N.C. Flash Flood Deaths Rise To Nine

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Officials digging out from the floods which ravaged dozens of North Carolina Mountain communities Sunday found the bodies of three teenagers and an elderly man here today, raising the death toll to nine.

The Burke County Sheriff's Department reported that the bodies of three teen-age boys were found at 5:30 a.m. today in a rain-swollen creek where they reportedly attempted to help a boat dealer recover boats.

They were identified as two Valdese brothers, Chris Hemby, 18, and Tony Hemby, 16, and Mark Hawkins, 14, of Morganton.

In downtown Morganton, the body of an elderly man identified as Ike Peterson was found in a coal bin in an empty onestory building, where authorities believed he sought refuge from the storm Sunday night. He had a blanket and apparently had gone to sleep in the bin.

Gov. Jim Hunt, meanwhile, departed on a plane trip over the flood-stricken areas and Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw scheduled a two-day trip to examine highway and bridge damage in western areas of the state.

Other fatalities were:

—Mrs. Carolyn Morgan Hendrix of the Enka-Candler area of Buncombe County and her two sons, ages 4 and 5, when the flooding North Hominy Creek destroyed their mobile home.

—Bryan Scott Hart, 4, who was lost in waist deep floodwaters as his family attempted to escape from their flooded mobile home in the Saluda area of Polk County, north of Tryon.

—Michael Charles Townsend, 28, of Boone, who drowned while reportedly attempting to use a log to cross a flooded stream to safety near his home.

The latest fatalities were discovered as residents of mountain communities began clearing mud and debris that surged in and around their homes and businesses in floodwaters that smashed businesses, houses, mobile homes, barns and an earthen dam on Howard's Creek above Boone.

The raging waters also damaged more than 30 bridges and dozens of highways, including some major state and U.S. routes.

The flash flooding was caused by thunderstorms that moved across the state from the west Sunday, dumping as much as five inches of rain in six hours' time in some areas.

The rains turned every stream, valley and hollow into a danger area, and the situation grew worse when several small dams were unable to take the strain and collapsed.

Highway officials and county sheriff's departments also reported a number of bridges washed out, including several on dead end roads to residences that were left isolated.

Authorities in Hot Springs and Marshall in Madison County reported water reached depths of up to seven feet in city streets before starting to recede, carrying merchandise from smashed store windows and leveling many businesses with thick layers of mud on their floors.

Similar reports came from Boone, where residents of the Watauga Nursing Home were evacuated to hospitals and schools. Several other towns reported homes evacuated from regions near flooded streams.

Three houses were destroyed north of Boone when the Tater Hill Dam on Howard's creek collapsed and the 52-acre reservoir emptied.

About 100 persons were evacuated from homes near Asheville where authorities said a dam had developed a crack. A dam on Reems Creek in Madison County was reported broken.

The thunderstorms moved eastward across the state Sunday, setting off lesser flooding in some Piedmont and coastal areas. A half dozen persons had to be evacuated from Chocowinity south of Washington, N.C., and a shopping center roof in Goldsboro was partially caved in by heavy rains.

Waste Disposal Plan Is Given Tentative Okay

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning gave tentative approval to a solid waste disposal ordinance as well as proposed franchise agreements and district assignments for private haulers of solid waste.

At the recommendation of the Planning Board, commissioners tentatively approved an ordinance regulating the disposal of solid waste throughout the county.

Commissioners also gave tentative approval to 10 districts to be served by private haulers who, under the proposal, would be franchised by the county to collect solid waste at individual homes within their assigned district.

Under the proposed plan, designed to organize private solid waste contractors and prevent duplication of service, commissioners would set the fees for once-a-week waste pickup throughout the county.

Haulers would be required to serve any residence within their district for that fee. The private contractors would be responsible for soliciting their own business and for collecting the fees.

A public hearing was set for November 15 on the ordinance and the franchise proposal. The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the District Courtroom at the Pitt County Court House.

Commissioners also received a recommendation from the Planning Board for study which recommends the county move into a system of 40-cubic yard containers for solid waste disposal.

The proposal recommended that the plan be implemented over a three-year period, with the first boxes located in the areas furthest from the county landfill.

The only opposition to the franchise plan voiced today came from Jessie Staton who operates as a private solid waste hauler who indicated he was not happy with his district assignment, and from Jean Busbee of 106 Pineridge Dr. who indicated residents of the Lake Glenwood subdivision were opposed to the plan in principle and opposed to any move to have Staton barred from collecting solid waste in the area. (As approved this morning, Staton's assigned district would include the Lake Glenwood Subdivision.)

In other business this morning, the board authorized the public to cut firewood from the cut-over woodland at the county landfill site on the Allen Road during regular working hours — from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Persons wishing to cut firewood should check in at the gate to the landfill site, the board indicated, prior to cutting wood.

Thirty-Seven Known Dead In Wake Of Georgia Flash Flood

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — The campus of a small, north-eastern Georgia college lay in ruins after an earthen dam broke and sent torrents of water rushing through the sleeping community of Toccoa.

At least 37 persons, including 20 children, were killed in flooding that followed the dam break Sunday morning. Two others were reported missing.

"I believe that sometimes God allows Satan to do things, hoping to discourage us, and we are tested in that way," said Bob Harner of Ravenna, Ohio, who gathered with other mourners for a candlelight service on the ravaged Toccoa Falls Bible College campus. His wife and 2-year-old son died in the flood.

Gov. George Busbee inspected the damage and said later that the dam that broke above Toccoa Falls was one of 84 such earthen embankments in Georgia that had been declared high-hazard dams by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The hazard designation does not mean the dams are structurally unsafe but that if they broke, damage would be significant, a corps spokesman said.

Busbee said federal and state inspections were being made of other dams in northern Georgia to prevent another disaster.

First lady Rosalynn Carter, a Georgia native, flew to the community from Washington Sunday. She told Toccoa's 9,000 residents and the Bible College students that President Carter had promised federal assistance.

Crews worked into the night searching for victims and cleaning up debris. The community was without electricity or natural gas service because of damage to major distribution lines. Water was scarce, some of it carried into the city by neighboring residents. Officials said they expected the college to remain closed for at least a week.

Weakened by two days of heavy rain, the dam — which held back tons of water in an 80-acre lake above the scenic Toccoa Falls — gave way about 1:30 a.m.

The water picked up speed as it dropped over the 186-foot falls and smashed into the valley, demolishing or severely damaging at least a dozen houses and some 15 mobile homes. Most of the damage occurred in the low-lying campus housing area.

Three volunteer firemen also were killed. They were in the area to warn residents that a creek meandering through campus was near flood stage.

"There was this awful screaming and the ripping of metal," said Bill Stacy, 19, who lived in a mobile home with his parents, two brothers and a sister. "It is a miracle, but we all got out, and my parents helped hunt for the bodies later."

The dam, built by the college about 1940, was last inspected three days ago, said Bible College president Kenn Opperman. He did not say who conducted the inspection.

CLAIMS CONSPIRACY

NEW YORK (AP) — Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis said today that an "international conspiracy" including Soviet and Cuban elements, was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

BRIDGE BLOCKED — Debris is cleared from under a bridge at Toccoa, Ga. Sunday after an earthen dam burst and water flooded the Toccoa Falls Bible College campus and an area of houses and mobile homes. The debris under the bridge was removed and a search made for more bodies. (AP Laserphoto)

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

SUCCESSFUL APPEAL

The yard sale for which Hotline appealed for items Friday, Oct. 21 netted about $1,500 for the family of a teenaged cancer patient, the sale coordinator Doug Norville said.

Money raised for the family as a result of the Hotline appeal and Norville's and other friends' efforts on behalf of the family has come to about $4,700 so far.

"For this year, at least, we've relieved their financial worries," Norville said. "That's all we can do for them. The Good Lord will do the rest." He said he and the family are thankful to the many, many people in the Greenville area who responded to this appeal.

GOOD RESPONSE

Mrs. Charlotte Covington said response to the Oct. 25 Hotline appeal for Cub Scout uniforms was very good. She said she was able to supply all the boys in her den with uniforms and passed quite a few Cub and Boy Scouts uniforms and parts of uniforms to other leaders. She expressed special appreciation to the Moose Lodge which turned over to her several uniforms they had on hand.

At Stake Here: Four Seats On City Council

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The four open seats on the City Council here will be filled by Greenville voters as eight candidates participate in Tuesday's runoff activities.

In addition to the Council ballot, local voters will also indicate their positions on five proposed constitutional amendments, a $300 million highway bond issuance, and a $230 million clean water bond program.

The Council runoff, necessitated when only two candidates received majority totals in the October 'municipal voting, will involve the third through tenth place finishers in the initial balloting.

Appearing on the ballot will be Mildred McGrath, Clarence Gray, Judy Greene, William Hadden, John Howard, Harry Hagerty, John Bizzell, and Della Dayson. Mrs. McGrath, Gray, Mrs. Greene, and Hadden made the top six in the October elections but were challenged to runoffs by Howard, Bizzell, Hagerty and Mrs. Dayson.

Of the eight candidates, Mrs. McGrath, Gray Hadden and Howard are incumbents. Councilman Frank Fuller, who also sought reelection, finished 11th in the 18-candidate field and did not qualify for the runoff.

Incumbent Joe Taft Jr., who followed newcomer Charles Vincent in the voting totals, was the only present member of the Council to gain a first-ballot election in October.

In contrast to the first election, when majority totals were needed in order to win election to the Council, tomorrow's voting will see the top four finishers elected to fill the remaining positions on the board.

The polls will open in Greenville at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m., according to Margaret Register of the Pitt Board of Elections.

She said that 10,923 local citizens are registered to vote in the city runoff.

In addition to Greenville, a runoff election is also scheduled for Tuesday in Farmville where three candidates are seeking to fill two positions on the board of town commissioners.

Municipal balloting is also scheduled in Gritton, Fountain, Grimesland, Winterville, Simpson, Ayden, Bethel and Falkland. Polling ours are the same throughout the county, Miss Register reported.

County poll holders are reminded to call The Daily Reflector with the results of both municipal and statewide issue balloting Tuesday night as soon as the returns are available.

Conferees Work; Colleagues Are On Recess

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees are returning to work on proposals they hope to shape into a national energy program while most of their congressional colleagues are out of town for a three-week recess.

The conferees slated a session today on President Carter's proposal to force utilities and factories to stop burning oil and natural gas and switch to coal.

The committee plans to take up other non-tax portions of differing energy bills passed by the House and Senate, leaving the tax provisions to a second conference panel due to meet later in the week.

While the two committees will work separately, they may join on issues involving taxes and regulatory legislation.

Workshop On Careers

ECU News Bureau
Students and teachers from 23 eastern North Carolina high schools attended East Carolina University's Career Orientation Workshop Thursday.

The workshop was sponsored by the ECU Collegiate DECA chapter for area distributive education students and featured speakers from several occupational areas.

Participating students attended two of four area sessions to learn more about career opportunities in these areas: apparel and accessories, petroleum industries, food services and food marketing.

Addressing a general session was Furney James, Director of Career Planning and Placement at ECU.

Student coordinators for the workshop were Eddie Bradley of Roanoke Rapids and Cindy Domme of Virginia Beach, students in the ECU School of Technology.

Still Laboring To Free Barge

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Coast Guard and salvage workers are still fighting turbulent surf today as they try to free a barge loaded with asphalt that ran aground about 11 miles north of Cape Hatteras Friday night.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the asphalt did not pose any danger to the environment, but officials were worried about 20,000 gallons of diesel fuel that would be spilled if the barge broke up in the surf.

The barge ran aground after its tow rope parted and a Coast Guard crew lowered to its deck by helicopter was unable to hook the barge up again with its tug.

President Carter plans to seek public support for his beleaguered energy proposals in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night.

Democratic congressional leaders who support the Carter energy package say the speech may improve the chances that a compromise meeting the president's criteria will emerge from the conference panel.

But critics say it is too late for Carter to have any significant impact.

With most other business out of the way for the year, congressional leaders hope the conferees will reach agreement on an energy measure. But it appears unlikely a final version will be completed before mid-December.

The House passed most of Carter's energy proposals, but the Senate changed some parts greatly and rejected key provisions in others.

The conference committee handling the non-tax sections met 13 times without resolving any of the major differences between the House and Senate.

The panel still faces conflicting proposals on natural gas pricing and electric utility rate reform.

The tax conferees must consider proposed taxes on crude oil and gas-thirsty automobiles. Both provisions were passed by the House but rejected in the Senate.

A Senate Armed Services subcommittee was slated today to hear Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's assessment of American-Soviet progress toward limiting strategic armaments.

For some congressmen, the recess provides time to bone up on several subjects.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd and eight other senators leave Wednesday for a three-day trip to Panama.

They hope to talk with both

Americans and Panamanians, including the nation's leader,

Will Speak On Indians

ECU News Bureau
A discussion of Virginia's Indian population will be featured at a Nov. 11 symposium sponsored by East Carolina University's Beta chapter of Lambda Alpha honor society and the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Speaker is Dr. Helen Rountree, anthropologist at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va. Her presentation, "A Third Race in a Biracial State — Indians in Virginia," will begin at 1:30 p.m. in ECU's Brewster Building.

An expert on Indian land loss in Virginia, Dr. Rountree has done extensive research among several native American Indian tribes in Virginia, including linguistic and genealogical studies.

She has also been a participant observer among the Shoshone Indians in Utah, and is at present engaged in research concerning the Kiowa.

Further information about the symposium is available from Dr. Greysolynne J. Fox, assistant professor of anthropology at ECU.

Still Weighing Saturday Mail

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, considering an end to Saturday mail deliveries, may allow them to continue in some rural areas.

The provision would be aimed at parts of the country where weekly newspapers often are delivered on Saturday. Urban areas would probably not be eligible.

"One of the things that we have under consideration is to give rural areas that need Saturday delivery a local option," Deputy Postmaster General William Bolger said in an interview.

Bolger called the proposal "one of the major issues" under consideration in the event deliveries are cut to five days a week.

He said any cutback would not take place for at least several months because the Postal Rate Commission must hold hearings on any reduced service proposal, then issue an advisory opinion before the change could take place.

Cutting deliveries to five a week would save an estimated $412 million a year, which in turn would help hold down postal rate increases, the service says.

The Postal Service is now trying to sort out conflicting results from three polls designed to show whether the public wants Saturday mail deliveries continued.

So far, about 80 percent of the people responding to each poll say they could do without Saturday delivery. But two of those polls found less than half the respondents approved of the cutback.

"We are still studying the results and we have not made up our minds one way or the other," Bolger said.

In September, the House voted 377 to 9 to ask the Postal Service to continue six-day delivery. Legislation to prohibit delivery cutbacks, which has received committee approval, is expected to reach the House floor early next year.

Rescue Squad Members Given Buffet Dinner

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7032 and its Ladies Auxiliary entertained the International Champion Rescue Squad at a buffet dinner at the Post Home Friday evening.

Commander Leon Evans and Auxiliary President Carrie West welcomed guests. Mayor Percy Cox brought greetings from the City. Woodrow Boyd gave the invocation.

Greenville Fire Chief Ray Smith expressed his pride in the Rescue Squad and complimented them on their accomplishments. Capt. Tony Brannon responded and showed slides on rescue operations with explanation on safety precautions to be used. Joe Burroughs gave an illustration on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and instructions on how to save a choking victim.

Commander Evans presented Capt. Brannon a check for the Rescue Squad. Mrs. West presented a check and a plaque for meritorious service to the community.

Special guests included Mayor and Mrs. Cox, Chief and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Etta Gill from Georgia.

Tables were decorated with arrangements of fall flowers and yellow candles.

Dear Abby

Abby Receives 'Ode' From Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Roses are red, Rabbis are kosher, If it weren't for Dear Abby, We'd all be much gaucher. Try that on your piccolo.

FRANK KLOCK

DEAR FRANK: Your poem arrived during the High Holy Days, so I tried it on my ram's horn. It was beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: As far as I'm concerned, that self-proclaimed "liberated" woman who thought her boyfriend should pay for her birth control pills is far from liberated.

Her attitude is typical of most "liberated" women. They prefer to open their own doors and light their own cigarettes, but when it comes to money—the liberation's over!

Most men spend between $15 and $25 for an evening out. Multiply that by the number of times they go out during the month and it's a lot more than the $3 or $4 a month she pays for birth control pills.

When was the last time this girl picked up the tab for an evening out? And when did she last invite him over for dinner? And when was the last time they used HER car on a date?

I think she should pay for her birth control pills, don't you?

REALISTIC

DEAR REALISTIC: Not necessarily. A man who's asked to shell out for his girlfriend's birth control pills would be a fool to refuse. It's peanuts compared to what his monkeyshines could cost in terms of child support.

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with HOT STUFF ON THE HILL—the 19-year-old girl who has passes made at her because she has a 38 bust. Well, I'm only 5 feet tall and I also have a 38 bust. I've had it since high school, and I've suffered terribly because of it. Blouses and dresses gapped. (I used a safety pin for every space in between.) Sweaters at least stretched, but I had to wear a size much too big in the shoulders so I wouldn't look like I was on the make.

I am now a happily married mother, but I still get come-ons from men I didn't know existed until we were face to face. Therefore, I know it wasn't my language or the look in my eye that provoked their passes.

I'm not ugly, but I'm no beauty queen either. My oversized bust has embarrassed me since I was 13. I get catcalls, whistles and even dirty remarks from men when I pass.

Abby, those women who feel cheated because they're small-busted should walk a mile in my bra.

38 AND HATES IT

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.M. IN MPLS: Don't quit trying. Sometimes it's the last key in the bunch that opens the door.

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 60s and have worn dentures for years. Recently I had a new set made, and the day I was to pick them up, my dentist had some of his relatives visiting in his office.

While I was in the chair, a boy who looked to be about 10 wandered in and stood right in front of me gawking while the dentist asked me to take my old dentures out so he could put the new ones in. I was mortified!

Abby, all these years none of my children or grandchildren has ever seen me without my teeth.

A few days later, when my mortification subsided and my sense of humor returned, I realized how lucky I was not to have had this stupid dentist for my gynecologist.

Park Ranger Speaks To Junior Women Wednesday

The November meeting of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville was held Wednesday night at the club building.

Brenda Whichard, chairman of the Conservation Department, introduced Lauris Joyner, park ranger for Goose Creek State Park. Joyner informed members on the present development of the park and the future developments planned by the state.

Ways and Means Chairman Lou McNamee thanked committee members and club members for their work for the October bazaar. Nancy Gustafson received the Yard of the Month award which is sponsored by the Conservation Department. Mrs. Whichard announced that proceeds from the department's stuffed animal sale will be donated to the North Carolina Zoo.

Chairman of the Education Department, Nancy Moldin, announced that her department is having a bake sale Nov. 5. In observance of National Education Week, a letter of appreciation will be sent to Greenville school teachers. The letter was composed by department member Barbara Andrews.

Kathy Keane, International Affairs chairman, announced that $66.20 was collected from the UNICEF canisters which were distributed to local merchants and that department members will be selling UNICEF cards at Pitt Plaza during this month. The CPR Training program, sponsored by the Public Affairs Department, will be held Nov. 7-8 at Stratford Arms. Sue Likosar, Public Affairs chairman, encouraged members to vote Nov. 8.

Watson Memorial Fund Chairman Barbara Andrews gave a report and said that a special suit for a burn victim had been purchased.

Mrs. Gustafson initiated Ingrid Civils, Linda Clark, Ann Coker and Glenda McLawhorn into active membership.

Community service projects for the remainder of the year include: collected needed items for Operation Santa Claus; sponsoring a foster child for Christmas through Pitt County Social Services; aiding the Salvation Army with the Christmas kettles; sponsoring a needy family for Christmas; and organizing the Mother's March for the March of Dimes.

Guests present were Catherine Burns and Marty Gilman.

Hostesses were Vicki Waggoner, Mrs. Whichard and Barbara Andrews.

In Short, We Favor Approval

Tomorrow Pitt County voters will join those across the state in deciding several important issues.

Here is The Daily Reflector's position on those issues:

□ Clean Water Bonds, $230 million. We are in favor. These funds will be critical to local communities in building new water waste treatment and water supply plants.

□ Highway bonds, $300 million. These funds will allow North Carolina to catch up on some delayed road projects. We favor passage. No new taxes will be required to pay them off and we think the East will benefit.

□ Constitutional Amendments 1 and 2 concern changes which provide equal treatment regardless of sex for homestead exemption and life insurance benefits. They should be approved.

□ Amendment 3. Empowers the governor and/or lieutenant governor to seek a second successive term of office. We favor approval.

□ Amendment 4. Allows municipalities to own generating facilities jointly with private utilities. This could be beneficial to customers of municipally owned electric systems and we favor its passage.

□ Amendment 5. Requires that the state will prepare a balanced budget and the governor will effect the necessary economies if he determines that a deficit threatens. North Carolina has operated on this principle for many years and we favor passage of this amendment.

To Vote Is Most Important Of All

We have set forth our position on the various issues which will face voters in tomorrow's election.

Undoubtedly some will disagree with us on some issues. That is entirely proper in a democracy.

Regardless of how any of us feel about the issues the most important thing is that everyone who is qualified should vote tomorrow.

Not only will the state issues be on the ballots but also many of us will be voting in municipal elections.

Every vote counts and all of us should go to the polls.

THIS AFTERNOON

Backstage Power Battle

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—At first glance it seems awfully insignificant—the matter of who writes legislative proposals for members of the North Carolina General Assembly.

But a measure of just how important that job is can be seen in current behind-the-scenes maneuvering to see who will carry out the bill-drafting function.

Knowing ahead of time what a particular legislator is up to, or what a specific proposal under study—but not yet introduced—will do can often play a big part in the final outcome.

There have even been cases where one jealous lawmaker rushed to introduce a measure with his name on it upon learning that a colleague was preparing to do such.

Why Fight?

On the important side, however, is the fact that opposition can be alerted and pressure brought to stop the measure even before it is introduced; special interests can be given lead time to rally support to opposition; amendments can be readied to effectively change the whole purpose of a measure under consideration.

These and many other actions can result from early knowledge of what is going on in bill drafting—even inside information about what a legislator may be thinking about long before he gets to the proposal stage, since many lawmakers will bounce their ideas around with the lawyer who will write the proposal.

Thus the stage is set for the present battle. From the beginning, the staff of the Attorney General's office was assigned legal responsibility for writing bills. About 10 years ago some lawyers to help were physically moved from the Justice Department to the Legislative Building.

Legislators could use those knowledgeable lawyers, write their own, get help from others such as state agencies or private interests concerned, or use the services of Institute of Government staff also readily available in the State House.

Things worked smoothly enough until about a year ago when the Legislative Services Commission decided to set up its own bill-writing staff, phasing out the Attorney General.

New Way

A number of factors prompted this: gaining internal control of the process and eliminating what some saw as a conflict between separation of legislative and executive roles; enlarging the staff of the Legislature to perform more research and support jobs; giving legislative leaders the inside track on who was going to propose what legislation rather than giving that power to the attorney general.

BILL NOBLITT

There were no complaints about the quality of work being done by the Justice Department staff. To the contrary, it was conceded that years of experience and expertise in specific areas of law possessed by deputy attorneys general were invaluable.

The 1977 General Assembly approved the change, but failed to delete the law giving the attorney general statutory responsibility for bill writing; so Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten has let it be known he wants to keep his crew on the job in the State Legislative Building alongside the new crew hired by the General Assembly.

Some legislators say that would work fine; others say absolutely no way. On the surface, the debate in housekeeping committees working while the assembly is not in session centers around space assignments for the working people.

But words such as ego, political power, secrecy, confidentiality, special interests keep popping up. Some lawmakers say openly that the whole thing has to do with Edmisten personally as attorney general and they want to freeze him and top aides out of the process. That agency, some legislators feel, spends too much time worrying about possible trail outcomes and legal challenges and political implications of legislative proposals.

The showdown will come if Edmisten's people are removed from the Legislative Building, and when a bill is written to take away the involvement of the attorney general in bill drafting entirely.

A Question Of Ethics

WASHINGTON — While scrounging around the front pages of the newspaper the other day, I found a fascinating story. Mr. Robert P. Beasley, a former executive vice president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., was indicted in Manhattan on charges of having stolen more of $1 million in corporate money, which was supposedly set aside for illegal political campaign contributions.

Mr. Beasley, so the 40-count indictment reads, allegedly used the political slush money that Firestone set aside to finance personal investments and debts he had accrued.

The reason the story attracted my attention is that it seemed to me to be the perfect textbook case for any graduate business school.

I sought out my old friend,

Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who holds the "Chair of Jurisprudence and Big Business Payoffs" at Conglomerate Tech.

"Professor, assuming the facts are as they have been presented in the indictment, who is right, Beasley or Firestone?"

Applebaum said, "First, we must remember that Beasley has not been convicted of any crime and still must have his day in court. Therefore, we have to deal with this case hypothetically. The tire company allegedly set aside $1 million for a political slush fund, presumably to win over politicians to the cause of rubber. Although illegal, this is a good standard business practice.

"Beasley allegedly was responsible for disbursing these funds to worthy officials who, when elected, would look kindly on Firestone when a government rubber problem came up.

"But if he used the money for his own personal benefit, Beasley violated the trust the company had put in him."

ART BUCHWALD

"But if the slush fund was illegal in the first place, what is the difference between what Beasley did and what Firestone attempted to do?"

"I would say that the answer is that when a large corporation sets aside a million dollars to illegally finance political campaigns, it is the obligation of the individual assigned to dispense the money to see that it goes for what it was designated for. After all, you have to sell a lot of tires to raise a million dollars."

"Yet, isn't it possible that Beasley needed the million dollars more than the politicians who were supposed to get it?"

Applebaum said, "That's possibly true. But no company which sets up an illegal political fund can afford to let one of its officers keep the money for himself. This would be breaking faith with the stockholders who expect a company to spread a slush fund around where it will do the most good. How can a corporation ask a politician to do it a favor when it hasn't contributed to the candidate's campaign?"

"Right," I said. "But look at it from this angle. Maybe Beasley did Firestone a favor. If he had used the money illegally for political contributions all the top officers of Firestone might have been indicted. This way only he got indicted, and the Firestone people are off the hook.

To the editor:

Because alcohol is a drug that can harm your body, your mind and your future, anyone who drinks it is taking a drug that can be dangerous.

Adults can't continue to drink and expect their teenagers not to imitate them. We need to get the family to find out how alcohol is introduced into the family, how problem drinking develops in the home. Evidence shows, according to the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcoholism, that kids who have parents who don't abuse alcohol also don't abuse it.

Do our churches play an important role in dealing with the problem of alcohol? Reaffirming moral values is urgently needed. Schools should be involved, also, and we are grateful that the Pitt County and Greenville City Schools are actively involved.

We need to take a long look at the media, for it plays a vital role. Do your children listen to the radio and watch television more hours than they spend at school? Don't your children try to emulate their idols?

Doesn't the television treat alcohol as a problemsolver, something that make one worldly wise, sexy, successful? Children love sports. They like to compete. And when they see their sports idols drinking, they want to follow their example. No, all advertising is not bad. Some of it could be helpful.

Parents, what good is it to give materials and information to our children from the drug education programs at school when the child goes home and finds his parent using alcohol and becoming abusive?

Yes, alcohol is a drug and it is the dirtiest drug that's available now.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Begin Is Changing Israel

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

JERUSALEM — Only a glimmer of fundamental changes in Israeli psychology wrought by Prime Minister Menachem Begin is visible today, but the boldness of that change shows that, if his health holds up, Israel will be far more formidable on the world stage than ever before.

Following 30 years of rule by the Labor coalition, flabby and scandal-ridden when it lost the election last May, Begin shows none of the self-conscious reserve of a Levi Eshkol or a Yitzhak Rabin, two of Labor's prime ministers. Israel's new mood, a flattering and revealing reflection of Begin himself, is one of uninhibited militancy about Israel's place in the sun.

For the first time since Israel conquered Bast Jerusalem from Jordan, an American official was snubbed by Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kolek, and the snub made headlines. The issue was Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal's routine request to Kolek for an "official" tour of West Jerusalem, but not East Jerusalem. The U.S. does not recognize Israeli sovereignty over former Jordanian territories.

Although every U.S. official has handled this political problem the same way, Kolek refused to play host for Blumenthal. Kolek claimed he needed no U.S. approval for the unification of Jerusalem — "the city was already unified, by King David."

The rebuke was symbolic of Begin's militant, didactic politics of psychology. In Washington last summer to meet President Carter, Begin was briefed by aides on questions he would be asked on "Meet the Press." He answered the first rehearsal question with an evocative recital of the fall of the second temple in Tisha Bav, the ninth month in the Hebrew calendar, in 70 A.D. He told his surprised briefers: Whatever the first question I am asked, this will be my answer.

Begin often talks about "mamla'chtut" — a word embodying liberty, sovereignty and dignity. A teacher as well as philosopher and disciplined politician, Begin above all is a true believer in the mystical link that connects modern Israel with the Kingdom of David and, later, the cataclysm of Bar-Kochba, the doomed Jewish revolt against Rome in 130 A.D. which ended in slaughter of the Jewish remnant.

"The world does not pity the slaughtered," Begin wrote in "The Revolt," his brilliant, chilling description of his terror campaign against British control of Palestine, "it only respects those who fight."

He has created a mood of excitement and purpose that revolves around himself and has infected many of his people (but dismayed and frightened some). He commands the strongest Knesset majority ever, outfoxing the new Democratic Movement for Change (DMC), headed by dovish Yigael Yadin, which joined his Likud coalition two weeks ago on humbling terms. "If the Americans think they are getting a vice president in Yadin," one Beginite told us, "they don't know Begin."

In sharp contrast to previous governments, Begin totally dominates the issues he believes important: defense, foreign policy and, most important of all, relations with the U.S. Elsewhere, he dislikes interfering with his generally undistinguished ministers, although, of course, such ma-

Strength For Today

LEAVE IT IN BETTER HANDS

A man who faced a multitude of personal and business problems which nearly drove him to desperation later described how these problems were solved. "I concluded after a terrific struggle," he said, "that if God could manage the universe he could manage my tangled affairs. Acting on that assumption I put everything in His hands and found that it worked."

Nills of other people through the centuries have also found that this solution works. Of course God has given us certain powers which He expects us to use, and He never does for us what we can do for ourselves by the use of these powers. But of one thing we can be certain—the final outcome of events is never in our hands alone. After we have done everything we can do in any given situation, there is much more than can only be done by God.

So it all comes back again to the question of whether we have faith. God still remains our refuge, and underneath are the Everlasting Arms.

Cheap Holiday In House-Swap

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Tired of the traditional vacation at a resort or hotel? Looking for a place to stay that's big enough to hold the whole family without breaking the budget? Try house-swapping.

You can get a rent-free holiday by temporarily trading your home with someone in another part of the country or world. It is time to start planning now, however, if you're interested in a swap next summer.

The advantages of house-swapping are that you have no hotel bill, you can cut down on restaurant costs by cooking your own meals and you may have a car included in the exchange. You also can learn what it's like to live in a community instead of getting only a tourist's-eye view.

There are disadvantages, too, however. With a few exceptions, maid service is not included in the swaps. You may be nervous about the idea of leaving your own possessions with strangers. The house you select may not be exactly what you had in mind. And the exchange services which put would-be house-swappers in touch with each other offer no guarantees of satisfaction.

There are a number of house-swapping plans available, but they all operate in the same basic method. An interested individual who wants to trade his or her home pays a fee to have it listed in a directory published by an exchange service. The listing usually includes a basic description of the house or apartment, the location and the time it will be available for swapping. Some services also include people who want to rent, rather than trade their homes.

Copies of the directory are mailed to everyone who has listed a house. You also may subscribe to the directory without listing your own residence. Either way, it is up to you to make contact with the owner of a listing that interests you and to work out the details.

Fees for the service generally range from $10 to $25, depending on whether you want to list your house or just receive the directory.

Most exchange services publish two lists — one around the beginning of the year and a second, auxiliary list in the early spring.

Ben Kernan of Inquireline, a Katonah, N.Y., house-swapping service founded in 1975, said Nov. 15 is the deadline for listing a home in the agency's main directory; March 15 is the deadline for the auxiliary publication. Kernan said the service expects to have about 500 listings this year — 60 per

Airline Prose Review

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

OVER DENVER (AP) — In case nobody has noticed, the airline in-flight magazines are going in for some very uplifting literature these days.

Now on a cross-country hop or even the milk run out of Scottsbluff, Neb., or aboard the Boston shuttle you can dip into best sellers like Walker Percy's "Lancelot," John Cheever's "Falconer" and Phil Caputo's "A Rumor of War" instead of memorizing that little plastic card telling where the exits are.

So far, none of the jet set culture custodians has dared to break any new literary contrails with an offering like Erica Jong's "Fear of Flying" or Piers Paul Read's "Alive; the Story of Andes Survivors," in which the passenger list gets confused with the menu, but there is real hope for the English language at 37,000 feet.

After years of heavy turbulence on the lips of stewards making cabin announcements, the mother tongue at last may be tickled, as they say aloft, for friendlier skies and not have to deplane from the rear.

Both "ticketed" (as in "are you ticketed?") and "deplane" failed to make the latest edition of the Oxford English Dictionary, but they are hardly the outer abominations of airline prose.

Just this morning as we were taxiing (to cite another noun converted to a verb at great expense by the aircraft industry) onto the runway, the captain came on the horn to wish us good morning and announce: "This is United's Flight 98 non-stop to Los Angeles. If there is anyone aboard not going to Los Angeles, this might be an excellent opportunity to deplane." Meaning, I suppose, that it could get a bit dicey deplaning from the rear or wherever when we climbed out over Long Island Sound to our cruising altitude.

"Are you lurching with us today?" cooed a sweet young thing, genuflecting by my side in the aisle in a curtsy borrowed from "The King and I." Have you noticed how courtly cabin crews have become lately, both in gestures and lingo, as the competition for customers gets tougher up there? Now where else did she think I'd be lurching at 27,000 feet over Lake Erie?

The question might be valid on Freddie Laker's no frills, brown bag airline or maybe aboard Air Syria during the Ramadan fast but there wasn't much choice aboard this "non-stopper," as the Flight Services Supervisor — the head stewardess in drag — kept calling our flight.

Somewhere west of the wide Missouri ("Down there on your left," the captain advised those of us who might be inclined to look skyward for the mighty river), the seatbelt sign came on "purely as a routine precaution" on account of what was deemed "light turbulence" was causing pots and pans to rattle in the galley closets, overhead luggage compartments to burst open and one tray of cocktails to seek a higher altitude.

"Our light turbulence unfortunately is accelerating to normal turbulence and we now have head winds," the captain came on again in his normal May Day voice, "so will the flight staff please pick up the cabin and resume their seats?"

Pick up the cabin? Did that

Warn Unemployment Cost Runs Into The Trillions

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Unemployment in the United States will cost the economy trillions of dollars in output and potential tax revenues by the end of this century unless joblessness is sharply reduced, according to a new study.

The study, released Sunday by the Exploratory Project for Economic Alternatives, was highly critical of the nation's recent leaders for allegedly trying to explain high unemployment, rather than taking steps to reduce it.

percent, instead of a hypothetical 2 percent.
The study said that if the United States had succeeded in lowering unemployment to the levels achieved by most European nations in the past 20 years, output would have increased $3.6 trillion, with an additional $750 billion in tax money.

In another economic report released Sunday, a group of 14 international economists expressed concern about the high rate of unemployment throughout the world.
"A number of countries have followed policies that have had a severely restrictive effect on output growth," the economists said, without mentioning any country by name.

The economists, representing Japan, Europe, the United States and Canada, included Bruce K. MacLaury, president of the Brookings Institution, one of the sponsoring organizations, and Paul McCracken, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers during the administration of Richard M. Nixon.

They expressed concern over an economic slowdown throughout most of the industrialized world that started in the spring, and noted that the outlook for 1978 was "not optimistic."

for (and politically risky) decisions as devaluation of the pound and the cut in consumer subsidies were made in the prime minister's office.
The change in the Knesset is equally dramatic. Begin insists on attending all sessions of the parliament — shunned by his predecessors as time-consuming and boring. Naturally, his ministers do the same. So far, he has left the civil service virtually untouched, despite fears of wholesale housecleaning.
Likewise, factional politics and playing favorites seem beneath Begin. When one very important Israeli ambassador started cutting corners around foreign minister Moshe Dayan, for private communication with Begin, Dayan "with the express knowledge of the prime minister" ordered him to stop.
One Begin problem dwarfs all others: the U.S. connection. Significantly, Moshe Arens, a Begin ally and fourth-ranking member of Begin's Herut Party, warned in the Jerusalem Post 10 days ago that Israel "is just at the start of a long dispute (with the U.S.), a contest for public opinion...We must decide on what issues we can buy the impression of flexibility and on what others we must draw the red line." That exactly reflects Begin's political strategy in his battle for the U.S. Congress.
In "The Revolt" Begin extolls "the fighting Jew...a specimen completely unknown to the world for over 1800 years." He wants American Jews to become "fighting Jews" for Israel in the political battle ahead. If Begin's charismatic leadership here is an indicator, Mr. Carter will need every weapon and every stratagem he can lay his overburdened hands on to prevail.

"Our national debate today is focused on the sad question of how high an unemployment rate we must accept, rather than on how low a rate we could achieve were we to make it our priority," said the study.
The nation's jobless rate was 7 percent in October, virtually unchanged from April. The report said that not too many years ago a 2 percent rate was considered realistic.
In an attempt to assess the cost of high unemployment, the study said the nation could lose $6 trillion in potential economic output and $1.3 trillion in federal taxes in the next 25 years if the jobless rate averages 5.5

fingered. If he had given the money to the people Firestone were trying to get in the bag, we might never have known about it.
"Not only did Beasley let his company down but he has made it practically impossible for Firestone to set up another political slush fund for quite some time. This means Firestone will have no support amongst elected officials for years to come. You can't run a tire company without political friends."
"Tell me, Professor, if you had been in Firestone's place what would you have done with the million dollars?"
"If I had thought Beasley was going to keep the money, I would have taken the million and bought the Goodyear blimp."

Four Brothers And Their Wives Keep Pledge; They Marry Again

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer
CABOT, Vt. (AP) — Four Vermont brothers and their wives — with a total of 123 years of married life behind them — have fulfilled a claim they'd made for years: Given the chance, they'd get married all over again.

The four couples repeated their vows Sunday in a special church ceremony replete with crying babies, popping flashbulbs and damp-eyed relatives.

Married again were the Lloyd Lovelys, Robert Lovelys, Ralph Lovelys and Paul Lovelys.

A hush fell over the United Church in Cabot as the couples, in fancy suits and long gowns, marched down the aisle to the strains of the traditional wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin." When the organist switched to "I Love You Truly," friends and relatives dabbed their eyes with handkerchiefs, kerchiefs.

"None of us ever had church weddings, receptions, honeymoons or even wedding cakes," explained Wilma Lovely, who married Lloyd 34 years ago Sunday. "We were married during wartime."

For Dora Lovely, who eloped with Robert at age 16, the ceremony served as "a booster shot" for the couple's 30-year marriage.

"The first one wasn't the same as doing it in church," she said. "And my parents were very upset because I was so young."

Ralph Lovely was married without the watchful eyes of family members 20 years ago because, as his wife Lola remembered, "We went by ourselves because it seemed like such a sacred thing."

Marge Lovely, married to Paul, endorses the idea of remarriage.

"I'm very grateful for the 39 years Paul and I have been married," she said. "Renewing our vows was something we wanted to do for our own personal gratification."

Others in the congregation rose at the request of the Rev. David McBride to repeat their marriage vows with the Lovelys.

"We pray for their children and grandchildren that from this example each might learn new possibilities for happiness, patience to endure and to understand, and renewed devotion to the marriage vows," McBride said.

The four couples have 11 children and 30 grandchildren among them.

Lloyd and Wilma Lovely were hosts at the reception after the service, and helped cut a huge white cake trimmed with pink and green frosting and topped by four pairs of bride and groom statuettes.

Another tradition was observed, too:

"Some things never change," said Paul Lovely. "I'm nervous all over again."

History Teachers In ECU Symposium

ECU News Bureau
WINDSOR — Approximately 35 eastern N. C. teachers of history and social studies gathered here recently for the 13th annual East Carolina University Symposium on History and the Social Studies.

Theme of the symposium was "Site-seeing: Historic Sites as Resources for Teaching" and the day's events included a tour of the Hope Plantation Restoration.

Located a few miles from Windsor, Hope (circa 1800) is the restored home of N. C. Gov. David Stone.

Symposium speakers included several faculty members of the ECU Department of History and John B. Ellington, N. C. Museum of History; Natalie Miller, Tar Heel Junior Historian Association official; Elizabeth Roberson, social studies teacher at Bear Grass High School; and John E. Tyler, chairman of the Historic Hope Foundation, Inc., Board of Directors.

Welcoming speeches were made by Larry Ivey, superintendent of the Bertie County Schools, and John B. Gilliam III, president of the Historic Hope Foundation.

Most symposium sessions were held in the amphitheater and cafeteria of Bertie Junior High School.

Names and schools of participating area teachers follows:

MARTIN COUNTY, Williamston — Pat Stephen, Martin Community College.

PITT COUNTY, Farmville — Gerald Morris, Farmville Central High School;

Greenville — Gaye M. Creagan and Patricia W. Shepard, Aycock Junior High School; and Jimmy Dunn and Celia Ray McLawhorn, Conley High School;

East Carolina University Dept. of History — Drs. Hugh Wease, Paul Murray, J. Connor Atkeson, Mary Jo Bratton, William Cobb, Betty Congleton, Kathleen Dunlop, Alvin Fahrner, Hebert Paschal and Fred Ragan.

Fire Officials Hunt Arsonist

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Fire officials in Morehead City believe arsonists are responsible for millions of dollars in damage over the past three years.

The string began, they say, with some abandoned houses on a rural road near this coastal community. The fires were quickly snuffed and attributed to vandals.

"Those houses were probably experimental," said one fireman. "They graduated to bigger fires."

Since then, the fires have become more elaborate, taxing the resources and energy of the 12-man full-time fire force, which also uses about 30 volunteers.

Sometimes firemen put out blazes only to have them begin again within a few hours. Once an abandoned house was set afire as an apparent diversion as another blaze was set a few blocks from the fire station.

The latest fire heavily damaged a Rose's store Oct. 26, six months after the same store was burned to the tune of $800,000.

The State Bureau of Investigation has probed the fires and rewards totaling $8,000 have been offered, but the alarms continue.

"It's been terrible for the last three years," said Fire Chief Edward Guthrie. He estimated 30 building fires, altogether since 1974 might have been the work of arsonists.

"I wouldn't even count how many cars have burned," he said.

In addition to the Rose's fire, others include a $100,000 blaze at a country club pro shop, $230,000 damage to a city recreation center, $762,000 at an elementary school, $750,000 at a lumber company and nearly $500,000 total to a theater, a commercial building and a hotel.

VOTE FOR CLEAN GOVERNMENT NOVEMBER 8, 1977

The time has come for City Hall to be run by a City Council that has competent leadership. Why should a city be controlled by a few people with power, wealth and influence that can make phone calls to City Hall in order to receive special privileges? Who are these string pullers?

Special privileges: economic blackmail, unequal and unfair enforcement of laws, codes, and zoning codes, pressure on people who refused to play ball with City Hall, cover-up of charges of wrong doing against City Officials, meetings before the City Council meets to decide what to include on the agenda, secret meetings that should be open to the public, allowing city officials to make decisions without knowing the law, denying the constitutional rights of certain citizens picked as targets, acts to prevent legitimated requests from the City Council, pressure on certain city employees who dare stand up to the political machine, etc.

Asks Delay In Duncan Trial

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Northwestern Bank board chairman Edwin Duncan Jr. is to go on trial today on charges of bugging FBI agents last summer, but his new attorney has asked for a delay.

The South's population is the fastest-growing in the U.S.

And Southern Railway is growing right along with it.

Not only is the South the fastest-growing area in the U.S., it's one of the seven fastest-growing areas in the world. And one of the biggest reasons is that industry is flocking to the South.

Needless to say, we at Southern Railway are happy about all this because each time the South grows, we grow, too.

After all, who do you think carries the raw materials to these new plants? And their finished goods to market? In large measure, we do.

And, as the South's population grows who do you think brings the things these people need? The cars, the carpets, the appliances, the clothing, the sporting goods and the food? Largely, we do.

But, we're not growing just to keep up with the ever-increasing population. We're growing to be prepared for an even bigger South of the future.

According to the federal government, the railroads will get an increase in freight volume of 143% by 1990. And the railroads' share of market will go up by a big 24%.

Will we get the lion's share of these increases when they come? Maybe. But whatever happens, we're getting ready for them by expanding right now. We're putting in a new $40 million freight classification yard in North Carolina. We're adding to our microwave communication system, which is already the largest in the South. And we're laying double track where one used to be enough to handle the traffic in the area.

So, even though we're growing right along with you, we're also growing ahead of you.

Because when the demand is there, we want to be there, ready to serve.

SOUTHERN
THE RAILWAY SYSTEM THAT GIVES A GREEN LIGHT TO INNOVATIONS

The Southern Railway is one more good reason for living in the South.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today for most of the western half of the nation. Milder weather is expected in the East.

Rain is due from the Southwest to South Dakota and for most of the Northeast. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
 Cloudy skies, with some fog and drizzle lingered over rain-drenched North Carolina this morning as the western part of the state cleaned up after death dealing floods. North Carolina counted nine dead in the wake of the weekend rains.

By tonight, the National Weather Service said skies would be clearing and the forecast called for sunny skies Tuesday, with continued fair weather through Thursday. Another chance of showers is forecast for Friday.

A tropical depression merged today with a system of heavy rains that extended northward through the middle Atlantic states. The depression, located this morning about 100 miles south of Cape Hatteras, was expected to diminish as it moved in a northerly direction.

Temperatures were generally mild around the state Sunday and were expected to be about the same today. Sunday's high readings included 77 at Charlotte and Wilmington and 71 at Raleigh. Asheville got no warmer than 60 degrees.

Find Body Of Drowned Man

SANTEE, S.C. (AP) — The body of a Reidsville, N.C., man missing on Lake Marion nearly two weeks was found Sunday afternoon floating near the pier of the Santee-Cooper Resort.

Orangeburg County Coroner Will Stroman said James Hutchins, 60, had failed to return from a fishing trip on the Clarendon County side of the lake.

Hutchins' body was found by a fisherman and was recovered by officers of the South Carolina Wildlife and Marine Resources Department.

The coroner has ruled accidental drowning.

Outdoing All In Proclamations

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — After less than two years in office, Gov. Cliff Finch appears to be easily outstripping his predecessors in the issuing of gubernatorial proclamations.

The proclamations — embossed, sealed and signed "Proclamation by the Governor" — are usually issued on behalf of noteworthy persons, civic groups, charity organizations and other causes.

But sometimes the honors are rather arcane. Finch proclaimed July 9 "Wolfman Jack Day" in honor of the disc jockey.

Mississippi observed the governor, this is United States Marine Corps Week and today is Black Elected Officials Day.

Weather Idled County Schools

Pitt County Schools were closed today due to unsafe driving conditions which resulted from yesterday's heavy rainfall.

According to a Greenville Utilities spokesman, 2.95 inches of rain fell on the area between midnight Saturday and midnight Sunday.

Superintendent of the Pitt County Schools Ott Alford said he did not feel the county road conditions were safe enough to permit buses to pass this morning.

"We had at least one bridge out in the Belvoir area...and there was high water in the Grimesland and Pactolus areas," said Alford.

"With the continuous swelling of the rivers in the area, I wanted to make sure that the roads were safe."

BUYING A LOT

Buying land involves risks. Contrary to popular belief, land is not a fail-safe investment. The Florida land boom of the mid-20's was not the only time people lost money speculating in land. It happens every day. Here are some guidelines which may help in reducing the risk factor.

Generally speaking, the more you pay for a lot, the surer you are of getting your money's worth. If you pay x-amount of dollars for a developed lot with utility lines already in, you may be better off than buying the same lot for one-half the amount before the roads and utilities are built out to it.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville, Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

Railroad Property Is Given Town Of Bethel

DONATE LAND . . . Bethel Mayor James Dupree, SCL Superintendent H. N. Strange, SCL trainmaster J. S. Wilkes and Walter Gray, Bethel Police Chief at ceremonies Friday at which Seaboard Coast Line Railroad donated almost 16 acres of land to the Town of Bethel.

BETHEL — The Seaboard Coast Line Railroad donated more than 16 acres of land to the Town of Bethel in parcels on both sides of the railroad in the downtown area here Friday.

The parcels are 75 feet wide on each side of the railroad's main track through town. The strip on the North side of the track extends from South Main Street some 4,285 feet to a point 360 feet East of State Road 1433, except for a 30 feet by 360-foot parcel where the SCL station is located.

The parcel on the south side of the track extends from SR 1433 almost a mile to point 500 feet beyond East Street.

H. N. Strange Jr., superintendent of the railroad's Rocky Mount Division, said some structures and streets are already utilizing a portion of the property which is no longer needed in the railroad's operations. SCL still holds 25 feet adjacent to the track on both the north and south sides.

"Donations of surplus properties of this type is an ongoing policy of our company," Strange said, "and Seaboard Coast Line is pleased to convey this land to the citizens of Bethel in the interest of continuing the long and cordial relationship between the community and the railroad."

Alumnae Group Adopts Patient

Members of the Greenville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority adopted a patient at Cherry Hospital and agreed to hold periodic religious services at area rest homes and the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center here.

The group held a dinner meeting at the home of Soror Beatrice Maye Saturday. Guests were Mrs. Lena Brown, Mrs. Maggie Metcalf and Mrs. Mabel Godette.

Reports from Kappa Sigma Undergraduate Chapter at ECU and membership committee presentations concluded the meeting.

The Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Soror Beckie Norcott.

Estimated 50 At Local Voter Rally

An estimated 50 persons attended a rally at the York Memorial AME Zion Church on Albemarle Avenue last night designed to boost voter interest and participation in Tuesday's election.

The rally was sponsored by the Citizens for Total Positive Government.

Pauline Robinson of Durham, an employee of the State Democratic Party reviewed the five constitutional amendments and the two bond issues to be included on the ballot. "We think the 'for' arguments outweigh the negative arguments," she told the gathering.

The speaker said, "We think they (they $300 million road bond issue and the $230 million clean water bond proposal) are necessary for the future of our state," while the constitutional amendments are "a matter of cleaning up our constitution."

Ms. Robinson said in her opinion, "Black people will benefit more than any other group" from the passage of the bond issues and constitutional amendments.

John Taylor, who acted as master of ceremonies at the session, encouraged support for the two Black candidates for seats on the Greenville City Council, incumbent Clarence Gray and John Bizzell. "The question is," Taylor said, "should we keep a voice at that council table?"

Austin Britt, David Nobles and Joe Melton to the Planning Board and named G. G. McLawhorn of Winterville Township as a new member of the board to replace J. H. Mobley who has resigned.

The board also named Dr. Eugene Furth and Mrs. David Hagans to fill vacancies on the Pitt County Mental Health Area Board.

Commissioners adopted a resolution approving the Chico Creek Watershed project which has been stalled since November 1971 by a landmark environmental suit in Federal Court.

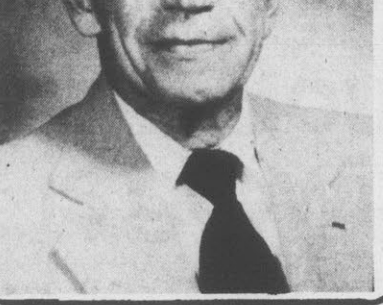

Parties to the suit agreed to changes in the plan last month. The resolution approved today by the board approves the plan as stipulated in the courts.

Soil Conservation Service conservationist Roy Beck indicated that cost estimates for the project has increased due to the stipulations agreed upon in court.

Irish Big Bowl Favorites

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Stop the presses! The main man in determining this year's college bowl picture is not grizzled old Bear Bryant of Alabama but a gentleman in clerical garb who works out of South Bend, Ind. i

The name, football fans, is the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the fancy-named Faculty Board in Control of Athletics. The entire board officially has to approve Father Joyce's recommendation, but they've been listening to him for 25 years so why stop now?

This is the problem: The bowl bids go out Nov. 19 and, according to a Sugar Bowl spokesman, "I'd guess Notre Dame will be everybody's first choice, but they'll have to make a value judgment as to who the No. 1 team will be on bowl day."

So, does Notre Dame, ranked fifth in the nation last week and an impressive 69-14 victor over Georgia Tech, opt for the Cotton Bowl, whose host team probably won't be settled until No. 1-ranked Texas, a 35-21 winner over Houston, meets Texas A&M on Nov. 26?

Or do the Fighting Irish decide that Texas A&M, 10th last week and idle over the weekend, will win the Southwest Conference shootout, thereby changing Notre Dame's course to the Sugar Bowl, where second-ranked Alabama nailed down the host spot, as well as its sixth Southeastern Conference crown in seven years, by trouncing 18th-ranked Louisiana State 24-3? The Crimson Tide has two regular-season chances left to lose — slim and none, alias Miami and Auburn and you pick which is which.

Or will it be Notre Dame's opinion that Oklahoma, currently ranked No. 3 and a 61-28 romper over Oklahoma State, will turn back Nebraska on Nov. 25 — the Sooners must first face Colorado next Saturday — win the Big Eight championship and become a stronger opponent in the Orange Bowl?

College Football

And now, the envelope, please.

"It would be nice if we could wait," says a source close to Notre Dame, "but if Texas is No. 1 on Nov. 19, we've got to go with them."

Of course, 13th-ranked Clemson, which was held to a 13-13 deadlock by North Carolina — guess what Clemson's unlucky number was this weekend — could spoil all the guesswork by upsetting the Irish come Saturday.

But if all goes according to form, it will probably be Texas-Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl, Alabama against the Ohio State-Michigan Nov. 19 loser in the Sugar Bowl and Oklahoma against the Nov. 26 Penn State-Pitt winner in the Orange Bowl, the loser perhaps winding up in the Gator Bowl.

"It's still kind of a confusing picture, but I think a lot of people will be jumping on Nov. 19," says another bowl official. "The results this week (Notre Dame-Clemson, Arkansas-Texas A&M, Colorado-Oklahoma, Brigham Young-Arizona State) will start settling the dust."

The Rose Bowl, of course, will pit the Ohio State-Michigan winner against the Pacific-8 champ, either Southern California, UCLA or Washington. While fourth-ranked Ohio State was trimming Illinois 35-0, No. 6 Michigan flattened Northwestern 63-20, No. 16 Southern Cal bombed Stanford 49-0, Washington knocked off No. 17 California 50-31 and UCLA turned back Oregon 21-3.

Besides Alabama, Louisiana Tech also won its way into a bowl. The Bulldogs defeated Lamar 23-6 to capture the Southland Conference crown and the host berth in the Independence Bowl.

Elsewhere, No. 7 Kentucky whipped Vanderbilt 28-6, No. 8 Arkansas bopped Baylor 35-9, No. 9 Penn State edged North Carolina State 21-17 and No. 10 Texas A&M was idle.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Nebraska beat Missouri 21-10, No. 12 Pitt drubbed West Virginia 44-3, No. 14 Brigham Young trounced Utah 38-8 as Marc Wilson passed for an NCAA record 571 yards and five touchdowns and No. 15 Florida State nipped Virginia Tech 23-21. Arizona State, tied for 19th, mauled Wyoming 45-0 while Iowa State, the other half of the No. 19 parlay, lost to Colorado 12-7.

As usual, Texas was led by Earl Campbell, who plowed for 173 yards and three touchdowns against Houston and moved into sixth place on the all-time NCAA rushing list with a career total of 3,887.

Wilson, who became a starter when Gifford Nielsen was injured, completed 26 of 41 passes in erasing the major college passing mark of 561 yards by Utah State's Tony Adams — also against Utah — in 1972. Wilson also surpassed the small college record of 568 set by Bob Toledo of San Francisco State in 1967. Ironically, Tom Stine of Central Methodist set an NAIA record Saturday by also passing for 571 yards in a wild 56-43 triumph over Culver-Stockton. That wiped out the mark of 564 set last year by Abilene Christian's Jim Reese.

Meanwhile, Grambling State's Doug Williams completed 23 of 30 passes for 378 yards and seven touchdowns to become the NCAA's all-time pass yardage leader with a total of 7,551, two more than Florida's John Reeves. Williams also upped his record for career touchdown passes to 84.

'Skins, Colts To Vie Tonight

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts entertain the Washington Redskins in Monday night's National Football League television special, a forum which provides both head coaches with their weekly psychological plays.

The Redskins have rolled up an imposing 9-1 record in the Monday night telecasts, a bit of trivia which Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda of the Colts molded into a post-Halloween horror story for the Colts.

George Allen of Washington, always looking for an edge to fire his "Over The Hill" gang, undoubtedly reminded the Redskins that it would be nice to maintain the Monday night hex.

The lure of a resumption of the neighborhood rivalry, dormant since 1973, produced a sellout of 60,000 fans who'd rather be in Memorial Stadium than watch the battle on the screen (ABC-TV, 9 p.m., EST).

Marchibroda, who served nine years as an assistant under Allen at Los Angeles and Washington, has his own theory as to why the Redskins have excelled on Monday nights.

"George always prepares his teams well," Marchibroda said, "and playing on Monday gives him an extra day to prepare."

At the moment, the Redskins need all the help they can get. With a 4-3 record, they're already three games behind the Dallas Cowboys in the NFC East and are one of four teams with the same record fighting for an NFC wildcard playoff berth.

Baltimore, although leading the AFC East with a 6-1 mark, can ill afford to lose. If the Colts fail to win their third straight division championship, they could miss the playoffs because of the few losses suffered by several AFC teams.

Washington, given an offensive boost by Joe Theismann at quarterback last week, is expected to be bolstered on defense this week by the return of injured linebacker Chris Hanburger.

Theismann, replacing Billy Kilmer, complete-16 of 24 passes for 218 yards and two touchdowns in a 23-17 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

10-Lap 'Sudden Death' Produces Wild Finish

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — The drivers were given a choice: Call it quits or put everything on the line for 10 laps.

Their decision produced the wildest finish of a Grand National stock car race since the 1976 Daytona 500.

Rain had doused every inch of Atlanta International Raceway with only 335 miles of the Dixie 500 finished. The sun was sinking even closer to the horizon behind a bank of threatening clouds.

The decision wasn't unanimous, but those who wanted one final showdown carried the vote.

"It's too wet," grumbled David Pearson, who was in the lead when the race was stopped. He figured to win his 100th Grand National if it stayed stopped. "It's gettin' dark, too."

The darkness was a big concern for Pearson and Richard Petty, who crashed together 400 yards short of the finish line in that memorable Daytona race. Both drivers have shaded windshields in their cars.

But the 32 remaining cars were lined up on a soaking track at 5 p.m. Sunset was 40 minutes away. They ran a few dozen laps to try and dry the track. Only two of the four lanes dried at all, but test driver Bobby Allison said they could probably do it.

The green flag was dropped just as the sun disappeared into the Georgia pines.

Petty had the lead for a couple of laps until Darrell Waltrip dashed ahead. Then Donnie Allison worked his way clear of traffic and nosed past Waltrip. The race was over, thought most people who had watched Allison flaunt his Chevrolet's power most of the afternoon.

"I knew Donnie had the fastest car on the track," Waltrip acknowledged. "But in the last 10 laps anything can happen."

Waltrip, who made yet another of his brash, daring desperation moves, "just rolled the dice."

"In the second turn I was able to get up next to Donnie when he went up around a slower car," he said. "We ran side-by-side all down the backstretch, but when we went into three still side-by-side, I knew I could win if I didn't mess up."

"I ran into three harder than I did all day. I made it through three and four just perfect, better than I had all day. When I saw the checkered flag, I looked in my rear view mirror and all I could see was smoke."

Allison swung sideways as Cale Yarborough headed to the wall. Both pounded into the concrete barrier. Momentum carried their disintegrating cars toward the finish line.

Pearson plunged through for second, 100 yards behind Waltrip, with Benny Parsons third. Allison and Yarborough wrestled their battered, smoking cars across the line for the next two positions. Richard Petty, who eased off when he saw trouble, was sixth.

It was dark, no mistake about it, when Waltrip pulled his Chevrolet into Victory Lane.

Someone wanted to know if he considered himself lucky.

"That makes me madder than heck," Waltrip grouched. "This team has won six races this year (and Waltrip relieved Allison for another victory). Luck ain't gonna win you that many races."

Crowd Can't Help Jazz

By The Associated Press

Elvin Hayes was apologizing to his Washington Bullets teammates, castigating himself for the paltry 52 rebounds he'd contributed in six previous games.

Nearby, a near-record crowd was filing into the Superdome to see the hometown Jazz, who had acquired a surprising habit of winning in this National Basketball Association season. The fans numbered 26,474, the third largest crowd in NBA history, but it didn't help the Jazz.

"It's something I felt I had to do," Hayes said Sunday. "I've been standing back, thinking,

NBA Roundup

"Let someone else do it." I felt I owed my teammates an apology and told them I was sorry."

Then Hayes backed up his apology with 21 points and 20 rebounds as the Bullets broke the Jazz habit and disappointed all of those fans, 108-97.

In other NBA action, the New York Knicks downed the Los Angeles Lakers 106-102, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Indiana Pacers 108-106 and the Kansas City Kings defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 99-83.

New York 106, Los Angeles 102

Jim McMillian burst out of a shooting slump — one that had cut deeply into his playing time for more than a year — to score a season-high 22 points for the Knicks, 10 of them in the fourth quarter. His 20-foot jumper with 6:59 remaining put the Knicks ahead to stay at 89-88.

McMillian led a troupe of five Knicks who scored in double figures, including Bob McAdoo with 18, Earl Monroe with 17, rookie Ray Williams with 12 and Lonnie Shelton with 11.

The Knicks never trailed in the first half, leaving the floor with a 67-57 advantage.

Portland 108, Indiana 106

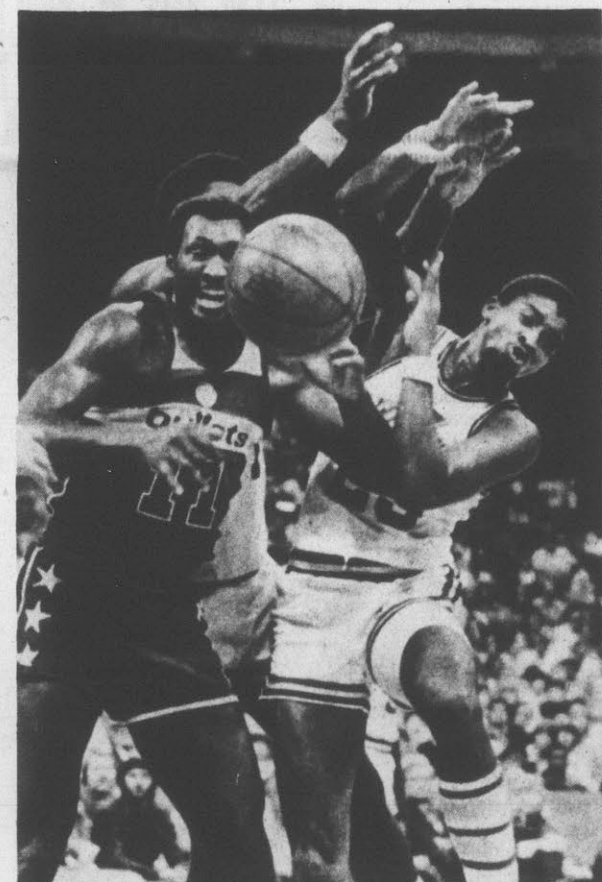

The Trail Blazers put down a late Pacer rebellion that trimmed their lead to two points three times in the final five minutes as Dave Twardzik scored 22 points and Bill Walton added 21.

Indiana's Dan Roundfield reduced the margin to 108-106 on a three-point play with 21 seconds to go. The Blazers followed with an effective passing game to run out the clock.

Kansas City 99, Seattle 83

Seattle suffered its 10th loss at the hands of a defector as former Sonic Lucius Allen poured in 24 points for the Kings.

The Sonics led by as many as seven points in the first quarter but the Kings went ahead by six at the half.

Bills Find New Star -- State's Hooks

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
O.J. who?
The Buffalo Bills, who lost superstar O.J. Simpson for the season with a knee injury last week, have found a new running star in Roland Hooks, who rambled for 155 yards Sunday to help the Bills upset the New England Patriots 24-14 in National Football League action. "They pulled themselves together," said Buffalo Coach Jim Ringo, whose team put on its best offensive show of the season despite the absence of Simpson. "They knew it wouldn't do any good to panic." "We had something to prove — that we weren't the worst team in pro football," said Hooks. "We had to get our self respect back."

It was only Buffalo's second victory in eight starts, and it left New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks confused and upset.

That was the first victory for a National Conference team over one from the American Conference this season. The AFC holds a 10-1 lead.

St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco also posted upsets, the Cardinals whipping the Minnesota Vikings 27-7, the Bengals edging the Cleveland Browns 10-7 and the 49ers beating the Atlanta Falcons 10-3.

But mighty Dallas easily survived the rash of upsets, defeating the New York Giants 24-10 to raise its record to 8-0, the only unbeaten mark in the NFL.

Oakland and Denver remained in a tie for the lead in the AFC West with 7-1 records as the Raiders beat the Seattle Seahawks 41-7 and the Broncos defeated the Pittsburgh Steelers 21-7.

In other games, the Kansas City Chiefs made interim coach Tom Bettis' debut a winning one by beating the Green Bay Packers 20-10, the Houston Oilers trounced the Chicago Bears 47-0, the Los Angeles Rams shut out the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 31-0, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the New Orleans Saints 28-7 and the Miami Dolphins defeated the New York Jets 14-10.

Washington plays at Baltimore tonight.

Lions 20, Chargers 0

"I was really nervous before the game," conceded Kane, Detroit's new hero. "They slowly brought me into this (starting) position. I think I was ready for it."

As for his touchdowns, both of which were scored on short dives over a stacked-up goal-line defense, Kane reasoned, "Up and over is the shortest way to the goal. It's the easiest way to go because the defense is usually down tight."

Cowboys 24, Giants 10

The Cowboys overcame 14 penalties to beat the Giants. Drew Pearson's three receptions set up two touchdowns and a field goal. They also scored when the Giants fumbled the ball twice trying to receive a punt, Jay Saldi recovering for Dallas and rolling into the end zone.

Despite the victory, Cowboys Coach Tom Landry was not happy. "I don't think we were mentally concentrating enough today to execute properly," said Landry. "It's a long season. It has ups and downs. Today was a down."

Cardinals 27, Vikings 7

Jim Hart threw two touchdown passes and running backs Wayne Morris and Terry Metcalf each scored twice.

The Cardinals, 5-3, remained in the running for a wild card playoff berth. The Vikings, also 5-3, lead Detroit in the NFC Central race by one game.

Raiders 44, Seahawks 7

Oakland scored seven of the first eight times it had the ball in routing the Seahawks. Ken Stabler threw three touchdown passes, Errol Mann kicked three field goals and Willie Brown intercepted two passes.

Broncos 21, Steelers 7

Denver's Orange Crush defense allowed Pittsburgh across midfield only three times as the Broncos kept pace with Oakland.

Special teams star Rick Upchurch provided the offensive spark, returning five punts for a team-record 167 yards including an 87-yard scamper for a touchdown. That was the first punt return for a touchdown against the Steelers since 1969.

Chiefs 20, Packers 10

Ed Podolak rushed for 98 yards and one touchdown as the Chiefs won their first game under interim coach Bettis, who took over after popular Paul Wiggin was fired on Monday.

Bengals 10, Browns 7

Chris Bahr's 47-yard field goal in the third period gave Cincinnati its victory and tightened the AFC Central Division race. Cleveland still leads at 5-3, but Cincinnati, Houston and Pittsburgh are all at 4-4-1.

Oilers 47, Bears 0

Houston's defense left Chicago with a net passing yardage of minus 16, while the Oilers' big-play offense overwhelmed the Bears. Billy Johnson broke loose for two scores, racing 75 yards with a free kick and 61 on an end-around, and Dan Pastorini hooked up with Ken Burrough for touchdown passes of 85 and 43 yards.

"It was the worst game I have ever been associated with in any form," said Bears Coach Jack Pardee. "We were humbled."

Rams 31, Bucs 0

It was the 22nd consecutive loss for the Bucs and spoiled the homecoming of Tampa Bay Coach John McKay, who had been a highly successful college coach at Southern Cal before going pro. Pat Haden, a Southern Cal grad, threw two touchdowns as the Rams, 5-3, moved to a one-game lead over Atlanta in the NFC West.

49ers 10, Falcons 3

San Francisco knocked Atlanta out of a tie for the NFL West lead, sacking Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski seven times for losses of 76 yards. The only touchdown of the game came on a 2-yard run by Wilbur Jackson in the third quarter.

Eagles 28, Saints 7

Ron Jaworski passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more, but the hero for the Eagles was punter Spike Jones, who pinned the Saints within their 10-yard line four times. Ironically, Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil had spent the week trying to find a new punter, but came up empty.

Dolphins 14, Jets 10

Bob Griese threw scoring passes of 20 and 24 yards to Duriel Harris and Miami's defense kept the Jets out of the end zone until the final minute. The victory moved Miami within one-half game of Baltimore in the AFC East race.

Woody Peale

Pat Dye thinks that it isn't all over for his Pirates when it comes to a shot at a bowl game.

"We are an exciting team," he has said on a number of occasions. "And this type of team would be one that would interest the fans of bowl games."

Dye also feels that the Pirates would have little trouble in selling the tickets that would be required should a bid be extended.

Saturday afternoon's game did nothing to dim the prospects of the East Carolina team. They did just about anything they wanted to at Appalachian, and whipped the Mountaineers in practically every phase of the game.

The 45-14 score could have been much worse. The Pirates pulled their first unit players early in the third period, and none of them saw action after that. Had the Pirates kept on pushing, they could have been in the 60's in all honesty.

Dye also feels that the Pirates chances may have been helped a little, at least as far as the Independence Bowl's outlook is concerned by a loss by Southwestern Louisiana against Arkansas State Saturday. Dye feels that the loss will prevent Southwestern from winning the conference title, and Louisiana Tech will thus be the host team in that bowl. He feels that ECU would be a natural choice to face Tech in that game.

A lot will be decided on Saturday in Norfolk, Va., at the Oyster Bowl. The Pirates will be entertaining William & Mary, a team which hasn't quite lived up to its potential this year.

But the Indians have a history of finishing strong, and they certainly won't be looking ahead to their next game, against Richmond.

The Indians feel they should have won last year against the Pirates in a close game, and they've been waiting for this year's chance for revenge. So the Pirates must be ready for them.

Playoffs Begin

High School playoffs on all four levels will get underway this coming Friday night, and two area teams will be in action, Farmville Central and Roanoke.

Farmville captured the Eastern Carolina Conference and brings a 9-1 record into the first round of the 3-A playoffs. The Jaguars will be facing Edenton in the first round, which will be played in Farmville.

Roanoke, winner of the Eastern Plains Conference, will also be at home for the first round of the 2-A playoffs. The Redskins will be hosting Camp Lejeune.

Both teams have had excellent seasons, and people in the area should give them a look Friday night, and cheer them on into the second round of play.

Pirates Played Well Against Appalachian

If East Carolina Coach Pat Dye were given to bursting into song, he probably could have been heard belting out, "Singin' In The Rain," Saturday afternoon at Boone.

His East Carolina Pirates did just about everything he wanted of them as they humbled the Appalachian State Mountaineers, 45-14.

The simple fact of the matter is that it could have been much, much worse. Dye called off the dogs early in the second half, and the reserves went most of the rest of the way.

None of the regulars were on the field throughout the final period except for punter Rodney Allen.

Perhaps only twice in the game did things not go according to Hoyle for Dye and his charges.

The first time came early in the game when Gerald Hall fumbled and Appalachian recovered the ball on the Pirate 13 yard line. They turned that into a touchdown just over a minute later.

Then, at the start of the second half, the Pirates had the option, and over-eager Harold Randolph told the referee that he wanted to defend one of the goals, thus turning the ball over the ASU on the kickoff.

"I expected us to win if we played well," Dye said in the dressing room afterwards. "You never know how one like this will turn out, and I didn't know how our folks would react. They were ready to play as it turned out. I kind of thought all week that we would be ready with the way our practices had been going."

One factor that helped the Pirates was ASU's loss of quarterback Robbie Price. He was injured in the second quarter when sandwiched by Harold Randolph and Noah Clark. "They made just a super play," Dye said.

The coach also felt that the remembrance of the licking the Pirates took in Boone two years ago had a lot to do with the outcome.

"Everyone on the team played, and I'm real proud of that. We gave up the big play for their score at the beginning, but we came back and scored quickly to even things up."

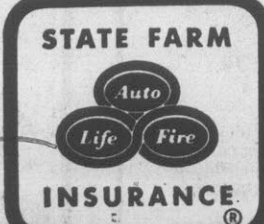

"I thought our quarterbacks were outstanding today. The offensive line must have come off the ball well to get the yardage in the middle that we did."

And Dye was pleased for the first time with the overall game. "I thought for the first time this year that all phases of our game came together except for punt returns. I don't think they would have scored if we had not fumbled early."

Dye also felt that the weather was a factor that helped the Pirates. "The team with the better defense and strongest running game will prevail in this weather."

And the coach felt that the bowl prospects may have been brightened again with the win. "I would like to think that today would get us back into the picture. Don't you think we would make an exciting team for a bowl?" he asked the gathered media.

ACC Race Still Unsettled

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer

It was to be the showdown of the Atlantic Coast Conference, deciding the league championship and clearing the fuzzy bowl picture.

But North Carolina's 13-13 tie with 13th-ranked Clemson didn't live up to its billing, leaving plenty of bowl hopes alive and the conference crown still unsettled.

"A rematch wouldn't make a bad bowl game," offered UNC coach Bill Dooley afterward. "I'd like to see it."

Representatives of seven post-season bowls were watching, but the tie likely knocked both teams out of the running for selection by the most prestigious ones present — such as the Sugar and Orange.

"We had to have distractions this week," said Clemson tailback Tracy Perry, who ran 12 yards for a touchdown. "There was a lot of bowl talk, and we weren't mentally prepared."

Meanwhile, eight bowl scouts were watching in Raleigh as North Carolina State went to the wire with No. 9 Penn State before losing 21-17. Though most of the bowls were there to see the Nittany Lions, N.C. State didn't do itself any harm with the thrilling performance, which included a school record 251 yards rushing by Ted Brown.

"I don't have any idea if we've still got a chance for a bowl," said a disappointed Bo Rein, whose Wolfpack is now 4-4 with a final game at Duke. "Seven-and-four teams have gone to some bowls, but I don't know what that tie over in Chapel Hill does for our chances."

In other ACC action, Duke dealt the eighth straight setback to Wake Forest 38-14, VMI licked Virginia 30-6, and Maryland edged Villanova 19-13.

A victory by either Clemson or North Carolina would have assured it a share of the ACC crown. But the tie, salvaged by a last-minute Tar Heel field goal, left UNC 6-2 overall and 3-0-1 in the conference — good enough to win the championship outright if the Tar Heels beat Virginia and Duke in their remaining games.

Clemson completed its conference schedule with a 4-1-1 record, but can finish with a tie for the conference title if North Carolina loses one of its last two.

UNC 13, CLEMSON 13
"We were thinking about the conference championship when we kicked the field goal," Dooley said of the decision to go for the tie on fourth-and-five at the Clemson 5.

Clemson took the lead early in the fourth quarter with a two-yard scoring run by Lester Brown. The Tigers could have iced it on a later drive, but Brown fumbled at the UNC 18.

Clemson coach Charley Pell pointed to offensive errors and the kicking game as reasons for the tie. Obed Ariri missed his first extra point kick of his career in the fourth quarter.

"I was pleased with the way the team came from behind and got ahead," Pell said. "It was our mistakes that kept us from winning the game."

PENN STATE 21, NC STATE 17

The fans got a thriller, but for Rein, "It wasn't any fun."

Brown, a junior, had his biggest day, putting him over the 1,000-yard mark for the season and over the 3,000-yard mark in his career.

"When you play good like that, it's the worst kind of game to lose," he said later. "It was all for nothing because winning is what counts."

N.C. State led until Nittany Lion quarterback Chuck Fusina threw an 11-yard touchdown pass with less than a minute remaining. Now Rein has the job of getting his team back up for its last game.

"Seven-and-four is a heck of a good season — a lot better than 6-5," he said.

DUKE 38, WAKE FOREST 14
"I thought our ability to control the ball was a key," said Duke coach Mike McGee, who gave most of the credit to quarterback Mike Dunn.

"Our offensive line was super," said Dunn, passing the credit on. "It's the first time I've ever seen them trying to convince me to run to their side. They were confident and the blocking was consistently good on every play."

Dunn threw a 33-yard pass to Glen Sandefur for one touchdown and ran 26 yards for another, as Duke upped its record to 5-4 overall and 2-2 in the ACC in a rain-soaked game.

MARYLAND 19, VILLANOVA 13

With tailbacks Steve Atkins and Alvin Maddox injured, reserve George Scott set a school record with 237 yards rushing and scored three touchdowns. He also broke lose for a 41-yard run that was the longest Terp run from scrimmage this season.

"Scott had a tremendous day," said coach Jerry Claiborne, whose Terps are now 5-4. "He enabled us to control the football with his running. We've got a pretty good team sitting on the bench."

VMI 30, UVA 6

VMI captured the mythical Virginia Big Five title with its win, which left the Cavaliers 1-7-1 overall. Virginia Coach Dick Bestwick said the performance

China Opens Arms To All Opposed To The Kremlin

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — China's Communist leaders in a lengthy review of the state of the world make clear that they have settled on a policy of being friends, at least temporarily, with anyone opposed to their enemies.

The article last week in the official Peking People's Daily disclosed there had been some disagreement over such points as how capitalists could be allies of the Chinese Communists.

The decision was to set aside some doctrinaire points in favor of practical results.

This explains the recent relatively good relations between Peking and Washington despite the article's assertion that the United States and the Soviet Union are exploiting, bullying superpowers, "the common enemies of the people of the world."

Declaring that the Soviet Union is the more ferocious, reckless and treacherous of the two, the article said putting it on a par with the United States "blurs the primary target," meaning the Soviet Union.

The opposition to being friends with ideological foes was led by the "Gang of Four," the radical leaders arrested last October, the article indicated.

"They opposed China's support to the Third World, opposed China's effort to unite with all forces that can be united, and opposed our dealing blows at the most dangerous enemy," the article said.

"They vainly tried to sabotage the building of an international united front against hegemonism and to disrupt China's anti-hegemonist struggle, doing Soviet social-imperialism a good turn."

Arguing for the united-front policy, the article praised the Soviet alliance with the Western allies against Germany in World War II and the Chinese Communists' alliance with the Nationalist Chinese government against Japan.

These were necessary, it said, to safeguard the Soviet and Chinese Communists from the greatest danger at the time.

Later, the Chinese Communists went back to war against the Nationalists, driving them from the mainland in 1949, and the Soviet Union took a hostile stance toward the capitalist West.

The Chinese view is that the nations of the Third World will naturally fight imperialism because they have been subjected to its most ruthless oppression. It considers Africa, Latin America and Asia, including China but excluding Japan and the Soviet Union, in the Third World.

"In the common struggle against the Soviet Union and the United States, it is both necessary and possible to ally with the Second World under given conditions," the article said.

It did not spell out these conditions.

The Second World is Japan, Canada and Europe.

While the Second World has exploited the Third World, the article continued, it also "is being subjected to interference, control and bullying by the two hegemonist powers and to their war threats, particularly on the part of the Soviet Union."

Sharing In Beautifying

Ayden-Grifton High School is taking part in a comprehensive beautification program for the 1977-78 school year.

The program is sponsored by Keep North Carolina Beautiful, Inc., in cooperation with the State Department of Public Instruction. The program encourages the total beautification of schools and communities.

According to Norm Leaf, coordinator of the program for the Department of Public Instruction, "The School Beautification Program is more than a fix-up, clean-up project. It helps young people understand local, national and world problems relating to the resources on which human life depends."

William C. Wiggins, principal of Ayden-Grifton, has already begun to survey the school's campus and the building for improvement and beautification preparations.

cane is the world's main source of supply for sugar and Tina's expression is surely the result of some distraction from her fall snack. (AP Laserphoto)

High Court Will Rule On Liability

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether Congress may place a $560-million ceiling on liability that operators of nuclear power plants would face from a major nuclear accident.

The justices said they will study a ruling by a federal judge in North Carolina last March striking down as unconstitutional the liability limit law passed by Congress in 1957.

The federal government said U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan's decision, if not overturned, "could stand as a major impediment to further private development of nuclear energy in this nation."

Separate appeals from McMillan's decision were filed by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Duke Power Co.

Act, unconstitutionally infringes on individuals' rights of equal protection and due process.

He said Charlotte-area residents "are threatened with certain injury of relatively minor nature, and with the reasonable likelihood of major or perhaps catastrophic injury, without assurance of adequate compensation if that should occur."

In urging the court to set aside the trial judge's decision, government attorneys said private operators such as Duke Power need to be insulated from excessive liability insurance costs.

"The act serves the dual purpose of removing the deterrent to private participation in nuclear energy programs that had been presented by the lack of adequate insurance to cover liability claims," the government said.

The controversy stems from a lawsuit filed by the Carolina Environmental Study Group against Duke Power involving two power plants under construction in the Charlotte, N.C., area — the Catawba Nuclear Station on Lake Wylie, about 15 miles southwest of Charlotte, and the McGuire Nuclear Station on Lake Norman, about 17 miles northwest of the city.

The environmental group challenged the federal law that, as amended, fixes $560,000 as the maximum amount all persons could recover for injury, death or property damage in the event of a major nuclear catastrophe.

McMillan ruled in a 61-page decision that the liability limit law, called the Price-Anderson

Three Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents claimed three lives in North Carolina, raising the state's highway death toll for the year to 1,207, the Highway Patrol reported.

The total at this time last year was 1,262.

In Cleveland County, Elizabeth Heavener Hill, 21, of Selby, was killed Saturday evening when the car in which she was a passenger was struck by a train at a railroad crossing in Grover.

Raymond Rogers Revis, 59, of Asheville, was killed Saturday evening when his car crossed the center line on U.S. 70, sideswiped one car and then hit another head-on. The accident occurred in Buncombe County 1½ miles west of Black Mountain.

Marshall Boone Hannah, 26, of Rt. 4, Waynesville, was fatally injured Saturday when his car was struck by a vehicle entering U.S. 276 from a parking lot 6½ miles north of Waynesville in Haywood County.

We Will Not Rest On Our Past Accomplishments . . .

"Greenville has made tremendous strides in recent years. We are now one of the faster growing cities in the Nation — the real challenge lies ahead . . . not out of fear of the "bubble bursting" but out of a firm conviction that we're really only just beginning to grow.

We will have to utilize our experience, our expertise and our common sense to insure that our continued growth — continues to be quality growth."

British Theater Drops Vouchers

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's National Theater is giving up its controversial "voucher" ticket system because too many people took advantage of it.

Under the scheme advance buyers paid 3.30 pounds ($5.77) for a voucher exchanged on the day of performance for a numbered seat, or 4.80 pounds ($8.40) for a specific seat bought in advance.

But the three-theater complex found too many people saving money the voucher way, so beginning Dec. 1 it will adopt the usual system of specific seats scaled at differing prices.

Manaos Indians

Topic Of Film

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — A Brazilian movie director has made a film about the 18th century Manaos Indian rebellion starring a direct descendent of the tribe.

The film, "Ajuricaba, the Rebel of the Amazon," describes a Manaos Indian's efforts to drive white colonists from the Manaos tribal lands in Amazonas, the vast jungle region whose rainfall feeds the Amazon river.

Guy Lombardo Is Dead, But His Royal Canadians Will Play On

NEW YORK (AP) — Guy Lombardo, who made millions and delighted millions for half a century with his "sweetest music this side of heaven," will be buried Wednesday.

But Lombardo's brother, Victor, promised that their band, the Royal Canadians, will go on and that the tune most closely associated with the famous bandleader — "Auld Lang Syne" — will be heard again Dec. 31.

Guy Lombardo died at age 75 Saturday night at Houston's Methodist Hospital, where he had undergone heart surgery in September. His wife of 51 years, Lillabelle, was at his side.

Hospital spokesmen said death was not related to the surgery but to a breathing problem that developed later and forced Lombardo's re-hospitalization Oct. 27.

The bandleader is to be buried in the Long Island community of Farmingdale on Wednesday.

Lombardo was a resident of the Long Island community of Freeport, where he owned a restaurant. He also promoted summer spectaculars at Jones Beach. His revival of "Finian's Rainbow" there last summer grossed $1.55 million.

Victor, the youngest Lombardo brother, said the Royal Canadians would stop work Wednesday to attend the funeral, but that the band would be touring Connecticut on Thursday as "Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians."

Guy Lombardo was an intense worker who began new ventures on stage when many others would think of retirement.

In 1969, 40 years after he first ushered in a new year for a national radio audience, Lombardo took his band to New York for its first appearance at the prestigious Carnegie Hall.

He said he got in the habit of ending each program with "Auld Lang Syne" — a practice copied by many other bandleaders in the days of big swing bands — because he started out with his first orchestra in western Ontario, which was "heavily Scottish."

The bandleader was born Gaetano Lombardo Jr., son of an immigrant Italian tailor, in London, Ontario, and was only 12 when he formed his first band with four other youngsters, including his brothers Carmen and Lebert.

The Lombardo brothers went to Cleveland in 1925. In 1927 they moved the band to Chicago.

In an era when jazz history was being made in the Windy City by Louis Armstrong, Bix Biederbecke and the like, Lombardo managed to become successful with his light, straight-melody music because it suited the dancing style of middle America.

Among the songs he made famous and profitable were "Little White Lies," "Boo Hoo," "You're Driving Me Crazy" and "Seems Like Old Times."

Lombardo once said of his success against the musical tides that "we lose 'em in their teens, but we catch 'em up later ... and when we get 'em we keep 'em."

GUY LOMBARDO, known for half a century of New Year's Eve celebrations, died Saturday night at Methodist Hospital in Houston at age 75. (AP Laserphoto)

Jeanne Moreau Back In France

PARIS (UPI) — Film star Jeanne Moreau will return to her native France from Los Angeles in 1978 to star in a film, "Adolescence," after first acting in a Hollywood production directed by her new husband, William Friedkin.

Her film here concerns a 1938 pre-war French village, with the lives of adults seen through the eyes of a young girl.

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K83 ♠6 ♦KJ8742 ♠AQ5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—This is a difficult problem. You want to be in game—even slam can't be ruled out—but three no trump is unlikely to be the right contract, if partner has only one stopper in hearts. We would suggest some jump bid in a minor, either three clubs or three diamonds. Despite the fact that your suit is not quite up to the standard for a jump rebid, we prefer the latter since it is more descriptive of your holding.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K106 ♠KQJ8 ♠76432 ♠9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. This hand is going nowhere once partner could not rebid one heart over your one diamond response. A two heart bid by you would be a reverse—forcing to game—and would only serve to get you too high.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J95 ♠7 ♦KQ103 ♠K9842
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
4 ♠ Pass Pass 4 NT
Pass 5 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Whatever you do, don't double. You know for sure that the opponents are in their worst spot. If you double, you will certainly drive them into hearts. Pass quietly and hope that they stay where they are. Undertricks at 100 apiece are not to be sneered at.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A65 ♠J87 ♦AKQJ62 ♠A
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Dble. Pass 1 ♦
Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid three diamonds. You doubled originally because your hand was too strong for any other action. Actually your hand is better than it need be, so you should jump in diamonds—two diamonds would show a somewhat weaker hand. If that coaxes a spade rebid from partner, we would go on to game in his suit.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K6 ♠A962 ♦AQ7 ♠AJ107
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1 ♦ Dble.
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You are decidedly stronger than minimum, so you must take another bid to advise partner of this. The choice lies between two no trump and three clubs. With only one stopper in the enemy suit and such good support for partner, we prefer the club raise.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK643 ♠KJ83 ♠K93 ♠7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Dble.
Pass 2 ♥ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Double. This is not a sure thing, but since partner is known to have some values and shortness in spades, defensive prospects are particularly bright, especially with the trumps stacked against declarer. Don't worry about the opponents running to three clubs—it is unlikely that they can make nine tricks anywhere and partner should have quite a few clubs.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQJ9765 ♠83 ♠952 ♠6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. A minor suit bid by partner would have been forcing, but four hearts is not. Don't make the mistake of taking out to four spades—you told your story with your first bid. Actually, you have a rather good hand for your partner—two trumps and a singleton.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AKQ83 ♠A9 ♠AJ6 ♠873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Since our hand is likely to produce seven tricks for partner, our vote goes to three no trump. Two no trump would be something of an underbid. The other choice is three spades, but the drawback of that action is that it suggests a rather more unbalanced hand with a longer spade suit.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.60 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07048. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: G equals I

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Timberlake Art Sold In Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina artist Bob Timberlake opens a one-man show at the Hammer Galleries in New York tonight, but for the third time all the paintings have already been sold in advance.

Timberlake, 40, paints realistic renderings of rural scenes, many of them from around Davidson County where he lives.

This week's showing includes 42 paintings, the most expensive of which sold for $21,000, according to Timberlake's agent, Hugh Morton Jr. The picture, "Around Boone," is a winter pasture scene.

Thin Ranks Of Black Voters

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The percentage of state voters who are black is down from 15.5 per cent in 1972 to 15.1 per cent this year, the lowest point in six years.

Elections officials say the reason is that officials have purged the voting lists of many voters who registered during the civil rights voter registration drives of the 1960s but have not voted recently.

Non-Voter Often The Least-Informed

By DAVID R. NIELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Last week Elections Director Alex Brock lamented that only 28 percent of North Carolina's 2.2 million citizens who are registered to vote will exercise that privilege.

While low turnouts are scorned, there is at least one advantage. The non-voters are largely the least informed citizens and the least capable of choosing leaders or deciding important issues.

That thought is not new in America. When the country was founded, suffrage was strictly limited: Landowners, for example, could vote, presumably because they were thought more knowledgeable.

Men could vote and women could not. Women, it was thought until this century, should not soil their minds with political matters. Besides, they were homebodies and lacking in the sort of education that would prepare them for voting, it was argued.

Literacy tests were once used, particularly in the South, on the theory that people who cannot read are unable to gather the information on which a solid judgment is made. Of course, illiteracy was high among blacks, leading to successful challenges of that policy.

All that is past. Today, the prevailing thought is that a citizen is dutybound to vote. The argument implies that voting is the important act, when in fact voting is only the final element in a long process.

Those who lament low voting turnouts justify their pleadings for more people to vote on the belief that, somehow, the collective wisdom will produce the best results. Critics do not have to look very far to find plenty of examples debunking that theory.

Uninformed voters have elected drunks, thieves and demagogues to positions of trust. Voters who base decisions on how a person looks and the slogans he tosses out during 30-second television commercials are doing themselves and their fellow citizens a disservice.

The same can be said of one-issue voters who refuse to look at a candidate's total record or platform. They could be losing far more than they gain.

The worst voters of all are those who go into the booth and guess. Their decisions are based on whether the name sounds familiar, whether they like its presumed ethnic origin or sometimes whether it is first.

Few people would advocate a return to restricting the voting privilege. In fact, that is not necessary because if the uninformed are simply left alone and not made to feel guilty about not voting, they will stay away on their own.

In short, critics of the "everybody vote" drum-beating say the effort should be to get people informed. A truly informed voter will have enough interest aroused by the candidates and issues to go out and vote, even if it meant standing in line.

Informing the public is no easy task. Information is presented by the news media, but some people won't bother to read it. Sometimes, they are scared off by the sheer volume of information.

So, what can be done? In Brock's view:

"I think that the government has to bear a little of that responsibility. We can't just sit back and say, 'Well, here it is folks. It's your country, your state and your election.'"

Brock advocates a ballot commission that would use tax money to inform citizens of what it is they are asked to vote on. It would be particularly useful in votes on bond issues and constitutional amendments.

As Brock sees it, the commission would also have the authority to translate some of the legalese on the ballots to plain English that voters can easily understand.

A ballot commission has been proposed to the legislature, but it was turned down. California has since adopted what Brock proposed several years ago.

If "voter apathy" is truly a matter of concern, Gov. Jim Hunt and the General Assembly should give Brock's proposal serious consideration.

Arrested 3 At LSD Factory

WAPPINGERS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Federal drug authorities Saturday announced the arrests of three persons charged with operating the largest LSD factory on record out of a trailer in an upstate New York town.

A spokesman for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration said the sophisticated manufacturing laboratory produced 1 million dosage units a month of the hallucinogenic drug, selling at $2 apiece.

The LSD was distributed nationwide, with most of it going to the West Coast, authorities said.

A six-month investigation by federal DEA agents, New York State police, and town of Poughkeepsie police led to the raid on two mobile homes in the Little Falls trailer park near Wappingers Falls, about 60 miles north of New York City.

Arrested were Eric Brown, 34, of Modesto, Calif., a jazz flutist and self-taught chemist, and his girlfriend, Denise LeFleur, 31, originally of Mission City, British Columbia, Canada.

They were arraigned Thursday in U.S. District Court in New York City and charged with conspiracy to manufacture a controlled substance, which carries a maximum jail sentence of 15 years, authorities said.

Police said Brown and Miss LeFleur lived in one trailer and operated a sophisticated laboratory from the other.

The DEA spokesman said Brown had invented a machine which dropped pre-measured amounts of liquid LSD onto a strip of paper and then cut the paper automatically every hundred units. The drug-soaked paper was ingested by users, authorities said.

Agents in New York City also arrested Andrea Layton, 25, originally of Pittsburgh, and charged her with distributing the LSD produced at the upstate laboratory.

Both women were released on $1,000 bail, but Brown was held in $50,000 bond.

The DEA spokesman said that previously, the largest known LSD factory on record was in Portland, Ore. That facility, which was raided in 1976, produced 400,000 units a month, the spokesman said.

Edmisten has been wavering all year on whether to seek the Democratic nomination to the seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms. The politically-astute attorney general has generated considerable suspense over his decision by seeing that newsmen are aware of each change of heart.

The latest bulletin comes from Edmisten aide Charlie Smith, who says the final decision will be announced Nov. 15.

"It's weighing heavily on my mind," Smith confided in an interview last week.

Smith added that Edmisten needs two additional pieces of information before he makes a commitment — results of Tuesday's constitutional amendment election and President Carter's chances of high popularity a year from now.

The vote Tuesday on gubernatorial succession is important, Smith added, because if it wins by a wide margin, it will be an indication the Democratic Party is sufficiently strong and united to whip Helms next year.

But Smith said Carter's popularity is far from assured, while Helms appears to be quite popular.

Edmisten would like to see the succession issue win Tuesday with at least 65 per cent of the vote, Smith said.

Edmisten commissioned a poll of the state to determine his chances. He and his backers have been studying the results for several weeks, but have not made them public.

Thank you for your vote of confidence in the October 11 election.

I am grateful for your support and I urge you to return to the polls on November 8.

The RECORD for October 11:

5th in a field of 18 candidates

2nd in a field of 12 challengers to the incumbents

The GOAL for November 8:

1st in a field of 8 candidates for 4 positions.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, apparently having serious trouble deciding whether he wants to be a U.S. senator, is now reportedly leaning against the race.

But Smith said Carter's popularity is far from assured, while Helms appears to be quite popular.

Edmisten would like to see the succession issue win Tuesday with at least 65 per cent of the vote, Smith said.

Edmisten commissioned a poll of the state to determine his chances. He and his backers have been studying the results for several weeks, but have not made them public.

Will Speak At ECU Seminar

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Ricardo Bach of the Lithium Corporation of America will direct the regular Friday afternoon seminar in the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry Nov. 11.

His topic is "Simple and Complex Hydrides of Group I-III."

The program, scheduled for 2 p.m. in 201 Flanagan Building, is free and open to the public.

ECU's chemistry seminar series is co-sponsored by the ECU chemistry department and the Union Carbide Corporation.

Edmisten has been wavering all year on whether to seek the Democratic nomination to the seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms. The politically-astute attorney general has generated considerable suspense over his decision by seeing that newsmen are aware of each change of heart.

The latest bulletin comes from Edmisten aide Charlie Smith, who says the final decision will be announced Nov. 15.

"It's weighing heavily on my mind," Smith confided in an interview last week.

Smith added that Edmisten needs two additional pieces of information before he makes a commitment — results of Tuesday's constitutional amendment election and President Carter's chances of high popularity a year from now.

The vote Tuesday on gubernatorial succession is important, Smith added, because if it wins by a wide margin, it will be an indication the Democratic Party is sufficiently strong and united to whip Helms next year.

But Smith said Carter's popularity is far from assured, while Helms appears to be quite popular.

Edmisten would like to see the succession issue win Tuesday with at least 65 per cent of the vote, Smith said.

Edmisten commissioned a poll of the state to determine his chances. He and his backers have been studying the results for several weeks, but have not made them public.
