from and how it will be used. (AP Laserphoto Chart)

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sent Congress today a $500.2-billion budget for fiscal 1979 that provides for new spending for defense, education and health, and leaves a deficit of $60.6 billion, the third largest ever.

If Congress approves, the budget will hike spending by $38 billion over 1978 and will be the first to hit the half-trillion-dollar mark. Spending would be equal to about $4,200 for every American.

But in his budget message, Carter said the real increase in federal purchasing power would be only 2 percent, and that the budget will actually reduce the federal share of the nation's gross national product from 22.6 percent to 22 percent.

The budget doesn't provide for any major new programs, but a contingency fund of $3 billion could be used to finance a start a national health insurance program or a new urban aid program that Carter said he will propose to Congress in March.

The budget includes Carter's proposed $25-billion in tax cuts that the administration contends are needed to generate one million new jobs in the economy in 1979.

The budget is for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 of this year. The projected outlays of $500.2 billion compare with outlays during the 1978 fiscal year of $462.2 billion. Receipts are projected at $439.6 billion, leaving a deficit of $60.6 billion, compared with an estimated deficit of $61.8 billion this year. The record annual deficit was $66.4 billion in fiscal 1976.

Carter said his proposal to cut taxes permanently by $17 billion for individuals, $6 billion for corporations and $2 billion in excise and payroll taxes is essential to ensure adequate growth of the economy in 1979, even if it means a delay in his goal of balancing the federal budget by 1981.

"I judged that the most important priority this year was to reduce the burdens on taxpayers," he said. "Only in this way can we ensure a vigorous economy, a declining unemployment rate, a strong expansion of private investment, and a stable budget balance in future years."

Little was said about balancing the budget in 1981, which clearly has become an increasingly less likely prospect as time goes by. Budget Director James T. McIntyre Jr. told reporters that if Carter recommends additional tax reductions in future years it will be impossible to achieve balance in 1981.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare would receive the largest portion of Carter's budget, a total of $181.3 billion, up from $164.6 billion in 1978. Some $103.1 billion of this will be for Social Security payments.

The Defense Department would receive the next largest share, $115.2 billion, up from $105.3 billion in 1978. Carter said this represents an increase in real spending — meaning after inflation is discounted — of 3 percent. Virtually all of that would go to strengthen U.S. participation in NATO.

He said he has complied with his campaign promise to slash defense spending because his budget "is $8 billion below the defense budget projected for 1979 by the previous administration."

The budget contained Carter's forecasts for the economy for the next few years. His goal is to shave half a percent from both inflation and unemployment each year, with overall economic growth averaging about 5 percent a year.

For 1979, the targets are: —Gross national product, to 4.8 percent, from 4.7 percent in 1978 and 4.9 percent in 1977.

—Inflation, consumer prices cut to 6 percent, from 6.1 percent in 1978 and 6.9 percent in 1977.

—Unemployment, 5.8 percent by the fourth quarter, down from 6.2 percent in 1978 and 6.6 percent in 1977. The jobless rate in December of last year was 6.4 percent.

Carter said the main elements of his tax cut program for individuals are to replace the existing $750 deduction for person exemptions with a tax credit of $240, and to reduce the income tax rates from the current range of 14-70 percent to a new range of 12-68 percent.

He said there would be $258 in tax savings for the typical family of four with $15,000 income: $270 for a family with $20,000 income, $320 for a family with $25,000 income, and $322 for a family with $30,000 income.

Carter said his increase in defense spending will provide

Wealthy Belgian Abducted

PARIS (AP) — Gunmen riding a motorbike and a truck cut off the chauffeur-driven automobile of Baron Edouard Jean Empain on a Paris street today and kidnapped the Belgian nobleman, one of Europe's wealthiest industrialists, police sources said.

The sources said no ransom demand had been received two hours after the late-morning abduction of the 41-year-old Empain, president and managing director of the French-Belgian Empain-Schneider group, which has an annual turnover of $4.5 billion.

The chauffeur was reported badly beaten by the kidnapers and hospitalized for treatment of his injuries.

Police sources said Empain had just left his home in the city's fashionable 16th district and his car was trying to pass a small truck when a man on a motorbike stopped in front of Empain's car, forcing it to halt.

Two armed men jumped from the truck and the man on the motorbike pulled a gun, the sources said. The trio beat the chauffeur and threw him into the truck and dragged Empain out of the car.

The chauffeur, apparently the only witness to the abduction, alerted police after he was freed about two miles away at the Porte Maillot on the city outskirts.

Police immediately went on a nationwide alert, but the sources said they had little to go on.

Vance Expects Resuming Of Middle East Parleys

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has matched Egypt's suspension of their foreign ministers' talks in Jerusalem by refusing to resume the Cairo parley of their defense ministers, but Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance expects negotiations to resume soon.

Vance returned to Washington Sunday a few hours after the Israeli cabinet voted not to send Defense Minister Ezer Weizman back to the Egyptian capital for the time being to resume talks on return of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt.

A senior member of Vance's party said the secretary expects Foreign Ministers Moshe Dayan and Mohamed Kamel to resume their negotiations on a declaration of principles for a peace agreement, which Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suspended last Wednesday.

after a cooling-off period of a week or 10 days.

The official said if Dayan and Kamel don't meet in Jerusalem or Cairo, Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton Jr., who remained in the Middle East, will shuttle between the two capitals as messenger and mediator.

Vance advised the Israelis and Egyptians to keep quiet in the meantime.

"We believe it essential the parties put behind them the public exchanges of recent days and try to recapture the spirit of a common search for peace," he said.

Sadat told his parliament Saturday that Israel sabotaged the Jerusalem talks, and Prime Minister Menahem Begin in a statement after his cabinet met Sunday said the Egyptian president must soften his public statements before negotiations can resume.

Begin also accused Egypt of a "campaign of vilification" against Israel.

Snow-Blanketed States Greet Sunny Skies And A Chance To Dig Out

By The Associated Press

Sunny skies over most of the snowstorm-battered Northeast gave many a chance to dig out from under tons of packed snow and ice today.

Light snow continued to fall in some areas Sunday, but the National Weather Service predicted little precipitation today. Forecasters said sunny skies would continue throughout the area, but some flurries or rain might be in store Tuesday or Wednesday.

Most National Guard units called out to help with snow removal and emergency services after last week's storm were sent home Sunday.

Schools were closed in parts of Massachusetts and Kentucky as clean-up efforts continued, and some Virginia residents still were without power. But most areas concentrated on clearing streets and highways and disposing of tons of snow along curbs and roadsides.

In New Hampshire, bright sunshine melted up to 2 feet of snow from rooftops, which froze into sparkling 20-foot-long icicles as it dripped to the ground. Many residents brought out skis, snow shoes and snowmobiles while others grabbed brooms and shovels to begin clearing driveways and sidewalks. Most roadways were clear.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis told state employees in Boston to stay home today unless their jobs are essential, and the school department ordered public schools in Boston and 20 suburban communities closed for the day.

In New York City, Mayor Edward Koch said he would have to ask the Board of Estimate for a new snow-removal appropriation to continue clearing city streets after Friday's 13.6-inch snowfall. The city Department of Sanitation urged commuters and residents to leave their cars at home and use public transportation.

Enterprising shovelers, generally youngsters, freelanced around the city — $8 in Queens for a driveway or sidewalk in front of a residence, up to $15 for a sidewalk in suburban New Jersey.

Crime took something of a holiday in New York, with police reporting almost no serious crimes in the city since the snow began falling.

New Jersey roadways were clear Sunday but much of the state remained sealed up in a 14-inch blanket of frozen snow. At least 12 people died in weather-related accidents during the weekend, including one man killed when a snow-covered patio roof collapsed.

Snowplows, snowblowers, snow shovels and tow trucks worked overtime as municipal workers opened streets and residents cleared vehicles and sidewalks of drifts up to 8 feet high.

Two of three runways at Newark International Airport remained closed Sunday, but a spokesman said no flights were delayed.

"As the sun works on it, we hope to break up some of the ice on the other runways," the spokesman said. "We're in good shape."

Rhode Island Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy called off a state of emergency and deactivated 1,000 National Guardsmen called out last week to help cities and towns dig out from under more than 18 inches of snow.

National Guard officials said sunny weather Sunday helped clean-up efforts, although it was expected to take several more days to clear snow and ice-covered roadways.

Three people died in weekend weather-related accidents in Rhode Island, two while shoveling snow and one, a 25-year veteran letter carrier, while delivering mail.

A snow emergency remained in effect today in Maryland's two westernmost counties, requiring motorists to use snow tires or chains. State officials said most major roads were passable. Cumberland reported 21 inches of snow still on the ground and Hagerstown still had a 24-inch blanket.

Power was restored Sunday to Richmond, Va., residents who suffered outages during last week's

Sniper Suspect Is Held

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — An ex-policeman facing charges filed last month of stealing from a furniture store has been arrested and charged with the Jan. 14 sniper shooting of a State Bureau of Investigation agent here.

William C. Blount, 29, of Washington, was arrested Sunday and placed in the Beaufort County jail in lieu of $35,000 bond. He was charged with secret assault and shooting into an occupied dwelling, authorities said.

SBI agent Lewis G. Young, 27, was shot the night of Jan. 14 as he was fixing a snack in his kitchen. The bullet came through a window and struck but did not enter the back of Young's skull. He left the hospital last week.

Blount was a former Washington policeman and worked as an East Carolina University security guard. He is currently unemployed. Blount was charged in December with felonious larceny of a furniture store in Chocowinity, according to Beaufort County Sheriff O.E. Davis.

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten said Young's shooting was linked to an investigation in which he had been involved. Thirty five SBI agents took part in the investigation, along with the Beaufort County Sheriff's Department and police departments in Washington and Belhaven.

The county Alcoholic Control Board and the Highway Patrol also helped out. Gov. Jim Hunt had offered a $5,000 reward for information in the case. It was not known if anyone had qualified to collect it.

Base Closings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown says the Pentagon plans to present a "base realignment list" in March, but he is not indicating a goal in numbers of bases to be closed or reduced in scope.

He said the Pentagon is "still developing a list." At a briefing on the new defense budget, Brown confirmed reports that the Cater administration was preparing a base reduction plan, the first such move since 1976 in the Ford administration.

Other officials have said they are shooting for enough changes to save about $250 million to $300 million a year.

These officials had projected an announcement in late January or February, and Brown's forecast suggested that the job of drawing up a list that could avoid political repercussions was taking longer.

The defense secretary, noting that congressional action and filing of environmental impact statements tend to delay base closings or reductions, said he expects the new actions to have impact on the budget only toward the end of fiscal 1979.

Development Program Performance 'Audited'

The Department of Housing and Urban Development recently conducted a performance audit of Greenville's Community Development program.

The city reported that a six-member team from HUD evaluated Greenville's performance in land acquisition, financial management, relocation, equal opportunity, citizen participation, environmental reviews, contracts and labor standards, and general administration.

An evaluation of the housing rehabilitation program will be conducted next month, it was noted.

Preliminary findings revealed that the city has done a "superior job in spending Community Development program funds, acquiring land, and in performing environmental reviews," city officials reported.

HUD representatives indicated that in each of the three program areas, the city was performing better than any city in the state. Minor recommendations for improvement were made for the other areas, the city reported, but Greenville's overall rating was "excellent."

The audit dealt with the city's allocation of over $5.8 million in the last three years. Major projects which have been undertaken with CD funds include the redevelopment of the West Meadowbrook neighborhood; the construction of Arlington Boulevard from Evans Street to Hooker Road; the purchase of the West Greenville Recreation Center and the Housing rehabilitation loan and grant fund.

Future CD projects here will include tennis courts in West Greenville, improvements to 14th Street, and the South Evans Redevelopment Plan.

In commenting on the HUD findings, Mayor Percy Cox observed, "I am extremely pleased that the HUD representatives commended the city on its excellent Community Development program record."

The mayor added, "We have accomplished a great deal in the past three years, and it's nice to have that fact acknowledged by HUD. However, there is still much work left to be done in the CD area. We will continue to press on with the job and utilize all available resources to correct our housing and redevelopment problems."

UNANIMOUS RULING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that defendants who successfully fight civil rights suits may get the other side to pay their legal costs when the suit was "frivolous, unreasonable or without foundation."

APPRECIATION

Linda Baldwin of the Pitt County Department of Social Services has asked Hotline to thank the many, many people who responded to the Hotline appeal published shortly before Christmas. This "tremendous response" enabled the Department to provide Christmas gifts for about 150 children in foster care in Pitt County, she said.

Some Relief To Every U.S. Taxpayer

Your Income Taxes Redesigned Form 1040 Said Easier Than Ever

EDITOR'S NOTE — Following is the first in a series of five articles entitled "You and Your Income Taxes." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1977 tax returns.

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's short form 1040 is easier to read and should be readily understood by persons with a 10th-grade education, according to a study by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS has also redesigned form 1040 and hopes the changes will make the long form easier.

The IRS decided to do away with last year's green and red colors for the short form and the red, white and blue colors for the long form because of complaints they made reading the forms difficult. This year the 1040A is pastel pink, the 1040 pastel blue.

The IRS has also shortened sentences to make them easier to understand. For example, last year's forms had this wording under Presidential Campaign Fund: "Do you wish to designate $1 of your taxes for this fund?" This year it simply says, "Do you want $1 to go to this fund?"

Robert Brauer, chairman of IRS's Forms Committee, said the short form instructions for last year were analyzed for readability. The study concluded they could be understood by people with the equivalent of two years of college education. This year's instructions could be understood by people with 10 years of school.

"Anybody who sat down and looked at the forms in a few minutes could do it themselves," Brauer said. "Fewer people should have to go to tax preparers."

H & R Block, the largest tax preparer, says it expects to lose $10 million in business, or 5 percent, because of the changed forms this year.

There are several simple but major differences in this year's format for 1977 tax returns:

—The short form is figured out on one full-length page rather than two short pages.

—The long form is still two pages long, but the taxpayer signs the return on the back page rather than the front page. The IRS has tried to eliminate what it calls the "flip flop" by mean taking a figure from Page 2 and entering it on Page 1.

—More use of tax tables. Writers of the 1977 tax law estimate that 96 percent of taxpayers can use tax tables this year rather than figure out taxes by arithmetic. The IRS includes the standard deduction in the tax table for people using the short form. The name of the standard deduction has been changed to "zero bracket amount."

Brauer said the IRS wants comments from taxpayers but expects some criticism, if only because people are not used to the new returns.

"Many people like to be able to compare last year's return to this year's return," Brauer said. "Since the forms are difficult this year, it will be difficult to compare."

Also, he said, "some people prefer signing their return on the first page but this year's long form is signed on the back page."

"The mere fact of change can tend to complicate it for some people and understandably so," he said.

One part of the form that could cause confusion is the entry for "earned income credit," which is figured out on a separate page.

A tip: Don't bother with it unless you earned less than $8,000 last year. If you did make less, take a close look at it. You may be entitled to up to $400. More about that later in this series.

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's budget would bring at least some relief to every American taxpayer, but it could actually reshape the lives of some individuals such as aerospace workers, slum-dwellers or businessmen.

A teen-ager out of school and out of work might find employment in the expanded jobs program Carter proposed today.

An unemployed aerospace worker might get back on a payroll, if Congress agrees to Carter's increased spending for the space shuttle.

A slum-dweller might get the first chance to live in decent housing.

A businessman accustomed to the so-called "three-martini lunch" might find his company cracking down on such affairs if Congress goes along with Carter's plan to halve the amount that can be deducted.

For those who could benefit or suffer from Carter's budget, the impact is not yet certain. Congress must still accept, revise or reject Carter's plans and that could take until next summer or fall.

But it's possible to say what the impact would be if Carter does convince Congress to adopt some of his plans. For example, Carter wants to cut the rate of every American's income taxes.

Without any changes, a family of four with an income of $15,000 a year would face income taxes of $1,330. Under Carter's budget, their taxes would drop $258 to $1,072.

For the same sized family with a $30,000 annual income, Carter would cut federal income taxes a little bit more in dollar terms, about $322. But that cut to $3,910 would be far less in terms of the percentage decrease than for the less-well-off family.

Carter's budget is not all good tidings, though. Social Security taxes will go up between 1978 and 1979, chewing up $10 of the tax cut for the $15,000-a-year family and about $88 for the $30,000-a-year group.

Also, Carter's economic forecast predicts inflation of about 6 percent a year. That rate would steal $900 out of the buying power of $15,000-a-year family and $1,800 of $30,000 one.

Others changes are less clearly tied to Carter's budget. The budget says that the average monthly welfare benefit will rise from about $250 a month to about $261. This change would reflect not only federal budget decisions, but individual moves by states to increase benefit levels of their needy citizens.

The aid to families with dependent children system — which is what many think of as welfare — is a joint federal-state system, subject to decisions on both sides.

And then there are large segments of the budget over which Carter exercises little control, thanks to previous decisions.

About one out of every five federal dollars will go out in Social Security checks.

About one out of eight federal dollars will go to pay for medical care for Americans and other health costs.

And one dollar in eight will go just to pay the interest on the national debt, which is projected to be about $4,007 for every man woman and child by Sept. 30, 1979.

But Carter's budget offers a wide range of new opportunities, affecting limited numbers of citizens:

—You might find it easier and cheaper to buy your own home in a city with help from a new program designed to provide assistance to moderate income families.

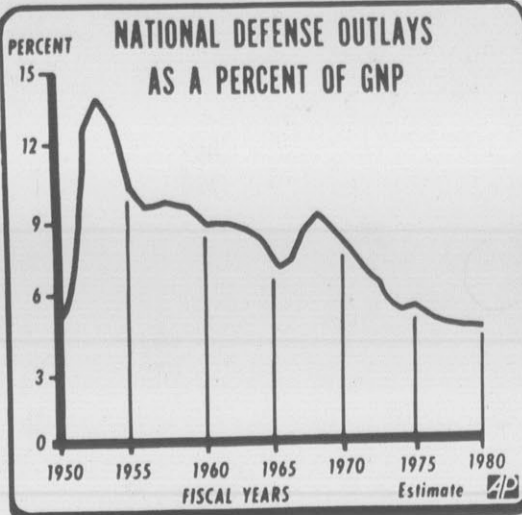

—If you are a Vietnam-era veteran, the Veterans Administration would offer a new psychological counseling service.

—A low-income child would be more likely to see a doctor before health problems develop so that preventive care can begin.

—You get a federal rent subsidy or a place live in federally financed public housing.

—Birth control information and aid would be more available to teen-agers in some areas because of increased federal support for such work.

—If climate is your specialty, you would have a better chance of getting financial support from the federal government for research.

for "prudent growth" in U.S. military might, especially in the contributions to U.S. ground and air forces committed to defending Western Europe, which he said is needed to offset an annual 3 percent increase in Soviet defense spending.

He said he plans to provide enough additional equipment to Europe to outfit three more divisions that could be flown to Europe in an emergency, making the total equipment sufficient to equip five divisions. It would reduce the reliance on long-range cargo airlifts.

The budget also provides for a start-up in production of the Army's advanced XM-1 tank. The budget would reduce the number of new ships for the Navy from 19 to 14.

In education, Carter said he wants to increase spending by $1.3 billion, a gain of 14.2 percent that is the largest hike since the Democrats controlled the White House a decade ago.

The new funds would be primarily for emphasizing the teaching of disadvantaged children and for conducting research into learning difficulties.

In health, Carter proposed spending $118 million on a new program to extend Medicaid benefits to about 100,000 low-income pregnant women who are otherwise ineligible. There would also be expanded contraceptive services and sex education for teen-agers.

Carter again backed legislation to contain hospital costs, saying it could save $21.3 billion by 1983 in Medicare and Medicaid payments. He proposed $263 million for a child health assessment program for poor children under age six.

He asked for a 25 percent increase in spending on energy programs to a total of $12 billion, with about $3.3 billion of this to purchase and store crude oil in the new, 500-million-barrel Strategic Petroleum Reserve, which has already been authorized by Congress.

Spending for energy conservation would increase by $80 million to $324 million. The budget provides for spending on employment programs sufficient to maintain the 725,000 public service jobs that were authorized for 1978. The cost is projected at $6.3 billion in 1979.

It also sets aside $400 million for job and training opportunities for 80,000 youths and disadvantaged persons in private industry, a new program.

Seeks Care For Singer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Twice a day, seven days a week, Jackie Wilson receives a visit from Joyce McRae, who says she has spent $15,000 of her own money on speech therapy and other help for the semi-comatose rhythm and blues singer.

Wilson, best known for his hit recordings of "Lonely Tears" and "Higher and Higher," slipped into a coma after suffering a massive heart attack more than two years ago during a performance at a Cherry Hill, N.J., night club.

A semi-coma is a condition from which a patient can be aroused at times. Mrs. McRae believes the 43-year-old singer could perform again if she was made his guardian and placed under her care.

"Every time he has gotten therapy, he has shown his ability to progress," she said Sunday. "He's not a vegetable. I have absolutely no problem communicating with him. He blinks his eyes and says 'um, um,' when he means yes and 'uh, uh,' when he means no."

A hearing on the matter is set for today in Camden County Surrogate Court where Mrs. McRae is contesting the authority of Camden attorney Wayne Bryant, appointed by the court to oversee Wilson's affairs and his hospital care.

Dates Hatteras Charting: 1823

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Richard A. Stephenson, professor of geography at East Carolina University, has recently dated a chart showing a triangulation survey of Hatteras Shoals, placing in 1823.

The original chart is held in the Cartographic Archives at the National Archives in Washington. The survey was accomplished under the direction of Captain Jesse D. Elliot, U.S. Navy. By searching old Navy records at the Archives Dr. Stephenson was able to date the survey, thus greatly enhancing its usefulness.

The dating of this particular chart was "extremely important because of its detail and its accuracy brought about by the triangulation method of surveying using the old Hatteras Light as a reference point," Dr. Stephenson said.

On the chart, a distance of 1,297 yards from the old Hatteras light to the ocean was shown. In November, 1977, the ocean, as it has several times recently, was again threatening the remains of the old Light which was authorized by Congress in 1974. At the Hatteras Light the historic chart was used to show that erosion has been occurring at an annual rate of approximately twenty-five feet per year.

Since 1937, when a survey was made by the Civilian Conservation Corps, the erosion has been about four feet per year. But since 1964 when a survey was made by the National Park Service the erosion rate has been about 13 feet per year. During most of the past decade groins have been in use to retard erosion at the light.

Dr. Stephenson, a geomorphologist and an authority on coastal processes, has been studying beach erosion along the south Atlantic seaboard since he came to East Carolina University in 1962.

Some of the results of his research indicate that the erosion process and the associated rates vary along the coast and are cyclic. Erosion has been more rapid in the past two decades, but probably not as great as it has been at certain time during the past several centuries.

"There is a good possibility that the rapid erosion we are observing now will again decrease some in the future, but that the migration landward of the barrier island system is a continuing natural phenomenon," Dr. Stephenson said.

"There is not much we can do except to manage the area as best we can and this will hopefully decrease the loss and damage to life and property as sea level continues to rise," he said.

Klan Planning Spring Travels

LODI, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan will travel to 16 state capitals this spring to demonstrate against forced busing for the integration of schools, a Klan leader said.

Dale Reusch of Lodi, Klan imperial wizard, said Klan executive board members voted at a meeting in Columbus, Ohio, Sunday to hold the anti-busing rallies on the steps of the state capital buildings in the target states.

The kickoff rally will be April 29 in Baton Rouge, La., Reusch said.

The other target states are Ohio, New Jersey, Kentucky, California, Delaware, Maryland, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A new insurance company, the Lawyers Liability Insurance Co., funded by North Carolina lawyers will begin writing liability policies to lawyers around March 1, the insurance committee chairman of the state's bar association said Saturday.

Most Filing School Data

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite the refusal of about 60 Christian academies to file reports with the state on their course offerings, enrollment and teacher credentials, most private schools are complying willingly with the regulations.

But even among the approximately 240 private schools who recognize the state's right to regulate them to some degree, there is a certain guarded sympathy with the stand of the private schools.

"What we want is the right to be different from the public schools," said Joseph M. Lalley Jr., president of the North Carolina Association of Independent Schools.

"If the state went too far, we might have to side with them (the academies) on some issues," he added. "Whether we could become involved in civil disobedience is another matter."

The Christian academies, most of them run by fundamentalist Protestant sects, have taken the position that regulation of their activities in any fashion implies the right of the state to regulate or approve of their religion.

They have said they expect a court battle with the state and have hired Harrisburg, Pa., attorney William Ball, who successfully defended the right of the Amish not to send their children to school after age 14.

Private schools and the state have clashed over a number of issues, most frequently over state certification of teachers.

The most recent clash has been over inclusion of private schools in mandatory state competency tests which high school students will soon be required to pass before they can graduate.

Salutes Role of Begin, Sadat

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin have accepted personal responsibility for seeking peace in the Middle East.

"It is not the case of an old man on his death bed sending out young men to do the job," Young said. "Instead of sending 100,000 young Egyptians to their deaths, Sadat and Begin have taken on the task of peace themselves."

Despite the recent breakdown in the Egyptian-Israeli talks, Young discussed them optimistically at a testimonial dinner Saturday night for Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif. Young termed the discussions a "move away from traditional politics."

Who Should Hunt Missing Ducks?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A group of us men were lunching together at our club when a man (I'll call him Mr. Duck Hunter) said, "I've had a fantastic season and have some ducks put away for all of you."
Another man (I'll call Mr. Big Shot) spoke up and said, "My wife is an expert at preparing wild duck, so why not send all the ducks to my house and she'll prepare a duck dinner for all of us?" Everyone agreed it would be great. Months passed and no duck dinner. Finally, Mr. Duck Hunter asked me if I'd ever been invited to Mr. Big Shot's for that duck dinner. I told him I hadn't. Then he said he had sent 12 ducks to Mr. Big Shot's house as promised, and that's the last he heard of them.
My question: Shouldn't someone ask Mr. Big Shot what happened to the ducks? And if so, who should ask?
NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Yes, Mr. Duck Hunter should ask him. Either the idea of the duck dinner was just ducky with everybody except Mr. Big Shot's wife, or the birds ended up in the craws of Mr. Big Shot and all the Little Shots.

In any case, let this be a lesson to you. A bird in the hand is worth two in somebody else's freezer, so next time someone offers you a gift, don't let a go-between fowl you up.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Lori, is not quite 16, but most of her classmates are 17, and some are 18. She has been invited to a boy-girl party next Saturday night at the home of a classmate (boy) whose parents are divorced. When we asked Lori who was going to chaperone this party, she said she wasn't sure, but it would be "well chaperoned." Abby, this boy lives with his father, who has the reputation for being quite a "swinger," and somehow we can't see this father staying home on a Saturday night and properly chaperoning the party.

When we told Lori that either she would have to call and find out definitely who was chaperoning that party or she couldn't go, she became furious and said we didn't trust her. We do trust her, but do you think we're wrong in our demands?
CONCERNED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: No! Stick with your guns. There should be more parents like you.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 24 and very much in love with a 21-year-old woman. Last week I asked her to marry me. Then she said she thought I should know that she had been to bed with four men whom she identified. (Two are in our social circle.)

I appreciate her honesty, but I don't know whether I can ever forgive her. Every time I look at her now I think of those other men.

I'm not worried about trusting her, because she says she loves me and has turned off all thoughts of other men, and I know she's sincere. But I am not sure I can ever be happy with her knowing what I know.

I have never been intimate with a girl. Should I go ahead and marry her and try my best to quit holding her past against her?
OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: Don't marry her until you no longer hold her past against her. A person's past experiences (good and bad) make them what they are, so if you "love" her, accept her, past and all, without being judgmental.
(P.S. Be honest with her about your feelings. She may not want to marry YOU, knowing how YOU feel.)

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Pledge Ceremony Held Last Week

The home of Barbara Zicherman was the scene of a candlelight pledge ceremony inducting Dorothy Wells and Linda Threewitts into the Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority.

President Louise Spain conducted the meeting. Joan Robinson, philanthropic chairperson, announced that Alpha Omega has set up an emergency fund to be used to aid persons in need through the Department of Social Services.

Members will give a Valentine party for the clients at the ADAP Center Feb. 14. Ways and Means Chairperson Shirley Westbrook announced that ESA will sponsor a bake sale at Pitt Plaza March 18. Plans were discussed concerning a hot dog sale to be held in April.

The program for the evening was given by Ms. Zicherman on making 60-minute rolls. She also gave the recipe.

Members will be joined by their husbands for dinner at the Golden Dragon Restaurant for their January social.

Tomatoes and green pepper cooked in olive oil make a delightful filling for an omelet.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE CANNON

Celebrates 50th Anniversary

AYDEN — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cannon of Ayden celebrated their 50th anniversary at a reception held Sunday afternoon at the Ayden Community Building.

The couple has two children, Samuel E. Cannon of Crystal Lake, Ill., and Mrs. Naomi Terrel of Ayden, and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Cannon was dressed in a formal length aqua dress with a lace coat, complemented by a corsage of yellow roses.

Miss Karen Terrel, granddaughter of the couple, registered guests and received gifts.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth and decorated with twin arrangements of yellow and gold mums, forget-me-nots, snapdragons and silver candelabra holding gold candles.

Mrs. Maggie McGlohan and Mrs. G. R. Kite assisted in serving.

Approximately 150 friends and relatives attended. Special guests included Cannon's sisters and brother, Mrs. Mary E. Worthington and Mrs. Ida Branch, both of Ayden, and Edward Cannon of Crystal Beach, Mrs. Alice Stokes of Greenville, sister of Mrs. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fletcher of Port Jefferson, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zermuel of Clearwater, Fla., and the couples' daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joyce Cannon of Crystal Lake, Ill.

Good-byes were said by the honorees' children.

Prior to the reception, the couple renewed their wedding vows at the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gary Bailey, church minister. A program of songs was presented by Mrs. Kristie Bailey, organist.

Orange Raisin Cake
JANE KEELY'S ORANGE RAISIN CAKE

Good Housekeeping's Director of Appliances and Home Care generously contributes her easy version of a popular dessert.

- 1 large orange
- 1-3rd cup milk
- 2 1/4-cups all-purpose flour
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 2-3rds cup butter
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup walnuts, chopped

Cut unpeeled orange into medium-size chunks. In an electric blender at high speed whirl orange with the milk until finely chopped. Pour into large bowl of electric mixer. Add remaining ingredients except raisins and nuts. Beat low speed until well mixed, constantly scraping bowl. Beat at high speed for 3 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl. Stir in raisins and nuts. Pour into a greased and floured 13-by 9-inch pan and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack. Makes 12 servings.

Activities Report Given At Meet

Reports on Christmas activities were given at the meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. P. Shaw.

The group aided a needy family and provided food, clothing, toys for the children and wood for heating. It was announced that wives of several Optimist Club members provided items for the family. The group also participated in Operation Santa Claus.

Mrs. Charles Ross gave a report on Operation Sunshine activities and announced that World Day of Prayer will be held at First Christian Church the first Friday in March.

Hostesses for February and March will be Mrs. Larry Good and Mrs. Ross, respectively.

Mrs. Good gave a brief report on the upcoming Optimist Club Boat Show.

Mrs. Shaw gave the devotional and Mrs. John Trotman, president, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Bailey To Give Program

Mrs. Juanita Bailey, home economics extension agent of Windsor, will be presenting a program "Doughnut Delight" Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Extension Office.

She will discuss types of doughnuts, ingredients, cooking methods and doughnut topping. The public is invited to attend.

Couple Weds On Sunday

KURE BEACH — The marriage of Judy Ray Ring of Kure Beach and Superior Court Judge Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Farmville was solemnized Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Kure Memorial Lutheran Church.

Dr. F. L. Conrad officiated at the ceremony attended by immediate family members.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ring of Kure Beach. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. R. D. Rouse of Farmville, and the late Mr. Rouse.

Energy Requires Top Priority

President Carter in his State of the Union message last week saw the nation's economy as sound.

As expected he proposed a tax cut of $25 billion with $17 billion of this to go to individuals.

Energy was a focal point of his talk to Congress.

He reminded Congress that it had not acted on energy problems by saying, "The fact remains that on energy legislation we have failed the American people. . . . Not much longer can we tolerate this stalemate. It undermines our national interest both at home and abroad."

Mindful of the still high unemployment rate he asked an increase in funds for public jobs for the young. He asked increased support for the public sector employment programs.

The president requested that all sectors of the economy help control inflation by holding down price and wage increases during the year.

He touched on the Middle East peace negotiations and continued his campaign for approval of the Panama Canal treaty.

Commentators were quick to point out that the big tax reduction proposed by the president will be largely offset by the Social Security tax increase which is ahead. If the tax cuts pass — and they probably will — it will be somewhat of a dollar trade-off for the public.

As for inflation even the president must know that what he proposed will bring virtually no results. Inflation will go right on unless we can get the rapidly rising cost of energy under control.

The nation needs to attack its energy problems and the sooner Congress recognizes this the better.

Major Job For Next FBI Director

The administration's long search for a new Federal Bureau of Investigation director is over with the appointment of William Webster of St. Louis.

Webster, who is a Republican, takes over an FBI that is troubled by revelations from its past.

He is a federal appeals judge who has a reputation for honesty.

Webster has a major job to do in restoring the FBI to the position of respect and admiration that it once enjoyed.

Many Students Not Aided

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A headcount of public school students who are receiving special education services of one sort or another shows 117,648 in that category.

The census taken this fall statewide also lists 18,142 young people who have identifiable special needs, but are not receiving any special education services; and another 50,493 who likely some special condition which could benefit from tailored school programs but are neither presently in such a program nor specifically identified.

The total need for special education work — given the categories established in the census — would be 186,283 among a total student population of 1.2 million in North Carolina.

Officials at the State Department of Public Instruction figure it would cost somewhere between $32 million and $75 million in new money to properly educate the students not presently getting special attention.

Side Range

The wide range of cost projections comes from two factors: insufficient knowledge as to the true numbers of students despite the census; and choices in the extent of programs which are offered.

A strong pitch is presently being made for money in the budget proposals which Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. will lay before the General Assembly in May.

At minimum, say school officials, the system needs 2,513 teachers, 721 aides, 81 psychologists, 19 occupational therapists, 19 physical therapists, 24 coordinators, 36 social workers for the handicapped, 36 counselors for exceptional children, six nurses and 10 clerical assistants.

This proposal comes in addition to existing special programs which are costing $60 million-plus.

It is difficult to identify actual amounts spent on special education since there is a growing tendency toward "mainstreaming," that is, working with the special child in a regular classroom as much as possible while providing specialized counseling and rehabilitation programs in addition. This approach has been urged by numerous experts, and is endorsed by the legislative commission on Children With Special Needs. Carey Fendley, director of the Association for Retarded Citizens and a member of that commission, envisions the time when no distinction will be made in budgets or programs for children with special needs and other students.

NOBLITT

"It is simply education, and ought to be identified as such. No labels need to be attached... this is just part of our duty to educate," he believes.

Not New

Ted Drain, director of the division for exceptional children at the State Department of Public Instruction, sees school programs moving more strongly toward mainstreaming. There is not much really new about that, says Drain. "Many of these kids were already in the classrooms without being identified as needing special attention anyway. And a lot of so-called normal children will benefit from the emphasis being given to specialized instruction... not only the handicapped can gain."

There have been some instances of teacher resistance to the mainstreaming of children with special needs; complaints that many teachers are not prepared to cope with difficult situations which might come up in severe cases, and the thought that special attention to certain individuals might take away time and attention from the remainder of the class.

Drain says this resistance is lessening as more experience is gained in the schools actually working with the special kids.

A major need in coming years, however, will be specialized courses in teacher training institutes with all certified teachers eventually needing some college work in identifying and working with the handicapped, state specialists say.

The First Carter Year

WASHINGTON—Everyone is doing it—analyzing Jimmy Carter's first year in office. So it came as no surprise when I was invited to a meeting of newspaper cartoonists and humor columnists last week at the Tongsun Park Pizza Palace and Message Parlor in beautiful downtown Gaithersburg.

The man sitting next to him agreed. "He also had hair. When a President has both teeth and hair he should be ripe for plucking."

A third cartoonist said, "Ford had regular teeth and very little hair. Yet in some ways he was easier to draw."

A fourth cartoonist commented, "I don't think it was the teeth or the hair. I believe we all thought we would have a ball with peanuts and the screwy family. After three weeks we used up every peanut joke in the book."

"I thought Billy Carter would last the full four years. Then he sold out and was overexposed in three months. I can't draw Billy Carter any more without getting sick." "Try writing about him, and see how it gets you," I said.

"If only Bert Lance had not resigned," someone said wistfully.

"That was a tough break," a humor columnist agreed. "He could have been this Administration's Bebe Rebozo."

"I think Carter's big mistake from our point of view," another club member said, "was appointing so many faceless people in his Cabinet. For example, Vance is no Kissinger."

"Kissinger is no Kissinger," anyone else added.

Other Editors Say Support For Exam

(The Raleigh Times)

The Supreme Court's ruling in favor of South Carolina's use of the National Teacher Exam is a major step toward vindicating North Carolina's effort to use the exam as a gauge for accrediting teachers.

That gauge, at present, may screen out more blacks than whites. But having to abandon it in order to let more under-qualified black people teach would harm black progress at least as much as white in the long run.

The high court ruling, surprisingly, endorsed South Carolina's unique use of NTE scores to determine salary scales. North Carolina seeks, in defending a suit by the U.S. Justice Dept. and the North Carolina Association of Educators now before Federal Judge Frank Dupree, merely to continue using NTE to set a minimum score floor for its teacher applicants, not for salaries.

If exam use is not intentionally discriminatory when used for salaries, neither Dupree nor the Supreme Court is likely to hold it so when used as a screen for candidates. That is good news for the movement back toward stiffer standards and academic excellence whose existence the Court evidently recognizes and endorses.

The NTE is not an intelligence test, and North Carolina requires a score so low — 950 — that only five percent of those who take it nationwide wouldn't attain it, though because of historic disadvantages 30 percent of N.C. blacks who have taken it have failed.

Nor does the NTE tell a thing about other abilities teachers need — warm personality, caring about and understanding of children, ability to communicate, patience, tolerance, endurance.

But as Wake School Supt. John Murphy once remarked, the exam does, at a rudimentary level, reveal whether a teacher is "bright". And as he hardly needed to add, the schools need bright teachers.

Memorial Blizzard Blast

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Ever since an American Airlines stewardess named Toby Pyle (wife of one of our Washington writers) told me Buffalo had the worst weather of any city she flew into, I have admired the spunk and good humor of its frost-bitten citizenry.

So it comes as no shock that Buffalo has decided to remember the Great Blizzard of '77 by staging a giant snow ball — black tie, if you please — on Jan. 28, one year to the day after winds howling off Lake Erie began burying the city under a snowfall that 10 days later measured 43 inches. This is not only taller than most St. Bernard dogs and enough to obliterate hundreds of acres of abandoned automobiles, but the drifts were higher than many houses and thousands of people were stranded for days in courthouses, supermarkets, bowling alleys and gin mills.

Ten people froze to death in their automobiles out on the bleak highways where nothing moved but rescue snow scooters, and another 18 died in blizzard-related accidents, including fires that raged out of control as water froze inside fire hoses and hydrants coughed up ice cubes.

"Maybe the blizzard was lousy for business and a lot of other things, but it brought out fellowship among the people of Buffalo," said Bill Eaton, an art gallery proprietor who organized the blizzard ball. "Most of us had fun, got to know one another better. The ball is a way of keeping all that going."

The memorial blizzard blast will be held in a lovely Buffalo mansion called Butler Hall, which to me anyway seems exceedingly appropriate as it was the home of the late Mrs. Edward Butler, the long-time president of the Buffalo,

Evening News.

I met Mrs. Butler, a lady of great charm and wit, on an airplane once going to Ireland and she wondered aloud whether it would be raining when we got there. I thought it strange that someone from Buffalo should worry about the weather anywhere, which elicited both a laugh and an anecdote from my seatmate.

Mrs. Butler related that one year in the early 1950s the weather was so horrid in Buffalo she decided to cheer up her readers by giving them the weather report each day from Fairbanks, Alaska, by way of suggesting that things could be worse.

"The first day we tried it with a front page box," the lady recalled. "It was 8 below in Buffalo and 15 above in Fairbanks. The next day we slipped to 10 below and Fairbanks was right on zero. The third day I said to hell with it and went to Florida."

Those who shovel off to Buffalo for the big snow ball will find that the indomitable spirit of Mrs. Butler and weather wise people like her invest this upstate New York community with a rough and ready pioneer-type humor.

which is why the town became one vast slumber party during its wintery ordeal.

I have no idea who is coming to the frostbite frolic, but I hope the guest list includes the 190-pound traffic cop who was blown over six times while on duty that first howling January night, and all the guys snowed in at the bowling alley who just went on improving their game, and the weather forecasters who were snowbound in their observatory out at the airport.

It would be nice if the guest list included the Rev. Hubert Reimann, the priest in rural Sardinia who bunked down 30 orphans of the storm and always answered his phone, "St. Jude's Ski Lodge." And Ruth Rusiniak, the widow with six kids, who cooked up enough soup and goulash to feed 120 refugees camped out in the volunteer fire house in Cheektowaga. Also the lady who couldn't make it home from Nork in the storm, went into a tavern, bought a lottery ticket and won $1,000 a week for the rest of her life.

Since, as Police Commissioner Thomas Blair noted, "the storm brought out

Strength For Today

SPIRITUAL EXERCISE
Someone has said that the greatest need felt by a large number of churchgoers is not for more spiritual food but more spiritual exercise. In our physical lives, if we eat heavily over a long period of time and take no exercise, we become fat, lose energy, and make ourselves prey to many kinds of organic diseases. Figuratively speaking, the same thing happens in our spiritual lives.

Large numbers of people attend church every Sunday, listen to the most commendable sentiments expressed from the pulpit, give silent or audible consent, and then leave the church without the least intention of doing anything about the truth they have listened to and approved.

An Impact From The Missing

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress doesn't seem the same without Hubert Horatio Humphrey directing torrents of oratory and energy toward the solution of a vast range of national and world problems.

And the impact of Humphrey's death and those of two other senior Democratic senators is certain to go far beyond the loss of three familiar faces from the ranks of the 95th Congress.

Missing from the Senate along with the Minnesota Democrat when Congress reconvened last week were Sens. John L. McClellan of Arkansas and Lee Metcalf of Montana.

McClellan was chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and his death touched off a wholesale shift in key committee assignments.

Metcalfe's death may be felt in the House-Senate conference committee which has been deadlocked for months over the question of price controls on natural gas.

The impact of Humphrey's death is harder to measure.

It's likely to speed action on the Humphrey-Hawkins bill which many members of Congress now feel would be the sort of memorial the Minnesota Democrat would have liked.

But the jobs bill now working its way through Congress with the endorsement of President Carter lacks the firm commitment to federal action that Humphrey included in the original version.

The measure sets a goal of an adult unemployment rate no higher than 3 percent at the end of five years. But gone is the promise that the federal government would become the employer of last resort if that goal isn't reached.

The compromise bill provides that the government should consider the impact on inflation of any effort to create jobs. If such action is determined to be inflationary, the president would have the option of changing the target rather than creating the jobs.

Where the Carter administration is far more likely to miss Humphrey is in his self-appointed role as conciliator and lobbyist in such areas as energy and foreign affairs.

The natural gas deadlock may be broken as a result of Metcalf's death. The Montana Democrat supported the administration position that price controls had to be retained. With Metcalf voting, the senatorial conferees were deadlocked 9-9.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said last week he was uncertain what would be done about naming a successor to Metcalf on the conference committee. But senators on both sides of the issue were speculating that the seat would be left vacant, thereby ending the deadlock among the Senate conferees.

That would put the Senate conferees narrowly in favor of dropping price controls and the House group in favor of retaining them. The current thinking on Capitol Hill is that the situation then would be ready for the sort of middleground solution traditionally reached by conference committees.

McClellan's death could have greater long-term impact. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., a traditional liberal, is in line to take over as chairman of the appropriations committee. He would have to give up his chairmanship of the commerce committee, which would go to Sen. Howard Cannon, D-NeV.

Magnuson was a strong supporter of consumer legislation. Whether Cannon would continue that trend is uncertain.

McClellan also was a principal architect of the criminal code bill now being debated in the Senate.

That bill, a rewriting of the federal criminal code, is a delicate compromise of liberal and conservative views on many sections of the criminal statutes. Many of those compromises resulted from negotiations between McClellan and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

With McClellan gone, the agreements that enabled the measure to reach the floor could collapse if much controversy develops.

Wilmington 10 Await Verdict

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. James B. Hunt goes on statewide television tonight to write what he hopes will be the final chapter in the long and tangled case of the Wilmington 10.

Hunt will speak live from his Capitol office in an address carried over "virtually every television station in the state," aides say.

"He will speak for 25 minutes about his decision and how he reached it and what it means," assistant press secretary Stephanie Bass said.

The nine still in prison will hear their fate on televisions at the various prison units where they are now housed. Deputy prison director W.L. Kautzky said Sunday the 10 will be brought to Central Prison in Raleigh Tuesday morning for a meeting with their attorney and a news conference.

The 40-year-old governor, wrestling with one of the toughest problems of his first year in office, says the speech will be his final word on the case. But regardless of the decision, the speech is unlikely to end the Wilmington 10 as a subject of dispute.

Hunt has four basic options available: He can grant a full "pardon of innocence;" he can grant a lesser "pardon of forgiveness;" he can commute the sentences to allow earlier release or parole; or he can do nothing.

Supporters of the 10 want a full pardon. The nine black men were convicted in 1972 of firebombing a white-owned grocery store in Wilmington, N.C. during racial violence there in 1971. The tenth, a white woman, was convicted as an accessory.

Some want the group to serve out their sentences, which range up to 34 years for the Rev. Ben Chavis. A Charlotte man has circulated petitions urging Hunt not to intervene in the case.

But still others have urged the governor to take a middle course, perhaps a commutation of the sentences.

"I hope he doesn't do anything extreme, either too far to the right or too far to the left," said the Rev. Ronald Coley, now pastor at the Gregory Congregational Church in Wilmington, where Chavis was accused of organizing the others in the firebombing.

The one member of the 10 now free on parole, Anne Sheppard Turner, said last week she did not know if the 10 would accept anything less than a full pardon. But at a prison news conference last July, Chavis answered that question.

"The only thing I would accept is a pardon of innocence," he said. "If they open these prison doors and give me regular street clothes, I'll walk out of here. That doesn't mean I'll accept it."

Many in the group are unlikely candidates for the "prisoners of conscience" label given them by the Nobel-prize winning Amnesty International. Most were teen-agers in 1971, still in high school, when violence flared.

It began as a dispute over a memorial service for Martin Luther King Jr. The school administration would not allow one, and blacks began boycotting classes.

Some students began meeting at the Gregory Church, a historical old black church with a new white minister, the Rev. Eugene Templeton. Chavis, working for the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice, was sent to help ease tensions.

Chavis led the students in demonstrations, which were sometimes met by rock-throwing Ku Klux Klansmen.

The violence intensified and bullets were fired at the Templetons' home next to the church. Mike's Grocery and some adjacent black homes burned. Two men, one white and one black, died in the gunfire.

Chavis was charged with murder in the white's death but was never tried. In 1972 he and the other blacks were convicted under an obscure law against malicious burning with an incendiary device. They were also found guilty of conspiring to fire on emergency personnel.

All received sentences of more than 20 years on the burning charge and three to five years for conspiracy. Mrs. Turner was convicted of a lesser charge and given 7 to 10 years in prison.

They were convicted primarily on the testimony of Allen Hall, a young black man who was later sentenced to 12 years for his part in the burning. Hall testified that Chavis organized the firebombing, and he was corroborated by two other young blacks.

Appeals were rejected in both state and federal courts, and they finally began serving their sentences on Feb. 2, 1976. But in 1977 they were granted a post-conviction hearing.

Superior Court Judge George Fountain ruled at the end of the two-week hearing that he could find no error in the original trial and denied motions for a new trial.

During the hearing, Hall swore under oath that his original testimony was a lie. But later a secretly-taped phone call from Hall to Stroud was played in court in which Hall appeared to reverse his recantation.

The rebutting witnesses also recanted at the hearing. One, 13-year-old Eric Junious, said prosecutor James T. Stroud promised him a minibike for his testimony. The other, Jerome Mitchell, said he testified with the understanding that it would help him win release on an unrelated second-degree murder conviction.

Stroud denied any misconduct, and a U.S. Justice Department-ordered grand jury investigation last year resulted in no indictments.

Thousands In Grip Of N.C. Power Outages

By The Associated Press

Thousands of North Carolinians left without electricity by last Thursday's ice storm were still waiting today to have their power turned back on.

Special emergency crews for the state's two largest utility companies worked feverishly to restore service to all customers, some of the linemen brought in from out coastal regions where there was no damage or from out of state.

A Duke Power Co. spokesman said the extra manpower and damage to equipment from ice-laden trees would cost the company as much as $3 million, including damage from a similar storm the previous week. Carolina Power and Light Co. had no damage estimate.

About 6,700 customers of the two companies were without electricity Sunday night.

Duke reported 6,300 customers still without power at 5 p.m. Sunday, including about 3,500 in Greensboro, while CP&L was working to restore service to about 400 of its customers.

Dick Pierce, a Duke Power spokesman, said crews from as far away as Georgia and South Carolina had been called in and helicopters were used to spot downed lines in rural areas.

In addition the Greensboro outages, about 1,200 Duke Power customers in Burlington and 600 to 700 in nearby Swepsonville were also without power, he said.

"We hope to have the Burlington district mopped up by Tuesday night," he said. "It was the hardest hit as far as damage from the second ice storm last week, and some of the repairs there haven't been made permanent yet."

Several hundred customers were also without power in Gibsonville, west of Burlington. Crewmen were having difficulty making repairs, Pierce said, but he estimated that power there would be fully restored by this afternoon.

Pierce said power was expected to be fully restored by Sunday night to Hillsborough, Chapel Hill and Durham. Only a handful of customers in those communities were without power by this afternoon.

"The country is dealing with a 'Born Again' President," said a stand-up comedian. "And it isn't any easier for him than it is for us."

"I believe there's hope," I said, trying to cheer up everyone's spirits. "Don't forget Nixon didn't give us much funny material the first year he was in office, either. We've got to give Carter a chance. No President, including Gerry Ford, ever let down political cartoonists or humorists before."

"He's right," someone said. "One year is too short. If Carter would just take one more trip around the world I think we'd all be home free."

"Yes, but what do we do until then?" "How about Ham Jordan? He's sorta getting to be funny," a club member said.

"Yeh, but only when he goes to dinner."

the best and the worst in us," maybe a few of the more outrageous looters should be on hand for the grand march, especially the guy who stole the snowplow.

The big blizzard ball undoubtedly will bring out its share of "Buffalo Blizzard Bores," a large mouth species given to endless recitals of how high the drifts were above their second-story bedroom windows and how after 10 days they finally found their faithful family cars out on the Thruway and engine kicked to life right away.

Steve Weller, columnist for the Buffalo Evening News, did a classic snow job on the blizzard bores when he shoveled up a yarn about his own car being found by four guys drilling for natural gas. It had been buried more than a week, "but the lights were on and the radio was playing 'April in Paris.'"

The reassuring thing about staging a blizzard ball in Buffalo is that the organizing committee doesn't have to book the hall for an alternate date in the event of inclement weather. Just so long as the band can make its way through the drifts to play "Let It Snow, Let It Snow" and similar seasonal ballads.

both are to be dealt with simultaneously.

Carter's economic advisers say his $25 billion tax cut program for 1978 is essential to maintaining economic growth in the 4.5-5 percent range that will make it possible to achieve even the modest goals he has set.

The GNP, which is the total value of goods and services produced in the economy, grew by 4.9 per cent in 1977, after discounting for inflation. Administration economists say it would slump to 3.5 percent in 1979 without the tax help and thus could lead to an increase in unemployment.

Growth below 4 percent is considered insufficient to keep up with the nation's growing labor force, with the result that unemployment increases.

Projections for the nation's GNP show it will hit the $2 trillion mark for the first time this year, averaging $2,099 trillion, up from an average of $1.89 trillion in 1977. The 1979 projection is for a GNP averaging $2,335 trillion.

er Sunday, he said.

Meanwhile, CP&L spokesman Mac Harris said power was restored Sunday to all but about 400 customers in the Roxboro and Yanceyville area and "a very small number" in Oxford.

Service was restored Sunday to more than 2,000 customers in those areas and about 200 others in Pittsboro, Asheboro and Siler City, he said.

"We had a lot of happy people out there. I'll tell you," Harris said.

He said crews in some isolated areas still without power would have to wait until Monday to continue work because "they will have to walk in with their equipment on their back, and that will require daylight."

Harris said CP&L had no estimate Sunday of how much the two ice storms would cost the company, but he noted that repair work would be continuing for some time as crews went back to make temporary repairs permanent.

To Attend Conference

Two local educators will participate in the Right to Read State Leadership Training Conference the week of January 23-27 at the Mid Pines Club in Southern Pines.

Barbara Gorrod, reading resource teacher for Greenville City Schools, and Wanda Caldwell, supervisor in the Martin County Schools, will participate in the program being sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction.

The conference will train the administrative and supervisory personnel from the local school unit to conduct reading projects that will improve the reading abilities of high school students.

A Volunteer

Dr. Peter B. Fricke of the East Carolina University Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources participates as a member of the NOAA/U. S. Coast Guard Spilled Oil Research team as a non-paid volunteer. Fricke is assigned to the team under a contract with East Carolina University which provides for reimbursement of certain expenses. The SOR team is made up of selected members, who are state or federal employees, who have special skills.

Baptists Meet On Wake Forest Role

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — This may be a historic week in the long-standing feud between Wake Forest University and the Baptist State Convention — possibly even the last week.

The convention's general board will be meeting in Raleigh, and there is considerable sentiment among its members for an end to the affiliation between the two institutions.

"I'm hearing more of that talk now than I ever have before, and I've been here since 1953 about a possible change of the relationship," said Russell Brantley, assistant to the president and director of communications for the university.

The immediate cause of hostilities was the decision by the Wake Forest board of trustees to accept $85,000 of a federal grant for construction of a laboratory.

The Baptist State Convention had already voted that the school should not accept the money because it violated convention policies which forbid acceptance of government grants for anything but projects through which the school can return the value of the grant to the community through performance of a service.

When the school trustees voted to take the money anyway, many Baptist leaders concluded that the trustees have exceeded their authority under the school charter, in which they agree to run the school according to convention policies.

The convention names the trustees, and some general board members have suggested that if the trustees don't remind their action they should be fired.

The convention's executive committee planned to discuss the matter this afternoon. The entire general board is scheduled to take it up on Wednesday.

Rewards Of System Seen

ECU News Bureau

BELHAVEN — Dr. Leo W. Jenkins Saturday night vigorously defended the American free enterprise system, saying that it "provides a level of dignity" for all.

"Critics accuse the free enterprise system of creating social injustice. Actually, it does the very opposite," Jenkins said.

The East Carolina University chancellor said America did not achieve its greatness in the world through exploitations.

"We did it through our aggressive business and industrial community — and the hand of technology which we developed."

"What other nation in the world could have a national budget of $500 billion — much of which goes for human needs," Jenkins asked.

"The free enterprise system is, in Winston Churchill's words, a system of unequal prizes."

"It rewards those who can build and sell better products."

"It favors the ingenious, the inventive, the hardworking."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined slowly today in a quiet session, registering no strong response to President Carter's tax and budget proposals.

The 300 Industrial was off 3.72 at 773.22.

Losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors found few surprises in President Carter's State of the Union message and tax proposals late last week.

Many elements of the tax package are expected to meet with resistance in Congress.

Today the President sent to Congress his proposed federal budget of just over $500 billion for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

The primary reason for the Dow's decline was a 1 1/2% drop to 47 1/2 in the shares of Eastman Kodak. In an antitrust case brought by Berkeley Photo, a federal jury ruled that Kodak monopolized the market for color cameras, film and paper.

Berkey shares had not opened by noon.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost 20 to 49.53. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .01 to 121.84.

Volume on the Big Board was a modest 7.50 million shares over the first two hours.

Data Terminal Systems fell 7 1/2 to 62 on the Amex. The company cited a Barron's magazine article on competition in the electronic cash-register market.

'Combat Zone' Is Withering

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Combat Zone, Boston's officially deemed Disneyland of sex, is withering in a blizzard of police sweeps, license suspensions and bad publicity.

The cluster of X-rated moviehouses, porno bookstores and topless-bottomless bars is only a tarnished memory of its once wide-open libido.

An area where hookers once elbowed for prime curb space and reached in car windows to fondle drivers is now often deserted of all but police officers, who sit in idling cars along Washington Street, the zone's main thoroughfare, and stride slowly past the bars.

Some of the bars, bookstores and theaters have closed. Two have been wrecked by suspicious fires.

In 1977, the liquor licenses of virtually every bar and strip joint in the two-block zone were suspended for prostitution, "open and gross lewdness" or other such transgressions. The suspensions lasted from one to four months.

"It's pretty much dead now," says Robert Walsh, head of the urban renewal agency that zoned the downtown section for sex-oriented businesses in 1974.

The idea had been to keep the raunch from seeping into residential neighborhoods. But the aura of official approval made the zone a magnet for prostitutes, pickpockets and other unsavory elements.

Late in 1976, a Harvard football player was stabbed in the heart when he chased a prostitute who stole a friend's wallet. His death led to a swift, abrupt crackdown, and the Combat Zone has never recovered.

Last year, the police vice squad issued 843 complaints against bars for such alleged violations as allowing prostitutes to troll for customers and nude dancers to mingle with customers. The total was double that of the year before, and most of the offenses were in the Combat Zone.

"The police have really been giving them the business," said vice squad Lt. John Chalpin.

"Regardless of whether there are nude shows down there or not, we're still not going to put up with larcenies or robberies or murders."

Nude dancing is legal in the Combat Zone as long as the gy-

Arkansas Town Seeks Jobless

NASHVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Too many people are working in this southwest Arkansas town.

At least that's the way Mayor W.B. Holliday, 64, sees it. "We need to import some unemployed persons," Holliday says, in order to qualify for federal money to extend water lines or build new sewers.

Sterling Cockrill, head of the Little Rock office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, says eligibility for grants is based on points "awarded" for poverty and unemployment.

Nashville scores low. The unemployment rate in Howard County around Nashville is 3.1 percent, the lowest in Arkansas. Last year's national rate was 6.2 percent.

To make it worse, since 1975, Nashville has received almost $45,000 in federal funds used to hire more city employees, which, in turn, further reduces unemployment.

BUILDING PLANT

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Miller Brewing Co. has announced plans to build a $37 million aluminum can plant here that will employ 330 persons and supply the Miller brewery now under construction in Eden.

storm. But a Virginia Electric & Power Co. spokesman said 8,000 people in southside Virginia still were without power. Spokesmen for area power companies said nearly 100,000 homes, schools and businesses were without power during one period.

Gov. Julian Carroll deactivated all but a handful of National Guardsmen as the sun broke through clouds and helped melt huge mounds of ice and snow that covered most of Kentucky last week. Light snow fell in some southeastern counties.

On Thursday 353 Guardsmen were called out, and Carroll said all but 14 were being sent home today. State police said Interstate highways were open but still slick from lingering patches of ice and snow.

Schools remained closed today in seven Kentucky counties.

Indiana officials said it would be business as usual in most of the state today as temperatures warmed. Evansville schools were set to reopen today, and state police said roadways were generally clear after a 15-inch snowfall, although some slick spots remained.

Absentees Due Fear Of Snow

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — There's fear of flying and fear of heights. Now fear of snow?

Some corporate officials here think their workers are frightened of snow storms, not in reaction to recent heavy snowfalls but because of last year's record blizzards which buried Buffalo for most of the winter.

James Bishop, regional spokesman for General Motors, says employee absentee rates skyrocket when warnings are broadcast.

"Prior to last year's major storm, people went out to work when the winds were blowing and the snows were falling," he said. But now, "the high absenteeism happens every time we get a forecast."

Seventeen crewmen from the Greenville Utilities Commission were called out of town this weekend to help restore power to Lexington and High Point following ice storms in both cities.

According to Henry Hoell of the Commission, ten crewmen reported to Lexington and seven to High Point.

"The crew left Friday at noon and got back in town about five o'clock yesterday," said Hoell. The ten men who went to Lexington joined their co-workers in High Point after they were cleared in Lexington.

Hoell said that there is an agreement between electric cities that "whenever one of them gets in trouble, then the ones that are not in trouble help."

He added that Lexington and High Point would both pay

Phnom Penh A Dead Capital

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Cambodia's Communist rulers have transformed Phnom Penh, a city of 3 million people in 1975, into a town of not more than 15,000 persons living among empty shops and streets converted to gardens, a Danish diplomat says.

Kjeld Mortensen, Denmark's ambassador to China, Vietnam and Cambodia, told a Radio Denmark two-week visit to Cambodia from which he and envoys from Sweden, Finland, Tanzania and Iraq returned last week. The interview was broadcast Sunday.

Mortensen said no older people were to be seen in Phnom Penh and children, some as young as 10, made up the labor force. He said Cambodian officials described them as "active participants in the revolution."

He reported the side streets of the capital had been converted into vegetable plots, grazing ground for sheep or runs for rabbits and chickens.

The ambassador said he was told most of the city's population had been sent into the countryside to live in collective farm villages of 500 to 600 families each. He said a request to visit one of the villages was refused.

He said the countryside they saw was still scarred by the war, with few bridges and almost no stone buildings standing.

Very few Westerners have been admitted to Cambodia since Communists took over the country in 1975. Refugees reaching Thailand have reported many thousands of their countrymen led to starvation, disease and exhaustion after the Communists drove them from the cities and towns to convert the country into a completely agricultural society.

System Lowers Auto Mileage

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The "scramble system," an all-red traffic signal that allows pedestrians to cross an intersection in all directions at once, can save time for walkers but wastes gas for motorists.

Gordon Neale of Honeywell's Traffic Management Center said this was one of the findings of a study made for the Federal Highway Administration and the Federal Energy Administration, based on computer analysis of traffic statistics on streets in several cities.

Scramble systems can reduce vehicle miles per gallon by 13 percent and slow traffic from 160 to 820 percent, depending on how many cars are making turns.

ENJOY YOUR INFLATION HEDGE

The best way to get people to talk about economics is to have prices skyrocket. People who worry about inflation aren't kidding; the problem is real and serious. But what can we do to protect ourselves?

If you are a homeowner, you are doing it unknowingly because one of the safest and surest hedges against inflation is the ownership of real estate. Your "shelter" expense will stay fairly steady even in times of rising prices. The monthly payments on a mortgage don't change at all.

If you decide to sell, you can be confident—except in a forced sale—of getting back more money than before inflation hit. And, if you're in need of cash, your rising equity in your home increases your potential borrowing power. So, if you're a homeowner, you've been an effective economist all along and didn't know it.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO., 201 E. Arlington Blvd., GREENVILLE, Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

NASCAR driver and last year's Grand National champion Cale Yarborough waves as he exits his car after winning the Winston Western 500 auto race at the Riverside International Raceway Sunday in Riverside, Calif. Yarborough beat out Benny Parsons and David Pearson in a tight finish. (AP Laserphoto)

Yarborough Takes Winston Western

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — "I felt all last year like we gave that one away. It bothered me," said Cale Yarborough of a last-lap loss to David Pearson in the Winston Western 500 stock car race a year ago. But in the rematch Sunday, there was no charity in Yarborough's heart. And he served notice he is still the driver to beat, despite a new car and crew. The two-time national champion protected a three-car length margin to the finish line as Benny Parsons and Pearson slugged it out for second place behind him. Parsons won that duel by a car length.

of his key challengers, gives Yarborough a healthy head start toward an unprecedented third straight national title. Richard Petty finally got stuck in the mud off the course 13 laps from the finish when his differential locked. Darrell Waltrip, who won six races last season, also was eliminated from the competition when he went off the course late in the race. Bobby Allison dropped out fairly early with a serious engine deficiency. The result was that only two drivers committed to challenging Yarborough for the title through all 30 races in 1978 were among the top 14 finishers Sunday.

Yarborough said it takes a while to work the bugs out of a new car and learn what its capabilities are. "We weren't quite sure what we had when we started out working with the Oldsmobile," he said. "Like the suspension is more like a Chevelle than the Monte Carlo type we usually run here. We've never run configuration before." In spite of that, Yarborough was asked if he's now comfortable with the car. "We're building three more between now and Daytona. We gonna have a whole house full of Oldsmobiles," he answered.

"I feel like we had it won last year until the last lap," Yarborough said. "But a car went off in front of me and kicked a bunch of sand back up on the track. When I got there, I got to slidin' in the sand and David got me." Still, memories of last year didn't force Yarborough to play it cautious this time around. "There wasn't no time to take it easy out there. I had to drive every lap just as hard as I could possibly drive," Yarborough said. "This was a heckuva race." The victory, coupled with misfortune that befell several

And Yarborough has the jump on the others in as much as he debuted his new Oldsmobile 442 here and won with it while most of the competition is waiting until the Daytona 500 next month to wheel out their new machinery. "We were just hoping to finish well with it the first time out and still learn a few things before Daytona," said Yarborough, whose win was the first for Oldsmobile in Grand National racing since 1959. "This was an important race, don't get me wrong. But Daytona is a VERY important race."

Playing in Pro Bowl Still Thrills Veterans

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Ken Houston and Tom Mack each have a decade of All-Pro honors behind them. But they and other veterans of the Pro Bowl are as thrilled to be playing tonight's game as are the All-Star "rookies."

Mack, a guard with the Los Angeles Rams, recalled: "When I played in my first Pro Bowl, I was in awe of a lot of the other players. I mean, these were the stars, superstars, players I'd looked up to and sometimes only read about or heard about."

And how, Mack was asked, did he feel being at the other end, looked up to by newcomers to the Pro Bowl? "Aw, I don't think that's really the case," he replied. "I don't think I'm really in the superstar category. But I'll tell you this: it's a real honor to know that I've got more pro experience than anyone else playing here and that I'm still being picked, especially because you get picked by your peers. If the players and coaches think I'm that good, that's got a real special meaning to me."

"Maybe some of the nervousness of playing in this kind of company wears away after a while, but the thrill never does," said Houston, a safety for the Washington Redskins and, like Mack, a 10-time All-Pro. "The thing is, this is the game where the best plays, and you always want to gauge yourself, to see how you're doing, and you always want to do it against the best," Houston said. "If you can have a real good game against these guys, you know you've achieved something."

Nobody on the American Conference roster comes close to the 10-year All-Pro status of Mack and Houston, each wearing National Conference uniforms. Oakland guard Gene Upshaw and Miami quarterback Bob Griese have each been selected to the elite squad seven times. "I still enjoy coming here every bit as much as I did when I first started," said Upshaw. "For one thing, it's one of the few times so many of us can get together, except maybe for an occasional golf tournament or something. "And let's face it, I like to play football and there's a football game in town and I like

Borg Best, For Moment

By TOM BRETTEINGEN
Associated Press Writer
BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — The $250,000 Grand Slam of Tennis doesn't have the tradition of Wimbledon or Forest Hills, but it does its bit to answer the question of who is the world's best male tennis player. For the moment, it appears to be Bjorn Borg. The stoic Swede turned aggressive Sunday and whipped Jimmy Connors 7-6, 3-6, 6-1 on clay in a three-hour match that left 8,000 spectators and a national television audience applauding the numerous clean winners and crisp rallies. "It's just the best tennis you'll ever see, win or lose," is the way Connors modestly assessed the clash. Borg collected $125,000 for two days' work in the four-man event. Connors earned $60,000. Brian Gottfried won

$40,000 by beating Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 6-3 in the consolation round earlier Sunday. Gerulaitis pocketed $25,000. Borg credited a new game plan for his victory in the fastpaced final. "Before the match, I said to myself, 'I'm going to play a little bit different,'" he said. "I said I was going to hit the ball hard and make him run after the ball. "Before I have been pushing the ball more and slicing more. I kept him back and I kept him on the baseline. That's very important against Jimmy. This is probably the way I should always play against him." But Connors disagreed, blaming the loss on his own aggressiveness. "He wasn't hitting me at all. All he was doing was playing back and hitting a lot of topspins," he said. "I did most anything I wanted to, but I just missed the ball a few inches a couple of times. "I'm not perfect — pretty close, but not perfect." Connors started strong, running up a 3-1 lead in the first set. He broke Borg's serve to take a 5-3 advantage, but Borg broke back and saved two match points on his own serve to even the set 5-5. The two players both held service to force a 12-point tiebreaker. Borg won that easily, 7-1. The Swede had an opportunity to take a commanding lead in the second set. Leading 3-2, he had several chances to break Connors' service in the sixth game of the set. But a passing shot was wide and a backhand long, permitting Connors to even the set at 3-3. Connors won the next three straight, breaking Borg's service twice to win the middle set. The final set was all Borg's. He won the first three games, had his service broken once, then took the last three for the title. Connors put everything he had into every point right up to the end. In the final rally, he was still hitting the lines, and it took a fine backhand passing shot by Borg to close out the match. The victory was Borg's second straight in the tournament. He beat Connors last year at Wimbledon but lost to him two weeks ago in the Grand Prix Masters in New York. Borg declined to comment on whether the latest victory made him the World's No. 1 male tennis player. But Connors wasn't ready to step aside for Borg or anyone else, including Guillermo Vilas, who had to miss this tournament with a bad ankle. "The year's still young," he told newsmen, "ask me in December."

Watson, Floyd In Deadlock

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Ray Floyd has an opportunity to acquire an item that has eluded him for 16 long years on the pro golf tour — a victory in California. "I've never won out here, and we play a awful lot of golf in California," Floyd said after he and Tom Watson had emerged from a mad scramble over the last few holes in a tie for the lead Sunday after three rounds of the rain-delayed $225,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

ly erratic round of par 72 and Watson struggled to a 71 at Pebble Beach Sunday. That's the site for the final round, too. Very much in contention at 212, only one shot out of the lead, were Tom Weiskopf, Dave Stockton, David Graham and Mike Morley, who once held the lead alone before making double-bogey six on the 17th. Morley finished with 68. Stockton and Graham shot 69s and Weiskopf had 71. At 213 were Andy North, Gibby Gilbert, Don Bies, Ben Crenshaw, Hale Irwin and Tommy McGinnis. North had a 69 in the mild, sunny weather. Gilbert 72, Bies and Crenshaw 73, and McGinnis and Irwin 74. U.S. Open champ Hubert Green was alone at 214 after a 74. Jack Nicklaus had the day's best round, 66, but remained well back at 217. Arnold Palmer shot 73 and missed the cut for the final round at 225. As a team, he and his amateur partner, former President Gerald Ford, also missed. They were at 205, two shots over the cut. Floyd had sole control of the lead until he reached the last six holes, which stretch over the picturesque cliffs of Carmel Bay. He made double-bogey six when he missed the green on the 13th and failed to get the next one up an embankment.

"I've come close. I lost a playoff to Jack Nicklaus here. I lost a playoff to Arnold Palmer in the Bob Hope (Desert Classic). And I lost a playoff to J.C. Snead in San Diego. But I've never won in California."

And, Floyd said, a victory in California "is imperative if a player is looking for an outstanding season. By that I mean a season as leading money winner or something like that. You check the record, you'll see the man that comes out of California as the leading money-winner often finishes the season as leading money-winner."

Last year that man was Tom Watson. And, going into Monday's final round — the entire tournament schedule was set back one day when Thursday's play was rained out — the 1977 Player of the Year, defending champion here and winner of the 1978 Tucson Open is the leading money-winner again.

And, although 13 players were locked within three strokes of each other at the top, Watson shared the lead and ranked as the man Floyd must beat. They had 211 totals, five under par after one round on each of three Monterey Peninsula courses. Floyd had a wild-

Knicks Do Magic Trick: Defeat Denver At Home

By The Associated Press
When the Denver Nuggets lose at home, it usually takes some sleight of hand to do it. That's what the New York Knicks had Sunday.

Not only did they shoot nearly 60 percent from the field, but got their hands into a key play in overtime to come up with a breathless 143-141 National Basketball Association victory in the Mile High City.

In a contest marked by controversy and extraordinary suspense, the Knicks sent the game into overtime on Jim McMillian's long jumper at the end of regulation. The shot was so close to the buzzer that Denver Coach Larry Brown had to raise his eyebrows.

Later, he had to open his mouth when the key play of the game occurred. It happened when the Knicks knocked the ball loose from Denver's Anthony Roberts and the ball apparently bounced off Dan Issel's leg over the midcourt line. The backcourt violation cost the Nuggets possession and more after Brown opened his mouth and was assessed with a technical foul.

"I think they hit it out of Anthony's hands and the ball hit Dan," said Brown. "That's no violation, because no one has possession."

Brown said the referees would not explain to him whether they called a backcourt violation or an out-of-bounds violation.

"They never talk to you," he said. "They can't even give you an explanation. Then I get a stupid foul."

Earl Monroe hit it, giving New York a 140-137 lead. Ray Williams then made a free throw with 13 seconds left and Monroe hit two more at the seven-second mark, giving the Knicks an insurmountable 143-137 lead and assuring only Denver's second loss in 21 home games this year.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the San Antonio Spurs rocked the Portland Trail Blazers 106-95; the Phoenix Suns beat the Washington Bullets 114-101; the Philadelphia 76ers tripped the Golden State Warriors 99-87; the Cleveland Cavaliers edged the Atlanta Hawks 93-89; the Milwaukee Bucks routed the Chicago Bulls 112-90; the Kansas City Kings stopped the New Jersey Nets 105-97; the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Boston Celtics 103-92; the New Orleans Jazz outscored the Detroit Pistons 100-97; the Indiana Pacers whipped the Buffalo Braves 99-90 and the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Houston Rockets 106-101.

Spurs 106, Trail Blazers 95
George Gervin's 34 points led San Antonio over Portland before a standing-room-only crowd of 11,498 at the Spurs' arena. The loss was the second straight for the Trail Blazers, the NBA's winingest team with a 35-8 record.

Suns 114, Bullets 101
Paul Westphal scored 30 points and Walter Davis 22 as Phoenix outgunned a seven-man Washington team that had four players sidelined with injuries.

Behind their two high scorers, the Suns held a 59-50 lead at the half and with 4:11 to go in the third period, built an insurmountable 18-point lead. Elvin Hayes was high for Washington with 26 points.

One of the biggest problems at East Carolina University as far as sports fans is concerned is also in the mind of athletic director Bill Cain.

Twice during football season, and several times already this basketball season, heavy rains prior to contests have forced the grassy lots to be closed to parking. This necessitated long walks for some of the fans wanting to go to games.

What can be done, especially in view of the fact that next fall the stadium will seat 35,000-plus, and even more parking is going to be needed?

Cain isn't sure how quickly it can be brought about, but he acknowledges the need for more paved lots. "I've seen this problem coming for a long time," he said.

Cain wants to see the area beside Minges Coliseum at the top of the hill, and the area between the coliseum and Charles Boulevard paved into two giant lots. "I hate to do it, but it appears that we really don't have a lot of choice," he said.

The lots would not be just for parking alone, however. The lots could be used for the driver education program at East Carolina, with courses painted out on the lots. Basketball goals could also be erected at spots that would not interfere with parking for more intramural activities.

The next thing the school will need is the money to get these projects completed.

A Bad One To Lose

The loss to UNC Asheville by the East Carolina basketball team was a hard one to stomach Saturday night.

One ECU observer called it the most embarrassing ever. Even Larry Gillman termed it "disgraceful."

One of the big reasons, however, was that Oliver Mack was on the bench, apparently for disciplinary reasons. Gillman would say after the game that it was only for "personal reasons," then added that team rules apply to all.

While we are sure that it was tough to watch his team lose to a team they should have beaten, Gillman must also be admired for not playing Mack and sticking to his principles, despite the consequences of the defeat.

Unfortunately, it gets the Pirates off to a bad start on another tough road trip to UT-Chattanooga, Georgia Southern and Duke.

Perry To Be Traded

Although it is no big secret now, the announcement of the trade of Gaylord Perry to the San Diego Padres will come shortly. It will be part of a multi-team package for money and players.

According to The Sporting News the trade came about after Texas officials asked Perry to move to the bullpen next spring. Perry reportedly didn't really care for the move and wanted to stay in rotation. However, he was reported to have said he would do it if he had to.

Apparently, Texas officials decided that it would be better to trade him than make him switch. As for the trade, it apparently isn't worrying the veteran hurler, who is just as satisfied working for the Padres as for the Rangers. It will also mean a return to the National League for the Williamston native, who started out with the Giants, and was then traded to Cleveland of the American League before ending up with Texas.

76ers 99, Warriors 87

Lloyd Free scored 20 points to lead Philadelphia over Golden State. Free, who has averaged 18.9 points in the last 15 games, hit eight field goals and four foul shots as the 76ers started winning again after having a 10-game winning streak snapped Friday night in Cleveland.

Cavaliers 93, Hawks 89
Elmore Smith scored 16 points, grabbed 22 rebounds and blocked five shots to pace Cleveland over Atlanta. The victory was only the third in the last 12 games for the slumping Cavaliers.

Bucks 112, Bulls 90
Brian Winters scored 18 of his 22 points in the second half and Marques Johnson added 19, leading Milwaukee over Chicago. The loss snapped the Bulls' five-game winning streak.

Kings 105, Nets 97
Lucius Allen had 23 points as Kansas City beat New Jersey and broke a 14-game road losing streak. The Kings, 4-20 on the road this year, never trailed in handing the Nets their 10th straight loss.

SuperSonics 103, Celtics 92
Gus Williams and Johnny Johnson combined for 49 points to pace Seattle over Boston. The victory was the 20th in 24 starts for Seattle since Lenny Wilkens took over as coach.

Jazz 100, Pistons 97
Pete Maravich scored 10 of his 30 points in the fourth period to lead New Orleans over Detroit. Len Robinson had 18 rebounds for the Jazz to help them hold a 56-49 edge over the Pistons in that vital department.

Pacers 99, Braves 90
Mike Bantom scored 29 points and James Edwards added 26 to lead Indiana past Buffalo. The biggest Pacer lead came at the end of the third quarter, at 79-68, and the Braves never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

Lakers 106, Rockets 101
Norm Nixon scored 24 points to spark Los Angeles over Houston. Nixon hit six straight field goals in the third period to bring the Lakers back from a 57-51 halftime deficit to an 84-75 lead after three quarters.

High Scorer
George Gervin of the San Antonio Spurs goes over Lionel Hollins of the Portland Trailblazers for two of his 34 points in Sunday's National Basketball Association contest.

ECU Swimmers Blast Richmond

RICHMOND, Va. — The East Carolina swimming team captured its fifth consecutive win of the 1977-78 season here Sunday with a 74-38 victory over Richmond.

The Pirates won nine of 13 events, although ECU head coach Ray Scharf shuffled most of his lineup around against the Spiders, now 2-2 for the year.

Bill Fehling and Thomas Bell were both double winners for the Pirates. Fehling took first place in the 200 yard freestyle and 100 yard freestyle, while Bell won both the one and three meter diving.

East Carolina returns to action next Saturday when the Pirates go on the road to face nationally-ranked Alabama and LSU. The Pirates' next home

Tar Heels' Win Over Maryland Breaks ACC Tie

By The Associated Press
North Carolina beat Maryland over the weekend to break the Tar Heels' first place tie with Duke in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball standings, but Carolina will have to win on the road this week to stay there.

The Heels meet Wake Forest Thursday in Winston-Salem before returning home to play Clemson Saturday.

Duke needs a road win too in order to remain ahead of the rest of the pack. The Blue Devils play Virginia in Charlottesville Wednesday. They take Eastern Carolina on at home Saturday.

In other conference action this week, North Carolina State goes to Maryland and Clemson entertains Furman on Wednesday. Virginia hosts State and Wake Forest meets Appalachian State in Greensboro Saturday. And Maryland goes to Notre Dame on Sunday.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith didn't appear to think it was particularly important that Carolina was again out in front of the ACC.

"I don't want the team worrying about that right now," Smith said Saturday after the Tar Heels broke away in the second half to defeat Maryland, 85-71.

In other weekend conference action Clemson gained its first conference victory by upsetting 13th-ranked Virginia in overtime, 79-70. In nonconference games, Duke downed LaSalle, 91-81, and North Carolina State routed Iowa, 99-72.

North Carolina, now 5-1 in the conference and one-half game ahead of Duke, got 23 points from all-America guard Phil Ford, whose two steals early in the second half helped the Tar Heels turn a 42-40 halftime edge into a 49-40 bulge.

Ford moved ahead of Charlie Scott to second place on the all-time Tar Heel scoring list and trails record-holder Lennie Rosenbluth by only 30 points.

Maryland coach Lefty Driesell scolded the Tar Heels for going into their slowdown four-corners offense midway through the second half.

"I thought North Carolina was trying to rub it in a little," Driesell said, then turned to the plight of his own squad and added, "I'm not down on these guys. I hope they don't get down on themselves."

The Terrapins are 1-4 in the ACC and 11-5 overall.

Clemson saw a 52-40 lead slip away in the last 11 minutes of regulation play, but took advantage of two key Virginia personal fouls and a technical in the overtime period to salvage the victory.

"I can't remember any time in the last two and a half years when we needed a win worse," said Tiger coach Bill Foster. John Campbell led the Clemson effort with 19 points and 12 rebounds.

"If we had lost a third overtime in the conference, the ole Tiger paw might have had a hard time getting pumped back up."

The Tigers are now 1-4 in conference play and 11-5 overall. Virginia is 2-2 in the ACC and 12-2 on the season.

Lady Bucs Top Appalachian

BOONE — East Carolina University's women's basketball team gained a 77-71 triumph over Appalachian State University Saturday night.

The Lady Pirates led most of the game, and held a 40-37 lead at intermission. Appalachian made several charges at the Pirates throughout the evening, but each time, the Lady Bucs would pull away to an eight or ten point bulge.

The Pirates hit 68 percent of their shots from the floor, a season high, and had only 13 turnovers, a season low. They outrebounded Appalachian 47-36, with Marsha Girven leading the way with 14.

"The team did a great job," Coach Catherine Bolton said after the game. "I was somewhat surprised that we played that well after sitting around for two days." She was referring to the postponement of a Friday night game in Greensboro, delayed until Sunday afternoon by a power failure.

The Lady Mountaineers used a zone throughout the game, and the Pirates, sparked by the playmaking of April Ross, were able to get the ball inside the defense numerous times, as witnessed by Rosie Thompson's 27 points, mostly inside, and 14 more by Girven.

Gail Kerbaugh added 15 points, while April Ross had 12.

Following the Sunday game at Greensboro, the Lady Pirates return home for a Tuesday game with High Point.

East Carolina—Thompson 27, Kerbaugh 15, Girven 14, Ross 12, Freeman & Trill 2, Rountree.

Appalachian State—Elrod 18, Loy 2, Almond 17, Larrimore 4, Hiltz 10, Frosch 20.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Look your problems and difficulties straight in the face and decide the policies and the principles under which you wish to live in regard to them in the days ahead. To relieve others of their worries, make sure you give them a smile and a helping hand.

ARIES (March 21 to Apr. 10) You desire recreation but have to plan better for it. A loved one has a problem and needs your ideas and help with it. Arrive on time for any appointment you may have made.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A ticklish situation at home requires careful handling in order to have real harmony and contentment there. Don't get into any new project yet. Study it further before you do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more care in driving than usual and don't make critical remarks to allies. Be sure you have all your facts straight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have a monetary problem and need to confer with an expert before you can handle it wisely. Be sure you buy only what you can afford. Do nothing that can harm your health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are bored with present situation and want to make some radical changes, but think this over well first. Avoid the social which could prove difficult. Take time for study, reading.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Analyze yourself and see where to make improvements and then you can progress. Show more thought and generosity with mate and get good results. Take no risks while out driving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your friends are coming out with strange ideas, so listen but do not follow. You have to work for whatever you need of a personal nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into activities that will bring you more respect from higher-ups, even if it means more work for you. Gain more public favor, also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some new plan you have had for a long time needs further study before you get it in motion. A new contact wants you to act hastily, but don't do it. Take good care of your health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure you carry through with agreements you have with others and do so conscientiously. Loved one may be irate but take in stride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Instead of breaking up a partnership, see how you can make it more workable. Don't add to any public work until tomorrow, when aspects are better.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't reach decisions about work until tomorrow since you are not thinking as logically as you should today. Use tact with fellow worker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will require praise for any good work that is done and this gives incentive to do even better, but do not overdo it or your child could become vain and lose out where it counts the most. # Recording Co. Stood By Joan Armatrading

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The pop music world seems to have an ever-flowing spring of "important new figures" — emerging giants whose music is loved and understood by with-it critics and trashed by folks who pay money for records.

For record companies, it's kind of neat to have one of these artists in the stable. They don't sell many records, but you keep them around to show folks that somebody in the outfit's got taste. And, who knows, the artist might eventually catch on and sell.

It was with that last possibility in mind that A&M records decided to stick with a young West Indian singer named Joan Armatrading even after her third album, while swamped by a sea of critical praise, began collecting dust on record store shelves.

A&M beefed up promotion for Miss Armatrading and, instead of sending her packing, started production on a fourth album. The risk has begun to pay off, with brisk sales on her new album to complement the usual critical hoopla.

Miss Armatrading, as more and more record buyers are discovering, is not very difficult to appreciate. The Birmingham, England-raised singer delivers her straightforward message with a rich, folksy blues style so pleasing it almost makes you wish some of those other important new figures had come in.

The lady herself, rather a cautious sort who takes no pains to hide her distaste for interviews, is delighted that it has taken this long for commercial success. You get the feeling she would have delayed it further if she could have helped it.

"There never was a critical problem, if you want to call it a problem," she said one day recently. "Right from the first album, I've been well received by the critics. Every album has been really well received, critically. I couldn't ask for more. It's just been a matter of getting the sales to meet the critical acclaim."

"But that's never been a problem, in my mind."

Miss Armatrading, whose "Show Some Emotion" album is slowly climbing up the pop charts, says "it never bothered me that I didn't sell many albums."

"In fact," she continues, "when I made the first album, I didn't want it to sell. I didn't want to be an overnight star, an overnight success. I couldn't have coped with it."

"It's not an easy thing to cope with to suddenly come from nothing to everybody all of a sudden knowing you and bothering you with questions. I'm very pleased and I'm very

Top Positions For Two Cadets

ECU News Bureau

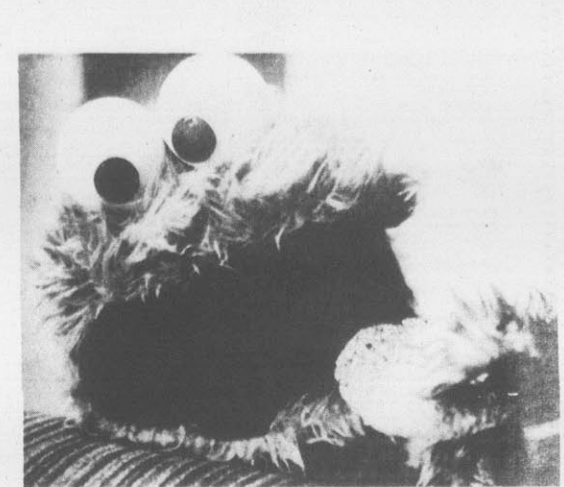

Larry Davis of Morehead City and Bernard Lambe Jr. of Goldsboro, cadets in East Carolina University's Air Force ROTC detachment, have been named commander and deputy commander, respectively, for the spring semester.

Davis is a cadet lieutenant colonel and a senior business major at ECU. As group commander he will have charge of the cadet corps during the semester.

Lambe is a cadet captain, and a junior political science major. His duty will be assisting Davis in supervisory responsibilities.

Group staff positions provide leadership experience for junior and senior cadets, and are changed each term to enable cadets to perform various management functions during the student training.

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Your hand was worth one voluntary move, and you have already made it. The fact that you have four-card support for partner's second suit does not make your hand any better. Partner's rebid in a lower-ranking suit is not forcing, so any action by you now would show extra values.

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—While you have the values to jump to three no trump, your distribution suggests a suit contract. We would make a Stayman inquiry of two clubs, followed by a rebid of three diamonds regardless of whether or not partner shows a four-card spade suit. If the hands fit well, you might be laydown for a slam!

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠73 ♥AJ9 ♦A873 ♣KQ105
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass
4 ♣ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Double, and lead a trump if partner leaves it in. Either East has some queer ideas about forcing two-bids, or his hand is very distributional. If the former, your double could reap a handsome profit; if the latter, partner might take out into a red suit for a good save.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A7 ♥5 ♦AK872 ♣AK963
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—Double. We do not normally recommend a take-out double with a two-suited hand. It is usually wiser to bid both suits. Here, however, your hand is just too strong for that action. You should still plan on showing both suits if the auction permits.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK8 ♥AQ4 ♦J983 ♣AKQ
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. Despite your wealth of prime cards, don't bid the same values twice. Your opening bid has already announced 22-24 points and something in every suit. Any further move is up to partner.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠83 ♥K976 ♦Q852 ♣K104
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—We recommend that you bid one no trump—the same action you would have taken had there been no interference. If you do not tell partner now that you have some values, you are unlikely to have the opportunity to do so later in the auction. That could result in a lost partscore or game, or a doubled penalty from the opponents.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK982 ♥AQJ6 ♦7 ♣Q83
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You are in the slam zone, but you can't yet determine the correct level of the final contract. For the moment, you need no more than complete the picture of your hand. Bid four clubs—to highlight your singleton diamond. That might spur partner into making a forward-going move.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" # Highlights At College Center

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — Residencies by the Arthur Hall Afro-American Dance Ensemble, the National Theatre of the Deaf, and the Beaux Arts Trio will be among the highlights of the winter season at Dartmouth College's Hopkins Center.

The Hop's year-long subscription series offers patrons advance tickets at a 20 percent discount, reserve seats, and the opportunity to buy advance tickets to the two remaining "bonus events" — sure-to-sell-out performances by the Intimate P.D.Q. Bach and the Preservation Hall Jazz Band.

Americans Turning To Sunbelt And Mountains

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Many Americans no longer are just dreaming about a carefree life in the sun or the mountains. They're going there at ever-increasing rates, says the U.S. Census Bureau.

In addition to rapid growth in the "Sunbelt" states, the government agency said Sunday in an interim report, there has been significant population shifts into the western mountains and the more rural northern states of New England.

"We were surprised at the very strong growth of the mountain states," said Donald Starsinic, of the Census Bureau's population division. Starsinic, whose office compiled the 1977 statistics, said the romanticism of the slow paced lifestyle in the western mountains probably has had much to do with the shift.

And he noted that Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire — which have the same attractions — also showed population increases, although the other New England states are losing people.

"These states are not tremendously built up. There's plenty of room for expansion, more pleasant living, perhaps cheaper living," Starsinic said in an interview.

The Census Bureau said the population of the nation as a whole grew 6.4 percent between 1970 and 1977, to 214,669,000.

The growth in the Sunbelt and corresponding population decline in the industrial belt of the Northeast and North Central regions has for some time been apparent. The new figures confirm the trend.

The statistics said California had the largest increase in population, with 1.9 million more people than in 1970, a 9.6 percent boost. Florida and Texas were close behind, with 1.6 million new residents each.

But Starsinic said the latest figures show the desirable regions "are spread around a lot more" than had been expected.

While Florida had a 22 percent increase in the number of people coming into the state, its rate of growth declined by one-third during the past two years, the bureau said.

At the same time, a string of mountainous states stretching from Montana to Arizona and New Mexico showed an overall population increase of 21 percent, 11.9 percent of that attributed to people coming from other parts of the country.

Increasingly, said Starsinic, states such as Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona and Nevada in the West and Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire in the Northeast have become more popular. Alaska had the highest increase, 34.6 percent, but much of that was attributed to the oil pipeline boom, the bureau said.

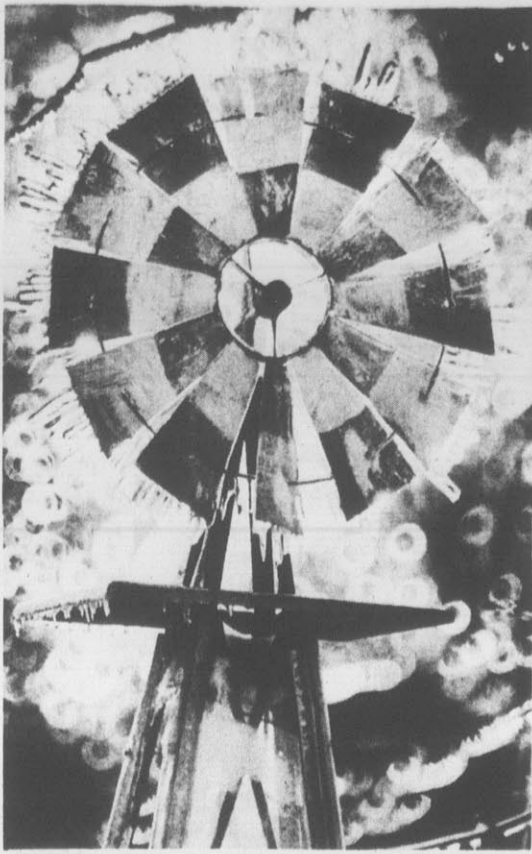

In contrast, each of 10 industrial states of the Northeast and North Central regions has less people today than seven years ago or showed only slight increases well below the national average.

The population of New York state dropped 1.7 percent, Rhode Island fell 1.6 percent, and Pennsylvania dropped 0.1 percent. At the same time, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan had increases well below the national average.

Bucking the trend in New England, Maine showed an increase of 9.2 percent, New Hampshire 15 percent and Vermont 8.7 percent. In the West, Idaho increased 20.3 percent, Wyoming 22.2 percent, Colorado 18.5 percent, New Mexico 17 percent, Arizona 29.3 percent, Utah 19.7 percent and Nevada 29.6 percent.

The Census Bureau said the shift in population — if it holds up until the official census in 1980 — would mean a change in congressional district lines, with nine seats in the House of Representatives shifting to the Sunbelt states.

Following current trends, said Starsinic, Florida and Texas would each gain two seats, and Arizona, California, Oregon, Tennessee and Utah would each gain one. New York would lose three seats, Ohio would lose two, and Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and South Dakota each would lose one.

Transplant Shortages Plague Some Growers

Shortages of transplants continue to plague some tobacco growers, according to L. Gaylon Ambrose, assistant Agricultural Extension Agent.

Insufficient plants can greatly increase the cost of getting the crop in the field, delay transplanting and increase the risk of bringing in disease on transported plants, said Ambrose.

"Most of the risks associated with tobacco plant production can be eliminated by using sound, proven production practices."

"In general, the supply of transplants for the 1977 crop in Pitt County was good. Growers did a better job of managing plants under plastic."

Ambrose added that the most common resources for plant shortages include: too little water, excess fertilizer, seeding too early, poor soil drainage, poor soil preparation, too few holes in plastic, and putting holes in plastic too late.

"North Carolina State University tobacco specialists have developed a Recipe For Growing Plants Under Perforated Plastic that has proven to be quite successful in eliminating most risks associated with plant production when it is followed completely — not eliminating or modifying a single step," he added.

The "recipe" is as follows:

- 1 — Seed 80-100 square yards of bed for each acre of tobacco to be transplanted.
- 2 — Prepare a good seed bed.
- 3 — Apply 50-75 pounds of 12-6-6 fertilizer per 100 square yards and disc into top two to

- 4 — Fumigate with methyl bromide when soil moisture is right for cultivation and air temperature is 55 degrees or higher — preferably in the fall. Aerate soil 48 hours after fumigation, but leave solid plastic on bed until seeding time.
- 5 — Perforate plastic with one half inch holes, two inches apart, before removing it from bed to seed. Put in additional holes as the weather becomes warmer.
- 6 — Seed bed 65 days prior to beginning of normal transplanting date, using one-sixth ounce of seed per 100 square yards of bed.
- 7 — Support cover with a thin layer of clean straw.
- 8 — Thoroughly wet soil by irrigation immediately after seeding, using one-fourth to one inch of water, depending upon soil moisture.
- 9 — Cover with perforated plastic immediately after irrigation.
- 10 — Observe bed frequently and treat for insects and damping off when needed.
- 11 — Start blue mold treatments when plastic cover is removed.
- 12 — If the outside temperature reaches 85 degrees for two consecutive days, remove the plastic cover to avoid heat damage, but replace it if the temperature is expected to go below 45 degrees.

Palm Oil Competes In Soybean Market

RALEIGH — Congressman Charles O. Whitley of North Carolina's Third Congressional District said recently that American soybean farmers are continuing to have to cope with foreign palm oil production that is partly financed with U.S. taxpayer dollars.

Whitley, who is opposed to this practice, stated that the World Bank and other international financial institutions receiving support from the Federal Treasury have continued to underwrite palm oil production and expansion in underdeveloped countries in spite of a Congressional resolution expressing disapproval of such loans.

"Palm oil imports, which compete with domestic soy oil products, have entered the United States in increasing and sizable amounts in recent years."

Whitley made his remarks as keynote speaker before the Eleventh Annual Membership meeting of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association held in Raleigh on Jan. 19.

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham stated that the past summer's drought experiences have highlighted the need for localizing federal disaster relief to farmers, rather than a countywide approach now followed by Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration.

Graham added that the United States must "make a renewed and concerted effort to sell its way out of the agricultural surplus situation now causing economic hardship to many farmers."

Theme of the recent meeting was "Progress through Education," and most of the day's speakers emphasized business, production, and marketing concepts that would increase efficiency and help farmers to cope with the current economic squeeze.

Ten new directors were elected to fill vacancies left by outgoing members of the Association's 30-man Board. New members are: John Balfour of Lumber Bridge, Garland Cahoon of Arapahoe, James Galloway of Greenville, W.V. Green Jr. of Raleigh, Preston Harrell of Stantonsburg, H.A. Reid of Elizabeth City, Grover Frederick Rhodes of Pink Hill, W.B. Sutton of Faison, Hassell Thigpen of Tarboro, and John Wagon of Raleigh.

Dean's List Honors For Pitt Students

A number of Pitt County students are among 2,120 other students receiving Dean's List honors at North Carolina State University for outstanding academic achievement during the fall semester.

Chancellor Joab L. Thomas congratulated the students, who represent the top 12 percent of the university's student body of 17,730. Less than two percent — 292 students — earned straight "A" averages.

A new policy, approved by Chancellor Thomas in the spring of 1976, set higher standards for Dean's List honors. Minimum requirements for earning honors were raised from an average of 3.0 ("B") to 3.2 ("B") or better.

The following is a list of Pitt County Dean's List students:

Greenville — Donna P. Sayce of 305 Lee St., computer science; William T. Corbett of Rt. 8, biological and agricultural engineering; Carolyn D. Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.K. Evans of Rt. 1, wildlife biology; Elizabeth A. Heath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.O. Heath of 112 Lakeview Dr., physics; Charles R. Kernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Kernan Jr. of 107 Hawthorne Rd., chemical engineering; Ronald L. Rasberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. P.H. Rasberry of 1409 Overlook Dr., animal science; and Peter G. Varlashkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. P.G. Varlashkin of 305 Prince Rd., chemistry.

Grifton — Kathryn T. Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Edwards, zoology; Christopher B. Howes, son of Mr. and Mrs. F.D. Howes, mechanical engineering; and Ricky L. Thorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Thorne, agriculture.

Bethel — Joy D. James, mathematics education; John L. Ayres, son of Mr. and Mrs. B.R. Ayres, chemical engineering.

Farmville — Eric J. Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.P. Pierce, agriculture; and Lillian B. Kite, accounting.

Winterville — Dawn B. King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Branch, architecture.

Permits Stores To Open Sunday

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon reminded today that the Greenville City Council January 12 amended the city's Sunday Closing (Blue Law) ordinance to allow food stores to remain open all day Sundays.

Cannon said grocery stores, fruit stands, convenience stores and curb markets may operate all day on Sundays now. Until the action of the city council, he said, there were time limitations on Sunday operation of the stores.
