High School Auditorium And Athletic Field Are Pondered By School Bd.

Initial discussions on plans to consider first steps in the construction of an auditorium and an athletic facility at Rose High School were opened up at the January meeting of the City Board of Education.

Eventual construction of an auditorium and an athletic facility at Rose have long been on the drawing board as part of long range facility planning.

Superintendent Glenn Cox presented a capsule history of Rose High and the conditions that have led to a tight situation at the site so far as available space for expansion and construction is concerned. In summation, this is what has evolved in the 22 years since the construction of Rose High — 1956 — Initial construction of a school for 750 students on a 25 acre site — Mid 1960s — Long range plans for construction of a second high school with bond issue funds.

— 1966 — Exchange with the City of Greenville of 6.8 acres of land from the Rose High site for land at the South Greenville school site, and also the lease of an additional 4.5 acres to the city for recreational purposes. These two moves reduced the area to less than 15 acres.

— 1970 — Addition of classrooms at Rose to accommodate combining the old Eppes High School with Rose, bringing the student body up to the something over 1,200 students.

— 1974 — Adoption of long range plans that included the construction of an auditorium and an athletic field from bond issue money.

Cox mentioned that if site planning for a school of this size was to be submitted to the State Board of Education at this time, the recommendation would call for a site with a minimum of 40 acres, and "more likely in the neighborhood of 50 acres."

Cox reported he'd made initial, unofficial contact with Boyd Lee of the Recreation Department, with Dr. Edgar Hooks and Clifton Moore at East Carolina University, with a representative of the Environmental Agency in Washington, (N.C.), with representatives of the Athletic Booster's Club, and with others to get opinions.

Cox then asked the board to give him permission to take a number of steps to proceed with initial planning. These steps included (1) Making official contact with recreation and university officials; (2) Informing the City of Greenville of the school's intent at some point in the future to dissolve the lease on the 4.5 leased acres; (3) Developing a budget to cover initial costs on site clearing, initial drainage, fill work and surveys; and (4) Arranging a joint meeting for the board and the recreation commission to discuss possible recreational use.

Before taking action on the recommendations, the board heard input from several interested citizens in attendance.

Barney Kane said he was "in essence offering the assistance of citizen input." Kane mentioned that an engineer had told him that "it would be too expensive to put a stadium there (in the wooded area between Rose High and the Elm Street Recreation area)." Kane said too he was "concerned that it was one of the few natural areas of nature left" and that if "it is cleared, there's a possible problem because of the steep ravine" which "might accelerate erosion and drainage problems."

Another spokesman, Dr. Vincent Bellis called on the school board "to exercise caution and not clear the site 'til there are definite concrete plans approved for construction."

Bellis made a request that no further clearing be done until definite plans were established.

Cox said some clearing had been carried out in order to get "see what we could do with the area. We've been in and cut back some briars and undergrowth."

Rose High School coach Bud Phillips, reiterating developments that have resulted in the loss of athletic space at the school (additional construction, parking lot for buses, etc.), said "since 1957 we've been planning for a stadium down there. An athletic facility at Middle School would not be feasible for us."

In taking action, the board gave approval for Cox to proceed on one of his proposed four steps — that of contacting officials in determining directions to take in making initial plans to proceed with surveys and cost estimates for a facility in the wooded site. Cox was also directed not to permit any further clearing at this time.

Board member Mrs. Terry Shank said she felt she could see what Cox was attempting to do in making the proposals

County Demos Join Tributes To Humphrey

By TOM BAINES

Local Democrats reacted to the death of Sen. Hubert Humphrey with expressions of sentiment and recollections similar to those offered by his colleagues and friends.

"He was just the epitome of the Democratic Party," observed State Rep. Horton Rountree, who recalled that he met the Minnesota senator "several years ago when he was campaigning."

Rountree remembered that Humphrey was "a very outgoing individual... a very tender person" who was "very dominating in a group, indeed the leader." The senator "spoke with authority," Rountree added.

Humphrey "served his country well," the representative said, "and I think the nation has honored him well and deservedly so. It speaks well for the gentleman."

Rountree added that the former vice president was an "inspiration to people who have cancer" in that he demonstrated a determination and will to live in face of his adversity.

Betty Speir of Bethel, chairperson of the Pitt Democratic Executive Committee, said that Humphrey "certainly has been a remarkable man in the Democratic Party and in the present history of our nation."

Mrs. Speir said the late senator was "a man with a significant contribution" and a man who "changed the way people were thinking... whether they always agreed with him or not."

Humphrey had an "impact on the party and the country," the Democratic official asserted. Another local Democratic leader, Clifton Everett Jr., recalled meeting Humphrey while Everett was in law school. The local attorney said that "a lot of us in law school went over (to Raleigh) for the meeting and even though he was already late for his plane, he stayed after the meeting and took the time to speak to and shake everybody's hand."

Everett, chairman of the Pitt Board of Elections, said that "at my age you were in awe of somebody like that and I remember that he looked in person as near like he looked on television of anyone I know of."

The attorney recalled that Humphrey was "outgoing and jovial and he seemed to be a very warm person."

Everett said the senator was "one of the few who kept his drawing power for 30 years."

State Senator Vernon White of Winterville called Humphrey "a great American" and "one of the greatest liberals we have ever known."

White, who said that he never had the opportunity to meet Humphrey, said that "he always stuck by his convictions even though I did not always agree with him. I admired him for his integrity and loyalty to his work."

Tom Willis, an active member of the area Democratic structure and former treasurer of the executive committee, noted that "personally, I thought he was a great man." Willis said that Humphrey "really cared for his fellow man."

Firemen Curb Threat To Fuel Oil Storage Tanks

By TOMMY FORREST

FARMVILLE — Area county firemen avoided a major fire when a pump used in loading fuel oil ignited burning the loading dock area last night near here.

Storage tanks were threatened for a short while at the Oakley Oil and L. P. Gas Company located on rural paved road 1200 west of Farmville.

According to Pitt County Fire

Marshal Bobby Joyner, the owner of the complex was listed as Edward Marl Oakley.

Members of the Farmville fire department were first on the scene responding to the 6:08 p.m. alarm. Other units in the county were summoned to the scene and placed on stand-by basis.

Joyner said the storage tanks contained fuel oil and kerosene. There was about 9,000 gallons in each of the three tanks.

The fire which was contained to the loading dock, completely destroyed the wooden structure. Fire also damaged the outside area of the tanks, but there was no explosion the official said.

Joyner also noted that there was little leakage from the tanks during the fire.

"A small amount of fuel leaked from one of the valves that was probably damaged from the heat and became weak," Joyner said.

L. P. Gas tanks approximately 20 feet from the verticle storage tanks were not damaged during the blaze.

Damage to the tanks and loading dock was placed at $2,000 by fire officials.

Value of the surrounding area was placed at $155,000.

Members of fire departments assisting Farmville were, Bell Arthur, Falkland, Fountain, Staton-House, Winterville, Stokes, and Ayden.

There were no injuries reported, the fire marshal said. Investigation into the blaze is continuing.

Laetrile Battle Front Widened

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Laetrile battle being waged between a federal judge and the federal government has widened with the judge's order that terminally ill cancer patients with doctors' affidavits can import the substance, a reputed cancer treatment.

Last Dec. 5, U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon banned the government from interfering with the importation, transportation or use of Laetrile by anyone.

The government declared the substance's labeling illegal on Dec. 14 and halted shipments from Mexico, where it is manufactured.

Monday's order by Bohanon cancels the Food and Drug Administration's Dec. 14 "import alert" which required certain labeling of the drug.

The U. S. Attorney in Raleigh, George M. Anderson, has reported a renewed public interest in commodity futures, a special market dealing in commodity investments in various natural and agriculture products and certain services.

CBS's "60 Minutes" recently produced a telecast on fraudulent activities concerning the selling of commodities futures and Anderson said he believes this is what has prompted the interest. He pointed out that there is a federal agency, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which will advise those considering such investments and to which one should report suspected violations. The Eastern Regional Office for the Commission is located at One World Trade Center, Suite 4747, New York, N. Y. 10048. A toll-free "Consumer Hot-line" is available — 800-424-9838.

The Commission has an enforcement division to deal with reported allegations of fraud, manipulation and other enforcement proceedings.

Consumers are encouraged to write or call the Commission directly, but Anderson indicated the U. S. How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast today for the Northeast with rain due along the coast from the mid-Atlantic region to southern New England. Snow is expected from the northern to the central Plains changing to rain in northern Texas. Showers are forecast for the northern Pacific coast. Temperatures over the nation will be generally cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A heavy snow warning, the second in less than a week, is in effect today for North Carolina's northwest mountains and a storm warning applied to the rest of the mountain area as a low pressure system moved northeastward from the lower

Mississippi Valley. The storm was pushing rain, frozen rain and snow ahead of it. The northwest mountains were warned to expect from four to eight inches of snow and the rest of the mountains could look for two to four inches. By mid-morning, the Boone area had measured about four inches of fresh snow, while in the southern mountains Asheville had freezing rain.

As precipitation moved eastward from the mountains it was expected to bring sleet, snow or freezing rain before changing to rain.

Snow flurries may continue over the mountains Wednesday with mostly cloudy skies elsewhere. Another storm forming over Texas may bring more unsettled weather by Thursday.

Overnight temperatures dropped below freezing over the western part of the state where Asheville's low this morning was 26 degrees. Greensboro had 29 and lows elsewhere generally were in the 30s or slightly below Monday's high readings.

Temperatures today were expected to range from near 30 in the northwest mountains to the 50s on the coast and tonight's lows will range from the 20s in the mountains to the 40s on the coast.

to take steps in planning. "Somewhere we've got to get started," she said. "One of our priorities is to get a facility for our ongoing athletic programs. We need to know what will happen when Ficklen Stadium is completed, what direction the university might take then. (Rose has long used the stadium for their football games).

"We've got to let the public know what the situation is, so they understand what we're faced with. I'm anxious for Glenn to go ahead with a study on this."

On a status of the new Middle High School, Cox presented a report from architect George W. Shoe that shows as of Friday, Jan. 13 — Work on Unit 1 of the school is complete except for touch up, and that installation of carpet is 40 per cent complete; — work on Units 2 and 3 to be finished shows installation of ceiling tile is 80 per cent complete, and that carpet must be installed; and for Unit 4 work on ceiling tile is 90 per cent complete, with the contractor advising material is to be on hand right away for installing the covered walk.

Shoe's report also shows that a final inspection is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 20 with Division of School Planning officials. "All work should be complete by inspection date except the carpet in Units 2 and 3," the report notes, and "remaining outside work such as paving... and grading will have to be done when weather conditions are suitable."

Adding to the architect's report, Cox said "I'd hoped to be able to tell you the move would be scheduled for the weekend of January 27, but that will not be the case. There's been some serious problems on the road into the site, the weather has been such that the road people have not been able to follow through on their plans." (Barrus Construction Company is working on Arlington Boulevard between Hooker Road and Elm Street that will serve the new Middle School).

Cox added "there's no way school buses or any appreciable number of cars can use the area without tearing the road up."

School board member Dr. James Bearden suggested that Cox make efforts "to get the city interested in completing the road as soon as possible. We're a third party so far as Barrus is concerned."

Several board members mentioned the problem the delay is creating at Agnes Fullilove since teachers are having to unpack materials already packed for the move and to replan all they had previously planned.

Approval was given to accepting a bid of $86,400 from Dr. Charles Broome for the approximate 12 acre Lynnale property that has been up for public sale. This was the minimum amount the board had set before they would approve the sale. Board member Miles Frost went on record as abstaining from discussions and voting; and Dr. Bearden went on record of not voting due to personal interest.

In other actions, the board: — Approved renaming

(once the move to Middle School is completed) of Agnes Fullilove School to Agnes Fullilove Community School. This name, it was agreed, will reflect the new role of the school as the site of the Extended School Program and planned programs for young and old adults.

— Approved resignation of two teachers and the election of seven others, including some interim personnel. One of those elected (full time) is Kenneth Marks. Marks will be coordinator of the Skills Lab at Rose High. This lab, financed with $34,000 in state C.E.T.A. funds, will provide assistance to 60 students who have failed the high school competence test. (This year the 60 will be students who are selected as those who it is believed will fail the competency tests which are to be given at a later date). It was emphasized this is not a program for retarded students, but for students who could but did not or would not be able to achieve a passing score on the competency test. In addition to Marks, the program will be staffed by Mrs. Doris Cox, as an instructional aide, and Mrs. Kathleen Thuma as secretary-clerical aide.

— Approved a five year Vocational Education plan presented by Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education. Approval of the plan does not carry definite commitments for funding or even following the exact proposals outlined. Annual changes are allowed as conditions within the program change.

— Approved a field trip for ninth graders at Aycock to go to Charleston, S. C. April 20-22.

— Agreed to hold a special call meeting at an early date to consider transportation needs for extra-curricula activities.

— Heard a report from Cox that he had provided Clifton W. Everett, Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections with a map of the Greenville City School district. Early in January, Everett sent letters to Cox and to Ott Alford, Superintendent of the Pitt County Schools, requesting the map. Cox said to date he'd not received further word from Everett on this matter.

— Adopted two budget amendments — Budget Amendment No. 1 for the School Food Service Fund in the amount of $22,198.16, a decrease amount which brings that budget to $661,271.84 from a previous $683,470.00 amount; and Budget Amendment No. 5 for the Current Expense Fund, the $34,000 item to fund the Skills Lab, an increase.

Politics A New World: Hodges

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Speaking to a group of East Carolina University School of Business students last night, Luther Hodges Jr., a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate said, "there's a very big difference between politics and business." Hodges, former chairman of the board of North Carolina National Bank, said, "a businessman has to know all about his line of work...the market in which he sells...the attitude of the public towards his product...the likely future of his industry..." Hodges said too, a businessman, "has to specialize and be an expert. In other words, he has to know more and more about less and less, until one day, he wakes up and finds that he knows everything about nothing."

A politician is just the opposite, according to the candidate. "He has to know all about everything...every issue and every current topic of debate...has to have an answer for everything as well."

"Since that's an impossible task," Hodges said, "he has to skim the surface and before long, he knows less and less about more and more, until one day he wakes up and finds that he knows nothing about everything."

Hodges said, "I'm exaggerating of course," but noted that there is a large gap between private enterprise and the public sector.

According to Hodges, the "separate worlds of interest and influence," exhibited by business and government is "potentially dangerous. I want you to keep it in mind," he said, as I...talk...about how private enterprise may go about attempting to improve its very serious credibility problems.

"That's right," Hodges emphasized. "Business does have a serious problem of a lack of credibility." Saying government and politics have severe credibility problems, also, Hodges noted, "I'd be willing to bet that if the average American of the modern era were forced to choose between business and government as to which was the most cognizant of the public's problems, he or she would choose government."

Saying there is a good deal of irony in private enterprise's current predicament, Hodges noted that the "emphasis on 'free' in the term 'free enterprise' has led to excesses and abuse, and today's serious credibility problem."

With the American system of free enterprise under a siege of general doubt in the wake of assorted scandals in the corporate boardrooms of America, Hodges said, "calls for reform are being heard, and...there is a growing demand for increased government supervision of the private sector."

"So, we arrive back to where we started. Business—which abhors interference in its headlong pursuit of profits—resists external regulation by government," Hodges explained. At the same time, Hodges continued, "the public sector, insensitive or ignorant of the special needs of the private sector, proposes unrealistic or at times...foolish solutions."

Hodges said, to move away from this impasse, "I will tell you plainly...that we should expend little effort defending free enterprise, as so many of my peers in the private sector seen to want to do...or attacking it, as many politicians find themselves doing so often.

"Free enterprise is the wrong goal to defend or attack," Hodges said, "because it is no longer — nor can it be — 'free'...free to pollute...to gouge...to manipulate shortages...to pursue purely private goals at the expense of the public good."

Hodges told the students, "what we should defend," is a, "renewed emphasis on individual ethical behavior and self-regulation borne of true maturity and an accurate assessment of business's role in society."

"In my mind, Hodges said, "the private enterprise system can have both profit and honor," first, "by installing standards of conduct and ethical behavior in the internal workings of the corporation or business venture," and secondly, "by recognizing that the private sector must adopt a public service point of view."

Companies which establish codes of ethics for their operations, according to Hodges, "are recognizing a very basic and necessary point of the American private enterprise system — that to act in the best interest of society is the best way to maximize profits and business success."

Hodges noted, "if a company thinks its power is unbridled...if it thinks it can gouge prices, pollute indiscriminately, or substitute itself with illegal political contributions... sooner or later its power will be curbed by government. And government regulations, although certainly necessary to correct obvious abuses when they occur, is more often than not a costly penalty to pay."

Six Women Added To U.S. Astronaut Corps

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's first women and minority astronauts should be in orbit within three years, after veteran spacemen have launched the space shuttle program.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Monday named six women, three black men and an Oriental to its previously all-white male astronaut corps.

They were among 35 new crew members who will fill pilot and mission specialist seats on the shuttle, which is to make hundreds of space trips in the next decade.

The new astronauts will begin two years of training on July 1 at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston to prepare for flight, said center Director Christopher C. Craft.

But the practiced skills of pilots from the present 27-man corps will be needed on the first six orbital flights, all scheduled for 1979.

The women selected are Dr. Anna L. Fisher, 28, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., a physician; Dr. Shannon W. Lucid, 35, of Oklahoma City, a post-doctoral fellow in biochemistry at Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation; Dr. Judith A. Resnik, 28, of Redondo Beach, Calif., an engineer at Xerox Corp.; Sally K. Ride, 26, of Stanford, Calif., a physics research assistant at Stanford University; Dr. Margaret R. Seddon, 29, Memphis, Tenn., resident surgeon, City of Memphis Hospital; and Kathryn D. Sullivan, 26, Cupertino, Calif., a post-graduate student in earth sciences at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Dr. Fisher and Lucid are married, and Dr. Lucid has three children. Dr. Fisher's husband, also a physician, had applied to be an astronaut, but was not accepted.

The three blacks are Air Force Maj. Guion S. Bluford Jr., 35, of Dayton, Ohio, chief of the aerodynamics and airframe branch at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; Air Force Maj. Frederick D. Gregory, 37, of Hampton, Va., now at the Armed Services Staff College, Norfolk, Va.; and Ronald E. McNair, 27, Marina Del Rey, Calif., a civilian in the physics department of Hughes Research Laboratories.

The astronaut of Oriental extraction is Air Force Capt. Ellison S. Onizuka, 31, of Keala-keku, Hawaii, currently chief of the engineering support section of the test pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and a Hawaii-born, third generation Japanese-American.

Self-Inflicted Wound Fatal

Deborah Austin Haddock, 28, died in a Pitt Memorial Hospital operating room at 7:14 p.m. yesterday as the result of an apparently self-inflicted bullet wound in her chest. Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

According to the chief, Mrs. Haddock, now living in Charlotte, had been separated from her husband Kenneth Leslie Haddock of 118 North Eastern St., for about six months. She had been visiting her husband and her mother-in-law during the weekend.

Cannon said Mrs. Haddock was taken by her husband to the bus station here yesterday to catch a bus back to Charlotte, but when they arrived at the bus terminal, they found the bus had already left.

Returning to the Eastern Street home, Cannon said, Mrs. Haddock allegedly told her husband she wanted to talk and the couple drove to the river at the end of Eastern Street.

Cannon quoted Mr. Haddock as saying when he stopped the truck in which the two were riding, he heard a shot and found that his wife had shot herself.

Haddock then drove Mrs. Haddock to the city's Central Fire Station at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets where she was transferred to a rescue truck and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital, the chief said. Cannon said the shooting occurred about 5:45 p.m. He quoted Mrs. Haddock's mother-in-law, Mrs. Lillie Haddock of 118 North Eastern St., as saying her daughter-in-law had threatened to take her own life earlier in the day.

The fatal wound was inflicted by a .22 caliber pistol, the chief noted.

Common-Sense Tips To Take Before Vacation

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Taking a few common-sense precautions before leaving for a long vacation could spell the difference between a delightful or disastrous holiday.

In the excitement of planning itineraries, packing and making reservations, vacationists often overlook important safeguards for home and property while they are away.

For instance, did you remember to inform the milkman, letter carrier and newsboy to stop deliveries? Bottles, mail and newspapers piling up on the porch or doorstep could tip off burglars that no one is home.

You might also arrange to have the lawn mowed — or the snow cleared — during your absence. It will help make the house look lived in — and, besides, you could face a damage suit if someone falls on an icy walk.

Don't advertise your vacation plans in shopping centers, service stations, beauty shops or other public places where strangers might overhear. One might decide to call before you get back home and you could find the place stripped.

Here are some other tips: — If you live in a small town, ask the police to check the house occasionally. Ask the superintendent or doorman if you live in an apartment in the city.

— Lock all doors and windows, including those in the garage, cellar and attic. Leave shades only partly drawn and hook up an automatic timer that will turn lights — and perhaps a radio — on and off at pre-set times.

— Check the dealer or serviceman on whether to turn down — or off — thermostats on heaters and refrigerators. Disconnect all other electrical appliances, including air-conditioners and tv sets. — Leave a key with a relative or neighbor in case of emergency. When possible, provide a copy of your itinerary, including dates, places and telephone numbers if disaster strikes.

— Check your homeowner and other insurance policies and have them renewed if expiration dates should fall within your vacation period. You might want to check your driver's license, owner's registration card and credit cards at the same time.

If you are heading overseas, you may need certain documents — such as passports, visas or travel cards, certificates of vaccination, etc. — in addition to confirmed bookings by airlines and other carriers and hotels. Ask your travel agent, airlines or steamship company when making arrangements for your trip. Obtaining the documents could take time.

It's a good idea to have a medical and dental check — an ounce of prevention could be worth more than a pound of cure. Take along a supply of prescribed medicines — you may not be able to get them overseas — and have your doctor suggest a first-aid kit. And take along an extra pair, or the prescription, if you wear glasses.

If you should need inoculations, don't wait until the last minute. Some are not effective until a certain number of days have elapsed and others require a series of shots spaced over several weeks. And there could be unpleasant reactions, too.

Passports should be carried on the person — never left in a suitcase or hotel room. Keep a record of the number, date and place of issue in a safe place. You will need the information if the passport is lost, stolen or destroyed. In such an event, immediately inform the local police and the nearest U.S. diplomatic mission.

Don't carry large sums of money when traveling. The numbers of all travelers checks and credit cards should be listed as a precaution against theft or other loss. If they do disappear, notify police and the issuing companies as soon as possible.

Knowing what you can bring into or take out of the countries on the itinerary — and the United States — can be helpful in avoiding possible hassles with customs. Some have restrictions on the amount of film, perfume, liquor, cigarettes and their currencies. Some products are banned and subject to confiscation. Violations of customs regulations could also mean fines and imprisonment.

And, last but not least, learn something about the language, customs and cultures of the people in the countries you will visit. It will add to the enjoyment and excitement of travel.

Mother Ashamed That Son Is Mentally Ill

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How do I explain my mentally ill brother to my fiancé? My brother has been in a mental hospital for nearly 10 years. He comes home to visit twice a year for a week, and I visit him about once a month. (He is not in this city.) I don't know what type of mental illness he has, or how he got that way.

Mother said he had a "nervous breakdown" and is "confused." But he doesn't seem confused to me. He jokes a lot and is very thoughtful—even remembering people's birthdays.

I love my brother and want my fiancé to love him, too, but mother seems ashamed of him and has asked that I not mention him or his condition until after I am married. This doesn't seem right. What is your advice?

"IN THE DARK"

DEAR IN: You are tragically uninformed about your brother's condition. You have a right to know the facts, and so has your fiancé. Have a talk with your brother's doctor.

And when you next visit your brother, invite your fiancé along. Mental illness in the family is nothing to be ashamed of. I know of no family that has escaped it completely.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying that there are still some fellows around who want their brides to be virgins. I've always thought so, but I can't find a guy who agrees with me.

I'm a 20-year-old female virgin who intends to stay this way until I'm married.

It's not easy staying a virgin. Men know they won't get anywhere with me so they stay away. Some of their explanations are unreal. For instance, one guy said, "Hunting a woman is like hunting an employee. They're no good unless they've had experience."

So how would you answer him?

HANGING ON

DEAR HANGING: I'd explain that some employers prefer to hire someone with no experience because an inexperienced person has no bad habits to unlearn.

DEAR ABBY: Our only child, a son, died leaving a young wife and a small son I'll call Tommy. Tommy's mother subsequently married a man in rather modest circumstances and now they have two more sons besides Tommy.

At Christmastime we always remember Tommy's half-brothers generously, but naturally we go all out for our only grandchild.

Now Tommy's mother refuses to let our grandson spend weekends with us because we favor him over the others. What is your advice?

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You can't be faulted for favoring your only grandchild, but his mother calls the tunes, so don't alienate her. Since Tommy must live with his half-brothers, don't make life difficult for him by giving his brothers reasons to be jealous.

If you want to do something special for Tommy, go "all out" on his birthday, or set up a trust to be used for his education, but at Christmastime treat all the boys with equal generosity.

Getting married? No matter how little you have to spend or how unconventional your lifestyle, it can be lovely. Send for Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

I've made a study of standing ovations and I've come to the conclusion that anyone can have 'em.

There are certain phrases and actions that will bring an entire auditorium to its feet, clapping wildly and refusing to stop long after you've left the stage.

For some unexplained reason, people go bananas whenever they see a line of dancers or ice skaters in a single row kicking in time to the music. It doesn't matter if they're all kicking in the same direction or at the same time or if indeed their feet are two inches from the floor. People love precision.

Some songs naturally excite an audience. Inspirational things like "Climb Every Mountain" or "The Impossible Dream" or "Swanee." I once saw a woman's luncheon audience give a standing ovation to a string ensemble warming up, but it had been a long luncheon with a lot of coffee.

State songs will bring people to their feet. Awhile back at a banquet I attended, an organist played state songs throughout the meal. Singing "Dixie" with cottage cheese in my mouth is not the most attractive thing I've ever done.

Standing by intimidation is a favorite. I've never trusted lecturers who say something inane like, "You show me a man who doesn't love his country and I'll show you a man half asleep" and suddenly from nowhere, some sap will jump to his feet and start clapping like a seal within seconds, the entire auditorium is joining him. If you don't stand someone will invariably snarl, "If you don't love this country... leave it!"

I have to tell you, having a standing ovation is an ego trip you never forget. It's Mussolini on the balcony. It's Bruce Jenner at the finish line. It's Humphrey Bogart beating on his plate with a fork in Sing Sing.

I hate to admit it, but I've resorted to a few cheap shots in my time. Once I went out to lecture humming The Star-Spangled Banner. They just sat there.

Next, I told them my father was a veteran and I was against pollution. They still sat there. Finally, I told them I was waiving my fees and was establishing a scholarship in my name. Nothing.

Finally, I said, "My remarks will be brief today."

I'll never forget the sight of all those people on their feet clapping if I live to be a hundred.

Good News In Highway Plans

It was very satisfying that the Board of Transportation approved a plan of improvements for U. S. 264 from Wilson to Washington at its meeting last week.

The plan proposes widening U. S. 264 from N. C. 58 at Wilson to the Greene County line at a cost of $24 million and with work to begin in fiscal 1982-83.

A $17 million project would improve the highway from the Wilson County line to the Farmville bypass. Another project would bring about widening from the Farmville bypass to the Greenville bypass at a cost of $13 million. Work would begin in 1982. Finally U. S. 264 would be completely dual laned to Washington with that project to begin in fiscal 1984.

Approval of the projects in the seven year plan was pleasing to all the people along the U. S. 264 route who have worked so hard to obtain an adequate east-west highway.

It is not clear, however, whether the projects will involve adding a second lane along the already existing highway, or the construction of an entirely new limited access road on a new right-of-way.

We think it will be a mistake if a limited access highway is not built between Wilson and Greenville. There is too much development going on in Wilson, Farmville, Greenville and Washington to consider anything less than that.

We can be sure that whatever is done will be the basic highway for at least the rest of this century and a non-limited access road between Greenville and Wilson — even though dual laned — will be a blood alley in a couple of decades.

We have certainly made a giant step forward by finally obtaining approval of a multi-laned road from Wilson to Washington, but we still may have to convince the planners that a limited access road is an absolute necessity.

Truly, Hubert Was The 'Most Beloved'

The death of Hubert H. Humphrey was a sad-denig time for the entire nation.

"He was the most beloved of all Americans," said President Carter. There can be little doubt of that.

It was not always that way, particularly here in the south when a brash young Humbert Humphrey proposed civil rights legislation which was to change our way of life.

The changes came, however, and most of what

Humphrey proposed became accepted as right in the southland. Our feelings mellowed, as he did, too.

They all gathered at his death, the president, members of the opposition party, the man who defeated him in 1968 only to resign from the presidential office.

There was no rancor toward Hubert H. Humphrey at the end. He was, indeed, the nation's most beloved citizen.

Issue Close To Heart

The Supreme Court last week heard argument in one of the most important cases of this term. It is known as the Barlow's case, and while the results will be of primary interest to businessmen, the principles ought to concern us all. The case touches the very heart of a free society.

On the surface, the matter involves only the power of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) to make unannounced inspections, without first obtaining a warrant. More broadly, the Court's decision will affect dozens of governmental agencies — state and local, as well as federal agencies — that are involved in regulatory activities.

The case arose in Idaho on Sept. 11, 1975, when an OSHA inspector, Daniel T. Sanger, presented himself at the shop of Barlow's Inc., a heating and plumbing contractor. Sanger demanded admittance in the name of the law. Ferrol G. "Bill" Barlow, the proprietor, refused to let him in. Barlow told the inspector to go get a warrant. The inspector and his superiors refused the invitation. Barlow beat them to the gun by plunging into court himself, with a petition for an injunction.

On Dec. 30, 1976, a three-judge federal court unanimously found in Barlow's favor. Judges M. Oliver Koelsch, J. Blaine Anderson and Ray McNichols ruled that the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution effectively prohibits the government from intruding upon private commercial property without observing the warrant rule. From their judgment the Labor Department appealed to the Supreme Court. There the matter rests.

In its argument last week, the government contended that its ability to enforce health and safety regulations will be seriously impaired if its inspectors are compelled to get warrants before they gain access to industrial premises. But the contention is nonsense. The government's powers, to be sure, would be impaired — but the powers are entirely too sweeping, and they ought to be impaired.

In any given year, 90-odd percent of OSHA's cited violations are deemed to be "nonserious" violations. These trivial, nitpicking, generally asinine incidents result in fines of perhaps $25 — just large enough to be annoying, not large enough to take to court. If the government were prevented from making these bureaucratic fishing expeditions, nothing of real importance would be lost.

What about the truly serious health and safety hazards? In these areas, OSHA's inspectors should have no difficulty whatever in doing what other law enforcement officers do all the time: They have only to go before a federal judge, producing evidence under oath that probable cause exists to believe a violation is occurring, and the search warrant issues. If the inspectors do not have probable cause, they have no business gum-shoeing around.

The Supreme Court cannot decide the Barlow's case in OSHA's favor without overturning two solid precedents of recent vintage. These are the Camara and See cases, decided in June 1967 by identical 6-3 judgments. Camara involved a housing inspection in San Francisco; the See case involved a warrantless inspection of a warehouse in Seattle.

Death Penalty Issues

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is hearing arguments in cases it may use to significantly broaden or limit the use of the death penalty.

Before the justices today were two Ohio cases asking these questions:

—Is the death penalty valid for someone who did not actually kill anyone, but who took part in a crime that led to a murder?

—May a 16-year-old be executed?

—Is a death penalty law valid if it gives the jury no voice in the punishment?

—How extensive a range of factors weighing in favor of life imprisonment instead of death must be considered under a state's capital punishment law?

The court's eventual decisions could help decide whether many of the state death penalty laws not yet tested in federal courts can meet constitutional standards.

The Supreme Court in 1976 ruled that the death penalty is a valid punishment when applied in certain ways. The court at that time upheld capital punishment laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas — states which have not executed any prisoner since the ruling but may soon.

At the same time, however, the court struck down the death penalty laws in Louisiana and North Carolina, apparently because they made capital punishment mandatory for certain crimes.

Four years before, the court had ruled that the death penalty as it was then applied was arbitrary and capricious and therefore violated the constitutional safeguard against cruel and unusual punishment.

Since 1976, the court has ruled that the death penalty for convicted rapists is too harsh a punishment. The court, with only two dissensions, indicated that capital punishment may be an invalid punishment for anything short of murder.

Both Ohio cases ask the court to expand on that ruling.

Willie Lee Bell was 16 when arrested for in connection with the 1974 shooting death of a 64-

Survey Provides Insights

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—As Stephen A. Johnston of the Research Triangle Institute mulled over results of the North Carolina Tomorrow Survey, it occurred to him that some interesting discussion could result from "Selected Demographic Comparisons of Responses..."

In short: who said what?

His exploration of that area yields some interesting insights into our fellow Tar Heels, and ourselves.

The results, says Johnston, are particularly revealing because most of the comments were "not responding to structured situations, but are voluntary responses of suggested solutions to perceived problems."

"It is pretty amazing," Johnston concedes, "that a significant pattern developed from all this."

To reach the conclusions, numbers of people who suggested certain things were compared to actual representation of those particular people in the survey sample. The more strongly a subject is addressed relative to the numbers of people in the survey shows relatively how strongly a position is felt by people in that category.

Better Jobs

Who are those most worried about jobs and income? Those under age 30; blacks, those with less than a college education, and especially those in the Coastal Plains and Coastal regions.

Solutions suggested include bringing new industry to the state, say whites, males, college-educated people, the Coastal region, and towns with over 50,000.

Raise wages, suggest mountain dwellers, those from small towns, and those with less than college education.

Create more jobs, say blacks, females, those under 30 and over 65, Coastal Plains residents, towns below 5,500 population, and the less educated.

Education is a prime concern to middle-aged whites with some college experience, those in professional and managerial slots; in larger cities and in the Piedmont.

How to help? Stop busing is the overwhelming suggestion put forth mostly by Piedmont cities. College graduates and mountain residents suggest better funding, facilities, books, and libraries. In the Coastal area and to older people the best approach would be better qualified teachers and more teacher training. The elderly feel basic skills need improvement.

NOBLITT

Crime appears big to people over 50, whites, males, larger cities (over 50,000), and to residents of the Piedmont and Coastal Plains.

Tough attitudes are the answer say small town dwellers, older people, and those with no college education: stiffer sentences, harsher penalties, more authority for police, and stricter enforcement are urged.

Cheaters

When results say people see welfare as a problem, this doesn't mean they want more welfare money. Respondents believe cheaters should be eliminated; jobs provided through the private sector; and the existing system overhauled.

White high school graduates from the Piedmont feel strongest about the cheaters. Black residents of Coastal region small towns who are 50 years and older see private sector jobs as the key. Well-educated residents of larger cities call for reform.

The food tax is seen most onerous by the elderly and by the less educated; more doctors are needed by Coastal Plains blacks; a wide cross-section would like to see the profits of utilities controlled; liquor by the drink is all right by young and middle-aged men with college educations who live in larger towns of the Piedmont and Coastal area; and wage-price controls are advised by young black females from smaller towns.

The comparisons do not mean that only certain groups of people suggested specific problems or solutions, but that they did so with such frequency as to make identification interesting.

THE INSIDE REPORT

No Atmosphere Of Rancor

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Contrary to reports of deadlock and rancor, closed-door talks in Rhodesia aimed at a moderate black government are showing conspicuous success — posing a challenge to official U.S.-British policies against any "internal settlement" presided over by Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Confidential official minutes reveal that prior to holiday adjournment Dec. 21, the only major disagreement was over white minority representation in parliament, and even on that the shape of a final compromise seemed to be emerging. Even more impressive is what the transcripts reveal about the tone of the dialogue between the Smith government, formerly dedicated to white supremacy, and black nationalists who have done time in Smith's prisons. Consider this Dec. 14 statement by Smith: "It is a fact that the (Rhodesian) civil service system is white. It is also a fact that the education system is against the blacks...I commit myself to seeing that no more blacks are denied these things and more blacks come into these services. There are dramatic changes to take place. We don't want (armed) revolution because it is not good for us. Have faith."

"If I didn't have faith, I wouldn't be here," replied the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, the black leader who returned to Rhodesia last summer after two years in exile.

Most revealing about the official minutes are not predictable disagreements but the absence of rancor. Aside from mutual complaints by Smith and the blacks about "provocative" language, the only truly nasty encounter was between the two rival black leaders, Sithole and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, over a side issue: which of them was leaking reports of the negotiating sessions.

If this congeniality produces an agreement, Washington and London will be on the spot. Dismissing the Salisbury talks, the U.S. and Britain insist that Joshua Nkomo-political leader of a Soviet-backed guerrilla force — must be present. Yet Nkomo has turned down pleas from Sithole to join the talks and is sustained in that intransigence by Lord Carver, British Commissioner-designate for Rhodesia under the Anglo-American peace initiative. Currently in South Africa, Carver has attacked in advance any settlement at Salisbury.

The talks in Salisbury began Dec. 9 with Bishop Muzorewa proposing a British chairman to preside. The lack of strict racial alignment became clear when Smith, Sithole and tribal chiefs all opposed that suggestion.

Smith, bowing to black insistence on 18-year-old voting, abandoned a 21-year voting age. The next disagreement came over Smith's proposal to "retain" Rhodesia's civil service system while the black leaders wanted to "establish" one.

"The use of the word 'establish' will cause fear among whites because it connotes the doing away with

To the editor:

This letter is in reply to an article in last week's Hotline. A Kentucky basketball fan was upset because his team was omitted one day from your sports section. You explained it was due to lack of information in time for print.

Let me also come to your defense. Greenville is almost completely surrounded by Atlantic Coast Conference basketball. No other conference in the nation can boast of the success which ours has enjoyed. The ACC reputation of excellence is undisputed. The sports sections of area newspapers could be completely filled with ACC information. However, newspapers must cover all areas of the sports. I cannot understand how anyone could complain for one day's absence of print on any one team. If not for being unbiased, articles about teams from other conferences would be the same as a Morehead City resident driving to Boone to get fresh seafood.

Thanking you in advance for the means of expressing a different opinion.

Competing For German Marks

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

BONN West Germany (AP) — A West German invasion of the United States is under way, and American states are competing furiously to get a piece of the invasion.

Twenty-two states or regions and 12 port authorities have established full-time missions in West Germany to try to divert some of the flood of Deutsche marks crossing the Atlantic to establish subsidiaries of German companies in the United States.

"Competition is cutthroat," said U.S. consular officer John Beck.

West Germany's export-oriented companies have been stung by the fall of the dollar in value, which is making their goods more expensive and less competitive in the United States.

Their answer is to establish manufacturing or assembly plants in America.

German investments in U.S. businesses, real estate and securities — estimated at about $800 million last year — surpassed annual investments in Germany for the past three years.

"That's only the tip of the iceberg," said a U.S. Embassy official. "A lot more German money moves in secretly through Switzerland and other third countries."

The competition between Ohio and Pennsylvania for Volkswagen's first plant in the United States "is a classic example of how Germans can use the rivalry of states to their own advantage," the magazine Capital commented recently. Pennsylvania did more to satisfy VW boss Toni Schmuecker's demands and got the plant.

"The Southern states like to stress their cheap labor forces. But those country boys can't stack up to the highly skilled workers in the North," said the representative of a Midwestern state.

North Carolina representative Ray Denney disputed that, saying: "One of the biggest surprises for German investors is our pool of skilled labor. They're amazed at our vocational training programs."

However, he admitted that the 42 German firms that have located in his state were attracted by "the lowest wage rate in the country, averaging $4.15 an hour, and the lowest unionization rate, 6.7 per cent."

Arno Burckhardt of southwestern Pennsylvania discounted the unionization issue.

"The 37 German companies in our part of the state have avoided unions by offering workers somewhat better packages of benefits than unionized outfits," he said.

States or regions with offices include Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, southwestern Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Minnesota, New England and Pennsylvania closed their offices recently.

The port authorities represented are Chicago, the Delaware River, Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Orleans, New York-New Jersey, South Carolina, Virginia and Long Beach, Oakland and San Jose, Calif.

 what's here," Smith argued. He suggested a compromise with the word "maintain" — in the sense of maintaining "good standards." Sithole replied: "I do not quarrel with 'maintain' in light of the explanation. Let's go on. I will compromise."
 Quickly, the negotiators agreed on constitutional "safeguards" for the civil service, judiciary, pensions and other aspects of black majority government in the new "Zimbabwe." They founded on Smith's demand for a guaranteed one-third white membership in Parliament, needed to protect these safeguards.

Muzorewa on Dec. 13 accepted the one-third "blocking" proposal but insisted that white legislators be elected by all voters, dominated 30 to 1 by blacks. "If white representatives are to be chosen by common roll," Smith retorted, "the blacks can elect puppets. It is a non-starter."

"I appeal to you all to use less provocative language," Sithole admonished Smith. He later agreed with Smith that "if white representatives are to truly represent white interests, they must be chosen by whites." But Sithole wanted only a one-fifth white bloc in parliament, insufficient for the one-third needed to block changes in the new constitution. He explained: "As soon as you make parliament subject to blocking by a racial group you create strife."

Deadlock. Claiming he had heard "through my bush telegraph" of previous black agreement to the proposals now rejected, Smith declared Dec. 15: "Without a blocking third, I won't even start to sell anything to the whites...We will be laughed at." Sithole replied the "blocking third" would be derided by the outside world as a "sellout deal."

But in the Dec. 21 session preceding holiday adjournment, signs of hope appeared. Asserting that "we are not dogmatic on the method of election," Muzorewa indicated acceptance of a separate ballot for whites for the first few years but with whites limited to one-fifth, not one-third, of Parliament. Sithole seemed to suggest that, to begin with, a one-fifth vote could block constitutional changes.

That drew rough outlines for possible compromise as negotiations resumed Jan. 10. But what really points to compromise is the spirit expressed at the talks by a legal adviser to Muzorewa named Dumbuchena: "There is a difference between this conference and those before. For the first time, we have a measure of understanding and agreement." It is a difference that London and Washington so far refuse to appreciate.

 held flatly "that warrants are a necessary and tolerable limitation upon the right to enter upon and inspect commercial premises." A decision to enter and inspect cannot be "the product of the unreviewed discretion of the enforcement officer in the field." As a general proposition, government inspectors must work "within the framework of a warrant procedure."
 The rule does not apply in a few special areas of particular public concern — the manufacture of arms, for example, or the warehousing of liquor — but the teaching of Camara and See clearly covers a plumbing and heating contractor in Pocatello, Idaho. It has cost Bill Barlow more than $100,000 to fight his case all the way to the high court, but if his determination results in a victory for the little fellow against the intrusions of Big Brother, Americans everywhere will be in his debt.

 year-old Cincinnati man, Julius Graber.

Bell was convicted of aggravated murder for participating in the kidnapping that led to the murder. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Sandra Lockett was sentenced to death in the 1975 murder of Akron pawn shop owner Sidney Cohen. Prosecutors said Miss Lockett was the "brains" behind the robbery of Cohen's shop, but did not actively participate in the hold-up that led to the killing.

She was sentenced to death on a conviction for felony murder, a "non-triggerman" law, used in several states.

Both appeals challenge the constitutionality of Ohio's law that limits consideration of "mitigating circumstances" to three specifics: whether the murder was induced by the victim; whether the offender was under duress, coercion or strong provocation; or whether the offender was mentally deficient.

While 407 persons reside in death rows in 32 states, there has been only one execution since the court's 1976 decision.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was a bit higher today on news that the dollar was stronger in Europe and Japan. But brokers said many investors were staying out of the market waiting to see what President Carter would say Thursday in his State of the Union speech.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 1.39 points to 773.13. It had been up 3.99 points in early trading. The index had lost nearly 60 points so far this year as trading began today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange listed issues two hours into the session.

The dollar was higher today in Tokyo and Europe. Money traders said recent actions by the U.S. Federal Reserve Board to shore up the sagging dollar appear to have ignited the recovery for the American currency.

Middle South Utilities led the most-active list, down 3/4 to 16. Royal Dutch Petroleum also was heavily traded, losing 1/4 to 55 3/4. Verex Corp., which shot up more than 80 percent in value Monday after Greyhound Inc. had offered $25 a share in an acquisition bid, held steady at 23 3/4.

The NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 stocks was up .05 to 49.45.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .08 to 120.27.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was 7.92 million shares in the first two hours, up from 7.67 in the comparable period Monday.

Unique Shell Collection Given ECU

ECU News Bureau
East Carolina University has been selected to receive a gift of a large collection of rare and beautiful seashells.

The 10,000 item collection is being donated to ECU by A.J. (Bob) DaMotta, an American businessman living in Bangkok, Thailand, who has spent years assembling the collection.

Dr. William H. Queen, director of the Institute for Coastal and Marine Research at ECU, described the DaMotta gift as "one of the world's foremost collections of perhaps the most interesting family of seashells that is known today." Plans are being made for a repository for this and other collections in a coastal and marine museum on the campus.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU chancellor, Queen and DaMotta announced the gift at a news conference. "This is one of the most significant collections received by East Carolina University in its history," Dr. Jenkins said. "It will do much to enrich not only our students and scientists but the entire citizenry. It is important both scientifically and culturally."

DaMotta said the collection will be shipped to Greenville in the next few months. Presently in Greenville holding discussions with ECU officials concerning the donation, DaMotta said he felt East Carolina University was an "appropriate" repository for his collection.

He became interested in ECU and its coastal and marine research programs through friends and business acquaintances Mr. and Mrs. Ed Skinner of Greenville. Skinner is a tobacco company official.

Queen said the "natural beauty of this valuable collection will assure ECU of having available for display a collection of cone shells (Conidae) whose high quality and variety cannot be found existing in any museum, private collection or elsewhere.

"In addition, it will make available a basis for scientific study, upon which it will be possible to expand present day knowledge and thereby make a significant contribution in the field of marine research."

ECU officials said that in addition to plans to house the collection in a coastal and marine-related museum, it is hoped to establish an international Conidae (cone shell) society with the DaMotta collection as a reference base collection.

Takes A Shot

Roberts Will Sue Deacons

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Wake Forest University golf coach Ron Roberts says the school didn't give him a chance to prove himself, and he's going to sue to get his job back.

Roberts took the job in the summer of 1976 when Jess Haddock left for Oral Roberts University. Haddock went from there into private business and has since returned to Wake Forest and resumed his old duties. Roberts was asked to step down to make room for him.

Roberts' remarks came in a nine-page statement he issued at a news conference Monday in which he said the university had told him it did not expect the team to do as well as it had in the past and he would have "a reasonable number of years to prove my worth."

University officials denied Roberts' claims but declined lengthy comment on them.

Roberts said the team record for 1976-77 was not a bad one, considering the talent available.

"We won the Dixie Invitational in the fall and the Palmetto Invitational in the spring, both major events. No other team in NCAA District 3 won more. We finished 10th in the NCAA championship.

Roberts said his responsibilities as outlined by the Wake Forest administration were "to be fiscally responsible and win an occasional tournament." Wake Forest Athletic Director Dr. Gene Hooks said several times, according to Roberts, "that the program was not expected to be as successful as it was in the past."

Roberts said Hooks told him this reduced expectation was due to a new NCAA scholarship rule which tended to equalize all golf programs and which reduced the number of golf scholarships at the university from eight to five.

Hooks replied in a statement issued by Wake Forest Sports Information Director Bruce Herman, "I regret that Mr. Roberts issued a statement that suffers from inaccuracies and omissions. Neither he nor the university will benefit from such an action."

"Mr. Roberts had the reasonable option of remaining at the university as associate director of athletics with attractive responsibilities. To reply further in the press to Mr. Roberts' nine pages of allegations would not be in the best interests of him or the university."

Roberts said at the time he was hired "it was the intention of all parties involved that I be given a reasonable number of years to prove my worth. I feel that a coach has the right to work free of deliberate outside distractions and that when there is collusion between his employer and these outside forces, his employer has failed to act in good faith."

For all those reasons, Roberts said, he's going to court.

Virginia Tops Penn State

By The Associated Press
Clemson sank further into the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball cellar Monday night with a 90-75 loss to Maryland, the Tigers' fourth conference defeat against no victories.

"We got mauled on the boards," said Clemson coach Bill Foster. "They are big strong and physical and they took it to us."

Virginia, meanwhile, made easy work of Penn State and finished with an 83-56 victory.

Duke University's Bob Bender was named ACC rookie of the week for his performances against Lehigh, Clemson and North Carolina last week. Earlier teammate Mike Gminski was named player of the week for his contributions in the same games.

Maryland 90, Clemson 75
Jo Jo Hunter, apparently anxious to make amends for the curfew violation that led to his one-game suspension, scored 20 points in 16 minutes to pace the Terps to their first conference victory of the season.

The Tigers were behind by as much as 15 points in the first half, but pulled to within three in the second before Maryland cut it short and pulled away again.

"This was a big win for us," said Maryland coach Lefty Driesell. "Clemson is much better than they played tonight. Maybe we made 'em look bad."

Stan Rome was high man for the Tigers with 25 points.

Virginia 83, Penn St. 56
Virginia may turn out to be the ultimate loser in this contest, since it doesn't count in the conference and Jeff Lamp was hurt in the final minutes, turning his ankle on a layup as he completed a 21-point performance that led the Cavaliers to the victory.

Neither team shot very well — 47.7 percent for the Cavaliers and 37.5 percent for the Nittany Lions.

"I think we did play in streaks," Virginia coach Terry Holland said afterward.

Hunter Sparks Maryland Win

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Lefty Driesell, like all coaches, dabbles a bit in amateur psychology. But so far, the Jo Jo Hunter incident looks more like a professional job.

Hunter, suspended one game for missing a team curfew last Friday, was welcomed back Monday night and scored 20 points in a 15-minute reserve role to lead the Terps to a 90-75 victory over Clemson.

"I didn't suspend him to get this kind of effort," Driesell cracked when asked if he were surprised by the sophomore guard's performance. "But it's a tribute to Jo Jo the way he came back."

After leading the team in scoring in two of the six games he started to open the season, Hunter was one of three players benched in a shakeup after the Terps lost for the first time.

He subsequently started two of the next seven games, but his displeasure over the turn of events culminated in missing the curfew, plus a team subsequent team meeting.

Driesell announced an indefinite suspension Saturday night, after the Terps squeaked past Air Force 74-73, but Hunter was back with the team on Sunday.

"I worked hard in practice yesterday and had a good talk with the coach," Hunter said after sinking seven of 10 field goal attempts and all six of his free throw tries. He acknowledged his current role was to back up sophomore Bill Bryant and freshman Greg Manning.

"I can understand what's happening, and understand that the coach has to do to win," Hunter said.

Asked to explain his disappearing act, Hunter said: "I worked hard this summer on my weaknesses, but things were not going well." Then, after a moment of reflection, he added: "I've got to keep pushing, and playing hard."

Maryland was already ahead 21-14 when Hunter stormed onto the scene and hit his first four shots to help the Terps to a 42-30 halftime lead in the regionally televised battle between two teams with 0-3 Atlantic Coast Conference records.

The Tigers, with a 25-point effort from Stan Rome, pulled to within 48-45 with 15:21 remaining after running off a 12-2 string. But the Terps responded with a similar streak, four by Hunter, and reopened a 66-53 lead with 9:56 left.

"I think Clemson's game plan was to stop our big men and it left things open for the guards," Hunter said modestly.

If that was the plan, it failed miserably as Maryland rolled up a 52-37 margin in rebounds, with Lawrence Boston, Larry Gibson and Mike Davis combining for 39 rebounds and nine blocked shots.

"They mauled us on the boards," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. "They are big, strong and physical, and they took it to us. We're the smallest and lightest team in the conference."

Chicod, Cox Split

CHICOD — In two junior high basketball games yesterday, A. G. Cox' girls downed Chicod 50-32, while the Chicod boys topped Cox 46-40.

Lisa Hardy scored 20 and Rene Mobley 17 for Chicod in the girls' game, while Diann Roach hit 13 for Cox. In the boys' game, Chicod was led by Billy Bunting with 17 and Dixon Page with 13. Sammy Tyson scored 15 and Boyd 11 for Cox.

Conley, Ayden-Grifton Clash In Important Loop Games Tonight

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Two key Eastern Carolina Conference basketball encounters are on tap tonight when Ayden-Grifton visits D. H. Conley.

The Conley boys, currently on top of the league with a 4-0 record, face a stiff challenge from the Chargers, who at 3-2 are battling to keep from getting too far behind.

Ayden-Grifton's girls are in a tie for the loop lead with a 4-1 record, just a half game ahead of the Valkyries who, because of bad weather Friday night, were forced to postpone a game with Southern Nash and are 3-1.

The boy's game features a battle between two of the best men in the area. Conley's Al Tyson and Ayden-Grifton's James Leggett. Both coaches see this as one of the keys to the contest.

But, while the big men battle inside, it's the guards that may decide the outcome. The Chargers have been getting most of their scoring punch from two of their frontcourt players, Leggett and forward Frankie Dail. Charger coach Bob Murphrey said the team has been trying to get more players involved in the offense.

"Our main problem is lack of balance, but we're working to correct that. The other players just don't seem to have any confidence."

Murphrey said he wouldn't be surprised to see a box-and-one or triangle-and-two defense from the Vikings, which would key on Dail and Leggett.

"One key will be how well our other three people can play. I feel they're (D. H. Conley) going to make a special effort to stop Leggett and Dail," said Murphrey.

While Conley coach Shelly Marsh said his team is "beginning to jell," Murphrey has not been pleased with the play of the Chargers lately.

Marsh said the Vikes are playing pretty good offense and picked up defensively in the team's last outing, a win over North Lenoir. In addition, Tyson has been playing well.

Murphrey, on the other hand, said his team hasn't been playing real well, but hopes they are coming out of a slump.

The Vikings will try to set the tempo of the game, Marsh said, noting his team likes to run with the ball, while the Chargers have been defense-oriented in the past.

"We want to set the tempo on them. We can't get behind early; we're going to have to stay even with them or a little bit ahead.

Hopefully, we can," Marsh said.

Girls' Match-up

D. H. Conley coach Norma Respass sees speed as the key factor in the girls' game.

"Speed is going to be the difference and I think we're a little faster than they are. That's where we can beat them."

Ayden-Grifton coach Debra Pfeil said her team will have to play better defense than in the last couple of games to beat the Valkyries. "We need to make sure we don't get flat on defense," she said. The Chargerettes were flat in their loss to North Pitt and were flat in the first half of their overtime win over Farmville Central last Friday night.

Pfeil said Ayden-Grifton has played in spurts this season and will need a good game to beat Conley tonight. "We're looking for a real tough ballgame. We have to really be determined, and at the same time, not scare ourselves to death." Respass said her team has "not quite reached their peak at this point, but they're coming along." She added that she would be able to tell more about them after tonight's game.

The Valkyries will need to stop Chargerette center Karen Haseley, however, according to Respass. She is one of the biggest threats in the conference, the Conley coach said.

Respass added that Conley beat Farmville Central "handily," while the Chargerettes slipped by the Lady Jaguars in overtime.

"We think we can handle them," Respass said.

Other conference games this week see Greene Central at Southern Nash, North Pitt at North Lenoir and Farmville Central at C. B. Aycock tonight, while Friday night, C. B. Aycock is at Ayden-Grifton. D. H. Conley hosts Greene Central, North Pitt travels to Southern Nash and Farmville Central is at North Lenoir.

In ECC wrestling action this week, North Pitt is at Williamston and D. H. Conley hosts Farmville Central tomorrow night, while D. H. Conley travels to North Pitt and Southern Nash is at Farmville Central on Friday night.

Jenkins: Youth Slows Panthers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

North Pitt center Lawaskia Jenkins is one of only three Panthers who were on last season's state 3-A runner-up team so inexperience is a problem for North Pitt right now, he said.

"We got some guys that played junior varsity last year, but me, Mickey (Hines) and Reginald (Knight) were the only ones that played varsity. The other guys didn't play varsity last year and they're kind of edgy, but I believe they'll come through."

Jenkins said the team feels a little bit of pressure as the defending champions of the Eastern Carolina Conference, but will be going after the crown again. "We would like to win it again. I think we can. We've got a big game tonight against North Lenoir and I believe if me and Reginald can hit the boards and our guards will come through for us, we can win it."

Jenkins is a leading rebounder and second-leading scorer for North Pitt. He is averaging 50.5 points per game.

This year's Panther squad doesn't boast great size, Jenkins said, but that isn't the only factor that wins games. "We've got a great team; we've got a fast team," he said. "We're not as big as some schools, but you don't HAVE to be big to win games. You just have to be a little smarter and a little faster."

Quickness, hustle and strong defense have been the keys to North Pitt's five overall wins and two ECC victories this year. Without the abundance of talent that last year's team had, coach Cobby Deans has been stressing hustle, discipline and smart play in practice, according to Jenkins.

Lawaskia Jenkins

The Panthers will be going after the league title this season, but hasn't set any official goals for the year. "We're going to take it one at a time, step by step," Jenkins said.

In his spare time, Jenkins enjoys fishing and playing pickup basketball games. A starting lineman on the North Pitt football team this year, Jenkins plans to continue his football career in college.

"I plan on going to college and playing football. But, I want to get a good education; that's the most important thing," Jenkins said he will attend Winston-Salem State, where he said he plans to get a partial football scholarship.

Wildcats Survive Shaky Start

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

It seemed like a replay of Super Bowl XII. Kentucky, like the Denver Broncos, insisted on passing to the wrong team in the first half.

The top-ranked Wildcats survived their shaky start, managed a 30-22 lead over Mississippi despite 14 first-half turnovers Monday night and went on to a 76-56 triumph over the Rebels.

Instead of having to face a flex defense which included Harvey Martin, Randy White and Too Tall Jones, Kentucky passers found themselves confronting a Rebel zone which — like Domsday II — was converting mistakes into points.

"Our turnovers were excessive and self-made," said Kentucky coach Joe Hall after the Wildcats had raised their record to 13-0 and 5-0 in the Southeastern Conference despite a total of 21 turnovers. "Most of them were from trying to force passes when it was obvious the man wasn't open."

The Wildcats' passing may not have been accurate, but their shooting was. Kentucky made 61 percent of its shots from the field and got 15 points — all in the second half — from sixth man James Lee.

Joe Kyles led Mississippi, 7-8 and 2-4 in the SEC, with 21 points.

The game was played before the first non-sellout crowd in the history of 23,000-seat Rupp Arena. A storm dumped a foot of snow on the state by game-time and cut the crowd to 16,450. It also forced postponement of the St. Louis Billikens' scheduled visit to ninth-ranked Louisville.

Elsewhere in college basketball, fourth-ranked Indiana State trimmed Bradley 73-67 and No. 13 Virginia blasted Penn State 83-56.

New Mexico State beat West Texas State 77-63, Wichita State outscored Tulsa 102-84, Dayton hammered Tennessee-Chatanooga 97-68, Oral Roberts topped Lamar 74-66 and Georgia Tech defeated Tulane 75-70.

Larry Bird scored 35 points and collected 13 rebounds to lead Indiana State, 13-0 and 5-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference, to its victory over Bradley, 6-7.

Freshman Jeff Lamp injured his ankle early in the second half but scored 21 points before the mishap, helping Virginia's 11-1 Cavaliers slash Penn State. Greg Webb hit all six of his first-half field goal attempts and finished with 19 points to carry New Mexico State, 8-7, past West Texas State in a Missouri Valley Conference game. The winners raised their conference record to 4-1, the losers dropped to 0-5.

Charlie Brent scored 25 points and Ray Shirley added 23, pacing Wichita State, 5-7, to its romp over Tulsa. The losers' Terry Sims led all scorers with 29.

Irv Giddings scored 24 points for Dayton in the Flyers' wipeout of Tenn-Chattanooga.

Led by Lamont Reid's 18-point performance, Oral Roberts cruised past Lamar. Sam Drummer's 18 points helped Georgia Tech drop Tulane.

Kuhn Will Hear New Arguments

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The last baseball game was played three months ago and the first exhibition is close to two months away. But Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has provided plenty of fuel for hot stove discussion through two hearings with disgruntled pitchers and his stance over contests with Cuba.

Facing Kuhn today was an attempted resolution of the Vida Blue trade the commissioner placed in limbo when it was announced at the meetings in Hawaii last December. Among those scheduled to appear at a hearing was Charles O. Finley, who dealt Blue to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for first baseman Dave Revering and $1.75 million.

Also slated to participate were Cincinnati President Bob Howsam, Reds Executive Vice President Dick Wagner, New York Yankees President George Steinbrenner — an interested observer — along with American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney and a host of attorneys.

It seemed no decision could appease all parties involved.

Were Kuhn to approve the exchange, he faced possible contradiction to the stance he took in 1976, when a federal court upheld his right to void Finley's sale of Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each.

Kuhn cleared one matter from his desk Monday by deciding he would "not disapprove" of the settlement between pitcher Jon Matlack and the New York Mets on bonuses claimed to be owed the left-hander. With the non-disapproval, the trade of the left-hander to the Texas Rangers finally became official.

Matlack had a bonus arrangement with the Mets, worth an estimated $150,000 over the remaining two years of his contract. Baseball rules state that teams with bonus agreements with their players must fulfill the promises even if the player is traded.

Kuhn was vague on his position as far as exhibition games with Cuba are concerned.

According to a telegram released Monday by Kuhn's office, the commissioner refused to permit major leaguers to play exhibitions in Cuba because that nation's government has not given assurance that Cuban players would be permitted to play in the United States.

The wording of the commissioner's telegram was: "Our principle incentive has long been that of facilitating the availability of star Cuban players to American baseball audiences."

But it could not be determined whether that inferred a trip to America by a Cuban team or the possibility that American teams might attempt to draft star Cuban players.

Poll Shaken Up After Week Of Upset Games

By The Associated Press

Last week was not a very good one for the nation's top-ranked college basketball teams.

After Arkansas fell from the ranks of the unbeaten with a loss to Texas Saturday, Kentucky and Indiana State were left as the only major unbeaten teams.

Marquette, the defending national champions, moved from fourth place into second with 808 points. The Warriors, 12-1, won three times last week, including a 97-81 victory over highly regarded Nevada-Las Vegas.

UCLA, 13-1, made the most significant jump, rising four spots to No. 3. The Bruins won twice and received 613 points. No. 4 Indiana State improved its record to 12-0 with two victories, and collected 576 points, climbing from sixth place.

North Carolina, 13-2 after losing to Duke and narrowly beating Wake Forest, dropped from the runner-up spot a week ago to No. 5 with 538 points.

Arkansas, after winning its first 14 games, was upset by Texas. The setback dropped the Razorbacks three spots to No. 6.

Notre Dame, 8-3, losers to San Francisco and one-point winners over St. Bonaventure, plummeted from fifth to seventh place.

Kansas, 13-2, moved up two notches eighth with victories over Oklahoma and Oklahoma State. Louisville was the only Top Ten team other than Kentucky to hold its position. The Cardinals remained at No. 9, improving their record to 10-2 with a victory over Georgia Tech.

Michigan State, 12th a week ago, jumped into the Top Ten, at No. 10, with two victories. The Spartans, 12-1, received 251 points.

The Second Ten was headed by Syracuse, which dropped from No. 8 following an 86-81 loss to Pittsburgh. The Orangemen were followed by Providence, Virginia, Holy Cross, Texas, Nevada-Las Vegas, Duke, DePaul, Georgetown and New Mexico.

Duke and New Mexico were the newcomers to the group this week. They replaced Indiana and Cincinnati.

Denver Still Loves Broncos

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Denver's love affair with its football team, headed on the rocks in New Orleans, withstood its first real crisis as thousands chanted "We Love Our Broncos" and "We Will Be Back" in the closing minutes of Super Bowl XII.

But will the relationship sour if the Broncos slump next fall?

Coach Red Miller has the unenviable task of trying to match Denver's incredible 1977 season, when a team picked to finish no better than third in its division in some preseason polls streaked to a 12-2 record, knocked off two playoff foes and earned a berth in the Super Bowl.

The Broncos' magical mystery tour came to an abrupt halt Sunday, when the Dallas Cowboys routed the turnover-plagued Denver team 27-10 in the Superdome. The slipper wouldn't fit Cinderella's foot, and the Orange-clad Broncos became pumpkins at the stroke of 8:49 p.m. CST.

Some fans didn't care. It had been too good to let it end on such a low note. With the clock running out, the chant began as a rumble, then grew and grew. The disappointed Denver fans were paying tribute to a team that had brought them so many good times. The loss seemed to pull everybody together.

"We Love Our Broncos" was the initial refrain, then a new one promising that the Broncos would return.

"Our fans are unbelievable," said Miller. "They had to be suffering right along with us, but even when we lost and the season was over, they were saying thanks."

They said thanks again at Denver's Stapleton International Airport when the team arrived home Monday afternoon. About 1,000 persons braved 17-degree temperatures to stand on the roof of an airport parking lot and wave banners proclaiming their appreciation. A beaming Miller shook as many hands as he could.

Others lined the corridors inside the airport, cheering and seeking autographs as the players filed through.

Craig Morton, who suffered a Super Bowl record four interceptions and was removed from the game in the third quarter, drew some of the loudest cheers. His eyes glistened as he led his wife through the crowd.

There were other positive aspects to the loss.

The craziness known as Broncomania has subsided. No more hucksters trying to capitalize on the team's success by selling orange T-shirts, orange cowboy hats, orange televisions and the like. No more shootings in bars when someone wants to play the jukebox while the Bronco game is on TV.

Broncomania promises to be back in full force next fall, however, if the Broncos can recapture their 1977 form. With a young, aggressive defense and an offense that showed steady improvement, there's reason to think it's possible.

Palmer Fades; Barber Pulls Off Phoenix Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHOENIX (AP) — For one brief, shining moment, there was golfing Camelot.

It was days of yore, a hitch of the britches and a turning back of the clock.

Arnold Palmer was out there, riding a string of five consecutive birdies and tied for the lead in the last round of the golf tournament and all was right with the world.

"It could have been ..." he said, and let the sentence trail off.

It could have ... but it wasn't.

His glory dream faded and failed in the slop and goo of the back nine Monday in the rain-delayed final round and it remained for self-styled "good ol' boy" Miller Barber to coax in an across-the-green birdie putt on the final hole and win the Phoenix Open.

Barber, admittedly just looking for a spot in the pay-line "was more surprised than anybody" when the 45-50 foot putt found the hole and lifted him one stroke clear of defending champion Jerry Pate and Lee Trevino, who spent most of the final round stretching and twisting in a vain attempt to ease the pain in his surgically-scarred back.

"I could have three-putted just as easy as I made it," said the 46-year-old Barber, who earned $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 for his 11th career victory, one which combined with his late-season triumph at Napa, Calif. in 1977 to place him in this year's World Series of Golf.

"I was just trying to get it close to the hole, and it fell in," Barber said after his six-under-par 65 had given him a 72-hole total of 272, 12 under par.

Trevino, aching from the cold and wet that complicates his back problems, and Pate both played behind Barber. They had a chance to force a playoff if either birdied the par five 18th. Neither did. Pate came close, leaving an eight-foot putt just short. Each finished with a 69s and 273 totals.

Rod Funseth was next at 69—

274 and Palmer, who shared the lead at the turn, was 67—275. The group at 69 included third-round leader George Knudson of Canada, John Schroeder, Andy Bean, Jim Simons, Joe Inman and Jack Renner. Renner had a 67 in the last round that was delayed from Sunday by rain. Schroeder, Bean and Inman shot 69s on the course puddled by standing water. Simons had a 72 and Knudson a 73.

U.S. Open champion Hubert Green was 71—278 and Tom Watson, 1977 Player of the Year and a winner last week at Tucson, was 69—279.

Most of the attention centered on the 48-year-old Palmer, a non-winner for five years but the most-loved player the game ever has produced.

He bolted into a share of the lead with five consecutive birdies beginning on the second hole, but, to the dismay of vainly beseeching fans, couldn't keep it going. He missed an eight-foot birdie putt on the 10th, bogeyed the 11th after a poor pitch, then failed on a four-foot birdie putt.

Pacer Bench Helps In Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers showed the value of bench strength in extending their home court winning streak to six at the expense of the New Jersey Nets.

Ron Behagen and Earl Tatum, two players acquired by Indiana Coach and General Manager Bobby Leonard since the season began, combined for 39 points as the Pacers scored a 120-112 overtime victory in Monday's only scheduled National Basketball Association game.

Behagen scored 23 points and led all rebounders with 16. Tatum finished with 16 points, including six in the overtime session.

"You've got to have that good bench strength to win," said Indiana assistant coach Jerry Oliver. "Tatum did more than score points for us in the overtime. He did a real good job stopping Bernard King in the overtime."

"Tatum has come along well since he joined us in the trade with Los Angeles," said Oliver. "He had real good shot selection tonight. He's got to learn to take that outside shot instead of trying to go in between the big guys."

King finished with a game-high 31 points and that was about the only bright part of the evening for Nets Coach Kevin Loughery as his team lost its seventh consecutive game and fell to 9-33 overall.

Six players were in double figures for Indiana. Ricky Sobers led the team with 26 and rookie James Edwards, who came from Los Angeles with Tatum in a trade for Dave Robisch and Adrian Dantley, added 24.

A dunk shot by Danny Roundfield with 3:16 left in the overtime put Indiana on top for good at 108-106. The basket was the first of the game for Roundfield and he scored the game's next three points to break the game open.

The victory put Indiana only 1½ games behind third-place Milwaukee in the Midwest Division.

Texas Cotton: Good Crop Offsets Drop In Prices

By R. MICHAEL PATTERSON
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Drive in any direction across this dusty flatland and you'll see plenty of what farmers are bragging about this year — cotton.

As farmers amble along the highways to the local gins with the cotton-laden trailers in tow, experts are predicting this year's crop will nudge among the biggest in recent years.

"I don't think it will be a record," said Vern Highley, director of communications for the Plains Cotton Co-Operative Association in Lubbock. "I think it will be one of the better crops in the last three years."

The estimated cotton production in Texas is 4.8 million bales, compared to 3.3 million bales harvested last year. In the 25 counties of the High Plains alone, farmers will grow about three million bales. The record was 2.8 million bales in 1973.

One factor accounting for the large number of bales is a greater yield per acre stimulated by favorable weather. Statewide, in 1976, the average yield was 353 pounds of cotton per acre. This year the average yield is estimated at 391 pounds.

But farmers, encouraged by the 67 cents per pound the fiber brought in the spring, also planted more cotton. In 1976, Texas farmers planted 4.8 million acres. This year they planted 6.2 million acres. What happened, however, is that the enthusiastic farmers responding to a demand in the market planted so much cotton they drove the high prices down to the current 42-45 cents range.

"In reference to other years, we've had some better prices," said Clyde Day, executive vice president of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange. "It's not as good as other prices we've had. It's still a real good price."

Although some farmers sold their crop on the futures market when the prices paid well, many on the High Plains gambled that the prices would climb higher. They lost up to $100 a bale.

"Because of the projected low carryover, a lot of cotton was planted," said Bob Poteet, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Association in Dallas. "We were looking at the lowest carryover and consumers were not consuming because of the high price."

"When the price goes up that tells the consumer to consume less, and the producers to produce more," said Poteet. Conversely, he said, when the price drops, the consumer buys more, and the producer plants less.

What helped drive the prices up — and the supplies down — last year was a demand for cotton products. The 27 per cent jump in cotton prices in 1976 caused textile mills to reduce cotton usage.

But Cotton Incorporated, a Raleigh, N.C., producers organization, said retail sales of cotton apparel and home furnishings the first half of 1977 were four percent above the same period in 1976.

The apparent discrepancy between the decline of mill use of cotton and the increase in consumer demand is explained partially by the fact that imported textile products are taking a larger share of the American market.

The net import of cotton has shifted from about half cotton and half synthetics in 1972 to three-quarters cotton in 1976, according to Cotton Incorporated. This means that the American demand for cotton products is being filled by foreign-made goods.

Similarly, two-thirds to three-fourths of the cotton produced in Texas is exported, and much of it returns later to the United States in the form of textiles.

Poteet said there is a great upswing in shoppers buying cotton, turning away from the synthetic fibers, as evidenced by a trend toward corduroy and denim products.

"We've gained in some areas, while we've lost in other areas. We essentially lost the men's shirt market to 100 per cent cotton, although we gained some back with a better blend," said Poteet.

"We've had big years in corduroy and denim, although the denim has stabilized the last few months. There is some renewed emphasis now on cotton in furniture."

Poteet indicated the synthetic clothing trend was brought about partially by campaigns carried out by manufacturers.

"I think it's just generally the textile mills had an opportunity (to sell synthetics) because they could buy synthetics cheaper and had an opportunity to promote synthetics, especially double knits, to the public. And the public bought it."

"But the public, after so many years of this, realized it's a very uncomfortable, hot fabric, especially in the south where temperatures get warm. It causes irritation of the skin and in some instances people are totally allergic."

The farmer, already facing sharp rises in the cost of growing their crops, needs nearly 50 cents a pound to make a profit on cotton. But the lower price he could have gotten by selling in the spring is partially offset by the volume of cotton he has planted.

"Cotton, other than cattle, is the mainspring of Texas agriculture and these communities rise and fall based on the farmers profit factor," said Highley. "The thing that is going to save the farmer in a low price year is the production."

Some farmers are putting their cotton on a government loan program that averages about 44.5 cents per pound, hoping that the price will rise again next year.

Poteet discounts the high prices of oil as having much affect on the petroleum-consuming synthetic market. In fact, Cotton Incorporated reported synthetic prices dropped four percent last year. "We thought a few years ago it (synthetic prices) would (rise), but we're not seeing much evidence of that right now," said Poteet. "Prices have not increased in the same relation as a barrel of crude oil being pumped out of a newly-discovered field in Texas."

To Investigate Filipino Charge

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The National 4-H Council says it will investigate charges by 70 young Filipinos in this country on a 4-H work-study program that they're learning nothing while farmers exploit them for cheap labor.

W. Francis Pressly, managing director of the council in Washington, promised the investigation after a meeting here Sunday in which he and other 4-H leaders met with the disgruntled Filipinos, a Filipino government official and six Americans backing the group.

Pressly said he left the meeting with the feeling the youths may have expected too much of the program, but he promised them he would look into their charges and respond within two weeks.

The 70 petitioned the council last October to protest the kind of work they were doing — slopping hogs, feeding chickens and counting eggs, long working hours and inadequate accounting by the council for the money they earn.

The youths are supposed to stay 21 months with a host farmer who pays them $65 a month for spending money, $95 a month for food and pays $275 a month to the 4-H Council for travel and other expenses of the program.

Pressly said he would give each trainee a copy of his personal account every six months to satisfy the last grievance.

But he said he thought at the meeting that although the program agreement signed in the Philippines by each participant specified on-the-farm training, some of the youths seemed to expect they would be trained to be specialists.

"One even used the term scholar," Pressly said.

But Jean Wagner, a Chapel Hill woman who backs the Filipinos in their protest, said it was "clear there were genuine discrepancies between the Philippines Agricultural Training Program as described, which is as a training and leadership-development cultural exchange program, and as it's actually experienced by the trainees, which is that it is labor-intensive, educationally unrewarding and financially sacrificial."

Toxic Vapor Levels High

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Unacceptable levels of toxic mercury vapor have been found in one out of every 10 dental offices in North Carolina in state health inspections, a state official said Monday.

Officials became aware of the problem during the last 18 months, said Charles J. Carstens Jr., a health engineer in the state Department of Human Resources. He said the department's division of health services inspected more than half of the state's 2,000 dental offices.

Using a special detector that measures the level of mercury vapors in the air, the state found that approximately 10 percent of the dental offices had more mercury than is permitted by U.S. Office of Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) standards.

The vapor is emitted from the mercury used in tooth fillings. It isn't hazardous to patients, officials said, but could lead to mercury poisoning of some dentists and dental assistants who may be exposed to vapors for extended periods of time.

Among the effects of long-term exposure to mercury vapors are personality changes, mental depression and increased anxiety. In rare cases, mercury poison could lead to damage to the brain, kidney and nervous system.

Because of the findings, state Labor Commissioner John C. Brook said recently he is considering making the mercury vapor problem the top priority for his department's OSHA inspectors this year.

That would place the problem ahead of such highly-publicized hazards as brown lung disease in terms of priority in the field of occupational safety.

Cow Elk Sports Pair Of Antlers

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — At first look, the animal was a male. It had horns, didn't it?

But a closer examination of an elk at the National Elk Refuge near Jackson ascertained that the horns were atop a female.

Refuge employee Brad Lutan said he had never seen anything like it. Neither had biologist Buzz Robbins.

Robbins said cow elk sporting antlers are rare at best, and he hadn't seen one in his 10 years at the refuge, which has the world's largest elk herd.

May Offer Statistics In Bolstering Accusations

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Black workers suing over alleged job discrimination may use statistics to bolster their accusations that their employers kept most blacks in lower-paying jobs, a new Supreme Court decision holds.

The nation's highest court on Monday let stand a lower court ruling that black employees of an Alabama manufacturer can use the statistics to help prove their case.

At the same time, however, the justices left intact some states' use of standardized tests for hiring and promoting teachers, even though the federal government says statistics help prove the tests discriminate against blacks.

The court turned down an appeal by Stockham Valves and Fittings Inc., a Birmingham, Ala., manufacturer, contending that three of its employees and the United Steelworkers union should not be allowed to use certain statistics to back up charges of racial discrimination in a suit against Stockham.

Weighing those statistics, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last September ruled that the charges deserve to be aired in a federal trial.

The suit claims Stockham intentionally kept blacks in lower-paying jobs while preserving better positions for whites.

Data showed that 66 percent of Stockham's lowest-paying jobs and only 5 percent of its better jobs were held by blacks when the suit was filed.

Stockham argued in the appeals court that the great disparity was not caused by any intentional discrimination, but merely by a shortage of blacks qualified for the more skilled positions.

Only recently has the Supreme Court begun hearing cases dealing with how minorities go about proving discrimination.

Last December, the justices agreed to decide a dispute involving discrimination charges against a Chicago masonry firm. While blacks charged that the firm unlawfully favored white bricklayers for a specific job, the company claims it hired a greater percentage of blacks than were represented in the workforce.

In 1976, the Supreme Court stung black civil rights activists by ruling that proof of disproportionate impact alone is not enough to prove racial discrimination — that discriminatory intent must be proven.

In the Birmingham case — and in the teachers' test case as well — minority lawyers argued that the statistics helped prove the discriminatory intent.

They succeeded in one, failed in the other.

The teacher case came to the court from South Carolina, where a three-judge federal court concluded that the use of such tests does exclude more blacks than whites from being hired or promoted, but was not unlawfully biased.

South Carolina officials over use of the test, which is not widely used, arguing it was motivated by racial discrimination.

The government was joined by the National Education Association, which told the justices: "There can be little doubt that if the decision of the lower court is permitted to stand, many more school officials will turn to the (tests), thereby further hastening the disappearance of black educators in the South."

In other matters, the court: —Will hear arguments today on whether police may obtain a warrant and make a surprise search of newspaper offices looking for evidence of a crime without first trying to get the material through use of a subpoena.

—Upheld Monday the methods Congress has used since 1969 to boost salaries of all its members from $42,500 to $57,500. Rep. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., had tried to get the court to rule that the methods were unconstitutional because they allowed members of Congress to get pay hikes without specifically voting for them.

—Set aside a lower court's ruling the government said would have obliterated its efforts to eliminate water pollution. The justices sent back to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals a decision which had allowed Republic Steel to elude a July 1, 1977, deadline for cleaning up water pollution at its Canton, Ohio, steel mill.

—Refused to consider a suit filed by five members of Congress and four states — Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana and Nebraska — challenging the validity of the Panama Canal treaty signed by President Carter last September. The treaty gives Panama control of the canal by the year 2000.

FAA Tests Radar System To Provide Pilots Prompt Data

ATLANTA (AP) — Prompted by the deaths of 72 persons in a DC-9 crash during a thunderstorm last April, the Federal Aviation Administration has been testing a radar system which provides almost instantaneous weather information to pilots.

Southern Airways Flight 242 lost power in both of its engines en route to Atlanta and crashed in New Hope, Ga.

"There's no doubt that the Southern 242 accident caused us to take a harder look at how to get more weather information to pilots," FAA spokesman Jack Barker said prior to a demonstration of the equipment Monday.

The new system — a Weather Radar Data Remoting System — displays on a radar screen weather information received from National Weather Service radars at Centreville, Ala.; Athens, Ga.; and Volens, Va.

A composite picture of weather over most of Georgia and Alabama, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia appears on the screen within two minutes of the time the weather radars "see" the skies.

Recording the location, size, height and intensity levels of thunderstorms, the system can show an overview of the area or a vertical or profile view of any specific storm.

The information is fed from the radar units to a screen at the FAA's Atlanta tower, where an air traffic control specialist monitors the weather screen and relays the information to controllers who tell pilots about storms near their flight paths.

The Southern aircraft went down during a thunderstorm which "was the worst one in 20 years. There was some information on it available to him (the pilot), but there is some question as to how much," Barker told a National Transportation Safety Board hearing last year.

Barker said the testing — expected to continue for a year — has been in operation for about a month. As test equipment, the unit may be changed or improved.

He stressed that the system was designed to supplement weather information given pilots by airline dispatchers. The individual pilot will still choose his own route, Barker added.

If the system proves successful, it may be installed in 20 major air traffic control centers in the United States, he said.

William Shakespeare married Anne Hathaway on Nov. 28, 1582.

Psychiatrists Will Examine A Gunman

SYLVA, N.C. (AP) — Psychiatrists at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh today were to examine a man charged with gunning down a Western Carolina University secretary and then holding off police with gunfire from a rooftop.

Jackson County Sheriff Fred Holcombe said Robert Lee Mathis, 21, of Sylva was arrested after he wounded himself with his own .22-caliber rifle and surrendered. He was charged with first-degree murder and assault on police officers with a firearm.

Holcombe said Mathis was listed in good condition Monday night at C.J. Harris Community Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left side.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, 41, a secretary in the university music department was shot three times in the hip and once in the shoulder as she stepped from her car in a campus parking lot Monday morning, Holcombe said. She died about an hour later at a hospital.

The sheriff said Mrs. Wood and Mathis were acquainted and lived in the same neighborhood.

Shortly after the shooting, Holcombe said an employee of the Jackson County Community Services Building in Sylva called deputies and said a gunman had run up the stairs saying he had shot the woman and wouldn't "be taken alive."

Holcombe said eight or 10 officers converged on the building and exchanged several shots with the gunman on the roof.

The sheriff said the man surrendered after being wounded. It was determined later that the wound was "self-inflicted," Holcombe said.

Mathis was armed with a .22-caliber rifle when he was arrested, the sheriff said.

How Vietnam Affected Charlie Co. Veterans

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last month, ABC aired a study of Vietnam vets called "The Class That Went to War." Tonight, CBS does likewise with "Charlie Company at Home: The Vietnam Veteran."
The CBS effort, reported by Bruce Morton, deserves a look. It's a fine program, with no maze of statistics, no crush of government mutterings to reduce human experience to vague abstractions.
What it does, for most of the hour, is just hear out eight ex-members of the 1st Air Cavalry Division, Vietnam class of '70, on how the war affected them and how they're getting along now.

Their rifle company made headlines when, while CBS' John Laurence was with it, one squad refused the order of a new company commander to move up a certain trail. The old hands felt it invited instant ambush.
When televised nationally, the refusal — coming at a time the United States was gradually pulling out the war — caused a major flap in military circles and provided fresh fuel for those protesting the war.

"Charlie Company" only briefly relives that moment, concentrating instead on well-edited looks at the GIs then and now to illustrate how fate, the government and time have treated them.
Making an obvious point, Morton notes when they came home, no bands played, no cheers resounded. The freedom bird disoriented them, they went their separate ways looking for work, for a normal life.
But he makes an important observation, echoed by Richard "Doc" Howe, the company medic, on one thing they found back in "the world."
And that is that some feared them, "seeing them as they were sometimes shown on television and films — as unstable, dangerous men trained to kill."

The general impression the men give is that whatever raw deal any got when they came home from an unpopular war, they've adjusted to it, can live with it and don't pity themselves in the least.
Interestingly, in the last part of the program, covering official and psychological views on the Vietnam veteran, only one person — President Carter, seen in a film clip — isn't a Vietnam veteran.
It's a perceptive approach. You put more credence in what's said about Vietnam veterans when the speakers are members of the fraternity, of what Bill Mauldin once called Them Who Have Been Shot At.

Indictments In Pot Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury in Raleigh has returned four more indictments in last month's 17.5-ton marijuana seizure Dec. 10 from a trawler near Wilmington.

The opposite emerges in Morton's excellent interviews with Howe, ex-mortarman Glenn Hindley, ex-squad leader Lyman Gene Dunnock, ex-machine gunner Bob Jackson, Capt. Robert Jackson and all the rest.

And remarkably little bitterness is expressed, even from ex-rifleman George Rivera, who after getting shot up in Vietnam came home, couldn't get hired and still is unemployed, drawing disability pay.
He speaks of being so depressed at times "I've thought about just blowing my head off," but he still has his self-respect, speaks with pride of being an American.

George Purvis Jr., 30, and Johnny Lampros, 33, both of Fayetteville; Mark Phillips of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Charles Mauldsby of Wilmington were indicted on charges of importing marijuana and conspiracy to import it.
Each count could mean up to five years in prison and a $15,000 fine. The four are scheduled to stand trial in U.S. District Court in Wilmington Feb. 13 along with LeRoy Smith, who lives part-time in Virginia Beach and Fayetteville.

Smith and nine other men were indicted Dec. 19 on charges connected with another marijuana seizure from a larger boat believe involved in the same smuggling operation as the trawler.
The captain of the larger boat is a Chilean and his eight-man crew are Colombian. Their trial is also set for Feb. 13.
Several other large seizures have been made recently along the coast and U.S. Attorney George Anderson has said that North Carolina's coastline is apparently attractive to smugglers because of its many inlets and islets.

A spokesman for Anderson said his office was still looking into the Dec. 10 raid and might seek further indictments.

Pryor Submits Innocent Plea

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor has pleaded innocent to charges of felony assault and malicious mischief in an alleged shooting and auto ramming incident at his home New Year's Day.

Pryor, 36, was arraigned by Municipal Court Commissioner Richard Kolostian, who scheduled a preliminary hearing Feb. 16. Pryor appeared with his attorney, Leo Branton, to enter the plea Monday.

Police reported on New Year's Day that the film and television star had ordered two women, Beverly Clayborn, 25, of Los Angeles and Edna Solomon, 31, of Washington state, out of his Northridge home early that morning.
Deputy District Attorney Michael Knight said Pryor rammed the women's car, sending them fleeing on foot, then rid-dled their car with bullets.

Mark Rydell To Direct Midler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mark Rydell will direct the motion picture debut of singer Bette Midler in "The Rose," which goes into production in March.

Rydell previously directed "Cinderella Liberty," "The Reivers," "The Cowboys" and "The Fox." Bo Goldman wrote the screenplay for "The Rose," a musical love story set in the 1960s.

Miss Midler will play a singing star.

Pearl Bailey A College Student

WASHINGTON (AP) — Entertainer Pearl Bailey, 58, is a freshman at Georgetown University.

She enrolled Monday as Pearl B. Bellson, her married name, signing up for courses in French, Islamic civilization, Islamic religious thought; Egyptian art and introductory philosophy.

That adds up to a full schedule of 18 credits and she said she would like to have taken more.

Miss Bailey said the courses in Islam and Egyptian art should be easy for her because she is familiar with the subjects from her travels.

When Miss Bailey was awarded an honorary doctorate of humane letters by Georgetown last May, she said, "You should see my face when I get the real thing."

Opening lead: King of ♠.

There have been a number of child prodigies at chess, but none at bridge. The reason could be that psychology plays a far more important role in bridge than in chess.

South became declarer at a four heart contract in quick time, but dummy was a disappointment because its ace was in South's void suit. As a result, there were distributions that could wreck the contract.

West led the king of clubs, and as soon as dummy appeared, declarer realized that if either the king of hearts or ace of diamonds was onside, the contract was impregnable. However, if both those cards were wrong, he could lose three diamond tricks and a trump, or if he made the "automatic" discard of a diamond on the ace of clubs, he would still have to rely on the spade finesse for his tenth trick. Since there was no sure way to place the lie of the missing cards, declarer decided to indulge in a bit of misdirection in the hope of receiving some aid from the enemy. He won the ace of

District Nurses Heard Program

The local district of the N. C. Nurses' Association met here Tuesday.

A program, "Credentialing: What It Is and What It Will Mean to Your Future Nursing Career," was presented by two East Carolina University faculty members, Mrs. Sylvene Spickerman and Miss Phyllis Nichols. The presentation dealt primarily with the credentialing of nurse practitioners.

The next district meeting will be held in March in Washington, N. C. Mrs. Michele Zimmerman will lead the program discussion titled, "How To Effectively Cope with Your Life Style."

Copper Bracelets for Arthritis?

I read recently, in a woman's magazine, that the pain of arthritis can be helped by copper. My doctor absolutely insists that wearing a copper bracelet is valueless and ridiculous. How can there be two such different opinions about the same thing? — Mrs. B.I., Texas. Dear Mrs. L.: What your doctor said and what you read are NOT the same thing. The claims about the benefits of wearing copper bracelets have been shown to have no validity at all. The bracelets may be attractive and may give some psychological lift to the "believer," but that's all. Doctors have stopped arguing the point with those patients who insist that the copper bracelets they've been wearing have helped their arthritis. My personal feeling is that the bracelets are a typical example of modern quackery. For those who insist on wearing them, I say, "Wear them, but don't, in a misguided way, neglect good solid medical attention."

The article you read in the woman's magazine undoubtedly refers to the mineral copper as a content of copper salts which, when combined with aspirin, has been studied in experimental animals as a possibility for relieving pain. It seems that copperized aspirin may reduce the tenderness and inflammation of some types of arthritis. At this time, the experimental work continues. Its application to humans will, of course, be delayed until its positive value has been substantiated.

Is there any way to predict if a person is sensitive to a new drug before it is tried? Can a person become allergic to a drug that they have taken before without any trouble? — Miss J.R., Ohio.

A Brochure On New Law

A brochure explaining married women's rights to separate credit histories under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, plus other aspects of the new law, is now available from the Credit Bureau of Greenville, according to Ed Walker, executive vice president. Walker reported that the brochure, entitled "Women, Credit Bureaus and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act," is the latest in a series of consumer education pieces produced by Associated Credit Bureaus Inc. Walker pointed out, "Most materials available today on the Equal Credit Opportunity Act do not place enough emphasis on the importance of a credit history or on the role of the credit bureau in maintaining that history." He added, "This brochure is keyed to the credit history aspects of the new law, the important role played by credit bureaus, plus many other important topics in the ECOA."

According to Walker, the brochure also covers such areas as the credit aspects of divorce; the need for cosigners on a credit application; the judging of sources of income, including income from child support and alimony; how to start establishing credit; and what to do in the case of credit discrimination.

He said that single copies of the brochure are available free by writing the Credit Bureau, P. O. Box 894, Greenville.

Liza's Flu Cost $30,000 A Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Liza Minnelli has a $30,000-a-day case of flu. That's how much the producers of the Broadway show "The Act" say they lose when the show is closed.

And when Miss Minnelli is out there is no show. She has no understudy in what is virtually a one-woman show.

The Shubert Organization, which owns and operates the Majestic Theater, says it has been forced to refund or exchange approximately $330,000 worth of tickets because of Miss Minnelli's illness.

She missed seven performances in December and was ordered back to bed Jan. 14 by her physician.

UNCLE IS AILING AMERICUS, GA. (AP) — Alton Carter, the 89-year-old uncle of President Carter, is reported in "very serious" condition at Americus-Sumter County Hospital. He underwent gall bladder surgery on Jan. 8.

Red China Defector Is Still Hero To Taiwanese

By SHULLEN SHAW
 TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — The day Fan Yuan-yen flew his red star MIG-19 jet to Taiwan from China his name became a household word here.

Today he is Taiwan's hero, openly recognized, cheered and often mauled by fans wherever he goes.

The 42-year-old former Chinese communist air force officer has banked the Taiwan government's traditional reward to defecting pilots from China — $566,368, the value of 5,000 ounces of gold — and it earns $4,483 a month in interest.

The government also has paid Fan about $400 a month since he was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Nationalist Air Force a few days after he defected July 7.

But the handsome, soft-spoken farmer's son leads a much more sober and austere life than most people on this economically booming island.

Fan often is invited out to breakfast, lunch and dinner. But when he eats alone outside the government hostel where he lives he invariably orders a $1.50 meal.

Fan has augmented his government issued wardrobe with two suits, two shirts and a sweater. He has received many gifts, including 10 shirts, which he does not wear because they are "too fashionable." He said the collars are twice as long as any he ever saw in China.

Also among the gifts are four watches, one an 18-karat gold Rolex. But he always wears his $30 Seiko. "I like the gold watch alright," he said, "but it makes me feel uncomfortable and silly, knowing it cost several hundred dollars."

Fan spends about $105 a month, about one fourth of his air force pay. He spent a large chunk of his $526 total five-month expenditure on a dinner for fellow officer friends. The rest he spent on movies and shopping.

Fan loves window shopping. "Just looking at the different kinds of goods that fill the stores and watching customers buy them without ration cards is enough pleasure," he said.

But sometimes shop girls embarrass him by offering 20 percent discounts when he knows they receive only 10 percent discounts on purchases in their own shops.

"When I bought a shirt," he said, "they tossed in some free underwear without asking whether I wanted it."

Fan's constantly smiling face has appeared on television hundreds of times and he is recognized easily. When government officials received a few phone calls threatening his life they assigned a permanent bodyguard to him.

Fan doesn't worry about the threats because he is always surrounded by crowds of fans.

"Crowds are my best protection. I think if anyone tried to hurt me the crowds would tear him apart."

Although he enjoys movies he is shocked by some and puzzled by others. He wondered why girls appear partially nude in some films. "Aren't they ashamed of themselves?"

Fan found another movie about the failure of a World War II allied operation offensive. "When you show people so many of our planes were shot down and so many of our soldiers were killed it is bad for morale."

Fan enjoys life here but has difficulty adjusting to some things. A few minutes after landing in Taiwan he was whisked away to the air force VIP room. It was the first time he saw (or even imagined) an air conditioner.

Fan found it impossible to sleep in an air conditioned room, despite Taiwan's humid, mid-90 degree summer weather, and keeps his windows open.

He watches television every night, but said, "The girls' costumes are too flimsy. There are too many love stories and sad stories.

"There is no patriotism and the programs are only to entertain people. They are not preparing people to fight for their country."

Fan said he never regrets his defection but misses his family. His wife is a school teacher and he has a 13-year-old son and two daughters aged nine and 11.

He said 20 boys and girls around his children's age greeted him as he stepped out of a barber shop one day.

"When I talked to the kids and saw them laugh I couldn't help wondering what has happened to my son and daughters."

When Fan spoke at a high school recently the students sang a song they had written about him. "I was ashamed at the tears in my eyes and wished my wife could be there to share the honor."

He said he hopes public sympathy around the world will help get his family to Taiwan but "knowing the communists as I do, I realize my hope may not come true."

Still, he said, "I have made a decision and I have to learn to live with it."

But the handsome, soft-

Despair Is High In Gasless Town

By RICK SCOTT
 Associated Press Writer
 CRYSTAL CITY, Texas (AP) — This is a winter of discontent and despair for many of the 8,100 residents of Crystal City.

"I'm getting out of here, maybe to California," says Henry Perales, 67, sawing a log to be burned in a wood stove inside his one-story frame home in this southern Texas ranching and farming community.

ing the supply on hand. More were ordered.

Many families, despite the chill, still are cooking outdoors. "It's faster and cheaper than using the electric hot plates," said one woman as she prepared the noon meal. Her family and some friends huddled around a nearby fire as she cooked over glowing coals.

At a local restaurant, customers keep their heavy coats on while they sip hot coffee or cold beer. The restaurant's kitchen has butane for its stoves, but the dining room is unheated.

During January, nighttime temperatures average just under 40 degrees, often dipping into the low 20s.

"We're all sticking together. We knew it would be rough," said Ramon Mata, a city councilman.

Crystal City's natural gas service was terminated last September, when temperatures were in the 80s, after a battle over prices.

Most of the residents are Mexican-Americans, and many, like Perales and Mayor Francisco Benavides, work in the fields surrounding the town. Nearly two-thirds of Crystal City's residents have income below the federal poverty level of $5,050 for a family of four, according to City Manager Raul Flores. The unemployment rate is nearly 20 percent.

When natural gas prices began soaring several years ago, the city-owned utility maintained it would pay only the amount it agreed to in a contract with its gas supplier, LoVaca Gathering Co.

But, the regulatory Texas Railroad Commission allowed LoVaca to pass on to its customers the higher prices it had to pay to get natural gas. And courts upheld the action.

Crystal City officials, saying the town's residents simply could not pay nearly $2 per thousand cubic feet of natural gas, continued paying only the contract price of about 35 cents.

The town's utility eventually accrued an $810,000 debt to LoVaca. After months of litigation and negotiation over the contested debt, LoVaca, through a computer 200 miles away, cut off the pipeline flow of gas to Crystal City on Sept. 23.

The city is using $310,000 in federal funds to supply propane tanks to the poorest of the 1,700 former gas customers. But the propane, at 40 cents to 50 cents a gallon, is about twice as expensive as the natural gas that once was piped into town.

The city provided the first tankful of propane free, but many of the tanks are empty now, and some residents cannot afford refills.

The Zavala County Economic Development Corp., through Civil Defense, is issuing propane-burning stoves, leftovers from the Korean War era that come crated and coated with oil for preservation.

Jesus Salas, overseer of the stove project, says about 200 of the stoves had been issued to needy residents recently. Fifty were issued in one day, deplet-

Earnings Up For NCNB

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina National Bank Corp. earned $23.9 million in consolidated income before securities transactions, the company said Monday. Last year's earnings were up from $20.3 million in 1976.

Thomas I. Storrs, chairman of the board, said income was equivalent to $1.42 per share, up from $1.20 earned in 1976.

Net income was $1.41 per share, compared with $1.20 per share in 1976.

Consolidated income, before securities transactions, was $6.8 million for the fourth quarter of 1977, compared with $5.7 million earned for the comparable period in 1976.

Total assets of NCNB Corp. and subsidiaries on Dec. 31, 1977, were $4.6 billion, compared with $4.4 billion on the same date in 1976.

In addition to North Carolina National Bank, NCNB Corp. subsidiaries include NCNB Financial Services Inc., NCNB Mortgage Corp., NCNB Mortgage South Inc., NCNB Properties Inc., NCNB Tri-South Corp., TransSouth Financial Corp. and Trust Company of Florida.

Almost a lost art.

This Stoneware had its origin in Belper, England, which is near the origin of another famous story. That of Robin Hood. Sherwood Forest and Nottingham are just a short distance away.
