Sadat And Begin Pledge No-More-War

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Anwar Sadat ended his historic journey to Jerusalem today and flew off to Cairo after he and Israel's Prime Minister Menahem Begin pledged: "No more war."

"We've had enough — four wars in 30 years," said Sadat, who risked his political future and the unity of the Arab world to speak in the capital of his enemies.

Begin echoed the sentiment: "We have decided, no more war between our nations. We will establish peace and live in peace."

He then gave Sadat a gift of nine ancient candlesticks and said: "From time to time, have a glimpse of it and remember your friends in Israel."

Escorted by Israeli fighter jets, Sadat flew off for Cairo in his Boeing 707 at 4:14 p.m. (9:14 a.m. EST), seen off as he had been welcomed two days earlier by the entire Israeli cabinet and political elite.

At a final joint news conference with Begin earlier in the day, Sadat said there was now a "great need for hard and drastic decisions" by Israel.

"I have already taken my share of risk in my decision to come here," he said. He repeated that there could be no compromise on Arab demands for the return of all territory captured in 1967.

"This visit is a real success for both countries and for the cause of peace," Begin declared. He said he had agreed with Sadat that there would be "no more war, no more bloodshed, no more attacks and collaboration to avoid any event which may lead to such tragic developments."

The pomp and ceremony that accompanied Sadat's entire visit continued to the final moment at Ben-Gurion Airport.

Sadat stood at attention flanked by Israeli President Ephraim Katzir and Begin for the national anthems of Israel and Egypt and inspected an honor guard in a near-replica of his arrival 44 hours and 16 minutes earlier.

A 21-gun salute boomed across the airport, three trumpet fanfares were sounded. Bouquets of flowers lay at Sadat's feet. The huge pennant reading "Welcome President Sadat" in Hebrew, Arabic and English still hung across the terminal building.

Asked for a last comment on Israeli television, Sadat said: "Thanks for everything. Thanks for everything."

At the news conference, Begin said that the chief achievement of Sadat's visit was the start of a "serious direct dialogue ... not only between Israel and Egypt but with all the other states."

"The key word is continuation," said Begin. "We agreed we are going to continue our dialogue, and ultimately out of it will come peace."

Sadat said he was "deeply touched" by the emotional reception he received on the first public visit to Israel by an Arab leader. Begin called it a "momentous visit."

Sadat said the main aim of the two countries should be "no more war, whatever happens to us."

Israeli newsmen at the conference questioned both leaders repeatedly about Sadat's failure to extend to Begin the return invitation to Cairo Israel had expected. The prime minister said he understood why he hadn't been invited "at this stage," and Sadat said, "We have found we must postpone this issue for the future." Earlier today, Sadat told members of the Israeli parliament that Israel and the Arabs should agree on measures to provide "full security" for Israel and should also agree that the 1973 war "should be the last war."

Palestinians Vow Assassinate Sadat

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Anwar Sadat's address to the Israeli parliament was greeted with support from moderate Jordan, silence from Saudi Arabia, a Palestinian vow to assassinate him and calls by Syria and Libya for his overthrow.

In Cairo, the Egyptian president's supporters prepared to give him a hero's welcome home today. The secretary-general of Sadat's Center Party estimated that up to 3 million persons, including many brought in by bus, train and truck, would line the seven-mile route from the airport to the presidential mansion.

Activity in Beirut and other Middle East capitals virtually halted Sunday as Arabs clustered around radios to hear the broadcast of the first speech by an Arab leader to the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

Sadat offered to make peace with the Jewish state and recognized its right to exist, an unprecedented public concession, but reiterated Arab demands for the return of all occupied territories and for a homeland for uprooted Palestinians.

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, who spoke after Sadat, did not answer the demands specifically but repeated his position that "everything is negotiable" at a peace conference.

The Egyptian president's speech was "excellent because Sadat did not deviate from the Arab line," a Jordanian government source said. "He explained the Arab stand fully within a humanitarian framework, and this will bring new benefits."

The Saiqa Palestinian guerrillas, who are controlled by Syrian President Hafez Assad, charged Sadat with "the ugliest treason in the history of the Arab nation" and said: "The blood of the traitor must be shed. He must be followed to the farthest corners of the world until the death sentence is carried out."

A Syrian government statement broadcast by Damascus Radio called on "our brothers of Egypt ... to restore your national honor and dignity ... disgraced and besmirched by the visit (to Israel) of the traitor Sadat."

Libya, which broke diplomatic relations with Egypt because of Sadat's trip, urged "Egyptians in every town and village to rise, take arms and topple the traitor."

Iraq's Baghdad Radio said: "Sadat the traitor has recognized the Zionist entity through his speech."

Cairo newspapers hailed Sadat and one called him "the hero of peace," but the semi-official daily Al-Ahram criticized Begin for failing to "produce anything new on ... what concessions Israel is willing to offer for pushing the peace wheel in the Middle East."

Egyptians in the street also said they were disappointed at Begin's response.

"The hope which I attached to Sadat's visit is diminishing," said one.

"It seems it was not worth the trip," said another.

Birch Society Said Still Active In N.C.

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The ultra-conservative John Birch Society, though not as strident and visible as it has been in the past, is still active in North Carolina.

Robert Welch, founder of the society and a Chowan County native, underscored that point in a recent appearance to about 300 members of the organization in Rocky Mount.

Welch presented his standard talk on the conspiracy which society members believe has been working for two centuries to take control of the world.

Afterward, Birchers talked about efforts to win membership in North Carolina.

"After tonight, I think they will recognize us as John Birch territory," said Julian I. Galling Jr. "We're real proud of that."

"Rocky Mount is probably one of the strongest areas in the state," said H.T. Hicks of Waxhaw, North Carolina coordinator and the society's only full-time employee in the state.

Hicks estimated there are 2,000 or fewer Birchers in North Carolina. The society's national membership is between 60,000 and 100,000.

Its goal, Hicks said, is to win 1,000 members for each of the nation's congressional districts. "We're probably 20 to 25 percent toward that goal," he said.

At the news conference, Begin said that the chief achievement of Sadat's visit was the start of a "serious direct dialogue ... not only between Israel and Egypt but with all the other states."

"The key word is continuation," said Begin. "We agreed we are going to continue our dialogue, and ultimately out of it will come peace."

Devastating Toll In Wake Of Indian Cyclone, Floods

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A cyclone that battered coastal areas of eastern India for two days and killed at least 1,200 moved out to sea today. Some estimates put the death toll as high as 6,000.

The storm cut across the Bay of Bengal Saturday and hit Andhra Pradesh state, triggering flash floods and devastating high tides.

Communications were knocked out to the stricken area and only fragmentary reports reached the state capital at Hyderabad, 750 miles south of here. State officials estimated the death toll at 1,200, but politicians in the area reported to Prime Minister Morarji Desai that as many as 5,000 had died. The Indian national news agency, Samachar, said the death toll was more than 6,000.

Property and crop losses were put at more than $6 million and tens of thousands were homeless.

The cyclone lashed 42 towns and fishing villages with winds of 95 mph. The Guntur district southwest of Hyderabad was particularly hard hit. Thousands of dwellings were flattened and 628 persons reported killed.

Several villages in the state's Krishna coastal district were reported washed away by pounding tidal waves, Samachar said.

It quoted reports from the area as saying several thousand persons in the village of Divi Taluka may have perished.

Adequate warning of an approaching cyclone had been given, but many villages took no precautionary measures, a government statement said.

Fallen trees blocked roads and flooded halted rail service, hampering relief operations. Many areas remained under two four feet of water today. Air force helicopters were flying in food and medical supplies. Drinking water was scarce.

The weekend before a cyclone on southern Tamil Nadu state killed 407 persons.

A cyclone is the Indian Ocean equivalent of a hurricane.

Controllers Aver Over-Stress

ATLANTA (AP) — Air traffic controllers who say they are under too much stress picketed at Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport today, but no disruption of service was reported.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said any talks between the FAA and the controllers' union would be in Washington, but added there was "no meeting going on at all now" and did not know when one would be scheduled.

Barker said airport operations were "completely normal" since the picketing was for informational purposes.

A spokesman for the controllers said the pickets' purpose is only to "tell the public our side of the story," and not to inconvenience holiday travelers.

Although controllers across the country have been without a contract since July, David Seagle, vice president of the southern region of Professional Air Traffic Controllers, says there are no plans for a work slowdown.

Strikes and job actions by controllers are illegal, but slowdowns have occurred during past disputes with the FAA.

One of the issues still to be settled is the controllers' demand for shorter working hours.

They say they have to work "under extreme pressure without relief" in jobs that demand "nothing but perfection." They contend the FAA has refused to make a reasonable attempt to ease their "recurring exposure to stress."

FAA officials, however, point out that controllers get up to five weeks vacation a year after four years on the job, are allowed 13 days sick leave a year and can take part in a "second career program" if they become incapable of performing their jobs.

After five years, if a controller can no longer function because of illness or incompetence, he can receive up to two years re-training at full pay. They also are eligible for early retirement at age 50 if they have 20 years on the job.

The estimated $37,000 to $39,000 annual salary of controllers at Hartsfield is set by Congress and not a matter for negotiation.

FBI Revealing 53,000 Pages Of Old Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is spilling 53,000 pages of secrets about its efforts to harass civil rights groups and radical political organizations between 1956 and 1971.

The files, being made public in response to requests under the Freedom of Information Act, are expected to yield a harvest of fresh details about the widely criticized counter-intelligence programs, called Cointelpro in FBI lingo.

Although the bureau has turned over several thousand pages of Cointelpro files to various groups during the last five years, today's action represents the biggest single chunk of Cointelpro material the FBI has ever released.

But bureau officials said some files will be kept secret because they deal with national security and foreign intelligence matters.

In essence, Cointelpro was the FBI's "dirty tricks" operation. It was a campaign to wreak havoc among militants of the right and left by sending anonymous letters, attempting to get activists fired from their jobs, fostering dissension among political allies and spreading derogatory rumors about militant leaders.

The effort has been roundly denounced by dozens of congressional leaders and legal authorities, and few in the FBI attempt to defend it anymore.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley last year issued a public apology for the bureau's past "abuses of power," including some Cointelpro actions. Former Attorney General Edward Levi once said of the Cointelpro tricks, "All of them were foolish and some of them were outrageous."

A Justice Department report in 1974 called some Cointelpro practices "abhorrent in a free society."

Kelley and other FBI officials insist that no Cointelpro operations have been carried out since April 1971.

The operation began in 1956 when then-

Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered a campaign against the Communist Party U.S.A. In later years, other political dissidents became Cointelpro targets as Hoover perceived them to be threats to national security.

The Socialist Workers Party became a target in 1961, and the decade of the '60s saw the Ku Klux Klan, "black extremists" and the New Left targeted for FBI disruption.

Dr. Martin Luther King, the civil rights leader and Nobel Prize laureate, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference he headed until he was assassinated were subjected to perhaps the most vigorous FBI harassment.

Women Debate Implementing Houston Resolutions

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON, Texas (AP) — The National Women's Conference is ending its historic meeting by debating how to implement its far-reaching recommendations on equality, including federal aid for poor women's abortions and civil rights for lesbians.

The only one of 26 proposed resolutions that has not been adopted — calling for a Cabinet-level women's department — was held over for discussion today.

Many delegates opposed such an agency for fear it would lessen rather than increase women's power.

The other 25 resolutions were approved easily Sunday in a session that saw little conflict between conservatives and others at the conference.

Delegates endorsed proposals to end discrimination against homosexuals in housing, jobs, credit, public accommodations, the military and child custody cases.

"We must not oppress any part of our society or of womanhood," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, who said she spoke as "a homemaker and the mother of two children."

Betty Friedan, considered the mother of the modern feminist movement, admitted she had been wrong in crusading to keep lesbians out of the movement for years, calling lesbians "the lavender menace."

"This issue has been used to divide us too much," she told a hushed convention hall. "It has alienated many of us. As someone who grew up in Peoria, as someone who perhaps has loved men too well, I have had trouble with this issue."

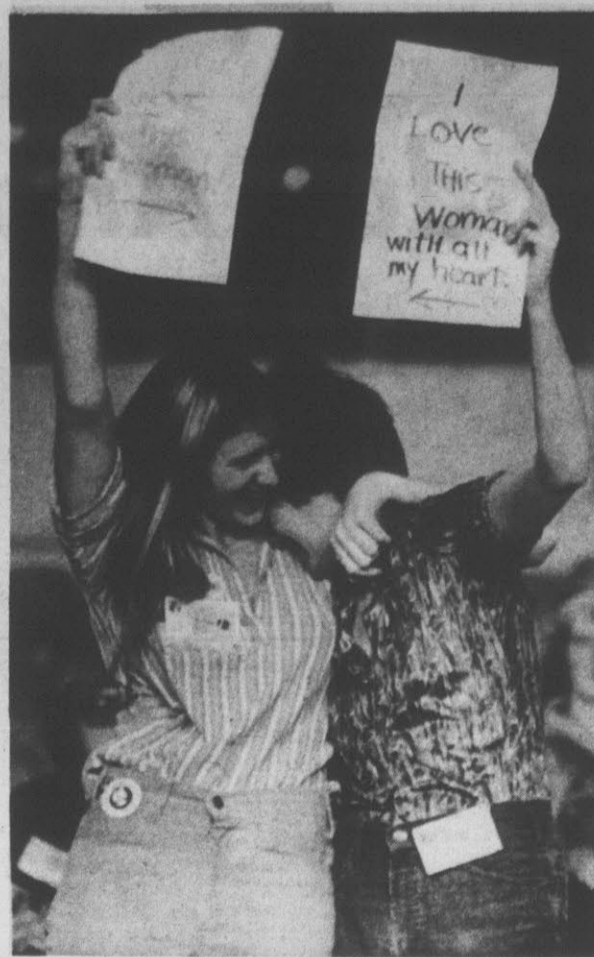

But, she said, "we have all been mistaken in our focus on this issue... I believe we must protect the women who are lesbians in their own civil rights."

The delegates and the thousands of observers roared their approval, many of them taken by surprise by Ms. Friedan's switch.

The opponents to the provision ranged from Dorris Holmes of Atlanta, head of Georgia's Equal Rights Amendment ratification council, who said "this issue has always been an albatross around the neck of the women's movement," to Kathryn Nelson of Maitland, Fla., who said, "It's against the law of God."

At the conference's third session Sunday, minority women scored a major coup by getting massive approval for a proposal on their concerns that was much more comprehensive and specific about the problems of minorities than the one originally put before the session.

Afterwards, black, Hispanic, Asian and Indian women said the adoption of their proposal meant that minorities would begin participating more freely in the women's movement.

Buildings Nominated

By The Associated Press
Seven North Carolina buildings have been approved for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

The approvals came last week from the professional review committee of the North Carolina Historical Commission.

The buildings are:
—White Oaks, the Charlotte mansion built in 1915 by tobacco millionaire James B. Duke.

—White Oak Plantation, a Mecklenburg County home built in 1792 and known historically as the William Johnston house.
—The Cape Fear lighthouse complex on Smith Island, built in 1903 on foundations and earlier portions dating from 1870 and 1796.

—The Graylyn estate in Winston-Salem, built in Norman Revival style between 1927 and 1932.

—The Poindexter houses in Winston-Salem, built in the 1880s.

—Shamrock Mills in Winston-Salem, built in 1911 and the first major structure of what became the Hanes Corp.

—St. James Episcopal Church in Kittrell, a Carpenter Gothic style structure in Vance County dating from 1878.

It will be about two months before the National Review decides whether to include the nominees.

If they are approved, the buildings gain the protection of certain laws against alteration or demolition and become eligible for federal historic preservation grants.

Alaska Tops List Of States' Tax Burden

CHICAGO (UPI) — Alaska replaced New York in fiscal 1976 at the top of the per capita state-local tax burden, with a high of $1,896. New York had topped the list for 10 straight years.

Fiscal 1976 saw Americans pay an average of $731 in taxes to state and local governments — a jump of $67 per person from the previous period, says a Commerce Clearing House report on the latest Census Bureau data.

Per capita state-local tax burdens in fiscal 1976 grew heavier in every state, but Arkansas retained the lowest figure, $454.

Property taxes in Alaska, CCH said, shot up to $400 million in fiscal 1976 from $76 million in fiscal 1975.

New York, in second place at $1,140, was the only other state to pass the $1,000 mark. California ($964) nosed out Hawaii ($935) and the District of Columbia ($924) for third place. Massachusetts ($903) was the only other state with a state-local per capita tax burden in excess of $900.

At the bottom of the scale, nine states had per capita state-local tax burdens under $550 — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The median state-local per capita tax burden was $671, a $59 jump from fiscal 1975. The fiscal 1976 median state was Maine.

Increases in state-local per capita tax burdens over those of fiscal 1975 ranged from a low of $8 in Indiana to a high of $1,054 in Alaska. Beside Alaska, four states had increases of $100 or more. Other than Indiana, no states had increases of $25 or less, said CCH, which added that in the previous period 13 states had increases of $25 or less.

Total state and local tax collections for fiscal 1976 amounted to $156.8 billion, up 10.9 percent from the prior period. CCH said the 1976 figures represent a jump of more than 100 percent from the revenue collected for fiscal 1969 — $76.71 billion.

California took the lead from New York by bringing $20.75 billion in tax revenues into its state and local government coffers. New York closely followed with $20.61 billion. Illinois nearly reached the $8.65 billion mark and Pennsylvania also topped the $8 billion plateau, bringing in $8.11 billion.

Thirty-four states currently comprise the "billionaires" club, consisting of states collecting at least $1 billion from state and local sources in taxes, CCH said.

ANITA BRYANT says the National Women's Conference in Houston is "pro-lesbian, pro-abortion and pro many other things that aren't representative of the thinking of most American women". (AP Laserphoto)

Union Pledges Stevens Fight

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — An effort by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union (ACTWU) to organize J.P. Stevens Co. plants will continue until all the company's 45,000 workers are unionized, an ACTWU official says.

Addressing a rally Sunday of 1,000 Stevens workers from 40 plants in six southern states, organizer Burt Beck said, "There's no time table for this. If they think we'll ever walk away from this anytime in the future, they're crazy. The only way we'll get out of this is when Stevens is completely organized."

Stevens employs from plants in the Carolinas, Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia attended the rally, kicking off a renewal of union organizing efforts at Stevens plants.

"The climate for organization has gotten a lot more acceptable," said Beck.

"There's a feeling that the unions are the only way to get any kind of social and economic justice from employers, especially those like J.P. Stevens, who take the law unto themselves."

An international consumer boycott of Stevens products has been initiated by the union, which has also filed suit accusing Stevens of conspiring with textile firms, public officials and other groups to keep unions out of the South.

Fewer than 10 per cent of southern textile workers are organized.

In its 15 years of trying to organize Stevens workers, the ACTWU has been successful in only seven plants, all in Roanoke Rapids, N.C. However, workers still do not have a contract.

"We're battling on behalf of not just the unorganized workers of J.P. Stevens, but also on behalf of the communities in which you live, in behalf of the South, in behalf of the unorganized workers in the textile and apparel industries who are also the victims of exploitation," ACTWU Secretary-Treasurer Jacob Sheinkman told the rally.

Much Earlier Thanksgivings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, the first Thanksgiving Day in North America was not the one held in 1621 at the Plymouth Colony in Massachusetts, according to Hallmark historian Sally Hopkins. Two earlier Thanksgivings were a 1578 celebration by English fishermen in Newfoundland and a 1607 observance at the Sir John Popham Colony on the Kennebec River in Maine, she reports.

Two Charged In Dorm Raid

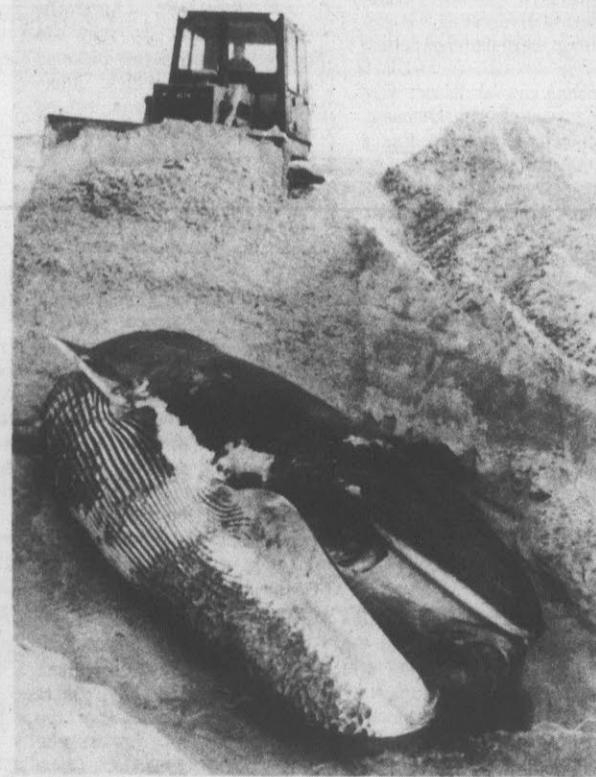

Two persons were arrested by Greenville Police early today at a dormitory on the East Carolina University campus and charged on drug possession counts.

According to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, officers arrested Deborah Jean Godwin, 19, of Crest Drive, Mount Olive, and Carl Melton Ober Jr., 22, of 102 Raleigh Avenue, at 904 Green Dorm and charged them with possession of MDMA.

Cannon said that officers, who confiscated two packets of material, pipes, seeds and papers, as well as a needle and syringe, charged Ober with possession of a needle and syringe.

Ober was also charged on campus with trespassing at the dormitory room and Godwin was cited for aiding and abetting in the trespassing.

First appearance hearings were scheduled for Nov. 22 in District Court here.

Arrest Trio For Break-In

Three persons were arrested Sunday by Greenville Police and charged in connection with a Saturday break-in at a local residence that resulted in the theft of a reported $2,050 in cash.

Chief Glenn Cannon said that officers arrested Floyd Timothy Hamilton, 17, of 1508 Mills Street, John Wayne Oakley, 19, Belvoir Highway, and Danny Ray Taylor, 19, of Rt. 8, Box 302, Greenville following investigation into the break-in at the home of Floyd Nichols, 706 Church Street.

Cannon reported that Hamilton and Oakley were each charged with breaking, entering and larceny at the Nichols residence while Taylor was charged with being an accessory after the fact of the alleged incidents. Bond was set at $500 for each person.

Nichols told investigating officers that he discovered two receipt books missing from his home and an envelope containing the money.

According to Cannon, officers recovered $1,647 and also the receipt books.

Improving The Busy Airport

A recent announcement by N.C. Secretary of Transportation Thomas W. Bradshaw, Jr. told of approval of major grant which will allow major improvements at Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Bradshaw's announcement said land acquisition, runway work, improved lighting and additional landing equipment are among the items that would be involved. There would also be an expansion of the terminal building from 2,500 to 3,000 square feet.

Total cost of the work would be $1,442,600. Of that amount $1,299,100 would be federal funds yet to be approved; $72,250 local funds and $72,500 state funds.

A comment in the announcement caught our eye. "As the third busiest general aviation airport in North Carolina and an important business airport, Pitt-Greenville proposes to undertake improvements to runway 7-25 in order to make it the primary runway on the airport," Will Plentl, DOT's, director of aeronautics said.

It is expected that 50 aircraft will be home-based at the airport by 1980 and it will handle 50,000 aircraft landings and takeoffs and 12,000 commuter passengers.

It seems that Pitt-Greenville Airport has become one of the state's busiest general aviation facilities. Certainly the planned improvements are in order.

Consumer Demands Raising The Prices

U. S. Agricultural officials can see food prices going up by six percent next year due to higher import, labor, packaging and transport costs and consumer demand for luxury services.

These costs are built in and unfortunately this doesn't show the farmer who grows the product necessarily receiving anything additional. As always the farmer has to take his chances at the market place. Maybe prices will go up; maybe not. The farmer takes the biggest risk in the food supply chain.

THIS AFTERNOON New Assembly Directions

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Now that North Carolina's governor can seek a second term in office, distinct changes in the General Assembly are sure to follow.

The goal will be to achieve a new balance of powers. Government as we know it is founded on checks and balances to make sure that no person or group gets too much power.

One of the strongest pitches for gubernatorial succession was the need for a governor to have more power. Given that power in the governor's office, it follows naturally that the legislative branch will respond.

cond two-year term as presiding officer.

Long Term
Such a break with tradition will pave the way for another speaker to seek—and likely win—an even longer tenure, based on the argument that only through continuity of leadership, long-range planning, and a more closely knit upper echelon in the House can the new-found powers of the governor be balanced.

The speaker names committee chairmen and committee member. Again, continuity, seniority, experience, and longevity will become significant factors.

State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, hopes to be the legislator who benefits from this new direction and is already securing commitments for 1981...and afterward.

Senators faced with increased powers of the governor, and with the prospect of a lieutenant governor serving eight years, will respond with adjustments. The lieutenant governor is president of the Senate, naming committee chairman and members, overseeing the flow of business, and presiding. A powerful clique has already tried to take away appointive powers, vesting that role in a "Committee on Committees" made up of senior members. Renewed interest in such a step is certain.

Given the possibility that two men will have the top state leadership jobs locked up for twice the time, some political hopefuls will see that their aspirations must be turned in another direction: top jobs in House and Senate, then, will become even more desirable.

Other lawmakers—those who differ with the governor or have a falling out—may determine their effectiveness is over and choose to drop out of politics.

A strong possibility exists that governors will begin to publicly identify legislators who are for their programs, or against them...thus getting involved in the local elections.

Change will not come as quickly nor dramatically as it did with voter approval of an amendment to the State Constitution earlier this month. Legislative adjustment will take years, and in many instances occur only as a reaction to the exercise of gubernatorial powers.

The first and most noticeable adjustment will occur in the House of Representatives. Speaker Carl J. Stewart, Jr., D-Gaston, apparently has the voters already locked up to win a second two-year term as presiding officer.

Such a break with tradition will pave the way for another speaker to seek—and likely win—an even longer tenure, based on the argument that only through continuity of leadership, long-range planning, and a more closely knit upper echelon in the House can the new-found powers of the governor be balanced.

The speaker names committee chairmen and committee member. Again, continuity, seniority, experience, and longevity will become significant factors.

State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, hopes to be the legislator who benefits from this new direction and is already securing commitments for 1981...and afterward.

Senators faced with increased powers of the governor, and with the prospect of a lieutenant governor serving eight years, will respond with adjustments. The lieutenant governor is president of the Senate, naming committee chairman and members, overseeing the flow of business, and presiding. A powerful clique has already tried to take away appointive powers, vesting that role in a "Committee on Committees" made up of senior members. Renewed interest in such a step is certain.

Given the possibility that two men will have the top state leadership jobs locked up for twice the time, some political hopefuls will see that their aspirations must be turned in another direction: top jobs in House and Senate, then, will become even more desirable.

Other lawmakers—those who differ with the governor or have a falling out—may determine their effectiveness is over and choose to drop out of politics.

A strong possibility exists that governors will begin to publicly identify legislators who are for their programs, or against them...thus getting involved in the local elections.

WASHINGTON TODAY

Mischief In Middle East

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Alarming indications are reaching Washington and European capitals that Soviet operatives may be undermining President Carter's Mideast peace plans even before the reconvening of the Geneva conference, a suspicion that has caused U.S. diplomats to put all Soviet actions in the Mideast under intense scrutiny.

U.S. officials here carefully withhold charges of sabotage on grounds that hard evidence is not available—at least not yet. But top European diplomats trying to promote Mr. Carter's Arab-Israeli settlement plans are less restrained.

Thus, an official European source regarded as impeccably informed told us that a major break in the attitude of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) toward Israel as a sovereign state was secretly vetoed by Soviet diplomats in Damascus.

According to this high-level European official, the governing body of the PLO (the executive committee) met in Damascus the first week in November and agreed on the following points:

- To issue a statement adopting language taken directly from President Carter's formal pronouncements about an Arab-Israeli settlement and from UN Resolution 242. The resolution (adopted after the 1967 six-day war) calls on Israel to withdraw from Arab territories and the Arabs to make real peace with a sovereign Israel.
- The Damascus statement, while not specifically mentioning Resolution 242, would have served to close the procedural gap between the PLO and the U.S. In effect, it would have proclaimed the PLO's readiness to recognize Israel's status as a permanent state, while saving a little face by not linking that recognition directly to Resolution 242.

But just before the PLO's statement was to be issued in Damascus, Soviet diplomats—according to our highly-informed European official—sabotaged it. The change toward the U.S. never occurred.

No statements of any kind were made. Only ten days later, a high PLO official suddenly announced that the PLO would cooperate with a reconvened Geneva conference—but only if invited to do so by the U.S. and the Soviet Union under terms of the U.S.-Soviet joint statement issued last Oct. 1.

That joint statement was attacked by Israel the moment it became public. In the U.S., supporters of Israel also were infuriated. Moreover, anti-Soviet hardliners with no special commitments to Israel were stunned at its implications: bringing Moscow squarely back into the Middle East after almost a decade of official U.S. policy designed to keep the Soviets as far away as possible.

The PLO official who disclosed his organization's latest policy gambit was attending the Arab League foreign ministers' meeting in Tunis. His formula for PLO cooperation in a newly reconvened Geneva peace conference would drastically complicate U.S. diplomacy and aid the Soviet Union.

It would embarrass President Carter by challenging him to get United Nations sanction for the joint U.S.-Soviet statement. Mr. Carter cannot disavow that joint statement because it is his own; but he cannot seek its adoption by the UN Security Council (as the PLO wants) without severe political reprisals here and in Israel.

Some well-informed U.S. officials question the depth of Soviet involvement in the PLO's unexpected switch from a strictly American policy in Damascus to a Soviet policy ten days later in Tunis. Their point: the PLO is no more controllable than a herd of wild horses, by the Kremlin or anybody else.

Strength For Today

CONFLICT AND SECURITY
Recently a group of veterinarians made a thorough examination of the health and strength of a group of animals in a game preserve, and then compared their findings with the result of a similar examination of wild animals outside the preserve. They found a much larger proportion of weak and unhealthy animals inside the preserve than outside.

The veterinarians conclude that the struggle for existence necessitated by the freedom of the range had made the untended animals strong. Conversely, the easy existence within the preserve had weakened many of the animals held there.

The same results of this test can be found in human life. On the whole, people who have to struggle for what they get develop stronger and more mature personalities than those who have everything handed to them on a silver platter. Carried to an extreme, struggle can of course be as debilitating as ease. But as carried on within the limits of our capacities, it is a constructive force in our lives.

Ingram Holds Back

By DAVID R. NELSON
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As he removed himself from the contest last week, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten predicted that Insurance Commissioner John Ingram will be elected to the U.S. Senate next year.

Ingram hasn't entered the race, but there's no question about his candidacy. His closest aides are saying quite frankly that Ingram will run and is holding back his announcement because it suits his strategy.

With just six months to go before the Democratic primary, it is unlikely that anyone now entering the race would have a serious chance of winning.

Six candidates are seeking Democratic nomination in the May primary. Jesse Helms is still unopposed in seeking renomination by the Republicans.

So far, Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr. has been considered the front runner, largely because he was the first to jump in. Also, his name is known statewide because his father was a governor who later served on President Kennedy's cabinet.

Suits Jam The Courts

WASHINGTON—Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell warned in a speech in San Francisco recently that an "explosion of lawsuits has plunged federal courts into a crisis that is already hurting the quality of justice people receive."

What he didn't say was that lawsuits were also overwhelming state, county and city courtrooms as well.

The reason is quite simple, and whether Mr. Bell can do anything about it is anyone's guess.

There was a time when a town had one or two lawyers who were very respected citizens, and you only went to see them when you were going to buy a piece of property or draw up a will.

But now practically everyone in the country has either a brother-in-law, a son, a niece or nephew who is a lawyer.

It stands to reason that they must be kept busy, and the business should, if possible, stay in the family.

Let me give you an example. Mrs. Givern has just arrived at her son's for Thanksgiving dinner. She is limping.

"Why are you limping, Mom?"

"I slipped on the ice in front of McGooley's Hardware Store."

Mrs. Givern's lawyer nephew hears this and takes out his yellow legal pad. "McGooley's Hardware Store. Why that's negligence of the highest order. We'll have to get you to a doctor right away so he can testify you suffered from extreme pain and loss of your right leg."

"It's the left leg," Mrs. Givern says, "and I feel fine. I don't want to go to a doctor. I just want to have my Thanksgiving dinner."

"But you've got to go to the doctor. His testimony will be very important in the lawsuit."

"I don't want to sue Mr. McGooley. He's a nice man."

"We're not going to sue Mr. McGooley. We're going to sue his insurance company. McGooley has to be insured."

"But won't we get Mr. McGooley into trouble?"

"We'll have to prove McGooley was negligent in not cleaning off the ice."

"On Thanksgiving Day?"

"That's McGooley's problem. Listen, Charley Efrom is McGooley's insurance company's lawyer. I'll call him now."

"I feel fine," Mrs. Givern protests.

The nephew dials the phone number. "Charley, I think I've got a good one for us. My aunt just slipped on the ice in front of McGooley's Hardware Store. We won't settle for less than $25,000... That's what I thought you'd say. Well, we're going to demand a jury trial. It could tie up both of us for months... I knew you wouldn't mind being bothered on Thanksgiving Day to hear the good news."

"Is Charley mad at me?" Mrs. Givern wanted to know.

"Mad? He's thrilled. It made his dinner. He says he'll probably countersue if any damage has been done to McGooley's sidewalk."

Finally, everyone sits down to dinner. Mrs. Givern's son carves the turkey with an electric knife. The blade flies off and hits Mrs. Givern's daughter Harriet in the head, slightly cutting her ear.

Everyone rushes to Harriet. "Never mind Harriet," the nephew yells. "I want the name of that electric knife company. They'll rue the day they let that carver out of the factory."

These are only examples of what is going on in the country since relatives started becoming lawyers.

If Atty. Gen. Bell really wants to ease the overloaded court calendars he's going to have to get Congress to pass a law making it a felony for an attorney to solicit business from any member of his own family.

Hodges has collected—and spent—more money than the other Democrats. He is also better organized than the others.

But Ingram can be considered the front-runner the day he enters the race. Thanks to two previous statewide elections, many people are accustomed to voting for him. He also has a statewide organization that can be quickly pressed into service.

His reputation gained in battling the insurance companies will be the major factor. Though he has been accused of abusing his powers, he has a strong following because many people believe he is trying to protect them from what they view as greedy insurance companies.

What's more, Ingram is a rough campaigner. He exploits weaknesses of opposing candidates. His style is to paint himself a saviour while making his opponents appear handmaidens of special interests.

It will be an uphill battle for the other Democrats if they hope to defeat Ingram.

Hodges has been acting like a front-runner but he must prepare to face Ingram head-on. He will also find himself forced into taking positions that can be avoided now.

State Sen. McNeill Smith has spent most of his time criticizing Helms in hopes of showing that he is best able to attack the incumbent. Ingram could well force him into a different strategy.

State Sen. Lawrence Davis has offered himself as a fresh face, a person who deserves more trust than the others. He, too, should be strategy hunting because Ingram will be banking on trust of the people.

Gadfly Joe Felmet will likely remain the same and continue bugging the others' consciences and offering himself as the world government candidate.

David McKnight has yet to set a style beyond saying he has talked to the people by hiking from Manteo to Murphy.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:
U. S. Senator Jesse Helms has said, "We can't beseech our Creator to bless us and abandon the principles upon which this country was founded; it's not what we belong to, but what we are, not what we say, but what we do."

It seems to me that Luther Hodges is campaigning on what he belongs to (NCNB, Harvard, Chapel Hill, civic organizations, etc.). McNeill Smith's candidacy announcement carried those glittering generalities "hope, optimism and love." Hodges has expressed a "deep love for North Carolina."

When it comes down to specifics, Jesse Helms stands on principles. Hodges and Smith can talk about love all they want, but they are just bumping their gums. What counts is does a man stand on principles. Senator Helms poses this question: "Did America become great by accident or because we looked to our Creator for divine guidance, for precepts, for principles?"

Hodges and Smith may be men of great sincerity, but sincerity is no guarantee for truth. I suspect that they are long on good arguments, but short on delivering the goods. Senator Helms' philosophy of government is straightforwardly stated in his book When Free Men Shall Stand.

I believe in electing men and women to office who stand for truth, who stand up for our Constitution, who understand the representative form of government. Social status is void of authority as a criterion. Senator Helms stands on principles.

Your Rights And Airline Rules

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Late flights, overbooking and lost baggage can ruin a trip whether you're traveling for business or pleasure, so it pays to know something about the rules of the air and what rights you have.

The Civil Aeronautics Board requires airlines to maintain a 75 percent on-time record. But on-time doesn't necessarily mean what you think it does.

Under existing rules, an airline is in compliance with the CAB standards if, in a three-month period, at least 75 percent of the carrier's flights from one specific place to another arrive within 15 minutes of the normal elapsed time spent in the air. The elapsed time refers only to actual flying time. It does not take into account departure delays on the ground.

Suppose, for example, you are scheduled to leave New York at 10 a.m. on a one-hour flight to Washington. Your flight doesn't leave until noon, but it still takes only one hour. You are in Washington at 1 p.m.—two hours later than scheduled—but the flight is officially considered to be on time.

The CAB monthly performance reports refer to scheduled arrival times—not flying time. It is these reports which the airlines usually cite in their advertisements. When it comes to meeting federal requirements, however, the flying time is all that counts.

An airline's obligations to its passengers in cases where flights are delayed or canceled are spelled out in individual carriers' tariff rules and may vary from company to company. As a general rule, however, the Civil Aeronautics Board says that if you are delayed four hours or more you can expect:

- A three-minute long distance telephone call or 15-word telegram to any part of the continental United States.
- Meals during normal meal hours.
- Hotel accommodations if the delay occurs during normal sleeping hours and you are stranded at an airport in a city other than the one you started from.
- Transportation to the hotel if applicable.
- If, as the result of overbooking, you are denied a seat on a flight for which you hold a confirmed reservation, you are entitled to something called denied boarding compensation if the airline cannot get you to your destination within two hours of when you were scheduled to arrive (four hours for international flights).

The airline also should help you find a way to reach your destination—even if you will be late. The amount of compensation currently ranges from $25 to $200, although the CAB is considering changing the regulations. The money must be paid within 24 hours of the time you were bumped.

You may get where you want to go on time and still have problems because your baggage didn't make it.

The carrier's liability for lost baggage is $750 per passenger. This does not automatically mean you will receive $750; the amount depends on the airline's assessment of your loss.

If your baggage is delayed, the airline must reimburse you for expenses you faced because of the delay.

Suspect Pilot Saw It Coming

AWAITING REMOVAL — Bodies from the wreckage of a Portuguese Boeing 727 that crashed on landing in Funchal, Madeira, Saturday night lie on the ground before being taken to a temporary morgue. (AP Laserphoto)

By ANDREW TORCHIA

FUNCHAL, Madeira (AP) — Survivors of a crash that killed 130 of 164 persons aboard a Portuguese jetliner say the pilot apparently realized he landed too far down the runway and tried to take off, but the plane plunged 200 feet down an embankment and burst into flames.

TAP, the Portuguese national airline, said the Boeing 727 that crashed Saturday night in a rain was carrying 91 Portuguese passengers, 65 foreigners and eight crew members on a flight from Brussels, Belgium, and Lisbon.

No Americans were reported aboard.

The forward section of the plane cartwheeled onto a rocky beach, throwing some of those aboard into the surf.

"The pilot could not find the position for the final approach and circled three or four times," said survivor David van Bietz of Amsterdam. "At the last moment he came down, overshooting the field. The plane was going far too fast. I saw half the plane ripping open. I passed out."

The 62-year-old department store executive said when he regained consciousness, the plane was burning around him and he crawled out.

"I came to in water up to my waist," said Marie Paule Oosterlinck of Antwerp, Belgium. "I tried to get my mother out of the water but couldn't because of my broken arm. Then my son ... well, I didn't see him any more. I had to get out of the water myself. I was near the fire and couldn't stand it."

Her mother and three-year-old son were listed as missing. Her husband survived.

Six of the eight crew members were killed including the pilot, Joao Costa, and his copilot.

The Portuguese government ordered an inquiry into the crash.

The runway extends across a narrow neck of land that juts into the ocean on the south side of the mountainous Portuguese island 400 miles west of Morocco.

Mid-East Board Acts On Va. Water Request

WASHINGTON, N.C. — During a brief meeting Thursday, the Mid-East Commission Board took action on a resolution presented by Community Development Planner Bill Shelly, concerning water supply proposals for Hampton Roads, Va.

Three out of four proposals recommended by the U.S. Corps of Engineers to meet the water supply needs will have potentially serious economic and environmental consequences for the Mid-East Region, said Shelly.

The proposals affecting the Mid-East Region's own water sources are: water withdrawal from the Roanoke River below Roanoke Rapids, water withdrawal from the Chowan River near Winton, and impoundments of the Blackwater River.

Following Shelly's presentation, the board adopted the resolution, expressing its strong opposition to the Corps' three proposals affecting the region and urging that alternative proposals, including recycling and desalination, be seriously considered.

The board also approved the membership of the Older Adult Nutrition Project Council for 1978.

Members are as follows: Kathleen Leggett, Magalene Young, W.W. Cratch, Myrtle Everett, Lorena Daniels, and Mildred Cratch, all of Beaufort County; Paul Whitchard, Lurene Bridgen, Gladys Hardison, Beulah Stallings, Laurie Joyner, Mildred Johnson, Naomi Roberson, and Estelle Biane, all of Martin County; Levah Rhodes, Rena Copeland, Francis Tayloe, and Sarah Mitchell, all of Bertie County; Mrs. Lowell Powell, Christine Brett, Anne Hill Underwood, and Bertie Mae Whitaker, all of Hertford County; Helen Roberson, Sudie Staton, and Mr. and Mrs. Plato Bass, all of Pitt County.

Executive Director Bruce Beasley told the board of a meeting he attended in Williamston with industrial developers from the five counties. The apparent decline in industry location in the region was the main topic under discussion, said Beasley.

Industrial developers expressed the desire to hold similar "exchange of ideas" meetings on a quarterly basis and favored printing a brochure describing and "selling" the entire region to interested industrial prospects, the director told the board.

Board members expressed their own concerns over the lack of industrial growth in the five counties during the past four or five years. Several board members voiced suggestions for attracting industry to eastern North Carolina.

The recommendations ranged from promoting the area and its population with emphasis placed on the achievements of the Black population to sending delegations of interested citizens and elected officials to Raleigh to personally present their concerns to state government representatives.

In other business, the board: — Approved the estimated cost for an update of the commission's Classification and Pay Plan — Heard a report concerning Gov. Hunt's intention to designate the 17-state planning regions as the agencies to handle solid waste planning — Approved ten clearinghouse applications for project funds.

Thirteen board members attended the meeting, and Chairman Ross Persinger of Ayden presided.

Greek Conservatives Win A Safe Majority

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer
ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis and his conservative party won re-election today with a reduced but safe majority to maintain Greece's pro-Western policies. But Andreas Papandreu's anti-American, anti-Western party made big gains.

With 95 per cent of the votes in Sunday's general elections counted, Caramanlis' New Democracy Party had 42.2 percent of the vote and 174 of the 300 seats in the single-chamber parliament, a majority of 48.

The New Democrats got 54.3 percent of the votes and 220 seats in the 1974 elections, a majority of 140 seats.

Papandreu's Panhellenic Socialist Movement took 25.2 percent of the vote and became the major opposition party with 91 seats, up from 13.5 percent of the 1974 vote and 15 seats.

Caramanlis' victory meant he could continue his campaign to get Greece into the European Common Market and his efforts to seek a solution to the bitter dispute with Turkey over Cyprus, which caused Greece to withdraw from participation in the military programs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Papandreu, a former American citizen who headed the economics department of the University of California at Berkeley, waged a well-organized, nationwide campaign opposing membership in the Common Market and NATO and American bases in Greece. He called for a social revolution for the benefit of the agricultural and working classes.

Much of the Socialists' gains appeared to be at the expense of George Mavros' Union of the Democratic Center, which waged a low-key campaign. The party got only 12 percent of the vote, sharply down from 20 percent and 61 parliamentary seats in the 1974 elections.

Caramanlis apparently lost considerable support to a new ultra-right National Camp Party, which supporters of the military dictatorship and monarchists backed to embarrass the premier for jailing the leaders of the junta and holding the plebiscite that ended the monarchy in 1974.

The National Camp got about seven percent of the vote.

Student Goals

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — The nation's 1972 high school graduates place a good marriage and family life among their highest goals.

They're also interested in going to work and they're not particularly concerned about social and economic inequality. Those are among findings from the National Longitudinal Study of the High School Class of 1972. The study is being conducted by the Center for Educational Research and Evaluation of the Research Triangle Institute, under the supervision of Dr. Jay R. Levinsohn.

"Sample members find marriage and family life increasingly important," he said. "The goal of finding the right person to marry and having a happy family life was judged by both men and women in 1974 to be the most important of the 12 goals."

In the study, the more than 23,000 members of the sample are surveyed repeatedly. Levinsohn recently compared 1974 and 1972 findings in a report to the institute's board of governors.

"All life goals listed other than those dealing with marriage and family dropped in importance over the two-year period," he said. One notable drop, he said, was in concern for social and economic justice.

"Only 17 percent of all respondents rated this goal as 'very important' in 1974, as compared to 27 per cent in 1972," Levinsohn said.

The study found that 70 percent of sample members were registered voters, compared with 62 percent nationally, and 62 percent of the sample have exercised their right to vote, compared to 45 percent generally.

Grifton Won Third Place

GRIFTON — Grifton won third place in the Coastal Plain Development Association annual community development contest for villages and small town in the under 5,000 population category.

The announcement was made Thursday night, Nov. 17, at a banquet at the Moose Lodge in Greenville, with approximately 400 persons attending.

Among the outstanding accomplishments since the fall of 1976 in the Grifton area are: the opening of the new Grifton Historical Museum and Art Center, the expansion of arts classes for all ages at the new Art Center, the completion and dedication of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District disposal plant to serve the southern Pitt County area, renovation of substandard housing and paving of streets, and expansion of youth and adult recreation team sports program.

Lillian Carter Is Home Again

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Lillian Carter is finally back home in Plains after a thrice-delayed journey from Ireland.

The first delay came Friday when union workers in Ireland refused to service the charter plane in which she was supposed to fly directly to the United States. That caused a three-hour delay as Mrs. Carter and 251 Iowa residents accompanying her on a goodwill tour had to stop in England before heading across the Atlantic.

There was another brief delay when that plane had a blowout as it taxied down the runway after landing at Bangor International Airport in Maine early Saturday.

Finally, the Delta Airlines flight that was to take her to Atlanta was diverted to Baltimore when the pilot said a dog placed in the wrong area of the baggage compartment was in danger of freezing to death.

Whatever its influence on the PLO, the Kremlin's enthusiasm for collaboration with Washington quickly faded after some early supporting statements. Soon after the joint U.S.-Soviet statement was made public, Moscow seemed to lose interest in backing the U.S. case for a Mideast settlement with anything like full vigor. Within the last two weeks, Soviet policy seems to have switched from simply losing interest to positive undermining of the U.S. position — as indicated by the switch in PLO strategy.

If the PLO had gone ahead as planned at Damascus, it would have paved the way for close U.S.-PLO collaboration after months of Mr. Carter's efforts to achieve just that. It would also have raised the prestige of Jimmy Carter at a time he needs every ounce he can get.

That is why American officials, though unable to prove Soviet skulduggery in the latest meandering of the PLO, have placed a double-watch over all Soviet Mideast moves. Self-congratulations for the joint U.S.-Soviet statement of Oct. 1 have turned into to suspicions, and that at least is a healthy state of mind for a President still learning his way around the world.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for the central Pacific coast. Snow flurries are expected from the northern Rockies into the northern Plains. Showers are due from the central Gulf into the Mid-Atlantic region. Warm weather is forecast for the southcentral states but most of the country will range from cool to cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Mild temperatures, cloudy skies and scattered rain rolled into North Carolina from the southeast ahead of a cold front early today.

The national weather service said the cold front idling at midmorning in the Tennessee Valley will push slowly to the west of the North Carolina mountains late in the day but is likely to remain west of the mountains until midweek. Most of the state will remain under the influence of the milder air to the east of the front early in the week. The threat of thundershowers is likely to remain over the mountains through Tuesday.

Sunny skies remained across the state through the weekend, with only the southern Piedmont and the mountains experiencing clouds. Temperatures Sunday ranged from the upper 50s to mid-60s. Wilmington was highest with 67 degrees.

Overnight, cloud cover slipped across most of the state except for the coast, with occasional rain in some areas. Temperatures at dawn were in the mid-40s to mid-50s across the state.

Tax Overhaul No Simple Task

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two past architects of much of the nation's complicated tax code observed the other day that President Carter faces an almost impossible task in trying to overhaul the tax system.

Wilbur D. Mills and John W. Byrnes, the former chairman and ranking minority member, respectively, of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, spent a combined 60 years on the committee working with the nation's tax laws. The results may not always have been ideal, they said, but they were what people wanted — or at least what was wanted by special interests who were organized enough to convince Congress to enact them.

"The timing (of changes) and what you can do — all of it is politics; the whole of it is politics," said Mills, 68, an Arkansas Democrat who probably still would be chairman of the committee had not personal problems forced him to resign and to retire from Congress last year.

Carter has pledged to overhaul the tax laws to make them more simple and more fair, as well as to stimulate business investment. As it now stands, he says, the tax code is "a disgrace to the human race."

But Byrnes, 64, a former Republican congressman from Wisconsin, said Carter's aims are contradictory and therefore may be doomed to failure.

For example, he said 70 percent to 80 percent of the content of the code increases its complexity but results almost entirely from attempts to make it fair. "Equity breeds complexity," he told a tax conference here last week.

While Carter wants to stimulate investment, he also is proposing to increase the fairness of the tax system by eliminating tax preference now given to investment income, called the capital gains tax.

"It is difficult to see how he will improve the climate to stimulate capital investment and at the same time make the system more progressive by a new tax on capital," Byrnes said.

Byrnes served on the Ways and Means Committee for 26 years until his retirement five years ago. Mills was on the committee for 34 years, including the last 16 as chairman, a period when many changes in the tax code were made. Not all of them were good, he admits.

"I'm not too proud, frankly, of how we left it, but it's better than it was when I came to Congress," he said.

He said his "proudest moment" was when the maximum tax on income was reduced to 50 percent, establishing the principle that the government should "not be more than a 50 percent partner in anybody's pocketbook, no matter how much they earned."

The tax on so-called unearned income still can go as high as 70 percent.

But another Mills' proposal ran into trouble in a hurry. That was to eliminate most tax deductions and lower the tax rates to between 5 percent and 30 percent, depending on the income bracket.

The object was to raise to same amount of revenue at lower rates, while improving the fairness of the income tax.

Carter is working on a similar proposal. But Mills said when public hearings were held on his plan in 1957, groups that benefit from charitable contributions were among the first to speak against it, arguing that with a maximum tax rate of only 30 percent, "people won't give anything away."

"I didn't get very far with that idea," Mills recalls. But he said he still favors tax reform on a gradual basis and would like to see a periodic review of various tax preferences "to see if they are still serving the purpose for which they were enacted."

Byrnes also favors a go-slow approach to tax reform because, "The more grandiose the design, the more conflict and uncertainty are created.

"Each provision of the code has its constituents, pro and con," he said. He said it's one thing for Carter to talk about overall tax reform, but when he starts being specific, people begin to "choose up sides" and the battles begin.

Byrnes urged Carter to look at the reasons various provisions are in the tax code. Each was enacted because someone wanted it and was able to justify it. They will fight if attempts are made to change or remove it, he said.

An example of what Byrnes is talking about is the business lunch deduction, or "three-martini lunch," that Carter wants to eliminate. Among those defending it are the unions representing restaurant workers, who feel their jobs would be in danger if it is changed.

"The Congress isn't always responsible, but it is responsive," Byrnes said. And he said he doesn't agree that the code is a disgrace.

Added Mill, "You can only do what your colleagues allow you to do and what the public allows you to do."

Ruritans Held District Meet

The Greenville-Goldsboro District of the Ruritan Club held its 28th annual convention at D. H. Conley High School Saturday.

The Ruritans were welcomed by Charles Gaskins, chairman of the Pitt County Commissioners. About 200 Ruritans and their wives attended, with 63.26 of the eligible voting delegates present.

New District Officers are as follows: District Governor, David L. Godwin of Rt. 2, Benson, a member of the Meadow Club; Lt. Governor, Ed W. Congleton of Stokes, member of the Stokes Club; Zone 1 Governor, Joseph Rogers of Rt. 1, Washington, member of the Big Swamp Club; Zone 2 Governor, James Stroud of Rt. 1, Farmville, member of the Maury Club; Zone 3 Governor, Charlie Wagner of Goldsboro, member of the New Hope Club; Zone 4 Governor, J. B. Braxton of Rt. 2, Grifton, member of the Contentnea Club; and Zone 5 Governor, Dennis Brown of Rt. 1, Belhaven, member of the Ponzor Club.

National Director Leck Keeter and Curtis Graham from Ruritan National Headquarters were in charge of the installation program. The banquet was held in the school cafeteria, with entertainment provided by "The Originals" of Washington, N.C.

Carter Awaits Result Of Historic Meeting

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin stand at center stage, President Carter remains in the wings, awaiting the outcome of the historic meetings in Jerusalem.

He described the two men's speeches Sunday to the Israeli parliament as "a moving occasion and a contribution to the cause of peace," but the White House carefully avoided more detailed comment.

"We got the folks together. Let's see what happens," White House press secretary Jody Powell said. "We're not trying to be looking over their shoulders every minute."

It was felt at the White House that the United States' role in the Middle East would be unchanged by the talks and that in the immediate future the administration's primary task would be to encourage and facilitate comprehensive peace talks.

According to administration thinking, Sadat, seen as a high-risk player, took the gamble of traveling to Jerusalem to create a psychological advantage but also out of concern that any progress achieved in the last eight months was about to be undone by stagnation.

It was felt that if Sadat returns to Cairo having paved the way for negotiations over the future of the Palestinians, he may be able to overcome the negative reaction provoked by his visit.

After the president watched the televised speeches by Sadat, Begin, and Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres, he consulted with Vice President Walter Mondale and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

In a statement issued Sunday by the White House, Carter said the talks were characterized by "candor and a spirit of conciliation."

"In that spirit we hope and believe it is possible to move toward lasting peace," he said.

Seniors Set Yule Lunch

The Elm Street Senior Citizens Club held its regular meeting Thursday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. R. Edmondson, director of the Boys Club of America addressed the group and answered questions concerning the activities of the organization.

In other business, 52 members made reservations for the Christmas Luncheon to be held Dec. 8, at the American Legion Building.

Reservations should be called in to the attention of Mrs. Ashton by Nov. 25.

Thirty-eight members also signed up to go on a shopping trip to Raleigh on Dec. 14. The bus will leave from the Church parking lot at 7:30 a.m.

The Club also voted to send a check for $50 to the Foster Children's Christmas Fund.

The president participated in a special early-morning prayer service at the First Baptist Church in Washington and then told reporters that Sadat's visit "might very well break down the barrier to peace."

Before rushing back to the White House, missing the first five minutes of the Egyptian's speech, Carter described the Sadat-Begin talks as "a major step forward" that would improve the likelihood of a Geneva peace conference.

Carter, recognizing the strident criticism Sadat faces in the Arab world as a result of the trip, said such opposition was an obstacle to peace because some Middle East leaders fail to respond to the peaceful desires of their people.

"I think it is obvious that the people of the world want peace and pray for peace," he said. "President Sadat is trying to break down the barriers and go directly to the people."

The president suggested that opposition would decrease when Arab leaders see Sadat is not seeking a separate peace.

Wants Fans Contribute

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A music shop owner says he has option on a 100-acre site in western North Carolina for a memorial to the late rock and roll star Elvis Presley and he wants fans to donate money and Elvis memorabilia.

"The more participants we have, the bigger the memorial will be," said Homer Shockley, president of Tracie's Little Nashville Music Co. "I want to help Elvis to live on and this is a chance for his fans to do something they want to do."

Shockley said he had an option on a tract in western North Carolina, but declined to give the location.

He said his dream is to build a memorial in which the names of fans who donate funds will be enshrined, and where concerts can be held featuring recorded Presley music and an animated, life-size figure of the singer.

Shockley said he has written permission to proceed with the project from the company that has legal rights to the use of the Elvis Presley name. He said a contract with that firm is being prepared.

Rock-Hunting Is Part Of Holiday

ALVA, Scotland (UPI) — Guests at Margaret Houghton's small hotel in Alva, Scotland, get bed, breakfast and an evening meal for about $60 a week, and may go home with pockets of amethysts or garnets to boot.

Mrs. Houghton's offers her rock-hunting holidays all autumn and personally takes her visitors through the mountains, beaches and valleys near Alva, which she says are prime hunting ground for gem enthusiasts.

Mrs. Houghton, who also gives instruction on cutting and polishing stones, says finds have included amethysts, rock crystal, garnets and smoky quartz.

Disfigured, But Longer Life Ahead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Virgilio Pinto, the young Bolivian photographer whose face was grossly disfigured by a blood tumor which grew so large it threatened his life, has left for home, no longer in danger but still far from cured.

Pinto, who has been acutely homesick throughout his stay and who finally began showing signs of serious emotional disturbance, was to have had cosmetic surgery after removal of the tumor to restore a more normal appearance to his face. But after months of painful treatments, more work remains to be done on the tumor, and it appears Pinto will have to come back for the cosmetic surgery.

It will be six to nine months while acrylic agents injected into his tumorous lower jaw slowly shrink the disfiguring mass. He may return to Duke Medical Center late next summer for reevaluation by a Duke medical team. They are considering refined microwave or ionization techniques to try to complete destruction of the tumor before rebuilding his face.

Since Aug. 10, the 21-year-old Bolivian has undergone a series of radical surgical procedures and injections at Duke. "The physical, emotional, cultural and environmental shock has been enormous," a spokesman said. "We have extended his life, probably to a normal life expectancy. This was accomplished by excision of approximately 30 percent of the tumor, forestalling involvement in the brain and removing the threat to his breathing and swallowing. The threat of suffocation was imminent."

The acrylic materials which were injected into the remainder of the mass cut off nourishment of the blood-fed facial tumors. They are expected to shrink slowly and possibly slough off.

"During these months we feel he should be at home with his people," the spokesman said. "He needs mental and emotional rehabilitation now as much as anything else."

Pinto showed symptoms of paranoia in recent weeks, fighting off doctors and nurses and twice leaving the hospital. After psychiatric treatment and counseling by Spanish-speaking members of the chaplaincy, he made a comeback.

And with news of his return home, Pinto "turned on the most beautiful smile I have ever seen," according to the Rev. Jack Yarborough, pastor of the Matthews United Methodist Church.

The church has been the sponsor and administrator of a fund of about $20,000 contributed by sympathetic North Carolinians. The fund has paid Pinto's medical expenses and will send him home with Harry Newman, a onetime Bolivian missionary now a medical associate of Dr. Richard Maybin of Lawndale.

Newman, formerly a hospital administrator in La Paz, will serve as medical liaison man, explaining to Pinto's family and Bolivian doctors what has been and what may yet be accomplished.

High Tensions Prevail On Turkish-Soviet Border

By STEPHAN KETELE
ANI, Turkey (UPI) — "Keep your hands at your sides," the Turkish officer warned. "Don't even point over there."
"Over there" — beyond a tall wire fence overlooked by prison-style watchtowers — is the Soviet Union.

A 56-year-old agreement regulating this remote border region, rarely visited by strangers, forbids all "equivocal gestures" within sight of the 380-mile Turkish-Soviet frontier.

That includes pointing a stick — or even a finger.

"The Soviets could claim we were pointing a gun at them and open fire without warning," said Col. Tayer Bilen, commander of the 14th Turkish Mechanized Brigade.

Photography near the border on both sides is banned.

Once a month or so, Turkish and Soviet representatives meet to discuss border disputes. Usually it's a case of Turkish cattle straying into the area between the border itself and the Soviet fence, which lies some distance back.

But recently, two Soviet army officers defected by swimming across the fast-flowing, icy Arpacay river which forms the border near here. They were given asylum over Soviet protests.

"There is no friendly contact between the two sides," Bilen commented.

Bilen commands a well-trained and equipped force guarding one of the traditional invasion routes into Turkey.

Russians attacked along that route three times in recent history and, after World War II, laid claim to the area around here.

"The Russians are our traditional enemies," a senior officer said. "We don't trust them."

Nonetheless, the Kremlin is turning on the charm in an attempt to win friends and influence people in Turkey.

The Soviets have sharply boosted aid to Turkey, and total assistance could soar to $2 billion and beyond — welcome news to a country with the lowest per capita income in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The aid so far does not include arms, but the Soviets did host Turkish observers at military exercises across the border in the Caucasus.

The Soviet assistance comes at a time when Turkey's relations with its principal Western allies are sour.

The United States officially limits arms sales to Turkey to $125 million a year, a compromise from the total embargo which it imposed after this country invaded Cyprus in 1974. Turkey in turn closed down U.S. bases held vital for monitoring across the frontier. Officials say the bases still are closed and that America has withdrawn surveillance activities to Crete and elsewhere in the Mediterranean.

Turkey also has complained of trade and economic discrimination by the European Common Market, with which it has an association agreement in the hope it can developed enough eventually to apply for membership.

The Turks consider themselves European in outlook, despite the fact that most of Turkey is in Asia, and reject closer links with the surrounding Arab world. Many officials say the only alternative in economic terms at present is a closer trade relationship with the Soviet Union, which is prepared to sell on barter rather than cash terms. Even in this tense border region, evidence of this cooperation could be seen. Three surveyors were busy taking measurements along the rim of a cliff in full view of Turkish troops.

Bilen said the Soviets are building a hydroelectric dam project, backed by a 20-mile-long lake, on the Arpacay river. Plans call for a sharing of electricity and irrigation water. The Soviets also are helping the Turks build an oil refinery, steel mill and other capital projects.

All this does not mean the country is letting down its military guard against the Soviets, who have been building up their forces heavily on the other side of the border a few miles from here.

"The Soviets keep a far larger force than they need for defense purposes," Lt. Gen. Robert C. McAlister, the U.S. chief of staff of allied forces in southern Europe told this reporter in Naples. "They are there in great strength, capable of attack without significant military buildup."

Largely because of the arms embargo, the Turks are having problems modernizing their forces, McAlister said, even though they spend 6.8 per cent of their gross national product on defense — the highest proportion in NATO.

But McAlister added, "At least they are facing in the right direction."

With 465,000 men under arms, Turkey has the second-largest fighting force in NATO after the United States.

Senior officers expressed confidence they could repel anything the Soviets could throw in here — and that could include a spearhead of 800 tanks supported by attack helicopters and bombers. The tanks include the T-72, one of the most powerful in the world.

"The most lethal weapon ever discovered is a soldier willing to die," said Maj. Gen. Burhanettin Bigali, acting commander of the 9th Army Corps, headquartered near here at Erzurum. "Turkey has such soldiers."

If training at a nearby mountain-survivor camp is any criterion, Turkish soldiers may rate among the best soldiers in the West in terms of physical fitness and fighting trim.

Several platoons of commandos demonstrated the kind of reception an invader could expect.

Almost invisible and totally silent, they lined both sides of a steep gorge. Upon the shrill piping of a whistle, the gorge came to life.

To thundering incantations to Allah and other shouts echoing in the gorge, the soldiers threw themselves over dizzy heights, racing down vertical cliffs on seemingly flimsy ropes — some head downwards.

At the same time, other units were doing endless series of pushups or making savage bayonet charges against an imaginary enemy.

Bilen said an attack down the old invasion routes would be countered by "closing choke points" — an indication that the gorges around here are heavily mined, possibly with nuclear demolition devices.

"We believe we can stop one Soviet division with one battalion," Bigali said. "We could double our fighting effectiveness if we had better weapons. But it is clear that more Turkish blood than necessary would flow if we had to fight with inadequate means."

Bigali said Turkey has no intention of withdrawing from NATO's military command — as has neighboring Greece — because of its dispute with the American Congress over Cyprus and the arms embargo.

"We believe in democracy and personal freedoms and we will go on defending them despite the embargo," he said.

Outside the military preparations, life seems to go on normally along NATO's southern flank, or, as Turkish officers would have it, the Soviet Union's underbelly.

Snow-capped Mount Ararat gleams in the distance. Bony horses and brown goats wander around the ruins of a monastery ruined by earthquake in the 14th century, where fragments of once glorious frescoes can be seen on the walls. On the other side of the fence, the Soviet village of Harto has a neat and peaceful aspect, with a huge collective haystack.

Ani, centuries ago a thriving city of 300,000 but now an impoverished village, has been fought over time and again because of its strategic position along the Arpacay River, a natural frontier.

For modern Turkey and for the entire Western alliance, it still represents a lonely outpost on a distant but vital frontier, whose collapse would open a path to the Middle East and weaken the defense of the Bosphorus, only gateway to the Mediterranean for the Soviet Union's Black Sea fleet.

NERVOUS BORDER — Photography near the border on both sides of the 380-mile Turkish-Soviet frontier is banned. Once a month or so, Turkish and Soviet representatives meet to discuss border disputes. (UPI Map)

The FARM SCENE

By Edwin L. Yancey
County Extension Chairman

This summer's drought and extreme heat will result in net operating losses for some Pitt County farmers for the 1977, or possibly 1978 tax years. These net operating losses may be carried back to recover taxes paid in former years, or forward to reduce income taxes in future years. This form of tax relief is too often overlooked by farmers and their tax practitioners, perhaps due in large part to the rigorous computations and adjustments that are necessary. The tax benefit, however, may be measured in several hundred, or in some cases several thousand dollars.

If a farmer sustains a net business loss on the Schedule F in 1977, this loss should be entered as a minus figure on page 2 of Form 1040 on the appropriate line within the section for "Income Other than Wages, Dividends and Interest."

If, on the total return, deductions exceed income for the year, this excess, after certain readjustments, may be used to offset income taxes in other years. This amount is referred to as a net operating loss (N.O.L.) and does not require any adjustment of self-employment earnings. A net operating loss may not be claimed by partnership, but each partner may use his share of the loss to offset taxes in other years.

A net operating loss may be carried back three years then forward to successive years to offset income until it is used up.

The N.O.L. may be carried forward for seven years if necessary. Under the Tax Reform Act of 1976, the taxpayer, may, at his option, forego the carry back, and instead simply carry the N.O.L. forward for seven years for losses incurred in 1976 and after.

The form most commonly used to claim an N.O.L. is Form 1045. Supporting and explanatory material showing the necessary computations must accompany the Form 1045. Filing for refund must be made by the 15th day of the 40th month following the close of the loss year.

To determine the amount of loss that can be applied to another year a number of adjustments must be made to taxable income:

—Capital losses cannot exceed capital gains, and non-business capital losses cannot exceed non-business capital gains.

—Personal exemptions and exemptions for dependents cannot be claimed.

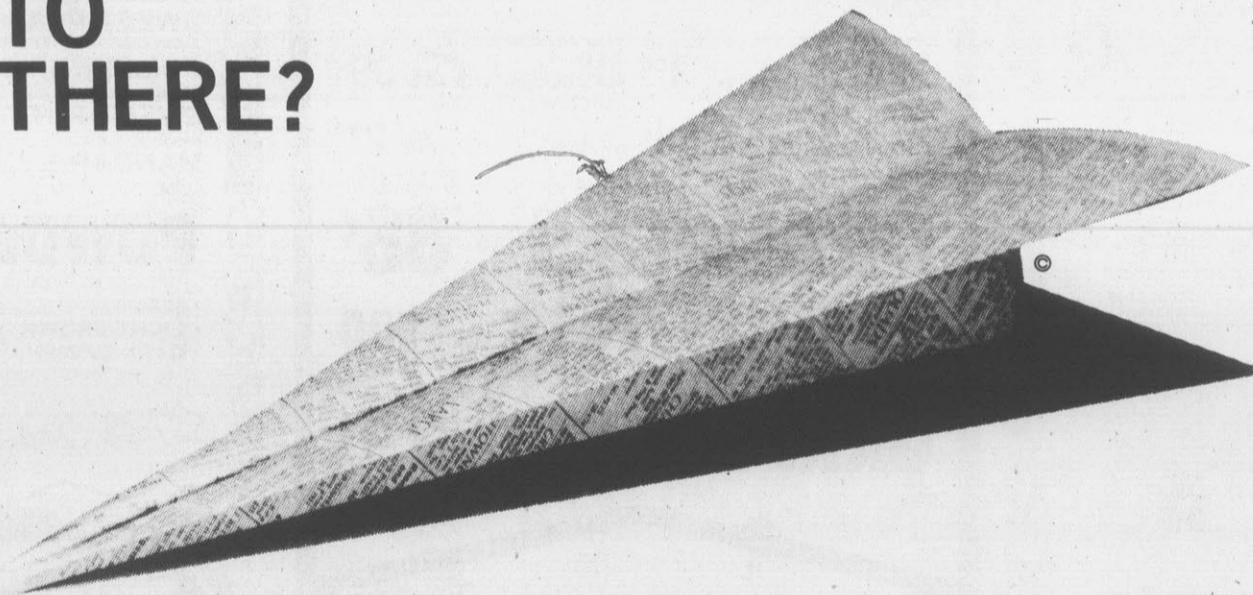

—The 50 percent of the excess of long term gain over short term gain must be eliminated.

—Non-business deductions cannot exceed non-business income.

—An operating loss carry-over or carry back from another year cannot be claimed.

The 1978 Farmers Tax Guide is now available. It contains information that can be of great value in your farm tax management. You can get your copy at the Pitt County Extension Office at 203 West Third Street in Greenville.

Both full-time accountants and individuals filing tax returns will find the short course helpful in increasing their knowledge of tax laws and as a fast review prior to the tax season, said Yancey.

An advanced program for persons experienced in the income tax field will be held in Raleigh on December 7-9. The short course will be conducted by N.C. State University in cooperation with the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, the N.C. Department of Revenue, the N.C. Vance Seeks Information In Argentina

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance planned a day-long series of meetings today seeking information on the human rights situation in embattled Argentina.

Vance's schedule included meetings with representatives of local human rights groups and the Jewish community as well as with President Jorge Rafael Videla and other senior officials of his military regime.

The secretary arrived Sunday night on his first visit to South America. He goes to Brazil on Tuesday and to Venezuela the next day, returning to Washington Wednesday evening.

Vance brought along an unauthenticated list of 7,500 Argentines, compiled by U.S. human rights groups, who are reported in jail or missing. The American Embassy will ask the government for a person-to-person report on the list.

The military regime seized power 20 months ago amid political disorder and economic collapse and stepped up military and police action in an attempt to check the wave of executions, kidnappings and robberies by leftist urban guerrillas.

The government crackdown has been accompanied by kidnappings and murders by right-wing guerrillas who are believed to have the undercover support of the government.

The Carter administration decided that many innocent persons were being victimized by the crackdown and ordered a reduction in military aid to Argentina. The Argentine government then rejected all U.S. security assistance.

Solo Global Voyage Is Ended

By CARL ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 54-year old grandmother who learned the bamboo flute and Esperanto while at sea stepped off her 27-foot yacht after an unpublish solo sail around the world and took refuge in a commune.

"I don't think I have done anything important," said Anne Gash in a brief telephone interview. "If I start talking about this it will never stop."

Mrs. Gash sailed her battered sloop Ilimo into Ballina, 300 miles north of Sydney, on Friday. After she cleared customs, a daughter and son-in-law took her to the seclusion of a commune eight miles away.

"I want to stay out here for a few days and sort myself out and rest," she told the reporter who telephoned.

"She's up on the hill about half a mile from here," said a man who answered the commune's only telephone. "She just wants to be alone, but in perhaps another week or so will be sailing on down to Sydney."

"This is just the sort of thing Mother does," said one of Mrs. Gash's six daughters, Libby Burhich of Sydney. "When she was very young, she rode to Melbourne on a bicycle."

Melbourne is 400 miles south of Sydney.

A former social worker and vegetarian, Mrs. Gash took a brief course in navigation before taking the Ilimo out of Sydney harbor in July 1975. She sailed up the east coast, through the treacherous Torres Strait between Australia and New Guinea and then headed west along the north coast and through the Indian Ocean.

She reached Durban, on the east coast of South Africa, in February 1976 after taking her boat through eight bad storms.

"I have wanted to do this for some time now," she wrote her daughters. "I guess you can say I am just doing my own thing, and living every moment today."

She said that during the long hours at sea, she taught herself Esperanto, the international language, and the bamboo flute.

From Durban, Mrs. Gash went round the Cape of Good Hope and then up the west coast of Africa to Ghana. In Accra, the capital, thieves stripped the Ilimo and a tugboat rammed it. She made repairs and set out again but after three weeks of adverse currents and winds returned to Ghana and shipped the yacht to Britain.

Mrs. Gash left Britain last November and sailed through the canals of Belgium and Holland before heading down to Gibraltar and the Canary Islands. Then she sailed across the Atlantic to Tobago and Trinidad, passed through the Panama Canal and went on to Tahiti, Rarotonga, Tonga and Ballina.

Girl Scouts Plant Bulbs

Saturday morning the Junior Girl Scouts of Greenville Neighborhood Troop 610 did a "good turn" for the residents of Greenville Villa Nursing Home.

In the central courtyard of the home, the girls planted a bed of more than 12 dozen daffodil and tulip bulbs. Earlier in the week the girls made a poster and placed it at Greenville Villa, so the planting could be watched by those who could and wanted to.

Afterwards the girls were given a tour of the home and the opportunity to meet some of the residents and staff.

The Scouts — Lou Raye Haddock, Amanda Smith, Deborah Little, Robin Cannon, Nancy Snead, Ginger Galloway, Kim Edwards, Amy Dohm, Lisa Trask, and Tonya Leggett — were accompanied by Iris Haddock, Paye Smith and Betsy Little, Leader.

School Factions Are Organizing

The Ayden chapter of SOS will organize formally Monday evening, Nov. 21, and officers from both the Ayden and Grifton groups will meet together as an executive committee for the entire organization.

Millions Spent In Preparation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Since last winter caught North Carolina's economy without its antifreeze, millions of dollars have been spent in an effort to avoid winter shutdowns and layoffs.

The money has been spent on added storage facilities for propane and other alternate fuels to replace natural gas if and when it is curtailed or cut off. More money has gone for thicker insulation and conversion from gas to other fuels on a permanent basis.

"We've taken the position that things were bad last winter and we don't expect them to be much better this year," said Ronald L. Whaley, manager of manufacturing engineering for Rockwell International Corp.'s flow control division plant in Raleigh.

Rockwell has spent $300,000 at its Raleigh plant for an electric furnace for steel processing, double-pane insulated windows and a new lighting system.

"We're phasing out our use of natural gas," he said.

Peden Steel Co. has spent enormous sums on conversion to propane for office heating and coke to heat the production plant with small heaters instead of trying to heat large areas.

Fairmont Foods Inc. of Cary is installing propane storage tanks at a cost of about $100,000. "It's an insurance policy," said a company spokesman. "If we were shut down, we would lose many times more than the cost of those tanks."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today as Wall Street awaited the latest reading from Washington on the trend of inflation.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 3.47 at 832.29.

Losers took a small lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted no particularly strong response by investors to the weekend visit of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Israel.

Wall Street was looking ahead cautiously, meanwhile, to the monthly report on the consumer price index due from the government on Tuesday.

American Motors was actively traded, up 1/4 at 43. On Friday the company reported an operating profit for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 against a large loss in the previous year.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks dropped .14 to 52.37. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .06 at 119.74.

Mystified By Return Of Art

BUFFALO (AP) — Art gallery owner Tony Sisti was even more mystified when a valuable 16th century painting was returned than he was when it was stolen.

"The Apostle," a work by Lorenzo Stozzi valued by Sisti at $200,000, showed up Saturday in the front seat of his automobile.

Sisti had reported it stolen Tuesday.

The painting was found in Sisti's car after a telephone tip from an anonymous caller, police said.

See Birth Rate Leveling Off

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' birth rate, which has been dropping steadily since 1959, seems to be leveling off around 14.7 live births per 1,000 persons, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The Council says the U.S. Bureau of Census predicts an increase of eight percent by 1980 in the number of women of child-bearing age. This factor will push up the number of births slightly, as it has in recent years.

Women in the 20-29 age group, which is the period of greatest fertility, account for a large part of this increase, the Council said.

ON SECOND MORTGAGE
When mortgage money is plentiful, lower down payments are common and lending institutions are looking for borrowers for mortgage money.

However, the picture changes when money is tight. Often, higher down payments are required. If you do not have the cash to meet the full down payment, second mortgages are also available and nothing to be afraid of. The seller or some other lender may agree to loan you the balance of the down payment in this manner.

The second mortgage on the property carries a higher interest rate and a shorter repayment time — usually from three to five years. The reason for this is the higher risk involved because the second mortgage cannot be satisfied in case of default until after the first mortgage is paid off.

The second mortgage can be an excellent way to complete the sale of property which would otherwise fall by the wayside. Listen very closely to your REALTOR in this situation because professional expertise is a MUST.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville, Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

Publisher Has Seen The Light

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Hustler" magazine publisher Larry Flynt says he's seen the light and will turn his girlie magazine away from nudity and sex and toward religion — and it's all due to President Carter's faith-healer sister.

Flynt, 41, and his wife, Althea, were surprise guests of Mrs. Ruth Carter Stapleton at a revival at the independent Church of Castle Hills Sunday night.

It was a night of surprises all around. Before Mrs. Stapleton announced Flynt's identity to the crowd, she told them she "learned prejudice" while attending the Plains Baptist Church —

Payton Nonchalant About NFL Record

Rambling Payton

Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton eludes a Minnesota Vikings defender as he picks up ten yards and a

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They don't pay Walter Payton to be a conversationalist. They pay him to run with the ball — and he does that better than anyone else in the National Football League.

He proved that again on Sunday, running up a record 275 yards — two more than O.J. Simpson did last Thanksgiving Day — to rechristen Chicago's Soldier Field as "Payton Place" and lead the Bears past the Minnesota Vikings 10-7.

In Sunday's other games it was San Diego 12, Oakland 7; Denver 14, Kansas City 7; Pittsburgh 28, Dallas 13; Cleveland 21, the New York Giants 7; Baltimore 33, the New York Jets 12; Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 10; New Orleans 21, Atlanta 20; Cincinnati 23, Miami 17; New England 20, Buffalo 7; St. Louis 21, Philadelphia 16; Houston 22, Seattle 10, and (of course) Detroit 16, Tampa Bay 7.

Tonight, Green Bay plays at Washington. And next Thanksgiving Day it's Chicago at Detroit and Miami at St. Louis.

"I don't like my teammates running up to me and telling me I've done this or that. It breaks my concentration," Payton said after his explosive 40-carry performance that included Chicago's lone touchdown on a 1-yard burst in the second period.

"The holes were there and I just ran ... All I can say is that this was a day when everything went right and we got a big win."

It pulled the Bears (and Detroit as well) within one game of the first-place Vikings in the National Conference's Central Division. "The victory means more to me than the record because we tightened the playoff race," Payton insisted.

Chargers 12, Raiders 7

For the second time this season, Denver grabbed first place in the American Conference West. This time it was compliments of San Diego, which kayoed Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler with a first-period knee injury, then beat the Raiders on rookie Rolf Benirschke's field goals of 22 and 46 yards.

Broncos 14, Chiefs 7

The play that got Denver its winning points was a 23-yard TD pass from Craig Morton to Haven Moses with about 4½ minutes to play — but the plays that made them stand up were made by cornerback Louie Wright and the rest of Denver's defense.

In the final minute, the Chiefs tried a fake punt. Raymond Burks slipped through the line and dashed 51 yards with the ball on the play — 1 yard short of a touchdown.

Steelers 28, Cowboys 13
Touchdown Tony Dorsett returned to the city of many of his collegiate feats — and Franco Harris gave him a lesson in how they do it in the pros.

Harris erupted for a career-high 179 yards and two touchdowns, one of them on a 61-yard dash, and Terry Bradshaw passed for a pair of scores while Dorsett finished with 73 yards.

Browns 21, Giants 7

Linebacker Gerald Irons broke a third-period tie with an interception and a 53-yard run for the first touchdown of his pro career, then Cleveland locked up its victory over the Giants when David Mays, playing in place of injured Brian Sipe, passed 18 yards to Paul Warfield for a fourth-quarter score.

Colts 33, Jets 12

Bert Jones' scoring strikes of 53 yards to Raymond Chester, 33 to Glenn Doughty and 28 to Lydell Mitchell, plus Miami's loss to Cincinnati, enabled the Colts to widen their AFC East lead over the Dolphins to two games.

Rams 23, 49ers 10

Pat Haden threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to Billy Waddy and Lawrence McCutcheon rumbled 42 yards for a score as the Rams beat San Francisco and opened a two-game lead

Saints 21, Falcons 20

Atlanta, which had never given up more than 14 points in a game this year, tried to keep it that way with a minute to go in New Orleans — and Archie Manning was waiting. The Saints' quarterback, back in action for the first time in six weeks, read the blitz and beat it with an 18-yard TD pass, his second scoring strike to tight end Henry Childs.

Bengals 23, Dolphins 17

With 2½ minutes to play in Cincinnati, Ken Anderson handed off to running back Archie Griffin, who handed off to wide receiver John McDaniel, who handed the ball back to Anderson — who threw it 29 yards to tight end Bob Trumpy for the triple-reverse TD play that beat Miami.

Patriots 20, Bills 7
Fourth-period scoring runs of 31 yards and one yard by Sam Cunningham carried New England past the Bills and their slender crowd of 27,598.

Cardinals 21, Eagles 16

Jim Otis, who ran 25 yards for a score that started St. Louis on the way back from a 16-0 deficit, plunged 1 yard with 38 seconds left for the TD that beat the Eagles.

Oilers 22, Seahawks 10

Dan Pastorini hit Ken Burrough with a 13-yard TD toss, Ronnie Coleman burst a yard for another TD and Tom Dempsey booted two field goals in the Oilers' victory over Seattle.

Lions 16, Bucs 7

Detroit turned two interceptions into touchdowns and, behind seldom-used quarterback Gary Danielson, handed Tampa Bay its 24th loss.

Ficklen Expansion Negotiation Completed

Negotiations have been completed with the contractors for the expansion of East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium, university officials announced today.

The bids were to be submitted today to the University of North Carolina general administration and the department of administration. Final approval of the bids and the letting of the contracts is expected early next week.

The low bids for the construction went to Parke Construction of Charlotte for general construction ($2,132,140), Thompson Plumbing of Wilson for plumbing work ($164,454) and Watson Electric of Greenville for electrical construction ($164,609).

The contract negotiations involved the elimination of a small portion of the proposed expansion. The expansion will be cut back by approximately 2,500 seats to bring the total seating capacity to around 34,000.

The expansion will involve additions to each end of both sides of the stadium, new rest room facilities and a two-level press box with an elevator.

With the approval of the contracts, construction is expected to begin before the end of the year.

Bonnett Nips Petty

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Neil Bonnett got Richard Petty's autograph before Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500. After the race, Petty needed to get Bonnett's.

Bonnett's three-year-old daughter Kristen "is a big Richard Petty fan, and she made me go get his autograph," Bonnett related after holding off Petty for a two-car length victory in Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500. "It was kinda funny."

Bonnett admits to still being something of a fan of most of the stars in Grand National racing.

"For 10 years, I've wanted to be racing with these guys. Now it's like a dream come true," said Bonnett, who is completing his second year on the circuit. "But when I've got Richard coming at me down on the inside, David Pearson hitting me up the rear, and Cale Yarborough trying to squeeze by on the outside, the dream becomes a nightmare."

Bonnett knew he wasn't dreaming during the last seven laps of Sunday's race when Petty was hot on his trail, enjoying the advantage of fresh tires over Bonnett.

"I wanted to get him to heat up his tires trying to get around me. I know that you can run real good for two or three laps on new tires."

"But it didn't work. Richard passed me with six laps to go. It would have been easy for me to say, 'There it goes,' and settle for second place. But I'd worked hard all day to be in front, and I wanted to finish there."

"Then I figured had to make a desperate move to win the race."

Bonnett lined up Petty on the front straightaway, and passed him on the low side going into the first turn.

"There's no other way to describe it. It was a desperation move," Bonnett explained. "I drove it into the corner as hard as I could, and the car stuck."

"I shut the door and moved back in front of him."

Bonnett clung to a lead of no more than two car lengths the last five laps, repulsing Petty's own "desperation move" coming through the final turn on the final lap.

"This race track is 60 feet wide down there in that turn, and I'll tell you, I used about 62 feet of it," Bonnett added.

It was the second victory of the year for Bonnett.

No Bowl For Bucs

East Carolina University's football team will not be going to a post-season bowl this year. The Independence Bowl, to which the Pirates had hoped to get an invitation, announced yesterday that Louisville had been invited to face Southland Conference champion Louisiana Tech.

The Bucs, who lost two of their last three games to finish with a 8-3 record, are thus through for the season. Louisville posted a 7-3-1 record this year and received the invitation after beating Indiana State, 26-17, Saturday.

Two other teams were in the running for the bid besides Louisville and East Carolina, Colgate and Army.

Smith: UNC Doesn't Deserve High Rating

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dean Smith, whose Tar Heels are picked as the nation's top team in the Associated Press pre-season college basketball poll, says that selection is an undeserved honor.

"I think that's a great compliment to our program and last year's team. This year's team does not deserve to be ranked that highly," Smith said Sunday. "However, I think we will improve, and our goal of course is to be ranked there at the end of the season."

Riddled by injuries, the Tar Heels overcame Purdue, Notre Dame, Kentucky and Nevada-Las Vegas in last season's NCAA tournament, losing in the finals to Marquette, 67-59. And while All-America guard Phil Ford is back for a senior season, the Tar Heels have lost three starters to graduation — forward Walter Davis and center Tommy LeGarde, who each averaged better than 15 points a game, and guard John Kuester.

"I don't see Davis, LeGarde or Kuester on this roster like a lot of the predictors seem to do," says Smith. "That pre-season prediction is a little like last year when everyone picked Indiana."

The Tar Heels were selected by a nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters, earning 21 first place and 873 total votes. Second-ranked Kentucky was named on the same number of first place ballots, but received 34 fewer total votes. Defending national champion Marquette was a distant third with 581 points.

Ford, a deft, 6-foot-2 ball-handler, returns with an 18.7 point average. His elbow, injured in last year's tournament, has healed but still gives him an occasional twinge, he says.

"I wish Phil Ford could play as long as I coach," Smith says. "He's everything a coach could want in a point guard."

Also back is 6-foot-7 forward Mike O'Koren, a street-toughened New Jersey player who averaged nearly 14 points last season as a freshman. Replacing LeGarde in the middle will be Rich Yonakor, a 6-foot-9 sophomore who earned the maniac label during last season's tournament, or 6-foot-10 sophomore Jeff Wolf.

At the other guard, senior Tom Zaliagiris is a seasoned defensive standout. There are a host of candidates for the other forward, but 6-foot-5 junior Dudley Bradley is expected to start at least in the early season.

"I think we'll be an entirely different team this year," said Ford. "Anytime three of your first five players go to the NBA, you're going to be different."

Beginning his 17th season as head coach, Smith, 46, has a winning percentage of over .750. Under Smith, UNC has won five NCAA Eastern Regional tournaments and has gone five times to the NCAA final four. But the national championship has eluded him.

that Iowa State had accepted the invitation and added: "I think for many years the Peach Bowl has been criticized for bringing in teams too regional in character."

He said the invitation to the Big Eight Conference Cyclones was an attempt "to build a better intersectional game."

Kickoff for the Peach Bowl game is scheduled for noon.

Iowa State is led by Dexter Green, a junior running back who piled up 1,240 yards this season.

North Carolina State finished its 1977 season last week with a record of 7-4.

The Wolfpack has been in the Peach in two previous years. In 1972, they beat West Virginia 49-13 but lost a 13-10 decision to the same team in 1975.

On Sunday, bowl director George Crumbley announced

College Bowl Picture Nearly Settled

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

And then there was one — the Texas Longhorns, college football's only unbeaten and untied major team.

And then there were none — no more bowl openings ... and the Texas Longhorns, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, still aren't sure where they're going.

Oh, Texas is going to a bowl, all right, either the Cotton or the Bluebonnet. The Longhorns trounced Baylor 29-7 Saturday but must tie or beat 14th-ranked

Texas A&M next weekend — the Aggies drubbed Texas Christian 52-23 — for an outright Southwest Conference championship and a spot in the Cotton Bowl against sixth-ranked Notre Dame, which crushed Air Force 49-0.

"We are not concerned that Notre Dame is going to be the guest team," said Texas Coach Fred Akers, who better not be concerned about the Irish until he gets Texas A&M out of the way. "The only team I am concerned about being there is us and we are going to do everything we can to do just that. The Aggies are next."

Texas was left with the only unblemished record among major teams when Colgate, winner of its first 10 games, bowed to Division II Delaware 21-3. At the same time, unbeaten but twice-tied Louisiana Tech was zonked by North Texas State 41-14, but no bowls came calling for the Mean Green Eagles despite a 9-2 record.

By the way, North Texas owns a 24-13 victory over Southern Methodist while Texas defeated the Mustangs 30-14. Not that much difference, is there?

Far from waiting a week, as many had suggested, the bowls all jumped over the weekend — for better or for worse — and every one of the 26 spots was filled by Sunday evening. This is the line-up, with the latest results:

Cotton Bowl — Sixth-ranked Notre Dame, a 49-0 winner over Air Force, vs. either Texas or Texas A&M.

Sugar Bowl — Second-ranked Alabama, idle Saturday, vs. No. 4 Ohio State, a 14-6 loser to Michigan.

Orange Bowl — Third-ranked

Oklahoma or No. 11 Nebraska, who meet Friday, vs. No. 8 Arkansas, which battered SMU 47-7.

Rose Bowl — Fifth-ranked Michigan vs. either No. 19 Washington, a 35-15 winner over Washington State, or No. 20 UCLA, which was idle.

Fiesta Bowl — Ninth-ranked Penn State, idle, vs. No. 12 Arizona State or Colorado State, which upset ASU 25-14.

Gator Bowl — No. 10 Pitt, idle, vs. No. 15 Clemson, which rallied in the final minute to nip South Carolina 31-27.

Tangerine Bowl — No. 13

Florida State, which lost to San Diego State 41-14, vs. No. 16 Texas Tech, a 45-7 loser to Houston.

Liberty Bowl — No. 18 North Carolina, which defeated Duke 16-3 and clinched the Atlantic Coast Conference crown, vs. the loser of Friday's Oklahoma-Nebraska game.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl — The Texas-Texas A&M loser vs. Washington, if the Huskies don't get to the Rose Bowl, or Southern Cal, idle over the weekend.

Sun Bowl — Louisiana State, which nipped Tulane 20-17, vs. Stanford, a 21-3 victor over California.

Peach Bowl — North Carolina State, idle, vs. Iowa State, which turned back Oklahoma State 21-13.

Independence Bowl — Louisiana Tech vs. Louisville, which downed Indiana State 27-16.

Hall of Fame Classic — Minnesota, a 13-7 winner over Wisconsin, vs. Maryland, which blanked Virginia 28-0.

The line-up is somewhat different from last week's reports, when Penn State was said to be a shoo-in for the Orange Bowl with the Oklahoma-Nebraska loser going to the Sun Bowl. The word is that Oklahoma wanted the Sun Bowl and El Paso — i.e., Juarez, Mexico — as a fun trip in the event of a loss but Nebraska refused to go along.

And one of the reasons Arkansas is going to the Orange Bowl is an old Razorback named Barry Switzer, who just happens to coach Oklahoma these days.

"The selection of Arkansas will give us or Nebraska the best possible opponent," said Switzer, who captained Arkansas' 1959 Southwest Conference champs, spent six years there as an assistant coach and helped convince the Orange Bowl to bypass eager Penn State and Pitt, one of whom will be the mythical Eastern champion.

"If Texas does lose to Texas A&M or Notre Dame, and Alabama loses to Ohio State — who we've played and beaten — we could have an opportunity for another national championship," added Switzer, who led Oklahoma to national titles in 1974-75.

Texas, as usual, was led by Earl Campbell, who rushed for 181 yards as the Longhorns avenged last year's 20-10 defeat when the entire team was held to 14 yards on the ground.

Ohio State wasted countless opportunities in failing to score a touchdown against arch-rival Michigan for the second year in a row. Coach Woody Hayes got so upset when the Buckeyes fumbled away their last chance at the Michigan 8-yard line with four minutes left that he uncocked a punch — partially blocked — at an ABC-TV sideline cameraman.

Elsewhere in The Associated Press Top Twenty, seventh-ranked Kentucky, ineligible for a bowl because of NCAA probation, ended a 10-1 season by nipping Tennessee 21-17. And No. 17 Brigham Young, which can take the Western Athletic Conference title but won't go to the Fiesta Bowl because it's being played on a Sunday, edged Long Beach State 30-27 as sophomore sensation Marc Wilson completed 37 of 54 passes — 27 in the first half to tie an NCAA record — for 408 yards and four touchdowns.

Elsewhere, Western Carolina, in its first Southern Conference season, clinched a share of the title by defeating Marshall 37-20 to finish with an over-all 9-1-1 record. VMI, the other co-champ, won a non-league encounter from Rhode Island 20-7.

While Wilson was putting on his usual passing show for BYU, the top rushing performance was turned in by Northern Illinois' Allen Ross, who rambled for 254 yards in a 20-6 triumph over Ohio U. That gave Ross 1,043 for the season and made him the sixth freshman in NCAA history to rush for 1,000 yards.

In other traditional battles, Indiana retained the Old Oaken Bucket by downing Purdue for the second year in a row 21-10 — that last happened in 1946-47 — Mississippi State beat Mississippi 18-14, Kansas defeated Missouri for the third straight time 24-22 and Oregon whipped Oregon State 28-16.

Woody Peeler

The 1977 football season at East Carolina is over now, as the Independence Bowl has gone elsewhere for an opponent to face Louisiana Tech.

The Pirates, for another year, have finished with frustration in their hearts as Louisville was chosen for the post-season game.

It seems like every year for the past six, the Bucs have been in the running for some sort of bid, but nothing has ever come of it.

Perhaps the killing note for the Pirates was their loss to William & Mary last weekend. If the Pirates had been able to pull that one out, they might have gotten the call at last.

Losing three games by a total of nine points puts the Pirates at a disadvantage with other teams with more known names which have poorer records. And a number of teams with less-perfect marks were chosen to bowls.

In all probability, had the Pirates won one, two, or even all three of those contests—all of which they probably could have, a bowl invitation would have been a certainty—and it would have been to one of the bigger bowls too, along with national ranking.

It's something next year's team will have as its goal for sure. It's a goal that could have been reached this year. We hope it will be next year.

Once A Fan, etc...

The Pirates found that they had a little help last Saturday when they were playing William & Mary, when former coach Jim Johnson darted off the sidelines to throw a body block into William — Mary's Tom Rozantz.

The 65-year-old Johnson, who now lives in Virginia Beach, Va., apparently was just overcome by the prospect of seeing his old team lose in an upset.

Rozantz is quoted as saying the hit by Johnson, which knocked him head over heels into the end zone, was one of the hardest he took all day.

Johnson called Indian coach Jim Root last Monday after the game to apologize. He told Root that he just got carried away. "I knew nobody else could get him—I just had to do something."

Root offered Johnson, and he accepted, a sideline pass for this past Saturday's game with Richmond.

As far as is known now, there were no more "off the bench" tackles this week.

Johnson, who was head coach from 1946-48, had a 7-18-1 record at East Carolina, and was the first coach the team had following the end of World War II, which saw the Pirates not fielding a team for four years.

Round-Ball Season Starts

Saturday afternoon, East Carolina University's new basketball coach, Larry Gillman, will get his first taste of action against someone other than his own team, as the Bucs open the season against tough Indiana.

That game will probably tell a lot about the fortunes of the Pirates.

Gillman has said that the team is in awe of no one, with the possible exception of himself. If one is to be awed, it just might be before 18,000 Hoosier fans in Bobby Knight country.

The first home game, however, will be against a less-awesome foe, UNC-Wilmington, while Alderson-Broadus follows the Seahawks in.

Then, it's back on the road for Maryland and the First Union Tournament in Charlotte.

By the time the Pirates finish that road trip, which also includes a trip to Raleigh to meet State before the holidays, there will be a definite trend established.

And we will know just what can be expected from the Pirates the rest of the year.

Brewers Shake-Up

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Harry Dalton, who built a baseball dynasty at Baltimore in the late 1960s, has taken over as Milwaukee Brewers' general manager after a stunning weekend purge in which General Manager Jim Baumer resigned and Manager Alex Grammas and player development chief Al Widmar were fired.

Dalton, California Angels' general manager since Oct. 27, 1971, will be given virtually a free hand to strengthen a team that has not been close to a winning season since its inception as the Seattle Pilots in 1969.

Baumer, Grammas and Widmar were victims of the Brewers' most disappointing season since the club moved here in 1970. Despite high hopes and a typically fast start, the Brewers faded in early June and finished sixth in the American League East with a 67-95 record.

Baumer, general manager since 1974, said he resigned Friday night and had been thinking about it for two weeks. He has been offered a job of an unspecified nature in the Brewer organization. If he accepts, he probably would assume Widmar's former duties.

Grammas, former Cincinnati Reds' coach hired by the Brewers' two years ago, will be paid in full for the year remaining on his contract.

The purge was disclosed in an exclusive story by Hank Stoddard, sports director of WTMJ-TV, Saturday night. Grammas said he learned of his firing Friday night, hours after the Brewers had held a news conference to introduce former Minnesota Twins' outfielder Larry Hisle, whom they had signed as one of the plums in baseball's free agent re-entry draft.

"We are grieved by the whole situation, but we concluded after months of long and agonizing thought that it simply was time for a change," Brewers President Bud Selig said.

Dalton, 49, joined the Baltimore organization in 1953 and was named the Orioles' player personnel chief in 1965. In his six years in that capacity, the team that had moved to Baltimore as the rag-tag St. Louis Browns in 1953 won four American League pennants and two World Series. He was named major league executive of the year in 1970.

Dalton is considered one of baseball's shrewdest judges of talent. The farm system he developed produced the nucleus of the Orioles' championship teams of the late 1960s and early 1970s, and he supplemented that talent with trades for stars such as Frank Robinson, Mike Cuellar and Don Buford.

Dalton's first task will be to seek a new manager. There was speculation a leading candidate is Robinson, former slugger who in 1975 was appointed by the Cleveland Indians as the major leagues' first black manager. After the Indians fired him in midseason this year, Dalton signed him for the Angels as batting coach.

Even Zone Fails To Help Lakers

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers couldn't do anything right against the Chicago Bulls — not even play a zone defense.

The zone, of course, is illegal in the National Basketball Association. The Lakers were hit with a technical foul for playing it Friday night and were warned about using it again Sunday night.

But even when they had the thing in operation, it didn't do them any good. The Bulls shot 43 per cent from the floor and breezed by Los Angeles 102-80.

"We felt we had to beat their zone defense by not standing around and moving the ball," said Chicago Coach Ed Badger. "I like the formation myself. I'd vote for the zone if it came to a league vote."

The Laker defense wasn't the only thing that went bad. Their offense was almost nonexistent, especially in the first quarter when Los Angeles scored only six points, an all-time low for the club.

In other NBA action, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Detroit Pistons 119-101; the Denver Nuggets stopped the New Jersey Nets 125-118; the Phoenix Suns turned back the San Antonio Spurs 134-112, and the Cleveland Cavaliers whipped the Seattle SuperSonics 115-108.

Artis Gilmore scored a season-high 38 points to lead Chicago's victory over Los Angeles. The Lakers committed nine turnovers and made only three of 24 field goal attempts in the first quarter. The Bulls, meanwhile, made 12 of 26 floor shots in the opening period to take a runaway 28-6 lead. The Lakers' previous low for a period was on two occasions.

Trail Blazers 119, Pistons 101

Bill Walton scored 32 points as Portland rallied to beat Detroit. Reserve Corky Calhoun added 24 points as the Blazers took their 27th straight home victory over two seasons.

Nuggets 125, Nets 118

David Thompson had 33 points and Denver outscored New Jersey 37-23 in the final period to beat the Nets. Bernard King led New Jersey with 32 points, but was held to three in the fourth period, when the Nets lost a seven-point advantage they held after three quarters.

Suns 134, Spurs 112

Alvan Adams scored 32 points in just 23 minutes of playing time to pace Phoenix over San Antonio. The victory was the fourth straight for the Suns, who had a team record 14 steals in the first two periods.

Cavaliers 115, Sonics 108

Foots Walker and Campy Russell scored 20 points apiece as Cleveland snapped a two-game losing streak by beating Seattle. Fred Brown scored 31 points as the Sonics dropped their fourth in a row.

Rose, N. Pitt To Scrimmage

Rose High School's basketball team will host North Pitt in a scrimmage game tomorrow night at 7 p.m. The game will be at the Rose High gym and admission is $1.

DASHER OUTCLASSES MERCEDES 280E AND ROLLS-ROYCE IN SURPRISING WAYS.

We thought that headline might grab you. Interestingly enough, it's true.

The Dasher Sedans are our most sumptuous cars; they outclass some very classy machines in some very surprising ways.

If you own a Mercedes-Benz 280E, you'll be depressed to discover that the Dasher 2-door Sedan with standard transmission not only goes from 0 to 50 miles per hour quicker than the Mercedes*, but carries more in its trunk.

If you're about to spring for a Rolls-Royce, hold the phone. The Dasher holds more in its trunk than the Rolls, too.

*With automatic transmission.

Fine as they may be, neither the Mercedes nor the Rolls has front-wheel drive. The Dasher does, and it makes all the difference in poor driving conditions.

The Mercedes, the Rolls and the Dasher do have their similarities. All 3 have dignified interiors, with handsome, thoughtful appointments like reclining bucket seats, remote control outside mirrors and quartz electric clocks.

But only the Dasher has a right there up front.

Four ACC Teams Get Bowls

By BILL WELCH
Associated Press Writer
"This is a reward," North Carolina coach Bill Dooley exclaimed as his Tar Heels, jubilant after a closing victory over Duke, accepted an invitation to the Liberty Bowl.

"It's a reward for winning the Atlantic coast Conference championship — for a good year in general," he said. "I consider the Liberty Bowl the fifth largest of the bowls, and playing either Oklahoma or Nebraska will be a real challenge. It's prestige for us."

The 18th ranked Tar Heels, who whipped Duke 16-3 Saturday, will be one of a record four Atlantic Coast Conference schools in post-season bowls this year. No. 15 Clemson, second-place finisher in the ACC with an 8-2-1 overall record, accepted a bid to the Gator Bowl against Pitt, 8-1-1, on Dec. 30, after escaping embarrassment with a 31-27 come-from-behind win over South Carolina.

Also going to bowls are North Carolina State and Maryland, both 7-4 and the third and fourth finishers in the ACC. The Wolfpack accepted a bid to the Peach Bowl in Atlanta Dec. 31, against Iowa State, 8-3. The Terps will go to the first Hall of Fame Classic in Birmingham, Ala., where they will meet Minnesota, also 7-4, on Dec. 22.

North Carolina is expected to meet the loser of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game Friday.

It's the first time ever that four ACC schools have gone to bowls, topping the 1974 season when three went. And only the Southwest Conference has as many teams in bowls this year.

The bids came as the regular season ended in the ACC, with Maryland drubbing Virginia 28-0 and Wake Forest losing 28-10 to Virginia Tech in other games. N.C. State ended its regular season last week.

Maryland's trip to Birmingham will be a step down from last year's Cotton Bowl appearance. But N.C. State's bowl trip is a triumph for second-year coach Bo Rein, who went 3-7-1 last season and was thought to have little job security after an opening loss to East Carolina.

"We are a good football team but I don't think we've played our best game yet," he said. "We're thankful to the Peach Bowl for giving us the opportunity to play another game."

The UNC victory gave Dooley his third ACC title in 11 years, and the bowl trip will be the Tar Heels' sixth during the Dooley years. Maryland's appearance in Birmingham will be the fifth consecutive bowl trip for the Terps.

CLEMSON 31, S.C. 27
"You've been wanting some respectability," Tiger coach Charley Pell told his team after accepting the Gator Bowl bid. "Well, Pittsburgh was national champion last year, and now you're going to get a crack at them."

But Clemson came inches from losing that bid, or at least going into that game after a loss. Up 24-0, the Tigers watched their lead dwindle and then fall behind as the Gamecocks exploded for 27 points.

Then, trailing by three, quarterback Steve Fuller lofted a 20-yard pass that end Jerry Butler caught for a touchdown with 49 seconds remaining.

"We were lucky to win the game the way we did," observed Fuller. "But I think we've got a better team than they do."

The win ended an amazing season for the Tigers in Pell's first year. Last year Clemson had a 3-6-2 record and was in last place in the ACC.

yards and won the ACC season rushing title with 1,210 yards. He scored the only touchdown on a one-yard run, and Tom Biddle added three field goals.

Duke quarterback Mike Dunn found his option shot off by Carolina. He was hurt in the final quarter, being taken from the game by ambulance, but doctors at Duke Medical Center said Sunday there was a temporary nerve injury with no permanent effects.

The season ended 5-6 for Duke, but no announcement was made on whether coach Mike McGee would keep his job. McGee said he had no plans to resign.

MARYLAND 28, VIRGINIA 0
"We're disappointed we didn't win the conference championship, but I'm proud of the way we overcame so many injuries," Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne said after the game.

George Scott rushed for 173 yards for the Terps and caught a 13-yard pass for a touchdown. The Terps led 14-0 at the half, then added two more scores during a 45-second span in the third quarter, when Mickey Dudish scored from one yard out and Alvin Maddox scored from the two following a fumble recovery.

"The kids made a great comeback after losing three of the first four games," Claiborne said.

borne said. "Our only loss in the last seven was to North Carolina, and that game could have gone either way."

Virginia ended its season 1-9-1 in sixth place in the ACC.

VPI 28, WAKE FOREST 19
"We didn't play very well, but I thought we were better than the way we played this year," said Wake Coach Chuck Mills, whose Deacons ended the season 1-10 and in the conference cellar. "The kids probably worked harder this year than last. We just got off on the wrong track and never got back on it."

Wake held a 10-7 lead at the half, but gave up three second half touchdowns to end the season 1-10. Sophomore fullback Mike Fitzgerald scored three touchdowns as the Gobblers won their second game of the season.

Chargerettes Might Be ECC Team To Beat

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's girls' basketball team came up with the big finish last season, knocking off two seeded teams to capture the Eastern Carolina Conference post-season tournament.

This year, the Chargers, who lost only two starters, may be the ones to beat.

Coach Debra Pfeil isn't laying claim to any championships, yet, however. But she does feel that the Chargerettes should be among the top four teams in the league.

With only a 10-14 record, Ayden-Grifton finished fifth among the eight teams in the league last year, but then put on the fantastic finish that beat regular season champion Farmville Central in the semifinals.

Three of the starters from that team are back, giving Miss Pfeil a good nucleus to build around.

Chief among these is 6-0 Karen Haseley, back for her senior year. An All-Conference and All-Tournament selection, Miss Pfeil feels Haseley has made progress since last year, but admits that she needs more work on her shooting. "I'm hopeful that she'll make things happen for us. We look to her to be our scoring and rebounding leader."

Joining Haseley in the starting lineup will be sophomore guard Aretha Cannon, who saw a lot of action last year. Miss Pfeil terms her a good shooter.

Also back is Rex Ann Thorne, a senior, who is stronger on defense than on offense. "She passes well, and will score some," Miss Pfeil said.

The other two starting berths are uncertain as yet, but Miss Pfeil currently leans toward senior Vivian Ellis, and Shandra Brock. Both saw action some last year, and right now appear ahead of the others.

Top backups are likely to be Debbie O'Neal, who did not play last year; Mary Rowe, who was the back-up center last year, but who will probably play forward this year; Irene Lewis, a sophomore; and transfer Amy Kilpatrick.

The others on the team are all freshmen except for Marie Lewis, Irene's twin, who may come along.

With Haseley's 6-0 height, the Chargerettes have good rebounding power. "We've got two freshman near 6-0, too, and O'Neal is close to 5-9 and a good jumper. So we should be able to rebound well if we are aggressive on the boards."

In the conference, Miss Pfeil is uncertain who will rule the roost. "I think Aycock will be strong, and it returns its leading scorer. North Pitt will have most of the people who played for them back, too."

As to Ayden-Grifton, she looks for the team to be in the battle for one of the top four positions. "I'm not going to say we'll win the conference, but I think we can have a good season."

"We're just now starting to blend together, and this is important. Once we get to working together, we will come along and be okay."

"We can't rely on Karen totally, or people will gang up to stop her. We have to open up the outside scoring. If we can find someone to replace Vertha Dixon, then this will make us much stronger."

It not only might make the Chargerettes much stronger, it might make them champions again.

Hayes: No Apologies In Punching Incident

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes' punching of a national television cameraman has stirred another storm of criticism from the media.

The Ohio State football coach, livid over quarterback Rod Gerald's fumble in the waning minutes of a 14-6 loss at Michigan, struck ABC-TV's Mike Freedman.

"I make no apologies," Hayes told his weekly Columbus television audience hours after the incident Saturday. "I'm doggone tired of cameras being pushed in my face."

Freedman said Hayes swung a right-handed blow at his stomach. The cameraman said he blocked the punch with his elbow while he was operating a hand-held camera near the Ohio State bench.

"I'm not pressing charges," said the Los Angeles-based Freedman, "unless somebody can tell me how to get $8 million."

"I'm just an ordinary guy trying to make a living. I have as much right on the sidelines as he does."

Sports writers and broadcasters did not dismiss the incident so lightly.

One writer asked Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke if he planned any action. A broadcaster suggested Ohio State Athletic Director Hugh Hindman do something.

Columnist Joe Falls of the Detroit Free Press termed it a pitiful performance "for a man who is supposed to be a leader of youth."

Falls, in his Sunday column, said he witnessed the incident through his binoculars and later asked Duke about it in the Michigan Stadium press box.

"Duke said he hadn't seen it and offered only three comments: 'No comment, no comment, no comment.'"

"If ABC tolerates such action," added the columnist, "it should be ashamed of itself. Its man was only doing his duty."

Jerry Green, a Detroit News columnist, wrote in Sunday editions, "... it was a day when Woody Hayes should have returned to the nursery playpen to tattle with his rattles."

Hayes did not escape the pens of Ohio writers, either.

"I felt sorry for the old boy," wrote Hal Lebovitz, sports editor of the Cleveland Plains Dealer "when he went after an ABC-TV cameraman who was focusing on him. In that moment of anguish, he wanted privacy."

"Of course, he couldn't be forgiven completely because he isn't in a private business. But he had to swing out at somebody in his frustration — and in typical Hayes fashion he did."

Power Drive

For the crew in the cockpit, offshore power boat racing is a rough ride—handling the wheel is like trying to hang on to a bucking bronco. For the watcher, it's hardly a tranquil experience, either, as these photographs of the fourth annual San Francisco Power Boat Race show. The 181-mile course takes the boats from San Francisco Bay out into the Pacific Ocean on three separate legs—that means six times under the Golden Gate Bridge. The boats' two- or three-man crews stay on their feet all the time, as they drive their 5-ton projectiles, usually from 28 to 40 feet long, capable of speeds up to 90 miles per hour. In this race an average speed of 69.6 miles per hour was clocked. The winner was Preston Henn of Pompano Beach, Fla., in his boat, Streaker.

Creating Realistic Movie Versions Of Viet War

EDITOR'S NOTE — Television crews filmed only what they could in the thick of the Vietnam war. Today, moviemakers are staging realistic battles, and if cinematic history is any guide this fiction may one day assume a greater reality for Americans than the actual events.

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK (AP) — A desperate and panicked mob hurled itself through barbed wire, swearing and grappling with burly men in flak jackets guarding "the Embassy of the United States."

A jeep careens out of the gate and bicycles and bodies fly in the wake of the rat-a-tat of a machine gun. Men, women and children in traditional Vietnamese dress are pummeled by guards, punching and swinging the butts of their M16's as they try to hold the wall against the human wave.

"If it gets any more realistic I'm getting out of here," one man says. But the cry of "cut" is barked over the megaphone in Bangkok and the crew takes a break.

The melee was the filming of the American evacuation of Saigon — 867 days after it happened — and the "Embassy" was the look-alike St. Gabriel's School for Boys on a sun-baked Bangkok street.

The movie, "The Deer Hunters," is one of the first of a coming wave of films about the Vietnam war after virtual celluloid silence. Only the hawkish "Green Berets" with super-patriot John Wayne, emerged during the war years.

"The Deer Hunters" is a story about five blue-collar buddies from a steel town in the Alleghenies and stars Oscar winner Robert De Niro. The "Vietnamese" crashing the embassy are $6-a-day extras.

"The coming Vietnam war movies are more than just a trend," says writer-director Michael Cimino. "It's like a person beginning psychiatric analysis. There's a need to dig up the past and analyze it ... it was inevitable."

The pioneer effort in this wave was "Apocalypse Now," directed by Francis Ford Coppola of "The Godfather." He marshalled a veritable army in The Philippines to stage his $25 million epic starring Marlon Brando and due for release next month.

Others in the upcoming wave include:

— "Coming Home," in which Jane Fonda plays a woman torn between her veteran-husband and a paraplegic war victim.

— "Heroes," which traces a mentally disturbed veteran on a trip across America in search of a dream.

— "Dog Soldiers," starring Nick Nolte, moves from Saigon to the American counter-culture of the early '70s.

— "Rolling Thunder," which deals with a prisoner of war who seeks to avenge the murders of his wife and son.

"The Boys in Company C," a Swedish-American film starring Glenn Ford, Elke Sommer and Sammy Davis Jr. that tells the story of five Marines as they go from basic training to combat.

"The Fifth," which centers on a Vietnam deserter who finds violence in Sweden.

There are also reports of a sequel to "American Graffiti," in which some of the characters go off to Vietnam, and a film version of "A Rumor of War," the autobiographical account of Vietnam by journalist Phil Caputo.

Why now? "Most of us in this country experienced the Vietnam war only by reading or hearing about it or seeing it on television," says Jerome Hellman, producer of "Coming Home." "Our lives were affected only peripherally — a friend or a relative killed. Now filmmakers are trying to interpret that experience in its varied aspect." King Vidor, who made "The Big Parade" seven years after the World War I armistice was signed, says from Hollywood: "You can't deal with a war with any honesty when it's going on. The national feeling is so strong that objectivity in a war movie is impossible."

Cimino says his movie and almost all of the others are about people. "Francis (Coppola) is making a political comment. My movie is apolitical. It's about friendship and courage and what happens to these qualities under stress.

"War is war. Vietnam is no different from the Crusades. What's important is what happened to the guys on the ground. Who cares about seeing 10,000 helicopter assaults? That's spectacle. We know all that from television."

Despite his claims that his $8-million movie, one-third of it set in Vietnam, will be "neutral as hell," Cimino says it may carry a few "messages."

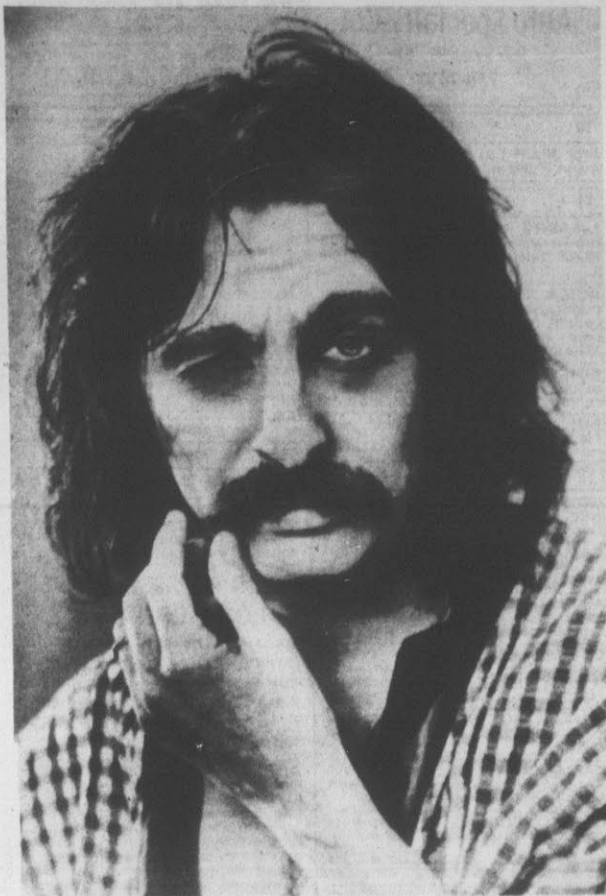

"Working-class, blue-collar guys who volunteered for Vietnam were ascribed certain political beliefs. It's time that this was redressed. It had nothing to do with politics. Once these men got to Vietnam, it was a matter of survival."

The 36-year-old Cimino also believes this war forced Americans into a national insight they never had before.

"In some deep way we have become part of the human community. We gave up a feeling of kind of being above it all, more special than others. I hope we've gained in humility and compassion for others."

In Thailand, Cimino and De Niro, who normally ducks the press, sought out reporters who had covered the Vietnam war to gain insight and accuracy. Some newsmen played themselves in the evacuation sequence, acting the roles they actually played when the bullets were for real.

Cooper, in town for a day's shooting on the surreal Beatles-tribute film "Sgt. Pepper," said the treatment "is based on physical therapy, after they de-toxify you; and I'm going back for another three weeks." (AP Laser-photo)

Nine Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Nine persons died in weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina, including an infant boy and two others killed in a single wreck in Granville County Sunday.

Seven-month-old Joshua Swain and Lawrence Ray Aiken, 41, both of Butler, and Joey Warren Burt, 20, of Creedmoor were killed in a head-on crash on a curve of a rural paved road about three miles east of Creedmoor. Two others were hurt.

The Highway Patrol said the weekend accidents raised the state's death toll for 1977 to 1,266, compared to 1,318 at this time last year.

Jonathan Moore, 24, of Candor in Montgomery County was killed when the car he was driving ran off a rural paved road about six miles south of Candor at 11:50 p.m. Saturday.

Henry Thomas Eddins, 86, of Rt. 5, Durham, was killed Friday evening when he was struck by a car while walking along Interstate 85 in Durham.

Edward Allen Johnson, 37, of Hamlet perished shortly before 4 a.m. Saturday in a head-on collision about three miles south of Rockingham on an unpaved road.

A single-car accident inside the Clinton city limits claimed the life of Mary Renee Warren, 17, of Clinton. She lost control of the car she was driving and it ran off the road, the patrol said.

Also killed in a single-car accident was Terry Millard Mathis, 18, of Rockwell River. The accident occurred on an unpaved rural road near Wilkesboro when the vehicle Mathis was driving left the road and overturned.

Aaron Earl Everett, 20, of Wake Forest died Friday night when he was struck by a car while lying across U.S. 1A south of Wake Forest.

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Remember, partner did not have enough strength to respond to your opening bid. You can expect to find him with nothing more than a long diamond suit — at least six cards — and inadequate heart support.

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 1NT Pass
Pass Dble. Pass 2 ♠
Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Think for a moment: What hand could partner possibly have that would warrant a pass of an opening one heart bid at his right followed by a strong cue-bid on the third-round of the auction, opposite a partner who could be very weak? There isn't any. So the only explanation for the bidding is that partner has a heart suit.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ1062 ♥76532 ♦9 ♠74
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 1 ♦ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—This is close. We would be inclined to bid a quiet two hearts. However, we do not object to the more aggressive four hearts — there are a number of minimum hands partner could hold that would give him excellent play for game. The one thing to avoid is a penalty double. That action is seldom sound when you have length in partner's suit, and here it could drive the opponents to a better spot.

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner's rebid is not forcing. In fact, it tends to show a hand that is rather weak in high-card points for its original two-over-one response but with a long suit as compensation. Partner can't be as good as six clubs to the A-Q-J and an outside entry. Indeed, if he does not have the ace of clubs, his hand might produce almost no tricks at a no trump contract.

Merit Cigarette Sets New Taste Standard.

Tests confirm low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes.

There is a way to get real taste from a cigarette without high tar.

Technology created it.

Taste tests proved it.

Smokers are confirming it.

In fact, 75% of all MERIT smokers are former high tar cigarette smokers—the toughest taste critics of low tar smoking.

MERIT—the cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco—seems to be solving the smoker dilemma of having to choose between high tar or low taste.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug. '77
100's: 12 mg "tar," 0.9 mg nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Tests Prove Taste

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.
