Sadat Defies Arab Pressure; Breaks Relations With 5

By SAMI RIZKALLAH Associated Press Writer CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat has defied Arab pressure to abandon his peace overtures to Israel and broken relations with the five nations that met in Tripoli to condemn him.

president took a harder line than they did and broke relations.

The break also extended to Iraq, which attended the Tripoli summit but refused to sign the final declaration because it wanted tougher action against Egypt.

Asked about the Palestine Liberation Organization, which also signed the Tripoli Declaration, a spokesman for the Egyptian Foreign Ministry replied: "The PLO is not a country." But the Egyptian government expelled three top Palestinian officials in Cairo and closed the Voice of Palestine radio station after the Palestinians called for Sadat's overthrow because of his trip to Jerusalem.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance prepared for another swing around the Middle East to urge the Arabs to "keep an open mind" toward Egypt's negotiations with Israel and to underline U.S. support for the Egyptian-Israeli meeting in Cairo in mid-December.

Vance will visit Lebanon, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Israel and is trying to arrange a visit to Syria.

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, visiting in London, said Israel welcomes Vance's coming visit and hopes he will be able to convince the Arabs of Israel's efforts to achieve peace.

He said Israel does not "rejoice" over Egypt breaking relations with the more unyielding Arab states "because we want a comprehensive peace settlement with all our Arab neighbors."

Project Progress In Under Review

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

Work is progressing on the new Southside housing project off Evans Street with site grading roughly 75 per cent complete, it was reported at Monday night's Housing Authority session.

The weather has been a factor in delaying progress at the site and the work program is still some 30 days behind schedule, according to Joe Laney, executive director, who noted, however, that the pace is picking up.

Laney told commissioners that 24 foundations have been poured for units and seven buildings have been framed.

The director reported that some 10,000 cubic yards of unsatisfactory soil has been removed from the site but he added that the figure is well within the project estimates. He said that 17,000 cubic yards of material has been hauled in and the estimated figure of 20,000 cubic yards for the project will probably be exceeded.

Laney said that, with the exception of grading holdups, no problems have been encountered with the project which calls for 111 units of new housing on the site located south of 16th Street.

In a related matter, commissioners approved an amendment to the Annual Contributions Contract (ACC) as stipulated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development regarding the Southside project.

Laney explained that the original N.C. 22-5 contract, called for 117 units of housing and various factors contributed to a reduction in the number of units to 111. HUD asked the authority to change the contract to reflect the reduced units, he said.

In addition, commissioners gave their approval to a supplemental Declaration of Trust involving the project which modifies the original document.

Laney recalled that at the time the initial Declaration of Trust was executed, two property exceptions were made in the project area due to minor problems in real estate closings. Those problems have been resolved now and the modified agreement eliminates the two exceptions.

The scheduled bid opening date for the proposed mid-rise apartment units for the elderly is now set for Dec. 14, the director reported, rather than today as originally planned. The bids on the 50-unit housing package will be opened at 3 p.m. on the 14th in the council chambers at city hall, he added.

Laney said that the Section Eight housing program for the elderly here will be packaged into one general contracting bid and the successful bidder will handle the sub-contracting.

He reminded the board members that the city has designated the authority as the public housing agency for the Section Eight existing housing program and an application for program funding will be submitted to HUD.

Four vacancies existed in the housing developments operated by the authority during November, according to Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs.

Mrs. Streeter, who said that overall rent averaged $75.66 in the five projects, reported that the rent averages included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $65.25; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $78.53; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $80.12; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $76.20; and N.C. 22-5 (Newtown), $67.44.

The housing staff has completed work on the tenant application file, she said, and 432 applications, including 141 from elderly citizens, have been received.

Mrs. Streeter said that the housing news letter has also been completed and distributed.

Begin Cancels Appointments

LONDON (AP) - Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin canceled his appointments today through late afternoon because of what his doctor called a stomach ailment.

"The reason for his illness is probably food poisoning," said Dr. Basil Lewis, a heart specialist from the Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem who is attending Begin during his stay in Britain. Begin arrived last Friday and is to fly home Wednesday afternoon.

"There is no connection with the cardiac troubles the prime minister has had in the past and his present illness," the doctor said. He denied Israeli radio reports that the 64-year-old Begin had experienced chest pains.

Sadat's determination to pursue peace with Israel alone if the other Arab nations won't join him has resulted in the most serious split in the Arab world in years. But breaks in relations between Arab countries are nothing new and usually are healed eventually.

The split divides the Arab world into four main factions:

-Egypt, going all out for peace with the support of Sudan and Morocco;

-Syria, Libya and Algeria, condemning Sadat but restrained by Syria because only Egypt can help it get the Golan Heights back from Israel;

-Iraq, isolated by its complete intransigence toward Israel and its hatred

Not Sick Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) - Employers may deny pregnant workers sick pay but cannot deny them seniority benefits during their pregnancy leave, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In its second major decision on pregnancy in a year, the court relied heavily on its prior ruling that denied women workers the right to have pregnancy benefits included in an employer's health insurance program.

But the justices drew a distinction over seniority benefits, citing a difference in "benefits" and "burdens."

"Here, by comparison, the (Nashville Gas Co.) has not merely refused to extend to women a benefit that men cannot and do not receive but has imposed on women a substantial burden that men need not suffer," Justice William H. Rehnquist said for the court.

The court sent back to lower federal courts two pregnancy benefit cases used to reach today's decision, one from Tennessee and the other from California.

While the action won unanimous approval by the nine justices, four of them voiced concern over the court's finding that the woman in the Tennessee case failed to prove an initial case of discrimination against her employer's sickleave policy.

Half Of U.S. Coal Production Halts

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) - Half the nation's coal production ground to a halt today as the United Mine Workers union struck 1,800 mines to press demands for a wage increase, restored health and pension benefits and a right to strike over local grievances.

The last hope for averting the nationwide walkout died when contract talks between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association were recessed Monday night in Washington.

The contract which covers about 130,000 of the union's miners, expired at 12:01 a.m.

The miners, who average $60 a day in wages, have asked for a "substantial wage increase" and also want the coal companies to refinance union health and pensions funds which have become

Hodges Here Seeking Campaign Supporters

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Luther Hodges Jr., a Democrat candidate for the U.S. Senate was on the campaign trail in Pitt County today, seeking support for next year's primary.

The candidate visited the Court House and a number of businesses in Greenville, then traveled to Farmville and Ayden. He was scheduled to attend a public reception in his honor at the Ramada Inn at 5:30 this afternoon.

He said of his campaign, "it's going fine," but described it as "a long, demanding process."

"I'm the guy that's unemployed," he said, referring to his efforts to win the Democratic nomination and unseat incumbent Republican Sen. Jessie Helms, next year.

Hodges, 40, is the son of the late Luther H. Hodges who was governor of North Carolina from 1953 through 1960 and U.S. Commerce secretary under President John F. Kennedy. He was chairman of the board of North Carolina National Bank until he resigned June 30 to begin his Senatorial campaign.

The candidate said, "I feel that I'm being perceived as the Democrat's best opportunity," to defeat Helms.

One major problem, he noted, is "keeping the Democratic party together," and preventing a second primary.

Hodges indicated the major issues of the campaign would be, "first, who can best represent the Democrat Party."

"Economics," he said, would be an equal issue, "inflation, development, energy, tobacco..."

He described economics and economic development as "the kind of thing I've been doing all my life." The people of North Carolina, Hodges continued, "relate to that kind of issue. That's the kind of issue the people of North Carolina want to hear about."

He said, "the Panama Canal is important, but not as important as tobacco," to North Carolinians.

When Hodges opened his campaign here September 7, he said Helms is "out of touch and out of tune with the concerns of modern-day North Carolina."

Hodges said at that time, "my desire to serve is based on a simple premise: a deep love for North Carolina."

The candidate attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received his masters degree in business administration from Harvard University in 1961 before joining the faculty of the UNC School of Business Administration.

He began his career with NCNB - the largest financial institution in the Southeast - a year later. He became NCNB board chairman in 1974 at the age of 37.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

WHY ASK FOR CRIBS?

I was just reading in an article in Hotline that the Pitt County Health Department was asking for baby cribs for people who can't afford them. If they can't afford to buy a baby crib, they can't afford to have a baby. Instead of wanting people to donate cribs, why don't they provide birth control to these families? Mrs. F. R.

Pitt County Health Department Personal Health Division Director Tillie Cullipher said the health department has about 2,500 active birth control clients. Physicians throughout the county provide birth control means for many more, she said. She said any woman of any age in the county can receive birth control assistance at the Health Department and the use of it is encouraged in every way possible, so that, as you say, only those families who want and can afford children will have them. More information about family planning (birth control) may be obtained by calling the Health Department, 752-4141, she said.

Pitt County Health Educator Martin McDowell said that while the population of Pitt County has gone up eight percent since 1970, the birth rate, as of last year, 1976, had dropped from 1,399 live births or 18.9 per 1,000 population in 1970 to 1,216 live births or 15.3 per 1,000 population in 1976. He said he believes the decrease can be attributed to the improvement and enlargement of the Health Department Family Planning Program in 1973-74.

Ed Yancey, Pitt County chairman for the Agricultural Extension Agency, yesterday gave formal notice to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners of his resignation from his present post.

Yancey, who has been with the local agency for the past nine years, has been appointed to head up the South Central Agricultural District based in Raleigh.

The district includes 11 counties, from Bladen County to Anson County and from Harnett County to the South Carolina line.

"This position will be more administrative than my position here in Pitt. I'll be working in recruiting and placement of personnel," said Yancey. He described his former duties as mainly educative.

The appointment to South Central District Chairman was made through the State Extension Agency with the concurrence of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

The Agricultural Agency is an extension of North Carolina State University, and Yancey called the agents "field faculty."

He said that he is looking forward to the "challenge of broader responsibilities" but that he has enjoyed his stay in the Greenville area tremendously.

"This has been a tremendous experience working in Pitt County," said Yancey.

"Pitt County is very fortunate in having public officials, agencies and department heads that work together well."

He added that it will probably be sometime in February before a new county chairman is selected to replace him. Meanwhile, an acting chairman will be chosen to handle the interim duties.

Yancey takes on his new position Jan. 1, 1978.

He and his family came to Pitt County in 1969 from Johnston County where he was an agricultural agent. Yancey is originally from Mebane.

He graduated from North Carolina State University in 1956 with a Bachelor of Science in Animal Science and received his Masters in Adult Education in 1969. He and his wife Betty have three children: Bett, a sophomore at Greensboro College; Elaine, a senior at Rose High School; and Edwin, a sophomore at Rose High School.

Task Force Seeks Easing Steel Industry's Strain

A Review High Score By Playhouse Show

Tonight at 8:15 in McGinnis Auditorium on campus is the final performance of the East Carolina Playhouse production of Thornton Wilder's Skin of Our Teeth.

The Playhouse has scored high again in this second offering of the current season, a play in which Wilder's basically absurdist comedy-drama deals with the hardships and struggles of man. It ends leaving the audience pondering the fate of mankind.

The play opens with narrated film footage of natural disasters, then fades into the living room of the Antrobus family. In the first act, they are suffering through below-zero temperature in the month of August. The family, including a maid and pets (a dinosaur and a mammoth) as well as an invasion of refugees, fight the cold in front of the Antrobus' fire.

As Mr. and Mrs. Antrobus, John Ribbons and Hazel Stapleton gave fine performances. Holly Jerome and Mary Carter are commendable as the Antrobus children, Henry and Gladys. The finest performance is that of Shauna

Holmes as Sabina, the Antrobus' maid.

The character of Sabina is an interesting one and calls for her to frequently step out of character and speak directly to the audience. As the liaison between the playwright and the audience she establishes rapport with the listeners as she speaks of her disgust with the play and with man's plight in general.

Man against God is the theme of the second act, with the Antrobus family at an amusement park. Here are exotic dancers, clowns, fortune tellers, and organization members labeled Mammals, Reptiles, and Insects.

Veteran Playhouse actress Anita Brehm is impressive as the fortune teller. In an allusion to the flood and Noah's Ark, she instructs spectators to gather animals two-by-two and flee from the approaching storm.

Again, the Antrobus' and their entourage narrowly escape disaster.

The third act opens at the end of World War II and finds Mr. Antrobus and his son Henry in the role of enemies, members of opposing forces — man against man. Peace follows in a moving scene in which the father and son analyze each other's needs and motives.

Sabina remarks in the first act, "We (mankind) survived the Depression by the skin of our teeth," and at the play's end she stops and remarks that the pattern of life illustrated here is continuous and that the play's ending has yet to be written.

The Playhouse has done an exceptional job with material that is difficult to perform. A long and at times drawn out work, it has received a good, generally absorbing interpretation from Playhouse members under Ella Gerber's direction.

Edward Haynes' sets, particularly the amusement park set in Act 2, are imaginative.

The production, which opened December 3, provides a thought-provoking and stimulating evening of theater.

Wood Fuel Tests Ahead

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state will begin experimenting soon with the use of low-grade timber as a cheap replacement for natural gas or oil now used to heat industrial boilers.

Gov. Jim Hunt said Monday that the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development was setting up a pilot program to show that wood could be used effectively as an industrial fuel.

Hunt said it had been estimated that about 7 percent of the state's current oil consumption for boiler firing could be replaced each year with low-grade wood, without harming the state's commercial forests.

That amounts to 24 million barrels of oil. Hunt said the state's economy would get a $200 boost from the use of wood, including jobs for 5,000 additional loggers. There are only 3,000 in the state now.

By RICHARD E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential task force seeking to bolster the troubled steel industry is recommending ways to increase industry earnings by $900 million, measures which could raise import prices and, in turn, cost consumers more.

The impact would be on just about everything made of steel. But the task force says the increases would not be unduly large.

The task force, headed by Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon, was formally presenting its recommendations to Carter today. A Carter aide said Monday night that Carter had not decided whether to follow them.

Included among the recommendations were a system of "reference prices" which would trigger defenses against dumping of cut-rate foreign steel on U.S. markets, loan guarantees for the domestic steel industry, quicker industry tax writeoffs and a review of environmental protection standards.

Carter formed the task force to deal with the industry's problems. Sagging profits have led the steel industry to close a number of plants. The closings have resulted in some 19,000 recent layoffs, 10,000 in Pennsylvania alone in the last three months.

This year's earnings for steel producers are likely to be among the worst since World War II.

Reaction to advance word on the substance of the task force report has been cautious. "It is like taking an aspirin," said Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania. "Your head might feel better, but it wouldn't get to the cause of the problem."

The Solomon report says imports, which currently account for about 20 percent of the U.S. market, would be cut to about 14 percent under its recommendations. It forecast a six million ton increase in domestic output.

That could be done, the report said, without triggering unduly large price increases, although it is aimed in part at ending artificially low prices caused by cheap foreign steel.

"The increased volume should raise industry earnings by $900 million," the report said, "and result in the employment of 25,000 or more steelworkers than would be the case if current conditions continued."

The plan also contains $20 million in aid for steel communities where thousands of workers have been laid off.

Under the system of "reference prices," the administration would impose penalty tariffs on foreign producers who sell steel in the United States for less than an established minimum.

The minimum would be based on the production and transportation costs of Japanese steelmakers, the most efficient producers in the world.

The task force also recommended cutting the industry's depreciation allowance timetable from 18 years to 15 years.

Farm Work Survey Set

Information about farm work done for pay during the past year and about migratory farm work will be collected by the Bureau of the Census in this area.

Interviewers who will be visiting a sample of households here during the week of Dec. 12-17 are Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Rt. 1, Grimesland and Mrs. Marjorie J. Holland of New Bern.

The farm work questions are in addition to the ones asked regularly in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted by the Bureau for the U. S. Department of Labor. Results of this survey are prime indicators of the economic health of the country.

In October, the survey indicated that of the 98.1 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 91.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7 percent, up from 6.9 percent in September, but substantially below the recession peak of 8.9 percent reached in the second quarter of 1975.

Christmas Cards Show New Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year Santa was on the tennis court. Now he's driving a moped. These are among the changing scenes depicted on this year's Christmas cards. But the biggest change is a trend toward greeting cards with religious themes, reports the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

"There's a return to the traditional," said Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the 52-member association, who views Christmas greeting cards as reflecting patterns of modern living.

"The charismatic movement within the church may be a contributing factor to this change," he said. "Perhaps it's the mode of piety as exemplified by the family of President Carter or the fact that many religious denominations are reporting increases in church attendance. These lifestyles are ultimately reflected by the artists and writers of greeting cards."

The dominant religious themes this year are the nativity, Madonna and Child and the tableau of the wise men at the manger, he said.

Don't count Santa out, however, Cooper cautions. That jolly emissary from the North Pole is still depicted as a golfer and tennis buff on many greeting cards. One card has Santa extending a New Year's greeting that is "double-fault free!"

On cards that appeal to those in specific vocations, Santa is shown as a stock broker, real estate rental agent and conductor of a symphonic orchestra. He is also seen as a chef and gourmet, which may be appropriate, Cooper points out, since food and drink were the subject of the first-known Christmas card, a hand-colored lithograph distributed in London in 1846.

Animal lovers should be pleased with this year's selection of greeting cards, he adds. Dogs, cats, birds, lions and lambs abound — to say nothing of reindeer, all of whose antlers seem to be festooned with baubles and bows.

Hispanic and black greeting cards tend to stress the solidarity of family and the value of religion in everyday living, according to Cooper.

Among the leading subjects of cards which show well-known landmarks are Manhattan's World Trade Center, Chicago's Lake Shore Drive and San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge.

Parties Should Be Scheduled Better

By Abigail Van Buren
1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my boss gave a Christmas cocktail party at his home, followed by a dinner party immediately afterward.

Only a few of the cocktail party guests were invited to the dinner. When it was time for dinner, the boss didn't want the uninvited guests to know, so he flashed the lights off and on several times to get everyone to leave.

That was rather embarrassing. There must be a more subtle way. Any suggestions?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: There is no subtle way to "get everyone to leave." The gracious host patiently allows a party to die a natural death. Your boss should schedule his dinner party on another evening.

DEAR ABBY: A 34-year-old woman, earning a top salary as an executive, wrote that she's hooked on a 28-year-old guy who's living with her and admits that he's fooling around with other women while she's at work.

She says he can't hold a job because he hates to get up in the morning. Meanwhile, he wants to marry her, but she's "torn" because all her friends tell her to kick him out.

She turns to you for advice, and you tell her not to marry him—and you call him a "moocher." Why? Women have been doing exactly what he's doing for centuries and nobody calls THEM moochers.

How come?

MS. EQUAL RIGHTS

DEAR MS.: I called him a moocher because he IS a moocher. And a woman who sleeps until noon and sponges off a man is also a moocher. I agree with her friends. She should kick him out.

Laziness can be overlooked, but fooling around, never!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from MEDICAL SECRETARY really got to me. She's "ready to scream" because patients bring friends, kids and grandma along, taking up the precious chairs in the doctor's waiting room.

Here's what you should have told MEDICAL SECRETARY for me:

"I brought the extra kid along because I live 70 miles round trip from the doctor's office and the kid has an appointment with another doctor this afternoon. I need to save time and gas, and I can't take time off from my job every day and still pay the doctor's bill.

Also, that wasn't "grandma" I had with me. She's a little old lady who lives in a nursing home, and that was her first trip anywhere in three months. I take her out whenever I can because no one else does.

And instead of beefing about your crowded waiting room, how about doing a better job scheduling patients so we won't have to wait for two hours? If the doctor would take us on time, his waiting room wouldn't always be short of chairs.

Finally, if crowded waiting rooms upset you so much, maybe you'd better find a job that suits you better before you have a stroke and find yourself on the other side of the waiting room desk."

There, I feel better now.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If kids are growing up too fast these days, you can't put all the blame on television.

A trio of kids in California thought they'd make a little mad money killing ground moles with their "secret formula" and came face to face with bureaucracy.

It reminds me of the woman who wrote me a few years ago from a small town in the Midwest. She was going to stage a garage sale. No big deal . . . just some stuff that would bring her daughter's bedroom up to health standards once again . . . a black light that makes things glow in the dark, a guitar slightly warped, several hair dryers, an old record player and an exercise rope (never used).

She was informed she needed a license at the cost of $1.00. The clerk at the town hall told her to see the building inspector. He located her property on the town map and filled out a permit, listing things she could not sell.

She was guided to another office, where the document was notarized, and duly warned that she must give the sale on the date listed.

The town building inspector then escorted her to police headquarters where an officer wanted to make sure she realized the license had to be in a conspicuous place. She told him she would put it on the tree on her front lawn. The officer wanted to know if the tree was indeed on her property or was close enough to the curb to be a town tree because if it was she couldn't use it.

She told him that last winter when a large branch fell down in a storm and she called the police she was told it definitely was HER tree.

She figured it would only be a matter of time before the zoning commission came down on her for doing business in a residential area . . . Food and Drug to inspect her coffee . . . Price Control for her merchandise . . . Environmental Protection Agency for campers who parked outside her door all night . . . Equal Opportunity protesting lack of minorities working the garage . . . anti-trust suit for her monopoly of her own garage . . . IRS officers questioning her income . . . wages to workers plus their Social Security benefits and retirement plan . . . and the Sierra Club for defacing the tree by nailing a permit to it.

And to think, three kids thought that a "mountain out of a molehill" was just a dumb saying.

A Trend To Part-Time Work

Many people, highly trained in various professions yearn for part time positions.

Money magazine says there is a trend in this direction.

In a recent article the magazine says that part time positions — defined as less than 35 hours per week — have been growing at twice the rate of the full-time labor force.

Some states now have part time government positions and Congress is working on a bill that could place part time workers in 10 percent of the federal jobs.

Part time workers are efficient, the magazine says citing a New York study which shows less turnover, more productivity and lower absenteeism for part timers as compared to full time workers.

Some businessmen dislike the trend, however. More part timers mean more supervisors, more office space and more costly benefits.

Eli Ginzberg, professor of economics at Columbia and chairman of the government's National Commission for Manpower Policy, said, "I am inclined to think serious work is full-time work. People of capacity don't want to work part time."

Nevertheless there are people who for various reasons wish to work in their chosen professions without holding down full time jobs.

The trend towards these part time positions in government and business seems to be upward.

Looking Forward To Productive Years

Mayor Percy Cox took office for a second term, joined by veteran council members John Howard, Clarence Gray, Millie McGrath and Joe Taft. Two new members, Charles Vincent and Judy Greene became a part of the council.

We look forward to two productive years as the council comes to grips with the major problems which confront the city.

Debate Test Scores Uses

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Absolute openness and honesty in revealing to the public results of all-student testing and the high school competency tests were urged upon educators from across North Carolina at a recent two-day seminar in Raleigh.

But such a policy, warned some, could result in teacher revolt; particularly if test scores were used to publicly compare individual teachers.

It was obvious from discussions during the sessions involving local school superintendents, administrators, teachers, and public information personnel that there is less than wholehearted unanimous support for the testing program to be launched in the spring.

Most schools have been testing students all along. Most have not, however, used standardized tests so that results can be intelligently compared regionally, nationally, and between local school units, schools within a local unit, and even classrooms within local schools. Only rarely have test scores been made public.

No Individuals

The new state law adopted by the 1977 General Assembly as a major part of Gov. James B. Hunt's reform of public school approach, forbids release of individual student test scores.

And it states specifically that the intent of the law is not to allow comparisons of teachers. Those at the seminar agreed, however, that the result will be exactly such a comparison.

And that appeared to raise the most strenuous objections. Unless those comparing test results understand that student composition will affect results, along with numerous other factors, some teachers may find themselves unfairly criticized.

There was also general agreement that the first year's scores will serve little more than to establish a base line for future measurement; and that the scores would ultimately tend to point out incompetency.

Whether test results are used to help single out specific problems and to spotlight singular successes will largely depend upon local school leadership. Top state officials repeatedly urged that the public be involved in the process openly and with the attitude that the total community should be alerted to problems and approaches to solutions so that, together, educators and school patrons can work toward solutions.

NOBLITT

Still it was evident during the discussion groups that some local school people simply don't want to involve the public in this process. Some insisted on a "local option" approach to supplying test results from Raleigh—let the local units decide which parts of the scores they wish to receive and thereby reveal to the local people.

No Options

State officials from Superintendent A. Craig Phillips on down rejected that notion. All school units will receive all the information. Those which choose to suppress any of the data will have to handle that on their own without being able to "blame" Raleigh.

Over and over again, however, the local educators were urged to provide all of the information to the public along with reasonable explanations and interpretations to help people understand... and to do all of that in plain, clear English rather than bureaucratic jargon.

Several local superintendents who have followed a policy of providing similar test data to the public in the past insisted that results warranted the effort, increasing public interest, involvement and support in the schools.

Tests on basics will be given in the spring to grades one, two, three, six, and nine; and a minimum competency test will be given to high school tenth-graders. Results are supposed to be available before school is out next summer.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Jas. Schlesinger's Ploy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Angry protests from liberal Congressmen over Energy Secretary James Schlesinger's public speculation about compromising the energy bill were intentionally provoked to show the oil industry and conservatives in Congress how much trouble he has from the liberals.

Indeed, some anti-Schlesinger comments from Capitol Hill were all but orchestrated, coming from Congressmen alerted to Schlesinger's strategy in advance. All this emphasizes his tireless message to the oilmen: we are your friends and this bill is your best chance for survival; the alternative to us are the "haters" on the left who would like to nationalize your industry.

"I couldn't believe what Schlesinger was doing," a Senate insider supporting the Carter bill told us. "But now, a week later, I guess it didn't do any harm." Schlesinger believes the furor his press conference kicked off helped move Senate-House negotiations off dead center; some critics in Congress privately agree.

At his Nov. 21 press conference, Schlesinger asserted the administration's willingness to accept higher gas and oil prices to get an energy bill. That filled the air with congressional charges of sell-out. Nobody needed to prompt criticism from Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut ("tactical and strategic blunder") and other liberals.

But there were pre-press conference discussions with others, including the influential Rep. Thomas Ludlow Ashley of Ohio, key House negotiator on energy. Ashley declared that, "damn it," it wasn't "helpful" for Schlesinger "to publicly pull back from what we fought so hard to win." A week later, a columnist reported that Ashley's

"fury" induced by Schlesinger "still simmers."

Schlesinger operatives were then able to tell big oil: if this is how reasonably Lud Ashley reacts to compromise, you can appreciate our problem and you ought to help us get Republican support.

In fact, however, Ashley is one of Schlesinger's staunchest allies in Capitol Hill. Far from "fury," he privately felt the press conference was helpful.

Quite apart from posturing, the Carter energy program's problems on the left are formidable. Administration officials view what they call "liberal haters" as the major obstacle to compromise, typified by New York's Rep. Richard Ottinger in the House and Ohio's Howard Metzenbaum in the Senate.

Waldheim's Boo-Boo

Minutes after United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim jumped dramatically onto the Mideast stage by proposing a UN-sponsored "conference," mild-mannered Esmel Abdel Meguid, the astute Egyptian delegate, privately lectured him in highly unusual fashion.

Protesting that Waldheim's proposal (perceived by other delegates as grandstanding) was an affront to Egypt and President Anwar Sadat's call for a Cairo Mideast conference, Meguid demanded of Waldheim: "Since you spent last evening with me (at a dinner party), why did you not bring up this matter then?"

Waldheim never mentioned his proposed UN meeting of the Arab-Israeli principals to shore up plans for reconvening the Geneva conference (following the wholesale boycotting of Sadat's conference). Dr. Meguid's reaction was paralleled by the response of Israel's deputy delegate, Pinhas Eliav, who flatly rejected Waldheim's invitation.

Reports that Waldheim's initiative had the secret backing of the U.S. are inaccurate. He informed Secretary of State Cyrus Vance Nov. 28, but got no encouragement. However, to protect his flank from pre-ature Egyptian attack, he carefully concealed his plan from Meguid.

Strength For Today

OLD VALUES

Sometimes in our reading of the Bible we encounter certain characters who appear to be dull and rather ineffective. Isaac was one of these. He suffered from being the son of a great father, and the father of a distinguished son.

His greatest achievement was to reopen the wells of water which Abraham his father had dug and which the Philistines "had stopped and filled with earth."

That was a significant accomplishment because the old wells are often good—much more so than we will admit. Much of our finest art, literature, and music is very old. The greatest book ever written, the Bible, was composed from 1900 to 3000 years ago.

Prayer is one of the oldest wells of religion, and still one of the most vital. Christ as teacher, Lord, and Savior may appear to be a very ancient figure, but who has ever displaced him in the thoughts and affections of mankind?

Right To Vote Ignored

WASHINGTON — In what used to be called "civics", every American school child once was taught the meaning of the right to vote: It was the most precious of our political rights. It was what distinguished free societies from totalitarian societies. It was the very essence of a republican form of government. And so on.

A study has just come to hand that prompts a melancholy question: What do they teach in the civics classrooms today? What has become of this precious right to vote? Fewer and fewer people seem to care.

The Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, a bipartisan research organization, worked up some figures on some of last month's more notable elections. The analysis covers gubernatorial elections in New Jersey and Virginia; it also covers mayoralty elections in Atlanta, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Minneapolis, New York and Pittsburgh. levels of voter participation increased sharply in Virginia. Four years ago, 50.8 percent of the registered voters turned out; last month that figure leaped to 62.6 percent. In Detroit, Minneapolis and New York, gains of two or three points were recorded.

With those few exceptions, the levels of voter participation went down, down, down. For the past two decades, these levels have been going down, down, down. Nothing has seemed to make any difference. Poll taxes were abolished by constitutional amendment in 1964. The Voting Rights Act came along in 1965. Eighteen-year-olds got the vote in 1971. Various states began to experiment with postcard registration and election day registration. The American people, by and large, have responded to these measures — and to many other measures intended to stimulate voting — with a massive indifference.

New Jersey had a hot race for governor in November. Eight years ago, 73.1 percent of the state's registered voters participated. Four years ago, 59.9 percent turned out. Last month saw 55.7 percent.

The municipal declines were as marked. Atlanta turned out 60.9 percent of her registered voters four years ago, only 42.4 percent last month. In Louisville, the drop was from 74 to 46.7. Cleveland fell off from 71.1 to 66.8, despite the interest engendered by the city's ordeal with its public schools.

In New York City, the percentage of registered voters who actually voted for mayor increased from 47.6 four years ago to 49.2 last month, but the gain was nothing to brag about. In 1961, the Big Apple voted 76.2 percent of its registrants; in 1965 the level reached 80.8 percent, and in 1969 a remarkable 81.2 percent — the highest in any of the cities examined in the voting study.

What has turned off the voters in New York?

The Committee for the Study of the American Electorate undertook an examination into voter apathy in 1976. That particular survey had to do with the presidential election, but some of the findings may carry over to state and municipal elections as well.

In the Carter-Ford election, it will be recalled, only 54.4 percent of the eligible adults bothered to vote. Put another way, 68.5 million persons who might have voted were no-shows at the polls. Who were these non-voters? A survey found that 74 percent were white, 20 percent were in upper income brackets, 23 percent lived in the suburbs, and a majority were over the age of 35.

Why didn't they vote? The study indicated that 60-odd percent of the non-voters distrust the government in Washington, believe that quite a few of the people running the government are a "little crooked", and believe that Washington "is pretty much run by a few big interests." On a confidence rating of 13 major institutions, the two

Some Require A Call

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Each weekday morning while most of Raleigh is washing its face and brushing its teeth for another working day, there are a sluggish few whose dreams are apparently too sweet to leave. They can't get up.

"Their alarm clocks go off and they keep right on sleeping. They wake up later and their alarm clock is just run down," says Hilda Patterson, who understands perfectly.

Mrs. Patterson is president of a phone pager company which offers a wake-up service. For $5 a month her minions will ring any telephone off the hook at any time of day or night until somebody wakes up and answers it.

The 66 sleepy heads on her list include radio announcers, newspaper delivery persons, wrecking truck drivers and businessmen of all types. There's even a Chapel Hill nurse who pays for a daily long distance wake-up call because nothing else works.

Why can't they get themselves up on time? Mrs. Patterson doesn't know.

Scientists are investigating this and other sleep-related puzzles, but their answers aren't much more illuminating than Mrs. Patterson's.

"Some people just don't like to get up in the morning," shrugged Dr. Tom LeVere of the North Carolina State University psychology department. "We don't understand it. I don't understand it. Maybe somebody else understands it. I wish they'd tell me."

LeVere actually has considerably more to show than this for his study and research. It is

Other Editors Say Nothing Changed

(Goldboro News-Argus)

Nothing has changed.

A patient at O'Berry Center was given cleaning fluid which had been put in a container designated for prune juice.

The patient survived but remains hospitalized.

An investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation concludes that the employee who put the cleaning material in the juice container was "cutting corners".

It was easier to do that than to unlock a closet.

The employee has been fired.

It is the same pattern followed for years at O'Berry and Cherry Hospital.

The system purges itself of the offender of the moment and holds up its lily white hands. "Look," the system seems to say to the public, "now we are clean."

The system is not clean.

While hundreds of hard-working, concerned and dedicated people hold the system together and minister to its pathetic charges, the basic problem remains yet to surface, yet to be purged.

Indeed, the real problem seems as tightly locked within the system as the patients themselves. And perhaps, will be an innocent and helpless patient should weigh on the conscience of every citizen.

The time for a thorough and independent investigation and analysis is long, long overdue.

Vulnerable To Capital Losses

By JOHN CUNIFF
(AP Business Analyst)

NEW YORK (AP) — Because they read the big interest rate figures but not the small print, a lot of preferred stock owners could be vulnerable to capital losses any one of these days.

That is the opinion of some Wall Street analysts, especially those at Paine Webber, who observe that many such securities could be called in soon — at prices less than the current market value.

Many such stocks have been selling at high prices because investors are eager to obtain the "guaranteed" high dividends, in some instances as much as 14 percent.

But that assurance of continued payments might not be what they think it is, as some preferred stockholders have already learned.

Holders of Rochester Gas & Electric 11 percent preferreds recently learned their stock was being recalled, even though some of them thought it could not be done until 1985. Belatedly reading the fine print, they learned the truth.

Many preferred stocks, mainly those of utilities, are sold with the guarantee that within a stated period they will not be recalled for cash or refunded through issuance of another preferred stock at a lower dividend rate.

Such guarantees are inducements to invest. A purchaser feels more secure if he knows he will be receiving a stated return for a specific time. And in 1974 or thereabouts they eagerly sought that guarantee.

At the time, interest rates were at their highest level this century. The prime rate was 12 percent. Preferred stocks, which offer higher returns even than bonds, became a popular vehicle for riding the crest.

But that fine print. True, it did offer a guarantee — against refunding the preferred stock with equal or senior securities, such as lower interest bonds or another issue of preferred stock.

What was missing from the understanding of buyers was the notation that their stock could be refunded by an issue of junior securities, such as common stock or preference stock.

And that is just what is planned for the Rochester Gas & Electric 11s. Long Island lighting has indicated it plans to refund its 13s. Duquesne Light, Northern Indiana Public Service and Potomac Electric Power have cut their preferred shares outstanding.

More utilities seem destined to go that route in order to lower their financing costs.

Why continue to pay double digit interest rates when you can refund and get into the single numbers?

In fact, that very question is sometimes asked by state regulatory commissions, who believe that customer prices can be maintained at lower levels if the utilities refinance at current market rates.

While the utilities generally cannot simply replace their high-paying stocks with comparable issues at lower rates, there appears to be nothing to prevent them from refunding with lower-ranked securities.

Generally speaking, preferred stockholders who think they have a guarantee against their shares being recalled — at prices lower than the prevailing market price — haven't got it.

In many instances their shares can be substituted for preference or common shares.

FDA Will Appeal Court Order Ending Laetrile Restriction

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says it almost certainly will appeal a judge's order striking down federal restrictions on Laetrile.

"The FDA contends that Laetrile should be illegal to interstate commerce (and) and we would fully expect to prevail on appeal. ... Our case is sound," an FDA spokesman said Monday night. Earlier Monday, a U.S. district judge in Oklahoma City issued a permanent injunction forbidding the agency from enforcing its ban on interstate movement of the controversial substance, used by cancer patients. Judge Luther Bohanon said the ban was arbitrary and capricious and places a "needless hardship and expense" on cancer patients. FDA spokesman Jack Walden said the agency had not fully reviewed Bohanon's decision. "But if what we have heard is true, we almost assuredly will recommend an appeal."

extensive campaign against Laetrile, and only last week issued a bulletin to the nation's physicians urging further study to determine if cancer patients could die from cyanide poisoning caused by the substance. Bohanon noted that there are many highly educated doctors and scientists among Laetrile's supporters. "To deem such advocacy 'quackery' distorts the serious issues posed by Laetrile's prominence and requires disregarding considerable expertise mustered on the drug's behalf," his order said.

"This would seem to be a ruling against the federal law which requires that a drug be safe and effective before it can be marketed in this country," Walden said. But Dr. John A. Richardson, an author and lecturer in favor of Laetrile usage, hailed Bohanon's ruling as "a really great victory for the grassroots struggle, the integrity of the court system and our republic."

Bohanon said Laetrile has been in use in this country long enough to be exempt from the FDA's so-called "new drug" regulations.

But the FDA maintains that the substance is not exempt. "We contend that Laetrile was not introduced and used in its present form and for its present purpose prior to 1962, which would have exempted it under the law," he said.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Advocates claim Laetrile is an effective cancer treatment. The FDA and most of the medical establishment in this country contend there is no such proof.

The FDA has been waging an

Progress Reviewed On Martin County Field

WILLIAMSTON — Phase I of the development of the athletic field at Roanoke High School in western Martin County was reviewed Monday at the December meeting of the Martin County Board of Education. The status report shows work now involved in the initial phase. This includes grading, underground drainage and waterworks.

Action was also taken to authorize securing an architect to begin work on Phase 2 of the field — lighting, seeding and fencing.

Martin County Schools Superintendent Eugene Rogers informed the board that the county commissioners will help in funding a van for handicapped students, one hoped to be acquired soon after the first of the year.

A change in the school calendar reschedules the opening of school after the Christmas holidays for January 3 instead of January 2 as originally scheduled. The make up of the extra day of holiday will be on January 24.

In one view, the low levels of participation might indicate a general public satisfaction with the course of government. After all, when the people are determined to throw the rascals out — or to prevent an especially undesirable candidate from getting in — the people will turn out in droves. That is what happened in Virginia last month.

But I doubt that any such inference of satisfaction validly can be drawn. The trouble is, if I am not mistaken, that the people widely feel that their vote simply doesn't matter. Until they discover that votes do indeed matter, the percentage levels will keep sliding down.

Board members voted to sell the property that is the site of the former Everetts School.

Pacemakers Are Put Into Dogs

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Veterinary cardiologists and surgeons now implant new and used pacemakers in dogs.

Pacemakers generally are implanted in humans who have had heart attacks or who have abnormal heart rhythms.

possible, he concedes, that the key to Mrs. Patterson's wake-up business lies somewhere in the 90 minute cycles which scientists have discovered in human energy levels.

"Every 90 minutes there is a change in the body's basic rest-activity cycle," he said. "During sleep, if a person's wake-up time happens to come during the low part of the cycle, then it will be harder to wake them up than in the high part."

But LeVere has to admit that this and other theories about sleep are really educated guesses.

"We don't even know why people have to sleep in the first place," LeVere said. "That business about giving the body time to clear away its wastes is an old wives tale. You can keep people awake as much as 48 hours and there's very little physiological change."

Frye, secretary of the council on foreign relations, suddenly appeared as his adviser on strategic arms. Frye spread word that he had the ear of the possible 1980 Republican presidential nominee.

That raised right-wing concern that Frye would eclipse the scholarly Dr. Fred Ikle, disarmament agency director of Nixon-Ford days who is also advising Baker. Those fears escalated when a hard-line SALT speech prepared for Baker was undelivered. Nevertheless, Baker told us that the neutrality he professes on the Panama Canal treaties does not apply to SALT. "I haven't got a neutral bone in my body on this issue," he said, adding that the Carter administration may be "giving away the store." Baker talked of "many things I disagree with Alton on," especially Frye's contention that a three-year limitation on the U.S. cruise missile need not be permanent.

Why, then, consult with Frye? Apart from being a fellow Tennessean, Baker told us: "I want to know what the other folks are thinking." That may be the source of Baker's strength — but also of the profound suspicions he always generates.

Many financial institutions offer Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) for people without a qualified retirement plan. Any IRA is good business, but, they're complicated, so it's hard to figure out whose is best.

At NCNB, we think that you'll be hard-pressed to find one with all the advantages of ours.

In the first place, the NCNB IRA, with a four or ten-year maturity, currently pays 7-3/4% annual interest.

And that's not all. At NCNB, that 7-3/4% interest is compounded daily and credited quarterly.

Secondly, with each deposit, we guarantee the rate being offered for your choice of four or ten years. (Many IRAs offer 3 years or less.)

And, right now, we charge no administrative fees or service charges. (Many IRAs do.)

Another Judge To Preside Over Wallace Divorce Suits Action

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It now is up to the Montgomery circuit court to choose another judge to preside in the trial of divorce suits filed by Gov. George C. Wallace and his wife, Cornelia.

The original judge, Family Court Judge John W. Davis III, was disqualified Monday by the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals. Although the appellate court said Davis should disqualify himself to avoid any "any appearance of partiality," it did not rule on whether trial of the divorce suits should be open to the public.

The appellate court's ruling came in response to petitions filed by Mrs. Wallace's attorneys after Davis refused to step down from the case and to conduct the divorce proceedings in open court.

Mrs. Wallace's attorneys claimed that Davis was biased because:

—He was originally appointed to the bench by Wallace, although he later was elected to the post.

—The judge's father, Dr. John W. Davis Jr., is a personal friend and political supporter of the governor. Dr. Davis also treated Wallace.

—The judge's father-in-law, Montgomery realtor Paul Corwin, also is a friend and political backer of Wallace and has done business with the state during Wallace's administration.

Davis rejected the claims of bias and prejudice. But the appellate court said in a decision written by Judge Richard Holmes that "this appearance of partiality does not reassure a public already skeptical of judges, lawyers and the legal system."

The court's decision cited the Alabama Canons of Judicial Ethics which say that a judge "should disqualify himself in a proceeding in which...his impartiality might reasonably be questioned."

And in this case, said the court, the facts create "an impression that his impartiality might reasonably be questioned."

The court's decision leaves the choice of a new judge up to the circuit court, of which the family court is a part.

It is at the circuit court level that the question of whether the divorce proceedings will be conducted publicly also must be raised. The appellate court said the question of an open trial was raised too late against Davis because he had already ruled that the proceedings would be held behind closed doors.

Court officials said, however, that when the case is assigned to a new judge, Mrs. Wallace's attorneys can ask immediately for an order to require an open trial.

Wallace, 58, filed for divorce Sept. 6, citing an "incompatibility of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown" of his six-year old marriage.

Six days later, Mrs. Wallace, 38, charged in a countersuit that her husband, left partially paralyzed from a 1972 assassination attempt, committed "actual violence and cruelty on her person."

Her suit also accused the governor of failing to provide her with enough money to meet "even the basic needs" of a wife.

Wallace subsequently denied both accusations.

Chief Adviser's Stroke May Delay Tax Cut Plans

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate energy conferees have begun a race against time to determine if they can negotiate a compromise natural gas pricing policy before Congress goes home for Christmas.

Both supporters and opponents of President Carter's plan for continued regulation of natural gas held secret strategy sessions Monday, but there was no indication that a stalemate would be broken.

Some Senate members of the conference committee said there is a possibility the most controversial elements of the president's energy plan would be abandoned for now and taken up again in 1978.

The House has approved Carter's proposal to raise the current $1.46 price ceiling per thousand cubic feet of gas to $1.75. The proposal also would extend federal controls to internal consumption in producing states like Louisiana and Texas, where 40 percent of the fuel is consumed at higher prices than is paid by the rest of the nation.

House members of the conference panel voted 15-8 on Monday to sustain the House version of the natural gas bill.

Senate members responded with a 9-9 vote upholding the Senate's narrow decision for deregulating natural gas prices, a policy long urged by the oil and natural gas industry.

Either move would raise prices for homeowners. But critics of deregulation say the Senate version would give the industry enormous profits at the expense of consumers whose heating and cooking bills would rise sharply.

The two opposing groups of senators met behind closed doors Monday and worked out compromise proposals they planned to propose to one another today.

Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., a member of the anti-deregulation group, said the compromise proposal to be made today would permit a slight increase in the proposed $1.75 price ceiling with an expanded definition of what kinds of new gas reserves would be covered.

Nine senators who support deregulation also worked out a fresh proposal which sources said would lift federal price controls, but much later than the combination two-and five-year plan now included in the Senate bill.

Because the House conferees are heavily weighted in support of the president's plan, the pressure for compromise is focused most on the Senate members. Nonetheless, conference committee chairman Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., also met privately with other House members to plan strategy.

Also scheduled to meet today are members of a second conference panel working on the tax portion of the energy plan.

Its chairman, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., has indicated privately, however, that no major work will be done on energy taxes until the natural gas question has been settled by the second panel.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast today from the northern Rockies into the northern and central Plains and for the St. Lawrence Valley and northern New England. Mild to warm weather is expected from the southern Rockies to Texas but most of the country is due to be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The cold front that stalled overnight in the mountains began moving today across North Carolina and it was accompanied by slowly falling temperatures.

Under fair skies tonight, temperatures are expected to range from 10 to 15 degrees in the mountains and up to the 40s along the coast. High readings Wednesday will range from the 20s in the northwest mountains to the 40s along the coast. Strong winds will make it feel even colder.

A travelers advisory was in effect for the mountains today, with snow accumulations of one to three inches likely. Schools were closed for the day in Madison County because of snow.

A line of thunderstorms marched across the state Monday from the mountains to the coast and temperatures warmed to the 60s and low 70s. Low readings this morning ranged from the 40s to the 60s, but by evening there should be a noticeable difference as the cold front takes command.

UNC And HEW Accord Reached

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The state university system has apparently reached agreement with the federal government over admission quotas for blacks, but it remains to be seen whether the deal will hold up in court.

David C. Tatel, director of HEW's Office of Civil Rights, confirmed the agreement in a letter mailed Monday to Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C.

"In other words, no finding of non-compliance against the university will be made if a minority-recruitment goal is not met," Tatel wrote, "as long as all good-faith efforts were made to achieve it."

HEW's plan for a 150 percent increase, rejected as impossible by Friday and other officials, was the result of a federal court order in a suit by the NAACP's Legal Defense and Education Fund.

The suit charged HEW with failing to enforce the Civil Rights Act of 1964 by withholding federal funds from southern university systems that were not integrating quickly enough.

U.S. District Judge John A. Pratt must approve any compromise worked out by UNC and HEW.

Cancer Risks In Leprosy Drug

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A drug tested on thousands of American soldiers in Vietnam for its effects on malaria is still the best treatment for the world's millions of lepers, despite evidence that it causes cancer in laboratory animals, one expert says.

The benefits of the drug, dapsone, and related compounds to lepers outweigh any known cancer risk, say doctors who treat the disease.

In a report Monday, the National Cancer Institute said dapsone has been found to produce cancer in male laboratory rats.

Cancer experts said the test results don't prove that dapsone causes cancer in humans, but do justify following up the medical histories of those who have taken the drug.

Because dapsone proved effective in preventing a severe strain of malaria resistant to standard treatment, the U.S. military used it as part of a medical experiment with tens of thousands of soldiers in South Vietnam.

An Army spokesman told The Associated Press the soldiers and Marines who were given the drug were not told it was being used experimentally.

The spokesman, Maj. David Gardner, added that officials didn't "have the foggiest idea" how many troops took dapsone and to find out would take months of intensive research. The Army used the drug only in Vietnam, he added.

Dr. Robert Jacobson, chief of medicine at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in Carville, La., the only institution in the nation that exclusively treats lepers, said previous studies indicated dapsone might be a mild carcinogen, or cancer-causing agent.

"Dapsone is the parent chemical of sulfone drugs, which are still the No. 1 leprosy treatments throughout the world," Jacobson said in a telephone interview. "There are few alternatives and they have serious side effects." The military tests of dapsone were conducted primarily in the Central Highlands and the area known as I Corps, the five northernmost provinces of the republic. The particularly dangerous form of malaria, called plasmodium falciparum, was believed to be a threat in these areas.

Most troops in Vietnam took a large, orange malaria pill known as chloroquine once a week. In addition, those in the test areas also took daily a small white pill, which contained dapsone.

The Army spokesman said that prior to its use in Vietnam, the drug was approved as an investigational new drug by the Food and Drug Administration. This means the FDA approves it for experimental treatment for a specific disease under controlled conditions.

Wayne Pines, an FDA spokesman, said the only approved use of dapsone in the United States is in leprosy treatment.

The development of dapsone in the early 1940s revolutionized treatment of the infectious, disfiguring and incurable disease by allowing victims to lead almost normal lives without being segregated for life in colonies.

Rising Drug Forgeries

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation is worried about a sharp increase in the number of forged drug prescriptions in North Carolina.

An SBI report released Monday said that in the past prescriptions were forged mainly by drug users who needed them for their own habits.

"However, the soaring 'street' prices of certain pharmaceutical drugs have opened a new market, offering tremendous profits," the report said.

"In general, pharmacists have voiced concern over the matter, but have shown little initiative in abating the problem," the report added.

It said a bottle of 60 Preludin tablets, for example, could be bought for $12 with a prescription. Each tablet could be sold on the street for $15. Preludin is a narcotic.

"This means that if an individual is able to utter one forged prescription daily for five days a week, and resell at retail prices, it is conceivable that he could net $18,000 a month," the report said.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten presented the report Monday to a closed meeting of the Federal-State Law Enforcement Committee.

The report, prepared by SBI director Haywood R. Stirling, also criticized businessmen and law enforcement agencies for their lack of forceful response to white collar crime.

"Too little resources and manpower are available to respond to all the requests for and information of white-collar crime activities in North Carolina," Stirling wrote.

Informant Secret Kept

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The federal government has successfully resisted efforts by defense attorneys to learn the names of informants who tipped agents off about an eight-ton boatload of marijuana headed for Wilmington.

The U.S. Coast Guard seized the 130-foot Sea Crust and her cargo last month, and arrested eight crew members while U.S. Customs agents rounded up nine other suspects in the Wilmington area. All 17 were charged with conspiracy to import marijuana.

Jack Dolan, special agent in charge of the U.S. Customs Service Wilmington office, testified at a hearing that an investigation of several weeks' duration was triggered by informants.

CHICAGO (AP) — He can't see the walls of his hospital room, but Jose Osorio sees clearly in his mind's eye the two youths who abducted him and robbed him of $90, his car — and his sight.

One week ago, Osorio was left for dead in a snowy North Side Chicago alley.

"I told them I had three babies and to let me go," Osorio, a 43-year-old welder, said Monday.

He said he begged the youths: "You've got my money. You've got my car. ... Why don't you let me go?"

Instead of freeing him, the two youths — one holding a gun — told him to lie face down in the snow.

"I heard a pop," Osorio said, and then he felt the bullet slam into his skull. The pair drove off in his car.

"I grabbed a fence and walked up to a house that I knew was nearby and asked for help," Osorio said. "Five minutes later, the police came."

At the hospital, doctors discovered that the bullet had sliced through the optic nerve in both eyes. He will never see again.

Police have arrested Hector Torres, 19, and a 15-year-old youth, both of Chicago, in connection with the shooting. They have been charged with armed robbery and attempted murder. Police believe that a .32-caliber pistol found in Torres' possession may be the one used in the shooting.

Osorio said two youths jumped him as he was getting into his car on the North Side after visiting his three daughters, who live with his ex-wife.

They pushed him into the auto, grabbed his keys and drove off, with one sitting in the back seat, holding a gun on him. After they took his money, he said, they headed into the alley.

Missing A Party

Most members of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club are probably aware why Bob Knapp is missing their Christmas party this year. For those who don't: he's out of the country; in Ecuador.

In a letter from Quito the Greenville man explained he had been helping an amateur friend, Father Robert Erbisti, install communication equipment for a mission, and from there planned to visit Guayaquil to check out some broadcast equipment.

Knapp said he is maintaining schedules with several longtime "ham" friends in Cincinnati, California and Oregon, as well as keeping radio contact with his family in Greenville.

"The antenna for transmitting", he says, "is a makeshift beam made of wire instead of the usual aluminum tubing, but does the job very well."

One small handicap, he notes, is not knowing Spanish, but a friend acts as an interpreter "and it works out fine for me."

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broker market was steady, with supplies moderate, demand good to very good, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price is 34.77 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers picked up at processing plant. Estimated slaughter today 1,349,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices suffered a sharp and broad setback today, depressed in part by the dollar's continued slump in foreign-exchange markets. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 8.23 at 812.80.

Losers overwhelmed gainers by a 5-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The dollar, which registered a 28-month low by one measure on Monday, posted some further declines in Europe today.

Analysts say its steady slide has weighed down the stock market partly because it tends to discourage foreign investors from buying stocks in this country.

Brokers said the market also was unsettled by a bearish forecast from a respected research service, the Bank Credit Analyst, which was quoted in the Wall Street Journal.

The firm said its studies of the flow of money in the banking system turned up negative signals for the outlook for interest rates and stock prices.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Motors lost 1 to 62¼, touching a new low for the year; Eastman Kodak was down ¾ at 49¼; General Electric dropped ½ to 48¾, and Dow Chemical gave up ½ to 26¾.

The NYSE's composite index was down .55 at 51.57, and the American Stock Exchange market value index tumbled 1.29 to 123 even.

Volume on the Big Board reached 11.25 million shares by noontime against 7.77 million at the same point Monday.

Coal Strike ...

depleted. The union wants the new contract to restore a limited right-to-strike over local issues, while the operators want it to specify penalties against miners who take part in unauthorized strikes.

Virtually all mines were closed in West Virginia, Ohio, Virginia, Indiana and Illinois. All union mines, employing about 22,000 miners, were closed in Kentucky.

UMW mines in southwestern Pennsylvania, which employ about 30,000 miners, all shut down. Eastern Pennsylvania mines are also UMW but come another contract and were not expected to strike.

Only two Tennessee mines are represented by the UMW, and they were expected to strike today as well.

Union president Arnold Miller called the strike, although he said it "will bring hardships and human tragedy" to the miners. The union maintains no strike fund, and medical, retirement and death benefits for virtually all the union's 277,000 active and retired members stopped with the coal.

Some union miners said they would picket non-union sites to try to stop mining there. Virginia and Kentucky have substantial non-union mining.

Orie Hunt, president of a union local in eastern Kentucky's Pike County, said miners there plan to shut down all non-union mines in the area. "There's a lot of them and they know it's coming," Hunt said.

Another eastern Kentucky local union officer, Billy Bartley, said local members would probably meet today or Wednesday to decide whether to picket nonunion mines.

Privately, Miller has said he foresees a strike of three months, and sources say the coal industry is prepared to accept a work stoppage of at least a month.

Industry officials say utility plants and steel mills have laid in coal stockpiles large enough to last several weeks, and government officials have indicated a strike would not be the national problem it has been in years past.

In the West, individual contract negotiations have been under way between several companies and the UMW. In Wyoming, where there are three UMW locals, no strike was planned.

Mack Leads Pirates To First Victory

Mack For Two

The Oliver Mack Show finally got going last night, as the junior college transfer led the Pirates of East Carolina to a 102-95 victory over Alderson-Broaddus College.

Mack poured in a season-high 36 points and also pulled off nine rebounds. He had a lot of help from Herb Gray, who didn't start, but came off the bench to score 19 points and lead the contest in rebounding with 16.

The Pirates had to struggle, however, to gain their first victory in three starts. They appeared early in the game to be headed for a blow-out, running away to ten-point lead with 11:17 left at 31-21.

But Alderson-Broaddus, a team that likes to run and gun as much as the Pirates, came roaring back in the late stages of the second half to catch up, take the lead and hold a 52-50 lead at the horn.

East Carolina regained the lead just over four minutes into the second half and held it the rest of the way, despite a tie later, and moved out by as much as nine points down the stretch, although they were never to fully shake the Battlers off.

Mack connected on 12 of 24 shots from the floor, and 12 of 18 free throw attempts for his 36 point total, the best performance by a Pirate so far this year.

Gray hit on seven of 12 floor shots and added five of nine free throw attempts for his 19 points. Two other Pirates were in double figures. Herb Krusen had 12 in just 19 minutes of play, hitting five of eight from the floor and two-for-two from the line. Greg Cornelius made ten points on five field goals.

The victory brought a big smile to the face of rookie coach Larry Gillman. "I don't think we played well," he said, "but we played hard. After two losses, any win feels good. Getting it was like pulling teeth, but the kids played hard in the second half. Alderson-Broaddus just kept coming back at us."

Gillman said that the Pirates got a little careless after they built up their 10 point lead in the first half when they had a chance to break it open.

"But the players made up their minds at halftime that they were going to win it. We were more aggressive, but our shooting (46 per cent) was only so-so and our defense was shaky." The Pirates did go with a man-to-man the entire game.

Gillman commented that the style of basketball played by the Pirates helped to open Mack up for his shooting. Asked if he thought that the game would help to take some of the pressure off Mack, Gillman said, "I don't think he thinks there is any pressure on him, but maybe there was anyway. Hopefully, it's off now."

Asked about the officiating, the coach said he was through trying to referee. "We made a lot of foolish fouls, but I'm not going to comment on the officiating. If I keep that up, I'm liable to get a bad reputation, and I don't want that."

The Pirates jumped into the early lead as Herb Krusen hit on a jumper and Mack drove in for a basket. He was fouled and undercut, and picked up two free throws to run the lead out to 6-0 before A-B finally got on the boards. The Battlers cut the lead back to two, at 8-6 before the Pirates pulled away again on baskets by Mack and Walter Moseley to a 12-6 lead.

That moved out to eight on a shot by Krusen at 16-8, but A-B put on a rally to cut the lead to three at 19-16. But the Pirates pulled away again, and slowly built their lead out to ten, 31-21 with 11:17 left. That came on a free throw by Mack.

After that, however, the Battlers outthrew the Pirates, 13-2, Ronnie Payton leading the way with five points in the stretch. That put A-B into a 34-33 lead with 7:52 left.

But the Pirates tied it and regained the lead on two free throws by Gray, only to see A-B come back again. In the remaining six minutes of the game, the lead changed hands nine times before the Battlers got it on two free throws by Carl Heyward at 52-50 with just one second left.

East Carolina tied it three times in the early minutes of the second half before finally moving back ahead, 58-56, on a shot by Cornelius. A-B came back to regain the lead at 62-60, with 16:52 left.

Gray tied it again at 64-64, and then Moseley hit a jumper with 15:57 left to put the Pirates up, 66-64, and they never trailed again.

A-B managed to tie it up once more, at 72-72, on two free throws by Heyward Graves with 11:24 left.

But Mack put the Pirates back out again, and Don Whitaker hit a jumper and Mack added two more for an 80-72 lead and the Pirates held on after that. A-B came back within two at 80-78, and then to within four at 90-95, but could never knot it up again.

The Battlers put six men in double figures. Chris Yost led the way with 15, while Graves had 14, Payton and Dave Gande each had 13, and Heyward had 10.

East Carolina, now 1-2, travels to College Park, Md., to face the 4-0 University of Maryland Wednesday night. Alderson-Broaddus, now 1-6, returns home to meet West Virginia Tech tonight.

Lady Pirates Crush Appalachian, 90-75

East Carolina University's women pulled off their biggest victory of the young season last night, crushing Appalachian State University, 90-75.

The victory moved the Lady Pirates into a temporary tie for first place in the Division I standings.

The Lady Pirates burst out into an early lead and romped all the way over the Lady Apps, who were coming into the game after a big win of their own over the University of North Carolina.

The contest closed out the pre-holiday home slate for the Lady Bucs, but they have two games left prior to vacation, including a big one Wednesday against the national leader, N.C. State, at Raleigh.

Rosie Thompson paced the way to the win, pouring in 39 points. She connected on 15 of 26 shots from the floor and nine of 12 free throws. She also added 11 rebounds and was credited with nine steals.

"Rose's a tremendous athlete," Coach Catherine Bolton said. "You just can't say enough about her. But all the girls were great. April Ross, Debbie Tripp and Lynn Emerson were able to come off the bench and do the job that needed to be done to secure the win."

Bolton added that the contest was one of the biggest pre-holiday games. "Carolina, Appalachian and East Carolina are vying for second place (behind State). Appalachian beat Carolina and we beat Appalachian.

"We should get better every game. The bench made the difference in the second half. "We've got a ball team," Bolton continued. "We've still got some things to iron out, though."

The Lady Pirates zoomed out to a 53-39 lead in the first half on 48 per cent shooting, while ASU hit only 31 per cent of its shots. ASU came through with 57 per cent of its floor shots in the second half, while the Lady Bucs made but 36 per cent, but the outcome had already been decided.

Besides Thompson's effort, the Pirates had three others in double figures. Debbie Freeman and Marsha Givren each had 12, while Gale Kerbaugh had ten. Freeman led the Pirate rebounding with 17.

Appalachian had five people in double figures. Donna Elrod led with 15, while Alison Hiltz, Carol Almond and Nina Foust each had 14 and Madeline Frose had 10. Frose was the leading rebounder with 12.

Now comes the big game with State, and a victory there would place the ECU women in the national spotlight. "We're planning to go up there loose and have a good time," Bolton said, "and maybe we'll get Sports Illustrated to look at us." She was referring to that magazine's ranking of State as number one in the country.

Miami Pulls Off Win Over Baltimore

By RICK SPATLING
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — "Great," said Don Shula. "Tough," said Ted Marchibroda. The coaches of the Miami Dolphins and Baltimore Colts, respectively, spoke as they surveyed a newly-jumbled Eastern Division of the National Football League's American Conference. The Dolphins tied Baltimore for the division lead with a 17-6 victory over the Colts Monday night on national television.

Gritty defense, a costly Baltimore fumble and an electrifying 77-yard touchdown run by rookie fullback Leroy Harris made the difference for Miami. Harris, a fireplug back at 5feet-10 and 220 pounds, turned a short-yardage center plunge into a score halfway through the fourth quarter as Miami fought to maintain a 10-6 lead. It was the longest run ever from scrimmage by a Dolphin. "I was looking for a filling station to gas up," said Harris, who gained 140 yards in the game. The Dolphins and Colts now have matching 9-3 records with two regular season games left. The New England Patriots are just a game back at 8-4 and still have a shot at the division title. The Dolphins' final opponents are the Patriots next Sunday in Foxboro, Mass., then Buffalo in Miami December 17. Baltimore plays at home against both Detroit and New England. Should Miami and Baltimore both win their remaining two games and finish 11-3, the Dolphins would be Eastern Division champions on the basis of a better record within the division — 7-1 to 6-2. The Patriots get a chance at both leaders in the next two weeks and could throw the race into a three-way tie at 10-4. In that case the Patriots would win the division because of a 31 record against the other two teams, with Miami 2-2 and Baltimore 1-3. "One of our great wins," said Shula as he savored Monday's victory. "I hope what we've done tonight is knock Baltimore out of it." It was the first time in six games that Miami was able to stop the Colts. "We're in a good position now, even though it's a short week of preparation for New England," Shula said. Baltimore's Marchibroda sighed, "We're not out of it yet. We still have a chance to win the division or to win the wild card. It's just tough." The Colts mustered only field goals of 32 and 27 yards by Toni Linhart in the first quarter, then were shut out by the Miami defense. Though Colts quarterback Bert Jones connected on 18 of 34 passes for 189 yards, Baltimore's potential go-ahead drive in the third quarter stalled on a fumble. After directing his squad to the Miami 4, Jones handed off to fullback Roosevelt Leaks, who was hit and fumbled into the end zone. Miami cornerback Norris Thomas recovered. Garo Yepremian punched a 27-yard field goal and Bob Griese passed 15 yards to Andre Tillman to give Miami a 10-6 halftime lead.

Expos, Grimsley Come To Terms; Bonds Traded To The White Sox

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — The Montreal Expos listened to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn bemoan the long-range affect of long-term, multi-million dollar contracts being bestowed on free agents, then went right out and handed pitcher Ross Grimsley a six-year, $1 million-plus deal. The Expos, fifth in the six-team National League East Division last season, came to terms with Grimsley — a 14-10 performer for the American League Baltimore Orioles last season — shortly after midnight, EST, Tuesday.

The signing of Grimsley was the second major announcement at the major league winter meetings Monday. The first was a six-player deal between the California Angels and Chicago White Sox that sent slugging outfielder Bobby Bonds to the Sox.

All it meant was that Bonds had a new command post. His 1978 plan of attack is the same: play out his option and get one of those rich multi-year deals that Kuhn thinks is driving baseball to the brink of economic disaster.

The 31-year-old Bonds, now with his fourth team in five years, figures to play in Chicago just one season, and then grab the kind of seven-figure contract that is making Kuhn nervous. Bonds, who hit .264 and slammed 37 homers, drove in 115 runs and stole 41 bases for the Angels last season, went to the Sox with outfielder Thad Bosley and right-hand pitcher Dick Dotson.

"We lost 170 runs," explained White Sox Manager Bob Lemon, referring to the loss of Oscar Gamble and Richie Zisk through the free agent pool. "We were in first place (much of the season) on offense. We have to go the same way: score runs."

The Angels received catcher Brian Downing and right-handed pitchers Chris Knapp and Dave Frost.

Montreal General Manager Charley Fox announced the signing of Grimsley, and said he expected the left-hander to improve the Expos by at least 10 games. Fox predicted his team would challenge for second place in the NL East, and maybe even first if he could get another starter.

There were only two other trades on the first business day of the meeting on the sun-drenched shores of Oahu. One was an exchange of Houston outfielder Leon Roberts for Seattle infielder Jimmy Sexton. The other sent infielder Dave Rosello from the Chicago Cubs to the Cleveland Indians for minor leaguers Bruce Compton, an outfielder, and pitcher Norm Churchill.

In addition, eight players were snatched in the minor league draft for $25,000 each. The Toronto Blue Jays took outfielders Willie Upshaw from Syracuse and Andy Dyes from Denver. Oakland took shortstop Taylor Duncan from New Orleans. Minnesota claimed pitcher Johnny Sutton and Baltimore chose pitcher Andy Repogle.

The New York Mets lost a pair from their Tidewater farm, pitcher Rick Baldwin to Seattle, and catcher Ed Yost to Milwaukee. The White Sox grabbed first baseman Reggie Sanders from Richmond.

Rookies Doing Okay So Far

By The Associated Press
Atlantic Coast Conference rookies are already justifying the high hopes coaches and fans had for them at the start of the season. The freshmen made their mark on the Big Four Tournament.

Three of the rookies drew votes for the all-tournament squad and there were isolated instances of outstanding play, for example Kenny Matthews' winning field goal for North Carolina State in the Wolf-pack's 79-77 victory over Wake Forest in the first round. Matthews was strong all weekend on defense and made a number of big plays, which added up to 19 total points in the two games and four rebounds.

Kenny Dennard of Duke fouled out in the Devils' opening round loss to Carolina but came back strong against Wake Forest Saturday. He also had 19 tournament points and 13 rebounds, and showed good speed for his size.

Gene Banks was slowed down somewhat by his bruised hip, but he still managed to come away with 28 points for the weekend and eight rebounds.

Carolina's Al Wood showed great defensive potential and followed up Tar Heel shots well on the backboards. He may have been essential to the Carolina victory for his second half play against State Saturday. He scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Fran McCaffery of Wake Forest kept opponents guessing with his quickness and fed Rod Griffin and Larry Harrison effectively. His shooting wasn't so hot, however, and he ended up with only six points in two games.

Kendal Pinder was a standout in N.C. State's running game and bolstered his inexperienced defensive play with good rebounding. He had 22 points and 10 rebounds.

Art Jones, also of State, may have been the offensive surprise of the entire tournament with his uncanny penetration of zone defenses and his 10-foot field goals against Carolina. He was okay defensively too, and no slowpoke on fast breaks. He could stand to gain some weight. Jones got 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Edenton Tops Williamston

EDENTON — Edenton handed Williamston's wrestlers their second loss of the season last night by downing the Tigers, 45-19.

Williamston managed to take five victories in the match, none of them by pin, although Grady Winstead won by forfeit at heavyweight.

The loss drops the Tigers to 1-2 for the season. They will wrestle again Friday when they host Washington.

Friendly In This Meeting

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Vinson of Notre Dame and Morgan Copeland of Texas met each other face-to-face Monday, a situation that might prevail again come Jan. 2 under entirely different and less friendly circumstances.

The two were among 11 players to be honored Tuesday night as winners of National Football Foundation $1,000 scholar-athlete fellowships. But when top-rated Texas and fifth-ranked Notre Dame square off in the Cotton Bowl the day after New Year's there'll be blood on the moon and perhaps a national college football championship in the balance.

"I'm not going to make any prediction except that it'll be a good game," said Vinson, an offensive guard. "It's got to be the best bowl game."

"I'm sure Bear Bryant's view wouldn't agree with that, and neither would Barry Switzer's. But here you have Texas, the No. 1 team in the nation, against Notre Dame, whose name itself helps to draw big crowds, and I think the winner should be the national champion.

"After all, Texas is No. 1 and they beat Oklahoma and Arkansas. And if we beat Texas, our record will be as good as anyone else's and I don't think anyone else will have a more legitimate claim to the national championship."

Copeland, a linebacker, doesn't expect to lose to Notre Dame, but he sided with Vinson anyway.

"I'd have to say you'd probably have a legitimate claim if you beat the No. 1 team," he agreed, "but it's a pretty subjective process."

If Notre Dame defeats Texas, both will finish with 11-1 records. So will the winner of the No. 3 Oklahoma-No. 6 Arkansas Orange Bowl and possibly second-ranked Alabama, No. 4 Michigan and No. 8 Penn State, as well. Seventh-ranked Kentucky, ineligible for a bowl game, wound up 10-1.

Wildcats Ease Past Hoosiers

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

It was a contest that proved tougher than it should have for Kentucky's top-ranked Wildcats. Coach Joe Hall was very much aware of that.

"The fact that we didn't play better alarms me a little," he said Monday night after Kentucky had beaten unranked Indiana by "only" 78-64.

"They took the game to us. They had that underdog attitude and we didn't have the attitude we should have had," said Hall.

But Kentucky had Jack Givens, who scored 22 points, and Rick Robey, who had 20 more as the Wildcats won for the second time in as many games this college basketball season.

"The difference was that Kentucky got enough broken baskets — from the offensive break and on rebounds," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "But that's to their credit. They just came up with more baskets than we did."

Kentucky took the lead for good with 4:05 left in the first half and boosted their margin to 16 points three times after intermission.

"But we seemed tired near the end, which surprised me," said Hall. The fatigue was evident when the Hoosiers pulled within seven with four minutes to go before Kentucky went on a final offensive drive.

Mike Woodson led Indiana scorers with 20 points before fouling out with 12 minutes remaining. Givens' performance gave him 1,512 points for his college career and moved him within five points of Ralph Beard, who is seventh on Kentucky's all-time scoring list.

"I think Givens is as good a player as we've played against since I've been at Indiana," said Knight, whose Hoosiers are 1-1.

Other games involving Top 20 teams Monday night saw third-ranked Notre Dame bomb Lafayette 76-42; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas blast Pepperdine 117-90; No. 11 Indiana State down Central Michigan 93-77; and No. 19 Kansas crush Murray 106-71.

Elsewhere in college basketball, DePaul trimmed Bradley 89-85; Dayton bested Eastern Kentucky 83-70; Kansas State ripped Vanderbilt 69-55; Alabama defused Tennessee Tech 94-66 and Appalachian beat North Carolina-Charlotte, 71-64.

After Lafayette pulled within 35-32 with 13:53 remaining, the Fighting Irish broke away from a stifling zone defense to score 19 consecutive points and put down the uprising.

"For over 30 minutes the kids did the best job they could against what could be the best team in the country," said Lafayette Coach Roy Chipman. But they couldn't handle Notre Dame's Duck Williams, who collected 22 points.

Phil Ness scored 18 for Lafayette, which collected the fewest points against the 4-0 Irish since Marquette was held to 35 points in the last game of the 1959 season.

Senior forward Jackie Robinson had 25 points and four other Nevada-Las Vegas starters were in double figures as the 4-0 Runnin' Rebels took advantage of 32 Pepperdine turnovers to win their 62nd consecutive home game.

Unbeaten Kansas, 4-0, surpassed the 100-point plateau for the third time this season. They were sparked by Donnie Von Moore's career-high 22-point performance while Jimmy Warren had 15 for the Racers, 2-2.

CHI CHI CAN DRIVE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez, the jockey-sized Puerto Rican, only weighs 125 pounds and is the lightest man on the PGA tour. But he hits the ball off the tee as far as all but the heavyweight drivers. Rodriguez likes to joke but he is serious in detailing his driving technique.

"If you start your downswing by moving your lower body toward the target," he said, "you'll get weight where it should be, on your left side. And you'll have something solid which will enable you to hit through the ball."

The great Kelso was defeated in his first three attempts to win the Washington International but was finally successful in 1964.

Greenville Christian Sees Winning Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Greenville Christian Academy is in its second year of basketball and first-year coach Buzz Hintz is hopeful of a winning season—once some internal problems have been solved. Hintz expects those problems to be over by Friday, when several regulars are expected to be reinstated following being ineligible due to academics.

"We have all five starters back, but we've had to play with only two of them during our first two games (plus the game against Bethel Academy tonight)," Hintz said.

The two regulars who have been playing are 5-11 Steve Tyburski and 5-8 Rodney Harris. "We really are a small team. The tallest man we have is 6-4," Hintz said. That player is Marshall Crumpler, who handles the center position.

"We've come up with some unexpected help from a freshman, Ben Haddock, (5-9) who has proven himself. He was originally supposed to be on the junior varsity, but he'll be with the varsity now, and may end up starting even when the old starters come back."

The other two returning starters, along with Crumpler, who will rejoin the team later this week are 5-6 Melvin Wooten and 5-10 Tim Sutton.

"Rebounding is somewhat of a problem with our height," the coach said, "but Kent Brown (5-11) has been a strong rebounder for us so far, and Tyburski is averaging about 14 rebounds a game for the first two. Brown will play a lot and he is strong on defense, too."

The shooting has been bothering Hintz, as the Knights have hit only about 35 per cent for their first two games. But he feels that this area will show improvement.

"Our defense is weak now too. We're not physical enough. We need to be more aggressive." Hintz likes to run a 2-2-1 press and then fall back into a Bobby Knight-type man-to-man defense.

"Before we had these kids not able to play, I thought we might go undefeated. But even now (0-2) it looks like we could end up winning more than we lose. We have a lot of talent on the team, it just needs to develop." Hintz admits that there are problems in having a basketball team at a private school, the chief of which is having no feeder system. He's trying to work up a full-school intramural program to serve this purpose.

"We've got one going now, and just about every boy in school is participating."

In reserve roles, Hintz looks to John Dubber, Sammy Harris and Tony Barber to play leading roles.

The Knights are members of the Eastern Carolina Christian Conference, along with Goldsboro Christian, Faith and Falls Road. "The winning team goes to the district tournament and the winner there goes to the state (independent) tournament."

"I think we'll be strong in the conference, but I'm told that Faith is the team to beat."

Meanwhile, Hintz will be looking forward to Friday when most of his regulars return.

Indiana State Finds Ranking After Victory

By The Associated Press

A week ago, Indiana State's basketball team wasn't even in The Associated Press Top Twenty and Purdue's potent Boilermakers were 11th in the rankings.

What a difference one week and 28 points make.

The Sycamores blew into the ratings — 11th place, to be exact — and the Boilermakers fell off the chart, compliments of the Sycamores' 91-63 romp over Purdue last week and thanks to the panel of sports writers and broadcasters who took note of that score before voting.

The nationwide panel also kept Kentucky, North Carolina, Notre Dame and Marquette in the top four positions.

Coach Joe Hall's top-ranked Wildcats, 1-0, who took last week off, got 23 of 43 first-place votes cast and 808 points, 56 more than North Carolina. The Tar Heels, 4-0 after victories over Oregon State, Duke and North Carolina State, received 16 first-place votes for 752 points.

The Fighting Irish, 3-0, got 651 points and two first-place votes and Marquette, 2-0, with one fourth-place vote, received 508 points.

San Francisco, fifth a week ago, fell to eighth due to a loss to Arizona State. As a result, UCLA, Arkansas and Cincinnati each moved up one position.

The Bruins, 4-0, got one first-place vote and 439 points for fifth, followed by Arkansas, 4-0, with 395 points and Cincinnati, 3-0, with 273.

San Francisco barely managed to hold eighth. The Dons' 209 points was one more than ninth-place Michigan got. The Wolverines were 13th a week ago. And right behind them, rounding out the First Ten with 205 points, are the Running Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas.

Trailing Indiana State in the Second Ten are Maryland, up two places this week; St. John's, up three; Utah, up six spots to 14th; Holy Cross, up two; Louisville, down seven to 16th; Detroit, up two; Syracuse, down sixth to 18th, and Kansas and Providence. The Jayhawks and Friars entered the ratings and kayeod Alabama, 15th last week, and Wake Forest, formerly 18th.

Disability Payments Stonewalled By Bureaucracy

TRAPPED IN RED TAPE — Lloyd Helms gave up disability payments because he wanted to work. Now, the 50-year-old stonecutter says his disability has recurred but the Social Security Administration has twice rejected his re-application for payments. (AP Laserphoto)

CHARLOTTE (AP) — "Somebody who has worked all his life — you just get treated like a dog," says Lloyd Helms, a 50-year-old stonecutter who has run up against government bureaucracy for the second time in an effort to get disability payments. "They might as well give you a shot, put you to sleep and put you in a cemetery," Helms says he cannot work because of recurring numbness in his hands, apparently stemming from a broken back 21 years ago. "You can't have that (numbness) and be a stonecutter. The tool you use could cut you in half if you let go of it," he says.

Helms made the remarks in an interview with Charlotte News columnist Steve Snow.

Back in 1973, he was hospitalized after passing out at work and losing all feeling in his right side.

The last thing he thought he would do was apply for disability payments from the Social Security Administration. But he did after leaving the hospital, and after 18 months, two rejections and an administrative hearing, he got them.

But the payments stopped when, with the help of a vocational rehabilitation counselor, he went back to work.

"I always wanted to work. I didn't want to be a burden on the country," Helms says.

He says his disability has recurred, so he has re-applied for help from the Social Security Administration.

He has again been rejected twice and he faces a wait of several months for another administrative hearing.

Gene Morris, manager of the social security office in Kannapolis, where Helms filed his claims, said there is little that can be done except wait for a hearing for Helms.

"I really do think he'd be working if he could," Morris says.

Two different groups of social security people rejected Helms' case, according to Morris, even though it was noted the second time around that his condition had gotten worse.

"We don't go by a common sense approach, we go by a factual approach. It's a pretty cold process, but the medical evidence apparently didn't support the claim," Morris says.

Helms had qualified for disability before and. "He thought he would automatically be eligible for disability again, but that's not true — you have to go through the whole process all over again."

Because he couldn't work, Helms sold his home in Stanly County and moved to Charlotte. Last week, he mortgaged his car to get money for food stamps and medicine.

"I get so depressed about it, I feel like the only thing left for me to do is kill myself," he said.

"They tell me I should commit myself to the mental institution, that that's one way to help me with my claim because of my nerves, but I'm not crazy."

Helms says he barely reads and writes and has had emotional problems, but he has supported himself and his wife by working as a cemetery monument stonecutter. His wife cannot work because of medical problems, he says.

"I've worked hard for people. I don't know if saying any more can help, but what do you do when all you have left in the world is yourself — myself and my wife, that's all that's left."

The FARM SCENE

By L. GAYLON AMBROSE

The trend toward more growers producing tobacco plants under plastic covers continues. Being warmer under plastic covers, the plants grow faster than under cotton covers and since the same cover used to fumigate with methyl bromide can be used to grow plants, plastic covers are also cheaper to use.

In general, the plant supply was good in 1977. The cold weather in January and February delayed fumigation of many beds and caused some people to fumigate when the soil was too cold, resulting in poor weed control. However, the later seeding, due to the cold weather, may have been a blessing in disguise for those growers who have been seeding too early.

Plants can be grown from seeding to transplant size in about 60 to 65 days under plastic.

A major factor that many growers still need to improve in their plant bed management program is to provide more soil moisture after seeding and before the plastic covers are put back on the beds. Irrigation is the only consistent way this job can be done. If irrigation is not available arrangements should be made to get it as soon as possible. Depending upon rainfall to supply enough moisture when needed is not practical. The rains may not come for a week or two after seeding, which can upset your time schedule for getting the plants ready to go to the field. Rains may also be too light to sufficiently wet the soil or too heavy resulting in packed soil, "puddled seed", or the seed being covered too deep.

Back In School After Near Fatal Burn Ordeal

STILL A DAREDEVIL — Keith Hulín, 12, sits with his classmates in El Cajon, Calif., nine months after he was burned over 85 percent of his body in a gasoline explosion while playing with a friend. (AP Laserphoto)

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — Wearing a mask that conceals hideous burn scars, 12-year-old Keith Hulín is back in school, 10 months after a near-fatal gasoline explosion.

Some things haven't changed. Keith is back to riding his bicycle and practicing tricks on his skateboard.

"Keith's personality hasn't changed," said his mother, Maxine Hulín. "He's still a daredevil, just like before."

But other things are startlingly different. Keith sits in the classroom wearing a special nylon stretch suit that prevents his skin grafts from sagging and a helmet-like mask which covers a soft plastic shield molded to the contours of his face.

Before Keith joined his sixth grade class at Tierra del Sol Junior High School, the school staff and doctors took special care to prepare the other children in order to prevent taunting remarks.

Keith, they explained to his classmates, had been burned in a gasoline explosion Feb. 18. He had been in hospitals for six months undergoing skin grafts.

They tried to get the students to understand Keith's feelings and to realize how insults and ridicule could hurt him.

When Keith took off the mask for airing and revealed the disfiguring scars, they encouraged his classmates to ask questions instead of whispering among themselves.

"Apparently it worked really beautifully. He's been very well received," said Dr. Saul Amerling, the school psychologist.

"We've been friends since we were 5 or 6 years old," says Kevin Opheim, who sits by Keith in school. "When the accident happened I was thinking, 'I sure don't want to lose him.' He's still one of my best friends."

On that February day, Keith tried to light a fire in an underground fort with gasoline. It exploded. Keith ran outside and scaled a five-foot fence to fall into a puddle of water, dousing the flames enveloping his body.

He suffered third degree burns over 85 percent of his body. Doctors gave him virtually no chance to live.

"There's no way I can describe what he looked like," Mrs. Hulín said, "and I couldn't cry in front of him. Keith had talked up a storm all the way" to the hospital in the ambulance.

Last April, Keith was transferred to the Shrine Burn Center in Galveston, Texas. He returned home Aug. 23 after months of pain, baths to remove dead skin, more operations, more pain.

He must return to Galveston every three months for check-ups. And he faces other operations in which plastic surgeons will work to reconstruct his burned body, something he is resisting because he doesn't want to be hurt any more.

Race Time For Christmas Baby

NEW YORK (AP) — Police-

man Charles Larkin and his wife hope to adopt a baby and have her home for Christmas. The newborn infant they want is special — Larkin found her abandoned in the vestibule of an apartment building.

"She's so beautiful," said Larkin, one of four officers who responded to a police radio report of an abandoned baby last Friday.

"She's what we've been praying for," he said. "This could be the very best Christmas of our lives."

Larkin and his wife are childless after 11 years of marriage and have been trying to adopt a baby since doctors told Mrs. Larkin she probably cannot bear a child.

They know the red tape involved. They know officials must first try to find the parents of the baby, then she will become a ward of the state. Such children are frequently placed in foster homes. Formal adoption can take years.

For now, the Larkins hope to get temporary custody of the infant by Christmas.

Larkin, 38, has visited the 4-day-old baby several times at the hospital but his wife, Julia, 31, has not seen her yet.

"I wanted to see her, maybe even get to hold her," she said. "We've got a seven-room house, and it's been empty for too long."

Giving Program At PTA Meet

The South Greenville PTA will meet Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

The Fifth and Sixth Grade Chorus, directed by Mrs. Betty Boyd, will present a Christmas program. A representative will be present to accept PTA memberships and contributions.

Red Tape Bewildering To N.C. Fish Farmer

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — Keith Morris points at his stack of government licenses, permits and receipt books and admits the whole thing is beginning to get him down.

"I am a private citizen trying to do what is right to make an honest living," he says. "But I am dragged into court, harassed and intimidated."

Morris owns a fish farm and sells live rainbow trout at the Western North Carolina Farmer's Market in Asheville.

Before he began selling the fish he says he checked with the Wildlife Resources Commission in Raleigh and was told there was no law regulating sales at a farmer's market.

"But when I tried to sell my fish, there was a game warden with my newspaper ad in his hand, giving me a citation for not having a holding pond license," he said.

The Transylvania County farmer said he went to Raleigh for the license. Officials had to alter a commercial fishing license since it had been so long since anyone bought a holding pond license, there weren't any around.

Morris added his new document to his hatchery license and his fish hauling license, plus the receipts he gives to customers to certify that the fish are pond trout and not poached or stolen.

But all his good intentions did not spare him from being charged with violating game regulations for the holding pond he operated without a license. The judge looked at his new license, he said, and "kind of shrugged and dismissed the case."

Now Morris has been told he must obtain another license by the first of the year if he wants to continue the farmer's market sales.

"I am going to inquire between now and the first of the year," he said of the new regulation. "My intention all along has been to find out what I must do and do it."

Mrs. Humphrey Hospitalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Muriel Humphrey, 65-year-old wife of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, is expected to remain at Washington Hospital Center for about a week to recover from exhaustion, a Humphrey aide said.

Betty South, Humphrey's press secretary, said Mrs. Humphrey is in the hospital for "a complete rest."

Nancy Solomonson, the Humphreys' daughter, said Mrs. Humphrey was suffering from "heavy exhaustion," which she attributed to Mrs. Humphrey's massive workload and recent gall bladder surgery.

Mrs. Humphrey had her gall bladder removed at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., last April.

National Geographic Special Is Enjoying New Freedom On PBS

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — After nine years on commercial television, "The National Geographic Special" has achieved a freedom on public television it has never enjoyed before.

"We had a very good relationship with CBS," said Dennis Kane, the Geographic's executive producer for the series. "However, as the case would be with any outside package you have a bit of pressure. They make certain recommendations."

But the main problem when the show was on CBS, and on ABC in its final year on commercial television, was time.

"The networks renewed the specials on a year-to-year basis, which gave us only eight to nine months to plan and film four specials a year," Kane said. "That was not the best way to operate. We didn't have enough time to develop the special. You really need about two years with a documentary."

After ABC canceled the series the National Geographic turned to public television and station WQEE in Pittsburgh. Next, they went to the Gulf Oil Corp.

"Gulf gave us an unprecedented grant to do the series for three years. We got $1.3 million up front for each year — and it was hands off from both Gulf and the Public Broadcasting Service," he said.

The Geographic's first special for the year, "Yukon Passage," is showing this week on public television. In many areas the first airing was Monday night.

Next up, in the second week of January, will be "The Legacy of L.S.B. Leakey." Other shows this season will be "The Great Whales" and "The Living Sands of Namib."

The Geographic's first special for PBS, "The Incredible Machine," on the human body, broke all viewing records for public television. In fact, all of its shows last year finished in the top four in the ratings for public television.

Kane estimates that on CBS and ABC the specials drew an audience of 22 million to 23 million. On PBS, he estimates they reach 18 million to 20 million people over the course of two or three airings within a week.

Kane said, "In the beginning in the 1960s we were very much into animals. No one had done that before, but then other producers began doing animal shows. We're mainly into people stories now. We will do animal stories, such as the whales and the desert of Namib."

"But our animal stories are now about animals with a problem. There's a good chance the whale could become extinct.

We give people a feeling about whales, we get close to them, but we show what it would mean if they do indeed become extinct. The Namib story is about animals you see nowhere else and how they have adapted to the desert over millions-of years."

Shows in the works are on gold and man's involvement and fascination with the metal; the human mind and its powers; the last of the great steamships; Hong Kong; and the problems facing the elephant, particularly in Africa where it may become extinct by the end of the century.

Andrew Lytle, a Fugitive he always addressed as "Brother." Novels, history books and collections of poetry litter his chairs, shelves and bedside table.

"Allen Tate — Collected Poems 1919-1976," a collection of everything he has written since 1919, was released in November. His last collection, "The Swimmers and Other Poems" was published in 1971. It includes a poem based on the lynching of a black man, an event Tate witnessed in 1911.

Tate, who introduced T.S. Eliot's poetry to the Fugitives — including Robert Penn Warren, Donald Davidson and Randall — was awarded the National Medal for Literature in 1976.

The Kentuckian returned to Nashville last year after spending eight years in Sewanee, Tenn. He has written one novel, "The Fathers," which is being republished this fall, and biographies of Stonewall Jackson and Jefferson Davis.

"Poetry's an art, not self-expression," Tate said. "This poetry by the younger generation bores me profoundly. The poet must create a verbal object detached from himself. It must be something that stands alone."

Tate said a novel, to be con-

Jurors Will View Films

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The jury in the first court test of the new state anti-pornography law will probably have to spend three weeks viewing sexually explicit films.

"That's assuming we had two projectors going continually and never had any film break or any mechanical breakdowns," said Wake Assistant District Attorney Russell Sherrill.

The state has charged in a civil suit that The Camera's Eye, operated by John K. Atkinson, is a public nuisance and ought to be closed along with any others in the state Atkinson operates, and all money taken in since Aug. 1 forfeited to the state.

Sherrill said it would save a lot of time and please the jury in the case if Atkinson's attorney, Michael Curtis of Greensboro, would agree to stipulate that the films and other materials are obscene. Then the jury could go to work on deciding whether the store was a public nuisance.

But Curtis said the material is not obscene, and it is the state that will be forcing the jury to sit through thousands of feet of sex films in what he sarcastically referred to as "the largest porno trial in the world."

Wake Superior Court Judge Pilston Godwin has already denied defense motions for dismissal of the suit.

Other adult book store and theater owners have asked federal courts in Fayetteville and Charlotte to find the state law unconstitutional.

Gov., Lt. Gov. Get Together

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After months of what has seemed like thinly-veiled mutual hostility, marked by little or no actual contact, Gov. Jim Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green had a private meeting Monday, and Green said afterward it was "very pleasant."

Hunt briefed Green for about 50 minutes on administration programs, and the two agreed when it was over to get together regularly, perhaps as often as every two or three weeks.

Hunt and Green locked horns over the Equal Rights Amendment, which Green opposed and Hunt supported, and over chairmanship of the state Board of Education, which Green wanted for himself and Hunt for his personal nominee.

Declarer's line was correct if he needed five tricks from the diamond suit. In that case, he would have to play for the jack to be guarded no more than twice. But here the fifth diamond was a luxury — an overtrick. Declarer could afford to squander that for the opportunity of being able to secure the contract.

Once declarer was in dummy at trick one, he had available a play that would guarantee the contract regardless of the distribution. Since he could not afford to let East gain the lead, he should have executed a simple avoidance play.

Declarer should simply lead a diamond to the ten. If that wins, he has his ninth trick in the bank, and a 4-2 diamond division would then allow him to score an overtrick.

And if West wins the jack of diamonds, no return could hurt South. Declarer would still be guaranteed four diamond tricks. He wins any return in hand, cashes the ace of diamonds, crosses to the ace of clubs and takes his three high diamonds for his contract.

High Court Supports Police Order To Get Out Of A Car

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A Supreme Court ruling that motorists stopped for routine traffic violations may be ordered by police to get out of their cars has left law enforcement officials grateful and civil libertarians angry.

"We're unanimously pleased," a spokesman for the International Association of Chiefs of Police said after learning of the court's decision. "This is what we've been saying - that the police officer's safety is paramount."

A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union answered, "We're extremely upset. The decision continues this court's trend of judicial undermining of the Fourth Amendment's safeguards."

Voting 6-3 Monday, the nation's highest court ruled that such police orders are justified by concerns for police safety.

While getting out of their cars may pose an intrusion on motorists' Fourth Amendment rights against illegal search and seizure, the intrusion is minimal, the court's majority said in an unsigned opinion.

"What is at most a mere inconvenience cannot prevail when balanced against legitimate concerns for the officer's safety," the court said in reversing a ruling by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

The three dissenting justices were John Paul Stevens, Thurgood Marshall and William J.

Brennan Jr.

ACLU attorney Joel Gora said at the organization's New York headquarters that the court's decision "effectively eliminates the right of privacy" for any person sitting in his or her car.

"And anyone who has been stopped by a policeman and has been ordered to get out of the car knows that the intrusion is not minimal," Gora said.

The case decided by the court involved a car with an expired license tag stopped in 1971 by two Philadelphia policemen.

In other matters Monday, the court:

-Agreed to decide whether states legally may impose water-use conditions on federal water management projects.

Lower courts have said they may not, and California is appealing.

-Decided that states may distinguish between day and night students in handing out unemployment benefits. The decision reversed a ruling by the Idaho Supreme Court that paying unemployment benefits to night students only violated the equal-protection rights of day students.

-Agreed to decide whether the estate of the late Clay Shaw may sue former New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison for allegedly violating Shaw's rights by prosecuting him for conspiring to kill President John F. Kennedy.

Two Air Force Crewmen Killed

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) - Two Air Force crewmen flying out of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in North Carolina have been found dead in the wreckage of their F4 Phantom jet near the Nevada border, an Air Force spokesman said.

Spokesman Bob Bowman of Hill AFB said the wreckage of Saturday's crash was spotted Sunday morning by helicopter crews on the slopes of Haystack Peak, 60 miles south of Wendover and two miles inside the border.

The two crewmen were identified as 1st Lt. Lawrence Larson, 26, Clarendon Hills, Ill., and his weapons systems officer, Capt. James Winburn, 26.

Indict Engineer In Planting The 'Bug'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - A federal grand jury has indicted a Maryland electronics engineer on charges of planting a hidden microphone allegedly used to eavesdrop on FBI agents at Northwestern Bank headquarters last summer.

Martin L. Kaiser was charged Monday with conspiring with former bank board chairman Edwin Duncan and former vice president Gwyn Bowers to carry bugging equipment across state lines and to bug the agents, who were investigating bank affairs, using a borrowed bank office.

Both Bowers and Duncan pleaded guilty to related charges in the same case. Both were given suspended prison terms and Bowers was fined $5,000.

In the Kaiser indictment, authorities allege that Bowers and Kaiser discussed plans for the bugging in Cockeysville, Md., near Washington, D.C., last April. Kaiser allegedly flew to North Wilkesboro and installed the microphone and amplifier while Bowers watched.

Kaiser also allegedly sold Bowers special recording equipment to tape FBI agents' conversations.

The maximum penalty for electronic eavesdropping is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Thomas Breerton, the FBI agent in charge of the Northwestern investigation, testified in a hearing before Duncan and Bowers were sentenced that Kaiser had agreed to help with the bugging because he respected Duncan and disliked the FBI.

Kaiser makes and sells eavesdropping equipment. His attorney said earlier this year that Kaiser would not testify in Duncan's trial on the FBI bug-

Small Donors Finance Billy Graham Organization

EDITOR'S NOTE: Probably no evangelist is better known throughout the nation and throughout the world than the Rev. Billy Graham, friend of presidents and minister to millions. Here, in the second of a five-part series, is a look at the Graham organization.

By JIM CARRIER
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — It is 8:15 a.m., inside a two-block cluster of brick buildings on the edge of downtown. Fifteen women pray at their desks.

From a folder with a picture of praying hands on the cover, they are given letters — letters from a family whose mother is in surgery, from a couple having marital problems.

For the next quarter of an hour, the women pray: for the mother, for the couple and, perhaps, for their employer, Billy Graham.

Their devotions over, the women begin to open envelopes. Thousands of them arrive each day. Many addressed simply: Billy Graham, Minneapolis. A third of the letters ask for help or a prayer. Nearly all contain money.

A recent batch of 30 letters shown to a visitor contained $149 — about $5 apiece. The average donation is close to $10.

Last year, the non-profit, tax-exempt Billy Graham Evangelistic Association received $26.9 million in gifts. Total income of $28.7 million also included $1.4 million from estates and $359,000 in interest and other income.

But it was largely the flood of small donations that paid to spread Graham's — he would say Christ's — message to convince thousands to become Christians, and once in the fold, to remain there.

Broadcasting is a key element in the Graham ministry. The BGEA spent $27.7 million in 1976. Of this, $8.8 million, or 32 percent, went for production and time on radio and TV. The "Hour of Decision" weekly 30-minute radio show is heard on 900 stations and three or four televised crusades are aired on 310 stations each year.

BGEA was set up because Graham decided to take his ministry on the air, a $25,000 venture for 13 weeks on the ABC radio network in November 1950.

"We didn't know what to expect," said George Wilson, BGEA executive vice president who has managed the non-profit corporation from the beginning.

Wilson drew up papers for a corporation: "To transmit the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ by radio and television ... by tracts, books and other publications ... by any and all other means." He hired a secretary, rented a small office and waited for the mailman.

More than 4,000 letters arrived that first month. The donations in the letters kept Graham on the air.

In the next 27 years the corporation expanded into television, books, magazines and films. It now employs 500 people around the world. According to a balance sheet filed with the Minnesota Securities Division, BGEA last year spent $10.4 million, or 38 percent of its budget, on "evangelism ministries." Of that $5.6 million went for mail handling, literature and crusades by eight associate evangelists. (Graham's 11 crusades a year are self-supporting.)

Some $3.6 million of the "ministries" budget went to the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund, basically a building fund established seven years ago. With cash assets of $23 million, this fund has already transferred $7 million to Graham's alma mater, Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. for a Graham Center for Communications. Another $8 million is earmarked for the graduate school to teach evangelists how to use modern mass media. The fund also owns 1,000 acres of land near Asheville, N.C. which might be used for a laymen's retreat center.

Of the rest of the "ministries" budget, $942,000 went to Wheaton College, $209,000 to other religious organizations and almost $21,000 to other affiliates.

The BGEA balance sheet also shows: $2.5 million for foreign crusades and world emergencies, $2.8 million for Decision magazine, $1.4 million for administration and $1.5 million for postage.

The association mails 100 million to 125 million pieces of mail a year, including 25 million appeals for funds. Decision magazine is mailed to four million people each month.

Graham's salary of $39,500, is listed in a $248,000 item for officer and director salaries.

A board of 26 businessmen, financiers, clergymen and lawyers guides BGEA. An executive committee, which meets every six weeks, keeps tabs on the budget. It is chaired by Allan Emery Jr., a director of ServiceMaster Industries, Boston. Its treasurer is Robert Van Kampen who is a banking consultant in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Associates say Graham, who carries the title of president, keeps in touch with the operation in Minneapolis. But Graham himself said at a news conference that the board "handles the secular affairs and I give myself to preaching and writing. I don't come to Minneapolis often, it's so efficiently run."

Wilson, the man who runs the operation, is a 63-year-old former printer and Baptist preacher who also once owned a bookstore selling Christian works.

As he guides a visitor through the BGEA headquarters, Wilson shows pride in his efficiencies, in patented mail-room machines that keep U.S. Postal Service semitrucks busy at loading docks, or in a computer that maintains a mailing list of seven million names and a record of their donations and purchases. A squad of housewives is kept busy typing 50,000 address changes a month. About 4,000 names must be deleted each month after donors die.

Four or five times each year, five million people on the "active" mailing list receive a plea for money, signed by Graham.

"We're a spiritual organization trying to reach people with all the modern means of communication," said Wilson. "The fact that it takes money to do it is really a necessary item. The purpose is to reach as many people in as short of time as possible."

Some make contact with Graham in person. At a recent Cincinnati crusade, which drew 160,572 people over 10 days, 7,075 persons came forward when Graham invited them to accept Christ, to be born again.

Each of the 7,075 was met by a counselor, who gave the "inquirer" the Book of John and a bible quiz. The counselor contacted the inquirer in a day, again in three days, and referred him to a church near his home. The inquirer also got a year's subscription to Decision.

The completed Bible quiz, mailed to Minneapolis, went to the "spiritual counseling" department, which weekly handles 16,000 letters requiring answers to specific questions.

Large loose-leaf binders at 10 desks contain hundreds of prepared answers compatible with Graham's views. From these form paragraphs, a personal letter is dictated and typed.

"You read a thousand letters. They'll fall into 30 to 40 categories. So we look at them and we try to get replies that will take care of these 10 letters, or these 25 letters. And maybe the opening and closing paragraphs will be different. But we will use similar paragraphs for the main thrust of the letter," said Wilson.

About 2,000 letters each week need special handling and are given to a staff of ministers who dictate personal replies.

The first official look into BGEA's budget came only recently, after the State of Minnesota insisted on a balance sheet before approving the sale of a charitable annuity plan in Minnesota.

Both Graham and Wilson are defensive about the financial questions raised in recent months. In an Oct. 26 fund appeal Graham called them "Satan's attacks" on his ministries. He told reporters: "I think when people give to our association they trust that it's being handled wisely and properly and invested for the advancement of the Kingdom of God, which all of it is."

Wilson, explaining the use of form letters, a computerized name list or the million-dollar figures on the association's balance sheet, fears the image of a high-powered fund-raising machine. He especially doesn't want the little guy, who provides 90 percent of BGEA's income, to think he can stop sending in his $10 donations.

"I would like to see the association's organization really cut down some. I think we've gotten a little too large," Graham told reporters who were questioning his finances. "Maybe this is one of God's ways of cutting it down, because I don't think it would affect our ministry."

Set-Aside Acreage Has A Conditional Approval

Acting Secretary of Agriculture John White on Nov. 15, announced a 10 percent set-aside in acreage of corn, sorghum and barley and other details of the 1978 feed grain program.

"Announcing this conditional action will give us the opportunity in January and February to review the world and domestic situation again and revoke the set-aside if conditions change substantially," said White.

Participation in the feed grain set-aside program is voluntary. Non-participants, however, are not eligible for price support loans, disaster payments, or deficiency (target price) payments.

Participants must set aside one acre for every 10 acres harvested by 20 percent in 1978 from that planted in 1977 are guaranteed target price protection on the normal production from their entire acreage and qualify for loan programs on all they produce.

To be eligible for loans, purchases and payments, if applicable, on crops included in the normal crop acreage, the producer must comply with the feed grain set-aside if corn, sorghum usually planted for harvest in 1978. Under "cross-compliance" rules, a farmer who does not participate in the set-aside program is ineligible for loans and payments on other crops.

Producers who voluntarily reduce their corn and sorghum acreage by five percent or barley acreage planted for or barley is planted for the 1978 harvest.

The Department is proposing that acreage designated as under the 1978 feed grain program must be in an approved vegetative cover crop such as annual or perennial grasses and legumes or small grain which is not allowed to mature.

It also proposes land eligible is any cropland that was tilled within the prior three years in crop production other than hay or pasture. Summer fallow is not included.

Publication of final regulations on these proposals is being deferred until all comments received are evaluated.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Eat Our Cake and Diet Too

The inner secrets of the heart are slowly, but definitely, revealing themselves. Even physicians, sophisticated in the knowledge of the wonders of the heart, are amazed by the reports of new scientific advances in this field of medicine.

A new complicated, computerized X-ray technique makes it possible to examine every segment of the heart. Using high-speed radiation, Dr. Earl H. Wood at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, can virtually "look into" the heart when the X-ray pictures are studied in this way.

Details on the inside and the outside of the heart and minute changes in the coronary arteries to the heart are clearly visible.

The original work, successfully performed on experimental animals, is so exciting that new systems, already on the drawing board, should be ready soon for use in the study of humans. It is expected, too, that this method will soon be applied for the earliest detection of cancer of the lung.

A good candidate for the Nobel prize will be the experimental mouse used by research workers at the University of Illinois College of Pharmacy in Chicago. They have just created a new drug which "impedes food absorption and leads to dramatic weight loss."

When and if the Food and Drug Administration gives the green light for testing on humans, and if the experimental work is verified, the researchers say, "One of these days we might just be able to eat our cake and diet, too."

Many cigarette smokers seem to assuage their guilt by saying, "My doctor smokes, so why shouldn't I?" This sort of reasoning, of course, has no validity. Soon, perhaps, the new statistics about "smoking doctors" will influence those who are on the quitting-not quitting borderline to give up the habit.

It was recently reported by the Center for Disease Control that 36 percent of all physicians have given up smoking in the past 12 years. In the light of the well-established relationship between tobacco and cancer of the lung, cancer of the larynx and circulatory disorders, even more physicians and their patients should give themselves a gift of health by just quitting.
