SUPERTANKER COLLISION — The supertanker Venoll blazes, sending black smoke into the sky over the Indian Ocean Friday after colliding off South Africa's southeastern coast with her sister ship, the tanker Venpet. The Venoll was carrying a full load of oil, officials said. Two seamen were reported missing, while other crew members of the Liberian-registered ships were rescued by helicopter and ship. The supertankers, built in Nagasaki in 1973, are nearly a quarter-mile long and some 60 yards wide. (AP Laserphoto)

On Its Way To President

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill requiring a $227 billion increase in payroll taxes over the next decade to support the Social Security system is on its way to President Carter, carrying the unenthusiastic support of a majority of Congress.

The bill imposes a greater tax burden on workers than Carter had proposed. But, he says, the measure that passed Congress on Thursday represents "a good resolution" of the financial problems facing the Social Security system, which pays benefits each month to 33 million Americans.

The Senate approved the bill 56-21; the House vote was 198-163.

Even without the bill, Social Security taxes are scheduled to increase on Jan. 1, 1978. With the bill, every American who pays into Social Security — the total today is 107 million persons — will face even higher taxes starting in 1979.

For high-income workers — those who will be earning about $42,000 a year or more 10 years from now — and their employers, payroll taxes would more than triple over the next decade.

The tax increase on the "average" worker, who now earns $10,000, will go from the present $585 a year to $715 in 1987.

But the government expects the average worker's income to increase to about $18,600 a year by 1987, putting his tax under the bill at $1,330 a year. That compares with a $1,200 tax on that level income under present law.

In every case, the employer would continue to match whatever payroll tax is levied on the employee.

All told, the bill is designed to bring an additional $227 billion into Social Security between 1979 and 1987. At least on paper, the tax increases would remain in effect far beyond that, because the bill is aimed at keeping the system financially sound for the next 30 years.

The system is in trouble because of a sluggish economy and a declining birth rate, which mean fewer workers are paying into Social Security, and because inflation and a quirk in a 1972 law are driving up benefits.

Correcting that quirk, which will mean lower benefits for some future retirees, will erase about half the long-range deficit in Social Security. The other half will be made up by the higher taxes.

The only major benefit increase in the bill would double, by 1982, the current $3,000 limit on what a retired person 65 or older may earn and still draw a full pension.

Another provision prevents a reduction in benefits when a widow or widower 60 or older remarries. Current law has been criticized as an incentive for some elderly persons to cohabit without marrying.

Confrontation Is Avoided By UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The state university system has successfully avoided a costly confrontation with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare over the system's integration plan.

William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system, says HEW officials have confirmed that they will not go to court to enforce their insistence on a 150 percent increase in minority admissions within five years.

Friday and other officials said that requirement would be impossible to meet and it appeared the two sides might clash head-on in a fight that could have deprived state schools of federal funds.

The president said he "firmly" understood the understanding with federal officials in a meeting with David S. Tatel, director of the HEW office of civil rights, that as long as North Carolina's state plan represented a "good faith" effort to increase admissions by 150 percent, HEW would not take legal action.

"We will have to file in due course a supplement to the state plan," said Friday. "This is where we will deal with the 150 percent plan."

Once that is filed, Friday said, he hopes that HEW will accept the university system's entire desegregation package before Jan. 5, when HEW must report to the federal courts.

"If we keep talking, sometimes we find answers, and that's what we're trying to do," Friday said. "I am satisfied that it is not the intention of HEW to penalize the university if it does not reach these goals."

HEW could cut off $100 million in federal funds used annually in the 16-campus university system.

UNC trustees have endorsed the desirability of the 150 percent goal, but have said they believe it is unrealistic. University calculations show that 1,425 additional black freshmen and transfer students would be required annually above the 950 who enrolled in the 1976-77 school year.

Friday said active recruiting of black students, including personal visits to high school counselors and to parents of black high school students already is under way.

He said much of the time with Tatel and his staff Thursday involved discussions of program development at the system's five predominantly black schools.

Another Victim

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Investigators guided by former members of the Charles Manson family have dug up a skeleton they believe is a Hollywood stuntman killed by the clan eight years ago.

Officers tentatively identified the remains, found Thursday in a shallow grave adjacent to the Spahn Ranch where the Manson clan lived, as those of Donald Jerome "Shorty" Shea.

The county coroner was to make a positive identification today.

Shea, 36, a handyman at the ranch in Chatsworth, 30 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, disappeared in the summer of 1969, about the time the Manson family killed eight other persons in two nights.

The others killed were actress Sharon Tate, the pregnant wife of movie director Roman Polanski, and four of her friends; Los Angeles grocer Leno LaBianca and his wife, Rosemary; and 34-year-old musician Gary Hinman, who was tortured before being killed in an alleged effort to get him to turn over insurance money to the Manson family.

I-40 Pile-Up

CANTON, N.C. (AP) — Dense fog touched off a chain reaction pileup on Interstate 40 at the Canton exit this morning, and first reports said at least one person was killed.

A spokeswoman at the Canton Police Department said she understood from 25 to 50 vehicles, including a number of tractor-trailer trucks, were involved in the pileup triggered by the early morning fog.

The spokeswoman said fog lights which normally are turned on for a two to three mile stretch of the highway when there is fog were not working at the time. The reason was not immediately known.

It was believed that the chain reaction was set in motion by a collision involving a truck and a car, but there was no immediate confirmation.

The Haywood County sheriff's office said traffic was blocked on the interstate and was being rerouted through Canton and Clyde. I-40 is a heavily traveled route through the mountains west of Asheville which links up with I-81 in Tennessee 33 miles northeast of Knoxville.

The dispatcher at the sheriff's office said a number of persons had been injured and were being taken to a Waynesville hospital.

The dispatcher said the highway fog lights were supposed to come on automatically, but for some reason failed.

Pace Of Cairo Talks Pleases Pres. Sadat

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat, indicating the pace of Mideast diplomacy is speeding up dramatically, said today he might meet with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin in Egypt before the end of the year.

Talking to reporters after praying at a village mosque near the pyramids, Sadat said it was not excluded that he might meet with Begin, whom he visited in Jerusalem last month.

Asked whether this would be outside Egypt, Sadat replied: "Why not in Egypt?"

The Egyptian president said he was expecting a message from President Carter later in the day, presumably after Carter and Begin conclude their talks in Washington.

Sadat spoke outside the mosque at Harraniya, less than a mile from the Mena House hotel, where the Cairo peace conference is being held. The meeting went into a three-day recess today as it became clear the real negotiating was being done by Begin in Washington, with long-distance relaying of information to Sadat here.

Meanwhile, Israeli negotiators viewed the treasures of ancient Egypt in a tour of the Cairo Museum during the three-day recess for the Muslim, Jewish and Christian sabbaths.

The chief Israeli delegate, Eliahu Ben-Elissar, paused before the mummy of Pharaoh Meneptha, also known as Amenophis-II, during the 90-minute museum tour.

"We should be grateful to him," said the bearded diplomat, archeology buff and former spy. "He was the beginning of our nationhood."

The Meneptha mummy is shriveled and brown with skin the color of dried tobacco leaves. Some legends say he was the Pharaoh to whom Moses — in the Old Testament's Book of Exodus — addressed his pleas: "Let my people go," an appeal for the release of Jews held captive in Egypt.

But many Egyptologists believe the Pharaoh referred to in Exodus was Ramses II, who lived two centuries after Meneptha.

Ben-Elissar and his two top deputies — Meir Rosenne and Gen. Avraham Tamir — were accompanied by half a dozen aides, security agents and a flock of reporters and photographers.

While the Israelis toured the museum, the chief U.S. delegate, Undersecretary of State Alfred Atherton, his wife and some aides, visited the Sphinx and the pyramids. Hundreds of cheering Egyptians greeted the Israeli negotiators Thursday night during a tour of Cairo.

The three delegates, about 20 aides and an escort of Israeli reporters walked for half an hour through the twisting, narrow streets of the market quarter.

"People poured into the streets to see us and talk with us," said Dan Pattir, spokesman for the Israeli delegation. "Mothers even brought their children."

"For me, as an individual, it was very moving. We were greeted by hundreds of people. They cheered us and welcomed us. Unbelievable."

Escorted by two police cars, the motorcade crisscrossed the city and stopped outside the thousand-year-old

Al Azhar Mosque, Cairo University, and President Anwar Sadat's Abdin Palace. The Israelis did not enter any of the buildings.

"There were no incidents," said Pattir. "We had only a few security officers, but there was no need for them."

"This is part of what we feel to be the beginning of the peace process — human, political and sociological," one Israeli official said.

At one stop, a man clad in Arab robes approached the sightseers and asked if they were Israelis. Told they were, the man replied, "You are welcome."

The excursion was "one of emotion" for Israel's chief delegate, Eliahu Ben-Elissar, "because I am Israeli and this was something special."

Officials said Ben-Elissar planned to pray tonight at Chaar Hachamaim, the only synagogue left in Cairo, and to visit archeological museums over the weekend in Cairo and in Alexandria, 150 miles to the north.

Carter And Begin Talk

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin opened talks today with President Carter on possible steps Israel may take to respond to Egypt's diplomatic overtures.

Qualified U.S. sources said these could include some easing of Israeli control over the West Bank of the Jordan River. The 650,000 Palestinian Arabs living there might be given some form of local self-rule.

Another topic for the talks in the Oval Office was a possible visit by Carter to Israel to demonstrate U.S. backing for the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations in Cairo, which are being shunned by the Arab "confrontation" states.

Begin and Carter, in a brief chat witnessed by reporters before their private meeting, and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the U.S. national security assistant, let it be known that the two leaders probably will have a second meeting here.

Brzezinski said this follow-up session may be held late Saturday. As an observant Jew, Begin is unlikely to engage in official business between sundown today and nightfall Saturday.

A smiling Carter recalled the joint interview Begin had with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Jerusalem last month.

"It was a very exciting thing throughout the world to see you sitting on the same couch with Sadat without any disharmony."

Carter told Begin: "We're proud to have you here."

Sadat told reporters in Cairo today that he might meet Begin in Egypt before the end of the year. He said he also expected to receive a message from Carter later today.

The White House meeting today again elevates the United States into a major role in Middle East negotiations. In fact, Carter said Thursday he would have "no reticence about telling Begin whether what he proposes is acceptable to Egypt."

Earlier, an American source said Begin was likely to ask Carter to visit Jerusalem for a symbolic endorsement of the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations.

Dean First To Openly Bid For Chancellorship

Dr. Douglas R. Jones, dean of the School of Education at East Carolina University for the past 15 years, wants to succeed Dr. Leo Jenkins as the chancellor of the university.

One of some 200 applicants for the post, Jones is the first to openly work for the post to be vacated by Jenkins on June 30, 1978. Jenkins will reach the mandatory retirement age of 65 on May 28.

Jones has recently begun seeking endorsements, and appealed for support at a meeting of educators and government officials in Beaufort County, Tuesday night. He told the group, "In the past it was important to have a politician, but those days are gone."

A Farmville native, Jones received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from East Carolina University in the late 1940's and received his Doctor of Education degree in educational administration from George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn. in 1958.

Jones taught school and was a principal in Danville, Va., from 1949 until 1954 when he became principal of Central Elementary School in Albemarle.

He served as administrative assistant to the president of George Peabody College in 1957 and 1958, before becoming a professor in the Department of Education at ECU. Jones was named Chairman of the Department of Education at ECU in 1960 and became Dean of the School of Education in 1963.

Jones has served as president of the N.C. Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development; the N.C. Association of Student Teaching, and the Eastern North Carolina Sheltered Workshop. He has also served as chairman of the state Committee on Elementary Education, the State Advisory Council on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, and the Governor's Study Commission.

A member of the Board of Governors for the North Carolina Advancement School, Jones is also a member of the State Committee on Study of Language Arts and the State Committee on Study of Student Teaching.

Jones said this morning that he is keeping "a low profile," with letters of endorsement coming "more or less unsolicited from friends in the field and alumni."

He noted he would, "just sit tight and see what happens."

Jones said there is, "no formal organization as such," pushing his bid for the chancellor's post.

A member of the Pitt County Board of Education, Jones initially declined to be nominated, but later changed his mind.

FALSE TEETH CLINIC

I need the phone number and address of the five new dentists located in North Carolina who offer a complete set of false teeth for $100. I heard about it on Channel 9 Alive. L. G.

We called the Kinston Chamber of Commerce and got the address and phone number of The Dental Clinic operated by Dr. George Edwards, Dr. Donald J. Henson, and Dr. James J. Huddock.

We then called the clinic and learned that no appointment is needed, but that anyone wishing to get a partial or full denture should be at the clinic on any weekday by 8 a. m., if possible, at least by 8:30. If only a few extractions are needed, these will be done and the plate can be put in the same afternoon. If many are needed, some will be done that day, with the remainder left for another day. The cost of each tooth pulled is $9, the cost of a "Panorex" x-ray, $5. The cost of an upper and lower plate is $100; a partial plate, $70.

Dr. Edwards, Dr. Henson, and Dr. Huddock, who have been in Kinston respectively 23, 25, and 11 years, also own a similarly operated clinic in Moyock, run by Dr. Robert Smith, and one in Charlotte, run by Dr. Robert Sanders.

The operation is similar to the nationally known clinic in Florence, S. C., but is in no way connected, their receptionist said.

The Dental Clinic is located at 308 E. Vernon Avenue, Kinston. The phone number is 523-0544.

Telephone Wives Before Rehearsal

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband occasionally plays in a band with four other musicians. Our flat is the most practical location to store equipment and rehearse, which leads to my problem:

What makes the wives of these musicians think that because their husbands come to my house, they too are automatically invited?

When the wives come over, I have to clean house for company, assume the role of hostess, and serve refreshments. I'm not able to visit my mom or spend the evenings just doing nothing if I feel like it. I'm forced to entertain and clean up afterward.

I have two preschool children and work part-time, so I'm not a lady of leisure.

How do I tell these wives that the band practice is for the guys? We don't socialize outside of these circumstances, so please tell me how to handle this tactfully.

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Phone the wives before the next rehearsal and tell them you may not be home. Hold the refreshments down to coffee or a cold drink, and let the guys help themselves.

Repeat this procedure before each rehearsal and they'll soon get the message that somebody at your flat is sharp.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old son has been having an affair with his 17-year-old cousin. I have just learned that this has been going on for three years!

Both have been raised in good Christian homes, and my sister (the girl's mother) is beside herself with anger and grief. Of course we have laid down the law, and the children are not to see each other without close supervision.

These aren't problem children. We who know what has happened are simply amazed. My niece is rather immature for her age, but my son has several older girlfriends who think he is a freshman in college.

My question is, "What next?"

IN SHOCK IN INDIANA

DEAR IN: A thorough briefing, I hope, for both "children" who have been playing adult games for three years. Skip the preliminaries about the birds and bees, and get down to brass tacks and babies before your tribe increases.

DEAR ABBY: Do kids ever get too old to kiss their parents? And what do you think of boys kissing their fathers? I don't mean every time they see each other, but when one of them has been away on a long trip.

I'm a 15-year-old boy who still kisses both my parents, and I've been criticized for it.

ME

DEAR ME: Kids never get too old to kiss their parents. And I see nothing wrong with boys (and men) kissing their fathers, their brothers or anyone else they feel like kissing. A kiss is not—as the song goes—"just a kiss." It's a lovely way of saying, "I like (or love) you."

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

To Each Her Own Hairstyle, Advises Haircut Specialist

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Haircuts have really become hairdressing coups. No longer slaves of fashion, like robots turning out assembly line heads, hairdressers are becoming "hair readers." It is no gimmick, explained Roger Thompson, 36, popular New York hairstylist, known for the haircuts he gives.

"The method requires some education. The ultimate hair achievement should suit the individual and must be one that can be washed and shaped within minutes," he said.

"Fashion in hair is finished. The haircut is the base for hairstyles and a person's height and weight have more to do with the technique than anything else. For example, the proportion of the head is the main consideration if a woman is overweight, and if she is tall, short hair would elongate her form too much."

In reading the hair and cutting it the way it grows—the main idea—many interesting effects can be achieved, straight or curly. Properly done, it should be the most flattering style for the individual.

London-born Thompson has conducted seminars over the world in his job as creative fashion technical director for Glemby salons, and he has recently conducted their second annual Headway Seminar in New York, where 50 top stylists cut the hair of a thousand women even as they learned Thompson's no-care approach to hairdressing.

Why are so many English hairdressers attracted to America?

"The stimulus is greater, the market is larger and England is a very small country for so many hairdressers," Thompson said.

The English hairdressers bring with them long years of experience because they get an early start. Thompson was apprenticed at 14 and was at hand when the geometric approach to hair developed there.

"Some hairdressers still use the method. The geometric hairdo represented discipline and control for the hair, but then a lot of hairdressers began thinking of hair only in terms of geometrics and got sidetracked into relatively unattractive things," Thompson says. "They stayed with the idea too long and the hair shapes became too involved. Some did not understand the basics and were putting two or three shapes on the same head."

"It became a technical exercise for a hairdresser rather than a compliment to the person wearing it. They got stuck with some angular shapes and they even began working sunglasses into the idea," he said.

Russell Cappellino, one of Thompson's associates in the Headway idea, volunteered that he was "completely frustrated by it" at the time.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Maybe it's because I write for a living, but letter writing has never been a big deal. I just blurt out what's on my mind and don't think about it.

Obviously that is not the case for many letter writers because a new anthology has just come out for school administrators listing over 175 form letters, or as Ed McMahon would say, "all the letters you're ever going to write . . . a complete volume covering EVERY single situation in a single book."

From first glance, it would seem that the blurb is right: there's a form letter covering early rejection of a job candidate, rejection after consideration, sympathy letter, letter to a retiree, to teachers on snowball regulations, explaining Open House day, suggested tutoring for a child, college board scores, mid-year warning to parents when cafeteria prices must be raised.

Unfortunately, the handbook does not cover EVERY situation.

There are no form letters to cover the following areas:

Policy statements on smoking the lawn.

Intentions of the school if student continues to rip off radios, antennas, and tires of faculty cars.

Options to be exercised by the school in the event a parent refuses to assist on field trips.

Obscene letter to teacher who requested day off following a holiday to go to Aspen with her husband.

Letter requesting aims and goals of student found with mimeograph stains on hands during exam week.

Letter of introduction to a college in Guam that you can buy your son's way into.

Congratulatory letter to a kid who passes a polygraph test — in connection with a school theft.

Final notice of a locker being condemned.

Choir Offering Cantata Twice

The cantata is entitled "His Love — Reaching," by Ronn Huff, Bill and Gloria Gaither. The cantata will feature the original sound track production. The choir is directed by David Manning, minister of music.

Pastor Maurice Phelps invites the public to attend.

"I have always felt sorry for a hairdresser who is trapped behind his chair, putting three curlers here and two curlers there on a head, just like a robot," Thompson said. "Now we show them how much fun and pride they can have doing their own individual thing. With the opportunity to create, they are happier and their clients are happier."

In his New York salon, Thompson meets with a hair client for consultation. He listens to her — perhaps the "only time I will listen," he says — and then he tells her what he thinks should be done. If she likes what she has heard, she can make an appointment, he said.

A Devastating Loss In Wreck

There is no bigger disaster in the sports world than a plane crash which wipes out an entire team.

The effect is devastating for family, personal friends and team supporters. It is shocking to other institutions and locations which know they are vulnerable to such tragedies as teams travel about the nation to meet schedules.

Thus everyone, whether they follow sports or not, can only feel the greatest sympathy for family, friends and supporters of the Evansville University basketball team, their coach, and others who died this week.

All members of the team and several supporters were killed when their chartered plane crashed just after takeoff. They were bound for Nashville, Tenn.

For people of this area, the tragedy in Evansville recalled the crash of a plane in 1970 which killed most of the Marshall University football team.

The Marshall team was returning from Eastern North Carolina and they had played East Carolina in Ficklen Stadium that very afternoon.

There was a great feeling of grief here in relation to the tragedy. The same feelings are stirred again as we realize the Evansville University basketball team is no more. It is a terrible loss for the sports world and for higher education.

Social Security Needed Big Tax Bite

House-Senate conferees have approved a compromise Social Security bill which will mean steeper Social Security taxes.

The bill would raise an additional $227 billion for Social Security benefits over the next ten years and keep the fund from going bankrupt.

No doubt the huge increase is needed to save the Social Security program. We can only hope, however, that the drastic action will cause members of Congress to consider their actions more carefully in the future when they are tempted to grant more liberal benefits. Sooner or later the additional cost has to be met.

Job Training Costs Soar

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Why is it that millions of federal and state dollars must be pumped into governmental job training programs for the unemployed and underemployed, while at the same time thousands of jobs go begging in North Carolina for lack of people willing to take them?

A recent round of job-training program announcements amply demonstrate that taxpayers' dollars continue to be sucked into the gap between jobs and those who ought to be working.

The figures leave an observer wondering why it wouldn't be better, as some experts advocate, to just divide up the cash among the needy; or, as others argue, give the money to industry so that expanded business operations would open up more jobs.

Job-training experts at state and federal levels, however, insist there is more at stake than just providing a job opportunity—when it comes to getting hard-core unemployed to work for a living, the training becomes a lot more expensive.

State Of Mind

"It goes far beyond just opening up job opportunities... there is a state of mind involved," says Howard Lee, secretary of natural resources and community development, the state agency in which the job programs are housed.

"If we just put dollars into the hands of the people, we would never get at the problems of behavior and attitude. Some people just need a job... give them a chance at one and they can take it from there. Others can't handle it." What must be created, says Lee, are changes in attitudes, lifestyles, habits, etc.

Federal and state officials agree that much of the job training money goes to trying to teach people to get up in time to go to work, to clean up and dress properly, to accept supervision and correction, to spend the time on the job, and to meet the stresses in the home community created by friends and neighbors who ridicule a person trying to earn a living.

Additional dollars are spent for babysitters or transportation or medical care or corrective methods such as glasses whenever those aids are essential to training and then landing a job.

NOBLITT

The $7 million skill Training Improvement Program developed by the North Carolina Division of Community Employment and funded by the U. S. Department of Labor illustrates the situation. A number of state agencies, including the prisons, community colleges and technical institutes, department of labor, department of commerce, and organized labor are involved in the various training programs.

Rate Off

Approximately 20 per cent of that $7 million will be raked off at the top in administrative costs and various departmental charges, with the dollars going to either state agencies or private contractors providing the training services. That's $1.4 million which doesn't even get into actual program delivery.

Specific projects shape up this way: at Wilkes Community College, 15 trainees in digital equipment repair will cost $6,600 each; six trainees as tool and dye makers at Arbee Manufacturing Co. at Marshall will cost over $4,000 each; 80 women learning to be carpenters, welders or brickmasons in a program by the N. C. Council on Status of Women will cost more than $6,800 each; 80 trainees in building trades at the AFL-CIO Skill Advancement Center in Raleigh will cost more than $6,800 each; 30 prison inmates learning auto mechanics will cost nearly $8,000 apiece; 15 trainees in electric installation and maintenance at Wilson Technical Institute, more than $6,600 each.

Another project will use the campus of Kittrell College in Vance County as a Job Corps Center with annual operating costs of $2 million to train some 300 young people in job skills.

Brown Bag And Caviar

NEW YORK-LONDON (AP) — I popped over to Harrod's last week for a spot of Christmas shopping (doesn't everyone?) and pioneered a new standard in transatlantic travel for which I have coined the word SOCH.

SOCH rhymes with POSH, but it is much, much further out, as we shall see.

POSH, the in-word for elegance in the heyday of the Grand Tour, meant port out, starboard home, a ready-reference for choosing your stateroom to avoid the beastly afternoon sun.

SOCH means Skytrain out, Concorde home, a new exciting way of criss-crossing the Atlantic by experiencing the two latest extremes of jet age travel: the rock bottom, no frills economy class and the superdeluxe supersonic.

Quite literally, I went to London on Thursday with a pastrami sandwich in a paper bag aboard Freddie Laker's $135 Skytrain and came home Tuesday nipping at the caviar and Dom Perignon '70 on the Concorde, British Airways' $782 wallet buster.

And, would you believe it, the tumbo tortoise almost beat the Mach 2 hare?

The "Brown Bagger," as the Laker already is affectionately known, got to London's Gatwick Airport in 6 hours and 17 minutes, lumbering along at a stately 560 mph with some help from tail winds.

The Concorde which is supposed to "beat the sun to New York" was an hour and a half late leaving Heathrow because of what the captain called "late catering of the aircraft" and "a slight snag in the fine tuning of our electrical system." Even with two hours of supersonic scooting from the Bristol Channel to Hyanis, Mass., at speeds up to 1,400 mph, her total elapsed time to Gate 11 at Kennedy Airport was 5 hours and 13 minutes, considering the Concorde cost five times as much, the hour's difference that day seemed all the more precious. The sun was a noshow at both ends of the ocean.

Other Editors Say: Must Be Alert

Washington Daily News

A prison official recently made a statement which offers a lot of food for thought. It is a statement which has depth and meaning, and it is one which could very well rise up in the future and haunt North Carolina.

He said "we must be very careful that we do not allow prisoners to become institutionalized."

By becoming institutionalized, we understand that to mean that prison officials must be alert to the life behind prison walls lest prisoners become so happy with the life that they want to remain there.

Occasionally we read of some long term prisoner being freed and then the story says he wants to go back to prison because life outside is impossible for him. We occasionally hear stories of fellows released from prison who find life outside so unbearable that they commit new crimes so that they can be sent back to prison.

In our modern world we are living in a time when little by little and day by day we are becoming ever softer on this matter of punishment. We look at both punishment and rehabilitation as sole prison responsibilities. But there is another responsibility. We put people behind prison walls so that society can be protected from them. If we allow them to become free and prey again on society, then somehow responsibility is not being fully met.

The highly intelligent people such as professors, social workers, ministers, and some in professional fields keep talking about prison reform, prison abuses, prison discipline, or the cruelty of it, and the talk leads to ever greater laxity in performance, it seems to us.

We must not make plush motels of prisons, but neither must we ever allow them to be or become dirty and indecent hovels not fit for human beings to be confined.

We must not seek to coddle prisoners, but we must try to convince them that crime does not pay. And we can have and maintain a fine prison system in North Carolina if only we do not allow the extremists on either end to get control. We can think of nothing worse than for extremism to be the order of the day in the North Carolina prison system.

We do not want to see any prisoners institutionalized. And we do not wish to see any dangerous prisoners released long before their time to prey again upon innocent people.

More common sense and less book learning might be a good starting point.

Drugs Report Factual

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's military bases are being used as major ports of entry for the nation's heroin market, Attorney General Rulus Edmisten says.

Edmisten says former servicemen were using military contacts they made while in uniform to smuggle drugs from southeast Asia to the United States aboard military aircraft.

The attorney general was confirming a report on the NBC Nightly News Thursday which said North Carolina was the base of a new breed of organized criminal. The report was part of a five-part series on organized crime.

"It was very interesting and frighteningly factual," Edmisten said. "They pretty well had it down right."

Edmisten said any state with military installations would have drug problems, but North Carolina had special difficulties.

"Our military bases are especially vulnerable because a lot of those people deal with southeast Asia, with planes going in and out of there," Edmisten said.

Most of the heroin that arrives in North Carolina is destined for sale elsewhere, mainly in New York City, he added.

"The military has cooperated with me very well in trying to fight this," Edmisten said, "but there are just 1,000 ways to bring in heroin."

Edmisten said that drugs were one reason for the increase in violent crime posted in North Carolina in the first nine months of this year.

"The increase in violent crime disturbs me very much," he said. "A lot of this is alcohol and drug-related. A good many people who commit violent crimes do it pursuant to drugs and alcohol."

Law enforcement in the state has improved, Edmisten insisted, but the court system has not kept pace, mainly because there aren't enough judges.

"The state has not committed itself yet to having a first-class criminal justice system," Edmisten said.

Tax Issue Could Fade Out

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gathering issues for the campaign season, Republicans are concentrating on an old favorite: taxes. But by the time the voting begins, President Carter and the Democratic Congress may be boasting on that issue themselves.

"The Democrats are handing us Republicans the best issue we've had in a long time, and it's one on which a majority of working Americans will agree with us," says Ronald Reagan.

"The issue is taxes."

In fact, it hasn't been a long time at all. Just one campaign ago, Gerald R. Ford and his GOP allies were arguing that Carter's campaign promises would force sharp increases in federal taxes. That didn't turn out to be very persuasive on election day.

Now the Republican theme is that higher taxes are coming to pass, and that the Democrats are to blame. They point to new Social Security and energy taxes — although the size and shape of the latter will not be clear until next year.

But a Republican administration would have had to act — or try to — on energy and Social Security, too. And it would have cost money.

"Mr. Carter and the Democratic majority in Congress are preparing the biggest pain in the pocketbook that middleclass America has ever had," said Reagan.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes contends that every taxpaying family will face an additional $1,000-a-year in taxes for the next four years, although there may be more politics than arithmetic in that estimate as the numbers really aren't set yet.

"President Carter's apparent inability to deal with important matters of tax policy except in terms of blatant partisan politics is disgraceful," adds Republican National Chairman Bill Brock. Brock, incidentally, began his tenure by saying that there is some consolation in past defeat since the party out of power doesn't have to take the blame.

It may be, as Reagan said, that the Democrats are handing over an issue. But that doesn't count for much in the waning days of an off-election year. When it does count, during the congressional campaign year ahead, the Democrats almost surely will take it away.

All it will take is an election year tax cut, which the administration already is planning. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill forecasts a $25 billion cut, two-thirds of it for individuals. "We are anticipating that come April or May of next year that in our economic stabilization package, we will have a substantial tax cut," he said.

Carter also said there will be substantial reductions, along with a taste of tax reform. The administration is likely to propose cuts of about $15 billion for individual taxpayers and $5 billion for business.

The idea, in 1978 as in the 1977 tax bill, is to stimulate economic activity and curb unemployment. But the political fallout is obvious. And the bill will carry the Democratic trademark.

So, of necessity, does the Social Security bill, which will impose tax increases of $227 billion over the next decade — beginning in 1979, after the congressional elections.

Social Security taxes will be going up next year, but that's automatic, under existing law, not because of the new tax measure. The big bite comes beginning in 1979.

The Republicans say they've been for permanent income tax cuts all along, but point out that Carter threatened their plan with a veto if it passed, which was impossible anyhow for lack of votes. Republican sponsored tax cuts have been voted down five times in the House and once in the Senate.

"Now we are hearing noises that a tax cut may be in order, not to improve the economy, but merely to compensate for President Carter's proposed increases in other taxes," Rhodes says. "In other words, the government will take with one hand and give with the other..."

Nuke Bomb Witnesses Sought

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is trying to find thousands of soldiers and others present at a 1957 nuclear test in Nevada to determine whether they have contracted leukemia as a result of radiation exposure.

The National Research Council, a quasi-governmental agency that is part of the National Academy of Sciences, has been assigned the job of conducting a study "to identify, locate and obtain necessary follow-up medical data" on thousands of soldiers and others who were present at the test, named "Smokey," on Aug. 31, 1957.

The researchers will work from a list of 3,413 persons the Army believes were present at the test. The names were compiled from various rosters and from registers of badges issued at the time of the test.

Defense officials said they expect researchers to concentrate on available medical records of known participants and that those participants may not necessarily be physically examined.

The study is expected to take about two years, officials said.

Although the study will focus on the Smokey test's participants, officials indicated the project could be expanded to consider the effects on those who attended some other above-ground atomic tests, including one on Nov. 1, 1951, called "Dog Event," and a 1953 test at Desert Rock.

The possible magnitude of the problem, if the government should undertake a widespread study of the possible effects of past nuclear tests, is underscored by an estimate that about 200,000 persons participated in such tests between 1946 and 1963, when they ended.

Attention was drawn to the situation last spring when some former servicemen who said they were present at the 1957 Smokey test at Yucca Flats, Nev., reported having contracted leukemia and blamed that test for their illness.

So far, the Army says it knows of six men who have been positively identified as having leukemia after participating in the Smokey test. But the Army says "there has been no confirmed link" between the incidence of leukemia in test participants and their presence at the test site at the time of the blast.

However, the national Center for Disease Control says two cases of leukemia have been "definitely" linked to the Smokey test.

Dr. Glyn G. Caldwell, deputy chief of the CDC cancer branch, said four other cases "probably" are associated with the test.

The Defense Department has made no effort to contact those on the list of 3,413 persons who witnessed the Smokey test. The Army reported about 40 persons had contacted it after reports of the possible leukemia link with the test appeared.

After months of seeming indecision, a committee was formally established to consider ways of dealing with the problem. That committee represents several agencies, including the Defense Department, the Public Health Service, the Veterans Administration and the Department of Energy, which assumed the responsibilities of the old Atomic Energy Commission.

That committee decided Dec. 1 to commission a study by the National Research Council

Strength For Today

SPIRITUAL COMPLACENCY

A recent poll designed to find out the religious attitudes of modern Americans had some interesting results. The poll revealed that a large majority of Americans believe in the existence of God; but most of this same majority disbelieves in hell and is convinced that it is going to heaven.

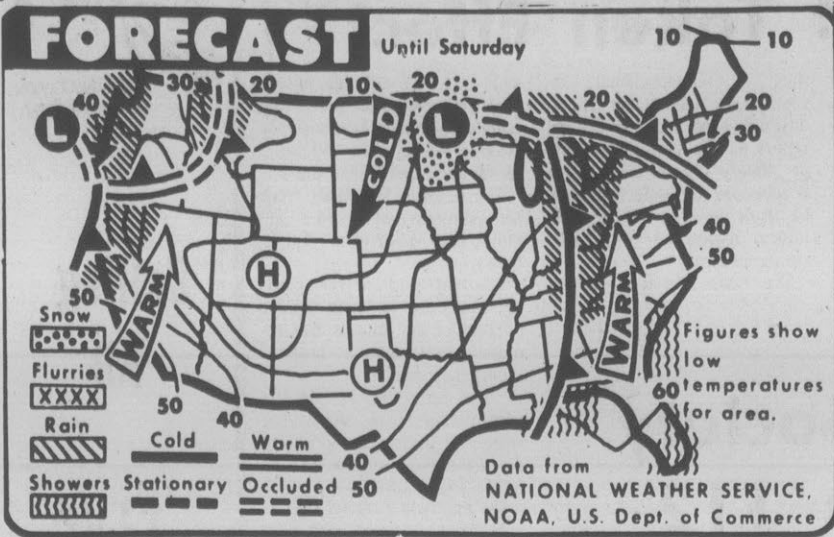

The over-all picture is one of spiritual complacency. There is a remarkable lack of feelings of guilt because of the vast amount of evil in the world. Doubtless this condition arises from a number of causes. First of all, there has been little religious education in the home during the last 50 to 75 years. Also, preachers have often toned down the Biblical messages of final judgment and have implied that everyone who is good natured and kindly will pass the pearly gates.

Excessive guilt is of course psychologically damaging, but spiritual life cannot exist until the individual is aware of how far he has erred from God's commands.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for the northern half of the Pacific coast and for the northern Rockies. Rain is also expected from the Great Lakes to northern Georgia. Showers are due for the central Gulf and the south Atlantic coast. Warm weather is forecast for the East but cooler weather for most of the country west of the Mississippi. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Patches of dense fog developed over much of North Carolina early today but it burned away with the rising sun, leaving the prospect of another fine day with mild temperatures. Highs were expected to be in the 60s, as they were Thursday.

The showers are expected to precede a weak cold front that will enter the mountains Saturday and move slowly eastward toward the coast. Saturday's temperatures should range from the 60s into the low 70s near the coast.

Weak high pressure was moving offshore and this will allow winds to become more southeasterly and southerly, bringing more moisture tonight and Saturday.

Some scattered showers will develop in the western part of the state tonight and gradually become more widespread Saturday.

$150,000 Is Dinner Goal

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Democratic leaders are hoping to raise as much as $150,000 when Vice President Walter Mondale visits Greensboro next month for a $1,000-per-couple fund-raising dinner.

Doug Copeland, an aide to U.S. Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., said it was also hoped that Mondale could improve the Carter administration's relations with North Carolina's business community.

Mondale, who was last in the state in April for the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Raleigh, is scheduled to be in Greensboro Jan. 4. No site has been selected for the dinner yet.

The $1,000 contribution also entitles the purchaser to admission to a Salute to the President banquet in Atlanta Jan. 20, where Carter will appear.

State party executive director Steve Glass said he was hoping the president could be persuaded to attend next year's Jefferson-Jackson Day affair, scheduled for April 1.

Glass said there were also plans to try to arrange for a Carter appearance on behalf of whomever is picked to oppose U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in next fall's campaign.

Mondale's Jan. 4 appearance has only been in the works about two weeks, but party leaders are hoping for between 200 and 300 people.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Variable cloudiness and quite mild Saturday through Monday with showers in the west. Highs in the 60s with some low 70s in the southeast. Overnight lows in the 40s.

Busnappers Face Life Sentence

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Three admitted kidnappers may spend the rest of their lives in prison because a judge ruled that three schoolgirl captives suffered bodily harm from fainting spells, nosebleeds and stomach upsets.

The defendants — James Schoenfeld, 26, Richard Schoenfeld, 23, and Fred Woods, 26 — were convicted Thursday of kidnapping with bodily harm under a tough law that calls for a life sentence with no parole.

Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan decided the case without a jury, ruling that three of the 26 young captives had suffered bodily harm directly linked to the July 1976 ordeal.

Describing the kidnappings as an "ordeal of terror," Deegan said it was the testimony of some of the children that convinced him bodily injury had occurred.

The defendants admitted kidnapping the youngsters and school bus driver Ed Ray at gunpoint, but they denied five more serious charges of kidnapping with bodily harm.

They were acquitted on two counts of bodily harm involving Ray and a child, Cynthia Van Hoff.

The kidnappers have not been sentenced. Deegan scheduled a Jan. 16 hearing to discuss the request of defense attorneys that the sentence be modified by their showing mitigating circumstances.

Ted Merrill, representing the younger Schoenfeld, asked for the hearing. Outside of court, he said he was not certain what approach he would take but one possibility was trying to have the statute declared unconstitutional.

"The defendants are not bad kids. There are some things we want to bring to the attention of the judge," said Lester Gendron, attorney for James Schoenfeld.

Gendron, who described his client as surprised, said, "This was an erroneous decision and it certainly will be appealed."

In his swift ruling, which came immediately after closing arguments, the judge relied heavily on the testimony of the victims.

He discarded the prosecution's key contention — that the victims suffered heat exhaustion — by saying he was not convinced the evidence supported that conclusion.

"I am satisfied, however, from the testimony of some of the children that they fainted and had stomach distress," he said.

Jodi Heffington, 12, Jennifer Brown, 10, and Rebecca Reynolds, 10, had testified that the stifling heat in the van which transported them 100 miles from their central California hometown to a rock quarry had caused fainting, nosebleeds and stomach upsets.

They experienced similar problems, they said, after their captors placed them in a buried moving van, where they said they gasped for air and sweated profusely during the 16½ hours before they dug their way out.

The victims and their parents expressed relief at the verdict. If the defendants had been acquitted, they would have been eligible for parole in seven years.

Jodi Heffington, 12, said she was "glad." Rebecca Reynolds, 8, said, "They got what they deserved."

two aisles, and the Concord all deluxe, whatever that means, with four seats across divided by a middle aisle. Concord's seats, which barely admit standing headroom on the window side, are narrower than Skytrain's, but according to the tape measure I brought along allow 13.5 inches between your knees and the seat ahead, compared with only 12 on the Brown Bagger.

Neither plane comes stocked with newspapers and magazines for the passengers, Laker for no-frills economic reasons and Concord for space limitations, although they are handed out free in the lounge as one boards the supersonic bird. Both play atrocious taped music on takeoff and landing and throughout the journey weary the weary traveler with wearisome announcements from the flight deck. Passing the speed of sound is certainly worthy of mention but not passing the Sable Islands.

The Skytrain can carry 345 passengers and requires 67 percent occupancy, or 231, to show a profit. On the day I flew, there were 258 passengers and 2 infants, for an 80 percent occupancy. There were more women than men, more backpacks than suitcases, more denims than doubleknits, an assortment of howling babies, hand-holding lovers, elderly emigrants going home for the first time, bearded and beaded poet-types and a Russian who sang sad songs all night.

The Concord, which alas will never recoup its $2.3 billion French and British investment, holds 100. That day we numbered 93, which included nine women, no babies, no backpacks, more pocket calculators than poetry books, one black diplomat, a half dozen Arabic speakers, one set of denims and a drawl of Texas oilmen coming back from Libya. No pastrami sandwiches or hand-holding lovers.

In a future installment we shall detail the differences between the worlds aloft of Freddie Laker and Ernst Mach, which is more than just the choice of watching the in-flight movie or the digital machometer while waiting for the 100 on high.

Report Safety Agency Had But Token Effect

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public spent $157 million over four years on a government safety agency that had only a token effect on reducing the number of dangerous products, a congressional study says. The General Accounting Office, a congressional investigating agency, on Thursday delivered a highly critical report on the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which is supposed to "protect the public from unreasonable risks of injury associated with consumer products." The GAO said the commission took an average of 834 days to develop its first three standards under the Consumer Product Safety Act, compared to 330 days specified in the act. These three standards were for swimming pool slides, architectural glass and matchbooks.

The GAO said the three products account for less than 1 percent of the injuries that require treatment in hospital emergency rooms.

"Also, up to Dec. 30, 1976, the commission was developing standards to protect consumers from the unreasonable risk of injury associated with three other products — television receivers, aluminum wire and power lawnmowers. None of these standards had been issued as of June 30, 1977, although they had been under development for an average of 845 days."

The commission, in a response printed with the GAO report, said the criticism closely parallels several internal commission recommendations. The commission said the GAO report "largely disregards the operational revisions which have been initiated or completed by management."

The GAO said the commission has not devised a process for writing safety standards that allows outside groups to offer standards. "The commission's hands-off policy resulted in inadequate guidance and direction to offerers," GAO said.

Both industry and consumer groups have proposed safety standards for various products. The commission in its response to the GAO noted that those suggesting guidelines have asked for an extension of time, delaying the effective date for the standard, in all cases except one.

The commission, which began operations in May 1973, had spent $157 million as of Sept. 30, 1977, the GAO said.

Black Ink In Red Tape Claims He's Secret Son

Black Ink In Red Tape

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — Mayor William P. Quigley got tangled in extra governmental red tape simply because he signed a federal request in black ink.

The trouble was the black ink signature looked like the print on photocopies Quigley had signed. Housing and Urban Development officials returned the papers for low-cost housing money and asked Quigley to have new copies made.

HUD officials wanted the new copies signed in blue ink so they could be sure Quigley had signed each one individually.

Quigley complied but also wrote James Price, regional HUD director, that the demand for blue ink "incensed me and... approaches the height of idioocy."

Quigley's letter concluded: "I trust you will not return this letter which is signed by me in red ink, not to indicate the financial status of the city of Merced, but merely as an expression of the holiday season."

Learn Little More In Finding Money Cache

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — Authorities learned little Thursday about a cache of money found here this week except that much of what they thought they knew may not be true.

It was reported Wednesday that nearly $500,000 worth of gold certificates had been found by painters renovating an old house that had been bought by the Scotland Overseas Veterans Inc.

But Laurinburg police Lt. H.C. Gardner said things grew more complicated Thursday. "We have not yet established who it belongs to or even that it came out of the house," Gardner said.

The gold certificates, it turned out however, were actually much less valuable silver certificates, probably worth no more than $40,000. The currency was printed in the 1920s and was blackened with age.

Mrs. Doris Wilcox said she had found the money while she and her sons were painting inside the house.

But George W. Phillips, chairman of the organization that bought the house, said Mrs. Phillips had not been hired to paint at the house.

She had been driving Lowell E. Frisbee to work. Frisbee had been hired to do the painting, Phillips said, but had apparently abandoned the job some time last week.

Phillips said he found paint left behind, a sofa ripped apart and loose floor boards inside a bedroom closet when he inspected the house on Tuesday to see how the painter was doing.

Police learned about the money when Mrs. Wilcox deposited $9,000 in a bank account earlier this week. Phillips said the State Bureau of Investigation had seized the money and was examining it.

Trailer Club Held A Christmas Party

The Eastern North Carolina Unit of the Wally Byam Caravan Club International, the Airstream travel trailer club, held its annual Christmas party and installation of officers Saturday.

Sixty members and guests from over the state were welcomed to Greenville by Mayor and Mrs. Percy Cox. A program of Christmas music was presented by Mrs. Edward Smith and Mrs. Boyd Lee. Games and stuffed toys provided by the members were presented to Maj. Arnold Williford of the Salvation Army.

Two families were inducted as new members — Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hines of Goldsboro and Mr. and Mrs. Chic Johnson of Durham.

New officers installed by Board Chairman Robert

Thomas, who moved to a rest home in March. Acquaintances said she kept a large sum of money hidden in the house, and the cash Mrs. Wilcox said she found might belong to her.

Phillips said his organization has hired an attorney to represent them in any dispute that arises over ownership of the cash.

Johnson of Raleigh are Sidney Williams of Knightdale, president; Willard Johnson of Burlington, first vice president; Gerald Hammock of Durham, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Hollis of Wilmington, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Reinitz of Oxford, corresponding secretary; and Bill Rogers of Wake Forest, treasurer.

Mrs. Wilson (Nina) Guice of Greenville is outgoing president.

Following the meeting the group was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Bumgarner. Sunday morning they were provided a pancake breakfast at Contentnea Campground, where most were staying in their trailers.

Flagman Struck By Truck, Dies

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — A highway flagman was killed Thursday when he was struck by a truck while directing traffic near here, authorities said.

The state Highway Patrol said James Henry Exum, 39, of Rt. 3, Roanoke Rapids, was hit by a pickup truck while directing traffic at a highway construction site on N.C. 48 about eight miles south of here.

Exum was knocked about 60 feet by the impact, authorities said. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Halifax Memorial Hospital here.

Arrest Man On Drug Charges

A 27-year-old Greenville man was arrested Thursday night by Pitt County deputies and Greenville police on a drug possession charge.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Alfonso Calvin Mayo of Ford Street was charged by officers with possession of marijuana.

The sheriff reported that a quantity of marijuana was confiscated during the arrest.

A hearing on the drug charge has been scheduled for Jan. 3 in District Court here.

Ruth Carter Stapleton Shows No Sign Of 'Nerves'

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — If Ruth Carter Stapleton was nervous about having her brother the president as a house guest and marrying off her son in the same weekend, she wasn't showing it Thursday night.

The Christmas tree lights were glowing in the Stapleton home when Mrs. Stapleton answered the doorbell and found ("Oh, no, not another") reporter, come to ask about the wedding.

On Saturday, Scott Stapleton and Caro Lee Gainey of Fayetteville will be married, with the groom's uncle, President Carter, scheduled to attend. Carter was to fly to Fayetteville this afternoon and stay overnight at the Stapleton home.

Mrs. Stapleton, wearing a mink coat over black slacks and a sweater, ushered the invited reporter into the living room of the ranch-style Stapleton house near downtown Fayetteville.

The coat, she explained, might be a Christmas gift from her husband.

"I'm just trying it on," she said. "The lady from the store was nice enough to bring some over so I didn't have to go out."

But the interview would have to be short, she said, because she had scheduled a shopping trip to take care of her own gift list.

As for the wedding and the president's visit... "I don't think there are any headaches for me in this. I'm accustomed to the crowds and the security."

The Secret Service had moved a small trailer into the Stapleton back yard and phones in the house had been disconnected to wire for presidential calls.

Down the street, what looked like a small fire proved to be blinking orange lights atop a pile of barricades that will block off the Stapletons' street today and Saturday.

Mrs. Stapleton knew the attention of her neighbors was focused more on the president's visit than on her son's wedding, but that was nothing to get upset about.

"I left that decision (whether to invite the president) completely up to them (the bride and groom). They weighed everything. Caro Lee is the one that decided they should invite him."

"My daughter Lyn got married about three years ago and she invited Jimmy when he was governor and of course that drew a lot of attention at the wedding."

"Another daughter, Patti, got married in May. She asked him not to come. She wanted it to be a little more quiet."

Mrs. Stapleton said she is in charge of the rehearsal dinner Friday night, but all is in control.

The neighbors have been cooperative, she said. "I've invited them over and tried to let them see what's going on."

Carloads of sightseers cruised up and down the usually quiet street in front of the Stapletons' Thursday night.

In the yard across the street, an American flag hung on a flagpole.

"That's not for the president, although I think the president should be honored," said 78-year-old Clive Harris. "I keep it out there all the time." Harris said the Stapletons are good neighbors. "Scotty is a fine boy and I hope my grandchildren grow up as nice," Harris said.

But he was not happy at all with the political and publicity aspects of Carter's visit. "I think it's a shame that a wedding should become a political football. To me, a wedding is sort of a sacred thing. The ceremony is going to stay with them all their lives and I think that's more important than the fact that the president will be there."

Manila Hospital Fire Fatal To 32 Inmates

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Fire broke out early today in a mental hospital building holding more than three times the number of patients it was designed for, and 32 inmates were killed, officials said.

Some of the victims were so indifferent they lay apathetically in the burning ward while others fought off rescuers trying to get them out, Dr. Jaime Castaneda, director of the National Mental Hospital, said.

He reported that six of the patients were treated for minor smoke inhalation. He said some of the patients may have escaped, but "police will get them back," and they were not considered dangerous.

Thick smoke and darkness also hampered the rescuers, who included members of the hospital staff, firefighters and civilian volunteers.

The fire occurred in Pavilion 2 of the sprawling hospital complex in a Manila suburb. It was a single-story structure with concrete walls, galvanized iron roof and wooden ceiling, and the fire was believed to have been caused by an electrical short in the ceiling.

The hospital director said the building was designed for 400 patients but held more than 1,200 of the hospital's 6,800 residents.

He explained that the building was so crowded because many of the patients are from poor families who refuse to take them back after the hospital says it can give them no more help.

"These people are more or less rejected by their families, suffering from a stigma, or their homes are distant from Manila," the doctor said.

Castaneda said the victims could have been evacuated but they resisted "because of their illness. There were some patients who were so apathetic and indifferent that they didn't want to move out, and some were hostile and combative."

Wilson — C.J. Warren of the Winterville Police Department has completed a course, Drug Investigations, at the Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Academy in Wilson.

The course which was conducted by members of the staff of the North Carolina Justice Academy and guest lecturers is designed as a practical course for sworn criminal justice personnel who conduct drug investigations.

Appointed At Call Meeting

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Mayor Walter A. Dail made several appointments at a special call meeting of the Town Board last week.

Alderman E. C. Hines was appointed to head up the town's electric, fire, and cemetery divisions. Dail appointed Alderman Danny Martin to be in charge of sanitation, sewage, and the Rescue Department, and Alderman Bobby Crawford will be responsible for Winterville's Police Department and water.

In other business, the Town Board condemned two residents located in town, one at 333 W. Main Street and one located at 611 N. Mill Street.

The Board said that these residents were "irreparable and unfit for human habitation." The condemnation was made due to a request made by the Department of Social Services.

Mayor Dail also reported that he is looking into prices of a maintenance building to be located on the lot where the new water tank is at present.

According to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, Winterville residents may begin picking up their refund checks on the fossil fuel surcharge. Nobles said that checks will not be mailed out and that, hopefully, allowing residents to pick up the checks in person will speed up distribution.

Decorated Toes Talk Of Town

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Albuquerque's toes of the town can be seen hobnobbing at a local elementary school.

Brightly painted faces smiled from tiny toenails as students propped up their feet for a big-toe decorating contest.

Participants in Wednesday's event paid a 25-cent entry fee for toes their parents turned into little people, Santas, butterflies, snowmen, cowboys, Indians and dinosaurs.

The money goes to the Dimes for Dinosaurs project to establish dinosaur exhibits at the city zoo.

One of the students had to raise his big toe to show off his father's handiwork on the bottom. It read, "I get tired of being stepped on."

Zoo director John Moore showed up with a fluorescent green big toe with a plastic dinosaur attached to it. He didn't win.

Announces FHA Grant And Loan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Walter Jones announced approval of two actions by the Farmers Home Administration.

Jones said that FHA approved a grant of $75,000 to the Eastern Pines Water Corp. here. The money, he said, is an additional grant which was necessary to cover the cost of another well in the domestic water system.

The representative also reported that a loan of $24,500 was approved by the agency to the Red Oak Community Rural Fire Department Inc. The loan is to be repaid in 20 years at five per cent interest and is to be used for the purchase of a 1976 fire fighting truck.

Arrest Two For Thefts

Two Rt. 1, Stokes men have been arrested by the Pitt Sheriff's Department on charges stemming from the larceny of copper and lead materials from the old Pitt County Hospital facility.

Deputies arrested Larry Earl Roberson, 23, and Kenneth Andy Roberson, 18, both of Rt. 1, Box 284-B, Stokes, and charged them with the larceny over a seven day period of $450 worth of copper and lead from the vacated facility.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that the two men had been employed by the county's building and grounds department and were involved in renovation work at the former hospital site when the alleged thefts occurred.

The lead, he noted, was reported stolen from the old x-ray room of the facility. Sheriff Tyson said that the lead and copper was sold on four different occasions at Southmet Recycling Corp. here.

Bond for each man was set at $500 with a trial date scheduled for Dec. 28 in District Court here.

City School Bd. Meets Monday

The regular meeting for the month of December of the Greenville City Board of Education will take place on Monday, Dec. 19 at 8:30 p.m. in the Central Office, 431 West Fifth Street.

The primary agenda item will be a discussion of the testing program carried out in the schools in school year 1976-77, and plans for setting up a forthcoming statewide testing program.

Also on the agenda are reports on the potential of moving into the Middle School, and from the church site on Greene St. into Agnes Fullilove during the holiday period.

Geoffrey Chaucer, English poet, was born on Oct. 25, 1340, and died on the same day 60 years later.

Additional Charge In Forgery Arrests

The arrest by the Pitt Sheriff's Department of two men on forgery related charges led to an additional charge of breaking, entering and larceny levied against one of the men, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said that James Thomas Moore, 21, of Rt. 1, Box 287, Greenville was arrested and charged with forging the name of Gilbert Earl Tyson on a $26 check. The check was cashed at Freddy McLawhorn's Store on NC 43 west, it was noted.

In addition, John Allen Vines, 17, of Rt. 1, Box 111, Greenville, was charged by deputies with aiding and abetting in the forgery, the sheriff reported.

Moore, Sheriff Tyson pointed out, was also charged with the Dec. 13 break-in at Tyson's residence on Rt. 1, Winterville that resulted in the theft of a color television set, a black and white television, stereo, a coat, pair of gloves and $20 in cash, as well as several personal checks.

Officers recovered the stereo and one of the television sets, the sheriff said.

Bond for Moore was set at $500 on the break-in count and $1,000 on the forgery charge, while Vines was jailed under a $1,000 bond on the aiding and abetting count.

Film Studies Poverty Among The Jews

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A biased, old stereotype portrays

Jews as rich money-holders. Actually, their ranks are disproportionately few in running banks. And an estimated 750-

000 of them eke out an existence below the poverty line.

This commonly disregarded but extensive segment of the poor is getting some added attention lately, lighting up long ignored misery, especially in the larger cities.

It's the subject of a special television documentary on the ABC network this Sunday (1 to 1:30 p.m. EST), written, produced and directed by Howard Enders, an independent producer who spent months probing into economically blighted Jewish lives in New York City.

"No, I don't blame God," says an impoverished old man in the film. A once prosperous Berliner, he barely escaped Nazism with his life and now exists on $121 monthly Social Security. "God is good to everybody. But we — we are no good."

An old Jewish woman, her hands shaking, murmurs, "It hurts to be poor. It kills. It always did."

The film report says the myth persists of "widespread Jewish affluence," ignoring about three-quarters of a million desperately poor Jews, who have often been bypassed in government anti-poverty efforts.

"Other minority groups have been more vocal in their demands," the documentary notes. "Blacks, Hispanics and other minorities have been classified as disadvantaged and so are eligible for government small-business loans. Yiddish-speaking Jews are not."

It is particularly among them and older Jews that acute poverty is common, the report and other studies find, as well as among Jews left behind in mixed, run-down areas, once stable Jewish communities, abandoned by better-off residents.

Betram H. Gold, executive vice president of the American Jewish Committee, puts estimates of the number of U.S. Jews living on incomes of $4,000 a year or less for a family of four at 500,000 to 1 million.

He says government programs generally have been targeted to other ethnic groups and "do not even attempt to meet the very different economic and cultural needs of Jews." He says part of their neglect stems from "traditional Jewish reluctance to apply for public relief," although eligible Jews who do apply get welfare benefits.

However, the film says that of $40 million in federal dollars spent annually on New York City poverty programs, the Jewish poor get less than 1 percent, although they make up about a fourth of the city's population. A fifth of them — 350,000 — are reported below the poverty line.

Gold notes that until recently, American Jewish agencies themselves "took for granted that poverty did not touch many Jews," and did little about it. But in the wake of a national conference on the subject five years ago, they have stepped up programs to deal with the problem.

"A host of new programs around the country are being developed," he says.

Yule Luncheon For Moyewood Seniors

The Moyewood Senior Citizens Club held its Christmas-Birthday luncheon Tuesday. Special guests were members of the Kearney Park Senior Citizens Club, the Rev. and Mrs. Paul A. Introduced by Mrs. Helen Taft, president, Rev. Thomas brought the Christmas message. Rev. Abernathy gave encouraging remarks and commended the City of Greenville for providing a place for senior citizens to meet.

One of a million carolers. And on Christmas Eve she will bring comfort, reassurance, joy to many.
Mrs. J. is blind. She has never seen the carolers... but eagerly she listens for their arrival.
Mr. H. is an invalid. His nurse invites the boys and girls in and serves them cocoa. Mr. H. loves their happy smiles as well as their joyous voices.
Little Paul R. broke his leg last Saturday. That's why he's not caroling this year. But they'll be around to sing "Silent Night" under his window. That one is Paul's favorite.
When you hear the carolers on Christmas Eve, pause and consider the Love that inspires their singing. That Love was born in a Bethlehem stable one holy night centuries ago.

ECU Student Supplies Staff Holds Banquet

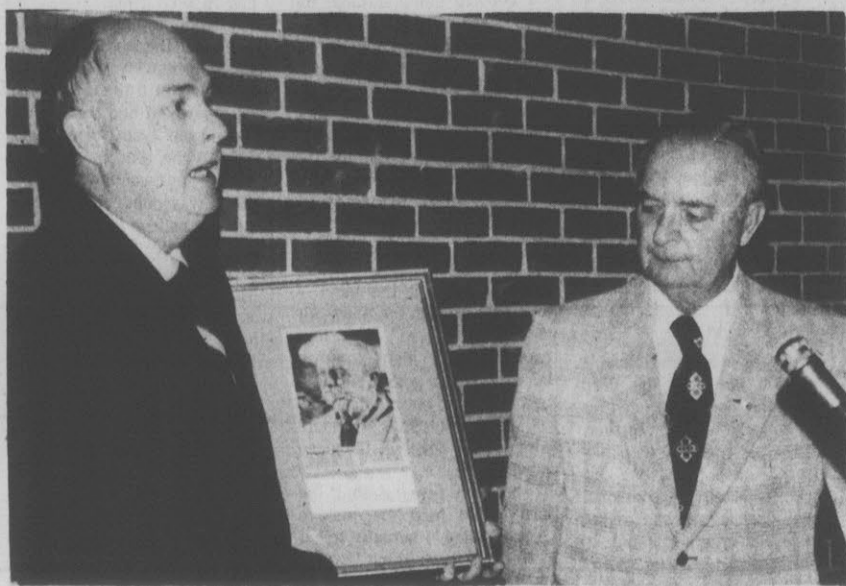

PLATE PRESENTED — The original plate of a Tommy Forrest photo is presented to Chancellor Jenkins by

ECU News Bureau
The original plate, framed and inscribed, of an inspirational photograph featuring Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina University was presented to Jenkins in ceremonies at the 17th annual ECU Student Supply Stores Christmas banquet.

Curtis May, assistant manager, introduced Jenkins with an impromptu "farewell speech" in which he "roasted" the chancellor. Dr. Jenkins was accompanied by his wife, Lillian.

Walter L. Gorham, a sophomore, was presented a plaque and a $150 scholarship as the outstanding student employee of the Student Supply Stores during the past year.

The double exposure photograph was made and produced by Tommy Forrest, staff photographer for The Daily Reflector and was published on the front page of the newspaper earlier this fall. The picture was taken at the final ECU home football game of the 1977 season, the last home game Jenkins will attend before his retirement next year.

WALTER L. GORHAM

The picture was obtained and inscribed for Jenkins by Joseph Clark, Student Supply Stores Manager, who noted that Dr. Jenkins had attended each of the annual Christmas banquets, beginning with relatively small, unpretentious affairs.

He was selected recipient of the annual award by a committee of the Student Supply Stores staff.

Overhauled By Piedmont

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The engines of the DC-3 that crashed at Evansville, Ind., were overhauled a few months ago by Piedmont Aviation Inc. mechanics.

He added the engines had been flown several hundred hours between the overhaul and the crash, which killed 29 persons, including 14 members of the Evansville University basketball team.

Piedmont vice president C.W. Gough said the engines would be shipped to Winston-Salem to be dismantled and inspected, piece by piece, under the supervision of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Gough said Federal Aviation Administration regulations require that commercial aircraft engines be reconditioned to manufacturers' specifications every 1,000 to 1,500 hours of flying time.

"We don't know anything at this point, just what we read in the papers," Gough said. "The strong inference is that something did go wrong with the engines."

"We have an engine overhaul shop where we overhaul engines for people all over the country," Gough said. "We've overhauled DC-3s since Piedmont used them years ago."

Today's Cryptquip clue: I equals M

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

N.C. 'Serious' Crime Count Sees A Decline

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — There were 4.75 percent fewer "serious crimes" in North Carolina's five largest cities in the first nine months of 1977 than in the same period last year, a state Justice Department report says.

percent. These were offset to some extent by declines of 1.04 percent in murders and 14.17 percent in robberies, the report said.

But the Uniform Crime Report Trend Release contained some disturbing news, despite the fact that so-called serious crimes had declined.

Property crimes decreased overall by 5.94 percent in the five cities — Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh and Winston-Salem.

Forcible rape, for example, increased 27.02 percent and aggravated assaults were up 15.20 notes is that our sales during the calendar year have reached 218 million pounds, compared to 18 million pounds in 1976," Bond said.

The good news according to Fred G. Bond, managing director of the federally-sponsored price support program, is that the program sold more leaf than it took in.

The state's tobacco income dropped from $978 million last year to $839 million in 1977.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp took in 194 million pounds of the 717 million produced and sold in the state this year. And Stabilization sold 218 million pounds from previous years.

"You can't say it's a good year, but you can say it's a good year for the program," said North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham.

The cooperative's inventory dropped from 608 million pounds last year to 584 million at the end of 1977 marketing, not as large a drop as officials had hoped for but still apparently encouraging.

Bond said lugs and primings made up only 12 percent of Stabilization purchases this year, compared with nearly one-third in 1976. Nondescript, however, rose from 14 percent last year to 33 percent in 1977.

Cleveland Police 'Out'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The police lieutenant was pecking away at a typewriter in the dining office of Cleveland's 3rd District police headquarters.

"When was the last time you had to type a report?" he was asked.

"I never typed one before," he replied.

He was among a handful of officers who reported for work in the 3rd District Thursday night at the end of the first day of a "blue flu" epidemic.

Police said about 80 percent of the city's 1,500 officers called in sick for Thursday's shifts in a protest over contract negotiations.

Despite the slowdown, police said all scheduled cruises were on the streets with two-person teams in each car. Supervisory personnel and cadets were being used to fill in the gaps.

A captain at the department's communications center said officers were answering every emergency call. But less demanding complaints, such as reports of abandoned cars or barking dogs, were being put aside.

The officer said there was a problem getting organized in the first hours of the job action.

"But we're fat now," he said. "We'll be okay as long as the remaining patrolmen and supervisors don't join in."

Those who did report to work were placed on 12-hour shifts. Those who did not have been threatened with suspension by Mayor Dennis Kucinich.

The mayor called the officers who joined the slowdown "crybabies who just crab and moan" and said he would not resume contract negotiations until they return to work.

Kucinich said the city has offered a $725 increase this year and $825 next year. That would boost base pay for patrolmen from the current $14,500 to about $16,000.

Four Accidents In Greenville Thursday

An estimated $6,050 property damage resulted from four traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Moody of Bethel and a car operated by Fay Harrell Harris of Route 2, Ayden, collided about 9 p.m. at the intersection of Greene and Dudley Streets, causing $400 damage to the truck and $200 damage to the car.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 7:50 a.m. mishap on Greene Street, 30 feet South of the East Gum Road intersection, involving cars driven by Leon Pollard of Route 2, Greenville and Jo Hyder Thompson of 18A Stratford Arms Apts.

Police, who charged Mrs. Thompson with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $1,200 to the Pollard car and $2,100 to the Thompson vehicle.

A 9:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street involved cars driven by Madeline Bryan Pender of 1900 East Fourth St., and Gary Harold Greene of 3F Cherry Court Apts.

Damage was estimated at $750 to the Pender car and $1,100 to the Greene auto.

Ivan Ray Williams of Ayden was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding overturned about 3:50 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive.

Damage to the motorcycle was set at $300.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today in a fairly quiet session. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 17 at 817.74 after a 4.77-point loss Thursday. Declines held a very slight lead over advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market had suffered something of a lull on Thursday, when the rally of the previous session quickly played itself out.

Some of Thursday's weakness was attributed to anticipation of another increase in the money supply. At the close the Federal Reserve reported that the basic measure of the money supply grew by $1.8 billion for the second straight week.

Seaboard Coast Line Industries jumped 3 1/2% to 33 1/2%. Late Thursday the company and Southern Pacific said they were holding exploratory merger talks.

Southern Pacific shares rose 1/4 to 33 1/4. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gave up .04 to 51.64. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .30 to 125.43.

Volume on the Big Board came to 8.80 million shares by noontime against 9.48 million at the same point on Thursday.

Realtors Board Honors Duffus

Jack Duffus, 1977 president of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors, received the Realtor of the Year Award recently at the board's annual Christmas party.

Duffus received the award during the gathering of Realtors at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The recipient, a graduate of George Washington University, is a former professor of aerospace studies at East Carolina University.

He entered the real estate profession as a broker after having retired from the Air Force in 1972.

In 1975, Duffus and his wife, the former Anne Stott, opened their own real estate agency, Duffus Realty Inc.

He served as secretary-treasurer of the local Civitan Club in 1973 and headed the organization as president in 1974.

Duffus became president of the Multiple Listing Service in 1976 and president of the local Realtors board this year. He is a graduate of the North Carolina Realtors Institute in Chapel Hill. Duffus and his wife are the parents of seven children and are members of St. Gabriel's Church.

Editors Note: A Sunday drive ended in tragedy for Norman O. Johnson, 61. His wife, Gwen, also 61, died of exposure in deep snow after the couple's car broke down in a remote area. Here is Johnson's account of what happened, as told to Deseret News reporter Leo Perry.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The hardest decision I have made in my life was whether to lie down and die with Gwen or get up and try to save myself.

We had been married for 35 years, and I didn't want to leave her. But I had to leave her if I was going to get help.

We had come down from Salt Lake Sunday to visit some friends and then decided to take a little ride up the canyon. It was a nice day, and the road wasn't that bad. But I turned to the right instead of the left. Then I hit a rock in the center of the road, and it knocked a hole in the oil pan.

I spent two hours trying to jack the car up and get it off the rock, but I couldn't move it. It was then we decided to try to walk out. We should have gone back the way we came, but I thought it would be faster to try to walk over to Springville.

We walked four or five miles. When it started to get dark, we got under a big pine tree, and I tried to cover her up with pine boughs. I tried to keep standing up to keep warm and then I would lie down to try to keep her warm. Then the wind started to howl. It seemed like it snowed all night.

Gwen was only able to hobble about 100 yards in the deep snow in the morning. I tried for three hours to help her further. But I wasn't much help because I have arthritis. We talked together of personal things. Then she began acting strange. She was in a coma.

How could I leave her? Yet I thought I should get help. I prayed to the Lord, and I felt the Lord didn't want me to die there.

I hobbled along through the deep snow all the rest of the day. I had seen a cabin on the way up, and I thought, if I could just make it down to the cabin. It was just getting dark Monday night when I saw the cabin. But then I fell off the bridge and into a five-foot-deep creek bed. It seemed like hours before I could crawl up the bank.

I had no heat in the cabin — no food and just the snow for water. I moved my legs throughout the night to keep the circulation going. At daylight, I started out again. I was wet almost to my shoulders from falling down in the deep snow.

I kept on praying that the Lord would help me just to keep on going. I actually felt if I could just keep going I would find someone to help me. I kept falling down, and the sun was warm now on my face. I just wanted to lie there, but I knew

I had to keep going. My next big obstacle was to get across the cattle guard. I could only move my feet about four inches at a time. I prayed someone would find me.

Within an hour, three boys came up the road in a pickup truck. They wanted to know what I was doing there. They could not believe it when I told them my wife was dead up on the road.

They said the best thing to do was to go down to the service station in Spanish Fork Canyon and call the sheriff.

Rail Merger Is Explored

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A merger that could lead to the country's first coast-to-coast railroad is being explored with Seaboard Coast Line Industries, Southern Pacific said Thursday.

The merger could result in the country's largest railroad. Southern Pacific, with assets of $1.9 billion, said it has purchased 700,000 shares, a 4.8 percent interest, of Seaboard stock in recent weeks.

The diversified transportation company said in a three-paragraph announcement that any merger must be approved by directors and shareholders of both companies, as well as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

If approved, the combined railways would have revenues of $3.5 billion and earnings exceeding $194 million, based on 1976 results. They would operate 29,816 miles of track.

Seaboard, based in Jacksonville, Fla., operates the Seaboard Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville railroads, with key lines into Chicago, Cincinnati, Memphis, St. Louis and New Orleans. Southern Pacific lines end in the last three cities.

Give Petitions For Clemency

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Black leaders in Raleigh presented petitions bearing 15,000 signatures seeking clemency for the Wilmington 10 to aides to Gov. Jim Hunt today.

The Rev. Leon White of the United Church of Christ Commission for Racial Justice told Dr. John Larkins and Jack Cozart, counsel to the governor, that the petitions came largely from the black community and were solicited by black churches.

"This whole case has been political from the beginning," White said. "There were leaders in that protest who never came to trial."

For example, if the average 1978 market price is below 52 cents, the government will pay the farmer the difference up to 8 cents a pound.

Farmers who don't cut plantings by 20 percent from their 1977 amount will receive only a percentage of whatever target-price payments are made, the department said.

Deputy Agriculture Secretary John C. White said the department estimates that about one million fewer acres might be planted as a result of the decision.

Abnormally favorable weather on top of an unusually large number of acres planted in cotton this year produced record yields and a crop of 14.3 million bales, White said.

Less Cotton Is Wanted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is telling the nation's cotton growers that they must reduce their plantings by one fifth in 1978 if they want to receive the full benefits of federal income supports.

Cotton farmers who go along with the voluntary cutback in production will be guaranteed the full 1978 target price of 52 cents a pound, the minimum allowed by new farm legislation.

For example, if the average 1978 market price is below 52 cents, the government will pay the farmer the difference up to 8 cents a pound.

Farmers who don't cut

Pirates Face Challenge Of Wolfpack

East Carolina University Pirates take to the road again Saturday night in an effort to snap a three-game losing streak and claim their second victory of the season.

The foe this time is another Atlantic Coast Conference team, the Wolfpack of N.C. State. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m. Saturday in Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum.

"I look for State to be ready to play," ECU Coach Larry Gillman said. "I understand (NCS Coach Norman) Sloan said some nice things about us on his television show last week. He said he felt we were the second best offensive team State would see after Notre Dame this year."

"Well, we may not be that good, but I am pleased with the way we've been playing on offense. Our defense hasn't been that bad at the times. Rebounding has been the real problem."

"Our kids deserve to be better than 1-5 right now," Gillman added.

The coach said he feels that the Pirates will be a little bit more mature against State. "Each time we play, it's a learning experience for us," he said.

Gillman is also hoping that the fans won't be down too hard on the players. "Some of the statements that I made before the season haven't been quoted exactly right," he said. "Like I never said (Oliver) Mack was a player like Phil Ford or Butch Lee. My statement was that he was in the same class ability-wise. I still think that is true."

"I said we were capable of beating anyone we play, and I still think that too. I said, too, that I would be happy if we win 17 or 18 games, but I didn't say we'd win that many."

"We have the talent, but it is young. We've got three freshmen and four sophomores playing a lot. That's seven of our top ten. Two of our juniors aren't really juniors in experience, since Mack is a transfer and Greg Cornelius missed a year transferring. Even our seniors don't have that much experience." Gillman added that the fact that the young players are getting so much experience this year will be a help in the long run.

"For instance, State has most of its young blue chip players on the bench, coming in as subs. Our top freshmen are playing as regulars. That means a lot, both now and in the future."

The coach looks for a game much like that of the Maryland encounter. "I think both teams are going to want to push it up the floor. I don't know what they'll do on defense: LaSalle and Boston College both respected us enough to play a zone."

The coach added that there is no morale problem on the team because of the poor start of the season. "These kids get along and like each other as well or better than any team I've been associated with. They are under a lot of outside pressure, but they want to win. They are starting to play hard, and they just need to learn to win."

Mack will be leading the Pirate attack on the Wolfpack. The junior guard, coming off four straight 30-point-plus games, is currently averaging 28.5 points a game.

Two other Bucs are in double figures, Herb Gray at 17.7, and Herb Krusen at 14.0.

Joining these three are probable starters Bernard Hill, 6.7;

Greg Cornelius, 6.3; and Walter Moseley, 2.7.

State is led by Hawkeye Whitney, averaging 21.2 points a game.

Tony Warren is next at 14.3, followed by Tiny Pinder at 12.8, Kenny Matthews at 10.8, and Clyde Austin, also at 10.8.

State comes into the game with a 5-1 record, having lost only to North Carolina, 87-82, in the finals of the Big Four Tournament.

Mack Fourth In Scoring

Oliver Mack, East Carolina University's talented junior, is the fourth leading scorer in the nation, according to the NCAA.

Indiana State's Larry Byrd, who led the nation last year, is this year's leader so far with a 31.8 average through six games.

Second place goes to Montana's Mike Richardson with a 29.3 average through six games. Rose Phegley of Bradley is third with a 29.0 mark in four games.

Mack, who scored over 30 points in each of his last four games, has upped his average to 28.5, and stands fourth after six contest.

He's just ahead of Manhattan's Steve Grant, who has a 28.4 mark in five games.

Maryland's Greg Manning is the number two man in field goal percentage, hitting 75.0 per cent of his shots.

Among team statistics, Virginia Tech has the number five offense, hitting 96.3 points a game, while UNC-Wilmington is fifth in field goal percentage with 54.5 per cent.

Legal Battle Shaping Up As To Where Athletics Will Be Playing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal court judge has put a crimp in any plans millionaire oilman Marvin Davis might have to wrap up the Oakland A's in time to deliver as a Christmas present to the baseball fans of Denver.

Instead, a legal battle that could extend well into the new year is shaping up over the A's lease with the Oakland Coliseum unless an out-of-court settlement can be worked out.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge William Orrick late Thursday

granted a temporary restraining order prohibiting Davis and Charles O. Finley from taking any action to transfer the A's American League franchise.

The order also prohibited the principals from seeking American League approval for an agreement they reached only 24 hours earlier for selling the ball club and moving it to Denver.

Orrick set Dec. 30 for a hearing on a preliminary injunction sought by the Oakland Coliseum, the city of Oakland and Alameda County.

The suit, naming Finley and Davis as defendants, asked $35 million in damages — $10 million for loss of rent, parking and concession revenues and taxes during the 10 years until the A's lease with the Coliseum expires, and $25 million in punitive damages for breach of contract.

Finley said in Chicago Thursday that he and his attorneys were "not upset at all" by the suit.

"I will come to the Bay Area next Monday and meet Tuesday with all parties concerned," said Finley, "and I hope we can work out something everybody can live with. I'm not out-to screw anybody, and I don't think anybody is trying to screw me. I want to work this thing out."

Finley already has contacted some of the parties to set up a meeting for Tuesday, the San Francisco Chronicle reported.

In the last two seasons, Finley claims the A's, who drew a major-league low of 495,578 fans in 1977, have lost $1.6 million.

San Francisco Giants president Bob Lurie said his club has lost an approximately equal amount since he became a co-owner in early 1976 while a court suit by the city of San Francisco was blocking sale of the club for movement to Toronto.

The Giants drew a National League low of 780,593 in 1977, underscoring Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's contention this area cannot support two major league teams.

First Taste Of Conference Play Making Martin Girls Nervous

By JIM KYLE
 Reflector Sports Writer

Being in a conference for the first time is causing problems for the Martin Academy girls' basketball team, according to coach Dale Manning.

The Lady Pioneers are in the Tar Heel Independent Conference after previously having had no league affiliation and Manning feels that's one of the reasons for their limited success this year.

"This is our first year in a conference, and I think that's one of our problems," Manning said. "I really think the girls are scared of it. We played a lot of the teams in the conference last year, but this is the first year it's counted for a conference championship. I don't think they've gotten it into their heads that they're just as good as last year."

The Lady Pioneers returned all but one player from last year's squad, which finished with a 7-8 record. But, so far this year, things just haven't jelled.

"I'm expecting good things from them this year, but they haven't performed up to their capabilities yet. They just can't seem to get it together. I don't know if they're all sitting around waiting for somebody else to do it or what."

Manning still has hope for the team, however. "I feel like I've got some good ballhandlers. I've got good, quick guards and two or three girls that will just play their hearts out; but, we're all making foolish mistakes."

Manning said the top player on the team, "the girl who does everything," is last year's most valuable player, Lib Johnson. The 5-6 sophomore forward is "super. I can't say enough about her," Manning said. "When things get rough, everybody looks at her to do it."

The other forward is Amy Perry (5-9, sophomore). "She just needs game experience.

She's a real good rebounder and gives 100 per cent, but just needs to play a little more."

Also in the frontcourt is center Debbie Roberson (5-10, senior). She was moved from forward last year and is "good defensively, real good on the boards and she'll scrap, but she needs to work on her offense," Manning said.

At the guard spots are Lou Johnson (5-5, sophomore) and Linda Jo Warren (5-5, senior). Lou is Lib's twin sister and is a real good ballhandler, Manning said. Warren is "the smartest girl on the team. I'm trying to get her to be the one to take charge," Manning said.

Gay Griffin (5-9, sophomore) is the top reserve on the squad. She can play either guard or forward, Manning said. She was a starter last year, but got hurt and is now working to get back into the starting lineup.

Manning listed four players as reserves who should see playing time. They are guard Gloria Wynne (5-5, sophomore) and forwards Karen Bailey, 5-8, 8th grade; Beth Perry (5-9, 8th grade) and Marsha Griffin (5-8, freshman). Other players are Janie Ayers (5-3, freshman), Karen Perry (5-6, freshman), Joanna Wynn (5-4, freshman) and Penny Meeks (5-4, 8th grade).

Although the Lady Pioneers haven't started out particularly well, Manning feels they are capable of finishing at least .500 or better. "I think we ought to be in the top half of the conference, if we play the kind of ball we're capable of playing," he said.

Albemarle Tops Martin Teams

Our panel of experts returns for one last fling, picking the 13 bowl games, and taking a guess at who will win the Super Bowl.

Despite the protest of Joe Jenkins that it is a "regular" season and a "post" season, we are lumping everything together to decide this year's winner.

Naturally, with everything spread out, it will be several weeks before the final outcome is known, and we'll let you know the eventual outcome.

A quick glance through reveals that no two people have picked alike so there could be some shuffling in the final standings.

Jenkins goes into the final 14 games with a 96-40-2 record. That gives him a pretty good lead over the rest of the pack. Tom Baines, Jim Kyle and Vickie Spivey are lumped together in second at 93-43-2, while our guests are next at 92-44-2. We bring up the rear with a 91-45-2 record.

Our guest picker for the week is Bill Cain, athletic director at East Carolina University. Now, a rundown of the bowl situation.

The opening game is the Independence Bowl, featuring Louisiana Tech and Louisville. Our panel of experts looks at this one and can't make up its mind. We have a split right down the middle with three picks for each team.

North Carolina and Nebraska meet in the Liberty Bowl. Here, there is a clear choice. Not really that overwhelming, but clear. We are picking Nebraska by a 4-2 nod.

Maryland and Minnesota meet in the Hall of Fame Classic. Here again, we find a decision, just like in the Liberty Bowl. Our panel goes with the ACC this time, picking Maryland by a 4-2 nod.

Peeler	Jenkins	Cain	Baines	Spivey	Kyle
Louis. Tech over Louisville	Louisville	La. Tech	Louisville	La. Tech	Louisville
Minnesota over Maryland	Minnesota	Maryland	Maryland	Maryland	Maryland
Penn State over Ariz. State	Penn St.	Penn State	Penn St.	Penn St.	Penn St.
N.C. State over Iowa State	N.C. State	N.C. State	N.C. State	Iowa St.	N.C. State
Texas A&M over Southern Cal	Southern Cal	Texas A&M	Southern Cal	Southern Cal	Southern Cal
Ohio State over Alabama	Alabama	Ohio State	Ohio State	Alabama	Alabama
Oklahoma over Arkansas	Oklahoma	Oklahoma	Oklahoma	Oklahoma	Oklahoma
Nebraska over N. Carolina	Nebraska	N. Carolina	Nebraska	N. Carolina	N. Carolina
Texas Tech over Florida State	Texas Tech	Fla. State	Fla. State	Texas Tech	Texas Tech
Pittsburgh over Clemson	Pitt	Pitt	Pitt	Clemson	Clemson
Stanford over Louisiana State	LSU	LSU	Stanford	LSU	LSU
Texas over Notre Dame	Texas	Texas	Texas	Texas	Texas
Michigan over Washington	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan
Super Bowl: Oakland	Dallas	Dallas	Dallas	Dallas	Oakland

Florida State takes on Texas Tech in the Tangerine Bowl. We seem to have fallen into a pattern. With still no solid favorites, we are awarding this one to Texas Tech by another 4-2 ballot.

Arizona State and Penn State meet in the Fiesta Bowl. Aha! Here it comes: the first unanimous choice of the series. Our panel is going with Penn State right down the line, 6-0.

Pittsburgh and Clemson meet in the Gator Bowl. We have a definite choice here, too, but not quite unanimous. One person has picked Clemson to pull off the upset, but the other five go with Pittsburgh.

N.C. State and Iowa State collide in the Peach Bowl. Again, we find that 5-1 choice (are we in another rut?). And again, we find ourselves going with the ACC team. State is our choice.

Stanford and Louisiana Tech meet in the Sun Bowl. We're out of our rut again, and back to the 4-2 decisions. This time the panel looks for Louisiana State to pull out the victory.

Texas A&M and Southern Cal meet in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl. Back with another 4-2 choice. Our panel is going with Southern California in this contest.

Texas and Notre Dame collide in the Cotton Bowl, and this one may draw the most interest nationally. Well, well, another one that goes right down the line. We have a 6-0 verdict for the Longhorns.

Ohio State and Alabama meet in the Sugar Bowl. It's brash Woody Hayes against the quieter Bear Bryant here, and nobody can come up with a clear choice. We call this one a toss-up, 3-3.

Washington and Michigan will battle for the Roses in Pasadena. The Wolverines are another of those teams that the panel likes. It's a 6-0 ballot for Michigan.

In the final bowl game, Oklahoma meets Lou Holtz' Arkansas team in the Orange Bowl. Sorry, Lou, but our gang deserts you here. We are going right down the line with the Sooners.

Finally, everyone was asked to pick the team they think will be the eventual Super Bowl winner. It's not as easy this year, with a lot of teams still in the running.

But we'll see how it comes out. Our panel is not united, but not widely divided either. We have four votes for Dallas, and two for Oakland.

And we'll all wait and see.

Kentucky Looks To Defense As Freeman Williams Makes Scene

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

One of the nation's top guns faces the nation's top-ranked basketball team tonight in the Kentucky Invitational Tournament in Lexington, and something's got to give.

It could be the Kentucky defense.

"We're not really sure how to defend Freeman Williams," Kentucky Coach Joe Hall says of Portland State's high-scoring star. "Normally, our procedure is to play a straight game and not concentrate on any one individual. We're more concerned with winning the game."

"You know, Pete Maravich (of LSU) always had great games against us and broke all kinds of scoring records, but Kentucky always won the game. We'd like for some player to accept the challenge and try to hold Williams. We'd be very proud if he did stop Williams, but we're not going to overcompensate."

Williams shot through, over and around every conceivable defensive setup last year to emerge as the country's No. 1 scorer with a 38.8 average. This year, he has "slipped" to 25 points a game, but Hall said: "I understand they've got a very young team and I imagine he's not getting the opportunities he got last year."

Kentucky, the nation's No. 1 team, faces Portland State in the second game of tonight's doubleheader. St. John's, the pride of New York City which recently dropped out of the rankings, will meet Seattle in the other opening-round game of the tournament, one of many around the country this weekend.

The Redmen, who lost their first game of the season last week to Rutgers, will need a "selfish" George Johnson to get back in winning form, they think.

"Throughout the season, I've been passing up shots, making sure everyone knows what's going on," said Johnson. "That can hurt me and the team, not getting enough points or rebounds. Like at Rutgers, I'm not shooting enough — I have to do that inside and out."

Utah and Texas Tech threaten Tennessee's dominance in the Volunteer Classic at Knoxville. Utah fell out of the national rankings after a one-point loss to Long Beach State last week, but the Utes are the pre-tournament favorites. They'll meet undefeated Texas Tech in what shapes up as possibly the best game of the tournament.

Tennessee, which has won the tournament 11 of the 12 times since it started in 1966, faces Dartmouth in the other preliminary-round game.

Among the other tournaments which start tonight is the Dayton Invitational at Dayton, Ohio, featuring Georgia Tech, Oregon, San Diego State and Dayton. South Carolina plays Portland and San Jose State meets Santa Clara in the Cable Car Classic in Santa Clara, Cal.

In the Golden Gate Invitational at San Francisco, Baylor tackles the University of Pacific and Idaho plays San Francisco. In the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Memphis State takes on Texas-El Paso and Army plays Kansas State.

Navy and Samford are featured in the Birmingham Classic at Birmingham, Ala. In the Bluebonnet Classic at Houston, the competing teams included North Texas, Rice, Houston and Xavier, Ohio.

Grambling, Ohio U., Biscayne and Southwestern Louisiana are entered in the Cajun Classic at Lafayette, La.

The Industrial National Classic at Providence, R.I., was canceled because of a dormitory fire earlier this week that took the lives of several female students.

In Thursday night's limited action, David Hensen scored 22 of his 24 points in the first half as Northern Arizona overwhelmed Alaska-Anchorage 101-76; Hofstra stopped New Hampshire 79-72 behind Brian Appel's 22 points.

All They Have To Do Is Win, Then Watch

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League playoff scramble isn't confusing at all, at least not to the Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins, who play vital games Saturday.

They could sneak into the playoffs on a wild-card ticket, provided either Minnesota or Chicago loses its last game. The Vikings play at Detroit Saturday night, seeking to clinch the NFC Central title; and the Bears, aiming for their first playoff berth since 1963, meet the New York Giants Sunday.

In other games Sunday, Cincinnati, trying to nail down the AFC Central championship, plays at Houston, Cleveland is at Seattle, Kansas City at Oakland, Pittsburgh at San Diego, New England at Baltimore, New Orleans at Atlanta, St. Louis at Tampa Bay, San Francisco vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Denver at Dallas and the New York Jets at Philadelphia.

NFL

Both Miami and Washington have one edge working for them. Their opponents should have no special incentive for this game.

Los Angeles already has clinched a fifth straight NFC West championship and will be a host in the first round of the playoffs, win or lose Saturday.

Buffalo, of course, is buried at the bottom of the AFC East and a win might prevent a cellar finish but also lower the Bills' college draft priority.

In the AFC Central, Cincinnati has a one-point edge on Pittsburgh should that tie-breaker be required to settle their race. And that would be the formula if both teams win Sunday. But if both teams lose, Pittsburgh would get the title based on divisional records, which is a higher priority tie-breaker than point differential.

Brown Out At Detroit; General Manager Becomes New Coach

DETROIT (AP) — They won't be singing "Goodbye, Herbie" at Detroit Pistons games any more.

Brown, 12th coach in the Pistons' 10 years in Detroit and never a favorite with the fans, got his walking papers Thursday.

General Manager Bob Kauffman said the decision to fire Brown was "most difficult" but said it was done "because the team has not been responsive" to Brown's coaching.

Kauffman said he will take over direction of the Pistons during their next three games in the National Basketball Association while a search for a new coach goes on both in the NBA and in college coaching ranks.

Brown, obviously disappointed at being relieved midway through his second NBA season, said, "If you ask me whether it was the right decision, I don't think it was. But I work for an organization and they have the right to do whatever they want."

Brown, who became the Pistons coach Jan. 26, 1976, never managed to win over the fans, who booed him from the first game he coached through the last one, a 102-92 loss to Seattle Wednesday night.

The defeat dropped the Pistons to 9-15, close to the bottom of the Midwest Division race. It was their 10th loss in their last 13 games.

Brown had trouble with his players last season as he feuded with his four guards — Kevin Porter, Chris Ford, Eric Money and Ralph Simpson — mainly because they argued over how much playing time they should have.

He also had problems with Marvin Barnes, who spent some time in a Rhode Island prison on a parole violation charge. Barnes returned to the Pistons this season but was traded to Buffalo.

Kevin Porter and Howard Porter also were traded as Brown sought to instill harmony in his ball club, which also was hit hard by injuries, including a knee injury to Bob Lanier that put the Pistons' offensive mainstay out of action for several games this season.

Lanier, the team's co-captain, said after learning of Brown's firing that he would not presume to tell the Pistons whom they should hire as their next coach. But he added, "Whoever the guy is, he is going to have to be a strong disciplinarian."

He continued, "You bring in somebody who is going to placate people and they will be walking all over him. They have to bring in a strong individual."

Among the names mentioned as possible successors to Brown were former NBA coaches Larry Costello, K.C. Jones, Gene Shue and Al Bianchi. Also mentioned was Dick Vitale, who gave up his University of Detroit basketball coaching job a couple of weeks ago for health reasons. He had admitted it would be practically impossible to turn down a Pistons job offer, but said Thursday he had not been contacted by the club.

If Brown had any bitterness as his turbulent, two-year career as Pistons coach came to an end, he tried to conceal it.

"I don't think it would serve any purpose to be bitter now," he said. "I have tried to maintain some dignity and class throughout my tenure here. I can't fault the players. I think they probably were trying too hard."

Tar Heels Flying Out

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — As North Carolina's football squad prepared to fly to Memphis today for Monday night's Liberty Bowl, the Tar Heels' coaching staff cautiously assessed their chances against Nebraska.

"We would like to shut them out," defensive coordinator Jim Dickey said. "But we think that would be very difficult. Any time you hold a team like Nebraska to a touchdown and a field goal — one of each — that's pretty good."

Ten points. That's what the Cornhuskers scored in their first game of the season, a 19-10 loss to Washington State. Since then Nebraska has dipped below 21 points only once — the 38-7 loss to Oklahoma.

But North Carolina brings the nation's top defense to Monday night's game. The Tar Heels have allowed opponents only 7.4 points per game this season. The team kept opponents at or under 14 points in a game all season and kept the opposition from making long runs or passes, also forcing 41 turnovers.

"We've had a knack of making the big play and we had a good goal line defense," said Tom Harper, coach of the defensive line. "And we had the ability to break the game open with some interceptions."

Still, the Tar Heels haven't faced a team this season with as many offensive weapons as Nebraska, Harper said.

"We had other people run reverses against us, but it was like a wagon train compared to them. You gamble defensively and they'll score."

The win raised the Farmville Central record to 5-1 for the season. The Jags will be in action Monday night when they face Washington.

Patriots Picked Over Colts As Miami Takes The Eastern Title

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

By Sunday afternoon, a couple of teams around the National Football League may be wishing they were anywhere but on a football field — and they'll vent their frustration on the teams stuck out there with them.

In other words:

—The Pittsburgh Steelers, knowing the Cincinnati Bengals have clinched the American Conference Central Division title, will take it out on the San Diego Chargers.

—The New England Patriots, knowing that Miami has eliminated them from the AFC East race, will turn the tables and beat up on Baltimore, thus keeping the Colts out of the playoffs and giving the Dolphins the crown.

And in half a dozen or so other cities around the nation, the NFL season will come to an end virtually unnoticed.

Last week's record was a less-than-sparkling 7-7, putting the record at 124-58 for a .681 percentage. The picks:

Bengals 23, Oilers 17
Houston, upset over an official's call that kept it from beating the Bengals the first time they met, would love to upset Cincinnati. But playing for a playoff spot is a bigger incentive.

Steelers 17, Chargers 10
Two ferocious defenses — but Pittsburgh's got a solid offense to go with it.

Dolphins 31, Bills 14
Bob Griese could see all the holes in the Buffalo defense even without his spectacles.

Patriots 24, Colts 20

Memorial Is Slated To Keep The Memory Of 'Black Tuesday'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The morning of Tuesday, September 5, 1972 broke clear and bright over the sprawling Olympic Village in Munich, West Germany — Munchen, the Germans call it, with a couple of dots for pronunciation purposes over the "u."

Flags fluttered at full staff from 122 flagpoles. Athletes of all nations moved busily through the gates, meandered around the various shops or cuddled on the grassy banks defining the neat plazas.

Security police, men and women, roamed the area inconspicuously, attired in pastel blue and white, carrying no guns or clubs.

After all, these were the "Peace Olympics," every phase designed to make people forget Adolph Hitler's grim, goose-stepping Nazi Games of 1936.

Rock 'n' roll music blared continuously. The sun had hardly peeped its blushing head over the horizon when shock waves began oozing through the Village like a spark spewing toward a dynamite fuse.

The real impact was slow to hit.

Arab terrorists had stormed the headquarters of the Israelis, had slain at least two and were holding an unknown number hostage in Building 31, the team's headquarters.

Only the intensified activity gave the story away. The gates were frozen shut — no entrance into and exit out of the Village. Rubber-wheeled tanks with armored soldiers in khaki moved into position beneath the catycombs of the stilted buildings.

Sharpshooters disguised as athletes in sweat suits took strategic positions on the roof tops with high-powered rifles and telescopic lenses. A Chief Ironside style van, crawling with police brass, parked a few yards from the besieged quarters.

Workmen were seen stringing a hot wire from the van to connecting links with President Gustav Heinemann of West Germany and Golda Meir, the prime minister of Israel.

First reports were fragmentary. One Israeli body had been thrown at the front door of Building 31 and retrieved by a bold ambulance driver. A second slain Israeli was said to be inside. The fate of all others hung in the balance.

One could stand on the fringe of this drama and see the shadows of the hooded Arab figures, moving around inside. It was a nerve-jangling scene. Occasionally, the captors, scary in their stocking masks, brazenly emerged to talk with negotiating officials from the balcony.

For 15 hours the grim negotiations continued. The sun reached mid sky and then began settling in the West. Activities in the Village went on as usual. People shopped. People played. A handful of the more concerned just stood — and waited.

Rumors escalated. The terrorists were demanding escort with hostages to the airport and sanctuary. Golda Meir was dispatching Moshe Dayan, Israel's famed fighting man with the patch over one eye, and a team of commandoes to the scene.

The sun went down. Nerves became more jangled. The Games went on. America's Duane Bobick lost a heavy-weight fight to Cuba's Teofilo Stevenson. More rubber-soled tanks moved in.

At around 10 p.m. excitement quickened. A helicopter hovered overhead and sat down in a field near the Village. A huge white bus whisked through the catycombs and parked near Building 31. From a distance, the masked terrorists and their hostages could be seen being herded into the bus. The bus drove away.

"It's not over yet," cautioned a white-shirted doctor, one of the medical staff standing by.

A long wait, and then the tragic news came. There was a shooting at the airport. An Arab tossed a hand grenade into the helicopter containing the hostages. The result: Eleven Israeli and four terrorists dead. Three terrorists captured. A policeman slain.

The Olympic flame burned on.

This Sunday night the cream of American sportsmen gather at the Waldorf for a memorial to the "Munich 11."

"Black Tuesday." You couldn't feel it unless you were there.

O'Koren Will Miss Contest

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Fifth-ranked Carolina will probably face sixth-ranked Cincinnati Saturday without Mike O'Koren, but they'll still have their most potent threat — Phil Ford.

"There's no way to control Ford," said Cincinnati Coach Gale Catlett in a telephone interview. "In my mind he and Butch Lee are the best guards in the college game. You'd have to flip a coin to decide who is the best."

O'Koren sprained his ankle in the final seconds of the Tar Heels' loss to William and Mary, and team physician Dr. Joseph Dewalt said it was doubtful he would play Saturday.

"If he plays, he certainly won't be 100 percent," Dewalt said, "and my guess is that he won't be able to play at all."

Coaches of both teams are expecting a tough fight at the Greensboro Coliseum.

"The fact that their smallest starter is 6-4 could present defensive and rebounding problems for us," said Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose squad is 5-1.

The Bearcats are 5-0, and they are sure to be out to capitalize on a chance to move ahead quickly at least a notch in the national rankings.

"It'll be a tremendous test for us," Catlett said. "In fact, our players have been looking forward to this game so much that I think it has had a bad effect on their performance in other games."

Catlett will be relying heavily on 7-foot center Bob Miller.

"Bob has a chance to be the best center in college basketball this season," Catlett said. "I think he may well be the first player picked in the pro draft. Certainly he's a strong all-America candidate."

Ali Ready To Face Norton

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who has "announced" his retirement as world heavyweight boxing champion several times, apparently will be around quite a while longer.

At a news conference Thursday to promote a title bout against young Leon Spinks in Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 15, Ali suddenly disclosed that he has signed for still another defense next September against Ken Norton, a three-time rival.

The Norton fight, for which Ali reportedly will receive a whopping $12 million, will be held in a foreign country, according to Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., who also is promoting the Spinks bout.

At the Ali-Spinks news conference, the champion was asked if he was ducking Norton. That's when he disclosed his latest plans.

The contract needs only Norton's signature. Arum has deposited $125,000 in a bank to serve as part of the purse. The money goes to Ali if Norton fails to sign by May 1.

"I see no problems in getting Norton," Arum said. "I can't say that I have him, though, because I don't."

However, Ali said Norton's advisors are clamoring for another shot at the champ.

No 'Bah, Humbug' In Televised Yuletide Yarn Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — I tend to get a bah-humbug attitude about most network Christmas shows because they tend to look alike. A notable exception, however, is on NBC for an hour tonight.

It's "Have I Got a Christmas for You," a spry, well-paced tale of some Jewish folks who work one night at the regular jobs of some Christians so the latter can spend that night — Christmas — at home.

This yuletide yarn by Jerome Coopersmith has a fine cast led by Milton Berle. He's the narrator and plays the part of one Morris Glickstein, who worries a lot and quite sardonically,

"ONE MORE CHEAP THRILL" — Miskell Spillman, an 80-year-old grandmother from New Orleans, sits with her granddaughter Janine Baker on the set of "Saturday Night Live" in New York. Mrs. Spillman won a nationwide postcard election to become a host on the show. (AP Laserphoto) too. The proceedings start at Temple Beth Shalom, where the trustees and their rabbi (Herb Edelman) discuss what Berle says is "disaster. This plan can only end in disaster." The plan, proposed by Jack Carter, is the Christmas Eve substitute work for the Christians, a plan he notes has worked successfully in Portland, Ore., Milwaukee and Philadelphia.

All approve the plan save Berle, the sole dissenter. He tells the audience: "The seeds of our destruction were sown." Such isn't the case, of course. Working with the local interfaith council, temple members agree to fill in at various jobs — as a nurse, as a radio disc jockey, as tenders of a bar and grill and even as a Santa Claus. Some confusion results, particularly for Adrienne Barbeau and Alex Cord, cast as a young couple who'd originally planned to revitalize their stale marriage by taking separate yuletide vacations.

They agree to run a bar and grill owned by a middle-aged Irish couple. Their presence fuddles Jim Backus, who plays a regular who always makes a Christmas stop at the bar for rum-and-brandy toddy.

They try to explain they're subsidizing for the owners as part of a project of their temple.

South, declarer in an uncomfortable five diamond contract, put his assets to good use in an impressive display of technique.

We are not enthralled with North's bidding. Since South's diamonds were marked as being no more than four cards long, North should have rebid his clubs rather than prefer diamonds at his third turn. A contract of six clubs would have been easier than five diamonds!

West led his top spade, and declarer realized that he had a problem. Dummy's clubs were an appealing source of tricks, but declarer saw that if he tried to draw trumps and the suit should divide 4-2, he wouldn't have the entries to establish and cash the clubs. Even if trumps were 3-3, the defenders might still shut out dummy's long suit by persisting with spades at every opportunity, removing vital entries to the table. Declarer found a better way. He won the king of spades in hand, cashed the ace of clubs and, to prepare for a crossruff, the ace-king of hearts. He entered dummy with the ace of spades and ruffed a club with a low trump. A spade ruff allowed West to discard a club, but declarer was in dummy for another club lead. The wisdom of cashing the hearts was now apparent. If declarer had not cleared those cards, East would sluff a heart and later would have been able to ruff one of declarer's high hearts to defeat the contract.

Since it would not help to ruff in front of declarer, East shed a spade. Declarer ruffed, felling West's king, and led a heart. A careless player would have ruffed with dummy's ten and gone down. Not our South. He ruffed with the ace of diamonds and then took the precaution of ruffing a club with the king, to make sure he could not be overruffed.

Now declarer was down to the ten of trumps in dummy, the jack in his hand and two losers in each hand. But he had taken the first ten tricks. The eleventh trick was easy. He led a heart and ruffed with the ten. East could overruff with the queen, but the jack of diamonds would then be the game-going trick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1977

Your DAILY HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make sure you do nothing of importance in starting a new undertaking for you are apt to act too impulsively or hastily and without sufficient study or awareness of all the factors that are involved. Make sure you stop, look and listen before doing anything important.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to push through with whatever you have in mind to do, but the planets are unfavorable, so take it easy. Be careful in speaking with others whose feelings are easily hurt.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You feel restricted but patience will see you accomplishing a good deal just the same, so persevere. Try to organize your life better so that the future will be happier.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may be expecting too much from friends and they may object, so take it easy. Social interests are not good right now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Not a good day to be with influential persons so get busy at the personal. Be careful of credit or you can get into real trouble later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are in a mood to get into new activities because you are bored, but these could be a positive dud. Find right methods to solve your problems.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You had better take care of those obligations you have instead of going off on some different kind of tangent. Avoid an argument with mate, loved one which could become serious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a dynamic partner you need to restrain until you can better study what he wants you to do. Take a worldly matter in stride since you are powerless to do anything about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into recreation that will relieve tensions after you have kept any promises you have made. Show more affection for closest ties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Spend more time at important home tasks and please kin also. Study outside affairs more thoroughly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be quiet listener to the voice of your intuition and then carry through with whatever you have to do, get good results. Make new worthwhile plans with allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show that you carry through with practical matters sensibly. Add to your holdings appreciably. Watch reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study personal aims that are most vital to you and go after them sensibly. Out to group affairs also that can be pleasant for you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have wonderful ideas and receiving training along public lines so that your progeny can be of great service to others, since there is great potential here for such. Much artistic talent and appreciation of beauty here.

Weigh Relaxing Research Bars

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Institutes of Health is considering relaxing guidelines on controversial genetic research that could create new drugs and improved crops.

Critics say it also could produce virulent disease organisms against which humans, animals and plants have no defense should the microbes escape the laboratory.

The proposed revised federal guidelines were discussed Thursday at a special meeting of the advisory committee to the NIH director, Dr. Donald S. Fredrickson, who will decide early next year whether to put them into effect.

At issue is the so-called recombinant DNA research — reshaping deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, the basic genetic component of life. The work involves splitting and transferring genetic material from one species of organism to another, creating life forms not found naturally.

Concern about potential hazards led NIH to issue guidelines in July 1976, which specified how the work was to be done and banned some kinds of research. Congress is considering legislation to control the research and some communities where the work is being done have enacted local laws.

The relaxed guidelines would allow scientists to work with certain organisms without prior NIH approval and give researchers more options on how to reduce the risks of microbes escaping into the environment.

Dr. John Littlefield, head of the Recombinant Advisory Committee, a group of experts who drafted the proposed revisions, said his group was "pretty convinced that potential hazards have been overstated."

However, others testifying at the meeting said some recent data, indicating recombinant DNA research may not pose as many potential risks as previously thought, were too new and unproven to justify relaxing vigilance.

Speaking in favor of relaxed guidelines, Dr. Bernard Davis, professor of bacterial physiology at Harvard Medical School, said the danger from recombinant DNA is less than working with normal disease-causing organisms.

Davis said, "I would conclude that the original guidelines are far too severe."

Those favoring eased restrictions cited recent research at Stanford University indicating crossbreeding between species occurs more often in nature than previously believed and is therefore not truly "unnatural" or necessarily dangerous.

Also, tests with organisms used in the research indicate they don't survive well outside the laboratory and pose less of a potential hazard if they escaped.

However, speakers like Nancy Pfund of Palo Alto, Calif., an environmentalist representing the Sierra Club, said some of the new data used to justify relaxing guidelines are either unpublished or not widely available for scientific review.

Until the data are proven under traditional scientific review, they should not be used to justify easing the rules, she said.

Govm't Backtracks On Substitute In Icecream

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An imported substitute won't be replacing natural protein in the 800 million gallons of ice cream produced in this country yearly after all, as the federal government backtracks under dairy industry pressure.

A Food and Drug Administration spokesman said Thursday it was reneging on a plan originally announced in May to allow ice cream makers to use sodium caseinate in place of non-fat dry milk.

The FDA said then that it had decided the nutritional and taste qualities of ice cream wouldn't be hurt by the switch.

The ice cream industry agreed and noted its costs would be cut about 5 cents a gallon by using the European import, already in the American kitchen in the form of non-dairy coffee creamers, whipped toppings and instant breakfast drinks.

But the American dairy farmer balked. He argued that the change would cut his income and add $300 million to the Agriculture Department's spending for dairy supports.

In announcing the decision to keep sodium caseinate out of America's favorite dessert, at least temporarily, the FDA said it had determined the additive might lead to less nutritious ice cream.

"We have decided to revoke it (the rules change) because it would be possible to make an ice cream that was less nutritious than the current ice cream," FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said.

Sodium caseinate, made by reducing skim milk to its dry protein residue, is a protein similar to that in non-fat dried milk. It once was produced in the U.S., but the beginning of federal price controls in 1949 ended its commercial value as dairymen switched to producing dry milk — which was covered by the subsidy.

The FDA's proposed switch was to have gone into effect June 13, but was delayed for more study because of the dairy industry objections.

Pines said a statement revoking the regulation is being prepared by the FDA and will be published soon in the Federal Register.

Pines said the FDA would allow to stand a part of the regulation that requires ingredient labeling on ice cream by July 1979. Ice cream now is exempted from labeling requirements.

Crash Killed Two Hunters

OCRACOKE, N.C. (AP) — Two duck hunters were killed and two hurt when they tried to take off in a light plane from the airstrip near Ocracoke in a rainstorm and crashed about half a mile from the airport.

The crash went undiscovered for several hours until one of the injured men made his way early Thursday to the village at the southern tip of Ocracoke Island and told what had happened.

He was identified as J. Everett Cameron, 35, of Richlands. His father, Julian E. Cameron, 65, of Grifton, was found on the beach road and brought into town about the same time the younger Cameron showed up.

Both men were taken to a hospital in Norfolk, Va.

Rescuers hurried to the site of the crash and found the body of John E. Cameron, 37, pilot and owner of the plane and brother and son respectively of the two survivors. They also found the body of Mike Tucker, 26. Both men were from Ahoskie.

Hyde County deputy Lee Garrish said the four men apparently took off during a squall that swept over the island about 8 p.m. Wednesday and crashed in their single-engine Cherokee 180 almost immediately.

The men apparently had been duck hunting and were on their way home, Garrish said.

Can't Force Open Meeting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court has ruled that university faculty members cannot be forced to open the meetings to the public under the state's open-meetings law.

The court Thursday reversed a decision by the Court of Appeals and Orange County Superior Court that meetings of the law faculty at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill must be open to the public.

The ruling, which came on a suit filed by the university's Student Bar Association, said the open-meetings law applied only to governing or governmental bodies in the state. The court said the law faculty was not such a body.
