

Help Wanted: New Director For FBI

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Help wanted: FBI director. Must be bright, aggressive and committed to the law. Mental and physical stamina essential for working long hours, settling touchy internal arguments, and facing frequent public criticism. Rewards include $57,500 salary, a measure of fame and substantial power. Apply to the attorney general, Washington, D.C. The Carter administration once again is sending "help wanted" signals after U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson concluded that his health prevents him from becoming FBI director. Attorney General Griffin Bell announced Johnson's decision at a news conference Tuesday. He said he and President Carter may agree on a replacement by Jan. 17.

when Congress returns from a recess.

Bell asked the current director, Clarence M. Kelley, to postpone his scheduled Jan. 1 retirement until mid-February. Kelley was to give Bell his answer today.

In a statement from his Montgomery, Ala., office, Johnson said his slow recovery from major surgery last August has forced him to step aside and to ask Carter to withdraw his nomination.

"It will be several more months before I will regain my strength and stamina," Johnson said. "It will not be fair to the Federal Bureau of Investigation or to me to keep this matter pending any longer."

The Alabama judge was Carter's first choice for the job, and the President will have a tough time finding another nominee with such broad support. Civil rights groups that have criticized the FBI for past abuses of individual rights praised Johnson for his judicial decisions protecting the rights of schoolchildren, prisoners and mental patients.

FBI agents and other law enforcement groups generally were pleased with Johnson's record of imposing stiff prison sentences in criminal cases.

"Johnson has become the standard, and it's going to be a helluva tough standard for anyone else to come up to," a department official remarked.

Bell, who will recommend a potential nominee to Carter, said he doesn't plan to rush into a decision.

As the talent search resumes, speculation turned first to four men who were recommended last June by a presidentially appointed screening committee.

The committee's list included John Van de Kamp, district attorney of Los Angeles County; Neil Welch, a career FBI man and chief of the agency's Philadelphia office; John J. Irwin, a judge on the Massachusetts Superior Court, and Sheriff William Lucas of Detroit.

But all appeared to be at a disadvantage for one reason or another. Lucas suffered from the disclosure that he had participated in gambling junkies to Las Vegas. Welch was not widely supported within the bureau because he had a habit of challenging FBI traditions. Irwin has no federal government experience. And some thought Van de Kamp at 41 was too young for the job.

Nyet To Sadat's Session

CAIRO (AP) — The Soviet Union, as expected, has sided with Arab opponents of President Anwar Sadat's Cairo conference with Israel, while Israel has rejected a proposal from U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that everybody try to get together at a conference at a neutral site.

U.S. officials said Moscow passed its "nyet" to Washington and joined Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization in refusing to attend the parley Sadat called to pave the way for a new Geneva peace conference.

However, the Egyptian president's Arab opponents were divided among themselves, with Libya and Algeria scheduling one anti-Sadat Arab summit in Tripoli Thursday and Iraq planning another one next week in Baghdad.

The United States, after three days of official silence, announced that it would attend the Cairo meeting but did not announce its delegate. He was expected to be Philip C. Habib, the undersecretary of state for political affairs, or Alfred L. Atherton Jr., assistant secretary of state for the Near East.

Waldheim named Finnish Gen. Enso Siilasvuo, the coordinator of U.N. peacekeeping operations in the Middle East, to represent him in Cairo.

Speaking at a news conference in New York, Waldheim cited the "limited" turnout expected at Sadat's meeting. He suggested that the lineup Sadat originally planned — Egypt, Israel, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon, the PLO, the United States and the Soviet Union — meet in about two weeks at U.N. headquarters in New York or some other neutral site.

Syrian and PLO officials at U.N. headquarters expressed interest in the proposal, a spokesman for Waldheim said. But the Israeli Foreign Ministry said in a statement:

"Israel supports the idea of direct talks between the parties such as took place in Jerusalem and are about to take place in Cairo. ... No purpose will be served by holding an additional preparatory conference."

Carter Says High-Level Officials To Conference

DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Carter today announced the United States will send a high-level representative to a mid-December peace conference in Cairo which he described as "a historic breakthrough in the search for a lasting peace in the Middle East."

Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference that Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton will head the U.S. delegation to the Cairo conference now scheduled for Dec. 13.

The president said that the importance of the meetings between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel "is that there has been an initiation of direct, person to person negotiations."

While characterizing Egypt as the most populous and powerful of the Arab confrontation states, Carter said that both Israel and Egypt have publicly stated that a separate peace agreement, excluding the other Arab states, "is not desirable."

Only Israel, Egypt, and the United States have agreed so far to participate in the Cairo conference. Syria, the Palestinian Liberation Organization and the Soviet Union have rejected the invitations issued by Sadat.

Asked about criticism of his invitation to the Soviets to resume a role in the search for peace in the Middle East, Carter said, "I believe the Soviets will follow along and take constructive steps for a lasting peace."

The United States and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which previous Middle East settlements have been reached.

On other topics, Carter: Praised the late Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., for his legislative efforts to maintain a strong U.S. military defense. McClellan died Monday.

Said his position on energy legislation was unchanged and that he would veto any bill that would be unfair or violate energy conservation goals.

Indicated he was undecided whether to reappoint Arthur Burns as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Declared he had not made too many campaign promises "and I think I'm

HOUSE BURNED

Ernest and Hattie Baker's house burned Sunday night and they and their five children lost everything they had except the clothes they were wearing at the time.

The Bakers farm with Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Harris and the Harrises are going to provide another house. However, furnishings and clothings are needed by the family. An urgent need is for shoes for the children.

The children are Cheryl, nine, William, eight, Shirley, five; Fayelien, four; and Ernie, three. They are all average-sized, the friend who called Hotline said. Baker wears 36-waist pants and an extra large shirt. Mrs. Baker wears Size 20.

The Harrises say that they will be glad to accept any calls concerning the needs of the family and will be glad to help transport and store anything donated. Their phone number is 756-2813.

Exiles Are Sent Away On Boat Of No Smiles

By EDDIE ADAMS
AP Special Correspondent

KHLONG YAI, Thailand (AP) — "I will die! I will die! I will die!" screamed the aged Vietnamese woman aboard the boat of no smiles.

Forty-nine other sick or hungry refugees, half of them children, sat in silence or wept uncontrollably on the deck of the weatherbeaten 30-foot fishing boat that had brought them from Phuquoc, off the west coast of Vietnam, through the dangerous waters off Cambodia.

They thought they had reached freedom that hot November day when they entered the snug harbor of Khlong Yai, a tiny fishing village within shouting distance of the Cambodian border.

But Thai marine police, armed with M-16 rifles, refused them permission to come ashore and towed the crammed fishing boat three hours back out into the Gulf of Siam. Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries that have more than 100,000 refugees from Indochina on their hands are becoming increasingly hostile to new arrivals from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

U.N. and U.S. Embassy sources estimate that those who flee Vietnam by boat — the boat people — have a 30 to 50 percent chance of survival.

The Cambodian Communists may shoot up the small boats as they travel along the coast. Sea bandits have been known to seize refugee boats and kill everyone aboard for their valuables.

The Vietnamese usually escape in small fishing boats not built to withstand the dangers of the open sea. They generally leave home short of food and fuel. Some are lost at sea.

If they do reach Thailand or Malaysia, the police or the navy send them back to sea. The last boat allowed to dock in Thailand arrived Nov. 19 with 16 persons aboard. The Thais arrested them all. The U.S. Embassy helped get them freed, and they are reported emigrating to the United States. A few days later the boat of no smiles was turned away from Khlong Yai.

The oldest person aboard was a woman in her late 70s. The youngest was a girl born Nov. 24 in the fish hold to Nguyen Na's 20-year-old wife, Ti. The 21-year-old father had been a medical corpsman in the South Vietnamese navy, trained by the U.S. Navy at San Diego, Calif. He delivered the baby.

The young couple said they wanted to name their daughter Freedom — if the voyage ended in freedom for the family.

Most of the 14 men, 11 women and 25 children aboard broke into tears when Thai officials ordered them back to sea.

Their fuel was used up on the five-day voyage and they had also run out of food. After buying them supplies, this correspondent tried to go aboard. The Thai officials wouldn't allow it at first, then relented.

Australian Woman Can Believe In Tooth Fairy

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Marcia Hatfield, whose only previous contact with the dental profession had been "as a very bad patient," has not only found herself in a new career involved with dental hygiene but is making an impact on dental care among children throughout the world.

It's all the result of her creating the "Toothbrush Family," a set of characters who caper in the bathroom at night "when a magic beam of moonlight creeps over the windowsill and enters the room."

The stories she has written about Tess and Tom Toothbrush, their family and friends, have the blessing of such professional groups as the World Health Organization's Oral Care Unit and the American Dental Assn.

"Once upon a time I was a mother of young children," relates the middle-aged Mrs. Hatfield, an award-winning writer of children's books and television scripts in her native Sydney, Australia, "and like all mothers of young children I ran into the problem we all encounter. My younger son rebelled, dug his heels in and threw his toothbrush down."

"I felt there should be some better way than forcing to get him to brush his teeth," she explained in an interview in New York on her way back from the Annual World Dental Congress in Toronto, where she had been invited to discuss her Toothbrush Family.

The better way proved to be the tales she invented for her sons, then 5 and 7, and her daughter, then 9. She wrote 13 stories, which began to draw an appreciative audience from the primary school four doors from the Hatfield home.

That was 12 years ago, and as the children grew up she put the stories away and forgot about them, having failed to interest a television producer to whom she had shown them. "A few years ago I bumped into the producer in a local fruit shop," she recalls, "and he said he'd been looking for me — he was ready for the Toothbrush Family, now that preventive dentistry was such a big thing. I couldn't get home fast enough to see if I still had the stories."

She found them, they became a children's record; then a book illustrated by Hanna-Barbara, known for the Flintstones, Huckleberry Hound and other cartoons. Now Tina and Toby Toothbrush, Cecily Comb and Bertie Brush, Susie Sponge and all the rest, have been introduced in records, books, T-shirts, games, jigsaw puzzles and an animated television series.

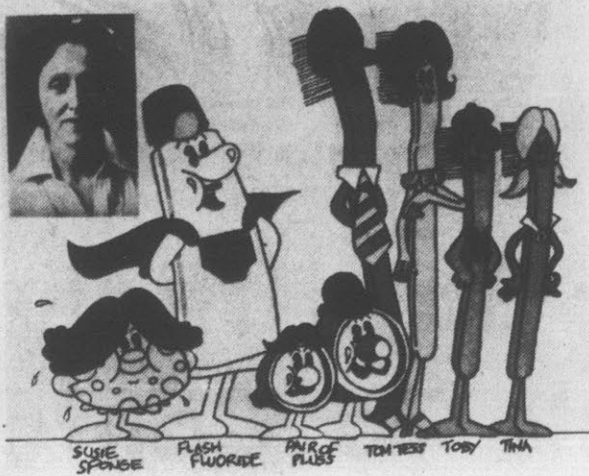

"What I've tried to do is make tooth care a fun thing. The stories are fantasy adventures, meant to entertain rather than lecture, but the children get to know the Toothbrush Family as funny little characters and it takes away the tedium from dental care," says Mrs. Hatfield, who had her material checked for accuracy by the Dental Health Education and Research Foundation at the University of Sydney.

"They made suggestions, such as that any mention of bristles should be soft bristles and that the bristles should be flat as opposed to the old saw-toothed ones. And they advised me to change the name of Timothy Toothpaste to Flash Fluoride to encourage the use of fluoride toothpaste," she adds.

Mrs. Hatfield, a widow who has been traveling all over the world recently in connection with the enterprise, finds "life is anything but dull." She is still writing for TV, but has another project in mind as soon as she finds time.

"I've always had bad teeth," she admits. "I'm waiting for my first royalties, to get caps."

TOOTH TALE—Marcia Hatfield, inset, made up stories about funny little creatures who have adventures at night when the moon comes up, in order to persuade her own children to brush their teeth. Now the impact of the "Toothbrush Family" has spread to children over the world.

Her Quiet Guy Might Just Be Shy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a man who is very intelligent, articulate and informed. The problem is, he hardly opens his mouth when we're in the company of others (especially strangers).

I desperately wish he would speak up so others would know how bright he is, but he just sits there as though he has nothing to contribute to the conversation. It's so frustrating and embarrassing that I want to scream.

When the two of us are alone, his dialogue is brilliant, but in company, he clams up. I'm sure some people think he's shallow, and others probably think he's stuck-up, but he's not.

What is wrong with him, Abby? How can I get him to enter into the conversation when we're in a group?

UPTIGHT

DEAR UP: Your friend could be shy. (Many intelligent, well-read people are.) Or perhaps he's too well-mannered to interrupt others who enjoy dominating the conversation.

You can help draw him into future conversations by asking him some direct questions. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get it across to my hairdresser that I wish she would keep quiet when she is working on me? I have changed beauty operators four times in the last year because all these girls do is talk, talk, talk.

I am not interested in their private affairs, and I have no desire to talk about mine. My husband says it's the same way in his barber shop. The barbers talk the men's ears off, too. People who work in offices and stores can't be jabbering to their customers or clients about everything under the sun. They have to keep their minds on their work.

I would appreciate total silence so much while I'm getting my hair done that I would gladly pay a double tip for it. How can this be accomplished?

NO GOSSIP

DEAR NO: Offer your hairdresser a double tip to button her lip, and the only words you are likely to hear before a long silence will be, "You just made a deal, lady."

DEAR ABBY: I am an middle-aged woman who hasn't been to my gynecologist for six years. With all this talk about cancer, I know I should go, but I've been putting it off because I'm afraid I might have VD. I had a few symptoms six years ago, but they went away. I've noticed my eyesight is not as good as it was, and my memory seems faulty. I read somewhere that VD symptoms usually disappear but the disease continues to do its damage.

I don't want to go to my regular doctor in case I have it. I've considered going to a strange doctor and using a phony name, but I hate to go through all those examinations and give him a whole medical history when I know I'll never see him again.

I just want to find out if I have VD so I can either take care of it or forget it.

I've never been intimate with anyone except my husband, but there is a good chance that he had it and I got it from him. What should I do?

CONCERNED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR CONCERNED: Call your Planned Parenthood Clinic and make an appointment for a gynecological examination. It will include blood tests and urinalysis. No phony name is necessary. All their records are strictly confidential.

DEAR ABBY: I recently went to a friend's home for tea. I knew it was her birthday, so I took along a little gift. She thanked me for it, put it out of sight, and never did open it while I was there. I felt very hurt. None of the other guests brought a gift.

The next day she telephoned and thanked me for the gift. Don't you think she should have opened it when I gave it to her, and thanked me then?

HURT

DEAR HURT: No. She probably didn't want to embarrass the guests who didn't know (or had forgotten) that it was her birthday.

Businesswoman Operates Shop At Age 87

By STEVE PHENICIE
Adrian Daily Telegram
TECUMSEH, Mich. (AP) — Margaret Kidman may be 87, but she's not ready for a rocking chair yet.

This pert little Tecumseh woman still operates her own business, the Needlecraft Shop, in her home just as she has for the past 36 years.

Her daily schedule is a demanding one. She's up by 6:30 a.m. every day except Sunday, because she opens her shop at 7. All day long she greets an intermittent stream of customers, catering to their needs for yarn and other fancywork supplies.

Whenever she can grab a few moments she knits booties or does other needlecraft, because she sells the finished products as well as the raw materials.

She waits on customers until 9 p.m., six days a week, except in the winter, when she closes at 8 o'clock.

Although she has always worked on needlecraft, she had never made a business out of it until her husband was killed. After his death, she moved from a farm to her present home, unpacked a suitcase of her handmade embroidered things, and began to sell them in her home. Originally, she kept everything in a cupboard in her dining room.

As the demand grew, she began to stock more and more kinds of supplies. Today her home has been taken over almost entirely by the yarn shop.

In some rooms, one has to inch through sideways to keep from knocking over the merchandise. Towering mountains of yarn dominate the house, dwarfing those who walk between them.

The kitchen is full, the dining room is full, the upstairs is crammed to the ceiling. Only a small place is left on the kitchen table for her to eat, and a big chair in the living room precariously clings to the last bit of space there that is still non-yarn shop.

Baby quilts are kept in a big box under Mrs. Kidman's bed, and the bed itself becomes a display table when someone wants to look at the merchandise.

"It's not a get-rich-quick deal, but I have made a living here for 36 years. It's a lot of hard work," Mrs. Kidman said.

Lounge Turns To Low-Calorie Snacks

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A drinking spot here has scrapped its afternoon peanuts in favor of fresh vegetables — carrot sticks, celery and zucchini.

One of the bartenders, Patricia Brawley, explains it is by customer demand. The regulars were bothered by the calories in the peanuts.

One customer, shocked at first by the sight of the "garbage" on the bar, reluctantly admitted: "Zucchini and beer ain't all that bad," she said.

Adults Urged To Use Care In Selecting Holiday Toys

NEW YORK (AP) — By using a little thought and common sense, adults this holiday season can help children discover a toy that will occupy a special place in their lives and development, says a child psychologist who is a research consultant to the Toy Manufacturers of America.

"Many children develop a long-lived attachment to certain playthings," says Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, consultant to TMA, the industry association. "One of the important functions of toys is to help a child develop this kind of enthusiasm, playing with the object in new ways as he or she grows."

In addition to being suitable for a child's age, interests and ability level, the "ideal" toy should offer a degree of realism, especially for younger children, closely representing the object it models, he says. The toy should do or suggest something that can be controlled or learned by the child, perhaps allowing the child to take it apart and put it back together.

The toy should be usable as is or in different arrangements — for example, blocks that can be put together to represent a train — in order to provide a variety of play experiences.

"Few toys can have all of these properties," Dr. Sutton-Smith says. "That's why an assortment of playthings promotes a variety of play situations. Selectivity is important and presenting children with a confusing array of toys all at once may distract them and possibly diminish the satisfaction that is essential to happy and productive play."

A well-planned toy "inventory," spread out over the growing-up years should include certain central toys, he suggests: rattle, ball, soft animal or doll, a push-pull vehicle, blocks, clay, tricycle, construction toy, paints, card and strategy games, sports gear and crafts material.

A youngster may pick up a soft toy "because there is a need to clarify feelings of closeness and affection," Dr. Sutton-Smith explains, but other toys offer a more distinct learning opportunity — for example, toys with numbers and letters or those that require sensory-motor manipulation. Many playthings help children to discover their effect on the environment and to learn from this, he adds.

"A rattle that chimes when the baby shakes it or a jack-in-the-box that appears when the baby turns the handle are two examples of 'exploratory' or 'trial and error' play," he notes.

More and more toys are being designed to appeal to both boys and girls, the TMA consultant observes, with "scientific" toys such as chemistry sets finding popularity among both groups. Toys such as mini-kitchens, traditionally bought for girls, are now being purchased for both sexes.

"While many parents will continue to select playthings that reflect traditional sex-role distinctions, more and more are trying to give their children equal access to whatever they wish to play with," says Dr. Sutton-Smith, who advises parents to encourage both their sons and daughters "to experience more variety in play and playthings."

However, he warns, child psychologists agree that although adults may provide toys that offer the principles of learning, it is contact with other people that has the most important effect on child development.

"It is only when children are sure of your love that they can be sufficiently independent to enjoy and develop through their toys," he says. "It is my hope that adults will make a greater effort to be in touch with children by keeping in touch with their feelings about their own childhood."

"More than anything, children need to spend some time with parents or other adults who are involved, playful and loving. Children seem to grow best in an atmosphere that combines a full and stimulating environment with lots of love."

Pitt Technical Institute's Board of Trustees learned Monday night that letters have been issued to contractors to proceed with the construction of the new shop/classroom facility. Beginning date for the project is Dec. 5. Architect George Shoe presented an artist's rendering of the new facility to the Board. Board Chairman Clifton W. Everett Sr. reported that the Building Committee, which had been authorized by the Trustees to act for the Board, had approved the awarding of contracts to low bidders. Henry C. Oglesby, a recently appointed Trustee by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, and Joseph M. Taft Sr., a reappointee by the Greenville City Schools and Pitt County Boards of Education, were sworn into office by Miss Nancy Mewborn, a notary public and secretary to the Board. Oglesby was appointed to fill the vacancy of Wiley Gaskins of Grifton who recently resigned from the Board.

The Board approved a resolution expressing appreciation to Gaskins for his service and contributions to the Board.

In other action, the Board approved the Personnel Committee's recommendation regarding the granting of a leave of absence without pay to one PTI staff member and the employment of Tommy D. Joyner as coordinator of Pitt Tech's Human Resources Development Program. Joyner has been with Pitt Technical Institute for the past four years.

The Policy Committee's Chairman G. Henry Leslie presented to the Board, on behalf of the Committee, a policy authorizing the prepayment and refund of registration fees and tuition. The Board adopted the policy.

The Board also approved March 20 as the date for Progress Night for PTI. The Trustees designated this event as the time for President Fulford to present the institution's annual report and to recognize individual service to the Board of Trustees. Plans for the event will be announced in the near future.

For the January meeting, the Trustees have invited Dr. Charles Holloman, vice president of Planning and Policy, N.C. Department of Community Colleges, to discuss the Trustees' liabilities, individually and collectively, duties, responsibilities, and authority.

A motion complimenting the PTI faculty and staff on its booth at the recent Tobacco Farmers Show was unanimously adopted.

Offer Tree Planting Day

The Career Club of E.B. Aycock Junior High School will sponsor a tree planting ceremony on Jan. 4, 1978, for all persons wishing to contribute living Christmas trees.

According to Principal Paul H. Rasberry, the original plans for the school included trees and shrubs as part of the total landscaping plan.

"As costs rose, the total landscaping plan was abandoned and our school is still without the trees that would add much to the surroundings of the school," said Rasberry.

He requested families who plan to purchase living Christmas trees to consider donating them to Aycock.

Donations may be made by contacting any Career Club member of the Aycock Junior High School Office.

Sunshine Garden Center and Little's Nursery are co-operating in this project by offering a discount to any person presenting a coupon from the school when they purchase their tree.

All donations will be tax deductible.

Escapee Is Legally Out Farmers' Tour Said Success

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jerry D. McKinney goes free today, escaping from prison with help from the courts.

McKinney's last escape from the McLeansville prison unit was in July. He accomplished that one by himself.

McKinney could have been sentenced to up to three years for the escape, which only lasted one day, but prison officials waited more than two months to bring him to court on the escape charges.

State law requires that criminals be brought into court within 96 hours of the time they are charged.

Assistant Public Defender Robert Franklin told District Judge John Yeates that McKinney had been denied his constitutional rights by the delay. Yeates agreed and dismissed the charge.

Since McKinney's original sentence — also an escape conviction — ran out today, he goes free.

Franklin said he believed corrections officials "are either not that familiar with proper procedures or they just forgot about it in their shuffle."

Yesterday's Farmers' Tour of the Greenville Area was called a "tremendous success" by Andy Warren, chairman of the Agri-Business Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce which sponsored the all-day event.

Approximately 55 local farmers toured area businesses and were given information concerning retail and marketing procedures.

The purpose of the tour was to promote better understanding between the agricultural community of Pitt County and Greenville businesses, said Warren.

"Based on the reaction of the people who toured and their comments, I would say that the tour was a success."

"The farmers said that what they saw and heard was very beneficial. Everyone had an enjoyable time," Warren added.

Warren, who acted as tour guide, said that the Committee hopes to expand on the program next year. This includes a trip for Greenville merchants to the farms next spring.

He noted that the Agri-Business Committee considers the Farmers Tour one of the major goals for the year.

"It provides for a better appreciation of both parties for the others various problems."

"We all tend to take some things for granted."

Warren called yesterday's tour a "stepping stone in the right direction" for agri-business relations.

It was just like Christmas — Greenville Utilities Commission sending out 14,989 refund checks to its customers.

The checks represented $714,968 in deferred fuel surcharges collected by VEPCO from December, 1975 to September, 1976. The charge was disallowed by the Federal Power Commission and a lump sum refund was made to Greenville Utilities which decided to refund the money to individual customers.

Happy customers got the check just in time for Christmas — and the more power they used during the affected period the more money they got back.

The best advice for customers is to enjoy that refund... but look out for the January electric bill.

Development Hampered?

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)
RALEIGH—When repeal of the local property tax levied against inventories of supplies held by manufacturers in North Carolina hit a snag in the General Assembly last spring, the principal sponsor promised to come up with some convincing information.

State Senator James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, says he is convinced that important industrial prospects have turned down locations in North Carolina because of the tax. He will produce a list he promised.

As a legislative study commission begins an in-depth probe of the inventory tax the central question remains: has it cost this state any major industry?

Garrison and other supporters or repeal insist it has, and that new payrolls, expanded job opportunities, and higher taxes paid by new industries would more than offset the lost revenues.

Industry hunters in the Department of Commerce tend to agree. But they simply can't come up with definitive answers.

New Growth
For despite the inventory tax, North Carolina continues to land major new industry. This year, in fact, is producing records. In recent weeks, major heavy industries have announced locations in Lincoln and Gaston counties, while Cabarrus appears in line for a major heavy industry. Cabarrus appears in line for a major heavy industry. Cabarrus appears in line for a major heavy industry.

A legislative study commission chaired by State Senator Robert S. Swain, D-Buncombe, and State Rep. Aaron W. Plyler, D-Union, has instructed Commerce officials to try to come up with the answers.

"We must do some soul-searching, and thinking, and research, and listen to everybody who has an interest... and only then can we begin to see where we go," says Plyler. "The truth is that right now we don't know the answers. And any information we receive is almost impossible to prove, and difficult to refute."

There is no agreement within the administration of Gov James B. Hunt, Jr. The governor opposes repeal of the tax, and is backed by Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch who foresees the state being hit for untold millions of dollars in making up the loss of revenue to local governments.

NOBLITT

There is also widespread agreement that if manufacturers are exempted, then wholesale distributors and retail merchants will demand equal treatment. The loss under those conditions could soar into the half-billion dollar range annually.

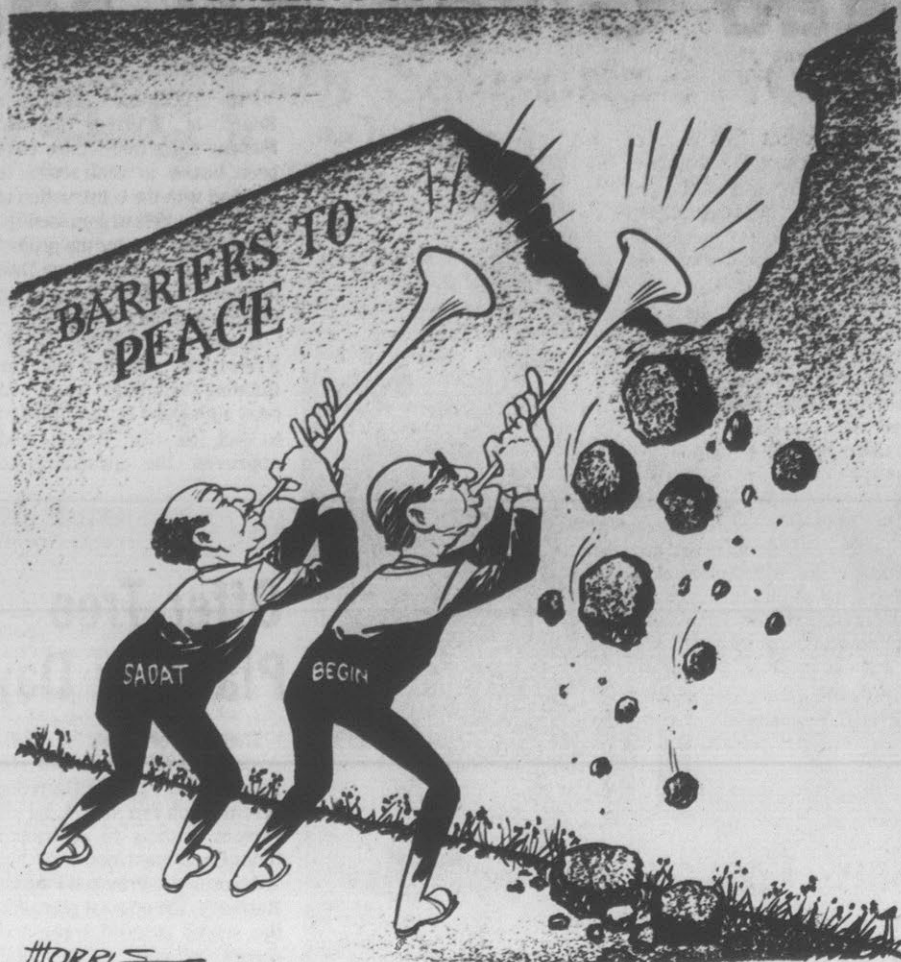

Competition
It is known, however, that other Southern States competing with North Carolina for economic growth are not only repealing inventory taxes, but coming up with tax relief programs and other incentives to attract newcomers.

Georgia, for example, has allowed a local-option repeal of inventory taxes. That takes state government off the hook, and allows county commissioners who argue that the tax is essential to local government operations to determine whether to keep it or lose it. So far, 15 Georgia counties (around Atlanta and on the Alabama or South Carolina borders) have repealed. Other experts counter that good industries look for more than just tax breaks, and will tilt for North Carolina's fiscal integrity and ability to provide good public services such as schools, hospitals, recreation, roads, water and sewer—all provided by those tax revenues of which the inventory tax is only one.

There does seem to be early agreement on one factor: that while consumer industries can manage their rapid turnover of goods to minimize impact of the inventory tax, there are heavy industries (nuclear turbine makers, electrical machinery, computer firms for instance) in which inventories are held for years as work progresses slowly on the finished goods. And those are the very high-skill, high-pay industries the state needs. Some legislators are looking into a way to give such specialized industries a tax break.

TUMBLING JUST A LITTLE BIT!

Flak Over The Top Ten

NEW YORK (AP) — The election results on TV the other night had everyone all teamed up at Mulligan's Bar, a noisy neighborhood counter-cultural center within arpeggio range of Carnegie Hall.

It wasn't the contest Ed Koch won that caused all the shouting and the profanity and the threats to turn off the set by the management, but the one that had Charlton Heston as the anchor man and "Gone With the Wind" as the all-time, hands-down, now-and-forever winner.

Something called the American Film Institute, a creation of Lyndon Baines Johnson, who had a way with winning elections, had packed the Kennedy center for Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., with a lot of Hollywood moguls in boiled shirts and some aging film sires going all the way back to Fay Wray for the purpose of saluting the 10 greatest films of all time as picked by a poll of the membership.

No argument there, even from the normally argumentative resident critics at Mulligan's, who have been known to go to the pay phone during a telecast to let the local weatherman know it was raining on Seventh Avenue.

The flak started going up over the bar when the returns came in for the next nine places from the poll of 17,000 people conducted by the Film Institute to select a Top Ten from a first ballot roster of 1,110 films.

"Citizen Kane"? No way; for the creeps and the art houses now turned porno palaces. "The Grapes of Wrath"? A weepy bore, except for Henry Fonda. "Star Wars"? They got to be kidding. Flash Gordon was better every Saturday in the chapter. "The African Queen"? Not bad, but "The Maltese Falcon" was Bogey's best.

And so it went, but what really got the film connoisseurs at Mulligan's livid was how many of their all-time favorites failed to make even the top 50.

There and then, well, not quite then but two hours or so of heated discussion later, the assembled critics came up with their own list of nine films to follow "Gone With the Wind" in the all time greatness parade.

"Shane" emerged as the finest oater of them all, a neck ahead of "Stage Coach" and "Red River" and way out front of "High Noon."

"The Informer," John Ford's classic of the Irish Troubles ranked very high, and so did "Goodbye, Mister Chips," the original with Robert Donat and not the musical bromide with Peter O'Toole.

The man at the end of the bar, a native of Ireland, thought "The Quiet Man," with John Wayne, Barry Fitzgerald and a rich, rollicking roster of character actors, was the loveliest movie he had ever seen, and he bought a round on the strength of it, which ended all dissent.

There was spirited discussion over whether "White Heat," with James Cagney on the top of the

Urban Policy Plans

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cabinet-level task force has outlined an urban strategy based on an expensive plan for "cities and people in distress," with one huge new program and increased spending in at least a dozen areas.

The task force recently sent its recommendations to the president. The plan is likely to meet some harsh resistance at the Domestic Council and the Office of Management and Budget.

The program could cost as much as $7 billion above present programs, sources estimate, but White House aides say the plan will not earn President Carter's endorsement without major changes.

Carter plans to unveil his urban strategy in an address to Congress next March, and it will be reworked extensively in the meantime.

"Getting aid to distressed cities will not be easy or cheap," says the task force report. Federal help is necessary, it says, because "life has become literally hell and the American dream, the American tragedy" for millions of city residents.

To help right the urban wrongs, the task force urged:

—Creation of an "Urban Bank" to provide loans for projects in hardship cities. The task force does not put a price tag on the bank, nor does it specify what cities would be helped.

—A series of changes in tax laws that would provide incentives for companies to expand or locate their operations in hardship areas.

—Expansion of job programs to deal with the problems of long-term unemployment. The report calls for a half million new public works jobs next year, though it is unlikely Carter will approve so many.

—A $1 billion expansion of

THE INSIDE REPORT

Admiral Turner's Letter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Top-flight CIA covert operatives being fired by CIA Director Stansfield Turner are convinced that their "Dear John" letters were carefully composed so as to shield the agency — and the admiral — from possible legal action, a protective device that further depresses morale at the Central Intelligence Agency.

The "eyes only" mimeographed dismissal letters, untainted by any word of praise for long service rendered, do not fire anybody. They simply inform the recipient that William W. Wells, chief of covert operations, has an "intent to recommend" dismissal. Further, the word has been passed that those who voluntarily quit after reading their "Dear John" notes will be treated as having made a normal retirement decision, with no damaging word in their files.

This bloodless, self-protective bureaucratic method of rewarding years of loyal service only contributes to the gloom at Langley, Va., where the announced 800 officers (out of 4,500) in clandestine operations to be fired actually will climb to over 1,000.

The clandestine service may indeed have been overstuffed since the end of the Vietnam war. Old-time station chiefs fired after 20 and 30 year stints admit it. But the pruning of some of the most experienced clandestine agents in the spy business carries implications — denied by Adm. Turner's men at the CIA — that Turner is de-emphasizing human intelligence in favor of electronic intelligence.

"The Russians can now blunt our spy-in-the-sky capability," one worried intelligence official told us. "Downgrading the human element in intelligence could lead to one of the great intelligence failures in our history."

What infuriates and humiliates the old hands are two things: first, the particularly "brutal" way (to quote one top-level CIA officer) Turner is engineering the separations; second, the danger implicit in stripping top foreign posts (including the highly sensitive post in Bonn) of the best, most experienced operatives in the CIA.

A footnote: Adding a new Byzantine dimension to Turner's undoubted ability to alienate his CIA subordinates is his double-edged use of Wells as chief hatchman. The word is out inside the CIA that Turner is now looking for the "right" replacement of Wells to run the once-essential clandestine service.

TITO'S TWO FACES
The problem posed by Marshal Tito for U.S. foreign policy was pointed up this year when Yugoslavia secretly sent American tanks to revolutionary, Marxist Ethiopia in violation of U.S. law.

In contrast, Yugoslavia refused to break Soviet law last year when non-revolutionary, non-Marxist Egypt requested desperately-needed Soviet military equipment. Such contradictory handling of identical requests by "Third World countries" underlines this problem:

How closely to cooperate with Tito — cooperation based on mutual distrust of the Soviet Union — when Tito invariably aids new revolutionary movements abroad no matter how detrimental to U.S. interests.

Both Washington and Moscow ban the transshipment of military equipment they sell or give away. Yet Tito approved the dispatch of M-47 tanks — believed between 50 and 100 — to help the Soviet-allied regime in Ethiopia. This was discovered, almost accidentally, by U.S. intelligence agents in Africa.

When Moscow denied Egypt vitally-needed spare parts for his Soviet-built tanks and aircraft, President Anwar Sadat appealed to Tito during his April 1976 state visit. Tito was deeply remorseful: sorry, Anwar, I want to do it but I simply cannot break my agreement with the Russians.

Yugoslavia has now quietly apologized to the U.S. for breaking the trans-shipment ban. When Secretary of Defense Harold Brown visited Belgrade last month, Yugoslav military officials promised him it would never happen again.

Nevertheless, the record shows that Tito has an irresistible urge to give all aid possible whenever asked by a revolutionary regime. He ignores the fact that the U.S. happens to be a victim in almost every case.

PUBLICATION OF THE BIBLE

Recently it was announced that the Bible, whole or in part, has been published by the American Bible Society in 1,034 different languages and dialects. The whole Bible has been translated into 191 languages. The New Testament alone has been published in 246 additional languages.

A few years ago the whole Bible was for the first time printed in Kashgar Turki, the language spoken in Turkestan. The New Testament was published for the first time in Kikwango, a dialect spoken in central Africa. MaaJan, Jorai, Nyimang, and Riang Lang are some of the other languages into which translations were made.

The Bible remains to this day the world's best seller. There is no book which even remotely competes with it in this regard. It is certainly no book to be written off, as some people do, as a folk history or collection of fables.

Unlikely To Seize Opportunity

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — By turning down Egypt's invitation to attend preliminary peace talks, the Russians have left a clear field to the United States to resume its role of principal mediator between the Arabs and Israel.

But the Carter administration is so lukewarm to President Anwar Sadat's bold diplomatic initiative that there is little likelihood of Washington seizing the opportunity.

Administration policymakers remain convinced that lasting peace cannot be achieved in the Middle East without Moscow's participation.

They are reluctant, therefore, to adopt the tactics employed by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — keep the Russians on the sidelines while forging agreements based on mutual trust of the United States.

Also, these White House and State Department officials want to concentrate on a comprehensive settlement to be negotiated with Syria, which is flirting with Arab "rejectionists," who won't even accept the fact of Israel's existence, and creating a Palestinian homeland.

This course to Geneva is barred by procedural obstacles the administration believes can be cleared only with Russian assistance.

And leading U.S. officials are reluctant to risk deepened divisions in the Arab world by aggressively supporting Egypt's overtures to Israel.

So, as Sadat goes further out on a limb, the administration consults with the Soviets on a high level, publicly urges on them a "constructive role" and, with no real enthusiasm, allows that direct talks between Egypt and Israel could be "useful."

Unheeded is the advice of now private citizen Kissinger to go it alone, without the Russians.

"I do not think the Soviet Union is necessary to bring matters beyond this point," he said after Sadat's unprecedented Nov. 19 mission to Jerusalem. "I would certainly not emphasize the position of the Soviet Union at this point. It isn't necessary."

There is considerable evidence, meanwhile, that Sadat launched his peace campaign partly out of concern over an enlarged Soviet role in the Middle East. The joint U.S.-Soviet statement Oct. 1 building up the Russians distressed the Egyptian leader about as much as Israel was upset by its recognition of Palestinian "legitimate rights."

Fined For Taking Her Child Out Of School

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Wilmington woman fined $50 for taking her daughter out of school last year says her daughter wasn't learning anything in New Hanover County public schools and she shouldn't have to pay anything.

Mrs. Joyce Vietto said she would appeal her superior court conviction Tuesday. In addition to the fine, she was handed a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

Mrs. Vietto removed her daughter Jayne, 12, from sixth grade classes last April because her regular teacher had missed 56 days of school and Jayne had had 13 different teachers and wasn't learning anything.

"Whether the child's learning anything or not, he's required to go to school," Judge John Webb told the jury. "The law does not allow a person to take a child out of school simply because he doesn't like the school."

Mrs. Vietto tried to have her child transferred to a different class in October 1976, but school officials ignored her request. After she removed Jayne from classes, school Superintendent Hayward Bellamy offered to place her in any sixth grade class in the system, but Mrs. Vietto declined.

Jayne Vietto finished last school year with tutoring at Learning Foundations, an educational center which does not have state approval.

Bellamy testified he ordered a warrant drawn up for Mrs. Vietto. The attendance law, he said, does not require that a child learn anything, only that he attend school.

Jayne is enrolled this year in a state-approved private school in Pender County.

Mrs. Vietto remains convinced she did the right thing. She says her daughter "was upset every afternoon when she came home from school. She was a very unhappy little girl, and I didn't understand how

Strike Caused By Toothache

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A longshoreman's toothache has triggered a wild-cat strike in Morehead City, leaving six ships with no one to handle their cargo including two waiting for 14,000 hog-sheads of tobacco bound for Japan.

Union officials said the strike by 77 longshoremen was called to protest the firing of Charles Willis Nov. 22 after Willis didn't report to work because of a toothache.

Ports Authority executive director William M.A. Greene said Willis was fired for refusing to work overtime Nov. 21 after saying he would and for not showing up the next day. Willis showed up Monday with three teeth missing, but port officials refused to lift his dismissal order.

Sees Losses On Tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal tobacco official says the government will suffer "substantial losses" on the low-grade tobacco it holds under loan in the tobacco price support program.

"It appears likely that substantial losses to CCC will be incurred on the lower stalk tobacco when its prices are reduced sufficiently to induce its purchase," said P.R. Smith, acting assistant deputy secretary of agriculture and chairman of a task force on tobacco.

The CCC is the federal Commodity Credit Corp., which finances the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., the grower cooperative which administers the price support program.

The cooperative lends farmers cash for tobacco that won't sell above a minimum price set for each grade of leaf, then gets its money back later when demand increases and it can sell the leaf.

Stabilization officials say the cooperative has $782 million invested in 585 million pounds of tobacco, about one-third of that amount from this year's crop.

Tobaccomen have been worried that losses to the government in the price support program could give anti-smoking forces and other enemies of tobacco the ammunition they need to scuttle the price support program.

Smith made his remarks in a speech at North Carolina State University Tuesday. He said later he had no figures to back up his prediction of heavy losses and didn't know when they would occur.

"I don't think there's any way around it," he added. "There's 500 million pounds in there. That's about half of what we raised this year, so you can draw your own conclusions."

Mechanical Strawberry Picking Seen

By TIMOTHY KENNY
CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — After fiddling with Mother Nature's handiwork for eight years or so, a horticulturist at the Agricultural Research Station in Corvallis believes he's come up with a better strawberry.

The strawberry, named "Linn" after Linn County, was developed by Francis Lawrence, a researcher with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The new berry, he says, might be able to withstand the hardships of mechanical harvesting.

While the economic effects of his work likely won't be felt in Oregon for years, Lawrence is hopeful the new berry will eventually help growers cut costs by using machines to harvest crops.

Much of the state's strawberry crop is used by processors for jam, juice and freezing. The trouble is, says Lawrence, a firm berry is needed.

"Most varieties are too soft and when they're harvested by machine they get cut and damaged," Lawrence said. "They can get mushy and aren't a very attractive product."

But the Linn is another matter.

"It's a very firm berry," Lawrence says. "There is a lot of ripe and useful fruit at one time."

"Strawberries are the only crop not mechanically harvested. And good labor is hard to come by."

It'll be next year before the small acreage that was planted can be harvested. Lawrence says "less than 50 acres" have been planted in Washington and California. Still, it's a start on a problem that has seen Oregon's strawberry acreage decline during the past five years, says Lawrence.

The real problem is the technology involved.

There are few machines for harvesting strawberries anywhere in the world. Oregon, in fact, doesn't have any at the moment, Lawrence said.

And that problem, as much as anything, makes a man like Robert Conroy, chairman of the Oregon Strawberry Commission, not overly optimistic about the Linn's immediate impact.

"It's a long ways from ever being put into the field," Conroy said. "We're still 15 years away from mechanical harvesting."

"We can talk about (the Linn) as a wonderful research project," he said. "But the processing plants themselves can't handle it."

"In California they harvested 400 million tons last year, all by hand. No problem. They could care less about mechanical harvesting."

In Oregon, 27 million tons were harvested last year, Conroy said.

Lawrence would agree with Conroy. But after four years of tests, the Linn looks like it might be a good future bet for Northwest strawberry growers.

Growers in Italy, England and Michigan are using mechanical harvesters off and on, the horticulturist said. And "there's interest all over the world in harvesting more cheaply," he adds.

Granted, it'll be a while yet. But the Linn, as the first variety to be bred specifically for mechanical picking, might eventually make the name of an Oregon County a household word for strawberry growers around the world.

Suggestions Are Rewarded

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — One of the nation's leading manufacturers of photographic products not only listens carefully to its employees, it pays them more than $1.5 million a year for their suggestions.

Since 1898 the Eastman Kodak Co. has been rewarding its workers for their good ideas. The plan is now the oldest continuously operated plan in the United States. It began with a $2 award to a man who pointed out the advantage of washing windows in a production department. Its latest winner is George Wheten who was given $50,000, the largest award ever under the plan, for a simple suggestion to pack cameras with batteries, film and flash just prior to dealer orders.

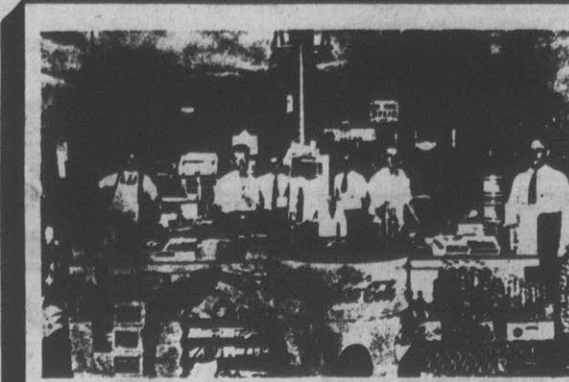

One employee has made more than 3,000 suggestions, of which more than 1,500 have been adopted.

SERVING YOU FOR OVER 50 YEARS!

IN 1925 WHEN W.M. DAVIS OPENED HIS LITTLE GROCERY STORE IN MIAMI HE HAD A DREAM TO COVER DIXIE WITH STORES. IN HIS BOOK (VOCABULARY?) THERE WAS NO SUCH WORD AS F-A-I-L-U-R-E . . . NOT EVEN AFTER HIS SECOND STORE WENT BROKE TWICE.

PAPA DAVIS' FOUR SONS WHO WORKED ALONGSIDE THEIR FATHER INHERITED THAT SAME STUBBORN STREAK . . . TO "WIN DIXIE" BY SERVING THE FOOD NEEDS OF FAMILIES THROUGHOUT THESE SOUTHEASTERN STATES.

WHEN PAPA DAVIS DIED IN 1934, HIS DREAM HAD JUST GOTTEN A TOehold . . . WITH 24 TABLE SUPPLY STORES IN OPERATION IN SOUTH FLORIDA. MORE DETERMINED THAN EVER THAT PAPA'S DREAM SHOULD COME TRUE, THE DAVIS BROTHERS . . . FOLLOWING THEIR FATHER'S GUIDELINES . . . EARNESTLY PITCHED IN TO MAKE THE "WIN DIXIE" CHALLENGE A WINN-DIXIE REALITY.

THEIR KEY TO OVER 50 YEARS OF SOLID GROWTH IS NO SECRET. IT TOOK A DREAM OF HARD-WORKING, HONEST PEOPLE WHO BELIEVED IN WINN-DIXIE, PULLING TOGETHER IN A SPIRIT OF PRIDE AND ACCOMPLISHMENT.

Panama Canal Treaty Lobbyists Are Still Outdone

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — They've got the White House, the Pentagon, Gerald R. Ford and even John Wayne on their side — but so far, volunteer lobbyists for the Panama Canal treaty are being outdone by the conservative opposition.

That unequal match doesn't necessarily foretell the outcome of the eventual Senate vote to approve or reject U.S. agreement to relinquish control of the canal in the year 2000.

But in the rival efforts to generate public pressure, the opposition is far ahead.

"We believe that this is a reversible issue," said John O. Marsh Jr., once a top Ford aide, now a leader of the Committee of Americans for the Canal Treaties. He said that at this point, public sentiment is against the agreement, and acknowledged pro-canal volunteers cannot match the money and mail generated by the opposition.

"The canal has a constituency, the treaty hasn't a constituency, and one has to be created for it," said U.S. negotiator Ellsworth Bunker. "I've been out on the sawdust trail."

Marsh added that treaty backers need to gain support "from the crossroads of America," where the average man dwells.

They spoke the other day, about as far as you can get from sawdust or crossroads. The setting and situation tell part of the story of the lobbying mismatch.

It was a sendoff luncheon at an exclusive Washington club for a delegation of about 20 civic, business and communications leaders, bound for Panama to meet with Panamanian and U.S. officials.

Angier Biddle Duke, the former U.S. ambassador to Spain and a leader of the Citizens Task Force on Panama, said each member of the group contributed $1,000 to pay for the mission.

They will, presumably, return to spread the word in behalf of the treaty. The Committee of Americans for the Canal Treaties, headed by Marsh and S. Lee Kling, a former Democratic Party finance director, is trying to do the same thing.

"President Ford, we believe, will be an active spokesman," said Marsh. Ford is one of the people featured in spot radio and television announcements the committee is sending to its supporters, seeking to have them broadcast on public service time. So is Wayne.

The Conservative Caucus is seeking free broadcast time, too, for spot announcements taken from Ronald Reagan's Senate testimony against the treaty.

But the heart of the opposition lobbying effort is a massive mail campaign, organized and financed by a coalition of conservative groups. They had been at work for months when the committee for the treaties was launched after a Sept. 7 breakfast at the White House.

And there's more to it than timing. It also is a matter of tactics. The opponents get the jump there, too, by starting their campaign from the bottom up, with mass mailings arranged by Richard A. Viguerie, the conservatives' master organizer and fundraiser.

It shows.

In its kit of instructions to treaty supporters, the pro-treaty committee notes: "Senate members have been inundated with mail against ratification. Most of that mail, however, is not of an individualized nature. That is, there are mass-produced letters which are all the same, and a great number of postcards. A personal letter from you to your senators will have much more impact."

Perhaps, but in Senate mailrooms, the letters pro and con are more often counted than analyzed. So the conservatives have an emotional issue, an easy slogan — "giveaway" — and a game plan designed to generate maximum pressure. Letters from home are hard to ignore, even if they do have a suspicious similarity about them.

That leaves the pro-treaty volunteers in a catch-up situation, trying to get their message across by spreading the word from the top so as to mobilize grassroots support. Their case is more complex and therefore more difficult to make.

Now Raises Exotic-Type Livestock

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — Like a lot of farmers, Don Shadow was disgusted with the low prices being paid for cattle. So he switched to more exotic stock — antelope, camel, llama and bison, among others.

"I got tired of the poor prices for cattle," Shadow, 37, said. "That was about seven years ago."

Now he devotes half of his 300-acre Franklin County spread to breeding about 20 species of rare animals and birds. When he has a surplus he sells them to individuals and zoos.

"I won't sell them just to anybody. They have to demonstrate that they have the facilities to take care of them," he said. "I deal mainly with the zoos."

Shadow, who also runs a nursery and still raises a few cattle and sheep, doesn't talk much about prices. But, by way of illustration, he said a young female llama is worth about $1,000 and a young male $300.

With special stock come special problems. "You have all kinds of problems because everything is different," he said. "All your fences have to be high — my corral, for instance, is eight feet high. And the barn needs special stalls so none of them can hurt themselves."

"They're all on large areas where they can graze themselves," he said. "But they need different supplemental feeds. Some of it is specially prepared, some of it I grow myself, and some of it I mix myself."

Among his treasures are black buck antelope from India, scimitar horned oryx from Chad in the northern Sahara, blesbok antelope from South Africa, dromedary camels, llamas, American bison, yaks and Texas longhorn cattle.

"I also have some little buck jack deer from south China — they're only about 15 inches high at the shoulder," he said. "And some mouflon sheep from the islands of Sardinia and Corsica. They're the ancestors of most breeds of sheep."

For variety, Shadow keeps ostriches from Africa, emus from Australia and rheas from South America — all this exotica about 45 miles west of Chattanooga.

Most of his stock comes from dealers and zoos. His farm has been approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Many zoos have limited space to exhibit their animals, so they sell most of the offspring to other zoos and individuals," he said.

"I've been interested in animals and their preservation all my life. Captive breeding is eventually going to be the only solution for some endangered species, particularly in some of the underdeveloped countries which are experiencing rapid population growth."

Shadow said there are now more black buck antelope on United States farms than in India, their country of origin.

Emirates Want Combat Rations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tiny oil-rich United Arab Emirates in the Middle East has asked the Agriculture Department for help in finding someone who can supply it with military combat rations.

The inquiry was reported in a brief note issued Monday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Routinely included among about 60 trade inquiries, the report said the United Arab Emirates "requests names, catalogs" and other information of American companies "able to supply military field rations suitable for use under combat conditions."

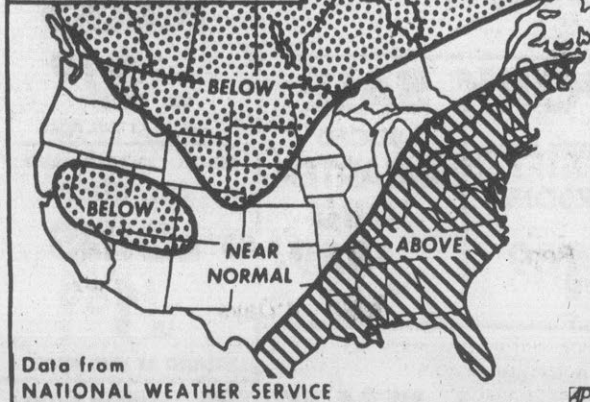

WEATHERIZING GRANT

RALEIGH, N.C. — Commerce Secretary D.M. Faircloth has announced the Department's Energy Division has received a $475,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Energy to weatherize the homes of over 1,000 qualifying low-income, handicapped, and elderly North Carolinians this winter.

Farmland Now Too Expensive

By LeRoy Pope
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The current asking price for an acre of Illinois corn land that will yield 150 to 200 bushels ranges up to $4,000.
"If a farmer has to finance most of that at today's 10 percent interest cost there's no way he's going to make it pay," says Raid Thorp, who handles farmland price statistics for the Department of Agriculture. Thorp is a native of the central Illinois corn belt.
He points out that prices of farmland in the United States jumped by 17 percent in the year ended last Feb. 1 and the farmland price index more than doubled between 1967 and 1974 when calculated in 1967 dollars, i.e. in real terms.
The competition to buy American land — farming or industrial land — comes from all over the world because land that seems expensive to Americans may look dirt cheap to investors from crowded countries with inadequate food production. Indeed, foreigners have been buying up so much U.S. land, either idle or currently in use, that several states, Nebraska for example, have passed laws to restrict foreign ownership of land or are considering doing so.
The dramatic rise in the price of American farmland takes on a forbidding aspect when it is coupled with recent predictions by Chicago's Continental Bank and Moody's Investors Service in New York that, although farm income likely will reach an all time high this year, farm profit in real terms may plunge next year to the lowest level since 1934.
That was the first full year of the New Deal farm policies and subsidies put together by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry A. Wallace after the Hoover depression ruined hundreds of thousands of farmers. Grain and livestock farmers will be most severely squeezed next year, Continental Bank said, because their operating costs and financial costs are likely to keep rising in spite of falling prices.

Continental Bank said the squeeze will not be felt uniformly. How it affects the individual farmer will depend largely on when he bought his land and how much he owes on it and on his farm machinery. And of course local weather will play a big role.
Borrowing too much to pay too high a price for land to grow grain or cotton or feed hogs, beef cattle or dairy cows is an old story. Optimism seems to rise eternally in the breast of the sodbuster; he always hopes the next two crops will make him rich. As long as the banks and the seed and feed stores and the farm machinery equipment manufacturers will extend him credit, he is inclined to give large rein to his optimistic vision.

Many years ago a northern banker wandered into an emergency meeting of planters in Memphis called to consider one of the recurrent financial crises in cotton production.
"How much does it really cost to grow cotton?" the northerner asked a local banker.
The Memphian laughed and said, "Invariably it costs one to two cents a pound more than the previous year's crop fetched."
A considerable part of that increased cost reflected the willingness of the planter to borrow to buy more cotton land at higher prices. And at least half the time, the gamble resulted in a big loss.
That is what is happening to many farmers all over America right now.

"The farmer is harder pressed to make a speculative investment pay off than investor-managers in other businesses," Thorp said, "because he can't shift gears and change his marketing strategy to create new markets where markets don't yet exist, as leaders of some other businesses can."
In spite of their current high living standards and their big cash intake, many farmers say their current prosperity is ephemeral and they are worse off in reality than their grandfathers, who produced less, lived much more frugally but often had considerably more security. At a recent protest meeting of grain farmers, one little fact was raised to dramatize this situation. It was stated — and government statistics bear it out — that in 1914 a farmer could exchange one bushel of wheat for a pair of shoes. Today it takes 10 bushels.

Moody's Investors Service, while agreeing that farm income probably will take a drastic nosedive in 1978, is more optimistic about the American farmers' long-range financial outlook.
Moody's said that for the long view, considering the help they can count on from government and the growing world demand for American farm products, the farm industry is basically sound and most individual farmers look like good risk to financial institutions.
But that may prove cold comfort to the farmer who has paid too much for too much land at a too high interest cost if the price of his crops plummets next year, because already many bankers are showing a reluctance to expand or extend farm loans.

Car-Chase
By Students
TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A group of high school students chased 28 new cars on foot here recently — for the benefit of their schools.
The students had taken part in a blind drawing for keys to 28 new cars donated by an automobile manufacturer for use in the schools' automotive technical training courses. They were lined up in the firm's storage lot here just off the San Diego Freeway. Students, one from each school, equipped with a set of keys drawn at random and a sign bearing the school's name, lined up across from the vehicles and raced each other to the cars.
Once the vehicle was found, the student taped the school name card to the door, climbed in, started the engine and moved forward a few feet to a designated point. The first three students to accomplish this were awarded bonus gifts for their schools.
The cars, valued at $115,000, are prototype pre-production vehicles that cannot be sold or registered for use on public highways. In the past five years Toyota has donated 200 cars to schools across the country as part of a continuing program.

Goal Met, City Group Disbands
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Women for City Living has been disbanded because its goal has been met.
The group organized eight years ago to preserve a decaying section of the city's west end. It disbanded because property values now are rising, crime has diminished and more than 19 other smaller neighborhood groups have taken up the cause.
The group donated the $1,400 remaining in its treasury to buy an Art Nouveau firescreen for the St. Louis Art Museum. The firescreen was made in the workshop of Emille Galle in Nancy, France.

Australia, more than 3,000 miles to the south. The police told them they had no maps for them but pointed in the general direction.

After the police had towed the boat out to sea for three hours, they took in their 300-foot tow rope and prepared to return to Khlong Yai. The Vietnamese shut off their engine and told the police it had broken down.

The police told them to get moving because the Cambodian Communists patrolled the area. They warned that if they tried to return to Thailand, police guns would be waiting.

"If we must die, we must," said a young woman as the police pulled away. "It's better than to live under communism. If we return to Vietnam, we would all be killed."

She added that she had never thought anything could be so horrible and ugly as life in Vietnam today.

Half an hour later, the police returned with orders from Bangkok to remove me for my own safety. Under no circumstances was I to remain.

A Vietnamese woman was disappointed. She felt that if I stayed aboard, some country might accept the boat.

A former Vietnamese navy seaman aboard said they had no compass or map.

"The stars and the sun have guided us this far," he said. "We don't know how long our luck will hold, but this is only the beginning. More and more will escape no matter what it costs. Only the very rich can survive now in Vietnam."

Then the boat moved away, its meager supply of water and fuel in a few rusty cans. A white shirt was tied to the bow by the sleeves as a flag of truce.

I rode for several hours with the marine police. We returned to the general area in which we had seen the boat last. We heard what sounded like machine-gun fire, but there was no sign of the refugees or their boat.

Gifts of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville came to an estimated $10,165 in cash and donations. The largest segment of the donation was a van for use by the Home.

The Falcon Home cares for 90 children who reside there from broken homes. Children come from throughout the 48 states.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for most of the East. Snow flurries are expected in the northern Plains and snow is expected for Minnesota and Wisconsin. Mild weather is due for Atlantic coast states but most of the country is expected to be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Fog hung over much of North Carolina this morning as rain spread into the state from the south. Visibility was poor in many sections and motorists were advised to exercise caution in heavily traveled areas. The fog was produced by very warm moist air overriding a cool northeast flow at the surface. The cool air dropped readings to around 40 degrees in the north and northeast Piedmont.

A warm front moved into the state from the south, along with the rain, and by Thursday temperatures should reach the 70s over the southeast portion of the state and the upper 60s elsewhere. Temperatures generally were in the 40s and 50s around North Carolina Tuesday except in coastal areas where they reached the 60s and 70s. Wilmington had 71 and Jacksonville 70, while Greensboro was one of the colder spots with 45.

Infiltration Of Govm't Said S. Korea Project

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korea's intelligence chiefs approved a plan to plant collaborators in the White House, Congress and top federal agencies last year, according to copies of the plan released by a House subcommittee. But a former Korean Central Intelligence Agency station chief in New York City, testifying before the House international relations subcommittee, said he doubts much of it was carried out.

The former KCIA station chief, Sohn Ho Young, who defected two months ago, told the subcommittee at a public hearing Tuesday that, by the time the plan for 1976 operations was formulated, KCIA agents already had been told to lay low because of breaking disclosures of Korean influence operations.

The plan called for "implantation of an intelligence network in the White House" and buying collaborators in congressional leaders' offices and in the State Department, Pentagon and U.S. intelligence agencies.

It also envisioned "manipulation" of major American news organizations and operations to convert or neutralize university and religious opponents of Korean President Park Chung Hee.

Young said the plan was drafted by the KCIA station chief in Washington. It was signed by the KCIA director in Seoul on Dec. 15, 1975.

It called for paying $100 a month each to three unnamed White House aides for the spy network, three State Department officials, three Pentagon officials and five U.S. intelligence officials.

Three "paid collaborators" in the House speaker's office and other congressional leaders' offices were to get $500 a month each. The plan envisioned winning over reporters with the American Broadcasting Co., the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Christian Science Monitor, primarily with expense-paid trips to Korea.

Executives of the news organizations said they knew of no manipulation of their reporters. A New York Times spokesman added: "It appears it is just a statement of intent of what they would like to do."

Militant Miners Vow No Retreat In Parleys

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal miners will hunker down and strike until "hell freezes over" rather than give in to industry bargaining demands that would mean the death of their union, says one United Mine Workers leader.

"They're going back to the pre-John L. Lewis days," Frank R. Clements, a union district president from Alabama, said Tuesday after attending a union briefing on the industry's bargaining positions.

Federal mediators, working to head off a walkout that could begin as early as next week, were resuming their shuttle today between union and industry negotiators in hotel rooms one floor apart.

The mediators took charge of the talks Tuesday and won a quick pledge of "concentrated and continuous negotiations" as they met first with one group and then the other in an effort to develop a bargaining climate favorable for face-to-face talks between the two groups. Chief mediator Wayne L.

Horvitz told a brief news conference that both the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, industry's bargaining arm, "have assured us they want an agreement."

But asked whether a no-strike settlement is realistic, he said, "I don't know the answer to that. Mediators always have to believe you can reach a settlement without a strike."

UMW President Arnold Miller also sidestepped a question of whether a strike is inevitable, saying, "I couldn't say right now."

The UMW, whose 130,000 active members mine 50 percent of the nation's coal, is ready to call a strike when its contracts expire at midnight Monday.

Under union procedures, ratification of a new contract by the active members would take at least 10 days. Thus, a strike appears certain at 130 BCOA companies barring a last-minute agreement to extend the current contract.

A strike is not expected to have an immediate impact on the national economy. The union's share of national coal production has fallen in recent years, and the industry's best customers have stockpiled supplies to last at least 90 days.

Miller briefed the union's 38-member bargaining council after Tuesday morning's shuttle talks, but there was no discussion of a possible contract extension. Instead, one UMW leader said that a long strike will result if the BCOA refuses to alter its contract proposals.

"We'll stay out till hell freezes over before we'll comply with their bottom line proposals, which would kill the union," said Clements. His reference to the pre-John L. Lewis days was to the period before 1920, when Lewis became UMW president.

The union, no longer as strong as it was in Lewis' heyday, is asking for a limited right-to-strike at individual mines over local issues as well as refinancing of heavily bankrupt health and pension benefit funds.

The funds were drained in part because of a 10-week wildcat strike last summer that cut off industry payments into the funds.

Discusses Death And Dying For Cancer Group

Dan Kelly of the Pitt County Mental Health Center spoke to the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society last night on death and dying and coping with the two.

Awards were presented during this annual meeting to Dr. Emmett Walsh, who has served and will continue to serve as president; to Mrs. John Winstead Jr., Outstanding Volunteer (She served three years as memorial chairman.); and to the Rose High School Keywanette Club, represented at the meeting by Nancy Garrett and Hannah Taft.

Announced as new Board of Directors members were Ennis Chestang, Jim Fleming, Mrs. Van Fleming Jr., Mrs. Van Fleming III, Dan Kelly and Pierce Hatcher.

Poetry Society Meets Saturday

All workshops are open to the public and interested guests are welcome. Luncheon reservations at $6 each are to be sent to Leon Hinton, Rt. 3, Box 126-C, Burlington, N. C. 27215.

Among speakers and poetry readers scheduled to be at the meeting are Mae Woods Bell of Rocky Mount and Maxim Tabory of Kinston.

Police Check 2 Accidents

An estimated $2,750 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police — one of them involving four cars.

Officers reported the four vehicles collided about 5:45 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 400 feet West of the Charles Street intersection.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Robert Michael Feeney of 103A Eastbrook Apts., Sarah Hudson Hardee of 108 Osceola Dr., Edward Sheldon Slagle of 804A Johnson St., and William Henry Mayo of Route 1, Chowchigny.

Damage was estimated at $125 to the Feeney car, $350 to the Hardee auto, $375 to the Slagle vehicle and $100 to the Mayo car.

An estimated $800 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Charles Street and Red Banks Road.

Police identified the drivers involved as William Michael Stephenson of Arcadia, Calif., and Sam Williams of Route 1, Winterville.

Literary, Historical Ass'n To Honor Supporters

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator
North Carolina Collection
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — The American Association for State and Local History, in which North Carolinians long have played a leading role, will honor a former governor, two state agencies, and a junior historian club during the annual meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association in Raleigh this Friday.

Each year the national organization of 5,000 members recognizes outstanding contributions to state and local history in a series of awards. This year, North Carolina won four of the 93 awards, more than twice the average of other states.

Former governor Robert W. Scott, now federal cochairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, will be presented the Award of Merit for his public and private support of the state's historical programs. The nomination asserts that "no elected official in North Carolina's 20th Century has given such forceful and substantial leadership (as Scott) in the promotion of our historical heritage."

Among his long list of individual accomplishments, Scott was cited for his role in the restoration of the state Capitol, the relocation of the "Carbine"

Williams gunsmith shop in the North Carolina Museum of History, the expansion of the state's historic sites system during his administration, and the construction of the new State Archives Annex and Records Center.

The North Carolina Division of Archives and History will receive an Award of Merit for the acquisition, planning and development of Reed Gold Mine, the site of the first documented discovery of gold in the United States.

The mine property in Cabarrus County near Concord was obtained from the Kelly family in 1971. It was opened earlier this year as a state historic site, featuring tours of the underground mine workings and a modern gold history museum.

The nomination cites the master plan and its implementation as "the state's most imaginative project, one that rescues from the pages of the history books a colorful era of North Carolina's past."

Also receiving an Award of Merit is the North Carolina Department of Community Colleges for the development of an innovative program of teaching local history in the community college system.

Initiated by Dr. W. Dallas Herring and directed by Dr. Maurice R. Stirewalt, courses titled "Research in Local History and Biography" were instituted in many of the community colleges and technical institutions, and within four years more than 2,300 Tar Heels, ranging in age from 18 to 80, enrolled.

More than 1,500 student projects were completed, some of which were published, and interest in local history was stimulated. The nomination noted that while both the public schools and many universities have slackened their attention to history, the community colleges have "developed an innovative program at the grassroots level."

A Certificate of Commendation will be awarded to the Tar Heel Junior Historian Club of Yadkinville School in Yadkin County. Under the direction of their faculty advisor, Lloyd Pardue, the Yadkinville students volunteered hundreds of hours of their time to removing an addition to the old Yadkin County jail and renovating the remainder of the building for use as a museum by the county historical association.

With the encouragement of the statewide Tar Heel Junior Historian Association, headed by Mrs. Natalie Miller of the Division of Archives and History, many public schools have voluntarily organized local school clubs for the promotion of interest and activity in state and local history.

The late Christopher Crittenden, then director of the North Carolina Department of Archives and History, was chairman of the committee that organized the American Association for State and Local History in 1942. He then served as its first president.

Subsequently, two North Carolinians, W. S. Tarlton and H. G. Jones, have served on its governing council, and the latter has served as chairman of the association's constitution and program committees and currently is state awards chairman.

Medical School Advisor Retires

By GEORGETTE HEDRICK ECU Medical Writer

When Dr. Harold C. Wiggers came to Greenville to have Thanksgiving dinner with his daughter's family in 1974, he was dean of the Albany Medical College.

DR. H.C. WIGGERS

When he returned to New York, he had another title to add to his long list of academic distinctions — consultant to the East Carolina University School of Medicine, a position that two months later turned into an offer to serve as acting dean for ECU's new four-year medical program.

Dr. Wiggers ended his two-and-a-half-year affiliation with the school this fall. It was an association that saw him first as a consultant, then as acting dean and finally as a senior consultant to the present dean, Dr. William E. Laupus.

The distinguished medical administrator first became interested in the budding ECU School of Medicine through his daughter, Mrs. Janet Woodworth, wife of Greenville physician, Dr. Al Woodworth. It was during a memorable Thanksgiving vacation with them three years ago that Dr. Wiggers was introduced to Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Vice-Chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU. Monroe asked Wiggers to serve as a consultant for the school.

In January Dr. Monroe amended the request on behalf of the university and invited Dr. Wiggers to be acting dean. In that role Wiggers assisted in recruiting Dr. Laupus as the permanent dean for the School of Medicine. He also had a strong role in the selection of the school's department chairmen, always key positions in a growing medical school.

He assisted greatly in initiating the affiliation between the Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the School of Medicine. He also accelerated preliminary activities for the accreditation which was granted the school last April.

When Dr. Laupus assumed leadership in July, 1975, Wiggers became his senior consultant. He coordinated the Center for Educational Development and Evaluation and the Center for Student Opportunities, support units for disadvantaged medical school students.

"My experience here has been wonderful," says Wiggers. "I often thought it would be a privilege to be dean of a new medical school, and exciting adventure with fascinating and far-reaching possibilities."

"ECU offered an ideal situation for building a program which will have a profound influence not only on the quality and diversity of available medical service, but also on the economy and life style of the people in Pitt County and Eastern Carolina."

Dr. Wiggers, a physiologist, has been "a PhD in a world of MD's" and thinks of himself primarily as a medical educator. He was dean of Albany Medical College for 21 years and served as the chairman of the school's Department of Physiology and Pharmacology for eight years. He also taught at Case Western Reserve University, the University of Illinois and Columbia University.

"Now a part of me will always be at ECU, and I look forward to seeing the school develop into a medical center providing primary, secondary and tertiary care."

When Dr. Wiggers and his wife, Virginia, retire to Florida, he plans to write his philosophy of medical education.

Dr. Wiggers has enjoyed living in Greenville. "The friendly and progressive tone of the city influenced my decision to join the medical school team, and I found it as easy city to sell to visiting professors when I was recruiting prospective faculty members."

Dr. Wiggers isn't pleased, however, with the timing of his move from Greenville because he will miss the Pirate basketball season.

But he has already planned a month-long visit in Greenville next fall to catch some Pirate football action.

Wants Memory Be Kept Alive

By DEBBIE JACKSON Reflector Staff Writer

The world must not allow the memory of the World War II Nazi "war crimes" against the Jews to fade, according to Beate Klarsfeld.

Klarsfeld, a German non-Jew who with the aid of her French-Jewish husband has mobilized anti-Nazi sentiment for over ten years, spoke to a group of local residents last night in Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus.

Often described as a "Nazi-hunter," Klarsfeld admits to having spent a great deal of her life in trying to bring Nazi officers to trial.

"I don't want them to burn like the Jews did. I just want them to go to trial," she said in her still thick German accent.

Klarsfeld said that her incentive for fighting so hard against the Nazis resulted from guilt for what her people had done in the war.

She added that there is no "collective guilt" among the young people in today's Germany, and that the youth are trying to forget their parents' past.

However, Klarsfeld said that this guilt is an inheritance of the German people, an unpleasant one, but nevertheless an inheritance.

"This tragedy against the Jews cannot be accepted as an historic accident."

"The new German generation that opposes former Nazis must fight anti-Semitism and persecution."

"For myself, I try to assume the responsibilities by my actions and not my speeches. I have no motive for martyrdom," said Klarsfeld.

She added that in the movies, war criminals are usually portrayed as hiding out in South America, while in actuality the majority of these men are doctors and lawyers in West Germany.

Klarsfeld and her husband have worked since the mid-1960s to force the German government to try these criminals in court. The Klarsfelds have also admitted to having resorted to kidnapping on one occasion.

She said that through their research, demonstrations, and protests, the Klarsfelds brought to the public's attention the records of Secret Service leaders and Nazis who were businessmen in Germany at the time.

One of these was Kurt Lischka, head of the anti-Jewish service of the Gestapo in Berlin before the war and later head of the French Gestapo, who was supposedly responsible for the roundup of 80,000 Jews sent to "death camps."

Klarsfeld said that in "exposing criminals, you also expose yourself to the German police."

She noted that in past demonstrations in Germany, she and her supporters have been repeatedly beaten and jailed by the German police.

Klarsfeld said that some of her methods, such as breaking store windows, may seem somewhat violent, but that they are the only means of gaining attention from the German Parliament and the support of the world.

Klarsfeld said she plans to continue her fight against Nazism, leaving today for Montreal, Canada, to lecture. However, she added that time is limited because the German Statute of Limitations for the Nazi officers runs out in 1979.

Back Into Fire For Pet Snake

EAST GREENBUSH, N.Y. (AP) — Volunteer firemen led tenants away from a smoky fire at an apartment complex, but one resident pleaded to return.

He pestered the firemen. He begged the chief. But he wouldn't say what was left behind.

Finally, a fireman led him back into the building. Three minutes later the man returned with a large snake wrapped around him, firemen said.

The unidentified man said the snake was his pet boa constrictor, but didn't want to stay and talk.

"Once outside, his primary concern was that his snake would catch cold," an official said. "So, he wrapped it around him once and stuffed the rest in his pocket until he got to the car."

Farmville's Terrell Hopeful Despite Just One Player Back

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Most basketball coaches would throw their hands up in despair, mumble something about a "rebuilding year" and run off to keep a low profile for the next three months if faced with only one returnee, and him a non-starter.

But not Mike Terrell. The Farmville Central coach is making no excuses and is actually looking forward to the season.

"It's not as bad as it seems," he said. The Jaguars will have all of last season's junior varsity team which went 21-1 and won the conference championship and tournament. Those players have played together for three years now and "the best thing is that they'll all be back next year," Terrell said.

"We kept the guys on the junior varsity team together for a purpose," Terrell said, although some of them could have probably helped out on last year's varsity squad which finished with a 12-8 record and a fourth-place Eastern Carolina Conference ranking. "We felt they could benefit more from playing together. They have played together for three years, so they are not as inexperienced as they might seem."

So the Jaguars don't suffer from as much inexperience as a quick glance at their roster would indicate. But there is another problem: the football team. A number of top prospects were on the Farmville squad that went to the state playoffs. They didn't start basketball practice until the middle of last week. "We kind of split practice," Terrell said, working with the non-footballers first and then integrating the gridders into the program.

"We had to start all over again after football," Terrell said. "We're way behind most teams, we're still learning our system."

The only returnee for the Jaguars is senior Rufus Mayo, a 5-10 point man who started some as a sophomore, but didn't play as much last season. With his experience, he will probably be a starter this season, according to Terrell.

But Mayo will get some competition at the point spot from juniors Mark Owens (5-9) and James Tyson (5-8). "Mark Owens has looked well running the team and James Tyson did a real good job on the junior varsity," Terrell said, so they could move into the spot.

The Jaguars run a 1-2-2 offense with two wings and two post men. Battling for the wing spots are juniors Calvin Horne (5-11), Roosevelt Joyner (5-10), Don Freeman (6-1) and Chris Connell (6-1).

"Horne is probably a definite starter," according to Terrell. "He is a real blue-chip, gummy ballplayer. Don Freeman: in time, I think a lot of people will have an interest in him; he is a good prospect. He will definitely start in time, he led the jayvees in scoring last year." But Freeman quarterbacked the football team and is behind right now.

Joyner is another who will play some at the wing spot, Terrell said. He is a good defensive player, the coach added.

Five players are battling for the two post positions. They are juniors Earl Harris (6-5) and Johnny Carlton (6-3), both first-year players, Clarence Fields (6-1, junior) and sophomores Jeff Tyson (6-2) and Donald Reid (6-0) are also in the running.

"We're probably leaning towards Fields and Reid, but that could change. I look for Jeff Tyson to come around; he's got a lot of ability, but he's got to make that transition from football." Harris could also come into the picture, depending on how quickly he develops, Terrell said. "I hope we can count on him by the end of the season."

The strength of the team lies in its guards and wing people, Terrell said, along with quickness. "I think we've got as much quickness as we've ever had."

The defense will hopefully be much-improved over last year and will probably utilize a lot of man-to-man coverage.

"If the big guy (Harris) doesn't start, we're going to be a real small team," Terrell said. That will be the Jags' biggest weakness.

Terrell named D. H. Conley and North Lenoir as the top two teams in the ECC this season. "I don't think there's any doubt about that. Ayden-Gritton is going to be real strong and may be able to compete with those two."

Terrell said about the Jaguars, "I think right now, the middle of the pack would not be bad. But I think, probably, before the season is out, we can compete with those three. It's going to take time."

Pirates Face Seahawks To Open Home Schedule

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's Pirates open their home basketball season Thursday night in Minges Coliseum, hosting deceptively strong UNC Wilmington.

Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

The Pirates, who lost 75-59 in their season opener to the University of Indiana Saturday, will be hosting the twice beaten Seahawks. Wilmington has been beaten by Wake Forest, 83-79, in its lone home game, while falling to Georgia Tech, 76-67, in Atlanta. UNCW was in both games until the end.

"Wilmington is a good shooting, very organized, disciplined team," ECU Coach Larry Gillman said. "They are well-coached, and they know what they are trying to do.

"But I feel we'll be up for them. We don't want to be 0-2."

The Pirates are coming off a heart-breaking loss to the Hoosiers. The Bucs were in the game until the final five minutes of play, and led for most of the second half. "We'll get better," the coach promised. "I was not pleased with some of the officiating

it. We wanted them to take long shots like that, but we didn't expect Cunningham. (Scott) Eells and (Phil) Isenbarger to hit them."

Gillman thought that the Pirates did a good job on defense, too. "Our idea was to keep them on the perimeter and give them those 18-20 footers from the top of the circle. I think we did a pretty good job of keeping them off the wing for 35 minutes."

The coach was not fully pleased with rebounding, however, but said that he expected to be rebounded. "But anytime (Herb) Gray gets 13 and (Greg) Cornelius gets 10, I'm going to be pleased. Maybe we would have liked to have had more offensive rebounds, but the ball takes funny bounces off the offensive board. This could be one of our weaknesses, but if we keep going like we did, I'll be satisfied."

The turnover situation also wasn't too bad, according to the coach. The Pirates had just three more than the Hoosiers. "I would have liked for us to have shot better, but I attribute that to the first game, inexperience and Indiana's pressure defense. We're not likely to see a defense as good as theirs."

Turning to tomorrow's foe, Gillman said he expected to see a very mature team. "They start a junior and senior team. They've been around together a lot, and they know what each can do, where our kids are still learning. That's not to say that we're going to lose, because I fully expect to win."

"We match up well with them in size, but they run a motion offense off the baseline, so we'll probably use a lot of zone defense again. We'll still mix it up with several different defenses, however.

"We also expect Wilmington to run when it can, but it will be patient when it needs to be."

The Pirates have never lost to Wilmington in five games, but they have always been a tough opponent, last year losing by just two points.

Herb Gray leads the Pirates through one game, with 24 points, while Oliver Mack had 16.

Wilmington is expected to start Greenville native Lonnie Payton in the backcourt, along with either Bobby Martin or Billy Martin, while 6-5 Dave Wolff and 6-5 Delany Jones will be the forwards. Denny Fields, 6-8, will start at center. Top reserve is 6-6 Gary Cooper.

Following the Wilmington encounter, the Pirates will host Alderson-Broadus on Monday before taking to the road again.

Marathon Slated

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The first Observer Marathon, sponsored by the Charlotte Observer, will be run on a 26-mile, 385-yard course through the streets of Charlotte on Dec. 17.

The race will become an annual event, and the marathon course's exact length will be certified by the National Amateur Athletic Union.

Runners may use the race to qualify for the Boston Marathon, according to race spokesmen. For men, a time of three hours or less (3:30 for men over 40) is needed to qualify for the Boston race, while women must finish in 3:30 or less to qualify.

Observer Marathon runners will compete for five trips to the Boston Marathon next April.

Devils In Rout

By The Associated Press

Duke won the only Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Tuesday night, routing Washington College, 110-66, and Blue Devil Coach Bill Foster was predictably dissatisfied.

"We could have played this well on Oct. 15," Foster grouched after the game. "Our players would just turn around and just watch their man go around them. They were trying too hard to make spectacular plays."

ACC coaches have been mainly unhappy for the past few days as their charges swept past non-conference opposition, probably anticipating the troubles they will have this weekend when four of the giants will meet in the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro.

Duke let the Shoremen stay in the game for the first few minutes, and they actually led 18-17 at one point. Then the Blue Devil full-court defense began forcing turnovers and seven minutes later Duke led, 38-28.

Eugene Banks led scoring with 24 points. Jim Spanarkel chipped in 23, and sophomore center Mike Gminski added 19.

Hot-Shooting Kinston Wins

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
KINSTON — Kinston's Vikings rallied from as far as 12 points down and then used the foul line to hold off Rose High School's Rampants last night, 86-79.

It took a red-hot shooting effort by the Vikings in the second half to pull the game out of the fire after Rose had ruled the roost during most of the first half, and the opening minute of the second.

But early on in the third frame, the Rampants hit a cold streak that went along with the hot-streak of the Vikings. During a six and a half minute period during the third quarter, Rose couldn't find the range from the floor, missing on ten straight shots. And at the same time, Kinston was ripping the nets with eight of 11 attempts from the floor.

During the final half, the Vikings posted an almost unbelievable 80 per cent accuracy, hitting 16 of 20 shots from the floor, many of them from long range. Rose suffered through a horrible four of 14 during the third period, and made just 15 of 41 during the entire half.

"We just made too many mistakes," an unhappy Coach Jim Brewington said afterwards. "We couldn't hold onto the ball when they gave us the chance to come back."

"But even with the poor shooting, we still had a chance to win it, but turnovers hurt us."

"Still, we played a lot better than we ever have before. We blew the lead, but we were hampered when (Greg) Guthrie hurt himself and wasn't able to maneuver as well as he normally can. We did show we can score and that we can play defense when we have to. We just couldn't stop (Larry) Powell. He was the difference in the game."

Powell was indeed the difference, as he connected on 13 field goals and seven free throws for 33 points. He got 15 of those in the second period when the Rampants really had the chance to put the game out of reach, but he not only held Kinston close, he closed the gap.

Kinston held the lead only once in the first half, when Powell hit for a 3-2 lead. The Rampants came back and regained the lead, and broke a 4-4 tie during a stretch that saw Rose outthrust the Vikings by 16-4, as they moved out to a 20-8 lead with 43 seconds left in the period. William Barnes started the spurt and had five of the points during it.

Kinston came back to hit the final two baskets of the period to cut the lead to 20-12.

Then, with Powell leading the way, the Vikes inched closer and closer during the second period. Early on, Rose edged back out by 12 at 28-16, but then Powell got moving, throwing up long shots over the Rampant zone to steadily pull the Vikes back. They pulled within four at 36-32, but Rose was able to edge out again, and held a 43-37 margin at the horn.

Rose threw in the first two shots of the third period, then saw a James Hawkins shot spin down into the nets and back out again. It may have been an omen of things to come. For the next six and a half minutes, the only thing that would fall for the Rampants were two free throws. Meanwhile Kinston was pouring in 20 points, including 12 in a row without answer by the Rampants.

Willie Smith provided both the tying and the go-ahead points, the latter coming on a goal-tending call with 3:49 left in the period, making it 49-47. Kinston never trailed again.

With their hot shooting of the third period, they moved out to lead 61-53 before the buzzer sounded.

Rose cut the lead back to four, 67-63 with 5:37 left in the period, and then rallied by three at 68-65 after a drive by Hawkins with 5:03 showing. Kinston then went to a spread offense, and used the foul line to keep ahead after that. Rose forced ten turnovers with its pressure during the period, but turned the ball over six times itself, and couldn't match Kinston's fire power of 6-of-7 from the floor and 13 of 17 from the line during the quarter.

Kinston's foul shots during that one period outdid Rose for the entire game.

Overall, Kinston hit 55.6 per cent from the floor and 74.3 from the line (26 of 35). Rose hit 47.9 for the game from the floor and 52.4 from the line (11 of 21).

Both teams pulled away 40 rebounds, and Kinston had 30 turnovers to 27 for Rose.

Besides Powell's 33, Bill Jones hit 15, David Abashian had 14 and Smith, 11.

Rose was led by Barnes with 23, while Guthrie had 15, Anthony Bryant had 14, Ronnie Chapman had 11 and Hawkins, 10.

The Rampants play host to Washington on Friday.

In the junior varsity game, Rose took a 53-45 win with Cliff Kilpatrick leading the way with 18 and Wallace Brown adding 10.

Farmville Central Romps Past Saratoga

SARATOGA — Farmville Central's Jaguars opened the 1977-78 basketball season with a double victory last night, downing Saratoga twice. The Lady Jaguars came away with a close 40-38 win, while their male counterparts ripped the Cougars, 60-46.

In the girls' game, it was tight all the way. Saratoga inched out into a 13-11 lead after the first period, but Farmville came back to edge ahead, 23-22 at the half.

The Lady Jaguars pulled out to a 31-26 lead going into the final frame, but Saratoga came back to tie it up right at the end, 38-38. Etta Gorham hit a lay-up, however, with just eight seconds left to push Farmville into a 40-38 lead that held the final few ticks of the clock.

Dianne Barrett led Farmville with 10 points, while Shirli King paced Saratoga with a game-high 23.

Saratoga also pulled away in the first period of the boys' game, gaining a 12-8 lead in the first frame. But the Jaguars got hot in the second and outscored their hosts by ten points to take a 30-24 halftime lead.

Farmville continued to pull away in the third period as it ran the lead out to 46-36. The Jaguars outthrust Saratoga, 14-10, in the final period for the win.

Donald Freeman led Farmville with 17 points, while Jeff Tyson had 12 and Calvin Horne had 10.

Saratoga was led by Harold Tillery with 16, while Sellars Jenkins and Anthony Kirby each had 10.

Farmville returns to action Friday, traveling to Eastern Wayne.

NEW YORK (AP) — Four repeaters have been named to The Associated Press All-America college football team for 1977, along with running back Earl Campbell, who led Texas to the No. 1 regular-season ranking, and quarterback Doug Williams from predominantly black Grambling State University.

Williams, the all-time leader in passing yardage and touchdown passes, was the first Grambling player to make the AP's nationally recognized major All America team since this is the small Louisiana school's first season in the NCAA's Division I.

Joining Williams in the backfield were Campbell, who topped the nation's rushers with 1,744 yards as the Longhorns rolled to an 11-0 regular season record, and Miller, who finished third, with 1,680 yards and set several Big Eight Conference rushing records even though he was the only offensive starter returning from last season's Tangerine Bowl team.

The receivers are 249-pound tight end Ken MacAfee of Notre Dame, who has caught 49 passes in 10 games; wide receiver Ozzie Newsome, who is equally at home at split end or tight end in Alabama's wishbone offense, and Arizona State wide receiver John Jefferson, the Western Athletic Conference's all-time reception yardage leader.

passing by Dennis Shaw of San Diego State in 1969.

For his career, Williams has thrown for 8,008 yards and 91 touchdowns. The old national marks were 7,549 by Florida's John Reeves and 69 touchdown passes by Steve Ramsey of North Texas State.

The AP team again will be featured on Bob Hope's Christmas Special on Monday, Dec. 19 (NBC-TV, 8-9 p.m. EST).

age leader.

Making up the offensive interior line are tackles Chris Ward of Ohio State and Dennis Baker of Wyoming, guards Mark Donahue of Michigan and Leotis Harris of Arkansas, and Pitt center Tom Brozka.

The defensive ends are Browner, the 1976 Outland Trophy winner as the nation's top lineman, and Kentucky's 6-foot-7 Art Still. The tackles are Brad Shearer of Texas and Dee Hardison of North Carolina, with Penn State nose guard Randy Sidler.

Along with Robinson at linebacker are George Cumby of Oklahoma, The AP's Defensive Player of the Year in the Big Eight, and Mike Woods of Cincinnati. Robinson, a junior, and Cumby, a sophomore, are the only non-seniors on the 22-man All-America team.

The secondary consists of Thurman, Zac Henderson of Oklahoma and Bob Jury, Pitt's career interception leader.

D. H. Conley Survives Hectic Finish

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
 WASHINGTON — Two of the top high school basketball teams in this part of the state battled down to a hectic finish last night and, when the dust finally settled, D. H. Conley had eked out a 75-73 victory over Washington.

It was an uphill battle all the way for the Vikings, who fell behind by as many as 15 points in the first half and trailed by 12 in the third quarter. The team rallied behind the inside domination of 6-10 Alton Tyson and the ballhandling and free throw skills of Darryl Thompson in the final period to squeeze out the victory.

"I was real proud of the guys," an elated Conley coach Shelly Marsh said after the victory. "I thought they showed a lot of class to control themselves after being down by 15 points."
 Marsh said the team was able to cut off Washington's long fast break pass in the second half, a play the Pam Pack had utilized to help build its big lead. In addition, "We started hitting some outside jump shots to loosen up the inside and Al took control from then on."
 Marsh praised Washington, saying, "They've got one heck of a team; their board power was awesome."
 Tyson led both teams in scoring with 31 points and pulled down 21 rebounds. His domination of the backboards in the final minutes of play were a key factor in preventing a Washington comeback after the Vikings took the lead with 2:42 remaining.

 Another factor was the foul shooting of Thompson, who connected of five straight in the final minute to keep the Vikings in front.
 The Pam Pack jumped out to a big lead in the first quarter which saw Conley turn the ball over nine times. Tyson hit a dunk and follow shot to help the Vikings to a 6-4 lead in the early minutes, but the Pam Pack reeled off 11 straight points for a 15-6 margin with 2:47 left. Marsh called time out to calm his team down, but the Pam Pack still managed to take a 21-10 lead at the end of the quarter and stretch it to 25-10 early in the second period.

 But Washington's big man, Alvis Rogers, picked up his third foul midway through the second period and sat out the rest of the half. That helped the Vikings to score 13 straight and pull to within two, 27-25, before Washington was able to get back out by eight at halftime, 38-30. With Rogers out of the lineup, Tyson scored 11 second-period points.
 The teams battled on nearly even terms for the entire third period and the Pam Pack was ahead 60-54 going into the final quarter.
 Rogers stretched that to 61-54 with a free throw at the start of the final period, but Kenny Phillips and Mike Cox connected for the Vikings to make it 61-58.
 Tyson hit a hook shot and Phillips a jumper with 3:45 left to cut the margin to just one, 65-54 and, a minute later, Tyson made both ends of a one-and-one (which sent Rogers to the bench with his fifth personal) to put Conley ahead, 66-65.

 A shot from the lane by Tyson made it a three-point Viking lead before Shawn Williams hit for Washington. Tyson then followed his own missed shot to make it 70-67.
 With just over a minute left, Washington stole the ball and fed it to Dominique Wilkins, who drove the lane, but was fouled by a Conley player. Wilkins jumped up angrily and was slapped with a technical foul. The Washington coach then walked onto the court for an explanation and was also hit with a technical.
 Wilkins sank his two shots to cut the lead to one, but Thompson hit three free throws in a row (two for the technical on the bench), to give Conley its biggest lead of the game, 73-69.
 After the shots, a jump ball was held a center court and Washington won the tap, feeding the ball to Wilkins for a layup with 28 seconds left. Conley beat the Pam Pack press to get the ball back down court and Thompson staged a dribbling show until he was fouled with just four seconds on the clock. He calmly sank the two intentional foul shots to make it 75-71.

 But the game still wasn't over. George Stokes scored a layup and was fouled by Tyson. The referee ruled the foul to be intentional and awarded Stokes two shots with the score now 75-73 and no time showing on the clock, although the buzzer had not sounded.
 Stokes missed the first free throw and then intentionally missed the second, hoping a teammate could tap it in, but the Vikings came down with the rebound and the victory.
 Conley hit 28 of 50 shots in the game for 56 per cent to Washington's 33 of 73, 44 per cent.

Philadelphia Guns Down Spurs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Who says you can't run-and-gun with the San Antonio Spurs?

"We're not afraid to run with anybody," declared Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, whose 76ers opened up all the burners in the final 15 minutes and pulled away the Spurs for a 129-117 National Basketball Association victory Tuesday night.

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Detroit Pistons edged the Milwaukee Bucks 100-99, the Atlanta Hawks beat the Boston Celtics 108-101, the Chicago Bulls defeated the New Orleans Jazz 95-87, the Cleveland Cavaliers whipped the Los Angeles Lakers 118-101, the Houston Rockets stopped the New York Knicks 120-103, the Denver Nuggets beat the Seattle SuperSonics 115-99, the Golden State Warriors defeated the New Jersey Nets 110-101 and the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Phoenix Suns 108-96.

The Spurs led 87-84 with three minutes remaining in the third quarter before Philadelphia broke loose on a 15-4 tear, Julius Erving getting five points and Doug Collins and Darryl Dawkins four each. George McGinnis led Philadelphia with 31 points, Erving had 28 and Collins 27.

Pistons 100, Bucks 99
Detroit snapped a six-game losing streak by scoring the last five points of the game, two by Chris Ford and then a three-point play by veteran center Bob Lanier, who had missed six of the last nine games because of fluid on the knee.

Hawks 108, Celtics 101
Recently acquired Tom McMillen scored 13 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter for Atlanta, which erased a 13-point halftime deficit and outscored Boston 19-5 in the first seven minutes of the final period to go ahead to stay.

Bulls 95, Jazz 87
Artis Gilmore scored 21 points and grabbed 17 rebounds for Chicago, which halted New Orleans' five-game winning streak. The Jazz played without high-scoring Pete Maravich, sidelined by an injured toe.

Cavaliers 118, Lakers 101
Foots Walker scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter as the Cavs outscored the Lakers 35-20 to break their game open.

Rockets 120, Knicks 103
Calvin Murphy scored 24 points and rookie Robert Reid, making his first pro start, added 22 as Houston snapped a six-game losing streak and avenged an 18-point loss in New York the previous night.

Nuggets 115, Sonics 99
Denver outscored Seattle 22-2 during a six-minute stretch of the second half to pull away from the Sonics, who are now 5-17 on the season.

Warriors 110, Nets 101
The Nets jumped out to an 18-4 lead, but Golden State caught up early in the second period and broke the game open by outscoring New Jersey 39-16 in the third quarter. Robert Parish had 27 points, including six straight field goals in the fourth quarter, as Golden State broke a four-game losing streak and dropped New Jersey's record to 3-17.

Blazers 106, Suns 96
The Blazers scored 10 consecutive points in the second quarter to take a 40-32 and were never headed as they raised their record to 16-3, best in the NBA. Bill Walton led Portland with 23 points.

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Heavy winds and rain caused Bill Davis of Old Westbury, N.Y., to fire a two-over-par 74, but it was enough to win the third event of the PGA club professional tournament series by six strokes.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Greene of the Pittsburgh Steelers has missed another day of practice with back muscle spasms, but a team spokesman said the defensive end should be ready to play in Sunday's game against Seattle.

An AP Sports Analysis By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A caller wondered if he had awakened Tom McVie from a pre-game nap. His Washington Capitals, winless in their last 16 games, were hours away from playing the Kings in Los Angeles.

"I wasn't sleeping," he said. And it figured. Coaches for teams that have won two games in 21 tries don't sleep as much as they should.

"I don't think all the words you can write will be able to tell what myself and the players are going through," he said. "I've never been through anything like this in my life."

"We've had more meetings — there's only one guy in Washington that's had more meetings than I have, and that's Jimmy Carter," he continued. "I've talked to the players, (General Manager) Max McNab has talked to the players, and so have (Team President) Peter O'Malley and (Owner) Abe Pollin.

"Every time they've talked, it's turned out excellent. But we just haven't won."

The Capitals beat Pittsburgh 2-1 at home in their season opener, then beat the Flames 6-2 in Atlanta four games later. Since then, Oct. 26 to be exact, there has been only frustration for a team that had been expected to challenge for a playoff spot.

"I didn't think I could work any harder than I have, but I am. And Roger Crozier has done a great job of pre-scouting the teams we're going to play. We know exactly what the other team's going to do — I can pretty well tell you who's going to score for them and who the three stars of the game are going to be.

"But the same things that worked for us last year just aren't working this year.

"What makes me wonder is about seven or eight other teams are using the same hard work theory and tactics and getting results. It's working for everybody but us.

"I'm dying. It's killing me. But the only thing is, I'm strong, and I'm never going to get discouraged. I know for a fact that I'm a good hockey coach. I believe in what I'm doing and I'll just keep doing the same things that made my team a success."

Despite the heartbreak, McVie sees a silver lining in the cloud over his club. "Because of this, I'm a way better coach than I would have been if we'd had a good start. When you're winning, you just sort of cruise along. But I've dug down and buried myself with this team. I've set my family aside — my wife and children. I just spend my life in the rink. By watching these fellows, talking to them, studying the scouting reports, I know I'm a much better and thorough coach.

"But I'll tell you this," said Thomas Ballentine McVie, of Trail, Saskatchewan, "I'd rather be a worse coach and have a winning team."

For now, that is not to be. The Kings proved too much for the Capitals Tuesday night, winning 4-2 and sending McVie back to the drawing board with a 17-game winless streak.

Capitals Having Troubles

VPI Shake-Up May Be Costly

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Frank O. Moseley announced his retirement as Virginia Tech athletic director Tuesday, just 24 hours after football Coach Jimmy Sharpe was fired.

The shakeup may have cost Tech two promising Richmond-area high school football prospects. But the effect of the scramble in the athletic department probably can't be measured immediately.

Highland Springs quarterback Darnell Johnson and Varina running back Wayne Wingfield had said they wanted to play at Tech. But with Sharpe gone, both indicated they want to go elsewhere.

"I talked to the players and the name they always brought up was Coach Jimmy Sharpe," Johnson told the Richmond Times-Dispatch. "I don't think they gave him a chance."

Moseley oversaw the growth here of the school's multimillion-dollar athletic establishment.

The retirement notice by Moseley, 66, apparently completed a top-level shakeup of Tech's athletic department. President William E. Lavery personally fired Sharpe on Monday.

Moseley was an assistant to Alabama's Bear Bryant when Bryant coached at Maryland and Kentucky. Moseley came to Tech in 1951, serving both as football coach and athletic director.

At the end of his coaching career in 1960, Moseley had a 54-42-4 record. His 1954 team was unbeaten in nine games and his 1956 team ended its season 7-2-1.

Sevareid Is Leaving Network Tonight

CHIC SHEIK - Actor Anthony Quinn is the embodiment of the romantic sheik in his new role as an Afghan nomad leader named Zulfigara in production, currently being filmed in Iran entitled "Caravans." "Living in the desert," Quinn recently said, "isn't easy, especially when the flies get at the food." (AP Laserphoto)

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - Now and then I get this odd dream. In it, Eric Sevareid arrives at his podium on the CBS Evening News, clears his throat, and says: "I can't figure it out, either."

For years, this shy, scholarly North Dakotan has given millions of viewers the impression he's got the whole thing doped out, an impression he probably would be the first to deny. It all ends tonight, though. CBS says he's doing his last nightly think piece for the network. He's leaving the ranks of the regulars. He turned 65 last Friday, an age CBS folk are taken off active duty.

Sevareid, a University of Minnesota graduate and a reporter since age 18, has been on active duty with CBS a while - since 1939. In that year, he was in France, reporting for both the old Paris Herald and United Press. A call from London changed his life.

The call was from CBS Edward R. Murrow, who was in the process of forming his famed band of scholar-journalists to cover the coming war in Europe through the young medium of radio.

Sevareid signed up, in time gaining a measure of fame reporting the fall of France. And he's been a broadcast journalist ever since, both as a reporter and play-by-play analyst of history.

After he bids adieu to that tonight, he'll still be with CBS as a consultant, the network says, but it isn't known yet if he'll have a successor on the CBS Evening News. He'll also start work soon as a narrator of a new syndicated TV series, "Between the Wars," which studies the period 1918-41, according to the sponsor, Mobil Oil Corp. As a distinguished survivor of the old Murrow gang and the resident brooder, muller and ponderer of the evening news for more than a decade, Sevareid's impending sign-off isn't unnoticed, of course.

It was announced almost a year ago. And in recent weeks, he's been deluged by calls from scribes seeking words on What It All Means and maybe a quick analysis of the cosmos and points west.

To some, he's offered a few reflections. To others, myself included, he's sent a message that in translation comes out, "No dice."

I can sympathize. He may be all reflected-out by now. But on Dec. 13, you'll be able to see him in a TV conversation with Charles Kuralt on CBS. The show was taped earlier this fall.

Meanwhile, on the corporate level, there's another change of command at CBS. It involves Van Gordon Sauter, the network's chief program standards (the censor) man since mid-1976.

Sauter, who came to that job from CBS News, this week was named vice-president and general manager of CBS-owned KNXT-TV here, according to a spokeswoman at the station.

He'll be succeeded as the top program standards executive by Donn O'Brien, another former CBS Newsmen, she said.

Decorative Use In Photo Art

NEW YORK (UPI) - "Decorating with Photographic Art - An Idea Book" shows homeowners and business officials how they can enhance any room with help from professional photographers.

The 20-page booklet has full-color illustrations of residential and business interiors designed by Richard W. Jones, FASID, and Ronald Oates, partners in the New York City firm, Circonaw, Ltd. There also is information on how to acquire photographic art and how to mount and display it in a variety of decorating styles, from contemporary to formal.

Copies of the publication are available at professional photography studios or professional color labs.

Drama Team At Church Dec. 3

AYDEN - The Academy of Arts Christian Players will appear at the Community Baptist Church Saturday, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

The Greenville, S. C., drama team is touring the eastern United States with a threefold purpose: to evangelize through drama; to acquaint people with the use of drama in Christian circles; and to promote the Academy of Arts Drama-music Camp.

The team will present a Christian drama in the evening service. "A Venture Almost Desperate" is about the Pilgrim fathers and their flight to America for religious freedom. Period costumes, props, professional stage lighting and stereo sound equipment will be used.

Admission is free but a free will offering will be received for the expenses of the team. Pastors and Christian workers are urged to attend.

NOT SO PIANISSIMO - A study in white mink and diamonds, flamboyant pianist Libera points to a piano-shaped diamond studded wristwatch during news conference at London's Palladium, where he announced details of his April show at the theater next year. It will be Libera's first London season for 16 years. (AP Laserphoto)

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you feel some changes of a drastic or dramatic nature that now take place can be difficult for you to take, nevertheless, you have the opportunity to benefit greatly by improved conditions that give you a chance to be creative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are concerned with economy but not to the point of missing out on a good investment. You are able to have a good time later after handling an annoying problem.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A situation at home seems very difficult now, but later all works out fine and is an opportunity to get ahead faster. Get at the cause of the problems and solve easily.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to get the information you need and be sure to hurdle some obstacle in the path of your progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Budget money wisely. Make that little investment that can lead to a good deal in due course of time. Gain the assistance of a financial bigwig you know.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't allow a personal problem to keep you from going after important business goals. Attend worthwhile social functions.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan wisely so that you can achieve your finest aims easily, precisely. Please mate, loved one more and show that you are thoughtful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use tact with allies and avoid problems with them. Revise entertainment plans if they are to work out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study any civic or practical matters well before you act upon them. Come up with any good ideas you may have. Be particularly careful with your credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Getting into new projects may be a little difficult now. Make more contacts that could lead to advancement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A responsibility seems endless right now, but later you are able to push right through with it. Do whatever will please mate, loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show you will cooperate more with partners and gain their good will, increase harmony and become more successful. Join with others in other activities and be happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You find it difficult to concentrate on your work now. Later, you get much done. A fellow worker can be helpful with some backing you need later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons whose true personality will not emerge until later in life and will find it difficult to relate to others except by being persistent. If you give praise when deserved, this will be most helpful to your progeny. Build up ego and life will become a most successful and happy one.

The season for gift-giving is fast approaching, and for a bridge-playing friend you could do a lot worse than present him with a subscription to Bridge World magazine, the oldest continuously published magazine on contract bridge ($12 for one year, $22 for two years, from Bridge World, 39 W. 94 St., New York, N.Y. 10026).

Its editors are North American internationalists Edgar Kaplan and Jeff Rubens, two of the world's leading theoreticians. This year, Rubens has won two major bridge journalism awards, and here is an example of his technique at the table.

Against a reasonable six heart contract West led a trump. Rubens did not fall into the trap of winning in dummy and taking the club finesse. Even if clubs broke 4-2, if the finesse lost West would be able to return a diamond and declarer would end up short of entries to establish and run the clubs.

After winning the ten of trumps, Rubens came to his Power Surplus On Windy Days

By JOHN W. REID
Associated Press Writer
WILLISTON, Vt. (AP) — On a windy day, the Environmental Resource Group Products Center in Williston has more electricity than it can use, and the excess is pumped back to Green Mountain Power Corp. That's because the store, which sells energy-related products ranging from flannel sheets and down comforters to solar heaters, wind and hydro generators and microwave ovens, has its own wind generator.

The key is a solid-state inverter that synchronizes electricity produced by the center's windmill with power provided by Green Mountain.

The Gemini Synchronis Inverter feeds commercial power into the building on calm days. On windy days, when the windmill generator produces more electricity than the store uses, the inverter sends the surplus back. Until recently, the center's power meter ran backwards when the system was pumping excess electricity to Green Mountain. The power company has put a stop to that, and the center no longer gets credit on its bill for electricity it returns.

"The windmill runs at about 400 kilowatt-hours a month," about what the store uses in that period, said Jill Farnham, the center's vice president. She said the center's power bill, before the windmill was installed in October, was about $25 a month.

The windmill system, which costs about $6,000, is not practical — yet — for places where commercial power is readily available.

"But with electric rates climbing and the efficiency of wind generators improving, they could save consumers money in three to four years," Ms. Farnham said.

The inverter is important because it eliminates the need for storage batteries required by most home generators in use today. The storage batteries are needed to keep the voltage constant — even when the wind speed varies — and to store excess power for use on calm days.

Power company officials have objected to the inverter, maintaining they could end up having to pay consumers who produce excess electricity and feed it back into the commercial system.

"There is always fear when you have a monopoly, and you can see that monopoly slipping away," said Ms. Farnham.

Power companies also have objected that a lineman working on a cable presumed to have no electricity could get a shock from a nearby home unit still producing power. But Ms. Farnham said home generators with inverters don't pose a safety problem because they work only when the commercial power is on.

"If the power company shuts off its power, the inverter stops working and a circuit breaker is opened to prevent our electricity from going into the commercial line," she said.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Food and Migraine Headaches

I've had migraine headaches as long as I can remember. When they come on they knock me out for 48 hours. Now, I would like to pass on to you some good advice that was given to me by my hairdresser. She told me to eat eight times a day and my headaches would go. They did. Can you explain this? — Mrs. K.F.R., Ga.

Dear Mrs. R.: After being in the practice of medicine for a good many years I've learned never to turn a deaf ear to any suggestion that seems to work for some people. Standard forms of treatment for migraine are well-known. In some instances, however, none of these are effective. Physicians follow every lead to aid the sufferers of this painful condition.

Your hairdresser may have hit on something that has actually been occupying the attention of a group of doctors at the University of Missouri School of Medicine. Dr. James D. Dexter, Dr. John Roberts and Dr. John A. Byer have been studying a large group of migraine patients over a long period of time. They found "improvement of migraine headache in a number of patients treated with a low-carbohydrate, high-protein calorie-restricted, six feedings-a-day diet."

They believe that there is a relationship between these migraine headaches and possible low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). Patients in this study were found to have migraine attacks when there were long intervals between meals.

If the regime that you have undertaken has benefited you and has reduced the frequency and severity of the migraine headaches, by all means continue this regime. For other sufferers it might be worth a try, unless there is a specific reason why the doctor prohibits it.

I'm a worry wart. Occasionally, my heart jumps a beat and I feel it in my neck. Is this something to worry about? — Miss G.E., Ind.

Dear Miss E.: These extra beats, or "skip beats," or extra systoles, frequently occur in perfectly normal hearts. Rarely do they have any medical importance. Fatigue, severe emotional stress, overindulgence in alcohol and tobacco are the common reasons for extra beats of the heart. Some drugs, allergies, thyroid and other endocrine disturbances may be a factor. It is for this reason that a general physical examination, including an electrocardiogram, should be done.

The chances are very slight that your problem is of any concern. Yet you will gain great assurance if you are thoroughly checked out by your physician.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Skyrocketing Demand Pushes Christmas Tree Cost Higher

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Skyrocketing demand for North Carolina Christmas trees is pushing prices 10 to 15 percent higher than last year and forcing changes in the way the state grows its annual crop.

Experts estimate the state will produce about 1 million trees in this year's crop, up from last year's 750,000 but far below the 1.3 million which could have been harvested except for some unfortunate circumstances.

A late frost last June and a dry summer damaged many trees so badly, they'll need another season to recuperate.

But the real problem is that North Carolina's Christmas tree industry, which depends heavily on the state Forest Service, has outgrown the ability of the Forest Service to supply its needs.

The Forest Service is as responsible as anyone for the astonishing growth of Christmas tree production in North Carolina over the last dozen years, according to Bob Grady, who has been working with growers during that time.

"Our original purpose was to provide a source of income to depressed Appalachian areas before there was much demand for our Fraser firs," Grady said. "But the thing has grown by leaps and bounds."

The Forest Service part in the plan was to grow seedlings for three years, transplant them to special fields for another two years and then sell the young plants to growers, who let them mature another eight or 10 years.

Everything worked well until about two years ago, according to Bill Huxster of the state Agricultural Extension Service's forest resources department.

"That's when the demand really began to grow and the state nursery has been operating at a maximum," Huxster said. "They can't grow any more transplants than they are right now."

The state's approximately 600 growers are a fairly disorganized group, Huxster said, and no large nursery operation has stepped in to supplement the state's production.

Transplants are available out of state, he added, but their production is generally under contract five years in advance and North Carolina growers have been reluctant to plan that far ahead.

The answer, Huxster said, is for the state to sell the plants to the growers after three years instead of five years. That way the state has enough acreage to produce six times as many of the young trees as it can now.

Huxster said the idea was presented to growers in meetings last spring in the western counties where it is possible to grow the Fraser, which makes up about 65 percent of what the state produces. The growers didn't like it at first, but Huxster and Grady said some are starting to take the younger plants.

The results will begin to show up in six or eight years, Huxster said, predicting that in a decade or so the state's Christmas tree production will quadruple.

In the meantime, he said, while Scotch and Virginia pines will have to take up the slack until harvests of the popular Fraser catch up with demand.

Those who prefer the Fraser to those varieties will have to pay for their preference, according to Daylon Rogers, a grower and editor of Limbs and Needles, printed three times a year for the North Carolina Christmas Tree Growers Association.

Rogers predicted prices would be 10 to 15 percent higher nationwide for the 30 million trees expected to be cut this year, and possibly even higher for scarcer varieties like the Fraser.

"Trees are going to be scarce for the next three or four years," he said, "but everybody who wants one will be able to get one. They're just going to cost more."

Rogers said bad weather, poor planning and a shortage of the labor needed to cut and ship the trees had all affected this year's production.

North Carolinians don't need to worry about getting a tree, he added. The state actually will cut enough trees this year to supply all its own needs and ship some out of the state.

"Scarcity" means North Carolina growers could have sold many more trees if they had them to sell.

"I'd say within five years we could be producing nearly twice as many trees as this year," he said.

Today's Circumnavigators Take Time Out For Fun

EDITOR'S NOTE — Around the world in 80 days? Not for circumnavigators. They take years. The fun isn't in getting there, it's the stops along the way. And for these modern-day Magellans, about the only thing that's free is the air that fills their sails — and the spirit that put them to sea.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
THE WEST INDIES (AP) — Probably at no time since Magellan showed the way have so many sailors been at sea demonstrating that the Flat Earth Society is misguided.

These are the circumnavigators, private people in their own boats in search of adventure or in flight from landlocked tedium.

Their modes of transit are as various as their motives. An all but unsinkable 14-foot creation bobbing into Recife, Brazil, with its solo skipper on the leg from Cape Town. Vast, sky-scraping ketches — the gold-platers — with deep freezes, saunas and enough electronics to go into orbit. Family boats. Leaky boats. Boats daring Cape Horn. Boats — most of them — going the easy way, east to west with the tropical trades.

"I don't think there is a typical circumnavigator," said Dan Leahy recently on the Caribbean island of Bequia having almost completed a four-year circuit with his wife, Chris, aboard their 60-foot yawl, Mareda.

In the 1890s Joshua Slocum opened up the world to yachting by sailing around it alone. What was a feat has become almost a fad.

Circumnavigators in recent years have included Bernard Moitessier, a Frenchman, on the last lap of a singlehanded around-the-world race when he decided the hell with it and kept on going around Africa, finally coming ashore in Tahiti.

Robin Graham probably is the youngest soloist, having set off from California at 16 and finishing at 20 — married and with a contract from National Geographic.

Then there was the boatload of Kiwis from New Zealand who after seven rollicking years had only made it to South Africa. Where they really wanted to be, they decided, was back in their favorite bar in the world — in Colombia. They reversed course 6,500 miles across the Atlantic to celebrate Christmas there.

Magellan only proved what many scientists had long posited. A scientist named Eratosthenes in Alexandria declared in the third century B.C. that not only was the world round but that its circumference was 25,000 miles, almost the actual figure.

Magellan, of course, didn't finish his historic trip although he did recross his course from an earlier voyage. He was killed in the Philippines by unfriendly natives, a peril Slocum prepared for by spreading tacks on his deck before he slept.

Juan Sebastian del Cano completed Magellan's expedition, arriving back in Spain on what he calculated was a Sunday. But he heard no church bells. It was Monday. Del Cano had discovered the international date line, an horological necessity that puts circumnavigators a day out of step, at the very least, with the rest of us.

Since there are no toll booths on the high seas it is impossible to determine how many yachtsmen are trailing in Magellan's wake. But flags of the world's nations, including landlocked Switzerland, are commonplace in popular stopoffs like Tahiti or the Caribbean.

Some circumnavigators sink from sight, literally, victims of storms, reefs or pirates.

There are other but more ubiquitous hazards. Boredom, for one. The Leahys — she was a Wall Street stock analyst, he a clothing importer before they decided to cash in and check out — have a four-shelf bookcase in their cabin lined three deep with paperbacks. Often the first question a circumnavigator asks on stepping ashore is not "Where's the shower?" but "Got any paperback books to swap?"

For most circumnavigators the enemy is routine. Guarding against sail chafe. Deciding which cans to open for dinner, providing the labels haven't come off. Keeping the sextant clean. Trying to remember where you stowed what.

Those moored to a permanent paycheck may wonder how these wanderers can afford it. Generally, living is cheaper at sea than on land. The wind, notes Dan Leahy, is free. There are no property taxes, no phones or cars to support, no school bills, no plumbers' bills. By necessity, circumnavigators become jacks of all trades.

Arlo Nish, a onetime fisherman, sold his share in a contracting business, rented his home in San Leandro, Calif., took his three kids out of school and has been at sea almost two years aboard his 65-foot ketch Sonic. His wife, Marty, became the school teacher.

But mouths still have to be fed. In St. Thomas, Marty shopped at an American supermarket for the first time in almost two years. She rang up a bill of $3,000.

When his coffers run low, Leo, a French Canadian who has been at sea more than a decade, makes port and heads for the nearest hotel. Leo can teach both diving and dancing.

Securing the financing for a circumnavigation is one thing,

Getting up the determination to do it is another. One must overcome landside attachments and disregard the importunings of friends and families.

"Around the world? You crazy? Everybody told us," said Marty Nish.

Most people like roots, and ocean cruising is as rootless as tumbleweed. The Leahys, in their mid 30s and childless, bought their first boat and gave themselves a cram course in sailing on Chesapeake Bay. The next year they had Mareda and were gone.

Like any veterans of common travail, circumnavigators seek out each other. Not long ago the Nishes, Leahys, Leo and several others cruised the Virgin Islands together, a rendezvous planned many months and thousands of miles before. The conversation was a bogging travelogue — the color of the water in the New Hebrides, gales off Cape Agulhas, Africa's southernmost point, the quality of beer in Nuku Hiva.

They had made their dreams come true. It was sad to think they were almost home, returning to bills and telephones and catching colds.

GOING TO PIECES — Tower Bridge, one of London's best known landmarks, is slowly being shaken to pieces by heavy traffic flow. The 83-year-old structure was built to carry Victorian horse-drawn carriages and today's heavy traffic is causing parts of it to crack.

The City of London Corporation has announced that it is applying to the Greater London Council to have all trucks over five tons banned from using the bridge. (AP Laserphoto)

Wall Street Weakness Uncertainty Brings On

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP

What ails the stock market is a much talked-about subject these days. The Dow Jones Industrial Average reached its peak of 1,014.79 in September 1976. Prices have fallen steadily since then, with only half-hearted rallies in the interim. The Industrial Average recently hit a two-year low, dropping below the 800 level on several occasions. The recent rally has sent the average above the previous rally peak for the first time all year. For the moment at least, things look better.

The stock market typically acts very well when conditions are fixed, but uncertainty usually causes a weak market. One of the basic things troubling the stock market currently is uncertainty about future government policies.

We still have no national energy policy. Congress is grappling with energy legislation, and the House-Senate conferees appear deadlocked on several key issues. In the meantime, our dependence on foreign oil is increasing and will contribute to a record high trade deficit this year. It seems probable that final legislation will contain little incentive to increase domestic oil production.

The President has delayed his tax reform package until next year. His proposals are thought to contain little incentive for business to invest in plant and equipment for the future. For investors, elimination of the capital gains preference and the complicated elimination of double taxation of dividends are added to the list of uncertainties.

Fear of higher interest rates gripped the market recently. The money supply continues to exceed targeted levels, and Federal Reserve actions to control it have sent short term interest rates higher. Arthur Burns and President Carter may not yet be confronting each other, but they do differ on how to run the economy. Additionally, it seems likely that Burns will not be reappointed to the Federal Reserve. Who will replace him is a further area of concern for business.

Businessmen and economists foresee a slower rate of economic growth in 1978, and the possibility of recession cannot be counted out. The resulting lower profits and possibly lower dividends could lead to a stimulative tax cut to counter a recession. That could cause an even larger budget deficit and further fueling of inflation.

As if the market needed further depressing influences, it also worries over the weak dollar, increasing foreign competition and rising trade deficits, and the political instability of some foreign governments that could hurt multinational companies.

All is not bad, however. While the Dow Jones Industrial Average is down about 20 percent from its 1976 peak, and the S&P 500 is down 16 percent, other indices have done much better. Some individual stocks have bucked the declining trend and risen dramatically. A Dow Jones Industrial Average at 800 is very close to its book value, sells at less than 7X estimated earnings, and yields 6 percent, valuations which are low by historic standards.

There are still problems and risks in the market, but the worst of these has probably already been discounted. The tendency of investors to be over-optimistic in a rising market and to dread a declining one can cause them to miss the best time to buy stocks. This bear market will end, as all others have. Opportunity does increase as stock prices fall, and we believe this is a good time to decide what stocks to invest in, not when to invest.

Plath Among Glascock Poets

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — When she was a college senior in 1955, poet Sylvia Plath tied for first place in Mount Holyoke College's annual Kathryn Irene Glascock Intercollegiate Poetry Competition.

The contest, which has been held every April on the South Hadley, Mass., campus since 1923, attracts promising young undergraduate poets who read their work before a jury of three well-known poets.

Plath was not the only Glascock poet who went on to literary fame. Other former contestants include Robert Lowell, Muriel Rukeyser, James Agee and Kenneth Koch. Scores of other leading poets have served as judges, including Robert Frost, Marianne Moore, W.H. Auden and Stephen Spender. The Glascock Contest is the nation's oldest poetry competition for undergraduates.

Publishing Up In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — With more than 4,000 new titles coming off the presses this year, Argentina is the second leading book producer in the Spanish-speaking world, according to a recent study of the Argentine Ministry of the Economy.

The country is already the largest producer in Latin America, the ministry reports. Argentine publishers exported more than 20 million volumes throughout Latin America in 1976, and were the dominant source of new works by Latin writers and of translated editions from Europe and North America.

Argentina, with a population of 25 million, produces approximately the same number of new titles per capita as the United States, the ministry said.

Blind In Business; Stereotypes Versus Realities

By NANCY KERCHEVAL
BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Sylvester Nemmers manages a cafeteria in Des Moines, Iowa, which does close to $500,000 in gross sales annually. As a successful businessman, he is disturbed by those who question his ability just because he is blind.

Nemmers added that blind persons are stereotyped as "accident prone," but "actually they're more cautious than most people and have less accidents, plus there are many who don't do anything which could hurt them." As the blind persons strive to make their businesses profitable they have learned little tricks to keep their customers from cheating them. When someone hands Segal a bill and says it's larger than a $1 bill, "I repeat what the guy tells me. If the girl I work with doesn't contest it, I make change. I work a lot on faith. I just trust people and I've only been taken four times in 18 years." Nemmers said if there is more than one customer in line, he will "flash" the bill. "It's psychology that the guy wouldn't want to be caught. I have more trouble from my sighted cashiers who don't have checks signed."

Nemmers said when he took over the Lucas Building's 35-employee cafeteria, the largest of its type in the state of Iowa, serving up to 500 persons daily, "I was on trial with the employees and the customers. They doubted my ability." Sanders added, "Any retailer has problems and your vision has nothing to do with it. A blind vendor is as good as any." Nemmers, who was a radio engineer when he had partial sight, said for a long time he was "laboring under the illusion that because I was blind, I was a second class citizen and should scrape the crumbs off the table and take it humbly. Then I found out I could take a piece of the cake — not just the crumbs. "Blindness will not make you a second class citizen unless you believe it," he said. Segal said, "Blind people believe the same stereotypes as everyone else. Agencies (for the blind) have a paternalistic attitude toward us." Sanders added, "We were brought up in the same society as everyone else. If a blind person comes to believe in himself — the rest is pretty easy. "The difficult end is the vocational end," he said.

Nemmers, 57, was one of 150 blind vendors who met here recently to discuss what they say is a Carter administration failure to uphold the rights of the blind in seeking work as managers of food stands, smoke shops and cafeterias on government property.

"You get out of business what you put into it. Blindness has nothing to do with it," Nemmers said.

Art Segal, 49, who runs a snack bar in Philadelphia's City Hall, interjected, "As far as customers are concerned, I think it's just winning them over to accept a blind person. Dealing on a one-to-one basis we might have problems, but our customers want something so they have to deal with us."

Ralph Sanders, president of the National Federation of the Blind, said the biggest problem is that "76 per cent of Americans view blindness as a disability. They look at us and think helplessness, inability, charity recipient.

"Or they say we all sing and play the piano, are always religious and are always nice, humble and unemployed," Sanders said, adding that the National Federation of the Blind was created in 1940 "to give us our own voice to speak out on things that affect our lives."

The 1936 Randolph-Shepard Act provided that blind persons receive priority rights to a vending facility on federal property. A 1974 amendment strengthened the act, but the blind vendors charge the General Services Administration is not enforcing the regulations.

A case is pending against the Defense Department for replacing a blind woman's vending operation in the Marine Supply depot in Albany, Ga., with a commercial vendor.

"They closed a vending stand operated by a blind woman and then later on down the road contracted to a commercial company. This is a clear, outright violation of the law," Sanders said.

Segal added, "The Defense Department has promulgated regulations that we feel the department cannot do. HEW was given the power to regulate this law."

Sanders said he looks to the public for help and believes the public will help as soon as it is educated to blindness.

"The problem of blindness isn't the lack of sight — the problem is the attitude of the public which causes discrimination. The public wants to give us charity," he said.

"The way we'll gain equality is through public education," Sanders said.

Nemmers added, "The discrimination against blind people is the same problem that women and blacks face in seeking equality. But we're a smaller minority so it's harder for us to do the job."

Nemmers said the discrimination reaches out to life insurance, health insurance and travel insurance. "Do you know a blind person traveling on a plane will be denied insurance when all he's doing is sitting in a seat like everyone else?"

Help In Return From Firemen

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Stanley Marks, who has helped many of his fellow fire fighters during his 20 years with the Fresno Fire Department, as duly noted by Tom Myers, president of the Fire Fighters Local 753, is now getting some of that assistance back.

Marks, 43, started having pains in his legs last year, and was soon virtually paralyzed from the waist down. He was forced to retire from the department with only a third of his normal retirement pay, because the disability is not work-related.

Recently, union members began alterations of Marks' house to make it easier for him to get around. All 280 members of the union are donating time and one-fourth of their annual uniform allowance to the project. The monetary donations totaled $10,500.

Ungulates are animals with hooves instead of claws. In this group, the animals with fewer toes are more evolved. A horse, which depends on speed, smell and sight for survival, has single-hooved feet, a long nose and wide peripheral vision.
