Erosion Is Continuing On North Carolina Beaches

By The Associated Press
Beach erosion was expected to continue today as northeasterly winds and high tides pounded the North Carolina coast, creating concern among some officials about the ability of beach areas to withstand tropical storms.

Large portions of beach in Pender, New Hanover and Onslow counties have been swept away. Damage to the shoreline and seawall at Carolina Beach are already in the millions of dollars and rising, Town Manager Sheila Davis said. "As of today, we've got no beach," she said. "It's been eroded by as much as 11 feet in some areas, but it's hard to say exactly how much from one day to the next because it's eroding so badly."

Mrs. Davis said several sections of the rock seawall along the north end of Carolina Beach have been washed away and the winds and waves were undermining bulkheads protecting

Unemployment Rate Up, But Not Much

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged up from 6.9 percent to 7 percent in October, showing little change for the seventh consecutive month, the government reported today.

Unemployment has fluctuated between 6.9 percent and 7.1 percent since April, and Labor Department analysts said this shows the economy is not growing fast enough to account for the steady increase in the labor force.

The stagnation in the jobless figures is expected to increase pressure on the Carter administration for a tax cut and new job-creating programs next year. Nearly 6.9 million Americans remained without jobs last month, about 10,000 more than in September.

Most of the increase was among black workers, whose jobless rate climbed from 13.1 to 13.9 percent in October. In contrast, the rate for white workers has remained at 6.1 percent for the past four months.

Special Tax Assessment Report Ordered For City

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council last night directed City Manager Jim Caldwell to prepare a detailed report covering the necessary steps involved in establishing a special tax assessment district in a portion of the downtown area.

The action followed a request by the Downtown Greenville Association Inc. for establishment of an assessment district in the area bounded by First, Reade, Reade Circle and Green Streets.

Caldwell said that the plan that would be considered by the Council would include a map of the proposed assessment district, a statement indicating that the district would meet certain standards, and a proposal for providing various services in the district.

The city manager explained that a public hearing will also be necessary before adoption of the special assessment. In considering the matter, the Council would not necessarily adopt the same district boundaries as proposed by the association.

Meet Monday

Pitt County Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Court House. Included on the board's agenda is: the consideration of appointments to the Pitt County Mental Health Area Board and appointments to the Pitt County Planning Board; consideration of solid waste franchise agreements and district assignments; consideration of recommendations for solving Department of Social Service problems; and consideration of appointment to the Pitt County Development Commission, the Greenville Joint Planning and Zoning Board, the Tar River Port Commission, and Pitt Technical Institute's Board of Trustees.

The board is also scheduled to consider resolutions endorsing the $230 million Clean Water bond proposal to be voted on Tuesday (the board passed a resolution endorsing the $300 million highway bond issue last month), and requesting the four-laning of N.C. 11-U.S. 13 from N.C. 903 to Bethel.

Commissioners will also consider authorizing the public to cut firewood from the cut-over woodland at the county landfill during normal working hours.

TRUCKS TICKETED

As a downtown merchant, I am concerned about the Police ticketing freight trucks making deliveries. With the traffic and parking situations already in shambles, it seems a little bit of understanding could be used in these situations, especially since the trucks are not blocking traffic. We are losing customers because of parking now, but if we can't even get our freight unloaded, we might as well close down.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said, "The city provides loading zones for delivery trucks in an effort to keep them from parking in 'No Parking' areas and interfering with the normal flow of traffic. If a loading zone is not convenient, deliveries should be made at the rear of the business, rather than have the truck park in a no parking area on busy downtown streets and block traffic."

He suggested that if deliveries must be made at the front of a business place where traffic might be blocked, the Police Department should be contacted so an officer might be assigned to direct traffic in the area. "I understand the concern of the merchants," Cannon said, "but we also have to consider the inconvenience caused to the general public by having freight trucks block busy downtown streets."

oceanfront homes. "It's been quite some time since we've had northeasterly winds for such an extended period," she said. "The winds seem to be dying down, but all we can do at this point is pray for better weather."

At Wrightsville Beach, Town Clerk Hugh Perry said some bulkheads had been lost because of poor foundations but were being repaired and no seaside homes were in serious danger, he said.

Testing Plans Advance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Education has taken action moving two new pupil testing programs a step closer to reality under mandates of the 1977 General Assembly.

The two programs require annual testing of the state's first, second, third, sixth and ninth graders, and competency testing of 11th graders to assure that they are qualified to graduate from high school and receive diplomas.

The state board Thursday authorized its chairman, Dr. David Bruton of Southern Pines, to sign a contract for implementing the annual testing program after the contract form and content have been approved by the Attorney General's office.

Unanimous On Arms Embargo

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U. N. Security Council, in a unanimous vote, today slapped a mandatory arms embargo on South Africa.

The vote in the 15-member council climaxed a two-week debate on South Africa's recent crackdown on black leaders and other opponents of the government policy of apartheid or race segregation.

Arrest Suspect In Area Thefts

The investigation of a series of breaking, entering and larceny incidents dating back to last December has led to the arrest by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department of a Rt. 2, Farmville man.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, officers arrested Richard Fred Wainwright, 21, and charged him with two counts of felonious larceny and three counts of breaking, entering and larceny.

Bond for Wainwright was set at $7,500 on the charges, the sheriff said, with a first appearance hearing scheduled for today in District Court here.

Sheriff Tyson said that the incidents involved: June 11 at residence of Lyman Tyson near Farmville with theft of $180 in personal property; Dec. 23, 1976 theft of $235 in currency from house of Joyce Strickland near Farmville;

Oct. 3 breaking and entering at grocery store owned by C. G. Phillips at Seven Pines resulting in theft of $950 in coins, $60 in currency, and $150 in food stamps;

Dec. 18, 1976 breaking and entering at the home of Glenn Strickland, Rt. 1, Box 184, Farmville resulting in the theft of a pistol, holster and belt valued at $200; and general tax levies or a debt service tax levy." The association asked that the Council consider a levy of 15 cents per hundred valuation on real and personal property to be assessed each year for ten years to commence with the fiscal year July 1978.

April 22 breaking, entering and larceny at Pitt Tobacco Co. office at King's Crossroads resulting in theft of $1,500 in currency.

In proposing the special assessment, the association suggested that revenues could be used to purchase three parcels of real estate: Blount-Harvey parking lot at the corner of Fourth and Washington Streets; new Sixth Street parking lot, Evans to Washington Streets; and the Fifth Street temporary parking lot, Evans Street to the Humber property line.

The Council tabled action on a request by H. G. Stocks for rezoning, from RA-20 and Highway Commercial to Highway Commercial and R-15, of some 33 acres on the north side of the 264 Bypass West.

The motion to table the matter, offered by Council member Mildred McGrath, followed a public hearing and stipulated that the matter will be voted on by the present board some time prior to the swearing in of the new City Council in December.

Mrs. McGrath said that it was "important that this Council should act" on the Stocks request since the matter had been before the board for some time.

The Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting in September, voted five to four to recommend that the Council disapprove the rezoning request.

Mayor Percy Cox recommended that no action be taken on the request last night and he suggested that the matter could be brought up at a call session or taken up at the December meeting.

During a public hearing, Kenneth Woodcock of 101

Laughinghouse Drive offered a "vote of opposition" to the request and asked on behalf of property owners who signed a petition that the property remain zoned as it is now.

Attorney Fred Mattox, representing the Stocks, pointed out that the property is already zoned commercial on the front and in seeking an additional 400 feet of commercial depth, the property owners would not be forced to develop on the highway.

Chap Tucker, developer, noted that the additional commercial zoning was requested in order to internalize the development with limited access points on the highway.

In other business, approval was given following a public hearing to a request by White Concrete Co. and H. L. Roberts for rezoning, from R-6 to Industrial, of approximately 21 acres on the south side of Mumford Road east of Meadowbrook.

The property will be used for a mining operation for the extraction of sand, according to the petitioners.

A request by the Pitt County Fair Association for rezoning, from Unoffensive Industry and R6-Mobile Home to Highway Commercial, of the fairgrounds property at the intersection of US 13-NC 11 and Airport Road was also approved. Some 14 acres was involved in the request.

Trial Run For New Pumper

the cab to fireman Jack Gargis, seated. According to Smith the new pumper will replace a 1956 model truck now stationed at the Gardner Fire Station. The new truck has a 500 gallon reserve tank with a 1000 gal. ton per minute pump and was manufactured by the Mack Truck Corp., for a cost of $78,762. Smith also indicated that this truck was built to the specifications of the city, and has automatic transmission. (Reflector Photos by Tommy Forrest)

Reviews School Safety Steps And Regulations

James Allen, principal of North Pitt High School addressed the Pitt County Safety Council at its monthly meeting held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Thursday at noon.

Principal Allen presented an in-depth review of safety as it relates to the secondary school. He spoke of precautionary rules and regulations, accident possibilities, and safety problems as they relate to North Pitt High School and other North Carolina schools. He also pointed out the strengths of a composite safety program.

"Regulations, required by the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) and fire laws have become quite a burden for schools," said Allen.

"We conform 100 percent to the fire laws, however, OSHA is just moving into the schools and we are working on those regulations steadily," he added.

Accidents which can occur in the classrooms, on the playgrounds, and in the halls of schools were also discussed. School bus safety and student-driven automobiles are two major safety problems singled out by Allen.

Approximately 20 percent of the North Pitt High School student body drives to school. Allen said this brings about safety problems in the parking lots at the end of the day.

Student attitudes which bring about better conformity to safety rules and regulations play a tremendous part in compiling a good safety record, according to Allen.

Allen closed his presentation by describing the "perplexing safety problem" involving liability when students take unauthorized leave from school during the day, and the inadequate budget that is provided for all aspects of safety.

Cigarette Sales In N.C. Had A Decline

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A drop of 5.4 percent in cigarette sales in North Carolina in the year ending June 30 had state officials puzzled today.

The drop of 68 million packs, which is continuing this fiscal year, cost the state about $1.2 million in lost revenue.

State tax and law enforcement officials were puzzled because cigarette sales increased 1 percent nationally and North Carolina, with the nation's lowest cigarette tax would be expected to show an increase, too.

State tax officials don't think North Carolinians are smoking less, and they attribute part of the drop to federal and state campaigns aimed at halting activities of illegal cigarette mail-order operations and smugglers.

Revenue officials say the U.S. Postal Service, the Internal Revenue Service and law enforcement officials in high-tax states have been successful in curbing illegal sales to some extent.

"That would certainly be an explanation, that other states are concentrating more on enforcing their cigarette tax laws, for which I wouldn't blame them," said Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch.

Don R. Shirley, assistant director of the License and Excise Tax Division, cited an IRS crackdown, called operation Powder Puff, against mail order operators as a possible factor.

Shirley and H.C. Stansbury, director of the Tax Research Division, agreed that the Postal Service's efforts to prosecute cigarette mail-order operators for mail fraud had reduced sales.

However, a postal inspector observed that "We were good, but we weren't that good."

Officers Chosen By Farm Bureau

The Pitt County Farm Bureau elected the following officers at their annual meeting last night — President David H. Smith of Ayden, First Vice President Jimmy Galloway of Greenville, Second Vice President Robert Halstead Sr. of Swift Creek, Secretary Mrs. Mamie Smith of Ayden, Women's Committee Chairman Mrs. Lois Briley of Pactolus, and Chairman Young Farmer Rancher Committee John C. Radford of Pactolus.

Resolutions concerning Poultry, Livestock, Dairy, Peanuts, Field Crops, and Tobacco were passed.

Plans were made to maintain a refreshment booth at the Tobacco Trade Fair in Greenville on Nov. 15-17.

The following delegates were elected to attend the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation Annual Convention in Greensboro, Dec. 4-7 — Cecil Boyd, Dale McLawhorn, Bruce Garris, David H. Smith.

Ruel Dilda, D.R. House, Grimes Lewis, Charles Hart, J.C. Galloway, Earl Sermons, Atlas Wooten, W.A. Allen, Wilbur L.

Worthington, Mrs. Mamie Smith, Mrs. Lucille Dilda, and Ray Garris.

The alternates are John C. Radford, Gene Paramore, and Robert Halstead Sr.

Band Event On Saturday

The High School Band Music and Marching Competition, cancelled last Saturday due to inclement weather, has been rescheduled to begin at 4 p. m. tomorrow, Saturday, November 5.

George Naff, Director of the ECU Marching Band and coordinator of the competition, says the event is expected to last until about 9:30 or 10 p.m. tomorrow night.

A total of 27 high school bands from North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland will be competing for several awards in music performance and in marching.

Judges are drawn from the ECU School of Music, the ECU band staff, and musicians from Tennessee and Alabama.

The competition will be held at Ficklen Stadium. There is no admission fee, however donations to help defray expenses of the program will be welcomed.

Plan Discussion Panel Saturday

A discussion panel will be held at Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church, tomorrow at 7:30 p.m., conducted by the pastor Elder J. L. Wilson and Elder Jessie Williams of Goldsboro. The public is invited to attend and ask questions and share ideas.

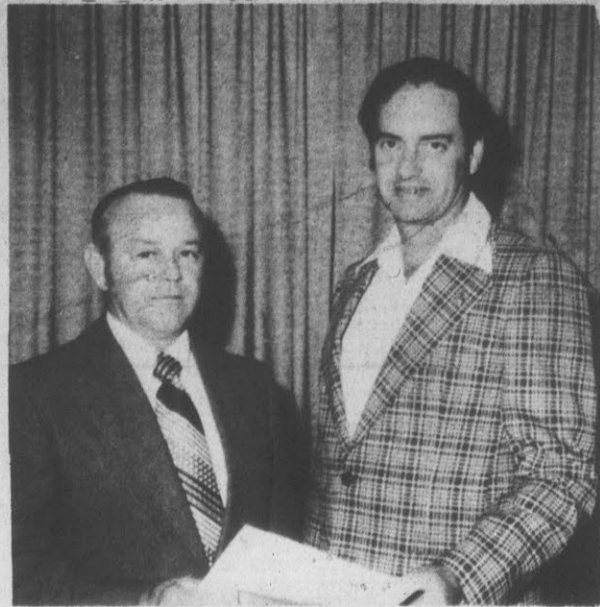

At Seminar On Death, Dying

ECU News Bureau Dr. James LeRoy Smith, associate professor of philosophy at East Carolina University, attended a seminar in the ethics of death and dying recently at College Park, Md.

The seminar was sponsored by the National Science Foundation and was directed by Prof. Thomas Beauchamp, member of the Georgetown University philosophy faculty and the Kennedy Institute for Study in Bioethics.

Auto's New Role: Meal Preparation

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Would you believe the automobile as a meal preparation appliance?

That's what a supermarket industry magazine calls cars because they carry people to places where other hands "will do the marketing, the cooking, the serving and the cleaning up."

Robert Dietrich writes in two recent issues of "Progressive Grocer" that:

"Over a one-week period, the average American shows the following predisposition to belly-up to a dining table (or counter) other than his own: "Two-thirds eat at least one meal out (73 percent of men compared to 63 percent of women.)

"A substantial one-fifth eat out five or more times." Dietrich found 65 per cent eating in regular restaurants, 55 percent in fast-food outlets, 13 percent at their places of work and 12 percent at other, unspecified places.

His statistics are from an exclusive nationwide survey of more than 6,500 men and women. It was made by Trendex in cooperation with the magazine.

Those who see fast-food as a major threat to their business are only partly right, the study showed.

"... for every two meals eaten out at a fast-food outlet, three are claimed by regular restaurants.

"The real alternative to eating at home will, increasingly, be sit-down restaurants," the study indicated.

The main reasons: household income and education. People below the $20,000 a year level eat fewer than three meals a week away from home. Even for them, restaurant meals are about 30 per cent more frequent than the fast-food variety.

Above that level, "the taste for glass, silver and linen instead of paper, plastic and Formica holds sway."

As income rises, the number of weekly meals out passes four, and fast-food operators' share of the market drops to 25 percent.

Diners' out start to kick the burger habit at about 25 years of age, but their loyalty to other purveyors of food away from home remains stably close to 1.3 meals a week over several decades.

Restaurant meals have their greatest appeal to 45-to 54-year-olds, who have the money to support the habit.

The drop-off in meals eaten out occurs after that age not so much from choice as from limited income, the survey suggests; eating often in all types of restaurants decreases after 54.

Other factors that influence eating out are length of residence in a community and people's marital status.

Not surprisingly, singles eat out more often than anyone else: 4.4 meals per week. Divorced and separated persons are second, with 3.5 meals a week. Married couples take 2.4 meals away from home per week and the widowed, 1.6.

Thinks She's In Love With Doctor

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Do doctors ever fall in love with their patients? I've been going to a certain doctor for some time now, and from the first time I saw him something happened inside me. Now the feeling is so strong I can't think of anything but him.

I can't come right out and tell him how I feel about him.

but it must show when I look at him. I hope he reads your column, then he might notice me. Right now I'm just another patient. Please tell me what to do.

IN LOVE

DEAR ABBY: Doctors have been known to fall in love with their patients, but not nearly as often as patients fall in love with their doctors. Your feelings are probably a combination of admiration, respect, gratitude, hero worship and fantasy—not love.

Don't DO anything, except try to control the way you look at him. Fantasies are fun and harmless—but you have to live in the real world, so don't get your hopes up, dear.

DEAR ABBY: I can't get that letter signed PIECES out of my mind. I've been there, so I know what it's like to love someone who has stopped loving you.

You said, "Don't permit yourself to think of the lost love." On the face of it, that appears to be sound advice, but suppressing such feelings will often make the grief much worse later on, when the thoughts catch up and overwhelm the conscious suppression.

The only way to adjust to such a loss is to finally accept the lost relationship as a reality, and then move on to other things that make life beautiful and worth living.

THREE YEARS LATER

DEAR THREE: I advise those whose love is not returned to quit dwelling on the lost relationship, but it goes without saying that first one must accept the fact that it's over.

DEAR ABBY: My employer is planning a dinner party for the men in our company and wants to include their wives. Two of the men are not married. One is a swinger who dates several different women. The other is a young man with a live-in girlfriend.

My employer feels that only legitimate wives should be invited, thus excluding the swinger's date and the live-in girlfriend. Would that be proper?

INQUIRING

DEAR INQUIRING: No. If wives are to be included, the single men should be invited to bring "a friend."

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING BY MAIL?

Shopping by mail can be fun and is a convenient way to do business. If the weather is cold and messy; if you don't have transportation; if you need a babysitter to shop without the kids; if you're physically disabled or just plain tired, consider the advantages of ordering what you need from a sales catalogue. For unassisted Christmas shopping, it can be a real treat, and may save time and money.

To save some headaches and disappointment, you should know about your legal rights in ordering merchandise. The Federal Trade Commission says you have a right to know when you can expect your merchandise to be shipped.

If an ad or brochure says that the manufacturer will "rush" your order to you in less than a week, for example, the manufacturer must ship it to you within that time.

If no date is stated by the seller, you have the right to have your merchandise shipped to you within 30 days.

If the seller does not ship your merchandise within the stated time, or within 30 days, you have the right to cancel your order.

If the seller can't ship the merchandise to you in the stated time or within 30 days, he must give you the chance to cancel your order and get all your money back.

The seller must notify you of a delay and give you a free means to reply.

If the shipping delay is 30 days or less, you have the right to cancel the order and get your money back, to agree to the new shipping date or not to answer. If you don't answer, the seller can assume you agree to the shipping delay.

If the shipping delay is more than 30 days, you must give your express consent to the delay. Otherwise, the seller must return your money at the end of the first 30 days of the delay.

If you cancel your order, the seller must mail your refund to you within 7 business days after you cancel your purchase. Where there is a credit sale, the seller has one billing cycle to "adjust" your account.

If you have a problem, write to the seller directly. If this does not bring results within a reasonable period of time, write the details in a letter, along with a copy of the advertisement for the merchandise, a copy of your check and other pertinent information to: Director, Bureau of Consumer Protection (MO-P), Federal Trade Commission, Washington, DC 20580. Prepared by Justine Rozier, Specialist in Family Resource Management, N.C. State University, Raleigh, NC.

Fall Bazaar Set For Saturday

The Lutheran Church Women of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church will hold a fall bazaar on the church lawn Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Items for fall and for Christmas giving will be offered as well as baked goods, crocheted items, doll clothes, plants, wooden bird houses and a 25 cents table. Sandwiches and drinks will be available.

In case of rain, the bazaar will be held inside the church building. The church is located at 1800 S. Elm St.

Mrs. Judy Davis and Dr. Nancy Mayberry are directing the bazaar.

Women's Club Announces Plans for Craft Show

St. Peter's Women's Club held its November meeting Wednesday in the school hall. The group will hold its first annual craft show Saturday, Nov. 19.

The show will be held from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the school hall. Women of the Parish will be selling handmade items, baked goods and other kitchen crafts. The proceeds will go into St. Peter's building fund.

The group voted to pay for the painting of the church as one of its projects this year. Plans were discussed concerning a spaghetti-casino night to be held in January and the club's annual card party set for February.

Unwrapped gifts were brought to be meeting and will be given to the children and adults at Caswell Center, Kinston.

A Christmas social will be held at the December meeting and all women of the Parish will be invited to attend.

Reception Invitation

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Jodie G. Arnold invite friends and relatives to a 50th wedding anniversary reception Sunday at 3 p.m. at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 901 N. Bonner St., Washington.

A $230,000,000 Clean Water bond issue will be on the ballots that are distributed at the polling places Tuesday.

The funds, if approved by the voters, will provide state assistance to municipalities for waste water treatment and water supply facilities.

It is a continuation of a program already underway in our state, one that has provided millions of dollars in grants to local governments for construction of water facilities.

The need for the facilities is obvious. One has only to visit more industrialized areas to see what can happen if raw sewage is continually dumped into the water ways.

While such pollution has occurred in some parts of North Carolina we are fortunate that our rivers and streams are still relatively clean.

We have got to keep it that way and the Clean Water bond issue is a small price to pay to keep our streams, rivers and coastal waterway free of pollution.

This is particularly important here in the coastal areas. Vast expanses of coastal water provide recreation and beauty for all our citizens. We must not see all this ruined.

We heartily approve of a favorable vote for the Clean Water bonds on Tuesday.

Justice Dept. Had To Walk Thin Line

The U. S. Justice Department has had to walk a thin line in approving a bargained plea for former CIA Director Richard Helms.

Helms offered a plea of no contest to misdemeanor charges of failing to testify "fully, completely and accurately before a Senate committee. The department recommended a suspended sentence.

Part of the reason for the agreement, according to Attorney Gen. Griffin Bell, was the problem of secret information coming out during a trial, causing legal and national complications.

It was a difficult situation, but perhaps the best decision was made in respect to the national interest.

Young Inmates' Problems

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH — Almost all of the young prisoners in North Carolina's prison system are mentally, emotionally, or physically handicapped.

A survey of youthful offenders just completed shows that 75 per cent of the population between ages 17 and 21 are categorized as handicapped, needing special psychological counseling and education services.

That figure is made even more disconcerting by the fact that all of the youthful offenders were included in the statistics. When only those who are still in school are counted — leaving off those who have graduated from high school — more than 95 per cent are classified as having special educational needs.

Richard Urbanik, the chief of program services for the prisons division of the State Department of Corrections, says this dilemma will only grow worse as time goes by.

Younger

"The average age of the prison population is falling dramatically. Where five years ago the average age was 32, that has dropped now to 25," says Urbanik.

The inmates are entering the system younger and remaining longer.

Law enforcement crackdowns on robberies and break-in better prosecution, and stiffer sentences are seen by Urbanik as the chief causes of a "blossoming of the 17-18-19-20 year olds in prison."

In just two year's time, he noted, there has been a 30 per cent increase in numbers of 17-year-olds committed to prison.

The present population of youthful offenders is approximately 4,000 throughout the system, says Urbanik, but trends cause officials to project that in just another three years, the total will reach 7,000. Worse yet the population is made up of more felons than in the past. Recent law changes are causing those convicted of less serious crimes to all but disappear from the prison system, leaving only the "hard-core" cases in the system.

While taking a long look at the educational problems within the prisons, it was found that even though records indicated a higher level of learning, in practice, the inmates are far below average.

"The average claimed to have a tenth grade education," says Urbanik, "but tested to a performance at the fifth grade grade level."

A combination of these circumstances prompts prison officials to consider asking the General Assembly to create a statewide school district of the prison system. The state now has 145 local school districts comprised chiefly of city or county units.

School District
Setting up the prison system as a legal school district would allow special access to both state and federal funding sources, and cause the State Department to Public Instruction to take a stronger hand in providing education within the prisons.

Talking with the Legislative Commission on

NOBLITT

Children With Special Needs recently, Urbanik noted that the condition of the inmates requires special efforts in the schools. He also reported that while the prisons are attempting to meet all of the requirements of federal and state laws regarding the rights of school-age youngsters to a "free and appropriate" education, this is causing some unique problems behind the walls.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Gloom In Hussein's Land

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AMMAN, Jordan — The temptation for Israel "to use its military might while it is at its peak" is the most dangerous political fact in the world today and one that directly threatens President Carter's peace efforts.

King Hussein, now in his 25th year on the throne of Jordan, couples that warning with another conclusion that cuts at the heart of American policy toward Israel since its conquests 10 years ago in the Six-Day War.

"It has been said that a strong Israel is a moderate Israel," the King told us during an exclusive interview in his family palace called El-Hashemia. "I am afraid it is now clear that that is not true."

Hussein expressed the usual hope that Mr. Carter's plan to reconvene the Geneva conference will succeed and praised Mr. Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance for the most forthright peace efforts ever made by an American administration. But his inner mood was melancholy, not optimistic. The reason is found in his somber view about Israel's real intentions, and its ability, thanks to the billion-dollar-a-year military pipeline from the U.S., to make good those intentions.

"I firmly believe that they are not interested in any withdrawal from the occupied territories, particularly the West Bank and Gaza," he said. "They have in the back of their minds a base in all of Palestine, after 2,000 years, and I don't think they will part from it even for true peace."

The King had just sent the President a request for clarifications and modifications in the U.S.-Israel working paper on the procedural arrangements for Geneva. Clearly, the task for coordinating Syria, Egypt and Jordan on a common Arab position is proving to be no picnic.

For example, on the central question of PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) attendance at Geneva — absolutely ruled out by Israel — Jordan is not at all interested in making a fight. Since the PLO has been designated by the Arab world as "sole representative" of the Palestinians on the West Bank (in clear view across the river from El-Hashemia Palace) Jordan theoretically is not even a direct party for the Geneva talks about Israel's withdrawal.

But the King was vague about this. The PLO issue, he told us, is "rather important" and it would be "of great benefit" to have the PLO at Geneva.

The real question, he said, is not so much the PLO (described by one high government official here as the rotten apple in the Geneva barrel). Rather, it is to let the West Bank Palestinians themselves decide their future — "the people of Palestine as such, without pressure from any one, should exercise the right of self-determination under international auspices."

Hussein's deepest worry is neither the PLO nor the West Bank but what he sees as Israel's real game in the pre-Geneva jostling: "to out-manuever the Arabs and remove any blame from themselves for lack of progress" in getting to Geneva or in a breakdown of diplomacy thereafter.

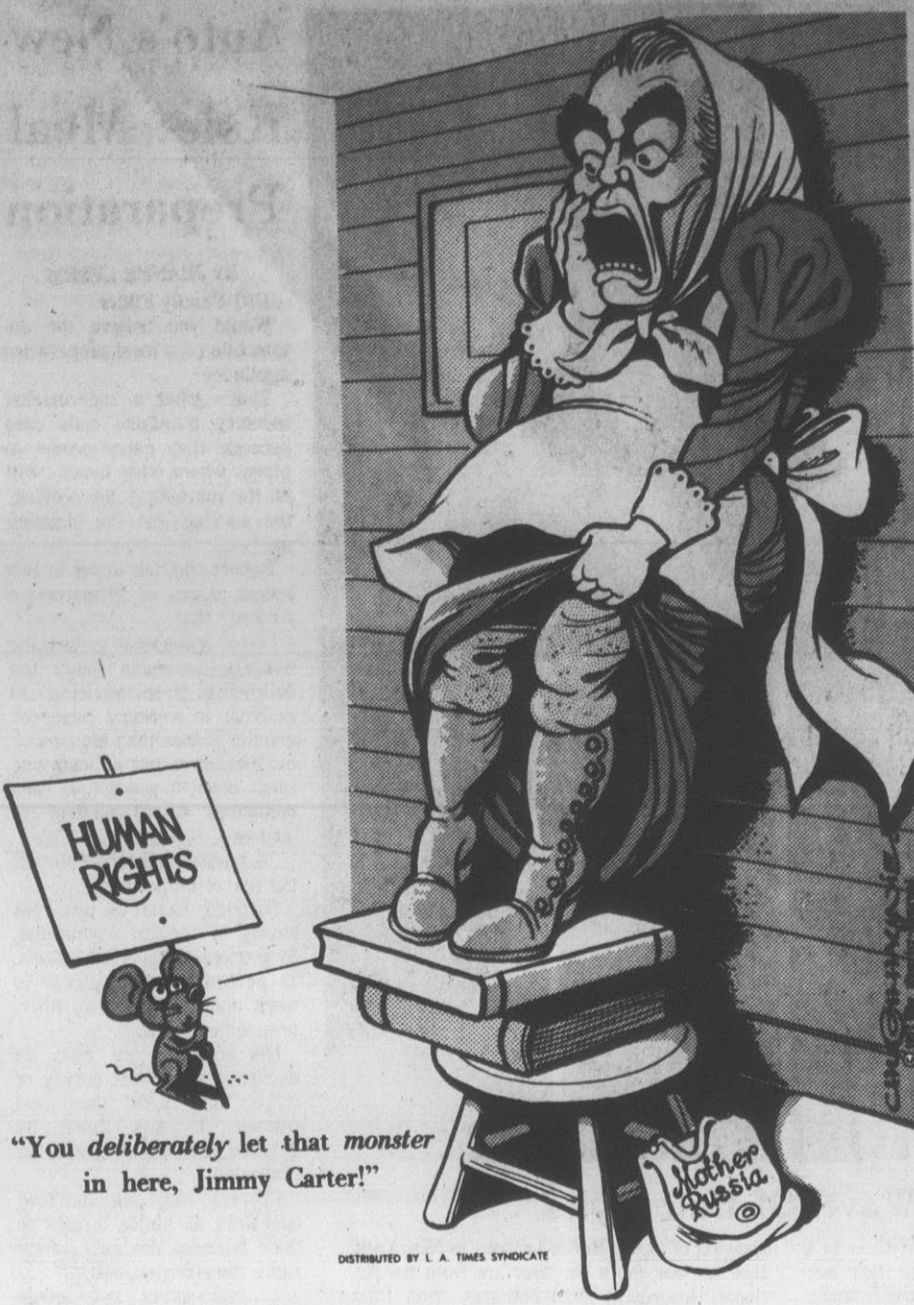

Thus, he implied, Jordan, Egypt and Syria should at all costs agree to go to Geneva and not let Israel's procedural demands deflect them. Otherwise, "Israel may get off the hook" and blame the Arabs for a breakdown and then, on any one of a multitude of manufactured pretexts, bring into play its immense military power.

However it may appear in the West, this view of a militaristic Israel capable of brazen exploitation of its U.S.-supplied power is today one of the underlying realities in the Arab world — a reality some students of Mideast politics have warned about for years.

Hussein's special worry about the probability of yet another Israeli military attack ("the shadow of the unknown hanging over us") is Jordan's vulnerability as an easy avenue to Syria and Iraq.

"Jordan lies between Israel and major sources of Arab energy," he told us. His nightmare, which American politicians have until recently dismissed as Arab paranoia, is yet another failure of peace efforts — with the Americans blaming the Arabs, followed by a lightning Israeli assault to destroy the Arabs' war-making capability. As the soft underbelly of the Arab world east of the Jordan river, Jordan, in the eyes of the King, could not be spared.

"You deliberately let that monster in here, Jimmy Carter!"

That Little Black Box

WASHINGTON — The new sport in the United States is television ratings.

Every week the newspapers print the box scores concerning what network had the biggest share of the viewing audience. Since there are only three networks, the game gets pretty boring. The only reason people keep watching it is that so many executives' lives are at stake.

In football there are enough teams so that if you come in first, second or third it is not the end of the world. But in television being first is everything, coming in second is embarrassing, and ending up third is a mortal sin.

The fact that all three networks are making zillions of dollars has no effect on their standings. This fall ABC is No. 1, NBC is No. 2 and CBS is No. 3. Because of this, heads are rolling at NBC and CBS. Grown men in Brooks Brothers suits are throwing themselves in front of commuter trains. Others, who used to travel around the country in private company jets, are now taking the bus to their new homes in the South Bronx.

My wife, who doesn't know how the game is played, thinks by switching her dial she can save a network executive's life.

The other night we were watching a TV show on ABC and she said, "Why don't we switch to CBS?"

"What for?" I asked. "They need the business," she replied. "I just read they were No. 3 in the ratings."

"We can't help them by switching the dial," I told her.

"Why not?" she wanted to know.

"Because we don't have a black box. You see, the ratings hinge on 1,200 homes. Mr. Nielsen puts a black box in each one of them, and then on the basis of that he knows how many people in the United States are tuned in to any particular show."

"But suppose we're not watching the same show as the person who has a black box?"

"That's not Mr. Nielsen's problem. He has to assume that we are watching the same program as the person with the black box. That's how the ratings are made."

"Well, why don't we get a black box and help out CBS and NBC? I don't see why ABC always has to be first."

"You can't get a black box just by asking for it. Mr. Nielsen decides who gets the black boxes and who doesn't. If everyone had a black box Nielsen would never be able to tally the results. He doesn't have the staff to check 100 million black boxes. In fact, he'd go broke installing them."

"I wonder who has our black box?" my wife asked.

"What do you mean, who has our black box?"

"Well, somewhere out there in America someone has a black box, and Nielsen assumes whatever he or she is watching we're watching, too. If we could find out who the person is we could call her and tell her what network we were tuned into just in case she was viewing something else."

Water Is For A Bed

By DAVID TOMLIN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — They make you seask. They crash through ceilings. They'll leak all over your parquet floors. These are the sinister "waterbed myths" John Farnum must fight.

So today on the 10th anniversary of "the birth of the waterbed industry as we know it," Farnum steps forward to reassure and enlighten an ignorant public.

Farnum is not entirely disinterested. He is owner and manager of North Carolina Waterbeds in Raleigh, whose business has quadrupled in the six years since it opened, partly because Farnum knows how to kill myths.

"We have a 30-night sleep warranty," Farnum says. "You know where these myths come from? It's the jokes on TV. You know, a guy's waterbed springs a leak and his apartment is flooded. Very funny, but not true. It's like those Polish jokes. They're funny too, if you're not Polish."

Jokes and myths aside, waterbeds have slowly become big news in the furniture business. Farnum says national sales so far this year have totaled $238 million, against only $175 million last year.

Major articles on the phenomenon have appeared in trade publications like Furniture Today, Home Furnishings Daily and Professional Furniture Merchant, and Farnum says waterbeds were the talk of last month's Southern Furniture Mart.

"Every year has been a growth year," says Farnum, who estimates he has placed between 4,000 and 5,000 waterbeds in North Carolina homes. The state total, he says, is rapidly approaching 100,000 and nearly 3 million American families know the wobbly joys of waterbedding.

Waterbeds, says Farnum, have long been admired by hospitals for their therapeutic qualities, but it was only 10 years ago today that California designer Charles Hall converted the notion into a consumer product.

Waterbeds quickly became a fad and counterculture accessory, and Farnum says that at first he was selling mainly to students and other young people interested in novelty and cheap bedding.

40 Years Ago Today

November 4, 1937

A committee of five Greenville business men was appointed by Mayor M. K. Blount to cooperate in conducting the Federal unemployment census being conducted through the facilities of the post office.

The committee was composed of W. W. Lee, insurance executive; L. B. Garriss, lumber dealer; K. T. Futrell, county welfare officer; D. J. Whitchard, Jr., publisher; and A. E. Hobgood, tobacconist.

Mayor Blount, in announcing the committee, stressed the importance of a true and accurate census for this section.

The American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis' rebel CIO agreed to discuss the question of which industries should have industrial unions.

This question involved the basic difference between the warring labor factions. Observers interpreted the decision to discuss the issue as one of the few indications so far that the conference might heal the breach in labor's ranks.

Other Editors Say Cruel, Inhuman?

(Washington Daily News)
We hear so much talk about the death penalty representing cruel and inhuman punishment that we tend to overlook some other punishments that doom inmates for life.

A judge recently was quoted as saying that a defendant sent to prison for life and with the stipulation that he could never be pardoned or paroled faced a fate far worse and far more cruel and inhuman than does a prisoner who is facing the gas chamber.

Just how cruel and inhuman is a "hopeless" sentence for a fellow still in his young years, still vibrant with youth, and still capable of rehabilitation? We cannot give a full answer to the question, but again, if the crime is bad enough to warrant death, then as we evaluate justice, the death penalty is not too severe to require of a person who forfeits his right to live.

But if a person in a given state cannot be sent to his death for some terrible crime, but is sentenced to a life of servitude behind bars and with no hope for release, we are inclined to feel that such a sentence is about as severe as death itself. If this writer faced such a choice, death or life in prison with no hope, it indeed might be a difficult choice.

But let us seek to be as practical as possible. There are human beings who commit terrible crimes and who can never be rehabilitated. They will always be a danger to decent society. They must remain in custody because to release them will be a slap at law abiding people. In these cases we must agree that the ends of justice are best met by keeping defendants of this type behind bars the rest of their lives. They should never be released, but so often they are. But they are soon back in prison for another crime.

It is not cruel and inhuman punishment, as we see it, to keep someone in prison who represents a constant danger to living and decent society. It would be cruel and inhuman toward that decent society to parole such a prisoner and thus allow him to go free to endanger the lives and property of law abiding citizens.

As we in America and in our own state and community continue the search for justice, we realize more and more the utter impossibility of finding any perfect solution.

Under The Banner Of Reagan

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican fund raisers are wading into the Panama Canal issue under the banner of Ronald Reagan, asking for GOP campaign contributions to defeat President Carter's treaty.

"I'm convinced the only way to defeat the Carter negotiated treaty is to conduct a full-fledged campaign to alert citizens to the dangers Republicans see in this treaty," Reagan said in a mass-mailed letter sent out by the Republican National Committee.

That overlooks the fact that Gerald R. Ford would have negotiated the treaty in a Republican White House if he'd managed to win the election.

It also says something about the clout of the titular leader in either political party, which usually peaks at negligible. Ford signed a fund-raising letter for the Republican National Committee five weeks ago, and it is drawing big money, about $1 million, according to a GOP spokesman.

That mailing went out together with a questionnaire on major issues. It can hardly have been an accident that the survey didn't mention the canal. There's more political money to be had in opposing the treaty than in supporting it.

"Believe me, without your support, the canal is as good as gone," Reagan said in his letter, mailed to about 400,000 prospective donors.

Along with the request for Republican contributions, the Reagan letter asks for signatures on petitions opposing the canal treaty.

While conservative organizations have joined in coalition against the treaty, Reagan generally prefers to work alone these days. He has his own organization, Citizens for the Republic, to promote his conservative cause — and his political future.

But the Republican National Committee mailing beats anything he could do solo. The committee, always conservative and never sold on Ford's canal policy, voted Sept. 30 to denounce the treaty Carter signed.

The Reagan letter makes the canal a Republican issue far more forcefully than did the predictable committee resolution.

"I've read this treaty carefully from cover to cover," Reagan writes. "And in my honest opinion, it's a line by line blueprint for potential disaster for our country."

Having said that, and having asked for money to defeat Democrats next year, Reagan goes on to say that "this isn't a partisan issue" (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

SPiritual FORCES IN HISTORY

Arnold Toynbee, in his epoch-making book, "A Study of History," lays down the proposition — as the result of a lifetime of research — that civilizations disintegrate because of a deficiency in the spiritual life of a nation. By the same token, those nations which have made a spiritual emphasis and which have been particularly diligent as regards social responsibilities, improve and press on to new heights of creative achievement. The first sign of decadence in the life of a nation is the deterioration of absence of these necessary spiritual factors.

If a willingness on the part of citizens to sacrifice makes a nation great, it is selfishness and love has political as well as moral connotations, then we might well make a sober re-evaluation of the current policies and trends in the United States.

Most theories of history have been couched in economic, social, and political terms. It is refreshing to see a great historian like Toynbee making a spiritual emphasis.

GRIFTON — Several Grifton accomplishments were discussed last week when judges for the Coastal Plain Development Association community development contest visited the town.

Twenty-eight citizens took part in the reports given to the judges, by answering questions, showing color slides and compiling a scrapbook of Grifton progress during the past year.

The reports and slides were presented at the Health Clinic wing of the Grifton Civic Center, and a tour of the Art Center and Historical Museum were included in the report to the judges.

Grifton is competing with other villages and small towns in a 10-county area for the most progress in community development and progress. Announcement of the winners will be made at a banquet later this month.

In each of the last nine contests Grifton has entered, the town has won either first or second place.

City Council Endorses Bond Issue And Amendment No. 4

The City Council recently adopted a resolution pledging the support of the city for the upcoming $230 million Clean Water Bond referendum and Constitutional Amendment No. 4.

In the resolution, the Council also urged all Greenville citizens to vote for the bond issue and amendment in next week's balloting. The city pointed out that the water bonds, if approved, will aid municipalities, counties, sanitary districts and other public agencies in obtaining additional money to combat water pollution, by allowing the state to provide grants up to 25 percent of the cost of improving existing water supply and water pollution control systems and to construct new ones.

Unless the bond program is approved, it was explained, local governments will have to provide, from local revenues alone, the entire non-federal share of the costs of the improvements or new construction.

According to the city, the constitutional amendment, if approved by the voters, would enable municipalities such as Greenville that own their own electric systems to own percentages of electric generating and transmission facilities jointly with rural electric cooperatives and private power companies.

It was explained that 72 municipalities in North Carolina own their own electric systems and serve more than one million citizens. The 72 cities are now authorized to own entire electric generating plants. Amendment No. 4 would permit the cities to own less than an entire plant, and to do so in plants where electric membership cooperatives or power companies also own percentages.

In endorsing the amendment, the city contended that No. 4 would offer opportunities for improved coordination among utilities, less duplication of costly facilities, and smaller increases in future electric costs by putting all segments of the state's utilities to work.

If the municipalities and the cooperatives own their share of generating facilities, it was mentioned, their portion of the plants would not be reflected in the power companies' retail rates. This would help hold down the average cost of financing by the companies, a major factor in rate increases, the city asserted.

Taxes Boost Cigarette Smuggling In Midwest

By The Associated Press. Increased cigarette taxes have led to a increased smuggling activity in the Midwest with taxpayers in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois included in the list of those hurt by the problem.

Usually, the operation consists of purchasing a large quantity of cigarettes from a low-tax state, such as North Carolina with a two-cent tax or Kentucky with three cents, and then smuggling them into a high-tax state where they are distributed and sold.

Reg Ankrom, Illinois Department of Revenue information officer, said the profit of one truckload of cigarettes from North Carolina to Chicago is estimated at $80,000. He estimates his state loses between $10 and $26 million per year due to the smuggling.

Minnesota, Ohio and Michigan lose an estimated $75 million a year between them, according to officials from that state.

The problem has become more serious in Indiana since the state cigarette tax was increased from six cents to 10.5 cents a pack July 1.

Howard Anderson, alcohol, tobacco and special taxes director in Minnesota, said a truckload of cigarettes from Kentucky to his state represents a profit of $54,000 for the smuggler with the state losing more than $100,000.

Anderson said Minnesota loses about $12.2 million a year from cigarette smuggling.

The situation is worse in Ohio, said Leon Deming, the state sale and excise tax administrator. Deming said he has received reports indicating Ohio loses between $22 million and $28 million a year in cigarette taxes.

Tracking down contraband cigarettes can be as difficult as finding the proverbial needle in a haystack, state authorities say.

In Indianapolis, the Interstate Revenue Research Center is battling the problem. George Steward, the center's said, "It is not a losing battle unless you throw up your hands in disgust and quit."

The Indianapolis office is the nation's only federally funded office dealing with the problem. It opened in April 1975 after a series of conferences by officials from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota and Michigan and passes on findings to the member states.

Most states, like Minnesota and Ohio, have also created special investigative units.

The state tax loss is just one aspect of the problem.

"If we are losing $10 million to $26 million a year, that means the honest businessmen of Illinois are losing anywhere between $30 million and $75 million because the tax is about a fourth of the pack's cost," said Ankrom.

Lost cigarette tax revenue must be made up elsewhere, either by increasing other taxes or cutting back areas funded by tobacco revenue.

The law now requires, also, that education should take place in the least restrictive setting possible and with the handicapped not isolated from the general school population.

It could develop that courts would interpret this to mean that if a prisoner is given home visitation rights, is a trusty, can be released from prison to go to work release or other outside activities, then he could qualify to attend on open public school rather than the prison classes.

The prices have risen, he concedes, but waterbeds are still a bargain compared with conventional bedding.

Sales in North Carolina and other southeastern states have trailed most of the rest of the country, Farnum says, largely because of those waterbed myths.

"There's more product ignorance in this part of the country," he says. "But the more waterbeds we sell, the more people will want to buy them."

because the polls reflect widespread public opposition to the treaty.

He might also have noted that there are divisions in both parties on the question.

Still, Republican sponsorship of his letter and petition drive represents a major step toward making it a clear partisan issue in 1978. Party officials say they are inviting GOP leaders to sign fund-raising letters on issues of their choosing. It lets the politician have his say and it raises money for the GOP treasury.

There's nothing unusual in the concept. Both parties send out fund-raising letters over the signatures of their stars. The letters usually talk a bit about issues, so blandly as to make sure no one takes offense, denounce the other party, and ask for money.

By the time the money starts arriving, the issues have been forgotten.

That is not Reagan's way. His political career began with a conservative fund-raising appeal, to help pay for the presidential campaign of Sen. Barry Goldwater 13 years ago. He sells his philosophy while he's asking for money.

and Little Creek F.W.B. Church with Captains Geraldine Smith, Christine White, and Ivory Madison.

Friday — Bishop Steven Jones and Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church with Captains Estella Porteur, Vivian Atkinson, and Betty Barrett.

Sunday — Rev. A.L. Miller and Warren Chapel F.W.B. Church with Captains Anilly McLawhorn, Elsie Adams, Dorothy Best, and Reba Wilkes. The Echoes of Calvary will attend and special guest will be St. John F.W.B. Church of Kingston.

List Opened To Nominees

GRIFTON — Nominations for Griffon's Outstanding Citizen of 1977 will be accepted until Nov. 30, according to Griffon Chamber of Commerce president Dave Bosley.

Any organization or any individual may nominate a citizen for the honor. The nomination should include a statement of why the person is being nominated and some of his or her activities over the years. There is no age limit on the nominee.

Former winners are not eligible.

The Outstanding Citizen will be honored at the Griffon Chamber of Commerce installation of new officers banquet in January.

Nominations may be sent to Griffon Chamber of Commerce, c/o Town Hall, Griffon, N.C., 28530.

Mental Health Ass'n Acts To Change Name

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County is the new name of the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

The name change action was taken in a quarterly Board meeting of the local Association Wednesday, assenting to a national Mental Health Association recommendation. "This is the first step in a nationwide campaign to make all local, state and national chapters names the same, as, indeed, we are the same," local MHA President Carl Blackwood said. "In other words, a member of our local Association is automatically a member of the state and national organizations."

"The local Association is located in the same office at 207 Coffman Building, Evans Mall, Greenville," he said, "and has the same phone number, though the listing is now Mental Health Association, rather than Pitt Co. MHA."

In other action, the Board appointed Mrs. Miriam Harris, a Cultural Arts Supervisor in the Pitt County Schools, as a member to replace the Rev. Roderick Randolph, a Methodist minister who was transferred to Raleigh.

Dr. Steve Creech, Area Mental Health Director and Dr. Robert Nemo, Medical Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, made presentations to the Board.

Yard And Bake Sale Saturday

Boyd Memorial Presbyterian Church, located on Highway 43, will sponsor a yard and bake sale Saturday.

Baked goods, household items, clothing, toys and miscellaneous items will be available.

Refreshments will be sold including hot dogs and hot and cold drinks.

Proceeds will be used to support church projects in the community.

The yard and bake sale was scheduled to be held last Saturday.

Services Begin Monday Night

Warren Chapel F.W.B. Church will have the following services this week:

Tonight — Board meeting and quarterly conference at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday — Holy communion will be held at 7:30 p.m. with the Elder Jimmy Whitehurst delivering the message.

Sunday — Sunday service at 11 a.m. Dinner will be served at 1:45 p.m., and at 3 p.m. Dr. W.L. Jones and his congregation from Mount Calvary Church will give the service.

The public is invited.

Salinger Still Explaining U.S.

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Salinger is still telling France what America is like.

Salinger, President John F. Kennedy's press secretary 14 years ago, is now the man most often asked by the media to explain America.

He is a frequent television and radio commentator and writes a weekly column on U.S. affairs for L'Express.

Why Salinger? "It was kind of an accident that I got to where I am," Salinger said Thursday. "My calling card was that I was associated with the Kennedys. And the French loved the Kennedys. Salinger returned to the United States about once every six weeks to keep it that way."

Church Marking Its 177th Year

Reedy Branch F.W.B. Church will celebrate its 177th anniversary Sunday.

Following the morning worship, dinner will be served either on the grounds or in the new fellowship hall, depending on the weather.

At 1:15 p.m., as has been the custom for many years, a songfest will be held, with the church choir and various groups and individuals participating. Blaine Moye will direct this service.

The pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson, who is celebrating his 14th year with the church, will deliver the morning message. All former members and pastors and friends are invited.

Library Given Author's Papers

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Author James A. Michener is donating the outline, manuscript and other papers he used in writing his forthcoming novel to a small Maryland library.

Michener, whose novel portrays four centuries of life around the Chesapeake Bay, said he chose the Talbot County Free Library "primarily to pay honor to its splendid new building and to its location on the Eastern Shore."

The Pulitzer Prize-winning author has spent the last 18 months on the Shore researching and writing the book, due to be published next year.

The library board, according to Thursday's announcement, agreed that the manuscript and accompanying notes of the book will not be exhibited until the book has been on the stands for a year.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

Quarterly meeting and homecoming will be observed at Allen Chapel F.W.B. Church this weekend.

Saturday night Elder Matthew Best and his congregation will be in charge of the service. Sunday morning the sermon will be delivered by the pastor, Elder J. L. Tyson. Sunday at 3 p.m. Elder Hill and the Union Grove congregation will lead the service. The public is invited to all these services.

Friday at 7:30 p.m. all members are urged to attend a Board meeting.

THRUST

He trusts you... trusts you both!

He trusts the decisions you are making... decisions that will largely determine the horizons of his life... the spiritual horizons as well as those social and material.

A right decision, with the help of the Church can awaken and develop his trust in God.

And it could well be — it's happened often before —

The growth of his trust in God may excitingly enlarge and expand your own spiritual horizons.

Revival Begins Monday Night

There will be a revival at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church Monday Nov. 7-13, with the Rev. Mrs. Ina Dunning as guest evangelist.

There will be special singing each night, and the services begin at 7:30 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. G.A. Casper, invites the public to attend.

Showing Film On Heaven

A color motion picture titled "The Believer's Heaven" will be shown at People's Baptist Temple Sunday at 11 a.m.

Narrated by Estus Pirkle, the film depicts "The Golden Place of Eternity" as seen in John's revelation on the Isle of Patmos as related in the Bible Book of Revelation. Some of the filming was done on Patmos and some in Ur, the City of Abraham, now in Iraq. A special studio was built for the Heaven sets.

This is the first showing of this film in Greenville, People's Baptist Temple Pastor Dr. Barry Bagwell said he believes.

SINGERSUNDAY

The Glorylight Singers will be at the Hollywood Presbyterian Church Sunday, Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

BETHEL — Revival services will begin Sunday at the Bethel Church of God.

Services will continue through Nov. 13. The guest speaker will be the Rev. James H. Jethro.

The public is invited to attend according to the Rev. Ernest Bateman, pastor.

WORKING WOMEN ON THE MOVE

CHICAGO (AP) — An increasing number of women are being moved by their companies, transferred to plant cities and new offices along with their male counterparts as more females enter the management ranks, the National Institute of Certified Moving Consultants reports.

SINGERS ANNIVERSARY

The Gospel Singers of Greenville will celebrate their sixth anniversary Sunday at St. Gabriel's Catholic School.

Registration will begin at 1:30 p.m. and the program will start at 2. The public is invited.

Oyster Shucker Learned Trade In Early Years

STILL SHUCKING — Joe Rando began shucking oysters back in 1910 when he was only ten years old, and he's still shucking at Felix's in New Orleans, one of the busiest oyster houses in the land. (AP Laserphoto)

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — His nine fingers manipulate the oyster knowingly, positioning it in his palm and at the same time brushing off the crushed ice.

The knife thrusts in, twists, slices. In a moment another luscious beauty on the half shell rests in a plate on the counter.

Anyone who has fussed with an oyster, searching for where to stick the blamed knife in the first place, bloodying the hands, can appreciate the art Joe Rando practices with such enviable finesse.

Joe Rando is the head oyster shucker in one of the busiest oyster houses in the land.

"I learned how to shuck oysters when I was 10 years old standing on an apple box in my father's oyster and fruit stand on Magazine Street," Joe Rando said. "That was in 1910. I guess I do know how to shuck oysters."

How, Joe?
"Well, first you find the crack. There's always a crack. The oyster has to breathe, you know. Follow the hinge and find the crack."

"You stick the knife in the crack, pry open the shell and cut the eyes on both sides. They're not really eyes, they're muscles. You cut them clean. That's all there is to it."

"I suppose some people can open oysters faster than I can but nobody can open them cleaner. I'm not so sure anybody can open them faster, either. I open them fast and clean."

Joe Rando has worked at a half dozen oyster houses around New Orleans the past 77 years and for the past two decades at Felix's, a wonderfully noisy and friendly joint at Iberville and Bourbon Streets.

"The work isn't always easy. It can get busy here, all right. On a regular day I'll open 15 or 20 dozen oysters. There are other opening them too, of course."

"But on a busy day, like at Mardi Gras or after the Tulane-LSU game, I'll open, oh, man, a gang of oysters."

Whether it is the nature of the oyster business or the nature of this most casual of cities, sharp-penciled precision is not to be found.

A gang of oysters, fine. But how many does Felix's sell?
"Anywhere from 20 to 30 sacks a day."

How many oysters in a sack?
"Anywhere from 15 to 20 dozen or more. Depends on the size."

The size of the sack?
"The size of the oysters. What you look for are medium-sized oysters, good and salty, with a big eye and good texture."

"Sometimes you come across a nice black one, a cock oyster. When I find one I eat it on the spot. That's a fringe benefit. But it doesn't matter what size they are, they're all just as easy to open."

Yes, but, beg your pardon, Joe, um, how did you lose the forefinger on your left hand?

"The only time in my life I ever put this oyster knife down to do some other work was many years ago. I worked in a sawmill. Any other questions?"

This is Grandpa Jones. I hear lots of folks reminiscin' about how nice things were in the good old days. Tater leathers!
In my book, the good old days are right now. And one of the best things about 'em is Doxol — and the service you get from your local Doxol guy. Why, he's as good at his trade as Roy and Buck is at pickin' and singin'.

Yes, for the best in propane and good gas service, the local Doxol guy is your guy.

List Opened To Nominees

GRIFTON — Nominations for Grifton's Outstanding Citizen of 1977 will be accepted until Nov. 30, according to Grifton Chamber of Commerce president Dave Bosley.

Any organization or individual may nominate a citizen for the honor. The nomination should include a statement of why the person is being nominated and some of his or her activities over the years. There is no age limit on the nominee.

Former winners are not eligible.

The Outstanding Citizen will be honored at the Grifton Chamber of Commerce installation of new officers banquet in January.

Nominations may be sent to Grifton Chamber of Commerce, c/o Town Hall, Grifton, N.C., 28530.

Mental Health Ass'n Acts To Change Name

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County is the new name of the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

The name change action was taken in a quarterly Board meeting of the local Association Wednesday, assenting to a national Mental Health Association recommendation. "This is the first step in a nationwide campaign to make all local, state and national chapters names the same, as, indeed, we are the same," local MHA President Carl Blackwood said. "In other words, a member of our local Association is automatically a member of the state and national organizations."

"The local Association is located in the same office at 207 Coffman Building, Evans Mall, Greenville," he said, "and has the same phone number, though the listing is now Mental Health Association, rather than Pitt Co. MHA."

In other action, the Board appointed Mrs. Miriam Harris, a Cultural Arts Supervisor in the Pitt County Schools, as a member to replace the Rev. Roderick Randolph, a Methodist minister who was transferred to Raleigh.

Dr. Steve Creech, Area Mental Health Director and Dr. Robert Nenno, Medical Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, made presentations to the Board.

Oyster Shucker Learned Trade In Early Years

STILL SHUCKING — Joe Rando began shucking oysters back in 1910 when he was only ten years old, and he's still shucking at Felix's in New Orleans, one of the busiest oyster houses in the land. (AP Laserphoto)

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — His nine fingers manipulate the oyster knowingly, positioning it in his palm and at the same time brushing off the crushed ice.

The knife thrusts in, twists, slices. In a moment another luscious beauty on the half shell rests in a plate on the counter.

Anyone who has fussed with an oyster, searching for where to stick the bladed knife in the first place, bloodying the hands, can appreciate the art Joe Rando practices with such enviable finesse.

Joe Rando is the head oyster shucker in one of the busiest oyster houses in the land.

"I learned how to shuck oysters when I was 10 years old standing on an apple box in my father's oyster and fruit stand on Magazine Street," Joe Rando said. "That was in 1910. I guess I do know how to shuck oysters."

How, Joe?
"Well, first you find the crack. There's always a crack. The oyster has to breathe, you know. Follow the hinge and find the crack."

"You stick the knife in the crack, pry open the shell and cut the eyes on both sides. They're not really eyes, they're muscles. You cut them clean. That's all there is to it."

"I suppose some people can open oysters faster than I can but nobody can open them cleaner. I'm not so sure anybody can open them faster, either. I open them fast and clean."

Joe Rando has worked at a half dozen oyster houses around New Orleans the past 77 years and for the past two decades at Felix's, a wonderfully noisy and friendly joint at Iberville and Bourbon Streets.

"The work isn't always easy. It can get busy here, all right. On a regular day I'll open 15 or 20 dozen oysters. There are other opening them too, of course."

"But on a busy day, like at Mardi Gras or after the Tulane-LSU game, I'll open, oh, man, a gang of oysters."

Whether it is the nature of the oyster business or the nature of this most casual of cities, sharp-penciled precision is not to be found.

A gang of oysters, fine. But how many does Felix's sell?
"Anywhere from 20 to 30 sacks a day."

How many oysters in a sack?
"Anywhere from 15 to 20 dozen or more. Depends on the size."

The size of the sack?
"The size of the oysters. What you look for are medium-sized oysters, good and salty, with a big eye and good texture."

"Sometimes you come across a nice black one, a cock oyster. When I find one I eat it on the spot. That's a fringe benefit. But it doesn't matter what size they are, they're all just as easy to open."

Yes, but, beg your pardon, Joe, um, how did you lose the forefinger on your left hand?

Much-photographed King Bhumipol of Thailand takes some pictures himself, on tour at Mae Teng forestry station.

To villagers of Mae Teng, Bhumipol is a God-King, even though he wields no political power.

Buses, jeeps, cars gather at cooperative in Sankamphaeng on the day the king comes to visit project he sponsors.

Senkamphaeng villagers offer ceremonial gifts of fruits of land.

THE ROYAL VISITOR

To many Thais, Bhumipol Adulyadej is a God-King. But under the law of his southeastern Asian land he wields no political power. His name means "Strength of the Land," he's the ninth in a dynastic line, and he's the only living monarch to have been born in the United States—his royal parents studied here for a time.

A coup d'etat in 1932 took from Thai monarchs the absolute power they'd previously enjoyed. But the 49-year-old Bhumipol still exercises immense though indirect power, above government and bureaucracy. He is one of the few symbols of unity in a country in transition. He's also a practical, forward-looking man: he energetically sponsors development projects and cooperatives, and spends much of his time traveling through his kingdom and meeting his subjects. These pictures show the king in action, on a round of visits to royally sponsored projects in the Chiang Mai province of northern Thailand.

Study Indicates Most Elderly Have Happy Lives

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The fear of old age starts in the young.
People of all ages talk about it. They seem to know what to expect and none of it is good. They wonder how long it will be before a serious, debilitating illness sets in. They wonder when their sex drives will expire, and if they will wind up in an institution or waste away as a burden to their children.

Men fear retirement and women fear the time when their last child leaves home. They see themselves alone, bored, useless, ill, on a road that leads only to the grave.

But old age doesn't have to be that way, and in fact isn't that way for most people, according to a 23-year study by Duke University researchers. The study seems to confirm what a majority of elderly persons said in a recent national survey: they are as happy now as when they were younger.
"We don't have to wonder anymore. The evidence is in," said Dr. George L. Maddox, director of Duke's center for the Study of Aging and Development. For ninety-five per cent of people beyond retirement age, life is very much worth living, he said.

Duke, beginning with 271 area residents at or approaching retirement age in 1954, carefully monitored the aging process of volunteers with medical, psychiatric, psychological and sociological evaluations conducted first at three-to-four year intervals, and then annually since 1965.

Now 40 survivors, well into their 80s and known as the "super 40," are still participating and ready to testify in support of the study's conclusions.
"I sometimes feel bad when I'm tired, and sometimes I don't sleep well," said Levi Jobe, 81, "but I try to keep away from medicines as much as possible."

In the middle, Maddox said — somewhere between the "super 40" and the elderly who lie idle in institutions — are the vast majority of the elderly, living relatively comfortable, productive lives.
"Most people adapt very well to retirement," he said.
The exceptions are relatively few, he said. They are persons who work compulsively — who need work to organize their lives — and mothers who are afraid to let go of their children, he said. Maddox figures the current push to raise the mandatory retirement age does not interest many older persons. "Seven per cent of the work force might stay in (the job) if they were allowed to," he said. "Twice that many are opting for early retirement."

"The drawbacks to getting old were not ignored in the Duke study. Older people do lose physical strength and their senses do begin to dull. It does take them longer to learn new tasks and their reaction time does slow significantly.
But Maddox said the data proves that "older people are as resilient as they have to be. They are able to meet the demands of everyday living." What they lose, he said, is "extra resilience."
Extreme physical and emotional demands take an increasingly heavy toll as people grow older, Maddox said. Another stereotype that seems to be true, he said, is that old folks become rigid in their thinking.
"Why should we expect old people to remain flexible?" Dr. Erdman Palmore, who worked with Maddox and other researchers to compile the findings into two volumes called "Normal Aging," said the study indicates that more women do not dread the day their children leave home.

"Most people are pleased and happy. We should really call it a free home instead of the empty nest."
Maddox said "Children usually leave home to get married, or to go to school, or because they have a good enough job so they can afford to live alone. These are happy times."

Highway Division Has Cutback Mowing Work

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — You may have noticed on your last trip through the North Carolina countryside that the landscape seemed a little closer to the road than in years past. It probably was.
The state Division of Highways has been experimenting for some time with cutbacks in its mowing program for highway right-of-ways, and the result is shaggier scenery in many places.

But officials insist that while economy inspired the program, it has had some beneficial effects on the view.
It all began in 1968, according to Frank Bowen, assistant head of the landscape section of the highway bureaucracy.
"We began to experiment with ways to reduce the amount of mowing," Bowen said. "It was mainly to save money, but we also wanted to improve appearance of the right-of-way."
The program continued without much fanfare until 1974, when the energy crisis forced state officials to look for new ways to save fuel and the lawnmowing schedule was stretched thinner.
"It was terrible," Bowen recalls. "We had a particularly heavy rainy season that year, and the plants grew like crazy."

We had a tremendous adverse public reaction."
Small wonder, inasmuch as clumps of giant weeds in some spots grew so enormous they blocked visibility at intersections and entrance ramps to expressways.
"So we curtailed the program somewhat as a result of that," Bowen said. "But we're still trying."
Since then, the division has refined a set of guidelines for restricted mowing which identifies areas which must be mowed and others that can stand to go much longer in between shearing.
The program also includes special plantings of seedling trees in some areas to encourage growth in areas that are too bare.
"In some places we're encouraging revegetation and reforestation right up to the right-of-way," Bowen says. "It limits the look of intrusion of the highway."
A division spokesman estimated that the area mowed by highway crews has been reduced by about 37 per cent, but maintenance chief M.C. Adams says there actually has been no corresponding dollar savings.
"The only way we can save money is let people go home, get rid of equipment or stop buying materials," Adams observed.
The division has not been able to do any of these, but reducing the area mowed has permitted Adams to give better service — to the areas which remain on the schedule.
"We feel now if we can keep the length of weeds to between six and 15 inches, we're doing a pretty good job," he said.

130 Enrolled In Program

ECU News Bureau
Approximately 130 persons are enrolled this semester in the off-campus in-service professional education program in social work sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Participants are attending classes in Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids, Wilson, Williamston, Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern and Jacksonville.
The program is supported this year by a Title XX grant of $205,095 from the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.
Since the beginning of the program in February, 1976, nearly 600 persons who work full-time in a variety of human service delivery agencies in eastern North Carolina have been involved in in-service classes.
Last July, 35 professionals completed Phase I, the first five-course sequence, and were awarded certificates of achievement.
The program is designed to assist the full-time worker to enhance his or her competence by further study and to help those who wish to pursue degrees in social work or correctional services.

Pathologists, Chemists Begin ECU Course

ECU News Bureau
Thirty-eight pathologists and clinical chemists from 15 states, the District of Columbia and one foreign nation will gather here today to begin a five-day short course.
The program, "Laboratory Concepts and Interpretation" is sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Department of Pathology.
Each participant will receive credit from the American Medical Association and the American Association for Clinical Chemistry.

Dr. Seymour Bakerman, chairman of the ECU pathology department, will conduct the program.

Pirates Travel To Face Apps

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Pat Dye remembers Boone. He may never forget it.

"Everyone is aware of what happened to us the last time we went to Boone," Dye said. "I'll never forget that whipping. It was the most embarrassing thing that ever happened to me."

What Dye was talking about was a 41-25 licking handed the Pirates by the underdog Mountaineers. East Carolina somewhat regained some of its lost pride this past year with a 35-7 win over regional television, but the smarting from that beating still hurts.

Actually, the Pirates haven't won in Boone in over 20 years. East Carolina and Appalachian State record books do not indicate whether games were played home or away prior to 1960. Overall ASU holds a 19-7 margin in wins, although East Carolina has won three of five since the series was resumed in 1972 following a ten-year hiatus.

Both of the games played in Boone since 1972 have resulted in ASU wins, the first a 23-21 victory that came on a late field goal.

But the game that sticks in the craw of Dye is that 41-25 shellacking. "It was a combination of frustration, poor coaching, whatever. They had close to 600 yards in total offense against us, and we were supposed to be a good defensive football team."

But the nightmare may not be over, according to the coach.

"The thing that scares me the most is that most of those players who did it then are still there."

Dye pointed to the offensive statistics of the Mounties. They have rushed for 2,009 yards, and passed for another 751 in eight games. "They are averaging 4.9 yards a carry on the ground. We're doing pretty good, and we're only averaging 4.8," Dye said.

"Offensively, they are as dangerous and explosive as any team we play. (Robbie) Price (quarterback) can do everything. (Ron) Henry (Southwestern Louisiana quarterback) had one strong suit, but Price can run, pass and make the pitch. So we have to play well defensively, and we sure don't want to get into a scoring contest with anybody."

Dye said that ASU's defense has apparently been the culprit in the team's 2-6 overall record.

Mike Brewington

"They are young, but they have played well at times.

"It's going to be an emotional game for them, for sure. We're probably the key team on their home schedule. And they want revenge for last year. They will be highly motivated, and if we don't recognize that, it could be a long afternoon."

Price, in his passing, has hit 37 of 75 attempts, with just two picked off. He's thrown for three touchdowns. But he's not the only passer. ASU statistics also show six other players passing, with backup Chris Swecker hitting 12 of 35 for 162 yards. Price has 524 yards.

On the ground, Emmitt Hamilton leads the way with 734 yards, and a 6.7 per carry average. He's the leading scorer with 54 points, including nine touchdowns.

Fullback Eddie Estes is next with 389 yards, while halfback Scott McConnell has 274. Backup fullback Calvin Simon has rushed for 237 yards.

Price has 121 yards rushing on 67 carries.

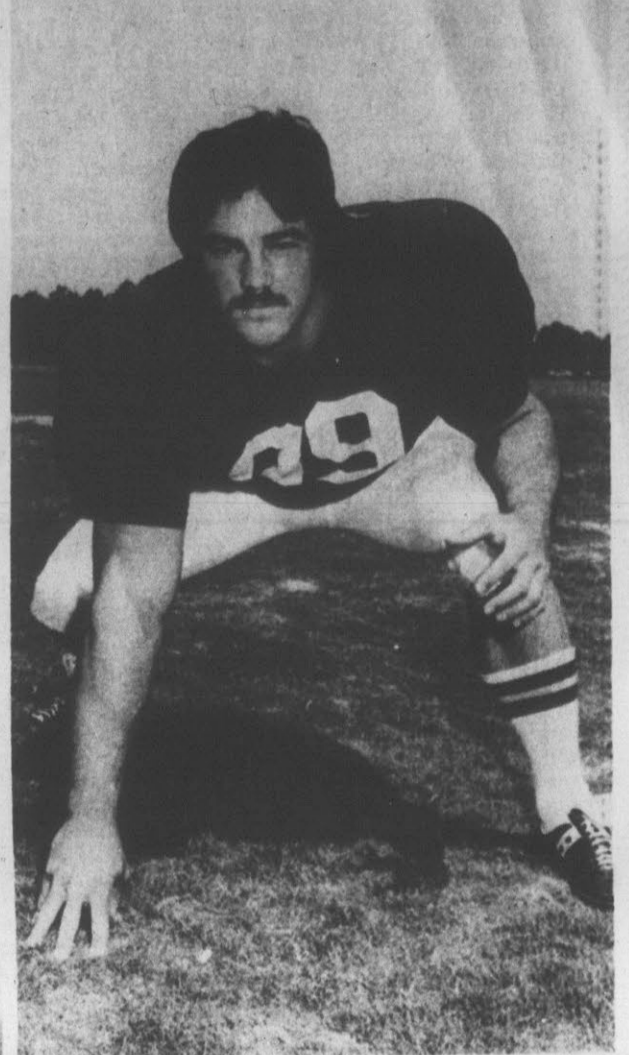

For the Pirates, Jimmy Southerland is the leading passer, hitting 35 of 66 for 679 yards and three touchdowns. He's had three interceptions.

Fullback Theodore Sutton is the top rusher with 603 yards, while quarterback Leander Green has 525. Southerland has rushed for 316, followed by Willie Hawkins with 270 and Eddie Hicks with 215.

Hawkins, who missed last week's game with a pulled hamstring, is still questionable for this week's game.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. at Conrad Stadium in Boone, with a sellout crowd in excess of 14,000 expected.

The Pirates travel to Norfolk, Va., next week to meet William & Mary in the Oyster Bowl.

Tackle Wayne Poole

F. Lee Bailey Steps On Stage In 'Ringer' Case

NEW YORK (AP) — The complex international melodrama known as the "Belmont Sting," the "Race Horse Switch," and the "Case of the Dead Ringer" took on the look of a television soap opera today as criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey stepped to center stage.

Veterinarian Dr. Mark Gerard—suspended by the New York Racing and Wagering Board from his duties at Belmont Park, then reinstated by a state judge and now awaiting an appeal by the state—hired Bailey Thursday.

Along with Bailey and his original attorney, Neil T. Shayne, Dr. Gerard awaited the outcome of a swirl of legal activity today in the case that began when a horse called Lebon, a 57-1 shot, won a race at Belmont Park Sept. 23.

Since then, the Racing and Wagering Board has accused Dr. Gerard of substituting a stakes-winning horse for Lebon, a mediocre Uruguayan import. The board believes the ringer may be Cinzano, another Uruguayan horse which the doctor said he had destroyed last June at his Muttontown, N.Y., farm.

In an investigation which has involved four countries on three continents, Dr. Gerard awaited action today on these fronts:

—The Racing and Wagering Board and State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz planned to file appeals to an order by State Supreme Court Judge Theodore Velsor that lifted Dr. Gerard's suspension. Velsor ruled that the board must grant Dr. Gerard a full hearing.

—A Nassau County grand jury was expected to begin hearing testimony into the suspected race horse switch. Thus far, no criminal charges have been made in the investigation. A key witness could be Lebon's owner-trainer, Jack B. Morgan, who reportedly has told state investigators that, as far as he knows, Lebon is Lebon.

—The FBI field agent in Nassau County was to confer with U.S. District Attorney David Trager in an attempt to determine whether any federal violations have occurred. Interstate transportation to aid racketeering was an area being scrutinized, an FBI spokesman said.

Bucs Gave Joe A Chance

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Two years ago, Joe Godette was finishing up his high school career at Rose High, and hoping that someone would give him a look as a college player.

But at 195, he was considered too small to be an offensive lineman. Finally, however, late in the recruiting season, East Carolina University decided that Joe would be worth the effort.

Right now, Godette is a sophomore. He's up to 225, and for eight of the nine games this season, he's been a starting offensive tackle for the Pirates—just another of those skinny-legged kids that Pat Dye likes to talk about.

Godette missed a starting assignment only in the Duke game, when Matt Mulholland took over the starting job. But Mulholland has had injury problems throughout the season, and most of the time Godette has been in there.

"I was surprised. I had opened the year expecting to be the backup to Mulholland," Godette said.

Actually, a few days before the season opened, he thought he would be playing somewhere else. Like departed Pirate Jake Dove, Godette has been moved around from place to place.

"Last year (as a freshman), I worked as an offensive guard for most of the season. They switched me to tackle just before the last game," Joe said.

"This past spring, I worked at the tight end position all along, and until three days before practice started in the fall, I thought I'd be playing there."

But the Pirate coaches decided they needed him more at tackle and he made the switch.

"At the time, I was disappointed. I was kind of looking forward to being out there with a chance to catch a pass. But since the season got underway, I'm happy to be starting, regardless of where."

The movement gave him some early problems, however. "I was concerned about it, because there are different techniques in blocking between guard and tackle. But I've become accustomed to them now. I hope I'm settled in for the rest of my career."

Like the rest of the team,

Godette was disappointed with the loss to Southwestern, especially since he's a member of the offensive unit. "Their (Southwestern Louisiana's) defense was real good, but we were awfully inconsistent. We made too many costly mistakes. We're still searching for that one completely good game."

Godette compared Southwestern to Duke in size, but not in technique. "They were a good team, and they beat us physically. The mistakes weren't the only reason we lost."

He still feels the Pirates can win their final two games. "If everyone works hard, we will be much improved next year, too. And we're kind of looking forward to getting another chance at Southwestern, too."

Free Agent Draft Today

NEW YORK (AP) — There were three major classifications in today's free agent baseball draft—option playouts, six-year veterans and certain minor leaguers whose eligibility depended on contract assignment during the 1977 season.

And then, there was Junior Moore. Moore, who batted .260 in his rookie season with the Atlanta Braves in 1977, was in a category by himself, just as available as all of the big name free agents even though he did not fit into any of the three conventional lists.

That was because of a unique clause written into Moore's contract with the Braves that permitted him to leave at the end of the season.

When National League President Chub Feeney first saw Moore's contract and its special freedom clause, he rejected it. But subsequent arbitration upheld the pact and it was finally formally approved in August.

The agreement, negotiated by Moore's agent, Abdul Jalil of Superstar Management, was included in the third baseman's contract, giving him an escape route if he was dissatisfied with his playing time. Moore played in 111 games and went to bat 361 times.

After the season, he decided to exercise the unique contract clause and declare for free agency. He is by himself in a category labeled: "Agreement Between Player and Club."

Moore was unlikely to attract the kind of big-money offers waiting for some of the other free agents in today's auction. There were anticipated price tags of between $1.5 and $2 million for hitters like Richie Zisk, Lyman Bostock and Larry Hise, and pitchers like Mike Torrez and Rich Gossage.

They were the blue-chip players available in the draft, but there were plenty of other familiar names in the free agent grab bag. The option playouts included Dave Kingman, Bruce Bochte, Willie Crawford, Rick Miller, Merv Rettenmund, Tom Burgmeier, Mike Marshall, Doc Medich and Rawley Eastwick. The six-year player list included Ollie Brown, Oscar Gamble, Carlos May, Terry Forster, Ross Grimsley, Mike Jorgensen, George Mitterwald and Dick Drago.

The third list of available called Attachment 11, involved players signed to major league contracts in 1976 but outrighted to minor league clubs last season. Included were players like Morris Nettles, Rich Hinton, Mac Scarce and Oscar Zamora.

Many of the players in that last category had major league experience but were unlikely to attract much drafting interest. And most of them will be available again in the annual winter meeting draft at Hawaii next month. But they will carry $25,000 price tags at that time and could be claimed for less than that at today's session.

Drivers Discuss Rules

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Waiting around for the rain to end Thursday — it didn't — gave drivers and mechanics here for Sunday's Dixie 500 stock car race much time to express their opinions about the recently announced rule changes for 1978.

Almost everyone had some opinion, and something to say. Chevrolet owners appeared to be united against the new rules, and the Ford and Chrysler product users were strongly supportive. That was not surprising.

The rules outlaw the aerodynamic slope noses on Chevrolet Lagunas, and mandate relocation of the engine in Chevrolet Monte Carlos, which come from the factory with the engine one inch farther back than most cars. It makes a big difference in weight distribution and handling in a race car. They also put on a carburetor restrictor plate.

"Now they tell us to do something that isn't standard on the car. Doesn't make much sense, does it?" complained Buddy Parrott, crew chief of Darrell Waltrip's Chevrolet. "You know, you start moving drive shafts back and forth it's going to cost those independent Chevrolet drivers a bunch of money.

"We have an operation that can stand the cost, but it sure is going to be hard on the little guy."

Waltrip and many of the frontrunning Chevrolet drivers have had to field both Lagunas and Monte Carlos to be competitive everywhere on the circuit. This rule change hopefully is going to eliminate the need for the extra $30,000 car.

"I don't really know what the change will do, but I like it. Any help we can get we'll take," said Bud Moore, who turns the wrenches on Buddy Baker's Ford. "We'll have to do a little testing and see what happens."

Richard Petty, who races a Dodge, had a similar view. "Any way we can get some relief, we'll take it," he said.

The six-time Grand National champion added, "They couldn't give Ford and Chrysler anything to step them up, so they just slowed the Chevys down."

Petty, if he sticks with Dodge as expected, has a choice of the "international size" Diplomat or the slant-front Magnum.

"I can see them taking away the slope nose for the Chevys, but I can't see them doing it and then letting Petty run the Magnum. It has a slope nose," said Jake Elder, chief mechanic for Benny Parsons' Chevrolet operation. "We've been running the slope nose and all of a sudden we have to give it up."

"But no need raising a ruckus about it. If you're going to run NASCAR you have to run NASCAR rules. It's that simple."

NASCAR inspector Bill Gaza-way agreed. "Any time we change a rule or add a new one, someone isn't going to like it. We did what we feel like was in the best interest of racing," he said.

"You don't think we would make a rule change that would hurt racing, do you?"

The dialogue was expected to quiet down today when qualifying for the pole position and the first 30 spots in the 40-car lineup was scheduled.

Billie Jean King Moves To Finals

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Billie Jean King has moved into the finals of the $250,000 round-robin tennis tournament at the Mission Hills Country Club with a hard-fought win over Kerry Reid of Australia.

King, of New York, will play for the $75,000 first prize Saturday with either top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. or Dianne Fromholtz of Australia, depending on the outcome of tonight's match between Fromholtz and Virginia Wade of England.

King's 7-6, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Reid early today left her champion of the blue division with a 2-0 record going into her final round-robin match tonight.

In other play Thursday night, Evert and Martina Navratilova, a Czech expatriate playing out of Dallas, also scored marathon victories.

Evert rallied to defeat Virginia Wade of England 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 in a two-hour match. Evert's final in the round-robin competition. The win gave her a 2-1 record in the red division and kept alive her chances of reaching the finals as division champion.

Navratilova's 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 win over Fromholtz in a two-hour, 10-minute match left Fromholtz 1-1 in the red division going into her final round robin match tonight against Wade.

If Wade, who is also 1-1, wins the match, Evert will go to the finals by dint of her victory over the English player Thursday.

But if Fromholtz wins, she will earn the final berth by virtue of her upset victory over Evert in first-round play last Friday night.

Navratilova finished her round-robin competition with a 1-2 record.

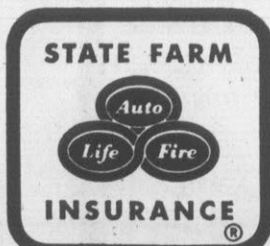

Before Thursday night's match, Reid and King were both 1-0 in the blue division. The other blue division players, Wendy Turnbull, 1-1, and Betty Stove, 0-2, were idle Thursday.

Malone Dislikes Overtime

By The Associated Press
 "I really don't like overtime," said Moses Malone. "I like to get it over as soon as possible."
 So the Houston forward did something about it Thursday night. He scored six points and grabbed six rebounds in the extra period to lead the Rockets to a 113-111 National Basketball Association victory over the Golden State Warriors.
 "We needed the win, so I went out there and gave it a full five minutes," Malone said succinctly.
 Malone had 19 rebounds for the game, helping to provide the Rockets with a 59-35 edge in that department.

"We were outrebounded tonight by a big margin, and we can't win like that," said Golden State Coach Al Attles.
 Houston Coach Tom Nissalke was pleased with the outcome of the game, but not its artistry.
 "That was a dock worker's game," he said. "I didn't recognize any of our plays. Artistically, it was a flop. This was our worst game since last February."
 In the night's other NBA action, the Cleveland Cavaliers whipped the Milwaukee Bucks 100-91 and the Phoenix Suns turned back the San Antonio Spurs 110-89.
 Malone, who finished with 17 points, scored all but two of Houston's eight points in overtime as the Rockets won their fourth straight game.

 Mike Newlin led Houston with 26 points, 20 of which came in the second half. Rick Barry scored a game-high 34 points for Golden State, with teammate Bill Smith pumping in 25.
Cavaliers 100, Bucks 91
 Bingo Smith pumped in 24 points, 14 in the third period, to spark Cleveland over Milwaukee. The game saw through the first two periods, with the score tied 23-23 at the end of one quarter and 45-45 at the half.
 Cleveland, however, led by Smith and guard Walt Frazier, who threw in 10 of his 16 points in the third quarter, roared out to an 81-64 edge after three periods.

 "Our offense wasn't very smooth," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson. "Our shooters weren't hitting the open shots. I think the Cavaliers are a better team this year and they beat us tonight without Campy Russell. What can I say?"
Suns 110, Spurs 89
 Walter Davis scored 24 points and a stingy Phoenix defense forced 40 turnovers by San Antonio as the Suns thrashed the Spurs. The 89-point production by San Antonio, which led the league in scoring last season, tied its lowest point total in its two-year NBA history.

Clemson-UNC: ACC Title Tilt?

By The Associated Press
 Clemson and Carolina square off Saturday in a high-stakes tilt that could decide the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.
 Carolina, now 3-0 in conference play, would need only one more victory to clinch the title if the Tar Heels beat the Tigers. Clemson, at 4-1, would assure itself a piece of the title with a victory.
 The Tar Heels still face Virginia and Duke. Clemson goes into Saturday's game with a seven-game winning streak after a season opening loss to Maryland. This is the Tigers' last ACC contest.
 Most major post-season bowls will have scouts at Saturday's game.
 Here's the ACC schedule for Saturday:

Clemson at North Carolina
 Kenan Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
 Chapel Hill, N.C.
 Both teams are strong on defense, ranking one-two with the Tar Heels on top, in all major ACC defensive departments. Both are among the nation's leaders in scoring defense. The Tigers are a bit better on total offense, 342 yards to the Heels' 319; North Carolina has the edge on the ground while the Tigers are stronger in the air. Clemson quarterback Steve Fuller leads the conference in total offense with a 161.4 average. UNC freshman Amos Lawrence is the ACC's third leading rusher with 637 yards.

Duke at Wake Forest
 Groves Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
 Winston-Salem, N.C.
 Wake Forest makes yet another attempt at getting started this season. So far they have won one game and lost the last seven, and nobody seems to have a clue as to why. Coach Chuck Mills thinks the Deacons are beating themselves, playing without "a whole lot of confidence or enthusiasm." Duke, on the other hand, has revived from a mid-season slump with a 25-24 last minute victory last week over Georgia Tech. The Blue Devils could still grab a share of the ACC crown if they win their remaining conference games.

Villanova at Maryland
 Byrd Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
 College Park, Md.
 Maryland took a blow to the morale last week when the Tar Heels knocked off their ACC title hopes with a 16-7 loss, although they could still grab a piece of the championship. The Terps, however, have not died. They are 4-4 on the season and have the one of the ACC's most powerful offenses with a 247.6 yard average. Villanova is coming off a big 41-36 victory over West Virginia last week, the Wildcats' third victory of the season against five losses.

Penn State at N.C. State
 Carter Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
 Raleigh, N.C.
 Penn State is a formidable adversary, behind its 7-1 record and the passing arm of Chuck Fusina. The Nittany Lions beat Maryland, 27-9, and shredded the nation's top pass defense last week, beating Miami of Florida, 49-7. Their only loss was a 24-20 outcome against Kentucky. The Wolfpack has lost its last two conference outings against North Carolina and Clemson, but regained some momentum last week with a 7-3 victory over South Carolina. State is now 6-3 on the season and will have the services of Ted Brown, the ACC's leading rusher and scorer. Quarterback Johnny Evans is fourth in the ACC in total offense and passing, but leads the conference in punting.

VMI at Virginia
 Scott Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
 Charlottesville, Va.
 This is a state rivalry that dates from 1893, and the Cavaliers lead it, 47-21 with three ties. Last year was VMI's turn, though, and they won it, 13-7, for the first time in eight years. The Cavaliers are not doing well this season, standing 1-6-1, while VMI is 4-3. Their last game was a 6-3 loss to Syracuse in which Virginia blew three good scoring chances and ended up with one field goal. The Virginia defense kept matters from becoming worse with a heroic stand with first and goal to go on their own five-yard line.

Texas Thinks Revenge In Game With Houston

By KEN RAPPOPORT
 AP Sports Writer
 The Houston Cougars wear scarlet and white, but the Texas Longhorns only see red when they look at them.
 "I'm hoping we can do a lot of making up Saturday," says Texas quarterback Randy McEachern.
 Bristling with emotion, McEachern and his revenge-minded teammates hope to atone for last year's 30-0 loss to the Cougars.
 This year, the Longhorns are a little better fixed—ranked No. 1 in the nation and possessor of seven straight victories, including decisions over Oklahoma and Texas Tech.

Although the revenge motive is an obvious emotional factor in the Longhorns' favor, however, Houston has the built-in trigger of playing the nation's top-ranked college football team.
 The Cougars have been getting in the mood for Texas all week.
 Coach Bill Yeoman has had his reserves, who run Texas plays in practice, decked out in burnt orange uniforms, with "Mr. Heisman" written on the back of No. 20, representing Texas' Earl Campbell, and "All-America" on defensive tackle Brad Shearer's jersey.
 While Texas hopes to solidify its position atop the rankings and the Southwest Conference, second-ranked Alabama is prepared to do the same in the Southeastern Conference against league rival LSU, ranked No. 18.
 In other games, third-ranked Oklahoma visits Oklahoma State, No. 4 Ohio State is at Illinois, No. 5 Notre Dame entertains Georgia Tech, No. 6 Michigan is home against Northwestern, No. 7 Kentucky is at Vanderbilt, No. 8 Arkansas meets Baylor in a night game at Little Rock, and No. 9 Penn State visits North Carolina State. Texas A&M, No. 10, is idle.

 Elsewhere, it's No. 11 Nebraska at Missouri, No. 12 Pitt at West Virginia, No. 13 Clemson at North Carolina, Utah at No. 14 Brigham Young, No. 15 Florida State at Virginia Tech, Stanford at No. 16 Southern California, Washington at No. 17 California, Wyoming at Arizona State, tied for No. 19, for a night game and Colorado at Iowa State, the other No. 19 team.
 Alabama Coach Bear Bryant will face a former pupil Saturday—LSU Coach Charlie McClendon. McClendon played for Bryant at Kentucky earlier in the Bear's career and is the last of the master's former pupils to beat him.

Baby Jags Tie

FARMVILLE — David Dunn scored on a seven-yard run in the third quarter and then ran his own conversion to grab a tie for Farmville Central's junior varsity football team in the final game of the season. The Baby Jags tied North Lenoir, 8-8.
 The Baby Hawks scored in the first quarter of the game when Ricky Adams went over from one yard out. They ran the PAT to make it 8-0. Dunn's run left the contest a tie.
 Farmville Central ends its season with a 1-6-1 record.

Tennis Club Has Annual Banuquet

The Greenville Tennis Club held its awards banquet last night with trophies being presented to all winners and runners-up in the club's tournaments.
 A number of special awards were also presented. They went to Sharon Ricks, Mary Hankins, Gil Hensgen Tom Sayetta and Sharon Ricks.

Officers for next year were chosen. They are; Anne Sayetta, president; John Eatman, vice president; Sharon Ricks, secretary and Daylon Roseman, treasurer.
 Members of the board of directors chosen last night were Wes Hankins, Bryant Kittrell, Butch Ricks, Kay Galya, Helen Talbert, Carlos Concha, Lisa Grant and Don Ball.

Lopez To Fight

Tony Lopez of Greenville has signed a contract to defend his world super lightweight karate title in Japan on Nov. 14 and in Korea on Nov. 20.
 Bill McDonald, Lopez' manager-trainer said the events will be shown on ABC-TV later in the year.
 Lopez, asked about the fights, said, "I'm a little nervous because of two reasons — first, the Japanese rules allow kicks to the legs and the U.S. rules do not allow any kick below the belt; second, we will be fighting in the largest coliseum in Japan and all the fans will probably be rooting for the Japanese fighter.

 McDonald said he was confident that Lopez was ready to fight and that he would win both bouts to retain the title.

Chi Chi Has Team To Beat

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — "I predicted two months ago we'd be the team to beat." Chi Chi Rodriguez said, then added, completely straight-faced: "It's easy to predict things when you have a brother named Jesus."

In previous years, Rodriguez had played with his brother, a pro in Puerto Rico, in the Walt Disney World National Team Golf Classic, but picked Mexican Victor Regalado as his partner this time.

And, just as the wise-cracking Rodriguez had predicted, he and Regalado emerged as the team to beat, combining for a better-ball score of 10-under-par 62 and a tie for the first-round lead Thursday with Grier Jones and Gibby Gilbert. Jones and Gilbert played their last six holes five under par, including an eagle three by Gilbert, in gaining a share of the top spot.

Gilbert and Jones played the 7,197-yard Magnolia course at Walt Disney World, generally considered the tougher of the two layouts used for the first two rounds of this unique event. Rodriguez and Regalado played the 6,951-yard Palm course. They switched courses for today's second round.

One shot off the pace at 63 were the teams of Terry Diehl and Lyn Lott, roommates when they attended the University of Georgia; Lee Elder and Jim Wiechers; Charles Coody and Lou Graham.

At 64, eight-under-par, were Forrest Fezler and Roger Maltbie, Eddie Pearce and Terry Catlett, Andy Bean and Gary Koch, Steve Melnyk and Andy North, Joe Porter and Bob Zender, Keith Fergus and Phil Hancock, Lynn Roseley and D.A. Weibring, Wally Armstrong and Danny Edwards.

PGA champion Lanny Wadkins and his brother Bobby were in a large group at 65. Also at that figure was Johnny Miller, whose Japanese partner Tsuneyaki Nakajima chipped in on two holes. Former champions Hubert Green, the current U.S. Open titleholder, and Mac McLendon were well back at 68. Defending champions Bill Kratzert and Woody Blackburn had a 66.

Jr. Tennis

Workouts Set

The Greenville Parks and Recreation Department is offering a winter workout program for junior tennis players, both boys and girls. To be eligible, a junior must have played on either a recreation or a high school tennis team. The juniors will practice in two separate age groups.

Grades 6-9 will play on Mondays and Wednesdays, with grades 10-12 practicing on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Practice will be held at Elm Street Park from 4 to 6 p.m.

Registration for the eight-week session will be at Elm Street Park at 4 p.m. on Tuesday. Practice will start on Wednesday.

Don Ball from Parks and Recreation will conduct the sessions. Further information can be obtained from him at the Recreation Department.

Each participant is to bring one new can of unopened tennis balls as a registration fee.

Baby Rampants

Win In Finale

ELIZABETH CITY — Ted King picked up a Baby Rampant fumble and carried it two yards into the end zone to help the Rose High junior varsity football team to a 14-6 victory over Northeastern.

The King run was the second score of the ballgame off of a fumble as Northeastern scored in the first quarter when Tom Sawyer returned a fumble 97 yards for a score.

Rose's first touchdown came in the third period when Mark Shank ran in from seven yards out. King kicked conversions after both Rose TD's.

The victory ends the Baby Rampant season with a 6-2 record.

Cunningham To Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gene Shue, who couldn't bring Philadelphia a National Basketball Association title with a team of millionaire superstars, was fired today as coach and replaced by former 76er star Billy Cunningham, it was learned.

Shue, fired by owner Eugene F. Dixon, has three years remaining on a $150,000-a-year contract.

Shue came to the 76ers at the club's low point. He took over the reins in 1974 after the team finished with a dismal 9-73 record, the worst record in NBA history.

But he turned things around, and last year brought the 76ers to the championship finals with such talent as George McGinnis and Julius Erving.

The 76ers were beaten in six games by the Portland Trail Blazers and the team had struggled early this year. They were 2-4 with a three-game losing streak.

The 34-year-old Cunningham, a veteran of 11 years in pro basketball, played under Shue for two seasons. Cunningham retired last year because of a crippling knee injury.

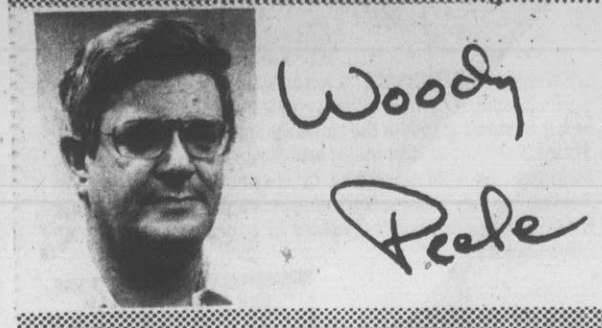

Rumors about Shue's firing had been circulating since the beginning of the week. He appeared to be on the hot seat ever since Dixon bought the team at the beginning of last season.

Shue, who left his coaching job at Baltimore because of front office interference, likes to run his own shop. But Dixon, who shelled out huge chunks of cash for the 76ers' talent, wanted his say with the team.

Shue's team won 25 games in his first year, 34 the second and 46 the third. They were 50-32 and won the Atlantic Division a year ago.

Pitcher Tony Cloninger of the Atlanta Braves drove in nine runs in one game in 1966.

FOR City Council

The end of the high school football season is at hand, but our panel's pickings will go on for a while.

Our Guest picker last week, ECU Coach Pat Dye outdid us all, hitting a 9-3 week. Among his three misses were his own team's loss, and the Rose-Wilson game, which he picked as a tie (for recruiting purposes).

At any rate, that put the "Guests" into the lead in the panel with a 72-29-1 record. Tom Baines is second at 70-31-1, followed by Vickie Spivey and Joe Jenkins at 69-32-1, while Jim Kyle and I are tied at 67-34-1.

This week's guest is Rose High School head coach Dave Bumgarner. He has a tradition to uphold.

First, we'll take a look at the high school action for the area. It's the final week of the regular season, although Farmville Central and Roanoke have insured themselves of further play.

North Edgecombe will be at Roanoke, as the Redskins try to wrap up their Eastern Plains Conference title. Although the playoff berth is no longer at stake, the championship is. Roanoke must win to take it outright and avoid a share. The Redskins should have little trouble actually.

saw that he could improve his chances through a Vienna Coup.

He won the trump shift in dummy and drew the last trump with the king. After ruffing a heart with the ace, he returned to his hand with a trump to ruff another heart. Next declarer entered his hand with the king of clubs to ruff his last heart. This was the position:

Several American players took part in the Philip Morris European Cup competitions. Among them was Jim Hooker of Dallas, who started on this hand.

Hooker's opening bid on his aceless wonder might not find favor with some, but most players in the tournament opened his hand. North cannot be blamed for pressing on to slam once he discovered that a double fit existed.

A spade lead would have defeated the contract, but North's cue-bid steered West away from that choice. East won the king of hearts and shifted to his singleton trump. It seems that the contract depends on finding the jack of clubs guarded no more than twice, so that the club suit will furnish a discard for declarer's losing spade. However, Hooker

Hooker now proceeded with his coup. He cashed the ace of spades, setting up East's king. But when declarer returned to his hand with the queen of clubs and led his last trump, discarding a spade from dummy, East had to concede. The task of guarding both the clubs and spades was too much. Whichever suit he discarded would set up the twelfth trick for declarer.

Respite Center To Hold Open House

The Pitt County ADAP-Respite Center will hold an Open House Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The ADAP-Respite programs are services of the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

The Adult Development Activity Program (ADAP) provides training for mentally retarded adults of post school age. Training consists of skills in self care, home care, motor development, community awareness, basic academics, and self awareness. Local community establishments are utilized for instructional purposes.

The Respite program is a 24-hour "emergency care" service for mentally retarded children and adults. It is available to residents of the Eastern North Carolina area. It provides short-term residential care for the mentally retarded persons so their parents may have some free time during emergencies, vacations and the like.

The public is invited to the open house at the Center, located at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and 14th Street Extension. A special invitation is issued to parents who may at some time need the services of the Respite or ADAP programs.

Scout-A-Rama Set Saturday

The Pitt District Scout-A-Rama will be held tomorrow at the Greenville Warehouse on Paoctulus Highway from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Scout-A-Rama serves as a fund raising project for district troops. Tickets are $1.00 per family.

There will be various booths set up from the individual troops along with booths from the Greenville Rescue Squad, the Bright Leaf Amateur Radio Club, and the Greenville Utilities Company will have a booth on energy conservation. There will also be a refreshment stand.

Special events include the opening ceremonies by Rep. Walter B. Jones who will read a letter from President Carter to the scouts, the U.S. Marine Corps Band will perform from 2:30-3. The N.C. National Guard will have a BB rifle range, and the U.S. Post Office will have a special commemorative stamp honoring the Pitt District scouts. This is the first time the Post Office has done this.

Succession Opponents Attack Job Service Available To Local Handicapped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Opponents of gubernatorial succession took the offensive Thursday, accusing backers of the proposed constitutional amendment of illegally using state funds and manpower to promote the cause.

"What they're doing is a violation of law and improper," said state Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, chairman of Carolinians Opposed to Succession. Davenport cited a letter in which state School Superintendent Craig Phillips promoted succession. He also mentioned Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw's travels promoting the $300 million road bond issue. Davenport said Bradshaw didn't confine himself to road bonds but plumped for succession at some spots on his tour.

Davenport had armed himself with an attorney general's opinion on what political activities by state officials are illegal. The opinion was dated Thursday and was prepared at Davenport's request.

"The whistle has been blown and everyone had better proceed with caution," Davenport said. A spokesman for the attorney general's office said it appeared that no crime has been committed so far, but the opinion puts state officials on notice as to what might be punishable.

Gov. Jim Hunt and his staff denied any improprieties. So did a spokesman for Phillips. Bradshaw answers questions pertaining to succession, but does not campaign for its passage, Hunt said in a news conference Thursday.

The Phillips letter was an Oct. 26 memorandum to local superintendents. Phillips was out of town but an assistant said Phillips sends such memos about six times a year.

The memo discusses schools and upcoming events, but one paragraph at the end of the two-page letter urged support for succession.

"I believe that it is in the best interest of public education in North Carolina that the voters amend the constitution to permit succession in the future for our two executive offices," Phillips wrote.

"I hope people in education and its related areas will particularly respond to this issue and give succession strong support because they want the right kind of educational growth in North Carolina," he said.

Davenport said the letter was prepared with state equipment, typed by a state-paid secretary and mailed at state expense.

But a spokesman for the attorney general said the action was not improper because the entire letter was not devoted to succession and because succession's impact on education was emphasized. The attorney general's opinion added that elected officials are expected to give their views on political issues as part of their leadership role.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are forecast Friday for the Northwest through the northern Plains to northern Minnesota. Showers and rain are expected for the Southeast and Northeast. Cool temperatures are due in the West but most of the country will be mild. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Surface winds are becoming more easterly to southeast over North Carolina, bringing some relief along the coast where northeast winds and higher than normal tides have caused considerable beach erosion.

A developing tropical depression south of Bermuda joined the complex weather picture which has brought the state lingering rain, drizzle and fog. A low pressure circulation over the Gulf states also has brought above normal temperatures that averaged up to 13 degrees higher Thursday than the previous day.

Cape Hatteras set a new high for the date with 80 degrees Thursday, breaking the 1936 mark of 79. Elizabeth City and New Bern also had a high of 80, while Cherry Point reached 82 and Jacksonville 81. Temperatures remained in the 60s over the Piedmont and western part of the state.

The drizzle changed to rain in some areas Thursday and today's forecast called for occasional rain with scattered thundershowers through Saturday with temperatures in the 60s in the mountains and mostly in the 70s elsewhere.

Each year more and more handicapped workers are finding their way into the labor market.

The Greenville Job Service Office of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina is dedicated to seeking employment for each of its applicants and especially to seeking employment for those who have special needs.

According to James E. Hannan, local Job Service manager, 174 handicapped applicants were given initial counselling interviews this year. Sixty-four of those were handicapped veterans.

One of the tools of the counselor is the General Aptitude Test Battery which is given by each Employment Security Commission office. This test is an indicator of aptitude and ability and may help the counselor to decide which field of work would be best suited for him, said Hannan.

A total of 107 handicapped applicants, 36 of whom were veterans, were tested. Hannan said that there are other agencies which also offer services to the handicapped.

"Often the handicapped applicant is not aware of these agencies or does not know how to contact them."

He added that initial appointments are often made through the Job Service. Last year, 79 handicapped people were referred to supportive services. Included in this number were 31 veterans.

According to Hannan, the commission also has some training programs. In 1977, 14 handicapped people were enrolled in school and five were placed in on-the-job training positions. Seven of those 19 were handicapped veterans.

From Oct. 1, 1976 through Sept. 30, 1977, 200 handicapped job placements were made. Handicapped veterans filled 102 of those jobs.

"In 1978, as in 1977, the handicapped worker will be an important part of our employment aim. They have proven to be safe, efficient workers."

"Handicapped employment will continue to grow as employers become more and more aware of their potential," said Hannan.

Nominated For Award

Dr. Katherine W. Hodgkin and Dr. Kayte Sowell, both of Greenville, have been nominated for the W.W. Rankin Memorial Award.

The award honors annually at most three persons who have made outstanding contributions to mathematics education in North Carolina.

This award is given by The North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics, an organization of 1500 members ranging from kindergarten teachers to university professors.

The presentation of the 1977 award will be made at the banquet of The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics meeting in Winston-Salem on Nov. 4.

Both Hodgkin and Sowell are ECU mathematics professors.

Seminar For Accountants

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the National Association of Accountants and the Coastal Plains chapter of Certified Public Accountants announce a one-day symposium to be held next Thursday at East Carolina University.

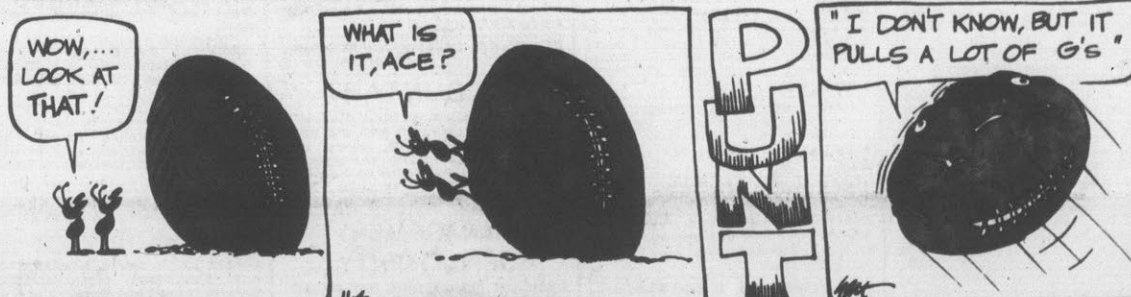

"Review of Major FASB Statements" is the subject of the seminar. Dr. Dan Hines' Chairman of Accounting and Finance at ECU, is presiding. He is to be assisted by Professors Kenneth C. James and Gorman Ledbetter. The preregistration fee is $25.

Correspondence and inquiries may be directed to William Alexander, Box 1337, New Bern, N.C. 28560; phone, 637-5154.

Toy Drive Is Being Launched

BAYBORO — Greenville and Pitt County residents with second homes in Pamlico County communities are being invited to join the annual toy-drive sponsored by the Pamlico County Jaycees and the Pamlico County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Toys that can be repaired to be given to underprivileged children at Christmas can be delivered either to the Courthouse Annex in Bayboro or to the old Pamlico Tech Institute Building in Alliance.

Serve Fire Commission

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt has announced the appointment of three men to the newly-created North Carolina Fire Commission.

Hunt named Sam Brinkley, chairman of the Burke County Commissioners, Raleigh Mayor Pro Tem Jack Keeter (former Raleigh Fire Chief), and David Cope of Durham, will join six ex-officio members of the group at its first meeting in Raleigh November 9.

Curtis Flanagan of Farmville, executive secretary of the North Carolina State Fireman's Association; Horace Moore of Snow Hill, legislative chairman of the North Carolina State Firemen's Association; and Elwood Inscow of Rocky Mount, director of the Fire and Rescue Services Training Division of the N.C. Department of Insurance are included among the ex-officio members.

The Fire Commission, created by the 1977 General Assembly, will work to improve fire prevention and fire-fighting measures in the state. Specific duties include the adoption of a State Fire Education and Training Plan and a State Master Plan for Fire Prevention and Control.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Durham elementary school principal who held his entire faculty and the school superintendent at gunpoint Thursday was taken to a state mental hospital today for tests as authorities prepared kidnap charges against him.

Clarence C. Blanton, principal of Bethesda Elementary School was charged with one count of kidnapping, but District Attorney Anthony N. Brannon said that would be "an initial charge from which other things may flow."

Blanton, armed with a shotgun and two pistols, burst into a faculty meeting in which Durham School Superintendent J. Frank Yeager was introducing a new principal to about 30 teachers.

Yeager said Blanton ordered six women and three men, including the superintendent, to lie spread-eagled on the floor while he delivered a monologue on the disloyalty of his teachers and problems with the central school office.

Four hours later, Yeager said he and others persuaded Blanton to let the teachers go home and then to give up his weapons and allow Yeager to call the sheriff's department.

Blanton's wife signed papers permitting Blanton's committal to a mental hospital. He was taken to Duke University hospital for the night and was to be transferred today to Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh today. "He's been under a lot of pressure lately," Mrs. Blanton said. "I think his mind just snapped."

Yeager said Blanton began having trouble in September, when Yeager noticed that new programs weren't being implemented and faculty morale problems surfaced. Things seemed to get worse, he said, so he summoned Blanton to his office last week.

"He volunteered to accept a transfer," Yeager said. Blanton agreed to go to the central school office for the remainder of the year and work next year either as a teacher or a principal in another school.

Yeager said he went to the elementary school Thursday with an interim principal to meet with teachers and explain what happened. Blanton was told he wasn't needed at the meeting.

Five minutes into the session, Yeager said, "all of a sudden he burst out of a storage room with a loaded shotgun and two pistols."

Yeager said Blanton "declared martial law" and told the group he had had a "vision from God." The "vision" had told him to remain as principal. Yeager said he threatened to kill two teachers and cut the rights hands from three others if anyone told what happened Thursday.

Yeager said he was meeting today with teachers to "see if I can't put the pieces back together. There's obviously going to be some fear."

No students were in the school. Both Thursday and Friday were teacher work days.

and RA-20 to Unoffensive Industry, some 32 acres on the west side of Greenville Boulevard, northeast. The property, at the corner of Rams Horn Road and the bypass, will be used as the new site for the Pitt County Fair.

A public hearing was also set for the December meeting on the proposed South Evans Redevelopment Plan. The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of the plan with the stipulation that improvements to Evans Street, from Tenth to the Norfolk Southern Railroad, be considered.

The Council, which had been requested to consider an application by Pitt County for a permit to place a mobile home at 709 Johnston Street for use as an emergency office building, agreed that the structure could be considered as a construction trailer and no permit would be necessary.

The property, located on the north side of the existing Social Services building, is zoned R-6 (residential) and zoning ordinances do not provide for mobile structures as office locations, it was explained. By treating the trailer as a construction facility, the county would not need a permit and would be able to use the trailer for Social Services office space until the move is made to quarters at the former Pitt Memorial Hospital building.

Other action taken by the Council last night included:

— Appointment of D. C. Wade to regular membership on the Board of Adjustments replacing Charles Vincent who was elected to the Council in October;

— Appointment of J. B. Surles to first alternate on the Board of Adjustments and naming of Pat Marshall as second alternate;

— Appointment of Kathy Wells to replace Reed Warren on the Bikeway Committee;

— Acceptance of resignation of Dr. John Wooten on the Transit Commission and appointment of Dr. William Bost Jr. to fill Wooten's unexpired term;

— Approval of applications for taxicab operator's permits by Ms. Rochelle Barnes and Ms. Pamela Delores Wooten, and denial of a request by Hyman Lee Chapman;

— Granting of applications by The Gathering Place Restaurant and Shoppes, 1112 Dickinson Avenue, for an on-premise beer and on and off premise wine privilege license, by Pizza Mike, 215 E. Fourth Street for an on-premise beer license, by Captain Bob's Seafood

Restaurant, 2311 Evans Street, for an on-premise beer license, by Johnson's Arco, 2900 E. Tenth Street, for an on and off premise beer license, and by Stop and Go Inc., 2807 Memorial Drive, for an off premise beer and wine license;

— Adoption of a resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement with Seaboard Coast Line Railroad covering the installation and maintenance of a water main across the right-of-way and underneath the main tracks in Singletree Subdivision;

— Adoption of a resolution authorizing the submission of an application to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for federal matching funds toward the purchase and development of recreation land;

— Adoption of various amendments to the 1977-78 city budget involving fund transfers under inter-governmental revenues for the Recreation and Parks Divisions, Fire Station No. 2 construction, Recreation-Library Capital Project Fund, Uniform Patrol Division of the Police Department, Parking Authority Fund, and revenue increases for the addition of six firefighter positions in the Fire Department, addition of a foreman, light equipment operator and six laborer positions in the Street Maintenance budget, and addition of a foreman, sanitation equipment operator, and three refuse collector positions in the Sanitation Division budget;

— Authorization for city participation in the proposed amount of $7,412.50 for cleaning Lateral No. 1 Parker's Creek in the vicinity north of the river including the airport area;

— Adoption of an ordinance prohibiting parking on the east side of Evans Street from Tenth to 14th Street;

— Adoption of revisions to the Community Development Citizens Participation Program;

— Approval of a request by Greenville Marble and Granite Works for the erection of a mausoleum on Lot 44, Section M, in Greenwood Cemetery;

— Approval of a request by Fred T. Mattox for refund of $150 in building permit fees;

— Approval of a refund in the amount of $25 to Brown Construction Co. for a building permit purchased for the construction of a restaurant on Greenville Boulevard;

— Approval of the dedication and acceptance of River Bluff Road and also a section of streets in Section III of Club Pines Subdivision; and

— Approval of a request by the Optimist Club for waiver of the privilege license requirements for the sale of Christmas trees and concessions at Nichols from Nov. 29 until Dec. 24.

Caldwell reported during the meeting that the city's transit system averaged 519 passengers per day during October.

It was also pointed out that Lois Worthington, city clerk, was elected to the board of directors of the North Carolina Association of Municipal Clerks at a recent meeting of the organization.

The Council received the audit report prepared by the firm of Worsley, Farley and Prescott.
