

Social Money Priorities Up

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Social programs, both private and public, now take more than a quarter of the gross national product, double the figure of 25 years ago.

But despite the big increase, a new study on American life says, Americans are showing greater support for putting dollars into social programs.

In 1973, 53.8 percent of Americans polled said too much was going to welfare programs. Two years later, only 45.2 percent of the group felt the same way.

But at the same time, a majority of Americans said they placed higher priorities on improving national health, halting crime, dealing with drug addiction, protecting the environment and improving education than on social programs.

Those are some of the findings in "Social Indicators 1978," a 564-page volume of graphs and charts put together over a four-year period by Denis F. Johnston, a Commerce Department sociologist, and his team of statisticians.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Krepps said the document is designed to make it easier for Americans to decide what progress the country is making or failing to make toward the common goal of improving our lives. The report spans subject matters ranging from trends in U.S. health improvements to what Americans are spending to live today compared to 30 years ago.

It offers the obscure — one table is titled, "Selected Characteristics of Persons Doing Volunteer Work, 1965 and 1974" — to the obvious — noting that 37.4 percent of people not registering to vote say they aren't interested in voting.

One table measures membership in the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts (membership in both is down from 1970).

The department also offers a disclaimer, warning against "unwarranted conclusions as to cause-and-effect relationships or unwarranted inferences as to the reasons for the observed differences."

A few other indications of changing American life listed in the report:

—The amount of leisure time available to Americans increased 11 percent between 1965 and 1975, but time devoted to family care declined nearly 25 percent.

Time spent working changed little.

—In 1980, some 28 percent of the population listed television watching as a favorite leisure activity. By 1975, the figure had jumped to 46 percent.

—Americans are dying for different reasons than they did 10 and 25 years ago. Deaths from heart attacks and strokes are down. Deaths from suicide, murder and cirrhosis of the liver — commonly associated with alcoholism — are up.

—The median income of all American families, taking inflation into account, had nearly doubled in the 1970s compared to the 1940s. Minority groups did even better, making 2.4 times as much per family for the same time comparison.

Begin Cites Peace Policy

By JOEL EPSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin declared today he "will not surrender" to international pressure to accept Egypt's terms for a peace settlement, which call for a Palestinian state in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

"It is clear to me that we have adopted the correct road to peace ... there is no doubt that the only way to peace is the path chosen by the government," Begin told the Israeli parliament, or Knesset.

"We have done our share. We have made our contribution. Now it is the turn of the other side."

While Begin was speaking, about 200 demonstrators from the Israeli town of Yamit, in the occupied Sinai, protested outside the Knesset. The residents fear their town will be in Egyptian territory after Israel withdraws from Sinai.

Speaking in calm, measured tones, Begin outlined for the first time in public the plan for Palestinian self-rule that he presented to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Ismailia Christmas day, including continued Israeli military presence in part of the occupied territories.

While Sadat reported some progress on Israeli withdrawal from Sinai, he and Begin were deeply divided over the Palestinian issue. The Knesset will vote on Begin's plan, and despite some opposition in the ranks of Begin's own Likud Party, he seemed certain to get a majority.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan was at his accustomed seat in the Knesset after a mysterious absence on Tuesday. Israeli press reports said today he flew secretly to Iran to report to the shah on Mideast developments and seek his influence in drawing Jordan into the peace talks.

In his remarks before the Knesset, Begin clearly implied that the plan made major concessions and was a fitting reply to Sadat's breakthrough visit to Jerusalem last month, where he called on Israel to take "hard decisions."

But Begin added the autonomy plan did not mean Israel was relinquishing its claim to sovereignty over the West Bank and Gaza.

"We have a rightful claim to this part of the land of Israel," he said. "It is our land."

But he acknowledged that both Jordan and the Palestinians had conflicting claims to the same land.

For that reason, Begin said, Israel was suggesting that the question of sovereignty over the West Bank and Gaza remain open until the claims can be resolved.

"If these conflicting claims remain, and if there is no answer to this conflict, an agreement will not be possible with the Arab states," Begin said. In other Mideast developments:

—Officials in Tehran said President Carter will hold separate meetings in the Iranian capital Friday with Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and King Hussein of Jordan. Mideast peace and Indian Ocean strategy are expected to be high on the agenda.

—Damascus Radio said headline Arab nations will convene a second summit soon to counter Sadat's peace drive. Beirut newspapers said the session will take place Jan. 8 in Algiers. The first anti-Sadat summit took place in Tripoli, Libya, last month.

Opinion Due By Friday On John Doe

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Division of Social Services officials in Raleigh, yesterday said they are awaiting a formal opinion from the Attorney General's office before deciding who should pay medical expenses for "John Doe", hospitalized in Greenville since September 30.

The unidentified man was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital after being struck by a train in Wilson County.

Pitt hospital officials said the man's bill totals more than $15,000.

Assistant Attorney General William W. Webb said last week he recommended that the state pay the portion of the bill not covered by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The federal portion would cover 68 per cent of the treatment costs.

Normally the county of a person's residence would be responsible for the bill, Webb said, but in this case it would be unfair to designate a county because the patient's identity is unknown.

"In this unique case, and I emphasize unique, I felt the state should assume responsibility," according to Webb.

Webb met with Department of Human Resources officials yesterday in an effort to make a final determination in the case.

However, John Syria of the Division of Social Services said, "We have asked the Attorney General's office for a formal opinion on the matter," and indicated that the Attorney General's office, "will have it to us by Friday...as to whose responsibility it is."

Webb noted that the injured man's only known connection with Wilson County is the fact that he was found there, and his only known link with Pitt County is that he was transferred from a Wilson hospital to Pitt Memorial Hospital because a neurosurgeon was available in Pitt.

By JON BIXBY
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Without a topcoat in below-freezing weather, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell left a federal prison camp today on a medical furlough to find out whether he needs surgery to remedy an arthritic hip.

Despite the cold, Mitchell told reporters "it's a lovely morning." The 64-year-old former Cabinet member was granted a temporary leave to let his doctors examine him. He must return to the prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base by Jan. 15 to finish serving a 1-year to 4-year term for his part in the Watergate scandals. He becomes eligible for parole June 21.

Mitchell left the prison compound with a Montgomery lawyer, Ira DeMent, and a city detective. DeMent was U.S. attorney in the middle district of Alabama while Mitchell was attorney general.

They left in a station wagon and went to an airport, where Mitchell boarded a private plane for Washington.

About 10 other inmates stood watching as Mitchell left the prison shortly after 7 a.m.

Mitchell also has applied for presidential clemency in connection with the arthritic condition, but no action has been taken.

Attorney William D. Hundley, who represents Mitchell, declined to say where the medical examination will take place.

Hundley said last week that Mitchell is suffering from "a rare form of arthritis that eats away at the hip bone. They take out what's left and put in an artificial hip bone."

The attorney said in court earlier that the operation could not be done while Mitchell is in prison. He said Mitchell is experiencing extreme pain and his mobility "has become severely impaired."

Federal prisoners in need of major surgery normally are transferred to a medical center at Springfield, Mo. But Norman A. Carlson, head of the federal prison system, said "security considerations" precluded moving Mitchell there.

The Justice Department said it expects a report on Mitchell's condition by Jan. 12, after which a decision will be made on further medical treatment.

Mitchell entered the Maxwell prison camp last June 22 to serve a 2½-to-8-year sentence for conspiracy, obstructing justice and lying to a grand jury and the Senate in the Watergate case. The sentence later was reduced to 1 to 4 years.

BURIED IN RUBBLE — Rescue workers pull a woman onto a backboard this morning after digging her free from the wreckage and grain. She had been buried by rubble after an explosion ripped through a grain elevator at Galveston. (AP Laser-photo)

Search Wreckage Of Grain Elevator

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Rescuers dug through the rubble of a grain elevator today seeking survivors of a thunderous explosion that ripped through the structure, killing at least seven people and injuring 23.

A man and a woman were pulled from beneath the twisted steel and hunks of concrete shortly after midnight, but police said seven or eight more people were believed missing. Choking concrete dust and smoke hampered search efforts, overcoming at least 15 rescue workers.

Authorities declined to speculate on what caused the blast, the second explosion at an American grain elevator in five days. An explosion leveled an elevator complex in New Orleans on Thursday, killing 34 people, and searchers are still combing the rubble for a missing man. The cause of that explosion has not been determined.

Authorities said the blast here apparently occurred in a tunnel that connected the elevator to a loading dock. Two ships were unloading grain at the time but were towed away by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Grain elevators such as the one at Galveston contain highly volatile grain dust that can ignite and explode from even the smallest spark.

State and local police, fearing other blasts might be triggered by a still-smoldering fire, closed off the north end of Galveston Island. "It's still a dangerous situation," Fire Chief Hugh O'Donohoe said.

Police Lt. D.K. Lack said seven deaths had been confirmed. Officers had reported earlier that 10 bodies had been recovered but later said several had been counted twice.

The force of Tuesday night's blast at the Farmer's Export Grain Co., which occurred about 8:30 p.m. and was heard 70 miles away, tore two gaping holes in the side of the 13-story main elevator.

The facility includes 40 silos and has a capacity of 3.5 million bushels of grain.

Automobile-sized chunks of concrete were thrown more than 200 feet and a railroad switch engine was twisted into a tangle of steel. Windows were shattered a mile away in the downtown section of this port city of 65,000 about 50 miles southeast of Houston.

Don McCoy, a spokesman for John Sealy Hospital, said 23 people were treated at the hospital for burns. Two were listed in critical condition.

Volatile Dust

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —

The grain elevator explosion that killed at least 34 people last week has produced its first damage suit — one seeking $2.9 million for a critically burned survivor. Cranes and bulldozers continue to scratch through broken concrete and steel seeking the body of a missing man, while 10 survivors remain in hospitals.

The lawsuit was filed against Continental Grain Co. on Tuesday in state district court on behalf of one of the hospitalized survivors, Jody Patterson of River Ridge.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration does not know why the huge Continental elevator exploded Thursday.

"We have to work from interviews with witnesses, statements from survivors, reports from plant officials," said Marvin Schierman, OSHA area director. "Any direct evidence of what triggered the explosion probably went up with the blast."

The Continental elevator, with a capacity of 6 million bushels, had 73 silos, each 130 feet high. A spark from some unknown source ignited a blast that ripped the top off a 250-foot high grain mixing building and 43 of the silos. Tons of rubble buried a two-story control building and lunchroom beside the mixing building.

URBAN CHICKENS

I live in a residential neighborhood of Greenville and have neighbors who keep chickens and roosters. What surprises me is that there are no laws or policies prohibiting the boarding of domestic fowl on one's property. Going beyond this is the fact that these animals do not even have to be fenced in or restricted. What a ridiculous double standard for a city to enforce a leash law for restriction of dogs, but allow chickens to roam freely. I strongly urge the City Council to consider action on this matter. With the high cost of housing today, it is a shame for a family to pay for expensive residential property only to have the appearance of that property resemble a barnyard. If I wanted to live on a farm, I would do so and not be assessed tax money which should support programs to prevent such unhealthy conditions. R. H.

Saudi Claims No Favors In Lance Deal

ATLANTA (AP) — A wealthy Arab businessman says his bid to buy most of Bert Lance's stock in the National Bank of Georgia is strictly business, not an attempt to curry favor with Lance or Lance's close friend, President Carter.

"If I made business decisions based on that, I wouldn't be today what I am," said Ghaith R. Pharaon, a stocky, cigar-puffing Saudi businessman who heads an international conglomerate with assets of $150 million. "We have influence in our own country."

Pharaon has offered to buy 60 percent of the bank's stock, including 120,000 shares held by Lance, at $20 a share — nearly double the price it was fetching a month or so ago.

He met with reporters, bank executives and the bank's board of directors for the first time on Tuesday and told the bank's top officers he has no plans to remove them.

NBG President Robert Guyton predicted the change of ownership will have a favorable impact on the bank, which has lost about $1.5 million in the first nine months of 1977.

During a news conference, Pharaon declared that his aim is to become even richer and believes the value of the bank's stock will rise "rather dramatically in the years to come."

But he insisted the price he's offering for the stock is not inflated and not designed to win favor with the president by helping bail Lance out of a well-publicized financial hole. "Why should I bail somebody out and put myself into a hole?" he replied to reporters' questions.

Lance, who resigned as Carter's budget director following investigations of his financial affairs, agreed that the price was not inflated and said, "I'm not for sale; I've never been for sale, and that stands on its own."

He acknowledged that the deal would help cure what he referred to as "my so-called sick loans." "I think it covers that and makes them well, if indeed they ever were sick," he said.

Criticism of Lance during U.S. Senate hearings included allegations that not all his loans — some of them substantial — were "fully collateralized."

As president of the National Bank of Georgia, he had borrowed heavily to purchase the bank's stock.

Meet Friday

According to J.C. Galloway, one of the leaders in the Agricultural Strike Force in Pitt County, a special meeting will be held at the Pitt County Buruea office at 2 p.m. Friday to select representatives to meet with the Secretary of Agriculture in Omaha, early next month.

Galloway urged as many farmers as possible to attend the Friday after session.

President On TV Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is expected to look ahead into 1978 and reflect on 1977 during a television interview tonight.

The questioners for the 8 p.m. program will be Barbara Walters of ABC; Tom Brokaw of NBC; Bob Schieffer of CBS and Robert McNeil of the Public Broadcasting Service.

The hour-long program will originate from the Red Room of the White House.

Couple Will Be Wed In Sky Aboard Boeing 737

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Bonnie Kennedy says she has always wanted her wedding to be "something different," and if her plans work out she will have her wish.

For Bonnie and Mel H. Connor plan to be married Thursday evening aboard a chartered Piedmont Airlines jet. The plane will take off from Smith Reynolds Airport in Winston-Salem at 7:45 p.m. with a wedding party of 94 friends and relatives aboard. When the plane returns at 8:45 p.m., Connor, 30, and Miss Kennedy, 23, will be husband and wife.

Miss Kennedy, secretary to Guilford County sheriff Paul H. Gibson, admits to some trepidation about the in-flight ceremony.

"I've only flown once, and that was on a small plane, so I'm scared," she said. But she said other members of the wedding party are liable to be even more uneasy.

"At least half of the people on the plane have never flown," she said. "My mother has never flown, and she's petrified, but she's going."

The groom, a veteran of four years service on the state Highway Patrol, is not worried, she said. Connor spent seven years working on U.S. Air Force jets before he joined the patrol and has made many flights.

The in-air ceremony, however, was not his idea, she said. It was suggested by a friend, James E. Flynt Jr., a real estates dealer, after the couple announced their engagement in May. Flynt, who arranged to get the plane, will be best man.

Two bridesmaids and a matron of honor will join Flynt and two ushers at the front of the jet's flower-strewn passenger compartment to witness the marriage. Ralph Guffey, a Guilford County magistrate, will perform the ceremony. Afterwards there will be cake and champagne.

A wedding rehearsal Christmas night showed there will be complications.

"We'll all walk down the aisle," she said, "but it's a little cramped. The bridesmaids and the ushers can't stand up."

The size limitations of a Boeing 737 jet also negated plans to take along a portable organ. "We're just going to try to have a record of 'Here Comes the Bride' played over the plane's sound system."

If weather grounds the plane, "we'll be married at the Holiday Inn in Greensboro," she said.

MRS. WALTER DEAN CUNNINGHAM

Couple Weds Tuesday Evening In Salisbury

SALISBURY — The marriage of Elizabeth Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller Boyd Jr. of Salisbury, and Walter Dean Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Cunningham of Asheville, took place Tuesday evening.

The Rev. Uly Harrison Gooch performed the ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in Saint Luke's Episcopal Church. Music was presented by James Henderson Padgett.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The matron of honor was Mrs. Louis Miller Boyd III of Charlotte.

Bridesmaids included Miss Mary Louise Dettie, Miss Laura Marina Godfrey and Miss Katharine Marshall Osborne, all of Salisbury, Miss Terri Dreier of Raleigh, and Miss Bonnie Lynn Neilsen of Hendersonville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Thomas Joel Cunningham of Asheville, brother of the bridegroom, Louis Miller Boyd III of Charlotte, brother of the bride, Adrian Keith Black of Asheville, Michael James Justus of Stone Mountain, Ga., James Mood Chapman of Chapel Hill, and Lee Samuel Williams of Lenoir.

After the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride's parents entertained at a wedding reception at the Salisbury Country Club.

The bride graduated from UNC-CH and was a member of Phi Mu fraternity. She is presently attending Catawba Valley Technical Institute of Hickory in a two-year physician assistant program. The bridegroom received his B.S. in agricultural engineering and his professional engineer's in civil engineering from N. C. State University. He is currently

Bequeaths Self As Loving Legacy

DEAR ABBY: I hope you find the following worthy of your column:

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'Bed of Life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to a man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain.

Give my blood to the teenager who has been pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week.

Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses, and all prejudice against my fellow man.

Give my soul to God.

If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever."

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and travels over a large territory, which means he must be away from home over the weekend quite often.

He keeps asking me to meet him out of town for the weekend as he gets lonesome for me.

Abby, we have three children, 8, 11 and 13, and although I can always get someone to take care of the children, I have mixed emotions about running off and leaving them just to keep my husband company. What would YOU do?

TRAVELER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I would join my husband as often as common sense and practicality allowed. I would rather have someone taking care of my children than my husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Are you registered to vote? If not, why not? You don't know where to register? Phone either the Republican or Democratic Party headquarters, tell them where you live and ask them where you should register.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Here in New York, knowing eaters go to several shops specializing in Italian-style foods to buy Pepper Bread. Recently a friend sent us a homemade loaf of it. Delicious! We cadged the recipe for you.

ITALIAN-STYLE PEPPER BREAD
¾ pound salt pork
6 cups (about) unbleached flour
2 envelopes dry yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons ground black pepper

Cut the skin away from the salt pork; slice ¼-inch thick; dice into ¼-inch pieces. In a heavy 9-inch skillet over moderate heat, cook the salt pork until browned and crisp. With a slotted spoon, remove the pork bits (cracklings) from the fat and set aside. Reserve 3 tablespoons of the fat.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 3 cups of the flour, the yeast, sugar and pepper. Add 2 tablespoons of the reserved fat and the water. Beat at low speed until blended. Beat at high speed for 3 minutes. With a wooden spoon, stir in the cracklings and enough flour (about 2 cups) to make a smooth dough.

Turn out the dough onto a lightly floured board. Knead in enough flour to make a stiff dough. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm (about 80 degrees) place until doubled — about 45 minutes. Punch down dough. Cut into 3 equal pieces. On a lightly floured board roll each piece into a 12-by-10-inch rectangle. Roll up tightly; shape into a circle; overlap ends to fasten.

Place on greased cookie sheets. Brush lightly with remaining 1 tablespoon reserved fat. Cover and let rise as previously until doubled — about 30 minutes. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until bread sounds hollow when tapped with fingers — about 30 minutes. Cool on wire racks. Makes 3 round loaves.

School-Move In Mid-January

Because of construction delays the new city Middle School move will not be made during the holidays as was scheduled. The new school is being built on Arlington Boulevard near Hooker Road. Plans had been made to move from Agnes Fullilove to the new facility so that classes could begin there after the holidays.

Now school officials say it will be mid-January before a move can be made.

The move would have been easier to make with the extra time available during the holidays. That is not possible now, however and we suppose the city schools will just have to make the best of the situation.

Ingram's Names Added To Growing List

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram joined the growing list of candidates for the U. S. Senate Democratic nomination.

The winner will have the formidable job of facing Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in the November election for the six year term of office. Ingram's battles with the insurance companies have made him well known in North Carolina. His entry into the Democratic field of candidates should mean quite a fight during next year's campaigning.

Budgets 'Beyond Control'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There is some sad and pessimistic news for Tar Heels as a new year begins: control over government spending and relief from spiraling taxes don't appear to have much chance.

Inflation continues to drive the cost of living upward; and that hits government's pocketbook just the same as the family purse. Briefly put: government will spend from 10 to 15 percent more just to keep doing business as usual. Any new offerings will up the ante even more.

Admitted, the income for government also increases with inflation. As more money is earned and spent, more taxes are automatically paid. That's the prime reason government revenues continue to rise even without a tax increase. That's also the reason those much-heralded tax cuts never seem to help individuals a great deal—the trimming is offset by inflationary salary increases which push the recipient into a higher tax bracket where he pays more despite the thought he is paying less.

Some Tools

There has been some attention to late at state and federal levels of government to Zero-based Budgeting, and to Sunset laws. It is now becoming clear, however, that neither holds promise for immediate change in direction for government spending, nor impact of such proportions as to sharply alter the upward pattern.

An overview of governmental spending practices and procedures may help illustrate the problem. At the foundation, legislative group (the Congress, the General Assembly, the Town Council, the Board of County Commissioners) is supposed to set overall policy goals and general directions to be implemented by the executive branch.

But the legislators don't have the time, staff, expertise, and access to knowledge and information which the executives have; so the executives bring in a draft budget to get things started.

The chief executive (President, Governor, Mayor, Chairman, or Town Manager) provides opportunity for all the operating agencies under his control to submit budget proposals privately.

Most bureaucrats "shoot the moon" knowing full well things will be cut. Additionally, the agency bosses assign the grim budget chore to budget officers rather than program people.

In sum, so much internal politicking goes into that draft budget that by the time the chief executive lays it before the legislators it has become not just a guide, but a proposal. The jockeying which went into its production and the information which dictated decisions will never be known to the public or the legislators.

The proposed spending program thus becomes "The Budget" and the executives cry foul at any legislative tampering.

The Law

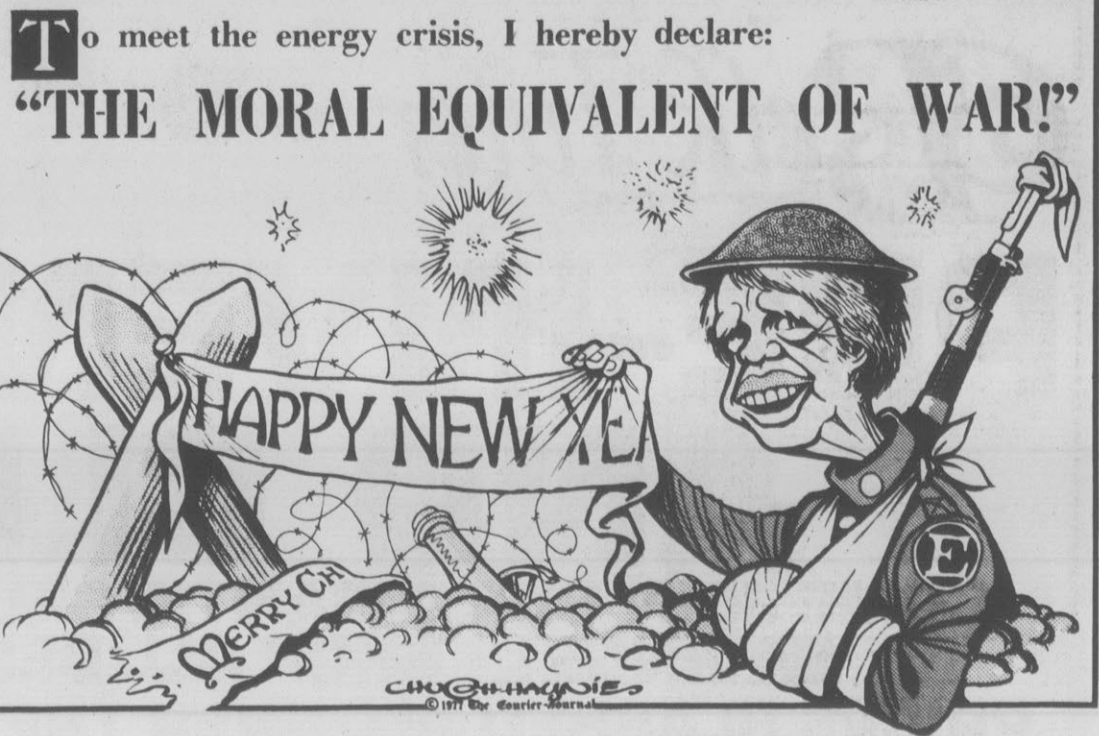

Once the anticipated trimming has been done, the budget authors get downright obnoxious about further cuts: they will warn of unschooled children, marching police or fire protectors, striking gar-bagemen, and vehicles falling apart at the seams. Further, mandates of the law (federal is the favorite one) will be pointed out as requiring this, that, or the other. The legislators have no way of refuting such legal citations or warnings of dire consequence and usually succumb eventually to approval.

(Examples: laws dictate students-per-teacher; square feet per jail inmate or hospital patient; gravel depths in roadbeds; bathrooms per mile on Interstate highways; runway lengths and widths; daycare workers-per-child; right-of-way widths; handicapped entrances and toilets; safety equipment; and so on and on and on.)

Then there are the public pressures—organized groups, lobbyists, self-interest organizations—demanding special consideration. Meanwhile, public employees, now better organized than ever, keep the heat turned on for added pay and fringes.

Any wonder legislators (federal, state, or local) are wrestling with little success with runaway government spending?

To meet the energy crisis, I hereby declare:

"THE MORAL EQUIVALENT OF WAR!"

"When I said I'd have the boys out of the trenches by Christmas... I didn't say WHICH Christmas."

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Shepherd In A Pickup

SCRABBLE, VA. — Not long ago, Reader's Digest carried a little quote from Robert Frost the great New England poet said he could sum up everything he had ever learned in only three words: Life goes on. Here in the Blue Ridge Mountains at Christmas time, the lesson tends to sink in.

The words themselves constitute a simple statement of fact; there is no particular inspiration in them. Nothing in the phrase suggests that what is to come will be any better or any worse than what has gone before. We have only the assurance, born of centuries of observation, that life is eternal. The condition we think of as "death" is no more than a different form of life.

To the casual eye, most of our countryside is dead this time of year. The pastures have faded from a pale green to a dull brown. A few tan leaves still cling to the oaks, but the other trees are bare. Ten months of the year, we have some variety of wildflower growing on the roadsides; now there are none. In the kitchen garden, the perennial herbs evince no sign of life. Most of the time, the very air is still as death. Smoke rises from our chimneys, pencil-thin, straight as charcoal scratches on the sky. The farm ponds are dark stones of onyx set in ice.

Ordinarily we have activity all around us. Everything is in motion—people, tractors, birds, rabbits, flags, lawnmowers, youngsters playing tennis. The garden produces vegetable crops so rapidly that a bean patch has to be picked two times a day. The summer clouds like clipper ships go cruising through the mountains. Now in winter one bleak day slides silently past another. We had only nine hours and 19 minutes of daylight on Wednesday, or so the almanac said; by the time the pale sun pushed over Red Oak Mountain and penetrated the gray shrouds, it was 10 o'clock in the morning and the day half gone. This is how it is in winter. In Rappahannock County, we say, things are dead.

But, you see, it is not so. In summarizing his accumulated wisdom, Frost was expressing an eternal verity. Life goes on. One minute at a time, the days grow longer. Beneath the frozen crusts of our fields, an insect world is not dead, but merely sleeping. The life that will manifest itself three months hence in tree frogs and katydids and honeybees has not ended. Under the wet leaves, acorns even now are bursting, struggling to put down their roots. The whole marvelous process of birth, growth and decomposition follows a pattern as inexorable as the equinoctial procession. Life goes on.

We thought of these ancient patterns and rhythms the other night. We had been reading the Christmas story as Luke told it in his second chapter. He spoke of "shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night." A little before 4 o'clock in the morning, I happened to awake; I had an uneasy feeling of lights where there ought not to be lights, and I peered through a bedroom window toward the western pastures.

It was my neighbor Jimmy Falls in his pickup truck. His headlights bored two yellow cones of light through a cold and drizzling rain. He had 36 cows out there; most of them had already calved, but one cow was in trouble. He had heard her bawling cry, and interpreted its meaning; and he had come out in the pickup truck, precisely as the shepherds in Luke, to watch over his flock by night.

I asked him about it the next day. It had been a case of twin calves, successfully delivered. He took one of the calves and put it to a cow whose own calf has been stillborn the day before, and mother and adopted child took instantly to each other. Life goes on.

This is a part of the meaning, it seems to me, of the whole life of Christ. Christmas and Easter, birth and resurrection, are all bound up together. When we deal in miracles, the birth of a black angus calf are matters of degree. We are dealing with patterns, with cycles, with a magnificent plan that embraces the turning of a planet and the gestation of a cow.

On the night that Christ was born, the shepherds and the wise men came on foot, or they came by camel, to attend the birth of a man by

Opines Coast Is Key

By DAVID TOMLIN

Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's coastal region may hold a key to the economic survival of the entire state in the decades just ahead, says Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange.

Vickery makes this heavy-weight assertion from a curious platform—he is co-chairman of a study commission assigned to find out whether the state should seek creation of a Sea World marine tourist attraction for North Carolina.

But the state senator from Chapel Hill can't help viewing this rather modest task—as he does many other things—as a small piece of a much larger and grimmer picture. The state's economy, Vickery says, is in trouble.

"Our economy basically rests on four areas of support," he said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

"First there's agriculture, and I don't think anybody denies that in the next 20 years that area is going to feel a considerable pinch," Vickery said, referring to government antismoking efforts and threats to reduce or dismantle the federal price support program for tobacco. "Then there's textiles," he added. "Everyone knows those products can be made more

One hundred and eight families were helped through the Thrift Shop during this Christmas season. Sixteen duplications were prevented and four known duplications occurred due to non-cooperating organizations. All organizations in Greenville but two did cooperate. William Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, announced employment in General Motors plants throughout the United States would be reduced by about 30,000 employees, effective January 1.

Knudsen said, "The recession in business makes a readjustment of the working force necessary."

The reduction in Michigan, he said, will approximate 20,000 employees.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Tax Reality And Rhetoric

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When a feisty Gerald R. Ford breezed through town last week offering all manner of advice for his successor in the White House, one tip to the President was widely echoed by Democratic politicians: what little tax reform you now propose is still too much.

The unveiling of President Carter's tax package shows heavy emphasis on a $25 billion tax reduction to stimulate the economy with only a symbolic smattering of his once ambitious tax reform. But former President Ford told newsmen over breakfast that even a smattering would delay tax reduction far too long. That is one Ford judgment concurred in by important Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, who want tax reduction and tax reform divorced.

Such a divorce would recognize that the old recipe of tax cuts sweetening the sour taste of tax reform is an illusion. It is one of many tax reform illusions shattered this year, the biggest of all being that a total rewrite of the Internal Revenue code could bring equity, social justice and redistribution of income. The events of 1977 show that kind of talk flies on the campaign stump but crashes in the real world.

Jimmy Carter was perhaps the last official in his administration to take seriously his campaign promises for a radical revision of the tax system he called "a disgrace to the human race" during the campaign. Just two months ago, the President was sticking to a tax reform program of unprecedented breadth—including tougher tax treatment for capital gains.

But whereas the vague notion of reform as a campaign issue delighted voters, the prickly details of reform as a legislative proposal outraged taxpayers. Democratic Congressmen tried to explain to the White House that there simply is no constituency for tax reform, drawing the private reaction from presidential aides that courage is in short supply on Capitol Hill.

The tide began turning when the Treasury and Council of Economic Advisers began to look on tax reduction not as a sweetener for tax reform but as an indispensable end in itself to help the economy—particularly after the massive, unscheduled increase in Social Security payroll taxes. At the same time, the Treasury turned against tougher capital gains taxation. The inevitable decision to jettison a comprehensive tax reform that could only drag down a needed tax cut was resisted to the end by the President.

What little tax reform is left consists mainly of face-saving by Mr. Carter. The proposal to permit deduction of only 50 per cent of the cost of business meals satisfies Mr. Carter's overblown campaign crusade against "three-martini lunches," a legacy from the 1972 McGovern campaign.

But the cost of face-saving will be a lobbying campaign by the restaurant industry that would slow the tax package's progress. Nor is countervailing support likely from Congressmen who feel no political gain in cracking down on tax-deductible meals. They fear specific anger from lower-middle income purchasing agents and salesmen about to lose perquisites of their jobs would swamp vague approval from the general public.

What really could slow down the tax cut, however, is the proposed tighter tax treatment of income earned by foreign subsidiaries of U.S. concerns. With millions of corporate revenue at stake, the fight would be intense and prolonged.

Jerry Ford's prediction that even these limited reforms would delay passage of the tax cut until next September at the earliest is no exaggeration. Consequently, Ways and Means Democrats would like to go ahead with the tax cut quickly and worry about time-consuming tax reform later.

There is ample precedent for this. No combined reduction-reform has passed Congress since 1964.

The matter is put succinctly by Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a key Ways and Means member. As a liberal and Carter loyalist, Mikva was instrumental in exposing to the administration the folly of its original tax reform plans. Now, he is telling the President this: if you really want your tax reduction, cut it loose from what remains of tax reform.

This poses another choice for Mr. Carter between campaign rhetoric and governmental reality. The way his tax package has turned out shows his selection, however reluctantly, of reality. Now he is being advised to get rid of the remaining rhetoric.

Strength For Today

A FAITHFUL SERVANT

One of the most noted men of the nineteenth century was Louis Pasteur. Yet the opposition and persecution to which he was subjected almost passes belief. To judge from the many accusations hurled against him, he was a cheap and stupid charlatan.

After many years of experiment, he grew antibodies in his laboratory which made dogs immune to rabies. But because of the bitter opposition to his work, he was afraid to try the treatment on humans. Then one day a mother brought to Pasteur's laboratory a little boy suffering from bites inflicted by a mad dog. Pasteur knew what the attempted cure might cost—death for the boy, disgrace and probably prison for himself, and certainly the end of his work as a scientist. But he took the chance, even though, as he said later, "my hand trembled."

He also prayed, for Pasteur was a man of faith. And after many anxious days the certainty of the cure was established, and the name of Pasteur rang round the world.

Free Trade Concept Strained

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — The concept of international free trade as a vehicle for world prosperity is being strained by the realities.

So huge have been Japanese exports to the United States, at least in relation to its purchases, that organized labor is pushing for restrictive legislation, contending American jobs are being lost.

Labor is not without support from government and business either, although American officials are currently seeking to negotiate restrictions on imports rather than issuing quotas or raising tariffs.

Japan, which has built up an $8 billion annual surplus with the United States, has rebelled against proposed limitations, indicating at one point that it could shave the surplus only by $1 billion.

Germany and some other European nations also are disturbed by the U.S. reluctance to permit certain goods, steel for example, to be imported at what are said to be prices below production costs.

Japan and Germany, insists the United States, should be doing more to expand their own economies, thereby making them more likely markets for U.S. goods, instead of attempting to accumulate more and more dollars.

By declining in value, the dollar, meanwhile, has been seeking its own remedy to the trade imbalance, now running at an annual rate of better than $27 billion.

A declining dollar has the effect of making foreign goods cost more in the U.S. market, and U.S. goods cost less in markets abroad. Few monetary authorities, however, believe a declining dollar can do the job alone.

In fact, the continued dollar shrinkage could have domestic repercussions, one of the more dangerous being a flight of capital from the United States, thus making it more difficult for business to borrow.

After exhibiting what some Europeans refer to as "malign neglect," President Carter has now indicated the U.S. government will attempt to maintain greater order in foreign exchange markets by stabilizing the dollar.

Most trade authorities agree that a stable currency, preferably the dollar, is absolutely needed if international trade is to prosper. When values of widely used currencies fluctuate, trade is thrown into chaos.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers and snow for New England. Cold temperatures are due for most of the country. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Frigid weather gripped North Carolina today, bringing overnight temperatures that ranged in the teens over much of the state.

Meanwhile, in the northwest mountains, main roads were reported icy in spots in Ashe and Watauga counties, and secondary roads required snow tires. All other roads were reported open.

Asheville was one of the coldest spots with a low of 13 degrees, but Hickory and Greensboro were nearly as cold with 14 and 15, respectively. Other lows included Cherry Point, Rocky Mount and Wilson 19, Raleigh 20, Wilmington 21 and Charlotte 25.

Today's forecast called for continued unseasonably cold with temperatures getting no higher than the 20s in the northwest mountains, ranging to around 40 on the coast.

Tonight's lows will range from the teens in the west to around 20 on the coast, and this range will continue through Friday. High readings will show a slight warming trend Thursday, and by the New Year weekend the prospect is for still warmer with a chance of rain.

cheaply abroad, and import quotas are not going to provide a complete answer. We're going to be hurt tremendously in the next 20 years."

Furniture and tourism, Vickery says, are the other two great mainstays of the state's economy, and that's where his Sea World project comes in.

"In the long range future of North Carolina, we've got to look to tourism as an expanding economic segment," the senator said. "We've got to look to our shoreline to produce an economic base."

A Sea World-style marine attraction might provide one nucleus around which other development might cluster, he said. But there's one hangup.

"Some people on the study commission think the Sea World idea would take on more serious impact if we pass liquor-by-the-drink," Vickery said. "Those members may feel that if the legislature doesn't approve it in May, we might as well wait until the mid-80s when the balance in the legislature shifts some more."

Vickery says liquor-by-the-drink would certainly make promotion of tourism easier, but he's not sure it would be essential to the success of a Sea World attraction.

The study commission held its first meeting this month and heard from about 15 state officials, educators and other interested parties.

Vickery said another meeting would be scheduled when the commission receives reports it has requested from government agencies on similar attractions in other states and the part government has played in them.

"I do know that North Carolina has got to do some serious economic planning," he said. "This is not a problem that's going to be here in 1977 and gone in 1978. It's going to be around for the next 20 years."

Ailing Liza Is Back At Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Liza Minnelli can be seen in "The Act" on Broadway again after a week-long bout with a bronchial infection and flu kept her out of seven shows and kept $184,000 out of the theater's cash box.

Miss Minnelli proclaimed herself well enough to work in her starring role on Tuesday, against her doctor's orders.

Miss Minnelli's physician, who examined her at midday Tuesday, recommended she stay home, but Miss Minnelli went directly to the theater to work out before the Tuesday evening performance.

"Her temperature was down, her energy was up, but she still had a little congestion in her lungs," said a spokesman for the performer.

Miss Minnelli's last performance was Dec. 20. She has no understudy in the production.

Producers of the show said they lost $184,000 because of the seven-show cancellation. Top ticket price for the sell-out show is $25, the highest priced show in Broadway's history.

No Privileges To 'CB Posse'

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a comic strip character once remarked about the CB craze, "It was inevitable that someone would parlay 'drive-in' into a billion-dollar-a-day business."
The king in the "Wizard of Id" was talking about two of his palace guards idling away their time asking for "10-36s" and otherwise racket-jawing aimlessly on their CB radios.

It was a rather astute observation on the amount of time and money many of us spend on our CB radio hobby.

But while we're spending our money on radios, meters, antennas and other equipment, some entrepreneurs are trying to parlay some of that cash for little or nothing in return.
Take the National CB Radio Posse. Or some of the organizations offering to register CB "handlers," implying that once registered, your nickname is off-limits to any other CBER.
"A gimmick," is the way the International Association of Chiefs of Police describes the CB Posse proposal of membership for only $12.

What does the CBER get in return?
He gets a membership card that the organization says "may be used to get admitted to special police and fire department association functions."
"It's hardly worth the paper it's printed on," says Bill Ellingsworth, IACP director of public affairs. "It and $5 will admit you and anybody else to the police auxiliary ball."

The CBER also gets a "special auto emblem to identify you as a Posse member to police and fire officials and achieve instant respect and special recognition as a supporter of your police agencies."
But, Ellingsworth says, "If you think that's going to keep you from getting a traffic ticket, you'd better think again."

The posse member also gets "a sign for you to use while you're on duty at the scene of an accident, fire or assisting at an official CB function. This card will show you are on OFFICIAL DUTY." the membership offer says.
Sgt. Roy Kindrick of the Portland, Ore., Police Department, who like Ellingsworth was asked about the posse offer, says the "on-duty thing really gets me."

"It would lead some people to believe they would get special privileges or have more authority."
And how will the Portland police react to CB Posse membership?
"This entitles them (members) to nothing more than they already are as CBERs," he said.

Jumping Rope Has Gone Into Professional Ranks

IT AIN'T EASY — Jim Carrier jumps rope to keep in shape. Ten minutes of jumping rope is equal to running a mile in 10 minutes. (AP Laserphoto)

By JIM CARRIER
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The sting of sleet on my face stiffened my resolve: jogging would have to wait for spring. But I needed exercise to keep my waistline tire properly deflated during the long Minnesota winter. A doctor once told me the best exercise was a push away from the table, but frankly, I love to eat.

In the summer I can compensate by riding my bike to and from the doughnut shop three blocks away. For the winter, I've always wanted one of those exercise bikes but the $125 price tag has always made that dream a short one.

Then, while thumbing through an aerobics handbook, looking for an easy, cheap way out, I spotted it. A jump rope. Ten minutes of the old hop, skip and jump was a solid three points on the chart — equal to running a mile in 10 minutes.

At the sports store I found manufacturers had anticipated my interest. No less than seven types of ropes were on display, to the left of the slim gym, on the shelf over the executive dumbbell.

At the bottom of the line, for $1.95, was a string of hard plastic tubes on a thin rope. Much too noisy. For $6.95, there was a deluxe rope with the swivel hidden in the handle. The Muhammad Ali-endorsed Rope a Dope sold for as much as $8.95 for the leather model. On top of the heap, for $10.95, was the "professional skip rope" with leather rope and ball-bearing handles.

I settled for the $3.50 model made in Taiwan, featuring "wooden swivel handles and an 8-foot-6 heavy weight cotton jumprope" which promised to develop the body through "coordination and stamina." On the back of the box I was advised to wear comfortable clothing that doesn't restrict circulation. "Pick your time," it said, warning of exercising immediately after a meal.

"If you haven't jumped rope since you were a kid, don't worry," the box assured, I was ready. Rope in hand, I read on:

"Grasp the handle of your jump rope with your thumbs extended down the handles. Stand in an erect position, ankles nearly touching. Your elbows should be slightly bent, with the rope hanging slack behind your heels." So far, it was easy.

"Now, with a small circular movement of your arms, swing the rope forward over your head and jump over it. Jump from foot to foot as if running in place." The instructions concluded.

The rope arched over my head and collapsed onto my shoulders just as I leaped over nothing. But after a few false starts, I got the rhythm, confidently on my way to the count of 50, at what the box called the first week's "warm-up" rate of one jump per second.

At the count of 16 I missed. The next try collapsed at 14. By this time I was aware of my pulse and my labored breathing. I wasn't even close to 50, and the 25 "regular" exercises of two jumps per second still lay ahead.

I handed the rope to my daughter, made a few notes on my progress, and wondered: Do you suppose the leather-rope-with-ball-bearing-handle is any easier?

Plane Crash Kills All 4 Aboard

NEWBERRY, Fla. (AP) — The crash of a single engine plane in a field northwest of here has killed all four persons on board, the Alachua County Sheriff's said.

Sheriff's deputies identified the dead on Tuesday as Jack Smith, 49, and his son Richard, 26, both of Arlington, Texas; Marion Oliver Smith, 34, and his son, Marion Gregory Smith, 12 of Flat Rock, North Carolina.

The Smiths rented the single engine Beachcraft plane in High Springs, Fla., about 26 miles northwest of Gainesville. Deputies said it was apparently being used to take family members on excursion flights over Gainesville.

They said the plane crashed nose-first into the field.

Two of victims had pilot licenses but it was impossible to determine who was at the controls when the plane crashed, deputies said. They said the aircraft was about 500 feet above ground when it apparently stalled and plunged downward.

Cochran Is Recaptured

ATLANTA (AP) — Buddy Cochran, back in custody today after a prison break that gained him just 17 hours of freedom, did not get to keep his appointment with a television crew to explain why he broke out of jail.

The white ex-Marine, who plowed his sports car through a Ku Klux Klan rally in President Carter's hometown last summer, injuring 32 persons, was arrested by agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation at suburban College Park late Tuesday before he could go before the cameras.

His companion in the escape—which began 200 miles away and 17 hours earlier Tuesday at the Sumter County jail in Americus—Michael Sylvester Proctor, 30, was still at large.

Cochran was not armed and offered no resistance to law enforcement agents, said GBI Inspector Phil Peters.

Cochran was returned to the jail about 4:30 a.m., about 20 hours after his escape. Officers said he was quiet during the trip from Atlanta but became noisy when he saw the television cameras waiting for him at the jail.

An arraignment is scheduled for 11 a.m. today before Justice of the Peace J.W. Southwell.

Authorities said Cochran and Proctor, who was awaiting trial for attempted rape, sawed their way out of the jail around 7:45 a.m. and fled into surrounding woods. Officers said they found a note on the floor of the empty cell saying, "Happy New Year."

They were then driven to Atlanta by Mrs. Martha Phillips, a neighbor of Cochran's, who told law enforcement agents later that she was forced to do it. Her three children were also in the car.

After Cochran and Proctor got out of her car in Atlanta, Mrs. Phillips called her mother, who telephoned the sheriff's office in Americus. Then Mrs. Phillips drove back to Americus, Peters said, adding that she did not notify local authorities.

Club Gave Fruit And Poinsettias

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Jaycees delivered 20 fruit baskets to needy families, according to Chairman Carlton Buck.

Poinsettias were also given to Winterville residents.

According to Steve Evans of the Jaycees, "the Jaycees were trying to help everyone in the Winterville community have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Hodges Airs Net Worth

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr., who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator, revealed today that his net worth is $887,960.

In releasing a financial statement and urging other candidates to do so, Hodges said he and his wife have assets totaling $1,264,125 and liabilities of $376,165.

Hodges also revealed that in the 1976 calendar year, he and his wife, Dorothy, had an adjusted gross income of $91,356 and a joint federal income tax liability of $35,172.

Hodges resigned last June as chairman of the board of North Carolina National Bank and announced his candidacy Sept. 7.

He noted that he released his financial statement voluntarily since under federal law candidates for the Senate are not required to report their personal financial condition until May 15, 1978 — which is 13 days after the North Carolina primary.

"I said at the outset of my candidacy that I would be open and candid with the people of North Carolina, and disclosing my personal finances voluntarily before the May 2 primary is indicative of that commitment," Hodges said. "Voters have the right to know as much as is reasonably possible about candidates who seek their support. I hope the other candidates in the Senate race will join me in sharing this pertinent information with the general public."

Hodges also announced he plans to resign as board member of J.B. Ivey & Co. and Burris Industries, Inc., if he wins the Senate election. He has already resigned as a board member of NCNB and Burlington Industries, Inc.

Hoya Defined As Top Twenty Team

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Wherever Georgetown's basketball team plays, some wise guy in the crowd will undoubtedly ask the musical question, "What the heck's a Hoya?"
George Blaney has the answer today.
"They're a Top Twenty team, no doubt," says the Holy Cross coach. "They've been in the NCAA playoffs two of the last three years. I'd say you have to be pretty good to do that. As far as we're concerned, they're one of the toughest teams for us to beat."
Since the early 1940s, the Hoyas haven't really been among the nation's prestige teams — but Coach John Thompson is working on that matter in the Holiday Festival Tournament.

Generally considered in pre-game assessments to be the darkhorse of the tourney in New York's Madison Square Garden, the Hoyas are now in the running for the championship after Tuesday night's crushing 79-65 triumph over 12th-ranked Holy Cross.
The Hoyas will play for the title Thursday night against Alabama, a 68-65 victor over Princeton in the other first-round game.
"They really do play well against us," said Blaney, who has now lost three straight games to Georgetown. "Tonight, they took our game away. Our game is driving for the basket and passing — and they stopped it. You have to give Georgetown credit for that. They did a heckuva job defending us. We came in here with a good reputation — but I guess that's a little tarnished now."

After the Hoyas surprised the Crusaders, Alabama defeated Princeton in a game that was no surprise — the Tide's mercurial speed overcoming the Tigers' patient, textbook style.
"We prepare harder to play Princeton than any other team outside of the Southeastern Conference," said Alabama's Reggie King. "They're a tough team to get ready for. They do so many things well."

Derrick Jackson scored 22 points, including 10 in a game-breaking stretch, to lead the Georgetown victory. Keith McCord had 17 points and Reggie King and Robert Scott 16 each as Alabama defeated Princeton.
In another tournament, fifth-ranked Marquette won its own Milwaukee Classic for the 10th straight year with a 65-56 victory over Texas. Jerome Whitehead's 21 points paced a balanced Warrior offense.
"I said last night we would have to go inside to beat Texas, and we did," said Marquette Coach Hank Raymonds. "You've got to get a big guy like Whitehead inside and you've got to go to him."
The Longhorns hurt themselves with a poor shooting

Indiana, the nation's 15th-ranked team, whipped Jacksonville 69-59 and Florida rolled past St. Bonaventure 88-75 in opening-round games of the Gator Bowl Tournament in Jacksonville, Fla.
Mike Woodson's 21 points and aggressive rebounding by his teammates earned the Hoosiers their victory. Florida defeated the Bonnies behind Larry Brewster's 22 points.

Terry Tyler scored 20 points and had a brilliant night defensively to lead the University of Detroit's 20th-ranked Titans to a 109-71 victory over Eastern Michigan in the finals of the Motor City Tournament in Detroit.

The Titan center grabbed 23 rebounds, blocked 12 shots and had five steals to win the tourney's most valuable player prize.
Ernie Cobb scored 26 points as Boston College defeated Oklahoma 77-71 and Blake Taylor's 31 points rallied Arizona State over Oral Roberts 82-66 in opening-round action of the All-College Tournament in Oklahoma City.

Kansas State whipped Colorado 82-72 behind Curtis Redding's 30 points and Brian Banks scored 24 to spark Nebraska to an 82-72 victory over Oklahoma State in the Big Eight Tournament in Kansas City.
In the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore., Bill McShane scored 14 points and collected 12 rebounds as Oregon State rolled past Rice 75-58. In another first-round game, Rory Sparrow and Alex Bradley combined for 26 second-half points to lead Villanova to a 78-73 victory over Washington.

Doug Paschal Not Unhappy With Role Of Backup To Famous Amos

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

When the University of North Carolina took the field for the Liberty Bowl early last week, all eyes were on the highly-touted freshman "Famous" Amos Lawrence.
But early in the game, the talented Tar Heel running back suffered an injury, and he went to the bench. His replacement ended up as the game's top rusher with 77 yards.
That replacement was Doug Paschal, sophomore tailback for the Heels, who completed his illustrious high school career at Rose High School in Greenville.
Paschal, home for the holidays, said that he is enjoying playing for the Heels. "We had a good game against Nebraska, but it was a big disappointment to lose." Carolina led most of the way, falling to the Cornhuskers late in the game.
Paschal went to Carolina last season after leading Rose to a state championship in the 4-A ranks his senior year. In last year's bowl game, he turned in a fine performance despite a 21-0 loss at the hands of Kentucky in the Peach Bowl.
So it was that this fall, Paschal headed the list of candidates for the job of tailback for the Heels. But then, Lawrence made his appearance on the scene, moving Doug back to the back-up role.

"It hasn't bothered me," he said. "I didn't go up there planning to start. I just wanted to contribute whatever I could to the team. They started me at fullback and switched me to tailback after four games. I've been pleased with my progress but I need more work on some phases of my game. I especially need to work on my speed and balance."
Paschal said that there is a big difference between high school and college football. "College football is more like a business. There is more pressure. The coaches are always fighting for their jobs. I guess it was more fun in high school, but it's still pleasurable."
Doug wasn't surprised with the success of the Heels this fall. "Everyone knew we had a good defense, and we only needed to get the offense in gear. It (the offense) came along well this year."
"I feel we can be as good next year. We only lose three people off the offense, and we have capable people to replace them. The defense loses a lot, but again, I think we have the people who can step in and do the job."
During his high school days, Paschal was the type runner who just lowered his head and plowed through the defense. He admits that he hasn't changed much in the two years he's been in college. "Basically, I'm still the same type runner. I just go straight ahead to get what I can. I've tried to work on my speed to get outside, and I think I can improve that."
What do the next two years hold in store for him? Paschal isn't sure. "That's a hard question to answer," he said. "I don't know if the coaches will continue to want me to play tailback or not. But I'll play wherever they need me. Winning is a team effort, not an individual one."
And winning is something he expects to see a lot of in the coming two years. "I think we'll be a strong contender for the ACC championship again this fall. It'll be a good year."
But for now, Paschal is just sitting back and enjoying the post-bowl holidays. "I go back on the eighth and we start classes again on the tenth. Right now, all I want to do is relax."

Swimmers, Mack Among Leaders

East Carolina University's basketball and swimming teams rank among the best in the nation in individual performances through December 20, according to national rating services.
Swimmer John McCauley leads the entire nation with his current time in the 50-yard freestyle, and he stands second in the 100-yard freestyle.
McCauley's time of 20.79 seconds in the 50 freestyle puts him two-tenths of a second ahead of the number two man, Jonny Skinner of Alabama.
In the 100, Skinner holds the edge, with a time of 45.43 seconds, while McCauley is next at 46.08. East Carolina's Billy Thorne currently ranks fourth with a time of 46.65.
In addition, the 400-yard freestyle relay team has posted a time of 3:04.83, and that is over a half-second faster than anyone else in the country at this time. Alabama is second with a time of 3:05.45.
In basketball, Pirate leader

Oliver Mack continues with the national leaders in scoring. Mack, who has a 28.1 average, stands fifth in the nation in scoring. Purvis Short of Jackson State is tops at 34.6, followed by Larry Byrd of Indiana State at 31.7. Roger Phegley of Bradley is third at 29.3, while Davidson's John Gerdy is fourth at 28.7.

Jenkins Honored

Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, has been named as the "Administrator of the Year" in sports by the Greensboro Daily News.

Dr. Jenkins is the first college head to be selected for the honor, and according to the Daily News, the nomination was "long overdue."

In making the award in its annual year-end roundup which names the athlete, team, coach and administrator of the year for the state, the Daily News said, "Dr. Jenkins begins his retirement next July, and he can look back on an administrative program of planning and foresight which offers ECU as NCAA Division I. His leadership took the university from the Carolinas Conference to the Southern and to independent status."

Jenkins beat out Skeeter Francis, assistant to ACC commissioner and director of the ACC tournament; Humphy Wheeler, president of the Charlotte Motor Speedway; Billy Booe, executive director of the Kemper Open; and Bob Savod, UNC-CH promotions director.

Lanny Wadkins, former Wake Forest golfer, was the athlete of the year, while Dean Smith of Carolina was named the coach of the year. UNC Charlotte's basketball team was the team of the year.

Holland Keys Chicago Win

By The Associated Press
It was one of those "Struggles of the Titans": The Portland Trail Blazers and center Bill Walton against the Chicago Bulls and Artis Gilmore. A share of first place was on the line in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association, since the Denver Nuggets were idle and the Bulls were only one-half game behind.
"The battle between Artis Gilmore and Bill Walton is always a great matchup," observed Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "Nobody gets the better of each other. They simply equalize each other."
But while Gilmore collected 25 points and 21 rebounds to 15 points for Walton, the defending champion Trail Blazers made something of an oversight. "The key tonight was that we did not stay with (Chicago's Wilbur) Holland."
So Holland — with everyone watching Walton and Gilmore — stole the spotlight with a career-high 36 points, 14 in the final five minutes, to carry Chicago past Portland 115-106 Tuesday night.
"The key to our winning was making Portland play defense, and stopping their fast break," said Holland after helping the Bulls snap the Trail Blazers'

Duke, State, Carolina Opening ACC Holiday Basketball Action

Three Atlantic Coast Conference teams are in action tonight in holiday basketball tournaments.

Duke and North Carolina State will be playing the opening round of their annual doubleheader, with Duke taking on Duquesne and State meeting St. Joseph's.

The lights will be out and the fans gone home to bed from two games before North Carolina begins its Wednesday night contest in the opening round of the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu, Hawaii. The game doesn't begin until 2 a.m. Thursday, North Carolina time. The Tar Heels will be playing Brigham Young.

Duke thrashed Duquesne last year, 76-49, but that doesn't mean it will be easy to do the same this year.

Duquesne later earned a bid to the NCAA tournament last year and four starters this year are averaging in double figures.

The Blue Devils will be relying heavily, as usual, on forward Jim Sparnackel's 21-point scoring talents and the ACC's top rebounder, Mike Gminski, who also scores 17.1 points per game on the average.

State Coach Norm Sloan plans to continue the Wolfpack emphasis on defense and free-wheeling substitutions against St. Joe.

The Hawks, he notes, are apt to use full-court presses and fast breaks, but they'll go into the four corners when they want to slow things down. State is the heavy favorite, led by Hawkeye Whitney, who scores an average of 20 points per game. The Tar Heels shouldn't have too much trouble with Brigham Young, if they haven't gotten sunburned at the beach, a calamity that Coach Dean Smith said he had avoided as of Tuesday.

Superstar senior Phil Ford and sophomore forward Mike O'Koren will be the mainstays of the offense as usual. Brigham Young freshman Danny Ainge is the foes' prime scoring threat with a 21.5-point average.

Sam Rutigliano Is Named New Coach Of The Cleveland Browns

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — Sam Rutigliano, who equates successful coaching with good teaching, has become the fifth coach in the Cleveland Browns' 27 years in the National Football League. Rutigliano, his expressive, angular face framed by straight black hair and looking dapper in a conservative vested suit, said: "I think a successful football team is a great melting pot. There is a tremendous chemistry involved. I think you must have the proper chemistry between the management, coaching staff and the players."

"I've always dreamed of being a head coach in the National Football League," Rutigliano added moments after Browns owner Art Modell made the announcement of his appointment. "This has been my goal since I became an assistant coach in the NFL 11 years ago. I think the years of preparation I've had will serve me well."

Rutigliano, who comes to the Browns from New Orleans, where he was a receiver coach, succeeds Forrest Gregg, who resigned under pressure on Dec. 13 with his team one week away from its final record of 6-8.

Rutigliano said his first order of business will be to familiarize himself with the Browns' organization and assemble a staff, adding: "The coaches we get will be very, very important. I want coaches who are great teachers."

"They will have to be firm, fair, extremely knowledgeable and able to work with the players," he said. "Everybody has a stroke bucket, and the best coach is someone who can put an arm around a guy's shoulder when he has to or put a size 10 where it needs to be put when necessary."

Rutigliano, 45, served under Hank Stram at New Orleans and previously worked as an assistant under Lou Saban at Denver, Chuck Fairbanks at New England and Weeb Ewbank with the New York Jets.

Modell said Rutigliano was selected from a long list of candidates, which quickly was narrowed down to three finalists. The naming of Rutigliano, who follows Paul Brown, Blanton Collier, Nick Skorich and Gregg to the Browns' job, came 13 years to the day since the Browns' last NFL championship.

Inexperience, Inconsistency Bothering Williamston Tigers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Inexperience and inconsistency are currently plaguing Williamston's basketball team in the opening weeks of what coach John Hardison terms "a rebuilding year."

The inconsistency, Hardison said, is due to the fact that the Tigers are so inexperienced, and that inexperience is the result of the fact that Williamston lost eight players off of last year's team, including all but one starter.

"This is definitely a rebuilding year for us, losing eight players from last year's team. We hope to continue to improve as the season goes on. Our kids are working real hard."

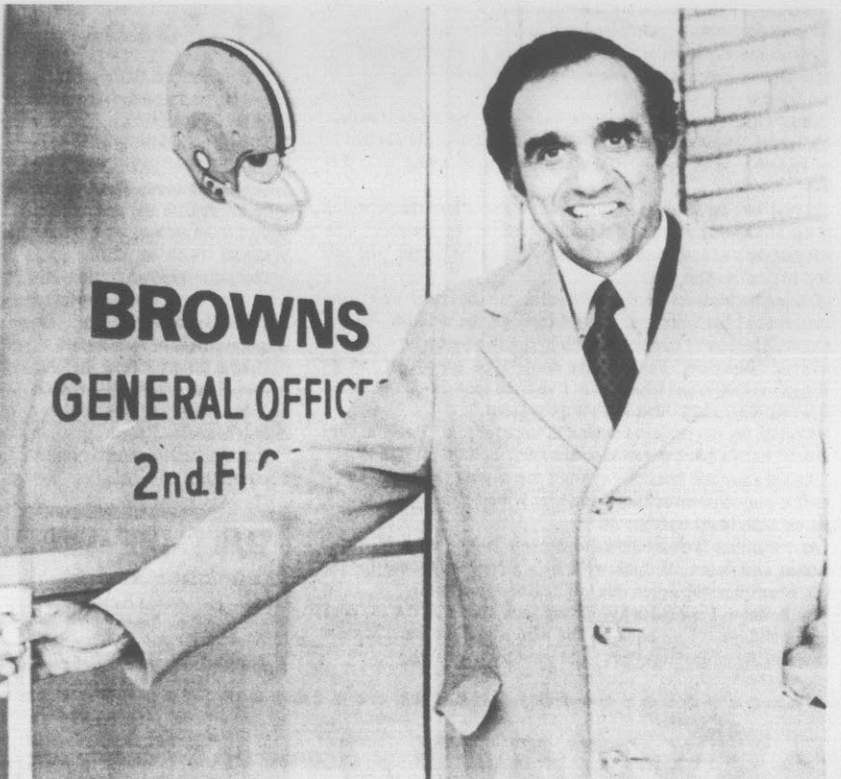

"But, right now our problem is that we are inconsistent and we're inexperienced. But, we should improve as the year goes along."

Hardison said the bright spots of the team are its quickness and defense. "We have fairly good quickness and we play pretty good defense, most of the time. Our defense is way ahead of our offense at this point of the year. Hopefully, the ball will start going in a little more for us and that will help us out quite a lot."

Despite only three returning players, the Tigers have set their goal reaching the district 3-A playoffs. "We hope to improve week by week and hope by the time the conference tournament rolls around, we'll finish somewhere in the middle. Our goal is to finish in the top four in the conference because the top four go to the district tournament."

The Tig's only returning starter is forward Horace Wynne (6-1, senior). He has been the leading scorer for the team so far this season with a 14 point average through six games. "We look to Horace for a lot of our offense," Hardison said. "He's working hard to improve his defense. He is a senior and we look to him for a lot of our leadership."

The other forward is Walter Harris (6-0, junior). "He was the leading scorer on the junior varsity last year," according to Hardison. "He's really not playing up to his potential at this time. I really think that's just the jump from junior varsity to varsity — it's taken him a little while to get adjusted."

Rutigliano Arrives

Sam Rutigliano became the fifth coach in the history of the Cleveland Browns Tuesday. Here he is shown heading for

New Ale In California Competing

By ROBERT McEWEN
Associated Press Writer
SONOMA, Calif. (AP) —
Something is brewing amid the golden fields and aromatic vineyards of California's lush wine country — but it sure ain't vino.

It's ale, brewed by a man and two women in what may be the nation's smallest commercial brewery, located outside this small rustic town 20 miles north of San Francisco.

They claim their product — "New Albion" — blows the suds off the best of the big-time brews. New Albion is the name Sir Francis Drake gave coastal California in the 17th century. His ship, The Golden Hinde, appears on the label of every bottle.

The brewery is operated solely by its three founders; John McAuliff, Jane Zimmerman and Suzanne Stern, who says the secret to brewing a better-tasting ale is the ingredients.

"Most of the domestic beers have adjuncts like corn and rice instead of the pure ingredients we use: hops, yeast, malt and water," Ms. Stern said.

She called domestic beer "a national disgrace," saying it contains "chemicals, stabilizers and all sorts of things" which hide the true, natural flavor of the brew.

On the other hand, New Albion is "very flavorful and full-bodied." You can really taste the balance between the hops and the malt.

New Albion's ingredients may be pure and simple, but the brewing process is long and complex. A mash of flaked barley, malt and water is mixed in a tub and sits for three hours before it is "sparged," or rinsed.

It flows into a brew kettle where it is boiled with fragrant hops for two hours and the mixture, called wort, is cooled. Then yeast is added, forming a frothy fluid which is left in a cool fermenting cellar for about 10 days. Commercial brews are fermented at lower temperatures to speed up the process, but the result is "that carbonated taste," Ms. Stern said.

The three work 12-hour days, brewing, bottling, cleaning and bookkeeping. New Albion turns out about 45-50 cases a week and sells them to Bay Area retailers at $14.16 a case.

Liquor stores sell New Albion at about 90 cents a bottle, including a 10 cent deposit, a price that "compares with those of imported beers," McAuliff thinks that's a bargain.

"Ours is much better than the imports you get here," he said. He compares New Albion to the ale in England or Scotland, where he first studied the brewing process while in the Navy 12 years ago.

"Like most things, you can make it cheaply or you can make an excellent product," he said. "Corporate brewers chose the first path."

McAuliff said New Albion isn't trying to compete with the giants, but Ms. Stern said the company is doing well. "Maybe," she said, "we'll become rich beyond the dreams of avarice."

Cool Views Of Program

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials are having trouble selling their Community Watch anti-crime program to North Carolina's county sheriffs.

"We thought there would be better response that we have received," said Phil Carlton, head of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "But there's no more independent group anywhere than local sheriffs."

Of the state's 100 counties only 23 have started Community Watch programs, although more than 900 communities have them. Two-thirds of those, however, were started before the state got involved.

Community Watch is a program in which neighbors are encouraged to keep an eye on each others' houses and report suspicious activity.

Jay Trivette, director of the program and a former Forsyth County Sheriff's Department lieutenant, says he has had some trouble getting the program established.

"It has been something of a problem," he said. "Some of them think we're meddling."

Trivette's program designates neighborhood chairman and block captains with instructions on what to do if they see something suspicious.

 Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Child-Warning By 'Mr. Yuk'

CHICAGO (AP) — A child who sees a skull and crossbones on a container of poison may think pirate food is inside, say researchers who want to replace the traditional warning symbol with "Mr. Yuk."

Mr. Yuk has a scowling green face, with his eyes scrunched closed and his tongue sticking out. He was born in 1971 in Pittsburgh, where pirate symbols are associated with the city's professional baseball team.

"In the last five years, there have been no deaths in Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) from accidental ingestions," said a spokesman for the National Poison Center Network, which is based at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

The network estimates that between 1,000 and 5,000 children under 5 years of age die each year of accidental poisonings nationwide.

Many of these deaths could be prevented by the use of new warning symbols like Mr. Yuk, according to a study by Kenneth C. Schneider, an assistant professor of marketing at St. Cloud State University in Minnesota. Schneider's research was published in the University of Illinois' Journal of Consumer Research.

save energy dollars
 with Lowe's energy-efficient Homesteads®

Our Low-E houses are designed from the ground up to be the most energy-efficient you can buy. Purely and simply, what we have done is combine all the existing energy-saving techniques with some innovative building methods. The result is a home that can cut heating and cooling costs up to 65%. The Arkansas Power and Light Company reports that homes built to Low-E specifications in their areas are averaging a 65% savings when compared to homes built to FHA minimum property standards. The Arkansas results are actual metered results over a 2-year period... no gimmicks, no guesses... but actual metered results! Imagine what that means to you in dollars-and-cents terms. A Low-E Homestead® represents energy savings wrapped up in one beautiful structure.

Not a pre-fab. Not a shell house. Each energy-efficient Homestead® is a complete materials package necessary to build the home of the future... today... on your lot from the foundation plate up. Construction labor costs not included.

You provide the construction labor, lot, and foundation; we provide the materials to complete — from the foundation plate up — the interior and exterior of these homes according to plans and specifications. The materials furnished will meet or exceed the national minimum property standards of FHA. Any changes required to meet local or state codes may alter the price accordingly. Lowe's quotes you one price for all the materials, so you know before you start, your total cost.

Designed from the ground up to meet the demands of a changing world. Here's how we did it!

We obviously can't go into complete detail here — we've got an 8-page brochure to do that. But, briefly, we began by doubling the standard amount of insulation used: to 12" in the ceiling and 6" in walls and floors. We used 2 x 6 studs with post and beam construction, 24" on center, in the walls to accommodate 6" insulation and specially designed trusses for 12" insulation in the attic. An electrical raceway allows application of insulation flush to the walls, while the electrical cable in the attic is strung above the insulation. We also cut window area down to 8-10% of the floor space, used caulked double-pane windows, and insulated metal doors with magnetic weatherstripping. We caulked between the sole plate and the flooring, with insulation between the sill plate and foundation wall. A vapor barrier is used next to the sub-flooring and in the walls and ceiling. The design also allows enough roof overhang to shade windows and a light-colored roof to reduce heat in summer, with natural air flow throughout the attic. Finally, polyethylene was applied to the ground in the crawl space to greatly reduce moisture accumulation.

Can cost no more to build than a minimum property standard home having similar features.

Does that sound too good to be true? Well, believe it! We've utilized some innovative building techniques to really trim labor costs. And our homes require fewer board feet of lumber, which reduces construction costs even more. Even better than that — studies have shown that a Low-E Homestead® is as structurally sound as a conventionally built one.

Interested? We've got a beautiful brochure that tells the complete energy-efficient Low-E story. It's yours for the asking — just drop by our store.

Large Recall By Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. is recalling 1.3 million cars to check possible engine-stalling problems in the biggest recall in its history.

Chrysler officials said they had received 27 reports of accidents associated with the stalling problem on 1975, 1976 and 1977 Dodge Darts, Plymouth Valiants, Dodge Aspens and Plymouth Volares. There were injuries in seven accidents.

The cars have 225-cubic-inch, six-cylinder engines or 318-cubic-inch V-8 engines.

The Detroit Free Press reported earlier this month that Chrysler discovered the problem in 1976 and told dealers, but did not tell car owners. Chrysler contended the stalling was an industry-wide problem and not related to safety.

However, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration asked Chrysler after the newspaper's story to recall the cars "in the interest of safety."

Chrysler officials said Tuesday there were "a number of people who called after the news stories" and the company had been "somewhat surprised by the breadth of the problem."

NHTSA said it had received about 1,000 complaints and that 52 accidents might be linked to the stalling problem.

The company said it does not have the necessary parts to make all the repairs immediately. When the needed parts are available, Chrysler said, it will notify owners of the recalled vehicles and correct the problem.

Under terms of the recall, Chrysler dealers will replace the accelerator pump seal in the carburetor. The company said the seals could be distorted by some kinds of unleaded gasoline.

Auctioneer Family Uses Showmanship And Style

By JANE ANDERSON
STERLING, Conn. (UPI) — It's a family affair for Robert H. Glass Sr., his wife, Barbara, and their six children aged 11 to 18. All are trained auctioneers.

The Glass family — who bought their auction gallery in Central Village south of Danielson in eastern Connecticut at an auction — conducts an average of 80 public sales a year with their busiest season between September and Christmas.

Glass says his business experience has heightened his memory. He meets a lot of people and he remembers them too — but he finds it easier to think of them as numbers.

"Who were you at the auction?" he asked a bidder. "Oh, yes, number 9. I remember, you were sitting near number 13." Glass can reel off high bids for oak tables and black walnut chests of drawers sold long ago. He can also resurrect offhand the dates of auctions of years past.

"The auction used to be viewed as a court of last resort. Now we're trying to have people see it as the court of first resort, but it's hard to change New Englanders. They think they can't have an auction at their home because, what will the neighbors say?"

Glass is proud of his three sons and three daughters, and says auctioneering gives them good practical experience in a field as old-fashioned as the antiques they sell.

"They've learned math, writing, penmanship, how to be outgoing and how to adjust easily. In a world that is so confusing to so many people, there will always be one area they can be confident they'll do well in."

"Ladies and gentlemen, don't miss this one please. Are you ready to go?"

When Glass begins the bidding at an auction, he chooses an item of quality to sell.

"I start with a $50 to $100 item. That tells the crowd that this is not a yard sale, not an untrained person. There aren't too many bargains at a well-run auction because the auctioneer knows his material and his crowd.

"We never sell buildings first. You wait until 1 p.m. to auction a building or a car or truck," he said.

How does he tell if a crowd has money to spend? "By my opening remarks. I'll say, 'Be careful when you scratch, you might own it.' If it's a stiff crowd, I won't get any reaction. If they don't budge an eyelash, it tells me I've got to work all day and call the items slowly."

"Everything in the antique world has skyrocketed. Tinware and woodenware are always strong sellers, lamps of any kind are high in demand. Anything from the Orient right now is at the top of the buyers' want list."

The dealers sit in the front 10 rows because "they're the serious buyers and want to see what's going on. Sometimes you get a pocket of men in the back who are also serious buyers."

"Here's a very good opportunity to invest in a solid American antique."

Glass looks at an item, makes an instant judgment as to its value and starts the bidding at about half of what he thinks it should be sold for.

"You have an idea of what a highboy, lowboy, chair or clock will go for, but there are no reserved bids. It goes for what it goes for. This is not the New York market or the London market. It's New England. The market is ever-changing."

"Twenty years ago round oak tables were about $15 each. Now a good one in the same style will bring $300 to $400, no questions asked. The market has dropped — I have no way of knowing why — for items like milk glass and carnival glass which was given away around the turn of the century."

Glass said the most popular items now include sets of pressed-back oak chairs which were free in 1905 to customers who turned in coupons for Larkin soap, anything made of black walnut, marble-topped bureaus, marble-topped bedroom sets and very high black walnut beds with elaborate carving.

What are steady sellers? Good paintings, Oriental rugs and solid pieces of furniture.

"A $50 bill to start it away. Who'll give 55?"

Glass was still teaching junior high school when he went to Mason City, Iowa, eight years ago for an auctioneering course. He came back to Canterbury, conducted his first sale outdoors and soon started holding auctions regularly on Saturdays in the Pachaug Grange Hall.

Then he went to an auction where a building was to be sold with four acres.

"It had a beautiful 18th century barn that had been converted to a country store and then an antique shop. Now it's our gallery. I thought I'd stop at $50,000 but I paid only $38,000 and that was on the 23rd of May of 1971."

"Then I thought, 'My Lord, I have to fish or cut bait.' It was either go to auctioneering fulltime or go back to teaching." He went to auctioneering which he says takes enthusiasm, style and a little bit of showmanship.

"He gives 55, you give 60, 60 I have, you're all alone."

"Auction fever is a psychological thing that takes over when you're there at the auction. It occurs when you as a customer decide you want something and you have in mind a price you want to pay."

"If you really want something, you may go wild on it. In reality, you're not using your head very much. That's when you're caught up in auction fever. You might call it: 'Losing your mind for a while at a sale.'"

"Sixty now, who'll give 65, 65 now, 70."

Glass said "auction fever" has a backlash.

"The ultimate goal is to get an item well sold so the seller is happy and the buyer doesn't feel I milked him for every possible dollar. You want to get the bid up but you don't want to insult people by making them think they paid too much."

"An unhappy buyer will either leave immediately or won't bid for the next item I know he wants. You don't know what is in a person's mind. He may have a limit of $30 for an item. You can take him to $40 but if you take him to $50 he may go home and say, 'I bid too high. I won't go to his auctions anymore.'"

"You give 70, 75 75 would you bid more, 75 could you bid more, 80."

"Right now we're getting ready to auction the contents of a house. It does have some fine oak and unusual walnut furniture and nice things in the attic. But it's the most filthy, dirty place I've ever been in. We set up a room downstairs in the house where we're cleaning things."

"We use a combination of linseed oil, turpentine and vinegar. The vinegar cuts the grease and dirt. We put it on the furniture with soft cloth over steel wool. Then we wipe it off and finish it with polish."

The polish is made by putting shavings of bees wax in a can, covering the wax with turpentine and letting it stand for four or five days until it jells.

"Put that on furniture and it will give a glow like no commercial product. It's an old New England recipe. It's very successful."

"Eighty do you want it, 80 can you use it, who'll give 85?"

The Glass family sells anything from tools and ladders, dolls and china, household linens and patchwork quilts to camps, restaurants and service stations.

But the most unusual — and the most expensive — object Glass has sold was a sculpture by Karl Bitter of a young maiden holding an olive branch with a deer at her feet. It was on a large stone pedestal and had been the center of fountains on a 350-acre estate in Westbrook.

"I lived on the property in a mobile home before the auction for 30 days with armed guards and guard dogs. It was a 20-foot walled-in estate with two houses that had to be emptied and put under a large tent. We had a two-day sale. That was three years ago this coming May 15."

The sculpture, a signed piece done in 1899 by Bitter, who carved the doors to Pennsylvania Station in New York City brought $8,100.

"Eighty-five, 90, 95, 100, 105? anyone else?"

"I say if you're into this auctioneering business and you're a collector, you should try to get the most unusual and things you personally consider rare."

"We have a policy never to buy anything in our own auctions because it's a definite conflict of interest. None of my staff or workers do any buying. I did buy something at another auction on Sunday through a friend who bid for me."

"It was an unusual cast iron stove made in 1880 at the Detroit Iron Works in Detroit, in the shape of a steam engine. It's about four or five feet long and has scroll work over it."

"I gave $1,000 for it and everybody thought I was crazy. I told my friend to go in excess of $1,000 if he had to but to buy it cheaper if he could. I bought it as an investment. I'm going to keep it for a while and maybe somewhere across the country there'll be someone who is crazy about train memorabilia."

"Last call, all done? anybody else? all done? Going, going, gone."

The commission Glass charges is negotiable, ranging from 10 to 35 percent, depending on the gross receipts of the auction and the rarity of the items.

"We inventory items to be sold, and write copy and take photographs for ads. Then there's the logging, cleaning, polishing, tagging, handling from house to truck to gallery, and the arranging in an aesthetic presentation so it doesn't just look like a pile of junk."

Glass says the small accounts are difficult to handle. "We prefer a minimum of 50 items. The auction will bring a fair market value based on what advertising in 13 newspapers in three states and a mailing list of 1,000 will do."

"Sold for 100 dollars to the man with the soft hat."

The auctioneering is the easiest and most exciting part of the sale, he said.

At one auction Glass quickly tallied the competitive bids of two buyers — one at the back of the room getting a sandwich and one in the front. Finally, he held up his arms. "Ladies and gentlemen, I am stopping the bidding for a moment."

"Do you know who you're bidding against?" he said, looking at the woman in the front row. "Madame, you're bidding against a man at the back of the hall. I think he is your husband. He wants to get it for you and you want to get it for him. How about getting together?"

Fight Song For Strikers

GREEN POND, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's striking farmers now have a fight song to keep up their spirits and their voices, maybe even give them a financial hand, thanks to a 34-year-old reporter-turned-country singer named Becky Lee.

Ms. Lee, who hails from the tiny Colleton County community of Green Pond, came up with the idea for a strikers' anthem last month after she covered a farmers' meeting for the Savannah, Ga., Morning News.

"After the meeting, I got to thinking that a catchy tune could get people behind the strike, so I sat down and tried to write one. My idea was to get an established Nashville star to record it."

"Then it would automatically be a hit." She added, "When I finished it, the strike organizers insisted

I sing it myself. They said that nobody could sing it with the emotion that I put into it."

Thus "Parity, Not Charity" was conceived.

Ms. Lee, whose grandfather was a farmer, has recorded the song on the United World Label. The record is available only through the strike-sponsoring American Agriculture organization.

She said proceeds will go to American Agriculture. "The only thing I want out of this is the pleasure of knowing I've helped. This is something I believe in..."

Abel Tasman of Holland discovered Van Diemen's Land, now Tasmania, in 1642, while en route from Java to the Fiji Islands. By sailing around Australia, he proved it was not part of South America.

Howard Hawks Launched A Galaxy Of Stars

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Howard Hawks guided Gary Cooper to his first Oscar in "Sergeant York" and helped launch the careers of such stars as John Wayne and Lauren Bacall. But his own reputation with film critics was tarnished by his fondness for westerns and his simple credo: "Don't Annoy Audiences. Entertain Them." The director did just that for 60 years, and at his death at age 81 was planning another western.

Hawks, who created such classics as "Scarface," "To Have and Have Not" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," is to be buried Thursday after memorial services in Beverly Hills.

He died Monday night of complications from a fall he suffered at his Palm Springs home several weeks ago. Hawks suffered a concussion and was later confined to a wheelchair. He never recovered.

In 1941, he was nominated for an Academy Award for "Sergeant York." Cooper won for best actor, but Hawks lost.

In 1974, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which had virtually ignored him, gave Hawks a special Oscar for his work as "a master American filmmaker whose creative efforts hold a distinguished place in world cinema."

Hawks' fondness for westerns irritated American film critics, who saw him as an anti-intellectual.

But he did not care. He numbered such films as "Rio Bravo" and "El Dorado" among his best.

"Every time a man who is a first-rate director goes after a western, you come out with a pretty good picture because a western's good entertainment," he said. "It's dramatic."

His credits included dramas — "To Have and Have Not" and "The Big Sleep" — and zany comedies — "Bringing Up Baby," "Mail Order Bride" and "His Girl Friday."

He also had an uncanny knack for developing top stars.

He cast George Raft as a gangster in "Scarface" in 1932. When Raft became nervous, Hawks told him to flip a coin — it became Raft's trademark.

For the same film, Hawks plucked Paul Muni from the Yiddish theater and starred him as gangster Al Capone.

When he saw model Lauren Bacall on a magazine cover he summoned her to Hollywood only to find she had a squeaky voice. He ordered her to lower it. The actress went to a deserted hillside, screamed herself hoarse and returned to become the husky-voiced siren in "To Have and Have Not."

In real life, Hawks drove race cars, bred horses, fished with Ernest Hemingway, hunted with Gary Cooper and wrote scripts with William Faulkner. He married and divorced three times and once headed a motorcycle club whose members included Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck and Clark Gable.

Hawks is survived by daughters Barbara and Kitty, sons David and Greg and four grandchildren.

He was married three times — to Athol Shearer, sister of actress Norma Shearer, to Nancy Gross and to Dee Hartford. All the marriages ended in divorce.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

A slight lapse by the defense gave declarer a chance to put on a virtuoso display to bring home his shaky spade game.

The bidding was routine. After East's overall, which meets with our approval, South gave his partner a choice of games with his jump to three spades. Since North had no stopper in the enemy suit, he obviously preferred the suit contract.

West led the queen of clubs, and East had the opportunity to direct the defense. He should have played his lowest club, to request that his partner shift the attack. The only suit East could want led was hearts, and that would have rendered declarer helpless there and then.

Unfortunately, East became obsessed with cashing club tricks. He overtook the queen with the king and continued with ace and another in an effort to promote a trump trick for his partner. In view of dummy's trump holding, that was a forlorn hope.

Declarer ruffed high and drew three rounds of trumps, East sluffing a heart. It seemed that the fate of the contract hinged on the heart finesse, but that was unlikely to succeed considering East's vulnerable overall.

Declarer found a very neat solution. He cashed his remaining trump, discarding a heart from dummy. Then he ran three diamonds, ending on the table. The hand was reduced to three cards. Dummy held the ace-queen of hearts and a club, and East was forced to come down to the guarded king of hearts and a club honor.

Declarer simply exited with dummy's club, forcing East to win the trick. Now East had to lead a heart from the king into dummy's major tenace, so declarer's only losers were three club tricks.

'Bigfoot' Found And Returned

SUMTER, S.C. (AP) — Jesse Singleton has his 6-foot, 160-pound, black and brown hairy "Bigfoot" back.

The large creature disappeared from outside Singleton's taxidermy shop in Sumter late Friday. He reported Tuesday residents near an airstrip at Santee, about 40 miles away, found it Sunday and reported their discovery to authorities the next day after learning what it was.

Singleton had valued the statue he made at $500.

No Real Answer For Insomniacs

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Muscle tension and worry over lack of sleep are two characteristics that insomniacs seem to share, a recent study in Asheville shows.

So if you can't sleep, don't worry about it, says Dr. Ronald C. Hughes. Hughes is director of a county mental health unit in Asheville, but he was in Asheville a year ago studying a group of 36 insomniacs.

Hughes was doing graduate research work for Duke University. He has just finished analyzing the data from the study.

Researchers used electrodes to measure tension and muscle tone of the sleepless Asheville-ites. Hughes says that "apprehension about insomnia is enough in and of itself to perpetuate sleeping problems."

"To the extent that people worry and tense up while expecting to have difficulties sleeping, then this worry interferes with sleep," he said.

"Unfortunately, the solution to insomnia is not so simple as, 'Just don't worry about it,' or 'Just get hold of yourself.' For example, some of the volunteers in my research who successfully overcame their sleeping difficulty had been trying to do so for 20 years.

"My research demonstrated pretty graphically that relaxation training ... and stimulus control methods all work. The unanswered question is why they work," he said.

One clear conclusion from the study, Hughes said, is that insomniacs have "greater than average muscle tension." Efforts to reduce the tension were not always successful, he said, but distraction from apprehension over sleep loss was.

Hughes said his research and that of a Northwestern University researcher indicates that 70 percent of the nation's insomniacs will improve significantly if they follow these six rules:

- Lie down to sleep only when you feel sleepy.
- Use the bed only for sleeping, with the exception of love-making. Do not read, watch television, eat or worry in bed.
- When unable to sleep, get up and go into another room until you feel sleepy again. Repeat this as many times as necessary.
- Do not attempt to sleep elsewhere; sleep in the bed.
- Set the alarm for the same time every day to maintain a rhythm of sleeping and being active.
- Do not take naps during the day.

Search For Cancer Virus

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina researchers think they may be able to prove soon that viruses can cause cancer in human beings.

So far, cancer researchers have not found viruses in human cancer cells, although they are common in animal cancers, says Dr. Joseph S. Pagano, director of the UNC Center for Cancer Research.

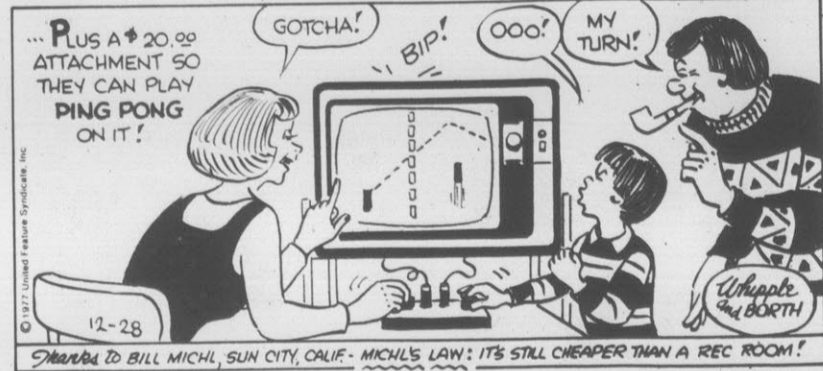

But the genetic substance that determines future growth of cells, DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid), appears in one type of cancer. The DNA belongs to a specific virus, Epstein-Barr virus, which leads Pagano to believe a virus was in the cancerous cell at one time.

To pinpoint the virus' DNA, researchers are using enzymes to build a mirror copy of the virus' genetic structure. The copy, called RNA (ribonucleic acid), seeks out only matching viral DNA when set loose in cells taken from victims of Burkitt's lymphoma, a jaw cancer.

"Burkitt's lymphoma is the only case where the DNA of a specific virus can be found consistently in human tissue," Pagano says. "It tightens the association between virus and cancer very much."

Pagano says the viral DNA found as part of the host cell in Burkitt's lymphoma is an abnormal part. "Our conception is that it makes the host cell malignant."

Once the cell is removed from the patient, the viral DNA starts to reproduce itself freely and sometimes actually produces the full virus.

AP Newsfeatures

Photographs are precious images that should be protected from mishandling and neglect. A photo print by itself is liable to be bent, torn, scratched, cracked, smudged and mislaid. No wonder the making of photo mats and mounts and photo books and albums became little industries in the world of photography. They were conceived to protect photo prints.

Recently I met two old friends who showed me a little of the craftsmanship that goes into making photo book albums and photo mounts.

When Mort Schneider, an executive, showed me around the Leather Craftsmen plant in Lynbrook, N.Y., I was amazed at the number of handcraft operations involved in producing a bound book album containing the photos. There's texturing, lacquering, mounting, stripping, gilding, rounding, backing, making and stamping the cover and binding the cover to inserts! And every step requires careful inspection to assure a final OK on the completed assembly. When photos are mounted on pages, they remain in the press for 24 hours for the glue to "set" properly. Glue is involved in four different steps in assembly of an album and there are different glues for each purpose. They use genuine 24K gold leaf sheets for gilding the page edges, carefully saving the scraps and residue which will be melted down for salvage. They also use only genuine top grain cowhide for all book covers. It is made to their specifications in special weights and colors for pliability, durability and beauty.

Bookbinding is a handcraft that has been passed down in some Old World families from father to son. Joe DeTullio, vice president of Leather Craftsmen, is a fifth-generation bookbinder. His father was an expert who refurbished old manuscripts and rare editions and made special slipcases for valuable portfolios for museums, Pratt Institute, Fordham University library and medical societies. With Joe's son now working in the plant, there's a sixth generation in the business.

Morris Schneider, the company's president, started it on New York's lower East Side some 30 years ago. The business expanded and moved five times before settling in its present building on Long Island.

Leather Craftsmen, which serves freelance and professional photographers in this country and abroad, was selected by the New York Daily News to make a Library Album for presentation to President Jimmy Carter. It contained 50 photographs of the 1976 Democratic National Convention which nominated Carter for the presidency. It is signed by all the photographers who made the pictures.

Mort Schneider also recalled the set of 12 Library Albums made for NASA after the first moon landing of Apollo II in July 1969. Containing duplicate sets of official photos, they were presented to President Nixon, the three astronauts—Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins — and to government dignitaries to mark the historic achievement.

While albums are the ultimate repositories of memorable photographs, the first step in preserving prints is the simple act of putting them in individual mounts. That part of the story came from an old personal friend and former neighbor, Milt Oshrin. He is a practicing lawyer whose father started a photo mount business in 1895.

The father and a brother rented one floor in a five-story building on West Broadway in New York's lower Manhattan, making photo mounts by hand which he delivered in a pushcart to photo studios. The B. Oshrin & Bro. business prospered and by 1920 it was able to buy the building. When the father had a heart attack in 1937, Milt stepped in to "help out temporarily." With the help of a brother, the business continued to expand until now they occupy all five floors, have 32 workers and 42 sales representatives around the country. Milt's son came into the company some years ago enabling Milt to "retire" last year.

Photo mounts provide a firm support for prints and at the same time isolate the image from its surroundings so that its picture content receives concentrated attention. Mounts and mats come in a huge selection of colors, textures and surfaces and should be chosen to blend, harmonize or contrast with the photograph.

From the original hard cardboard support, mounts began to be decorated and embellished with printed designs, embossing and the addition of serrated and gold leaf edges. In time, openings were cut in the mats in rectangular, oval and circular shapes with the photograph going behind the opening. Covers were added and mounts became folders with easels for tabletop display. Recent innovations include multi-format openings for group photo arrangements and new materials like velours, and imitation leather and wood paneling. There are packages of "reverse mats" in which the mats have a different color on the back side making it possible to switch to new color combinations for the same photograph.

When nostalgia swept the country, it was reflected in the appearance of "old fashioned" photo mounts and mats. The printed border designs go back to the turn of the century. At the same time, the newest merchandising methods prevail and mats and mounts come in bubble packages on display racks for convenient self-help in camera, gift, and department stores.

The idea is to display and protect your prints at the same time — and that's a good idea.

Seek Improving Water Quality

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is proposing stricter water quality regulations that would probably mean sharp increases in water and sewer bills for at least five North Carolina cities.

Some municipal officials think the proposal would mean needless expense.

The EPA, alarmed by tests which showed cancer-causing substances in many municipal water supplies around the country, is proposing that sand-filtering water treatment systems be modified to employ activated carbon filters instead.

Stanford E. Harris, superintendent of Winston-Salem utilities, estimated that the proposal could double current water and sewer costs — now about $7 or $8 for two months of service.

"Going to carbon filters is a real expensive step to take," Harris said. "I don't think there is enough information available to say whether it is justified right now."

Ray Shaw, assistant director of public works in Greensboro, estimated that the addition of carbon filters would cost that city about $5 million, increasing the $100 average annual water and sewage bill by $25.

But Shaw said he thought it was wrong to require the change everywhere, because some cities had no pollution problems.

"The determination of whether it is needed needs to be left up to local municipalities and state boards of health," he said. "It needs to be handled by individual cases. In our particular case, I don't think it is particularly important because we have a very clean water supply, not subject to pollution upstream."

Public utilities director Lee S. Dukes Jr. of Charlotte said he favored the change, but he didn't know how much it would cost. Charlotte, he said, already provides some charcoal treatment for its water.

Durham water official Thomas K. Bruce said he didn't think the EPA proposal was based on conclusive evidence.

"EPA has come out and is saying some cancer-forming elements are in the water. Others say there is no conclusive proof that this is a fact," he said.

Raleigh city officials said they didn't know what the proposed system modifications would cost them.

EPA officials said they would probably ask that the change in regulations apply to cities with populations of 75,000 or more.

Australia Has Park Paradise

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — National parks and forests make the central coast of New South Wales an outdoorsman's paradise.

Three regions in particular are ideal for hikers, campers or barbecue buffs: the Watagan Mountains west of Wyong, the Brisbane Water National Park north of Sydney, and Bouddi State Park at Killcare on the northern peninsula of Broken Bay.

The Watagans are a complex of 13 state forests with first-class accommodations provided by the forestry commission.

Business Is Up For Escalators

NEW YORK (UPI) — Good news for footwear shoppers ... there are more escalators today in the U.S. than ever before.

More than 15,000 escalators are now in use, capable of carrying each hour some 100 million riders, or more than 12 times the population of New York City, according to Otis Elevator Company, the world's largest manufacturer of escalators.

YOO-HOO—Henry Mullens of Atlanta stands nearly 8 feet tall, while his wife, Maria, is 5-foot-2.

Hard To Overlook At Nearly 8 Feet

ATLANTA (AP) — When Henry Mullens was 9, he was an average growing boy. But when he was 10, he began to grow and grow and grow.

And when he was 11, Henry was 7-foot-2.

"They put me under observation," he recalls now, at 62.

At 12, he had grown another inch.

Now, wearing shoes and a hat, he's 7-foot-9.

When he was growing up, he said in an interview, there were no bad times — even during a brief span when he grew an inch a week.

"Those were the best days of my life," he recalled. "I was too big for any of the other kids to give me a bad time."

He recalls playing basketball in high school.

"It got kind of monotonous," he said. "In those days, you had a center jump after every basket. All I did was tip the ball to a teammate and then stand under the basket and wait for him to throw it to me. No one else was 6 feet tall. I remember we won one game 38-0."

He also played a little football.

"Every time someone tripped me, I made a first down," he said.

But show business beckoned, and Henry was the big third of a comedy dance team, Lowe, Hite and Stanley.

Stanley was 5-11, Henry was over 8 feet tall in his top hat, and Lowe was 3-foot-2.

"No one could impersonate us," said Henry.

The act gave birth to a lot of one-liners.

On Henry's size 22 shoes: "I don't shine 'em. I run 'em through a car wash."

On Maria, his 5-foot-2 wife of 41 years: "She was shopping in downtown Chicago one day and saw a sign in the window that said, 'Giant Sale.' So she went in and got one."

On other giants claiming to be 8 feet tall: "All you got to do to disclaim them is drop them into a swimming pool, fill it up to the 8-foot-level and they'll all drown."

Henry says he likes being tall.

"I get into a new town and in five minutes someone's buying me a drink and wanting to take me to dinner," he said. "If I was normal-sized, no one would even notice."

Smuggling Gum On A Weekly Trip

By SAJID RIZVI
TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Huge profits and a steady rise in Soviet chewing habits have given birth to a "chewing gum connection" on the weekly train from Tehran to Moscow.

The traders are migrant workers from Iran's neighbor, Afghanistan. "We have no statistics, but we know a lot more Iranian gum now sticks to Soviet teeth than some years ago. And we are responsible for it," one of the traders said.

The Afghans, the only non-communist Asians allowed relatively freely into Russia, claim they sell gum to Russians at 20 times the Iranian price.

"A packet of four pieces sells for 6 cents. But Soviets easily buy it for a ruble ($1.25), sometimes even two rubles," said one of the Afghans, who asked not to be named.

Large numbers of Afghans have spilled into oil-rich Iran in search of jobs. But a tightening of Iranian immigration controls has forced them to look elsewhere for a living. The train has proved to be a good source of livelihood. Profits range up to $100 a trip, with traders usually making two trips a month.

"It's not good money, but it's enough," said one traveler, who claimed he managed to save enough to send money to his family in a village in southwest Afghanistan.

The travelers said the Soviet customs authorities did not seem to mind the gum trade, though they knew most of the Afghans were regular traffickers.

The Soviet authorities also condoned or ignored the Soviet middlemen involved, the travelers said.

"We hardly ever go into the street to sell, although the profits are greater if we do," one of them explained.

The gum packets, tucked discreetly into the Afghans' traveling gear, are delivered to Uzbek middlemen in Iravan, the Armenian capital halfway between Tehran and Moscow.

Those few Afghans who speak some Russian prefer to trade in Moscow, where the profits are greater.

"But most like to change their gum into rubles as soon as the train reaches Iravan," said one. "It's good for one's peace of mind. You never can tell, you see."

The Afghans said the "chewing gum connection" had no harmful effect on Russian or Iranian trade — "it is not smuggling, or we wouldn't be spared" — but it had given them employment.

No figures are available on the number of Afghans in the trade because "people keep dropping out... many manage to travel all the way to Europe and find jobs there."

The weekly train leaves Tehran every Wednesday, traversing 2,484 miles of track to reach Moscow in five days. The travelers are mostly Western tourists — Iranians rarely travel to Russia — but there is always a sprinkling of Afghans on board.

The Soviet "market for chewing gum is expanding. So is the Russian appetite for foreign goods, any goods," said one Afghan traveler.

He thought the chewing gum connection could not last by itself.

"There are even greater profits in Iranian jeans, perfumes, silk, watches and shoes. A $30 pair of Iranian jeans sells for easily $100," he said.

"But how many jeans can you take there and how often can you travel?" he said. "Most of our people are scared. They like to stick to the gum."

"It's safe, not dangerous, we meet friendly people who give us food and lodging. We give them our gum."

"It's all very well."

Better Survival For Shellfish

ON TANGIER SOUND, Md. (AP) — There's spat on shells lying in Tangier Sound, and that's good news for oyster lovers.

Mayland's annual survey of baby oysters — spat — indicates that 1977's survival rate for the young shellfish may be the best in a decade. With luck, the high survival rate will be translated into a large oyster harvest in three or four years.

The news has been bad for the last two years and for most of the years since 1965's record crop. The oysters spawned as usual, filling the water with their larvae, but something happened and only a relative few survived to attach themselves to existing shells and grow.

Uncertainty Prevails In 1978 Plans

Business Week magazine recently surveyed investment professional, business executives and other individual investors on their investment plans for 1978. Their answers show a continuing degree of uncertainty over the course of the financial markets in 1978.

A slower rate of growth in the U.S. economy is expected next year, with opinions differing on the possibility of recession. Given this framework, and a range of answers from below 800 to 1200, nearly 58% of the respondents felt the Dow Jones Industrial Average would be between 800 and 1000 at the end of 1978. (This is identical to the 1977 range.) More than half of those surveyed plan to increase the portion of their portfolios invested in common stocks, but another 31% said they plan no changes in their bond/stock percentages.

What will they be buying? Thirty-seven percent said they would buy low-priced, low-multiple secondary stocks. Buying intentions do not always come to fruition, but a look at their reasoning on stocks vs. bonds, and on growth and secondary issues vs. basic industry stocks is interesting.

Most people felt that short term interest rates would rise further, and their present bond holdings are in shorter maturities. A further rise in short term interest rates could send bond prices lower, pushing yields up. They believe some groups of common stocks are undervalued and will probably not decline much more.

The growth stocks have many factors in their favor. Many of them have had excellent earnings records, even during recessionary periods. Dividends of some companies have outpaced inflation in the past five years, even though the yields are still relatively low. The growth stock group was generally regarded as oversold. The basic industry stocks are felt to have little control over wage costs and cannot always pass along higher costs. They are further seen as vulnerable to imports. Many of the growth stocks are relatively free of these problems; they are industry leaders who operate with little government regulation and intervention. A word of caution is necessary here, however; some growth stocks are maturing and will not be able to maintain past rates of earnings growth.

Low-priced, low-multiple stocks of the smaller companies (secondaries) were favored by 37% of those surveyed. This is where the action has been so far in 1977. The American Stock Exchange index is up 13% so far this year compared with a decline of nearly 13% in the S&P 500. The stocks of smaller companies are under-owned by institutions since they have fewer shares outstanding, so they are not subject to huge price swings caused by institutional buying and selling. If a stock like this does attract institutional attention, price appreciation can be substantial. The P/E's and yields may be low, but rapid earnings growth and possible multiple expansion could lead to price appreciation without large institutional ownership.

We believe that many good common stock values are available in today's market. The Dow Jones Industrial Average has declined nearly 200 points so far in 1977, yet a large number of stocks have risen substantially. The same is likely to occur in 1978. Stocks with sound underlying value will eventually be recognized and appreciate in price. Selectivity is still the key. Research Department Interstate Securities Corporation

Women Adept In Selling Ideas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women can be just as effective as men in selling ideas, Kevin R. Daley, corporate communication expert, said at a recent meeting of Executive Women International.

"Ideas are the basis of progress in any job, and selling them is not a matter of sex; it's a matter of knowing and following proved communication procedures," he said.

Daley is president of Communispond, Inc., the eight-year old executive communication firm which has dealt with the communication needs of more than 15,000 men and women in top jobs in government, business and industry in both this country and Europe.

"The most persuasive factors in selling an idea," he said, are "the evidence which conditions the listeners' minds to accept that idea and the credibility and conviction of the presenter."

Another Inquiry In 1973 Poisoning Of Livestock

By JEFFERY L. SHELER
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Nearly five years ago, workers at a southern Michigan feed mill unwittingly dumped a little-known chemical into a mixer of cattle feed.

The chemical, called PBB, poisoned the feed. But just what had happened was not discovered for nearly a year. By then, thousands of livestock were dead in the worst agricultural disaster in the state's history.

Now federal authorities have begun to look into the tangled web of events surrounding the poisoning of Michigan livestock to determine if it was more than simply a tragic mistake.

On Nov. 28, just 20 days after he took office, U.S. Attorney James S. Brady filed the first criminal charges to emerge from the PBB incident. Two firms blamed for the initial mixup were charged with misdemeanor violations of federal food and drug laws.

The firms are Farm Bureau Services, Inc., which mixed and sold the tainted feed, and Velsicol Chemical Co., corporate successor of Michigan Chemical Co., maker of the toxic fire retardant polybrominated biphenyl or PBB. They face a maximum fine of $1,000 for each of four counts contained in the information, if convicted.

The mixing accident occurred in the spring of 1973 at a Farm Bureau feed mill in Battle Creek.

Several bags of PBB were mistakenly shipped there from Michigan Chemical's plant in St. Louis, Mich. Workers at the mill mistook the white powdery chemical for a feed additive and mixed it with cattle feed.

Tons of feed were tainted with stiff doses of the toxic chemical. PBB residue remained in the mixers for some time, continuing the low level contamination of other feeds.

Over a period of months after that, thousands of cattle, sheep, hogs and other farm animals throughout the state died or became so sickly they had to be destroyed after eating PBB-tainted feed.

Before the cause of the mixup was pinned down nearly a year later, meats and dairy products were sold and consumed both in and out of Michigan. And, investigators said, some contaminated animals likely were sold and shipped to other states and Canada.

Brady conceded the charges may be interpreted as "too little and too late," especially by the hundreds of farmers whose businesses were wiped out by PBB contamination. But he said there may be more.

Brady appointed a special task force, consisting of two assistant U.S. attorneys and two FBI agents, to investigate all aspects of the PBB contamination and its aftermath. They are to determine if anyone involved in the incident, including state and federal regulatory agencies, engaged in criminal activities.

"I don't have an ax to grind and I'm not saying I believe there were criminal violations," Brady said. "I just have some questions about it — the same questions a lot of people have — and I want them answered."

Those questions, a spokesman in Brady's office said, include: — Did officials of Farm Bureau or Michigan Chemical try to cover their mistake after it was discovered in the summer of 1974 and allow the tainted livestock feed to continue to be sold?

— After PBB contamination was discovered and identified and provisions were made for quarantine and disposal of tainted animals, did the firms as well as state and federal agriculture officials allow quar-antined animals to be sold in interstate commerce?

— How much did state and federal regulatory agencies, including the Michigan Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration, know about the seriousness of the outbreak, and did they do all they could have to stop it?

Grand juries in Grand Rapids and Detroit studied some aspects of the case a year ago, focusing primarily on the events surrounding the mixup itself and any resulting criminal liabilities. No indictments were returned.

That fact has led to some criticism of the new U.S. attorney by those who said he is trying to make political hay out of the issue. Others, including two former U.S.

attorneys, said Brady may be needlessly going over ground that has already been covered.

"I don't know what caused Mr. Brady to proceed with the charges," said Philip Van Dam, former U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan. "It's his prerogative to file whatever charges he wants, but that information was looked at by a grand jury and no true bill was returned." Frank Spies, Brady's predecessor in the western district, refused to comment on the grand jury probe, but said he found no evidence of a coverup.

"If there's something there that amounts to a coverup, I hope he finds it," Spies said. "I felt I didn't have the resources to send out attorneys to investigate that sort of thing on a fulltime basis."

Spokesmen both for Farm Bureau and Michigan Chemical refused comment on the federal investigation.

A legislative spokesman for Michigan farmers who were hard hit by the PBB outbreak said while the farmers welcome the federal investigation, they would rather see the government take steps to help them recoup their losses.

"Justice should be done and those people should be held responsible," the spokesman said. "But the charges don't begin to reflect the size of the injury. Just because they are called to task on misdemeanor criminal charges, it does not mean they've paid for their crime. That's ludicrous."

Adventure In Duty-Free City

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Duty-free shopping is one sport enjoyed by travelers the world over. In Hamburg, there's an entire city filled with duty-free goods to pick from, called The Old Storage City, or "Alter Speicherstadt."

The city is composed of several streets in the duty-free port area of the harbor, lined with 200-year-old houses actually functioning as storage quarters. Their interior space, from ground floor to loft, is rented to "Quarter people," who specialize in the import and re-export of mostly exotic things.

For the travelers passing through Hamburg, it's an adventure to browse through thousands of precious oriental rugs, antique furniture, yard goods such as silk, and other rare finds. If the bargain is found and bought, it can be shipped anywhere directly out of the port of Hamburg, duty-free.

What happens when the prize of the hunt arrives at home is strictly a matter of local customs.

Stretching 395 miles long and nearly 49 miles wide, Lake Baikal in southern Siberia holds nearly as much fresh water as all the Great Lakes combined.

sagging Social Security trust fund by means of greatly increased payroll taxes on employees and employers. The measure, approved the same day by the Senate (see vote below), was sent to President Carter for his signature.

Beginning in 1979, the legislation hikes both the payroll tax rate and the wage base subject to Social Security taxation, with middle- and high-income wage earners hardest hit. By 1986, the tax rate on both employees and employers will have risen to 7.15 percent of the first $40,200 in wages. Now the rate is 5.85 percent on the first $16,500.

Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore), a supporter, said: "If we vote against this bill and it fails, we cannot go home and say to either the people who are on retirement...that we acted responsibly."

Rep. Barber Conable (R-N.Y.), an opponent, said the bill "will increase payroll levies over the next ten years by an estimated $227 billion, thus giving it the notoriety, if not the distinction, of constituting the biggest peacetime tax increase in our history."

Members voting "yea" favored bringing the Social Security bill.
Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Charles Whitley (D-3), Richard Preyer (D-6), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."
Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4) and Charles Rose (D-7) voted "nay."

Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5) and W. G. Hefner (D-8) did not vote.
SOCIAL SECURITY Agreed, 178 for and 175 against, to the rule that permitted final consideration of the Social Security bill. Had this move failed, the measure to bolster the Social Security trust fund by increasing payroll taxes probably would have been shelved until the 1978 session of Congress.

Rep. John Seiberling (D-Ohio), a supporter, reflected the lukewarm popularity of the measure by saying he would vote for the rule reluctantly. "... It is a poor way to make tax policy... for the Congress to increase this regressive tax before having any clear idea what kinds of cuts it is going to make in the personal income tax to offset the economic drag of the Social Security tax increase."

Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.), an opponent, called it a "fraud" that taxpayers "are being asked to take the bitter now and wait for the vague promises of tax relief to be realized later."
Members voting "yea" favored bringing the Social Security bill up for final consideration this year.
Jones, Preyer, Rose and Gudger voted "yea."
Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."
Neal and Hefner did not vote.

SENATE
SOCIAL SECURITY Adopted, 56 for and 21 against, the conference report on HR 9346, the Social Security Financing Amendments of 1977 (see above votes). Among many provisions, the legislation eased the "earnings test" that limits the outside income a pensioner can receive without having his Social Security check penalized. Currently the cutoff is $3,000; under this legislation it will rise gradually to $6,000 in 1982 and be eliminated after that year.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.), a supporter, said: "If the Senate rejects this reform proposal in order to retain the status quo, it will indicate to all Americans that, while we are not willing to take the necessary steps to solve it."
Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), an opponent, said "Social Security has failed, and we would be better off in this country if we pledged to every person who has ever paid a dime into the Social Security fund that money would be returned, and then forget about the whole thing."
Senators voting "nay" opposed passage of the Social Security bill.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea" and Sen. Jesse Helms (R) did not vote.

Comeback In Cafe Shows

PARIS (UPI) — Several cafes in the Montparnasse section of Paris have brought back the turn-of-the-century custom of the "cafe-concert," a lively, Parisian-style entertainment.

A troupe of actors, musicians, singers and comics presents a show nightly at La Coupole and at La Taverne de Maitre Kanter. Another troupe livens evenings at La Liberte. The program of amusing songs and current satire, written and produced by Huguette Akkache, evokes the animation of Paris nights when street entertainers were a common attraction.

In the same tradition, Paris' hotel Novotel Bagnole, at the edge of the city, has inaugurated a cafe-theater in its bar, offering two shows a night for cocktail-entertainment.

Also reborn are two historic Parisian music halls, "Le Jardin d'ete," on the Champs-Elysees, and "Paradis latin," on the Rue du Cardinal-Lemoine. A high-spot of Parisian night life from 1840 through the Second Empire, "Le Jardin d'ete" was closed in 1930 but now lives again as "Le Jardin," a music hall where 750 diners can enjoy the review "Circus Folies" nightly.

The reopened "Paradis latin," which seats 1,000 persons, offers spectacles, great production numbers and novelties splashed, with humor, "chansonettes," and the Belle Epoque style of a night on the town.

Collect Art Books Of Japan

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — When most people think of art they think of Italian, Dutch and Flemish works, but now Japanese art is rapidly gaining in popularity with college students, The University of Kansas notes.

To meet this growing interest, the university has acquired one of the finest private collections of Japanese art books in the nation. The collection, now available to the public at the university's Watson Library, will be housed in the school's new Helen Foresman Spencer Museum of Art after it opens in January. The university also has a large collection of books on Chinese art.

The new collection, consisting of 2,000 books, magazines and periodicals, was purchased from the estate of Harold P. Stern, who was director of the Freer Gallery in Washington.
