

Criss-Cross Tours For Mid-East Peace

By SAMI RIZKALLAH
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO (AP) — King Hussein, trying to mediate the Arab dispute over President Anwar Sadat's peace overtures to Israel, unexpectedly returned to Jordan today after his talks with Sadat were cut short.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, meanwhile, toured the Persian Gulf trying to get Sadat's bankrollers to use financial pressure to stifle the Egyptian leader's one-man peace campaign.

In Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said before leaving on his own Middle East tour that Sadat's planned Cairo peace talks next week could lead to "an agreement in principle covering a comprehensive settlement."

He said Washington and Moscow are deeply divided over the talks. "I do not believe they (the Russians) would support in any way the Cairo conference," he said.

Vance, who spoke with reporters at the end of a meeting of Atlantic alliance foreign ministers, was scheduled to arrive in Cairo later today.

Sadat and Hussein met for 2 1/2 hours Thursday night, and Egyptian newspapers and Jordanian diplomats said the talks were to resume today.

But 10 minutes after a grim-looking Sadat arrived at Kubbah Palace for the expected meeting today, the two rode off to Cairo airport and the Jordanian monarch flew home.

This prompted speculation that Hussein's mission had failed, at least for the moment. He had met Wednesday with Syria's Assad with no apparent results.

Assad arrived in Kuwait today from Riyadh, where he met Thursday with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Fahd, the Saudi prime minister. Saudi Arabia is the chief contributor of oil wealth to impoverished Egypt.

There was no indication the Syrian president had succeeded in getting Khaled and Fahd to put pressure on Sadat by threatening to cut off their crucial financial support.

After Assad departed, the Saudi information minister, Mohammed Abdo Yamani, said King Khaled has "expressed hope that Allah will help the Arabs reunify their ranks and achieve their aspirations."

The Syrian president was going on Saturday to Qatar, another oil-rich state on the Persian Gulf.

A leading Egyptian newspaper editor who accompanied Sadat on his historic trip to Jerusalem told a news conference in New York that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait both approved of the Egyptian leader's strategy.

"I have read letters between President Sadat and King Khaled," said Moussa Sabri, editor-in-chief of Al Akhbar. "I know that there were many contacts between President Sadat and Eaudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia is backing the visit. So are Kuwait, the Gulf coast, Sudan, the Emirates, Morocco and Tunisia."

"Syria will come back with Egypt because there is no alternative," the editor commented. "If the Syrians want to make war, they can't alone. If they are struggling for peace, we are struggling for peace."

Hussein, attempting to breach the gap between Assad and Sadat, came to Cairo Thursday from Damascus. The Syrian government press and radio reported he failed to shake Assad's opposition to the direct Israeli-Egyptian dialogue engineered by Sadat.

The king had been expected to follow Assad to Riyadh, but instead he went home to Amman. There was no explanation, and it was not known if he might go to Saudi Arabia later.

Preparations continued for the second stage of Sadat's peace initiative — talks opening in Cairo Wednesday between Egypt and Israel, along with U.S. and United Nations representatives, to make preparations for a general Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

HEW Threat Poised Sex-Discrimination Cutoffs

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said today it is telling 22 school districts and colleges that they won't receive any federal money for new programs after Jan. 8 because they have refused to file pledges not to discriminate against women. It is the first time the Carter administration has moved to cut off funds under a 5-year-old law that bans sex discrimination in federally aided educational institutions.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr., told The Associated Press Thursday night that he planned to take the action immediately, and the department formally announced today that the letters had gone out to 10 school districts and a dozen colleges and universities.

Most of the colleges and universities are church-related.

Califano said a handful of additional schools still have not sent in the required forms promising to obey the anti-discrimination law but have said they would do so immediately. Those schools are being given until Monday to file the required documents before similar action will be taken against them, the secretary said.

The action to cut off funds for new grants and programs is the first step in a lengthy administrative procedure. It ultimately could lead to a school's loss of all federal funds for failure to comply with civil rights laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, sex, or handicap.

The department has not taken the final cut-off step against a U.S. public school system since the Ferndale, Mich., City School District had all its federal monies terminated in 1972.

Califano said in a statement that the schools he is moving against have been contacted four times since September 1976 "and have indicated their unwillingness to comply with this simple requirement."

In an attempt to gain voluntary compliance with civil rights laws, HEW's Office for Civil Rights requires federally funded institutions to file signed assurances they will obey federal non-discrimination

Conferees Far Apart On Social Security Views

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unexpected struggles over amendments are dashing hopes that Congress can complete action this year on a major increase in Social Security taxes.

Senate and House conferees, meeting separately on Thursday in hopes of resolving differences between the two chambers, found themselves farther apart than had been predicted, and a proposed compromise fell apart.

One congressional aide who is closely involved in writing a compromise bill estimated there is only one chance in five of reaching agreement today, as Democratic congressional leaders had anticipated.

Whatever is finally approved — whether this year or next — would mean higher payroll taxes for 107 million Americans and likely would triple the taxes paid by some workers over the next 10 years.

Social Security, which pays monthly benefits to 33 million Americans, is in trouble because of high unemployment, inflation and higher benefits voted in 1972. The giant system is paying out more money in benefits than it is taking in through taxes.

Congress and the Carter administration would like to repair the damage before the 1978 election year.

On Wednesday and early Thursday, leaders of the Senate-House conference committee that is working on Social Security had sketched out a basic compromise on key issues.

They would have continued the traditional 50-50 employer-employee split of payroll taxes; raised the amount a pensioner may earn and still receive full Social Security benefits, and allowed a one-year income tax cut of up to $250 per student to help offset college costs.

But that proposed agreement fell apart later Thursday. And although some questions were raised about the basic Social Security issues, the big sticking point was a series of welfare amendments written by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee on welfare.

Shrimp Boat Is Raided

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — SBI and U.S. Customs agents seized a shrimp boat today as an estimated 15 to 20 tons of marijuana was being unloaded, officials said.

Three persons were taken into custody, and officials said they were looking for two others who jumped from the vessel and escaped. They were not identified. Officials said crewmen of the 40-foot vessel had loaded one truck with marijuana and another was waiting to be loaded when agents made the arrests at a makeshift landing site near Wilmington about 6:30 a.m.

The second truck was loaded by agents who said the marijuana was carried in two holds and the cabin of the vessel. The trucks were rental vehicles, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said about 25 agents had staked out the area of the landing site since about 8:30 p.m. Thursday. The shrimp boat was removed to the state port at Wilmington.

Whatever is finally approved — whether this year or next — would mean higher payroll taxes for 107 million Americans and likely would triple the taxes paid by some workers over the next 10 years.

But that proposed agreement fell apart later Thursday. And although some questions were raised about the basic Social Security issues, the big sticking point was a series of welfare amendments written by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee on welfare.

The most important part of the Moynihan package is a $374 million grant to help states, cities and counties pay welfare costs over the next 10 months. The biggest single share of that money, $53 million, would go to Moynihan's home state, and most of that to financially ailing New York City.

At first, the Carter administration rejected any notion of tying the welfare amendments to Social Security. Carter aides feared the amendments would make it more difficult for Congress to approve the president's big welfare-revision package next year and might torpedo the Social Security bill.

But Moynihan convinced Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, to hold up final committee action on Social Security until Carter dropped opposition to the welfare amendments.

The Carter administration, noting Long's influence on tax revision, welfare, energy taxes and Social Security, reluctantly agreed to go along with the Moynihan amendments. But House members with influence of their own appeared adamantly opposed to the welfare provisions.

Charges Facing Joan Little In N.Y. May Add Years Of Prison

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little, who looked like a good bet two months ago to win parole, faces a hearing today in New York on charges in connection with her capture Wednesday that could add years to her prison time.

In fact, authorities say it could be years before Miss Little even returns to North Carolina, where she must finish her 7-to-10-year breaking and entering sentence, plus whatever extra time her escape in October costs her.

Miss Little was charged in New York with assault, reckless endangerment and criminal mischief, all felonies, and with resisting arrest. Bond was set at $5,000 on the New York charges but she was ordered held without bond on the fugitive warrant from North Carolina.

Other potential delays in Miss Little's return include her possible sentencing on New York charges, her lawyer's promise to fight the extradition and her pregnancy.

Although New York prison doctors have not confirmed her pregnancy, Vernel Muhammad, Miss Little's Raleigh boyfriend whose tip to Brooklyn police led to her capture, said Miss Little is two months pregnant with his child.

Kings County, N.Y. District Attorney Gordon Haesloop said her condition could delay extradition if doctors determine the trip home could endanger her life or that of her unborn child.

Haesloop said Miss Little "would definitely be prosecuted" on the New York charges which carry a maximum sentence of 21 years in prison.

If convicted, where Miss Little would serve her sentence depends on her attorneys and which state the judge determines to have the greatest interest, Haesloop said.

"She could be returned to North Carolina to serve the sentence concurrent to whatever she has left of her term there," he said. "But she could conceivably serve a sentence in New York before being returned to North Carolina on the escape charge."

The escape charge carries a six-month to two-year sentence.

Miss Little's attorney, William Kunstler, has vowed to fight extradition.

Miss Little is being held in the women's section of Rikers Island Prison in New York, and an extradition hearing has been set for Jan. 6.

Miss Little was charged in New York with assault, reckless endangerment and criminal mischief, all felonies, and with resisting arrest. Bond was set at $5,000 on the New York charges but she was ordered held without bond on the fugitive warrant from North Carolina.

Elizabeth Lankton, the grandmother from Ocean-side, Calif., and Jeanne Luella McMichael, 52, of Fullerton, Calif., were arrested at the Mexico City airport on a flight from South America. Seven pounds of cocaine was found in a false-bottom handbag, officers said.

The two women were sentenced to seven years. They are coming home after serving three years and nine months.

The first few days in prison, said Mrs. Lankton in an interview in Mexico City, were spent in a "very, very cold cell with a concrete floor, concrete walls and a concrete bunk. I was given no blanket, nothing. For three days I had nothing to eat."

But, she said, "the women guards were very good to me all the time. I've had it a little easier because of my age and my white hair."

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MORE CRIBS NEEDED

The Pitt County Health Department has received one crib as a result of the Hotline appeal Nov. 30.

The Health Department nurse asked about the response said several more are needed. "We agree in principle with the person who commented in Tuesday's column that those who can't afford cribs can't afford babies, but the children we're appealing for are here and they're sleeping on the floor in some cases. We have to do our best with things as they are, not as they should be."

Anyone else willing to provide a crib to the Health Department is asked to call 752-4141, Ext. 35.

MORE SANTA SUITS

The Cambridge Neighborhood Association has a Santa Claus suit that it will rent out. Garry Giles said the cost is $8 a day, plus a cleaning and damage deposit. His phone number is 756-7784.

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce also loans Santa suits, but all three of theirs have been booked through Christmas for some time.

Woman Loses Her Life In House Fire

WALSTONBURG — Mrs. Rosalee May, 57, lost her life in a fire in her home on Highway 264 near here this morning.

Greene County Fire Marshal Dickie Hill said Mrs. May was one of several members of her family in the house which burned shortly before 10 o'clock today and was the only one who did not escape.

The fire which destroyed the frame house owned by J. M. Boykin of Rt. 2, Walstonburg was said to have started from an oil stove. Family members were attempting to extinguish a small blaze when it spread throughout the room and the house.

Greene County and Farmville Fire Departments fought the blaze.

Copter Crash Kills 3 Marines

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Three Marines were killed Thursday night when their helicopter crashed and burned in a swampy area of Camp Lejeune north of Mile Hammock Bay, military authorities said.

A spokesman at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station said names of the victims were withheld until relatives could be notified.

Two pilots and a crew chief were on a routine training flight from the New River Marine Air Station when their CH-53 Sea Stallion crashed at approximately 10:30 p.m., the spokesman said.

Gather To Welcome Prisoners From Mexico

By BOB RAST
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Loved ones gathered today to welcome home Americans jailed for years in Mexico, most of them convicted for smuggling drugs.

They are returning on a plane that first took imprisoned Mexicans home to jails in their own land. The 36 Mexicans and 60 Americans are participants in the first prisoner exchange between the two countries, set up in a treaty signed in September 1976.

Among the returning Americans are a 60-year-old grandmother and a 2-year-old girl born in prison.

A charter plane was to leave Houston with 11 Mexicans on board, stop in San Diego to take on 25 other Mexicans and fly to Mexico City, where 26 women, 34 men and the baby will replace them for the flight back to the United States tonight.

Lumpkin said that about 25 percent of the 235 prisoners qualified to return to the United States would be paroled within three days.

Crippled TVA System Struggles To Meet Needs

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority cut power by a million kilowatts to its largest customer today in its effort to meet cold-weather electricity demands with a crippled power system.

Since Tuesday, the seven-state government utility has been using emergency measures to meet heating demands and pleading with consumers to use as little electricity as possible.

At the same time, about one-third of TVA's 28 million kilowatt generating capacity has been shut down for refueling, routine maintenance and boiler tube leaks brought on by heavy use.

Maintenance crews working around the clock were able to put a half-million kilowatt generator at the Widows Creek, Ala., plant back on line Thursday. A 350,000 kilowatt unit at the Paradise, Ky., plant also was scheduled to be operating again today.

TVA spokesman Lee Sheppard said a 5 percent voltage reduction remains in effect. Consumers are still asked to lower their thermostats and forego using hot water between peak demand hours of 5 to 10 p.m. and 3 to 8 p.m., he said.

Cool To Guitar-Shaped Pool Along Music Row

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Webb Pierce's plan to build a replica of his guitar-shaped swimming pool along Nashville's Music Row isn't going over well with the neighbors.

"We're creative people out here, not carnival people," one music company executive who works near the proposed pool site says.

But Pierce says his plans for building the pool won't drag down the neighborhood.

He says since he was forced to stop letting tourists visit the original pool at his Oak Hill home, some 20,000 to 30,000 fans from all over the world have written letters, asking to see the pool.

"The country music fans have already spoken — they want to see the guitar-shaped pool," Pierce said in a telephone interview. "I'm surprised that anyone in the business would want to deny the fans this opportunity."

The flap started when Pierce announced plans to build the $1 million facility, which he calls a Hall of Fame for Country Music Fans.

The pool would be built on the northwest corner of the four-block square Music Row, home to hundreds of music publishing houses and recording studios.

Fans would be able to visit it for a small admission charge, and for a $10 fee have their names etched in bronze at pool-side.

"That pool, if it's built, will look about like Tootsie's Orchid Lounge sitting in the middle of Belle Meade Boulevard," another music industry executive, Joe Talbot, said Thursday night in a telephone interview.

Talbot, who owns a record manufacturing business with offices on Music Row, was referring to a lounge which has been for years a famous drinking place in downtown Nashville for aspiring musicians. Belle Meade Avenue winds through a more fashionable part of the city.

Pierce estimates two million tourists visited his home and the pool in the nine years he has lived there.

But the tourist traffic irritated his Oak Hill neighbors, who complained to city officials. Last year, a court order was issued prohibiting Pierce from inviting the visitors to the grounds.

Talbot said Music Row isn't the place for "a souvenir stand," a phrase he used in trying to describe the way he regarded the pool Pierce has proposed.

"Music Row is primarily the creative and administrative part of the music business, but a commercial venture like Webb is proposing would severely disrupt the functions which are being carried out in this area," Talbot said.

He said he has talked with a half dozen other Music Row executives and says they are considering legal action to stop the construction of the pool, scheduled for completion in March 1978.

"We have as much right to be in business out there as they have to be in the record business," Pierce said. "Those who have called the idea a circus haven't been to the circus."

Spokesman John Van Mol said TVA asked the Department of Energy to reduce its use of electricity at its Oak Ridge and Paducah, Ky., uranium enrichment plants beginning at midnight Thursday.

The two plants normally operate on 2.35 million kilowatts of electricity, about 15 per cent of the power TVA produces on an average day. During a similar power crisis last January, TVA cut electricity to the plants by 1.1 million kilowatts.

Students Won Annual Game

The second annual student-faculty basketball game of the Extended School Program saw the students win by a score of 39 to 35.

The event, held Thursday, was assisted by the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department.

To supplement players for the small faculty staff, players were selected from agencies associated with the Extended School Program.

Student high scorers were Willie Barrett and Edgar Lloyd Smith with 10 points each. Dick Feistul was high scorer for the faculty team with ten points. Students Willie Jones, Danny Carmon, and Calvin E. Daniels shared team defensive honors.

Nat'l Cancer Institute Seeks Evidence Of Laetrile Helping

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute, which has shied away from testing Laetrile on cancer patients because of ethical concerns, now is looking for persons who believe Laetrile reduced their tumors.

Dr. Guy Newell, deputy director of the institute, said Thursday he hopes 200 to 300 persons will make their medical records available for the study.

If remissions are documented, Newell said, "then the chances are very good that we would do a clinical trial."

"I promise you we're going into it with an open mind. We have not prejudged the outcome at all," said Newell. The ethical questions center on the fact that Laetrile has not reduced tumors in laboratory animals. Several major studies have concluded the substance, which is made from apricot pits and contains cyanide, is worthless and possibly harmful.

The Food and Drug Administration has just sent out a poster to one million doctors and other health professionals warning against use of Laetrile.

Newell said he wishes FDA had held off on the poster campaign for at least the six months it will take the institute to conduct the retrospective study.

Newell said it may cast "some bias on what we're going to do. It might make both patients and doctors reluctant to cooperate with us."

Newell said the FDA, which bans interstate shipments of Laetrile, has agreed not to use any information doctors may submit for the study to initiate any criminal action.

But the agreement would not give doctors immunity from prosecution on information gathered by customs agents or others, he added.

Thirteen states have legalized Laetrile, and a federal judge in Oklahoma on Monday ordered FDA not to interfere with its importation or use. The agency is expected to appeal.

Newell said he does not think the study will encourage cancer patients to try Laetrile "any more than if we do nothing at all." He noted that its backers claim 50,000 to 75,000 persons use Laetrile, and concern about the substance is spreading among both state legislators and doctors.

Newell said the institute hopes to hear from doctors who are not promoting Laetrile but who have patients who have tried it.

Persons who want to participate in the study should ask their doctor to notify the cancer institute, Newell said.

The institute is looking for evidence that the persons had cancer, that they did not use other therapy within a month after starting to take Laetrile, and that their tumors did grow smaller.

Dalai Lama Is Not Welcome

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, anxious not to offend China, has quietly rejected a bid by the Dalai Lama, exiled leader of Tibet, to visit the United States, according to administration sources.

Since 1959, the Dalai Lama has been living in India, where he fled following an abortive insurrection against Chinese rule.

The administration generally has eased restrictions on travel to the United States by foreigners, but made an exception in the Dalai Lama's case.

"No U.S. action is based on the premise that Tibet is not a part of China," an official said.

One source speculated privately that the Dalai Lama, if granted entry to the United States, would use the opportunity to allege massive Chinese violations of Tibetan human and political rights.

The decision reflects the eagerness of the administration to avoid any action that could jeopardize the limited accommodation the United States and China have achieved over the last five years. Another example of this policy is the administration's refusal thus far to criticize China's record on human rights.

On several occasions, the Chinese have protested the existence of an office in New York maintained by Tibetan exiles who look upon the Dalai Lama, now 42, as the legitimate spiritual and temporal leader of Tibet.

The United States has informed the Chinese that it did not have the legal authority to close down the Tibetan office.

The Dalai Lama has made several attempts over the years to come to this country but has been rebuffed each time.

Students Will Be Interns In Senate

ECU News Bureau
Susan McIntyre of Morehead City and John Humphries of Flint Hill, Va., political science students at East Carolina University, have been appointed by U. S. Sen. Robert Morgan to serve as student interns in the senator's Washington office during the spring semester.

According to Senator Morgan, the internships are a kind of work-study program with "a training function" and should be considered "an integral part" of their political science studies.

Ms. McIntyre and Humphries will assist with vote analyses, basic research for proposed legislation, floor statements and speeches, constituent and mail surveys, correspondence and office management.

Susan McIntyre, a senior at ECU, is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha honor society, the ECU Playhouse and the Young Democrats Club. In 1975-76 she was a member of the N.C. Student Legislature.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.W. McIntyre Jr. of Lakeshore Drive, Morehead City.

Humphries, a graduate student in political science, is a graduate of Wake Forest University (BA, 1968).

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Humphries of Flint Hill, Va.

Their Specialty Is Mustard

By BRENDA ROTZOLL BOW, N.H. (UPI) — Sharing Mama's mustard with local customers turned Frank and Laura Gregory's farm produce business into a national enterprise.

Their Greylere Farms mustard whipped up from Laura's mother's recipe now is sold in stores in many states and they ship food gift packages around the country and to England, France and New Zealand every year.

It all started when someone renegeed on a verbal contract to buy 100 baby pigs for an Easter celebration.

The Gregorlys, who previously had tried sheep, chickens and cows, were just entering the hog raising business. They found themselves broke in springtime with 100 piglets and no capital. Their banker suggested they raise the piglets to cure and sell their own ham and bacon.

"We tried it and it came out pretty well," Mrs. Gregory recalls. At Easter, when they sold the most hams, she whipped up some of the spiced mustard her mother invented, put it in little plastic jars, and presented one with each ham as a gift.

Within two months they were inundated with letters and telephone calls asking where more mustard could be obtained. She made some more in the back kitchen, her husband found a few local stores to sell the mustard, "and from there it just took off."

They found a Boston distributor, got into several supermarket chains, added sales through stores in Florida, Texas, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Michigan and a growing list of states. "I just had a request the other day from Phoenix," she said.

Mrs. Gregory said her mother, Christina Wollrath, "was a fabulous cook. She would always whip up a fresh little bowl of mustard for my father, who loved it."

It's good on ham, and Mrs. Gregory says it is good in cooking, too. "If you spread it on a hamburger before you cook it, it gives a lovely taste, but it doesn't taste like mustard."

The recipe is a trade secret, but Mrs. Gregory will say the mustard is uncooked, contains spices, and is made of a special and expensive blend of mustard flour.

Greylere Farms almost went under when its Boston mustard supplier went bankrupt. Other mustard flour "were awful," Mrs. Gregory said. Finally her husband found the bankrupt firm's chemist, who said his company had imported the mustard from a company in Hamilton, Ontario.

One Christmas Mrs. Gregory made homemade pickles and jams for presents. Her husband made little baskets for them, and decided they looked so nice, they should try selling them.

The business soon expanded out of the living room in their 1810 house and into a new shop across the road. Soon they were selling pickles, relishes, cheese, meats, their own maple syrup and local handicrafts. People came from miles for sleighrides and hayrides, and school children were bused in to see maple syrup made the old fashioned way, the sap collected by hand and boiled down over a wood fire.

Mrs. Gregory said they called the new shop "Salmagundi" (a salad made of any mixture of things) "because we were selling a mixture of country living."

In January, 1974, the Greylere Barn burned down, almost taking the house with it. Town civic groups offered to raise a new barn. Frank Gregory worked all winter cutting boards and planning the structure, and in September it went. In one day it was complete to the rafters and the walls were boarded in.

Last year the Gregorlys thought of retirement, and sold the mustard operation to a Connecticut firm. Four months later Frank died.

Mrs. Gregory has no children or brothers and sisters and finds she can't manage singlehanded. She has the business on the market and hopes she can find someone who wants to carry it on.

"I would hate to see the place cut up for house lots," she said.

'Living For Today Program' Has Helped

By DALE SINGER ST. LOUIS (UPI) — For many women, widowhood may mean world of lawyers and taxes, independence and loneliness adding to the shock of widowhood itself.

To help ease the transition and build a strong base for life that must go on, a funeral home has launched a program for extended help after the funeral.

In less than a year, Kriegshauser Mortuaries' Living Information for Today program has helped more than 80 widows.

"(LIFT) just sort of evolved," Herman L. Kriegshauser said. "Other similar groups have met, not through the funeral industry but through hospitals or other areas. But it came to us that funeral directors have the resources to put it together. We're dealing directly here with 50 widows a month."

Jo Ann Church, a widow for more than four years, helps coordinate the program. Participants meet monthly and attend special social events.

"So many women are just lost," Mrs. Church said. "They get so excited when you call them about the program. They're so happy to talk to someone, especially another widow. You see them trading telephone numbers and things like that. They naturally have so much in common."

Kriegshauser expects the program to grow locally and spread throughout the country. "I think it can evolve nationally in the next decade so funeral directors who want to be leaders in their communities will be able to furnish these services. Once we work out all the problems and come up with a set program it will be a lot easier to have other people pick it up."

Among the subjects covered by speakers at LIFT meetings are Social Security, tax and legal problems, whether to sell their house, how to manage financial affairs, securing their homes against burglars, even how to deal with auto emergencies or unscrupulous businessmen.

Mrs. Church, 54, remembers what it was like when her husband died in an auto accident.

"I'd only lived in St. Louis for three years. I didn't know where to turn. My daughter had just gone out of town to teach and she left that job to come home. We were lucky to be in the Midwest, where people are so friendly. In other areas I'm sure people would be lost."

The program is not open only to widows who have dealt with the funeral home. Nearly 500 postcards are sent to new widows each month to tell them of the organization.

"It's meant to be whatever the women want to make it," Kriegshauser said. "If a woman wants to join and stay 10 or 15 years, that's fine."

"Funeral directors physically bury deceased persons, but there are other things the survivors need that have been neglected in the past because we didn't understand them. Now we're able to help the survivors in psychological areas as well as just the burial of the deceased."

The program "also fills a void socially," he said. "They get together, meet each other and discover they have common needs and interests."

Men are welcome to join, Kriegshauser said, but women are the prime target because of their special place in today's world.

"Making out a checkbook or keeping a bank account are things that men may take for granted, but women may know nothing about them. From a psychological viewpoint a widower feels just as great a sense of loss, but with his work he has a greater opportunity to get back into life and out of his shell."

Families Anonymous Helped This Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In answer to CURRENTLY IN LIMBO, who was sure her well-known husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years I was in a similar situation—only it was my son who was on drugs. I felt so guilty and helpless, I didn't know where to turn. Then I discovered FAMILIES ANONYMOUS.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a miracle!

He is now clean and happily married, and best of all, we are a loving family.

Abby, please check us out and tell your readers about this wonderful group.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: I have checked you out, and know that you are a legitimate self-help group. There are no dues or fees, no forms to fill out, no formal sign-up, no last names and visitors are welcome.

FAMILIES ANONYMOUS meets in nearly every major city of the United States (and Canada) to teach parents how to communicate with rebellious, delinquent or difficult to handle children of any age.

For the location of a meeting in your area, write: Families Anonymous, Inc., P.O. Box No. 344, Torrance, Calif. 90501, and please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their response as they are a non-profit organization run by volunteers.

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for his 55th birthday. Since many months had passed and he had not used it, I wondered why.

Then a letter appeared in your column from HURT WIFE, asking why a church-going, happily married man would visit a massage parlor. You offered a number of reasons? "Curiosity, lust, an itch for variety, fear of missing something, temporary insanity...etc."

I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for a perfectly legitimate reason—to treat him to a relaxing massage. The fact that he has not yet taken advantage of it, I attribute to prejudgments such as yours. I think you owe all legitimate masseurs and masseuses an apology.
HURT SON

DEAR SON: And to them I apologize. But my judgment about massage parlors is based on the fact that literally thousands of dubious massage parlors have sprung up in recent years. And the massages (unlike beauty) offered there are more than skin deep.

DEAR ABBY: You can do every elementary and junior high school teacher a huge favor by suggesting that from a teacher's point of view, the best Christmas or Hanukkah gift a parent can buy their children is a set of pencils with the student's name printed on them.

Teachers spend a lot of time settling arguments regarding ownership of pencils.
SEVENTH GRADE TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Thanks for a dandy suggestion. Write on, teacher!

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Laaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Carter Statement Is Hopeful

As a part of this big tobacco producing area we feel a little better about the tobacco program following President Carter's reported attitude this week.

The president again expressed his support for the tobacco program, according to Sen. Walter Huddleston of Kentucky.

Sen. Huddleston met with the president and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and said Carter had expressed "full support" for the price support program.

A spokesman for the agriculture secretary said tobacco price supports and the health hazards were considered unrelated. He pointed out that 600,000 families, mostly small growers, benefit from the tobacco farm program.

That position certainly makes sense. Tobacco producing areas have been able to maintain family farms primarily because tobacco is the money crop.

Killing the livelihood of the small farmers won't stop one person from smoking, but it surely will throw a lot of people off the farms.

Mayor Albritton On A Running Start

Mrs. Sara Albritton, new mayor of Farmville, outlined her programs for the coming two years.

Included were energy conservation, completion of the Downtown Improvement project, a fire department facility on Farmville's southside and drainage improvements.

It looks as if Mayor Albritton has hit the ground running. The program she has outlined seems important and beneficial to Farmville.

Good Year For Tar Heels

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It has been, by all counts, a very good year for economic development in North Carolina.

"An exceptionally good year... a billion-dollar year, definitely," as Victor W. Barfield, assistant secretary of the North Carolina Department of Commerce puts it.

Gathering of statistics is still underway as the year draws to an end. Off the record comments of commerce officials hint at one or two more major developments before 1977 is over. And hopes are high for the "really big one" as a way to start off 1978. That would be the Philip Morris cigarette plant.

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. has been personally wooing the Richmond tobacco firm. Options have been taken on several plant sites in other states, and one in Cabarrus County.

Some sources believe this state has an edge because of the experience with Miller Brewing Company's plant at Eden. The initial investment of $132 million was nearly doubled by a decision to expand by $115 million more. That operation, turning out 8.8 million barrels of beer a year, is one of the largest for the state in recent years. Philip Morris is the parent company.

New Ones

Meanwhile, the 1977 record has been boosted even higher in recent weeks by plans of Timken Roller Bearing for a $135 million plant in Lincoln County, and a $33 million Frito-Lay potato chip plant at Charlotte.

End results are bound to produce a new record in one-year industrial expansion for the state. As usual, the new investments (facilities for firms coming into this state for the first time) trail the investment in expanded activities by existing firms.

An overview of the first nine months of 1977 shows 313 growth announcements; 114 new plants and 198 expansions. New plants total $312 million; expansion $460 million for a total of $762.3 million. Payroll additions total $106.4 million; and the growth has added 6,009 jobs in new firms; 7,763 in expanded ones.

Textiles and apparels set the strongest pace in 1977, with 2,655 added jobs in 43 new or expanded apparel operations; and 1,317 added jobs in 57 new or expanded textile operations.

Furniture was the next most rapidly growing area, with 908 added jobs in 28 plants.

NOBLITT

Early figures, however, reflect a definite new trend just developing in North Carolina, and Barfield calls attention to that: "Heavy metals and pharmaceuticals appear to be dominating in recent developments," he noted, and in terms of both initial capital investment in facilities and machinery, and in wages, this is a healthy trend.

Metals

Official state figures lump all textile mill products into one reporting category, and the same with apparel and other finished products, and with furniture and fixtures.

A much more narrow breakdown is given in other industries, with categories set up for primary metals, fabricated metals, machinery except electrical, electrical and electronic machinery, transportation equipment, and measuring and controlling instruments.

When all of those are lumped together, the totals become more impressive: 1,944 added jobs in 68 new or expanded operations.

Bryan Smith, director of the industrial development division of the Department of Commerce, thinks North Carolina right now is the most popular state in the nation as a potential site for industrial growth. A survey by Business Week magazine some two years ago said corporate executives rate this state second only to California as a preferred location. Smith says the spirit of cooperation and other factors have since boosted North Carolina's attractiveness.

Blues In Foggy Bottom

WASHINGTON — The U.S. State Department is in a snit because it is not being consulted on every move that President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin are making.

Every time you pick up the newspapers the headline reads something like this: "State Department Surprised by Latest Sadat Invitation" or "State Department Admits It Wasn't Consulted on Israeli Talks in Jerusalem."

I don't know if this has anything to do with President Carter's policy of candor, but I, like millions of Americans, have been brought up to believe that the State Department knows EVERYTHING and that it is never SURPRISED.

Maybe it's not true, but it gives you a warm feeling to think it is.

I ran into an old State Department hand the other day who was terribly depressed about how little people over at Foggy Bottom know about what is going on.

"I see where Sadat postponed his conference in Cairo," I said.

"Where did you hear that?" he asked excitedly.

"I saw it on the Cronkite show," I replied.

"He never told us," my man said bitterly.

"Sadat doesn't have to tell you before he tells the American people," I said.

"He makes us look stupid," I think that's very unfair," I told him. "If Sadat feels more comfortable talking to Walter Cronkite than he does the U.S. secretary of state you should be grateful."

"What else did Walter say?" the State Department man whispered.

"You don't have to whisper," I said. "Everyone in America who watches Cronkite heard it."

"I hope Walter realizes that he violated State Department security," he said.

"You know Begin has turned down Kurt Waldheim's invitation to go to the U.N. for a Pre-Geneva summit meeting," I told him.

The various theories include changes in Congress, particularly the House, which have lessened the power of the leadership, and the fact that some tough issues that have been around for a while have come to a head this session.

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, a senior House Republican, suggests that "the issues that we've got to deal with really are sticky ones. As the old saying goes, if they were easy, we'd have dealt with them long ago."

However one tries to explain

"I don't believe you. If he had we would have been informed."

"Well, he told Barbara Walters on ABC News that he wasn't coming, and Barbara never lies."

"You saw it on the ABC News? How come the CIA didn't tell us about it?" he said.

"They're cutting back in Personnel. They can't cover everything," I explained.

"Did you hear that the rest of the Arab world is sore as hell at Sadat for going to Jerusalem?"

"We know that," he said, "but who told you?"

"John Chancellor and David Brinkley."

"They promised us they wouldn't tell anyone. It could mess up our whole policy in the Middle East."

"What policy?" I inquired.

"Who said we don't have one?" the State Department man asked.

"I believe it was Tom Brokaw on the Today show. Either him or Johnny Carson. I don't remember."

"You know of course about the meeting in Tripoli, Libya, last week where the hard-line Arabs vowed to fix Sadat's wagon," I said.

"Sure, we knew about it."

"It could blow the Geneva Conference," I remarked.

"We didn't know that. Where did you hear about it?"

"I believe Mike Wallace mentioned it on 60 Minutes. 'Don't you people at the State Department ever watch television?'"

"We don't have time," he replied. "We're always in meetings trying to figure out what's going on in the Middle East."

Other Editors Say Changes Needed

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

A very distinguished lawyer, who has been retired for many years, recently told us: "During the late thirties and early forties I spent a great deal of time on criminal cases. When murder was involved I got little or no sleep. I would wake up at night in a cold sweat wondering if I had made a mistake that might send my client to the electric chair. Life imprisonment for murder back in those days would have been good plea bargaining. I am not saying that I am for capital punishment, but I certainly am not in favor of the light sentences being handed down today. We must re-evaluate our court systems, and our punishment procedures."

There is some sobering thought in what the lawyer had to say. Jeter Williamson, former Chief of Police in Greensboro and now law enforcement advisor to the Agency for International Development, recently spoke to the Greensboro Kiwanis Club. As reported in the Greensboro Daily News Williamson quoted a Los Angeles Superior Court judge who recently saw in his court a man laugh out loud at his sentence for parole in six years. "He was laughing openly because he knew what would happen. The crimes were cold blooded, devoid of human feelings, and I believe that when released this man will kill again," the judge stated. Williamson commented that there is something obviously wrong with a system which prompts a vicious, cold blooded killer to laugh openly at the judge in the courtroom. "There must be respect for the law, and if respect cannot be achieved," Williamson stated, "then there must be a fear of the consequences by those who do not respect it."

Williamson also pointed out several other important facts. For example, in Chicago every year the police arrest 40,000 criminals who are already out on bail for another crime. Just think how much police work and money was involved in those 40,000 additional crimes that might not have been committed had swift justice been handed down in the first arrest. In Washington, D. C., 60 to 70 per cent of the armed robberies are committed by criminals out on bail.

Would it not be a wise move to make it almost impossible for a criminal to get out of jail if he is charged for a second crime even before the first one is tried in court. Almost 100 per cent of all crimes are committed by criminals who plan to participate in crime for the rest of their lives. Certainly they should not be free to roam on society while awaiting trial on two or more charges.

The lawyer with whom we spoke and quoted in the first paragraph would not favor returning to the court procedures of 50 years ago. However, there must be some place in between where we can get to the crux of the problem, and the criminal should realize that the public and the courts have no intention of continuing light sentences.

THE INSIDE REPORT

School Exodus Due Judge

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BOSTON — When federal District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. on Nov. 29 made clear that he — not the elected Boston School Committee — will ultimately decide which schools close here, he continued the judicial overlordship that has driven half the city's white students out of the school system.

What makes this remarkable is that the school committee is no longer the bastion of bitter-end anti-busers. Its chairman, Kathleen Sullivan, provides moderate leadership that accepts the inevitability of not the wisdom of court-ordered busing. She led all candidates for reelection Nov. 8, when Boston's voters elected the committee's first black (a moderate) and defeated its former anti-busing zealot.

But the new school committee is treated no differently than the old school committee by Judge Garrity. He and what Miss Sullivan calls "those crazy experts of his"

are not surrendering control. That suggests continued white exodus from the system, where Garrity's rule brought soaring per-pupil costs without improving education. "The victims are the kids," Miss Sullivan told us.

This is Stage II of Boston's busing. Violence and demonstrations have ended, and one-issue politicians are driven from office. But liberals elsewhere make a mistake if they interpret this as approval of busing. "The people don't go out and chant slogans," Miss Sullivan told us. "They merely creep out of the system."

Unable to lick the judge, they escape him. Since Garrity's busing order in June 1974, white school enrollment dropped from 58,000 to 29,000. Experts had predicted a normal yearly loss of 3,000 whites, thanks to population patterns — 12,000 over the last four years. So, an additional 17,000 white students have left the system because of busing. In a city where the black population is only 20 per cent, the black school population is nearing 60 per cent.

A classic case is the Morris School in the West Roxbury section, which in November 1974 had an all-white enrollment of 347. A 1975 "Masters Panel" of distinguished citizens (appointed by Garrity) recommended, as part of a citywide plan, 260 whites and 70 blacks at Morris. But Garrity rejected the whole plan and redrew school boundaries to insure a 50-50 racial mix. The result: current enrollment at Morris is 23 whites and 123 blacks. The whites have disappeared.

Nor has the exodus concluded. A Garrity-ordered school reassignment last summer (later suspended) led many white liberals finally to give up and put their children in private schools. Garrity's resistance to the special program for gifted students has lowered another possible barrier to flight from city schools.

The decline of the Morris School enrollment, down from 347 to 146 in three years, is no extreme example. Unfilled schools, along with busing costs, have boosted costs per pupil to over $3,000 (and $5,500 at embattled South Boston High).

To Mayor Kevin White, the tragedy is that high costs have produced education no better and likely worse than it was. But Garrity, and his chief expert, Boston University Dean of Education Robert A. Dentler, have fought school closings as a covert attempt at resegregation.

When we interviewed Miss Sullivan and Dean Dentler on television in September 1976, Dentler steadfastly denied any white flight. "It was then for the first time," Miss Sullivan told us more than a year later, "that I realized how little those people understood what was going on."

Ignorance of political realities is characteristic of colonial rule by overlords who do not live in the political unit they control. Garrity lives in suburban Wellesley, Dentler in Lexington.

Garrity obviously regards Boston's politicians and people with intense suspicion. Although he may relinquish school control in about two years, Garrity exhibits a paternalistic need to protect Bostonians from themselves — another colonial characteristic. So, at the Nov. 29 hearing on school closings, Garrity gave no support for Miss Sullivan's hope that the Nov. 8 elections would induce the judge to "get out of the business of running the schools."

Strength For Today

STR FOR FRIDAY BEING OPPOSED

The head of the minority party in the English Parliament is paid a special salary as leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. The British believe that every party in power needs a well organized opposition as a moderating influence.

Nobody particularly cares for opposition. The Prime Minister and his associates often arise, in Parliament, their faces flushed with anger, and hurl epithets at the opposition. But this opposition is good for British government and for all government. Moreover, it is good for us in our daily lives to encounter opposition which makes us stop, look and listen.

If we could have our own way, we would always choose the broad, easy pathways which would lead either out into the desert or over the precipice. A kind, heavenly Father sees to it that we have plenty of opposition in life. It may come on the job, it may come socially, or even in our families. It's hard to take, but it is good for us.

No Mere Tempest In Bottle

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was viewed at first as another strategem in the bruising competition between the nation's two biggest brewers, Anheuser-Busch, sometimes called the king, and Miller Brewing, a growing, aggressive marketer.

It appears now that the issues may be more than a tempest in a bottle.

Involved are accusations of deliberate misrepresentation and exploitation of consumers, and claims that the news media and a government agency are being "used."

On November 10, Anheuser-Busch filed with the Federal Trade Commission a request for an investigation of Miller, its parent, Philip Morris Inc., and its advertising agency, McCann-Erickson Worldwide.

Miller, said A-B, has been improperly insinuating that Lowenbrau, a quality beer that it distributes, is the original imported product that connoisseurs have savored for nearly five centuries, when in fact Miller now brews it domestically.

McCann-Erickson declined comment, but the response from Miller was immediate and spirited. "We find it incredulous that the world's largest brewer would ask the FTC to protect them," it said, adding pointedly:

"It seems apparent that the crown on the King of Beers must be slipping."

But a study of the 32-page statement filed by A-B indicates that its accusations were motivated by more than, as Miller suggested, Lowenbrau's success in the "superpremium" market, where it competes with A-B Michelob.

Perhaps most importantly, AB claimed that domestic Lowenbrau isn't even the same beer that it said the consumer market was led to believe was a successor to that which was first tapped from a keg in 1383.

It isn't, said A-B, even the same beer that was until recently imported from Germany, but which Miller now makes in the United States under a licensing agreement.

Contacted at the Lowenbrau Brewery in Germany, a spokesman seemed to concur. The domestic product he said, is "sort of a light beer that has been tested and found good for American tastes."

 When Miller Brewing was told that these parts of the A-B document might be published, it responded with a long statement saying that A-B was using the FTC and the media "to wage nothing more than a campaign of product disparagement in a competitive battle with us."
 Said the spokesman: "To our knowledge this is the first time in the history of the FTC that a complainant."
 "The fact is that this complaint, which you have a copy of, is not a public record, further confirms their use of the press in this competitive battle."
 The spokesman added, "We are confident that our advertising, labeling and packaging is accurate, truthful and in compliance with the law." A detailed refutation would be filed with the FTC, he said.
 Asked about the public versus private nature of the document, Stephen Newberg-Rinn, an FTC, attorney, stated flatly: "It is in fact public." The decision to make it public can be made by the complainant, he said.
 Because of apparent misunderstanding, he said, he had even called the Miller Brewing attorneys to emphasize the point.
 After Miller Brewing files its answer to the complaint, he said, the matter will be reviewed and a recommendation made to the full commission.

 How long is it expected to take? "If someone were going to die because of a product the commission would move quickly. This isn't one of those cases," he said.

it, there is widespread agreement that the first half of the 95th Congress may be known more for what it hasn't been able to do than for its accomplishments.
 Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., is a second-term congressman, a status that once was a guarantee of anonymity. But he never accepted the axiom that junior House members are rarely seen and never heard. He helped organize 80 moderates and liberals among the younger members into a bloc that wields considerable influence.
 "A deal would have been cut on energy long ago if it had been left to the old guard," said Moffett in a brief interview during a break in the deliberations of the Senate-House conference committee which has made little progress in trying to reach a compromise on the non-tax portions of the energy legislation.
 Despite the deadlock, Moffett contends Congress deserves credit for facing the energy problem.
 "Two years ago, there was total paralysis in this town on energy," he said.
 Conable talked about House reforms and noted that "one committee chairman used to be able to speak for his committee with some confidence back during the days of unquestioned seniority and autocratic rule. Nowadays, he has to nurture the opinions not only of his subcommittee chairmen, but even of the rebellious and ambitious young men who make up his rank and file."
 Energy and Social Security are two highly visible issues on which Congress has remained deadlocked, and legislators managed only this week to resolve a four-month-old battle over abortion. No simple theory applies to any of them.
 Abortion is a highly volatile, emotional issue which has plagued Congress since the Supreme Court ruled that state laws flatly prohibiting abortions were unconstitutional violations of an individual's right of privacy.

 That ruling and a subsequent decision that the government had no constitutional obligation to pay for abortions left the volatile question of the use of federal funds squarely in the hands of Congress.
 Another question on which feelings run very strong is whether the federal government should regulate the price of natural gas. Deregulation is not a new issue.
 The pro-and anti-deregulation forces have been fighting since 1954, when the Supreme Court ruled that the government could set prices for natural gas.
 The year the court issued its ruling, Congress voted to strip the government of authority to set gas prices. But Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed the bill.
 That was the last time the deregulation forces prevailed on Capitol Hill. Last year, the Senate voted to drop government price controls while the House voted to keep them. The election-year session was coming to a close and no attempt was made to reach a compromise.
 Legislation to deal with financial problems in the Social Security System has run into the political reality that no one wants to push for a substantial tax increase as an election year approaches.
 Most cases come down to issues that were never easy to resolve, to traditional political pressures and to a changing membership that prizes independence above party loyalty.
 "It's politically wise to be viewed as an independent or maverick," said Moffett. "But it makes it much more difficult to govern."

vard University Press), concludes: "The judges might begin by curbing their reach for policymaking power, by withdrawing from extreme measures such as administration of school systems — government by decree — which have disquieted even sympathizers with the ultimate objectives. Such decrees cannot rest on the assertion that the Constitution demands busing, when in truth it is the justices who require it in contravention of the framers' intention to leave such matters to the states."
 For Garrity to take that advice would be welcome news for Bostonians and their elected school committee, who want nothing more than to run their own affairs without the good judge's protection.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, DEC. 10, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
 from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is the best time for you to put in motion whatever you wish to do, but do so quickly for best results. Be sure to follow your hunches which are accurate now.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have good ideas now that should be put in operation without delay. A fine time for making out your holiday gift list.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find better ways of dealing with debtors and creditors and do less worrying. Take no chances where your health is concerned.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Cement better relations with associates and become more successful in the future. Engage in your favorite hobby today.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to do your marketing early in the day. Take time for exercise or other health treatments you may need.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get an early start at the amusements that beckon you and get much enjoyment from them. Be sure to spend money wisely.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take steps to improve home affairs so there is more harmony and happiness there in the future. Show that you have poise.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact associates and discuss how to become more productive and successful in the future. Try to please loved one.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An expert in monetary matters can be most helpful to you with advice now. Make long-range plans for the days ahead.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Give more attention to personal wishes you have and you can gain them more readily. Show others you have wisdom.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make long-range plans to have greater abundance in the days ahead, but don't confide in others at this time.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to get together with congenials at amusements you mutually enjoy. Be active and express happiness.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can easily combine social activities and business matters today and get excellent results. Be careful of strangers.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be alert to many activities taking place, be they of personal, business or civic nature, since the psyche is very strong here. Give ethical training early in life. Be sure to permit your progeny to participate in sports.
 "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

J.P. Stevens Rally Target

NEW YORK (AP) — Organized labor, fighting to unionize textile mills in the south, has taken its effort to midtown Manhattan.

Hundreds of demonstrators marched around the skyscraper headquarters of J.P. Stevens & Co. late Thursday, trying to drum up support for a boycott of products from the firm's 85 mills.

Stevens has become the focus of big labor's unionization efforts, but the company has resisted firmly.

"This demonstration," a Stevens spokesman said when pressed for a reaction, "is apparently just another act of the union to harass the company and its employees. We are sure the great majority of our employees are not impressed by such activities."
 Stevens workers were joined

bor. women and minorities.
 The rally was organized by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, and was backed by the national AFL-CIO.

Book Of Worship Revisions Hit Snag

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The church that sparked the dream of a unified book of worship and hymns for all Lutherans of North America has virtually quit the project. But it nevertheless nears realization for the others.

They've agreed on the contents and set the publication schedule for a new Lutheran Book of Worship, 10 years in the making, for common use of most Lutherans of the United States and Canada.

Ironically, however, as the development process went into its final lap, the denomination that had first proposed it, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, having shifted to a stricter, more individualist course, backed away from the project.

The demurrer led to a wholesale resignation last month of six of that denomination's seven representatives on the Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship, a joint group which had worked through the years in producing the book.

Asserting frustration and the impugning of their credibility, the six charged that the "real reason" for their denominational administration's overruling them was an aversion to closer links with other Lutherans.

But the six said that even so, the new book will be a "blessing to the church" and this is the "best available book for use in worship among Lutherans ever made," thoroughly in accord with Scriptures and Lutheran confessions.

In spurning it, a newly set up Missouri Synod review committee charged doctrinal impurity in some hymns, such as in the final verse of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" and in the second verse of "Amazing Grace."

The committee also objected to a hymn, "At the Cross Her Station Keeping," saying it contained the idea that Jesus' mother, Mary, shared in his suffering on the cross. Among other things called unacceptable were some rephrasings in the ancient creeds.

However, the traditional forms of creeds and prayers also are included in the new book.

The head of the Missouri Synod review group, the Rev. Dr. Robert C. Sauer, conceded there had been concern about the implications of fellowship with other Lutherans, but he maintained this was not the central issue.

The collective resignation of the Midwestern-based denomination's worship commissioners was only the latest such upheaval in that denomination as it pushed its drive for tighter adherence to its positions apart from other Lutherans.

Close to 200 congregations with about 100,000 members have pulled out of the denomination in its pressure for Biblical literalism that previously had led to a walkout of professors and formation of a separate seminary in St. Louis.

The denomination's convention last July declared a state of "protesting fellowship" toward a sister body, the American Lutheran Church, because of its ordination of women and ecumenical links with other Christians.

Despite Missouri's aloofness, however, most of the rest of American Lutheranism has strongly ratified the new worship book, and set a publishing schedule making it available as of the first Sunday in Advent next year, Dec. 3, 1978.

Containing 544 hymns, old and new, the book also will include orders for various worship services and festivals.

For two U.S. denominations, the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America, along with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada, the book will vitalize a new bond at a basic point — in worship and song.

Work Begun On Huger Cathedral

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — Ground-breaking ceremonies took place last Sunday for the "Crystal Cathedral," to be made entirely of glass and larger than Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris, France.

The cathedral, to be built in the shape of a four-pointed star with seats for 4,100 worshipers visually open to the sky, will be the new home of the Garden Grove Community Church led by the Rev. Dr. Robert H. Schuller. It widely is known for its dramatic services both for those inside and in a parking area.

The "Crystal Cathedral" is scheduled to be completed by 1980.

Quarterly Meet This Evening

Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church will observe its quarterly meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. with the quarterly conference. Holy Communion will be given Saturday at 6 p.m.

On Sunday at 11 a.m., Bishop W. L. Phillips, the senior choir and senior ushers will be in charge. At services later that day at 3 p.m. Bishop J. H. Vines and Lewis Chapel will conduct.

Plan Trimming Chrimson Trees

The trimming of the Chrimson trees and the hanging of wreaths and greens will take place at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 1800 S. Elm Street, beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 10.

The activities will be under the direction of the Lutheran Church Women's altar guild, assisted by the Lutheran Student Association.

Will Receive Degree Dec. 16

FORT WORTH, TEX. — Mark Anderson Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Nichols of 108 Greenwood Drive, Greenville, will receive the master of religious education degree during winter commencement ceremonies at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The program will be held Friday, Dec. 16, at 10 a.m. at Fort Worth's Travis Avenue Baptist Church.

Special Music Sunday Morning

The Adult Choir of Memorial Baptist Church will present a program of special music as a portion of the morning service, Sunday, Dec. 11.

The event is offered as a prelude to the holiday season and features music of festive and reflective nature. Trumpeters Barry Shank and James Searl of the ECU School of Music will perform with the choir. Organist Joseph Goodwin will present special organ music, and the ECU Marimba Ensemble will be featured in two selections.

An invitation is extended to the public by the Rev. E. T. Vinton and choir director Harold Jones.

Anniversary Church Club

FOUNTAIN — The St. James F.W.B. Church will celebrate their pastor's first anniversary Sunday at 3 p.m. at the church.

The Rev. Phillip is the pastor and the public is invited.

Guests To Give Sunday Concert

Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church of Greenville presents Lawrence Johnson and Larry Pierce Jr. in concert Sunday, Dec. 11, at 4 p.m.

The guest artists are active members of the North Carolina A & T State University Concert Choir. The public is invited to attend.

LIKE SOLDIERS

There's beauty to the morning after a snowstorm, with the world turned white. The trees march in line like soldiers buried under the weight of their packs. Branches bend under the load; sometimes they break. But, more often they're resilient enough to withstand the storm... and still keep growing.

Can we say the same of ourselves? Do we stand up under burdens, or do our hidden shoulders snap and break? It might help us to bear heavy loads if we realized that we're never alone. The world is full of others staggering along under their own burdens, and most of them manage to keep going. And the lucky ones who have a true faith even realize that the pilgrimage has a reason, a meaning, even though they may not understand it.

Where do you find faith? You don't. It comes to you. And the Church is the first step toward such a meeting.

Boxcar Scrawl Sent FBI Off On Another Tangent

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold to very cold weather is forecast for most of the nation today. Cool to mild weather is expected from the Pacific coast to the Rockies. Snow is due from the northern to the central Plains. (AP Laser-photo)

By The Associated Press
Temperatures around North Carolina this morning were mild as compared with Thursday's lows, but another mass of cold air was on its way. Southerly winds brought the warmup which produced this morning such low readings as 34 at Charlotte, compared with 20 Thursday. Other low readings today compared with the previous day included: Raleigh 27 and 13, Greensboro 29 and 13, and Wilmington 32 and 25. Some light rain developed over much of the state this morning and in the mountains, where temperatures were below freezing, a travelers advisory was in effect because of ice forming on bridges and overpasses. Gusty, northerly winds with some snow flurries and falling temperatures were expected to push across the mountains by afternoon, reaching the coast by evening. Clearing and windy weather was following. Small craft advisories were in effect along the coast today for increasing southwest winds which were expected to shift to the northwest later today and tonight. By Saturday morning, temperatures will be down around 10 degrees in the mountains. A freeze warning is in effect for the southeastern portion of the state where temperatures are expected to be in the 20s. Elsewhere, they will range in the teens. Brisk, northerly winds will keep temperatures down Saturday, with highs expected to range from the 30s in the mountains to the 40s elsewhere. The extended outlook calls for fair Sunday. There is a chance of rain elsewhere Monday and Tuesday with cold Monday and warming Tuesday.

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It all started when Allen Bressler and Edward Van Washenova opened the boxcar.

Like a small barn on wheels, it squatted on the railroad tracks in Newport, Mich., in the December cold 10 days after John F. Kennedy was killed in Dallas.

The boxcar was waiting for grain from Kahle Brothers, a mill that contributed much to the economy of Newport and virtually all to the economy of Bressler and Van Washenova.

Their job was to get the boxcar ready for loading. But what the two saw inside brought them up short.

Before the day was out, their alarm would set in motion an intense, 72-hour effort by four FBI agents to trace the whereabouts of the boxcar during the previous eight months, find out who might have been inside, discover why he did what he did and learn what he knew about the murder of a president.

The hunt was typical of the dogged effort the FBI mounted in pursuit of almost every tip they got after Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963. Files made public this week, 14 years later, make some of the unsuccessful efforts look ridiculous. When Bressler and Van Washenova opened the doors on New York Central Boxcar No. 124475, they saw printed on the wall in yellow chalk: "Lee Oswald, Dallas Texas." The city and state were underlined.

Printed to the right were these words: "Future man of destiny. Apr. 4, 1963."

That was eight months before the assassination. How did the writer know? Was this evidence of a conspiracy?

On the spot, Bressler and Van Washenova dropped any notion of filling the boxcar. They set out to find Harold McCormick, manager of the mill. They told him what they'd seen.

Then they called the FBI. The Detroit field office handled the tip. Agent Paul Costello went to Newport and talked to McCormick. The manager told him Boxcar 124475 was rolled up to the mill on Friday evening, Nov. 29 — seven days after Kennedy was shot.

Agent Costello walked out to the tracks. Inside the car, he found the writing. He also found this written in black: "201 Southeast, 199 Portland, Oregon, U.S.A., North America, earth moved, forward all mail to the moon, 632 SE Crater, Lupas as moon dark side."

Costello began measuring. The letter "D" in Dallas was 7 feet from the floor of the boxcar. "Apr. 4, 1963" was 5 feet, 8 inches from the floor. That gave him an idea how big the writer was.

Next, Costello talked to Bressler. The mill hand told him he found the door of the boxcar shut, but that its seals were old and had been broken. Van Washenova said the same.

Agent James E. Cullen photographed the inside of the boxcar.

Now there were two choices: Assume the words about Oswald were written after Kennedy was killed. That would mean tracing its whereabouts since Nov. 22. Or assume the more ominous — that the words were written before the assassination.

As early as April 4? Earlier? That would mean tracing the boxcar all over the country, talking to innumerable people, spending day after day, tying up agent after agent. ...

Agent Lawrence M. Cooper in Detroit decided to do both. From Martin Howe, freight service manager for the New York Central Railroad, he found:

—On assassination day, Boxcar 124475 moved from Detroit to Vassar, Mich.

—It was unloaded at the Super Food Co.

—Five days later, it moved empty back to Detroit.

—After that, it moved empty from Detroit to Newport.

Also from Howe at the New York Central, agent Cooper got an itinerary for the boxcar reaching back to March 4.

Sketchy as the itinerary was, it was 49 lines long, listed cities from Seattle to Weehawken and named railroads from the Western Pacific to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy.

Boxcar 124475's cross-country wanderings became agent Cooper's problem.

Agent Horace Beckwith got the job of tracing the car in Michigan since Nov. 22.

And agent Beckwith got a break. At Super Foods in Vassar, manager Frank Stevenson said Boxcar 124475, filled with Quaker Oats, had been sealed from assassination day until Nov. 26. On that day, it was unloaded by a receiving clerk named Russell Torrey.

Beckwith found Torrey in the Super Foods warehouse.

Had he unloaded a boxcar full of Quaker Oats on Nov. 26? Well, yes, he had. Did he notice Lee Harvey Oswald's name scrawled inside? Well, in fact, sometime that Tuesday afternoon, before he had completely finished lugging the Quaker Oats out of the boxcar, he'd stopped working for a few minutes and written Oswald's name inside the car with yellow chalk he used to mark freight boxes.

He'd been listening to the radio constantly and heard Oswald's name over and over, and all about what had happened in Dallas.

What about the phrase "future man of destiny?"

He'd heard a radio announcer, or a fellow employee at Super Foods, or somebody, use it.

And April 4, 1963? Oh, that? That was his own birthday — the day he'd turned 25.

Just doodling, Torrey said.

Acquit Seven Charged In Audubon Print Theft

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A Massachusetts woman, one of seven persons charged with the May theft here of rare John James Audubon prints, has been acquitted for lack of evidence. Susan R. Sousa, 27, of Everett, Mass., cried after U.S. District Judge William Mehrtens ruled Thursday the government "had not produced sufficient evidence to support her guilt." Her acquittal came after the second day of testimony in the Audubon trial. Miss Sousa had been charged with conspiracy in the theft of the prints from the Audubon House last May. A similar plea for acquittal by five other defendants — Timothy L. Jones, Gordon W. Franklin, Joseph F. Callaro, Frederick J. Bonomo and Gerald A. Pini — was denied by Mehrtens. Their trial continues on charges of conspiracy and transporting stolen property across state lines. The prints were recovered last June. Frances De Forrest Van Zandt, named as the alleged mastermind behind the theft, had his trial severed from the others Wednesday when his attorney could not be in court. "The most the government could show was that she was present," said Miss Sousa's attorney, Harold Keefe. "She took no part in the conversation. In no way was she involved. The mere fact that she was here (Key West) is not sufficient evidence." Seven witnesses testified Thursday as U.S. Attorney Wesley Currier completed the prosecution's case. Kester W. Buchanan, a convicted forger from Marion, N.C., told the court Van Zandt summoned him to Key West and had advanced him more than $700. Buchanan, who has already pleaded guilty in a Miami federal court to transportation of stolen property charges, said defendants Jones and Franklin helped him load the stolen four-book collection hidden in a warehouse into his car. He said he then drove back to Marion and hid the Audubon collection in his house for "four or five days." The government's chief witness, Roy Morrell, testified he transported the stolen prints to New York. Morrell, on the stand for four hours Thursday, explained to the court that each of the defendants had a specific role in the theft and subsequent transportation. Buchanan and Morrell were named as unindicted co-conspirators in the case. Morrell said he had been given a five-year probationary sentence for a guilty plea he entered in a New Jersey federal court. Buchanan is awaiting sentencing.

Comparison 'Difficult'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The aide to Gov. Jim Hunt assigned to gather information on the Wilmington 10 says Hunt won't have much to go on if he decides to act in the case. Jack L. Cozort, Hunt's legal counsel, said he had been asked to prepare a file on the case with information Hunt could use if he needed to in order to decide whether the Wilmington 10 were handed excessive prison sentences.

Nine members of the group are serving long prison terms after their conviction on charges of unlawful burning and conspiracy to assault emergency personnel during racial violence in Wilmington in 1971. The 10th was paroled on a lesser charge. Cozort said the nine are the only persons ever convicted of unlawful burning in North Carolina. He said many others have been convicted of various types of arson charges, but penalties vary so widely that comparisons are difficult with the circumstances surrounding the "10."

Hunt has not changed his oft-stated position that he will not act in the case until appeals still pending in state and federal courts are exhausted. The governor has been under heavy pressure, from both inside and outside the state, to either pardon the group or commute their sentences.

Princess Anne's Baby Is Named

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne has named her baby Peter Mark Andrew Phillips. But, as Buckingham Palace stressed before the baby was born, Queen Elizabeth II's first grandchild will have no title even though he is fifth in line to the British throne. He will be known as Master Peter Phillips. Baby Peter, the first royal grandchild to be born a commoner, will be christened in the music room at Buckingham Palace by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Donald Coggan, at noon Thursday Dec. 22. That is where the princess herself was christened 27 years ago, as were Crown Prince Charles and Prince Andrew, while the queen's youngest son, Prince Edward, was christened at Windsor Castle.

Blanton Ruled Fit For Trial

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The former Durham elementary school teacher charged with kidnap and assault in an incident in which he detained the school superintendent and his faculty in the school library has been ruled competent to stand trial. Clarence Blanton has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to the charges. Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood heard testimony from a state psychiatrist who has examined Blanton before making his decision. Blanton was at Dorothea Dix state mental hospital since Nov. 4. He was released Thursday under $10,000 bond.

Liquid Protein Maybe Factor

RALEIGH (AP) — A liquid protein diet could have been a "contributory factor" toward heart damage for a 36-year-old Raleigh man who died last month of a heart attack, according to a pathologist.

Friends and relatives of David R. Nelsen, a newsman with The Associated Press, say Nelsen had gone off a liquid protein diet about a week and a half before he died on Nov. 23. Nelsen had stayed on the diet for about two weeks.

Nelsen's widow, Linda Nelsen, told the Charlotte News that her husband wanted to lose 20 pounds on the diet and lost 11 pounds the first week.

Mrs. Nelsen said she tried to persuade her husband to get off the diet.

"He kept saying, 'If I were not in good health, you would have to worry.' But he said, 'Since I'm so healthy, you don't have to worry.'" Mrs. Nelsen said.

Dr. Gordon LeGrande, the pathologist who performed the autopsy at Wake Memorial Hospital, said the autopsy showed some heart damage occurred "months or quite a few weeks ago" — apparently before Nelsen started taking liquid protein.

That would indicate the diet wasn't the primary cause of the heart problem, LeGrande said.

The autopsy indicated the heart was not getting enough blood, he said.

"I can't exclude the liquid protein as being a contributory factor, but I have no positive evidence that was the cause either," LeGrande said.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is investigating 32 deaths in the U.S. for possible links to predigested liquid protein diet products.

FDA epidemiologist Dan Brand of Washington, after being told of Nelsen's death by a reporter, said a physician with the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta would get in touch with Nelsen's doctors to see if a full investigation of his case is warranted.

The FDA has proposed that warning labels be required on liquid protein products. The warnings would say that the products should be used under medical supervision.

EX-COMMANDER DIES

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Sir Basil Embry, commander-in-chief of the RAF fighter command from 1949 to 1953 and commander of the NATO air forces in Central Europe from 1953 until retirement in 1955, died Thursday, he was 75.

By JULIE DUNLAP
Associated Press Writer

Raw icy winds sent fresh snow swirling across sections of the Midwest and Northeast today, stranding motorists on clogged highways and forcing schools and businesses to close.

Temperatures plummeted as the storm, born of a low pressure system in the Rockies and fed by frigid Arctic air, sliced through the nation's midsection. In Dallas, the mercury dropped from a record high of 80 in mid-afternoon to 30 this morning. Temperatures were below the freezing mark in the Panhandle.

In the Dakotas, temperatures of 25 to 30 below zero combined with winds of 15 to 25 mph for wind-chill indices of 60 to 80 below. Temperatures of 40 below were predicted today in both states.

"The freeways are a mess," said a Michigan state police dispatcher in Detroit on Thursday. "Rush-hour traffic is bad enough on a good day. Today it's horrible."

Dozens of abandoned cars lined freeway shoulders, most buried under snow from passing plows. Detroit's zero-degree reading Thursday set a record for the coldest Dec. 8 since 1882.

The snow was blamed for the death of Lloyd Jakubos, 48, of Lapeer, Mich., in a crash on state route 24, state police said. The new snow, added to the crusty accumulations of the past week, buried some communities in snow as deep as 36 inches.

Up to four more inches were forecast today for Michigan, northern Ohio, western Pennsylvania, extreme northern West Virginia and most of New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine were to get between four and eight inches.

Near blizzard conditions exist today in Minnesota, where roads are blocked in the western and southern portions of the state. Temperatures — well below zero in most of the state — are not expected to top 10 below today.

Thursday's heaviest snow, four to nine inches, was across the southern Great Lakes region. Meadville, tucked in the northwestern corner of Pennsylvania, was still digging from beneath 30 inches received since Monday when the new storm began, piling up new snow at a rate of an inch an hour.

State police said many tractor-trailer rigs and private vehicles were abandoned on Interstates 79 and 90 in Erie County.

Three to seven inches of new snow fell on southwestern Pennsylvania, including the Pittsburgh metropolitan area. Six more inches of snow piled up in Indiana, seven in most of Illinois where the cities of Pittsfield and Winchester were reported snowbound.

Northern Illinois University canceled classes today, the last day of the semester. Scores of elementary and high schools had closed by midday Thursday and were expected to stay shut today.

Volunteers on snowmobiles in north-central Illinois hunted for stranded motorists on impassable back roads. Dazed travelers straggled into motels when Interstate 57 was closed near Champaign.

Combinations of rain, snow and freezing rain glazed roads in the Ohio Valley and northern Appalachians.

Temperatures around the nation today ranged from 77 in Key West, Fla., to 36 below zero in Havre, Mont.

Police in Indianapolis advised businesses to close early Thursday so employees could get home before the storm locked in. Schools also shut early.

Tractor-trailers jackknifed across two Indiana interstate highways, closing the roads, and other highways were limited to one narrow lane of traffic.

The cold front brought rain from Kentucky to the western Gulf Coast with thundershowers reported from Alabama to eastern Texas.

The National Weather Service forecast for today calls for showers from northern California through western Washington. Snow will stretch from the northern Rockies into the Great Lakes states, the Ohio Valley and the Appalachians through New England.

The snow will change to rain over the lower Appalachians and North Carolina.

Temperatures will be cool or mild from the central and southern Pacific Coast into the western parts of the central and southern Rockies. The rest of the nation will be cold.

Disqualifies Self For Wallace Divorce Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Circuit Judge John W. Davis III has complied with an order from the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals to disqualify himself from divorce proceedings between Gov. and Mrs. George C. Wallace.

Davis' action clears the way for Chief Judge Richard P. Emmet of the 15th Judicial Circuit to reassign the case to another judge.

The appellate court ruled this week that Davis must step down from the case because of circumstances that created "an impression that his impartiality might reasonably be questioned."

Responding to the court, Davis issued an order Thursday removing himself from the proceedings. In an accompanying statement, he said he was "relieved" to accept the court's decision.

He expressed concern, however, that "perhaps all the facts were not presented to the appellate court" in connection with Mrs. Wallace's request that he be disqualified.

Mrs. Wallace's attorneys charged that Davis was biased because of his personal and political ties with the governor. They also accused him of meeting privately with the governor's lawyers in an effort to have the case assigned to himself.

But in his statement Thursday, Davis repeated his contention that he is "totally unbiased in this case" and that he "has committed no impropriety of any kind."

Davis noted the "political overtones" of the case and the "potential for malicious rumor."

In his formal order, he cautioned any judge who has been appointed to his position by Wallace against participating "in any facet of this case."

It was Davis' original appointment to the bench by Wallace, plus his family's association with the governor, that prompted Mrs. Wallace's objections to his presiding in the divorce case.

Davis' father, Dr. John W. Davis Jr., was one of the governor's physicians. The judge's father-in-law, Montgomery realtor Paul Corwin, was a friend and political supporter of the governor.

Wallace, 58, filed for divorce Sept. 12, six days after his wife moved out of the executive mansion, saying she could no longer stand her husband's "vulgarity, threats and abuse."

In his divorce petition, Wallace cited "incompatibility of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown" of the six-year marriage.

In a cross motion, the 38-year-old first lady accused her partially paralyzed husband of committing "actual violence and cruelty" against her and of failing to provide her enough money to meet "even the basic needs of a wife."

Allege Official Has Crime-Tie

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Interstate Commerce Commission official will be fired next month over allegations of ties to organized crime, sources say.

The official, Robert L. Oswald, ICC secretary and congressional liaison, has been the subject of a continuing Justice Department investigation into his alleged ties with reputed New York crime figures. The investigation became public last summer.

ICC Chairman Daniel O'Neal confirmed Thursday that he had given Oswald "30 days' notice" of the commission's action "based on several allegations of improprieties or failure to abide by the commission's code of conduct."

Oswald, who has refused to discuss the case in the past, could not be reached for comment.

O'Neal, in a telephone interview from St. Louis, said, Oswald "has 15 calendar days to respond."

O'Neal said federal privacy regulations prevented him from detailing the alleged improprieties he was referring to.

But other ICC sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said Oswald was the subject of a Justice Department investigation into allegations he may have involved himself in an ICC decision on a trucking franchise issued to the family of the late Carlo Gambino, reputed one-time leader of organized crime in New York City.

A high ICC official said the decision to fire Oswald was made after a review of the Justice Department investigation.

Federal officials confirmed earlier this year that the ICC's trucking franchise files of the Gambino case were subpoenaed along with the personal files of Oswald and his deputy, Richard Kyle.

The investigators had subpoenaed ICC files involving a five-year legal battle by Joseph and Thomas Gambino, sons of Carlo Gambino, for permission to haul garment shipments from New York City to Long Island. Neither Gambino brother has a criminal record.

By the Gambinos' own estimate, the operating rights from those shipments were worth $150,000 a year.

O'Neal placed Oswald on administrative leave in June, along with Kyle, who was not named in the dismissal notice Thursday.

The two continued to draw salaries although not working, Oswald getting $47,500 a year.

That prompted O'Neal to reinstate both men in September to less important positions. Oswald was placed in the commission's managing director's office and Kyle in rail services planning.

After the reinstatements, Oswald, 43, took sick leave and then applied to the Civil Service Commission for disability retirement. The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the application was denied Thursday.

Boll Weevil War Eyed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At $200 million to $300 million a year, the boll weevil is getting to be a luxury American agriculture can't afford. North Carolina is taking part in a pilot program aimed at eliminating the pests.

Cotton growers and processors and state and federal officials met Thursday to discuss the trial program which will be conducted on about 30,000 acres of cotton in northeastern North Carolina and 500 acres in Virginia, starting next year.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham told a news conference before the meeting that the three-year eradication trial will involve "an integrated suppression program using chemical, biological, and cultural means of control."

"At the end of three years," Graham said, "the program will be evaluated for its success and economic feasibility. It will then be compared to a pest management program being conducted at the same time in Mississippi."

"If the trial proves successful, the program could ultimately be extended throughout the entire cotton belt," Graham concluded.

Half the cost of the North Carolina program will be paid by participating farmers. The state and the federal government will split the rest. The total cost for 1978 will be just over $3 million. The projected cost for each grower is $50.50 per acre.

The boll weevil has been a threat to cotton crops throughout the eastern cotton belt for more than 50 years. During this time, it has become one of the major agricultural pests in the United States. It has cost growers and the U.S. economy $200 million to $300 million annually in losses and control.

Baha'i Sponsor Meet', Dinner

The Baha'i community of Greenville will sponsor a public meeting and potluck dinner Saturday at 7 p.m.

The meeting and dinner will be held at the home of Ms. Ludi Johnson, 300 Contentnea St., in observance of Human Rights Day. Dr. Peter Bradberry, a recent graduate of Cornell University, will lead a panel discussion.

The Baha'i world community has supported the basic aims of the United Nations — to keep peace, to insure universal human rights and to provide better social and economic conditions for humanity since the creation of the world organization in 1945.

Since early 1970 the Baha'i International Community, an office representing the Baha'i communities throughout the world, has exercised consultative status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

Cut Hole In Flipped Bus

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Rescue workers had to cut a hole in the roof of an overturned school bus Thursday to free the driver and some of the injured students inside.

Twenty-eight students were hurt, none seriously, when their bus skidded and flipped over west of Charlotte.

The 16-year-old driver and several students were trapped in the wreckage and had to be cut out through the hole. Other students escaped by scrambling out the emergency door.

About 40 students from Wilson Junior High School were on the bus when it went out of control on a curve and turned on its right side.

Students said the bus crashed just after the driver, Ivan Robinson, told several students to take their seats.

"It was like something you never saw," said Darwin McDonald, a 15-year-old passenger. "We were coming around the curve and the bus driver told everybody to sit down. The next thing I know, we're on the ground and everybody's screaming."

Ervin Anderson, a 16-year-old ninth grader, opened the emergency door after a brief struggle.

"I was sitting in the back of the bus," he said. "When it crashed I flipped over and landed on my neck. Then I told everybody not to panic. I pulled the emergency door latch down but it wouldn't come open. So I broke it open."

Plans Race In Eighth District

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Textile salesman Roger Austin says he'll seek the 8th district Republican nomination for the congressional seat now held by Democrat William G. Hefner.

Austin, 28, said Hefner was insensitive to the difficulties faced by the working people in his district. Austin said Hefner had supported welfare increases instead of tax cuts. Austin promises "effective conservative representation."

Series Of Five Accidents Here

More than $4,400 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic accidents investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:26 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 320 feet East of the Arlington Boulevard intersection involving cars driven by Gary Dale McAlister of 500B Avery St., and Debra Riggs Waters of 103 Cedar La.

Investigators, who charged Mrs. Waters with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,600 to the McAlister car and $150 to the Waters auto.

Curtis Eugene Sutton of 402 Pittman Dr. was charged with operating left of center following

Jack Ford Glad He Said 'No'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jack Ford says he was tempted to run for Congress, but now is glad he said "no" to following in his father's footsteps.

"I like politics, sure," said the 25-year-old son of former President Gerald Ford. "It's as much fun as anything to fool around in."

But the young Ford, who described himself as "a forester and an ecologist," said he wasn't sufficiently committed to politics.

"A group of people in California approached me and they said, 'We have the money and we want you to run for Congress.' They went so far as to do some polling," said the younger Ford. "It was exciting and tempting — Congress! But I'm glad I said 'no.'"

Ingram Rejects Rate Request

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has rejected an insurance industry request for a 28.4 percent increase in workers' compensation insurance rates.

Ingram said the hike was too high, took no account of investment earnings on premium income and was based on the experience of companies with greater than average expenses.

The insurance rating bureau, however, can go ahead with the rate hike anyway, while it appeals Ingram's decision in court.

investigation of a 1 p.m. collision on South Sylvan Drive, 15 feet South of the North Sylvan Drive intersection.

Police said the Sutton truck collided with a car driven by Carol House Wilson of 305 North Sylvan Dr., resulting in an estimated $100 damage to the Sutton car and $1,000 damage to the Wilson vehicle.

A 5:40 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 115 feet East of the Hooker Road intersection involved cars driven by Evelyn Lyon Haney of Ayden and Virginia Rose Edwards of 103E Lakeview Ter.

Damage was estimated at $100 to the Hanley car and $500 to the Edwards vehicle.

Cars driven by William Floyd Crocker of Route 1, Middlesex and Howard Glenn Stroud of Hobgood collided about 1 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and N.C. 33, causing an estimated $250 damage to the Crocker car and $300 damage to the Stroud auto.

A 4:34 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive 40 feet North of the Airport Road intersection involved a car driven by Carol Clark Phelps of 101 Woodview Pl. and a truck driven by James Cecil Clark III of 403 Oak St.

Officers estimated damage from the collision at $425 to the Phelps vehicle and $35 to the Clark truck.

Club Banquet Saturday Night

AYDEN — The Just Us Club of the Grifton Chapel and Little Creek F.W.B. Churches will celebrate their anniversary and annual Christmas banquet Saturday, Dec. 10, at 8 p.m. at the Little Creek F.W.B. Church, Ayden.

Guest speakers are Eldress Mamie Ruth Gorham of Falkland and A.C. Bachelor of Rocky Mount. Music will be given by the Spring of Hope Gospel Singers, Washington, and the Stephen Jones Gospel Community Choir, Ayden.

The public is invited to attend.

'Big Brother' Program Begun

East Carolina University's General Chennault Squadron of the Arnold Air Society has undertaken a "Big Brother" program, in conjunction with the Pitt County Boys' Club.

Each member of the squadron will visit his or her "little brother" at least twice a month. Visits include such outings as movies or picnics and will be made year-round.

In addition, the Squadron will sponsor several group events, where the "little brothers" may become acquainted with the Arnold Air membership as a whole. The first of these is a Christmas party for the Boys' Club.

Arnold Air Society is a national honor and service organization to establish better relations between the Air Force and the public.

Toy And Book Drive Launched

A toy and book drive for underprivileged children has been launched by the ECU chapter of Psi Chi honor society and the ECU Family-Child Association.

Persons who can contribute new and used toys and books are asked to wrap the items as gifts and attach labels indicating the type of toy or book and the appropriate age level of each.

Boxes for depositing the gifts are located in the Speight and Home Economics Buildings at ECU. Donations should be deposited by December 16.

All toys and books received during the drive will be distributed by staff members of the Pitt County Dept. of Social Services to children in needy families.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices staged a light-volume rally today with a boost from signs of a stabilizing dollar in foreign exchange markets.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.46 at 812.37. Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said an upturn by the dollar which began on Thursday helped to lift traders' spirits. The recent slump in the U.S. currency has been regarded as a negative for the market since it is presumed to have discouraged foreign buying of stocks in this country.

There appeared to be no strong response either way to the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a $1.8 billion increase in the basic measure of the money supply.

Brokers said the news, while not especially favorable for the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy, was pretty much in line with expectations.

USLIFE led the active list, up 1/4 at 19 in trading that included a 241,400-share block at 18 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose 22 to 51.59. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .42 at 123.61.

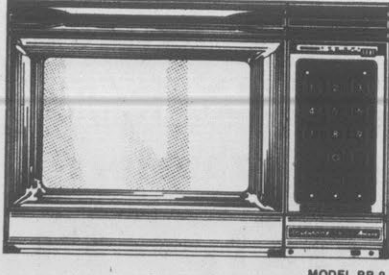

Volume on the Big Board came to just 7.67 million shares by noontime, against 8.43 million at the same point on Thursday.

Texas running back Earl Campbell and trophy.

Campbell Cops Heisman

NEW YORK (AP) — When Tony Dorsett won the 1976 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the land, Earl Campbell was in the training room at the University of Texas trying to ease the pain of an injury-filled junior season.

"I saw it on TV," Campbell said, "and I said to myself... 'Someday.'"

Someday arrived Thursday night as Campbell, a 220-pound blockbuster from the rose fields of Tyler, Tex., won the 43rd annual HHE Announcement was made on national television to cap an hour-long-plus CBS "spectacular" that wasn't nearly as spectacular as Campbell's slashing runs.

Trailing Campbell in the voting were Notre Dame tight end Ken MacAfee and Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller... or, if you prefer, Miller and MacAfee.

No one really knows except the accounting firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. The Downtown Athletic Club of New York, which awards the Heisman, usually lists the top 14 finishers, along with votes for first, second and third places and total points based on a 3-2-1 count, as well as a breakdown by regions.

This time, no one from the DAC seemed to know what was going on and every question about the voting drew a reply of, "I can't tell you what I don't know. There's nothing we can do about it."

The DAC insisted that no one from the accounting firm was around. CBS was incredulous.

"They (Harris, Kerr, etc.) are the chink in the armor," said a spokesman for the network. "As far as we're concerned, they're holding this thing up."

But this was Earl Campbell's night and nothing could detract from it, not entertainers like Connie Stevens, Leslie Uggams, Elliott Gould, Robert Klein and assorted pompon girls and dancers. Nothing could spoil it, not even gimpy-kneed O.J. Simpson's debut as a song-and-dance man, although his song-and-dance duet with Gould came out more like grunt-and-shuffle.

"I guess I'm too happy to cry and too happy to smile," said the poker-faced Campbell, who led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards — he had just 653 a year ago when he was plagued by leg injuries and missed four games — and became the No. 1 ground-gainer in Southwest Conference history with 4,444 career yards.

"I deserve what happened to me tonight because I worked so hard," he continued. "Last year, I knew there was gonna be a tomorrow and I started working out in the middle of May. The Heisman Trophy means 22 years of hard work. If you only knew how hard I worked you'd say, 'Earl deserves it.'"

Campbell's situation figures to make him (1) an early selection in the National Football League draft next spring and (2) rich. First, though, he has one college game remaining when the No. 1-rated Texas Longhorns meet fifth-ranked Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Then it's on to the pros, where Campbell hopes to "do what I've wanted to do since I was in the fourth grade. I think I've got a great future ahead of me if I take advantage of it."

Baseball Trade Includes 11

HONOLULU (AP) — An 11-player deal involving four teams and including such stars as outfielder Al Oliver, pitchers Bert Blyleven and Jon Matlack, and first baseman Willie Montanez, shocked baseball's winter meetings in a turbulent session of trading and executive decisions.

The mammoth trade among the Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves overshadowed such things as the reinstatement of suspended Braves' owner Ted Turner, a new four-year contract for National League president Charles Feeney, an American League turn-down of a group seeking to buy the Boston Red Sox, and a $5 million reorganization of the Cleveland Indians.

Texas owner Brad Corbett changed the four-way swap that changed the look of the National League East, made the Rangers a favorite in the American League West and began the reconstruction of Turner's hapless Atlanta team.

Corbett began Thursday talking a minor deal with the New York Mets when he discovered the Mets coveted Montanez, slugging first baseman of the Braves.

So, the Rangers' owner talked Atlanta into dealing him Montanez for reliever Adrian Devine, outfielder Tommy Boggs and minor league infielder Eddie Smith. Turner was delighted to unload Montanez' reported $300,000 yearly salary for three young inexpensive players.

Now, with Montanez in hand, he talked the Mets into delivering left-handed pitcher Jon Matlack and first baseman-outfielder John Milner to Texas for outfielder Tom Grieve and a player to be named later.

Corbett, however, wasn't through. He had been trying all week to grab outfielder Al Oliver from Pittsburgh, one of the game's premier hitters. So, he convinced the Pirates to take Milner, and with Matlack in the fold, delivered right-hander Bert Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and rookie shortstop Nelson Norman.

It was a coup. Corbett had a fine pitcher in Matlack, much better than his 7-15 record with the Mets, and a consistent hitter and excellent fielder in Oliver. Pittsburgh got a good hitter in Milner, and the pitcher they so badly needed in Blyleven. The Mets picked up needed power in Montanez, and as Turner said, "we got some young players more interested in baseball than money."

The Toronto Blue Jays got into the act, purchasing the contract of Philadelphia Phillies first baseman-outfielder Tommy Hutton for an estimated $75,000. Then, the Blue Jays turned

The Braves confirmed that pitcher Andy Messersmith had approved their sale of the pitcher to the Yankees Wednesday for $100,000.

While the general managers and owners were wheeling and dealing, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn held a joint major league meeting, and each league had a separate session.

The National League turned down a suggestion by the Phillies to expand the playoffs from best-of-five to best-of-seven. Use of the designated hitter in unofficial tabulation was defeated 9-3.

The American league disapproved the financial plan of Heywood Sullivan, general manager, and Buddy LeRoux, a club vice president, to buy the Red Sox from the estate of the late Thomas Yawkey. League president Lee MacPhail would not disclose the vote, saying only that the majority felt the financial and economic long-term viability of the proposed partners wasn't strong enough.

And Kuhn agreed to Braves owner Turner's request to end the suspension imposed on him last December. The suspension would have lasted until March 31. The commissioner said he felt Turner had learned his lesson, and agreed that the club needed Turner's close attention. Turner was suspended for tampering with Garry Mathews of the San Francisco Giants before the outfielder became a free agent after the 1976 season.

The National League voted a new four-year contract — with a pay increase believed to be $100,000 a year — for Feeney, whose term as president expired this year. Reported opposition to Feeney collapsed when August Busch of the St. Louis Cardinals, leader of the opposition, nominated Feeney for the new term.

And then there was the furor over Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. Some say he resigned in a pique because he wasn't advised of a Wednesday trade, and that the resignation was refused by Orioles' brass. Anyway, if he resigned, Weaver changed his mind and the American League Manager of the year is still field boss in Baltimore.

Player In Lead

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — South Africa's Gary Player shot a four-under-par 68 Friday, the best round so far in the 25th World Cup golf championship, and forged into the individual lead after the tournament's second round.

His 140 total was one stroke better than three others, including the first-day leaders Canadian George Knudson and U.S. Open champion Hubert Green. They were at 141, three-under-par, with surprising Uthai Dhappavibul of Thailand.

But Knudson and his World Cup rookie teammate, 25-year-old Dave Barr, maintained the team lead in the run for golf's most prestigious national prize.

Knudson and Barr shot an aggregate 147 Friday, which combined with Thursday's 139 gave them a two-day 286 total and a four-stroke lead over Player and his South African teammate, Hugh Baiocchi.

The Philippines was third in team standings at 291, one stroke behind South Africa and five behind the leading Canadians.

Player said he had "a good round of almost perfect golf," although he bogied the first par-4 hole. He missed an eagle-2 with his 4-iron on his last hole when the ball stopped a foot from the pin.

"The course was tough just as yesterday and the pin placements were tougher. And there was a good breeze on five or six holes," Player added. He started the day three strokes behind first-round leaders Green and Knudson.

Player's teammate Baiocchi had putting problems and shot a 35-38-77. His two-day total was an eight-over-par 150.

Green had a round of 37-35 for his par-72.

But his partner, U.S. PGA and World Series of Golf champion Lanny Wadkins, continued to play badly, scoring a triple bogie on the par-4 10th that sent his round soaring to 36-45-81. Their team two-day score of 153 was 10 strokes behind the Canadians.

State's Kenny Mathews Made Smooth Transition

By The Associated Press

Kenny Mathews has made a smooth transition from terror of the Anacostia playgrounds of southeast Washington, D.C., to a promising standout on a big-time college basketball team.

"I knew the Atlantic Coast Conference was a dynamite conference," Mathews says, "but I knew I could play basketball. I really didn't have any fears coming in here."

Mathews has developed quickly into one of the key men North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan depends on.

"Kenny has the potential to be a great one," Sloan observed. "Right now, he's the quickest, fastest player on the squad. And he has tremendous mental toughness."

Mathews is shooting 50 percent, averaging 11.6 points per game and playing about half of each contest.

"Defensively, I realize I've still got a long way to go, but I'm just going to work harder on it," he says. "I want to get where I can contain my man at all times."

William & Mary added injury to insult Wednesday night when they surprised a complacent Carolina team, 78-75. In addition to an embarrassing loss, the contest left Mike O'Koren with a sprained ankle, and the Tar Heels' second leading scorer will be out of action for Saturday's game against Rochester.

Coach Dean Smith is hoping to have him back in time for the Cincinnati game Dec. 17. O'Koren has been averaging 18.4 points per game.

day night was Duke's 91-67 shellacking of Southern Methodist in Dallas.

They don't get much chance to see basketball, ACC style, out in longhorn country, and Duke put on a pretty good show, led by Jim Spanarkel's 24-point performance.

The Blue Devils shot 53 percent from the field and were already coasting by halftime, with the score 47-29. Mike Gminski hit 17 points and Eugene Banks added 15. That makes Duke 4-1.

No ACC teams play tonight.

Pirate Cagers In Tournament

CHARLOTTE — East Carolina's Pirates return to the floor tonight for their third game of the week, as the Bucs open up play in the First Union Invitational Tournament.

The Pirates, 1-3, will face 2-1 LaSalle in the first game of the event, starting at 7 p.m., while hosting UNC Charlotte meets Boston College in the second game.

The 49ers bring a 2-2 record into the tournament, while Boston College is 3-1.

The winners meet in the championship game Saturday at 9 p.m., while the losers meet for the consolation title at 7 p.m. All action takes place in the Charlotte Coliseum.

LaSalle suffered its first loss of the year earlier this week, a 78-73 defeat in an upset to Rhode Island. The Explorers had earlier beaten Widener and Bucknell.

Michael Brooks, a 6-7 forward, led the team last season in scoring with a 19.9 average.

He'll be countered by East Carolina's Oliver Mack, who has pumped his average up to 24.5, scoring 74 points in two games already this week.

East Carolina opened the week with its first victory, a 102-95 win over Alderson-Broaddus, then fell to 12th ranked Maryland, 130-106.

Following the Saturday contest, the Pirates are idle until next Saturday night, when they travel to Raleigh, to meet the N.C. State Wolfpack.

And speaking of that night of infamy at Williamsburg, the consensus in Indian land is that the Tar Heels may have been complacent before the game, which may have been their fatal error.

"If I was them, I would have taken the game lightly," said Indian player John Lowenhaupt. "We're only William and Mary and they probably didn't know a lot about us."

"Man for man, they have more talent than we do, but basketball is not just talent, but how it's put together. We complement each other well."

DHC Strong Up Front

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Last season, D. H. Conley's girls basketball team had a strong outside game, but were weak underneath. This season, according to coach Norma Respass, the team's frontcourt players are its strength, while the guards are not quite as strong as last year.

"So far, we're a little weak in ball-handling," according to Respass. "We've got some strong rebounders and we run a spread attack. We're all improved over last year."

The Valkyries return three starters from a team which finished 14-18 overall. In addition, a handful of girls have moved up from the school's ninth-grade team and Respass expects help from them right away.

"We're young, but we just need more playing time. We're fortunate this year to have a better bench. We have much more depth."

Due to their youth, the Valkyries are just biding their time until Christmas, Respass said. Conley only plays one conference game before the holidays and the team feels that by Christmas it should have the experience it needs for a good season.

"After Christmas, we'll be pretty tough," Respass said. "We just want to battle our way through until Christmas. We would like to think that after Christmas we'll really be strong. We'll be ready to come back after the holidays."

The team's top returnee is forward Annie Wooten (5-8, senior). She was an honorable mention all-East selection last year and is a stalwart on defense. "Defensively, she's been looking very good," Respass said, referring to her play in the team's two victories thus far this year. "Defense is her key. You can expect 10-12 points per game and that many rebounds from Annie."

At the other forward is another returnee, Vergenell Person (5-8, junior). "She's been giving us more offense this year. She's a little weak on defense, but she's improving there."

The team's center is Glenda Green (5-9, sophomore), although she is out with an injured ankle right now. "She's just been the Cinderella so far. She didn't even start on the ninth grade team, but has had two 10-point games and averages around 12 rebounds."

At one guard is Annie Hardy (5-6, sophomore), the team's leading scorer (17.5 points per game) so far this year. She is a good outside shooter and is beginning to drive and penetrate more, Respass said.

Miriam Paramore (5-5 1/2, junior) starts at the other guard. "She is scrappy on defense. She's not a big scorer, but is the team's quarterback," Tina Dixon (5-5, junior) also plays a lot at that position. She is quick and a good shooter, according to Respass.

Pam Manning (5-5, sophomore) and Teresa Mills (5-5, senior) are the team's top reserves at guard. Manning is a good defensive player and a "fairly good" outside shooter, Respass said.

The top back-ups at forward are Tilda Garris (5-6, sophomore) and Cassandra Tyson (5-9, junior). Tyson is a transfer from Farmville Central who "fit right in," Respass said.

Other reserves are Lexanne Keeter at center, who is expected to help out as the year progresses, Cheryl Tyson and Brenda Battle at forward and Jan Carmon and Tammy Streeter at guard.

Respass said the Valkyries have hopes of winning the conference championship this year. "I'd like for us to take it. I really don't know, but I hope we're one of the contenders — we should be."

She said that Ayden-Grifton and C. B. Aycock should also be strong, along with Farmville Central.

"I think that by the end of the year, it could be anybody. Girls basketball is funny."

Purdue Tops Arizona St.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Maybe Tony Zeno will learn to keep a low profile from now on.

The Arizona State player made the most glaring mistake of a mistake-filled basketball game Thursday night and his team suffered for it.

With the Sun Devils holding a one-point lead and the game all but locked up, Zeno was called for goaltending in the last two seconds, allowing Purdue to escape with a heart-stopping 76-75 college basketball victory.

"If it hadn't been called goaltending, it might have gone in anyway," said Purdue Coach Fred Schaus, seemingly taking some of the guilt away from Zeno. "It was that close."

Zeno's error was only the most costly because it happened last. The Boilermakers, and Zeno's teammates, were far from perfect themselves in the game's fading minutes.

In games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 6 Arkansas buried Rockhurst College 99-63; No. 8 San Francisco whipped Stanford 99-78 and No. 17 Detroit defeated St. Louis 69-61.

Sidney Moncrief, Marvin Delph and Steve Schall combined for 58 points to pace Arkansas over outmanned Rockhurst. Moncrief scored 21 points and grabbed seven rebounds and Delph, who hit eight of 11 from the field, had 19 points for the undefeated Razorbacks, who won their fifth game.

Schall hit his first seven shots as the Razorbacks grabbed a 49-29 halftime lead. The 6-foot-11 center finished with eight of nine from the field, and 18 points.

Winford Boynes scored 24 points and James Hardy added 22 to pace San Francisco over Stanford. The Dons broke out to a 20-10 lead in the first seven minutes and held a 47-32 halftime advantage behind 14 points from Hardy.

John Long scored 20 points to lead Detroit over St. Louis. The Titans led throughout the game, but St. Louis staged a rally near the end and cut their lead to just four points with 31 seconds left.

But Detroit responded with two free throws by Wilbert McCormick and a basket by Terry Duerod to put it out of reach of the Billikens.

Elsewhere, Jim Spanarkel scored 24 points to lead Duke over Southern Methodist 91-67; Curtis Redding and Steve Soldner combined for 49 points to power Kansas State over Oral Roberts 75-64; Vanderbilt posted a 53-50 overtime victory over The Citadel as Charles Davis scored 20 points; Army outscored St. Peter's 12-4 in the final three minutes, rallying for a 64-61 decision, and freshman Earvin Johnson scored 19 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to power Michigan State to an 84-57 decision over Wichita State.

In a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden, Frank Sowinski scored 26 points to lead Princeton over Fordham 72-50 and Rutgers beat Columbia 62-48 behind Hollis Copeland's 23 points.

Their shooting touch arrived even later.

The Nets missed their first 16 shots of the game and found themselves down 19-0 before Howard Porter finally hit a jumper to break the ice after 6:28 had gone by.

The Nets, whose 3-22 record is by far the worst in the National Basketball Association, never recovered. Chicago led 30-11 at the quarter and coasted to a 104-78 victory.

"We're not the type of team to come from behind," observed Coach Kevin Loughery of the Nets, whose latest losing streak is now at six games. "We missed too many easy shots and we're just not strong enough to play catch-up."

In Thursday night's only other NBA game, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Golden State Warriors 117-116.

Wilbur Holland led Chicago with 18 points and Mickey Johnson and John Mengelt had 16 apiece. Rookie Bernard King scored 23 for New Jersey, but Porter, who finished with 13, was the only other Net in double figures.

Bucks 117, Warriors 116

Brian Winters' 20-foot jumper at the buzzer, the Bucks' third shot in the closing seconds, won the game for Milwaukee after Rick Barry had given the Warriors a one-point lead with 11 seconds to play.

Winters led the Bucks with 22 points and rookie Marques Johnson had 20. Rick Barry topped Golden State with 31, 23 in the second half, and rookie Ricky Marsh added 20, his NBA high.

McAfee: ND MVP

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame has named All-American tight end Ken McAfee the most valuable player on this year's football team.

McAfee, a senior who caught 54 passes for 797 yards and six touchdowns this year, was honored Thursday night at the Irish awards banquet.

Junior quarterback Joe Montana was named most valuable player on offense. He completed 53 percent of his passes for 1,604 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Ross Browner, senior defensive end, and Bob Golic, junior linebacker, shared honors as most valuable defensive players.

Montana, Golic and junior fullback Jerome Heavens were chosen co-captains for 1978.

Charles Put On Waivers

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks, looking to save some money, have placed veteran National Basketball Association guard Ken Charles on waivers.

Charles, a five-year veteran from Fordham University, reportedly was making about $100,000 a year when he was cut Thursday to avoid a deadline whereby any player employed after that has to be paid for the rest of the season.

Montana, Golic and junior fullback Jerome Heavens were chosen co-captains for 1978.

The victory left Rose with a 2-1 record on the season.

The Rampettes will play host to New Bern on Monday, seeking revenge for their only defeat.

Kinston—Nielson 8, Richardson 14, Herring 3, Carter 1, Redding, A)Chapman 2, Coumo 7, Lutz, Miller.

Rampettes Take 2nd Win Of Year

Rose High School's girls' basketball team captured its second win of the season last night, gaining a 47-35 victory over Kinston.

The first period of the game was tight, as Rose managed to inch out into an 8-7 lead by the horn. In the second frame, however, Kinston took charge, outscoring Rose, 15-9, to take a 22-17 lead.

The Rampettes came back in the third period, however, to push through 17 points, while holding Kinston to just five. That returned Rose to the lead, 34-27. The Rampettes then outthrew Kinston once more, 13-8, in the final quarter to nail down the win.

Kathy Streeter and Sheryl Taylor led Rose with ten points each. Venesa Richardson led Kinston with 14.

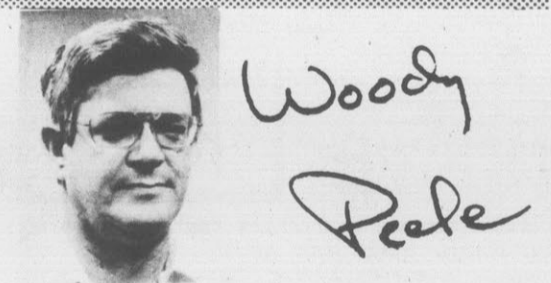

The victory left Rose with a 2-1 record on the season.

The Rampettes will play host to New Bern on Monday, seeking revenge for their only defeat.

Kinston—Nielson 8, Richardson 14, Herring 3, Carter 1, Redding, A)Chapman 2, Coumo 7, Lutz, Miller.

East Carolina's Pirates, looking at records, appear to be bringing into the First Union Tournament in Charlotte tonight, the worst team in the field, but Coach Larry Gillman is hoping that that isn't the way it will be.

He feels the Pirates can win it, despite being 1-3 at this point.

The Pirates will have to face LaSalle in the first game, and the first round opponent comes in with a 2-1 record, having been upset Wednesday night by Rhode Island.

East Carolina and LaSalle meet in the 7 p.m. game, while hosting UNC Charlotte (2-2) takes on Boston College (3-1) in the second game.

The consolation and finals will be held Saturday night in the Charlotte Coliseum.

The outcome of the game against Maryland Wednesday night did please Gillman in some respects. His young team did manage to score 106 points against the Terrapins, ranked 12th in the nation going into the game. He was not pleased, of course, with giving up 130 points and losin there were some good things in the game.

Oliver Mack, with 38 points, turned in his best performance of the season, and Gillman will be looking for him to continue with games like Wednesday's. The junior college transfer shot well, hitting 50 per cent of his shots.

The most amazing thing, however, is that many of the shots he missed were ones in which he was wide open. Then, in the opposite vein, he hit most of those in which he found himself closely contested.

Bernard Hill also had an exciting game, leading the Pirates in rebounding, and producing 18 points, his best night of the year. In all likelihood, he will return to the starting lineup tonight.

Herb Gray, who put through 19 points, fell down in the category where he is expected to come through, however, as he got only one rebound. Against Alderson-Broadus, he was the high rebounder with 13. Maryland was a much more physical team than A-B, but Gray and the other Pirates must come through with more rebounding if the Pirates are going to be successful this season.

Following this weekend's tournament, the Pirates travel to N.C. State on the following Saturday, for another stern test. They are then idle until January 4 when they visit Frank McGuire's South Carolina squad. Finally, the current road trip ends at a place that has taken on very scary airs, the William & Mary Hall in Williamsburg. The Indians of William & Mary pulled off one of the upsets of the year Wednesday night, knocking off the second-ranked Tar Heels.

It's going to be no easy road back to Minges Coliseum.

AP Picks Steelers, Cardinals To Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Welcome to the playoffs, Pittsburgh Steelers. So long, Cincinnati ... and Washington ... and New England ... and Atlanta.

The National Football League's postseason puzzle won't be completed this weekend, but virtually all of the pieces will fit into place after the Steelers beat the Bengals and St. Louis whips Washington Saturday, and Los Angeles, Miami, Baltimore and Oakland win Sunday.

Now for the long-range forecast:

—In the American Conference, Pittsburgh will win the Central Division title this week-and, a week later, Miami will win the Eastern championship and Oakland will deal itself into the playoffs with the wild card berth.

—In the National Conference, St. Louis will eliminate the Redskins this week and, next week, will win the conference wild card spot while Minnesota takes the Central crown and Chicago gets nothing.

If you're mapping out your postseason viewing schedule, plan to watch Oakland at Miami and Pittsburgh at Denver Dec. 24, followed by Minnesota at Dallas and St. Louis at Los Angeles Dec. 26.

Looking ahead is fun. Looking back isn't. Last week's mark was 7-7. For the season, the figures are 117-51—696.

This week's picks:

Steelers 21, Bengals 13

When Pittsburgh's defense has to be good, it is very, very good. The Bengals still are trying to find themselves. They'll find themselves home for the holidays.

Cardinals 24, Redskins 16

A few weeks ago, St. Louis was dreaming of a division title — or maybe just daydreaming. The Redskins' dreams become a nightmare.

Dolphins 17, Patriots 10

An Upset Special. We're convinced the Dolphins' defense is under-rated ... almost as much as the offense.

Rams 20, Falcons 9

It's a meaningless game for Los Angeles — but the Rams still remember their season-opening loss in Atlanta.

Colts 23, Lions 14

If Detroit can't beat the bad teams on the road, how does it expect to win against the good ones?

Raiders 24, Vikings 13

A Super Bowl replay. With or without Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota always comes out the same way — second-best.

Bears 30, Packers 10

Here's the step-by-step explanation of how Chicago is going to miss the playoffs.

The Bears will beat the Packers and the New York Giants and will finish 9-5, as will the Vikings. Their division and conference records also will be the same (6-1 and 8-4). And because Minnesota beat the Bears by six points (22-16 on Oct. 16) while Chicago beat the Vikings by just three points (10-7 on Nov. 20), the Vikings will get the division title.

St. Louis, by finishing 9-5, will be deadlocked with the Bears in conference records — and because the Cardinals beat Chicago 16-13 on Sept. 25, they'll get the NFC's wild-card berth.

Broncos 20, Chargers 17

San Diego's been hot lately and Denver could ease up now that it's title is secure. But the Broncos need the momentum.

Seahawks 28, Chiefs 17

Did you know Seattle is first in NFC passing offense? Did you know Kansas City is last in NFC offense — and last in defense, too? That adds up to another upset.

Browns 23, Oilers 20

And here's yet another one. Houston's attack is hardly dynamic — especially outdoors.

Cowboys 27, 49ers 14

It's not the most thrilling way to end the Monday night schedule, but it could've been worse. It could've been ...

Jets 31, Bills 23

... in which the Bills keep going nowhere without O.J. Or it could've been ...

Eagles 21, Giants 20

... in which Philadelphia finally manages to win a squeaker. Or ...

Saints 16, Bucs 3

... in which a Tampa Bay field goal is a moral victory.

Steelers-Bengals: A Game Of Numbers

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It has become a numbers game, this chase between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cincinnati Bengals for a title — and the numbers don't merely reflect wins and losses.

Saturday's game between the arch-rivals in the Central Division of the American Conference will have all the fury of past meetings, including the Steelers' 20-14 triumph over the Bengals earlier in the 1977 National Football League season.

And it will have more. Usually, just winning is enough. But in Cincinnati's case, winning by seven points or more is enough, while, for the Steelers, a five-point loss would not be fatal. They could still take the title by winning their regular-season finale in San Diego — or could back in if Cincinnati loses its last game against Houston.

The situation is this: If the Bengals win Saturday (and a howling sellout crowd in Riverfront Stadium will be lending Cincinnati all the support it can muster), they and the Steelers would be tied with 8-5 records. If each won its final game, they would be 9-5 overall and 4-2 in the division. The next tie-breaker would be the point differential between the clubs in the games between them. Since the Steelers won the first meeting by six points, the Bengals have to win by at least seven Saturday. If Cincinnati should win by six, the next tie-breaker would be points scored and allowed in division games, and the Steelers are far ahead of Cincinnati in that area.

In Saturday's other game, a National Conference showdown with the loser eliminated from wild-card contention, Washington is at St. Louis. On Sunday, it will be Miami at New England, Detroit at Baltimore, Minnesota at Oakland, Green Bay at Chicago, Buffalo at the New York Jets, Houston at Cleveland, the New York Giants at Philadelphia, Tampa Bay at New Orleans, Seattle at Kansas City, Atlanta at Los Angeles and San Diego at Denver. Dallas is at San Francisco Monday night.

Washington hopes history will repeat itself. Last year, the Redskins won both of their games against St. Louis and, by virtue of that sweep, grabbed the NFC wild card berth despite having the same 10-4 record as the Cardinals. This year, the Redskins won the first game 24-14 on Billy Kilmer's three touchdown passes. Joe Theismann now is Washington's starting quarterback.

Rose Wrestlers Defeat Plymouth

PLYMOUTH — Rose High School's wrestling team gained its fourth victory in as many matches last night, rolling to a 49-13 victory over Plymouth.

The Vikings took only three weight classes from the Rampants, who won the other ten divisions.

However, Virgil Tyson, at 132, and Ron Butler at 195, both suffered their initial losses of the season in the match.

Of the ten Rose wins, five came on pins and one on a forfeit. Plymouth took one match by a pin.

The Rampants travel to Elizabeth City on Monday to face their first conference competition against Northeastern.

- Summary:
- 98: Ricky Warren (R) decisively Charles Biggs, 6-1.
  - 105: Cliff Whichard (R) decisively Curtis Moore, 6-4.
  - 112: James Cherry (R) pinned Ricky Bonds, 2:55.
  - 119: Mike Norfleet (R) decisively Angelo Biggs, 5-4.
  - 126: Jesse Baker (R) pinned Bobby Rouse, 0:59.
  - 132: Glenn Chesson (P) decisively Virgil Tyson, 14-4.
  - 138: Bernard Paige (R) pinned Curtis Chesson, 3:02.
  - 145: Roger Chesson (P) pinned Mark Saieeds, 2:38.
  - 155: Alford O'Neal (R) decisively Ricky Bell, 12-2.
  - 167: Bernie Fleming (R) pinned Danny James, 1:24.
  - 185: Raymond Wooten (R) won by forfeit.
  - 195: Mike Moseley (P) decisively Ron Butler, 6-4.
  - Heavyweight: Franklin Clark (R) pinned William Allen, 1:27.

Armstrong Organization Keeps Cloak Of Secrecy

EDITORS' NOTE: The Worldwide Church of God has an annual income of nearly $70 million and real estate holding valued at more than $100 million. But despite appearances, the brilliance perceptibly dully below the surface. Here, in the fifth of a five-part series, is a look at Garner Ted Armstrong's organization.

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — On the surface, the world of Garner Ted Armstrong literally sparkles.

As heir to the religious throne held by his 85-year-old father, Herbert, Garner Ted, 47, stands to inherit the Worldwide Church of God — with a baptized membership of more than 65,000 spread out over every continent on the globe with an annual income of nearly $70 million.

The younger Armstrong already is recognized internationally for his religious broadcast, "The World Tomorrow," carried by about 400 radio stations worldwide. The majority of the stations are in the United States and Canada but the broadcasts also are translated into Spanish and French and beamed to the far corners of the earth.

At the church's opulent Pasadena headquarters, on the campus of church-run Ambassador College, the Armstrongs can cast a quick glance around and survey much of the Worldwide Church of God's wealth right in their own backyard.

The view includes the first building the church ever bought, a gleaming hilltop mansion.

By 1974, records on file at the Pasadena city assessor's office showed that the church had acquired nearly 200 prime properties in a 30-acre area of the city since 1946, the year before the college was founded.

Continuing their campus gaze, the Armstrongs can see the $11 million Ambassador Auditorium, whose interiors are made from emerald-green granite, cut and polished in Massa-Carrara, Italy. The walls are lined with rose onyx from Turkey and Persia, cut and polished in Italy. It's the biggest installation of such stone in the world.

Hanging from the ceiling is the most brilliant sparkle of Armstrong's glittering world — a 30 foot chandelier resplendent with 1,375 crystals, all imported from Belgium.

"It's the finest building in the world, square foot by square foot," says Stanley Rader, general counsel and vice president of financial affairs for the church. For the auditorium's opening in 1974, the Armstrongs brought the Vienna Symphony to the United States, at a cost of $112,000.

While a church spokesman declined to specifically estimate the church's real estate worth, he estimated the property worldwide at about $100 million at cost, with considerably higher market values.

Yet, despite appearances, the brilliance surrounding Garner Ted perceptibly dully below the surface.

In October, a group of former Ambassador students published a magazine criticizing the Armstrongs and some top aides for misuse of funds.

The full-color 90-page publication cost about $10,000 to produce. Five of the six publishers graduated from Ambassador College and had been in the church from four to 15 years. The sixth publisher attended Ambassador for two years.

The writers say "Ambassador Report" is the first concerted attempt to document accusations against the Armstrongs and those high in the organization. The October issue, the magazine's first, was distributed to about 5,000 persons who had either sent donations for the project or whose names had been referred to the publishers.

"Six students can not tell a spiritually organized church how the money should be spent," Rader said in response to the accusations.

"The Armstrongs are responsible to God and, to a certain extent, to the brethren. The brethren give steady approval by continuing to support the church. The church grows and its programs become more and more effective."

However, all attempts to interview Garner Ted were unsuccessful. His chief aide, Dr. Robert Kuhn, refers callers to attorney Rader, fourth down in the line of authority from patriarch Herbert. Rader is equally elusive, but finally accommodated a reporter with a 45-minute phone call placed from Tokyo, where he was visiting on church business.

Because of the cloak of secrecy enshrouding the tax-exempt Worldwide Church of God, it is virtually impossible to unravel the complex growth of the church from humble beginnings. Its origins were traced to Herbert W. Armstrong's first broadcast religious sermon in 1934 on radio station KORE in Eugene, Ore. Today it is a financial monolith.

Until recently, Ambassador College, which receives about $25 million of church funds each year, had three campuses. The campus in Bricklet Wood, England, was shut down several years ago and the campus in Big Sandy, Tex., was closed last summer, with the students transferred to the Pasadena campus. Ambassador College continues to hold the vacant facilities in England and Texas, however.

Past financial reports have indicated that 85 percent of the church's income came from tithes, or required donations, on the gross income of its membership, with the remainder in donations from recipients of the church's weekly magazine, The Plain Truth, and others, including Garner Ted's broadcast audience.

Rader said the church never makes public appeals for funds, noting that the closest it comes to that is the church's practice of sending literature to regular donors, telling them about the church's building program and explaining where the money is going to.

"But there is no passing of the hat in church or during campaigns," he said.

The church's seeking three tithes — one tenth for the church, one for religious festivals and every third year a tenth for the church's poor members — was one practice harshly condemned by the Ambassador Report's staff. Rader said the tithing is purely voluntary, although it is such an important principle of the church, members who don't are likely to feel "conscious-stricken," he said.

But even more distressing to the Ambassador Report group than the tithing itself was the way the funds ostensibly have been used — to finance international trips for the church's leadership, to furnish luxurious homes for them, to bedeck the auditorium in ostentatious glitter, to finance the college's several airplanes, including a $3.5 million Gruman Gulf Stream II jet.

The Armstrongs, who say they are not evangelists and make no effort to convert or proselyte, have contended that their plane trips are part of their mission to spread the Gospel.

However, the Armstrongs' jet-set living caused dissension within the church even before the publication of Ambassador Report. By early 1974, 35 ministers had left the fundamentalist, Saturday Sabbath-keeping sect and informed its members they planned to form separate congregations.

They charged the aging Herbert with concealing sexual improprieties of his son and with living high on the members' tithe money.

Garner Ted had disappeared for several months in 1972, amid speculation by the separatists that he was guilty of a number of sins, adultery leading the list. But he was quickly reinstated, the theory being that Garner Ted's absence from the air waves cost the church a good chunk of its income.

In response to the separatist ministers' accusations, Garner Ted said at the time, "I would not address myself to the charges, either to confirm or to deny."

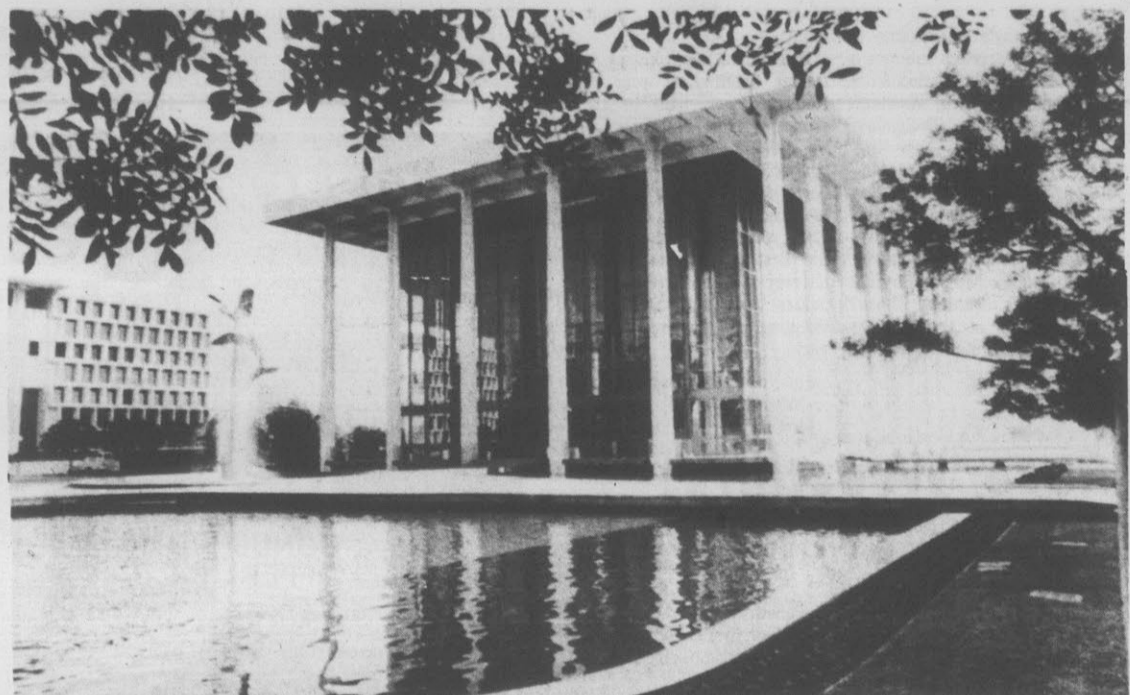

At the time Garner Ted was disfellowshipped, the senior

Armstrong told followers that a financial crisis was facing the church, more serious than one it faced two years earlier.

"I had to ask you then," Armstrong wrote in a letter to the brethren, "even to go to your bank and borrow what you could pay back within two years on a monthly repayment basis, and you brethren responded generously, and the crisis was successfully weathered."

"I simply have to tell you brethren that we now face an even more desperate crisis, and reluctant as I am to do so, I am forced to ask you to respond again as you did before." During the time Herbert Armstrong was asking the membership for money, information from the Internal Revenue showed the college took in $32 million in 1970, $35 million in 1971 and $41 million in 1972.

"The furor in some quarters," noted Stanley Rader in the recent interview, "is not going to deter the onward thrust of the work of the church."

Scuba Diving: Know Limitations

My husband and I are both 28. We recently considered taking up scuba diving. Do you consider this a risky sport for people of our age? — Mrs. L.H., Fla.

Dear Mrs. H.: Self-contained underwater breathing apparatus (scuba diving) is a fine recreational sport that is becoming very popular. The basis for enjoyment lies, of course, in taking an excellent course under the tutelage of certified instructors.

The YMCA, the National Association of Underwater Instructors, the Association of Diving Instructors and the Association of Skin Diving Shops offer excellent instruction for many hours before practical diving in tanks is first started.

By the time the course is complete, the potential diver knows all the basic rules of safety and is completely familiar with the proper use of diving equipment.

Your age is a perfect one if you both are in excellent physical condition. At your age you have a great sense of responsibility and will not take any risks.

Since the ears are the usual vulnerable areas, they should be checked out in order to be sure that there is no condition that predisposes you to problems.

Under no circumstances should even a training dive be tried if there is an acute respiratory infection (a cold) or chronic problems with the nasal sinuses.

Knowing one's limitations and meticulously following the rules for safety will increase your enjoyment of scuba diving and decrease the possibilities of accident.

For the first few years after I was married I took birth control pills on the advice of my doctor. Because I had some strange side effects I was told to stop the pill. I now notice some dark patches on my face. Could this be from "the pill"? Is there any way to get rid of it? — Mrs. B.A., Nev.

Dear Mrs. A.: Dark pigmented blotches have been observed in some people who have taken birth control pills. In many instances, after the pill has been discontinued they seem to fade. Don't, however, become impatient because sometimes they last for many months. Do not try any of the homemade remedies, even the over-the-counter ones because they may, in fact, increase the pigmentation.

The safest approach would be to use a covering agent or masking cosmetics, until the pigmentation disappears.

Direct exposure to sunlight seems to increase the discolorations. An opinion by a dermatologist (skin specialist) would give you added assurance.

Swimmers Have Knee Hazard

CHICAGO (UPI) — Exercise is not always good for your health.

In addition to tennis elbow and jogger's heel, there is an ailment called swimmer's knee.

"The Journal of the American Medical Association" says swimmer's knee isn't likely to bother the average swimmer who splashes around the pool occasionally. It is a problem largely for dedicated competitive swimmers who train extensively.

The ailment results from chronic sprain of a ligament or a pulled hamstring from too much hard swimming.

Nicaragua is the largest of Central America's republics, with an area of 50,000 square miles, and is roughly the size of Illinois.

Raymond Burr Still Busy

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's been 20 years since Raymond

Burr began a long run as television's most famous barrister, and the burly Canadian actor is as busy as ever.

"I did a cameo thing in '79 Park Avenue," the television special, I had a part in a movie we just finished in Canada and I'm talking about two other movies now," said Burr, known around the world for his portrayal of "Perry Mason" in the courtroom series that ran nine seasons.

"I'm considering a two-hour special for television," the actor continued, "and I'm thinking about a television series, though there would have to be limitations written into it, like six months a year away from work."

"If I don't go back to television next year with another series, I won't go back for a series at all," Burr said.

Burr's next scheduled appearance on TV is as narrator of a public television special Christmas Eve, "Christmas Around the World." It's an hour-long program of live reports on Christmas celebrations in eight countries.

Burr, at 60, maintains the commanding presence that made him a symbol of justice both as Mason and as the wheelchair-bound Chief Robert Ironside in the crime series, "Ironside." It's difficult to sit across from Burr and not think of Mason and Ironside.

"People really identified me with law and justice when I got into the 'Perry Mason' show," Burr said. "In fact, I stopped driving my car whenever I'd had a drink. How would it look for Mason to be arrested for drunken driving?"

"I didn't live 24 hours a day as Perry Mason or Robert Ironside," Burr said, "but I always thought it was important to become vitally interested in the characters."

"Perry Mason" was as popular as it was — episodes still are being rerun in this country and abroad — for several reasons, Burr said. The cast was a good one, the writing and direction were superior, and, said Burr, "I don't think there's anything like nine years on television for developing a character."

"And then I think we were dealing with certain fundamental truths," he said, "that most people could identify with."

Burr acted on the stage and in scores of movies before "Perry Mason." Until then, he was best known as the prosecuting attorney in "A Place in the Sun" and the killer in "Rear Window."

Though crime was at the core of both "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," violence was downplayed in favor of reasoning as a solution to the characters' problems.

"The kinds of things on today are more of a reflection of the times we're in," Burr said. "I think there's more violence than necessary in some shows, but I don't think all violence on television is wrong. It wouldn't honestly reflect what's going on in the world."

Announce 4 Exams For College Credit

ECU News Bureau
East Carolina university announced that four new examinations in the field of dental auxiliary education will be administered as part of the college-level Examination Program (CLEP) during the third week of every month at the ECU testing center.

The 45-minute examinations in radiography; head, neck and oral anatomy; tooth morphology and function; and dental materials are the newest series examination in CLEP, the national program sponsored by the College Entrance Examination Board.

People who have acquired knowledge and skills on their own — on the job, through military training, in non-credit courses, at home — may take CLEP examinations in 47 professional and college subjects and 5

CLEP General Examinations in basic liberal arts. ECU is one of more than 1,000 colleges and universities which accept CLEP credit.

For more information about CLEP write or telephone John S. Childers, Director of Testing, Speight Building, Room 105, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. 27834 (telephone 757-6811).

honors, it becomes a doubtful opening bid. West's interference bothered South only mildly. While he did not much like his distribution, he realized that a bid of only three hearts would sound as if he were competing, so he took the strain off his partner by leaping to game.

West led the ace of diamonds and continued with the queen. The thoughtless play is to cover with the king, but observe what would happen. East ruffs and shifts to a spade. Whether or not declarer finesesses, he must eventually best the defenders can do is shift to a club. (If West continues with a diamond, declarer overruffs, draws trumps, and takes a club finesse. East wins and shifts to a spade, but declarer rises with the ace and discards his spade loser on a club.) Declarer finesesses and the club king is the last trick for the defense.

It is no better for the defenders if East ruffs the second diamond and shifts to a spade. Declarer rises with the ace, draws trumps, ending in dummy, and discards his spade loser on the king of diamonds. Now he can get back to his hand with a spade ruff to take the club finesse for an overtrick.

Declarer's play might have cost an overtrick if diamonds broke 6-2, but it is a small price to pay to insure a game contract.

Hoover Suspected Communists In Killing Of JFK

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late J. Edgar Hoover once said it was "entirely possible" that communists wanted to do away with John F. Kennedy because he was getting along too well with the Russians.

Six months after Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald, the FBI chief agreed with speculation that communists might have wanted to be rid of the president "so that this obstacle to their desired philosophy could be removed."

There was little elaboration to the remark, which was found among the 40,001 pages of FBI files on the Kennedy assassination opened this week to public view.

The reference was in the typed notes of an interview that Hoover granted to William Manchester, who had been commissioned by Kennedy's widow, Jacqueline, to write an account of the traumatic events surrounding the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas.

"Manchester speculated that perhaps the communists, including Oswald, did not like the relationship between the late president and (Soviet Chairman Nikita) Khrushchev," the notes say. "The director replied that this was entirely possible ... The director told Manchester that he had always felt it better to kick individuals like Khrushchev on the shins once in a while rather than to boot-lick them."

The bulky FBI files show that debate between Russia and the United States apparently was first raised as a possible contributing motive for the assassination by Sanchez Bella, the Spanish ambassador to Italy.

Bella told reporters in Rome on Dec. 5, 1963 — 13 days after the Kennedy assassination — that Spain's intelligence services had established a possible link between Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, Oswald and the events in Dallas.

The ambassador cited Castro's concern about the improving relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union as a possible reason for wanting to see Kennedy killed.

Hoover said it was difficult to speculate on the motives of Oswald, whose interest in socialism and communism dated back to his mid-teens. Perhaps, Hoover mused, Oswald was aiming at Texas Gov. John Connally, a passenger in the presidential convertible who was seriously wounded by the assassin.

The 24-foot stack of papers released this week will be matched in January when the second half is made public. But still, skeptics of the Warren Report and its conclusion that Oswald acted alone were less than pleased.

"I'll wait until the next 40,000 pages come out," said Mark Lane, author of "Rush to Judgment."

And Harold Weisberg, who wrote seven books on the assassination while fighting to obtain the FBI documents, argued that the sheer bulk renders the material "indigestible by even the most competent, conscientious journalist."

Indeed, the size of the investigation, the pursuit of the most tenuous of leads, the interviews with hundreds of people cross-checked and double-checked is more impressive than anything in the materials. The documents so far have revealed nothing to challenge the Warren Commission's conclusion that there was no conspiracy.

The FBI scoured the country for any clue to Oswald and to Jack Ruby, the night club owner who killed him. Any crank who made a report, any theory, no matter how remote, or seemingly crackpot, was at least listened to — and often acted on. In June 1964, six months after the event, Hoover told Manchester that 50 FBI men were still on the case full-time.

The FBI director was critical of the way the Dallas police handled the Kennedy assassination. He told Manchester if the FBI had taken custody of Oswald, he would never have been killed by Ruby.

FBI men obtained Oswald's psychiatric records when he was 13 and living in New York. He is revealed as a troubled, withdrawn child, a chronic truant, a youngster with an uncaring mother.

He became interested in the political left in those Cold War years and after he enlisted in the Marines, at age 17, the men who served with Oswald heard him speak sympathetically of communism.

A fellow Marine called him "Oswaldskovich" and he reveled in it.

In 1959 he went to Russia and met Marina, who became his wife. The FBI learned from her that she would never have married Oswald had she known he wanted to return to the United States.

When they did return, they began quarreling and she wanted a divorce because of his "crazy ideas and political opinions. Oswald was arrested after a fight in New Orleans while passing out leaflets for the "Fair Play for Cuba Committee." He took a shot at Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker and missed.

Marina was listening to the progress of the Kennedy motorcade on radio when the shooting occurred and she remarked to a friend that she hoped it was not "my crazy one." When there was mention of the Texas School Book Depository where Oswald worked, she went to the garage to see if Oswald's rifle still was there.

Ruby, who operated a Dallas night club, was described by dozens of informants as a huckster who was terribly excitable and easily brought to anger.

One person interviewed by the FBI described Ruby as "a hero worshipper in love with a hero, John F. Kennedy."

In an early summary of its investigation, the FBI noted that a police officer heard Ruby say "you rat son-of-a-bitch, you shot the president" immediately after shooting Oswald. And, the report said, when another officer asked Ruby why he had done it, the nightclub owner replied: "Somebody had to do it. You all couldn't do it."

Police Veteran Claims Racial Discrimination

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Cesar Corbett, a 27-year veteran of the Greenville Police Department and the city's first black policeman, has filed suit in U.S. District Court, charging racial discrimination in an alleged attempt to force him to retire from the department.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon, Mayor Percy Cox, and City Manager James Caldwell were named in the civil complaint which asks $100,000 in damages be awarded Corbett.

The complaint also asks the court to issue a temporary restraining order preventing the defendants from dismissing Corbett or forcing him to resign without a hearing and asks for "equitable relief" — including reinstatement and back pay — if Corbett is dismissed before the court acts.

In the complaint, Corbett charged that on or about November 11, he was approached by Cannon and "told to either resign or be summarily fired...for something that had allegedly occurred two days earlier."

Although Cannon and the other defendants have declined to comment on the case, sources within the Police Department indicate that the incident resulted from Corbett allegedly sleeping while on duty. The department's standard operating procedure manual says, "Any officer found sleeping while on duty shall be subject to suspension or dismissal."

Other sources within the department said Corbett, a sergeant assigned to the Detective Division, was dropped from the department's roster and considered as retired at midnight last night.

The complaint, saying the reason given Corbett for his "forced resignation is untrue," charges that, "the true reason ... is that because of Lieutenant Clyde Stubbs' death approximately two months ago, there is now a vacancy ... in the Lieutenant slot. The plaintiff is next in line for the slot," and by "forcing plaintiff to retire, the slot will be filled by a white policeman with less seniority than the plaintiff."

The suit, filed with the Federal Court Wednesday, noted that Corbett is "being forced to resign without being given a hearing on the allegations," thus violating, "his due process and equal protection rights guaranteed by the Constitution."

Cannon's action, the complaint alleges, was "concurrent in by defendant Cox and James Caldwell," and "were done in bad faith."

In declining comment on the case, Cannon termed the affair, "an internal matter."

Choir Cantata Sunday

WINTERVILLE — The Adult Choir of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church will present the seasonal cantata "A Carol of Christmas" Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The cantata is an arrangement by John W. Peterson. The choir is under the direction of Mrs. Pat Byrd and accompanied by Mrs. Pual Braxton, organist, and Miss Vanlora Finch, pianist.

The pastor and music staff invite the public to attend.

CHOIR UNION

The Pitt and Greene County Fine Star Choir Union will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Elmers Grove Church. The public is invited.

Erosion Damage

EROSION... Along the shorelines of North Carolina, erosion is a serious problem. The scene shown here is typical of the damage that can be caused by erosion. Dr. Stanley Riggs will show slides and speak on this subject at Monday night's meeting of the Sierra Club, to which the public is invited.

Dr. Stanley Riggs, Professor of Geology, East Carolina University, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Joseph LeConte Chapter, Cypress Group, of the Sierra Club to be held at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 12.

The meeting will be held in the club's regular meeting place, the basement of First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th Streets.

Riggs will present an illustrated slide-lecture on the subject "Shoreline Erosion in North Carolina." In his lecture, he will explain the process of erosion, what it is, what causes it, when it most likely occurs, what can and what can't be done about it.

There is no admission charge for the event, and the public is invited to attend.
