Sec. Vance Works To Bridge Big Gap

By ARTHUR MAX Associated Press Writer JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance worked behind closed doors today to bridge what American sources called deep divisions between tough Israeli and Egyptian bargaining lines in their Jerusalem peace talks.

guidelines in separate morning meetings Vance held with the Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers. The American sources said deep divisions remained on the Palestinian issue and even deeper disagreement over Egypt's demand that all Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territory be dismantled.

determination in 21 sovereign Arab states." Kamel, who demanded a complete Israeli withdrawal and a Palestinian state at the ceremonial start of the negotiations earlier Tuesday, stared straight ahead without expression and then gave a brief, cool response. "I thought we would have a relaxed social event tonight," he said, "but the prime minister chose to bring up the subject of negotiations."

Carter Talks Ahead

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — President Carter has agreed to meet with the governors of the tobacco-producing states to discuss the new federal anti-smoking campaign, North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt said today.

He added that he had "stated very clearly" the basic elements which Egypt considers are required for peace. "I spoke the truth," Begin told a reporter afterward.

The Israelis were obviously displeased with Kamel's forthright presentation of demands at the opening session, at which Dayan spoke in generalities and said a settlement could only be achieved by "concession, compromise and mutual agreement."

Dayan told a news conference later in the day that Israel would negotiate any subject, including Palestinian statehood, but "the only thing we do not accept is a kind of ultimatum of take it or leave it."

Casualty Of Winter Weather

rain. Large sections of paneling and insulation were spread over adjacent streets and officials blocked off the area. The 10,000-seat auditorium was said to resemble a bombed-out building from World War II, with girders twisted in the air and large chunks of material visible in the glass corridor around the center. Many States Tied Up By Heavy Winter Weather

By The Associated Press Rain, snow and sleet today nagged the Great Lakes and the Tennessee Valley, where more than a foot of snow shut schools and businesses and made roads impassable. Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll declared a state of emergency.

Cincinnati recorded more than 11 inches on Tuesday. As much as 15 inches buried parts of southern Illinois. Ohio Gov. James Rhodes dispatched 77 National Guardsmen to Pomeroy, Ironton, Portsmouth, Chillicothe, Manchester, Felicity and Newark to help clear snow.

Port Moves

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — In related moves that appeared to be a vote of confidence in the future of the state port at Morehead City, the State Ports Authority voted to leave a container cargo crane at the port to proceed with plans to dredge a turning basin there.

Califano Backs Down

"I believe HEW Secretary Califano's anti-smoking campaign is going too far, and I believe President Carter will understand how gravely concerned we are about the possible effects of this campaign on our states' economies," Hunt said at a news conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government formally backed down today from two proposed national hospital standards that critics claimed would force the closing of many small rural and community hospitals and hospital maternity wards.

Hospital Board Told Contracts Signed For Another Parking Lot

By KEITH MILLS Reflector Staff Writer The Pitt Memorial Hospital Board was notified Tuesday night during its regular monthly meeting that contracts have been signed with McLaurin Inc. of Raleigh to operate a proposed parking lot for hospital employees.

The need for a new parking lot arose from an overflow of employees parking in the visitors' area. In other action, the Board of Trustees extended the duties of its executive committee to those of a planning committee which would keep the board informed on matters of planning and the budget.

Another Half-Ton Of Files On JFK Assassination Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a year after John F. Kennedy was assassinated, the FBI was still investigating hundreds of tips, rumors and letters from "cranks, mental cases and patriotic citizens," newly-released files showed today.

Pasco, Wash., had sent a $6 spray of flowers to the funeral of Lee Harvey Oswald. He told agents he did it on impulse. Buried in the 58,754 pages are documents reflecting the bitter reaction of the late J. Edgar Hoover to critics of the assassination investigation.

allegedly made by individuals concerning their feelings about President Kennedy, other officials and the policies of the administration. The complaints are initiated by cranks, mental cases and patriotic citizens.

level efforts to check tips from drunkards. But nothing in the first batch of files disproved the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy and that he acted alone.

HOMEMAKER'S HAVEN Onions Make Out of the Ordinary Meals

Throughout history, the little onion has been the fascinating subject of many legends. This all-purpose vegetable was, to many, a magical symbol of unity, eternity and immortality; and it was said to heal disease and even cure baldness. Today, however, the plentiful onion is more famed for its numerous uses in food preparation than for the strange legends attached to it.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that onions are in plentiful supply this month, so it is an ideal time to use them in both familiar and new ways. To keep them fresh as long as possible, store at room temperature or, if possible, in a cooler environment—preferably 60 to 65° F.

Onions add a unique flavor to soups, vegetable salads, dressings, gravies, stuffings, dips, spreads, rolls, crackers and breads, pot pies, stews, casseroles and as side dishes to beef, pork or poultry main dishes.

Full-flavored yellow globe onions are used for seasoning or may be served by themselves, scalloped or creamed. The milder Spanish onion is used raw in sandwiches or in cooked dishes, while the Bermuda and Italian varieties are generally used in salads and sandwiches. Green onions—or scallions—also make zesty additions to salads.

The smaller, white onions are best when boiled whole, stewed or creamed. Cut the larger ones into thick slices and serve with hamburgers. Also, don't forget the popular fried onion rings. All sizes of onions are equally good for grating, chopping, dicing, or slicing.

A perfect dish for Italian meals is zucchini sauteed in olive oil with chopped onion and a little crushed garlic. Season with salt, pepper and oregano. For a salad that goes especially well with poultry and pork dishes, combine sliced Spanish onions separated into rings with watercress and cored, sliced (but unpeeled) apples. Make a dressing of oil, vinegar, seasoning and a little creamy mustard. Here's an onion recipe that will make an elegant addition to meals

STUFFED ONIONS

- 6 large, mild onions
- 2 Tb. minced parsley
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup ripe olives
- 1/4 tsp. poultry seasoning
- 1 cup soft breadcrumbs
- 1/4 tsp. sage
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- Dash pepper
- Paprika

Peel onions, removing thin outer layer only. Slice off tops of onions, making them as even in height as possible. Cover with boiling, salted water and simmer for 30 minutes, or until just tender. Drain and cool. Chop onion tops to make 1/3 cup finely-chopped onion; saute in butter until golden brown. Chop olives and combine with bread crumbs, cheese, parsley, salt, pepper, poultry seasoning and sage. Scoop out center portion of onions (set aside, chop, and add to creamed peas for another meal, if desired). Do not cut through bottom of onion "shells". Fill with olive mixture; sprinkle with paprika. Bake, covered, in moderate oven (325° to 350°) for 20 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes longer. Serve piping hot.

Dear Abby

Tell Mother How You Feel

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in our car pool who is a constant source of worry to all the other mothers. She picks up the children at school and then proceeds to do all her errands, such as grocery shopping, getting her things at the dry cleaners, etc.

Sometimes she doesn't bring the children home until dark, and we other mothers are on the phone calling each other, worried sick that she may have had an accident. How can we let her know that she should do her errands BEFORE she gets the youngsters?

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: The woman is thoughtless, but she's not a mind reader. For goodness' sakes, TELL her!

DEAR ABBY: After 10 years of marriage, my husband, a successful attorney, suddenly announced that he was fed up with being married and he wanted to be "free." I was hurt and stunned because I thought Dick and I had a good marriage, but I gave him his freedom.

The day after our divorce became final, Dick married a pretty young woman who worked in his office. He told me that she was an orthodox Jew, and in order to marry her he had converted to Judaism and had had himself circumcised—at age 41, mind you!

After four months of marriage, Dick called, saying he must have been crazy, he never realized how much he loved me and the children, and could he come "home"? Abby, I never stopped loving Dick, but if I take him back I'm afraid of what my family and friends will think. What would YOU do?

M. IN MANHATTAN

DEAR M.: I'd take what's left of him back.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a terrific guy, but there seems to be a problem. Whenever his family has a celebration, such as a birthday or anniversary party, they leave me out. Today is his father's birthday and his family has planned a big dinner for him; I was not invited.

I feel hurt and insulted because I've never done anything to make his family dislike me. My family has always included my fiance in all of their celebrations, and he has accepted with pleasure.

Am I wrong to feel that I should be invited to his family parties? Or should I just accept being excluded and learn to live with it?

FEELING UNWANTED

DEAR FEELING: If your fiance's family is aware that you are engaged to marry this young man and they exclude you from their family celebrations they are guilty of gross social misconduct. But if your terrific guy is as terrific as you say he is, he'd see to it that you were invited.

Something is fishy here. Either your definition of "engaged to be married" doesn't jibe with your fiance's family's, or he lacks good manners, sensitivity and simple courage.

Coal Miner Pension Funds Said Nearly Exhausted

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I have worked in the coal mines for 36 years and now I am 65 years old. I am not able to work at anything. I have black lung, asthma and emphysema. "Now you want my pension." These grieved words from Abingdon, Va., were written by a retired member of the United Mine Workers union — one of 80,600 retirees who won't be getting their $250-a-month February pension checks because of the 43-day-old coal strike.

"What if I was sitting behind the desk telling you you would be cut out of your living? Would you like it? How would you live?" he wrote. "After you are too old to work, we will just put you out to pasture like a horse ... to starve to death."

From Lick Creek, Ky., to Lower Burrell, Pa., from the drab mining camps of Appalachia to the coal towns of the Midwest, have come the angry and desperate letters telling of hardship and suffering ahead.

The complaints have poured into the pension fund office since letters went out Dec. 21 informing the retirees that their February checks would probably be halted. It became official Tuesday when the trustees announced the funds were without the $20 million reserve needed to pay next month's benefits.

The industry-financed trust funds' income is based on coal production and hours worked. No contributions have been made since the UMW struck the industry Dec. 6, when its contract expired.

An Exploitation Film Is Ready

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new exploitation film called "The Surfside Strangler" is being readied for release at a time Los Angeles area police are still hunting the Hillside Strangler.

A review released by the producer, Somma Films, said it would send out "shock waves." The film went into production before the current wave of murders, but, like the real case, it involves the strangulation of prostitutes and innocent teen-agers.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Rain ending with gradual clearing Friday. Fair on Saturday with increasing cloudiness Sunday posing a chance of rain in west portion.

Many of the retirees also qualify for Social Security benefits.

The loss of the union pension payments has set generation against generation within the union, evoking angry charges from the retirees that they are being forgotten.

"Remember if you live long enough," wrote one pensioner to the trustees. "You will all be old some day and you are no better than us men who made this union from the beginning."

Another pensioner from Rinesville, W.Va., complained of "a raw deal" and said, "You younger fellows never went through what we older men did. You walked into the gravy, the table was already spread, now you don't have the guts and respect to give us a fair deal."

"The retirees of the 70s should be the ones out of the pension as they made more money, they should have a savings," said the wife of an 83-year-old retired miner in Lovington, Ill. "Our dollar doesn't buy any more than theirs."

A Commutation Is Reasonable

Various groups and officials are calling for the pardon of the Wilmington 10. Perhaps the most authoritative of these is United States Attorney H. M. Michaux of the U. S. Middle District.

Gov. Hunt is having to weigh all this as he decides what to do very soon about the group whose convictions came out of unrest in Wilmington in 1971.

Like the governor, we have to listen to those who make impassioned pleas for pardons for the Wilmington 10, but we can't agree with them.

The group was tried in as fair a court as it is possible to have and the argument that witnesses changed their stories after the trial doesn't mean much. Outside the court room and following the trial witnesses could have been subjected to pressures or persuasions.

Not only were the Wilmington 10 convicted in an open court but their convictions have been upheld in a series of appeals through higher courts.

So pardon should be out. On the other hand those convicted did receive exceptionally long terms — we think too long. Commutation of their sentences, we believe, would certainly be in order.

The governor could commute their sentences to time served which would set them free. He could also shorten their sentences so that they would be eligible for parole. Then parole could be considered through normal channels and individually they could be out of prison in a short while.

It serves no useful purpose to maintain the long term sentences which the Wilmington 10 received and we hope the governor will act to reduce these sentences.

THIS AFTERNOON

Rising Interest In HMO

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is growing interest in both state and federal governments in health maintenance organizations (HMO) as a promising method of controlling runaway health care costs.

Serious study is now being given to such a group approach for state governmental employees. Researchers believe the system would work best in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area because of the concentration of teachers, university employees, and other state workers.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare will sponsor a major conference in March of top corporation and labor groups. The goal is to give what Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr. considers a "tremendous boost" to the HMO idea.

At least two organizations are currently operating in North Carolina: one a group in the Raleigh area open to the public; another in Winston-Salem sponsored by the Reynolds Corporation.

Califano recently described the approach as one showing great promise: "A group of members pay a set fee every year. For that, they get virtually all their health-care needs from a central hospital or clinic.

Cut Costs

"The HMO has a strong incentive to hold costs down while providing superior health care. . . costs average at least 25 to 30 per cent less than conventional health-care delivery systems, and a person is 50 per cent less likely to be hospitalized. . . because unnecessary hospital care is discouraged," Califano says.

From preliminary study and debate, it is obvious that the governmental push for HMO solutions will produce numerous questions for consumers.

The basic cost-saving difference between the present medical care system and the HMO approach is this: presently, physicians and other health care specialists err on the side of expensive caution. If there is any doubt, more tests, exotic treatment, and hospitalization is the standard.

Cost is no object for two reasons—any savings is not to the benefit of either the physician or the patient, and the money comes from a third-party (insurance or government).

Additionally, the patients only seek medical help when truly sick with little or no emphasis on life routines to prevent illness.

The doctors would be relieved of bad bills, book-keeping, collections, hustling for patients, and would gain more time off and less demand for tests and hospitalization. The patients would gain consultation and examination anytime, professional advice on how to stay well, and reasonable care which would eventually save them money.

Yet large, emotional questions continue: is reasonable care sufficient, or will most people demand the best regardless of cost? Will malpractice wipe out the system, or will binding arbitration be required? Will the best health care providers participate, or only the marginal ones, and beginners? Will physicians give up the dreams of glory and huge rewards inherent in exotic research, specialties and surgery in favor of primary health care?

NOBLITT

With an HMO, the physician has a guaranteed budget. Money spent for exotic, unnecessary procedures including hospitalization comes from his own pockets. Savings mean more money for the doctor or for the patient.

Thus, all parties are encouraged to do reasonable things to treat an illness satisfactorily within the boundaries of cost and potential success.

Benefits

Some HMOs have run into difficulty because they were not big enough, or because they concentrated on the poor, the elderly, or other special groups. For success, say proponents, they must be at least 5,000 people with no more than half categorized as poor or elderly.

Given an average of $500 per year spent on health insurance being invested instead in an HMO, such a group would have $2.5 million to buy a physicians' group clinic and hospital space.

The doctors would be relieved of bad bills, book-keeping, collections, hustling for patients, and would gain more time off and less demand for tests and hospitalization. The patients would gain consultation and examination anytime, professional advice on how to stay well, and reasonable care which would eventually save them money.

Yet large, emotional questions continue: is reasonable care sufficient, or will most people demand the best regardless of cost? A Cheer For Congress

WASHINGTON — Congress is criticized for a lot of things it does to waste the taxpayer's money. But you rarely read about what it does to save us all money. I think it's time we newspapermen printed something nice about our lawmakers when they deserve it.

A story in last week's paper, buried on the inside pages, is an illustration of what I'm talking about.

The Agriculture Department announced it was cutting down on its free milk program for 1.4 million needy schoolchildren. Starting on February 1, an assistant secretary of Agriculture announced that needy children would no longer be given a second helping of milk at school mealtime if they requested it. They would get only half a pint and if they wanted any more they would have to pay for it.

The secretary explained that the edict was put into effect because a recent law "expressed the concern of the Congress that some of the free milk was being wasted."

A spokesman said that taking away the second free serving of milk for needy children would save the government $25 million a year.

Now this is the kind of tax-saving that every American can applaud. I don't know which congressional committee discovered that kids need only half a pint of milk with their meals, but these men and women legislators should be congratulated for putting their feet down and saying, "Enough is enough. We will not support a program which gives needy children more milk than they can drink. As watchdogs of reckless spending it is our duty to cut down on waste and, if you can't do it with free milk, where can you do it in the Federal budget?"

ART BUCHWALD

What amazes me is how Congress got wind of the fact that some needy kids were trashing their second half-pint of milk.

Since the newspaper story didn't say, I can only guess it came from either an informer planted among the schoolchildren or from garbage pails dug up by the staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Milk Waste.

There are some bleeding hearts in this country who will probably write to me and suggest that Congress pass a law saying that if the kids ask for second half-pints they should have to drink it all. But you don't save taxpayers' money that way. All you do is encourage needy children to drink more milk.

The worst thing you can do in this country is give a needy child a second helping at school mealtime. For one thing it raises expectations, and they will start to believe that they can get seconds any time they want them. By limiting the milk intake of each poor schoolchild, Congress is saying in no uncertain terms that it will no longer tolerate this kind of overrun in government spending. It's one thing to vote money for tanks that don't move and planes that don't fly and dams that don't dam, but when it comes to blowing money on halfpints of milk the elected officials of this country are on the ball.

A saving of $25 million out

Winter On The Scene

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 AP Special Correspondent
 NEW YORK (AP) —

"Weather," wrote Mark Twain, the first winter he spent in Boston, "is a literary specialty, and no untrained hand can turn out a good article on it."

This wise admonition does not deter the learned professors of geology and meteorology from predicting a new ice age in bone chilling prose every time the snow plows move across campus or the football team turns out for practice in ski masks and leg warmers.

A weather prognosticator out in Minnesota, where they get the drift pretty quickly out of the Arctic, predicted the other day the new ice age would be upon us in another thousand years or so, maybe sooner, so now is the time to stock up on snow shovels, mukluks, kayaks, cases of bourbon and whatever else is necessary to survive the coming polar blasts.

Still, one has to admit, the weather has been less than predictable in the last year or so: the drought and forest fires out West, those tragic floods and dam burstings, the New York heat wave that preceded the blackout, those still unexplained explosions that people keep hearing along the Atlantic coast, the tankers and shrimp boats that disappear in sudden storms or under mountainous waves.

A tourist heading south for the winter these days doesn't know for sure whether to remove his snow tires after reading about the below freezing temperatures in Tampa and seeing pictures of pretty girls in parkas instead of string bikinis on the Florida beaches. You can always tell when it's cold in Florida. The New York and Boston papers have pictures of Australian bathing beauties.

Last winter some towns in Britain had snow for the first time in more than a decade. I remember it well because the Times (of London) had an article, quite literary to be sure, about the snow plows being called out for the first time in 10 years in Durham.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Panama's SALT Fallout

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Growing alarm among conservatives that increasingly probably Senate approval of the Panama Canal treaty would undermine the fight against a new strategic arms agreement (SALT II) is changing the nature of the anti-Panama campaign.

With chances now poor of getting the 34 Senators needed to defeat the treaty, the opposition is plotting a long-shot effort to delay the vote until after the Senate has disposed of the SALT treaty.

This means a merger of anti-Panama and anti-SALT forces has failed. One key to the failure is Sen. Henry M. Jackson, the Senate's most effective SALT critic. Jackson seems certain to support the Panama treaty, no matter what effect its approval might have on SALT.

Odds favoring Senate approval of the Panama treaty have improved after recent political developments, the most important being the trip to Panama by Senate Republican leader Howard Baker. He strongly indicated support for the treaty if changes were made that Panamanian dictator Omar Torrijos is expected to accept.

The drumbeat of the Carter administration's campaign for the treaty also is having an effect. Opponents now count only 28 sure votes against the treaty. That omits several presumed anti-treaty stalwarts including Sens. Richard Stone, James Eastland and Herman Talmadge, who are rethinking their position.

Anti-treaty conservatives are fearful that losing the canal battle after one of the most intensive campaigns ever mounted by conservatives would inevitably undermine the anti-SALT battle. "We would have one helluva time cranking up another campaign and raising the money against SALT if we lose the canal," one anti-Panama strategist told us.

Sen. Jesse Helms will lead a filibuster and other opponents are boning up on Senate rules to throw up every conceivable parliamentary obstacle. But delaying the vote will not be easy.

GOP Infighting

An attempted purge of the anti-Reagan head of the Republican party's women's division has fallen so far short that Ronald Reagan's operatives want a graceful exit before the Jan. 20 national committee vote in Washington.

Tart-tongued Mary Crisp has angered Reaganites as national vice chairman because of her injudicious remarks about Reagan as a divisive party influence. So Lyn Nofziger, longtime adviser-tactician for Reagan, concocted a purge plan. His candidate: Gloria Tootle, a black Ph.D. from Harlem who is liberal-to-moderate but backed Reagan for President against Gerald Ford in 1976.

The ploy seemed foolproof. Conservatives would back Mrs. Tootle to punish Mrs. Crisp, liberals would support her because she is black. With Republican national chairman William Brock having indicated neutrality, the Reaganites licked their chops over giving Mrs. Crisp her come-uppance.

But Brock did not stay neutral; he backed Mrs. Crisp. Many conservative national committeemen, while friendly to Reagan, were not prepared to buck the chairman. Although Reagan can control the committee on an issue such as the Panama Canal, he cannot successfully challenge Brock on a purely

To the editor:

Another proud and gallant warrior has died!

Hubert H. Humphrey, the street fighter from Minneapolis, has touched the hearts and lifted the spirits of countless Americans. Like any human being, Humphrey made his mistakes and perhaps his staunch support of the late Lyndon Johnson's policy toward the Vietnam War — until late in the campaign — cost him the opportunity to become President in 1968.

The minority and oppressed people of this nation have lost another emancipator and true gladiator. It was Humphrey who endorsed and presented the Civil Rights plank at the 1948 Democratic National Convention. It was Humphrey who represented himself and the nation at the eulogistic services of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in April, 1968. It was Humphrey who considered his most significant piece of legislation the Civil Rights Bill of 1964. It was Humphrey who co-sponsored the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill, a bill whose goal is full employment for minorities by 1984.

Hubert Humphrey was a crusader for peace, justice and righteousness in this land. We pray that his life will affect all of us in a positive sense to make of this old world, a new world of decency and respect. His example is worthy of emulation if only because HHH, even when cancer was first detected in 1968, never forfeited his zeal for living. Vice President Mondale states it succinctly: "He taught us how to live and he taught us how to die."

Abraham Lincoln, John F. and Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. — and now Hubert H. Humphrey — all have made their impressions on the sands of time for mankind. This writer contemplates, as did the Lord in the days of Ezekiel, who will stand in the gap for individual liberties and civil rights. (Ezekiel 22:30)

Time Provides A Perspective

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) —

Sometimes the economic numbers change so gradually that we become accustomed to certain levels, percentages and degrees, and even assume they have always been so.

Only when we step back and obtain the perspective of time do we see the real picture. By comparing two widely separated dates we often obtain a barebone commentary on social and economic change.

We realize, for instance, that the prime rate has not always ranged between 6 percent and 12 percent. Why, as recently as 1947 it was only 1.5 percent. That is what the best corporate customers paid back then.

In the perspective of time we recognize that federal income taxes on corporations have not always been at a rate just above or below 50 percent. Before the 1930s they ranged downward from 15 percent.

Time comparisons also show us that governments were not always in such great debt. Back in 1913 the total of federal, state and local debt per capita was only $58, compared with more than $4,000 in 1976.

There was a time, we come to realize, when the total employment of federal, state and local governments was not around 15 million, as it is now. In 1940, there were less than one-third that number.

Consider social welfare expenditures under public programs. In 1929, expenditures amounted to only $3.9 billion. In 1975 the comparable figure was more than 70 times the amount of 1929, having nearly doubled since 1970.

In 1950, expenditures for health and medical care — public and private — amount to $12 billion. By 1960, the number had more than doubled to $25.9 billion. It more than doubled again by 1970. Five years later it was $118.5 billion.

But in citing such figures we can never forget, as various protagonists are inclined to do, that numbers themselves — not just the things they represent — change greatly.

When citing figures designed to show the great growth of government, we must consider three factors: rising population, greater national production and shrinking dollar values.

By far the most important of these three factors is inflation. Too often we sling numbers about as if they were hard and firm, the better to make our points.

We judged, for example, in comparing the per capita government debt of $58 in 1913 with the $4,000 of today, because a dollar in 1913 bought a lot more than does a dollar today.

By using a standard measuring stick — dollar-buying power as of 1967 — we find the 1913 dollar was worth $2.78 and the 1976 dollar only 55 cents. For comparison, therefore, that $58 becomes about $162, and the $4,000 becomes $2,200.

One of the more disturbing comparisons is to go back to early 1966 and find the Dow Jones Industrial Average close to 1,000 points — or more than 200 points higher than today. And that is when a dollar was worth twice what it is now.

That perhaps says as much about economic change as any of the other numerical comparisons.

Strength For Today

THE WRATH OF GOD
 Many Christians today find it hard to believe that the wrath of God is a reality which they have to take into account as they plan their lives. The wrath of God seems to conflict with the oft-repeated Biblical assertion that God is love. Many people reason that God cannot be loving at one time and angry at another.

Yet the Bible certainly teaches that God punishes evil-doers with great severity. God has ordained that evil causes suffering, and as the evil increases, the punishment increases in proportion. This situation is not inconsistent with the abounding love of God. This love is offered to all people. Those who refuse it not only do themselves infinite harm; they corrupt the environment in which others must live. Sin unpunished and unbuked would soon eradicate all goodness from the face of the earth. In God's perfect nature, love, justice and wrath are perfectly balanced, and his wrath against evil is as much a part of his divine nature as justice and love.

Life Term For Child's Death

GAFFNEY, S.C. (AP) — A 32-year-old Gaffney housewife has been told she will "spend the rest of your natural life" in prison for the drugging and drowning death of her 6-year-old adopted son.

Circuit Court Judge Paul Moore handed down the life imprisonment sentence against Rita C. Houser after a Cherokee County General Sessions Court of 11 men and one woman found her guilty Tuesday of murdering her son Keith Aug. 30. The jury deliberated about 35 minutes before returning the verdict.

Several of Mrs. Houser's relatives, including her husband, Vaughn, began crying as the sentence was handed down. Mrs. Houser also wept but did not say anything.

Jonathan McKown, attorney for Mrs. Houser, said she would be eligible for parole in 20 years. He said he was uncertain whether the verdict would be appealed.

The boy's body was found in the backwaters of the Broad River near Gaffney. An autopsy disclosed that he had died of drowning and an overdose of the drug Triavil.

In closing arguments in the two-day trial, McKown had told the jury it had been proven Mrs. Houser had periods when she could not remember anything.

Solicitor John Nolen countered, "If she didn't know what she was doing, how could she come along later and tell exactly what happened?"

Earlier Mrs. Houser told the jury that she gave Keith some medicine the day he died, but she denied that she wanted to kill him. She said the boy had wet the bed twice the night before and again just before he awoke in the morning.

When he arose and complained of a headache, Mrs. Houser said she gave her son some tablets. She said she didn't know what they were or how many she gave him.

Earlier, her husband, her pastor and other relatives and friends testified of the close relationship between the mother and her adopted son.

Ken H. Habben, a chemist for the State Law Enforcement Division, said the boy's body contained components of the drug Triavil, a combination tranquilizer and anti-depressant.

Mrs. Houser was issued a prescription for Triavil on Aug. 12, a pharmacist, W.G. Middleton, testified. The prescription had been filled the same day.

In a statement given police in September, Mrs. Houser said she gave the drug to Keith because she "had been mad at him for wetting the bed."

The statement was read to the jury Monday.

After giving the child the medicine, Mrs. Houser said she waited an hour, dressed the boy, put him in the front seat of her car and drove to the Broad River.

"When I got down to the river I just got Keith out in my arms and I just put him in the water," she said. "And I don't know why."

"I don't know whether he was alive then or not. I was just scared," the statement continued.

The boy's body was found floating in the river the next day.

only the drivers happened to be on strike.

The horses didn't run at Aqueduct one day last week because of high winds, even though the track was clear and frozen fast. They never did explain whether a jockey might get blown off or a nag blown over or too many winning tickets blown away; anyhow the horse players gathered in sullen little groups around the O.T.B. (off-track betting) board in Grand Central Terminal cursing the weather man.

If my mother were still around, she would blame the recent spell of bad weather on those Russian cosmonauts linking up those three box cars in outer space. She never did forgive Neil Armstrong for ruining the church picnic in August, 1969. Not only did it rain for the first time ever at the sodality outing on the day he planted the flag on the moon, but, she claimed, the potato salad went bad. Quite a few people share Mom's suspicions about the effect the space programs have had on our weather.

"People ought not to be allowed to go stomping around up there on the moon in those big boots," a Washington cab driver told me the other day as we drove across an ice-coated Potomac River bridge. "The fishing ain't been right since that Armstrong fellow chipped away at those rocks up there and upset the lunar molecules. It's the moon that controls tides, you know."

He said he had it on good authority from a professor at the University of Maryland that another ice age was upon us, and the fishing, even the ice fishing, never would be right again.

"That Concorde's messing things up too," he shook his head under a furry cossack hat that a Hawaii-bound customer had left behind forever. "Man's got no right messing around in God's territory."

On the day the big ice storm paralyzed the Northeast, as the TV weather forecasters phrased it, a morose and ever growing company of commuters gathered at an anti-freeze dispensary in Penn Station waiting for the long Island to de-ice its terminals and thaw out its switches or whatever was delaying the evening cattle car runs out to Babylon and beyond.

The conversation, quite surprisingly, turned to the weather. A stock analyst, playing word games for drinks on his digital computer, wondered if the Saudi Arabians ever would get those icebergs towed into the Persian Gulf to cool off the place. A pert little secretary, who had just bought a pair of cross country skis at a manufacturer's closeout, said she never could understand how Grace Metalious could write "sexy novels like Peyton Place up there in New Hampshire. Every time I go there the sight of all those people running around in parkas and those frozen long johns dancing on the lines just turns me off. I wish my boyfriend was taking me water skiing instead." A drunk at the end of the bar kept muttering "strong men cried when we ate the lead dog," while the storm and the conversation raged on and on and on.

of a national budget of $400 billion may not sound like much to some people, but as a taxpayer I can't think of a more worthy place to cut back spending than in a school milk program.

As someone who has been critical of the way Congress throws our money around, it is a pleasure to give them credit when credit is due.

The men and women responsible for this bill deserve high marks for serving notice on the schoolchildren of America that we taxpayers are sick and tired of giving them second half-pints of milk, and if they aren't careful we might even take their first half-pint away from them, too.

It's about time someone in this country said to its poor children, "There's no such thing as a free lunch."

Democratic Infighting

John White, the new Democratic national chairman, has offered the party's top fund-raising job to a California politician whose acceptance could hurt any 1980 challenge of President Carter by Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr.

White has asked national committeeman, Charles T. Manatt, a Los Angeles lawyer-banker and Brown ally, to become national finance chairman. If a free vote for national chairman had been permitted, Manatt would have been picked to replace the deposed former Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine. But White House political aide Hamilton Jordan turned thumbs down on Manatt because of dubious loyalty to President Carter.

With Manatt as finance chairman, the national committee would be getting a superb fund-raiser to erase its big debt. Beyond that, it would deprive Jerry Brown of important help in the 1980 primaries. Poker-faced Chuck Manatt did not give White an immediate answer.

Recruiter Is Assigned

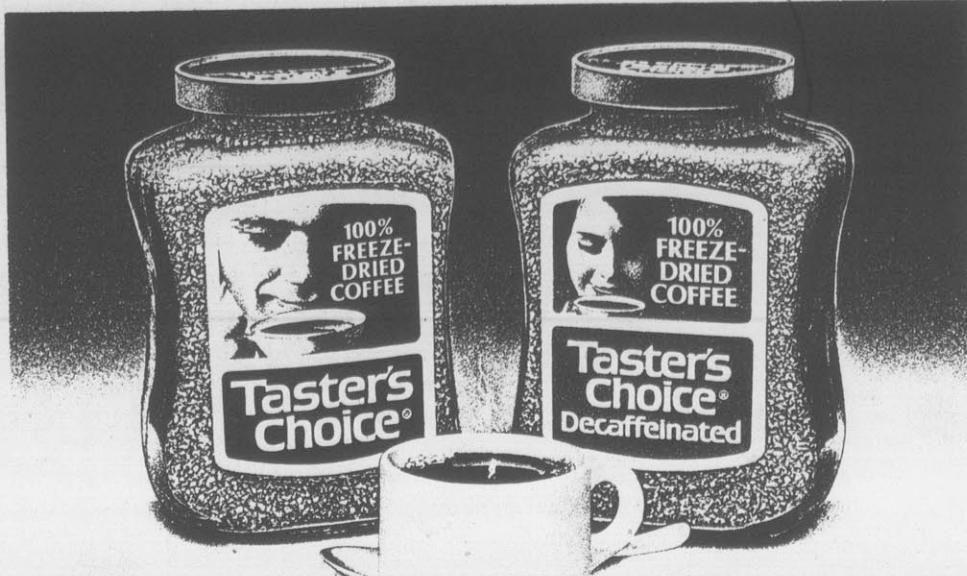

Kenneth L. Hagen, cryptologic technician first class, has been assigned to the Navy Recruiting Station, 111 E. Third Street, as a Navy recruiter, the office announced.

Hagen will be responsible for recruiting in the counties of Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Beaufort, Washington, Tyrrell, Dare and Hyde.

A recent graduate of the Enlisted Naval Recruiter Orientation School at Orlando, Fla., Hagen has received training in various Navy programs, including community relations, public speaking and all enlisted programs. In addition to enlisted testing procedures, he is responsible for testing college students-graduates for the Navy officer program.

Prior to his new assignment, he was stationed at the Naval Security Group Activity, Edzell, Scotland as the assistant special security officer and coordinator of the Armed Forces Courier Service.

Hagen is married to the former Joan Little of Winterville and they have two daughters.

Doctor Calls Weekly On A Motorboat

By TOM MADDEN
WATERLOO, Ala. (UPI) — Youthful Ben Kitchens admits he gets a kick out of his Wednesday boatride.

Family physician, a one-man medical team for this isolated northwest Alabama hamlet.

Kitchens takes a day off each week from a thriving practice in Iuka, Miss., to serve Waterloo as its family physician and one-man medical team.

The quickest route to the isolated, one street hamlet on Pickwick Lake in northwest Alabama is by water.

"I'm no missionary," said Kitchens, his black wavy hair tossed by a strong wind off the lake. "I just love to get out on the water and in the process render a service to people who need it."

Kitchens, along with pharmacist Bill Curtis cross a three-mile stretch of the TVA lake to dispense treatment to Waterloo's 250 residents.

"Waterloo is a unique community that is about as isolated as any in America, Kitchens said. "Most of the people in the town are old. The nearest town is Florence and it's 25 or 30 miles away and the people would have to ride a long ways to get medical care."

Kitchens grew up on the lake. As a youngster, he would go to Waterloo to buy worms. After medical school, the idea of having a medical practice in the town intrigued him. He told townspeople more than a year ago he would come to Waterloo each week if they would give him a place to practice.

The community, using a $25,000 federal grant, established the Waterloo Primary Health Care Clinic.

"The whole community got involved," said Helen Parker, who serves as receptionist at the clinic.

"There are over 500 donated man hours in the facility and most of the materials were donated," she said between answering calls to the clinic. "It was the biggest thing that happened in Waterloo during my lifetime."

"We never dreamed we would have a doctor in our town," Mrs. Parker said. "The town just does not have many people... The people here really appreciate the doctor and what he is doing."

It has not been all smooth sailing.

"I started to quit one time," said Kitchens, who is 35. "I started the treatment in Waterloo by stretching a sheet across the back of the mayor's office. There was no privacy and people didn't want to be weighed because everyone else laughed at them. It got pretty bad."

And last winter, he said, "there was an ice sheet on the lake so we had to drive around. And, another time it rained so hard on the way back that my boat sunk."

"Some of my competitors think we have a gold mine over here," said pharmacist Curtis, struggling to turn his 30-foot houseboat into the wind. "Both of us could make more money in Iuka, but we wouldn't have half as much fun."

But he too considers the weekly trip relaxing. "It gives us a break from the daily routine."

"I'm not advertising that I think I am doing a great service to mankind," said Kitchens. "But, these are the people I grew up with. "These are my kind of people. I like to think I'm helping them."

Computer Can Print Murals

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new concept in interior decoration creates architectural tapestries, computer-printed murals that can be reproduced in large format from any artwork or photos.

The tapestries are four to six feet wide and up to 15 feet in length on fire-resistant polyester fabric. They can be hung vertically or horizontally in a wide range of locations.

They come with their own mounting system that can be used easily on any smooth, firm surface, the manufacturer says. The tapestries hang straight, without wrinkling or sagging and are easily installed, removed if necessary, and re-installed, he adds.

Any scene, art object or design that can be photographed can be reproduced with true color fidelity and fine detail. The tapestry's color image is the exclusive choice of the designer.

Medical Soc. Hospital Ass'n Has Police Probe Gun Death

The Pitt County Medical Society, at its January 12 meeting, endorsed plans to utilize the Pitt County Information Center as a means of providing current information about access to medical services and physicians in the county.

Medical service information will be made available soon through the information center by calling 752-1111.

The society also adopted a resolution calling for the opening of Ward 3 South at Pitt Memorial Hospital and endorsed plans in progress to construct a new bed tower at the medical facility. In endorsing the resolution, physicians said the facilities are needed because of current high utilization rates of hospital beds.

The guest speaker for the program was Dr. William Peete, professor of surgery at Duke University.

Peete reviewed the social and medical history of Haiti and the Albert Schweitzer Hospital there, showing slides made during a visit for voluntary work.

Dr. A. L. Ferguson, the newly installed president of the Pitt medical society, presided at the meeting.

Other officers of the group include president elect Dr. Ira M.

Cars Collided In Early Hours

An estimated $2,600 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 3:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Chestnut and Wilson Streets involving cars driven by Costen Eugene Bond of 613 Roosevelt Ave. and Mildred Jenkins Stewart of Riverview Estates.

Investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $1,000 to the Bond car and $1,200 to the Stewart vehicle.

Cars driven by Mary Helen Glasgow of Wilson and Nina Spain Pitt of 105 East Lakeview Terr. collided about 12:10 p.m. at the intersection of Evans and Tenth Streets, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Glasgow car. No damage was reported to the Pitt vehicle.

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into the shooting death of 42-year-old Rodney Franklin Edwards of 2609 Crocket Dr. at his home here last night.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who said the shooting occurred about 9:05 p.m., reported Edward's body was found on the couch in the living room of his home, with a .32 caliber revolver on a coffee table in front of the couch.

Cannon, reporting that Mrs. Jean Kilpatrick Edwards said her husband shot himself, said Edwards was shot three times in the chest, once in the stomach, and one time in the jaw. A sixth bullet hole was in the living room wall.

A friend of Mrs. Edwards', Nible Best Jones of 111 East Ninth St., told officers she was in the kitchen of the Edwards' home at the time and heard several shots, but did not witness the incident.

Woman Cop Can Handle 'Any Tasks'

By WILLIAM P. MOORE
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Veteran Pittsburgh police captain Therese Rocco believes women officers can handle any aspect of police work, despite fears in some quarters that they can't operate quite as efficiently as their male counterparts.

Ms. Rocco, as head of Pittsburgh's all-female Missing Persons division, has won numerous awards for her police work, including the 1961 Citizen's Award from the FBI. Her department is considered one of the nation's best.

When Ms. Rocco was sworn in as a police officer in 1952, she said, "there was nothing we didn't do."

"When we first came on, we were seen as unnecessary evils, but there was no way the police department could function without us."

"We were sworn in as full-fledged police officers, and we were expected to do anything we were told."

That included acting as decoys for the capture of rapists, pickpockets, masher, back-alley abortionists, and, sometimes, known murderers.

"Then, we had no training in firearms. We had to rely on the protection of men. We were really at a disadvantage," she said.

Today, woman patrolmen are given full police academy training, a move Ms. Rocco says "was a long time coming."

But Ms. Rocco does have one gripe about her personal status: money. She is still paid a lieutenant's salary, although she has been a captain since 1960.

"I can't understand this, when I know I have done a good job," she said. "As an investigator, there is no one I take a back step to."

Ms. Rocco, a Pittsburgh native, stressed that she does not blame the inequity on any of her superiors, or on the city administration. She believes it is an unfortunate throwback to outdated attitudes, and expressed hopes the situation would soon be rectified.

"But it hurts my pride," Ms. Rocco said.

She is pleased with and happy for the young women now joining the Pittsburgh force — while at the same time she is upset by the implication veteran female officers are not real police.

"The women working in Missing Persons could have met any challenge in this force," Ms. Rocco said with obvious pride in her veteran colleagues. "When we came on we were expected to do without training the things they claim you need training for today. It's been a tough battle."

Moreover, Ms. Rocco is convinced the contribution women have made since their introduction to police work in the early 1900s has been overlooked.

"The concept of policing today is exactly what women introduced years ago when they came on — the compassionate touch," she said. "In 1912, 1913, when women first were recruited, the area they worked in was preventing people from being arrested."

Today, police recruits are given as much training in preventing crime through community relations, juvenile rehabilitation and on-the-scene compassion as they are given in handling sidearms.

And, Ms. Rocco says with satisfaction, "That's exactly what women brought to police work."

Two Soliciting Requests OK'd

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits.

Caldwell said the requests were submitted by the Greenville Girl Scouts for permission to take orders for cookies from Jan. 20-28 and deliver and set up cookie booths from Feb. 28 to March 13, and by Phi Sigma Pi of East Carolina University to conduct a merchant and door-to-door solicitation from Jan. 26 to Feb. 11 to raise money for the Todd Scholarship Fund.

Revival Series Is Underway

Revival service is now in progress at Wells Chapel Church, corner of Fifth St. and Hudson Street, Greenville.

Services will continue through this week with the Elder A. Dixon of Scotland Neck conducting each service at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

More Is Going To Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporate political committees, no longer burdened by federal restrictions on campaign spending, are giving large sums to political candidates. A Common Cause study released Tuesday shows business committees contributed more than $7.1 million to congressional candidates in 1976, up from $2.5 million in the 1974 congressional year. The latter year is when the government removed a restriction that outlawed formation of political committees in companies with government contracts. Railroad Begins Crossing Work

Seaboard Coastline Railroad is beginning a project to upgrade the railroad track on Howell Street between Pitt Street and South Greenville School, according to Mayo Allen of the Public Works Department.

Allen said that upgrading will take from one to one and a half weeks, approximately. "During this time, the Public Works Department will barricade that portion of Howell Street, detouring all traffic on Railroad Street going from Howell Street to Fourteenth at the fertilizer plant," said Allen. He added that the detour is a dirt road, but, "We'll keep an eye on it to make sure it stays in good shape."

The upgrading project will include putting in new tracks, rails, rail guards, and a better foundation, and re-asphalting the street at the crossing "about the same way that it was done on Dickenson Avenue." Allen noted that South Greenville "is very busy, and parents should follow the detour signs."

Indians Rally To Nip Pirates, 77-76

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 William & Mary rallied from as much as 13 points down late in the first half to come back and capture a 77-76 basketball victory over East Carolina University here last night.

The Indians also gained control of the backboards in the second half, taking a 31-22 advantage during that final 20 minutes, and that, too, played a key role in the final result.

The Pirates led most of the way, and had the chance to wrap it up several times. Even at the end, there still was a chance as Jack Arbogast missed both shots of a two-shot foul with six seconds left. But the left without a time-out, had trouble getting the ball down court, and their shot, a desperation one by Oliver Mack, didn't come until after the horn.

William & Mary never led until the final stages of the game. Mike Enoch put them ahead on two free throws with 2:54 left. Mack hit a free throw to tie it up, but Ted O'Gorman made a basket off a rebound to put the Indians back out by two. After Greg Cornelius hit a free throw, he tossed in a basket off his missed second charity shot, putting the Pirates ahead by one, 74-73. John Lowenhaupt hit two free throws with 47 seconds left, returning the lead to the Indians, but Mack hit a jumper with 37 seconds to go to again give the Pirates the lead.

O'Gorman again hit, this time with 17 seconds to go, and the Pirates still had another chance, but Mack, seeking to go for a shot, saw another Pirate alone, and in attempting to get the ball to him, turned it over. Bernard Hill then intentionally fouled Arbogast, who missed both shots, but the Pirates couldn't get the ball in play quickly enough.

"It was a well-played game for both teams," an unhappy Larry Gillman said outside the dressing room. "But I think the fans enjoyed it."

"I think the players on both teams did a great job. We let 'em get inside too often in the second half. (Rocky) Copley did a good job of their inside in making things happen."

Gillman praised Bernard Hill for his rebounding (a game high 13), and added that he felt the Pirates played a better zone defense against the Indians than they had at Williamsburg.

"They got the ball into O'Gorman more than they did up there, but we were trying to concentrate on Lowenhaupt and keep the ball away from him."

Lowenhaupt, the third leading shooter in the country coming into the game, hit on just six of 14 shots, but it was O'Gorman (7 of 14) and Arbogast (9 of 12) who killed the Pirates.

Concerning the poor shooting score. They finally cut it to four at 58-54 with 11:33 left. But Mack made a free throw and Krusen hit two more to run it back to seven. The Bucs upped it up eight at 64-56 with 8:49 to go, but could not top the Indians away.

William & Mary cut away at the lead again, finally pulling to within one at 68-67. The Pirates scored again, but a basket by O'Gorman off a rebound again cut it to one, then Enoch hit his free throws that put the Indians up for the first time and started the final run to the win.

Arbogast led the Indian scoring with 18 points, while Lowenhaupt had 16 and O'Gorman added 15.

Mack paced the Pirates with 20, while Moseley had 17, Cornelius had 15 and Krusen had 14.

The win upped the Indian record to 11-3, while the Pirates fell off to 4-7. The loss also snapped a four-game winning streak, including the win over the Athletes In Action, which does not officially count on the record.

The Pirates are at home again Thursday night, hosting Iona, a strong ECAC team from New York. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

William & Mary never led until the final stages of the game. Mike Enoch put them ahead on two free throws with 2:54 left. Hawks Nip North Pitt WHEAT SWAMP — Mitchell Wiggins pumped in 30 points, 14 of them in the fourth quarter, to lead North Lenoir to a 66-60 victory over North Pitt last night.

The Panthers trailed by only one point, 45-44, going into the game's final period, but Wiggins began to hit the boards, getting many of his points on follow shots, to enable the Hawks to pull ahead.

North Lenoir led 14-13 in the first period and stretched that margin to 33-29 at halftime, before the Panthers pulled to within one in the third quarter.

Mitchell Wiggins got help from his brother, Johnny, who scored 12 points for North Lenoir. Reginald Knight and Lawaskia Jenkins each had 18 for North Pitt.

The Pant-HERS won the girl's game by a 45-40 score. North Pitt got off to a 10-7 first-quarter lead and moved out to a 23-16 halftime margin. The Pant-HERS were up 35-26 at the end of the first period, but had to hold off a Lady Hawk rally in the final period.

North Pitt's balanced scoring attack was led by Kay Hines with 10 points; while North Lenoir got 18 points from Mary Rhodes, 10 from Cannon and 10 from Norville.

The Panthers are now 2-4 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 5-9 overall, while the Pant-HERS are 3-3 and 5-7. North Pitt will travel to Southern Nash on Friday.

Cain Confirms ECU's Aim Is Division I-A

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Saying that East Carolina University is committed to a top-stus football program, Athletic Director Bill Cain told the Greenville Sports Club that the school had backed the NCAA plan for realignment of Division I in that sport.

"East Carolina has committed itself for sometime now to being a Division I school and we fully plan to continue that in the future," Cain told the club.

Cain threw the floor open throughout the meeting for questions, and one of the first was on the 1978 football schedule. He said that he expected to release it later this week.

"We've held off to find out about the Division I status of various schools, and we're waiting to see which way they are going to go. Those who will not be Division I-A will be dropped," Cain said the schedule currently calls for five home and six away games, and noted that it included N.C. State and North Carolina back-to-back, although there is a slight chance of getting State to move to the end of the season.

Cain also noted that the 1979 schedule is complete and is more attractive than this fall's, and he noted that Florida State is among those coming on in 1980.

Cain was also questioned about the status of a new conference. At present, he said, there are no definite plans, but talks are continuing. "I think the formation of a new conference is the only thing I foresee to satisfy our needs in the future. If we are not in a conference in two to three years, then we had better look at our position and situation again."

Cain was also asked about the future of football coach Pat Dye, mentioned in reports as a possible candidate for the UNC job. Cain said that Dye had not been officially contacted as yet. "It's a credit to the ECU program and the school that Pat's name always comes up when jobs are open. If he's not being sought, then he wouldn't be doing the job we want."

Cain also said that expansion of Ficklen Stadium is going on schedule, and currently plans do not call for any switch in seating. Students will sit on the north side, with Pirate Club members on the south. He said that the chancellor's box would be moved up under the press box this fall, and the old chancellor's box would be used for handicapped seating.

The program for the next meeting, February 7, is not definite as yet, but UNC Athletic Director Bill Coby is scheduled for February 21.

Conley Slips By Chargers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley took advantage of Ayden-Grifton's poor fourth-quarter shooting to come from behind and defeat the Chargers 56-52 in a hotly-contested high school basketball game last night.

The Viking victory followed a D. H. Conley win in the girl's game as the Valkyries topped the Chargerettes 46-41 in another emotional contest.

"Close Encounters" would be an understatement in describing the two ballgames.

"It was as tough as I thought it would be," said Conley coach Shelly Marsh, whose Vikings retained the lead in the Eastern Carolina Conference with their victory. "Both teams played real hard, it was an exciting game."

The Vikes are now 4-0 in the conference and 11-2 overall. Ayden-Grifton dropped to 3-3 and 9-5.

The game went down to the wire as neither team could build more than a five-point lead. In the end, it was the outside shooting of Shawn Little and the foul shots of Darryl Thompson that kept Conley ahead. The Chargers, who held a one-point lead going into the fourth quarter, could manage but two field goals in the period.

"I thought we played well," Charger coach Bob Murphy said. "Our guys played hard and they played to win. I felt like the breaks went their (Conley's) way, and the way the game was played, the breaks decided it."

Murphy pointed out that Little's shooting from the outside was better than he had anticipated. The guard led all scorers with 20 points, most on long-range jumpers. "You're not supposed to take those kind of shots against a man-to-man defense, especially with a 6-10 (Al Tyson) underneath," Murphy said.

The battle of the teams' centers, Conley's Tyson and Ayden-Grifton's James Leggett, came out about even. Leggett scored 16 points and Tyson 14.

"They did a good job on Tyson," Marsh said. "But, fortunately for us, Little was hot from the outside. Our man-to-man defense got better in the second half and we were able to get Tyson some help on Leggett. We intercepted two key passes to Leggett in the fourth quarter and he didn't get but four points in the second half."

Ayden-Grifton used phenomenal shooting in the first quarter to build a 20-16 lead, but in the game's final period, it was the inability of the Chargers to hit from the field that cost them the game.

Both teams shot well in the initial period, the Chargers were nine for 11, while the Vikings were eight for 12. Conley pressed nearly the entire game, but Ayden-Grifton had some luck breaking it in the opening quarter and was able to get some easy baskets.

The lead see-sawed during the early going, but a dunk by Leggett and shot from the lane by Terry Morris gave the Chargers a 14-10 lead with 2:58 left.

Mike Cox and Thompson both scored on drives to tie things at 14-14 for Conley, but Leggett scored four more points, two on a high, arching shot over Tyson, and Archie Dail hit from the corner to give the Chargers a 20-16 lead at the end of the first period.

But Ayden-Grifton was cold in the second quarter, as well as the fourth, and Conley scored the first eight points of the period. Four of those were from Tyson, who got the ball only once in the first quarter, and the Vikes a 24-20 lead with 4:26 left in the half.

The Chargers regained the lead 28-26, but a pair of free throws by Kenny Phillips with two seconds on the clock gave the Vikes a 30-28 halftime edge.

The third quarter was another see-saw battle, but Charger Terry Morris closed the period with a follow shot and free throw to give the Chargers a 43-42 lead going into the final quarter.

Tyson hit twice from in close to make it 46-43 Conley early in the fourth and Little answered a pair of foul shots each by Dail and Leggett with three shots from the outside to produce the biggest lead of the game, a 52-47 Conley margin with 2:39 left.

The Chargers were able to cut it to three, but Thompson and Little each hit a pair of free throws after the Vikes went into a stall to keep Conley ahead.

Little's 20 and Tyson's 14 were aided by 10 points from Cox. Dail joined Leggett in double figures for Ayden-Grifton with 19 points.

Conley ended up hitting 33.5 per cent of its shots (23-43), while the Chargers were 42.6 per cent from the field (20-54). The Chargers held a 30-23 rebounding edge, but it was negated by the Vikings' shooting.

In the girl's game, Conley put on a third-quarter surge to take a 33-28 lead and Miriam Paramore's late free throws after Annie Wooten and Glenda Green each hit one from the foul line for Conley.

But that was as close as the Chargerettes could come as the Valkyries scored four unanswered points and then hit four more after a bucket by Aretha Cannon for a 43-36 lead with 1:17 left. Paramore was five for six at the line down the stretch to preserve the victory.

Karen Haseley led the Chargerettes, who are now 4-2 and 9-3, with 12 points. The Valkyries, now 4-1 and 9-2, were paced by Paramore with 11 and Cassandra Tyson with 10.

Friday night, D. H. Conley hosts Greene Central, while Ayden-Grifton will entertain C. B. Aycock.

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School pulled off a 57-56 victory over pre-season favorite Elm City in the Eastern Plains Conference last night.

The win came with no time left on the clock, as Roanoke's Tim Highsmith was fouled right at the horn, and hit one of the two charity tosses.

Roanoke's girls, however, failed in their bid to knock off the front-runner, 56-33.

In the boys' game, Roanoke and Elm City battled to a 14-14 tie in the first period. The Elm City five was able to inch ahead in the second quarter, however, and held a 29-26 halftime lead.

Roanoke was able to cut just one off that during the third period, and trailed by two, 46-44, as the final period opened. The Redskins then outthit Elm City, 12-10, during the eight minutes to knot it at 56-56. With time running out, Edward Ward shot from the corner, and Highsmith was able to capture the ball on the missed shot. He was fouled as he went up, just as the final horn went off. His one score put the game away.

Ward led the Roanoke scoring with 21 points, while Highsmith had 10. Hayes led Elm City with 21, while Atkinson had 19.

The loss was the first in league play for Elm City, while Roanoke remained unbeaten.

In the girls' game, Elm City inched ahead, 10-9, after one period of play. They pulled further out in the second frame, gaining a 25-17 lead. During the third period, Elm City ran its lead to 41-25. They finished off the Squaws, 15-8 in the final quarter.

Angela Armstrong led Elm City with 23, while Dot Neal had 14 and Joanne Griffin had 10. Yvette Modica led Roanoke with 10.

In the third period, Washington extended its lead to 59-32. They finished off the Tigers with a 21-13 advantage in the final quarter.

Farmville Central Downs Aycock, 55-52

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central and Charles B. Aycock High School split a pair of Eastern Carolina Conference basketball games last night.

Farmville Central took the varsity boys' game by 55-52, while the Aycock girls downed the Lady Jaguars, 64-56.

In the girls' game, Aycock rode out to a 19-12 lead in the opening quarter. Farmville Central rallied in the second quarter, 16-10, and trailed by only one, 29-28, at halftime.

Aycock inched further out in the third period, gaining a 48-44 lead. The Falconettes then outthit Farmville, 16-12, down the stretch to pull out the win.

Renee Hales led Aycock with 22, while Helen Jones had 12 and ded 11, while Boston and Flowers each had 10.

Horace Wynne had 18 for Williamston, with Joe Peele adding 10.

Williamston's girls inched out to a 10-7 lead in the first period of their game, then outthit the Lady Pack, 13-7, in the second. That gave the Tigerettes a 23-14 halftime advantage.

Williamston was able to extend that by only two in the third period, to 31-20. Then, in the final quarter, Washington held a 13-12 advantage, but it was too little.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 16, while Susan Campbell had 17 for Washington.

Williamston travels to Roanoke Rapids on Friday.

Jerry Paul Losses Conviction Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A contempt-of-court conviction against Durham attorney Jerry Paul for failing to appeal a client's drug conviction after telling a judge he would do so was upheld Tuesday by the state Court of Appeals. Paul was convicted of contempt last March by Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain after the judge determined that Paul had failed to properly handle the appeal of his client, James Joyner. Fountain found that Paul had made "false representations" to the judge at the May 1976 drug trial.

Fountain sentenced Paul to a $500 fine or five days in jail.

The flamboyant lawyer gained national attention in 1975 after he helped Joan Little win acquittal of charges that she murdered a Beaufort County jailer.

Paul told the trial judge in Joyner's case that he planned an appeal, but the state moved for dismissal of the appeal in November 1976 because no papers had yet been filed to indicate the appeal would be made. Paul resisted the dismissal, telling the court he had filed for a review by the state Court of Appeals.

But six weeks later, the appeals court clerk said Paul had not filed any request for an appeal. At the March hearing, Fountain said Paul never had any intention to appeal to the state Court of Appeals.

In its ruling Tuesday, the Court of Appeals said Fountain's contempt ruling was supported by the facts. Paul's attorney, Thomas L. Loflin, said he would probably appeal the case "all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary."

No Action Over Judge

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — District Attorney Charles M. White III of Henderson said Tuesday he saw no basis for prosecuting

District Court Judge Linwood T. Peoples, based on a State Bureau of Investigation report.

However, White said he had asked the state attorney general's office for an advisory opinion on the case because of his long association with Peoples.

Peoples has been under investigation for allegedly placing traffic cases in a special file without trying them and disposing of traffic cases out of court.

He resigned Monday from the District Court to seek a Superior Court seat. The SBI investigation was conducted at the request of the Administrative Office of the Courts. Chief Justice Susie M.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, January 18, 1978—15

Sharp of the N.C. Supreme Court had barred Peoples from holding criminal court until completion of the investigation.

The resignation of Peoples, also of Henderson, apparently will end an investigation by the Judicial Standards Commission, which has the power to recommend to the N.C. Supreme Court the censure or removal of judges. A judge who is removed by the Supreme Court is prohibited from ever holding another judicial office.

ANNOUNCES MONDAY

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Governor Jim Hunt will go on statewide television next Monday night to announce his decision in the Wilmington 10 case, aides said Tuesday.

Asks Antitrust Insurance Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday that federal antitrust laws ought to be applied to the insurance industry.

Ingram was one of more than a dozen witnesses at a hearing of the "subcommittee on citizens and shareholders rights and remedies."

"The insurance industry is the only big industry in the country that is exempt from our federal antitrust laws," he said. "I am convinced that the federal antitrust laws must apply totally to the insurance industry if we are ever to extinguish manufactured unavailability."

"When it is mandatory by law or economics to buy insurance, then regulation is mandatory to protect those citizens," he added.

Much of what Ingram said revolved around his efforts to abolish the assigned risk system and to remove age and sex as factors in determining auto insurance rates.

Ingram said he had saved North Carolina consumers $40 million by stopping auto liability insurance premiums from increasing.

"Insurance companies say rates (in North Carolina) are the lowest in the nation," Ingram said. "I'll accept that."

Subcommittee chairman Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, asked if banning age and sex discrimination in rate setting had hurt insurance companies' financial stability.

"No adverse effects," Ingram said, adding that it had simply shifted the burden from good drivers who were young and male to bad drivers of whatever age and sex.

Ingram said the federal government should consider setting minimum standards of insurance availability for everyone.

"This is a legitimate area for the federal government to be involved in," Ingram said.

Wilson JCs Cite Dansey

WILSON — Bill Dansey Jr. of Greenville was named "Boss of the Year" by the Wilson Jaycees during the chapter's annual recognition event here recently.

Dansey, president of Wedco Inc. of Greenville, is principal owner of Wilson Woods Apartments on Ward Boulevard here.

He was recognized for encouraging Jaycee participation by all male employees of Jaycee age, including the man who nominated him, Bruce Jackson, Jackson, formerly of Greenville, now resides here.

Dansey, it was noted, has provided the Wilson chapter with office accommodations and offered full use of the facilities at the apartment complex.

A past member of the Greenville City Council, Dansey is a former winner of the Greenville Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award. He is a graduate of Chowan College and received an accounting degree from East Carolina University.

Honor Two Who Shot Robbers

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A gun club that awards people who shoot other people — and has trouble finding willing recipients — has named two more winners. At least one has accepted his plaque and $200.

Victor Periu, who says he is tired of "punks who go around robbing people," was presented the "Courageous Citizen Award" at his Brooklyn delicatessen Tuesday night.

The 6,000-member Federation of Greater New York Pistol and Rifle Clubs gives the awards to try to encourage the use of firearms to repel intruders.

Periu wrested a revolver from one of three young men, then shot them all, at the deli Monday night. The three — charged with robbery — were in critical condition Tuesday.

"I'm not sorry I did it," Periu said. "I'd gladly do it again."

There was no comment from Mesquite, Texas, where the club's other honoree lives. A plaque — but no money — had been sent to one-time Texas lawman Richard Norton, who killed a mugger last Wednesday night at the door to his Hilton Hotel suite.

No decision has been made on whether Norton gets the $200, said club president Joe Preiser, because of the controversy involving Norton's weapon, which had been registered in Texas but may have been illegal in New York.

"With all the illegal pistol business, he may just want to let this die down," Preiser said. "But if he'll take it, we'll send him the money."

No charges were filed against Norton or Periu.

The awards program was widely criticized when it was disclosed last April. The first three citizens selected turned down the honor, and the group's board of directors voted to suspend the program.

But it was reinstated one week later, when 67-year-old Zygmunt Soroka, a Manhattan office building superintendent who wounded a robber, accepted the plaque and the $200.

Later, Soroka donated the money to the National Rifle Association's Institute for Legislative Action. The NRA has said it is "in complete disagreement" with the awards.

Will Pay Poor's Abortion Bills

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The state will pay up to $500 for abortions for poor women starting Feb. 1 if the state Budget Division releases the money.

The state Social Services Commission approved a plan Tuesday under which women in the first three months of pregnancy could get up to $150 for abortions and payments up to $500 would be made for women in the second trimester.

The plan was proposed by Human Resources Secretary Dr. Sarah Morrow.

Counties would not be required to help finance the program but would be able to supplement the state payments if they wished.

State funding for abortions has been suspended since last August, when the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) began enforcing a statute prohibiting the use of federal funds for elective abortions.

Before that, funds under two federal programs were used to pay for elective abortions, with states and local governments paying part of the costs.

Eligibility guidelines for the new state program will remain the same as the previous federal regulations.

In other action Tuesday, the 12-member commission voted to increase payments for indigent persons receiving nursing home care in the state.

The commission agreed to increase the rates after private nursing home representatives argued that the recent minimum wage increase had raised their overhead expenses and thus necessitated a rate increase.

Guilford County Manager John Witherspoon and other county managers from across the state argued that a rate increase would require a cut in social services. Nursing home care for indigents is paid jointly by the state, counties and federal government.

Witherspoon said, "We have one choice if rates are increased and that is to decrease services."

Witherspoon told the commission that Guilford County was already operating in the red and "not prepared" financially to pay higher rates.

Nevertheless, the commission voted to increase the payments from the current average of $340 per person per month to an average $380 per person per month by Jan. 1, 1979.

In taking the action, most of those present expected the state to be ordered to pay 50 percent of the rate hike. The matter will be taken before the state Advisory Budget Commission for final action.

The commission also voted to increase payments to child and adult day-care centers, but stipulated that counties would not have to share the financial burden of the funding increase for the child centers.

Professional Advisory Board comprised of staff members of the Mental Health Center will meet with the area board. The area board will also consider fees for the respite care program.

Mental Health Board Meeting

Pitt County Mental Health Area Board will meet Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Mental Health Center.

Favorites Bear Brunt Of Decline

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.
The Dow Jones Industrial Average is well below the 800 level for the first time since 1975. The Dow stocks and more visible institutional favorites should continue to bear the brunt of the decline, as they did in 1977. Many investors are probably moving to the sidelines to await a final bottom. We believe that to do so at this time would be ignoring many sound investment values which remain available despite "apparent" market weakness.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose more than 65 percent from its 1974 low to its 1976 high. It has dropped about 20 percent since then and is presently about 30 percent above its last year market low. The widely publicized movement of the 30 Dow stocks has overshadowed a better relative performance in the rest of the marketplace.

In the 1973-74 year market, many secondary issues plummeted 50-80 percent, and some of these stocks have never fully recovered from that shelacking. The broad-based Value Line Composite Index peaked in December 1968 at 189, with a median yield of 2.7 percent and median P/E of 19.

This index recently stood at 93, still more than 50 percent below its 1968 high but 100 percent above its most recent year market low. The median yield is now around 5 percent and the median price/earnings multiple around seven. This group of 1,700 stocks has suffered little in the recent market decline.

This relatively better market performance is due in part to a better fundamental record. Earnings and dividend growth for the 900 stocks in the Value Line Industrial Index has outstripped that of the Dow stocks over the last ten years. Earnings of the Value Line stocks have grown at a 9 percent annual rate versus 5.9 percent for the Dow; dividends have increased at a 5.1 percent annual rate versus 4 percent on the Dow stocks. The better relative fundamentals of this group of Value Line stocks is expected to continue for the next several years.

Secondary issues should continue to experience a better market environment than the Dow and institutional stocks. Concentrated institutional ownership in a limited number of stocks can result in substantial price declines in these issues when selling programs begin. Secondary stocks will generally not experience this problem. If anything, the good quality secondaries are under-owned by institutions. Their market capitalization are too small for most institutions; any institutional ownership is too small to do much damage when they sell.

Many of the secondary stocks never fully recovered from the last market decline, and earnings and dividend growth has continued, so many sound values still exist. A large number of these stocks sell for less than book value, and some sell for less than net current asset value. P/E multiples of 6-7 are common-place and yields can be found in the 5-6 percent range on some high quality companies. Total return potential of 15 percent is possible, which could mean a doubling of an investment in five or six years. For investors who realize that there is more to the market than the Dow Jones Industrial Average, sound investment opportunities do exist.

Egyptians To Duke Univ.

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — Egyptians will arrive at Duke University's Marine Laboratory next month, but it won't be for peace talks.

The scientists will train for a five-year program to help Egypt combat pollution along its Mediterranean and Red Sea coasts. Dr. John D. Costlow, marine lab director, said pesticide pollution is a problem of large concern in Egyptian waters, in addition to petrochemical waste.

The program will include a series of oceanographic cruises along the Egyptian coast aboard Duke's 117-foot research vessel Eastward. The ship is scheduled to leave Beaufort May 15 and return Dec. 2.

Six to eight Egyptian scientists will take part in a two-month training program, with later sessions possibly including an international symposium in Egypt and pollution workshops.

Tidewater Area Fears Big Thirst

By MARY MacDONALD
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Populous Tidewater Virginia — land of seafood and swimming and sailors — is fearful of thirst.

The ocean isn't likely to satisfy it. Desalting water from the Atlantic would require too much costly energy. Officials have been told.

So, envisioning miles of pipeline, they have been looking outside Tidewater for new water sources — to neighboring areas of Virginia and North Carolina.

And in many cases, the search has run smack against the hard fact that water elsewhere may be needed, or is at least jealously guarded, right where it is.

"We admit we took it from the Indians. But we don't want to see our Virginia neighbors take it away from us," Weldon, N.C., Mayor S. W. Oakley said recently.

The severe drought here last year pointed up a long-range problem that for almost a decade has been hanging over the heads of Tidewater officials, while the population swelled around them.

Consultants have predicted a critical water shortage here by the year 2000, based on a projected population of about 1,058,400 in the Southeastern Virginia Planning District.

Right now, the population of the eight localities in the district is about 800,000. That means about 18 percent of the state's population lives in 5 percent of its area.

"Surface water supplies are relatively available," said Jerry Barnes, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers office here. "The problem is how to distribute them, and that involves political boundaries."

"It's just the fact that there are a lot of people here. Either you have the water, or you move the people."

For almost two years the Corps of Engineers has been working with the district planning commission on alternatives for acquiring 70 million gallons of additional daily water supply by the year 2030 for the four largest cities in the district: Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake.

Seventy million gallons — enough water to make a pool 1½ feet deep and a half-mile square — is only about 10 million gallons less than is now used each day.

Officials in North Carolina, explaining that they don't want the flow or the ecological balance of their rivers upset, have objected strenuously to three of the plans — including the one that has the endorsement of most of the localities in the district.

North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has said he would go to court to stop the plans.

They include withdrawal of water from the Chowan River near Winton, N. C., or from the Roanoke River below Roanoke Rapids, and impoundment of Virginia's Blackwater River at Franklin.

The Blackwater, with the Nottoway River, forms the headwaters of the Chowan at the Virginia-North Carolina line.

The Blackwater plan, which would involve construction entirely within the district, is endorsed by all but one of the localities.

Officials in the Richmond area have expressed concern about another plan, which calls for a 910,000-acre lake on the Appomattox River along the Amelia-Powhatan County line.

And the Southside Planning District, which embraces localities that border Lake Gaston, have objected to a plan for withdrawing water from the lake. The Army Corps of Engineers itself, although still considering this plan, has expressed concern that two hydroelectric facilities on the lake might be affected.

The five plans range in cost from $126.4 million initially and $5.5 million a year for withdrawal from the Chowan to $213 million initially and $9.5 million a year to take water from the Roanoke River.

Among the remaining seven plans, tentatively set aside by the corps, is one for desalting Atlantic Ocean water.

A corps report in October said the large power requirements — 1.1 million tons of coal and 153 million kilowatt hours of electricity each year — probably make that plan unfeasible now.

The corps expects to make a recommendation to Congress this summer. Project Manager Robert Nordstrom said it could be 15 years after that before a plan could be working.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Will "All in the Family" be back next fall? The answers are (a) maybe; (b) maybe not; (c) perhaps with half the cast and a new title, and (d) perhaps as a frequent special.

CBS programs chief Robert Daly says: "We have an option on the show for another year and we're trying to convince the talent to stay." A spokesman said Daly means the entire cast.

But producer Norman Lear, whose hit series began on Jan. 12, 1971, says in a carefully qualified answer the "Family" as we know it is finished because two of its four stars are leaving.

He says Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers are committed to other projects next season. Reiner for ABC and Miss Struthers for CBS.

"And 'All in the Family' to me is that group, that set, that music, that title... we are looking at the last season of all that, and the concluding shows will wrap up all of that," he adds.

CBS, he said, would like to do a half-family series next fall with the two other "Family" regulars, Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton, and call it either "Archie and Edith" or "The Bunkers."

But Miss Stapleton isn't signed for either "and I'm not sure Carroll is, although he's indicated interest," Lear said.

"It could happen. I don't know. If the network can't get that, it would like to see six, eight, maybe 10 specials with all four ('Family' stars). That could happen if the other doesn't.

"But the show, 'All in the Family,' with everything it's come to mean, well, we're watching its concluding season now."

What about Daly's statement that CBS is trying to convince all the "Family" talent to stick around for a ninth season?

"Well, all that's true," Lear said. "And as part of that talent, I'm just telling you how I see it." And as he sees it, he reiterated, for the original "Family" this is "definitely its last year."

The landmark series, still drawing big ratings, has made Lear a sitcom king, enabled him to make 15 other network or syndicated comedies from the hit "Maude" to flops like "Hot L Baltimore."

Right now, he says, he's toiling on two more, a CBS pilot called "In the Beginning," about a nun at a storefront mission, and an untitled ABC pilot for a series based on Restoration comedy.

Although he's done movies and says he'll write and direct one seven months from now, half-hour comedies still are his main love. Why? He says his friends in movies also ask him that.

"They envy me one thing and I envy them another," Lear

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast today from the western Plains to the Midwest and Great Lakes. Rain is expected for most of the Pacific coast and the central Gulf.

A travelers advisory remained in effect for the North Carolina mountains today with roads still slippery from Tuesday's variety of snow, freezing rain and then more snow.

The latest storm that churned up from the Gulf area spread rain, some of it heavy in the eastern Texas and the upper Mississippi Valley. Temperatures will be cold over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map) form of thundershowers, from the Piedmont eastward. A tornado was reported in mid-afternoon in Wayne County but no injuries were reported.

Snowfall accumulated up to four inches in the northwest mountains while rain measured generally from half an inch to an inch elsewhere. Elizabeth City measured just over an inch.

Clearing weather was expected east of the mountains today but it was not expected to be for long. A low pressure system forming off the south coast of Texas is expected to bring the next precipitation in the form of rain starting in the south and changing to snow in the mountains Thursday and Friday.

Temperatures reached unusually warm levels over much of the state Tuesday with such high readings as 66 at Wilmington, 62 at Goldsboro and Fayetteville, 54 at Raleigh, and 40 at Charlotte. Greensboro and Hickory got no warmer than 33, and Asheville's high was 37.

The bidding:
North East South West
2 ♦ 3 ♣ Pass Pass
Dblc. Pass 3 ♣ Pass
4 ♣ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♠.

When an expert declarer duels with an equally capable defender, the battle of wits can be fascinating to watch.

North started the proceedings with a strong twobid, but when the auction came back to him, he did not simply rebid his diamond suit. That is the one auction that can be passed short of game if responder has a trickless hand. Instead, North chose to double, and when partner was able to show a spade suit, North gambled a raise.

West led his singleton club, then discarded the ten of hearts as a signal when East cashed a second high club. Had East continued with a third club, declarer would have been forced to make his contract. He would ruff the club in dummy and cross to the jack of diamonds. After cashing the ace and king of trumps, declarer would run diamonds, discarding four hearts, and the defenders would get only the ten of trumps in addition to their two club tricks.

When we saw the hand played, East came up with a clever scheme. Instead of playing a third club, he shifted to a heart at trick three. He hoped that, after West took the ace of hearts, declarer would try the trump finesse and go down.

West won the ace of hearts and continued with a heart to dummy's queen. Now it was declarer's turn to stop and work out the position.

Declarer knew that East could have prevented him from taking the trump finesse by simply playing a third round of clubs. Why, then, had East been so obliging as to leave declarer with the option of finessing for the queen of trumps?

There could be only one answer—East wanted declarer to finesse in trumps. If that was what East wanted, declarer reasoned that it had to be the wrong thing to do. So he cashed the ace and king of trumps, felling the queen. After drawing West's last trump, declarer claimed the rest of the tricks for his contract.

Energy Crisis Solution May See Alternate Fuels

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite confusion, frustration and lethargy in Washington and elsewhere, a clear picture is emerging of how the country's energy crisis ultimately will be solved.

The solutions, in many cases involving use of alternate fuels, will develop inexorably out of the scientific and economic facts of life.

Government, industry and the public sooner or later will have to accept the inevitable. But the inevitable likely will turn out to be a far cry from the disastrous future some experts have predicted since the Arab oil embargo of 1973.

Waiting for the inevitable, however, is "exactly what's wrong", says John Newbauer, editor of Aeronautics and Aeronautics magazine, published by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics in New York.

Newbauer says government, industry and the public should not sit by; should not forego making hard decisions. Such decisions, he says, will gain for them the benefit of early choices.

Newbauer is convinced more and more work must be done on alternative fuels to be used if and when petroleum really becomes extremely scarce.

The same view is expressed by Willis M. Hawkins, president of Lockheed California Co., and G.J. Schott of Boeing Co., and, not surprisingly, by leaders of the nuclear reactor industry.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center in Virginia and Old Dominion University have been urging greater priority for finding alternative aircraft fuels for several years. In 1973, they proposed a demonstration project to operate two hydrogen-fueled airliners for a substantial experimental period over a triangle embracing Alexandria, La., Oklahoma City, and San Bernardino, Calif.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has ordered a research appraisal of the whole problem of alternate fuels by the department and the armed forces during the first quarter of 1978. The military assigns a high priority to alternative fuels not only for aircraft but also for ships and for battle tanks and other ground vehicles.

Lockheed California's Hawkins is beating the drum for early development of hydrogen as a multi-purpose fuel for aircraft and industry even though it is not presently possible to extract hydrogen from water without putting in as much energy as you get.

Hawkins feels it will be necessary soon to extract hydrogen from water in coastal and big lake regions and to extract hydrogen from coal at the minehead, then funnel it into the nation's energy supply to replace expensive imported petroleum and the nation's diminishing supplies of natural gas.

Looking down the road, Hawkins believes hydrogen, which is nature's most plentiful and versatile source of energy, will become relatively economical. He even foresees it as a safe and desirable fuel for aircraft because it is so light in weight.

Hawkins would use nuclear energy to extract hydrogen from water. Coal would be burned to extract the hydrogen from coal. Once the fast breeder reactor becomes a reality, he said, the economics of extracting hydrogen from water ought to be much more favorable.

Looking still farther ahead, Hawkins takes a rather optimistic view, as do some oceanographers, of the possibility of using sea thermal energy, the heat that can be derived from the differences between the temperatures of the ocean waters at the surface and 2,000 feet down, to extract hydrogen from the seas.

But some aircraft experts and fuel chemists say hydrogen is too bulky and too explosive, that it would have to be liquefied and treated as a cryogenic fuel (at temperatures of almost 500 below zero F). The design of a large airplane to be fueled by liquid hydrogen would create many problems, they say.

Boeing's Schott raises the question of how it would be possible for the U.S. airline industry to convert to cryogenic fuels if the rest of the world's airlines refused to go along.

But General Electric and Pratt & Whitney, the two largest American builders of big jet engines, have made the point that the jet engine can run on many kinds of combustibles.

That brings up the question of non-cryogenic alternative fuels. Most frequently discussed are methanol (a word that used to mean wood alcohol but now usually means a similar alcohol derived from many sources), ethanol (common low-grade alcohols from many replacable sources), synthetic kerosene derived from coal, and, according to General Electric, "a number of other possible exotic fuel combinations."

Methanol doesn't arouse much enthusiasm because of its weight and because it is very corrosive. Boeing's Schott said in a recent article that a long-range airliner fueled by all-methanol would have a gross weight 2.4 times as great as present kerosene-fueled jet craft. That would cut either its range or its payload by more than half.

The most likely alternative is a mixture of ethanol alcohols, about 55 percent kerosene jet fuel, a small amount of water and a chemical catalyst. Such a compound would not be as good as all kerosene but it appears that it would present no very significant weight or other disadvantages.

Dr. Alfred Globus, head of Guardian Chemical Corp. of Hauppauge, N.Y., who has developed a catalyzed mixture of ethanol, water and either gasoline or diesel oil as a successful automotive fuel, also has tested a similar mixture for jet aircraft engines in the laboratory and is convinced it will work. Such fuel mixtures won't come into general use quickly, even for automobiles, he said, because there is not yet enough scarcity or price pressure to force their adoption.

The airlines and aircraft manufacturers feel they have considerable time to shift to alternative fuels. Their share of total petroleum consumption is only around two percent. They believe every other industry will be under much earlier pressure to shift to alternative fuels.

Nevertheless, Detroit's government-mandated efforts to produce automobiles that will yield at least 18 miles to the gallon — many light cars presently will yield better than 30 — ultimately will have to be proportionally matched by the aircraft, shipping and boating industries.

Pleasure boating consumes a relatively insignificant share of the nation's motor fuel but, as the magazine Motor Boating & Sailing said recently: "The person who consumes 1,000 gallons of fuel on a long weekend fishing trip from Miami to Bimini aboard a speedy sportfisherman is a symbol of the affluent consumer the general public sees no reason to pamper."

Realizing this, there is much propaganda in the boating world in favor of smaller, slower engines and diesel engines instead of gasoline motors. So far, it is mainly just propaganda.

But if pleasure boat fuel consumption is insignificant, that of ships is very large. A relatively small cruise ship will burn 40,000 to 50,000 gallons of bunker oil a day.

But the ship operates as well or better on steam as on petroleum. It seems likely that in years to come bigger ocean craft will have nuclear reactors to make steam. The feasibility of this has been proven with nuclear powered submarines and surface vessels.

Smaller ships will continue to be diesel-powered but the engines and hull shapes will be more fuel-efficient. It is even possible some smaller commercial vessels will return to sail.

For the railroads, the answer seems to be total electrification with power coming from coal or nuclear-fired generating plants.

Despite the hullabaloo in Detroit and Washington, the outlines for the future of automobiles, trucks and buses in a world of growing fuel shortages seem clear. Passenger cars will continue to become smaller, with much smaller engines, and this in itself will ease the problem of exhaust pollution. Diesel passenger cars will become more popular. The gasoline engine may disappear entirely from trucks, buses and even taxicabs.

Catalyzed mixtures of gasoline or diesel fuel, low grade alcohols and small amounts of water likely will replace pure gasoline and pure diesel oil. Engine design will change to get more miles to the gallon.

The production of the alcohols and catalysts in fuel mixtures will create new chemical agricultural business. Low-grade alcohols will be fermented and distilled partly from waste products and partly from crops specially grown and harvested on lands not now under cultivation.

The prospects for using the sun's rays to produce energy also have improved. It now has become generally understood that solar energy is most efficient in small localized units.

ALTERNATE FUELS — Their use is expected to play a key part in the ultimate solving of the country's energy crisis. (UPI Photo)
