

Carter And Giersek Talks Begin Today

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Carter began meeting with Polish leader Edward Giersek today after placing floral wreaths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Nike statue and the Warsaw Ghetto monument under somber, snowy skies in a round of ceremonial visits.

Carter holds an unprecedented news conference later in the day at which the sensitive subject of human rights is expected to come up.

Carter, hatless and wearing a blue topcoat, paused for a moment in silent prayer and placed a gloved hand over his face in a gesture of humility before the Warsaw Ghetto monument, a stone memorial to the thousands of Jews who held out in the walled ghetto against the Nazis during a short-lived uprising in 1943.

At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Polish and American flags whipped in the chill wind under gray skies and the muffled drums of a Polish honor guard sounded a cadence as Carter placed the wreath. Rain turned to snow during the ceremony, at a monument built on the remains of an 18th century palace destroyed by the Nazis in World War II.

Two Marine guards from the U.S. Embassy carried the wreath up to the monument for Carter. Hundreds of Polish spectators were on hand as the national anthems of the two countries were played.

Carter, accompanied by his wife Rosalynn, shook hands with Polish veterans after the ceremony and signed a guest book, just as Presidents Ford and Nixon did on their trips to Poland.

Arriving here long after dark Thursday, Carter's third sentence in his first formal pronouncement on Polish soil referred to human rights. Still later, in responding to a welcoming address by Communist leader Edward Giersek, Carter cited the Polish constitution of 1791 as one of "the great documents in the struggle for human rights."

After visiting three Polish memorials today and conferring with Giersek, Carter was to hold a formal news conference being broadcast live in the United States and to East European audiences by the Voice of America. This will be the first full dress news conference ever held by a U.S. president in a Communist country and Carter's first outside the United States.

Before Carter left Washington Thursday on the first leg of a six-nation tour, Polish diplomats there entertained members of his traveling party at a luncheon during which some of them voiced apprehension about human rights becoming the major issue discussed at the news conference.

In a television interview from the White House Wednesday, the president touched on human rights in Poland, saying the government here is "relatively willing to give people their religious freedom and other freedoms."

During the flight to Warsaw, presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, a native Pole, told reporters aboard Air Force One that Poland's human rights record, "relatively speaking, is reasonably good."

However, Brzezinski contended the Polish government has "been lagging" on permitting Poles to emigrate and join their families in the United States.

Brzezinski, White House assistant for national security affairs, told reporters no decision has been made on Polish request for $200 million in agricultural credits.

The talks the president and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance were holding with Giersek, Brzezinski said Carter might make a decision on the credits while in Warsaw.

Tax Listing In January

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

All property owners in Pitt County are required by law to list both their real and personal property for tax purposes during the month of January. Pitt tax supervisor Phillip Michaels reminded today.

Michaels noted there are 15 local listing places that will be open the entire week and a half-day on Saturday's during the month. He emphasized that, "each person that comes in to list needs to bring motor vehicle registration cards and social security number," with them.

The tax supervisor noted there are about 45,000 listings to be taken during the month.

Michaels noted that those listing by mail—between 12,000 and 15,000 mail listing abstracts will be mailed December 31—should receive their abstracts the first week in January. He said that those forms should be completed in full and returned as soon as possible to the Tax Supervisor's office.

Michaels noted that exempt organizations that have purchased real estate in the past year, "will need to come to the Greenville listing place (in the Court House) to file an application to exempt the property purchased."

He said property owned by such organizations in prior years for which an exemption application has already been completed and approved, will not require an additional exemption application form.

All business personal and real property must be listed at the Greenville office this year, Michaels emphasized, "unless the businesses use the mail copy of the abstract that has been sent to all businesses that we have a record of."

The tax official said the exemption for the aged and disabled has been "substantially changed by the State Legislature for 1978."

"An applicant for this exemption," according to Michaels, "must earn or receive from any source a total of less than $9,000 a year. This includes all Social Security, retirement payments, and any monies received by either husband or wife during the calendar year 1977."

In addition, Michaels said, "the individual must be 65 years old or older on January 1, 1978, or totally and permanently disabled and unable to work."

Disabled persons, he said, "must supply a signed statement by a licensed physician to this effect."

"Finally, this exemption will be applied on household personal property, mobile homes, and real property used as a residence."

Michaels emphasized that applications for age and disability exemptions must be made every year.

Carter May Visit Egypt

By The Associated Press

President Carter is considering adding Egypt to his current foreign tour to talk with President Anwar Sadat who has said he is "disappointed" and "embarrassed" by Carter's latest statements on the Middle East.

U.S. presidential spokesman Jody Powell said today in Warsaw that Carter was thinking of going to Cairo and a final decision would be made Saturday morning. The Cairo stopover would come Wednesday after his meeting with Jordan's King Hussein in Tehran on Sunday and with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia on Tuesday.

There were unconfirmed reports in Warsaw that Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin would fly to Tehran Sunday to join the Carter-Hussein talks.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is traveling with Carter, meanwhile was trying to defuse mounting Arab criticism of President Carter's Mideast remarks on the eve of his departure on the six-nation trip.

In a television interview Wednesday Carter backed Begin's rejection of Sadat's demand for an independent Palestinian state in the territories captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

Vance told reporters aboard the president's plane that Carter did not endorse Begin's insistence that Israeli troops garrison the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Vance called the Begin proposal offering civil autonomy to the 1.1 million Arabs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip "an appropriate starting point for discussion."

Carter, talking to television news correspondents Wednesday night, said Begin's stand on troops was a "reasonable negotiating position." The president also backed Begin's rejection of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's demand for an independent Palestinian state in the territories captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

The comments sparked angry reaction Thursday in the Arab world.

Sadat said he was "disappointed" and "embarrassed" by Carter's statements. In an interview with ABC News in Cairo, Sadat said the U.S. president's remarks would hamper Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations, already strained by tough negotiating stands from Cairo and Jerusalem. He cautioned that the signing of a Mideast settlement "might be delayed for some time."

Sadat has rejected the Begin plan, presented when the two leaders met last weekend in Ismailia. Egypt demands full Israeli withdrawal from war-won Arab lands and creation of an independent Palestinian state.

Conservative Saudi Arabia, a key U.S. ally in the Middle East, added its powerful voice to the Arab world rejection of Begin's proposal.

The Saudi state radio served notice that King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd would try to persuade Carter — due in Saudi Arabia next Tuesday — to squeeze more concessions from Israel.

"There is no doubt the United States is the only country that can pressure Israel to become more lenient," the broadcast said.

Carter is expected to seek Saudi help in bringing more Arab states into the negotiations now underway between Israel and Egypt.

The president was scheduled to meet with King Hussein New Year's Day in Iran in an effort to bring Jordan into the talks.

The Jordan government issued a statement in Amman rejecting the Begin plan, labeling it a scheme to "legalize Israeli occupation."

Syria, a bitter opponent of the Egyptian-Israeli dialogue, denounced the "arrogant" Begin plan in a government radio broadcast. The radio said the plan has brought Egypt's peace initiative to "a humiliating death."

Libya, another staunch critic of Sadat's peace moves, said Carter's statements were a "heavy slap at Sadat."

However, Begin told Israeli radio Carver's comment on a Palestinian state was "a very positive, most serious statement, which the Israeli people receive with gratitude."

Future C-of-C Building Site Is Designated Here

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce this morning held a sign-raising dedication on the site of their proposed new Chamber building.

The Chamber's recently purchased land is on the corner of N. C. Highway 43 South and Red Banks Road.

Chamber President Lawton Nisbet and the Chamber Task Force, all of whom worked to acquire the new site, were present at this morning's program.

Nisbet said that the Board of Directors of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce voted at their final meeting of 1977 on Dec. 15 to purchase the building site for Chamber of Commerce facilities.

He added that Mrs. Jeanette Cox, chairman of the Chamber Facilities Task Force, members of the Task Force, vice-president David Womack, Larkin Little, Charles Burnette, Bud Whelless, and Ollie Harrington, began looking for a suitable site in January, 1977.

President Nisbet said that after a year of work which involved an evaluation of the present Chamber facilities and "investigating some 35 site locations within the Greenville area," the committee recommended that we purchase a site which would lend itself to good identity since the Chamber serves as the front door of our area."

Nisbet added that easy accessibility to the more than 600 members of the Chamber, who are located throughout Pitt County, was given great consideration.

Another priority of the Committee was for a site that provided room for expansion.

"The 1.3 acre corner site will allow good visibility and the needed room for expansion as our Chamber continues to grow to meet the needs of business, professional, and agricultural leaders in the area," said

Nisbet.

He said that a major concern of the Chamber has been the "inadequacy of the present Chamber quarters. Over 400 volunteers have no meeting place for committee assignments other than borrowed or rented facilities."

Nisbet also noted that parking space at the present quarters is inadequate.

He added that, in addition, newcomers to the Greenville area have been having difficulty in finding the present building, because of its location.

"The Chamber has been renting a home since it began in Greenville in 1938. Now the membership can take pride in the fact that they are on their way to having a home of their own. I feel very gratified that this first step toward a Chamber of Commerce building has taken place during my year in office," said Nisbet.

I understand that in the Daily Reflector's Dec. 27 edition it said that a city-owned vehicle was involved in an accident the day after Christmas. This is a city holiday, and I'd like to know why this employee was using the car for his personal business. V.B.

According to City Manager Jim Caldwell, the gentleman driving the city-owned car was working at the time of the 11 a.m. accident. Caldwell said that "it is not unusual at all," noting that many city workers may have business to attend to on weekends and holidays. He added that it is against city policy for city workers to drive these vehicles when off duty.

No SHP Promotions In Political Connections

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Politicians have been making their usual efforts to get their favorite highway patrolmen promoted, but for once they aren't getting away with it, state Crime Control Secretary Phil Carlton says.

"There are going to be some troopers who have political connections who won't be promoted because they haven't passed the tests," Carlton said, "and I've told the governor to be prepared to handle the phone calls."

Hunt vowed earlier this year to keep politics out of the State Highway Patrol's personnel policies. The law gives the governor veto power over 60 patrol promotions scheduled in January, but Carlton says Hunt will review the promotions only as a formality.

"We've already had some political people who have tried to get some troopers promoted, and we're just not going to do that," Carlton said. "I have told the governor we were going to promote solely on the basis of tests and merit, and he has assured me he is in absolute agreement with that."

Among the 1,100 members of the patrol, 450 recently took a written exam and 349 passed. Troop commanders screened the applicants and recommended 159 for promotion. A patrol committee will interview the 159 and recommend 60 for promotion.

Carlton said the system would eliminate "outside" politics from the promotion process. He said he has also taken steps so that personal

Canada Geese Land In Hawaii

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP)—Two Imperial Canada geese seem to have lost their way, arriving on the tropical Hawaiian island of Maui instead of their usual wintering place in the chillier north Pacific.

Imperials roam the Arctic coast during the summer and should spend winter in the Alaskan peninsula and eastern Siberia, according to National Geographic magazine.

"The geese seem tame and unafraid of people," said a beach resident.

One of the geese disappeared last Sunday, but the other is continuing its vacation.

dislike by an officer will not prevent a trooper from being promoted.

"Some have not been recommended because of lack of work quantity," which is another word for quotas, Carlton said, "and I have not allowed that kind of thing and have ordered some troopers not to be eliminated just because they didn't write enough tickets to suit their immediate bosses."

Carlton noted that the lack of a clearly defined promotion procedure in the past has caused morale problems. He also said that at least once during his career as a district court judge he had become involved in promotion politics.

"That was wrong, and we're not going to have that kind of thing anymore," he said.

Bank Employees Learn A Lesson

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Looks can be deceiving, employees of four banks have learned.

Authorities said a man dressed as a Roman Catholic priest cashed $800 worth of money orders Thursday at banks in suburban Yukon, Bethany, Warr Acres and Oklahoma City.

Bethany Police Detective Gene McPherson said the man used an Illinois driver's license for identification when he cashed the four money orders, each for $200.

None of the bank tellers questioned the man, who identified himself as a priest, even though he told them the money orders were signed by his wife, police said.

Light Agenda

Pitt County Commissioners face a light agenda for their first meeting in 1978.

The board, which will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday because of the New Year Holiday Monday, will consider boundary changes for the Staton House Fire Department because of the elimination of one of the fire department's stations.

Other items on the agenda include: consideration of a resolution on diverting water in North Carolina to Hampton Roads, Va.; consideration of the final plan for the Batts Subdivision as recommended by the Planning Board; the establishment of a date for rental of the county's tobacco allotment and farm land; and the consideration of appointments to the Mid-East Commission, the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency Board, and the Mid-East RC and D board.

The agenda also includes consideration of unemployment insurance for county workers.

Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Rosalynn Carter's planned visit to Warsaw's Old Town this afternoon is to be a walk through an 18th century city just over 29 years old.

Painstakingly rebuilt from the ruins of World War II, the district is a restoration masterpiece which has earned its builders a worldwide reputation as reconstruction experts. "We had 900 buildings classified as historical landmarks," town planner Stanislaw M. Jankowski says of prewar Warsaw. "More than 850 were razed to the ground. Others were blown up. Others were burned. Hardly any were left." By war's end, almost 90 percent of Warsaw's buildings had been destroyed, city officials say. Many were systematically demolished by German troops after the crushing of a 1944 uprising by resistance fighters.

Old Town was shattered by street fighting during the uprising. Afterwards, German troops blew up the remaining ruins. The district has origins in the 13th century and was rebuilt in its 18th century form, an area of colorful houses and shops centered on an open market square.

percent of all the money we had for rebuilding the whole country."

"The question was asked, is it possible to make a capital in the desert?" he says. "There were many Poles against it. But on the other hand, there was a strong argument for it as a psychological compensation for the crime."

Many stone doorways and window frames in Old Town still bear bullet and shrapnel scars. And as elsewhere in Warsaw, Old Town walls bear plaques marking the sites of more than 220 public executions during the occupation years.

The Old Town area was a poor neighborhood before the war, Jankowski says, and its reconstruction has changed its character in some unanticipated ways.

"When we started, it was just a normal residential area. Now it's a terribly snobby place where everybody wants to live. The only way you can get an apartment here is to marry a girl who lives here," he says.

HEW Move A Surprise

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Officials of two Southern Baptist seminaries were surprised by news reports that they were being cut off from federal funds because of sex discrimination. The schools don't get federal funds.

"We do not now, nor have we in the past received federal government or tax monies," said the Rev. Dr. Landrum Levell, president of New Orleans Baptist Seminary in response to the announcement from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Reacting to a similar report, the Rev. Dr. W. Randall Lolley, president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Winston-Salem, N.C., said, "It's puzzling to me for HEW to say that our funds have been withdrawn when we receive no monies whatsoever from them or any other federal agency."

He added there was no kind of discrimination at the school on sex or any other basis. At the New Orleans seminary, 30 per cent of the students are women. The rhubarb apparently occurred because the schools had not filled in government forms promising not to discriminate. They said they didn't do so since they're church auxiliaries accepting no tax monies, and not subject to federal agency regulations.

Suspect France Plans Its Own Cruise Missile

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — France, which maintains an independent nuclear striking force, is reported moving toward development of its own cruise missile.

U.S. intelligence sources estimate French research probably could produce such a missile in from five to 10 years.

Reports of French interest in developing a cruise missile come while the United States and the Soviet Union are discussing possible formulas for controlling cruise missiles within the framework of an overall U.S.-Russian agreement to curb strategic nuclear weapons.

A number of North Atlantic Alliance member nations have indicated an interest in developing cruise missiles for NATO, but these hopes may hinge on whether a U.S.-Soviet SALT agreement will permit the United States to share such technology with its European allies.

The French formally broke with NATO militarily in the 1960s and have gone their own way in developing and deploying nuclear-armed land-based and submarine-launched missiles and nuclear weapons for bombers.

Gen. Charles deGaulle, France's leader in those days, questioned whether Western Europe could rely on the U.S. nuclear umbrella in a crisis of the Soviet Union, and his successors have followed the independent nuclear policy he charted.

As a result, U.S. intelligence specialists believe France has the necessary technology and expertise to achieve a cruise missile, which is essentially a small pilotless jet bomber that its backers say would add a new dimension to nuclear deterrence.

According to American intelligence analysts, the French government has not yet made a final decision on the scope of cruise missile research to be pursued.

However, these specialists say French scientists already have done a considerable amount of work applicable to cruise missiles and that French industry could produce most of the components.

Sketched Two Officers As Strangler Suspects

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Just before officials were to release composite sketches of possible Hillside Strangler suspects, a complicated comedy of errors unfolded and officials acknowledged that the sketches were likenesses of two police vice-officers.

Assistant Police Chief Daryl Gates was to have released the sketches at a news conference Thursday, but the officers recognized themselves and the drawings were withheld. Gates, at the news conference, said only that the men depicted had been contacted and were not involved in the case.

The Associated Press later learned that the men in the drawings were officers. When asked why the men were not identified as such at the news conference, Lt. Dan Cooke, a police spokesman, said, "No body asked."

The two unidentified officers had stopped a woman for driving erratically, not realizing she was a police officer, Cooke explained.

The woman officer gave the special task force working on the case the officers' descriptions because one theory in the case has been that the killer or killers of 11 women may have stopped people on the pretense of conducting police business.

Gates said the woman officer's description matched other descriptions received earlier by the 65-member task force. But he added that the two officers were telling the truth about doing a routine traffic stop.

Meanwhile, charges of murder, illegal possession of a gun and possession of a controlled substance were filed by the district attorney's office against Stephen Devezin, 40, in the strangulation of two young women last weekend. Another man arrested for investigation in the case, Thomas Davis, 24, was later released for lack of evidence.

Police have termed the murders a "copycat" case and do not believe them connected to the Hillside Strangler murders. Devezin was ordered held without bail by Municipal Judge Nancy Brown, pending a Jan. 5 preliminary hearing.

It will be nearly impossible to enforce, but the FCC ruling also prohibits individuals from selling their old 23-channel sets to their neighbors down the street. The prohibition against used-set sales was added because of fears that some dealers would use the loophole to sell unused units as used.

But, again, the ruling does not mean you can no longer talk on your old 23-channel set. As long as it's operated legally, the FCC says, go ahead and ratchet-jaw to your heart's content.

Industry estimates indicate there may be as many as 25 million CB sets now in use, including one in every nine cars.

After this weekend, it will be illegal to sell 23-channel radios, new or used. But don't throw away your old set because the

Pitt Schools Resume Monday

Pitt County Schools and Pitt Technical Institute will re-open Monday following the holiday vacation period.

According to Ott Alford, superintendent of the county schools, the system will return to its regular schedule. Monday will be the first day for teachers and students.

"Maintenance, transit, and office personnel will be working in full swing Monday, also," he added.

It will also be the first full day of work for both students and teachers at Pitt Technical Institute, according to one spokesman.

CB Licensing Rate Dropping

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — CB radio license applications began leveling off in the last year, but the government still issued nearly 4 million licenses in 1977.

Preliminary figures from the Federal Communications Commission show more than 3.5 million licenses were issued through November, and the FCC expected to grant another 250,000 in December.

That means nearly 11.5 million CB stations now are licensed, compared to 7.5 million at the end of 1976.

While the licensing rate may be dropping, it is still considerably higher than it was when the CB boom began several years ago.

It took 16 years — from 1958, when the CB service as we know it was created, to 1974 — for the FCC to issue its first million licenses.

Then, within eight months, it recorded its second million; three and a half months later, its third million. By Dec. 31, 1976, it had licensed more than 7.5 million stations including a record 5.5 million that year alone.

Industry estimates indicate there may be as many as 25 million CB sets now in use, including one in every nine cars.

After this weekend, it will be illegal to sell 23-channel radios, new or used. But don't throw away your old set because the

Finds Happiness Helping Children

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Because of you, my Christmas was a lot merrier this year. Last year my husband drove me crazy sitting around the house doing nothing. He had just retired at age 65, was in good health, and didn't know what to do with himself. He'd worked hard all his life and never had time to cultivate any hobbies.

I kiddingly suggested he write to you, and he did. You told him to offer his services to some volunteer group, and you named a few. He called the Crippled Children's Society, and they gave him the names of some handicapped children who needed transportation to and from the therapy clinic. He's never been happier.

Aren't men peculiar? They'll listen to advice from a stranger, but just let their wives tell them the same thing and they'll say she's off her rocker.

Thanks, Abby. You gave me the best Christmas present I've had in years.

ANGIE

DEAR ANGIE: Don't mention it. Greet your wonderful husband for me, and thank him for giving me this opportunity to remind others that they, too, can improve the quality of their retirement years by volunteering their services. Everybody can do something.

DEAR ABBY: I may be old-fashioned, but I think it's in very poor taste to give a child money for Christmas. My mother-in-law sends my child a check every Christmas, and I get furious with her. I have been tempted to send it back or to send HER a check in the same amount. I feel if she can't take the time (of which she has plenty) to shop for her grandchild, she can keep her money. My child would be more impressed with a sack of jelly beans than he is with grandma's check. Should I tell her to forget it next year?

FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: No. I think giving a child a check makes more sense than giving him a gift he feels he must keep or worse yet, wear because it's grandma's Christmas gift. You can't go wrong with money; the color is always right, and you don't have to worry about "fit"—it fits into any pocketbook.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a husband who expects me to keep up an active sex life while I'm pregnant.

I've tried to tell him that being in this condition doesn't make me feel very seductive. Between heartburn, nausea, backaches, fatigue and swollen feet, not to mention the feeling that there must be ten babies in there beating on my ribs, spine and other vital organs, the one thing I don't feel is lust!

This is my second pregnancy and I'm not looking forward to the upcoming fights.

How can I explain to my husband that having sex, especially during the last stages of pregnancy, is not all that enjoyable? I don't expect complete abstinence, just a break now and then. Help me!

PG in S.C.

DEAR PG: You can explain it to your husband just as you've explained it to me, and in even more explicit language.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. Recently my parents were separated, and my father moved out of the house. Every Sunday he comes to visit us kids. (There are four of us. I am the oldest.)

When he comes here, Mom goes out, and if Dad is still here when she returns, she goes right to her room and stays there until he leaves. Dad always asks how Mom is, if she's "happy," and how her health is.

He really seems interested in her. After Dad leaves, Mom asks how Dad looked and what he said. Abby, I think they still love each other, and I would do anything to get them back together again, but I've been told to live my own life and to let them live theirs. How can I help?

WANTS TO HELP

DEAR WANTS: If your parents parted without seeking professional help in resolving their differences, beg them to give it a try for their own sakes as well as for yours. But if they have, the advice you received was good.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly before our 16-year-old daughter was to receive her driver's license, I made the statement that if she were involved in an accident that was her fault, or was arrested for a traffic violation, I would take her license away for one year. Everyone in the family heard me make this statement.

Last week my daughter was driving and my wife was with her. My daughter was trying to look at a road map as she drove.

Her mother told her to stop the car if she was going to look at the map, but she didn't stop—until she hit a highway post about five seconds later.

Now my wife feels that the one-year penalty was too strict to begin with. I believe it will not only teach the girl a lesson, but will serve as an example to the younger children. If you say the one-year penalty is too harsh, I may reconsider.

POP

DEAR POP: Yup. It's too harsh. A year is practically a lifetime for a 16-year-old. Personally, I'll bet the highway post taught your daughter more about safe driving than the reprisals of her pop. If it happens AGAIN, lower the boom. For the time being, lower the penalty.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Miss Johnson To Attend New Year's Ball As Sub-Debutante

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The Debutante Assembly and New Year's Ball, a dinner-dance for international debutantes, will celebrate its 56th year and third generation of debutantes Sunday at the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel here.

Miss Nathalie Elizabeth Pate Johnson of Greenville, N. C., is attending as a sub-debutante and will make her debut at the 1979 ball. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. Milam Johnson.

Her escorts will be her brothers, Frankford M. Johnson II, a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and F. Melvin Johnson, who attends Davidson College.

Among the North Carolina patronesses and sponsoring committee members are Miss Johnson's mother, Mrs. Johnson, who will be escorted by her husband, a professor at East Carolina University.

Miss Johnson is a senior at J. H. Rose High School, where she has participated in the Concert and Marching Band, Chess Club, Science and Ecology Club and is head engineer of lights and sound for school plays.

She is active as a member of Oakmont Baptist Church and has served as secretary for Explorers, East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America. She plans to attend St. Mary's College, Raleigh, next year.

For the ball, Miss Johnson will be wearing a formal length gown of sky blue taffeta and chiffon overlays with a layer of chiffon forming a full floor length stole which encircles the gown. The gown is fashioned with a scooped neckline and matching cummerbund of embroidered lace with pearls.

The assembly and ball was founded in 1921 "to contribute to better understanding between people and for the favored daughters of families from all over the United States and abroad." There will be a representative from each of the 50 states and several foreign countries for the Sunday event. Thirty to 50 debutantes are presented each year and there are never more than two from any state.

Some Cuts of Lamb Can Be Thrifty Buy

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Loin lamb chops are a luxury item out of the reach of many these days, but there are other cuts of this meat that do not cost so much. What's more, they can form the base for a gourmet meal.

Instead of the choice loin, try shoulder chops or lamb steaks. They are not only cheaper, but a good deal meatier than the more expensive cut. And if you like your meat grilled, rare or well done, you are missing something unless you try lamb steaks.

The heaviest supply of lamb comes to the market in the fall, but thanks to the geographically widespread nature of the meat industry today, lamb is now available every month of the year.

The supply of fresh U.S. lamb has been augmented in recent years by supplies of frozen New Zealand and Australian lamb in many parts of this country. I'm told that there are more than 60 million sheep grazing on New Zealand farms, or roughly 20 sheep for every human being in that country. No wonder New Zealand has become the world's prime exporter of lamb.

Imported lamb must pass close inspection to qualify for sale in this country. For instance, lamb in American butcher stores must have been slaughtered at less than 12 months of age.

Because of improved breeding and feeding methods, many animals come to the market today weighing as much as 60 pounds dressed. This larger lamb supplies a better ratio of meat to the bone and can be both lean and tender.

When the weather's warm, lamb steaks cook well on the outside grill. Season the meat in a herbal marinade for several hours and then grill it alongside some corn on the cob, tomatoes and green peppers on the patio cooker.

If you want to go in for a little glamour with your dinner, try flaming the meat with cognac. Here's a recipe for such a dish.

6 lamb steaks, cut 1 inch

- thick
  - ¾ cup butter or margarine
  - 4 teaspoons dry mustard
  - 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
  - ½ cup cognac
  - Chopped parsley
- Broil steaks 3 to 4 inches from source of heat 4 to 6 minutes on each side, depending on desired degree of doneness. Melt butter in skillet and stir in mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in cognac, heat slightly and ignite. Arrange steaks on platter. Pour some sauce over meat. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve remaining sauce with steaks. Good with a red Bordeaux.

Hanker For Ham Biscuits? Check 'Where To Eat' Book

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — How many times have you, a stranger in town, awakened at 3 a.m. in some Cincinnati hotel room and wondered where you could find some good country ham, red-eye gravy and butter-milk biscuits at that hour?

And how many times have you, six months pregnant and visiting in Phoenix, developed a midnight craving for a cream cheese and strawberry sandwich with no notion of where to look for it?

Even once is too often. But it need not happen ever again. You don't have to lie there tossing and turning the rest of the night. Simply reach under your pillow and extract your copy of "Where To Eat in America," (Random House $7.95 paper) a newly published guide to finding "what you want to eat when you want to eat it."

There, on page 81, you will learn that Robertson's, an all-night eatery just five minutes from downtown Cincinnati, serves ham-gravy-biscuit around the clock.

Or page 310 will send you to Dr. Munchie's, which stays open until 4 a.m. and, lucky for you, is one of the few places in Arizona that features cream cheese and strawberry sandwiches.

The suppliers of this vital intelligence are William Rice, executive food editor of the Washington Post, and Burton Wolf, a New York author and commentator on cooking.

With the aid of resident food critics in 30 cities, they have attempted to answer the question most frequently asked by travelers: "Where's a good place to eat around here?"

Usually, that question is directed to a hotel or motel desk clerk, not always with spectacular success.

Your typical American desk clerk may otherwise be a pearl among men — mannerly, neat, well-spoken and good to his mother. But he is apt to have the taste buds of an undermoulish armadillo.

Through misplaced loyalty or a defective palate he may even go so far as to recommend the restaurant in the establishment where you are lodging.

In their book, Rice and Wolf attempt to rescue travelers who are at the mercy of desk clerks. Their work, however, is not necessarily limited to gastronomically abused wayfarers.

A casual diner could, for example, live in Washington for years without realizing that Le Lion d'Or on Connecticut

Avenue is the spot to go when you have a hankering for mousse of pigeon appetizers.

The lower case subject of where to eat in America has, of course, been covered before, most notably by Duncan Hines, whose "Adventures in Good Eating" saved many a tourist and salesman from terminal heartburn.

The upper case "Where To Eat in America" breaks new ground, however, by compartmentalizing various dining habits, whims and eccentricities.

In each of the 30 cities examined, there are 19 broad categories of "Business Lunch," "Fast Food," "Restaurant Near Airport," "Best Hotel Meal," "Best Wine List," "Late Snack" and so on.

But it also breaks down to a more personal level.

Suppose you are in Portland for a secluded rendezvous and you unfortunately are allergic to gypsy violins.

You'll be pleased to learn that the Captain's Corner is so "dimly candlelit" that "you may not be recognized." Plus, there apparently is no danger of strolling strings dripping pizzicatos all over the skewered scallops.

If your taste does run to tuneful dining, you can find a place to gratify it listed, appropriately, under the heading "Restaurant With Music." In Milwaukee, there's a restaurant that specializes in hasenpfeffer with zithers.

We Shared A Year Of Growth

Our area completes another year as of midnight tomorrow — and quite a year it has been. In Greenville there has been a large business expansion as the city and Pitt County attempt to accommodate the factors which cause growth. The face of Greenville is constantly changing and this continued during 1977. Old houses came down during the year as the Central Business District redevelopment project moved closer to completion. Streets have been widened and a new thoroughfare in the extension of Arlington Boulevard is taking shape at year's end. City schools almost got into a new Middle School building on Arlington Boulevard. Because of construction delays it won't quite happen in 1977, but the building will be occupied very early in 1978. Pitt County opened its new hospital, a long held dream during 1977. It was a dream shared by the new ECU Medical School which began its first four year class during the year. Part of the facilities for the medical school were completed at the hospital site.

During the year 1977, Dr. Leo Jenkins, who is completing his last year as chancellor, was frequently honored, and there was virtually no one who would say that the honors were not richly deserved. It was a year in which our area farmers were worried. The tobacco crop was not as good as some years and the glut of lugs which flooded Stabilization threatened the price support program. There were new attacks, too, on the tobacco program with some strong jabs coming from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. At year's end, however, area farmers found that they had fared better than farmers in some other areas of the nation, many of whom were striking. The tobacco program controversy seemed resolved for the time being, with the Carter administration reaffirming its support and HEW backing off. Generally it has been a good year for our area — one that had its problems but generally none that could not be solved.

Gierek Was A Miner

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Edward Gierek, the Polish leader President Carter talks with today, is a big, soft-spoken man who began his rise to the top post in his nation on the strength of bitter experiences in a far-away coal mine. Gierek, who turns 65 on Jan. 6, has headed the Polish Communist movement since 1970, when he succeeded Wladyslaw Gomulka as first secretary of the Polish United Workers' Party. Gierek says the turning point in his life came in 1926 when, at the age of 13, he had to go to work in a French coal mine. He was a miner for 18 years. "It was cruel work," he told The Associated Press Thursday. "Those years have molded in me a determination to struggle to overcome difficulties," he said in an interview in his office hours before Carter arrived for a three-day visit. Gierek was born to a coal-mining family in the Silesia area of southern Poland and emigrated with his mother to France in 1923 after his father was killed in a mine accident. "If you start working at a very early age," he said, "you cannot have respect for those for whom you are working." Mine conditions then were much worse than they are today, he said, and European coal mines were more primitive than their American counterparts. "West Virginia, compared with French mines, was like a sanatorium." Gierek became active in labor unions and in 1931 joined the French Communist Party. Three years later he was deported to Poland for involvement in a strike. In 1937 he started work as a miner in Belgium, where he spent World War II as a resistance fighter against the German occupiers. He didn't return to war-shattered Poland until 1948, when he began work in the Central Committee of the Polish Workers' Party. Soon he was active in party affairs in his native Silesia, beginning his rise to first secretary.

A Leader In Farm Ponds

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Spurred on by last summer's drought and a desire to manage water resources, more and more rural North Carolinians are installing farm ponds. For years, this has been the leading state in the Southeast in numbers of ponds, and records compiled by the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture depict 1977 as a banner year. State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks said 598 new ponds were installed with technical help from the conservationists. "This is a remarkable figure, in view of the increased cost of installing ponds," Hicks commented. The 598 is a substantial increase over the 397 in 1976; and 364 in 1975. Soil Conservation Service reports from the field show that much of the increased demand resulted from drought conditions during the summer which put a premium on water for irrigation purposes. The demand is expected to continue into 1978, and many field offices report a backlog of requests. Free Aid Hicks said aid from the Soil Conservation Service should be sought and followed carefully. Local officials survey soil and water conditions and will "stake and reference" the location where a pond may be dammed or dug. Some ponds combine earthen dams and excavated basins. The service is free, although actual digging and building must be contracted for or done by the owner. The Agricultural Conservation Program of the Stabilization and Conservation Service may provide some financial assistance. Help from conservationists in building ponds is important to not only find the best location, but to build a safe pond. "For the public safety, and to receive long-term service from these ponds, it is important they should be installed according to engineering standards. "We are proud of the record of ponds designed and built to these standards," Hicks said. Recreation Recreation is one of the most popular pond uses, with 98 percent of the ponds stocked with fish. Many are also used for swimming, and some are large enough to provide space for boating. Besides helping with the design of ponds, the Soil Conservation Service has booklets on fish stocking and general pond installation. Some farmers love ponds so much they become repeat customers. An office in eastern North Carolina recently had a request from a farmer who already has six big ponds. He wanted four more to bring his total to 10. Those considering a pond should contact either the local Soil Conservation Service office (there are 100; one in each county), or his local soil and water conservation district headquarters where elected representatives provide their neighbors with assistance and advice in locating and using aide programs.

But, He Wasn't Invited

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — These are desperate times for newspaper people in Washington. The most we can come up with around the holiday season is that the Carter people refuse to come out of the closet and mingle with the Establishment in this town. The few times they have come out, they've made social faux pas of such proportions that their remarks cannot be printed in a family newspaper. There are two sides to every story and while, under ordinary circumstances, it is not the job of a paper to print both, I think the Carter people should be heard. I received a telephone call last week from one of President Carter's speech writers who said, "The reason we never get out in Washington is that we've never been invited anywhere."

"I find that hard to believe." "It's true," he insisted. "The only people that ever get invited to an Establishment affair are Ham Jordan and Jody Powell. I don't think the Carter Administration should be judged on the table manners of these two people when there are over 500 of us working in the White House who are dying to go to a Georgetown salon." "But would you be up to mingling with the Washington Establishment?" I asked him. "You bet I am. My wife and I have been studying etiquette since we came to town. We have pictures of Evans and Novak and Joe Kraft, and Clark Clifford and Averell Harriman and Liz Taylor on our walls, just so we can memorize their faces in case we ever run into them. But so far we haven't got the call." "What about clothes? Do you have the right clothes for an Establishment party?" I asked. "The best. We took all our money from the last White House pay raise and invested it in every type of outfit you can think of. We're even prepared to go fox hunting if the right invitation comes along." "And still you've struck out?" I said. "I would say so. We only got four Christmas cards this year and three were from merchants we do business with." "And the fourth?" "It was from President Carter." "Well, you certainly can't consider him Establishment," I told my friend. "It seems to me that except for Ham and Jody everyone in the White House has kept such a low profile that you're uninvitable." "What exactly does that mean?" he wanted to know. "If you were invited to one of our soirees no one there would know who you were, and you'd just be taking up a place that could be filled by someone from the Ford Administration." "How are we going to get known if no one ever invites us out?" he asked angrily. "Don't get upset," I told him. "It's not your fault. But you see Washington operates socially on the revolving door principle. You go into the White House and then when your man loses, you go into a law firm or become a lobbyist, and then after four or eight years you're back in the government again. That's how it works." "When Joe Califano worked for President Johnson no one ever heard of him and he was never invited anywhere. Then he went into law practice, and finally he came back as secretary of HEW, and now he's very much in demand." (Continued on page 5)

THE INSIDE REPORT

Decline Of Adm. Turner

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Adm. Stansfield Turner's heavy-handed rule as director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has badly tarnished his former glitter, ending any chance of his returning to the Pentagon in a high military post and making him a new and serious problem for his former Annapolis classmate in the White House. Instead of resolving President Carter's CIA problems (intensified by the forced withdrawal of Theodore Sorensen's nomination to head the agency) Turner has compounded the President's predicament. Mr. Carter must now rebuild confidence not only in the CIA but also in its boss. One possible answer: give day-to-day CIA command to Frank Carlucci, a veteran civil servant now serving as ambassador to Portugal, who is coming in as deputy CIA director. Under this plan Turner would be given vague powers as overall presidential intelligence adviser, without operational authority. This possibility stems from Turner's conduct since taking over Central Intelligence. He has run over most everybody in his path, military-style. While this disregard for bureaucratic sensitivity sufficed in 1972-74 when he ruthlessly but brilliantly revamped the Naval War College as commandant, the beleaguered CIA is a more complicated civilian institution. Criticism of Turner as a public breaker of china in his own agency is hurting him in the administration. It has commended him to congressional critics of the CIA, but has raised suspicions elsewhere on Capitol Hill that Turner is taking his cues from Vice President Mondale and Mondale's former aide, National Security Council (NSC) staffer David Aaron — sharp critics of the CIA. Signs of coming trouble in Congress appeared when Turner was quizzed by the House Intelligence Committee early this month. Asked for a "fact sheet" on multiple firings of senior officers in clandestine intelligence, he replied in a six-page memorandum on Dec. 14 that "contrary to media reports, I was not directed...by either the Vice President or David Aaron" to reduce the clandestine service. If this indicates Turner is beginning to walk on thin ice in Congress, that ice broke long ago for him in the Pentagon. Intimates of Defense Secretary Harold Brown confide that, barring a direct order from the President, Brown would not propose Turner for either of the two big Pentagon jobs opening up in June: Chief of Naval Operations or Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Turner has escalated conflicts over intelligence jurisdiction that have embittered relations between the Pentagon and the CIA for years. Led to believe by President Carter that he would become the first true "czar of intelligence," Turner tried to run over Brown and the Pentagon to achieve it. He failed. Beyond that, Turner's old colleagues in the Navy say privately that his personnel troubles in the CIA prove that he cannot "manage men." "If he comes back here we want him as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs," one top Navy official told us. "That way, he can't do much harm to the Navy."

Simultaneously Turner is attacked, fairly or not, by officials in the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). They charge he wastes time in inter-agency strategic arms talks and is not well-informed. Finally, there are scattered indications, but no more, of Turner's decline within the White House itself. One indication concerns the role of his deputy, Turner has confided to aides that he did not want a deputy to stand in for him on a regular basis, with access to intelligence evaluations now limited to the Admiral himself. Turner intended to assign the "acting" director role, when he had to be absent, to different CIA officials, depending on the current crisis. That would protect his own status. But the White House is supporting Carlucci's insistence on receiving all intelligence evaluations, with the full status of a stand-in deputy. Carlucci is a tough veteran of bureaucratic warfare who will not back down. Since gaining full control and support of the CIA appears to be eluding Turner, some experienced officials feel Mr. Carter's best recourse is to let Carlucci gradually take day-to-day control of the agency. Just as gradually, Turner would move upstairs to a new role as intelligence coordinator. The President has not come close to resolving this question. Critics insist, however, that he had better spend more time on it than he did on his choice of Turner in the first place. Otherwise, the worrisome problems of the CIA will only get worse.

Other Editors Say: A Real Contest

(Henderson Dispatch)
Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has announced his candidacy for the United States Senate in the May primary. He has toyed with the idea for months, and as Christmas came up he made it official. Ingram will make a contest of it. There are elements who have sniped at him during his five years in office because of differences over certain phases of the insurance laws. But the commissioner won reelection last year in spite of his detractors. He is the only Democratic candidate to hold a high administration office in State government, and before his first election in 1972 served in the Legislature. With the vote pull Ingram will inject into the primary campaign, a run-off appears virtually certain at this distance. He will carry many votes which either Luther Hodges or McNeill Smith probably would have claimed. Few voters this early could name the six candidates who have now either formally announced or are doing preliminary campaigning. Some of them will hardly be more than an also-ran candidate and will be eliminated in the May primary. Indications are that Hodges, Smith and now Ingram will be the top vote getters. The big question for the eventual winner will be the battle in November with Republican Senator Jesse Helms. Criticism has been heard of the large amount of financial support Helms has received from out of the State, but not one of the candidates but who would welcome the same support if it should come their way, and which it will not, at least not in similar volume. There is serious doubt if either of the Democratic candidates can defeat Helms. He has been criticized for his conservatism in the Senate, but there are thousands who are of the same mind on national issues. Helms was elected in 1972 by reason of defection of many Democrats, and if he shall be reelected it will be largely in the same manner. Aside from local county contests, the Senate race will be the top phase of the 1978 campaign.

It was explained, however, that the 1937 plates went on sale on December 15, while this year the new licenses were available on the first of December. A total of 1,554 licenses were sold for this year, and that figure probably will be exceeded during the coming year, as it is believed there are more cars in the city now than a year ago. The Home Grocery Store located just across from the Army on Evans Street was entered last night and about 200 pennies taken from a drawer, Chief of Police George Clark revealed this morning. Chief Clark said the store management reported to him that nothing but the money was taken. The store was entered by breaking a rear window.

Strength For Today

THE GREATEST
The widow of President Grover Cleveland was a very remarkable person. About five years before her death at eighty-three she was stricken with blindness which the doctors told her would be permanent. Nothing daunted, the lady learned braille, bought a braille typewriter, and prepared for years of darkness. But the doctors were wrong, and her sight was almost completely restored. Did she then give up her work in braille? Not at all. Every month she selected the best magazine articles she had read and other materials from books and typed this up in braille. Then she sent this material to a long list of blind people at a considerable cost to herself. The day that she died she had just sent off a consignment of this kind. True Christian love needs no comment or preaching to illuminate it. The contemplation of it is enough.

Pension Studies Due For 1978

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter may announce next month his long-delayed commission to study the problems of financially strained pension systems of federal, state and local governments, according to a White House aide. Tentative plans call for the panel to study, among other things, Social Security pensions for disabled workers under age 65, the financial condition of government pension funds and "double-dipping" retirees who draw two or more pension checks from different units of the government. Among the items on the panel's agenda will be the Civil Service retirement system for civilian federal workers, which has an annual cost that is growing at the rate of $1 billion a year, according to latest figures. That system's long-term projected costs have been officially underestimated by several billion dollars per year, according to an unpublished Civil Service Commission report. Contributions by employees and the government cover only 61 per cent of the amount needed to pay expected future pensions and to provide for a stable reserve fund, the report said. Even in its present condition, the Civil Service pension system is better funded than the Social Security system or the military retirement system, the report said.

Carter announced at a news conference June 13 that he intended to appoint a pension commission "very quickly." He said then he thought it unfair to allow governmental retirees to draw full pensions while also holding down fulltime jobs. Carter cited wide disparities in retirement benefits available to people with similar working backgrounds who had paid similar amounts into different retirement funds. And he said many governmental retirement systems, particularly at the local level, are financially unsound, endangering the security of public servants. White House aide Franklin D. Raines said final plans for the panel had been delayed by other matters, including the recently signed increase in Social Security taxes. "We're still planning to set it up," Raines said in response to a reporter's questions. "We hope to be announcing something in the next month." He said plans for the panel are not yet final, but that it would focus on governmental pension systems including Civil Service, veterans' pensions, state and local pension funds, and disability pensions under Social Security. Rising costs brought on by inflation, increased benefits and swelling numbers of retirees have focused criticism on many local, state and federal retirement systems in recent years.

Impressed By Moslem-Jewish Embrace

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When Jewish and Moslem leaders embraced in the Middle East in the waning days of 1977, raising a glimmer of hope that the region's fratricidal conflict might be resolved, it was a top religious event of the year.
The impact of it also was felt by Christians, as well as others.
Citing it as the year's No. 1 religious story, the ecumenical weekly, Christian Century, said that despite political, cultural and economic ramifications of Israeli-Arab relations, religion was the underlying factor in the peaceful confrontation of Egyptian and Israeli leaders.

"Christian and Moslem and Jew will for a long time to come recall the evocation of transcendence by President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin," the weekly observed, noting their mutual appeals for God's help and references to common Biblical roots.

As various organs assessed the main religious events of the year, the following got principal attention:

—The onset of schism in the Episcopal Church, triggered by dissidents objecting to ordination of women, revisions in the Book of Common Prayer and asserted secularizing tendencies in the church.
—The drive by homosexuals for acceptance in the churches, clouded by Anita Bryant's successful Bible-quoting campaign in Dade County, Fla., to repeal an ordinance assuring them of rights in jobs and other spheres.
—Troubles for churches in Africa, with a key Christian broadcasting center seized by the government in Ethiopia, a Roman Catholic bishop murdered in the Congo, an Anglican bishop killed in Uganda where most Protestant groups were banned.

—French Roman Catholic Archbishop Lefevre pressed his opposition to reforms of the Second Vatican Council and took steps to start a traditionalist seminary in the United States, paralleling another in Switzerland.
—Actions by numerous church groups to challenge the television industry over its sex and violence portrayals.
—Seizure of Washington buildings by Hanafi Moslems.
—Continuing controversy over so-called religious cults in the country, particularly the Unification Church of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon and the tactics of "deprogrammers" to get followers out of them.

—The boom of the "born again" movement, given impetus by President Carter and conversion of various notables, an approach spilling over from conservative Protestantism into other circles, including Roman Catholic attention to personal evangelism.
—Further spread of the charismatic movement, including a gathering of 45,000 arm-lifting, "tongues"-singing Roman Catholic and Protestant participants in Kansas City. But controversy simmered over "shepherding"

Arrest Trio On Murder Counts

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Two men and a woman wanted on murder warrants from Florida were arrested with a runaway girl in a pre-dawn raid Thursday on an old school bus converted into a mobile home.
The raid was conducted by the Craven County Sheriff's Department, which said the runaway girl was being sought in Lee County, Fla.
The three adults were identified as Keith Lavon Anderson, 23, Brenda Joyce Lawson, 18, and Edward Steven Todd, 28, all of Fort Myers.
Sgt. Ray Newton of the Lee County sheriff's office in Florida said warrants were issued for all three charging them with first-degree murder, robbery and conspiracy in connection with the bludgeoning death of Ronald Henry Brown, 30.
Newton said Brown disappeared on Dec. 22 and was believed to be carrying several hundred dollars in cash. His body was found Tuesday floating face down in a canal in Charlotte County, about 35 miles from Fort Myers. His truck had been found near the scene three days earlier, and investigators reported finding blood on the seat.

The Craven County spokesman said deputies were alerted shortly before midnight Wednesday that the foursome could be found at a trailer park near New Bern. Four deputies were dispatched to the scene but did not find the group. An unnamed informant then reportedly tipped the officers that the four could be found on a dirt road nearby in a school bus converted into a mobile home.

The deputies surrounded the bus shortly after midnight and made the arrests without incident, the spokesman said. A shotgun, two machetes and a billy club were seized inside the bus, the spokesman said.

"You can't expect to break bread with Joe Alsup just because you've been working in the White House for a year."
"All right," he said. "Then why do they keep writing that we Carter people are un-social?"

"What would you write if you had a deadline and had to get to the British Embassy for Christmas cards and egg nog by eight o'clock?"

Western diplomats credit him with learning political skills well in the succeeding years. They say his ability to share responsibility and delegate authority has kept him at the top of the national party without any serious difficulty despite economic problems like those that toppled his two predecessors.
The party under Gierak has tolerated an active dissident movement and has recently made overtures to the powerful Roman Catholic Church.

THROUGH ALL TIME

Yesterday is gone. We tear its page from our calendar, for we live in the present.
But often we look back with nostalgia to the many yesterdays which make up the past. In a different mood we plan for the uncertain days ahead, sometimes filling them with happy expectations, sometimes with anxious forebodings.
Where is God in this time pattern of our lives?
Is He in the past alone, incarnate two thousand years ago in the great Teacher of Nazareth? Or does He walk with us through the present, our Companion each day? Does He remove all fear from the future with His promise, the promise of the living Christ, "And lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world?"
Come to Church and learn to know this Christ who is "the same yesterday, today, and forever."

Royal Canadians Play For New Year Arrival

By WILLIAM GILLEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — New Year's Eve and Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians go together like champagne and cheerful toasts. You can't have one without the other — but this year will be different. The 1½-hour televised broadcast from the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday night will be the band's 49th annual New Year's Eve appearance, and its first without Lombardo, who died last month at 75.

For tens of millions of Americans the link between the years has been the soothing sounds of the Canadians, playing what Lombardo liked to call "the sweetest music this side of heaven." And this year will be no different, said Lombardo's brother, Victor, who conducts the band now.

"We're going to carry on what Guy established," he said at rehearsal Thursday. "That's the kind of music people want to hear."

"We've been doing it for so long," said another brother, Lebert, who plays first trumpet and is the band's concertmaster. "We're like the milkman's horse. We don't need a lot of directions."

The broadcast will be carried by CBS-TV and 1,000 people are expected to pay between $100 and $150 each to hear the band play some of the top songs of yesteryear as well as those of 1977.

Among them are such standards as "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ra, That's an Irish Lullaby" and "Mississippi Mud," two songs associated with Bing Crosby, who died just a few weeks before Lombardo.

Kenny Gardner and Ty Lemy, who also plays electric guitar, will crown two of this year's hits — "New York, New York" and "You Light Up My Life."

Other songs on the program include "Enjoy Yourself," "Spanish Eyes," "Your Cheating Heart" and "Somewhere, My Love."

Joining the Canadians for the evening will be performers Leslie Uggams and Paul Williams.

The broadcast will switch to Times Square shortly before midnight, where CBS-TV personality Lee Jordan will supply

WITHOUT GUY — When New Year's Eve hits at midnight Saturday Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians will be playing "Auld Lang Syne" in the band's 49th annual New Year's Eve appearance — but without Guy, who died last month. The band that plays the "sweetest music this side of heaven" will be led by brother Victor, left, and brother Lebert is still on first trumpet. (AP Laserphoto)

the commentary that had been carried on for many years by Ben Grauer, who also died in 1977.

At midnight, as the ball drops from the top of the Allied Chemical Tower at Times Square, the band will break into its familiar theme — "Auld Lang Syne."

Durham Girl Cotton Maid

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A 20-year-old mechanical engineering student from Durham, N.C., has been crowned the 1978 Maid of Cotton.

Ruth Ann Harman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles M. Harman and a junior at Duke University, was chosen from a field of 18 finalists in the 40th annual Maid of Cotton competition Thursday night.

She succeeds Ellen Clark of Memphis, the 1977 maid.

First runner-up was Claudia Kreutzberg, 21, a University of Southern California senior from Riverside, Calif. Second runner-up was 23-year-old Lynda Nolan of Scottsboro, Ala., a senior at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

The 5-foot-9 Miss Harman, who has brown hair and green eyes, will begin her year-long reign as the American cotton industry's representative with an appearance at the Cotton Bowl parade and Texas-Notre Dame football game Monday in Dallas. For the next six months she will travel around the United States and in foreign nations promoting cotton.

Miss Harman is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Opening lead: ?

The North American challengers beat the defending champions with a sensational rally over the last 32 boards of the 96-board final to win the Bermuda Bowl, symbol of world bridge supremacy.

Trailing by 43 International Match Points after 64 boards, the challengers gained 60 IMPs on the next 16 and went on to win by 31½ IMPs. They had luck on their side. This board, from early in their rally, was typical.

North-South were employing five-card majors. West's jump overall was of the weak variety and North's double was "negative," i.e., for takeout. South showed his spades and, with a good double fit, North's raise to game was automatic.

The fate of the hand rested on the opening lead. At one table, the defending champion in the West seat felt that it was important to get whatever heart tricks were due to his side before declarer could take a discard. Therefore, he selected the eight of hearts as his opening lead.

East won the ace of hearts. He could have shifted to the ace of diamonds and another, giving his partner a ruff, but that would have been the third and last trick for the defenders. No other defense would have prevailed, so the challengers scored their vulnerable game.

At the other table, Bob Hamman also led a red eight — but he chose the eight of diamonds. Bob Wolff won the ace and returned the ten of diamonds, a suit preference signal for hearts. Hamman ruffed, led a heart to his partner's ace and scored another diamond ruff to defeat the contract.

The challengers won 12 IMPs on the deal.

Resolutions For The TV Viewer

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — By neddies, it's almost 1978. Which means it's time for New Year's resolutions. Which means, no kidding, that in 1978 we really vow to:

- Join a pressure group demanding that "Soap" be kept on. That way, ABC will become alarmed and take it off.
- Avoid all televised bowl games, be they Cotton, Sugar, Orange, Rose, Super or Pro. Use the time for an intelligent endeavor, like reading the collected sayings of Millard Fillmore.
- Boycott all the bogus sports shows the networks dream up, such as ABC's "Superstars." Everyone on them looks like Gabe Kaplan. Come to think of it, everyone on them is Gabe Kaplan.
- Skip NBC's "Tonight" when it has guest hosts which seems to be always.
- All the guest hosts look like John Davidson. Come to think of it, all the guest hosts are John Davidson.
- Figure a way to tell a friend, Cole Pleasant of Memphis, Tenn., that no radio station anywhere is playing his new song, "How Can I Say 'I Love You' with a Mouth Full of Red Hots?"
- Demand that ABC bring back Darren McGavin's "Kolchak: The Night Stalker." Make this a high-priority item.

- Regularly watch the "ABC Evening News" to see if the co-anchors, Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters, ever collectively exceed one minute per night on the show when Anwar Sadat isn't available.
- Regularly watch NBC's "Today" to see if the frequent announcements of coming attractions regularly exceed two hours per show.
- Find at least three people who will swear, in a roomfull of witnesses, that they've actually seen a complete "Love Boat."
- Exhaustively study the question of whether intelligent life exists on "Laverne and Shirley."
- Check the rumor that there's been a horrible misunderstanding, that in reality the Mobil Oil Corp. has been brought to you by a grant from PBS.
- Ask CBS if, at the end of "60 Minutes," Shana Alexander and James Kilpatrick can be told to stop fussing at each other and just settle the argument with cream pies at 10 paces.
- Finally, join the new pressure group, "Friends of Caligula," to loudly protest the slander done him in "I, Claudius."

Wedding Vows At 8,000 Feet

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — They said they'd do it and they did. Mel Connor and Bonnie Kennedy said their wedding vows Thursday night 8,000 feet above Guilford County while standing in the aisle of a Piedmont Airlines jet.

In the planning stages for months, the ceremony took only five minutes to perform, with Guilford County magistrate Ralph Guffey hoping the plane stayed within county limits so his pronouncements would have legal force.

For insurance, another quickie ceremony was said at the Greensboro Airport.

The whole thing was the brainchild of Greensboro realtor James E. Flynt, a friend of the couple, who had told him over a beer eight months ago that they didn't want their marriage to begin with just another wedding.

Flynt's idea for an airborne ceremony delighted them, and they told him that if he could come up with a suitable aircraft, they'd do it. Flynt obliged with $3,000 to hire the Piedmont, complete with pilot and two stewardesses to serve the champagne to the 80-plus guests.

The vows were said in front of the door to the pilot's cockpit. The plane was decorated with white bunting and its speaker system piped traditional wedding music through the cabin.

Ms. Kennedy and some of her bridesmaids were inexperienced flyers, so the traditional weeping was replaced in some cases by fear of airsickness, which fortunately never materialized.

It was the second wedding on a Piedmont aircraft. Piedmont said the first was 20 years ago.

Quake Said Relic Hazard

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The head of the Monitor Research and Recovery Foundation frets that the Civil War ironclad, which has rested quietly for more than a century in 220 feet of water off Cape Hatteras, is in imminent danger of destruction by earthquake.

John Newton was in Wilmington Thursday for discussions with Chamber of Commerce officials of the foundation's possible move here from its current location in Beaufort.

Newton repeated his belief that if the Monitor is successfully raised, it will go on public display wherever the foundation decides to make its headquarters when its board meets Jan. 15.

In the meantime, Newton says, the Monitor perches on the edge of the continental shelf where an earthquake could knock it off into three-mile-deep water. If that happened, the world's first iron warship would be destroyed, he said.

Newton said he was worried about the state's entry into the Monitor controversy, because the ship needs to be raised as soon as possible and the state seems less than eager to recover it.

State officials announced recently they had signed an agreement with the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration which gave them authority to supervise planning for research and recovery efforts for the Monitor.

"They said they will be developing a master plan for the study of the Monitor, but they have indicated in the past that they don't want to see the Monitor raised, which worries me some," Newton said. "Also, the foundation has already developed a master plan. Why should more of the public's money be spent to develop a new one?"

Despite all this, Wilmington officials seemed eager to lure the foundation here and offered sketches they had ordered drawn of a possible berth for the vessel along with arrangements for office, laboratory and warehouse space.

Amy Tries Her Hand At Skiing

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — President Carter's 10-year-old daughter, Amy, has tried her hand at skiing and won mostly high marks from her instructor.

At one point Thursday, the president's daughter bumped into a tree. But her instructor, Mike Wells, said she "had to be a great kid to hit a tree and come up smiling."

Amy is staying at a four-bedroom condominium purchased two months ago by Carlton Hicks, a Brunswick, Ga., doctor with whom the president fishes at a Georgia seacoast resort.

While Amy was skiing Thursday, her mother and father arrived in Poland to begin a six-nation journey.

Rampants Nip Conley in Overtime

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A James Hawkins pass went astray during an overtime period last night in the finals of the Rose Holiday Tournament, and it keyed the Rampants to a 62-60 overtime win over D.H. Conley.

Conley was holding a 56-55 lead over the Rampants with just under two minutes to play when Hawkins, in the corner of the court spotted teammate William Barnes all alone on the other side of the basket. He flipped the ball, but it never got to Barnes. Instead, it hit the far rim of the basket and fell back through, giving Rose a 57-56 lead with 1:46 to play.

Hawkins, who hit six of the eight points the Rampants made during the overtime, then keyed it all by stealing an inbounds pass from the Vikings with eight seconds left, then hitting one final free throw with five seconds to go to insure the victory.

"We never gave up," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said afterwards. "This is the biggest win we've had since I started coaching. Conley has a real fine club, but our kids did the things they had to do."

"Hawkins played a great game. (Greg) Guthrie helped us a lot, too, and Billy Roberson played well again. Both (Ronnie) Chapman and (Derwin) Clemons played well on defense, stealing the ball a lot."

Roberson fouled out of the game just seconds into the final period, and that caused Brewington some anguish. "But Kenny Hall came off the bench and did a real fine job for us."

"I thought we could win if we kept it close," the coach said. "A win like this has got to help us. We've had two games (in the last three) that we had to come back to win."

Conley coach Shelly Marsh felt that his Vikings had the chance to win. "They just outplayed us," he said. "We had the ball with six seconds to go and had the chance. You can't ask for much more."

"I'm not taking anything away from Rose. They played the best I've seen them play. But we took some bad shots down the stretch and didn't handle their defense."

"If we are a championship caliber team, we'll come back from this. It'll show what we're made of."

Hawkins, Guthrie and William Barnes of Rose were selected to the All-Tournament team by the coaches, along with Al Tyson, Mike Cox and Daryl Thompson of Conley.

Joining them were Lawaskia Jenkins and Calvin Carmack of North Pitt and Earl Harris and Donald Reid of Farmville Central.

In the consolation game, North Pitt held off Farmville for a 61-54 win.

Both Rose and Conley were able to inch out into slim leads during the first period. Rose took a 4-2 lead, but Conley came back to tie it up at 4-4 and 6-6 before Guthrie hit a basket and a free throw to give Rose a three-point edge, 9-6.

Conley came back to regain the lead at 16-15, but Rose tied it at 19-19 as Barnes hit from underneath with 15 seconds left.

Conley pulled away again in the opening minutes of the second period to take a 26-19 lead, their biggest of the night, before Rose began a comeback that pushed them into a 33-32 lead with 2 minutes left. But Ricky Rountree hit off a fast break with a stiff shot to return the lead to Conley, 34-33, and the Vikings held a 36-34 edge at the half.

Rose tied the score on four occasions in the third period, but was unable to grab the lead until Hawkins hit two free throws with 42 seconds left for a 48-46 lead. Thompson hit from the stripe, however, and Rountree put back a missed shot to give the Vikings a 49-48 lead to carry into the final period.

Rose again tied it on three occasions, the last time at 54-54 on a free throw by Barnes with 4:07 left. After that, both teams had opportunities, and chose to work on running down the clock.

Thompson drove in for Conley with 1:40 showing, but Hall blocked his shot and recovered the rebound. Guthrie then drove in with 22 seconds left, but lost the ball and it bounced out of bounds off his leg. A final attempt by Conley was off the mark, forcing the overtime.

Hawkins put Rose ahead, 55-54 with a free throw, but Thompson put Conley back ahead. Hawkins then hit his shot off his pass across the basket, but Mike Cox put in two free throws before Hawkins added two more for Rose for a 59-58 lead.

Tyson missed a shot and Guthrie got the rebound and was fouled. He made both shots with 41 seconds left for a 61-58 lead. Tyson hit with 32 seconds left to close the gap to one.

Then, after Rose missed a free throw, Conley called a time out after rebounding. They had the ball with eight seconds left under the Rampant basket.

Hawkins stole the inbounds pass, and was fouled, hitting the first of the two shots, and it was all over. Conley again lost the ball in its rush to get it back down the court as the horn went off.

Guthrie finished with 18 points, while Barnes and Hawkins each had 14 and Roberson had 10.

Conley was led by Cox with 17 and Tyson with 15.

Consolation Game

In the consolation contest, North Pitt had to hang on for its win over Farmville Central, after moving out by as many as 19 points.

Farmville held a three-point spread early in the game, 9-6, but North Pitt, which had led 6-2, came back to tie it up at 9-9 at the end of the period.

Jenkins hit a three-point play to put North Pitt back into the lead early in the second period, and they never trailed again. The Panthers stretched their lead out to 28-12, a 16-point bulge as the Jaguars had trouble finding the range.

That margin went to 19 during the third period, and North Pitt took a 49-30 lead into the final quarter. But Farmville put on another rally, this time closing to within five points, 56-51, before North Pitt was finally able to win it at the foul line.

The Panthers hit only one field goal during the final quarter, but made 10 of 14 free throws.

Jenkins led North Pitt with 17,

D.H. Conley's Mike Cox puts up a shot against Rose High School in the finals of the Rose Holiday Classic last night. Cox (52) works for the basket despite the efforts of Billy Roberson and William Barnes, both partially hidden. Rose's Greg Guthrie (11) watches. Rose won the title, 62-60, in an overtime battle. ## Williamston Gains Finals

WILLIAMSTON — Bear Grass captured the girls' consolation championship, while Williamston moved into the finals of the boys championship in last night's Williamston Holiday Tournament play.

Bear Grass downed Jamesville, 47-29, for the consolation title. Williamston beat Bear Grass in the boys' game, 61-52, to move into tonight's finals against Roanoke.

In other games tonight, Williamston's girls face Roanoke for the title, while the Bear Grass boys and Jamesville boys meet in the consolation game.

In the girls' game, Bear Grass edged ahead, 11-8, during the first period. Jamesville got eight more in the second frame, but the Lady Bears increased their output to 12. That made it 23-16 at the half.

Jamesville cut two off that in the third period but still trailed 30-25. Bear Grass outhit them, 17-4, in the final period to wrap it up.

Patricia Taylor led Bear Grass with 21 points, while Joyce Manning had 23 to lead Jamesville.

Williamston's boys pushed out to a 15-12 lead in the first quarter, then saw the Bears come back to close the gap to a dead-heat, 25-25 at the half.

Rampants Capture WRAL Championship

RALEIGH — Rose High School's wrestlers captured five first places and rolled to an easy victory in the WRAL-TV Wrestling Tournament at Raleigh Sanderson High School last night.

Rose finished the two-day event with 196½ points, well ahead of defending state champion Cary, which had 149.

Hosting Sanderson was third with 90½, followed by Northern Durham with 74, Broughton with 69, Garner, 62; Reid Ross, 59½; and Apex, 43½.

Celtics Win Again

By ALEX SACHARE

It was like old times for the Boston Celtics.

"We played with consistency and we played with pride," said Coach Tom Heinsohn after the Celtics snapped a six-game losing streak with a 124-115 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Thursday night.

"That's the way the Celtics are supposed to play," added Heinsohn. "We've only played about six games like that all year, and this was one of them. We reminded people how the old Celtics did it."

And one old Celtic who helped was Don Chaney, who spent seven years with Boston before playing out his option in 1975. He was reacquired from Los Angeles in the Charlie Scott deal earlier this week.

"Chaney was a factor, no question," said Heinsohn. "He knows how to run the fast break and he knows our offense. He also played some strong defense for us."

In other National Basketball Association games, the New York Knicks beat the New Jersey Nets 109-101, the Phoenix Suns stopped the Kansas City Kings 110-104 and the Houston Rockets defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 104-99.

Chaney scored just four points in 14 minutes in his first game back with the Celtics, but his teammates said he contributed far more than that.

The Celtics hit 56 per cent of their shots from the field and had four players with 20 or more points — Dave Cowens 30, John Havlicek 24 and Jo Jo White and Bing 20 each.

Georgia Pulls Off Upset Of Louisville

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ricky Gallon can kick himself for what happened in the Holiday Classic Tournament at Louisville, Ky.

Well, actually, Denny Crum might do it for him — and add a few extra boots for the rest of his Louisville basketball team. Crum had plenty to kick about Thursday night. For one thing, Gallon cost the Cardinals a crucial field goal with offensive goaltending in overtime. For another, the Cardinals cost themselves plenty more points with their inoffensive play.

Ranked No. 7 in the nation, the Cardinals looked like No.

77 the way they shot Thursday night and as a result, lost a stunning 73-70 overtime decision to surprising Georgia in their own tournament.

"We didn't deserve to win," said an enraged Crum. "You can't shoot 35 percent and expect to win, even at home. We outrebounded them. We had fewer turnovers, and I thought our defense was very good. We did a lot of things well — but we went one for eight in the overtime, and you can't shoot that in overtime and expect to beat anybody."

With the Cardinals down 72-70 with 50 seconds to go in the overtime period, Rick Wilson hit what would have been the tying field goal, but the call on Gallon's goaltending voided the points. The usually-poised Cardinals lost two other chances in the final 30 seconds when Bobby Turner and Wilson missed shots.

Georgia, led by Walter Daniels' 25 points, was one of several teams to capture holiday hardware in a raft of tournaments around the country.

Ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas won its Las Vegas Holiday Classic with a 94-85 victory over UC-Santa Barbara as Reggie Theus scored 26 points. The victory for the Rebels was their 13th without a loss this season.

Georgetown remains one of the strongest teams in the country with an energetic backcourt that includes the ubiquitous Derrick Jackson and John Duren, won the Holiday Festival Tournament in New York with an 83-73 victory over Alabama. Duren scored 24 points and Jackson, George-town's all-time leading scorer, had 20 to spearhead the Hoya attack.

In the consolation game for third place, 12th-ranked Holy Cross edged Princeton's hard-luck Tigers 61-59 on Mike Vicens' basket with three seconds left. It was the sixth tough loss this year for the Tigers.

who have been beaten in those games by a mere total of 14 points.

Lawrence Boston scored nine of Maryland's last 12 points, rallying 14th-ranked Maryland to a 65-63 victory over Georgia Tech in the championship game of the Maryland Invitational. Bill Bryant sank two free throws in a one-and-one situation with 22 seconds to give Maryland its clinching points over the Yellowjackets.

Alex Eldridge scored 19 points to lead undefeated Massachusetts to an 84-73 victory over Niagara in the finals of the Connecticut Classic at Hartford. It was the Minutemen's eighth straight victory and snapped a seven-game Niagara winning streak.

The University of South Alabama crushed Pepperdine 82-64 behind Gary Reese's 23 points in the Senior Bowl Tournament in Mobile, Ala. Ted Williams and Jay Lehman teamed for half of Toledo's points as the Rockets defeated Wyoming 100-79 to claim the Glass City Classic in Toledo, Ohio.

Several other holiday tournaments continued toward their weekend conclusions.

In the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii, North Carolina and Stanford advanced to tonight's finals with victories in Thursday night's semifinals. North Carolina, the nation's No. 2 team, whipped Texas Tech 88-76 as Phil Ford scored 25 points and handed out eight assists and Stanford shocked No. 13 Providence 76-61 behind Kimberly Belton's 20 points.

San Francisco, the nation's No. 19 team, got a 30-point effort from Winford Boynes to beat Miami of Ohio 91-88 in the semifinals of the All-College Tournament in Oklahoma City. The Dons earned a berth in the finals against Arizona State, which defeated Boston College 105-96 as Roy Joshua, Blake Taylor and Rick Taylor combined for 65 points.

Kansas' 17th-ranked Jayhawks edged Oklahoma 79-76 in the semifinals of the Big Eight tourney in Kansas City, Mo., behind an 18-point performance from Donnie Von Moore. Kansas State won the other semifinal game, whipping previously unbeaten Nebraska 69-60 behind Curtis Redding's 26 points.

New Hampshire trimmed Old Dominion 71-68 behind Pete Laskaris' 16 points in the semifinals of the Old Dominion Classic in Norfolk, Va. Michigan State defeated SMU 95-69 with five players scoring in double figures in the other game.

Steve Smith sank an eight-foot hook shot with two seconds left in overtime as Oregon State upset previously unbeaten Villanova 58-57 in the semifinals of the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore. Colorado State won the other final berth by nipping Washington State 47-46 with a second-half rally triggered by sophomore Barry Young.

Tenth-ranked Syracuse whipped Mississippi State 76-66 behind Marty Byrnes' 20 points in an opening-round game of the Lobo Invitational in Albuquerque, N.M. Michael Cooper drilled in 29 points to pace New Mexico State past Vermont 104-81 in Thursday night's other contest.

North Carolina-Charlotte hit 18 of 19 free throws and got 30 points from Lew Massey to edge Kent State 60-55 in a first-round game of the KOA Classic in Billings, Mont. In another opening game, Jerry Blad converted four one-on-one free throws to lead Eastern Montana to an 80-77 victory over Montana State.

Virginia, ranked No. 16, defeated Temple 66-55 behind the shooting of Lee Raker, Jeff Lamp and Mark Iavaroni in the Sugar Bowl Tournament in New Orleans. Cliff Robinson poured in 22 points as Southern Cal beat Auburn 85-74 in another opening-round game.

Kim Goetz scored 23 points and teammate Presnell Gilbert added 22 to pace host San Diego State to a 104-74 victory over Fordham in the first round of the Cabrillo Classic. Earlier, Joe Barry Carroll, a 7-foot sophomore, scored 28 points to lead Purdue to a 91-80 triumph over Pittsburgh.

Ford Powers Tar Heels Into Rainbow Finals Against Stanford

HONOLULU (AP)—Tournament favorite North Carolina, behind the court-blazing shooting of All-American Phil Ford, goes against a young Stanford team in today's finals matchup in the 14th annual Rainbow Classic basketball tournament.

The No. 2 ranked Tar Heels bounded easily by Texas Tech 88-76 Thursday, while the Cardinals upset 13th-ranked Providence 76-61 to each gain a chance for the tournament trophy.

Providence will take on Texas Tech to decide the third and fourth place finishers, while Lafayette meets Rhode Island and host Hawaii plays Brigham Young in the consolation matches.

North Carolina took the tournament in 1972, the only other time they entered the Rainbow Classic. Stanford ended up in seventh place their first and only time in the tournament in 1968. Ford, a 6-2 senior guard generally regarded as the best backcourt player in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference, led the Tar Heels to an easy win over the Red Raiders with 25 points. He was followed by Mike O'Koren with 16 and Al Wood with 12.

At one point in the game, North Carolina led by as many as 23 points in coasting to their ninth win in 10 starts.

Texas Tech, whose record dropped to 7-2, was paced by Mike Russell with 21 points, Tommy Parks with 19, Kent Williams 14 and Joe Baxter 10.

North Carolina head coach Dean Smith observed, "We played one of our better basketball games even though we only won by 12 points."

Looking ahead to today, Smith said, "Whether we win or lose I think we had an excellent December. I wanted to improve as the season progressed and I feel we are improving."

Head Coach Gerald Nyers said his Red Raiders were stymied by North Carolina's man-to-man defense and its pressure.

"Both teams were a little lax but with a guy like Phil Ford, he can turn your team around and get it going," said Nyers.

The surprising news Thursday, however, was Stanford's decisive win over Providence.

The Cardinals raced off to a 10-0 advantage over the cold-shooting Friars and were never headed off as Kimberly Belton hit on nine of 12 shots from the floor and scored 20 points to help keep Stanford's attack going.

The Cardinals are now 8-2 for the season, while Providence dropped to 7-1.

"It was our defense that carried us through seven victories and carried us here," Providence head coach Dave Gavitt said later. "Tonight, our offense took out our defense by turning the ball over."

Gavitt also said he could not remember when his team got off to as bad a start "except in 1971, when South Carolina had us in a similar situation and they were ranked No. 2 in the nation."

"It was a good game, we played well," said Stanford head coach Dick DiBiasi. "We didn't make mistakes we normally do. Providence made them."

The new year is about to spring on us, and it brings us to pause and look back on the past year. Sports in the Pitt-Martin-Greene area has been good, and it has been changing, as usual.

There were many big stories in sports, and there will be many more in the coming years.

East Carolina made big news in several events. Late in the basketball season Dave Patton shocked everyone by announcing his resignation. In the weeks that followed, Larry Gillman, an assistant at the University of San Francisco, was signed to the position, and brought in the first true All-America candidate in Pirate basketball history, Oliver Mack.

While the young Pirates have not gotten off to a good start, the makings of a good team are there, and hopefully the new year will find a better record ahead.

Baseball followed that up as the Pirates snapped a jinx in the Southern Conference of never winning a title in an odd-numbered year. It took a 15-1 Southern record to do the job, including a clutch sweep of a doubleheader against The Citadel in Charleston to clinch the title. The Pirates then lost twice in succession in close games to Wake Forest and South Carolina in the regionals.

The Pirate track team followed that up by rolling to a victory in the Southern Conference meet, their second title of the year. Earlier in the spring they had won the indoor title in an upset.

The two championships closed out East Carolina's participation in the Southern Conference, as the school set out on the path of independence after that.

The fall brought on two wins over Atlantic Coast Conference schools, N.C. State and Duke. It saw the Pirates leading South Carolina, only to lose in the final period, and eventually finish 8-3, failing to pick up a bowl bid.

But Pirate football proved it had reached the big time, and work is now underway to enlarge the seating of Ficklen Stadium to over 35,000. Area athletes also performed well. Danny Kepley, a former Pirate, was one of the top players in the Canadian Football League this past year. Al Hunter, former Rose grider, signed to play pro football with the NFL Seattle Seahawks.

Joe West, another former Rose player, saw action as an umpire in several major league games this year, and Kelly Heath, another ex-Rampant, began his move up the professional ladder with the Kansas City organization.

There are others, of course, who did equally as well. In high school ranks, a number of teams performed well. North Pitt, behind Donnie Perkins, was the state runner-up in 3-A ball. Farmville Central did well in the state football playoffs for the second year in a row.

Greenville's American Legion baseball team won its conference title and moved into the state playoffs.

What will this year bring us? Only time can tell. But if 1978 is as good a year for sports as was 1977 in this area, then the fans have got a lot to look forward to.

Jamesville Girls Hopeful Of Another High Conference Finish

By Jim Kyle
Reflector Sports Writer

With three starters returning and three outstanding freshmen on the squad, Jamesville girls' coach Deborah Wilson is hopeful that the Lady Bullets can equal last year's second place finish in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference.

"I hope we can do just as good as last year. So far, we've only lost one conference game," Wilson said. "It seems like everything has been different in the conference this year. Certain teams will beat one team and then turn around and lost to someone else — it's been strange." So far, however, Wilson said the Lady Bullets are "doing pretty good. Our bench is better this year and we have good team speed. We're weak on rebounding, but that's improving."

One of the returning starters is leading scorer Joyce Manning. The 5-3, junior guard is averaging around 16 points per game and was all-conference and all-tournament last season. "She is very quick, is a tough guard and hard to stop," according to Wilson.

The other guard is Edith James (5-5, senior). She was also a starter last season and is scoring at a 15 point clip. "Edith is a very consistent shooter. Overall, she's the best shot on the team. She has played all four years she's been in high school and has been the most valuable player the past two."

The team's third returning starter is forward Lori Modlin (5-7, junior). Averaging 10 points and eight rebounds per game, Modlin is a "scrapper" — she hangs in there. She's the person I can depend on," Wilson said.

Senior Sandy Rogers (5-7) occupies the other forward slot. "She doesn't average very many points, but she's in there rebounding. She also runs the plays well and plays very good defense."

In the middle is Shirlyn Staton (5-8, junior). She is the team's top rebounder with around 10 per game and also plays good defense.

Junior Jeanette Barber is the team's top reserve. The 5-4 forward is a good outside shooter, as well as a good defensive player," Wilson said.

Three freshmen also play big reserve rolls for the Lady Bullets. One is center Donna Hardison (5-8), who has done a good job so far. Wilson said. The other two are guards: Terri Bell and Tammy Williams. Both 5-3, they are usually used to rest Manning, according to Wilson.

Behaven should again be the class of the B-H-M conference, Wilson said. They have two outstanding returning players and, "if they don't slack up, I think they'll be up there again."

Pantego and Bear Grass will also have tough teams, along with Jamesville. "For us, I think we'll finish either second or third. I don't think we'll go any lower than that."

"I'm hoping for no less than third. I'd like to be first, but you have to be realistic when it comes to matching up with Behaven. They have a good ballclub," Wilson said.

"But, we're going to try. We're not backing down from anybody."

Pitt, Clemson Clash Tonight

By The Associated Press

The closest Pitt Panthers got to repeating as college football national champions was one quarter.

"In spring practice, we weren't a good team," said Jackie Sherrill, in his first season as Pitt's football boss. "But in the first quarter of our opening game, I thought we had a chance to win the national championship again."

That optimism was quickly shattered when star quarterback Matt Cavanaugh suffered a broken bone in his left arm after being knocked off the ground on a touchdown pass in Pitt's opening game against Notre Dame.

The scoring pass gave Pitt a 9-0 lead in a game the Panthers eventually lost 19-9. Cavanaugh missed several games, and never regained full strength. Meanwhile, Florida, capitalizing on three Cavanaugh fumbles, tied Pitt 17-17 and, in the regular season finale, Penn State downed Pitt 15-13, dropping the Panthers' record to 8-2-1.

"We played badly in our last game on national TV, and I don't think people got a good view of what our team is all about," said Cavanaugh of the Penn State loss. "I played poorly in situations that could have decided the game."

A certain measure of redemption and a large dose of pride are at stake tonight when the 10th-ranked Panthers play No. 11 Clemson in the Gator Bowl on national television (ABC). Earlier in the day, the New Year's weekend feast of 10 college football games opens with the Blue-Gray Classic in Montgomery, Ala.

Four games are on tap Saturday — Louisiana State against Stanford in the Sun Bowl; North Carolina State against Iowa State in the Peach Bowl; Texas A&M against Southern Cal in the Bluebonnet Bowl, and the East vs. the West in the East-West Shrine Game.

After a day off Sunday, when the pros settle their conference championships, the amateurs come back Monday with the four major bowl games and the national championship at stake.

Top-ranked and unbeaten Texas plays Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

Broughton Hospital's behavior modification therapy program has been the victim of unjust criticism fed by "disgruntled staff members" to "a gullible press," says Dr. William Moody, chief of the hospital's clinical services.

Moody's defense gained some support from Dr. Arnold Rincover, a recognized expert in behavior modification therapy at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro who has no firsthand knowledge of Broughton's program but is familiar with the techniques involved.

"The stuff I read about in the newspapers sounded like it might have been rational, reasonable therapy that had been lifted out of context," Rincover said.

He was referring to published allegations of patient abuse leveled at the state mental hospital in Morganton by former staff members. The allegations were investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation and later reported by The News Herald of Morganton.

No charges were filed, although District Attorney Donald Greene called some of the therapeutic techniques "unreal, childish and ridiculous," but the man who designed the program, Dr. Barry Naster, resigned this week.

Among the criticisms by the former staff members were allegations that patients were made to lie on the floor for up to 12 hours, sit motionless on hard chairs for up to two hours and that one woman who had problems keeping herself clean was made to shower repeatedly.

"I can't deny the possibility that some staff members were overzealous and emotionally involved in the therapy," Moody said. "That's a people problem. But I do not feel that patients were ever abused by the procedures or physically harmed.

"This was a matter of disgruntled staff people, not enough inner support for the program, and, I'm afraid, a gullible press," Moody said, adding that behavior modification therapy was the most effective set of techniques the hospital had at its disposal. It gets results, he said, where nothing else works.

Rincover agreed that behavior modification was a powerful clinical tool, easily misused by poorly-trained staff people and misunderstood by a poorly-informed public.

"Basically, it is simply teaching institutional personnel, teachers and parents how to praise or reward appropriate behavior and ignore or punish inappropriate behavior," Rincover said. "The argument is that all of us do it, but some of us do it better than others."

With that basic principle in mind, Rincover said, therapists have developed a wide variety of reward and punishment techniques. The punishments, he cautioned, must be "both aversive (unpleasant) and ethically justifiable."

Therapists trade their techniques and the situations in which they have been effective in psychiatric journals, Rincover said, but sometimes such techniques are picked up and tried with the wrong kind of patient or a therapist may encounter a patient for whom there is no accepted technique.

Either situation, Rincover said, could lead to problems.

Broughton Hospital was involved in a fairly new kind of behavior modification therapy called over-correction on which not a great deal has been written, Rincover said.

"Say a child spills his lunch on the floor all the time," he said. "In over-correction therapy he not only has to clean up his own mess, he has to clean up the entire floor.

Rincover said the alleged patient abuse he read about could actually have been behavior modification techniques if properly applied.

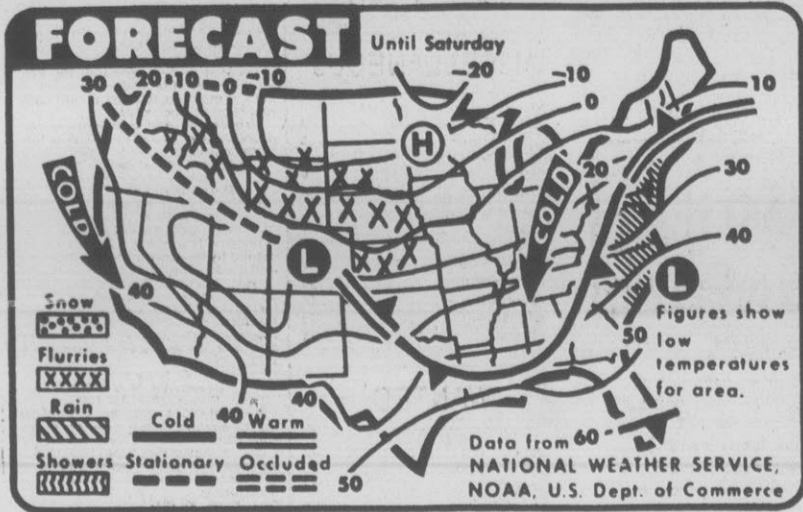

"Over-correction therapy is very easy to pick on because many of the techniques sound ridiculous or worse when they're taken out of context," Rincover said.

Moody said the hospital had a task force of outside experts evaluating its program since October and would continue behavior modification therapy, minus those techniques "that might be putting us at risk. "We accept the responsibility that we have not done our homework in making the public aware of the techniques that are available," Moody said. "But there's no reason to abandon a method which has served us well for 5,000 years with our dogs and children."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast today from the northern Rockies into the central Plains. Rain is expected for the central Atlantic coast. Most of the nation is due to be seasonably cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A winter storm that developed along the Gulf coast pushed into North Carolina early today, spreading snow, sleet and freezing rain ahead of it. Snow fell over mountain areas and extended to the southern Piedmont and north central areas of the state.

A travelers advisory was issued for the mountains this morning for snow, sleet and freezing rain but the precipitation was expected to change to rain by noon.

Overnight low temperatures generally were around freezing and with some warming as daylight arrived the precipitation turned to rain as it spread across the state. Asheville and Charlotte were among the places reporting snow before daylight but by afternoon the forecast called for occasional rain across the state continuing into Saturday.

Temperatures ranged into the 40s over much of North Carolina Thursday and were expected to be about the same today. Lows included 30 at Wilmington, 31 at Asheville and Raleigh, 32 at Greensboro and 37 at Charlotte.

The extended outlook calls for partly cloudy skies Sunday through Tuesday with a chance of rain on Monday. Afternoon temperatures will be mostly in the 50s. Winds along the coast will be increasing from the south at 10 to 20 knots today, reaching 15 to 20 knots tonight.

N.C. Church-Related Schools Facing Fight

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — What could be a major constitutional battle pitting freedom of religion against every child's right to an education is shaping up in North Carolina.

Most of the estimated 80 church-affiliated schools in the state have deliberately failed to file their required annual fall reports to the state, including names of students, courses taught and accreditation of teachers.

The state has taken no action yet, but Deputy Attorney General Andrew Vanore said Thursday it's only a matter of time, and the schools have hired a constitutional expert from Pennsylvania to plead their case.

"We don't plan to let the status quo continue indefinitely," Vanore said.

"It possibly could become a significant constitutional case," said H. David Bruton, chairman of the state Board of Education.

The schools are contending that the schools are an extension of their sponsoring churches and therefore exempt under the U.S. Constitution from government regulation.

But state officials say some kind of regulation is essential to make sure all students attend schools where they will get a good education as the state has defined it. The state does not tamper with the teaching of religion in the schools, they contend.

The confrontation was sparked in part by the state's decision to include private schools in required achievement and competency tests approved by the General Assembly earlier this year.

The state Association of Christian Schools last summer adopted a position paper which said that regulation of church schools "is tantamount to licensing of an establishment of religion."

The schools have hired William B. Ball, a Harrisburg, Pa., attorney to defend them. Ball successfully defended the Amish against a Pennsylvania state law requiring them to attend school until age 16. He has handled similar cases in several other states.

Ball and state officials have held some meetings, but neither side has shown any sign of budging.

Coordinator Is Appointed

Robert L. Spence of Ayden has been appointed alcoholism coordinator for the Pitt County-Mental Health Center.

Spence, formerly of Kinston, had been employed at the center for three and one-half years as an alcoholism counselor. He received his B.A. Degree in Psychology and M.A. Degree in child and family studies at East Carolina University. He is currently working towards clinical membership in the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors. He is also a member of Alcoholism Professionals of North Carolina and is a certified alcoholism counselor.

Prior to coming to the Pitt County Mental Health Center, Spence was Director of the Lenoir County Drug Action Association's Crisis Intervention Center.

According to Spence, there are several problems which need to have top priority in his new role as alcoholism coordinator. "There is a lack of visibility and public knowledge of alcoholism in the community and poor coordination of services such as health, social and financial implementation of services," he says.

Spence hopes to help with the coordination of these services because he believes "neither the mental health center nor any private or public agency alone has the capability of handling the massive problems associated with alcoholism."

Town Tags Are On Sale

Winterville residents may begin buying city auto licenses now, and Ayden and Grifton residents may do so Tuesday.

City tags in all three towns may be purchased for $1 and are required for all in-town residents.

State auto tags must be acquired in either Farmville, Greenville, or Kinston.

City residents may pick up licenses at their town halls. Office hours in Winterville and Grifton are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, and 8:30 a.m. to noon on Wednesday and Saturday.

Ayden office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Deadline for purchasing city and state auto licenses is Feb. 15.

Require License In Insulation Field

The Pitt Board of County Commissioners has adopted an ordinance "to license insulation contractors and others who install materials and equipment designed to meet the energy conservation standards of the state building code."

The ordinance, which becomes effective Jan. 1, was adopted to comply with Chapter 703 of the North Carolina Session Laws and General Statutes.

The measure stipulates: "On and after Jan. 1, 1978, no person, firm or corporation may for consideration install, alter or restore, within any unincorporated part of Pitt County and within any city which adopts this ordinance...any insulation or other materials or energy utilization equipment designed or intended to meet the State Building Code requirements for insulation and energy utilization standards who is not either licensed as a contractor to do the proposed work, working under the supervision of a registered architect or professional engineer, an owner working upon his own building, or licensed under this ordinance."

Each person seeking a license under the ordinance will submit an application to the Pitt County electrical inspector, it was noted.

Each application will be accompanied by a license fee of $25, according to the ordinance.

The county electrical inspector, John Payne, will receive the applications for licenses and following reviews by the Sheriff's Department and tax collector, will issue or deny the license. Payne is located at 1901 W. Fifth Street in the old hospital facility and maintains 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. hours daily.

Permits will be required under the ordinance regarding insulation work and will involve either a general building permit secured from the Pitt Inspection Department or an "insulation and energy utilization" permit secured from the electrical inspector.

Violators of the provision of the ordinance will be subject to "all the applicable punishment, penalties, and equitable relief provided" by the state statutes.

Payne, County Manager Reginald Gray, County Attorney W.W. Speight, and representatives of the Greenville Home Builders Association worked together in preparing the insulation ordinance.

Judge Halts Land Seizure

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Air Force plans to force First Colony Farms Inc. to sell 45,000 acres of peat bogs and timber for a bombing practice ground have been temporarily halted by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John D. Larkins Jr. set Jan. 9 for hearing on his temporary restraining order against the Air Force's condemnation proceedings against the land in Dare and Hyde counties.

First Colony says it doesn't want to sell the land because the peat buried there is equal in energy potential to 700 million barrels of oil. The farming conglomerate is studying the possibility of harvesting it for sale to power plants as fuel.

First Colony President Simon B. Rich Jr. said the House Appropriations Committee was looking for another site for an Air Force bombing practice range, and the Air Force acted in bad faith by ordering the U.S. Attorney's office to proceed with the condemnation anyway. The papers were filed Wednesday.

First Colony also contended in its request for a restraining order that the Air Force had not prepared an environmental impact statement for the purchase.

The government has contended that the peat has no provable value now, since there's no way yet to extract and market it.

The Air Force has leased the land since the early 1960s for daily bombing and gunnery practice by planes from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro and Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia.

Accidental work deaths in agriculture totaled 2,100 in 1975. Farm residents were involved in 1,500 of these and the remaining 600 were nonresidents of farms, says the National Safety Council.

Name Area Scholars

CHAPEL HILL — Several local students have been chosen among outstanding scholars at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and North Carolina State University studying under the James M. Johnston Awards Program.

Robert Anthony Wease of Greenville, a sophomore at UNC-CH; Betsy Bea Gaskins of Ayden, a sophomore at UNC-CH; Dawn A. Branch of Winterville, a sophomore at NCSU; and Amy Lou Clifton of Greenville, a junior at UNC-Chapel Hill; have all been recognized for outstanding academic achievement.

After preliminary screening the Johnston Awards are renewed each year during the four-year undergraduate program as long as the scholar has need of financial assistance and maintains an outstanding academic record.

Announcement of the new Johnston Awards for the 1978-79 academic year will be made in Spring, 1978.

Arthritis and Rheumatism

The confusion about arthritis, rheumatism, rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis is evident in the letters I receive from readers.

It is not surprising because the classification of arthritis and related disorders made by The American Rheumatism Association lists about one hundred variations, each of which has its own signs, symptoms and characteristics.

Arthritis and rheumatism are often wrongly substituted for each other. Arthritis is an inflammation, infection or change in any joint of the body.

Rheumatism is a vague term used to describe aches and pains and stiffness of the muscles, with or without involvement of the joints.

The two major classifications of arthritis are rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic inflammation of the joints and the tissues around it. It occurs more frequently in women than in men and can begin to show evidence before 35. Even today, the exact cause is unknown. Although not all physicians agree with the concept of a "focus of infection" this is still considered a possibility.

Infections of the kidneys, the prostate, the gall bladder, the tonsils, the teeth and the sinuses are thought by some doctors to be the possible reason for the onset of rheumatoid arthritis. The symptoms of pain, swelling, tenderness of the joints in the fingers, the wrists, the knees, the feet, the ankles and the elbows characterize this form of arthritis.

Most sufferers are particularly distressed with the stiffness that occurs when they arise or after long periods of inactivity.

It is not surprising that mental depression and fatigue frequently accompany this and other forms of arthritis. Many complicated tests are available to establish the exact diagnosis.

Osteoarthritis, the cause of which is also unknown, is a chronic non-inflammatory disorder that involves the bones and the joints. Chiefly, this division affects the elderly, the obese and those who may have been subjected in their occupations to repeated injuries. Unlike rheumatoid arthritis, the pain of muscle spasms are more pronounced after moving about.

By a detailed history of the onset of the signs and symptoms of both conditions, and by the highly refined blood studies that are now available, the physician can distinguish between these two closely related, yet individualized, forms of arthritis.

There is today great hope that the newly uncovered secrets about all forms of arthritis may yet lead to the prevention of these debilitating disorders. This is, of course, the ultimate hope. Today, the use of drugs and, in severe cases, the replacement of joints in the hip, the wrist and knee, are returning many of these courageous patients to a new life of serviceability and freedom from devastating pain.

Organized Labor Course Is Under Fire

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Some state legislators are irritated by plans at North Carolina Central University for what they regard as promotion of labor union organizing. "It kind of bugged me, the idea of taking taxpayers' money to discriminate against business. I didn't believe it when I heard it," said Sen. Cass Ballenger of Hickory.

The continuing education program was designed to "offer skilled training for people already involved in various aspects of organized labor," said Walton Jones, an associate vice president of the University of North Carolina system.

Jones said, for example, that it might help a shop steward understand his responsibilities, including to better communicate with management.

Consideration of a charter for NCCU's Center for Labor Education and Research which would operate as an extension program was tentatively placed on the agenda of the UNC Board of Governors for November after it had won approval of the board's planning committee.

At the meeting of the full board, however, the item was referred back to the committee for further study at the request of Dr. Hugh Daniel of Waynesville, the committee chairman.

Daniel said he had received "a lot of comments" about the center and its purpose.

Gov. Jim Hunt has set aside approximately $90,000 in federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds for operation of the center on a pilot basis this year. Permanent funding would be up to the legislature.

Sen. Bob Jordan of Mount Gil-lead said state support of such a program would go against the state's right-to-work law. "If we promote unions, we are certainly going against the will of the legislature and the will of the people," he said.

Jones said the controversy arose from a lack of understanding about what the program would do. "The minute you mention union activities, people have all kinds of images," he said.

Walt Maynor, director of continuing education and summer school at NCCU, said the program would be open to all the state's workers, both union and non-union.

"The basic assumption is that management has certain obligations and responsibilities and workers have certain obligations and responsibilities," Maynor said. "The university (system) spends a lot of money for management and the training of management and they're not spending anything for workers. There's a large segment of the population that could perform better with a little training."

Preliminary surveys by NCCU staff members have indicated a demand among workers for more training in the areas of public speaking, the metric system, OSHA (Occupational Health and Safety Act) regulations and Social Security laws, he said.

Four Injured In Accidents

Four people were injured and an estimated $4,120 property damage caused in two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:57 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard at the Hooker Road intersection, involving cars driven by Charlene Clark Boyd of 117 Greenwood Dr., and Dawn Teresa Quinn of 124 Osceola Dr.

Police, who said Miss Quinn was seriously injured in the collision, reported Mrs. Boyd and two passengers in her vehicle were also injured.

Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the Boyd car and $1,000 to the Quinn vehicle by investigators who charged Miss Quinn with driving under the influence and failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

A 12:30 p.m. mishap on Hooker Road near the Sylvan Drive intersection involved cars driven by Phyllis Marie Spain of Route 8, Greenville and Elaine Dew Hodges of Washington.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $100 to the Spain car, $500 to the Hodges auto and $20 to a roadside mail box.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip—PERSPICACITY IS NEEDED IN CITY TRAFFIC.

©1977 King Features Syndicate, Inc.
 Today's Cryptiquip clue: S equals O

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today, bidding to close out a disappointing year on a favorable note.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.12 at 831.51.

Advances held a slight lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was churning amid last-minute maneuvering by traders taking losses for 1977 tax purposes and institutions reworking their portfolios for year-end reports.

In the economic news, the Commerce Department reported that its index of leading economic indicators turned downward in November, posting a 0.2 percent decline after four consecutive monthly gains.

But the drop in the index, which is designed to foreshadow future economic trends, appeared to come as no surprise to investors.

Judge Ponders Return Of Hungarian Crown

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A federal judge is pondering whether to issue a preliminary injunction to prevent delivery of the Hungarian crown to officials of that country next week.

U.S. District Judge Earl E. O'Connor promised a ruling today after a Justice Department attorney argued Thursday that the United States should speak to Hungary and the world in one voice — that of the president, not the courts.

Steven Frank told a court hearing on the injunction that any delay in returning the crown of St. Stephen would cast a pall on President Carter's nine-day foreign trip, which began Thursday.

The injunction was sought by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan, in the fourth attempt by members of Congress to use the courts to prevent the return of the crown and regalia, given to American military officials by the Germans as World War II drew to a close.

"To join the president from carrying out this mission would be a totally inappropriate exercise in judicial power," said Frank, an attorney with the civil division of the Department of Justice. "The crown is the property of the people of Hungary."

"If this (injunction) is approved, where do we draw the line on the rights of the president to execute executive orders?" Dole's attorney, Kenneth Holm, said the senator's desire was not to keep the crown jewels in the United States, only "to keep them in this country until the constitutional question is resolved."

Dole has said returning the crown to Hungary is tantamount to a treaty and requires Senate approval, while government lawyers argued the move is an executive order not requiring congressional consent.

Hungarian-American leaders have protested the crown's return, saying it is a national symbol and they do not want it falling into Communist hands.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Amy Francis Atkinson Best of the home; two sons, Moses Best Jr. of the home and Albert Best of Ayden; one daughter, Mrs. Hattie M. Thompson of Chesapeake, Va.; two brothers, Raymond Best of Greenville and Willie J. Best of Norfolk, Va.; one sister, Mrs. Heddie Best Cummings of Greenville; 19 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Terrorists 'located'

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Fifteen or more West German terrorists are currently in Guatemala, a West German radio report said today.

They apparently entered the Central American country from Mexico, disguised as tourists, the Cologne-based radio station Deutschlandfunk reported.

In Wiesbaden, a spokesman for the Federal West German criminal office said they had asked authorities in Guatemala City for information and were awaiting a reply.

The spokesman added that search warrants for German terrorists had gone to member nations of Interpol, the international police with headquarters in Paris.

Gerhard Boeden, chief anti-terrorist specialist of the FBI-style Wiesbaden office said earlier this month he expects further assassination strikes and kidnappings aimed at the release of some 50 jailed anarchists.

Sale Resulting From Bad Smell
SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Owners of the Pork Motel are giving in to their Salina neighbors who have been turning up their noses at the motel's operation.

It's not that the Pork Motel is a low-rent operation. In fact, the motel's capacity numbers in the thousands. But the boarders are hogs and sheep.

The feedlot has been put up for sale, and its owners cite bad publicity as the cause of a decrease in its operating income this year.

During the last year, suits have been filed against the feedlot by the Kansas attorney general's office and the state Department of Health and Environment. The state action came in response to numerous complaints about the pungent odor the lot is said to have.

The controversy surrounding the smell of the facility is a major reason for the sale, according to Frank Norton, a Salina attorney and one of two owners.

Ten-Year-Old Did Not Panic

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — A 10-year-old girl, suffering from a broken jaw and other injuries, huddled in 40-degree temperatures and sporadic rain for two days near the bodies of her grandparents, killed when their small plane crashed on a mountaintop near here.

The girl, Michelle Robson, was listed in fair condition today at El Cajon Valley Hospital. She suffered a broken jaw, burns on her legs from raw gasoline and other minor injuries.

Her grandparents, Eugene and Rachel McCaffrey of Boulder, Colo., were killed in the crash.

A sheriff's rescue helicopter discovered the wreckage Thursday about 75 feet from the top of 3,210-foot Rock Mountain, 23 miles east of San Diego.

"We were about 75 feet away when we heard a little girl saying, 'Help me, down here,'" said Deputy Dennis Wilson, the pilot of the helicopter.

"We found her 15 to 25 feet on the other side of the wreckage in high chaparral. She said she had been there a couple of days and was thirsty and cold."

"But she wasn't crying. She was just real happy that we were there."

The plane crashed in a rainstorm on a flight to San Diego from Boulder as Michelle and her grandparents headed for a vacation in Ensenada, Mexico.

The plane was last reported early Tuesday over Parker, Ariz., when McCaffrey, 56, inquired by radio about weather conditions. The search was launched Wednesday. A signal from an emergency location transmitter in the plane, activated when it crashed, led the helicopter pilot to the mountain peak.

Michelle told doctors she was sleeping when the plane hit and that both she and her 55-year-old grandmother were thrown out.

The woman lived briefly. Her body was found 25 feet from the plane, but McCaffrey's body was found still strapped in the pilot's seat.

Ordained More Than 90 Women

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — More than 90 women have been ordained as Episcopal priests since church leaders voted to allow female ordination, but despite vocal opposition to the policy from some factions, relatively few church members have dropped out, according to a church survey.

The survey, based on informal questionnaires to domestic dioceses that were returned in mid-November, as well as additional reports, showed that in addition to the women ordained in the year since the ordination of women was authorized, 62 other women deacons or candidates are headed for the priesthood.

Through mid-November, 96 men had been ordained in the church, according to a report on the survey released Thursday.

About two-thirds of the women priests hold paid positions in the church or serve as ministers in secular institutions — colleges, prisons, hospitals and others. Twelve are in charge of congregations as pastors, assistant pastors or interim pastors.

The church said its survey showed 13 congregations voted to leave the church and 18 voted to withhold funds from national and diocesan church programs. Ten congregations declined to allow visits by their bishops. The church has 7,192 parishes.

Diocesan bishops were found to have placed 32 priests or deacons under some form of inhibitions from functioning — suspension or facing it — for fomenting departures from the church.

The survey also showed that 3,400 members of the 2.9 million-member church decided in 1977 to leave the church because of the ordination of women, prayer book revisions or alleged "secular or humanistic" trends in the church.

When they're working, United Mine Workers union members produce 50 percent of the nation's coal. But on one day in the union's current nationwide strike, production was cut by nearly 75 percent, federal statistics show.

On an average production day, the nation's 5,120 union and non-union mines combined produce 3,173,333 tons of coal, according to Lawrence Frey of the Federal Energy Department.

But on Dec. 15, he said, the 1,314 mines in operation produced 803,411 tons of coal, slightly more than 25 percent of the average.

On that day, six of the nation's 1,800 UMW mines were open, all in the western part of the country where an independent contract has been reached. Of the 3,320 non-UMW mines, 1,308 were in operation.

The Dec. 15 date was selected at random.

The walkout, which began Dec. 6, has idled about 160,000 UMW members nationwide. The strike was called after contract talks broke down.

Striking miners have picketed non-UMW mines and coal loading facilities in an effort to close those operations. Tractors hauling coal also have been harassed, sometimes being forced to dump their loads.

The picketing has been aimed chiefly at operations in Kentucky, where about half the coal produced is non-UMW. Maryland, where all the mines are non-UMW, has also been the target of pickets, as has Virginia, which has about the same proportion of non-UMW mines as Kentucky.

In other states, especially West Virginia and Ohio, many non-UMW operations closed voluntarily at the beginning of the strike, either in sympathy with the union or out of fear of vandalism and threats against employees.

Frey said the production figure was based on a survey conducted by the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration. He acknowledged that on an average day when no strike is on production will fluctuate, but never by the margin noted Dec. 15.

Meanwhile, in Washington, UMW and Bituminous Coal Operators Association representatives continued negotiations Thursday. Sources indicated that the bargaining teams would probably suspend negotiations during the upcoming holiday weekend, resuming the sessions next Tuesday.

There appeared to be only scattered picketing in the coalfields Thursday. In Henderson, Ky., railroad ties were reported burned on a trestle used for coal shipments from a non-union mine. Kentucky state police reported the fire was apparently deliberately set, and the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad estimated the damage at $20,000.
