut classes, spend their days in the student union and their evenings listening to rock music."

ART BUCHWALD

"And then what?" I said.

"After four years of college, a child is ready to tackle high school. High school, as you know, is just a little tougher than college, and a child would have to get down to work. Not too much work, but enough to get him or her interested in books. The student would still have an opportunity to attend football games, date once in a while if he or she wanted to, go to an occasional dance and drive around in a car after 3 o'clock.

"But high school would still give the youth a feeling that life is not a bowl of cherries and that he or she is going to have to take education seriously.

"Also, the student would have to work hard because he or she knows that there are only a certain number of places open in grade school, and to be able to go on to the school of his or her choice would mean making the grades to qualify."

"Then," I said, "what you're advocating is that grade school be the last one a student must attend."

"That's correct. After the pleasures of college and the joys of high school, a student should be mature enough to face life in the tough world of grade school. There are no fraternities or sororities to distract them. Social life is at a bare minimum, teachers in grade schools don't take any back talk from their students, and corporal punishment is permitted. Lower public schools have no football teams or extracurricular activities. If the truth be known, it's an eight-year grind, and

When Life Imitates Art

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A fictional President's dispatch of troops to halt imaginary Communist aggression in the 1980s has generated enough furor here to underscore this haunting question: can a post-Vietnam U.S. government ever again pose a credible threat to intervene militarily anywhere in the world?

That very question is the ideological underpinning of "Against All Enemies" (Doubleday), a Washington novel by ex-LBJ speechwriters Ervin S. Duggan and Ben J. Wattenberg. Their story has an American President, some 15 years after Lyndon Johnson, intervening in the right war at the right time in the right way (with limited forces). Yet he provokes such opposition that he is nearly driven from office.

Seldom has there been so vivid a case of life imitating art. Reviewers of the book in the most influential newspapers, including a former campaign speechwriter for Jimmy Carter, took precisely the same stand as the fictional President's enemies. While generally praising the novel, these critics recoiled at the notion of U.S. troops intervening anywhere under any conditions.

A similar mindset is found within the Carter administration's national security bureaucracy, thereby moving this debate out of the literary salon. Suspicions have been raised about how the American superpower, deprived of the right to intervene, can confront the Russian superpower unshackled by self-limitations. Among the suspicious is novelist Wattenberg, who in the real world is mobilizing Democratic dissent to Carter policies.

In "Against All Enemies," liberal Democratic President Carl Rattigan faces an invasion of democratic Bolivia by Communist Chile. Impeded by campaign promises and his own doubts, Rattigan nevertheless intervenes — though with restraint not reminiscent of Vietnam. Restrained or not, he triggers reflexive horror and a challenge in the New Hampshire primary by his own Vice President.

To conclude a fast-paced story, Duggan and Wattenberg put this New Hampshire victory speech in President Rattigan's mouth: "From now on, this President may be a little more reluctant to risk making hard, unpopular decisions. And future Presidents may be even more reluctant. The lesson...is that we're in deep trouble...if the world's strongest nation isn't willing to defend its values — with steel, if necessary — you can kiss those values goodbye."

This stemwinder follows 450 pages of reluctance and caution by President Rattigan, scarcely the happy cold warrior. Yet, the pre-publication notice by the Kirkus Service called the novel "a dubious manifesto for interventionism," setting the tone for politicized reviews.

John Leonard, the New York Times daily book reviewer, writes that Duggan and Wattenberg "rattle a few sabers." In the Sunday Times book review, novelist and sometime Carter speechwriter Patrick Anderson writes: "The message seems to be, 'My President right or wrong,' and after Vietnam and Watergate, that is a rather difficult message to accept."

The complaint is most explicit by journalist-novelist Aaron Latham, reviewer for the Washington Post: "I liked this political novel as a novel but disliked it as politics. If (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Go First Class

(Raleigh News and Observer)

United Press International has done the taxpayers a good service in documenting the wasteful spending of federal officials and their agencies on first-class air travel. It's the time the Office of Management and Budget cracked down hard on high-flying fills that too many public servants regard as rightful fringe benefits.

Some $2.7 billion now goes annually for government travel, up almost $1 billion in five years. Much of that comes from seating government people in the champagne and gourmet cabin up front instead of in the cold snack and crash bar area to the rear.

Officials of the World Bank, which is largely financed with funds from U.S. taxpayers, have made at least 600 trips on the supersonic Concorde. The cost of a round trip to Europe on the Concorde is $1,683 compared to the commercial coach fare of $678.

World Bank officials have far-flung duties that require thingy journeys. But what makes them more special than State Department employees, who also must traverse the world? An estimated 90 percent of World Bank official travel is first class, while 98 percent of State Department travel is economy class. In addition, the World Bank last year spend $603,000 on travel for spouses of its officials, which may be great for their morale but does nothing for the rest of us come April 15.

Travel in general within the executive branch of the federal government is out of hand. The General Accounting Office some months ago estimated that at least 15 percent of the travel, largely low-priority conferences and seminars, was wasted so far as productivity for the taxpayer was concerned. Yet the government was unable to either enforce or maintain a 10 percent reduction in travel for executive agencies.

President Carter has sought to set an example by reducing some of the travel and lodging frills for himself and his staff. But the UPI report reveals that the example hasn't been taken to heart even by members of the Cabinet. One of the offenders is Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall. The working people his office represents aren't likely to cotton to trips to Geneva and Bonn that cost 50 per cent more than an economy class or to the fact that most of his 37 flights this year with aides have been in the first cabin.

One effective damper on the waste would require officials to dig into their own pockets to pay the difference between first class and economy when there is no probably emergency reason for the government to pay the higher fare.

A Share In Corporate Profits

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — So you think the nation's corporations are making too much money. You've heard of windfalls, ripoffs, lining the pockets. Okay, how would you like to be cut in on the profits?

This is exactly what a good many people, especially John H. Perry Jr., would like to do. Perry, inventor-businessman and former publisher, thinks it would cure a lot of ills.

Such as: the estrangement of millions from the free enterprise system, economic misunderstanding, apathy of voters, the big federal deficits, the growth of government bureaucracy, the perils of inflation.

It isn't quite that simple — but almost. It involves a plan, the National Dividend Plan, conceived by Perry, beginning while he was a college student, published in book form in 1964, and refined and developed since then.

The NDP has attracted the attention and advocacy of congressmen, corporation executives, liberals, conservatives, academicians, and rather recently a former astronaut, Col. Alfred Worden, who returned from space convinced that America's economic health was as big a challenge.

What attracted Worden and others is the plan's system approach. It doesn't seek piecemeal improvements but a vast overhaul instead, with the motivation arising from the enthusiasm of the populace.

In brief, this is Perry's plan: Funds earned by the nation's corporations and paid by them in federal income taxes would be designated as a National Dividend, distributed through local banking systems to each registered voter on a per capita basis.

All dividends, amounting to about $750 per voter, would be tax free. The level of corporate income tax would be capped at 50 per cent. A moratorium would be declared on any new major federal spending plans during a five-year phase-in of the plan.

Another feature was added recently after a seminar on the subject at Harvard Business School. It would require any federal deficit be deducted from the annual dividend before distribution to voters.

Revolutionary? In a certain perspective, yes. But Perry maintains it is really a returning of America to Americans, providing them with an economic constitution. And what will all this accomplish? Be forewarned that the list is impressively long.

It would, says Perry, involve people in the economic system, encourage voter participation, raise the level of economic understanding, help business raise capital and create jobs, place voters on the side of free enterprise, reduce welfare rolls, put government on a pay-as-you-go basis.

That's just part of the story. It would also, says Perry, tend to end deficit spending (since the deficit would come out of the dividend), encourage the positive support of Americans against inflation,

Uphill Battle Coming

By DAVID R. NELSEN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If that salvo Hugh Cannon fired at Jesse Helms last week is any indication, next year's Senate campaign will be lively and interesting, and it could slip off the high road on occasion.

More than a year ago, Cannon became the first Democrat to announce that he would run for the Senate seat now occupied by Helms, a Republican. Last week, Cannon became the first to drop out.

But Cannon didn't bow out quietly. He left with fireworks befitting his name, unleashing a barrage of charges that Helms is a racial bigot.

The attack lost much of its punch because Cannon offered no proof. Also, the candidate to whom Cannon threw his support — Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr. — tried to tap-dance his way out of any association with the allegations.

Since the election is still 13 months away, the attack may not have any effect, particularly if Hodges loses the May Democratic primary. But it shows the sort of feelings the campaign might arouse.

The last interesting campaign in North Carolina was the 1974 race for attorney general where Republican appointee Jim Carson was trying to keep his job and Democrat Rufus Edmisten was trying to take it.

About a month-and-a-half before the election, Edmisten admitted not paying his North Carolina income taxes while working for Sen. Sam Ervin in Washington, saying he thought his payment of Virginia state taxes took care of his responsibility. Edmisten claimed innocence even after he was convicted in court, but that was after he won the election.

Shortly afterwards, it was revealed that Carson hadn't paid state income taxes while serving as a Navy pilot and that he came back to attend the University of North Carolina as though he had been a tax-paying resident.

In six weeks, that race had more spice than the entire gubernatorial campaign last year which was dominated by Jim Hunt. The Hunt campaign was what most politicians, editorial writers and political science professors say a campaign should be — issue-oriented. Trouble is that sort of campaign is dull.

Hunt could afford it because he was the front-runner in a race with no incumbent in the running.

That's not the case in 1978. Jesse Helms is a strong incumbent candidate and only he can afford to play the statesman role and stick to "The Issues." The Democrat chosen to run against Helms will have an uphill battle and must dethrone the current king of the mountain.

To win that seat, the Democratic nominee must pick Helms' record apart and attack the senator's ultra-conservative record. The nominee must also convince voters he would better represent them.

Such an attack will produce a lively campaign. Cannon's broadside may have been too strong, but it should indicate what's in store.

Because a tough general election campaign will be required to defeat Helms, North Carolina Democratic voters should consider a candidate's movie when a nominee is chosen.

Though it is still too early to draw any conclusions, some candidates indicated the sort of fighters they are.

Strength For Today

FROM HOBBY TO NEW LIFE

Kevin Quinagh many years ago wrote a book entitled "Inspired Amateurs." He points out that some of the world's greatest accomplishments have been carried out by people who did them as a side-line. Herschel started out as a musician but became a famous astronomer. Grote, the banker, earned fame as a writer of Greek history. Priestly, the preacher, discovered oxygen. Schliemann, the merchant, excavated Troy. Spinosa, the humble lens grinder, came to occupy a leading position among philosophers.

Today many people are discovering that their side line is so much more important than their main line that they decide to make their hobbies their main business in life. And very often they win success and create a whole new life for themselves.

The lesson of all this is that amateur status need not overwhelm us with sense of inferiority. Our hobbies may make us famous if we can mix good luck and perseverance on proper proportions.

Industrial Exodus Has Raised Regulation Talk

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — After 43 years in tiny Garrettsville, Ohio, the Polson Rubber Co. announced it was stopping production, ripping out the equipment and shipping the guts of its operation to Tennessee.

"The effect was traumatic," says Polson vice president Paul Diehl, who stayed behind to run the sales operation. "It put a lot of people out of work and wreaked havoc on our tax base."

Garrettsville lost about 40 percent of its tax base when the 400 workers lost their jobs.

"I've got no idea of the destiny of our workforce," Diehl said. "I'm sure some of them found jobs, and some of them are still looking."

Faced with incidents such as Polson and the nearby closing of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. in Struthers, Ohio, there is a campaign in Congress and among some local officials to regulate plant relocation to cushion the impact on workers and the community.

Proponents of regulation hope to minimize the damage to a community and its workers when a company moves a production site.

In Ohio, the Conference of Alternative State and Local Public Policies, a group of public officials, is calling for state legislation that would require companies to pay severance benefits for workers idled by a plant movement.

A bill introduced in the Ohio General Assembly last summer would require benefits equal to one week's pay for every year an employee has worked for the company.

The bill also would require that 10 percent of the gross annual wages of affected employees be paid by the company into a state fund for redevelopment of the affected community.

Legislation introduced in Congress by Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., would require two years' notice before relocating a plant. In that time, company executives would work with government officials to determine if there is actually a need for the relocation and whether federal help to the company might make such a move unnecessary.

If a company refused to give notice, or refused to follow through on efforts to seek an alternative, the legislation would cut the firm off from a variety of federal assistance,

$311 Difference Was Decisive

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The $311 difference between a typical federal employee's retirement check and a monthly Social Security payment helped convince government workers to shun the Social Security system.

But the higher benefit wasn't the only difference that led federal workers to fight successfully against integration of their pension plan with Social Security.

Some federal employees already qualify for both plans, meaning they can now look forward to two checks.

And civil servants maintain their higher pension was intended. A bigger chunk of their paycheck goes to the retirement fund than is paid by those under Social Security, and career employees enter government service partly because of the promise of the higher pension.

The Social Security system is going broke, however, and the federal employees are being looked at hungrily by some as a potential multibillion dollar infusion of cash for the system.

But the proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee to bring them under the Social Security umbrella was thrown out by a 386-38 vote Wednesday, partly because of civil service resistance and partly in fear that the plan was not sufficiently thought out.

No one has suggested simply substituting Social Security for civil service pensions. But the proposal did not say how the systems would be integrated, a fact that concerned many committee members.

The differences between the systems now can be illustrated by looking at two 65-year-old employees ready to retire at the end of this year: a civil servant and an employee of a private business.

Both make about $16,500 a year, the mean income of American families in 1976.

The civil servant leaving government service after 35 years will get about $748 a month in pension or $8,960 a year, at least part of which is taxable.

The retiring private employee will draw only $437 a month or $5,245 year in Social Security checks, which are not taxable.

If the Social Security recipient has a spouse, the check is increased by 50 percent, $218.55 a month, making the total benefit $7,868 a year for the couple. A civil servant's pension does not increase solely because of the presence of a spouse.

we must spread American steel around the world, I believe we should do it in the form of Coke cans." By coining that Duggan and Wattenberg "make foreign intervention seem defensible," Latham implies intervention is never permissible under any conditions.

That not only confirms the point of "Against All Enemies" but echoes a disturbing view voiced privately by many Carter administration officials. Having left government service in opposition to Vietnam, they now (in Presidential Review Memorandum 10) discuss the option of not defending South Korea in case of enemy attack.

Mr. Carter provides no help. His book of campaign commitments ("Promises, Promises") contains this pledge: "Never again becoming militarily involved in the internal affairs of another nation, unless there is a direct and obvious threat to the United States or its people." Under that formula, President Rattigan could hardly have sent troops to Bolivia.

This disturbs such Democrats as Duggan and Wattenberg, who last week told the Women's Democratic Club here of their apprehension about the post-Vietnam U.S. functioning as a great power. Life and art intersect. Novelist Wattenberg, an occasional political operative, has resurrected the centrist Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM) mainly out of concern over the Carter foreign policy.

But the fictional Carl Rattigan, like the real Jimmy Carter, campaigned with post-Vietnam promises of non-intervention. If President Carter faces a democratic ally in peril, might he imitate the novel and risk alienating his supporters, staff and even Vice President? Perhaps, but the critics of "Against All Enemies" suggest the political firestorm would be no less intense in real life than in fiction.

restore confidence in the dollar.

But still there is more, and Perry sums it up with the observations that "the plans uniqueness is that the rich work for the poor," and that it harnesses the vast energy of Americans to create wealth rather than deplete assets.

Is it a panacea or a placebo? On first exposure, many people are skeptical, but some profound economic minds have studied the concept and have become converts. Everyone looks for holes; few find them.

Perry, an extraordinarily creative and practical man — pioneer in newspaper production technology when he owned a group of 28 papers, inventor and successful manufacturer of research submarines, oceanographic and energy scientist — has worked on the plan 40 years.

From headquarters of the National Dividend Foundation in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., he and Joseph Buxton III, the foundation's executive director, travel and speak at universities and before business and other groups.

The two men, along with Worden, who heads Americans for the National Dividend, which seeks to work with public interest groups and Congress, feel the time is growing near when the plan can go into effect.

"By 1979," said Perry, "we can line up some heavy legislative guns to go ahead with it."

He would like more time and opportunity to continue the educational effort but, he indicates, that's too much of a luxury when the federal government is running out of money.

think Hodges appeared soft last week by not trying to salvage what he could from the Cannon attack on Helms. Rather than run scared when mud was flying, he could have seized an opportunity and said something like: "Mr. Cannon's words are rather strong, but if you look at how Mr. Helms voted on...etc."

His not doing that could mean he didn't know how, he didn't know Helms' record or there's nothing to support it in Helms' record.

Edmisten's 1974 campaign shows that he and his lieutenants don't mind getting into a fight, but they could be too rough for their own good.

State Sen. McNeill Smith is a fearless scrapper who has already begun punching at Helms' soft spots. He's concentrating on issues and making them interesting by criticizing Helms' stands in addition to giving his own.

Joe Felmet is a non-conformist and never minces his words. He'll take on anyone.

no one accepts any excuses from a kid who can't make it from grades one to eight."

"But grade school is so long," I protested. "Do you think teen-agers could go the distance without dropping out?"

"No one drops out of grade school. All of them are prepared to come to grips with it, particularly when a grade school diploma will be the highest one that any student can receive. A grade school education under my system is what every parent in this country will want for his kid."

Mother Is Met By 'Son Of Sam'

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz, accused of being the Son of Sam .44-caliber killer, has met with his natural mother, Betty Falco, who gave him up for adoption shortly after he was born, the New York Daily News says.

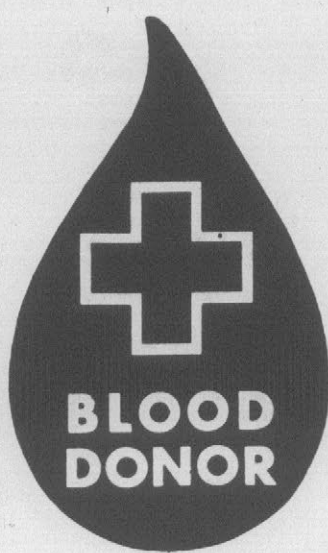

The paper said in today's editions that Berkowitz had steadfastly refused to see Mrs. Falco during the two months he has been confined in Kings County Hospital, where he is undergoing psychiatric tests.

He was persuaded to allow the visit of his mother, now living on Long Island, after repeated pleas from his sister and his attorney. Berkowitz's adoptive father, Nathan, and his half sister, Roslyn Rothenberg, have visited often.

Overnight Visit By President Can Be Harrowing

THE PRESIDENT SLEPT HERE — Mary Diehl straightens the bedspread in the room where President Jimmy Carter spent the night during his visit to the Diehl's farm house near Indianola, Iowa. The President made his own bed and straightened the room before leaving. (AP Laserphoto)

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

Get some mixed nuts. He likes them for a snack. And some buttermilk. He likes a glass before bedtime.

Wake up at 6 a.m. He does. And he makes his own bed.

Be prepared to hear a lot about Amy. Like any other father, the president of the United States dotes on his blonde, 10-year-old daughter. He'll tell you all about her tree house, and her dog, Grits.

And his wife. You'll hear about Rosalynn and her trip to South America.

Don't panic. He'll only stay a night.

And afterward you'll be able to organize tours for the neighbors and point to the sheets on your bed and say, "The president slept here."

Jimmy Carter has a penchant for visiting.

On three trips so far, to New England, to the South and to the Midwest, he has scorned hotels and motels, where presidents usually stay. Instead, he bunked with people he considers plain folks.

If they were, they aren't now. They're celebrities. That's one of the things that happens when the president spends the night.

Here are other things that happen — courtesy of Ed and Kay Thompson of Clinton, Mass.; Owen and Elizabeth Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss., and Woody and Mary Diehl of Indianola, Iowa. They have given Jimmy Carter bed and board, and they know what it's like.

If you're picked, you'll get the word a few days ahead of time. But the White House staff will ask you to keep the visit secret until Press Secretary Jody Powell announces it.

The Secret Service will seal off your block.

Agents will put lights and detectors in your yard to stop intruders. They will put blackout blinds on your windows to eliminate silhouettes. If you've got a motor home, the agents will make it their headquarters.

If your laundry room is handy, like Woody Diehl's was, some of the White House staff will take it over. You can depend on the Secret Service to pick the least likely bedroom as the safest, for the president.

"It was a room upstairs that hadn't had anything done with it for years," mutters Elizabeth Cooper. "The carpet was worn. It was where the girls had stayed when they were little."

At the Diehls, Carter got the master bedroom. Woody and Mary moved out "a few personal things." Woody took some clothes out of the closet to make room. Mary put new linen on the bed.

Aides put a special phone by the president's bed. It was connected to the White House. Two other such phones were installed for his staff. Expect about 400 calls, says Elizabeth Cooper.

You'll see the president arrive at the head of a motorcade. He's likely to carry his suitcase into the house over his shoulder.

"Once we got inside, he carried it down the hall by himself and put it away," says Woody Diehl.

Carter hugged Kay Thompson and kissed her on the cheek.

At the Coopers, the president shucked his coat, rolled up his sleeves and took off his tie. It was soaked with sweat.

Elizabeth Cooper forgot and called him Jimmy. She apologized.

"Oh, call me Jimmy," he said.

But she couldn't. The whole family called him Mr. President.

He sat at one end of Mary Diehl's sofa. She shuddered. It's the worst seat in her living room.

"He was a lot more at ease than I was," she says. "He has so many interests, he makes you feel at home. Our oldest granddaughter has a record collection. He liked that. Our youngest granddaughter is the same age as Amy. I'm interested in Indian artifacts. So's he."

The Coopers invited their grandchildren to spend the night.

Carter lifted one grandson and the month-old boy looked at him sleepily. Then he perched a 4-year-old granddaughter in his lap and fed her some of his ice cream.

Mary Diehl learned he likes mixed nuts. So she had some for him. But he's easy to please. Kay Thompson put out cheese dip and crackers.

"I feel at home," Carter said. Elizabeth Cooper promised White House aides "we would make it easy for him to be in his room by 11 p.m. At five minutes after 11 p.m., we went to bed."

But the Thompsons couldn't resist staying up without him to watch his arrival on television.

"Before we went to bed," says Woody Diehl, "Mary asked him if he'd like some milk, buttermilk or fruit."

"He said, 'I'd just like a glass of buttermilk.'"

"Well, Mary likes buttermilk, too, so she poured them each a glass. I got a little fruit yogurt out of the refrigerator. We leaned there against the kitchen counter and visited for another 10 or 20 minutes just like he was your neighbor down the road."

"I said, 'I'm usually up by 6.' He said, 'Six will be fine. You call me at 6, and I won't bother to set my alarm.'"

"At 6 in the morning, I went down the hall and knocked on the door. I said, 'Mr. President, it's 6 o'clock' — just like I used to call my hired men."

But a thought stopped Woody Diehl in his tracks.

He added through the bedroom door: "The cold is where the hot should be and the hot is where the cold should be."

To a family, Carter's hosts say he comes to breakfast bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. There are no reports of presidential snoring.

He told Elizabeth Cooper he didn't want breakfast. But when he got to the table he couldn't turn down fresh peaches and cream and homemade tomato juice brought by a neighbor.

At the Diehls, he asked for just coffee.

The Thompsons cooked a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, sausages, scones and coffee. Carter cleaned his plate.

Before he left, the Diehls, Woody asked him if he could take 30 seconds and meet the hired hands. "Why, sure," the president said.

"Please excuse Jane for being late," he wrote for Kay Thompson's 14-year-old daughter, tarty at school. "She had a guest in her house."

He won't leave a thank-you note on your pillow, but you'll get one almost immediately in the mail — handwritten by the president.

Investigate Reason For Higher Prices

By The Associated Press

The Federal Trade Commission has launched an investigation of North Carolina's eye-glass market to find out why prices are higher here than in any other state.

The Justice Department will cooperate in the probe, sparked by FTC discovery that the North Carolina glasses market is restrictive and stifles competition.

A national survey of prices revealed that North Carolinians pay an average of $20 more than the national average for a pair of glasses.

State law in North Carolina prohibits price advertisements for glasses. A bill the rescind the ban failed to pass this year, but sponsors give the measure good chances for the next session.

The FTC, however, may act sooner than that. The five federal trade commissioners vote in December on proposed regulations which would allow opticians, ophthalmologists and optometrists to advertise.

The new rules would also require those who examine eyes to give their patients prescriptions with no fees or delays.

The optical director of a Winston-Salem drug store said he offered glasses at competitive prices once, but patients were unable to get their prescriptions by telephone and were told they had to pay "bookkeeping fees" for release of the prescriptions.

He also said certain groups pressured local optical laboratories to keep them from filling his orders.

Such actions would be violations of the proposed new rules and could result in fines.

Thomas Edison exhibited his kitescope in 1889.

The FARM SCENE

By Michael E. Regans
Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent

Processing grain by grinding and mixing feed ingredients into a complete ration is basic to livestock production. However, it does require substantial amounts of electrical energy. Certain steps can be taken to conserve this energy.

Follow the manufacturer's operating recommendations on grinders, mixers, and other feeding equipment. Make sure the motor is securely mounted when using electrically powered equipment. Poor mounting can cause excessive bearing wear and loss of power.

The motor pulley and equipment pulleys must be correctly aligned on belt-driven equipment to avoid excess wear of belt and bearings. Proper belt tension is essential. The belt should be "snug" in the grooves, but not "taut."

If one plans to use large electric motors, three phase motors might be considered. These are more economical but do require three-phase electrical service.

Grinders and mixers should be kept lubricated and the bearings checked for wear. Dry and worn bearings and dull hammers on hammer mills will cause operating inefficiencies and burn more energy.

Electric motors require little maintenance, but a few things should be done at least once a year.

1. Clean motor to insure proper cooling.
2. Check bearings for wear. Excessive side-or-end-play may cause excessive current usage.
3. Do not over-lubricate bearings. Too much oil is just as bad as too little.
4. Clean starting-switch contacts or brushes. Use a very fine sandpaper, not emery cloth.
5. Check to be sure the motor shaft runs freely. A tight or misaligned bearing will cause the motor to overheat and waste energy.
6. Check belt pulleys to be sure that they are secure on their shafts.

7. Check belt tension and replace badly worn belts.

As energy costs rise, every effort should be made to be more efficient as well as productive. Farm management specialists estimate that livestock producers may save 10 to 20 percent of the energy used now by working at energy conservation.

Prince Plays Healing Role

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Simeon Oyedeji was treated with roots and herbs by the village healer in his native Ikire, Nigeria. He is extending his knowledge here of a different kind of medical care.

Oyedeji, 40, is studying at the University of North Carolina for his master's degree in public health, specializing in maternal and child care.

"I had no immunizations as a child," he said, "and any disease was treated by a healer in the village."

Oyedeji is a prince, the son of the city's Oba, or supreme ruler, and still takes active part in the government of his town.

He already holds a nursing degree from the University of Ibadan in Nigeria and taught for several years before becoming principal nurse educator in the new family health nurse program at the University of Lagos.

Oyedeji says bringing modern medicine to rural Nigeria was difficult at first.

"Initially we had a problem convincing the rural people our way was best," he said. "But we worked side by side with the healer and let the people discover for themselves which method works better."

The prince said a new family health program, using nurses instead of doctors, has brought preventive medicine to rural areas and made inroads into childhood disease rates.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned lower today, halting a four-day rebound that dominated trading last week.

The noon Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue chip stocks was down 3.73 to 818.95, after rebounding more than 21 points from Tuesday's two-year low of 801.54.

Despite the decline in blue chips, the overall mix of trading on the New York Stock Exchange showed the lower trend to be a narrow one. By midday, 556 of the traded issues had declined, but 520 had gained.

Analysts, who noted some weakening in trading Friday, said disappointment over the government's latest report on leading economic indicators helped renew long-term investor worries over the economic outlook. The Commerce Department Friday reported a three-thirds of one per cent increase in the index, which is used as a guide to future economic trends.

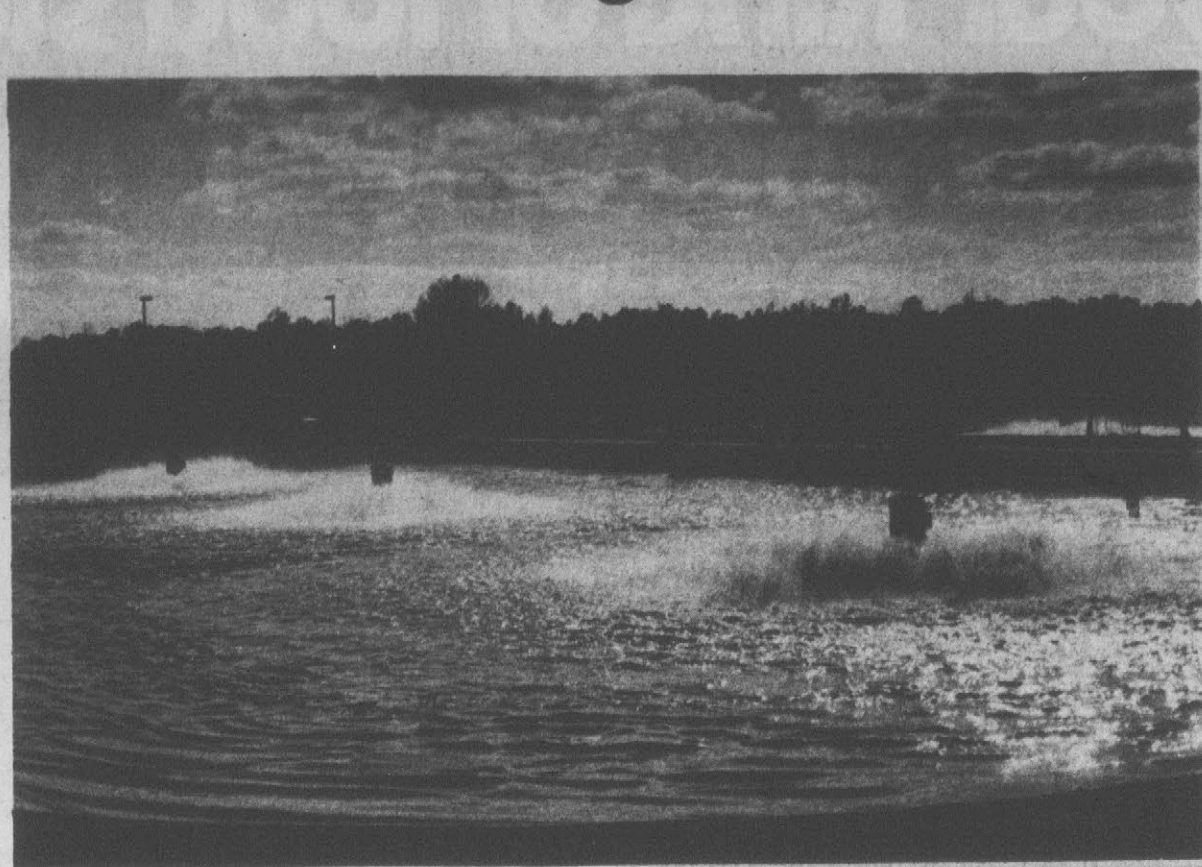

The NYSE's noon composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks slipped .09 to 50.68. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .08 to 112.94. Volume on the Big Board came to 6.86 million shares over the first two hours.

Cool Evening For Trick-Or-Treaters

PLANT TOUR — Visitors and officials at yesterday's CMSD dedication ceremonies toured the new plant following a brief program. The plant now treats approximately two million gallons of water and can be expanded to four to six million in the future. Cost of the project was about $6,335,000. The system was a joint effort of Winterville, Ayden, and Grifton and will serve these three municipalities. (Reflector photo by Debbie Jackson)

While students attending Greenville City Schools had a day off today, students at a number of Pitt County Schools who were not so lucky (although county students will be out of school tomorrow) had special programs and other activities for Halloween.

Many of the schools had witches and other not-so-normal characters walking the halls today, while many classes had Halloween parties in their rooms.

Fund-Raising Plans Okayed

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced the approval of a request by Grimesland Pentecostal Holiness Church to conduct a bake sale at West End Shopping Center on Nov. 5 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Caldwell also reported that the request of G. R. Whitfield School for permission to contact area merchants and solicit gift donations to be given as prizes for the school sponsored Halloween Carnival Oct. 28 was approved.

HANDSHAKES DON'T COUNT

Many business agreements have been sealed with a "handshake" and enforced in the courts. But when it comes to the world of Real Estate you cannot — and should not — rely on oral promises. In fact, legislation in each of the fifty states specifically requires that all agreements and conditions relative to the sale of real estate specifically be in writing. In real estate, oral promises or conditions have little standing. If they are not contained in writing within the agreement of sale, or on other papers relating to the transaction, they are not binding. In fact, the typical agreement of sale provides a clause to the effect that all oral statements relative to the transaction made prior to the signing of the written agreement are invalid. The only way to put any teeth into oral promises, is to insist that everything which you think is significant be put in writing. ## NASCAR Reportedly Will Fight Teamsters Sponsorship Of Race

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Some National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing officials say they'll fight a reported move by the Teamsters Union to sponsor a Grand National circuit driver next year.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch reported in today's editions it had learned the Teamsters would provide major sponsorship next season for Modified driver Geoff Bodine of Bellingham, Mass.

Bodine is sponsored on the Modified circuit by Jack Housby, a Des Moines, Iowa, businessman who owns Housby Mack Truck Co., the largest distributor of Mack Trucks in the country.

In a story by staff writer Bo Brown, the newspaper said it had learned from a source, who asked that he not be identified, that Housby is negotiating with Teamsters officials in Chicago and plans to announce his Grand National plans Nov. 15.

While Housby declined to discuss the amount of money involved, the paper said some persons close to the operation reported it was in the $500,000 range.

"The Teamsters Union has no interest in stock car racing. If they sponsor one car, then they're going to sponsor another one and another one," said Clay Earles, Martinsville Speedway promoter and a longtime friend of NASCAR founder William H. G. France.

Earles said he talked Sunday with France about the possible Teamster involvement in NASCAR and quoted France as feeling "the same way about it that I do." He labeled the development a move by the union to "take over" NASCAR.

He said he has no doubt the Teamsters are interested in organizing Grand National drivers but added "that's not going to happen."

An effort by the Teamsters to organize NASCAR failed in 1961 and led to the suspension of the late Curtis Turner, one of the early stars of stock car racing.

Before he would be "dictated to" by the Teamsters, Earles said he would close down his 525-mile track, which sponsors two 500-lap Grand National races and two Modified-Late Model Sportsman double-headers each year.

The prize money offered in each case is the most for any short-track event in the country.

"There is no room in racing for another organization," said Earles. He pointed out there is no employer-employee relationship between drivers and promoters, the whole relationship resting on an "independent contractor" basis.

Bodine apparently knows nothing about negotiations with the Teamsters, the Times-Dispatch said. But another source said there had been numerous reports Bodine planned to go on the Grand National circuit next year under Housby's sponsorship.

Best Leads Ram Win

SNOW HILL — Junior tailback James Best rushed for 172 yards and scored five touchdowns to lead Greene Central to a 40-20 victory over North Lenoir Saturday night in a game postponed from Friday because of rain.

The rushing total pushed Best over the 1,000 mark this season. He has now run for 1,130 yards in nine games with one game left to play.

The Hawks scored first in the game when Greg Pope fielded a Greene Central punt and returned it 74 yards with 6:25 left in the quarter. Amos Pearce took a pass from Ronnie Chapman on the conversion to make it 8-0.

Near the end of the period, however, Best got his first touchdown of the night on a five-yard run to make it 8-6.

Mitchell Wiggins scored two second-quarter touchdowns on passes of 10 and 11 yards from Chapman and, sandwiched between those, Best scored again on a three-yard run as the Hawks took a 20-12 lead into the dressing room at halftime.

The second half was all Greene Central as Best scored three more times on runs of one two and three yards. Jay Carraway took a pass from Linwood Belcher after the first TD for a two-point conversion and Best ran the PAT following his final score.

Bynum scored the Rams' final TD with 3:57 left in the game on a three-yard run.

The victory raises the Greene

Central record to 7-2 for the season and 4-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. North Lenoir drops to 6-3 and 3-3. Both teams finish up the season Friday night, with Greene Central hosting Southern Nash and North Lenoir hosting Farmville Central.

Turnabout was fair play — or perhaps it was the turnovers. "Turnovers were the difference. We had eight of them the last time we met, but we didn't have any this time and were able to keep the upper hand," Oakland Coach John Madden said after his Raiders, literally mugged by Denver 30-7 a couple of weeks ago, turned around and broke the Broncos' backs 24-14 to bring the Mile High City back to earth.

It left the teams tied atop the American Conference West, each at 6-1, an American Football Conference-best record also held by Baltimore.

The National Conference, meanwhile, now has the only unbeaten team. The Dallas Cowboys, off to their best start since the team was formed in 1960, mauled Detroit 37-0 on Roger Staubach's three touchdown passes and Efren Herrera's three field goals.

In other National Football League action it was Baltimore 31, Pittsburgh 21; Chicago 26, Green Bay 0; New Orleans 27, Los Angeles 26; San Francisco 20, Tampa Bay 10; Seattle 56, Buffalo 17; San Diego 14, Miami 13; New England 24, New York Jets 13; Washington 23, Philadelphia 17; Cleveland 44, Kansas City 7; Minnesota 14, Atlanta 7, and Cincinnati 13, Houston 10 in overtime. The New York Giants visit St. Louis tonight.

Red Miller, who had the Broncos flying high in his first season as Denver's head coach, could only applaud Oakland's solid, basic play.

"They used their weapons to the utmost," he said. "They had great blocking in running to their left side ... and our two turnovers made a difference. It was just the opposite of what happened in Oakland" when Denver played virtually error-free ball and the Raiders' Ken Stabler was intercepted seven times.

That left side was manned by guard Gene Upshaw and tackle Art Shell, who opened gaping holes for Mark van Eeghen and Clarence Davis. They teamed for 187 yards and had a touchdown run apiece. Stabler started the scoring with a 21-yard TD pass to Cliff Branch and Oakland had a 24-0 lead before Denver did anything.

Cowboys 37, Lions 0

Meanwhile, Dallas did anything it pleased and Detroit, as its score indicated, did nothing. The Lions' biggest problem was coming in against a Cowboy team that woke up after last week's sluggish performance.

"We are more intense now than our Super Bowl teams," said Cowboys safety Cliff Harris. "This is the most intense I've ever seen us in the regular season."

But Tom Landry, ever the cool coach, downplayed the runaway. "We're still not a solid football team yet. We need more consistency," he said ... which left Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth almost speechless.

"All I can say is that Dallas is a tremendous football team," he gasped. The Lions didn't even cross midfield until the fourth period.

Staubach clicked on passes of 14 yards to Billy Joe Dupree, 18 yards to Scott Laidlaw and 1 yard to Jay Saldi. Herrera's field goals covered 21, 45 and 30 yards.

NFL Roundup

Colts 31, Steelers 21

The last time the Steelers visited Baltimore, Terry Bradshaw passed for three touchdowns in a 40-14 playoff romp. This time it was Bert Jones' turn. The Colts' quarterback came through with scoring strikes of 26 yards to Roosevelt Leaks and 13 yards to Lydell Mitchell and a 6-yard TD run of his own.

The Baltimore defense kicked in with five interceptions and Pittsburgh kicked itself around with 112 yards in penalties.

Bears 26, Packers 0

Walter Payton's 205 yards rushing tied Gale Sayers' 1968 club record for a single game — and Chicago's popular running back was delighted he never got the 206th.

"I didn't want to break Sayers' record because Sayers is a super guy. What's a record? I just wanted to win the game," he said after scoring on touchdown runs of 6 and 1 yards and setting up Johnny Musso's 3-yard scoring run in the rout of the Packers.

"Walter is super every game, but we wanted to make this a truly great game for him," rookie tackle Ted Albrecht of Chicago said. "The coaches wanted to take him out when he had 196, but we asked them if he could carry for one more play. He did, and he got it."

Saints 27, Rams 26

Rich Szaro's field goal with three minutes to play — a 31-yarder that brushed the right upright and wobbled through the goalposts — gave the Saints their upset over Los Angeles.

Pat Haden threw for two Rams touchdowns and Tony Galbreath ran for a pair for New Orleans. The difference in the game was a missed extra point, when a center snap sailed over the LA holder's head.

49ers 20, Bucs 10

Delvin Williams ran 35 yards and Wilbur Jackson went in from the 2 for San Francisco touchdowns, but the Bucs once again helped beat themselves with a costly fumble.

Williams' score came after Ricky Bell coughed up the ball for Tampa Bay, now winless in the 1 1/2 years they've been in the league.

Seahawks 56, Bills 17

Seattle, which won two games last year, won its second of 1977 and it was by far the Seahawks' most impressive game. Jim Zorn, sidelined for a month with a damaged knee, fired four touchdown passes, two to Steve Largent, and ran for another score in the rout of the Bills.

Virtually nothing went right for Buffalo. O.J. Simpson, a questionable starter because of knee problems, sat out the second half after getting only 32 yards in the first two periods.

Chargers 14, Dolphins 13

Benny Malone fumbled away Miami's victory, giving the Chargers the ball on the Dolphin 33-yard line with 1:48 to play. Exactly 1:48 later, San Diego quarterback James Harris ran 5 yards for a tying touchdown, then Rolf Benirschke kicked the winning extra point.

Harris also threw 2 yards to Bob Klein for a TD while Chargers safety Clarence Duran started on defense with three interceptions and a fumble recovery.

Patriots 24, Jets 13

Steve Grogan passed for touchdowns of 11 yards to Darryl Stingley, 52 yards to Stanley Morgan and 4 yards to Don Hasselback in the Patriots' victory over the Jets. In all, Grogan hit 16 of 23 passes for 228 yards with Stingley catching eight of them for 121.

Redskins 23, Eagles 17

Coach Allen asked Joe Theismann to take over for Billy Kilmer and wake up Washington's slumbering offense against Philadelphia. And, as the coach later decided: "He did everything we asked of him, and more." What he did was team with Jean Fugett on a pair of 15-yard TD passes in the first period for a lead Washington never relinquished.

Browns 44, Chiefs 7

Cleveland, first in the AFC Central Division, got 153 yards rushing from Greg Pruitt — 78 on a TD play — and three field goals from Don Cockroft in the rout of Kansas City.

"I think that's probably the best over-all game we've played in the three years I've been here," Coach Forrest Gregg said. "I'd have to say — I would have to finally admit — that the team is where I want it to be."

Vikings 14, Falcons 7

Fran Tarkenton, who had lobbed for Minnesota to acquire unhappy tight end Bob Tucker from the Giants, repaid the Vikings in the fourth period with a 6-yard touchdown pass to his new teammate to beat Atlanta.

Bengals 13, Oilers 10

Ken Anderson, who replaced ineffective John Reaves at quarterback for Cincinnati in the second period, marched the Bengals 58 yards in 10 plays with the fifth-period kickoff, then Chris Bahr kicked the 22-yard field goal that beat the Oilers with 5:51 gone in sudden death.

Giants-Cards

Play Tonight

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Either the New York Giants or the St. Louis Cardinals, who once both tottered on the brink of early extinction, will bounce back into the National Football League's playoff picture tonight.

The heated rivals, who clash on national television, are two of only seven teams in the National Conference scarred by three or fewer defeats.

St. Louis' Don Coryell, this coach of an entry that matches New York's 3-3 record, did not dispute those who previously counted his Cards out of the running for an NFL postseason berth.

"You look at it on paper and you'd have to agree," Coryell said. "People would have to say that any 3-3 team has a very slight chance to make the playoffs. But that doesn't mean that one of them won't make it. Probably one of them will."

St. Louis and New York, until boosted by Sunday's NFC results, were two of four also-rans at the 500 level hoping for a wild card berth behind division leaders Dallas, now 7-0, and Minnesota, 5-2, and co-lead-ers Los Angeles and Atlanta, each 4-3.

Poor Bear: Pass Defense Looked Bad

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

College Football

You've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

"I think they hurt us more than any team I can remember with their passing attack," the veteran Alabama coach said following Saturday night's meeting with Mississippi State. "We obviously need a lot of work on pass defense."

And now would anyone care to guess what score Alabama lost by? What's that, you say, they won 37-7? What about it, Bear?

"Well, a couple of times they had a guy open for a touchdown and didn't get it to him."

Oh.

When second-ranked Alabama wasn't allowing Mississippi State to pass for 227 yards, the Crimson Tide's fleet and deep corps of runners was rushing for 311 yards, starting with Tony Nathan's 59-yard touchdown gallop in the first period.

The victory kept 'Bama atop the Southeastern Conference with a 4-0 record to 3-0 for both seventh-ranked Kentucky, which blanked Virginia Tech 32-0, and unheralded Auburn, which upset No. 18 Florida 29-14.

Alabama is the odds-on favorite to represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl — Kentucky is ineligible — but Bryant has other things on his mind first.

"I haven't thought about it at all," he said. "I've got enough to worry about LSU next week."

Yup, you've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

Meanwhile, top-rated Texas slugged No. 14 Texas Tech 26-0, third-ranked Ohio State battered Wisconsin 42-0, No. 4 Oklahoma trounced Kansas State 42-7, fifth-ranked Notre Dame crushed Navy 43-10, sixth-ranked Michigan whipped Iowa 23-6, eighth-ranked Arkansas downed Rice 30-7, No. 9 Penn State mauled Miami of Florida 49-7 and No. 10 Southern Cal bowed to California 17-14.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Texas A&M outscored Southern Methodist 38-21, No. 12 Nebraska dumped Oklahoma State 31-14, No. 13 Pitt creamed Tulane 48-0, Missouri upset No. 15 Colorado 24-14, No. 16 Clemson defeated Wake Forest 26-0, No. 17 Brigham Young beat Arizona 34-14, Indiana shocked No. 19 Minnesota 34-22 and No. 20 Florida State turned back North Texas State 35-14.

Texas used a 57-yard pass play from Randy McEachern to Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones, two touchdowns by Johnny "Ham" Jones and field goals of 60 and 35 yards by Russell Erxleben to turn back Texas Tech. Earl Campbell didn't score but rushed for 116 yards and moved into 12th place on the all-time NCAA list.

"That was a tough football game," said Coach Fred Akers. "I was glad to see Ham Jones running and scoring and Earl had another great day and now Houston ... they are next."

Meanwhile, nose guard Ron Simmons, only a freshman, sacked North Texas quarterbacks five times for 51 yards in losses.

"Ron Simmons kept making the big play," said Coach Bobby Bowden. "I never saw as many big plays as he made tonight."

But it was a disastrous weekend for the Florida Gators, another good bet to disappear from the Top Twenty. Auburn got an SEC record five field goals from Jorge Portela while sophomore Charlie Trotman passed for 177 yards and a touchdown in his first varsity start.

"I was proud of the team for sucking it up and playing hard when a lot of people had given up on us," said Coach Doug Barfield.

Ohio State came out throwing against Wisconsin and Rod Gerald heaved a 79-yard scoring bomb to Jim Harrell on the second play of the game. "We thought they were crowding us," Woody Hayes explained.

Thomas Lott scored three times as Oklahoma rushed for 483 yards and destroyed Kansas State and Joe Montana passed for 260 yards and defensive end Ross Browner set a Notre Dame career record of 295 tackles as the Fighting Irish torpedoed Navy.

Another career mark was set by Michigan quarterback Rick Leach, who tossed his 23rd, 24th and 25th touchdown passes — the three scoring aerials tied a school record — as the Wolverines defeated Iowa.

Two scoring passes and a 45-yard TD run by Derrick Ramsey paced Kentucky over Virginia Tech and Michael Forrest scored twice to lead Arkansas over Rice.

Miami of Florida boasted the nation's No. 1 pass defense but Penn State rattled it for 232 yards — 192 by Chuck Fusina, who threw 56 yards to Ed Guthrie and 72 to Scott Fitzkee for touchdowns.

California dedicated its game against Southern Cal to the memory of Joe Roth, last year's quarterback, who died of cancer. The Bears then used short runs by Paul Jones and Charlie Young and Jim Breech's field goal to hand the Trojans their first Pac-8 setback in two seasons.

"We're a very much uptight team right now," said USC Coach John Robinson. "But we're still in the Rose Bowl race. We're 3-1, and if we win the rest of our games we'll go to the Rose Bowl."

It was time for nostalgia at West Point as Army defeated Holy Cross 48-7 with its three Heisman Trophy winners — Doc Blanchard (1945), Glenn Davis (1946) and Pete Dawkins (1958) — on hand for special halftime ceremonies.

Thompson Wins Finale

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Some regained weight, a friendship with Arnold Palmer and a lot of hard work was the winning parlay for Leonard Thompson.

"This just proves to me that I can do it again," Thompson said Sunday after his solid, three-under-par 68 had produced a two-stroke victory in the Pensacola Open, the last official event of the long pro golf tour.

"Under the circumstances, having been down so long, I really think this is a bigger thrill than winning the first one."

Thompson, now carrying a solid 210 pounds, capped his comeback with a 50-foot birdie putt on the final hole and sent his putter flipping high into the air with the second victory of his career. He won it with a 268 total, 16 under par on the 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

It didn't come easily, however. He started the final round with a two-shot lead, blew that with a couple of early bogeys, got the strokes back with birdies on the next two holes, then watched rookie Curtis Strange, playing in front of him, mount a determined bid.

The 22-year-old Strange, a former national collegiate champ from Wake Forest, reeled off a string of five consecutive birdies that started with a chip-in on the eighth hole. That pulled him into a tie for the lead.

"I thought I was in the driver's seat then," he said.

But he made bogey six on the 14th, putting his third shot in a bunker. "That was the turning point," said Strange, who finished with a 68 and a 270 total. He watched while Thompson scored his spectacular birdie on the final hole.

"He finished like a winner," Strange said. "He won it. I didn't give it to him."

J.C. Snead came on with a 67 and took third at 272. Tied at 273 were Bill Kratzer, Butch Baird and Fuzzy Zoeller. Kratzer had a last-round 65, Baird 67 and Zoeller 69.

PGA champ Lanny Wadkins shot 70-278 and Palmer 70-282. Thompson collected $25,000 from the total purse of $125,000 and pushed his season's earnings to $107,293.

★★★★ FORD DEALERS ★★★★★ GIVE SPECIAL DEALS ON NEW '78 FORDS!

139 Network Ford Dealers vow to sell 1,000 cars and trucks in 6-day blitz.

They believe the Ford lineup is the most exciting ever with new cars like Fairmont and Fiesta. Fairmont offers amazing comfort and performance for a car with an EPA gas mileage rating of 33 highway, 23 city. And Fiesta, the success car of Europe, is already in hot demand here with its sporty styling and excellent EPA gas mileage rating of 46 highway, 34 city. (Your actual gas mileage may vary).

In addition, the Ford Dealers cite the strength of the economy and the fact that Ford factories are geared-up to meet heavy demand.

In a move to get their new models rolling faster than ever before, Ford Dealers along the Virginia-Carolina Ford Dealer Network are holding an all-out, 6-day sales blitz. Their goal: 1,000 new car sales in 6 days.

It's a milestone many experts once said could never be reached. But from the Blue Ridge to the Atlantic, the feeling among Ford Dealers is that 1978 is the year.

Says one local dealer, "Even without this 6-day sales blitz, we'd likely have a real strong introduction. But with the big push, folks have the chance to own a brand-new '78 right now for an unheard of bargain price. It's one heck of a sales climate and I have no doubt in my mind that this is going to be the biggest new car introduction in Virginia-North Carolina history."

Brand new '78 Fairmonts, Fiestas and Granadas at unheard of prices.

"The best way to introduce our new '78s is to get them on the road quick. And the best way to do that is low prices."

With those words, a spokesman for the Virginia-Carolina Ford Dealer Network announced that all '78 Fords, including Fairmonts, Fiestas and Granadas, will sell at special introductory prices during a 6-day sales blitz.

who work during the day will have plenty of time to shop at night. Says one Ford Dealer, "I don't want anyone to miss out on these special deals, so we'll be working overtime. Even if we have to miss Charlie's Angels!"

Sellout seen here for Europe's success car.

Network dealers are pulling in Fiestas from other areas for the 6-day sales blitz. The astounding success this little Ford has enjoyed in Europe seems sure to continue here in the U.S., keeping Fiesta in hot demand. Buyers are urged to shop early for this popular new Ford.

Most Dealers open late during big push.

Reports from the Virginia-Carolina Ford Dealer Network indicate extended hours at most Ford Dealers during this 6-day event. Customers

Ford pouring in extra '78's to meet demand.

Demand for new '78s is expected to be so heavy here that Ford Dealers have ordered extra new car shipments. Plans call for more than 10,000 new cars and trucks on Virginia-Carolina Ford Dealers' lots during the 6-day push. And trainloads are arriving daily to meet the goal. Dealers say this is one of the largest selections ever offered to area car and truck buyers. It looks like an excellent time to buy.

★★ HURRY! 6 DAYS ONLY ★★

The defeat at the hands of Southwestern Louisiana Saturday night was a bitter one for the Pirates of East Carolina.

In all probability, even with two final wins, the Pirates with a 9-2 record, will not be counted as a bowl team come December.

It was a frustrating game for the Pirate fans just as much because most of them felt that the Bucs were still the best team on the field. They just never seemed to be able to get on track. Fumbles hurt them more than anything else, and the few penalties that the Pirates got all came at the wrong times.

Southwestern, as a result of the fumbles, stayed in excellent field position all night long. It was something of a miracle that the Pirates were able to prevent a touchdown.

But that wasn't enough. They gave the Cajuns the chance at too many field goals. And although one was missed, the rest went through and that was all it took.

Who knows what might have happened had the Pirates scored on their first possession. They drove from their own 16 to the Southwestern 22 before a penalty stalled the drive.

Perhaps the most difficult task the Pirates have will be to get their heads on right for the final two games.

One thing is certain: East Carolina must be ready or they will have difficulty in winning those two. Both Appalachian State and William & Mary remember the defeats they suffered last year at the hands of the Pirates, and they want their revenge.

ACC Officials

If this past Saturday night's group of officials are the best around, then perhaps we'd best go back to the Southern Conference.

The crew that called the game Saturday night must have been the world's worst at spotting the ball. They never seemed quite sure where it should be.

The most surprising call of the night came in the early moments of the second half, when East Carolina was called for being off-sides on a field-goal attempt.

The series started at the 24 yard line of the Pirates after a fumble. The ball was right on the 24. On first down, Southwestern got two yards, then a pass fell incomplete. The third down play got two yards, and the ball was spotted just a hair over the 20, but well short of the 19, leaving nearly six yards for the first down.

Southwestern went for a field goal, but missed it, and the Pirates were off-sides.

The officials walked off the penalty, measured and found it to be a first down. The ball was then squarely on the 19, a penalty of well over five yards.

Oddly enough, on first down, a pass was incomplete, and the official respotted the ball. Where? Just inside the 20, well back of where the first down yardage would have been in the first place.

And this is just an example.

Three Forwards Help Bucks Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks used a three-forward offense Sunday night to beat Seattle 108-95. The Supersonics tried a three-guard offense, and it worked for a time but not long enough for a come-from-behind National Basketball Association victory.

Bucks Coach Don Nelson moved forward Dave Meyers against Seattle center Marvin Webster with the score tie 81-81 and 10:40 remaining in the game, and Meyers responded by finishing with 23 points while Webster had 15. The switch came about when forward Marques Johnson, who finished with 22 points and 12 rebounds, was put back into the game in place of center Kevin Restani.

"They have a sagging defense. Their big guys were stopping all our inside stuff," Nelson said. "David seemed to be real active before, so I decided it was time to try a different lineup."

The Bucks, after leading by as many as 11 points in the first quarter, allowed the Sonics to pull within 32-30 left in the half on 11 consecutive points, then go ahead at 41-40 and hold a 46-45 advantage at the intermission.

"We used a three guard offense in the second quarter and it worked," Seattle Coach Bob Hopkins said. "I tried it late in the game, and it backfired. It didn't cause us to lose the game, but we didn't gain ground on them."

The Bucks went back in front at 60-59 when Restani hit a jump shot with 7:09 left in the third period. Eight points by Johnson gave them a threepoint lead at 68-65. However, six points by Fred Brown, a former Milwaukee Lincoln High School star, brought the Sonics into an 81-81 tie with 10:40 remaining. And Gus Williams, Seattle's top scorer with 21 points, added two more baskets.

But then Quinn Buckner came through with six points for Milwaukee, putting it ahead 87-85 and starting it on the way to 18 of the next 19 points and the victory.

Dye: It's Tough To Lose

While Southwestern Louisiana's players and coaches whooped it up beneath the stands of Ficklen Stadium in their dressing room, Coach Pay Dye summed up his feelings Saturday night, in a much more subdued atmosphere.

"It's tough to lose, I'm gonna tell you," Dye told the gathered media. "Obviously, when we don't score but seven points, we had to get whipped. As usual, I couldn't tell all that much about what happened from where I was on the sidelines. The film will show that."

Despite the 9-7 defeat at the hands of Southwestern Louisiana, Dye felt that his Pirate team put forth a good effort, and he praised quarterback Leander Green for his play during the lone touchdown series of the Bucs.

"He made two great plays," Dye said, referring to one where Green reversed his field for 25 yards and a first down, and to the 33-yard touchdown run. "I guess we wouldn't have scored without those two plays."

"We were not as sharp tonight, but we weren't flat. It may have looked that way, but we weren't. I don't believe in making excuses when you lose. We just got beat by a fine team," Dye added.

Dye could have pointed out that senior running back Willie Hawkins, who he frequently praises as one of the top blockers around, didn't line up for a single play Saturday night, after suffering a pulled hamstring during practice. Without Hawkins, blocking, the Pirates found it tough to move on the outside. He was also missed on kickoff returns, where he usually gets good yardage. The Pirates, on four returns, got only 36 yards, and usually started drive in poor field position.

He also didn't blame any single player for the defeat. "We lost as a team, just as we win as a team," he said. "All the players, coaches, teachers, mommas and poppas lose and win together."

The coach had praise for the opponent. "I've said all week that the strength of their team was their defense. They showed that tonight. They are probably the best defensive team we've seen all year."

"We made a lot of mistakes, but the loss was not because of a lack of effort. We just got beat," Dye said.

"The real winners are those who face adversity and come back to win. We will see about that next week against Appalachian. I still have to be proud of the team."

Dye was asked what the Pirates had to play for now, since the loss probably eliminated them from any bowl thinking.

"It's a matter of pride now, wearing that purple jersey and leaving here as winners," he said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Good time to extend mental horizons, approach people, develop ideas and discuss ideals. Changes you have in mind are well favored. Try to please family members more.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to have more happiness at home and do whatever will please family more. Study into some new interest that could be of benefit to you and the public in general.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to handle reports and statements with extra care now. Get information you need from proper sources. Talk the future over with your associates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan the best monetary arrangements that will make the future more secure and brighter for you. Make necessary repairs to home. Be happy with kin.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Know what you want of a personal nature and then go after it. Attend social functions that can be of help to you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make better arrangements for future operations but don't confide in others. Pay bills, and use what is left wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do something nice for persons you want to retain as friends. Take time to be with others socially and make new contacts of worth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do those things that will give you a better standing in your community. Pay bills promptly and improve credit rating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Looking into new interest can relieve that dull routine you are under. Use your hunches and make the right changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find new and better systems for handling responsibilities and get good results. Loved one is devoted to you so be sure to show more appreciation. Avoid a known troublemaker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A quarrelsome vibration is strong. Mixing work and pleasure could cause trouble. A public matter that has been bothering you now straightens itself out nicely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Schedule your work ahead of time so that tasks can be handled efficiently. Set aside time for health improvement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are full of enthusiasm and ambition now. You see new ways to use a talent profitably. Discount rumors about a good friend.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she can be most successful because there is the ability here to know what others want from the relationship. Give as fine an education as you can and give good ethical training early so that a martyr complex does not develop. Public work is best here, whether male or female, and the career should start early in life.

Hugh Downs Offering A Show For 'Seniors'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At 56, Hugh Downs isn't a senior citizen just yet. But he agrees with the gripes of older folks that many TV shows either ignore them or poke fun at them to draw laughs from viewers.

He hopes to help remedy their complaints with the first five-day-a-week show he's done since leaving NBC's "Today" in 1971. It's a new public TV series, "Over Easy," for and about older citizens.

Made by KQED in San Francisco under federal grants totalling $4 million, it starts on Nov. 14. The lead-off guest is a fairly prominent 79-year-old — Lillian Carter, mother of the President.

Other "Over Easy" guests Downs will interview during the show's first week are comedian Redd Foxx, actor Robert Young, author Jessica Mitford and singer Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Downs says the aim of the new show "is to dispel myths and get rid of prejudices suffered by the older segment of our country's population. And it'll be a mixture of many things. "It'll be a combination of entertainment, information, talk and variety shows. We're saying we do everything (commercial) television does except hourly news and play-by-play sports."

The series will run at least 26 weeks, with each half-hour show taped about four weeks before its scheduled national broadcast.

But Downs said the series also will be able to do special programs on breaking news — such as legislation particularly affecting older Americans — in the same week the news occurs.

Downs, who has been writing, lecturing and sporadically appearing on TV since leaving "Today," spoke by phone from San Francisco, where he now maintains a home in addition to another one in Carefree, Ariz.

He said despite the gripes of older viewers at the way TV shows usually depict them, he detects signs of hope now that senior citizens have become more organized, more vocal and more numerous.

"It may be now they're at the point that blacks were when they were pressuring against the 'Amos 'n Andy' syndrome (on TV)," he said.

Protests from America's elders seem to be having a gradual effect on the depiction of the aged in comedy and dramatic shows, he added, "and we may look back a generation from now and be appalled at what we did in the way of insulting our senior citizens."

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10753 ♥Q9832 ♦A8 ♣KJ

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠
2 ♥ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. Do not put pressure on partner by simply bidding three hearts. From the auction, you know that partner has, at most, a singleton spade, and that all your cards are working. You should have excellent play for four hearts.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J943 ♥A9642 ♦J8 ♣Q5

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Dbie. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid one heart. You have respectable values with a five-card major, and if you don't show it now it may get shut out of the auction completely. There is no reason why you shouldn't make your normal bid in spite of your opponent's takeout double.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1072 ♥95 ♦KQJ6 ♣A82

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has shown 19-20 points and you have 14, so there is no question about being in slam. Therefore, we would not fault you if you immediately leaped to six no trump. However, there is still the possibility that partner has four diamonds, in which case the hand might play better in a suit contract. We would bid three diamonds, intending to play six diamonds if partner raised and six no trump if he did anything else.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠763 ♥AJ84 ♦J4 ♣AQ103

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—To a certain extent, our decision would be influenced by our knowledge of partner's habits. If he is an aggressive bidder, it will be enough to issue an invitation to slam by raising to four no trump—he won't pass on any hand that offers a decent play for slam. However, if he is a timid soul, we would relieve him of the strain by jumping to six no trump ourselves.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J7 ♥8 ♦A7 ♣KJ1087532

What is your opening bid?
A.—At this vulnerability, some preemptive action is clearly indicated, and our choice would be four clubs. Since our suit is broken, we are prepared to give up the possibility that three no trump might be our best spot in favor of putting the opponents under the maximum amount of pressure.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ6 ♥A8 ♦AJ62 ♣A7

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's bidding has been discouraging, and you should give up all thoughts of slam. You are likely to make four spades, if that was your choice, but we would opt for three no trump—a contract that may yield nine running tricks in addition to 150 for honors.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J92 ♥AK107 ♦KQ ♣AQ95

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—The value bid is two no trump, but we won't quibble if you selected that bid. But there is a certain appeal to the reverse bid of two hearts. In addition to possibly uncovering a 4-4 heart fit, the reverse allows partner to conveniently rebid a long spade suit. Since our diamond honors are unopposed, the hand could easily play better in a suit contract rather than in no trump.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ985 ♥943 ♦K7 ♣82

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—To this point, you have not shown any great strength. Yet you have a good hand and your king of diamonds has just increased in value. Slam should depend only on partner's club holding. You can get across your strength and your concern about the club suit by now jumping over game to five hearts.

Broadcast Technology Expanding

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Galloping electronic technology could soon replace television and radio news with two-way communication direct to homes, making broadcast news as it now exists obsolete, according to a prominent North Carolina broadcaster.

Charles H. Crutchfield, president of Jefferson-Pilot Broadcasting Co. of Charlotte, said Saturday at the annual meeting of North Carolina Associated Press Broadcasters that "Technology is advancing at unbelievable rate, and unless we are vigilant, it promises to consume our industry as we now know it."

Crutchfield, who will retire in December after a 48-year career in broadcasting, was awarded North Carolina's Distinguished Citizens Award at the meeting.

He told broadcast newsmen from throughout the state that the development of direct two-way communications could be prompted by the U.S. Post Office using such a system to replace costly home delivery of mail.

"Whatever the post office eventually uses to transfer mail would also be capable of transmitting audio and video signals directly to the home," Crutchfield said.

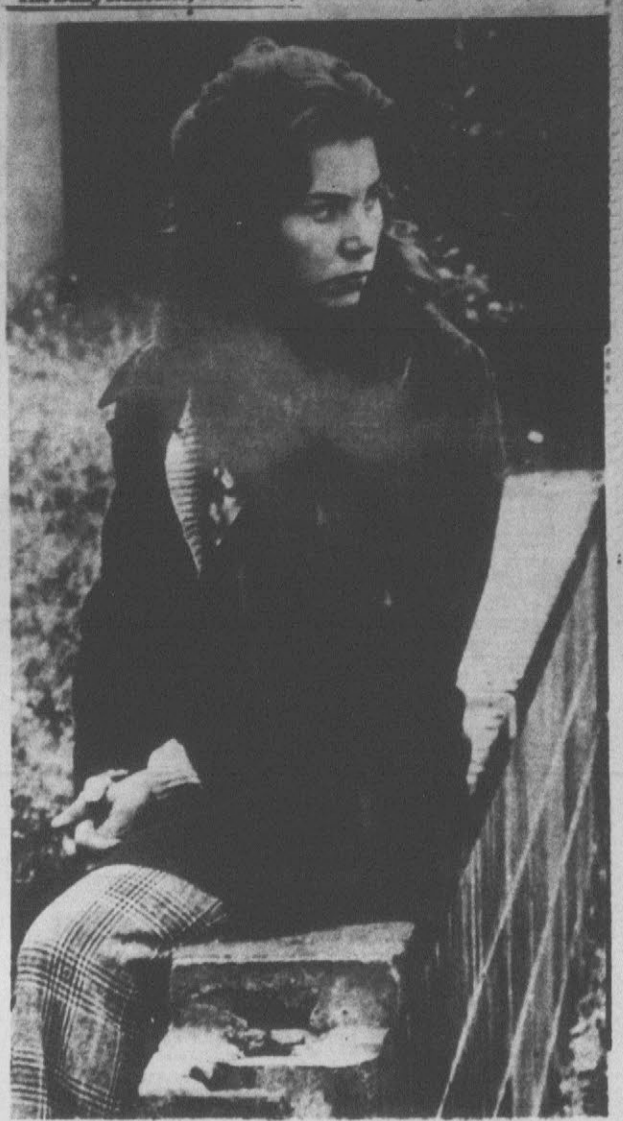

"The post office issue, in short, might very well lead to the formation of a national communications policy involving all forms of communications."

Crutchfield, 65, is the 17th person to get the state's highest service award for citizens since the citation was originated in 1958 by Gov. Luther Hodges.

Gov. Jim Hunt, in authorizing the first Distinguished Service Award since 1972, said Crutchfield's career "has had national impact and has brought to North Carolina and the South national recognition."

A native of Arkansas, Crutchfield now heads a company that operates WBT AM and FM radio and WBT television in Charlotte, and stations in Richmond, Atlanta and Denver.

Crutchfield said that during the early days of his career which started in Spartanburg, S.C., "Things weren't structured then. It was a great time for experimenting."

Belly-Dancing Tour 'A Fiasco'

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Rosemarie Park went to Egypt to study with the world's greatest bellies and found hers is one.

"It was a fiasco," the shapely blonde said in an interview. "The purpose of the tour was to learn authentic Middle Eastern belly dancing, but the people who set up the tour didn't arrange any dance seminars so we never had a lesson anywhere."

"But it had been advertised that we would be in some of the clubs and that we would perform. So we did."

And that's how Mrs. Park, a church-going lady with a young son, found herself dancing on tables in a tent in the Sahara, surrounded by a cast that could have been out of a Rudolph Valentino film.

"They sat us down at a little bitty table and gave us dinner and a lot of wine," she said.

"Then after the show, the emcee reached down, grabbed my hand, pulled me onto the stage, and asked me to belly dance."

"Well, I was right near the edge of the stage, and someone pulled me onto one of the tables and they pulled me from table to table."

"It was quite an experience," she said, "surrounded by people in Arab dress with a headscarf and others in Western clothes. It was something I'd never done before and I may never again."

Mrs. Park, a public relations official for the Hamilton County Air Pollution Control Bureau, joined 33 other American belly dancers in September for the tour, promoted by a California agency which promised luxurious accommodations at a first-class hotel.

"It was a very nice hotel — we saw it later," Mrs. Park said. "But they put us in another hotel in downtown Cairo. We were on the ninth floor and the first eight floors were condemned."

"We should have known when they wouldn't let us use the stairs."

The American belly dancers, particularly the blue-eyed blondes like Mrs. Park, quickly found they were the object of much attention.

"Some of the girls were single, and I guess they enjoyed the advances," she said. "Some of the girls were married, and I guess some of them enjoyed the advances, too."

Despite its shortcomings, Mrs. Park said, the tour was a rare opportunity to watch authentic Middle Eastern belly dancers.

"We went over to study under some of the world's greatest bellies, and we found that some of those bellies had gotten really great," she said. "Great big."

Film Rights 'The Godfather'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's an invitation you can't refuse — NBC will telecast nine hours of "The Godfather" over four consecutive nights beginning Saturday, Nov. 12.

The two films have been re-assembled in chronological order, with additional film not shown in the theaters.

Negotiations are under way with a network for a miniseries.

Film Rights 'Dolores'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brut Productions has acquired the television film rights to Jacqueline Susann's best-selling novel "Dolores."

The novel is about who marries an Irishman who becomes president and is assassinated. The rights were acquired from Irving Mansfield, husband and manager of the late novelist.

Crutchfield said that during the early days of his career which started in Spartanburg, S.C., "Things weren't structured then. It was a great time for experimenting."

Big Insulation Market Ahead Classified

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Visions of a future tax break and memories of past winter heating bills have prompted millions of consumers to improve their home insulation. They have also caused concern about shortages and shady business practices.

President Carter's proposal to provide up to $400 in tax credits for homeowners who install insulation, storm windows and other energy-saving devices is still pending as Congress grapples with the administration's energy package. But the Department of Commerce says the use of insulation has increased already. The department said three million homes were reinsulated in the first half of 1977, up from only 750,000 homes in the same period a year earlier.

The department estimates there will be enough insulation this year for 1.9 million existing homes, 3.4 million existing homes and 300,000 mobile homes. But the ultimate market is much bigger. A National Bureau of Standards study in 1974—the latest year for which figures are available—showed that some 40 million, owner-occupied, single-family homes needed more insulation. Eighteen million of the homes had no insulation at all.

Manufacturers in the $700 million industry also warn of tight supplies, particularly of fiberglass. The Federal Trade Commission is investigating competition in the industry, and the Consumer Product Safety Commission has held hearings on safety aspects of insulation. Meanwhile, the two agencies have some advice for consumers who are considering hiring a contractor or installing their own insulation. There are three basic types of insulation:

—Mineral wool. This includes rock wool and fiberglass and accounts for 80 to 85 per cent of residential insulation. It can be blown in place or purchased in blankets or "batts" with a vapor barrier to prevent moisture inside a building from passing through walls and ceilings and condensing on the insulation.

—Plastic foam. Made of polystyrene, polyurethane or urea formaldehyde, it can be purchased in pre-formed sheets or can be injected into existing walls as a wet foam by a contractor.

—Cellulose fiber. Made of finely ground cellulose products such as recycled newspaper, this insulation can be poured or blown in place. The type of insulation you choose depends in part on where you are installing it.

Avoiding Strain on the Heart

People who have mild coronary heart problems and those with angina pectoris frequently write to me complaining that they are more uncomfortable during the cold weather. This is understandable. Angina pectoris is the cry of the heart muscle, begging for a little more rest. Walking against the wind in extremely cold weather will draw more blood to the lungs and sap a small amount of blood from the heart muscle. The radiating pain to the shoulder and the arm, so characteristic of angina pectoris, may result. The wintertime need not be more dangerous than other seasons. But it is a period to be respected because the combination of cold weather and unusual physical stress can impose an additional burden on the heart muscle.

There now are a number of excellent battery-heated masks which, when worn over the mouth and the nose, can reduce the strain caused by cold and wind. Eating heavy meals draws additional blood to the stomach. Here, too, the heart may be deprived of this extra flow of blood. This, then, can cause some increase in the frequency and severity of chest pains. Obviously, this is not a problem that is limited to the winter, but this is a good time to remind readers who suffer with angina pectoris that small meals at more frequent intervals impose less of a burden on the heart.

How can we protect our newborn infant from catching our colds and other people's colds?—Mr. and Mrs. H. P., III. Dear Mrs. P.: Of course, the ideal way is to remove yourself from the presence of the baby. Since this is not usually possible, a mask worn over the nose and mouth can be a moderate protection. Actually, I believe that many of these infections come from members of the family or friends who lean over the baby's crib and insist on cooling at them. It is impossible to keep droplets of saliva from attacking the child when they are "talked at" in this way. Frequently, members of the family may have no evidence of a cold and yet pass on germs that the infant can't handle. Passing an infant around from one person to another is another way of inviting infection. I don't believe that babies should be wrapped in germ-free absorbent cotton by any means, but sensible precautions will certainly cut down on colds.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Baby sitters should be carefully interviewed before trusting them with your greatest possession. Far too often, the pressure of an urgent need for a baby sitter keeps parents from doing the careful screening that is necessary. Baby sitters, too, should be carefully protected in the households where they are sitting. Parents of sitters should be discriminating, too.

TONIGHT IS HALLOWEEN, ISN'T IT, LINUS?

I'VE DECIDED I NEED SOMETHING TO BELIEVE IN SO I'M GOING TO SIT HERE WITH YOU, AND WAIT!

I WANT TO SEE THE "GREAT GRAPE" WHEN HE ARRIVES...

"PUMPKIN!" SORRY

TRICK OR TREAT.

ONLY A FOOL WOULD GO FOR THE TREAT.

KNOCK KNOCK

HELLO, TWINK... THIS IS NUBBIN.

OH, REALLY?

TWINK JUST SET A NEW RECORD—FROM BATHTUB TO PHONE IN 3 1/2 RINGS.

WHOEVER YOU ARE... BEAT IT!

AND DON'T EVER WALK INTO SOMEBODY'S PRIVATE BATHROOM AGAIN WITHOUT KNOCKING FIRST!!

THAT MEAN MAN UPSTAIRS SCOLDED ME

OKAY, DAGWOOD! WHAT'S THE PROBLEM?

BEETLE, WHY ARE YOU WALKING LIKE THAT?

IT'S RESTFUL. THIS IS THE WAY I LIE IN BED

IT TAKES ALL THE STRAIN OUT OF BEING UP AND AROUND... TRY IT, SARGE

HMM... I DUNNO

DEAR, MAY I ASK A FAVOR? MAYBE I'M OLD-FASHIONED, BUT...

ANYTHING, DIANA.

DAD'S NO LONGER ALIVE... WOULD YOU ASK MAMA... FOR MY HAND?

UH, I'D RATHER FACE A SABER-TOOTHED TIGER BARE HANDED.

THERE SHE IS... PLEASE... IT'D MAKE HER SO HAPPY...

OKAY...

THERE SHE IS... DIANA!

THAT'S NOTHING-- YOU SHOULD SEE HIM ON ARBOR DAY!

THAT'S NOTHING-- YOU SHOULD SEE HIM ON ARBOR DAY!

THAT'S NOTHING-- YOU SHOULD SEE HIM ON ARBOR DAY!

THAT'S NOTHING-- YOU SHOULD SEE HIM ON ARBOR DAY!

THAT'S NOTHING-- YOU SHOULD SEE HIM ON ARBOR DAY!

Five Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents claimed at least five lives in North Carolina, the State Highway Patrol reported. The deaths brought the year's total to 1,192, compared with 1,231 at this time last year.

The dead: —Raymond E. Arrington, 23, of Louisburg, killed Saturday when the car he was driving was involved in a head-on crash on a rural paved road east of Louisburg in Franklin County.

—Mart Eblen Pierce, 65, of Gastonia, struck down Saturday by a vehicle as he walked along a rural paved road one mile south of Gastonia in Gaston County.

—George W. Kirby, 77, of Hudson, killed Saturday in a head-on crash on U.S. 321, one half mile south of Lenoir in Caldwell County.

—Charles William Johnson Jr., 20, of Durham, killed Sunday when the car in which he was riding ran off U.S. 52 north of Wadesboro in Anson County and hit a bridge abutment.

—James Michael Hester, 24, of Lincolnton, killed Sunday when he was riding a motorcycle on a rural paved road one mile south of Gastonia in Gaston County.
