

Soviets Are Kicked Out By Somalia

By BRIAN JEFFRIES Associated Press Writer NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somalia, angry at the Soviet Union's tilt toward rival Ethiopia, is expelling the Soviet navy from its chief bases on the Horn of Africa and ordering thousands of Soviet advisers out of the East African country, Radio Somalia has announced.

CUTS SOVIET TIES — Map locates Somalia, once one of Moscow's closest friends in Africa. On Sunday, Somalia broke relations with Cuba, expelled all Russian advisors and ended Soviet use of air and navy facilities at Somali ports. (AP Laserphoto Map)

The broadcast Sunday said the Marxist government was also breaking diplomatic relations with Cuba, renouncing the 1974 friendship treaty with the Soviet Union and ordering a reduction in the Soviet Embassy staff in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

Somalia has been the Soviet Union's chief ally in East Africa since 1969. But recently Moscow has been pouring arms into Ethiopia and denying them to Somalia in an attempt to end the rebellion in Ethiopia's Ogaden region by Somali tribesmen who want to join the territory to neighboring Somalia.

Somalia claims that the Marxist military regime in Addis Ababa is also being aided in the Ogaden war by Cuban troops, a charge which Cuba denies.

Neither Moscow nor Havana had immediate comment on the Somali action. But Somali President Mohammed Siad Barre had repeatedly warned the Russians that the Soviet-Somali alliance was in danger, and the announcement Sunday was no surprise.

It has appeared for some time that the Russians thought either that the Somalis would not go so far or that Ethiopia would prove a more valuable ally. But with much of Ethiopia in revolt and the ruling military clique in Addis Ababa a hotbed of dissension, the Kremlin may have made a serious miscalculation.

Information Minister Abdulqadir Salad Hasan announced that the Soviet military and technical experts in Somalia, who are believed to number between 3,000 and 4,000, had seven days to leave the country. He said the Cuban embassy staff had to get out in 48 hours.

Abdulqadir said Soviet use of Somali facilities "on land and sea" would end immediately.

The Soviet navy's Indian Ocean fleet has been using the port of Berbera, on the Gulf of Aden in northern Somalia, and Kismayu, on the southern coast. Western experts say the Soviets also had missile storage silos at Berbera. Somalia exchanged these facilities for Soviet weapons and training for the Somali armed forces.

Somalia denies that its army is fighting in the Ogaden desert of southeast Ethiopia although it admits to arming and aiding the rebels, who are Somali tribesmen. The rebels now are believed to control 90 per cent of the territory and need only the cities of Diredawa and Harar to drive the Ethiopian army from the region. But some foreign military experts believe the recent Soviet aid may enable the Ethiopians to regain control.

TYPHOON FANS FIRE — Smoke whipped fire destroyed the hotel, causing at least 42 deaths early Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

Wind Fans Fire In Manila; Many Die

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Recovery teams pulled 42 bodies from the burned-out shell of the Hotel Filipinas in downtown Manila today, and one of the dead was identified as an American. Fire Marshal Francisco Agudon predicted a death toll of at least 50.

The Red Cross said the dead American was Kenneth Charles Eccleston of Riverdale, Md.

Recovery efforts like the battle against the fire itself were hampered by rains brought in by Typhoon Kim, which was passing north of Manila as the early-morning fire broke out. Firemen fought winds of up to 50 mph to keep the blaze from spreading to nearby hotels, restaurants, airline offices and shops.

The Red Cross identified four other bodies as those of Ruth Lovelack, an Australian; Romeo Miamoto, a Japanese; and Mary Jane Buhatin and Mary Ann Rufino. Their nationalities were not immediately known.

Lt. Col. Francisco Agudon, the metropolitan Manila fire marshal, said firefighters had seen more bodies in the ruins of the hotel. The seven-story hotel on Roxas Boulevard across from the U.S. Embassy and Manila Bay caught fire shortly before 7 a.m. as many of the guests were asleep. Armando Aquino, a 37-year-old roomboy, said the blaze started on the fifth floor, quickly engulfed the top three floors and then moved down.

Aquino said faulty wiring appeared to have caused the fire, but fire department investigators said it would be some time before the cause could be determined.

The number of persons in the building at the time was uncertain. There were reports that about 240 of the 300 rooms were occupied, and 47 survivors were taken to the Hotel Mirador several blocks away. A number of other survivors were reported to have checked in at other hotels.

Recovery teams brought out a stream of bodies during the afternoon, most of them burned beyond recognition. One fireman said he found about 10 bodies huddled inside one room. Three bodies wrapped in sheets were atop one stretcher.

London Firemen Strike

LONDON (AP) — Britain's firemen walked out of their station houses today in an unprecedented nationwide strike for more pay. Union leaders claimed the action was nearly total.

But the first few hours of the strike brought less than the normal number of emergency calls, and officials said a hastily trained backup force of servicemen and civilian volunteers was coping well.

The strike was the most serious challenge so far of the Labor government's determination to maintain its 10 percent, anti-inflation ceiling on annual wage increases, now in its third year.

The firemen, whose weekly pay base averages $115, are demanding a 30 per cent increase. Richard Foggie, assistant general secretary of the Fire Brigades Union, claimed nearly 100 percent of the nation's 43,000 firemen were supporting the strike, expected to last at least a week.

"It is solid," he said. "The British fire service is in limbo. We have only a handful of firemen showing reluctance to join the strike. This is a massive response."

But officials in special fire control centers around the country said citizens were apparently taking extra precautions and that there were relatively few emergency calls.

Royal Air Force personnel manning one of the 850 25-year-old fire trucks pressed into service were summoned to extinguish a burning washing machine at Weston-super-Mare near Bristol in western England. The old fire engines have been dubbed "green goddesses" because of their olive-drab color.

McNeill Smith Formally Opens Senate Campaign In Greenville Stopover

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer State Sen. McNeill Smith officially announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate here today, contending that, "Unlike Jesse Helms, I believe in the future of America and in all its people." The Greensboro Democrat made his campaign announcement during a morning press conference, one of six scheduled today across the state. "I believe that we can look ahead in this country with hope, with optimism and with love instead of constantly looking backward with distrust, with rancor and with pessimism," the candidate told the press gathering.

MCNEILL SMITH

Smith pointed out, "I believe we can solve our problems, but not by saying no. We can't say no to education for handicapped children, no to federal aid to public schools, no to closing tax loopholes for the super-rich, no to finding alternate sources of energy." Rescheduled

The regular November meeting of the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The planning boards, which normally meet on the fourth Wednesday of each month, will consider a total of ten items tomorrow night.

Items on the joint agenda include: annexation petition for the University Medical Park located in the southeast quadrant of the intersection of Stantonsburg Road and Allen Road;

Final plat of Pinewood Forrest, Section II; and a request by Ernest W. Hahn and Co. to reconsider amendment to the vegetation parking island requirements.

City board business includes: final plat of Section Eight of Lyndale Subdivision; request of Bernice C. Branch for rezoning 21.4 acres north of E. Third Street west of the city landfill from RA-20 to R-6;

Revised final plat of Section II of Windy Ridge Condominiums; final plat of Medical Shopping Center at the intersection of 14th Street and Red Banks Road;

Preliminary plat of Cedar Village at the northwest intersection of 14th Street and Red Banks Road; and preliminary and final plats on Greenville Manor located on River Bluff Drive off Tenth Street extended.

Israel Invites Visit By Sadat

By ARTHUR MAX Associated Press Writer JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin took Anwar Sadat up on his offer to visit Israel and invited the Egyptian president to address the Israeli parliament.

Begin spoke Sunday as bombs killed two Arabs in Jerusalem and as a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization endorsed the recent joint Soviet-American declaration as a basis for a new Geneva peace conference.

"If President Sadat wants an official invitation from me, he has it," Begin told reporters after the weekly meeting of his cabinet. But "this gesture should not be exaggerated," President Sadat has not yet decided to come," Begin added.

Twice last week, Sadat expressed willingness to go to Israel if his trip would give impetus to the Geneva conference and President Carter are so anxious to have convened this year. But he told visiting U.S. congressmen Saturday that he had not been officially invited.

Sadat also said Saturday he had sent Carter the name of a Palestinian-American professor who would be acceptable to PLO leader Yasir Arafat as the representative of the Palestinians at Geneva. The Israeli Foreign Minister rejected the proposal, but Begin said:

"If it comes to a concrete proposal, connected with a name, we must first hear the name in order to make a decision."

Sadat did not identify the professor but said he was a U.S. citizen. However, informed sources in Cairo said he was a PLO member, and Begin reiterated Israel's refusal to negotiate with PLO delegates at Geneva.

The document, issued in New York by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, called for resumption of the Geneva talks before the end of the year with Palestinian participation. The declaration did not mention the PLO.

"The minimum basis that the PLO can accept for the participation of the Palestinian people ... is the U.S.-Soviet statement," Kamal said.

"We agree to participate in the Geneva peace conference provided U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, in the name of the two superpowers, invites the representatives of the Palestinian people as part of the Arab delegation to the conference," Kamal added.

Marxist Palestinians of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the two bombs that exploded Sunday in Jerusalem and said they were in retaliation for the Israeli air strikes that killed 110 Palestinians and Lebanese in southern Lebanon last week.

One bomb, in the Old City's Christian quarter, ripped through the top floor of a two-story building, killed an Arab student and wounded four persons. The second bomb exploded about three hours later in the Jewish suburb of Talpout across the street from a nursery school. An Arab teen-ager was killed and a man was injured.

Big Farmer Show Ready

The Farmers Tobacco Warehouse will be the site of the second Tobacco Farmer Show Nov. 15-17.

According to show manager Jim Swindell, the show is "the biggest of its kind in the world." Approximately 191 exhibits and 100,000 visitors are expected to be present.

The show which is sponsored by Specialized Agricultural Publications, Inc., will feature tobacco mechanization equipment, herbicides, pesticides, fertilizers, tractors and farm implements, irrigation equipment, grain handling equipment, hog production equipment, cattle equipment, educational exhibits, and recreational exhibits.

According to Swindell, farmers and those interested in farming will come to the show from across the United States and Canada.

"Last year we had people from Syria, South America, Australia, and Canada," he added.

"We had our first show then, and it was a tremendous success with over 50,000 people attending. We will have exhibitors covering the entire floor this year. There is a waiting list for exhibition space."

Andy Warren of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce said that the "success of last year's show has greatly enhanced this area."

The Tobacco Farmer Show is being advertised worldwide, said Swindell. "Farmers will be able to trade, buy and sell there," he added.

Grand Ole Opry regulars Kitty Wells and Jerry Clower head the list of stars scheduled for free daily entertainment. The Kitty Wells Show at 1 p.m. on Nov. 15 features Kitty Wells, member of the Country Music Hall of Fame, along with Johnny Wright, and the Tennessee Mountain Boys.

Jerry Clower, who appeared at last year's show, is coming back for the second and third days of this year's show. Clower now performs on television's "Nashville on the Road" and records albums for MCA. He will appear at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday and again at 10:45 a.m. Thursday.

As part of a special Farm-City night program on Wednesday, Slim Mims, the "Uncle Ugly" of television, will be on stage at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Farm-City night was proposed to give "city people" an idea of the high cost of farming, according to Swindell.

The Tobacco Farmer Show will stay open until 9 p.m. Wednesday for this occasion. The show closes at 5 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, N.C. Department of Agriculture, County Extension, and 4-H Clubs, FFA Chapters, East Carolina University, Duke Homestead, N.C. Tobacco Foundation, and many other farm organizations will participate in the show, in addition to individual exhibitors.

James A. Graham, North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, will host Agricultural Commissioners from the four other major flue-cured tobacco states on Wednesday.

In addition to Graham, those expected to attend Commissioners' Day include S. Mason Carbaugh of Virginia, G. Bryan Patrick of South Carolina, Tommy Irvin of Georgia, and Doyle Conner of Florida.

There is no admission charge for the show and free parking will be available for nearly 10,000 cars. Parking will be available at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Flying farmers arriving at the Greenville airport will be transported free to and from the show sites.

According to Swindell, 72 fly-ins brought visitors last year. More are expected this year due to the promotion throughout the tobacco growing areas of the United States and Canada.

Refreshments will be available at several locations within the warehouse at food and drink stands operated by the Kiwanis Club of Winterville.

Doors open at 10 a.m. Tuesday and at 9 a.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. Farmers Warehouse is located on Greene Street, off Airport Road.

Learns 'English' American Style

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A British school teacher participating in an exchange program in this country says he's learned a few things about English — or at least what Americans call English.

After a quarter at Heligate High School here, John Brown, a teacher from Cheltenham, has learned that if he wants potato crisps with his soft drink, he has to ask for potato chips.

If he wants potato chips with his hamburger, he has to request French fries. And while his British students queue up on the pavement, American students are lining up on the sidewalk.

Brown has traded places with Heligate High English teacher Kenneth Ballinger for a year.

Ballinger "is in England doing my job, living in my house and driving my car," Brown says, hastening to add, "but he's with his own wife."

Admits She Lies About Her Age

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Cora Durbin lies about her age.

She celebrated her birthday over the weekend, and she's really 10 years older than she tells everyone she is.

"It sounds a little better being 91," the 101-year-old Mrs. Durbin said slyly from her chair at Mount St. Joseph's Residence.

HISTORICAL INVENTORY

I remember reading a while back about an inventory of interesting old homes and other buildings in Eastern North Carolina made by a state agency. I would like to see what Pitt County buildings are included and would like to know if I can either obtain a copy or see one at a library or somewhere. G. J.

The survey was conducted by the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources Archaeological and Historic Preservation Section, aided by a grant from the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Hotline inquired at Sheppard Library here about the survey, which was reported to have been published in six soft-cover volumes. Librarian Elizabeth Copeland said the set would be ordered right away.

Julie Hicks of the Library staff called Friday to say the set titled, Historic and Architectural Resources of the Tar-Neuse River Basin, is now in the North Carolina Room of the Library. It's for reference use only (must be used within the library, not checked out), because it is bound in soft cover and because only a limited number are being printed.

Once requested, the book was given to the local library by the Cultural Resources Department, she said.

Looking on were Jennifer's grandfather Berne Bullard of Raleigh; Lynn Powell, vice president of the firm; president George Powell and three-year-old Karen Powell. Carpets by George features carpets by major manufacturers, vinyl floor covering, oriental rugs, draperies and wall coverings.

Quiet Pay Raises By President

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who has quietly given White House aides pay raises of more than 7 percent, is expected to put the presidential chisel to budget requests from other agencies.

Carter is meeting with his top advisers today in the first of three sessions this week to consider money requests for the next fiscal year from seven departments and agencies.

As a candidate, Carter pledged to balance the budget during his first term. He is expected to trim the requests if possible.

The president set aside most of the afternoon for the budget meeting after an Oval Office visit from his cousin, Georgia state Sen. Hugh Carter Sr., and his wife. Their son, Hugh Carter Jr., is special assistant to the president for administration.

Special assistant Carter, whose job is to cut White House waste; budget aide Richard M. Harden, and other senior assistants convinced the president to give pay raises of 7.05 percent to aides making less than $47,500 a year, it was learned Sunday night. Carter set the $47,500 ceiling on the raises.

Aides approaching that salary get only as much as it takes to put them at $47,500, even if it's less than 7.05 percent.

The raises went into effect Oct. 9 without public announcement by the White House.

Last April, Carter gave his White House staff raises of up to 25 percent. They were authorized by Congress under the Federal Pay Comparability Act, which enabled Carter to give increases to other government employees as well.

The act says federal salaries should compare with private pay.

Then the president announced Aug. 30 he was giving non-White House white-collar workers and military personnel a 7.05 percent pay raise Oct. 1. It was authorized by Congress, under the same act.

Associate Press Secretary Claudia Townsend said Sunday night that Carter subsequently agreed with Hugh Carter Jr., Harden and the senior assistants it would be only fair for the White House staff to get the same raise.

No figures were immediately available on how many persons got the raise or how much it cost. But records showed a score of White House staffers already making $40,000 were eligible for the increase. Dozens more earn less than $40,000 a year and were eligible, too.

The raise did not go to top staffers like presidential assistants Hamilton Jordan, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Midge Costanza, Stuart Eizenstat, Frank Moore or Jack Watson. They and Press Secretary Jody Powell already make $56,000 under the April raise.

Nor was it available to Ms. LEMON CUSTARD PIES Diener's Bakery 815 Dickinson Ave.

Dynamite Blast Laid To Rail Freight Guard

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Police arrested a rail freight guard today and said a candle he left burning when he passed out detonated 30 tons of dynamite aboard a boxcar, killing 58 persons and ravaging the southern city of Iri.

Authorities said Shin Moo-il, 36, told them: "I'm sorry for the dreadful outcome of what I did." They said he admitted being drunk Friday evening, the night of the explosion.

According to new figures released today, the blast injured 1,343 persons, destroyed or seriously damaged 1,955 buildings, damaged 7,566 more buildings, left 9,973 residents homeless and wrecked a mile of railroad track and 105 freight cars.

The damage was estimated at $10 million to $20 million.

Shin, a $100-a-month employee of the Korea Explosives Co., had been assigned to ride the boxcar loaded with dynamite from Inchon, near Seoul, through Iri to Kwangju, 180 miles south of Seoul.

Railroad officials told police they saw a man running from the boxcar shouting "Fire" shortly before the explosion. Shin was found roaming the streets hours later.

Officials said he gave this account: The boxcar arrived at Iri on Friday and, despite assurances from the stationmaster's office that it would leave that afternoon, was uncoupled and left behind when the train pulled out for Kwangju.

Shin was upset, went to a restaurant near the station and drank a bottle of strong Korean liquor with his dinner.

He returned to the boxcar and lit a candle to inspect the cargo, but fell asleep in his sleeping bag, leaving the candle guttering on a wooden dynamite box.

Shin awoke to find the boxcar full of smoke and saw the crate was ablaze. He tried to extinguish the fire with his sleeping bag. When he could not, he fled.

A few minutes after he left the station area, the explosion shook the city of 120,000 persons, digging a 60-foot-deep crater and ripping the roof off a nearby theater filled with 700 concertgoers.

Johnson Will Join Council

RALEIGH — Craig Leonard Johnson of Greenville will be sworn in by Secretary of State Thad Eure as a member of the Governor's Council on Employment of the Handicapped in Raleigh Friday, Nov. 18.

The swearing-in will take place at a joint meeting of the Council and of chairpersons of mayors' and community committees for handicapped persons from throughout North Carolina. The meeting is set for 10 a.m. at Holiday Inn.

The 22-member Governor's Council on Employment of the Handicapped was transferred by the 1977 General Assembly from Department of Human Resources to Department of Administration.

It promotes employment of physically, mentally, and emotionally handicapped North Carolinians; stressing rehabilitation. It also acts as the state's liaison with the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Terms of the new members, who were appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt, will expire June 30, 1981.

Jill Cutler also placed second in the Job Interview Competitive event.

Upcoming events for Farmville's chapter include a Businessmen's Social on Nov. 21, a Christmas party for the Child Development Center on Dec. 15, a radio-thon in February, state leadership conference in March, a Parent's Night Social, and others.

Observe NE Clubs Week

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central High School is observing National Education Clubs of America Week Nov. 14-20.

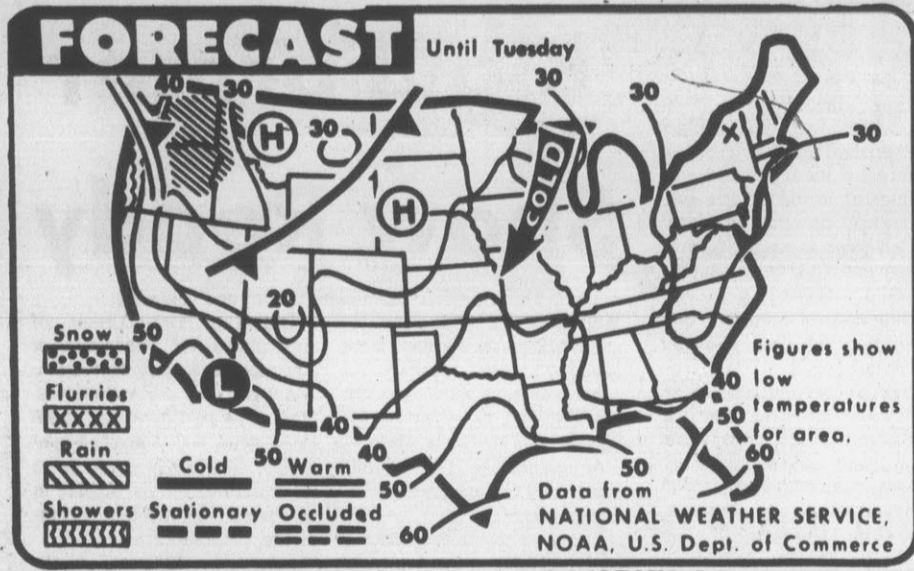

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) is celebrating its 34th year with a membership of approximately 170,000.

The Farmville Central Chapter of DECA traveled to Currituck for their annual District Leadership Conference last week. There, students were involved with job interviews and Miss DECA competition.

District officers for the year were also elected. Jill Cutler was elected vice-president and Debbie Harris, secretary-treasurer. Both are of the Farmville Chapter.

Upcoming events for Farmville's chapter include a Businessmen's Social on Nov. 21, a Christmas party for the Child Development Center on Dec. 15, a radio-thon in February, state leadership conference in March, a Parent's Night Social, and others.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold weather is forecast today for most of the nation. Rain is expected in the Northwest with milder weather stretching from the northern Rockies into the Plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Temperatures were below freezing over North Carolina from the mountains to the coast this morning with the Raleigh-Durham Airport dropping to a record low for the date — 20 degrees.

Other low readings included Greensboro 22, Asheville 23 and Charlotte and Wilmington 29. Greensboro's low tied the record 22 set on this date last year.

A cold air mass hung over the state in connection with a high pressure system but this was moving eastward. As it moves off the coast tonight, winds will turn to a southerly flow, bringing warmer temperatures.

A warming trend will set in over the state Tuesday. High readings today in the 50s will give way to the 60s Tuesday. Low readings tonight will be in the upper 20s inland to near 40 on the coast.

A weak frontal system is expected to move into the state Wednesday and there will be a chance of a few light showers throughout the state. Daytime temperatures are expected to continue in the mild 60s Wednesday and Thursday.

Whitfield At Session

Carl E. Whitfield, field representative of the N.C. Office of Highway Safety, attended the Fourth Annual Conference on Highway Safety at the N.C.S.U. Education Center Nov. 8-9 in Raleigh.

The conference was sponsored by the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center.

Dr. B.J. Campbell presided over the meeting. Keynote speaker was Thomas W. Bradshaw, Secretary for the N.C. Department of Transportation.

Other speakers included J. Phil Carlton, secretary for the Department of Public Safety and Crime Control; and Elbert L. Peters, commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The purpose of the meeting was to bring together professionals in the Highway Safety field, and to exchange ideas about highway safety and research.

Find Marijuana During Search

Greenville Police Friday night arrested Robert Allen Smith, 27 of 118 West Ninth St. on marijuana possession charges, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said officers arrested Smith about 10:05 p.m. when they searched his residence and found between 3 and 4 pounds of marijuana. Value of the illegal drug was estimated at $800.

Assisted On Assault Charge

Annette Spain, 19 of 302 Nash St. was arrested Saturday by Greenville Police on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Cannon reported that Miss Spain allegedly stabbed Brenda Clark of 704 Vanderbilt Ave. Friday night at a dwelling on Manhattan Avenue following an argument.

Flying Tour Of Disaster Area

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Greg Schneiders, special assistant to President Carter, and Rep. Lamar Gudger, D-N.C., will take a helicopter tour Monday of the 12-county western North Carolina disaster area hit by floods a week ago.

Officials here said Sunday that they had received 1,471 applications for federal relief from residents of the disaster area. The relief programs include food stamps, loans for business and home repairs and emergency food allotments.

A survey by the federal coordinating office showed that the flooding damaged 532 homes in the area, 175 of them severely or totally, and left 678 families isolated because of road and bridge damage.

Arrested On 5 Forgery Counts

Greenville Police Friday arrested Marvin Earl Hines, 23 of 412 Village Dr. on five counts of forgery.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Hines was charged in connection with passing forged checks at a Greenville super market on October 23 and 22 and two incidents on October 21, as well as an incident in Farmville May 7.

Aggie Alumni Unit Held Meet

The Pitt County and Greenville Alumni Chapter of N. C. A&T State University held its initial meeting of this academic year Wednesday at the J. W. Maye home.

Several ad hoc committees were formed. The 16 Aggies in attendance decided to continue the local dues for each member and to postpone till the December meeting the election of officers for 1977-78. They selected the host or hostess for each of the monthly meetings through May, 1978.

The next session will be held Wednesday, Dec. 14, at the home of Addie Fore, 906 W. Fourth Street, Greenville.

Couple Marries Sunday In Double Ring Ceremony

RALEIGH — The Millbrook Baptist Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Diane Elaine Shaw and Charles Eugene Tyson. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. M. Wayne Brown at three o'clock.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Madison Shaw of Raleigh, and the late Mr. Shaw. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. French Kermit Tyson Sr. of Rt. 1, Ayden.

A program of wedding music was presented by Dan Southern, organist, and Dr. M. Wayne Brown, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a white sate peau empire A-line dress with pearl trimmed embroidered alencon lace on the bodice. The dress had an open keyhole neckline and fitted bishop sleeves. The skirt was edged with lace with appliques on the train. Her veil was cathedral length with beaded embroidered alencon lace attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace.

Miss Cheryl Shaw of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of rust and apricot qiana fashioned with a crossed halter neckline and an empire bodice. The gown featured an apricot chiffon capelet which draped to the waistline in front and dipped to walking length in back.

Diamond Anniversary Set By Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club will celebrate its diamond anniversary Tuesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. F. L. Blount and Mrs. R. W. King will be hostesses for the 75th birthday of the club. Dr. Ralph Rives, professor of English at East Carolina University, will be speaker.

A brief history of the club will be given by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, who has been a member since January, 1924.

The honor guest will be Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, a charter member of the club. During the dessert course, she will cut the cake which will be decorated with the club colors, purple and gold.

A highlight of the luncheon will be the display of the club's scrapbook, which was preserved and kept through the years by the late Mrs. W. I. Wooten.

The End of the Century Book Club is the oldest club in Greenville and the Sans Souci Book Club is the second oldest club to be organized.

"Originally the membership was made up of the unmarried sisters of The End of the Century

BUTTERNUT BISCUITS

Good way to use a little left-over squash.

1 cup buttermilk baking mix

1/2 tablespoons sugar

3/4 teaspoon apple-pie spice

1/2 cup mashed cooked butternut squash

2 tablespoons (about) milk

Stir together the baking mix, sugar and apple-pie spice. Add the squash and enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll out 1/2-inch thick; cut out with a floured 2-inch cutter. Place, slightly apart, on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until golden brown — about 15 minutes. Serve at once with plenty of butter. Makes about 10.

Several smiling faces were to be found at Rose High during an assembly held Nov. 4. At this time, the winners of the candy sale were announced.

Ray Alexander, Debbie Roberts, and Robert Causey were the three students who sold the most candy in the senior, junior and sophomore class respectively. Each of these students received a prize of 50 dollars.

Junior Donna Underwood and sophomore Carol Jones were the recipients of the second place prizes which were 25 dollars each.

In addition to these prizes, 21 five dollar prizes were awarded to various students.

Winners from the sophomore included Billy Bland, Debbie Boyd, Michael Brohawn, Lisa Butts, Robert Causey, Bel Velam Nobles, and Angela Wooten.

Next, winning for the junior class were Robin Edwards, Glenda Evans, Debbie Robert-Melba Swindell, Betty Tripp, and Donna Underwood.

Finally senior winners were chosen. These included John Ard, Susan Briely, Jamie Glisson, Shanda Hubbard, Pat Paschal, and Wanda Williams.

The Health Horizon Club spent a very enjoyable and educational night Tuesday as they visited Pitt Memorial Hospital. During this trip members of the club were given a presentation on Cardiacpulmonary resuscitation. This demonstration was conducted by Shelton Dixon, who is with the respiratory therapy department at Pitt Memorial.

RALEIGH — The Millbrook Baptist Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Diane Elaine Shaw and Charles Eugene Tyson. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. M. Wayne Brown at three o'clock.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Madison Shaw of Raleigh, and the late Mr. Shaw. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. French Kermit Tyson Sr. of Rt. 1, Ayden.

A program of wedding music was presented by Dan Southern, organist, and Dr. M. Wayne Brown, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a white sate peau empire A-line dress with pearl trimmed embroidered alencon lace on the bodice. The dress had an open keyhole neckline and fitted bishop sleeves. The skirt was edged with lace with appliques on the train. Her veil was cathedral length with beaded embroidered alencon lace attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace.

Miss Cheryl Shaw of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of rust and apricot qiana fashioned with a crossed halter neckline and an empire bodice. Waste Disposal Plan Ready

The County Commissioners gave their tentative approval to a solid waste disposal ordinance at their monthly meeting last week. The ordinance provides for franchise agreements with private haulers who are already in the business of collecting solid waste in the county. The ordinance is tentative pending a public hearing to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the district court room at the Court House on Nov. 15. Provided for in the plan are ten districts with a private hauler assigned to each district. The hauler would negotiate with the individual households and businesses in the assigned district. He would, however, be responsible to serve any residence in the district for the specified fee. The ordinance would regulate disposal of solid waste throughout the county and the individual could, of course, be responsible for hauling his own refuse to a collection point. The commissioners are also considering a system of 40-cubic yard containers for solid waste disposal throughout the county. We think the commissioners have developed a plan to end indiscriminate garbage dumping all over the county. The needed hauling service will be provided by private contractors with the individual households paying for the service. It strikes us as being an excellent plan.

An Answer To Discipline?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—There is general agreement that discipline in North Carolina public schools is a problem; but little accord on the root causes of the situation, or on solutions. Teachers and school administrators blame parents, home surroundings, and society for sending them unruly kids. The students blame teachers and school administrators for making school a repressive, dull place where you have to fight back or drop out. Parents largely blame school personnel for not being tough enough and allowing students to get out of hand. And, sizable portion of the public consider the introduction into all public schools of low-income blacks once segregated to their own areas as the most pronounced contributor to school discipline problems. There is likely some truth to each of these conflicting views, and a careful reading of a new State Department of Public Instruction book called "Discipline in School: A Source Book," touches upon these and more.

Contradictions
It is interesting to note the contradictions uncovered by the study: "In general teachers and principals believe that the major causes of discipline problems in the high school can be attributed to home and societal conditions. "Students, on the contrary, think discipline problems are caused by... lack of student involvement, low student morale, poor communications between student and faculty, and nothing for students to do..." Whatever the causes, the study does pronounce discipline a real problem and seeks to set forth some alternative solutions which parents, teachers, administrators and others worried about the schools might explore and try. But, the authors of the book caution: "...fear of change is our greatest enemy... locking us into action which may not be working. Our greatest challenge is to master our natural fear... and make the uncertain leap into new directions." Those new directions are spelled out in the source book, but in less than elaborate detail. Mostly, the authors come down hard on general conditions as they exist; and in the process provide some clues to the kinds of change which they envision. For example, strict rules and punishment are rejected as not working, obviously; and it is suggested that teachers be more human and flexible while students are given a role in making and changing the rules. Rigid, authoritarian control does not help a child who grew up hated and hating others; "close, caring relationships" between teachers and students is required. A Joy "But our best protection is to make school a more joyous and more satisfying experience... It is pain and boredom which drive children to smash windows, shoot dope, and beat on other children," the authors believe. "It is love and success which teach them to love and to succeed." The measure of damage from discipline problems is not in property loss and bodily harm alone, but in damage done "children who should be exploring the beauty, power, and purpose of this incredible universe, who should be laughing and enjoying life (but) are turned off and unhappy. Teachers who... find themselves demoted to jailors, fighting to keep the lid on and still do something for the handful who will listen. "In the chaos of broken windows, smoke-filled bathrooms, verbal abuse, robberies, stabbings, truancies, and all the rest, principals are painfully forced to act more as security guards... parents must worry about the safety of their sons and daughters... we must stop violence and vandalism in our schools," the book announces. "But discipline doesn't mean just students who are quiet and obedient; it develops in a school which is interesting, challenging and useful, the study concludes.

Trials Of 'Indian Giver'

WASHINGTON — The United States made a terrible mistake many years ago when it gave the American Indians a lot of what it considered worthless land to live on. It now turns out that this land has on it and under it—one-third of all the low-sulphur coal suitable for strip mining, about 55 percent of the nation's uranium and 3 or 4 percent of its oil and natural gas. But the Indians, instead of offering to give the land back to the white man, have formed a Council of Energy Resources and are planning to play hard ball when it comes to leases and mining rights. No amount of persuasion can make the Indians realize that the white man had erred in giving them the wrong land. A friend of mine went out to talk to an Indian council member the other day. He said, "I come in peace. Many moons ago our forefathers did your tribe a terrible injustice. We gave you land on which nothing could grow and no animals could graze." "We know about that," the Indian chief replied. "Our geologists recently reported that the reason nothing could grow on our land was that there was too much low-sulphur coal in it." "Exactly. Since you are the descendants of these brave warriors we wish to make amends and give you land that really has some value." "You are very kind, but we are happy with the land," the chief said. "The royalties from our uranium deposits will see us through many a cold winter." "But mining uranium is so degrading for an American Indian," my friend said. "We're not going to mine it," the Indian chief said. "We're going to let the white man do that. We're going into stock investments, bonds and real estate. We might even buy a few insurance companies, and Board walk and Park Place, if they ever get those Atlantic City casinos built." "But, Great Chief wouldn't your people be happier living somewhere else besides this vast wasteland of parched earth?" "Do you know what's under that parched earth? Three or 4 percent of all the oil

Dairy Farmer Choice

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Once again last week, Gov. Jim Hunt emphatically stated that North Carolina farmers don't want welfare, they want to earn their money. But, just as emphatically a state board made a mockery of his words. Hunt made his statement during a news conference last Wednesday while discussing federal anti-smoking proposals. One proposal would pay a farmer to not grow tobacco until he could make a transition to another crop to compensate for the lost income. That seemed to ruffle the governor's conservative feathers. Besides, he's a tobacco farmer himself. "Our farmers don't want welfare," he has said. Last week he said he hoped Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano will visit the state "to see for himself and to hear our farmers tell him what they want and how they react to the idea of being put on welfare rather than being able to continue to grow and produce their crop." The governor has high praise for farmers as hard-working people who would be insulted if anyone were to suggest that they would want something for nothing. That sort of philosophy would seem to fit well in a state where the legislature has decreed that each high school pupil be taught about the free enterprise system. But the day after Hunt's news conference, a state agency ordered a company to pay a group of farmers because it DIDN'T use their product. That order was strikingly similar to what Hunt said farmers would reject, though the product wasn't tobacco. It was milk. The State Milk Commission was trying to stop Arcadia Dairies from giving consumers an alternative to fresh whole milk. Since 1974, Arcadia has been harassed by the commission, by competitors and by Asheville area dairy farmers because it

Soviet Splitting Tactics

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BELGRADE — Behind the closed doors of the all-European Security Conference a struggle has been going on for the hearts and minds of Western European states caught between U.S. persuasion to publicize Soviet human rights violations and willful Soviet pressures to sweep its violations under the diplomatic rug. At the very outset Soviet delegates collared Western diplomats in a hard-nosed campaign to rule out specific mention of countries, categories or individuals that have sinned — or been sinned against — in the field of human rights. Countering this Soviet effort to duck humiliating international censure for flouting individual rights agreed to at Helsinki in 1975, the U.S., led by Arthur Goldberg and Ambassador Albert Sherrer, lobbied the other way. Goldberg found Western Europe reluctant to anger Moscow. Even before the Helsinki follow-up conference met here Oct. 1, the U.S. laid down its basic position in a meeting with NATO countries in Brussels: don't seek a confrontation but don't avoid the truth. It found an attitude so chilly against confrontation that it looked as though truth might become a casualty. With France at that point in the vanguard of those promoting "discreet" diplomacy (meaning kid gloves), the crucial problem of Western unity and strategy was first turned over to the nine members of the European Economic Commission (EEC). Both West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and France's President Giscard d'Estaing had publicized their fears when President Carter's human rights campaign moved into high gear early this year. Their agents here toed that same line of caution. Less reluctant were the Canadians, Dutch, Belgians and Norwegians. At the start, however, the U.S. was virtually alone in lobbying for a tougher position — not nearly so tough as anti-Soviet hardliners and human rights intellectuals in the U.S. Congress wanted, but tough enough to spotlight Moscow as chief sinner and its own citizens as most sinned against. White House limitations on Goldberg were vague except for this: SALT II must not be jeopardized in Belgrade. The EEC produced a policy in early October and sent it to a caucus of NATO nations. "We cannot engage in platitudes," it said. "Therefore it is agreed to mention countries and categories" — for example, religious groups like Jews and Baptists. Goldberg insisted on the following addition: "...countries, categories and, where appropriate, cases" — meaning Soviet Helsinki monitors

(Henderson Dispatch)
Entirely aside from candidates and issues, last Tuesday's elections in Vance County demonstrated anew the continuing need for voting machines in the balloting. The last precinct to turn in its tabulations reported after midnight. This certainly is no reflection on pollholders. They were dedicated to accuracy in the vote count, and took every reasonable precaution to that end. Their services were essential; the voting could not have proceeded without them. They deserve the commendation and appreciation of citizens. So also for those in the Election Board's office, who were as patient and meticulous in their activity. After the initial investment in the equipment, the cost of elections could be reduced substantially for holding elections. That is a sizable expense to the county. Time was in memory when the county budget item for elections was only about $1,500. Today it is said to be in excess of $30,000. Inflation has struck there as elsewhere. No other election is in sight for Henderson or Vance County until the statewide and county primaries next May. The ballot at that time could and probably be a long one in the aggregate. Understanding is that the county commissioners are favorable to voting machines, in principle. The obstacle is that of finding the money to buy the equipment. Perhaps a way might be found before the county votes again. Should it be so, Vance will not be, as it almost always has been hitherto, one of the last in the State to report its election returns. That may not be considered a pressing problem, but candidates and their friends are eager on election night to know what has happened.

Strength For Today

A GREAT CONVERSION
It was said of Henry Moorhouse, the great English evangelist, that he moved Dwight L. Moody toward Christ, who in turn moved the world in that direction. But Henry Moorhouse gave little promise in his youth of ever being a Christian. He seemed to be hopelessly profligate. One night, passing the Alhambra Circus in Manchester, where Richard Weaver was preaching, Moorhouse heard a noise within, and thinking that a fight was going on, rushed to participate in the fray. As he entered, he heard the arresting word, "Jesus," uttered by the evangelist, and the word went as a bullet to his heart. All the wickedness of his life suddenly rose before his eyes like a vision, and he became aware that a different life was possible and that he might lay hold on such a life. He was suddenly and completely converted. In Moorhouse, God laid His hand on one of the most unpromising men in England; yet the power of the Holy Spirit in the young man's heart made him a mighty worker in the vineyard of the Lord. —By Elisha Douglass

Proclaiming Property Rights

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Investors of America unite! The time is now, speak up for your rights, throw off the shackles! Bring the battle to the oppressor of investor rights and disarm them by showing the error of their ways. A rather small band of dedicated investors heard this proclamation at a convention in Atlanta late last week on what was appropriately remembered as the 60th anniversary of the Russian Revolution. "It may be an understatement to say Leninism has gone about as far as it can go," declared the speaker. Let us now assert the rights of property, he said, for owners of property are financially and otherwise responsible to it and for it. There are 25 million investors who directly own shares in American industry. There exist another 50 million potential beneficiaries of pension funds that are invested in the market. Let us therefore proclaim people's capitalism! George Nicholson, a broker, was the speaker. His audience was made up of members of the National Association of Investment Clubs at their annual convention. Nicholson is also an adviser to the association. This is what he advised: The establishment of an Individual Investors Magna Carta to be submitted to the World Investment Congress in Amsterdam next April 27-29. And establishment of an Individual Investor Relations Board. The latter would be sought with the aid of President Carter and Congress, and would parallel the National Labor Relations Board. Its purpose would be to deal with unfair investor practices wherever they occur. A big order. As investors see it, unfair practices often emanate from Washington, D.C. and other capitals, where it is felt almost everyone's rights these days take precedence over those of investors. The time to act has come, he said. A worldwide reaction has set in against overwhelming central authority and disregard for property and the sense of personal responsibility it encourages. Nations are tired of devouring themselves. Only recently, he noted, Ireland and Sweden have changed to more conservative governments. And in France, he said, fears of a socialist-communist coalition in March are reduced. Capital and labor have a mutual interest in investing, he continued. Investments produce jobs, retirement pensions. Jobs provide money to be invested. "Americans can create an investment engine that will help the unemployed today and keep the purchasing power of pensions tomorrow if individual investor rights are asserted," he concluded. Investment club members have seen another movement grow from such a small beginning — their own. The association was formed in Detroit in 1951. It now has 6,000 members, and a World Federation of Investment Clubs now exists in London.

State Purchase Of 6,000 Acres Evolved Into Prolonged Headache

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Seven years ago the state paid $750,000 for 6,000 acres in Currituck County to be used for a black bear sanctuary and hunting area. The land has turned out to be virtually useless swamp and marshland and has embroiled the state in several title disputes.

The story of the Currituck County purchase and others are told in a report released by the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research, which describes itself as an independent research and reporting operation supported by donations and foundation grants.

The report cites the Currituck purchase and others as evidence of the need for reform in the buying and selling of land by the state.

"State officials have sometimes relied on wrong or inadequate information, bowed to influential politicians, been victimized by bad judgment and poor planning or even ignored the laws and their own established procedures," the report says.

In the case of the Currituck County land, the report says several things went wrong. An inaccurate survey map was used to determine the purchase price, ownership of the land was not researched and state officials either ignored or were unaware of an auction at which the same land could not be sold for even a fraction of what the state paid.

Among other transactions examined by the report are:

—The 1961 state sale of channel bottoms under navigable waters to resort developers in Wilmington despite a state law forbidding such sales.

—A 1966 transaction in which the state received 28 acres of land described in the report as "useless" near the N.C. School for the Deaf in Morganton in exchange for 10.7 acres of prime commercial land which since has been developed.

—The 1971 state sale for $3,700 of waterfront property near Atlantic Beach that was initially appraised at $32,100.

—A 1972 transaction in which the state traded away a downtown site in Morehead City for a parcel described in the report as "a sandy, waterfront tract that is useless ... without the adjacent 22 acres" for which no deed was obtained.

—Loans by the University of North Carolina of Chapel Hill property to five private fraternities for use as security for building loans. The state constitution prohibits special consideration for private interests in state services.

—The transfer to a non-profit corporation of land on which UNC medical school buildings now stand. The report says the transaction, which took place in the mid-1960's, could eventually force the state to pay property tax on the land.

—The 1970 sale to private interests of state land in Morganton that could have been used by the Burke County rescue squad.

The report recommended several changes in the manner in which the Council of State and the property office of the state Department of Administration handle land transactions.

It suggested the creation of a land-review panel of real-estate experts to examine large or unusual land transactions; public advertising of all land sales; a revised procedure in the selection of local attorneys who research property ownership for the state; and open meetings by the Council of State.

In addition, the group urged that minimum standards for property appraisals and surveys be established, and recommended that title insurance and two independent appraisals be required on all transactions involving $100,000 or more.

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — There are some who believe that the relationship between the Baptist State Convention and Wake Forest University is a marriage made in heaven.

There are others who probably would swear it is something conjured up by the devil for the trial-and-tribulation category.

"The problem is that the Baptists think this is their school, and a lot of us think it's ours," said a Wake Forest sophomore.

"For instance, there are rules against publicly displaying beer on campus." He took a long pull on an open beer can as he stood in the yard at a fraternity party.

"I could get kicked out of school for this, but we do it anyway."

For the most part, life is quiet among the well-scrubbed Georgian buildings and symmetrical rows of trees that make up the Wake Forest campus northwest of downtown Winston-Salem.

But underneath the calm simmers a new feud between the university and the Baptist State Convention, which chartered the original Wake Forest Institute back in 1834 and still appoints trustees and donates money.

When the annual meeting of the convention opened in Charlotte today, one of the first orders of business was a committee report recommending that Wake Forest return $85,000 of a federal grant.

The committee says the school is fudging on a convention rule by keeping the money. The school contends quietly that it is entitled to the funds, part of a larger grant.

It is another chapter in the push-pull relationship between Wake Forest and the Baptist Convention, a relationship which Wake President Ralph Scales politely describes as "still lively."

During the 1960s, dancing on campus was the big issue. Some Baptist leaders found it shocking, but the students did it anyway.

Then there were scowls over "hell" and "damn" cropping up in cheers at athletic events. That one pass too. Now other issues related to student life have combined with the controversy over the grant to create new and growing tension.

Cecil A. Ray, general secretary-treasurer of the convention, says something has to give. A committee from the convention is doing a three-year study of the situation and will probably come up with some recommendations.

The committee was born after the infamous Larry Flynt episode last spring, which Ray said "brought forth feelings and attitudes that were already there" among some members of the state convention.

Flynt, publisher of "Hustler" magazine and a convicted pornographer, spoke on campus at the invitation of a student group. On campus it was no big deal.

"A lot of people turned out to hear him, but I think that was just to see if he'd bring any of his girls," one student said.

Away from campus, the ground shook.

"The Larry Flynt thing precipitated this whole situation. Baptists began asking 'Who's running the store up there?' and how many Baptist students do we have at Wake Forest, and all sorts of other questions," said the Rev. Coy Privette of Kannapolis, president of the Baptist State Convention.

According to Scales, 30 to 40 percent of the approximately 4,000 undergraduates are Baptists. There is no quota, but the level has remained fairly constant during the 10 years he has been president, Scales said.

Privette said in an interview that many main line Baptists are bewildered over the Flynt episode and other things they don't like about life at Wake Forest.

Shortly after the Flynt controversy, a male freshman was suspended from school for violating the rigid policy on men and women visiting in each other's dormitories. Students protested both the suspension and the rules, and the protests got wide coverage.

"The concern has been is the school putting as much emphasis on the spiritual dimension as on academics? There's no question about the academic excellence of Wake Forest, but the area of the spiritual is where the real tension lies," Privette said.

The disagreement over that federal grant began back in October 1976, but it has heated up in recent weeks. To some Wake Forest students and alumni it appears that the heat came after the Flynt and visitation episodes.

The convention's position is that its constitution forbids acceptance of government grants unless they are used in a way that gives the government service for its money. The $85,000 in question was to be used to build a greenhouse.

Many see the grant controversy as a manifestation of an effort by the Baptists to exert a stronger influence on campus.

A recent travel brochure for alumni was censored, with heavy black lines covering references to alcoholic drinks and cocktails.

Rules are stricter this year, according to fraternity members. They said they are limited to two mid-week parties a month. Last year, there were no limits.

There are rules against liquor in dorm rooms. There is still a disagreement over coeducational visiting limits.

But many students say they break the rules without fear of getting caught.

"I came here because of the academic reputation of this school, not because of the Baptists or the rules," said one fraternity man. "If you've got liquor in your room, who's going to report you?"

cheon with top Canadian diplomats last summer, for example, Vorontsov tried by every wile to split the U.S. and Canada.

So far, the West has displayed reluctance in sticking together, even if European caution and President Carter's penicillin rush toward SALT II have imposed a brake on the Americans here. For that reason alone — quite apart from the massive propaganda setback for the Soviets — Western European diplomats regard this long, deceptively tedious conference as a triumph for the West.

The final test is still to come: whether the West will be as brutally frank as it should be in a closing, formal report, documenting Moscow's gross flouting of human rights pledges it signed in the Helsinki agreements and its refusal even to discuss implementation. If not, the blame will not be found here; it will be found in Jimmy Carter's White House.

Farm And Home Trade Show Set

LUMBERTON — The steering committee of the 1978 Southeastern Farm and Home Trade Show has announced that the show will be conducted on Feb. 15-16, 1978.

This is the ninth edition of the Southeastern Farm and Home Trade Show which will include exhibitions of farm and home equipment, supplies, and services.

The show will be located at the Cooperative Warehouse, east of Lumberton, on Rural Road 1620. All persons interested in exhibiting their wares should call the trade show headquarters in Lumberton at (919) 738-8111.

Right And Wrong In Fumigation Of Soil

Proper soil fumigation is the first requirement for a good supply of strong, healthy plants at the lowest possible cost, according to L. Gaylon Ambrose, assistant Agricultural Extension agent.

"Properly used, methyl bromide does an excellent job of controlling most weeds, grasses, and certain diseases, including nematodes," said Ambrose.

"But due to methyl bromides chemical nature and environmental influences on its effectiveness, complete and partial failures occur from improper application."

Soil moisture should be about right when the fumigant is applied. If the soil is too dry, methyl bromide cannot react with weed seed to kill it. If it is too wet, the fumigant cannot penetrate the water filled air spaces between soil particles to give good weed control.

Ambrose said outside air temperature should be at least 50 degrees, preferably 60 degrees, at application. Soil temperature should range between 50-80 degrees.

"Fall is a better treating time than winter, and fall applications should produce better results," he added.

According to Ambrose, a liquid mixture of methyl bromide and chloropicrin can be injected five to eight inches into the soil with a chisel-type applicator.

Outlasts Rivals For New Car

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old Charlotte woman has won a new car by outlasting 28 other people who entered a contest to see who could stand with one hand on the car for the longest period of time without going to sleep.

The contest, staged by a local car dealership, began shortly after noon Thursday and was won by Darlene Philliben about 10 p.m. Saturday when her last remaining contender dropped out.

But rather than quit, Mrs. Philliben held on until 12:40 p.m. Sunday to claim a world record of standing up without sleep for 72 hours and 24 minutes.

“...and with Jerry Fulford as a new Regional General Manager, this company is really going places.”

Integon is growing. Growing in Williamston, Kinston, Plymouth, Greenville, Pitt County, and Goldsboro. That's where Jerry Fulford, CLU, will be building Integon Insurance agencies. He'll recruit and train top caliber agents who are service minded — Listeners.

With the Greenville W. M. Scales Integon agency continuing in its sales leadership role, and the new Jerry Fulford, CLU region forming, Integon will really be going places.

Jerry Fulford, CLU:

“This represents an unparalleled opportunity for an insurance manager. And, I'll have to admit, it's a challenge. Booger Scales' name means so much in Greenville. Although our people won't compete with him, we'll have to uphold the highest service standards in the nation.

“But I know we'll do the job. We have a strong base of agents in Williamston, and the Integon name is well respected throughout Eastern North Carolina. When we have the right people in the right spots, and are giving them the support and the training they need, we'll have a tremendous and unlimited future ahead of us.

“Our new office building will be located in Oakmont Professional Plaza. Until its completion, you can reach me at P. O. Box 7084, Greenville, or call 756-6965.”

Booger Scales:

“You know that I want only the best for Integon policyholders in our area. And, Jerry Fulford, CLU — is top quality. He is a graduate of East Carolina University, was past head of the United Fund for Beaufort County, Kiwanian of the year in 1973, and past president of the Progressive City Kiwanis Club.

“And Jerry's life insurance career reads like a paragraph out of Who's Who in Life Insurance Management: Leading New Agent in the Greenville agency. A Chartered Life Underwriter. He's recruited an average of at least one new million dollar producer each year he's been in management with Jefferson Standard. He builds leaders — Jerry recruited and trained two Division Managers, both successful. And speaking of leadership — his division accounted for $5 million dollars or more from 1974 through 1977.

“Jerry is a family man, with roots in this area. He, his wife, Lynda, and daughters Miriam and Darby are well known in Greenville.

“Jerry Fulford has my 100 percent endorsement to build Integon agencies in this area.”

Jack Minges:

“I am very pleased and most proud to see Integon Corporation growing in this area. After meeting Jerry Fulford, CLU, I am convinced he will offer the same quality of agency management leadership that the people of this area equate with Booger Scales' service and sales.

“In a recent speech, Roderic H. Ross, CLU, the president of Philadelphia Life, called Booger “a legend,” and cited Booger's unmatched sales career. Now, I believe Jerry Fulford, CLU has his own opportunity to build an outstanding reputation as a leader of men and women as he builds Integon agencies.”

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue chip issues gave up some of last week's gains in a mixed stock market session today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 35.95 points last week, dropped back 5.19 to 840.70 by noon today.

But gainers clung to a very slight lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was caught up in a tug of war between buyers encouraged by last week's rally and sellers skeptical about its durability.

They said it appeared that some investors took the market's upswing as an opportunity to do some year-end tax selling at favorable prices.

Southern California Edison was actively traded, up 1/4 at 26 1/2.

A 100,000-share block traded at 26 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .19 to 52.51. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .15 to 118.18.

Volume on the Big Board tailed off from last Friday's heavy pace. Shares traded totaled 10.93 million shares by noon today against 19.24 million at the same point on Friday.

Actively traded American Stock Exchange issues included Hycel, up 1/2 at 6 1/2, and Champion Home Builders, off 1/4 at 2 1/2.

COLLISION INJURES TWO — A morning collision on Highway 43 about eight miles south of Greenville resulted in the injury of two persons. According to Trooper J.A. Brinkley, a car driven by Icelene Jordan Telefare, of Ayden, was traveling west on rural paved road 1700 when she ran a stop sign and was struck in the left side by a car driven by Ruthell Holmes Bland of Statesburg. The officer said that Ms. Telefare was charged with no operators license and a stop sign violation. Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad transported the injured to Pitt Memorial Hospital. McNeill Smith...

(Continued from page 1) now occupied by Helms, asserted that "constantly saying no is not an answer but a retreat." He said that, "It is not a solution to our problems."

Smith said that he is "proud that throughout my life I have been able, with the help of good friends, to find solutions...practical, positive solutions."

Stressing his own record, he mentioned that he led the fight for statewide public kindergartens, as well as for utility rate reform. In addition, Smith said that he "pioneered in energy conservation" and "got the legislature to crack down on drunk drivers."

The candidate added, "I have not turned my back. I have said yes and I have been successful. And I want to take these experiences to Washington."

Smith assured the gathering that "we can find and save the energy we need. We can find jobs for all who are able and willing to work. We can put an end to runaway inflation which robs everyone, and especially those on limited, fixed incomes."

Asked what factors will narrow down the field of candidates in the Senate race, he pointed out that the successful candidate will be one who is willing to debate Helms' record in office and one who has had election experience. Smith pictured himself as that candidate.

The senator was accompanied to Greenville by his wife, Louise, and various members of his campaign staff, including his campaign manager, Sen. Roger Sharpe. Smith, who held a press conference in Wilmington prior to flying to Greenville, was also scheduled for stops in Raleigh, Greensboro, Charlotte and Asheville today.

Would Revise Leaf Supports Five Die In N.C. Traffic

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The federal tobacco price support program needs to be changed so that farmers are paid more for good quality tobacco but no longer find it profitable to bring lower quality downstake leaf to market.

That's the assessment of P.R. Smith, chairman of a U.S. Department of Agriculture task force assigned to revise the formula used to compute prices the support program pays for tobacco that isn't sold at auction. "I'm afraid the longer we put this off, the worse position we put ourselves in," said Smith in an interview with the Washington bureau of the News and Observer of Raleigh.

"As long as these low stalks are profitable for the farmer to bring them to the market, he's going to do it," Smith said. "I'm not sure that can continue on and on."

The support program, run by a farmer-owned cooperative, buys tobacco at the support price for each grade of leaf purchased, using money from federally-guaranteed loans.

The cooperative stores the tobacco, hoping to sell it later and repay the loans. But the cooperative has had to buy enormous quantities of low-quality leaf in the past two years and hasn't been able to sell it, and many observers fear some of the federally-sponsored loans will be in danger.

Losses to the government, it is feared, could lead to an end to the price support program. Smith, who has a cotton farm, gin and warehouse operation in northeast Georgia, said there is "still a good demand out there for quality tobacco," adding, "If you get (a farmer) a better price for his quality tobacco, it will still protect his income."

The task force plans to have legislative recommendations ready for Bergland by January, Smith said. He conceded that tobacco interests on Capitol Hill may oppose the changes, but made a plea for unity.

"I'm convinced if the tobacco interests stick together, we can bring about some meaningful changes," he said. "When we go to the Hill, it's sort of like a wagon train — you stay grouped together."

At Engineers Soc. Gathering

RALEIGH — The annual meeting of the North Carolina Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers is being held here.

Attending from Greenville are Robert Pittman and Wayne O. Meads.

Over 100 civil engineers from throughout the state will be discussing subjects ranging from pollution abatement and safe drinking water to the construction of the Alaska pipeline.

Old Tennis Shoe For The Unruly

HARRISBURG, Ore. (AP) — A shredded tennis shoe is being used in Harrisburg schools to discipline unruly students.

"Well, you might say it is better than the paddle," Superintendent Gerald Newton says.

But some parents are upset about the merits of tennis shoe discipline and the Harrisburg Union High School Board will review the practice at its meeting today.

Newton says the board probably will reaffirm its shoe swatting policy. He says on the average no more than six of the high school's 210 students are struck each year.

"Unless a parent has specified he wants it differently, a high school student gets his choice," says Newton. "He either can get a new from the tennis shoe or be sent home to his parents. Most of them choose the tennis shoe."

PREPAYMENT PENALTIES

You've sold your home. Your buyer obtained new financing with a new mortgage. Therefore, your old mortgage was, undoubtedly, paid in full with part of your proceeds from the sale. Paying off a mortgage in advance of its original loan length is known in the trade as "prepayment".

Many lenders today require a prepayment penalty if a mortgage is paid off prior to its original due date, and you'll find this can amount to several hundred dollars.

If you paid this penalty, don't forget that the Internal Revenue Service treats the prepayment penalty the same as interest — which can be a valuable deduction from your income tax.

But, in spite of the tax break, always try to bargain for the smallest prepayment penalty or no penalty at all. In fact, in many states, consumer-oriented laws have been passed which prohibit any prepayment penalties after the home loan has been in effect from three to five years.

Tarkenton Breaks Ankle

S'Cause Me, Brother

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

On a day when he suffered the first disabling injury of his fantastic 17-year National Football League career, Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton set still another standard for quarterbacks.

Tarkenton's season and perhaps his career almost certainly ended Sunday when he was sacked by Cincinnati's Gary Burley and suffered a fractured bone in his right ankle during the third period of the Vikings' 42-10 victory over the Bengals.

But before he got hurt, Tarkenton dazzled the Bengals, completing 17 of 18 passes for 195 yards and the most accurate performance an NFL passer has ever produced.

Call it something to remember him by.

It seemed almost fitting that the fabulous scrambler's passing accomplishment should nearly overshadow the grim aftermath of a day that was dotted with serious injuries around the league.

Tarkenton was one of four NFL players to suffer broken legs Sunday. The others were Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey, hurt on the final play of a 24-6 loss to Los Angeles; San Diego's Bill Munson, injured on the only pass he threw in a brief backup appearance as Denver topped the Chargers 17-14, and San Francisco tackle Cas Banaszek, who was hurt early in the 49ers' 10-7 overtime victory against New Orleans.

Two other quarterbacks, Brian Sipe of Cleveland and Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, also were injured in their game, won by the Steelers 35-31, as defenses zeroed in on signal callers.

The league's stingiest defense also turned into an offense with Atlanta scoring a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns on a recovered fumble by Ralph Ortega and an interception by Robert Pennywell to whip Detroit 17-6.

Oakland and Denver both remained tied for first place in the AFC West. The Raiders held off Houston 34-29 and the Broncos rallied to beat San Diego 17-14. Pittsburgh's victory over Cleveland moved the Steelers into a first-place tie with the Browns in the AFC Central. Baltimore stayed one game in front of Miami in the AFC East, beating Buffalo 31-13 while the Dolphins were downing New England 17-5. Minnesota's romp over Cincinnati moved the Vikings two games in front of Detroit in the NFC Central and Los Angeles stayed one game up on Atlanta in the NFC West by beating Green Bay.

St. Louis plays at Dallas tonight.

Bears 28, Chiefs 27

Walter Payton scored three touchdowns and rushed for 192 yards in 33 carries, pushing his season's total to 1,129. He became the first running back in Bears' history including such Hall of Famers as Red Grange, Bronco Nagurski and Gayle Sayers to gain more than 1,000 yards in two consecutive seasons.

Payton's accomplishment was almost overshadowed by the Bears' dramatic victory constructed on a 37-yard pass from Bob Avellini to Greg Latta with only three seconds left in the game. Just 21 seconds earlier, the Chiefs had taken the lead on a 14-yard run by Ed Podolak.

Vikings 42, Bengals 10

Tarkenton's performance topped the NFL accuracy record of 20 completions in 22 attempts by Cincinnati's Ken Anderson in 1974.

He was scrambling away from Burley when the 265-pound defensive end hit him. "He tried to plant his leg and spin," said Burley. "He was going down on a spin when I hit him. I had my weight on him when he went down. There was no way I could stop and let his leg out."

The injury overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Chuck Foreman, who rushed for 133 yards.

Broncos 17, Chargers 14

San Diego led throughout and it took a pair of second-half TD passes from Craig Morton to

NFL Roundup

Haven Moses to pull the victory out for the Broncos.

Morton hit Moses with a 33-yarder midway through the third period and then again on an 8-yarder with just 96 seconds left in the game.

"We always try to find a way to win, one way or another," said Denver Coach Red Miller. "This was the other."

Raiders 34, Oilers 29

Four interceptions halted Houston threats and Oakland hung on to whip the Oilers in an offensive shootout. The Raiders came from behind three times, taking the lead for keeps on Clarence Davis' 3-yard TD run in the third period.

"Field position killed us," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips after the Oilers lost regular place kicker Toni Fritsch with a hamstring injury and had to use substitute kickers throughout the second half.

Rams 24, Packers 6

Dickey's injury on the last play of the game cast a pall over the Rams' victory, which kept Los Angeles one game in front of Atlanta in the NFC West.

The Packer passer, booted all day long, completed 18 of 36 for 276 yards while LA's Pat Haden, directing a ball-control offense, hit on 10 of 17 for 146.

Falcons 17, Lions 6

Trailing 6-0 after three periods, Atlanta rallied for the victory behind its dominant defense. Ortega took a recovered fumble 14 yards for the winning score and Pennywell's 20-yard return of the interception for a last-minute TD clinched it.

Steelers 35, Browns 31

Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes before being knocked out of the game with a shoulder injury. Playing with a cast on his broken left wrist, he finished with 13 completions in 21 attempts for 283 yards.

Cleveland backup Dave Mays threw three TD passes to Larry Poole as the Browns staged a late rally. Mays was replacing Sipe, who also left the game with an injured shoulder.

Colts 31, Bills 13

Lydell Mitchell scored a pair of touchdowns and Bert Jones piloted Baltimore to its eighth victory in nine starts.

Mitchell rushed for 82 yards and caught three passes for 60 more. Jones completed 12 of 23 for 180.

Dolphins 17, Patriots 5

A determined Miami defense bottled up New England's attack and helped the Dolphins stay one game back of Baltimore.

Miami limited Sam Cunningham to five catches for 28 yards.

Lawrence Romps

By The Associated Press
In the past 10 weeks, Amos Lawrence has erased any doubts over how he would fit into the North Carolina football picture.

The Virginia Beach, Va., freshman romped 286 yards in a 35-14 win against Virginia Saturday to set a record for a freshman single-game running performance, and help UNC grab a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference crown.

Lawrence's stellar running propelled the Tar Heels further into the bowl game limelight.

"I think we're a bowl-type team," said Tar Heels Coach Bill Dooley, whose team faces Duke in its season finale Saturday.

In another ACC contest, Clemson played the spoiler three quarters against Notre Dame, before the Irish came back with two touchdowns to kill any upset hopes in a 21-17 finish. Clemson retains a shot at the ACC championship and a bowl bid on its 7-2-1 record.

Lawrence watched the first Tar Heels game against Kentucky from the sidelines, and was not given a starting assignment until the sixth season game. Since being unleashed, he has posted a 1,072-yard season mark.

"From high school to college is a big jump and you don't throw a young player into something like that too soon," Dooley said.

While Lawrence moved the ball on the ground, quarterback Matt Kupec was zipping aeriels to plague Virginia defenders. "The receivers ran great routes and I got protection," Kupec said. "Really that's where the passing game starts, with good protection. It also helps to have Amos running like he did."

In other games, North Carolina State held off determined Duke for a 37-23 win. Wake Forest suffered a humiliating ninth loss in a row to South Carolina 24-14, and Maryland turned back Richmond 27-24.

ACC Roundup

UNC 35, VIRGINIA 14

"We've had plenty of good runners here—McCauley, Mike Voight, James Betterson. But Amos is the best we've had as a freshman. He has come along like we wanted him to and like we thought he would," Dooley said of his frosh standout.

Lawrence scored the first UNC touchdown in the second quarter on a six-yard pitch with six seconds left. He keyed a third period scoring drive with a 36-yard dash and scored following an interception on 21-yard touchdown.

"The great thing about him is that he is always going forward," said Virginia Coach Dick Bestwick of Lawrence. "He's Phi Beta Kappa on the football field."

The Tar Heels, 7-2-1 and unbeaten ACC play, can win the crown outright with a win over Duke. Virginia dropped to 1-4 in the conference and 1-8-1 overall.

N.C. STATE 37, DUKE 32

"There were a lot of guys on both sides playing on heart," said State Coach Bo Rein. "It's a shame someone had to lose."

In the end it was time that ran out on the Blue Devils, following Duke quarterback Mike Dunn's new school record of 344 yards total offense.

With no timeouts remaining and 19 seconds left in the game, Dunn was stopped a yard short of a first down at the State 8 and the Wolfpack won their season finale.

State's 7-4 record keeps them in the running for a bowl game.

NOTRE DAME 21, CLEMSON 17

"We gave them excellent field position and we failed to capitalize on several scoring opportunities. You can't do that against a team of good athletes like Notre Dame," said Tiger Coach Charley Pell.

His Tigers gave the Irish a run for the bowl bids, by leading the fifth-ranked visitors 17-7 after the third quarter.

Tiger quarterback Steve Fuller connected on 13 of 20 attempts for 185 yards. "I still think we should have won. We stopped ourselves more than they stopped us," he said of three costly lost fumbles.

SOUTH CAROLINA 24, WAKE FOREST 14

"We're supposed to have a good pass defense, but Wake Forest picked us pretty well—they hurt us with their passing game," said Gamecock Coach Jim Carlen.

Wake Coach Chuck Mills only wished his Deacons could have done more damage to avoid their ninth straight loss.

"This is the last year we'll ever play like this. We'll do something but I don't know what it'll be now," Mills said. "Our defense never forced them to put the ball in the air. They invariably got good yardage on first down plays."

South Carolina evened its record to 5-5 while Wake dropped to 1-9.

MARYLAND 27, RICHMOND 24

The Terrapins opened the game with a 66-yard drive off the opening kickoff, but Richmond tied it up 2½ minutes later. By the second quarter, Maryland pulled away with a 17-point lead and appeared out of danger.

The Terps are 6-4, while Richmond dropped to 3-7.

NEXT WEEK

North Carolina goes to Duke, Maryland entertains Virginia, Clemson plays at South Carolina and Wake Forest travels to Virginia Tech.

Dye Takes Blame For Poor Discipline

NORFOLK, Va. — It was not quite the way East Carolina University head football coach Pat Dye wanted to end the season.

For the first time in three years, the Pirates were defeated in their season ending game, bowing to a fired-up William & Mary team, 21-17, in the annual Oyster Bowl contest.

"It was a hell of a win," Indian coach Jim Root cheered afterwards. "It ranks with the biggest wins I have had since coming to William & Mary. Our defense played its heart out against a great offensive team"

The winner also heaped praise on quarterback Tom Rozantz, who was named the Most Valuable Player after the game. "He directed a near-perfect offense. He found the slots on the option for some big rushing yards in several crucial situations.

"East Carolina is a super football team and I really can't explain the feeling I have right now. We have had our ups and downs this season, but today, winning as we did, sure makes it all worthwhile."

Across the field, it was a much sadder Dye who held council before the press. "This was a great deal like last year," said, referring back to the previous meeting of the two teams. "We couldn't come up with what we needed to win. Coach Root and his staff did a great job and had a fine game plan. We didn't do any of the things a good football team does."

Dye called it poor coaching. "The 12 men on the field just before half was an example of poor coaching," he said. That came when William & Mary was in punt formation, and one substitute just failed to make it off the field before the snap. That gave the Indians five yards and a first down.

"It also led to a first down," Dye said. "The penalties were obviously a big factor in the game. The man on the call with Gerald Hall said he kicked the William & Mary player. Gerald said he did not. The same official called holding on our nose guard. I don't know how you can do that. The same official we had on those two called seven 15-yard

Redskins 17, Eagles 14

Mark Moseley's 54-yard field goal with 3:41 to play lifted Washington past Philadelphia. The Redskins rallied for 10 points in the fourth period and then nailed down the victory when Horst Muhlmann missed a 31-yard field goal try with 18 seconds left.

49ers 10, Saints 7

A 33-yard overtime field goal by Ray Werschling carried San Francisco to its fourth straight victory following a string of five consecutive losses at the start of the season.

Wilbur Jackson gained 108 yards in 24 carries and running partner Del Williams had 110 in 25 tries for the 49ers.

Giants 10, Bucs 0

Tampa Bay absorbed its 23rd consecutive defeat over two seasons, bowing to New York. The expansion Bucs had the ball inside the 15-yard line half a dozen times but could not score.

Bobby Hammond scored the game's lone touchdown on a short plunge after a bad snap on a punt gave the Giants the ball at the 1-yard line.

Seahawks 17, Jets 0

Seattle posted the first shut-out in its history as Jim Zorn threw a pair of touchdowns, passes.

Zorn, who completed 16 of 37 attempts for 219 yards, hit Don Testerman and David Sims for the Seahawk TDs. The Jets, with regular quarterback Richard Todd injured, managed only 25 yards passing.

It was a disappointing end to an otherwise good year for Pirate football Saturday.

The defeat came right at the point when the Pirates were ready to have a real shot at a bowl game, probably the best shot they've had since landing a Tangerine Bowl berth back in the mid-sixties.

But for some reason, the Bucs didn't get the same defensive effort they have gotten all season. The offense was almost up to its usual par, but couldn't quite pull off the come-from-behind play when it was really needed, in the fourth quarter.

The Indians were up for the game, for certain. They believed, as Pat Dye said earlier in the week, that they should have won last year, and were out for revenge. They beat the Pirates in every phase of the game.

As usual, the Pirate team re-wrote the record book, but not with the regularity as in previous years.

Single game records were set in two categories. Jimmy Southerland set a new mark for pass completion percentage against Appalachian, hitting 87.5 per cent. He also set a mark for most yards per play in total offense with 14.8 yards a try against Richmond.

Junior Creech's three field goals vs. South Carolina tied a school mark.

Three new season records were set. Leander Green averaged 6.9 yards a rush, easing past the 1954 mark of 6.8 per play by Howard O'Kelly. Willie Hawkins set new standards in kickoff returns, returning 20, two more than Reggie Pinkney in 1975, and returning them 525 yards, passing Jerry Tolley's old mark of 447 in 1962.

Four new career records were established. Terry Gallaher ran his reception yardage to 1,214 Saturday, breaking the old record of 1,193 set by Tim Dameron from 1970-72. He also tied the mark held by three others by having 11 career touchdown receptions.

Gerald Hall, with another year to go, has passed Bob Ellis' 1964-66 mark in punt return yards with 489 so far.

Hawkins' 47 kickoff returns and 1,029 yards in those returns, passed Kenny Strayhorn's 42 and 787 set from 1972-75.

Hawkins ended his career ninth in career scoring with 104 points, and sixth in career rushing with 1,755 yards.

Gallaher finished his career with 54 career catches, the fifth best. He also tied for fifth in best single season catches with 47, and tied for second in single season reception yards with 512 this year.

Jimmy Southerland, with 1,198 total yards, this year, placed eighth on the list, and was seventh in passing yards with 787 and ninth on completions with 47. His 929 career passing yards places him in a tie for sixth place for a career.

Eddie Hicks, also with another year to go, is seventh in career rushing with 1,586 yards, and tenth in career scoring with 96 points.

The Pirates set one single season mark they would like to forget. They had 78 penalties called against them, breaking the 1963 mark of 73. They did fail to break the penalty yardage mark, however, having 728 marked off. The current record in 735, set in 1968.

On the bright side, however, East Carolina has cracked one enviable record. By scoring Saturday, the Pirates have run their string of games with a score to 73. Previously, a string of 72 had been set from 1960-68, and of course, this one has a chance to continue.

penalties on its last year against Southern Illinois. His name is (Jesse) Birchfield if you want to mention it."

Hall was kicked out of the game for apparently kicking an Indian player. Just prior to that play, Noah Clark had been handed a 15-yard penalty for roughing Rozantz. He appeared to hit Rozantz just as the passer released the ball.

"That's just one of the reasons we got whipped," Dye continued. "I don't want to take anything away from William & Mary. Rozantz was next to the greatest today. We seem to bring out the best in him each year."

"It was also a combination of them playing real well on offense and our not playing so well on defense," Dye added.

"I want to take as much blame for this as anyone. We were a very undisciplined team and I told our players that that is my fault. We will do something about that next year."

A SAD, SAD STORY
LOGAN, Utah (AP) — When linebacker Claude Nelson of Utah State was asked his most embarrassing moment he had a sad story to tell.

"At a football game here," he said, "I looked up in the crowd and saw a girlfriend from back home. But my girlfriend in Logan is a cheerleader. I went to a friend at half-time and asked him to help. He sure did. After the game my girlfriend from back home was gone, my friend was gone, and I couldn't find the cheerleader, either."

Simpson Shoots Out Of Dog House

Until the final four seconds, Ralph Simpson was in Herb Brown's dog house. Then he shot his way out.

Simpson got into hot water with some bad passes earlier in the game and then unleashed a shot near the end that he wasn't supposed to. But he finally made up for his mistakes with the winning field goal as the Detroit Pistons edged the Washington Bullets 104-102 in the National Basketball Association Sunday night.

"I wasn't supposed to take the shot at the end, and I wasn't even supposed to be in the game," said Simpson, "so it wasn't too bad a moment for me."

Simpson was pulled off the court by Detroit Coach Brown after his bad passing proved costly to the Pistons. When he later came back into the lineup, Simpson looked as though he would hurt the Pistons with his shooting as well.

With the game tied at 122, Brown set up a shot for Eric Money. But Simpson tried a field goal prematurely with 21 seconds left. It missed — but luckily, the ball bounced out of bounds off a Washington player, giving possession back to Detroit.

NBA Roundup

In other NBA games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 97-95; the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Indiana Pacers 116-107; the Seattle SuperSonics walloped the New Orleans Jazz 117-83 and the Boston Celtics defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 127-119.

Lakers 97, Warriors 95
Jamaal Wilkes, Don Ford and Lou Hudson led Los Angeles over Golden State. Hudson scored on a fast break and hit a three-point play in a 7-0 Los Angeles spurt that opened the fourth quarter and overcame a two-point deficit. The Lakers never trailed again, although the teams were never separated by more than five points.

Suns 116, Pacers 107
Ronnie Lee made several key steals and nine big points down the stretch as Phoenix defeated Indiana. Early in the fourth quarter, Indiana had crept to within one point of the Suns before Lee began his heroics.

For the evening, Lee had a season-high 24 points to lead all Phoenix scorers, followed by Paul Westphal with 23 and center Alvan Adams with 22.

Phoenix scorers, followed by Paul Westphal with 23 and center Alvan Adams with 22.

SuperSonics 117, Jazz 83
With Marvin Webster dominating the inside, Seattle opened a 22-point lead in the third quarter and coasted past New Orleans. The loss was New Orleans' fifth in a row and fourth straight on the road.

Webster pulled down only seven rebounds in the game, but tossed in 11 points in the third period. He finished with 20 points, as did guards Fred Brown and Gus Williams. New Orleans' Pete Maravich, who had a game high of 32 points, scored 14 of New Orleans' 19 third-quarter points.

Celtics 127, Bucks 119
Two Jo Jo White jump shots halfway through overtime boosted Boston to a five-point lead and the Celtics went on to beat Milwaukee. The Bucks got within 120-117 on Quinn Buckner's jumper. But John Havlicek, who came off the bench to score 15 points, had four of them in overtime after Buckner's basket.

White led all scorers with 23 points. Dave Cowens and Cedric Maxwell added 18 each. Maxwell's points all were in the first half.

Orange Bowl Ponders Pitt-Arkansas Match-Up

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The best college football game of the year may be the one Arkansas and Pitt are waging, trying to wangle an invitation from the Orange Bowl.

"That's where we want to go and we're doing everything we can to show 'em we'd be a natural," Arkansas Athletic Director Frank Broyles said after the eighth-ranked Razorbacks nipped No. 11 Texas A&M 26-20 Saturday on Ron Calcagni's tie-breaking 58-yard bomb to Robert Farrell with 1:41 remaining. And following 10th-ranked Pitt's 52-26 drubbing of Army, Athletic Director Cas Myslinski said he thought an agreement by which the winner of the Nov. 26 Pitt-PENN State game would go to the Orange Bowl and the loser to another bowl "would work out real well."

With fifth-ranked Notre Dame seemingly bound for the Cotton Bowl following a come-from-behind 21-17 triumph over No. 15 Clemson, the other bowls are waiting for the Orange to make up its mind which way it will go. Everything should then fall into some kind of order.

Indications are that the Orange will invite ninth-ranked Penn State, a 44-7 winner over Temple, even though the Orange Bowl has often said its policy is to go after the highest-ranking available teams.

Right now, that's Arkansas as the opponent for the Big Eight king, but, a source close to the Orange Bowl told The Associated Press, "The problem with Arkansas is that it would not be a game of national interest."

Now, that doesn't mean national football interest. In this case, national interest translates into tourists.

College Football

"The question is why were the bowls formed," the source said. "Ours was formed to encourage tourism and most of our tourists are from the East, even though Arkansas has said they'd bring 35,000 people and has guaranteed 22,500 ticket sales."

In addition, NBC-TV, which airs the Orange Bowl, was said to favor a match between Penn State and the Big Eight champ — either third-ranked Oklahoma, which trounced Colorado 52-14, or No. 12 Nebraska, which blasted Kansas 52-7. The loser could wind up in the Gator Bowl.

"If we invited Arkansas to play, say, Oklahoma," said the source, "they're only about 250 miles apart geographically. We'd have to consider that from a national TV standpoint."

Broyles, however, points out that because Arkansas and Oklahoma are neighboring states and haven't played since 1919, "It would be one of those blood-and-guts games just like Oklahoma-Texas, Arkansas-Texas or Ohio State-Michigan. State pride would be at stake and bragging rights would be involved."

Asked if he would agree to the Nov. 26 winner going to the Orange Bowl, Penn State Coach Joe Paterno would only say, "I'll cross that bridge when I come to it." He also said — are you listening, Orange Bowl? — that "this could end up being the best football team I've ever had."

Meanwhile, it seemed certain that Notre Dame would be headed for Dallas when the bids go out next Saturday at 6 p.m. Unless No. 1-ranked Texas, which trimmed Texas Christian 44-14, stumbles against Baylor, the Longhorns undoubtedly will retain their position in the AP poll.

The Sugar Bowl still was reported "leaning" to the loser of next Saturday's Ohio State-Michigan Big Ten shootout, the winner of which goes to the Rose Bowl. In weekend action, both teams spotted the opposition an early lead but fourth-ranked Ohio State whipped Indiana 35-7 and No. 6 Michigan clobbered Purdue 40-7.

If Ohio State beats Michigan, the Wolverines could wind up third in the Big Ten, provided Michigan State defeats Iowa. Would the Sugar Bowl want a third-place team? Stay tuned. The host team will be Southeastern Conference champion Alabama, runner-up to Texas in the national rankings. The Crimson Tide walloped Miami of Florida 36-0.

The one team in the Top Ten that can't go to a bowl is No. 7 Kentucky, a 14-7 winner over Florida but currently on NCAA probation.

If Arkansas doesn't get the Orange Bowl bid, the Razorbacks probably will forget about national rankings and opt for a fun-filled Fiesta Bowl trip against the Western Athletic Conference champ. The leader is No. 17 Arizona State, a 24-13 winner over No. 13 Brigham Young.

The Ohio State-Michigan winner, of course, goes to the Rose Bowl against the Pacific-8 representative.

Crowd Behind King In Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — A record crowd showed its favoritism for the American star, Billie Jean King, who loved every cheer.

"The crowd was biased for me and that's great. It's the first time in many years a crowd has been behind me like that," she said Saturday night after her 6-4, 3-6, 8-6 victory over Virginia Wade in the best match of the annual Wightman Cup tennis series with Great Britain.

The U.S. team won three matches Saturday night to complete a sweep of the week's seven matches. Chris Evert made her Wightman Cup singles record 12-0 by demolishing Sue Barker 6-1, 6-2, then she teamed with Rosie Casals to beat Wade and Barker 6-2, 6-4 in doubles.

Even though the last two matches were anti-climactic, after King and Wade battled for 2½ hours, many in the crowd of 11,317 at the Oakland Coliseum stayed on past midnight. It was the biggest turnout in the 49-year history of the series.

In other tennis tournaments, Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., beat South African Ray Moore 6-2, 6-4 to win the $150,000 Stockholm Open. Mayer said he prayed for 15 minutes to calm his pre-match jitters, then tamed Moore with a powerful serve and volley game. Moore did not accomplish a single service break.

"His serves were so deep and hard and his returns were as brilliant," Moore said of his inspired opponent.

In Bogota, Colombia, Argentine Guillermo Vilas beat Spaniard Jose Higuera 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 in the $50,000 Orient International Cup.

"Three times already I've been beaten by Vilas so far this year," said Higuera. "Without discussion, Vilas is the best tennis player in the world."

Vilas won the U.S. Open in September by downing American star and longtime No. 1 Jimmy Connors.

Hans Gildemeister and Belus Prajoux took the doubles prize at Bogota, beating Jorge Andrews and Brazilian Carlos Kirmayr 6-2, 6-4.

Meanwhile, Ken Rosewall defeated unseeded American Tom Gorman 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 to defend his title in the $75,000 Hong Kong Tennis Patrons Classic.

Predictions Mean Nothing To Smith

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — All the pre-season predictions that North Carolina is the top basketball team in the country and will repeat as the Atlantic Coast Conference champion don't mean anything to Coach Dean Smith.

Last year's team, which hobbled injury-ridden through the tournament only to lose in the NCAA championship game, came as close as Smith has ever come to winning the big one. And although All-America guard Phil Ford is back for a senior season, three other 1976 starters are now in the NBA.

"I don't see Walter Davis, Tommy LeGarde or John Kuester on this roster like a lot of the predictors seem to do," Smith says when asked about those predictions. "As far as I'm concerned, that pick is based on last year's record (28-5). We could finish anywhere from first to seventh in the ACC."

"It doesn't mean anything," agrees Ford, Carolina's Mr. Everything.

What Smith has back this year, though, still looks mighty good on paper. Ford returns with an 18.7 point average and is a natural leader and ball control expert. His elbow, injured in last year's tournament, is healthy but still gives him an occasional twinge, he says.

"I wish Phil Ford could play as long as I coach," Smith said in a meeting with sportswriters Sunday. "He's everything a coach could want in a point guard."

Back at one of the forwards is Mike O'Koren, a street-toughened New Jersey player who averaged nearly 14 points and seven rebounds a game last year as a freshman. Candidates for the other forward are freshman headliner Al Wood, junior Dudley Bradley and sophomore John Virgil.

A much sought-after player from Elm City, N.C., Virgil saw little action last year, but Smith says he has improved his defensive skills greatly and will play more even if he doesn't start.

For the other guard, Smith has senior Tom Zaliagiris, who averaged just 3.8 points but made some clutch plays behind Kuester last year. Also candidates are Dave Colescott and freshman Mike Pepper.

"I think we'll be an entirely different team this year," said Ford. "Any time three of your first five players go into the NBA, you're going to be different. But I don't think on the court I'll be doing anything differently. Off the court I'll try to be more of a leader because I'm a senior."

Center is also undecided, with Rich Yonaker, who played a gutsy tournament as a freshman last year, perhaps ahead of sophomore Jeff Wolf.

Making another try this year is 6-foot-11, 300-pound Jeff Crompton, a senior who didn't play last year and who Smith says could be a number one pro pick if he could develop enough stamina to play more than half court.

Despite that long cast, Smith isn't convinced it will develop into depth. He calls this a "re-grouping" season.

"We either have a great amount of depth or a great amount of mediocrity," he said. "We'll have to wait and see which."

Zaliagiris says practices have gone slowly, with a lot of time spent on fundamentals for the younger players.

"The team that's going on the floor for Carolina this year has never played before. It hasn't played under pressure yet, and you can't know how it's going to do," he said. "We're close as a team, but we're not getting to the right spots yet — we have too many people not working together on the court."

No matter how things shape up, Smith doesn't think any ACC team can go through the season dominating the rest of the conference. And because ACC teams have a way of beating each other at inopportune times, he says none may stay in the Top 10 through the season.

"But when the tournament starts," Smith added, "both ACC teams in it will be capable of winning the NCAA."

Fla. Pro Wins Club Tournament

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — It was almost like a decade later replay for Laurie Hammer as he stood over a 10-foot, 18th-hole putt for the $16,500 first prize in the PGA Club Professional Championship.

"I remember having an identical putt in the 1967 Haig and Haig Team Championship with Dave Stockton and I made it to win the tournament," said Hammer, who was a touring golf pro in the late 1960s.

Now a club pro in Boynton Beach, Fla., Hammer made the putt Sunday, too, winning his biggest pro paycheck with a one-stroke victory over Steve Benson of Glen Ellyn, Ill., in the 10th PGA Club Pro tourney.

Hammer's one-under-par 71 gave him a four-under-par 282 for the four rounds of play over three courses in chilly but sunny weather at Callaway Gardens near here.

Benson's 283 was good for $9,900, and Art Proctor of Edmond, Okla., won $7,300 for his third-place total of 285.

Benson was playing in the same group with Hammer and almost forced a playoff when he sank a 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

UNC's Mr. Everything

Smith says that otherwise he's not sure what kind of team he'll have this season with three of last year's starters now in the NBA. (AP Laser-photo)

UNC Picked 1st By ACC Writers

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina, which has All-America guard Phil Ford back for a senior season, will again win the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball title, a vote of the league's sportswriters predicts.

The Tar Heels, who fought their way to the finals of the NCAA tournament last year, despite a string of injuries, were the odds-on choice for a third straight first place finish by the writers, who made the annual predictions after attending the ACC's Operation Basketball here Sunday.

Picked to finish second was Duke, followed by Maryland, Virginia, Clemson, Wake Forest and North Carolina State.

UNC dominated the voting with 69 first place ballots, followed by 10 for Duke, four for Maryland and two for Wake Forest. The Tar Heels finished 90 points ahead of Duke with a 576-vote total. Virginia and Clemson received no first-place votes and finished just three votes apart. N.C. State was the consensus cellar-dweller, drawing 51 last-place votes.

It was clear after the day-long meeting with the league's seven coaches, however, that none of them thought the poll would mean much by season's end.

Happiness is what I sell!

Only Occasional Minor Problems For Alaskan Oil

Will Speak On School Merger

Dr. Lacy M. Presnell Jr. will speak on school merger to the League of Women Voters Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th Streets.

Dr. Presnell is director of the Division of School Planning of the N. C. Department of Public Instruction. He will cover the history of school merger in North Carolina; the procedure school systems can follow in implementing merger, and ways to assure equalization of curriculum, staff, facilities, and extracurricular activities. There will be time for questions from the audience.

Dr. Presnell and the LWV neither advocate nor oppose merger of the Greenville and Pitt County School systems. The object of this forum is to provide information for the public. All interested persons are encouraged to attend.

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — After a shaky start, the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline is delivering crude oil from Prudhoe Bay to the marine terminal at Valdez with only an occasional minor problem.

Tankers large and small are churning through Valdez Narrows toward refineries in the Lower 48 at the rate of about one a day.

As of Nov. 1, more than 68,750,000 barrels of the estimate 9.6 billion barrels of recoverable crude at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope had been pumped into the loading tanks at Valdez.

With 4½ months of pipeline operation on the record, William J. Darch, president of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., says the integrity of the line and the standards of construction have not been demonstrated satisfactorily.

Alyeska is the consortium of eight oil companies which designed and built the 800-mile, $7.7 billion line, and now is operating the long steel tube.

"Obviously, the extremely sophisticated system has not been yet completely debugged," Darch said, alluding to minor problems which still crop up.

"The combination of the extremely sensitive and sophisticated instrumentation, with the problems of Alaskan geography, means that we are learning still, and probably shall continue to do so for some time."

Noting that the 100th tanker is scheduled to sail from Valdez with cargo tanks filled with Alaskan oil this month, Darch said it is a signal to Alyeska "that in the language of today we've gotten our act together."

Problems plagued the construction project after the first oil entered the 48-inch line at Prudhoe Bay on June 20.

There were spills and accidents that kept pipeline engineers busy for more than a month, until the first crude from the North Slope started spurting in the tanks at Valdez on July 28.

The worst was an explosion and fire which leveled the pump house at Pump Station No. 8 just southeast of Fairbanks on July 8. One man died in the disaster, and reconstruction work on Pump 8 is still going on, with completion scheduled in January.

Alyeska estimates that it will take about a month after that for systems checking at the station, and that Pump 8 will go back on the line sometime in March.

Alyeska originally had planned to be running about 1.2 million barrels of crude a day through the line by this time, but the Pump 8 disaster intervened.

The daily flow rate on Oct. 31 was 754,000 barrels, but the flow rate varies from day to day. On Oct. 28, for instance, it was 695,000 barrels, on Oct. 26 730,000 barrels.

The daily average flow rate from oil-in on June 20 through Nov. 1 was 509,444 barrels.

"It depends on what goes on in the field, at Prudhoe, and it depends on what goes on in our own operation," Alyeska spokesman Sam Akin said of the daily flow rate.

"We may close down a pump at one of the stations for a few hours for some reason or another, and that will slow down the rate. There are all kinds of things that can affect it. It bicycles from one day to the next.

"We expect that it will hang around the 750,000-barrel figure until Pump 8 goes back on line. "We will have the capacity then for the 1.2 million barrels a day we were originally to have had by now, but the amount to be moved depends on what the owners want moved.

"If they have a need for that much crude oil someplace, they'll bring ships in to Valdez to move it. If not, we'll be moving at lower quantities."

Coast Guard figures show that 90 tankers laden with North Slope crude had cleared Valdez through Nov. 1. With most destined for refineries in the Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles areas.

The others took their cargo through the Panama Canal to refining facilities on the East Coast, or transferred the crude to smaller tankers which could transit the canal.

The first tanker out of Valdez was the 120,000-ton Aro Juneau. It left on Aug. 1 With 824,803 barrels of oil for the Atlantic Richfield refinery at Cherry Point, Wash.

Akin says there have been minor hitches on the line since the period of major problems in the month after start-up, but he likens them to "taking your new car back to the dealer to fix the bugs."

Akin says the Trans-Alaska pipeline started out with an automatic handicap that magnified every problem or accident.

"Pipelines everywhere else in the world are started up with water," Akin said. "They actually fill the lines with water and pump it from Point A to Point Z at the other end until they are satisfied everything is right.

"We couldn't do that up here. With the low pipe temperatures, we'd have had a whole lot of frozen water. We had to do our testing with oil."

Divorce Is Granted To Vernon Presley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Vernon Presley, father of the late Elvis Presley, was divorced from his second wife, Davada "Dee" Stanley Presley, in the Dominican Republic on Friday.

Mrs. Presley said Sunday that Presley, 62, flew to the Caribbean island on Elvis' private jet shortly after the couple reached an agreement on provisions of the divorce.

They were married July 3, 1960, in Huntsville, Ala., but have been separated for more than three years.

Mrs. Presley said she did not know why the divorce was made final in the Dominican Republic. She said that divorce petitions filed in Circuit Court in Shelby County last May were withdrawn after the two were unable to reach an agreement on terms.

The marriage was the second for both. They had no children. Presley's first wife, Gladys Smith Presley, died Aug. 14, 1958, and is buried on the grounds of Graceland mansion beside Elvis, who died Aug. 16 of what has been ruled a heart attack.

Vernon Presley could not be reached early today for comment.

Pose Risk To Lumber Supply

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Small, private landowners own so much of North Carolina's timber land that the state is in danger of creating a lumber shortage by the end of the century.

The reason, says state Forestry Association president Wallace Cawthorne, is that the small lumberman can't afford to replant his acreage after he has harvested his trees, so the area becomes overgrown with worthless brush.

"We're using more timber than we're growing," said Cawthorne. "Some people are taking everything out of the forests and putting nothing back. It's very unfortunate."

Cawthorne said replanting costs about $80 an acre. Something must be done soon, he said, because national lumber and wood products demand is expected to double by the year 2000, and trees planted now won't even be ready by then.

The timber industry, Cawthorne said, which can afford to replant harvested areas, owns only 12 per cent of the state's commercial forest lands. Most of the rest is in the hands of 245,000 private landowners, more than in any other state.

"It's sort of socially reprehensible that we have so much land in this state that's green junk. The problem is that we have very little forest management practiced by these non-industrial private owners," said Eric Elwood, dean of the School of Forest Resources at North Carolina State University.

"After the timber is cut, scrub and low-grade hardwood comes back that has little or no value," he said. "The potential growth of our forests is only 40 per cent of what it should be. There definitely is a serious problem down the road."

Several private firms and the federal government have begun programs to encourage replanting and the state will start one next July.

Will Seek Interest In Health Careers

ECU News Bureau

Forty health care delivery agencies and institutions in four states have indicated that they will send representatives to East Carolina University Nov. 16 to interview students interested in employment in health and human service fields.

To be represented are hospitals, mental health centers, health departments and medical centers in the Carolinas, Florida and Virginia.

The event is ECU's annual Health Careers Day, sponsored by the ECU office of Career Planning and Placement, the ECU School of Nursing and the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

ECU alumni, as well as currently-enrolled students, are invited to visit the representatives from 10 a. m. until 1 p. m. in Mendenhall Student Center, said ECU Placement Officer Furney James. No prior registration is necessary.

Among the employment categories represented are nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy, dietetics, medical technology, social work and correctional services, medical record science, music therapy, child development, psychology, special education, speech pathology, sociology, environmental health, community health, and rehabilitation counseling.

Health Projects Approved

The Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, which met Wednesday here, approved several Eastern N. C. health projects.

The Governing Body recommended the following: 1. K & F Leasing Company of Greenville for construction of a hemodialysis center; 2. Greenville Hemodialysis Center for leasing hemodialysis facility from K & F Leasing Company; 3. Carolina Clinic in Wilson for expansion of a dialysis center; and 4. Neuse Mental Health Center for alcoholism program grant (Hughes Grant).

The Project Review Committee requested that staff inform mental health agencies and other health-related agencies or interested parties that the ECHSA must be made aware of project proposals at a very early stage of the planning process.

Haunting Tragedy Is Retold On Film

Almost 39 years have passed since the days in May and June 1939 when 937 German Jewish refugees were subjected to a cruel, heartless political manipulation. For seemingly humane purposes, the refugees were granted permission to leave Germany from the port city of Hamburg on the luxury liner, S.S. St. Louis, bound for Havana, Cuba.

For them, it was to be their escape from a situation that was becoming intolerable.

Before the voyage ended, these men, women, and children, no strangers to degradation, and in some cases brutality, were to gradually become aware that the dream of escape was turning into an inescapable nightmare of uncertainty.

It is this voyage, and the individual and collective reactions of the passengers during that fateful voyage that is the subject of a powerful film, The Voyage of the Damned, now showing at Plaza Cinema No. 1.

Voyage of the Damned is based on an actual incident. The two and one-half hour film is a notably honest, intelligent reconstruction of an inherently tragic and dramatic episode of 20th century history that occurred just before the outbreak of World War II. In an almost documentary fashion, the film unfolds without recourse to exaggerated villainy or embellished heroism.

Utilizing a mosaic of incident upon incident, mostly low-keyed, The Voyage of the Damned conveys compelling nuances of past fears and growing new fears. This results in a steadily mounting sense of suspense as the possibility of a future, all encompassing fate of horror that could await these passengers dawns on the viewer.

Voyage of the Damned has a large, star-studded American and European cast, many of them in relatively minor roles.

Max Von Sydow as the ship's quiet, troubled Christian captain; Faye Dunaway in the role of a doctor's elegant (and intelligent) wife; and Oskar Werner, the once successful doctor, are each superb.

The one all-out villain, a youthful, arrogant German spy traveling as a steward; is cunningly portrayed by Helmut Griem.

Others in key roles and who without exception turn in fine performances include Orson Welles, James Mason, Malcolm McDowell, Lee Grant, Katharine Ross, Windy Hiller, Julie Harris, Jose Ferrer, Sama Wanamaker, and Lynne Frederick.

Voyage of the Damned will not appeal to audiences seeking superficial violence and thrills. For audiences, however, who appreciate a serious movie on a haunting, tragic fragment of history, Voyage of the Damned will give deep satisfaction.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Work out some condition where an influential person is concerned. Later, be very careful that you do not get involved in any argument over a situation that causes you frustration or anxiety.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk over some important public matter, but later be careful you do not get into trouble. You can get ahead faster, but watch for pitfalls.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study a new idea well, but don't try to get it operating as yet since later you may have to cope with difficult conditions. A new ally is not good for you and you could get into trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Keep promises you have made. Don't argue over a contract. Gain the respect of loved one but be very tactful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to become aware of what your partners are thinking. Then act, but do so tactfully. Use care in public dealings.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Complete unfinished work. Avoid a peevish co-worker. Take health treatments if you need them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good time for showing affection and for handling practical affairs. Pay more attention to loved one and get right results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make an effort to improve unsettled situations at home. People are receptive to your ideas and more accessible. Future looks brighter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact those who can help you to get ahead faster. Be careful in motion and avoid accidents late in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study financial status well and be careful not to overspend. Listen to what a money expert has to suggest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan time to get the help of those who are in a position to assist you; listen to their ideas. Add to your present circle of friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Better organization can lead to greater profits in the future. Much right activity this day. Enjoy closest ties in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to add to your present circle of friends and enjoy amusements during spare time. Reach that vital goal early. Handle business matters wisely. Avoid one with a jealous streak.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have many advantages in early years and should have a fine education. Be sure to give good spiritual training early so that progeny will not become unmanageable. Sports are a must here. There is also musical talent in this chart.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK63 ♡AQ874 ♠A1092
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—It is far more likely that you have a minor-suit fit than that you have a 4-4 spade fit. Nevertheless, we would choose to reverse with two spades. There is still a chance that North might have bypassed bidding a weak spade suit. Also, you should be able to conveniently show your clubs at your next turn.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠83 ♡K982 ♢KQJ6 ♣K72
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Double. This is a good time to tell your partner that much of your strength is in the diamond suit. Don't worry about the possibility of your opponents running to spades. Your partner might be able to take care of that major, and even if he can't, you'll get another chance to bid.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J106 ♡AQ10 ♢K1054 ♣Q109
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid two no trump. Despite the fact that you are minimum and partner has passed, his jump shift is a one-round force. Because of the balanced nature of your hand and the useful intermediates, we prefer the no trump bid to supporting partner with three trumps and perhaps getting him over-excited.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J106 ♡952 ♢J10763 ♣K6
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—With only 5 high-card points, we would not blame you if you passed. However, we are reluctant to take that action with what is really quite good trump support. Since we feel that a raise to two spades would be too encouraging on such a weak hand, we would give partner another chance by responding one no trump.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ82 ♡Q ♢AK105 ♣J932
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. 1 ♠ Dble. Pass Pass 2 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—It looks as if West is trying a baby "psychic" on you. Since partner is marked with spade length for his penalty double of one spade, we would bid two spades to expose West's chicanery.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J85 ♡A109 ♢KQ742 ♣84
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner is showing extra values, and we have something in reserve for our free raise. If partner has a spade stopper, there should be reasonable play for three no trump, and even five diamonds cannot be ruled out. We would indicate our interest with a cue-bid of three hearts and let partner decide.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠962 ♡Q87 ♢KQ10 ♣J742
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner is reluctant to let the opponents buy the hand too cheaply, and is competing for the part score, so we intend bidding. Despite the lack of a spade stopper, we would bid one no trump to describe our shape. The hand could probably play better in one of the red suits, but we don't know which one to choose; and it's highly likely the opponents will buy the hand in any case.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A92 ♡A85 ♢AK84 ♣A105
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—With all your points in prime controls, you certainly don't want to stop short of game once partner made a free raise. However, a direct jump to three no trump wouldn't do justice to your hand because this bid virtually compels partner to pass. The bid that leaves all your options open is a cue-bid of three clubs. When you next bid three no trump, partner will be under no constraint to pass if his values are mostly distributional.

Denies It Is All Medical

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Medicine has been asked to assume social burdens once carried by religion and ethics, a noted psychiatrist says.

Dr. Thomas S. Szasz, professor of psychiatry at State University of New York in Syracuse, said in a weekend speech here that medical advice has become more important than moral considerations in many areas of American life.

"There has been a gradual metamorphosis of various life problems that used to be thought of as criminal or sinful that have become mental illness," Szasz told a symposium at Wake Forest University.

"If you eat too much, you are not a glutton," he said. "Now you have a disease called obesity, and a surgeon will perform an operation called an intestinal by-pass on you."

"Homosexuality used to be a sin and subsequently a crime, and now every red-blooded American knows that it's a disease," Szasz added. "Because people take them and they're legal, alcohol and tobacco are not drugs. They are 'agricultural products.' That's by definition of the U.S. government."

The legalization of abortion has turned a moral and criminal problem into a medical one, Szasz said.

"I submit to you that not everything people do is a medical problem," he said.

Szasz, a native of Hungary, is co-founder of the American Association for the Abolition of Involuntary Mental Hospitalization and author of the book "The Myth of Mental Illness."

Lt. Columbo Returning To TV Screen Nov. 21

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You may be wondering what's become of Lt. Columbo, the cop in the rumpled raincoat, the guy who starts to leave a suspect, then nails him with just one more question.

Well, on Nov. 21, NBC will air a 90-minute show, "Try and Catch Me." Peter Falk is the star, his raincoat is among the supporting players and this signals the start of a seventh "Columbo" season.

Uncertainty seems part of the series. In 1976, Falk gave reporters the impression that after he finished his 37th episode he planned to smoke his last Columbo cigar, leave the series and go act somewhere else.

"Naw, I didn't say that," the New York-born actor amiably rasped. "I said what would be heaven on earth, the best of all possible worlds, would be to do one or two 'Columbo' specials a year.

"But I said as far as continuing with the series on a regular basis, I can't be in two places at the same time. I can't make movies and shoot 'Columbo.'"

Indeed, he has been making movies. Last year it was Neil Simon's "Murder by Death," this year it's Simon's "The Cheap Detective," and next February he starts filming "The Great Brink's Robbery."

As for "Columbo," which in its first few seasons aired eight times a year in the now-defunct "Sunday Mystery Movie" slot, well, he did a few more last season. But there were doubts he'd return in 1977-78.

And Falk, who reportedly gets a tidy $500,000 per episode these days, admits he was among the doubters. But now he says there'll be five "Columbo" capers this season. Why the change of heart.

It didn't involve salary, he said, explaining that he's had no kick about his stipend the last three years. The big cause of doubt, he added, was finding first-rate scripts for the series.

"It's hard to get tremendous writing when the medium burns it up so quickly," the 50-year-old actor said. "It's very, very difficult. So now, here you got a show like 'Columbo,' with no action, no violence, so scripts were a problem."

The problem was solved, he said, when writer Richard Alten Simmons was hired to produce this season's shows. Falk has admired him ever since 1963, when they made a TV movie called "The Price of Tomatoes."

Ruritans To Hold Meet

A convention of District V of the Ruritan Club will be held at D. H. Conley High School Saturday afternoon and evening.

The business session will begin at 2 p. m., District Governor H. D. Weaver said, and a banquet will be held at 6 p. m. Officers will be elected at the business meeting and "The Originals" of Washington, N. C. will entertain at the banquet.

Ruritan is a national organization of more than 1,300 clubs and 38,000 members, Weaver said. District V has 35 clubs with 976 members. Pitt County has eight clubs.

Winterville Ruritan Club is hosting the convention.

Recalls Datsuns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 160,000 Datsuns are being recalled because of a defective emission control that can cause an exhaust leak, the Environmental Protection Agency says.

The Datsun models, all 1977, are the B210, F10, B10, 710, 200SX and 280Z. All were built before last Feb. 1, EPA said Friday.

01 PUBLIC NOTICES

The Division of Health Services has received an application from the Town of Ayden in Pitt County for a State grant under the North Carolina Clean Water Bond Act of 1971. The application seeks a grant of $138,735 from funds allocated for use in Pitt County. This grant would be applied as a portion of the construction cost of a water supply system project. The project consists of the construction of a 500,000 gallon elevated storage tank, the construction of a 250 gallons per minute deep well, and the installation of 22,000 linear feet of 10, 8 and 6 inch water pipelines.

Agriculture Secretary Bergland: Man On A Spot

HE LISTENS — Sec. of Agriculture Bob Bergland listens as George Ballas, a California truck farmer,

By MIKE FEINSILBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Ballas, a California truck farmer dressed in corduroy pants and a rough wool jacket, pops onto a couch in the office of Bob Bergland, the secretary of agriculture.

"A honorable way of life is being disgraced by people who call themselves farmers but aren't honest farmers," he said. "It is a disgrace to label yourself a farmer and not take care of the land."

Bergland, tall, lean, with steel-grey eyes, takes off his suit jacket and sits down to listen. He is wearing low boots, zippered up the ankle.

Ballis, head of a group called National Land for People, is here to argue for a proposition that in another society would be called "land reform." Accompanying him are Martin and Phyllis Baiz, raisin farmers from Fowler, Calif., and attorney Mary Louise Framp-ton.

They want to take land from big corporate farms (which, Ballis says, mistreat the land)

Attorney To Be Speaker

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will meet at the Candlewick Inn in Greenville on Nov. 16 at 6:15 p.m.

The monthly meetings are actually technical training dinners with professional speakers covering subjects related to accounting and business.

This month's speaker is David Evans, attorney at law with Ward and Smith of New Bern, who will speak on "Highlights of Estate Planning."

The Eastern Carolina Chapter was chartered by the National Association on Feb. 1, 1973 and has a service area of all or parts of 19 counties. Membership is composed of men and women in a wide variety of occupations, including corporate officers, executives, auditors, engineers, and many others.

Membership is available to any person interested in the activities and objectives of the association. For further information, call Danny Symkowiak, Eaton Corporation, 752-2121.

and sell it (at bargain prices) to families willing to farm it. They want strict enforcement of a 1902 law limiting federal irrigation to farms of no more than 160 acres. California and much of the arid west would be severely affected.

A secretary of agriculture is boss to 81,315 employees and administrator of a $15 billion budget — two-thirds of which goes to feed hungry people. He is the farmers' spokesman and the president's ambassador to farmers.

With big crops and low prices, farmers are angry and anxious this year. Jimmy Carter is eager to control federal outlays. Bergland is on the spot.

On this autumn Tuesday, the secretary is permitting a reporter to trail him around for a story on how he operates. But he shoos the reporter out for the first two matters — a discussion about trade credits with Jerzy Olszewski, Polish minister of trade, and "a sensitive personnel matter inside the department."

Bergland, 49, son of a garage mechanic, knows first hand the calluses and heartbreak that can go with farming.

In 1950, with no down payment "because we had nothing," he bought a farm near Rosseau, Minn., 10 miles south of the Canadian border where he grew wheat and grass seed. For a time the Berglands lived without indoor plumbing.

After suffering two successive crop failures, he was forced to supplement his earnings by taking winter construction jobs in Florida.

A devout Lutheran, the son of Norwegian immigrants, he served three terms as a Democratic congressman before Carter picked him for his cabinet.

Bergland's work day starts at 8 a.m. over a cup of coffee with associates in the Agriculture Department's basement cafeteria. He will remain inside this marble building all day, moving from room to room to sell his policies to one group after another.

Ballis has brought a set of charts. He cites addresses, tax records, land deeds to show that big growers have manipulated things, formed "sham partnerships" to gain control of miles of 160-acre parcels in defiance of the old law.

"I have an old-fashioned attachment to the family farm," Bergland says. "That's my life. I believe in the right to own land. We're not questioning what you're doing. But we have to look at this from an economic viewpoint. Will the break-up of these farms bring about a diversion into other crops? Absently, he touches his shirt. "What would happen to our production of long-staple cotton in California and Texas? What would that land be used for — fruits and vegetables? Then what would be the effect on those markets?"

Bergland says the issue belongs to the Interior Department but Agriculture is studying the economic impact of enforcing the 1902 law.

"We're overhauling our whole rural development strategy," he said. "We've made some horrendous mistakes in this country."

His secretary walks in, hands him a note. It is time for the visitors to leave. Bergland, rising, takes a silver-colored, peanut-shaped container from the coffee table. It is filled with peanuts.

The Californians, laughing, each take a handful, then remember they have brought raisins for Bergland. An exchange: raisins for peanuts.

Dr. Charles Bergstrom, a minister and an old acquaintance recently appointed as the Lutherans' lobbyist in Washington, is waiting to have lunch. Back in the cafeteria, Bergland takes a meatball sandwich and a container of milk. Tray in hand, he stops to chat at someone's table. Other diners nod at the secretary, unawed.

Bergland, still in shirtsleeves, and Bergstrom, in a black suit, talk about the difficulties of finding a home in Washington. Bergland says he is pleased with his suburban townhouse in Virginia. His farming, he says, consists of tending roses and two tomato plants.

The conversation drifts to Bergland's work. He is pleased with his job, he says. He will first build a national "food policy," then put a "farm policy" on top of that, instead of vice versa.

He has been working on the budget. He intends to eliminate programs benefitting only "the 100,000 richest farmers in the country" — they are the ones who squawk the most about government spending, anyway.

He intends to eliminate programs which benefit farmers in only one state. Let the states pay for these. He knows this will provoke fights in Congress.

"I'll win some and I'll lose some," he said. "But we'll keep coming back year after year. We'll wear them down."

On the way out, in the tunnel connecting the North and South buildings, Bergland sees a department official.

"Bob," he calls out, "good work on that Polish shipment report!"

Bergland starts to get off the elevator at the wrong floor. A painter in the rear of the car straightens him out.

It is time to meet some critics. About 20 farmers, mostly from Delaware and Maryland, dressed uncomfortably in suits, are assembled around an oval table in a crowded, overheated room.

These farmers are talking of striking — withholding produce from market — if prices do not rise.

Bergland, ignoring the seat designated for him at the head of the table, finds a place in the middle.

A farmer opens the discussion: "We are here to save a part of American agriculture that is quickly becoming extinct — the family farm."

Bergland, sympathizing: "This hungry world is not going to be fed by bankrupt agriculture."

A farmer: "Why was it necessary to build a welfare program into a farm bill?" Bergland: "This place is — or should be — The Department of Food and Agriculture."

Another farmer: "We're geared to produce. We're caught in an almost intolerable cost-price squeeze. We're not looking for a handout. We're just looking for a mechanism to achieve a better price."

Bergland: "The difference between too little and too much is a very fine line. A little too much can have a devastating effect on the market price. The world has produced two good grain crops back to back. So it's become a buyers' market. I don't have to tell you that."

Later, he says: "If we ever have an exact balance between supply and demand it won't be because of anything I've done or anything you've done. It'll just be dumb luck."

Mostly Bergland listens. He asks questions, explains his policies, avoids committing himself to change.

A farmer asks about Farmers Home Administration foreclosures.

"We can't declare a moratorium," Bergland said. "But I told the FHA to renew, negotiate, defer, extend. Do whatever you've got to, but don't foreclose. We don't want to foreclose on anyone."

At the end, the farmers seem less hostile. One pats Bergland on the back.

"You're doing a good job," he says.

Bergland walks to another stifling room full of sugar beet growers from Germany, Austria, France, Spain and Ireland.

He invites them to shed their coats; some cannot do it. They remain formally jacketed.

Bergland speaks about why the United States is not likely to import more European sugar beets. It ranges from oil prices ("You know what OPEC is talking about — it's devastating") to the U.S. trade deficit ("30 billions of dollars").

"Every time a factory closes down or farm prices drop a penny or two, a new voice is heard in Congress demanding we abandon our free trade policy and go to a protectionist policy," he said.

Finished, he decides to have some fun. He leads seven beet growers from Ireland to the office of his executive assistant, Lee Corcoran.

Here he pokes fun at Corcoran, accusing him of surreptitiously staffing the upper levels of the Agriculture Department with Irishmen.

"I have to live with this every day," said Corcoran, in mock exasperation.

Bergland finds a cup of coffee and returns to his own office for an interview with Jerry Hannifin of Time magazine.

They discuss "gasahol" — fuel made from mixing gasoline and alcohol. Some farmers see it as a way to dispose of excess grain. Bergland questions the economics of the idea.

Bergland tells of his policy of trying to spend at least two days every two weeks out of town, meeting with farmers or observing farming.

When his interviewer leaves, Bergland leafs through the yellow message slips that have accumulated. He dials Carol Foreman, assistant secretary for food and consumer services, to praise a memo from her.

At 5:22 p.m., by phone, he assembles half a dozen associates. Stuart Eizenstat has called from the White House to relay the president's dissatisfaction about both the Small Business Administration (SBA) and the Agriculture Department making emergency loans to farmers. Eizenstat wants a proposal within a day to eliminate the duplication.

For 45 minutes, they discuss the matter. A strategy evolves — legislation easing SBA out of the business of helping farmers.

Drawing on his congressional experience, Bergland explains how it can be offered as a rider to an appropriations bill. One aide is told to draft the legislation, another to sound out "the Hill" on its prospects. The meeting ends with general munching from the silver peanut-shaped peanut container.

Bergland returns to his desk to deal with papers that have accumulated during the day while he roamed his department.
