Gov. Hunt Petitions For County Board Aid To Flooded Counties OKs Step To Speed Service

By The Associated Press
Gov. Jim Hunt petitioned the White House for help as state agencies began moving into the flood-stricken mountain counties of western North Carolina today to assess damage and join cleanup efforts.

State and local officials began compiling the detailed damage statistics which Hunt will need for his formal request later this week for a disaster declaration for the area from President Carter.

Hunt said Monday he had written Carter to advise him the formal request was being prepared and had been assured in a telephone conversation with a White House aide that the request would get speedy handling when it arrived.

The governor wrote his letter after a personal tour of areas damaged by flood-swollen streams after abnormally heavy rain Sunday.

The waters were responsible for 10 deaths and left towns in several counties in a complete shambles with houses and mobile homes swept away, businesses flooded, bridges collapsed, roads cratered and a thick layer of brown mud over everything.

Hunt's press secretary Gary Pearce said about 1,000 persons had homes damaged or destroyed, and civil preparedness workers were in the area to feed and shelter them.

The state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development was working on temporary housing, Pearce said, and Human Resources personnel were on the scene to deal with water supply contamination and other water problems.

Old Fort had water hauled in by National Guard personnel and Asheville's water acquired a strange taste and color, although officials said it was safe to drink.

Natural Resources spokesman Steve Meehan said $70,000 had been released to hire 50 cleanup workers for 90 days to work in Mitchell, Polk, Madison and Avery counties, and talks were to take place today for a similar arrangement for McDowell, Watauga, Alleghany and Ashe counties.

The state Transportation Department rushed crews into the area to begin work on nine primary highways and 82 secondary roads blocked by bridge washouts.

High water, mudslides and bridge washouts made school transportation unsafe in some areas and several counties closed their schools Monday, among them Wilkes, Watauga, Alleghany, Ashe, Madison, Avery, Yancey, McDowell, Mitchell and Buncombe.

School officials were still considering late Monday whether to reopen classes today.

Insurance companies began reporting automobile claims for cars carried away or heavily damaged. The North Carolina Insurance News Service said it had learned of 105 vehicle claims by Monday.

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved hiring five new employees for the Department of Social Services to speed processing of Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) applications.

The action was taken in light of a federal judge's statements saying Pitt is one of several counties in North Carolina that have a backlog of applications and indicating that he might fine the county if the situation doesn't improve.

Director of Social Services Dot Bolton told the board yesterday that 15 forms are needed to complete one AFDC application while a like number of forms are required for review of each AFDC application each six months. She said a dozen forms must be completed to add one baby to an AFDC application, while four forms are required to change one address.

The five new workers will cost the county $18,137 while the federal share of the expense will amount to more than $20,611. The State will contribute more than $2,000 to the cost of employing the new workers.

Commissioners named Mrs. Curtis Worthington to replace Ray Parker on the Greenville Joint Planning and Zoning Board, and appointed Henry Oglesby of Grifton to replace Wiley Gaskins on the Board of Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute. The board also reappointed Thomas W. Rivers, S. W. Dunn and Charlie Hardee to the Tar River Port Commission pending approval of the Greenville City Council which jointly appoints the Port Commission board.

In other business yesterday, the board approved an application for $37,000 in State grant funds to hire an outreach worker for the Department of Social Service's food stamp program. Miss Bolton told the board that between 8,000 and 9,000 persons currently receive food stamps in the county and indicated government officials say some 30,000 persons in Pitt should be receiving aid under the program.

Commissioners also approved a lease agreement under which local rescue squads would be able to use Pitt Ambulance Service vehicles to provide rescue service in their areas in the event the squad's vehicles are out of service and the ambulance service vehicles are not in use.

Also on yesterday's agenda was the review of a letter, for informational purposes, to Pitt Board of Education chairman Mark W. Owens from Henry Dunn, chairman of the Greenville City Board of Education regarding the proposed merger of the two school systems.

Commissioners in September asked the two boards to plan for merger of the city and county school systems, citing disagreement over the sharing of capital outlay funds received from tax levy and bond issue and on district attendance areas as two reasons. The board also said administration and

Carter Speaks Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's pollster says the president's falling ratings in public opinion samplings will bounce back if Congress passes an energy bill to the president's liking.

"The president knew from the start that energy was a politically unpopular issue with everybody," said pollster Pat Caddell in a recent interview.

"But it was a necessary initiative, and if he gets the bill he wants, then he can say that despite all the talk about energy all these years, he was the first president to really do something about it."

Carter is making a nationally broadcast speech at 9 p.m. EST tonight to push for his energy package, which is now in a House-Senate conference committee. The speech will be broadcast live on all three major networks.

On Monday, the White House also announced that Carter's scheduled overseas trip to nine countries has been postponed so he could devote himself to energy legislation.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said Carter told heads of state that "his personal involvement was vital to the development of a sound energy legislation." Powell said the trip might be rescheduled "sometime after Christmas."

Carter's speech is coming on the heels of a Harris poll released Monday showing that the majority of Americans feel the president is not doing a good job after nine months in office.

The poll, taken the week of Oct. 8-16, indicated that 50 percent of 1,533 adults questioned gave the president a negative overall job rating, while 48 percent were pleased.

Another Nuke Treaty Seen With Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet offer to halt so-called "peaceful" nuclear explosions probably will lead to a treaty banning all underground tests, a high-level Carter administration official says.

But the treaty will fall short of Kremlin desires in at least one area, he said. The United States will reject a previously unrevealed facet of the offer, a Soviet request for an understanding that testing for civilian purposes be allowed to resume in three years or so.

Even without that concession by the United States, however, the Soviets are expected to agree to a ban.

In fact, the official said, the Russians had no major experiments planned during that three-year period anyway.

The Russians have tested underground nuclear explosions for such projects as reversing the courses of rivers. For years, they wanted these blasts to be allowed even while prohibiting underground weapons tests.

But administration arms experts say the distinction between a "peaceful" and a military test is difficult to verify. Beyond that, they say, it is almost impossible to separate military benefits derived from such a test from the peaceful benefits.

John Ingram Associate Indicted By Grand Jury

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Howard R. Bloom, an associate of state Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram, was expected to post a $10,000 bond today after his indictment on charges of extortion and of soliciting money from an insurance company to bribe Ingram's subordinates.

Bloom was indicted Monday by a Wake County grand jury on four felony counts — two of extortion, one of solicitation to enter a conspiracy to bribe public officials and one of solicitation to bribe public officials.

Superior Court Judge A. Pilston Godwin Jr. set bond for the 44-year-old Roanoke Rapids restaurateur at $10,000.

Bloom's attorney, Richard G. Singer, said his client would post the bond today in Roanoke Rapids and would plead not guilty to all of the charges.

If convicted, Bloom could receive a maximum prison sentence of 10 years on each count and a fine at the discretion of the court.

The indictments charge that Bloom sought money and a commission from the First Financial Insurance Co. of Chicago to use alleged influence to get the company licensed to sell insurance in North Carolina.

The indictments also allege that Bloom told the company that part of the money would go to "underpaid" Insurance Department personnel.

In addition, it is charged in the indictments that Bloom told officials of the Chicago firm and of Columbia Accident and Health Insurance Co. of Bloomsburg, Pa., that their applications for licenses to do business in North Carolina would be held up unless they paid him a "substantial sum of money."

District Attorney Burley Mitchell said there was no indication that Insurance Department officials cooperated with Bloom, but said a State Bureau of Investigation probe of Bloom's activities would continue.

Mitchell said Bloom would be arraigned in four to six weeks and that the trial probably would be held after the first of next year.

Bloom once served as an Ingram appointee on the Commissioner's Insurance Council, an advisory group, and the two men have been overnight guests at each other's homes. The two were involved in a $400,000 land transaction in 1973.

Inspected 2 Hours Prior

By JACK STILLMAN

Associated Press Writer
TOCCOA (AP) — The Kelly Barnes dam, was inspected two hours before it broke Sunday, killing at least 38 persons, and those who looked at it said it was "as solid as a rock," an aide to Gov. George Busbee said today.

Tom Perdue told a news conference that David Fledderjohann and several other persons inspected the dam because of the torrential rains which had been occurring and they reported there seemed to be no danger.

However, they continued to watch the creek below Toccoa Falls, which flows through the Toccoa Falls Bible College and when the water began to rise about 1:30 a.m. Sunday they began warning people in the floodplain below the falls to leave.

Fledderjohann, who is responsible for inspecting the dam on a regular basis, was killed along with several other volunteers who were warning residents in the disaster area, Perdue said.

He said that because of the question of dam inspection, he spent much of Monday night trying to determine the last time the dam was inspected.

"Last year," Perdue said, "the college received $39,500 from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration for repairs along the creek bank, some roads and some buildings because of flash flooding which occurred Memorial Day last year."

Turnout Of Voters In N.C. 'Erratic'

By The Associated Press
Voting patterns were erratic across North Carolina this morning as voters cast their ballots on five constitutional amendments, two bond issues and numerous local offices.

In Asheville and Buncombe County, voting was reported "slow but steady." Turnout was slightly heavier in the city where several city council members were up for election, but lighter in the county.

Poll watchers said the light turnout could be due partly to the recent flood in the area, which left some people isolated and others faced with a massive cleanup job.

Turnout was above average in Charlotte but light in Mecklenburg County. In the Greensboro area, overall turnout was light and voters were slow to arrive. Some precincts reported heavy polling as voters decided on a mayor and six councilmen.

The town of Eureka in Wayne County reported 15 people voting in the early morning rush. The town of 200 said that's a heavy turnout.

In Winston-Salem turnout was moderate this morning. But in Durham and Raleigh, the vote was far heavier than in last year's Oct. 11 primary.

Voting in Durham was described as "surprisingly heavy" with one precinct reporting four times as many people voting this year as they did by the same time last year.

In Raleigh, voting was also reported considerably heavier than in the primary. Many precincts had already equalled their total turnout for last October's primary by 9:30 a.m. today. Poll watchers estimated the voter turnout would be 30 to 35 per cent.

Housing Authority Will Advertise For Bids

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Housing Authority will advertise for bids this week for 50 units of housing for the elderly under the Section Eight program, it was announced at Monday night's meeting.

The Authority's executive director, Joe Laney, said that a Dec. 6 bid opening on the housing package will be aimed for.

According to Laney, Interstate Securities Corp. of Charlotte, which has been contracted by the Authority for bond underwriting services on the mid-rise project, has been informed of the bid schedule.

He pointed out that if the bids received are not within the project budget, negotiations will proceed with the low contractor.

Commissioners agreed to consider a contract with Cable TV here to allow for the main cable of the new service to be placed on Housing Authority property.

Laney said that Cable TV is just beginning to survey the area for service information and cables will be installed in the city right-of-way areas. Main cables will also be installed, with the approval of the housing board, on the Authority's property and tenants will be served with Cable TV according to individual requests.

The Cable TV organization will prepare a contract and submit it to the Authority for consideration.

In other business, commissioners voted to endorse the application by the City Council for 100 units of existing Section Eight, housing with the Authority serving as the administrator of the program.

According to Laney, the Greensboro office of Housing and Urban Development is anxious for the Authority to apply for the existing housing units to see how the proposed program will work.

The Authority discussed the program at the September meeting and questioned the fair market rent that would apply with existing housing. Since low market rents would be involved in existing unit programs and in view of the low vacancy rate in the city, it is questionable that enough local interest could be generated.

Laney explained at the September meeting that emphasis in the past has been on new construction under the Section Eight program. The federal program does allow, however, for low income housing to be provided through existing and substantially rehabilitated housing, he said.

In the application process, the Council will be asked to pass a resolution seeking approval of the 100 units under the Section Eight program. Ralph Hall, who is serving as clerk-of-the-works for the new 111-unit housing project in Southside, gave commissioners a status report and noted that the weather has been a factor in the slow progress rate on the project.

Hall, who said that the project is some 30 days behind schedule on the site grading, said that 9,000 cubic yards of unsatisfactory material has been excavated from the site and removed. Another 13,000 cubic yards of fill has been Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

KNOW YOUR DISTRICT

I would like for Hotline to reach as many Pitt Countians as possible with this important information: Know what Fire District Your Home Is In. We've had more than one fire recently in which huge amounts of property damage were done because there was confusion in summoning the right fire department. When people call in and report a fire, crucial minutes are lost if we have to look up on a map what department to call or if they tell us the wrong department. Bobby Joyner, Pitt Co. Fire Marshal.

752-5136 is the number to call to report a fire anywhere in the county. Tell the dispatcher what district you're in. And if there is any doubt at all, find out from a reliable person in your immediate area or call the Fire Marshal's office and ask — now before you have a fire. The Fire Marshal's phone number is 752-5137.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"REALLY GREAT!"

Brenda Teel, coordinator of the Pitt County Juvenile Volunteer Program and Juvenile Court Counselor, said the response to the Oct. 13 Hotline appeal for Big Brothers and Big Sisters for boys and girls involved with the law was "really great."

"I am still accepting applications," she said, "and will continue to." She said she has received at least 20 applications which she presumes to be a result of the Hotline appeal and, also, numerous invitations to speak to civic groups. "A lot of good will come out of this," she predicted.

Shooting Spree Suspect Said 'Depressed'

By JOSEPH BONNEY
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A former Internal Revenue Service auditor accused of wounding 10 persons in a citywide shooting spree was said to be depressed by unemployment and marital problems.

Four of the wounded were in critical condition today and paralyzed, maybe permanently, from spinal wounds, doctors said.

Carlos Poree, 35, had been acting differently since last Dec. 17, when he was fired from his $19,332-a-year government job, said his mother-in-law, Dorothy Broussard. The IRS will not say why Poree was fired.

Three weeks ago Poree's wife, Diane, 34, left him. Poree and her father, Alvin Broussard, 61, were the first victims Monday. Shot at Broussard's house in a quiet section of uptown New Orleans near Tulane University, both are partially paralyzed with wounds of the neck.

Police said that after Poree shot them, he drove three miles to midcity and gunned down eight apparent strangers. Poree was booked with 10 counts of attempted murder.

Feature Work Of Composer

Composer major Jack Stamp of College Park, Md. will be featured in a chamber music recital of his own compositions for brass and percussion at 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 9 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Stamp, a percussionist, will be assisted by members of the ECU Brass Quintet and Brass Ensemble, directed by Andrew Farnham.

Among his compositions are Journey Past the Unicorn, with text by ECU English major Denise Andrews; Declaration on a Hymn Tune; and Three Turns for Brass Quintet.

The recital is free and the public is invited.

Death Claims A Sextuplet

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Dennis Nijssen, youngest of the Dutch sextuplets born Sept. 18, died early today, hospital authorities announced.

The seven-week-old infant underwent an operation a month ago for a perforated intestine. His condition improved following the surgery, but he suffered a relapse last Thursday and failed to respond to intravenous feeding, hospital officials said.

one count of resisting arrest, three counts of simple battery on police officers and one count of armed robbery — the alleged theft of a car at gunpoint.

Poree was hospitalized with serious eye injuries and several facial cuts suffered in a scuffle with police at the city jail.

Police Sgt. Tony Buonagura said Poree attacked an officer and that Poree's face hit the floor in the ensuing fight. Buonagura said the prisoner was not beaten.

Three tourists were wounded in a small French Quarter park after Poree allegedly stopped his car in the middle of Bourbon Street, walked into the park and fired his .38-caliber pistol.

In stable condition were Henry Luther, 67, Gadsden, Ala., and Richard Quarles, 26, Nashville, Tenn. Douglas Martin, 20, also of Nashville was in good condition.

Police said half an hour later and more than a mile away, Poree commandeered a car. A few minutes later, three other men were wounded, two of them critically, in the office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fennner & Smith, a large stock brokerage firm in the business district.

Two men walking by outside were shot on the sidewalk.

Robert Barrell, 45, of Metairie, La., and George Held of New Orleans were listed in critical condition with severed spinal cords. Barrell was paralyzed from the chest down; Held from the neck down.

In stable condition were Wesley Russel, 30, Kenner, La., wounded in the right eye; Alben Carlson, 30, Bay St. Louis, Miss., wounded in the chest; and Hans Anderson of Norway, wounded in the neck.

"He didn't say a word. It was just bang, bang!" said Joyce Saylan, a secretary who was headed out to lunch with her young son when the gunman brushed past her on the way inside.

"The guy walked in the door, went down the hall and started shooting ... Everybody thought it was a joke with a cap pistol because it was so quick. Then everybody started screaming," she said.

Two plainclothes policemen driving nearby heard the shots, stopped their car, jumped out and ordered Poree to "Freeze!" The officers said Poree surrendered peacefully.

Revival Begins On Thursday

FARMVILLE — A revival will be conducted at Wesley United Methodist Church on Rt. 2, Farmville Thursday through Saturday by Pitt County native, the Rev. Ray Webb.

Rev. Webb, now ministering in Aurora, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Webb of Bell Air.

Services will begin at 7:30 each night and special singing will be offered each night. Saturday at 6 p. m. a family supper will be held. The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. Harley Owens.

Shot 'Probably Self-Inflicted'

Pitt County Medical Examiner Dr. Jack Koonce has ruled "probable self-inflicted wounds to the abdomen" in the death of Don Collier Jr.

The 15-year-old son of Carolina Telephone Company Area Manager Don Collier died this morning at 12:30 in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He reportedly had wounded himself with a 16-gauge shotgun at his home on York Road here Sunday night.

Rescue Squad Addition Request Being Studied

WILLIAMSTON — A request for additional paid members for the Williamston Rescue Squad was considered by the Williamston Town Board Monday. The board reached a decision to take the request under advisement, and to seek possible assistance from county commissioners to fund additional persons.

Presently, the rescue squad consists of two full-time, paid personnel, with the Williamston providing funds for one person, the county the other.

The request notes that requirements for emergency medical technicians are becoming more stringent. Also, it was pointed out that currently there is an average of 50 calls per month, compared to an average of 18 a month ten years ago. In 1965 there were 34 volunteers; today the figure is 15.

A committee was appointed to look into the needs and to make early recommendations for the town board's further action and for presenting information to the county.

cond area needs to be selected for future work.

In connection with the community development project, the town board approved the sale of two lots by the Williamston Housing Authority to individuals seeking to purchase the land.

In a final action, board members approved $12,500 in town funds to match a grant for purchasing the Asa Biggs home. The Biggs home has been designated a historic property and plans are underway to renovate and preserve the home as a public historic site.

Solicitation Requests OK'd

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced the approval of three solicitation requests.

The requests were submitted by: Father Charles Mulholland of St. Gabriel's Catholic Church to set up a table on Evans Mall on Nov. 16 and 17 to solicit signatures for participants in the Fast for World Hunger;

Three-laning of U.S. 64 from Elm Street downtown to McGasky Road has been completed. To meet state safety standards, the town board passed an ordinance that prohibits parking on either side of the road in this area.

A public hearing to provide input into future community projects has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. November 30. The development program is one funded by HUD. A report on the current community development project at the Hayes School area reveals work there is due to be completed in a few months, and a se-

When Raymond W. Edwards signed up for NCNB Cash Reserve, he got rid of checking account service charges and the paperwork of getting a loan.

Until 1975, about the only way to get no-service-charge checking in North Carolina was to keep a $100 balance in your checking account.

What's more, if your balance ever went to $99, you had to pay a service charge for every check you wrote.

That's how it was in 1975.

Then NCNB introduced the idea of giving you a choice of ways to get no-service-charge checking and, at the same time, give you the benefits of another NCNB service.

We call it The Triple Option, and in two years, thousands of people all over the state have signed up.

Here's how it works:

Option #1: Have $25 or more automatically transferred each month from NCNB Checking to an NCNB Regular Savings Account and get no-service-charge checking.

Option #2: Deposit and maintain $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings Account and you can get no-service-charge checking.

Option #3: Build a credit cushion into your NCNB Checking Account with Cash Reserve, and you can get no-service-charge checking.

So you can see just how The Triple Option lets you pick the other service that works best for you.

When we introduced it in 1975, it was North Carolina's most flexible no-service-charge checking plan. In 1977, it still is.

Because we want to be your only bank. And we figure that the better service we give you on a checking account, the more likely you are to come to us when you need a loan, or want to open up a savings account or need some other service you may be going to another bank to get.

Book In Every State Is Goal Of Prolific Romance Writer

By CONNIE GRZELKA
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Instead of hankering for a Pulitzer Prize in literature, author Janet Dailey seeks a listing in the Guinness Book of Records for having written at least one book set in each of the 50 states.

Mrs. Dailey, who had hardly ever stepped out of her native Iowa until three-and-a-half years ago, has logged 110,000 miles nationwide and has produced 31 paperback romance novels set in 25 states since 1973.

She is the only American author of Harlequin books — all of the others are British — and she is also one of the publisher's most prolific writers. At the rate of 11 pages a day, the 33-year-old writer says she can complete a book in 16 days and currently has an output of 10 novels a year.

Mrs. Dailey says she dreamed of writing and traveling back in her early, Iowa elementary school days, but fate's fine thread didn't start spinning in that direction until 1969, when she began reading romances and "practically became an addict."

Two hundred romance tales later, she decided to write her own novel. In dribs and drabs, over a one-year period, she wrote — during lunch hours, coffee breaks and in spare minutes at home. She sent that first effort to Harlequin in 1973, and her "No Quarter Asked" was accepted for publication.

Her husband, Bill, not only encouraged her writing, but that very year decided to sell their Des Moines construction firm and home so that he and his wife could take to the nation's highways in search of new settings for her books.

Mrs. Dailey's own story reads somewhat like a Harlequin romance, she admitted while she and her husband were passing through New York City in the 31-foot recreational vehicle they now call home.

Right after high school, she went to work for Bill Dailey's construction firm as a secretary and married the boss two-and-a-half years later.

Dailey, who does all of the location research for his wife's books, says "she worked for me for 13 years, now I work for her." At the rate of 30,000 miles a year, he scours each new locale for regional flavor and detail by taking notes, going on sightseeing tours and reading travel brochures on weather, food and foliage particular to that area.

"If you took any of the heroes in my books," the author adds, "you'd find many of Bill's personality qualities — dominant, adventurous, quick-tempered, a great sense of humor, a bit of a romantic and sentimental. He's not just a husband."

Mrs. Dailey, who rises at 4 a.m. every day to write, says she employs no formula in her work — only that the books have a happy ending. The sole guideline from the publisher, she continues, is that sex should not precede marriage, nor should it be explicit.

"When you allow the theater of the mind to take over, you find that you don't need all of that description."

"Ten years ago, you could've described the heroine as virginal, young and helpless. Today, you'd have to leave out the helpless," she maintains. "Women are more independent today, hence you can create more conflict between the dominant male and the independent woman."

When the Daileys pull into campsites across the country in their trailer-home, many campers recognize the author's name and word quickly spreads among her reading fans.

Although she has many titles to her credit, the latest being "Show Me," Mrs. Dailey remains a loyal admirer of other Harlequin writers. She beams when her husband mentions that her books have been translated into several languages and that three of her books are being considered for movie options.

While calling herself "a liberated woman" she goes on to say "my man is important in my life. When you're a liberated woman, you have the ability to choose — no matter how successful I am, without Bill, what is success?"

Husband's Trips Make Her Jealous

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very attractive middle-aged man who has never fooled around as far as I know.

The company he works for sends him and a professional female co-worker out of town together (just the two of them) on business trips for several days' duration.

It seems to me that since it wouldn't be proper for just the two of them to have dinner together here in our home city, it's hardly fair for the company to send them out of town together.

My husband says it's strictly a business relationship, and I believe him. But she's pretty, young and single, and being only human, all that togetherness away from home could hatch a problem that's bigger than both of them.

How should I handle this?

JUST PLAIN JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: What's to handle? Say nothing. Continue to trust him; expect the best and you'll probably get it. Any other action on your part would be unwise.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his fiancée are being married soon. Our names were not included on the wedding invitations. When we asked our son about this, he said it was strictly up to the bride, and she selected the form that omitted the names of the bridegroom's parents.

Our friends and relatives disagree. They say that it is a slap in the face and a snub to us, and if we had an ounce of pride, we would not attend our son's wedding. After all, he wasn't laid on a log and hatched by the sun!

Who is right, Abby? What would you do?

HURT IN PENNA.

DEAR HURT: The standard American wedding invitation does not include the name of the groom's parents, so the bride should not be faulted for having selected that style. I would go to the wedding and bear no grudge.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the article about the girl who wore braces on her teeth. She said her boyfriend also wore braces, and when they kissed it was like running into a barbed wire fence, and it hurt.

Well, I'm a 22-year-old guy who's been wearing braces for three years, and I know exactly how she felt. When I used to kiss a girl with braces, it was like two freight trains colliding head on!

Braces have improved my kissing. I now kiss very slowly, gently and tenderly. I get compliments on my kisses all the time. I'm sure if it weren't for my braces I never would have learned how to be such a neat kisser.

By Ermo Bombeck

I was leafing through a magazine the other day when my eyes fell upon a full-page ad of a potato with two eyes, a mouth, and two little gloved hands saying, "I AM NOT FATTENING."

I wanted to believe the little devil. He seemed so sincere. Besides, I never met a potato I didn't like. It occurred to me that lately a lot of foods have been fighting back at ugly publicity. Health enthusiasts have made me uptight over milk products, paranoid over sugar, and a couple weeks ago I ate a glazed doughnut and felt so guilty I established a Weight Watchers Scholarship in my name.

If more carbohydrates would take a stand, it would certainly make it easier for those of us who are weak and motivated by your basic hunger.

I went to lunch the other week with my friend, Ellie, who gives me a royal pain with her dieting. When my hamburger came with a mound of French fries, I thought she'd break out into a rash.

"Ah...ah...ah...naughty...naughty!"

"You are wrong," I said. "Carbohydrates offer you important vitamins and minerals such as Vitamin C, B6 and Niacin."

"Where did you hear that?"

couple by her niece, Ella Lee Adams.

The reception was given by family members.

The couple's children are Mrs. Ella Davis, Mrs. Janie Whichard, Major Langley Jr., Mrs. Elizabeth Purvis, the Rev. Willie Langley, Mrs. Rosa Lee Davis and Louis Langley. Mr. and Mrs. Langley Sr. have 21 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

"Have we ever met before?"
"I think you've popped your cork," said Ellie.
"No, I want to pursue this. Why would some strange potato single me out to deceive me?"
"I can see you are not motivated to being thin."
"That's all you know," I said opening my purse and sanctimoniously popping a small artificial sweetener pill into my cappuccino.
Hopefully the potato ad is a trend. I mean if you can't trust a chocolate éclair looking you in the eye and saying, "I am not a crook," whom can you trust?

Turn 'Lemon' Into Lemonade

A lot has been said about the unused container crane which has been erected in the Morehead City port, including proposals to move the crane to Wilmington.

Among the reasons seems to be the shallowness of the channel leading to the port, which doesn't allow for containerized ships.

Work on dredging a deeper channel to the port reportedly has already been placed under contract.

It seems to us that if the crane at Morehead port is currently a lemon it can soon be made in a lemonade. The port is well located on the east coast to serve ocean going freighters, and containerization is going to be an important part of future shipping by sea.

The container crane may not be doing anything at present, but we should be pushing along the channel improvements so the crane can be put to use at Morehead.

Maybe Warmer Winter, Maybe Not

It may be a milder winter this year because something called a Bermuda high will push something called a jet stream back where it normally should be.

That is the word from the National Weather Service's Long-range Prediction Group. The jet stream was dislocated last year and brought Arctic air to the South. If the Bermuda high does what it is supposed to do the jet stream will return to its normal pattern this year.

But then no one can be sure, so perhaps all of us should prepare for a cold winter.

Security, But Less Cost

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A scheme which will cut in half both the cost and the construction time for a new Central Prison in Raleigh has been developed by Corrections Secretary Amos Reed.

Reed, on the job only since last spring, wasted little time scuttling the development plan which was on his desk when he was hired by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

Security, says Reed, was his biggest concern. "I have said from the very beginning that we would not compromise on security."

"As I looked into it (the previous plan) I found that it did not give us that security."

Escalation

"That was the first impetus to change the plan. Then there developed greater impetus from the millions in cost escalation due to phasing in construction," Reed pointed out.

On a project of this size, every month in delay of final completion can cost $100,000. Originally, the project was to have been finished in three phases over a six-year span with final occupancy in July, 1984. Realistically, completion would be 10 years away.

The new plan calls for total completion by July, 1981, with the most important part — occupancy of the maximum security cells — by December, 1980.

Total cost of the one-phase, speed-up plan will be $26.7 million. The money in state and federal funds is already allocated. Under the phased-in plan, total cost was set at $34.4 million but without figuring in escalation due to inflation which over a 10-year period would push the total to more than $56 million.

The original plan called for housing more than 1,000 inmates at Central. The revised plan calls for a population of 764, which Reed says comes closer to meeting his concept of smaller prisons providing "a more workable security system . . . and a more workable, smaller, population."

The loss of some 248 cells will not seriously hamper efforts to enlarge the prison system now suffering overcrowding. Reed said, since the plan also calls for removing all central processing of new prisoners from the Raleigh facility.

Providing both maximum security for the most hardcore prisoners, and processing of all incoming prisoners from across the state at one place causes much confusion, Reed said. He proposes that processing be done at regional locations.

BILL NOBLITT

Aside from saving on construction time and costs, the new plan provides a totally different approach to prison construction for North Carolina.

Old Wall

Central Prison's famous stone wall will be kept in place on three sides of the new prison. The old red brick structure with its Victorian towers will be demolished. The newer hospital and mental health buildings will remain in place.

A residential building will itself form the fourth wall, completely enclosing the prison area. That four-level structure is shaped like a series of triangles so that a central guard post in each section has an unobstructed view of every cell and activity area.

An enclosed hallway running the length of the complex forms a central security spine from which all buildings can be reached.

The original plan followed the campus approach to building, with a series of unconnected structures scattered about the property. The new plan has all structures attached and completely enclosed. Using land saved by attaching the buildings, even the athletic fields can be kept inside the walls.

All cells in Central will be for single occupancy, with 392 for maximum security prisoners; 128 for prisoners working in Central warehouses, dining halls, or hospitals; plus, a mental health unit housing 144; and a hospital with room for 100.

About $100,000 was paid for the original plan which was scuttled, but Reed feels much of that cost is justified since basic data had to be gathered, and alternatives explored before final decisions could be made.

"I hear there's some talk 'bout TV networks exercising too much control over sports events."

Mr. Carter In Trouble

WASHINGTON — Let me bring up the rear, if I may, in what may seem to be a concerted assault upon Jimmy Carter, "the one-term president." Four observations come to mind: Yes, Mr. Carter is in trouble. Most of the trouble is of his own making. This being so, he can unmake most of it. And, finally, the one-term talk, at this point, is baloney.

Time magazine last week called attention to the eruption in October of funeral pronouncements upon the demise of the Carter administration. It did appear, in truth, that many of my brother pundits had laid poor Jimmy in the grave. This is the nature of our gloomy craft, to find our greatest pleasure in a doomsday dateline.

The chorus was not deliberately orchestrated. Mr. Carter is indeed in trouble. One does not have to be a licensed and certified pundit to perceive it. The polls provide empirical evidence of a drop in the President's popularity. Veteran members of the House and Senate freely confirm that evidence. The President himself, in his recent press conference, acknowledged the fact.

The troubles extend in every direction. Mr. Carter is in trouble with the liberal, Abourezk-Metzenbaum-McGovern wing of his party. He's in trouble with many of his conservative troops as well. He's in trouble with the blacks, who lately have been charging him with "callous neglect." He's in trouble with women, with organized labor, with business, with farmers — name the pressure group, from oilmen in Texas to steelmen in Ohio, and you'll find an outfit that gives him the old fishy eye.

To the editor:

"Farm Products Soar" is your headline in the Thursday, Nov. 3 paper. I wonder if the facts in the article were read before the headline was set to print. The second paragraph disclosed that farm prices have declined 12.5 per cent since April this year, in contrast to seven percent inflation.

Pitt County farmers spent some $65 million last year for fertilizer, seed, chemicals, equipment and labor to produce crops. Farmers, of all citizens, fear inflation and higher prices most, since we are the largest purchasers of goods in the county.

Farmers do not like to be blamed for high prices when we are receiving less for our products than five years ago. We would like the news media to put the blame where it belongs. Pitt County and North Carolina will feel the effects of the farmers' plight in 1978 and beyond as a result of the short crop and low prices in 1977. Give us credit for being able to produce food cheaper than any country on earth. Tell the consumer that it now takes 16 percent of his pay check to feed his family when 10 years ago, it took 23 percent of his income.

To the editor:

Tonight's article in Hotline concerning the ticketing of freight trucks making deliveries prompted me to write this letter. I, too, as a downtown merchant, agree there should be a little consideration used before giving a stupid parking ticket to these people whom the merchants couldn't do without. If a driver is blocking traffic, he should be given a citation, but I can't see imposing a fine because he's not in one of the very few loading zones or not at a parking meter.

Also, with the help of City Council and the outstanding effort already put forth by Dave Mosier, Executive Secretary of the Downtown Merchants Association, myself and the majority of the downtown merchants foresee the parking meters' being discarded or even donated to some unfortunate town which may fall into the mercy of a silly pole with a clock on it.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter's Bitter SALT

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — bruising collision last month behind closed doors between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and a Senate subcommittee poses a SALT dilemma for President Carter that could dwarf his other difficulties.

Vance's performance before the Armed Services subcommittee headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson bordered on the disastrous. No master of the subject, the Secretary could not reassure the Senators about new U. S. concessions in strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union. Not only did this clarify Jackson's role as nearly certainly opposing a SALT II treaty (allied with conservative Republicans), but some fence-sitting Democrats joined him.

The result: SALT II is not merely "in trouble," as the White House concedes, but surely would fail ratification in the Senate today. Since nobody believes the Russians will retreat on issues tentatively decided at Geneva, it is impossible now to renegotiate a treaty more to the Senate's liking. So, the apparent alternative to defeat in the Senate is for the President to put SALT on the shelf for now.

But to do that, Mr. Carter would have to renege on his promise, made on the political barnstorming trail last month, of a SALT II agreement within weeks. Besides, his national security advisers believe reason and ratification will ultimately come in the Senate. Obviously, the White House has no conception of the mood on Capitol Hill.

But Cy Vance has. "I was amazed how tough, really brutal, Scoop (Jackson) was on Vance," a Republican on the subcommittee told us. Conservative Republican Senators who had feared that Jackson would bow to party loyalty and support the treaty were reassured.

Jackson would bow to party loyalty and support the treaty were reassured.

Jackson was not the only Democrat to upbraid Vance. Georgia's Sen. Sam Nunn tongue-lashed Vance for avowed ignorance of an alleged U. S. offer to renounce the neutron bomb. Nunn lectured the Secretary of State that he should know, even if he does not.

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, the ex-astronaut but no hardliner in the Senate, assailed inadequate verification of Russian compliance with SALT II. Unless he can be satisfied, Glenn will be another Democrat voting against the treaty.

Only a few such Democrats are needed to reach the 34 votes required to reject the treaty in light of heavy Republican opposition — perhaps 28 out of 38 Republican Senators.

The elusive Senate Republican leader, Howard Baker, has signalled which way he is going by signing up Dr. Fred Ikle, who as U.S. disarmament chief battled Secretary of State Henry Kissinger over SALT at the end of the Ford administration. In the October issue of Fortune, Ikle argued against arms control "at the price of jeopardizing the nation's independence and future" — a theme expected in a forthcoming speech by Baker.

To convince Senators that U.S. concessions at Geneva do not actually endanger the nation's future, a virtuoso performance by Vance before the Jackson subcommittee was needed. It was anything but that, as seen by Vance's response to this question: will the SALT II limit of 800 multiple-warhead ICBMs (intercontinental ballistic missiles) insure survival of U. S. Minuteman missiles?

Yes, said the Secretary of State, a "study" proves it. Jackson directed Vance to supply it. But at the next hearing, Vance confessed there is no "study" — only separate "assurances" about the Minuteman. All right, said Jackson, bring those in. Vance agreed, but Jackson will have a long wait; reliable Pentagon sources say no such "assurances" exist.

Meanwhile, implacable Soviet negotiators at Geneva provide no help. Administration officials months ago confided to Senators they had a loophole: the 600-kilometer limit on ground-launched and sea-launched cruise missiles would not apply if these weapons were tested from planes. Predictably, the Russians found the loophole and are demanding that the 600-kilometer limit apply to such missiles, no matter how they are tested.

If the U.S. accepts this de-

Packaging Outweighs 'Facts'

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It sometimes depends upon your audience and the impression you're trying to make. Which is a preface to the observation that what you hear and see in the marketplace isn't always what it seems.

Words are sometimes presented like cosmetics, the packaging being more important than the contents. Impressions sometimes count more than facts. And there are things you emphasize to some audiences and don't tell others at all.

Such as Bethlehem Steel, for example, reporting one year a loss to the Internal Revenue Service but a neat profit to shareholders. Nothing underhanded; just differently packaged accounting.

It was not alone. Some of the loudest criticism of business has come after words drifted into the wrong audience, such as the chairman's glowing report to shareholders being overheard by union wage negotiators who were told the company was dying.

Broadly categorized, such messages are sales talk, and sales talk usually is meant more to impress than inform.

Were the people who sold New York City bonds, or several years ago, Penn Central bonds, really convinced these securities belonged in everyone's portfolio? No overwhelming evidence exists that they listened to their own words.

Do Wall Street analysts who issue bullish reports on the future of certain stocks heed their own advice? Not always. As they tell it, their job is to sell stocks to others rather than buy for themselves.

Do superstars use the products they advertise? Perhaps, if they have been instructed in how to remove the lids. Do business leaders who promote U.S. Savings Bonds at 6 per cent also buy them? When they can get 7 per cent elsewhere?

The words themselves might be straightforward, but the impression created might be a bit aslant.

The Wall Street letter writer, for example, who in scrupulous observance of the regulation, in disregard of the facts and perhaps in homage to his own ego, appended to his stock selections the caveat:

"No promise is made or intended that past performance is a criterion of future results. The stocks mentioned herein may or may not perform as well as earlier selections."

Consider the General Motors promotion piece that compared a 1962 model and a 1977 model and concluded that the latter had a superior "overall roominess index," which is the kind of concept you describe with an asterisk.

While it did have a superior index, the piece failed to say that hip room was diminished. The hips — that's where you feel the crush, particularly if one of the occupants is even a few pounds beyond the statistical median.

Some messages of the marketplace are admirable in their directness when

Power Stakes Today

By DAVID R. NELSEN Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At 7:30 p.m. today, Jim Hunt could either be the most powerful governor North Carolina has had since colonial times or no stronger than any other governor in 200 years and possibly weaker.

It depends on whether North Carolina voters approve Amendment 3 on today's statewide ballot, which would allow governors and lieutenant governors to run for reelection to new four-year terms.

The polls close at 7:30, but votes may not be counted until around midnight. Succession proponents have argued it would strengthen state government; opponents say it would lead to machine politics.

There are four other constitutional amendments and two bond issues also on the ballot.

Voters will decide on a $300-million highway-bond issue, a $230-million clean-water bond issue, two amendments to remove sex distinctions in the state constitution, an amendment to allow municipalities with electric-distribution systems to own power plants jointly with private utilities, and an amendment to forbid state deficit spending.

Urban voters will elect mayors and councilmen.

In the last day of campaigning Monday, both sides of the succession issue predicted victory. Former Govs. Terry Sanford and Jim Holshouser hopped-scotched around the state in their final effort to win support for the proposal. They spoke for the Committee for the Right to Reject or Re-elect.

State Rep. John Ed Davenport, speaking for Carolinians Opposed to Succession, said he has a "gut feeling" that success-

He ordered 125 detectives into armories in the five counties, telling them to keep a close watch over the workers who are slowly, but too slowly, tabulating the results from 2,000,000 long paper ballots cast for members of the newly created city council.

"In an effort to be as effective in their work as possible the Greenville City schools are this week emphasizing visitation in the schools," declared Superintendent J. H. Rose.

Strength For Today

THE ESSENCE OF PRAYER

There are many ways in which we find restful fellowship with God, but the most effective way is through prayer.

We are conscious of God's presence in nature and in many providential acts. But in prayer we definitely decide to exclude all the world and its interests for the time being and to give our fellowship to an unseen personality.

The experience of those who have prayed much and have won many triumphs through prayer is the sense of oneness which they have with the great personality which prevades and directs the whole of the universe. God is always encouraging such fellowship on our part, and He made it most plainly to us when "the Word became flesh and dwelt among us."

We can bear any burden if we know that God cares. We can face any dark bewilderment if we know that His loving hand is ready to lead us to the light.

mand, heartsick middle-level officials at the Defense Department are poised to go public against SALT II. The President's escape hatch would be to throw up his hands at Soviet intransigence and recess negotiations.

This is precisely what would have been expected early this year when Mr. Carter was talking tough on SALT. But Defense experts who had hoped for so much from him now fear Jimmy Carter is a utopian disarmer, more William Jennings Bryan than Richard B. Russell. How he handles his SALT dilemma will determine whether these fears are realized.

Clpatrick...

Some of the President's problems have developed from events beyond his control — the election of Mr. Begin in Israel, for example, and the resurgence of Communist power in France and Italy. But to a remarkable degree, Mr. Carter's troubles are rooted in the nature of Mr. Carter, in his own errors and misjudgments, and cannot be attributed to other factors.

Meg Greenfield, in Newsweek, has put her finger on the main difficulty. Mr. Carter simply is not presidential. After nearly ten months in the White House, he has yet to assert the authority, to radiate the presence, to put forth the emanations of a president of the United States.

A year ago, immediately after the gentleman's election, there was much speculation on a small issue: Would the gentleman be sworn in as James Earl Carter, or as Jimmy Carter? He soon made it official. In the archives of our Republic, this period is to be known forever as the "Administration of Jimmy Carter." Something is ever so slightly amiss in the perceptions of a president who takes his nickname to the office.

There was widespread applause nine months ago as Mr. Carter set about dismantling the trappings of an imperial presidency — not that many such trappings remained from the days of Gerald Ford. Out with the limousines! Away with "Hail to the Chief"! Let pomp and circumstance be exorcised! A few of us stodgy types said he was overdoing it. Something in the nature of our people wants a little ritual, wants a little black tie and gold braid. Mr. Carter's insistence upon folksiness began to wear thin last summer. The humbleness wears even thinner now.

It is the totality of his inexperience that has hurt him. Mr. Carter campaigned as the "anti-Washington" candidate. He created an impression in many influential places of contempt for values that Washington holds dear. He arrived as the new boy on the block, the rich kid who moved into the biggest house, and he set about making friends in all the wrong ways. The whole operation, since January, has been clumsy. There's no sense of professionalism, of class. Mr. Carter, in brief, has yet to acquire the presidential image.

He and his committee spent most of Monday on telephones talking to their backers.

The two men who would be allowed to run for re-election in 1980 if it passes reiterated their views on the topic.

Gov. Jim Hunt predicted it would be approved. "I've done all I can. We're trying to take North Carolina take a step forward," he said.

Succession opponent Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green refused to predict the outcome but called succession "the most divisive thing that's ever come down the pike for the Democratic Party." He has warned it would lead to machine politics.

Elections director Alex Brock has predicted a 28 percent turnout, and each side says a heavy vote would help its side.

Spending has been greatest on the side of the well-organized proponents. Davenport's group was not formed until a few weeks before the election.

By last Friday, the Committee for the Right to Reject or Re-elect reported collecting about $105,000 and spending more than $95,000.

This could materialize. Mr. Carter, by general agreement, is a fast learner. It will be another two and a half years before he has to begin a campaign for re-election. He doubtless will grow on the job and profit from mistakes. And as for this one-term speculation: Republican critics, licking their chops, should remember the rule that you can't beat somebody with nobody. Whatever Mr. Carter's status may be in November of 1977, it surely will be different in November of 1980. He will be Mr. Somebody then, and he will be a tough foe to beat.

Five Collisions Cycling Tests Here Yesterday Plan Approved

More than $3,700 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage was reported in a 7:10 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Farmville Boulevard involving cars driven by Roger Wilbur Garris of Grafton and Marsha Carol Edwards of Ayden.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the Garris car and $1,500 to the Edwards auto.

Investigators reported Larry Lee Hardy, 13 of 1114 West 16th St. was injured when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Mary Harris Jones of Route 8, Greenville about 4:21 p.m. at the intersection of 14th and Board Streets.

Officers estimated damage to the bicycle at $15 and reported no damage resulted to the Jones car.

Glenda Katherine Blackwell of Salisbury was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:24 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Reade Circle and Cotanche Street.

Police said the Blackwell car collided with an auto driven by William Sterlin Manning of Stratford Arms Apts. causing an estimated $300 damage to the Blackwell auto and $400 damage to the Manning car.

Vehicles driven by George Robert Mills of 2709 Tryon Dr. and Vickie Kay Deal of 2401 College Court Apts. collided about 10:05 a.m. on Fifth Street, 31 feet East of the Harding Street intersection, according to officers who charged Miss Deal with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $50 to the Mills truck and $350 to the Deal car.

A 1:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road involved cars operated by Donald Howard Edman of Route 2, Greenville and Reginald Alan Griffin of Ayden.

Officers, who charged Edman with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $200 to the Edman car and $400 to the Griffin vehicle.

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners at their regular November meeting Monday approved a request for the program as operators of motor-cycles.

Approval for this program also carried an OK for use of a parking lot adjacent to the County Courthouse for conducting the examination service, which will be headed by Larry Hardison.

In a short meeting, commissioners heard a report by Billy Tadlock of the FHA that showed approximately $3 million had been spent in FHA's annual operations in the county.

Action on a Civil Preparedness ordinance, presented by Don Johnson, was tabled to give the commission time to study it before taking action.

Earl Moore of the State Department of Transportation appeared before commissioners to talk about the state and county road problems and to seek support of the bond issue being voted on today.

All bids received on six used county vehicles were rejected, and the cars will be put up for public auction at another date.

Oppose Piping Water To Va.

WINTON, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. Army Corps of Engineers proposal to draw water from the Chowan River near here and pipe it to southeast Virginia has aroused the opposition of the Hertford County Board of Commissioners.

The commissioners adopted a resolution Monday stating that the proposed $126-million project could harm northeastern North Carolina by reducing the river flow and allowing salt water to move farther upstream.

'77 COLDEST IN 37 YEARS

Carolina In Deep Freeze

Shivering residents of North Carolina bundled up against the coldest weather in 37 years yesterday as temperatures dropped below zero in the early morning and never got above 17° all day. The National Weather Service station at the airport reported -2° at 6 a.m. The lowest reported at Kerr-Scott Dam was -8° at 4 a.m. while many points in the mountains unofficially reported temperatures as low as -16°.

Nowhere in the state, not even along the coast, did temperatures rise above freezing. As the chill deepened state wide, weather ened spokesman offered no service spokesman offered no hope for relief in the deep freeze on an arctic air mass moving slowly down from Canada.

Meanwhile counties across the state reported numerous school closings due to the cold weather, as pipes burst and school buses refused to start.

Voters Choose Governor In New Jersey, Virginia

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for the Northwest, New England and from Texas and the central Gulf to the Great Lakes. Temperatures are expected to be mild in the East but cooler for most of the country. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Sunny weather made a welcome return to North Carolina today, as cleanup operations continued after the weekend floods. Skies began to clear Monday and temperatures again climbed into the 70s except in the mountains, where the 60s prevailed.

High temperatures around the state Monday included Wilmington 77, Raleigh 73, Greensboro 71, Charlotte 68 and Asheville 63. Low this morning generally were in the 50s, with 40s in the mountains.

Timberlake Art Exhibit Opens

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — An exhibition of paintings by North Carolina artist Bob Timberlake opened today at the Hammer Galleries in New York. Timberlake's American-realist works were displayed at the galleries in 1973 and 1975, and both of those exhibitions were sellouts. "Bob Timberlake has developed one of the largest and most enthusiastic followings in the art world today," said Victor J. Hammer, president of Hammer Galleries. "Each object he paints is evidence of his pervasive sense of Americana and his allegiance to his native North Carolina."

REQUEST GAMBLING
VINA DEL MAR, Chile (UPI) — Hotel managers have asked authorities to permit gambling in hotels in this Pacific sea resort. Gaming tables and slot machines would stimulate tourism, according to the hotel managers.

By The Associated Press
Voters are choosing mayors in 38 major cities and picking governors in New Jersey and Virginia, on an election day dominated by local issues and dampened by the weather. Rain has historically benefited Republicans and could affect today's turnouts in both gubernatorial states, where the races are considered close. In Virginia, where some areas have been flooded, Democrat Henry Howell opposes Republican Lt. Gov. John Dalton. New Jersey's incumbent Democrat, Gov. Brendan Byrne, is challenged by a Republican state senator, Raymond Bateman. Rain is also forecast for many of the mayoral cities including New York, where Democrat Edward Koch is expected to win easily regardless of the weather. In several cities, black candidates are trying to capture city halls. In New York, the historically accurate Daily News straw poll gave Koch 53 percent of the vote to 39 for his nearest rival, Secretary of State Mario Cuomo. New York's major issue, Mayor Abraham Beame's handling of the city's finances, disappeared with Koch's defeat of the mayor in the Democratic primary. Cuomo is the Liberal Party choice. Republican State Sen. Roy Goodman and radio personality Barry Farber, the Conservative Party entry, also are running, but with little hope. Neighboring New Jersey still has its overriding issue, the state income tax that Byrne supports and Bateman wants to kill.

Byrne, who weathered a tough Democratic primary, had been trailing Bateman, but both sides now agree the outcome is in doubt. The New Jersey contest was financed mostly out of public funds, with each candidate receiving $1 million from the state treasury. In Virginia, Howell has said the state's largest electric utility, major banks and insurance companies reflect a "Tory plantation" policy represented by Dalton. Dalton, a millionaire lawyer, has said Howell is a liberal and a big spender who would bring the state higher taxes and labor control of the government. Blacks are trying to become the first of their race to win the New Orleans and Buffalo, N.Y. mayoralities. The New Orleans election will be held Saturday with a black judge, Ernest Morial, facing Councilman Joseph DiRosa in a runoff. Coleman Young, Detroit's first black mayor, is expected to be an easy winner over Ernest C. Browne, who also is black. There are a dozen names on the ballot in Houston, where incumbent Mayor Fred Hofheinz is not running.

A Drug to Cure Ulcers?

I have heard that there is a pill or liquid available in England or France which is able to cure stomach ulcers without surgery. Since I've been suffering with ulcers for many years, I'm extremely anxious to get some information about this medication. Perhaps you can help me. — Mr. R.E.L., Pa. Dear Mr. L.: The drug you are seeking is known as "Cimetidine." After extensive studies, the Federal Drug Administration has cleared the way for this drug to be manufactured and used in the United States. The trade name is "Tagamet" and must be used only at the suggestion of your doctor. Should he decide to prescribe it, you must remain under his care and supervision in order to be sure that none of the possible side effects are developing. I do not know whether or not the drug entirely eliminates the need for surgery. There are many grades of ulcer severity which may not be completely controlled by the new drug. Cimetidine exerts its greatest action by reducing the amount of acid produced in the stomach, and thereby promoting more rapid healing of ulcers. It is interesting to note that there has been a radical departure, in the past few years, from the traditional ways of treating ulcers. Formerly, ulcer patients were given a Sippi diet regime. This demanded regular, almost hourly, doses of cream or rich milk. There is now a great tendency to depart from this approach. Formerly, frequent small feedings of very bland food were prescribed. Today, almost regular meals are given three times a day, with little or no restriction of diet other than the obvious ones such as alcohol, highly spiced or fried foods, cola drinks, coffee or tea. Cigarettes and aspirin are restricted. There is no longer a need for great quantities of milk. Today, patients with ulcers have a far better chance of being cured without running into complications, if they follow the rules laid down by their doctors.

I am scared. Although I've been in excellent health, it was just found that I have "endometriosis." I've reconciled myself with this condition, but my real fear is, "Can this become cancerous?" — Mrs. T.W.K., Maine. Dear Mrs. K.: Let me reassure you that this condition does not lead to cancer. This unusual disorder is one in which the tiny cells in the tissue that lines the uterus begin to grow on other organs in the pelvis and in the abdominal cavity. The Fallopian tubes, the ovaries and the outer wall of the intestine may be covered with these abnormally placed cells. In some instances, the disorder can be controlled with sustained doses of specialized male and female hormones.

Boy Given Life Sentence For Murder

LIFE SENTENCE — Convicted murder Ronny Zamora, 15, wipes his hands after being fingerprinted following his being sentenced to life in prison. (AP Laserphoto)

By LEE GOULD
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Ronny Zamora, who was defended in a murder trial on grounds that television violence drove him insane, stood silent before the TV cameras that recorded his sentencing to life in prison.

Judge Paul Baker brushed aside sentencing advice from famed psychiatrist Karl Menninger and others on Monday as he sentenced the 15-year-old to a minimum 25 years in jail.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin, in his final plea for leniency for Zamora, waved psychiatric reports and even petitions from schoolmates in front of Baker.

Baker interrupted, saying:

"I've even had a letter from Dr. Karl Menninger. But it is not their business. Unfortunately, it is mine."

Zamora's trial and sentencing were open to television and still camera coverage under a one-year experiment ordered by the Florida Supreme Court.

Before sentencing the teenager in the murder of his 83-year-old neighbor, Elinor Haggart, Baker offered Zamora a chance to make a statement to the court. But Zamora stood silent and the judge went ahead with sentencing.

Baker said Zamora should be placed in a "youthful offender facility" where he could receive psychiatric help. Rubin had pleaded that Zamora was "sick" and "suicidal" and should not go to an adult prison.

Watching impassively was Darrell Agrella, 15, who faces a separate trial on the same charge. Agrella's lawyer is challenging the grand jury selection system in the other case.

Zamora's mother sat nearby, wiping tears from her eyes.

During the trial Rubin asserted that the teen-ager lost his ability to judge right from wrong because he had become lost in a make-believe world kept alive by TV violence.

Rubin attempted to have the case thrown out Monday on several points. He said that the prosecution had arranged for two witnesses to talk to one another on the phone and had other witnesses listen to a tape of their conversation. But Baker ruled that the prosecution tactic, while not a good one, was not grounds to throw out the case.

After the sentencing Rubin said he had received permission from the parents to bring a lawsuit against the three major television networks. He said he hoped to show the effect television violence has on children.

"We feel we will be able to prove the networks are responsible for inducing young people to adopt violence as a way of life," he said.

Said Safe In Flood Area

Former Greenville residents, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Tunstall, now living in Toccoa, Ga., are reported safe.

Ann Tunstall, who taught in-service education courses for Pitt Memorial Hospital employees and others at Pitt Technical Institute while the family lived here, told her mother, Mrs. Edgar Blackley of near Franklinton, yesterday that her family is fine, though many of their friends were lost in the flood which inundated the campus of Toccoa Falls Bible College Sunday about 2 a.m. She said their apartment is situated on a mountainside and was not reached by the water, though they were awakened by the sound of the rushing water and screams.

Tunstall, who was employed by ARC Food Service at East Carolina University at one time, is manager of the food service for Toccoa Falls Bible College now. The couple has a son and a daughter.

Will Report Plans On Salvage Effort

AVON, N.C. (AP) — Owners of a barge aground off North Carolina's Outer Banks and leaking liquid asphalt said they would advise the Coast Guard this afternoon of their plans for salvage efforts.

High winds and heavy seas Monday continued to prevent salvage experts from boarding the craft, which went aground Friday night. But weather conditions improved late Monday night and small craft warnings were taken down, although waves continued to break over the deck of the barge, the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard said that so far about 12 tons of the asphalt leaked and washed ashore in solid state and that the rate of leakage appeared to have increased Monday night.

The asphalt, which was being picked up from the beaches by cleanup crews, presented no threat to wildlife, the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard said its primary concern was the preservation of the beaches and the dunes and preventing the spill of 20,000 gallons of diesel fuel aboard the barge.

The portion of the barge containing the fuel is intact, the Coast Guard said, and there appeared to be no danger of the fuel spilling.

Representatives of the Coast Guard and the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's spilled oil research team flew over the barge Monday afternoon.

The barge — the Morania 200 — broke her tow line to the tug Crusader on Friday night in heavy seas off Cape Hatteras and washed aground about midnight.

Since then, bad weather has prevented efforts to put a new towline aboard from the Crusader to try to pull the barge free.

The public is invited to attend.

Denies Wallace Abandoned Bid

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A spokesman for Gov. George Wallace says a news magazine report that the governor has decided against running for the U.S. Senate next year is "totally false."

Elvin Stanton, Wallace's deputy press secretary, said Monday there is "absolutely nothing" to an article in U.S. News and World Report that Wallace intends to go on the lecture circuit rather than seek the Senate seat now held by Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala.

The magazine, attributing its report to "surprised Alabama politicians," said a lack of funds and the governor's "bitter" divorce from his wife, Cornelia, had soured him on a Senate race.

Instead, said the magazine, Wallace was being lured by the "big money on the lecture circuit."

They'll Dine On Racing Gobblers

TURLOCK, Calif. (AP) — They waddled, wobbled and gobbled, but with plenty of prodding from their handlers, most contestants finished the first Turkey Tech Grand Prix with feathers flying.

The plump birds and their handlers had to run a course under a three-foot high bar, through a puddle of water and down a lane wide enough for one bird.

On the back side of the U-shaped course, handlers carried their turkeys over a haystack, put them down and then prodded the birds toward the finish line.

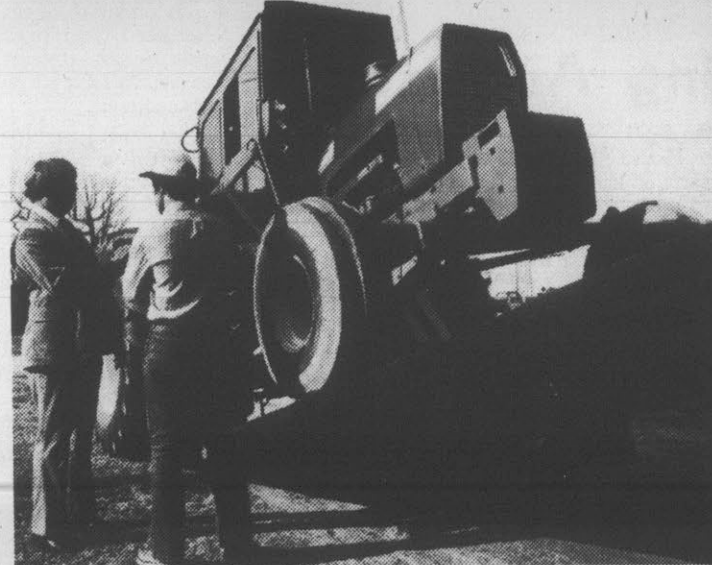

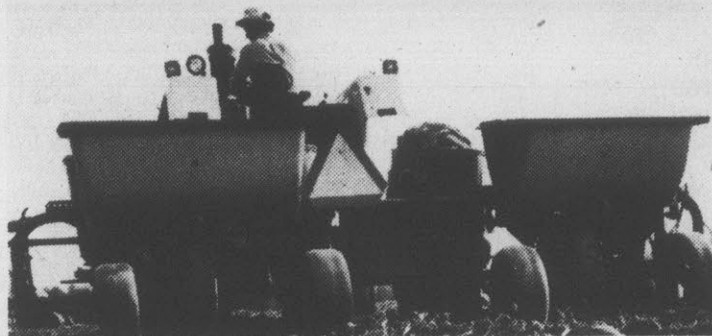

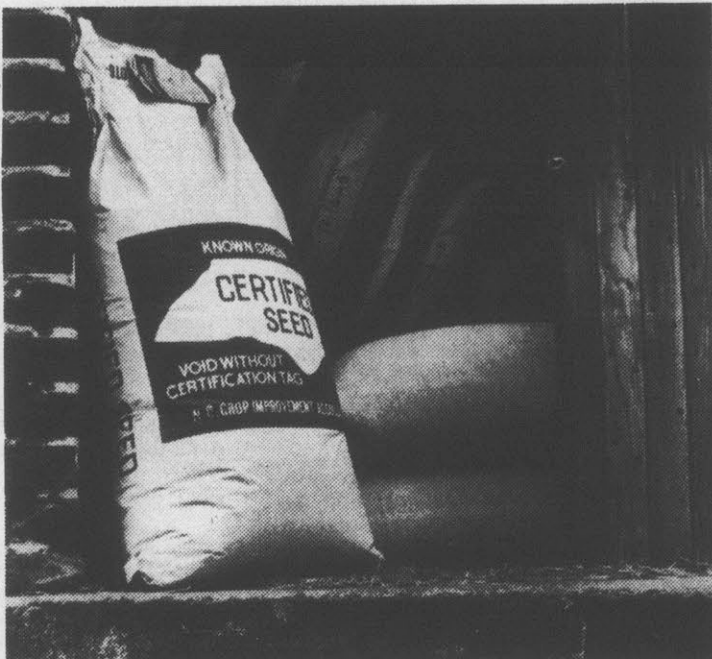

Some of the birds were named "Gobble De Guk," "Traveling Drumsticks," "Gallop Gobbler" and "Leaping Gizzards."

A few of the birds refused to race and just sat down, as if to say the effort wasn't worth it, which it probably wasn't from their point of view.

The prizes for winning went to humans, and the gobblers faced the gloomy outlook of being carved up for Thanksgiving dinner in less than three weeks.

The British poet, Alfred Lord Tennyson, was born in 1892.

Move On Transferring Oak School Property

WILLIAMSTON — Action to initiate transferral of school property at Oak City to the authority of Martin County Commissioners was taken at the meeting of the Martin County School Board on Monday.

This action resulted from a request by a contingent of residents of Oak City that the gymnasium of the old Oak City School be approved for a community commercial project. The property is leased to the town of Oak City, and the school board feels it does not have the time or personnel to become involved in a re-release situation.

Two formal resolutions were approved — one for sale of a portion of the land at the Church Street School, the other for sale of old buildings on the East End School property in a Rober-sonville. Another resolution approved was for the Community Education Project, one that involves a six county area under the Alliance for Progress organization. The project is a competitive bid for state funds for use of school buildings in community education programs.

A new format personnel evaluation form, one drawn up by principals and staff, was approved, as was the draft of a promotion and non-promotion policy for students.

School board members are working on a handicapped program for multiple and profoundly handicapped students. A grant of $29,000 is available for the program, which will be located in the Williamston area.

Department of Public Instruction is invited to compile a comprehensive survey of the Pitt County and Greenville City Schools.

"The members of the Greenville Board, however, would emphasize that while they want the survey to cover every facet of school operation and to be as complete as possible, they do not want the survey team to make any recommendations concerning whether a merger should take place or not. It is our feeling that this decision should be made by the two boards after they have had the opportunity to study and interpret the findings of the survey committee."

Responding to Dunn's letter on November 2, county school superintendent Ott Alford said the county board, at its regular meeting November 1 "reaffirmed an earlier decision to request..." the comprehensive survey of the two systems.

"With regard to advising the Division of School Planning that they are not to make any recommendations regarding the question of the merger, the County Board stated that, as always, they will make up their own mind on the question with or without a recommendation from the Division of School Planning," Alford said.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Daniel R. Webster told the world he wanted to die for the murder of his wife, but nobody who knew him expected him to perform the execution himself.

Webster was found on the floor of his death-row cell Sunday night, bleeding profusely from slash wounds in his left arm and neck which he apparently inflicted on himself with a razor blade. He died minutes later in the prison hospital.

"He had two things that were strictly no-no — blasphemy and suicide," said Sam Garrison, warden of Central Prison in Raleigh where Webster was taken after his murder trial last month.

"He indicated to me that there was just no way in the world he could commit suicide," said Garrison.

Webster, 51, pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife, Gladys, last month and demanded that a Davie County jury sentence him to the gas chamber.

The jury heard a psychiatrist testify that Webster was mentally competent and listened to Webster's own grisly description of the ax and strangulation slaying together with threats to kill again if he were not executed. The jury was convinced and Webster was sent to death row.

Late Sunday night an inmate in an adjoining cell heard Webster fall from his bed to the concrete floor. A guard tried without success to stop the bleeding. A bloody razor and a suicide note to Garrison were found on the floor along with a three-page will, whose contents were not revealed.

Garrison said Webster's letter "indicated to me that he was committing suicide, that he had prayed about the thing and he felt that he could no longer go on living and had chosen this way out. He was emphatic in stating that he was sorry for everything he had done."

Garrison's surprise was echoed by others who knew Webster.

"He knew he would go to hell if he did commit suicide after killing Gladys," said Webster's mother-in-law, Ethel Beauchamp, 76. "Something was eating on him."

"I just didn't think Daniel would do this," said his court-appointed attorney, Gilbert Davis, who fought Webster's efforts to plead guilty and then to draw the death penalty. "It disappointed me."

Webster's troubled life included several long stays in state prisons, and Garrison said he had known the dead man for 20 years. The warden said he had talked to him two days before the suicide and a psychiatrist had also seen him.

"We had no indication that it was his intent to commit suicide," Garrison said. The warden added that razor blades are issued routinely to prisoners. This is the first time, he said, that a razor blade had been used in a suicide.

Garrison ruled out murder. "He was in a single cell with double locks."

Texas Holds Top As Colgate Cracks Ranks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Led by No. 1-ranked Texas, the nation's nine top college football teams retained their positions today in The Associated Press ratings while defending champion Pittsburgh reappeared in the Top Ten and unbeaten Colgate cracked the rankings for the first time ever.

Texas defeated Houston 35-21 to remain No. 1 for the third week in a row. The Longhorns, 8-0-0 and the nation's only perfect-record team besides No. 20 Colgate, received 61 first-place votes and 1,308 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of 66 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, a week ago, with 59 panelists voting, Texas received all but two first-place votes, the others going to runner-up Alabama and seventh-ranked Kentucky. This time, Alabama and No. 5 Notre Dame received two votes apiece with one for Kentucky.

Alabama, a 24-3 winner over Louisiana State, totaled 1,072 points to 1,020 for No. 3 Oklahoma, which thrashed Oklahoma State 61-28. Fourth-ranked Ohio State trounced Illinois 35-0 and received 908 points while Notre Dame crushed Georgia Tech 69-14 and earned 798.

Next came Michigan with 688 points off a 63-20 whipping of Northwestern, followed by Kentucky with 568 after a 28-6 triumph over Vanderbilt. Eighth-ranked Arkansas, a 35-9 victor over Baylor, received 536 points while No. 9 Penn State beat North Carolina State 21-17 and received 464 points.

Pitt, No. 12 last week, walloped West Virginia 44-3 and received 339 points to supplant idle Texas A&M as the No. 10 team. Following Texas A&M in the Second Ten were Nebraska, Brigham Young, Southern California, Clemson, Florida State, Arizona State, Texas Tech, North Carolina and Colgate, whose 9-0 record is the nation's best.

Last week's Second Ten was Nebraska, Pitt, Clemson, BYU, Florida State, Southern Cal, California and Louisiana State with Arizona State and Iowa State tied for 19th.

However, California lost to Washington 50-31, LSU bowed to Alabama and Iowa State was knocked off by Colorado 12-7.

Texas Tech, which had been in the Top Twenty until losing to Texas a week ago, climbed back in by belting Texas Christian 49-17. North Carolina made it for the first time this season by holding Clemson to a 13-13 tie and Colgate flattened Bucknell 49-17.

McGuire Said Told To Quit

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Officials at the University of South Carolina are urging head basketball coach Frank McGuire to step down after the upcoming season, a Columbia newspaper reported today.

The State said it has learned that USC President James B. Holderman has been holding talks with McGuire, who is in his 60s, in an attempt to persuade him to give up his posts as head basketball coach and athletic director of basketball to become athletic director of USC's off-campus institutions.

The newspaper said an informed source told it that originally it was proposed that McGuire take over the new role before the start of this season.

However, the paper said, McGuire, who has several years remaining on his contract, told Holderman he would like to remain as coach for two more seasons.

McGuire has lost two of his assistants in recent months. Associate head coach Donnie Walsh resigned several months ago to become an assistant to the general manager of the Denver Nuggets of the National Basketball Association. Greg Blatt resigned last week as an assistant coach to take a similar position with The Citadel.

McGuire, who has coached at USC for 13 years, was hospitalized last fall for a bleeding ulcer. In 1974, he was hospitalized for several weeks with a similar illness and missed five USC games.

During his career at USC, the Gamecocks have posted a 236-107 record. Last year, the team had a season mark of 14-12. That was the fewest number of victories since the 1965-66 season, when USC finished 11-13.

He is the only collegiate coach in history to win more than 100 games at three different schools — USC, the University of North Carolina and St. John's.

In 1957, McGuire guided the North Carolina Tar Heels to the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

His 27-year record as a collegiate coach is 503-200.

Cale Set For Title

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With Cale Yarborough assured of his second straight Grand National stock car title, a three-way battle for second place will be decided in the year's final race on the NASCAR circuit Nov. 20 at Ontario, Calif.

Richard Petty is second but only a point ahead of Benny Parsons and 22 ahead of Darrell Waltrip.

Yarborough, who clinched the championship earlier, broke his own season money winning record by finishing fifth in the Dixie 500 on Atlanta International Raceway Sunday. He has collected $388,091 in 29 races. His season total a year ago was $387,173.

In the battle for rookie of the year, Ricky Rudd leads Sam Sommers by seven points. The top 10 in points are Yarborough 4,830; Petty 4,439; Parsons 4,438; Waltrip 4,417; Buddy Baker 3,801; Richard Brooks 3,587; James Hulton 3,333; Richard Childress 3,329; Brooks 3,587; James Hulton 3,333; Richard Childress 3,329; Bobby Allison 3,316 and Cecil Gordon 3,227.

Following Yarborough on the money winning list are Petty $304,990; Parsons $263,396; Waltrip $249,993; Baker $179,496; David Pearson $170,676; Donnie Allison $121,385; Brooks $120,460; Neil Bonnett $91,520, and Hulton $84,825.

His teammates said Christensen hid whatever negative feelings he was having when he entered the game.

"He was just like he always is — bright, confident, eager," said tight end Brooks Williams. "It was Christensen's third pressure playing opportunity of the season. In the Heels' opening 10-7 loss to Kentucky he directed Carolina's only scoring drive. And in another 10-7 loss to Texas Tech, Dooley turned to him for a miracle that never came in the closing minutes.

The fourth player got a birdie.

Colts Slip Past Washington

NY LARRY SIDONS
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was another Monday night victory, not as impressive as a year ago, perhaps, but right on schedule as far as the Baltimore Colts were concerned.

The Colts slogged through the mud in Memorial Stadium to score a 10-3 decision over the Washington Redskins, with a 12-yard pass from Bert Jones to a diving Freddie Scott providing the winning points early in the final quarter.

While it pushed Baltimore's record to 7-1 and kept it alone atop the AFC East, the hard-earned triumph in the defense-dominated clash of neighborhood rivals was in sharp contrast to the last Monday night game here, one year ago against Houston.

The Colts hosted the Oilers, also in the season's eighth week, and thundered to a 38-14 victory. It proved to be their best effort of the year as they dropped two of their final five games before being easily eliminated in the first round of the playoffs.

But although the margin of victory over the Redskins was much smaller, the Colts felt their latest nationally televised win would show up more decisively in the long run.

"We're hitting our peak at the right time this season," said defensive end Fred Cook. "Last year, I think, we reached our peak too soon. The Houston game was our best, seven weeks before we really needed

it. This time we're more confident."

Cook, a four-year veteran, and the rest of the Colts' "Sack Pack" front four put intense pressure on Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann, sacking him five times and helping to create a pair of interceptions by linebacker Stan White.

The Baltimore offense, meanwhile, was controlling the ball, with Jones & Company running off 80 plays to Washington's 54 and using up 12½ more minutes of playing time.

"I said early in the week that we couldn't leave our defense out there all game and still beat the Colts. Well, that's exactly what we did, and I didn't help them any," said Theismann, who completed 11 of 27 throws for 168 yards.

Theismann and the rest of the Redskins, now 4-4 and in third place in the NFC East, thought they had gained a shot at a tie on the final play.

The quarterback's toss from the Baltimore 13 was caught in the end zone by Calvin Hill. But the officials, who had stopped the clock with two second remaining as defensive players lined up, ruled that time had run out before the ball was snapped.

"Everybody tells their players to walk back slowly and take their time," Washington Coach George Allen said. "But he (the official) had stopped the clock. If that's the case, then either the clock is wrong or we had a touchdown."

A poor play by the special teams, a perennially strong point of Allen-coached squads, led to the Colts' winning points in the game played in a steady rain on a field soaked by two days of downpour.

Late in the third period, with the score knotted on field goals by Toni Linhart and Mark Moseley, Washington punter Mike Bragg shanked a 22-yard kick out of bounds at the Baltimore 30.

From there, the Colts moved steadily downfield, with Jones suddenly finding the range on passes that earlier had been sailing over the heads of open men or splashing in the mud in front of diving receivers.

"It was hard to really zip the ball in this kind of weather," said Jones, who completed 13 of 27 passes for 180 yards.

On a third-and-seven situation, Jones hit Scott with a bullet over the middle, gaining the first down by inches at the Washington 14. Then after a two-yard run, Jones and Scott connected again, this time for the winning TD on a pass that the Amherst graduate had to stretch full-length to grab in the end zone.

"I knew I would have to dive, but I didn't think I'd have to go that far out," Scott said. "The ball took off a little."

Jones admitted that the scoring toss "wasn't a perfect throw," but said he never wanted to haul it back in once it left his hand.

"I thought it was catchable," he said. "And besides, it was a touchdown. I never want them back."

Cagers Set Scrimmage

East Carolina's 1977-78 basketball squad, complete with new head coach Larry Gillman, and an All-America candidate in Oliver Mack, will put its talents on display for the public in two upcoming scrimmages.

D.H. Conley High School will be the site of a 7:30 p.m. Thursday intrasquad scrimmage for the Pirates.

Then, on Tuesday, November 15, the Pirates will hold another public scrimmage at Washington High School. It will also start at 7:30 p.m.

"This is a good chance for the folks of Eastern North Carolina to get a good preview of our team," said Gillman. "We are looking forward to playing in front of our fans."

Contest Winners

Mike Grady of 503 Eleanor St., Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Grady correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed in last week's contest. He won first place on the basis of his point total guess. He had a guess of 79, while the actual total was 89, scored in Oklahoma's 61-28 win over Oklahoma State.

Second place went to Max Butts of Rt. 1, Ayden. He also picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games, but was further off in his point total with a guess of 68.

The final contest in this year's series appears on the following pages.

Lady Bucs Win Pair

WILMINGTON — East Carolina University's women's volleyball team captured a pair of wins yesterday in a dual meet.

East Carolina beat hosting UNC-Wilmington by a 2-0 count, taking games of 15-13 and 15-13.

Then, the Lady Pirates also added wins over Atlantic Christian, 15-2 and 15-3.

The victories boosted the East Carolina record to 17-11 on the season, and completes the regular season.

The Lady Pirates will open play in the state tournament at Duke on Thursday.

Ringer Investigation Goes On

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Two detectives from the Nassau County district attorney's office were expected in South America today to join an investigation into the Belmont ringer scandal.

James Druker, chief of the rackets bureau, and an unidentified Spanish-speaking detective will aid DA vice squad Det. J. William Mokson in a probe that was set off when a horse named Lebon won a race at Belmont Park Sept. 23 at 57-1 odds.

Mokson arrived here last week as part of a five-man state and county investigative team that has collected blood samples from horses in Uruguay and Argentina and has taken depositions from numerous witnesses. The team was trying to prove that the lightly-regarded Lebon actually was a horse named Cinzano, a Uruguayan stakes winner.

Meanwhile, four of the original five men on the task force were to return to New York today.

"My mission is completed," said Joseph Mayer, a former FBI agent and now director of investigations for the New York State Racing and Wagering Board.

The Racing and Wagering Board suspended veterinarian Dr. Mark Gerard in October. Gerard had imported both Cinzano and Lebon from Uruguay into the United States in June, and the board has accused Gerard of secretly substituting Cinzano for Lebon.

Cinzano was reported destroyed June 12 at Gerard's Muttontown, N.Y., farm after sustaining a skull fracture.

In New York, a show-cause hearing was postponed in which the state was to show why Dr. Gerard should be prohibited from returning to work at Belmont Park, pending a full hearing before the Racing and Wagering Board. The hearing, originally scheduled for the appellate division of the State Supreme Court on Monday, was deferred to Wednesday.

Along with Mayer, those returning to the United States from Uruguay were Dr. Manuel Gilman, chief veterinarian for the New York Racing Association; Dr. Norman Lewis, another veterinarian, and Alfred Garcia, registrar or the New York Jockey Club.

On Monday, Gilman and Lewis took blood samples in Argentina from the dam and sire of Enchumao and from horses who shared the same dam and sire of As de Pique II.

As de Pique II is under guard at a New Jersey farm, suspected by racing authorities of being Enchumao. Enchumao, an Argentine stakes winner, reportedly was destroyed last February in Florida after an on-track accident.

While Nassau County beefed up its probe, a source close to the investigation hinted at a possible snag — unwillingness of Uruguayan witnesses to travel to the United States.

"There are a lot of witnesses down in Uruguay," said the source, "people that would be good witnesses. But will they come up? I think it will be a while before that's ironed out."

One report said that while some witnesses had refused to make the trip for personal reasons, Uruguayan sources felt they feared for their lives, believing the scandal was somehow linked to the underworld.

Minnesota Happy After Probation Is Ended

By GENE LAHAMMER
AP Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — University of Minnesota Athletic Director Paul Giel says he is impressed with the National Collegiate Athletic Association decision to lift an indefinite probation against all university men's sports except basketball.

"I'm sorry the basketball probation was extended," Giel said. "But considering how long all of this has been going on, the lifting of the probation on our entire program should be a morale booster for our athletic department."

The university basketball program remains on probation until Oct. 28, 1978, the university said Monday.

The lifting of the probation was expected after the university ended an impasse with the NCAA by declaring basketball players Mike Thompson and Dave Winey ineligible.

University Vice President Stan Kegler said he expects a decision early next week on the type of suspension the NCAA will hand Winey and Thompson.

That decision is expected to be announced before the Gophers' first basketball game Nov. 16 against the Cuban national team.

The NCAA had contended that Thompson, the Big Ten scoring champion last season, had sold season tickets for more than their face value and that Winey had accepted free lodging at a lake home from a university booster.

The basketball probation dates from the day University President C. Peter Magrath informed the NCAA of the ineligibility action taken against the two 6-foot-10 basketball players.

The basketball probation actually amounts to an increased penalty and means the team will not be able to appear in post-season tournaments next spring or on NCAA-sponsored television games this season.

Lipford Rushing Mark

By LARRY POPE
The Asheville Citizen
For the Associated Press
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Lipford of Western Carolina has a chance in the last two games of his college career to earn a place in the history of North Carolina college football.

Lipford, a senior tailback from Lenoir, has a clear shot at becoming the state's first 4,000-yard career rusher in the next two weeks. He has an even clearer shot at the No. 1 spot in all-time rushing.

To overtake Mike Voight's 1973-76 total of 3,971 yards for Carolina, Lipford needs only 169 more yards. To top 4,000 yards he needs 197. The Catamounts will be playing Marshall Saturday and Appalachian State in its final game in two weeks.

Lipford is already the second leading all-time rusher with his 3,803 yards. He says he doesn't want the desire for a new record to distract him.

"I know it's there, but I can't worry about it and do the things the team needs me to do," he said. "If I do my best and we keep winning, the records will come by themselves. You can't go out and make them happen."

The top 10 all-time rushers, in addition to Voight and Lipford, include the following: Carl Bartles of Lenoir-Rhyne, 3,677; Reggie Keenan, Guilford, 3,486; Don McCauley, North Carolina, 3,172; Ted Brown, N.C. State, 3,115; Otis McIntosh, Western Carolina, 3,006; Steve Jones, Duke, 2,951; Carlester Crumpler, East Carolina, 2,889; and Mike Lawton, Elon, 2,858.

Lipford and Brown are the only two players on the list still active.

Lipford rushed for 983 yards in his opening season in 1974, added 714 in 1975 and another 1,074 last year. He has rushed for 100 yards or more in 21 games and once gained 231 yards as a sophomore against Presbyterian.

Lipford stands only 5-foot-8 and weighs 185 pounds, but he says his relatively small size doesn't bother him.

"Sometimes I don't look that effective, but at the end of the game I've got my yards," he says.

"I'd like to be remembered as being a winner," he adds.

"Not for any records. A good individual person, someone who cared about his teammates."

Clearing Out

Curtis Perry of the Phoenix Suns leaps high to clear the ball over the heads of Fouts Walker (14) and Jim Brewer (52) of the Cleveland Cavaliers. The

Hall Of Fame Winner In Suns-Cavs Clash

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The outcome of the game didn't have any bearing in the won-lost column; the actual winner was the National Basketball Association's Hall of Fame.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, a Springfield native, several NBA officials and 5,772 fans watched the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Phoenix Suns 106-94 Monday night in the sixth annual Hall of Fame game Monday night at Springfield Civic Center.

All proceeds from the game went directly to the Hall of Fame.

The Cavaliers, playing without All-Star guard Walt Frazier and forward Campy Russell, held a five point lead at the half which was cut to two, 78-76, at the end of three periods.

Phoenix center Alvan Adams led all scorers with 24 points. Cleveland's John Lambert sparked the Cavs' offense with 20 points. Dick Snyder had 17 for the winners while Austin Carr dropped in 13.

The Suns, also without the services of injured players—namely guard Paul Westphal and forward Garfield Heard—took the lead at the outset, and held a slim 28-24 advantage after the first quarter before the Cleveland offense went to work.

Cleveland surged ahead in the second quarter when they outscored the Suns 33-24. They were outscored by Phoenix in the third, but maintained an edge for the remainder of the game.

Swim Team Scrimmage

The Greenville Swim Club held an intrasquad meet Saturday at Minges Natatorium. The Green team beat the White team, 249 to 167.

Triple winners in the meet included Lisa Wallace, eight and under girls; Les Turner, 9-10 boys; Mark Schmidt, 11-12 boys; Suzanne Wille, 11-12 girls; Chris Galya, 13-14 girls; Lance Timmons, 15-18 boys; and Susan Tucker, 15-18 girls.

Double winners included: Sellars Crisp, 8 and under boys; Tommy Kupec, eight and under boys; Maria Kelly, 9-10 girls; Jane Mellon, 9-10 girls; and Kevin O'Neil, 13-14 boys.

Wisconsin Grid Coach Resigns

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — What sickened John Jardine's players most about his sudden resignation Monday was that some ill-mannered fans got their wish.

And Jardine acknowledged that an ugly scene after his University of Wisconsin football team lost a fourth successive game last Saturday was the main factor in his decision to quit after nearly eight seasons as head coach.

Several fans sitting near the tunnel connecting the field and locker rooms taunted Jardine with refrains of "Good-bye Jardine, Good-bye, Jardine, Good-bye, Jardine, we're glad to see you go." The players also were jeered and some were pelted with apples and toilet paper.

"The fans pay their eight bucks and they can do whatever they want. I mean that sincerely," a red-eyed and drawn Jardine, 41, told a hastily arranged news conference.

"But what happened to my players really affected them," he said. "Some wanted to go back out in their shorts and do battle with those people. I had to break up the (postgame) press conference to stop them."

I just said then, 'That's it.' I don't ever again want to see that.

"My stomach has not been too good lately, but the main thing was what happened right after the game," he said. "They can boo the coaches all they want. But I don't think players should ever be booed."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your day to take a good look at your surroundings and then decide whether or not any improvement should be made. Consider the effort and cost involved before making any changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to a better understanding with co-workers. Do not turn a sensitive person against you by some thoughtless word or act.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to be more efficient at your work and gain the respect of others. A more cooperative attitude brings fine results now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put a particular talent you have to work now and impress higher-ups with it. Good teamwork is the key to greater success now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to cement better relations with family members and make the future brighter. Take needed health treatments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you cooperate more with allies, you can easily gain your main objective. Obtain the advice you need from business experts.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to plan how to have greater abundance in the future. Also, plan improvement to property and other possessions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans for favorite recreation after you have handled routine duties. Take time to improve your appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Have a serious talk with your mate and find a way to have more happiness together. Attend the social tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal day to do something thoughtful for your friends and gain their goodwill. Strive for increased happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do whatever will improve your reputation in business as well as in your personal life. A civic affair can bring you benefits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Making new contacts now can help you to advance in your line of endeavor. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You must carry through conscientiously with any promises you have made to make things right for you and others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will know how to communicate sensibly with others and upon reaching maturity will do well in civic matters where sifting of ideas is needed. Be sure to give the right ethical and religious training early in life.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

A farsighted play by South to the first trick enabled him to bring home a game contract that required good card reading and careful handling.

After his partner opened one no trump, North probed for a major-suit fit with the Stayman Convention. Once the 4-4 spade fit was located, North invited game by raising to three spades. Since South could hardly have more for his one no trump opening, he was delighted to accept the invitation.

West led the deuce of trumps, and when dummy came down, declarer saw that he might lose a trick in each suit. Since he could not afford to have East win the first trick and shift to a diamond, declarer chose to give up on the spade finesse. He rose with the ace of trumps, and took care to play the ten from his hand.

In order to get rid of dummy's losing diamond, declarer led the jack of clubs at trick two. West won the ace and continued with trumps, and declarer dropped the jack under East's king, preserving his seven. Since East could not continue trumps, he made the expected shift to a diamond, but declarer rose with the ace and played the king-queen of clubs, sluffing dummy's diamond loser.

Now, declarer had to set up dummy's hearts, so he led the ace and another heart. West won the king and cleverly continued with a low diamond. Declarer did not need to risk running this to his queen, so he ruffed in dummy. A heart ruff with the queen of trumps set up dummy's long suit and declarer's earlier unblocking maneuvers in trumps now paid dividends.

He was able to continue with the seven of spades to dummy's nine. This drew the last trump and at the same time provided the entry to dummy to cash the long hearts and bring home a well-played contract.

Offer Program On Special Olympics

"Parents Can Assist with Special Olympics Training" will be the topic of a parent education program to be held at the Senior Citizens Center at the corner of Fourth and Green Streets here Thursday at 7 p. m.

This program is aimed at giving parents an opportunity to learn specific skills taught in Special Olympics and how these skills can be carried over into activities of daily living. It is to enable parents to become trainers for the Olympics.

Parents, teachers and interested citizens are invited to attend this program Thursday at 7 p. m. There is no charge for attendance.

The program will be presented by Sandra Stokes, Registered Occupational Therapist with the Pitt County Mental Health Center, and Alice Keene, local coordinator for the Greenville Special Olympics. For further information, one may call 752-7151, Ext. 20, or 752-4137, Ext. 251.

Today's Cryptquip clue: M equals A

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Ali McGraw And

McQueen Split

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Steve McQueen and Ali MacGraw have separated and one of them probably will file for divorce, their lawyer says.

Attorney Ken Ziffirin said Monday the parting of the couple, married four years ago in a Cheyenne, Wyo., city park under a cottonwood tree, was amicable, and they are remaining "on very friendly terms."

McQueen, 47, has starred in "The Great Escape," "Bullitt," "The Thomas Crown Affair" and others.

Miss MacGraw, 38, who appeared in "Goodbye, Columbus" and "Love Story," has just finished filming "Convoy," her first movie since she quit show business when she married McQueen.

Her new movie is a film about truckers directed by Sam Peckinpah. It was completed last summer in New Mexico.

represent them, I said, 'Hell, yes, be glad to.'"

Marvin, 53, spoke by phone from his home in Tucson, Ariz. At the time he was getting set for a trip to Australia for purposes of catching marlin before starting work on his next movie, "Big Red One."

The film is about the famed 1st Infantry Division in Europe during World War II. Marvin was in that war, as a Marine, and was wounded in combat against the Japanese on the Pacific island of Saipan.

Asked where he was hit, he promptly replied: "I was a good Marine. Now where does a good Marine get hit?"

A chance guess — in what the Navy calls the aft section — proved correct.

"That's right," he said. "All my pals laughed, said, 'Oh, boy, 'Captain Marvel' got it.'" He laughed, too, but the truth is, he spent 15 months recovering from the wound.

During that grim period, the tall, rugged New York native met an off-Broadway theater owner who cast him in a play, "Roadside." Marvin decided to study acting formally and has been in the dodge ever since.

A veteran of over 30 movies, the first being "You're in the Navy Now" in 1951, he often specializes in playing tough, hard-boiled guys who'll remove a guy's head before the morning's first bellmaker.

He did that even as a cop in "M-Squad," his first and, he hopes, last weekly TV series. He says he took the job simply because it came at a time the film industry was in a slump, ditto the villain market.

After his show ended in 1966, he still made a few bob in a few films and TV roles. But it wasn't until 1965 that he struck gold as a drunk, over-the-hill gunfighter restored to fighting trim in the Western comedy, "Cat Ballou." It earned him an Academy Award.

Proper soil fumigation is the first requirement for a good supply of strong, healthy plants at the lowest possible cost. Properly used, methyl bromide does an excellent job of controlling most weeds, grasses, and certain diseases, including nematodes. But due to methyl bromide's chemical nature and environmental influences on its effectiveness, complete and partial failures occur from improper application.

Fall is a better treating time than winter, and fall applications should produce better results. During October, November, and early December, there are usually extended periods of good weather ideal for fumigating tobacco plant beds. The soil is often too wet and the temperature too cold during winter. There is little justification for waiting until winter and the risk of fumigating when soil or weather conditions are not right or delaying fumigation and seeding beyond the desired period.

Excessive vegetation may interfere with good soil preparation and uniform application of methyl bromide and fertilizer. Soil moisture should be about right for plowing when the fumigant is applied. If the soil is too dry, methyl bromide cannot react with weed seed to kill it. If the soil is too wet, the fumigant cannot penetrate the water-filled air spaces between soil particles to give good weed control.

Outside air temperature should be at least 50 degrees F, preferably 60 degrees F, at application. Acceptable range of soil is 50 degrees F - 80 degrees F; do not treat if the soil temperature is below 45 degrees at the five inch level. A too-low temperature will keep liquid methyl bromide from converting to gas quickly enough to provide sufficiently high concentrations at one time for good weed control.

The injection method uses a liquid mixture of methyl bromide and chloropicrin injected five to eight inches into the soil with a chisel-type applicator. One methyl-bromide-chloropicrin mixture (Brogone) contains 68.6 percent methyl bromide, 1.4 percent chloropicrin and 30 percent carrier. Its recommended use rate is 10.3 pounds per 100 square yards of bed. In an effort to reduce cost, some applicators are using as little as seven pounds per 100 square yards of bed. Satisfactory weed control has been obtained at reduced rates under ideal soil and weather conditions, but in other cases weed control has been poor.

Submit A Petition For Reorganization

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A spokesman for Frosty Morn Meats Inc. says the firm's Clarksville, Tenn., plant hopes to continue operations through a financial plan approved by a federal bankruptcy judge.

"The problem is basically one of financial liquidity," Ted Lenz, a legal spokesman for the firm, said Monday night.

Frosty Morn has filed a petition for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

In a news release, Jerry Caldwell, the firm's treasurer, said, "The situation is not unlike a person who owes one dollar each to three people and who collects one dollar on Monday, another dollar on Tuesday and another on Wednesday. All three creditors want Monday's dollar. The function of the court is to allocate the collections among the creditors on an orderly basis."

He said although the company's assets — including the $10 million plant in Clarksville — are greater than liabilities, the firm "is unable to pay its current debts as they become due."

The petition was filed Friday afternoon and assigned to Paul Jennings. Donna Craig, his secretary, said no date for a review or hearing has been set.

On Saturday, Frosty Morn, which employs about 600 persons at its 28-year-old Clarksville plant, laid off some 200 workers and shut the cattle and hog slaughter house.
