Israel Will Attend Cairo Conference

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin announced Israel's acceptance today of an invitation to the preliminary peace conference in Cairo next weekend and named two senior officials as Israel's negotiators.

Begin told Parliament he personally signed the Israeli reply, which would be transmitted to Egypt through Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Chaim Herzog.

In Cairo, acting Egyptian Foreign Minister Butros B. Ghali said an invitation had been sent to Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The invitation to the PLO was handed to Ahmed Sidky Dajani, a member of the PLO central committee, Ghali said in a telephone interview. Palestinian sources confirmed that Dajani left for Beirut with the invitation.

PLO spokesmen have declared they will not attend the Cairo meeting, but there has been no direct response from Arafat. A spokesman for Begin said Sunday Israel will not go to Cairo if the PLO does.

Begin named Dr. Eliahu BenElissar, director-general of the prime minister's office, and Meir Rosenne, the Foreign Ministry's legal adviser, to represent Israel in Cairo.

He said that "if it becomes necessary to expand our delegation, we will do so."

Begin went before the Knesset, or Parliament, to discuss Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's call for the preliminary conference and to recapitulate the events of Sadat's historic visit to Israel.

Begin said that after receiving an invitation to the conference through his U.N. ambassador, he consulted by telephone with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, on a visit to West Germany, and then named the Israeli delegates.

"Last night," Begin said, "two ambassadors met, shook hands and said shalom to each other. They were the Egyptian and Israeli ambassadors to the United Nations. The first gave the second a letter, and this is its content."

Begin then read the content of the invitation from Ghali and announced his acceptance.

Syria, Israel's other military adversary, joined Libya and Algeria in lining up a rival meeting of Sadat's Arab opponents. The Egyptian president said he would negotiate "with the Israelis alone" if other Arab nations refused to come to Cairo.

Rhodesians Strike At Guerrilla Bases Inside Mozambique

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian government reported today that its ground and air forces have destroyed two guerrilla bases in Mozambique and killed at least 1,200 black nationalists.

A military command statement said the bases were used by Rhodesian black nationalist guerrillas fighting to topple the white minority government.

Troops backed by air support penetrated 132 miles inside Mozambique at one point during raids in the past several days, the military communique said.

The military communique confirmed earlier reports from Mozambique that Rhodesian air and ground attacks had been launched against guerrilla positions in the neighboring country.

Observers noted that if 1,200 guerrillas have been slain in the raids starting last Wednesday, a fifth of the forces of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union forces known to be based in Mozambique have been wiped out.

Informed sources said, meanwhile, that three moderate nationalist leaders have agreed to meet with

Prime Minister Ian Smith for talks that could lead to black rule.

The other chief leader of nationalist forces outside Rhodesia, Joshua Nkomo, rejected Smith's promise of elections with universal suffrage as a "deceit" to win time.

In a surprise announcement Thursday, Smith offered to open talks immediately with moderate black leaders living inside Rhodesia and promised elections with universal suffrage in exchange for guarantees safeguarding the interests of the 268,000 whites.

Informed sources said Smith's offer was accepted by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, head of the African National Council; the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who leads a faction that broke away from the African National Council, and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, president of the Zimbabwe United People's Organization.

Government officials expect the talks to begin this week.

Smith said Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the other leader of the guerrilla Patriotic Front, could also participate if they renounced violence.

British Foreign Secretary David Owen gave cautious approval to Smith's proposals, saying the elections he promised must be "demonstrably free and fair." But U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, Owen's partner in the recent British-American peace initiative, said negotiations without Nkomo and Mugabe would intensify the five-year-old guerrilla war.

Meanwhile, neighboring Mozambique claimed Rhodesian ground and air troops were attacking guerrilla bases in that black-ruled nation. There were unconfirmed reports that at least 600 guerrillas had been killed in fighting near Chimio, 75 miles east of the Rhodesian border.

Wintry Storm Tapers

By The Associated Press
Heavy snow that socked portions of the nation at the close of the Thanksgiving holiday tapered off early today.

In many areas, the snow was not as heavy as expected. In New Jersey, for instance, most areas received only about a quarter-inch of snow before the storm passed. The National Weather Service said the reason was that the storm had moved through the state much faster than had been expected.

More than 460 persons died on the nation's highways and streets during the Thanksgiving holiday period, which stretched from Wednesday evening through Sunday. The National Safety Council had predicted between 460 and 560 fatalities.

The storm hit hardest in the Midwest, western New York State and western Pennsylvania.

Six inches of snow were recorded at the Metropolitan Airport outside of Detroit between Sunday noon and early this morning, when the fall tapered off to flurries. The streets of Detroit suburbs were so slippery that taxi companies were refusing to take calls.

In Alpena, Mich., along Lake Huron, nearly 7 inches of snow was recorded and another 2 inches was expected today.

Motorists stranded in Carville, Tenn., on Interstate 75 north of Knoxville, slept in motel lobbies, a church, an elementary school and on the floor of a coin-operated laundry.

Sen. John L. McClellan Dies Today In His Sleep

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, the Southern conservative who became a national figure through his investigations into labor unions and organized crime, died today in his sleep. He was 81.

McClellan's aides said the senator's body was found by his wife about 6:30 a.m. at their Little Rock apartment.

The Arkansas Democrat, who had served in the Senate for 35 years and ranked second in seniority, had announced last week that he would not seek another term when his sixth term ended Jan. 3, 1979.

The senator would have been two months from his 83rd birthday when his Senate term ended. He had been in public office for half a century.

McClellan had a pacemaker implanted to regulate his heartbeat last summer. Last Monday when he announced his decision to retire, McClellan said his health was not a factor in his plans. He said it would have been a major concern had he chosen to seek re-election.

As head of the Senate Appropriations Committee, McClellan oversaw billions in federal spending. The defense budget usually fared well under him.

McClellan's law-and-order reputation grew in the 1950s when he took over the Senate permanent Investigations subcommittee on the death of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

McClellan was second in seniority in the Senate to James O. Eastland, D-Miss. Both men were sworn in the same day, but a Senate rule gives higher seniority to the senator from a state in the union longer. Mississippi became a state before Arkansas.

McClellan was known during his long career in the Senate as a law-and-order man and as a relentless investigator of wrongdoing in and out of government.

McClellan was first elected to the Senate in 1942 after two terms in the House. He was chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee since August 1972.

The time-consuming responsibilities of that post forced him to give up the helm of the Senate's permanent investigations subcommittee, which he had chaired for a record 18 years, from January 1955 to January 1973.

14,989 Refunds

The Greenville Utilities Commission yesterday mailed 14,989 refund checks to local area residents refunding the deferred fuel surcharge disallowed Virginia Electric and Power Co. by the Federal Power Commission.

The refunds, which totaled $712,968, were for the period December 1975 to September 1976 at the rate of 2.24 mills per kilowatt hour of power consumed during that period.

Curtis Howell said no checks for less than $1 were mailed. The largest refund, he noted, went to East Carolina University, which received a refund totaling $59,770.37.

Howell noted that the commission still has several thousand checks that were not mailed, "because we don't know where these people are." He said individuals who were GUC customers during that period who do not receive a refund check can check at the commission's office.

The Federal Power Commission ordered VEPCO to refund the deferred fuel surcharge in August.

The Pitt County Commissioners have designated the former nurses' quarters and inservice education center on the old Pitt Memorial Hospital grounds as the county's new Senior Citizens Center.

"The building is in good condition and will be a tremendous asset to the county and its senior citizens," Pitt County Council on Aging Director Jeff McAllister said, "—if we can get it furnished."

McAllister has asked Hotline to appeal to the public to donate a desk, chairs, a piano, a tv set, bookcases, books, crafts items, games, magazine subscriptions and back copies — whatever might be useful to make the new Center a place where Pitt County senior citizens can enjoy spending time.

He said he hopes the Center can begin being used around the first of 1978.

Anyone having anything to donate is asked to call Polly Dail or McAllister at 752-1717 or Volunteer Greenville at 752-4137, Ext. 285.

Annual Testing Plan Ahead For Greenville Pupils

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Second Of Two Parts

Questions concerning the quality of education, including students' basic achievement levels, have recently hit home.

Local and state educators have taken measures to ease the public's concern for their children's schooling.

And although they admit that many variables enter into the picture when qualifying the state's educational system, some educators feel that concern in this area is valid.

The lack of achievement by North Carolina students has resulted in a new statewide testing program, according to Glenn Cox, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools.

The General Assembly last session passed two bills, one on annual testing and one on competitive testing, said Cox.

"The annual test will be given to all students in grades 1,2,3,6, and 9. The competitive test will be given this year to 11th graders on a pilot basis in order to set norms."

Cox added that annual testing is also based on set national norms.

According to Cox, if high school students do not pass the competency test, "They don't get their diplomas."

Testing plans will be implemented on Dec. 15, with the competency test being offered Feb. 27-March 10, and the annual test being given from April 4-19.

"This is the first time this will be given on a statewide basis," he added.

Cox said that he feels standard tests are good for the school system.

"We need something like this. It gives us some sense of direction."

According to Ott Alford, superintendent of the Pitt County Schools, approximately 35-40 percent of the county students who take the standardized tests will not pass.

He added that he personally supports standardized tests, even though Pitt County students' scores have not been very high in the past.

Ann Burkes, chairperson for the English and Social Science departments and Coordinator of Reading at Pitt Technical Institute, said she believes that statewide test should be used in predicting scores for the area in which it is given.

If the scores are taken into account for several years, they will show a trend of either consistently high or low scores as compared to the national average.

Burkes added that there are many factors to be taken into account when comparing test scores in different areas of the country or different areas of the state.

Predictive scores would allow for different environmental factors, such as whether the area is urban or rural, and other socio-economic variables.

"This would be a much fairer way of doing it," she added.

In predictive testing, the individual schools could measure themselves against the national average, but more importantly, they could use the figures to see if the present year's scores compared to previous years.

Alford added that one disadvantage of the national tests is that, in comparing their progress against the national average, a quite capable teacher may become discouraged.

"She may have made tremendous progress, and this would depress her. All children can't compete with the national standards," he said.

Cox said that the "average level of attainment has not risen based on the increase in the variety of population."

He added that there is a "much broader base of students, including the handicapped...a larger variety of students in school than in the past."

Local educators backed Cox's

Wallace Divorce Issues Argued

By JON BIXBY
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Legal issues stalling divorce proceedings between Gov. and Mrs. George C. Wallace are to be argued in public today as attorneys for both sides appear before the Court of Civil Appeals.

It will be the first time formal court proceedings in the politically volatile divorce case will be open to the public and press — the only restriction being a shortage of seats in the small courtroom.

Wallace's attorneys are seeking to keep the divorce proceedings behind closed doors in an apparent attempt to minimize the effect of the court action on the 58-year-old governor's anticipated campaign for the U.S. Senate in 1978.

Court Judge John W. Davis III from presiding over the divorce case on grounds of bias.

They also are seeking to assure that all future proceedings in the divorce action are open to the public.

Mrs. Wallace, 38, contends that Davis is biased in her husband's favor because of his personal and political ties to the governor.

They cite Wallace's appointment of Davis to the bench in 1975 and the fact that the judge's father, Dr. John W. Davis Jr., a Montgomery urologist, has attended the partially paralyzed governor.

Although Davis has refused to step down, Wallace's attorneys have agreed to have the case transferred to another judge, without formal recusal proceedings.

But Mrs. Wallace's attorneys rejected that approach, contending it would circumvent court procedures and provide an "escape hatch" for the judge.

News coverage of the divorce case has been an issue ever since Sept. 20, when Davis conducted the first pretrial conference behind the closed door of his office at the Montgomery County Courthouse.

It was at that conference, a transcript of which has since been made public, that Mrs. Wallace's attorneys asked Davis to let the news media in and, at the same time, step down from the case.

The public first became aware of the Wallaces' marital problems in September 1976 when the governor confirmed reports that his bedroom telephone had been bugged.

Mrs. Wallace, the attractive dark-haired niece of former Gov. James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, subsequently assumed responsibility for the bugging incident. She said she took the action to protect herself from "destructive rumors" being circulated by her enemies.

A year later, the rift widened as Mrs. Wallace moved out of the white-columned Governor's Mansion, saying she could no longer endure her husband's "vulgarity, threats and abuse."

It was Wallace who first filed for divorce, six days after his wife moved out, citing "incompatibility" and an "irretrievable breakdown" of the six-year-old marriage.

In her cross suit, Mrs. Wallace accused the governor of committing "actual violence and cruelty" against her and of failing to provide her with sufficient funds to meet the "normal and even basic needs of a wife."

Nightclub Gun Blasts Left Ten Hospitalized

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The nightclub was packed — mostly parents and children — for Dave Wingert's puppet show. The lights were dimming, and Wingert promised "something new and different."

Then came a sound like firecrackers — and a stunned moment or two before it sank in that this was not part of the show.

One club patron lay dying and 25 others wounded as pellets flew from six shotgun blasts fired by a well-dressed gunman.

Another patron was suffering an apparent heart attack.

Horried, the patrons dove for cover.

Ten of the victims remained hospitalized today in conditions ranging from good to fair.

A disabled Vietnam veteran was arrested early Sunday at his home in Omaha and booked on suspicion of first degree murder and shooting with intent to kill or maim during the shooting at the Club 89 on Saturday night.

Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles said he would file a formal murder charge today against Ulysses Cribbs, 32. Knowles said he would ask that bail be denied.

Among those injured in the hail of shotgun pellets was a pregnant woman, Patricia Allison, 27, of Omaha. She remained hospitalized early today in fair condition and under close observation with multiple pellet wounds.

Mrs. Allison said she did not hit the floor of the club until her father, Hilary Hoelsing, 54, of rural Hartington, Neb., yelled that he was hit and her husband pulled her to the ground.

"I didn't feel pain for quite a while," she said.

Hoelsing was listed in good condition with an arm wound.

The man shot to death was an off-duty sheriff's deputy, 39-year-old Dennis Lipari, who was shot in the head.

His wife, Ruth, 34, lost her left eye and may lose the sight of the other one, according to Bergan-Mercy Hospital officials.

Cribbs was picked up about six hours after the incident. Police said he was traced through a license plate spotted by a witness outside the club.

Douglas County Sheriff Ted Janing said Cribbs, a native of Omaha who had served with Air Force security in Vietnam, had been given a 100 percent mental disability rating, for which he drew a monthly military disability check of $1,000.

Neighbors, who described him as likeable but eccentric, said he was depressed because he could not find a job.

Young People Turn Out For Assembly

More than 700 youths gathered at St. John F.W.B. Church, Blount Street, Saturday to observe the 1977 Christian Education Assembly, North Carolina Conference, A.M. E. Zion Church.

The theme, "To Strive, To Seek, To Find and Not To Yield," was discussed.

The speaker, Miss Venessa Allen, a student at Livingstone College, Salisbury, spoke to the youths about setting high goals in every segment of life.

Two members of the N.C. Conference of Christian Education Department, Miss Lillian Hill and Orlando Hankins, also students of Livingstone College, conducted a question and answer period on sharing experiences.

C.L. Hankins, district director, presided over the morning session. Music was furnished by the Volunteer Youth Choir and the New Bern District Choir. They were guests of the conference at a luncheon in the dining room of St. Augustus Church.

The afternoon session featured the installation of officers for the incoming year. They were: President Calvette Dorsey, Vice President Mitchell Bryant, Secretary Angela Wallace, Assistant Secretary Paul Batts, and Treasurer Wanda Keas.

belief that teaching today is a harder task than in the past. They noted several factors which result in increased "heterogeneity" in the classrooms, causing problems for teachers.

One factor is that students are staying in school longer than in the past.

"Several years ago, students had to either fit into straight college prep courses or business, and if they didn't fit in, they were gone," said Cox.

"Now, there are many programs to keep kids in schools." He cited the Distributive Education courses and other technical classes that are now offered as such programs.

"Another factor that educators said increased difficulty in trying to teach a large group of children, is that the mental age of the children when entering school may vary four years.

"Some children may not be ready to learn in the first grade," said Burkes.

She added that a poor environment may result in the child never having seen a book or a magazine until he enters school. This child must be taught along with the children who have attended kindergarten.

Dr. Douglas R. Jones, head of the East Carolina University department of Education, said that where there used to be three to four different reading groups in a class, there are now over five.

He added that teaching could be simplified and improved if children were admitted into school according to their mental age and not their chronological age.

"It's a tougher job being a teacher today than ever before due to the range of achievement between students," said Jones.

Jones said he believes that if children could be identified at an early stage in their education as to their talents and intellect, they could be placed in "tracks" in junior and senior high school.

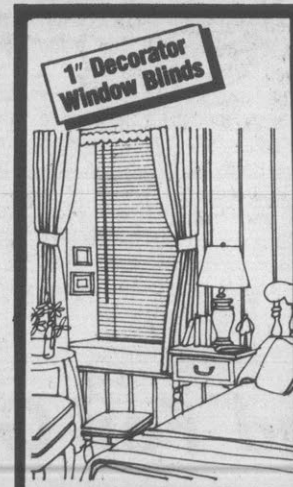

In this way, all children would not be competing on the same level and receiving the same education. He also added that "an extra emphasis should be placed on reading."

Jones noted that a student in a technical "track," for example, should also be given good general skills and a basic background for his own benefit.

Local educators said that they did not feel the standardized tests in themselves would greatly increase the quality of education. But if the scores are used for predicting what the individual schools are capable of doing, combined with public awareness of the situation and public support, the picture should brighten in the near future.

"Philosophically, we'll work with every child to the best of our ability," said Cox.

"The opportunities are there. The good students are doing a good job."

Quilting Bee Tradition Lives On In Tennessee

By Nanci C. ALBRITTON
FROG JUMP, Tenn. (UPI) — When ripe cotton bolls begin to speckle their fields with white, the women of this tiny hamlet put aside their late summer chores for needles and thimbles and thread.

They quilt the winter away. Gathering this week at one home, next week at another, Rebecca Riley, her Aunt Ebbie Jordan, 84, and a score of friends keep the quilting bee tradition alive.

Many have been quilting 50 years or more, some since age 10.

"Job's Trouble," "Grandmother's Flower Garden," "Double Wedding Ring" — by spring, these and other quilt designs will be wrapped snugly on their beds.

"I've quilted practically all my life in the winter," said Dorothy Reece, 61, snipping a length of strong thread.

She and her friends work shoulder-to-shoulder around one of two wooden frames that nearly fill Mrs. Riley's basement. The quilt they are making is "Trip 'Round the World," a dizzying assemblage of colorful scraps.

"It's called that because that's how far you stitch before you're finished," said Thelma Kee, 72.

Perched on mail-order catalogs atop chairs, the women join the top with solid cloth backing and a puffy filling. Their thumbs, pushed up under the quilt to make the stitching easier, are pricked rough.

The liveliest chatter in this town of about 600 accompanies their work.

"Not too much happens around here without everybody knowing it," said Ethelene Hand.

But Mrs. Kee doesn't think the talk is idle. "Sometimes we just talk across the frames," she said. "We don't gossip about people."

The range of subjects is endless: Elvis Presley, the crops, illness, kinfolk, the church, the weather, country music and Jerry Lee Lewis.

"And sometimes we have a quiet moment and join hands and have prayer," said Zelma Crider.

The bee includes some young mothers whose toddlers romp on the floor beneath the quilts.

Mrs. Jordan is the eldest, a sprightly historian of sorts and the only one who can recall how Frog Jump got its name.

"The town sits on a narrow strip of land between the Black Creek and the Forked Deer River," she said. "A bullfrog could jump from the river and land in the creek."

"But course, that's not right. The strip of land is two and a half miles wide," she added.

Mrs. Jordan, her hair snow white and her hands gnarled, was an Archer before she married. She is kin one way or another to many of the women in the room.

In years past, the women quilted only for each other or made lap throws for patients in a nearby nursing home. This year they have made a business of it, charging $40 each to quilt tops sewn by others.

"We've been working two full days on this quilt and we should have charged $50," said Linnie Mae Archer, Mrs. Riley's cousin and Mrs. Jordan's niece.

All the money they make will go to the women's circle at their church, Archer's Chapel Methodist, to redecorate the tiny sanctuary.

Mrs. Archer works on a "Grandmother's Flower Garden," rows of calico hexagons sewn into a flower motif. Each scrap must be outlined in two rows of tiny hand stitches.

"When you beat the 'Flower Garden,' you're doing something," said Emma Baker.

Mrs. Riley, a farmer's wife and mother of seven, has fixed baked chicken and dressing to go with the vegetables and desserts brought by each quilter. Her dinner call is a welcome interruption.

The kitchen table holds butterbeans, squash, field peas, snap beans, creamed corn, hot cornbread and biscuits, and half a dozen kinds of cakes, pies and apple turnovers.

The women are a little slow getting up, after sitting in the same position all morning. After dinner, a few rest, while the others return, swapping the quilts they worked on earlier to break the monotony.

They will sew three hours more, probably finishing one of the quilts. Another handmade creation awaits them next week.

The quilting, talking, laughing, cooking and praying will shorten what many expect to be another bitterly cold winter. The work sessions could go on until May, when outdoor gardening beckons.

"It's when those strawberries come in that we have to quit," said Mrs. Jordan.

Live Music And Ballroom Dancing Are Making Comeback

BY FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
NEW YORK (UPI) — Live music for dancing seems to be making a comeback around the nation at the very moment that disco dancing is enjoying record popularity.

When a patrician hotel like the St. Regis-Sheraton introduces live dance music on a six-nights-a-week basis, as it did this month, the trend seems to have jelled.

Live music has been a tradition never abandoned in some cities — Minneapolis, for instance, boasts live music in nearly 50 bars, restaurants and ballrooms. But in most cities musicians have gradually been replaced by disc jockeys.

"There's a definite move to reverse the dependence on canned music and disco dancing," said Michael M. Schweiger, managing director of the St. Regis, as he showed off the newly redecorated King Cole Restaurant. A Peter Duchin combo of four musicians, instead of fiddlers three, make merry there Monday through Saturday evenings after dinner. To make it more attractive, there is no service charge.

"We're thinking about reintroducing the tea dancing before dinner, too," Schweiger said of an experiment that already has been tried successfully one night a week by Hyatt chain hotels in Boston, Washington, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco. "I think there is an audience for it. We won't know until we try."

The tea dance, a fatality of World War II, was a pleasant bridge between the end of the work day and dinner when couples, fueled by Earl Gray or deejaying, pretended to be Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

Whether or not live music eventually will edge out canned is not yet evident. All west coast Hilton hotels have live music for dancing. The Sheraton New Orleans, which will open in 1979, will have a room for dancing to live music. The Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles has revived ballroom dancing in its Garden Room and discontinued its discotheque.

"Due to apparent lack of popularity, we phased it out," explained Esmail Lotfi, the Plaza's restaurateur.

In New York, discos have reached the saturation point and range from the chic Studio 54 to the speakeasy-style ones near the lower Manhattan docks. The never-fading Roseland and the Rainbow Room atop the RCA Building, which offers Sy Oliver's nostalgic rhythms every night except Monday, have been the only major spots for ballroom dancing in town.

Now the St. Regis-Sheraton, the city's oldest luxury hotel long an Astor family property, provides a third dance arena in the updated King Cole Grille. The sleek look of white walls, mirrors and burnished golden balustrades around a newly sunken dance floor have replaced the paneled, faintly men's club atmosphere of the old grille.

Only the beautiful shell-like Art Deco ceiling and the grandiose triptych mural of Old King Cole and his court by Maxfield Parrish, which have dominated the grille's bar since 1948, remain. King Cole is insured for $350,000 and Sheraton has invested more than $100,000 in three more Parrishes — "Child Harvester," "Solitude," and "Cleopatra," painted between 1896 and 1917 — to further glamorize the restaurant and its foyer.

The King Cole room has a cozy capacity of 175 for dancing to the music of piano, bass, guitar and drum. On the flip side is the 4,000 capacity of San Francisco's Hyatt Regency's atrium lobby, one of architect John Portman's masterly uses of vast interior space. Tea dancing there from 5-8 p.m. Fridays is often a sold-out affair, offering a 16-piece band, lavish tea and crumpets service — though wine and cocktails are popular substitutes.

"We get all age groups," reported Donna Barron, a spokesperson for the Hyatt chain. "Ballroom dancing doesn't seem to be just for the middle-aged, as everyone thinks."

Touch dancing does, however, seem to be the preserve of the over-30 set. A visit to any disco demonstrates the inroads that non-touch duo or group dancing has made on any semblance of two people actually dancing together. Disco dancers do their own thing with abandon and often with their own sex.

Old King Cole would not have been amused.

Women Lawyers Score Successes In Cases

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — In a matter of weeks, Nola Moore experienced her highest and lowest moments as a Sedgwick County prosecutor who deals solely with sexual assault cases.

A man on trial for taking indecent liberties with a minor was acquitted by the jury, and the alleged victim, a 14-year-old girl, began crying as Mrs. Moore told her the verdict.

But a short time later, the assistant district attorney received a letter from the girl. It read: "Please don't feel bad. You did a really good job ... you understand people a lot more than others."

"It meant a lot to me," Mrs. Moore said. "What made me feel good was I felt I had done something to help her. I was upset I had lost the case but I felt I had done my job because she understood and she was not bitter. I think what I did made it easier on her."

Mrs. Moore is one of four young women who are handling sexual offense cases in Kansas' three largest cities — Wichita, Topeka and Kansas City. But the women prosecutors seldom lose their cases.

Of 23 cases closed by Mrs. Moore and Sharon Werner, members of the Sedgwick County district attorney's sex offenses division, 21 have resulted in convictions or a guilty plea.

Joan Hamilton of the Shawnee County DA's office in Topeka has lost two cases in about 75. Anita Mortimer of the Wyandotte County DA's office in Kansas City, Kan., has had only three acquittals in about 35 cases.

None of the four attorneys, all in their mid-20s and graduates of Washburn University law school in Topeka, claims her success is due to the fact that she is a woman. But it hasn't hurt.

"I'm not saying that men are not compassionate," Mrs. Moore said. "I just think we have a better rapport with women. We usually have them telling us things they'd never tell anyone else."

Said her partner, Ms. Werner, "I truly believe after working with a victim from the initial interview that we acquire a feeling about that particular person and as a result I believe it's less traumatic for that person in the courtroom. I think through this the woman can be put more at ease, her testimony can be more coherent in the courtroom."

Mrs. Hamilton, who has prosecuted sex offenses for a year, says being a woman often helps her relate better to the younger victims. But she cautions that it cannot be carried too far.

"You have to keep your professionalism. You must keep away from a 'I'm a woman, I know what she's going through' attitude," she said.

The first thing she asks a victim is "if they prefer a male attorney." Mrs. Hamilton added, "If they're not confident with a woman, I'm not going to let my personal pride overcome what she wants." So far, none has refused her services.

Give Him Chance To Prove Sincerity

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After 32 years of marriage, my husband and I separated. He was hard-working, non-drinking and faithful. I forced the separation because he was terribly hard on our three children (they're now all college graduates and married). Also, he refused to socialize with anyone. I felt trapped and stifled, and couldn't take his selfish, insulated way of life. He moved out of our lovely home and into a small apartment.

About a month ago I bumped into him at the shopping center. He invited me to see his apartment, so I went. Before I knew it I found myself in a very amorous situation and I stayed overnight. He served me breakfast in bed and confessed that the separation made him truly appreciate me. He said he could never love anyone the way he loved me and if I took him back he would try his best to be more sociable and make me happy. The next weekend we drove out of town secretly like two young lovers. I didn't want anyone (especially my family) to know. Since then, he's been winning and dining me, and I have been loving it. It's better than our courtship ever was!

People keep telling me how marvelous I look since I got rid of "that pill." They don't know I'm in love all over again. If I take him back, my friends and family will think I've lost my mind. I'm still ashamed to let them know I'm seeing him. What would you do?

WALKING ON AIR

DEAR WALKING: I'd take him back and give him a chance to prove his sincerity. And the last thing I'd worry about is what my friends and family think.

DEAR ABBY: I just had a confrontation with a woman in a laundromat over her smoking.

I am asthmatic, and cigarette smoke not only offends me, it makes me sick.

When I asked her to please put her cigarette out, she told me—and everyone else in the place—in no uncertain terms that she will smoke wherever she wants to. Furthermore, she said there were no "No Smoking" signs in evidence, so I had better get used to it because everybody smokes.

Unfortunately I will now have to go into debt to buy a washer-dryer. I'm sick of bringing home a cough and clothes that stink of cigarette smoke from the laundromat. WINCHESTER, VA.

DEAR WIN: I am no defender of smokers, but it's a rare smoker who will not quickly douse his cigarette if someone complains. More and more public places post "No Smoking" signs, which I think is a step in the right direction.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 64-year-old woman and my problem is my husband. He is 68, and no matter where we go, he ogles the women, young or old. His head looks like it's on a swivel. He's been impotent for the last 15 years, so I can't understand why he's looking. He doesn't just look—he leers. One of these days somebody is going to take a poke at him.

When I tell him that his looking is obvious and ask him to please cut it out, he says I am jealous. I'm not really, because I know darned well that all he can do is look.

What I want to know is this: Is he wrong for looking? Or am I wrong for complaining?

LOOKER'S FRAU

DEAR FRAU: Looking in the manner that you describe is rude, so I don't blame you for complaining. However, I seriously doubt that your complaining will put an end to his looking.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Holtz, Coach And PR Man

Lou Holtz was one of North Carolina's most popular football coaches when he headed the North Carolina State football program.

Then he left for the lure of professional football, spent one disastrous year as head coach of the New York Jets, and returned to college coaching at the University of Arkansas. There he has guided the team to an Orange Bowl berth on Jan. 2.

Coach Holtz hasn't forgotten North Carolina, however, and in fact he will deliver a campaign address for U. S. Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina at a rally in Raleigh Dec. 1.

The move caused some concern in Arkansas and brought editorial criticism from Little Rock newspapers. Holtz protested that he was not acting as a football coach or university representative.

"I am doing it as a taxpaying citizen and as a member of this country."

Holtz said he would not accept a fee for the appearance because he believes the senator is a honest, intelligent individual "who is not afraid to express his convictions," although he did not agree with the senator on everything.

The Holtz appearance in North Carolina might draw criticism in Arkansas, but it is likely he will be helpful to the Helms cause here. Coach Holtz was a good public relations man, as well as a good coach at N. C. State. He still commands much respect in North Carolina.

Millions of fans remember his act with Gracie Allen.

Since her death Burns has gone on to a new career as a single. Now at 81 years old he is at the

It all prompted the New York Board of Education to issue Burns an elementary school diploma, one he didn't get as a child back in New York.

The Shortfalls Of ETV

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Sesame Street has created a rumble in the mountains of western North Carolina which is being heard in the halls of the State Legislative Building.

It isn't anything that the popular children's television program aired; rather, it is that a lot of Tar Heels can't get the program on their TV sets.

State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, is head of a special study committee just set up by House Speaker Carl J. Stewart, Jr., D-Gaston, to look into the matter.

"We're not concerned with what programs they run, how they run them, or what time of day they run them," Ramsey said of the study.

"What we are talking about is how we can see to it that more people can see the programs."

Sesame Street appears on public television. The system is operated by the University of North Carolina with transmitters across the state which officials claim can reach up to 95 per cent of the population.

"That just isn't the case," says Ramsey. "An awful lot of people in the mountains can't get the channels... and we're not the only area left out."

Major Gaps

Actually, the transmitter pattern for the university network leaves a big hole in the southwest corner of the state, and smaller gaps in the northeastern counties of Vance, Warren, Halifax, and Northampton; and in the southern section including Robeson, Scotland, Richmond, and Moore counties.

The problem is compounded by the fact that most educational or public TV is broadcast on the ultra-high frequency band. The usual commercial frequency (very-high frequency) reaches longer distances, and can move up, down or around obstacles.

The ultra-high transmitters follow a straight line. That means shorter distance because of the curvature of the earth; and even more problems in mountainous sections where people who live in caves can't get a signal even though within range.

Conditions are further complicated by the fact that many people simply don't have proper television sets or antennas for picking up the public TV programs.

NOBLITT

An Asheville commercial station broadcast Sesame Street as a public service, but decide to drop it since it produced no income, and was available on the public stations.

That created a furor, says Ramsey, with people demanding some way to see the show. The commercial station agreed to keep the program on the air for several months longer; leaving it to the state to figure the next step.

"It's a technical problem. We must try to pinpoint the locations and identify the problems, then figure what to do to get television in there... and how much that would cost," Ramsey said.

90 Days

Speaker Stewart asked the new committee to report back within 90 days for consideration in the 1978 session of the General Assembly.

"There presently exist numerous gaps in many western and, eastern districts of North Carolina in the coverage of the Educational Television Network.

"In addition, there are counties (including Gaston) which receive inadequate service..." Stewart said.

Alternatives for study by the legislators include more transmitters, translators to beam relayed signals into trouble spots, use of cable systems, and special video cassette systems for schools which don't receive a good signal.

Only some 930 of the state's 2,000 public schools are receiving the educational television broadcasts. School officials say school use would improve if the signal were more easily available.

So Who's The Leader?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — A group of us were jogging in Rock Creek Park the other morning when a flying saucer from outer space hovered over us and then made a perfect three-point landing. Out of it stepped a dozen little green people.

One of them, who wore four stars on his shoulders, seemed to be in charge.

"Take us to your leader," he said.

We all looked at each other perplexed.

"What did you say?" Sullivan asked.

"I said take us to your leader. Don't you understand English?"

"We don't really have a leader," friend Guggenheim said. "But we have a President."

"Maybe," said Lindstrom, "we should take him to Sen. Robert Byrd. He has more clout than the President."

"I'm not sure," Redfern said. "Sen. Russell Long is the real power in this country. Nothing gets through without Long's approval."

"What about Tip O'Neill?" He's really calling the shots on the Hill," I said.

The four-star green person was getting impatient.

"We don't have all day. Will you make up your minds? We heard Henry Kissinger was your leader."

"That was a year ago. Everything is changed now. Kissinger is only a professor at Georgetown University."

"Look, we came a long way," the green person said, "and we're tired. Are you go-

A hearty and bountiful agriculture is the backbone of a nation's wealth and the grantor of the people's health. And that is one thing this country still has, despite growing difficulties caused often by the hobbling regulations of the federal bureaucracy.

In Craven County, agriculture is still the No. 1 industry, as it is in Pamlico and Jones.

A recent cartoon we saw showed two Russian "planners" talking as they left a meeting room: "It's our new five-year plan. Sow a little, reap a little, and buy grain in America."

The Soviets — under almost a totally state-regulated system since there is no privately-owned land — employ many more farm workers than we do, yet they harvest only 80 percent as much grain and get but 65 percent as big a grain yield per acre. They use 15 pounds of grain to produce one pound of livestock. We do it for half that. A farm worker in the Soviet Union feeds seven people; each American farmer, 55.

Weather and climate help in America, and fertilizer and suitable machinery are efficiently used. Soviet farms suffer from being run by the "planners." The farms are huge, mostly, and the planners are too far away to make quick, critical decisions.

But when a Russian farmer turns to working his own garden plot, he produces prodigiously.

We should take the hint from there and be wary of federal and state government encroachments into the private ownership of land, the forming of various "public" collectives.

Put the state in place of self-incentive into the realm of human productivity and you have the ultimate control.

Our farmers like to sit down when they choose, and work what field they wish. They want the best in machinery when they can afford it. They have little "truck" with being told what to do by the "state" man.

Amen, to that brother.

May it always be.

Let the farmers South, in New England, across America's "Bread Basket," in the West and the people in general continue to waive off the biggest stultifying and collectivistic unionizing — government in total control.

Not An Office Cynic

Editor's note: Associated Press legislative staff member David Nelsen, whose byline appeared on the weekly column Capitol Letter, died last week at the age of 36. The column this week is a reminiscence by the AP's Raleigh bureau chief.

By JOHN LUMPKIN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Try though he might, David Nelsen could not fit on the mask of a cynical correspondent poised with the soul of a piranha to note with glee any of the vagaries and infelicities among public servants.

This is not to say that David, whose passing shocked us all, was "soft" on government officials he covered or that his coverage was rosy and unobjective.

In bad times, he wrote what he had to write.

We often discussed the philosophy and condition of government, particularly in North Carolina.

I would press him about the virtual absence of evident scandal in state government here, about the absence of political promoters coming from nowhere and going on to be prosperous power brokers, about the apparent absence of struggles between lobbyists at the legislature. Essentially, why was government in North Carolina "dull"?

My previous experience with government coverage was in Texas. There was the litany of "scandals"—the Veterans' Land Scandal, the Box 13 Scandal, the Sharpstown Scandal, the Milk Fund Scandal. We watched the county courthouse gas pump for the inevitable county official tanking up on Friday afternoon. We checked dog food receipts at the county and wondered how watchdogs could eat that much.

In that light, Nelsen would concede North Carolina government is not exciting. It is a state in which a school testing program was as controversial

THE INSIDE REPORT

Independence Declaration

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Proudly Anwar Sadat's glorious reception back in Cairo last Monday conclusively proved that he had read the Egyptian mood correctly, but the real test has not yet come: how much Menahem Begin finally will give Sadat in return for his courageous visit.

Before arriving in Jerusalem last week, Sadat was quietly laying plans to appear in triumph before his parliament at the earliest possible moment to reveal to his own citizens what had led him to Jerusalem in one of history's most celebrated peace missions. When he actually got back to Cairo, he set the date for Saturday, Nov. 26, the sixth day after his return.

That's because Sadat came home Monday, with little more than the echo of emotional words of praise and the memory of thousands of tear-stained Israeli faces that paid him homage. Beyond the flags and the tributes, Prime Minister Begin apparently offered little of substance. He carefully balanced Sadat's demand for the return of Arab territory ("our land is sacred") with exactly the same words to explain Israel's decision not to return to the 1967 borders. "May I say," Begin told Sadat, "our land is sacred." Just before the visit to Jerusalem, Mideast experts here feared that unless Sadat made quick, substantive gains from his journey he would face not only escalation of anti-Sadat emotions throughout the militant Arab world; he also would be courting disaster at home. Economic grievances, particularly the inflation of food prices and monstrous unemployment among young college graduates, are ready-made for political exploitation against Sadat. But Sadat gained elbow room by emphasizing, in his talks with Begin, problems of all Arab nations with grievances against Israel. That underemphasized both Egypt and a separate Egyptian-Israeli peace. This approach made possible the euphoric welcome to Sadat in Cairo. More important were breaks in the ranks of Arab states that had been keeping discreet silence. Jordan, now politically tied to Syria more closely than ever before, broke its silence with a modest pat on Sadat's back for daring to go to Israel despite anti-Sadat fury in Damascus.

Sadat's success so far in maintaining an image of great popularity at home and limiting anti-Sadat damage in the Arab world could disappear overnight if he has to acknowledge to his parliament that Israel gave him nothing in return. That risk, and the reasons for Sadat taking it in the decisions which led him to Jerusalem, puzzle both American officials and Arab diplomats here. The complete answer may not be known for many months. But the prevailing view is that Sadat had just about given up on the Carter administration's efforts to extract real concessions from Prime Minister Begin. He was, in short, at the end of his patience. Nor was Sadat, the Egyptian patriot who ordered Russian military advisers out of his country in 1972, pleased at the new prominence given Moscow's re-entry into the Middle East in the Oct. 1 U.S.-Soviet joint statement. This go-it-alone mood of frustration and worry led Sadat to make his bold declaration of independence at his farewell Jerusalem press conference on Monday. Pointing to his "strained relations" with Moscow, Sadat said he worried that anti-Egyptian Soviet conduct "could be adopted in Geneva" where the Russians are co-chairmen with the U.S. "Whenever we, the (Arab and Israeli) parties concerned, reach an agreement, no one, big power or small power, can prevent us from fulfilling it inasmuch as we have agreed to it." Carter administration officials say this simply underlined Sadat's persistent skepticism of returning to a Geneva conference not carefully prepared in advance. But they may be underestimating Sadat. Kept completely in the dark every step of Sadat's course to Jerusalem, the Carter administration has demonstrated a conspicuous ignorance about the president of Egypt.

Thus, the harsher view of Sadat's apparent declaration of independence may be the correct one: without downing a reconvened Geneva con-

Equality And The Pension Plan

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the name of equality, should individual male and female employees contribute equal amounts of money to the company's pension plan? Or is to do so in itself a form of discrimination?

What makes this issue as knotty as any personnel problem today is the almost irrefutable contention that men and women are not equal in the actuarial tables. Women live longer than men. It's a statistical fact.

This being so, men aren't likely to collect as much money out of the pension fund, while often they pay into the fund an amount equal to their female counterparts.

Now that's discrimination, say insurers and others engaged in working out equitable pension benefits. To which women rightists sometimes reply: Nonsense, women and men are equal in the eyes of God and the law.

No matter, is the next response from actuaries; they are not equal in the tables. Sex and the single benefit table is an injustice, it is argued.

"Like most good things, antidiscrimination rules can be carried to extremes," says William M. Mercer, Inc., an international employee benefit consulting firm. "Mortality differences between the sexes are a biological fact."

But Mercer and other consultants aren't the ones to make the final decision. The courts are. The Supreme Court already has agreed to consider one such case, against the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

In that case the lower courts ruled it was unfair to require a female to contribute more than a male in order to receive the same monthly benefit. In effect, they said, a unisex benefit table should be used.

That finding probably settles little for long, and may even challenge the terms laid down by the U.S. Supreme Court in earlier action.

The court has stated that you can just as easily create inequality by requiring identical benefits be provided to persons unequally situated as by requiring different benefits to be provided to persons equally situated.

That would seem to provide support for insurers and consultants such as Mercer.

An essential premise of insurance, it says, is that "all persons in the same class of risk get the same benefits for the same price so that no one class subsidizes another."

Men and women aren't in the same class of risks, it adds. They are biologically and maybe genetically different. "The differences in male-female mortality has actually been widening while their lifestyles have become more similar."

Opponents of this reasoning say we didn't until recently separate smokers and non-smokers. But Mercer replies that smoking is a voluntary action, "one subject to change and most difficult to monitor."

The difference between men and women isn't voluntary, nor is it difficult to monitor. We know they are different, says Mercer, and we know that neither men nor women can do much about it no matter how they change lifestyles.

If we refuse to recognize the differences between men and women in the actuarial table then perhaps health and age also should be barred as classifications. That, says Mercer, points up the untenable nature of the unisex argument.

Moreover, it adds a legal consideration: If men, for example, are forced to subsidize the benefits of female employees and retirees, then the unisex table actually could be in violation of the U.S. Equal Pay Act.

The philosophical thrust of that act is that individuals must be considered on the basis of individual capacities and not on the basis of any characteristics generally attributed to the group.

But no insurance company or consultant is likely to push that argument very far because of a peculiar problem: The same reasoning, if applied to insurance in general, would wipe out insurance, which is based on grouping and averaging and classifying. No more Prudential, no more Metropolitan.

All these problems because men and women are different. And because sometimes they like to emphasize those differences and at other times to claim they don't exist.

CHARACTER EDUCATION

A Supreme Court justice wrote recently:

"It is one of the paradoxes of our time that modern society needs to fear... only the educated man. The primitive peoples of the world constitute no menace. The most serious crimes against civilizations can be committed only by educated and technically competent people."

What a comment this is on formal education! What we might call "the criminal class" is usually of inferior mentality, but often, with a frequency which alarms us, we find that behind the gross criminal stands a person of high grade intelligence.

James J. Hill, the great railroad magnate of the early twentieth century, spoke of the necessity of educating the conscience. Theodore Roosevelt declared that to train a person's mind without training his character is to lend one's aid to the cultivation of a criminal.

Education is not simply filling the head with facts. The most important part of a person is moral character.

Issue Of Panama Canal Pact Dogging Sen. Howard Baker

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wherever Howard Baker's presidential ambitions lead him, the Panama Canal issue is sure to follow. As minority leader of the Senate, the Tennessee Republican is under intense pressure from opponents of the canal treaty to come out against it. But he insists on remaining neutral until the Senate debate on ratification begins, probably in February.

"I simply am not going to be pushed off that rock," says Baker, who argues that as minority leader he must not align himself this early with either side on an issue that divides his party.

Baker is a special target of treaty opponents, but he is not the only Republican with White House ambitions who is uncomfortable with the volatile Panama issue.

One of the questions asked most frequently at a recent meeting of Southern Republicans, who are overwhelmingly opposed to ratification of the canal treaty, was whether any Republican who supports the pact could win the GOP presidential nomination in 1980.

Four presidential hopefuls appeared at the Southern Republican Conference in Orlando, Fla., and only Ronald Reagan took an unequivocal stand in opposition to ratification of the treaty that would turn control of the canal over to Panama in the year 2000.

Baker had some uncomfortable moments when delegates pressed him to abandon his neutrality. And neither Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas nor former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas appeared anxious to be pressed for their views on the canal.

As a senator, Dole shares Baker's problem of being forced to vote for or against ratification. He has dealt with it by calling for a number of changes in the treaty as submitted to the Senate, a strategy that might enable him to vote for a treaty that seems to offer Panama far less than what U.S. negotiators were willing to give.

Connally now looks like the candidate who would inherit the strong Reagan support throughout the South if the former California governor decided against another presidential campaign.

But when asked about the canal, Connally is far softer than Reagan.

"I don't think I have all the information I need to make a determination," said the Texan who then added that "my instinct is to be against ratification."

Connally has advocated dropping the issue in the laps of the voters by holding a national referendum on ratification in 1978. At the same time, he insists, "I don't want to make a political issue of it."

Talking to delegates at the Southern Republican Conference and watching their reactions to various speakers, two points come across clearly: they still love Reagan and they strongly oppose the canal treaty.

But although the ideological fervor of Southern Republicans has a special intensity, some among them retain a touch of political pragmatism. They want to win and they dislike locking themselves into a position that could lead to disaster in 1980.

Launch Denture Center Services

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Financially strapped residents of Charlotte, Kinston and Moyock (in rural Currituck County) at least can get a break when they need dentures now.

A group of dentists has opened dental centers in the cities, which provide a complete set of dentures for $100, much lower than the $400 to $600 most Tar Heel residents pay to private dentists.

Drs. George Edwards and Donald Henson of Kinston and Dr. James Henson of Greensboro, a former president of the Guilford County Dental Society, own the center. They practice in all of the centers and hire other dentists to help out.

Dr. Paul Sanders, who is operating the group's Charlotte center, said the dentists can offer dentures at such a low cost because of mass production techniques. Each step is geared to produce false teeth quickly.

Sanders also pointed out the dentists only make dentures. They don't spend time cleaning or filling teeth. The centers are simply furnished and stress the functional.

In Charlotte, for example, the four dentists' chairs are lined up side-by-side in one large room in a converted store. Instead of rushing to patients in several rooms, dentists can easily handle several patients at once. Equipment for adjusting dentures is handy. The center's special X-ray machine, developed recently, can take an entire mouthful of X-rays at one time.

Sanders said the Charlotte clinic was designed to mass produce dentures.

"We keep costs down by doing a volume business," said Sanders, who said he sees twice as many patients now than he did as a private dentist.

The clinic charges $60 for either a lower or upper denture, $70 for a partial plate, $5 for X-rays and $9 for tooth extraction.

Joyce Rogers, executive director of the North Carolina Dental Society, said dentists in the group were licensed and ethical.

The society "recognizes there is a sector of the population that needs low-cost services," she said.

"They're meeting a need, particularly for people on fixed incomes who can't afford more expensive dentures," she said. That is particularly important in North Carolina where state Medicaid payments for dental services for adults ended in July.

Sanders said patients are expected to return if dentures need adjustment. The first adjustment is free.

The group won't pull teeth which are still useful.

"If the teeth can be saved, we're going to recommend they go to a dentist and get them saved," Sanders said.

Identified As Tar Heel

DADE CITY, Fla. (AP) — The woman whose body was found near a Central Florida landfill has been identified as Judy Fae Bibee, 19, of Reidsville, N.C.

A relative and a friend from Dade City identified her, police said.

The victim's brother, contacted in North Carolina Sunday night, said his sister left her home about a month ago after seeing an ad in a Greensboro newspaper about a job in Florida.

"I know she went to Dade City," said Timothy Bibee, 17, "and she left her (4-year-old) daughter with my folks." He did not know what job she had sought.

Police said the body was found Friday, face down in some bushes beside a dirt road at the Dade City dump, some 25 miles northeast of Tampa.

She had been stabbed 52 times in the head, neck, chest, stomach, arms and legs, according to Dr. John Shinner, county medical examiner.

She was the sixth woman found slain in rural Pasco County since 1973, but Sheriff John Short said, "the facts surrounding the case almost completely eliminate her being connected with the other murders."

The other victims had been either strangled or shot.

as any other issue.

It is a state where the principal development in a two-hour interview with the new governor was the revelation of his campaign to encourage more volunteer participation.

David wrote the volunteer story. It was the kind he liked to write.

But he wasn't blind to government's inconsistencies. His penultimate "Capitol Letter" characterized a state agency, the Milk Commission, as "making a mockery" in the Arcadia Dairies case out of the governor's admonitions to the federal government that farmers should not be on welfare.

David refused to believe that most politicians were trying to use government for personal gain, that most legislation was prompted by vested interest or that a governor who wanted a gubernatorial succession amendment was already looking past his first term.

He was not our office cynic. He was our optimist.

It was in character for him to reply when we talked about "dull government" that we perhaps should consider whether "any good government would, of necessity, be dull."

It is true that Pulitzers are not won by reporting that a government has been without scandal. It is true that such a report would not make many banner headlines or maybe not even make interesting reading.

But perhaps David's optimism should be his legacy for us.

ference, Sadat's trip to Jerusalem declared Egypt's independence not only from his Arab partners, but from his American friends. In Cairo's view, the U.S. has repeatedly proved its inability to deliver on promises to Egypt when Israel stands in the way.

To gain from this declaration of independence, however, Sadat must sooner or later be able to show his country why his journey to Jerusalem was undertaken. In short, he must show how it will help Egypt — plus Syria, Jordan and Lebanon — find the elusive peace he has promised, and that takes some help from Mr. Begin.

PRE-ROMAN STATUARY FOUND — Six pieces of terra cotta statuary found last Thursday at Pratica di Mare, a village 15 miles south of Rome, are shown in a photo which became available over the weekend. Archaeologists who unearthed the life-size figures on the site of ancient Lavinium, where a temple and a tomb believed to be that of the Trojan hero Aeneas were discovered five years ago, said the statues were offerings made by pre-Romans of 25 centuries ago to the goddess Minerva, to whom the temple apparently was dedicated. (AP Laserphoto)

Canine Intelligence Testing Scheduled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A group of Raleigh dog fanciers will spend next Saturday finding out how they can tell if their dogs are geniuses or dunces.

The exercise will not be as frivolous as it sounds, according to Drs. Walter and Margaret Luszkis, who will be running the day-long seminar on canine intelligence.

The tests they have developed for determining how smart dogs may be are designed to help breeders choose the most suitable pups from each litter for training projects that require intelligence.

"At best they are a rough guide to provide additional information to use in the selection process," warns Luszkis. At worst, they are fun for dog and master alike.

In one of the seven tests, for example, the trainer wraps a piece of food in a small piece of newspaper and throws it on the floor. The dog has smelled the food and knows what it is before it is wrapped.

The dog is graded on the speed with which he manages to get the food out and eat it. If he doesn't try or gives up easily, he's either not very smart or not very hungry.

In another of the tests, the trainer rolls a ball against a wall at a 45 degree angle, and the dog runs after it. The dog is graded on how soon he discovers he can get the ball more easily by anticipating the angle of bounce and moving to intercept it, rather than following it all the way to the wall and back out.

The Luszkis became interested in the subject because one of their own dogs, a German shepherd that seemed smarter than the others.

"Rebel was the only dog able to use his paw to open a gate leading up to the front door," said Luszkis. "The gate was closed but not locked, and he placed his paw at the bottom left and manipulated the opening of the gate.

"We felt his problem-solving ability was of a higher level than that of the other dogs and that a battery of such test items would be helpful in evaluating the intelligence of dogs."

The Luszkis don't compare dogs of different breeds or ages.

The South is one of the seven fastest-growing areas in the world.

And Southern Railway is growing right along with it.

Not only is the South the stest-growing area in the U.S., it's also one of the seven fastest-growing areas in the world. And one of the biggest reasons is that industry has been going South for years. And still is.

Naturally, we at the Southern Railway are happy about all this because each time the South grows, we grow, too.

After all, who do you think carries the raw materials to these new plants? And the finished goods to market? In large measure, we do.

And, as the South's population grows, who do you think brings the things these people need? The cars, the carpets, the appliances, the clothing, the sporting goods and the food? Largely, we do.

But, we're not growing just to keep up with the ever-increasing population. We're growing to be prepared for an even bigger South in the future.

According to the federal government, the railroads will get an increase in freight volume of 143% by 1990.

And the railroads' share of market will go up by a big 24%.

Will we get the lion's share of these increases when they come? Maybe. But whatever happens, we're getting ready for them by expanding right now. We're putting in a new $40 million automated freight classification yard in North Carolina. We're adding to our microwave communication system, which is already the largest in the South. And our president and his top officers personally inspect our entire mainline track each year. To make sure it's in the peak of condition.

So, even though we're growing right along with you, we're also growing ahead of you. Because when the demand is there, we want to be there, ready to serve.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold weather is forecast today for the Northeast. Mild weather is expected in the Southwest and seasonably cool temperatures elsewhere. Rain is due for western

Washington and from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Appalachians. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A weak cold front coming out of a storm in the Great Lakes was expected to move slowly south across the state today. With it were some widely scattered areas of rain or showers.

The front is expected to stall just south of us and set up our next invasion of rain.
Low pressure will form on the front in Louisiana and move northeast during Tuesday. Ahead of it an area of rain is expected to push into western areas tonight and across the entire state Tuesday. The heaviest and most concentrated amounts will be in the mountains and western Piedmont. A drop in temperatures will accompany the rain.

A mixed bag of weather moved through the state Sunday. Fortunately for Tar Heels, the main band of precipitation from a storm in the Great Lakes stayed just north of the state. During the evening, Asheville had a mixture of sleet and freezing rain and Boone received two inches of new snow.

As the precipitation moved out of the mountains into the northeast and northern Piedmont it was in the form of light sleet mixed with a few snow flakes.

During the night the light precipitation was confined to the eastern areas in the form of rain or drizzle.

Recreational weather will be poor by Tuesday. With the rain Tuesday, highs will only be in the 40s and 50s. Winds will increase, making it a very raw day, especially in the west.

Small craft advisories are in effect along the coast.

Avers Helsinki Pact Violated

McCAIN, N.C. (AP) — Ben Chavis, the imprisoned leader of the Wilmington 10, says the United States is violating agreements made at the 1975 Helsinki conference on human rights by continuing to keep him and his eight comrades in prison.

Chavis, in a 17-page appeal to the Belgrade Conference on Human Rights, says he and the others convicted with him are "in the clearest sense of the term, political prisoners of conscience."

The 10 — nine black men and a white woman — were convicted in 1972 of taking part in the burning of a grocery store during racial violence a year earlier in Wilmington, N.C.

Last year they exhausted their appeals and went to prison. The woman has since been paroled. The others continue to insist that the state manipulated evidence and falsified testimony against them. Efforts to obtain a new trial are still under way.

Chavis said he wasn't trying to embarrass "is country with his claims of human rights violations."

"I love my country," he wrote. "It is because I love my country that I decry publicly the domestic exploitation, persecution and imprisonment of innocent citizens for political, economic and racist motives."

Chavis was a civil rights worker with the United Church of Christ's Commission on Racial Justice, and was called to Wilmington during the 1971 trouble by the Gregory Congregational Church, a meeting place for black youths.

Chavis wrote the delegates that the church was besieged by "nightriders" and that local police, in denying his request for a curfew, "refused to protect black citizens in their homes and churches from the bloodthirsty vigilantes roaming through and shooting up the black community."

The 10 lost a bid to overturn their convictions last spring when state Superior Court Judge George Fountain held a two-week post-conviction hearing and denied their motion. During that hearing, three former prosecution witnesses recanted their original testimony.

But the star witness, Alan Hall, later appeared to change his mind again in a secretly-taped telephone call to government lawyers that was played in open court.

The 10 have also become the object of a campaign for their release by Amnesty International, a London-based organization which keeps track of what it calls political prisoners.

Gov. Jim Hunt, who has been urged by some to grant the 10 a pardon, has received about 100 letters on the case from persons outside the U.S.

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Imagine walking into a furniture store and telling the salesman you want a dresser.
He hands you a 75-pound box and says, "Here, you take it home and put it together yourself."

A classic case of the surly salesman?
Not at all, just another development in the do-it-yourself trend.
It's furniture that costs a few bucks less than the showroom stuff because you take it home yourself and put it together yourself.

But you say you had trouble with Tinker toys, let alone a real piece of furniture?
No problem, says one of America's largest furniture manufacturers, who has poured $2 million into equipment and testing to produce "self assembly" furniture.

"We have tried to make it idiot proof," says Wes Collins, president of Broyhill Industries Inc. of Lenoir. Broyhill is the first major furniture maker to go on the market with a line of self assembly furniture.

"Everything can be put together with a screwdriver," says Collins. "And we include a screwdriver in every box."
In the furniture trade, the line is called "kd" or "knock-down" because it can be taken apart for moving and reassembled. But Broyhill officials prefer their less violent-sounding "self assembly" tag.

Broyhill introduced its self-assembly line last summer and now markets dining room, living room and bedroom furniture to stores throughout the country.

"This concept is only new in the States," says Pete Steib, sales manager for Broyhill. "It's a proven concept in Europe — one-third of the furniture in England is self-assembly."

Broyhill markets a contemporary style of self-assembly furniture. The pieces are synthetic particle board, specially made by Broyhill, and covered with a tough veneer that looks like wood grain.

Steib says Broyhill's self-assembly line will make up about two percent of the corporation's total output this year.

"We don't say this replaces conventional furniture because it doesn't. It's an alternative," Steib says.

Broyhill officials say there are advantages in the self-assembly line, both to the consumer and the merchant:

—Less warehouse and store space is taken up because each piece of furniture comes in a narrow cardboard box that can be stacked.

—There is no delivery cost.
—It is immediately available — the consumer can carry a box out of the store rather than wait for delivery from a warehouse.

—The parts come off an assembly line and are interchangeable; thus if a table leg breaks, simply buy a new leg.
—It can be broken down, boxed to move and then reassembled.

On the other hand, the consumer is limited to one style and, depending upon one's taste in furniture, the price tag may not be all that low.

One store which markets Broyhill's line advertised a self-assembly dresser at three prices: $190 if the store puts it together and delivers, $165 if the store delivers it unassembled and $148 if the customer carries out the box.

And, Broyhill officials admit that some merchants are not overly enthusiastic about self-assembly furniture because there may be a lower markup.

Still, officials say sales are expanding. Broyhill has equipped one factory to turn out nothing but self-assembly furniture.

What might appear to be the most obvious problem — putting the furniture together — turns out to be relatively easy in a test by a reporter not known for his skill with tools.

Simple, illustrated instructions are included in each box. Actually, the most difficult part of the task was getting into the heavy cardboard box, which is sealed with mammoth staples and wrapped with tough nylon cord.

By following six steps — turning a screw here, sliding a panel into the slots there — a three-drawer stand was born in less than 20 minutes. And it looked like the picture on the box.

"We emphasize that people should read the instructions," Steib says.

A Broyhill official in the self-assembly factory was more emphatic.

"The only complaint we've had about somebody having trouble putting something together was from a furniture warehouse. A guy tried to put one together and just couldn't get it done. He figured he didn't need to read the instructions."

NASA Cool To UFO Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is being asked to take up where the Air Force left off a decade ago: investigate reports of unidentified flying objects.

The resumed inquiries come at the request of President Carter, who in 1973, while governor of Georgia, reported sighting a UFO near Griffin, Ga.

Dave Williamson, NASA assistant for special projects, said Friday that the agency is "not anxious" to get into the UFO controversy because "it's not wise to do research on something that is not a measurable phenomena."

"There is no measurable UFO evidence such as a piece of metal, flesh or cloth. We don't even have any radio signals," Williamson said. "A photograph is not a measurement..."

But Williamson said a group of technical experts which he heads will recommend by the end of the year what NASA should do about the White House request to establish a UFO panel of inquiry.

The Air Force cut off its investigations into UFO sightings 10 years ago after a decade of study and considerable expense because it said without any significant findings, continuation was unwarranted.

Dr. Frank Press, Carter's science adviser, asked for the renewed investigations in a letter to NASA administrator Robert A. Frosch because of what he called a "national revival" of interest in the reports of UFO sightings.

At this time, NASA answers UFO letters it receives with a form letter which cites the main findings of the Air Force investigation:

That there is no evidence of the existence of extraterrestrial vehicles; there is no evidence that UFOs pose a threat to the United States; and there is no evidence they represent a technological development beyond known technology.

Super-Sniff By Narc Dog

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Dogs' noses are 100,000 times more sensitive than those of man in sniffing out narcotics even when the drugs are disguised by other odors, a U.S. delegate to the first Narcotic Detector Dog Conference said Saturday.

A report prepared for the conference, opening Monday, said such dogs have made 9,000 seizures of narcotics worth $100 million in the United States alone.

Laird D. Allshouse of the International Operations Division of the U.S. Customs Service told a news conference that Singapore was selected for the U.S.-sponsored conference because of the commitment and enthusiasm the island republic showed in its new narcotics detector dog program.

Singapore Customs Senior Director Liao Long Sing said 34 nations now use dogs to detect narcotics shipments and the program is expanding steadily.

Among nations represented at the five-day conference will be the United States, Britain, Canada, West Germany, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand.

Allshouse said 112 dogs, mostly Alsatians, are working at drug detection in the United States. Each dog averaged at least one seizure every four working days in the past year.

He said dogs have an odor detection and identification ability 100,000 times greater than man.

Allshouse said they could be trained to detect contraband narcotics even when it is heavily disguised and protected by other smells such as chlorine or heavy wax.

Robber Forgot Walkie-Talkie

BRIDGEPORT, W.Va. (AP) — A forgetful gunman returned to the savings and loan branch office he had just robbed to pick up a portable walkie talkie he left behind.

The man entered a branch of the First Federal Savings and Loan bank in Clarksburg Friday afternoon, announced to the lone teller it was a holdup, and gave her a briefcase to fill with cash.

After dashing out of the building with $2,500, police said, the gunman returned moments later to pick up the walkie talkie.

Broadwayites Fume Over 'Shooting Down' Of Lisa

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway, where there is a broken light bulb for every heartless drama critic, is in a wrist-slapping snit because New York magazine's John Simon has suggested that the luminous, indefatigable Lisa Minelli has "blubber lips," a face like "a beagle" and "a nose en route to becoming a trunk."

In addition to everything else, like Mrs. Lincoln at Ford's Theater, he didn't think much of the play.

For shooting down "The Act," Ms. Minelli's tireless and at times tiresome new star turn at the Majestic Theater, in terms so personally unflattering to the performer, the League of New York Theaters and Producers has called on the press agents to deny critic Simon his free sharpshooter's seat on the aisle at future openings.

Both the Drama Critics Circle and the Drama Desk, the approved gun clubs of the first night assassins, have protested the league's action as discriminatory, and all sorts of people like gossip columnist Liz Smith and producer Harold Prince have heaped scorn on Simon's "rampant machismo" in calling attention, whether accurately or not, to the star's outer shell rather than her inner fire.

All of which begs the question of whether a performer's physical appearance is fair game for a critic's candor and/or vitriol.

Superstar Minelli would not spend more than half the evening in a sequined leotard cut down to the Canal Zone if she were resentful of the idea of being confused with a sex object by the learned critics, any more than MGM put Lana Turner in a sweater so moviegoers could admire her diction.

When Bing Crosby called Bob Hope "old ski nose," he was being physical and personal, to say nothing of inviting two decades of counterattacking banter about his own lack of scalp protection.

Walter Kerr, surely the most gracious and kindly of drama critics, once rhapsodized on the "callipygian charms" of dancer Gwen Verdon, which was getting physical below the belt.

Callipygian, according to my Oxford English Dictionary, means "having shapely or finely developed buttocks," from the name of a famous statue of Venus. Critic Kerr, in fact, was so taken with Miss Verdon's isical tubercities, to use the medical term and avoid offense, he wanted to have them cast in a mold and hung over Shubert Alley as a sort of rear guard Mount Rushmore.

But what, may one ask, would propriety and professional candor require of the critic who had some its and buts about the Verdon butt, or, for the sake of argument, the Minelli proboscis?

My mother, who was a great movie fan and even went on nights when they weren't giving away dishes, would have gone along with what Simon says. Her critiques tended to be very physical since she never could remember the names of the stars, only what they looked like.

"What did you see tonight, Ma?"
"The Pirate."

"Who was in it?"
"Rat Eyes and Lantern Jaw." That meant Judy Garland, Liza's Mom, and Gene Kelly.

Clark Gable, her idol, was "Taxi Doors," because she said with those ears he looked like a taxicab with the back doors open. June Allyson was "Weepy Eyes," Bette Davis: "The Screacher," Leslie Howard: "That Chinless Englishman," John Wayne: "Pine Knot" and Wallace Beery: "Pudding Face."

She saw "Rose Marie" with "Egg Head" and "Needle Nose," which meant the Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald version. She couldn't abide "Po-pee," not the cartoon character but Kirk Douglas, but doted on "Chicken Neck" and "Patent Leather," respectively James Stewart and George Raft.

In most cases Mom was not putting the knock on people she nicknamed. Her physical pseudonyms generally added up to more gentle criticism than emanated from Percy Hammond, one of the theater's more profound observers. "I could knock everything about this play," he dismissed a dismal musical, "except the chorus girls' knees, and nature anticipated me there."

Just the other night, down at the local pizzeria, a critical contretemps ensued over which of "Charley's Angels," new, old or any, really could act. It mattered not to one of the savants which of the four was at her dramaturgical best unfettered by a bra. "I like the one with the bow legs," he opined, without indicating which angel was so underpinned. Denied the physical approach, the arguments ad personem, political cartoonists and caricaturists would be an endangered species, and Sardi's would have to decorate its walls with men's room graffiti or X-rays of Cher's poitrine job.

Never Before Such A Clash Of Feminists And Opponents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Women's Conference has been compared to a circus, a celebrity fund-raiser, a religious revival, a political convention and a pep rally for the Equal Rights Amendment. All of these comparisons are true, but none is entirely accurate.

The four-day meeting that ended last Monday was unique. Never before have 2,000 elected delegates gathered, as they did in Houston, under federal mandate to write a legislative blueprint for women.

Celebrities were everywhere, and many of them helped to raise as much as $100,000 during a special fund-raiser for ERAmerica. They included first ladies Rosalynn Carter, Betty Ford and Lady Bird Johnson; actress Jean Stapleton; feminist heroines Gloria Steinam, Betty Friedan and Bella Abzug, and anthropologist Margaret Mead.

Former Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, a confessed rapist, also showed up for some reason. But Anita Bryant and Larry Flynt could not make it.

The event began to look like a religious revival when the conservatives held a counter-rally designed to show that feminism violates the precepts of God, family and country. The crowd of 10,000 shouted "Amen" during speeches laced with Biblical quotations.

Back inside the conference hall where Ms. Abzug was presiding, feminists sought to prove themselves equally pro-God and pro-family — "As a God-fearing mother of two children, I rise to a point of order." A sound truck circled the hall calling on delegates to "repent!"

The conference was modeled closely after a political convention, with each state delegation seated together and tons of political material including banners, placards, buttons, T-shirts and balloons.

Any political candidate would be envious of the way the feminists and conservatives kept their supporters in line. "The floor was managed better than I've ever seen it done at a Republican convention," a GOP leader said.

The feminist coalition — including labor, minorities, lesbians and mainline feminist groups like the National Organization for Women — was amazingly bipartisan. Moderate Republicans voted with the Democrats on such unlikely issues as full employment and national health insurance.

Outnumbered by feminists by about five to one, a conservative coalition of fundamentalist churchgoers and the Republican "New Right" had no hope of winning on any issues. Instead they sought to make their case to the media.

The platform adopted by the conference also was similar to a party platform — particularly because it was binding on no one. President Carter and Congress are not expected to be swayed by its endorsement of abortion, lesbian rights or any other controversial ideas.

Feminists organized the conference primarily to rebuild their faltering campaign for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Time after time, the conference broke into chants of "ERA, ERA, ERA."

Conservatives did not respond to these outbursts. They went home knowing they still have an upper hand in the 15 state legislatures that refuse to the ERA.

Nine Die In Holiday Toll

By The Associated Press
Thanksgiving holiday weekend traffic accidents claimed nine lives in North Carolina, the Highway Patrol reported. Five of the dead were pedestrians.

The state's traffic death toll for 1977 now stands at 1,289, compared to 1,358 at this time last year.

The same holiday weekend last year recorded 19 traffic deaths. The North Carolina State Motor Club had predicted that 12 would die between 6 p.m. Wednesday when the count began and midnight Sunday.

Gordon Marion Tyson, 49, of Washington, N.C., died when his car crossed the center line on a rural paved road two miles east of Chocowinity in Beaufort County and struck another car head on Saturday, the patrol said.

The patrol said Barry Albert Berber, 88, of Elon College, was struck and killed while walking along N.C. 87 four miles north of Burlington Saturday morning.

Another pedestrian, Thurman Ray Anderson, 53, of Goldsboro, died Saturday evening when he stepped into the path of a vehicle on U.S. 301 1½ miles south of Wilson.

Others killed during the long weekend were:

Charles Henry Walker, 62, of Wilmington, a pedestrian.
William Thomas Jackson, 34, of Spring Lake.

Ransome Harrington, 52, of Rt. 1, Rockingham.
Raybryn Ward Cottle, 12, of Beulaville, a pedestrian.

Donald Davis, 7, of Charlotte, a pedestrian.
Anita Louise Rowe, 15, of Brevard.

Dubious Honor In His Glacier

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Getting a glacier named after him didn't leave a University of Maryland professor cold, but he admits, "There is probably less to it than meets the eye."

The U.S. Board of Geographic Names recently honored Theodore J. Rosenberg by naming a glacier after him in recognition of the research he has done in Antarctica, where he and a team of scientists from the University of Maryland have been studying energy particles and electromagnetic waves.

Rosenberg said he doesn't know what guidelines are used for naming places in Antarctica after people.

Rosenberg said the glacier bearing his name is 750 miles west of Siple Station, a research area on the Palmer Peninsula in Antarctica.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Daytime highs Wednesday through Friday will be mostly in the 60s for eastern part of state. Lows Wednesday and Friday mornings mostly in 40s and a bit cooler on Thursday. A chance of showers Wednesday and again Friday.

Women Reporters Had Real Ordeal In Houston

By SARA FRITZ
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Feminist leaders, often suspicious of the news media, made an extraordinary effort to discourage a group of predominantly women reporters from covering the conflict among delegates to the National Women's Conference.

Some women reporters strongly resented these attempts to influence their coverage of the meeting. Others questioned an apparent feminist bias in the media.

About 1,700 persons were admitted as reporters to the conference — most of them women. Most reporters for leading news organizations expressed no personal bias, although some are known to support women's rights.

Many partisan publications also were represented by reporters who applauded at news conferences and wore T-shirts expressing their bias.

Even facing a friendly audience, feminist leaders like Bella Abzug, Jill Ruckelshaus and Liz Carpenter delivered lectures on how the meeting should be covered by the news media.

Ms. Carpenter opened one news conference by declaring that most of the people in the room did not know how to cover the women's movement. Ms. Ruckelshaus added: "Don't under any circumstances cover the easy story. The easy story here is that there are people here that disagree."

Specifically these leaders were asking reporters to ignore the clash between feminists and conservative women who oppose equal rights. Others tried to discourage coverage of the opposition or any embarrassing aspect.

For example, some who are sensitive to the myth that feminists advocate "unisex bathrooms" tried to interfere with a cameraman who was filming women entering and leaving a men's room.

A feminist supporter grabbed the news media credentials of a male UPI reporter while he was interviewing a conservative woman. The feminist studied his name, then declared: "I just want to know who my enemies are."

Feminists long have complained that women are wrongly portrayed by the media. Many news organizations have responded with new guidelines to eliminate stereotyping of women, and some reporters now specialize in covering women's issues.

Many veteran women reporters thus objected strongly to feminist criticism of the media. "I think they maligned some of the best women reporters in the country — who were lumped in with all the kooks," said Kay Mills of Newhouse News Service.

"Some reporters may have distorted the conference — some, but not all. If they (the feminists) wanted to be portrayed as individuals, they could have returned the courtesy to the reporters there."

Added Carol Richards of Gannett News Service: "They did a rather amateurish thing by trying to tell experienced women reporters how to cover the story."

Many women reporters also questioned the expression of bias among reporters at the meeting. Miss Mills said she was embarrassed when partisan reporters applauded. Mrs. Richards questioned whether feminist supporters should be assigned to cover the women's movement.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pulled back slightly today on the news of a record monthly U.S. trade deficit. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 8.66 last week, dropped back 4.68 to 839.74 by noon today. Losers took a small lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The Commerce Department reported this morning that the nation had its largest trade deficit ever in October. The seasonally adjusted figures showed imports exceeding exports by $3.1 billion. Officials pointed out that the gap was exaggerated by the dock strike that began Oct. 1.

Nevertheless, recent wide trade deficits, stemming primarily from oil imports, have been a subject of concern for Wall Streeters.

One reason for this is that they tend to depress the dollar against other currencies and make securities in this country less attractive to foreign investors. The biggest loser on the active list was NCR, off 2 at 40 1/2. A 103,900-share block traded at 41. The NYSE's composite common-stock index fell 20 to 53.13. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .07 at 123.35.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.83 million shares by noon today against 8.07 million at the same point on Friday.

Energy Bill Difficulties Are Delaying Social Security Bill

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional difficulty in approving a national energy program is threatening to delay final consideration of a Social Security bill until next year.

Such a delay could mean there will be no increases in Social Security taxes, beyond those already enacted, until 1979. That position is favored by the Senate, while the House prefers raising taxes further on middle- and upper-income workers starting Jan. 1. President Carter and the Democratic leadership of Congress list energy as the top-priority issue for the remainder of the year, although they are urging final action on Social Security as well.

Action on both may not be possible because the Senate and House members most responsible for Social Security legislation are the same ones who are negotiating a compromise on the tax portions of the energy program. And it appears likely that energy will keep the lawmakers busy until close to Christmas.

After a week's recess, the energy negotiators were to return to work today, still facing the most crucial — and most controversial — energy issues. Those issues are natural gas pricing and taxing of U.S.-produced crude oil. The latter would drive up the price of gasoline by about 7 cents a gallon.

Energy is not the only subject of controversy on Capitol Hill this week. Negotiators still are looking for a compromise on government-funded abortions that would allow final passage of a $60.2 billion money bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

A stopgap law that has continued money for the departments while Congress debates abortion runs out Wednesday night.

The House will vote Tuesday on Carter's plan to reorganize such government education bureaus as the U.S. Information Agency. A final House vote is likely later this week on a bill prohibiting the sexual exploitation of children.

And both the House and Senate may take final action this week on a supplemental appropriation bill affecting the B-1 bomber and the dispute over the nuclear breeder reactor.

The measure supports Carter's position that three remaining B-1s, which have been financed in a separate bill, need not be built. Congress and the president earlier agreed to scuttle production of the long-range bomber.

The same appropriation bill includes $80 million for the Clinch River breeder reactor program near Oak Ridge, Tenn. A bill authorizing that program prompted Carter's first veto.

If Congress is unable to complete action on Social Security this year, that issue is expected to get priority attention when the lawmakers return to town in January.

Experts say that unless Social Security is assured more money, the giant system could be bankrupt by 1983. Efforts could be delayed for several months without harm, but congressional leaders would like to have the problem settled long before the 1978 elections.

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to thwart government efforts to dismantle the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The justices let stand rulings by a federal trial judge and the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here that the Justice Department may sue AT&T for antitrust violations.

Today's action is a major victory for the government in its attempts to have the antitrust lawsuit it filed in 1974 reach trial.

AT&T had contended that it could not be sued on antitrust charges because it is heavily regulated by the Federal Communications Commission and state agencies. Legal review of that contention has postponed any progress in the government's case.

The Justice Department's suit charges AT&T and its subsidiaries, Western Electric Co. and Bell Laboratories, with violating Sherman Act antitrust laws by attempting and conspiring to monopolize telecommunications service and equipment in the United States.

The suit named the 23 Bell System telephone companies wholly or partially owned by AT&T as co-conspirators.

The AT&T network of companies was charged with obstructing interconnection of other telecommunications companies with AT&T, obstructing the interconnection of customer-provided equipment and refusing to sell terminal equipment to Bell subscribers.

The government's suit seeks to have AT&T stripped of its controlling interest in Western Electric, the world's largest manufacturer of telephone equipment. It also seeks to divest Western Electric of some manufacturing assets to insure competition in the production and sale of equipment.

The government wants to separate AT&T's Long Lines Department from the 23 operating companies "to the extent necessary to insure competition in telecommunications service and equipment."

In its appeal for Supreme Court review, AT&T argued that "effective competition" is precluded by state and federal laws "which require coordination among the companies providing such services to establish a single unified nationwide telecommunications network."

U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy of Washington ruled last year that the federal courts do have jurisdiction in the government's suit against the Bell System.

In an unusual move, AT&T came directly to the Supreme Court in appealing Waddy's decision but was turned down by the high court last Jan. 25.

The huge communications firm then argued its case before the appeals court, which ruled against AT&T on May 26. Calling any trial before Judge Waddy "pointless" unless the jurisdiction question is resolved, AT&T asked in its Supreme Court appeal that the justices grant the issue full review.

It called the impending antitrust action "the most massive undertaking in the history of the American judicial system," and predicted that the trial would take at least 10 years to complete and ultimately cost AT&T and the government more than $1 billion.

No Identity Clues In Sawed-Up Body

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police hope an autopsy will help them identify a man whose nude body was found in south Knox County with his head and limbs sawed off.

The victim, described as being a white male in his 30s and weighing about 165 pounds, was found Saturday about 100 yards off Cherokee Trail by two teenagers hunting in the area.

"What makes this case so hard is that there's no place to start," said Charles Smith, a Knox County detective. "Everything that is used to identify the body is missing."

Smith said the body was found with the head and neck severed at the shoulders, the hands cut off several inches above the wrist and legs severed about three inches above the knees. The victim's genitals also had been severed, he said.

"It was an awfully brutal thing to see," Smith said. "After looking at it, I think there's a maniac out there someplace."

Smith said he is not sure whether a chainsaw or hand-saw was used and that none of the limbs have been found. He said police were attempting today to find the origin of a small piece of ski rope found near the body.

Sheriff Joe Jenkins said bloodstains on the ground indicate the body had been dumped there from a car. He said there was a cut on one of the victim's upper arms, possibly made to remove an identifying mark such as a mole or tattoo.

Dr. Fred Furr, Knox County's medical examiner, said the victim had been dead about six to eight hours before the body was found by the two teenagers at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Furr said rigor mortis had not yet set in when he arrived at the location.

Armed Robbery In Parking Lot

An armed robber got only 30 cents in change for his trouble when he took a handbag from a woman at gun-point in a drugstore parking lot at the intersection of Sixth Street and Memorial Drive about 9:15 p.m. yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a man armed with a pistol walked up to a car in which Susan Thompson of Robersonville was sitting, opened the door, and demanded her pocketbook.

Saying, "I have a gun," and pointing the weapon at her face, the robber took the bag and fled on foot. Cannon said the purse contained 30 cents in change, keys, glasses and other items valued at about $109.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

INTERIOR SELLING TIPS

Remember — when you are showing the inside of your home to a prospective buyer, first impressions are lasting and have an important effect on a potential sale. A clean, well-kept home shows a home that has had good care and has been properly maintained. Repair the interior if it needs it, but use neutral colors, if possible. An attractive, comfortable living room is a major attraction, but a sparkling kitchen will appeal to the lady of any house. It's the heart of any home, so keep it spotless. No dirty dishes. Women are also sensitive about bathrooms; keep them clean and orderly. Bedrooms are important — arrange their furnishings neatly. Shiny, clean windows not only are a great asset, but let sunlight in and brighten the entire atmosphere. Clean out the clutter in the closets, basement, and garage. And, if you have pets, clear them out too when showing.

Baltimore Learns Broncos Are For Real

Ted Marchibroda and the Baltimore Colts are the latest to learn what is becoming gospel around the National Football League: the Denver Broncos are for real.

The Broncos jumped to a 14-0 halftime lead over Baltimore in Sunday's battle of division leaders, saw the Colts close to within 14-13, then turned them back with two fourth-quarter touchdowns in posting a 27-13 victory.

"You have to give Denver credit," said Marchibroda, impressed by the offense led by surprising Craig Morton and the rugged Orange Crush defense. "This was probably the biggest game they've been in, and they played almost errorless football."

The Broncos now are 10-1, the best record in the league. They lead defending Super Bowl champion Oakland by 1 1/2 games in the American Football Conference's West Division.

Denver is a newcomer to the ranks of the NFL's elite, but four more familiar names — Dallas, Pittsburgh, Minnesota and Los Angeles — strengthened their playoff chances with victories Sunday.

The Dallas Cowboys, 9-2, took over sole possession of first place in the AFC Central, beating the New York Jets 23-20 as Terry Bradshaw threw two touchdown passes and the Steelers picked off five Jets aerials. The other three teams in the division, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Houston, are tied for second place at 6-5 in the league's closest divisional race.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, 7-4, took over sole possession of first place in the AFC Central, beating the New York Jets 23-20 as Terry Bradshaw threw two touchdown passes and the Steelers picked off five Jets aerials. The other three teams in the division, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Houston, are tied for second place at 6-5 in the league's closest divisional race.

The Minnesota Vikings got back on the winning track with a 13-6 triumph over Green Bay as Chuck Foreman ran through the snow for 101 yards. That put the Vikings, 7-4, one game ahead of Chicago in the NFC Central.

And the Los Angeles Rams stayed two games ahead of Atlanta in the NFC West, blanking the Cleveland Browns 9-0 in another game played in snow. It was only the fifth time the Browns have been blanked in 367 regular-season games.

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, the Cincinnati Bengals beat the New York Giants 30-13, the Houston Oilers defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 34-20, the Atlanta Falcons blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 17-0, the New England Patriots topped the Philadelphia Eagles 14-6, the San Diego Chargers trimmed the Seattle Seahawks 30-28 and the San Francisco 49ers edged the New Orleans Saints 20-17.

Chicago beat Detroit 31-14 and Miami walloped St. Louis 55-14 Thursday.

Buffalo plays at Oakland tonight in a game which the Raiders, 8-2, must win to stay within striking distance of Denver in the AFC West and remain the front-runner for the AFC wild card.

Morton staked the Broncos to their early lead with touchdown passes of 41 yards to Rick Upchurch and 19 to Jack Dolbin. Baltimore came back in the second half for a touchdown and two field goals behind the crisp, short passing of Bert Jones.

But Jones, who completed 11 passes to Don McCauley and nine to Lydell Mitchell, both running backs, suffered a critical interception in the final period.

With 7:20 to go in the game, he tried to dump a pass to McCauley in the flat. But Denver linebacker Tom Jackson stepped in front of McCauley, picked off the ball and dashed 73 yards for the clinching touchdown. Morton ran 6 yards for an insurance score with 1:14 left, but Jackson's TD was what tamed the Colts.

Cowboys 14, Redskins 7

With the score tied 7-7 in the fourth period, Dallas had the ball on the Redskins' 2-yard line with fourth down and one yard needed for a first down.

"My first inclination was to go for the field goal," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "I just felt like that when you get in there, you ought not come out without any points."

Landry changed his mind, however, and Roger Staubach sneaked over for a first down. On the next play, Dorsett hurdled the line for the game-winning score.

Steelers 23, Jets 20

Bradshaw completed scoring strikes of 37 yards to John Stallworth and 5 yards to Lynn Swann, and Franco Harris ran 1 yard for a Pittsburgh touchdown, but Roy Gerela's 37-yard field goal with 5:58 to play proved to be the winning margin.

Harris gained 83 yards and became only the third player in NFL history to pile up over 6,000 yards in his first six seasons, joining Jimmy Brown and O.J. Simpson.

Vikings 13, Packers 6
Chuck Foreman rushed for 101 yards and Bob Lee hooked up with Sammy White for a 40-yard scoring strike through the snow as Minnesota beat Green Bay.

Rams 9, Browns 0

Pat Haden completed 20 of 29 passes for 172 yards for Los Angeles while Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti led a solid ground game. Cappelletti's 7-yard touchdown run and Rafael Septien's 18-yard field goal were the only scores, but it was Los Angeles' defense which dominated the game.

Bengals 30, Giants 13

The Bengals beat the Giants by beating the weather. Ken Anderson fired three first-half touchdown passes, including a 58-yard bomb to wide receiver Billy Brooks on Cincinnati's first play from scrimmage, before the snow came.

Oilers 34, Chiefs 20

Houston built a 34-6 lead as Dan Pastorini threw three touchdown passes, including two to Ken Burrough, then coasted past Kansas City. Rob Carpenter rushed for 149 yards and Ronnie Coleman for 101 for the Oilers, while Tim Wilson scored on a pair of 1-yard runs.

Falcons 17, Buccaneers 0

"It's back to the practice field on Monday," said Tampa

Bay Coach John McKay, whose club now is 0-25 over two years after its fifth shutout of the season.

Haskel Stanback scored both Atlanta touchdowns on 1-yard plunges.

The Falcons have given up just 83 points in 11 games and have a shot at the record for fewest points allowed in a 14-game season, 133 by Minnesota in 1969.

Patriots 14, Eagles 6

Steve Grogan passed for two touchdowns in the first half and the New England defense made them stand up, sacking Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski eight times.

Chargers 30, Seahawks 20
Dan Fouts, who rejoined San Diego last week after a 125-day holdout, found Charlie Joiner with a 17-yard touchdown pass and defensive end Fred Dean raced 22 yards with an interception for another fourth-quarter score, leading the Chargers over Seattle.

Fouts completed 19 of 26 passes for 199 yards in his season debut.

49ers 20, Saints 17

Ray Werschling's 42-yard field goal as time ran out provided the winning points for the 49ers, who got 190 yards rushing from Wilbur Jackson.

New Success Symbol: American Sports Hero

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Take a scene in a typical American home, vintage 1977:

Mother (to son, closeted in his room): "Egbert, what are you doing?"

Son: "Hitting the books, mom. Got a heavy test coming up tomorrow."

Mother, provoked: "I thought I told you to quit messing around with your lessons. Get your bat and glove and go over to the park and play baseball."

Son, sullenly: "Yes, ma'am."

Another scene, another home, same year, 1977:

Father (to son, breaking for the front door): "Where do you think you're going, Archibald?"

Son: "Gotta run down to the library, pop. Gotta finish this research paper."

Father: "Forget it. You've been hanging around the library too much lately. Your tennis is getting lousy. Get your racket and go over and hit for an hour or so against the backboard."

Son: "Okay, pop."

Contrast these with similar scenes a couple of decades ago when parents were berating their offspring: "No, you can't go out and play until your lessons are all done — that is final."

There's been an abrupt turnaround in the mores of normal family life, a shift in the priorities, a new set of rules for pointing Junior toward a financially secure future.

It's no longer the so-called "brain" — straight A's, president of the Latin Society and valedictorian — whose bespectacled visage in the high school yearbook carries the notation "Most Likely to Succeed." Instead, this goes to the ne'er-do-well, the guy who played hooky to shoot baskets on the school grounds, sneaked off from his studies to play baseball, shoot pool or practice his tennis and golf shots.

America's new symbol of success and affluence isn't the Rhodes Scholar. It is the guy who can thread a 40-yard pass with four linemen yanking at his hip bones, lob home runs into the upper tiers, sink 25-foot putts over a dinosaur grave or hit a tennis service at 125 miles per hour.

The price tags on the latest lot of baseball free agents are enough to blow the mind. Ron Blomberg, a New York Yankee first baseman who played only one game the last two seasons, signed a four-year contract with the Chicago White Sox for $600,000. The Yankees paid $2.7 million for a relief pitcher, Rich Gossage. Package deals made instant millionaires of Lyman Bostock ($3 million), Larry Hise ($3 million), Richie Zisk ($3 million) and Mike Torrez ($2 million).

Latest pro tennis figures show Jimmy Connors has earned $822,636 in prize money alone this year and Chris Evert $603,134. Guillermo Vilas, with $300,000 for clinching the Grand Prix standings, is going for $800,000.

Olympic figure skating queen Dorothy Hamill made a quick million as a pro, $300,000 for a single TV commercial. Final PGA golf tour statistics show Tom Watson the leading money winner with $310,653. Twenty-five golfers earned more than $100,000, 106 more than $20,000. Four women golfers won more than $100,000, 27 above $25,000.

Pro basketball players average $110,000 a year, with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar heading the list at $600,000. Football's top stars draw between $200,000 and $450,000 a season.

It's a weird, almost unfathomable spiral. The country, as an antidote to Vietnam and Watergate, is on a sports "high." Makers of tires, toothpaste and panty hose have capitalized on this heady phenomenon to push their products through TV and other sponsorships. The result: Dollars cascade into athletes' pockets like a waterfall.

And who is king of them all? Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, a high school dropout who couldn't pass the Army test of putting round pegs in round holes. His take to date: $40 million-plus.

Saturday afternoon's opening basketball game for East Carolina University provided much insight into the Pirate basketball program, but it did leave a number of questions unanswered.

Hopefully, the answers to these questions will be found in the coming weeks and the sooner the better.

The Pirates played the Indiana Hoosiers down to the wire for all but the final five minutes of the basketball game, but impatience, turnovers and the inability to rebound effectively on offense cost the game.

We viewed the game over television, and were affected by the picture of the team shown there. Overall, we felt that the team's performance was a good one. It showed a lot of promise, but left us frustrated. We felt that the Pirates were within reach of a victory.

But the Pirates didn't shoot as well as they had been expected to. In fact, both teams shot poorly, less than 40 per cent. Rebounding was a heavy factor in the game, and East Carolina's inability to work the boards consistently cost them chances at second shots on offense.

While Coach Larry Gillman has worked hard on conditioning, that could have been a factor late in the game too. When Indiana coach Bobby Knight substituted near the ten-minute mark, he brought fresh men into the game. They were able to turn things around for the Hoosiers and put the game on ice.

East Carolina, during the first 30-plus minutes of the game, played only seven people. Oliver Mack and Walter Moseley played all but the final few seconds of the game. None of the Indiana personnel went so long.

That freshness could have made the difference. Perhaps more will play in future games. Sometimes a break and a breather can do wonders for a player.

Two men who played big roles last year didn't get into the game at all—at least in our estimation. Herb Krusen, regarded by everyone as the best shooter on the team, didn't play any, and Jim Ramsey, who brought a ten-point scoring average back from his freshman year, played only a few seconds late in the game.

Perhaps by playing more people, the Pirates may have been a little stronger toward the end when they had to face people who were fresher.

Of course, the ultimate decisions lie with Coach Gillman. We do not presume to coach for him. We are just making our observations as we see them.

Reportedly, Oliver Mack tried to bear too heavy a load in the game, too. Playing in a place like Indiana can be a mighty big load to push onto anyone, regardless of his reputation.

We are sure that future games will prove that his 7-22 day against the Hoosiers was not the norm.

Against Indiana, the Pirates did play almost well enough to win. There are a lot of games left.

Next Up, UNC Wilmington

The next game, one which a lot of East Carolina fans may have been taking for granted, is Thursday night against UNC Wilmington.

The Seahawks, however, cannot be taken lightly by the Pirates themselves. While in years past, they may have been a "breather" team, they are no more.

The Sporting News, in its most recent issue, called UNCW the number two independent in the Carolinas-Virginia area, behind Virginia Tech. If that is true, and they did nothing Saturday night to spoil that image, then the Pirates are in for a battle.

Wake Forest, ranked 17th in the nation by the Associated Press in pre-season, had difficulty in handling the Seahawks, pulling out a four-point victory, 83-79, on the Seahawk court.

And Rod Griffin, the Deacons' leader that some felt might not play, did play, leading the victory with 22 points.

The Pirates, thus, play a strong schedule, despite what some may say. Following UNCW, they have games with Alderson-Broadbudd, an unknown factor right now, then Maryland, the First Union Tournament in Charlotte, and N.C. State—none of whom can be considered anything but top-flight competition.

UNCW brings in, by the way, a former Rose High star in Lonnie Payton, giving an added spark to the game.

LOVE OF CUP RACES

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — What brings a man clear across the country to watch something like the America's Cup races, an event he can only see from a few miles away?

"It's the pinnacle of sailing," Paul Brent of San Francisco said in September as he saw Ted Turner's Courageous sweep four races from Australia. "The Cup races are the ultimate honor in yacht competition."

Brewington Promises Exciting Team

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last season, Jim Brewington, coach of the Rose High School basketball team, forecast a winning season and a shot at the state playoffs. It didn't come about.

Rose went 4-17 and was eliminated in the first round of the conference tournament.

This year, Division I has two berths in the tournament, but Brewington, despite having four starters back, isn't making any promises, other than having an exciting team to watch.

However, the background is there for that winning season and a playoff berth.

"It's still too early to tell how we're going to do," Brewington said. "Rocky Mount and Northern Nash are supposed to be strong. I really can't tell about us until we have played a couple of games."

Those first two games will not be critical to the Rampant season, but they could tell a lot about how things will go.

The first game, Tuesday night in Kinston, pits the Rampants against one of the perennial top teams in the state. Then, Friday, in the home opener, the Rampants will face Washington, rated tops among the 3-A powers.

Should Rose pull off victories in both of those games, the Division I school may have to take a second look at the Rampant chances of a title.

"We have good shooting," Brewington said. "It's a matter of getting the rebounding. Getting another big man to go with (William) Barnes may be the key. If we can win six or eight conference games this year, I think we can make the playoffs."

Brewington noted that beating Kinston and Washington will be very tough assignments. "If we can come up with a couple of wins in our first six games, I'll be tickled to death. Our early games won't make us or break us, however."

Brewington was asked why he was so optimistic last year, and so cautious this year despite the experience he had this season. "I thought we would get a little more help last year (from the bench). This year, I'll just wait and see. Turnovers also hurt us a lot last year. We want to cut down on those. In our scrimmage game, we had very few, and this is encouraging."

The Rampants will also put more emphasis on defense this year. "Our players just have to adjust to this. It's the key to our season. We know we can score, but we've got to try and slow down the other team's scoring. We probably have six or seven people who are capable of hitting in double figures about every game, but who plays is going to depend on who plays defense."

The four returning Rampant starters from last year include 6-6 Barnes, 6-1 James Hawkins, 5-8 Greg Guthrie, and 6-2 Anthony Barnes. All four are likely to retain their starting assignments.

All four are also seniors on a senior-dominated team. Of the 15 players Brewington is carrying on the roster, 11 are seniors. The other upperclassmen include Perry Worthington, Lorenzo Owens and Larry Speight, all of whom saw action last year along with Billy Roberson, Kenny Hall, Calvin Parker and Bill Tugwell. Ronnie Chapman, seen as the top candidate for the fifth starting job, along with Derwin Clemmons, and Pace Academy transfer Dennis Ross, are all juniors, while Calvin Wichard is the lone sophomore on the roster. "Actually, the fifth position is wide open," Brewington said. "Owens, Roberson, or Chapman could get it, or someone else could." Currently, Brewington is working with a three-guard offense, but he is looking for help off the bench to go to a standard two-guard, two-forward offense. "We will still run whenever it is possible," the coach said. "But we are going to be a little more disciplined this year. We won't rush things unless the game dictates it. I still think we will be an exciting team, however. "Everyone can shoot, and I think we can score a lot of points. But we can't win on shooting alone. We have to rebound and we have to play defense."

Heels Rate High, Wildcats Low

By KEN RAPPOPORT

After watching his top-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels beat Oregon State 94-63 in their first game of the college basketball season, Dean Smith gave them passing grades in offense and rebounding and an A-plus in defense.

Joe Hall's marks were not so high for his reserves at Kentucky.

"They forgot everything they've been taught," he said after the second-ranked Wildcats scored a 110-86 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

Hall was particularly disturbed that his substitutes let a 42-point lead dwindle to 24 in the last three minutes.

Smith, meanwhile, was less critical in assessing his team's opening-game performance Saturday.

"Of the three phases of the game, offense, defense and rebounding, our defense was best," he said. "It made our offense. And on the offensive boards, I thought we played very aggressively for the second and third shots."

Elsewhere in the Top Ten, No. 4 Notre Dame crushed Mississippi 111-62; fifth-ranked San Francisco trimmed San Francisco State 100-67; sixth-ranked UCLA defeated Brigham Young 75-73 Saturday night and Seattle 106-73 Sunday; No. 7 Arkansas hammered Southwest Missouri State 64-47, and ninth-ranked Cincinnati beat Akron 91-81.

Among the other ranked teams, No. 11 Syracuse crushed Cornell 88-61; No. 12 Purdue stopped Xavier (Ohio) 90-82;

No. 13 Michigan beat Western Kentucky 87-81; No. 14 Maryland beat American University 78-65 Sunday in the first round of the Maryland Tipoff Tournament; No. 16 Minnesota lost to South Carolina 62-55; No. 17 Wake Forest defeated UNC-Wilmington 83-79, and No. 20 St. John's outscored Old Dominion 81-75 in winning the Joe Lapchick Tournament in New York.

In other action, Clemson won its IPTAY Tournament with an 82-75 victory over Rhode Island; St. Joseph's, Pa., beat William & Mary 69-60 for the championship of the Spider Classic at Richmond, Va.; Virginia walloped VMI 90-70 and captured the Virginia Tip-Off Tournament at Charlottesville, Va., and the University of New Orleans won its New Orleans Classic with a 90-66 thumping of Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Oregon State had little chance against North Carolina. The Beavers asserted themselves only once in the game, taking a three-point lead in the first half. But the Tar Heels ran off 18 straight points and virtually wrapped up the game with a 44-29 halftime lead. Mike O'Koren led the winners with 21 points and Phil Ford had 20.

Jack Givens had 30 points and Rick Robey 23, leading Kentucky over SMU. The Wildcats had a 104-62 lead with 3:29 left before the reserves came in and lost almost half of the 42-point advantage.

While Hall was critical of his team, Digger Phelps couldn't find anything wrong with his Notre Dame squad after the Fighting Irish subdued Mississippi. Don Williams and Kelly Tripucka combined for 32 points, sparking Notre Dame's balanced offense.

Missouri State behind Marvin Delph's 20 points. The Razorbacks led only 29-25 at the half, but quickly built a 39-25 lead in the first five minutes after intermission.

Pat Cummings' 25 points paced Cincinnati over Akron. The victory was the Bearcats' 61st consecutive home court victory — the longest among major college teams.

Marty Byrnes and Dan Schayes each scored 14 points, leading Syracuse over Cornell. Jerry Schilling sank four free throws in the final minute, helping Purdue hold off a late rally by Xavier. Dave Baxter's 28 points and 11 assists led Michigan over Western Kentucky.

Freshman Greg Hawkins and senior Lawrence Boston past American University. The Terps meet Georgetown, a 71-56 winner over Navy, for the tournament title tonight.

Jim Graziano scored six of his 21 points in the last six minutes, leading South Carolina's upset of Minnesota. Wake Forest whipped UNC-Wilmington behind Rod Griffin's 22 points and St. John's beat Old Dominion as George Johnson scored 24.

Wade Leads Montreal To Grey Cup Victory

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Alouettes thought so little of quarterback Sonny Wade early in the 1977 Canadian Football League season that they did their best to make a deal for the nine-year veteran.

It's a good thing a deal never materialized, since Wade completed 22 of 40 passes for 340 yards and three touchdowns Sunday in leading the Alouettes to a 41-6 victory over the Edmonton Eskimos and bringing the Grey Cup to Montreal for the third time since 1970.

The 30-year-old Wade was named the outstanding player in the game at the icy Olympic Stadium, an honor he earned in his two previous appearances — in 1970, when Montreal defeated the Calgary Stampeders 23-10 and in 1974, when the Alouettes beat Edmonton, 20-7.

Wade's touchdown passes were thrown within a 3½-minute stretch of the second half. He hit Peter Dalla Riva on a 7-yarder at 12:47 of the third quarter, connected with John O'Leary on a 10-yarder at 14:42 and hit Bob Gaddis from the seven at 1:15 of the fourth.

Montreal field goal kicker Don Sweet contributed the rest of the heroics, booting six field goals to break the Grey Cup record of four the he set in 1974. His three converts and points for the contest, breaking the record of 22 set by quarterback Jim Van Pelt of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in their 35-28 win over the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1958.

Dave Cutler, who set a CFL record with 50 field goals during the regular season, kicked two field goals for the Edmonton points.

From 1960 to 1962 pitcher Ed Roebuck of the Los Angeles Dodgers did not lose a game in 80 mound appearances. He won 12 in that time.

'Good Ol' Boys' Claim West 250 For Southland

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., and Neil Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., a couple of "good ol' boys" from NASCAR's southern circuit, have claimed Arizona for Dixie.

Driving identical 1974 Dodge Chargers from Jim Stacy's stable, they finished first and second, a lap ahead of the rest of the field of California drivers, in the NASCAR Winston West 250 at Phoenix International Raceway Sunday.

With Bonnett going off the pole and Yarborough beside him in the same cars, they led all but six laps between them of the 156 circuits around the paved one-mile oval.

Yarborough added $3,925 to the nearly half-million dollars he has won this season. The combined Stacy team took home $6,500.

The lead changed between Yarborough and Bonnett, rivals on the NASCAR grand national circuit but teammates here, nine times.

Only Bobby Allison, also of Hueytown, was able to break through when he caught the leaders slowing for a crash between Hal Callantine of Redding, Calif., and Wally Lambert of Glendale, Ariz., on the fourth lap.

But Allison led only during the caution period and was no match for the Stacy teammates when the race resumed on the 11th lap.

Yarborough and Bonnett were never more than a second apart, even when they went through heavy traffic, and for two complete laps were side by side, with neither willing to back down.

But Bonnett finally lost a valve 16 laps from the checkered flag and Yarborough took a 26-second victory.

The race was run in 1:48.51, with Yarborough averaging 85.989 mph.

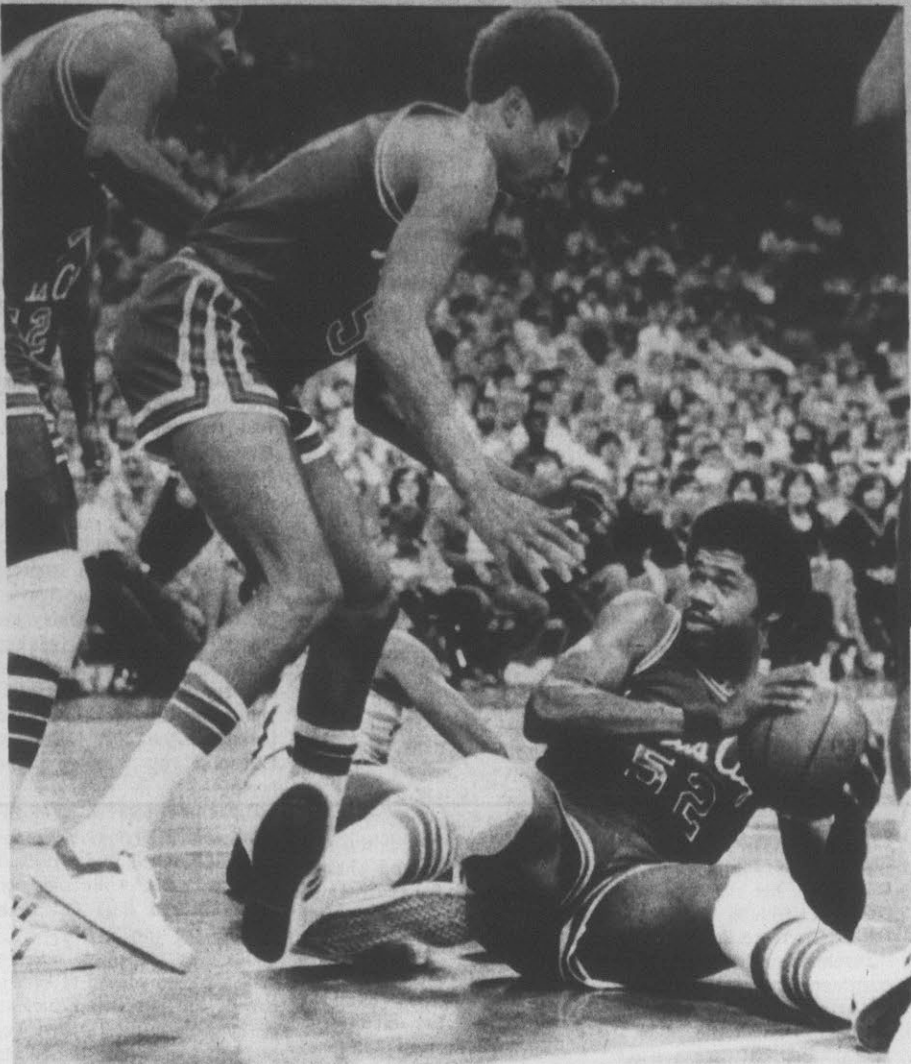

The race was interrupted for one hour, 11 minutes 23 laps from the starter's flag when Chris Monoleos of Burbank, Calif., and Ernie Stierly of Vancouver, Wash., collided going into the fourth turn. Both drivers escaped with minor bruises, but their race cars were demolished.

Two young spectators near the crash scene were treated for a scraped elbow and bit lip at a mobile first aid station.

"Cale just pushed Neil until his engine quit," said Harry Hyde, crew chief for both Stacy cars.

"That's right," Bonnett agreed. "I figured we'd come down to the last four or five laps and then really do some racing. But as it was, I was going just as hard as I could on seven cylinders to stay ahead of Allison."

"The hardest thing was driving straight into that setting sun going into the first turn," said Yarborough.

Texas Loss Would Bring Rash Of Claims

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If No. 1-ranked Texas defeats Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl, does anyone else have a realistic shot at the national championship?

"Nah, they got it," says Barry Switzer, who coaches third-ranked Oklahoma, "and if they beat Notre Dame they deserve it."

But? In other words, what if fifth-ranked Notre Dame knocks off Texas? That probably would touch off a bunch of No. 1 claims for The Associated Press Trophy that would make the Gold Rush resemble a leisurely stroll in the park.

In fact, the anticipation is already beginning even though front-running Texas, the nation's only unbeaten team, completed an 11-0 regular-season Saturday with its own version of The Campbells Are Coming in a 57-28 thrashing of 12th-ranked Texas A&M. That's running back Earl (27 carries, 222 yards, four touchdowns) Campbell and defensive end Tim (four tackles, one sack) Campbell.

"If Texas doesn't beat Notre Dame, then we deserve the national championship if we beat Arkansas in the Orange Bowl," Switzer said following Oklahoma's 38-7 rout of 11th-ranked Nebraska on Friday.

But what about second-ranked Alabama, a 48-21 winner over Auburn and headed for a Sugar Bowl meeting with No. 8 Ohio State?

"Alabama played Nebraska and lost while we destroyed Nebraska," Switzer said. "I think Alabama's got to go out and kind of do to Ohio State — which we also beat — like we did to Nebraska."

Alabama and Oklahoma have 10-1 records. So do No. 4 Michigan, which meets No. 14 Washington in the Rose Bowl; No. 6 Arkansas, a 17-14 come-from-behind winner over Texas Tech on Thanksgiving Day; No. 7 Kentucky, whose season is over because of NCAA probation, and No. 9 Penn State, which edged No. 10 Pitt 15-13 and has a Fiesta Bowl date with No. 19 Arizona State. The Sun Devils became the Western Athletic Conference's Fiesta representative Friday night by swatting Arizona 23-7.

And you can make book that Notre Dame, 9-1 with a regular-season game remaining against Miami of Florida next Saturday night, will have a few things to say about the rankings if it disposes of Texas.

The post-season bowl line-up was completed over the weekend and it looks like this:

Cotton Bowl — No. 1 Texas vs. No. 5 Notre Dame.
Sugar Bowl — No. 2 Alabama vs. No. 8 Ohio State.
Orange Bowl — No. 3 Oklahoma vs. No. 6 Arkansas.
Rose Bowl — No. 4 Michigan vs. No. 14 Washington.
Fiesta Bowl — No. 9 Penn State vs. No. 19 Arizona State.
Gator Bowl — No. 10 Pitt vs. No. 13 Clemson.
Liberty Bowl — No. 11 Nebraska vs. No. 15 North Carolina.
Bluebonnet Bowl — No. 12

Red-Hot Westphal Leads Suns' Rout

By The Associated Press

"When Paul Westphal is hot," says Phoenix Suns Coach John MacLeod, "you want to make sure he has the basketball."

When Paul Westphal is hot and has the basketball, the Suns usually shine.

The Phoenix guard was blazing Sunday night, scoring 48 points to set personal and team highs for a game in leading the Suns to a 115-97 triumph over the Denver Nuggets.

"He's an offensive machine," said MacLeod. And a modest one at that. "I think of the few shots I missed more than those I made," said Westphal, who exceeded by one point the club record set by Alvan Adams and Gall Goodrich and bettered by eight points the personal best he set last season.

Denver's David Thompson, the National Basketball Association's scoring leader with 27.6 points per game, was held to 24 points by the Suns. Dan Issel was second for the Nuggets with 17.

In the other NBA games Sunday night, the New Orleans Jazz beat the Kansas City Kings 115-106, the Portland Trail Blazers bested the Los Angeles Lakers 100-93 and the New York Nets topped the Seattle SuperSonics 99-96.

Jazz 115, Kings 106
Pete Maravich scored 41 points and Leonard

"Truck" Robinson collected 19 rebounds to carry New Orleans past Kansas City for its fifth consecutive victory.

Maravich scored 27 points in the fourth quarter for New Orleans, which made 66.7 percent of its shots in the third period and shot 60 percent in the fourth.

Otis Birdsong led the Kings with 23 points.

Trail Blazers 100, Lakers 93
Lloyd Neal equaled his career high by scoring 33 points — 24 above his average — to carry Portland past Los Angeles. Neal replaced Maurice Lucas, who missed his fourth consecutive game due to bronchitis, and scored 23 of his points in the first half.

Earl Tatum led Los Angeles with a career-high 25 points.

Nets 99, SuperSonics 96
Center George Johnson blocked three shots in the last three minutes and scored a crucial basket to lead New Jersey over Seattle.

The Nets trailed by a point with 3:27 remaining and ran off six straight points, including Johnson's lay-in, to take a 95-90 lead with 1:13 left.

They held on for their first road victory of the season and only their third in 19 games.

Kevin Porter paced the Nets with 23 points. Gus Williams had 36 for Seattle.

Tiger Steve Fuller Paces All-ACC Voting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Clemson quarterback Steve Fuller, leader of the Tiger's football resurgence, is the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year.

Fuller, a 6-4, 199-pound junior from Spartanburg, S.C., was chosen in balloting among the 124 members of the conference Sports Writers Association. He drew 52 votes, twice the number drawn by North Carolina's Dee Hardison, who had 26.

Ted Brown of North Carolina State had 25 votes to be named to the All-ACC team for the third straight year.

Duke quarterback Mike Dunn had 13 votes. Others mentioned in the voting included North Carolina running back Amos Lawrence, defensive lineman Ted Klaube and linebacker Brad Carr of Maryland, wide receiver Jerry Butler and linebacker Randy Scott of Clemson and tight end Steve Young of Wake Forest.

Fuller led the Tigers to an astonishing 8-2-1 season and a Gator Bowl clash against Pittsburgh. His season performance was climaxed in the final two minutes of the last season game in a touchdown drive for a 31-27 victory over South Carolina.

He rolled up 1,900 yards, 1,497 of them in the air, to lead the conference in total offense. His first 18 yards next year, his last one of eligibility, will give him Clemson's all-time total offense record.

Fuller is also an "A" student and hopes to win a Rhodes Scholarship and later to go to law school.

"Steve Fuller, in addition to having good size, speed and intelligence, is a leader by example," says Clemson Coach Charley Pell. "When he steps into the huddle, the offense knows that he is going to get the job done."

Driver Killed In Race Crash

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) —

Fifteen speeding stock cars piled up in the 33rd lap of the Turkey 100 Sunday, killing one driver and injuring two others.

The accident was at MetroLina Speedway north of Charlotte.

Preston Humphries, 37, of Shelby, suffered fatal head injuries when his Chevy II racer was hit on the driver's side by another car and then struck by at least two more. Rescuers had to remove the roof of his car to reach him.

William Meacham, 17, of Charlotte, and Charles Middleton, 35, of Kings Mountain, were reported in satisfactory condition at Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

The chain-reaction wreck began when Ray Dover of Elkton, Ga., and Danny Burkes of Richland, Va., spun on the half-mile dirt oval and slid to the inside guard rail, one on top of the other.

Carl Shart lost control trying to avoid the wreck and hit the concrete grandstand wall, stopping faced the wrong way on the track. Mike Duvall, Phill Wall, R.E. Brim, James Spencer, Harry Lee Hill, Jimmy Kline, Dol Fuchenberger, Humphries Middleton and Meacham piled into the stopped cars.

The race continued, with Georgian Buck Simmons emerging the winner after 117 laps.

Ethiopians, Somali Rebels In Battle

By The Associated Press
Ethiopians and Somali rebels were reported wrestling for the ancient walled city of Harar, but there were conflicting reports today from Addis Ababa and Mogadishu on the progress of the battle.

Harar, 225 miles east of Addis Ababa, is one of Ethiopia's last two strongholds in the Ogaden desert. Rebels of the Western Somali Liberation Front say they have seized 90 percent of the region, which they want to annex to Somalia. Rebel sources in the Somali capital of Mogadishu said the rebels had breached the walls of Harar and battled government soldiers in the streets. They said rebels held hills on three sides overlooking Harar and had encircled a large Ethiopian government force 23 miles east of the city.

Western diplomats in Addis Ababa, reached by phone from Nairobi, said the Ethiopians had repulsed the attack and were solidly in control of the 1,000-year-old city. "In fact, if anything, fighting around Harar has subsided over the past few days," said one source.

President Mohamed Siad Barre of Somalia left Mogadishu Sunday for Saudi Arabia and Egypt, presumably seeking arms for the Ogaden war.

Attorneys Apparently Effect Little Impact

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — The presence of an attorney seems to make no difference in the outcome of a juvenile trial, according to a study at the University of North Carolina. The seriousness of the crime and the juvenile's previous record has more impact, according to Stevens Clarke, associate professor at the Institute of Government.

Clarke and Gary Koch, associate professor of biostatistics at the UNC School of Public Health, were asked to compare an experimental juvenile defender system in Winston-Salem and Charlotte in 1976 with the usual method of assigning a private attorney to indigent juveniles.

The North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts was interested in providing better legal service for juveniles by assigning them an attorney who specialized in juvenile cases, Clarke said.

The study compared several factors of each case brought to court in Winston-Salem and Charlotte during a period in 1975 and the corresponding period in 1976 after the Juvenile Defender Project had begun. Juveniles in the study had a court-appointed attorney, private counsel, the juvenile defender or no attorney. "The study showed no evidence that the presence of counsel made a difference," Clarke said, "but I'm not convinced it couldn't make a difference."

Clarke added, "One of the things we were interested in was studying the quality of justice," Clarke said. Clarke said blacks might have been picked up more often than whites, but once in whites there appeared to be little discrimination because of race, sex, age or economic status.

Clarke said, "Though we've shown lawyers didn't affect the outcome, we haven't shown it would be better without lawyers. Having an attorney may help parents and children feel better and understand what is going on during the proceedings and what the results of the trial are."

Backed by tanks and artillery, the government forces at Bable Gap blocked the rebel advance toward Harar for two months. Then the insurgents outflanked the Ethiopians and launched a two-prong drive on Harar, which is 225 miles east of Addis Ababa.

In fighting since July, Somali tribesmen backed by Somalia have won control of more than 95 percent of their native Ogaden region, a semi-desert region in southeast Ethiopia and about a quarter of Ethiopia's total area. The rebels, who are Moslems, are fighting to wrest the territory from the Marxist government in Addis Ababa and annex it to neighboring Moslem Somalia.

Police Test Saab Squad

MAPLEWOOD, Minn. (AP) — It might be called the "Saab Squad."

The Maplewood Police Department, looking for ways to cut gasoline consumption and the department budget, is experimenting with two 4-cylinder Saab automobiles for use as marked squad cars.

"We have to get the most value for the tax dollar," says Police Chief R.W. Schaller. Schaller says the Swedish-made autos get 25 miles a gallon compared with his full-sized cars which get 10 to 12 miles a gallon.

But while the Saabs may be doing well, the small car can be a little rough on a police officer's ego. One joke has it that when things get dull, Maplewood police officer Jeff Melander winds up the red ball on top of his Saab and watches the car spin.

Melander shrugs off the jokes and says he's satisfied with the car.

Anorexia Needs Expert Attention

The younger of our two daughters is 19. She and her sister don't get on well with each other. About three weeks ago she suddenly stopped eating. There is no way that we can tempt her with any food. We took her to the doctor who says she has "anorexia." To us it is a fancy name for being a spoiled brat. Do you think she's doing this just to gain attention? — Mrs. T.G., Pa.

Dear Mrs. G.:
Anorexia nervosa is a complicated physical and emotional disease that needs urgent treatment. An aversion to food may become so marked that severe emaciation, loss of weight and enormous fatigue may continue until there is an actual threat to the patient's life.

Typically, this illness occurs in females, in late adolescence and young adulthood.

The fact that you suspect that she is a "spoiled brat" may be one of the deterrents to her getting well. Anyone with anorexia nervosa must not be made to feel guilty or to be criticized for their inability to eat. Rather, the key to recovery from this illness (and it is a very real illness) is understanding, sympathetic attention to the patient's emotions, and more especially, expert guidance by a combination of doctor and psychiatrist.

You will find that it is impossible for you or any member of your family to explore the deep recesses of your daughter's mind and identify the emotional turmoil that is responsible for her present condition.

If ever any medical condition deserves expert psychological guidance, it is this one. So complex, in fact, is this disorder that special departments in a few key hospitals devote themselves exclusively to it.

For some strange reason, once the diagnosis is made, anorexia nervosa is not discussed by parents and family. They tend to keep this condition "under wraps," feeling that it is a family problem too private to discuss.

Recently I learned of an organization called the Anorexic Aid Society. Their address is Box 29461, Columbus, Ohio 43229. This organization was created to bring anorexia out into the open and to encourage patients and their families and friends to learn more about its causes, its treatment and the hope for recovery.

Every medical discipline must add its talents to make anorexia nervosa a quickly identified disease. Delay in recognizing the physical and emotional complexities of the problem serves only to bring anorexic patients to the brink of self-destruction.

ASU Opens N.Y. Center

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Last year Appalachian State University art majors began using the school's New York center in their studies. Now government and sociology majors can do the same at ASU's new Washington center.

The center is a four-story 19th century townhouse, dubbed the Appalachian House, at 22 Third St. SE, Washington, D.C.

The house was built in the 1860s as a rooming house for congressional aides. ASU has leased it from the Folger Shakespeare Library for five years with an option to renew.

The university will pay $100 per month rent and has spent $75,000 to renovate it, a college spokesman said.

The state-supported school opened its New York City center last year, renting part of an old manufacturing plant. It is used mainly by art students, who stay there on visits to museums and other cultural attractions.

"We describe it as rustic," Robert E. Snead, university vice chancellor, said of the New York center.

The Washington home is more elegant. There are accommodations for 18 persons, and is nicely furnished. Classes visiting Washington can use the house, and students and faculty members staying there will be charged $6 per night.

"Art teachers will still need to take students to the art center of the world — New York City," Snead said.

The Washington quarters will likely be used by government and sociology students. "You can't teach urban sociology very well in Boone. You've got to go to it," Snead said.

"As an added bonus, the Washington center will provide a great place for the faculty to do research work," he said. "We'll probably find more faculty members making use of the Washington center than of the New York campus."

Shakes Beverly Hills Syndrome

SEATTLE (AP) — Film-maker Stanley Kramer, saying he hopes to shake "the Beverly Hills syndrome," has purchased a $500,000 home near this city in the state of Washington.

"The Beverly Hills syndrome finally got to me," Kramer, 64, said recently. "I have two young girls, ages 10 and 7, and I'd like them to go to school in another kind of school system, one that isn't so tied up with the entertainment industry. And I like clean air."

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be careful in what you say today since others are apt to misinterpret you. Watch what you spend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be careful in the handling of monetary affairs as some advice given you could be erroneous. Look into a new interest that is fascinating to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't be forceful where personal affairs are concerned; use tact instead. Any treatments you may need are best taken at the end of the day.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't let your emotions run away with you because of personal wishes or you can get into trouble. Take no chances in credit affairs.

From Soap Opera Sufferings To More Suffering In TV Movie

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — For three years, Donna Mills was in a soap opera, "Love is a Many Splendored Thing." As Mrs. Laura Elliott, she says, she suffered a lot, as is the custom in soap operadom.
Her husband dallied with an older woman. She got pregnant, but lost the baby. She ran off with a merchant seaman. She lost her memory. She stole her sister's baby. She also had a bad car accident.

It was at this point, smiled Miss Mills, an attractive, blonde-haired, blue-eyed native of Chicago, "I had to leave. I couldn't take it any more." But tonight she resumes her suffering.
This time, it is as a Los Angeles police detective on the run in a two-hour NBC movie, "The Hunted Lady." The show, which she hopes will become a series, was produced by Quinn Martin.

Martin is the chap who in 1963 began "The Fugitive," in which David Janssen played a doctor on the lam. Tonight's effort may seem just warmed-over lam, but Miss Mills says there are differences.
Her fugitive character is not just running from the law (she was framed by the mob after she investigated a politician the mob secretly owned). She also is being chased by a mob hit man, whose marching orders are: "Find her, silence her."
But the big difference, she says, is an obvious one, "the difference between a man running and a woman running, a woman alone on the road, trying to get jobs and coping with living alone."

In the show's grand finale, she added, she'll still be on the run, which would set the stage for a series if NBC says keep running.
If such happens, it wouldn't be her first prime time series. A few years ago, after playing Clint Eastwood's old flame in "Play Misty For Me," she co-starred in a short-lived comedy, "The Good Life."

It was fun while it lasted, but after that I got offered every comedy pilot in the world," she said. "But I turned them all down because I didn't want to get typed as a comedy actress."
"But then," she grinned, "I started doing a lot of 'victim' roles for some reason." She had reference to TV movies involving a damsel, her, in dire distress.
After this, she said, "I started being more selective and went for a wide variety of roles, even as a killer."

Miss Mills, soft-spoken and pleasant in manner, has logged 20 credits in as many TV movies since "The Good Life" expired. In fact, she just finished one, a Super Bowl thriller for ABC.
By coincidence, David Janssen, the first "Fugitive," was in it.
"I'd never met him before," she said. "I told him I was doing a pilot, a 'Fugitive' kind of thing, and we talked a lot about it. He thought it was a terrific idea, a good premise for a series."

Janssen has said he'd never return to the grind of a weekly series. Perchance he counseled against such to Miss Mills?
"No, no," she said. "He said — well, the only tip he gave me was, 'Just make sure you have good scripts.'"

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A109852 ♥K8743 ♣A9
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Despite the fact that you have a minimum in terms of point count, the auction has developed favorably and you should think in terms of slam. We suggest a cue-bid. Normally, it is correct to cue-bid your lowest control first. Here, however, we are inclined to show the void in diamonds first, for partner might be reluctant to cooperate if he has nothing in that suit.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ9 ♥A83 ♣Q72 ♦K1098
Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you respond?

A.—Simple arithmetic tells you that, if partner has a maximum—a good 23-24 points—you want to be in seven no trump. You can get this message across to partner by responding five no trump. That forces him to six no trump if he is minimum, but asks him to bid the grand slam if he is at the top of his range.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J982 ♥KJ9 ♣KJ952 ♦6
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Dble.
Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—To first double and then bid new suit at the three-level, partner must have a powerful hand. You have sufficient values to offer an excellent play for game, and the obvious call is three no trump.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A10962 ♥A10873 ♦5 ♣92
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—What for a while looked like a promising hand has suddenly turned to ashes—the hand is a misfit. Partner has at least six diamonds and five clubs, and while you might want to pass, you cannot—this auction is forcing to game. We would raise quietly to five clubs. At that contract, your hand might yield a useful diamond ruff or two.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ♥KQ9 ♣AQ10873 ♦AJ
What is your opening bid?
A.—An awkward hand. It is not strong enough for two diamonds, yet a bid of one diamond could get passed out when partner has enough to give you an excellent shot at game. We would open two no trump. Despite the six-card suit, it is a balanced hand with stoppers in all suits.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K8 ♥104 ♣A76 ♦AJ9852
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—When you hold the king in partner's suit and two aces, and he has jumped the bidding, you should immediately envision slam. The simplest way to start the probe is to make a cue-bid—in this case, four diamonds. You can support spades at your next turn.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7♥Q1095 ♣AKJ10 ♦Q976
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Dble. Rdbble. 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have the balance of power, so the one thing you shouldn't do is pass. Neither should you double three spades, for if that was the correct action, partner would have done it. We recommend four clubs. If partner takes a preference to four diamonds, we would now introduce our heart suit, thus getting all of our suits into the auction at a convenient level.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ92 ♥KQ8 ♣109643 ♦7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
4 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
6 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If partner can bid six hearts, there is a tendency to raise to seven with the king-queen of trumps and a singleton-partner can't be sure you have those cards and therefore it would seem that he must hold first-round diamond control. But if he has it, why didn't he cue-bid five diamonds? After all, your hand is still unlimited. The only answer is that he has a distributional monster with a diamond loser, and that he hopes he can pick up any trump honor that is missing. Therefore, pass.

Conventional 100's Give Way To Merit Taste Science.

'Enriched Flavor'™ technology achieves taste level of higher tar 100mm cigarettes.

For years, smokers of longer length cigarettes were limited to brands that needed high tar to deliver full flavor.

But no longer.

The MERIT taste science that brought full flavor to low tar smoking has now been applied to a longer length cigarette. The result: a 100mm cigarette that delivers taste way out of proportion to tar.

Low tar MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg tar. Yet packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco for extra flavor—the kind of flavor smokers of longer length cigarettes want, but could never get before at such a low tar level. Taste tests proved it.

Test Data Conclusive

12 mg tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg to 19 mg tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results: overall, they liked the taste of MERIT 100's as much as the higher tar 100mm brands tested.

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
