Powerful And Humble In A Farewell To Humphrey

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The powerful with whom Hubert H. Humphrey served so long, and the humble whom he served with such boundless energy, are paying final tribute to the Minnesota senator.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, a fellow Minnesotan and a Humphrey protege, accompanied the late senator and his family on the return trip to Minnesota for today's funeral. President Carter, who led the tributes at a memorial service in the U.S. Capitol on Sunday, also planned to fly here for the funeral.

Humphrey lay in state in a flag-draped coffin in the Rotunda of the Minnesota Capitol while, through the night, the people who elected him five times to the Senate slowly walked by. Many wept silently.

The temperature never rose above the mid-teens, and during the night it dropped below zero.

But despite the frigid temperatures, the people waited. They sang "America the Beautiful," "God Bless America" and "We Shall Overcome." They waited for their turn to pay silent farewell to the man who retained his optimism and enthusiasm despite bitter political setbacks, and even through the long agony of a losing fight against cancer.

"He had a little more love for people, for all of us," said one mourner when asked what it was about Humphrey that brought so many people out in the cold to pay tribute to him.

At the memorial service in Washington, President Carter summed it up, calling Humphrey "the most beloved of all Americans."

Former Presidents Gerald R. Ford and Richard M.

Nixon, and Lady Bird Johnson, widow of President Lyndon B. Johnson, were among the mourners who heard Carter say: "We and our families are here today to testify that Hubert Humphrey may well have blessed our country more than any of us."

Carter and Mondale noted that Humphrey had asked that memorials to him be celebrations rather than mourning.

"And, in a way, that's what it is," said Carter. "Even as we mourn his death, we celebrate because such a man as Hubert Humphrey was among us."

Most of the nation first heard of Hubert Humphrey when, as the young mayor of Minneapolis, he took the floor at the 1948 Democratic National Convention to argue for adoption of a strong civil rights plank.

"To those who say we are rushing the civil rights issue, I say we are 172 years too late," Humphrey told the convention.

Astronauts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women and blacks are joining the U.S. astronaut corps for the first time with the naming of about 35 new crew members to fly the nation's space shuttles of the 1980s.

They are the first American astronauts recruited in nearly nine years.

Today's announcement by Robert A. Frosch, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, climaxes a year-long search.

NASA spokesman Dave Garrett said several women and blacks were among the names on the list from which the astronauts were being chosen.

The agency last year asked qualified persons to apply for positions as pilots and mission specialists on the shuttle, the reusable rocket ship that is to make its first orbital test in 1979. Hundreds of flights are planned in the next decade.

NASA received 8,079 applications — 6,818 for mission specialist and 1,261 for pilot. Applications from women totaled 1,544. Most of the pilot applications came from the military services.

The most qualified applicants underwent several days of physicals and interviews by a selection committee at NASA's Houston Space Center.

The committee in November narrowed the list to 208 — 80 for positions as pilot and 128 as mission specialists. No women made the pilot category, but 21 were among those still in the running for mission specialist. No breakdown was available on the number of blacks or other minorities on the narrowed list.

Gain Compromise On Parley Agenda

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers met informally over lunch today preparing for the formal resumption of peace talks after the two sides worked out a compromise on the agenda's wording of the Palestinian issue.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was flying in from Washington to take part in the next round of negotiations, opening Tuesday after a one-day delay.

Over the weekend, the agenda dispute had threatened to severely set back the peace process. Vance postponed his departure from Washington to put pressure on the two sides, and on Sunday they reached agreement on the agenda.

Informed sources said Egypt had proposed that the agenda list discussion of "the Palestinian issue." Israel wanted it to read discussion of "the Palestinian Arabs in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza district," Judea and Samaria being the historical Jewish designations of the West Bank of the Jordan River.

An official in Washington said the United States proposed a wording that "doesn't prejudice the positions of either side." One report said it called for discussion of "the West Bank and the Gaza Strip."

An Israeli source said the two sides decided to include two versions of the Palestinian issue on the working agenda: Egyptian wording referring to the "West Bank," and the Israeli version referring to "Judea and Samaria."

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met today with Egypt's Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel over a lunch of trout, beef and an Egyptian rice dish to complete preparations for Tuesday's session.

Briefing Israeli reporters, Dayan said Israel was satisfied with the agenda and had not made major concessions. He also said he had proposed to Vance Saturday that he postpone his trip pending resolution of the agenda dispute.

ROME (AP) — Premier Giulio Andreotti announced the resignation of his 17-month-old government today in preparation for an attempt to form another cabinet that would have the support of the Communists but no Communist members.

Andreotti went to the presidential palace to present his resignation to President Giovanni Leone after a half-hour cabinet meeting. The president was expected to have the traditional consultations with the leaders of all parties and then name Andreotti, probably by Thursday, to try to form a new government.

The new political crisis, expected to be a long one, comes amid political violence that has caused four deaths in Italy this year, economic stagnation that has pushed unemployment to about 9 percent and demands from the Communists and Socialists for inclusion of the Communists in the cabinet.

However, Andreotti's Christian Democratic Party still rejects Communist participation in the government, and the U.S. government announced its opposition last week.

If a new government cannot be formed, elections for a new parliament would have to be held. But all parties oppose this. Opinion polls indicate elections would further polarize the country, increasing support for the Christian Democrats and Communists at the expense of the smaller parties.

The Communists got 34.4 percent of the vote in the 1976 election, four percentage points less than the Christian Democrats.

Police Probing Armed Robbery

Greenville police today are continuing their investigation into an armed robbery at the Chuckwagon at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive last night.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a man armed with a gun approached the attendant at the short-order snack bar at 7:20 p.m. and demanded money.

The attendant, the chief said, gave the robber between $75 and $80 from the cash register, and the man walked away.

Hodges Unveils Health Care Policies For YDC

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Luther Hodges Jr., a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate in the May primary, spoke to a group of about 60 Young Democrat Club members at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon here during which he outlined his health care policy.

Hodges, recuperating from a bout with the flu, flew to Greenville this morning, then traveled to Greene County where he campaigned until shortly before the early-afternoon speech.

At the Pitt-Greenville Airport this morning, Hodges termed his health care policy talk, "the first of several position papers."

Hodges said he felt it, "only right" that his position on health care be made known in Greenville. "In a sense, I began my campaign in Greenville," the Charlotte resident explained. He first discussed his possible candidacy at a meeting of the Pitt County Democratic Women in February and held an organizational meeting here later that same month.

Hodges, former chairman of the board of North Carolina National Bank and the son of the late Luther Hodges who was governor of North Carolina from 1953 through 1960 and U.S. Commerce secretary under Pres. John F. Kennedy, formally announced his candidacy at a breakfast meeting on the East Carolina University campus September 7.

During his talk this afternoon, Hodges said the nation has the capability to develop a health care system which can serve the American family without bankrupting the national economy, and challenged Congress, health care providers and the public to work together to develop a sensible cost-conscious health care policy that addresses spiraling health care expenditures and extends medical service to all Americans.

"We feel that a person's health is his most precious asset," Hodges emphasized, "and we all realize that poor health can cripple a person's pursuit of his own dream."

"Because it is just that important," Hodges said, "I submit that in a trillion-dollar economy, we must structure our spending priorities to extend health care and medical cost insurance without bankrupting the American family or the national treasury."

Hodges said that without effective action now, the Federal Government will step into the void, and create a national health plan that will satisfy no one and cost everybody.

"I'm not wedded to any of the plans currently before the Congress," he said, "but as someone who sets realistic, workable goals, I feel I could help fashion the sort of effective rational health care policy this nation must have... a policy that has the private sector, the government, health care providers and all of us working coherently and together."

The candidate pointed out that while Congress has 18 separate national health care proposals

Storm Cuts Power Lines

By The Associated Press

Thousands of East Coast homes remained without electricity today following a week-end storm, and officials in California were dealing with potential floods where they had been plagued by drought for two years.

Early today the Long Island Lighting Co. said about 133,000 of its suburban New York customers still were without power, and even if there is no more bad weather, it will be Tuesday night before all service is restored.

About 200 repair crews were borrowed from upstate New York and New Jersey to help 400 Long Island crews in the mammoth job of repairing downed power lines.

The weekend storm, which dumped up to 15 inches of snow in sections of northern New England, caused widespread damage in Rhode Island and played havoc with electric utilities in that state.

A spokesman for Narragansett Electric Co. said Sunday night it may be four or five days before power is restored in sections of Cranston, R.I., where winds continued to knock down power lines as soon as they were repaired.

The company said about 21,000 customers were without power Sunday night. Cranston schools were closed today.

Northern California officials, plagued by a two-year drought, rerouted water during the weekend to prevent flooding of major rivers. Cloudy skies, scattered rain and snow continue to dominate the Pacific Northwest's weather picture.

Two people drowned on a flooded road near San Diego on Sunday after driving into a water-pocked 8 feet deep, authorities said.

Rain, snow and sleet were expected in wide areas of the Southeast today. Georgia had unseasonably cold temperatures Sunday, with the high in Atlanta 31. In Miami, temperatures were expected to be in the 40s today.

More snow was forecast for Virginia, after a weekend storm knocked out power in scattered areas. More than 40-

000 people in the state were without electricity at one time Saturday. Temperatures remained well below freezing across most of Maryland and Delaware. Similar problems were experienced in wide areas of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Five children, playing in the first snowfall of the winter Saturday, plunged through a crust of ice and drowned in the frigid waters of a farm pond in Elkin, N.C.

Rain and overnight frosts hit Alabama from a storm that was dumping snow on western Tennessee.

A storm moving east from the Rockies was bringing a heavy snowfall to southwestern Nebraska, while snow continued in Colorado and across New Mexico.

Montana expected some snow during the weekend, but temperatures were expected to be in the 40s and 50s. Idaho and Utah also were having scattered snow and rain.

A winter storm watch was in effect in much of Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

Snow was falling over the Dakotas, parts of Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Freezing rain was forecast for much of Oklahoma, and snow was expected in the Texas Panhandle, with strong winds in West Texas. Snow also was forecast across Arkansas.

Mother And Son

Burned By Fire

CALICO — A woman and her son were burned and their home was destroyed during a fire less than a mile from here Sunday afternoon.

Gardnerville Fire Department fought the blaze that apparently started from a wood heater. The resident and a six-year-old boy sustained burns, the child on the hands and arms; the mother on her legs, a spokesman for the Fire Department said. She said she had not learned the names of the victims.

The house was located on Highway 102 near its intersection with Highway 43. The fire report went in at 2:12 p.m.

Elkin Mourns Children Drowned In Farm Pond

ELKIN, N.C. (AP) — A town is crying. Five children, playing in the first snowfall of the winter, plunged through a crust of ice and drowned in the frigid waters of a farm pond.

"In terms of emotionalism, of children, I'd say this is about the worst I've ever seen," said Roy Kane of Elkin, a veteran of 40 years with rescue squads.

Kane was there in the darkness Saturday night when the bodies of Lisa Diane Hutson, 14, her sisters Sheila Anne, 12 and Patricia Lynn, 9; and brother and sister Linda Wood, 12, and Brad Wood, 8, were pulled from the icy water.

Funerals for the Wood children will be at 2 p.m. today at a funeral home chapel in nearby Dobson. Services for the Hutson children will be Tuesday afternoon at a Baptist church at the neighboring town of Jonesville.

Cars of friends and relatives clogged the two-lane blacktop in front of the neighboring Hutson and Wood homes Sunday.

While Roger and Patsy Hutson remained inside under sedation, a friend, Nancy Key stood shivering outside the simple brick house and talked about their daughters.

"They were good girls, beautiful girls," she said.

Earlier, she had helped with funeral arrangements.

"If you don't think picking out three caskets at one time can get to you ..." her voice trailed off.

A wreath marked the Hutson home and two houses away, a similar arrangement was hung outside the front door of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Wood.

The five children had gone out Saturday afternoon to play near their homes in woods and fields covered with a fresh, two-inch snowfall.

As darkness fell and there was no sign of the youngsters, Mrs. Wood called the local sheriff's department.

Search crews combed the rolling hills where the children had been playing. One group found tracks in some woods.

Another group searched a valley across the road from the houses.

About 9:30 p.m., a shout went up from a thicket of trees in the valley. A stocking cap had been spotted near a hole in thin ice that was stretched across a half-acre pond.

An hour and a half later, the bodies were recovered.

BORN IN GREENVILLE?

Is it true, as reported in the World Almanac of 1978, that the Rev. Jesse Jackson was born in Greenville? S. W.

Not our Greenville. Rev. Jackson was born 36 years ago in Greenville, S. C. Now the head of Operation Push for Excellence, a campaign to convince youth, particularly black youth, that it is each person's responsibility to reject alcohol, other drugs, premature sex and self-love, and to accept self discipline and academic study as a means to take advantage of the opportunities made available by the civil rights movement. Now a Chicago resident who travels all over the country, speaking and developing "Push" programs, he did live in our state for a short period of his life, when he attended North Carolina A&T University in Greensboro and quarterbacked its football team.

There was a fairly inclusive article about Jackson's new cause in the Dec. 7 issue of The Daily Reflector and he and Operation Push were featured on the CBS "60 Minutes" program recently.

WHY NO BERRIES?

I have seen several holly trees this year that do not have any berries on them. Is there only a certain type of holly tree that has berries, or is it that only the most mature trees produce berries? M. R.

Pitt County Agriculture Extension Agent Sam Uzzell said that some holly trees are male; others, female. Only the female ones bear berries. Also, there's a chance the birds feasted on the berries of the trees you have in mind earlier in the season.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast Monday from the upper Mississippi Valley to New England. Showers are expected in the Southeast. A belt of snow is also due from Montana to northern Texas. Cold weather over most of the country. AP Laserphoto Map for most of the country. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A winter storm watch has been issued for western North Carolina for tonight and Tuesday in connection with another storm that was developing over the central Rocky Mountains. This rapidly moving storm was expected to reach the lower Mississippi Valley this evening. With the cold air prevailing over North Carolina, some snow and sleet were possible over the mountains today and by tonight the interior of the state could have some scattered snow and sleet before the precipitation turns to rain Tuesday.

The forecast called for a possible accumulation of two to four inches of fresh snow in the mountains.

Clearing skies Sunday were accompanied by a cold northwest wind. Temperatures could get no higher than the 30s and low 40s over most of the state. Asheville's high was 28 and the low this morning was 9 degrees.

Elsewhere around the state Sunday's high readings and this morning's lows included: Charlotte 40 and 24, Greensboro 34 and 15, Raleigh 39 and 17, Wilmington 43 and 25 and Elizabeth City 34 and 22.

The precipitation is expected to end Wednesday and then it's expected to be mostly cloudy through Friday.

Charge Driver In Wake Of Accident Here

A 1:20 a.m. Saturday mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Streets resulted in multiple charges being lodged against one of the drivers involved, Chief Glenn Cannon reported today.

Cannon said cars driven by Kenneth Warren Pollard of Pineview Estates and Willie Raye Parker of Wilmington, collided, causing an estimated $225 damage to the Pollard car and $125 damage to the Parker car.

Parker, according to the chief, was charged with driving under the influence and transporting whiskey with the seal broken in the passenger compartment of his auto.

Cannon said Parker was also charged with possession of marijuana after police found a small quantity of the illegal drug in the glove compartment of the auto, and with resisting, delaying and obstructing an officer and with public drunk.

Parker, 18, was placed under $1,275 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Corn, Soybean Meeting Here

There will be a corn and soybean production meeting Thursday, Jan. 26, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Building, St. Andrews Street in Greenville.

The 1977 recommended production practices will be reviewed at this meeting.

There will also be a presentation on different methods of tillage and different methods of incorporation of preplant incorporated herbicides, nematocides, etc.

This will be a dinner meeting.

Activities For Week Given

TVA Chairman Sees 'Disaster'

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority says delays in building power plants may create a major disaster in the United States.

Aubrey J. Wagner, head of the seven-state government utility, told a conference on "American Energy Choices Before the Year 2000" that the reliability of electric power is being damaged.

"While deferral, postponement and delay sound harmless enough years before a plant is scheduled for initial operation, they — in reality — plant the seeds for disaster of major proportions," Wagner said.

"The time has come to put a stop to delaying tactics, deferrals, postponements and 'further studies' of energy situations," he said.

Wagner said demand for electricity nationwide is expected to grow by 130 million kilowatts in the next five years while the nation's generating capacity increases by 115 million kilowatts.

"It is too late already to do anything about capacity for the next five years," he said. It takes five to eight years to build a conventional power plant and about 12 years to build a nuclear plant, industry officials said.

Industry and government experts recently warned that rotating blackouts or government-imposed restrictions on power use may be needed by next year in the Southeast and within ten years elsewhere in the country.

During last week's cold wave, Wagner said, TVA maintained its service "with only a razor-thin margin." For the second time this winter, the nation's largest power company asked its customers to curtail electricity use, especially at peak hours.

"An emergency outage at any one of our medium-to-large generating units would have required our dropping firm load to avoid losing our system," Wagner said.

The TVA serves 2½ million customers in an 80,000-square-mile area of Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia.

Some hard-pressed utilities in the Midwest cut off power last week to commercial users, reduced voltage to all customers and brought in electricity from neighboring areas.

Officials said the strain on the nation's electric system showed in a 27.7-second lag in electric clocks east of the Rockies, caused by a slowing of frequency that occurs when power plants stretch supplies.

"This week, in many parts of the nation, every usable generator is running," Wagner said.

"Voltage reductions are common, interruptible loads have been cut off, power is moving in interconnections to meet emergencies," he said. "Everyone is scrapping the bottom of the barrel."

Ineligibles Are Said Uncovered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A computer check by Gov. Jim Hunt's office shows that five members of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and another 18 UNC system trustees may be violating laws which forbid trustees or spouses to hold other state offices.

Joseph J. Sansom Jr. of Raleigh and Mrs. George D. Wilson of Fayetteville were ruled ineligible in December to continue as members of the Board of Governors because they had been named to the state Banking Commission and the Commission for the Blind respectively.

Mrs. Wilson has resigned from the Commission for the Blind, but Sansom is suing to keep both jobs.

Hunt said at a recent news conference that he disagreed with the strict interpretation of the law given by the Attorney General's office because a similar statute to the one that led to Sansom's and Mrs. Wilson's difficulties applied to members of local boards of trustees.

"There may be an awful lot of these so-called conflicts amongst some of those trustees covered by the very same law," Hunt said.

He was right. The computer check turned up 18 on local boards who might be in violation and five more on the Board of Governors. The five are:

—George W. Hill of Durham, member of the Historic Hillsborough Commission.

—Edna Faye Cobb, wife of board member Lawrence A. Cobb of Charlotte, who is on the state Railroad Board of Directors and the state Zoological Authority Commission.

—John McCain, husband of board member Betty McCain of Wilson, on the Human Resources Board.

—Hugh Morton, husband of board member Mrs. Hugh Morton of Linville, on the Governor's Business Council for Arts and Humanities.

—Betty Randolph, wife of board member Lewis T. Randolph of Washington, N.C., on the Community Employment and Training Commission.

Hunt's legal counsel, Jack Cozort, said the original purpose of the law had been to keep political interference away from the Board of Governors.

"I don't think they (legislators) intended every member of a board would be denied service on the Board of Governors," he said.

Nixon Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon is heading back to California after attending a memorial ceremony for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the man he defeated in the 1968 presidential election.

Nixon, who ended 3½ years of self-imposed exile from Washington, attended Sunday's Capitol Rotunda ceremony with the approval of Mrs. Humphrey.

He is scheduled to fly to Los Angeles today.

Congressional sources said Nixon asked whether there would be any objection to his attending. The request was relayed to Humphrey's widow, Muriel, who said she would "absolutely not" object to Nixon's appearance, sources reported.

"It seemed a good time for him to come back," said Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., who joined other Republican leaders in meeting informally with the former chief executive. Many had not seen Nixon since he left Washington in August, 1974 during the Watergate scandal.

Nixon has kept out of public view at his San Clemente, Calif. home, except for a trip to China and paid television interviews with David Frost.

He did not speak to reporters before or after the Capitol ceremony.

Grant Awarded ECU Chemist

ECU News Bureau

A grant of $419,105 has been awarded East Carolina University chemist Edgar Heckel by the UNC Sea Grant College to continue his study, "Effects of Fluoride on Resorption and Redeposition of Calcium in the Blue Crab."

Preliminary data indicate that a correlation exists between the concentration of calcium in the blood of blue crabs and the level of fluoride in the surrounding water, says Dr. Heckel.

Heckel's research was originally initiated through grants from the UNC Marine Science Council and the Sea Grant program with additional financial and advisory support from the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources.

Assisting Dr. Heckel is ECU graduate student Frank Arey of Statesville, who has developed new analytic methods for the research project as part of the requirements for his master's thesis.

Arey is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill, where he received his BA degree in biochemistry.

Traffic Killed 3 Pedestrians

By The Associated Press

Three pedestrians struck down by vehicles and four persons killed in two double-fatality accidents were among nine who died in North Carolina traffic accidents over the weekend.

The deaths brought the death toll for 1978 to 42, compared to 50 at this time last year.

Frank Ferguson, 40, died Friday night on U.S. 264 in Nash County when he was struck by a car, and then run over by a second vehicle. The highway patrol reported he was standing in the roadway.

Rosa Charman Spivey, 4, of Powellsville died Saturday afternoon when she apparently ran in the path of an oncoming car on N.C. 42 in Bertie County, less than a mile east of Powellsville. Vivian Parker, 28, of Robersonville, died Saturday night when she walked in front of an oncoming car on U.S. 64 Martin County.

Two persons were killed early Sunday on U.S. 1-A in Franklin County when a car ran off the road and struck a tree. The dead were identified as Maryland Lee O'Neal, 41, of Wake Forest, and David Franklinton Davis, 36, of Wake Forest.

Pamela Ann Hamrick Morrow, 23, of Grover died Saturday night when the car she was driving ran a stop sign on N.C. 226 in Cleveland County south of Shelby and was struck by another car.

Two persons died Sunday morning in a head-on collision on U.S. 17 in Wilson County. Killed were Michael Andrew Short, 21, and Jack Edward Sykes, 42, both of Goldsboro. The men were riding in different cars.

James M. Bullins, 63, of Eden was killed Sunday when the car in which he was riding collided with another car at a rural intersection in Rockingham County south of Eden.

Miss Anne Abernathy Weds Sunday Afternoon

AYDEN — The Ayden United Methodist Church was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Anne Finch Abernathy and Edward Nicholas Hahn.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Travis Owen and Father Byron at three o'clock. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Andrea Norris, organist, and Lee Horton of Raleigh, vocalist. The chancel of the church was centered with a 20-branched candelabra filled with white chrysanthemums. Spiral candelabra were used on each side flanked by seven-branch candelabra. Standards of jade foliage were used as accents. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Harry Stillman.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Abernathy Jr. of Ayden, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a cathedral length gown of candlelight satin designed with a high neckline of French English net outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice of French English net was overlaid in alencon lace that extended to a low scooped back. Matching alencon lace and beaded pearl motifs were featured on the full bishop sleeves of French English net. The modified A-line skirt of candlelight satin was accented by a triangular swirl design of French English net, alencon lace and beaded pearls which extended from the hemline which was topped by a row of re-embroidered lace. Appliques of the matching lace were scattered over the cathedral length train in back.

She wore a candlelight Camelot cap overlaid with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls attached to a fingertip length veil of tiered illusion edged with alencon lace. She carried a cascade of white roses, miniature carnations with peach baby's breath, springerli fern and candlelight satin streamers.

The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Hahn of Moorestown, N. J.

The bride attended St. Mary's College, Raleigh, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is a senior speech communications major at Glassboro

MRS. EDWARD NICHOLAS HAHN

State College, Glassboro, N. J. The bridegroom is a systems analyst at Burlington County College, Pemberton, N. J.

The maid of honor was Joan Abernathy of Ayden, sister of the bride, and the matron of honor was Jane Hahn of Jacksonville, Fla., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Lynn Armstrong of Anderson, S. C., cousin of the bride, Mary Mac Stroud of Raleigh, Paula Stewart of Havelock, and Jeanne Roebuck of Robersonville.

The flower girl was Jill Bulow of Ayden.

The best man was Bobby Moorer of Palmyra, N. J., and ushers included Tom Hahn of Jacksonville, Fla., James Hahn of Palmyra, N. J., and Charles Hahn of Moorestown, N. J., all brothers of the bridegroom, and Dave Hawley of Richmond, Va.

The attendants wore chocolate brown cotton velour dresses fashioned with cowl collars, side-slit hem, long tapered sleeves and self-tie sashes. The carried semi-cascades of woodbury talisman roses, peach carnations, baby's breath and peach candlelight streamers.

The flower girl wore a chocolate brown dress with a square neckline, and puffed sleeves. The bodice and hem were accented with candlelight lace. She carried a wicker basket of peach carnations and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride was dressed in an emerald green chiffon formal gown with a matching stole and wore woodbury talisman roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore a two-piece formal gown accented with metallic threads and white roses.

Mrs. Thelbert Worthington, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a coral knit formal gown. Mrs. Eugene Gibson, paternal grandmother of the bride, wore a jade green formal gown.

For a wedding trip to Nassau, Bahamas, the bride changed into a three-piece candlelight linen suit and wore a corsage of roses lifted her mother's roses. The couple will reside in Palmyra, N. J.

A cake cutting was held after the rehearsal Saturday night at the home of the bride. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake and an arrangement of peach and ivory carnations and pom poms.

Mrs. Ivan Armstrong, aunt of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. Bruce Cox cut the wedding cake. The bridal couple presented gifts to members of the wedding party.

The bridal party and out-of-town guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast before the ceremony given by the grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Thelbert Worthington.

The bridal couple was honored at a dinner Friday at the Colonial Inn, Farmville.

A miscellaneous shower was held for the bride-elect Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Pauline Garris. Mrs. Mildred Cox, Mrs. Estelle Haddock and Mrs. Stella Highsmith were co-hostesses.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held in Raleigh given by Miss Mary Mac Stroud and her mother, Mrs. William R. Stroud, at their home.

Doctor Can't Get Away From It All

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very hardworking physician. Every year when we go on our vacation we run into the same problem, for which there seems to be no solution.

We enjoy group travel, but as soon as the other passengers learn that my husband is an M.D., the "calls" begin. There were 170 people in our last group, and "the doctor" was constantly called to treat stomachaches, sprained ankles, infections—you name it, he had to treat it.

He doesn't want to lie about his profession, nor would he deny his services to anyone in a life-or-death situation, but these calls for "the doctor" tie up our entire vacation.

Don't suggest another type of trip because we love to travel, and except for this one disadvantage, group trips are really our bag.

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Since you find group trips your "bag," periodic calls on your husband's medical "bag" appear inevitable. Why not get three or four of your doctor friends to join your group? The more hands, the lighter the burden.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the hostess who was upset because some of her guests brought their own "dinners" in a jar:

A HOSTESS' LAMENT

I've cooked a roast
And mashed potatoes,
Baked two pies
And sliced tomatoes.
Polished silver
And set the table.
I only hope that I am able To be charming
And keep quiet
If someone says,
"I'm on a diet."

MRS. OLSON IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR MRS. OLSON: Thanks—and I like your coffee, too.

DEAR ABBY: With your permission, I would like to publicly ask a question of those who feel that homosexuals should not be allowed in the teaching profession: Would you deny your child the opportunity to study music with Tchaikovsky? Or study art with Leonardo da Vinci?

Banish Blues By Baking Bread

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The next time you feel down in the dumps, head for your kitchen.

"Cooking a favorite dish is bound to push back the gloom that can sneak on any of us for reasons often hard to pinpoint," says Edward English of the University of Iowa Counseling Service.

Cooking can chase the blues and blues for both men and women, English says. An hour or two in the kitchen can drain away anger and relax tension, too, he finds.

"What you cook doesn't have to be anything fancy or complicated," English says. "One of the foods I like to prepare when I get depressed is Cream of Wheat with a lot of big fat raisins in it."

"Probably this is comforting to me because my mother used to cook Cream of Wheat for us often when I was growing up. I can remember how good that warm cereal felt in my stomach when we came in from ice skating on a frigid winter evening."

Anything that reminds us of happy times we had as kids is likely to give us a lift, English explains. Of course, he adds, we associate happy feelings with many foods for other reasons than memories of childhood.

"A recipe contributed by a good friend reminds us of good times with that person," English points out. "Remembering compliments on foods we've served bolsters our ego."

"Another reason why cooking can be relaxing is that we tend to think of the kitchen as a place where we can be comfortable and do as we please. The pots and pans won't talk back to us. We're in command there.

"If you're angry at someone and really need to let off steam, pull out a recipe that calls for a lot of action. A casserole that requires dicing and chopping several vegetables could be a good choice. I particularly like to bake bread when I feel frustrated or angry."

"You'll find that getting the ingredients for the dough together and mixing them up will get your mind off your problem for a few minutes, English says.

Then when you knead that dough, imagine you're lighting into whoever or whatever made you angry. You'll release some of your anger as you pummel that dough to make it shape up.

"Once you get a whiff of that bread baking, nobody and nothing will seem worth staying mad at," the University of Iowa counselor declares. "Take a loaf to a neighbor as soon as it comes out of the oven, and the world will be your oyster again."

"It really can help to cook up a storm and both men and women will find that the most cockeyed world will shape up when they are confronted by the aroma of a roast or a pumpkin pie they're baking," English says.

Dr. Williams Is Welcome Wagon Speaker

Dr. Thomas Williams, professor of romance language at ECU, was the guest speaker at the Welcome Wagon luncheon Wednesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

His program topic was "Man's Sixth Sense."

It was announced that the club's annual spring fashion show has been rescheduled for February. The fashion show is open to non-members and reservations must be made by Feb. 3. Checks should be made payable to Welcome Wagon and mailed to Gail Jennings, 505 Eleanor Dr., Greenville. Fashions from the College Shop, Proctors Ltd., and At Barre, Ltd. will be shown.

Due to the temporary closing of the Greenville Country Club for remodeling, March and April luncheons will be held at the Ramada Inn.

The January board meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 25, at 10 a.m. at First Federal. All club members are invited to attend.

The card benefit will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 27, at the Lake Ellsworth clubhouse. Members as well as non-members are welcome. Tickets are $1.50 per person and can be purchased by contacting Gail Shope, Linda Barnes or Mary Voltecky. The last day for ticket reservations will be Wednesday, Jan. 25.

State Women's Political Caucus Convention Set

CHARLOTTE — Millie Jeffrey, chair of the National Women's Political Caucus, will be the keynote speaker at the seventh annual convention of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus Jan. 27-28 at Queens College here.

Ms. Jeffrey, a former director of consumer affairs for the United Auto Workers and former chair of the NWPC's Democratic Task Force, will speak at the Saturday luncheon.

A forum featuring North Carolina's U. S. senatorial candidates will be held. Charlotte Mayor Pro-Tem Betty Chafin will be the moderator.

Also on the convention agenda are four workshops on practical political skills. Maria Bliss of Asheboro, president of North Carolinians United for ERA, will moderate a panel on the roles individual organizations can play in North Carolina's 1979 Equal Rights Amendment ratification effort.

Wake County Commissioner Betty Ann Knudsen and other members of the Wake County WPC will teach a basic politics course for the political newcomer. Members of the Charlotte WPC, with Collen Spencer as moderator, will discuss candidate interviewing techniques and endorsement procedures.

Mary Hopper of Charlotte, NCWPC president, will preside at the morning business session. At the end of the session, President-Elect Bobette Eckland of Chapel Hill will take charge of the caucus for the coming year along with a new slate of officers.

The Political Action Committee of the NCWPC will hold a fund-raising party at the home of Pat and Charlie Lowe Friday night.

New York Tour Is Planned

A three-day tour to New York City in mid-March is being tentatively planned by Mrs. Maycie Culbreth of Greenville.

The tour will include time for shopping, sight seeing, dinner at a night club and other entertainment. A highlight of the trip would be attending a performance of the Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall. It was recently announced that performances by the famous dancing group will be ended in April.

Persons interested in the trip should contact Mrs. Culbreth, 756-2366.

Little-Flake Vows Spoken

Ruth Flake and Edgar Little were married in a double ring ceremony Saturday by the Rev. Bobby Futrell in the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church.

There was a cake cutting at the home of the bridegroom for family and friends. The couple will reside at Ragland Acres in Winterville.

Greater Problems Overlooked

Department of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano seems almost obsessed with one issue — that of cigarette smoking in the United States.

Now he wants to establish an Office on Smoking and Health (more bureaucrats) and spend $23 million this year to launch a new anti-smoking campaign.

The secretary seems willing to stigmatize problems such as auto accident tolls, alcoholism and the crushing burden of the drug culture to concentrate his time and energies on what he calls the tobacco problem.

The $23 million will be used to launch a "broad public education" program and carry out other efforts in the attack on smoking.

Can the secretary really believe that there is anybody left in America who hasn't got the government's views on cigarette smoking? All they have to do is look at any cigarette pack or look at any cigarette ad. The surgeon general's warning is on every one.

And if everyone is informed of the government's position, then what is the use of spending an additional $23 million — money which could relieve so much suffering in our society?

Well we can't assign motives but $23 million will hire a lot of new people, make HEW larger and make the secretary's position that much more powerful.

THIS AFTERNOON How To Win Industries?

By BILL NOBLITT

CHARLOTTE — The recent Governor's Conference on Balanced Growth and Economic Development shed a great deal of light on what North Carolina needs and wants in the way of future economic development, but left begging the critical question of how to achieve that.

Hardly mentioned during the high-level statewide conference were two key ingredients: incentives, and disincentives.

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. presented considerable discussion of definitions of balanced growth and outlined a "comprehensive strategy" for "making important decisions in a more consistent way."

By his own definition, balanced growth is "creating the good life for North Carolina... good jobs at the right places with good public services."

How can that be controlled? The governor came closer than his predecessors in answering this. His outline, while still in the formative stages, contains some clues.

Control

Previous state government administrations have run aground in similar efforts because sooner or later the nettlesome question inevitably crops up: what are those things which local and state government can do to direct private corporate decisions so that development reasonably coincides with the hoped-for pattern?

There is where incentives and disincentives come into play. Governments can offer special services such as roads, water and sewer lines, zoning breaks, financial aid through industrial revenue or anti-pollution bonds. Or withhold them.

Government can provide favored tax treatment for short or long terms, promise cooperative enforcement of numerous regulations, guide community attitudes, and arrange special training and educational programs for the prospect's labor pool. Or withhold them.

Exercise of governmental leverage through such tactics is a fact of life in the high-stakes development game; although the procedure is seldom known publicly.

Key Steps

Here are the central ingredients of the strategy outlined by the governor:

1. Target the type of activity we want them go after it with both state and local people involved.
2. Maintain a business climate receptive to growth and which encourages confidence among corporate leaders.
3. Have an open-door policy for targeted industries, welcome them, and recognize such selected industries have impact statewide and not just locally.
4. Enlarge public-private cooperative ventures such as arts, productivity, management, science and technology, etc., to demonstrate joint concerns.
5. Devise a policy to locate jobs, public services, and public investments to build in growing urban base of dispersed small and large cities and guide jobs and public services to where people choose to live.

It is considered probable that as flesh is added to the outline of a comprehensive strategy for North Carolina at least some of the incentives and disincentives will become more openly exercised. The aim is to give this state an edge in the competitive field. As Joseph W. Grimsley, Hunt's secretary of administration and policy chief puts it: "We're going to get our share of growth given the numerous factors at work. The big thing is: are we going to get more than our share?"

"Later on, however, you'll really thank me for this!"

Where Have They Gone?

WASHINGTON — Something is happening in America. Television viewing is going down. Nielsen said viewing was off by 6.4 percent in the daytime and off by 3.1 percent at night. We're talking about millions of people now and the big question is: Where have these people gone and what are they doing if they aren't watching television?

I decided to call Plotnick, who heads the Bureau of Missing TV Viewers, an organization set up by the networks to find out what has happened to them.

Plotnick wouldn't tell me how he got the names of the people who weren't watching TV, but he hinted he has a very close connection with the CIA which knows exactly what every American is doing.

He had a list of names and addresses and said I could come along and see for myself how he operates.

The first house we came to

ART BUCHWALD

belonged to a family named Peters. Plotnick was very polite.

"Pardon me, ma'am, but I understand your TV set is off. I was wondering if you could tell me why?"

"Who on earth told you that?" she wanted to know. "The children have it on right now. Come in and I'll show you."

We went inside and found four children in the living room. The set was on, but instead of a picture on the screen the kids were playing hockey with four dials.

"But they're not watching anything," Plotnick said. "No," the mother said. "They haven't looked at a show since they got this TV game for Christmas. It's a marvelous invention. They

THE INSIDE REPORT Carter's Ethiopian Test

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the public pomp and oratory of his world tour, President Carter was warned by leaders in Western Europe and the Persian Gulf that the United States must apply "countervailing pressure" to deepening Soviet intrusion in Ethiopia or risk signalling that the anti-Communist world in the end may lose by default.

However exaggerated it may seem, that warning came from the Shah of Iran, the President of France and the King of Saudi Arabia. It points up one strong lesson of the first Carter year: three years after Vietnam, the U.S. must assert its full role in the real world of international politics or lose the confidence of its friends and allies.

Mr. Carter was urged both in Europe and in the Persian Gulf oil countries of Iran and Saudi Arabia to put the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT II) in mothballs indefinitely to compel Moscow to halt military operations in Ethiopia. One European leader told the Carter travelling party: "Detente is not a sausage to be cut up in a Soviet pattern, but a continuous process everywhere."

The huge Soviet airlift to Ethiopia started in late November. Without ever revealing the real reason, Mr. Carter sent Undersecretary of State Philip Habib to Moscow in early December, ostensibly to explain the U.S. position on Israeli-Egyptian negotiations but actually to protest the Kremlin's Ethiopian adventure.

Habib protested the Soviet airlift to the horn of Africa, the strategically important land shared by Ethiopia and Somalia that juts into the Indian Ocean at the entrance of the Red Sea. Habib's catch in Moscow: exactly nothing. So 225 large Soviet Antonov cargo planes continue to ferry supplies to Ethiopia, violating the air space of half a dozen sovereign states and piling up military supplies far in excess of Ethiopia's conceivable needs. That newly-Marxist state, assisted by perhaps 3,000 Soviet and Cuban military advisers, is fighting a war against Somalia which could decide the future of East Africa and ultimately control of the Persian Gulf oil riches. The angry reaction from non-Communist states came early in the Carter trip. In Teheran, the Shah of Iran said flatly that his country would "react" if and when the Soviet-backed Ethiopians set one foot across the border of Somalia. Presumably, this would mean an Iranian airlift (or sealfit from Saudi Arabian bases across the Red Sea) to bolster Somali forces. Ever since Somalia expelled the Russians last year, it has sought U.S. aid — in vain.

In Paris, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing revealed his decision to press hard for the Organization of African Unity (OAU) led by non-Marxist French-speaking states, to warn Moscow that Africa is off bounds. Mr. Carter agreed to help. Soon afterward, Giscard went to the French-speaking Ivory Coast to start organizing a massive continent-wide campaign for maximum political pressure against the Soviet Union.

In Riyadh, the agitation of King Khalid of Saudi Arabia was even more intense. Thus, during the trip, Mr. Carter agreed to persuade Somalia to seek a cease-fire in the war with Ethiopia. The U.S. would then put heavy pressure on Moscow to compel Ethiopia to accept that offer. Next

Other Editors Say C-of-C Tax Plan

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce says President Carter is about to unveil his long-awaited tax reform package, a sweeping proposal aimed at overhauling the 64-year-old federal income tax system.

While Congress and the President debate the fine points of the tax legislation, it seems clear that both should not lose sight of the need to restore equity and spur capital formation — economic growth — to the sluggish U.S. economy.

A five-point tax revision plan designed to encourage massive capital investment, create jobs, hike productivity and slash inflation has been designed by the Chamber. Highlights of the plan include:

Liberalize Depreciation: current law generally requires the cost of the plant, machinery and business equipment be depreciated on the basis of useful life. Tax depreciation should be liberalized and simplified by moving away from this and permitting business to classify depreciable property in a few broad categories, each with a different rate of depreciation.

Increase Investment Tax Credit — A permanent 12 per cent investment tax credit, available for the year the expenditure is made and without the limitations of present law, would give a needed boost to capital formation.

Eliminate Double Taxation of Corporate Income — This is the only income subject to two federal income taxes, a 48 percent tax at the corporate level and a personal tax shouldered by the individual shareholder. This situation violates all concepts of tax equity; correcting it would free new sources of capital.

Reduce Tax Rates — An across-the-board tax rate reduction for individuals and corporations would increase savings and investment. The $50,000 corporate surtax exemption should be upped to at least $100,000 with no more than a 20 per cent normal tax on the amount subject to the exemption.

Reduce Capital Gains Taxation — This reduction should be keyed to the proportionate length of time a capital asset is held. Efforts to eliminate capital gains treatment and tax all income at ordinary rates should be opposed.

Most federal income tax revenues come from those in the middle-income group. Over half of the taxes paid by individuals come from the pockets of those who have adjusted gross incomes of between $15,000 and $50,000 annually.

To the editor:

I am a member of a local high school varsity girls' team. My teammates and I and all the other girls, teams feel that our games have just as much intensity as the boys' games, but we are lucky to get two small paragraphs at the end of a long article on the boys' game. Never is there a headline on our game, as there are on so many of the boys' games.

Not only do our victories and defeats in basketball get so little recognition, but also in volleyball and softball. We all work very hard to win, and when our goal is accomplished, it goes nearly unnoticed in yours and other newspapers' sports columns. We're not asking for front page headlines or anything — maybe just an article specifically about the girls' game, including more than the statistics, which is about all the write-up we receive now.

This problem has worried us for a long time and we would appreciate it if you could explain why our hard-working girls' teams get so little recognition.

Strength For Today

MARRIAGE—HOW LONG?

The word "marriage" comes from an ancient Sanskrit word meaning "youth" or "lover". The derivation indicates that in the very earliest days of Western history people associated marriage only with the youthful period of life.

But a recent writer, whose knowledge of life is much better than his knowledge of Sanskrit, remarked that two people are not married in the formal ceremony that goes by this name. They only begin to be married at this time. The marriage grows and develops with the years, or should do so.

The increasing number of divorces indicates that very often this is not the case. As a result, many people believe that marriage as an institution is failing. Actually, however, it is not marriage but the people who enter into it that are failing. What is needed is more input in the form of sacrifice, selflessness, thoughtfulness, tenderness, and faith.

Inflation Pressure Will Grow

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The notorious pickpocket, cost-push inflation, is expected to be more active in our society during 1978, dipping his sticky fingers every time we open our wallets.

Why we tolerate the scurrilous chap isn't all that clear, but perhaps it's because we think of him as a Robin Hood, redistributing income by taking more from our neighbors than he takes from us.

While this has some basis in fact, the truth is that this profligate rake costs us all in the long run. His first name is aptly applied: he pushes up all prices because he makes it more costly to produce.

Nevertheless, we permit him to run free in society and we provide him a stipend more bountiful than that paid England's royalty. And if the seers are correct, that stipend will be raised this year over last.

That is, the poseur will draw his livelihood from more sources this year than in 1977. Among them:

—A larger federal budget deficit, which means in effect that the country will seek to do more than it is willing to finance. It will overspend, but it will try to make off that it isn't doing so.

The result: The value of the dollar will be diluted. It will buy less. The taxes we didn't levy to pay for that spending will be lifted from us anyway by the pickpocket.

—The probability of more rapid monetary expansion. An easier money policy makes it easier to spend.

—Higher minimum wage. Conceding the humanitarian motives behind the increase, it will nevertheless put upward pressure on prices. This has been the experience; most likely it will continue to be.

—Higher farm price supports. Again, the matter of justice for the farmer does not detract from the consequence: food prices are likely to be higher in 1978 than in 1977.

—Protectionism. It is growing. U.S. producers are seeking insulation against foreign goods, some of which are suspected of being dumped here at prices below production costs.

This is a thorny issue. Lowpriced imports cost the country in lost jobs and production. But balanced against that consequence is the fact that in protecting those jobs we force up consumer prices.

There are many other factors that might sweeten the dose to the merry swindler called inflation, such as the possibility of higher oil prices, or at least our continued dependence on foreign supplies.

In its latest "Business Outlook" publication, Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. comments that the combination of inflationary factors "is apt to progressively sap the economy's strength, to a point almost approaching recession in 1979."

It foresees a 6.3 percent average in 1978, compared with 5.6 last year, not a terribly large jump but still a substantial bite out of the paycheck.

It goes to support the leech, otherwise known as inflation.

Profitability for hog producers in 1977 was favorable, reflecting the abnormal decline in summer corn prices and continuation of relatively favorable pork prices. With the large 1976 corn crop and high hog prices through much of 1976, hog producers had been expected to greatly increase pork production. In fact, farrowings during the winter quarter of 1977 were up 12 percent. However, a severely cold winter and disease problems caused heavy death losses among pigs and young hogs. Then, following the severe winter and disease problems with sows, spring quarter farrowings were down 1 percent from the year earlier. This caused a lull in the expansion of pork production. However, farrowings for the June-August 1977 period in the 14 leading states were 10 percent above 1976. Also, on September 1, producers in the 14 states intended to increase farrowings by 10 and 11 percent this fall and winter, respectively.

Barrow and gilt prices rose seasonally during the first quarter of 1977, remained relatively stable in the second quarter, but then rose seasonally during the summer. Prices declined from the summer peak into mid-November, then started to increase again, averaging about $40 per hundredweight for the last six months. The 1977 annual average price for barrows and gilts at 7-markets was about $40, $3 below the 1976 average.

Outlook: Annual feed costs for hog producers during 1978 are expected to be below the average for the past few years. However, as corn prices rise seasonally from their late summer and early fallows, feeding costs will increase. If hog prices decline during 1978 as expected, hog producers will find their profits squeezed, particularly during the second half of 1978.

Pork Production is expected to rise substantially in 1978. Based on pig crop reports and farrowing intentions reports, the slaughter hog supply by quarters for 1978 is expected to be up 10 percent in the winter, 10 percent in the spring, and 16 percent in the summer.

These larger pork supplies are expected to result in lower market hog prices. Prices for barrows and gilts at the 7-markets are expected to average between $35 and $37 per hundredweight in the first quarter and decline throughout the year to possibly below $30 during the fourth quarter.

Hog producers will likely face a price squeeze in 1978. They should watch their costs carefully and consider hedging some of their production on the futures market when it offers a price they can accept.

Berkshire Event Begins Today

The 1978 Southeast National Berkshire Winter Type Conference opens at the Lenoir County Livestock Arena in Kinston today and lasts until Wednesday. Berkshire breeders from 20 - 25 states will be exhibiting stock.

Approximately 200 head will be checked in today and the Breeding Stock Show will begin at 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday. The Show of Champions will be held at 3:00 p.m.

On Wednesday, the breeding stock sale will begin at 10:00 a.m. All animals will be from a Validated Brucellosis Free Herd and each hog will be tested negative for PRV.

Annual Farm Show Begins February 2 Initiated By Honor Soc.

The 1978 Southern Farm Show will be held at the N.C. State Fairgrounds in Raleigh on February 2, 3 and 4, and will attract agricultural equipment exhibitors from all over the world and farmers from many states.

There's going to be something for everyone interested in agriculture", Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Leroy Hames says.

Special features include the following: A farm credit seminar sponsored by the Farm Credit bank of Columbia;

A beef barbecue sponsored by the N.C. Cattlemen's Association;

A country and western show featuring Marty Robbins;

The N.C. Conference Holstein Sale sponsored by the N.C. Holstein Association;

The Breeder's Pride Show and Sale sponsored by the N.C. Angus Association.

In addition, there will be features such as the Parade of Power in which each manufacturer will demonstrate the largest tractor it makes. There will also be exhibits to appeal to all members of the family.

Some of the major categories of farm equipment to be shown include tillage, planting, harvest, materials-handling, storage, dusting and spraying.

irrigation, crop drying and curing, forest management, transportation, and tools and accessories. There will also be displays on farm and home living, recreation, agrimanagement, record-keeping and financing.

Fifty complimentary tickets are available at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, says James; and Pitt Countians are invited to visit the office to pick up a ticket.

Disembarked A Violent Man

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — An Eastern Airlines jet en route from Atlanta, Ga., to Los Angeles, Calif., was forced to land in Albuquerque when a passenger apparently became uncontrollably violent onboard. Airport security said the man, in his 20s, had to be held down by a number of people on the airplane. The plane landed at Albuquerque International Airport Sunday morning where airport security took charge of the man.

He was handed over to Albuquerque police and was at the mental health center of the Bernalillo County Medical Center Sunday afternoon. The man's name was being withheld.

The average wingspread of the whooping crane is seven feet.

can play hockey, tennis, tick-tack-toe, race automobiles, shoot down airplanes and sink submarines."

"But that wasn't what television was invented for," Plotnick said. "It was invented to transmit pictures and sell products to the American public."

"I know," said the mother. "But the kids saw the game advertised on television and insisted we buy it. Frankly it's a lot more fun than Kojak and it's been a lifesaver in our family."

Once we were out in the street Plotnick wrote some notes on a piece of paper. "This is going on all over America. The damn kids are using TV to play games. They don't realize there are millions of dollars of commercials at stake. They would rather play pinball on a TV screen."

The next house we went to belonged to the Strathmores. Mrs. Strathmore admitted they didn't watch television any more because their set was broken.

"Alfred threw a beer bottle at Howard Cosell one night and smashed the screen."

"Why didn't you have it repaired?" Plotnick wanted to know.

"I did, and the next Monday he threw another beer bottle at Howard. How many TV screens do you want me to buy?"

Plotnick was disgusted.

It was about 10:30 at night. We had visited houses where the neighbors said the inhabitants had either gone to "Star Wars" or "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," homes where one or the other person was in the process of getting a divorce and couldn't watch TV because they were spending all their time on the telephone, and several where people admitted they had gone back to reading books.

"Each household we've visited," said Plotnick, "represents one million people."

Our final call was at the home of the Pells (not their real name). It took some time for Mr. Pell to answer the door. He was in his bathrobe. Plotnick asked him why he wasn't watching TV.

"We used to be avid TV watchers," Pell said. "But then Judith bought 'The Joy of Sex' and you know something? We discovered it was more fun than watching television. We're on page 85, and I don't think we'll get through it until the summer reruns."

"And you'd rather do something dirty than watch TV?" Plotnick said bitterly.

"I guess," said Pell, "it's which 'Behind Closed Doors' you want to get involved with."

are ruled out for the foreseeable future, the only recourse for the Carter administration is to try to convince labor and business leaders that it is in their long-run best interests to restrain wage and price increases.

"We are going to try to get labor and management to agree to some kind of general principles, or targets, on what wages and prices ought to do in the next couple of years to wind down the inflation rate," said one highly placed administration economist.

But unless there is a last minute change, the administration will not set specific targets for wage and price increases, as was done during the administration of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Instead, the program will urge representatives of labor and management to sit down with the government to discuss ways that inflation can be contained.

talks as a political lever.

These caveats aside, Mr. Carter came home with a loud and clear message from this nation's most formidable friends. Whether that message struck home, as some of these nations believe, will not be known for several weeks. What is clear now is that without U.S. leadership, the pressures on the horn of Africa and everywhere else will continue in one direction. For the non-Communist world, that direction is down.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was broadly low er today amid fears of higher interest rates, continuing its steady decline of past weeks.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 1.65 to 774.08, after having lost 55.4 points in the past two weeks.

Losers held a 7-4 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange listed issues.

Analysts said Wall Street is showing the effects of recent increases in interest rates. They said investors are wary of reports that the Federal Reserve Board, the nation's central bank, may tighten its credit policy in an effort to slow the growth of the money supply. The board's policy-making committee meets Tuesday.

Topping the list of most actively traded issues was Citicorp, which dropped 1/4 to 21 1/4.

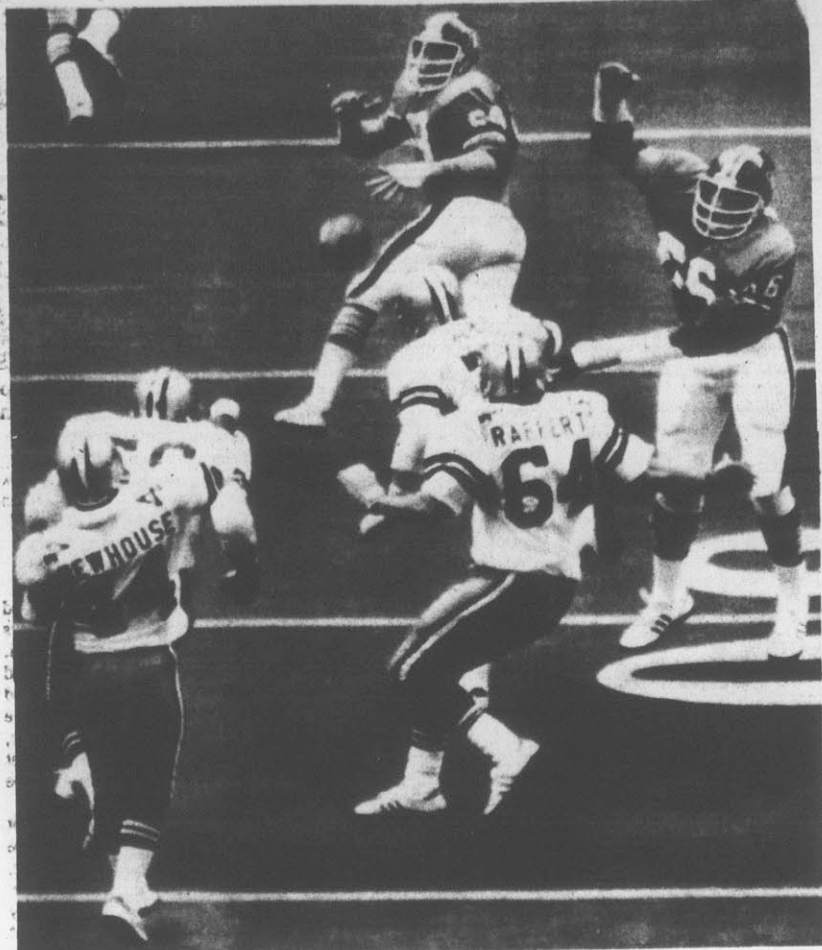

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks fell .07 to 49.50. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .09 to 120.55.

Volume on the Big Board in the first two hours of trading was 7,670,000 shares, up from 6,960,000 in the comparable period Friday.

Cowboys Romp Over Hapless Broncos

Pirate Swim Team Wins 3rd Over Terps

The East Carolina swim team captured its fifth straight win of the year Sunday, taking a 65-48 victory over the University of Maryland.

The win was the Pirates' third in a row over the Terps. Last year, ECU downed Maryland 61-52 in College Park. It also marked the Pirates' second victory over an ACC opponent this year, as the Bucs earlier defeated North Carolina.

Pirate head coach Ray Scharf was pleased with the win, but cited that this is a crucial time of the season for his team.

"I am pleased that we beat Maryland," he said. "Their coach did a good job of getting them ready for us. They are a much-improved team from the Penn State relays. However," Scharf noted, "we seem to have hit a plateau. We had some fine swims, especially from Dan Newhall, Joe Kuschy, John Tudor and Billy Thorne, but our toughest meets of the year are yet to come with State, Duke, Alabama and LSU, so we've got to dig in and work harder."

Thorne was the Pirates' only double individual winner of the day, capturing the 100 and 200 freestyles.

The win raised the Pirate record on the season to 5-0. Maryland dropped to 2-3. The next meet for the Pirates will be Saturday at Richmond.

Summary:

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Craig Morton, who used to stand on the sideline marveling at Dallas' Doomsday Defense, got a close-up look at it Sunday. He got so many close looks, in fact, that he wound up on the sideline again.

The idea, Denver Coach Red Miller said after the Cowboys had defeated his Broncos 27-10 in Super Bowl XII, had been for Morton to establish the rush.

He did — just by standing in the Broncos' backfield. The rush came from Harvey Martin and Randy White and just about anybody else who wanted a piece of the retreat quarterback who spent the first 9½ of his 13 pro seasons in a Dallas uniform.

Fierce Onslaught

So fierce was the onslaught from the men in silver and blue that the Broncos were busted long before Roger Staubach and Robert Newhouse threw passes for Dallas' last two touchdowns.

In fact, it came even before Tony Dorsett ran three yards for Dallas' first touchdown in the first period and before Efen Herrera kicked two first-half field goals that gave the Cowboys a 13-0 halftime lead and all the points they'd need in the game.

It came on Denver's very first possession with less than five minutes played.

The National Football League's official play-by-play told it all in three successive plays:

"Armstrong runs left side, gets 1."
"Morton passes right incomplete, deflected behind line."
"Morton back to pass, sacked by R. White, loses 11."

That said it all. When the Broncos tried to run, they went virtually nowhere, gaining 121 yards on 29 attempts with Rob Lytle finishing with 35 yards and Otis Armstrong winding up with 27.

And when the Broncos tried to pass, Martin, White & Co. were on Morton like wolves, sacking him, rattling him, chasing him. Unofficially he and Norris Weese were sacked only four times — as though "only" belonged in there. Martin got each of them once for 19 yards in losses; White and D.D. Lewis each got a sack for another 16 yards.

Four Interceptions

But when they didn't officially fling Morton to the rock-hard artificial turf, they had him scrambling across it like a scared rabbit, throwing passes more out of self-preservation than anything else. He got rid of the ball 15 times. He completed eight of the passes — four to his teammates and four to Dallas defenders. The quartet of interceptions was a Super Bowl record.

The Cowboys might have picked off a few more were it not for their over-anxiousness, trying to roar off into the wide open spaces before they actually had the ball.

When Morton hit Dallas defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones right in the numbers midway in the third period with the Cowboys leading 20-3, Morton's number was up. Miller unceremoniously yanked him and sent in young Weese.

"We had made the decision to switch long before that," Miller said, ineffectively trying to smooth some balm on Morton's wounds. "The plan was for Craig to come out on second down no matter what he did. Even if he'd thrown a completion for a lot of yards, Norris would have gone in."

That's not the way Morton saw it — but he didn't mind all that much, either.

"When I was taken out, it didn't make me feel good. But I'm not going to play my life over because of it," he said.

Morton was almost in awe of the Doomsday II defense that so thoroughly slammed the door on Denver's dream of a Super Bowl victory in its very first playoff. "They seem to know almost every play we were calling. I tried to audible (change plays at the line), but they even read some of them."

Dallas' Pressure

"Our plan was rush, rush, pressure, pressure, pressure," said Martin, the Defensive Player of the Year and, along with White, the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player. "We were coming, coming, coming. We wanted to force Craig out of the pocket and we did. We wanted to rattle him. We wanted to unsettle him early and get him mixed up."

Miller, too, said the biggest factor in the game, the one upon which other factors like interceptions and fumbles and busted plays were created, was the Dallas pass rush. "I'd said during the week that the game was going to be decided in the pits, in the play of their lines and ours, and it was. Their pass rush was too much for us to handle. It was as simple as that."

Landry didn't reserve all his praise for the Cowboys. "Denver played great defense, too. It took two great plays to separate us. One great catch (Johnson's) and the excellent full-back pass. We had that in our game plan and I thought that was the time to use it," he said of Newhouse's 29-yarder to Golden Richards.

Morton was intercepted only eight times all season, his first with Denver after those 9½ years with Dallas and 2½ with the New York Giants. But his panic-stricken passing, usually with Cowboys draped on him or thundering within arm's length, doomed Denver to defeat in its first Super Bowl appearance.

The first time Denver held the ball he was belted, sacked and generally mugged. The second time, the first cracks appeared. With White and Charlie Waters waylaying him, he tried to dump the ball off. He did — right into safety Randy Hughes' lap.

It was Dallas ball on the Denver 25, and then on the Denver 12 after Staubach hit Billy Joe DuPree on a swing pass to the right side, an area that was invitingly open all game. Four plays later — the last of them a fourth-and-inches play — Dorsett whizzed off left tackle for three of his 66 yards and the opening touchdown.

Then things got out of hand. The only problem was the Cowboys couldn't get a grip on the opportunities Denver kept throwing their way.

Two plays after Dorsett's TD, Morton was intercepted again, this time by Aaron Kyle, and it was first down on the Broncos' 35. Dorsett sprinted 18 yards, then the Cowboys' offense collapsed and Herrera made it 10-0 with a 35-field goal.

Once more Denver gave up the ball — this time with a more conventional method, a punt — and at the start of the second period the Cowboys reeled off another mini-march, this one from their 43 to the Denver 25. And Herrera kicked a 43-yarder that made it 13-0.

Back came Denver — for two plays. The second was a long pass, right to Dallas cornerback Benny Barnes. Dallas went nowhere but the Broncos were gracious enough to let them keep the ball by fumbling the punt. Eventually Herrera came on again and missed another 43-yard try, sailing it wide to the left of the uprights.

Back came Denver — for five plays. Then Jack Dolbin fumbled a Morton pass and Hughes pounced on it. On came Her-era, this time for a 32-yarder. Wide right.

Back came Denver — for one play. Morton's pass to Riley Odoms. He fumbled. Hughes recovered. Staubach passed to DuPree and he fumbled to Denver's Tom Jackson. So Morton passed — to Dallas cornerback Mark Washington. On came Herrera. His 44-yard try was no god, off to the left.

Mercifully, the half ended.

No Miracles
After Denver took the second-half kickoff and marched smartly into range for Jim Turner's 47-yard field goal, the Broncos' fans were ready for another miracle.

No such luck. Midway in the period, Staubach cranked up and unloaded a pass in the general direction of the goal line. He'd tried the same play moments earlier but overthrew Golden Richards. This time Butch Johnson was his target. He overthrew Johnson, too, but somehow Johnson launched himself horizontally, grabbed the ball while airborne and sailed into the end zone with it. Touchdown. Dallas led 20-3.

The steam went out of the Denver fans. Then Rick Upchurch pumped it back into them with a Super Bowl record 67-yard kickoff return. When Morton nearly threw another completion to Dallas, Weese entered.

Happy Staubach

Bill Cain Will Speak

East Carolina University athletic director Bill Cain, recently returned from the NCAA meetings, will be the speaker at tomorrow's meeting of the Greenville Sports Club.

Cain said he will speak about the meeting's other topics, overshadowed by the "super conference" decision, as well as scheduling, in general terms, and the direction of ECU athletics.

The meeting will begin at noon at the Ramada Inn.

For the time being, anyway, it appears that East Carolina University's football program is safe from being demoted by the NCAA.

The Pirates, despite the reports issued by the Associated Press last week, will be in the Division I-A ranks as soon as university officials notify the NCAA of their intention to play in that classification within the next 60 days.

Under the present criteria of stadium size, attendance, schedule and athletic program, the Pirates are eligible.

What the future may hold, however, is questionable. As soon as the list comes out in a few months, showing which teams are I-A, it will be imperative that the Pirates get rid of any teams who do not meet or do not wish to meet I-A standards.

Better schedules in the future can be expected anyway. Athletic Director Bill Cain has already hinted that such teams as Florida State will be joining the schedule, and it is already known that Wake Forest will be on the list in 1979. Southern Mississippi, which will meet the guidelines for I-A also will be back on the Pirate schedule in the future.

The realignment of the NCAA Division I will not affect any other sport. There will continue to be just one Division I in basketball, baseball and the other sports.

Come On Out Tuesday

It is unfortunate that East Carolina's home game tomorrow night is in conflict with a number of high school contests. Rose High, however, will not be playing.

While we urge you to support your local high school teams, we would like to urge those fans who are not going to a high school game to come to Minges Coliseum for the East Carolina-William & Mary game.

This rematch promises to be quite a game. The Indians will be out for revenge, and the Pirates will be out to prove it no fluke that they beat W&M last time.

The Pirates are playing much better ball than they did during their initial home stand, so come out and give them your backing.

Quite A Schedule

East Carolina University's baseball schedule is before us now, and it looks like Coach Monte Little's Pirates are going to be putting on quite a show.

The Bucs, moving into the independent ranks, would like nothing better than a return trip to the NCAA Regionals this spring, and they've beefed up their schedule to try and impress the regional committee if they pull off a good record.

The Pirates have a 47-game schedule this year, by far the most ambitious ever. Twenty-four of those will be played in Harrington Field, and the Pirates will be the host team for a doubleheader with N.C. State in Rocky Mount.

Among those coming to Greenville are last year's NCAA runner-up South Carolina, Purdue, Clemson, North Carolina, Virginia Tech and Maryland. UNC will also meet the Pirates for a single game in Tarboro.

The Bucs should be somewhat stronger than last year's team since their losses were few. The pitching staff is almost intact, with both of the big men from last year back, Mickey Britt and Pete Conaty.

Looks like a good and busy spring.

William & Mary Seeking Revenge

East Carolina's Pirates, riding a three-game winning streak, play host Tuesday night to the team they started the streak against, William & Mary.

The Indians will be in town for a return matchup, with tipoff set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Indians will also be out for revenge, to take account of the Pirates for their 58-56 victory scored a week ago Saturday in Williamsburg. That was only the second win of the year for the Pirates, and just the second loss of the season for William & Mary, which earlier topped the University of North Carolina.

The Pirates have since went on to top St. Peter's by a 90-77 score, and then down the Athletics in Action in a non-counting game, 117-107.

William & Mary lost again last week, bowing to Rutgers, and defeated Richmond last Saturday night.

As in the first game, the contest shapes up as a contest between the Pirates board strength and William & Mary's sharp-shooting.

John Lowenhaupt, the Indians' senior forward, leads the team with a 20-point average, and stands third in the nation in field goal percentage, hitting 67.5 per cent of his shots. He also stands 16th in free throw percentage, making 88.9 per cent.

Lowenhaupt is also the Indians' leading rebounder, and play-maker, pacing the team in assists.

As a team, the Indians are hitting over 50 per cent of their shots.

Since last meeting the Indians, the Pirates have also been shooting well, in the 50 per cent range. For the year, however, they are making 45.7 per cent.

Oliver Mack, now the seventh leading scorer in the country, holds down a 26.9 average going into the game, while Herb Krusen is hitting 15.7 and Herb Gray is hitting 13.9.

Gray, however, has been used only in reserve recently as he continues to recover from an ankle injury. Bernard Hill, hitting 7.3 points a game, has been in a starting role.

Greg Cornelius, who had his best game in an ECU uniform against the Athletics in Action, has been a terror on the boards recently. He pulled off 11 against St. Peter's before picking off 15 against the Athletics. He's upped his rebound mark to 7.8 per game, and is averaging 6.6 points a game.

However, against the Athletics, he hit 20 points.

Coach Larry Gillman does not feel that the game is a pivotal one. "Our guys are ready for them. They've been wanting a chance to prove that their first win against them was no fluke."

Asked if he felt that William & Mary took the Pirates lightly in their first meeting, Gillman said he saw of no reason why they should have. "When you are 9-1, you are supposed to be ready to play," he pointed out.

Nevertheless, Gillman doesn't look for an easy game against the Indians. They played the Pirates with a tight man-to-man defense in the first game that caused problems at times.

He's not sure whether he'll see that defense again, however. "I don't know if they will come with that or go to a zone. Either way, I feel that we can get the job done."

The contest is the first of three this week for the Pirates. Thursday night, the Bucs entertain strong Iona College, which has one of the nation's top big men in Jeff Ruland. Then, on Saturday, the Pirates entertain UNC Asheville.

That will bring an end to the current home stand of the Pirates, who then hit the road for three more games before returning home again.

Two Bucs Qualify For NCAA's

RICHMOND, Va. — East Carolina University had two members of its track team to qualify for the NCAA Championships in the East Coast Invitational Meet held here Saturday.

Larry Austin, a senior from Jacksonville, ran a 6.0 in the 60 yard dash to qualify, while Marvin Rankins, a junior from Colerain, ran a 7.2 in the feature hurdles to also qualify.

Austin had his time in the trials of the feature 60, but did not compete in the finals after having a slight pull of a hamstring in the trials. He had tied in that race with Jesse Williams, the outstanding sprinter from Richmond.

Rankins finished third in the finals of the feature hurdles, behind Olympians Charles Foster (7.0) and Larry Shipp (7.1). Coach Bill Carson called Rankins' race "the best I've ever seen him run."

The mile relay team was third after hitting the tape at 3:21.9 with Southern Louisiana. The judges picked Louisiana as the second place team. Winning the event were the D. C. Striders 3:20.9. The Pirates actually led the race for two legs before falling back. The Southern Louisiana team that edged ECU has been credited with the second fastest mile relay in the country at 3:11.1.

Otis Melvin ran a 6.1 in the college open 60 yard dash to finish second. He actually finished in a dead heat and was placed second by the judges. Melvin had a great weekend of running with three 6.1's in four races over two days.

In the triple jump, Herman McIntyre placed fourth with a leap of 49-11. He had his problems in the meet, however, committing fox jumps. George Jackson was seventh in the triple jump at 47-9.

In three other events, the Pirates did not place due to collisions or injury. The two mile relay team was knocked out when Jim Jones was involved in a collision with a Duke runner on the anchor leg. The Pirates were moving on second place at the time.

Ben Duckenfield was ousted from the 600 run when he also had a collision with another runner. Curt Dowdy was pulled from the high jump after going 6-6, but he jumped completely out of the pit and onto the concrete area. He was only slightly injured.

"I thought our performance on Saturday was excellent," said coach Bill Carson. "We ran poorly on Friday in the CYO, not showing the intensity necessary to do well. But we came back Saturday and made a fine showing for this time in the season."

"I think we are shaping up quite well and all indications are that we will be strong in certain areas by the nationals."

On Friday, the Pirates did not place in any event entered except the mile relay. The Pirates were clocked at 3:20.2, the fastest an ECU mile relay team has ever been clocked this early in the season. But Southern Louisiana ran a 3:16.8 to win.

The Pirate track team is back in competition this Friday in the Philadelphia Inquirer Invitational.

Duke Ties UNC In ACC

By The Associated Press

Duke muscled its way over the weekend into a tie with North Carolina for the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race.

In fact, for one brief day of glory the Blue Devils were sole owners of first place, having stunned the Tar Heels Saturday in Durham, 92-84, and posted a 3-1 conference record to Carolina's 2-1.

But the Heels bounced back Sunday with a close 71-69 victory over Wake Forest to reclaim a share of the number one spot.

In other conference action over the weekend, Wake Forest played another close one against Clemson Saturday, but this time the Deacons won, 91-90 in overtime.

Virginia held off a hard push by North Carolina State in the final minutes Saturday to beat the Wolfpack, 74-68. And Maryland just managed a 74-73 victory over non-conference Air Force.

UNC 71 Wake 69

A shot in the final seconds by Leroy McDonald that might have put this game into overtime was blocked by Al Wood of the Tar Heels, and both coaches were still thinking about what that meant after the game.

"Wood's block was certainly important, but a shot would only have had a chance to regroup in overtime," Smith said.

Coach Carl Tacy stopped just short saying a foul should have been called on Wood.

"It looked like he got hit, but it's the kind of play that they won't call unless it's very pronounced," he said.

Wake's Frank Johnson had the game high of 24 points, while Tar Heels Phil Ford and Mike O'Koren combined for 34. North Carolina is now 3-1 in the conference and 13-2 overall.

Wake Forest is 2-2 in ACC action and 10-4 for the season.

Duke 92 UNC 84

The Blue Devils had a sixth player on the court at all times in the form of a wildly enthusiastic home-court crowd.

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, were playing with four and a half men, as center Rich Yonakor warmed the bench with mononucleosis. The Tar Heels clearly needed his help as Mike Gminski rampaged unopposed under the backboards, scoring 29 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

But Coach Bill Foster dwelt on the crowd in his post-game remarks.

"We came out four hours before the game to warm up and there was already a crowd. It helped psych our players up."

Duke broke open the game in the second half by outscoring North Carolina 12-4.

Duke is 3-1 and tied for first place in the conference and 12-3 overall.

Virginia 74, N.C. State 68
Guard Dave Koesters' two free throws with 1:05 remaining sealed this victory, pulling Virginia away at 67-63.

"Koesters is a great shooter," said losing Coach Norm Sloan. "He's always shot well against us."

Virginia Coach Terry Holland said the win restored his team's confidence after a humiliating loss to North Carolina at home.

State's Clyde Austin led scoring with 26 points, while Koesters paced Virginia with 16.

Virginia is now 10-1 overall and 2-1 in the conference. State is 11-2 and 2-1 in the conference.

Wake Forest 91, Clemson 90
The come-from-behind Deacons of last season were braced for this encounter, Coach Carl Tacy said.

Maryland 74, Air Force 73

Bill Bryant sank two free throws with five seconds remaining to give Maryland the game after Air Force had tied the score at 67-67 with 3:26 remaining.

Now—$1 enrolls you in this Physicians Hospital Plan that pays you cash benefits from the very first day you're in the hospital, $900<sup>00</sup> a month ($30<sup>00</sup> a day).

50% Increase in Cash Benefits for Cancer and Heart Attack

We guarantee to issue you this insurance—regardless of your age, health or family size. Then you can renew for as little as $7<sup>55</sup> a month—depending on your age.

- Pays cash benefits from the very first day of hospitalization.
- No limit to the number of days you can collect cash benefits—even for life.
- Pays cash benefits directly to you—to spend as you wish—unless you tell us otherwise.
- Guaranteed renewable for life.
- No waiting period. Accidents and new sicknesses are covered immediately.
- Pays you over and above any other insurance you may have—including Medicare.
- No salesman will call.

DO YOU KNOW that the cost of a day in the hospital now averages $175.00? That's right! And that's only for room, board and routine nursing care. Then come the other charges for the services and supplies needed to treat an illness or injury. And these costs have been going up, too. All of this on top of your regular expenses—food, rent, utilities, telephone, loan payments.

If your basic protection is like most hospitalization policies, it won't pay all of your hospital bills. Not by a long shot. You have to come up with the difference between what your present policy will pay and the total amount of your hospital bill. And what happens if your paycheck stops while you're in the hospital—and you don't have any cash coming in? In no time you could find your savings gone. You could even find yourself going deeper and deeper into debt!

This is why Physicians Mutual created this extra protection hospital plan. So that—instead of your money all going out—you can have money coming in. Money to help you pay the hospital bills your other insurance doesn't cover. Money to help you pay your phone, electric and food bills. Money to help safeguard your savings, and keep you on your feet financially.

$900.00 a month—$30.00 a day—cash!

Hospital rates are usually the same for everybody. That's why this policy pays the same $30 a day cash benefit when you, your wife or any of your children are hospitalized for any covered sickness or accident. Compare these benefits with other policies that pay reduced benefits for dependents.

50% increase in cash benefits for cancer and heart attack: $1350.00 a month, $45.00 a day.

No one likes to think about getting cancer or having a heart attack. But it happens all the time. About 53 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer. That's 1 in 4 persons. And it's estimated that nearly 4 million people have a history of heart attack. We sincerely hope you never have to collect. But if you should, daily benefits are increased 50% if you or any covered member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease) or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion).

Double benefits for you and your wife!

When your wife is covered and both of you are hospitalized at the same time due to accidents, your daily benefits are increased. That's right, you get twice the regular cash benefit—$3,600 a month ($120 a day) to help you through this emergency. By the way, hospitalization doesn't have to be due to the same accident; you and your wife could be injured in unrelated accidents.

These are the exclusions.

Pre-existing conditions (health problems that became evident or were medically treated before the effective date of the policy) are not covered for one year from the date the policy is issued. Half-benefits ($15 a day) are paid for up to 4 weeks confinement due to mental disorder. Not covered is hospitalization for alcoholism, drug addiction or any condition covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Law benefits. Confinement in nursing homes, Federal hospitals, or

Pays maternity benefits, too!

You'll collect full benefits—$30 a day—for hospitalization due to pregnancy or any pregnancy complication, if your policy has been in force for 10 months. There's no added cost to you!

No waiting period for accidents or new sicknesses.

You're covered the very minute your policy is issued and put in force for new sicknesses—and accidents. That means you could be rushed to the hospital a few minutes after you get your policy—and be able to start collecting your $30 a day benefits immediately, starting that very day!

You get lifetime coverage and benefits.

There's no limit on the number of days for which you can collect cash benefits. You can be hospitalized as often as necessary and stay as long as you have to—knowing that your $30 a day benefits cannot run out. Our policy will pay you benefits for as long as you're hospitalized—even for life!

Pays cash benefits in addition to any other insurance you have.

Remember, this is extra, supplemental protection. Your benefits are paid over and above any other insurance you may carry—including Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Major Medical and Medicare. This policy is designed to help you make up the difference between your total hospital bill and what your other insurance will pay.

Your benefits are not taxable.

Your benefits from your Physicians Mutual Policy are not taxable by any level of government. They are not subject to state or Federal income tax.

Your policy is guaranteed renewable.

Don't forget, this extra protection is yours as long as you want to have it and pay your premiums when due. We cannot drop you or cancel your coverage because your health changes, or because you're a few years older, or because you've submitted a number of claims. On the other hand, you can drop your policy on any renewal date. Also, your premium can never be increased unless premiums are raised on all policies like yours in your entire state.

Enroll right away. Now.

You can enroll in this extra protection plan right now—right from this page. All you do is fill out the short Application at the bottom of the page and mail it together with $1 which pays for your first month—no matter how many family members you want covered. Do it right away. You never know what can happen! Fill out and mail your Application now.

the self-care, extended-care or convalescent units of hospitals is not covered. Pregnancy or any consequence is covered after your policy is 10 months old.

Physicians Mutual—the insurance company run by doctors since 1902.

You don't have to think twice about enrolling in this plan. You're doing business with a solid, reputable company with a 76-year history of steady growth and of understanding service.

From 1902 until 1962, Physicians Mutual offered health insurance only to physicians, surgeons and dentists. Then, recognizing the rising need for supplemental health insurance, the company began offering this extra protection to the general public.

Today our policies protect more than 1,000,000 Americans in 49 states and the District of Columbia. And Physicians Mutual has grown to become the 10th largest individual health insurer in the country!

That's not all. Last year, for instance, we paid over $50,000,000.00 in cash benefits on all policies—to folks like yourself.

More—Physicians Mutual is truly a company "run by doctors." Our Board of Directors continues to be made up almost entirely of doctors. Men who know the cost of hospital care and want to put your mind at ease. Men who take our obligation to our policyowners seriously, and have a personal pride in the company's reputation for integrity, reliability and service.

And we're proud to say that Physicians Mutual has been awarded an A (Excellent) Rating by the A.M. Best Company, the insurance industry's authority on a company's financial stability and operating performance.

Money-back guarantee.

First, we guarantee to issue you a policy regardless of your age or your health. As soon as we receive your Application and $1, we will issue your policy (P350/360 Series), put it in force, and mail it to you. You are protected right from that minute!

Naturally, we can issue only one policy to you on a guaranteed issue basis. If you are already a Physicians Mutual policyowner, please write for details of the additional coverage we have for you.

When you get your policy, you will have 30 days to make up your mind—to completely satisfy yourself this policy is all we need for this important supplemental coverage, simply return your policy. We will promptly refund your $1 in full—with no questions asked. What could be fairer?

hospitalization—when Medicare coverage is highest—you collect half benefits, $15.00 a day.

After 60 days of hospital care—when Medicare coverage reduces and you need help the most—your cash benefits go up to $30.00 a day. And stay there no matter how long the hospital visit.

We've found that most folks over 65 prefer this approach—because your monthly premiums do not increase after you turn 65.

Another feature many senior citizens appreciate is that you will be covered for cancer, heart attack, stroke, hernia, disease or disorder of the prostate, tuberculosis, cataracts, emphysema, cirrhosis or diabetes if your hospital confinement commences more than six months after the effective date of your policy.

People over 65 are also protected.

When you are 65, you'll find help for hospital care in many forms—Medicare, Social Security, special agencies, and perhaps a pension plan. But because people in this age group go to the hospital more often, this extra help is frequently not enough.

In addition to Medicare, you'll be receiving cash benefits from Physicians Mutual... to fill the financial void created by your illness. During the first 60 days of
