

Only One In 22 Counties

SAY AGAIN? — Travelers on Greene Street in Greenville might wonder if the bridge across the Tar River is sagging, considering the three height signs recently erected by Department of Transportation crews. There is nearly a two-foot variation from one side to the other, and the center is lower than one side. The reason is a sidewalk keeps traffic away from the side of the bridge on the right, and variations in the roadway level. According to R.L. Spence, bridge superintendent in Williamston, this is the only bridge marked in this manner in the 22 counties he oversees. The three signs were erected to alert motorists and truckers with high loads to the variation in heights in the center of the road and on each side. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

FBI Kennedy Files Fail Answer 2 Old Questions

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has opened its files on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy but this has so far not closed the case on two 14-year-old questions:

Did Lee Harvey Oswald murder the president on his own? And if so, why? A preliminary reading of the files, released Wednesday, does not refute the Warren Commission conclusion that Oswald acted independently.

What does emerge from the 40,001 pages from the FBI's records — another 40,000 are to be released in January — is a sharpened picture of the frantic days following Kennedy's murder in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

They show that: —Within two hours of the president's death, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover believed the crime was committed by Oswald, whom he called "a meanninded individual ... in the category of a nut."

—Almost as quickly, bureau agents began a hunt of unprecedented magnitude, running down thousands of leads ranging from reports of a Castro-inspired plot to threatening graffiti on lavatory walls.

Hoover presided over the investigation, urging speed yet thoroughness by his agents. At the same time he worked to preserve his bureau's image by pressuring "our many friends" in the news media.

The half-ton of files give a vivid portrait of a nation suddenly gone mad. Hundreds — thousands — of Americans said they had seen or talked with Oswald in almost every part of the country.

A woman in Akron, Ohio, said she had asked Oswald to dance with her in a local gin mill shortly before the assassination. Oswald refused and just sat in a chair and cried. So she danced with a "Mr. Ruby" instead.

Others said they had seen Oswald and Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub owner who shot him dead Nov. 24, 1963, together in many places.

An Atlanta telephone operator reported placing long distance phone calls to Oswald and then Ruby in Dallas early that November. Phone company records showed no such calls.

Agents doggedly ran down all such leads. All too often they ended in a blind — not infrequently, a blind drunk — alley.

More serious paths led toward Fidel Castro, Communist leader of Cuba. The FBI obtained a letter from Havana to Oswald mentioning money payments and Oswald's ability to shoot out a candle at 50 meters.

The letter was dated Nov. 10, 1963, but was postmarked six days after the assassination. The FBI decided it was the work of a crank. But Hoover wrote at the time "as to whether he (Oswald) was the only man gives me great concern."

Other reports of Cuban involvement also gave

Hoover pause. Among them, the fact that Oswald had been arrested in New Orleans for distributing pro-Castro literature; a Castro speech before Kennedy's assassination vowing retaliation against U.S. leaders if Castro were harmed, and a Spanish diplomat's report that his country's intelligence service had established a link between Castro, Oswald and the murder of the American president.

The files disclose no major discrepancies with the Warren Commission report, which drew extensively from them. But they contain harrowing vignettes.

Mrs. John B. Connally, a passenger in the death car whose husband, the Texas governor, was seriously wounded, thought the auto was hit by buckshot. Then she realized it was brain matter. "They've killed Jack," cried Jacqueline Kennedy, the president's wife. "His brains are in my hand."

Moments before the second of two shots hit him, the president said: "Get me to a hospital," his last words.

The files flesh out a little the spectral image of Oswald

... A 118 IQ grade-school student in New York City who would not salute the flag, preferred to fly paper airplanes in class and became a psychiatric problem.

A teen-ager who told a friend President Dwight D. Eisenhower should be killed.

A marine in Japan who had "an intense hatred" for anyone who called him "Harve" instead of Lee and was "abusive on occasions, withdrawn on others and a troublemaker all the time."

A husband who told his Russian-born wife, Marina, that killing could be justified. Hitler, for instance.

A man who pretended his pointed finger was a gun and said "band a bang" at his coworkers.

A man who knew rifles and told a New Orleans garage owner a small caliber rifle was more deadly than a larger one. At the time he owned an Italian military rifle of about .25 caliber that the Warren Commission determined was the assassination weapon.

Oswald's motive, then and now, remains conjectural, however.

In 1976, the Senate select committee that investigated intelligence abuses reported: "The evidence suggests that during the Warren Commission investigation, top FBI officials were con-

Inflation Sees Push In Wholesale Index

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose 0.7 percent in November as the cost of food continued to climb at a rapid rate, the Labor Department said today.

The wholesale price increase was smaller than the 0.8 percent gain in October, but it was still enough to contribute substantially to inflation.

Farm products rose 3 percent in cost for the month after a 2.4 percent rise in October and five months of declines before that.

The prices of industrial commodities rose 0.4 percent, compared with a 0.6 percent increase the month before, indicating that food prices have been the main cause of the two-month jump in wholesale prices.

Prices paid to wholesalers usually show up later at retail stores and are considered an early warning of inflation trends. Most of the food price increases had not been reflected at supermarkets in the latest consumer price report for October.

Wholesale price increases usually take a few months to show up in the Consumer Price Index, which measures the nation's inflation rate. That index went up a moderate 0.3 percent in each of the last three months.

The Labor Department said the price of finished goods, which may be a more accurate indicator than the Wholesale Price Index, rose 0.4 percent, half the 0.8 percent increase the month before. This index does not duplicate price changes as they move through all stages of processing.

Finished consumer foods rose 0.4 percent, the second consecutive monthly increase after four months of decreases. Prices were higher for beef and veal, fresh and dried vegetables, dairy products, cereal and bakery products, processed fruits and vegetables and particularly sugar.

Prices were lower for roasted coffee, pork, processed poultry and fresh fruits.

Peace Pledge By Sadat; Belittles Syrian War Role

By SAMI RIZKALLAH
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat called his Arab critics "stupid and ignorant dwarfs" today and declared he would pursue peace with Israel despite their bitter opposition.

Sadat spoke to a cheering Cairo crowd estimated at 200,000 as Syrian President Hafez Assad flew to Saudi Arabia to seek financial pressure on Egypt and Jordan's King Hussein came to Cairo with his campaign to heal the Syrian-Egyptian split.

Speaking from a balcony of Abdin Palace, Sadat told the chanting, shouting Egyptians in Republic Square: "I bend only to the Egyptian people and I kneel only before Allah."

"I pledge to you peace as I once pledged to you war. God will give us peace based on justice."

Apparently belittling Syria's role in the 1973 Arab-Israeli War, he said: "We wrote history with the blood of Egyptians in the sand of Sinai. ... We still carry these dwarfs on our shoulders, but that is the duty of Egypt."

Assad, who fears Sadat will come to terms with Israel without getting the Golan Heights back for Syria, went to see Saudi King Khaled, Sadat's chief financial backer, after rebuffing Hussein's attempt to make peace between him and his former Egyptian ally.

A press report from Kuwait said Assad would visit there Friday. Kuwait also is a financial backer of Sadat, and the Syrian apparently was trying to stem the flow of oil money to the Egyptian leader to bring him back into line.

Hussein will follow Assad to Saudi Arabia later in the week.

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin said he also wants to meet with the Jordanian leader, and "when we talk with King Hussein, we shall make him several offers."

Begin did not elaborate, but presumably he was referring to the return of some of the West Bank of the Jordan River, which Israel took from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

The Jordanian press said the king was on a "rescue mission" to stop the "unprecedented deterioration in inter-Arab relations." But Damascus Radio, after a five-hour meeting Wednesday between Hussein and Assad, said the Syrian leader rejected "all methods of political and diplomatic action" to reconcile him with Sadat.

Sources in Damascus said Hussein suggested both Syria and Jordan attend the meeting with Israel which Sadat has scheduled in Cairo Dec. 14. Sadat called the meeting to make preparations for a new Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva, but so far, only Egypt, Israel, the United States and the United Nations will be represented.

Leaving Party Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party Chairman Kenneth Curtis said today he is leaving what he agreed is "a lousy job" because "I'd like to do something else with my life."

Curtis, who is nearing the end of his first year as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said there is no set timetable for his departure but he expects a replacement to be named at the committee's spring meeting in April.

The White House climaxed weeks of rumor and speculation by confirming Wednesday that Curtis had informed President Carter on Oct. 13 that he wanted to leave the party post.

At a news conference today, Curtis denied speculation that he was hounded out of the job by critics among the White House staff.

"I don't feel that at all," he said. "I know I have not been forced out of office."

Asked if the chairmanship was just a "lousy job," Curtis replied: "That's one way you could put it."

Curtis said the Democratic Party was still deeply in debt and that it would take many years of hard work to get it back in shape. He added that he "didn't want to put in the years" it would take.

Coal Strike Is Costing Miners $10 Million A Day, Claims Industry

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The national coal strike is costing the 160,000 striking members of the United Mine Workers $10 million a day in wages, an industry spokesman says.

Negotiations between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association were scheduled to resume today in Washington, D.C., and UMW President Arnold Miller said he asked the industry negotiators to present "a complete counter proposal" during the sessions.

The union's demands include refinancing of miners' health and retirement benefits, a limited right to strike over local grievances and a wage increase to $114.36 per day over the proposed three-year span of the pact. The maximum wage under the contract just expired was $65.36.

According to the estimates of wage and production losses by COA spokesman Morris Feibusch, the strike also will cost the union's health and retirement funds approximately $1.31 million daily. The funds, which are financed by contributions from the operators on the basis of production and manhours worked, have been financially weakened by rising medical costs and by wildcat strikes.

Reductions in the health benefits were first announced in June, touching off a 10-week wildcat strike. All medical, retirement and death benefits ceased when the miners went on strike.

The union has no strike fund, but a union spokesman said elected UMW officials will continue drawing paychecks during the strike. When the union struck in 1974, Miller and other officials worked without pay, saving the union an estimated $250,000 a month. But during the union's 1976 constitutional convention, delegates eliminated the measure.

All union-represented mines were closed Wednesday, as were many non-union mines. In some instances, the non-union mines were closed to avoid property damage or threats of violence against employees, but others were closed in sympathy with the UMW effort.

Noise Control

Chief Glenn Cannon today said local police will begin enforcement of a new noise control ordinance — adopted by the City Council December 1 — immediately.

Cannon said the ordinance regulates excessive and unnecessary noise which disturbs or in other ways bothers other residents of the city.

The ordinance, Cannon noted, regulates noise from radios, stereos, horns, musical instruments, loud speakers and amplifiers, yelling, shouting, animals, defective vehicles, exhaust systems — even pile drivers and construction site noise.

The chief noted that the ordinance provides for permits to be issued by the city's building inspector for work at construction sites at times other than from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays (i.e. for work on Saturdays and Sundays or from 6 p.m. until 7 a.m.). It also prohibits the use of pile drivers between the hours of 6 p.m. and 7 a.m.

The chief said persons complaining of excessive or disturbing noise under the new ordinance will be cited to court to testify if charges are brought against noise-makers.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MORE HELP NEEDED

Linda Baldwin of the Pitt County Department of Social Services says the response to the Dec. 1 Hotline appeal for donations for Christmas gifts for children in foster care has been good. More money is needed, however, she said.

She estimated it will take about $1,000 more to assist Santa in providing happy Christmas mornings for all the children living in foster homes throughout the county. Most of last week's donations were from individuals, she said, and she urged participation by others, plus sponsorship of a child by church and civic groups throughout the county. She, Mary Lehman or Peggy Chandler will be glad to discuss the needs with anyone who will call one of them at 758-2167, she said.

Donations may be mailed to The Department of Social Services, Box 1546, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — When the first issue of Feminist, a new women's magazine, arrived at one Tokyo bookstore, the unknown clerk stacked it in the men's magazine section.

The word "feminist" in Japanese is usually taken to mean a ladies' man.

But the magazine Feminist is one of several new publications that have appeared in recent months, each aimed at catching the changing trends and life-styles of the Japanese.

With Yoko Ono on the cover, the first issue includes articles on why Buddhism subjugates women and the mass media promotes the male image of ideal women.

The first run of 22,000 copies sold out in Tokyo's bookstores, although it didn't do as well in outlying areas.

"One of the purposes of Feminist is to introduce women's studies and cultivate Japanese cultures of the past," said founder and editor Ikuko Atsumi, who is also a poet and lecturer at Aoyama Gakuin University.

"A book like De Beauvoir's 'Second Sex' should have been written in Japan. We should learn what elements we have that made this kind of male-dominated society."

"The more women students study, the more they strengthen male society. I was a student of English literature, studied Shakespeare, Tennyson and wrote my thesis on Dylan Thomas. But I learned nothing about how to live as a woman. The female element in culture is important," she said.

"I Am Woman," another publication subtitled "Magazine for New Women," is now in its fifth issue, with a circulation of 70,000 and a staff of six. A mildly feminist magazine, it brings out some of the complaints and dilemmas of women in articles such as "New Meaning of Female Friends," "How To Be Independent" and "New Women's Universities."

"Magazines up to now have not treated women seriously," said editor Shinji Ishii. "Now they are facing the consequences as the fashion magazines pick up more readers and the television take over the scandals."

He said women's liberation is weak in Japan, making it impossible to have a straight lib magazine.

Ms. Atsumi said the women's movement in Japan is now at a more serious stage, more scholarly and intellectual.

"Still, we are five years behind American feminists. In 1972 Ms. began and other traditional magazines changed in the United States. Such changes are just starting in Japan."

Most magazines in Japan are edited by men and according to Ms. Atsumi, don't try to deal with women's fundamental problems.

"They continue with the same kind of complaining, confessions and sentimental articles. The attitude is not helpful to women — it's a kind of catharsis. Women want something to console them, to hear that other people are suffering from the same experiences."

"She must open her eyes to change, not only in Japan, but in other countries in the world. We must look at Japan from the outside. Otherwise, women are just looking after their own happiness, their own family," she said.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Psst... hey, fellas. Wanta know where you can get a G-rated girlie magazine so respectable you could bring home to your mother?

Pick up any department or clothing store catalogue these days and hit for the underwear section.

I opened a Christmas book from my favorite department store the other day and right there between Leather Goods and Floor Polisher were two pages of models in semi-stages of nudity. They wore pleated panties, satin body suits, beaded camisoles, monogrammed bikinis and nightgowns so sheer you had to wear 'em under a coat.

Don't misunderstand me. The underwear didn't shock me. It was the poor, deformed girls modeling them.

They had hipbones that looked like clothing hooks... legs that separated at the knees... and funny curves that dented in at the... oh, what do you call those little devils... waists!

I wanted to throw a coat over all of 'em and feed 'em hot chicken soup.

As I said to Mayva, "It's cruel to exploit some poor girl who can't put on a few extra pounds. Don't you think so, Mayva? Mayva! I asked you a question."

She had the book three inches from her face. "What are these?"

I squinted for a closer look. "I'm not sure, but I think they're kneecaps."

"Do we have two?"

"I told you, pregnancy absorbs them into the blood stream. These women obviously are childless."

"I don't know whether to believe you or not. You told me thin arms cause nasal congestion. Besides, our kids are teenagers."

"Trust me. Besides, no one is going to wear those scanty bits of satin and lace. Those half-starved women are nothing but a fad. Someday your style of lingerie will come back."

"You'd think they'd show at least one model wearing our underwear with the cutaway front with the elastic."

"They do, Mayva," I said. "They're under Maternity."

Pot Smoking Disturbs Aunt

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I took in my brother's son, who is now 22. He had a serious disagreement with his parents and moved out. He has always been a favorite of mine. He is a beautiful, intelligent young man, but he has one fault. He smokes marijuana. I became aware of this shortly after he moved in with me. One thing I admire about him is that he will not lie.

I have tried to accept his smoking, but I cannot. He doesn't smoke at home, but I finally gave him an ultimatum—to quit smoking entirely or to leave. He wants to stay, and says he's trying to quit, but I doubt if he can. If I turn him out, he will be completely alone. I hate to see this happen to him. I am his only contact with "family," and the only good influence in his life. He loves and respects me. I love him, too, but cannot tolerate his smoking marijuana.

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: I am told that marijuana is NOT addictive, so your nephew could quit if he really wanted to. Many have done so.

I do NOT condone the use of marijuana, but as long as he doesn't smoke it in your home I think it would be a mistake to ask him to leave. He desperately needs your positive influence in his life.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are both devout Catholics. We believe in clean living and turning away from evil.

My fiance is going to be best man at a wedding, and the bachelor stag party is coming up soon. There will be alcohol and porno movies, and I heard they've even hired a dancing girl to jump out of a cake with nothing on!

I have pleaded with my fiance not to go to this party. He says he hates to go, but there is no way he can get out of it because he's the best man.

Abby, do you think a good Christian man should be forced to witness such lowdown, disgusting entertainment if he doesn't really want to?

SICK INSIDE

DEAR SICK: No. But who is "forcing" him? As best man he could "make an appearance" but skip the entertainment.

DEAR ABBY: Jim and I are both 30. We've been married for seven years, and he's got to be the pickiest eater in the world! He hates all vegetables and most fruits, and he won't touch meat, fish or chicken. He practically lives on peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Can you believe this is a grown man and the father of two?

Dining out is embarrassing because all Jim ever orders is a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and a glass of milk. And when we're at the home of friends, he pushes his food around on the plate and doesn't eat any of it. When the hostess notices it, she asks if something is wrong with the food, and I want to crawl under the table!

Before we go to someone's home, I give him a peanut butter and jelly sandwich so he won't be hungry.

What do you advise? I don't want to give up my social life because of my husband's childish eating habits.

CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR CLEAR: You needn't sacrifice your social life because of your husband's kooky eating habits. Your friends will soon become accustomed to his idiosyncrasy and accept it. If I were you, I'd be more concerned about his health. He's asking for nutritional bankruptcy.

Coffee Essence, see below
2 cups sugar
2-3rds cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup light cream
Pinch of salt

Prepare the Coffee Essence. In a heavy 3-quart saucepan, stirring constantly over medium-low heat, bring the sugar, syrup, cream and salt to a boil. Cover and boil for 3 minutes. Uncover and continue boiling, without stirring, to 260 degrees on a candy thermometer (hard ball stage). Continue boiling, stirring constantly, to 300 degrees (brittle stage). Off heat, gently stir in the Coffee Essence. Pour into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan. Cool until almost set, about 10 minutes, then mark into small squares. Cool completely and break apart. Wrap individually in plastic wrap, twisting ends. Store in a tightly covered tin can. Makes about 1 1/4 pounds.

Coffee Essence: Simmer together 2-3rds cup percolator or drip grind coffee, 2-3rds cup water and 1 tablespoon cider vinegar until liquid is reduced to about 2 tablespoons or a little less. Using filter paper or closely woven cloth, drain liquid from grounds.

Sadat Shakes Up Neighbors

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel, which in effect opened relations between the two ancient enemies, has created a furor in the Arab world.

This week it led Sadat to defy the pressure by breaking relations with five nations which condemned him.

The move applied to Syria, Libya, Algeria, South Yemen and Iraq.

The Sadat action was even sterner against the Arab neighboring nations than that they had taken against Egypt.

The Arab world has seldom been stable, but it would have been difficult to envision Egypt breaking with other nations over a peace movement toward Israel, only a few months ago.

We have to guess that Sadat is the best judge of the mood of his own people. Perhaps the Egyptians are simply weary of the tensions caused by the constant threat of war. And, after all, if Israel were pushed off the map it would make little difference in the everyday lives of average Egyptians.

Sadat seems determined to stick to his new course regarding Israel. It could be the key to peace in the Middle East and the western world should support him in every way possible.

Yancey Will Be Difficult To Replace

Ed Yancey, chairman of the Agricultural Extension Agency for Pitt County, will be leaving at the end of the year.

He has accepted a position as south Central Agricultural District chairman and will be recruiting and placing personnel in the 11 county area.

Yancey will be difficult to replace in our large agricultural county, but we wish him well in this new position.

Cautious Over TV, Radio

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH—For about six months now, lawyers in North Carolina have been advertising in newspapers.

To date, say top officials of the North Carolina State Bar, there have been no problems. Rocky Mount Attorney Frank Spruill, chairman of the Bar's advertising committee and vice-chairman of ethics, says he personally has not seen any advertisements which cause concern; nor has he heard of any from others.

When it comes to the electronic media—radio, and particularly television—however, the State Bar is taking an extremely cautious approach.

Lawyers simply must avoid commercials with singers and dancers, girls with pretty legs, advertisements which come on strong with the Madison Avenue approach, and above all, any hint of one lawyer saying he's the best.

"The spoken word is different. It is not the same as having a printed newspaper in front of you," Bar President G. Woodrow Teague of Raleigh believes.

Reading

In a newspaper advertisement the reader can study the words, reflect on meanings, and refer back to the information time and again, at leisure, Teague explains.

Broadcast messages are fleeting, often emotional, do not provide a record for future study, and are subject to various interpretations depending upon such subtleties as voice inflections, or facial expressions.

"Are the dangers too real and do they outweigh whatever good that might come in immediately expanding the manner of advertising the availability of legal services to the public," Teague wonders.

The advertising committee of the State Bar is currently working on guidelines which will allow electronic advertising as well as print. Consideration is scheduled at the January meeting of the executive council.

"We want to cooperate with the electronic media. We believe that the electronic media should be included in controlled advertising," says

Legal Agency

The State Bar, incidentally, is a creation of the General Assembly and charged with statutory authorities in examining, licensing, and disciplining the profession. It is sometimes confused with the North Carolina Bar Association which is a voluntary organization devoted to furtherance of the interests of the profession.

The activities involving advertising come in the wake of a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States which requires states to permit lawyer advertisements, but suggests state regulation of the activities. Guidelines for printed advertising have been put into effect. It is up to lawyers to adhere to those guidelines, or answer to the Bar.

Bar officials insist restriction of advertising is purely designed to protect the public interest in securing legal help of a competent, ethical, and economical sort.

"I don't think the successful lawyer is at all worried about competition," Spruill said.

NOBLITT

Should questions or complaints arise, a panel of lawyers would be called upon to judge and interpret the material.

This approach, says Spruill, does not constitute censoring either of newspaper ads or electronic commercials. "It is control of the person over whom we have jurisdiction... the lawyer; and not over the media over which we have no jurisdiction. It fixes responsibility on the lawyer, and he must answer to the Bar...."

The Paramount Rights

We have the greatest communication system in the world, but it sometimes takes an awfully long time for news to travel across our land. Nearly a month ago, a California court decided a case involving the rights of patient and doctor in the matter of Laetrile, but if word of this important decision has traveled east, the word has escaped local libertarians concerned with the issue.

This was a criminal case, brought against Dr. James Robert Privaterra, Jr., and five co-defendants. They were charged with a felony, to wit, conspiracy to prescribe and supply an unapproved drug, Laetrile, intended for the alleviation or cure of cancer. A jury convicted all the defendants.

They appealed to the Fourth Appellate District, Court of Appeal. On Nov. 10, the court reversed the convictions and held that the California law violates the rights of doctors and patients alike. In the course of its 56-page opinion, the two-man majority (Judges Robert O. Staniforth and Gerald Brown) made an exceptionally strong case for the doctrines of freedom of choice. Judge Gordon Cologne, dissenting, defended the power of the state to dictate what doctors may prescribe and patients may receive.

The case thus offered a classic confrontation between rights and powers. In the majority view, only a compelling state interest can justify laws intended to punish a licensed physician for prescribing a non-toxic substance to an informed and consenting patient. Staniforth and Brown could find no such compelling state interest in the criminal case before them. The undoubted power of a state to legislate against quackery must yield, in their view, to the superior right of a cancer patient to choose between "approved" and "unapproved" forms of treatment.

Laetrile, for those who may have come late to the controversy, is a compound derived from amygdalin, a substance that occurs widely in fruits, berries and other natural material. Usually it is extracted from apricot pits. In the absence of scientifically acceptable proof of its efficacy, the federal authorities officially regard Laetrile as a worthless drug.

As the California court made clear in the Privaterra case, others have a different view. Some doctors insist that in combination with a carefully controlled diet, Laetrile may indeed be effective in reducing the weight loss—and the agonizing pain—of some cancer victims. To the California court, such conflicting claims are immaterial.

Wrote Judge Staniforth: "To require the doctor to use only orthodox 'state sanctioned' methods of treatment under threat of criminal penalty for variance is to invite a repetition in California of the Soviet experience with 'Lysenkoism.' The mention of a requirement that licensed doctors must prescribe and treat within 'state sanctioned alternative' raises the spectre of medical stagnation at best, statism, paternalistic Big Brother at worst."

It is not only the licensed physician, but also the patient, whose rights become paramount. The patient has "a fundamental and compelling

Street Light Study

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission begins hearings next month in an area most people take for granted but which could make vast changes in the way North Carolina cities look at night.

The commission will be trying to find out whether new types of street lights save enough energy compared to the now-prevalent mercury vapor lights to require that all new street lights be of the newer varieties and possibly that existing lights be "retrofitted" with the new lamps.

The new lights give off a more brilliant light than most present street lights, and some of them bathe their surroundings in an orange glow.

The hearings were called for by the commission's public staff at the request of manufacturers of the lights and others who are aware of the energy savings they can make possible.

"We'd like the hearings to be for the general public," said staff member Andrew Williams. "We'll be talking about street lights, but it will be an open discussion and we hope developers and others who use outdoor lighting will come and see what they could save for themselves."

About 80 percent of North Carolina's street lights are operated by the utility companies that keep them burning, and the utilities have more practical knowledge than most participants in the upcoming hearings of the strengths and weaknesses of old and new street lights.

"The new high and low pressure sodium lamps are twice as energy efficient as the mercury vapor lamps which form the backbone of our present system," said Don Denton, vice president for marketing of Duke Power Co., which operates about 125,000 street lights.

"But the efficiency doesn't offset the higher cost of in-

THE GALLUP POLL

Generation Gap Remains

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — A nationwide survey, probing the dimensions of the generation gap, brings these key findings to light:

- While a majority of 55 per cent of parents of teenagers say they get on "very well" with their offspring, as many as 44 per cent say they get on only "fairly well" or "not at all well." One of the parents surveyed who admits his relationship with his teenage boys leaves something to be desired is a 41-year-old skilled laborer from Lakewood, Ohio, who says, "There is a void — we don't have anything to say to each other; even having something to argue about would be refreshing."
- Parents and teenagers are in remarkable agreement on the state of their current relationship. An earlier Gallup Youth Survey shows 56 per cent of teenagers saying they get on "very well" with their parents, while 44 per cent said "fairly" or "not at all well."
- When asked whether they think they are "too strict" with their teenage children, or "not strict enough," a majority of 54 per cent volunteer "about right." But three in 10 (29 per cent) say they are "not strict enough" and 11 per cent say "too strict."
- One of the areas where parents feel they are not strict enough is that of drinking and drug use. In fact, as reported recently, a key reason alcohol abuse among U.S. teenagers has reached such frightening proportions may be the fact that as many as one-fourth of parents do not have any rules or guidelines regarding the use of alcohol by their teenage children.
- Fathers and mothers are in agreement that mothers generally get on better with their teenage children. And there is no disagreement with teenagers themselves; both teenage boys and girls say they get on better with their mothers than with their fathers.
- Disagreements with teenagers are most frequently over chores, rights and responsibilities, and evening curfew. Also frequently mentioned are homework, money, going out, the kind of company kept by teenage children, and dress and hygiene.

Following are verbatim comments:

"We don't communicate — we lash out over the wrong things" (42-year-old professional woman, Jonesboro, Ga.).

"We argue most about my son's use of time, such as the amount spent for studying and for entertainment, and what time to be home in the evening" (44-year-old laborer, male, Anaheim, Calif.).

All persons in the survey were first asked this question: "Do you have any children in their teens?"

The 24 per cent of survey respondents who answered in the affirmative were then asked:

"How well would you say you get on with your teenager(s) — very well, fairly well, or not at all well?"

NATIONAL	56%	41%	2%	1%
Teenage boys	60	38	2	*

The character meaning "righteousness" consists of the picture of a lamb, and beneath it the character meaning "I myself." The lamb above me—that in Chinese means righteousness.

It is a very interesting coincidence that the lamb is an

NEW YORK (AP) — Wait till next year.

That suggestion is implicit in year-end statements being dispatched from manufacturers, bankers and even from the Carter White House.

While the business community might not be as certain as the president that his policies will become clearer, they are basing many of their plans on the hope that they will.

Stock prices, capital spending plans, consumer attitudes and other aspects of the economy are in limbo, it is suggested, awaiting clarification.

Why is the stock market dallying?

economics policy become clearer. Or so they say.

Even the president suggested that. "We will have the business community with a much clearer concept of what our economic goals are," he told the New York Times.

While the business community might not be as certain as the president that his policies will become clearer, they are basing many of their plans on the hope that they will.

Stock prices, capital spending plans, consumer attitudes and other aspects of the economy are in limbo, it is suggested, awaiting clarification.

Why is the stock market dallying?

"The basic fundamentals indicated a significant rise in stock prices, yet investors await clarification of government policies before making major commitments to equities," says the vice president of a large Chicago bank.

Why is capital spending viewed as unexceptional?

"Financial conditions are favorable and capacity utilization is rising," explains the Conference Board. "But pervasive uncertainty—over tax and energy policy, economic growth and other issues—has dampened investment."

The promise implicit in such statements is that when these uncertainties are removed the engineers of industry and finance will blow their whistles and wave the train forward.

Perhaps. It depends on at least two other factors:

—Clearing up problems that afflict certain industries rather than the economy in general.

Steel, for example, has its own special problems with imports and pollution control and furnaces that might have to be closed rather than brought up to modern standards.

—Whether the clarifications are interpreted to be good news or bad.

Albert Cox, head of Merrill Lynch Economics, observes that clarification in itself probably will not make a bit of difference. It is the nature of the clarification, he says.

In truth, many economists feel there is more apology than promise in the cry of "wait till next year." Seldom have they achieved such a neat consensus—that expansion in 1978 will be less than in 1977.

And looking back over the year, they concede there were instances in which expansion was stalled by uncertainty, but they observe also that 1977 was hardly a year of idling but instead was one of fairly strong advances.

Combine To Unseat Portuguese Govm't

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communists, conservatives and centrists joined forces to vote Premier Mario Soares and his minority Socialist government out of office early today. Prospects of forming a new government were dim.

Portugal's first democratic government in half a century was defeated 159-100 because economic expansionists on both the left and right opposed the government's economic austerity program. Only the Socialists voted for the government.

There was no indication who President Antonio Ramalho Eanes might choose to try to form a new cabinet. Meanwhile, Soares and his cabinet remain in office as a caretaker regime.

one could form a workable government and elections for a new parliament would be necessary early next year.

The Socialists hold 101 of the 262 seats in Parliament and are the largest party, but Soares has said repeatedly he would not form a coalition with another party. There is no other way of forming a parliamentary majority of 132 votes since the centrist Social Democrats have 73 seats, the conservative Social Democratic Center has 41, and the Communists have 40.

Set Hearing On Monitor

NEW BERN — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and the State of North Carolina will hold a public meeting to discuss management of the famous Civil War ironclad "Monitor" on Friday, Dec. 9.

The meeting, to be held at 7:30 p.m. at Tryon Palace Auditorium, will include management discussion as well as future research on the vessel. Commander Phillip C. Johnson, NOAA, director of the National Marine Sanctuaries Program, and Dr. Larry E. Tise, director of the N. C. Division of Archives and History, will address the meeting and answer questions.

Topics to be covered include NOAA's management of the Monitor Marine Sanctuary, past and future research at the site, and permitting procedures for research in the sanctuary.

There is no admission charge, and the public is encouraged to attend.

Center Planning Change Status

W. M. Phillippe Jr., president of the Pitt County Convalescent Center here, filed notice recently of intent to incur a capital expenditure for the purpose of changing ownership of the facility from a partnership to a proprietary corporation.

The project proposal has been submitted to the N.C. Department of Human Resources, State Health Planning and Development Agency for review by planning agencies.

ing interest to choose or to reject his or her own medical treatment" on the doctor's advice. But the effect of the California criminal statute is to prohibit such a choice. The patient is offered "bureaucratically predetermined treatment or none."

If the evidence suggested fraud or deception, the majority indicated, it might be a different matter. But Dr. Privitera's patients "are not wide-eyed country bumpkins seeking to be conned." The patients were "knowledgeable persons fully aware of the nature of the state sanctioned alternatives." "One such patient, an elderly man with cancer of the prostate, was told what the state approved: prostate removal, castration, and female hormone treatment for the rest of his life. "The victim simply refused to accept these alternatives and sought amygdalin treatment."

To deny an informed cancer victim access to unorthodox treatment "must surely take on a Kafkaesque, a nightmare quality. No demonstrated public danger, no compelling interest of the state, warrants an Orwellian intrusion into the most private of zones of privacy. . . From the terminal patient's viewpoint a new depth of inhumanity is reached by a broad sweep of this law so interpreted."

Doubtless California prosecutors will appeal the Stanforth-Brown decision. Meanwhile the opinion rings with the pure ring of the Liberty Bell.

stalling and maintaining them," he added. "The energy street lights consume is not the major component of their cost. It's capital expenditure and maintenance."

Duke has installed sodium lamps in downtown Charlotte and other cities, but Denton said energy efficiency is only one of many considerations that should lead to use of the newer equipment.

"It's a matter of taste, size of the road, the light levels you want, the configuration of the existing equipment," Denton said. "It's a complex engineering calculation for each situation."

Denton said Duke will attend the Jan. 17 hearing in Raleigh with "an open mind," but he said the company would not support regulations which — in the name of energy conservation — deprived communities of the type of lighting they wanted.

He said it would make more sense to phase in the newer lights in large cities, transferring their existing lights to areas where very bright lights were not needed and there is less money to spend on street lights.

"Street lighting consumes only six tenths of 1 percent of our electricity," Denton said. "If they want to legislate conservation through the utilities, I'd hate to think of all the things you could think of for them to do."

The worry that Oswald might have had accomplices also troubled the director. Hoover wrote his aides Dec. 12, 1963:
"I personally believe Oswald was the assassin; that the second aspect is to whether he was the only man gives me great concern."
"(I) didn't want to put speculation in the report;... this was the reason I urged strongly that we not reach the conclusion that Oswald was the only man."

Numerous pages document the FBI's extensive search to trace Oswald's movements in September 1963, when he went to Mexico City to seek a visa to Cuba from its embassy there. Portions of the pages are blacked out, presumably to protect CIA surveillance techniques there.
Ruby was given no less attention. Reports that he had big time gambling interests instead of one Dallas girly bar were pursued through hundreds of interviews. The conclusion: Ruby "has not been established" as a casino king.

Charge Blue Law Violation

Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning that Michael Gregory Wright, 24 of 102D Cherry Ct. was arrested Sunday by officers on charges of violating the city's Sunday sales ordinance or Blue Law.
The chief said Wright was charged after investigators purchased items about 2:35 p.m. which are prohibited under the Blue Law.
Wright, a pharmacist, is assistant manager of Clow Drug Store at West End Circle Shopping Center where the alleged violation occurred.

Public Response Said Very Good

Reese Helms, manager of Greenville Utilities' energy conservation office, reported that initial public response to GUC's new "Beat the Peak" project has been very good.
Helms pointed out, "We've had over 200 volunteer applications during the first week of the program and we anticipate that this level of response will continue."
"Beat the Peak" is a program designed to reduce peak electrical demand and save on electric power costs through the support of residential customers.

Savings realized through the cycling off of major appliances during peak load periods are being passed along to participating customers in the form of a $7.50 deduction from their utility bills for the months of June through September, Helms said.
He noted that the installation of special switches on electric water heaters and central air conditioning units or heat pumps is scheduled to begin in late February.

Pitt Portion In $3,798

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Arts Council is now accepting application for Pitt County's portion of Grassroots Arts Program funds, awarded by the 1977 State Legislature. The amount allocated for Pitt County is $3,798.
These funds are available to assist non-profit, tax-exempt organizations in carrying out community arts programs taking place during the period January-June 1978.
Awards will require a matching amount in cash from the recipient organization's budget, although the matching funds do not necessarily have to be used for the funded project.

Individual requests are limited to a maximum of $1,000. Deadline for receipt of applications is January 5, 1978. Forms and other information may be obtained by writing to the North Carolina Arts Council, Department of Cultural Resources, Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

The Grassroots Arts Program provides a per capita amount of a little less than five cents to be spent at the local level for the arts. Where possible the state arts council is distributing a county's total allocation through a designated local distributing agent, which meets certain guidelines and is nominated by the board of county commissioners and approved by the North Carolina Arts Council board.

Pitt County, according to the arts council, has no distributing agent, so that applications must be on an individual agency basis.

Returns Home, Not Talking

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Winston-Salem woman who disappeared last month in Charlotte has returned home safely but won't talk about her absence, according to a relative.
Jane Frazier, a 34-year-old divorced mother of two children, dropped out of sight while she was on a two-day shopping expedition in Charlotte. Police traced her to a motel lounge in Charlotte on the night of Nov. 12 and also said she was sighted during the early hours of Nov. 13 at the Charlotte railway station, buying a ticket to Los Angeles.
Police said she was later spotted in Los Angeles.
Dave Frazier, brother of Mrs. Frazier's former husband, said Wednesday night in a telephone interview from Winston-Salem that he had visited Mrs. Frazier Tuesday in her home. She would not tell him why she had gone to California, he said.
"The only thing I can say is she's back and she's okay. Maybe someday I'll know it all," he said.
Police in Charlotte and Winston-Salem learned Wednesday that the woman had returned but they would not say how they knew. No charges are pending against her.

Police feared that foul play was involved in Mrs. Frazier disappearance after her car was found in Charlotte, with her broken glasses and empty purse in the car. Bloodstains were also found in the vehicle.

May Get Raise After 50 Years

EAST GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The mayor and commissioners of East Grand Rapids are drawing the same salaries as their predecessors of 50 years back. But things may change.
A charter adopted in 1927, when East Grand Rapids became a city, set the top salary for mayor and commissioners at $360 a year. The pay for the part-time positions never changed.
Now a commission has proposed boosting the mayor's pay

Political Ties Are Criticized

NEW YORK (AP) — A Presbyterian minister who has written a book about the Rev. Billy Graham says he believes the evangelist should avoid politicians.
"I feel that he should stay at arm's length from world political figures," David Poling, an Albuquerque, N.M., minister, said Wednesday.
Poling criticized Graham's involvement with several presidents, including former President Richard M. Nixon. He also suggested that Graham should avoid prayer breakfasts in the future.

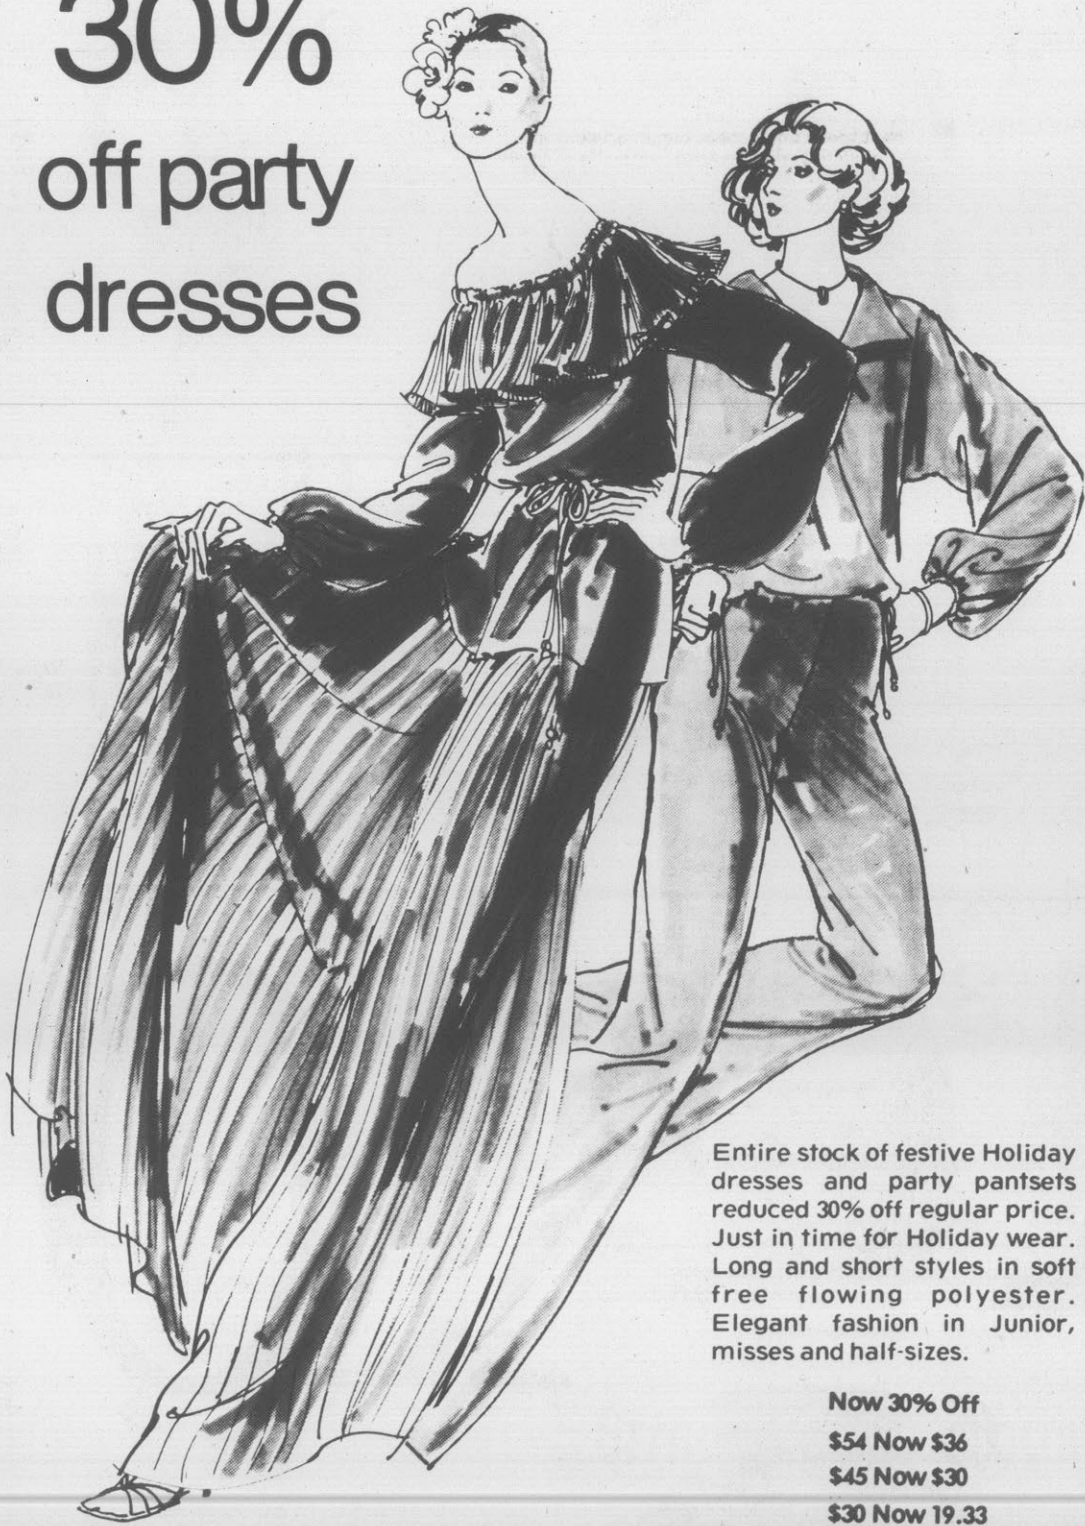

Play Performed At Academy

On Monday, Dec. 5, the Robin Hood Players of Scottsdale, Ariz., performed at Pace Academy for the entire student body.
The one-act comedy was about the life and times of Mark Twain. In the spring, the Robin Hood Players will present a production by Shakespeare at Pace.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries, snow and rain are due today from Tennessee into the Midwest, Great Lakes and Northeast. Snow is also expected from the northern Rockies into the northern Plains. Warm weather is due from Texas to southern Rockies but most of the country is expected to be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map.)

By The Associated Press

Rain is expected to move into the mountains of western North Carolina tonight, possibly beginning as snow or mixed with snow or sleet at first. Scattered showers are expected to spread eastward along and ahead of a cold front Friday with a chance of a few thundershowers over the coastal area.

Highs Friday will range from the upper 30s and low 40s in the mountains to the 50s in the east.

The rain is expected to end from west to east Friday as a new surge of arctic air moves in. Extremely cold weather is expected Saturday and Sunday with highs mostly in the 30s and lows in the teens and 20s.

It was cold and windy across the state Wednesday. High temperatures were only in the 30s with northerly winds between 10 and 20 miles per hour most of the day. Clear skies and light winds allowed temperatures to drop back into the teens and 20s this morning, bringing record lows over most of the state. In Asheville, the low of five degrees Wednesday morning was the coldest ever recorded there in December. The 12 degree figure recorded at 4:30 this morning set another record and made the third consecutive day with record low readings in Asheville. The low of 16 at Raleigh-Durham was a record for Dec. 8 there.

West Germans 'Flower People'

By EDELGARD SIMON HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — West Germans are among the world's leading flower lovers. They buy a thousand tons of fresh flowers a week.

Last year, they spent about $2.3 billion on fresh flowers, an average $38 per capita, compared with only $12 per head spent on ice cream.

West Germans began splurging on flowers when they began earning higher incomes, and the nation reached full employment.

The floral industry had anticipated a drop in business following the economic recession.

But to everyone's surprise, flower sales continued to climb. "Flowers are like drugs, you get hooked on them," says Horst Meyer, president of the Floral Advertisers Associations. He also said flowers help people forget their worries and woes.

The recession also provided a sound economic reason for the increase in flower sales.

"I've stopped giving my business associates engraved pens for Christmas and anniversaries," said Malte Tietchen, operator of a public relations firm in Hamburg. "I send nice floral arrangements instead. They're much cheaper."

Flowers are considerably less expensive than the leather card cases and wallets, boxes of chocolates, baskets of delicacies and cases of wine ordinarily sent business associates during boom years. The recipients seem no less pleased. Flower power is evident everywhere. Florists' shops abound in big cities. Even small towns each have at least one. They are a must at railroad and subway stations, bus terminals and airports, where arriving and departing travelers are welcomed or sped on their way with bouquets.

They are so important that trading regulations permit them to open for business two hours each Sunday, when all other retailers except bakery shops must remain closed.

Ten years ago, men bought 65 per cent of the cut flowers. Now, women buy 65 per cent, mainly because women have more money of their own.

It is not unusual to see a helmeted, jeans-clad teen-ager whizzing along on his motorcycle, with a bouquet of flowers clamped firmly to the back carrier.

Flowers are sold in odd numbers instead of the half dozen or dozen traditional in the United States. The Germans say odd numbers of flowers are easier to arrange, indeed, almost arrange themselves when placed in a vase.

A guest always gives flowers to the hostess, choosing the colors carefully.

"Red roses speak their own language," Erica Pappritz explains in her "Modern Etiquette," now the standard work in this field. "Beautiful women easily decode the language, but their husbands as easily misunderstand it."

"In the case of couples, the man always presents the flowers to the hostess," Miss Pappritz adds. "He removes the paper wrapping from the flowers before handing them to her."

"He should make his preparations before pushing the doorbell button, because it is possible that instead of the maid or the butler (assuming such household staff is available) the hostess herself opens the door. And it would be quite embarrassing if he began only then to uncover the fragrant present."

Miss Pappritz neglects to say what the man should do with the paper wrapping. Lacking guidance on this vital point, some men roll it into a ball and drop it in the host's garden or a corner of the stairwell, some can withdraw from the party and discreetly ditch it. Others just give it to their wives.

Join Investigating Of Financial Role

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Northwestern Financial Corp., beset by legal problems with federal agencies, is now under investigation by the state Attorney General's office, the Winston-Salem Journal reported today.

The Journal reported that the state was investigating the possibility that insurance commissions from Northwestern Security Life, a Northwestern subsidiary, were paid to a firm called Midland Insurance in the Cayman Islands.

State insurance regulations forbid collection of commissions from insurance sold in North Carolina by anyone but agents licensed by the state.

The FBI agent in charge of the Northwestern investigation, Thomas Brereton, testified earlier this year that Midland was a subsidiary of Southern Bank and Trust Co.

Brereton said that former Northwestern Bank board chairman Edwin Duncan Jr. owned a controlling interest in Southern Bank and Trust Co.

Northwestern also has a branch bank on Grand Cayman Island south of Cuba. Brereton testified during a bond hearing for Duncan last summer that Southern Bank and Trust Co. was operated by an employee of the Northwestern Cayman branch.

Both Southern Bank and Midland Insurance were "one-room, one-employee" operations, Brereton said.

Duncan was convicted earlier this year on charges of eavesdropping on Internal Revenue Service agents and misapplying bank funds. He pleaded guilty to a charge of eavesdropping on FBI agents.

Jimmy's White House Is Word-Conscious

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sometimes corrects grammar and spelling in memos submitted by underlings. Maybe he should turn his attention to their speech texts.

The office of Robert Lipshutz, White House counsel, once handed reporters a text in which Lipshutz reported that leaders of the developing nations are busy "irradiating illeracy." That's not a typographical error, or errors. At least, not here. Lipshutz also was quoted as using the following ungrammatical phrase: "out of respect of the inherent dignity and man and woman."

Dr. Peter Bourne, the president's special assistant for health issues, is a learned man. But someone, presumably a speechwriter, recently had him spelling minuscule as miniscule.

During the campaign, Carter himself earned a reputation for precise use of words. He is not infallible, of course. For example, Carter likes to talk about the "enormity" of the energy problem. The preferred definitions of the word in Webster's New World Dictionary are "great wickedness" and "a monstrous or outrageous act; very wicked crime."

Carter presumably uses the word as a reference to "enormous size or extent; vastness." But the dictionary says this is "generally considered a loose usage."

In the first months of the Carter administration, foreign policy adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski kept himself so far out of the public eye that he was rumored to be reluctant to appear on television talk shows or otherwise make bids for personal publicity.

More recently, the president's Polish-born assistant for national security affairs has appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and held a series of briefings for White House reporters, two of them on the record. He has not appeared a bit bashful.

That brings to mind former President Nixon's German-born assistant for national security affairs, Henry A. Kissinger also stayed in the background as a White House newcomer, but not for long.

Should Brzezinski decide to "go public" on a grander scale, he can call on staff advisers experienced in the realm of journalism and public relations.

For the first time, Brzezinski and the National Security Council staff he heads have their own professional spokesman. He is Jerrold Schecter, former diplomatic editor of Time magazine, whose title is associate press secretary.

In addition Brzezinski recently borrowed Fred Shaver, former U.S. Embassy spokesman in Venezuela, from the U.S. Information Agency. Shaver is expected to return to USIA soon, and it is not yet clear whether he will be replaced.

But Shaver's presence, however brief, has heightened speculation that Brzezinski will prove to be no shrinking violet. Past administrations relied on career foreign service officers to speak for the NSC.

One of them, Richard Moose, has gone on to serve as assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

DID I DO THAT? — Rusty, supposedly the best friend of Bob Bartmess, gazes at the rubble he left behind when he turned his dog talents to getting out of the family garage. Bartmess had intended for Rusty to spend the night in the garage because of a forecast of cold weather in Helena, Mont. Rusty, however, bit and clawed until he wrecked the door and adjacent sheetrock to the tune of $175. He spent the night in the snow. (AP Laserphoto)

Flood Of Tips Unveiled In The Kennedy Killing

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There was Hobo Smith. And a Miami Beach gangster called Jimmy Blue Eyes.

A French woman named Truth. And Glenn T. Carthron, a telephone-pole creosote salesman, who said Jimmy Hoffa made public Wednesday by the FBI — 40,001 pages to be precise — show the bureau chased tips from shoeshine boys, mental patients, artists, drunks, telephone operators, businessmen, housewives. Almost anyone who offered anything by way of help made it into the official record.

A Michigan man telephoned FBI headquarters to say the Russians had paid five men to kill Kennedy. An agent investigated. He duly reported two empty whiskey bottles and the man's inability to get out of bed.

A woman suggested that agents investigate graffiti on a bathroom wall at a Maryland restaurant. One agent thought a chalk scrawl inside a boxcar in Michigan might be Lee Harvey Oswald's. Check it out, he ordered.

Hobo Smith was from Spartanburg, S.C. "Locate and interview," ordered Washington. The files aren't clear about what agents found, but it couldn't have been much.

The matter of "Suspect Smith," as agents called him, was dropped as a "chronic complaint."

Agents heard about Jimmy Blue Eyes from a shoeshine boy.

The gangster was quoted as saying, "They should have gotten the whole family, including Robert Kennedy."

The Miami field office reported it to Director J. Edgar Hoover. Not much came of that investigation, either. Seems that Jimmy Blue Eyes didn't really mean it.

"Angele" was how the French woman signed her letter.

"Is Hitler really dead and buried?" she wrote. "Yes, I know, you were told he is, although it has not been proved."

But I, 'Truth,' am telling you that that monster is not dead ... You are now warned, be watchful and merciless. ...

"Attacks can take place within the very near future."

Her handwriting matched nothing in the bureau's Anonymous Letter File. Dead end.

Agents reported Carthron, who peddled creosote to keep telephone poles from rotting, described his message from God this way: "He told of his being in his room at the Ben Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., and while in the bathroom a light came through the transom and a voice spoke ... He told of being so frightened he fell to the floor and held onto the bathroom fixtures."

Bible Thieves Did Not Read

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police in this Bible-belt town say three men arrested in connection with a Bible-stealing ring this week would have been better off if they read the books.

"Thou shalt not steal — it's in the Bible," one police officer said. "They should have read the Bible. We are in the Bible belt here and things might go pretty rough on them. They might get struck by lightning."

Police say the arrests are related to the thefts of up to 1,200 Bibles worth an estimated $30,000 from a company which claims to be one of the largest publishers of Bibles in the nation. The books were later sold in the North, police say.

Officers said they expected more arrests and had recovered hundreds of the Bibles stolen from the warehouse of Thomas Nelson Publishers.

"Never before to my knowledge in nine years of police work have I heard of this kind of thing," said Police Det. David Leaver, 30.

"I've heard of one or two Bibles being stolen from motel rooms, but this is the first time an organized Bible theft ring has been uncovered that I know of," he said.

Officers arrested a Nelson employee Monday night. On Tuesday, two more suspects, one a former employee, were taken into custody and accused of receiving and concealing 1,200 stolen Bibles.

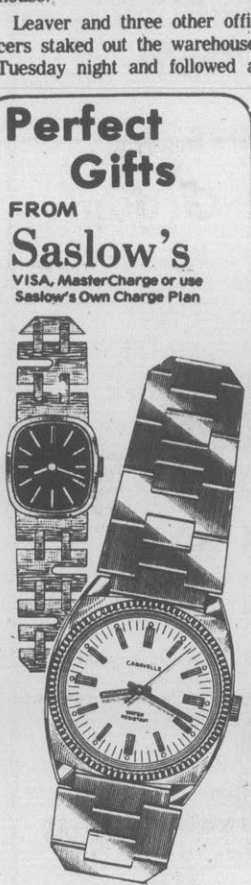

Leaver said authorities were "trying to find out now what their connections were." He said the missing Bibles had shown up in several Northern bookstores.

"They were different colors and kinds, with leather backs," Leaver said. "They were pretty expensive Bibles. They'd be retailed for $19.95 to $39.95. There was $30,000 worth. They had an inside connection at the warehouse."

Leaver and three other officers staked out the warehouse Tuesday night and followed a truck from there to a service station. Leaver told a reporter they saw the Bibles transferred to two pickup trucks and followed them to a trailer park. The policemen moved in as the Bibles were transferred to a small storehouse.

Humphrey Endured Long Nights, Taunts, Slightings

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be places more depressing than an airport terminal long after midnight: vast, empty, echoing, a place to depart or to arrive, but not to be.

Behind unattended ticket counters, the displaced traveler can read a gazetteer of cities that can't be reached at this hour.

Maybe later. That roster of American places must stir a special pang for the man who is running for president, trying to reach every one of those cities and a thousand more.

For him, this ghostly airport is even more depressing, for while he waits here for a tardy campaign aide assigned to drive him to still another motel, the candidate can only ponder all the places he cannot reach, all the people he cannot hope to persuade.

Of this there can be no more compelling evidence than the fact that one night, long ago, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was just such a political traveler, stranded in the quiet cavern of Miami International Airport. That was in 1972, in his last real quest for the White House, and he was campaigning for a Florida presidential primary he would lose to George C. Wallace.

His charter flight arrived early, his driver arrived late, and there was nothing to do but pace the hard, echoing floor.

"Damn," he snapped at the emptiness, and talked of the rigors of running, questioned whether it was worth the effort, whether a man really had to endure nights like that in order to lead.

Humphrey endured them, along with taunts and slightings that might have soured a lesser man. He has spent a generation and more demonstrating that a politician does not have to be president in order to lead.

In these days of his last illness, under treatment for inoperable cancer, there is praise, eulogy, celebration of a career that spanned decades of change. It has stretched from the New Deal to Jimmy Carter, has seen him strive, and lose, in three major quests for the presidency, a hope that still glimmered even after Carter had taken command of the Democratic Party in 1976.

And Humphrey has had at least as much to do with the major changes of his times as have the men who bested him in presidential contest.

The building that houses the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been named for him. About $5 million of a $20 million quota has been raised to endow the Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota.

About 2,500 people, Carter among them, were at a $1,000-a-plate dinner for that cause last Friday night. Now there is to be a nationwide campaign for mailed contributions to the institute.

But in these bittersweet observances, there is something awry. It begins to sound as though they celebrate some philosopher-politician more at home in the cozier than in the arena.

That's not Hubert Humphrey. For all the travail, he relished the fight.

It is an easy gesture for President Carter to say now that the desk in the Oval Office should once have belonged to Humphrey.

"I've called him on the phone when I was in trouble," Carter said. "I've gotten his quiet and private and sound advice."

But back in the arena, in the campaign spring of 1976, when Humphrey loomed as a threat to Carter's march to the Democratic presidential nomination, there was no such sentiment. Carter said then that Humphrey, at 64, was too old to be president — and besides, he was a loser.

That was politics, and Humphrey understands politics. His he described as the politics of joy, even when that line had a ring of irony amid the tear gas and truncheons of Chicago at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Later that year he crossed paths with Richard M. Nixon in

New York City, at a formal dinner that lasted until near midnight. Nixon went off to his hotel. Humphrey flew to Detroit to campaign the night away at a discotheque.

Pilot Program On Hiring Handicapped

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A pilot program — "Project Help" — was announced today by Gov. Jim Hunt in a move to expand the hiring of handicapped people in state government.

The one-year program calls for the hiring of about 25 handicapped workers in government agencies, using $280,000 in grants from the Division of Community Employment.

"More than 10 percent of the population of North Carolina is handicapped, and thousands of handicapped people are either unemployed or underemployed," said Hunt. "The state has made recent progress in hiring more handicapped workers, but in order to keep leading through example, the state must hire more handicapped people."

Project Help will be administered through the Office of State Personnel. Funds are being made available under Titles II and VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Although the funding is for one year only, the governor said it is hoped that the project will result in permanent jobs for the workers. Their salary range will be about $8,500.

First Class Girl Scout

Betsy Costello, Rt. 2, Ayden, was recently awarded First Class in the Girl Scouts.

She is a member of Girl Scout Cadette Troop 223 of Ayden.

Miss Costello qualified for this honor by completing four challenges and 17 badges over a two-year period in the Heritage Council of Virginia.

Last week she received a Recognition Certificate from the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina and a message of congratulations from the White House signed by President Carter.

Miss Costello joined Girl Scouting in September of 1970 as a Brownie and was a member of the Council of the Nations Capital in Oxon Hill, Md.

She is a student at Ayden-Grifton High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Costello and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parkerson of Greenville.

New Chief Of Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Paul Freeman, former Montana bureau chief for The Associated Press and an AP membership executive for three southern states, has been appointed chief of AP operations in North Carolina, succeeding John O. Lumpkin.

Lumpkin has been named bureau chief for the AP in Iowa and Nebraska, effective Dec. 18.

The appointments were announced Wednesday by Keith Fuller, president and general manager of the news cooperative.

Short Course For Mothers

Young mothers and young mothers-to-be enrolled in Greenville City Schools Extended Day Program were offered a short course showing them simple activities and exercises that they can use to teach their babies.

Martin Bd. Supports Weyerhaeuser Contention

WILLIAMSTON — A resolution to support Weyerhaeuser Company in its contention that it cannot afford the estimated $69 million it would cost to convert from its present disposal system was approved by members of the Martin County Commissioners Monday.

The Department of Environmental Management has ruled that Weyerhaeuser's disposal of commercial wastes into Welch's Creek is environmentally unsound and that a new disposal plan must be put into effect.

Officials of the company have indicated the change would cost an estimated $69 million, a figure they cannot afford to pay.

Welch's Creek, the stream into which disposal is made, is located adjacent to the plant in Martin County at the Martin-Washington Counties boundary line. The stream flows into the Roanoke River.

A public hearing on the issue was held November 30, at which time a 30 day period was allocated for all interested parties to make written expressions of support or non-support of the ruling by the environmental agency.

The resolution approved by Martin County Commissioners represents the board's stand on the issue.

On the issue of additional funds for the Martin County Rescue Squad, the board approved an allocation of $7,000 for a survey to determine what the overall needs really are. Williamston Councilman Jack Haden appeared before the board with a request for $26,500 in additional rescue squad funds to provide for the hiring of additional personnel for the rescue squad.

Relative to a request for funds to help the Martin County Board of Education purchase a van to transport multi-handicapped children, the board approved giving assistance if funds can be found in the budget for that purpose. The request was made by Eugene Rogers, Superintendent of the County Schools. A program for the multi-handicapped is scheduled to be put into operation shortly after the first of the new year. Earl Moore of the Department of Transportation made a status report on road improvement plans in the county. He reported that Road 1108 is the subject of a study to determine a road arrangement that would be more suitable for people living along the road. The board approved a motion to blacktop Road 1516, the Jones Road.

No action was taken on a request for an eighth grade group of students to become involved in restoration work on the old county jail. Commissioners expressed an opinion that such work by minors would involve many problems, and that all angles would have to be checked out before approval could be considered.

In other actions, the board:

— Approved the appointment of Jean Biggs, the county's Director of Social Services, as the county representative on Title 20 Board, on dealing with federal funds;

— Approved a change in termination date, from February

'78 to October '78, for members of the hospital board so that board membership termination would coincide with the annual meeting;

— Approved several tax relief orders. In election of officers, John

House was elected chairman of the county commissioners, and Paul Barber was elected vice-chairman. Donnie Pittman was elected clerk.

Other commission members are A. C. Bailey, Russell Griffin, and Francis Worsley.

Fallen Leaves Are Valuable Resource

Pitt County farmers know the value of crop residue — such as remnants of corn or small grain crops — to conserve moisture, increase infiltration, reduce soil losses and improve soil tilth, according to the Soil Conservation Service.

But many city folks throw away valuable material from their homes. The fallen leaves seen each autumn can be a valuable resource, either for mulching or for preparation of a compost heap, according to Jacob Crandall of the Greenville Conservation Service.

"It's fine to rake the leaves, and then either provide a healthy mulch around plants growing in the same yard, or place the leaves in a compost pile

"This can easily be made; a little circle of chicken wire, or some scrap lumber nailed together, and then apply the leaves in six to 12-inch layers. Vegetable peelings, melon rinds and the like can also be added."

Crandall said that over each layer of leaves, apply lime, water, and fertilizer. This will speed the process of decomposition. After the material turns uniformly brown and crumbly, usually about one year, the compost resulting makes an excellent plant fertilizer. Foy Hendrix explained.

More information on mulching or compost piles can be obtained from the Soil Conservation Service office in each county, or through local soil and water conservation districts.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today on the news of a smaller-than-expected rise in wholesale prices last month.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was up 4.33 at 811.76.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was relatively quiet, however.

Before the market opened the government reported that the wholesale price index posted a 0.7 percent rise in November, with industrial commodities recording their smallest increase in five months.

Several analysts had been forecasting a rise of 0.9 percent or more, and those predictions had been blamed in part for the market's drop earlier in the week.

Texaco, the most active NYSE issue, rose 1/8 to 27.

The 'Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 27 to 51.55. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .38 at 122.85.

Volume on the NYSE tapered off to 8.43 million shares by noon from 9.47 million at the same point on Wednesday.

Pacific Gas & Electric lost 7/8 to 23 1/2 in trading that included a 100,000-share block at that price.

Happiness In Pillow Fight

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The harder a husband and wife whack each other in pillow fights, the more likely it is that their marriage is a happy one, a University of Utah study indicates.

A study of 23 married couples by four researchers indicates that spouses who walloped each other the hardest with soft pillow clubs reported less discord in their marriages than those with lighter touches.

The study, designed to examine non-verbal communication, involved putting couples into a 6-foot ring. Participants were asked to box each other for a minute with the clubs, which were wired to show the number, frequency and intensity of the blows.

After the bouts, the couples completed a questionnaire to measure agreement on 10 marital issues.

Researchers said spouses who openly and vigorously expressed anger in a playful setting appeared to be closer than others.

The study also indicated that husbands paired with hard-hitting wives reported less dissatisfaction.

Gillespie Combo At Festival

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — American jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie and his quartet arrived in this southern Africa town to take part in the Maseru Jazz Festival on Saturday.

The quartet was met at the airport by Albert Mogale, minister of culture, on Wednesday. Traveling with Gillespie were guitarist Rodney Jones, drummer Mikky Pokor and bassist Benny Brown.

Saturday's lineup includes bass player Monk Montgomery, singer Al Wilson and six music instructors from Rutgers University in New Jersey.

Thief Seized 248 Pillows

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Police are searching for a thief who took 248 pillows from a truck parked in north Omaha.

The thief broke a lock off a semi-trailer truck on Wednesday and got away with 12 cases of bedroom pillows. Police said they were worth $315.

MASONIC NOTICE All members of the Anderson Lodge No. 11972 and other Odd Fellow Lodges of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellow are to assemble at the Mt. Hermon Lodge Hall in Greenville for the trip to King of Vance Lodge in Vanceboro tonight at 7 p.m.

Suspect Some Miss Benefit

In spite of intensive efforts to locate potential recipients during the past four years, the Social Security Administration has reason to believe that many people who could benefit from the supplemental security income (SSI) program are missing out on it.

According to a local Social Security Administration spokesman, it is believed there are some in the Pitt County and adjoining areas served by the office who do not know about the supplemental income provision.

Basically, SSI provides monthly payments — in addition to regular social security benefits — to people 65 or older, to those who are blind, or disabled, or do not have much income or resources to fall back on.

One of the key points, the spokesman points out, is that there is no age limit for a blind or disabled person. Even children can receive SSI payments, although parents' income and resources are considered when deciding if a child under 18, or under 21 if a student, is eligible.

Once a blind or disabled child reaches 18 (or 21 if a student), that person is then considered an adult and only that person's income or resources count in determining eligibility.

Suspect Some Miss Benefit

There is a limit to what a person can own and still be eligible for SSI payments. The limit is $1,500 for an individual and $2,250 for a couple. This figure does not include a home, a car of reasonable value, nor most household goods.

The important thing, the spokesman added, is that people who may be eligible for SSI should know about it so that they can check into having a determination made.

Anyone who feels he is eligible to receive the SSI benefits, or knows of another person who may be eligible and not receiving such benefits, is encouraged to contact the local Social Security office for more details.

In Greenville, the number to call is 756-2368. The address of the office for any who would prefer to visit the office instead of calling is 301 Plaza Drive.

Expert Aids Scout Troop

A local scout troop is receiving valuable assistance from an ECU professor in preparing for merit badge qualifications.

Frank Rabey of the Department of Medical Technology, School of Allied Health, is working with Troop 30 sponsored by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church in offering information intended to support the achievement of merit badges in personal fitness and public health.

Rabey said that 24 members of the troop, headed by Scoutmaster Joe Goodson, took part in last week's class.

He explained that in addition to the classes and discussions, some lab experience is offered. Troop members had a lab culture exercise last week and swabbed their hands for bacterial growth, it was explained. The results of the exercise will be viewed tonight.

Rabey invited other troop leaders, as well as clubs or organizations desiring information in health related areas, to contact him concerning participation in class sessions.

The class tonight will be held at 8 p.m. at the Allied Health building, Room 309.

Grand Regent Is Visiting Local WOTM Chapter

Mrs. Edna Conniffe will be guest of honor at a chapter night program for the Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308 tonight at the Moose Temple.

A member of the Fayetteville Chapter No. 1292, Mrs. Conniffe holds the highest office given a WOTM member, grand regent. This is her first official visit to Greenville.

Mrs. Pat Cannon, chairman of the chapter's Social Services Committee, is in charge of the program which will feature a talk by Dr. David Knott. A professor at East Carolina University, Dr. Knott will speak on "How to Get Your Husband to Love You." He is the author of a recently published book by that name.

Following the meeting, refreshments will be served and co-workers will have an opportunity to meet Mrs. Conniffe and Dr. Knott.

Cars Collided In Early Hours

An estimated $2,700 damage resulted from a 7 a.m. collision today at the intersection of Elm and Fifth Streets.

Drivers involved in the crash were listed as Robert Alton Williams of Salisbury and Albert Sidney Gaskins Jr. of 600 Forrest Hill Cir.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the Williams car and $2,500 to the Gaskins vehicle.

Set A Price On Rustlers

EDGEFIELD, S.C. (AP) — There's a $300 price on the head of anyone caught rustling cattle in Edgefield County.

The county Livestock Association posted the reward after President D.C. Herlong said its members reported four calves had been stolen recently. "We hope the reward will keep people from rustling," he said.

The General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina will hold a three-day workshop at Cornerstone Baptist Church, Greenville, Dec. 12-14, beginning each evening at 7:30.

The purpose of the workshop is to present the work of the State Convention to the member churches in the Greenville area. Dr. C.C. Craig, Dr. Leo Williams, Dr. M.A. Horne, and Waverly Camp Jr. will be the workshop leaders.

Preaching at its best will be the Rev. B.B. Felder, Clarence Gray, and John Taylor.

City Counts 3 Accidents

An estimated $1,950 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 3:45 p.m. mishap on Elm Street, 300 feet North of the 14th Street intersection involving cars driven by Ruth St. Clair Wallace of 1107 VanNortwick St. and Paula Aileen Varlashkin of 305 Prince Rd.

Police, who charged Miss Varlashkin with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $300 to the Wallace car and $600 to the Varlashkin vehicle.

Cars driven by Charles James Whichard of Simpson and Jimmy Burnell Hudler Jr. of Kinston collided about 4:25 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Whichard car and $500 damage to the Hudler auto.

Leroy Stevenson of Route 4 Greenville was charged with improper passing following investigation of an 11:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Investigators said the Stevenson car collided with an auto driven by Rachel Overman Moore of Lucas Grove, Va., causing $150 damage to the Moore car and $200 damage to the Stevenson car.

Family visitation will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. Saturday at Flanagan and Hardee Funeral Chapel.

Hot Terps Bomb Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
COLLEGE PARK, Md. — We've got good news and bad news.

The good news is that East Carolina University scored 106 points against the 12th-ranked Maryland Terrapins last night.

The bad news is that Maryland scored a school record 130 points against the Pirates.

And the 130-106 defeat sent the Pirate record to 1-3 on the year. Maryland remains unbeaten at 5-0.

Oliver Mack was the star of the game for the Pirates, scoring a season-high 38 points. He pushed through 18 of 36 shots and two of three free throws for the total, over a third of the ECU total.

But Mack wasn't enough to offset the awesome board power of the Terrapins, who completely dominated the rebounding in the game. The Terps, led by hot-shot freshman Albert King with 13, pulled away 67 rebounds, while the Pirates had 42.

And two free throws by Mike

Then, when the Terps got the ball, their quickness in making the transition from defense to offense was much faster than the Pirates' transition to defense. Maryland also got a good number of offensive rebounds to help them along in scoring.

The Terps shot away to a 17-point lead near the midpoint of the first half. East Carolina scored first, a basket by Herb Krusen, but the Terps hit four straight baskets, two by Bill Bryant, plus a couple of free throws' taking a 10-2 lead.

After that, however, the Pirates made a run at them, led by Mack, and chopped away at the lead. Finally, Roger Carr hit with seven minutes left to make it 33-28. It was again five at 35-30, but Maryland got a three point play from Lawrence Boston, followed by a shot by Jo-Jo Hunter to run back out to 10, 40-30.

From there, the Terps pulled away again, building up a 21-point lead at 60-39 on a basket

Davis with 1:34 left in the half. A four-point play by Greg Manning upped it to 23, 66-43, with 59 seconds to go. The half finally ended at 68-48.

East Carolina closed back to 16, but again the Terrapins pulled away, this time rolling out to a 30-point bulge, 94-64, with 12:40 left to go.

East Carolina closed to within 18 once more, but got no closer.

"They're very powerful," ECU coach Larry Gillman said afterwards. "But I don't know what I can say about their defense. None of their players did a good job on Oliver."

"Bernard Hill also played a very good game. And Maryland's Bryant is a super sophomore, a real All-American," he added.

Gillman pointed to the rebounding as the key to the Terp win. "I'd like to see a shot chart to see how many they got off rebounds. That (rebounding) is our real weakness."

Gillman also said that he was not surprised by Maryland's quickness. "They beat us time after time in transition. We beat them, too, at times. But it was the rebounds that made the difference. They are a very, very powerful team on the boards."

Gillman was asked about the officiating. Maryland shot 27 free throws in the first half to 13 for the Pirates (a 32-27 difference at the end), and his only comment was "No comment."

Gillman said, "Our kids played hard. It's still early in the season. The defense is the last thing to come for everyone. A lot of teams are playing zone right now." East Carolina went with a man-to-man defense almost all the way, as did Maryland. "We're young and we're going to have to work more on defense."

The coach said he thought the Pirates could come back on Maryland. "We did make a comeback, but it was the boards that beat us. The offense at times was very good, and a few times our defensive pressure bothered them in the backcourt, but we couldn't keep it up. I think a mature team will give them (Maryland) trouble."

While Mack was putting through 38, to up his average to 24.5 per game, Hill, in his best game, was adding 17. Herb Gray, who had a poor on the boards with just one rebound, finished with 18, while Greg Cornelius had 13. Hill led the Pirate rebounding with eight.

Manning paced Maryland's scoring, which saw eight players in double figures. The sharpshooter hit all seven of his shots, all but one was a layup, and he ended up with 20 points. Manning in five games has hit 30 of 37 shots from the field, 81.1 per cent.

Hunter and Boston each had 19, Davis had 15, King, Bryant and Ernest Graham each had 12 and Larry Gibson had 10.

The Pirates had one less turnover than did Maryland, 19-18. East Carolina travels to Charlotte to face once-beaten LaSalle Friday night in the first round of the First Union Invitational Basketball Tournament.

"We're ready to go (and face LaSalle)," Gillman said. "We'd play Maryland again, too. We're young and thin, but we're learning and we have talent, and we'll jell. That ball will bounce our way and one night we'll beat someone we're not supposed to."

Giordana Paces Little AA Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Reed Giordana of the University of Wisconsin at Stevens Point, the only player in college football history to reach 10,000 yards in total offense, was named to The Associated Press 1977 College Division All-American team today.

Joining Giordana on the elite small college squad were two players each from Boise State and New Hampshire. Boise's representatives were wide receiver Terry Hutt and offensive tackle Harold Cotton while New Hampshire placed offensive tackle Grady Vigneau and running back Bill Burnham.

Giordana, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior from Kaukauna, Wis., surpassed the 10,000-yard mark in passing and total offense. He has ranked among the national NAIA leaders in each of his four seasons and holds the records for most touchdown passes and most passes thrown without an interception.

Joining him in the backfield are running backs Burnham of New Hampshire and Larry Collins of Texas A&I.

76ers Whip Portland, Gain Team Confidence

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

They all count the same in the standings, but the fact remains that some games are more important than others.

That was the case in Philadelphia Wednesday night, when the 76ers whipped the Portland Trail Blazers 122-100.

"This establishes our confidence; we now know we can beat Portland," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, whose club had lost five in a row to the Blazers, including four straight in the National Basketball Association playoff finals last spring.

"This has got to be our best game of the season without a doubt," added Cunningham, who replaced Gene Shue when the Sixers were 2-4 and has seen the club go on a 15-2 tear. "We dominated the defensive boards, and our fast break was awesome in the middle of the third period."

That's when the Sixers broke the game open, scoring 16 points in a row to erase a 76-71 deficit and go ahead to stay.

The loss snapped a club-record eight-game winning streak for Portland, whose 18-4 record leads the league.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, the Boston Celtics edged the Kansas City Kings 113-109, the Washington Bullets trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 96-95, the Phoenix Suns beat the Detroit Pistons 113-107 in overtime, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the New Jersey Nets 125-122 in overtime, the Indiana Pacers topped the New Orleans Jazz 118-103 and the Denver Nuggets beat the Atlanta Hawks 123-116.

George McGinnis led the Sixers with 24 points and Julius Erving added 22.

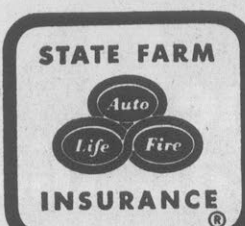

Celtics 113, Kings 109

The slumping Celtics snapped a three-game losing streak behind veterans Dave Cowens and John Havlicek. Cowens had 28 points and 16 rebounds and Havlicek added 25 points, including eight in the fourth quarter.

Bullets 96, Cavaliers 95

Kevin Grevey's three-point play with 25 seconds remaining gave Washington its victory. Grevey, who scored 19 points, sank a 12-foot bank shot and added a free throw to break a 93-93 tie.

EAST CAROLINA'S VICTORY over Alderson-Broaddus Monday night was not particularly impressive, but it was a victory, and that's the important thing, according to Pirate coach Larry Gillman.

Getting that first mark in the win column, after a 75-59 loss to Indiana and a 92-66 loss to UNC-Wilmington, was "was like pulling teeth," Gillman said after the game. "I was beginning to wonder if we were going to win one, although I knew we were better than we had been showing."

After coming close to upsetting the Hoosiers, although they dropped behind late in the game, the Pirates were extremely disappointing in their home opener against the Seahawks. They shot poorly during the game and their zone defense proved extremely porous as Wilmington reeled off 19 unanswered points in the second half to break the game open.

That loss came before the third-largest home basketball crowd in the school's history, 5,885. The attendance for the Alderson-Broaddus game was understandably less, 3,748, but the group was vocally appreciative of the Bucs' flashes of brilliance.

ONE OBVIOUS KEY to the 102-5 win was the play of junior college transfer Oliver Mack. The 6-3 guard seemed to come into his own during the game, scoring a season-high 36 points and pulling down nine rebounds. Mack hit 12 of 24 shots from the field and 12 of 18 from the foul line.

The lithe, high-jumping Mack really got the ECU offensive machine moving in the first half of the ballgame. He hit on three driving layups, an 18-footer and two free throws in the game's first five minutes to put the Bucs well on their way to their 102-point production. Mack's drives brought roars of approval from the spectators as he took off near the foul line with a running leap and laid the ball over the top of the rim.

East Carolina quickly moved ahead of the Battlers and led by 10 points midway through the first half, but as in the Wilmington game, the Pirate defense began to fade and the team seemed to lose its offensive pattern.

Alderson-Broaddus was able to move ahead at halftime, although the Bucs quickly regained the lead after intermission. Throughout the second half, the Pirates seemed to be on the verge of building a big lead, but could never break the game open, despite poor shooting by the Battlers late in the contest.

In fact, that poor shooting was a major factor in preventing an Alderson-Broaddus comeback in the contest's waning moments.

HERB GRAY AND HERB KRUSEN also turned in good performances during the contest. Gray had 19 points and a game-high 16 rebounds, while Krusen scored 12 points, eight in the first half.

The Pirates, at times, played very well and displayed the run-and-gun offense and pressure defense that Gillman promised before the season began. However, the team had both offensive and defensive lapses which allowed the Battlers to stay close.

"I don't think we played well, but we played hard," Gillman said. Our shooting was so-so and our defense was shaky. I think we're capable of playing good basketball. At times tonight we did, but we've got to get it all together longer and sustain it."

The coach added that the victory was "the big hurdle...it's hard to win that first one."

Victory Over UNC Sweet For Scharf

East Carolina University swimming coach Ray Scharf has waited a long time for a victory over the University of North Carolina, which finally came Tuesday night.

Scharf has been thirsting for a win over the Tar Heels since 1968, his first year at East Carolina.

In that year, East Carolina College was the host for the National AAU Swimming Championships. The meet was held in the newly-built Minges Natatorium, which was then, and is now, one of the finest facilities in the country.

After the event was over, an article appeared in the UNC school newspaper, The Daily Tar Heel, which said, in part, "...it seems that a few years ago, someone at East Carolina convinced the college that what an aspiring regional university needed was an expensive swimming pool and a national championship. So they built a pool, and hosted a national championship and when it was all over, all the visiting swimmers and reporters went home.

"Now there the pool sits — presumably full of water. As far as anyone has heard, the new pool has boosted neither the athletic nor academic standing of ECU, but if we detect an improvement, we'll let you know."

Those words, written ten years ago, left in Scharf a burning desire to defeat UNC. A desire that was fulfilled Tuesday night with a 61-52 victory.

"Now you know why it means so much that we beat them," Scharf said at the day after the meet. "That story has been eating at me ever since 1968. That was an insult to our program, to the school and to the community in general. All those years of pent-up frustration I can now let out, because we finally did it—we beat them."

Scharf's desire for victory evidently rubbed off on the Pirates, who set six varsity records, four pool records and six meet records Tuesday night. In addition, swimmer John McCauley qualified for the NCAA Championships in two events, the 50 and 100 freestyle, while the team's 400 freestyle relay team (McCauley, Billy Thorne, John Tudor and Billy Fehling) also qualified for the nationals.

"That was a great win for us," Scharf said. "The guys swam out of their heads. I'm proud of every one of them. This has to be the greatest feeling I've had since I've been at East Carolina."

Indians Stun No. 2 Tar Heels

By The Associated Press
Mighty, second-ranked North Carolina turned out to be the first Atlantic Coast Conference team to fall to a non-conference opponent. Sloppy shooting cost the Tar Heels a 78-75 defeat at the hands of William and Mary.

Nobody paid serious attention to Carolina Coach Dean Smith when he said before the game he was worried about it, but the coach can now enjoy whatever pleasure comes from telling folks he told them so.

Shooting trouble did the Tar Heels in. While the Indians were popping the net at a 59.5 percent clip, Carolina shot a mere 43.2 percent.

"We got the shots we wanted against their zone, but we just couldn't make them," Smith reflected afterward. "I thought we did make a great comeback."

Otherwise it was a good night for ACC fans. Wake Forest squeaked past East Tennessee State, Clemson overpowered American, N.C. State got by Davidson, Maryland dominated East Carolina and Virginia beat Penn.

William & Mary 78, UNC 75
Even Phil Ford's legendary prowess in the clutch and his 24 points weren't enough to save the Tar Heels from humiliation which seemed to stalk them all evening.

They trailed at halftime, 32-31, and the Indians thwarted an 11th hour effort that brought them to within one point with 31 seconds remaining. The tight William and Mary zone kept the Heels away from the bucket, and like Smith said, they couldn't hit the longer ones.

great basketball game," Smith said. "But I thought we played well also." Not well enough.

Wake Forest 70, E. Tenn. St. 69

The Deacons tempted fate with this squeaker, but the one-point margin was enough of a victory to save the hurt from their cellar finish in last weekend's Big Four.

The game was tied 40-40 at halftime and seasawed all the way to the end. Sophomore guard Frank Johnson was the hero with a layup and a 15-foot jumper in the final seconds that saved the game. Rod Griffin was game high scorer with 20 points.

Clemson 98, American 58

Clemson dominated the game so thoroughly that Coach Bill Foster wasn't even talking about it afterward, preferring to dwell on the Tigers' encounter Saturday with South Carolina.

Aggressive pressure defense seemed to be the key to the victory. American Coach Jim Lynam said the Tigers "took us out of it early with defense. They overplay an make you panic, whether you want to or not."

Jim Wells and John Campbell had 16 points apiece for the winners. The Tigers shot 55.4 percent to American's 32.8 and outrebounded them 54-33.

N.C. State 104, Davidson 94

Davidson Coach Dave Prichett insisted later that his Wildcats won this game after the first 10 minutes. Unfortunately the first 10 minutes counted, and State used them along with the rest of the game to dominate the backboards.

Hawkeye Whitney and Mark Jones hauled down 19 rebounds between them, and combined for 31 points.

"I wasn't surprised at how close the game was, because that would have meant I didn't think Davidson could play a good game," said Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan.

Maryland 130, ECU 106

The Pirates were outgunned in this slugfest, in which the 12th-ranked Terps put eight men in double figures and topped the school scoring record by three points.

Freshman guard Greg Manning was high man for Maryland with 20 points. Oliver Mack played Hercules for ECU, scoring 38. The Pirates are now 1-3. Maryland Coach Lefty Dreisel wasn't pleased with the performance.

"I told the team at the half, 'Let's not go out and play one on one. Let's play like we're four points behind.' Evidently they didn't hear me. They played in the second half like it was a playground game."

Virginia 70, Penn 63

"We played a very good defensive game the whole night," said Virginia Coach Terry Holland of this Cavalier victory, which wasn't even really in doubt after the first quarter.

Freshman Jeff Lamp pumped in 29 points and Steve Castellani added 12. Holland said Lamp was showing great promise. "I don't think he took a bad shot tonight. In fact, I don't think he's taken a bad shot all year."

N.C. State Women Defeat Lady Pirates

RALEIGH — Genia Beasley scored 21 points and pulled down 13 rebounds in leading number one ranked N. C. State to a 75-59 victory over East Carolina's Lady Pirates last night at Reynolds Coliseum.

The Lady Packers led from the start as they pulled out to a 16-2 margin in the first seven and a half minutes of the game.

Beasley, a 6-2 All-America center candidate, repeatedly intimidated the Pirates when they moved the ball inside on the Pack's sticky man-to-man defense. Even though she did not block a shot, many of the Lady Pirates' attempts were arched high over her outstretched hands.

The Pirates were able to pull to within two at 16-14, mostly on foul shots, before Beasley, who had gone out, reentered the lineup and hit two quick jumpers.

"Their big people just killed us inside," said Pirate coach

Catherine Bolton, who saw her team drop to 3-1 overall and 2-1 in the NCIAW Division I. "Also, they played tremendous defense against us all night. We worked for every point."

"Another problem was that our team was scared to death out there in the first few minutes," added Bolton. "We played a lot more aggressively later, but their start put us in too deep of a hole."

State did something no other team has been able to do all season against the Lady Bucs — shut down Rosie Thompson. She was virtually ineffective against the Pack's powerful forwards. Thompson was held to seven points and just four rebounds. She had been averaging 25 points and 11 rebounds per game.

The Wolfpack stretched its lead to 44-29 at the half, while the two teams played the second half on even terms.

Debbie Freeman led the Lady Pirates with 20 points, while Marsha Girven, a freshman center, added nine and another freshman center, Lynne Emerson, scored eight. Emerson was the Pirates' leading rebounder with 10. Girven and Freeman each had eight.

Christy Earnhardt aided Beasley for State with 12 points, while Ronnie Laughlin had 10.

"Debbie kept us in the game with her scoring," noted Bolton. "And this was Lynne's first good all-around game. She did not let the crowd (3,500) get to her. She may have been the only player on the team that did not come in here nervous."

The Lady Pirates will be in action again on Saturday when they travel to Greensboro to face Western Carolina.

E. Carolina—Thompson 7, Freeman 20, Girven 9, Kerbaugh 7, Rountree 4, Emerson 8, Ross, Lacy 2, Supps, Trini 2.

Vikings Stop SN

SPRING HOPE — D. H. Conley's wrestling team had little trouble picking up its second victory of the season last night, romping to a 54-15 win over Southern Nash.

The Vikings, who took victories in 10 weight classes, recorded eight of them by fall. The pins came from Rick Farris, Gary Harris, Willie Moore, Ronald Harris, Marvin Hardy, Charles Hanson and Jesse Davis.

The Vikes are now 2-1 for the year and will wrestle again Saturday afternoon when they host Jacksonville.

H: Thomas Daniels (SN) won by forfeit.

Jags Romp To Win

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central displayed its strength in the lower weight classes again last night, grabbing four pin victories in the first seven matches to defeat Washington, 50-20 in high school wrestling.

The Jaguars got pins from Charlie Moore, Jeff Ebron, Roger Joyner and Horace Williams, along with three forfeits and a decision, as they won the first eight bouts of the meet.

The victory ran the Farmville record to 3-0 for the year, but the Jags face a real challenge in their next match as they host D.

H. Conley next Wednesday.
Summary:
98: Charlie Moore (FC) pinned D. Oaney, 1:25.
105: Tommy King (FC) won by forfeit.

Trial Ordered For Runner

BEDFORD, Ind. (AP) — More than two years after an accident that ended former Indiana University track star Steve Heidenreich's bid for the 1976 Olympics, a judge has ordered an April 18 jury trial on a lawsuit against the man accused of hitting the runner with his car.

Heidenreich was critically injured and had brain surgery after being struck by a car as he jogged near the IU campus in Bloomington on March 16, 1976.

Heidenreich filed a $500,000 damage suit against Michael Tabereaux of Bloomington. The case was moved to Lawrence Circuit Court from Monroe County.

Bloomington police charged Tabereaux with drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident. He pleaded innocent.

Howe Hits 1,000

By The Associated Press
"The 1,000th goal for Gordie Howe — it's finally come after 10 agonizing hockey games."

How better to describe the accomplishment Wednesday night by the grand old man of professional hockey than through the play-by-play commentary of New England Whalers broadcaster Bob Neumeier?

"It's back to (Dave) Keon at the point, Keon spinning, shooting. Now it's centred by (Mike) Antonovich, he hits the post. (John) McKenzie with the rebound, in front to Gordie Howe ... he scores!"

Howe, a 49-year-old native of Floral, Sask., in his 31st pro season, wasted little time Wednesday reaching the career milestone — scoring on a power play at 1:36 of the first period as the Whalers beat the Birmingham Bulls 6-3 in a World Hockey Association contest.

"We were on a power play with the forward line of Antonovich, McKenzie and myself plus the defense unit. Antonovich had hit the goal post, Pi (McKenzie) threw it across an it was in.

"It was almost an identical play to when I got my first goal against Turb Broda."

The veteran right winger, who led Detroit Red Wings to seven consecutive National Hockey League championships and four Stanley Cups from 1949 to 1955, scored 786 regular-season NHL goals and 67 in the playoffs before retiring from the Wings in 1971.

When he left Detroit, pro hockey's all-time scoring leader had won six scoring titles, six most-valuable-player awards, made the all-star team 21 times and held league records for goals, seasons (25), games (1,089), assists (1,023) and points (1,809).

In four WHA seasons with Houston Aeros, Howe had 121 regular-season goals and another 20 in the playoffs before jumping to the Whalers with sons Mark and Marty during the off-season.

Prior to Wednesday's historic game, Howe had five goals and 17 assists this season. Goal No. 999 had come almost a month earlier against Edmonton.

Now that the 1,000th goal is out of the way, does Gordie have any further goals for the current campaign?

"I'd like to get 20 goals, but it's taken 11 games to get one," he mused.

"There's certainly no argument about the greatest hockey player who ever lived," said Birmingham Coach Glenn Sonmor.

Wake Needs More Help From Bench

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy says his basketball team needs more help from its reserve players.

"We have to get more out of our bench," Tacy said Wednesday after the Deacons won a hard-fought 70-69 game against East Tennessee State. "If we do, it will make us a much more effective club."

Tacy got what he needed Wednesday from sophomore guard Frank Johnson. Johnson hit a layup and a 15-foot jumper to account for the only Deacon scoring in the last 4:57.

Johnson ended with 19 points. Senior forward Rod Griffin scored 20 to lead Wake Forest, which pulled to a 3-2 record.

Forward Jim Smith was high scorer for ETSU, now 3-2, with 19 points and forward D.C. Smith had 16 points.

ETSU Coach Sonny Smith, whose team lost leads of 67-66 and 69-68, said "We wanted to win so badly we didn't play with our heads. Wake Forest is a veteran team with a lot of poise and they played with more poise than we did in the last seconds."

The Deacons tied most of the first half, but ETSU managed a 40-40 halftime tie. The lead changed hands often in the final period, but neither team could get more than four points ahead.

who will give you what he's got. He is a physical player." Ricky Whitehurst (5-9, senior) will start at one guard spot. Whitehurst is a great leaper who has a lot of potential, "it's just a matter of fitting in with the team," according to Davenport. "He's the type of ballplayer that the fans love to watch; he puts on a show."

The other guard spot is the unsettled one. Three players have been working there, although one, Danny Lilley (5-9, junior), hurt his thumb and will be out for three weeks. The other two are Alan Frasier (5-10, sophomore) and Glen Ellis (5-11, senior). Frasier has a lot of determination and is a good shooter, Davenport said, while Ellis was termed "real coachable." Davenport said the one who performs better over the next few games will nail down the starting spot. Davenport said he has been happy with the work the team has done so far, and its enthusiasm. "I'm real pleased with the whole group. They're real enthusiastic, they work hard and they get good grades." The team's top reserves are Keith Modlin (6-0, senior) at forward and Frankie Hardison (6-1, sophomore) at center. Davenport said Modlin is "a hard worker. He works on his game on his own a lot, especially his shooting. I think he will be a good ballplayer by the end of the season."

Hardison, Davenport said, was a fullback on the school's football team — "a rugged type player. He has been working hard in practice, but his playing time will be limited behind DiNardo."

Davenport said he is unfamiliar with the B-H-M Conference, but has heard that Pantego should be the heavy favorite in the league, followed by Belhaven. Although he wouldn't make any predictions, he apparently feels his team has a chance to finish high in the conference and get that district playoff berth.

BETHEL — Although only six of 13 matches were actually wrestled, North Pitt defeated Cape Hatteras last night, 60-18.

A total of seven bouts were forfeited, five of them by Cape Hatteras. The Panthers got pins in all the other bouts that they won. Those came from Tim Andrews, Tim Perkins, Bubba Smith, Donald Shaw and Sam Mayo.

Cox In Win

WINTERVILLE — A. G. Cox rolled to a big victory over Bethel in a wrestling match last night, 69-17.

Cox won 12 of the match's 16 weight classes, including 11 of the final 12. Three of those wins were by pin and four were by forfeit. Two came by default.

Bethel won three of the first four weight classes and got two pins.

Summary: 78: Robinson (B) pinned Woodley, 3:00; 88: Freeman (C) dec. Dixon, 18:4; 92: Ross (B) pinned Green, 4:20; 98: Andrews (B) dec. Five Lawyers Quit FBI Activity Investigation

GRIFTON PARADE — Girl Scout Troop No. 161 from Ayden participated in the Grifton Christmas Parade last night. A large crowd of spectators turned out to see the town's first holiday parade in many years in spite of cold temperatures. Participating in the parade were the Girl and Boy Scouts, the North Pitt Marching Band, and various floats. And ending up the procession was that familiar old gentleman with the white beard and red suit. Reflector photo by Debbie Jackson

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Justice Department lawyers quit an investigation into alleged illegal FBI activities because Attorney General Griffin Bell refused to move quickly to seek more indictments, the department says.
A Justice Department spokesman said the lawyers, who comprise a task force which for 18 months has been gathering evidence against a former supervisor of the FBI's New York office, asked to be relieved of their duties because of the clash with Bell.

Bell on Wednesday characterized the dispute as "a disagreement in principle." He told a luncheon that the task force for some time had sought additional indictments against FBI officials.

But he said for now he wants to limit the probe to the case involving John J. Kearney, former supervisor of the FBI's New York office.
Kearney was indicted last April on charges of conspiracy, illegal wiretapping and mail opening in connection with the alleged surveillance of the radical Weather Underground in the early 1970s.

"The people doing the investigating thought there should be further indictments brought, and the attorney general wanted to proceed another way and try the Kearney case first," explained department spokesman Robert J. Havel.
"There was a disagreement," Havel said, "so the people asked to be relieved, and the attorney general agreed with that."

Edward Bennett Williams asked the court to open 2 years of FBI records in an apparent strategy to show the Kearney's actions were in line with general procedures used by most FBI agents.
A Justice Department source said Wednesday night that the broad discovery motion filed by Williams might "be very harmful" by making public intelligence information.

Arab Sheik Proposes Balloon Race In 1978

DENVER (AP) — "You run into a ding-a-ling every so often in the balloon business," says Chauncy Dunn.

But an Arab sheik with a spare half million dollars checked out, so the Colorado balloonist signed on to stage an elaborate hot-air balloon race.
It's not your average balloon race: first prize is a baby elephant, and the balloonists will have to race back to the starting line on camels.

Sheik Sultan Bin Mohammed Al-Qasimi, ruler of Sharjah in the oil-rich United Arab Emirates, wanted something special to celebrate the opening of a new international airport on the Persian Gulf.

The sheik had wanted 50 balloons — but there are limits. Dunn, a board member of the Balloon Federation of America, will provide 20 American balloonists and stage the event Dec. 2, 1978.

Details of the race were published Wednesday in a copyrighted story in The Denver Post.

The sheik will pay all expenses plus a fee for the balloonists and provide such frills as special new racing clothes and $165-a-night hotel rooms.

Dunn was first contacted two years ago by one of the sheik's advisers who flew to Indianola, Iowa, where Dunn was officiating at the national championship balloon race.

He said he was a little surprised when he presented his $500,000-plus budget — there was nary a murmur.

"I'm used to negotiating," said Dunn. "I'll send someone a budget and they'll say,

"That's a little more than we can spend," so I'll cut out a couple of balloons and cut expenses and we'll get together."

There were some problems. The sheik's subjects don't know much about racing hot air balloons, but they are red hot on camel racing.

Dunn decided to add something for the locals. When each balloon lifts off, a man on a camel will follow it on the ground. When the balloons land, the pilots will mount the camels and race back to the starting point.

The prizes? Well, said Dunn, a baby Ceylonese elephant is worth $9,600 to $14,000 and can be donated to a zoo or sold.

Dunn said he worked out second and third prizes with the sheik. Second prize will be two camels, third prize three crocodiles.

including the task force chief, William Gardner, agreed to remain at their jobs until replacements can become familiar with the inquiry. The change in prosecution team, however, apparently will set back further the government's case against Kearney.

Kearney's trial had been expected to begin in mid-October, but the case has been bogged down in pre-trial motions. Last summer, Kearney's lawyer,

Two Frigid Air Systems Putting Squeeze On U.S.

The Nation's Weather
By The Associated Press

Two separate frigid air systems pinched the nation today, sending temperatures well below the freezing point across most of the East and sending the wind-chill factor to 30-below and even lower in parts of the west.

Strong north winds whipped bitter cold air to a wind-chill of 80 degrees below zero at Cut Bank, Mont., and 60 below zero at Great Falls, Mont., Wednesday afternoon, the National Weather Service reported.

Officials tentatively attributed three Louisville, Ky., deaths to the bitter cold on Wednesday when two men were found dead in a car parked on a used car lot and a third man was discovered dead of exposure in an unheated shack. At least 22 school districts in Kentucky, where the eastern system is centered, told their students to stay home today because fresh snow was expected to fall over the Midwest and East.

Ohio and Kentucky, which received scattered powdery snow on Wednesday can expect more of the same today. Winds forced Cleveland Hopkins Airport to suspend flights for 15 hours from Tuesday night to Wednesday morning.

Freezing temperatures sent energy demands beyond capacity for the Tennessee Valley Authority Wednesday, and the utility is asking customers to reduce their use of electricity again today. Help from neighbor utilities, voluntary power reductions by customers and temporary cuts in power to its largest customers enabled the TVA to get through Wednesday.

With temperatures expected to rise from near-zero to near the teens today, TVA officials are optimistic that power and heating demands will be met for the rest of the week.

Claude Hall, a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Atlanta, said a record low for Dec. 7 was set at the Columbus, Ga., airport where the temperature reached 22 degrees. The previous low was 26, set in 1962.

The low of 50 recorded at Miami Beach, Fla., Wednesday morning beat the previous record for the day of 52 set in 1962.

About five inches of snow fell over western Maryland creating hazardous driving conditions. High winds sent large branches from trees flying against power lines, leaving nearly 2,000 Baltimore County residents of electricity for a brief period.

Besides Montana, where wind-chill conditions were expected to be the worst, extremely cold temperatures with winds gusting to more than 30 miles per hour were expected across North Dakota today. Readings were expected to dip down to 20-below in some places, making for an extremely low wind-chill.

A blizzard warning has been issued for western North Dakota. Snow fell early today in northern Missouri and southern Iowa. A heavy snow warning was in effect for parts of Nebraska.

Flood Of Imports And Govm't Regulations Said Handicaps

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A flood of imports into this country and restrictive government regulations pose problems for business, but 1978 should be a satisfactory time for companies in North Carolina and South Carolina, according to a group of business leaders.

After energy, the import question will be the "hot one" in industry and Congress next year, John D. Macomber, president of the Charlotte-based Celanese Corp. told a Charlotte Chamber of Commerce session Tuesday.

Macomber was one of four business leaders who took part in a panel on the outlook for 1978.

"I'm optimistic but I'm keeping my eye on the storm clouds," Macomber said.

Joining him on the panel were H.M. Close, board chairman of Springs Mills; W.D. Hobbs, president of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.; and John G. Medlin Jr., president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. and Wachovia Corp.

They mixed lukewarm enthusiasm for the new year with warnings that 1978 probably won't be a record breaker and that a downturn could develop in the final quarter of the year.

This year was "nothing to brag about unless you consider survival an outstanding accomplishment," said Close, whose South Carolina based textile firm employs 20,000 workers in North Carolina and South Carolina, according to a group of business leaders.

"We expect this gradual, unspectacular growth to continue into 1978 and we expect the inevitable textile downturn at some point in our five-year planning period," he said.

Developments on the international scene "probably pose the greatest element of uncertainty for the domestic economy and money markets next year," said Medlin, whose Winston-Salem-based Wachovia Bank claims some $4 billion in assets.

The "enormous" U.S. trade deficit abroad and budget deficits at home pose serious risks for the economy and the money market over the long run, he said.

Medlin projected that prices will climb by 5% or 6 percent next year but "in general, 1978 should be a good year for the banking industry nationwide and in the Metrolina area." Hobbs forecast a 1 to 1½ percent sales growth next year for Reynolds Tobacco, the largest firm in the tobacco industry.

But he expressed concern over the impact of "a growing number of restrictive smoking laws," which he said are affecting North Carolina's massive tobacco industry.

N.C. Skiing Conditions

By The Associated Press

Here's a report of the latest conditions on ski slopes in and around North Carolina from the Southeastern Ski Area Association and resort owners as of 9 a.m. today:

SAPPHIRE VALLEY: very good, 24 inch base, one tow operating, beginners slope open.

SUGAR MOUNTAIN: Excellent conditions, 10-to-50 inch base, groomed, man-made powder, two chairlifts and one tow operating, one beginner and two intermediate slopes open.

GATLINBURG, Tenn.: poor conditions, 1-to-10 inch base, icy surface, one chairlift and one tow operating, one advanced slope open.

Cataloochee, Hound Ears, Mill Ridge, Seven Devils, Wolf Laurel, Sky Valley, Ga., closed today.

PWP Board To Plan Activities

Greenville Chapter No. 1058 of Parents Without Partners Inc. will have a Board of Directors meeting tonight at 7:30 at a member's home. January activities will be planned.

Sara Burnish, Environmental Health Specialist at Pitt Memorial Hospital, will speak during a general meeting of the chapter tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Prospective members are invited. Ms. Burnish's topic will be "The New Value of Family Health."

Saturday there will be a party for adults at a member's home.

To be eligible for PWP, one must be the parent of a living child and be single by reason of death, divorce, separation, or never having been married. Custody of children is not a factor in determining eligibility. For more information, one may call 752-1674 or 758-9954 during evening hours.

BURLEY PRICES DROP
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Prices dropped a nickel and volume was down slightly on the Kentucky burley tobacco markets Wednesday with the sale of some 19 million pounds grossing $22.8 million.

Aflatoxin In Dairy Feed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration plans to prohibit interstate shipments of milk that contain too much aflatoxin, a mold by-product that can cause cancer.

The FDA said Wednesday it will bar shipments of whole milk, skim milk and low-fat milk with more than 0.5 part per billion of aflatoxin.

The action was taken "because it appears that aflatoxin-contaminated corn is being fed to some dairy animals in the southeastern United States," the FDA said.

A recent survey in Alabama, Georgia and North and South Carolina indicated that 19 of 302 milk samples, or 6 percent, had aflatoxin of 0.5 part per billion or more, the agency said.

Aflatoxin has been shown to cause cancer and liver damage in test animals.

The FDA already prohibits interstate shipments of food with more than 20 parts per billion of aflatoxin.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said, "The lower level for milk is being imposed because ... (it) poses a special risk to infants and young children who may consume large quantities."

Ozark Chairmaker Custodian Of Vanishing Craft

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
BOSS HOLLOW, Ark. (AP) — The government is custodian of a vanishing American wilderness. Jack McCutcheon is custodian of a vanishing American art. One or the other is going to have to give. Jack McCutcheon is a chairmaker. In partnership with his brother-in-law, Charles Christian, he makes chairs in a fashion handed down from the earliest settlers of the Ozarks, a hardy, self-sufficient breed who made do by the bounty of the wilderness and their own wits. Jack and Charles learned the chairmaking art from Jim Nichols, Charlie's father-in-law, who is now 73 and who, as a lad of 16, learned from his own father, and so on back to the pioneers. Some years ago Jack and Charles were invited to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington to demonstrate their techniques to scholars of America's folkways. Such is the rarity of their craft. It is a method involving warping the wood by boiling and then fitting the curved pieces together precisely, joining seasoned wood to unseasoned wood so the joints grow stronger with age, not weaker.

They use no nails or screws or glue. Most of their tools are hand made. Yet chairs made by Jim Nichols more than half a century ago are as sound as ever, and chairs made by Jack and Charles will be around long after both of them are gone. They are functional chairs, simple, straightforward, as honest in design as they are sturdy. "I have heard of a man in Kentucky who makes chair bottoms the way we do," Jack McCutcheon said. "I don't know his name. If there are others, I haven't heard of them."

"Most of the people who make chairs similar to ours, hand made chairs, use split oak for the seat bottoms. I really believe we're the last using bitternut bark. Nothing I've seen is as good or lasts as long." There's the rub. Bitternut trees, a variety of hickory, grow in relative abundance in this sparsely populated section of the Ozarks. But, gradually, more and more of this section has been designated as wilderness area, a legal designation which preserves the natural state of an area by prohibiting the cutting of a single tree.

One recent Saturday Jack McCutcheon, his wife, Lois, and their 23-year-old son, Carl, drove 15 miles from their home at Ben's Branch over sinuous mountain roads, no more than dirt lanes, to the nearest legal stand of bitternut Jack had been able to scout out. They parked at the mouth of Boss Hollow and then walked, or rather scrambled, a quarter of a mile along rugged slopes to the remote site. "The bitternut isn't a regular hickory tree," Jack said. "It's really a weed tree. Timber people clear them out and throw them away when they set up a logging operation. But it's the only tree we can use for our chairs. No other kind will do." The irony is that if Jack McCutcheon's source of supply is cut off, tauntingly, in the valiant effort to preserve the wilderness, a tree will live and an American folk art will die.

Visit Home For Aged

HAMILTON — Five members of the Arlington Street Southern Baptist Church of Greenville visited the Hamilton Home for the Aged Tuesday.

The five — Elizabeth Jones, Martie Squires, Myrtle Stox, Aileen Allen and Lou Whichard — attended a meeting of Mission Action groups from throughout the South Roanoke Baptist Association. They were told about and given a tour of the home by Peggy Furlough, its director. The home, one of six Southern Baptist homes for the aged in North Carolina, is always filled to its capacity, 23 residents. Each has a private room and shares a bathroom.

Mrs. Hazel Garner, who spent her working years at the Baptist children's home in Kinston, Kennedy Home, told of how happy and secure she has felt since she became a resident of the Hamilton Home. The home's oldest resident, Mrs. Odum, 93, sang the group a song she had written herself.

Ralph Cannon, Assistant Director of the N. C. Baptist Homes for the Aged, told of the inspiration he receives from the residents of all the homes. He told of a new one now being built in Winston Salem and conducted a question and answer period. Members of the Hamilton Baptist Church provided refreshments for the group.

A BALL OF STRIPS — Chairmaker Jack McCutcheon carries a ball of spliced strips from the inner bark of

Agreement Over Key Energy Bill Is Still Elusive

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can claim an important victory in congressional negotiations' approval of a tax on fuel-wasting cars. But a final agreement on the toughest energy problems seems as elusive as ever.

If accepted by a second conference committee and then by the House and Senate, the auto tax would cost buyers of inefficient 1979-model cars up to $550, a figure that would soar to as much as $3,850 on 1985 models.

The tax was approved Wednesday by the conference committee on energy taxes. Another part of the compromise approved by the committee would allow the 19 million motorists who itemize income tax deductions to continue to take a deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The House voted to end that tax break.

Even with those agreements, it seems unlikely that Congress will be able to wrap up work this year on Carter's energy program.

The two energy conference committees still face the toughest issues of all — the price of natural gas, a tax on domestic crude oil to force conservation and the distribution of revenues from that tax.

There appears to be a hardening of positions on key issues.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who supports Carter's House-approved plan to keep federal controls on the price of natural gas, said, "We have no leeway in our position, absolutely no flexibility."

Rep. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., said an increasing number of House members "would certainly rather have no bill than to move too far toward deregulation" of natural gas prices, which is favored by the Senate.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chief Senate delegate at the tax committee, was sharply critical of the Carter administration for what he called its refusal to com-

The House-Senate panel considering natural gas faced another session today with little prospect of progress.

The tax panel, after approving the auto tax, adjourned until next week to give staff members time to work out some proposals for taxing factories and power plants that burn large amounts of oil or natural gas.

The vote on the auto tax was the first major agreement reached by the tax conferees in 11 days of meetings.

The tax is not expected to save a great deal of energy, only about 175,000 barrels of oil a day compared to current U.S. consumption of 18 million barrels a day. But backers view the tax as a highly visible tool to make Americans aware of the need to conserve fuel.

The tax would be paid directly by the buyer of any car that does not meet minimum standards. It would be in addition to a heavy fine on any manufacturer whose fleet of new cars did not meet mileage standards. While the manufacturer would have to pay that penalty, it would be passed along to customers as higher car prices.

Joan Little's Fiance Says He Tipped Police

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little's fiance says she is pregnant and he is the one who tipped police that she was in New York just before her arrest.

The appeal of her breaking-and-entering conviction.

She was acquitted in a highly-publicized trial. Miss Little had been denied parole once but later won work-release privileges and was expected to win parole last month before prison officials said she had failed to show up for her work-release job on at least one occasion.

"She told me that she was pregnant and that I was the father," said Vernell Muhammad, 23, of Raleigh.

Muhammad said he had been in touch with Miss Little and flew to New York Tuesday, where she and another man met him at the airport.

"She acted as though she was afraid of this man at the airport," Muhammad said. "He told me he'd been in prison four times on felony charges. He said nobody was going to take Joan anywhere."

Muhammad said he asked Miss Little to come back with him, but "he told her to shut up. I've never seen her back down like that before. He had a handgun."

Muhammad said Joan and the other man, who called himself Doug, got into a car and the man ordered him inside too. Instead, Muhammad said he went across the street to a United Airlines terminal and called police.

Miss Little was arrested at 2 a.m. Wednesday in a high-speed chase in Brooklyn. A man named George McRae was arrested with her. Both were charged with assault, reckless endangerment, resisting arrest and criminal mischief.

Miss Little escaped from the Women's Correctional Center in Raleigh Oct. 15. She had been serving a seven-year term for breaking and entering.

She drew national attention when she was charged with murder in the icepick stabbing of a Beaufort County jailer who she said had tried to have sex with her at the jail while she was awaiting the outcome of

NO ONE LISTENS ANYMORE — Tom Baistrieri, a 26-year-old career and placement counselor dresses in the costume of an elderly man to present the image of a retired psychologist during a talk to a student group at Tampa, Fla. Baistrieri says he wants to get across the message to students of the dangers of cutting off communication. He says the character helps command attention from audiences who are usually just a few years younger than himself. (AP Laserphoto)

Early School Funds Aided Rural Communities

By Dr. H.G. JONES Curator

North Carolina Collection
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly of North Carolina in 1907 first authorized state aid for the operation of public high schools, but most of the new schools were located in villages, miles from rural students in the days before the introduction of school buses.

Besides, the state's economy was largely agricultural, and farm leaders felt that instruction in improved farming and homemaking methods ought to be taught.

The sentiment for vocational training led to the passage in 1911 of the Farm Life School Law, which provided state aid for the operation of farm life schools.

To qualify, a community had to provide physical facilities, including at least 25 acres of good land.

L.S. Inscow, Nash County historian, recently recalled the Red Oak Farm Life High School in that county, one of the 21 farm life schools organized in the state.

After Tom Jones, local farmer, donated 25 acres of his best land as a site for the school, the community of Red Oak voted $10,000 in bonds for buildings, and the county pledged $2,500 per year for operating expenses.

A new two-story frame building that housed all 11 grades of modern facilities — heat from a steam boiler; in each room a single bare bulb, powered by a gasoline-operated generator; and running water for the home economics classroom.

A building previously used for classrooms was converted into bedrooms for male boarding students, and an old residence served as the girls' dormitory. A church building was remodeled as a teacherage.

light bulb, a small sheet-iron wood-burning heater, a bed and a study table.

A hand-operated water pump was located between the dormitories. This popular rendezvous for the boys and girls provided water to fill the earthenware pitcher furnished for each room. Bowls and galvanized pails served as bathing utensils. There were, of course, only outdoor pit toilet facilities.

Room and board cost $12.50 per month, including heat and lights that had to be turned off at 10 o'clock each night. Boarding girls took turns waiting on tables, and the boys cut wood for themselves and the females.

Students from Nash and nearby counties first enrolled at Red Oak, but as the school's reputation spread, students arrived from distant counties and even from outside the state. Day students rode in on horses or in buggies.

In addition to regular academic subjects, Red Oak and the other farm life schools emphasized vocational agriculture and home economics. Students were taught such principles as crop rotation, contour plowing, selection of nutritious foods and improved homemaking practices.

When it opened in 1914, the Red Oak Farm Life High School had a faculty including Harvey A. Nannay as principal and teacher, K.H. McIntyre as agriculture and science teacher, and Nannie L. McIntyre as home economics teacher, manager of the boarding facilities and matron for the girls' dormitory.

In 1915, L.S. Inscow was employed as bookkeeper, business manager, and teacher of six classes. As if he didn't have enough to do, Inscow was responsible for erecting a barn, overseeing a herd of cows, and growing vegetables for use in the dining room.

Following Nannay as principal were, in order, T.H. Sledge, Oscar Creech and Bob Young. Among the other early teachers were S.G. Crater, Mary Brunner and Louise Wilkinson.

Red Oak not only developed a good academic and vocational program; it also produced outstanding athletic teams. Its baseball team won the state high school championship two years, and its football team played much larger schools in North Carolina and Virginia. The passage by Congress in

was designed strictly for the Mafia.

But the statute has been successfully used against Georgia policemen who took bribes, crooked government officials in Pennsylvania and union officials in California, among others.

The law permits authorities to attack criminal organizations not only through their illegal activities but by depriving them of the legitimate businesses which may help support them.

For example, before the law was passed, if the government found a fence using a legitimate business as a front for the sale of stolen goods, it could only convict the fence. His organization could replace him and keep operating.

Under this statute, Justice Department officials say, the government can seize the business itself.

Eye Attack On N.C. Rackets

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal officials plan to attack organized crime in North Carolina with a little-used federal law that permits the government to seize a business that has been infiltrated by criminals.

The law is called the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations statute. Violation can bring up to 20 years in prison and a $25,000 fine in addition to forfeiture of the business.

"We're going to utilize the ... statute as effectively as we can in this district," said U.S. Attorney George M. Anderson. "I'm convinced that this office is going to bring a ... case in the next few months."

Anderson would not give any details on the case he referred to. A U.S. Justice Department spokesman said some U.S. attorneys had not used the 1970 law because they thought it

Help for Painful Soles

When I walk on anything but the smoothest surface I get excruciating pain in the soles of my feet. Now, even at work it's beginning to be painful. — Mr. T.R.C., Maine.

Dear Mr. C.: Many people who have a high arch are bothered by this kind of pain. Years of pounding cement sidewalks can affect, and even destroy, the protective metatarsal pad. When this fat pad is no longer present, ways of finding man-made protective devices must be resorted to.

Foam rubber, soft rubber, and styrene cushions are very helpful. Specially constructed shoes, with soles that are designed to cushion the impact of walking, will ease your pain considerably.

Even after a slight cold, or gripe, I find that it takes me weeks to recover completely. Other people seem to bounce back so much more quickly than I. Is there any explanation? — Miss D.F., Mich.

Dear Miss F.: Many people, even after a mild attack of gripe or influenza, do not "bounce back" with their normal stamina. This is known to doctors as "post-infectious weakness" or "asthenia."

Sometimes, a sense of fatigue may persist for many weeks. People who do not recognize this as the body's cry for additional rest prolong the period of recovery.

There is a loss of protein commonly associated with acute infections. Replenishment of this loss with dietary supplements can markedly reduce the duration of the fatigue.

I have always felt that patients, after an infection, should indulge themselves with extra rest before returning to full activity.

Is there any medical reason why a girl who is menstruating should avoid sports or swimming? Can it be harmful? — Miss D.K., S.C.

Dear Miss K.: Many myths have been handed down from generation to generation about this particular aspect of menstruation. There is no scientific basis for believing that sports, in moderation, can do you any harm. Of course, if there are severe abdominal cramps or other discomfort it would not be wise to further exaggerate them by strenuous exercise.

Most women stay out of the water for aesthetic reasons rather than medical reasons. Some people have a sense of fatigue during the early phases of menstruation. Physical activity serves only to increase it.

Ancient Temples Rescued, Slowly Being Rebuilt

EDITOR'S NOTE — Centuries from now, will anyone remember the island sacred to the goddess Isis? Probably not. It soon will be submerged by waters of the Nile. But the temples are being rescued, and as Philae vanishes, ancient monuments are rising on Agilkia.

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
For The Associated Press
ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — With the help of frogmen and giant cranes, the ancient temples of Philae Island have been rescued from a watery grave beneath the Nile and are rising slowly on another island. Block by block, the temple of the goddess Isis is being reassembled, "like crossword puzzles," says Sami Farag, resident Egyptian archeologist at the reconstruction site.

The island of Philae has vanished in a pool of stagnant green water behind an encircling cofferdam between the high Aswan Dam and the 75-year-old low dam. Soon the cofferdam will be torn down, leaving nothing to mark the spot which was the sacred island of Isis from history's most remote times until the 6th century A.D. when her cult, the last flicker of Pharaonic civilization, was snuffed out by Christianity.

The little island, 600 miles up river from the Mediterranean Sea, was the final sanctuary of Isis. Greeks, Romans and Coptic Christians conquered the Nile Delta, bringing their religions to Egypt and erecting their own temples on Philae, but Isis endured.

But when the British built the low Aswan Dam in 1902, the Nile crept over Philae, submerging the temples for nine months every year. The high Aswan Dam, completed in 1971, trapped Philae in a rising pool of water between the two dams.

In the early 1970s, the monuments were dismantled by a team of Egyptian workmen, Italian engineers and Egyptologists funded by UNESCO and the Egyptian government. Nearly 50,000 stone blocks were labeled, cleaned and stored behind a barbed wire fence deep inside a military reserve.

With dynamite and shovels, a new home was prepared on nearby Agilkia Island, a much higher island with few archaeological treasures. The island's rocky contours were blasted into a plateau. The debris was used to shape

Last March, the first pieces of the monuments were brought to the island, and reassembling began. Eight months later, the two pylons — thick, trapezoid-shaped walls covered with inscriptions — stand partially completed in front of the foundation for the main temple of Isis. The project is expected to be completed in about two years.

While much of Philae's history has been obscure, it is known that the island played a prominent role in the religion of the Pharaohs.

"Ancient Egyptians at very remote times of history believed that there was a family of gods who ruled the Nile Valley," Farag says. "Osiris was the head of this family. Ancient Egyptians loved this god very much, because they believed that he taught them all the means of improving life. This put envy in the heart of his brother Set, who got rid of him by cutting his body into several pieces and tossing them along the Nile Valley. When Isis, the wife of Osiris, started searching for his body, she started on Philae, so Philae became sacred for Isis."

British and Egyptian navy divers have been enlisted to salvage one last temple of Philae, the Roman temple of Augustus which lies outside the cofferdam.

Jetliner Slid Into Snowbank

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — Hundreds of persons were stranded but none hurt when an Eastern Airlines jet with 70 passengers slid into a snowbank at Bradley International Airport Wednesday.

The airport was closed to air traffic for more than five hours as workers pulled the Boeing 727-225 back onto a main runway.

The plane, on Flight 598 from Atlanta, had landed safely and was turning during taxiing when it skidded off a main runway shortly before 5:30 p.m. It became stuck in snow and mud about one-fourth mile from the airport terminal.

An airport spokesman said there was a possibility of pilot error. Eastern said its pilot was following normal procedure. An investigation was planned.

Hundreds of persons faced flight cancellations. Some airlines bused passengers to other New England and New York cities. Some, including Eastern, offered their passengers hotel rooms and meals until the airport was reopened and the flights were rescheduled.

Bradley International Airport is located between Hartford and Springfield, Mass.

William Joseph, Eastern's sales and service manager at Bradley, said the pilot was following regular taxiing procedure when the plane slipped off a snowy and icy runway.

But he didn't criticize the airport's maintenance of its runways. "They do a competent job; I think proper procedures were followed," he said.

Joseph said an initial inspection indicated the plane was not damaged.

The plane will be checked further at Bradley. If no serious damage is found, it will be moved without passengers to a regional maintenance center, he said.

The plane had been scheduled to depart leave Bradley Wednesday night as Flight 391, bound for Washington, D.C. and Charlotte, N.C.

Eastern delayed the plane's removal Wednesday night while a crew of mechanics was flown from Boston in a small plane.

Passengers exited the plane via a standard airline stairway which had been taken to the plane, Joseph said.

Five Shared In Olympics

Five students of H. B. Sugg Elementary School, Farmville, recently participated in the N.C. Special Olympics State Games in Henderson.

Participants were Johnny Blow, who won a first place gold medal; Linwood Johnson, first place gold medalist; Linda Anderson, first place gold medalist; Linda Peterson, second place silver medalist; and Jerry Boone, second place silver medalist.

Mrs. Catherine Tyson, Special Education teacher, acted as assistant coordinator and chaperone for the weekend event. Donnie Ellis was coordinator and coach for the athletes. The Farmville Special Olympics Program is sponsored by the Farmville Recreation and Parks Department with Fred Sauls as Director.

The event in which the Farmville youths took part was the run, dribble and shoot competition.

Chimney Sweeping In Seattle

BELIZ BROTHER noticed Seattle had no persons who cleaned chimneys exclusively, she decided to start her own business. Here she drops a weighted brush down a chimney during a sweep for which she charges $35. (UPI Photo)

By DAVID LAWSKY
SEATTLE (UPI) — Carol Anderson switched occupations — from juvenile probation officer to chimney sweep.
 The decision was a hard one because Ms. Anderson has an eight-year-old daughter.
 "I had to quit that job as a matter of principle," she recalls. "Without juvenile delinquency I wouldn't have had a job. In the end, it was self-serving."

Her friend, Beliz Brother, had become interested in sweeping chimneys and researched the subject. She noticed that Seattle had no one who cleaned chimneys exclusively and decided to start a business. After some convincing, Ms. Anderson agreed to join.

"Sweeping chimneys is a necessity in Europe," said Ms. Brother. "In the United States at one time there were places where citizens who didn't get their chimneys swept were fined because chimney fires could endanger an entire town. If there was no sweep, it became the mayor's job to sweep the chimneys."

 The increasing cost of other fuels has encouraged the use of wood to heat homes in the Pacific Northwest, which has an abundance of wood. And that's led to some problems.
 "When everybody heated with wood people knew how to care for their chimneys," says Bill

Watkins, president of Fireplace Distributors in Seattle. "But it's been several generations and much of the folk knowledge has been lost."
 Ms. Brother went to Connecticut and apprenticed with a practicing sweep to learn her business. Then she and Ms. Anderson set up business as August West Chimney Sweep Co., the same name used by the Connecticut firm.

 The sweeping cleans out not only soot and dust but also creosote, the same material used to protect piers from rot. Creosote tends to build up most when pine is used. It can catch fire inside the chimney.
 The firm charges $35 for a sweep. With a giant vacuum cleaner and a weighted brush which drops down the chimney, the sweepers can do four or five chimneys a day.

"The English once used children as chimney sweeps, because they were able to crawl in tight places," says Ms. Brother. "They used geese for the same reason. Adult sweeps wore tuxedos they got out of garbage cans because they were free. They wore top hats for luck — to keep from falling off roofs.

 "We don't wear tuxedos — we wear black clothes — but we do wear top hats on the roofs and we haven't fallen yet."
 Some customers have, at first, been skeptical because they are women.
 "People say things like 'are you sure you girls can do it?'" said Ms. Brother. "Once we clean their chimney quickly and efficiently, and show them how to check their chimney so they'll know when to call us next, they are enthused. They call their friends and recommend us."
 "It's very satisfying."

Experiment Indicates Student Test 'Jitters' Preventable

By GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
 ECU News Bureau

A psychological experiment involving East Carolina University students who get the jitters when taking tests was published in the Fall, 1977, issue of "Psychological Reports."
 The article, "Postsession Discussion in Induced Anxiety Therapy and Reduction of Test Anxiety," was co-authored by Carolyn E. Means, a former graduate student at ECU and Drs. Charles H. Moore and Larry W. Means, ECU psychologists.

In the experiment, 32 female students, selected because they experienced high levels of anxiety during tests, were administered several forms of a behavior therapy technique. The purpose of the experiment, according to the article, was to evaluate the effectiveness of a discussion period between the psychologist and subject at the end of each treatment session.

Selected on the basis of their test scores on the Sarason anxiety survey, the students were divided equally into four groups. Members of two of the groups were treated individually using the induced-anxiety technique.

It consisted of five minutes of instructed relaxation, 10 minutes of induced anxiety and five minutes of relaxation. At the end of each session, members of one group were asked to discuss their feelings. Participants in the other group were told to relax with no discussion.

Subjects in the third group were asked to sit comfortably for 18 minutes after which they discussed their feelings about taking tests. The remaining group was given no treatment at all.

At the end of eight weeks, the students were again given the Sarason test. This time, the women in the first two groups showed significant improvement. The third group recorded a moderate reduction in anxiety and the group that received no treatment remained unchanged.

They Don't Run For Offices

TAYLORSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The incumbents strolled to victory again in this town where the election ballot has blanks for mayor and aldermen, "and people just write in who they want."

Mayor Edwin Rhodes got 33 of the 56 votes cast, which included three for his brother, Mell. Alderman Robert Harris topped the vote-gatherers with

The conclusion drawn by the psychologists was that the induced anxiety procedure can be used with or without the postsession discussion to effectively reduce test anxiety.

The experiment was supported by a grant from the ECU Research Council.

40 and Alderman Harvey Woods received 37 votes.

"We don't run for office," explained Woods. "In the town, everybody knows everybody and everyone seems to know who might accept the job and who they want to do it."

All three incumbents have served several unpaid terms in office in this north Georgia town of about 180 residents.

Today's Cryptquip clue: J equals L

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The Big Pay-Off Was For Book-Title

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Medved and David Wall-echnsky may be the recipients of the best deal in television — they got $200,000 for the title of their book "What Really Happened to the Class of '65."
 The NBC series based on that title premieres today at 10 p.m.

EST.
 Their book documented the lives of 30 of their fellow graduates of Pacific Palisades High School, dubbed the "Golden Class" by Time magazine in 1965.
 Universal Studios bought the book with the intention of turning it into a feature motion picture. But the movie was abandoned and NBC put it on its fall schedule as an anthology series.
 NBC's original plan was to take the stories directly from the book, but executive producer Richard Irving said, "All of the stories were downers. These were the kids caught up in the world of the '60s, the protests, the drug culture, the breakdown of morality."
 "The network did not think there would be an audience for that kind of thing."
 NBC pulled the series off its fall schedule and sent it back to Universal for retooling. The result is that all of the real stories were dropped and NBC opted for an anthology series based on types.
 For instance, what ever happened to the class clown, the class beauty, the class he-man, the class hustler, the valetorian, and so on. The stories are all fictional and are not from the book.
 Irving said, "The drama we feel is that their stories are told against the canvas of the turbulence of the 1960s. We chose to take the positive side, the inspirational side."

The bidding:
 East South West North
 Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥
 Pass 1 NT Pass 3 NT
 Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

East and West cooperated superbly on this hand to "surround" dummy and defeat a reasonable no trump game.

The auction was straightforward. Despite the fact that his spade stopper was rather shaky, we approve of South's decision to rebid one no trump on his balanced hand rather than rebid his weak five-card minor or raise hearts.

West was reluctant to lead opener's suit, so he decided to attack with a club. So as not to give an impression of strength in the suit, he opted for the lead of his second highest rather than the usual fourth-best. Declarer won in dummy, led a heart to the king and continued with the nine and another heart when East held up the ace until the third round. West stuffed a card from each minor.

East paused to take stock. The auction, the club strength in dummy and his partner's discards made it obvious that there was no future in either of the minor suits. Obviously, therefore, the defenders' tricks would have to come from the spade suit, and they would have to come quickly for declarer surely had nine tricks in the other suits. That meant that West would have to have the ace of spades.

But that was only part of it. If declarer held three spades, there was no way that the defenders could get more than three tricks in the suit. Therefore, East had to assume that declarer held only two spades.
 Since one of declarer's spades had to be the queen to justify his no trump bid, East shifted to the king of spades! West followed with the nine, and that served a double purpose—it encouraged East to continue the suit and got a blocking card out of the way.
 East continued spades, and West captured the queen with the ace. When West now returned his low spade, East was poised with the jack-eight over dummy's ten-seven. No matter which card declarer played from dummy, the defenders had to get two more spade tricks.

Campus Officer Awaits Hearing

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The campus security director at North Carolina A&T State University is free on $10,000 bond as he awaits a hearing on charges of possessing marijuana for sale and of actually selling it.

Norwood McMillan, 32, was charged after one of his own security officers turned him in. In sworn statements on a search warrant application, Sgt. Cynthia Cole, a campus security officer, said McMillan gave her more than 100 manila envelopes or bags containing marijuana and asked her to sell it for him.

She said she saw McMillan take the envelopes from an office safe where he kept "drug evidence" seized by campus police.

Officers arrested McMillan, a former Greensboro policeman, Monday night. He was released Tuesday under $10,000 bond and charged with four counts of possession of marijuana with intent to sell and one count of sale and delivery.

Although officers declined to say how much marijuana they seized, a list of items found in a search of McMillan's office listed over 40 paper bags and envelopes of "green vegetable matter." The affidavit said they also found large sums of money, including bills, identified by serial numbers, which Sgt. Cole said she gave McMillan.

The affidavit said she reported to her superiors after McMillan made several efforts to get her to sell marijuana for him. The superiors contacted law enforcement officers. Authorities said an SBI agent gave her $350 which she gave McMillan who gave her $130 back. She gave the money to the agent. The affidavit then listed several other transactions between Cole and McMillan.

A&T Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy announced Tuesday he had suspended McMillan pending disposition of the charges against him. McMillan attended A&T and later graduated from Guilford College. He was included in Who's Who in American Colleges and was a Dana scholar at Guilford.

The first coast-to-coast color television program was broadcast in the United States in 1953.

Yugoslavs Scrimping To Just Get By

By DOYLE McMANUS
BELGRADE. Yugoslavia (UPI) — Five o'clock in the morning, and the alarm clock won't stop ringing.
 Zoran Radovic, 42, opens one eye, groans, reaches over his head to turn off the alarm and rolls out of his small bed in the kitchen.
 Monday.
 Zoran crosses the cold linoleum floor, fills a battered brass Turkish-style coffee pot with water and puts it on the electric range to boil. He steps into the bathroom and splashes cold water on his unshaven face.
 He walks into the bedroom to wake his wife Ivanka, 29, who sleeps there with the children — Pavle, a tousie-haired 4-year-old boy, and Yelena, a girl of 15 months. The cloudy Belgrade sky outside the tiny, sixth-floor apartment is already beginning to lighten. Already — at five o'clock — an early shift of construction workers is hammering away on another apartment building, identical to the rest.

 Zoran, shaving, tries to focus his mind on the week ahead. Glad I'm not a construction worker, he thinks — up before sunrise every day.
 Usually Zoran can sleep until almost seven before he starts for work at Belgrade Gymnasium (high school) number 12, where he teaches chemistry and physics.
 But today is Monday, and Zoran is up early to take little Pavle to his mother-in-law's house. The boy stays with his grandmother during the week. Ivanka works full-time too — as a salesgirl in a luxury-goods store — so the two children are looked after by their grandmothers.

 There is no "typical" family in Yugoslavia, any more than in the United States, Germany or any other big country.
 Yugoslavia is a patchwork of several distinct peoples, a federation of Catholic Croats and Slovenes, Orthodox Serbs and Macedonians, and a sizable Moslem minority. Its 22 million people include sophisticated city-dwellers, rugged mountain men and backward peasants.
 But Zoran and Ivanka Radovic, real people, are typical enough. They are Serbs, but not nationalistic, separatist Serbs.

They were born into the Eastern Orthodox church, but they no longer practice their parents' faith. They live in Belgrade, the country's federal capital and the closest thing to a melting pot of the different ethnic groups.
 Their combined income is $5,500 per year, slightly higher than the national average for a family of four. Zoran makes $240 per month at his teaching job and adds a bit to that by private tutoring. Ivanka earns about $200 per month as a salesgirl in the luxury goods shop.
 Years of inflation, at rates from 12 to 18 percent, have driven prices to a painfully high level. Milk costs 80 cents a quart, butter $2 a pound, cheese $1.65 and up, and ground meat — with plenty of fat — $1.40.
 But Zoran and Ivanka manage to save enough for a few luxuries. They own a car, a tiny "Zastava" or Yugoslav-made Fiat, which cost $4,500. Zoran's brother, who is working for higher wages in West Germany, smuggled back a new $300 German color television — free of the import duties that would have doubled the price.
 Zoran admits, grudgingly, that he and his wife feel fairly well off. But they are always scrimping and saving.
 For their three-week vacation this summer, the Radovics drove to neighboring Greece — but not for the scenery. "It was cheaper than Yugoslavia, and the service there is better," Zoran said.

At $8.20 a pound, the coffee is a luxury — but no Yugoslav will willingly give it up.
 Like almost all Belgraders, Zoran still makes coffee the traditional Serbian way, like his peasant great-grandparents did before they moved from the country to the city.
 The peasants are still moving in. Some of the new arrivals live in Zoran's building, and he and Ivanka wrinkle their noses and laugh when they see the peasants carefully put their shoes out in the hall at night.
 Still, Zoran — although he takes pride in his city sophistication, his college education and his modern apartment — continues making coffee the old way, in a battered brass pot. The old pot and a few Orthodox religious icons on the living room wall are the only signs of his peasant past.
 Ivanka finally gets out of bed and walks in, yawning, to check on the coffee.
 "Get the boy dressed, eh?" Zoran growls.
 It is almost 6:30 when Zoran and a still-sleepy Pavle get out the door into the dark hall and take the cold, clanking elevator to the street. As usual, one of the elevators isn't working. As usual, Zoran notes, it will be a week before it is fixed.
 Zoran moved into the big, state-built housing project eight years ago, when he was still a bachelor. He and Ivanka would like to move out now, but the waiting list for new apartments is long — and the rent would be higher than their current $60 a month.
 "It also helps to know somebody, or to be a party member," Zoran says. Like nine out of 10 Yugoslavs, Zoran and Ivanka are not members of the Communist party.

Back at home, Ivanka has dressed and is waiting for the other grandmother — Zoran's mother — to arrive. Zoran's mother takes care of Yelena, the baby, and cooks Zoran's lunch when Ivanka is at work.
 Like Zoran, Ivanka attended the University of Belgrade, and before her first child was born she completed two years of law school. Education is free in Yugoslavia, but the competition for admission to universities is fierce.
 After Pavle was born, Ivanka left the university to help support the family. "I have two years left to go," she says sadly. "I don't know when I'll be able to go back."
 She and Zoran like to make fun of the well-off women, wives of party and government officials, who buy imported clothes, whiskey and other luxury goods in the exclusive shop where she works.
 "It's a Potemkin Village," Ivanka says, referring to the old Russian story of a village of shiny false facades built to impress visiting officials. "You won't find merchandise like that anywhere else in the country."

 In mid-morning, Zoran's mother arrives by bus and immediately begins assembling an elaborate lunch, the main meal of the day. The pungent odor of green peppers fills the little apartment — pickled peppers, a Serbian favorite, as well as stuffed peppers for the main course. There will be thin chicken soup with carrots too, and beer, but no dessert — Zoran is worried about his waistline.
 Ivanka does not have time to eat lunch at home, and gets lunch at a workers' cafeteria downtown.
 Zoran is serious about his work and proud of Belgrade's schools.
 "We are very strong in physics and chemistry," he says. "We had an American boy in school a few years ago. Our students had taken five years of chemistry and physics before they entered gymnasium (high school). The American boy hadn't had any."
 Zoran teaches five hours a day, five days a week at Gymnasium No. 12, and he says he spends at least two more hours a day grading papers and preparing classes.
 "Our schools are getting too liberal," he complains. "There's not enough competition any more."
 On paper, Gymnasium No. 12 — like almost every factory, enterprise and government agency in Yugoslavia — runs by "self-management." That means the employees meet in council to decide how the school should be managed.
 But in practice, Zoran says, "There's not much self-management. We approve the school's yearly plan in a referendum, and that's about all."

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT COMMISSION RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC NOTICE
 Of Receipt of Applications For Funds Under The Clean Water Bond Act
 Pursuant to Section 9(c) of the North Carolina Clean Water Bond Act of 1977, notice is given that the Commission has received applications for the Environmental Management Commission requesting State grant assistance for the following projects:
 1. Construction of approximately 17,300 linear feet of 8-inch thru 15-inch collection sewer, one (1) 300 gpm lift station and related appurtenances to serve residential areas proposed for annexation and future industrial areas along U.S. 264, U.S. 264-A West and S.R. 1143. The State grant requested is $109,508 and the total project cost is estimated to be $438,032.
 2. Construction of approximately 6,400 linear feet of 8-inch thru 18-inch collection sewer and related appurtenances to serve existing residences along 11th thru 15th streets, western-most intersection of S.R. 1143 and U.S. 264. The State grant requested is $36,076, and the total project cost is estimated to be $136,304.
 Any State grant funds approved for these projects will be subtracted from the $545,300 allocated to Pitt County for wastewater collection systems under the Act.
 Section 9(d) of the Act provides, in essence, that any citizen who resides in Pitt County may request a public hearing on the applications.
 A request for a hearing and the reasons for the request must be filed with the Commission at P. O. Box 27687, Raleigh, North Carolina, 27611, within fifteen (15) days of the date of publication of this notice.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT COMMISSION RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC NOTICE
 Of Receipt of an Application for Funds Under The Clean Water Bond Act
 Pursuant to Section 9(c) of the North Carolina Clean Water Bond Act of 1977, notice is given that the Greenville Utilities Commission has submitted an application to the Environmental Management Commission requesting a State grant in the amount of $31,924. These grant funds are requested to assist in the construction of approximately 15,800 linear feet of 8-inch thru 15-inch collection sewers to serve eight areas in and around the City of Greenville including areas along Brook Road, Greenville Boulevard and west of the new hospital.
 The Environmental Management Commission by Resolution dated June 9, 1977, approved this project for a State grant in the amount of $58,022 from funds made available thru the Clean Water Bond Act of 1977. The grant approved was less than the allowable 25 percent of the estimated eligible costs due to limited funds available; therefore, this application is to increase State grant participation to 25 percent.
 The total eligible cost of the project is estimated to be $359,783.
 Any State grant funds approved for this project will be subtracted from the $545,300 allocated to Pitt County for wastewater collection systems under the Act.
 Section 9(d) of the Act provides, in essence, that any citizen who resides in Pitt County may request a public hearing on the application.

 Married to LYNN WINTER, SCHENECTADY, N.Y. - WINTERS LAW: HE'S NEVER BROKE AT BREAK-EVEN TIME!

When the water boils, Zoran takes the long-handled pot off the stove and carefully spoons in powder-fine Turkish coffee.
 Zoran admits, grudgingly, that he and his wife feel fairly well off. But they are always scrimping and saving.
 For their three-week vacation this summer, the Radovics drove to neighboring Greece — but not for the scenery. "It was cheaper than Yugoslavia, and the service there is better," Zoran said.
 After Pavle was born, Ivanka left the university to help support the family. "I have two years left to go," she says sadly. "I don't know when I'll be able to go back."
 She and Zoran like to make fun of the well-off women, wives of party and government officials, who buy imported clothes, whiskey and other luxury goods in the exclusive shop where she works.
 "It's a Potemkin Village," Ivanka says, referring to the old Russian story of a village of shiny false facades built to impress visiting officials. "You won't find merchandise like

FORD Fairmont

2-Door 4-Doors Wagons

HURRY IN NOW TO...

Fairmont has made it big despite all kinds of new car competition. In its first 40 days, it has taken off at a faster sales pace than even the original Mustang... a pace that makes Fairmont America's best-selling new car in history!

There are many good reasons, but two stand out. Official government EPA ratings show Fairmont has the highest mileage figures of all mid-size cars in America. Fairmont also has the lowest sticker price in its class.

The most popular Mercedes-Benz idea: The 240 D.

The 240 D represents the evolution of a concept established in 1936: a practical diesel engine in a sedan with the engineered comfort found only in automobiles built by Mercedes-Benz.

Pre-combustion fuel injection (see drawing) feeds fuel to the refined 2.4-liter overhead cam engine. There is no ignition system to require conventional tune-ups, no spark plugs to replace.

The entire body shell is a single strong unit with more than 4,700 welds. The sophisticated chassis design features zero-offset front axles and fully independent rear suspension, providing excellent handling characteristics and a comfortable ride.

The 240 D proves that your desires and the demands of our energy-hungry world need not be at odds. Call today for a test drive.

GREAT GIFT BUYS!

Hank Jr. Using His Own Style

By TOM MADDEN
CULLMAN, Ala. (UPI) — Two years ago, Hank Williams Jr. survived a terrible fall from a mountain near Wisdom, Ariz. Now, there's no more living with the past for the son of a country music idol.

"Just before the fall I was doing what everybody else wanted me to do," he said. "I was programmed to dress like daddy, sing like daddy and act like daddy. It was hell."
"People came to see me because I was Hank Williams' son. Now, it feels real good when people applaud me because of my own work and style."

Hank Williams died at 29 after becoming a singing sensation with a string of hits that included "Your Cheatin Heart," "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry," and "You Win Again." His son almost died at 27 when he fell while mountain climbing.

"I went down about 490 feet and hit a boulder. The doctors said I wouldn't live, but I fooled them. I was out of the hospital in 15 days."

Williams, 29, who describes himself as a hunting and fishing freak, has had eight operations since the August, 1975 fall. Every bone in Williams' face was broken and most of the operations were aimed at putting the entertainer's face back together. "Right after the fall my mouth was wired up and the first thing I wanted to know was would I be able to hunt again," he said while sitting among his hundreds of hunting trophies. "I thought it was stupid to ask if I could sing again."

Williams was back singing in May of 1976 and continued to complete the transition to being what he described as his own man.

He still considers himself a hunting and fishing freak and has moved to a newly built home in a wooded, secluded area near this northwest Alabama town.

"Nashville had become like Hollywood. I just wanted to get away and be around people that understand me."

"I had already started changing my philosophy just before the fall, but the accident just made it even more so," he said. "I had plenty of time to think in the hospital and I knew I had to change."

He said before the mishap his act consisted of imitating his father. "I wore white suits, jumped over mikes and sang about 14 of my daddy's songs. When I would try something new, people would tell me the audience wasn't coming to hear that stuff and for me to stick to my daddy's hits."

Williams said that following the fall he began to write more of his own material, changed his stage appearance and began trying new musical techniques.

"I'm writing and singing about today now and using more of my style of music," he said. "I still use some of Daddy's songs in my act, but not like I used to."

Williams' latest album is entitled the "New South," and the entertainer said the compositions encompass most of his new approach.

"In the album I sing about today and not 1951 like I was with Daddy's songs. I don't want to continue living in the past."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you have a magnetic force and are able to achieve much advancement in career matters. Take time to study important affairs you know little about.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are now able to get ahead easily via the creative ideas you have. Make new allies who can be helpful to you in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to handle your responsibilities in a wise and conscientious manner. Come to a better understanding with loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make new plans with associates that are more workable and profitable. Avoid one of your own sex who can be troublesome.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There is much work ahead of you, so stop dilly-dallying and get much accomplished. Make plans for the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't neglect important business matters early in the day. Show more affection for your mate and get fine response.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study a new project first before making any decisions. Don't be too demanding of family members. Avoid a troublemaker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handling important business matters early in the day is wise. Take time to visit friends and relatives later in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put that charm to work and gain more of the fine things of life that you desire. Take no chances with your good name.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Consult a good adviser and get the information you need. Later join congenials at worthwhile recreations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to contact a trusted friend and gain backing for your personal aims. Avoid one who is detrimental to your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans to engage in recreations with favorite friends. Take no risks where your credit is concerned. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) See what you can do to improve your position in the community where you live. Express happiness with the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a very good organizer. Be sure to give the finest education you can afford and equip your progeny for a good life. Include foreign languages in school studies. There is musical talent in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Forensic Industry Accounting

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — American companies hard hit by the invasion of around $18 billion worth of Japanese products this year cannot depend on the government to solve the problem entirely.

They must help themselves — and the Chicago-based accounting firm Alexander Grant Co. says forensic accounting can be an important aid.

Forensic accounting analyzes an end product to determine cost and production methods by a process of deduction.

Grant's New York office used a team led by Peter Skomorowsky to employ forensic accounting to win a consent judgment for GTE-Sylvania against five Japanese makers of television receivers. Skomorowsky said the method should serve as a model to help many other industries protect themselves against the dumping of foreign products on the U.S. market.

"Forensic accounting can gather concrete evidence on which government agencies such as the International Trade Commission can act effectively," Skomorowsky explained.

The ability of the government to limit imports of Japanese products, many of them probably sold for less than the true production cost in Japan, is restricted by overwhelming global political and economic considerations.

Japan is quite dependent on exports to the United States, which took 23 percent of all her exports and half her foreign sales of TV receivers last year. America's unfavorable trade balance with Japan may hit $8 billion this year and many American firms, especially those in electronics, have been hard hit by the competition.

A special mission sent to Tokyo by President Carter delivered a stern warning to the Japanese government that its lopsided trade policies are threatening the stability of the industrialized west and demanded that Japan make bigger voluntary cuts in her exports.

But Japanese industry, seeking to expand its high export level in recent months while maintaining a virtually closed economy at home and an employment rate much higher than other industrial countries, now has an inventory problem that is threatening her with economic stagnation.

The Japanese, reacting in shock to the situation, seem determined to continue to resist pressure from foreign governments.

That underlines the need for American firms to help themselves in meeting Japanese competition.

In the GTE-Sylvania case, the Grant firm was engaged by Curtis Mallet-Prevost Colt & Mosie, Sylvania's lawyers, to try to ferret out the production costs for TV receivers which Japanese manufacturers and the Tokyo government have adamantly refused to make available.

Skomorowsky and his team did sufficiently well to force the Japanese firms to accept the consent decree with the U.S. International Trade Commission, promising to cease dumping on the U.S. market and to agree to supply the commission with cost figures on demand in future. The Japanese firms also agreed to cease engaging in activities in Japan intended to restrict U.S. exports to Japan. The decree was signed July 14.

The leverage used to compel the Japanese to accept the decree was the forensic accounting procedure.

Skomorowsky and his fellow accountants bought a variety of Japanese and American made TV receivers and hired mechanics to take them apart. Then an intensive cost accounting investigation, with the aid of computer analysis, was made of every component and assembly procedure based on all that could be learned of labor, material and transportation and marketing costs both in Japan and the United States.

Ultimately, this forensic procedure enabled the Grant team and Sylvania's lawyers to convince the Trade Commission that the Japanese indeed were dumping and persuaded the Japanese firms to sign the decree.

"It was the next best thing to an actual look at the Japanese manufacturers' books," the Grant firm said.

Actually, a formal finding by the U.S. government that Japan has been dumping color TV receivers on the U.S. market was made as early as 1971 and the Japanese were required to put up bonds of 9 percent of the value of the merchandise they brought into the country to cover possible penalty duties. This bond later was raised to 15 percent.

But according to Zenith Radio Corp. of Chicago, which in 1974 filed a $600 million suit against many Japanese color TV producers charging them with dumping, not a single penalty duty has been assessed against the Japanese makers since 1971 despite the clear indication of dumping.

TV receivers are only a small part of the flood of Japanese imports which range from automobiles to watches, cameras and 500 other items including the ubiquitous transistor radio.

It is questionable if Japanese dumping practices can explain the flood altogether. Dr. Thomas Vanderslice, a vice president of General Electric Co., in a recent speech in Atlanta, put part of the blame on the falling appropriations of American industry for research and development.

"The fraction of the U.S. Gross National Product devoted to R & D has declined steadily for 10 years," Vanderslice said, "dropping nearly a quarter from its peak of 3 percent in 1964." He predicted this negative investment trend will get a little worse in the years ahead.

West Germany increased her expenditures for R & D by 40 percent in recent years and Japan by a striking 74 percent. "Moreover," Vanderslice continued, "most of the R & D efforts in Europe and Japan since World War II have been oriented towards civilian economic development, whereas in the U.S. the major effort has been on defense and space objectives." Japan steadfastly has refused to ameliorate the problems caused by the flooding of the U.S. market with its products by absorbing greater amounts of American goods. Japan insists her economy cannot survive without a more or less closed domestic market and it has tightly restricted foreign investments in Japan.

The Japanese have negotiated some fairly large voluntary reductions in their exports to the United States. Sylvania participated with a number of other American companies in an agreement by which the Japanese promised this year to slash their shipments of color TV receivers to the U.S. by one million to 1.75 million annually for three years.

But the Japanese have argued consistently that larger Japanese investments in the United States are the most feasible way to offset the unfavorable U.S. trade balance with Japan, a position most American companies cannot accept.

This is historic Japanese policy. The Japanese warlords invaded China in 1931 and attacked the United States in December, 1941, in an effort to create a vast monopoly market in China and southeast Asia. Having few natural resources of its own, Japan could not hope to survive without both large import and export markets, and it despaired of obtaining them except by military force.

Today, communists control China and much of southeast Asia so Japan's opportunities there are limited. Consequently, it has reoriented its whole economy towards trade and investment in the West, particularly in the United States, and has greatly upgraded the quality of its exports.

But the huge flood of Japanese imports has caused the loss of thousands of American jobs and slashed the profits of many American companies.

Zenith, Dictaphone Corp. and many other American firms have had to announce that they are moving much of their production to Mexico and to Taiwan and other offshore points in order to get costs down to compete with the Japanese. The growing Japanese penetration of the global watch business has hit American companies such as Bulova and others.

On Sept. 27, Zenith announced it would have to eliminate 600 salaried workers and ultimately would have to drop 5,000 domestic workers through the transfer of production abroad.

Zenith Chairman John J. Nevin told a meeting of his company's distributors in Las Vegas last May he has no doubt that "the ability of Japanese companies to violate American law with impunity is the primary cause of the American television industry's difficulties."

He said that while the Japanese acquired 17 percent of the U.S. color TV receiver market and half the black and white receiver market by 1970, the big surge in their exports in 1976 and 1977 "was a direct result of the worldwide recession that began in 1974."

Rex Humbard Started With Nothing But An Idea

EDITORS' NOTE: The Rev. Rex Humbard recognized the influence of television 25 years ago. Today, with an annual budget of $18 million, his sermons are telecast by more than 540 stations around the world. Here in the fourth of a five-part series, is a look at the Rex Humbard Foundation.

By JOE MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — In 1952, Alpha Rex Emmanuel Humbard, the eldest son of an Arkansas evangelist, recognized the magic of television after seeing its drawing power in an Akron department store. Today, the Rev. Rex Humbard is the head of the interdenominational Rex Humbard Foundation with an annual budget of $18 million. He went $3 million over that budget last year in transmitting Christianity by radio and television to an estimated three million people in the United States and millions of others in at least eight countries. It all originates at the Cathedral of Tomorrow, a sprawling domed structure among small businesses in Cuyahoga Falls, a suburb north of this industrial city. The posh cavernous auditorium of 5,000 seats is adjacent to his business office, advertising agency and television studio. Starting with nothing but an idea in 1952, his syndicated sermons are now telecast by more than 540 stations around the world. It is long step from 1973 when Ohio and federal agencies accused his cathedral of selling $12.5 million of unregistered securities through unlicensed salesmen. Humbard, 58, denies it pushed him to the point of bankruptcy. However, Dennis Shaul, an Akron attorney who was director of the Ohio Department of Commerce at the time, credited a state repayment plan with keeping the Cathedral alive. He said the securities had no collateral support and any demand for immediate payment "would have put it under." Humbard said he canceled contracts for overseas television, closed the newly acquired Mackinac College on Mackinac Island, Mich., fired some people and delayed some debt payments. His more than 300 television outlets at that time were cut by two-thirds. "For over two years I had to take all that off ...," he said. "I paid every bond and note off and then I went back and I've got more television and radio than I've ever had..." "I never criticized anybody. I just kept on preaching and my friends who had been blessed by this ministry gave, not $10 a month, they gave $100; they gave $1,000. All kinds of religious organizations sent donations because I'd blessed their churches." Humbard said he had to beg some people to present bonds for redemption. When the last journal entry was filed in a state court on the matter in 1976, a Columbus bank which handled the distribution still held over $70,000 to cover obligations not presented for redemption. Humbard now says all money to support his ministry comes from contributions to the cathedral from around the world. "Everything we've got is mortgaged..." he said. "We've got no surplus, no outside income; it's all donations." He claims to personally own nothing, saying the airplane and car he uses are both leased. Humbard started his TV evangelism in 1952 while living in a motel. Now he lives in a $200,000 home on five acres near a country club. He said a bank gave the cathedral a 100 percent loan for the house. His church has a paid staff of 300, plus numerous volunteers and a $9 million mortgage. "For 25 years we have been in debt," he said. "Everything we've got is mortgaged and just for one reason. Our commission is to go into all the world... We could take off the overseas (operations) and we could be out of debt." All of it is financed, the evangelist said, with "mostly $5 and $10 contributions" mailed from around the world. "We get six million to eight million letters a year," said Warren McPherson, director of public relations for the cathedral. "Many of them have problems... family difficulties, loneliness, fear, sickness." And many of them send donations. No one will estimate how many but during one Sunday sermon to a congregation of 4,500 Humbard passed his hand over a rack of several thousand letters. He picked up a neatly tied bundle and waved it for the benefit of television. "The only reason we didn't pray for you today is because you didn't ask," he preached. "Ask. I want your request here and I promise you are going to get an answer."

Later in the sermon, taped Oct. 30 for release April 16, 1978, he preached: "I don't want to take an offering. I want people to obey God's word. You can't be saved until you give." He added several references to writing checks. Twenty-six ushers passed gallon sized plastic buckets through the congregation to take the collection. The Rev. Ron Hembree, a former Arkansas prison chaplain, joined the organization three years ago. He is on stage when Humbard is away and is in charge of the other 10 associate ministers who supervise the various functions of the Humbard organization. Humbard's wife, four children, six grandchildren and other relatives speak and sing during his services to present a strong family picture. The book store, cafeteria and other business functions of the tax-exempt foundation cease when Humbard walks onto the red carpeted stage for the average 75-minute Sunday service. During the week, he has at least seven departments functioning for his televised-broadcast ministry, an eight-member board of trustees to help set cathedral policy and an executive committee to oversee day to day operations. The minister, his wife and two of his three sons are among the trustees who approve annual budgets and receive semiannual audits. The executive committee keeps tabs on daily and monthly cash flow reports. None of the trustees or executive committee is paid for such work, but Humbard said: "They are all my friends. None are enemies." The television department is responsible for videotaping his sermons, editing them to the maximum 58½ minutes, dubbing and synchronizing foreign language voices, duplicating tapes and shipping them out on schedule. The music department arranges songs, vocal and instrumental orchestrations for the weekly services. The advertising department negotiates contracts with stations for air time and coordinates station specifications with the TV department. McPherson heads the publications department which handles brochures, booklets, books, copies of sermons, a monthly magazine and consults with other departments on editorial content of any material leaving the cathedral. The mail department processes all incoming and outgoing mail and is responsible for seeing that each letter received gets a reply. A prayer group mans a battery of telephones around the clock seven days a week, fielding prepaid calls from interested and troubled people. A Christian Development Department is a counseling service under the direction of Lloyd Copenbarger, general counsel for the cathedral. Among other services, he assists persons who want to make bequests to the cathedral or write a remembrance to it in their wills. "We don't pursue anyone to get them to write the ministry into their wills," Humbard said. "But if they want to, we will help." It takes a minimum of six weeks to prepare a program for television release. There is no live telecast. The evangelist's sometimes homespun English is translated into Japanese, French, Portuguese and Spanish for television. Translated sermon texts are shipped to voice experts for recording. Their tape is edited and synchronized to fit the minister's lip movements before being copied onto the videotape. Songs are left in English with appropriate language furnished in sub title form. Russian and Mandarin Chinese translations are added for radio reproduction. Humbard said his organization buys all television air time. Each station carries the same program on a given Sunday. "We now have 223 United States TV stations," said Judd Jackson, director of advertising and marketing for the cathedral. "We cover 94.9 percent of the United States." Other TV outlets are in Japan, Canada, the Philippine Islands, Australia, Liberia, Brazil, Chile and Monte Carlo. Humbard said 75 percent of the financial support is raised in the United States and 11 percent in Canada. Much of the rest comes from Australia which he said has only recently been making significant contributions. All donations made in foreign countries, are left there and Humbard said that, except for Canada, all foreign countries are being subsidized by donations made in the United States. "We don't bring a dime back to this country," he said. "We send them money."

That includes $750,000 a year to support a nationally televised weekly program in Brazil, lesser amounts in Chile and Nigeria. He said all are supported 100 percent by contributions from this country. "Last year our budget was $18 million," he said. "That is worldwide and we overspent it because... Brazil came along and we were offered the whole (TV) nation at one time. "Ordinarily we take one station and build it to two stations, then three. In Australia it has taken us two years to build the whole nation. In the United States it took 15 years. "But in Brazil we took the whole nation in one day. In Chile we also took the whole nation on, every station the government owns, 61 of them... at one time. We took the whole nation of Nigeria because the door was open. It's the first time it's ever been opened, so last year we borrowed $3 million above that (budget) and we spent $21 million last year." Humbard said he fits no denomination mold. He claims 1,200 family membership in the cathedral and unknown thousands of families in his television audience who become "prayer key" members by sending in a donation. "I'm there to encourage people to dedicate their lives to Christ," he said. "We have a philosophy that the local pastor should teach doctrine."

Project Okayed By State Agency

The State Health Planning and Development Agency, North Carolina Department of Human Resources, announced the recent approval of the proposal of Dr. Alfred L. Ferguson to incur a capital expenditure to acquire and subsequently lease space and equipment for the Greenville Hemodialysis Center. Prior to approval, the project proposal was reviewed by the Division of Faculty Services of the Department of Human Resources and by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency Inc. Review of the project was conducted under the authority of federal law on the basis of plans, criteria and standards adopted by the planning agencies involved.

Factory-Built Home Cheaper

NEW YORK (UPI) — An estimated 60,000 factory-built homes will be made this year by about 250 manufacturers in the United States. An article in "House and Home," a trade magazine, says factory-built homes are single-family units made in two sections, trucked to sites and dropped onto waiting foundations. The article said one California builder sells a 1,440 square foot factory-built house for $10,000 less than the cost of a conventional house.
