

Sadat To Visit Jerusalem Starting On Saturday

By The Associated Press
President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will visit Jerusalem for 36 hours starting Saturday night, Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin announced today.

But Sadat will make the dramatic visit without Syria's support and evidently with major opposition from within his own country.

Begin announced the timing of the visit shortly after Sadat returned from Damascus, where he failed to win President Hafez Assad's support for the proposed first-ever visit by an Arab leader to the Jewish state.

Assad called the visit a source of "deep sorrow." The trip has also come under fire from Iraq and Libya.

At the same time, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency announced that Sadat's foreign minister and key aide since the 1973 war, Ismail Fahmy, had resigned, a move that could indicate deep opposition within the country to the Jerusalem visit.

$1.44 Million In Improvements To Airport Approved

The North Carolina Department of Transportation has approved a $1.44 million improvement project at the Pitt-Greenville Airport, thus assuring a state grant of $72,250 toward the project, according to an announcement by Secretary of Transportation Thomas W. Bradshaw.

The Greenville City Council will be used to finance the improvements.

The project — designed to make the airport's East-West runway the primary runway — includes land acquisition and clearing, medium intensity runway and taxiway lights, visual approach slope indicators, approach lights and runway end identification lights, installation of an instrument landing system (ILS) localizer, and expansion of the general aviation apron. The project also includes expanding the terminal building from approximately 2,500 square feet to 3,000 square feet.

In effect, the project will make the East-West runway the airport's prime runway, replacing the North-South runway now used as the primary strip.

Formal approval of a $1,299,100 federal grant for the project has not been received as yet, airport officials noted. The state and federal funds, together with $72,250 in local money appropriated by Pitt County Commissioners and

Will Plenti, DOT's Director of Aeronautics who said Pitt-Greenville is "the third busiest general aviation airport in North Carolina and an important business airport," said the project, in addition to the installation of lighting, the instrument landing system and visual approach aids, will strengthen the pavement on the runway to 60,000 pound capacity. The apron expansion, he said, will provide space for an additional 20 aircraft at the airport, while the terminal expansion "will accommodate the rapidly increasing number of passengers using Pitt-Greenville."

The Department of Transportation estimates that 50 aircraft will be home-based at Pitt-Greenville by 1980 and that the facility will handle 50,000 aircraft landings and takeoffs annually as well as 12,000 commuter passengers.

Gunman Makes Off With $1,600 In Food Stamps

County food stamp center on Johnston Street yesterday afternoon. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

A lone bandit, armed with a pistol, took more than $1,600 from the Pitt County Department of Social Services' Food Stamp Center at 709 Johnston St. yesterday afternoon.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said the robbery occurred about 2:40 p.m. when only one teller was on duty.

Witnesses saw the robber get into a car and leave the area. Cannon noted that the vehicle, reported stolen from Avery's Gulf Station on Memorial Drive earlier, was found abandoned on Ebron Street shortly after the robbery was reported.

Other witnesses, the chief said, saw a man fleeing from the abandoned car on foot. However, a search of the area, which included the use of bloodhounds from the N.C. Department of Corrections, failed to locate the suspect.

Despite the open disagreement, Sadat denied there was any rift between himself and Assad. The Syrian leader greeted Sadat Wednesday with all the gun salutes and diplomatic fanfare proper to his rank, although informed sources said photographers were ordered not to take pictures of the two leaders when they made their customary embrace.

Shah Will Oppose Oil Price Boost

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

give you a break," the shah told reporters.

The Shah of Iran, who earlier this week said his country would "remain silent" on the question of raising oil prices, now says the oil export cartel should "give a break" to consumer countries and forego any increase for at least a year.

Iran wields considerable influence in the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which meets Dec. 20 in Caracas, Venezuela, to discuss proposed price hikes.

The shah said President Carter talked him into changing his position from one of neutrality to openly opposing a price hike.

Most other producing countries favor some price increase. Iraq has proposed raising the current world oil price of about $12.50 a barrel by 23 percent.

Experts calculate that the price of gasoline in the United States rises one cent for every 8 percent increase in the OPEC price.

The shah said eventual increases are inevitable unless the consuming nations begin strong conservation measures and new sources of energy are discovered.

County Manager Says Waste Disposal Studied Ten Years

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray yesterday responded to a number of questions posed to the Board of County Commissioners at a hearing Tuesday night on a proposed solid waste disposal ordinance and plan to franchise private contractors to insure that any resident of the county wishing to have their waste picked up could do so if they are willing to pay the monthly fee.

Gray said commissioners, over the past 10 years, have studied several plans ranging from six landfills throughout the county to use of 40-cubic yard containers located throughout the county, and including a county-funded door-to-door pickup system.

At present, Gray said the board, in addition to the franchise system, is considering a three-year implementation program for the 40-cubic yard container system which would locate the containers throughout the county to be used by households not wishing to use private collectors.

At these various times, they were asked if they wished to participate in such a plan, how many additional customers they could handle, and where they were currently operating.

At present, the county manager noted, solid wastes can be disposed of by burying in an approved sanitary landfill, burning in an incinerator approved by the county health director (burning in unapproved containers, such as 55 gallon drums is prohibited by Federal, State and local laws), or by disposing of wastes in a method approved by the health director.

Gray said the board is considering the franchise plan at this time because it will "enable the citizens of the county to have an available pickup system...a program that makes the garbage pickup service available to all of the residents regardless of their location, without an additional tax rate being imposed by the county." Gray added that the system could also be implemented more rapidly than any other proposed system, with the least expense to the county, and make use of local independent business operations.

Gray said, "it was indicated that 10 contractors would be interested in participating and had both the physical and fiscal resources to maintain a certain district." He added that the system only proposed to handle residential areas and not mobile home parks or commercial and industrial establishments. Other haulers who did not wish to participate in this program or did not have the needed equipment or the desire to invest in such equipment have had the opportunity to compete for these customers, Gray indicated.

Strong Advance By GNP Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's output of goods and services grew at an annual rate of 4.7 percent in the third quarter, a much stronger showing than previously calculated, the Commerce Department said today.

Dividends increased $2 billion to $42.3 billion.

The revised figures of the Gross National Product were well ahead of the 4 percent rate needed to keep the unemployment rate from getting worse. However, they were well below the unusually strong increases of 7.5 percent in the first quarter and 6.2 percent in the second quarter.

The department also said corporate profits increased $7.6 billion in the third quarter to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $147.8 billion. However, after taxes were taken out, profits declined $600 million to $103.7 billion.

In a preliminary report last month, the department had estimated the GNP for July, August and September had grown at an annual rate of 3.8 percent.

Inflation during the third quarter was at a rate of 4.4 percent, after a 7 percent rate in the second quarter.

The GNP measures the output of goods and services in the economy and is the strongest indicator of the nation's economic well-being and the outlook for jobs.

After adjustment for inflation, the GNP stood at $1 trillion, 346.1 billion for the third quarter, the department said.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MONOGRAMMING
Creative Handbags and Accessories, a store located in the West End Shopping Center here, does custom monogramming, it was reported to Hotline this morning following yesterday's publishing of an item about monogramming resources in this area.

The monogrammer at Creative is Louretta Riggs. Lettering can be placed on virtually any kind of material, she said.

WILL COORDINATE
Nancy Harrington of Volunteer Greenville, a city agency for the promotion and coordination of volunteer activities, has called Hotline to say she will be glad to coordinate getting persons who want to volunteer to cut wood for others together with those needing wood for fuel but unable to cut their own. We gave her the name of a family in need of the service and she promised to contact a person who she said she was virtually certain would be glad to perform the service. Others needing wood or wanting to volunteer as woodcutters are invited to call Ms. Harrington at 752-4137, Ext. 255. We appreciate Volunteer Greenville's meeting of this and many others needs seen by Hotline.

Expanded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today that a management training program within state government has been expanded to a permanent basis complete with a full-time director.

North Carolina is believed to be the only state with such a program, called the Governor's Program for Organizational and Executive Development, Hunt said during a news conference.

"I've always felt like there's no reason government shouldn't strive to be as efficient as business is," he said, noting that large corporations commonly send executives and junior executives to management training schools and seminars.

The state program was begun when Hunt took office in January. The program's budget is $150,000 a year with $110,000 of that in federal grants, Hunt said.

Douglas P. Champion, 41, who has 12 years experience as a management consultant, was hired to head the program at a salary of $33,000.

The program so far has surveyed attitudes of state employees as well as provided training for top state officials. In the future, Hunt said, it will sponsor seminars with the University of North Carolina and aim at improving effectiveness of state agencies.

Eventually, Hunt said, the program will offer training to career state employees.

Also during the news conference, Hunt said:

- Overwhelming black support for the succession amendment on last week's ballot will not influence his decision on whether to pardon the Wilmington 10. "You just set all that aside and do what is best for the state," he said.
- He will be interviewing candidates for Superior Court judgeships through early next week. The 12 appointments may be announced next week.
- He believes the merit selection of judges plan has worked well even though no women and only one black made the nominations list. He blamed the small number of experienced women and blacks in law and predicted it would change in five years as their numbers increase.

Gray said the proposed franchise system would help prevent continued dumping along the roadsides of the county by affording, "a collection service to each individual homeowner... provide an outlet other than carrying wastes to the landfill or dumping it beside a roadway."

He also noted that the ordinance provides for an enforcement officer to "assure that this dumping along the roadways and in woodlands is curtailed."

The enforcement officer, he added, will either work out of the Health Department a state-funded position, or out of the county offices.

Speaking of the proposed $6 per month fee for once-a-week pickup service given tentative approval by the board, Gray said commissioners under the proposal have the authority to establish fees to give haulers a fair return on their investment. Fees could be raised or lowered as necessary when the board reviews financial statements of the contractors participating in the franchise program.

"In determining a fair return on investment," for the contractors, Gray said, criteria to be considered will

Perfume And Wine Are Similar Cooking Is Fun

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Buying perfume is like buying wine. People tend to be very subjective about what they like.

Storing perfume is like storing wine. Both deteriorate rapidly if stored improperly.

This advice from perfume expert Linda Thiele is good to keep in mind if your Christmas shopping list calls for perfume and/or scented cosmetics.

Miss Thiele is manager for fragrance planning and evaluation for the United States' oldest manufacturer of flavor and fragrance supplies, Fritzsche Dodge and Olcott of New York City.

"Just as in wine, there's a perfect age for perfume," she said in an interview. "About three months is optimal, if it's well made.

"But it's not all downhill from there," she added quickly. "It depends on how you keep it. All perfume goes bad eventually."

The major enemies are head space in the bottle; time, light and temperature extremes.

Miss Thiele said an open bottle has about 18 months shelf life.

It can be prolonged by refrigeration. But you risk having your food smell like perfume.

She said a cool, dark closet is preferable to the customary storage on a dressing table, especially if the table is in sunlight and/or near a heat source.

Packaging helps protect perfume against heat and light as well as breakage.

Some fragrance types hold up better than others, she said.

"An oriental perfume tends to have a longer shelf life than aldehydic, green citrus perfumes. Orientals tend to be ambery, vanillic and woody."

Translation: aldehydes have very powerful, fatty odors; an ambery scent is heavy, full-bodied; vanillic also is heavy, resembling vanilla or vanillin; woody tones smell like freshly cut, dry wood or fibrous roots such as sandalwood or vetiver.

"I think kids are still into natural fruit scents," Miss Thiele said, "but I don't know of any mature woman who wants to smell like a fruit salad."

"Kids like new scents. They're looking for identity; they want to be different from their parents."

Thirty years or more ago, scientists used a fragrance organ to develop new scents. It's a pipe organ-shaped desk with stepped shelves to hold tiny bottles of different scents. Miss Thiele's company still has one, for decoration only. Work now is done in a room-sized laboratory that has shelf space for 6,000 or more bottles, compared with the fewer than 1,000 on the organ.

What makes a few perfumes so expensive?

You're not paying just for famous labels and costly containers, Miss Thiele said.

Chances are expensive scents use many natural ingredients. "Natural ingredients cost lots of money," she said. "Flowers have to be hand-picked and hand-processed. They have to be hand-laid on sheets petal by petal, and pressed."

Miss Thiele said fragrance-free cosmetics are a trend in higher priced lines, "in part, because of scare tactics."

"Allergenicity of a fragrance is blamed when people have reactions to products. The fragrance may not be at fault. It might be an atmospheric pollutant that is harder to detect."

Her advice to gift shoppers: Buy at stores that sell a lot of perfume. You're more likely to get a fresh bottle.

And to perfume wearers: "Never put perfume behind your ears. It mixes with (natural skin) oils back there and spoils."

"Put it on your pulse points: the inside of your wrists, at your throat, back of your knees, between your breasts."

And if you're wondering why the same perfume smells different on different people:

"It's physiological. The amount of acids and oils on the skin differs from person to person. The best way to get around that is to put perfume on cotton and tuck it in your bra. You'll get no physiological reaction, and it will volatilize off as it does from the bottle."

Bake Sale Is Planned

Thoughtfulness Can Ease Heartache

A bake sale will be held at Harris Super Market, located on N. Greene Street, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church Saturday.

The sale will begin at 10 a.m. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Falcon Children's Home Harvest Train, Falcon.

DEAR ABBY: My heart aches today for my 14-year-old daughter who went to a school dance last evening and wasn't asked to dance one dance.

When her older brother was her age, and popular with the crowd, I always encouraged him to ask the not-so-popular girls to dance, impressing upon him how much it could mean to a girl who might not otherwise receive one invitation to dance during the entire evening.

I was proud that he followed my advice. I wish other mothers would tell their sons the same thing. Will you help spread the word, Abby? It could mean so much to the girls.

ACHING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You bet I will. An ounce of thoughtfulness can ease a ton of heartache.

DEAR ABBY: I'm still in shock from a telephone call I just received from a young woman informing me that I had an 18-month-old granddaughter! I was speechless. My only child is a 25-year-old college graduate. He's not married, not living at home, and he works 600 miles away. I see him only three times a year.

I phoned him and told him about the disturbing call I had just received. He calmly said, "It's possible." Then he told me he doesn't see the girl anymore, he's never seen the baby, and he has no plans to.

The baby's mother says she is 25 and still loves my son, but they decided a marriage wouldn't work out.

Abby, can I be a grandmother if my sons accepts no responsibility for this child? The young mother invited me to visit her and see the baby.

Will I complicate matters if I go?

STILL IN SHOCK

DEAR STILL: First, get together with your son and find out why he is treating the matter so casually. From what he says, he may not even be the baby's father. Once his legal and moral obligations in this situation have been established, you can decide what role you want to assume in it—if any.

DEAR ABBY: You were to quick to agree with RIPPED OFF, who complained because a co-worker had bought a purse for a fellow worker as a gift from the office gang, and claimed it cost $21. RIPPED OFF later learned that the purse had been marked $16.98!

Consider these figures, Abby:

$16.98.....purse
1.02.....6 per cent sales tax
2.00.....fancy gift wrap
1.00.....gift card
Total.....$21.00

This doesn't include the time spent shopping or the cost of transportation. And the poor woman probably skipped her lunch to boot.

This should serve as a warning to others who shop for a group: Get receipts for everything!

NO RIP OFF

DEAR NO: You're right. I shot from the hip on that one. Rip off my epaulets and demote me to buck private.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Writing is lonely.

I guess I never realized how much until I found myself saying to my tropical fish yesterday, "Whatya wanta talk about, Lester, the Panama Canal or Liz Taylor's Avon lady?"

When the fish surfaced and blew a couple of bubbles, I said, "If you're going to talk dirty, I'll call Estelle."

The phone rang twice and Estelle said, "Thanks for calling ..."

"So, what's happening?" I asked.

"At the tone will you please leave your name and phone number and I'll return your call."

"This is a crisis center," I said angrily. "Your crisis is ready."

I dialed the number of another friend. "I'm sorry," said the operator, "but that number is no longer in service. If you wish assistance, please remain on the line ..."

"Thank you," I said, "but my mother doesn't like me to talk to strange recordings."

I got on a bus and went into town. "Hello there," I said to the bus driver. He pointed to the sign that said, "No talking permitted to the bus driver."

When I arrived at the department store, I took an elevator where a recording told me to please stand clear of the door and face the front. I said "thank you" and a man moved nervously to the other side of the car.

It was the same all day. If it wasn't a recording telling me what to do it was a person saying something mechanical. It was late when I got home so I climbed into the car and drove through a drive-in where you hang out the window and yell your order into a clown's mouth.

I drove up and waited for Jack to speak to me. Nothing happened. I opened my car door and kicked him, figuring he had a short in his mouth. Nothing. Finally, I threw my arms around his throat and yelled, "You little creep. You think you're better than me ...!"

That night as my husband dialed the doctor, he got a recording from the medical answering service that said my doctor was not on call, but if we wished to leave our name and number his associate would call us.

I fixed him. I put Lester on the line.

NEW YAM BREAD

1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 eggs
1/2 cup corn oil
3/4 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/2 cup mashed cooked yam
1-3rd cup water

Grease and flour 4 (each about 10 3/4 ounces) cans from soup or other food (each about 3 3/4 inches high and 2 1/2 inches in diameter.) On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. In the bowl of an electric mixer, at medium speed, beat together the eggs, oil and sugar until blended. Add yam and water; beat until blended. Add the flour mixture and stir until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn into the prepared cans, filling each a scant two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, with cans placed directly on the middle rack in the oven, until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 40 minutes. Cool on wire racks. Loosen edges and turn out. Store in the refrigerator. Makes 4 rolls.

Food Prices To Continue Rise In '78

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices will continue their "seemingly inexorable rise" next year, with the average family's food budget increasing 4 to 6 percent, a government economist says.

Kenneth R. Farrell, acting chief of the Economic Research Service in the Agriculture Department, said most of the increase will be due to higher costs for transporting, processing and selling food after it leaves the farm.

Another important factor will be higher sugar prices and their effect on a wide range of products, including soft drinks and bakery goods, Farrell said in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual Food and Agricultural Outlook Conference. The conference concluded today.

Price predictions for 1978 are tentative. They may change due to a number of uncertain factors, including the weather, energy costs and the impact of food legislation, he said.

For example, a new price support program for U.S. sugar producers has just been implemented, and President Carter has imposed new duties on imported sugar. Congress is considering ratification of an international sugar agreement aimed at boosting global sugar prices.

Farrell said there is little doubt that the new domestic price support program, aimed at guaranteeing domestic producers the equivalent of 13.5 cents a pound for sugarcane and sugar beets, "will significantly influence U.S. food prices" next year.

"It has been estimated that increasing the sugar support price to 13.5 cents per pound of raw product equivalent alone will increase domestic food expenditures in 1978 by one-half of 1 percent," Farrell said.

The Carter administration also has announced its intention of curbing grain plantings next year by requiring farmers to set aside 20 percent of their wheat land and 10 percent of their corn acreage from crop output.

Department officials say, however, that those programs will not increase consumer food prices because of huge reserves of U.S. wheat and corn.

Prospective large exports of grain to the Soviet Union and rumors that China may want grain are not expected to affect food prices significantly.

Overall, retail food prices this year are up 6.5 percent from 1976, he said, compared with a gain of 3.1 percent last year. Retail food prices soared 14.5 percent annually in 1973 and 1974 and then slowed to an 8.5 percent increase in 1975.

Farrell said grocery store food prices this year are expected to average about 6 percent more than in 1976, while food eaten away from home is up about 8 percent.

"Coffee prices alone will account for about half of the 6 percent rise in average grocery store prices in 1977," Farrell said. "The entire imported foods and fish group will contribute over three-fifths of the total."

But for 1978, he said, "It appears that most of the pressure on food prices will be derived from increased costs in the marketing sector and relatively less from imported foods and fish."

Contribution By Optimists

The Optimist Club of Greenville has made its annual contribution to the Boys' Club of Pitt County in observance of the Optimist sponsored Youth Appreciation Week currently underway here.

Optimist Club president Lyman Daughtrey made the presentation of the club's $1,000 contribution to Chet Emerson, executive director of the Boys' Club, during the regular Optimist meeting this week.

Emerson and Boys' Club program director Bob Desoto, as well as three boys from the club, were guests of the Optimist at the meeting.

The Optimist members also brought their own sons and daughters to the meeting as guests in observance of the Youth Appreciation Week program.

"One of the main objectives of the club is to acknowledge the achievements of youth in our community and to guide them towards future productive lives in our community," Daughtrey observed.

He explained that the Optimist Club is working the year round in various fund raising activities to promote the character and well being of the youth in the community and to make donations such as the Boys' Club check.

Daughtrey noted that the club is making preparations for its annual sale of Christmas Trees, one of the key fund raising activities engaged in by the Optimist to provide the necessary money for worthy youth work causes in the community.

Emerson expressed his appreciation to the Optimist for their support and noted that the club is one of the major contributors to the Boys' Club program in Pitt County.

Road Damage Estimates Up

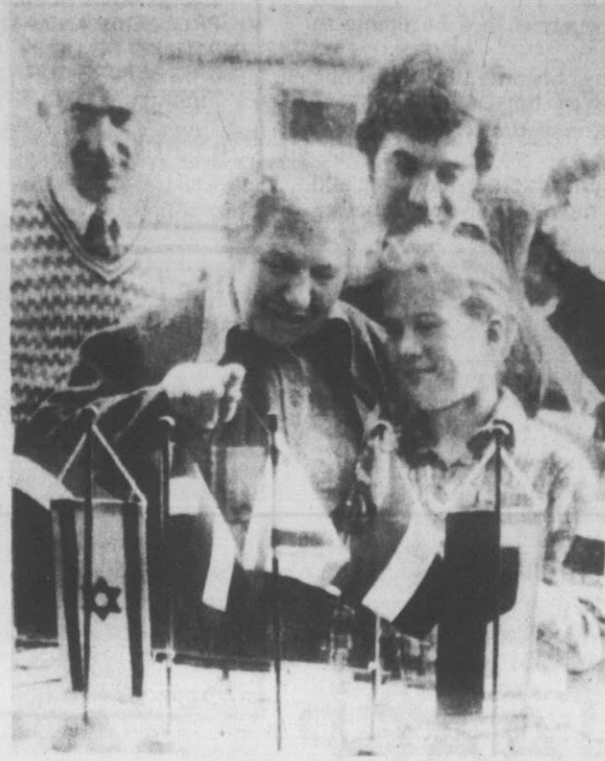

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Road damage estimates from last week's floods total $9 million, and some locations hit by the surging water have not been surveyed, a state official said Wednesday.

Floyd J. Bass, stationed in Raleigh with the Transportation Department, is here directing 11 special damage estimate crews in the western counties most heavily damaged last week.

Large sections of hundreds of secondary roads were shifted, he said.

"There's one road that looks just fine, except that it's about 100 feet from where it's supposed to be," he said.

Slavery was abolished in Sierra Leone in 1927.

Much To Lose In New Wars

Israeli Prime Minister Mehaem Begin has officially invited Anwar Sadat, Egyptian president to Israel.

The official invitation, sent through U. S. channels, was made after Sadat said he was ready to make such a trip. Sadat described the trip as a "sacred duty." "... this vicious circle we are turning around in... has to be broken," he said.

"If I can break it and don't break it, I will be questioned about it. By whom? By God, and that is why it is sacred," Sadat said.

If the Sadat visit to Israel comes about it will be historic. It could mean the beginning of the end of hostilities between the Arab and Israeli worlds, or it could result in nothing.

We like to think that the trip could be the begining of negotiations which will end Middle Eastern wars. Some Arab countries are, after all, becoming immensely wealthy because of the booming oil business. They have much to lose in the event of further wars.

At the same time Israel has much to offer to the Arab world in technology, and it may that the underdeveloped Arab countries are beginning to recognize this.

The Middle East can become the economic leader of the world, given the huge oil reserves that the Arab countries have and the technical know-how that Israel can offer.

It will all have to be put together, however and ancient differences will have to be resolved before that can happen.

Just A 5-Year Interim

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With a $300 million road bond issue just safely approved by the voters, you'd think the highway lobbyists would be happy and satisfied. But they're not.

"It's no more than an interim measure," growled Motte Griffith, executive director of Better Transportation for North Carolina. "Maybe it'll give them a little lead time to decide what they're gonna do."

Griffith is essentially correct, according to state Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw. The bonds will tide the state over and get some important jobs done for the next five years.

After that, if something isn't done about financing highway construction in North Carolina, the state won't have enough money to do much more than repair the roads it has.

The bulk of the state's Highway Fund is provided from gasoline tax revenues, which have stood at 9 1/4 cents per gallon since 1969. The fund continued to grow on the strength of increased gasoline sales alone until the energy crunch hit.

What had been growth of 5-10 percent annually was chopped to 2-3 per cent, Griffith said.

"You can't have that when inflation is running five to six percent," he said. Construction costs in the last several years, he pointed out, have doubled.

Better Transportation for North Carolina is an association of about 200 members — individuals, corporations interested in transportation and municipalities — which lobbies for higher government expenditures on transportation of all types, but especially highways.

Their paramount concern, Griffith says, is strengthening the state's east-west arteries, generating faster development in eastern North Carolina and improving business at the ports.

But none of that will happen, Griffith says, unless the General Assembly does something about the money it will cost. Better Transportation has been pushing for a change in the gas tax. Instead of charging cents per gallon, the lobby says, the legislature ought to make the tax a percentage of purchase price.

Bradshaw said his department was working on a list of alternatives that could be laid before the next General Assembly.

Thorough Search For New Chancellor

The search for a new ECU chancellor seems to be going well with Board of Trustees Chairman Troy Pate reporting over 200 formal applications.

Many of these applicants will be interviewed and then top applicants will be invited to the local campus.

It appears that the Selection Committee is proceeding very thoroughly in its nationwide search for the person who will succeed Dr. Leo Jenkins upon his retirement next spring.

Progress seems to be good at this point.

THIS AFTERNOON

Jobs Goal Of The NAACP

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—A "Special Youth Employment Service" operating as an integral part of the public schools in North Carolina is suggested by leaders of the state conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as a means of attacking unemployment among young blacks.

"The state could require that each student be interviewed by a Youth Employment Service representative before he graduates from high school, or is allowed to leave school legally," the organization thinks.

Noting the particularly high dropout rate among blacks, the leaders feel "the young people leaving school would have a better awareness of the options open to them and, most important, they would (stay in school) rather than leave in an illusory hope of improving their position."

The special employment program should operate outside the state's regular employment services, allowing young blacks first chance.

Top Priority

This is part of the push by the NAACP for what is considered that organization's major area of concentration and top priority: increased job opportunities for the state's unemployed.

Charlotte Kelly M. Alexander, president of the group, presented the conference report to Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. at a meeting in Raleigh.

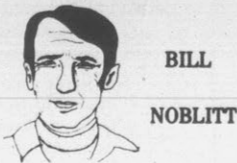

Alexander pointed out that blacks in North Carolina have made "impressive progress," and now enjoy higher incomes, better jobs, better housing, improved educational opportunities, and improved status.

"The problem is, as we see it, progress as to employment mainly has come to the better trained middle class black citizens and the poorer blacks who either have no education or a very poor education are left out... the poor and disadvantaged... are not fully sharing in the benefits of the progress we have witnessed," Alexander said.

Citing numerous statistical studies, Alexander concluded that the wage gap between blacks and whites continues at a high level, unemployment among young blacks is running more than 40 per cent, and many blacks must leave the state to find suitable work.

Moving strongly to provide job said Alexander, would help relieve accompanying social problems such as crime.

BILL NOBLITT

The public schools came in for considerable attention from the association. Alexander labels it "poor schooling which leaves the young people without basic skills."

Tests

Black parents, says Alexander, are concerned at the Disproportionately large number of black students being misplaced in special education classes as a result of standardized tests.

Such tests used to "classify, stratify, and certify individuals and groups in our society..." create a need for policy and guidance in proper use of them.

"Does North Carolina utilize tests for determining what is being taught, rather than measuring what is being learned?" he wondered.

At the university level, Alexander and the leaders of the NAACP expressed hope that controversy over racial goals in the University of North Carolina system "should not in any way contribute to bad race relations between the majority and minority population of this great state."

Black students, he said, must receive the best education available, and the solution is to increase their numbers at the major colleges and universities, while making the predominantly black schools "strong enough academically to attract white students."

Contemporary education "cannot be white... or black... it must be effective and realistic... for all students..."

Still A Bad Measure

WASHINGTON — All of a sudden, the Humphrey-Hawkins bill is back in the news, and if you want a piece of bad news, that's it. No matter how this misguided proposition is watered down or prettied up, it remains pure folly. In the friendliest possible fashion, out of deference to its principal sponsor, the bill ought to be permanently shelved.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill is the brainchild of Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Congressman Augustus F. Hawkins of California. In its original form, as presented to the 94th Congress two years ago, the bill proposed an elaborate blueprint for centralized government planning and control. Ostensibly the idea was to get unemployment down to a level of 3 percent, chiefly by invoking grandiose schemes of public employment; in actuality the idea was to create a vast bureaucracy with massive powers over the entire economy.

In its revised form, born again from political necessity, the bill is superficially more palatable. The most objectionable features of the original proposal have been deleted; a nice passage has been added, to treat the theme of inflation. Economic goals are now stated more realistically. Greater emphasis has been placed upon the needs of black youth.

And it's still a deplorable bill. It cannot be transformed into a good bill. Nothing will improve it. As a sagacious old Virginia legislator used to say, this year's version is the same old 'coon with another ring around his tail. Even in its remodeled form, the Humphrey-Hawkins bill embraces all the bankrupt notions of conventional liberalism. Let me dwell upon the most fallacious notion. This is the notion that in a free society, the most fundamental forces of human nature and of the marketplace can be successfully manipulated by the power of government. It simply is not so.

In a totalitarian society, the notion will work. It may work badly — in the Soviet Union, it plainly has worked badly — but it cannot work within the context of a free society. We keep tinkering with bits and pieces. The recent minimum wage bill offers one example. Temporarily, many bottom-rung workers will appear to benefit. Before long, the inflationary impact will be felt on everyone.

The Humphrey-Hawkins approach holds the prospect of infinitely greater disaster than a minimum wage bill. No matter how its purpose is camouflaged, the sole idea of Humphrey-Hawkins is to impose The Plan. The sponsors cling to the naive notion — the foolish, simplistic notion — that a few bureaucratic wise men, once placed in high office in the federal government, can devise a Plan that will bring us an economic millennium.

The sponsors think in terms of an annual Full Employment and Balanced Growth Plan. In theory the Plan would apply only to government programs, but the theory has no meaning; federal power is now locked so tightly into the structure of private economic activity that any presidential proposal, if enacted, must affect the private sector.

In its original form, Humphrey-Hawkins would have required that the federal budget be shaped to achieve the stated economic goals. Under the revised version, no substantive powers of enforcement appear to be proposed. But if this is so, the bill becomes a nullity. It would amount to little more than a hearty recital of so many New Year's resolutions. Presumably, everyone favors less inflation and more employment. If Humphrey-Hawkins were no more than a windy assertion of good inten-

New York Sees Gay Power

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEW YORK — An ugly little incident in the streets of Manhattan three nights before the New York mayoral election helped explain a faintly understood byproduct of the long campaign: the establishment of the city's organized homosexuals as another pressure group to be appeased by politicians.

The incident involved campaign workers putting up posters for Liberal party candidate Mario Cuomo, who belatedly had broken with the homosexual movement. The Cuomo workers were pushed aside by self-styled "gay" activists, who pulled down the posters. It was not the first instance here of homosexuals resorting to physical force.

That is one reason why practical politicians believe Cuomo may be New York's last serious candidate to even port on the homosexual issue, it was not because he unequivocally endorsed the "gay rights" bill before the city council but because he happens to be a bachelor at age 52. The conventional post-election wisdom is that any future candidate here, particularly if he is a husband and father, cannot lose support and certainly will avoid trouble if he goes along with the homosexuals.

This in part was unintentionally caused by Cuomo, who was labeled the fresh political newcomer who would invigorate the city but proved another good man who is a poor candidate. Indeed, "gay" power might have been blocked as an established pressure group had Cuomo heeded a key adviser: Adam Walinsky, boy wonder aide to Robert F. Kennedy a decade ago and later Democratic nominee for state attorney general.

Walinsky last spring proposed a three-point Cuomo platform to energize the city's silent majority in the Democratic primary: (1) endorse capital punishment (as Koch did); (2) talk really tough on welfare spending (as nobody did); (3) oppose the "gay rights" bill. For Walinsky, the last point not only separated Cuomo from his Democratic primary opponents (all firmly supporting the bill) but raised serious questions of what kind of society the government should promote.

Cuomo rejected the advice on all three counts, salvaging his New York Times endorsement while losing the primary. Walinsky then put his advice on homosexuals into an essay in the June 21 New York Daily News. The gay rights bill is a "true threat to human and societal values," he wrote, adding: "There is neither reason nor excuse for my government telling me, and my children, that homosexuality is good or even acceptable."

A few weeks later, about 50 members of the Gay Activists Alliance carrying baseball bats surrounded Walinsky's home in suburban Scarsdale, tossed firecrackers and threatened to burn down the house. When Walinsky tried to call the police, he found his phone lines had been cut.

Militant homosexuals marched in the city's streets a dozen times in October alone — protesting in each case an anti-homosexual utterance. The intimidation of New York politicians, never renowned

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

The Honorable Rufus Edmisten, Attorney General for the State of North Carolina and a former staff member of Sen. Sam Ervin while the latter served his tenure in Washington, D. C., states: "One of the greatest threats to free enterprise is the prolific encroachment of professional licensing boards."

He has, therefore, ordered the State of North Carolina's antitrust lawyers to investigate the N. C. licensing boards that are overregulating various trades and professions.

It is obvious that enough smoke has risen for the Attorney General to seek this reformation. It is obvious, the abuse of many of these board to trades and professions, concentered together with the phony reasoning that they are, in actuality, protecting the public. They are protecting nothing but competition and the almighty dollar and the public is fast learning these facts.

One of the outstanding differences in America and the rest of the world is the constitutional right to seek health, happiness and ownership, something the smarter boys held at bay, in other areas of the so-called civilized world. Restrictions are often created by the less competent so as not to be forced to work for quality and sincerity. Rather, to be falsely protected by a phony licensing board. Like the theme of the medical profession, if you can't cut the mustard, you will soon be found out. If you can, you should not be hampered otherwise. These boards and committees are often a collection of the unfit, chosen from the unwilling by the incompetent to do the unnecessary. More powerful than the shattering of an atom is the penetration of the human mind. For it is within the human mind that ideas are born, grow and finally burst forth, through communications, to the betterment of our world. Does this need licensing board controls?

40 Years Ago Today

November 17, 1937

Heavily reinforced Chinese armies struck back at Japanese invaders in a counter-attack along the "Hindenburg line" defending Nanking, some 125 miles away.

Thousands of fresh troops from the interior marched eastward to bolster Chinese forces southeast of the capital. At the same time civilians fled from Nanking to the west and the evacuation of government officials was underway.

J. Nat Harrison, general Red Cross Roll Call chairman, revealed that five more local firms had voluntarily sent in memberships for each person it employs.

The five were Quality Eastern Oil Company, Centre Brick Warehouse, Star Warehouse, E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, and Swift & Company.

A BOOK OF PROMISES

People very often miss the fact that the Bible is a book of promises.

The word "testament" means "covenant" or "promise." Thus the Old Testament is the promise made to the Hebrew people that the Messiah would come, and the New Testament is the promise made to the world that through this Messiah sinful men may experience the forgiveness of their sins and the power of a new life.

These are the great promises of the Bible, but there are hundreds of other promises also. There is the promise of comfort in sorrow, of victory over temptation, of the eventual triumph of peace over human strife. God is pictured as eager to give — more eager than we are to ask or receive.

The fact that so many people whose minds are bewildered and whose hearts are heavy with sorrow should know so little about this Book, which fairly bristles with promises of help, is a tragedy of the first magnitude.

Intervention Chilling Outlook

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Prospects for full restoration of diplomatic relations and business ties with Cuba appear dimmed following a secret Carter administration study showing that Havana is stepping up its military intervention in Africa.

The study, based on intelligence estimates, does not quarrel with the steps taken by the administration so far to end 16 years of hostility between Washington and Havana. But its judgment is that the pace should be slowed.

Sources here said an estimated 23,000 Cubans, 19,000 of them military, are now in Angola, where the Marxist government is fighting to suppress insurgents who keep a civil war flaring.

The New York Times in today's editions quoted high-ranking administration officials as saying that Cuba has a military presence in 11 other African countries as well and has suffered hundreds of combat deaths in Angola.

The Times said one administration policy-maker said the Cuban actions make restoration of full diplomatic relations "impossible."

The build-up in Angola as described in the administration study contradicts promises given by Cuba during the Ford administration that there would be a general decrease in Cuba's military presence in the former Portuguese colony.

Instead, the Cuban strength is on the upsurge, bolstering President Agostino Neto, who was carried to power partly by Cuban forces in a civil war with pro-western factions.

The administration has registered its concern in Havana over the African intervention. Sources here said the Soviet Union also has been made aware of the American displeasure.

Earlier this week, the State Department estimated that about 550 Cubans have been sent to Ethiopia, all except 150 of them military. The 550 Cubans represent an eight-fold increase since May.

In Ethiopia, the Cubans are assisting a Marxist regime fight invading forces from Somalia, which has broken relations with Havana and expelled resident Russian advisers.

Carter said in mid-February he would be willing "to move toward normalizing relationships" with Cuba if he could be convinced that it wanted to remove its "aggravating influence from other countries in this hemisphere" and "will not participate in violence in nations across the ocean."

"Interest sections," which perform many of the functions of regular embassies, were opened in the two capitals Sept. 1. American business groups, sensing new opportunities, have crisscrossed Cuba with the hope that trade could be restored. And the two countries have reached agreement on fishing zones.

Tobacco Industry Very Alive: Graham

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The tobacco industry is alive and well in North Carolina, according to James A. Graham, North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture.

Graham spoke at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce. The luncheon was held in conjunction with the Second Annual Tobacco Farmer Show being held this week at the Farmers Tobacco Warehouse.

Graham said that he personally appreciated the work that has been done by the Chamber of Commerce and Specialized Agricultural Publications, Inc. in bringing the show to Greenville and making it such a success.

"This great array of tobacco products gives our farmers a chance to pick up the latest technology," he said.

"When you look at this show which is said to be the biggest of its kind in the world, it can't help but make you feel proud."

He added that Specialized Publications, which is sponsoring the three-day event, could not have chosen a more appropriate site than Pitt County due to its large tobacco market.

"Here in North Carolina, it would not only affect farmers, but jobs would cease to exist, if something happened to the tobacco industry."

"Welfare would go nuts," he added.

Graham noted that with the increasing threat of higher taxes on cigarettes, a proposed national tax of up to 31 cents "Let's be careful."

"There's been enough federal meddling," he added.

Graham said that a national tax on cigarettes would also hurt sales in low tax states.

"In North Carolina, it would hurt every aspect of industry. It's up to the higher taxed states to reduce their taxes."

He noted that local tobacco farmers had some problems with sales this year, due to drought and less quality leaf tobacco.

"Farmers and growers must work to meet the domestic and export market demands in quality leaf," Graham added.

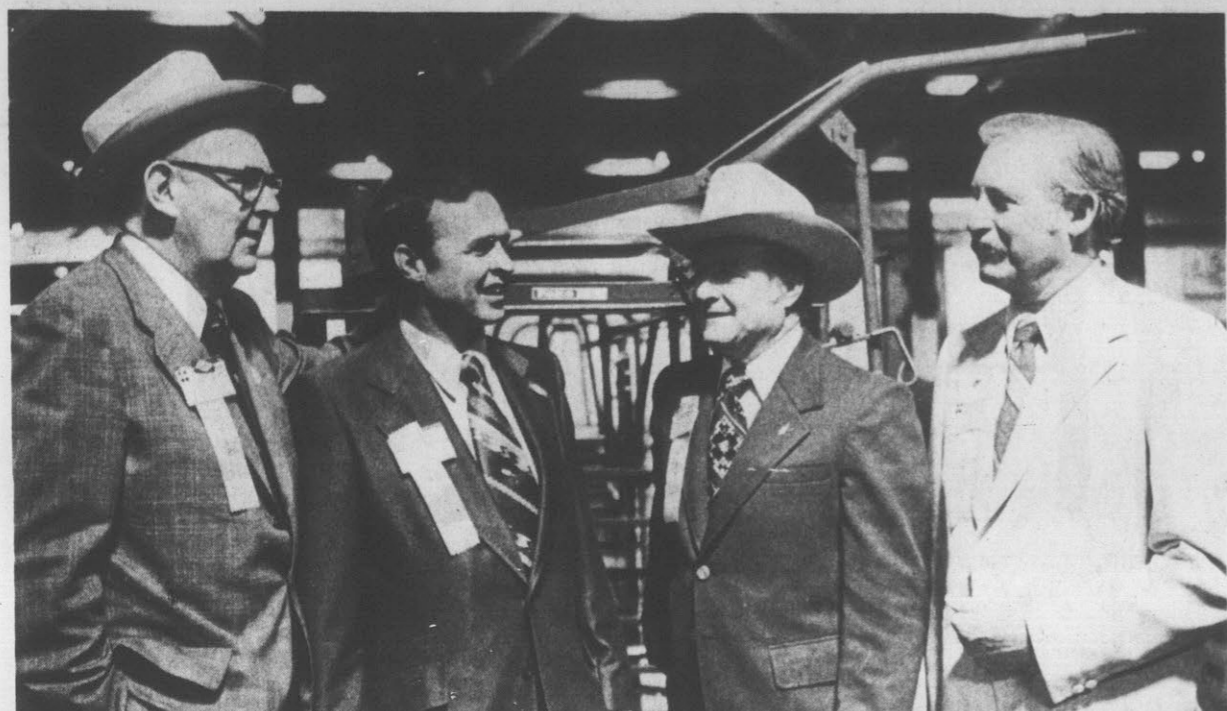

He said that do-gooders and no-gooders keep talking about this smoking business as being bad for your health. I'm going to smoke and chew whenever I please."

Graham added that the Department of Agriculture in North Carolina will keep working to protect the state's tobacco industry.

"Farmers are the backbone of this nation. We'll all come out on top in the long run."

for their moral fiber, was palpable.

Those politicians now talked about an organized homosexual vote of 10 per cent. In fact, it may be half that amount and not organized at all, but image is more important than reality. The advent of gay power was confirmed by a favorable article in the Oct. 25 New York Times under the headline: "Homosexuals in New York Find Pride."

It was then, improbably, that Cuomo began to worry aloud that the gay rights bill might enable homosexual proselytizing in the schoolroom, just as Walinsky had warned six months earlier. But by not making clear that expansionist homosexuality threatens the society, he seemed a desperate politician aiding a reprehensible smear campaign.

Fuzzy though it was, Cuomo's criticism was intolerable for the organized homosexuals, who began ripping down his posters. That response, plus election post-mortems equating legitimate concern over homosexual activism with illegitimate personal smears against Koch, shapes the future.

Candidates will fulfill political demands of homosexuals as they have for racial minorities, following the New York ground rule that politicians must give to everybody but take from none. That rule so far has brought the city to economic collapse. Now applied to the homosexuals, it threatens the perception of New York by its remaining middle-class residents as a place where traditional values can be preserved.

tions, it could be passed by acclamation on Monday and forgotten on Tuesday. The bill is not so sweetly innocent.

Sad to say, we are hearing in Washington a sales pitch of desperation. The bill must be passed, we are told, as a tribute to the ailing Senator Humphrey. He is one of the most loved statesmen of this century. He suffers inoperable cancer. While there is yet time, it is suggested, the bill should be passed in his honor.

Nonsense! A worse reason for passing a major bill scarcely could be imagined. There is now being established in Minneapolis a Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs. If those who want to honor a beloved American will throw their money and their energy into the institute, that will be memorial enough. We ought not to remember a very good man through a very bad bill.

Reveal Abuse

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Black leader Steve Biko was shackled naked for 48 hours during police interrogation and later driven naked to a prison where he died, police witnesses say.

Another police witness Wednesday said Biko attempted suicide while taking a bath in a prison hospital four days before his death Sept. 12.

Sydney Kentridge, a lawyer representing the Biko family at an inquest into the activist's death, asked what right police have to keep a man chained for 48 hours.

Jury Acquits Migrant Boss

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A nine-man, three-woman federal court jury deliberated two hours Wednesday before acquitting a migrant crew chief and four other men of charges that they held workers in labor camps involuntarily.

Prosecutors had argued that Lee Henry Smith had recruited weak people who would then depend on him in a Johnston County migrant camp. The other men acquitted were Smith's brothers Lee Willie Smith, James Glenn Smith and Mayhew Smith; and Larry Bankston.

Feel Strain Of Firemen On Strike

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Tension and destruction mounted today in Britain's four-day old firemen's strike as militants tried to prevent hastily trained soldiers from fighting the nation's blazes.

The Home Office reported 12 fire-related deaths so far, including five children in Northern Ireland on Wednesday and today, but said none could be blamed on the walkout.

Tempers flared during a London power station blaze Wednesday when nonstriking senior fire officers commandeered a foam engine from a nearby firehouse.

The strikers seized it back, but troops later moved in and drove it away.

A team of part-time reserve firemen was kicked and spat upon when answering an emergency call. Militants also sabotaged some of their own trucks Wednesday and jammed fire station doors to prevent troops from taking the equipment.

The Greater London Council, the British capital's governing body, "said it blanked out a strikers' pirate radio network in retaliation for earlier jamming of a key channel linking an emergency control center with mobile firefighting units.

The Council said it also cut off telephones at striker-held firehouses.

The firemen, making an average $115 a week, want a 30 per cent pay hike. But the government refuses to back off from its counter-inflationary pay curbs limiting increases to 10 percent.

Inmate Charged In Jail Brawl

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Assault and property damage charges have been filed against a Randolph County jail inmate following a jail brawl in which commodes were knocked from their bases.

Randolph County Sheriff Carl Moore said Fred Little, 45, was charged in the incident, which happened Friday night as Little was being booked by Asheboro police on a charge of public drunkenness.

Deputies reported Little grabbed jailer Alan McNeil by the throat and then ripped two commodes from the floor. McNeil was not injured, although another inmate suffered a head wound when he was knocked against the wall in the ruckus.

QUIET ANNIVERSARY
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer Kimball and his wife, Camilla, spent a quiet day at home marking their 60th wedding anniversary, a church spokesman said.

'Different' Tub-Thumps Went Awry

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember when aides to resigned President Nixon deluged him with trumped-up congratulatory telegrams after one of his televised addresses to the nation on the Vietnam War?

The deception was uncovered, which did nothing to advance Nixon's fading fortunes.

When President Carter made a similar address last week, on his energy program, White House assistants thought they had devised a better way to do some tub-thumping on behalf of their boss.

They invited about a score of Democratic Senate-House energy conferees to watch the speech on television monitors set up in a White House conference room.

Afterwards, Press Secretary Jody Powell escorted them into the press center to offer reporters their instant analyses.

What seemed like a sure-fire publicity gimmick got off to an uncertain start as soon as Rep. Thomas L. Ashley of Ohio led the parade to the press center rostrum.

"I thought it was a forthright speech," Ashley drawled.

Reporters scratched their heads and asked him to repeat the statement several times. It seemed that some had understood Ashley to call it a "fourth-rate speech."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, another Ohioan, was next at the microphone. Whether Carter's address would have its intended effect "is very doubtful in my mind," he said.

Asked if that meant the speech was a waste of time, Metzenbaum replied: "I wouldn't say it was a waste of time. It was a good effort."

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho was asked what effect the address would have on the conferees working on compromise energy legislation.

"Probably not very much," Church responded, winning ready agreement from some of the other conferees trotted out by Powell.

As the Congress members departed, the press secretary tried to make the best of the situation.

"I want you to know," joked Powell, "that this was another presentation by your up-tight White House staff."

For many years, it was traditional for presidents to accept a live Thanksgiving turkey from representatives of the National Turkey Federation. This week, however, the responsibility fell to Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

As the presentation ceremony ended Tuesday, the vice president's press secretary, Al Eisele, turned to White House reporters and cracked, "I hope that puts an end to the 'what-ever-happened-to-Mondale' stories."

A rash of such stories prompted Carter to telephone two newsmen last month to emphasize the substantive nature of Mondale's assignments.

Pitt Firemen Responded To 31 Fire Calls

During the month of October, rural fire departments in Pitt County responded to 31 fire alarms that covered a total of 29 fires.

Property estimated at $35,060 was lost in the fires out of a total valuation of property estimated at $376,410 directly or indirectly exposed to the fires.

Of the 29 fires, seven were house fires; one a house trailer; six auto fires; five grass or wood fires; three in buildings other than those listed above; three miscellaneous fires; and two instances of mutual aid. A total of four false alarms was reported.

Staton House Fire Department, which handled five alarms, was the most active of the rural departments during October.

'Fall Festival' Sale Saturday

FALKLAND — A "Fall Festival" sale will be held Saturday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. at the Falkland Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall.

A bake sale, yard sale, country store, and hot dog and sandwich sale will be held simultaneously during these hours. Proceeds will be used toward the church building fund.

chairman; and Frank Doyle, grand knight of the Greenville council. The money will be distributed to six local agencies in the Greenville area. Approximately $2,000 of the money will go toward state programs for the mentally retarded through the State Knights of Columbus. (Reflector Staff Photo)

No One Remembers UFO Raid

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — The 5,300 residents of this quiet Southern Illinois community must have been busy at other pursuits last Aug. 2 because not one can be found who remembers the attack by flying saucers that destroyed the town.

According to a magazine called Official UFO, the town was attacked by a fleet of alien invaders.

Chester's sheriff-turned-free-lance-writer Luke Grisholm said he called Chanute Air Force Base at Rantoul to get Strategic Air Command jet fighters to repel the invaders, but was unsuccessful.

The story recalls that Channel 8 television went blank on Chester sets and all TV screens held the image of an alien figure.

As most everyone here knows, Chester has no city sheriff, but there is a chief of police named Harold Howie.

"Believe me, I'm not a writer," says Howie. "I didn't have a thing to do with that story."

He adds that the city government has received calls about the story for the past week.

A headline in the magazine speaks of the looting and burning of Chester and also mentions that the story was suppressed by officials.

"I wondered what the hell I was covering-up in Chester (as a city official)," says Mayor Stanley Macielski—named Mayor Uhlan Moulton in the story.

"I think somebody nearby really wrote the story," says the mayor.

Official UFO is printed at Spartan Printing in Sparta, a city near Chester.

Kent Weatherby of Spartan said Official UFO is one of about 100 magazines printed weekly by the division of World Color Press Inc.

Circulation figures for the magazine, which is distributed throughout the United States, Canada and overseas, were not available.

The editor of Official UFO, Jeffrey Goodman, said from New York that the story had come from a free-lance writer who asked to remain anonymous. He said the magazine staff had tried to "check out" the story as best it could.

An editor's note beginning the article says that in the past several weeks, Goodman's office has been flooded with reports from Chester residents—all relating to the same incident.

Says Mayor Macielski: "The thing that's really funny is that we didn't have a report of a single fire on Aug. 2."

Judge Leaves Commission

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chief judge of the State Court of Appeals Wednesday announced his resignation as chairman of the state Judicial Standards Commission.

Walter E. Brock said he resigned because he is running for a seat on the state Supreme Court in next year's elections.

The judicial commission investigates accusations of impropriety against a judge. If the charges of found valid, the commission recommends disciplinary action to the state Supreme Court.

Brock said he would serve as chairman until a replacement is named by Chief Justice Susie Sharp.

10,000 Applying

WILMINGTON, Calif. (AP) — More than 10,000 persons are expected to apply for 75 longshoreman's jobs by the close of the application period Friday, union officials say.

And for the first time, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Pacific Maritime Association opened harbor jobs to women.

Applicants began lining up at 7 a.m. Wednesday, seeking the first dock job openings since 1973.

Another 75 jobs at Los Angeles Harbor will be given to union members now working in San Diego, Hueneme, Stockton and San Francisco, where the workload is less, said John MacEvoy, manager of the shipowners' group.

He said an increase in cargo tonnage over the last four years made the 150 job openings possible.

MacEvoy said the jobs will be filled in about three months, after 100 finalists are picked randomly by computer and interviewed.

Prisoner Attitude Said Factor In Prison Fires

ATLANTA (AP) — Better fire-fighting training and back-up plans could have saved lives in three major prison fires that killed a total of 68 persons this year in Tennessee, Connecticut and New Brunswick, Canada, a fire analyst said.

But David Demers of the National Fire Protection Association acknowledged that fire safety in prisons presents special problems because some prisoners do not have strong feelings of preservation and because officials want to keep inmates locked up at all costs. "If a person wants to torch himself, he'll find a way," and he may burn up others, too, Demers said in an interview after speaking to a NFPA group about the fires. He said that delaying evacuation of prisoners for security reasons can be fatal to the inmates.

When 21 prisoners were killed at a St. Johns, New Brunswick, prison, suffocating smoke spread so quickly that hurrying didn't help, he said, adding that a key momentarily misplaced in a smoky corridor probably had little effect.

But he said it made a big difference, probably costing lives, when a crucial key was knocked from a guard's hand and lost in the smoke that killed 33 prisoners and nine visitors at the Maury County jail in Columbia, Tenn.

Demers said it also made a difference when a key broke off in the lock to a cell dormitory where five prisoners died at the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn.

He said such problems could have been avoided by better fire fighting training and preparation.

Demers said to help prevent deadly prison fires, officials must use less combustible materials, must install fire-suppressant systems such as water sprinklers and must give serious advance thought to evacuation plans.

Invited Attend Canal Briefing

Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville, has been invited to a meeting with Pres. Jimmy Carter at the White House Friday for an update briefing on the Panama Canal Treaty.

The president has held a number of briefings at the White House for leaders in a number of states on the treaty in an effort to inform citizens of the various aspects of the Panama proposal and to solicit support for the treaty's ratification.

Three Greenville residents, The Daily Reflector co-publisher

David Whichard, businessman Jack Minges, and Rupert Hart, U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan's foster son, attended a similar session in Washington September 21.

Jones' invitation said, "Ratification of the Panama Canal Treaties requires the concerted efforts of many citizens throughout the country. We need your help to make sure Americans everywhere understand fully the terms of the treaties and why they are important to our country's future."

The invitation to the White House received by Jones, the son of First District Congressman Walter B. Jones, also contained an invitation to an organizational meeting for The Committee of Americans for the Canal Treaties. "intended to produce positive action in the grass roots areas...to generate interest," according to the telegram.

Jones is currently serving on the staff of Gov. James B. Hunt.

Rode Off On A Police Horse

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some might call it horseplay. Others might say it was rustling. But Michael Afanador, 25, has been charged with theft of city property and criminal mischief for allegedly taking a ride on a police mount.

Officer Leroy Patterson said he tied up his horse, Melba Quazor, outside a restaurant Tuesday, went in for a cup of coffee and came back out just as Afanador was riding off.

"I couldn't believe my eyes," Patterson said. He called to the horse by name, and it stopped.

"I used a tone that would have scared the horse to death," Patterson said. "Then I ran up and snatched the guy off the horse."

Nureyev With Muppet Show

Nureyev will dance with a six-foot ballerina Muppet pig in one sequence — called "Swine Lake."

EDUCATION WEEK — The Pitt County School System is celebrating National Education Week Nov. 13-19 with a display at Pitt Plaza Shopping Mall. A schoolhouse has been set up where each day a different aspect of children's education will be emphasized. Yesterday, the School Food Service served free milk and cookies, gave away literature on nutrition, and displayed yesterday's lunch for the county schools. Today, the emphasis will be placed on social studies. (Reflector photo by Tommy Forrest)

N.C. Baptists Stand Against An 'Inherent Evil'

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Hitting "the inherent evils of homosexuality," the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina has lined up behind Anita Bryant in her anti-homosexual campaign. The convention unanimously passed a resolution saying "the Scriptures denounce homosexuality as a destructive divergence," and commending Miss Bryant and her supporters "for their courageous stand in the face of persecution in exposing some of the inherent evils of homosexuality." Homosexuality and other social issues were dealt with by the convention on Wednesday, as it wrapped up its three-day meeting in Charlotte. "Messengers" from Baptist churches across the state also approved resolutions dealing with pornography, the legalization of marijuana or cocaine, and liquor-by-the-drink. Also approved was a $13.5 million budget for next year, up $1.5 million from this year.

The convention, which represents 1.1 million Baptists and more than 3,400 churches in the state, passed the resolution on homosexuality without discussion. The resolution requested that a study be prepared on "ways to carry forward our ministry of reconciliation and compassion to homosexuals." On another issue, the convention voted to urge state officials to crack down on pornography. But one minister, who said he personally opposed pornography, reminded the convention of the strict Baptist doctrine regarding separation of church and state. "The same government that we recruit to enforce our belief (against pornography) may, in the future and by the same principle, be recruited to suppress our freedom," said the Rev. W.W. Finlator of Raleigh. He added an amendment to the pornography resolution which urged Baptists to oppose pornography by "education, persuasion and economic boycott," while remaining mindful of "the bleak and tragic history of censorship, including in this country the imprisonment of Baptist preachers for the sin of preaching the Gospel." Finlator also provided a dissent of sorts when the convention went on record opposing legalization or decriminalization of marijuana or cocaine. He tried unsuccessfully to get the convention to oppose long jail terms for drug violators. Such sentences are "ineffective and counter-productive," Finlator said, adding that the resolution on drugs ignored another substance — nicotine.

a 169-page book indicated that $4.6 million would go to the Southern Baptist Convention, $3.4 million for division among the colleges, $1.3 million for social service institutions such as hospitals and children's homes, and $4.2 million for other programs. On Wednesday, William A. Wallace of Rocky Mount was elected second vice president of the convention. Earlier, the Rev. Mark Cortis, of Calvary Baptist Church in Winston-Salem, was elected president of the convention and the Rev. Del Parkerson of Wilmington was selected first vice president.

The theme of the 147th state convention was "Sharing Christ through Bold Missions." Cecil A. Ray, general secretary-treasurer of the state convention, called for wide expansion of Baptist ministries in the state. He urged creation of "task forces" of ministers and laymen to push the convention's goal of doubling baptisms by 1980 to 52,000 persons a year.

Monthly Benefits

According to a recent Social Security Administration report, Social Security benefits are being paid to Martin County residents at the rate of $626,338 a month. Mary W. Cain, Social Security manager in Greenville said that, of the 4,311 Social Security beneficiaries living in Martin County, 1,780 are retired workers and 419 are disabled workers. Another 440 persons receive benefits as the wives or husbands of retired or disabled workers. Widows, widowers and dependent parents of deceased workers number 1,672. Some 1,947 persons under 65 and 2,364 persons 65 or older are receiving monthly Social Security benefits. Statewide, more than 393,000 retired workers receive the average monthly benefit of $199.20. In Martin County, the average monthly benefit for retired workers is $172.90.

Shopping Hobby Is A Business

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh nurse whose hobby is shopping plans to rent herself out this Christmas season to people who don't like to fight the crowds.

For $15 Mrs. Anita Strickland will sit down with you to decide who gets what gifts and how much each item costs. Then for another $15, she'll go out and do the shopping, up to 10 items. After that, it's $1 an item.

If the customer prefers it, Mrs. Strickland will do the same thing for a flat rate of $15 an hour.

"I got the idea from a woman's magazine I was reading last summer," said Mrs. Strickland, a nurse at Rex Hospital here. "The article said you should try to run a business doing something you truly enjoy. And I truly enjoy shopping."

The woman in the article bought gifts year round. "She even had a reminder service where she'd send postcards reminding businessmen that their wives' birthdays were coming up," she said.

The woman charged $30 an hour. "That seemed like a bit much to me, so I just kind of reduced it."

Mrs. Strickland's rates and the other conditions she sets on her services are all contained in a contract she had drawn up by an attorney.

"It says I can discriminate as to what shops I'll go into. Like I'm not going to go out and buy a bunch of pornography or anything like that. And I'm not going to buy anything that's too big to fit in my car. No furniture, no bicycles."

She has no special techniques to make the work easier for her. "I've shopped for a long time, though, and I can do things pretty quick."

Mrs. Strickland isn't sure she'll make any money at the rates she's decided on. Her classified ad has run four days without a nibble. "I don't know. We're just sitting by the phone waiting."

May Resist Paying Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The City of Raleigh is getting tired of hauling away state government trash for nothing, but state officials say they may resist city efforts to charge them for the service.

The Raleigh City Council Tuesday night passed an ordinance which will require tax-exempt organizations and institutions to pay for garbage collection service.

"Frankly, we're going to have to ask the attorney general if it is legal," said state Secretary of Administration Joseph W. Grimsley. The attorney general's office had "no comment. We will await any formal requests."

Raleigh City Attorney Thomas A. McCormick insisted Wednesday that the ordinance "is legal or we wouldn't have enacted it."

In addition to the state, the ordinance would also affect Wake County government, churches, schools within the city limits and other tax-exempt organizations like the Salvation Army.

City officials estimated they could collect $100,000 a year in garbage fees from institutions and agencies that are now exempt from it, about $57,000 of that from the state.

"This will relieve part of the responsibility for the ordinary taxpayer, who now pays both his own (garbage collection) bill and that of the tax-exempt institutions," McCormick said.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

Quarterly meeting services have been announced for the weekend at English Chapel F.W.B. Church on Greenville Boulevard.

A quarterly conference will be held at 8 p.m. Friday. At 8 p.m. Saturday, Rev. Moye will be in charge of services and the Holy Communion.

Services Sunday are: 11 a.m., Bishop W. L. Phillips, his senior choir and senior ushers; 2 p.m. dinner; and 3 p.m. services by Bishop Richard Worrell, the choir and ushers from Holly Hill F.W.B. Church. The public is invited.

"It just so happens that a great section of the economy of our state is built on the protection of one of these drugs," he said, referring to North Carolina's tobacco industry.

He said that putting a person in jail for marijuana use "is not curing marijuana — it's destroying a life."

The convention got through three days of meetings without major disputes and on Wednesday had the opportunity to agree on a favorite subject — liquor-by-the-drink.

Overwhelmingly, the convention reaffirmed its stand against any form of liquor-by-the-drink.

And it went a step further in urging Congress to outlaw the advertising on any kind of alcoholic beverage on radio or television, and calling on Congress to require health warning labels, similar to those for cigarettes, on liquor bottles.

The $13.5 million budget was divided into four areas — Southern Baptist Convention programs, the seven colleges affiliated with the state convention, social service institutions, and various programs and ministries supported by the convention.

Annual Meet Of Girl Scout Council Held

The annual meeting of the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina was held Wednesday in Greenville.

One hundred and fifty adult volunteers, Girl Scouts and special guests attended the luncheon meeting hosted by the Greenville Neighborhood Service Tea.

Council President Mrs. Fred Mallison presided over the business meeting and gave the Council's Progress Report. The slate of nominees for the Board of Directors and Nominating Committee was presented by Mrs. Nelson Crisp, chairman of the Nominating Committee.

Delegates from the 26 counties served by the Council elected the following to the Board: Mrs. Gerry Jolly and Mrs. Virginia Bass, Wilson; Mrs. Gloria Hayes, Camp Lejeune; Mrs. Elizabeth Rose, Rocky Mount; Jack Best, Goldsboro; and Col. Pete Sullivan, Cherry Point.

Mrs. Barbara Hutchins, Plymouth; Mrs. Lucille Powell, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Annie Holder, Greenville; and Mrs. Carolyn Thompson, Goldsboro were elected to the Nominating Committee.

The delegates voted to accept a Council By-Laws Revision deemed necessary as a first step toward the council's plan to adopt a Corporate Management system recommended by the Girl Scouts of the United States of America.

Miss Jacquelyn Hayes, Senior Scout from Camp Lejeune, shared highlights of the International Wider Opportunity "Building for Guiding in Nevis" which she attended for six weeks in the West Indies. Wilson Senior Scout Rose Hester accompanied Jacquelyn on the trip during which time they were involved in clearing the site for a Girl Guide Center on the island. These two Coastal Carolina Senior Scouts were two of the eight Girl Scouts in the U.S. selected for this opportunity.

Judith Ann Wagner of Goldsboro told about "American Heritage Along the Skyline" held in Ferrum, Va. Margaret Griffin of Williamston shared "Kansas Sampler" which was a two-week event in Topeka, Kan., last July.

It was announced that the council had 17 girls and six adults attend the National Indian Youth Conference last July in Philadelphia, Miss.

Special guests at the meeting were William C. Gildwell, executive vice-president of First State Bank and Greenville Mayor Percy R. Cox.

Pitt Hospital Board Holds Social Meeting

Business occupied minimal time at the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees meeting last night. The major portion of the evening was spent becoming acquainted with one another's husbands and wives, eating barbecue, and watching a Rowan and Martin film spoofing hospital care and costs.

The first social meeting of the Hospital Board was held at the American Legion Building here.

The Board heard a report from Mack Edwards, chairman of its parking committee, on the committee's meeting with a representative of the McLaurin Parking Company of Raleigh. He said the company has suggested that an additional lot be built on the south side of the building to accommodate about 210 cars. Suggested visitor parking charges are: nothing for the first 12 minutes; 20 cents for the next 30 minutes; 25 cents for the next hour; 70 cents for the next two and a half hours; 95 cents for the next three and a half hours; and $1 for up to 12 hours. McLaurin would provide the equipment and labor to control parking, he said. "Paid parking sound negative," Edwards said, "but controlled parking sounds good. Mr. McLaurin says that burglary and assault in the parking lots his company controls is all but non-existent."

The Board authorized the administration to negotiate with McLaurin, probably a five year lease, with an additional five-year option.

It was suggested that perhaps the December meeting date should be changed, since it comes Christmas week, Tuesday, Dec. 20, but it was decided that it would not be, that the group needed to go by its bylaws.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices retreated today as Wall Street awaited the latest weekly Federal Reserve data on the money supply.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 5.72 at 831.34.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 7-4 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted some uneasy expectations that weekly statistics due from the Fed at the NYSE close would show an upswing in the money supply.

Such a development might be taken as a setback to recent hopes that the Fed would not feel the need to tighten credit any further in its efforts to limit monetary growth and restrain inflation.

White Motor rose 1 1/2 to 10 1/4 in active trading. A former White Motor official said he hopes to make a tender offer for control of the company, and added that he believed two European automakers were also interested.

One of those concerns, Daimler-Benz of West Germany, asserted that it had no plans for any attempt to acquire White Motor.

The NYSE's composite index lost .18 to 52.35. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .06 at 118.69.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.76 million shares by

Jurors Locked Up, Forgotten

SEATTLE (AP) — The jury hadn't even heard the case, but it was locked up anyway.

King County Superior Judge William Goodloe recessed a trial for attempted murder and ordered panelists locked in the jury room for a few minutes until the courtroom cleared.

Nearly an hour and a half later, Goodloe stopped in the courtroom to inspect its newly waxed floors. He heard noises coming from the jury room, unlocked the door and found a puzzled group of men and women.

The judge, chairman of the court's jury committee and concerned about making the experience of jurors as meaningful as possible, told them he was "profoundly sorry" they had been forgotten.

Jaguars Seek Revenge Over Clinton

Lineman Len Hunt

Hunt Blocks Jaguar Foes

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
"The Pit" — football's battle of interior linemen — is where you will find Farmville Central's Len Hunt on Friday nights. It's not that he particularly likes the place, he said, but it's what he does best.

"I mostly play tackle," said Hunt, a two-year starter for the Jaguars. "That's what I'm best at. We have several plays when I have important blocks, and if I do my job, we should get good yardage."

The 6-2, 250-pound tackle is a starter on offense and is used in key situations on defense, according to his coach, Gene Brewer. On defense, "his size helps to control a certain area," Brewer said. "He's the biggest player on the team and has done a good job blocking for us all year."

Hunt's blocking has helped lead the Jaguars into the state 3-A playoffs for the second straight year. This Friday night they face Clinton, the team which defeated them and knocked them out of the playoffs last season. Hunt is one of only a handful of Jags to have played against the Dark Horses last year.

"I'm anxious to be playing them again," the senior said. "We had a disappointing loss to them last year and we want to get another chance at them this year. I'm certainly looking forward to the game."

The success of the Farmville team this year came as a bit of a surprise to Hunt. "I'm kind of surprised we did as well as we did," he said. "I think we've come a long, long way and I feel like we've got just as good a chance as we did last year of being able to go all the way." He added, "We may do a little better this year." In game situations, Hunt said he likes to have the plays come his way, which is the right side of the offensive line. Sometimes he will have a suggestion for the coaching staff when he comes off the field for a play that may work the next time the Jaguars get the ball, he said.

Hunt would like to go to college at N. C. State and get a degree in civil engineering. He said he would like to return to Farmville after college.

Right now, however, he's more interested in engineering a state championship for the Jaguars.

Women Set Scrimmage

The East Carolina University women's basketball team will stage its Purple-Gold game tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Coach Catherine Bolton expects a greatly improved team after last year's disaster year of 6-16, worst in Bolton's coaching career.

Debbie Freeman, the state's leading scorer and rebounder last year with 20 points a game and 12.7 rebounds per game, returns, along with a healthy Rosie Thompson, who averaged 19.8 points and 10.8 rebounds as a freshman.

Newcomers Lydia Rountree of Elm City and Marcia Girven of Woodbridge, Va., are expected to add great help at guard and center, respectively.

The Lady Pirates will open the 1977-78 season against Campbell College on November 30 in Minges Coliseum.

There will be no admission charge for the Purple-Gold scrimmage.

Another shot.
Farmville Central's Jaguars have been waiting a whole year for another chance at the team that knocked them out of the state 3-A playoffs last year, the Clinton Dark Horses. This week, they get that chance as they travel to face Clinton Friday night in the second round of the playoffs.

Last year's contest was a bitter and disappointing defeat for the Jaguars, a 41-40 loss in overtime after they had held a 27-14 halftime lead. The loss ended Farmville's season and its hopes for a state championship.

A lot of things have changed since last year, but a lot have remained the same, too. Both teams are back in the playoffs, hoping for a state title. Clinton was defeated by Pisgah in the championship game last year.

Due to some rearranging of the playoff schedule, the teams won't be playing for the top spot in the East as last year, but the winner of Friday night's game will play for the eastern title next week.

The similarities to last year are on the Dark Horse squad, where the team's top running backs all return, except fullback Greg Pope. Leading the way will be running backs Smokey Norris and Tim Newman. Each scored one TD against the Jags last year, with Newman's coming in the overtime period. Gary Whitte, another good runner, joins this year's lineup, according to Farmville coach Gene Brewer.

Quarterback Jeffrey Taylor returns to direct the Clinton offense. He "throws well, runs the option well and runs the team well," Brewer said.

The Clinton offense is much the same as last season, said Brewer after viewing films of the Dark Horses. The team does Brewer, himself, has mixed emotions about the two teams having met last season. It helps to have played them last year from a coach's point of view, he said, because the coaches will know what to expect.

But, from the players' point of view, there will be little advantage for the Jaguars since only four of them faced Clinton last year. Most of the advantage will belong to the Dark Horses in that respect, Brewer said.

Last Friday night, the Jaguars shut out Plymouth in their first only touchdown.

Overall, Brewer said, "I was pleased with all but our offense and I wasn't pleased with it at all down near the goal line. But, we were ready to play and played pretty good football all night."

Of this week's game, Brewer said, "We have to go to their place again and they have a real good football team. They shut Havelock off last week (in winning 15-8)." The Jags defeated Havelock early in the season, 25-16.

The team has a real big and strong defense, according to Brewer, but the returning offensive backs are probably its strong point.

Brewer said the game could be as close as last year's, but he doesn't foresee the wide-open scoring that last season's tilt had.

"It will come down to the team that's ready to play and wants to win the most — that's what it usually does. If both teams are ready to play, they should be fairly evenly matched, I would think."

Decision Sunday

No decision is likely until sometime Sunday on who will face Louisiana Tech in the Independence Bowl on December 17 in Shreveport, La.

East Carolina University is among several schools being considered for the slot opposite the champion of the Southland Conference.

According to a source in Shreveport, there are six schools still on the list of the Independence Bowl selection committee. Those six include East Carolina, unbeaten Colgate, Louisville, Maryland, Army and "one of the other Carolina schools."

The source said that the committee met yesterday, but decided to wait until most of the other bowls become set on Saturday before extending any invitations.

"I really expect it to boil down to East Carolina and Colgate," the source told The Daily Reflector this morning.

The committee, according to the source, has set a 2 p.m. (CST) meeting for Sunday to come up with the second team for the bowl.

nothing fancy, it just runs the ball straight at the defense.

Most of this year's changes are on the Jaguar side of the line where almost no one returns from last year. Despite that fact, however, revenge is rampant in the Farmville camp.

Only four players are back for the Jags and the team's offensive backfield is all new. But those four returnees are stirring up the remainder of the team. "I think our kids are kind of looking forward to playing them again," Brewer said, "especially the ones that were on the team last year."

playoff game, 10-0. Brewer said of that contest, "The defense did a real good job all night. The offense moved the ball until we got down into scoring position and then it was the same thing thing as the past few games: a penalty, bad pitch or we just didn't block."

Brewer didn't single out anyone on defense as having a particularly outstanding night against the Vikings, but praised the entire unit. Offensively, "James Tyson did a real good job for us." The flanker caught a couple of big passes and returned a punt 50 yards for the game's

State's Youth Not All Bad To Sloan

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If it earns nothing else, North Carolina State's basketball team will certainly have the distinction of being among the youngest teams in the nation this season.

There are just five players returning to the squad, and coach Norman Sloan has brought in a 10-man class of recruits, nine of them freshmen.

"That may cause some problems," Sloan admits about his team's youth. "But it's not all bad."

Among the returnees are Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney, a 6-foot-5, 225-pound sophomore who shared rookie of the year honors in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year, and Clyde "The Glide" Austin, a skinny 6-foot-3 guard who has displayed sporadic brilliance.

But the big story is who's not back — All-ACC forward Kenny Carr, who averaged 21 points a game and departed for pro basketball after his junior year, and four other underclassmen who transferred to other schools.

It is Whitney and Austin who will be central to any improvement the Wolfpack can make over last year's 17-11 overall and 6-6 conference record, although a poll of area sportswriters has predicted the Pack will finish in the conference cellar. Whitney averaged better than 14 points and five rebounds a contest last year, while Austin averaged 12 points.

"We're going to do everything different. We're not going to do anything like we did last year," Whitney said, adding that a more patterned offense may be in the works.

Sloan says he expects to start junior Tony Warren at the other guard and Kendall "Tiny" Pinder, a 6-foot-7½ junior college transfer at the other forward.

In the middle, 7-foot-2 Glenn Sudhop is back after two disappointing seasons. "Glenn Sudhop had a terrible year — worse than his freshman year," Sloan told reporters earlier this week. "If he were here today, he'd tell you the same thing."

But Sloan said he thinks personal problems that have since been solved hurt Sudhop's game, and he will be able to contribute more to the team.

Among the rookies, Sloan says Pinder and Kenny Mathews, a guard from Washington, D.C., are certain to be regulars. Forward Art Jones and Center Craig Watts also show promise. "I'm real pleased with our recruiting year," Sloan said.

Still, this is a rebuilding year and N.C. State looks a long way from the glory days of 1974 when the Wolfpack won the national championship. Beginning his 12th year at N.C. State, Sloan says he doesn't know quite what to expect of his young team.

"I thought we had good season last year, but I went around talking to alumni groups and ended up apologizing for it," he said. "I don't know what is considered a good season with the youth we have."

Jabbar Not Ready To Play

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers will have to play without the National Basketball Association's most valuable player the past two years for at least a little while longer.

All-Pro center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who suffered a broken right hand last month, won't return to the Lakers' lineup Friday night as had been previously expected, the team announced Wednesday.

The Lakers said last week that Abdul-Jabbar would probably be able to play Friday when the team entertained the Detroit Pistons.

But Dr. Robert Kerlan's office announced that X rays taken Wednesday afternoon indicated that while the fracture continues to heal, it is still not strong enough to be subjected to heavy contact.

Abdul-Jabbar fractured the fourth metacarpal of the right hand in the opening minutes of the Lakers' season-opener at Milwaukee Oct. 18 when he punched Bucks' rookie center Kent Benson.

"New bone is forming, but it is still not solid yet," said a member of Dr. Kerlan's staff. "The hand is still very sore and there is no way that we could let him get involved in the contact of a game situation."

"Kareem can continue to run and work out, but at this time we feel he is not ready to play. The hand will be checked on a regular basis, and he will return as soon as we are sure that there is no chance of reinjury."

The Lakers have a 6-7 record playing without the 7-foot-2 star.

Pirates Head For Tourney

East Carolina's wrestling team will attempt to improve on its disappointing fourth place finish in the Civitan-Monarch Wrestling Classic held last weekend in Norfolk when the Bucs travel to Chapel Hill Friday to compete in the Carolina Invitational.

The Pirates finished behind William & Mary, West Chester State and North Carolina in the team standings in the tough Monarch tourney with the only bright spot being Solomon "Butch" Revils' selection as the Most Valuable Wrestler. Revils beat four tough foes to gain the 177-pound title.

"Butch did just a great job for us Saturday," Coach Bill Hill said. "It's an honor to be wrestling in such a good tournament as a freshman. And he beat some really good wrestlers.

"But as far as the entire team went," Hill added, "I was disappointed. I expected to have four in the finals, and we only had two."

"This Carolina Invitational will be a very tough one too," Hill said. "Some of the same teams that beat us this week will be there. It will have only about eight teams instead of 22 like the Monarch had."

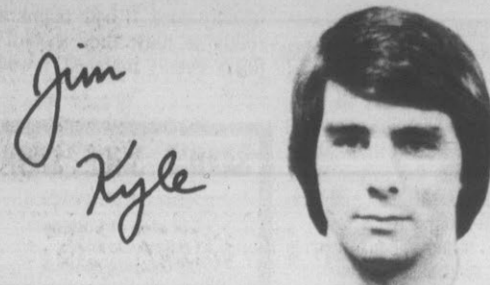

The Pirates will take two wrestlers from each weight class. Some that will definitely go are Bob Passino (fourth at Monarch) at 118, Jim Matney at 126, Paul Osman (third at Monarch) and Don Foster at 134; James Kirby and Greg Stevens at 142, Frank Schaefer (second at Monarch) and Kirk Tucker at 150; Steve Goode and Bruce Porter at 158, Vic Northrup (fifth at Monarch) and Bobby Williams at 167, Solomon Revils (first at Monarch) and Jay Dever (third at Monarch) at 177; Bary Purser (fourth at Monarch) and Ronnie Goodall (fifth at Monarch) at 190 and D. T. Joyner at heavyweight.

Mauch To Angels?

ANAHEIM (AP) — Gene Mauch has one year remaining on his three-year contract as manager of the Minnesota Twins, and while he admits he's legally obligated, he leaves little doubt that he wants out.

The California Angels are interested in obtaining the services of Mauch to manage them in 1978. His fate rests in the hands of Twins' owner Calvin Griffith.

"My position is no different than it was when the season ended," said Mauch Wednesday from his home in nearby Rancho Mirage. "I told Calvin that while I was legally bound to the Twins for another season, I felt I had fulfilled my moral obligation."

"The premise on which I went to Minnesota was that here was a club ready to win, that everything would be done to insure that objective," added Mauch. "The club has now been decimated by the loss of good players and in my mind the premise is no longer operable."

Mauch referred to outfielders Lyman Bostock and Larry Hise, who are free agents negotiating with several teams.

Mauch and the Angels will probably learn soon if they can get together in 1978. Griffith informed the Angels Wednesday he would hold a staff meeting today to discuss Mauch's status. He will get back to the Angels by Friday with a final decision on whether Mauch will be allowed out of the final year of his contract so that he can become California's manager.

Dierdorf Back With Cardinals

By PAUL LEBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Offensive tackle Dan Dierdorf plans to rejoin the St. Louis Cardinals this week, a prospect soothing to his wife if not to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Tammy Dierdorf was forced into an unfamiliar role when the Cardinals, the National Football League's hottest team, upset the Dallas Cowboys 24-17 Monday night.

Her husband, his broken jaw wired shut, anxiously sipped beer and used her as a sounding board for his emotions while watching his teammates climb from behind in the nationally televised game.

"It was very strange," she said. "He learned how frustrating it can be to have to sit and watch. I learned, too — he pointed out the technical things to me about blocking. His great regret was he could not share in the victory. He was really down."

Dierdorf, who had not missed a St. Louis game in six previous seasons, suffered the jaw injury when hit on the chin by the helmet of Minnesota Vikings linebacker Matt Blair two weeks ago.

But even then, had not an infection resulted from impacted teeth, he might still have played in the Monday night game while protected by a special mask.

"It was a non-displaced fracture, meaning the jaw didn't move," he said of the painful injury. "I could have played without further damaging it. It would have hurt, but I could have played."

"I had two impacted wisdom teeth on one side, and we weren't thinking about their getting infected. So it was infected teeth that kept me out, not the broken jaw."

After winning a hospital bout to overcome the infection, Dierdorf drew further inspiration from the victory over Dallas and rejoined his teammates this week in practice.

"He was worried that he might not be able to contribute," Tammy Dierdorf said. "You're not a part anymore when you're hurt."

The 290-pound Dierdorf, whose weight has dropped below 275, will probably serve as a backup to Keith Wortman when the Cardinals take on Philadelphia at Busch Stadium Sunday.

"We'll just kind of play it by ear," said Jim Hanifan, St. Louis' offensive line coach. "He's sure looking good, though, especially compared to a week ago."

Wortman, who more than held his own against defensive end Too Tall Jones, was saluted by Dierdorf for a "super game" in the victory over the Cowboys.

"I don't know. Maybe they won't let me come back now," Dierdorf mused with a chuckle. "I'll tell you one thing. The win over Dallas certainly takes a lot of pressure off me."

LAST SATURDAY SAW

two records held by former University of North Carolina running back Don McCauley broken in Atlantic Coast Conference games; one by UNC freshman sensation Amos Lawrence and the other by State junior Ted Brown.

Lawrence rambled for 286 yards in 35 carries in the Tar Heels' 35-14 victory over Virginia to shatter McCauley's school and ACC record of 279 yards rushing in a single game. McCauley managed that mark against Duke in 1970.

The Famous One also broke the NCAA record for most yards in a single game by a freshman. That mark was formerly held by Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh, who went on to become the most prolific runner in NCAA history. Dorsett's record was 265 against Northwestern.

Lawrence, with 1,073 yards rushing this season, despite not even playing in the Tar Heels' opening game and not starting until well into the season, easily broke Charlie Justice's school record of 943 yards for a freshman runner and also Wake Forest's James McDougald's ACC freshman record of 1,018 set just last year.

Lawrence is just the fifth freshman in NCAA history to rush for over 1,000 yards and has a shot at taking the number two spot on the list if he can pass New Mexico State's Ron Po James, who picked up 1,291 yards as a frosh in 1968. Dorsett holds the record, which seems safe, of 1,586 yards in 1973.

BROWN, AGAINST DUKE last Saturday, carried the ball for 137 yards to bring his career total to 3,252 yards with a year remaining. His three-year mark tops the one set by Don McCauley from 1968-70. McCauley's career began when freshmen were ineligible for varsity competition.

Brown also set the single season rushing record for the Wolfpack this year. The Duke game brought him to 1,251 for the season to eclipse the mark of 1,169 set in 1974 by Stan Fritts.

All of the records that were broken, except McDougald's, were set by players who are now playing professional football. McDougald, of course, is still playing for Wake Forest.

Defense Made a Difference

N. C. State's 37-32 victory over Duke Saturday was one of the best offensive shows to be seen in college football this year. It's ironic that in such a game two defensive plays provided keys to the Wolfpack's victory.

The first of those plays occurred in a wild and woolly third quarter which saw four touchdowns and a field goal scored in less than five minutes. The Wolfpack had just regained the lead as quarterback Johnny Evans found split end Elijah Marshall streaking all alone down the left sideline and hit him for a 73-yard touchdown. That made it 24-21 State.

The Blue Devils took over at their own 11 after a clipping penalty on the kickoff and were unable to move out of the hole. Ricky Brummitt went in to punt the ball away, but end Marion Gale broke through the line to block the ball for the Pack and Jon Hall scooped it up and carried it into the end zone. The Wolfpack was then up by 10, 31-21 with 8:40 left in the third.

The lead was short-lived as Duke scored two straight times, a touchdown and a field goal in less than three minutes. Quarterback Mike Dunn took the ball in for a two-point conversion after the TD and that allowed the Devils to take the lead, 32-31.

State scored again in the fourth quarter to go up, 37-32, but it took another big defensive play to assure a victory. That came late in the game when the Blue Devils were driving for what might have been the winning touchdown.

After converting on a fourth-and-three at the State 39, the Duke faced a fourth-and-two at the eight. Dunn took the snap, stepped back and started down the right side of the line before suddenly plunging up the middle. He came up a foot short and the Pack took over with 19 seconds left.

EXTENSIVE CAREER

NEW YORK (AP) — The frequently controversial George Steinbrenner, the principal owner of the New York Yankees, has a long background in sports. It stretches far back beyond the time he purchased the Yankees.

A quarter of a century ago, Steinbrenner coached an Air Force basketball team from the base at Lockbourne, Ohio. He also coached high school basketball and football in Columbus, Ohio, and spent a year each as an assistant on the football staffs at Northwestern and Purdue.

Ricky Brummitt went in to punt the ball away, but end Marion Gale broke through the line to block the ball for the Pack and Jon Hall scooped it up and carried it into the end zone. The Wolfpack was then up by 10, 31-21 with 8:40 left in the third.

The lead was short-lived as Duke scored two straight times, a touchdown and a field goal in less than three minutes. Quarterback Mike Dunn took the ball in for a two-point conversion after the TD and that allowed the Devils to take the lead, 32-31.

State scored again in the fourth quarter to go up, 37-32, but it took another big defensive play to assure a victory. That came late in the game when the Blue Devils were driving for what might have been the winning touchdown.

After converting on a fourth-and-three at the State 39, the Duke faced a fourth-and-two at the eight. Dunn took the snap, stepped back and started down the right side of the line before suddenly plunging up the middle. He came up a foot short and the Pack took over with 19 seconds left.

DEFENSE MADE A DIFFERENCE

N. C. State's 37-32 victory over Duke Saturday was one of the best offensive shows to be seen in college football this year. It's ironic that in such a game two defensive plays provided keys to the Wolfpack's victory.

The first of those plays occurred in a wild and woolly third quarter which saw four touchdowns and a field goal scored in less than five minutes. The Wolfpack had just regained the lead as quarterback Johnny Evans found split end Elijah Marshall streaking all alone down the left sideline and hit him for a 73-yard touchdown. That made it 24-21 State.

The Blue Devils took over at their own 11 after a clipping penalty on the kickoff and were unable to move out of the hole. Driesell Looks To King For Revival

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Lefty Driesell was regarded as a kingmaker when he reversed Maryland's sagging basketball fortunes. Now, after a slight slump by the Terps, he has a real King on hand to lead a revival.

Albert King of Brooklyn, one of the most highly recruited high school stars in years, should be just what Maryland needs to stay afloat in what shapes up as a dogfight in the Atlantic Coast Conference race. "I don't want to put pressure on Albert," Driesell said. "If we don't have a good year, it won't be his fault. And if we do, it won't be just because of him."

Still, it's no secret that the 6-foot-6 King, from his small forward position, must be the catalyst for Maryland.

The Terps are coming off a 19-8 season, their worst record in six years, and they were barely above .500 in the ACC with a 7-5 mark.

Two of the leaders from that squad, Olympian Steve Sheppard and Brad Davis, are the only seniors on the squad. Boston, with a 13-point average, was the scoring runner-up to Sheppard last season.

Davis, a junior college transfer last year, averaged 5.2 points and Driesell would be satisfied if he shot even less while concentrating on rebounding.

ever does start because we're two deep at every position."

Lawrence Boston, a 6-7 forward, and 6-8 center Mike Davis are the only seniors on the squad. Boston, with a 13-point average, was the scoring runner-up to Sheppard last season.

Davis, a junior college transfer last year, averaged 5.2 points and Driesell would be satisfied if he shot even less while concentrating on rebounding.

Larry Gibson, a 6-9 junior and the team's leading rebounder, will play either center or forward, while 6-4 sophomore Bill Bryant and 6-7 freshman Ernest Graham can operate at either guard or forward.

Bryant, an excellent leaper, can play in the front court, but he also will share with 6-1 freshman Greg Manning the point guard position vacated by Brad Davis.

Jo Jo Hunter, a 6-2 sophomore, was tried at the spot for two weeks of fall practice, but Driesell figured he was pressing too much to establish himself.

"Jo Jo is not outgoing and vocal," Driesell said, "and he was a little uncomfortable at that position. He should do better as a second guard."

North Carolina is favored to repeat as champions of the ACC, but a heavy influx of highly touted freshmen throughout the league has the so-called experts in a quandry over how they will affect the race.

Maryland, somewhat of a mystery team, drew votes for all seven ACC positions in a preseason ballot of ACC reporters and broadcasters.

"The ACC race always looks good on paper," Driesell said, "but somebody has to finish first and somebody has to finish last. And I want to be first."

Williamson Walks Away During Halftime, But Pacers Still Win

By The Associated Press

The Indiana Pacers unexpectedly won a basketball game and unexpectedly lost a player Wednesday night.

While Indiana, the last-place team in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association, was upsetting Portland's defending league champions, 111-104, fiery guard John Williamson became upset and walked out on the Pacers.

Williamson, eighth in the NBA in scoring this season with a 23.8 average, disappeared during halftime after collecting only four points in 17 minutes in the first two periods.

"I have no comment on John Williamson," a stunned Indiana Coach Bob Leonard said after the game. "I'm going to keep it strictly a team matter and won't have any public comment about the situation now. After we practice Thursday, I'll have something to say."

Asked if Williamson would be at practice, Leonard replied, "I don't know."

While Williamson was vanishing into the night, the Pacers' offense and defense were shining brightly.

Dan Roundfield came off the bench and led Indiana with a career-high 29 points. Adrian Dantley scored 26 and Ricky Sobers contributed 21.

Meanwhile, the Pacers held Portland to nine points below its season's average in handing the Trail Blazers only their third loss in 13 games.

"We beat the world champs," Leonard said on a more cheery note after Indiana's first victory ever over the Trail Blazers. "It gives us a thrill."

Reserve Larry Steele paced Portland with 21 points and Bill Walton scored 20.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics routed the Atlanta Hawks 131-105, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Seattle SuperSonics 101-96, the Buffalo Braves topped the Houston Rockets 101-97, and the Milwaukee Bucks beat the New Jersey Nets 116-106.

Celtics 131, Hawks 105
The Celtics, after a shaky 1-8 start this season, won their third straight game and handed the slumping Hawks, 8-5, their fourth loss in a row. Rookie Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell and Tom Boswell each scored 20 points for Boston. Atlanta's John Drew, who tallied 25.

76ers 101, Sonics 96
Julius Erving's 28 points helped the surging 76ers win their sixth game in seven outings since Billy Cunningham replaced Gene Shue as coach. The victory gave the 76ers an overall record of 8-5 and moved them into a first-place tie with the New York Knicks in the Atlantic Division.

Braves 101, Rockets 97
Billy Knight's 38 points and

Randy Smith's 29 enabled Buffalo to overcome a brilliant performance by Houston's Moses Malone, who had a career-high 96 points and 29 rebounds.

"He (Malone) can be better than he was tonight," said Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke. "It's hard to believe, isn't it, especially when you realize he should be a senior in college."

Bucks 116, Nets 106
Dave Meyers' 29 points and 12 rebounds keyed Milwaukee's victory over the Nets, who were led by Kevin Porter's 26 points and 14 assists. New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery, after being ejected with 41 seconds remaining following his second technical foul, angrily drop-kicked the ball toward the basket.

Greenville Golf Notes

The Greenville Golf and Country Club held a Better Ball event during a Ladies Day recently.

Dardie Longino and Vertie King took first place in the event, while the team of Bemie Rawl and Betty Lou Howard finished second.

Jim Lanier Jr. recently shot an 80 at Greenville, using only 22 putts during the round.

Several Greenville women were among winners at the Eastern North Carolina Ladies Golf Association held at Falling Creek in Kinston. Harriette White won low gross in the A flight with a 75, while Bemie Rawl had low net in B flight.

Joan Hooper had second low net in C flight, with Mable Blount having first low net in D flight. Betty Lou Howard had second low net in E flight, while Peg Haigwood had second low gross in F flight.

Turning To Plutonium Risks

By CHARLES HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan is turning his attention from the age-old problems of refugees to the brand new risks of the looming "plutonium era." Sadruddin, who retires next month as U.N. high commissioner for refugees, says he will devote more of his energies and financial resources to issues of ecology and energy.

In an interview, the 44-year-old prince also reflected on his 12 years as refugee commissioner, remarked on the lack of support for his work from Communist and oil-exporting countries and discussed the plight of human rights in the world.

Harvard-educated Sadruddin inherited a tradition of international service as well as money from his father, the late Aga Khan III, who headed the small Moslem sect for more than 50 years and was president of the League of Nations assembly in 1937.

The prince said the problems of nuclear energy have caught his attention in particular.

The cause of the prince's concern is the world's embryonic system of fast-breeder nuclear reactors, which produce plutonium, the raw material for nuclear bombs.

Many critics view the building of fast breeders as a step toward greater proliferation of nuclear weapons. But once the technology is perfected the fast-breeder system may offer virtually limitless nuclear energy.

The prince named names when it came to who helped on the refugee problems and who didn't. "If you look at the record you will find that 10 or 15 percent of the membership has contributed in a meaningful way to eradicate the refugee problem," he said.

"There are some countries that should have done more. I'm thinking particularly of the socialist countries and the oil-producing countries."

In 1976, the East European Communist bloc contributed nothing and 12 leading oil-exporting nations a total of only $105,000 to the high commissioner's annual programs. The United States gave $3.2 million.

The office this year is spending $72 million in helping tens of thousands of refugees from Southeast Asia to new homes in Europe, Africa and the Americas.

Sadruddin himself is a citizen of one of the leading oil producers, Iran, but has never lived there.

The prince said it is becoming increasingly difficult to protect the rights of refugees. The United States for years has called for establishment of a U.N. high commissioner for human rights to pressure repressive regimes to reform, and Sadruddin said the U.N. Human Rights Commission is "not sufficient. Its procedures are slow and cumbersome."

But he said he has no ambition to be the first human rights "czar."

"Dealing with the human rights of refugees you are in a position to contribute in a concrete way to a particular group of people," he explained. "But to deal with questions related to human rights when governments do not agree among themselves... it would be much more difficult."

Atlanta's Black Parents Sue For New Desegregation Plan

ATLANTA (AP) — Black parents suing for a new school integration plan contend that rigid housing patterns have caused school segregation. But education officials contend that they are not responsible for housing patterns.

Dr. Karl Taeuber, a specialist in black population studies from the University of Wisconsin, testified Wednesday that Atlanta's neighborhoods are as segregated as they were in the 1950s, before the civil rights movement.

"The pattern of segregating whites from blacks has persisted throughout this period. It hasn't changed at all in the last 20 years," he said.

Taeuber appeared for the plaintiffs — 24 black parents — who are seeking a desegregation plan that would transfer students across city and county lines, integrating Atlanta's 90 percent black student population into predominantly white suburban schools.

Atlanta's current school integration plan contains virtually no forced busing but allows a pupil to transfer to a school where his race is in a minority.

The trial began Tuesday in the suit filed in U.S. District Court in 1972. The defendants include city school systems in Buford, Decatur and Marietta and the county school systems in Fulton, Douglas, DeKalb, Cobb, Clayton and Gwinnett counties, all in the Atlanta area.

The black parents assert that segregated housing patterns have led to patterns of school segregation in Atlanta and its suburbs. All of the suburban school systems except Decatur are largely white, some by as much as 90 percent, the plaintiffs say.

Attorneys for the state Board of Education and for the suburban school systems filed a motion asking Judge William O'Kelley to disallow evidence of racial housing patterns in the suit because school boards are not responsible for population patterns.

"We question whether school officials can have court sanctions imposed upon them because of the actions of others. If they're talking about housing — then they've sued the wrong people," said Al Evans, an assistant state attorney general.

O'Kelley took the motion under advisement.

But American Civil Liberties Union lawyer Margie Hames said later, "Even if this court rules it out, there is no question that the U.S. Supreme Court will allow it in evidence."

In her opening arguments Tuesday, Mrs. Hames accused government bodies of enforcing historic segregated housing patterns.

"Residential apartheid is a fact in Atlanta... It didn't just happen, it was planned... It was carefully controlled by government for years," she said.

Her first witness, Atlanta City Councilman Q.V. Williamson, testified that the city, especially in the 1920s and 1930s, rigidly controlled racial housing patterns through its zoning process.

An Edge In New Loom

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A Charlotte-based division of Crompton & Knowles Corp. has developed a new kind of loom which the company says may give American products a new edge against lower-priced imported fabrics.

The "shuttleless" loom "can weave multi-colored fabrics about twice as fast as conventional equipment and at significantly lower cost," a company spokesman said.

The loom is also much quieter and easier to maintain than conventional machinery, says David A. Schrom, president of Crompton & Knowles' Textile Machinery Group here.

He added that the loom was a "significant technological breakthrough" in the weaving industry that "could enable American weavers to compete more effectively against imports."

The loom took 10 years to develop. It operates by means of a four-inch, air-propelled projectile that picks up the yard from large cones and "shoots" it across the loom.

An air-actuated piston rod returns the projectile to its original position.

Crompton & Knowles makes specialty chemicals and special industry equipment. It has been making textile machinery for 140 years, which makes it one of the oldest loom manufacturers in the nation.

Schrom said the new loom can make about 19 linear yards of multi-colored fabrics per hour, compared to about nine on a typical shuttle machine.

Truck's Cab A Death Chamber

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A truck cab has become the death chamber for a woman whose husband died in the same truck five months ago.

Authorities say Mrs. Phyllis Harris Lambeth, 32, was found dead Tuesday of carbon monoxide poisoning. A plastic hose ran from the exhaust pipe to the vent window in the cab.

Randolph County Deputy Jerry Shaw said Wednesday Mrs. Lambeth's husband, Larry Arthur Lambeth, was found dead in the cab of the same truck on May 29, with a plastic pipe connecting the exhaust pipe and the truck cab.

"I had known them both... They seemed to be tremendously close and when Larry died, it was more than she could stand," Shaw said.

Walton Family Inches Into Years Of WWII

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's an odd thing about "The Waltons," that genteel clan of the Virginia hills. If you don't watch the show much, you tend to think they're still in the Depression era.

But last week's episode had them pausing to hear the war news from Europe, had one Walton boy home from National Guard training and another wishing he could become a Royal Air Force fighter pilot.

And tonight, a family crisis occurs when Grandpa Walton invites Army units on maneuvers to bivouac on his land.

In short, that distant war in Europe is coming closer and closer for members of the durable CBS family series created by Earl Hamner, who grew up in the rural town of Schuyler, Va.

Last season, he says, the series combined the years 1937-38 "because we'd just about used up every aspect of the Depression and we didn't want to start repeating things."

"And since the Depression always had been the villain, we felt we needed a new villain in the form of World War II, which would be especially threatening to a family with that many (four) boys."

At last report, John-Boy was in New York, working for The Associated Press, of all things, and writing his second novel.

Hamner, 54, whose hit series is based on his memories of growing up in rural Virginia, says he's keeping this season's shows in a period just before the start of the draft for American men in 1940.

"This is because we don't want to lose any of the remaining boys quite yet," he said. "And when they're drafted, we'll work the stories around them when they're home on leave."

If "The Waltons" is renewed for a seventh season, it would then deal with the Pearl Harbor attack and America's entry into the war.

But Hamner says the focus will remain on the family, on the impact of the war on the Waltons who stay home in Virginia, and won't directly follow the young Walton men through military service.

"No, we won't do that," he said. "I think the reason people like this show is the family unit, the strength they sense in this family in that particular place."

"Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury:"

"My client, West, is seeking redress from his former partner, East. The claim is that East's defense was thoughtless and imposed unnecessary hardship on my client."

"We do not feel that the opponents' auction has any bearing on the case. South felt that a response of one no trump to a one club opening bid was more descriptive of his holding, and he was delighted to accept his partner's invitation."

"My client, West, is seeking redress from his former partner, East. The claim is that East's defense was thoughtless and imposed unnecessary hardship on my client."

"We do not feel that the opponents' auction has any bearing on the case. South felt that a response of one no trump to a one club opening bid was more descriptive of his holding, and he was delighted to accept his partner's invitation."

"My client led the fourth best of his longest suit. East's play of the jack was obviously correct and declarer won the king. South led a diamond to the ace and returned the suit, East discarding the queen of spades. Declarer ducked and my client won."

"My client was worried that declarer might be concealing the queen of hearts, so he shifted to a spade. That was curtains for the defense. It is our contention that East's discard of the queen of spades was misleading, and that my client is entitled to damages."

"Ladies and gentlemen, before you retire to consider your verdict, it is my duty to point out some facts. West is correct in his assertion that declarer might have been hiding the queen of hearts. However, the queen of spades discard would tend to deny the ace, and if declarer has that card as well as the two red kings that he has already shown, he would not have responded one no trump with the queen of hearts too."

"Therefore, it is the opinion of this court that West should have continued with hearts. However, we do think that East was negligent in his discards. From the Rule of Eleven, it is clear that declarer holds only one heart higher than the five. Therefore, East could have made the position crystal clear to his partner by discarding the queen of hearts on the second round of diamonds!"

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Finds Four To Play Old Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — M. J. Frankovich has turned up performers after a four-month search to play Fanny Brice, Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers and Bert Williams in NBC's "Ziegfeld: The Man and His Women."

Catherine Jacoby will portray the Fanny, Richard James Shea will be Cantor, Bob Fraser will be Rogers and David Downing will be Williams.

Can't Escape Historical Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Flanders can't seem to get away from historical roles. He plays Pulitzer Prize-winning editor William Allen White in ABC's "Mary White" on Nov. 19.

Flanders played the title role in "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking" and also was the former president in "MacArthur" and "Truman at Potsdam."

In ABC's "Eleanor and Roosevelt" he was Louis Howe, confidant to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and in "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine" he was Daniel Berrigan.

Businessman Delights In Oddball Approach To Art

By R. MICHAEL PATTERSON
AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — There's no question in the madcap mind of Stanley Marsh 3 (pronounced three) what art is. He keeps it in his backyard with his zebra.

"Art is three large letters propped against a wooden fence in the Texas Panhandle," he said. And sure enough, in a corral behind his ranch house is a red A, a yellow R and a blue T.

That's not nearly as weird as Marsh's latest ambition — tattooing a Mexican hairless dog to look like Carol Channing so it can stand on its hind legs and dance to "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend."

When a builder announced the start of a housing development to border his land, Marsh erected a billboard large enough that it would not be overlooked by wary buyers: "Future Home of the World's Largest Poisonous Snake Farm."

"I doubt it scares them away," he said.

Stanley Marsh, 39, is frustrating. He cannot be labeled. He is as hard nosed at his business as he is bizarre around his wife, Wendy, and five kids.

"I'm absolutely conservative in my business," said Marsh, pacing his cluttered downtown office in a red felt hat and blue jeans. "I totally keep it separate. My business is just absolutely straight heads, no funny letters, no costumes."

He works in the Marsh Enterprises office on the 30th floor of the city's tallest building overseeing a mixture of ventures, from television stations to bookstores.

"What I do is make business deals. People approach me in a myriad of ways. Deals come to me. I advertise deals, like by giving you this interview. Very few of the deals I make, but I pursue a great many of them."

"I'm a professional businessman and an amateur prankster."

I'm ruthlessly pragmatic and I probably overcompensate in my business for my other activities."

Those activities hinge on his theory that art is "the suddenness of things." They are also a way he relaxes, like other businessmen play golf or tennis, activities he can afford to lose at.

"I want to surprise people. It's my ambition to go to the airport and wait in line. When they ask me where I want to go, I'll say surprise me. When I get there, the taxi driver will ask where I want to go. I'll say surprise me. He'll take me to a hotel and they'll ask what kind of room I want. I'll say surprise me. It'd be fun."

He is the man who buried 10 Cadillacs, up to their front windshields and leaning at an angle, along Route 66. He said the art work represents different stages in the development of the tail fin from 1946 to 1964, and to Marsh's thinking symbolizes America's passion for the automobile and dream of escape.

His creations — from the Cadillac Ranch to the Night Tree (a giant neon light that flickers glowing colors) — are part of an elaborate system of "unanticipated delights."

"It's more fun to have a theory of art than to have an art collection," he said. "I get to meet a lot of people. It was his discussions on art theory with a group of artists, called the Ant Farm, that led to the building of the Cadillac Ranch, as he calls the "monument" west of Amarillo. And the T-shirt that hangs over his paunchy belly has "Cadillac Ranch" and "Ant Farm" written in red letters.

His antics once earned Marsh a place on former President

Nixon's enemies list. In typical Marshian fashion, he wrote Pat Nixon a letter announcing a Museum of Decadent Art. He wanted to devote a wing to her hats.

Pity the man who stumbles on the 90 by 180 foot portable pool table that Marsh moves around his land. By the time the astonished fellow brings his friends back to show them what he found, it likely has been moved. To Marsh that's art.

Does he ever get tired of folks asking him why he buried the Cadillacs?

"No. I get bored with it, but I do not get irritated with it, providing there's time and the mosquitoes aren't biting me all over."

Bond Sales Nearing Goal

Sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pitt County during the third quarter of 1977 were $209,815, according to R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman.

Howard said that January through September sales in the county amounted to $604,781 or 65 per cent of the overall Pitt goal of $930,620.

Sales of Series E and H bonds in the state totaled $28,467,067 in the third quarter of the year, he reported, with Series E sales totaling $28,260,067 and H Bond sales accounting for $207,000.

Bond sales for the year in North Carolina now stand at $83,047,738, it was pointed out, or some 70 per cent of the state's 1977 dollar goal of $117,800,000.

Nationally, bond sales amounted to $6.08 billion for the first nine months of 1977.

Kindergarten

Can Be Tough

HOUSTON (AP) — Harry Caldwell thought it was tough being chief of the Houston Police Department until he faced 180 kindergartners and first grade pupils at Briargate Elementary School.

Caldwell said he agreed to wear his spiffy chief's uniform — traditionally worn only at ceremonies — and was feeling pretty important when the children began grilling him.

The first few questions were mild. Had he ever shot anyone? Do policemen have to go to school?

Then came the zinger. "How come you ain't found my bicycle?" asked one pupil. "He just didn't understand my manpower shortage," said Caldwell.

Pre-Register For Playschool

Friday, Nov. 18 at 9 a.m. is the pre-registration date for children to be entered into the Playschool being conducted by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department in December.

Two separate sessions will be held — each Thursday and each Friday morning from 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. Children can attend only one of the two sessions.

The Playschool meets for ten weeks. Cost for the session is $2.50 for refreshments.

Children of ages three, four and five are eligible to be enrolled.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast today from the Northwest into the central Plains. Snow flurries for the Northeast. Seasonably cool weather is expected from the north and central Rockies to the East. Southern states will be mild. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
 Scattered showers occurred in the mountains during the night and spread across the state today. They were expected to reach the coast by tonight.
 Today's forecast also called for brisk winds from the southwest of 10 to 20 miles per hour, reaching gusts of up to 30 m.p.h. By afternoon, skies were expected to begin clearing in the west.

Mild temperatures during the day will show a considerable drop tonight with temperatures in the 30s over much of the state. High readings today were expected to be in the 60s with some low to mid 70s along the coast. The overnight range will be from the 20s in the mountains to the low and mid 40s along the coast.
 It will be sunny and breezy Friday with highs in the 50s inland to the mid 60s on the coast.

Succession Issue Called Moot

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The debate has ended for now on whether groups promoting or opposing constitutional amendments are covered by the campaign finance reporting law.
 C. Kitchin Josey, treasurer for Carolinians Opposed to Succession, has withdrawn a suit aimed at establishing that such campaigns are exempt from the law that requires full financial disclosure including names of donors.
 "It's a matter now of dragging a three-quarters dead horse through the courts, spending my money. Basically, it's moot," Josey said in a telephone interview Wednesday. The question would eventually be decided in the state Supreme Court no matter what the rulings were in lower courts, he said.

 But in a separate interview, Wake District Attorney Burley B. Mitchell Jr. said the withdrawal "casts doubt on their credibility to me. They apparently used the courts to prevent us from enforcing the law." Mitchell could still file criminal charges in the case.
 Voters approved gubernatorial succession by a 52 percent margin Nov. 8. It allows governors and lieutenant governors to seek second successive terms.
 Josey's group said it would not reveal the names of those contributing because many were Democrats who feared retaliation from the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt. It argued that the law requiring reports intentionally exempted campaigns relating to constitutional amendments and bond issues. The committee backing succession voluntarily revealed its finances.

 Mitchell later issued a statement warning that he believed the law did cover constitutional amendments and would prosecute if the committee failed to file reports with the State Board of Elections.
 Josey filed suit and successfully requested that Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey restrain Mitchell from prosecuting. That injunction was struck down by the State Court of Appeals but the question of whether the law applies to campaigns on constitutional amendments has not been answered.
 Mitchell said Wednesday he still hopes to prosecute and is trying to determine whether he can develop enough evidence.

He admitted that chances of getting sufficient evidence were fairly slim because he needs people who donated to Josey's group to testify about their contributions.
 The group has a small number of donors and they are unlikely to testify, he said. Violation of that law is a misdemeanor, making prosecution unlikely if it would be expensive, Mitchell admitted.
 If Mitchell eventually brings charges, Josey's attorney said the first defense would be that the law does not apply. In ruling on that defense, the courts would determine which side was right.

Trustees Want Some Insurance

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A rash of lawsuits against college officials has University of North Carolina system trustees worried. They want protection.
 The trustees have authorized UNC President William C. Friday to take out liability insurance for members of the Board of Governors, boards of trustees of the system's 16 campuses and university employees.
 One company has offered for $48,000 a year to provide $2 million worth of coverage on all actions except bodily injury and property damage. The policy would be $25,000 deductible and would not cover legal costs of defending against claims.
 Friday's office was checking this week to determine whether the first $25,000 of any judgments could be picked up by the state and whether the attorney general's office could act as defense attorneys for university employees.
 William Johnson of Lillington, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, raised the insurance question in a workshop for trustees here last week. He noted "an increasing disposition on the part of students, sometimes parents, athletes, even disgruntled faculty members" to sue.

 Richard Robinson, an aide to Friday, said the rising number of lawsuits could be blamed on heightened sensitivity to race and sex discrimination, a U.S. Supreme Court decision which "broadened the base" of individual liability in some suits and "a heck of a lot more law to reckon with."
 University officials say the ultimate solution will be a self-insurance plan in which the state will provide a pool of money to pay costs arising from lawsuits against schools, trustees, officers and employees.

Women Begin Houston Trek

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Women from all over the world are exchanging views on the problems they face in achieving equality on the eve of the U.S. National Women's Conference.
 The gathering today brings together women from at least 24 nations. It was sponsored by the State Department's Agency for International Development.
 Arvonne Fraser, AID's coordinator for women in development, says five areas are being emphasized: food and agriculture, the female-headed household, legal rights for women, education and women's organizations as a political force.
 The consultation precedes by a day the formal opening of the national women's conference, a federally financed venture designed to identify the barriers to equality in the United States and make recommendations to Congress and the president as to how they can be torn down.
 The conference that starts Friday may bring more than 20,000 persons to Houston including about 2,000 delegates. It is sponsored by the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.
 The AID consultation is planned on a much smaller scale. About 35 international visitors will participate with a larger number of women from the United States.

 Like the domestic conference, the international meeting was preceded by some controversy. Some observers complain that development experts from industrialized nations may try to impose their ideas of appropriate roles for women and men upon developing nations which have different traditions.
 Ms. Fraser was to address the international conference today on the contrast in opportunities for women and men who graduate college in the United States.
 "Today, in the United States, a woman with a college degree earns, on the average, less than a man with a high school education," she said in remarks prepared for the conference.
 The women the State Department has brought to America to discuss these problems have had a chance to visit various parts of this country and make some comparisons with their own.

A Regional Session Set

The Division for Exceptional Children, State Department of Public Instruction, is sponsoring a regional parent conference on Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Northeast Regional Center in Williamston.
 This conference is for the Ayden-Grifton area.
 Parents are invited to learn about services directly available for their handicapped children and to share concerns with local educators and other service providers.
 Panel discussions and small group sessions will focus on (1) provisions of new state and federal laws affecting programs for the handicapped, (2) regional and community resources, and (3) the importance of family involvement in the education of the handicapped.
 For additional information, contact Ayden-Grifton High School Guidance Department, Mrs. Sue Noble, Counselor.

Seek Organize Reading Aides

The Lutheran Church Women of Our Redeemer are interested in sponsoring a Volunteer Reading Aides program in Greenville.
 They plan to start the workshop in January and need a nucleus of at least 15 people willing to complete the 10-hour workshop and tutor for at least one year.
 Dates and place of meeting will be decided in the future. Persons interested in the program are asked to contact Mrs. Jackie Berbert, 756-5593, after 5 p.m.

$50,000 GIFT
MURFREESBORO, N.C. — Chowan College has received a gift of $50,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown of Murfreesboro to help the college provide its students with a new gymnasium-physical education center. It helps bring the total received for the project in pledges and gifts to over $634,000.

New Assembly Chairperson

Dr. Nancy Mayberry was elected chairperson of the Coastal District Assembly at the Coastal District Assembly meeting of the North Carolina Unit of the Lutheran Church Women.
 The meeting was held Saturday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wilmington.
 Dr. Mayberry is a professor of foreign languages at ECU. She is married to Dr. Robert Mayberry and they have two children. She is a member of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church and is a past president of the Church Council of Our Redeemer.

Will Conclude Services Sunday

General Bishop W.L. Jones, officials, and members of Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church will close out the anniversary services for Bishop Stephen Jones, pastor of Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church, Ayden, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.
 Music will be provided by the combined adult choirs, and ushers from both churches will serve.
 Thursday, Choir No. 5 will have rehearsal at 7:30 p.m. Weekly prayer meeting will be that night at 7:30 also.

Age Barrier Is Shattered By Comedian

By William P. Moore
United Press International
Steve Martin struts boldly onto the stage of Pittsburgh's lavish Heinz Hall, takes a cursory glance at the ornate surroundings, and asks, "When are they going to get me out of these toilets?"

It is such a ludicrous complaint that the audience roars, and they continue to laugh for two hours at the comedian's abuses and insults. Martin, 32, is quickly amassing a cult following too large to call a cult. He is booked in 50 cities, playing the better halls.

In addition, he is the only person to have hosted NBC's popular Saturday Night Live three times, and has sat in for Johnny Carson on the Tonight Show more than 30 times.

"How much to get in?", he asks the Pittsburgh audience. They reply, "Eight dollars," and Martin lets out a conniving laugh.

No matter, the audience seems satisfied with the California native's brand of brash, often shocking humor.

"Hello, and welcome to the show. My name is Steve Martin and we'll be starting in just a few moments. Just waiting for the drugs to take effect."

That type of joke is common with college audiences, but Martin's following is breaking age barriers. The visual part of the act is equally unorthodox, mostly Martin jumping from the stage, contorting wildly, or stealing items from his audience.

Prematurely gray, well-dressed and handsome, Martin could look quite distinguished if it weren't for the rabbit ears and fake nose he wears through much of the act.

His onstage character is the obnoxious, self-enamored, loud type of person you might meet in a singles bar, and his jokes are often just silly.

"Another comedian will do anything to get a laugh," Martin explained between shows. "But, in my act I think it is abstracted back to the point where the idea of someone doing anything for a laugh is funny, not the action. That's the way I like it."

He claims he is not being facetious when he says he has wanted to be a comedian since he was "very small," which is both a cliché, and a reference to one of the more popular routines on his new album "Let's Get Small."

Martin's agent, Marty Klein, first met him in 1966 at the Pasadena, Calif., Ice House where he was doing comedy and making balloon animals. Until his recent rise to popularity, Martin worked as a lead-in for small rock acts and wrote for television, most notably the old Smothers Brothers Show.

Martin's current tour began Sept. 14 and his popularity was best illustrated in Pittsburgh where a second show had to be scheduled after the original was sold out within a matter of days.

His humor has the admirable quality of appearing spontaneous. Even when he runs through a familiar routine, he fills it with freshness and surprise.

"Some of it is ad-lib, some isn't," he said, but those around him say new material crops up each night. Some jokes stay, some are used just once.

It is his delivery — he acts as if it is all just occurring to him — that makes a joke like this one, which he uses often, seem impromptu.

"People ask me 'Steve, doesn't it get kinda tough on you traveling around night after night, staying in a different hotel every night when you don't know anybody?'"

"Well, I've kind of worked that out. I came into town early this morning, bought a house, met a cute gal, got married, had a little baby, and another one's on the way. Tomorrow, I'll wake up, have a home-cooked meal, sell the house, get a divorce."

COME GROW WITH US

Your flair for dealing with people and your self-starter abilities can pave the way to management opportunities and a remarkable salary in one of America's largest and most dynamic growth industries.

We need a person who relates well to all people, a college graduate or with a strong successful sales or business background. He must take pride in his professionalism, realize that better salaries are a direct result of better work. Sales experience preferred, but not necessary.

We have a total training program, so are more interested in work habits and character than in experience in our particular field. To the right person we can offer a salary of up to $600 per month while training. Last year our sales force averaged $15,125 per person.

INVESTMENTS
You have your own doctor.
You have your own banker.
You have your own accountant.
You should have your own Realtor.
A good Realtor can earn you thousands of dollars by informing you of investments available in your area. If you are looking for a particular investment chances are, I just sold it. However, I will be working 24 hours a day searching for the right investment opportunity to suit your specific needs. Presently I have excellent income properties that provide good tax shelter. Let me show you what I have. You will be glad you did.
Buying or selling — Remember: When you think REAL ESTATE, think CHARLIE SPEIGHT.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Get At Causes of No Sleep

I have insomnia. I've tried everything to get a decent night's sleep. Sleeping pills and tranquilizers leave me fatigued in the morning and "dopey" all day. Many of my friends complain of insomnia, too. I've tried their pills. They're no better than mine. What can I do about this? Don't tell me to try the warm milk routine. I've been through that, too. — Miss R. L., Pa.

Dear Miss L.:

Doctors are constantly being bombarded with the complaint of insomnia.

"I can't sleep a wink." "I never close my eyes." "I don't fall asleep until the sun comes up." These are all familiar comments, usually coming from people who look remarkably healthy and fresh. More often than not, they've had far more sleep than they think.

Many people take it as a personal insult if they don't fall asleep as soon as their heads hit the pillow. The slightest delay increases their anxiety and they make a beeline for the barbiturates, the tranquilizers, the antihistamines and any other pill that's on the "trial run" list.

The hectic pace of today's living, with its pressures and deadlines, puts the body and mind on a treadmill of activity which does not always lend itself to the kind of relaxation that can induce sleep.

The fixed idea that a certain number of hours of sleep is essential can produce anxiety about the urgency for sleep. Actually, there is wide variation in the number of hours of sleep that is compatible with good health. For some people, five hours of sleep is sufficient. For others, even eight hours are barely enough to mobilize muscles to meet the oncoming challenge of a new day. It should be remembered, too, that sleep patterns change from decade to decade. One's need at 21 is different from one's need at 60.

There are no easy answers to insomnia, but some causes must be considered. Over-fatigue, heavy dinners, inadequate ventilation in the room or poor temperature regulation can interfere with sleep.

Stimulating drugs, even ordinary nose drops, thyroid tablets, diet pills and other drugs can affect sleep. Coffee can be a threat to sleep. Many people find tea just as stimulating. Others find sleep difficult after overindulgence in tobacco and alcohol.

Sleeping pills and tranquilizers are not the answer. They do not solve the problem of insomnia. Dependence on them gets progressively more marked, and while you're taking them, there is total neglect of the real causes responsible for your insomnia.

In the absence of any basic physical illness, other avenues must be pursued. The art of leisure and relaxation is not always easy to acquire. There are an infinite number of old and new techniques that can induce pre-sleep relaxation. These include meditation, self-hypnosis and bio-feedback, all available under supervision.

Psychological guidance very often can give one a better insight into the reasons for the inner turbulence that interferes with sleep.

Heart Aid In An Assistant

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — A new little "assistant heart" is helping carry patients safely through open-heart operations.

It pulses extra blood back to the heart, brain and kidneys when patients are hooked up to heart-lung machines before, during or after major heart surgery, says Dr. Martin J. Kaplitt of North Shore University Hospital, who invented the device.

The pulsating device permits surgery on some heart patients so gravely ill they would not otherwise be considered good risks, he adds.

Among 100 consecutive patients operated on at North Shore for coronary by-pass and valve-repair surgery with the new pump, four died, he said.

"In a similar category of patients, prior to the new pump, we would have expected at least a 10 percent mortality," says Dr. Kaplitt, chief of the division of thoracic and cardiovascular surgery.

Normally, heart-lung machines take over the heart's job of pumping blood. Blood is diverted from the heart into the machine, where it receives oxygen, and then is sent back to the body through a main artery. The hollow heart chambers are empty of blood and can be opened for valve repair, or the heart can be stopped to bypass clogged arteries with a vein graft.

Heart-lung machines, however, don't pulse blood back into the body. The new device pulses blood for a better supply to the heart, brain, and kidneys, Dr. Kaplitt explains.

The new pulsator is an inexpensive, disposable device made by enlarging a 10-inch section of the standard plastic tubing used in the artery line coming from the heart-lung machine. It is formed into a thin-walled, cylindrical bubble. This is encased in a rigid plastic housing forming a sealed space around the bubble.

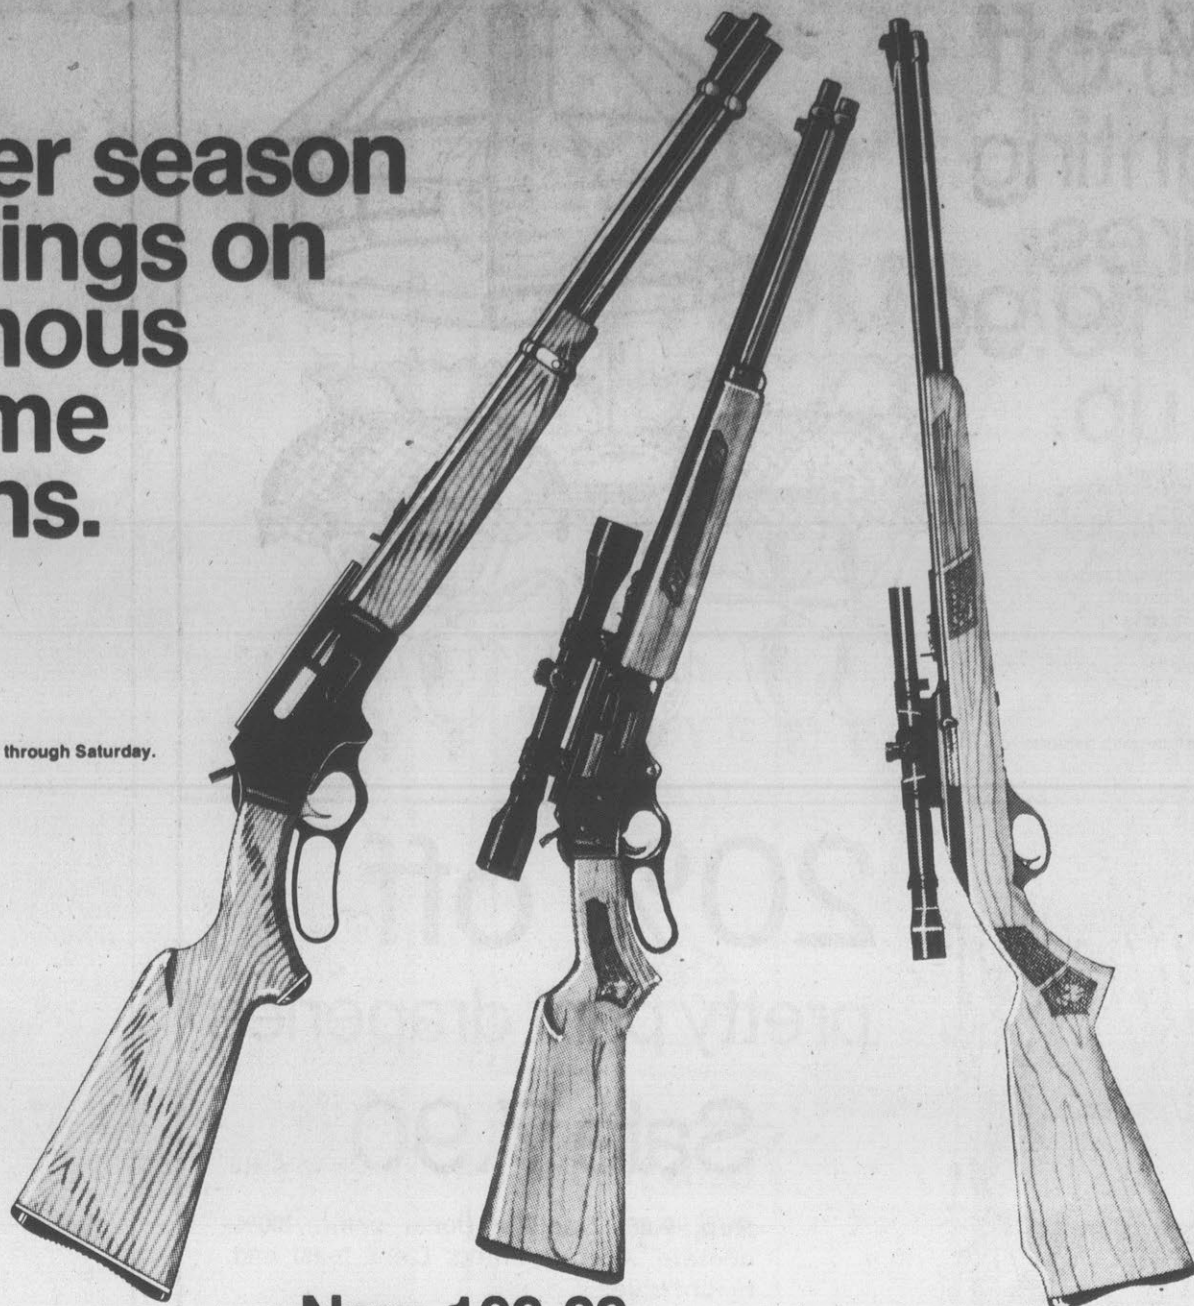

Compressed air is pulsed in and out of the housing to intermittently squeeze the bubble, thus producing pulses of blood flowing into the patient's artery.

A similar device has been developed by Dr. David Bregman of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York.

Sociologist Says Farmer Really Loves His Work

By CAROLYN A. LESH
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sociologists say he most often is in his early 50s, a little wary of outsiders and desperate to hold on to what generally is a low-paying job with long hours.

His profession was determined at birth. He is part businessman, part financier, part gambler. But he is best known by the title farmer.

"The farmer doesn't separate work and leisure as much as people in town," said William Heffernan, a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri-Columbia. "He may spend an entire Sunday afternoon working on a show cow. Now someone else may think that's work. But that farmer may not want to be doing anything else in the world. He's the kind of person who really loves his work."

Heffernan, who operates a 40-acre farm in addition to his teaching job, called farming a contagious profession with an extremely low job turnover.

"Farmers like being their own boss, being close to nature and carrying out a family tradition," the professor said. "There has to be other reasons than money, especially when you consider the amount of capital they invest and what they get back."

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures for last year show the realized net income per farm was $7,885 with the average acreage at 393 acres. Dr. Norman V. Whitehair, director of the extension Division at Kansas State University in Manhattan, estimates a typical farmer works 2,500 hundred hours a year — 500 hours longer than someone who puts in 40 hours a week for 50 weeks a year.

Agriculture officials estimate it would cost anywhere between $500,000 and $1 million to set up an average-size farm today — making the business almost prohibitive for anyone not born into a farm family.

"The high cost is keeping out a lot of young men who want to go into farming," said Dr. Jan Flora, a rural sociologist at Kansas State. "What's going to happen, I think, is that there's going to be a method devised where farmers don't really own their land."

Flora said one possibility would be the government owning the land and then leasing it to farmers. "We're beginning to see the demise of the family farm in the sense of the farm being wholly owned by the family who works it."

Both Flora and Heffernan said farmers hold close ties to their churches and tend to think big labor and government have too much power. The two professors also believe farmers generally are closer to their families and neighbors than urbanites.

"I think it has a lot to do simply with the fact that there's less geographic movement," Flora said. "The people who live in rural areas have lived there for a long time." But the closeness among family and friends apparently makes it harder for farmers to accept people with different lifestyles or backgrounds.

"I've been looking at some national surveys and I don't exactly understand why it's true, but rural people in general seem to be less accepting of people who are different than them — in terms of such things as interracial marriages or whether they would vote for a black or a Jew for president," Flora said. "I suppose that comes back to the issue of tight-knit communities."

Flora and Heffernan disagreed on the basic nature of farmers.

"They're optimistic," said Heffernan. "They're always thinking 'things will always get better.' They'll be out there year after year planting a crop and hoping for better prices and weather."

"They're pessimistic about everything in general," Flora said. "I don't claim this is a scientific finding, but I think being so affected by the weather makes them that way."

But most farm experts agree that the image of the farmer wearing bib overalls and a straw hat and saying aw-shucks is a myth today.

"Farmers today are businessmen who have to have a vast knowledge in things such as herbicides, pesticides, marketing and high finance," said John Junior Armstrong, head of the Kansas Farm Bureau. "He's just like his city cousin now. If you put them together, you wouldn't be able to tell them apart."

Rural communities, however, still lack some of advantages of metropolitan areas.

"One of the biggest problems is the shortage of doctors in rural areas," said Flora.

But there is cleaner air, more open space and less crime. And there are still people who do not lock their doors at night.

"I remember when a retired attorney from Washington bought a farm out here," said Heffernan. "The first night in the house he went to lock the doors and found out there were no locks. That kind of shook up someone coming from Washington, D.C."

Bonnie Franklin Knows The Role

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some say redheads have a little fire to match the flaming tresses. Bonnie Franklin is like that.

At the moment she is sitting on the sofa in the living room of her Beverly Hills apartment. Her bare feet are tucked beneath her and her Yorkshire, Jobie, is yapping beside her. She wears jeans and a navy sweater.

That Thursday, the day before taping "One Day at a Time" for CBS, she got into her car after rehearsal and screamed at the top of her lungs.

"Then I cried for 20 minutes," she recalls. "If you'd asked me about the show then I would have said I hoped it went down the toilet. I've since changed my mind. I have to remember it's only a situation comedy and I have to stop taking these things too personally."

She had battled for three days that week with the producers over a script in which she, as Ann Romano, a divorcee with two teen-age daughters, goes through a mid-life crisis.

"Ann wakes up on her 36th birthday and is angry and upset. She fears that life is passing her by and there's nothing left. It's something I've gone through and I'm only 33."

"Five middle-aged men were telling me I didn't understand the story, that I didn't know what I was talking about. The script, written by two women, got castrated because they wanted to go for the laughs instead of playing it for reality."

"I think what happened was a fear of something too heavy, that the audience wouldn't laugh."

"One Day at a Time" was born in controversy two years ago and it has dogged its trail. It was created by Allan Manings and his wife, actress Whitney Blake, and brought to life by television titan Norman Lear, whose trademark is provocative themes in the midst of slapstick comedy.

"In our first 15 shows we had eight directors and four producers," Bonnie says. Among the casualties was Manings. "Allan said if we were doing something dramatic, let the drama take it. It's best when you're laughing and crying at the same time."

Bonnie said, "They worry that the laughs won't be there. The trust should be that the laughs will be there. The show was so well written. Neil Simon says comedy comes from pain."

The Tuesday night series, which also stars Mackenzie Phillips, Pat Harrington and Valerie Bertinelli, hit the top 10 regularly last year. But this season it's facing stiff competition from ABC's sex opera, "Soap."

"One Day at a Time" finally pulled ahead of "Soap" by a whisker in the fourth week of the season.

Producing New Pyracanthas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two new varieties of pyracantha developed at the National Arboretum here are being introduced to wholesalers this winter.

One is a dwarf with luminescent red-orange fruit. The other, columnar with yellow fruit, is good for hedges, says Donald R. Egolf, resident horticulturist at the arboretum.

Egolf said both new varieties are multiple disease resistant. Most people think of the shiny pyracantha, or firethorn, berries as solely decorative. They are in the apple family and can be used to make jelly, Egolf said, adding:

"If I had access to crabapples, I certainly wouldn't go to pyracantha for food. You don't get much pulp from the tiny varieties."

Egolf warned against using berries from any plants that have been sprayed with pesticides. He said pyracantha often is sprayed for aphid control.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good time to get into whatever problems face you. Listen to your intuition which is quite accurate now in giving you correct answers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Set aside some time for meditation and to restore your energies. You'll be newly inspired and know better what should be done in the future. Later confer with associates on how to improve future operations.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look to loyal friends for the assistance you need at this time, even if it is only good advice. Attend worthwhile social affairs.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to consider your true position in the outside world and know how to better it. Look to trusted advisers for the help you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have excellent ideas that should be put in operation without delay. Try to find new allies who can be of help to you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to have more harmony around you, especially with a loved one. Pay important bills. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to come to a better understanding with partners and have more harmony and success in the future. Gain more good will with the public.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to become more efficient at daily tasks and put more beauty into it also. Talk with co-workers and come to a better understanding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Arrange recreations for spare time now and for some time in the future. Show more devotion to loved ones. Get chores out of the way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Apply a little more effort and improve conditions at home appreciably.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contacting persons to whom you can be helpful and vice versa is wise today. Handle business matters wisely also. Stop worrying about impossible things.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study money matters that should give you a chance to advance and give them your special attention. Get advice from an expert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show more affection for close ties and good friends. Ideal time for socializing after work is done.

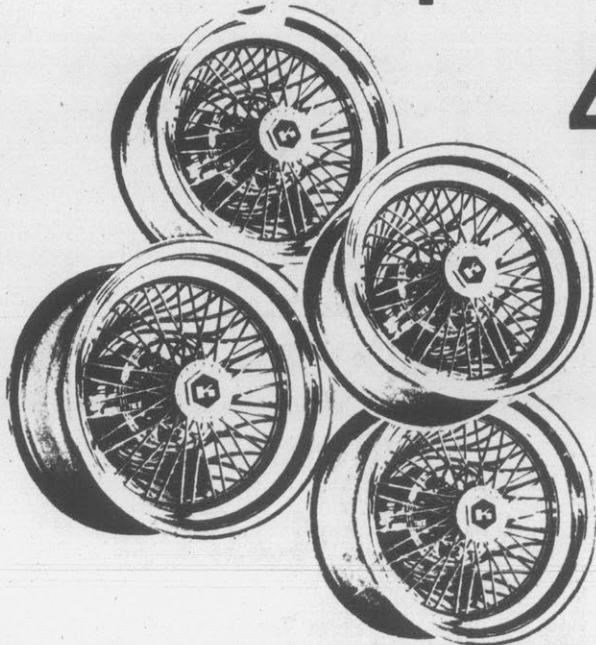

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able literally to read other persons' thoughts and can therefore communicate well with others and much can be accomplished throughout the lifetime. Don't neglect healthful sports.

Milan Fights Pigeon Problem By Giving Them Itchy Feet

By PIERO VALSECCHI
MILAN, Italy (AP) — City officials think they may have found a formula for ridding the artistic downtown area of pigeons.

After experiments with contraceptives, bans on tourists' feeding the birds, and attempts to capture and transfer them elsewhere, the experts have come up with a chemical that gives the pigeons itchy feet. A recent test of the British-made product "Scarecrow" on the cornices and eaves of Milan's Merchant Palace forced the pigeons to fly to other roosts in the city.

Municipal experts said a battle has been won, but several months more will be needed to extend the chemical campaign to other sections and prove its effectiveness. Even then, they say, other control methods will have to be combined with the itchy feet.

The Merchant Palace is an artistic building a few yards from the Gothic Cathedral Square. It and other monuments and buildings in the city have been subject to corrosion from the droppings of the pigeons.

The number of pigeons in Milan is estimated at 300,000 to 400,000, or one for every four inhabitants, a level termed intolerable by city officials both for the monuments and for the health of the people.

Professor Giorgio Persiani, head of the municipal veterinarian office, said short-term effects of "Scarecrow" proved good.

"Pigeons kept away from the Merchant Palace after the experiment with 'Scarecrow.' If it also works in the longer term, we would extend painting the chemicals to all municipal buildings and artistic monuments," he said.

He said a German-made contraceptive for birds, to be given once a year, and massive capture of birds and their transfer to distant areas, would be compulsory and parallel choices.

"The German product is especially good for reducing the number of the city pigeons as it can be given once a year, while previous contraceptives were needed every month, mixed with seed," the professor explained.

As far as transfer of pigeons was concerned, the professor recalled that authorities of a natural park south of Rome had announced its availability for housing pigeons expelled from the cities.

The pigeon problem is not in fact limited to Milan, but also involves the municipalities of Venice and Siena where pigeons are a major attraction for tourists and at the same time a major threat to the monuments.

Prof. Persiani said even zoologists have by now realized the need to reduce the number of city pigeons, although they prefer "peaceful" means.

"First for health reasons, and second for the expense of repairing and cleaning monuments."

Despite the many tricks used for dislodging the pigeons, the wars against them always turned out harder than expected.

"It is because pigeons are astute birds, often quickly developing counter-moves," the professor said.

The unsuccessful attempt of the Siena municipality to capture pigeons through nets was a major amusement for tourists months ago.

Old Vaudeville Star, 93, Can Still Perform

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — The front-half of one of vaudeville's most famous comedy teams is alive and well — and at the age of 93 is looking forward to seeing his contribution to a public television series during the fall season.

When Joe Smith — the Smith and Dale duo — watches "The Best of Families," an eight-part dramatic series, he'll have the satisfaction of viewing his own description of how Tony Pastor's Vaudeville House looked near the turn of the century.

The series dramatizes life in New York City between 1880 and 1900 through the vicissitudes of three fictional families, one of whom becomes involved with impresario Pastor.

There were no written descriptions nor pictures of the theater available, but Smith, with remarkable clarity and almost total recall, was able to supply the TV producers with every detail they needed including recollections of scenes, sets and skits from the Pastor House where he had actually performed.

Smith was located and interviewed by researcher Nancy Underhill of CTW, producers of the new prime-time series.

Sitting in his modern, comfortable room in the Actor's Fund Home here, wearing tan slacks, a gold cardigan and a small bandanna at the neck, surrounded by memorabilia, the veteran vaudevillian recalled his first meeting with Dale some 80 years ago on New York's Lower East Side.

"We were both on bicycles," says the former Joe Seltzer. "I was going north on Irving Street and he was going west on Delancey Street and we banged into each other. We were furious with each other and argued all the way back to the bike store. The bike store owner said we sounded like Weber and Fields — a then-famous comedy team — and suggested we get to know each other. He introduced us — Joe Seltzer meet Charlie Marks — then lent us a tandem bike so we could go out and get better acquainted."

The 14-year-old Seltzer and the 16-year-old Marks — both high-school dropouts who were working full time — found they had much in common. "We both liked to sing and dance and we both liked the theater, and we only lived a block away from each other."

As to how they became Smith and Dale: "A printer had a cancelled order of cards that said 'Smith and Dale — Black-face Singing and Dancing Comedians.' My brother got a bargain on them — 100 cards for a quarter. He gave them to us and said, 'Now you're Smith and Dale.' And that became our name.

"We had this school act," Smith remembers. "It was a very knockabout act, very slapstick — a lot of hitting and shooting spitballs at the teacher. I think we used the first commercial in our school act. The teacher would say, 'Name the two principal oceans of the world,' and I would say, 'The Atlantic and Pacific,' and he would say, 'No, that's a tea company.' One night a man came backstage and said he was from the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. I became very apologetic and said I wouldn't use the name any more, and he said he liked us to use the name and he would pay us $25 a week to keep on using it.

"I thought maybe I could get a couple more companies to pay us, so we put in another line. The teacher would ask me to use the word deliver in a sentence and I answered, 'Carter's pills are good for de-liver.' I sent it to the Carter's people but they weren't interested.

"Our famous Doctor Cronkite act — in 'The Sunshine Boys' Neil Simon based his doctor act on ours — came about through some improvisations right on stage. Charlie played the doctor and I was a patient. Most nights I'd say, 'Doctor, here I am,' and he'd say, 'Continue on the same medicine.' But one night he fooled me and said, 'What's the trouble with you?' I didn't know what to answer, so I said, 'I don't know. Everytime I eat a heavy meal, I don't feel so hungry afterward.' "Then we kept on improvising until we had a long act. We ended up adding an intern and a nurse to the act. In fact, the last thing Charlie and I did before our retirement in 1967 was the Doctor Cronkite act on a Barbra Streisand TV special. Barbra played the nurse."

Smith said that although Neil Simon's inspiration for "The Sunshine Boys" was Smith and Dale, there's very little in the show with which he identifies.

Smith and Dale worked as a team for 70 years, not only in vaudeville but in theater, radio, films and television.

A few years ago, Terry McGrath, a music teacher from the Hackensack High School, asked Smith to talk to his students about vaudeville.

"I spoke to them about an hour and a half," he says, "and it was so successful that Terry took me to other high schools to lecture. Then he and I started doing some of the routines for the students — Schnaaps and Streudel, the Consultant, and we even did Dr. Cronkite — Terry was good, too."

Smith pulled out a leather-covered binder and opened it to reveal a high school diploma. "In 1971," he said proudly, "I was given an honorary diploma from the Hackensack High School. I'm an alumnus of the class of '71 — a high school graduate at 87."

Nineteen seventy-one was also the year that Charlie Dale "passed away." "I visit the cemetery every year, and there's a plot next to him where I'll be buried. The headstone says 'Smith and Dale.' I wanted it to say 'Smith and Dale — Booked Solid,' but I was talked out of it."

Government Spending Overshadowed GNP

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION

Real Gross National Product increased at a 3.8 percent annual rate in the third quarter, noticeably slower than the 6.1 percent annual rate in the second quarter. Inventory accumulation slowed, as did real final sales growth. A closer look at certain components of GNP reveals that slower growth in consumer sectors was offset largely by higher levels of government spending.

The consumer sector posted its second consecutive quarter of mediocre growth, with real consumer outlays up only 1.8 percent on an annualized basis. Nondurable spending declined at 1.1 percent annual rate in the third quarter, with apparel spending the only increase. Spending on durable goods declined at a 4.3 percent annualized rate, with housing related spending the only strong spot. Spending for furniture and other household durables increased at a 6 percent real annual rate, and spending for household operation services rose at a 24.7 percent annual rate in the third quarter.

Real disposable income rose at a 2.9 percent annual rate in the third quarter, compared to a 7.3 percent gain in the second quarter (which was affected by lower withholding rates). The savings rate continued to rise, up 5.5 percent in the quarter compared with a low 4.1 percent in the first quarter of the year. Personal income was up on a year-to-year basis for the first time since March.

Real spending on non-residential buildings increased at a 5.3 percent annual rate in the third quarter, compared to a 13.6 percent gain in the second period. Equipment outlays were up 4.1 percent annualized. The manufacturing and trade inventory-to-sales ratio remains conservative by historic standards.

Government spending accounted for much of the increase in aggregate GNP during the third quarter. Federal spending was up 19 percent, and state and local spending rose at a 6.1 percent annualized rate.

Housing starts exceeded two million in September, a 15 percent year-to-year increase. Year-to-year gains in starts and permits continue to slow, indicating that housing starts could be peaking in the two million a year range.

Looking ahead at consumer spending, increased personal income and higher levels of employment should produce a relatively decent Christmas season. A slowing in the rate of personal income growth and higher debt burdens should result in a slowdown in real consumer spending next year.

Manufacturing and trade sectors should benefit from inventory build-ups for the Christmas season. Capacity utilization and operating rates are rising and should support continued moderate growth in spending for non-residential fixed investment outlays in 1978. Greater relative gains are likely to remain in the area of equipment outlays.

Government spending should continue to increase at a relatively high rate over the next several quarters, enough to prevent negative GNP figures. Housing starts are expected to decline in 1978, but remain at a relatively high 1.8-1.9 million starts.

Altogether, this recovery is average by historic standards. Fourth quarter Gross National Product is expected to increase at a 5 percent annual rate. The slowest growth next year will probably occur in the second and third quarters, at which time some tax relief, for both individuals and business, is possible.

Old Yarns Kept On Film, Tapes

By MARIAN FOX, Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

After 71 years swapping horses and mules, Ray Lum is dead. But on tape and film the crusty old trader still spins yarns for the credit card generation of the world he knew.

"We spent six years recording Ray Lum before he died last December," Judy Peiser said. She's co-director of the Center for Southern Folklore, a cultural outpost under siege by the 20th century. "We recorded about 300 of his stories on life in the wild and woolly West and Mississippi Delta."

Through her work and that of co-director Bill Ferris, Ray Lum lives. He's a movie, an essay, a record, four tapes and a book; 85 years of stories about people and animals met crisscrossing the country.

There was "Little Eatum," the crazed horse he clobbered with a two-by-four. There were the 80,000 horses he bought in Laplant, S.D., where the manure was so abundant "you could walk for 20 miles and never get off it." And there was the tall, no-good horse whose owner couldn't drown him because no river was deep enough.

The center began work in 1972 when Ms. Peiser, 32, a free-lance filmmaker, met Ferris, who was doing research in the Delta for his doctorate. Ferris, 35, of Vicksburg, Miss., teaches folklore at Yale.

For three years, the center was in Judy Peiser's filmstrip-festooned bedroom. Then came a Rockefeller Foundation grant for three films, one on Lum.

Awards and more grants followed, permitting a move to an old house where Lum's string tie and Stetson and Pecolw Warner's quilts hang on the walls, and James "Son Ford" Thomas' clay birds line the mantle.

There are 15 employees splicing tapes, editing films, transcribing records, assembling slide-shows and writing essays and books. The 11 films produced folk music, traditions, crafts and religion record history as no book can.

"We let the people in the films speak for themselves, like their own living document. No narrator comes on the screen and says, 'Here we are.'"

The center's films are sold and rented. More than two million people have seen them.

The first showing of the Lum film was in the subject's hometown. Opening night in Vicksburg for "Ray Lum: Mule Trader" was cold and wet.

"I doubted anyone would show up, but when I checked, the theater was packed. Everyone who had ever traded with Mr. Lum or who had been out-traded by him was there. He was signing autographs. ... It was fantastic."

Ray Lum became a hometown folk hero. "Instead of seeing Mr. Lum as an eccentric old man, they saw how important he was," Ms. Peiser said. "And he could see it too."
